I referred to the Eastern Continent as the place they started from. I will show you where they came to. He refers to the river Laman and says it can't be found. Several places mentioned cannot be found. Some places where rivers have been are now sand bars. Besides this, nations change the names of rivers. White men placed their own names upon places and rivers they discovered in America. Lehi was in a new country, and gave these places new names. United States history is false because we can't find rivers and seas by the same names as they were called by the Indians. R. G. Ingersoll decides upon the validity of the Bible in the same manner as Bays does the Book of Mormon.

He says for them at that time to talk about south southeast does not make good nonsense. They were expressing facts. Could they not express a fact as to direction without a compass? Compass did not make south southeast. Directions already existing is why the compass was made.

He says if I am charged with a crime it becomes my duty to prove I am not guilty, without the question of a doubt. He said I could prove my whole case, and all he had to do was to say, "Taint so." No judge or jury would ask that a case be proved beyond the shadow of a doubt.

He thinks I am trying to apologize for weaknesses in the Book of Mormon. I spoke of how infidels tried books that claimed to be sacred, by trying to point out their weaknesses. I am willing that Mormonism be tried by the Bible, and that the same rules used to prove the Bible true be used to prove the Book of Mormon true. You see it makes some difference with some what is being tried.

Yes, there is a calamity in the Christian Church, for if Bays is telling a truth, Braden is telling a falsehood. But it does not seem to matter with the Christian Church. They recommend both Bays and Braden with their different stories to down Mormonism, and say, "Sick 'em!" I would think it would be more honorable to call off one of the dogs. Pardon me, I will change the word "dogs" to "hounds." If one is telling a truth the other is telling a lie, that is all. The Christians should indorse one or the other, and let go of the other one.

Acts 17:22-28 shows that God would scatter the nations of men upon all the face of the earth. This would include all the habitable part of the earth. The object of so scattering the race was that they might feel after God if haply they might find him.

Genesis 11:6-9 shows that at the tower of Babel the people were scattered on all the face of the earth, their language being confounded. I referred to Jared and others coming to "the promised land." If God scattered the people at this time upon all the face of the earth, their sons must have come to this land, hence we conclude that some came to the Western Continent. To carry out the proper object those coming here would find God, and it would be in harmony with truth and justice for a record to be kept, and it is in harmony with facts. I shall show by unquestioned testimony that a people came to this land.

(Josiah Priest's work was introduced, but before anything was read an objection to the introduction of archaeological evidence was urged by Elder Bays, and nearly an hour was used in arguing the question, during which argument Bro. Williams read from a letter of Bays' to him written while arranging for the debate the following: "As to Rule 9, [as submitted by Williams to Bays] it is rendered superfluous and unnecessary, as my 7th rule provides that 'either party may bring evidence from whatever source he may deem proper,' etc." That means external and internal evidences, including archaeology. What can any reasonable, fair-minded man ask? Even after this was read Elder Bays held out against archaeology being introduced. But the chairman ruled in substance as follows: "The Book of Mormon exists. It claims to be a record. A record of what? You will proceed, Mr. Williams."—J. F. M.)

Josiah Priest in his book on American Antiquities presents a picture from a plate taken from Baron von Humboldt's volume of Researches in Mexico representing the flood and confusion of languages. On page 199 of this edition I read: "The tradition commences with an account of the deluge, as they had preserved it in books made of the buffalo and deerskin, on which account there is more certainty than if it had been preserved by mere oral tradition, handed down from father to son. They began by painting, or as we would say, by telling us that Noah, whom they call Tezpi, saved himself, with his wife, whom they call Xochiquezcal, on a raft, or canoe. Is not this the ark? The raft or canoe rested on or at the foot of a mountain, which they call Colhuacan. Is not this Ararat? The men born after this deluge were born dumb. Is not this the confusion of language at Babel?" Josephus, chapter 5, Book 1, says: "After this they were dispersed abroad, on account of their languages, and went out by colonies everywhere; and each colony took possession of that land which they lighted upon, and unto which God led them. . . . There were some also who passed over the sea in ships." The opposition must show how they came in possession of this information or accept the fact that they were descendants of those who came from the tower of Babel and had knowledge of the flood. The Book of Mormon says these people who first came to this continent came direct from the tower of Babel. How could the boy Joseph Smith know that the people who had formerly been upon this continent came from the tower of Babel? Book of Mormon also says they came to a land of many waters. Coming to the eastern part of Central America they would be presented with such a land. A land of islands and peninsulas, of lakes and rivers.

Hon. Hubert H. Bancroft in Native Races of the Pacific States, volume 5, pages 10-16, says: "Noah's ark, says Ulloa, gave rise to a number of such constructions; and the experience gained during the patriarch's aimless voyage emboldened his descendants to seek strange lands in the same manner. Driven to America and the neighboring islands by strong winds and currents, they . . . peopled the land. . . . Sigüenza . . . conjectured that they "left Egypt [Babylon] for America shortly after the confusion of tongues. . . . Clavigero considers it proven by the native flood-myths and traditions of foreign origin that the Americans are descendants of Noah. He quotes the [Toltec] tradition of Votan, who is declared to have been closely connected with the Babel-builders."

If you throw away the Book of Mormon, you do away with the Bible and archaeology also.

There was evidence of the rainbow in the traditions of the ancient inhabitants of America.

ELDER BAYS' SECOND SPEECH.

Well, after the contest we will proceed. While I bow gracefully to the ruling of the chair, yet I believe he ruled wrong. All I called the point of order for was to teach these brethren a lesson, how to word their propositions after this.

I don't care anything about archaeology. Anyone acquainted with archaeology knows there was a civilization here, but educated men differ as to who came here.

I don't think Jonah was any more uneasy in the whale's belly than Williams has been to-night.

Williams says it is Braden vs. Bays, and for the Christian Church to call off one of the dogs. I don't care which is called off.

Acts 17:22-28 says all nations were in all the earth. I accept that. They were to feel after God and find him. Conceded. Does it follow that God has revealed his will to all these nations? He tries to infer that all received a special revelation. This is only assumed. If to the ancient inhabitants of America God revealed his will, it would by the same argument prove that he had revealed his will to ancient inhabitants of Australia, also of Africa. Does he argue that God will reveal his will, then he must find a record; to prove his position correct, he must prove a record has been found claiming that He did reveal his will in Australia and Africa as well as here.

I read lately of great stone heads being found in Australia.

He assumes that Jared came to this land. Find a statement that they came west, to America. Can't find that they came west, or went in any other direction. He can't show they came to America. He must show they came to America to prove his contention.

Book of Mormon says they went in a south southeast direction and finally came to the promised land. That would take them to Australia. They would have to go north or northwest to reach America. It is all assumption that the Jaredites came to America. It is very true that people came here or were created here. He has not proved that this has any relation to the Book of Mormon. The same argument would prove that they left the tower of Babel and came to Australia. Can he tell where they came from to the Society Islands?

He reads Josephus, Book 1, chapter 5, that some passed over the sea in ships and inhabited some of the islands, and concludes the Book of Mormon is true. This is logic.

Priest only refers to a tradition among the American Indians of a flood, and he says if they came from the tower of Babel we can account for their having this tradition. This does not prove the Book of Mormon a true record. This tradition says children were born dumb, and Priest says this was the confusion of tongues. It is but Priest's speculation. Other learned men speculate differently. Some say they came out of Asia by Behring Strait. I am going to let these brethren proceed with such argument. I will not anticipate them.

He says fifty heads of families came from tower of Babel to Western Continent. Let him show what language they used, and I will show it is false. No evidence of the Hebrew or Egyptian language being used.

Let's see about Lehi changing names of rivers and seas. He seemed to know about the Red Sea two thousand years before Christ. Mormon used the term Red Sea. There is no river flowing into the Red Sea from the east side; the streams are on the west side, hence Book of Mormon is wrong. There is not a stream on the east side that I can find. Probably Williams will find it.

We don't know from the history in Book of Mormon where or how they went or in what direction. It don't claim that they came west or east.

The Bible is the basis of argument. I have now answered all the affirmative arguments. Now I will introduce negative argument. All the prophecies, Williams will say, point to America. I will anticipate some of them. Genesis 48 refers to Jacob blessing Ephraim and Manasseh, and they say it points to America; that they came over the sea or wall spoken of in Genesis 49:22-26, where is recorded the blessing of their father Joseph. This they will say points to America. Every time they read the Bible they claim it points to America. Isaiah 29th chapter also points to America, yet they were afraid to put America in the proposition. This claim for these prophecies is all assumption. All the archaeological and Biblical evidences he will present are based upon his exegesis, and not upon any positive statement. They will prove that mounds, etc., are found here, but will they prove who put them here? Because ruins of cities are found proving cities were built, they assume the Book of Mormon is true. They will have to prove that the people who built these cities came from Palestine. Tell us what language was spoken and written. He will have to prove that this continent was inhabited by that people, and that these same people built these mounds and cities in ruins. You can't locate a single city by the Book of Mormon. Find a city built by those who came from the tower of Babel. He must find where they are by the Book of Mormon. They have tried hard to locate it. They have tried hard to locate the River Sidon, but they can't locate it. They can't locate one of these cities so you can recognize where it is. They have a committee who have for the past two years or more been preparing charts and maps to show how the people came here. They may have one here.

I suggest these Bible passages so you will have them in mind when he refers to them.

He said I said he must prove his points beyond the possibility of a doubt. The law says a claim must be proven beyond the possibility of a reasonable doubt.

MAY 17.—ELDER WILLIAMS' FIRST SPEECH.

Remember the affirmation I have made. I have been adducing evidence to the claims of the Book of Mormon by the Bible and archaeology. I was locating the first colony that came to this land. The ancient inhabitants had a tradition that they came from the tower of Babel at the time of the confusion of languages, and they knew of the flood. John T. Short says, "According to tradition, Votan came from the East, from Valum Chivim, by the way of Valum Votan, from across the sea, by divine command, to apportion the land of the new continent to seven families which he brought with him."—North Americans of Antiquity, pp. 203, 204.

Priest says, "There were fifteen heads or chiefs of families which were permitted to speak the same language," who were the first settlers of this continent. It is also claimed by these archaeological writers that tradition points to the fact that Votan was a grandson of Noah. John T. Short says: "They say that Votan, the grandson of that respectable old man that built the great ark to save himself and family from the deluge, and one of those who undertook the building of that lofty edifice which was to reach up to heaven, went by express command of the Lord to people that land."—North Americans of Antiquity, p. 203.

He further says: "It is found in the history of the Toltecs that this age and first world as they call it, lasted 1,716 years; that men were destroyed by tremendous rains and lightning from the sky, and even all the land without the exception of anything, and the highest mountains, were covered up and submerged in water . . . fifteen cubits [this perfectly agrees with Genesis 7: 20] . . . and how, after men had multiplied, they erected a very high . . . tower . . . in order to take refuge in it, should the second world (age) be destroyed. Presently their languages were confused; and not able to understand each other, they went to different parts of the earth. The Toltecs, consisting of seven friends and their wives, who understood the same language, came to these parts: five hundred and twenty years after the flood."—Ibid. 238.

We deny that Joseph Smith could have heard of these things now found that were not even known to English speaking people then.

Delafield says, "A tradition exists among the native Mexicans bearing close analogy to the Semitic account of the flood, the building of the tower of Babel, and its destruction."—Antiquities of America, p. 33.

He further says: "Still farther and more important evidence, however, renders the point conclusive that Southern Asia was the birthplace of this people, as we detect among them actual traditions of the flood, the building of Babel, and the death of Abel; and from their cosmogony, we think we trace farther traditions of the famine, and the destruction of the cities of the plain. These historical facts stamp their origin conclusively; as they are peculiar to those who have once been residents of the country where the transactions occurred."—Ibid. p. 41.

Bancroft says: "They believed the rainbow was not only a passive sign that the earth would not be destroyed by a second deluge, but an active instrument to prevent the recurrence of such a catastrophe."—Native Races, vol. 5, p. 17. I also refer you to "Short's Antiquities," p. 140, for additional evidence.

I now present evidences of what the inspirational teachings of this first colony received. On pages 501, 502, prayer and answer to prayer is taught; page 503 teaches that men must serve the Lord Jesus Christ, and if doing so this will be a choice land, the people being free from bondage. Repentance and forgiveness is taught on same page. On page 506 it is taught that Jesus Christ is the Redeemer of the world and that by belief in him men and women may become his sons and daughters. On page 508 is taught that "whatsoever thing persuadeth men to do good, is of me [God]; for good cometh of none, save it be of me. I am the same that leadeh men to all good." This agrees with 3 John 1:11. On page 519 polygamy is condemned; pages 523, 524 present some of the gospel principles, and general instruction in which man should live. These truths found in the Book of Mormon are in harmony with those found in the Bible, hence worthy of the belief and confidence of all who claim to be Christians.

What has O. Pratt's works to do with this proposition? These things were not published till about 1851 while the church, and O. Pratt especially, was in a condition of apostasy and darkness.

He refers to south southeast again, and says the compass was not known till about the twelfth century. The Encyclopedia Britannica says the compass was known 2634 B. C., and that the Chinese had the compass as early as the eleventh century B. C. Chambers' and Johnson's Encyclopedias confirm these facts.

He has admitted ancient civilization. Now note the harmony between the witnesses I have used. Acts 17:26 says God "hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation." Josephus says "each colony took possession of that land which they lighted upon, and unto which God led them." Book of Mormon says they were "directed continually by the hand of the Lord" while they were traveling to the choice land. Genesis 11:8 says, "So the Lord scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth." Acts 17:27 says they were appointed to dwell on different parts of the earth, "that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him and find him." Notice, they should first feel after him, then they should find. He must prove that the Australians felt after the Lord, before it is necessary for me to present a record that they found him.

The proof I have presented must stand till it is disproved. I have shown by Josephus that from the tower of Babel after the confusion of tongues "they went out in colonies everywhere," and "some also who passed over the sea in ships."

Josiah Priest, page 206, says the ancient inhabitants of this continent came from the tower of Babel after the confusion of languages. Bancroft says the same thing. Now he must prove this evidence wrong, or it stands.

He said there were stone heads in Australia. I would like the proof of it.

He admitted that the ancient inhabitants of this continent either came here or were created here. If they were created here, he must show where they could have obtained the knowledge they had of the flood, etc.

The language in which these wrote was such that "they cannot be read."

He says the Bible does not need sustaining by additional evidences. Why then so many books written in its defense, and so much preaching done?

He says Joseph Smith wrote the Book of Mormon. He has not presented any proof. Let him present his proof.

He thinks because he cannot find a river and sea mentioned in the Book of Mormon that that is proof the book is false. Let him find "Tahpanhes," Jer. 43: 8; and 44: 1; also "Noph," Jer. 44: 1; "Bethshemesh," Jer. 43: 13; and "Zephath," Judges 1: 17. Should he not find these, according to his argument, the Bible is false. Bible scholars are undecided as to where the Israelites crossed, hence the Israelites did not cross the Red Sea.

Genesis 11: 1, 2 says they came to the land of Shinar where the tower of Babel was built from the east. Book of Mormon says "the Lord commanded them that they should go forth into the wilderness, yea, into that quarter where there never had man been." Hence they must have gone west, as they came from the east. They came to the sea that "divideth the lands" (p. 503), and they prepared to cross "this great deep" (p. 505). They "set forth into the sea," and "the wind did never cease to blow towards the promised land," and "they were driven forth, three hundred and forty and four days upon the water; and they did land upon the shore of the promised land." These boats did not have sails, hence were driven by winds and currents. The account says, "The wind did never cease to blow towards the promised land." Trade winds blow from the east to the west continuously. Bancroft says they were "driven to America and the neighboring islands by winds and currents," and "they remained and peopled the land."—Naive Races vol. 5, pp. 10-16. They landed north of the Isthmus the account claims. It was "near the land which is called Desolation by the Nephites," (B. of M. p. 512,); and they "built a great city by the narrow neck of land, and preserved the land southward for a wilderness." We can easily identify where this place is, and he must find any other land that agrees with the description. Alma pp. 267, 268 says: "Bountiful" "bordered on the land which they call Desolation; it being so far northward, that it came into the land which had been peopled, and been destroyed, of whose bones we have spoken, which was discovered by the people of Zarahemla; it being the place of their first landing." "Thus the land on the northward was called Desolation, and the land on the southward was called Bountiful; it being the wilderness which is filled with all manner of wild animals of every kind;" "there being a small neck of land between the land northward, and the land southward." "It was only the distance of a day and a half's journey for a Nephite, on the line Bountiful, and the land Desolation from the east to the west sea." Here is where is found the best antiquities of America. For further evidence as to where this "narrow pass" is, see Alma 22: 5; also 30: 3.

Now, he must take a position that my arguments are faulty, and prove they did not come the way I have proven they did. To say, "Taint so," doesn't prove anything nor does it disprove anything. Both Bible and archaeology prove what the Book of Mormon says is true. They traveled westward, and across the "great deep" by "currents and winds."

ELDER BAYS' FIRST SPEECH.

I will just notice a few points in what Bro. Williams has said. I will give him credit with presenting a nice theory, one that looks well on paper and on the map; but the premise upon which his argument is founded is assumed. That which he assumes is the main question. The archaeological evidences he has presented I will not notice.

Now, about that compass. Williams said I said that "the compass did not exist till the twelfth century." Bays said no such thing. The Chinese did not invent the compass till the eleventh century B. C., according to Encyclopedia Britannica; but that compass was mounted on a cart and hauled around. I said a compass in a box, with the present directions on it did not exist till the twelfth century after Christ. This one only had N. E. S. and W., with the collateral points. There were only eight points of the compass known in the eighth century. The polarity of the axis is the basis of the compass, and we don't know that the Chinese used that basis. There was no compass fitted in a box till the middle of the thirteenth century. S. S. E. never came into existence till the twelfth century.

He said the language in which these people wrote no man could understand.

If rivers did change their course they will still run in the Red Sea. He did not attempt to explain this.

He said the "great sea" that divideth the land is the Atlantic Ocean. He is assuming the very thing he must prove. He quotes from the Book of Mormon as though it was true. He said it was improbable for Joseph Smith to know about the currents and trade winds. If we concede all this, we must accept everything he has said. But he must prove the very thing he has assumed. His theory I have forever overthrown. Joseph Smith understood that the Atlantic Ocean was between the two continents. Why did he not say the Atlantic Ocean instead of the "great deep?" Joseph also understood about the "narrow neck of land," and could easily put that in. Rider Haggard could picture out things this way. If Joseph did not know about the narrow neck, Oliver Cowdery could post him. He was a school teacher. Joseph wrote this book, and Williams' whole beautiful theory vanishes like the fog before the sun. Why did he not tell how they traveled? They have had a committee working on this matter for over two years, and they have got the theory down fine. They have maps out now. They may present one during this discussion.

Ether, page 501, speaks about the "brother of Jared." He was a very important person, so important that he did not have a name; he touched the finger of God, wrote about Jesus years before he existed. The boats they made lay flat like a fowl, should say "duck" or "loon." They were tight, tight like unto a dish. Pretty tight dish. Their length was the length of a tree, but that is uncertain how long they were. They were barges of some kind. The Lord forgot to put light in them. Then we find the phrase, "Whither shall we steer?" Think of their using the modern phrase "steer" in time of Babel. They did not have a rudder. Joseph knew they steered boats now, hence put that in. These barges were tight like a bottle corked up, so they had to make a hole in the top and a hole in the bottom. Jared's brother had a hobby for fresh air. Hole in the top being open and water coming in, pull out the plug in the bottom and let it out. This is not funny but ridiculous. Yes, if water comes in, pull plug out in bottom to let it out; that's the kind of boat this was. If water was coming in stop hole up. Jared did so,—he stopped the hole. Then there was no light. Lord forgot to provide the boats with light, so when holes were plugged up there was no light. Then they were to cross this great water, and could not have window in. Who ever heard of windows of glass way back there? Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery manufactured all this. There were no windows in houses at the time of the tower of Babel.

It says that these boats would go like a whale. Those who invented submarine boats should have consulted the Book of Mormon. I think I shall report this matter. Yes, they were to be brought up out of the sea, they were tight like a dish, and rode waters like a loon. Lord asked, What shall I prepare you for light. The brother of Jared told the Lord what to do. He molted stones out of the rock and told the Lord to touch them and they would shine and give light. This was clearly manufactured.

When these boats were buried no water could hurt them. The wind did blow towards the promised land. They praised the Lord. I should think they would. This was manufactured out of whole cloth. No whale or sea monster could hurt them, and they finally landed on the shores of the promised land. You see it all vanishes like snow before the sun. Why? Because it is not true?

Elder Williams must prove they built barges. I deny it; no man could live in them without a continuous miracle. East wind was to drive them. This was a miracle. You must prove that the wind blows from the east across the Atlantic. If they sailed west they would land on the east side of America and not on the west side as they claim. He has not proven a single point.

WIGHT-BRADEN DEBATE.—NO. 5.

ELDER BRADEN'S NINTH SPEECH.

The Chairman read the decision of Professor Farnham that "descendants" referred to Noah's priests.

Braden: The force of the decision is that twenty-four priests took twenty-four wives and in eighty years were nearly as numerous as Nephites.

Cowdery to preach to Lamanites; power to build church; none converted. John was first to baptize. He was never to die, but he did. According to Book of Mormon no Ephraimite ever came to America. Asked me to prove they had not the domestic horse. I am proving a negative. No Greek in Old Testament; none in early Book of Mormon times. When they (the Israelites) went out they (the Assyrians) were all dead men. There are 20,000 variations in New Testament, not 20,000 mistakes. He tells about 20,000 lies. Many of the grammatical blunders were proper in King James' time; but it is outrageous for a man to claim to be inspired and use the blunders of three hundred years before. If they can't lift devils up to angels they drag angels down to devils. If they can't raise their blasphemous frauds up to a level with the Bible, they drag the Bible to a level with their blasphemous frauds. Scratch a Mormon and you find an infidel. I've been doing that, and we have an infidel right here. The idea of claiming to have the Holy Ghost, and then attack the Scriptures with infidel thrusts. It ought to be stopped. There should be more respect for God's word.

Jesus visited the Nephites; a flat contradiction of the Bible. Rigdon's baptism formula. Blessing children. Now just see what I've done! Contrast with the simple, beautiful scripture account. Just think of angels coming down and weeping. Trying to eclipse the Bible. Feeding 5,000. Lord's supper not like Bible. Garments of whole multitude transfigured; words can't be uttered; fed on nothing; babies did a terrible lot of reveling which no one could write down. Three Nephites to live; did wonderful things; prisons could not hold them! They could play whaley—O, yes!

Lamanites all became white—apostatized and all became black. I call your attention to the simple narrative of the Bible, then this blasphemous rant. Feeding 5,000 on nothing brands the book as a fraud.

ELDER WIGHT'S NINTH SPEECH.

You will notice that the Professor says the language is ambiguous. I take this opportunity to publicly thank the Professor for his kindness. Max Müller says they understood Greek then. Mr. Braden's assertion against Mr. Müller. Which will you take? We do not claim the Book of Mormon fully inspired; it does not so claim. The American Bible Society said the 23,000 grammatical errors were in the Bible. Mr. Braden and them for it. We do not believe that the Bible contradictions were in the original writings. We do not strike at the Bible, but at the translation. As to being an infidel, such an assertion as he made is beneath my notice further than to say I am not striking at the Bible. I showed you from passage after passage that Christ came down after his ascension. It will be time enough for him to quibble when he has successfully settled the coming down on the eastern continent as being untrue.

He talks about it being preposterous that Jesus uttered words not lawful to be spoken, but let him turn to 2 Corinthians 12:4 and he will find a like statement. He ridicules the Book of Mormon miracles. It is a little strange that people cannot believe that God would be able to do miracles on the western as well as on the eastern continent. We believe both, and are consistent. He believes one, and ridicules the other. The very thrusts he makes at the Book of Mormon are real thrusts at the Bible.

There was to be a preparation made for Christ's second coming and he said he would send his angels to gather out his elect. Mr. Braden says no. Who is the one making the thrust here? and at whom is it being made? Says the Book of Mormon lies in saying that God is flesh, because Bible says he is Spirit. Had he read the next paragraph he would have found: "Thou hast seen that I shall take upon me flesh and blood." Why did he not read all of it? Book of Mormon says that Moses was older than Abraham. Had he followed this up he would have found that the writer was pointing backward. (Reads it.) I leave it to you if that is not reading into the book! Why read a part and leave out the explanation? The fact is, it is not the book he is attacking, but his construction that he is fighting nightly. Every people have a right to represent their own belief. In the assertion of my opponent he represents things as our belief which are foreign thereto. I have seen nothing so far to shake my faith, as the very nature of his attacks but serve to show the real strength of our position. He says Moroni told a lie about the exchange of prisoners. Had he but read verse 21 in connection with the ones he did read, he would have shown you no contradiction existing. He tells us that the Nephites and Lamanites left their homes in South America, and came 3,000 miles up to New York to fight to a finish in Western New York. The fact is, the war lasted some fifty-seven years—forty-seven of actual hostility—and the Nephites were gradually driven north till there were but about 230,000 instead of 2,000,000, as he says; and it was not all accomplished in a few months as he has asserted.

Says no rivers running into Red Sea, and yet I take up this world's atlas and find four running in from the Arabian side. I place the book in the chairman's hands as an exhibit of evidence. They named the river Laman in honor of Lehi's eldest son. I am not here to gain a reputation as a debater, but to make a reputation as a truthful minister for Christ. I hold no pet theories, but represent what I believe to be the truth, which will save us in the end.

ELDER BRADEN'S TENTH SPEECH.

I asked him if anyone could trace his lineage back to Aaron. No one could tell his lineage without God revealing it. Five hundred years before Lehi Homer wrote his Greek poems, but the question is, What did those Nephites know of Christos, or the Greek language? He says: "I might" attack the Bible—a sly way of stabbing God's word.

The Book of Mormon says they wrote on imperishable material; all connected with it inspired. Why did not the ignoramus, in 1830, know that the blunders of the Bible were not Greek but English? Why didn't he give good English? Christ seen in vision, and his coming in person literally is an entirely different thing; no parallel.

In America men were not only cast into fire, but filled with it. They had sky-rending and earth-splitting miracles; anything to eclipse the Bible!

Moriancumr says Christ was incarnate. He never became so till he came in the flesh. He claims the privilege of interpreting his books. Not while I'm here, for I have them. Moroni said he would change prisoners, then said wouldn't—lied. It is a fact of geography that no river runs into the Red Sea. The Book of Mormon quoted the New Testament. Had Christ and knew of Christ long before he came. Knew of slavery, masonry, etc. Had many prophets. Face like Moses; voice of thunder; silence of Christ; Samson nowhere in muscle. Helaman had a thousand pets. Hebrew children, Peter released, Sinai, Pentecost—all these Bible miracles beaten all hollow. One night as bright as day and a star seen. Crucifixion, earthquakes, darkness, fires, mountains moved, lakes made, etc.—Bible miracles child's play compared with it. Three Nephites still alive. Christ and apostles a silly farce; play only second fiddle. No wonder the Mormons drag the Bible down. Rigdon's ideas, language, rant, blunders, verbosity, and new words run all through the Book of Mormon. Two thousand errors corrected in the Lamoni edition. The work is an exaggerated monstrosity. They drag the Bible down into the mire, assail its teachings, miracles, etc., and all done by one who professes to be a successor of the twelve apostles and filled with the Holy Ghost. Why did God Almighty in 1830 use the obsolete, wornout words and brogue of 1611, in all the revelations and books?

ELDER WIGHT'S TENTH SPEECH.

Smith did not use the language of 1611. Max Müller says the learned men could scarcely read the English of four hundred years previous. The "Caractors" from Book of Mormon plates were then exhibited, and the likeness between them and Old Hebrew, Egyptian, and Hieratic shown. Had Smith been perpetrating a fraud he would not have sent these characters to Professor Anthon—one of the most learned of modern linguists. We do not claim to have a bishop who is a literal descendant of Aaron. We have a high priest in the office of bishop. But his very admission, that we could only know by revelation as to whether a man were literally descended, is all that we have claimed, and he has given his whole case away.

It is simply a begging of the question for him to rail out that I am an infidel. Acknowledges that Smith got 1 Corinthians 10:24 all right in the Inspired Translation. How did this ignorant young man do it? In Luke 18:7, 8 you will find "avenge." I do not wish to ridicule the Bible. I simply show you that did I pursue his tactics there would be found just as ridiculous things there as in the Book of Mormon. The thought is, that if I can believe the one along these lines, there is no reason that I should not the other. I am growing tired of doing nothing, for five nights now there has been a sort of sparring match. He has been laboring to get me in the lead. Now I will accommodate him; and I propose, figuratively, to hit him square between the eyes. [Laughter.] I don't wish you to understand that I mean a fistic encounter, for I am sure I can outrun him, so there is no danger in that way.

In John 7:16, 17, Jesus says we are to know of the doctrine if we do God's will. In 2 John 1:9, "Whosoever transgresseth." . . . "He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ," etc. Mr. B. has admitted that I made a point on the first proposition so far as Bible comparison is concerned. He also said the man who debates church propositions with us is a fool, thereby admitting the strength of our position. Then read Judges Armour and Sherman's decision. These very able jurists, after listening to the evidence both pro and con, have decided in our favor. Then Mr. Smith was all right on the marriage question. And by that I mean he was a monogamist. Quoted sections 42 and 49, and the marriage section, and proceeded to tell what the Utah people had done in this matter, when time was called.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Kentucky and Tennessee district conference having been set to convene at Eagle Creek branch, July 9, at request of branch, they believing they would have finished their house by that time; but as they have failed they ask that it be put off until July 30. Though it is contrary to all rules of order, it has been thought best to allow the change this once; they having put a notice in the Ensign, and no doubt thinking it also appeared in Herald.

A. J. MYERS, Sec.

PASTORAL.

Saints in Mobile District, Greeting. Dear Brethren in Christ:—We have read with patriotic feelings the thrilling news from the army and navy of Zion's land, our souls have been stirred within us; we have felt that God was preparing the way, through giving prestige and power to this nation unto the removing of some of the disabilities couched in the language of the revelation given a few years ago, "Ye cannot at present prosecute many missions in foreign lands," in that an American abroad should have that respect and protection that might well be secured to the citizen of a brave and mighty nation.

As we have enlisted in the glorious cause of truth, let us be alert to the duties and responsibilities of the hour. The struggle that is on for freedom—eternal life—is a great one; fearful the array of opposing forces in the unseen world, whilst that which may be opposing our interests in this world presents a strong combination, and "the flesh is weak." Pray for inspiration, then with a realizing sense of the precious hope set before us—duties, labor, sacrifices—not always joyous, but sometimes to be made and performed with sadness, will yield the peaceful fruits of righteousness, having oil in our vessels we will be ready when the Savior comes.

Let the elders, priests, teachers, all the helps with the faithful privates, knowing by patient, earnest study of the books what God expects them to do, stand in their places, and the Master's kindly providences will be over all. Let especial attention be given to the holding of monthly sacrament meetings; and it will be well at these meetings, and upon all possible occasions, to give something by way of tithes and offerings. We are not a rich people in this district, but as citizens of the kingdom we will find that an observance of the laws thereof, both spiritual and temporal, will prepare the way for an increase in every direction. The soldiers of the cross in this district will show their faith by their works; those who do not labor will be found behind, and in their straggling condition liable to capture by the enemy.

"Priests visit the members," etc. "Teachers watch," etc. Deacons will find work to do. All of the Lord's soldiers who are heads of families should hold family prayer one or more times a day; it will be pleasing to the Master and a source of strength if each member will pray in secret three times each day—at morning, noon, and night.

I will try to visit each branch in the district one or more times before the convening of next conference. Any assistance that I can render the presidents of the several branches will be cheerfully given; do not hesitate to write me if you need help. Brethren, you should see that persistent offenders against the laws of the church are dealt with; dead branches are a hindrance to the vine. Let us prepare our churches for future healthy growth.

F. P. SCARCLIFF, Pres.

P. S.—Since I wrote this address I have learned that this section of Mississippi has been quarantined, and unless quarantine is soon taken off, some of my intended visits to the branches will be prevented. F. P. S.

SCRANTON, Miss., February 18.

To All Whom it May Concern:—I notice in Herald of June 22, our missionary in charge has placed me in charge of the work in Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, and South Alabama; I will be glad to have your assistance and coöperation in the work. This is a moving, pushing world. A great and important work has been intrusted to our care, and we will be held responsible for the way we care for that work. Let us not suffer the banner of King Immanuel to trail in the dust. The use of intoxicating fluids, dancing, falsifying, backbiting, and the use of tobacco are forbidden in the church and of the Lord. Therefore, let no one think he can deceive the Lord. The book of books says we shall give account for every silly word we speak.

If one of our missionaries comes along and assumes authority to announce meetings in organized branches, who has not been appointed to our field, and goes to preaching without obtaining consent of the missionary in charge, in compliance with the decision of the Twelve, which says, "We believe it to be the duty of all missionaries who contemplate going to other fields of labor than their own to do missionary labor, to first obtain consent of the missionary or missionaries who are in charge, if practicable, of the fields, where labor is desired to be performed. Also, should labor be done by missionaries where they are compelled to pass through other fields than their own, in getting to and from their respective 'fields of labor,' then in both of the above cases all such labor should be reported to the one in charge of such field of labor."

And I might say also of presidents of districts and of branches, tell him he is taking authority unto himself he has no right to take, and that you are under no obligations to support him. (See minutes of General Conference, 1898, page 108.) But rather support those whom the church has sent to labor among you. And a missionary who is not willing to be governed by these rules—or even an elder, priest, teacher, or deacon—proves himself unworthy of the support of good saints.

By your coöperation you can be a great help to the missionaries, and also to the work in general. My labors will be confined almost altogether to new fields, and the labors of Bro. C. I. Carpenter also, as I think. I will only take cognizance of those things where the law and usages, and general interests of the church are involved. (Doctrine and Covenants 120:7.) Our missionary force is very small, and our field is large, and when will we get over it if we devote all our time to organized branches and districts? When? O when? Let everyone realize they came into the church for a purpose, and that that purpose was a good one, and then go to and labor with all their powers to accomplish good for the work. Think of it, three States in our field with not a single branch in them. Let everyone do all they can for the work and it will prosper; and branches and districts be established where there are none.

I have the pleasure of being your humble servant and colaborer, in bonds of love,

D. E. TUCKER.

MILTON, Florida.

In Herald of May 18, page 322, under heading, "Pastoral," should have read "in charge" in connection with the names and appointments of Brn. G. H. Godbey, L. R. Devore, J. L. Goodrich, R. Etzenhouser, W. W. Blanchard, and Holmes J. Davison. It was thought to have been sufficiently clearly expressed to be understood.

These brethren are requested to take the immediate oversight of the mission work in their respective "fields of labor," and manage it as wisely as possible. All the local ministry, branch and district officers are expected to coöperate with them to best advantage, with a view of pressing the interest of the work in every place possible. General Conference appointees are not required to concern themselves, or allow themselves to be implicated in mischievous branch affairs. They can aid when necessary, but branches should take the responsibility of their own troubles so far as possible, and not shift upon some one else a burden that belongs to them, just because they do not want anything to do with them.

When in branches, the general ministry should be put forward to preach. Give the people a chance to hear others. It will work well. It is a bad sign for anyone to get into a spirit of wanting to do all of the preaching, just because he has the advantage and can.

Bro. Fred M. Smith belongs with the General Conference appointees to the Eastern mission. He is expected to reach this field of labor any way by the 1st of September. Bro. Fred is the oldest living son of President Joseph Smith, and enters the army of active laborers to brave the issues of ministerial life in presenting the gospel message, and so develop and gain experience along the lines that others do. That is right. The only way to grow men of merit. The old Grecian teacher said, "There is no royal road to mathematics." A knowledge of these could only be attained by close application and studious industry. This is equally true with reference to the development of character. Personal merit, competency, and worthiness of trust must be brought out in the impartial school of experience, in meeting issues as they come. Traveling along similar line with others. We are glad to see the young men of the church possessing not only faith in the gospel message, but pluck and courage to go out and present it to the world in the face of opposition. We welcome young Fred to a place among the Eastern workers, and promise an opportunity to do, and kind and sympathetic friends and associates, as well as occasionally a brisk opposition.

WM. H. KELLEY.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 28.

Will the brethren of the Southeastern mission please refer all propositions for debate to missionaries in charge; so that satisfactory arrangements can be made, that will best serve the interest of the cause we love. Brethren, do not fall into a habit of challenging everyone for a debate, but stand ready to defend the truth when necessary in the spirit of meekness, and I believe God will bless you.

No preventing providence, I will meet with the brethren in the following places: Calhoun branch, near Jones, second Saturday and Sunday in July. Old Santa Rosa on third Saturday and Sunday. Coldwater, fourth Saturday and Sunday, in Florida. Fifth Saturday and Sunday at Flatrock, Alabama. Please give notice.

In gospel bonds,
M. M. TURPEN,
Missionary in charge.

THEODORE, Ala., June 27.

To Whom it May Concern:—My permanent address is Euclid, Arkansas. Will the ministry laboring in Arkansas please report to me as requested by Bro. A. J. Moore. Let us labor together for the best good.

J. W. JACKSON.

EUCLID, Arkansas, June 29.

RECEIVED FOR IDAHO TENT FUND.

J. A. Condit,	$1.00	W D. Fuller,	1.00
J. E. Condit,	1.00	C. Albertson,	2.60
G. W. Connyers,	.10	Pocatello contribu-
M. J. Durfee,	1.00	tion,	5.00
Levi Wilson,	1.00	Wilma Erickson,	1.00
S. J. Sparks,	.50	Richard Chatburn,	2.00
Alf Oakey,	5.00	Sr. Wilkes,	.50
James Jennings,	4.00	M. Lade,	.30
Eliza Jennings,	1.00	E. L. Pike,	1.00
Jasper Jennings,	1.50	P. M. Higgins,	1.00
Martha Jennings,	1.00	Malad branch,	10.15
Jimmy Jennings,	.25	Nellie M. Prall,	.50
David Jennings,	.15	F. Pierce,	.10
Jessie Jennings,	.10	G. Heaton and wife,	1.00
J. E. Austin,	2.00	Mrs. J. M. Severance,	.50
J. G. Hallam,	1.00	Sister's Society,
LeRoy Leyland,	1.00	Sandy, Utah,	2.00
Bro. and Sr. A. J.		P. M. Sterrett,	.50
Leyland,	5.50	H. B. Sterrett,	.50
E. Grimmett,	2.00	Ann Sterrett,	.50
M. C. Larson,	3.00	C. E. Sterrett,	.50
I. S. Larson,	2.00	Ella Baird,	.75
E. Anderson,	1.00	Mrs. Jas. Brown,	2.00
J. W. Barrett,	.50	A. L. Yingling,	1.00
Anna Johnson,	.50	Susan M. White,	.50
Ezra Pettit,	.50	R. Ferris,	.50
A. S. Johnson,	.50	F. A. Severing,	.50
Joan Carlson,	.25	E. Larson,	.25
Matilda Carlson,	.25	Maggie McLane,	3.00
Carl Erickson,	.25	H. R. Hanson,	7.00
John Johnson,	.50	D. S. Linnell,	1.00
Mandy Johnson,	.50	Sr. Ida Stewart and
Johanna Carlson,	.25	sons,	.50
Sr. B. F. Mahoney,	1.00
John Chatburn,	1.00		$88.15

The tent will cost $70 laid down in Idaho. The balance will be used for tent expenses. If any have sent whose names do not appear, please write me at Lamoni.

J. W. WIGHT.

BISHOP'S AGENTS' NOTICES.

HAVE WE HEEDED?

To the Saints of Northern California:—"Bring ye ALL the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and PROVE ME NOW HEREWITH, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Have we heeded the above conditions, so that we may reasonably expect the blessing to follow? The world is groping in midnight darkness, because they do not heed the conditions upon which the light may be obtained. We are all God's children, and we need not expect to be favored any farther than we comply with the conditions through which God has promised to favor his children.

We ask ourselves why are we favored of God? and the answer comes: because we have obeyed the first steps of the gospel. Then, if we still to gain other favors, must it not be upon the same terms? The steps that made us sons indeed, were necessary for that particular purpose; now, as sons and daughters in our Father's house, shall we not still be obedient to the rules that govern within?

Would we not be foolish to expect our personal sins to be pardoned by prayer only, when Christ has said: "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me, and he shall be loved of my Father"? Success lies in the obeying of God's commands. "He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness." God does not change; what was his will one time, will always be.

Saints, "put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." There is no other way to do it. As a part of that mystical body of Jesus Christ, we each have our duty, one of those duties is to honor the law that relates to temporal things that we may receive temporal blessings.

"Behold, now it is called to-day, (until the coming of the Son of Man,) and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people; for he that is tithed shall not be burned."—D. C. 64:5. This is to us direct; is pointed and plain; needs no comment. "What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"—Matt. 16:26. This shows that it is not the possession of the things of the world that will profit us in the salvation of our souls; therefore we ought to make the proper use of them, and not sacrifice service to God to gain them, and above all not to fail to make the proper use of them in promoting the kingdom of God, so that when we fail we may be received "into everlasting habitations." (See Luke 16:9.) We are to be "laborers together with God," to try to win as many as will believe the message of life offered to fallen man through the Messiah, and our service is to be such that those who are watching us will see that we are laboring with all our might to that end.

If this work is of God, he will approve of every effort we put forth for its advancement, whether temporal or spiritual; so that God and Christ will commend our course if we use the "mammon of unrighteousness" so as to promote his cause in the way he has appointed; just as he will give the Holy Spirit to those who obey his ordinances administered by his chosen servants.

Some of the saints do not see the necessity of obeying the temporal law. They only see faith. "Blindness in part happened to Israel." So some of latter-day Israel are blind in part. The Christian world also are partly blind, they see Jesus as the Redeemer of the world in the abstract. They do not see him as God gave him: A witness, leader, and commander. They admire the ideal character, but do not see the necessity of following him, and obeying his teachings as supreme. In the service of God we are to love him with all our heart; or which is more forcible, with "all our might, mind, and strength." Now that means that to promote God's cause for the salvation of man, our supreme effort shall be put forth, first and last and all the time, using all the means that we have at our command. For that reason the saints ought to attend all the meetings, all the time. Of course there are conditions which excuse us. I have heard people say: "Those people do not attend their own services," meaning saints, and they are thus an "offense" to others. It is written: "It must needs be that offenses come, but woe to them by whom they come." "To be a light to the world," means that we show ourselves in the full sense of the term, to be actively engaged means that we show ourselves in the full sense of the term, to be actively engaged in the promulgation of the truth.

In bonds,
CHAS. A. PARKIN,
Bishop's Agent.

TWO-DAYS' MEETING.

A two-days' meeting will be held at Galland's Grove, Iowa, commencing Friday evening, July 15, continuing over the Sunday following. Elders George Montague and R. Wight in charge.

C. E. BUTTERWORTH, Pres.

DIED.

DOWNARD.—Samuel Bruce Downard was born January 1, 1819, at Springfield, Ohio; died June 24, 1898, aged 79 years, 5 months, and 23 days. Came to Jackson County in 1839, and was married to Anna Wilber the same year; to this union were born seven children, five of whom survive. He was baptized September 7, 1885; and received many testimonies in healing, and during his last sickness called for the elders to administer, showing faith in God's word. He leaves an aged companion, children, grandchildren, great grandchildren, and many friends. Funeral sermon by James Moler in United Brethren chapel, Mount Carmel, to a large assembly; interment in saints' cemetery near Mount Carmel.

ROUNDS.—William D., son of Bro. Oliver A. and Sr. Abbie D. Rounds, died at Newell, Iowa, June 29, 1898, aged 14 years, 4 months, and 12 days. While at play on the 27th, Willie ran against a pitchfork, forcing a tine about an inch into the upper part of his right foot causing lockjaw. Willie was baptized into Christ at Ozark, Missouri, in June, 1893. Funeral services at the Congregational church by Elder C. E. Butterworth. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion. Bro. and Sr. Rounds are highly esteemed by all who know them, and the people presented many tokens of love and sympathy in this the hour of their great affliction.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

NEW TESTAMENTS. Inspired Translation. Large Type Edition.

Cloth, leather backs and corners... $1 00
Seal Grain Russia..... 1 25
Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges..... 1 50

TOBACCO HABIT CURED, OR NO PAY.

Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, positively guarantees three boxes of "Quit-To-Bac" to permanently take away all desire for tobacco, or will promptly refund money paid for it. Three boxes sent post paid anywhere for $1.50. No bad effects from use of Quit-To-Bac. It is a great nerve tonic. Why not try it? It has cured hundreds; why not you? Remember, No Cure, No Pay. Address, B. F. ORDWAY, Peoria, Illinois.

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

National Saengerfest, Davenport, Iowa, July 28-31; one standard fare plus $2.00 for round trip. Date of sale July 27 and 28, final limit for return August 1.

Trans-Mississippi Teachers' Association meeting, Omaha, Nebraska, June 28-30. One standard fare plus $2.00 for round trip. Date of sale June 26, 27, final limit July 5. On deposit of ticket and fifty cents with joint agent return limit will be extended until August 31.

National Republican League, Omaha, Nebraska, July 13-15. Date of sale July 12, final limit for return July 22 one fare plus $2.00.

Trans-Mississippi Turnfest, Omaha, June 30 to July 3. Date of sale June 29, final limit July 8.

North American Turner's Union Convention, San Francisco, California, July 5. Date of sale June 28, 29, final limit August 31. One standard first class fare for round trip.

International Mining Congress, Salt Lake City, Utah, July 6-9. Date of sale July 2, limit for return 20 days from date of sale.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

Fourth of July excursion rates to any station within 200 miles, at one and one third fare; date of sale July 2, 3, and 4; good returning July 5. Minimum selling rate 50 cents.

Summer Race Meeting, St. Joe, Missouri, July 4-7. One and one third fare for round trip. Selling date July 3-7; good returning July 8.

A Warning to Users of Alum Baking Powders.

CASES OF POISONING IN INDIANA.

The following appeared in the Logansport, Indiana, Times:—

Dr. Souder was summoned by telegraph last Sunday night to attend the family of Braden Harper, living southwest of Logansport. Four of the family were poisoned from eating dumplings. The father and one child, who had not partaken of the dumplings, were well, while the mother and three children were in a serious condition. It is probable that had not vomiting ensued, emptying the stomach, the four would have died from the effects. It is supposed the poison was caused from the baking powder used in making the dumplings. The wife probably added a larger amount than she usually did, which in the greater quantity proved a noxious poison. The baking powder used was branded the * * * *, manufactured by the * * * *. This should be a warning in using cheap baking powders, which flood the country. People buy them because they are cheap, and the merchant buys them because he can sell them for a profit. In many stores one can not purchase a standard brand. You have to purchase the cheap stuff or do without. We are of the opinion that most of the prize baking powders belong to this class.

The highest authorities in chemical science pronounce alum injurious to health and a destroyer of digestion.

Here is explicit evidence that it is a noxious poison.

Alum baking powders likewise coagulate the blood rapidly, interfering with its ready course through the arteries and valves of the heart, predisposing to heart-failure.

The laws of Minnesota and Wisconsin prohibit the sale of alum baking powders, unless they are branded as a warning to the public.

By the laws of England it is a crime to put alum in bread in any form.

NOTE. The Royal Baking Powder Co. publish the above facts because they are facts of great importance, and to say that while alum baking powders are sold cheap they have little strength, and are dear at half price, to say nothing of their effect upon the health, and the bitter taste they impart to the food. The Royal Baking Powder is far above question as regards its quality and healthfulness, because it is made of cream of tartar derived only from grapes. No other article has ever received such high praise for its quality.

Consumers may use the Royal with full assurance that they not only get the worth of their money, but that they also get the best cream of tartar baking powder that can be had.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.	Officers.
David Dancer.	David Dancer, President.
Wm. Anderson.	Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
Geo. H. Hilliard.	W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
Frank Criley.	Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.
A. K. Anderson.
G. W. Blair.
Oscar Anderson.
Ella D. Whitehead.
Lucy L. Resseguie.
Alice P. Dancer.
W. A. Hopkins.
Directors.
David Dancer.	W. A. Hopkins.
Wm. Anderson.	Ella D. Whitehead.
Frank Criley.	Lucy L. Resseguie.
A. K. Anderson.

This bank will be ready for business on July 1, 1898, and will do a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

LAMONI FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres, with five room house, large barn, other outbuildings; abundance of water; young orchard. Located two miles from Graceland College, Lamoni, and one fourth mile from schoolhouse. Price, $3,500 with one half cash; balance to suit purchaser. Address, MRS. MARGARET BAGLEY, Lamoni, Iowa.

AGENTS WANTED

In every town to sell two of the latest and best selling publications at popular prices; viz: "The Life and Public Services of William E. Gladstone," the most celebrated Orator and Statesman of Modern Times, and "Our War With Spain." Both publications are by celebrated and famous Authors. Sample Copies free. Send 25 cents for either one, or 50 cents for both to prepay the express charges. For full particulars address NORTH AMERICAN PUBLISHING COMPANY, 214-220 Clark, Street, Chicago, Illinois.

HARDWARE,

STOVES, TINWARE, BARB WIRE, ETC.

Special attention given to Builders' Hardware. Reliable goods and right prices. Estimates furnished

LAMONI HARDWARE CO.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address, L. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co., 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

CHURCH FURNITURE
SCHOOL & OFFICE
E. H. STAFFORD CO.
MUSKEGON, MICH., U.S.A.
PRICES ON APPLICATION

$10 GRAPHOPHONES. $10 TALKING MACHINES!

Greatest money maker ever offered. Anybody can start in the show business. Make $10 to $20 a day giving exhibitions. LOUD AND CLEAR ENOUGH to be heard in any Hall or Church anywhere. They're wonderful. Imagine a musical instrument that will actually TALK TALK. That by simply winding it up like a clock you can play band music exactly as it was played by Sousa--cornet, trombones, drums and all. Sings songs, tells funny stories. Does'nt seem possible, does it? But it does even more than that. You can sing or talk into it yourself and it will repeat, a moment after, just what you said. FOR HOME AMUSEMENT It has no equal. Entirely new model. Just out. Very loud. Price EAGLE GRAPHOPHONE with two hearing tubes and concert horn, $10. Same outfit, with handsome oak carrying case, $12. Price of our BEST EXHIBITION MUSICAL OR TALKING RECORDS, 50c each $5 a dozen.

Our $20 Big Show Outfit Includes our Eagle Graphophone, with carrying case, two hearing tubes, concert horn, record brush, 18 assorted records, music, songs and speeches (lasts two hours steady running), 200 big posters advertising exhibition, 200 admission tickets, all for $20. Sent C. O. D., with privilege of examination, if desired. Complete Record Catalogue free. Write for it. HARGER & BLISH, Western Agts., 904-910 Main St., Dubuque, Iowa.

The Staff of Life in Danger.

Extreme care is necessary in purchasing baking powders to avoid those made from burnt alum, phosphatic or other harsh acids, of which there are innumerable brands in the market.

Great efforts are made to foist these inferior powders upon consumers by the inducement of a lower price and by grossly false representations as to their ingredients and comparative value.

Alum baking powders have been declared by the most competent authorities injurious to health. Therefore every precaution must be taken to keep them out of the food. They are sold under many names, and new brands are continually appearing.

It is safe to avoid the use of any new or doubtful brand until you have had it analyzed. The purity of any powder sold at a lower price than Royal may be suspected.

Royal is a pure cream of tartar baking powder and its exclusive use is the practical and positive safeguard against alum and the various adulterations found in other brands. It has been analyzed and recommended by the U. S. Government chemists, by the health officers of New York, Chicago, San Francisco, London, etc., and by eminent physicians and scientists generally, who give it the greatest praise for its marvelous purity and leavening strength.

The Royal powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any similar article in the world.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, July 13, 1898.

No. 28.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
June 27, 1844.....	437
The Kinsman	438
ORIGINAL POETRY:
Invocation.....	439
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Select Reading for July Meetings of Daughters of Zion.....	439
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:	440
LETTER DEPARTMENT:	441
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Clinton.....	445
Eastern Michigan.....	445
Northern Michigan.....	445
Southern Nebraska.....	445
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
Southern Nebraska.....	445
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Wight-Braden Debate.—No. 6.....	445
Williams-Bays Debate.—No. 9.....	447
Change of Bishop's Agents.....	450
Dedication at Keb, Iowa.....	450
Pastoral.—R. E'zenhouser.....	451
Reunion Notices.....	451
Two-days' Meetings.....	451

"THE BANKRUPTCY OF SCIENCE."

Prof. D. C. GILMAN, in "The Progress of the World."

"THE bankruptcy of science" is a phrase that has lately become current in French periodicals, and has already crossed the ocean. It is a misleading phrase, and its circulation in this country is not likely to do any good. This metaphorical phrase is obviously taken from the mercantile world. A bankrupt is one who cannot pay his debts, whose place of business is disgraced. But a merchant cannot fail unless he owes something—unless he has made promises that he cannot fulfill. Science owes nothing; science has given no promises; science does not recklessly prophesy, and when it does foretell, its anticipations are based upon exact data, capable of verification—witness the planet Neptune and the element argon. It should be noted here that in this discussion the word science is restricted to mathematics, logic, and the knowledge of the phenomena of nature. It is often extended to law, economics, history, ethics, philology, and theology; but the tendency is more and more to limit it to mathematical, physical, and natural science. It is this species of science that has been declared bankrupt.

Now, is it not possible that much of the controversy would cease if a sharp distinction is made between science and savants; between knowledge and men who are seeking for knowledge; between truths ascertained and recorded and truths imagined and sought for? Is it not also desirable that there should be a recognition of the lines that exist between science and literature, science and religion, science and law, science and conduct? "Accumulated and established knowledge, which has been systematized and formulated with reference to the discovery of general truths, or the operation of general laws"—a definition of science in a lexicon of repute—becomes constantly more exact, more comprehensive, more minute. The domain of scientific inquiry is enlarged; the methods improve; the instruments are more precise; the principles of investigation are better understood; but not the most learned man on the globe, nor all the learned men combined, have any right to declare or promise what science will be or will do. A scientific man may thus speak; but if he does, he speaks for himself. His promises and expectations are not science.

Misapprehension respecting the nature of science has led to the opposition of two classes of opponents—men of letters and religious men. Men of letters, defending, as they should, the worth of literature, are prone to speak of science as if its pursuit was inglorious, if not degrading; as if there was no "culture" in it; as if the men of scientific training were quite inferior in their education to those who have had the classical discipline. In colleges the scientific courses and the scientific degrees have not always, have not generally, been regarded as equal in rank to those of "the college proper." This, by the way, is in face of the acknowledged fact that many of the very best writers of the day are found among scientific investigators. It is also true that science is not belles-lettres. A mathematical formula, a botanical description, an account of physical experiments, a treatise on bacteria, admits of no ornamentation; of no rhetoric; of no poetry. Its language is cold, clear, precise, orderly. The same man may write in different styles for different purposes. Huxley, as a lay preacher, is a man of letters, a rhetorician; as an investigator, he is a man of science. When he writes in the capacity of a scientific observer, recorder, and reasoner, his language, like his balance or his microscope, is an instrument of precision. It says "so"; not "about so."

Religious men are afraid of science very often, and in the pulpit they sometimes condemn it, as if it were the foe of all that is good. First they personify it; then they clothe it; then they attack it. Yet they, nevertheless, in many cases (happily not as frequently as in the last generation) forget that the domain of science is wholly different from that of religion; the realm of knowledge is not the realm of faith. In the natural, if not in the moral sciences, if we know, we know, we can prove, we can verify, we can test; if we do not know, we can search, we can investigate, we can hope, we can believe. We can have reason for our beliefs so satisfactory and so almost certain that our lives and conduct may be governed thereby. Science in many cases depends on beliefs. To give the strongest possible example: we believe that the sun will rise to-morrow. All our experience assures us that it will. But we do not know that it will. We do not know that its existence is enduring.

It must also be borne in mind that science is not morality. It does, indeed, reveal the evils that proceed from a violation of nature's laws. Its discoveries point out many alleviations and some remedies for human misery; but science must not be confounded with ethics. It does not deal with conduct. Why should anybody, even in the arena of philosophical debate, "make fun" of science? Why should anybody attack science as if it were brewing mischief to the ideas and traditions upon which our civilization is based? Science is harmless. It is beneficent. Every important advance brings in its train great good to humanity. Consider a single region—the domain of medicine and surgery—and think what good has come from inoculation, anesthesia, and antiseptics. Look elsewhere for other benefits. Think of the intellectual emancipation which has followed in its train. Then be full of hope for humanity, for science is here to stay—science, the synonym for established truths in the natural world; science, the interpreter of the cosmos in which we dwell; science, the promoter of health and comfort; science, not the foe, but the handmaid, of that true religion which cometh down from above.—Excerpt by Public Opinion, July 8, 1897.

DRUNKENNESS IS DYING OUT.

THE men and women interested in organized temperance work in this country are on the whole, worthy people. They are sincere, energetic, and well-meaning. But sometimes they lack that nicety and wisdom of judgment which is absolutely necessary in organized effort in order that the surest success may be won. They sometimes unfortunately, allow their zeal to run away with them. This tendency was recently shown in one of their official statements, which bewailed the startling growth of intemperance in America during the year 1897. Many good people, to whom the circular containing this statement is sent, will be prone to believe this assertion. They have not the means at hand by which to verify such a statement, and will be made uncomfortable by it, whereas in reality, exactly the opposite is the truth. There has never been a time in America when every indication pointed so strongly to a decrease of intemperance as at present. There has never been so little drinking as at present, and never such a strong tendency toward moderation in quarters where alcoholic indulgence is general. This is a fact impossible to controvert, because the most careful figures bear out this hopeful statement.

Drunkenness to-day is deemed disreputable in the quarters where only a little while ago it was looked upon simply as a misfortune. Every line of business shuts its doors absolutely to the drunkard. It has no use for him. Business competition has become so keen that only the men of steadiest habits can find employment. This fact the habitual indulger in alcoholics has found out, and the different "cure" establishments for drunkenness—and godsend they are, too, to humanity—are to-day filled with men who have come to a realization of the changed conditions. The man of steady habits is the man of the hour, and the drunkard realizes this. In the social world the same thing is true. The excessive indulgence of even a few years ago would not be tolerated at any dinner to-day. Society has become intolerant of the behavior which inevitably results from excessive indulgence in drinking, and men realize this. It is bad manners to-day to drink to excess. Good taste is spreading, and moderation is necessarily following.—Ladies' Home Journal.

LEARNED VERBIAGE.

THERE are people who seem to think that a person who expresses himself in language above their comprehension is more learned than one who uses simpler words. But the opposite is often true, some of the world's greatest men presenting their ideas in easily comprehended language. Scientific men, perhaps more than any others, use big sounding words, yet what they describe is often untrue, and in spite of their pretensions they know as little of some of the matters they appear to know a great deal about as the most ignorant person on the earth.

The following by H. L. Hastings, of Boston, in his pamphlet entitled, "Atheism and Arithmetic," is on the subject of this article:—

"Obscurity is not a certain indication of depth, for it is easier to see bottom through twenty fathoms of clear water, than in a wayside mud-puddle six inches deep. Learned verbiage conceals a vast amount of scientific ignorance. He who tells what he does not know in all the languages of Babel, is listened to with profound respect, while the man who tells what he does know in language which people can understand, is hardly supposed to be worthy of notice. And there are persons who accept without question the assertions of scientific men, much in the spirit of the old Scotch woman, who when asked if she could comprehend the minister whom she had been praising, replied, 'Comprehend him! I wouldna hae the presumption!'"—Ex.

THE ALUM HEART.

Many people are suffering from some form of heart disease who have no idea of the cause of it.

Any disturbance of the digestive organs affects the heart's action, and therefore every food which interferes with digestion is responsible where there are troubles of this character.

It has been discovered that the use of baking powder made from burnt alum coagulates the blood very rapidly, which interferes with its free flow through the arteries and valves of that organ. Formerly alum was used as a specific for children's croup, but owing to its tendency from the causes named to produce heart failure, physicians no longer employ it.

In face of such facts and in view of the overwhelming testimony of scientists as to the poisonous character of this drug when used for food purposes, can there be any excuse for the ignorance or unconcern which permits anyone to take from the grocer a package of alum baking powder, simply for the sake of saving a few cents in price?

It is a healthful sign that many states are limiting by law the sale of the alum baking powder. Very soon it will be prohibited in all states, or treated as a poison, as it should be. But for such laws, how are the alum powders to be known by consumers?

Where alum powders are not branded as such, nor their sale prohibited by law, it is better to avoid the use of any new or doubtful brand until it has been analyzed. The purity of all powders may be suspected if they are sold at a price lower than the price of the best standard brands. We know the Royal to be a first-class cream of tartar powder, and if consumers insist upon having that brand, they will be sure of a pure, healthful article. In view of a recently reported case of poisoning of a whole family living near Logansport, Indiana, from the use of alum powder, it behooves everyone to use extraordinary care in purchasing their supplies. We do not hesitate to recommend the Royal to all who are in doubt as to the powder they have been using, as the United States Government tests placed that brand at the head of all the tartrate powders.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews has made a unique selection of poetical greetings and tributes from America to England. The Review promises to publish in its next number a group of similar greetings in verse from Englishmen to Americans.

WAR EPOCHS IN EUROPE.

A survey of the powers of Europe shows that from the beginning of the century to the end of 1896 Turkey had experienced thirty-seven years of war and fifty-nine of peace; Spain comes next, with thirty-one years of war and sixty-five of peace; France, with twenty-seven years of war and sixty-nine of peace; Russia, twenty-four years of war and seventy-two of peace; Italy, twenty-three years of war and seventy-three of peace; England, twenty-one years of war and seventy-five of peace; Austria-Hungary, seventeen and seventy-nine; Germany (exclusive of Prussia), thirteen and eighty-three; Sweden, ten and eighty-six; Portugal, twelve and eighty-four, and Denmark, nine and eighty-seven.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, July 13, 1898.

No. 28.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, JULY 13, 1898.

JUNE 27, 1844.

FIFTY-FOUR years ago to-day, June 27, between the hours of four and five o'clock, Joseph and Hyrum Smith were shot to death, by a mob of men in disguise, while confined in the jail at Carthage, the county seat of Hancock County, Illinois; which confinement they had voluntarily submitted to at the suggestion of Thomas Ford, Governor of the State of Illinois, upon his given pledge that no unlawful violence should be offered them, and that they should have a fair and impartial trial before their peers upon the charge of treason, which the Governor, and the men who made the charge must have known could not be sustained against them.

Several others had been arrested upon a charge of riot in the city of Nauvoo, based upon the official action of the city council of Nauvoo, of which city Joseph Smith was mayor at the time, by which the office, press, and fixtures of a newspaper called the Expositor were destroyed, upon the plea that it was a nuisance prejudicial to the peace and quiet of the city. All of those charged had appeared at the office of the justice who issued the writs, and had given bail for their appearance at a time set by the court. Joseph and Hyrum had then been served with process charging them with treason, and the Governor of the State, Thomas Ford, being at the county seat, in an ostensible endeavor to pacify the troubles between the anti-Mormons and the saints, advised the occupancy of the debtors' room at the jail as a place of legal safety while he should go to Nauvoo and see for himself whether the hue and cry of treason, insubordination to the authority of the State, and evil intention of the saints were true. The result was that while the Governor was addressing the citizens of Nauvoo in peaceful assembly, organized scoundrels in premeditated and planned defiance of law gathered at the jail and murdered the two leaders whose obedience to the authority of the Governor and whose trust in his word and executive clemency were so ruthlessly betrayed.

This is a brief recital; but in it lies the possibilities which became facts, and have been facts ever since they occurred. The killing of Joseph and Hyrum Smith was intended by those who did it to stop the progress of the church and break up the hold that the ministry and the faith had obtained upon the people at Nauvoo and abroad. To the saints themselves as individuals and as an association the death of these men was productive of peculiar results. To all it was an astonishment and source of great grief. To some it was a crushing blow that clouded their lives, upset their faith, and destroyed their hopes. To some it opened new avenues into which their ambition prompted them to enter and occupy; while with some it was a great grief, but was not destructive of faith in God nor the Angel's message.

For a time at least it seemed that the object sought by the perpetrators of the crime; i. e., the stopping of the onward sweep of the great work, had been accomplished. The causes of dissatisfaction with the rule of President Brigham Young, the introduction of doctrines and practices not obtaining before the presidents of the church were taken away, the strife resulting from the contending of rival claimants to the right to lead the people, the heart-sickness of many because of the death of the men and the disruption inevitably to follow, the disregard for law and the rights of men that marked the course of some, all combined to make the continued existence of the church problematical. The policy pursued by the church in Utah, calling from the States and Europe all who would accept the new order of things, broke up the branches all over the land, and the means adopted to persuade or force members to "get up into the valleys of the mountains" disrupted households and separated families; and it was but a few years until where once there had been flourishing bands of believers busily striving to spread the gospel news as it had been stated by the Angel, there were neglected altars and desecrated memories, hearts sore from wounds inflicted in the houses of friends; where once the sounds of pleading and exultant voices for Christ and his salvation were heard, silence reigned, or coarse and defiant flings at Gentile supremacy roused antagonisms never to be effaced.

The family of Joseph and Hyrum, consisting of mother, three sisters and their children, brother and daughters, and the wife and children of Joseph, could not accept the new rule and its resultant evils, as they saw them. Upon them fell the severity of the great loss they had sustained. The family of Hyrum went west with the crowd of emigrants; for them we do not write, though we doubt not their grief was as sincere and deep, their sadness as profound as those felt by those portions of the family who remained, either at Nauvoo, or scattered in the near region, where they sought places to live. But for those who so remained we can write, that the nightmare of a dread sorrow and grief seemed to paralyze, and make them despondent and fearful, doubting it may well be said, lest "God had forgotten the world."

For many years the processes of withdrawing believers from the States and abroad, concentrating them in Utah, went on; until there was scarcely an organization left, so far as the one-time flourishing church was concerned. Here and there a scattered family or two kept alive the traditions of the elders; but many had cast off allegiance and were turned to the world again, or were dormantly waiting for what might take place.

But, a few, believing in the perpetuity of the institutions of the church, set about the work of reformation. Slowly, hesitatingly, but faithfully the little band struggled on. Some had listened to this or that assumed leader, trying each by the "law and the testimony," and finding them one by one wanting; until by force of failures without, and convictions within, they were driven to God and the word he had given to the church. Then, by that word and the light of the Spirit of truth cast upon the word, these steadfast hearts were led to the haven of safety, and the Reorganization was the result. It began in 1851 among the few. It continued to grow and assumed new force when the stricken wife of the martyred prophet and her children with the three bereaved sisters joined their spiritual fortunes with the movement, since which time it has been gathering its thousands; until the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has become a menace to the false dogmas and practices which were so fatally destructive after that awful day, fifty-four years ago.

But, a strange revolution has been going on elsewhere. The present head of the Utah Church has "counseled" the cessation of plural marriages, and by public manifesto certified to the world that the practice has been abandoned. Hence, a host of missionaries has been scattered over the land, and relieved of the incubus of polygamy, they are taking back the anathema hurled at the Gentiles from 1856 to 1875, which delivered them up to the wrath of God and the destruction prophesied by themselves to fall on all who would not hear and flee to the "mountain of the Lord's house on the tops of the mountains;" and are innocently enough preaching the old-time doctrine, using the epitome of faith published in 1842 by the Seer. Strange as it may seem to some, these men are listened to in their campaigning and are again making converts. Is it, as some of them affect to believe, because the Lord is favoring them by personal intervention in their behalf that they are now tolerated where once they were execrated? or is it because the Lord, true to his promise in Christ, does not withhold approval where the gospel is preached, no matter by whom? We make no decision, but suggest the question for thought.

War with its always dread imports, the shedding of blood, the sweeping charge of death, the destruction of property, the accumulation of debt to be paid by the taxing of the people, the famishing plagues of pestilence and desolation, is upon the nation. No matter whether we may think it justifiable or otherwise, all must suffer alike the consequences; only that here and there a family may not lose of its members directly in battle, or by disease,—though others will. Does this war come within the pale of latter-day events in the sense of being a part of the economy by which prophecy is to be fulfilled, and the shedding of the blood of Lovejoy, Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and Lincoln, by assassin's hands, as a part of the price to be paid in the establishing of the principles of human political freedom, the holocaust of death and flood of blood by which the unity of the nation was secured and slavery stricken from the statute books of the States as a dire necessity, because it was an awful libel on the Declaration? And will the carrying of the starry banner, typical of American liberty and free human institutions, into the domain of Spanish rule and supremacy, and the consequent shedding of the blood of American patriots, be an additional baptism of blood for the tree of human rights and human liberty? Is there a probability, near or remote, that the spirit of prevision and prophecy through which the seer in 1832 predicted the war of the rebellion, saw so far down the record of predestined events in human affairs as to note that the sons and grandsons of slaves borne from America and sold into lives of toil and degradation on Cuban soil under the still cruel regime of the ancient and despotic state of the Inquisition, or seized, and carried from native lands elsewhere to mingle with the slaves of Cuba, should in due time become imbued with the love of freedom and "rise up against their masters," who should be "marshaled and disciplined for war," and "thus," or in like manner, under the influences of like causes, "war be poured out upon all nations"?

These are potent questions, and as the events of that day of gloom and sad results now fifty-four years ago come out of the distant corridors of memory, fresh with import, may we be pardoned the reflection that "God has not forgotten the world;" but his hand has been and still is extended, in wrath to smite the evil, and in love to succor and redeem the good. He will not forget the decrees of his divine knowledge and will, but will "hasten his work in its time."

It is significant that this rising in American wrath to smite the bolts of tyranny and oppression from the grasp of a tyrannical and wicked government, is armed and striking blows direct at one of the oldest and most implacable enemies that the institutions of freedom in America have ever had. And, should the victory lie finally on the side of the armies of the United States, it will be but one more step taken in the grand march of the destined conquering of truth over error, right over wrong, liberty over slavery, freedom over tyranny and oppression.

We do not know how to picture what might have occurred had Joseph and Hyrum Smith lived; but we are prepared to say, that had those dogmas and practices which were proclaimed and obtained credence after their death been kept out of the church, and faithful leaders kept within the legitimate sphere of their calling and their office, no such divisions, contentions, and apostasies as occurred would have resulted; and there would be now a united people serving God in one hope, under undivided rule, and with an unbroken faith, policy, and organization.

THE KINSMAN.

The Kinsman, a paper published at Salt Lake City, Utah, of which Rev. William R. Campbell, Presbyterian, is the editor, reached our table this week in its number for June 4. From it we clip the following:—

An employer of labor recently marked seven hundred dollars before giving it to his men. Within two weeks he found three hundred and forty-two dollars in the hands of the saloon-keepers.

The menace to our institutions growing out of Mormonism grows darker and more threatening. The North Carolina Presbyterian says that there are fifty more Mormon missionaries in the State than Presbyterian ministers all told.

What of it? Does the Kinsman think that because the Utah Church is so much younger than Presbyteranism it should not occupy the territory of North Carolina, as a field for propagandizing?

Curious, however, that it should so disturb the time-worn creed dispensers.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

A SISTER writing from Independence, Missouri, May 30:—

Everything looks green and glad and we are all well, excepting two or three of the Saints who are sorely afflicted, and they need our fervent prayers. Bro. Joseph Luff's sermon last evening for comprehensiveness, plainness, and especially for its grand and inspiring closing could hardly be excelled. His appeal to those present of the exceeding love and mercy of an omnipotent God as displayed in an infinite atonement, was inspiring. That was the subject, and its presentation was past criticism.

There was on the 27th a very great outburst from Kansas City's big heart for victory; and what made it a most unique and imposing thing (it was a parade) was the two-toned representation of thousands upon thousands of lighthearted, jubilant children and youth and dignified and distinguished citizens, including "the Giant Brigade of Uncle Sam's," all "yelling" for liberty, humanity, justice, fraternity, and, per se Dewey, for it was Dewey Day. That "ye editors'" united shadows may never grow less, we pray.

Elder E. B. Morgan, Lucas, Iowa, late date:—

Bro. E. B. Morgan was the speaker for the 4th of July celebration held at Lucas, Iowa. The saints' choir furnished very appropriate music for the occasion; in addition to this there were some excellent recitations rendered, and solos sung, and short speeches. The gathering was large, weather delightful, and a general good time had.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. EDMUND WILSEY, of Wathena, Kansas, writes of his desires to do good in the interests of the cause of truth. The gospel has strengthened his determinations for good, because of which he desires to continue with those who love the truth in the conflict against error.

The "Third Annual Catalogue" of Graceland College—for 1897-98, is being mailed to the traveling ministry and to branch presidents, with a view to presenting the advantages in an educational line through our college. The college management earnestly request all to do what they can to secure students for Graceland. A united effort will bring us success.

Bro. J. R. Lambert went to Hite-man, Iowa, during the past week, to look after a public attack upon the faith.

There is a growing demand for ministerial labor in the region round about Lamoni. If the same is true of other places in general, there is no lack of opportunity for local officials to preach the word. Wise workmen are in demand.

Bro. S. Orton, of Tabor, Iowa, corrects a late statement concerning a number baptized at that point since the late discussion. Two were baptized and many friends were made to the cause, who ask for copies of the standard books that they may read and get a correct understanding of the faith.

The HERALD readers will find new points of attack and defense of the faith as the report of the Williams-Bays debate continues. The HERALD will continue to publish a comprehensive account of the proceedings until the report is completed.

Original Poetry.

INVOCATION.

Thy ways are not the ways of man,
For thou, O God, art all divine;
O, could we reach thy perfect plan
Our lives indeed would be sublime!
All love and truth would pave the way
For coming of that perfect day.

Thy precepts spring from 'ternal truths,
Thy grace flows from celestial fount;
Thy love is boundless in its growth,
From everlasting Zion's mount.
O truth, O grace, O love how free
To man for all eternity!

Stretch out thine arm to every land;
Let all the nations hear thy voice;
O give them hearts to understand,
And in thy goodness to rejoice!
What greater bounty couldst thou give
Than let us in thy presence live?
O Lord give strength unto the weak;
Reprove the hearts of proud and strong;
Unto the wayward do thou speak
And teach the right to those who're wrong.
O may thy love the world enfold,
And everywhere thy mercies told!

Belial's sinful haunts assail,
Crush evil out from off the earth;
May o'er the world thy strength prevail,
And doubting souls beget new birth.
Bring thou, O Lord, that perfect peace
That only comes of sin's surcease!

GEO. BARRETT.

LAMONI, Iowa, June 9, 1898.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

SELECT READING FOR JULY MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

A SELECTED LIST OF BOOKS.

THERE is one member of the family whose needs in this line are apt to be overlooked—the mother. This need of hers is not the need of a cookbook, or a fashion magazine, but something that shall do for her what her husband's professional paper does for him—put her in communication and sympathy with her kind, shall help her in her work of home-making, and cheer her by bringing news of what the best women of the world have done or are doing to make the home and the world better.

Now as to books: "Of making many books there is no end," and we cannot attempt here a catalogue of those suitable for the household library. We shall only indicate classes, and name a few good books in each class. First stands the Bible, preëminently the household book. We have before spoken so fully of its use in the home, we will not dwell on it longer here. Around the Bible cluster many books which tell its story or explain it to the youthful reader; the best books of the kind we know are the "Youth's Bible Commentary" and "New Stories from an Old Book." Next to the Bible we place "Pilgrim's Progress;" nor would we allow the children to grow up, as we did, in ignorance of Bunyan's other writings, especially his "Holy War." Every family should have an unabridged dictionary, a cyclopedia and an atlas. If you cannot compass the unabridged, the academic or comprehensive dictionary will do; if the many-volumed Appleton's, Johnson's, or Britannica are beyond your purse, the "Young Folk's Cyclopedia" will give much needed information. For common family use we do not insist on a large, universal atlas, a first-rate school atlas will answer your purpose, and that some of the children already have. Train them to use these three books—to look up in the dictionary every word of whose pronunciation or meaning they are not sure; in the cyclopedia, any unknown event or person mentioned in conversation or reading, and in the atlas places thus mentioned concerning whose locality they are in doubt. They will thus fix an invaluable habit—the habit of referring to authorities for needed information. "One small head" can never carry all that modern life demands, we well know, but the needed knowledge is awaiting our time of need somewhere, if only we know where to look for it. The best legal adviser is not he who can quote law most glibly, but he who can tell you on the instant just where to turn for the law that applies to your particular case. There should be in every home some books on the care and training of children, as helps to the parent. In this class we can recommend "The Child, Its Nature and Relations," by Baroness Marenholtz-Bulow; Mrs. Mann's "Moral Culture of Infancy;" Jacob Abbott's "Gentle Measures in Training the Young;" Bushnell's

Christian Nurture;" Mrs. Livermore's "What Shall We Do With Our Daughters?" Julia Ward Howe's "Sex and Education," and Mrs. Jackson's "Bits of Talk About Home Matters," (H. E.)

There should be at least one accurate but bright and entertaining book on each of the natural sciences closely connected with every-day life. Such books are growing so numerous, and each year is producing so many good ones, that my enumeration may seem useless or antiquated by the time it reaches my readers. However, I will venture to mention a few that I have found reliable, and the children have voted interesting: "Four Feet, Wings and Fins," "Eyes Right," "Funny Folks in Furs and Feathers," "The Fairy Land of Science," "Overhead," "The Man Wonderful in the House Beautiful," "The Stomach and Its Servants;" Gray's "How Plants Grow" and "How Plants Behave;" Hugh Miller's "My Schools and School-masters;" "Field, Wood and Meadow Rambles," Wood's "Natural History," and "Bible Animals."

In the lines of the industries we have "A Boy's Workshop," "The Cooking Club of Tu Whit Hollow," Parton's "Captains of Industry," "How to Learn and Earn," "Anna Maria's Housekeeping," and, we are glad to say, many others, as it indicates growth of public sentiment in a good direction.

In the line of histories, one good one, not too long, is needed, of the following nations at least, United States, England, France, and Germany. "Higginson's Young Folk's History of America," and "Dickens' Child's History of England" are model books. In biography, choose for your children's reading the lives of such men and women as you wish them to imitate, instead of holding before them the lives of so-called great men who may also be great scoundrels. We should hesitate long about placing in the hands of our young folks, the "Life of Alexander the Great" or any other noted warrior. Shutting out all objectionable characters, the field of biography is still a very fruitful one; so fruitful, that if we were required to confine our reading in the family to any one field, that one would be biography. Care should be exercised not only in choice of subjects, but in the way they are treated. Choose, if possible, an author who knows how to tell the truth about his hero, not representing him as a demi-god, as Abbott does Napoleon, but who "extenuates naught, and sets down naught in malice." If you wish to purchase but one book in this department you will probably find Parton's "People's Book of Biography" to contain more of what you wish than most others. Irving's "Life of Washington" stands unrivaled. In his other works, Irving opens most delightful paths for young feet to tread. No American boy ever yet lived who would not delight in the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow," nor a girl who would not wander spellbound with Irving through the "Alhambra." Everything he writes has a charm of its own, for both old and young. Nor can we rest satisfied without having our young people make the acquaintance of Hawthorne, Prescott, Motley, Dean Stanley, Charles and Mary Lamb, and a score of others whom we love.

Rhyme and rhythm have great attractions for children, and even very little ones appreciate poetic thoughts. Give them even in their early years real poetry, not doggerel. I remember a dear little girl who, when five or six years old, would listen delightedly to the reading of Tennyson. It is well for the children that true poets are so often child-lovers, and consequently that our language is so full of genuine child poetry. Child ballads of the Cary sisters, "Child Life in Poetry" by Whittier, his "Snow Bound" and "Barefoot Boy," many of Longfellow's, Lucy Larcom's, Aldrich's, Shelley's, Burns', Adelaide Proctor's, Tennyson's, Cowper's, Bryant's and Southey's poems, Scott's "Lady of the Lake," and "Marmion," Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome," Holmes' laughter-provoking rhymes, when he "dared to be as funny as he could," will at once delight the young people and cultivate a taste for good literature. Learning poetry is an excellent thing for children to do. A little book, "Memory Gems," prepared by Superintendent Peaseley, of the Cincinnati schools, is an excellent help for such work.

Of travels, which teach in pleasant fashion geography and history at once, there is a great variety. "Shawl Straps," "Zigzag Journeys," "Boy Travelers," "Wonders of the Yellow Stone," "The Hunting Cats of Connorloa," "A Family Flight Around Home," are all good.

Then the story books, food for the imagination which our little people crave. Preëminent among them stands Hans Christian Andersen's books, and Whittier's "Child Life in Prose;" Dickens' "Little Folks," Hawthorne's "Wonder Book," "Robinson Crusoe," "The Tanglewood Tales," hold their place in the children's affections in spite of all rivals. So numerous are the good story books for children, there is never any need of their reading trashy or bad books. We shall not attempt to give a list of books, but will indicate some authors whose writings are always pure, bright and interesting. Jacob Abbott, Louise M. Alcott, the author of the Prudy Books, Dinah Muloch Craik, "Fanny" (Mrs. Alden), Mrs. Abby Morton Diaz, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, Helen Hunt Jackson, Mrs. Stowe, William and Mary Howitt, Miss Mitford, Mrs. Charles, Hawthorne, Mary Lowe Dickinson, Mary D. Chellis; Julia McNair Wright, Mrs. Zimmerman, Ella Farman, Sarah K. Bolton, Susan Coolidge, Miss Warner, E. E. Hale, Trowbridge, Carleton—but the list seems endless, and we must stop though at the risk of omitting names that might well be included. Among miscellaneous books we can heartily recommend "Dean Stanley with the Children;" Ruskin's "Sesame and Lilies," as well as everything he writes; Amanda B. Harris' "Pleasant Authors for Young Folks;" "Stories of the March;" "A Young Woman's Notion;" "Behaving," by Shirley Dare; Miss Yonge's book of "Golden Deeds," also her "Young Folk's Histories;" "Morning Bells and Little Pillows," by Frances Havergal; Hughes' "Manliness of Christ," and the "Chautauqua Young Folks." The latter is the course of the Chautauqua Young Folk's Reading Union, for the different years since it started, bound. In closing we can do no better service than recommending this course of reading to all our young folks, everywhere. You can learn all about it by writing to D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Massachusetts.—Childhood; its Care and Culture.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

MARY LEWIS, of Aberaman branch, Wales, requests the faith and prayers of the Union that if it be the Lord's will she may be relieved of a depression of spirits, which is coming on her this last two years.

Sr. Alice Craven requests the prayers of the saints in her behalf, that she may be healed; she has been afflicted for several years.

Prayers in behalf of Bro. Norman are requested; that if it please God he will remove the affliction that is upon him, and spare him to his wife and family.

PROGRAM FOR AUGUST MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

Opening hymn, No. 913. Prayer. Scripture reading, Psalms 37: 1-20. Study of select reading in Home Column. Roll call. Business. Closing hymn, No. 192. Dismissal prayer.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOU GAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

Dear Fellow Sunday School Workers:—In this kindly greeting, I have no especial worth of my own to plead, but only the worthiness of the work we are permitted to represent through the providence of the Father. Let us all try to feel that the cause of truth, the whole of it, a part of which we are representing, is the Master's, and that we are called to be coworkers together with him. Let us remember another thing, and that is, that the Lord has said that those who would help in his work must have a willing mind and a humble heart and spirits that are contrite.

In all our work we should seek to understand principles of truth, and then let principles actuate us, and not preference. There only is the path of safety. The enemy will magnify in our sight, if we will allow it, the importance of preference and of personal prejudices, if we have them; and we must hence always "To the law and to the testimony."

What we need to bring into the work more than anything else, as it appears to your First Assistant Superintendent, is the living experiences of ourselves and others, and the living word. Nothing will give life more readily and abundantly to the children of saints, and nothing will inspire them more with faith in the latter-day work, than the latter-day work itself. Let us not be afraid of getting too much of it. Leave out the peculiar features of this work, and what would it be to the most of us? We ought first to learn to live, and then we may be fitted better to tell others how to live.

My humble prayer in the name of the Master is, that we may be able to make our work so practical that it will enter unconsciously, or consciously, into the lives of all those who may come within the influences of the Sunday school work.

J. A. GUNSOLLEY,
First Asst. Supt.

Editor Department:—As General Sunday School Treasurer I am expected to introduce myself to the Sunday school workers by a "pastoral" through this department.

It was with reluctance that I accepted the task of General Treasurer at our General Convention at Independence, Missouri; but felt that whatever duty the convention wished to place upon me, or impose on me, I was surely willing to accept and discharge to the best of my ability.

The Sunday school cause I believe to be the right-hand adjunct to the preaching of the gospel by the general missionaries of the church, and can be properly classed first among the "organizations for good among my people," as the Lord has said in a latter-day revelation.

I have always been interested in Sunday school work, and can point back to many good and noble principles learned there. These principles have had their effects upon my life-work—not performing some sudden transition; but in a gradual way prompting me to acts which were in harmony with justice and right. Yet, human-like, I did not always heed those promptings.

While the duties of my office do not place me conspicuously before the Sunday school fraternity, still my heart is ever with the workers for the betterment of the condition of mankind here and hereafter. The Lord wants a people who are pure in heart because they choose so to be, not because they cannot be anything else.

Finances are a necessity even in the successful carrying on of Sunday school work, and this arm of the cause should not be allowed to become helpless from want of means. The publication of Sunday school literature costs as much as any other literature; then see to it that the treasurer is supplied with money to pay for the publications issued by and for the association.

The Lord will bless all efforts put forth to spread and establish his gracious gospel among the sons of men. And one of the most successful means of establishing the truth is to teach the young. May the Lord guide his people that they may more effectually hasten the oncoming of the redemption of Zion, when we may realize what we are all praying for—Christ's reign on earth.

Ever your brother in bonds,
A. B. HANSON,
Gen. S. S. Assn. Treas.

LAMONI, IOWA, May 2, 1898.

Letter Department.

TEMPLE, Ohio, July 1.

Editors Herald:—Well, here we are in old Kirtland and in a position to appreciate somewhat the sentiment of Gray in his "Country Churchyard," and of those who once lived under conditions and surroundings not altogether unlike those which we find ourselves environed by at this present time and place,—when of them he wrote,

"Far from the maddening crowd's ignoble strife
Their sober senses never learned to stray;
Along the cool sequestered vale of life
They kept the even tenor of their way."

And the translation from crowded, bustling, hustling, noisy rush and excitement of the great city of St. Louis to the quiet of this hamlet is as sudden and marked and strange as it is in some respects agreeable, pleasant, and we trust may prove profitable.

Old associations, however, are hard to sever in those where the heart and affections have been cultivated by pleasant and agreeable fellowship and communion and bound by acts of love and affections in the mutual understanding of and work in the gospel of Jesus Christ. And the memory of that tearful parting in the great railroad station at St. Louis with the brethren and sisters three weeks ago last Wednesday noon will not soon nor easily be obliterated from memory. Another tie also in our daughter Bessie whom we had to leave behind, still binds us to St. Louis. May God keep her in his great and perfect care, seems to be the largest wish of our heart at this time. We are glad to know that good and godly associations surround her, and that whatever sacrifices may have been had in our mission to St. Louis, God's hand has been over her and us for good.

Swiftly we are whirled away over the plains of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio. Two o'clock on the following morning finding us in Cleveland and a little later in Willoughby, our former home, where we found rest at my brother's. One week was spent there and at this place, and the family circle as well as something else was "broke up" when, two weeks ago last night "Nellie" left us, and me for Providence, Rhode Island. We bear it, but don't grin over it excessively.

Nature has dressed old Kirtland and her hills most beautifully and the scenery charms the heart of the stranger. Bounteous harvests of grains and fruits which should provoke gratitude and generous praise to the All-Giver are with us. The warm sunshine tempered by lake breezes makes this in many regards an ideal place in summer at least, so far as ministration to the outward senses or even the awakening of the finer emotions of the soul are concerned,

"And every prospect pleases
And only man is vile."

Alas! that out of the bundle of wondrous and divine possibilities with which God has endowed his creature man, he should elect to cultivate and enlarge upon the evil forces and permit the good to lie dormant and so often neglected. But so it is, and everywhere the altar of God has been erected and the order of a true and acceptable worship introduced, where the sons and daughters of God come up to worship. Thus indeed, also is the old enemy of Job to afflict and torment the well-disposed and lawabiding, by or through the actions of those who so easily and quickly lend themselves to be used as agents to destroy instead of building up and strengthening the Church of God.

Many visitors from many parts of the country come to Kirtland this time of the year to visit historic ground, interest in which we believe time will only serve to augment. The temple is white, clean, and a beautiful place in which to speak, and in strong contrast so far as acoustics are concerned to the place in which we have been accustomed to speak. Fair congregations morning and evening greeted the writer last Sunday. Intelligent and well pleased and agreeably disappointed strangers from the city among the number.

Bro. W. H. Kelley was at Akron, returning Tuesday. Bro. G. T. Griffiths has been detained by the illness of his wife, who still remains very poorly. He expects however to go to Pittsburg soon I believe. Temple visitors every day, and a rush of them on Sundays between the hours of our three services, give us something to talk about, and to do.

Eight visiting parties last Sunday. Parties from Philadelphia and Washington, D. C., a Professor Wright and party from the latter place; Mrs. ex-President Garfield and son among the number also. Quite a party of saints from Cleveland came down on motor car Sunday afternoon. Three young members of the Cleveland Sunday school were baptized in Chagrin River by Bro. Ed Garrett, and confirmed afterward in the temple.

Our post office address for the present is Temple, Ohio.

In bonds,
M. H. BOND.

COAL GATE, I. T., June 27.

Editors Herald:—The debate closed Saturday night, the 25th, lasting twelve nights. J. W. Chism packed up his filth and left. He is shallow, mean, and tricky; will resort to anything to defeat his opponent. He said the second night that the Book of Mormon denied Jesus Christ being the Son of God. I exposed him and proved the statement false. He arose and denied saying it.

He claimed there never were but twelve apostles; that Matthias never was an apostle. I read from his book written against the Methodists, in which he declared Matthias an apostle. I heard nothing more of the apostles during the debate.

This effort against the Book of Mormon was the weakest I ever heard. Hyde's book is his main argument. He conducted himself so badly they talked of egging him; but the saints did all they could to put it down and keep peace. He cares nothing for his word.

This makes the fifth time he has been met by our people; A. J. Moore at Manchester, Texas, E. W. Nunley, I. N. White, and this makes the second time I have met him. So far as I know he has lost in every debate with us; but still continues to fight us.

I am holding meeting every night. One joined the church last night, several more I hope will follow before long. I have been debating a great deal for the last five years in the South. I will rest now awhile and let Brn. W. B. Toney, A. J. Moore, and others do the debating. I am truly glad to be relieved of this part of the work because it is very unpleasant and hard work to meet shrewd, slick debaters; very taxing on the mind and body.

There are so many calls for preaching now and it is much easier to preach than to debate. I will freely yield the palm to my collaborators in the mission. But if any should deem it necessary to meet J. W. Chism I advise them to enter the contest thoroughly equipped with books and patience. He is the most insulting man I ever met. The common talk of the town is, "Erwin is a gentleman, the other man a villain."

In bonds,

J. D. ERWIN.

PROVO, Utah, June 11.

Editors Herald.—I inclose a clipping from the Provo, Utah, Enquirer, semi-weekly, June 10. It also appeared in the daily. Perhaps you already have it, but I thought you might not. I presume this settles the whole matter and we had just as well take our books and go home (?). Bro. Parker and I are here in tent work. Fair crowds and some interest. Expect to move south soon.

In bonds,

D. W. WIGHT.

REMARKABLE PREDICTION.

Lutius Gratton in Hope of Zion says:—

"The old time gospel with the gifts thereof are lost. False doctrines prevail in every church and in every land. All we can do is to exhort the people to be just, fear God and shun evil, and to pray, pray, pray.

"Prayer and purity may cause an angel to visit a deep and distressed soul. But I tell you that God will, in one hundred years have spoken again. He will restore the old church again. I see a little people led by a prophet and faithful elders. They are persecuted, burned and murdered, but in a little valley that lies on the shores of a great lake, they will grow and make a beautiful land, have a temple of magnificent splendor, and also possess the old priesthood with apostles, prophets, teachers, and deacons. From every nation will the true believers be gathered by speedy messengers, and then will God, the Almighty, speak to the disobedient nations with thunder, lightnings, and destruction, such as never heard of in history."

The book which contains the above can be found in the University Library in Basel City, Switzerland, Europe, printed in 1739.

EAST HELENA, Mont., June 25.

Editors Herald.—I came here with the district president, for the purpose of looking up some of the saints that I heard were located here. I find Sr. Raymond still in the faith and doing what she can to assist the cause. I was granted the use of the Methodist church. The pastor Mr. Warren treated me very kindly, for which I shall not forget him. I think we have made a good impression.

There seems to be a good-hearted lot of people here. I certainly feel at home with them. Sr. Davison is full of godly zeal for truth and right. May God abundantly bless her in her bereft condition.

We went up to Helena and found Sr. Benedict and family and partook of their hospitality. We also met with Sr. Smith, a sister to Bro. J. C. Clapp, and Sr. Stranahan; all sound in the faith. As I looked over Helena and saw the great number of church spires towering towards the sky, I wondered if sometime there wouldn't be a true Latter Day Saint church there. The Lord is able to bring it about in his own time and way. We leave in the morning for Deer Lodge, feeling that we have left matters better than we found them. In bonds,

GOMER REESE.

DRAIN, Oregon, June 25.

Editors Herald.—I have just closed a four-nights' debate with a Mr. Badger, of this place, of the Campbellite persuasion, who had been working to have this discussion for three years or more; and not liking to see people disappointed, especially when we can help it, concluded to grant them their wish, with the idea in mind that one favor of the kind would do them. They challenged us last year when we were in these parts. We did not care to devote time to it then, but wrote up propositions, agreeing to discuss at some future time, providing they would get a man that all their church would sustain. This they seemed to have some trouble in doing, but finally all agreed to stand by this man Badger. Then they wanted to write the propositions for me to affirm, so I began to think after all that they did not want it, but in that I was mistaken, for on my return I found them more than willing, and that a report had been circulated that we were backing out; so I informed them that now was their time, and that I was the proper one to state what I believed, to which they finally agreed; I affirming present revelation, he affirming the signs spoken of in Mark 16 and all gifts spoken of in 1 Corinthians 12 ceased with the Apostolic age.

I don't think he will ever discuss the same propositions again with an elder of this church. We agreed to continue it longer than the four nights if we could agree on more propositions. I am inclined to think the agreement could have been reached easier before the four nights than afterward. I offered to affirm the laying on of hands, authority, present apostles, etc., but he did not think it would be profitable.

He acted very fairly throughout, the most so of any man I have yet discussed with. He did not say "Mormon" or "Joseph Smith" once; he was a perfect gentleman. But he couldn't get through without asking for the usual sign, but thought he did it in such a way that he could not be called a "sign-seeker," by telling the audience all that he knew about my sight, and then wanting to know why I was not healed; but he will never be so communicative or inquisitive again, in public anyway, if I am not much mistaken.

Truth indeed is sharp, and when sharpened by the Spirit's presence it divides and cuts its path clearly. I remember hearing Bro. Burton and D. S. Mills say years ago, that in all discussions among men all we required was the Spirit, and a thorough knowledge of this work; and in the years that are past, how many times I have realized such to be the case.

I don't feel to claim a great victory, but so far as we have heard from outside sources, the victory has been admitted on the side of truth. I am satisfied I was able to present the truth in as plain a manner as I ever did; so feel that my part was accomplished. But it is no picnic work, this discussing. Of that I am fully assured. One end has been gained: our people here will not be harassed for a debate any more.

How I wish this warfare was over and we could all live in peace! I am tired of this constant fighting, this opposing element that daily we are obliged to contend against from start to finish. Truly it is a day of battle.

Well, I suppose Christ will come sometime, and then we will get a rest, until Satan is again let loose. I am glad he is not going to be loose long the next time, and that the rest is a good long one, one thousand years.

In the morning I will join Bro. Chase, who is hard at work with the tent some fifteen miles south of here. My address will still be Looking Glass, Oregon. We will be pleased to hear from friends.

H. L. HOLT.

CENTERVILLE, W. Va., June 26.

Editors Herald.—The work at this place has received quite an impetus through the labors of Bro. G. H. Godbey, who spent nearly four weeks with us, preaching and instructing the saints. The result was he baptized six noble-hearted souls. Four of the number are heads of families, one brother seventy years of age. Two of the number were members of the Missionary Baptist Church, but saw the sandy condition of their foundation when they heard the gospel in its fullness. There are others here who will come into the work in time, I think. It depends to a great extent on how the saints deport themselves. Saints, let us all heed the admonition to come up higher, to live a pure life, thereby adding to the glory of God and the building up of Zion in these the last days.

Our district conference convenes in the saints' church here on the first Saturday and Sunday in August. Would like as many as can conveniently to attend. Come by boat or rail to Kenova, West Virginia, on the morning of August 5, where you will be met by conveyance at about noon to bring you to the place of meeting. In bonds,

W. R. ODELL.

LIBERTY, Wash., June 23.

Editors Herald.—Since last writing I have been engaged in plowing and sowing this new field; which I entered by choice, and prompting of the guiding Comforter, over a year ago. After much opposition and disregard for the word of truth, I have at least succeeded in interesting a few, and have organized a union Sunday school with thirteen scholars. Our literature was accepted, so both adults and children are imbibing the much-hated Latter Day Saints' doctrine. Our superintendent is a Presbyterian lady of a staunch character, very bright; but she wanted me to lead or open the school last Sunday by reading their creed, which I refused, reminding her that it was a union Sunday school. We are using the dance hall for school and services, but the saloon element put an extra lock on the door last Sunday, so I expect to be barred out; but I was chosen director of this school district at the recent election so I suppose I will have a voice in the opening or shutting of the school-house.

I have opened several new fields in a radius of twenty miles. I say this in hopes this letter may come under the notice of Brn. Holt and Chase. If they could drift around to this place and give regular battle it would greatly encourage the weary skirmisher. I had an encounter with a Utah elder at Ellensburg recently. He, not knowing who I was, said that Joseph Smith never had but one wife; that polygamy was added later, and that Brigham Young added many things that were not right, etc.; but when I told him I was a Josephite, he became very angry; said he had no use for Josephites, and that I was absolutely nothing, because I did not come right. He had committed himself, and now he was wroth. He called himself King, the Cherokee Indian healer. This inscription was on his tent. He showed me his license, signed by the Utah authorities, and I was astonished, as I did not know they advertized themselves as healers. We had a squabble over blood-atonement, Adam-God worship, etc. He said I was simply on the wrong side of the house, and that they let us have the Kirtland temple in order to avoid paying taxes; they would get it in due time.

Wishing all the ministry success and a spiritual growth throughout the church, I ask your prayers in behalf of self for spiritual guiding.

Your brother,

N. C. ENGE.

BRUNER, Mo., June 22.

Editors Herald:—Am now resting after a long walk, for anyone laboring in this district (Southern Mission) must be prepared to travel much on foot over stony roads and rugged hills with coat in one hand and Bible in the other, and in this way he gets sometimes to do much walking with very little preaching; for there is no network of railroad in this country. Still there are mail carriers, and if the preacher could spare fifty cents occasionally for fare to them, it would mean more preaching and less weary feet, and the work put in better condition.

We anticipated above conditions before coming here, hence are not disappointed, on that line, but are on some other matters; as for instance, I have come in contact with some thirty or more families of saints in this central part of the district, and I believe I can truthfully say there are but about three or four of that number that take the Herald, and but very little other church literature. Am sorry to see such condition of things.

The effect of such sets people away in the background, and the growth spiritually must be very slow.

We have tenderly approached some of them on the subject, but are answered rather abruptly that they are too poor, etc. While this is the fact in some cases, it is not in all by any means, but is rather their peculiar way of living. We shall still continue to cautiously approach them on this subject, as we are anxious for their welfare and progress.

We have felt many times heretofore the need of those presiding high priests to feed the flock of God, but never so keenly as at present. May God so direct. We are hopeful.

In bonds,

J. A. DAVIS.

ELLENBORO, Wis., June 24.

Editors Herald:—In company with Bro. Peter Muceus I left home June 11, arriving at this place the same evening, and on the following day (Sunday) began preaching in the Buckwheat Ridge church.

This place is one of the scenes of my first year's missionary experience, having labored here in company with Bro. J. W. Peterson five years ago last winter. At that time the name Latter Day Saint was a synonym for all that was bad. In company with Brn. F. A. Ball and Leonard Houghton I labored in this field last winter and this spring, and before leaving here last month two young ladies were baptized and I went away with a promise to return as soon as practicable; hence our presence here now; and to-day we had the assurance that our labors are not in vain, for we were permitted to lead five more precious souls into the waters of baptism, all heads of families, one of them a man who has been for years a Primitive Methodist preacher, and who until quite recently has been very prejudiced and a bitter opponent of the faith, but as an honest man has laid it all aside, as the light of the gospel has shined upon him; and now he will earnestly support that which he once opposed. Next week we move on to other fields.

In gospel bonds,

CHAS. H. BURR.

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., June 22.

Editors Herald:—This lovely June morning finds myself and wife and our esteemed young brother, Leonard Houghton, associated as gospel tent workers. We consider ourselves very fortunate in having such a lovely location, centrally and conveniently located, and so many good, kind friends who contribute to our welfare. And what pleases us best is, we are having a good hearing, and there are a score or more who are regular in their attendance, and who seem very much interested in the restored gospel. We have a good, fair attendance each evening through the week and on Sunday evenings we have a regular overflow. So we feel glad to know that we are reaching a large number of the people of this city that we could reach in no other way than by a gospel tent.

Hundreds and thousands of people from Chicago and other large cities come to this place as pleasure-seekers during the summer months, and we see quite a goodly number of them at some of our meetings, so we are not only preaching to the citizens of Lake Geneva, but to the people of other cities as well.

We hope by the aid of our dear Master to be able this summer to present the beautiful gospel of Christ to thousands who have never had the privilege of hearing the glad sound thereof. We feel hopeful and encouraged in the good work of the Lord, and trust that we may be able to do much good in spreading the gospel among the children of men.

In bonds,

ELI M. WILDERMUTH.

MAPLE HILL, Iowa, July 5.

Editors Herald:—Five years ago Bro. W. W. Pitkin asked me to come here to baptize and confirm Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Atwood, two of their neighbors. Bro. and Sr. Pitkin had taught them the gospel, including the story of the angel's message and the Book of Mormon. I held a few preaching services, during my stay, the first saints' meeting held in the county. Bro. and Sr. Atwood have moved to Reinbeck, Iowa. Brethren of the Des Moines district, please call on them.

I came here ten days ago and held meetings in a schoolhouse. Sunday was a beautiful day and a goodly number met on the shores of Swan Lake and witnessed the baptism of Pearl and Jessie, eldest daughters of Bro. and Sr. Pitkin. The Holy Spirit was present to bless. All seemed deeply impressed, while words fitting to the occasion were spoken. Although Bro. and Sr. Pitkin are the only saints in the county, they are making an effort to educate their children, neighbors, and friends in the gospel.

Last month I met with the saints at Benan, Auburn, Rolfe, and Curlew, finding them cheerful and hopeful. As a church we are gaining in numbers and influence in this district.

Bro. J. R. Lambert requests me to assist Elder I. N. Roberts in tabernacle meetings in Minnesota a few weeks. I will join him at Minneapolis this week.

As Bishop's agent for this, Galland's Grove (Iowa) district, I hope you will continue to remember the tithe and offering fund, not forgetting the Graceland College fund. Address me at Deloit, Crawford County, Iowa.

C. J. HUNT.

NEWELL, Iowa, June 28.

Editors Herald:—The ministers and saints of the Galland's Grove district are still alive and energetic in the good work of preaching the gospel of Christ, by precept and example. However, I would not have your readers understand by this that there is no room for improvement, or that we are all perfect; because we hardly expect to reach that condition until Christ shall "reign as King of kings, and Lord of lords." Nevertheless, so long as the majority are making a reasonable effort to improve and grow in grace, we take courage and press forward. We may not be advancing as rapidly as they are in other sections of the country but we are hopeful, knowing that our sufficiency is of the Lord.

Baptisms are not numerous with us, though three were baptized at our last district conference, and Bro. W. A. Carroll baptized three last week; and others may have been baptized from whom we have not heard as yet.

I have learned by letter that Brn. G. H. Hilliard and Charles Darry were laboring acceptably to the saints, and that Brn. C. J. Hunt, George Montague, and W. A. Smith were doing all they could for the spread of the truth. Local brethren are doing quite well, all things considered.

Take courage, brethren, and make and fill all the appointments possible. Branch officers should be on the watch to see that the membership is properly fed with the bread of life, and every effort possible made to reclaim the erring. When the sinner repents and reforms, let all the saints rejoice and impart words of sympathy and encouragement and do works of love, that all may be helpers in the reform movement; for there is much "joy in heaven, over one sinner that repenteth." "Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees; and make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed. Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord."—Heb. 12:12-14. When the erring one cannot be reclaimed, and forbearance ceases to be a virtue, let the law of God be righteously enforced without fear or favor, leaving the results with God. "Purge ye out the iniquity which is among you; sanctify yourselves before me," saith the Lord. (D. C. 43:3.)

The writer is of opinion that nowhere in the world among any other people does there exist such true and holy fellowship as among the members of the Reorganized Church. If there does, the writer has never been in a position to observe it. It is not strange, though true, that when the gospel of Christ is believed, obeyed, and reduced to practice, it removes all bitterness from the soul and fills the heart with divine love. All political and religious differences are so far melted down as to enable us to be one in Christ. How pleasant it is to take such a one by the hand and feel that you have found "a friend in need" who "is a friend indeed." One who will never betray you nor yours, nor your interests, let come what may, so long as you are both influenced by the same Spirit and are loyal and obedient to the same Lord. How good it is to know that to such is given power from God to resist and overcome every impure thought that may be suggested by either the Devil or the flesh. Think of the glorious effect—no jealousy lurking in the heart, but a disposition to prefer our brethren to ourselves, no disposition to meddle in other men's matters nor to spy out another's liberties; but being filled with love we let charity have her perfect work. We think no evil, and by our godly example we "prevent a multitude of sins." Let us one and all, obey the injunction of Paul when he said: Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?"—2 Cor. 13:5.

When we stop and consider long enough to understand what it is to be "laborers together with God;" to stand between Christ and a dying world while we feed the people the bread of life and nourish the Church of God, we must know that we should be pure and holy.

We need the approval of God and the presence of the Holy Spirit to enable us to rightly administer in word and ordinance. Knowing that it is our duty and privilege to preach the gospel, to baptize, confirm, bless, and administer to the sick, "what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" How much we need one another's confidence as well as faith and prayers.

In conclusion permit the writer to say: Our missionaries and local ministers desire and expect the cooperation of all saints within the district. Will the saints kindly notify the undersigned at Dow City, Iowa, of the real demands for preaching that may exist in your respective towns or neighborhoods? Is there a good opportunity for tent work, and can the elders be provided for? A correspondence is solicited from all scattered saints living in any of the following counties in the State of Iowa: Kossuth, Emmet, Dickinson, Osceola, O'Brien, Clay, Palo Alto, Humboldt, Pocahontas, Buena Vista, Cherokee, Ida, Sac, Calhoun, Webster, Green, Carroll, Crawford, Shelby, Audubon, and Guthrie.

Hopefully yours,
C. E. BUTTERWORTH,
Missionary in charge.

GREENBUSH, Ont., July 5.

Editors Herald:—The Chatham district conference at Ridgetown, June 4-6, will be remembered as a peaceful and profitable session by many. In the business sessions the desire of all seemed that whatever was best calculated for the good of the work might obtain whether it met their individual desires or not; and although there was a little lively discussion between some of the brethren as to the division of the district, the debate was carried on with the best of feeling toward one another. All former district officers were sustained. The prayer service, Sunday morning, was enjoyable and in a degree spiritual. The preaching was considered good, and quite a number of strangers attended in the afternoon and evening. Preaching by Elders S. Brown, R. C. Evans, Arthur Leverton, and John Shields. The Monday morning prayer service was indeed a spiritual feast.

The address to the ministry and members by our mission president, Elder R. C. Evans, was indeed a "searcher of the hearts, and trier of the reins," and delivered under the influence of the power that made one of old bold, "to declare unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin." Afterward tongues and interpretation were enjoyed, calling Priest James Williamson, (president of the Ridgetown branch,) to the eldership, and Bro. Benjamin Schreuder to the office of priest; and warning, instruction, and promise given to the saints.

Elder Evans having kindly consented to accompany "ye writer" in the gospel cart of "ancient date," (so poetically described by him in the late Glad Tidings) drawn by the mustang "Blind Billy," we arrived at Blenheim that evening where Bro. R. C. delivered what was designated "a splendid gospel sermon." From there we went to Cedar Springs, where at the house of Bro. G. M. Shippy he presented the word of the better life to the saints and friends who assembled.

Thursday we started for Chatham, but were met on our way by a messenger calling us to Buxford to administer to Sr. Irving, of whom mention was made in the Herald about a year ago as having been instantly healed, and suddenly able to arise from what was by the doctor and all who saw her considered her deathbed—healed by the power of God through administration. Again she has received a blessing. To God be all praise. At Chatham that evening there was present Evangelist Ellmore, of Covington, Indiana, Field Editor of the Disciple paper, Gospel Echo, who has expressed his desire for some time past to meet Bro. R. C. in public discussion. They met at Elder Tyrrell's office next morning, when Propositions were signed for discussion, involving the faiths of the respective principals; certificates of indorsement to be signed by the respective editors of the authorized church papers of each church, otherwise the debate is to be cancelled.

On the 17th, in answer to card from Elder J. Blackmore, I joined him at a school in Romney township, six miles from Tilbury, where he had made a new opening, where I found a goodly number present. We held forth at the schoolhouse and at Staples (some eight miles apart) till Thursday, when Bro. Joseph was called to leave me. That evening I appointed meetings in the schoolhouse for Sunday at three and 7:30 p. m. At eleven o'clock I went to the Methodist appointment at the school, but the Minister did not come. I was not asked to preach; a fellowship meeting was the order. At the close the leader invited all to go that afternoon to hear a German (some four miles away) who had been on a mission to Africa, although he was conscious of our three p. m. meeting. He then said: "Bro. Graham will lead our prayer meeting here to-night." One of the trustees arose and said: "Thursday evening there was preaching appointed for here this evening and you know it; this is a got up affair; you can't have the school." However, he repeated his appointment for prayer meeting and closed.

At our three p. m. service I asked the trustee what I had better do. Was their prayer meeting a regular appointment? He said, "No! it was a get-up to shut us out;" that he had seen the other trustees; that it was our right and he would see it was carried out; and if the Methodist raised any disturbance the building would be closed on all. At 7:15 p. m. the door was open: the Sisters Carlross and Glazier, of Tilbury branch, played and sang some of our hymns. By 7:30 the building was full of people. When we were singing the second hymn the leader of the morning meeting and "Bro. Graham," and their friends arranged themselves in front of the door, reminding me of the ones who would not enter the kingdom, and those who would go in they hindered. I spoke on "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" with liberty and power. When it began to grow dusky in the room stones were thrown at me through the windows and bounded off the blackboard behind me. I had no fear of being hit and was not. When our meeting closed the crowd filed out behind us, and the trustee locked the door, and the Methodists were parleying with him at the door as I drove away. Just as I passed the Methodist crowd an egg was thrown while it was yet light; and missing my head broke on the horse's side. The people being tired with our over two weeks meetings and busy with having we left them for a week.

More anon,

JOHN SHIELDS.

Conference Minutes.

OLINTON.

Conference convened at Coal Hill chapel, Missouri, June 4; D. C. White president, Ella Miller clerk, E. W. Lloyd assistant. Ministry reports: Seventy: D. C. White, R. T. Walters; Elders: M. L. Sory, F. M. Sharrock, A. Lloyd, J. B. Gouldsmith, T. R. White, A. I. Roberts, S. C. Andes, W. H. Lowe, A. A. Goff, C. P. Welsh baptized 1, L. A. Quick, H. L. Kinning; Priests: J. A. Silvers, J. F. Mannering, W. H. Mannering baptized 4, A. C. Silvers; Teachers: M. M. Leaton, F. M. Williams. Branches reporting: Lowry City 80; gain 5. Nevada 45; gain 1. El Dorado Springs 165; gain 8. Veve 100; gain 1. Rich Hill 141; gain 3. Deepwater 25. Lebanon 41; gain 2, loss 2. Tebo 38; gain 2. Walker 22. Wheatland 46; loss 1. Taborville 30; gain 7, loss 1. Scattered members 10; total number in district 806. D. C. White, Bishop's agent: collected since January, $238.42; paid out $218.23; on hand $20.19. He had also collected $26 for district tent top. D. C. White chosen another year as district president, Ella Miller as clerk. Preaching by M. L. Sory, I. N. White, and D. C. White. The chapel was dedicated by I. N. White Sunday forenoon. Prayer meeting in charge of T. R. White and W. E. Hayden. Adjourned to Veve chapel, November 26.

EASTERN MICHIGAN.

Conference convened at East Fremont, June 11; E. C. Briggs president, assisted by A. Barr, W. Davis secretary, C. H. Durant assistant. Branch reports: Forester 29, St. Johns 45, Bay Port 97, Huron Center 73, Five Lakes 71, East Fremont 37, Applegate 34, German 26, St. Gideon 41, Juniata 70, Cass River 45, Buel Center 58, Evergreen 112. Elders reports: A. Barr baptized 1, W. Davis baptized 6, W. Dowker, E. H. Durand baptized 1. Priests: Thomas Rawson, W. Fetting baptized 1, J. L. Sweet, O. J. Haun baptized 1, P. W. Surbrook. Bishop's agent's report read, audited, and accepted:

On hand last report $226.70; receipts, including amount on hand, $838.21; expenditures $731.62; amount on hand $107.08. A. Barr chosen president, W. Davis secretary, A. Barr Bishop's agent. W. Davis placed in charge of gospel tent for the season, assisted by E. H. Durand. A vote was taken, asking the president of each branch to raise what money they can for the purpose of assisting Elder J. J. Cornish in a lawsuit now pending in regard to the closing of schoolhouses against the Latter Day Saints. Nine were baptized on Sunday by J. J. Cornish. Adjourned to Flint, October 1. [Figures in Bishop's agent's report are incorrect.—ED.]

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Conference at Coleman, June 25. E. C. Briggs president, J. J. Cornish associate, C. B. Joice clerk. Branch reports: Boyne City 58. Kingsley 48; gain 5. Wilson 16. Coleman 136; gain 6. Mikado (first report) 19. Alpena 46; loss 3. Reed City 29. Star (first report) 21. Gilmore 86; loss 2. South Boardman 95; gain 6. Chase 50. Central Lake 44; gain 24. Brinton 20; gain 1. Free-soil 138; gain 4. Kasson 40; gain 7. Valley 88; loss 4. Beaverton 48. Alcona 22. Greenbush (first report) 27. Prescott (first report) 18. Elders report: L. Phelps, J. J. Cornish baptized 18, D. Smith baptized 6, J. A. Grant baptized 2, J. A. Carpenter, J. J. Bailey baptized 2, W. D. Ellis, R. W. Hugill baptized 5, J. S. Keir baptized 3, J. R. Beckley baptized 2, C. G. Lewis. Priests: R. W. Kenyon baptized 2, J. Hartnell, F. S. Brackenburg baptized 1, J. Pennels, G. D. Washburn baptized 28, A. Burr, I. P. Titus, G. Morris, J. E. Hanson, J. Burch. Teachers: C. Miller, E. J. Badder. Bishop's agent's report audited and approved: Total receipts $931.58; disbursements $647.15; on hand $284.43. J. J. Cornish elected president, C. B. Joice secretary. Richland branch was declared disorganized. Preaching by Elders E. C. Briggs, J. J. Cornish, J. A. Grant, David Smith. Eight were baptized. Adjourned to Whittemore, October 15.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.

Conference met in Nebraska City, June 26, 27; J. W. Waldsmith president, E. D. Briggs secretary. Preaching by Elders N. L. Mortimore, M. H. Forscutt, and W. M. Self. Reports received from president and secretary. Bishop's agent, J. W. Waldsmith, reported: On hand and received $122.70, paid out $117.88, due church $4.82. Reports received from Elders J. W. Waldsmith, W. E. Peak, P. C. Peterson, T. J. Sheldon, C. H. Porter, W. M. Self, A. J. Meyers, J. Thomson, and M. H. Forscutt; Priest R. O. Self. Reports of branches: Nebraska City 137; 3 received, 2 died. Palmyra 38. Officers elected for four months: President and Bishop's agent, J. W. Waldsmith; secretary, E. D. Briggs; assistant, M. H. Forscutt. Resolved that all branches and officials in the district be requested to make out full reports, closing on April 30, August 31, and December 31, for the conferences held respectfully in June, October, and February, and forward these reports as soon as possible to the district secretary. This resolution was spread on the minutes as unfinished business. Adjourned to Palmyra branch, October 23 and 24.

Sunday School Associations.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.

Sunday school association met in Nebraska City, June 24 and 25, holding four sessions. Reports were received from superintendent, secretary, and treasurer, and delegates to General Convention. Seven schools reported 324 enrolled. Schools reporting: Zion's Hope, Union Band, Prairie Flower, Fairbury, Gregsport Mission, Lone Tree of Fairfield, Blue Mound near Beatrice. The last three are newly organized schools, and joined the association at this convention. The entertainment on Friday evening was good, and our first Sunday school newspaper interesting. Next convention will be with Palmyra branch, October 21 and 22.

Miscellaneous Department.

WIGHT-BRADEN DEBATE.—NO. 6.

ELDER BRADEN'S ELEVENTH SPEECH.

We informed you that Max Müller said the English language had changed since the Authorized Version was made in 1611. The question arises: Why did Smith use an obsolete language?

He showed you some characters last night to prove that Smith's characters were like the Egyptian; both lots were doctored—nothing like the Egyptian. Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism, p. 264: Here is a letter from a learned man to D. H. Bays, stating that none of Smith's characters were similar to the ancient languages.

(Here Mr. Braden reviewed the great miracles of the Book of Mormon which we omit here as they have been given before.)

I am accused of not meeting the issue. There is only one issue and that is, Was Smith inspired to give revelations—was he authorized to issue bills? If a man unauthorized by the government prints bills, they are frauds, even if they are identical with the genuine. If a man issues revelations, even though you can't distinguish them from the genuine word of God, they are frauds unless he can show he was authorized of God.

I challenge and defy him to show there has been one sign in the history of their church. It is a fact that they have no signs, or they would show them. They know they can't do it.

Book of Mormon page 439: Moroni wrote forty pages after the plates were full—wrote on nothing. Page 409:41: No bread nor wine brought, but a great multitude was fed—fed on nothing. P. 222:21: Drove cattle a long ways. P. 482:11, 12: The thought that a highly civilized Christian people should change to such barbarous brutes in a few years is beyond common sense. P. 288:30-34: Waved the rent in the air. Rent means a hole. Now substitute hole for rent and we have it thus: "He tore a hole in his garment, and wrote upon the hole, and then fastened the hole upon a pole, and waved it in the air.

Pages 21:10; 57:26; 186:61; 280:5; 238:8; 376:35; 430:30; 466:9, tells us that all who apostatized became dark-skinned, and whenever they got converted they became white again. If there are any ladies in this audience who are a little too dark or brunette I would advise you to get baptized by one of these Mormons and you will be made white. Page 460:28. The biggest snake story you ever heard: hundreds of millions of cattle driven by snakes.

Now we come to the worst thing in the Book of Mormon; the most blasphemous thing ever uttered by man. Pages 392, 393: Thrust their hands into his (Jesus') side. There were two thousand of them and it would take ten hours and twenty-five minutes to perform the idiotic farce. If you can believe such stuff as that you are just right to become a Mormon.

ELDER WIGHT'S ELEVENTH SPEECH.

Polygamy. It is easy for him to get up and say he was prepared to prove it, but doing it is an entirely different thing. I read to this audience the statement of Judge Philips, on polygamy, that it was not a doctrine of the church. Will you accept such evidence as this, or believe the testimony of Father Slander?

Elder Kelley charged with putting words into Judge Philips' mouth. Elder Kelley never did it; that was simply a quotation from Brigham Young, in which he perverted that part quoted from Doctrine and Covenants—capitalizing words that are not capitalized in that book. I have challenged the Utah people to meet me upon these issues of polygamy, Adam-God, etc., but so far they have not dared to do it.

Book of Mormon p. 387: 2-4: Christ crucified on the 4th day of month. He said that was wrong because Christ was crucified on the 14th day. Why didn't he read the verse before—that qualifying clause "If there was no mistake made in the reckoning of our time"?

He asserted that in Missouri and Illinois the saints did steal. All through this debate you will notice he has been appealing to your prejudice in making such statements as "If you are ready to believe that, you are just right to become a Mormon." With all the accusations and trials, stealing was never proven against our people.

Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 707. (Read Joseph's prophecy on the war.) If any other man had made such a prophecy, he would have been held up as a remarkable man. (Read prophecy of the Rebellion from "Pearl of Great Price.") This prophecy has been and is being fulfilled literally and completely.

Mr. Braden admits that our bill is identical with the genuine, but says Joseph Smith had no authority. I have shown you that before the second coming of Christ there is to be a preparation; angels are to be sent; a great and marvelous work to be accomplished; the gospel to be preached in all the world. This great work is to be begun just before Palestine is restored to its fertility. Joseph Smith is the only man who has claimed to receive authority from God to do this work; and if he did not receive such authority the prophecies of the Bible have failed; for we are told all this was to commence just before the restoration of Palestine.

ELDER BRADEN'S TWELFTH SPEECH.

Judge Philips' decision: The judge quotes Brigham Young as proving the Adam-God theory. If it proves it for Brigham Young, why does it not prove it when the same language is used in Doctrine and Covenants?

Why do you bring in the revelation on the Rebellion when your church has never adopted it nor put it in with its revelations?

Joseph Smith the only man to claim authority. Yes, he was the only one who had the cheek to make such a blasphemous claim.

(Here Mr. Braden read a list of thirty questions, affirming that Joseph Smith taught and practiced polygamy; was a transgressor of the law, etc., etc. During the reading Elder Wight raised a point of order, saying it partook of the nature of slanderous stories, contrary to the rules. Chair decided that the questions should be read, but not in an argumentative way.)

Polygamy. I can give you evidence the door was purposely left open in Book of Mormon for polygamy. The Reorganized Church themselves confessed it and afterward renounced it. They also admitted for years that Joseph Smith gave the polygamous revelation; in fact, it was so stated three times in the first number of the Saints' Herald. I can prove that Joseph Smith practiced polygamy.

ELDER WIGHT'S TWELFTH SPEECH.

I call your attention to the fact that all through this debate assertion has been made by Mr. Braden instead of furnishing the proof. I have asked him to read some of those things which he has asserted, but so far he has utterly failed to do so. I have given you my assertions when I have read to you from the standard works; and what has he done in reply? Simply made assertions. He has been continually demanding proof of signs and miracles, and when I read to him from one of their own books—authority they could not reject—what did he do? Simply ridiculed; said the healing was done by hypnotism. He is striking at the very foundation of Christianity, for with the same reasoning away would go the miracles of the New Testament. To nearly all of his thirty questions I emphatically answer, No. If he wanted to make polygamy an issue in this debate, why didn't he bring it in sooner, rather than leave it until the last speech, which was evidently done for effect, as he knew I would not have all my evidence here nor have time to answer it in my closing speech? Times and Seasons. (Read Joseph and Hyrum's decision against polygamy.)

In regard to the gifts and signs, we do have them in our church, and I could bring you living witnesses from this audience, men and women who live in your midst and whose veracity would not be questioned in any court, and if there is no objection I will introduce some of these witnesses to tell what they know. (Mr. Braden objected on the grounds of new evidence; objection sustained by the chair.)

He ridicules the Book of Mormon in regard to the rent. It does not mean hole; it was all in the hole of his imagination. Time.

In the closing speeches much of the time was spent in reviewing and in general talk, which could not be taken down connectedly by the scribe; but we present the above as some of the leading points.

At the close of the debate the pastor presented Mr. Braden with a beautiful wreath inscribed in letters of silver the word "Victory." Mr. Braden was showered with flowers, but coming as they did from a very few of the Christian members, the display of "victory" was indeed weak and partook of the nature of the boy's whistling in the graveyard to keep up his courage. After dismissal the "defeated" (?) one was the recipient of one small bouquet and in passing out the lady (a Congregationalist) said: "I sent you that bouquet and though it is not so large nor so beautiful as Mr. Braden received, it means just as much, and it went to the right place." This was the sentiment of most of the nonmembers. Good has been accomplished, prejudice allayed, and the world (this part at least) are learning that we have something substantial after all; for when Mr. Braden, who is represented as the champion opposer of the latter-day work, fails by honorable means to destroy our position, people learn that we have something worth investigating. We look for future growth, and while the work inaugurated in 1830 is winning its way in the world, it has received a new impetus in this region through the two debates which have lately been held at Tabor.

(During the discussion Elder Wight exhibited drawings of the Characters from the plates of the Book of Mormon, taken by Martin Harris to Professor Anthon, side by side with "Old Hebrew" and "Egyptian" letters, in which remarkable resemblances were apparent.)

QUESTIONS FOR MR. BRADEN TO ANSWER.

1. Is it not a fact that the divinity of a person's work, who lays claim to a divine message and calling, is properly attested by his teaching?

2. If a man teaches the truth as reflected in the Scriptures, is that not evidence of a God-given mission, whether he at all times lives that truth personally or not?

3. Did it make the calling of Peter or Paul a manmade or spurious one when they disagreed as to procedure, and Paul writing of it says, "I withstood him to the face, because he was to be blamed"?

4. What is the correct conclusion to be drawn from the lessons of Biblical history touching the position of fighting a doctrine taught by a person on the ground that the people did not speak well of him?

5. Is it not a fact that every servant of God was illy spoken of?

6. Which of the prophets did the people speak well of in his time?

7. Did not the people condemn Jesus because of his supposed low standing and poor relations, and did they not cast reflections at him because of his parents Joseph and Mary; and also Joses and James and Judas, his brethren? Was this not done?

8. If it was wrong then to attack a servant of God from such a standpoint, is it not wrong to do so now?

9. Is not the Bible rule for the attestation of a claim professing to be of divine origin laid down to be, "Whosoever transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son"?

10. Will Mr. Braden state whether he accepts this as a correct rule or not?

11. Does he say the Devil can abide in the doctrine of Christ, and thus prove the teaching of the Bible false?

12. If it was the command and the advice in the time of the apostles to attest the claims of a proposed messenger of Jehovah by comparing such claims with the word of God, is it not the true, honorable, and divine rule to-day?

13. To follow the rule and course pursued by the enemies of the prophets, Jesus, and the apostles, of taking up the stories told about them by their professed friends and enemies, brought the rejection of God, overthrow and death, to those so using, will it not finally result in such fearful condition now?

14. What principle of doctrine believed in and taught by Joseph Smith is contrary to the Bible?

15. Will Mr. Braden cite a single chapter or paragraph in the Bible which is not in harmony with the gospel of Christ under the restoration through Joseph Smith—cite one that he is willing to stand by?

16. Will Mr. Braden cite and read one paragraph or chapter of the writings of Joseph Smith which lays claim to divine inspiration that is not in harmony with the doctrine of Jesus Christ as taught in the Bible? Let him point out one passage that he is willing to stand upon and abide by.

17. If he cannot do this, then who is the false prophet, the beloved disciple of Jesus Christ, John, who says, "He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son," or Clark Braden, who says the Devil may abide in the doctrine of Christ?

18. Is it not a fact that the visitation and work of God referred to in the Acts of the Apostles 15: 16, 17, has never taken place unless now begun by a restoration of the gospel through Mr. Smith?

19. If Mr. Braden says it has been, will he point out when, where, and what was the divine message or work?

20. When has been fulfilled the restoration and establishment of God's work predicted in Isaiah 62: 10-12?

21. Does Mr. Braden say this prophecy is to fail? If not, why does he claim that God ceased to speak to his children in the first century and will not reveal himself now?

22. Will Mr. Braden tell this audience the time and place of the fulfillment of the prophecy of Ezekiel 37: 16-28?

23. Will he point out wherein the introduction of the gospel by Joseph Smith fails to answer to the beginning of the work set forth in this prophecy of Ezekiel?

24. If the prophecies touching the work of God in the last days are to fail, does it not prove the Bible unreliable? And if it does which is the true friend of the Bible, Mr. Braden, who claims they will not take place, or the people I represent who claim they will, and must, and that God is already working to this end?

25. Will Mr. Braden select and point out a chapter or paragraph in the Book of Mormon that is not in keeping with the doctrine of Christ as taught in the Bible? Let him point out one he is willing to rely upon as furnishing the contradiction.

26. If he cannot do this, is not the teaching of the Book of Mormon in fact the word of God, although found in said book?

27. Did not Jesus condemn the Jews for professing to believe in the Book, the Old Testament, but condemning its teaching when presented by him? "He that is of God, heareth God's word." It doesn't make any difference where it is found, the question is, Is it the truth?

28. If the doctrine and teaching of Joseph Smith who claimed a divine commission are in harmony with the Bible, does not this prove that he was a true prophet? And is it not the highest class of testimony that can be produced that his mission is what was claimed for it?

29. Would not a converse idea of this be from the standpoint of a nonbelief in the Bible as a record to guide?

30. What is the standard of evidence by which we are to judge, if it is not the Bible?
(Concluded.)

WILLIAMS-BAYS DEBATE.—NO. 9.

May 17.—ELDER WILLIAMS' SECOND SPEECH.

He seems much concerned about windows. If the windows in the ark were solid wood, what earthly use would they be? What is a window for, but to give light? He says they could not have been of glass. Glass, according to Chambers' Encyclopedia, dates from the earliest history. If he affirms the windows were not of glass, let him prove what kind of windows they were. I will answer all contention about the barges to-morrow night.

The Bible says they came to the land of Shinar from the east, and the Book of Mormon says they were commanded to go where never man had been towards the "great deep," hence they went west.

I showed you they had a mariner's compass. Nowhere in the Book of Mormon does it say they had a compass. There are rivulets that flow into the Red Sea at times of the year and at times they do not.

I will now present evidences concerning the second colony. Book of Mormon page 11 says that Lehi, who was commanded to go out of Jerusalem in the first year of the reign of Zedekiah, was a descendant of Joseph, the son of Jacob, the patriarch. Can you locate where the tribe of Joseph is? I shall prove the Book of Mormon by the Bible and confirm that proof by archaeology. Genesis 49: 22-27 gives a history of Jacob blessing his son Joseph. "Branches" in the marginal reading is "daughters." They should run over the wall. This gives the apparent location. Jacob says the "God of thy father," the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. "The blessings of thy father have prevailed above the blessings of my progenitors," Abraham and Isaac. The blessing of Jacob's progenitors was all the land of Canaan; but this blessing was to be unto "the utmost bound of the everlasting hills." Seabound land; it can only be bounded in that sense. This blessing was to be on the head of Joseph.

Deuteronomy 33: 13-17 records the blessing of Moses upon the tribe of Joseph, and says, "Blessed of the Lord be his land." Then Joseph has a land. Upon this land they receive the things of heaven, God's revelations. Then Joseph's land was to be blessed with the "chief things of the ancient mountains" and "the precious things of the lasting hills." Horns of unicorn (power) influence for progress of national power. Push people together to the ends—opposite points—of earth, one of which points would be in America.

Ezekiel 34: 6-13 spoken about 587 B. C. says that the flock of Israel (see verse 1) should be "scattered upon all the face of the earth." Then some must have come to America.

Jeremiah 49: 30, 32, says that some were to flee from Hazor, which was in Canaan, and go to a wealthy nation. This was B. C. 600. The Book of Mormon claims that some came from Canaan about 597, six hundred years before Christ was born. The time of this prophecy was about the time that Lehi was told to flee to the promised land. This prophecy says, "Get you far off," Go to "a wealthy nation that dwelleth without care" "which have no gates nor bars." The land they were to flee to was to have camels and multitude of cattle. Nephi 5: 45 says: "We did find upon the land of promise, . . . that there were beasts in the forests of every kind, both the cow, and the ox, and the ass, and the horse, and the goat, and the wild goat, and all manner of wild animals, which were for the use of men."

Prof. A. Winchell says in Evolution p. 82: "We are in fact, acquainted with twenty-one species of horselike animals, and the genus of true horses has been traced down to the times preceding the present."

F. V. Hayden, U. S. Surveys in Great West, p. 44: "In the later fauna were the remains of a number of species of extinct camels, one of which was of the size of the Arabian camel, and a second about two thirds as large; also a smaller one, . . . although no horses were known to exist on this continent prior to its discovery by Europeans, yet Dr. Leidy has shown that before the age of man, this was emphatically the country of horses."

Prof. Hayden in a report in 1873 says: "The skeleton, which I excavated with my own hands from the side of a bluff, adds considerable to our knowledge of this genus of horse."

"Recent discoveries in the fossil beds of the Bad Lands of Nebraska prove that the horse originated in America. Professor Marsh, of Yale College, has identified the several preceding forms from which it was developed, rising, in the course of ages, from a creature not larger than a fox until, by successive steps, it developed into the true horse."—Atlantis pp. 54, 55.

The argument was made that Joseph Smith was a false prophet because he said that the horse was upon this continent previous to its being discovered by Columbus. This idea was contended against as late as 1877. How could Joseph Smith have put that in the book in 1830? How did Joseph Smith know of trade winds and currents? How did he know that there had been at least two civilizations here? that a white people once inhabited this continent?

ELDER BAYS' SECOND SPEECH.

The windows that are spoken of in the Book of Mormon were such as through which light could penetrate, and that might get smashed. To say that such windows were in the ark is historically untrue. He has made this point as clear as mud.

The Book of Mormon claims these people were of Egyptian origin. Egypt was not settled till long after that. Oliver Cowdery and Joseph Smith did not understand these facts. He asks how did Joseph Smith put the horse in the Book of Mormon. That's plain. He knew there were horses here now, and supposed they had always been and so put it in. He guessed at it. Did you notice that Williams did not read in the Book of Mormon about camels being here? Geologists claim that animals were carried here on floating ice. Camels here? Not like the camels we have now. The horse was the size of a fox. Not like our horse.

Williams asks, "How did Joseph Smith locate cities here?" He did not locate any. Joseph happened to hit on horses being here. He supposed horses always had been here.

Please to take the Bible and show from it where they located. It is as silent as the tomb.

South southeast is a modern phrase. This was Joseph's blunder in putting that in the book.

I will go over Genesis 49 carefully and show you that it is long since fulfilled. I will read it and show its application. I told you that every passage he would read from the Bible pointed to America. Joseph was a "fruitful bough." He was of the Abrahamic tree. His interpretation is that "over the wall" means over the sea. I will give you my interpretation: The word "branches" is more in harmony with the passage than "daughters." Abraham is tree, then the terms, bough, branch, tree are in harmony. "Wall" is a separation, a band or fence. To run over is to go to the other side. He said "archers" had sorely grieved him here. Let's see about that. There were no archers here when the Nephites came. They did come across one old man, but there were no archers.

Where was Jacob when he blessed Joseph? In Egypt. They had a desire to go back to their home, to Canaan. Jacob prophesies that they will go back, but that Joseph's blessing would be greater than the other children's. Same branch out of which came the Shepherd, the stone of Israel. Blessings of heaven mentioned first and referred to as revelation. Will he tell us what the blessings of the deep are? "Blessings of the father." What has that to do with this question? Had prevailed above blessing of Abraham's and Isaac's, or extended further; that's all. Everlasting hills he says is Rocky Mountains. Prove they are the Rocky Mountains or your case fails. Blessings on head of Joseph? Ephraim, the head of Joseph, so it is generally interpreted. Joseph was dead. Patriarch said he should go back. I might stop right there and his case is proven false. But I have something. Joshua 17:12-18 speaks of the greater portion to Ephraim and Manasseh, but I will read 16:1 first: "And the lot of the children of Joseph fell from Jordan by Jericho, unto the water of Jericho on the east, to the wilderness that goeth up from Jericho throughout mount Bethel."

"Yet the children of Manasseh could not drive out the inhabitants of those cities; but the Canaanites would dwell in that land. Yet it came to pass, when the children of Israel were waxen strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute; but did not utterly drive them out. And the children of Joseph spake unto Joshua, saying, Why hast thou given me but one lot and one portion to inherit, seeing I am a great people, forasmuch as the Lord hath blessed me hitherto? And Joshua answered them, If thou be a great people, then get thee up to the wood country, and cut down for thyself there in the land of the Perizzites and of the giants, if mount Ephraim be too narrow for thee. And the children of Joseph said, The hill is not enough for us: and all the Canaanites that dwell in the land of the valley have chariots of iron, both they who are of Beth-shean and her towns, and they who are of the valley of Jezreel. And Joshua spake unto the house of Joseph, even to Ephraim and to Manasseh, saying, Thou art a great people, and hast great power: thou shalt not have one lot only: but the mountain shall be thine; for it is a wood, and thou shalt cut it down: and the outgoings of it shall be thine: for thou shalt drive out the Canaanites, though they have iron chariots, and though they be strong."—Joshua 17:12-18.

Ephraim and Manasseh went back to Canaan. Jacob blessed these sons to have one share, as Reuben and Simeon would each have a share. (See Genesis 48:5.) The children of Manasseh were to have the land where the Canaanites dwelt. Their bow abode in strength, so they could not drive them out; that is, the enemies bow abode in strength. They were to go over into the hill country, over the wall, yet this hill country was not enough for them. Jacob promised these boys more than location about Jericho. The other part was wrenched out of the hands of the enemy. Some located in the south part of Judah. This interpretation is more reasonable than to jump over the sea into America. No lands are described by the prophets than those known at the time when they prophesied.

I turn to Ezekiel 37, but will let it rest till presented by affirmative.

Ezekiel 34:6-13, Williams claims, refers to America. Let's see about that. He wants to make it out that the house of Israel came to America, because they went into all the earth. Then they must be located in Australia, in India, China, Japan, and in the islands of the sea. If we do not find them in Australia's climate and these other places, then they might not have come to America. He is forcing the Scripture out of its true meaning to make this apply to America. It is simply a question of exegesis. He must give his exegesis to meet the demand. Lord was to search them and seek them out. In China and other places did he do this? No he did not. Sheep were scattered. Nebuchadnezzar had just taken the whole house of Israel and took them to Babylon. The Lord said he would feel after Israel in Babylon.

May 18.—ELDER WILLIAMS' FIRST SPEECH.

I shall answer some of the opposition in my affirmation. I have shown from the Bible, Book of Mormon, and archaeology, that the people who came to America came from the tower of Babel. My opponent has not presented a single evidence to negate this. I have shown from the Book of Mormon that several families retained the same speech. Archaeology admits this. He said he had proof; why does he not bring it to overthrow my argument? He won't try these things by facts.

The Book of Mormon shows they came from the east to the west, because they were led to a place where never man had been; and the Bible shows that they came to Babel from the east. I show you by this map. (He then showed the prospective route the people traveled until they came to the "sea that divides the land,"—"the great deep.")

The word "Atlantic" is not put in the book because Joseph Smith never wrote it. Bays said he knew that the Atlantic ocean lay between the eastern and western hemispheres. Now, if Joseph Smith had written the book, according to a previous argument of Bays he would have put in Atlantic Ocean, and besides he would have found some of Joseph's idioms; but he has not shown any. Then they crossed the "great deep." God caused a furious wind to blow continuously; that was the trade winds. You will find that they blow from east to west from 3° north to 25° south latitude. They followed this course and landed near the "narrow neck of land that joins the land north to the land south."

I have shown that about 600 B. C. the inhabitants of Hazor were to leave the land and dwell deep—secure. The land of Canaan was taken by Israelites; Hazor was the capital of Canaan. They were to go to a wealthy nation. This could not have been fulfilled in Asia, for they had care, and gates, and bars. The inhabitants must have been warned to flee out of the jurisdiction of Nebuchadnezzar. All lands on the eastern continent were given to Nebuchadnezzar. He was the head of gold referred to in Daniel 2:37, 38. They were told to go and locate in a land of a wealthy nation that dwelleth without care, that their camels would be a booty, and their cattle a spoil. He must show that it applies somewhere else than in Canaan, for it could not be fulfilled, and somewhere else than on the western continent, for it could be fulfilled there.

Ezekiel 34: 6, 12, 13 says that Israel was scattered over all the face of the earth, and hence must have come here. Bays makes fun of this. It is Bays against the Bible. He admits of civilization in America.

Genesis 49: 22-26 shows that Joseph's location was in America. Bays says it was in Canaan, but has presented no evidence that it could not be fulfilled in America. I will show that his interpretation does not apply. The archers had shot at him, but Joseph's bow "abode in strength," says the Bible. Bays says it was the bow of the enemies of Joseph that was to be strong. Bays against the Bible again. Bible says the blessings of Joseph's father prevailed above (exceeded) the blessings of his fathers, Abraham and Isaac, "unto the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills." This blessing was conferred upon the head of Joseph. The blessing of Abraham and Isaac was all of Canaan, but Joseph's blessing was to exceed this. According to Bays' logic it would be illustrated thus: A father has one hundred and sixty acres of land and wills five acres of it to one of his sons and then says, "Your blessing has exceeded mine." Again: I have an apple, I give you a quarter of it, and then say you have more than I have. I have applied Bays' logic. Genesis 49: 1 says these blessings were to be given to the tribes of Israel "in the last days." The utmost bound is the farthest or opposite point, and following either latitude or longitude the farthest point of land from where Jacob was in Egypt is in America. Jacob understood this and God knew it.

Deuteronomy 33: 13-17 describes the land of Joseph, by speaking of the precious fruits, greater wealth, and the things preached on that land. Joseph's land was to have more of these precious things than the land of his brethren. This could not have been in the part of Canaan that Bays says Joseph possessed. America has three zones bearing fruitage. This land was to abound in "chief things of the ancient mountains," such as coal, iron, etc., and "the precious things of the lasting hills." The Rocky Mountains are called even in our school readers, the "lasting hills." I insist that he show his theory from facts, not by assumption. 1 Nephi 5: 45 says "we did find all manner of ore, both of gold, and of silver, and of copper." Here is another of Joseph's good guesses. Gold and silver were not found in any great abundance till 1848-49, and the Book of Mormon was published in 1830. In Book of Mormon page 115: 4 we find this: "Many of you have begun to search for gold, and for silver, and all manner of precious ores, in the which this land . . . doth abound most plentifully." He might say that Oliver Cowdery knew this, but all the schoolbooks were against this at that time. How did Joseph guess on this so closely? Bays says Joseph's ignorance does not make good nonsense; yet this wisdom is beyond that known by the learned men of his day. Such argument (?) as that is like Ingersoll uses against the Bible. It seems to be thought right to use any kind of argument against the Book of Mormon.

The Book of Mormon claims that a colony left Palestine. Archaeology proves that Israel was in America. John T. Short says that there were two civilizations upon this continent. "The Neolithic and Bronze ages preceded the Paleolithic at least in the Mississippi basin—not that the last inhabitants deteriorated and lost the higher arts which are well known to have been cultivated upon the same soil occupied by them, but that they were preceded by a race possessed of no inferior civilization, who were not their ancestors, but a distinct people with a capacity for progress," etc.—N. A. of Antiquity, p. 27.

Bancroft says: "The differences pointed out prove just as conclusively that the edifices were not all erected and decorated by the same people, under the same laws and religious control, at the same epoch."—Native Races, vol. 4, p. 359.

Baldwin says, as quoted from Brasseur de Bourbourg: "Among the edifices forgotten by time in the forests of Mexico and Central America, we find architectural characteristics so different from each other that it is as impossible to attribute them all to the same people as to believe they were all built at the same epoch."—Ancient America, 155, 156.

Bancroft argues in favor of the people on the American continent being of Jewish descent, as follows: "Its advocates, or at least those of them who have made original researches, are comparatively few; but the extent of their investigations and the multitude of parallelisms they adduce in support of their hypothesis, exceed by far anything we have yet encountered."—Native Races, vol. 5, pp. 77, 78.

Mr. George Catlin says: "I believe with many others that the North American Indians are a mixed people; that they have Jewish blood in their veins," etc. He offers twelve reasons why he thinks the American Indians are descendants from the Israelites in some way, as follows:—

1. They have their council or medicine houses, the Jews their sanctum sanctorum.
2. They have high priests and their prophets like the Jews.
3. The women are not allowed to eat with the men, so it is with the Jews.
4. They think every man's hand is against them; so do the Jews.
5. The Indians, like the Jews, in their marriages, buy their wives by giving presents.
6. They are strikingly similar in their wars and in peace-making.
7. They are similar to the Jews in their treatment of the sick, burial of the dead, and mourning.
8. They resemble the Jews in their bathings and ablutions, at all seasons of the year, as a part of their religious observances. 9. "The customs among women of absenting themselves during the lunar influences is exactly consonant to the Mosaic law." 10. "After this season of separation, purification in running water and anointing, precisely in accordance with the Jewish command, is required before she can enter the family lodge." 11. They have a feast resembling the Passover. 12. "Amongst the list of their customs, however, we meet a number which had their origin, it would seem, in the Jewish ceremonial code."

He further says: "It would seem quite improbable, and almost impossible, that two different peoples should have hit upon them alike, without some knowledge of each other. These, I consider, go farther than anything else, as evidence, and carry, in my mind, conclusive proof that these people are tinctured with Jewish blood."—Catlin's North American Indian, p. 232-235.

D. Wyrick describes the stone found at Newark, Ohio, June 29, 1860, as follows: "This stone is in the shape and size represented by the cuts, and has upon each of the four sides a Hebrew inscription in the Hebrew character, which when translated reads: 'The King of the earth;' 'The word of the Lord;' 'The laws of Jehovah;' 'The Holy of Holies.'"

He says "another stone was found on the 1st of November, 1851," on which was found "an abridgement of the Ten Commandments," and the word "Moses," associated with the statement, "Who brought them out of the land of Egypt."

These are facts, and facts are what we want, not quibbles.

Some relics were found near Newark, Ohio, of which Rev. R. M. Miller said, that on one was contained in Hebrew, "May the Lord have mercy on an untimely birth;" on another, in Hebrew: "It is good to love the aged," and "The heart is deceitful," another on each of its four sides in Hebrew, "The Lord is king over all the earth;" "The sword of the Lord is the law;" "The Holy of Holies;" "The Jew of life is the Lord awakening souls;" and on another was "carved a figure of a man dressed in priestly robes, over the head the word 'Moses,' and on the back and edges were the Ten Commandments."

Of the letters on these relics G. R. Lederer wrote in May, 1861: "I recognized all the letters except one (the ayin) though the forms of many of them are different from those now in use."

ELDER BAYS' FIRST SPEECH.

I told you it was not my purpose to follow Williams in archaeology. I have something more to do. I don't think that which he has used has any application to the proposition. What does buying wives have to do with this? What pertinency has that with the case? Nothing he has read is any more pertinent to this case.

I have given my exegesis of scripture quoted and he has given his; now you are to judge. He has not quoted any scripture that says the Book of Mormon is a true record or that the people referred to in the book came as it says they did. I have something better than to controvert the facts of archæology. However, some archæologists claim one thing and others claim another thing.

Williams gave quite a Jaredite exhibition on the map. Israelites dwelt in Hazor and were carried from thence to Assyria, about 124 years before Babylonish captivity, as given evidence in 2 Kings chapters 15 and 25. Ezekiel 34: 6 says the people were scattered on all the face of the earth. He said I said this was impossible, but I said if it proves they came to America it also proves they went to China and Japan. He knows I said this. I told you all scripture he would use would point to America.

Williams says that the "utmost bound" is in America. Now the Book of Mormon says they traveled southeast, and should they go five thousand miles in that direction they would land in Australia. The mountains of Australia are "lasting hills" as well as the Rocky Mountains. This is a strange point to prove they came to America. The mountains of Canaan are rocky, and hence according to the logic of Williams, everlasting, as he says rocky means everlasting. And no place could the term "lasting hills" more consistently apply than to portions of Canaan.

Jacob was in Egypt when he blessed Joseph and did not say anything about gold. There is no gold in the question. He has been accusing me of using infidel argument and yet he poses as a Christian. Such accusations on an opponent as that is not Christian deportment.

If I show that they traveled from the tower of Babel east, I destroy his argument. Babel is in the northwest part of Persia. Encyclopedia Britannica says that Babel was a suburb of Babylon. The Book of Mormon does not say they traveled west; it says they traveled northward. Then Williams has proven nothing in all his arguments about their going west. Book of Mormon p. 502: 3 says they "went down into the valley which was northward." Then they went from Babylon northward, and the land with precious fruits and things was northward. They came into the valley of Nimrod which was northward of Babylon. Then it says that the brother of Jared was in a c-l-o-u-d and saw the finger of God. How could he tell it was the finger of God, he being in a cloud and not able to see? Then they traveled to the wilderness and to the east end of the Black Sea, and built barges to go over the sea, then it says they built another set of boats. They built barges to cross the many waters, then the Lord brought them to the North Sea, and here they built the boat mentioned, and they crossed, and this would bring them up to Denmark instead of America, and there we leave them. So you see his beautiful theory falls down.

He says the Book of Mormon condemns polygamy. Yes it does; but if it had not been for the belief in present revelation there would have been no Book of Mormon, and if there had been no Book of Mormon there would have been no Mormonism, and if there had been no Mormonism there would have been no polygamy. While the Book of Mormon don't teach polygamy yet polygamy is the result of a false system of religion that teaches present revelation.

Williams says the evidence he will present is circumstantial, not positive. I submit gracefully and quietly to the chairman's decision in permitting Williams to bring in archæology as evidence, yet it was because of a curiosity to see what could be presented, and not because it was a just decision. Williams says he decided against me. I am glad he did. He has now introduced his evidence and must abide the results. Let us see what it proves.

Williams must establish the following facts:—

He must prove that the colonists referred to in the Book of Mormon came to America.

He must prove they came west instead of north.

He must prove that these same colonists built the cities the ruins of which we find here.

He must prove that the language spoken by those who lived here is the same as described in the Book of Mormon. He must do this or fail to establish his contention.

I will submit my contention if he proves that the colonies came from the eastern continent, as the Book of Mormon claims, to this continent.

I submit some questions I want answered: In what language did the Jaredites keep their record, and on what material? In what language did the Nephite colony keep their record, and on what material? Answer these questions or I will touch on language anyhow.

Isaiah 29: 11, 12 says: "And the vision of all is become unto you as the words of a book that is sealed, which men deliver to one that is learned, saying, Read this, I pray thee: and he saith, I cannot, for it is sealed: And the book is delivered to one that is not learned, saying, Read this, I pray thee: and he saith, I am not learned." Notice that the words were sent to a learned man. He will present Isaiah 29 very briefly. He will say that Joseph Smith and Martin Harris, who were unlearned, took the word of the book to a learned man. This learned man will say, "I cannot read it for it is sealed." He will then say that the book was delivered to Joseph Smith who was unlearned. Authors have written about the Book of Mormon and have called it the "sealed book." Martin Harris' statement is found in "Presidency and Priesthood," p. 202. That is, it is called Harris' statement. This claims that Joseph Smith transcribed some characters and Martin Harris took them to Professor Anthon. That is what Joseph Smith said Harris said. Martin Harris could not use such language to explain his trip as is published of it; he was an unlearned man, and he could not know that Anthon was a learned man, for he was so uneducated he could not tell what another knew. This claims that Harris said that Anthon told him that those characters that had been translated were correct. These were words put into the mouth of Anthon. It was a concocted story, manufactured by Joseph Smith, and I'll prove it.

CHANGE OF BISHOP'S AGENTS.

NORTHERN WISCONSIN DISTRICT.

The saints of Northern Wisconsin district of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will please take notice, that upon the recommendation of the district conference, Bro. Wm. Hutchinson of Ono, Wisconsin, has been appointed Bishop's agent in place of Bro. G. D. Hayes, former agent.

Bro. Hutchinson is duly authorized to act as agent of the Reorganized Church in the Northern Wisconsin district, and perform all duties relating to agent of the Bishopric in and for the same. It is expected that Bro. Hutchinson will be able to travel through the district and present the law relating to tithes and offerings, and the sustaining of the gospel work, as provided in the law, and meet with the saints in their various branches from time to time as the interests of the work demand.

We take pleasure also in acknowledging the faithfulness of the work of the former agent, Bro. D. G. Hayes, in behalf of the Bishopric and trust that he shall have a goodly reward for his fidelity in the same.

We commend Bro. Hutchinson to the confidence and trust of all saints.

NORTHEASTERN ILLINOIS DISTRICT.

The saints of Northeastern Illinois district of the Reorganized Church will please take notice, that upon the resignation of Bro. F. M. Cooper, Bishop's agent of said district, I have duly appointed Bro. Wentworth Vickery, of Plano, Illinois, as Bishop's agent in and for the same, who will perform all duties of agent, and is duly authorized to act in behalf of the Bishopric in collecting and receipting for church funds within the boundary of said district.

We trust that the withdrawal of Bro. Cooper from this special work will but increase his ability to perform his regular ministerial duties, and in behalf of the Bishopric, extend to him thanks for the special services rendered in the financial work during the past year.

We commend Bro. Vickery to the saints, and ask for him their aid and coöperation in all the special duties of his office. Confidently awaiting the triumph of Zion's cause, I am,

Very respectfully,

E. L. KELLEY, Presiding Bishop.

LAMONI, IOWA, July 8, 1898.

DEDICATION AT KEB, IOWA.

Nauvoo district conference was held at Keb, Iowa, June 4 and 5; Elder F. M. Weld presiding. Arrangements had been previously made for the dedication of the neat and commodious chapel built by the saints and friends of Keb branch.

Sunday afternoon, June 5, was the time set apart for the dedicatory services. Introductory hymn, "Lord of Hosts," to appropriate music composed for the occasion by Bro. J. Morgan, Jr., was sung by the choir. Prayer was offered by Elder Joseph S. Snively. Scripture lesson, Solomon's dedicatory prayer, was read by Elder J. R. Lambert. Dedicatory hymn, "While afflicted, tossed, and driven," was rendered.

Dedicatory sermon, giving an outline history of the origin and development, the trials and triumphs of the work in general, was ably presented by Elder A. H. Smith, of Lamoni, Iowa.

The history of the branch and chapel building was presented by Elder James McKiernan:—

"To the Saints and Friends in Conference Assembled: The following is a brief but inadequate outline of the history of the Keb branch of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, since the beginning of the work here. The branch was organized with fourteen charter members, at eleven a. m., March 22, 1891, by Elder James McKiernan. In the afternoon of the same day the Sunday school was organized. The work was begun at the residence of Bro. R. D. Williams, in an 'upper room' fitted up for the purpose, and where meetings were conducted for some time afterward.

"Keb was then a new mining town just springing into existence, to meet the demands of the Whitebreast Fuel Company. Most of the houses had been moved from Lucas, Iowa,—as had also most of the members,—and set down here in what had been the season before a cornfield. And except in the wagon tracks where now the streets are, and immediately around the houses where they had been trodden down, the old cornstalks were yet standing, and the mud so deep in the lately thawed furrows that one was in constant danger of miring down whenever he stepped out of the house. After struggling along for three years and seven months—meeting in private houses or in the old schoolhouse, and then later in the new schoolhouse—they concluded at a meeting held October 8, 1894, to erect a chapel.

"Mr. T. J. Phillips, President of Whitebreast Fuel Company, kindly donated the use or lease of the ground so long as the coal mine remained in operation. Willing hearts and ready hands went to work and by June 20, 1897, the building was completed and bills paid. In this work friends and neighbors extended a helping hand to the amount $40. The noble sisters rendered efficient aid by contributing $100. The system adopted by the branch to raise the funds needed was for each family to contribute one dollar per month until all necessary money was raised. This proved a successful method.

"The cost of the building was $361.59, work donated $100, cash paid for work $21.60, for painting $25, papering $16, fence $10, church furniture $45. Total value of all to be dedicated to the Lord and turned over to the Bishop of the church $579.19.

"In the beginning of the work Brethren John Jervis, James Richardson, and D. T. Williams kindly loaned the branch what means was needed to push the building to completion. They have been repaid in full for the money advanced except as to the lasting debt of gratitude. That will ever remain to draw appropriate interest. "The branch now numbers 53 names, and of these 39 were baptized here or in the vicinity by missionary work or local labor. The Sunday school has also made progress in a corresponding ratio, and is proving an effective arm for 'good for both old and young.'"

After giving these items of branch history, and short extempore outline of the unwritten history, the dedicatory prayer was offered by Elder James McKiernan. The choir then rendered the anthem, "Praise ye the Lord," closing with the doxology by the whole congregation.

Great commendation is due to Bro. J. Morgan for his original composition of music for the occasion, and for his unflagging zeal in training the choir for the important part they took in the ceremonies. Gratitude is also due the choir for their practice and effort to do well their part. With many earnest wishes and prayers for the continued progress and ultimate success of the branch, the dedication ended satisfactorily to all.

PASTORAL.

In view of the supervision of the work assigned me by brother W. H. Kelley in Herald of July 6, and the territory defined in Herald of May 18, as Kirtland district and eastward, it may be well to furnish my address. Ample on all points of procedure of both ministers and members has appeared in the several "pastorals" since conference. If the good counsel therein shall not be heeded, more might also be heedlessly passed by. The duty assigned me I will try to perform. May I have the hearty coöperation of all concerned. Let me hear from you as to necessities, and especially where we may plant the work in new places. Address care of Box 28, Cleveland, Ohio. In bonds,

R. ETZENHOUSER.

REUNION NOTICES.

Reunion of Massachusetts district will be held at Dennisport, August 8 to 15, both inclusive. Tents will be rented at the same price, $2.50 and $3.25; orders for which should be sent to S. W. Ashton or John Smith, New Bedford, not later than July 28. No rates for travel have been secured, for reasons which will be given if called for. No restaurant will be used by the committee, but each one will be assisted in making his or her stay pleasant and profitable. It is said that no cottages are to be had, and tents should be secured early.

Reunion Committee,
Per order of chairman.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

A two days' meeting will be held at Boyne City, Michigan, July 16 and 17; all are invited to attend. Reduced rates on all roads for ten or more. R. W. HUGILL, Pres.

Two-day meetings will be held in Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana district, beginning as follows: Grand Rapids, Michigan, July 23. Lansing, July 30. Marcellus, August 6. Coldwater, August 13. Halls Corners, August 20. Jamestown, Indiana, August 27. Flint, September 3. South Scott, September 10. Clear Lake, September 17. Knox, September 24. Hartford, Michigan, October 1. Buchanan, Michigan, October 8. Will the local committees please give the services timely publicity in county papers. Sunday school institute work will supplement the meetings wherever practicable, on Fridays preceding services. All meetings will open at ten a. m.

S. W. L. SCOTT, Pres.

BORN.

DILLON.—Near Lamoni, Iowa, May 11, 1898, to Bro. C. W. and Sr. E. C. Dillon, a daughter, Elizabeth May. Blessed at home June 17, by Elders R. M. Elvin and T. J. Bell.

ELEFSON.—At Woolstock, Iowa, June 3, 1898, to Bro. Oliver and Sr. Amelia Elefson, a son. Blessed at Headgrove, June 30, by Elder E. B. Morgan and named Harvey Hobson.

WAINWRIGHT.—To Bro. William and Sr. Alice Wainwright was born a son, May 22, 1897, and named George Oliver; under which name he was blessed in Chicago, Illinois, June 5, 1898, by Elders J. M. Terry, William Strange, J. Kier. The Lord acknowledged the pure offering.

SKANK.—To R. S. and Bell Skank, of Henderson, Iowa, January 9, 1898, a son; blessed June 5, by Elders H. Kemp and D. Hougas, and named Mervin Waylend.

BROOKS.—At Arlington, Iowa, October 24, 1893, to Bro. D. and Sr. S. Brooks, a son. Blessed June 6, 1898, by M. G. Maudsley and J. R. Sutton, and named Claude Alfred. Also, a son, born at same place January 18, 1897. Blessed by J. R. Sutton and M. G. Maudsley, and named Harry Leroy.

DIED.

HART.—George B. Hart passed from this life June 30, 1898. He was born March 11, 1837, in Tuscarawas County, Ohio; moved to Linn County, Iowa, in 1846, where he resided at the time of his death. Married Mary C. Welsh, of Fairview, Iowa, September 5, 1859; his wife and three children are left to mourn a kind husband and father. He was a good and noble man, though he never united with the church. A short service was held at the house; Elder J. W. Peterson offered prayer and Elder C. E. Hand gave a short sermon.

SLOAT.—Near Whittemore, Michigan, June 1, 1898, Sr. Elizabeth, beloved wife of Bro. John Sloat. She was married in 1832; moved to Oscoda, Michigan, where they both heard and obeyed the gospel. Sr. Sloat was born August 22, 1864, in Sanilac Township, Sanilac County, Michigan; baptized May 27, 1888. A husband and eight children mourn. Funeral sermon by Elder David Smith.

BRONSON.—At Fillmore, Andrew County, Missouri, May 21, 1898, Ovando Bronson, aged 61 years, 5 months, 21 days. Bro. Bronson was baptized into the church November 1, 1868, by Elder Gordon E. Deuel, and remained faithful to his covenant until called home. Funeral services at Gravel Wall Baptist church by Elder M. F. Gowell.

SMITH.—At Higbee, Missouri, June 4, 1898, Bro. Samuel Smith; born in England, February 28, 1844; married to Martha Wainwright, at Duffield church, Devonshire, England, December 7, 1865; the fruit of this union was twelve children, four of whom have gone on before. Bro. Smith was baptized September 25, 1897, by Elder George Thorburn. The funeral service in charge of W. E. Summerfield, and sermon by R. M. Elvin, in saints' chapel to a full house.

BURNISON.—At Leon, Iowa, June 11, 1898, Bro. Samuel Burnison, aged 86 years, 8 months, and 4 days. He was born in Orange County, New York, October 7, 1811. Married January 30, 1832. His wife died August 25, 1891. Enlisted in the Forty-third Ohio Infantry, but the service destroyed his health. He was a Baptist, then for a few years an Adventist, but became satisfied that the truth was with the Reorganized Church and was baptized by Bro. J. R. Lambert. He had a good name as a man of honor and honesty. Two years ago he married Sr. M. J. Graham, who faithfully cared for him during the remainder of his life. Services in Palestine chapel, the G. A. R. Post and others coming out from town and neighborhood. Sermon by Elder H. A. Stebbins assisted by Elder A. S. Cochran. The Post conducted services at the grave.

KEMP.—At Elmore, Colorado, May 7, 1898, Henry Leonard, son of James A. and Carrie A. Kemp, aged 8 years, 4 months, and 6 days. He was a loving and affectionate child, and loved to try to read the Bible, asking many questions, and begging his parents to pronounce the words he could not. It pleased him to learn about Jesus and heaven, to which his sweet spirit has now flown.

CAIRNS.—Amelia, daughter of George and Mary Chapman, born July 24, 1854, at Brandyworth, England; married Bro. John Cairns, December 25, 1870. Ten children were the result of their union. She was baptized October 15, 1880; died June 23, 1898, at Scranton, Kansas. A husband, four sons, five daughters, and three brothers mourn. She proved true to her covenant with God, and bore a faithful testimony to the latter-day work. Funeral sermon by Elder F. Lofty.

TABOR.—Martin Dewey, infant son of Mr. Martin and Sr. Joanna Tabor, born March 2, 1898; died June 6, 1898. Funeral sermon by Priest William Chapman at the saints' chapel, Higbee, Missouri.

PUNTCHES.—Sister Phceba Puntches died June 10, 1898, while passing through an operation at Brainard hospital. Was baptized January 1, 1893, at Cormorant, Minnesota. Has been true and faithful to her covenant; died full in the faith. Her remains were brought to Detroit, and laid to rest in Oak Grove cemetery. Funeral sermon by I. N. Roberts.

CUNNINGHAM.—Sr. Inez Cunningham, of Ogden, Utah, was born December 31, 1862; died May 28, 1898, aged 35 years, 4 months, and 28 days. Baptized in 1875. Husband, three children, father, mother, brothers, and sisters have lost one of earth's true ones. Funeral services by E. A. Davis.

RATHBUN.—"At the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. A. French, Lansing, Michigan, May 13, 1898, of concussion of the brain, the result of a fall a few days before, Elder Hiram Rathbun. Deceased was born April 3, 1820, in Wayne County, Ohio; was baptized and confirmed by Oliver Cowdery, at Independence, Missouri, November 20, 1831; and was ordained at Haun's Mills, Caldwell County, Missouri, November 5, 1837, by Robert Rathbun an high priest, from which time forward he was an active minister of the gospel until the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith by assassination, when he took up the study of medicine, and became a proficient practitioner. . . . He was a man of more than ordinary intellectual ability, a strong reasoner, and a firm adherent to the truth." So far we are indebted to the Glad Tidings for notice of the death of Bro. Hiram Rathbun; to which is added, Bro. Rathbun united with the Reorganized Church as soon as he learned of its existence, uniting at Vassar, Michigan, October 26, 1884. He was ordained an elder at Galien, Michigan, November 3, 1884, by Brn. W. H. Kelley and G. A. Blakeslee; an high priest at Kirtland, Ohio, April 10, 1891, by order of conference. From his uniting with the Reorganized Church until his departure, he was a steadfast and active advocate and defender of the faith, in Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, filling the office of president of the district. Of him it may be safely written, "He was faithful unto death." Bro. Rathbun was one of the little company of saints so cruelly attacked at Haun's Mill; was a witness to and participator in that massacre, being shot and wounded in the knee by the mob; from which wound he was a cripple for life. He was among those driven out of Jackson County in 1833-4, and finally from the State in 1838. He leaves Dr. Ephraim David Rathbun, of St. Joseph, Missouri, Mrs. H. A. French, of Lansing, Mrs. J. F. Peabody, of Hoytville, and Hiram Rathbun, Jr., of Lansing, who with his second wife, Lovina C. Waldo, survive him. His funeral was conducted by Elder E. K. Evans, of Lansing, who preached the sermon, and wrote the obituary in Glad Tidings. Of his death, Bro. Evans writes: "His last moments were very peaceful, his passing away seeming to be a mere transition from one state of existence to another." The end of a good man is a lesson to the living.

DAVIS.—At Elliott, Missouri, June 20, 1898, Sr. Ann Davis, aged 66 years, 11 months, and 20 days. Sr. Davis was born June 28, 1831, at Angalse, Flintshire, Wales; was baptized July 2, 1876, at Braidwood, Illinois. She was the mother of thirteen children; five children and one adopted child mourn. Funeral at Higbee.

SATTERFIELD.—Wm. T. Satterfield, oldest son of Bro. W. M. and Sr. R. A. Satterfield, born in Sarpy County, Nebraska; died June 17, 1898, aged 34 years, 9 months, 4 days. Death was caused by the effects of a fall from a windmill tower. Funeral conducted by H. W. Belville.

RICHARDSON.—Sr. Mary J. Richardson, born October 9, 1845, at Jonesport, Maine; baptized April 15, 1878, by Elder J. C. Foss; died at Jonesport, June 9, 1898. Funeral services by U. M. Kelley. She was a faithful saint, a loving wife and mother.

CROWLEY.—At Addison, Maine, June 28, 1898, Willard, eldest son of Irving J. and Theressa Crowley. Services by U. M. Kelley.

BRICKMAN.—Sr. Matilda J. Brickman, daughter of Bro. John and Sr. Catherine Robertson, born December 23, 1848, died April 21, 1898, at Versailles, Brown County, Illinois. Funeral by S. J. Salisbury.

PRUDEN.—At Davenport, Nebraska, June 30, 1898, Louis Myron, child of Bro. Lewis M. and Sr. Stella M. Pruden, aged 1 year, 2 months, and 1 day. The little one was born and blessed at Lamoni. Funeral service at residence of Bro. J. A. Gunsolley, by Elder R. M. Elvin; text Luke 18: 16. Interment in Rose Hill cemetery.

SANDERS.—At Killeen, Texas, December 12, 1897, Bro. Francis Marion Sanders, in his 50th year. Born in Monroe County, Mississippi, February 2, 1848; baptized at Elmwood, Texas, July 10, 1885, by Elder Heman C. Smith. He was strong in the faith of the latter-day work.

HARRIS.—Sister Rachel Harris died at Yellowstone, Wisconsin, May 23, 1898. She was stricken with acute paralysis and died forty-eight hours afterwards. She was baptized at Blanchardville, Wisconsin, in 1864, by Zenas H. Gurley, Sen.; was a good Christian and a gentle, loving mother. Her husband died thirty years before. Funeral sermon by Elder E. M. Wildermuth.

BROWN.—At Whiterock, Michigan, June 20, 1898, James Henry, son of Samuel and Harriet Brown, aged 17 years and 3 months. Father, mother, brother, and four sisters mourn. Funeral from saints' church, sermon by Bro. Thomas Rawson.

PROCTOR.—Sr. Rebecca Proctor passed from earth life to the mystic beyond, May 31, 1898, in Chicago, Illinois. Sr. Proctor was born in Sutton, England, March 31, 1859; was the daughter of Elder S. Butler, of Fontanelle, Iowa; married Mr. A. D. Proctor over twenty-one years ago, whom she leaves with four sons to suffer the loss of a wife and mother. She was laid to rest in beautiful "Hope" cemetery, nine miles from their home, yet in Chicago. Funeral sermon by Elder J. M. Terry.

GIVENS.—At Huron Centre, Michigan, June 2, 1898, Bro. Peter Givens, born August 23, 1840, at Edinburg, Scotland; was a British soldier for eleven years; came to Canada and from there to Port Austin, Michigan, about 1869; moved to Huron township, and settled on a farm, where he has resided until his death. He was baptized July 20, 1890, by Elder Andrew Barr, and leaves a wife and four daughters to mourn. Funeral in the saints' church, to a large audience; sermon by Bro. Thomas Rawson. He sleeps to await the resurrection of the just.

MAYMON.—At her home near Chestnutville, Indiana, April 4, 1898, Sr. Jane Maymon. Born in Blackburn, England, February 25, 1822; was the mother of two sons and four daughters; baptized in 1846; came to this country in 1846 or '47. On September 16, 1878, was baptized into the Reorganized Church. Funeral sermon by Elder Geo. Jenkins. She lived a devoted Christian life; the elders always found a resting place at her home. A husband, son, and four daughters mourn.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound $1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

National Saengerfest, Davenport, Iowa, July 28-31; one standard fare plus $2.00 for round trip. Date of sale July 27 and 28, final limit for return August 1.

National Republican League, Omaha, Nebraska, July 13-15. Date of sale July 12, final limit for return July 22 one fare plus $2.00.

North American Turner's Union Convention, San Francisco, California, July 5. Date of sale June 28, 29, final limit August 31. One standard first class fare for round trip.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth $1 00
Sheep or library binding 1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.... 1 75
Morocco, gilt edges 2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges 3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible..... 2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH.

Cloth $0 75
Leather. 1 00

The White Clover Song.

Words by Jean Ingelow; music by Mrs. Audentia Anderson, of Lamoni, Iowa. Both words and music are compositions of decided merit and taste. Price 50 cents; all proceeds to be devoted to Graceland College fund.

Graceland March,

by I. W. Allender, of Lamoni, Iowa. An excellent musical composition for the pianoforte; price 50 cents. The proceeds from sale of this number to be used for the benefit of Graceland College.

Baldwin's Ancient America.

A standard work on American antiquities, recognized as able and reliable; in general use by ministers and students of American archaeology. Illustrated; price $1.80.

German Book of Mormon.

The German edition issued by the Utah Church. Cloth; price $1.25.

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100 $1 00
2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100... 1 00
7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 30
10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 20
12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
13. Discipleism, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts; 100, 1 00
14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 $1 00
15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen 30
19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen 10
20. The "One Body," or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
- Prophecy of the Rebellion; per 100 10

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

RULES OF ORDER AND BEBATE.

Cloth $0 40

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer, President.
 Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

GRACELAND COLLEGE,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Telephone 71.

For catalogues or further information,
 Address, PROF. J. T. PENCE,
 Acting President,
 or R. S. SALYARDS, Secretary,
 LAMONI, IOWA.

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE.
 REDUCED from $1.15 to 75 cents. An excellent work for the home, also for young people's libraries and societies. Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6 1/2 x 8 1/2, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net$2 00

HESPERIS. The poetical works of David H. Smith, youngest son of the Prophet, Joseph Smith. Gilt edges$1 50

Its Easy Writing

If its a Blickensderfer No. 5.

The universal favorite with all classes of operators who desire a simple and speedy machine.

More "Blicks" in use among Iowa and Nebraska newspapers than all the rest of the $100 machines together. The only Typewriter on the market doing hundred-dollar work that is sold at a popular price.

Has 28 Keys, of 84 Characters and Letters; Portable, weighing but Six Pounds with case.

Copies and Manifolds perfectly,—12 carbon copies being easily taken at one writing.

Only one price—$35.00 net. On ten days approval to any responsible man in Iowa or Nebraska. Address,

HARGER & BLSH,
 General Agents,

904-910 Main Street, DUBUQUE, IOWA.

$35

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.

NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.

Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.

Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.

THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture AND Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.

GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas.

Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery.

Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to

RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

HARDWARE, STOVES, TINWARE, BARB WIRE, ETC.

Special attention given to Builders' Hardware. Reliable goods and right prices. Estimates furnished
LAMONI HARDWARE CO.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address,
L. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

Scriptural and Book of Mormon

subjects illustrated by means of finely painted pictures and charts furnished to order on muslin, canvas, or oilcloth. For particulars address Hulmes & Kress, 609 Main Street, Kansas City, Missouri.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

TOBACCO HABIT CURED, OR NO PAY.

Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, positively guarantees three boxes of "Quit-To-Bac" to permanently take away all desire for tobacco, or will promptly refund money paid for it. Three boxes sent post paid anywhere for $1.50. No bad effects from use of Quit-To-Bac. It is a great nerve tonic. Why not try it? It has cured hundreds; why not you? Remember, No Cure, No Pay. Address, B. F. ORDWAY, Peoria, Illinois.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, July 20, 1898.

No. 29.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
Stratford-on-Avon.....	453
Questions and Answers.....	454
Dr. Dowie in Trouble.....	455
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
South Sea Islands.....	456
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
The Sunday School as a Necessary Educational Factor.....	457
LETTER DEPARTMENT:.....		458
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Prayer.....	462
Important Briefs.....	463
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:.....		463
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Williams-Bays Debate.—No. 10.....	464
Pastoral,—W. S. Macrae.....	468
“ W. S. Pender.....	468
Reunion Notices.....	468
Two-days' Meetings.....	468

THE GREAT AGREEMENT.

THE Rev. Myron W. Reed's sermon was as follows:—

In the thirty-third Psalm you will find this sentence: “He fashioneth their hearts alike.”

In an Illinois town of 1,200 people there were eight churches; each church stood for an angle or corner of a belief. The 1,200 people as a rule believed in God and were good to their neighbors, but on Sunday they could not assemble on their agreement. They assembled on their differences. In eight places they worshiped one God. It struck me as a curious thing in the way of waste, that eight men were employed to do what one could do. I remember my little wooden church. It was a box of a building made of wood. There was a long stove and much wandering stove-pipe. The stove-pipe meandered all over the place, and there was some wire. On the top of the building and astride the roof was a steeple as thin and sharp as a toothpick. It was a ridiculous little house. The pulpit had been imported from New England. A short man was lost in it like a teaspoon in a tumbler. When I suggested that we cut away and down about two thirds of that pulpit so as to give a man a chance, the older members of the church, male and female, were grieved. An orthodox Christian is never mad; he is “grieved.” When in the old days Christians burned one another at the stake they were “grieved.” Calvin was “grieved” when he assisted at the burning of Servetus.

It is an ecclesiastical word, and means all manner of prejudices, hate, and malice. Eight preachers are a heavy tax on a little village of 1,200 inhabitants. But the people were cheerful about it. Each congregation formed a hollow square about a little ism, like the “black watch” in the Soudan. There was much self-denial and self-sacrifice to protect the “ism.”

As I see it now it was not love of God or love of man that was the motive. It was love of an opinion. I have baptized a woman by immersion in a creek, both shores lined by people curious to see me do it. It was easier to do it than to convince her that it was unnecessary. I chose the easier task. I lost a shoe in the enterprise. But her conscience was at rest and mine was, partially.

GREAT WASTE OF ENERGY.

There is a great waste in this going off one side on differences. There are at least seven kinds of Baptists in Indiana. There are nearly 400 different sects in London. There 753 sects in Great Britain. No wonder “the heathen in his blindness bows down to wood and stone.” He must be much perplexed at the various kinds of foreign missionary. I have been mildly criticised for what I have chosen to say of the foreign missionary. We have about eighty churches here in Denver and about 1,000 Chinamen. How many of them have we soundly converted? Reckon that up and tell me the prospect for the conversion of China. If we can do anything anywhere, Denver is the place. Let us try Denver before we try China. Here there can be a circle of missionaries ten deep around every celestial. We have every advantage. There will be no collection taken this morning for foreign missions. There are savages around here. But if I talk with an intelligent Chinaman I find that he agrees with me as to a sense of dependence upon God and a sense of obligation to some one, not himself. He is not lacking in love to God and his neighbors. We can assemble on the two essential things on which Jesus said “hang all the law and the prophets.” Confucius was a sort of Chinese Ben Franklin. I do not think that he would have liked the Westminster catechism. I do not think he would have objected to the Sermon on the Mount. Jesus and Confucius could have spent an evening together. As long as the Christian nation of Russia and the Christian nation of England are plotting together to dismember China and divide it up like pie at a picnic, progress of missionary work will be slow. Opium, rum, gunpowder, and missionary are a bad combination. “The heathen in his blindness bows down to wood and stone.”

He does not need conversion in one point. He believes most heartily in the Devil. That serpent-dragon that was here a while ago trailing along the street made me think of an old-fashioned protracted meeting. Five times a day several millions of our brethren pray to one God—“God only is great.” “Prayer is better than sleep.” The Calvinist agrees with the Mohammedan as to the main thing. I do not think I would be seriously out of place in a mosque. Never mind the side issues. There is a great agreement, a sympathy in all religions. Nearly all men can come together on the essential things.

THE GRAVE NOT THE END.

I believe in the continuity of life. I do not believe that life ends in any hole in a graveyard. I remember Glasgow and Boston “courts.” They are streets that run in and end in a blank wall. Life is not that way. It is a prairie road. The longer you travel it the more it branches off; there is no end to it, but the ocean, and there are the stately ships. Of course you come round again to the point of departure, but still alive and you know more. And again the prairie and the sea. Now I have read books; I reckon I have read the best that has been said on life and death. I have been very curious about the tomorrow of death. But I was three hundred miles north of Lake Superior at the funeral of a blanket Indian, a pagan, if you please. His people buried him. It was as cheerful as one of our funerals. The father of the man who was dead and myself lingered at the grave. And he said: "He is there," pointing down. But he said, "The quiver is there, but the arrow is shot. His ponemah [dream] has gone to the sky." Perhaps some doctor of divinity on Easter Sunday will improve on that. How did that come to that poor savage? God knows how to tell his children the things they need to know. He instructs them as he instructs his birds of passage. Very soon we will hear them in the night encouraging one another. "The Gulf of Mexico was very well, but what is the matter with the wild rice on Fox river?"

Columbus was akin to these people of the sky. He looked at crowded Europe, and he knew there was a new world somewhere.

Years ago I made the acquaintance and fast friendship of a man, the mayor of his little city, the master of his lodge, the owner of a woolen mill and the best farm in his county. But the woolen mill went the way of all little woolen mills, and the farm narrowed to a mortgage, and the family increased. He took the household and the household goods and went to Texas, bought part of a county and built a big barn. As I remember him he was not a church man. He had some fine faults. He played a violin, and went to congress one term. He got the speaker's eye. He is six feet four inches and has a voice like thunder and a temper like lightning. He went to Texas and built the first barn in the region. Well, the neighbors waited on him and said: "Let's have a singing meeting next Sunday in the barn." He put in slab and plank seats and the neighborhood for ten miles around assembled. He said after they had sung awhile, "Might as well have a complete service. Brother Sutherland, lead us in prayer." Brother Sutherland had not prayed in public nor in private for thirty years. He was known as a "bad man." But he said: "Sam, sing another hymn, and I will gather myself together and pray." They sang "Coronation," and Brother Sutherland prayed. He did not dictate to the Almighty, but he suggested improvements in that section of Texas, and then Sam preached on the general subject of love to God and man, especially man. That meeting in that big barn in Western Texas still goes on every Sunday. They bury their differences and unite on their agreement that "God is our Father, and all we are brethren." I asked him the name of this mixture. He called it "The Church of the Divine Fragments."

Forty times I have sat down and tried to write a creed short, simple, and true enough for the Broadway Temple association. I am not able. We have not a syllable of creed, constitution, or by-law. We are chartered; we have nine directors; we have a committee on music; we have a committee on entertainment; we have an advisory board consisting of all who hold seats in this place. We launched this ship in rough weather, but she is, after three years of hard times, top of the waves. We are out of debt, except a small sum coming to myself.

I believe I have liked the three years. I think I have talked sense three fourths of the time. I have not been nagged by my people. It is a great relief to be rid of the second service. That and 'the weekly prayer meeting as usual' nearly killed me. But I am not altogether idle. Between January and January, 1897-1898, I attended ninety-three funerals. I do the best I can with the poor and the sick. I keep myself sufficiently depressed. But I still subscribe to the creed of our good friend, E. E. Hale of Boston and the world, "Look out and not in; look up and not down; look forward and not backward. Be ready to lend a hand, and be not afraid to die."—Denver News, February 7, 1898.

AN OLD FALLACY EXPOSED.

MANY years ago Dr. Hammond made a series of experiments for the purpose of determining the physiological effects of tea and coffee, from the results of which he drew the conclusion that these substances, together with alcohol, tobacco, and similar drugs, while they do not nourish the body directly, are useful to nutrition by lessening the demand for food substances proper. These experiments were for a long time received as conclusive, and a whole generation of writers upon food and dietetics have taught that tea and coffee are excellent food substitutes and are hence valuable and satisfy a natural demand.

Within the last three or four years, Dr. Reichert, of Philadelphia, has conducted a series of interesting investigations upon this subject, which exhibit in very strong colors the error of this position,—a position the writer has always combated as being irrational and inconsistent. Dr. Reichert sums up his observations in the following brief and comprehensive sentence: "Caffein (the active principle of tea and coffee) acts as a forced draft, supplying no energy in itself, simply causing the fire to rage more fiercely."

In other words, tea and coffee do not supply any needed agent or energy to the body, but simply cause the body to waste more than the ordinary amount of energy and more energy than it would otherwise be likely to expend. One way in which this is accomplished by tea and coffee as well as by tobacco, alcohol, and opium is by benumbing the nerves which constitute the seat of the sense of fatigue. Tea and coffee, then, as well as alcohol, are simply deceivers. They produce an artificial felicity which is unearned, and which, as shown by experiments of Dr. Edward Smith, of England, many years ago, is uniformly followed by an abnormal degree of exhaustion and depression.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg in New York Voice.

WELLINGTON NEVER WORRIED.

At Salamanca, having given an order that he knew would take some time to execute, Wellington lay down and slept, having instructed his attendant to watch the execution of the movement with a glass and waken him when it was finished. Once, when in a tighter place than he had ever been before—being obliged to execute a movement with weak divisions in presence of an immeasurably superior force—he was apparently so unconcerned that the Spanish General, Alava, who was near him, said: "You seem quite at your ease, sir. Why, it is enough to put any man in a fever!" To which Wellington replied: "I have done the best, according to my judgment, that can be done, and therefore I care not what the result may be." And this was the secret of the constant perfection of his powers—his physical strength, his mental vigor, his alertness of body and mind generally. He lived absolutely without worry.—Ex.

ADDRESSES.

J. C. Crabb, Joy, Illinois.
L. F. Johnson, Minneapolis, Kansas.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, July 20, 1898.

No. 29.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, JULY 20, 1898.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

NOT because we are a hero worshiper, nor because the ashes of the great or the places that gave them birth are more sacred to us than the places honored by the presence of earth's humblest sons or daughters who acted their part in life's drama equally well, did we desire to visit Stratford-on-Avon. But believing as we do that visible nature in its varied aspects has much to do with the formation of and impressions made on the mind, we had an earnest desire to look upon the scenes that greeted the eyes of the immortal Shakespeare, and to contemplate the surroundings that contributed their part toward awakening some of the grandest conceptions of human nature ever born in the intellect of man. It was then with eagerness that we accepted the invitation of Bro. Frank Swan, of Northfield, near Birmingham, England, to accompany him to this peaceful little city on the banks of the far-famed river Avon.

Early on the morning of June 3, in company with our host and his daughter Nellie, we left the beautiful country home of the Swans, and after a brisk walk of three miles, through the bracing morning air, cheered by inspiring scenery which revealed new points of beauty at every turn, we arrived at the little railway station of Barnt Green. Thence for about twenty miles we passed swiftly through a panorama of beautiful scenery. The gently undulating hills rising, like the billows of the deep, one above another, covered with a soft, green carpet, bedecked with daisies and buttercups, and crowned here and there with the wide-spreading shade tree, formed a picture of exquisite loveliness. And the blooming hawthorne hedges mingling their fragrance with that of the wild hyacinth regaled the olfactories with sensations of delight. We wondered how far in those days of slow locomotion the feet of the poet were wont to wander, and on how many of these scenes his eyes had rested. One pleasing feature was the frequent occurrence of fruit orchards, indicating that this section is more highly favored than is England generally.

Alighting at the little railway station, on the south side of the city and on the west bank of the Avon, we took a hasty view of the surroundings, which were about the same in general features as the country through which we had been passing, with the gentle, peacefully-flowing river added. Not exactly our type of scenery, for we like the wild rushing stream dashing madly down the chasm of the rock-ribbed mountain towards the romantic valley stretching far away, until its sandy shores are kissed by the ebbing tide. Yet the surroundings seemed to be indicative of peaceful calm, and we thought we could understand, as well as one not a poet could realize, how the great poet could rest in contemplative reverie on the banks of the placid river, and view the sublime beauty of the surrounding hills, while the different characters on life's great stage passed before him for contemplation and review.

We cannot minutely describe all we saw and heard, but will briefly mention the places visited. Shakespeare's birthplace is a humble but ancient looking cottage on Henly Street. There is nothing peculiarly striking about its external or internal appearance, its only feature of peculiar interest being its historical importance. The walls and window glass are covered with names, but writing on them is now prohibited, and we contented ourselves by writing ours in the visitors' book. Among other names engraved in the front window glass of the birthroom were those of Carlyle and Sir Walter Scott. The old gentleman who showed us through the apartments seemed to have a set speech, which he repeated in the same words and in the same tone to all comers. He seemed unwilling or unable to impart any information outside the well-worn groove in which his mind was trained to run. We thought him a poor representative of the great diversified-minded Shakespeare. A phonograph would do as well, and be much more attractive. In the rear of the house is a beautiful garden, the trees and shrubs bearing the names of the characters in Shakespeare's plays. From the birthplace we took carriage and drove to the neighboring village of Shottery, to visit the ancient home of the Hathaways, where the great bard courted and married Ann Hathaway. The thatch-covered cottage, surrounded by trees, shrubbery, and flower garden, is still in good state of preservation. As we reached the garden gate we paused to hear the feathered songsters warbling their notes in the neighboring foliage, and thought of how similar notes had greeted the ears of the poet, when he sang that rich tribute to the vocal powers of his sweetheart:—

Would ye be taught ye feathered throng,
With love's sweet notes to frame your song?
To pierce my heart with thrilling lay,
Listen to my Ann Hathaway!
She hath-a-way to sing so clear,
Phoebus might, wondering, stoop to hear;
To melt the sad, make blithe the gay,
To charm all hearts, Ann hath-a-way;
She hath-a-way,
Ann Hathaway,
To breathe delight, Ann hath-a-way.

The old lady in charge of the cottage is a descendant of the Hathaways. She is eighty-seven years old, and has lived in this cottage eighty-one years. She showed us through the rooms and exhibited several old family relics. She was quite original in her manners, and seemed to have the tact to say just what the occasion required. It was quite a relief after having been treated to the stereotyped method employed at the Shakespeare house. If you visit Stratford-on-Avon do not fail to call at the cottage, for this lady is a true representative of Ann Hathaway, and hath-a-way to make you feel at home.

We sat on the old oak seat where Shakespeare is said to have done his courting, drank from the old well in the yard, and then returned to Stratford.

Our next visit was at the Guildhall, where it is said Shakespeare witnessed his first play on the stage, and where, no doubt, his brain was fired with the inspiration that has since moved the world. In connection with this is the old Edward VI. school, where Shakespeare was educated. Here we were escorted by another parrot in human form, who out-phonographed the one at the birth-place. Thence to the "Collegiate Church of Holy Trinity," in the chancel of which lies, just within the altar rail, the ashes of Stratford's most illustrious citizen, and by his side rests the charming singer whom he carried away from the thatch-roofed cottage. There are many features of imposing grandeur in this old parish church; but what most interested us was the tomb, the baptismal font where he was christened, and the old Church Register containing the entries of his baptism in 1564, and his burial, April 25, 1616. The old churchyard, — thickly covered with monuments and tombstones, and shaded by immense trees, some of which were doubtless standing in Shakespeare's time, — is a place of restful beauty. The terrace on the east, rising from the water's edge, is particularly charming. It was here beneath these giant elms that Longfellow wrote:—

"Flow on, sweet river! like his verse,
Who lies beneath this sculptured hearse;
Nor wait beside the churchyard wall,
For him who cannot hear thy call."

A four-mile ride in a small steam yacht, plying on the surface of the Avon, was delightful. Then we resumed our sight-seeing. The Memorial Theater is a grand structure; but as we were only looking for the antique, we did not enter. On the corner of Chapel Street and Chapel Lane, near Guildhall, is the spot where the poet died; but only parts of the foundation of the house in which he breathed his last now remain. Across the street from the place whence he was carried to his last resting place in the old church is "The Falcon," which was then, it is said, occupied by one of the poet's old friends; but it is now occupied as a tavern. Passing up Chapel Street, on the right hand side, you are soon under the overhanging stories of the quaint old house called "Ye Five Gables," which in Shakespeare's time was occupied by his friend Martin. A little farther up the street, and on the opposite side, in an antique-looking house adorned with carved timbers, Catherine Rogers, mother of John Harvard, founder of Harvard University, was born. The next place of note, on the right, is where Thomas Quincy, who married Judith Shakespeare, the poet's youngest sister, lived. This house is much modernized, and shows no external traces of the long ago. Turning to the east on Bridge Street you are soon at the old stone bridge across the Avon, built in the reign of Henry the VIII. by Hugh Clopton. Returning to Chapel Street, and turning to the west on Wood Street, you will find the handsome stone fountain and clock tower, presented to the town in 1887 by George W. Childs, of Philadelphia. Just as the sable robes of night were enveloping the distant hills, we arrived at the quiet village of Northfield, and were soon welcomed at the old farmhouse, tired but well pleased with the day's experience.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

ADAM AND EVE.

IN Genesis 1: 28 God said: "Be fruitful, and multiply and replenish the earth." In the Book of Mormon page 58:8 it is said: "Adam fell, that men might be." Did God command Adam to do something which he could not do unless he fell?

Would be pleased to have the answer through the Herald, if you deem it of sufficient importance. I had this question asked me, and I was not able to answer it satisfactorily.

It may be that we cannot answer this question to the satisfaction of those who questioned the brother; but it seems plain enough to us.

1. The command referred to in Genesis 1:28, was given while Adam and Eve were yet in the garden, and it is competent to believe that it was intended to be obeyed while the celestially married pair remained in the garden. What happened? Eve was deceived, ate of the fruit to eat of which had been forbidden to both. The penalty for this disobedience was spiritual death, a banishment from the presence of God, and an enforced abstaining from the tree of life, to which both had access before the transgression. The conclusion is inevitable; Eve must pass under the rod of punishment and take the consequence—a banishment from the garden.

The point now turns on the course to be pursued by Adam. Whether the fall, so called, was the result of design on the part of the Creator, or whether it was only a matter fore-known as a thing that would occur, ought not really to be a subject of speculation; it is far safer to take what did occur and accept it with its sequence, and leave speculation out of it.

Adam must eat, or be separated from Eve; he to remain in the garden, she to go out. It is not out of the range of the possible to believe that Adam was aware of the result, and acted accordingly. Anyone can see that had the separation taken place, the one outside, the other inside, the gate of association shut between them and against both equally, there would have been no children born to them. The adversary knew this, but by his sophistry deceived the woman, hoping thus to frustrate divine design. If the pair were separated, then in that case the command to multiply and replenish would have been abortive, for they could not have kept it. In that case God would have given a command that they could not keep.

But, Adam made acquainted with what Eve had done by her own confession and statement, with a knowledge of the situation, took of the fruit and accepted the consequences, which were to go out of the garden with the woman whom God had given to be with him; thus losing his right to a dwelling in the garden, but gaining the conditions in which the command of God could be and was carried out by this celestially married pair.

While the command was not repeated in terms after the expulsion, so far as is found in the history, it was understood as being in force, both by God and the expelled persons. As proof read Genesis 2: 16; and 4: 1, 2.

A little scripture may help us to understand the foregoing:—

For Adam was first formed, then Eve. And Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression.—1 Tim. 2: 13, 14.

This from the reasoning of Paul, the able representative of the New Testament times and its philosophy, warrants the conclusion that the act of Adam was the effect of a knowledge that a separation was imminent and determined, or was caused by a sudden suggestion of his love for the woman and an impulse to eat as she had eaten and share whatever fate impended. We are inclined to the first idea.

The passage in the Book of Mormon, cited, and which seems at a casual reading to add to the difficulty, is to us clear as explaining it.

And now, behold, if Adam had not transgressed, he would not have fallen; but he would have remained in the garden of Eden. . . . And they would have had no children; wherefore, they would have remained in a state of innocence, having no joy, for they knew no misery; doing no good, for they knew no sin.—1 Nephi, 2: 8.

Adam fell, that man might be; and men are, that they might have joy.—1 Nephi 2: 8.

Lehi wrote what is written above, making his statement as his understanding of what he read. We do not suppose that what he had read was much plainer or more definite than the story we have of the creation; it was probably the same.

In Genesis 4: 11, Holy Scriptures, there is a statement made by Eve, as follows:—

And Eve, his wife, heard all these things and was glad, saying, Were it not for our transgression, we never should have had seed, and never should have known good and evil, and the joy of our redemption, and the eternal life which God giveth unto all the obedient.

This statement carries with it the impression that included both in the transgression. This was essentially true after the transgression and the consequent expulsion had occurred. But the transgression to be accompanied with the having children, the knowing of good because they knew evil, and the joy of redemption would have been incomplete had not Adam himself sinned. It will not do to say that the word "Adam" as used by Eve really means the race; for they were commanded to "multiply and replenish the earth" while in the garden and before the fall. And the language, "I will greatly multiply thy conception," clearly signifies that it would have existed in the garden but would be greatly increased out of the garden by reason of the fall.

It may be that man, the race as it now exists, would not have been, had both Adam and Eve remained in the garden, for then their children would have been fewer, and the earth in its present condition would not have existed either; but it is certain that with Eve out under the displeasure of God, an outcast from the Edenic stall, and Adam in the garden surrounded by the conditions obtaining there, there could have been no increase neither in the garden nor out of it. Hence Paul, Eve, and Lehi are all correct in what they said, as we understand it.

DR. DOWIE IN TROUBLE.

OUR readers will remember Dr. John Alexander Dowie, who created a stir in Chicago a few years ago, by claiming to heal the sick by the imposition of hands, at the Dowie Institute of faith healing, and who still attracts large crowds to his "tabernacle." The following from the Chicago Tribune indicate that the Doctor is having trouble with some of his former constituents:—

Dr. John Alexander Dowie will be given a chance Monday morning before Judge Gardner to explain his method of repaying loans made by his patients. Five years ago Mrs. Ira Stafford and Orpha Black, now living at 244 Chestnut Street, loaned Dowie $2,600 which he promised to repay, they claim, in ninety days. The money is still alleged to be due and the plaintiffs, who no longer cling to Dowie's doctrine, say they are anxiously awaiting a settlement.

A jury in Judge Garver's court yesterday gave Miss Orpha Black and Mrs. Mary C. Stafford a judgment verdict of $2,000 against John Alexander Dowie on account of money they said they loaned the latter in 1892 when living at his house in Evanston as members of his church. Dowie said the money was a voluntary gift to the church and had never been considered by him as a loan.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER Thomas Bell, of the Decatur, Iowa, district, wrote from Hiteman, Iowa, July 11, as follows:—

We are getting along with our tent meeting here pretty well. Bro. Lambert commenced his reply to a Mrs. Parsons & Co., and Mr. E. K. Williams of the Baptist order, last Tuesday night and four nights last week. Omitted yesterday; held three preaching services and to-night he continues his reply. The attendance has not been as large as it might have been, owing to temperance lecturers, and magic lantern shows, and no small opposition in other ways; but after all we have had a pretty fair attendance. Some are very much interested here. We have concluded to stay over next Sunday, hoping the good Lord will continue to move on the hearts of this people.

Bro. E. D. Smith, son of Uncle William B. Smith, wrote from Chetek, Wisconsin, July 6, as follows:—

To-night finds me in Bro. Hays' snug little room. I am just about to start on a little mission on my own responsibility through Minnesota and Dakota. Having no appointment from General Conference to fill, still I am anxious to be about my Father's business, and so I will take my chances for getting along, trusting in God to take care of me and my family. I intend to labor with my hands as well as preach the gospel everywhere I go, and at every opportunity. The Twin Lakes saints have kindly offered to look after my family and see that they do not suffer for anything needful during my absence. May God bless and prosper them, is my prayer.

Bro. W. S. Pender, Ness City, Kansas, July 11:—

Every one is now very busily engaged in harvest here, difficult to get a hearing except on Lord's day. They are paying two dollars a day for help in harvest.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

SR. B. A. KELLEY, of West Dennis, Massachusetts, writes for tracts to distribute among friends while Brn. Robley and Bullard are holding tent meetings near by. She wishes to aid the cause so far as in her power to do.

We acknowledge receipt of the "Handy War Book," a compilation of "authentic information and statistics on the many subjects related to the present war," including maps, pictures of United States war vessels, etc.; by Lieut. E. Hannaford; published by Mast, Crowell, and Kirkpatrick, Springfield, Ohio; an excellent handbook for the student of the present and future of the absorbing conflict.

Sample copies of the HERALD will be sent free to addresses furnished by the ministry. Please let us have addresses of those baptized or others who do not take the HERALD. We desire to increase its circulation in the interest of the general work and "all whom it may concern."

Brn. Joseph Luff and William Crick, of Independence, Missouri, spent Sunday, the 17th, with the Lamoni saints, Bro. Luff occupying the pulpit at the morning service. They returned to Independence on Monday, the 18th inst.

Bro. J. W. Wight left Lamoni on Saturday, the 16th inst., for his field of labor—the Rocky Mountain mission.

The branch at Lamoni has contributed quite liberally in response to the call of the Bishopric for aid to the College fund. Returns are not all in, hence we are unable to state the amount received. The city was districted and active committees thoroughly canvassed the entire territory. It is hoped that all the branches have responded liberally.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

PROVO CITY, Utah.

Dear Sisters:—In reading of the different blessings which have been obtained by the faith and prayers of our many faithful sisters, I have been led to ask their prayers in my own behalf, that if it be God's will I may be healed of my sickness, that I may regain health and strength to use my limbs again. I have been suffering with rheumatism for seven years, but this last year I have been much worse. I have to use crutches to move around, and am only able to walk across the floor with their help. I have tried many different kinds of medicine, but have obtained no relief. I have given up all hope of regaining my health through man, and am putting my trust in God, that through my faith in God together with the prayers of the Prayer Union, I may receive that blessing. I am twenty years old, and have been a member of the church for five years, and my desire is to live faithful and humble to the end.

It is very seldom I see a letter from Utah in the Herald, so it may interest some of our readers to hear a few words from our branch. We have no meeting house here, but we meet once every Sunday at Bro. Wannberg's. The last four weeks Brn. R. J. Parker and D. W. Wight have been here holding forth in the tent, and we have had many good meetings. It seems that in this part of Utah the people are more stiffnecked than anywhere else, and not yet prepared to receive the truth. We hope much good will result in the future.

Since these two brethren came here we have had meetings at our house three times, which I have enjoyed very much, as I am not able to go to any meetings. I have been administered to by the elders three different times and have been relieved from pain at the time, but have not been able to use my limbs any better.

Dear sisters, pray for me that I may be faithful and patient under my affliction, and that I may be worthy of receiving my desired blessing from God.

Please appoint a certain time to pray for me so we can pray with you, is the earnest request of your sister in Christ,

ELLEN OLSON.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. LIDA JETT writes from San Antonio, Texas, July 4: 'I earnestly request your faith and prayers in behalf of my brother, Charles McRae, and my brother-in-law, Elder H. P. Curtis, both being seriously affected with lung trouble, that if it be the Lord's will to restore my brother to health and that he might be led to obey the gospel, he being the maintenance and comfort of our aged mother; and Bro. Curtis, if the Lord would heal him, he could do so much good in this great wicked city. I ask also to be remembered, that I might be relieved of weakness, and given strength to live faithful through all the trials I am called to endure.

Sr. Agnes Shay, of Garden City, Kansas, desires the prayers of the Union that if it is the Lord's will she may be healed. She is greatly afflicted. The doctors do not seem to help her any, and there are no elders here and none ever call.

Sr. Lizzie A. Brown, of New Albany, Indiana, requests the faith and prayers of the Prayer Union, that she may be relieved of a serious affliction of lagrippe and a complication of other ailments, which have almost taken her strength. Also her father, James G. Scott, who has been laboring under a heavy form of lagrippe for six months and seems slow of recovering.

Sr. Elsie Pringle, of Perry, Iowa, desires to be remembered by the Prayer Union. She is suffering from an injured spine, and desires so much to be healed, if God is willing.

Sr. Ellen Olson, of Provo, Utah, earnestly requests the faith and prayers of the Prayer Union that it may please God to restore her to health and strength. She has long been a sufferer, but has strong faith in God's power to heal.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

Sisters' offerings for Home Column, from April, 1897, to 1898.

TAENGA BRANCH.

Mani	$0 30	Teoro	$0 20	Teaki	$0 20
Alite	10	Tepogi	10	Teapehu	20
Tokopu	20	Temuua	30	Karoariki	30
Roiti	10	Ragahua	10	Tetara	10
Tepioai	20	Riri	10
Total,					$2 50

MARUTEA BRANCH.

Aided by others of various branches while gathered for the diving.

Alite	$0 40	Togi	$0 20	Hiriata	$0 30
Kapua	30	Fanumea	20	Toroaha	70
More	10	Tahuri	60	Ruia	10
Hio	20	Tematahiaku	10	Tiniatua	60
Gauta	40	Tina	10	Tera	10
Tehivai	10	Tutekavarao	10	Erena	40
Tegaki	10	Teana	90	Vaiari	80
Teupoo	40	Mahuru	90	Tahunui	10
Tearevahine	20	Maui	20	Teoro	50
Tekura	50	Tevahineraroua	10	Patetepa	10
Tepuroku	10	Teata	30	Tepukea	10
Yehi	10	Teurarea	10	Tini	30
Tetara	20	Reiki	10	Ragahua	10
Mahia	20	Marutake	10	Pival	10
Punau	10	Tutamahine	10
Total,					$11 80

KIKEHAU BRANCH.

Tehuihui	$2 00	Teura	$0 20	Terouru	$0 50
Wairaa	20	Tini	1 60	Tepea	10
Tepere	10	Tutohu	10	Tepure	40
Mere	30	Tematen	30	Tuata	10
Mihi	40	Tematai	20	Konea	30
Tehina	50	Tapehau	10	Manava	10
Temateu	20	Mahuru	10	Teaua	20
Teroro	30	Vairaa	20	Taupea	1 20

Turere	$1 00	Tekonea	$0 10	Tuata	$0 10
Hau	10	Tepapari	10	Tetapu	10
Total,					$11 20

KIKEHAU BRANCH.

The following is for the Kikehau branch for the year from 1896 to 1897. Did not get to conference last year, and was not reported:

Tehuihui	60	Tini	50	Tehina	30
Mere	10	Wairaa	30	Buanaa	26
Tepure	20	Tapea	10	Buahi	20
Tina	10	Manava	20	Koneo	20
Mahuru	10	Tagia	10	Rouru	20
O-ahu	10
Total,					$3 50

ARATUA BRANCH.

For this conference year.

Mataroro	$0 20	Baata	$0 60	Rorori	$0 30
Boimata	40	Terera	20	Tarevati	20
Arite	20	Tena	40	Fana	20
Reiatua	30	Teahio	10	Terere	10
Total,					$3 20

RAROA BRANCH.

Tematai	$1 00	Faurae	$0 10	Teata	$0 10
Vehio	30	Tematai	10	Tearevahine	10
Tahuri	30	Teohu	10	Takohotu	10
Teapai	20	Puahi	20	Tutohu	10
Tafai	10	Marai	10
Total,					$2 90

TAKAPOTO.

Where the sisters from various branches were gathered for the diving.

Matahiapo	$1 60	Tafira	$1 20	Meari	$0 20
Tevaha	40	Fainau	60	Mataua	20
Terora	60	Mareihau	20	Katuputehina	40
Tarava	80	Tahu	20	Tiraha	10
Gakuna	40	Ragipuni	40	Hura	10
Ahu	20	Tekohu	30	Tepogi	40
Teuanni	70	Vaiaa	40	Teaua	20
Puahi	60	Terika	60	Tena	90
Tetope	1 00	Henagaro	10	Tenaruata	30
Temiri	30	Pokiroa	20	Taha	20
Taumea	60	Hiriata	50	Puatua	20
Temaruata	10	Hio	30	Teuka	40
Teeva	10	Teio	10	Huarei	10
Total,					$18 30

MANIHI BRANCH.

Tarava	$1 30	Maui	$0 60	Punau	$0 50
Pua	10	Haki	20	Tetope	1 00
Temarutoke	20	Teraka	80	Tena	1 30
Puahi	80	Teata	80	Teakai	40
Harava	70	Pokiroa	20	Teanini	10
Huarei	30	Ruarahi	10
Total,					$9 40

MATAURA BRANCH, TUPUAI.

Tetuaotetu-		Uraheiaata	$1 20	Tsau	$1 20
earii	$4 00	Teuruna	1 40	Tetuamata-
Tehinateheu-		Tahete	2 70	atau	90
atua	80	Henatutara	70	Tetauopairani	4 30
Teuihara	50
Total,					$13 70

KAUKURA BRANCH.

Maui	$1 40	Faimano	$0 10	Reitere	$0 10
Teapai	20	Teremia	10	Iaia	20
Matana	10	Teumea	10	Tetua	10
Tainau	10	Hiriata	10	Maria	10
Tehuihui	10	Oue	1 40	Tearo	20
Iariri	10	Tafira	10	Kaunuku	20
Maoe	10	Ruita	10	Temahau	20
Total,					$5 20

MIAU BRANCH.

Teupoo	$2 00	Fainau	$0 40	Reitere	$0 20
Uau	10	Ave	10	Teura	10
Unu	20	Ruarau	20	Korikori	20
Paora	20	Tohuri	10	Taurua	20
Tiraha	10
Total,					$4 10

ANAA BRANCH.

Teumere	$0 30	Terouru	$0 40	Tutamahine	$0 80
Mahia	10	Taefa	1 20	Taurua	20
Repeta	10
Total,					$3 10

TARONA BRANCH.

Alice	$0 20	Marai	$0 10	Tutamahine	$0 30
Matahira	10	Tevava	10	Buioi	30
Haua	1 40	Teroro	20	Turou	10
Teheura	20	Tekeu	10	Manuia	40
Teumia	30	Rekeo	40	Tiraha	20
Repeta	30	Teanini	20	Maukahi	10
Hina	10	Hio	10	Vahinearii	10

Tuane	$0 50	Tutohua	$0 50	Tehapai	$0 10
Puahi	40	Tearahi	30	Teroromata	10
Tapairu	40	Mahue	10	Tafai	10
Emma	3 40
Total,					$12 10

HAO BRANCH.

Tekura	$2 00	Rata	$0 90	Tepogi	$0 40
Kapuroro	10	Mahiaragi	10	Papahau	90
Tikamotu	40	Monuia	10	Takua	10
Temanatu	20	Tena	10	Gana	30
Ruaragi	10	Tematagi	10	Temanea	10
Tahau	20	Teupoo	10	Alite	30
Total,					$6 50

AMANU BRANCH.

Tekarohi	$0 20	Tefanako	$0 10	Kuramea	$0 20
Pimato	20	Haki	20	Tepuratu	30
Matapuui	30	Tekura	30	Alite	20
Tekopu	10	Tuporo	10	Temarakura	10
Total,					$2 30

TIONA BRANCH.

Pohee	$1 00	Tauru	$0 70	Hoasia	$0 70
Teroromata	70	Tuane	20
Total,					$3 30

RAIROA BRANCH.

Tematai	$0 10	Faurae	$0 10	Teata	$0 10
Vehia	30	Temataiui	10	Tearevahine	10
Tematsi	90	Tahuri	30	Teohu	10
Fakohotu	10	Teapai	20	Puahi	20
Tutahu	10	Tafai	10	Marae	10
Total,					$2 90

MAKATEA BRANCH.

Tenunu	$0 20	Tuarii	$0 20	Puturua	$0 70
Mataua	50	Reva	20	Taio	20
Mere	10	Tupui	20	Mihi	10
Hina	40	Tearere	20
Total,					$3 00

TAKAROA BRANCH.

Teata	$0 60	Faumia	$0 40	Konea	$0 20
Kapua	30	Taha	40	Puahi	60
Tetope	50	Tena	40	(telahi) Tena	20
Hio	20	Terika	30	Vaiari	30
Teaua	40	Tumatai	10	Teara	10
Punau	10	Marutake	20	Tarava	20
Takiroa	10	Mani	30	Matahiapo	30
Ruaragi	10	Hinagare	10	Tutamahene	20
Taio	10	Teken	10	Kanariki	20
Tahuri	20	(telahi) Taata	10	Tekoe	20
Tenanui	10	Terika	20	Tepogi	10
Kapeke	20	Faumia	10	Hiriata	10
Reiteri	10	Treremia	10	Teurarea	10
Teupoo	10	Teumare	10	Tiniatua	10
Tekivai	10	Terava	10	Tumataio	10
Ume	10	Teauaa	10	Pasta	20
Ave	10	Matarora	10	Ioi mata	10
Karoariki	10	Taefa	10	Mahia	10
Vehia	10	Otare	10	Kahepe	10
Caumiku	20	Teraro	10	Tetui Arii	10
Total,					$10 90

HIKUARU,

During the diving.

Roiti	$1 00	Tiniatua	$0 60	Teupoo	$1 50
Matahiapo	2 10	Taha	1 50	Tenanui	1 50
Togi	1 20	Tetara	30	Hio	70
Taitua	2 00	Meari	40	Teaua	70
Vaiari	1 60	Vehia	30	Marama	50
Raroua	70	(telahi) Teupoo	30	Teumia	60
Terai	30	Ferako	30	Tuhagaia	10
Erena	40	Teapehu	10	Temarama	20
Teatavahine	10	Tetua	20	Teken	30
Maria	20	Tuararea	20	Nuupure	40
Hina	40	Tahunui	10	Patatapa	10
Faumea	30	Teata	30	Tekura	10
Hairai	10
Total,					$21 70

TAKAROA.

From the sisters meeting during conference at Takaroa.

Taufanmaa	$0 10	Taata	$0 10	Tutamahine	$0 10
Kapua	10	Otare	10	Matahiapo	10
Tepogi	10	Tafira	10	Teata	10
Puahi	10	Tetope	10	Huaroi	10
Terike	10	Tarava	10	Karoariki	10
Marutake	10	Emma	20	Vaiari	10
Taroura	10	Mahia	10	Taafa	10
Taega	10	Kapua	1 00	Tenini	10
Matarou	10	Tehaiho	10	Mani	20
Ue	50	Temehau	20	Tekahu	20
Rota	20	Reitare	10	Tini	10
Hate	20	Teone	20	Vehia	10
Tahare	10	Tapaueru	10	Tauru	10

Teohu	$0 10	Tefa	$0 20	Pani	$0 10
Tutohu	10	Earai	10	Teeva	10
Tini	10	Tiniatua	10	Tanepa	10
Konea	10	Ema	10	Mahuru	10
Tohina	10	Mataua	10	Tenunu	10
Tuarii	10	Haata	10	Teara	10
Hana	10	Vahinearui	10	Teroromata	10
Vahinerii	10	Tearoarii	10	Teamatooa	10
Tehina	10	Uraau	10	Koheke	10
Mataura (Tu- puai)	1 00	Haku	10	Tihe	10
Topatari	10	Putake	10	Kapua	10
Kahara	10	Tehuputira	10	Tuhiata	10
Total,					$10 60

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL AS A NECESSARY EDUCATIONAL FACTOR.

By Russell Archibald, for the St. Louis district convention.

CHILDHOOD, as the springtime of life, is that period above all others when seed sown in the garden of the mind is most likely to take root and grow. Early impressions are the most lasting, and for this reason we all look back upon childhood's days with fond recollections, forgetting none of their pleasures.

This natural truth has long since been discovered and utilized by those who have had occasion to instruct others, hence we find children, just as soon as they are capable of taking care of themselves between the home and school, placed by their parents under the instructor's care.

Recognizing the true nature of man, that the body is but the house in which we dwell, and the disposition manifested upon the part of the child in very early years to seek to discover the source of its origin, we must in candor admit that inasmuch as these questionings arise in the child mind from a purely investigative and holy standpoint (before other motives which appear in after-life have sprung into existence) that there is somewhere in nature a proper response to be made to these inquiries.

Under the present adjustment of matters of education in our country church and state have been separated, and we believe wisely too; but while our schools are by law restrained from impressing upon the child mind any religious ideas, it only makes the more apparent the necessity for the establishment of another school as an educational factor to supplement and complete the work performed in our most estimable system of public schools. This necessity has been recognized, and the Sunday schools of to-day are the legitimate outgrowth of this demand, to supply an education which is not to be had elsewhere. We seldom find beggars living in costly mansions, nor can we with propriety expect to find in this tenement of clay, that has not only Divine workmanship upon it but costly human embellishments as well, an intelligent spirit that lives alone and is not in communion with its source; for stagnant waters soon become putrid and infectious.

There is much logic in the ideas entertained by some educators in ancient times, and in fact supported by many at the present day, that the school which merely gives to us a physical and mental course of training, neglecting the spiritual part, is incomplete in its purpose, to say the least; but we know full well that the mistakes of the past in seeking to fasten this idea upon the minds of men, regardless of any virtue which they might see in it, rise up before us now as barriers in the way of advancing thought. However, with this, as in most other things, the mistake has been rather in the abuse and not in the use of that which our judgment tells us to be best.

In our country of civil and religious freedom, religion, if it is really what it purports to be,—a benefactor to the race,—should stand or fall, as it proves itself worthy or unworthy of our acceptance and support.

We must free ourselves from the opinions which seem to prevail almost universally, that religion is a mystery which only a favored few can understand and that it is the duty of these few to compel the rest of mankind to do as they say, whether they wish to or not. The difficulty with most people in their refusal to accept the claims of Christianity is not due to the fact that they purposely and deliberately turn their back upon that which they know to be for their best good, for men and women have not been so constituted by the Divine Architect, but the real difficulty, as we view it, is the neglect to which they have been subjected during the years of childhood, until with an undeveloped mind in that direction, in manhood's days, some are confronted with this great question, and we look upon them as stupid or wicked because they cannot comprehend it. Men did not navigate upon the ocean until they had mastered the smaller streams leading to it, and neither can they grasp the religion of Jesus Christ until they have traveled along the avenues in which he trod, from childhood's days on.

As a nation we profess religion and stamp upon our coins the words "In God we Trust," which of itself implies that there is a God whom we may safely trust. Let a child grow up to manhood with no knowledge of mathematics, and then simply because he stands before you in the physical stature of a man, propound to him a problem in square root, employing the fundamental principles of mathematics, and you would receive no answer. Solve the problem before his eyes that he may see how it is done, and he will be no wiser when you conclude than when you began. He may repeat the answer, if you have told it to him, just like the phonograph would; but when that is done it has passed from him forever. If you ever teach him mathematics you will have to treat him as a child, but in trying to do this you will find him offended at your course, because he now thinks himself a man. This brings us to the condition of affairs which often exists in connection with Sunday school work, when we find big, overgrown boys who think themselves too large to attend Sunday school, and seem to labor under the impression that it is a place for children only. The Savior seemed to be confronted with these questions, for he found it necessary upon one occasion to teach certain parties that except they humbled themselves and became as little children they could in no wise enter the kingdom of heaven.

The science of phrenology teaches us that there are in the mind of man faculties or organs of intellect such as veneration, benevolence, and spirituality, and that they are a part of our being, as much so as the organs of language, calculation, music, size, color, etc.; hence we may reason from this condition of affairs that the person who is properly educated must have all of those organs cultivated and sustaining a proper relation to each other. If a person deaf and dumb is deficient in hearing and language, the same logic brings us to the inevitable conclusion that those who are not religiously inclined are lacking in the other organs which we have mentioned. We would not think of neglecting the development of some of our mental powers, which are called into use every day, for we know full well their value. We can understand how the musician with a cultured mind and ear can perceive more beauty and harmony in the recital of a musical composition than one who has had no development along those lines. And, while admitting this truth, how inconsistent it appears, when those who have cultivated the spiritual powers converse with one another upon the benefits derived therefrom, to hear some one who is altogether ignorant in the matter or totally lacking in those powers, sit in judgment upon them and tell them they are dreaming. We have only pity for those who do not see, whether the darkness which surrounds them is due to a defect in their physical organism or to the absence altogether of the sight of the eye.

There are some people whose sense of appreciation is so dull that they can find more music in a base drum than the most cultured musician can bring forth from the finest piano ever constructed, for the simple reason that they can beat the drum, but can't play the piano, and it would take too long to learn how. So we find some who object to the Sunday school and seem to think the street is a better place for them, because it requires less exertion to walk the streets than it does to study a Sunday school lesson.

Right here it seems we might fittingly relate an incident which occurred in the life of the late Presidential candidate, Mr. Bryan. His father being an educated man knew full well the advantages of such a training, so after William had completed his course in the schools at home, he sent him to college in order to still further develop his faculties and fit him for a useful life. Like most boys at college, however, he wished to appear well dressed, and as he was still growing at the time, his feet had traveled several inches from the bottom of his trousers, and the rest of the boys were having considerable sport with him over his appearance. Being thus annoyed by his schoolmates, he wrote his father a letter, explaining the circumstances to him and requesting that he send him at once sufficient money to procure a pair of trousers more in keeping with his size. In a few days there came a letter from his sire, but greatly to William's disappointment it contained no money, and his spirit drooped within him as he thought of the ridicule of his companions which he would still be compelled to endure. In that letter, after giving him many other excellent words of advice, his father said: "My son, as the school year is now about over, if you have no fault to find with your trousers, except as to length, they will do you the balance of the term, for you will find in the end that men will judge you rather by the length of your head than the length of your trousers.

How many boys and girls are attending Sunday schools worried more over the appearance of their dress than as to whether or not they have mastered the lesson? If there are any such here, I hope they will take the advice given to Mr. Bryan.

When we speak of the Sunday school as a necessary educational factor, we do so with the thought in mind that it is being made a means of education, and not simply a place where we meet from time to time, being able to say we have attended fifty-two Sundays in the year, without taking into consideration how much wiser we are at the end of that time. Without some such institution as the Sunday school the higher nature in childhood's days would receive but little education; hence, as a factor necessary to complete and perfect development of mind, the labor performed by the Sunday school may properly be termed a necessary part in our education.

If you have in the past neglected these faculties of mind which you possess, whether you are old or young in years, cultivate them, and I assure you that you will then come to know that the only reason why you could not appreciate them before was because they had been of no service to you.

Letter Department.

KAUKURA, May 1.

Editors Herald:—Last evening we arrived here from Arutua, where we, Emma and I, had tarried a few days on our way from the conference at Takaroa.

We had a very pleasant and peaceable conference, although we had some business to do which ordinarily might provoke some trouble, but the one thousand two hundred and ten saints which had gathered there were in good humor and not at all inclined to be quarrelsome. The one thousand two hundred and ten saints gathered at Takaroa in sixty-one boats, five vessels, and one steamer. Their feast, which lasted eleven days, only cost this year about three thousand dollars, for the one thousand two hundred and ten people, as against about fifteen thousand dollars last year for nineteen days and five hundred and fifty-six people.

Arrangements were made to pay the two thousand dollars French money which the church owes for the land bought last October. This debt will all be paid before October 1 of this year, by about one half of the membership, the other half not being willing to assist, as they live so far away from Papeete that they seldom go there.

Our conference lasted six days, and at its conclusion I was attacked again quite severely with neuralgia of the stomach and bowels, but by the blessing of God through administration and the careful, watchful nursing of Emma I got all right again, but was very weak; for the pain was somewhat disagreeable and weakening. But we were soon able to move on our way again, so after being detained a few days we left Takaroa in a boat for Kaukura, stopped most all day at Takapoto, and the day following got to Arutua, where we located in Elder Tapu's new house and just rested; and being recuperated, we came here. I preached this morning to a house full of people, for many are gathered here from other islands, to gather the cocoanuts and dive for the pearl shells and pearls.

From here we will try to get to Manihi and perhaps some of the further islands eastward, and work our way back to Papeete in June or July, and begin again the printing work, if the Lord wills.

We have not received any mail since the February mail, so if letters are not answered our friends will please be patient with us; we will probably get some mail next month.

The Utah Church held its conference at Takaroa also, and on the Sunday after their conference their young elder, David Neff, preached the "Adam-God" doctrine, so he told me, and that he delighted in it as a beautiful doctrine. He also defended the lying doctrine, citing Abraham's story about his wife being his sister, and Peter denying his Lord. It seems strange to me that they are so blinded; so far astray are they that they excuse their evils, crimes, and sins, by quoting the evils, crimes, and sins committed by those of old, which sins, evils, and crimes are condemned by the word and law of God. There were perhaps one hundred and fifty of them at their conference.

The man is here now to take our letters in a boat to Papeete, so we stop. Peace be with you all in Israel. JOSEPH F. BURTON.

MILTON, Fla., June 14.

Editors Herald:—In Herald of June 8 I see a letter from Sr. Annie Needham, wherein she relates a dream. As I read her letter the interpretation came to me. When I read her request to interpret it the Spirit seemed to say to me, "Write and give the interpretation."

I believe it was given as a warning to the church, as it refers to the resurrection of the dead; and that it means just this: that as in the dream the saints did not all arise, you asked the reason, the answer was "None but the just come up in this resurrection;" even so it will be in the first resurrection, when Christ comes; not all those whose names are on the church records will be accounted meet for the first resurrection, but only those who have tried to keep the whole law. There is plenty of scripture to prove this.

Saints should be exceedingly careful, as Satan is ever seeking a chance to lead us astray.

My experience is that he tries hardest to drag down the Latter Day Saints, as he has troubled me more since I joined this church than ever before.

The signs of the times show plainly that the time is near when God will execute vengeance on the earth, and it is my prayer that the saints may all be found keeping the faith and not be punished for neglect of duty. Sometimes I see saints in the light, frivolous, and wicked pleasures of the world. I can hear of some being at the dance; of others using intoxicating liquors and tobacco, and seeking all that this world can give in the way of pleasure; while I seldom, if ever, see them at the prayer meeting or the Sunday school. Some indulge in the habits of lying, backbiting, and quarreling, and sometimes fighting. To these the warning is given that unless they repent they shall be lost. To all such I would say, What did you join the church for? If you were not going to give up worldly lusts, why did you not stay in the world, and not be a hypocrite, and bring reproach on the church of the living God? These same members are very angry if they hear the church accused of wickedness, yet they are the very ones who have caused such things to be said, or have given the world reason to think them by their unchristian conduct. Do you not know that God has intrusted to us the work of making the name of Latter Day Saint honorable among men and his church a thing of beauty?

I am not an angel myself and I know that the best of us cannot be perfect; yet if we only try faithfully to keep his commandments, God will reward us, while there is no reward promised to those who will not try. Anyone is liable to be tempted and get wrong sometimes, but if you try to keep the law you will not go far astray, and God will forgive you and help you if you humble yourself and ask him. And if we try to remedy our own faults we will not have time to talk about others and find fault.

We have a new denomination in this section of our country familiarly known as the United Freewill Baptists; but nothing is as good as our faith. Such systems as this do not injure us; they only cause people to see the difference between our church and all the others, and that is what I like as I have heard people say, "O your church is just like all the rest." I am glad when they see that it is not like the rest, and the honest in heart will be gathered in.

I see our people are talking of "coöperation" a great deal. I would like to see the time when Zion is built up and the pure in heart will be gathered there. That is what I understand by coöperation; and while I have no worldly goods to contribute, yet my sympathies are with you, and if I can help in any way I will gladly do so.

It is my desire to do all I can for the church; but I can never do half as much as it has done for me. I ask an interest in the prayers of all that I may have strength to endure to the end and that we may all have part in the first resurrection.

Your sister,

EMMA BAILEY.

ALBION, Idaho, June 16.

Editors Herald:—Yes, you are, or should be a herald of good news to the saints. When I think how constant you have been, since first I formed your acquaintance, I feel deeply pained that I have not the same sweet remembrance of my constancy in "moving forward." However, there will always come a time in a soldier's life when he will take a pleasure in the call, "forward," if he catches the inspiration of the music. The vital energy of the gospel wakes up every energy of the soul, when the bright "dayspring from on high" sends its radiance of heavenly light athwart our pathways if we truly obey from the heart the celestial call, of that low, sweet voice of love which bade the troubled wind and waves, "Peace, be still." How very much indeed does the yearning, hungering soul long to catch the cadence of the music of that same sweet voice, that it too may rest in peace in that bosom of love. The "oil of gladness" which the soul so much craves, yet the source of its outflow seems to the carnal mind so hard to reach; a straight and narrow way indeed, yet so bright, cheerful, and so set with flowers of paradise, if we can set our affections on everything we see, to right or left, as we tread this precious way holding timidly to the "iron rod." Sweet indeed is the fruit of the "tree of life."

What a sorrowful time some Christians seem to have ere they reach the first plateau, where they can get a nice glimpse out of the wilderness. Why are so many of Zion's children so dull of apprehension or understanding? Why so loth to set our affections on heavenly things that the Lord may reflect heavenly light, and the fragrance from Eden's garden fill the senses? Truly, the garden was put eastward in Eden; divine wisdom is quickly seen in all the plan, as well as the pathway to the tree of life. But the trouble is all with man. He is forever looking backward; he sees no beauty ahead, nor about him, for his mind and reveries are absorbed in what is in the rear; no special interest in what is ahead. What if he should forget himself in the interest in what lies ahead, take a pleasure in expectation, in anticipation of what will be unfolded to his vision when he reaches yonder tableland. Wonders are to be seen on every hand. The pathway gets brighter, grows wider, grandeur and beauties before undreamed of are everywhere. Heaven's panorama gleams above the eastern hills; by and by the golden gates of the paradise of the soul, prepared for the prodigal's return, by a thoughtful Father's care. Says the prodigal, This is where I used to dwell; I remember it now so well; I was an immature child when I left this blissful home. Then he turns about, and with a smile and salute, Farewell old wilderness, I stay at home forever more!

Well this is a very sweet reverie, but I have for some days felt impressed to write a precious vision, so kindly granted me in answer to the earnest yearning of my soul. It will, I trust, encourage others to stop dreaming so much of earthly baubles. It is said "Angel's visits are few and far between;" but I am now fully satisfied it is our fault; that we shall receive as soon as we are willing to say from the heart, Thy will, O Lord, shall be my pleasure; and say, My Savior, thy will first, last, and always; I sanctify thee in my heart. Those who obey this "gospel of the kingdom," can get very close to that bosom of love, which soothes with heavenly sweetness, and fills the hungry soul.

In 1884 I was ordained an elder, and since then I have felt with all the certainty of conviction the responsibility I accepted; but there seemed Alps in the way. As one after another of my excuses were dissipated, and obstacle after another faded away, I finally concluded I could not play Jonah any longer, so I said, By thy grace, dear Lord, I will accept the task assigned me twenty-eight years ago at the water's side by prophecy. I have just this to say, before all men, I simply want to fall short in nothing, to please the Lord, who has been so forbearing.

On the 24th of April, as I was visiting from house to house in this valley, I prayed that the Lord would reveal himself more clearly to me. On the morning of the 25th, while I lay in bed thinking of the wonders which were thrilling my being, of what was to come forth among the people, for the upbuilding of Zion's cause, whether fully awake or not, I am not able to say. Apparently I was as much awake as ever when absorbed in deep thought, when all at once I became conscious I was resting on my elbows, looking slightly upward, at the right hand of the Lord, extended just beyond my reach as I was reclining. My first and only impression and which remained, while the hand remained was, The Lord's hand in welcome. I looked at it fondly, without a doubt as to the identity of the hand; so fair, so beautiful, with a part of the wrist exposed, above which it faded to a sunbeam of light, brighter than normal daylight, but resembling sunlight in a room (a sunbeam). After watching the hand and thinking over the welcome, I looked down wrapt in thought, then looking up again it was still there; I then watched it with the same thought as at first. The next sensation I felt was that I was resting so sweetly in the Savior's love, and lying so easy on the bed. I was not a stranger to this sensation, for at times for years I had experienced it, but not so fully.

Often since then I have been wrapt up in the same heavenly fervor, by just calling on the name of the Lord, even while walking along, thinking of the heavenly past. I had often thought over the saying, "Whether in the body, or out of the body," etc. Here was an actual demonstration to me, in which at the time I felt as wide-awake as it were possible to be; yet I did not have the consciousness of rising to the attitude I occupied or of resuming the normal in bed. The room seemed light as day, and when I felt conscious it was time to arise; yet I almost feared to get up lest I lose the embrace of my Savior's love.

Now, dear saints, especially the ministry, this I say, as a coworker with you and the Master for Zion's weal, by authority of the Comforter, we were intended and should be living object lessons, in all true fidelity and godly zeal. Clothed with humility, full of love, with but one aim in life, to push the work of the Master along the whole front, overcoming evil with good. Uphold one another with the church; pleading earnestly before the Lord that he "come and rain righteousness upon us"—among the gentiles, as a dew from the Lord.

One of the tardy ones, but a lover of Zion's cause,
CHAS. ALBERTSON.

NEW CANTON, Ill., July 5.

Editors Herald:—Perhaps some are wondering what has become of the missionary force of this district again, as the question is often asked us, "Why don't you write the Herald so we can keep track of you?"

Since the Keb conference we have been very busy looking after the work in Mt. Pleasant, Burlington, Fort Madison, Montrose, Pittsfield, Nebo, and New Canton. While we have been very busy, we have done but little preaching, owing to other work falling to our lot as district president. Surely Satan and his imps are busy this year. It has been our painful duty to appoint two elders' courts thus far and more to follow; but the work must be protected against all imposition.

Bro. E. A. Smith has been our traveling companion thus far, and is taking hold of the missionary work alright, and if he will continue faithful will make a good worker as well as reasoner. It would be better if he was with some one that had more opportunity for preaching and less district work. I greatly feel the need of more opportunity in this line to develop as a speaker. It seems that my lot has been from the first to act as sort of a scavenger and look after those unpleasant things.

Bro. Snively is with us here, where we have held over Sunday last. Yesterday we celebrated the nation's holiday fishing. Wednesday eve will close our meetings, and owing to the busy times, sickness, and sickly climate, we go north to Keokuk and Carthage. While here we have all three been nearly down sick, and to-day the writer experienced a genuine case of chills and fever. This whole country has been so extremely wet all spring that crops are almost a failure, and it is now turning off so hot and dry it is very unhealthy.

While at Nebo we organized a branch with the following officers: W. A. Guthrie presiding elder, Timothy P. Johnson teacher, Marion L. Johnson deacon. A splendid spirit attended and we have reason to believe that if all will put forth a reasonable effort the work will prosper there. Bro. J. S. Snively held a series of meetings at Pittsfield, and did all in his power to revive the work, but all to no avail. With the exceptions of one or two nights hardly enough saints and outsiders came out to hold meetings. It seemed too bad too, when we take into consideration the good branch we once had there and the nice church building we now have. Owing to the surrounding conditions and the needed repairs on the church building that must be made in the near future or lose all, we think the best the Bishopric can do is to sell the house to the highest bidder.

We can sympathize with Sr. Carroll, and a very few others, who are willing to do all they can for the work and to warn their neighbors; but it seems the town people are past redemption. This seems to be the hardest year we ever experienced to get the people interested in the gospel. Their whole interest and attention is in the "war."

If any of the saints desire preaching in their neighborhood please notify us and we will do all we can for you. Write to our home address, Lamoni, Iowa.

Your brother in bonds,

F. M. WELD.

NEW HOPE, Va., July 1.

Editors Herald:—Since leaving Goose Creek I have made the following record: I arrived at Cabin Run on June 3 and preached twice at the house of Bro. C. G. Ruley. From there I went to Leeson's Run, on Sunday, where Bro. Chas. Ruley had made appointments; and then on to the Taylor Church, on White Oak, to meet appointments in a kind of "sermon-about" arrangement with Rev. Taylor, with whom Bro. D. L. Shinn once had a discussion. I awaited the coming of the brother and the congregation, but although written notices had been posted, but two persons came; one a Bro. Ralph Givens, the other his brother. So I made the following entry in my diary and went home with Bro. Ralph to his mother's about five miles, and preached there on Thursday night: "June 6, 1898. Went to Taylor Church, about seven miles, to meet Rev. Taylor in a sort of 'sermon-about' arrangement. Arrived at the residence of Mr. George Pritchard and his son-in-law, who together with the family, treated me nicely, gave me my supper and the keys to the church. Nobody came to hear and I wrote a note and left it on the stand with the keys and said, 'Good Bye.'"

I then arranged meetings for Leeson's Run Sunday forenoon and afternoon. Bro. D. L. Shinn put in his appearance on Saturday, and I had the pleasure of again hearing that giant debater and most excellent preacher, from Matthew 24: 14.

From there I came to Bro. Isaac Coffman's, arriving June 16, and there being a dedication service on Sunday by the Dunkards, it was decided to take it in and make announcements for grove meetings on Sundays. I attended both forenoon and afternoon. The dedicatory sermon by Elder Early was a very good effort in the main, he taking Solomon's temple as an example and pattern; and as it was to be "called of all nations a house of prayer," the speaker said it must be for all nations to come and worship the God of heaven in—of every color and every language, etc." I began to think there might be a chance for my poor persecuted brethren here to come to this "house of prayer" and worship according to the dictates of their consciences and the teaching of their Bible; but imagine my chagrin when, after the evening service, the bishop arose and stated that "This building is dedicated to the exclusive use of the Brethren [Dunkards]; but we will let others have the use of it on funeral occasions, and that only." Isn't that a paradox?

I held two services on Sunday in the grove, and one at night, in Bro. Isaac Coffman's house, and had two Utah elders in attendance at the last two; and they stayed all night here and we had quite a talk on our differences. They said they were not allowed to hold public discussion with us or others; they believed the doctrine of polygamy to be a holy principle, and would prove it to me. But after some little talk they said they would go after their books and come back and spend the day with us. They told me they had fifty missionaries in this State, and expected enough more to have two in each county. I expect to give some attention to their work, as they are making quite an opening in some places, and have fourteen members in Staunton; so they tell me. I told them, I expected to throw a few "bombs" into their fortifications, and as I am almost alone in the missionary field here, certainly fifty of them ought to be able to make good their defense. They only smiled and said they could not hold public discussions without consent from headquarters.

I just received a letter from Dr. P. P. Stark, of Richmond, Virginia, which I inclose herewith. It will show where I will likely labor for some time in the near future. I have just received the tract he refers to, and believe that with a few corrections, it will serve a good mission, and hope it may accomplish every expectation of the author.

July 3. Have just closed my three services for the day. Oh, so hot! mercury 110. Not very many in attendance, but good attention.

Yours truly,

JEROME L. GOODRICH.

RICHMOND, Va., June 28.

Mr. J. L. Goodrich, New Hope, Virginia.

Dear Brother:—Your postal was duly received, and I am very glad that you will be able to give some of your time to the work in this city and the country adjoining. I will endeavor to secure a hall here in which you will be enabled to hold services, and assist you in the work. My own time, since uniting with the church, has been devoted more towards preparing a suitable series of tracts for the work, than actual preaching; but as the work is nearly completed in that direction, I hope to have it as a helpmeet in my subsequent labors in the cause.

The little book will probably be completed within the next ten days and ready for distribution; but it is sufficiently near completion for me to send you an advanced proof sheet, with errors marked, which will be corrected before being issued to the public, and will give you an idea of the direction of my labors in preparing a suitable exposition of the cause for distribution in these parts.

I both hope and pray that it shall be for the good of the gospel work in behalf of the people in this city and State.

As soon as I can make arrangements for the hall I will write again, which may be within the next few days.

Yours in the gospel work,

P. P. STARK.

SOUTH YARMOUTH, Mass., July 8.

Editors Herald:—I wrote you in May from Fiskville, Rhode Island, where I was holding services in the saints' chapel. Bad weather and other causes prevented many from coming out, but I trust some little good was done. This is a day of sacrifice, and there are two classes of people in the world and sometimes in the church: one class is willing to sacrifice, and the other is willing that they should.

On May 21 I went to Dennisport, on Cape Cod, and began a series of meetings in the church there. On Monday evening I was made glad by seeing Bro. Richard Bullard, who had come from Boston to tell the gospel story. We continued meetings through the week and on Sunday the writer baptized two. We continued meetings the next week. Bro. Bullard spent a few days at East Dennis, preaching to the saints and friends there, while the writer remained at Dennisport. On Tuesday, June 7, I went to South Orleans, Bro. Bullard having returned to Boston. Bro. Dean Linnell kindly looked after my temporal welfare while there. I held a few cottage meetings, but the interest was not sufficient to warrant a long continuation of them; however, I am satisfied good was done. There are a few saints at South Orleans that joined the church some twenty or thirty years ago, but for years they have had no preaching and apparently have been forgotten. In fact I have been in the district some fourteen years and never knew of their existence until two or three years ago, when I came across them by chance. It is one of the strange things in our methods of propaganda that we spend so much time and money to convert people, and then leave them to die a spiritual death, because we have no one to "feed my sheep." The cry is "open new places," and when they are "opened" and the people converted, what then? Why open more, and when those first opened ask for bread they are given a stone. Where does the fault lie? Principally with the people. As a church we do not pay for the support of the church one half, no, perhaps not one third as much as members of other churches, and at the same time demand more of our ministry than any other church in the world. We pray God to send more laborers into the harvest field, and then hold on to our pockets with such a tight grip that those already in the field may have to leave, because they do not want to be counted "worse than an infidel."

While at Orleans the Methodist pastor, Rev. Mr. Thompson, invited me to preach for him and treated me with every consideration possible. It is certainly a pleasure to meet with such liberal-hearted men, and to feel that freedom of speech and spirit in complying with the invitation thus extended.

After preaching at the Methodist church in Orleans Bro. Lennell and the writer mounted our two-wheeled chariots and glided—no, that is not the word,—sizzled through the sun, or under the sun, to Dennisport, where the writer preached at night. A day and a night at East Dennis—back again to the "Port," the Wednesday night meeting very spiritual. After service the writer and a number of the saints were invited to Sr. Etta Thompson's where a number had already assembled and in a few minutes Mr. John Thompson said that they had a little present to present to me, and thereupon brought in the present. Mr. Martin Thompson made a neat little speech and the writer responded as best he could. What was it? Oh! a new bicycle! "Martie" Thompson, a young merchant of Dennisport, made up his mind that I ought to have a new wheel, and the above was the result. I certainly appreciate the kindness of my many friends and trust that the gospel wheel may do its part towards spreading the truth.

At the present writing Bro. Bullard and the writer are at South Yarmouth in the tent, preaching to good audiences, and trust that a permanent opening may be made.

With confidence in God, and in Cape Cod, I am,

Your brother,

GEO. W. ROBLEY.

TORONTO, Ont., July 9.

Editors Herald:—It is a pleasure on my part to contribute a few lines relative to church work in these parts. Success is reported all along the line, though nothing remarkable. We are contented to grow gradually, so as to be sound and healthy as a people.

As yet the labors of the missionaries are confined to Western Ontario, very little ever having been done in other parts. We would gladly spread out were we in a position to do so. As it is, we have plenty to do, but hope to see our force increased and given more power and greater opportunities; then we shall hope to do more and make Canada one of the choicest missions.

The district conference, convening with Vanessa branch, proved a blessing to all attending, the Spirit manifesting itself in several ways. Brn. Seaton and Dickhout were ordained elders, while Elder McGregor and myself were ordained seventies according to resolution of General Conference, the Spirit of the Master being enjoyed in the ordinations. The business sessions were pleasant and edifying, and on the whole it was a good conference.

Provision was made for two-days' open-air meeting at Kinglake, July 2 and 3, mission president in charge, which was also a success. Five sermons were preached and well received. Good was unmistakably done. Three were baptized, while others manifested their willingness to soon follow in obedience.

During the afternoon service on Sunday a big windstorm suddenly arose and raged fiercely on all sides, but Providence specially favored the spot where we were gathered together. The sand was thrown up into the air and trees bent nearly to the ground, but where we stood there was little more than the ordinary rustle of the leaves. A couple of hymns were sung, after which Elder Evans resumed his discourse and all was quiet again. Thanks be to the Master for his kindly notice. Success to all.

Your brother in bonds,

FREDERICK GREGORY.

UNDERWOOD, Iowa, July 5.

Editors Herald:—I left home for my field of labor May 21; came to Crescent, where I preached a few times with good interest. The saints were very kind, for which I thank them. Left there May 28 to attend the Pottawattamie district conference at Parish schoolhouse. There I met a number of the ministry—I. M. Smith, Henry Kemp, G. H. Hilliard, H. N. Hansen, and others, and got acquainted with a number of the saints. Went from there to Underwood; visited with the saints there, then back to Crescent where I have labored more or less since.

On June 26 I baptized a noble young man, of whom I am proud. July 3 I again entered the water and baptized six more into the Church of Christ; so the good work goes on. Bro. P. M. Hansen and I will commence meetings at the Downsville schoolhouse this evening, July 5. Will continue over Sunday.

If any in the Pottawattamie district are wanting preaching in their localities, please write me at Magnolia, or Crescent, Iowa, and we will try and accommodate them. Praying for the welfare of Zion,

Your brother in Christ,

D. R. CHAMBERS.

REED CITY, Mich., July 9.

Editors Herald:—Just a few lines to inform you that almost everything is moving on nicely in Michigan. The ministry in this district are alive to the interests of the work, and the local officers (most of them) are also doing what they can to aid, and the gospel is spreading. Eleven were baptized at Coleman during our late conference, in the font. Several had been baptized previous to those eleven named, and we expect many will follow after.

Brn. J. A. Grant, J. A. Carpenter, and J. R. Beckley are busy. Bro. G. D. Washburn is at present assisting us in the tent. He is alive to the work, and intends after this summer to spend the most of his time in the ministry. Our numbers are increasing, and our work is widening. I expect to be with the brethren in the tent at Cadillac over Sunday and for a few days, then on up to Boyne City for a week, and help with a two-days' meeting the 16th and 17th; then on up to the upper peninsula of Michigan to open up in new places, etc.

The weather is very dry here, but we have fair wheat, and fruits look fair, but will be inferior to other years unless we get rain soon. Still we have faith and hope. May the kind Master bless us all.

Working for the advancement of the latter-day gospel, I am still in the faith,

J. J. CORNISH.

FENTRESS, I. T., June 26.

Editors Herald:—A few words to many saints in regard to coming to the Indian Territory. I have been advising many of them to move to Indian Territory, but I understand all those leases are to be done away with. If this be the case, there will not be so good a chance for them to have homes here; and I will say to all who are making preparations to come here to lease land, Just wait a short time until I find out about the lease law.

This is a fine country; there is plenty of timber, plenty of prairie, water, land, and grass. The soil is very productive; the principal crops are corn, oats, wheat, and cotton; but the farmers go heaviest on corn and cotton. There are good chances for people to rent and make good livings, aside from the leasing business; and I will say that all that will come can do well, if they will put forth an effort.

I would like to have as many as will come down and look at the country this summer, and see the chances for making a good living.

Your brother,

J. N. PERKINS.

MICHIGAN SENATE, July 12.

Editors Herald:—Under the caption "College Aid" in Herald of July 9, there is an urgent appeal to the saints and friends of education for the gift of a small amount, from each one, to aid in raising a sum sufficient to remove the indebtedness now retarding the good work of "Graceland College." As a member of the Bishopric, I wish to add my hearty endorsement to the appeal made. This is a work of progress and lasting influence upon the church, and we hope that this request will strike a sympathetic chord in the heart of each of the thousands of saints and friends of "Graceland College" wherever they may be. The amounts asked for are small, but remember that it is the aggregate of these small amounts that will remove the cloud from the college and put that institution in a position where it can and will bring honor to the church, and the grateful thanks of thousands of children who are striving for an education surrounded by influences which are pure and moral. Do not delay, but get your money ready now.

In bonds,

E. A. BLAKESLEE.

MARION, Kansas, July 13.

Editors Herald:—While at Hutchinson, Kansas, last Monday I met two elders representing the church in the valleys of the mountains. I began making inquiries about their church, whether they thought it was of God. "Sure," they said; they had a testimony direct that it was so. I asked them how that could possibly be, seeing they once taught and practiced polygamy. They at once began to excuse themselves because of the court historian in David's time saying God gave David Saul's wives, and that David's acts were justified except in the case of Uriah the Hittite. I asked if they justified their teachings and practices because of the record of David and Solomon. "Oh yes; the Bible says so."

I asked what books they had for sale; they offered me a very cheap Voice of Warning at fifteen cents. I bought one; asked if they had anything more. "Yes, the Book of Mormon." I asked to see it, and when I turned to the place where a fallen, rebellious people tried to justify polygamy because of the things that were written concerning David, I could see the elders' faces harden. When I turned over another page approving of the Lamanites actions, for they had not forgotten the commandments of the Lord, that one man should have only one wife—as I tried to hammer this thought into their heads, I could feel it rebounding back, rejected, and I opened out on them, told them they were worse than a sectarian; for when you show a sectarian a matter as plain as that, he acknowledges it. I said, "Don't shut up your mind like a clam shell against your own evidence; acknowledge it like men."

I then attacked them on Brigham's taking out of the Covenants the marriage ceremony; proved it to them; crammed it down them, that a man who makes a covenant and deliberately breaks it, as did every man who was married under the Joseph Smith marriage ceremony, and afterward entered polygamy, was unworthy of respect; and as John commanded us to try the spirits, their testimony of receiving God's Spirit would not go far with me.

By this time I had a large crowd of listeners. I asked to preach for them, and did; but in the sermon I only represented the latter-day work, its restoration, and the divine mission of Joseph Smith. Several came to me afterward greatly interested. I told the young men that the prophet's lineage was not in Utah, and that where it was there was the church.

J. A. ROBINSON.

Original Articles.

PRAYER.

WE read in the sacred word that Christ, the author of the Christian faith, not only prayed to the Father in heaven, but that he taught his followers to do so, and whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask anything in my name I will do it.—John 14:13, 14.

Universalists teach that prayer does not more affect the Almighty but that its effects are had directly on him that offers prayer. Now the Scriptures tell us in the second book of Kings that one who was righteous before the Lord was sick unto death, and that the Lord sent his servant Isaiah to tell him to prepare for he was called to die; it is further stated that on receiving this sentence he prayed asking that his days might be lengthened, and as it is written the prayers of the righteous availeth much, so it proved in this instance, for it moved the Lord to extend his life fifteen years.

A little child wanders from its home, and exposed to dangers has lost its way; the father sees it with its little hands outstretched toward him appealingly. Can that parent resist its mute appeal? and will he not hasten toward it and move it to a place of safety? If compassion for our helpless little ones moves us to deeds of mercy, how much more will our God be moved upon when a struggling soul reaches out to its heavenly parent for strength to overcome the power of the enemy.

God hears and pities all our cries,
He knoweth all our wants,
And what we blindly ask of him,
His love withholds or grants.

Prayer is the mightiest of levers in the hands of the Christian for removing difficulties. Prayer keeps the Christian's armor bright. Our great Exemplar commanded his disciples to pray for their brethren that their faith fail not. The Moslem arises from his slumbers to pray to Allah, saying it is better to pray than sleep. When blessings crown our pathway and brighten our prospects here, the source from which they proceed demands a return for those marks of his favor, our gratitude and affection is required.

Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

In the weakness of our humanity we sometimes lose sight of the hand that gave this, and our hearts become set upon earthly things; we withhold that which the Lord requires. The things of this world get between us and the giver, and in this way we become separated from him. When this obtains there is but one way to get back, by which to obtain the divine favor, and that is through prayer and humility.

It is written in the sacred word, that one who feared God prayed for three full weeks, during which time he ate no pleasant bread, and in the meantime a celestial being appeared to him bearing a message from Jehovah. It would seem that prayer moved God to send this messenger from the courts of heaven for the language of the angel proves it:—

Fear not, Daniel: for from the first day that thou didst set thy heart to understand, . . . thy words were heard, and I am come for thy words.

It has been affirmed that in process of time, when the power of the adversary would increase, "if the saints did not keep pace with the developments of that power they would be overcome." Since the Lord set his hand to hasten his work, we can see the fulfillment of that prediction in the increase of crime in the world; can see and feel the influence of the rising power of the adversary in our own experiences, that a greater degree of watchfulness and prayerfulness is required to meet the demand as the power of the enemy looms up around us. Who, then, in and of himself, can withstand it? Our only refuge then is in the power of Jehovah. Let us then do as the apostle said, pray without ceasing, that we may receive that degree of the presence, power of the Spirit that will conduct us in safety through the trials, perils, and whatever else lie before us, and qualify us to share in the joys of the redeemed.

E. B. F.

IMPORTANT BRIEFS.

DURING the last few years a great deal of matter has been contributed to our leading papers on Discipleism, by various members of the priesthood. This unselfish disposition on the part of the brethren to give others of their fellow ministers the benefit of their researches, of that which they have found useful to themselves, is admirable beyond question. But after all that has been written on this subject, the usefulness of which I do not meditate to call in question, I am of the opinion that there still remains an important vacancy to be filled—if it is possible to fill it.

That which has been published in the past consists largely in Disciple denunciations of all other churches, the exclusiveness of their claim to be the true church, and their claim to be "restorers." This with other matter which might come under minor headings, if the classification were to be extended, is very valuable indeed; but where are the quotations from encyclopedias, histories, and different reference books wherein Disciples are misrepresented or denounced? It is well known to our people that we are misrepresented in many old volumes which were standard works at one time, and Disciples are the very ones to use them against us when it suits their purpose.

Now, how handy it would be if we could show that the same or similar works, which they use against us, are against them also. I do not know, but from the fact that those people were very unpopular during the incipient stages of their existence, I am led to believe that if some old standard or reference books were to be examined there would be found in them considerable of the nature indicated. The old Encyclopedia Britannica misstates facts in reference to us. What does it say about them? Past editions of the American Encyclopedias have treated us unfairly. What has it said about Discipleism? These with numerous other reference books of various kinds might be examined with good results by some of our brethren having access to them. Brethren in large cities like Chicago, St. Louis, New York, etc., where there are immense public libraries containing all such books, might avail themselves of this splendid opportunity. If successful it would add a very large proportion to the supply already furnished, as a means to meet and refute the representatives of this fallible and humanly invented society. When examined in the light of such facts, Discipleism falls like a punctured balloon.

Of course it is true that some modern standard works have modified their attitude toward us, to a reasonable extent; but if we can prove that the same books, or the same class of books, used against us, are against them, it is far more sweeping and effectual.

There appears in our church papers from time to time many important extracts from books and other papers; some of them are very useful, and are clipped or copied by the writer for reference. The value of some, however, is greatly reduced by a failure on the part of the contributor to give the name and date of the publications from which they were taken. A mere statement of the facts in some cases is not enough. If I read in the Herald of Talmage, or any of the popular ministers acknowledging the corruptness of their creeds, I want more than the authority of the Herald or one of our elders, in order to use it publicly. A few instances of this kind induces me to call attention to it. In so doing I trust I may not be understood as aspiring to do that which more properly belongs to some one else.

What about the Spanish-American war? What, when, and where will the end be? These are questions which are bothering the world's greatest diplomats. The object for which the war was inaugurated may be farther off than many imagine. It has now been in progress for several weeks, and the Spaniards are not driven out of Cuba yet. Who knows but what some of the great European powers may be involved before it is over? If they should, I believe it would fulfill a prophecy I heard not two years ago. It is evident that the hand of Providence is working among the nations in bringing about his great purposes. I believe it is well for us to pray to God to intervene in these great international difficulties, that they may be regulated or adjusted in such a manner as shall be in harmony with the prosperity of his work. All things are indeed in commotion. The saints, I believe, are the most peaceful and contented of all people, as they see the links one by one forming in the great chain of events bringing them nearer to the great, grand, final climax of all things.

Canadian newspapers and Canadian statesmen are in sympathy with the United States, and of the Anglo-American alliance talked of, they speak very approvingly. We are glad to see the friendly relations being cultivated between Great Britain, her dependencies, and the United States. There is no doubt that the stories of Spanish horrors in Cuba, as given in American papers, did not lose anything in those journals; but viewing things from an impartial standpoint, as we Canadian saints may, it appears very plausible that the grounds were sufficient to warrant a warlike action on the part of the States.

ALVIN KNISLEY.

SELKIRK, Ontario, May 26, 1898.

Sunday School Associations.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

Eastern Iowa convention will meet with Green Valley branch, seven miles from Onslow, July 30, continuing over Sunday. All saints interested in Sunday school work are earnestly requested to attend. Any coming by train please send word to O. E. Green, Onslow, Iowa. No trains will be met at Onslow unless word is received. This is our first convention separate from district conference, so all come and bring the spirit of love with you. Bring along your Winnowed Songs and Hymnals. Come early and stay all through.

ELLA J. GREEN, Supt.

Miscellaneous Department.

WILLIAMS-BAYS DEBATE.—NO. 10.

May 18.—ELDER WILLIAMS' SECOND SPEECH.

Elder Bays has misrepresented the Book of Mormon. He says the book says they went northward. It says "they went down into the valley which was northward." The valley was northward, not that they went north.

He defied me a while ago to find which direction they went from the tower of Babel. Now he says he has found it. Let him have time and he will prove the proposition. The history says they went into the valley of Nimrod, and from thence the Lord led them to a land where never man had been, which I have shown must have been west, as they came to Babylon from the east.

He referred to how the word "croud" was spelled. It is spelled right in this edition I have. A man is poor off for argument to use anything like that.

He said he had quoted scripture to prove his position: I have shown how ridiculous his application of scripture is. He said Hazor was carried down into Assyria into captivity. I insisted they went to America. He will have to prove his explanation. I have read passages from the Bible to prove my contention.

He said I must prove they came to Australia in order to prove they came to America. What logic!

He says that Book of Mormon is somewhat accountable for polygamy by saying if there had been no present revelation there would have been no Book of Mormon—no Book of Mormon, no Mormonism; and no Mormonism, no polygamy. I read from a letter that should be taken as good authority, as it was written by D. H. Bays. That letter says that the moral precepts and ethical teachings of the Book of Mormon are good. How could that which is good lead to such an evil?

The Book of Mormon claims that the second colony was led by a man who had four sons.

Montesinos says of the Peruvian civilization: "It was originated . . . by a people led by four brothers, who settled in the valley of Cuzco. . . . The youngest of these brothers assumed supreme authority, and became the first of a long line of sovereigns."—Ancient America, p. 264.

The Book of Mormon claims that the people who came here were white people. This claim is sustained by archæology.

Baldwin says: "The tradition of the native Mexicans and Central Americans described the first civilizers as 'bearded white men,' who 'came from the east in ships.'"—Ancient America, p. 173.

Bancroft says: "There are numerous vague traditions of settlements or nations of white men, who lived apart from the other people of the country, and were possessed of advanced civilization."—Native Races, vol. 5, page 24.

Josiah Priest says: ". . . traits of white nations in Georgia and Kentucky before Columbus' time and the traditions of the Indians respecting them."—American Antiquities, edition of 1838, p. 390.

Ignatius Donnelly says of the Peruvians: "The native traditions said this city was built by bearded white men, who came there long before the time of the Incas, and established a settlement."—Atlantis, p. 393.

He turned to Ezekiel, and went to read it, but forgot I had not read it, so he turned and read and commented on Isaiah 29. He did not remember that I had not read that.

Ezekiel 37: 15-20 I now read. The stick of Judah is the Bible, and yet there was to be another stick. Two separate writings: A history of Judah and his companions, and a history of Joseph and his companions. Where do you find the writings of the stick of Joseph? Joseph did not write after this word found in the Bible. Here are writings to be combined. Bays says they were then in Babylon, all the children of Israel; but Ezekiel says they shall no more be two nations after they are gathered in the day these two records come forth, and there shall be no more idols. Did not Judah defile himself with idols after they were brought out of Babylon? If they did not, the minor prophets made a mistake. The gathering spoken of here was not to be till after the putting together of these two sticks. Psalms 85: 1-13, I read. God will speak peace to his people, Israel; glory shall be in our land, the land of Israel; "righteousness shall look down from heaven"—righteousness is found in the gospel (Rom. 1: 16, 17), and the gospel will be applied to Israel to give them peace. "Truth shall spring out of the earth;" truth is God's word. (John 7: 17.) After this the land of Israel will yield her increase.

I gave Johnson's Encyclopedia and others to show that compasses were in existence in the remote past and used by the Chinese; so that it is not strange if the term south-south-east was used. It does not claim that the words "south-south-east" were used in the Book of Mormon, but in telling the direction they want the idea represented that they went in that direction, and when it was translated into English the term south-south-east was used to express the idea.

I have shown that the horse and camel were here. Bays says he guessed at that, and yet he was so ignorant he could not spell characters, but spelled it "caractors."

Bays says they came here upon glaciers. Winchell's testimony is not in harmony with Bays. Of course we can't go back on Elder Bays.

Archæology claims that the center of civilization was in Central America, just where the Book of Mormon said the Jaradites landed.

Bays makes report of Jared's boats having a hole in the top and a hole in the bottom, but I present to you the following from Chamber's Encyclopedia, representing a life boat of the present day. (Drawing of boat was presented here.)

This is a cross section of a lifeboat, as found represented in Chambers' Encyclopedia, vol. 5, p. 116, revised edition published by Collier, New York, 1893. The deck B is always above the water. D represents the ballast or cork, E a weight so that when the boat tips upon its side it will right itself, and G represents six inch holes running from top to bottom, and in this boat there are six holes in the top and six in the bottom. These are for the purpose of relieving the boat of any water should a wave dash over her. Now you can see the ignorance of the man when he makes fun of a boat with a hole in the top and a hole in the bottom.

Somebody is floating like a loon now, instead of the boats.

ELDER BAYS' SECOND SPEECH.

I wish you to notice this drawing on the blackboard. Bro. Williams, I am an old sailor. I know all about this. To compare this with Jared's boats is all tomfoolery. It shows he is hard up for argument. I have exploded his boat. It was a small Spanish boat. That's the kind of victory Williams has been talking about, and the kind of victory he will always have.

I refer to Ezekiel 37, and will give you some dates. The two sticks are referred to. In the days of Rehoboam the ten tribes revolted. They went into Samaria, 587 B. C. Now there were two kingdoms. Two tribes remained at Jerusalem under Rehoboam. From this time those divisions were known as the house of Judah and the house of Israel, and were so known all through the wars. The ten tribes represented Joseph, and the two tribes Judah. This occurred 970 B. C. and Israel was carried into Babylon 587 B. C. This was the exact condition at the time of this prophecy. I proved that Hazor went into captivity in Assyria, and there were sixty-eight years between the captivities. (The reader will notice that Elder Bays got confused and mixed in his dates.—J. F. M.) There were two separate captivities, one into Assyria, the other into Babylon. Ezekiel was one of the captives in Babylon when prophesying. He says, "Take thee one stick," and tells what to write upon it: "for Judah and his companions;" then "take another stick," and write upon it for Joseph and his companions. Williams says the stick of Judah is the Bible and the Book of Mormon is the stick of Joseph. God is going to put these two together, then Israel is to be gathered. I will show you differently, and use God's word to do it. I know you'll take that. The prophet says, Show us what thou meanest by these. We'll see whether he says anything about the Book of Mormon or the Bible either.

Put them with Judah; that is, put Joseph with Judah, who was then in captivity and going into captivity. Then God would bring them back into their own land—in Israel, not America. The two sticks represented Ephraim and Judah. I am sure you can see that as clear as you see that light.

I will notice Isaiah 29. It was fulfilled over there, on the eastern continent. This chapter is staple in his theology. Kelley says Ariel is Jerusalem. No one will question that. The woe is coming upon her. We will read it Jerusalem instead of Ariel. It will be unto me as Ariel. Can't compare Ariel with Ariel. They go back to Isaiah 18: 1 for the antecedent of "it" and say it means the land shadowing with wings, or America. This is Mormon theology. Joseph's translation of the Bible destroys this theory, hence he can't introduce this fine theory, for the Inspired Translation says Jerusalem.

He says Psalms 85: 11 says "Truth shall spring out of the earth" or ground. He had reference to Isaiah 29: 4 where they were to "speak out of the ground."

If the Latter Day Saints are right we are radically wrong. I will show that they are irretrievably wrong. I have shown the woe was against Jerusalem. Read Isaiah 29: 4-11. Israel first suffered the Assyrian captivity, then the Babylonian captivity, and they became as a dream of a night vision. That is what became of all the nations that fought against Mount Zion. Has that prophecy been fulfilled here or elsewhere? If elsewhere, their theory falls to the ground. I read 2 Kings 1-8, 11-21, and show conclusively the Assyrian captivity. Jeremiah writes one hundred and twenty-four years after Isaiah prophesies. Jeremiah prophesies that Judah was carried away out of the land. Jeremiah 52: 4-7. I show seven events in the history of Jerusalem that are like seven of the nine events spoken of in Isaiah 29. (See Jer. 52: 12-14.) This shows a complete fulfillment of the prophecy. If this is right, then their fine theory vanishes like mist before the sun. I defy him to bring one single Bible proof that this prophecy applies to America. Not a history of the people of America. Book of Mormon does not claim to be a history of the two peoples claimed by these men.

May 21.—ELDER WILLIAMS' FIRST SPEECH.

I am pleased to renew the argument of previous evenings, and I ask you to follow me closely. Elder Bays in reading the Book of Mormon made fun of its verbiage, especially in the use of the word "thereof" so frequently. Let us read from Ezekiel 43: 11: "And if they be ashamed of all that they have done, show them the form of the house, and the fashion thereof, and the goings out thereof, and the comings in thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the laws thereof: and write it in their sight, that they may keep the whole form thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and do them." He can't find a place in the Book of Mormon equal to this in the use of the word "thereof." Now if the use of the word thereof in the Book of Mormon so frequently affects the claims of it to divinity, will not the above passage affect the Bible similarly? He stated that Joseph Smith was the author of the Book of Mormon. You can't take one page and show the idioms of Joseph Smith throughout the page. Now show this, or your statement remains unproven.

In 1 Nephi 1: 1 it is said that the record that Nephi made was in "the language of my father, which consists of the learning of the Jews, and the language of the Egyptians." This colony came out from Jerusalem about 600 B. C.

In Book of Mormon page 141 states that the records they had with them could be read by those who had "been taught in the language of the Egyptians." On page 500 paragraph 8 we read: "And now behold, we have written this record according to our knowledge in the characters, which are called among us the reformed Egyptian, being handed down and altered by us, according to our manner of speech." This shows plainly that Mormon used in making the abridgement from which the Book of Mormon was translated—"Reformed Egyptian" as "altered and changed." There is no claim that the characters on the plates were Egyptian. It says in the same paragraph that if it had been written in Hebrew there would not have been such imperfections, but he says the Hebrew had been altered also. There was no other people that knew the language in which it would be written, for for that reason God prepared a means of interpretation. (See p. 507.) Mormon used Reformed Egyptian because it was shorter. Had the plates been larger they might have used Hebrew. In Mexico and Central America there are evidences that the ancient inhabitants used a phonetic system of writing. For evidence, Baldwin says: "The ruins show that they had the art of writing, and that, at the south, this art was more developed, more like a phonetic system of writing than that found in use among the Aztecs."—Ancient America, p. 187.

Delafield says: "Their buildings, particularly the sacred houses, were covered with hieroglyphics."—American Antiquities, p. 60. Stephens in vol. 1: 167 corroborates this idea.

On the changes of language, Max Müller, one of the greatest authorities on language, says: "The meaning of words changes imperceptibly and irresistibly. Even where there is a literature, and a printed literature, like that of modern Europe, four or five centuries work such a change that few even of the most learned divines in England would find it easy to read and to understand accurately a theological treatise written in England four hundred years ago. The same happened, and happened to a far greater extent, in ancient languages. Nor was the sacred character, attributed to certain writings, any safeguard."—Chips from a German Workshop, p. 130.

Delafield says: "In tracing, then, the ancestry of the Mexicans and Peruvians, by analogy in their hieroglyphic system, where shall we take them but to Egypt and to Southern Asia?"—Am. Ant. p. 47.

Also; "One of the most interesting sources of comparison between Mexico, Peru, and Egypt, is to be found in an investigation of their hieroglyphic system. Each of these countries had a peculiar method of recording events by means of hieroglyphic signs, sculpturing them on monuments and buildings, and portraying them on papyrus and maguey."—Ibid., p. 42.

"It is the opinion of the author that farther investigations and discoveries in deciphering Mexican hieroglyphic paintings will exhibit a close analogy to the Egyptian in the use of two Scriptural systems: the one for monumental inscription, the other for ordinary purposes of record and transmission of information. We find the three species of hieroglyphics common to Mexico and Egypt."—Ibid., p. 46.

Baron "Humboldt mentions books of hieroglyphical writings found among the Panoes, on the river Ucayali."—Baldwin's An. Am., p. 255.

The Book of Mormon claims they had writings on plates of brass. This will be no doubt a bone of contention. In the writings of Job I find evidence that in ancient times they kept their records on durable substances: "Oh, that my words were now written! oh that they were printed in a book. That they were graven with an iron pen, and lead in the rock forever!"—Job 19: 23, 24.

In Exodus 39: 30 we read: "And they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote upon it a writing, like to the engravings of a signet, Holiness to the Lord."

Hence we see that in Moses' time they wrote upon a plate of gold. In the Apocrypha 1 Maccabees 14: 17-19 we have the following evidence of their writing upon plates of brass: "But when they heard that Simon his brother was made high priest in his place, and was possessed of all the country, and the cities therein: they wrote to him in tables of brass, to renew the friendship and alliance which they had made with Judas, and with Jonathan his brethren. And they were read before the assembly in Jerusalem." In 1 Kings 7: 30, 36, we have the following: "And every base had four brazen wheels, and plates of brass. . . For on the plates of the ledges thereof, and on the borders thereof, he graved cherubim, lions, and palm trees, according to the proportion of every one, and additions round about." Here is plain Bible evidence that they had plates of brass and used them to grave or write upon. The testimony of the Bible is above all his quibbles and denials.

In the Century Magazine is an account of a palace being unearthed in which were tables of gold that had writings upon them.

As recorded in John 10: 16 Jesus says: "And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd." And Matthew 15: 24 records Jesus as saying, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." This is evidence that Jesus was sent to no other people than the children of Israel; and as it is evident that Israel came to this land, we find evidence that Jesus came here after his resurrection. The Book of Mormon, p. 443: 3, 4 records: "And behold, they saw a man descending out of heaven; and he was clothed in a white robe, and he came down and stood in the midst of them; and the eyes of the whole multitude were turned upon him, and they durst not open their mouths, even one to another, and wist not what it meant, for they thought it was an angel that had appeared unto them. And it came to pass that he stretched forth his hand, and spake unto the people, saying, Behold I am Jesus Christ, whom the prophets testified shall come into the world, and behold I am the light and the life of the world."

He gave them power or authority to baptize and showed them the manner of baptism: "And the Lord said unto him [Nephi], I give unto you power that ye shall baptize this people, when I am again ascended into heaven. And again the Lord called others, and said unto them likewise; and he gave unto them power to baptize; and he said unto them, On this wise shall ye baptize; and there shall be no disputations among you. Verily I say unto you, that whoso repenteth of his sins through your words, and desireth to be baptized in my name, on this wise shall ye baptize them: Behold, ye shall go down and stand in the water, and in my name shall ye baptize them. And now behold, these are the words which ye shall say, calling them by name, saying: Having authority given me of Jesus Christ, I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. And then shall ye immerse them in the water, and come forth again out of the water."—B. of M., p. 444:8.

He also further instructed them thus: "And again I say unto you, Ye must repent, and be baptized in my name, and become as a little child, or ye can in no wise inherit the kingdom of God. Verily, verily I say unto you, that this is my doctrine, and whoso buildeth upon this, buildeth upon my rock; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against them. And whoso shall declare more or less than this, and establish it for my doctrine, the same cometh of evil," etc.—B. of M. p. 445:9.

On page 116 we have instruction in regard to the marriage relationship. "Wherefore, my brethren, hear me, and hearken to the word of the Lord: For there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none: For I, the Lord God, delighteth in the chastity of women."

On page 99 the moral precepts are recorded: "And, again, the Lord God hath commanded that men should not murder; that they should not lie; that they should not steal; that they should not take the name of the Lord their God in vain; that they should not envy; that they should not have malice; that they should not contend one with another; that they should not commit whoredoms; and that they should do none of these things; for whoso doeth them, shall perish; for none of these iniquities come of the Lord."

Besides all this evidence of the pure teachings of the Book of Mormon, Bays says that the teachings of the book are all its friends claim for it. In fourteen years about two hundred thousand persons accepted this philosophy, which shows its advancement before the way of truth became evil spoken of because of men of corrupt minds departing from the faith and teaching contrary to what they professed to believe, and what this book teaches.

On page 31 a prophecy is recorded concerning the gathering of the Jews, as follows: "And it came to pass that I, Nephi, spake much unto them concerning these things; yea, I spake unto them concerning the restoration of the Jews, in the latter days; and I did rehearse unto them the words of Isaiah, who spake concerning the restoration of the Jews, or of the house of Israel; and after they were restored, they should no more be confounded, neither should they be scattered again." Every time when they have been gathered hitherto they have been scattered, now they are gathered, there being one hundred thousand Jews in Palestine.

Another prophecy is found on page 103: "And the blood of the saints shall cry from the ground against them," speaking of those who represent churches not built up unto the Lord, who "contend one against another," who "teach with their learning," and say "if they shall say there is a miracle wrought, by the hand of the Lord, believe it not; for this day he is not a God of miracles." How could Joseph Smith know that the blood of saints would be shed by the hands of people headed by religious teachers of this day in this enlightened age, and in this free country?

I now present to you a letter written January 13, 1898, to Frank M. Sheehy. Bays has a letter from the same writer published in his book:—

"MT. VERNON, Jan. 13, 1898.

"Mr. Frank M. Sheehy; Dear Sir:—Your inquiry has not been answered by me sooner on account of stress of work. I had occasion to answer a similar inquiry to yours while in Jerusalem last year. While some of the characters bear a slight resemblance to Old Hebrew and Egyptian letters: viz., [characters omitted for want of types.] . . .

"I remain,

"Yours respectfully,

"CHARLES E. MOLDENKE."

I have also a letter from Chas. H. S. Davis and a book he has sent me. LePlongeon says he has found Maya and Egyptian among the characters used by the people on this continent. He says: "The ancient Maya hieratic alphabet, discovered by me, is as near alike to the ancient hieratic alphabet of the Egyptians, as two alphabets can possibly be, forcing upon us the conclusion that the Mayas and the Egyptians either learned the art of writing from the same masters, or that the Egyptians learned it from the Mayas."—Sacred Mysteries, p. 113.

I now present you with a blackboard illustration of the similarity of the characters claimed to have been copied from the plates from which the Book of Mormon was translated and some of the ancient languages, and especially the Old Hebrew and Egyptian. (Letters from the Egyptian, the Hieratic, from Moldenke, from Old Hebrew, and from the "Characters" of the Book of Mormon were here presented in parallel columns, in which marked resemblances were manifest.)

I will now examine the witnesses Elder Bays uses in his book on pp. 263-266, James B. Angell, Chas. H. S. Davis, and Charles E. Moldenke:—

Moldenke, in Bay's book, refers to "characters put down at random by an ignorant person, with no resemblance to anything, not even to shorthand," while in his letter to Frank M. Sheehy written since he wrote that found in Bays' book, says there are five characters that bear a slight resemblance to Old Hebrew and Egyptian." Here Moldenke has contradicted what he says in his letter to Bays.

Moldenke in his letter as published in Bays' book says: "In the second place though some signs remind one of those on the Mesa Inscription, yet none bear resemblance to Egyptian or Assyrian;" but in his letter to Frank M. Sheehy he copies five of the characters and says they "bear a slight resemblance to Old Hebrew and Egyptian." This letter was written later than the one in Bays' book and is a contradiction of the other.

James B. Angell says in his letter in Bays' book: "A few letters or signs are noticeable which correspond more or less closely to the Aramaic, sometimes called Chaldee language: for example s, h, t, l, b, n."

Davis says: "I can positively assert that there is not a letter to be found in the facsimile [Bays said he sent the facsimile as cut out of "Presidency and Priesthood" to these men with others he procured at the Herald Office.—J. F. M.] submitted that can be found in the alphabet of any Oriental language, particularly of those you refer to; namely, Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, and Arabic."

Here Davis contradicts Angell, and then Moldenke rejects the testimony of both and refers to the Mesa Inscription.

Besides Moldenke says the Hebrews did not keep "records on plates of brass, or ever wrote on such plates," to which Angell agrees but he says "the Assyrians in the eighth century before Christ did," while Davis says, "No record has ever shown that the Hebrew or any other Eastern nation kept their records upon plates or tablets of brass." Here is another contradiction between Bays' witnesses.

I have here a certificate by Mary Yeamans and others which I will now introduce:—

"To Whom it May Concern:—We the undersigned hereby certify that during the reunion of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints held at Woodbine, Iowa, during the month of September, 1897, the following conversation took place at the tent of Mr. Richard Yeamans:—

"Mrs. Mary Yeamans said: 'Bro. Bays, did you ever stand in the defense of the Book of Mormon and were defeated?' To which Elder Bays replied: 'No; I never was defeated.'

"Mr. Richard Yeamans said: 'How was this, Bro. Bays?' Bays: 'I believe it contains the true and everlasting gospel, and is just as divine as the Bible, but I never did accept the Inspired Translation.'

Signed by

"R. W. YEAMANS,

"MARY YEAMANS,

"GEORGE GUNSOLLEY,

"RUTH GUNSOLLEY.

"The above was sworn to and subscribed before me by Richard Yeamans, Mary Yeamans, G. H. Gunsolley, and Ruth Gunsolley
"This 9th day of May, 1898.

"H. B. SORY,

[SEAL:]

"Notary Public."

Elder Bays says he is an old sailor. He can demonstrate this by answering the following questions I submit to him:—

Will Elder Bays tell us the difference between mainsail and a main sheet?

Where will we find the halyards, and the jibs?

How would he port the helm? What does he understand by reefing? What part of the ship should the wind blow on to fill every sail? I do not say he is not a sailor, but he can by answering these questions prove it to this audience. I will give him two minutes extra time to answer them in.

I now present before you on the board the Phonetic English and ask how many of you can read this. (Characters in phonography.)

How many of you can read that? Why? Because you are not familiar with that kind of English. That is phonetic English. If it had been written in common English characters, probably all of you could have read it.

ELDER BAYS' FIRST SPEECH.

Some questions have been submitted to me. I answer the first question. (This answer was substantially correct. J. F. M.) I could answer the rest, but I do not wish to use my time in that way. So you see his hole in the top and hole in the bottom don't pan out worth a cent. The affirmative knows the weak points in his argument and tries to give it support in this way.

That statement that purports to come from Harris, I will show that he never made it. It is the testimony of Joseph Smith claiming that Martin Harris said so and so. Tullidge's History page 31. Kelley and others say it is Harris' statement, but Joseph says it is Harris' statement "as he gave it to me." This kind of evidence would be rejected in any court of justice. Anthon contradicts every word of it. Joseph Smith said what Harris said that Anthon said. "Presidency and Priesthood" page 204 records that Anthon said the characters were copied from a Mexican Calendar, and if there were any characters resembling any ancient letters they were Hebrew and not Egyptian. The Book of Mormon does not claim to be written in Hebrew or Greek, but in Egyptian. 1 Nephi 1:1 says: "I make a record in the language of my father, which consists of the learning of the Jews, and the language of the Egyptians." Notice it is the learning of the Jews, not language, but the language of the Egyptians. Lehi taught him these things. Then we find a claim made that it is written in "reformed Egyptian." I would like to know what reformed Egyptian is. It is Egyptian all the same. They talked Hebrew, and wrote Egyptian.

O. Pratt, Joseph Smith's apostle, one of the greatest apostles the church ever had, said the book was written in Egyptian, but not a word about Hebrew. Williams shows some Hebrew or Greek characters or something else. He introduces a witness and then impeaches him. He introduced Moldenke to prove there was a slight resemblance in a few characters, then he impeaches him. If you have any respect for your ability as a debater don't do that, Bro. Williams.

The characters in "Presidency and Priesthood" it is claimed were photographed from a paper in the hands of David Whitmer. Smith's Church History, vol. 1, p. 22, has a cut of the same characters. I cut these characters out and sent them to these gentlemen and received the letters as they appear in my book, I did not let one man know I had written to the other. I accompanied each cut sent with a copy of the letter as it appears in Doctrine and Dogmas of Mormonism p. 261 as follows:—

"Dear Sir:—I herewith enclose what purports to be a facsimile of the characters found upon the gold plates from which it is claimed the Book of Mormon was translated. The advocates of Mormonism maintain that these characters are 'Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, and Arabic.'

"So far as I am informed these characters have never been submitted to scholars of eminence for examination, and as the languages named fall within your province, including Egyptology and archæology, your professional opinion as to their genuineness will be of great value to the general reader in determining the exact truth with respect to this remarkable claim. I would also like your opinion upon the following questions; namely,

"1. Did Hebrew scholars at any time either before or since Christ keep their records on tables or plates of brass?

"2. If so, did they ever write in the Egyptian language?

"3. Is there any evidence to show that the Pentateuch was ever written upon plates of brass?

"4. Is there any proof that the law of Moses, or even the Decalogue, was ever written in the Egyptian language."

"D. H. BAYS."

Pres. Jas. B. Angell's letter says, "The document which you inclose raises a moral rather than a linguistic problem." He says, "There are no Assyrian characters in it, and the impression made is that the document is fraudulent." Also, "There is no evidence whatever to show that the Pentateuch was ever written on plates of brass." Angell against Smith, also against Williams, as he is a party to the case.

I now read Charles H. S. Davis, who stands as a scholar of the very ripest character:—

"Rev. D. H. Bays; Dear Sir:—I am familiar with Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, and Arabic, and have considerable acquaintance with all the oriental languages, and I can positively assert that there is not a letter to be found in the facsimile submitted that can be found in the alphabet of any Oriental language, particularly of those you refer to; namely, Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, and Arabic.

"A careful study of the facsimile shows that they are characters put down at random by an ignorant person, with no resemblance to anything, not even shorthand.

"No record has ever shown that the Hebrews, or any other eastern nation, kept their records upon plates, or tablets of brass, but thousands upon thousands of tablets of baked clay have been brought to light, antedating two or three thousand years, before the time of Moses, while libraries of these baked clay tablets have been found like those at Tel el Amarna.

"At the time the Old Testament was written, paper made from papyrus was in use, and as documents have been found in Egypt of the times of Moses, written on papyrus, it is not unreasonable to suppose that we may find yet portions of the Old Testament.

"The treasures of Egypt and Palestine are only just being brought to light. Remarkable discoveries are yet to be made."

"Respectfully,

"CHAS. H. S. DAVIS, M. D., Ph. D."

He says there is no resemblance to a phonetic system, and that in it is not an Egyptian character.

The Latter Day Saints claim that every plate was written in Egyptian characters. Orson Pratt, Martin Harris, and others say the language is Egyptian. Some claim they are altered Egyptian characters. Lehi wrote in Egyptian or else he wrote in nothing. We then come down a thousand years and then it is reformed Egyptian. It is not Assyrian, Chaldaic, Egyptian. I show you on this large chart the characters as found in Presidency and Priesthood, and in Smith's history (here introduce a plate of the "Characters." J. F. M.). Joseph must have stumbled onto something that would resemble something in all this. There is everything in it you can find anywhere.

Chas. E. Moldenke and Davis are among the best Egyptologists. Moldenke makes annual tours to Egypt. He says he is not a Biblical scholar, but a linguist.

I did not have enough of these copies of the characters, so I sent to the Herald Office and they kindly sent me some more.

I now read Moldenke's letter:—

"JERUSALEM, Palestine, Dec. 27, 1896.

"Rev. D. H. Bays; Dear Sir and Brother:—Your letter dated November 23 I have just received. I will try to answer your questions as far as I am able. I believe the plates of the Book of Mormon to be a fraud.

"In the first place it is impossible to find in any old inscription, 'Egyptian, Arabic, Chaldaic, and Assyrian,' characters mixed. The simple idea of finding Egyptian and Arabic side by side is ridiculous and impossible.

"In the second place, though some signs remind one of those on the Mesa Inscription, yet none bear resemblance to Egyptian or Assyrian.

"As far as I know there is no evidence that the Hebrews kept records on plates of brass, or ever wrote on such plates. About the prophecy contained in Isaiah 29: 1-14 I can venture no opinion, as I am not a Biblical scholar, and only concern myself about Egyptology.

"Very truly yours,

"CHARLES E. MOLDENKE."

You notice he says "reminds" not resemblance. He says the characters don't bear a resemblance to Old Hebrew or Egyptian. He says he concerns himself with Egyptology. I inquire if the Hebrews wrote on plates of brass. No one would deny that other nations wrote on plates of brass. Williams ingeniously or not very ingeniously tries to misunderstand the question and statement I made.

PASTORAL.

Saints of Oklahoma, a word with you. In order to accomplish that for which the tent was purchased, we must open the work in cities. There are only two or three cities in the territory in which saints live. When holding services where there are no saints living we are compelled to have something to eat occasionally, just as if saints were there to supply these needfuls. We have no individual fund from which to draw to supply these things, so you can see at once that we must have funds from some source to meet these expenses, until friends are raised for the cause in the respective places where meetings are held. Who will assist?

One of three things remains for us to do. 1. Call on the saints to contribute to the tent fund. 2. Hold a series of services and live on air and water. 3. Fold up the tent and lay it away.

The first is laudable, the second impossible, and the third unprofitable; hence the only thing left is for you to come to our assistance at once. We do not expect to board at hotels. We have camp tent and outfit, and can prepare our own meals, and Bro. Davis is an excellent cook, with one exception, namely, he can't get a square meal with nothing but water to work on.

We are unable to do much till some means are forthcoming, so we trust you will come to our relief at once. We hope each saint who reads this will feel that it means them. Don't delay, we need the means now. There are some names on the agent's book, who have failed to send in the amount promised on tent fund. This leaves a deficit and part of the committee had to advance said amount. We are hopeful for a good work to be done with the tent before the season closes. Send all moneys to Elder S. J. Hinkle, Stillwater, Oklahoma. Notice of Oklahoma reunion will appear later.

In the work,

W. S. MACRAE.

To the Saints in Northeast and Northwest Kansas Districts:—The joint reunion of the above-named districts will be held at Blue Rapids, Kansas, August 19 to 28, as already provided for and advertised in church papers by committees regularly appointed by conferences in each district. Respecting the reunion resolutions of the late conference of the Northeast Kansas district, at Scranton, we only deem it necessary at present to state that they were irregular, illegal, and only calculated to create confusion. Pay no regard to nor be disconcerted by them in the least. "Be ye content." Come to the reunion with tranquility.

Your brother,

W. S. PENDER,
Assistant Missionary in Charge.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Conference of Eastern Colorado district will convene in the saints' church at Conifer, Colorado, August 20, at ten a. m. We are now under the delegate system, which provides that each branch is entitled to one delegate for every six members in the branch, or fraction thereof. Branch reports and delegate credentials as well as reports of the ministry should be sent to Charles E. Everett, 2925 W. 16th Avenue, Denver, Colorado. Conifer is thirty-five miles southwest of Denver, and is not on any railroad, so those coming by train will please come to Morrison on Friday, the 19th, where they will be met with teams. The train leaves Denver for Morrison at eight a. m., so please take notice that you may be able to make connections in Denver; also, notify Bro. James Kemp, Conifer, Colorado, of your coming, that proper arrangements can be made to meet you. Those coming with teams will come via Morrison, and take the South Turkey Creek road from Morrison, and anyone can then tell how to find Bro. Kemp's house. We hope for a good attendance and a spiritual conference.

JOHN B. ROUSH, Pres.

CHARLES E. EVERETT, Sec.

Ohio district annual conference at Vales Mills, August 27, at 9:30. All should come to preaching service Friday night. All who wish conveyance from the stations inform Elder S. J. Jeffers, Arbaugh, Ohio; or Jasper Bowen, Vales Mills, Ohio. Presidents and secretaries see to it that your reports are prepared in due time on proper blanks, and sent to secretary, Sr. Hattie Riggs or James Moler, Vales Mills, Ohio, so as to reach there not later than the 26th. Officials and others who possibly can, are requested to attend this session. Come praying for the Holy Spirit to be present to direct and cheer.

JAMES MOLER, Pres.

Philadelphia district conference will convene at Fifth and Huntingdon Streets, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, August 6 and 7. All elders, priests, teachers, and deacons are requested to send a report of their labors in writing to this conference; all letters should reach the secretary three days before the opening of conference. It is expected that one or more of the Twelve will be present. Let all make an effort to attend, that we might all have a good spiritual time.

E. B. HULL, Sec.

2818 N. 11th St., PHILADELPHIA, Pennsylvania.

NOTICES.

The church at Pleasant Hill branch, Garland, Alabama, having been completed, will be dedicated on the first Sunday in August. All are invited to attend these services, which will be in charge of Elder M. M. Turpen, missionary in charge. Come and bring the Spirit of the Master, that we may enjoy his blessings.

J. G. VICKERY, Pres.

REUNION NOTICES.

CORRECTED.

Reunion of Massachusetts district will be held at Dennisport, August 6 to 16, both inclusive. Tents will be rented at the same price, $2.50 and $3.25; orders for which should be sent to S. W. Ashton or John Smith, New Bedford, not later than July 28. No rates for travel have been secured, for reasons which will be given if called for. No restaurant will be used by the committee, but each one will be assisted in making his or her stay pleasant and profitable. It is said that no cottages are to be had, and tents should be secured early.

Reunion Committee,

Per order of chairman.

Southwest Missouri reunion will be held at Midway Park, near Joplin, Missouri, beginning August 26, and lasting ten days. The grounds are high and dry, with good shady grove. All the grounds are lighted by electric light at night. Electric car line right through the park, connecting Joplin and Webb City together. Plenty of water for man and beast. Pasture for horses fifty cents per head for the whole time. Straw on the grounds for tents and bedding. Everybody is invited to come and have a feast of good things. Tents for rent will cost as follows: 7 by 9, $1.10; 9 by 12, $1.30; 12 by 14, $1.75, freight added. All wanting tents must send their orders to D. C. White, Blairstown, Missouri, by August 20. The rent of tents can be paid for at the reunion.

D. C. WHITE, Sec.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

A two-days meeting will be held two miles west of Carsonville, Michigan, July 30 and 31, with Black River branch.

Also a two-days' meeting will be held near Deanville, Michigan, on August 6 and 7, with Maple Valley branch.

Also a two-days' meeting will be held near Grindstone City, Michigan, on August 13 and 14, with Huron Centre branch.

Missionaries and local officers expected to attend.

A. BARR, Pres.

MARRIED.

CAMPBELL—EPERSON.—At the residence of the bride's parent, Council Bluffs, Iowa, April 6, 1898, Bro. Everett Campbell to Sr. Melissa Eperson. J. S. Strain officiating.

ELLISON—LEMASTER.—At the residence of Mrs. Myers, Council Bluffs, Iowa, Bro. Lehi Ellison, of Woodbine, to Sr. Edna E. Lemaster, of this city. J. S. Strain minister.

AMMENHAUSER—BENTLEY.—In Lamoni, Iowa, on the evening of June 29, 1898, at the home of Bro. Marcus and Sr. Eliza A. Shaw (formerly Bentley), their daughter, Sr. Lillie M. Bentley, was united in marriage to Mr. Gerhardt Ammenhauser, of Ottumwa, Iowa, Elder H. A. Stebbins officiating. The house was filled with friends present to witness the ceremony and to extend congratulations and good wishes to the bride and groom.

DIED.

SEVERY.—In Oakland, California, June 5, 1898, James Benjamin, youngest son of F. A. and Lizzie Severy, aged 2 years and 3 months. We loved the little darling. God took him. We are reconciled. "Thy will be done."

CROSS.—At his home, Hannibal, Missouri, June 4, 1898, Bro. James Cross, aged 77 years, 8 months, 15 days. Deceased was born in Perthshire, Scotland. United with the church in St. Louis, Missouri, November 3, 1878; baptized by Elder William Anderson. He leaves three sons and grandchildren to mourn.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound$1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

National Saengerfest, Davenport, Iowa, July 28-31; one standard fare plus $2.00 for round trip. Date of sale July 27 and 28, final limit for return August 1.

National Republican League, Omaha, Nebraska, July 13-15. Date of sale July 12, final limit for return July 22 one fare plus $2.00.

North American Turner's Union Convention, San Francisco, California, July 5. Date of sale June 28, 29, final limit August 31. One standard first class fare for round trip.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth$1 00
Sheep or library binding 1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 75
Morocco, gilt edges 2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges 3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible..... 2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH.

Cloth$0 75
Leather. 1 00

GRACELAND ..
COLLEGE,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Telephone 71.

For catalogues or further information,
Address, PROF. J. T. PENCE,
Acting President,
or R. S. SALYARDS, Secretary,
LAMONI, IOWA.

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100$1 00
2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100... 1 00
7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100..... 1 30
10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 20
12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
13. Discipleism, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts; 100, 1 00
14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....$1 00
15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen..... 30
19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen..... 10
20. The "One Body;" or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
- Prophecy of the Rebellion; per 100 10

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

RULES OF ORDER AND BEBATE.

Cloth$0 40

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguié.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer. President.
 Wm. Anderson. Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins. Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson. Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguié.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address: I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

TOBACCO HABIT CURED, OR NO PAY.

Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, positively guarantees three boxes of "Quit-To-Bac" to permanently take away all desire for tobacco, or will promptly refund money paid for it. Three boxes sent post paid anywhere for $1.50. No bad effects from use of Quit-To-Bac. It is a great nerve tonic. Why not try it? It has cured hundreds; why not you? Remember, No Cure, No Pay. Address, B. F. ORDWAY, Peoria, Illinois.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LAMONI FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres, with five room house, large barn, other outbuildings; abundance of water; young orchard. Located two miles from Graceland College, Lamoni, and one fourth mile from schoolhouse. Price, $2,500 with one half cash; balance to suit purchaser. Address, MRS. MARGARET BAGLEY, Lamoni, Iowa.

$10 GRAPHOPHONES. $10 TALKING MACHINES!

Greatest money maker ever offered. Anybody can start in the show business. Make $10 to $20 a day giving exhibitions. LOUD AND CLEAR ENOUGH to be heard in any Hall or Church anywhere. They're wonderful. Imagine a musical instrument that will actually TALK TALK. That by simply winding it up like a clock you can play band music exactly as it was played by Sousa--corner, trombones, drums and all. Sings songs, tells funny stories. Does 'nt seem possible, does it? But it does even more than that. You can sing or talk into it yourself and it will repeat, a moment after, just what you said. FOR HOME AMUSEMENT It has no equal. Entirely new model. Just out. Very loud. Price EAGLE GRAPHOPHONE with two hearing tubes and concert horn, $10. Same outfit, with handsome oak carrying case, $12. Price of our BEST EXHIBITION MUSICAL OR TALKING RECORDS, 50c each $5 a dozen. Our $20 Big Show Outfit includes our Eagle Graphophone, with carrying case, two hearing tubes, concert horn, record brush, 18 assorted records, music, songs and speeches (lasts two hours steady running), 200 big posters advertising exhibition, 200 admission tickets, all for $20. Sent C. O. D., with privilege of examination, if desired. Complete Record Catalogue free. Write for it. HARGER & BLISH, Western Agts., 904-910 Main St., Dubuque, Iowa.

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel. NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING. Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed. Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices. THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture AND Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc. GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING. Agents Wanted Everywhere. THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery. Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

RELIABILITY

is a quality some newspapers have lost sight of in these days of "yellow" journalism. They care little for truth and a great deal for temporary sensation. It is not so with THE CHICAGO RECORD. The success of THE RECORD rests upon its reliability. It prints the news—all the news—and tells the truth about it. It is the only American newspaper outside New York city that has its own exclusive dispatch boat service and its own staff correspondents and artists at the front in both hemispheres. It is the best illustrated daily newspaper in the world. Its war news service is unapproachably the best. Says the Urbana (Ill.) Daily Courier:

"We read the war news in the other papers, then we turn to THE CHICAGO RECORD to see how much of it is true."

Sold by newsdealers everywhere and subscriptions received by all postmasters. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, July 27, 1898.

No. 30.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
Sale of College Lots in Graceland....	469
Report of Joint Committee. Duties of Deacon.....	469
A Veteran.....	469
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Courage.....	470
How Is It?.....	471
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
The Needs of the District.....	471
LETTER DEPARTMENT:.....	472
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Industrial Economics.....	477
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Northern Minnesota.....	478
New South Wales.....	478
South Sea Islands Mission.....	478
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
Philadelphia.....	479
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Williams-Bays Debate.—No. 11.....	479
Grove Meetings and Conference.....	483
Waterproofing for Tent Tops.....	484
Reunion Notices.....	484
Two-days' Meetings.....	484

ATHLETICS AND HEALTH.

THE secret of health and long life was sought for ages in some drug. Every pungent plant and poison mineral was swallowed in the hope that it might ward off death. We have learned at last the folly of this search, and we know that it has cost us myriad lives.

Now come philosophers who say that health lies in exercise. They tell us to run races, to leap hurdles, and risk our bones at football. They point to the ruddy cheeks and mighty limbs of pugilists, and recommend their course of training.

Is it then true that we must box and wrestle and leap frog, fair sex and all, if we will have good health? If so our Maker must have blundered in forcing the greater part of us to spend our lives in other forms of exercise. He should have made plowing more like running races, and household work like fighting punch bags.

Alas, the secret of long life has not been given to the athletes; they are notorious for breaking down or dying young. The noble chests of pugilists do not shield them from consumption, and if this is sometimes due to drinking, still the fact remains that the rowers and the racers, who are often moral men, are prone to heart disease.

Let us go down to first principles, and see if we cannot learn what exercise is useful, and why too much of it proves fatal.

It may be set down as a vital law that each part of our threefold nature should be used and developed, the body, the mind, and the heart.

A strong and healthful body is the rock on which the nobler qualities must stand. There have been bright minds and kindly hearts in feeble frames, but none that reached the lofty stature of our birthright. For this reason Jesus gave much time to healing illness, the body first and then the soul; but his followers have overlooked this mighty truth. They break the physical laws, and then wonder why they cannot keep the moral ones. In vain the glutton prays to be unselfish. In vain the bilious man cries out for hope; and he whose nerves are serrate despairs at his strange fiendish temper.

But, vital as the body is, it will be shaken off in a few years, and our chief energy and zeal should not be spent upon it. Philosophers agree that a mere athlete is little higher than an animal, while it should be our grand destiny to become moral and intellectual beings, fit dwellers for the glorious life beyond.

Is there not work, worthy of christian men, that will develop mind and heart, and give us also strong and healthful bodies?

We may take it for granted as a first principle, that labor to be healthful should be done amid pure air. Abundant oxygen for warmth, to burn up refuse, and to nourish every portion of the system, is perhaps our most vital need. Few will deny that the lack of air, and the foul and dusty quality of what we breathe in streets and houses, is a first cause of much disease.

And secondly, healthful labor should employ every one of our many muscles. If a single one is neglected, it shrinks and becomes feeble, and tends to deform and weaken the whole body. Experiment however proves that a very little work each day will keep them in health, and that we need not train and harden them as many athletes do.

Now there are a hundred sports and forms of labor that satisfy these two needs; abundant air, and use of every muscle.

By all means first among all forms of exercise stands gardening, with its sunshine and infinite variety of movement. The care of lawns and trees and crops is most delightful, and nothing can be nobler than raising flowers for hospitals, or shut-in friends, or even to adorn one's home. Flower culture is ideal work for women, who can indeed find exercise within the house, but who often languish for sunshine and pure air.

The Creator has made no mistake in forcing half our race to till the soil, for no other calling tends so strongly to develop every faculty. Farming, sometimes thought the work of blockheads, really demands the highest culture. Its master must know the geology of his land, the chemistry of his soil and manures, the botany of his crops, and the entomology of the insects that attack them. He should be a pomologist and a farrier, a machinist and a meteorologist; and with all he must take the papers and study the markets of the world. No other calling lies so near to nature's heart. The fields glow with flowers, and the air flickers with strange insects; the rocks are dazzling with crystals, and curious with fossils; and nothing hides the great arch of heaven, with its rolling storms and glorious sunsets. If these do not awaken the mind to study, and the soul to reverence and poetry, then nothing can.

But how can the great multitude, who are not farmers, and have not even gardens, get healthful work? First let those who have not gardens strive to get them. There are few denizens of cities, and few slaves in factories, who cannot, if they so resolve, live in the suburbs, where homes are cheap and gardens possible. The bicycle has cut down the distance, and every day the trolley is reaching farther, and opening new fields.

But what can northern people do when winter ends the gardening? The writer has a shop, and spends a little time each day in making children's toys, or improvements to the house; and there is a very small conservatory that gives some work. These however do not afford fresh air, and when there is no snow to shovel, and the fireplace wood has all been split, he is sometimes reduced to walking.

There are books that call walking the best of exercises, but this can hardly be, for it exerts only the legs and lower body, while the arms and chest are nearly idle. Besides it is not useful labor, and becomes dull drudgery, unless it is taken for nature study, or has some errand at the end. Perhaps we may think of a distant invalid to whom a cheering chat or a fresh book would be a boon. The best kind of walk is that taken with a friend or two, whiling the way with pleasant talk, admiring sky and trees and birds; or if in the city, studying the shops and people. Its value may be greatly increased also by keeping a high chest, and breathing through the nose long draughts of air.

Many useless forms of exercise, like walking, cycling, archery, tennis, and golf, become useful and wholly admirable, when taken largely for the pleasure of our friends.

Let us not forget the great principle with which we started; that labor of the muscles is indeed vital, but that a higher need is labor of the mind, and the exercise of faith and hope and love. Let him who would lead a noble life consider carefully his daily round, and see that none of his God-given faculties lie wholly idle.

Clergymen and lawyers and physicians, generally find exercise for mind and morals, but are apt to need an hour or two of vigorous gardening, or rowing or gymnasium work. Salesmen and artisans get muscle labor, but they should spend their leisure time in study, and in doing kindly deeds to relatives or neighbors. The busy housewife lacks pure air and mental work, and she should take walks or ride a wheel, and write intellectual letters, or be active in a literary society.

The life most likely to dwarf the being is that in factories, where the hours are long and the work only that of a few muscles.

For such laborers, a garden is of priceless value, and a social or literary club, music, and lectures, not less so.

Nothing in this article is meant to discourage regular gymnastic drill for children and young people. Every child should be examined by an expert, and weakness or deformity cured by proper training. By far the most important thing is teaching them to stand erect, carrying the breast bone high off the lungs, so that they may freely breathe. Lively play in the open air is of far greater value than gymnastic drill, for well formed children. Even football would have its uses if it were played with kindly spirit.

He who keeps clearly in mind the object of his life in this world will not go far astray. He must use and develop and perfect all his powers, and grow into a noble being, worthy of translation into the perfect world, and even of becoming the humble friend of his Creator.—Frederic M. Heath, in Health Culture.

AMERICAN SCHOOL SYSTEM IN AFRICA.

BACKED by Cecil Rhodes and Earl Grey, members of the Board of Directors of the British South Africa Company, Bishop Joseph C. Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal Church, whose diocese includes the continent of Africa, succeeded in obtaining an appropriation yesterday from the Board of Missions, which will enable him to plant the public school system of the United States in Africa. When seen about the matter, Bishop Hartzell said:—

"I am commencing this work in the little republic of Liberia. Already, under the fostering care of our church, a college has been established at Monrovia, in West Africa, which has one thousand scholars enrolled under the control of a faculty of five. Professor A. P. Camphor, a black man educated in this country, is at the head of this institution. It is my purpose to begin at the foundation, establishing first the primary school, and in a short time I hope to have two thousand pupils under the charge of competent teachers sent from the United States.

"To assist me to carry out this idea I have been authorized to secure five teachers from among the educated young colored people of the State, and our church has pledged itself to pay one half the expenses incurred for salary and transportation.

"The salary to be allowed these teachers, besides their keep, will be only two hundred dollars. I am looking for some one who is interested enough in Africa to foot the other half of the bill incident to the extension of this work.

"My project also includes the establishment of industrial schools in Liberia."—N. Y. Cor. Chicago Tribune, July 20.

JEWES IN THE UNITED STATES.

It is estimated that the Jews of the United States number about 1,290,000, although that may be somewhat in excess. Although in common with the great mass of the population they prefer the cities, they are found scattered in every section from Bangor to the Klondike, and their synagogues, which were a novelty a few decades ago, save in places like New York, Philadelphia, Charleston, Savannah, and Richmond, can be met everywhere.

Chicago recently witnessed the fiftieth anniversary of its oldest synagogue—the new edifice on Indiana Avenue, with its impressive architecture, tells the story of successful growth. The new temples in Cleveland, Little Rock, Kansas City, St. Louis, Detroit, are eloquent reminders of Western progress. San Francisco vies with the Eastern coast-cities in the number of its synagogues. The President of the United States was present at the recent corner-stone laying for the new Washington Temple, which will be worthy of the capital of our country. In New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, and Baltimore, the synagogues are in the broad places, and convey a favorable idea of American Israel. According to Rev. Dr. Carroll's statistics there were, in 1897, 570 Jewish congregations in the United States, and 143,000 communicants—the last term is misleading. As a rule, the father alone counts as a member of the synagogue. Besides, in the smaller towns in which there are no regular synagogues, there will be found many Jews, and these are not included in the estimate, while a large proportion of Jewish residents of the chief cities may be unattached to any synagogue, membership being voluntary, not compulsory.—From Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for August.

ADDRESSES.

- J. D. Erwin, Standley, Indian Territory.
- J. F. Mintun, Box A., Magnolia, Iowa.
- L. R. Devore, Graysville, Monroe County Ohio.
- T. A. Hougas, Supt. Gen. S. S. Association, Henderson, Iowa.
- Peter Anderson, Stanberry, Missouri.
- W. R. Armstrong, secretary, 14 Council Street, H., Manchester, England.
- Elder Henry C. Smith, No. 647 South Spring Street, Los Angeles, California.
- Henry Kemp, Box 659, Shenandoah, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, July 27, 1898.

No. 30.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, JULY 27, 1898.

SALE OF COLLEGE LOTS IN GRACELAND.

BISHOP G. H. HILLIARD reports the sale of five additional lots in Graceland, to purchaser excellent in character and influence. We are pleased to learn this; for the reason that it must, in reason, be followed by other sales to responsible owners; and will thus aid to hasten the accomplishment of the work assigned to the Bishopric. There is scarcely an ineligible building site in the whole Graceland plat. Purchasers are decidedly welcome; and if a sale means occupancy, a few good houses large enough to accommodate a few student boarders, each, put up in the neighborhood of the College building and Campus, would be decidedly a good thing and a very welcome addition to the beauty of the grounds, as well as of use in the carrying on of the school.

REPORT OF JOINT COMMITTEE. DUTIES OF DEACON.

THE following report of the committee composed of the Presidency, the Twelve, and the Bishopric, upon the subject of the Duties of the Deacon, submitted at the session of conference held at Independence, Missouri, last April, will be the report of that committee to the next session of conference to be held at Lamoni, Iowa, according to the terms of resolution upon which the session adjourned.

It will be understood that this report is not published as the final action of the church upon the subject named in the resolution referring it, but is the report of the action of the committee, and published as their report to the conference when it shall convene, and is subject to approval or disapproval at such session; the object of publication being that the subject matter of it may be taken cognizance of by all who may be interested in the subject, and may desire to take part in the discussion and action of conference upon it when it shall come up in its place before the conference, to be determined upon its merits:—

REPORT OF FIRST PRESIDENCY, TWELVE, AND BISHOPRIC, ON "THE DUTIES OF A DEACON."

The committee composed of the Presidency, the Twelve, and the Bishopric, to which the following resolution presented to the late session of conference held at Independence, Missouri, April 6-18, 1898, was referred for consideration and report, do so report, as follows:—

The resolution presented to conference was:—

"Be it resolved by this body, in conference assembled, that we concur in and hereby adopt the definition of the duties of a deacon as defined by President Joseph Smith in Herald of June 15, 1871, and No. 25, vol. 31, of Saints' Herald.

C. F. CHURCH.
"C. E. BLAIR."

The resolution of the conference by which the matter was referred, is:—

"Resolved, that a committee, consisting of the First Presidency, the Twelve, and the Bishopric, be appointed, to whom this matter be referred, with the request that they report as soon as practicable to the General Conference what in their judgment are the duties belonging to the office of deacon in the church."

This committee met in the church at Independence, Missouri, April 19, 1898, at nine a. m., and proceeded to the duties assigned them.

After a consultation of several hours the committee by a majority vote adopted the following as their judgment upon the matter submitted to them:—

"Resolved, that we approve of the duties set forth in the article referred to as a rule of action to aid the Deacon in his labor, in addition to his duties as made plain in the law (D. C. 17:11) as a standing minister to the church, under the direction of the proper officers placed over him in the law."

The committee directed the Chairman and Secretary of the council to compile from the said article in the Herald, referred to in the resolution before the conference, the duties named therein and incorporate them in the report to be made of the action of the committee thereon. Those duties thus compiled from said article as stated in paragraphs 32 and 36, with the preliminary explanation at the beginning of paragraph 32, are as follows:—

"We have elsewhere written that every branch must have a place of meeting. This place of meeting, if a public building, hall, or meetinghouse, or church, must be in the actual possession of the association of church members worshipping there, at least during its occupancy while worshipping; and if the property is owned by the church, some one must have constructive possession at all times. What particular officer of the church has precedence of right in this constructive possession? The right to carry the keys; open the doors; conduct visitors, either those belonging or not belonging to the church; to see that the floors, doors, windows, pulpit or stand, seats, table or stand, lamps and other fixtures are clean and in good order; to open the doors at the hour of gathering for preaching, fellowship, prayer, or business meetings; to see that the lamps or candles are trimmed, lighted, and burning, in time for evening meetings; to see that the members coming in find seats; to keep watch over the saints during meetings, repressing loud talking, whispering and laughing, reproving the thoughtless, and rebuking the giddy; putting a prompt stop to rude, indecent, and boisterous acts, by which the propriety, solemnity, and peace of the meetings may be disturbed; to exercise kind and diligent supervision over the health and comfort of the saints while in meeting, by securing a proper ventilation of the room; to light and keep burning the fires by which the room is kept warm; to have charge of the treasury; to receive, disburse, and account for the contributions of the saints, intended for necessary and incidental expenses of the association of members; to keep, preserve from damage, and account for all personal effects of the association; to visit the poor, ascertain their needs, and report the same to the church; and in fact, to perform any and all of those necessary duties by which the welfare of the saints is secured through a careful administration of the outward ordinances, a faithful employment of the talents entrusted to that man. It follows then of a necessity that the right, the duty of the performing these acts,—these unwritten but essential things of the law, devolve upon the office of deacon."

JOSEPH SMITH, Chairman.
J. W. WIGHT, Secretary.

A VETERAN.

BRO. ODIN JACOBS, of Radcliff, Iowa, a member of the church during the days of Joseph and Hyrum, now seventy-eight years of age, in company with Bro. A. K. Anderson, called on the Editor of the HERALD, July 8. Bro. Jacobs was a citizen of Illinois, in the region of Newark, and Mission,

La Salle County, in which region George. A. Smith, W. O. Clark, George P. Dykes, and some others did considerable missionary labor before the the Martyr's death. At the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, there was quite a scattering, but a branch numbering some thirty held onto the faith, though quite undecided which way to go. Among these were Goodman Hougas, Ole Hayer, Yance Jacobs, Odin Jacobs, M. Madison, and others. These could not consent to the rule of President Young and the dogma of plural marriage, etc. In due course of time they were visited, first by dreams and visions, which promised an era of gospel light, then by the leading missionaries of whom Bro. W. W. Blair, was one. He had been seen in vision, or dream by some, and when he went into their midst he was recognized as "the man of God."

The result was that the Hougases, Hayers, Jacobs, (Yance and Odin,) and many others received the faith anew and became members of the Reorganized Church and earnest supporters of the latter-day work.

Goodman Hougas, Yance Jacobs, Ole Hayer, Oliver and Austin Hayer, M. Madison, and some others are gone; but Odin Jacobs yet stays to rejoice in the onward way of the work, waiting the gathering at the reaping time.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

JUDGING from the number of articles furnished the press by Bro. M. T. Short, one is led to conclude that he is a sort of combination preacher, debater, and self-operating typewriter. At any rate he is a busy missionary and manages to stir up the residents along his line of march. One letter from him brings to the Herald Office an order for tracts, three handbills (green, white, and terra cotta in hue) and two articles from his pen on the word "Mormon," published in an Illinois paper, name not given. Bro. Short's larger handbill closes with this exhortation: "Ye judges, lawyers, doctors, divines, churchmen, merchants, mechanics, husbandmen, high, intermediate, low, black, and white, come early, nor heed the frowns and scoffs of the face of clay." Bro. Short's note is dated Aledo, Illinois, July 14. He says:

We began preaching here on the eve of the 13th ult. We held forth a half dozen times on Sundays, and rested only the eve of the 4th. A very great many have heard the gospel, and now the Teachers' Institute is in session here. Bro. Russell, and J. W. A. et al., have aided us. A barrister requested me to speak on Book of Mormon, and paid for dodgers, etc. Bro. Bean, of Joy, shoulders unsolicited and cheerfully one half expenses of running tent, etc.

Bro. W. H. Walling, Springfield, South Dakota, July 15:—

I am having good success in getting openings. I have the I. O. O. F. hall here. The people turn out well; seem to be interested. Have had good liberty in preaching. My address will be Howard, Miner County, South Dakota. I need tracts of our faith, but money comes in slowly; can't send for any. Should you know of anyone who wants to advertise the work in that way he can forward tracts to me at Howard, South Dakota.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. GEORGE W. EDWARDS, of the branch at Philadelphia, writes encouragingly of the progress of the church in the city of homes and of brotherly love. One was added by baptism, Bro. A. H. Parsons administering in the presence of a large concourse of people, at Camden, New Jersey, where some of the saints of Philadelphia branch reside. The sister baptized promises to be an addition that will prove helpful. All were trying to advance the cause.

J. L. Mize, living at Flomaton, Alabama, would like to have some of the elders of the Reorganized Church to call on him at his home; he desires to unite with the church.

Elder William Newton, wife, and daughter, were at Brooklyn, New York, July 3, and Elder Newton addressed the Saints there. They left for England, Bro. Newton's field of labor, on the 9th in excellent spirits. So wrote Bro. Joseph Squire, Sr., of No. 227 McDougal Street, Brooklyn, July 11.

Bro. E. W. Nunley was at Irving College, Tennessee, preaching the word, July 19, when he wrote that openings for preaching were numerous in that region. Brighamite elders had appeared on the scene, but vanished when questioned and asked to meet the issue. Bro. Nunley writes interestingly of archaeological discoveries of peculiar caves in the vicinity.

Mrs. May Brown, a sister residing at Eaton, Delaware County, Indiana, writes requesting that some of the ministry visit that locality and preach the word. She has not "seen the face of a saint" for over four months and feels lonely in her isolation among the world. She requests that some of the household of faith write to her.

Warm weather is hard on church attendance. This we note after a somewhat extended observation of its general effects. Its rising temperature seems to have the paradoxical effect of lowering the spiritual temperature, for many become "cold," for a time, and cease their former attendance and activity. Where branches are small, the absence of few or many, sometimes of but one, is keenly felt. It is not wise to neglect the assembling of ourselves together, which some neglect to their loss. The weather problem is a factor in church work.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"How they pale,
Ancient myth, and song, and tale,
In this wonder of our days,
When the cruel rod of war
Blossoms white with righteous law,
And the wrath of man is praise?"

COURAGE.

Take courage, thou sorely afflicted,
Bear patiently all of thy pain,
For after thy trials are over,
Bright morn will dawn for thee again.

We pray thee, dear Father, in heaven,
Look down from thy high courts above,
Send a messenger clothed with the power
To fill her poor heart with thy love.

Render the darkness, we pray thee, a moment,—

Let a ray of thy light gladly through,
To help our poor, suffering mother,
And enable her thy will to do.

May the trials, the cares, and the crosses,
And the sickness that's broken her down,
When she enters that city of glory,
Be shining, bright gems in life's crown.

J. H.

STEWARTSVILLE, Mo.

As I picked up the Herald, looking over the letters written by beloved brethren and sisters, my eyes rested on an article headed, "Why is it so?" As I read and reread I was so much pleased to think that there was one so true and noble and so fearless in speaking her mind to the dearly beloved sisters. We mothers need not be ashamed of bearing and rearing our children. I am the mother of seven nice healthy children, and thank my heavenly Father that he has seen fit to entrust them to my care. There is nothing more grand to my mind than bringing up families in the way they should go, that they may be fit to take the places of the faithful ones that have with old age passed away to the paradise of God.

Let us strive to become pure in heart, that we may keep the law of God. Though it may seem burdensome to us at the time, we know there is a crown of eternal life laid up for us at the end of the race. With the wisdom that God has given us, let us teach our children to be pure in heart and mind; to walk in wisdom's ways with a zeal to do good; to shun the very appearance of evil; to keep the law and commandments of God, because they love this work that we are all engaged in. Then when we are old we can praise the name of God, because he has given us children. How grand will be the reunion of families on the resurrection morn, to dwell with Christ on this earth a thousand bright years.

SR. MARGARET.

HOLLISTER, Cal., June 8.

Dear Sister Walker:—I was quite surprised on reading Herald of May 25, to see my little attempt at poetry which found its way to your columns without my knowledge. While looking through the Harp for some hymns appropriate for our little Prayer Union, particularly the opening hymn, I was wishing we had something especially for the Prayer Union, when the first few lines came into my mind, and as I went about my household duties the remainder was composed, and we sang it in our meeting to the tune of "Sweet the time, exceeding sweet," all being familiar with that, though it is better with the tune "Spanish Chant," in the Hymnal (or any tune of eight lines that will go it), on account of the length.

Isn't our beloved church coming up higher just grandly? See the strong array of "helps" in all the various organizations for the advancement of the membership. The Sunday school is assuming noble proportions; then the Religio, Daughters of Zion, and Prayer Union. How I long to live where we could meet with the saints in these different meetings; at present we have none of any kind—not even a Prayer Union, for most of the saints have moved away. I still try to devote the hour to sacred reading and prayer, as I ever have since its origin, though sometimes I fail to do so; and try to teach my children, using the Quarterlies, but find it very hard to keep them interested. They like the Hope, and were pleased with Book of Mormon Stories.

Once, when praying on this subject, the thought presented itself, that we do not attempt to educate them and ourselves at home, but we send them to school to competent teachers—those who have studied and prepared themselves to teach, and with regularly organized classes and the companionship of other children to stimulate and increase the interest. Then why should we, in this matter of so great importance as their spiritual education, try of ourselves, only to teach them? I do not mean that we should not do all we can, for I realize that they need to be instructed daily, every opportunity improved, and every little incident that can be taken advantage of without wearying them, should be used to impress on their minds some lesson for good; but I mean that it is our duty, as much as we can, to place ourselves in a situation so that we can send them to Sunday school—and go with them; to consider this of vital importance in selecting a place of residence, to have our children where they can attend a good, live saints' Sunday school. If there is a chance to help organize and carry on one in our own vicinity, so much the better; but if not, go where there is one if possible. We have never allowed our children to attend the sectarian Sunday schools, where they are sure to get some wrong ideas of the plan of salvation, preferring to teach them the best we can at home, when there has been none of our own to attend.

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, to which we turn with longing eyes, though the ties that bind us to our native State are strong,

Lovingly your sister,

EMILY DAVIS.

IT is not wise to lose faith in our ideals and think they cannot be realized in this work-a-day world, for no one can conceive an ideal too high of attainment. As in the block of marble slumbers the beautiful statue, waiting only the skillful hand of the sculptor, so within the very conception of a high ideal lies the evolution and ultimate perfection of the same, when the chisel and hammer of our thoughts and acts are applied to its designing day by day. The Creator designed a niche for each one of us to fill, and only when we live up to our highest and best do we fulfill the end of our creation.

CLARA LAMBERT CLARK.

HOW IS IT?

Are you serving Christ, your master?

Are you watching, day by day,
That no trifling speech or action
May cause you dissatisfaction,

Or cause stumbling in the way?

Do you pray for help from heaven,

Strength for trembling heart?

Don't you know that God has spoken?

And his word he ne'er has broken—

When you do your part!

Are you not sometimes reliant

Oa yourself for strength?

Does the Holy Spirit leave you,

And sore trials vex and grieve you,

Showing you at length

Your own weakness? O, how futile

To attempt to live,

Saint of God, and then to follow

Worldly ways; all such are hollow

Mockeries, the world doth give.

Strive to live the blessed gospel,

The reward is great!

Ours the precious consolation

Of a present revelation,
But—the way is straight.

ELLA J. GREEN.

ONSLow, Iowa, April 30, 1893.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOUGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

[THE article below from the pen of Sr. Julia Hansen, Superintendent of the Pottawattamie, Iowa, district, is full of points well worth our most careful thought. The "needs" there mentioned, while observed in her district, are the same as are to a greater or less degree observed in every district of the church. We do have many, yes very many, "willing workers," but the growing work needs more. In fact, the supply has never been adequate to the needs, thus making the burden (if such you choose to call it) the heavier upon those who were willing to bear it. May we all be ready and always ready to do our part.—ED.]

THE NEEDS OF THE DISTRICT.

(From the Pottawattamie, Iowa, district convention.)

IN looking at this subject I am reminded of Holmes's stirring lines:—

"God give us men! A time like this demands Great hearts, strong minds, true faith, and willing hands."

And it seems in these words are summed up our needs. Give us "great hearts," hearts large enough to take in every child in the district, and never to be content to sit with folded hands until he is enrolled a member of the Sunday school; no matter how ragged and uncultured, or how elegant and refined he may be.

Give us "strong minds," that are not afraid to stand by the right, and are not moved from our position, even though the winds of adversity beat hard against us, but are determined to breast the storm of opposition, let it come from whatsoever source it may, even though our deepest wounds are received from those who profess to be our friends.

Give us "true faith." How much we all need this priceless gift. Faith in ourselves, faith in our fellow workers, faith in the little ones for whom we are laboring, faith in the divine element which is placed in every human heart even though it sometimes seems to be entirely crushed out by evil; and most of all, unflinching faith in him whom we are trying to serve; and, perhaps hardest of all, faith in those from whom we feel that we have a right to expect aid and encouragement, but receive instead discouragement.

And last, give us "willing hands," for without these all the other gifts will avail us but little. Our greatest need is willing workers; those who are willing to teach and will make the preparation necessary in order to do good work; those who are willing to visit the parents and try to persuade them to come and bring their children to Sunday school; those who will "in honor prefer one another," and are ever ready to take the lowest position, leaving the higher ones for some one else; those who are not afraid of being second choice; those who will make a study of Sunday school work in all of its phases, and be prepared to push the work along more rapidly; those who will try as hard to make the school interesting every Sunday as they do when some distinguished visitor is present; those who take for their motto "Thou God seest me" and constantly keep it in mind; those who will do what the occasion requires, even though they must thereby sacrifice some longed-for pleasure or time that they would like to give to every-day work or self-improvement.

But we must learn that there is a more important work than even that; that the Sunday school must never be neglected, but that Sunday after Sunday will always find us at our post, unless hindered by circumstances beyond our control, and that we must be prepared. But we are so busy, we have not always time to get our lessons; the crops must be tended, the kitchen floor scrubbed, that new dress or that "perfectly lovely" doily, or tidy that is "just too sweet for anything" must be finished, or the closing chapters of that interesting book read. Let us think a moment: When we stand before Him who shall separate the sheep from the goats, which will give us the greater satisfaction, to know that our crops always brought the highest market price because of being carefully tended, our floor was always spotless, our stove rivaled a mirror, or seeing the children of our Sunday school numbered among those on his right hand and hear him say to us, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." We must not think the time too valuable to be spent in working for these little ones.

But there is one sacrifice that to many seems the hardest of all to make. Let me right here repeat a little story that I once heard. Down among the foothills of the Pyrenees Mountains stood a white stone monastery, where every day the monks went through their round of work, repeating their prayers, counting their beads, and distributing their alms. One of their number had often heard glowing descriptions of the beauty of the sunrise as seen from the mountain top, and one morning while his brothers were still asleep, he climbed from the window of his cell, determined to see for himself. Slowly he made his way up the mountain side until he reached the top, and there beheld the wondrous scene, as the gates of the morning were opened, and the king of day came forth in his majesty. Forgotten was the toilsome journey, as, standing entranced, gazing on this marvelous display, he thought how glorious it would be to live there on the mountain, where every day he could have the privilege that he had to-day enjoyed;—but hark! deep down from the valley comes the sound of the monastery bell, calling the monks to prayer, and as he listens it seems to say, "Down, down, Delmonico, down. Down to your prayers and to your alms. Down, Delmonico, down." He hesitates. Shall he leave the beauty and the grandeur that he sees around him, to return to the old routine of work? Why should he? He would much rather stay awhile longer where he is, but again the monastery bell speaks, repeating the same message, "Down, Delmonico, down," and reluctantly he wends his way downward, enters his cell, and takes up his daily work.

Why have I told this story, and what is the application? The Sunday school is the monastery. We the monks who must work there. The mountain top is our quarterly conferences; two-days' meetings, or reunions, where we all so much enjoy going, where we meet those whose mere presence thrills us, and the clasp of whose hands is an inspiration; and we think, how much we should enjoy being always in such society; but the bell of duty calls, "Down, down to your work in the Sunday school." Shall we heed its call, or will we enjoy ourselves even though some child may come to Sunday school, and finding no one there to welcome him, resolves that next Sunday he'll stay at home, or perhaps go fishing? Let us remember what is said about "offending one of these little ones."

Not that none of us should attend these gatherings, but that the superintendent should see to it that there is some one to take charge of the Sunday school. Surely there should be enough "willing hands" not to make this a burden to anyone; but by taking turn in looking after the school, we need never miss a session.

But says some one, there are not enough that come to make it worth while to try to have Sunday school when there is a quarterly conference or two days' meeting near. How many are required to make it worth while? If one child comes it is certainly worth while being there to show him that we are not inconsistent, urging him to attend regularly when we don't have school regularly; and be sure that he will never forget the time when he was the only one in the class, if we endeavor to make that lesson the brightest one of the quarter; and he will in after years look back to that day as a sweet memory.

We are so apt to overlook the little things, thinking them of little or no consequence, but it is watching for and taking advantage of the little things that makes the difference between success and failure, between a lively, interesting school, and one that is almost lifeless.

Life is made up of little things, and the missing of one session of Sunday school may be the turning point in some child's career, leading him away from the school and its influences.

It is needful for us to go to the mountain top as often as we can, to receive the inspiration necessary to help us in our work, but let us beware how we neglect the children of our school.

We find some "willing hands" in every school in the district; but we need more, many more. The Sunday school is here to stay. At the General Convention it was stated repeatedly by the missionaries that where they found a good Sunday school, there was nearly always a live branch.

The school and the church must go hand in hand, the school always looking up to its superior, and receiving aid and instruction from it; and the church not forgetting that the school is one of its most powerful allies.

When this condition is reached we shall see the schools more wide-awake, the church services more spiritual, and the cause of the Master making rapid strides.

JULIA HANSEN.

Letter Department.

PIPE CREEK, Texas, July 11.

Editors Herald:—Since the 1st of June I have hardly had time to raise my head, trying if possible to arouse the saints of Southwest Texas. On my arrival at San Antonio I found the saints in the Oakwood and San Antonio branches trying very hard to take a quiet nap, but being constantly annoyed in their dreams by a consciousness of neglected duty toward God and the cause in which they have engaged. Their sleep is disturbed by muttering not lawful to be uttered.

After visiting a few days and preaching from house to house, prescribing the best remedies known to the writer, to if possible counteract the effect of that poisonous drug administered to many honest souls by his Satanic Majesty, whose abode is in the midst of darkness and the shadows of spiritual death. Some may ask, What is that dreadful drug that produces such an effect? We answer, that the first dose is "Neglect of known duty" to God and the church on the part of branch officers, which throws the whole machine out of gear and out of working order. Secondly, neglect on the part of heads of families whose duties are to pray in their homes with their families, vocally and in secret, and to set such examples in all things as are worthy of imitation. And when these things are neglected, the door stands open for the dark shadows of lethargy, indifference, commingled with murmurings and faultfindings, until many of the honest in heart are caught in the soothing arms of forgetfulness and are soon rocked to sleep, only to wake to find themselves surrounded by black wastes and blasted hopes.

Passing on up in to the "hill country" of Western Texas, where the water is better and the heat not so intense as it is at this time of year in the city and vicinity of San Antonio, my first effort is at Pipe Creek, where a reasonably full house greeted me, giving the very best of attention and treatment. Then on to the west prong of the Medina to meet with the district conference to begin on the 17th of June. On account of the absence of all the district officials no conference was had, but a ten days' meeting followed, which I think resulted in good. One young man baptized, many more express themselves almost persuaded. Visiting and preaching at several other points I find myself again at Pipe Creek and am made glad to meet a well behaved and attentive congregation who bring their dinners on the ground, and beneath the spreading live oak we surround a table spread with all the good things necessary to satisfy all present, and many more, had they been present. A day thus spent leaves good impressions and a desire to meet again, which will be one month hence, when the district conference will meet here, beginning on the evening of August 12 followed by a week's camp meeting, at which time we hope to meet a full representation from all the branches in the district.

From now until that time I expect to labor in this mountain country and then pass on east into the vicinity of San Antonio, and then into the Texas Central district.

Asking an especial interest in the prayers of the saints in all parts in behalf of the work in Texas,

Yours in gospel bonds,

T. J. SHEPPARD.

FLOMATON, Ala., July 4.

Editors Herald:—It is with pleasure that I have tried the Reorganized Church by the Bible and find it to agree with the teaching of the Bible exactly; and I am willing to risk my soul within its fold, and let the outside world say what it pleases. And if any of the elders of the Reorganized Church should come this way, and find me worthy enough, I would like to unite with that body. I find people here in sympathy with the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, but secretly, while others are bitter enemies. My address is Flomaton, Alabama, and if any of the elders come this way they will find themselves welcome at my house. We are poor, but freehearted.

As ever,

J. L. MIZE.

MAITLAND, Mo., July 18.

Editors Herald:—I wrote to the Herald last from Rosendale, in March, having had quite an experience there with churches and trustees. One sermon in the Christian church and four in the Methodist was our beginning in Rosendale, and perhaps our ending, so far as preaching in the churches is concerned. Afterward I preached in a schoolhouse near town and four, heads of families, were baptized.

In company with Bro. D. A. Hutchings I returned to Rosendale lately with our district tent, but never met with more prejudice anywhere. The attendance was small, still we believe good influences were at work as well as bad, and hope for the future to bring forth some fruit. One man gave his name for baptism, but opposition from his family caused him to reconsider.

We set up our tent here last Thursday, the 14th; everything is going along satisfactorily; had a large audience last night; a number of the Ross Grove saints were present and encouraged us by their presence and assistance in singing.

I am pleased to note the progress of the work in this immediate vicinity, especially in the Ross Grove branch. Several additions by baptism during the last year have strengthened this branch, and a church will be erected before cold weather comes again. A Sunday school has lately been organized, and for the present Mr. William Rowlett kindly furnishes his unoccupied renters' house for meeting purposes. Through the influence of a certain sect, Squaw Creek schoolhouse was closed against us, but the work moves along, and has taken a new impetus. The saints are living faithful and future prospects are bright.

Bro. R. K. Ross has succeeded in arranging a debate between Rev. Shamberger, of the Dunkard or Brethren Church, and I. N. White, our missionary in charge, to come off in September. The Dunkard church house, about seven miles west of Maitland will likely be the place of contest. May truth gloriously triumph, and error be ingloriously routed wherever it is entrenched.

Bro. Hutchings and myself are being well fed and cared for and have need of nothing, but money; it takes a little of that to operate a tent.

I am still, brethren, sisters, and friends, here and elsewhere,

Yours in the faith,

M. F. GOWELL.

BOZEMAN, Mont., July 11.

Editors Herald:—I have just returned from a trip through the Deer Lodge Valley. I find that the Utah elders are very active in the western part of the State in their glaring misrepresentations of facts, in regard to the latter-day work and some of its representatives. They have told it over there that when you (Pres. Joseph Smith) were in Utah you told your cousin that you knew you had no right to preside over the church, but that there was a living in it, and a little money, so that is the reason you stay with it. And again they tell it about the country among those that do not know the difference in the churches that the Reorganized Church practices and believes in polygamy. The only difference they say is that the Reorganized Church is not so honest in the matter as they are; and many other stories of like character they circulate to try to injure and destroy the work.

I don't think we can make our statements too strong for those fellows, from what I have seen of their works. From now on I intend to hunt them as I would so many hounds. They claim to have from forty-five to sixty elders laboring in this State. Ignorance and cheek are all the necessary qualifications to proselyte for Brighamism, and blind zeal without knowledge is all the inspiration necessary.

In bonds,

GOMER REESE.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 13.

Editors Herald:—In company with Bro. A. J. Keck I begun tent work in West Pullman, June 18, where we held fifteen services. But as very little interest was manifested, we took the tent down on the 30th inst., and began to look about for another location. We made some inquiry about Englewood, and had some thought of locating there for awhile, but by consultation with the saints in that part it was deemed impracticable at present. After much search we finally located in Gano, at the junction of One Hundred and Sixteenth Street, and Michigan Avenue.

We began meetings here on the night of the 8th inst., and so far have had a good hearing; we hope it may continue. We have a beautiful location, and just at present are well equipped, Bro. and Sr. Barker having loaned us a small tent to use in connection with the district tent; which, with bedding loaned by other saints and friends, enables us to live with the tent.

The saints here have stood by, and nobly aided us in the work. Brn. G. H. Henley, Francis Earl, H. C. Morgan, R. N. Burwell, Theodore Grobske, and J. A. King, with their companions, have given us special aid and assistance, for which we feel truly grateful. Brn. L. F. Daniel and J. C. Haas, with their wives, have also given special assistance.

We have begun to raise money to purchase a folding organ for tent use; we have written the saints in every part of this district, but have received no response as yet. The saints of the West Pullman branch have raised ten dollars for that purpose, which we think is a good beginning. Now if the saints in the other branches will do as well, we will soon have an organ for the tent. How is it, ye saints of the Northeastern Illinois district? Can't you help us in this object?

Sunday at 10:30 a. m. we had preaching in the tent, after which we walked to the West Pullman hall, and were agreeable surprised to find our genial brother, F. M. Cooper, in the pulpit preaching one of his characteristic sermons. At 3:15 p. m., we attended a spiritual sacramental service. At night Bro. Cooper preached for us in the tent. He and companion are now both with us. We think he will remain till next Sunday.

The work now, looks more encouraging than in the past. We hope and pray that it may continue so. Bro. Terry is battling away in the city, but we have not learned of just what success he is meeting with. We will continue here, as long as interest justifies. I expect to go home on a visit to my family about August 1.

Your brother,

H. E. MOLER.

MODALE, Iowa, July 16.

Editors Herald:—Once more I approach you with information of my whereabouts and doings since last communication.

While I had labored in this mission over four years as a missionary previous to my two years missionary work in Nebraska, yet I find such changes having occurred that makes the work partially new, and in some respects peculiarly new, there being phases of opposing influences which I have not hitherto met; but I am beginning to understand the situation so that I hope to see more effectual work done by the general and local workers. One of the main hindrances so far this year has been affliction, either on the part of the missionaries or their families. Another hindrance that has been and is being felt, is a lack of feeling the responsibilities resting upon those who have in their possession a knowledge of the truth, and as a consequence not willing to make the necessary sacrifices that the work may move with that rapidity it should in this the hastening time. Too many seem to conclude that the time to serve God is when they have all else done that relates to this life. However, I have seen some notable cases of the opposite, and the self-sacrificing spirit manifest is encouraging to the servants of the Almighty, and the effects of such cannot but be made effectual for good in the heavenly Father's hands.

I have received communications from a few local laborers proffering to assist in missionary work, to whom I say, The field is white for the harvest, feel free to enter into the service wherever openings can be made agreeable to local authorities. My anxiety for the advancement of the work is such as to cause me to urge all the local laborers who can to occupy, even though it may be in weakness. Don't wait for some one to find something for you to do, but seek, as you love God and appreciate his work, openings and enter into the service with the whole soul. Tell the gospel story, and not be anxious to show up the weaknesses found in other faiths. Preach repentance to this generation, is the God-given duty. Seek to prepare your mind for the service to be rendered, by prayer and study, and let the peace of God rule in your hearts, being subject in righteousness to all who are over you in the Lord, either local or general, and sustain them by your prayers that they may control God's work always in harmony with God's righteousness.

Since the close of the Williams-Bays debate I have tried to furnish the items of it, and in the preparation of which much time was spent, and while thus occupying the hours of the day I sought to occupy the evening time presenting the word. The tent work at Logan, Iowa, which occupied over two weeks, and which was entered upon by advice of former missionaries, resulted in good to the work in a general way. One was baptized who bids fair to become a truly devoted child of God. Began tent work where we now are, about six miles southwest of Mondamin, last Friday week, and although the farmers are very busy, some plowing corn, some haying, and some harvesting, yet good audiences ranging from about fifty to three hundred greet us. As yet there has not been much open opposition, yet it is known that much prejudice exists.

My colaborers have been somewhat hindered by affliction as well as myself, as above referred to. Bro. A. M. Fyrando's health is, however, some better, although his mother's health is poor. Bro. Hubert Case was detained for a time on account of his wife's health, but now is bearing his share of the burden and rejoicing in God. My companion has been sorely afflicted, and thus has added to my burdens, and was still afflicted when last heard from, but trusting that God will rule all things for good. I am trying to do the Master's will and to manifest as much cheerfulness as possible under these peculiar circumstances. Bro. Robert Chambers is rendering some assistance, and the prospects are, if studious and prayerful, that he will do a good work for the Lord.

We continue here over next week with the tent with bright prospects for a large attendance, and we trust an ingathering.

Bro. Hubert Case will visit Blencoe and vicinity to look after the work and the prospects of tent work there.

I urge the saints not to forget that the missionaries oftentimes have need of financial assistance, and each should remember them as they can, and by this means assist the work of God.

Any in this mission who may desire labor will please so inform me at Magnolia, Iowa, and I will see such desires are satisfied as soon as possible. Many calls have already come, but of those which come to me I will make selection as I may be directed by the spirit of wisdom given me.

My desire for the redemption of Zion increases daily, and my desire to do my part to hasten such conditions correspondingly increases, but it seems just in that proportion hindrances arise to try to thwart my desires.

May God bless all who have so kindly remembered me in the past, and while I may not be able to correspond with you all on account of both postage and time, yet I oftentimes affectionately remember you in prayer.

Desiring to be remembered in your petitions to God, I am

Your brother,
J. F. MINTUN.

ADEL, Iowa, July 15.

Editors Herald:—I attended the Des Moines district conference held at Nevada, June 3, where I was left in charge of the district tent. I continued the services one week with good interest; baptized a gentleman aged eighty-one and a lady eighty-six years old.

I then moved the tent to Perry, where I remained three weeks. We had good interest; at times the tent could not hold the people. Just as I was ready to leave for Adel, two gave their names for baptism, so I left arrangements for baptismal services next Sunday.

I have just set up the tent in Adel, the county seat of Dallas County, and held one service, which is the first Latter Day Saint work done in this city. We are hopeful. I have been ably assisted by Bro. J. W. Morgan, who is a faithful servant of the Lord and has left all to spread the latter-day gospel. He is a good, earnest preacher, and I hope it will not be long until the church will recognize his true worth and give him a mission, that his family may receive some aid.

The acts of kindness shown me by the noble and generous saints of Perry will ever be remembered by me.

In gospel bonds,
W. H. KEPHART.

ONO, Wis., July 13.

Editors Herald:—One week ago to-day I bade home and friends good-bye at East Delavan, and boarding Nahum's chariot started for the northern part of the State, to assist in spreading the beautiful gospel, as restored by the hand of the angelic messenger. We are living in the evening of time when we can see the prophet utterances of over two thousand years ago having their fulfillment before our very eyes. And all the wisdom and learning of the world cannot overthrow the work of the Lord that was brought about through the instrumentality of the Choice Seer, ignorant and unlearned boy that he was. And while he has been looked upon by the world as an impostor and a fraud, and his name and character have been evil spoken of wherever civilization has gained a foothold, the time will come when the life work, and character of Joseph Smith will shine out to the world brighter than the noon-day sun. And the day is not far distant when it will be looked upon as honorable to be called a Latter Day Saint. And we shall be as a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord. So let us lift up our heads and rejoice as we see the hour of our redemption drawing nigh; and as we see the world groveling in the darkness amid the mists of superstition and priestcraft, and following their blind leaders who are teaching for doctrine the commandments of men and laboring for the honor and glory of this world, let us look to God who is the giver of all that we have and enjoy in life, and return him thanks for the light of the restored gospel as it has been revealed to us in these the latter days.

I am at present attending a series of grove meetings which is being held at this place. Fair crowds and good interest are the result so far. As a rule good liberty is enjoyed by those who present the word, carrying conviction to the hearts of those who are honest. Meetings will continue the remainder of this week and over Sunday.

F. A. BALL.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 11.

Editors Herald:—Over one year has passed since I left my native land, and I have no doubt but what my friends and brethren would like to learn how things are progressing in America. I would say that trade is very bad here and money very close, hence, I would advise the saints of England and Wales to remain where they are providing they are doing moderately well financially.

We are still busy in the Lord's work in the city of Scranton. We cannot report rapid progress, but have held our own during the past twelve months, and God has blessed our labor by adding four precious souls to his kingdom. There are quite a number of our people in this vicinity, some are feeling well spiritually, and are desirous that God's work shall prosper; others are lukewarm, careless, and indifferent; others have gone into bye and forbidden paths. Whether they will ever retrace their steps and again walk in the narrow path time alone can say.

In a large city like Scranton it seems to me that we should have a large branch, but the indifference of some and the bad conduct of others militates against our success. But nevertheless through it all we are succeeding fairly well.

About a month ago Elder Willard J. Smith arrived in Scranton, and he at once commenced to work in earnest. He gave an excellent discourse the first Sabbath morning in our hall which won at once the hearts of the saints. He has preached during the week nights in Dunmore and Taylor. Will preach this week in Providence and Priceburg, making the hall the rallying point for Sabbaths. He is a most pleasing and forcible speaker. On the second Sunday after his arrival he delivered a lecture on "Mormonism, or the Inconsistencies of Brigham Youngism." We had a number of placards printed and I took two days placing them in the windows of the most prominent tradesmen of the town; and on the night of the lecture our large hall was crowded, and I can assure you that Bro. Smith did the subject justice. He spoke without a falter for two hours. The effort was grand, and the church was never brought more prominently before the citizens of Scranton. He has also written some telling letters in a weekly paper called the Scrantonian, which I think will bear fruit in due season.

On the 4th of July our Sunday school held a picnic in the woods by Jacob's well. We had a grand time—bananas, peanuts, candies, ice cream, cakes, lemonade, ham sandwiches in abundance; and we thought we would employ the preacher so we had him to cut up the hams. I would have been delighted if Sr. Smith could have seen her better half with his white apron before him, trying to satisfy the sixty-seven Scrantonians that were anxiously waiting for their sandwiches. However, he came out of the ordeal well. Bro. Smith calculates remaining three months with us. We hope the Lord will crown his efforts with success. I will not enter into any more particulars, as I presume Bro. Smith himself will write your pages ere long. Ever praying for Zion's prosperity,

Faithfully yours,

A. N. BISHOP.

BLAIRSTOWN, Mo., July 16.

Editors Herald:—The work is progressing slowly through this section. People have been very busy in farming and the hearings have been small. Brn. Rufus White, W. E. Haden, and C. P. Welsh have been laboring in this part of the district. Bro. White had to return home on account of some business. We held a ten-days' meeting at Calhoun in the gospel tent; good hearing. Last Sunday, July 10, I baptized two near this place. Today we open with tent at Ulrich, Missouri, nine miles southwest of here. May continue two weeks. Ulrich is a new place for us. Shall go with tent to Deepwater.

Yours in the gospel,

D. C. WHITE.

MANCHESTER, Eng., June 15.

Editors Herald:—There has been much in your valuable columns lately on "coöperation," and a desire has come over me to let the saints know what we are doing in that direction. About two years ago a few of us Latter Day Saints got our heads together to form a church building fund, for the purpose of building meeting houses and to help the work in general; so we got a few pounds together and started a "coöperative store," to sell groceries, hardware, etc. We thought that about the best way we knew of to make money for the above object. Although not all practical grocers, still one or two of the committee have had a little to do with it years ago; but times have altered since then.

The president of the society is High Priest Joseph Dewsnup; secretary, Elder James Baty. We have for stores two large cellars, kindly loaned us by the president and his estimable wife, Sr. Dewsnup. We formed certain rules to go by. One is that we always pay ready money for our goods, and also to sell the best article; and now we have a valuable stock all paid for of course, and nearly thirty pounds in the bank. We take between eight and nine pounds per week.

The reader will say, "That is not much to build meetinghouses with;" but wait; remember that everything has a beginning, and the store is yet in its infancy; and take into consideration that we paid the end of last quarter, March 31, two shillings in the pound to the members, and it will be about the same the end of this quarter, in June. Our sale is to the members only; we send out their groceries by cart once a week. By and by we shall take a shop, which of course will be open all day. We shall then be able to pay a manager. At present we have no expenses, but expect the manager will more than pay for himself.

There is a good number of saints here who do not seem to take much interest in church coöperation (although good sound saints), but they will coöperate fast enough with outside stores. If we could only get the remainder of them to join us we would do much better. Why they don't help us in this undertaking is best known to themselves; but I think we are doing remarkably well. We are not practical grocers, therefore we perhaps don't make up the stuff to look so nice (and I must confess looks go a long ways) as more experienced grocers; but our stuff is good and clean, and by paying ready money and a good price we expect to get a good article. Now and then we get some inferior article, but when it is discovered we generally send it back. Our buyer is the president of the society, and although we cannot expect him to compete with more experienced buyers, for a novice he has done splendidly, just as he does in everything else he undertakes.

What our people here are afraid of I don't know; whether they think we shall break down or what, I don't know; but we don't intend to give up so long as health keeps good, and if that gives way we expect there will be somebody else to carry it on. We are in too prosperous a condition to give up; our motto is "onward." If the committee saw the least signs of going to the bad, they would stop buying in at once, sell the stock, and divide the money. We should then be able to pay twenty shillings in the pound.

It seems strange to me that the saints would rather patronize the shops or storekeepers outside than their own people, for are we not one family? And we read in God's word that if any provide not for his own, especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith. If the saints went to these store or shopkeepers to ask them to subscribe something towards building a meetinghouse, the first thing they would likely ask them would be, "What church or denomination do you belong to?" They would say in a moment with all boldness, "I belong to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." Now that information what would it fetch? Most likely a dirty kick out of the door for their impudence. The name Latter Day Saint, of which we are so proud, is a snare to those outside the church. What we shall get from the outside world we shall have to work hard for.

I am looking forward to the time when we shall not only build meetinghouses, but shall also get a saints' home, same as they have in America. The reader will think we expect to do a lot out of the stores. Well, it does seem rather big talk, but there is many a large firm, even in this city, that started under less favorable circumstances. Why not we prosper? No one ever started with a purer motive than we. We did not embark in this undertaking with the object of getting rich in this world's goods, but to help the saints and the work in general; and knowing that our object is a pure one, we feel that the Lord will bless us. I believe the time has come that the saints should begin to look after themselves, and not be so dependent upon others for labor. I believe God will always help those who help themselves in right doing. I wish our people could only see the good they would do themselves by uniting together. Through hard work and perseverance of the committee the greatest difficulties have been overcome, and we are now in a splendid way for bettering our position, especially if all the saints in this city would take an interest in the stores and give us a helping hand. I wonder sometimes, after we are in a position to build a meetinghouse and those saints who are now fighting shy of us, what will be their thoughts when they enter in for worship? I know what my thoughts would be; they would be something like this: Here is a building all our own and a few brethren and sisters struggled hard to get it together and I stood by and never as much as gave them an encouraging word, let alone helping them in any other way. It is hard when you come to think that some are so unwilling to help, for are we not one family of the fold of Christ? And we know the world, especially the so-called Christian world, are against us; therefore we ought the more to hang together in every good work; and we believe our coöperative store to be a good work. If I thought otherwise, I would have nothing to do with it; and I feel sure that is the feeling of the remainder of the committee.

W. MADDOCK.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., July 20.

Editors Herald:—To-day finds me in St. Louis; came here ten days ago, and have held nine preaching meetings here and two at Cheltenham. This great city with nearly six hundred thousand inhabitants, with not a hundredth part Latter Day Saints, makes our importance here almost like a "needle in a haystack." However, it appears our cause is planted here to stay. The branch is growing slowly but "steadily onward." Bro. Walters preceded me a few days, and tried his hand at "city preaching," just long enough to comprehend why Jesus cried to the careless and unbelieving Jews: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, . . . and ye would not."

Pleasure seeking and the love for the "almighty dollar," is the "stock in trade" with an exceeding large majority. Let a close observer "take a day off" and run over this vast city, and he will become discouraged, if he has been entertaining an idea that the world was almost ready to be converted to Christ. Not a hundredth part are now nominal Christians. It is a puzzle to me of, How are we to reach the people? It looks to me that if Christ will not come till all these people have heard the "angel's message," it will be a million years yet before that day can be ushered in, unless God opens up some new avenue for them to hear, which now I do not see. Christ in Matthew 24: 14 says: "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Had he said, "preached to every individual," instead of "all nations," we might at least put off Christ's second advent for another thousand or two years and then be upon safe grounds. Since we are all looking forward to that day with longing expectations for a "joyful time," I am reminded that we must be individually concerned as to our standing and worth before God, to do that part of the work that is allotted to us, and leave all the consequences that may follow therefrom to him that has called us and commanded us to go forth and preach His gospel to "every creature," so far as we can reach them. The "signs of the times" are of no little moment to those that are "in the light," in witness of the near approach of Christ's second advent. There are but the few that will be ready to meet him and receive the applaudit "Well done." It is not hard to see "evil seducers" have waxed "worse," and people are more ready to receive "another gospel" than that left by the humble Nazarene. It requires considerable patience, to be "patient," and to have "compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way." Seeing that I am "compassed with infirmities" myself, I see the need of praying for "charity," the "pure love of God," which enables us to see the good that is in man, whether it be much or little.

Bro. Walters and I leave St. Louis the 21st for Parrish, Illinois, where we expect to assist the saints in a reunion for ten days. I have completed the arrangements for a debate with the Dunkard brethren near Mound City, Missouri, commencing September 12, upon church propositions. Bro. H. O. Smith, of St. Joseph, is indorsed to do the debating on our side. Let the brethren take notice, and make all arrangements accordingly. I am glad to note that Bro. H. O. will have to meet the champion debater of the Dunkard Church. He comes recommended as a scholar, debater, and a gentleman. I hope Bro. Smith will find him all this. The Dunkards have a large following in and near Mound City, and the debate will prove of no little importance to us. Let Bro. Smith be remembered by the saints. We have, seemingly affected arrangements for another debate to be held in the near future, near Spickards, Missouri, with one Rev. Fry. There has been a world of "quibbling" in trying to get Rev. Fry to agree upon propositions, but we believe have at last come so near to his own terms that he will be compelled to accept my last of a few days ago. Brethren at Spickards will be interested to hear of the "agreement."

Good reports are coming from some parts of the fields, in the last few days. Bro. Keck has just closed a successful tent meeting at Hallwell, Kansas; reports tent full and running over. Ammon White, our own son, though young in years, and experience too, so far as preaching is concerned, reports of being all alone with the tent at Cameron, but tent filled and many on the outside, and God was blessing him with liberty in presenting the word to the people. Bro. Alfred White was to join him in a few days. Bro. Pender and others of the ministry in Kansas are anticipating larger crowds when the grain harvest is over. Bro. Sparling is ably holding the fort in tent meetings at Springfield; crowds not large but some interest. Brn. A. Haws and R. May, assisted by Bro. Arthur Allen and others of the local force, are working up quite an interest in tent meetings in Kansas City. They have manfully stemmed the tide of the "pleasure seeker," and induced the many to hear the glad message they so humbly bear. Other brethren in different parts of the field report the work as in fair condition.

Let all be hopeful and cheer up, as the work is of God and he will care for it. Don't forget that ministers should be leaders in "good deeds" and always the first to keep their lives pure and in harmony with the written law of God. "Be ye pure that bear the vessels of the Lord," must be the watchword to the minister that expects to labor successfully in the army of the Lord. "Ye are the light of the world," if you keep in unison with the angel's message. May the good work not suffer reproach by reason of unwise actions from any of the ministry, shall be our prayer.

In gospel bonds,

I. N. WHITE.

MARION, Iowa, July 20.

Editors Herald:—Last evening about an hour before sundown a tornado struck this town and our district tent was completely wrecked. It will be of no use whatever to the district, unless it might be sold for ribbons, of which there are several hundred yards scattered around near where the tent stood. The storm came on with only about ten minutes warning and gave us no time to lower the side poles or to cut ropes. In fact, it did not look to be so bad a storm as it proved to be. Five years experience with tent work has taught me that a tent better be reasonably tight than too loose, and to lower the top without lowering the side poles is sure to tear it. So we had it in as good a condition as we could, except down and rolled up, and this we did not have time to do.

Bro. David Thomas and I were both in the tent when it blew to pieces, and both got a thorough drenching with the rain. The poles, chairs, lamps, and other fixtures, except ropes and curtains, were not injured. We had an organ rented which was blown over and injured, but we repaired it this morning so that it is quite as good as new again. One would think from the knots in the ropes that the elves had surely been at work. Several ropes were twisted and tied into a knot almost as large as a man's head. We will probably store the poles and chairs at Bro. John Newlin's till such time as we can get a new top. Think perhaps we will have cloth enough left for side curtains.

Our loss was small as the tent would not have lasted longer than this season. The action of the district conference in refusing to purchase a new top until next year was a wise move. We were to have moved the tent to-day to Wilton Junction but "the best-laid plans of mice and men gang aft a-glee." Our plans for the season having been broken into, I scarcely have my bearings yet, but will try and open up the work in new places. My address for a short time will be Viola, Linn County, Iowa.

Our meetings here were quite successful. Some enemies were made friends, and some friends were made more friendly. None were baptized, but may be in the near future. Four were baptized at Viola and others await baptism.

In bonds of peace,

J. W. PETERSON.

FOSTER, Iowa, July 20.

Editors Herald:—Our tent meetings at Hiteman closed last Sunday night with the largest attendance we had been favored with from the beginning. We commenced on the 6th inst. Held sixteen services in all, one of which was held in the church. The attendance was usually small, in the tent, but we had a goodly number of attendants outside.

The leading purpose of these meetings was a defense of the faith and doctrine of the church against the unprovoked attacks of Miss Emma Parsons, and Rev. A. K. Williams, pastor of the First Baptist Church, at Hiteman. Very few of the Baptists came out, excepting, possibly, at our last two meetings. Rev. Williams did not attend at all. On the 13th inst. I sent him a letter to which he replied on the 15th. I sent him a second communication on the 16th to which, as yet, I have received no reply. The correspondence is somewhat interesting, especially as showing the peculiar attitude of Rev. Williams towards a discussion of the real issues existing between the two churches. I have written an article for publication in the Monroe County News, published at Albia. Have not yet learned what its fate will be. We are in good shape, at present, and I am pleased to say that the Hiteman branch is in much better condition than it was. I hope the saints have learned an important lesson which will never be forgotten.

We are to begin here to-night; were hindered by the rain last evening. I expect to return to Hiteman on Saturday, so as to be present at the Baptist church Sunday evening, and listen to the lecture of Rev. A. K. Williams, on the prophetic claims of Joseph Smith and "Mormonism."

Yours for the conflict,

J. R. LAMBERT.

Original Articles.

INDUSTRIAL ECONOMICS.

THE system or method that will bring "the greatest good to the greatest number," ought to interest every Latter Day Saint from prophet to lay member, provided it is practicable. It seems to me that if the tithing system in the church is to be sustained and properly adhered to by the membership, that the condition or social relations that will bring to each toiler the just share of what he, by his own brain and hands produces, is the proper condition to obtain. Statistics tell us that the toilers' products in the United States amounts to about two thousand dollars per man and the average pay is but three hundred and forty-six, leaving a balance of one thousand six hundred and fifty-four to go into the coffers of those that hardly lift a finger in its production.

If those who recognize the law of tithing are blessed under the present unjust social conditions, how much more would they be blessed under a system that would bring to the "common people"—toilers—a more equitable share of their honest efforts? Does the Golden Rule obtain amongst us in our industrial relations? If not, why not? Is our love to God so strong that like the Pharisee we are looking Godward and thus looking above our neighbors' industrial and social needs? Perhaps we are like the priest, or Levite, and we pass on the other side, the wrong side, of our neighbors' needs and leave the toiler to the merciless thieves and cut-throats of the present unjust social system.

What can be done? What is the remedy? asks one. I would answer, Remove the cause. And what's the cause? you ask. Competition! And the remedy? The very opposite, co-operation. Rev. A. M. Fairbairn once said in the Contemporary Review in speaking of the churches:—

They ought to be the weightiest preachers of economic doctrine, building on the principles of Christian brotherhood and equity an ideal industrial society, where all should work and work be honored; where wealth without any schemes of violent and wrongful division should by the action of moral laws through moral men be so distributed as to create a State where poverty was unknown and charity was unneeded.

The reason, and the only reason, that I advocate the views herein expressed, is that better industrial conditions may obtain, of, by and for the people of the church rather than of, by, and for the individual, although he may belong to the church. We have separated ourselves from Babylon in spiritual things, but we still find ourselves clinging to Babylon's industrial conditions. Did God mean what he said in Doctrine and Covenants, page 222: "Every man seeking the interest of his neighbor, and doing all things with an eye single to the glory of God," or do we fail to apply his words? Why should we confine the word "all" in the above text, to the spiritual and exclude its industrial and social meaning, when we are not willing to allow a partial meaning to the word "all" in the great commission of Jesus Christ to his apostles?

By a union of industrial forces in the church, why not save the hundred-fold, two thousand dollars annual per capita product, instead of less than twenty-fold, or three hundred forty-six dollars, the average wage for each individual? Are there not men enough in the church to manage coöperative industrial enterprises so as to save a portion, at least, of the one thousand six hundred and fifty-four dollars which goes into the pockets of bankers and capitalists who care for neither God, man, or the Devil? Which had we better cater to, if either, the common people or the millionaire? Would it not advance the spiritual opportunities for doing good to mankind if we could offer them better temporal or industrial opportunities?

One of the reasons for the present prestige that the Salvation Army is obtaining is that it offers to help men and women who toil under the wage-slavery system to find a better salvation for the products of their labor, along with the purported salvation of their souls.

After years of study and research the best thing in the reform line that I have been enabled to find is the labor exchange idea which is making rapid strides in all parts of the United States and also making some progress in other lands. It is the most peaceable and practical solution of the labor and some of the other reform questions extant.

The plan is to organize in any community with the regular board of officers and establish a headquarters, or storehouse, where the products of the farm, the mine, the shop, are deposited in return for checks issued by the association. The checks can be passed the same as money for any of the products of the above-named industries or exchanged for land or labor.

When the checks return to the storehouse they are cancelled. Each due bill or check is worth its face value, as the amount it calls for is always backed up by the same value in products at the storehouse. An exchange is kept up continually between other branches so that goods needed by a local branch can always be obtained and excess of products can always find a ready cash market, and thus unemployed labor can, if willing to work, always find employment with a full share of what it produces and sure pay.

The saints should read the September number of the Arena, especially the article on the Labor Exchange by F. W. Cotton. The Book of Mormon indicates that the Nephites exchanged their products, although not with checks perhaps, and I am forced to the opinion that the primitive church must have had some other medium of exchange than Roman money if the same monetary and industrial conditions obtained among the nations of the earth in those days that exist in the world to-day, especially in America.

Would not an Exchange among the saints be a good thing. Need we wait for a commandment in everything before we endeavor to "bring to pass much good."

Write me for further information in regard to these matters. Always inclose a stamp for reply. Several have written me in reply to my articles, but failed to inclose a stamp.

ARTHUR B. PIERCE.

No. 36 Madison St., PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Conference Minutes.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

Conference convened at Wadena, Minnesota, Saturday, June 18, at two p. m., Pres. I. N. Roberts in the chair, G. L. Jones, secretary. Branch reports: Oak Lake 66, Audubon 45, Union 102, Minneapolis 53. Elders reports: E. A. Stedman, A. Whiting, W. Barnhard, T. J. Martin, H. Way, M. O. Erickson, and I. N. Roberts. Priests: W. W. McLeod and C. Pierce. W. W. McLeod, Bishop's agent, reported: Due church January 1, $37.08; received to June 16, $172.50; paid out $220; due agent $10.42. Report of reunion committee read and accepted. The district president to appoint speakers and arrange program for services during reunion. On petition and motion it was voted that Bro. Royal S. Powers be ordained a priest. Elder T. J. Martin was sustained district president for ensuing year. Bro. G. L. Jones secretary, and Bro. W. W. McLeod as Bishop's agent. Religious services commenced Saturday evening, June 18, and continued from day to day until Sunday evening, June 26, the daily program being as follows: Prayer meeting at 9 a. m., preaching at 10:45 a. m., 2:30 and eight p. m. On Sunday afternoon Bro. Royal S. Powers of Union branch was ordained a priest by Elders I. N. Roberts and T. J. Martin. On Wednesday afternoon, June 22, a business meeting was called. Voted that next reunion be held at Detroit, Becker County. A committee of five was chosen to arrange for next reunion; namely, I. N. Roberts, H. Way, T. J. Martin, W. Nunn, and C. Pierce. The time of holding reunion to be left to reunion committee. Next fall conference to be held in Maine, Ottertail County, near Elder W. Barnhard's, the time of holding conference to be left to district president. On Thursday afternoon, June 23, Mrs. Mary Mills was baptized by Elder I. N. Roberts; confirmed same evening by Bishop E. L. Kelley and Elder I. N. Roberts.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Conference convened at Balmain, Sydney, April 9 and 10; Bro. John Kaler president, W. J. Haworth secretary. Branches reporting: Balmain, Tuncurry, Nambucca, Hamilton, and Wallsend. Officers reporting: John Kaler and G. R. Wells, seventies; J. G. Dickenson, H. Broadway, E. J. Haworth, R. Ellis, T. Gregory, A. Seaberg, elders. — Purvis, C. A. Davis, W. C. Ballard, J. Jones, priests. G. Lewis and J. Argent, teachers. W. J. Haworth, W. H. Broadway, E. J. Ballard, deacons. Bishop's agent's report adopted: Income £38. 4s. 6d., expenditures £36. 3s. 10d. Delegates to General Conference: Brn. W. N. Robinson and Russell Archibald, who were empowered to cast the full vote of district. Brn. W. H. Broadway and W. J. Haworth were ordained elders from Hamilton and Wallsend branches respectively. Preaching by Elders Broadway, Haworth, and Kaler. A priesthood meeting was held, presided over by Bro. Kaler. A notice of motion from Wallsend branch, "That any person wishing to change any custom that has been in vogue for any length of time shall notify the district secretary at least one month previous to conference." Adjourned to meet at Wallsend, 1899.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS MISSION.

The saints assembled at Takarua in conference at eight a. m., April 6. After the usual opening exercises the following officers were chosen. As presiding officer, J. F. Burton; assistant, John Hawkins; secretary, D. M. Pohemiti; assistants, Teura, Tetuarere, and Turatahi. Deacons and ushers: Perapu, Roo, Teiva, Taina, Tetaku, Turoa, and Hiti-temanava. The minutes of last conference were read.

The following officers reported: Hubert Case preached 86 times, baptized 24, confirmed 3, ordained 18, and visited 13 islands in the Fakarava division. (Bro. Case left Papeete for America January 26, 1898.) J. F. Burton preached 35 times, baptized 6, confirmed 6, ordained 3, blessed 4 children, married 2 couples, and printed 12,150 of Te Orometua (The Instructor); the "Te Ravea no te Ora" (The Plan of Salvation); and "Hoe Paraparau raa ahiahi," or an evening's conversation, containing altogether 115,200 pages. Tehopea, president of the Tahitian division, preached 17 times, confirmed 5, had labored in Tahiti, Raiatea, and adjacent islands. John Hawkins, president of the Tubuai field of labor, preached 61 times, blessed 4 children, and ordained 1 person. Tapuni, missionary in Tubuai, preached 40 times, ordained 2 persons. Tuteirihia, missionary to Raiatea, preached many times, baptized 4. Taneterau, president of the Fakarava division, preached 23 times, baptized 3, confirmed 2, ordained 1, married 2 couples, blessed 3 children in eight islands of his field of labor. Maevatua, missionary in Fakarava division, preached 39 times, baptized 3, confirmed 3, and ordained 3.

Report from the committee appointed last conference to buy the land of Tarona (Sharon), at Papeete, was read as follows: By order of the conference we met Narii Salmon and Mapuhi, and borrowed $2,000 French money from them—$1,000 from each; to be paid to them by October 1, 1898. With this money we purchased the land, and have obtained title to it. Metuore, Pori, Pohemiti, and Ioane Tamaiti, committee.

Reports from the quorums were read as follows: Elders' quorum. There are 68 members of the quorum present, have met 5 times, have preached 2,621 times, assisted 25 times, baptized 70, confirmed 81, blessed 42 children, ordained 8 persons, taught in question schools 93 times, administered to the sick 728 times, administered the sacrament 111 times, served on elders' courts 74 times, and married 15 couples, expelled Tepoaitu. Priests' quorum met 7 times, preached 516 times, administered the sacrament 2 times, furnished the sacrament 74 times, visited and encouraged the saints 115 times, led in Sabbath school 57 times, and assisted in preaching the gospel 65 times. Teachers' quorum: Preached 439 times, visited and encouraged the church 160 times, settled difficulties among members without the need of elders' court 101 times, ringing the chapel bell 87 times, led in prayer meetings 17 times, taught the law to the church 6 times, watched over or inspected the church 38 times. Deacons' quorum: Preached 122 times, rang the bell 264 times, trimmed the lamps and lighted them 212 times, prepared nicely the house of prayer 55 times, prepared the sacrament 66 times, taught in Sunday school class 70 times, assisted in leading prayer meetings 33 times, assisted the teachers 33 times, prepared the grave 2 times for burial, arranged the missionary house 1 time, secretary of Sabbath school 3 times.

Two p. m. Received reports of officers not reported in the quorums: Elder Herman Jansson preached 18 times, baptized 5, confirmed 1, blessed 1 child, served on elders' courts 4 times, administered to the sick 43 times, and assisted at funerals twice. Elder Tetuaiteval, of Tupuai, had preached 32 times, administered the sacrament 3 times, assisted to lead the prayer meetings 7 times, assisted once in blessing a child. Elder Tautua preached 15 times, baptized 1, administered to the sick once, and blessed olive oil once. Elder Mahana preached 50 times, assisted in prayer meetings 5 times, blessed 1 child, administered to the sick 2 times, administered the sacrament once. Teacher Varoa preached 4 times, and traveled in Tahiti with Elder Petero Derrien. Elder Tuahiva preached 46 times, assisted at sacrament once, and assisted in leading prayer meeting 5 times, led the Sabbath school 9 times. Elder Mauriitera preached 58 times, administered to 4 sick persons, blessed 1 child, assisted in preaching 7 times, assisted in sacrament twice.

Elder Amoetua preached 70 times, furnished the sacrament 5 times.

Report received from the Fourth Quorum of Deacons: Preached 41 times, rang the bell 398 times, lighted the lamps 36 times, prepared the house of prayer 44 times, prepared the sacrament 34 times, led in Sunday school 7 times, assisted in leading prayer meetings 35 times, and as pall bearers 4 times.

Deacon Luko preached 5 times, and visited and encouraged the church 4 times, prepared the house of prayer 6 times, rang the bell 15 times, prepared the sacrament 6 times, assisted in leading prayer meetings 8 times. Deacon Varoa preached 30 times, rang the bell 21 times, prepared the sacrament 4 times, prepared the house of prayer 4 times, assisted the teacher 3 times, assisted the missionaries 7 times. Elder Manaha preached 27 times, assisted in leading prayer meetings 3 times.

The following requests were presented to the conference: Avatoru branch requested the ordination of Marere as elder, and Taihia and Atahi as deacons. Niau branch the ordination of Maopi to the office of priest. Tikahau branch the ordination of Mahurue and Tera as elders, and Rere and Taomihau as priests, and Hiti Temanava as teacher. Apataki the ordination of Teganaehau as elder. Makemo requested the ordination of Luko as elder. Raroia desired Ipu ordained an elder. These requests were granted; several other requests for ordination were refused.

Thursday, 7th. Report of Fourth Quorum of Deacons read: They had received Nuiarai, Teiva, and Tehatuparua into their quorum. Third quorum of deacons reported: They had chosen Mahetau assistant president of the quorum, and Tuao secretary. Teachers' quorum reports having received Tugarue and Turia into the quorum.

A receipt for $359.38 from Mr. Peterson for the debt of the Evanelia, was read.

Committee on printing press reported: Have printed 9,200 of Te Orometua, and 2,250 of "Te Ravea no Te Ora" and 700 of "Hoe Paraparau raa ahiahi," being 115,200 pages in all, at a cost of $625.61 Chili money, or nearly $285 American money.

Two p. m. Report received from elders' court in the case of Elder Tepoaitu. Reported that they had found him guilty of adultery, as he had taken a woman as a wife without being married to her. Elders' court—Pori, Tapuni, and Tapu. Conference called for his license, and referred him to his branch for trial, with instruction that if he does not repent and get married or leave his companion, that he shall be cut off from the church.

D. M. Pohemiti was chosen by the conference as secretary of the mission, and Turatahi was chosen as his assistant.

Report of committee on the Bishop's agents' books: Reported that they found on the books of Metuaore, as money on hand last report and received since $879.11, expended $769.31, balance on hand $109.80. The book of Hotu showed money on hand last report and received since $973.60, expended $802.38, on hand $171.22. Committee Pou, Araiioiti, and Tuteirihia. Metuaore stated that he had buried the funds of the church when he was to leave Papeete, and some one found it, and by that he had lost a little over $400. He was away from Tahiti nearly a year, during which time the money was discovered by others, and he thus lost it.

The committee who purchased the land of Tarona at Papeete; namely, Metuaore, Pohemiti, Pori, and Ioane Tamaiti were ordered to sell the chapel at Papaoa to the French government for $500 French money (as they desired it for a schoolhouse), and they should use that money towards paying the debt on the land of Tarona.

The president of Takaroa branch reported to conference that by the count of the French officials there were 1,210 saints gathered at the conference, and that they came in 61 boats, 5 schooners, and 1 steamer, and that there were 30 tables for the feast.

In answer to questions the president of the conference made the following statements: In branches where there are not sufficient officers, the branches may choose suitable persons, and the president of the branch may ordain priests, teachers, or deacons, if such officers are needed for branch purposes; but such ordinations shall not take place until the matter has been presented to the president of the division, or to the president of the mission, and his sanction obtained. And in no case shall a man be ordained an elder except at the conferences, or by the president of the mission.

All officers of the church who are living with companions unmarried, and who have not began arrangements to get married will give up their licenses, and the branches are cautioned against receiving any such as officers of the church. All officers who have began proceedings for marrying are advised to proceed quickly to straighten out their marriage relationship in harmony with the law of the land and the law of God. And all members of the church who are living with companions unmarried are also to proceed at once to get married, or they will be in danger of losing their membership in the church.

A report was read from Elders Hubert Case and Maevatua, and Teacher Tepiki—charging Elder Parepare with ill-treating the missionaries. The matter was placed in the hands of the elder's court for investigation.

Elder Tehopea was appointed president of the Tahitian division, excepting Tupuai and adjacent islands, and Raiatea and adjacent islands; and Elder Taneterau president of the Fakarava division, excepting Raroia and all the islands south and east of that island.

The conference appointed the next conference to meet at Avatoru, Rairoa, on April 6, 1899, at eight a. m.

Two p. m. Metuaore and Hotu were appointed a committee to care for the land of Tarona, to arrange the buildings on it, etc. The committee on Tarona debt reported the balance due Narii and Mapuhi is $1,900 French money. After some discussion upon the matter, the conference decided to pay the debt, as follows: Each household (of husband and wife) are to put into the hands of the traders of Narii and Mapuhi 120 kilos of bufa before the 1st of October, and that, with the money to be procured by the sale of the Papaoa chapel, will clear the debt.

April 9, eight a. m. Report of printing press committee received. The mission needs 715 papers monthly, and 715 Sabbath school quarterlies to provide one of each to each household. These will cost $900 Chili money, which will require $1.20 from each household in the mission. Committee—Tufaunui, Temai, and Tetuatevai. Conference received and adopted the recommendation of the committee.

Report of the elders' court in the case of Elder Parepare. He was found guilty of ill-using and treating disrespectfully the missionaries. He was required to confess his fault and repent, which he did; and by vote of conference was forgiven and restored to fellowship. Also report of the court of elders concerning Sister Teura who was guilty of adultery. She confessed to the conference, and asked forgiveness, which by vote was granted, as it was the first offense.

At two p. m., after the usual opening exercises, the persons who had been recommended to the conference for ordination were ordained by Elders John Hawkins, Herman Janssen, Tehopea, and Taneterau. After which the following appointments were read and sanctioned by vote of the conference: Elder Kehauri president of Raiatea and adacent islands, with Tuteirihia of Tikahau, and Varoa as missionaries. John Hawkins, president of the missionary work in Tubuai and adjacent islands; Marere with him. Tapuni, president of the missionary work in Raroia and all the islands south and east of that island, with Elder Taia with him.

Bishop's agent Metuaore, stated to the conference that he intended to restore the $425 lost by him. Elder Ipu, of Raroia, asked for information of the $70 which the saints of Hikuera gave to Hotu to give to them to assist in finishing their chapel. Elder Hotu said he had the money on hand and would hand it over.

The First Presidency, Patriarch, Twelve, Seventies, Bishopric, High Priests, and all the officers and members of the church were sustained by vote.

Monday, eight a. m. The question of purchasing the lot for the chapel at Takaroa was presented, and a committee appointed to examine the title, and if it were perfect to buy the land in the name of Hotu (the Bishop's agent), for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; committee are Hotu, Viriamu, and Metuarro.

A vote of thanks was then offered to all who had helped to make the conference so pleasant and profitable. Adjourned to meet at Avatoru, at eight a. m., April 6, 1899.

Translated from the secretary's minutes by J. F. Burton.

Sunday School Associations.

PHILADELPHIA.

Association convened at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (instead of Baldwin, Maryland, as previously announced), July 9 and 10; H. H. Bacon superintendent, E. B. Hull secretary. Reports received from Philadelphia and Baldwin. Total enrollment of district 91. Treasurer reported cash on hand at last report $9.65, received $1.29, expended $4, balance $6.94, which was divided equally between Philadelphia and New York districts at the time when Philadelphia district was divided and New York district formed. Motion prevailed to dispense with the delegate system until the district grows larger. Officers elected for ensuing term: O. T. Christy superintendent, Henry Carr associate, E. B. Hull secretary and treasurer. Sunday morning was devoted principally to short speeches by the members and friends, followed with a discourse on Sunday school work by Elder A. H. Parsons. Adjourned to first Saturday and Sunday in November, the place left to the superintendent.

Miscellaneous Department.

WILLIAMS-BAYS DEBATE.—NO. 11.

ELDER WILLIAMS' SECOND SPEECH.

He says I anticipated him because I knew the weakness of my claims. I knew the weakness of his claims and anticipated them.

He refers to Harris' letter, and says he did not know the ancient languages and could not express himself as he did. He only claims to represent what Anthon told him about the characters and translation. Harris did not know anything about Egyptology.

I now refer to Anthon's letter as found in Howe's book. When did Anthon write this? E. D. Howe published what he claims Anthon wrote: He claims that Anthon said the paper delivered to him by "a plain apparently simple-hearted farmer," "was a singular scroll," containing various alphabets, and, he says, "was evidently copied after the Mexican Calender given by Humboldt."

Then again this plate does not represent that which is described by Anthon as presented to him, because he says that "ended in a rude delineation of a circle," and you see this does not. We only contend for what the book claims, and it claims that the language of Lehi, "consists of the learning of the Jews and the language of the Egyptians." Bays says it was still Egyptian. It was to them with its many changes time had wrought. The Hebrews in Christ's time could not read the Hebrew language written 600 years B. C.

He refers to my impeaching my witness. It was his witness I impeached. He uses Moldenke in his book as a witness, and I have used a letter written by this man since, that impeaches the testimony it is claimed he gave then. Yes, I have impeached all his witnesses. They impeach one another. But why not bring the letters these men have written any instead of reading out of this book? And why did he in his letter to these men try to prejudice their minds by telling them that this is what the Mormons claim? Davis and Angell said the Hebrews did not write on plates of brass. The Bible and Maccabees vs. Davis and Angell. Then we have Moldenke vs. Bays' book, and then Moldenke says it is, then he says it isn't. What think you of such witnesses who contradict one another and themselves? He feels chagrined that I got this evidence. Why did he say they were Mormon characters if he wanted to get an unprejudiced opinion? When he, Moldenke, says it was a moral question, he shows he was prejudiced. I notice in Moldenke's letter that in the heading it is Rev. Chas. E. Moldenke.

Angell says the Assyrians kept records on plates of brass, and Davis said they did not, hence a contradiction.

Oliver Cowdery, Martin Harris, and Joseph Smith predicate what they say about the characters upon what Anthon told Harris. They did not know any ancient language. It is proven now by the submitting of the facsimiles of the characters found upon the plates from which the Book of Mormon was translated that learned men can't read the book.

Harris must have taken to Anthon different plates with characters, as Anthon refers to a different plate to what we now have a copy of.

The plates do not claim to be Egyptian, but Reformed Egyptian as "altered by us."

Lehi did not write these plates at Jerusalem, but Mormon and Moroni wrote them, and they were hid up by Moroni.

I now give my recapitulation:—

RECAPITULATION.

"Is the Book of Mormon a true record and are its inspirational teachings entitled to the confidence and belief of all christian people?"

The following proofs have been offered:—

1. Elder Bays has conceded by pen and tongue that the Christian Church has been in error for a half century in urging the Spalding story theory of Book of Mormon origin.

2. He has acknowledged that in using said argument it would bring sure defeat, thus criminating the boastful defenders of said position; viz., Alexander Campbell once advocated the idea that Joseph Smith was the author of the Book of Mormon, then changed his views to that of the Spalding Romance. After that theory had been used for years to overthrow Mormonism, it is now abandoned, and the Disciples have highly recommended Bays to go back to the original idea of Campbell. This is what is called "Restoration."

3. If the Christian Church was wrong so many years, is it not highly probable that they are wrong now?

4. The Christian people still continue to use Braden and his Spalding theory, and yet indorse Bays as a champion of their teachings when Bays asserts that the Spalding story is untrue. See "Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism," pp. 22, 23.

5. I have shown that the Book of Mormon claims to have originated from the proper source—from God.

6. It also contains a proper message.

7. I have shown that the object of the book was to convince all men that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God. (See title page, also Book of Mormon, p. 490.)

8. Also to satisfy the demand that exists for answering the question, "Who were the ancient inhabitants of America?" I quoted from the Book of Ether, pp. 500-533, to show that a colony came from the tower of Babel; that they traveled in a direction where man had never been. I showed from Genesis 11:1, 2, that the tide of immigration before the tower of Babel was from the East, consequently the Jaredites traveled westward where no man had been, towards the great sea (Atlantic Ocean) which divideth the lands;—that they came by winds and currents to Central America. In support of this position I quoted Acts 10:34, showing that God is no respecter of persons, but blesses alike all nations, also Acts 17:22-28, where Paul says "God that made the world . . . hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him.

10. Genesis 11:6-9 shows that from the tower of Babel the Lord scattered the people on all the face of the earth, thus confirming the Book of Mormon, page 501, which states that Jared and his friends came forth from the great tower at the time the Lord confounded the language of the people. Josephus, book 1, chapter 5, page 40, confirms this statement, so also does Josiah Priest in American Antiquities of 1834, pages 199, 200, Ignatius Donnelly in Atlantis, pages 110, Bancroft in Native Races, volume 5, pages 10-20, Albert Gallatin in Transactions of American Ethnological Society, volume 1, page 179, John T. Short's North American Antiquities, pages 203, 204, 238, and 140, and Delafield's Antiquities, pages 33, 41. All of these record traditions of the flood, the tower of Babel, the confusion of tongues, the salvation of some in the ark, the language of some not confounded, the water extending fifteen cubits high, the sending forth of the dove, and thus show a common origin. This argument Elder Bays has never touched save to make fun of the boats they traveled in; and when I showed that their construction was in harmony with the developments of science to-day in the building of the best form of life-boats, Elder Bays' only answer was, "Bro. Williams, didn't you know that I was an old sailor?"

12. I showed that the inspirational teachings of this colony were worthy the support of all men. They taught prayer to God, and answer to prayer (p. 501); service to Jesus Christ (p. 503); forgiveness by obeying gospel principles (p. 504); Jesus Christ as the Redeemer of the world (p. 506); that all good comes from God (p. 508); that polygamy is a crime and condemns it (p. 519); and the gospel principles (p. 509).

12. I demonstrated that America was the land to which they came (Ether 3: 7, p. 512, with Alma 30: 3, p. 378; Ether 4: 7, p. 520 with Alma 13: 11, p. 267); which fully describes America and nowhere else,—it being a land northward and a land southward connected by a narrow neck of land which divideth the east and west seas.

13. Then I showed the coming of the second and third colonies from Palestine, about 600 years B. C.; that Lehi, father of first colony, was a descendant of Joseph of Egypt, and read from Bible where it is said that this is his land, quoting Genesis 49: 22-27 and Deuteronomy 33: 13-17; thus showing that Joseph received a superior blessing to Abraham, which could not be fulfilled while Joseph remained in Canaan; that his land should abound in "precious things of the lasting hills," and the Book of Mormon records the finding of gold plentifully (see p. 115: 4); and with the chief things of the ancient mountains, see the amount of coal, iron, etc., found in the ancient mountains, precious fruits, describing the productiveness of the land of America; that Joseph's "branches" or daughters were to run over the wall to the uttermost bounds of the everlasting hills; that standing where Jacob stood, in Goshen, the "utmost bounds" would land one in America whether going by latitude or longitude.

I quoted Ezekiel 34: 1-6 showing that the sheep of Israel were scattered over all the earth, and this is in harmony with what is claimed in the Book of Mormon—that some of Israel came to America. I then showed from Jeremiah 49 that Israel who inhabited Hazor went by command of God to a wealthy nation, and that they would secure "a spoil" of "cattle and camels." Bays merely denies.

I then showed from the Book of Mormon that about this time two colonies came to America and found the very things Jeremiah said they would find, and in their records they record many of the words of Jeremiah. Book of Mormon p. 43: 45 says that "beasts of every kind, the cow, the ox, the ass, the horse, and all manner of wild animals," while these facts were not known to the English speaking people through any publication in existence at the time of the publication of the Book of Mormon; yet in the last few years overwhelming confirmation has come. The enemies of the Book of Mormon hooted at the statement that horses were native here, yet now the leading archæologists concede that the Book of Mormon is correct upon this point. (See Prof. O. C. Marsh's Address before the American Association for Advancement of Science at Nashville, Tennessee, August 30, 1877; Prof. Hayden U. S. Survey report for 1873; Am. Ency. Art. Horse; Winchell's Sketches of Creation p. 356-57; Donnelly's Atlantis, pp. 54, 55; Desire Charney p. 330; and Prescott's Conquest of Peru, vol. 1, p. 147.)

Elder Bays made the following contentions: He took exceptions to my definition of Joseph's land, he locating it in Canaan, and that all the promises were there fulfilled. I showed the utter futility of such an application, for it would be utterly impossible for Joseph's blessing to prevail above that of his progenitors and at the same time only share their lands: that it would be just as reasonable for a father possessing one hundred and sixty acres of land to deed five acres to his boy, telling him, "Now you have more land than I have." Genesis 49; and Deuteronomy 33 were not fulfilled in Canaan, because; first, it was impossible; second, Joseph in Canaan was not blessed with all the precious things brought forth by the sun, nor the chief things of the ancient mountains, nor the precious things of the lasting hills.

I have shown that the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills—the farthest point from Goshen where Jacob stood when blessing Joseph—would be in America whether he traveled by latitude or longitude.

In quoting Ezekiel 37 I showed that two sticks, rolls, or parchments, were to be written upon; one for Joseph and the house of Israel his companions, and the other for Judah and the house of Israel his companions.

Elder Bays said the sticks were the two kingdoms, but as Ezekiel says the sticks were to be written upon, this wrong application is apparent. These sticks were to become one, and when made one the two kingdoms were to become one; a thing never fulfilled in past ages, but is now being fulfilled since the Book of Mormon, being the stick of Joseph, and the Bible, the stick or writing of Judah, have become one.

Psalms 85 shows that after a curse would rest upon Palestine, the salvation of God would come; that righteousness (the gospel, Romans 1: 16, 17) and peace (divine confirmation) would kiss each other. And at that time truth (God's word, John 17: 17) would spring out of the earth and righteousness would look down from heaven. Truth, God's word, did spring out of the earth in the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, and at the same time the gospel was restored by the hands of an angel. Then, immediately following, David's land, Israel's land (Canaan) should yield her increase; and in 1853, fourteen years after the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, according to best authorities, Palestine, which for nearly seventeen hundred years had been denied the former and latter rains, was blessed with copious showers.

We have shown that the Nephites employed a writing which consisted of a combination of Egyptian and Hebrew altered from that in use when they came from Jerusalem 600 B. C. On the plate published in Presidency and Priesthood I have located a number of characters which completely harmonize with the Egyptian, Old Hebrew, and Hieratic Egyptian, and quite a number which bear a striking resemblance. Elder Bays in rebuttal has brought in the testimony of the Rev. Charles E. Moldenke, Professor Angell, and Charles H. S. Davis; but I have shown contradictions and have impeached their testimony.

I have shown that the ancient Hebrews and Egyptians did write on tablets of brass and gold. (Job 19: 23-24; Exodus 39: 30; 1 Maccabees 14: 48, 49; and 1 Kings 7: 30, 36.)

I have given a number of extracts of the inspirational teachings showing the fulfillment of John 10: 16 that Christ came to this land, and that he reiterated his teaching declared to his disciples when at Jerusalem; that murder, lying, adultery, covetousness, and all kindred evils are denounced, especially polygamy. (Moroni 7: 2; Jacob 2: 6; Nephi 5: 3-9; 2 Nephi 11: 16.)

I enumerated a number of prophecies, showing their striking fulfillment. (2 Nephi 12: 12, 13; 2 Nephi 12: 13.)

I showed the striking similarity between Jared's barges and the lifeboats now existing, and Elder Bays answers, "Ain't I a sailor?"

Thus we have answered every contention of the opposition, while he has failed to dislodge us on one point; and we have fully established by prophecy and history—the Bible and archæology—that the Book of Mormon is a true record; that Joseph Smith could not and did not write it; and that it contains inspirational teachings and is entitled to the belief and confidence of all Christian people.

Bays has been in error on the following:—Truth never stands long in the minority.

Clearly and unreservedly he wrote me that archæological proof would be admissible, but tried his best to have it ruled out; and then when the chairman ruled against him, impugned his motive, and finally said he was glad he had so ruled.

He rejected the Book of Mormon because he could not find a river and lake mentioned in it, but utterly failed to find a number of places mentioned in the Bible. His argument used to overthrow the Book of Mormon would also overthrow the Bible. Poor argument.

He defied me to find in the Book of Mormon the direction the Jaredites traveled, then afterward said they traveled northward. He was certainly wrong one time or the other.

He denied that the compass was in existence prior to the twelfth century, then admitted that the Chinese had it at least 2,000 B. C.

He made fun of windows in Jared's boats, denying the existence of glass then. I showed windows in Noah's ark which were for light, and showed that the manufacture of glass was of remote antiquity.

He denied that any of Israel came to America, and in order to prove his point scoffed at the idea of Israel being scattered over all the earth. Bays against Bible. (Ezek. 34: 6.)

He affirmed that animals in America were not coexistent with men. Professor Winchell and all scientists contradict him.

He stated that there were great stone heads in Australia, yet failed to produce the proof.

He said that Joseph Smith wrote the Book of Mormon, yet utterly failed to produce a single proof of the statement by comparison or otherwise.

Elder Bays makes a few statements without bringing any evidence, then adds, "Don't you see, it's as clear as day?" I have answered Elder Williams' argument, and I'll proceed."

He has the whole less than the part in referring to Joseph's land. Illogical.

He at one time has Joseph so densely ignorant that he can't spell; then he has him wiser than his time. At one time he has the Book of Mormon to exceed the Bible in ethics and morals, then tries to infer that it is the foundation for polygamy.

I thank you for your patient hearing.

ELDER BAYS' SECOND SPEECH.

Before I forget it I must refer to the affidavit which has been read. That grew out of an incident which occurred when I was at Defiance delivering lectures. Mr. Yeamans asked me if I did not make such a statement as he says I did in the affidavit, and I said I did not, and I will now say it is false. It would be inconsistent for me to make such a statement as that and then be doing what I am doing against the book. That man Yeamans don't know enough to pound sand. I know him.

Williams says it was no wonder they kicked me out of the church, when he had previously read from my letter of resignation. This is Williams vs. Williams.

The moral tone of the Book of Mormon is good enough.

He tried to show you contradiction of witnesses in my book. The witnesses were separated when I wrote to them, and I did not let one know that I had written to the other, and they have stated facts as they have understood them. I will admit there is a little discrepancy existing in their letters, but they agree upon the major points while they may disagree upon some minor points, and this would be admitted as testimony in a case at law.

Elder Williams knows that the Book of Mormon was written in the Egyptian language. It is then a question of scholarship, and places Joseph Smith as saying they were Egyptian characters, and the learned men as saying they are not. It is the learned men vs. Joseph Smith, and their testimony proves the Book of Mormon a fraud.

I will now present my summary.

Elder Williams' method has been to present facts not in the controversy. He has shown that there was an advanced civilization in America. I agree with that. But he claims that this civilization came from two colonies, the Jaredites and Nephites; that the Jaredites came here 500 years after the flood, and the Nephite colony came 600 B. C. He tries to trace the Jaredites' travels to America by saying they traveled westward, but this is false, for the Book of Mormon says they traveled northward, and does not say they changed their course. Elder Williams has failed to trace them to America.

He has not traced the Nephite colony to America. These are but imaginary colonies. He has not made connection between where they were and America. The Bible proofs he has used I have shown have no relevancy. I showed that Israel was carried away captive into Assyria and hence could not have come from Jerusalem when it is claimed Lehi came.

I have examined Ezekiel 37, and have shown that it does not refer to the Bible or Book of Mormon. It refers to two nations, and a union of both nations under one king. This is too plain to admit of controversy, hence the Book of Mormon is not a true record. This is the first time the Latter Day Saints have tried to prove the Book of Mormon true without using Isaiah 29. Had he have used that he might have proven his case. But then I have proved that it was fulfilled elsewhere than in America. This prophecy was only teaching by object lessons. That which refers to giving a letter to a learned man when it is sealed and his saying, "I can't read a sealed book," has reference to the handwriting of God which could not be known because of spiritual darkness; but the unlearned man could not read it because of being unlearned. This is what it means, and nothing more, and could not refer to the Book of Mormon.

This that claims to be a statement of Martin Harris in reference to a visit to Anthon was made in 1841, and then not by Harris but by Joseph Smith. Joseph Smith said that Harris said that Anthon said. This is not admissible as evidence because of incompetency. Isaiah 29 had its fulfillment in Palestine, and had no reference to America.

He tried to connect by historical data the Jaredite colony of America by claiming they traveled west; but I have shown that they went northward and went into Scandinavia or Iceland, or Greenland.

The Nephite colony that he claims came over here 600 B. C. could [not?] be the civilization that has been read about by Bro. Williams. Some of the evidences prove that the civilization was as old as ancient Egypt. He has not tried to trace the travels of the Nephite colony over land and sea till they landed in America, hence he has failed in the claim that the Nephite came to America.

No one denies the civilization that was once in America, but he has not proved it was the Jaredites or Nephites, and hence has failed in proving the proposition.

To illustrate. Supposing it was charged that Smith killed Jones, and it was claimed that he went from Chicago to San Francisco, but the detectives follow him and could not trace him as coming no nearer San Francisco than Mexico, this would not prove Smith guilty. Williams has not traced these colonies from Asia to America. All the evidence he has used is but circumstantial, and when nothing but circumstantial evidence is used every link must be complete. In the case of the one charged with murder I used in my illustration, if there is nothing but circumstantial evidence used, the plaintiff must connect the defendant so there can be no trace of reasonable doubt but what he was the man who at the time charged was at the place where crime was committed and traveled to where he was found. Has Williams traced the two colonies from Asia to America so as to leave no reasonable doubt? If so, render the verdict in his favor, if he has not, then decide against him.

The Book of Mormon claims to be written in the Egyptian language. If it could be proven that Harris submitted Egyptian characters to Anthon, the claims for the book are possibly correct; but three great Egyptologists have agreed that there were no Egyptian characters on the plates. Here, then, we have three learned men against the three witnesses to the Book of Mormon. Which will you believe?

If the Book of Mormon is true, it must have been written in Egyptian; for it claims to have been so written. Since it is proven that it was not written in Egyptian, we conclude that the Book of Mormon is not a true record. The Book of Mormon is but a clumsy effort to deceive. The three witnesses were deceived and Joseph Smith was placed in a position to glory in the fraud, hence the book is not entitled to the belief and confidence of all Christian people.

The facts are now before you. If he has proven this claim, accept of what Williams has presented to you, because Orson Pratt says that hell is open to receive such as do not. If I have proven it a fraud reject it and the system of religion associated with and built upon it.

May 23.—ELDER BAYS' FIRST SPEECH.

It is with pleasure indeed that I appear before you to consider the question under consideration as read by the chairman, because it is a question of moment, a question of importance. If it is true that the Bible contains all the revelations of God necessary for the government and salvation of his people in all ages of the world, we should know it; if it does not, we should know that as well.

The issue is clearly drawn. The propositions reads, "Does the Bible contain all the revelations of God's will necessary for the government and salvation of his people in all ages of the world?"

My opponent, Elder Williams, denies the proposition. I believe the Bible contains a rule of faith and government sufficient to save in all ages of the world. John 3:16 says, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth [present tense you will notice] in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." What brought about the necessity for Christ to come to suffer and die? In the beautiful garden sin entered and death was entailed upon all the posterity of Adam. Romans 5:12 says, "And so death passed upon all men." Jesus came to undo the consequences of sin, and to prepare a way that who had departed from God might return. Man can be saved only through Jesus Christ. Romans 3:23, 24, shows that man is saved "through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus." Note the redemption this is, not will be in 2,000 years hence. At the time Paul wrote Jesus was the justifier of all who believed in him. If the way was complete to save men then, it will save men to-day. Romans 5:1, 2, makes provisions for this, "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." The same gospel will give peace to-day. "By whom we have access by faith into this grace." Same grace will save if obedient to the same gospel. Romans 5:19 shows that through Adam man fell, and through Christ he will be redeemed.

I will show that there has been five dispensations, four of which pointed to the coming of Christ as the Redeemer and Savior: 1, Adamic; 2, Noachian; 3, Abrahamic or Patriarchate; 4, Mosiac; 5, Christian.

Four of the above pointed to Christ; the fifth was the fullness when he came.

Hebrew 8:6 says that Christ was "the mediator of a better covenant;" and Hebrews 12:2 says he was "the author and finisher of our faith." Bro. Williams must say that Christ is not the finisher of our faith if he denies the proposition. Would that faith save men then? If so, it will save men now.

In the Adamic dispensation God commenced directly with the first one who sinned, and pointed to Christ and the church as foreshadowed in Genesis 3:15. The seed of woman is Christ, and the serpent represents sin, Satan being the chief of all sinners. Christ bruised the head of the serpent or sin. Cain represents the world, Abel represents Christ.

Paul speaks of the Adamic age, Adam being a type of Christ. (Rom. 5:14.) 1 Corinthians 15:45 shows "the last Adam, was made a quickening spirit;" this refers to Christ. Noah and the ark represent Christ and the Church. Noah built the ark. Christ built the Church. Noah's family were saved by temporal salvation; Christ saves the family of earth. (Heb. 11:7; 1 Pet. 3:2.) Family of Noah was saved in the ark; family of earth saved in the church.

To Abraham God said: "In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed," (Gen. 12:3); and in Genesis 22:1-12 is given the history of the offering of Isaac representing Christ. (See Heb. 11:17.) Abraham represents God, being willing to give his only son, and God so loved the world that he gave his Son. Isaac was the type of Christ.

Galatians 4: 22-26 represents the free-woman and the bond-woman, types of the Mosaic and Christian dispensations; the two covenants, the Jewish and Christian. Here are five dispensations clearly marked.

God gave a covenant to his people when he called them out of Egypt. The new covenant was perfect, Christ being the High Priest and author. The new covenant has power to save in the kingdom of God. There was enough to save men then, and as God does not change, there is enough to save men now in the Bible.

Melchisedec was a type of Christ. Jesus was a high priest. (Heb. 3: 1-3; 7: 1-3.)

Melchisedec was king of Salem, to whom Abraham paid tithes. When Jesus came, all to pay tithes to him. Jesus was the only Melchisedec priest back there.

Moses was a type of Christ. He was called to redeem Israel, and give a law to govern them forever, or so long as necessary. The new covenant repealed that going before. Old covenant continued till Jesus came. The new covenant is to redeem the world from sin, and will continue as long as sin exists. Will God repeal the law of Christ? Dare my opponent take that position? He has no case unless he does.

Moses was a lawgiver, redeemer, and mediator; so also was Christ. Acts 3: 22 refers to Jesus as a great prophet, who should establish a perfect law and everlasting covenant. There are other types of Christ. The paschal lamb. (Ex. 3: 7 and 12: 21-27.) John calls Jesus the Lamb of God.

May 23.—ELDER WILLIAMS' FIRST SPEECH.

I thought Bays was delivering a Latter Day Saint sermon. If the gospel law was given to justify and save, the same gospel law will save to-day. He refers to Hebrews 12: 2. He must show that Christ is the finisher of our faith. We believe He is. But the proposition says the Bible contains all that is necessary for salvation, and Bays has been referring to the gospel as all that is necessary. Elder Bays has been presuming upon your conceiving that the Bible and the gospel is the same. If we assume that the gospel is the Bible, there is an issue. What is the gospel? Is the Bible the gospel? Find some evidence of this, and produce it. The point where we differ must be clearly made. He argues that the divine law must continue. In regard to the general thoughts he has presented there is no controversy. He refers to Christ as the High Priest and author of our faith necessary to salvation, but what was before Christ coming in the flesh that saved men? The proposition reads, "Does the Bible contain all the revelations of God necessary to the government and salvation of man in all ages of the world?" Was Abraham saved by the Bible? Was Noah saved by the Bible? There is a clashing of the gospel as preached to-day with the Bible. The Bible contains all Noah had and others.

He must show that the Bible was made by divine appointment; he must prove that every revelation God ever gave to man is in the Bible, then show why all revelations are not in the Bible; and show that there is all in the Bible necessary to satisfy.

He must also show that God does not speak and that he has not spoken since 100 A. D. or thereabouts; for if God does speak, that which he says must either be necessary to the government or salvation of his people.

He must show that God has revealed all that is necessary, and that it is contained in the Bible. If God did not intend to speak any more, he would have said so and it would be in the Bible. Where will you find it?

The Bible does not claim to contain all of God's will to man.

Ecclesiastes 3: 14, 15 says: "I know that whatsoever God doeth he doeth forever." God established an avenue of revelation. He did it permanently. Bays can't cut the cable that is beneath heaven and earth. Revelation from God was in every age of the world according to the Bible. Revelation was the principle God used to present to man what is in the Bible.

Malachi 3: 6 says: "I am the Lord, I change not." Though man may change, God does not. The mariner on the spiritual sea looks to the polar star of light to know how to steer his bark. Hebrews 13: 8 says: "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day, and forever." Hebrew 1: 11, 12 says "They shall perish; but thou remainest; and they all shall wax old as doth a garment, and as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed; but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail." James 1: 17 says: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." Isaiah says God's word does not return to him void.

Here then is proof that the gift of revelation was enjoyed by the people of God for four thousand years, and there is no evidence to prove that God will not reveal his will now. God is true to his word.

If Noah and Abraham had enough to save them, what need have we of more? Do we need more than will save? If the Bible is enough, why the divisions that now exist among those who profess to believe the Bible? Why do not all see alike?

Man must have the spirit of inspiration to understand that which is given by inspiration. For proof of this I read 1 Corinthians 2: 11-13. He must either controvert my position or concede it. I would rather he would concede. In the passage cited it is proven that the things of God are revealed by the Spirit of God.

2 Timothy 3: 14, 15 says that Timothy from his childhood had sufficient to make him wise unto salvation. Did he have the New Testament? If he had enough why the need of the New Testament? There was not enough revealed for future generations. All truth is not in the Bible. According to the Bible, revelation was necessary. Noah had revelation, but that was not enough for Abraham, and so the channel of revelation was kept open from Adam to John.

Revelation was necessary in New Testament times to call men to the ministry. (Jno. 1: 6; Luke 6: 1; Acts 20: 28; 1 Cor. 7: 17.) The last passage shows who were ordained in Bible times; "As the Lord hath called."

The call from God came first, then ordination. This shows that none should be ordained without an inspired call. Romans 10: 13-15 confirms this position. The great query "How shall they preach?" is answered. They cannot "except they be sent."

John 12: 49, 50; 5: 30 shows the call of Jesus. He did not move out presumptuously—without instruction. Here the Great Son of God gives us an example in the incipency of his work. Think you that we puny mortals should move with less light and direction? Jesus said, "Of mine own self I can do nothing;" and yet he had the light of ages. The constitution provides for some one to execute the will of God and tells of the qualifications necessary. God must qualify them for the work. We have the law of this government, but if we had no one to execute it, would the Constitution select men? The people formed the Constitution, and this gives the people right to choose. God gives the spiritual constitution, and he chooses and gives authority to execute the same.

Isaiah 55: 8 says man's ways are not analogous to God's ways. In the constitution we have God's ways outlined. Marriage is ordained of God, but does the Bible say who shall administer the rite? The Lord's Supper is a divine ordinance, but where does the Bible say who shall administer it? The church Elder Bays claims to represent says: "Where the Bible speaks we speak, and where the Bible is silent we are silent." The apostles were commissioned to baptize, but who has that right to-day since it is claimed there are no apostles of Christ? Where did Alexander Campbell get authority to restore? And where is it made known in the Bible the duties of the officers of the church? The Bible makes provisions for the different officers to exist, but does not define their duties. Provision is made to settle difficulties in the church, but who has the right to settle them?

GROVE MEETINGS AND CONFERENCE.

To the saints of Wisconsin and Southern Wisconsin district:—There will be grove and tent meetings held in Bro. O. N. Dutton's grove, five miles north of Janesville, Wisconsin, beginning September 17, and holding over two Sundays. The district conference will be held in connection with these meetings September 24 and 25. Bro. H. A. Stebbins and J. H. Lake will be with us. Come and bring your tent and bedding, and camp on the ground and enjoy the meetings. Bro. Dutton will furnish stabling and hay for teams. Those coming on the cars to Janesville drop a card in time to O. N. Dutton, Box 693, Janesville, Wisconsin, so that he may meet you with team. We will try to rent a few tents, so as to have them on the ground. All reports should be sent to J. O. Dutton, Janesville, Wisconsin.

W. A. McDOWELL, Pres.

WATERPROOFING FOR TENT TOPS.

To those working in tents. Receipt for preserving and making tent tops waterproof. Take twelve pounds of beeswax, put it into a large kettle and melt it over a very slow fire, then add one gallon of Japan and eight gallons of turpentine. Then take a sieve and sift three or four pounds of whiting into it, and if the tint is too light colored, put in a little green, it will make it much better on the eyes for both speaker and the congregation.

M. G. MAUDSLEY.

REUNION NOTICES.

Here we are again. It's coming; look out for it and be ready. I mean the time for our Bluff Park reunion. I was forcibly reminded yesterday that it was necessary for another notice to readers of the Herald, that, no preventing providence, the reunion will be held according to former notice, commencing on the 19th of August, to hold until the 4th of September inclusive. The committee have been informed that a request will be made by the old settlers of Lee County, Iowa, to occupy one day of the term in the meeting of the old settlers. It may be if such request is properly made, the time will be given. It will be remembered we will hold the ground over three Sundays, and one day of the two weeks might be well spent in meeting with the old settlers, and listening to their speeches and reminiscences.

It is a little strange that some one should be so industrious in circulating the rumor that there is not going to be any reunion in Bluff Park this year. There is no grounds for such a rumor. But to the contrary, the committee are assured of a grander time, a more numerously attended reunion on the beautiful grounds of Bluff Park than ever has been held there before. The districts near the place of meeting have responded to the request for aid to such an extent that the committee feel relieved, and hereby express our thanks to those who have so liberally responded. We are sorry the Eastern Iowa and Des Moines districts have given us the cold shake, but we think their action was the result of a misunderstanding, and so let it rest, but earnestly invite our brethren of those two districts to come and unite with us in our service and worship, and spiritual communion, and get acquainted and be converted. Don't forget, J. S. Snively and Dan Tripp are committee on cottages and tents. If you want a cottage or tent write immediately. Address to Montrose, Lee County, Iowa. Money contributed to aid in bearing expenses can be sent to address of A. H. Smith, secretary and treasurer of committee. A strong effort will be made to get rates; notice will be given in time. Don't forget the date, 19th of August to 4th of September, 1898. See?

A. H. SMITH, Sec. of Com.

Reunion of Northern and Central districts of California will convene at Livermore, Friday, September 30. All who attend should procure rebate certificates, to be had of C. A. Parkin, 3010 Sixteenth Street. Please send stamp to return certificate. All elders in the two districts are expected to be present. Be sure to have your return certificates signed by agent when purchasing ticket, or they are no use.

C. A. PARKIN.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Central Nebraska district conference will convene at Meadow Grove, Nebraska, August 6, at ten a. m. District Sunday school association same place on the 5th, at two p. m.

LEVI GAMET, Sec.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

Two-days' meetings will be held in the following branches: Theodore, second Saturday and Sunday in August. Bay Minnette, third Saturday and Sunday in August. Perseverance branch, fourth Saturday and Sunday in August. Three Rivers, first Saturday and Sunday in September. Bluff Creek, second Saturday and Sunday in September. As many of the missionaries as can make it convenient will be present with us. I hope to attend all of these meetings.

F. P. SCARCLIFF, Pres.

BORN.

RANGE.—At Lehigh, Iowa, November 27, 1894, to Mr. Adam and Sr. Lucy A. Range, a daughter, Edith May. At Eagle Grove, Iowa, March 30, 1896, a daughter, Mary Mable. Blessed at Head Grove, Iowa, June 29, 1898, by Elder E. B. Morgan.

VANWHY.—At Priceburg, Pennsylvania, May 31, 1898, to Bro. Jefferson and Sr. E. L. Vanwhy, a daughter, Leah. Blessed June 10, by Elder A. N. Bishop.

HEDRICK.—At Fanning, Kansas, August 9, 1897, to Bro. F. G. and Sr. Emma Hedrick, a son, Gilbert Raymond. Blessed May 29, 1898, by Elder J. Arthur Davis.

HOPKINS.—At Fanning, Kansas, October 31, 1897, to Bro. R. and Sr. M. Hopkins, a son, David William. Blessed May 29, 1898, by Elders J. Arthur Davis and W. Gurwell.

MILLER.—To Bro. N. and Sr. E. Miller, at Muchakinoock, Iowa, January 21, 1898, a daughter, Margaret Ellen Sophia. Blessed at Oskaloosa, Iowa, June 19, by J. S. Roth and Nathaniel Miller.

LUKE.—To Bro. and Sr. John Luke, March 11, 1892, at Keb, Iowa, a son, Edwin. June 17, 1895, at Beacon, Iowa, a daughter, Mary. Blessed at Beacon, June 26, 1898, by J. S. Roth and N. Miller.

MARRIED.

GARNER—VANFLEET—At the residence of the bride's parents, Sylvester H. Garner and Cora B. Vanfleet were united in marriage June 19, 1898, by Elder Charles Baly. After the ceremony about one hundred guests and relatives sat down to an elegant supper, which was spread in a spacious marquee erected for the occasion on the lawn. The tables fairly groaned under the burden of good things, which everyone seemed to enjoy, whilst the air resounded with good wishes to the young couple, just starting on life's journey. The tokens of good will were not confined to mere wishes either, as the many handsome presents testified. May they be spared many years to each other and may our heavenly Father prosper them on life's journey temporarily as well as spiritually.

DIED.

RUBLE.—July 1, 1898, Bro. David Ruble, aged 80 years, 3 months, and 4 days. Funeral service conducted by Elder John Shields, assisted by Elder G. Green. Interment at Harwich. Ten years ago he had a fall, from the effects of which he has been confined to his bed; he was administered to several times and would be relieved of pain almost instantly. He died in hope of coming forth in the first resurrection. He leaves a loving and dutiful wife, children, and grandchildren to mourn.

ANDERSON.—At Lamoni, Iowa, July 19, 1898, of whooping cough, aggravated by teething troubles, Andrew Kenneth, child of Bro. Daniel and Sr. M. Annie Anderson, and grandchild of Bro. and Sr. A. K. Anderson and Bro. and Sr. John Scott, aged 1 year, 7 months, and 1 day. He was a lovely boy, of sweet disposition. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder H. A. Stebbins, assisted by President Joseph Smith.

KRAFT.—At Napa, California, May 13, 1898, Amanda May, wife of Mr. John Kraft, Jun., and daughter of Bro. and Sr. Babcock, all late residents of Nauvoo, Illinois. A child nineteen months old, husband, and parents mourn. Sister May was baptized at Montrose, Iowa, July, 1890. She died strong in the faith.

DENT.—Elder John Dent died July 11, 1898, aged 77 years, 2 months, 27 days. Interment in Romney Township. Funeral services in charge of Elder G. Green, assisted by Elder John Shields. Was a member of the church a number of years, was president of Dentville branch. He loved the work and tried to advance the cause by setting a worthy example. Wife, children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren mourn.

ADAMS.—At the home of his mother, West Bay City, Michigan, July 9, 1898, Bro. William Adams, aged 22 years, 11 months, 8 days. Deceased was born in Manitoba, Canada. When but a child, with his parents he moved to Caseville, Michigan; in 1893 he came to West Bay City, where he remained up to time of his death. United with the church and died in the faith of the restored gospel. Mother, two brothers, three sisters, and sister-in-law mourn. Funeral sermon by Elder J. A. Grant. Interment at Caseville.

RICE.—At Adin, California, May 1, 1898, John Frisby, fifth child of Bro. Chas. W. and Sr. Emma Rice. He was born May 10, 1893; took sick April 25, of scarlet fever of which he died. No funeral services were held at the time of interment, on account of the contagion of the disease. Funeral sermon preached Sunday, July 3, to a large and attentive audience by Elder Alma C. Barmore.

BURLINGTON.—At St. Joseph, Missouri, July 17, 1898, Ellen Effie, infant daughter of Bro. John and Sr. Mary Burlington. Little Ellen was born October 22, 1895, and was growing into a lovely, intelligent girl, but death seemed to have marked her as one of his victims. She overturned a pan of boiling water, scalding her arm from wrist to shoulder, which caused pneumonia, from which she died. Funeral services in the saints' church; the little body laid away in Mount Mora cemetery. Sermon by Elder Hyrum O. Smith.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound $1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE.
REDUCED from $1.15 to 75 cents. An excellent work for the home, also for young people's libraries and societies. Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.
National Saengerfest, Davenport, Iowa, July 28-31; one standard fare plus $2.00 for round trip. Date of sale July 27 and 28, final limit for return August 1.

Burlington Route

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.
Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

- Cloth $1 00
- Sheep or library binding 1 25
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 75
- Morocco, gilt edges 2 25
- Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges 3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

- Cloth $0 65
- Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
- Morocco, gilt edges, flexible..... 2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

- Cloth $0 65
- Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
- Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH.

- Cloth $0 75
- Leather. 1 00

GRACELAND .. COLLEGE,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Telephone 71.

For catalogues or further information, Address, PROF. J. T. PENCE, Acting President, or R. S. SALYARDS, Secretary, LAMONI, IOWA.

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100 $1 00
2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100... 1 00
7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 30
10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 20
12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
13. Discipleship, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts.; 100, 1 00
14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 $1 00
15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen 30
19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen 10
20. The "One Body;" or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
- Prophecy of the Rebellion; per 100 10

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

RULES OF ORDER AND BEBATE.

- Cloth $0 40

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer, President.
 Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address.
 I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

TOBACCO HABIT CURED, OR NO PAY.

Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, positively guarantees three boxes of "Quit-To-Bac" to permanently take away all desire for tobacco, or will promptly refund money paid for it. Three boxes sent post paid anywhere for $1.50. No bad effects from use of Quit-To-Bac. It is a great nerve tonic. Why not try it? It has cured hundreds; why not you? Remember, No Cure, No Pay. Address, B. F. ORDWAY, Peoria, Illinois.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

 A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

ZION'S HOPE.

A large, four-page Sunday school paper for children; illustrated; edited by Sr. M. Walker.
 Single copies, per year.....$0 50
 In packages of four, five, or six to one address, per year, each..... 40
 In packages of seven or more, each 35

CHURCH FURNITURE
 SCHOOL & OFFICE
 E. H. STAFFORD CO.
 MUSKEGON, MICH. U.S.A.
 PRICES ON APPLICATION.

Its Easy Writing

If its a Blickensaefer No. 5.

The universal favorite with all classes of operators who desire a simple and speedy machine.

More "Blicks" in use among Iowa and Nebraska newspapers than all the rest of the $100 machines together. The only Typewriter on the market doing hundred-dollar work that is sold at a popular price.

Has 28 Keys, of 84 Characters and Letters; Portable, weighing but Six Pounds with case.

Copies and Manifolds perfectly,—12 carbon copies being easily taken at one writing.

Only one price—$35.00 net. On ten days approval to any responsible man in Iowa or Nebraska. Address,

HARGER & BLSH,
 General Agents,

904-910 Main Street, DUBUQUE, IOWA.

$35

MANGLES

—FOR—
 FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.

NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.

Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.

Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.

THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture and Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.

GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery.

Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

Large Maps Reduced!

For Sunday School and Home Use . . .

Dispensing with the idea of procuring agents, I have concluded to furnish the large Book of Mormon maps (39x51 inches), fully described in former advertisement, direct to all at $1.50, express charges to be paid by the purchaser. Former price $2.50. An ornament to any home. Sunday schools and Religio, please take up collections, procure a map, and start a class in the Book of Mormon. Sr. (Mrs.) Ella J. Green, of Onslow, Iowa, wrote July 6, 1898:—

"Bro. G. F. Weston:—Received map all right and extend to you our thanks for favor shown in reduction of price. The map is for our Sunday school and all who have seen it are well pleased." Early orders solicited.

G. F. WESTON.

BUCHANAN, Berrien Co., Mich.

Scriptural and Book of Mormon

subjects illustrated by means of finely painted pictures and charts furnished to order on muslin, canvas, or oilcloth. For particulars address Hulmes & Kress, 609 Main Street, Kansas City, Missouri.

MINISTRY AND BRANCH CARDS.

Neat cards for ministers or branches, with name and address, or place of worship and hours of services on face, and Epitome or "What we Believe" on reverse side.

An excellent aid. Two sizes:
 2 1/4 x 4 inches, per 250.....$0 75
 " " per 1000.....2 50
 3x5 1/2 " per 250.....1 00
 " " per 1000.....3 50

DANISH HYMN BOOK.

Salmebog Til Kirke-og Husandagt. Udgivet og Forlagt af den Gjenorganiserede Jesu Christi Kirke af Idste-Dages Hellige. Cloth, leather backs$0 75

NEW TESTAMENTS. King James' Translation.

Brevier type, 18mo.....$0 25
 Agate type, 32mo. (smaller)..... 15
 Pearl-agate type, 32mo..... 10

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6 1/4 x 8 1/2, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net$2 00

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 3, 1898.

No. 31.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
Elder James Whitehead.....	485
Notes From England and Wales.....	485
Questions and Answers.....	487
Moral Progress.....	487
The Doctrine and Covenants.....	487
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Premillennial Thoughts.....	488
Submission and Rest.....	488
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
The Successful Teacher.....	488
LETTER DEPARTMENT:.....	489
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Northwestern Kansas.....	494
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
Clinton.....	494
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Williams-Bays Debate.—No. 12.....	494
Shelton Reunion.....	498
Church Recorder's Notice.....	499
Bluff Park Reunion.....	499
Reunion Notices.....	500
Book Agent.....	500
Simple Remedies.....	500

NEW MOVEMENT IN HUMANITY.

WILLIAM JEWETT TUCKER: We are now in the midst of one of those greater movements of humanity which I can best characterize by saying that it is a movement from liberty to unity. It is the result largely, I believe, of the intellectual advance of the last generation bringing in new principles and methods and another ruling idea.

Virtually this movement from liberty to unity has already brought us into the presence of a new humanity. The effect of such an inward movement is like that of the old migration of races. Change of thought produces new characteristics in a race like change of place. That which makes a new humanity is another conception of it great enough to change its aspect and to modify in some respects at least its condition. Humanity is at any given time what the ruling conception of it is. Not that the fact ever corresponds exactly to the idea, but that the fact is always other than it would be if the idea had not come or had come in a different form. The monotony of human existence, the living and dying of the generations, is thus broken at long intervals by the incoming of ideas directed toward and laying hold of the developed mind of the race, reopening, it may be, the question of origin and destiny and changing the measurements and valuations of human life. I speak of the thought which lays immediate hold of the mind of the race, affecting the estimate of itself; for the first direction of intellectual movements is quite as often away from as toward humanity. Other objects control the imagination or conscience; something pertaining to God or to the outer universe.

The return of the intellectual life to humanity as the object of its thought, after its searchings after God or its wanderings in the outer universe, is always hailed with an enthusiasm which cannot be misunderstood. The absence of the intellect at any time on other business, leaving human sentiments to the sense of obligation or to the play of the sympathies, creates a veritable homesickness in many minds. Here and there a solitary thinker seems to find supreme repose and content, at the furthest remove from all that is human, freedom from its limitation, relief from its transitoriness; but the mood of most thinkers finds expression in the idea that "the firelight on the hearthstone at home is more attractive than the brightest star in the far off heavens."

Now there is a return to-day of the intellectual life to humanity, as one of the chief objects of its interest; and not only this, but in its return it has brought with it a new working conception of humanity. The growing side of the social bond is not sentiment, hardly sympathy, but intellectual concern. It could not well have been otherwise. Our inheritance from the immediate past is not passion, but method, mental processes, the habit of critical and speculative thought. There have been epochs of passion which have made history, but it cannot be said the epoch from which we are emerging has been in any large sense an epoch of passion. It has included great wars, but not wars animated by the depths of that passion which raged in the French revolution, which exulted in the American and English revolutions. These burned in their age and illuminated with the flame of liberty. No! our direct inheritance is of a different sort.

The great business of our immediate predecessors, that which will mark their time in history, was not to arouse sentiment or passion to high uses, but rather to stimulate investigation, to increase knowledge, to invent hypothesis, to get at the method of the universe. What age ever invaded to a like extent the known realms of nature or challenged with a like audacity the mystery of existence? By the logic of events, therefore, we are committed to the intellectual rather than to the emotional, or even to the purely systematic, method of accomplishing the tasks which have fallen to us. Our predecessors have been trying to think out the problem of the physical world; they have left to us the endeavor to think out the problems of the human world. The stream of the intellectual life along which we are borne has broken—part flowing through worn channels into the physical world, part making new channels through which it may enter into all the religions of the human world.

And a fact which I wish to emphasize is this: that the great constructive force which we are taking over from the results of physical science and which we are trying to apply to the current problems of humanity, is the sense of the organic, which, as we transfer it to things human, becomes the consciousness of a vital unity. Man has found a new place for himself in the physical world, with new partnerships, alliances, affinities. By the same method and under the same impulse he is now beginning to discover and realize new relationships to himself, each man to every other man, the individual to the whole. It is this sense of the organic, the inheritance of the last result of thought and now permeating all our thinking, which is giving us the new conception of humanity, which is virtually giving us a new humanity. It marks the movement from liberty to unity.—Ex.

HAS THE WORLD OUTGROWN THE CHURCH?

DR. GEORGE R. WALLACE preached last evening before a large audience at the Pilgrim Congregational Church on "Has the World Outgrown the Church?" He said:—

"The shores of the ages have been strewn with the wrecks of religious institutions. Instead of the stately temples of Horus, Osiris, and Ra, the Egyptian sands present us only ruins. The land where Homer and Hesiod wrote their immortal poems show us the demolished altars of Zeus and the whole Olympic system. The Greek Parthenon to-day tells us that Athene is dead. We dig in the dust of ages for the altars of Rome's Jupiter and Juno, for the altars of the Scandinavian Odin and Thor, or those of the gods of Druid and Aztec, and find but fragments.

"In that revolt against supernaturalism which fills the air to-day, men think the Christian religion and churches have reached the condition of decay that precedes dissolution. Some of our modern poets, echoing Byron and Shelley, have voiced this dismal pessimism.

"While the failure of the churches to reach the masses and accomplish many other of their objects is real enough, yet the churches are not retrogressing. In 1800 only 7 per cent of the population of the United States were communicants. In 1880 this had increased to 20 per cent, and in 1890 to 21 per cent. There are more ministers and missionaries to-day than ever before. More money is invested in churches; more money is given voluntarily for their support; more people voluntarily connect themselves with churches.

"The world has outgrown some churches. It has outgrown narrow conceptions of religious truth. Heresy trials, narrow doctrinal dissensions, and the insistence on ceremonial observances as essential to the salvation of men drive the masses from the churches which force such limitations upon them."—Chicago Tribune.

WHAT THE POETS BELIEVE.
THE GREAT POETS AND THEIR THEOLOGY.

By Augustus H. Hopkins, D. D. Baptist Publication Society.

It is not claimed that the great poets are intentional theologians. It is only assumed that being great seers they are apt to see and to reveal great truths. The great poets who are studied in this volume of five hundred pages are Homer, Virgil, Dante, Shakspeare, Milton, Goethe, Wordsworth, Browning, and Tennyson. The comparative study of these poets from this particular point of view has its own interest and value. The conclusion is that these chief poets of the world, taken together, give harmonious testimony to the being of God and his personal relations to man.

Homer is in his way intensely religious. God is the sum of all hidden causes. But in his view God and Devil are very much confounded. Zeus has some sense of justice but can hardly be said to have any conscience. Homer's poems do not teach us so much of divinity as of humanity.

If Virgil is the echo of Homer, as Dante of Virgil, yet the echo may be sweeter than the sound that awoke it. But the religious conceptions of Virgil were far in advance of those of Homer. In fact, he often seems to be the prophet of Christianity. That Dante in the first if not also the greatest Christian poem takes Virgil as his guide is regarded as most significant. In Dante not "ten silent centuries" only but all the centuries find a voice. "The corruption of the will, the purification of the will, the perfection of the will"—these are Dante's themes. "Will the world ever see a greater poet than Shakspeare? It can only be by adding Dante's vision of God and Wordsworth's vision of nature to Shakspeare's vision of humanity." Both Dante and Milton regard man chiefly in his relations to an invisible and spiritual world; but to Shakspeare the present world is man's arena, and the future looms up as the dim and shadowy, though most real, background.

"Who is the greatest German? There are two, and only two, who can compete for the honor—Luther and Goethe." Yet this writer has only a qualified admiration for Goethe. "Goethe was a man without conscience; he was the instrument of a merely literary emancipator, while he reestablished so far as he could the reign of pagan self-dependence and of moral indifference." He was the poet of pantheism, and of what might be termed artistic selfishness. As he had no definite thought of God, so he had no definite expectation of immortality. Superstitious faith in a certain demonic energy takes the place of dependence upon God, and the fact that man is possessed by this demonic energy excuses every passion, however vicious. He is admitted to be one of the very greatest literary artists the world has seen, but it is Goethe of whom Tennyson speaks as—

A glorious devil, large in heart and brain,
Nor did love beauty only, or, if good,
Good only for its beauty.

As for Wordsworth, he regarded it as his sacred mission to show that the world is full of beauty and meaning, because it is interfused and throbbing with the life of God. His poetry was one long protest against the banishment of God from his universe. And yet he was not specifically a Christian poet. Browning and Tennyson have eclipsed his fame, but only because they have drawn into their writings much of his peculiar light. Browning is the poet, not of nature, but of man; not of events, but of thoughts. Love is for Browning the highest, most potential conception man can form. As he declares his creed in "Paracelsus":—

"God, thou art love! I build my faith on that!" And it is in Christ that he sees the most effective revelation of God. Later in life, as Browning became less a poet and more a speculative philosopher, it appears that his idea of sin gets confused with a certain pantheistic necessitarianism.

Perhaps the most interesting chapter in the book is the one on Tennyson, as the poet of the divine order in the universe in spite of all the confusion incident to sin, and as distinctively a Christian poet. Although Tennyson, like Browning, had a mind wonderfully open to all the voices of his time, its science, and its philosophy, the life-long, strenuous labor of his genius finds the consummation of vision and of faith "At the Harbor Bar," where he looked to see the pilot face to face.—Tribune.

The wonderful fighting of the first three days of July around Santiago is described by expert writers in the Review of Reviews for August. Mr. Winston Churchill gives in detail the clearest account yet published of the destruction of Cervera's fleet. The story as he tells it forms one of the most thrilling chapters in the history of the American navy. This is followed by Mr. John A. Church's review of the land engagements that ended in the capitulation of Santiago July 17. Both articles are brilliantly illustrated from Hemment's photographs taken immediately after the fighting.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 8, 1898.

No. 31.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, AUG. 3, 1898.

ELDER JAMES WHITEHEAD.

ELDER JAMES WHITEHEAD, better known as Father Whitehead, formerly private secretary to Joseph Smith the martyr, died at his residence, Lamoni, Iowa, on Wednesday, July 27, 1898, at nine o'clock p. m. His death resulted from no particular disease, but was simply a cessation of nature's forces. He fell asleep in Christ at a ripe old age. Of late his powers had been markedly waning, but he retained a fair degree of mental activity until the last. He had lain down to rest when the end came, which was hardly perceptible, so easy was the close of mortal life, so quiet the transition to the better state.

Father Whitehead was born April 12, 1813, in Preston, Lancashire, England. He embraced the gospel early in the history of the English mission of the church, being baptized October 18, 1837, at Preston, by Elder Heber C. Himball, of the Quorum of the Twelve, and one of the first missionaries to Great Britain. He was confirmed by Elders Orson Hyde and Heber C. Kimball. He was shortly afterward ordained to the offices of teacher, priest, and elder; and as a high priest on April 6, 1841, at the first General Conference of the English mission, at Manchester, England, by Elders H. C. Kimball, Brigham Young, and Willard Richards. He continued actively in the ministry in England, until his departure for America, at one time having charge of an important district conference. He also acted as secretary to Father Peter Melling, the first patriarch of the English mission.

In the year 1842 he emigrated to America and landed at Nauvoo, Illinois, April 13. He was immediately appointed to do clerical work in the general offices of the church, and on June 11, of that year was formally appointed private secretary to the Seer, and acted in that capacity until the death of the latter in 1844. In that official relationship he came into close touch with the Prophet, and was an eye witness to many leading events and incidents of his life both public and private. He cherished a deep and lasting friendship for the Seer and his brother Hyrum, of whom he spoke always in terms of high commendation. He remained in Nauvoo until the fall of 1847, after the exodus to the West, being appointed, with another, to take charge of records and other matters connected with the settlement of church business, of a public and private character (certain church records among them), which he turned over to the Twelve under Brigham Young, at Winter Quarters, now Omaha, Nebraska, in the fall of 1847, when he returned to Illinois; taking up his residence at Alton, where he resided until the year 1890, when he came to Lamoni, where he died.

Though importuned to continue with the church under Brigham Young in its exodus to the West, he steadfastly declined all overtures from that body, which he then openly declared to be heretical and a departure from the true faith, but which continued, even after his return to Illinois, to offer him positions of trust and emolument among them.

He was present at Nauvoo, in 1843, when the Prophet Joseph Smith formally blessed and appointed his eldest son Joseph (the President of the Reorganized Church) to be his successor as President of the Church. Of that important event he ever bore a clear and faithful testimony, regarding himself as under special obligation to recount and bear witness to the incidents connected with that historic transaction. His published testimony, with other important items connected with the history of the church in and about Nauvoo, has been given to the church through its publications.

He united with the Reorganized Church on his original baptism, at Alton, Illinois, in September, 1865, and continued in the faith as from the beginning, maintaining his integrity to the end, which with him was a faithful triumph over earth scenes and conditions to rest and reward with the redeemed.

He was married to Mrs. Jane Hindle, then a widow, in January, 1836, and who preceded him in death at Alton, Illinois, August 11, 1886. A son and two daughters were born to them. One of their children, Mrs. Charles Beall, of Alton, with her two sons and six daughters, also Mrs. Mamie and Annie Allen, and Mrs. Charles Barrows, of Lamoni, of his grandchildren, with a number of great-grandchildren, survive their union. On March 24, 1892, he was married to Sr. Ella Dudley, of Lamoni, Iowa, who also survives him.

He made his home in Lamoni since taking up his residence here in 1890. His ardent wish for the past two years has been that he might be permitted to depart in peace. He frequently said of Joseph and Hyrum, "I am going to them." "I shall meet them; thank God."

He kept the faith through scenes of not ordinary trial. He was faithful as a witness to the truth, and died full of years and of faith in God and in the great latter-day work.

The funeral services were held at the saints' church on Friday, the 29th inst., Pres. Joseph Smith preaching the funeral sermon, Brn. A. H. Smith and E. L. Kelley, of the Presidency, assisting; interment in Rose Hill cemetery, Lamoni.

NOTES FROM ENGLAND AND WALES.

FOR some time we have not troubled the HERALD to chronicle events from this far-off land, because we knew that the center of interest was the General Conference and matters receiving consideration there; but we have not been idle. Early in April we found ourself again among the kind-hearted saints of Leeds. Again they received us generously and with apparent anxiety to learn their duty more perfectly. Clouds had not all disappeared from the spiritual horizon, but it was cheering to witness the floods of sunshine that occasionally burst through the rifts of clouds, making glad the heart with spiritual grace. Sometimes with commendable zeal and yet with mistaken wisdom we think that our voices should always be heard in opposition to wrong, and this leads us to speak rashly, and the effect is not good. The silent forces are the most potent. The sunshine makes no noise, and yet its warmth generates all the seeds whose growth clothes and adorns our earth in beautiful garments, and produces the luxurious fruits so profitable to us. The force of gravitation quietly preserves the equilibrium of all animate and inanimate creation and holds in place the great system of worlds. Our divine Master did not strive nor cry, nor was his voice heard in the streets; and yet when he spoke to storm-tossed Galilee there was a great calm. So when amid the storms and tempests of life if we will allow him to provide while we quietly, meekly perform our own duty, there will follow a calm, and our influence will be potent for good.

The conference for Manchester district convened in Leeds on Saturday before Easter and continued over the following Monday. It was quite well attended, and a profitable time was had. We here met our colaborer, Bro. F. G. Pitt, and after a few days labor together we parted, we to go to South Wales, and he to make an effort at Fleetwood. At Lydney we found a lively branch of saints presided over by Elder Ellis. Elder Thomas Griffiths, President of the Eastern Wales district, also resides there, and hence the local branch has his coöperation. The brethren seemed very anxious to extend the work, but our efforts received but meager attention from those without.

We spent a short time at Cardiff, addressing a few at the home of Bro. Thomas Gould. Then a few days rest in the quiet retreat afforded by the home of Bro. E. R. Dewsnup, at the Mumbles, near Swansea. Our next point was at Llanelly, where we again met with Bro. Pitt and with him participated with the brethren of Western Wales district in their conference. We remained a week enjoying the efforts we made because of the support we had in the earnest desire to learn upon the part of the saints, though, as in other places, but few of the non-members cared to hear us. Elder Reese Jenkins presides over the district and Bro. John Edwards over the branch. We also met here for the first time Elder J. D. Jenkins, of the missionary force. We heard him, but as his preaching is in the Welsh tongue, we are not competent to judge of its merits. He appears to be a ready talker, and a good influence attended his presentation of the word. We felt grateful for the privilege granted us whereby we could all feel alike if we cannot talk alike.

The next Sunday after leaving Llanelly we spent with Bro. Dewsnup at Morryston. We were told that we had the privilege of appearing before the largest audience that had assembled in Morryston chapel for some months, but we will not tell you how many it took to compose that large audience, nor that a part of it followed us from Llanelly. It sounds better to leave it right where it is.

In company with Bro. Pitt we returned to Eastern Wales district and visited Aberaman, Pantagrag, and Nantyglo branches. In each of these places we found a small but earnest band of saints. Elder Dan Davies is in charge at Aberaman, and Elder Thomas Jones presides at Nantyglo. A committee appointed by district conference has declared the Pantagrag branch disorganized, but they meet and hold their meetings under direction of some one chosen on each occasion, and will continue to do so pending a final settlement of the matter. We find some earnest spiritual saints in Wales, but we see little prospect of reaching the people without to any great extent. However, some can see more in a prospect than we can, and perhaps we do not see all there is. There is one kind of development, however, that we can always make, and that is the development of ourselves. It is possible, too, that in our anxiety to reach others we do not give as much attention to self-improvement as we should. This prevents our advancement in every way. When we develop so that our present boundaries are too narrow for our strength, we must reach out, for our influence will be irresistible. Then and not till then will our cherished hope of reaching the masses be realized. We are persuaded that less worry and anxiety about devising means and forming plans to reach the world, and more attention given to improvement and development, both in Europe and America, would bring us more rapidly towards the desired ultimatum. Brethren, do not condemn this thought until you think of it carefully.

Whitsuntide found us engaged with the brethren of Birmingham district, at Stafford. The business passed off smoothly, and more than usual liberty was given in presenting the word, for which we feel profoundly grateful. Bro. Pitt left us here and the last we heard from him he was at Plymouth, entertaining cheerful hopes of success. After a few days pleasantly spent with the saints at Stafford we spent a week in the country at the home of Bro. Frank Swan, near Northfield. During our stay here we availed ourselves of the privilege, much appreciated, of visiting Stratford-on-Avon. Then a week in Birmingham, where we appreciated the kindness in which we were received and the eagerness with which the saints heard our humble efforts, though outside interest is not great here. Then a week in London, where we found the saints doing fully as well as we expected and in some respects better. Most of our days in London were spent in visiting places of interest, though we were breaking the bread of life at night and on Sunday. We were kindly received at the American Embassy and through their courtesy were permitted to see the Queen's horses, carriages, harness, etc. It was a fine and costly display, and we enjoyed it, especially the horses. Much of it seemed to us to be foolish extravagance, and not at all in keeping with much that we had heard of the Queen's plain and humble taste; but we forbear, as it is not our mission to criticise where our influence is powerless to reform. Back to Birmingham for a few days, and on to Manchester, in company with Bro.

Thomas Taylor. Here we find the work still gradually developing and the leaven working.

We read the conference minutes, if not always with approval, with much interest; but we wondered why the conference, after making a contribution to McKinley's waste basket, and enthusing over the death of Miss Willard, did not strike a note of sympathy for the "Grand Old Man," then dying at Hawarden Castle, who, in harmony with American doctrine, rejected each title of nobility offered him, living, and since dying plain Mr. Gladstone. Surely if it is proper for the church in its General Assembly to whoop and hurrah over international issues, a man who though surrounded by the pomp of royalty and nobility has made practical the simplicity of American policy, is entitled to recognition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

1.—If a branch grants a letter of removal to one or more of its members, has the branch the right to reconsider and withdraw that letter after the party has been informed that the letter was granted?

Ans.—Yes, if after the vote to grant the letter has been taken and before letter has been issued, good reasons are given for such reconsideration and withdrawal of letter.

2.—Is there a law that compels a member asking for a letter of removal to unite with the nearest branch where in his judgment it would be more convenient to unite with one not the nearest?

A.—We believe the last conference decided that members should unite with the branch the most convenient for them to attend the meetings of. (See page 124 of published minutes.)

3. If a promise is made, or prediction in the name of the Lord, or Spirit in a public assembly of the saints, and that which is spoken does not come to pass but is a complete failure, what steps should be taken with the party or parties making the prediction?

A.—They should come under the rule found in Deuteronomy 18:22. And further, should be kindly admonished of such failure, and requested to be careful lest they fall into the power of evil spirits seeking the overthrow of their faith.

MORAL PROGRESS.

SIGNS of practical moral progress are encouraging to those who labor in the interests of truth to the emancipation of humanity. A hopeful indication is seen in the following "general order" issued by the heads of the United States Army. Ten or twenty years ago such an order would have been regarded as strange if not incredible. To-day it is received with approval by the great masses of the people and by the soldiery itself. No one should be discouraged in any work of true reform in the face of such practical results for good. Let those who labor for the truth, even in the face of great odds, remember that they labor in the best of causes, that worthy the truest and most consecrated efforts of which humanity is capable; that all lines of moral progress assist the work of good in which they are engaged; that God is in and will sustain the right; hence that it cannot fail.

It is with pleasure we produce the order that follows. It is worthy the spirit of "the better humanity" in behalf of which the American people and its army and navy have challenged the cause of the oppressed Cubans. We quote from the New York Voice of July 14, 1898:—

Ever since the war with Spain began, the Voice has been calling the attention of our military authorities to the strong reasons that exist, even from a strictly military point of view, for abolishing the army canteen. The article by General Howard, published in the Voice of April 28, and numerous other publications in these columns upon the same subject, have been forwarded to headquarters, and to many other military leaders, and to thousands of temperance workers throughout the country. The result is a long step in the right direction in the following order issued last week by Major-General Nelson A. Miles:—

General Orders, { Headquarters of the Army,
Adjutant-General's Office,
No. 87. { Washington, July 2, 1898.

The army is engaged in active service under climatic conditions which it has not before experienced.

In order that it may perform its most difficult and laborious duties with the least practicable loss from sickness, the utmost care consistent with prompt and efficient service must be exercised by all, especially by officers.

THE HISTORY OF OTHER ARMIES HAS DEMONSTRATED THAT IN A HOT CLIMATE ABSTINENCE FROM THE USE OF INTOXICATING DRINK IS ESSENTIAL TO CONTINUED HEALTH AND EFFICIENCY.

Commanding officers of all grades and officers of the medical staff will carefully note the effect of the use of such light beverages—wines and beer—as are permitted to be sold at the post and camp exchanges, and the commanders of all independent commands are enjoined to restrict, or to entirely prohibit, the sale of such beverages, if the welfare of the troops or the interests of the service require such action.

In this most important hour of the nation's history it is due the government from all those in its service that they should not only render the most earnest efforts for its honor and welfare, but that their full physical and intellectual force should be given to their public duties, uncontaminated by any indulgences that shall dim, stultify, weaken, or impair their faculties and strength in any particular.

OFFICERS OF EVERY GRADE, BY EXAMPLE AS WELL AS BY AUTHORITY, WILL CONTRIBUTE TO THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE ORDER.

By command of Major-General Miles,
H. C. CORBIN,
Adjutant-General.

THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

"THE laws and instructions contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants (we refer to the 1835 edition) if put into practical operation will make of men but little below the nature of angels. So also is it true of that portion of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants which relates to the financial affairs of the people of God. The law of consecration and inheritance as outlined in this book, is calculated to purge every particle of selfishness and greed from the hearts of all who will willingly obey it."—Searchlight p. 238.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

SR. EMELINE A., wife of Bro. R. M. Elvin, died at Lamoni, Iowa, on Tuesday, the 26th ult., after a protracted and painful illness covering a period of several years. Sr. Elvin was a devoted and faithful member of the church, in the interest of which she freely sacrificed that her husband might labor to advance its interests. Bro. Elvin and his family have the sincere sympathy of the saints in their sad bereavement.

A grove meeting will be held one half mile east of Green schoolhouse, six miles southwest of Lamoni, on Saturday and Sunday, August 6 and 7. Services at 9:30 and 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 and 8:00 p. m. each day. All are invited.

Elder C. A. Albertson, of Albion, Idaho, writes that he is endeavoring so to situate himself as to be able to give his entire time to ministerial work, to which he is devoted heart and soul. He finds congenial work in house to house visiting among the people, preaching the word publicly as opportunity offers.

Prince Bismarck, the Iron Chancellor of the German Empire, died at his residence, Friedrichsruhe, Germany, on Saturday, July 30, at eleven p. m. With the passage of Bismarck from earth life another historic figure of the past is removed, but few if any of whom remain. He was of Jewish blood and adds another to the list of great men among that race destined to occupy an important station in the empires of the world. He was the creator of united Germany and the acknowledged leading diplomat in Europe during his days of office as the practical head of German state affairs. The passage of the old political leaders emphasizes the new political and social era upon which the world has entered.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Holding none above Thee,
Mind and strength and heart,
I, my God, would love thee
All for what thou art.
As thy first and greatest
Teach me this command,
And what thou createst
Make, in grace, to stand."

PREMILLENNIAL THOUGHTS.

HAVING read in a late issue of the Herald an article by Sr. Ivy C. Lankford on Coöperation, I would like to contribute my little mite on this subject; as it is a pleasing thought to me that the time will come when the saints will all live as one family and possess all things in common; when there shall be no poor among us, but all shall be equal, as I believe that this is the way God wants his people to live. But as Zion is to be the pure in heart, and her people are to be a peculiar people, I think it will be necessary for us to leave off some of our pride and folly, as evinced by the wearing of costly raiment and jewelry; also the use of snuff, tobacco, coffee, and among a few of the saints, the use of intoxicating liquors.

As God has commanded his people to come out of the world and be separate from them, and has spoken against the things mentioned above, and as this is to be a day of sacrifice and the tithing of his people, would it not be more consistent in us as a people to do as he has commanded? Some may say that these habits, after being once learned, are impossible to quit; but I do not believe that the Lord requires anything of us that we cannot do, and I believe that he will help us if we will ask him in faith, nothing doubting, and make an honest effort to quit. Do not associate with those who will entice you to indulge in these habits.

We sisters have another injurious habit, which is like the world, and is caused by pride and vanity—I mean the wearing of corsets. God made the human form perfect, and it is not necessary to change it by the wearing of tight corsets. Some say that they do not look neat without corsets, but that is because of the present styles; we might make our dresses in such a manner that we will look neat without these things. At any rate we ought to make a strong effort to leave off the fashions and follies of the world and be a peculiar people. Read this quotation from the Book of Mormon, and see if we are not nearly like the people described therein: "Moreover the Lord saith, Because the daughters of Zion are haughty, and walk with stretched forth necks and wanton eyes, walking and mincing as they go, and making a tinkling with their feet [dancing]; therefore the Lord will smite with a scab the crown of the head of the daughters [or sons] of Zion. . . . In that day the Lord will take away the bravery of their tinkling ornaments, and cauls [veils], and round tires like the moon [earrings], the chains and the bracelets, and the mufflers, and the bonnets, and the ornaments of their legs, and the head-bands, and the tablets, and the earrings, the rings, and the nose-jewels, the changeable suits of apparel, and the mantles, and the wimples, and the crisping-pins, the glasses, and the fine linen, and hoods, and the veils. And it shall come to pass, instead of sweet smell, there shall be stink; and instead of a girdle, a rent; and instead of well set hair, baldness; and instead of a stomach, a girding of sackcloth; burning instead of beauty. Thy men shall fall by the sword, and thy mighty in the war. And her gates shall lament and mourn; and she shall be desolate, and shall sit upon the ground." —Page 80, verse 10.

In tracing the history of God's dealings with man we find that when any people became lifted up in the pride of their hearts that they were rejected, and it is my daily prayer that we may not be overcome with pride and the vanities of this world and be rejected; but that we may be humble and be found worthy to stand. I feel, as I write, a consciousness of my own shortcomings. I am the weakest and most unworthy of all saints. Pray for me, dear saints, that I may be enabled to resist the wiles of the great adversary of man, and be found worthy to have a portion in the millennial reign. My prayers are always for the final triumph of truth.

A SISTER.

MILTON, Florida.

SUBMISSION AND REST.

The camel, at the close of day,
Kneels down upon the sandy plain,
To have his burden lifted off,
And rest to gain.

My soul, thou too should'st to thy knees,
When daylight draweth to a close,
And let thy Master lift the load
And grant repose.

Else how could'st thou to-morrow meet,
With all to-morrow's work to do,

If thou thy burden all the night
Dost carry through?

The camel kneels at break of day
To have his guide replace the load,
Then rises up anew to take
The desert road.

So thou should'st kneel at morning's dawn,
That God may give thee daily care,
Assured that he no load too great
Will make thee bear.—Selected.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

BRO. E. WILSEY, Wathena, Kansas, requests your prayers that he be healed of affliction and be also blessed in spirit.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOUGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

THE SUCCESSFUL TEACHER.

BY ALICE C. SCHWARTZ.

For the convention of the Northern Nebraska district association.

IN order to make a successful teacher we must have the aptness and the ability to govern, and, as a rule, a love and desire for the work; yet in some instances great benefit has been derived from the efforts of teachers who considered the work a cross and only engaged in it because they felt it their duty. But to be a teacher among teachers, we must follow the instructions as given in James 1: 5, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him."

My paper will treat particularly upon the Intermediate and Primary grades. When you come always be interesting, filled with enthusiasm and earnestness, not only in what you say, but in what you do. Encourage them to talk on subjects and ask questions, be one among them. If you criticize them, give them the same privilege in regard to yourself. Show them that you are only a number of years older and are trying to learn and grow better all the time.

BEFORE YOUR CLASS

Make Psalms 19: 14 your constant prayer; "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

In every lesson be sure and find

SOMETHING PRACTICAL

for our daily lives. Encourage the pupils to tell what lessons they have learned, and possibly you will have four or five suggestions that you can put into practice. Enlarge upon the lessons given in the Sunday school Quarterly as much as possible. Learn the names of the books in the Bible; take up prominent characters in the Old and New Testament; commit verses to memory, etc. Do not dwell too long on any one subject, so your class will grow restless and uneasy. Have a variety of work, and be bright and entertaining.

Now comes the most important part of it, our life or our before the pupil. We may be an eloquent talker, have superior methods of teaching, be able to quote readily from the Scriptures, but if our lives are tinged with hypocrisy, they will be more detrimental than beneficial. If you show the evil effects of the poisonous nicotine in tobacco, be careful that you are never seen puffing a cigar yourself, or if a lady, avoid all chances of your pupils seeing you conversing with a gentleman escort while he lightly puffs the smoke from a twenty-five cent cigar in your face. Some people really abhor pipes, but tell you that they think it is all right to smoke good cigars. Have you ever thought what a close relationship they bear to each other? We think that in 1 Corinthians 3: 17 is the best advice we can find in regard to this matter, which reads as follows: "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."

EXAMPLE

If we suggest to our boys that playing base ball on Sunday is not the proper thing, they will readily say, "Well, it is only and don't you do anything for pleasure on Sunday?" What about carriage drives with a number of friends, or one special friend? You may discern a wide difference, but the boys are unable to do so. There is a difference, of course; one is a pleasure for you, and the other for the boys.

A PLEASANT PASTIME;

We may also impress upon our pupils the necessity of

ATTENDING THE REGULAR CHURCH SERVICES, and strive to assist wherever there is an opportunity. That is all very well,—but keep your pupils in ignorance if you miss the early meeting of the young people, where you are greatly needed, and also church services at night, in order that you may enjoy the delightful company of your lady or gentleman friend, as the case may be. Please let me read Isaiah 58: 13, 14: "If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words; then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

We may show the

EVIL EFFECTS OF CHEAP SHOWS

and Sunday theaters, but is our example in strict accord with the instruction given, if we attend a theater on Tuesday evening, which gave its opening performance the Sunday afternoon and evening previous? Read Romans 12: 2: "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." 1 John 2: 15: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." And 2 Corinthians 6: 17: "Wherefore come out from among them; and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you."

One of the most IMPORTANT LESSONS

to instill into the minds of the little ones is that of unselfishness. How many of us esteem others better than ourselves? Do we court positions in the Sunday school or church council, that some one else could fill much better?

One blessed thing in the Lord's work is, if we are really fitted for the position we need do no canvassing, for he has ways and means to install us in that office. We often wonder why there is so much discord in Sunday school and other places where the officeholders are what we call Christians. Are the positions filled with the proper persons? If so, are they doing their full duty to bring honor upon their God, and the place they occupy? We cannot teach unselfishness unless we live it to the best of our ability. If you desire to know your true standing, as a Christian, get a report from some of your Sunday school pupils: generally they are strict and accurate judges. We may do our full duty while in Sunday school, but what about our life at home and abroad? You cannot keep it in strict confidence, and it would be wrong if you could. Read James 1: 27: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." And Micah 6: 8: "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

As we study God's word we may think the really true Christian has a to travel, but the sweet consolation comes to our souls, that it has been trodden before by our Savior, and he has sent his Holy Spirit to comfort, guide, and cheer us on the way: it is impossible to do it alone, but if we pray every day for strength and guidance, and exert our utmost efforts to do the will of God, regardless of what the world may say, our lives will not have been spent in vain, and our pupils will say, "I have tried to heed the advice of my teacher and to follow her example, and she has led me in the right way; for she has endeavored to follow in the footsteps of the Savior, the Great Teacher."

NARROW PATH

Letter Department.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., July.

Editors Herald:—Since my last letter I have visited Stafford, Leeds, Fleetwood, Bristol, Weston, Broadclyst, and Plymouth; also the following towns in Wales: Cardiff, Porth, Llanelly, Swansea, Neath, Aberaman, and Nantyglo. I was at Leeds during your General Conference. Our conference was fairly well attended, and the good Spirit prevailed. Here I found some kind-hearted saints and tarried with them a few days, and would have remained longer but had appointments out for a course of lectures at Fleetwood, a very pretty little watering place. Bro. O. Owen is the only member there. Bro. Owen was formerly a resident of Burlington, Iowa, is pretty well along in years, but quite active and fully alive in the work. We had been corresponding with each other for some time relative to introducing the gospel in Fleetwood, and we took extra pains to have the meetings well advertised in the papers two or three weeks in advance. Bro. Owen also wrote a number of personal letters to friends and acquaintances, and we both looked forward toward what we hoped would be a good gathering when our meetings commenced.

Judge our disappointment when Bro. Owen and I found our two selves the only ones present at the first meeting appointed for Sunday morning. In the afternoon five came and to these I preached, but with poor liberty. In the evening one man stepped in, remained a few minutes, and finding himself alone, left, though we urged him to wait a few moments longer in the hopes that others would come. But not a soul came. Poor Bro. Owen looked so discouraged. It almost made the dear old man ill. I cheered him up as best I could, and suggested that we do not worry, and to-morrow we would meet together to determine what we had better do. I confess I felt like taking the next train; but after laying the matter before the Lord, I determined to make a still further effort. So when I met Bro. Owen the next morning, it was decided to have five hundred bills printed and distributed, and make another strong effort to get the people out. This was done, and resulted in drawing out a nice little audience, to whom I spoke with good liberty, and retired feeling much encouraged. One young lady came forward and thanked me for what she had received. We then continued each night with good interest by those who attended, though they were few, less than a dozen.

On Saturday it was decided to put out a thousand more handbills, giving the subjects for Saturday and three services on Sunday. But that night not a soul came out. Sunday morning, however, we had a pretty fair audience, among which was the stranger who stepped in on Sunday evening but would not stay, and who we afterwards learned was a Mormon hater, and having shown Bro. Owen the door and ordered him out when he had called to invite him out to our meetings. In the afternoon we had a few more out, and in the evening we had a good audience, the best of attention and interest, and I felt well. To our surprise our Mormon hater friend returned and was present at all three services, and appeared greatly interested, and in the evening he came forward and placed some money on the stand to help defray expenses. The daughter of the hotel keeper with whom we lodged expressed her gratitude several times for the information I had given her. An old gentleman likewise endorsed what was said, and seemed anxious to hear more. A lady whom Bro. Owen had convinced of the truth of our work expressed herself as being satisfied now, and would obey at the first opportunity. But she wanted to avoid family trouble, her husband being an opposer. On the whole I believe good was done, though not as successful as we had hoped. But an opening was made, and we hope next time we shall do better.

I mention this incident, as it helps to show how difficult it is to reach the people in this land. Nor is it to be wondered at when we consider the bad work done by many of those professing to be saints. It will require time to preach, as well as to live this evil down.

Soon after this I joined Bro. Heman at Llanelly conference. And as we had been working apart since we came to this mission, it was decided that we should travel together through South Wales, and have the benefit of each other's company. The great coal strike was on in full force, which threw our brethren out of work, which was rather against us. But the saints were very kind and did what they could to make our visit successful, and I believe good was done; I know Bro. Heman preached some grand sermons; I was benefited anyway, and the saints were strengthened, and many of those outside the fold instructed, for which they will, no doubt, have to render an account some day.

While Bro. Smith visited Morriston I joined Bro. J. D. Jenkins and visited Neath. Here we found a few of the Utah church, who received us in their houses, and to whom we preached afternoon and evening with good liberty. They seemed to receive the word with gladness, and invited us to come again. I have hopes for this people if they are properly looked after. I believe that they as well as others are best reached in the spirit of love. Throwing mud may be agreeable, sometimes, to the attacking party, but it seldom does much good to either side.

We finished our trip through South Wales in time to attend the conference of Birmingham district, which convened at Stafford, May 28. Our conference passed off peacefully. A few strangers attended; on Sunday evening, especially, we had a good audience, and Bro. Heman enjoyed good liberty. Bro. Dyche's family, where I was provided for, are full of music, so I need not say that I was happy; and I hope we will be forgiven for not retiring early; just that once, as it was so hard to stop, and I was so hungry for a good sing.

After conference we hardly knew where to go, no special demand for our labors being manifest. I rather felt drawn toward the south of England, where I had heard that there were a few scattered saints. It was a long way from Stafford, something over two hundred miles, but after canvassing the matter between us, it was decided that I should go. I stopped at Weston-Super-Mare on my way south, a very pretty place by the sea, where wife had been making her home. Here I rested a few days, going across to Cardiff to preach on Sunday at Bro. and Sr. Gould's house. Here I was called upon to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Bevin's infant child, who was called home to the "better land," Saturday, June 4. On the following Thursday I again bade wife good-bye and started for Plymouth.

Leaving the train at Exeter, I visited Bro. Tucker at Broadclyst. Bro. Tucker is presiding elder of a small branch, but it does not seem to manifest much life. I was in hopes that I should be able to do them some good, but Bro. Tucker was not willing for preaching service, on account of the prejudice of the people. The man who owns the land about Broadclyst and the parson are relatives, and they seem to be able to do pretty much as they please with the people religiously. At any rate I soon decided that I could not do much there under present existing circumstances, so after a few hours' rest, I pushed on to Plymouth.

Here I found about a dozen members, who had been struggling for years to retain and develop the life planted within them. Some were nearly dead spiritually. Two or three sisters, however, had managed to keep up their weekly meetings. They received me gladly, and I soon had meetings under way, at first in a little 12x12 room, then in a neat hall, where we continue to hold forth every Sunday evening, still retaining our small room for Sunday afternoon and meetings during the week. So few attended at first that it was really discouraging, only a very few of even the members turned out, but we kept on. Our numbers gradually increasing, till last Sunday night we had a congregation of thirty-eight, so I am told by those who counted. I was blessed with good liberty, and all seemed interested and pleased, except one old man who for a little while gave assent to every point, by nodding his head, till finally he seemed to see what the conclusion must be if he indorsed what was said, so he quickly grabbed his hat and left.

I also succeeded in organizing a Sunday school, and last night I had the pleasure of conducting five into the waters of baptism, nice appearing young people; three young men, almost men, aged about fifteen, and two young ladies, one about fourteen, the other about twenty. A number of others are attending our meetings, and I believe will come in after they understand the gospel. I am in hopes that this will be the beginning of a good work in these parts. I am in hopes that a branch will soon be formed, and that men will be raised up to take care of the work.

I see by the last Herald that Bro. W. Newton is to be in England this month, and we have hopes that he will be able to look after the work here and prevent it going back again. I have been here over four weeks and expect to remain about three weeks longer, till the mission conference convenes at Birmingham, and will then return north to see Bro. Heman before he takes his leave. We regret his leaving, on account of the work; but it may be premature to attempt very much here. If so it is better to go where more fruits will result from our labor. But I still believe there is yet a big work to be done here by some one.

Wife is here keeping house for me; her health, I am pleased to say, is better. She is still weak, but is now able to walk without pain. Kindly remember us in prayer that God will make our work a success.

In bonds,

F. G. PITT.

P. S.—I want to make a request of some of our dear children of the Sunday schools in America. Those who would like to assist the poor children here, kindly save up your Hopes after you have read them, and when you have four or five on hand, wrap them up, put a stamp on them and address them to Miss Boynes, 6 Martin Street, Plymouth, England. Don't do this just once or twice, but keep it up all the year, and then Miss Boynes will write you a letter in the Hope and tell you some of the good you have done in this way. We want to give the children a paper every Sunday. If we get more than we need for the school in Plymouth, we will send them to some of the others who need them. Now try and let us see how many are willing to thus be little missionaries.

UNCLE FRED.

LAMONI, Iowa, July 26.

Editors Herald.—I herewith present an article written by Elder Mellinger, who is the pastor of the Christian church at Mondamin, and who acted as Elder Bays' moderator in the Bays and Williams debate. Also my reply, which was sent to the Index, on June 15. Having waited for a month and a third without hearing a word from the Index, I now offer the whole thing to the Saints' Herald as a necessary means of protection against misrepresentation and lying. I also add the following certificate:—

MONDAMIN, Iowa, July 16, 1898.

This is to certify that the following is a verbatim copy of the closing paragraph of a letter written to me January 1, 1898, by J. R. Lambert.

WILLIAM STUART.

"I am in very poor health; but should I sufficiently recover, could you find a comfortable place for me to stay during the debate?"

Your brother,

"J. R. LAMBERT."

"MONDAMIN DEBATE.

"The debate between D. H. Bays of the Church of Christ, and W. T. Williams, of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, closed last night after a warm contest of twelve nights. Four propositions were discussed. The two church propositions occupied three nights each, Book of Mormon four nights, and 'That the Bible contains all of God's revealed word to man necessary for salvation,' etc., two nights.

"Elder Williams was assisted by Apostles Lambert and Wright and a dozen other L. D. S. preachers of more or less prominence. While the odds were against us so far as numbers were concerned (16 to 1), yet the outcome of the debate was satisfactory to our people. I was not an unbiased listener and therefore not an able judge, but can say positively that the 'outside,' with a very few exceptions if any, and as yet I have heard of none, claim a decided victory for Bro. Bays.

"The L. D. S. will undoubtedly, as usual, claim an overwhelming victory through their papers; and it is certain that they felt defeat, as the following will show:—

“(Copy of the original.)

“To whom it may concern. This is to certify that on the evening of May 5, '98 Elder D. H. Bays, of the Christian Church, and C. E. Butterworth, of the Recognized Church of Jesus Christ of L. D. S., agreed to the following in the presence of a large audience of people; to wit: That Elder D. H. Bays will debate with any of the said recognized church at Defiance, Iowa, the propositions which were signed some time since by himself and T. W. Williams to be discussed at Mondamin. Debate at Defiance to take place at a time mutually agreed upon by the disputants, who shall be subject to the same conditions and governed by the same rules and standard of evidences as shall govern in the debate which is to govern in the debate which is to commence at Mondamin, Monday, May 9, '98.

“The above agreement is to be subject to the approval or disapproval of Elder Joseph R. Lambert, of Lamoni, Iowa.

“Dated at Defiance, Iowa, May 6, '98.

“D. H. BAYS.

“C. E. BUTTERWORTH.

“The reader will notice that the above agreement was to be approved or disapproved by Apostle Lambert, Elder Lambert, in order to satisfy himself whether it would be safe to accept the agreement or not, came to hear the debate held here. He evidently thought it unsafe, as toward the close of the discussion when the agreement was presented to him, he refused to meet Bro. Bays again on the same propositions, governed by the same rules.

“Elder Williams kept telling the audience that they were satisfied with the debate. Well, I guess they were satisfied. Got all they wanted of it. So well satisfied that they do not care to try it again elsewhere for either people to hear. Does this not show that they really feel defeated? And yet watch what they say through their papers.

“W. L. MELLINGER.”

—Christian Index for June 1, 1898.

“MONDAMIN DEBATE.”

Editor Index:—In your issue for June 1, appears an article under the above caption, and over the signature of W. L. Mellinger, concerning the late debate between Elder Bays, of the Church of Christ, and Elder Williams, of the Latter Day Saints. Will you kindly permit me to correct some of the false statements contained in said article.

1. Elder Mellinger says:—

“Elder Williams was assisted by Apostles Lambert and Wright [Wight] and a dozen other L. D. S. preachers of more or less prominence.”

The latter part of this statement is entirely false. Elder Williams was assisted but little except by one man, and no one dictated to him what course he should pursue, but simply offered suggestions and looked up some proof texts. But what is there in this charge, even if it were true? So far as we are concerned, the debate was not held for mastery, but, rather, to elicit truth and expose error. That which a religious system does not contain, can no more be drawn out from it than blood can be extracted from a turnip.

2. Elder Mellinger says that “it is certain that they [the L. D. S.] felt defeat, as the following will show.” He then presents an article of agreement which was signed by D. H. Bays and C. E. Butterworth, at Defiance, Iowa, May 6, 1898, in which Elder Bays agrees to meet any representative man of the Latter Day Saints, in public debate, at Defiance, Iowa, on the same propositions which Elders Bays and Williams were about to discuss at Mondamin. The last paragraph reads as follows:—

“The above agreement is to be subject to the approval or disapproval of Elder Joseph R. Lambert, Lamoni, Iowa.”

Among other things Elder Mellinger presents the following remarks:—

“Elder Lambert, in order to satisfy himself whether it would be safe to accept the agreement or not, came to hear the debate held here. He evidently thought it unsafe, as toward the close of the discussion when the agreement was presented to him, he refused to meet Bro. Bays again on the same propositions, governed by the same rules.”

All this is presented as evidence that “it is certain” that the L. D. S. felt that they were defeated! Now, what are the facts in the case?

1. Elder Lambert expected and was prepared to attend the debate before he knew anything about said article of agreement, it being received only one day before he started to the debate.

2. The article of agreement was not presented to me at all, by Elder Bays or anyone else, at Mondamin, or any other place, except that a copy of it was sent to me by Elder C. E. Butterworth. I myself was the first to call Elder Bays' attention to the agreement entered into by him and Elder Butterworth. I went to his boarding place, and there, in his own room, Elder J. F. Mintun being present with me, (but Elder Mellinger not present,) we talked over the agreement with a view to arranging for the debate. I did not refuse to meet him on the same propositions debated at Mondamin, nor did I refuse to be governed by the same rules.

I approached Elder Bays the second time concerning this debate, at the close of the discussion, at Mondamin, but received no satisfaction from him more than a statement that he would see after awhile whether or not it would be practicable!

I am prepared to prove my statements to be true, but challenge the proof in support of the statements made by Elder Mellinger.

I hope, Mr. Editor, that you will be able to see that justice demands the publication of this reply; but should it be rejected, please return at my expense.

Yours for truth and right,

J. R. LAMBERT.

LAMONI, Iowa, June 15, 1898.

SHARON, Pa., July 16.

Editors Herald:—About the last of May I left the district on a mission which is seldom forgotten, for while the soldiers were memorializing their sleeping comrades I addressed the boys in blue, and encountered no embarrassment, as our present national complications furnished good and sprightly subject matter. Bro. James Moler made them also a very appropriate speech. The services were held in a Universalist church, to an overflowing crowd, and it seemed to me more like a Latter Day Saint meeting; for Bro. James West having charge of the services made all three in the stand Latter Day Saints. All seemed well pleased and the day passed away joyfully.

On the 4th of June we left for Wheeling, West Virginia, where we spent three weeks in making acquaintance with thirty or more newly made relatives. Before leaving for my district I baptized Bro. Kennedy's excellent wife, who was brought to the truth by the influence of her husband, who but a few months ago was brought to the truth.

Bro. M. T. Short will well remember the seemingly profitless meetings he held in the Pythian Castle in the very heart of the city, and how we all labored under considerable expense for ten days only to preach to empty chairs, except on the first two nights. It was the results of these meetings, conducted under discouragements, by which those two souls were brought to and now rejoice in the truth, having a satisfaction for which they longed. The meeting, which was to conclude the series was on Sunday evening. Bro. Short requested the writer to fill the appointment while he would fill the one in the church. In company with Bro. Ullom we started, but on reaching the Castle found no one to preach to. We waited until after eight o'clock, and still no one came, and concluding there would be no meeting, began to extinguish the lights, when we heard foot-steps which proved to be that of a young man looking for the “Mormon” meeting. Thinking we could do better by talking to him directly, we began to explain our faith, giving him the assurance we were not of the Utah stripe; giving him some tracts and an Ensign, he giving us the promise to come to our church three miles south. We started, and true to his promise we found him at the church, and ever since he has been one who could always be seen in his seat. Thus we see brethren that we might try at times without any seeming effect for good, but in the meantime a good seed may be planted in some honest heart that will subsequently grow and mature unto obedience.

We feel we have been amply paid if the effects of those meetings go no further, but feel they will not yet stop, as he has exerted an influence for others who may yet take hold, and who can tell where it will end? Brethren, let us take courage and do what little we can, under all circumstances, and resign all to God.

Our reunion will be held at Conneautville, Pennsylvania, the latter part of September, in Nature's green tabernacle. Further notice will be given in the Herald. Would like Brn. W. H. Kelley, R. Etzenhouser, and J. F. McDowell to be in attendance, if possible. An unusually good time is looked for, because of the natural loveliness of the location, and above all with a branch which has existed for nearly fifteen years without an elder's court, and as far as trouble is concerned, would not know there was a branch; while there are branches, I am sorry to say, that are better known by the constant trouble among them than by good works. O may God help us to avoid such notoriety.

I inclose this letter from the editor of the Church Advocate, in reply to some questions.

Yours for truth,

F. J. EBELING.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 8, 1898.

Dear Sir:—I will reply to your questions in the order in which you have asked them.

1. "When, where, and by whom was your church founded?"

Ans. We do not speak of "our church," nor of anyone having "founded" it. We profess to carry on the work of the apostles in building churches of God as founded by Jesus Christ. But in 1826-29 John Winebrenner and others began again the building of churches of God. So we call them. They are God's churches.

2. "What are your distinctive teachings?"

Ans. Apostolic Christianity as we understand it. Repentance, regeneration, conversion, justification, holiness of life, immersion, the Lord's supper, washing of the saints' feet, coöperation of churches under annual meetings called elderships. Presbyterian form of local church government, and no bishops.

3. "Have you any apostolic organization?"

Ans. We have regular church organizations, with elders and deacons. Pastors are included as teaching elders. Teaching elders and one ruling elder for each teaching elder, elected as delegated by the charge, constitute the Annual Eldership covering a State, half a State, etc.

4. "Do you accept members from other churches?" etc.

Ans. We receive anyone who comes to us either with a credible profession of faith in Jesus, or a certificate of good standing in an evangelical church. Baptism with us is not a condition of membership. While we teach immersion as the only scriptural baptism, we do not make it a condition of membership.

Yours very truly,

C. H. FORNEY.

LOOKING GLASS, Oregon, July 12.

Editors Herald:—Considerable is being said about coöperation, with a view to bettering the condition of our people financially. That something of the kind is needed there can be no doubt, but just what that something is cannot be so easily determined. There is no doubt in my mind as to the advisability and absolute necessity of coöperation, but there is a doubt as to our wisdom to so operate. Men have seen or dimly seen the advantages arising from a proper coöperation, and have used their wisdom time and time again, the result being sad failure. Such is written I think on every movement of the kind that time has given opportunity for development.

With such experiences before us what reason have we for supposing that we would be successful? If the object is attainable the failure of others is due to a lack of wisdom or wrongdoing. Our success must then be based upon our supposed superior wisdom and integrity. The latter we trust we have. But does a glance at our business ventures of the past justify us in the belief that we are greatly blessed with wisdom in a business sense? Let all who are anxious for a move of this kind think calmly of this, and save regrets.

In my judgment in order for a move of this kind to be successful, the wisdom of God must be obtained. And that some such move is contemplated in the latter-day work, I am fully assured; but it is best to move with great care along these lines; in fact, to move only as we are directed. Mistakes of this character are hard to be borne.

But some will ask, "Are we not commanded to move out and not wait until commanded in all things?" Yes, not wait until commanded in all things, which implies in some things that we should wait and this contemplated move is one. The conditions that obtain to-day demand it. "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God." If a church lacks it, then as a church let us ask for it. Brethren, we need more God in the church and less man.

Man's wisdom is good as far as it goes, but it does not reach far enough. It prompted to build a vessel, a college, and other things, that time proves to be mistakes. Time and our purses are too short to make many more such moves; but now, as they are made, the proper thing to do is for all to step forward and with a helping hand remove their effects. If an individual can ask and obtain wisdom respecting important moves in life work, so should the church; especially a church that professes to be and is led by revelation.

As our Father directs in the spiritual affairs of the church, so will he in the temporal things. It is true we might, as has been suggested, experiment along these lines. We have and are passing through a college experience just now that is not pleasant nor profitable; and the end is not yet.

Daily I am made to see the absolute necessity of more divinity and less humanity in this work.

In my judgment all important financial church movements should be under the control and direction of the Bishopric, and it under the control and direction of the First Presidency and Twelve, and they move as directed by the Lord. Our people, unaided by wisdom from above, have no more business sagacity than other people, and sometimes I fear not as much. God's people never were good financiers, only when they obeyed the law of tithing. Such is largely true of them to-day. No, brethren, if I had millions I would not put a cent into any such schemes as have been outlined in the Herald, unless I wanted to lose it. Such should originate at the head. The plan for uniting this people financially has not been fully given, not much more than an intimation that such will be, and to rush into the matter blindly will surely result in loss and disappointment. In order for such to be successful, men of means must take hold of it, which they will not do, until the way is more clear. Of course moneyed men of the church could unite their capital and profit by it, as those of the world do, but would be obliged to follow the same lines that others do, which would result in their own exclusive profit.

Another fact must be borne in mind, that the poor man's struggle is largely because he is obliged to pay enormous tribute to all the great monopolies, syndicates, and trusts, of the day; and they cannot be escaped to any considerable extent. Upon all the numerous articles of commerce they levy a tax, and we must pay it as long as we use them.

It may be said that the move now being discussed is not a church act. In a sense it is not, but it is a move in the church, and if resting alone on man's wisdom, would meet the same fate as others carried forward by their wisdom. If this is not a church movement, is it not time that the church did move in these matters? I think so.

Yours, desiring the prosperity and well-being of Zion,
HIRAM L. HOLT.

SWEETWATER, Texas, July 19.

Editors Herald:—After doing some mission work in company with Bro. Sheppard, in San Antonio, and in Bandera County, agreeable to arrangements with Bro. Sheppard, I started on the 5th inst. enroute to this country to do mission work. On arriving at Bal-langer by railway, over three hundred miles travel, I found Bro. F. M. Oldham awaiting my arrival, although it was the hour of midnight. He and his good wife, Sr. Oldham, had come by wagon a distance of thirty-five miles to take me to their home near Guion. Soon the following morning we were off for our destination, with good team and plenty of prairie dogs to cheer us on the way. Arriving about sunset we found the good daughter preparing refreshments.

We commenced preaching the next day and after preaching six times we closed with the baptism of four as nice young people as can be found in Taylor County; three young men and one young lady, ages from sixteen to twenty-two.

I shall go in a short time to Bro. J. G. Emons', near Abilene, and preach a week, then back to Guion. In both places several are investigating, and we have reason to believe they are near the kingdom.

It is easy to preach where we find a few saints that have made a good record. If it were so everywhere our labors would be crowned with better success. I feel more confident of success to labor where we have never before been heard of than in a place where some one or more has made a bad record.

Yours for the truth,

L. L. WIGHT.

ADIN, Modoc Co., Cal.

Editors Herald:—The writer reached his field of labor May 28 and entered upon active missionary life the following day, preaching to the San Francisco saints morning and evening. Have labored in Sonoma, Amador, and Placer counties since then. Have had the pleasure of meeting some of the warmest-hearted saints out here that it has ever been my good fortune to meet, but here as elsewhere the church is "like unto a net that is cast into the sea." There is nothing, to my mind, so encouraging to a missionary as to go into a place where the members of the church are living their religion and showing by their every-day walk in life that they are worthy of the name of saint.

While there are many things in California to discourage, yet there are so many things to encourage us that we feel sure of the ultimate success of the work out here. The saints inquire for Bro. R. J. Parker and speak very highly of his labors as well as the labor of many others. It fills my heart with joy to hear our ministry spoken of in such high terms by both those in and out of the church.

I preached four times at a point ten miles west of Fulton, the nearest Latter Day Saints. Had splendid interest, but it was too dark for the people to venture out on the narrow mountain roads at night, so decided to wait until we could have a good moon before commencing a protracted effort. Unless signs fail there will be quite an ingathering there. In fact there were two ready for baptism, but there were good reasons for delay.

After a stage ride of one hundred and twenty-seven miles over the mountains, occupying thirty hours of continuous misery, we had the pleasure of grasping the hand of Bro. A. C. Barmore with whom we will labor for the present at least. We expect to remain in this part of California for sixty days or more. There are very few saints in this part of the State and we need the prayers of the saints that we may be directed in our labors.

My permanent address is, No. 3010 Sixteenth Street, San Francisco, California.

Yours in bonds,

FRED. B. BLAIR.

CARSON CITY, Nev., July 10.

Editors Herald:—Please state to your readers that we arrived here without accident and are now anxious to get to work. Would be glad to correspond with or assist anyone of the local force within the State, or to hear of new openings, where we may erect our standard.

Brethren, will you please advise me of the necessities of the mission, and greatly oblige,
Yours in bonds,

T. W. CHATBURN.

GRINNELL, Iowa, July 16.

Editors Herald:—On last Sunday I baptized Mrs. Nancy Wall. She belonged to the Salvation Army four years, and was counted one of their best members; but when she heard the gospel in its fullness, she was no longer satisfied where she was, but wanted me to baptize her. The Lord truly led her in a mysterious way to see the light. She is well versed in the Scriptures, and is teaching the truth to others, and will do a good work.

I am told that a man is also about ready to obey here. Let the good work go on.

In hope,

J. S. ROTH.

ESCANABA, Mich., July 27.

Editors Herald:—I came here yesterday, hoping to open up the work in the upper peninsula of Michigan, and spend two or three months, and preach and baptize and establish the work of the last days.

I do not see why we cannot get people to believe the gospel here as well as in other places; although there are many Catholics here, who do not accept the gospel as readily as the Protestants do, as a rule, yet I believe we should open up in new places and get men and women in the work, and put in men to look after them as the Lord may direct, and thus spread the good news.

If there are any who read this and know of any members or friends who may wish to hear, I would be glad to have their name and post office address, so I might visit them if on or near where I may be. I may be addressed at Escanaba, Michigan, for the present.

On my way up I stopped off at Boyne City; spent a week in and around there, taking part in their two-days' meetings, and we enjoyed ourselves well. One more was baptized and the saints were encouraged and built up.

Bro. C. G. Lewis who resides there, and who not having much on hand to do just now, came here with me. May we have the prayers of all that we may have success.

J. J. CORNISH.

ISACA, Texas, July 21.

Editors Herald:—We had a very fine conference at Shawnee branch, Red River County; large attendance, good behavior. The saints are gaining prestige in Red River County and Northeastern Texas; many openings for preaching.

I am now on my way to Collin County, to open up the work, in company with Bro. R. T. Jones. I will begin meetings near Farmerville, Texas, July 23. Will do all I can to plant the work in Collin County. We had Bro. Earl D. Bailey, J. W. Kent, J. W. Jackson, and E. A. Erwin with us and assisted nicely in preaching during conference; one baptized.

Bro. J. W. Kent is doing a good work in Bowie County, Texas, baptizing quite a number recently. His labors should be highly appreciated.

In bonds,

J. D. ERWIN.

INDEPENDENCE, MO., July 12.

Editors Herald:—Souvenirs and sacrifices are uppermost in our thought at present. We have just said "good bye" to Mrs. E. Smith, of St. Marys, Canada, who, in company with a friend from K. C., came to see the L. D. S. church and Temple Lot. Mrs. Smith informed us on looking at "the President's picture," among others in the Ensign group, that she had been introduced to him while at a conference in her city, upon which occasion "ye editor" remarked that he was always highly pleased to make the acquaintance of "the Smiths," and that he felt always to give them "a hearty handshake."

We are related to the Smiths. That need not be generally known, as we have suffered already too "hearty handshaking" with some of the hard-handed good saints. Of course the Smiths are all related, and there are thirty-two columns of them in New York's new directory alone, John Smith getting there one hundred and ninety-five times.

A short time ago Elder Jonathan Golden Kimball, a seventy, of Salt Lake City, with his wife and ten-year-old son, J. Golden Kimball, also made "the temple" as they called the saints' church, and the Temple Lot, a flying visit. Mr. Kimball was evidently much pleased to inform us that he was a son of the late Heber C. Kimball, and we were impressed favorably by his courteous and gentlemanly appearance. Mrs. Kimball also, like all the lady visitors from that section of the country, gave evidence of refinement and good taste in plainness, yet beauty, of attire. The Brighamites always seem much pleased to receive any of our literature.

A considerable proportion of our visitors hail from Salt Lake City or vicinity, excepting of course in time of our conferences, and invariably they aver their intention of coming again, sometime, to help build the temple. They never think of departing without going across Electric Avenue to gather a few leaves, a twig, and a pebble or two, to carry home as souvenirs. The latter have nearly all disappeared from the "T. L." since the janitor of the star-special-police order has prohibited throwing of stones from the street onto or near the church premises, and hence other kinds of mementos are now in vogue. This collecting and dispensing of souvenirs may, in the future, judging from present indications, involve grave responsibilities; and sometimes even now demand a stern declaration of one's rights as the guardian of church property.

A certain lady visitor on one occasion, after very pleasantly introducing herself and friend, seemed delighted at the thought of taking home with her a sprig of soft maple and a nice cluster of box elder pods, which she had gathered over in the Temple Lot, also one of the before mentioned little stones; but as the party entertained and entertaining became better acquainted, the subject of souvenirs presented itself more vividly, and the visitor could not banish it from her thoughts. Finally after a vigorous optical application to all parts of the church, could we not present her with "the key of the church," she said, or, at all hazards, the gilt-edged "Saints' Harp, on the organ yonder" as a souvenir to show Elder So-and-so when she should return home! ("So-and-so" wasn't his name, however.) "He would be so delighted!" and "O," she "must have one or the other!"

We found just then we were in need of the services of a strategy board, and after the exercise of much diplomacy we compromised by graciously presenting both the ladies with two, each, of our nice three-toned amateur conference concert cards, and a good sized package of literature. We have stacks of both on hand. We will be happy to supply all applicants for the same and elders' photo cards with epitome would be excellent as souvenirs for visitors.

As to the Utah elders, one feels better after their kindly visit not to have entered into an extended converse on church matters, for the reason that their determined method of adhering to well-proven falsities precludes all hope of convincing them of their wrong position. So silence on church topics, creeds, and historical facts proves always, so far as Utah Mormonism and the doctrine proclaimed by us are concerned, to be golden. "True, 'tis pity; pity 'tis, 'tis true."

One hardly knows how it is in other branches, but here there are so many avenues open for active and well-directed outlay of means that it requires tact, economy, and resources in order to meet all demands, and thus a duty be fulfilled. To pay one's tithing, or to give a freewill offering from time to time, is well-nigh imperative. Then, after necessary home expenditures, out of the not infrequent meager income, there is the bi-monthly oblation and the occasional mite for the poor fund, which perhaps a membership in the "Willing Workers" or "Sisters Aid" or "Hawthorne" calls for a repetition of our kindly endeavor; and then again, come troop-ing along calls for "the Old Folks' Home", "the Colledge", our own "little church around the corner", the cute little "assessments" and "dues" and "fees" with a "district tent" fund under rush orders, and last, though not least, the modest appeal of the "Army Relief Society" in behalf of Co. F., 3d Reg. Mo. Vol., advancing in the rear.

A canvassing committee of two sisters, Mrs. M. Blatt and another, reported to the "Executive" (at a meeting of ladies selected from all the churches here held recently in the vestry of the Presbyterian church) that they had raised about seven dollars, collected several bundles of soft linen, and had effected the making, by a few of "the sisters," of quite a large number of flannel bandages, received their hearty thanks and approval of work done.

The following named, of our brethren, have gone forward: Sergeant Henry Blatt, Lawne Layton, James Hayward, Jerome Page (Artificer), Thomas D. Hamilton, Foster Vickery, Frank Vickery, John Bozarth, Ezra Ferdon, Cedric Dickinson.

Some of the sisters have expressed a willingness to continue the good work in behalf of the soldiers, wherever they may be located, whether in camp or at the front, and the Literary Exchange is also aiding by sending the boys good, wholesome reading matter, such as one may find in the Herald, Ensign, and Autumn Leaves. To meet all these requirements means sacrifice no doubt; but we may be thankful that it has not fallen to our lot to be wholly unmindful of our obligations, or to be like the famous looker-on who boasted that he had belonged to the church all his life and it had "never cost him a cent!"

"Something to manifest our love
For man: this gives us power:
Beyond all words, deeds prove our love
To be life's noblest dower."

T. J. W.

PIPE CREEK, Texas, July 20.

Editors Herald:—Bro. T. J. Sheppard is among us and is doing what he can to get the work here on the move. The work has been at a standstill for the last twelve months until Bro. Sheppard arrived. We have had but very little preaching. I think Bro. Sheppard is the right man in the right place, and believe new and stronger efforts will be put forth than ever before in these parts. This is a large field, and our missionary force too few.

Bro. Curtis is in very poor health. He has been able to do but little preaching for a long time. Our district conference will convene at Pipe Creek, August 12. We expect Bro. I. P. Baggerly with us at that time.

Your brother,

FRANK HODGES.

Conference Minutes.

NORTHWESTERN KANSAS.

Conference met at Elmira branch, May 28; L. F. Johnson presiding, Ella Landers clerk. Elders reporting: W. S. Pender, L. F. Johnson, T. E. Thompson, J. F. McClure, Henry Hart, W. Landers, V. F. Rogers, J. S. Goble; Priest, W. Mannering. Branches reporting: Rural Dale, Goshen, Blue Rapids, Elmira, Homestead, Solomon River. Blue Rapids branch sent invitation for next conference and reunion to meet with them. Elmira Sunday school decided to dispense with usual school hour on Sunday 29th; there not being business to occupy the afternoon, it was voted to have preaching service. Preaching by W. Mannering, J. F. McClure, W. S. Pender, and L. F. Johnson. There was a prayer and sacrament meeting with good interest. Adjourned to time and place selected by Reunion Committee.

Sunday School Associations.

CLINTON.

Sunday school convention held at Coal Hill, Missouri, June 3. Opening exercises by D. C. White, after which Ella Miller, superintendent, took charge, Mina Kearney assistant, S. M. Andes secretary, S. M. Kearney assistant. Eleven schools in district; East Nevada and Clinton are discontinued. At January conference Bro. Andes was chosen secretary, he served well; but owing to poor health and much business to attend to he resigned, Sr. Phipps being elected. Schools generally report a good interest. Superintendent had previously sent a study of books of the Bible to the superintendent of each school. Examination at convention showed that the schools had done well in this study, Veve taking the lead. Schools reporting: Veve 57, Rural Home 14, East Nevada 8, Walker 19, Wheatland 23, Coal Hill 62, Temple 21, Rich Hill 38, Eldorado 20. A vote of thanks was extended superintendent for her work and interest in the schools. Questions discussed: 1. How to get children interested whose parents belong to the church but do not attend Sunday school. Opened by Mina Kearney, followed by Brn. McElwaine and Beebe. 2. Should rewards or prizes be given in Sunday school? Led by Sr. Phipps, followed by Bro. Welsh. Institute work led by Sr. Miller. A vote of thanks was extended Bro. Andes for his services. A collection was taken, which, added to what we had, reimbursed Sr. Miller in full, leaving ten cents in treasury. Music led by D. C. White's daughter presiding at the organ, was very good. A paper of much interest, edited by Srs. Kearney and Ida Keck, with Bro. S. Andes was postponed till next convention for lack of time. An entertainment was held in the evening. Adjourned to Veve chapel, November 26.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

Northwest Kansas district Sunday school association will convene at Blue Rapids, August 24, the reunion committee have given the day to us; and there will be social service and business meeting. District officers are to be elected. All schools in the district are requested to send reports, and all interested in this work are invited to come prepared to take part in exercises of the day.

W. LANDERS, Supt.

Miscellaneous Department.

WILLIAMS-BAYS DEBATE.—NO. 12.

May 23.—ELDER BAYS' SECOND SPEECH.

Elder Williams said I preached a Latter Day Saint sermon, just because I preached the Bible. But they don't always preach the Bible. I have succeeded in showing that all dispensations point to a single dispensation—to a thing of importance. He admits that I am justified in claiming that Christ gave a perfect law, but he argues that the New Testament rule is not sufficient to save. The New Testament provisions did save, and hence will save to-day.

The paschal feast was a representation of the offering of Christ. Peter says Jesus was a lamb slain from the foundation of the world. He was slain on the 14th of the month in the evening. (See John 19: 14; Matt. 27: 46. The Jewish feast was kept all through the Mosaic dispensation, and till Christ came. They waved a sheaf as an offering to the Lord. This was a shadow of the substance. Christ lay in the tomb on Saturday, and rose on the 16th of the month. Then there was a feast of firstfruits. Jesus was the firstfruits of them that slept. The feast of Pentecost was fifty days from the firstfruit feast. Fifty days after the resurrection the Holy Ghost was sent. The death, burial, and resurrection with associated events had been shown in shadows.

Romans 8: 1, 2 speaks of the law of sin which was the law of Moses, contrasted with the law of life. He makes this further contrast in Hebrews 8: 6; 7: 18, 19; 10: 1, 14. Law of Moses imperfect, law of life perfect, and makes all the comers thereunto perfect. Those who obey a perfect law will be made perfect. A new covenant was established through Christ; if the old had have been sufficient then there would have been no need of the new. He asks, How was Abraham saved? They had a gospel then. (Gal. 3: 8.) The Israelites had the gospel preached to them (Heb. 4: 2), but it was not profitable, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. What was that gospel? He would say it was the same as Peter preached. They declare this. The Inspired Translation says that there was a church in the days of Adam and that Adam was baptized into it. The gospel is good news. What was the gospel to Abraham? It was, "In thee and in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed." This covenant was renewed in Isaac and Jacob. They had that gospel. To be blessed is good news. The patriarchal period pointed to Christ. Faith in God was accounted to Abraham for righteousness. He was saved by righteousness. The prospect of the coming Christ was good news to Abraham. Israel in bondage expected a Redeemer, because the fathers had said the land of Canaan should be theirs. When Moses went down they were looking for him.

The reason Abraham, Noah, and Moses were saved was because they believed. Believing God will save man in any age of the world. Noah believed God and was moved to obey him, and prepared an ark, through which means he was saved, and he became an heir of salvation. Moses believed God and was saved. The gospel was preached in Moses' time. Let us see how. They came to the Red Sea. Pharaoh repented that he had let them go, and followed them for the purpose of taking them back into Egypt. Moses said, "Stand still and see the salvation of God." They were redeemed from bondage and death. Jesus was before them and after them; in the night like a pillar of fire, in the day as a cloud. They drank of that rock that followed them, and that rock was Christ. They were famishing for water in the wilderness, and complained. They were thirsty, perishing. Moses said, See salvation. A great rock in the wilderness. He smote the rock and waters gushed out, and Israel was saved. The rock represents Christ. Israelites understood this was Christ. Moses said, "A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up." They were saved by obedience to God's law.

Jeremiah 31:31 presents a prophecy which had a fulfillment as shown in Hebrews 8:6-9. This was the establishment of the Christ. Hebrews 1:1, 2 says God had formerly spoken by prophets, but now he has spoken by his Son. This is the difference; no longer the law and prophets, but Christ. (See Ephesians 1:9, 10; 1 Peter 1:18-22.) Jesus came and established the covenant of life. When I preached for the Latter Day Saints I said Isaiah 24:5 pointed to the gospel covenant. Matthew 24:14 refers to the gospel of the kingdom, and Revelations 14:6, 7 to the everlasting gospel because of being an everlasting kingdom.

Bro. Williams will say an angel will come to the earth with the everlasting gospel. An angel is a messenger, but he will argue that the gospel is not perfect without something supplementing it. He may say he has been sent to carry the everlasting gospel. Everlasting gospel will save men without anything supplementing it. In John 17:16-21 Jesus prays for his disciples that they might be sanctified by the word.

ELDER WILLIAMS' SECOND SPEECH.

Bays seems to be spending so much time at the Red Sea. It reminds me of a story. A man in offering prayer at the family altar prayed very long, and in his prayer recounted the incidents in the world's history from creation. He had a boy who got very tired during these long prayers. At one time while prayer was being offered the boy went to sleep. He was disturbed and wakening found his father in his prayer referring to the circumstances which happened at the Red Sea. So he concluded he could again resume his nap with safety and take another sleep before the father came to the conclusion. How much has Bays offered, to prove that the Bible is sufficient to-day for the government and salvation of his people? They did not have the Bible in the days of Moses. If the Bible had existed before Christ and was sufficient then he might have made a point. There is power in the gospel. Moses had power with him, and when he said "see the salvation," that power was exercised and Israel was saved from the elements.

I have some questions concerning the Bible. Are all the revelations of God in the Bible? Is the Bible a revelation from God? Does the stamp of divine approval rest upon the Bible?

That there are grand truths in the Bible does not exclude the acceptance of truths now revealed, nor preclude the possibility of God speaking now. God does nothing unnecessarily. We have not what the Apostles had. We have not all Christ said. (See John 21:25.) Did he say foolish things? He did not instruct anyone to write what he did say. They had the Comforter to open up the avenue of truth and bring to their recollection things past. The proposition chains my opponent hand and foot. We have not in the Bible all the apostles said. He said perfect law will save all who are obedient to it. I acquiesce with that. Romans 1:16 says the gospel is the power of God unto salvation. He says Abraham had the gospel, but it was different from the one in the New Testament times. There is but one gospel. (Gal. 1:8-12.) Galatians 3:8 says Abraham had the gospel. If Abraham had enough to save, why the need of any more than he had? He contends there were different gospels in different dispensations. I contend that there was and is but one gospel.

He has not proved that all principles of truth and power of God are in the King James' Translation. Will mere abstract faith save? All must be adhered to. What attended the gospel in Abraham's, Noah's, Moses', Christ's, and Paul's times? Present revelation. That is a nail in our argument to be pulled up at his option. Hebrews 1:1, 2 says God spake; he spake by his Son. Hebrews 2:1-4 says that "God also [not man] bearing witness" to the great salvation.

He refers to Jeremiah 31:31 and says this great salvation was fulfilled in Hebrews 8:6-9, and 1 Peter 1:18-20.

He also refers to Isaiah 24:5. It says they have broken the everlasting covenant. This would necessitate a restoration. If a contract is broken, another will be drawn up. Have to have authoritative witness to it. Matthew 24:14 speaks of the gospel being restored, but what is the gospel? 1 Thessalonians 1:5 says it is "not in word only"—not the Bible only—but in "power," etc. Revelation 14:6, 7 says an angel, a heavenly messenger, was to fly, where? "In the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to them who dwell on the earth." Do angels hold meetings and do preaching on earth? The gospel was to be delivered to men to preach. Would it not seem folly to bring something that was already here? No one can take up the Bible and find the gospel.

God is unchangeable. Revelation always has been. Ancients had enough for them, but we must have the Spirit to understand it. Must have revelation to call men to administer the word. Christ did nothing without revelation. Every constitution has men to administer it. Those making the constitution must appoint those to administer it. Where in the Bible is contained the provision for marriage?

Amos 3:7 says, "Surely the Lord God doeth nothing, but he revealeth his secrets to his servants the prophets." The antithesis of this is, If God is doing something, he must reveal himself to his servants the prophets. Malachi 3:6 says, "For I am the Lord, I change not." Proverbs 29:13 says, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Matthew 16:16-18 says that Jesus Christ is the builder of the church. The fact that he was the Christ was revealed to Peter, and John 17:3 says that "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." John 7:16, 17 tells us how we may know the gospel by doing God's will. 1 Corinthians 12:3 tells how we can know that Jesus is the Lord. Man to be saved must know that Jesus is the Christ, hence must have the Holy Ghost. This is another nail driven in a sure place.

Philippians 3:15 says "if ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you." Acts 2:17, 18 records Peter as saying, "This is that [Spirit of God] which was spoken" that should be in the "last days;" and when it was given "your sons and your daughters shall prophesy." Was this fulfilled wholly on Pentecost? Did old men go to sleep and dream dreams? It was partially fulfilled in that the same Spirit was enjoyed. Other parts were not fulfilled. Malachi 4:5, 6 says that Elijah the prophet is to come and turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, etc., before that great and dreadful day of the Lord.

Revelation 11:1-12 speaks of two prophets to prophecy in Jerusalem. The New Testament church enjoyed the Spirit of revelation. Any man in any age of the world dissociated from present revelation cannot know God, cannot be saved. When he can point to one passage that says the gospel is to be preached without present revelation, then he has made a great point.

May 24.—ELDER BAYS' FIRST SPEECH.

We come this evening with some warmth to contend with to discuss the issues. He quotes Amos 3:7 and argues from that that God always will reveal himself. The statement proves only that when God does something he reveals himself. From Noah to Abraham there was not a word from God, neither was there from Malachi to Christ. When God has anything to reveal he uses prophets.

He quotes Malachi 3:6 and assumes that God always does the same thing, hence always reveals himself. Jacob had become corrupt and since God had promised to save them he uses this language, assuring them that he had not forgotten his promise to them. That's all that means.

Has Elder Williams shown the scripture that says when God will reveal his will? He has not. He read Acts 2:16-18 and asks whether it was all fulfilled. Peter does not say it was all fulfilled. He says "This is that" (Spirit) promised on Pentecost. No matter whether old men dreamed or not. That is not in the question. He asks me to show when the gospel was preached without revelation. I will show that. He wants me to show from the Bible the duties of the officers of the church. The very name of the office asserts the duties attached: Evangelist to evangelize; pastor, to feed the flock; so also elder; Bishops, to oversee. He asks, "Does the stamp of divine approval rest upon the Bible?" This is an argument against the Bible. I did not think he was an infidel. No, he is not an infidel, he is only a quibbler.

He asks "Is the gospel the Bible?" That is not the question. The question is, "Does the Bible contain the gospel?" The Bible contains good news, and that is what the gospel is.

He has tried to define my duties, and says I must show that the Bible is from God. This is infidel tactics. Am I to establish the truth of the Bible? This is a mere dodge of the issue.

He wants me to show the chapter and verse that says God does not reveal his will. That is the very thing he is affirming. This is dodge number three. It is strange logic to say the least. The Jews did not receive revelation for four hundred years, and yet when Christ came he did not say "Prove that God does not reveal himself." He gave proof of the revelations he came to deliver. Those who claim that revelations are given in this age should give us the same proof, but they can't do it, for there are lame, halt, etc., among them all over the land.

He refers to Ecclesiastes 3:14, 15 and lays down as the basic idea that God always reveals himself, and argues that God will do the same thing right along. He then quotes Malachi 3:6 again. Does that mean that if he gives a law he does not change? There were laws given in the patriarchal and Mosaic ages, but was not the law changed in the Christian dispensation? He then quotes Hebrews 13:8. Who questions that? But that does not prove that Christ must continue to reveal himself. He then refers to Hebrews 1:11, 12. All that means is that God don't change. James 1:17 is only given to establish one point and that is the immutability of God. But that does not prove that the Bible does not contain sufficient for the government and salvation of God's people in all ages of the world.

He quotes 1 Corinthians 2:9, 11 and argues that no one can understand the word of God without the Spirit, but he further argues that the Spirit is received by the laying on of hands, then how can sinners understand the word? How can you convert a sinner without he receives an understanding of the word? Such ideas are all folly, very weak. The brain is the intellectual force that entitles man to understand. The idea is that man cannot comprehend God, but the Spirit of God can; but the things of God have been given so plain that a wayfaring man could understand them.

He argues that revelation is necessary to call men into the ministry, and quotes 1 Corinthians 7:17. Read verse 14 and you will learn that that passage refers to the marital relationship.

John 12:49; 5:30 have no bearing on the proposition. The primal thought is, God has a law. That God has called some of his ministry by direct revelation is not denied, but it is not the rule. Show where the Bible records such a rule; show such a rule, Bro. Williams, or yield. I will show that men did minister for God without being called by revelation. Aaron and his sons were called through Moses, but after that there was no more direct call. It was settled by law. No need of revelation under the law.

In 2 Timothy 2:1, 2 is a rule by which to call the ministry. Acts 20:27 shows that Paul had declared the whole counsel of God, and it is all in the Bible. James says in 1:22, 25 that the perfect law of liberty had been given. In 2 Peter 1:3 it says that God had given all things that pertain unto life and godliness. This was revealed in the gospel. He says there is not enough in the Bible for life and godliness, while Peter says there is.

Romans 1:16, and 1 Thessalonians 1:5 have been referred to. There was no gospel than that taught in the New Testament. He says: "Where are the duties of the officers?" I refer him to apostolic authority. Presidency and Priesthood gives the class of officers in the church and defines their duties.

ELDER WILLIAMS' FIRST SPEECH.

I will lump up the argument of the opposition. He says I am using infidel dodges. I refer to the canonizing of the Bible. I did not question the truths found in these books. I ask again, "Does the Bible contain all truth?" The Roman Catholics canonized the book of the Bible. The Bible contains a record of God's word. The word itself is different from the record of it. The word of God existed before the Bible. We cannot destroy the word of God, nor bind it between two covers. He is dodging the issue entirely. He is assuming that which he should affirm: Is the canon of Scripture full? The word "Bible" came into existence after the word of God was revealed. When canonizing the books now in the Bible they at first left out Revelation, and Hebrews, and were wrangling a long time before they decided.

Hebrews 11:3 says the worlds were framed by the word of God, not by the Bible. The word of God is one thing, the Bible quite another thing. The Bible contains a record of God's word, and it also contains the words of men.

The Bible does not contain all the apostles had. 1 Corinthians 5:9 refers to an epistle of Paul's to the Corinthians not in the Bible. Colossians 4:16 refers to an epistle to the Laodiceans which the Colossians were enjoined to read. Where is the epistle to the Ephesians spoken of in Ephesians 3:3, and the epistle of Jude where he wrote about the common salvation? These are not in the Bible. Numerous books are mentioned in the Old Testament not in the Bible.

Luke 16:16 says the law and the prophets were until John, but the gospel includes prophets also, for John and Peter were prophets. We are referred to Revelation 22:18, 19 as an evidence against revelations now. Does that passage refer to the Bible? The Book of Revelation was not in the Bible at first; then the revelation was written before the General Epistles were written by John.

Acts 20:27 says that Paul declared the whole counsel of God, but if this be construed to mean that there should be nothing given after that, what becomes of Paul's epistles written after that? Paul had given all the counsel of God thus far, but God will add line upon line, precept upon precept, as the prophet says. James 1:25, 27 could not refer to the Bible as the perfect law of liberty because the Bible was not in existence.

I now present something of authority. It is Bays' letter of resignation. In it he says:—

"There is no evidence that the books of the Bible were written by inspiration. I reject the claims of the divine inspiration of the Bible. The genealogies of Jesus in Matthew and Luke are contradictory. Both say that Jesus was the son of Joseph. I am forced to reject the miraculous conception."

I do not question his honor in coming to these conclusions, but I question his opinion. How has he been able to change his mind without a revelation? or does he believe the same now while trying to affirm this proposition? He says he receives that which seems to be the most reasonable, and claims that the immaculate conception is contrary to science, hence argues that Jesus is not the spiritual Son of God, but argues that he had a natural father, and that because the natural mind cannot grasp the truths of God. Here is a contradiction of the statements found in the Bible. Who is to settle it? Also Bays speaks against Bays. James 1:5-8 promises wisdom to all who ask of God. Bays would say that this only referred to New Testament times. If any ask in faith, wisdom is promised, in all ages of the world.

Acts 17:22-28 shows that all nations were created that they might find God. Matthew 11:27 tells how one can find out God, and John 17:3 says to know God is life eternal. No one can know except by revelation. Matthew 7:7, 8 presents the broad promise that all who ask will receive, those who seek will find, etc., and Acts 10: 34 evidences that God is no respecter of persons, but will grant the heart's desire in righteousness. Revelation 19: 10 says the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy. 1 Corinthians 12: 3 says that no man can know that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost.

John 4: 26; 15: 26, 16: 13, 14 give evidence that Jesus promised to reveal himself. 1 Corinthians 14: 1-9 advises one to desire to prophesy. In Jeremiah 31: 10 God speaks of himself as a shepherd. A shepherd is constantly speaking to the flock, and the sheep know his voice, says Jesus in John 10. Ezekiel 20: 33-36 says that the Lord will plead with his people when he gathers them back to the land of Israel. Isaiah 65: 24 speaks of a future time when "before they call I will answer." Thus these prophecies show continued revelation. Ephesians 1: 9, 10 refers to the dispensation when all will be gathered in one even in Christ.

Find one man that rejected present revelation and was saved. Find one man who believed in present revelation and complied with it who was lost. In John 9: 29 is the history of a people in Christ's day who argued, "We have enough revelation; we have enough Bible."

Is it consistent with the nature of God to give light to some and leave others in darkness? My opponent argues that if you want spiritual light all you need to do is to read what others received, and be filled. God is no respecter of persons, and has promised to give wisdom to any who would ask him, whether he be potentate or serf. God divideth his blessings to all. The most humble person will receive light. Bays argues that if man lacks wisdom he could not receive. He has closed the padlock on Heaven's sunlight. He argues that sunlight was created for Peter and Paul, but now we must be satisfied by reading about what they enjoyed. He has not answered my questions about marriage, the Lord's supper, or the first day of the week. "Presidency and Priesthood" is not the Bible.

ELDER BAYS' SECOND SPEECH.

The first day is clearly set forth in the Bible as the Lord's day. My position is that the Bible is not plenary inspired. The Bible does not claim for itself that it is divinely worded. No book in the Bible was written by inspiration. The Bible does not claim this. Parts of it were dictated by inspiration, but the whole of it is not inspired.

I have my views about the immaculate conception of Jesus. There is a discrepancy in the history, and this is proof against the plenary inspiration of the Bible. Matthew and Luke differ in their account, but both say he was the seed of Joseph. If he was of the seed of Joseph, he could not be the seed of David. I am not out of the fog yet upon this point. The brother should have a revelation and clear up this matter. If Williams has a revelation he should give it. I will thank him for it. Salvation does not depend upon that item. I believe that Jesus is the Son of God, whether the literal seed or not. Man cannot comprehend God. I cannot comprehend God. Probably these people can do some good that way. I have not said what I am ashamed of. I stand in good company. Some of the most learned of this age stand just where I do.

I have showed that man was called to ministry without revelation. 2 Timothy 2: 1, 2, 15, 21, says faithful men were to teach the gospel, rightly dividing the word of truth, and would be prepared unto every good work. 2 Timothy 3: 16, 17 says all scripture is profitable. The work of the ministry is a part of the scriptural teaching. Titus 1: 5 instructs to ordain elders in every church. The duty of an elder is to feed the flock. The elder's duty is defined by the Latter Day Saints in Doctrine and Covenants. If they are right, then an elder's duty is presented, and where is the need of revelation? How do Latter Day Saints choose by revelation? they make a motion, it is voted upon, and if carried they lay hands upon the person to ordain him. That is the way men are called in that church. Let Williams point to the revelations by which he was called, or close his lips.

Here is one instance where a man was called to the ministry without revelation. Matthias was called without revelation. No revelation in the book. This is a fact. Acts 1: 22 shows the qualifications. They appointed two; that is, the apostles did, and voted. Did God choose? They gave their lots. No revelation. Matthias was called by votes just as Williams was called. It was just a matter of business, and it fell to the lot of Matthias. Here then is one instance where one was called without revelation. Acts 6: 2-5 speaks of the calling of seven men as deacons. They were filled with the Holy Ghost. Every minister was filled with the Spirit. Does it read that God will reveal who should be chosen? No. It says, "They chose seven." The church chose their own ministers. Philip and Stephen were renowned ministers, and neither were called by revelation. I demand the revelation calling these men. John Mark, Titus, and others were ministers and they were not called by revelation. So you see his argument falls flat. He must show that a law exists for calling men by revelation. Some were called that way we admit, but no rule exists. It can't be shown. I have pulled the last nail driven by the little Mormon hammer; you heard them snap when they came out.

The Christian system possesses power of self-perpetuation. The Mosaic did, the Christian should. James says we have the perfect law of liberty, and Peter says we have all things that pertain to life and godliness. Romans 1: 16 says the gospel is the power of God unto salvation. Remember what I say.

I have shown that God so loved the world that he-gave his Son. (John 3: 16.) Church must have means of self-perpetuation. This is a present truth. If not, all other churches must have perished that existed before Joseph Smith.

Galatians 1: 8, 9; Ephesians 1: 9, 10 refer to what was established by Christ, which was the everlasting gospel. (See Isa. 24; Matt. 24; Rev. 14: 6.) This covenant was broken

(Jer. 31: 31), but if it had been abrogated it could not be considered everlasting. Hebrews 1: 1, 2 shows that the covenant was to continue in force. There was no need of a restoration by revelation. That which has been in continuous existence cannot be restored. The gospel covenant is perfect; it is God's word by which we are to be sanctified. John 17: 16, 17; Acts 20: 27 say the whole counsel of God had been given. That perfect law contained all that pertained to life and godliness. (2 Pet. 1: 2-4.)

It also contains authority to minister (2 Tim. 2: 3, 15, Titus 1: 5.) Romans 1: 16 says the gospel is the power of God unto salvation, and Mark 16: 16 says he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved. If there is no one authorized by the gospel to administer baptism, there is no benefit in baptism; but that authority is given in the gospel. There is no need of an angel. Matt. 24: 14 speaks of the gospel of the kingdom. The law was left to administer for the kingdom of God.

There is no hint that Christ would write letters while absent, but he went on a journey and left authority with his servants. The Bible contains all.

To say that the adversary destroyed the kingdom of God would be to concede that God made a blunder in the days of Jesus Christ, and then waited two thousand years to correct it through Joseph Smith. Jesus said, "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it"; that it will not fall. Upon this rock we stand. We believe neither in the creeds of men nor in the absurdities on theology.

ELDER WILLIAMS' SECOND SPEECH.

The fox has not got ahead. He found too much to answer, and did that by sophistry. He says he is in the fog and has been in the fog. That's what I have been trying to show him all the way through this discussion; but because he is in the fog you people need not go in too. He is trying to lead you in the fog too.

He did not present one passage to prove that the first day of the week is the Lord's day, which shows he could not. If the Bible does not claim to be written by inspiration, there is no inspired book in the Bible. Is an uninspired book sufficient for the government and salvation of God's people? Who is to decide what is divine in the book? He has destroyed his own claims, for he says not one book claims to be inspired. He says "I'm in the fog, and the learned don't know that Jesus is the Son of God. All are in the fog!" Don't we need light upon this line? How can we trust in the Bible as being all-sufficient, when it does not tell us conclusively that Jesus is the Son of God? He has denied belief in the immaculate conception, hence he denies that Jesus is the Son of God. We believe that Jesus is the Son of God, that he was conceived by the Holy Ghost. It is revealed to us by the Spirit of God. Bays stands upon this point with the infidels, Voltaire, Paine, and others. They all deny the immaculate conception. I think you now understand me, as to why I said he was using infidel arguments.

He denies that man need be called by revelation to the ministry, and cites 2 Timothy 2: 1, 2, but you will notice that Timothy was to act as he had heard from a living apostle directed by inspiration. Romans 10: 15 makes plain that Paul understood that a man could not preach except he be sent. He says 1 Corinthians 7: 17 refers to marriage; then it proves that one can't get married without a revelation, and Bays must concede the necessity of revelation because we must get married; God has so ordained it.

I concede all that is said in 2 Timothy 3: 16, but I have proven that all scripture is not in the Bible, and this passage does not refer to the Bible. He uses Titus 1: 5 to serve his purpose, but what are the facts as found here? They are these: Titus had a right to ordain, when a living apostle had appointed. The elders of the Latter Day Saints' Church do not claim to give the Holy Ghost. God gives it.

He says Matthias was not called of God. Let us see. The Apostles appointed two; they did not know which one God wanted. They pray for him to direct and by his direction Matthias was chosen. They would be guilty of sacrilege to appoint two, then vote upon them, without receiving direction from the Lord for which they had prayed.

Acts 6: 2, 3 shows that inspired apostles were to ordain the seven selected. Not so in his church. He has presented no evidence that they were not called of God. He pulled up a tack and lost sight of the nail.

He says you can't break an everlasting covenant, yet Isaiah 24 says that somebody had broken the everlasting covenant. Bible vs. Bays.

2 Peter 1: 2-4 has no reference to the Bible. The Bible was canonized by an apostate church. He says that God blundered, and corrected it through Joseph Smith. Jesus says that the kingdom would be taken by the violent (Matt. 11: 12); and Amos 3: 7 says God will do nothing but he has a prophet. So after the kingdom was taken God would use a prophet to restore it.

He said there was not a revelation from Abraham to Moses, but you notice that when God proceeded to do something for Israel he revealed himself. From Malachi to Christ Israel was in an apostate condition.

He says anybody would know the duties of officers by the name. Then the words President of the United States is enough and we can scratch out all in the Constitution pertaining to his duties, for it is superfluous. The Bible contains a record of the gospel.

He says there are cripples in the church, and if we will show power to heal then he will believe. It is his duty to show that God does not speak. He can't padlock God's mouth in that way.

I will present my summary: The Bible does not contain all God has revealed. God is unchangeable: He continued to reveal himself for four thousand years; hence it is evident he will now. Men must have the Spirit of God to understand the things of God. Men have been sent of God in the past to administer for him, and 1 Corinthians 7: 17 proves that those only should be ordained whom the Lord has called. God's ways are not man's ways (Isa. 55: 8), hence God calls whom he wills to act for him. He said the Constitution provided for those to administer, but he failed to show who has authority to baptize or administer the Lord's Supper; to organize the church or settle difficulties in the church. He argues that there are no apostles of Christ, but does not show why.

I have proven that God will continue to reveal his will. He is no respecter of persons, but all who send petitions to him will receive answer. He says, "Don't expect any answer; it would be foolish to expect an answer to a petition for wisdom." God thinks as much of Bays as Williams if equally honest. God looks down to disperse the fog, but Bays says that God will let them remain in the dark. God says (James 1: 5) he will give to all men "liberally." Matthew 7: 7, 8, "He that asketh receiveth." He has not proven one point in favor of the proposition.

I regret that you have a man to represent you who so misrepresents the Bible. The Bible is replete with promises of God's help.

No man can know God of himself, yet it is life eternal to know him (John 17: 3); and he must be revealed to us if we know him (Matt. 11: 27); and the testimony of Jesus is the Spirit of prophecy. When you receive the testimony of Jesus you will know him.

God will continue to reveal himself (Joel 2: 28, 29 and Acts 2: 17, 18), even in the last days.

If you should be invited to dinner, and it was announced that dinner was ready, and when you came in you would find nothing but crumbs and empty plates and the explanation given for this condition was that the dignitaries had eaten up the food, would you be satisfied? Bays says, Read what they had as found on the bill of fare, and be filled.

I am thankful that any man can be filled from the table of the Lord, for he says, "Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

Which will you take, Bays or Christ? Will you still believe in a God of antiquity or in the God of to-day? Men can know him to-day. God is working—laboring to save the world, for their spiritual benefit; but all is done in harmony with his law. The Bible contains not all the truth of heaven; we have but a fraction of all scripture.

Elder Bays has gone down on every point. He has not shown the divine approval of the canon of Scripture as contained in the Bible. He says he is now in the fog, and don't know whether Jesus was born of God or of Joseph. Peter said Jesus was the Son of God. What think you of such a man as this, or of a church that will send out such a man? Pray that God may show you more clearly the truth.

Thank God the truth stands more brightly since the conflict, and is able to cope with all until it accomplishes its eternal destiny. May God graven it upon your hearts and burn it into your soul so you will not stay in the fog but come out into the sunlight of heaven.

[Concluded.]

SHELTON REUNION.

As per request I attended Shelton reunion or camp meeting; moreover, I wouldn't plead guilty to unbecoming intrusion for attending any published meeting where I was permitted to hold jurisdiction.

The gathering, when compared to some of our big gatherings further east, was indeed meager, but being comprised of saints, some of whom were from the western wilds of Nebraska, being deprived of weekly prayer meetings, to say nothing of branch meetings, district, and annual conferences, I was led to think such a gathering beneficial, therefore legitimate; for measures to spread the gospel into new localities, encourage and stimulate those in the fold to spiritual progress, is second to no other matter; and whatever may be done to hinder this work would be attributable to ignorance or impure motives, or so I believe.

Years ago, the Southern Nebraska district decided to hold yearly camp meetings, but finding the success not commensurate with the consumption of time and money, wisely abandoned them. Christ told his disciples if they, the people, would not hear them in one city to go to another; and if this was not tantamount to an injunction as to a proper utilization of time and money, I would like to be instructed as to its real purpose, in language adapted to the limitedness of my poor capacity.

I do not wish the reader to think that I advocate hasty abandonment of a field but partially tried, because forsooth reports can't be made to the Herald of crowded houses, many baptisms, many near the kingdom, etc.; for I believe that no thought of abandonment should be entertained until every effort has been made and every available facility brought into requisition, and waiting a proper length of time for development of events of efforts put forth. Further, I incline to the opinion that leaving a field where labor has been performed, with no prospects of immediate results, and returning again after awhile may prove a proper policy.

Many hasty baptisms are not always in evidence of a permanent success of the work, for it is quite possible that an elder may accomplish more permanent good, for the church, in laboring in a locality for three months, with no baptisms, than another may accomplish in the same length of time with many baptisms. We are anxious for baptisms, for to that end we labor; but there is a needed preparation for this holy and God-revealed ordinance acquired by proper instructions; hence Christ's injunction, "Go, and teach." And beside all this, the law provides that the church shall know something of the condition of those desiring baptism; and recent developments induce me to suggest the necessity, as I before have done, of an observance of paragraphs 7, 18, Section 17, Doctrine and Covenants, and by no means overlooking Sections 20 and 42, if it is thought the least pretext exists for its application. I further advise that no branch extend church privileges to any failing to give the needed evidence of church membership. And especially advise that none be invited or permitted to preach unless the needed evidence is given of their having been ordained and recognized as church officials. The method of letters of removal, ordinations, and licenses were inaugurated for a purpose, and why should any treat them lightly or ignore them? Church usages which are sanctioned are right, or wrong. If the former, they should not be ignored; if the latter, they should be observed until the body passing upon them have per request modified or changed them.

I indorse the method of common consent, as I find it given in the Doctrine and Covenants. Its origin being traceable to the inception of the latter-day work; but I don't believe it proper or right to use it as the method of voting may obtain and be prosecuted in the political arena, because I believe the ever-blessed gospel of Christ is given by God as a preventive to all savoring of deception, hypocrisy, etc. And however intense present satisfaction may be, because of success through resorting to intrigue or deceptive measures, condemnation attending such God-forbidden, despicable work will be more intensified in the ultimate than were the satisfaction in the inception and completion of the diabolical work, or the thought of retributive justice has no foundation in fact; in which event we might say with the masses who are staggering under a spiritual intoxication as a result of a universal apostasy, "Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die." But while the love of God intensifies, which began to burn in our hearts as we began to cherish a love for the gospel, God's only method of salvation, we cannot thus join with the giddy multitude, but must be diligent in practically evincing a godly zeal, by and through which we may evidence a godly rectitude compatible with our profession. But should that love lessen and leave us, we should be as others who have left their first love.

I would not have the reader think that Shelton, where the reunion was held, is altogether a new field; for this is not the case. Nevertheless it is comparatively a new field, and though its citizens did not crowd into our tent by the hundreds, there were a few at each preaching service, especially in the evenings, and on Sunday evening more than filled the tent. So the camp meeting may have done some good in giving a greater publicity to our faith. So may it be.

Subsequent to adjournment of the camp meeting, which convened on May 31, closing on the night of June 5, the tent was pitched at Gibbon, where for five nights and one Sunday I assisted Bro. W. E. Peak in preaching services. Sunday evening brought us a fair congregation, but at other times gatherings were small. Though our tent was in close proximity to the town, the citizens thereof seemed neither alarmed nor particularly interested. The pitching and removing the tent was work for three or four men with teams part of two days; so it was at Gibbon.

There may be localities in which tent service may be done with good effect, but I am far from believing that the good effected in a general way is in any way commensurate with the time and money consumed, purchasing and shipping the tent from place to place, etc., but the people love to have it so.

Being interrogated, I state, in my opinion, that systematized labor within fifty or a hundred miles, visiting several points as often as manifest interest may justify, will in the ultimate effect more good than confining labors to one locality long enough to deliver forty or fifty consecutive sermons, especially so if there are places within ten or twelve miles that know nothing of the gospel. I do not urge that branches are to be altogether deprived of the labors of General Conference appointees, but ministerial labor in branches, when required to meet an exigency, and going skipping from branch to branch to escape the unpleasantness incident to the life of a traveling elder in the introduction of the gospel into new localities, is a little different.

In the long ago I heard (on dit) that some inquiry was made as to what Caffall was doing so long in Colorado. Had this inquisitor, or those inquisitors, applied to the legitimate source, I could have informed them. I was trying to turn something up where I had been sent, and not altogether waiting for something to turn up. I could have offered a plausible pretext for abandoning the mission, but felt it a grave matter to shake the dust off my feet against any place or people; yet believing it proper when led to do so, but not being thus prompted I tried again. To be sure it is an easy matter to say, I am or was led by the Spirit; yet it is a grave and solemn claim. And the fact of God's law promising a requisite qualification to discern all these gifts, lest there be any professing and yet be not of God, serves as evidence as to the possibility of my being deceived, which fact involves a necessity for ability to discriminate between Satanic influence and the Spirit's impression. (46:7, D. C.)

O yes! Those attending the Shelton camp meeting voted for another such gathering in 1899; for though isolated as some are, they know that a sufficient number of votes will carry many measures, and then there's quite a difference in voting for something we don't want and something we do want.

It was near the middle of May before I was at my post. This I know was a long time from the adjournment of the April Conference; but then I was somewhat indisposed, or thought I was. I have done less ministerial work during May, June, and thus far in July, than in the same months in several preceding years, attributable to inclement weather and the extra busy time with farmers; but however discouraging this may be, it is a prohibition that I could not prevent, holding ourselves in readiness for and laboring as diligently as we can, is all we mortals can do; and if disinclined to do this, should step down and out, that more ready hands and willing hearts may enter in, for God's contemplated purposes will not fail.

In bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

EUSTIS, Nebraska, July 19.

CHURCH RECORDER'S NOTICE.

It is now July 30, and the branch reports to all the June conferences have not yet been received at this office. Some may have been sent and lost in transit, so I call attention to the lack of reports yet from the London (Ontario), Kewanee, Nauvoo, Fremont, Galland's Grove, Spring River, Southern Michigan, Northern Michigan, Northern Minnesota, Nodaway, Southwestern Texas, and Northern Wisconsin districts for June, 1898.

The reports from Northern California for March have not come, nor those from Central California for April. And there is lacking the reports of Eastern and Western Maine and Northern Nebraska for May, and of Southern Missouri for March. Neither have the Oklahoma reports for February been received, nor those from Nevada for June and November, 1897.

From England and Wales are due many reports of branches, the lack of which prevents correcting the General Records.

I mention the above matters, and also ask for speedy action by many clerks who have failed to answer my letters of inquiry concerning deficient reports and imperfect items of birth, baptism, etc., of names given on reports. Kindly come to my aid, please.

Your brother,

H. A. STEBBINS.

LAMONI, Iowa, July 30, 1898.

31-2t

BLUFF PARK REUNION.

AUGUST 19 TO SEPTEMBER 5.

No doubt all Latter Day Saints are somewhat interested in the town of Nauvoo and the landmarks of the old church.

Bluff Park is situated just across the river in the little town of Montrose, on the Iowa side, and commands a grand view of the old historic city, and is becoming quite a summer resort, recognized by all who have ever been there as one of the best natural summer resorts as to location, natural advantages, scenery, healthful climate, etc., in the United States.

Good railroad facilities; three regular passenger trains each way daily, besides freight trains that carry passengers. Omnibus will meet each train, and you can be taken right upon the grounds for fifteen cents, trunks twenty-five cents.

The grounds are high and dry, over one hundred feet above the grand old Mississippi which flows along the foot of the bluff, almost within a stone's throw. Grounds are shaded with large forest trees of nature's planting. A large amphitheater built especially for preaching service. A large boarding house, also a lodging house, both in charge of Bro. Elmer Reed, where saints and friends can be accommodated with board and lodging, or either. Board $3 per week, lodging extra but reasonable; single meals twenty-five cents. There are also a number of nice cottages on the grounds that can be rented for reunion, all the way from $4 to $8, accommodating from four to twelve persons.

For particulars write D. Tripp or J. S. Snively, Montrose, Iowa, committee on cottages and tents. Those interested write early.

Plenty of room for campers and teams. Hay and feed will be provided on the grounds. Those desiring to board themselves can do so cheaply. The merchants of Montrose will deliver anything you may wish right on the grounds. Ice, meat, and bread, fresh daily.

Every effort will be put forth by the different committees to make the meetings a grand success. Able speakers will be present, and all can come with the expectation of having a spiritual feast. The Sunday school and Zion's Religio will take their proper part in the program. One day will be set aside for an outing, or to cross the river and visit the old historic town of Nauvoo.

Everybody invited. Saints, let us make this reunion a grand success. Come one, come all; bring your wagons, your tents, and if you haven't a tent, write the committee early for one or for a cottage. Tents if wanted will be furnished as cheaply as possible. Railroad rates have been applied for and will be announced later. Bro. E. A. and Sr. Clara Smith will represent the Herald Office, with mailing lists and full stock of books and other publications.

BY ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

REUNION NOTICES.

OKLAHOMA REUNION.

Oklahoma mission reunion will be held August 26 to September 5, in Mr. John Minium's grove, twelve miles due west of Edmond. The grove is located on the northeast quarter of section 34, township 14, range 5 west. It is a beautiful grove, plenty of shade, good water, and ample room among the trees for camp tents and covered wagons. Wood for camp use will be furnished free, also straw for beds. Pasture for horses will be furnished at a reasonable rate, perhaps twenty-five cents per team during reunion. The committee will endeavor to make all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of all that come. This is a reunion for the people, the saints have pledged themselves to come, when they voted to have a reunion in 1898, so we look for a full attendance—that means all the saints in Oklahoma.

Every Latter Day Saint will realize that we are debtors to the Lord for all we have, especially for the restored gospel, which will bring us to God and give us a place in his kingdom. So we request each one to do their part to make the reunion of 1898 a success by coming and getting others to come, that the work of the Lord may prosper. If you stay at home, others may also through your influence stay at home, so you diminish and hinder the good work which has been intrusted to us all. Come, praying that the God of Israel may be with us in power, in blessing his saints, and bringing others into the fold.

Those desiring tents will please notify the committee at once, by addressing Elder W. S. Macrae, Kingfisher, Oklahoma, who will have charge of this part of the work.

While we have not heard personally from Bro. A. J. Moore, we expect him to attend, as also all others of the ministry who can.

2t R. M. MALONEY.

Maysville, Missouri, reunion for 1898 begins August 26, and holds to September 5.

The grounds need no description to those who have been there before. They are beautiful and commodious enough to suit the most fastidious. The Chicago and Rock Island Railway runs by the ground and will stop to let off and take on passengers at a platform near the grounds. The committee have arranged for tents at the following prices: 10 x 12 $1.75, 12 x 14 $2; this includes the putting up of the tent and placing straw therein, and the tents will be already to move into by those renting them. Those desiring tents will write to Bro. C. P. Faul, Clarksdale, Missouri, inclosing the amount named above according to size, and they will find the tents ready for them. Bro. I. N. White will be present, also Elders H. O. Smith, Alfred White, and Ammon White, missionaries in the Far West district, and probably Brn. Anderson and Gowell of the Nodaway district, with others will be present. One large tent 40 x 60 and the district tents of the Far West and Nodaway districts will furnish ample room to accommodate all who may come. Further particulars in regard to board of man and beast will be given later, also as to Sunday school work, etc.

H. O. SMITH, Pres.

WOODBINE REUNION.

Woodbine annual reunion, September 16 to 26. Rental of tents for session as follows: 10 x 12 wall tent, $2.00; 12 x 14, $2.50; 14 x 16, $3.00; 14 x 21, $5.00. If those ordering want tent set up 25 cents on three smaller sizes, and 50 cents additional on the 14 x 21 size. In ordering, please specify set up or not set up. I want all orders by September 1, if possible, to insure promptness of filling. Those ordering later must take their chances. A very large and profitable gathering expected from present outlook.

Address all tent orders to

S. B. KIBLER,
Chairman Committee.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Conference of Western Maine district will convene at Hancock, August 27 and 28. The priesthood are requested to report in writing. Reports of branches are also requested. Come up, brethren, and assist in making it a grand success.

S. G. CUNNINGHAM, Pres.
RALPH FARRELL, Sec.

BOOK AGENT.

I have this day been appointed book agent of Philadelphia branch. All members of the branch please take notice. With the hope of making it a success, I am yours for business,

GEO. W. EDWARDS,
2709 Reese Street, Philadelphia.

August 25, 1898.

SIMPLE REMEDIES.

I send these simple remedies for the benefit of the readers of the Herald, hoping some may be benefited thereby:—

WHEAT BRAN FOR DYSPEPSIA.

Take one tablespoonful of bran, place in a teacup, and pour over one-half cup—or more if desired—boiling water. Let stand until cool enough, then drink, stirring constantly.

It should be taken as hot as possible and before breakfast—as soon after arising as convenient. A second cup during the day is good, if one feels the need. It can be eaten dry, if preferred.

Where one does not use Graham flour he will find that to mix one-half cup of bran in a batch of bread is very beneficial, and should always be fresh to produce the best results.

CORN MEAL FOR MALARIA.

Take one-third cup of corn meal—yellow is preferable—pour the cup full of cold water, stir, let stand over night, and drink off the water the first thing in the morning. Continue this for three mornings, then skip three, beginning again on the fourth morning. Alternate thus until you feel relieved. It has a better effect if one restricts the diet while taking.

SISTER I. RUSSELL.

DAVISVILLE, California, June 23.

DIED.

WHITEHEAD.—At Lamoni, Iowa, July 27, 1898, Elder James Whitehead, formerly private secretary to Joseph Smith the Martyr. He was born April 12, 1813, at Preston, England; was baptized October 18, 1837; and came to Nauvoo, Illinois, in April, 1842. He united with the Reorganized Church in September, 1865. Funeral sermon by Pres. Joseph Smith; interment in Rose Hill cemetery, Lamoni, Iowa. For particulars see editorial columns.

ELVIN.—Sr. Emeline A. Hartwell was born in Nauvoo, Illinois, October 4, 1845. She was among the first who united with the Reorganized Church in Western Iowa, being baptized by Elder J. H. Blakeslee, brother of Bishop G. A. Blakeslee, and subsequently renewing her covenant in baptism by Elder E. C. Briggs. She was married to Elder R. M. Elvin, at Council Bluffs, Iowa, where her parents had settled at the hegrira from Illinois, February 13, 1870. Died July 26, 1898. Six children have been born to them; three have been taken; three, Reuben, Mamie, (Mrs. John W. Luff, of Independence, Missouri,) and Vida, who, with their father mourn their loss. Sr. Elvin's home has been at Lamoni since 1887. Here she has raised her children to man and womanhood. Here she with her husband made a home of refuge for her mother, Sr. Hartwell, aged 89 years, the day of her daughter's burial, and who has been a helpless invalid for the past thirty months. She was a great sufferer, and death was at the last a relief from pain. She rests in peace, and will be sincerely and tenderly mourned.

WILSON.—Bro. Joseph W. Wilson was born December 29, 1835, in the State of Alabama. He died July 26, 1898, of paralysis and Bright's disease, after suffering eight months. He joined the church in 1880, after which he ceased active membership in masonry. He was buried from his residence, 44 South Fourth West Street, Salt Lake City, numerous friends being present both at the house and grave. Elder J. W. Wight made the opening prayer and a few remarks, and consigned his body to the tomb in Mt. Olivet cemetery by prayer. He passed peacefully away like one going to sleep.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound$1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners... 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE.
REDUCED from $1.15 to 75 cents. An excellent work for the home, also for young people's libraries and societies. Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

Burlington Route National Saengerfest, Davenport, Iowa, July 28-31; one standard fare plus $2.00 for round trip. Date of sale July 27 and 28, final limit for return August 1.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth	$1 00
Sheep or library binding	1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 75
Morocco, gilt edges	2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges	3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth	$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia.....	1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible.....	2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth	$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia.....	1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible	2 00

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH.

Cloth	$0 75
Leather	1 00

GRACELAND .. COLLEGE,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Telephone 71.

For catalogues or further information, Address, PROF. J. T. PENCE, Acting President, or R. S. SALYARDS, Secretary, LAMONI, IOWA.

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100$1 00
2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....1 00
3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100...1 00
7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 1001 00
9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100.....1 30
10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 1001 20
12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 1001 00
13. Discipleism, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts; 100, 1 00
14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....$1 00
15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen..... 30
19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen..... 10
20. The "One Body;" or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....1 00
31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....1 00
44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....1 00
47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 1001 00
- Prophecy of the Rebellion; per 100 10

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

Cloth	$0 40
-------------	--------

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer, President.
 Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.

W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address, I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

TOBACCO HABIT CURED, OR NO PAY.

Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, positively guarantees three boxes of "Quit-To-Bac" to permanently take away all desire for tobacco, or will promptly refund money paid for it. Three boxes sent post paid anywhere for $1.50. No bad effects from use of Quit-To-Bac. It is a great nerve tonic. Why not try it? It has cured hundreds; why not you? Remember, No Cure, No Pay. Address, B. F. ORDWAY, Peoria, Illinois.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co., 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

LAMONI FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres, with five room house, large barn, other outbuildings; abundance of water; young orchard. Located two miles from Graceland College, Lamoni, and one fourth mile from schoolhouse. Price, $2,500 with one half cash; balance to suit purchaser. Address, MRS. MARGARET BAGLEY, Lamoni, Iowa.

$10 GRAPHOPHONES. $10 TALKING MACHINES!

Greatest money maker ever offered. Anybody can start in the show business. Make $10 to $20 a day giving exhibitions. LOUD AND CLEAR ENOUGH to be heard in any Hall or Church anywhere. They're wonderful. Imagine a musical instrument that will actually TALK TALK. That by simply winding it up like a clock you can play band music exactly as it was played by Sousa—cornet, trombones, drums and all. Sings songs, tells funny stories. Does't seem possible, does it? But it does even more than that. You can sing or talk into it yourself and it will repeat, a moment after, just what you said. FOR HOME AMUSEMENT it has no equal. Entirely new model. Just out. Very loud. Price EAGLE GRAPHOPHONE and concert horn, $10. Same outfit, with handsome oak carrying case, $12. Price of our BEST EXHIBITION MUSICAL OR TALKING RECORDS, 50c each $5 a dozen. Includes our Eagle Graphophone, with carrying case, two hearing tubes, concert horn, record brush, 18 assorted records, music, songs and speeches (lasts two hours steady running), 200 big posters advertising exhibition, 200 admission tickets, all for $20. Sent C. O. D., with privilege of examination, if desired. Complete Record Catalogue free. Write for it.
HARGER & BLISH, Western Agts., 904-910 Main St., Dubuque, Iowa.

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.
NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.
 Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.
 Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.
THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture AND Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.
GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.
 Agents Wanted Everywhere.
THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery. Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

Large Maps Reduced!

For Sunday School and Home Use . . .

Dispensing with the idea of procuring agents, I have concluded to furnish the large Book of Mormon maps (39x51 inches), fully described in former advertisement, direct to all at $1.50, express charges to be paid by the purchaser. Former price $2.50. An ornament to any home. Sunday schools and Religio, please take up collections, procure a map, and start a class in the Book of Mormon. Sr. (Mrs.) Ella J. Green, of Onslow, Iowa, wrote July 6, 1898:—
 "Bro. G. F. Weston:—Received map all right and extend to you our thanks for favor shown in reduction of price. The map is for our Sunday school and all who have seen it are well pleased." Early orders solicited.
 G. F. WESTON.

BUCHANAN, Berrien Co., Mich.

Scriptural and Book of Mormon

subjects illustrated by means of finely painted pictures and charts furnished to order on muslin, canvas, or oilcloth. For particulars address Hulmes & Kress, 609 Main Street, Kansas City, Missouri.

MINISTRY AND BRANCH CARDS.

Neat cards for ministers or branches, with name and address, or place of worship and hours of services on face, and Epitome or "What we Believe" on reverse side. An excellent aid. Two sizes:
 2 1/4 x 4 inches, per 250 $0 75
 " " per 1000 2 50
 3 x 5 1/2 " per 250 1 00
 " " per 1000 3 50

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.

The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a

Reward of $200

By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns.
TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.

It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State
PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.
 DES MOINES, IOWA.

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6 1/2 x 8 1/2, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net $2 00

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 10, 1898.

No. 32.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
"One True Scriptural Organization".....	501
Added Confirmations.....	502
"Getting Back the Holy Land".....	502
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Select Reading for August Meetings of Daughters of Zion.....	503
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
Activity.....	505
LETTER DEPARTMENT:505
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Sleeping Time and Midnight Cry.....	508
Sanctification.....	508
Infidel Arguments Answered.—No. 1.....	511
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana.....	512
Galland's Grove.....	512
Northeastern Texas and Choctaw.....	512
London.....	512
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS..... 512
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Hill-Peak Debate.....	513
Pastoral,—C. A. Butterworth.....	514
" C. Scott.....	514
Corrections in Bishop's Annual Report.....	514
Kirtland Conference and Reunion.....	515
Discussion.....	515
Bluff Park Reunion.....	515
Church Recorder's Notice.....	515
Reunion Notices.....	516
Two-Days' Meetings.....	516
Special Notice.....	516

THE DEVELOPMENT OF DOGMA.

Rev. DAVID MOYES, in the July Catholic World, New York.

THE late archbishop of Canterbury, in an informal answer to the Pope's encyclical on unity, appealed to the primitive church against the modern articles of faith defined by the Catholic Church. The schismatic patriarch of Constantinople appealed likewise to the primitive church in his reply to the same encyclical. All these represent to themselves a fixed and immovable church, and seek to impress upon the minds of their followers the concept of such an one, exclusively corresponding to the ideal conceived by the Savior and constituting for us a standard of comparison in estimating other claims. The church must never change, but preserve both its spirit and outward form down the ages and so on to the close of time. Every error is the shadow of a truth, and the thesis as it stands contains both truth and error, according to the principles of doctrinal development put forward by us. The primitive deposit of faith and form of church government fixed immutably by Christ and by the apostles, under the dictation of the Holy Spirit, must assuredly remain untouched by the hand of man, and must possess the same objective elements through all time. But the truth planted in germ by Christ was to be developed by the Holy Ghost, not by strange accretions, but by unfolding of itself in its own unity. Its outward form would thus go on adapting itself to the increasing needs of successive generations. Thus generations seek for further and more explicit knowledge. What, then, is the meaning of Anglicans and others appealing to the primitive church? They do not comprehend thoroughly that the immutability of Christian truth and the identity of church government remain untouched by this evolution of dogma and this exercise of the divine power committed to the church.

The human mind is always seeking for truth, and its very nature demands that it shall advance in the practical and speculative knowledge of religious truth. What is to prevent reason from operating on the revealed data? Leaving the dogmas of the church aside for the moment, cannot the mind take the germ of the primitive deposit as so many primary truths and draw from them their consequences, place them in order, and create theological science? Scientific progress in religion would consist in this: that all which is contained in the sum of revealed truth should be known more distinctly and understood as far as possible; that the innumerable questions which the human mind may ask, both as to the dogmas themselves and their mutual relations, their consequences, and antecedents, the truths which they presuppose and those which they logically bring after them, should receive an elaborated answer; so that faith, which is simple and direct, which perceives its object in one synthetic concept, may become a grand sum of coherent truths, displaying more fully the inner working of the divine economy and opposing a stronger bulwark to the assaults of error. The Apostle Paul spoke of this subjective development of doctrine when he prayed for his brethren "that they might walk worthy of God, being fruitful in every good work, increasing in the knowledge of God." The truths in themselves never change. But, on the other hand, it is evident that to deny to the mind the right to meditate upon the primitive deposit and to draw from that inexhaustible source the implicit truth contained therein is the same as denying to the human mind the exercise of its natural power of progressive thought.

There is but one legitimate development of dogma, which consists in this: that the dogmas made known in a condensed and summary manner to the primitive church should, while immovable in themselves, be evolved under the directive assistance of the Holy Ghost and through natural means of information at the disposal of the church; so that the innumerable truths contained implicitly in this summary or sacred deposit should come to be known explicitly, and when need demands it authoritatively proposed to the belief of the people. Thus, the immaculate conception and the papal infallibility, and other definitions of doctrine recently proposed to the faithful, were contained in the former explicit truths which constituted the primitive deposit. To transport the early church forward through the ages and plant it, in its swaddling clothes, among us now, would be to contradict the natural and the positive law of God; and, moreover, we should find that this violation of God's law would be punished by the human inadequacy of the church to maintain its position, as it should be able to do, on parallel lines with the advance of error.

The church is not inspired. The directive assistance implies activity on the part of the teaching church in searching out religious truth. The use of reason and the study of the sacred deposit, the word of God as committed to writing, the sentences of the fathers, suggestions of the sciences throwing light upon the meaning of historical facts; everything, in fact, that can enlighten the mind of the church is brought into requisition, so that it uses natural means to arrive at the truth, previous to its solemn pronouncements. Thus everything develops naturally; for institutions, we have an example in the episcopal authority; for logical development, in the subsequent and more detailed conclusions on the nature of Christ; for the psychological, in the gradual development of a thought which had been divinely infused into the primitive deposit, emerging through extrinsic causes and more ample materials for judgment. But the church used ordinary and human means to extract from the deposit the implicit truths which are contained in it, for the Holy Ghost does not inspire the church, but simply gives to it its directive assistance. These human means are the natural causes of the development of doctrine; they are instrumental causes, but it is established that the Holy Ghost is the main efficient cause of this doctrinal progress, and it is upon this foundation that its infallible certainty reposes. This progress will go on to the close of all earthly things. We are, as it were, ascending the slopes of Mount Tabor together with the favored apostles, and when we shall have arrived at its summit we shall behold Christ transfigured into all the glory of his godhead. But until that term is reached we must be satisfied to make one step at a time.—Condensed for Public Opinion.

A SLANDER EXPLODED.

INFIDELS have quoted with great glee where our Common Version says that David, when he conquered the children of Ammon, "cut them with saws, and with harrows of iron, and with axes." That, they say, "was how the 'man after God's own heart' treated his fellow men." But the parallel passage says that he "put them under saws, etc.," and "made them pass through the brick-kiln." And the Revised Version has in the margin "to," instead of "under," and adds, with a slight change in the Hebrew text, "made them to labor at."

And now an eminent Biblical scholar assures us that many of the most ancient manuscripts sustain this change in the reading. The statement evidently is, when properly understood, that David, instead of killing or mutilating the people, reduced them to servitude, made them work for him with saws and harrows and axes, and in brick kilns.—Herald and Presbyter.

SPAIN'S LOSS OF EMPIRE.

ON his accession to the Spanish throne in 1556, Philip II. found himself ruler of the greatest empire the world had seen since Rome was at the zenith of its power. Its navies were famous for their greatness and they ruled the ocean, its armies were famous for their prowess, she swayed the destinies of Europe, had possessions in all the continents, and may be said to have owned the Americas, North and South. Samuel Johnson, writing as recently as 1740, when complaining of the poor people's hardships, said:—

Are there no regions yet unclaimed by Spain? Quick, let us rise, those happy lands explore, And bear oppressions' insolence no more.

The Spanish empire was the result of marriages, conquest, and discoveries; its decline and fall may be ascribed to the ruthless character of the Spanish people. When Columbus discovered San Domingo, it had a population of 2,000,000; in 1530, this population had dwindled to 350,000. Cortez in Mexico and Pizarro in Peru were ideal Spanish conquerors.

In the latter part of Philip's reign [he died in 1598] Spain lost all, or nearly all, of her dependencies in North Africa, and early in the next reign, Burgundy, Naples, Sicily, and then Milan. In 1609 the Netherlands were lost; in 1628, Malacca, Ceylon, Java, and other islands; in 1640, Portugal; in 1648 all claims were renounced to Holland, Brabant and parts of Flanders; in 1649 were lost Maestricht, Hertogenbosch, Breda, Bergen-op-Zoom, and many other fortresses in the Low Countries, in which year the crown tacitly surrendered supremacy on the seas to Northern Europe; in 1659 Rousillon and Cardague were ceded to France, making the Pyrenees the boundary between the two counties; in 1668 to 1672, the last of Flanders was given up; in 1704, Gibraltar was lost; in 1791, the Nootka Sound settlements; in 1794, San Domingo; in 1800, Louisiana; in 1802, Trinidad; in 1819, Florida; from 1810-21 were lost, Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Chile, Argentina, Banda-Oriental, Paraguay, Patagonia, Gautemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, San Salvador, Haiti, and numerous islands pertaining to the American continents, all the possessions in the Western Hemisphere, in fact, save Porto Rico and Cuba, which already apparently are as good as lost. The future of Spanish Morocco, and of the Philippine, Caroline, Sulu, Ladrones and Canary groups has yet to be settled.—Memphis Commercial.

PRINCIPLES OF THE DON'T WORRY CLUB.

A band of about fifty members and friends of the Central Don't Worry Circle gathered at the circle headquarters at 67 Irving place New York, last evening to hear Theodore F. Seward expound the principles and relate the history of the "don't worry" movement, of which he is the originator and promoter. During his remarks he said:—

"A large share of what we consider our troubles is imaginary and much of the rest we magnify by imagination. Give up the idea that worrying is a necessity. Worrying is often mistaken for planning. It is the worst sort of hindrance to true planning. Forethought is not to be confused with 'fear-thought.' Avoid worry by realizing that it is as bad for the mind as poison is for the body, by resisting it every moment and cultivating a spirit of gratitude in its place, and by cultivating faith in a supreme overruling power and trusting life to its guidance.

"Yet let us remember that a lifelong habit is not to be driven away with a say-so. It requires constant application. I have found that the prominence given the phrase 'don't worry' is helpful. We must cultivate a perfect faith that God's plan is being perfectly unfolded."

After the address a gray-haired man who had been an attentive listener asked, in the case of a wife whose husband had gone to fight in Cuba, by what mental process she could free herself from worry for his safety. Mr. Seward parried the question and simply remarked: "It is a high attainment and must be cultivated."—Ex.

THE HEAVENLY MEETING.

Tell, oh! tell me, Book of visions, bright with promise, sweet with prayer,
Shall I know the angel faces that are waiting, over there?
Shall I find my children children? Will my gentle mother lay
Her dear hand upon my forehead in the old, earth-loving way?
Father, keep them as I loved them!—or, if changed to other guise,
May the Heavenly transformation dawn but slowly on mine eyes.
Let me take them to my bosom, once, upon that shining shore,
As I saw them when we parted, in the love-lit days of yore.—

James Buckham in the August Ladies' Home Journal.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord; for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—E. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 10, 1898.

No. 32.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, AUG. 10, 1898.

"ONE TRUE SCRIPTURAL ORGANIZATION."

WE find the following in the American Baptist Flag, for June 30, 1898:—

A brother said to us: "I joined the Baptist Church because I believed it was the best church." Pshaw! There is no "best" about the church matter. There is but one true, scriptural organization, and it would be every man's duty to belong to that whether he thought it best or not.

From the editorial columns of the same paper we extract the following:—

Each Baptist church is complete in itself under Christ its head. There is no ecclesiastical organization under the sun which has the least authority over it. Its action cannot be set aside so far as its own body is concerned, by any other church or combination of churches. It is in itself the body of Christ, and is just as complete as if there was no other body of believers on the face of the earth.—Baptist News.

That has the ring of the true metal in it. It ought to be said so loud and so often that it would echo and reëcho from hill and dale 'till every advocate of centralization and conventional supremacy was made to hear it. Baptist churches are supreme, under Christ. "No other body of believers on the face of the earth" can have any sort of authority over Baptist churches. Let all Baptist churches, everywhere, write that doctrine in their hearts, and stand by it at all times, and under all circumstances, and there will never be any danger of centralization.

These statements, taken from a leading Baptist journal, would seem to warrant the conclusions,

1. That the aggregation of believers called Baptists of every kind constitute the one church.

2. That each and every separate church called Baptist is that one church, also.

That is certainly not a plea for unification, but is for separateness; for if an individual Baptist church organization "is complete in itself under Christ," and is per se the "one, true scriptural organization," it is quite strange to ordinary minds that other organizations can also be the "one true scriptural organization," at the same time, without unification and centralization.

The larger portion of the people of the United States has refused credence and sanction to the dogma of "squatter sovereignty," that the state was equal, or superior to the nation, and that whatever the state chose to enact as law, or do in its state capacity must prevail over and above any authority of the federal government, and be left free from federal intervention; and it would seem to be quite an anomaly for such a principle to obtain in heavenly economics as would allow the application of the squatter sovereignty dogma to the acquisition of heavenly territory, and the right to enter into and take possession of the rights, privileges, and glories of celestial abodes upon the declaration that every body of believers was entitled thereto without unity with the celestial government.

As there can be no safe political government, either municipal or state, without a centralized form where decisions may be reached and controversies stop, and the executive assume the control in human affairs; so in the effort to reach home, rest, and heaven, there must be centralization in the church, more especially if it be the "church militant" preceding the church triumphant.

True, the formula "under Christ" is used by our religious cotemporary from whom we quote; and the sophistry of it captures the ears and stills the inquiry of many followers. But, to be "under Christ" is to be subject to his word. His word inculcates unity, the harmony of separate existences having and acknowledging a central head in a corporate existence, such as is suggested by Paul when he wrote, "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular. And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets." "But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him."—1 Cor. 12: 27, 28, 18.

If God is an unchangeable being, and it pleased him to set, place, appoint, ordain, or fix certain members in the body, the church, as stated by Paul, then it must be that such members in the church would please him now.

Our Baptist friends are forced by the logic of their claim to admit certain other evangelical churches to be in the same condition as themselves; so that their statement might read, "Baptist" (M. E., Episcopal, Congregational, Presbyterian, and other evangelical) "churches are supreme, under Christ." At the same time, the body of believers making this statement will not admit that any other than the Baptist Church is the "one true, scriptural organization." According to them we, and all other believers in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the principle of direct and present revelation, are heretics, and do not in any sense constitute any part of the Church of Christ. Why this paradox?

"There is but one true scriptural organization, and it would be every man's duty to belong to that [last italic ours.—Ed.] whether he thought it best or not."

If there is but one, the deduction to be inferred from the reading of this statement would be, that the writer meant the Baptist Church. Which one? we may fitly ask; and why?

Accepting the triteness of the saying "whether he thought it best or not," opens a field for thought, must a man accept the Baptist Church as the "one true, scriptural organization," while those who make the claim for it also proclaim that no one of the many, nor all of them has or can have any supremacy, no central head, organization, or authority. And if it be a correct statement in itself, it cannot be confined in its sequence and application to the Baptist Church alone, but must with equal truth apply to all other churches and bodies of believers. Hence it follows that the statement of the brother, to which our Baptist editor wrote "Pshaw! There is no 'best' about this church matter," is correct, and he followed the better rule of action and joined the one church which he thought the "best." The principle presented is that making examination of claims of differing bodies of believers to be the Church of Christ par excellence, and in fact, this brother chose the Baptist. The editor made light of this, stating that "there is no 'best' about the church matter." Therefore all are alike good, or alike bad; alike true, or alike false. Conceding this, the principle applied as it should be, puts all churches or a par, and the brother was right in choosing that one which his judgment decided to be the better. Now apply the principle still wider, and it is clear that there may be a church which is the Church of Christ in touch with his word and law, and that is the one church into which every man should press. That may apply to us. But would our Baptist friends agree to that?

ADDED CONFIRMATIONS.

A LATE article in the Washington Post, republished in the Chicago Tribune of June 26, entitled "Battles of the Civil War?" states that "in Missouri . . . as a matter of fact four hundred and seventeen engagements took place altogether;" that "Missouri witnessed much hard fighting" in the war. The article was based upon information furnished "through the courtesy of Captain L. M. Kelley, . . . Deputy Commissioner of Pensions," at Washington.

Joseph Smith declared that Missouri would be called upon to suffer the consequences of her terrible treatment of the early saints. The record of her Civil War history proves that she was overrun by guerrillas and suffered much in the general warfare, caused by the desperate character of many of her citizens who, with some of their ancestors, were the relentless persecutors of the Latter Day Saints from 1831 to 1844. It is gratifying to know that a different condition now prevails, and that the present saints, many of them descendants of those formerly driven from or exterminated in the State, are gladly welcomed in all places where formerly persecuted and driven.

Another object lesson from which our people derive satisfaction in that it furnishes added confirmation, has been repeatedly presented to the American people in late years. We refer to the numerous exhibitions of mob violence in Ohio, Indiana, and other northern States, in addition to those that have occurred in the South, and which have been accompanied by such disgraceful manifestations of brutality as to call forth serious protests from press, people, and pulpit, as well as serious reflections by foreign newspapers, upon the administration of law in this country. It was mob violence that drove the early saints from Ohio, Missouri, and Illinois, and caused the death of the martyrs, Joseph and Hyrum Smith. The subsequent history of and protests against the same thing in the country are worth noting and remembering in connection with the early history of the church. It is not difficult to justly condemn and disprove the positions of the old-time enemies of the saints. The nation itself has been compelled to exercise the force of its strong military arm to suppress those who persecuted and in many instances exterminated or put to death the early saints. The government itself could not have survived a growth of such lawless and bloodthirsty elements. They could not be tolerated and law and order survive. What the early Latter Day Saints resisted has repeatedly been resisted by not only a number of State governments, but by the national government itself. The nation has suffered the consequences of permitting such elements to flourish, and its suffering has vindicated our predecessors and has manifested the justness of their attitude in crying, though vainly, for redress.

The law of compensation embodies eternal principles. Both men and nations reap what they sow, and learn by the things they suffer. Wrong is wrong, no matter against whom it is perpetrated or permitted, and must ever invite the consequences that are sure to follow. Man is his brother's keeper, and the law of God written in Nature and in the statute books imposes penalties upon individuals and nations who become principals in committing wrong, or who fail to prevent oppression and injustice when responsible so to do. There is a day of righteous retribution for all according to their deeds. President Buchanan's reply to representatives of the Missouri saints, "Gentlemen, your cause is just, but I can do nothing for you," brought its just recompense of reward, and the nation was compelled to make atonement.

"GETTING BACK THE HOLY LAND."

THE Chicago Tribune, of August 1, is authority for the statement that follows, under the heading quoted above:—

The Hebrews are now in possession of about sixty square miles of Palestine, or one per cent of the country, and have agricultural establishments at Ekson, Jaffa, and in Galilee.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. A. B. PURFURST wrote, in a recent letter from Los Angeles, California, of the Santa Monica reunion as follows:—

We had a blessed time, I am sure, and Bro. Sheehy, Williams, and H. C. Smith fed us properly with the spiritual food from on high and bore strong and faithful testimony for the Lord's work. They have sown the good seed and the Lord will in his own good time bring home the harvest therefrom.

Bro. T. W. Williams wrote thus, from Pomona, of the same meeting:—

Just returned from the Santa Monica reunion; several baptisms and general good will manifested. I go to San Bernardino tomorrow.

Bro. C. A. Parkin, San Francisco, California, July 31:—

Bro. F. M. Sheehy preached for us morning and evening. We were very much pleased with his manner and logic. He places his subject in a conspicuous point of light. We think him a clear, forcible speaker.

July 30 and 31, of Bro. Bond's visit, Bro. Joseph Squires, Sr., wrote August 2:—

The saints of Brooklyn have once more been strengthened and encouraged by the cheering words of Elder M. H. Bond.

Bro. J. M. Terry, Chicago, Illinois, August 4:—

The work here is beginning to move; the saints are rallying and our meetings are growing in interest and number. We have an excellent Sunday school, composed mostly of strangers to the faith, but we do not intend they shall remain so. We have an earnest and very intelligent band of young saints who stand nobly by us in the work. A spirit of peace and unity prevails—we have not heard of a single jar among the members. How beautiful when the saints dwell together in unity. Angels rejoice at such scenes. With strong hope for a speedy ingathering I am ever yours in good spirits.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. HANS HANSEN, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, father of Bro. Dr. John H. Hansen, of Lamoni, now eighty-seven years old, born in 1811, visited the Herald Office Wednesday, August 3, with his son, the doctor. He has lately been sick, but is able to get around quite well, sight and hearing fair for a man of his years. He heard the gospel in 1851 in his native country, Denmark, and joined there, under the administration of Pres. B. Young, emigrated to this country in 1857, heard the claims of the Reorganized Church as presented by Bro. E. C. Briggs, about 1859-60, and united with that body soon after with his family. One son, Frederick, has filled a mission to England and Denmark, and one, Dr. John H., was for some nine or ten years an active missionary in the West and South. We were pleased to receive a call from this veteran in the Lord's work.

The Milan, Illinois, News, of July 28, publishes an article on "Preaching and Patriotism," by Elder M. T. Short, in which duty to God and to country are set forth, in plain terms, together with the general attitude of the Reorganized Church on said questions. Bro. Short, formerly a soldier in the "late unpleasantness," now wields the pen, as mightier than the sword of steel, in the interests of truth.

Immortality will come to him who is fit for it, and he who would be a great soul in future must be a great soul now.—Emerson.

Sister Sarah A. M. Perkins, of Mikado, Missouri, sends us a lot of Clippings from the Christian Standard, in which R. B. Neal and others air their objections to the "Mormons" and "Mormonism." Some of them we have seen, but thank Sr. Perkins for them all.

Pres. A. H. Smith left home on Thursday, the 4th inst. for an extended tour in New England and other portions of the Eastern mission.

Elders of the Utah Church laboring in the vicinity of Sioux City, Iowa, called forth an article from the pen of Bro. J. F. Mintun on "Factions among Latter Day Saints," published in the Sioux City Journal of August 2. Our representatives cannot always be present to set forth the faith, but it can often be done through the press.

Bishop E. L. Kelley left Lamoni for a trip to the Eastern States, on Saturday, the 6th inst.

We notice that Bro. J. M. Terry has services of the Reorganized Church advertised in the religious column of the Chicago Tribune. That's right, Bro. Terry. Advertising pays; and if anything ought to be pressed upon the attention of the public it is the great latter-day work. To all the brethren in position to imitate the example of our Chicago representative we would respectfully suggest, Go thou and do likewise.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"I live for those who love me,
For those who know me true,
For the heaven that smiles above me,
And awaits my spirit too;
For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that I can do."

SELECT READING FOR AUGUST MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

BEHAVING.

"MANNERS makyth man," is an ancient proverb. "Manners are lesser morals," is a more modern one, and both are true. Here is a truth deeper than either proverb expresses: True courtesy is but putting in practice the Golden Rule. The highest type not only of manliness, but of good manners, is Christ. "He pleased not himself." Next to him stands Paul, living up to his own directions, "In honor preferring one another, let each esteem others better than himself," "seeking not his own, but each the others' good."

Those who consider courtesy but a shallow veneering, trace its origin to "court," and account courtesy to be the manners of a kingly court, but the real significance of the word goes deeper; its root is "cour," heart, and true courtesy is manners proceeding from the kindly heart, not put on for outward seeming. Good manners are a constant letter of recommendation. Parents who allow children to go out into the world with rude, boorish manners, inflict upon them an irreparable wrong. Children should be trained to behave at home every day, just as you wish them to in the most particular company they will ever meet. Put-on manners never stick; they must be ingrained. Boorishness carries with it always a suspicion of coarse-grainedness. Fine natures always have a sense of courtesy which makes itself felt, even in the midst of mean surroundings. It distinguished Peter Cooper in his younger days, when busy with his glue-pot, as conspicuously as when he was a millionaire. Respect for superiors, courtesy to parents, teachers, and others older than themselves, is the first lesson in behaving children need to learn. Irreverence, pertness, are the besetting sins of young America, and nothing makes a child or young person more disagreeable. The dislike to having children visitors or children boarders, is due, in large measure, to this cause. A nice child is the best companion in the world; but concerning a pert, forward, meddlesome one, most people feel as did the old lady who said, "I would rather have a thieving, pinching monkey for a comfort."

Nor does the evil decrease with increase of years. Only the other day a dear old friend, in discussing who should be invited to a reception at her house, said, "Please do not invite any college students, they are so self-conceited and pert, I cannot bear to have them about." Probably she had been unfortunate in her acquaintance with this class, but she expressed the feeling every well brought up person has toward forward, impertinent people. It would do our American boys and girls good to take lessons in respect for their elders from the Chinese and Japanese; indeed, there are few nations from whom Americans could not learn a lesson in this direction. Shirley Dare says: "Respect for one's father and mother, as well as to older people generally, is the first point in high breeding the world over. . . . If you, Clara, were a young princess or a countess, as you have so often wished to be, the first thing you would have to learn is respect for others. You would not be allowed to keep the easy chair when your mother, the queen, or your aunt, the duchess, came into the room. No matter how tired you were, nor how interesting a book you were reading, you would have to rise, put aside what you were doing, and wait quietly till your august relative told you to be seated. And if she wanted anything a yard away and you let her rise from her chair and wait on herself, you would probably be sent away in disgrace and kept till you learned better manners. If you, Harry, were his Royal Highness of Saxony, and were to marry a queen when old enough, you would have to improve on your present manners to a degree that would make you sick of life for awhile. You would have to learn to pay attention to other people before yourself, to be pleasant when you did not feel like it, to wait on ladies and be polite to old men. If you showed temper to his majesty, your father, you would, in all probability, be ordered under arrest, like a common soldier, to teach you to respect authority."

Read Queen Victoria's "Memoirs of the Prince Consort" and see how carefully Prince Albert was trained in his childhood to strict obedience, as well as respect for his teachers and elders. But do you say, "We free-born Americans do not wish to ape the servility of the old world?" □ There is no servility in true courtesy; the lack of training in it often leads to servility which is nowhere more observable than in the intercourse of ill-bred Americans with titled foreigners. The small, sweet courtesies of life are worthy of attention because they are the oil that makes the wheels of life run smoothly. Contrast a day spent in the company of persons who, from heedlessness or perverseness, are always doing the wrong thing at the right time, with a day spent with those who always do the "nicest thing in the nicest way," and decide for yourself which is pleasanter. How much more smoothly the day passes in the family where, as they meet in the morning, tongue, lip, and eye, unite in cheerful good-morning, where each strives to be the helpful friend of every other; when, as a favor is received, the heartfelt "thank you" springs naturally to the lips; in short, where courtesy rules every word and action.

There is deep meaning in many forms of courtesy: "Good-morning" is a little prayer for good for all to whom it is spoken. It is an abbreviation of the greeting we find in old English books, "God give you a good morning;" and "Good-bye" has a kindred significance. The lifted hat, the uncovered head, is not simply a mark of deference, it is an expression of trust; the head uncovered is the head unhelmeted—exposed to the blow we trust to your honor not to inflict. The hand ungloved is the hand unguarded, and shaking hands is a token of truce.

Most rules of etiquette have their basis in reason. If you do not see it at once, search for it and give it to your children. You will find justice and kindness are the real foundations of good manners. Take those rules of etiquette whose infringement makes our young people so disagreeable. You must not slam doors or rush through the house like a whirlwind. Why? It annoys other people and endangers everything breakable in your route. Don't interrupt others when talking. Why? You annoy them, break up their conversation, and perhaps make them forget what they wish to say. Do not pass before another. Why? You are liable to cut off his view of something he wishes to see, perhaps the person with whom he is talking. Eat with your fork, because with a knife you are liable to cut your mouth. Do not speak with food in your mouth, because you are liable to choke; eat slowly and without noise, lest you spoil your neighbor's appetite by suggesting the pigsty and its occupants. Keep yourself to yourself lest your elbows, your fingers, your feet, or your knees, poke into other people. These seem little things, but just such little things make the difference between well-bred people and commonplace. These little things can be taught by mothers; indeed, if they are not learned at home they are never learned perfectly. It is just as easy to teach a child to say, "I thank you for some bread," as "Give me some bread;" as easy, much easier, to train children to courteous greeting of the household upon ordinary occasions than without this training to be polite to guests on extraordinary ones. A boy of ten taught to enter the parlor and bow to his mother's friend, will do it with ease and self possession when he is twenty. For ease of manner is only politeness practiced till it becomes second nature.

Shirley Dare in "Behaving," a book every boy and girl should read, says: "School-girls are fond of showing uninteresting people a very cold shoulder of civility. I have seen a well-dressed girl of thirteen treat her mother's visitor to a pert 'How do'ye do, Mrs. Clay?' with a turned-up nose and a general air of disdain, while she founced about the room looking for something, that said in a way plainer than words, 'I don't see what people in rusty gowns have to live in this world for!' She had a very sensible mother who merely said, 'We will dispense with your company awhile, Gertrude,' and paid the poor visitor so much attention as to make her forget the rude girl's affront. Miss Gertrude came down when she was gone, eager for a chat, but her mother was iced dignity, and answered in the stiffest, shortest way; she gave the girl a very small saucer of berries for tea; forgot entirely to take her to ride, and settled herself with a magazine to read, instead of being sociable for the evening; in short, snubbed her daughter as thoroughly as Miss Gertrude was fond of snubbing people who did not happen to please her. 'Mamma,' she said at last, with tears in her eyes, for you young ones are so hard and cruel to others, and very tender of your own feelings, 'what does make you treat me so?' Mamma took her time to finish the paragraph that interested her, and said in a freezing way, 'It's because I don't like your style.' Gertrude colored furiously, for, like most girls, she prided herself on being what English people call 'very good form;' that is, her manners and dress are after a nice model. Her mamma went on deliberately, 'My favorites are all people who would not, if they knew it, hurt the feelings of a washer-woman by any slight or hint that they wished her away; and I do dislike the company of half-bred people whose manners are always wearing to rags and letting ill-nature and rudeness peep through.' 'Why, Mamma! to treat your own daughter so because I can't endure that Mrs. Clay who always wears such dowdy bonnets and makes her own dresses so they never look nice, and who is always so particular to tell what bad nights she has, and says, "Gertrude's growing quite a girl," as if I was wearing short clothes and baby sashes!' This came out with a burst of indignation.

"It is very disagreeable to find one's own daughter such a badly bred child," said that terrible mother calmly. 'If Mrs. Clay does wear cotton velvet trimmings on her dress, and talk in a homely way, she knows how to be kind to others and how to treat them, which is more than all your advantages have been able to teach you. I wish you to understand that every shabby, ill-looking creature in the world has just as good a right and cause for attention as you, with your style, as you are pleased to call it. And if you don't know that everybody is your equal in right to civility, you have not learned enough to allow you to appear abroad; I shall leave you at home and not admit you to company till you can carry yourself better.' It was a severe lesson, but it vastly improved Gertrude, who, from an intolerable, pert creature, became a pleasant companion when she learned not to look people over from head to foot, to see if they were worth her civility."—Childhood: Its Care and Culture.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. MARGARET HICKS, of Deep Creek, Montana, desires your faith and prayers in behalf of her husband who was hurt internally by a fall.

Sr. Nettie I. Heaveney, of Piper City, Illinois, earnestly asks the faith and prayers of the Prayer Union in behalf of her father that he may be healed. The doctors say, "nothing can be done for him," but she adds "we know that there is a higher power than any earthly power, and in God we trust. Pray that he may be healed and that he may obey the gospel, and that his recovery may redound to the honor and glory of God."

A sister earnestly desires the prayers of the Union that the Lord may open the way for her that her life and whole time may be spent with and for the people of God. She has been spoken to in prophecy, and desires, if the Lord has anything for her to do, that he will make her duty plain to her, and open the way. She is not seeking to do great things, but only to know the will of God, and her desire is to spend her life and time in this gospel. Pray that her faith and faithfulness may be increased.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOUGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

THE time for the annual reunions of the saints is even now here. Some of them are come and passed, others now in progress, while still others are being prepared for. We trust no district superintendent will permit any opportunity to do Sunday school work at these reunions pass unoccupied. There can be no better place found to plant the Sunday school work and train up workers. Will you be there at your post of duty?

It will be necessary to make previous preparation for the work in order that the best results may accrue. This is the duty of the superintendents of the districts interested in the reunion, unless there has been a special committee appointed to prepare for the work. And even in that case he is not entirely released. Do not wait for the officers of the General Association to plan your work or to appoint you to see to it. They are willing to aid you in any way they can, but cannot well attend to these matters alone. This is the work of the district officers. Let the Sunday school work be represented at every reunion of the saints in 1898.

INSTITUTE work is being taken up by several districts. The Northeastern Illinois district and the Kewanee, Illinois, district have each arranged to hold an institute in September. Other districts are soon to follow. Drop in line if not already there and hold a two-days' institute about once in the year. It will improve your work perceptibly.

ACTIVITY.

(From the Kewanee, Illinois, district convention.)

"Keep pushing! 'Tis wiser
Than sitting aside, and sighing,
And watching and waiting the tide.
In life's earnest battle,
They only prevail,
Who daily march onward,
And never say fail."

In this progressive age he who is ill-equipped for the battles of life should examine himself closely, and see what is wanting. The man who is burdened with an inactive mind is in a more alarming condition than the one who is physically lazy.

We oftentimes speak of the great band of Christian workers as the army of the Lord. Have we any sleeping soldiers in this army? If so, it is high time to arise, and shake off the lethargy, with which the Evil One has covered us. The fate of those who have shirked duty in the great conflicts of the world has been instant death. What reward awaits the drone in God's army? "As we sow, so also shall we reap." The farmer who would sit idly by and watch his neighbor toiling to earn his daily bread and expect to enjoy the fruits of that neighbor's industry, would be considered an indolent fellow indeed. Will not God likewise judge the inactive ones in his husbandry?

If we expect an inheritance in his celestial kingdom we must work to attain that reward. Hence, activity is life, to cease to act is to cease to live. We cannot conceive of any organization attaining success without wise, earnest action.

What a vast difference in the words "success" and "failure." What joy is derived from the one; what chagrin the other brings.

Our organization is in the race, shall we succeed or fail? The result may be traced back to activity or otherwise. It only takes a thought to confirm our belief in the fact that inactivity is one of the main strongholds that Satan has to bind in submission and bring to failure the works of the good.

Jesus said: "My Father worked hitherto, and I work." Shall we as his children suppose to do otherwise? No; for as we are surrounded by the wonderful works of God, let us partake of their divine influence, and put forth our efforts to bring about the result of a live organization, so that naught for the benefit of the organization will escape our attention.

This appears the only true course to pursue. As we all look to the end with fond anticipation of success, joy, and victory, our realizations will become only complete through all being actively engaged in that which falls in our way as opportunities. To see the spirit of activity that was manifested at our late General Conference was soul-inspiring. Mere boys behind the sacred desk, telling the beautiful gospel story in a bold and fearless manner.

Sunday school workers, young and old, gathered at the early hour of eight o'clock in the morning to acquire new thoughts, and impart knowledge to the weaker ones.

May God bless, uphold, and sustain all who are trying to work in his vineyard. Though at times the spirit weakens, and the trials of this life seem almost unbearable, yet with the poet the faithful can say, when his work is finished:—

"Here I lay my burdens down, Change the cross into the crown."

NELLIE EPPERLY.

Letter Department.

SAUBLE FALLS, Ont., July 28.

Editors Herald:—The work in my field is still in a progressive state. Am at present laboring in new country, where many never heard the name Latter Day Saint. Am about fifty miles from any branch and ten miles from any saint.

Started here about four weeks ago, and have had big turnouts; not so many at present. Am also conducting meetings about four and a half miles from here, so that I am kept busy each evening. Am feeling bright in the work, though at times sadness has crept over me when I see the stiff-neckedness and hard-heartedness of the people. However, some are anxious to hear our gospel. I am, of course, living among strangers continually, and let me bear solemn testimony that God has never yet let me go hungry or naked.

After preaching the first night here, there were half a dozen people who were willing to throw open their houses for me to stay in. I came here taking no thought where I would stay, and took the stand, and am taking it, endeavoring not to take thought beforehand what I shall speak on, and truly God is true to his word.

Am purposing to strike into an adjoining new field shortly, where they have a famine for hearing the word of God. In this mode of warfare I feel the need of a fellow missionary. Surely God made no mistake when he commanded his ministry to go two and two. I believe that greater good would be done if the church would stay by the word of the Lord and send her servants as God directs. Going in that manner there is a greater concentration of power, a mutual encouragement to those servants struggling in the darkness of sectarian bigoted hatred. There is moreover a stronger impression on the minds of the community where they preach. A great many saints find fault with our missionaries because they love to hang around the branches, but if those saints would be in a missionary position, away from home and loved ones and then strike out in the fields of unbelief, wickedness, blind prejudice, and idolatry, they would feel for that servant. Let the church be not over-grasping in her endeavor to spread out the missionaries, but send them out as saith the law, and I believe we will see more new fields opened up, while branches will be left to the care of those men whom God designs to care for them; viz., the branch officers. Is it not well to preach "thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein." I am one for returning to the "old way" of sending out missionaries, and when we do what God commands he is bound to bless us, as his word says. Am sorry that the proposition of Bro. J. A. Grant regarding the sending of missionaries two by two, did not receive greater recognition at our late General Conference. We shall live in hopes, however, of seeing a complete return to our Father's counsel.

Yours in bonds,

DANIEL MACGREGOR.

BLENCOE, Iowa, Aug. 1.

Editors Herald:—The tent services at Sandy Point were concluded a week ago yesterday, leaving a very favorable impression upon the majority of the residents towards the faith; two being baptized. On account of giving our reasons for observing the first day of the week as the day of worship, some of the Seventh-day Adventists became somewhat stirred up, but could give no reasons why our arguments did not justify us in so doing, and seemed to be converted to the idea that they could retain their faith better by being absent.

The United Brethren minister seemed to feel real badly because I answered the request of one of the attendants at our service to explain the contradictions found in the New Testament concerning the account of the thieves and in connection therewith showed the superiority of the Inspired Translation as a translation of the Bible. He charged me with exposing the contradictions in the Bible unnecessarily and by so doing made infidels, but three came to me and asserted the explanations given had been of great benefit to them, in removing a stumbling-block to their belief in God's word, one of whom expressed it before the minister to his discomfiture. He further urged that by accepting the "Joe Smith Bible," as he was pleased to call it, we were putting man's work instead of God's work; but I told him his mistake, for it was he who would rather trust in man's work, that which did not claim any inspiration about it so far as the translation was concerned, instead of a translation that showed its superiority, and claimed to have been made assisted by the Lord's Spirit. He also claimed that I was exposing the "blunders found in God's word;" but I told him kindly that I had been showing that these blunders were not a part of God's word, but a part of the evidences that man alone had done the work; that while he was charging God with making the blunders, I was showing the people that God made no blunders, and placing the charge of blundering where it belongs, either with the transcribers, translators, or publishers—with man.

For the kindness of Bro. John Pratt, who bore the burden of caring for us, and Bro. A. Hite and Joseph Merchant, who brought the tent and assisted in erecting it, we are especially indebted. Bro. Frank Case kindly brought us to this place, where we began services last Tuesday eve, with an attendance of about forty, since which time there has been an attendance of from fifty to two hundred; have had at least one hundred out three different services. We remain here this week, expecting to leave the people generally free from the prejudices of the past to a large extent, much of it being already removed.

Brn. H. Case and R. Chambers are working into tent work excellently. Sr. Case has been rendering very acceptable service as organist. Sr. Emma Hogue and her hospitable husband, who is not a member of any church, have borne the burden of caring for us while here.

With faith in the ultimate triumph of God's work.

Your brother and friend,
J. F. MINTUN.

GREENEVILLE, Conn., July 17.

Editors Herald:—As the warm days of July are going by, the question comes to my mind, and has often come since joining the church, is it displeasing to God for the saints to eat meat these summer days if they have an abundance of wheat, milk, butter, fruit, etc.? Doctrine and Covenants 86 says: "It is pleasing unto me that they [beasts and fowls] should not be used only in times of winter, or of cold, or famine." If it is pleasing that we abstain from the flesh of beasts and birds, would fish, oysters, etc., be included as they are not mentioned in the connection?

If one saint keeps all the commands and sayings of this section, and another saint keeps all, just the same, except that he eats meat at any and all times of the year, is the saint who so gratifies his appetite entitled to the same blessings of wisdom and knowledge and the destroying angel passing by, etc., as the other?

If God is pleased if we so abstain, would it be reasonable to say that he is displeased if we fail to abstain?

If God is displeased by some act of ours that we might have avoided, is it sin to so displease him?

If so doing things that we know God has said would be pleasing to him that we should not do them is sin, would the losing of the blessings that are to be received by those who observe to keep all the sayings, etc., be counted as a punishment to him who fails to keep these sayings?

These questions come pretty close to the inner man, as we had some nice steak for dinner and I was a little afraid to partake of it. Yet I suppose I do many things displeasing to my heavenly Father, even more than eating meat in summer; but Christ said "these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone."

There are seven saints here, all dwelling under one roof. We are striving to keep the law of the Lord, which is perfect, converting the soul. I removed to this place from Providence, Rhode Island, where I had made my home for the past two years, being directed to this place through prophecy in answer to prayer. We have a little Sunday school here, of which your correspondent is the superintendent. We also have prayer meetings on Sundays and Wednesdays. These are led by Bro. Arthur B. Phillips who recently moved to this place from Boston. We hope to be able to do some good among our neighbors, and we realize that we must live our religion.

Your brother in Christ,
F. G. WHIPPLE.

KAITANGATA, New Zealand, July 4.

Editors Herald:—We are still striving to keep in the faith. I feel to thank our Father for being so good to me to restore me to health and strength after the sad accident, by which I had both legs broken and other injuries. I thought the end had come, but God in his mercy saw fit to restore me to be able to bear my testimony to his wonderful work here again; for it is a wonder to the people to see me here, but God moves in a mysterious way.

We bear our testimony to all we can of the gospel; it is the power of God to all who will believe. It is good to be a saint in latter days. We have opened our house to let the people hear the word of God, but it is slow work; we want to be in some hall. We can get a good hearing; the people will turn out to hear in a hall, but not in a private house. As soon as our ministry comes we can work for the Lord; we will share our home with them. It will take work to get at the people. Some of them now can see we have more of the word of God than they, and they tell me so; but there is a stumbling-block in the way of a living prophet.

We have many friends here, and hope to see them come into the fold in time. It is better here than in New South Wales for the work, for the people are more inclined to spiritual matters. We work and pray till help comes. May God bless you all in the work of the Lord, and that help may soon come to us in this far-off land, we pray; and for all in the field. The harvest is ripe, the field great, and few in it; but we know the Master has his care over all.

We many times have the Spirit of the Master with us when telling the gospel story. They can see the difference between us and the Salt Lake people. I see they have eight more of their elders in the north island. They have very few on this island, and they are the natives. We have not had any of them here yet, but expect to see them soon. Some are not far from here. Would like to see them come, for it would give me a chance to show the people the difference better; but we pray for them that the Lord may lead many of them to the fold.

Your brother, in love,
THOMAS DIXON.

WOODBINE, Iowa, July 29.

Editors Herald:—It may be of interest to know of the labors of the ministry, and as one of the servants of the church, I submit a brief report.

Since General Conference I have labored in Little Sioux and Galland's Grove districts, preaching as opportunity offered, sometimes to fair-sized and attentive audiences, and sometimes to rather slim ones. But I have no glowing report to give. I find good earnest saints in every branch, judging by their works, and I find some that seem to be asleep. I find among outsiders some who listen to the truth and others who seem to have no desire for it; but I scatter the seed broadcast and leave the result with them and God.

I confess that I fail to see the burning desire for the truth that some see. Many confess that we have the truth, but they stop there and put off obedience until "a more convenient season." It may be that the seed will some day spring up and bear fruit. It is written "In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not whether shall prosper either this or that, or whether both shall be alike good."

Among other places I visited Galland's Grove. There seemed to be an abiding faith in the saints. The old veterans are passing away, but the younger generation seem to be coming into line and taking up the burden of the work both in the church and the Sunday school, and a minister can almost always be sure of a large and attentive audience there. At Dow City I had the pleasure of assisting Elder Benan Salisbury in a two-days' meeting there. The attendance was not as large as I had expected, but very attentive and, I believe, appreciative. A good many years ago it is said the above brother was taking one of our elders to preach in Calhoun County, Iowa. It was a cold wintry day, but he had a fine span of horses that he valued at five hundred dollars, and he said to the elder, "If you will make me as good a preacher as you are I will give you that span of horses." (He was not in the church then.) The elder replied, "I am not around making preachers; that is God's work." Bro. Salisbury is a very fair preacher to-day. I was not informed as to whether he gave the Lord that span of horses or not, but he is a very earnest and devoted man, and gives a good deal of his time to the ministry. When the Lord works who can hinder?

On the 9th of this month I had the pleasure of assisting Elder James Baker, of Dow City, in a ten-days' meeting at Benan, Carroll County, Iowa. Considering the fact that everybody was busy in the harvest fields during the week, we had fair attendance every night, and each Sunday we had very large attendance from the various towns around. Some estimated the numbers at one thousand. It was in a beautiful grove belonging to Bro. Salisbury. We had beautiful weather and splendid attention, and leading minds of other churches expressed their surprise at the glorious truths presented, and wondered that they had never seen those truths before. Bro. Baker was greatly blessed in his efforts to make plain the gospel plan. He is humble, studious, and diligent in his research for truth, and has the confidence of all who know him. Bro. Whiting lent a willing hand on the first Sunday. He loves the truth and does his best to promote it. We closed on the night of the 16th and hope our labor was not in vain. We were kindly treated by all the saints, but made our home with Bro. and Sr. Ether Salisbury, who made us abundantly welcome to their home and comforts. I forgot to say I had the pleasure of a brief interview with Bro. George Hilliard, at Dow City. He was busy on the King's business.

Yours for truth,
CHARLES DERRY.

PARISH, Ill., Aug. 2.

Editors Herald:—Our reunion (in the South-eastern Illinois district) closed Sunday night with the largest attendance we had been favored with from the beginning. The attendance was not large during day services, but we had quite a large attendance at nights. The outsider became interested at the beginning and the interest increased till the close. Only four were baptized, but a number are believing the gospel and so expressed themselves. A mountain of prejudice must have been removed if we can judge by the kind and courteous treatment given our people.

Elders I. N. White, of the Twelve, G. H. Hilliard, of the Bishopric, George Jenkins and R. T. Walters, of the Seventy, and out of our district—were with us and rendered us valuable assistance. Brn. Walters and Jenkins have returned to their fields of labor, while Brn. Hilliard and White will visit a few of the branches before leaving the district.

The writer moved over about ten miles to the east and commenced a meeting last night to a full house. After the sermon invitations were given the preacher to come to the neighboring schoolhouse and preach as long as we wanted. A Baptist preacher in attendance wants us to come to a grove where he has an arbor erected and fitted up for preaching, and occupy. We will remain at this place over Friday, then return to the saints' church on the reunion grounds Saturday evening, in company with W. R. Smith, and continue the meetings as long as there is interest.

Faithfully yours,
J. D. STEAD.

LEOTI, Kan., July 24.

Editors Herald:—This writing finds me not able to walk, an affliction I have been bothered with for many years by spells. Still I rejoice so much in the good work of the Master. The Herald is my friend here, so far from saints. I am very poor, but don't see how I could get along without it. It is freighted with much good news.

When I read what the brother had to say of our General Conference in regard to Old Glory, I wondered how he could feel as he did. Our church is to be of all nations, kindreds, and tongues, to become one people. All that are represented here are expected to come under the Stars and Stripes, the banner of liberty. I am glad she was unfurled there and then. It shows our love for God and liberty, our love for Christ so unbounded. Every church in the land can wave it. I am sure all nationalities were there, and their voices ascended to a throne of grace for liberty. I felt that the great battle now going on is to open the way for this gospel that we love so much to be preached to every nation and tongue. It is a preparation for us. And with the debates it is the same. A long time ago there appeared an article in the Herald, that they would not debate with Braden again. I prayed they would. I felt that he was an instrument in God's hand to open the way for the honest in heart. So it is with all other debates. Press on brothers, God is at the helm.

I will speak for all. I am sure you will say yes! that we do so much appreciate Sister Burton's letters. The only thing I miss is that there are not more of them; so with all the rest. Dear sisters that are poor, don't keep your children from church because they are not dressed finely, but do the best you can. There is plenty for all. Let those who have plenty lend a helping hand to supply the wants of the needy. There is an abundance in some attics for all. I wish I could go, but there are no saints here. I have never heard a saint preach since Bro. Joseph Smith, at Lamoni, most twelve years ago. I have never been able to pay their way here; none have come so far. I wrote to Bro. Gillen to come this way to Denver. I suppose he had to go the other way through his field or he surely would have come. He used to be at our place often while we went to the Thompson schoolhouse there (near Lamoni).

Your sister,
MRS. MARY E. TURNER.

SAN JOSE, Cal., July 23.

Editors Herald:—We have a nice little branch of over thirty-five members. The record shows more, but some have moved away. All seem to be very zealous for the cause of Zion, trying to do all they can. We have had Bro. E. E. Keeler with us, and he has done much good, strengthening and refreshing our understanding. He tried very hard to get an interest among outsiders. They would come and hear for several times and seemed to be much interested, but just as soon as they began to see the point they stopped coming.

This is a very difficult place to get an audience; the town is preached to death by the different sects. The four prominent corners of the streets are occupied by first one party and then another, with the Brighamites as a side issue. After the rest all leave the infidels take the place.

We were very sorry when Bro. Keeler left, but he felt as though he could not do more good here at present. In fact, he was writing to a number of different places, but could get no encouragement to go; but we needed him here and I am sure there is none but what was benefited by his teaching.

This is a bad year in California; fruit, and in fact all kinds of crops, are very light on account of the drought. Hay is twenty dollars per ton; the fruit is dropping off before it is half grown; the city water supply is failing, and many wells are dry. People are beginning to fear a water famine. It has not rained like it used to for two years; that is, a sufficient amount. This year the ground was not wet down more than four or five inches. When the fruit fails everything is at a standstill. Thousands of men, women, and children depend entirely on fruit work for their living. The future looks very gloomy for them. But Oh! the fruit growers have oppressed them in their wages and have been so greedy of accumulating wealth, what else can they expect?

Ever hoping and praying for the cause of Zion, JENNIE JACKSON.

CENTER CHAIN, Minn., August 1.

Editors Herald:—After almost three months away from home I will try and inform you as to the work in this part of the Lord's vineyard. On my way to this field of labor I stopped over Sunday at my old home, Eagle Grove, Iowa, May 8, where I preached morning and evening to quite a number with good attention; baptized one on the same date, blessed some children, and administered to the sick. This work was by request and permission of Bro. C. Scott, being in his district.

I left the saints there feeling well and hopeful in this great latter-day work, and on May 12 took train for Hills, Minnesota, arriving on the 13th, and found the saints striving to do their duties as far as they could in the circumstances in which they are placed; no branch as yet, but hope there soon will be one. Continued labor in that county until July 13, in various places, with small attendance as a rule, due perhaps to the busy time of year and the saints being mostly farmers, and all the halls and churches in town occupied, and especially so when it was realized we were there to hold meetings. We continued to hold meetings in schoolhouses and dwelling houses and tried to do the best we could according to the privileges we had. As a result of our labor three were baptized at Hills, one at Magnolia, and more seemed to be willing to obey in the near future, and did so express themselves to me. I hope the good Spirit may continue to strive with them until they may see the necessity of complying with the law that will make us free indeed.

According to arrangements with Bro. John Taplin at Center Chain, I arrived here July 18. This place is out ten miles from railroad towns. The people seem to manifest an interest in hearing the restored gospel. They seem to have quite a respect for our claims, Bro. Roberts having been here some years ago and left a lasting impression with the people. From present indications there will be work here for some time to come. People turn out week night's eve in harvest, some inquiring how soon I am going away. People of all denominational shades and colors attend our meetings. The farmers are rejoicing over an abundant harvest of all kinds of grain and I also hope they may have reason to rejoice over something more lasting before the year expires.

In my labors I have felt that the Lord has been mindful of my weakness and has supplied the needs, to our joy and satisfaction. I shall try and struggle on, trusting in him who is a helper in time of need, and ever praying for the accomplishment of his work. The people have supplied me liberally with means to travel from place to place. May the Lord reward them abundantly for their kindness. I remain a colaborer, ELI HAYER.

Original Articles.

THE SLEEPING TIME AND MIDNIGHT CRY.

I HAVE been reading Bro. Hilliard's article, "The Sleeping Time and Midnight Cry," and cannot understand or harmonize the theory with the word; and as the word says, "Ask and ye shall receive," I do so; for wisdom, not for controversy. That "man child," and "church in the wilderness," doctrine, has always puzzled me.

Now, I have understood the teaching of this church to be that the kingdom of God and the church militant are the same; and that Christ organized and brought into existence the church or kingdom in what is known, as the "meridian of time," and that that church completely apostatized. Bro. Williams so argues in his recent debate, as do all the rest of us, that the entire church left or departed from the faith, and that as a consequence, God withdrew his Spirit and all authority from it. Now, if God did take all authority from it, there was no church left, no church to go into the wilderness. On the other hand, if he did not take all authority from it, it continued, and could have gone into the wilderness, and probably did; and all this talk about, restoring the priesthood is wind, and our claim for an entire apostasy untrue; for what is the church but a body of people having authority to act in the name of the King? Take away that right and there could be no church. If the "man child" is the priesthood—as some claim—how could it be caught up to heaven and the church remain to go into the wilderness or anywhere else? Or, if as the Inspired Translation says, it was the "Church of God, kingdom of God and his Christ," What was it that did all this? The "woman," it says; and what is the woman? The "church," we are told; so we have the church bringing forth the church, which church brought Christ, and then the idea that Christ brought the church.

Another point in Bro. Hilliard's application of this parable is, he has it to begin to go into effect at the time it was spoken, or as soon as the church began to go into apostasy; but it seems to me to relate entirely to the end, to have reference to Christ's coming, and is in answer to the question asked him (Matthew 24) as to what would be the sign of his coming, which was asked him privately on the mount; then follow all those statements in chapter 24 and continued in chapter 25, "Then," at that time when he comes, "shall the kingdom of heaven"—no reference is here made to the world, but to his church—which would be as described, like unto ten virgins. But the above parable does not trouble me, as I have it arranged so it suits me anyway; but not so with that "church in the wilderness" business. I see it rather dimly. Turn on the light.

Yours desiring more light,

HIRAM L. HOLT.

DRAIN, Oregon, June 9, 1898.

SANCTIFICATION.

I DESIRE to present a few thoughts on the above subject, for the benefit of those who may desire to attain to this condition. The principal meaning of the word "sanctify" is to "make holy"; hence, sanctification is the act of sanctifying or making holy; the act of "consecrating," or of "setting apart" for a sacred purpose; consecration. This condition is certainly very desirable, and if all could reach it we would have heaven on earth. And this evidently will be the final condition when the children of men reach the sphere that God designs they should, and that Jesus taught his disciples to pray for: "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven." God being holy, he can desire nothing less than to see all his children reach the same condition. And after man fell from his sinless state, in the garden of Eden, it was not in his power to regain it again of himself. He had violated the command of God; and justice being one of God's attributes, must be satisfied, or mercy could not be extended to the creature.

God foreseeing that man would fall, had provided the necessary means for his redemption in the person of Jesus Christ. Christ being with the Father before the world was, and being one with him in the work of creation, being sinless and pure, proposed to come to this world, take upon him man's nature, and give himself a ransom for man, and thereby satisfy the justice of God; that man might again be brought back into his presence God accepted Christ's offer; hence the statement that Christ was as a lamb slain from the foundation of the world. Justice now being satisfied, man was again innocent before God; Adam's sin not being imputed unto his offspring, although they partook of his fallen nature.

When man was in the garden of Eden, before he transgressed, he had access to the tree of life we are told, and by this means his life was perpetuated. But when he yielded to temptation and fell, he was debarred from this privilege, and was put out of the garden of Eden, from the tree of life, and was separated from God, hence became spiritually dead; this was the first death.

Then physical death followed as a natural consequence. Man having yielded to temptation, and becoming subject to the adversary, and being cast out, where he was surrounded with evil, and having the right to act for himself, or his agency given to him; if he chose to do evil or wrong, and did do wrong, he would again become sinful; and would need some means provided to relieve him from that condition. Christ knowing the condition that man was placed in, and knowing what he would do, made provision for this; and after satisfying the demands of justice, in the case of original sin, gave a law by which man could be made free from actual sins that he might commit. This law is called the gospel; the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes and obeys it. This then becomes the means by which mankind may be made free from actual sin, and become holy, attain to a state of sanctification, and by this means prepared to again abide in the presence of God. This gospel of Jesus Christ being the only means provided by which man can be made holy, and it being given in the form of law, it is called "The law of the spirit of life," and is the means by which men are made free from sin. Hence Paul says:—

For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.—Romans 8: 2.

It is called the truth:—

Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth.—Ps. 119: 142.

The commandments of God are also called truth:—

Thou art near, O Lord; and all thy commandments are truth.—Ps. 119: 151.

This law of truth then is the means God has provided for the sanctification of his children. Hence Christ in praying to his Father for his disciples, as recorded in John 17: 17 says, "Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth." The only way this law could accomplish their sanctification would be by their living in harmony with its provisions. This to my mind precludes the idea that men are instantly sanctified by the operation of the Spirit of God upon them. By the Spirit they receive strength and grace to enable them to keep the law; and by the law they are sanctified; that is, by keeping the law. So far as we know God works by law. We see in nature all things that we can comprehend come into being, grow, develop, and become perfected, each in its sphere, by means of certain laws ordained for that purpose; and as man physically is no exception to this rule, we have no reason to think he is spiritually. We believe, therefore, that the law of the Spirit of life is as necessary for man's spiritual development and perfection as the natural law of life is for his natural development and perfection. This is made very plain in God's word to us. The Lord says of this earth:—

Therefore, it must needs be sanctified from all unrighteousness, that it may be prepared for the celestial glory; for after it hath filled the measure of its creation, it shall be crowned with glory, even with the presence of God the Father; that bodies who are of the celestial kingdom may possess it forever and ever; for, for this intent was it made and created; and for this intent are they sanctified through the law which I have given unto you, even the law of Christ, must inherit another kingdom, even that of a terrestrial kingdom, or that of a telestial kingdom. For he who is not able to abide the law of a celestial kingdom, cannot abide a celestial glory.—D. C. 85: 4, 5.

From the above statement we learn that not only man must be sanctified, but also this earth on which we dwell, As the earth was made for the abode of man, we would naturally suppose it would be suited to his condition of life. And when man fell by transgression, and brought the curse of sin upon himself, the earth was also cursed by sin being brought upon it. And as the curse is to be removed from man, and man to become sanctified by keeping God's law, so the earth is to be sanctified and prepared for the abode of man in his glorified condition. Now as we learn that man by the violation of God's law brought the curse upon the earth as well as upon himself, so we are told in God's word that by man keeping the law of God on the earth the land shall become sanctified.

In section 106, Doctrine and Covenants, where the Lord tells his people how they should observe the law of tithing, he then says:—

And I say unto you, if my people observe not this law, to keep it holy, and by this law sanctify the land of Zion unto me, that my statutes and my judgments may be kept thereon, that it may be most holy, behold, verily I say unto you, It shall not be a land of Zion unto you.

We believe the time is at hand when the law as contained in this section should be kept; and by so doing we would be entitled to the fullness of God's blessing, as promised in his law; and until we do comply with it, we may not expect it. The only way we can attain to the condition desired is to do as Jesus said, "live by every word" "that proceedeth from the mouth of God." And until the saints are willing to do this they need not expect what is promised the faithful children of God. We must not conclude that obeying the first principles of the gospel is all that is required of us, but we must go on to perfection. And to enable us to accomplish this work, we not only have the law given to us, but we have men called of God and set in the church to teach the law, and by this means perfect the saints. Those men called as teachers should endeavor to teach by example as well as precept; and if a man does not do this, he is not keeping faithfully his covenant. For every one that obeys the first principles of the gospel pledges himself in that act to do God's will. His will is revealed in his law, hence they promise to keep the law. And in order to do this it will be necessary to have the aid of God's Holy Spirit; and if by disobedience we grieve the Spirit it will not abide with us.

When the Son of God took upon him man's nature he kept the law of his Father. And that he might do this the Prophet Isaiah said:—

Butter and honey shall he eat, that he may know to refuse the evil, and choose the good.—Isa. 7: 15.

If it was necessary for the Son of God to live in a certain way, and eat certain kinds of food, that he might know to refuse the evil and choose the good, would it not be more necessary for man that has the weaknesses of an earthly father, as well as of a mother, transmitted to him, to eat certain kinds of food and live in the manner God has prescribed for him, that he may have this knowledge? And is it reasonable to suppose that man can accomplish the purpose that God intended, and have the wisdom and knowledge essential for the accomplishment of that work, if he does not live in harmony with the instruction God has given him? We think not. And this may account in part, at least, for the condition we find ourselves in at times when we need spiritual light and do not receive it. It is unreasonable to suppose that God would give a command in his law to set certain men apart to certain offices in his church, to perform certain work, and then leave them without a proper understanding of the duties of those offices and the work to be performed, if they place themselves in proper condition to receive the information. Hence it is as necessary to live as the Lord has told us, so that the wisdom and knowledge essential to the accomplishment of this work may be received, as it is to obey the first principles of the gospel; for all that has been given of God to us is necessary to accomplish his purpose, else he would not have given it; and to claim that it is not binding on us to live by every word God has given, is to contradict him and become a law unto ourselves. The Lord says, "When you do what I say, then I am bound; but when you do not what I say, you have no promise." And in Doctrine and Covenants, 95: 3, the Lord says:—

And I give unto you a commandment, that ye shall forsake all evil and cleave unto all good, that ye shall live by every word which proceedeth forth out of the mouth of God; . . . and I will try you, and prove you herewith.

All that had been given to the church prior to this time, August, 1833, as well as what should be given afterwards must be observed; for he says, ye shall live by every word.

In section 86: 3, the Lord says:—

And all saints who remember to keep and do these sayings [given in this section], walking in obedience to the commandments, shall receive health in their navel, and marrow to their bones, and shall find wisdom and great treasures of knowledge, even hidden treasures; and shall run and not be weary, and shall walk and not faint; and I, the Lord, give unto them a promise that the destroying angel shall pass by them, as the children of Israel, and not slay them. Amen.

It appears very inconsistent to disregard the instruction given in this "word of wisdom" to keep the commandments and live as herein directed, and then, when sick, to call on the Lord to heal us, and ask him to give us wisdom and knowledge, when we have refused to live as he has told us in order to receive it. Consistency ought to be found among the people of God, if nowhere else. And yet we have had the painful experience of hearing it expressed in public and in private, "that we must not eat any other than wheat bread, if we kept the word of wisdom," when the plain reading is: "All grain is good for the food of man." I hope all may learn to be more consistent than to make such statements, and remember that it has been written that "my people perish for lack of knowledge." As the law of Christ is the means by which our sanctification is to be accomplished and final salvation in the celestial kingdom secured, we should endeavor to understand and keep the whole law. It will require a strict self-denial of everything that is out of harmony with God's will. Our passions must be controlled, our appetites governed, our pride and vanity overcome, covetousness and greed laid aside, our love for God and his children increased, so that we may be willing and ready to impart of our earthly goods for the benefit of the worthy poor, and make every sacrifice required at our hands for the building up of Zion. For the Lord has said his church must be pure before him. In section 87: 8, it is written, "that I, the Lord, will contend with Zion and plead with her strong ones, and chasten her, until she overcomes and is clean before me; for she shall not be removed out of her place. I, the Lord, have spoken it. Amen." And further on in section 102: 2:—

Behold, I say unto you, Were it not for the transgressions of my people, speaking concerning the church and not individuals, they might have been redeemed even now; but, behold, they have not learned to be obedient to the things which I require at their hands, but are full of all manner of evil, and do not impart of their substance, as becometh saints, to the poor and afflicted among them, and are not united according to the union required by the law of the celestial kingdom; and Zion cannot be built up unless it is by the principles of the law of the celestial kingdom, otherwise I cannot receive her unto myself; and my people must needs be chastened until they learn obedience, if it must needs be, by the things which they suffer.

The same law is still in force, and applies to us with all the force it did to the church when the above was written. We read in section 122: 6:—

And further the Spirit saith unto you, that "with the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as a day;" therefore, the law given to the church in section forty-two, over the meaning of some parts of which there has been so much controversy, is as if it were given to-day; and the bishop and his counselors, and the high council, and the bishop and his council, and the storehouse and the temple and the salvation of my people, are the same to me now that they were in that day when I gave the revelation.

And in section 42: 8:—

If thou lovest me, thou shalt serve me and keep all my commandments. And, behold, thou wilt remember the poor, and consecrate of thy properties for their support, that which thou hast to impart unto them, with a covenant and a deed which cannot be broken; and inasmuch as ye impart of your substance unto the poor, ye will do it unto me, and they shall be laid before the bishop of my church and his counselors, two of the elders, or high priests, such as he shall or has appointed and set apart for that purpose.

This law being renewed or confirmed to us, and made binding, as in the day when it was given, seems to make our duty plain. As the revelation given in 1873, section 117: 11, says:—

It is not expedient in me that there shall be any stakes appointed until I command my people. When it shall be necessary I will command that they be established. Let my commandments to gather into the regions round about, and the counsel of the elders of my church guide in this matter until it shall be otherwise given of me.

It is the duty of the saints to gather into the regions round about Zion (Independence), and buy up land and establish branches of the church, living in harmony with the law of Christ—the law of the celestial kingdom.

Therefore, a commandment I give unto all the churches that they shall continue to gather together unto the places which I have appointed; nevertheless, as I have said unto you in a former commandment, let not your gathering be in haste, nor by flight; but let all things be prepared before you; and in order that all things be prepared before you, observe the commandments which I have given concerning these things, which saith, or teacheth, to purchase all the lands by money, which can be purchased for money, in the region round about the land which I have appointed to be the land of Zion, for the beginning of the gathering of my saints; all the land which can be purchased in Jackson County, and the counties round about, and leave the residue in mine hand.

Now, verily I say unto you, Let all the churches gather together all their moneys; let these things be done in their time, be not in haste; and observe to have all things prepared before you. And let honorable men be appointed, even wise men, and send them to purchase these lands; and every church in the eastern countries, when they are built up, if they will hearken unto this counsel, they may buy lands and gather together upon them, and in this way they may establish Zion.—D. C. 98: 9, 10.

The law as given in the beginning being now in force, and as the Lord has said to the Reorganization, "Let my commandments to gather into the regions round about, and the counsel of the elders of my church guide in this matter, until it shall be otherwise given of me"; this makes it our duty clearly to gather into the regions round about; and any counsel to the contrary would be in opposition to this revelation. This instruction should now be faithfully carried out as fast as preparation could be made, and then live in harmony with the laws of equality, as taught in the books; and in this way overcome our selfishness, and show our love in a practical way, working for the good of all, for God is no respecter of persons.

In section 38: 5, 6, we find the following instructions:—

And again I say unto you, Let every man esteem his brother as himself: for what man among you having twelve sons, and is no respecter to them, and they serve him obediently, and he saith unto the one, Be thou clothed in robes and sit thou here; and to the other, Be thou clothed in rags and sit thou there, and looketh upon his sons and saith, I am just. Behold this I have given unto you a parable, and it is even as I am: I say unto you, Be one; and if ye are not one, ye are not mine.

With this scripture before us, our duty to each other is plain. And it is clear to every one that observes the present condition of the church, that the work of sanctification has not extended very far yet. And while selfishness and speculation reigns, as it now does among brethren of the household of faith, we can make but little progress; and while one brother is willing to receive two or three times as much as another for a living, or family support, it would seem that he had not comprehended the law. And if those that handle and disburse the church funds should permit this inequality, how could they look upon themselves and say, "I am just?" Evidently God designs to treat all alike that serve him obediently. And those that act for God must act like him, or work on the same principle. It seems to me this is an absolute necessity, if we would come up to the standard set by him for us. And in section 114 we are told the means raised by the law of tithing shall not be used "for the purposes of self-aggrandizement by anyone, be he whomsoever he may be." And if one man with a family of two or three grown children going to school a part of the time can get along on twenty-five dollars per month, and support his wife and children respectably, it should not take fifty or seventy-five dollars per month for another family the same size, living in the same locality, where living costs the same. And if such conditions exist, it is either aggrandizement or wastefulness, and both are wrong and forbidden in God's law. And until equality in these things obtains, according to the needs of each respectively, we may not hope for the church to attain to that high condition God has designed.

In section 77:1 we read that you may be equal in the bands of heavenly things; yea, and earthly things also, for the obtaining of heavenly things; for if ye are not equal in earthly things, ye cannot be equal in obtaining heavenly things; for if you will that I give unto you a place in the celestial world, you must prepare yourselves by doing the things which I have commanded you and required of you.

The celestial world, then, is only to be obtained by doing as commanded, and the command is, "Be ye one," and "live by every word;" "if ye are not one, ye are not mine." Sanctification, then, by keeping the law of Christ, is the only means by which the celestial kingdom can be obtained, individually or collectively; and we should profit by the history of the past. If the church did not "impart of their substance, as becometh saints, to the poor and afflicted among them" in 1834, are we doing our duty in this regard now? I fear we are not. And if it is the duty of the saints to gather into the regions round about Zion, buy land with their moneys, and settle together, forming settlements and branches, is it not time to begin that work in a systematic way, and call upon all saints to turn over all their surplus as "a beginning;" to buy lands, and settle the saints thereon, in the regions round about, and by this means sanctify the land by keeping the law on it? By keeping the whole law the people will be sanctified, Zion built up, the curse removed, and a people prepared for the coming of Christ in glory; for "when the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory." G. H. HILLIARD.

LAMONI, Iowa, May 18, 1898.

INFIDEL ARGUMENTS ANSWERED. NO. 1.

BY C. J. SPURLOCK.

INFIDELS say that India, Greece, Persia, Africa, America, South Sea Islands, Egypt, Central America, Hindostan, China, and Mexico, have all had crucified Saviors. In this article I shall not take issue with infidels about these various nations believing in a tradition of one or more Saviors having been crucified, for in this we agree; but the issue will be on the means by which such traditions were obtained.

The infidels claim of course that the belief that all these countries had crucified Saviors is based in false tradition, and reasoning from this hypothesis, claim that the Bible account of the Savior of the world being crucified in Palestine is also based upon presumption. Now the mere belief that these different countries, as mentioned above, each had a crucified Savior, does not fully establish their claim. But when the evidence of these different countries relative to there having been a Savior crucified is summed up, it makes a very weighty argument, if not an irresistible one, that there has been at some time and place one crucified Savior.

Let the infidel tell us how it happened that these different countries all have like or similar traditions, if there is no truth in those traditions. Do we not learn the history of Greece and Rome by getting a fragment of history here and there relative to their former greatness, and by putting these different fragments together, we have what both Christians and infidels acknowledge to be authentic histories of these countries? If I am properly informed, it was the lawyer Blackstone who said that the strongest evidence that could be made on anything was by different ones in different localities, not previously conversing with each other, yet testifying to the same thing. Now this is just what the nations have done, testifying to the same thing; namely, that a Savior was crucified.

For one the writer is willing to believe the Bible account of the crucifixion. But when we put it with the evidence on this point that is gleaned from those not having the Jewish Bible, it only confirms that evidence. It does not weaken the testimony; it shows that the knowledge of a crucified Savior or Redeemer was at one time universal. And although some of those nations which entertain such belief were at the time of the dissemination of such belief either partially or wholly heathen, yet they handed this story down from generation to generation, till the present time. To prove that the Christians did not borrow the idea of the crucifixion from the heathen, as claimed by the infidel, but that the heathen learned it from the Christian, I shall refer to the Scripture:—

Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come; that Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead.—Acts 26: 22, 23.

And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him.—Acts 17: 26, 27.

And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints.—Jude 1: 14.

Moses . . . esteemed the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt.—Hebrew 11: 24-26.

Had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me; for he wrote of me.—John 5: 46.

And did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them; and that Rock was Christ.—1 Cor. 10: 4.

And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself.—Luke 24: 27.

By a careful perusal and proper consideration of the above scriptures, one may see that the ancient saints who lived thousands of years ago knew of Christ and the plan of salvation, and that they did not learn it from the heathen nations by which they were surrounded.

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN AND NORTHERN INDIANA.

Conference convened with Coldwater branch, Michigan, June 4; S. W. L. Scott district president. E. C. Briggs chairman, S. W. L. Scott to assist, L. Fay secretary. Branch reports: Galien 120; gain 2, loss 1. Knox 42. Marcellus 15. Buchanan 37; loss 2. Grand Rapids 87; gain 7. Clear Lake 153; gain 4, loss 2. Coldwater 123. Samuel Stroh, Bishop's agent, reports: Receipts $591.92; paid out $568.55; on hand last report $20.76; on hand at present $44.13. Elders present: E. C. Briggs, S. W. L. Scott, S. V. Bailey, E. K. Evans, G. A. Smith, H. J. DeVries, E. J. Goodenough, H. C. Bronson, B. Corless, R. Alcott, and W. Reynolds; by letter, W. J. Smith and E. H. Durand. Priests present: G. Corless, S. Stroh, G. F. Weston; by letter, F. Granger and J. Shook. Teacher, D. B. Teeters. S. W. L. Scott was retained as president of district, O. H. Storey secretary. Adjourned to Galien on call of president.

GALLAND'S GROVE.

Conference convened at Deloit, Iowa, June 4; C. E. Butterworth and J. M. Baker presidents, Nellie Rudd clerk. Branches reporting: Benan 46; gain 1. Dow City 106; gain 3, loss 3. Galland's Grove 299; no change. Salem 65; loss 2. Auburn 53; gain 5. Harlan 71; loss 1. Pilot Rock 25; gain 2. Deloit 161; gain 3, loss 3. Elders reporting: G. Montague, W. W. Whiting, D. Brewster, J. T. Turner baptized 1, B. Salisbury baptized 1, R. Wight, W. A. Carroll, J. Pett, C. J. Hunt baptized 2, J. Rudd, J. M. Baker baptized 3, C. E. Butterworth baptized 2, W. McKim baptized 1, A. R. Crippen. Priests: N. V. Sheldon baptized 2, I. McCord, J. Greenwood. Teachers: J. Myers, F. B. Shumate, G. A. Hoisington, T. F. Jones, J. O. Booth. Bishop's agent's report: On hand and received since last report $980.19; paid out $335; balance on hand $645.19. Received for Graceland College, $1.75. Received for tent expenses $2.66. The district president was authorized to consult with the authorities of Little Sioux district in order to obtain their coöperation in regard to locating the reunion for 1899 in the Galland's Grove district. George Montague was ordained High Priest. Three were baptized. Preaching by W. W. Whiting, G. Montague, and C. Derry. Adjourned to Galland's Grove, Iowa, October 29, at ten a. m.

NORTHEASTERN TEXAS AND CHOCTAW.

Conference convened at Shawnee branch, on Shawnee prairie, Texas, July 15. President not being present, Bro. J. W. Jackson called to preside, J. D. Erwin assistant, E. A. Erwin secretary. Branch reports: Manchester 47; loss 10. Shawnee 51; first report since district organized. Standley 154; baptized 5. Wilburton and Coalgate not reported. Ministry reports: Elders J. D. Erwin, J. W. Jackson, J. W. Kent, E. A. Erwin, E. D. Bailey, A. E. Elliott; Priests J. Brannan, J. R. McHenry, B. F. Pollard, W. Dalbey. Teachers: J. T. McClain, S. W. Goodman. No Bishop's agent's report. Clerks of branches to make out reports and have them in the hands of district clerk ten days before each conference convenes; a failure to do so will be sufficient cause for removal. The seventy, elders, and priests to make their report to each conference. The president of this district is requested to visit each branch of the district and see that they are in good working order, and preach and teach. The Bishop's agent to visit the branches and look after the tithing of the church. Preaching by J. W. Jackson, J. W. Kent, J. D. Erwin, E. D. Bailey, and E. A. Erwin. God greatly blessing us with his Spirit in power; we think there is a grand prospect for the spread of the gospel in this country. Adjourned to Wilburton branch, Indian Territory, October 15, at ten a. m.

LONDON.

Conference convened with Vanessa branch, Ontario, June 18-20. R. C. Evans R. C. Longhurst, and J. H. Taylor presidents, Maggie and Daniel MacGregor secretaries. Elders reporting: E. N. Compton, W. Fligg, G. Whitworth, T. A. Phillips, G. Virgin, A. W. Davis, W. Place, R. B. Howlett, G. Lindsay, S. W. Tomlinson, G. C. Tomlinson, R. C. Longhurst, J. McKenzie, J. H. Taylor, M. F. Derby, F. Gregory, D. MacGregor, S. Brown, R. C. Evans. Priests: E. Whitworth, G. Buschlen, A. F. Sherman, A. Wingrove, H. Dickhout, T. R. Seaton, A. Knisley, A. Sinclair. Teacher, A. McMullin. Branch reports: London and St. Thomas returned for correction. St. Marys 52; loss 1. Arthur, organized November 1, 49. Niagara Falls 52; gain 2. Cameron 69. Walsingham Centre 38; loss 3. Cedar Valley 45; loss 1. Toronto 87; gain 17. McKillop 38; gain 3. Humber Bay 19. Garafraxa 98; loss 1. Windham (now changed to Vanessa) 61; gain 2. Corinth 39; loss 2. Osborne 24. Egremont 78; loss 4. Proton 123; loss 3. Stratford 20. Branches

27. Last report 1,601 members, present 1,653. Baptisms 55, received by letter or certificate of baptism 21, removed by letters 20, deaths 4, gain in membership 52. Preaching was in charge of Elders Compton, MacGregor, Evans, and Gregory. The prayer services were particularly spiritual, calling H. Dickhout and T. R. Seaton to the eldership. These ordinations, with those of F. Gregory and D. MacGregor to the office of Seventy were marked by the Spirit in liberty and revelation. Love and harmony existed almost without a jar. A resolution was passed, appointing a collection to be taken up by the different branches, for the purpose of supplying a fund to furnish tracts, baptism and confirmation books, and blank licences for use of the missionaries in the field.

Sunday School Associations.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

Program of the Sunday school institute of Northeastern Illinois district Sunday school association to be held at West Pullman, Illinois, September 8 and 9. Principal instructor, T. A. Hougas.

Thursday, ten a. m., organization. Address: "The aim of the institute," A. J. Keck. Address of welcome, R. N. Burwell. Responses, J. M. Terry and H. E. Moler. A preview of the work to be done at this institute, T. A. Hougas. Two p. m., Sunday school officers.—T. A. Hougas, superintendent. 1. Who should be chosen. 2. His duties and work. 3. Relation to his assistant. Assistant superintendent. Same as outlined above for superintendent. Secretary. 1. Duties in school. (a) With records. (b) With class books. (c) Preparing and reading minutes. 2. Duties out of school. Librarian, chorister, organist, and janitor. 3:30 p. m., normal lesson: "What constitutes a Sunday school."—J. M. Terry. 1. People, who? 2. Officers, how selected? 3. Teachers, how prepared? 4. Sunday school helps. 5. Order of exercises. 7:30 p. m., paper: "Sunday school work—What it is and what are the results."—A. J. Keck. Normal lesson: "The profitable and unprofitable servant."—T. A. Hougas.

Friday, nine a. m., Sunday school social meeting (45 minutes). R. N. Burwell and W. Vickery. 9:50 a. m., "A model business meeting."—Miss Clara Clark. 10:20 a. m., primary work. 1. Class drill, questions and criticisms.—Mrs. Nathan Teal. 2. Use of Primary Quarterly.—T. A. Hougas. Eleven a. m., intermediate work. 1. Paper, Marie Clark, followed by questions and criticisms. 2. How to teach, classify, and promote.—T. A. Hougas. 3. Use of the quarterly and other helps.—T. A. Hougas. Two p. m., business district Religio association. 3:30 p. m., business district Sunday school association. 7:30 p. m., illustrated blackboard work.—T. A. Hougas, J. M. Terry, and A. J. Keck. Recapitulation, in charge of superintendent of institute, consisting of short talks from several.

Committee { MARIE CLARK.
J. M. TERRY.
A. J. KECK.

Miscellaneous Department.

HILL-PEAK DEBATE.

Having been advised by Bro. James Caffall to write a report of the late debate held at College View, Nebraska, the Seventh-day Adventist headquarters "for seven States," I essay the task. Last fall arrangements were made for me to meet Elder W. B. Hill, of the above-named sect, in public debate at Lane schoolhouse, near Agnew, Nebraska. We met December 27, and agreed to discuss the following propositions:—

1. "Is the Seventh-day Sabbath binding on Christians?"
2. "Should Christians sacredly observe the first day of the week?"
3. "Is man wholly unconscious between death and the resurrection?"
4. "Is the spirit or soul of man conscious between death and the resurrection?"
5. "Are the doctrines of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in harmony with the teachings of Christ and his apostles?"
6. "Are the doctrines of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in harmony with the teachings of Christ and his apostles?"

Elder W. B. Hill affirmed the first, third, and fifth; I affirmed the second, fourth, and sixth; two sessions to be devoted to each proposition, unless the affirmative desired more time.

Five sessions were devoted to the first two propositions, and during the first session of the third, Elder Hill twice made attempt to reply to arguments made during the investigation of the second proposition, but was ruled out of order both times. After the chairman had decided against him he seemed to be chagrined, and said that I was "afraid to have the subject examined;" that that was the reason he "called me to order." I informed him that I was not afraid to examine the subject at any time or place with him, but only insisted on him talking on the proposition under consideration. And as he had tried to lessen me, by inference, by saying I was afraid to have the arguments examined on the proposition that was closed, I challenged him to meet me at College View and discuss the same propositions.

We only succeeded in debating the first four, as it will be seen that they cover their pet hobbies. I was credibly informed that Elder Hill arranged with his members to stop the debate at the close of the fourth proposition, giving as his reason "that it would not do to debate the fifth here, as the people were not prepared to hear it."

He told the audience that he accepted my invitation to go to College View, and greatly extolled the honor of their members, and told us we could have the church, a good audience, and would be treated as gentlemen.

I desired to study the condition of things at headquarters and see the fruits of Adventism where it was produced, unmixed with other influences. The arrangements were finally made, to meet May 3. As I only had five days to make arrangements and reach College View after learning the time the debate was to begin, I wrote Bro. F. A. Smith, at Lamoni, Iowa, to come and act as moderator for me if possible. I arrived at Lincoln, from Fairbury, Nebraska, on the 2d., but heard nothing from Bro. Fred. During the night the Lord revealed to me the nature of the work I would have to do at College View, and that Elder W. B. Hill would be disgraced in the estimation of his own people. All doubts as to Bro. Fred's coming were banished, and I went forth confidently, trusting in the Master.

At 5:50 p. m., May 3, I took the street car for College View alone. On reaching the seat of Adventism I began to look around for some place to stop till the hour arrived to begin the debate. I inquired for a hotel and learned that there was none. Then a Mr. Lair invited me home with him for which I felt thankful. I found him a thorough Adventist. I suppose the brethren understand from that the character of the man. It is true, some of their members are not thorough Adventists, and they are about like members of the common sectarian churches; but they seem out of place, and most of them act as if they feel they are so. May God pity such and open their eyes to see the truth. I was informed about William Miller being the angel spoken of in Revelation 14:6 and 10:5, 6. It seems so strange that intelligent men will take such a position. If he is the angel spoken of, surely we can believe him. And it must be remembered that William Miller denounced Mrs. Ellen G. White as a fanatic, and her doctrine as false. Why don't these people believe their angel? I believe more of his teachings than they, yet I am satisfied he was a deceived and deluded man.

I was also informed that debating was not profitable, just as though Isaiah 1:17, 18 did not say, "Come let us reason together." (See also Acts 19:8.) "Just get the love of God in a sinner's heart and he will be all right about doctrine." I saw at once he was as thoroughly prepared to take the teaching of his file leaders, without question, as the most deluded Catholic.

A little before eight p. m. I made my way to the schoolhouse where the debate was to be held. After groping my way up six flights of a dark stairway I emerged into the light of the unfinished hall. The shingles, rough rafters, and dusty benches without backs, viewed by the light of four lamps with smoke-blackened chimneys, presented a weird sight that seemed well fitted to the spiritless, gloomy religion of those poor people. Briefly viewing the situation, it was with joy that I was enabled to make out the form of Bro. F. A. Smith through the semi-darkness, he having just arrived.

It became known why we were required to hold our debate in such a cold, gloomy, disagreeable place. The dictators that rule the Adventists with all the rigor that priesthood delusion manifested during the dark ages had not authorized their noted debater to hold a discussion in College View. Bro. Hill had spent most of his life in Minnesota, and evidently did not know they were oppressed by their rulers to the extent that they are, or else thought he was a man of more influence among them than he is when he told us during the first debate that we could have the church at College View, and would be "treated as gentlemen." Possibly the poor old man was as much surprised at this tyranny as I was, but he must bow his head in humble submission and, like the cur, lick the hands of him who kicked him; for he has chosen the "yoke of bondage" instead of the "liberty" given by Christ. (Gal. 5:1-4.)

We soon had the preliminary arrangements completed, and Elder Hill cleared for action. He led off by turning loose some of his rapid fire guns, but soon his thirteen inch was throwing such mighty projectiles as, "In the day ye eat thereof thou shalt surely die." "The Devil said, 'Ye shall not surely die.'" "Bro. Peak is preaching as the Devil preached." "In the last days there shall be deceivers." "Watch out for them." "The 'dead know not anything.'" "Bro. Peak is as capable of deceiving you as any man."

Well, it is needless to say that his mighty shells, if they bursted at all, were so far away that no damage was done. Some of the more honorable ones began to object to the debate being held in the schoolhouse, and desired to have a committee appointed to "visit the church officials" to obtain the church. This idea was not received with favor. It was plain to see they did not want their members to hear only what their priest saw fit to tell them; play young robin; open your mouth and swallow what is given. O shame, that such a manifestation of priestcraft should be seen in Nebraska.

At last a committee was thus appointed. A few days later Bro. F. A. Smith and I were invited to "meet with the officers of the church." We met in a room in their splendid college building at the appointed hour. The building indeed is grand, but what shall I say of a school run by such narrow-minded, tyrannical men? They explained that if their "students attended the debate they could not get their lessons," etc. We asked if they could keep the students from attending the church as well as from the schoolhouse, and the answer was "Yes." President Johnson then asked several questions about the Inspired Translation, as if he was ignorant of it. I told him I had one in my valise and would bring it to him, when he himself held up one. He accused us of keeping it in the background and trying to deceive the people about it. When I would answer his questions he would then argue that I was not answering correctly, till the president of the college and Elder Miller (be it said to their honor) disapproved his ungentlemanly course. I challenged him to meet me in public debate and test the merits of the translation. But oh, no! This was sufficient in his estimation to close the doors of their church against the debate; as much as to say, If you agree with us you can debate in our church; if not you must stay away. Where reigned a pope more narrow-minded? They promised us to present the matter to their congregation and let them decide by vote. I wonder how many of my readers believe they let their members vote on this question? I do not suppose there is one who is acquainted with Adventism who so believes; but to those who are not, I will say that they never fulfilled their promise. I was informed by several that nine out of ten of the members wanted the debate held in the church. But did they have their request granted? No, verily. That would have been too much like the "liberty" of Christ, and not enough like popery. This principle rules those poor deceived souls from Mrs. E. G. White down. An aged Catholic who attended the debate aptly remarked that he "would just as well be ruled by a man as a woman."

We spent four sessions on the first two propositions and at the close Elder W. B. Hill stated to the audience that as I believed in the Inspired Translation, he did not consider it profitable to continue the debate. He then asked for a vote on the question.

Bro. F. A. Smith made a telling speech against thus closing the debate, and I told them if they thus closed the debate (as the congregation was almost entirely Adventist) I would consider and represent it as a complete "backout." Some of the more liberal minded objected, and quite an argument followed. But when the vote was taken some of their preachers voted for closing; but the majority said go ahead. 2 Samuel 12:13 was the verse objected to. The word "not" is placed in the sentence, showing that God "hath not put away thy [David's] sin;" which is correct, or else God would not have punished him for his sin. (See following verses.) I had asked Elders Johnson and W. B. Hill if Mrs. E. G. White had seen any words in the Bible that should not be there, or any left out that should have been in. They both answered me: "No; the Bible is correct as it is," that is, the King James' Translation. I then read "Early Writings," of Mrs. White, page 64, the following: "Then I saw in relation to the 'daily' (Dan. 8:12) that the word 'sacrifice' was supplied by man's wisdom, and does not belong to the text."

This came like a clap of thunder from a clear sky. Joseph Smith saw that the word "not" belonged in the verse, and he had the honesty to place it there and meet a frowning world. Mrs. White saw that the word "sacrifice" did not belong there, and failed to remove it. I believe that if it had not been for this answer the debate would have been closed the fourth night. As it was, we had fourteen. But how the mighty has fallen. Elder Hill was sent by the State Conference to meet me last December. Rev. Butterball, a shorthand reporter, accompanied him to report the debate and have it published in book form, stating that Elder Hill was the best debater the church had. I did not feel able to do justice to the subject sufficiently to have it published. However, he endeavored to take it, but stated that "no man could take my speeches." When we closed the first debate, Bro. Butterball thought they had "one man that was a better debater than Bro. Hill."

During the last discussion several of their ministers were present, and among them the president of their State Conference. He stated in the post office in the presence of several: "I was so disgusted with Bro. Hill's argument that I hung my head in shame." Another minister: "Bro. Hill never proved a single point." Bro. De Wolf, one of their leading members, and his son a talented young man that has just graduated in a medical college in Lincoln, are my authority for the above statements. Similar ones have come to me from other sources.

Next to the last session an intelligent, honorable looking lady came to me, introduced herself, and as I took her by the hand and looked upon her honest face I realized that if she belonged to that church she, like many others, was above it. She stated that she was sorry she did not know when I began the last proposition, as she desired to hear it: that she attended but few sessions, and said: "The best class of our members as a rule has not attended, and you are not to blame for it either." I said "How is that?" I was answered, "We are disgusted with the ungentlemanly way Bro. Hill has conducted himself." She requested reading matter, which has been granted. May God bless her. I believe she is seeking for truth.

The professor of the high school said to Bro. Fred, "I was surprised and disgusted with the insulting talk of Bro. Hill, and was compelled to notice the absence of it on the other side. Our people are too narrow and selfish. I was raised an Adventist."

At the close of the debate I left a challenge to meet any man they would endorse at any place in my mission, and this holds good for two years from last April. Elder Hill stated that he did not think he would ever hold another debate. The leaders know they are wrong, hence their opposition to investigation. Only hear one side, seems to be their motto. These people, as well as the Campbellites, must learn, if they have not already, that the doctrines of the Latter Day Saints are invincible. Elder Popplewell, of Independence, Missouri, agreed to meet me again in public debate, and the propositions were agreed to; but I have never heard from him since. "Two shall put ten thousand to flight," so the field is being cleared, and soon none will have the courage to meet us. Give God the praise. His work will triumph. Error, like its father advocate, must skulk away into the corners and hide in the darkness and hold its deluded votaries together in ignorance by saying, "We take no stock in debates," lest their errors be exposed.

I am still confident of Zion's success.

W. E. PEAK.

SHELTON, Nebraska, June 3, 1898.

PASTORAL.

To the Saints of Australia, Greeting; Dear Brethren:—Another year mingled with its joys, cares, and sorrows has passed away; but not without a steady and permanent increase, both spiritual and numerical. The General Conference in its wisdom has not seen fit or is not prepared to send us any assistance at present, and hence we must try and make the best of things as they are. The missionaries in New South Wales will continue to prosecute the work in that field, aided by all the local assistance available, so as to get our work prominently before the people. Our ministerial force is very limited, and we will be required to centralize our work as much as possible, in order to save expense and hold the ground already gained.

If the saints (though poor they may be) will only realize that the burden of this work rests upon all, and will take hold with the general missionary force to extend the interests of the work, by the use of such means as God places within their reach; there is no reason why the cause should not prosper much more rapidly than in the past. The Lord in his mercy has told us by revelation, and has shown some of us by visions, that there are many sheaves in this mission to be gathered in; and if they are not sought out and brought into the fold, the fault will be ours.

The Lord has been very kind in giving us this information, and we must remember that "where much is given much is required." The work in New South Wales is in better working order than ever before; but in Victoria we are somewhat under a cloud at present; however, we hope for more prosperous times. Let us all go to with our might and help move this glorious work on to victory. The missionaries ask your faith and prayers on their behalf.

C. A. BUTTERWORTH.

GEELONG, Victoria.

Saints of the Des Moines district:—Please take notice that Bro. W. H. Kephart is laboring with the tent, and desires those who wish tent labor in their vicinities to so notify him at Lucas, Iowa. Be prompt. His tent labors so far have been quite successful. Elder J. W. Morgan assists him with acceptance. In bonds,

C. SCOTT.

CORRECTIONS IN BISHOP'S ANNUAL REPORT.

The following errors have occurred in publication of annual report, some through copying, and others typographical, which are corrected as follows:—

1. Report of Massachusetts district; R. Bullard Bishop's agent. Albert Nickerson $23, Clara Nickerson $2, Leah Nickerson $28.95, should read Albert, Clara, and Leah Newcombe.

2. Tena Vickers, North Scituate, Rhode Island, reported offering $2.50 should read offering 50 cents.

3. Elder J. J. Cornish, Reed City, Michigan; is named by the auditing committee as not having reported individual receipts. Bro. Cornish is the Bishop's agent for Northern Michigan district, and reported all receipts as agent, having understood that he was not permitted to take offerings of the kind without entering them as agent.

4. Report of Bishop's agent, W. W. McLeod, Minnesota district. William Oakes 20 cents should read $20.

5. Southern Nebraska district, J. W. Waldsmith, agent. Sr. Anna Neilson, tithing 25 cents should read $25.

6. Elder T. J. Sheldon, individual report in connection with Bishop's report of former year shows $10 too much. This $10 was paid by Bishop in 1896 and entered in that report, but received too late by Bro. Sheldon for his report then, and he reported it and again counted in 1897. It is counted twice in individual reports, but does not affect the Bishop's account in any way.

7. Report published for 1896 and 1897. S. P. Hogus, Indian Territory, $23.60; should read S. P. Hogue. A. D. Elliott, Indian Territory, $62.30 should read A. E. Elliott.

8. Northern Nebraska district, J. M. Stubbart, agent. Sarah Agenstine should read Susannah Agenstine.

9. W. R. Smith, Tunnell Hill, Illinois, individual report, $23. Should read, Individuals $8; from agents, $15. Total $23.

10. Report Temple Lot Fund, by Sr. Maggie Batten, What Cheer, Iowa. Following names missed in report: Nathaniel Miller, $1, Evan J. Jones, $1, Parley Batten, $1, Daniel Batten, $1, Mary Batten, $1.

11. Individual report, W. E. Peak. Amount reported as received from individuals $78.04, should read $51.04. Bro. Peak included in his report money received from the Bishop and agents, and some borrowed which was not separated. The error in amount simply occurs in published report, and is not reckoned in account on Bishop's books.

12. Pottawattamie district, J. J. Carlisle, agent. H. R. Lapworth $20 should read J. R. Lapworth.

13. Nauvoo district, J. H. Lambert, agent. D. T. Williams should be credited with $2 and W. E. Williams credited with $5. Omitted in report by agent in copying.

14. Galland's Grove district, C. J. Hunt, agent. A. H. Rudd, Dow City, $4 instead of 25 cents. Nellie Rudd 25 cents instead of 50 cents.

15. Names omitted in published report of Galland's Grove district, account College Funds: Mrs. M. Patchin, 25 cents; Mrs. Mary J. Newcom, $1; Mrs. Rebecca E. Miller, $1; Mrs. Mary Chatburn, 50 cents; Pearl Wood, 50 cents; A. H. Snyder, 25 cents; William N. Booth, $1; Mrs. Mary E. Hunt, $5; T. N. Franklin, $1. Total $10.50.

Respectfully submitted,

E. L. KELLEY, Bishop.

LAMONI, Iowa, August 4, 1898.

KIRTLAND CONFERENCE AND REUNION.

To the Saints of Kirtland District:—In consequence of Pittsburg district holding its conference on the same date for which ours is set, preventing some of the elders attending, we deem it expedient to hold Kirtland district conference one week later. Therefore, instead of September 3 and 4, we will meet with Akron branch September 10 and 11. Full reports from each branch clerk will be expected. All those unfamiliar with the city wishing to attend, will receive proper attention by writing to the president of the branch, Hugh Palmer, No. 105 McCoy Street, Akron, Ohio. This is one of our young and growing branches, and let all exert themselves to encourage it by their presence.

From the 16th to the 25th the district will hold its reunion at Conneautville, Pennsylvania. The first two meetings will be held in the church. Preaching on Friday and Saturday evenings. Will meet Saturday afternoon to effect all preliminaries.

On Sunday morning, the 18th, at 10:30 a. m., about one mile and a half south of the church, will begin a week's meeting under nature's cooling shadows. The saints there are making ample provisions for all visiting saints and friends, and urge all to come and freely partake of their hospitality as well as to enjoy the spiritual blessings usually attending such gatherings. We have looked forward with bright anticipations to this reunion which will write the preface upon the pages of Kirtland district reunions. Write all communications to L. L. Holman, Conneautville, Pennsylvania, and your needs will be promptly attended to. Be sure to come on the E. and P. road, and get off at Conneautville station. We are expecting Brn. W. H. Kelley and G. T. Griffiths, of the apostleship; R. Etzenhouser, L. R. Devore, L. W. Powell, J. F. McDowell, and J. T. Davis, of the Seventy; F. C. Smith, George Powell, and others of the eldership. M. H. Bond has gone east, whom we expected to be there. By letter we are informed of a movement to send Bishop Kelley and A. H. Smith this way. It may be asking too much, brethren, but if you can possibly arrange matters consistently with your errand about that time, do not forget us.

F. J. EBELING, Pres.

DISCUSSION.

During last conference year Bro. M. M. Turpen and J. Padget agreed upon and signed the following propositions:—

1. Resolved that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the true church of God, and is in harmony in organization, doctrine, and practice with the church established by Christ and his apostles eighteen hundred years ago.

2. Resolved that the Church of Christ (known as the Christian Church) with which I, J. Padget am identified, is the church established by Christ and his apostles; and its teaching, faith, practice, and organization are in harmony with the teaching, faith, practice, and organization eighteen hundred years ago.

3. Resolved that the Book of Mormon is of divine origin, and its teachings are entitled to the respect and belief of all Christian people.

R. M. Elvin will stand for first and third propositions, and J. Padget for second proposition. Debate to be held at Pollock, Missouri, (D. V.) August 23.

BLUFF PARK REUNION.

AUGUST 19 TO SEPTEMBER 5.

No doubt all Latter Day Saints are somewhat interested in the town of Nauvoo and the landmarks of the old church.

Bluff Park is situated just across the river in the little town of Montrose, on the Iowa side, and commands a grand view of the old historic city, and is becoming quite a summer resort, recognized by all who have ever been there as one of the best natural summer resorts as to location, natural advantages, scenery, healthful climate, etc., in the United States.

Good railroad facilities; three regular passenger trains each way daily, besides freight trains that carry passengers. Omnibus will meet each train, and you can be taken right upon the grounds for fifteen cents, trunks twenty-five cents.

The grounds are high and dry, over one hundred feet above the grand old Mississippi which flows along the foot of the bluff, almost within a stone's throw. Grounds are shaded with large forest trees of nature's planting. A large amphitheater built especially for preaching service. A large boarding house, also a lodging house, both in charge of Bro. Elmer Reed, where saints and friends can be accommodated with board and lodging, or either. Board $3 per week, lodging extra but reasonable; single meals twenty-five cents. There are also a number of nice cottages on the grounds that can be rented for reunion, all the way from $4 to $8, accommodating from four to twelve persons.

For particulars write D. Tripp or J. S. Snively, Montrose, Iowa, committee on cottages and tents. Those interested write early.

Plenty of room for campers and teams. Hay and feed will be provided on the grounds. Those desiring to board themselves can do so cheaply. The merchants of Montrose will deliver anything you may wish right on the grounds. Ice, meat, and bread, fresh daily.

Every effort will be put forth by the different committees to make the meetings a grand success. Able speakers will be present, and all can come with the expectation of having a spiritual feast. The Sunday school and Zion's Religio will take their proper part in the program. One day will be set aside for an outing, or to cross the river and visit the old historic town of Nauvoo.

Everybody invited. Saints, let us make this reunion a grand success. Come one, come all; bring your wagons, your tents, and if you haven't a tent, write the committee early for one or for a cottage. Tents if wanted will be furnished as cheaply as possible. Railroad rates have been applied for and will be announced later. Bro. E. A. and Sr. Clara Smith will represent the Herald Office, with mailing lists and full stock of books and other publications.

BY ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

CHURCH RECORDER'S NOTICE.

It is now July 30, and the branch reports to all the June conferences have not yet been received at this office. Some may have been sent and lost in transit, so I call attention to the lack of reports yet from the London (Ontario), Kewanee, Nauvoo, Fremont, Spring River, Southern Michigan, Northern Michigan, Northern Minnesota, Southwestern Texas, and Northern Wisconsin districts for June, 1898.

The reports from Northern California for March have not come, nor those from Central California for April. And there is lacking the reports of Eastern and Western Maine and Northern Nebraska for May, and of Southern Missouri for March. Neither have the Oklahoma reports for February been received, nor those from Nevada for June and November, 1897.

From England and Wales are due many reports of branches, the lack of which prevents correcting the General Records.

I mention the above matters, and also ask for speedy action by many clerks who have failed to answer my letters of inquiry concerning deficient reports and imperfect items of birth, baptism, etc., of names given on reports. Kindly come to my aid, please.

Your brother,

H. A. STEBBINS.

LAMONI, Iowa, July 30, 1898.

31-2t

REUNION NOTICES.

OKLAHOMA REUNION.

Oklahoma mission reunion will be held August 26 to September 5, in Mr. John Minium's grove, twelve miles due west of Edmond. The grove is located on the northeast quarter of section 34, township 14, range 5 west. It is a beautiful grove, plenty of shade, good water, and ample room among the trees for camp tents and covered wagons. Wood for camp use will be furnished free, also straw for beds. Pasture for horses will be furnished at a reasonable rate, perhaps twenty-five cents per team during reunion. The committee will endeavor to make all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of all that come. This is a reunion for the people, the saints have pledged themselves to come, when they voted to have a reunion in 1898, so we look for a full attendance—that means all the saints in Oklahoma.

Every Latter Day Saint will realize that we are debtors to the Lord for all we have, especially for the restored gospel, which will bring us to God and give us a place in his kingdom. So we request each one to do their part to make the reunion of 1898 a success by coming and getting others to come, that the work of the Lord may prosper. If you stay at home, others may also through your influence stay at home, so you diminish and hinder the good work which has been intrusted to us all. Come, praying that the God of Israel may be with us in power, in blessing his saints, and bringing others into the fold.

Those desiring tents will please notify the committee at once, by addressing Elder W. S. Macrae, Kingfisher, Oklahoma, who will have charge of this part of the work.

While we have not heard personally from Bro. A. J. Moore, we expect him to attend, as also all others of the ministry who can.

2t

R. M. MALONEY.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

A Sunday school picnic and two-days' meeting will be held by the Fork saints, at Fork, Mecosta County, Michigan, August 27 and 28. All those coming on the F. and P. M. R. R. come to Chippewa Station, Friday, August 26, on the morning trains, and teams will be there to meet you. All are invited, especially the ministry.

RUTH WALRATH, Clerk.

There will be a two-days' meeting held in the tent at Minden City, Michigan, August 20 and 21. We hope that the saints will come from the different parts of the district and make the meeting a success. The missionaries and local brethren are expected to be present.

WM. DAVIS, Sec.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Northwestern Kansas district conference will convene August 20, at ten a. m., at Blue Rapids, Kansas. Ministry, please forward reports on time to Mrs. Ella Landers, Lenora, Kansas.

L. F. JOHNSON, Pres.

ELLA LANDERS, Sec.

Conference of New York district will convene at Broad River branch, Connecticut, September 3 and 4. All elders, priests, teachers, and deacons are requested to send their reports in writing to the secretary at least three days before conference. The Sunday school convention of New York district will be held at same place and date. Business session at 2:30 p. m. Everybody requested to make a special effort to be present at the conference and Sunday school convention.

S. GUILFOY, Sec.

189 Schaefer St., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Northeastern Illinois district conference will be held at West Pullman, Chicago, September 10 and 11. Clerks of branches please have reports made out and approved by branch and sent to Elmer E. Johnson, No. 1972 Marshfield Avenue, Chicago, in time to reach him by September 8, if possible. Come, brethren, and bring the good Spirit with you. We expect Brn. J. H. Lake, T. A. Hougas, and the missionary force of the district to be present.

HENRY SOUTHWICK, Pres.

Nevada conference will convene August 28, ten a. m. at Fairview schoolhouse, near Sheridan, Nevada. It is greatly desired that all the local ministry be present, and a large representation be had from all parts of the district, that we may fully organize for the fall and winter's campaign. We earnestly request all to attend. Come and bring the Spirit of the Master, that we may enjoy his blessings. By order of T. R. Hawkins, president.

T. W. CHATBURN,

Missionary in Charge.

Conference of Florida district will convene at Coldwater branch, September 24 and 25. All the saints are invited to attend.

EDWARD POWELL, Pres.

NOTICES.

To Submissionaries in Charge:—Only one report received to date, August 2. All reports should have been in by the 15th of July. I cannot report to the Presidency until I hear from you. The traveling ministry should report to those in charge the 1st of July, October, January, and 15th of March. Be prompt, my brethren.

G. T. GRIFFITHS.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, August 2.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Saints of the Southern Indiana District:—As per request of president of mission and missionary in charge, there will be no conference of the above-named district on September 3, as per suggestion of district president; and whereas, the district officers' time expires by limitation September 4, we feel at that time we are relieved from any duty pertaining to the office of district president, hence abandon all claims as to time and place of holding said district conference.

Your servant for Christ's sake,

WILLIAM C. MARSHALL, Pres.

BORN.

EVANS.—To Bro. Francis A. and Sr. Elizabeth Evans, at Bevier, Missouri, March 16, 1898, a son. Blessed July 17, by Elders J. A. Tanner and C. Perry, and named Francis Alma.

SHERMAN.—To Mr. George and Sr. Hannah Sherman, July 19, 1898, at Bevier, Missouri, a daughter. Blessed at their home, because of affliction, July 24, by Elders J. A. Tanner, and F. A. Evans, and named Leona.

HARDER.—Alfred Ammaron, son of Bro. Hiram A. and Sr. Dorcas E. Harder; born April 19, 1898, at Lamoni, Iowa; blessed July 31, by Elders H. A. Stebbins and R. S. Salyards.

MARRIED.

GRIFFITHS—JONES.—At Hiteman, Iowa, August 4, 1898, at the residence of the bride, a widow with six little boys, Mr. George L. Griffiths and Sr. Patience Jones, both of Cedar Mines, Iowa, Elder M. D. Lewis officiating. Quite a number of relatives and friends partook of an elegant supper, and bestowed many presents and well wishes on the happy couple. May they be blessed with wisdom to raise the children in the fear of the Lord.

DIED.

ALLENDER.—At Lamoni, Iowa, July 3, 1898, Besse C., eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Allender. She was born at Burlington, Iowa, February 3, 1879, and removed with her father's family to Lamoni, February 3, 1894. Funeral services were conducted by Elders Gunsolley, Criley, and F. M. Smith, at the L. D. S. church, and the remains were interred in Rose Hill cemetery. Besse was not a member of the church; but in the course of her long sickness she had learned to rely on the ordinance of laying on of hands for relief from her pains and nervous spells, and very frequently called upon the elders to administer to her. Just prior to her death she expressed a desire to be baptized; but owing to her weakness it was delayed until it was too late. But we do not mourn on that account, for the gospel plan is broad enough to provide for such cases, and we cannot doubt that Besse is with the happy, accepted ones. By the death of this maiden her parents have lost a deeply loved child, her sister a bright one of the family, and her friends a gifted companion.

HOLLIBAUGH.—On July 1, 1898, at the home of her daughter at Newcastle, Pennsylvania, Sr. Margaret, wife of Bro. Jonathan Hollibaugh of Brinton, Michigan, branch. She was born April 4, 1836, at Brookfield, Ohio; baptized September 29, 1859. She died having an abiding confidence in the work of God.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound $1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE.
REDUCED from $1.15 to 75 cents. An excellent work for the home, also for young people's libraries and societies. Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth $1 00
Sheep or library binding 1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 75
Morocco, gilt edges 2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges 3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible..... 2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH.

Cloth $0 75
Leather. 1 00

GRACELAND COLLEGE,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Telephone 71.

For catalogues or further information,

Address, PROF. J. T. PENCE,

Acting President,

or R. S. SALYARDS, Secretary,

LAMONI, IOWA.

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100 $1 00
2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100... 1 00
7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100..... 1 30
10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 20
12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
13. Discipleism, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts; 100, 1 00
14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... $1 00
15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen..... 30
19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen..... 10
20. The "One Body;" or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
- Prophecy of the Rebellion; per 100 10

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

Cloth $0 40

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer. President.
 Wm. Anderson. Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins. Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson. Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.

W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address,
 I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

BRO. E. F. ORDWAY, of Peoria, Illinois, will send 3 boxes of Quit-to-Bac post paid anywhere for $1.50, and positively guarantee it to cure your tobacco habit, or your money refunded.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co., 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

CHURCH
 FURNITURE
 SCHOOL & OFFICE

EH STAFFORD CO.
 MUSKEGON, MICH., U.S.A.
 PRICES ON APPLICATION

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

Branch statistical reports; per doz. $0 40
 Annual statistical reports; two for 05
 Certificates of baptism and membership; per dozen 12
 Baptism and confirmation certificate books, with stubs 25
 Certificates of removal; per dozen .. 12
 Marriage certificates; per dozen ... 25

JOSEPH THE SEER. His prophetic mission vindicated and the divine origin of the Book of Mormon defended and maintained.

Paper $0 35
 Cloth, limp 50

Its Easy Writing

If its a Blickensderfer No. 5.

The universal favorite with all classes of operators who desire a simple and speedy machine.

More "Blicks" in use among Iowa and Nebraska newspapers than all the rest of the $100 machines together. The only Typewriter on the market doing hundred-dollar work that is sold at a popular price.

Has 28 Keys, of 84 Characters and Letters; Portable, weighing but Six Pounds with case.

Copies and Manifolds perfectly,—12 carbon copies being easily taken at one writing.

Only one price—$35.00 net. On ten days' approval to any responsible man in Iowa or Nebraska. Address,

HARGER & BLISH,

General Agents,

904-910 Main Street, DUBUQUE, IOWA.

$35

MANGLES

—FOR—
 FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.

NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.

Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.

Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.

THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture and Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.

GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas.

Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery.

Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

Large Maps Reduced!

For Sunday School and Home Use . . .

Dispensing with the idea of procuring agents, I have concluded to furnish the large Book of Mormon maps (39x51 inches), fully described in former advertisement, direct to all at $1.50, express charges to be paid by the purchaser. Former price $2.50. An ornament to any home. Sunday schools and Religio, please take up collections, procure a map, and start a class in the Book of Mormon. Sr. (Mrs.) Ella J. Green, of Onslow, Iowa, wrote July 6, 1898:—

"Bro. G. F. Weston:—Received map all right and extend to you our thanks for favor shown in reduction of price. The map is for our Sunday school and all who have seen it are well pleased." Early orders solicited.

G. F. WESTON.

BUCHANAN, Berrien Co., Mich.

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6 1/2 x 8 1/2, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net $2 00 subjects illustrated by means of finely painted pictures and charts furnished to order on muslin, canvas, or oilcloth. For particulars address Hulmes & Kress, 609 Main Street, Kansas City, Missouri.

Scriptural and Book of Mormon

MINISTRY AND BRANCH CARDS.

Neat cards for ministers or branches, with name and address, or place of worship and hours of services on face, and Epitome or "What we Believe" on reverse side.

An excellent aid. Two sizes:

2 1/2 x 4 inches, per 250 $0 75
 " " per 1000 2 50
 3 x 5 1/2 " per 250 1 00
 " " per 1000 3 50

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.

The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a

Reward of $200

By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns.

TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.

It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State

PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.

DES MOINES, IOWA.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 17, 1898.

No. 33.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
The Truth of It.....	517
Army Saloons.....	517
To Make Swearing a Misdemeanor.....	518
Peace.....	518
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
"Is Marriage a Failure?".....	520
Baby's Day.....	520
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
Selections From My Notebook.....	521
LETTER DEPARTMENT:
Letter From Observer.....	521
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Latter Day Events.—No. 1.....	527
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Nodaway.....	531
Alabama.....	531
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
Eastern Iowa.....	531
Sunday School Work at Bluff Park Reunion.....	531
Sunday School Work at Midway Park Reunion.....	531
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Bluff Park Reunion.....	532
Reunion Notices.....	532
Reunion Religio-Literary Day.....	532
Pastoral,—Levi Gamet.....	532
Two-Days' Meetings.....	532

SHUT OUT BY POPE'S EDICT.

DECREE OF "MAJOR" EXCOMMUNICATION OF ANTHONY KOZLOWSKI UNIQUE IN THIS COUNTRY.

ANTHONY KOZLOWAKI, former priest at St. Stanislaus Church, Chicago, may now regard himself as absolutely and finally cut off from the Roman Catholic Church. The edict of excommunication against him has been read in all the Catholic churches of Illinois, and was read on Sunday to all Catholic congregations in the Northern Indiana diocese, as it will be in the churches throughout the country.

The reading of this pontifical fiat has aroused much interest in and out of the Roman Catholic Church. The chief point of dissimilarity between this particular banishment and the many instances in which rebellious priests have been defrocked, is the odium which in this case attaches to any member of the Catholic Church who in any way aids, countenances, or holds with Kozlowski communication of any kind whatever. The person so doing is included in the bull of excommunication directed against the ex-priest. It is said this is the first case in America of "major excommunication." Kozlowski is now conducting an independent church at Lubeck Street and Hoyne Avenue.

TEXT OF THE POPE'S EDICT.

The edict of excommunication is as follows:—

"Whereas, it has been made known to the Holy See from undoubted documents that the priest, Anthony Kozlowski, by origin a Pole, now being in the archdiocese of Chicago, has contumaciously rebelled against legitimate ecclesiastical authority, and, moreover, calls himself Bishop of the Catholic Independent Diocese of Chicago, has published a letter which he calls a pastoral, in which he says that he received Episcopal consecration from certain heretical Bishops in Switzerland,

"Our Most Holy Father, Pope Leo XIII., in an audience of the 26th day of April, 1898, ordered that in his name, by the present decree of this sacred congregation de propaganda fide, it should be declared that the pseudo Bishop Kozlowski has incurred 'Major Excommunication' reserved in the Roman constitution 'Apostolicæ Sedis.'

"Moreover, his Holiness commands that this sentence of excommunication be published with proper instructions not only by the ordinary of Chicago, in his diocese, but also by each and every one of the ordinaries of the United States of North America.

"Given at Rome, from the Palace of the Sacred Congregation de Propaganda Fide, on the 2d day of May, 1898.

"M. CARD, LEDOCHOWSKI, Pref.

"A. ARCHBP. LARISS, Sec."

LETTER SENT TO THE CHURCHES.

In connection with the promulgation of the papal edict, the following letter was sent to the various churches in the diocese by the Archbishop:—

"Reverend and Dear Sir: By order of our Holy Father, the Pope, the inclosed documents are to be published in all the churches of the archdiocese of Chicago. On next Sunday, therefore, you will have them read publicly in your church at all the masses. The first is a letter from the Cardinal Prefect of the Propaganda. The second is a decree in the name and by the authority of the Pope, excommunicating 'by name,' by 'major excommunication,' the pseudo-Bishop, Anthony Kozlowski.

"This excommunication is by the constitution 'Apostolicæ Sedis' reserved to the Pope alone. It is the greatest, the severest punishment the church can inflict. It is the expulsion from the exterior and interior membership of the church, the complete withdrawal of all graces and privileges acquired by baptism, the separation from the living body of Christ, and a thrusting back into the helpless state of unredeemed man.

"By the present decree Anthony Kozlowski, excommunicated by name by the Pope by major excommunication, is suspended ab officio et beneficio; hence he cannot say mass nor administer nor receive the sacraments, nor perform any other sacred function; neither can he exercise any ecclesiastical office, dignity, or benefice. If he should attempt to hear confessions his absolution would be invalid. He is excluded from all share in the public prayers of the church. He cannot assist at mass or other ecclesiastical function. If he should die in that state he should be deprived of Christian burial.

"All who aid and abet him in the crime for which he has been excommunicated by name by the Sovereign Pontiff also incur major excommunication and all its effects. The faithful under grave penalty are absolutely forbidden to have any intercourse or communication with him. You will please read the foregoing and make the whole matter perfectly clear and intelligible to all the people. I remain, reverend and dear sir, your obedient servant in Christo.

"P. A. FREEMAN, Archbishop of Chicago."

MAKES THE CONTRAST PLAIN.

In the "Elements of Ecclesiastical Law" the Rev. S. B. Smith, D. D., says:—

"Major excommunication is called 'anathema' when it is inflicted against heresy or with certain impressive ceremonies; namely: when the Bishop pronounces it surrounded by twelve priests in sacred vestments and holding in their hands lighted torches, which they then throw down and tread under foot, meanwhile uttering certain words of malediction."

The situation was stated thus yesterday by a priest of the church:—

"There are various forms of excommunication for various causes and under different conditions. The ordinary form is called minor excommunication. This, the most mighty and severe, is called major excommunication. It is to be published in every Catholic church to all Catholic people. This is the first instance in this country where such an edict has been thus announced and where the disgrace of the offending minister is made public. It is the last resort, and only after every other attempt to win back the mutinous priest has been vainly tried."

—Tribune, Aug. 9.

PLANS TO SUE ARCHBISHOP.

TEST OF CHURCH POWER. AMERICAN DECISION IN VIEW.

"I have taken steps to begin suit against Archbishop Feehan for heavy damages and to determine the power of the Roman Catholic Church in America to make me a pariah in society and put a blemish on my 120,000 parishioners here and elsewhere," said the Rev. Father Anthony Kozlowski of All Saints' Polish Catholic Church yesterday, when asked how he looked upon the major excommunication placed upon him by the Pope at the recommendation of the Chicago Archbishop. "The papal bull is a remnant of another age, when church and state went hand in hand. Then there was no ecclesiastical or civil redress for the victim of one of these pronouncements. It is different now and especially so in the United States. The fortunes and liberty of the humblest citizen cannot be attacked with impunity. The effect of this excommunication, if carried out, would be to render me a social outcast. The Constitution of this country says no man shall be attacked because of his religious opinions, and there is another law which prohibits the boycott. The bull is a violation of the laws of the United States and is an attempt to subvert civil to ecclesiastical authority.

"After all, I am amazed that the major excommunication should be resorted to in this age. I would publicly burn this papal bull if it were not that I might be accused of imitating Martin Luther and also indulging in child's play.

ASKS THE ARCHBISHOP'S RIGHT.

"I would like to ask any man what right Archbishop Feehan has to dictate to me. I deliberately separated myself from the Roman Catholic Church four years ago. *I sent a notice to the Pope. Four years have passed away. Now he excommunicates me. For what? When I had established this church I advised that a church committee be sent to the Archbishop to see if our troubles could not be settled. The committee was insulted and informed by Archbishop Feehan that he wanted to have nothing to do with them or me. The committee was practically driven from the house. We then decided that we had better try and get along by ourselves. We have done so pretty successfully. My parishioners here number over 10,000, and in all my churches 120,000.

"The entire excommunication is illegal not only according to canonical but civil law. Canonical law says that when charges are brought against a priest he shall be regularly summoned before a jury where he must be allowed an advocate. Nothing of this kind was ever done with me. The only notice I ever received from Archbishop Feehan was a notice to leave town in twenty-four hours. I then wondered and wonder now who this man is who has authority to order a citizen out of town after the manner of a police justice. I refused to recognize his authority then as to the material affairs of the church and I refuse to do so now.

"Moreover, canonical law says notice of the excommunication shall come directly from the Pope to the person excommunicated. I have received no notice of this kind. Again, the excommunicated person must be called three times by the supreme Pontiff before the bull against him is finally issued. This is to give the accused the opportunity of being restored to the bosom of the church if he should so desire after expressing a penitential spirit. I was never extended an opportunity of this kind. TELLS OF THE CHICAGO TROUBLE.

"The troubles of the Polish Catholic in Chicago," continued the priest, "grew out of the financial administration of the affairs of St. Hedwig's Church, where at one time I was assistant pastor. The congregation of this church became dissatisfied with the way in which the church was managed. They could get no accounting from Father Barzynski or the Archbishop. It was denied that the parishioners had any right to have a voice in the financial management of the church. This caused a schism.

"The congregation split and money was raised for the building of All Saints'. I was selected to lead the seceders. The Poles in other cities have gone through the same trouble, but I have been the only one selected for excommunication. Why? Because in establishing the Independent Polish Diocese of Chicago it was necessary to have a constitution. This constitution has been so satisfactory to many dissatisfied churches throughout the country that the independent church has been growing rapidly.

"We have now four churches in Chicago, and churches at Thorp, Wisconsin; Ege, Indiana; Depew, New York; Buffalo, New York; South Chicago, and two churches in New Bedford, Massachusetts. The movement is spreading all over the country.

"The cardinal principle of our church is to retain the church property in the hands of the church organization. We refuse to surrender it to any Bishop or Archbishop. A committee of elders handles every cent, and in this way the priest's entire time can be devoted to the spiritual advancement of his flock. The amount of church property controlled by Archbishop Feehan in Chicago amounts to over $100,000,000. We do not believe that such power should be in the hands of one man."—Chicago Tribune, Aug. 10.

Any good live church that wants a good live young married man with a small family, as a pastor, can be put in correspondence with one by addressing this office. He has been in the ministry seven years, and has experience in pastoral work. Can furnish good references. He can be had for $700 to $900 per year. He has good education, and does good pastoral work. Any church desiring such a man can obtain him by addressing this office at once.—J.—Ec.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord; for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 17, 1898.

No. 33.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, AUG. 17, 1898.

THE TRUTH OF IT.

SOMEWHERE about 1867 the church in business and spiritual assembly, a solemn conclave, held by reason of the church usage and command of God, directed the branch of the church at Plano, to build a house of public worship, of sufficient capacity to hold the Annual Conferences of the church in. The branch, proceeding upon the instruction thus given, built a house which was turned over to the Trustee, and upon which the Bishop was authorized to pay a small remaining indebtedness.

About 1879 or 1880 the church decided that the time for the establishment of a business center at some other place than Plano, Illinois, had come and a committee was appointed to locate and build suitable buildings for the publishing department. That committee did its work and it was accepted by the church.

About 1885 the building of an institution of learning by the church began to be agitated. It resulted some time later, in a declaration of the church in conference to the effect that the church needed such an institution. A committee was appointed to carry the will of the body into execution. No instructions were given the committee; no directions as to how to build, nor what should be the size or cost of the building; the committee being left to its own discretion. That committee, sustained and renewed at successive sessions of the conferences, did the work assigned them, wisely, or otherwise, and reported their work and the resulting condition of affairs to the power appointing them. The church took cognizance of the work and the condition resulting, and authorized the Bishop, as Trustee of the finances of the church, to take measures to relieve Graceland College of its disabilities.

We commend the reading of the article by Observer, in this issue. The act of the committee in building the college was the act of the church; the committee being the agents for the church in the work. They did the best they could under the circumstances attending the work intrusted to them; and we sincerely hope that while there may be those who, had they been chosen as the committee, might have done better than was done, this will not be permitted to stand in the way of now meeting the crisis as its necessities demand. The church should by all means pay out and set the institution free.

ARMY SALOONS.

It appears that the "army regulations" permit the establishment of a "canteen," at any encampment of the army wherever the commandant may choose to have one. These canteens are no more, no less than liquor shops, where light drinks and intoxicating drinks are sold to the soldiers in camp.

This is a most pernicious regulation, and one that offers an inducement for speculation on the part of the commandant, and an opportunity for the demoralization and physical ruin and degradation of the soldier.

Sir Garnet Wolseley, not many years ago in charge of the British army, stated that seventy per cent of the demoralization and crime in the British army was the direct, or indirect result of the use of intoxicants. The same year the county commissioners of St. Louis County, Missouri, in a published report following an inquiry into the condition of the county, stated that two thirds of all the pauperism and crime in the county were the result of the use of intoxicating drinks.

Dr. Kane, the Arctic explorer, found that those men who best endured the hardships and perils of Arctic winters were those who did not use intoxicants. Lieutenant Strain, who conducted the Darien exploration expedition many years ago, in reporting his observation stated that the men who bore the tropical heat and the perils of jungle labor and fever the best were the men who drank no liquors.

Why our army leaders should deliberately ignore the lessons taught by the experiences of the past, and put the American soldier into the way of physical deterioration, disease, and death by placing canteens at the doors of the camp is a mystery, and a shame on American morals and army wisdom.

Hundreds of mothers, and wives are dependent on the soldiers in the field for subsistence. This they will never get, if the enlisted man is to be followed by the saloon to gather in his monthly stipend. And, whether the soldier die shot to death by guns in the hands of hostile Spaniards, or be dosed to disease and physical wreck by the doses poured out to him over the "canteen" bar; the hardly earned taxes of the sober and industrious men and women of the nation will be called upon to pay the widow, and children the nation's stipend for pensions when the soldier is mustered out by death. There ought to be a strict clause in the pension laws to the effect that the soldier who should become addicted to the habits of drunkenness should forfeit his right to the government pension, and this forfeiture should be made to affect the widow and offspring should the death of the soldier be the direct, or indirect result of the drink habit, thus binding the soldier by a moral obligation to keep sober.

Joshua Levering, of Baltimore, Maryland, is getting measures on foot to secure a strong protest from the people to be brought to bear upon the army officers, including President McKinley, Commander in chief, to secure the abolishment of the army regulation permitting the "canteen" the army saloon.

The movement is a good one and ought to meet the support of all well wishers of the nation's welfare.

Mr. Levering urges all "churches, organizations and associations of every character which believe the canteen to be injurious to the 'Boys in Blue' to pass resolutions setting forth that fact and petitioning the President for its removal from every camp and Soldiers Home over which float the Stars and Stripes, emblem of protection and liberty, and to forward same to him by mail."

TO MAKE SWEARING A MISDEMEANOR.

PRESIDENT RUDOLPH GUGGENHEIMER of the Municipal Council is preparing a city ordinance intended to check the use of profane and indecent language in the streets and public places of the city. His ordinance will provide a heavy penalty, fine, or imprisonment, or both, for any person swearing or using obscene language in public. The offense will be made a misdemeanor, for which the police can make arrests where they hear the swearing or upon complaint of any citizen. President Guggenheimer said to-day that he would lay the matter before the members of the Municipal Assembly and urge them to take such action as might be necessary to protect the public from the offenses against good manners and morals. He says that if a majority of the members will support him in the movement he will introduce the ordinance and press it to passage.

Movements like the foregoing deserve notice because of the principles underlying them. Religion includes the observance of moral principle, and when such principle can be made the bases of municipal ordinances and the statute books record a moral code consistent with moral demands, we shall indeed have needed and potent cooperation in the great work of reform and progress. Greater New York would be made greater by the passage and enforcement of such an ordinance. The passage of it would lead to other and further enactments for good. Does the world grow better or worse? The foregoing indicates that in some respects at least the record is being made for the better side.

Every step forward means possibility of added and further progress. Man can only occupy safe and exalted ground through adherence to principle. It is therefore necessary that not one or two, but the masses of the people be governed by uplifting principles of right in all lines of human thought and effort. We hail with satisfaction every proper movement forward and upward. Let us strengthen the forces of right by strict indorsement, by careful personal compliance with principle. Not policy, but truth; not selfish ends, but the welfare of the race should be the desires and motives actuating us. The true in heart will recognize and be glad in all that conserves the welfare of mankind.

PEACE!!

BY a protocol agreed upon and signed on the 12th of the present month, between Secretary of State William R. Day, for the United States, and M. Jules Cambon, the Ambassador from France, for Spain, it has been arranged that Spain shall give up all claim and title to Porto Rico, abandon and withdraw her armies from Cuba and all the islands in the West Indies now belonging to Spain; that the United States shall have military possession and occupation of Manila, port, bay, and harbor. That there shall be appointed a committee of five on the part of the United States, and five on the part of Spain, to constitute a Commission, to meet in Paris, France, whose duty it shall be to take the matter of a treaty of peace into consideration and determine what shall be the final terms of peace between the two countries.

Hostilities are to cease, pending the sitting of the commission. The Spanish are to evacuate Cuba, Porto Rico, and all other Spanish possessions in the West Indies, the retiring armies to carry with them their movable arms and ammunition, leave their fortifications intact, and surrender absolutely the sovereignty of Spain in the western hemisphere.

The United States is to have Porto Rico by concession, also one of the Ladrone Islands, and is to assume military control of Cuba, pending the establishment of a stable government by the inhabitants of that unhappy island.

By this it will be seen that the war declared by the United States for the stopping of the misrule of Spain in Cuba and the liberation of the Cubans, has reached the point aimed at in such declaration; that is, the driving the Spanish out of the lands adjacent to America, in the western continent.

But, more has been gained by the United States than was first declared; for in the prosecution of the war, in the effort to break the Spanish power to do the United States harm, Admiral Dewey attacked and destroyed the Spanish fleet under Admiral Montojo, at Manila, there has been left a burden on the government of the United States that will be difficult to carry or lay down. The honor and moral rectitude of the United States are by the act of Commodore Dewey, and sending of General Merritt with his army to the Philippines, pledged to the world to see to it that the contest with Spain shall result in making permanent peace between Spain and her colonies in those islands possible, and it would be an act of bad faith toward the Philippines and the other well-disposed occupants of the islands, and the world to arrange the final terms of peace on such a basis as to perpetuate the unchristian and cruel rule hitherto had over that people. Much as it may be said that the native population are ignorant, vicious, and uncivilized, whose fault is it if such is the state of the native and half-caste dwellers in those wonderful islands?

Now that the forces destined of God for the emancipation of the oppressed and downtrodden of humanity, have been put in motion in places outside the United States, there should be no backward step taken, no grave mistake made; either in Porto Rico, which will become absolutely a part of the United States; in Cuba, which may become an independent and sovereign republic or state as the people may elect; in the Philippines, which may become a troublesome ward of the government, pending the sending in of factors by which an education in regard to the civil rights of man and political possibilities of a people may be secured to the people to be governed either by themselves, or the powers to which the peace commissioners of the two contracting parties to the final treaty shall deliver those islands.

In the meantime all the citizens of this great republic should be thankful that the end has been reached by so little loss of life and expenditure of public treasure.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. W. H. KELLEY, Glenwood, Iowa, August 5:—

Bro. I. M. Smith has the tent up here, and circulars out for preaching to-night and on. Hot, but it rains; no frost hereabouts. Will go out to Macedonia next week.

Bro. J. S. Roth, Pekay, Iowa, August 9:—

The club foot man again; look out for him saints. He was at Pekay, Iowa, a short time ago with his old story, and as usual some of the saints gave him money. But luckily this time he got only fifty cents. He ought to be arrested for false pretense and sent to board at headquarters. I will close my meetings here to-night and go north.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

A CARD from Bro. Joseph Luff, Independence, Missouri, August 3, announced that he would be on the move east at 5:15 p. m. of that date, enroute for his eastern field. His address would be Dennisport, Massachusetts, for a few days. Bro. Luff is not fully established in health, but hopes to improve as he goes into the work.

Bro. Alexander H. Smith left Lamon for Dennisport and the East for a season's portion of the season. He will labor in the East as the way may open in connection with the local authorities in charge. Bro. William H. Kelley, now in the West, will supply the place of Bro. Alexander at the Bluff Park and Woodbine reunions, minus committee work at Bluff Park. The others of the committee will arrange for his duties there.

Arrangements have been made for a debate with a Mr. Allison, of the Holiness people, seven miles west of Lamon, beginning on Monday, August 15. The subjects include water baptism, the resurrection, church organization, etc. Bro. Columbus Scott is expected to represent the Reorganized Church if well enough. He is rapidly improving in health.

In HERALD editorial of last issue, for "President Buchanan," read "President Van Buren." Reference to the Civil War history caused the slip, no doubt.

Bro. David Smith sends us a clipping from the Detroit Journal of July 19 which contains a valuable article on the prehistoric mounds of Montcalm County, which we may be able to publish later on. Thanks, Bro. S.

The man or woman who has the spirit of the latter-day work is alive, active, vigorous in his efforts to abound in the good cause. These are stirring times, full of portentous meaning, yet there seems to be a tendency, as there has always been, on the part of some, to fall into spiritual stupor or sleep. There is danger in spiritual slumbering, especially for saints, who are commanded to "watch" and "pray," and admonished against permitting "that day"—the time of the end—to overtake them as a thief in the night. Brethren, sisters, ministry, and laity, are any of us asleep, or getting drowsy? How is it?

The struggle for supremacy in China is becoming fierce and intense. Russia, emboldened by past successful encroachments in the far East, has been met with firm remonstrances by Great Britain, which assures China of substantial and prompt support against Muscovite aggressions. The student of prophecy and of other signs of the end will watch the development of the Eastern question.

It is said that blind men outnumber blind women by two to one. Most of the gentler sex doubtless believe the statement.

A pound of phosphorus is said to be sufficient to tip 1,000,000 matches. Phosphorus is good in some matches, but has spoiled many others. It is a good thing in its place, but is said to have peculiar relationship to the nether world and to the strife and evil that there has its seat of government. There is but limited and specific use for it in the domestic and social circle. In its proper sphere it does little or no harm, but used elsewhere, lookout!

The strictly conservative element among the Missionary Baptists—those who cling to the long since exploded theory of Baptist succession, are on the war path after the scalp of Doctor Whitsitt. The American Baptist Flag, of August 4, contains repeated references to the Whitsitt controversy. It appears that the Doctor has proffered his resignation as "President of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and Professor of Church History." The Louisville Courier-Journal, says the Doctor resigned to escape a bitter fight, which doubtless is correct. The Baptists may get rid of Doctor Whitsitt, but he has good company in numerous other Baptists of prominence who have found flaws and serious breaks in the so-called historic chain of Baptist succession. Truth and facts come to light in spite of all opposing forces. Dr. Whitsitt may be got rid of, but his researches and testimony will stand in evidence nevertheless. Admissions from adherents to a cause, against its claims, are telling things.

The corn-fed philosopher is a homely man, but he says some good things; among them the following: "It is odd, but true, that the man who speaks without thinking is the one most apt to say what he thinks." This is the old saying, "Think twice before you speak," in new form. Though old it is "not too old to learn."

Pope Leo is prostrated by weakness, induced by the intense heat. The attendant physician has ordered absolute rest, which includes suspension of all audiences and official duties. The Pope was born March 2, 1810, and crowned as head of the hierarchy March 2, 1878. Sorrow and trouble arising from his failure to prevent war between America and Spain, the latter the stronghold of Catholicism, are said to have caused melancholy and decline.

Bro. J. W. Wight may be addressed thus: Care Carrier 12 Salt Lake City, Utah.

Bro. Heman C. Smith, of the Twelve, and Bro. Ernest R. Dewsnup, from Swansea, South Wales, (formerly of Manchester, England,) arrived at Lamon, on Monday, the 15th inst. Bro. Smith returns after an absence of a year or more in the European mission. Bro. Dewsnup comes to America in the interests of the college work, upon which he will enter with the beginning of the new college year in September, as president and one of the resident professors of Graceland College. We are glad on behalf of the HERALD and the church to welcome these brethren; Bro. Smith to home and native land, and Bro. Dewsnup to a new home and place among us, and in which we sincerely trust he will find blessing and comfort and success among the people of God. Our prayer is that God may continue to bless the labors of these brethren for good, as in the past, to the progress of his work.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Dwell more with men, O Soul! and more with man.
Add to the ties, the human ties that bind
Thee closer, surer to thy fellow-kind.
Make great, deep, warm, pure friendship that must span
This life and that fair other. Ah! this ban
Of distance and of pride, that makes us blind,
Blind to the lasting joys that others find,— Slow, all too slow, our bit of heaven to scan."

"IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE?"

THIS is a question of very great importance, and might be answered with both "No" and "Yes." Back to the morn of creation, when the sweet law of obedience prevailed, when the great waters were content to remain within their bounds, when the blue canopy of heaven had not been marred by angry clouds, when the earth was willing to yield her increase and man free from sin, when all that was made shone forth in its magnificence, grandeur, and splendor, fresh from the hands of the great Creator, it was then that God saw it was "not good for man to be alone," and prepared him a helpmeet, bone of man's bone and flesh of his flesh. This helpmeet was called "woman," afterwards "wife." Now the work is not only "good," but "very good." Further we read: "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh" (Gen. 2:24), showing that this union was not confined to Adam and Eve only, but to all who would be man and wife. Malachi (2:15) speaking of this union, shows us that the Lord ordained it that a godly seed might be obtained. Paul gives us to understand that it is honorable, and acceptable of God (Heb. 13:4). And in Doctrine and Covenants 49:3 we read, "Marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was."

Thus we see that this divine ordinance was given as the bond of social order; that purity and chastity which God delights in should be protected, without interfering with the design for which man and woman were created. We cannot afford to allow that God would ordain anything to be a failure. Marriage—as ordained of God unto man—is all that is pure and holy; it is one of the most sacred ordinances of the great gospel law. Yet how often we hear, "O marriage is a lottery," a "leap in the dark," a "grand piece of chance work;" and it's surprising how universally that is believed and acted upon. To lead each other to believe that they themselves are faultless seems to be the sole object of some of those contemplating matrimony. Disguised hypocrisy is their only charm. Thus deception goes on until it's too late, when to our great disappointment we find that instead of a prize we have drawn a blank.

Now God did not intend that one should draw a prize while ten or a hundred drew blanks; but he desires all to get prizes. And all will get a prize if they go about it in the right direction. It is a duty devolving upon every man and woman—and especially those in the church—who are seeking a companion in life, to seek one of their own affinity; one congenial to their every taste. And not only have a desire to please themselves, but also to please their heavenly Father. Ask his counsel and advice. Although some of our earthly friends might laugh at us if we went to them for advice upon the matter, but not so with our kind Father, who will give liberally and upbraid not. And if it is as a step in the dark, or with our eyes blindfolded, it's because we willfully close our eyes and ears against all light and warning. We have been favored in life if we have not seen the results of an uncongenial marriage; and as like causes produce like effects, we should take warning. Again, if it is "a piece of chance work," it is because courtship is such a marvelous scheme of deception, that it would be impossible for its results to go right, but is a mysterious uncertainty—a failure. But if all deceit would be avoided, and marriage be considered as an ordinance of divine law, then instead of it being a failure, it would be what God intended it should, the great crowning sheaf of happiness and success.

SISTER JESSIE.

CANADA, June, 1898.

BABY'S DAY.

Up in the morning as bright as can be,
Laughing and crowing with musical glee;
Eyes brightly shining with mischief and fun,
Showing us plainly her day has begun.

Plays peek-a-boo as she gets on her clothes,
In comes the kitty and off baby goes,
Creeping so swiftly she catches his tail,
Poor patient kitty gives never a wail.

Pulls him and wools him in innocent glee,
"Baby, dear baby, let poor kitty be!"
Soon as she thinks he's had his share of woe,
Stoops down to kiss him and then lets him go.

Now she must hasten to help make the bed,
"You are a bother," is what Mamma said.
Hangs to my dress as I go for the broom,
Then she assists me in sweeping the room.

There, she's caught sight of the half-open door,
Soon she is out on the damp kitchen floor.
There is the coal bucket, there is the girl,
Out on the floor goes the coal with a whirl.

Dear naughty "paddies" that Mamma must whip,
Eyes filled with tears and a quivering lip,—
"Baby be good now," then turning away,
"Wonder what will be the next prank to-day."

Dear me! Oh! dear, she has now found the flour
'Round goes the sieve like a small water pow'r—
Blackened with coal, and with flour half white,
Baby's small face is a wonderful sight.

Grandma is writing, now that is a treat:
Swiftly they patter, those dear little feet,

Peeps o'er the big book to read ev'ry word.
If you had listened, you might then have heard:—

"Grandma's sweet baby, her darling and pet,
(Don't, dear, you'll blot that, it isn't dry yet,)
Can't find her equal in all the great south,
(There goes that ink-stopper right in her mouth)."

"Papa is coming, dear, run, baby, run;
Watch from the window—O isn't it fun!"
"A kiss now for Papa," my own baby girl,
Ouch," (she is giving his moustache a twirl).

"Isn't she nice?" says proud Papa to me,
"Pretty and sweet, and as smart as can be.
(Pulling my whiskers—here, quit that, I say!
Land sakes alive, Mamma, take her away)."

Sleepy time comes, and our darling's wee arms
Clasp 'round my neck, while a lullaby charms
Down the white lids over the deep wells of blue,

And the bright eyes are soon lost to my view.

Though with relief do I see the brown head,
Safe on the pillow, I kneel by the bed—
Guard and protect her, and grant, Lord, I pray,
She may have many a long baby day.

MINA PERKINS KEARNEY.

NEVADA, Mo., April 4, 1898.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

JOHN LEWIS, of Aberaman branch, Wales, requests the faith and prayers of the saints that if it be the Lord's will to strengthen his faith. He has been a member of the church forty-nine years; and his hand has been withered the last six months.

Bro. Dan Davies, of Aberaman branch, Wales, requests the faith and prayers of the Union, that if it be the Lord's will he may be healed of asthma, which he is troubled with for many years.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOUGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor.
Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc.,
to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

THE Sunday school work at the Nauvoo reunion will be under the direction of the First Assistant Superintendent of the General Association, Bro. J. A. Gunsolley. Work will be done every day as may be found practicable, as has been the custom at reunions in past years. There will be a special day, Saturday, August 27, morning and afternoon sessions. All should go fully prepared and willing to do whatever may be assigned them to do. While the "special day" will be of great interest, we hope to be able to make the work of all other days practical and interesting to every one. You should take with you to the reunion your Bibles, Quartettes, and Winnowed Songs. They will all be needed. The General Superintendent will also be there a part of the time, and will assist in the work.

We apprehend that all the workings of a well regulated Sunday school, the blackboard, and other helps to the work will be discussed and illustrated. All should attend. It is a duty you owe to yourself, to your school, and to your God to equip yourself for your part of this great work.

Bro. Gunsolley is also President of the "Religio" and will give this department of work the proper attention.

We are in receipt of a copy of a circular letter sent out by Sr. Ella Miller, of Verdella, Missouri, to the various school officers of the Clinton, Missouri, district, of which she is superintendent. The letter is too lengthy for insertion here. But we would say that it is one that is calculated to awaken an interest in the Sunday school work if there is a spark of life left in them upon which to work. Aside from instruction of a general nature there was a special piece of work assigned. She formed an outline of the contents of the Bible and placed it in unique form upon a star design and requested the superintendent of each school to drill his pupils a few moments each Sabbath at the close of Sunday school upon the outline. By this they would have committed the points to be taught—the number of books in the Bible, number of authors, time in compilation, character and contents of the books, and many other points. Then there was to be a test of the work done at each school at the forthcoming district convention, where the district superintendent would make a public examination in form of a general review. This would show where the most careful work had been done. The matter was eminently successful, and doubtless much good will accrue from it.

If you are a district officer and have not as yet done anything to stimulate more and better work among your schools, is it not time to think about it? There is always opportunity and plenty of talent to do the work if once developed and applied. Will you "bury" your "talent in a napkin?" or will you improve upon it? Which reward do you prefer? Think and act accordingly.

The Northeastern and the Kewanee districts of Illinois have each arranged to hold a two-days' institute in the early part of September. They are preparing an interesting program which will probably appear before this. All Sunday school people of the districts and as many others as can, should attend. The General Superintendent will be present at both to lend what aid he can. Remember the time and places, West Pullman, Illinois, September 1, 2; and Buffalo Prairie, Illinois, September 8, 9.

SELECTIONS FROM MY NOTEBOOK.

BY M. J. PHIPPS.

WHILE looking over some scribbled thoughts in my notebook taken in the last two years, it occurred to me that some of them might be of interest to others, so will pass them around; and I know of no better medium than the department in the Herald.

The General Sunday School Association was formed in April, 1891. We now have schools in nearly every State, in foreign lands, and in the islands of the sea.

Question Books were first used for primary classes, and Compendiums for Bible classes. Next were the Teachers' Helps, then the Gospel Quarterly.

A school should keep a systematic record. It should be a complete history of the school.

The secretary should make a complete record of every pupil—his age, department, scholarship, and attendance; also of all business transacted by the school.

Children should be taught to give and to do it systematically.

Commence getting a library as soon as possible; then add to it as you can and have need to.

Teachers meetings are very important and necessary. All should attend them, whether teachers or not.

A teacher should think much about his class and the lesson early in the week. He should know the following lesson and study carefully how he is going to teach it. [He should know the lesson more than a week ahead so that he can properly assign the following lesson and plan for future work.—ED.]

Study for something new to bring into each lesson. In your reading through the week have it in mind to draw something from it that will help you in teaching the Sunday lesson, something that will make the lesson clearer. One good moral principle taught each week and well fixed in the mind will accomplish much in time. A true principle, whether from the Bible or elsewhere, is of great worth. Simple illustrations of the truths taught will make them more easily remembered.

If you have a temperance lesson to teach, prepare yourself with an egg, a glass tumbler, and a vial of alcohol. Your class will not soon forget a lesson taught with these. If you do not know how to perform with them, ask your druggist to show you. [We would suggest that the writer give to the reader the experiment he has in mind to be performed.—ED.]

Study variety. I have seen scholars interested in this way whose attention it was almost impossible to gain in any other way.

To secure prompt attendance: Let the teacher be prompt. Let the school open promptly. Talk to them about punctuality, good behavior, good lessons, good attention, etc. Let the pupil see that the teacher is interested in the work to be always there.

WE have a number of articles without any signature attached or any outside information as to who wrote them or where they are from. It is not often that we like to use an article without knowing its origin. It might so happen that we would use something that had once been published and not give proper credit. This is termed amongst editors "stealing," and we do not wish to be one who does not "give honor where honor belongs." Again, we wish to know whose opinions we are reading and something of the person's whereabouts. One in Canada might be successful in a certain way of reaching the people. Place him in the sunny South and he might utterly fail. Why? Because the environment is so different. Hence the necessity of knowing from whence an article comes. One more reason why we wish to know: We are trying to get acquainted with our fellow workers in every part of the land. That is to learn who the workers are, what they are doing or can do, and what they ought to do. We would like so much to meet all face to face, but this cannot be very soon, so must be content to get acquainted with you through the mail and through the reports of work done.

If you have any bright, pithy short articles, paragraphs or lines, send them in. Or if they are of some other description, send them anyway. We can make good use of them. If they are too long, we may be obliged to abridge them, but will try and not destroy the full meaning thereof.

Many very good articles are read at nearly every convention. Why not send them in? If in doubt as to their merit, let the editor decide. That is a part of his work. Let us hear from you all.

Letter Department.

LETTER FROM OBSERVER.

MAGNOLIA, IOWA, July 29.

Editors Herald:—It is some time since I inflicted upon your readers the task of reading an epistle from my pen, and I am not sure the present one will afford any great pleasure. It is true I have no great troubles to complain of, and if I had I would keep them to myself, for it is not pleasant to read lugubrious reports, telling of great sacrifices that one is making and the terrible difficulties being encountered by us, as though we were the only ones afflicted. The fact is, this is a day of sacrifice, and he who will submit without murmuring will be amply rewarded for patient endurance. God says, "Gather my saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."

When I embraced this work, I saw that I must sacrifice the friendship of many whom I held dear, and that what little honor had attached to my name must be lost. Many of the pleasures of life must be foregone. The prospect of wealth and fame would be blasted, and a life of labor and privation must be unrewarded, so far as this life was concerned; and if old age with its feeble steps and failing sight was to be our lot, there was no prospect that it would be cheered with the comforts essential thereunto, except the pledge of him who said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." And it required an abiding faith to make the promise our own, and almost superhuman courage to enable one to take up the burden and gird on the armor and then march to the great battlefield to encounter the foes of God and man and "fight the good fight of faith" until victory rode triumphant on the banner of eternal truth. And I am not sure that I possess the needed faith, the enduring courage, and the Christlike patience to obtain the crown that is laid up for those that endure to the end. Yet my trust is in God and his law is my delight. As Jacob said, "Few and evil have the days of my pilgrimage been," yet in those few days I have proved that God is faithful to his promise, in every hour of need, and that his service affords greater pleasure, joy, and blessings than the world with all its glittering show and dazzling promises can give, and by this token of his love I am still encouraged to hold on to the "rod of iron," and though my efforts are feeble, such as they are they will continue to be exerted in, and for the cause of eternal truth.

I am glad to see the young men pushing to the front, and wielding the sword of truth; and I hope and trust it is not for love of ease from manual toil, nor for the little that the church treasury may afford, but from an earnest devoted zeal for God and truth; if the latter is the motive that impels to action, eternity alone can measure their joy and the greatness of the blessings they shall receive; but if unworthier motives actuate us in seeking to adorn ourselves with the sacred armor, then eternal shame and disgrace shall be ours. It is our duty to see how much we can do for the cause of truth, and how little we can do with from the church treasury.

Some who are in the field to-day entered it when there was no church treasury to draw from, nor even the prospect of an old folks' home to go to when a life of arduous toil and privation has sapped their physical frame of its vigor. I see some of them in the quorums of the Presidency, and Twelve, and other quorums, and I dare guarantee they will never be found saying God had forsaken them; nor that he had ever proved unfaithful to his promise. The last piece of bread may have gone from the loaf, the last coal placed upon the fire, and the last cent from the purse; but their necessities have been supplied, and that from sources unexpected to them; and sometimes unknown; and this is one of the many evidences the writer has that God acknowledges this work as his own.

One of the things needed to-day to make our labor a success is economy, individual and collective. Ministers need to practice it, families need to practice it, and the church needs to practice it in all its departments. "Owe no man anything but love," is advice that is as necessary to the church to-day as it was in Paul's day, and cannot be ignored either by the individual or by the church without bringing failure and disgrace. The church is in debt, whether wisely brought into that condition or otherwise, this writer may not be a competent judge. It is enough to know that it is in debt, and we, the membership including all the officials of every grade, constitute the church, and it is our business to see that the body is free—the business of every member of the body. It is not wise to stop and cavil about how the body became enthralled, only as we may be led by proper inquiry to be more watchful and avoid the evil hereafter. Our business to-day is to get out of debt. Debt is an incubus that fetters and cripples the body, depresses and discourages the heart, and the longer it remains the heavier it weighs, and must end in financial ruin if not lifted; and may end in spiritual ruin. Of one thing the writer feels assured, that if the highest wisdom has not guided, the purest motives have prompted those who have been called to be our servants, in their action, the one desire has been to bring about the greatest good to the cause of truth. This is my firm belief, obtained from many years of acquaintance and association; yet I confess I fail to see the wisdom of going beyond our known strength. I believe the proclamation of the gospel to the world should be the one object of the church, and my past experience and observation as well as my acquaintance with God's word teaches me that the true qualification of his ministry must come by the power of his Spirit, which will always be supplied when we do our part. Do not understand me as despising or even ignoring education; I have always felt my lack of that great boon, and I realize the conditions of our age demand it; but I do think we might have commenced in a style more in keeping with our means. One of our large branches went beyond their means in securing a house of worship, and they were wisely advised to the effect that "we should plan and work according to our means." That advice should govern in all things. But how much easier it is to give than to practice good advice! The fact remains that we are in debt, whether by our individual consent or not; and if we are sincere in declaring our faith that this is indeed the Church of Christ, let us show our faith by our works and try to make the church honorable and honored by doing all we can to lift the debt, that Zion may be enabled to lift her head, realizing she is free, that she may go forth on her divine mission, declaring the glad tidings of the gospel to every nation, that Christ may be justified in judging them as nations, that the kingdom of God may be established upon all the earth. The gospel faith is the faith that works by love, and if we love the Church of Christ let us individually and collectively do all we can to set her free, and our sacrifices will be approved of God, and great peace and blessing will come unto all Israel.

Yours for the honor of God's kingdom,
OBSERVER.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 5.

Editors Herald:—We left Kirtland, Ohio, the morning of July 27, arriving at Buffalo in afternoon; took the electric car line for Niagara Falls; met with saints in meeting that evening at the house of Bro. and Sr. Plato on the Canadian side, several from American side of the river coming over, having been apprised of our coming. A good meeting was enjoyed, the Spirit being visibly present, and we were glad to meet the faithful who have stood by the gospel work for years in that place. Were kindly entertained and cared for by Bro. and Sr. Plato. The sympathy manifested with "Uncle Samuel" in his present difficulty with Spain, by Her Majesty's subjects also won our affections, unmistakable tokens of which abounded everywhere, and we were not able to detect much difference in the air that we breathed and which floated "Old Glory" upon either side of that line which seems to be quite perceptibly growing indistinct that separates us from Great Britain geographically.

The following forenoon in company with Bro. George Sinclair, of St. Mary's, Ontario, we took the electric line down the river, past the rapids, whirlpool, etc., stopping at Brock's monument, down to the end of the line opposite Lewiston. Friday evening found us in New York, coming via boat from Albany. Sunday, met with Brooklyn saints; spoke for them afternoon and evening, with the Spirit's aid and power. Bro. Joseph Squires, who has long borne church burdens there and care of watching over the gospel interests in that city, still holding on, hoping for help and the dawn of brighter days. There are faithful saints still in Brooklyn, but they need help and encouragement. We were glad to see the temporal and spiritual prosperity of our young friend and brother, Ephraim Squires, and feel certain that God has endowed him with capabilities for church service. We were finely entertained by "Joe" and Ephraim, who gave us a fine time at Coney Island Saturday afternoon. Fish dinner, sea bathing, etc., and we've felt better we think ever since.

A visit to Central Park and the Art Museum was enjoyed Monday, leaving 6:30 for Providence on the fine sound steamer Plymouth, a night of fog, with constant blowing of steamer's whistle to prevent collision or accident; was sufficient also to prevent much sleep. The mists "rolled away," however, in early morning, and the ride up Narragansett Bay was finely enjoyed, and as we neared Fox Point wharf we espied that "little woman" that I wrote you about in my last letter, accompanied by Florence and escort, waving handkerchiefs and welcome.

Wednesday eve we met with a room full of saints in their new chapel, and were filled with comfort and joy at reception and reunion with friends of other days. Better than all, however, was the Spirit poured out, and the gospel gifts abounding, satisfying us that we were being led by our heavenly Father, even as we had earnestly sought to be. To-morrow morning early we are to be off to Cape Cod and the reunion. Hoping for a profitable meeting,

In bonds,
M. H. BOND.

POMONA, Cal., July 11.

Editors Herald:—I fear that you already have ample on the Bays' encounter to suit your limited space; and while I must compliment Bro. Mintun for the work done, yet no brief long-hand synoptical report can fully do justice to either disputant. I merely mention this that your readers may make full allowance in perusal. Had space and time admitted, some points could have been enlarged upon with safety to the church: but I forbear, and would not further mention it only there have been later developments which need attention.

The St. Louis Christian Evangelist of June 30 contains two communications, one from A. M. Haggard, Secretary of the Iowa Christian Convention, the other from Kelpie McDonald, of Persia, Iowa, (Bays' western headquarters,) which are unjust, false, and full of spleen. I will note their contention later on.

On the Book of Mormon proposition Elder Bays apparently rested his whole case on the tenability of his Egyptian language argument. Anticipating this, I was specially prepared for him, and they are now evidencing their complete chagrin by the usual cry of "fraud," "deception," etc. As you will observe in the farther progress of Bro. Mintun's report, little was said about the Book of Mormon characters until the last night. Knowing full well that my opponent expected to emulate Dewey in his last charge, I forestalled him by quoting his own witnesses, as used in his book, and, with other matter in hand, succeeded in fully impeaching them. Prior to the publication of his book Elder Bays apparently submitted a copy of the "characters," photographed from the original document borne by Martin Harris to Professor Anthon and held in the possession of David Whitmer, to several leading linguists, but for fear these "wise" ones might say something that would confirm the Book of Mormon, Elder Bays, to be fair (?), accompanied the slip with the following letter of "explanation and inquiry," and sent them to James B. Angell, of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor; also to Charles H. S. Davis, M. D., Ph. D., of Meriden, Connecticut, and to the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Moldenke, of New York. Here is the letter:—

"Dear Sir:—I herewith inclose what purports to be a facsimile of the characters found upon the gold plates from which it is claimed the Book of Mormon was translated. The advocates of Mormonism maintain that these characters are 'Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, and Arabic.'

"So far as I am informed, these characters have never been submitted to scholars of eminence for examination; and as the languages named fall within your province, including Egyptology and archaeology, your professional opinion as to their genuineness will be of great value to the general reader, in determining the exact truth with respect to this remarkable claim. I would also like your opinion upon the following questions; namely:—

"1. Did Hebrew scholars at any time, either before or since Christ, keep their records on tablets or plates of brass?

"2. If so, did they ever write in the Egyptian language?

"3. Is there any evidence to show that the Pentateuch was ever written upon such plates of brass?

"4. Is there any proof that the law of Moses, or even the decalogue, was ever written in the Egyptian language?"

Elder Bays does not tell us how many more "authorities" he sent these to or how many more answers he received. It would not be policy, you know.

Why should any fair-minded man have to resort to such prejudicial methods? Why should he preface his questions with a misstatement of facts? Why not be fair and inform these men exactly what the Book claimed these characters were? In the Book of Mormon, First Nephi, chapter 1, page 1, Nephi says: "I make a record of my proceedings in my days; yea, I make a record in the language of my father, which consists of the learning of the Jews, and the language of the Egyptians."

Here Nephi specifically states that the record or writing on plates was made in a language particularly their own, originating with his father, which language consisted not of the Egyptian alone, but said language comprised the "learning of the Jews, and the language of the Egyptians." It was neither distinctly Hebraic nor Egyptian; it comprised part of both. Again Mosiah (chap. 1 par. 4) speaking about Lehi the father of the colony, said: "He having been taught in the language of the Egyptians, therefore he could read these engravings, [those on Laban's plates,] and teach them to his children, that thereby they could teach them to their children."

Now in the Book of Mormon, chapter 4, page 500, Mormon says: "And now behold, we have written this record according to our knowledge, in the characters, WHICH ARE CALLED AMONG US THE REFORMED EGYPTIAN, being handed down and altered by us, according to our manner of speech. And if our plates had been sufficiently large, we should have written in Hebrew; but the Hebrew hath been altered by us also; and if we could have written in Hebrew, behold, ye would have had no imperfection in our record. But the Lord knoweth the things which we have written, and also that NONE OTHER PEOPLE KNOWETH OUR LANGUAGE, therefore he hath prepared means for the interpretation thereof."

Now, in the claims made for the language there is not one word about "Chaldaic, Assyrian and Arabic." The ignorant New Yorkers, Joseph Smith and Martin Harris, had no way of telling what characters these were outside of the claims of the book itself. When Harris took the "characters" to Anthon his answer upon an examination of the transcript was as follows: Harris says: "I went to the city of New York and presented the characters which had been transcribed with the translation thereof, to Professor Anthon, a gentleman celebrated for his literary attainments. Professor Anthon stated that the translation was correct; more so than any he had before seen translated from the Egyptian; I then showed him those that were not translated, and HE SAID they were Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, and Arabic and HE SAID that they were true characters."

You will observe that there were two slips presented; the characters on one Anthon called Egyptian, those on the other he calls "Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, and Arabic." It was Anthon that made this claim, not the advocates of Mormonism, as Bays asserts. Joseph Smith and Orson Pratt were both ignorant of Egyptian or any other of these languages at that time, and in their reference to the matter quoted Professor Anthon, then an unquestioned authority as a linguist. Anthon is their witness as much as ours, for they quote a purported letter from him published by E. D. Howe, who was the legiti-mate father of that "Spalding Story," which Bays now denounces, and should Bays and his confederates succeed in showing that there was neither "Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, or Arabic" in the plate under examination, they have but disclosed the ignorance of this worldly "wise" one whose wisdom Isaiah said "shall perish," and it only tends to confirm our position. Could the linguists of the age prove that the characters in question were distinctly Egyptian or any other known language, they would overthrow the claims of the book, for Mormon said "none other people knoweth our language." Go on, Mr. Bays, and multiply the testimony of all the linguists of the age that these plates are not distinctly in harmony with any ancient or modern language. This is exactly what the Book claims for itself; for remember the Book of Mormon does not claim that these characters are Egyptian, but "Reformed Egyptian" and so far reformed that "none other people knoweth our language."

If Joseph Smith had been the knave Alexander Campbell and his ilk have ever sought to make him appear, he would never have arranged things as they were; he would have submitted genuine Egyptian characters and made the book so claim. If Anthon had been able to read the book, then, according to Isaiah, its divine claims were false. Now comes Bays, Davis, Moldenke, and Angell, and unwittingly confirm the very claim of the Book of Mormon in stating that Anthon did not read it and confessing that they cannot. The only contention that we expect to make is that there is an Egyptian resemblance with some of the characters. As evidence that Bays' letter worked on these men's prejudices note Angell's answer:—

"The document you inclose raises a moral rather than a linguistic problem." Why so? If those were true characters, however moral or immoral use they be put to, they still remain true. Suppose fifty years from now a man digging up the ruins of some overwhelmed city should come across a dime novel and because of its immoral tone should decide it was not written in the English language at all; or, to make a pertinent comparison, supposing some Christian should go to Egypt and finding a slab containing hieroglyphics denouncing the Christian philosophy, would be thereupon repudiate the whole slab as spurious? Would it be consistent?

He concludes with, "The impression made is that the document was fraudulent." But fraudulent in what respect? In regard to its divine claims or the characters? Angell says, "A few letters or signs are noticeable which CORRESPOND more or less closely to the Aramaic, sometimes called Chaldee language; for example s, h, g, t, l, b, n."—Ibid. 263.

But listen, gentle reader, while Chas. H. S. Davis testifies:—

"I can positively assert that there is not a letter to be found in the facsimile submitted that can be found in the alphabet of any Oriental language, particularly of those you refer: namely, Egyptian, Chaldaic, Assyrian, or Arabic. A careful study of the facsimile shows that they are characters put down at random by an ignorant person with no resemblance to anything."

Which is correct, jurymen, Angell, President of the University of Michigan, and his Professor of Oriental language, or Chas. H. S. Davis, of the medical fraternity? With all due respect to these men, we must note a conflict; the witnesses have crossed themselves, hence their testimony is unreliable.

On question No. 1 Angell says that "there is no evidence that the Hebrews kept their records on plates or tablets of brass, BUT THE ASSYRIANS IN THE EIGHTH CENTURY DID."—Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism, p. 263.

Dr. Chas. H. S. Davis says: "No record has ever shown that the Hebrews, OR ANY OTHER EASTERN NATION KEPT THEIR RECORDS UPON PLATES OR TABLETS OF BRASS."—Ibid., 265.

Here are two witnesses introduced by Bays to prove that our position on tablets of brass was a fraud, and these witnesses directly cross each other. Do they not invalidate their own testimony?

Let it be borne in mind that it is not claimed that the writing on brass or gold plates was extensive among the Hebrews, but there was one series of plates which through the death of Laban came into the hands of Lehi and was by him preserved. But as to whether the Hebrews wrote on plates or tablets let their history speak for itself:—

Job 19:23, 24 "Oh, that my words were now written! oh that they were printed in a book, That they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock forever." "And they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold and wrote upon it a writing like to the engravings of a signet, Holiness to the Lord."—Ex. 30:30.

In the Douay translation of the Bible in 1 Maccabees 14:48, 49 (Apocrypha): "And they commanded that this writing should be put in tablets of brass and that they should be set up within the compass of the sanctuary, in a conspicuous place, and that a copy thereof should be put in the treasury, that Simon and his sons may have it."

Again, 1 Kings 7:30, 36: "Upon the ledges there was a base above and every base had four brazen wheels and plates of brass. . . . For on the plates of the ledges thereof, and on the borders thereof he graved cherubims, lions, and palm trees."

After the destruction of Jerusalem, about A. D. 70, Titus, the Roman, called at Antioch, and the people presented to him a petition against the Jews. Of this translation Josephus says: "Whereupon the people of Antioch, when they had failed of success in this their first request, made him a second, for they desired that he would order those tablets of brass to be removed on which the Jews' privileges were engraven."—Josephus vol. 6, p. 132.

"The Century Magazine" for January, 1894, contained an article from the pen of Morris Jastrou, Jr., entitled, "The Bible and the Assyrian Monuments." B. E. Botta in 1842 commenced excavations at Mosul on the banks of the Tigris and "unearthed an Assyrian palace of vast dimensions. In the buildings thus brought to light there were found tablets of gold, silver, copper, and antimony, all covered with writing in the strange cuneiform characters."

Plato in the work "Critias" says of the ancients: "And when they had given judgment they wrote down their sentences on a golden tablet and deposited them as memorials."—Atlantis, p. 20.

Reader, what do you think of the reliability of Bays' witnesses in the light of the foregoing? Both Angell and Davis deny that the Hebrews wrote on tablets. The Bible says they did; Josephus confirms it. Davis denies that any eastern nation ever did, while I have shown by Angell (Bays' other witness) and reliable finds that the Assyrians did.

Again, Bays' other witness is Rev. Chas. E. Moldenke, D. D. He states in his letter to Bays: "In the second place though some signs remind one of those on the Mesa Inscription, yet none bear a resemblance, to Egyptian or Assyrian."

In a letter dated Mt. Vernon, New York, Jan. 13, 1898, and addressed to Bro. F. M. Sheehy, of Boston, Massachusetts, he says:—

Mr. Frank M. Sheehy; Dear Sir:—Your inquiry has not been answered by me sooner on account of stress of work. I had occasion to answer a similar inquiry to yours while in Jerusalem last year. While some of the characters bear a very slight RESEMBLANCE to old Hebrew and Egyptian letters; viz., [characters omitted for lack of type.—Ed.], still the whole page shows plainly the work of the forger and ignoramus. In fact sentences lettered in Arabic, Hebrew, Egyptian promiscuously would be sheer nonsense. All the characters of this 'Book of Mormon' are not even a clever invention but a barefaced and idiotic scribble. Returning to you the printed sheet, I remain,

"Yours respectfully,

"CHARLES MOLDENKE."

In the rule of testimony when a witness makes two statements on a given point, each opposite to the other, he is impeached. With all due respect to Dr. Moldenke, his two statements will not blend. In his letter to Bays, Moldenke says: "None bear a resemblance to Egyptian or Assyrian." In his letter to Bro. Sheehy he picks out five characters which he says "bear a very slight resemblance to old Hebrew and Egyptian letters." Your third witness, Elder Bays, has crossed himself.

The point on which Bays places so much stress and on which Moldenke in both letters speaks; viz.; "sentences lettered in Arabic, Hebrew, Egyptian promiscuously would be sheer nonsense," counts for nothing when the real claims of the book are introduced. Bays wrote these men that we claimed there were four languages represented on the cut. This is not our claim at all! Moldenke says it would be absurd, and I presume he is right; but when it becomes apparent that we do not so claim, and that the Book of Mormon teaches the very opposite, what becomes of Bays' position? Now the only point in Moldenke's letter is that relating to Egyptian and Hebraic resemblance, and in one he says they do not and in the other he says they do;—hence by the rule of evidence the testimony is worthless.

We will consider the communications in the Christian Evangelist, both inspired by the doughty warrior Bays. Haggard says:—

"The Latter Day Saints (Mormons) number 4,131 in Iowa according to the State census of 1895. Lamoni is their Jerusalem. They are especially bitter towards us. This bitterness seems intensified since D. H. Bays left them and came to us. Bro. Bays' book 'Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism,' has made him and us special targets."

Lamoni is no more our Jerusalem than Des Moines is the Mecca of the Disciples. We are not specially bitter towards them. In every debate that I have ever held their own members have confessed that I did not use as much spleen and bitterness as they expected. D. H. Bays did not leave the "Mormons" and go into the Disciple fold,—far from it. He roamed around for years, mixing up with Methodists, turning Baptist, and each time tiring with the amount of "pastorage," he sought other fields, and anticipating a ready purchaser for his wares, he flops into this subjunctive fold. We concur that Bays' book has made him and the Disciples special targets. Job said: "Oh, that mine adversary had written a book!" and I now know why—Unless the Campbellite fraternity haul down this muddled banner we shall not only riddle it throughout, but its singular characteristics will ever disclose their whereabouts and distinctively weak points.

He continues; "on May 9 he met their champion, T. W. Williams, at Mondamin, Iowa. I have reason to suppose it was 'a sad but glorious day' for the saints. (1) My first reason is this: Neither T. W. Williams nor one of his lieutenants has sent me a message—not even a word of exultation. After the Fremont County debate they added largely to my mail. Not so this time. Why this silence? Is it that silence which speaks louder than words?"

The facts are T. W. Williams has been no more silent since the Mondamin debate than after the Fremont County debate; and I call for the proof that T. W. Williams or any of his lieutenants ever added to A. M. Haggard's mail. The statement is not correct, but, like the ordinary Campbellite reports, it is composed of imaginary cloth. If "T. W. Williams and his lieutenants" have felt it a "sad but glorious day," and if their silence is so ominous and their defeat so crushing, why is it that the Saints' Herald and Zion's Ensign are wasting so much time, money, and valuable space in proclaiming that defeat to the world? Special pains too are being taken by the reporters to do full justice to Elder Bays' arguments. I opine if these men will read the Missouri Valley Times, an impartial observer, in its report of the debate, they will not gloat so much.

He continues: "Here is my third reason: I recently met the Mondamin pastor and Bro. D. H. Bays. They showed me some of the astounding trickery of the Mormon champion. I find that I have given him and the saints (?) altogether too much credit for honesty and sincerity. I supposed them deluded but good men. It seems now that they are not deluded at all, but devilish. Here is what Mr. Williams did: he read from a letter written by a teacher of languages in one of America's great universities these words: 'Le Plongeon, Donnelly, and other writers have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian.' Now Prof. Chas. H. S. Davis wrote every word quoted above; but read his whole sentence as he wrote it. 'Le Plongeon, Donnelly, and other writers of strong imagination have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian, but philologists have not as yet found any affinity whatever.'

Mr. McDonald gives his version of it thus: "Elder Williams, in order to meet the testimony of scholars concerning the characters of the Book of Mormon plates, undertook to prove that there existed a very strong affinity between the Reformed Egyptian of the Book of Mormon and the Maya, the language of Ancient America. With this end in view he read an extract from a letter he had just received from Chas. H. S. Davis, M. D., Ph. D., of Meriden, Connecticut, whose testimony is given in Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism. In heavy pencil he underscored the exact words he wished to read omitting everything else which read thus: 'Le Plongeon and Donnelly have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian.' This was exactly what he sought to prove, and what he must establish in order to make out a case. Just how well he succeeded in this undertaking may be seen by what follows: 'Le Plongeon, Donnelly, and other writers of strong imagination, have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian, but philologists have not as yet found any affinity whatever.' Williams reluctantly permitted a copy to be made of the letter and the above is an exact copy of the paragraph (underscored and all) from which he read the garbled extract first above quoted."

I am convinced now that some men judge others guilty according to their own predilections. The purloiner is generally the first to cry, Stop thief? Men are very apt to suspect others of the very things they themselves are guilty. First, McDonald says I "undertook to prove that there existed a very strong affinity between the Reformed Egyptian of the Book of Mormon and the Maya." This is untrue, but before he goes very far he contradicts this for he says, "Le Plongeon and Donnelly have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian.' This was exactly what he [Williams] sought to prove and what he must establish to make out a case." Now, honor bright, Mr. McDonald, which was it? Was I trying to show an identity between the characters of the Book of Mormon and the Maya, or between the Maya and Egyptian, or was it between the Egyptian and the Book of Mormon characters? McDonald misstates facts as regards the underscoring, and contradicts Haggard on what I said.

Haggard gives this as my statement: "Le Plongeon, Donnelly and other writers have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian;" while McDonald gives it: "Le Plongeon and Donnelly have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian.' Now, what did I say? These men don't agree. The facts are, neither is correct.

Ever since I have been affirming the Book of Mormon claims I have had to answer the negation that linguists had never yet found any resemblance between the Maya of America and the Egyptian. I had previously asserted that Le Plongeon, Donnelly, and others had so discovered. Sometimes this point was controverted, and not having access to all these works I was unable to completely confirm it. Anticipating Elder Bays' denial I wrote Mr. Davis, asking him several questions, one of which was whether any scholars claimed similarity between the Maya and the Egyptian. Mr. Davis' letter to me is as follows.—

MERIDEN, Conn., 10 May, 1898.

"Mr. T. W. Williams; Dear Sir:—I send you to-day an article on the Egyptian language which will answer some of your questions. The complete book of which I send a part is now out of print. The Maya language most resembles the Hittite, although no similarity has yet been found, Le Plongeon, Donnelly, and other writers of strong imaginations have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian, but philologists have not as yet found any affinity whatever. The Maya resembles the Hittite only in appearance and no other affinity has yet been found.

"Respectfully,
"CHAS. H. S. DAVIS."

In the course of my Book of Mormon affirmation I had occasion to refer to the resemblance as found between the aboriginal American languages and the Egyptian, and Bays questioned my authority. I did not read Davis' letter at all, but to silence his objections and show even by his own witness that some had found a similarity I held the letter in my hand and said, I have here a letter from Prof. Chas. H. S. Davis in which he admits to me that Le Plongeon, Donnelly, and others have found a good many resemblances between the Maya and the Egyptian, and Elder Bays or anybody else can examine the letter when they please! I never wrote Davis about the plates of the Book of Mormon and their Egyptian resemblance, and there was nothing in the letter affecting that point. At the close of the service I told Bays he could have the letter the next day to copy; and to show how "reluctantly" (?) I "permitted a copy to made," early the next morning I sent the letter down to Bays by Bro. J. R. Lambert. If I had intended fraud or had been guilty of deception think you I would have so willingly done this? This point in Davis' letter was brought in when I was giving archaeological proof that the aborigines of this continent understood a phonetic alphabet closely analogous if not in many points identical with the Egyptian. The letter and the reference to it had nothing whatever to do with the Book of Mormon plates and their Egyptian character. Elder Bays knew this. It was not vital that I show a similarity between the Maya and the Egyptian; and yet said proof formed cumulative evidence on the whole proposition, and as it was denied by Bays I affirmed. But why make this point do service where never intended? Why misrepresent facts? Bays knew, and I knew, and every intelligent person in the audience knew Davis' position on the Book of Mormon, for it had been read and reread. Why did not Bays show up my duplicity (?) before the debate ended where I had a chance to reply? No, he must be Christlike (?) and sedulously use it when I had no chance to oppose. Of course this was done in return for the gratuitous copy given him! The night the discussion closed he announced a lecture for the following evening, stating that he would not deal with anything brought up in the discussion but would relate his reminiscences. I could not be present, but am informed he went over this whole ground. Which, pray reader, has been guilty of duplicity? Bays garbled Book of Mormon statements, misstated others, and deliberately perverted some; but its all right for a Christian (?) you know.

Now let me ask the Rev. Mr. Haggard where, ever by tongue or pen, have you given the "Mormon champion" or the saints any credit for honesty and sincerity? I have read a number of references from this man's pen in relation to our people, but never one word in our favor. This sounds rich: "I supposed them deluded but good men. It seems that they are not deluded at all, but devilish." So because one man goes wrong (?) all the saints are devilish! Not long since I had occasion to read a warning from this same man against some bad men among their clergy. Is Haggard and all the "brotherhood" devilish because of it? Haggard's logic says yes. When the hypocritical Pharisees, could not answer Christ they said he had a devil, and when the modern pharisee cannot answer his servants they call them "devilish."

Again he says: "I never believed it until recently, but Mormonism is made up of this kind of rot. Bays was raised from a boy among them. Just such discoveries of rottenness opened his eyes and brought him out from among them."

If all the saints are "devilish" and "dishonest" and "rot," then Bays was so too, and after spending nearly half a century in what Haggard calls "devilishness and rot" he apparently made a wonderful stride forward to now become a "child of Providence." If a child of Providence, it must have been God's will for this renowned convert to fraternize with devilish and dishonest people and play the hypocrite with them in order that he may learn something to expose; or if honest, Haggard's statement is a reflection on the man's mentality in that it took him half a century to make the discovery. If Mr. Bays is satisfied with this Haggard-ly logic, then assuredly I am. But birds of a feather will flock together, and the last time I saw Elder Bays he was looking Haggard too. Not so fast yet, Mr. Haggard, you err in stating that just such discovery of rottenness opened Bays' eyes. The facts are that after being without a mission for several years Elder Bays applied to the Quorum of Twelve Apostles at St. Joseph, Missouri, in 1889, for a mission, and no appointment was given him! He was willing to continue preaching "rot," but the church said "no."

They also charge that I misapplied the Moldenke letter, but as I made precisely the same argument as I have in this article, I will let the reader judge. As soon as possible I will submit for your consideration what I believe will be a complete overthrow of every argument made by Bays on this point. I think every contention raised by Bays can be successfully answered. We must get out a small work refuting his blundering and misleading assault.

Fraternally,
T. W. WILLIAMS.

BLENCOE, Iowa, Aug. 8.

Editors Herald:—The tent meetings closed here last night with an attendance of between three and four hundred; and we learn that the resident minister, who was conspicuous by his absence from all our services since we came here, closed his services last night sooner than usual because of his congregation leaving and coming to our services. Two will be baptized to-day, and several others persuaded; but it is not so they can obey to-day, but say they will in the near future. Since we have been here we have had an average of about seventy five in attendance, and the greatest interest on the part of the people generally I have experienced at any services held for several months. God's Spirit was manifest to a marked degree.

We go to River Sioux, by urgent request from those acquainted with the needs of the work there, to begin services to-morrow night. Mr. E. L. Hogue, though not a member of any church, has done as much to make the meetings a success as could possibly be done by one in like situation. My associates, Brn. Hubert Case and R. Chambers, with the assistance of Sr. Alice Case, have each rendered their proportion of assistance.

Prospects for a goodly ingathering at this place, the brightest of any place I am acquainted with in the mission.

With bright hope, and encouraging prospects for a grand work to be accomplished this year in this mission, I subscribe myself,

Your brother,
J. F. MINTUN.

BAKER, Kan., Aug. 7.

Editors Herald:—Since conference my first effort was at Huston, a new place. Bad weather prevented some but good was done. I attended conference of Northeast Kansas district at Scranton, a very pleasant time, and four were baptized.

Bro. Pender appointed Bro. Cather and I to labor with the tent. We commenced at Oakland, a suburb of Topeka. Prejudice, rain, and no singing ruled us out of a crowd, but we intend going back to the city of Topeka later on. From this point we moved the tent to Atchison. The saints were as good as they could be to lend a helping hand, and a goodly number of outsiders came and we trust they heard sufficient to bring them to God in his time.

On the 25th of July I commenced a public debate with Elder M. H. Allred, of the Utah Church of Latter Day Saints, which lasted eight sessions of two hours each. It is out of the ordinary for them to debate with our men, and I think it the better policy for them not to meet them. I never felt better over a debate in my life. Without boasting I can say that I answered every objection brought against our claims by Mr. Allred and defeated him in a substantial way by the standard books and by all other evidences collected by different brethren in the church, which are strong enough to one though of the best talent they have in Utah. Mr. Allred is or was a prominent man in Wyoming politics and quite a fair talker, but I do hope they will have courage to continue to meet our men, as it is just the thing to draw the line between us and them, as one man expressed it after attending the debate that "every string had two ends to it."

It would be useless to mention the arguments on either side, as we only used those familiar to the church; but we made our opponent defend Adam-God, blood atonement, and polygamy, much to his dislike. We discovered all his evidence, for this kind of doctrine came from Utah sources.

Bro. Frank Lofty, of Osage City, acted as my moderator; and I will say, no better can be found. The outlook for good work is splendid in the mission; more places than men to fill.

Yours for truth,
J. ARTHUR DAVIS.

NORMAN, O. T., August 9.

Editors Herald:—Since being in this field (Oklahoma) over four years I can say that the work has been opened in many new places. Brn. Montague, Heman C. and T. J. Smith, Macrae, Duncan, Hinkle, and others have labored faithfully. The result is we have good kind friends all over the mission, anxious in many places to hear more about the latter-day work. After they have heard a little they desire to be "more fully instructed in the way of truth;" but we have been in need of laborers and are still in need. Those who have been sent here by the conference have been compelled at different times to stop ministerial work in order to provide for their families.

With the few scattering saints in Oklahoma (and they having come to a new country to find a home for themselves) it would be folly to expect them considering circumstances, to be able to financially support the needs of this mission. There have been many reports sent in from this mission during the past four years bearing testimony that Oklahoma was a good field, with encouraging prospects for the angel's message. Much labor has been done. It has been commenced, and we want it to go forward with a steady move. The church cannot, and it surely does not, expect an elder to spend his time in the ministry and have his family neglected for three, four, six, and nine months without getting a dollar from the church. We have therefore been compelled to allow the calls for preaching to go unanswered, till in places those who were about ready to enter the fold have drifted away and, while they remain friendly they have become indifferent.

Some of the saints have forgotten or rather wandered from the path of duty. And yet we believe if they could be visited once in two or three months there would be an upward move in Christian life. Therefore, in the interest of the work in Oklahoma, we request that our missionaries be sustained in the field and not be allowed or compelled to seek employment at low wages and thereby neglect the work of the Lord and the salvation of those seeking for the old paths. I am willing to sacrifice all that my strength will allow in order to preach the gospel of Christ, but, there is no requirement that I have found in the gospel for me to leave my family unprovided for and labor for the interest of others. Therefore, as the saints everywhere are anxious and delighted to have the elders come, saints don't forget that the elder is working for you and for your interest, (If not, what makes you glad to have him come?) and that he needs traveling expenses, postage, etc.; and that his family has to live the same as yours. And if you do not contribute, who will? Think of it; it will do you good. The gospel of Jesus Christ will not save us unless we obey. Parts of the gospel are to be observed before baptism, other parts or requirements make their demands upon us after baptism. Each are equally necessary.

Our mission reunion will be held twelve miles west of Edmond, August 26 to September 5. We desire to see the good work go on. Let us not be slow in our effort to make the reunion a success. The Lord will bless us according to our diligence and activity in his work. Our work can be left undone better than we can afford to leave the Lord's work undone; so let us rally to the work. Come to the reunion, saints of Oklahoma, and all others who can, and let us trust and pray that God will bless us, and that our meeting will be a glorious one, not only for the saints but for others who are lingering and almost persuaded. I am still in the work, have full confidence in the angel's message, and hope to labor on till the Master comes.

Yours for cooperation,
R. M. MALONEY.

GUY, O. T., Aug. 4.

Editors Herald:—After reading Bro. J. N. Perkins' letter in July 20 Herald regarding leases in the Indian Territory, I thought of writing of this country, but gave it up until Bro. Stephen Maloney read us a letter from Weir, Kansas, stating that one Bro. Thomas had lost his wife, another their babe, Bro. S. Bird their babe; some one sick in almost every house; when I felt it a duty to tell the saints of this the healthiest country I ever dwelt in, on a high prairie between two rivers that run over pure white sand. Not a swamp nor mud hole. Finest prairie lands to lease from fifteen to twenty-five cents per acre for fifty miles down the river, Indian allotments.

But why lease that when hundreds of claims adjoining can be taken as homesteads, some better than some of the Indian lands?

Plenty of timber, and good water by digging for it. A very good season, and crops are wonderful.

I know something about new countries, having settled in California and in Kansas. Land is being taken very fast.

It would be well for those seeking homes to look here, eighty miles west and twenty north of Guthrie, Oklahoma; new railroad coming this way from El Reno has come twenty-five miles this year and is now fifty miles distant. In the one faith,

D. S. CRAWLEY.

Original Articles.

LATTER DAY EVENTS.—NO. 1.

BY ELDER JAMES COCKS.

I HAVE read with interest various articles that have come through the

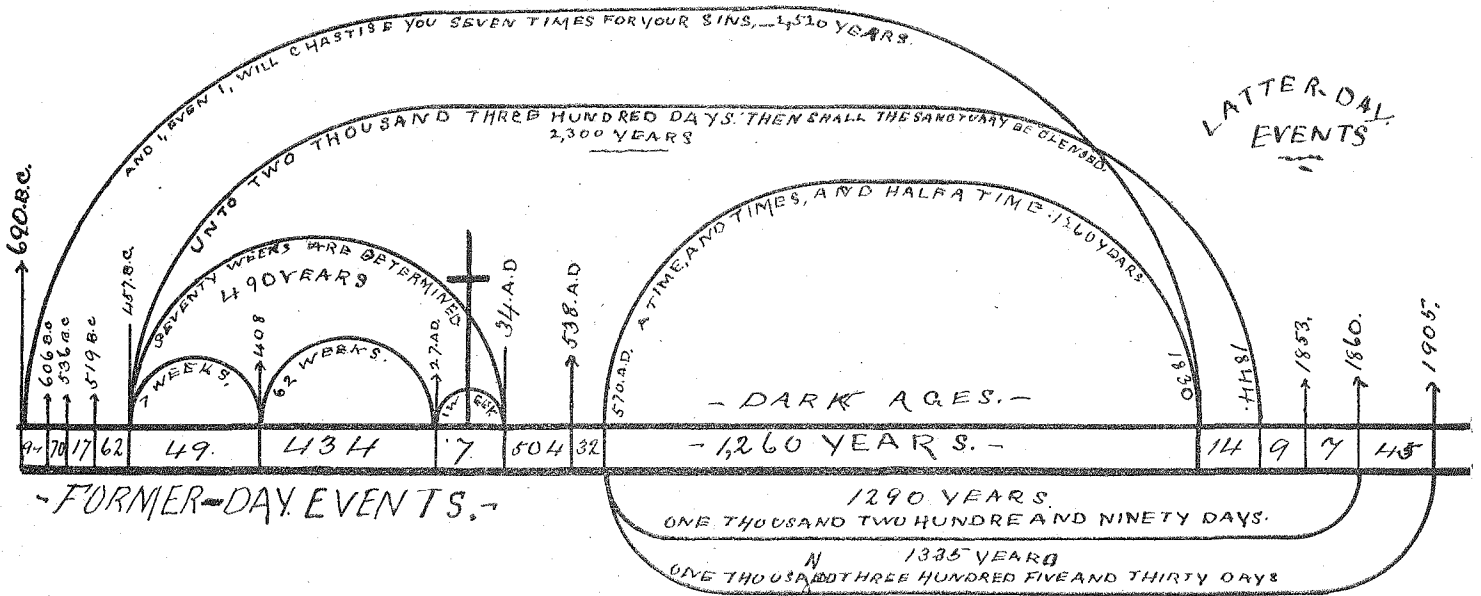

5. The calling of Joseph Smith, the present prophet, to lead the Reorganization, in 1860.

6. Important events will transpire in the church in 1905.

In presenting the following I desire to state that my primary object is to bring it before those who are qualified to handle it. If it shall stand the test, the saints and seekers after truth get the benefits.

We turn to the second chapter of Daniel and find the history of the world portrayed in the dream of Nebuchadnezzar, more particularly the history of the six centuries immediately following from about 606 B. C. All Bible students agree that the events dream was given—the latter end of the fifth century. By a careful reading of Daniel seventh chapter, we get additional light on what will transpire before the God of heaven shall set up the kingdom that shall never be destroyed. Daniel is shown four very notable beasts, each one representing empire, as shown in the image. In the beast is reflected the characteristics of each of those empires. The lion represents the golden age; the bear, the silver; the leopard, the brass; and the terrible beast with ten horns, the iron and clay, Rome in its divisional state, with the ten kingdoms developed. Daniel seems to have understood the first three, but

Herald, in reference to the work in which we are engaged, designated by Isaiah "a marvelous work and a wonder." I am satisfied if that work is now upon the earth, the principal events that have and will transpire in that work, are foreshadowed in the inspired scriptures; hence I make the following claims:—

1. The Jews were rejected for 1796 years, commencing 34 A. D., ending 1830.

2. Joseph Smith organized the Church of Jesus Christ at the proper time in direct fulfillment of prophecy—in 1830.

3. The death of Joseph Smith the latter-day prophet, and the apostasy from the work he established—1844.

4. The signs in the heavens indicate that important events are about to transpire—1853.

portrayed in this wonderful image have been literally fulfilled; that Babylon, with Nebuchadnezzar as its king, represents the golden age; Medo-Persia, the silver; Grecia, the brass; and Rome, the iron and clay, which constitutes that part of the image—the legs, feet, and toes. The toes are symbolical of the ten kingdoms which shall (and did) arise out of the Roman Empire.

And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed.—Dan. 2: 44.

The interpretation closes with these emphatic words, "the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure."

There is foreshadowed something the God of heaven is going to do after the rise and fall of these four notable empires, which was accomplished about one thousand years after the the fourth troubled him; hence he says:—

Then I would know the truth of the fourth beast, which was diverse from all the others, exceeding dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and his nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with his feet; and of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which came up, and before whom three fell; even of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake very great things, whose look was more stout than his fellows. I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them.—Dan. 7: 19-21.

Again:—

Thus he said, the fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. And the ten horns of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise: and another shall arise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings. And he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times [the divine order of events?] and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time [three and a half times—1260 years].—Dan. 7: 23-25.

In the above we learn that Rome was not only to be broken up into ten divisional parts, but another kingdom would arise (spiritual kingdom) and be diverse from them all, and have strength sufficient to subdue three of them, which power it would exercise for a certain period of time, to wear out the saints. This time must elapse and the saints be persecuted before the time would have come for the God of heaven to set the kingdom that would never be destroyed, and for the saints to possess it. By a careful study of Daniel eighth and ninth chapters, we get additional links which when put together will form a harmonious whole.

From the morning of creation down to the time of Christ, God has been exhorting his people through prophet and seer to walk in certain lines, that they might obtain divine favor and mercy through Christ who would come in the meridian of time to redeem them from a fallen and lost condition, authorizing sacrificial offerings symbolical of the great sacrifice on calvary's cross; yet their history shows us they were a stiff-necked people, hence had to pay the penalty of sin from time to time.

Jesus Christ's mission was at least twofold. While he came to suffer as a ransom for the sins of the world, he also came to set up his kingdom and authorize men to preach the gospel and usher in the new dispensation. This was not in fulfillment of Daniel 2:44, as some have supposed. The kingdom that shall never be destroyed is to be set up after Rome is divided; this was not accomplished until about five hundred years after Christ.

It was necessary for the kingdom of heaven to be set up at this time. In that kingdom were those that are called the saints of the Most High. Those saints were to be persecuted when this perverse horn power should come into existence. He would prevail over them for a stated period of time. Then the God of heaven will make good his word in setting up the kingdom which shall never be destroyed. Then the time will have come for the saints to possess the kingdom.

We turn to Daniel eighth chapter, and find the ground is again covered with additional details brought out, prefigured by the goat and ram. This is made plain to Daniel. That which pertains to the times of the end he does not understand. It was not designed for him to understand. (See Dan. 12: 8.)

It seems passing strange to me that so many professed Christians are loud in their praise of the harmony that exists in God's word, and especially in that part which indicates the rise and fall of these four notable empires, yet when they take up those prophetic lines and follow them to the times of the end, and announce the conclusion to the world and start a church, discord and confusion and untold misery are the result. Miller and others have made terrible mistakes in this regard, thus blasting hope and faith in God's word, and making infidels by the thousand.

If God is the author of the prophecies contained in the Bible, and the history of events in the past prove that he is, then it follows that part of the prophecies which reach down to the times of the end, must have their application; and when understood, as designed by their author, peace, harmony, faith, hope, and confidence in God's word will be the result. We read:—

Then I heard one saint speaking, and another saint said unto that certain saint which spake, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot? And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed. And it came to pass, when I, even I Daniel, had seen the vision, and sought for the meaning, then, behold, there stood before me as the appearance of a man. And I heard a man's voice between the banks of Ulai, which called, and said, Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision. So he came near where I stood: and when he came, I was afraid, and fell upon my face; but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man: for at the time of the end shall be the vision. Now as he was speaking with me, I was in a deep sleep on my face toward the ground: but he touched me, and set me upright. And he said, Behold, I will make thee know what shall be in the last end of the indignation: for at the time appointed the end shall be.—Dan. 8:13-19.

The fourteenth verse reads:—

And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed.

And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed.—Dan 2: 44.

It is evident there is a connection between this kingdom that God is to set up and the sanctuary that shall be cleansed.

By ascertaining when the two thousand and three hundred days commenced, we can locate when this cleansing process takes place; and if at that time we discover the kingdom of heaven set up, it will be easy to understand what this cleansing of the sanctuary means.

We turn to Isaiah 29:1-3:—

Woe to Ariel, to Ariel, the city where David dwelt! Add ye year to year; let them kill sacrifices. Yet I will distress Ariel, and there shall be heaviness and sorrow: and it shall be unto me as Ariel. And I will camp against thee round about, and will lay siege against thee with a mount, and I will raise forts against thee.

The above is a prophecy that relates to the fall of Jerusalem. This is fully described by Jeremiah and others. Jerusalem was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, about 606 B. C. He takes the inhabitants to Babylon to remain in captivity for seventy years. It is while they are in captivity that Daniel makes frequent petitions to God in reference to his people and the sanctuary. In response to his prayers, God opens up to him in vision the history of his people particularly down to the time of Christ, and then leaps centuries down the future to the times of the end. He says:—

Then I heard one saint speaking, and another saint said unto that certain saint which spake, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot? And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed.—Dan. 8: 13, 14.

Daniel evidently did not fully understand this, for in the following chapter we find him offering a most eloquent prayer, confessing his sins, and the sins of his people. Then the angel Gabriel comes to him and explains a portion of the vision related in the previous chapter. He says:—

Yea, while I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation. And he informed me, and talked with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding.—Dan. 9: 21, 22.

Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal [that part of the vision that refers to the times of the end, which was not for Daniel to understand] up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy [Christ]. Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, unto the Messiah the prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times. And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. And he [Christ] shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: And in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice [of the past 4,000 years] and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate.—Dan. 9: 24-27.

In the above we learn that a certain period of time is determined upon the Jewish people. By a careful study of other scripture, in connection with the above, we find that if they do not heed the command of God they will be rejected as a nation or people, and that rejection will take effect at the end of the seventy weeks—the time that is determined upon them.

The words time, times, months, weeks, and days, are found in Daniel and in the Revelation of St. John as donating periods of time. We are told by Professor Totten and other eminent scholars that the word "time" used in Scripture is a year of 360 days, and when prophetically used, each day stands for a year. Hence a "time" is 360 years; a month 30 years; a week, 7 years; a day, 1 year. With the above interpretation the Scriptures agree.

For I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days: so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel. And when thou hast accomplished them, lie again on thy right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days; I have appointed thee each day for a year.—Ezekiel 4: 5, 6.

Again :—

After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years, and ye shall know my breach of promise.—Numbers 14: 34.

"I have appointed thee each day for a year;" where the prophet was symbolically to bear the iniquity of Israel as many days as they had sinned years. In this usage we find authority for interpreting days in prophecy as denoting years.—George Bush, Professor of Hebrew and Oriental Literature in New York City University.

It is a singular fact that the great mass of interpreters in the English and American world have, for many years, been wont to understand the days designated in Daniel and the Apocalypse as the representatives or symbols of years. I have found it difficult to trace the origin of this general, I might say almost universal custom.—Stuart's Hints, page 77.

Now if we can ascertain when the seventy weeks commence, we shall not only learn when the Jewish probation ends, the Most Holy anointed and cut off—crucified, but also when the "sanctuary shall be cleansed;" for the seventy weeks is a part of the 2,300 days, the length of the vision.

Know therefore [said the angel Gabriel] and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem.—Dan. 9: 25.

The city was then in ruins. Here is the key: when the command is given, then the seventy weeks commence. Allowing seven days for each week, seven times seventy would be 490 days; each day symbolical of a year, would make the time determined upon the Jewish people 490 years, dating from the time the command is given to restore and build Jerusalem.

Where the above was given to Daniel, the children of Israel were undergoing the seventy years of captivity; this ended when Cyrus overthrew Babylon, 536 B. C. Cyrus granted certain privileges, building of their temple, etc. Seventeen years later, the above grant was confirmed by Darius, 519 B. C. Sixty two years later, 457 B. C., Artaxerxes, the king, issues a decree, with permission to draw on the treasury, to restore and build Jerusalem.

We turn to Ezra 7: 6-8:—

This Ezra went up from Babylon; and he was a ready scribe in the law of Moses, which the Lord God of Israel had given: and the king granted him all his request, according to the hand of the Lord his God upon him. And there went up some of the children of Israel, and of the priests, and the Levites, and the singers, and the porters, and the Nethinim, unto Jerusalem, in the seventh year of Artaxerxes the king. And he came to Jerusalem, in the fifth month [May], which was in the seventh year [of his reign] of the king.

Again verse 21:—

And I, even I Artaxerxes the king, do make a decree to all the treasurers which are beyond the river, that whatsoever Ezra the priest, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven, shall require of you, it be done speedily.

Artaxerxes becomes king 464 B. C.; subtract the seven years of his reign, then you have 457 B. C., when the decree is issued, as a starting point for the seventy weeks, or 490 years. Seven of the seventy weeks, or 49 years, are to be occupied in building Jerusalem, which was accomplished 408 B. C. "After threescore and two weeks" (62), or 434 years, the Most Holy (Christ) is to be anointed, and cut off; 434 years from 408 B. C. reaches the year 27 A. D. At this time John the Baptist comes as the forerunner of Jesus Christ, crying, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

This was not the work of chance, as some would have us believe. Ah! no; the God of heaven which commissioned the angel Gabriel to make Daniel understand the vision six hundred years before, hath also commissioned this man John to cry, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." John was raised up to close the old prophetic dispensation, and as the forerunner of Jesus Christ to usher in the new.

And it came to pass in those days that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan. And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him: And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.—Mark 1: 9-11.

After threescore and two weeks, the anointing of the Most Holy. How grand. Christ claimed he received this anointing.

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.—Luke 4: 18, 19. (Italics mine.)

Israel did not understand it. Sixty-nine weeks 483 years of the seventy are accomplished. We now come to the last—or seventieth week.

And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week [7 years]: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease.—Dan. 9: 27.

God made a covenant with his people that Christ should come. When he was anointed, the covenant was confirmed with the many who received him, believed, and accepted his teaching. When he was crucified he caused "the sacrifice and oblation" of the past four thousand years, which was symbolical of this sacrifice, to cease.

Thus ends the last week [7 years], which reaches down to the year 34 A. D.; the end of the seventy weeks or 490 years, which were determined upon them.

The great God has made good his word. Jesus Christ came as the promised Messiah, and confirmed the covenant he had made with their forefathers. It was confirmed with many, but not with the Jews as a people. They stumbled; they could not discern in the lowly Nazarene the one spoken of by the prophets. They cried, "Away with him; crucify him," etc. They rejected God, Christ, and the gospel. Christ knew that with his rejection their opportunity to obtain divine favor and mercy was gone. With his death upon the cross ended their probation, until the times decreed upon them through Moses shall have fully expired. They would become a hiss and a byword amongst all nations. Hence he wept over Jerusalem and said:—

Behold, your house is left unto you desolate.—Matt. 23: 38.

The length of the vision is 2,300 days, then shall the sanctuary be cleansed. 490 days [70 weeks] of the 2,300 days were determined upon the Jews, which ended 34 A. D.

And the people of the prince [soldiers under Titus] that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary.—Dan 9: 26.

Josephus in his history, volume 6, book 5, gives a detailed account of the destruction of Jerusalem and of the temple, which was accomplished 36 years after the rejection of the Jews, in the year 70 A. D., by Titus, the Roman prince. Thus far the vision proves to be true to the very letter. With the destruction of Jerusalem 526 of the 2,300 days are accomplished. There still remains 1,774 years, when the sanctuary shall be cleansed. As shown, the former part has been literally fulfilled; the latter part will be just as literal. Add 1,774 years to 70

A. D., you have the year 1844 for the cleansing of the sanctuary. We are now living in the year of our Lord 1898, fifty-four years past the time for the cleansing of the sanctuary. Has it been cleansed? If so, how? Where is it? Who has it? Can it be found? And where is its application to me, and the people of this nineteenth century?

We turn to Isaiah and read:—

For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.—Isa. 55:10, 11.

By the above we are warranted in believing that God's word will not become of none effect. As shown, the 2,300 days end in 1844; the sanctuary has been cleansed, if God has not changed his mind in regard to it, which we cannot admit.

Where is the sanctuary? Is it among the Jews? Does it concern them? I answer, No. That part of the vision which directly concerned the Jews ended 34 A. D. From that time to this, they have rejected Christ. The Messiah is the central figure of the vision. Then it follows that the sanctuary will be found among a people or church accepting and professing Christ.

With the ushering in of the Christian dispensation, the Mosaic dispensation ends, is done away in Christ, and nailed to the cross. Then it follows, that whatever God will in future, so far as salvation is concerned, it will be in connection with his church or kingdom. John's mission was to cry repentance. Why? "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." Christ said, "Seek ye first the kingdom." In the kingdom will be found the Holy Spirit whose office is to lead and guide into all truth. Then if we wish to discover the hand of God in the accomplishment of his purposes, it will be by virtue of our having found the kingdom.

The little horn that Daniel saw was to persecute the saints of the Most High, for "a time, times, and half a time." Three and a half times—1,260 years. Who are the saints of the Most High? Are they; the Jews—they were persecuted? I answer, No! It was those that had accepted Jesus Christ, by submitting to the ordinances of his kingdom, hence called the saints of the Most High. Christ set up his church according to the will of God. He claimed to do only what his heavenly Father had commanded. Satan also knew this; hence all his forces are brought to bear against it. From its inception, the church was persecuted. Christ said:—

And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.—Matt. 11: 12.

The violence culminated in a complete apostasy in the year 570 A. D. I affirm that the apostasy was complete at date 570. It could not be any other date and be in harmony with other prophecies that are related to it. But says the objector, "You cannot prove the apostasy was complete in just that year. It may have been sooner or later; there is no certainty. While we admit there has been an apostasy, and ample proof is found in scripture that it would be brought about by virtue of man's opposition to the will of God, yet we are lost in a maze of uncertainty, so far as the exact time is concerned."

We may be willing to admit that 1,328 years is a long time back to find anything with any degree of certainty, nevertheless the necessity exists. If we wish to discover the finger of God pointing out the waymarks leading to the kingdom, which we are commanded first to seek (Matt. 6:33, we must search, and search diligently until we find it.

Now what are the facts before us? Daniel is shown the political changes that would occur, down to the time of the establishment of the Roman Empire. Gabriel personally makes Daniel understand what would be brought about during the seventy weeks that Christ would come to establish his work, and be cut off. He was also shown, prior to this, that Rome would be broken up into ten kingdoms, as represented by the "toes and horns." (Historians tell us that out of the territory of Western Rome, ten kingdoms were ultimately established, between the third and fifth centuries.) When the ten kingdoms were developed, another would come into existence, different from them all, and would exercise power over them, and root up those that opposed him. It is claimed by scholars that the eleventh-horn power represents the Papacy, and she certainly fulfills Daniel's vision of this power. Her bloody history proves her to be the great anti-Christ power that would make war upon the saints. She was to persecute the saints until a time, and times, and the dividing of time. Three and a half times, or 1,260 years. The objector may here say, "A time may mean one prophetic year, and times two prophetic years, but it is very indefinite."

We turn to the Revelation of St. John, twelfth chapter. He is shown in vision the church going into the wilderness under the figure of a woman (whose members are called the saints of the Most High, which are to be persecuted by the above power). She is to stay in the wilderness a thousand two hundred and threescore days, 1,260 days, or a time, and times, and half a time. The above is sufficient to establish the length of time the saints were to be persecuted, and the church to stay in the wilderness. By noting how the "woman is arrayed, we will be enabled to identify her when she shall make her appearance after her seclusion of 1,260 days.

With the perverting of scripture in Paul's day, the roots of the "little horn" commenced to have life, which in a few centuries had become strong enough to command the kings of the earth. The Arian powers opposed the doctrine of the Catholics, especially to that of the trinity. Those opposing powers were rooted up; the Heruli in 493, the Vandals in 534, the Ostrogoths in 538 A. D. (See Student's Gibbon, pp. 309-319.)

This act fulfills to the very letter Daniel 7:24, "And he shall subdue three kings." We are still thirty-two years from the date (570) of the apostasy, when "the abomination is set up." (Dan. 12:11), and the woman goes into the wilderness. (Rev. 12:6.)

I here insert clipping from sermon by Elder J. S. Roth, printed in Zion's Ensign, date misplaced:—

Turn to Mosheim's Church History and there you will find he declares that Gregory was made Judge in place of God; and on page 159 he gives us what happened in 568 A. D. He further goes on and says Chosroes publicly declared he would make war on the God of the Christians, and about that time the church had lost all of its piety. The religious world to-day almost universally admit that that was the full establishment of the apostasy. About that time the priest first forgave sins for money, and prayers were offered to the deceased saints. (See page 162, vol. 3)

Surely Daniel 12:11 is fulfilled; the abomination that maketh desolate is set up, as indicated above, about the year 570 A. D. We think this is sufficient to establish the date claimed for the apostasy. But let us look at it from another view.

(To be continued.)

Conference Minutes.

NODAWAY.

Conference of Nodaway district convened with Sweet Home branch, Saturday, June 25, at eleven a. m. The house was called to order by Bro. John Hawley. The district president and secretary being absent, Brn. Peter Anderson and E. S. Fannon were chosen president and secretary pro tem. Short speeches by Brn. Peter Anderson, John Hawley, D. A. Hutchings, W. Powell, M. F. Gowell, C. C. Christensen. Bro. Anderson reported in behalf of the tent committee. Branch reports: Bedison 41, Platt 80, Ross Grove 42, Sweet Home 40. Report from district Sunday school association noted an advancement in the work. A communication from Bro. R. K. Ross in regard to tithing, also asking the other branches to assist in the building of a church house in Ross Grove branch, was presented to the conference. Bro. M. F. Gowell was elected district president, W. B. Torrance secretary. The tent committee was continued. Ordination of D. D. Hutchings to the office of priest was provided for. Preaching by D. A. Hutchings and Peter Anderson. Sunday, ten a. m., Sunday school in charge of E. S. Fannon, district superintendent. Bro. D. D. Hutchings was ordained a priest by Peter Anderson and M. F. Gowell. The secretary was instructed to give Bro. Hutchings a priest's license. Prayer and testimony meeting in the afternoon in charge of John Hawley and D. A. Hutchings. One child was blessed. Adjourned to Avenue City, October 1 and 2.

ALABAMA.

Alabama district conference convened at Flat Rock, Alabama, July 30 and 31. Called to order by district president J. G. Vickrey. Bro. M. M. Turpen was requested by vote to preside, Bro. C. I. Carpenter assistant secretary. Ministry present and reporting: Elders M. M. Turpen, J. G. Vickrey, M. K. Harp baptized 3, C. I. Carpenter, C. T. Wadsworth, Sr. Priests: J. E. Miller, W. D. Clark. Teachers: J. A. Amerson, G. O. Sellers, G. E. Wiggins. Bishop's agent reported: On hand last report $41.70; received since $36.20; paid out $35; on hand $42.90.

Report audited and found correct. Secretary reported his labors and read branch reports as follows: Pleasant Hill 114; 1 death. Lone Star 101; baptized 3. Flat Rock 49; and recommends the following brethren for ordination: Bro. J. A. Amerson as priest, Bro. C. T. Wadsworth, Jr., as teacher, and Bro. J. Baldwin as deacon. The recommendations were approved and the brethren, with Bro. J. R. Harper, of Pleasant Hill branch to the office of priest, were ordained on Sunday the 31st by Elders M. M. Turpen and C. I. Carpenter. Election of officers: M. K. Harp president, J. G. Vickrey vice president, J. E. Miller secretary. Bishop's agent and spiritual authorities sustained. Preaching by M. K. Harp, M. M. Turpen, and C. I. Carpenter. A good crowd attended, the good Spirit was present, and every one seemed to enjoy themselves. Adjourned to Pleasant Hill, October 29.

Sunday School Associations.

EASTERN IOWA.

District Sunday school association met in convention July 30 and 31, Ella J. Green in the chair. Reports were received from superintendent, secretary, and treasurer. Three Sunday schools reported, namely: Clinton, Fulton, Green Valley. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. R. Sutton, superintendent; Florence Green, assistant; Lizzie Haller, secretary; Reuben Green, treasurer. Adjourned subject to call of district officers.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK AT BLUFF PARK REUNION.

Let all Sunday school workers take notice that August 27 will be Sunday school day at the reunion, the committee having kindly granted us the forenoon and afternoon of that day, and as much extra time between meetings as can be arranged for by those in charge with consistency and profit. Bring your Bibles, Quarterlies, Winnowed Songs, note books, and whatever other books you have been in the habit of using in your work. We shall have a few sessions of Sunday school, a prayer meeting, and some institute work, if we succeed in carrying out our plans. All come and help make this feature of the reunion not the least profitable.

J. A. GUNSOLLEY, First Asst. Supt.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK AT MIDWAY PARK REUNION.

We present below the program, in part, for September 1, at Southwest Missouri reunion. Let us have a good attendance. Bring Bibles, Quarterlies, Winnowed Songs, tablets, and pencils; humility and diligence with prayerful hearts, and learn all you may, and teach all you will, that will further this department of the Master's cause, and merit his approval here and hereafter. With this (faith, prayer, and works) uppermost in our minds; good results may be accomplished.

Program: Sunday school and Religious prayer meeting. Use and abuses, of blackboard work. Mistakes in Sunday schools. "Home class," or Sunday school work. What can we do for our scholars between Sundays? Normal lesson, "Sunday school teachers." The principles of education as applied to the Sunday school work. Practical talk on "Don'ts." The Sunday School Thermometer. Recitation.

Competent persons have been solicited to present the above subjects. Will have other work during the week for the "lots" and all who wish to participate.

Your sister and colaborer,

ELLA MILLER, in Charge.

Box 11, VERDELLA, Mo.

Miscellaneous Department.

BLUFF PARK REUNION.

Reduced railway rates to the Bluff Park reunion, at Montrose, Iowa, August 19 to September 5. A rate of one and one third fare for the round trip will be granted on condition that one hundred full fare tickets costing over fifty cents each are purchased to Montrose in attendance at the meeting. The rate is granted over lines of the Western Passenger Association in the three States of Iowa, Missouri, and Illinois,—which lines practically include all lines of road.

Directions: Buy a full fare single trip ticket to Montrose, or to the junction points enroute, and obtain a certificate with every tick purchased. (Don't fail to get certificate with each ticket.) Said certificates, being signed and stamped by the reunion secretary and local railway agent at Montrose, entitle purchasers to return trip tickets at one third regular rates of fare. Tickets are good from the 16th to the 22d on the going trip, and up to and including September 8, returning.

A large attendance is expected. Come and have an enjoyable time.

THE REUNION COMMITTEE.

REUNION NOTICES.

The Maysville Reunion committee wishes to further state to the saints that they have made arrangements for pasture for horses at eight cents per day for two horses, or four cents per day for a single horse, with plenty of water in the pastures, and the pastures are from three fourths to two miles from the grounds. Plenty of hay at the market price, also corn will be on sale for those who do not wish to put their teams in pasture. Bro. Ben Dice expects to do the boarding act for the reunion, and also will have on sale everything in the eatable line, such as bread, potatoes, cabbage, milk, and so forth. Thursday of the reunion will be children's day, and we will try to make it the big day of the meeting. The Religio will come in for its share of the exercises on Friday. Do not forget the date, August 26 to September 5, and come early and stay late. Rates if obtained will be announced later.

H. O. SMITH, Pres. Com.

St. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 9.

Those wanting tents for Oklahoma reunion can rent them as follows: 7x9 wall tents, $1.15; 9½x12, $1.40; 12x14, $1.90. To the above stated sum must be added freight charges from Kansas City and return, at the rate of eighty-one cents per hundred weight. Those desiring can purchase as follows: 7x9 feet, eight ounce, $4.75; ten ounce, $5.50; 9½x12 feet, eight ounce, $6.50; ten ounce, $7.50; 12x14 feet, eight ounce, $8.50; ten ounce, $10.15. Those wanting to rent tents (or buy) notify me not later than August 22, and they will be in grove Friday, August 26.

W. S. MACRAE.

Box 334, KINGFISHER, Oklahoma.

REUNION RELIGIO-LITERARY DAY.

Let the Religians take notice that Saturday, September 3, will be Religio-Literary day at the Southwest Missouri; Maysville, Missouri; and Park Bluff, Iowa, reunions. All come that can and help make this effort one that will tell for good to the cause of our society and to the cause of the church in general. Bring your Autumn Leaves, Books of Mormon, and note books. Bro. J. C. Hitchcock will be in charge of the work at Southwest Missouri, Bro. Ammon White and Sr. Louise Palfrey at Maysville, and Bro. J. A. Gunsolley at Bluff Park.

J. A. GUNSOLLEY, Pres.

PASTORAL.

To the brethren of Central Nebraska District:—Elder Whiting and myself desire to labor among you in the interest of the work which we all love, and therefore request parties knowing of favorable openings to correspond with us relative to the same.

As Bishop's agent I shall be glad to receive your tithes and offerings, and account for them. And I take this opportunity of urging a due consideration of the financial needs of the work and the propriety of each one doing their part as God has prospered them. You need not wait till I come to you, but may send post office money order, or express order, or registered letter, or draft to my address, Clear Water, Nebraska, and my wife will receipt for all moneys received in my absence.

Having been chosen president of the district it is my wish to visit all the branches as soon as practicable, and in the meantime urge upon all branch officers the necessity of magnifying their office in the fear of God and with the love of humanity in their souls as a motive to action. Address as above.

LEVI GAMET.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Kewanee district will hold a conference at Buffalo Prairie, Illinois, September 3 and 4, 1898. A large delegation is looked for, and reports from each respective branch are desired.

S. A. WHITEHOUSE, Sec.

The Eastern Maine district conference will convene on September 10 and 11 with the saints at South Addison. We are hoping to have Bro. Joseph Luff, of the Twelve, and Bishop Kelley and our district missionary, T.

C. Kelley, with us, in addition to any local help that may come; and if the saints will come filled with the spirit of prayer as we ought, we feel assured the Lord will be with us by his Spirit and we may have a feast which shall encourage and strengthen us for future work. By order of

E. C. FOSS, Pres.

A. S. KELLEY, Clerk.

The Oklahoma district conference will be held at the saints' reunion near Edmond, beginning Saturday, August 27, at nine a. m.

D. S. CRAWLEY, Pres.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

To the Saints in Southern Nebraska:—Arrangements have been made for a two-days' meeting to be held at the Lone Tree schoolhouse, four miles north of Fairfield, Nebraska, beginning at eight p. m., Friday, September 2, 1898, and continuing over Sunday. On Saturday at eight p. m. a Sunday school entertainment. All come that can and help us have a profitable time.

W. E. PEAK.

HOAG, Nebraska, August 13, 1898.

NOTICES.

A debate will take place in Chatham, Ontario, between Bro. R. C. Evans, and Mr. William Elmore, of the Disciple faith, commencing on Monday evening, September 5, at eight o'clock; four half hours each night for six nights. Proposition: "Which is the Church of Christ?" J. H. TYRRELL.

To the Saints of Chatham District.—I will be at our October conference with a full line of books and ready to take subscriptions for Herald. I keep a supply of books, etc., at Chatham, Ontario, at my office.

J. H. TYRRELL,

Bishop's agent for Chatham district.

DIED.

BROWN.—Elizabeth Brown of New Albany, Indiana, departed this life July 11, 1898, aged 54 years and 11 months. Baptized May 22, 1870, by Elder W. W. Blair near Scottsville. In her last moments of life she gave directions or instructions to her two sons and the family. Father, mother, sister, brother, and two sons mourn. Funeral services by Elder M. R. Scott at the residence of deceased. Interment in Pleasant Ridge cemetery.

LAMPKINS.—Near Lamoni, Iowa, August 3, 1898, Bro. Edward D. Lampkins. He was born February 9, 1846, in Marion County, Kentucky; baptized October 13, 1879, by Elder B. V. Springer. He was a widower fourteen years, and leaves three sons, three daughters, and three sisters to mourn. Funeral sermon by Elder Robt. M. Elvin from Alma 8:71-75, assisted by Elder C. Scott. Interment in Rose Hill cemetery.

RIGBY.—At Dunmore, Pennsylvania, July 28, 1898, Thomas, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rigby, aged 3 months. Interment at Moscow cemetery. Services conducted by Elder A. N. Bishop, of Scranton.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.)

Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

- Cloth bound$1 50
- Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
- Full leather 2 50
- Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE.

REDUCED from $1.15 to 75 cents. An excellent work for the home, also for young people's libraries and societies. Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

- Cloth$0 65
- Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
- Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

Scriptural and Book of Mormon

subjects illustrated by means of finely painted pictures and charts furnished to order on muslin, canvas, or oilcloth. For particulars address Hulmes & Kress, 609 Main Street, Kansas City, Missouri.

LAMONI FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres, with five room house, large barn, other outbuildings; abundance of water; young orchard. Located two miles from Graceand College, Lamoni, and one fourth mile from schoolhouse. Price, $2,500 with one half cash; balance to suit purchaser.

Address, MRS. MARGARET BAGLEY, Lamoni, Iowa.

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.

The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a

Reward of $200

By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns.

TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.

It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State

PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.

DES MOINES, IOWA.

Large Maps Reduced!

For Sunday School and Home Use . . .

Dispensing with the idea of procuring agents, I have concluded to furnish the large Book of Mormon maps (39x51 inches), fully described in former advertisement, direct to all at $1.50, express charges to be paid by the purchaser. Former price $2.50. An ornament to any home. Sunday schools and Religio, please take up collections, procure a map, and start a class in the Book of Mormon. Sr. (Mrs.) Ella J. Green, of Onslow, Iowa, wrote July 6, 1898:—

"Bro. G. F. Weston:—Received map all right and extend to you our thanks for favor shown in reduction of price. The map is for our Sunday school and all who have seen it are well pleased." Early orders solicited.

G. F. WESTON.

BUCHANAN, Berrien Co., Mich.

WATSON-BLAIR DEBATE.

- Paper$0 25
- Cloth 35

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100$1 00
2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100... 1 00
7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100..... 1 30
10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 20
12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
13. Discipleism, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts; 100, 1 00
14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....$1 00
15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen..... 30
19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen..... 10
20. The "One Body;" or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

- Cloth$0 40

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer, President.
 Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address, I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

BRO. E. F. ORDWAY, of Peoria, Illinois, will send 3 boxes of Quit-a-Sac post paid anywhere for $1.50, and positively guarantee it to cure your tobacco habit, or your money refunded.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers. MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York. Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

CHURCH FURNITURE
 SCHOOL & OFFICE
 H. STAFFORD CO.
 CHICAGO, ILL.

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

Branch statistical reports; per doz.	$0 40
Annual statistical reports; two for	05
Certificates of baptism and membership; per dozen	12
Baptism and confirmation certificate books, with stubs	25
Certificates of removal; per dozen	12
Marriage certificates; per dozen	25

JOSEPH THE SEER. His prophetic mission vindicated and the divine origin of the Book of Mormon defended and maintained.

Paper	$0 25
Cloth, limp	50

$10 GRAPHOPHONES. $10 TALKING MACHINES!

Greatest money maker ever offered. Anybody can start in the show business. Make $10 to $20 a day giving exhibitions. LOUD AND CLEAR ENOUGH to be heard in any Hall or Church anywhere. They're wonderful. Imagine a musical instrument that will actually TALK TALK. That by simply winding it up like a clock you can play band music exactly as it was played by Sousa—cornet, trombones, drums and all. Sings songs, tells funny stories. Does 'nt seem possible, does it? But it does even more than that. You can sing or talk into it yourself and it will repeat, a moment after, just what you said. FOR HOME AMUSEMENT It has no equal. Entirely new model. Just out. Very loud. Price EAGLE GRAPHOPHONE with two hearing tubes and concert horn, $10. Same outfit, with handsome oak carrying case, $12. Price of our BEST EXHIBITION MUSICAL OR TALKING RECORDS, 50c each $5 a dozen.

Our $20 Big Show Outfit Includes our Eagle Graphophone, with carrying case, two hearing tubes, concert horn, record brush, 18 assorted records, music, songs and speeches (lasts two hours steady running), 200 big posters advertising exhibition, 200 admission tickets, all for $20. Sent C. O. D., with privilege of examination, if desired. Complete Record Catalogue free. Write for it. HARGER & BLISH, Western Agts., 904-910 Main St., Dubuque, Iowa.

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.

NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING. Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed. Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices. THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture AND Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.

GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING. Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery. Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

RELIABILITY

is a quality some newspapers have lost sight of in these days of "yellow" journalism. They care little for truth and a great deal for temporary sensation.

It is not so with THE CHICAGO RECORD.

The success of THE RECORD rests upon its reliability.

It prints the news—all the news—and tells the truth about it.

It is the only American newspaper outside New York city that has its own exclusive dispatch boat service and its own staff correspondents and artists at the front in both hemispheres.

It is the best illustrated daily newspaper in the world.

Its war news service is unapproachably the best.

Says the Urbana (Ill.) Daily Courier:

"We read the war news in the other papers, then we turn to THE CHICAGO RECORD to see how much of it is true."

Sold by newsdealers everywhere and subscriptions received by all postmasters. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 24, 1898.

No. 34.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
Principles and Progress.....	533
Assault Upon the Holy Scriptures.....	535
Teach and Guard the Children.....	535
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Truthful Thoughts.....	536
To All Who Are Called to be Saints.....	537
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
Why Teach Temperance to Children?.....	537
LETTER DEPARTMENT:
Stirring Times in Canada.....	540
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Latter Day Events.—No. 2.....	543
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Sheffield.....	547
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
London.....	547
Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana.....	547
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Pastoral.—W. W. Blanchard.....	548
Wanted.....	548
Reunion Notices.....	548
Massachusetts Reunion.....	548

GERMANY'S PROTESTANT RULER WOULD EXTEND THE INFLU- ENCE OF THE POPE.

INTENDS TO RECONCILE KING HUM-BERT AND THE HEAD OF CATHOLICISM.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—According to reports which reach here from Europe Emperor William's coming visit to the Holy Land has an object which is more than the mere wish to visit the Holy Sepulcher. This is nothing less than the almost insuperable difficulty of uniting the hands of Leo XIII. with Humbert of Italy after their long separation because the King's father wrested Rome from the Papacy.

The Kaiser's crusade in Jerusalem will only be made after a secret visit to Italy. This crusade is to be the first step in the extraordinary scheme of this extraordinary young Kaiser. Himself a Protestant, the idea that dominates him is that the whole human race will be vastly benefited by the increased moral influence of the Papacy.

The Emperor says he will not be contented until he has accomplished this herculean task. He explained his object not long ago during a dinner in the officers' mess. In explaining to one of the officers of the mess after dinner the object of his trip to the Holy Land, the Emperor outlined his plans as follows:—

"Man's activity is necessarily bounded by certain limits. The limits, however, are elastic, and I have always held that the greater a man's opportunities for having an influence with his fellow men and for performing mighty deeds in the world, the more should he labor to extend the sphere of his activity and make it encompass events of striking moment.

"For myself, it is my duty first of all to watch over the national interests and to safeguard the honor of this great empire, whose destinies have been transmitted into my hands. But apart from that, and without any prejudice to it, I feel that I have other missions. There are other events in which I can take a part, other happenings wherein my influence may be of the greatest good.

"The chief of these is the present unhappy position in which the head of the Roman Catholic Church finds himself in the Eternal City. That position is a consequence of the unfortunate war which the Vatican has felt obliged to wage against the Italian state. How to put an end to it the keenest diplomats so far have not understood. But that an end to it should come is quite clear to me.

SPURRED ON BY THE WAR.

"For years past I have dwelt in thought on the subject, but during recent events and precisely on the occasion of the Hispano-American war the matter has been brought home to me more deeply than ever. At moments I have grown impatient and exasperated at realizing that the one man who in certain cases could have the greatest influence as the arbiter of peace remains with his hands practically tied, owing to this dull and sterile contest between Vatican and Quirinal.

"The idea, as I say, has long been simmering in my mind, and I have already tried my hand at practical efforts. Misfortune and ill success, however, dogged my steps and made me momentarily relinquish my projects. My hopes were centered chiefly on the cooperation of Cardinal San Felice. My visit to Naples in 1896 was chiefly to see him. In the two long colloquies which there took place between us the cardinal entered heartily into my plans. All Italy knew that he was a saint. But he was at the same time a man of great shrewdness and common sense, and he frankly admitted that there was a great deal of injudiciousness in the uncompromising attitude of Cardinal Rampolla and most of the others who surround the Pope. Cardinal San Felice was for conciliation. Many other members of the sacred college of Cardinals—the body of men who have in their hands the election of the Pope—were also for harmony between church and state, and my hopes ran high. I conceived the idea that Cardinal San Felice might be named the next Pope, and to this end I worked.

"With his nomination the Popes would have ceased to lay claim to the temporal power, the Italian government would lay aside its attitude of persecution toward the church, and both would be at liberty to dedicate their entire forces to other and nobler ends.

"But with the new year of 1897 Cardinal San Felice was borne to his grave, the Pope delivered a few bellicose speeches, and the Italian government redoubled its hostility. In spite of all that I did not desist from my purpose. Other events called for my individual energies, and for the moment the Pope and King were left to themselves.

PURSUES HIS UNDERTAKING.

"But the good that was to be done is still to do, and I am resolved to go on with my undertaking. The entire world will gain if I can bring about the rapprochement of Leo XIII. and Humbert I. No one will doubt the sincerity of my Protestant leanings. But it is precisely because I am a Protestant that I have a clear and accurate conception of the power and influence of the Papacy.

"At the present day two great evils threaten humanity. They are socialism and atheism. Against each of these the Pope is a bulwark. In fighting infidelity no aid should be neglected.

"Socialism is infidelity to the monarch or the state and atheism is infidelity to God.

"The Pope is the spiritual ruler of the largest communion on earth and he is by far the most powerful authoritative of spiritual rulers. His word is promptly and willingly obeyed by hundreds of millions of people spread throughout the globe. He can order and direct the consciences of these multitudes. He can say: 'These are your religious tenets; those must be your social sentiments,' and suddenly he is obeyed. His power, therefore, for good is immeasurable.

"Kings and Emperors are the divinely ordained guardians of social order and directors of social wellbeing, just as the leaders of religious bodies are the divinely ordained moderators of conscience. But just as kings and emperors can have their beneficent influence in the religious order, so can spiritual guides help and promote the social weal.

"The Pope's range of power is the vastest of all, and consequently the possibilities of the good he may do are the most far-reaching. I think it imperative, therefore, that he be put in a position to freely accomplish all the good of which he is capable. He must be liberated from his self-imposed imprisonment in the Vatican. All the trammels that surround and harass him in his daily life must be removed, so that he will then be at liberty to fight the common enemies, socialism and irreligion. And he will be in a position to make his voice heard in the interests of peace when nations go to war without just motive, and in the interests of humanity, when acts of cruelty or injustice are being elsewhere committed.

FEELS HIMSELF INSPIRED.

"I have meditated long and deeply on this subject. The fact that it preoccupies me so much convinces me that I am inspired to take action in the matter. It is like one of the voices that Socrates had about with him which whispers in my ears that it is my mission to remedy the Pope's position and open up the field for his range of well doing. It daily urges me to act.

"Whether I shall succeed or not, it is beyond my power to foretell. Judging from the circumstances there is every evidence that success should not be outside the bounds of possibilities. I am going to do my utmost, and more than this no man can do. I feel for the moment that I have no other concrete and practical mission before me. To succeed in such an undertaking would be a climax and a crowning worthy of any man's life. As I say, I am going to energetically attempt it.

"The small preternatural voice unmistakably spurs me on, and I think no better augury of success could be desired.

"For this moment I can say no more, and it does not behoove me to be too explicit about my plans. They are already laid, and my immediate actions will be a development of them. Their result will be their justification, and it will also be the justification of many acts in the past, which may have seemed strange and unaccountable to my good Protestant subjects, but which had their motive and their origin in a desire to accomplish great and enduring events.

"I am acquainted with both Leo and Humbert. I know how estimable both of them are, and I feel it is a most deplorable circumstance that political embitterment should make enemies of two men who personally are worthy only of esteem and regard one for the other.

"But I shall not die until my ends in this regard are attained. Death otherwise would find a void in my existence, and I feel within me that I have not been born in vain."—Chicago Tribune, Aug. 15.

SUES THE ARCHBISHOP.

RESENT OF PAPAL BULL.

FATHER ANTHONY KOZLOWSKI, the Chicago priest against whom a major excommunication issued from the Vatican last June for the alleged heretical beliefs which caused the withdrawal of himself and his church, the Lubeck Street Roman Catholic, from the jurisdiction of the Church of Rome, has filed suit in the Cook County Circuit Court against Archbishop Feehan and Cardinal Ledochowski, the head of the Congregatio de Propaganda Fide, for $50,000 damages, which the priest alleges have been inflicted by the papal bull. The suit, if it comes to trial, will be the first formal legal test of the right of excommunication in America. The major bull directed against Father Kozłowski, and, incidentally, against 120,000 of his alleged sympathizers, is also said to be the first edict of the kind ever issued against an American.

The dispute between the Archbishop and the Polish priest is of four years' standing, though it culminated less than two months ago. Father Kozłowski withdrew from the Roman Catholic priesthood because of doctrinal differences and his entire congregation followed him. The congregation numbered several thousand. The church was reorganized shortly afterward under the name of All Saints' Polish Catholic Church.

According to the attorneys for Father Kozłowski, Stroeever and Rathbone, the followers of the independent congregation have increased until they number 10,000 in Chicago and 120,000 in the United States, in spite of the fact that the major excommunication makes them equally guilty with the priest.

This excommunication is the final ban of the church, and, according to Father Kozłowski, if carried out it will make him a social pariah. It denies all spiritual and temporal fellowship both to the priest and his sympathizers.

The suit is directed against Archbishop Feehan because of a letter alleged to have been written by him to Cardinal Ledochowski which, it is claimed, inspired the excommunication. According to Attorney Rathbone, these actions on the part of the Archbishop and the Cardinal have inflicted great damage on Father Kozłowski.

"We are not inspired by malice in beginning this suit," Attorney Rathbone said. "We wish simply to determine whether the rights of Americans in such cases protect them. We realize fully the importance of the issue, and we are determined to take the case to the United States Supreme Court if necessary."

Mr. Rathbone declared that the society known as the "American Protective Association" had nothing to do with the suit.

According to Father Kozłowski, every effort was made by him to heal the differences between himself and the Archbishop before they became hopeless. All his efforts, he declares, were repulsed, his messengers to the Archbishop's palace were sent away, and it was found impossible, he says, to bring the church back into the diocese.

Both Archbishop Feehan and Chancellor Mooney are out of the city. At the Archbishop's palace it was said yesterday he was in Newark, N. J., for the summer.

George W. Smith of Smith, Blair & Smith who is attorney for Archbishop Feehan, declared that he had heard nothing of the suit and knew nothing about it. He declined to discuss it.—Tribune, Aug 6.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord; for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 24, 1898.

No. 34.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.
JOSEPH LUFF, }

LAMONI, IOWA, AUG. 24, 1898.

PRINCIPLES AND PROGRESS.

THE methodical life of Pope Leo XIII. is credited with prolonging the career of the prelate beyond the ordinary age limit. "He has been the plainest of livers and for years has not varied from a routine." Gladstone and many others of eminence in public life have also been credited with the exercise of care and self-restraint in that respect, and which doubtless added years to their active and useful careers.

Men devoted to great interests have often overlooked the importance of self-discipline, self-abnegation in this and other respects. Strong, capable in some lines of great ability, they have been weak, vacillating, uncertain in other phases of character, hence have but partially succeeded, or have blended much of imperfection with their work, thus rendering it weak, faulty, far below what it might and ought to have been, because of failure to develop well rounded out characters, and thus lacking in strictly essential points.

Men leave the impress of their characters upon their times, in their work. No prophet, priest, or king; no statesman, no one eminent in public life—indeed no one at all, has lived without leaving behind him an influence for good or evil that has lived on beyond his passage from this worldly scene of action, leaving results for good or evil on church and state. The life of each has been for good in proportion to the degree of devotion and the amount of wisdom, care, and other principles of truth manifest in his public or private career.

The life of the Master himself, "the life and the light of men," was pre-eminently because in him was blended such a developed balance of qualities and faculties that they found expression in a well-ordered, discriminating, perfect obedience to law, in all phases pertaining to physical, moral, and spiritual conduct and example. His attainment was not reached without thought, prayer, struggling against temptation and great opposition—against the imperfect humanity of the fleshly life and the surrounding oppositions of men, devils, and wrong conditions; to all of which he was himself subject, and in all points tempted as are we. He rose above them, however; he gave us the illustration of a perfect life; he bore witness to the truth in fact as well as in statement, thus signifying that those called to represent and follow should do likewise. Indeed, there is no assurance of hope, no ground for expectation of attainment to the higher life only in practice of principles necessary to personal and general progress.

The opportunities that present themselves in the routine and duty of our mortal life are the occasions, the privileges that open to us, and we should faithfully improve them. This is apparent in the history of human experience by which the law of development is illustrated all along the line of human affairs. Whenever principle has been obeyed, progress and permanent good have resulted; whenever disregarded, moral and general retrogression have been the sure penalties of such a course.

Salvation does not consist in the proclamation and nominal acceptance even of true principles. It is a result of applied knowledge, of true principles worked out in actuality in all departments of life—religious, civil, social, and family life. Every man or woman who has made the practical application of obedience to law has tested its power, its potency in development. The results have been prompt, sure, and satisfactory. On the other hand, failure to observe and do has also brought the sure reward in lack of development, failure to rise to occasions, and consequent loss of personal satisfaction and usefulness, leaving the failing one open to the reception and rule of contrary forces, which assert their right, find place, and lower the whole caliber of the man. "The way of the transgressor is hard;" hard on himself, hard upon all affected by his infraction of law, or by his failure to rise fully to the demands of an occasion, where he might have, had he been sufficiently interested and conditioned, stepped forward and occupied high ground, the doing of which inspires to and makes possible other added and essential movements in progress.

Attainment for which we seek, and necessary to personal and race emancipation, is realized through progressive stages. A long line of intermediate stations must be passed in our progress. Each one represents some way-point, some feature, some degree of attainment, some link in the chain, some principle essential to the complete entire economy leading upward to God through light and truth. All must be heeded; no one in the system can be disregarded with any reasonable ground of safety. God himself has set the bounds and conditions in determining the times and means appointed along the pathway of progress. Christ has trodden it before us, faithfully, guardedly, lawfully, successfully. He loved rightness—trueness—with a perfect love. He recognized the wisdom and beneficence of God in all the conditions imposed. He sought not to escape, to avoid, or to belittle any. He did always those things that were just and true, hence did "always" those things that were "pleasing" to the Father.

It is human to be careless, to desire freedom from restraint, to gratify appetites and desires. It is the human nature that wants its "own way," that seeks for or makes excuses in gratifying tastes that show out, that reveal the indwelling carnal nature; and the carnal nature is enmity against God; is at war against the will of God.

The history of the world shows that human weakness, human perversity, human inclinations, have been difficult to correct and control. It is safe to say that when God himself undertakes a work he employs every means, and the best means, to accomplish his purposes; that his perfect wisdom provides for all contingencies, his infinite character enabling him to foresee the end from the beginning. But notwithstanding the long-continued and wearying efforts he has made with Israel and with others in the ages of the past, in but few instances have the people responded with sufficient obedience to then insure the degree of success designed. Divine power and foreknowledge are not impugned by this statement. God has done his part, wonderfully, perfectly; it is in man that the failure has been, through failure to rise.

To us "upon whom the ends of the world are come" has come a great opportunity. Profiting by past experiences and having the opportunity of another dispensation of the immediate and special favor of God, we may be successful. Success cannot come, however, only by exercising strict conscientious care that in all phases of our personal and public careers we heed and do what shall bring us to personal and general conformity to principle. We cannot serve God and Mammon; we cannot have our own way and be useful; we cannot be vain, or trifling, or worldly, and be accepted of God. The Apostle Paul comprehended the necessities of such an occasion, of similar work in his dispensation, when he wrote and urged the "casting down of imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ." "For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." "Strongholds" are not always "somewhere else"; they often are the stubborn natures; the vanities, and other bad things that afflict even the professed children of God. Israel of old had its share of such quantities in the various gradations of her society high and low, and it is safe to assume that such evils need to be guarded against and purged away, even in this day.

The Devil is not yet dead. He has the same old tactics to employ, and possibly, probably, a number of new ones held in reserve for "these last days." Wily generals usually retain reserve forces or tactics for pieces de resistance. It is not necessary to assume that he still takes advantage of and panders to "human" nature to accomplish his work within as well as without the fold. The facts of history past and present show that he does. By partaking of "the divine nature" we expel him and accomplish results for good. But that requires determined effort, especially so if some are careless, indifferent, or oppose with their fleshly wills and desires. We are "to please God," not ourselves.

In our work—the work of the church—and in all lines of reform we find well defined, well organized opposition confronting and disputing the right to improvement. No movement designed to elevate the race finds an open, unopposed path before it. Evil and corrupt or ignorant forces stand ready to strike down or resist the onward march of right. Human welfare is plainly conditioned largely, primarily upon integrity and intelligence. Men may have intelligence, but not integrity, or vice versa; but integrity is evidently the more important, the first, the primary requisite. The man of integrity is promised reception of the divine intelligence by growth, by obedience, through education and inspiration. The man of intelligence lacking integrity is promised but little.

The times demand strong men and women who will not be moved by flattery, by vanity, by promise, or place, or influence, to do what is in the least degree out of harmony with a high sense of principle. There is need, we repeat, for such examples, such influences, in the religious, the social, and the general world. Jesus commanded men to be "without guile." The need of the hour is to speak "the truth in the heart," without guile, without hypocrisy, without the semblance of dissimulation—to maintain the truth in all things without regard to personal ambitions or fear of lack of influence of others in personal behalf. Will not God see and care for the welfare of such an one? We think so. To refuse, to fail so to do, is simply equivalent to deserting the right, and one might just as well refuse obedience to the gospel in the beginning as decline compliance with principle afterward. There is no difference in the two, unless the latter be worse than the former; for first obedience brings greater light, to sin against which brings greater condemnation, in harmony with the law of proportion; and proportion is a quantity in spiritual as in mathematical problems.

Consideration of what application has enabled Pope Leo to do has led to some of the foregoing reflections. The study of passing human life is study of passing realities of our own times, hence serves to fix the attention upon the principles that have brought it success or failure. To read of things in the past, or even in the revelations to the present age, without realizing the necessity of applying them, is hardly practical, and scarcely more than useless to anyone. And if such concentration and direction of personal energy be manifested by others having less light, less encouragement, it is not presumption to conclude that they should, to say least, be equalled in good work by others more greatly favored.

The human standard is indeed a low one. After several thousands of years of experiment with human institutions and human nature, consistency, necessity demands the employment of something better. The times emphasize the need of preparation for the reign of right under the reign of the Christ, for whose coming the church has been commissioned to prepare herself, both by preaching the gospel to the world and by cleansing herself from every vestige of folly, and weakness, and lack of devotion to principle.

He who is really in earnest is making a personal honest effort so to do. He who is not is proving his lack of interest and lack of principle. Gospel work is a great revealer of character. It makes manifest what men and women are in fact. God himself cannot render a judgment of reward contrary to facts and character. He is pledged to grade individuals according to worthiness in the time to come. This fact furnishes substantial ground for the conclusion that right principles, right policies, and right conditions should always obtain now, and must finally prevail. Also that right men and women—true, faithful ones—should be chosen to execute them, notwithstanding men have failed at times, and may yet fail partly or completely. Success is sure when compliance with God's law is complete. He is pledged to give us individual and associated success if we heed his counsel and thus labor to promote the interests of truth under all conditions and circumstances.

I, the Lord, am bound when ye do what I say, but when ye do not what I say, ye have no promise.—D. C. 81:3.

ASSAULT UPON THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

FOR fourteen years, from April 6, 1830, to June 27, 1844, there was an unprecedented movement in the religious world. A new faith—revival of the one faith—was promulgated, and its promoters organized a new church. One of the foundation principles of the new faith on which the church was based in its organic structure and in its development and occupation in the field of controversy, was the doctrine of present and direct revelation. The claim was made that as God did not change in purpose, attributes, and power, he would in his dealings with man act like himself. That, as he had revealed his will to man, he would again do so; and that to those who believed on him he did.

Three years after the organization of the church, its presiding officer stated that he had completed the work set for him in the correcting and translating of the Old and New Testament Scriptures; but that the work thus done by him was not to be given then to the church, or the world; that the manuscripts should be preserved in safety and in a due time they should be published.

For fourteen years the work of the ministry went on; hundreds of preachers were sent out from the fast-filling ranks of the believers, and thousands of converts were baptized into the new church; until, in 1844, when the leaders, Joseph and Hyrum Smith, were killed by assassins, one hundred and fifty thousand to two hundred thousand souls bore witness both to the zeal and fire of the missionaries and to the Spirit of truth which testified of the Christ. And yet, the manuscript of that Holy Scriptures, correction and translation, lay in obscurity unpublished. Its existence had nothing to do with the progress of the work. Its teaching, whatever it may have been, did not enter into the work of the missionary. It had no influence upon the outside world; it was not known to those outside, and only rarely was there one in the church who knew anything of it. Nor has that version of the Bible had anything to do with the existence or prosperity of the church in the valleys of Utah; for notwithstanding they hold Joseph Smith to have been a prophet, and his work the work of inspiration, they do not accept the Scriptures referred to, probably for the reason that they may not credit Joseph Smith's son with being honest in the work of publishing that Scriptures in 1868. Or, it may be possible that the reason for refusing to accept may lie in the existence of feelings of jealousy because the Reorganized Church was the agent of publication, and not the Utah body under Presidents Young, Taylor, or Woodruff. However, the book itself has not been a factor in the progress or fate of the church in the valleys.

Further still, from the death of Joseph Smith until 1868, those members of the old church through whose efforts the reorganization began, did not have as an element of their work and its success that copy of the Scriptures, and yet from its incipency until 1868 the Reorganization had remarkable success. The missionary work was actively carried on, thousands were won and received into membership, and hundreds testified to their acceptance in Christ through the labors of the elders—all, all, without the Holy Scriptures, familiarly called the Inspired Version.

No claim is made for it as the central standard book of the church. The validity of the work of the church does not rest on that book. The church existed and flourished from 1830 to 1868 without it; and there is no reason to suppose that the church would be hurt if the book should be taken entirely from it; but would continue right along just as it did before the book was published.

But those who have a desire to prevent, cripple, or destroy our work are attacking the Holy Scriptures, as published by the Reorganized Church, with all conceivable virulence, claiming that if that book can be proved not to be a genuine work, and the inspiration of it an error, or worse, a fraud, then the whole work must go to pieces. No greater mistake has been made by the opponents of the latter-day work. The churches sought most to be affected by the strong attack upon the Holy Scriptures, are not disturbed by such attack. The one does not indorse the book, and the other does not depend upon its validity for its continued existence. Then what could be gained by the fierce onslaught being made by some classes of religionists, if it should be shown that Joseph Smith did not translate from the original language, and did not correct by the spirit of revelation? We believe that he did both, and that the Inspired Scripture is a decided improvement on the Common Version. And while we do not disparage the King James' Version, we believe that both the Bible and the Holy Scriptures are given to us as containing the word of God, and should be used conjointly.

TEACH AND GUARD THE CHILDREN.

CHICAGO papers of the past week contained two especially startling accounts of death caused by suicide and by murder, of a number of young women. Had we had abundant space we would have been tempted to republish the accounts, not for choice reading, but as a lesson and warning to careless parents. Fortunately all do not need such reminders, but some—yes, many do—for many parents are asleep to or ignorant of the terrible dangers to which their children are exposed, right in their own home cities or neighborhoods. Children who are raised as they should be, are not only taught and warned, but are carefully guarded against the evils that allure and menace them. But many parents fail to realize the necessity for careful supervision and protection of their children in this respect. Literature written by competent persons and especially with a view to warn children and protect against all forms of corrupting associates and habits and temptations, should be placed in the hands of and be read by children, in addition to the wise and careful personal instructions of parents. We speak plainly and definitely upon this question of vice, of evil associates, and general viciousness. The parent who does not guard his children against such evils little realizes the responsibilities, the sacred character of the trust reposed in him—the keeping and answering to God, besides to the child himself—of souls designed to be taught of and brought to God as pure enlightened men and women, preserved from the blighting, deadening influences of evil. Every parent should himself read the warning and protective literature we have referred to, and seek to exercise careful watchfulness in his child's behalf. We trust it is not necessary to say much, but have felt the necessity of saying something. If we do not make it our business to look after our children, the Devil will take the matter in hand. It is regrettable that he manifests more interest in the matter than many parents do.

Much more might be said. A word ought to be sufficient. However, we may add a few more as passing events reveal the necessity for so doing.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ACCORDING to a lengthy press item of the 14th inst., King William, of Germany, has declared his belief that he is "inspired" to bring about a reconciliation between King Humbert, of Italy, and Pope Leo. The new and peculiar departure of the Kaiser is worth noting and watching. How far his efforts may influence events is hard to determine from present conditions. Himself a Protestant, his attitude is an anomalous one. We give the press statement, our present cover article, herewith. It is scarcely necessary to state that our readers will not concur in some of the statements and conclusions of the young lord of Germany. However, some may see in them a possible strange and forceful religio-political combination that may yet include Roman and Greek Catholic nations and even Protestant powers disposed to join the lead of Russia.

Bro. W. H. Kelley, of the Twelve, accompanied by Sr. Kelley and their children, arrived at Lamoni on the 17th inst., where they will locate, for the winter at least, perhaps permanently. We welcome them to the city of the saints and trust they may find the location pleasant and satisfactory.

President Joseph Smith and Brn. William Anderson and E. A. Smith, each accompanied by his wife, also Bro. E. A. Stedman, left Lamoni during the past week for the Bluff Park reunion. Others too numerous for mention departed for the same point, some by train, many by the slower but health-promoting wagon route. A good time is anticipated.

A card from Bro. J. J. Cornish announces the sudden death of Elder Robert Davis, at East Tawas, Michigan. Particulars are not given. Bro. Davis was aged in years, and also in the service, we understand. Bro. David Smith, twelve miles distant, would look after the funeral services. Peace to another of the veterans who has fallen asleep in Christ.

Bro. W. W. Scott, mayor of Lamoni, has issued a timely proclamation, suppressing the small boy in the practice of shooting with air guns, much in use of late. They are dangerous both to citizens not using them and to the boys themselves.

The discussion near Lamoni between Elder Allison, of the "Holiness" people, and Bro. C. Scott, is progressing very satisfactorily, at least so to our people. We have not heard from the other side, but learn that a friendly spirit has prevailed throughout. Limited space prevents a report or extended mention. However, the ground has been fairly well covered heretofore, in our columns.

Bro. F. A. Smith was holding meetings on historic ground "winter quarters," near Omaha, in a tent, and having "a fair hearing"; recent letter.

Bro. J. D. White will represent the Herald Office at the Joplin, Missouri reunion. He will be ready to transact all Herald Office business.

Word from Plymouth, England, dated the 11th announces the arrival of Bro. William Newton and wife. They are zealously at work in the mission, and meeting the usual experiences of missionary life.

Bro. F. J. Pierce, writing from Blue Rapids, Kansas, reports the joint reunion of the Northeast and Northwest Kansas districts as having opened with favorable prospects. Bro. G. H. Hilliard was present. Good results are expected.

Bro. W. H. Kelley, of the Twelve, and Bro. F. E. Cochran, of the Herald Office force, left during the week for the Bluff Park reunion.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"From ceiled rooms, from silent books,
From crowded car and town,
Dear Mother Earth, upon thy lap,
We lay our tired heads down."

TRUTHFUL THOUGHTS.

Dear Reader:—Please pardon the writer's apparent egotism. Bear in mind that she is one of the isolated ones, and has but few church privileges, consequently has to live in and live over her own personal experience. She is often impressed to write the same, with the hope that it may benefit some one in like circumstances. One of her weak points is the noticing and living in and living over unpleasant things, dwelling on troubles instead of closing heart and soul against the tempter. Not always in the slough of despond, however, it must be terrible to be there all the time. O God pity and help all such! She has been wading through a scene of darkness and comparative helplessness, accompanied by a strong foreboding of greater helplessness—that is, the loss of the use of the right limbs. Her faith in medicine was too small to expect help from that source, so after five weeks' struggle wrote to Bro. J. Billings and wife, desiring them to exercise their faith in her behalf. But he being absent, delayed the work somewhat, but on his return they wrote immediately. All of the letter was good, but a few sentences were inspired, and they gave great happiness to the receiver. By this time the saints of the little branch had learned of her illness, consequently many heartfelt prayers went up to the throne of power, and a blessing came down. In a few days the burden was lifted from the mind, and the symptoms wore off as returning strength and activity pushed them off. Not very abundant yet, but enough to be thankful for and to help one to be useful.

Her thoughts had been rushing as follows: What will become of me? I cannot work much more; I cannot enjoy my favorite pastime, writing; my ambition in various kinds of work, my interest in the welfare of others, and especially in the children with whom I am connected, all, all must cease. Where are all our hopes, our aspirations? One by one they have been shut off and left in the past, leaving an impression similar to the wise man's "All is vanity and vexation of spirit." What has become of our most reliable kindred? They have gone over the river, the river of death. Others who are still on the earth pass on the other side, as if they had no thought or wish to help. Thus we erring mortals are brought to more fully look to our Father in heaven for help. Then should not we rejoice in our failures, rejoice in our infirmities, and praise God for the scourge that brought us closer to him? Chastisement is given to be borne, yet when it produces obedience the result is joyous. Thou, Father, art able and mighty to save. Thou art willing and able to forgive all our wrongdoings, to excuse all our mistakes, and cleanse us in the blood of thy dear son Jesus. Cleanse us from every thought that is unholy; unlike thee; unlike the teaching of thy word. May such thoughts never more besiege our soul, causing it to languish and starve. We thank thee, O Father, that once more the rays of thy light illuminate our spirit and strengthen our body. Leave us not alone another moment, dear Lord, for we cannot walk alone without stumbling. We are perfect weakness, but thou art all mighty, strength and power; grant then that it may rest upon us more abundantly than ever before, and may we give thanks to thy holy name for the same. Yes, Lord, we do feel blessed of thee. We can enjoy our temporal blessings and feel to thank thee for the same. Our heart is filled with peace and love—with love to even those who have spoken falsely against us. We feel to look up and say, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Henceforth grant us sufficient grace to overcome every temptation that is brought before us, and every one that lies in ambush waiting to overthrow us. May all the sick, all the aged and the infirm be blessed as we are, and more abundantly if it is for their good and thy glory. Jesus is our refuge; Jesus is our mediator; Jesus is our Savior; and he will save us to the uttermost. May we all awake in his likeness and behold his face in righteousness. SR. ALMIRA.

TO ALL WHO ARE CALLED TO BE SAINTS.

We oft resolve within our hearts
To be so firm and true,
That naught will turn us from the right,
And every duty do.

Too oft we deem ourselves no worse
Than Brother This or That,
Or harbor pride, and use for balm
A saying trite and pat.

"A follower of the Lowly One
'Tis my desire to be,"
A follower! yes, so far behind,
That him we cannot see!

Between the Christ and us there looms
A form both great and high,
Dame Fashion, who by artful wiles,
Allures and blinds each eye.

And conscience—watchful monitor—
Repeats its warning voice,
Until, unheeded o'er and o'er,
It leaves us to our choice.

O seek to keep the Christ in view,
And not let intervene
Attractive, luring, worldly things
Our love from him to wean.

Our love all his, we then will seek
To do his least command;
And Satan foiled, no entrance find,
When we united stand.

ELLA J. GREEN.

ONSDOW, IOWA, April 18, 1898.

ABBOTT SPUR, I. T.

Dear Sisters:—Why is it there are so few letters in the Home Column? I enjoy reading them so much, and would much rather read the letters of others than to write, but we should all remember that God will not reward us for what others do. I am quite a new member of this work, but I know that God has blessed me in many ways, and each day my faith grows stronger, and I rejoice that God is ever near me and unchangeable. My husband is also a member. We have two little girls, and my desire is to raise them so that they may be bright and shining lights in God's kingdom, and that they may be the cause of others turning to him who has said, "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give thee rest."

I think that at home is where children should receive careful religious training, and that mothers should be careful and not do or say anything that they would not like to have their little ones do, for they follow in our footsteps as they grow, and whatever we are they are sure to be. Then if we want our children to be noble men and women we must begin while they are young, though they may stray off as they grow older and seem almost lost to us, yet the home training will assert its influence and they will remember what their parents have taught them and be all we could wish them to be.

Dear saints, remember me and mine before the Lord, that we may have God's Spirit with us, that we may continue faithful to the end of life, and when called to depart, that we may hear that joyful greeting, "Well done, good and faithful servants, enter into the joys of the Lord."

Yours in the faith,

DALIA NOWLIN.

PROGRAM FOR SEPTEMBER MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

Opening hymn 137; Prayer; Scripture reading Proverbs 15; study select reading in Home Column; roll call; business; closing hymn 566; dismissal prayer.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

WHY TEACH TEMPERANCE TO CHILDREN?

OUR first thought in answer to this question is of the Yankee order. Why teach them anything? It seems to us that temperance is of so paramount importance that the question as to why we teach it had not occurred to our minds, and that if we teach anything, as a natural consequence we would teach temperance. But upon reflection we discover that a multitudinous army of the human race and a proportion of that number professed christians are living lives remotely related to the cause of temperance. We do not believe that all are aware of the awful results of intemperance and dissipation, and are grossly ignorant of the evil effects of the habit. And as some worthy writer has said, "Ignorance gives a sort of eternity to prejudice and a perpetuity to error," which we believe to be true; we see the necessity of education in this line.

TO EDUCATE A NATION

we must begin with the children in the cradles. Training in childhood is the advance guard to after life. Of all the wise sayings of King Solomon he did not give utterance to a more veritable truth than when he said, "Train up the child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Upon the children hangs the destiny of the nation, and upon their education depends the welfare of humanity and the upbuilding of God's church and kingdom.

Joseph Parker has truly said, "No true manhood can be trained by merely intellectual process. . . . You must take hold of men by the heart if you would train it into strength and dignity and usefulness." The children's hearts are ours; we may do with them what we will. No one will deny the susceptibility of the child heart, and the older they grow the less capable are they of receiving emotional impressions. If through their affections we show them the ways of truth and right doing, intellectual training will follow with the development of their reasoning faculties. Your erudite scholars and temperance lecturers may elucidate truths until their hair is white, and their hearers may believe every principle set forth, but unless they make some emotional impression or in some way reach the heart and arouse it to action, the soul of that man or woman will go on to perdition with all the knowledge they may have of hygiene and narcotics. Who ever heard of a drunkard or glutton reforming because he had fears concerning his health, or a user of tobacco admit that the use of the weed was in any way injurious to him? No, if they ever reform, the heart is reached, and the victim is aroused to a sense of duty toward God.

Does the potter allow his clay to become dry and set before he moulds it? Should we permit the habits to become fixed and then begin our molding? We take the plastic little hearts of the children and, as the potter does his clay, we begin to mold, and as we continue to toil and fashion the little souls to fit the model set above, we turn out men of stalwart character and principle, vigorous types of piety and steadfastness, who are not easily influenced by the cunning craftiness of men. When we undertake to mold the hearts of men whose character is already formed it is like molding in the hardened clay. Just as we begin to think of success it crumbles and all our hopes are shattered. Emerson says: "There never was a strong character that was not made strong by discipline;" and this discipline must be given in youth to make it effectual.

With Garfield we feel that, "That man will be a benefactor to his race who shall teach us how to manage rightly the first years of a child's education." If we could but make the children feel that it is a disgrace to use any liquor containing alcohol in any degree whatever, or to use tobacco in any shape or form, or use profane language or be seen in company with any who indulge in such things, together with the fact that it is displeasing in the sight of God, we would accomplish a grand and noble work.

It is the duty of every parent when he brings a child into this sin-embittered world to prepare it to meet its battles and be fitted for a life beyond. Education, as Herbert Spencer teaches, should prepare them for self-preservation both direct and indirect, for parenthood and good citizenship as well as the miscellaneous refinements of life; and if they are taught self-preservation they must of necessity be schooled in temperance.

This principle of temperance or moderation is one the mother begins teaching the child before it is twelve hours old by refusing to give it food every time the little red fist is put into the mouth, and it is continued in the refusal of too much candy and sweetmeats, as well as guarding against burns and falls and all accidents imperiling the child's safety. It is true that most children learn that fire is hot by being burned, but where is the mother who does not seek to save the child the painful experience?

The child is also taught to avoid the venomous snake that crawls about the lawn and the bees that buzz among the flowers. Great pains are taken to teach of the sharp teeth of the one and the hidden sting of the other. At a very early age the difference between the bee and the butterfly is known, but how few Oh! how few mothers think of the danger of tobacco and strong drink, of the late hours of dissipation, just as enticing and far more dangerous to the child turned loose in the whirlpool of society than the beautiful buzzing bee or the brilliant serpent to the toddling darling let out to play among the grass and flowers. We are taught that "wine . . . biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder," but like it in one sense only; it causes the victim much pain and anguish of body, but how much greater is the anguish of the soul?

There is an old proverb that says, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof;" and another, "Never cross a bridge until you come to it," that a great many well-meaning people ignorantly follow in the training of their children. They fail to give the admonition of the Psalmist, when he said, "Hear thou, my son, and be wise. Be not among winebibbers. The drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty." Neither do they teach them that they who tarry long at the wine cup are they that have redness of eyes, woe, sorrow, contentions, babblings, and wounds without a cause. Oh! that they might be taught to avoid all this and be filled with the Spirit.

What would we think of a nation that waited until war was declared and an attack made before mustering its forces and preparing for war? It would be equally as wise as to sit idly by until the young begin entering into dissipation and frequenting saloons, and then begin teaching and preaching temperance. They must be forewarned that they may be forearmed. But as parents fail to do their work it necessitates some one else taking it up. Very few children become addicted to the use of either tobacco or strong drink, or have acquired serious habits of excess in any direction before old enough to enter the Sunday school. The Sunday school teacher is a sort of foster-mother to the child as far as moral training is concerned, and it is from her he must learn spiritual self-preservation. It is in the Sunday school the child will learn of the destiny of the soul of the drunkard, the glutton, and those whose lives are spent in excessive dissipation, as in the day school he will learn of the effects of these curses upon his physical being. But what about those whose life is cast with that element who will not teach, neither will they send their children to day or Sunday school. Ah! this is a question puzzling many a noble worker and a problem we will of necessity leave for some other to solve. If we could only succeed in saving those who are born under favorable circumstances we would hasten the millennium and soon see the kingdom of God established on earth. If the use of alcoholic drink and opium were rooted out the subjugation of all others would be easily accomplished.

The moral canker worm of intemperance which is gnawing at the very heart of every church, society, state, or nation will never be exterminated except by education and a united effort on the part of all church societies and state. All that is lacking is a unity of forces and a never-slacking earnestness of purpose for which there is no substitute. We also need to write on our doors the saying wise and old, "Be bold," and teach the children to be bold in their defense of that which is right. The child who "dares to be a Daniel" has a great influence among his associates; but alas! how futile have proven all attempts at unity. Parents fail to teach and sometimes when they teach they fail to practice. The pulpits fail to proclaim as they should against it and legislation has proven less than a success. Hence the necessity of the Sunday school making a special effort. It is a noble cause, one in which every man or woman wearing the badge of Christianity should enter wholesouled and contend for the right until the demon "Drink" is swept from the face of the earth and every other dissipation, be it ever so lenient, be subdued and the Spirit and love of God be implanted in its stead. To the persevering belongs the victory.

May we as Sunday school workers heed the admonition of the wise one, "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them," and see that we "walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise," fit examples for the little ones placed under our direction.

For the Fremont, Iowa, district convention, by Sr. T. A. Hougas.

Letter Department.

SANDY, Utah, August 13.

Editors Herald:—By request of members of their church I preached in the ward meeting house in Taylorville, Utah, last Wednesday and Thursday, to congregations approximating two hundred. Am in hopes of its use in the future. "The successor" was the subject, and the forts "Louisa," "Roxy," "Zina," et al. were badly demolished by the thirteen inch shells thrown from their own guns. The gunner, however, had not been trained in their ranks, but though shooting such heavy projectiles, did it in such a kindly way that we apparently parted the best of friends. It will be well enough for Elders McKiernan and Hansen to suppress that smile over the word "kindly," for the writer is even more strongly confirmed than last year that "first principles and kindness" are the antidotes necessary for Utah's theological diseases.

About thirty stayed till 11:45 p. m., eight of whom tried to "corner" the preacher. The previous Sunday night Elder B. H. Roberts had urged them to come out and treat me kindly, for our people had treated him in that way in California. That's right, brethren and sisters, "cast thy bread upon the waters."

Both counselors were present, the second presiding at both services, and their choir did the singing. It was my first real fray since arriving, and was enjoyed, and especially so because of their kindness to me and best of attention. Have an invitation to preach in Murray, if bishop will consent to my use of their church. It comes through one of their returned missionaries.

In unusually poor health, but excellent spirits—no, sir; not port, Madeira, or any of that kind—the kind that should be cultivated.

I remain, hopefully and in bonds,

J. W. WIGHT.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 9.

Editors Herald:—June 13 I left home-place for the field, stopping in Central Iowa for a few days, calling at the homes of a few friends, my L. D. S. sister and an afflicted niece. Passing through Chicago I tarried over night with congenial Elder Terry at hospitable home of Bro. Frederick Pitt, Jr. By kindness of a Bro. Johnson we were privileged to visit a large office building, very fine, and the Masonic Temple, ascending to eighteenth story in one of its numerous "ventilators;" view from such an altitude was delightful; at noon hour our brother remembered the inside of the outer man. Thanks; for about that time there is usually an admonishing void.

Well, old Pittsburg looks about as smoky as ever, but enlarging her borders rapidly, dotting hillsides, hilltops, and valleys with residences and business houses. Pittsburg's coal, iron, and steel industries are of world-wide reputation, and made famous by the inexhaustive supply of these sources of wealth. Some of the largest mercantile establishments in the world are located here. I am glad to say that I "am a citizen of no mean city." Pittsburg is noted for her generous-heartedness, her patriotism, and Christian philanthropy. Her street railway system is up-to-date, cars running in all directions.

Her parks are places of beauty, possessing attractive features. These are Calhoun, Oakwood, Highland, and Schenley parks; all beautiful for situation, but the two latter are the larger ones and most charming. Band concerts are given at the two former ones each Sunday afternoon and evening, weather permitting. "Innes and his famous fifty" brass band was engaged for a week to give concerts twice a day at Schenley, at the cost of one thousand dollars per day, free to the public; these were furnished by the Pittsburg "Consolidated Traction Company." Schenley park has located on its border the Carnegie free library, museum, and music hall combined, at a cost of one million dollars, a gift to the city. Grand organ recitals are given to the public on Saturdays and Sundays during the cooler seasons of the year.

Highland Park has a large zoological garden and buildings. Carnegie's steel works supplied the metal for our great battleships; that fact ought to cause Pittsburg to be still more famous.

Nowhere in civilization can Nature equal in beauty of natural surroundings this territory; the general topography of the country is magnificent. Here are "the everlasting hills," with their "precious things." Here are flowing rivers, babbling brooks, living springs; and we need no Moses to smite the rock for water, for the yield of the sparkling stream is seen.

The city has many churches, and elegant residences. The L. D. S. tabernacle was set up July 16, and services opened on the 17th. Bro. Devore arrived on the 19th, and meetings have been in progress since then, and expect to continue for the season. Bro. Ulom is in care of tabernacle; it is in its third locality since first setting. We are looking for auditors, and expect to find them in the "sweet by and by." The well have no need of a physician, but them that are sick; we are looking for a community of the sick!

Thousands of people are "drugged" by use of prescriptions doled out by these numerous "doctors of divinity," and it has created a nausea for God's "remedy for sin." It is surprising to observe the widespread indifference toward anything religious. The masses are not wanted in these palatial church buildings, and their clergy would not touch the nasty poor sinner! I notice in a letter from New York City to a religious journal that the Fourth Avenue Presbyterian Church people are desirous of removing to an uptown district, but the pastor, Dr. J. R. Davies, is in favor of going down town on East Side; the church property can be sold for five hundred thousand dollars, and he suggests building for two hundred thousand "and investing the remaining three hundred thousand as a source of permanent support for the institution." This "is distasteful to a number of the older and more conservative members," and they are inclined to brand it as a method of "soup-house Christianity."

Apply your Book of Mormon statement: "They shall oppress the poor because of their fine sanctuaries." They ignore the poor!

I am satisfied that there are honest souls here who would gladly receive God's way. May we be directed for their good. A great field abounds with opportunities and difficulties, and we all need help from the helper of the helpless. With pleading soul we call upon God for direction, to give us an understanding of how to reach some of these many people. We are doing what we see to do, and as we see it. We require united effort; elders cannot do it all, anywhere. There are some good Latter Day Saints here, but there are ought to be many more of them. We are not members of this church to live for self; Paul said: "No man liveth unto himself." If our interest is not boundless, it is not Christlike. May we be able to see clearly how to do God's work. Words fail to express the feeling of my soul as I write. I presume—

"There is a greater greatness than that which Sounds a clarion and builds monuments;
Courage, oh, soul! In mighty deeds thy name
May not be writ, but in the silences
Thou mayest help on the unfolding of God's plans.
The strongest forces of the universe
Move softly as the stars and suns."

Trustingly,

J. F. MCDOWELL.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Aug. 9.

Editors Herald:—The Herald for the 3d inst. just received. I note Bro. J. R. Lambert's reply to the malicious and unwarranted strictures of our Christian-Infidels again. Well, the Bible speaks of men making "lies their refuge." Elder Lambert states the case correctly. They have also been treating the readers of the Christian Evangelist with more of a worse kind, a canvass and correction of which I have already mailed you. Have attempted to have the Evangelist insert "my side." They are silent as yet.

On June 23, in connection with my family, I took passage at Council Bluffs on the "iron horse," which for some unwarranted reason some have christened "Nahum's chariot." (There is nothing to show that Nahum ever saw the railroad in vision or otherwise, all the evidence being to the contrary.) We passed over the same road, beholding the varied scenery and change with intensified interest, but sadness and expectancy reigned in brain and soul. It was a glance behind and a glimpse ahead. Behind were a host of friends made doubly near by years of association and common brotherhood. Then there crossed my mental vision the new land far away, all unexplored. Reluctantly one gives up old friends for the new, notwithstanding they prove as worthy as the old.

My wife and children were "seasick" most of the way. We therefore made no stops. On the 9th I went to Santa Monica to attend the Southern California reunion; found Bro. D. L. Harris with others busily making arrangements. The force was further augmented by the arrival of Brn. F. M. Sheehy, direct from Boston, R. R. Dana, William Gibson, and A. Carmichael, and a number of other equally earnest ones of the local ministry. The reunion passed off pleasantly. One feature we must commend—no afternoon service. I have felt while attending the Woodbine, Thurman, and Bluff Park reunions that we had too many services. The three preaching and prayer services with a liberal supply of Sunday school and Religion sandwiches is tiresome, and wears the people out before the reunion is half through. Our afternoons were taken for general recreation and social intercourse. It gave general satisfaction. We were located on the beach, and we all went swimming or "sanding" It was lovely anyway. Frank, with his clown suit made by the good sisters on the Atlantic seaboard,—suitable there but a curiosity here, and the rest of us in modest apparel—in all a merry throng, at six o'clock in the morning defying Neptune and his magic power. I now want a "cottage by the sea."

"There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
By the deep sea and music in its roar;
I love not man the less but nature more,
From these our interviews in which I steal,
From all I may be or have been before,
To mingle with the universe and feel
What I cannot express yet cannot all conceal.
Roll on thou deep, and dark blue ocean roll,
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain."

The preaching was by Brn. F. M. Sheehy, William Gibson, D. L. Harris, Charles Baly, A. E. Jones, A. Carmichael, and the writer. The interest was sufficient to warrant the continuance of the meetings after reunion adjournment. Brn. Harris, Sheehy, and I remained.

I now realize why Bro. Sheehy and I were sent to California. This is a hotbed for cranks, and I gather that it is the policy of the church, so far as practicable, to send men to their native element. The reunion had scarcely begun ere Buddha reincarnated appeared. Then we heard from Isaiah in the flesh; then Jesus Christ came forth in the person of an old man. At one meeting we had four of such specimens, and how they clustered around Frank! One old gentleman, Dr. Kimball, wanted me to form a partnership, giving the assurance that we could convert the world. He didn't want Frank—his jaws were too massive. Phrenologists take notice.

The following Sunday Bro. Sheehy and I held forth in Los Angeles, Bro. Frank speaking in the morning and I at night; a small but select attendance. Brn. Harris and Sheehy took French leave in the evening, leaving me alone with my task, they heing to the Brighamite hall. My remarks were correspondingly shortened and I arrived in time to hear that threadworn testimony, "I know this is the work of God." I was amazed at the contrast! The Brighamites had twice the attendance we had, notwithstanding the advertisement of "two leading seventies from the East." I learn that in the last three years they have increased from comparatively nothing until they now number about one hundred and twenty five members. A number of these are gathered from our fold. Something should be done to circumvent them in this. Oh, for pastors, who can devote their entire time and be supported as the missionary is! "Feed my sheep"; "feed my lambs," is as imperative now as ever. A man cannot do successful pastoral work in a large city and be burdened with temporal cares as well. It will take ten times the labor and means to counteract the evil wrought that it would have required to prevent it. There is a good body of saints in Los Angeles, but they need encouragement and help. There is a flourishing branch here at San Bernardino. Have been holding meetings here for two weeks; large crowds and excellent attention. Spoke on the difference between Brighamism and the truth the last two nights. Four of their elders were present the first night, but had a call out of the city the next day. Will remain here as long as interest justifies. Do not expect to go into Central California for a time, but trust that the saints there will give due support to the ministerial force already on the ground and report their needs to me.

"How do you like California?"

Don't ask me, for I would not wound the native pride or disappoint you. Wait until I have been here a year. California now is a desert with an occasional oasis where water is obtainable. And oh, the heat! I never was so hot in my life. I have read that some men's sins go beforehand to judgment, but did not think that I would get to my destination so soon. You easterners crying out when the mercury reaches 90° and 95°. Yesterday it was 113° here in the shade. If one was near the coast the sea breeze would largely modify this. A man in California should spend his summer in the mountains or on the coast with his family and the winter at home, providing the church is willing. Living is more expensive than in Iowa, at least this year. Fruit costs more than in Council Bluffs. Of course, if a man is on the ranch, he gets an abundance of excellent fruit, but what you get in the city at the ordinary fruit stand is of poor quality and high in price. Bro. Sheehy, denominated the "fine old man" by the ladies, has gone to Frisco. Bro. Henry Smith and wife started the same day for Washington. Bro. Smith has worked faithfully in Los Angeles, but this enervating climate did not agree with him. In connection with Bro. Harris I expect to do service in the tent this summer. My family are now at Pomona; will locate them ere long. My correspondents will address me at Pomona, Los Angeles County, Box 821, until further notice.

Fraternally yours,

T. W. WILLIAMS.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 5.

Editors Herald:—I arrived in this city July 15 and have been domiciled with Bro. P. P. Stark, a dentist, corner Second and Broad, who secured the Picket Camp Hall, a neat, commodious, carpeted, and well-furnished hall in the very heart of the city, and made announcements in the two leading daily papers, which he has continued for four consecutive weeks. Besides this handbills were distributed in various parts of the city. Meeting night arrived and the preachers were on hand and the janitor performed well his duty. It probably will sound better not to continue the record of this appointed service further. Sunday night came; preachers on hand again and no complaint of janitor. Excetur silentio, which interpreted means, "Went away without speaking in tongues." The number attending at our future meetings might be definitely stated, but suffice it to say that we had an increase of from one to three after that, and we believe those attending were interested and hope seed was sown that may bring forth fruit in the future.

We attended the "Mission" one night; only two were present besides ourselves, the leader, Mrs. Glover, attributing the lack of an audience to the extreme warm weather. I do not think this city will hear the message; they seem to me like the Presbyterian's mule—"established." The story runs thus: A poor Presbyterian and a Universalist living neighbors, the one owning a mule, the other a horse, in order to do their heavy work spliced teams, and often when working talked religion. The Universalist generally got the best of the argument, and when the Presbyterian could no longer meet his antagonist by argument, he would say, "You need not try to convert me, anyway, I am established." So one day the mule refused to go while they were in a great hurry, and the Presbyterian got much out of patience with the contrary animal, and used his "persuader" most unmercifully; but to no purpose, only the "more he would the more the mule would not, when the Universalist said to him, "Brother, don't whip that mule any more, for I see he is like his master—established."

I went to Roxbury last week and find very little encouragement there for an ingathering. Made an appointment, however, at the home of Sr. Orr, and will administer the sacrament on Sunday, and hold services in the afternoon. The saints there are firm in the faith, but anxious to get away where they can have the privilege of worship without being threatened by mobs and lawless citizens. This is where Bro. F. C. Smith and wife were driven away by threats and demonstrations, and now the little house where they then held their meetings is occupied by a Methodist preacher, and we were refused the further use of it on the plea that "I am afraid it will pull the scab off the old sore, and maybe they will burn me out as they threatened to do if I let them [the saints] have it any more." May the Lord deal with them as he sees best. I will return to New Hope, Virginia, on the 10th inst., and labor in the regions near there for a time.

JEROME L. GOODRICH.

STIRRING TIMES IN CANADA.

SAUBLE FALLS, Ont., Aug. 10.

Editors Herald:—In my last I told of big interest here in Sauble. Since that time matters have gone from good to better—the crowds increasing, the preachers maddening, while eleven souls were baptized. The preachers found they could do nothing by secretly slandering us from house to house, so at last one, a Rev. Thompson, a Presbyterian, ventured to come to my meeting and at conclusion was in for debate. Seeing he was so brave I asked him if he was willing to meet an Elder R. C. Evans. "Yes, sir, or a baker's dozen like him!" was the reply. Accordingly we wrote out propositions affirming for respective churches; but at this the reverend gentleman's spiritual advisers made objections, telling him he would be caught and wound right up, thereupon he declined signing propositions. However, the preacher was not going to back down and out altogether, so he asked privilege to lecture night about with me, to which we gladly consented.

Next morning we telegraphed for R. C. Evans, telling him of his reverence's apparent illness and by all means to hasten with a few pills that he might be brought to all right. Accordingly Elder Evans came with the necessary accoutrements to begin scalping operations at once. We attended his reverence's first abusive lecture, and surely it was an onslaught filled with usual sectarian arguments—Joseph Smith a bad man and Book of Mormon a bad book, with an added caution, "Look out for these men; they are after your wives and daughters." But our turn came last night with poor Mr. preacher out to hear his death knell. Elder Evans showed where he lied from the very encyclopedias quoted by his reverence; that the Spalding tale was silly, written in fact by "a crack-brained Presbyterian preacher," as shown by encyclopedia, and produced evidence to show that Presbyterians themselves were taking in polygamous converts in India. At this the preacher arose much confused, wishing to explain, but being sharply questioned by a voice and eyes that pierced him to the heart. The preacher at last caved in, admitting that polygamy was practiced in their church in India; at this the congregation cheered, much to discomfiture of our opponent. I have been to many meetings where discussion has been in the past and have invariably seen the truth triumph, but to witness so spellbound an audience for over three hours with continued admissions by an opponent preacher, I have never yet heard of nor seen the like before.

The preacher admitted that John wrote his three epistles and gospel after the Book of Revelation was written; that infant baptism was unscriptural; and finally acknowledged that we were separate from the Utah Mormon Church, thus backing down from the cruel slanders heaped on us the night before. Crowds are attending the debate, including paper editors, preachers, etc. There was not standing room last night; even the windows were filled with anxious heads upon the outside, and though the reply was over three hours, yet all stood or sat and listened with breathless attention. Sometimes the house would be brought down with roars of laughter and immediately after the white kerchiefs could be seen stealing from the pocket to do service to the moistened eye. Thank God for the truth and power that enables his servants to control an audience spellbound while it waves them gently from the sublime towering summits of heavenly light to the merriment of a well-meaning story, then riveting home the facts from scripture and other sources, so much so that all honest minds see and distinguish truth from error, while he who blindly and willfully opposes is brought to shame and contempt!

Elder Evans expects to stay with me until the battle is over. We expect many baptisms. More anon.

Yours in delight,
DANIEL MACGREGOR.

August 5.—In my last I was showing the starting and progression of the work here in this northern clime, leading down to a debate between Rev. Thompson, Presbyterian, and Elder R. C. Evans. The results of that debate are gratifying indeed, for when Elder Evans had concluded his reply on Friday evening, after rapt attention for two hours, the congregation voted that Elder Evans had fully and satisfactorily replied to the stale slander and abuse heaped upon Joseph Smith, the Book of Mormon, and the church. But, our religious opponents were not to be stopped yet; seeing that Thompson was scalped so neatly and, moreover that he would not show up after his second night (though he promised to fight it out if it took all summer), they now had another man on deck, a Rev. Norton, to be imported from Owen Sound.

After our Friday evening reply this man Norton was proffered for debate by his agent, Rev. McEwen, of Baptist fame; but they did not want to debate with R. C.; they picked on your writer as the man they wanted, but their desires were not to be gratified when a man of heavier caliber was on hand; it was victory they were after, not to find out who had the truth. Elder Evans exposed their meanness and cowardice in wanting to debate with a person of about three years' preaching experience and only twenty-three. This he showed up so well that our opponents were reluctantly willing to meet Elder Evans. Papers were drawn up and signed to the effect that debate was to start August 16, each man affirming for his church, debate to take place in schoolhouse, the place of preaching for all sects lo, these many years.

And now we show trickery, cowardice, and meanness; our opponents seeing they were caught and forced into meeting Elder Evans because of audience demanding "fair play," now pursued tactics to get out of discussion; accordingly leading Baptist men who were ratepayers went to trustees and demanded the closing of school forthwith, and which had to be complied with. This stopped the debate, as there was no other hall in the place.

The whole country with the exception of a few pious religionists (?) see our opponents' cowardice, and truly it is doing them great harm. We are being slandered through the press, a two and three column article just appearing from the editor, calling us everything indecent, and stating that we should be run out of the country. The pious McEwen, like his predecessor, who so inhumanly led mobs against the saints, is busy from house to house, actually praying with one family that the "people might close their doors" against us, that God would "curse" us, and "that the people might set the dogs on us." Why, the ex-debater Thompson a few days ago having met me on the road threatened to jump out and horsewhip me.

We suggested to his reverence the idea of putting on the spurs and tackling Yankee Bob Fitzsimmons. Maybe we shall read of another champion fight.

We are feeling splendid in the work, having big crowds and rapt attention. Yesterday nine precious souls were led into the waters of baptism, while apparent appearances indicate many more in the near future. Bro. Evans leaves me to-morrow, about to prepare for his debate in Chatham, Ontario. His coming here has been a Godsend, giving the work an impetus which was impossible by your writer to perform. He tells me that since so many are apparently dead, I can do the burying all right. It must not be supposed that these are hasty baptisms; they are not, as they have been hearing the truth the past month, and at last witnessing the sad defeat of Rev. Thompson and the cowardice of Rev. McEwen, they are compelled to see that nothing can stand before this work; and well might they come to that conclusion. Twenty have been baptized in these quarters thus far, and so the work rolls on.

Yours in bonds,
DANIEL MACGREGOR.

RIVER STOUX, Iowa, Aug. 11.

Editors Herald:—I venture to visit your columns once more after my long silence. Leaving California we were soon passing through some less attractive portions of the noble land of the free. We found that the heat of the desert in Southern Arizona and New Mexico was far more intense than we experienced while in the islands. We were soon in Northern Texas, where we enjoyed a surprise party not soon to be forgotten, at the little town of Sherman, where Bro. Montague stepped on the train enroute to Standley, Indian Territory, and while looking over the car to find a seat was surprised at finding his neck entwined in the arms of his baby, who was shedding tears of joy, regardless of the thoughts of our many spectators.

We were soon at Standley, and made welcome in the home of Bro. Earl Bailey, and shall not forget the kindness shown us while there by these dear saints. Next we called at Webb City, Missouri, and again found some of the noble ones called saints. Arriving at Independence we found lodgment with Bro. and Sr. R. J. Parker during the conference, which was a spiritual feast to us. We met many of the saints, and a part of our dear ones, whom we had left for the "gospel's sake" when taking our departure for the far-away islands of the sea. Arriving at our home we felt to thank our Father in heaven for his loving watchcare over us.

After an absence of more than three years and a half we have learned to appreciate home as never before. Our little Cicely is now recovering from a severe cold and cough, caused by the change of climate. Am thankful to say that Mrs. Case is now recovering some of her lost strength, and we truly pray that she may soon be fully restored. Our hearts were made glad at the arrival of a sweet baby girl on June 16.

I have labored some in a temporal way to get my family located, that I might be free to fill the office of my calling. I attended the Williams-Bays debate, also our conference at Magnolia. Have been busily engaged in the tent work with Brn. J. F. Mintun and Robert Chambers. The interest at Blencoe was excellent; two were baptized by the writer and more are near the kingdom, three of whom intend to be baptized in a few weeks. My wife assisted nobly as organist during our two-weeks' stay there. We came here, put up the tent, and have preached twice to fair-sized audiences.

We were pleased to learn, by letters from Sr. Burton, Bro. Jansen, and some of the natives, that the work is moving forward in the islands mission. God speed the right everywhere is my prayer.

My permanent address is Moorhead, Iowa.

Your brother,
HUBERT CASE.

BAGWELL, Texas, Aug. 18.

Editors Herald:—I have just closed a meeting in this town, the first preaching ever done in the place. Considerable prejudice, but I succeeded in getting several out to hear. The Methodist started up a meeting in opposition, but the seed is sown and God will see to the result. The town is stirred up. They have sent for one man to come and debate with us. Now they are threatening me with J. W. Chism. Well, bring along Chism or the Seventh-day Adventist or whatever man you choose. If our claims cannot stand the test let them go down; the sooner the better.

I hear considerable talk about the I. P. Baggerly and Chism debate three miles south of this place. My opinion is that Bro. I. P. Baggerly is not the man for J. W. Chism, but hope I am mistaken and God will bless and take care of his work and the debate will result in much good.

I will begin meeting to-night on Blossom Prairie. The people keep me busy all the time, and then there are many places I can't reach, but hope some one will in the near future. Let us all work and pray till the Savior comes.

In bonds,
J. D. ERWIN.

SMITHFIELD, Utah, Aug. 9.

Editors Herald:—We received the tent for the Idaho district July 21 and were well pleased with it. Bro. Anthony and I began services in it at Pocatello, July 24, and continued until August 3. The Gentile classes were somewhat shy of us in the start, but after we had come through the fire from the Mormon camp, and the beauties and moral benefits (?) of that twin relic had been somewhat aired by both sides, the latter class seemed the more shy. However, we were invited into their pulpit on visiting their meeting, and Bro. A. was allowed fifteen minutes to bear his testimony, after three of their number had added to their usual testimonies some reasons why "they knew," laying especial stress upon the healing of their sick, and citing some instances that they or their friends had witnessed. But after Bro. Anthony had outdone them in this kind of testimony, I was somewhat taken back by one of their leading lights explaining to me that such things were no evidence that the recipients were the accepted church. We were kindly cared for at Pocatello by Bro. Croshaw's family and Sr. Dodds.

I have been occupying here with the tent since Sunday, anxiously awaiting the coming of Bro. Anthony or Bro. Davis or both. Additional credits to tent fund should be given as follows: L. M. Condit, $2; Addie Pettit, 50c.; Benjamin Croshaw, $1; George Chaffee, $1.

We hope to visit Bear Lake Valley with the tent soon. In bonds,

S. D. CONDIT.

WAKENDA, Mo., Aug. 9.

Editors Herald:—I have not written to you for some time; not because I had nothing to say nor because I was doing nothing in the Master's cause. I have just closed a series of meetings across the Missouri River from here. Owing to a camp meeting eight miles away I did not have a very large congregation, but managed by the help of Bro. G. O. Adkins to preach seven times, and once at Bro. George's house on this side of the river. I find the people very ignorant, in some houses not a Bible to be found, and the little boys swearing like Spaniards. I talked to several of the little profaners and they promised they would swear no more. I fear if saint and sinner go on the way I find them in my mission, till Jesus comes, he will find but little faith on the earth. If professed Latter Day Saints will not help the good cause, but instead of observing their duty, on Sunday harness up their teams and go visiting or fishing, gathering in the crops from the farm, they cannot expect the favor of God. That's the reason why that men's withered hands, and arms, and bodies are not healed. God does not love such people, therefore he will not bless, but a cursing instead.

Since General Conference I have preached in eight different places, doing the very best I knew how to get before the people the gospel of our salvation. I return home to-day, and will try some other place.

Yours truly,

J. C. FOSS.

LARIMORE, N. D., Aug. 10.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Swenson and myself have been laboring together the past few weeks in Marshall County, South Dakota, and in Traill and Walsh counties, North Dakota; Bro. Swenson baptizing four in Madison and Bonesteel, and two in Walsh. We feel encouraged, the Lord blessing us in our labors.

We met considerable opposition from two Presbyterian ministers, and it has taken considerable patient labor to disabuse the people's minds of the false impressions left by these gentle shepherds (?). However, by the help of God we have accomplished a little, having baptized eleven in all during our three visits covering a period of about nine weeks.

One of them met me in a short debate last fall, which proved so unsatisfactory to their side that his brother minister, Rev. W. J.

Hall, of Park River, has signed articles for discussion next November; four propositions, covering the doctrine and organization of our respective churches.

Bro. Swenson leaves to-day for Leeds and the Turtle Mountains.

To those who are waiting for us we say, Brethren, be patient; we will visit you in due time.

Yours hastily,

WILLIAM SPARLING.

HEARNE, Texas, Aug. 9.

Editors Herald:—I reached Central Texas district July 1, and labored during the month in the vicinity of Cook's Point. On the 29th I came to this place, in company with Bro. John Shirl and wife, by team, to attend the district conference. I met here for the first time Brn. E. Bates, Bishop's agent, and Frank Renfroe, and Frank Spicer; also Elder James Bryan, of Elkhart, Texas. There was quite a goodly number in attendance and a good time throughout.

The preaching services were in the hands of a committee, a practice that I think out of order. This is an essential part of a conference, and the presiding officer ought to direct it, as the law provides—that "the elders shall conduct the meetings as they are led by the Holy Ghost." However, the preaching was good.

This branch of the church is in pretty fair condition, I think. We conducted meetings here for one week after the conference, with fair attendance and some interest. Bro. S. R. Hay is the presiding elder here, and has labored faithfully for the spread of the gospel all over this country. Bro. W. S. McIntosh is also doing what he can to advance the work.

I will go this week to Falls County with Bro. McIntosh to hold a week's meeting near Marlin. I am due in Red River County the 13th of September at the Mabry schoolhouse, four miles from Clarksville, to hold a debate with Elder J. W. Chism, of the Christian Church. I hope the saints living in reach will take notice and be there and assist by their faith and prayers. I have also communicated with Elder T. J. Sheppard to be there to assist me. Many seem to be interested in this debate. This has been on hand since last fall. Hope all those interested in the spread of truth will remember me, especially at that time.

In the conflict,

I. P. BAGGERLY.

TABOR, Iowa, Aug. 15.

Editors Herald:—The work in this mission is moving slowly this summer, not anything very excitable taking place. The heavy rains and washouts with overflows on most of the creeks in both the Pottawattamie and Fremont districts have had a tendency to discourage quite a number of the brethren and set them back in their work, so that when they could work, it caused them to be very busy. It seemed almost impossible to hold night meetings through the week, so we put in the time in visiting the saints and friends, with very good effect, preaching Saturday nights and Sundays; that is in country places; in towns of course we could do some better. But my collaborators, Brn. I. M. Smith, C. J. Carlson, D. R. Chambers, and Priest Hanson, with the local force of both districts, as we have good reason to believe, have done the very best they could; and we all hope to do better in the future as the nights get longer and the weather cooler.

We now have our tent up in Glenwood, county seat of Mills, in charge of Elder I. M. Smith, assisted by C. J. Carlson, who are doing a good work, as reported to us; good audiences and good attention, for which we feel grateful to our heavenly Father, more especially as the little band of faithful saints has struggled hard to establish the work in that town, under trying conditions, and opposing influences hard to endure. I have been unfit for duty for the last ten days on account of sickness, but commenced on Saturday night the 13th inst. in Egypt schoolhouse, also yesterday morning, and at night in Bartlett; had full houses with excellent attention. Shall move on to Glenwood from this place to release Bro. Smith, so he can attend the Bluff Park reunion, as requested by the committee.

We want to work our tent in some other places this fall before the weather gets too cold. We have no difficulty in getting a hearing when the people can get out.

I feel proud of my collaborators, and pray God to bless them in all their work, and to help them to work acceptably. We trust the work will move on in harmony with the divine will to victory.

Yours in bonds,

HENRY KEMP.

FENTRESS, I. T., Aug. 8.

Editors Herald:—Dear saints; a few words to all who are coming or contemplate coming to the Indian Territory. There is a fine opening here for a mill, cotton gin and bur. If there are any of the saints who would like to come out and go our halfers in this machinery, come at once, as the machinery that was here has changed hands.

There is a fine chance for some money to be used to a good advantage, say fifteen hundred or two thousand dollars. Come at once.

Yours,

PERKINS BROS.

GARLAND, Ala., Aug. 10.

Editors Herald:—As an item of news you may state to your readers that the saints' church of Pleasant Hill branch near Garland, Alabama, built at a total cost of about six hundred dollars, was dedicated on Sunday, August 7; Elder M. M. Turpen delivering an able discourse, followed by the dedicatory prayer by Elder C. I. Carpenter. Notwithstanding the rainy weather there were about two hundred persons in attendance and all seemed to enjoy themselves.

Yours in bonds,

C. I. CARPENTER.

DENTONIA, Kan., Aug. 1.

Editors Herald:—The work in this part of the vineyard is moving slowly but surely.

To my mind we are getting a fair hold here. Prejudice is gradually melting away. I baptized two more noble souls yesterday, making five in this vicinity in the past month. Others are interested and, I believe, will unite with us in the near future. I have had good attendance at my meetings and good liberty in presenting the word.

In bonds,
L. F. JOHNSON.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., August 15.

Editors Herald:—I came to this city July 7 and attended a branch business meeting in the evening, held by the saints in a hired hall in this worldly yet enterprising city of two hundred and twenty-five thousand people. The following day a few of the brethren assisted Bro. I. N. Roberts in setting up the gospel tabernacle in the northern part of the city, and we began services that evening holding fourteen meetings, then changed to Western Avenue, where we continued our efforts closing last evening. Hundreds heard the gospel for the first time which resulted in removing much prejudice. Two or more expressed a desire to be baptized which God-given ordinance Bro. Roberts will attend to this week.

Bro. R. is an energetic and fearless exponent of the gospel law, to both members and nonmembers. The saints were kind and hospitable, and I enjoyed my labors with them very much.

Minneapolis has justly earned the reputation of being the greatest and best wheat flouring city in the world. Elder Roberts and the writer availed ourselves of the opportunity of visiting the "Pillsbury B" division to-day, which is king of the flour mills, making six thousand barrels daily. The total product of the twenty-two mills is sixty thousand barrels a day. The Mississippi River furnishes the propelling power for this line of industry.

Kennedy Henry, who showed us through the "B" mill is about fifty years of age and had been in the employ of this company for about twenty years. When asked if the machinery for that roller flouring mill in Jerusalem, Palestine, was shipped from Minneapolis, he informed us that it was shipped from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and that he spent two months in Jerusalem, about the year 1887, assisting in placing the machinery and setting the mill in order. He said the only mills in use previous to the introduction of the American mill were handmills operated by women. Mr. Henry also assisted in the introduction of American mills into Bombay, India, during his trip to Asia.

I will return to the Galland's Grove, Iowa, district this week. May the Lord bless his saints in every land, is the prayer of,

Your colaborer,
C. J. HUNT.

Original Articles.

LATTER DAY EVENTS.—NO. 2.

BY ELDER JAMES COCKS.

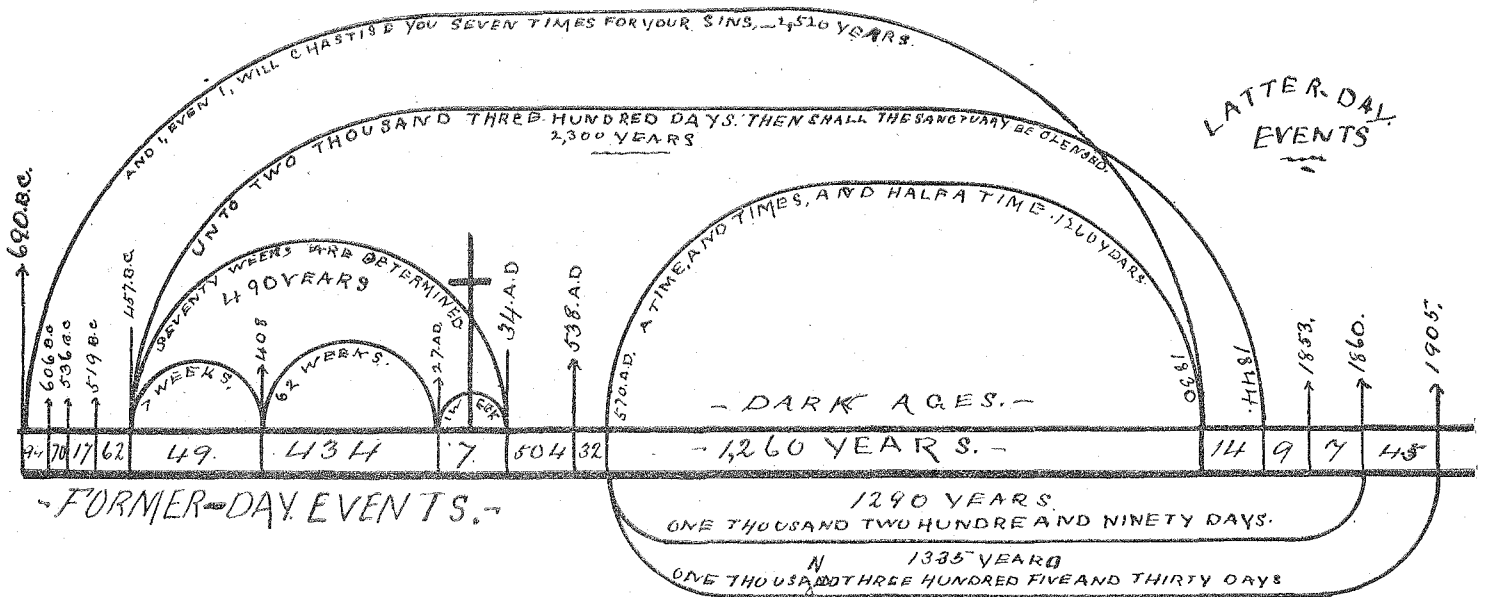

If a party were to explore the Catacombs of Egypt, or any of those subterranean places for the burial of the dead, and did not make the necessary provision for lights, etc., for their safe return, they would perish; in darkness, yet the knowledge that they have one end of the cord safe, that 1,260 yards from that end there is another which means life, light, and liberty, means safety to them.

If John were to take a circle or hoop of iron or wire, say 420 yards in diameter, and make one cut, take the two ends and stretch to a straight line, it would measure just 1,260 yards; we will suppose those yards wire. If there was a telephone at the farthest end, and we send a message through, and get a reply, we know positively it is one and the same.

Whatever were the peculiarities of the woman (church) when she went into the wilderness, will be the same when she comes out. By an obedience to her doctrines, the truth of her claims can be verified or otherwise.

despair they may cry out, There is no outlet, although quite near to safety. But if they were to take a rope and measure off just 1,260 yards, make one end fast at the entrance, provide themselves with lights, they might penetrate its intricate depths to the extreme end of their cord. Their lights may go out, the intervening space may be filled with Egyptian are years. He fastens one end at 570 A. D., and writes an account of the characteristics of the cut on that end; anyone finding the nearest end, which would be 68 years back, could make a careful study of this end, and finding it was in harmony with the description of the other, would be warranted in coming to the conclusion that it was one and the same piece of iron or

The angel of Revelation 14:6, 7 came to Joseph Smith and announced that the time was near at hand for the setting up of the church and kingdom, which was never to be destroyed. Under the direction of the heavenly messenger the church was organized according to the original pattern, April 6, 1830. All inspiration that emanates from God must harmonize, so that if Moses, Daniel, Isaiah, John, Smith, or anyone else speaks by the power of the Holy Ghost, there will be harmony, irrespective of the different ages in which they lived as individuals.

I will briefly examine a prophecy given through Moses, nearly fifteen hundred years before Christ, to show that 570 A. D. is the date of the apostasy, and in 1830 the proper time for the fulfillment of the prophecies of Moses, Isaiah, Daniel, and John, in reference to this most important event, the setting up of the Church of Jesus Christ—"at the times of the end." By a careful reading of Leviticus 26 we learn that God covenants with his people. If they will keep his commandments he will bless their families, flocks, and land; they would have to eat their old store to make room for the new. On the other hand, if they rebelled, he would chastise them "seven times," and curse their land. Verses 28 and 29 read:—

Then I will walk contrary unto you also in fury; and I [God], even I, will chastise you seven times for your sins. And ye shall eat the flesh of your sons, and the flesh of your daughters shall ye eat.

As already shown, a "time" is another word for a year of 360 days; when prophetically used, each day stands for a year. Seven times 360 years is 2,520 years. God will chastise them 2,520 years. When this time shall have expired, he will extend to them the blessings they once enjoyed, and bless their land with its former and latter rains. For hundreds of years God had sent them prophet after prophet, giving them every chance to avoid the calamities which would surely come upon them. We turn to 2 Kings, 21st chapter, and find that Manasseh commits the sins that God will not pardon. Manasseh begins to reign 696 years B. C., at twelve years of age. In eight years he reaches his twentieth year, man's estate, when he sins most grievously. Subtract 8 years from 698, you have 690 for a starting point of the 2,520 years of punishment. The following scripture shows conclusively that God would not pardon Manasseh's sins:—

Surely at the commandment of the Lord came this upon Judah, to remove them out of his sight, for the sins of Manasseh, according to all that he did: and also for the innocent blood that he shed; for he filled Jerusalem with innocent blood; which the Lord would not pardon.—2 Kings 24:3, 4.

Again:—

Because they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall be kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched.—2 Kings 22:17.

Again:—

So Manasseh made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to err, and to do worse than the heathen, whom the Lord had destroyed before the children of Israel. And the Lord spake to Manasseh, and to his people: but they would not hearken. Wherefore the Lord brought upon them the captains of the host of the king of Assyria, which took Manasseh among the thorns, and bound him with fetters, and carried him to Babylon.—2 Chronicles 33:9-11.

Again:—

And I will cause them to be removed into all kingdoms of the earth, because of Manasseh the son of Hezekiah king of Judah, for that which he did in Jerusalem. For who shall have pity upon thee, O Jerusalem? or who shall bemoan thee? or who shall go aside to ask how thou doest? Thou hast forsaken me, saith the Lord, thou art gone backward: therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee and destroy thee; I am weary with repenting.—Jeremiah 15:4-6.

The history of those people, down to almost the present time, has been of untold want and misery. At the siege of Jerusalem they were reduced to such sore straits that they literally ate their offspring. Over eleven hundred thousand perished by the sword, famine, and disease.

This punishment takes effect in 690 B. C. Subtract 690 B. C. from 2,520 years, and there remains 1830 years. When the year 1830 is reached, the time of their shame and sorrow is ended. "Is it not yet a very little while, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field, and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest?"

How wondrous are the promises of God! In a little while now God is going to bless the land of their beloved Palestine. Just twenty-three years after (1853) God has restored his kingdom, called by Isaiah a glorious work and a wonder. The natives of that country were gladdened by the return of the early and latter rains. To-day she is a fruitful field, raising three and four crops a year.

Moses is the only one besides Daniel and John who uses the word "times" prophetically. Daniel, three one half times; John, three one half times; and Moses, seven times. If we cut the seven times of Moses in two by dividing of the fourth time, we have twice. A time (360 years), and times (720 years), and half a time (180 years), a total of 1,260 years. One half of the seven times of Moses (1,260 years), dating from 690 B. C., reaches to 570 A. D., the date of the apostasy, when the abomination is set up. The other half, 1,260 years, reaches from 570 A. D. down to 1830, when the Jews are restored to divine favor and mercy, and the kingdom of heaven is set up. Now is Daniel 2:44 fulfilled:—

And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed.

Also Daniel 7:18:—

But the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever.

And the kingdom is known to this the nineteenth century as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with Joseph Smith its prophet, seer, and revelator. Again the voice of revelation is heard, the blind are made to see, the deaf to hear, the lame to walk, the sick are healed, and the gospel is preached to the poor in all nations for a witness, before the end shall come.

I stated in the former part of this article that if at the time when the sanctuary is to be cleansed we shall discover that the kingdom is set up, it would be easy to understand what this cleansing process means. We are commanded to seek first the kingdom; in that kingdom is the sanctuary of the Holy Spirit. As already shown the 2,300 days or years commenced 457 B. C., fifth month, which is May. With the destruction of Jerusalem 70 A. D., 526 of the 2,300 days are accomplished. There still remain 1,774 years before the sanctuary shall be cleansed; add 1,774 to 70, and you have the year 1844, when this is to take place.

Now I turn to the revelations that God has given to his church. In Doctrine and Covenants, section 38, paragraph 4, given in January, nine months after its organization, we read:—

And now I show unto you a mystery, a thing which is had in secret chambers, to bring to pass even your destruction, in process of time, and ye knew it not, but now I tell it unto you, and ye are blessed, not because of your iniquity, neither your hearts of unlief, for verily some of you are guilty before me; but I will be merciful unto your weakness. Therefore, be ye strong from henceforth; fear not for the kingdom is yours: and for your salvation.

Again:—

And again I say unto you, that the enemy in the secret chambers seeketh your lives. Ye hear of wars in far countries, and you say that there will soon be great wars in far countries, but ye know not the hearts of men in your own land. I tell you these things because of your prayers; wherefore, treasure up wisdom in your bosoms, lest the wickedness of men reveal these things unto you, by their wickedness, in a manner that shall speak in your ears with a voice louder than that which shall shake the earth: but if ye are prepared, ye shall not fear. And that ye might escape the power of the enemy, and be gathered unto me a righteous people, without spot and blameless: wherefore, for this cause I gave unto you the commandment, that ye should go to the Ohio; and there I will give unto you my law.—Par. 6, 7.

Satan, the avowed enemy of Christ and his work, and who has had universal power through the "dark ages," has not retired vanquished with the restoring of the gospel. Oh no. He is like a lion seeking whom he may devour. He does not herald his approach with a mighty roar, but by the accomplishment of his deep and subtle purposes, it speaks louder than the loudest thunder. While the servants of God are doing their utmost in presenting the gospel to the world,—crying repentance, calling attention to the conditions of the past, the apostasy of the virgin church, its restoring, etc., and of wars and rumors of wars, and the signs of the times,—they were not conscious of what was taking place in their midst. In the above the Lord says that something is going to happen that shall speak in their ears with a voice louder than that which shall shake the earth. "But if ye are prepared ye shall not fear." Hence they are called to the Ohio to receive the law which will guard and keep them safe from the calamity which is to befall the church, evidently by virtue of the subtle influence of Satan.

One month later, February, 1831, we have this:—

Hearken, O ye elders of my church, who have assembled yourselves together, in my name, even Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God, the Savior of the world: inasmuch as they believe on my name and keep my commandments; again I say unto you, Hearken and hear and obey the law which I shall give unto you: for verily I say, As ye have assembled yourselves together according to the commandment wherewith I commanded you, and are agreed as touching this one thing, and have asked the Father in my name, even so ye shall receive.—D. C. 42:1.

And now, behold, I speak unto the church. Thou shalt not kill; and he that kills shall not have forgiveness in this world, nor the world to come. And again, I say, Thou shalt not kill; but he that killeth shall die. Thou shalt not steal; and he that stealeth and will not repent shall be cast out. Thou shalt not lie; he that lieth and will not repent, shall be cast out. Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else; and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit; and if he repents not, he shall be cast out. Thou shalt not commit adultery; and he that committeth adultery and repenteth not, shall be cast out; but he that committeth adultery, and repents with all his heart, and forsaketh it, and doeth it no more, thou shalt forgive; but if he doeth it again, he shall not be forgiven, but shall be cast out. Thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighbor, nor do him any harm. Thou knowest my laws concerning these things are given in my scriptures; he that sinneth and repenteth not, shall be cast out.—D. C. 42:6, 7.

Was this law kept?

I insert clipping from Elder Joseph Luff's sermon, delivered at the saints' church, Independence, Missouri, printed in Zion's Ensign, February 4, 1893, as in it is the thought we wish to express.

Now let us look at two or three of the main features of it [the above revelation]. We read paragraph 5: "And again, the elders, priests, and teachers of this church shall teach the principles of my gospel which are in the Bible and the Book of Mormon, in the which is the fullness of the gospel; and they shall observe the covenants and church articles to do them."

Now stopping just for a moment to repeat the thought expressed already, if this was a part of a remedy to provide against the danger that lay in the future or was to develop in the future, what was the nature of that danger against which the Lord said "the elders, priests, and teachers of this church shall teach the principles of my gospel which are in the Bible and Book of Mormon?" Did it not, I simply ask the passing, foreshadow the coming of a time when men in the church would cease to teach from the Bible or the Book of Mormon, and did that time ever come? Were they not denounced as of less value than the ashes of a rye straw.

And now behold, I speak unto the church. Thou shalt not kill; and he that kills shall not have forgiveness in this world, nor in the world to come. And again, I say, Thou shalt not kill.

What does that mean? He said this law was given to them to provide against a terrible mystery that was to develop in secret chambers. What kind of a disease do you suppose that was to be, that such an ingredient as this in the form of medicine had to be prescribed as a preventive? Did God by his foreknowledge understand that the time would come when men would kill? And he repeats the language, "Again I say" unto you, "Thou shalt not kill." "Thou shalt not steal, and he that stealeth, and will not repent shall be cast out." Stopping a moment I ask you the question, Why was the Mosaic law added to the gospel anciently? You can take my words that I uttered, quoting from Galatians awhile ago, "Because of transgression." The Lord foresaw the departure of Israel from the gospel law and made provision; and will you tell me that the unchangeable God had any other thought when he introduced features of the Mosaic covenants, so far as many of these words were concerned, after the gospel law had been introduced? If such commandments as, "Thou shalt not kill," "Thou shalt not steal," and so on, that were contained in the Mosaic law, were given them because of transgression of the gospel law, and then the gospel law, subsequent to that time, was introduced to the world, then comes a revelation to the church to come down to the Ohio and obtain what in itself, in part, proves to be a repetition of the Mosaic law; what was it again added for? Was it not that the Almighty foresaw the same kind of transgression, so far as character or principle was concerned, as he saw in disobedient Israel in early times.

As we study the rise of the church in these the last days, we find that history repeats itself. The seeds of sin and corruption that defiled the sanctuary and brought about its destruction with ancient Israel is found imbedded in latter-day Israel. While the enemy without was combined, he was also within sowing its deadly seeds of corruption. The hearts of the pure and faithful in the church were heavy-laden with grief and sorrow. Joseph, its prophetic head, once said, "Though we or an angel preach any other gospel than that which we, the First Presidency, have preached unto you, let him be accursed." The prophet knew the seeds of corruption were within the fold. He said when surrendering his person, "They were led like lambs to the slaughter." At last the crash came. Joseph and Hyrum are slain. They have sealed their life work with their blood. They were assassinated June 27, 1844. The sanctuary or church was not destroyed by this act, as many thought, but it was cleansed, and God's word is vindicated. The 2,300 days commenced in the fifth (May) month, 457 B. C., 2,300 full years from the fifth month; 457 B. C. reaches to the month of May, 1844, twenty-seven days later, the martyrs are slain.

In 1839 Lucy Smith, mother of the martyrs, was deeply concerned about the safety of her son Joseph. The Lord told her he would have power over his enemies for five years. She says in her book, "Joseph Smith the Prophet," page 298:—

After the corpses were washed, and dressed in their burial clothes, we were allowed to see them. I had for a long time braced every nerve, roused every energy of my soul, and called upon God to strengthen me; but when I entered the room, and saw my murdered sons extended both at once before my eyes, and heard the sobs and groans of my family, and the cries of "Father! Husband! Brothers!" from the lips of their wives, children, brothers, and sisters, it was too much; I sank back, crying to the Lord, in the agony of my soul, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken this family!" A voice replied, "I have taken them to myself, that they might have rest."

"But if ye are prepared ye shall not fear," said the Lord in 1831, indicating a great calamity would fall upon the church, whether they were prepared or not. But if they were prepared they were not to fear, so far as the ultimate triumph of God's work was concerned. Why? Because this kingdom was never to be destroyed, and the saints are to possess it forever and ever.

The church is the bride. In order that she may be properly adorned for the coming of the bridegroom, this cleansing was necessary.

But, says the objector, "In what sense was the church or sanctuary cleansed by the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith?" I do not mean to infer that simply by the shedding of their blood was the church cleansed; but I do affirm that the date of their death, 1844, marks an epoch in the history of the church. Their death was the result (partly at least) of sins that were within the fold, which made it necessary to be cleansed.

That part of the vision which pertains to the time of the end, Daniel was not given to understand; only the simple fact, "after 2,300 days the sanctuary shall be cleansed. Daniel was shown in detail the history of events down to the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, 70 A. D.; from that time the vision is closed up or sealed until the times of the end. Fourteen years before the date of cleansing, the kingdom of heaven is set up. Nine months after its setting up, the Lord tells them to come down "to the Ohio to receive (to all intents and purposes, the details of the latter end of Daniel's vision of 2,300 days) my law."

With the death of Joseph and Hyrum the church was cast into utter confusion. It was scarcely prepared for this sad blow. The pure, honest, and virtuous could only appeal to and trust their heavenly Father in this their time of need. Those that were susceptible to deceiving influences followed Brigham Young. That which was within the fold in embryo was developed in the valleys of Utah, and became the stench of the nineteenth century.

The church passed through bitter persecution. Still the great God was with the faithful, instilling faith and hope in their hearts. Finally, in 1853, the Reorganized Church had its beginning. Seven men were chosen as apostles, and one of them to represent the legal heir till he comes. It was in this year, 1853, that the early and latter rains were restored to Palestine, instilling hope and confidence in God's faithful saints.

The following statement, I cannot give verbatim, not having the matter before me. Some of the elders went to Joseph, the son of the Prophet, and told him that "the Lord had revealed to them that he was to lead the church." Joseph replied that the Lord had not revealed it to him, and that he would not accept the leadership of the church until he had.

It was just as necessary for the Lord to speak in Joseph's case as in any of the other prophets. "No man taketh this honor upon himself."

Now I turn to the last vision of Daniel, to that part which was not for him to understand. But those who are wise at the time of the end.

And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and swore by him that liveth forever, that it shall be for a time, times, and a half; and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished. And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things? And he said, Go thy way, Daniel: for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end. Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly: and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand. And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days (1290). —Daniel 12:7-11.

There is no doubt that Daniel is shown the terrible condition of God's people down to the times of the end. The three and half times (1260 years) elsewhere mentioned is sworn to here by a man holding both hands up. But Daniel does not understand. From the time that daily sacrifices shall be taken away (those sacrifices were done away at the end of the seventy weeks, when Christ was crucified), and the abomination that maketh desolate, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.

As already shown the former day apostasy was complete in the year 570 A. D., then this abomination was set up. Now add 1290 days or years, to 570 A. D., and we reach the year 1860, when some important event is to happen in the history of God's work. What! Daniel does not know. J. W. Briggs supplies the missing link. He receives a revelation November 18, 1851, saying that the seed of Joseph Smith should yet lead the church.

April 6, 1860, Joseph, the son of Joseph, unites with the church and becomes its prophetic head. Just one thousand two hundred and ninety days after the abomination is set up.

I now draw to a close by calling attention to the last period of time mentioned by the Prophet Daniel, to show that other important events are about to transpire in the church, the nature of which Daniel did not know, and possibly only when the events shall have transpired will we fully comprehend its meaning.

Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days [1,335]. But go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days.—Dan. 12:12, 13.

From the date of the apostasy, and the setting up of the abomination, 570 A. D., add 1,335 to 570 and you reach the year 1905, when? Forty-five years after the end of 1,290 days.

What is foreshadowed in the above? Will Daniel with others of the prophets visit the earth to share in the final triumph of God's work? When is the temple to be raised, and the sealed book to come forth? When will the saints gather in Zion? Will the gospel have then been preached in all the world for a witness? Are we near the end? What do the signs of the times indicate? Where are we prophetically?

Mark the date on the tablets of your memory; watch for the vindicating of God's word. The wise shall understand those days.

Look out for 1905.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan., 1898.

Conference Minutes.

SHEFFIELD.

The semiannual conference of Sheffield district convened at Clay Cross, July 9 and 10; J. Austin in charge, J. Roberts clerk. Ministry present: 6 elders (including H. C. Smith of the Twelve, missionary in charge of European mission), 3 priests, 2 deacons. Reports of branches, financial and spiritual. Reports of priesthood; two recommendations read from branches. From Sheffield branch: Resolved that Deacon Joseph Roberts be recommended to district conference for ordination to the office of elder; from Clay Cross branch, G. H. Holmes to office of priest. Resolved that the ordination of Deacon Joseph Roberts be referred to the president of the district and he authorized to provide for the ordination when he becomes satisfied that the brother is called of God. Resolved that the ordination of G. H. Holmes take same course as above. Vote of condolence passed in case of the late Bro. Henry Hoole. Resolution: Whereas it has pleased our heavenly Father, since our last assembling, to remove from our midst by death our beloved brother, Elder Henry Hoole; resolved that we hereby express our sorrow at the loss we have suffered by his decease, and record our sympathy and condolence with his family thus so sadly bereaved; and also declare our confidence that he was worthy and prepared for the transition to the church triumphant. Resolved that the secretary of district be instructed to prepare a copy of rules governing the district and send a copy to each branch, to be placed in the meeting rooms. Resolved that we sustain all church authorities and missionaries in the European mission by our faith, prayers, and means. Resolved that whereas Bro. H. C. Smith having labored in the European mission for nearly twelve months, and we having shared in the benefits of the same, feel that he deserves an expression of our love and confidence in him for his faithful, upright conduct and deportment during his sojourn in this, and his services as a minister of the gospel of Christ commend him to our well wishes for his future welfare and that of the church whom he serves; and trust that inasmuch as it is expected he is about to return shortly to America, that if it be the will of God we may have the pleasure and benefit of his services again sometime not far hence, we subscribe ourselves your fellow laborers the priesthood of the Sheffield district. Adjourned to meet in priesthood capacity. Speakers: Elders S. Platts and H. C. Smith. Sunday services: Morning 10:30, in the Market Place, J. Austin in charge, speaker H. C. Smith. Afternoon, fellowship meeting, S. Platts and C. Cousins in charge, when a profitable time was spent. Evening, J. Austin in charge, preaching by H. C. Smith and J. Austin. Adjourned to meet at call of president, as to time and place.

Sunday School Associations.

LONDON.

Convention of above district Sunday school association met at Vanessa, Ontario, June 17; Elder G. C. Tomlinson, superintendent of association being unable to attend, the meeting was opened by Sr. Place, second assistant superintendent. By her request a motion prevailed appointing Elder D. MacGregor to assist in presiding; Sr. M. MacGregor secretary, Sr. Platt organist. Reports were read from Cameron, Vanessa, St. Thomas, Niagara Falls, Selkirk, London, St. Mary's, Toronto, and Arthur Sunday schools. Reports were heard from the officers of district and superintendents of schools, showing the lively interest taken by many in this part of the Lord's work. Elder R. C. Evans just arriving, was called on to assist in presiding. Short speeches from the assembly were called for, which brought out many interesting points in Sunday school work. Quite a lively discussion took place over the question of how merits should be given to children of outsiders attending Sunday school, who did not have Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants to study from, but had perfect lessons so far as King James' translation of the Bible went. A discussion was indulged in as to the propriety of presenting proofs from Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants and Inspired Translation of Bible in schools or classes largely made up of outside pupils or saints for whom these things were strong meat as yet. The evening session was occupied by a sermon from Elder Evans on Sunday school work and the duty of parents to children, which was of an instructive, interesting, and amusing character. Thus closed a pleasant and profitable Sunday school convention.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

The Kewanee district Sunday school convention and two days' institute will convene at Buffalo Prairie, Illinois, September 1 and 2. All are invited to be present. T. A. Hougas main instructor.

Thursday morning, 10:00 a. m., "The aim of the institute," T. A. Hougas, General Superintendent; address of welcome, Superintendent Alma Whitehouse; responses, J. H. Lake and J. C. Crabb; assignment of work.

Thursday afternoon, 1:45 p. m., Duties of officers: Superintendent, who should be chosen; his duties and work; his relation to his assistant. Assistant Superintendent, ditto. Secretary, duties in school; with records; with class books; preparing and reading minutes; duties out of school. Librarian, chorister, organist, janitor. 2:30 p. m., Review work: why have reviews? where have, and how often; the blackboard in the Sunday school; How conduct to benefit the primaries. 3:30 p. m., Blackboard work, T. A. Hougas.

Thursday evening, 7:30 p. m., Music. 8:00 p. m., Normal lesson, T. A. Hougas. Music. 8:30 p. m., Blackboard work, T. A. Hougas.

Friday morning, 9:30 a. m., Primary work: paper or class drill; use of Primary Quarterly. 10:00 a. m., Intermediate class work: paper or class drill, or both; how to teach, how to classify a school, and how to promote: use of Quarterly, and other helps.

Friday afternoon, 2:00 p. m., Business, reports, etc.; Sunday school prayer and testimony meeting.

Friday evening, Entertainment in charge of the Buffalo Prairie school.

EVA HOLMES, Dist. Sec.

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN AND NORTHERN INDIANA.

A Sunday school institute and entertainment consisting of three sessions was held at Englishville, Michigan, in the saints' tent in connection with the two-days' meeting at that place July 23 and 24. It was given by the Grand Rapids and Alpine schools combined, under the management of Bro. J. M. Baggerly and Srs. Edith West and Fern Griffith, committee on arrangements. An excellent program had been prepared and published, covering a variety of useful and beautiful topics, it being the most extensive of any yet presented in our district. On account of the absence of some of our speakers the program was somewhat limited in execution. Of those absent were Sr. Belle Royce, of Baroda, C. B. Fish, of Lansing, J. A. Cavanaugh, superintendent Grand Rapids school, and Elder E. K. Evans, president Grand Rapids branch, whose absence was much regretted, but who could not be in attendance. Bro. J. M. Baggerly acted as chairman in the absence of Sr. J. H. Royce, who was announced to take charge. The principal subjects following were, "The Bible, the text book of the Sunday schools," by Sr. Lydia Supry; "The Sunday school worker's sixth sense, or common sense, by Bro. J. M. Baggerly; and, "Drawing in the Sunday school," by Bro. G. F. Weston, the latter consisting of a chalk-talk illustration of the flood, and final burning of the earth, this being the subject of the lesson for the following Sunday. Bro. Weston made up a beautiful large crayon drawing of Chochan-chob (a Central American ruin) for the occasion, and presented it to the Grand Rapids branch for their hall, first using it to illustrate his talk on the Book of Mormon geography. The drawing was enlarged direct from Desire Charnay's work on American antiquity, from the city library of Grand Rapids. The entire choir did well and many speakers and singers deserve mention. The Grand Rapids Sunday school sang a beautiful chorus, and Bro. G. F. Weston gave an address on the map of ancient America, and repeated the illustration for the next Sunday school lesson, by drawing a picture with colored chalk on paper, before the audience. The entertainment, with some variations, was also presented at the saints' hall in Grand Rapids, on the Friday evening following, as a means to procure seats for the saints' tent at that place, the total receipts being about twelve dollars. The saints at Grand Rapids and vicinity are diligent and aggressive, with a view to improvement and culture, and it is gratifying to see the work taking advanced steps and striving to "come up higher."

Miscellaneous Department.

PASTORAL.

To the saints of Western Maine; Greeting:—

Nearly a year has passed since we first met you upon financial questions and needs. Although for the past few months our returns have been very small, we have attributed it to the tightness of money matters, and not to lack of education upon the "law of tithes and offerings."

Our reason for addressing you now is simply necessity. We told you one year ago that we were in debt to the amount of nearly two hundred dollars. This money was the arrears due elders' families in the district. That means that our elders were owing, for groceries, for rent, and fuel, for the services of the doctor and undertaker to that amount. What could be done? An empty treasury at Sedgwick, an empty treasury at Lamoni. Appeals, under those conditions, to the Bishop, could bring no returns. A brother gave his note for one hundred dollars. It was placed in the hands of the ministry and the tight place was passed. Fifteen months have passed and the note is due. Since that time as a district we have barely held our own with what aid the Bishop could give us. We have refrained from bringing this matter before you, hoping means would come without a direct appeal; but it has not, so we lay the matter before you and ask it your immediate attention and assistance. Let every one whose spirit stirs him send what he can at once. One dollar from each one whose name is upon the Bishop's agent's books will pay this obligation and the ministry be free and the work not hindered. Then five cents per week from each saint will carry the district upon a cash basis.

No doubt we have the truth of heaven, the grandest thing on earth. God has spoken; men are sent to declare the message. He has told them to "go in faith," to consider the lilies, the sparrows, and such. They go forth. The church tells them each year what allowance will be made their families, and they leave them to its care. True, God might feed them from the heavenly storehouse; but it is not so arranged. There is no greater or grander principle with which we have to do than delegated responsibility. We have voluntarily, through gospel obedience, taken this responsibility upon us, and at the solemn bar of eternity we must answer for its discharge.

"Brightly beams our Father's mercy, from his lighthouse evermore.

But to us he gives the keeping of the lights along the shore."

Send all money to Canton Point, and receipts will be sent promptly.

Your brother in Christ,

W. W. BLANCHARD.

WANTED.

The name and address of all saints or non-members who resided in Nauvoo during the time that the church was located there. The name and address of any and all saints who united with the church prior to 1844. The name and address of anyone who can give any information on the question of Joseph Smith succeeding his father in the presidency of the church. The name and address of any and all who were deceived and oppressed in the dark days of Brighamite tyranny.

Don't put it off, but at once send your address to me. If anyone knows of another who might not see this notice, please send me his name and address.

Address T. W. Williams, Box 821, in care E. C. Cady, Pomona, Los Angeles County, California.

The name and address of anyone who was associated with D. H. Bays while he was a member and minister of the church. Did you ever see him administer to the sick? Did you ever hear him when he claimed to speak by the Spirit of God? Did you ever hear him bear his testimony to the divinity of this work? Do you know anything of his personal life and conduct? If so, then without fail send me your name and address.

Address T. W. Williams, Box 821, in care E. C. Cady, Pomona, Los Angeles County, California.

NOTICES.

Decatur district; Greeting:—We your committee appointed to raise money to aid in bearing expense of Bluff Park reunion of 1898, beg leave to report that we collected $10.20 and turned the same over to William Anderson.

Respectfully,

ROBT. M. ELVIN,

Chairman of Com.

LAMONI, Iowa, Aug. 19, 1898.

REUNION NOTICES.

Please make correction of my notice in the matter of "Religio" work in Maysville reunion. The afternoon and evening of Saturday, September 3, will be devoted to that work instead of Friday.

H. O. SMITH, Pres.

On account of low rates to Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha the Reunion Committee has made no provision for reduced transportation to Woodbine. Parties coming from a distance can purchase round trip tickets to Omake and save more than by any arrangements the committee is able to effect with the Western Passenger Association.

We also wish to call attention to the fact that Mr. Butler will again have charge of the boarding hall on the reunion grounds, and will this year have a sleeping apartment with the boarding hall. Board and lodging furnished at reasonable rates. He will also keep a supply of pastry on sale.

By order of committee,

S. C. DIGGLE, Sec.

MASSACHUSETTS REUNION.

In a quiet place down by the seaside the Massachusetts reunion is being held. Dennisport, with its neat, white cottages, makes a quiet, restful picture. The green lawns are nicely kept, and an air of neatness seems to pervade the place. Saints from various parts of the district are here, and all seem to wear a happy and contented look. The white tents gleam through the pine grove reminding one of the times of ancient Israel and the tabernacle, only the similarity would probably end with the word, as this one is simply white duck. As I move across the space from the road to the tent I hear the earnest voice of a man pleading with the people to be reconciled to God. It is an apostle of Jesus Christ.

We are highly favored this year in the number of officials present. Patriarch A. H. Smith, Bishop Kelley of the First Presidency, Apostle Joseph Luff, and Seventies, and elders, priests, teachers, and deacons, all working to make our gathering a success. The rain has hindered the people from coming out as much as they would otherwise have done, but the tent has been well filled most of the time. Five were baptized during the reunion and we trust will be an honor to the church. The officers selected for the reunion were as follows: A. H. Smith and E. L. Kelley presidency, G. W. Robley secretary, Richard Bullard and Ora Holmes choristers, Livina Ashton organist, F. O. Coombs and G. W. Robley press committee, Dean Linnell usher.

Three meetings a day were held, two preaching meetings and a prayer service. The afternoon was devoted to recreation, for many of our people work in stores, shops, etc., and too many meetings make too hard work, so it was thought wise to give time for bathing in the afternoon. The preaching was excellent and the prayer services spiritual. Happy faces, joyous hearts, good words, no growling, sunshine everywhere. What more could I say if I should fill your pages with matter? The reunion was a success.

GEO. W. ROBLEY.

BORN.

LEWIS.—At Pekay, Iowa, April 12, 1898, to Mr. David and Sr. Jeanette Evans Lewis, a son, David Melbin; blessed August 6, by Elder J. S. Roth.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutly Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound	$1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners..	2 00
Full leather	2 50
Full leather, gilt edges.....	3 00

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

G. A. R. National Encampment, Cincinnati, Ohio, September 5-10, 1898. Returning not later than September 13. An extension of time till October 2 can be obtained. Special G. A. R. train leaves Chariton 4:50 a. m., arriving Cincinnati same day at 9:05 p. m. Round trip from Lamoni $14.05.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth	$1 00
Sheep or library binding	1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 75
Morocco, gilt edges	2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges	3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth	$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia.....	1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible.....	2 00

THE BOOK OF MORMON. Large Type Edition.

Cloth, leather backs and corners..	$1 50
Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges	2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth	$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia.....	1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible	2 00

THE TWO RECORDS. The Book of Mormon and the New Testament. (Inspired Translation) in large type; in one volume.

Leather back and corners	$2 00
Seal Grain Russia.....	2 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	3 50
Morocco, gilt edges	4 00

NEW TESTAMENTS. Inspired Translation. Pocket-size edition.

Cloth	$0 30
Cloth sides, leather back	50

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6½x8½, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net

.....	$2 00
-------	--------

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Rules for the government of general and district conferences, branch business meetings, and other assemblies. Instructions concerning general, district, and branch records, the holding of elder's courts, etc., cloth bound; price 40 cents.

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100 $1 00
 2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
 3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
 4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
 5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
 6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100... 1 00
 7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
 8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100..... 1 30
 10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
 11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 20
 12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 13. Discipleism, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts; 100, 1 00
 14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... $1 00
 15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
 16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
 18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen..... 30
 19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen..... 10
 20. The "One Body;" or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
 21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
 22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
 23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
 24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
 25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
 27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100..... 1 00
 31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
 41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
 42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
 43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
- Prophecy of the Rebellion; per 100 10

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

Cloth	$0 40
-------------	--------

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer. President.
 Wm. Anderson. Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins. Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson. Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address:
 I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

BRO. E. F. ORDWAY, of Peoria, Illinois, will send 3 boxes of Quit to-Bac post paid anywhere for $1.50, and positively guarantee it to cure your tobacco habit, or your money refunded.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co., 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

- Branch statistical reports; per doz. $0 40
- Annual statistical reports; two for 05
- Certificates of baptism and membership; per dozen..... 12
- Baptism and confirmation certificate books, with stubs 25
- Certificates of removal; per dozen.. 12
- Marriage certificates; per dozen ... 25

JOSEPH THE SEER. His prophetic mission vindicated and the divine origin of the Book of Mormon defended and maintained.
 Paper $0 35
 Cloth, limp..... 50

Its Easy Writing

If its a Blickensderfer No. 5.

The universal favorite with all classes of operators who desire a simple and speedy machine.

More "Blicks" in use among Iowa and Nebraska newspapers than all the rest of the $100 machines together. The only Typewriter on the market doing hundred-dollar work that is sold at a popular price.

Has 28 Keys, of 84 Characters and Letters; Portable, weighing but Six Pounds with case.

Copies and Manifolds perfectly,—12 carbon copies being easily taken at one writing.

Only one price—$35.00 net. On ten days approval to any responsible man in Iowa or Nebraska. Address,

HARGER & BLSH,

General Agents,

904-910 Main Street, DUBUQUE, IOWA.

$35

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.

NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.

Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.

Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.

THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture AND Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.

GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas.

Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery.

Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to

RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.

The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a

Reward of $200

By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns.

TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.

It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State

PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.

DES MOINES, IOWA.

THE SAINTS' HYMNAL. The popular edition of words and music, in general use.

- Paper covers $0 30
- Cloth and leather 50
- Full leather 1 00
- Gilt edges..... 1 25
- Flexible 1 50

THE SAINTS' HYMNAL. Word

edition.

- Paper $0 15
- Cloth 25
- Cloth 35

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH.

- Cloth $0 75
- Leather. 1 00

THE INSTRUCTOR. A compendium of the faith and doctrines of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by Elder G. T. Griffiths.

- Cloth $ 75
- Leather..... 1 00
- Flexible binding 1 50

THE SAINTS' HARP. Hymn Book

—Words Only.

- Cloth $0 75
- Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges 1 25

ARCHAEOLOGICAL COMMITTEE

REPORT. A manual of evidences in support of Book of Mormon archæology, with maps. Price $0 50

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

- Branch statistical reports; per doz. $0 40
- Annual statistical reports; two for 05
- Certificates of baptism and membership; per dozen..... 12
- Baptism and confirmation certificate books, with stubs 25
- Certificates of removal; per dozen.. 12
- Marriage certificates; per dozen ... 25

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 31, 1898.

No. 35.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
Coöperation.....	549
Signs and Means of Moral Progress.....	550
College Courses of Study.....	551
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Select Reading for September Meetings of Daughters of Zion.....	552
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
Sunday School Teachers' Class Books.....	553
LETTER DEPARTMENT:.....
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Are You Going to Help?.....	557
Infidel Arguments Answered.—No. 2.....	559
There is Danger Ahead.....	560
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Northern Nebraska.....	561
Kentucky and Tennessee.....	562
Northern Wisconsin.....	562
Nauvoo.....	562
West Virginia.....	562
Fremont.....	562
Southwestern Texas.....	563
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS.....
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Pastoral.—J. R. Lambert.....	563
Reunion Notices.....	563

CAUSE OF EASTERN TROUBLES.

STRUGGLE OF EUROPEAN NATIONS FOR DOMINATION IN ASIA IS FIERCE AND INTENSE.

ALMOST every student of affairs in Great Britain, and, in fact, of all Europe, has recognized that eventually Britain and Russia must come together in a war which will settle, at least for a time, the domination of either nation in the far East. Russian papers published in St. Petersburg have repeatedly pointed out, probably under official sanction, that the interests of England and Russia were diametrically opposed; that what was good for Russia in its plans of development was bad for Britain, and that there could never be any lasting alliance between the two nations.

War is fatal to commerce, and England in amassing wealth, has permitted Russia to gradually attain a supremacy in the East. As long as this supremacy was purely diplomatic England's statesmen have remained quiescent. But when Russia sets about to seize the richest province in China with which England has enjoyed a trade of £32,000,000 a year and threatens to close the province to all other nations England must either make a stand or at once surrender her position to a nation which is willing to fight for it. The New Chwang railway feature is only an incident in the struggle for the mastery in China, but with this railroad completed England's influence will have undoubtedly suffered a severe setback.

Russia for many years has eagerly desired an open winter port on the Pacific. That port had to be in China. Japan, forced by the aggressiveness of Russia, determined to be forehand and went to war with China. China humbled, Japan demanded the cession of Corea and Port Arthur. Accession to these demands would have seriously interfered with the plans of Russia to get an ice-free port and also that nation's ultimate hope of extending the Siberian railway across China to a point on the Japanese or Yellow Sea. Russia threatened Japan and compelled it to take a money indemnity instead of territory on the continent. Russia then secured practical control of Corea, besides compelling China to cede Port Arthur.

Germany, envying the success of these two nations in browbeating China, and aroused by the killing of one or two German missionaries in the vicinity of Wei-Hai-Wei, landed troops at Wei-Hai-Wei, and after making a naval demonstration secured a lease to that place and adjoining territory for a number of years.

The commercial competition of Germany and France and Great Britain has been intense, and the policy of the two former countries has been to close all territory under their control against foreign commercial competition. Russia, not caring so much about the commercial advantages as for exclusive Russian political domination, also shuts off all outside intercourse in territory governed by the Czar. Great Britain professed to care little for the advent of the other nations into the Chinese commercial field, seeming to believe their trade arrangements would be fair to all. Recent developments have rapidly corrected this impression in England.

It was reported in October, 1895, that Russia and China had completed a convention. Its terms caused alarm in England, but earnest protestation on the part of Russia that no designs were contemplated against British commercial supremacy prevented a rupture.

Henry Norman, in reviewing the terms of this treaty, said: "The whole of northern China is virtually placed under Russian protection. Russia is permitted to place in this territory such forces as she chooses, and to raise and drill Chinese levies. She is allowed to develop the mineral and, a fortiori, the agricultural resources of the country. If Russia finds herself in danger of war in the far East—a phrase vague enough to cover any situation—she is permitted to fortify Port Arthur and Ta-Lien-Wan, besides the Bay of Kiao Chou, near Foo Chow, which is leased to her. China binds herself never to cede the strategical points to any other power, and Russia shall not permit any foreign power to encroach upon them. The railroads are all to be built in Russian gauge.

"A glance at the map will show that when these railroads are completed Moscow will be connected by direct and uninterrupted line of railway with Port Arthur and Peking. Nor is this all. The Chinese imperial edict has finally authorized the building of the great Chinese trunk railway from Peking to Hankow, the principal port in the Yangtse, in the heart of China. When this is done Russia will positively be able to send troops from any part of Russia by rail, not only to the capital of China, but to the middle of the great waterway, which forms the main artery of the Chinese Empire. Lastly, by restoring the fortifications and docks of Port Arthur, which were destroyed by the evacuating Japanese, Russia will possess an impregnable naval base in such position that no European expedition could operate against the capital defenses of China without her consent. Absolutely nothing is wanting to give Russia absolute control over the whole of China north of the Yangtse River. Such, then, is the enormous prize that has fallen to Russian diplomacy.

OBJECT OF NORMAN'S CRITICISM.

"My object is to emphasize as forcibly as I can that while Russia is advancing England is standing still. Indeed, we are going back; for, while the Times described the rumored Russian-Chinese treaty in 1895 to be an audacious coup, and declared that Russia 'cannot possibly imagine that the other great powers having interests in the far East can view with indifference an enterprise which would constitute a destruction of the existing balance of power almost unparalleled in its audacity,' it can only remark to-day in an article, which unfortunately bears all the marks of official inspiration, that we shall not 'in any degree improve our position by groaning over activities which we are powerless to arrest.'

'I want to see an agreement between Russia and England under which the interests of each shall be safeguarded. Otherwise, if this be impossible, an intimation to Russia that if she proceeds to help herself at our expense she will have to stop us by force from helping ourself at her expense. For instance, an ice-free port on the Pacific is one thing, and Mr. Balfour has officially expressed the willingness of the British government to see it secured; but an impregnable naval base at the gates of Peking giving to Russia the mastery of China forever is a different one. A simple intimation of the above effect would suffice.'

Friedrich Schutz, who spent many years in China and understands the political situation there, said in a book which he published and which was immediately prohibited in Russia:—

'This railway has Peking for its goal. It will pass eastward of Mukden, since this town is a place of pilgrimage and may not be visited by foreigners. In the North the line will connect with the Vladivostok-Parafskaya Valley section of the Siberian Railway, thus connecting one of the most important harbors of the Russian frontier district with China. A further branch will proceed to the Liao-Tung peninsula and Port Arthur, and this branch will also be joined to the Siberian railway. . . . Russia and China will guarantee the necessary loans, the line is to be managed by Russian officials and time-expired non-commissioned officers, and the antipathy of the Chinese to foreign undertakings will be held in check by Don Cossacks, who will be settled with their families along the route of the future railway.'

England now says the railroad between Port Arthur and New Chwang, and New Chwang and Mukden shall not be completed. Now comes the question will Russia submit to English dictation?—Ex.

STRIKE UNDER THE PHARAOHS.

THE deciphering of a papyrus in the Museum of Turin shows how the old proverb that there is nothing new under the sun applies to strikes as to many other things, says Pearson's Weekly.

Striking work is not a modern institution by any means, and has no connection with the march of civilization, as is commonly supposed. This papyrus, which is a sort of journal or day book of the superintendent of the Thebes necropolis, furnishes curious details of a workmen's riot, or trade dispute, which occurred in the ancient city in the reign of Rameses III.

The workmen's quarter sent a deputation to the keeper of the books and to several priests of the necropolis during the strike. The speaker of the deputation is reported as having said:

'Behold, we are face to face with famine. We have neither nourishment, nor oil, nor vestments; we have no fish, we have no vegetables. We have already sent a petition to our sovereign lord, the Pharaoh, praying him to give us these things, and now we address the Governor in order that he might give us the wherewithal to live.'

This event took place on the first day of the month of Tibi (equal to our December 27), and from the facts gathered from the interesting document it would appear that the men had struck work about two months previously.

Some weeks after this they were all in full revolt. Three times they emerged from their quarters, notwithstanding the walls that surrounded them and the gates that shut them in.

'We will not return,' cried they to the police sent in pursuit of them. 'Go tell your chief what we tell you. It is famine which speaks by our mouths.'

'To argue with them was useless; there was great agitation,' writes the superintendent in his day book. "I gave them the strongest answer I could imagine, but their words were true and came from their hearts.'

They were quieted by the distribution of half rations, but ten days later they were up again. Kohus, the leader of the band, pressed his companions to provide for themselves. 'Let us fall,' said he, 'upon the stores of provisions and let the governor's men go and tell him what we have done.'

This was the advice of their agitator. It would appear that his counsel was acted upon as soon as it was given. They forcibly entered the inclosure, but not the fortress, where the provisions were kept. The keeper of the stores, Amen Nextu, gave them something and contrived to induce them to return to their quarters.

Eleven days later their movements began again. The commander of Thebes, passing by, found them seated on the ground holding a meeting behind the temple of Seti, at the northern end of the necropolis. Immediately they began to shout out: 'Famine! Famine!'

The commander then gave an order for fifty measures of wheat in the name of Pharaoh, 'who has sworn an oath,' said he, 'that you will have food again.' Most likely Pharaoh never heard of the event and never received the petition addressed to him a couple of months previously.

Kohus, above referred to, was evidently the leader of the strikers, much as we have labor leaders now, and the man of the hour while the agitation lasted.

When the Pope loses patience with Spain, what is to be expected of the rest of us?—Philadelphia Record.

THE LITTLE QUEEN'S PICTURE.

Wilhelmina, who is to be crowned Queen of the Netherlands on September 6 next, has personally sent to Mr. Bok, the editor of The Ladies' Home Journal—himself a Hollander by birth—one of her private portraits for publication in the next number of his magazine. It is the last portrait which will be taken of the little lady before her coronation, and will be printed in connection with a specially prepared sketch, showing the personality of the first Queen of Holland from every point of view.

The seed of sacrifice brings forth the fragrant fruit of love, and love always has in its heart the seeds of new sacrifice.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."—E. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, August 31, 1898.

No. 35.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.
JOSEPH LUFF, }

LAMONI, IOWA, AUG. 31, 1898.

CO-OPERATION.

WE notice that a brother in a letter published in a late HERALD uses an expression like this:—

No, brethren, if I had millions I would not put a cent into any such schemes as have been outlined in the Herald, unless I wanted to lose it.

The letter department of the HERALD is a sort of people's forum in which opinions may be expressed quite freely; but we are not quite sure that the implied failure of those whose schemes may have been referred to, to set before the readers of the HERALD a plan of coöperation of a nature to be commended, conveyed in this peculiar expression of the brother, is the best way to get at what is needed. It is quite easy to set aside an idea, or a half-elaborated plan by expressing a lack of confidence in it, but this would simply be making little or no progress. To our way of thinking it would be better to let those peculiar things in these respective coöperative plans which one cannot indorse or sees to be useless or inadequate to secure the object desired, alone, only holding them in the mind as pointers to be avoided, and build up from them as things not liked and our own ideas the scheme that to us may be feasible.

It has been believed by some and is yet by others, that the Lord has, in the revelations touching the order of Enoch, given instruction sufficient to collect men and materials with which to organize societies for the purposes of uniting the pecuniary and labor forces of the church to the abasing of the rich and the raising the poor; that there should be no rich and no poor. But, notwithstanding what is written there are so many opinions held about what is revealed, and what is practicable, that men do not seem willing to venture to ask acceptance of their plans under the law; and some, like our brother, if they had millions, would not venture a cent, believing as he appears to do, that they would lose it.

It is said that "sacrifice brings forth the blessings of heaven;" and certainly the abasement of the rich and the well to do must be in some sense in the nature of a sacrifice; as there can be no sacrifice, pecuniarily, in the poor man being made comfortable, or comparatively rich.

Fifty to one hundred years ago there were much fewer obstacles in the way of coöperative associations where the occupation of land was the principal, or the secondary measure in the plans of operation, than there are now; and many of the for a long time successful societies started in the immediate devotion of quite large sums to the enterprises by those with whom they originated, one or more. Of late years, however, one of the principal means from which these coöperative societies have been established has been from donations solicited from wealthy patrons and the largesses of many workingmen, who gave freely, though themselves gave no personal attention or other support to the movement. Some of these have already come to pieces, and none that we know of is as yet filling the requirements; all depending upon the guidance of able minds to whose directions, rule, and management the members all yielded. When the leader was the main benefactor and patron of the scheme, others who contributed little or nothing except membership, could afford to permit the benefactor to make and apply the rules to govern the dispensing of his own benefaction; but where the principal means may be the result of the sacrificial gathering from the members, it would appear to be natural that the society—that is, the whole membership—should not only make the rules, but apply them.

The brother seems to be of the opinion that a work to be the work and be successful should be a church work, under the auspices and direction of the church authorities. Section 42 of Doctrine and Covenants, paragraph 10, seems to provide for a church work, but not for a coöperative labor movement, as we see it. Yet, if the Bishopric was put into possession of what is contemplated there and in sections 51: 4; 193: 5, very much of the shortage and complained-of poverty might be avoided. At least we think so.

The charge to the people of the church when they left New York and went to the Ohio, was that they were to organize themselves according to the laws of man. This was in February, 1831, and can easily be understood as conferring the power or right to do what might be found necessary to insure the good of the people and their safety from distress or poverty, if done in accord with the laws of God and of man.

We are not yet prepared to cease our inquiries, however much we may agree with the brother's idea that the people being the Lord's people, the work his, we ought to have directions from him how to do the work. Many are urging the necessity, and demanding in their way that the church shall move, but offering no suggestion as to how the movement shall originate, or what the details of the movement shall be. Count Tolstoi, of Russia, after a life of pleasure as a man of the world, suddenly turned philanthropist, and assuming the garb of a peasant began a sort of charitable work. This movement does not appear to have produced any very widely extended change in the Russian realm; and his book, in which he set forth his "religion," based the whole fabric on the words, "Resist not Evil." That he has done good, we do not doubt. No genuine reformer, honest at heart, has ever lived entirely in vain. The world gains a lesson from every attempt to mend the conditions of man, whether success or failure follows the venture. Edward Bellamy is dead, but his work "Looking Backward" is a landmark for others to come to guage their processes by. The Salvation Army and its rival, the American Volunteers, are both doing good; and if General Booth can but beg enough funds from the English wealthy and aristocratic people, he will enlighten some dark places in Darkest England. The city of Birmingham with the help of Joseph Chamberlain, a coöperative institution in France, and another business one in America, are all helps teaching what may be done—if men will.

Now, where do we stand?

SIGNS AND MEANS OF MORAL PROGRESS.

SOME are wont to declare and to insist that the world grows and will continue to grow worse and worse, in "these last days" of "degeneracy" or of "progress," as they are variously termed, according to the moral color of the glasses through which the spectator views the situation. It is evident that while in some respects the world or a portion of it is degenerating, it is also true that under the providences of God who rules in the heavens above there are being directed the operations of forces great for good in the work of emancipating the race.

To get a correct view and to obtain a comprehensive knowledge of the situation it is necessary to take cognizance of all the general forces—both of evil and of good—that are being exerted to influence humanity; so far as it is possible to see and consider them. Correct conclusions cannot be reached from a narrow consideration of the conditions and forces moving in the world; he who would see clearly and understand correctly must divest himself of defects in his moral vision and view the situation as it is—not as he may think it is or ought to be. Prejudice must not be permitted to distort the vision; partial blindness must be removed or cured if the whole field is to be impartially surveyed; previous miseducation, obstinate presumption, narrowness of mind or heart, must be overcome and not be suffered to influence the decision reached; the field must be surveyed intelligently, carefully, systematically, and a disposition be manifest to see and to accept the situation just as it may appear from a clear analytical observation of conditions. In other words, the observer must (interpreting the phrases, "Take heed how ye hear," and "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear,") take heed how he sees, hears of, or interprets the signs, facts, and conditions of the world about him.

No one can reach correct conclusions nor render a correct and just judgment upon individual conduct and action or upon other matters, whose mind is influenced by prejudice, dislike, hatred, or similar quantities of mind and heart. It is necessary that the mind be free from malice, bigotry, fear, timidity, or other imperfect human quantities in order to do justice to any matter. Persons stand in the light of general and personal progress who allow themselves to be swayed by such blinding influences. It is essential to the progress of nations, communities, and individuals, that they rise above such unworthy qualities, if they would be free and know the spirit of freedom and justness in the boundless character of its scope.

More people are held in intellectual, moral, and religious bondage because of miseducation and lack of breadth of mind and heart in the things named than are held in "human slavery." Much as we may boast of the present age of freedom, there yet remains very much to be done in behalf of humanity in this regard. Communities, states, empires, remain in various forms of bondage, because false conditions are not recognized by the people, or if recognized, the disposition to change does not exist because "men" to a degree "love darkness rather than light," because evil habits, imperfect conditions, or lack of sufficient energy or desire for good is allowed to rule. It is, in other words, impossible to elevate man—the race—or any individual in the great family of mankind, without the coöperation of the units that comprise society. We emphasize this thought as one demonstrated from practical human experience as correct in principle, that—no one can rise, however great the forces seeking to exert themselves in his behalf, without his own personal, self-activity and coöperation. No man has ever attained to greatness for good, as no one has become potent for evil, without lending to the work done his coöperation—the employment of his sympathies and energies. It is also true that attainment for good is proportionate to interest and self-exertion: he who sows sparingly, must reap sparingly; he who would accomplish much for good must employ his energies actively, constantly, earnestly.

The Lord has recognized this rational and scientific method of self-help and self-activity in the command given to Israel ancient and modern. The great commandment to love God with all the heart, is repeated in latter days in these words:—

O ye that embark in the service of God, see that ye serve him with all your heart, might, mind, and strength, that ye may stand blameless before God at the last day, . . . behold, the field is white already to harvest, and lo, he that thrusteth in his sickle with his might, the same layeth up in store that he perish not, but bringeth salvation to his soul; and faith, hope, charity, and love with an eye single to the glory of God, qualifies him for the work. . . . Ask and ye shall receive, etc.—D. C. 4: 1, 2.

Here are couched in few words, in plain unmistakable language, a statement of the divine plan and the methods necessary to be employed in order to build in harmony with the great Father and Ruler of the universe. The affections must first be set upon right things, must be awakened to a love of truth, of pure and correct principles, and must be kept there; for love of the truth is love of God, and no one loves God who does not love and act in harmony with the truth—that which is pure, true, and right in all things. For "this is the love of God that we keep his commandments;" hence Jesus Christ said: "Blessed are all the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Signs of moral and general progress appear upon the scene of human action in proportion to the discovery and application of truth. The world is largely ignorant of truth. This is a broad statement, but nevertheless a true one—the world is deeply steeped in ignorance; for while great progress has been made in many portions of it, and indications favor the presumption that light is spreading abroad, it remains true that a very large portion of humanity—compared to the most enlightened nations of earth—remain far below where they might be and where it is necessary for them to be, in order to see, to know, and to manifest the benefits of freedom; we mean civil, religious, and moral freedom. And, in the communities of the most enlightened peoples of earth the need exists of great moral, political, and religious reforms. Spanish South and Central America and Mexico, with their dense ignorance and superstitions, Catholic Russia, Mohammedan Turkey, and far-off India, are not the only climes where millions need the application of better and nobler principles of temporal and spiritual civilization. It is in free America, in modern Europe, and in other favored spots where the masses are freer that there also remains much to be seen and applied by the communities of man, if approximate or complete liberty is to be realized.

These things are stated with a due appreciation of what has been done and what is being done to advance the interests of humanity. It does not follow that because one points to higher possibilities that he fails or lacks in appreciation of what already appears. Ability to rightly measure present benefits ought, as a logical result, create the power of further insight. Present conditions have been attained not simply because the past was appreciated, but also because men were not content to halt permanently at way stations of progress and to say, It is enough. Because they rose above the level plain to higher ground, they saw beyond and afar. It is the man who sees, and seeing bends his energies to attain, and is resolved to attain, who enters upon the higher conditions always open to everyone; it is the people who labor to enter in who are to occupy the promised land. Had all been content with past conditions they and their posterities would have failed to attain present conditions of good. Had they not seen and understood and labored diligently to advance in moral and general progress, the present with its future possibilities would not have been, and the world of man had remained practically in youth if not in infancy; whereas much progress toward manhood has been made.

The principles applying to ordinary political and educational development are also applicable to us as a people. We too need to improve, to love more, and the better to apply the principles of truth if our great mission is to be accomplished. Favorable surroundings have made possible our higher development. Forces around, above, and within us are at work to strengthen our hands for good in the cause of truth—the higher or more particular phases of truth—the spiritual economy, which includes and is designed to perfect the intellectual and moral and general aspects of life. Set to be the “light of the world,” we occupy a commanding position; one where we not only have privilege to receive and enjoy, but where we are placed under very strict and important responsibility to show forth “the light,” in all wisdom and prudence.

Our work ought to be more widely seen and more generally known. It is not where it ought to be; not where it might have been. A light raised to an exalted position penetrates and gives forth its rays over a larger area; lowered, the extent of its power to illuminate is circumscribed and limited to narrower territory. When in the past and present God's people have pushed forward his work by unity of purpose in the right, the work has progressed, light has been diffused abroad, and souls been brought to and developed in the fold. Unfaithfulness, unwisdom, dissension, and other destructive influences peculiar to Satan and to human weakness have produced just opposite results, and must ever hinder truth whenever manifest.

Evil and hindrances always have been and probably always will be. They are, however, a means of opportunity, of development; and he who resists and overcomes and treads the path of duty is made strong. He who overcomes not is a child, a weakling; he who overcomes becomes strong—a man or a woman developed in strength of mind and heart, and as such is acceptable and useful to God in the service for God and humanity.

Let us strive to insure the progress of truth by the doing of our individual and general work. Light will spread from us individually if we occupy high ground where its rays rest upon and illuminate those in the line of its outgoings. This is comprehended in the admonition to “stand in holy places.”

COLLEGE COURSES OF STUDY.

FOR the information of many who desire to know the various courses of study offered to Graceland College students, the following statement is made, in brief:—

The courses include the classical course, which includes Latin and Greek, Literature, History, Philosophy, etc.; the normal course, including Pedagogy, Psychology, Economics, etc.; the Scientific, viz., Mathematics, Natural Sciences, Modern Languages; Commercial Course: Shorthand, Typewriting, Bookkeeping, Commercial Law, Penmanship, Banking, Business Arithmetic. Also Schools of Elocution and Oratory, and of Vocal and Instrumental Music.

Besides these branches of educational work there is an excellent Preparatory Department for the teaching of arithmetic, grammar, and other branches essential to the higher education.

The Normal Department offers excellent opportunity to teachers who would attain to excellence in their profession.

Catalogues and other information furnished on application to the President or Secretary of Graceland College, addressing them at Lamoni, Iowa.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. RUDOLPH ETZENHOUSER, Temple, Ohio, August 22:—

Visitors at the temple vary from a few to thirty or more per day. Yesterday four Utah Mormon missionaries were of the number, W. E. Partington and Andreas Peterson of Logan, Utah, enroute for Denmark; D. P. Thomas, of Bloomington, Idaho; and J. H. Beavan, Tooele City, Utah; missionaries for two years in Pennsylvania, and of the twenty reviewed by me at Emporium, Pennsylvania, in the opera hall last winter. They took sincere delight in viewing the old temple and in courtesies shown them. I managed to tell them, among other things, that it was the more delight to show them through, as we were denied such courtesy in Salt Lake City in 1893 and our brethren in common. The latter two were in the vestibule while I explained “differences” to a party in main auditorium, the door being open. They may have thought it was hard. I could not spoil a story for the sake of company, however. The offerings of visitors yesterday were $7.15, one man giving a five dollar bill. Though here but a few days, I can see the consistency of a suitable representative being stationed here during the summer time. Much depends on how we are represented here as well as elsewhere, and perhaps more than at most places. Bro. Lake spoke last eve. He departs this week. The weather is splendid. Kirtland scenery delightful.

The following from one of the elders breathes an excellent spirit. It will doubtless prove helpful in a general way:—

I wish to say now, and without any desire for catering for advancement, that I would like to get with the workers. A name on the records is of little credit unless it be "to live." In saying this I have no desire to reflect any discredit on anyone, as I only desire in thought, word, and deed, to strive daily to honor Him who was gracious to me when I appeared rather indifferent or slothful. A combination of circumstances seemed to hedge up my ways. Before this time some of my family seemed averse to my entering freely into the free exercise and labor of love which an ordination to an eldership calls for. Since I have been alone I have had the care of temporal matters, associated with several children at home, but when this year opened I concluded the way was sufficiently clear to arrange my affairs in life to give all my time (future) to retrieve as much as possible lost time. While I do not claim lost time can actually be retrieved, the Lord has graciously promised me a lease of time to improve the talent he committed to me. This assurance is very sweet indeed. I am fully satisfied that all who enter into covenant with the Lord should keep that covenant unspotted; but, while I fervently desired the priesthood, I did not fully realize it meant a total consecration of self to the Master's service, from love of the truth. To sense this even late, is better than to see the mistake too late. Most truly it is the "most satisfactory and gratifying" work which the heart of man can engage in because the Lord lovingly smiles his warmest approval. We soon learn the felicity of the love of Christ, causing the "heart to swell wide as eternity." Earth was intended to be a "garden of Eden" to man, but how slow is man to reach after the knowledge of the Lord. Blessed day indeed, when from the least to the greatest, we shall know him. "Life eternal" indeed.

Bro. A. B. Pierce, Providence, Rhode Island, August 22:—

Elders R. Bullard, of Boston, Massachusetts, H. J. Davidson, of Nova Scotia, and F. O. Coombs, of Plainville, Massachusetts, were present at last Wednesday evening social service this city. The latter brother went to Little Compton, Rhode Island to remain over Sunday (yesterday). Elder M. H. Bond preached two excellent sermons yesterday in the Providence Latter Day Saints' chapel. Tent meetings are to be started at Attleboro this week, in charge of Elder George Robley, assisted by Elders A. H. Smith, W. H. Kelley, F. O. Coombs, C. A. Coombs, and possibly others. One estimable lady was baptized at Plainville, Massachusetts, of late.

Bro. C. H. Burr, Williams Bay, Wisconsin, August 23:—

I am highly pleased to see in Herald of August 17 an article accompanied by diagram from the pen of Bro. James Cocks on latter-day events. I have for some time been using a chart differing some from the one given by the brother, but on the same subject. I find the same dates and reach the same conclusions as to their significance and fulfillment, but there are some points I am not quite clear on, and I will esteem it a favor if the brother will address a personal letter to me, giving his address that I may correspond with him upon this to me very interesting subject.

Bro. James Cocks, Brooklyn, New York, Aug. 21:—

I notice in my article "Latter Day Events" No 1, in the Herald, you have styled me "Elder James Cocks." This is a mistake. I have been ordained a priest, however.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE HERALD does not publish minutes of the various reunions, for obvious reasons. Brief general accounts in letter form answer the purpose better, because more readable.

Word from Bro. C. P. Faul states that the Northern Missouri reunion at Maysville is opened, and with fine prospects for a successful session. Campers are present from Independence, Kansas City, Fanning on the south and west, and from Grundy, Nodaway, and Holt Counties on the north and west. Many new faces indicate the widening and increasing interest. Brn. H. O. Smith and I. N. White are in charge, with Bro. C. P. Faul as secretary and Bro. J. T. Kinman as chorister; Bro. L. F. Booker special watchman. Preachers so far announced, Brn. White, Smith, Kinman, Ammon White, D. A. Hutchings, and Alfred White. All having a good time.

The war is still on and—"we have all for life enlisted in the army of the Lord."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

SELECT READING FOR SEPTEMBER MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

BEHAVING.—CONTINUED.

LEST some of you should fail to read the book, we give you another extract which is too good to miss. It is Miss Charity's description of a lady: "The truest ladies I ever knew had two things so blended that one never knew which to be surest of, their sincerity or their kindness. I never saw a lady, whether she was a girl or a grown woman, who had not the faculty a wise writer calls 'a genius for loving.' It was born in them and grew with them. It is not that kind of I-don't-know-what-to-do-with-myself feeling, that makes girls throw their arms around their nearest friend and smother her with kisses, that is feigning petty jealousies of others, and saying, 'I wish you could love me,' when one isn't in the mood for such stuff. The most loving-hearted girls don't show their feelings, by any means. They do not love to kiss or parade affection, but they are kind, oh! so kind, to their last breath and drop of strength to those who need and deserve their care. Kind with the kindness that makes one wish for others' happiness, so that mother looks into the mendingbasket to find that torn shirt-sleeve made whole, and the apron finished for baby; and father has the room quiet for a long evening when he wants to read the debates, or make calculations; and Jennie finds her rain-spoiled dress sponged and ironed fresh in the closet; and Mrs. Brown, over the way, sees the children taken out of the house when she has a racking headache; and the teacher knows who will run up the breadths and sew on the buttons of the dress she is trying to make out of school hours. There is nothing too homely or distasteful for this sort of a girl to do, and she might take for her signature what I saw once in a kind letter of Elizabeth Stoddard's, the novelist, 'Yours to serve.' The kisses and the love-making may be shy enough with her, but the kindness is for everybody and runs very deep. Nothing draws on her sympathy so much as to need it most, to be without interest and attraction in any way."

The best recipe for going through life in an exquisite way, with beautiful manners, is to feel that everybody, no matter how rich or how poor, needs all the kindness they can get from others in the world. The greatest praise written of Madame Recamier, the most beautiful woman and complete lady of her own or any other time was this: "Disgrace and misfortune had for Madame Recamier the same sort of attraction that favor and success usually have for vulgar souls."

This is beautiful in theory, but how are we to put it into practice? you ask. Well, commence at home to-morrow morning. Open the day with a benediction of good morning to each of the household; probably in your morning prayer by your bedside, you have asked God to give them a good day, now help him in answering your prayer. Greet them with a good morning as heartily and naturally as you would your stranger guest, and then set your wits to work to find how you may smooth the rough places and make it a good day for all. Johnny has a hot, quick temper; and it is fun to arouse it, to see it flash up. Don't do it, his day will be none the better for such a beginning. Bessie always wakes up cross, it seems to be constitutional with her, and she cannot help it. Don't hector her, and so render the sweet morning hour discordant with her cries; amuse and soothe her, or, better, let her alone till after breakfast, and she will come out of her cross fit as bright as a dollar. Go through the day in this manner with eyes open, not to see what advantage you can gain, but what kindness you can do, and, my word for it, by night you will have made one day's journey toward the land of gentle manners.

"But we wish to know how to help being awkward; what to do with our hands and our feet; how to behave when we have company or when we go visiting," you say. Probably your awkwardness has its root in bashfulness and your morbid consciousness that everybody in the room is looking at you. In another chapter we give you Edward Everett Hale's recipe for curing this bashfulness, which is, "Not to think of yourself more highly than you ought to think," by imagining that everybody in the room is looking at you. Self-forgetfulness is the secret of easy manners. Doubtless we have all envied the graceful, easy carriage of some friend who seemed to know just what to do and how to do it; whose hands were never in his own way or anybody's else; who never stumbled when he walked or stammered when he talked. But how to be like him is the troublesome question. We try and try to do just as he does, but the more we try the more awkward we grow. The trouble is, we try too hard; our trying is, to put on his manners, rather than to form manners of our own. The trying defeats its object, for it keeps us thinking of ourselves and of the appearance we are making, and this self-consciousness makes us appear awkward and bold. You know how difficult a thing it is to cross a room gracefully; it is because you think everybody in the room is looking at you. If something interests you very much, so much that you forget all about yourself, you cross the room without any embarrassment, and do it gracefully because naturally. Watch a group of little children at play. They get themselves into all sorts of shapes, you say. Perhaps they do, but their motions are never awkward. Childhood's motions are naturally graceful; awkwardness can arise only from their being perverted.

But how can we help this perversion? Simply by checking every impulse to make an uncouth motion, or put yourself into an awkward position. Don't lounge or loll on two chairs, with your feet, perhaps, higher than your head, nor tilt one back against the wall, making a biped instead of a quadruped of it; don't go around with your hands stuffed in your pockets, at least not until you have taken a good look in the glass and noticed your resemblance to a trussed turkey; don't swagger nor strut, nor do any of those things that stamp you as an ill-bred boy. And you, Mary, be sure you stand squarely on your two feet, with your toes turned out, and walk firmly and freely, not "mincing as you go," like those dreadful women Isaiah tells about. Be very careful you do not form the habit of settling down on one side, for if you do you will grow crooked and nobody can ever straighten you. Don't affect fine lady airs, and be afraid to run and jump out of doors; and don't, we beg of you, don't chew gum. You know the old proverb about knowing enough to chew gum; don't put yourself in that category. We will not say anything now about the unhealthfulness of the practice, though we believe it is unhealthy, but the awkwardness of it, the ridiculous appearance you make with your jaws in perpetual motion like those of a sleepy cow—if only you could see yourself as others see you, you would eschew chewing gum forever.

How shall we behave on the street? Well, just behave the very best you know how; most of us know much better than we do. Do this for your mother's sake, if not for your own. If you are rude and ill-behaved, people take note of it and say, "Those children's mother never taught them manners." Probably the truth is, that she has done all that she possibly could to teach you, giving you "line upon line, and precept upon precept," but as soon as you are on the street with your mates you forget all about it. You all wish to talk together, and walk four or five abreast, filling up the sidewalk, never stopping to think you are thus forcing the ones you meet into the gutter. Two abreast is enough on most sidewalks. See to it that you do not take up space that does not belong to you, or rush, en masse, to the post office because one of you has a letter to post and you all wish to go with her; you fill up the room and impede those who need to go there. Probably four out of five of you have not the slightest business there, as your fathers attend to the mails, but you go all the same, and sometimes make yourselves such a nuisance the postmaster has to secure a village ordinance forbidding your congregating there. You do not mean any harm by it. O no! It is sheer thoughtlessness, but it leads you to disregard the convenience and rights of others. Or you have a fashion of congregating at the depot, which has come about in the same way. Don't do it; it is even worse than congregating in the post office, and often leads to harm. Or you giggle and laugh and talk loudly of your own or others' private affairs, in public places. You boys rush through the streets like a fire engine, endangering everyone in your path; or you shout at your comrade across the street loud enough to wake all the babies in the neighborhood; or you play ball in public places, greatly to the terror of timid passers-by; or "steal rides" when, perhaps, the poor horses have all they can pull without you; or, worse yet, you snowball passers-by or their horses, causing many a runaway and break-neck. Don't do any of these things unless you wish to disgrace your parents and proclaim yourself ill-bred.—Childhood: Its Care and Culture.

(To be continued.)

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SISTER S. E. GURWELL, of Fanning, Kansas, desires your faith and prayers in behalf of her son, who has been sorely afflicted for the past three months. Pray that he may be healed so that he may go to his mission, which he desires to do.

A sister, not very strong, who has to depend on her day's work for support, and of late the way seems to be hedged up so she cannot get work, desires an interest in the Prayer Union, that it may be made known to her what to do and where to go to make a living, and to be of the most benefit to the church work.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOUGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

Teachers and Members of the Sunday Schools:

—As the late General Convention honored me by choosing me to be one of the general staff of officers, I feel that I owe you an expression of my attitude toward the work.

While I do not feel so high in qualification that I can draw the office up to me, yet I shall endeavor by constant work and study to bring myself up to the standard which the office demands.

Dull indeed must be the mind that is not interested in the great Sunday school work. It is sometimes called a "nursery" for the young. It is a nursery in which the seeds of truth are planted in the minds of old and young, and under the fostering care of the school these tender plants of truth sink their roots into the fertile soil of human intellect whilst their branches breathe in the holy atmosphere of heavenly inspiration until the fruit appears to the glory of God and the blessing of man.

Fellow workers, the future of the latter-day work depends largely upon the work of the Sunday school. The boy and girl of to-day is the man and woman of to-morrow. The seed planted to-day is the goodly plant or the noxious weed of to-morrow. Teachers and parents, let us not drive the young where we have not yet gone, but let us lead them there. The wisdom and holiness of God is the magnet which draws us toward him. As we partake of the attributes of God and spiritual beauty is reflected from us, it will broaden our influence for good and insure our success in leading others Godward. Prayer, constant prayer, establishes that invisible wire over which the divine power is transmitted to man.

As my work is chiefly on the Pacific Slope, I ask the coöperation of all workers there. Would be pleased to receive communications from branch and district superintendents and others of the coast, in relation to their work, that we may all be in touch with the General Association.

CHARLES E. CRUMLEY,

Second Assistant Superintendent.

No. 964 Court Circle, Los Angeles, California.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS' CLASS BOOKS.

WHAT use do you make of the teacher's class books? This is an all-important question. Much is to be gained by their proper use and but little to be gained by their improper use. If properly used they will stimulate the scholars to better work and better behavior; to more prompt attendance; will hold them in the class when otherwise they would drop out. They will attract and win new scholars; they will stimulate the teacher to more thorough and complete preparation of the lesson; to a more regular and prompt attendance; and will add an interest to the work that is very desirable for the teacher to possess.

If improperly used—misused or neglected—they are of very little value. One cannot mark one Sunday and miss the next and get benefit from the record thus kept. One teacher cannot use one standard of marking and another teacher a different standard of marking and produce a set of class books from which the superintendent or secretary can make up a correct and fair report. A standard of marking should be adopted that will meet the wants of all and be understood by all, so that when reports are made of different schools and placed in comparison they will be fair reports. And reports cannot be fair to all unless the same standard of grading is used by all the schools reporting. This standard can only be had by discussing the subject, thus obtaining a full and complete understanding of the "how" to grade and upon "what," to grade a scholar. Discussion on the matter should be had in the teacher's meetings and in the district convention. The district should arrive at an understanding of what should be taken into account in making up the class report—just how much is required for a full preparation of the lesson, how much to deduct from the department for inattentiveness, misconduct, etc. This done and the superintendents should see that all the teachers of their schools have a full understanding of what has been decided upon and grade her pupils accordingly, whether it exactly suits her own notions or not. What is needed is a uniform basis upon which to grade all pupils of all schools in the district.

But what use are we to make of these records? Aside from the many necessary reports to be made up from them, there are many various ways in which they can be of great service. From a properly kept set of class books the superintendent can at any time learn who it is that is doing the good work and who it is that is neglecting their work, whether it be scholar or teacher; he can learn who is becoming indifferent and losing interest in the work, and can look after them properly and on time. When a correct set of reports are sent to the district officers and read at convention, it may be seen wherein your school is lacking; whether you are succeeding as well as your neighbor school, and if not you may be able to learn where the defect is and how to remedy it. Again you may have a poor teacher. If so, the class book will give you sufficient information to put you on your special guard, and possibly a clue to what the matter is, and of course an opportunity to improve the situation. Many other benefits might be mentioned, but it is not necessary.

We give below one of the many unique ways in which the "credit system" or "marking system" may be used. You will note that there is no prize or mark of honor that all could not obtain if they would try. Sometimes certain prizes or marks of honor are given in such a way that it is possible for but one individual or one class to win them. This we do not like, as a rule. But make the inducement of such a nature that any or all may win if they will. So it is with the Roll of Honor herewith presented. We also present the explanatory note that accompanied it. It is the work of Bro. Joseph Roberts, superintendent of the Fremont, Iowa, district Sunday school association. Study it carefully and see if there is not something good for the work in your district.

TABOR, Iowa, May 1, 1898.

To the Sunday Schools:—We herewith send you "Roll of Honor" for first quarter. Some of the teachers failing to report made it incomplete. The names of the pupils neither absent nor tardy for the quarter (January, February, March) are placed on the roll. It also shows us who their teachers are.

This roll will be issued at the close of each quarter, so please fill out carefully your class book and be ready to report promptly. We suggest that each school provide a frame for these honor sheets and hang in a conspicuous part of the room. We like to compare the teachers with their banner pupils throughout the district.

Hints to workers:—

1. Too many of our pupils are absent. Where are they?
2. It matters not how large or small, young or old we are, it is honorable to attend Sunday school and go every Sabbath.
3. Good attendance is indicative of good interest.
4. Making our school attractive and putting life into our work, makes greater interest and more regular attendance.
5. Teachers of the Sunday school should think no more of being absent from the school than though it were a day school.
6. Systematic work is the only work that will last.

Very truly,
JOSEPH ROBERTS.

First Quarter.

Number One.

ROLL OF HONOR.
PUPILS.	TEACHER.	PUPILS.	TEACHER.
Primaries. Ward Hongas.	Primaries. Pearl McClenahan.
Intermediates. Wayne Dewy. Percy Dewy. Ethe Pearson. Roy Leeka. Jay Leeka. Helen Wilcox.	Intermediates. Flora Walling. Ella Walling. Emma Ross. Clara Wilcox.
Seniors. Rachel Goode. Mariam Dundson. Edna McClenahan. Alma Gaylord. G. F. Walling. Wm. Leeka. Mark Roberts.	Seniors. Frank Goode. S. Orton. Mabel Anderson. Emma Hongas. A. B. Walling. C. M. Roberts. T. M. Roberts.	189	☆
Approved May 1st.		JOS. ROBERTS, Fremont District Superintendent.

Letter Department.

SMITHFIELD, Utah, Aug. 17.

Editors Herald:—I have been trying to do some tent work with Bro. S. D. Condit, but the weather is and has been so very warm, and being in the midst of harvest, but few come out to hear. In Pocatello the attendance was fairly good and I felt satisfied with our efforts. We had some opposition, but that helped us out, giving a little spice and ginger to the occasion.

At this place the people have not turned out much. Last Sunday night we had a good many to hear, but they didn't occupy the tent; that is, the majority were outside at the beginning. They made some talk, but there was a city officer who kept order.

The talking fell to my lot that night, and if I thought it would not be boasting I would say I think I made a good close talk. Anyway, I was satisfied with my effort, whether others were or not. I asked one good old man at the close if I had been too hard on the people. He said, "It was rather hard, and yet it may be true, I will have to reflect on it for a while." Quite a number seemed well pleased with the talk. I don't know when I felt better, and the spirit that prevailed was just sublime. I believe all in the tent felt its power to a good degree. It was good to have the stranger grasp the hand and give the warm fraternal shake with a "God bless you wherever you go." It made us feel good, and when I say us, I mean Bro. S. D. Condit and myself. I think Bro. Condit spiked their guns when he was here last winter; at least there hasn't been one shot fired.

This is the first time I have been near or under the shadow of the temple for three years, being now only six miles from Logan. I have for years studied the philosophy of this people and have tried to look at it from all quarters, and while there is much credit due them for their devotion to what they have been taught to believe is right, yet we believe much of that is decidedly wrong. I have wondered many times when we use the apostle's advice, "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good," whether we were competent to eliminate that which was not good without marring the good; or, in other words, so attack the false and pernicious as to make the contrast so clear that those who have been schooled in Brighamism may see the truth, the pure and the good in all its grandeur and glory. I have had my own ideas for years as to how and the best way to meet the issues here; others have differed from me and do now. I presume some have believed the only way to solve the problem was to preach the gospel to them and to be kind to them. I certainly could nor would not oppose either, but the man who undertakes to make that alone the basis of his operation, will fail; and yet he may be filled with love for man. Before a wrong can be adjusted or one turn from it he must be led to see that error, and I feel quite sure I could demonstrate a greater degree of love for man in showing him his danger in holding fast his error, than in any other way. If we can learn to approach the wrongdoer in the spirit of love, and can give him the assurance that by leaving the bad and holding to the good we will be his friends and do him good, we can then have influence to show him the better way. It is not easy to drive a man or reason with one who knows or thinks he does.

I am aware that when you storm the citadel of tradition or false teaching of any class or kind you will be branded as an enemy and a destroyer, of long-cherished hopes and one who comes to tear down what it has taken the fathers years to build up. That has been the cry here for years: "The sons of Joseph are trying to destroy his father's work;" when in fact they are to-day the greatest and grandest builders the world has ever known save Jesus Christ the anointed one. He too was judged a destroyer by all religious and social institutions. They hurled their anathemas at him as one who had come not only to lay the ax at the root of their theology, but to destroy the nation; when in fact his heart was filled with love for the erring; and by his teaching and example he demonstrated his philosophy to be one of the greatest creative and constructive forces ever wrought upon human affairs and systems, conserving all that was good, and eliminating all that was bad.

While I may be counted harsh and unkind in my attack on the position here, I know my heart and soul goes out in love, pity, and tender compassion for all who are out of the way. If the thousands of good people could see the dawn of a better day—who have been blinded by priestcraft and false traditions—how joyous the day would be. I sometimes think we all lack that pure divine love that builds up, and while we stand square-toed (using the common phrase) on the law, we forget that he who gave the law was filled with love for man, and that he who teaches the law can only expect it to be honored and observed by those who have the true conception of love for God and man. "This is the love of God, that we keep his commandments."

Well, I will have to stop, lest you become surfeited with my notions. Being alone I felt led out in that way, and have so written.

We are going to move the tent to Logan to-morrow, and there under the shadow of the temple we will sound the alarm and see who will hear.

O, yes; Bro. S. D. Condit has gone and—well, I will tell you how it was. There is a good sister living in Logan who had one daughter Ida, and the two did dwell in love and peace together, but Dana did talk much with Ida and turned her head his way, because he wanted to have it so, and she wanted to go that way; so on the 15th inst. I went there and said the talk that made them husband and wife. A goodly number of relatives and friends were present, and I will say it was a most enjoyable time, and everything seemed suited to the occasion. All was pleasantness and peace. Bro. Dana doesn't expect a year's lay off because he has married a wife, but is moving right along in the good way. Blessings to them both.

Yours in bonds,

R. J. ANTHONY.

MALLARD, Iowa, Aug. 20.

Editors Herald:—Last night we had a severe wind, rain, and hailstorm in these parts, which did considerable damage to grain and haystacks and blew corn down badly. The corn in some fields is entirely stripped of blades by the hail. I am glad to say that the district tent stood erect and came out without being damaged.

Bro. W. A. Smith and the writer commenced tent work at Curlew on the 14th ult. and from there moved to Mallard, where I expect to close services for the present, Sunday evening. Bro. Smith's preaching took quite well, and Bro. W. W. Whiting did a good work here last winter, and some of the people have expressed themselves as disappointed because Bro. Whiting was not permitted to be here this summer. Bro. C. J. Hunt and Bro. E. Ford, president of the Union branch, and perhaps others, have all done good work here, and as a result I have been permitted to baptize seven since coming to this locality. This will increase the strength of the Union branch by the addition of seven members, and as a result the saints are rejoicing, while they realize that the Lord has given the increase.

Bro. George Montague is busy at Auburn and vicinity. Brn. Charles Derry and J. M. Baker have been doing a good work. Bro. C. J. Hunt has returned from his tour in Minnesota and will commence tent work at Lake City in a few days, and all who know him will be pleased to know he is again at work in the Galland's Grove district. We had hoped to open up at Rockwell City this fall, but owing to other important work which demands the attention of the writer, we will, perhaps, not be able to do so.

We hereby tender thanks to Bro. and Sr. John Wallace who so kindly agreed to care for the elders if the tent came there. However, their hospitality has long been enjoyed by the elders of this district. They have not yet been baptized, but the Lord has said:

"Whoso receiveth you receiveth me, and the same will feed you, and clothe you, and give you money."

We meet with some discouragements, but who does not? Nevertheless we take courage and press forward, feeling that this work is the Lord's and that he knows how to preserve and prosper his own cause. No one can afford to be among the unwise virgins, therefore,

"Let us trim our lamps and keep them burning,
And be ready when he says, 'Well done;'
Lest we should die when we behold him,
For his glory's brighter than the sun."

CHARLES E. BUTTERWORTH.

ELLENSBORO, Wis., Aug. 21.

Editors Herald:—Myself and colaborer, Peter Muceus, arrived at this place and the pleasant and hospitable home of Bro. and Sr. Wrage, to-day. We left here about the last of June and went to Flora, from there to Bradtville, laboring in both places as long as the interest seemed to warrant. From Bradtville we went to Wyalusing, a small town on the Mississippi River where resides a lone but faithful saint, Bro. John Ingwersen.

We found the brother ready to receive us and wide-awake to the interests of the work. He quickly secured the Baptist church for us, and we entered in and began to sound the latter-day message, and for a few services had quite a good attendance; but the adversary was up to his old tricks, secured a woman! for a helper, and the old cry, "False prophet!" "Wolf! wolf!" was soon sounded from one end of town to the other, and even to neighboring towns, and our audience began to fall off. But we found some fearless friends, and one of them told them plainly the reason why they did not come out to hear was because we told too much truth and they were afraid of it.

Some are very much interested, and if they do not obey soon we shall be disappointed. We hope to go there again in the near future.

In gospel bonds,

CHAS. H. BURR.

MOORHEAD, Iowa, Aug. 22.

Editors Herald:—The tent work continued at River Sioux until Thursday, the 18th inst., during which time the greatest interest was shown that I have ever known at that place. One was baptized, and several left almost persuaded, with reconciliation's workings which we hope will be permanent, and much prejudice was removed.

Came here on Friday, the 19th, to assist in a two-days' meeting which closed last night. Although the heat was oppressive both days, a large attendance was present. Six sermons were preached, one social service held, one session of Sunday school enjoyed, five baptized and confirmed, one child blessed, and seven administered to. The sermons were tinctured very much with plain words positively spoken, and the saints seemed to be strengthened. The tent will be taken to Smithland to-morrow to begin services the 24th and continue about three weeks, if wisdom indicates the necessity of continuing thus long.

I preached the funeral sermon of William

Henderson, Saturday morning, at the home of his son Thomas. He had a longing to be baptized before he died, and asked for the prayers of the saints.

My joy is in the service of God. Arrangements have been nearly perfected for a discussion of sixteen sessions between Elder H. A. Jenkins, of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, and myself, on three propositions, to be held at Elwood, Gosper County, Nebraska, beginning October 10. Elder Jenkins affirms that man is mortal and lies unconscious in the grave until the resurrection or last day, and that the seventh-day of the fourth commandment is the Sabbath of the Lord, and should be observed by all Christians in all ages of the world; and I affirm the church question.

I hope to be able to introduce the restored gospel in that new place, and some interest is manifest in the coming discussion.

Preparations for the coming reunion at Woodbine are nearly completed; notice of the Religio and Sunday school work to be given next week by a publication of the program. This reunion is looked forward to with high anticipations by all church workers in these parts.

In gospel hope and joy,

J. F. MINTUN.

OSKALOOSA, Iowa, Aug. 22.

Editors Herald:—I arrived here Saturday from Richland, Tama County, Iowa, where I had been sent by the missionary in charge to sit on a court of elders. Some misunderstanding between brethren grew into a condition that materially interfered with the social conditions that are so very essential to the peace and spiritual progress of each individual, to every branch, and the church as a whole. As the greater part of the trouble existed between those intrusted with the work there and those that hold equal rank in the priesthood, it gave the Devil a big leverage, and if those conditions had continued party lines would have been drawn tighter and a greater alienation and spiritual death would have ensued as a natural result.

The courts of the church are open to give redress to the humblest member within the pales of the church, and there is no excuse for either member or officer for standing back, refusing to take an active part—in refusing to perform his or her duty because or with the claim that there are others that are sustained by the church that are unworthy, until there has been a reasonable effort made to bring such unworthy parties to justice by a legal process, even if all the claims made and objections offered are true. The law of the land makes it a fraud to conceal a fraud. It's a big mistake, and quite common, that members of the church and even officers are making, in expecting the church to drop men from active service with no better pretext or cause for so severe a punishment than that some brother or sister has said that they are not worthy, or that they have some chronic dislike to them. If often occurs that the dislike has grown out of some official act that did not cater to their caprice, or official jealousy with pent-up virus that finds vent in slander and sometimes in utter falsehood. Some have wondered why the President of the church or of a mission has not received a revelation to silence such as are guilty of misdemeanors, forgetting that the law has made provisions that are more compatible to our best interest than revelations through any individual could possibly be. "In the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established," is the prescribed rule.

We will now return to give an account of our labors at Richland branch. Bro. J. W. Morgan, of Perry, Iowa, came by appointment from Bro. J. R. Lambert. We proceeded to hear the evidence and got through with one case and commenced the second. The defendant and plaintiff retired to themselves and returned reconciled and stopped any further procedure, made confessions to each other. Then the parties to the first case made acknowledgments to each other, and then on the Sunday following, the 14th inst., they each of them made a public confession, which was very satisfactory to all, and a source of great joy. Much praying and fasting had been done, and the Lord heard the prayers of the faithful. We continued meeting; Bro. J. W. Morgan did considerable amount of the preaching. Seven were baptized, and the saints seemed much strengthened and encouraged. This is the only case that I recollect where the parties became reconciled during their trial.

We called at Grinnell on our way to this place. Saw Bro. Frank Russell. His father and mother have been quite sick of late. We had a very enjoyable time here yesterday; three meetings and Sunday school. The good Spirit was present.

Bro. J. W. Morgan was called away on account of his child being sick. Bro. M's health is poor. He is a good man.

E. B. MORGAN.

LAMONI, Iowa, August 24.

Editors Herald:—The debate held some seven and three-fourths miles west of Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, between Mr. J. S. Allison of the "Theocrats" and myself, is now an event of the past. It began Monday, August 15, and ended Saturday, the 20th, at ten p. m. Twelve sessions were held, and four propositions debated. Mr. Allison denied that baptism in water was any part of salvation's plan, or essential to salvation, also the resurrection of the body. I affirmed all three, also that the second coming of Christ to reign, resurrect, and judge the world of mankind, and reign in glory, is yet future; that he "shall change our vile bodies that they may be fashioned like unto his glorious body."

Mr. Brewer, of Kirksville, Missouri, was moderator for my opponent; Elder Joseph R. Lambert acted in that capacity for our side. It was not found necessary to choose a chairman, so none was selected by them.

Mr. Allison conducted himself quite gentlemanly throughout the debate, manfully avoiding that detestable course usually pursued by opponents of our elders in debate; namely, leaving the line of argument and indulging in story telling, misrepresentation, and attacking personal character, and introducing into religious controversy, the lore of "Billingsgate." Am glad to be able to make this statement to the credit of Mr. Allison. He is my first opponent to maintain the dignity becoming a gentleman throughout the debate.

The theory advocated by the "Theocrats," called "Comeouters," "Free People," etc., is a mixture of Universalism, Spiritualism, Christian Science, and Evolution of the Darwinian cast. With them the Bible gives no account of a physical creation; after Adam evolved. Genesis 2:7 refers to his regeneration, the breath breathed into his nostrils was the regenerative spirit!

Christ and the ancient ministry established an organized church, an ecclesiastical body, but about the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, it ceased to exist as an ecclesiastical body—lost its visible organization, and was merged into or became the kingdom of God—of heaven. At the time Christ came in judgment, the world judged was the Jewish world, and the Roman army had the honor of executing the judgment rendered by the apostles, who were exalted to their thrones at Pentecost!

But Mr. Allison failed to tell us when or how Gentiles were punished who were judged by Paul, Barnabas, Andronicus, Junia, Timotheus, Sylvanus, and other apostles of Christ. They have the Jewish polity to end at the destruction of Jerusalem, instead of at the coming of John Baptist to the cross, where the final deathblow was struck, as Jesus and Paul teach. (See Luke 16: 16; Matt. 5: 17, 18; Rom. 7: 1-4; Gal. 3: 22-25; 4: 21-31; Eph. 2: 14, 15; Col. 2: 14; Heb. 9: 11.) The code of law was the life of the Jewish polity. When that was killed, "nailed to the cross," the polity in fact ceased to exist. Jewry after the cross, was but Roman provinces, governed by Roman governors and laws, except in their religion, and that from the Savior's crucifixion, was as dead as it is now.

Baptism, as instituted by Christ after his resurrection, being for the purpose of redeeming the Jews from under the law of Moses, or raising them out from under it, ceased also at the end of that Jewish polity, because, forsooth, it had served its purpose! The world that then was, having ended at Jerusalem's destruction, since then we enter the kingdom, (not church,) by birth of the Spirit,—and, hence, are now in the world—then—to come—the eternal world, the world that never ends!! The New Jerusalem has already come down, and the regenerated now walk the golden streets! Like Spiritualists, Christian Scientists, and Swedenborgians, the Theocrats have no further use for the mortal body after onceshuffling it off, therefore there is no literal resurrection. According to the Theocratic theory Christ's second advent, his appearing "the second time without sin unto salvation," is his coming into each soul that is conditioned to receive him spiritually, and is regenerated and redeemed by him, now! And so the wild theory runs on almost ad infinitum. Many of them pass through an imaginary hell or sort of purgatory of torment in getting into the kingdom.

They sail out into the broad field of heathenism to find the origin of the principles of the plan of salvation, some of which are found there in a corrupted form, they little dreaming that these very ideas were once revealed by God to man in the earlier days of his existence, and have been handed down by tradition, from generation to generation, and thus their original purity lost, as is invariably the case under such circumstances; and thus they, like the ordinary infidel, charge that Christianity is derived from what we call Paganism.

But the foregoing is a sufficient outline of the theory to enable the Herald readers to see the trend of this new movement in the world. It is so dressed up in the livery of God's word in a perverted sense that it is well calculated to lead astray the ignorant and those not well versed in the gospel as divinely inspired agents have revealed it. (Luke 4; Gal 1.)

The people of the community where the debate was, treated us very kindly. And we feel very grateful to the saints of Lamoni and vicinity for the splendid rally they made for the cause of truth during the week of the debate. I was signally blessed both bodily and mentally during the debate, for which I feel truly grateful to the Father.

Hopefully,

C. SCOTT.

GARLAND, Ala., Aug. 22.

Editors Herald:—Since I last wrote you I have been busy laboring for the cause we love. Have been greeted with good congregations as a rule, and have been greatly blessed by the Spirit when declaring the word. I am satisfied that the spirit of wisdom directed in my appointment to labor here, although I was willing to have remained in my former field.

I am very much encouraged to press on and with the faithful gain the prize at the end of the race. I desire the prayers of the saints that I may have wisdom given me to properly conduct the work in this mission, so that when the call comes to gather that there may be many here to accept the call, and be gathered with the faithful and receive their inheritance.

May wisdom and peace be with all the faithful, is my prayer.

In gospel bonds,

M. M. TURPEN.

VALES MILLS, Ohio, Aug. 18.

Editors Herald:—I am still in the faith and trying to do what I can to build up God's kingdom. I spent three weeks at Creola and preached nearly every night. What the harvest will be the Lord of the harvest only knows. I had very good crowds and quite a good many seemed interested. I stopped the most of the time with Bro. A. B. Kirkendall's family. They certainly are a fine family. If the church had a few more like them I am sure it would not need to be ashamed of them; yet they have their faults as well as the rest of us. Bro. K. seems to think my biggest fault is eating roasting ears, what Michigan people call green corn. I guess some of the Michigan people know how much of that I can get away with.

The work seems to be advancing along the line most everywhere. There is quite a good deal of sickness around here now. An old sister by the name of Burns died this morning, and a young sister, Chloe Trainer, died of typhoid fever. The weather is very warm and uncomfortable in this part. Conference convenes at Vales Mills in a week. We expect a good time.

Your brother,

F. C. SMITH.

GREGGVILLE, Ala., Aug. 6.

Editors Herald:—Have just closed our quarterly conference at this branch of the church, Flat Rock, which we enjoyed greatly, many visiting saints with us, which made us think we were not forgotten in this part of the Lord's vineyard. Brn. M. M. Turpen, J. G. Vickery, C. I. Carpenter, and M. K. Harp were present. A peaceful spirit pervaded. Many felt strengthened by the timely advice by those brethren. There were three ordinations; priest, teacher, and deacon ordained under the hands of Brn. M. M. Turpen and C. I. Carpenter.

The favors that we are receiving daily ought to encourage the saints of all branches; the Lord is still remembering his children, giving choice blessings, strengthening our bodies, minds, and with his hand of protection over us at all times if we would appreciate his blessings. Dear brethren and sisters, is not this a grand testimony that your faith, when being administered to by God's servants, brings strength to your afflicted, weakened body? And that too has brought peace of mind to many saints.

Saints, remember us in all of your prayers, that we may keep the faith and strive for a higher plane of life. Pray for those who were ordained that they may have a portion of the Holy Spirit to go with and protect them in their duties.

As we all like all our new missionaries, we have not forgotten our first ones. Bro. J. D. Erwin can guess what our meeting was—a good one, much better than expected, as he knew how we were placed, without a house to accommodate the people, though we all enjoyed the sermons splendidly, those encouraging words that poured from those brethren while with us. I hope they will remember us in their prayers, and come again as their encouraging words were well appreciated by all.

SISTER S.

GLENWOOD, Iowa, Aug. 15.

Editors Herald:—Tent work in the Fremont, Iowa, district began here the 7th inst.; so far attendance good. Since last letter have preached at Pacific Junction, Keystone branch, Henderson, Carson, Wheeler, Glenwood, Hastings, and North Grove schoolhouse. Hastings is a new opening, so I am told. North Grove is also, with the exception of a few sermons by local brethren. The encouraging feature is that God has granted light and liberty to dispense the word.

I have found the saints to be kind—willing to help the missionary. I can only thank them; may God reward in due time.

Haven't been able to do as much as I desired; but since tent has been brought into service perhaps more can be done.

At Carson I met Hon. R. W. Briggs; he hasn't forgotten how to defend Saintism yet. He gave me some good thoughts on Revelation 14:6, 7.

Am at present with Bro. I. M. Smith. He becomes quite congenial as a person becomes acquainted with him. Have learned a great deal while listening to him the last week.

In bonds,

C. JOS. CARLSON.

PORCUPINE, Wis., Aug. 4.

Editors Herald:—I am striving to live according to the laws of Jesus Christ as near as the weaknesses of the flesh will enable me. God knows our weaknesses, but by his Spirit we can overcome them to a great extent. I find the greatest weakness of the flesh is judging our brother or sister by our imaginations. We surmise that our brother or sister has done wrong intentionally, when we know nothing about it.

In speaking of the human family we judge from outward appearance. I refer you to Matthew 7:1: "Judge not that ye be not judged." I would like to ask the saints what this means?

I say brethren and sisters that we as members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, we who profess so much and have taken the responsibility of saints in Christ, should so guard ourselves, and abstain from criticising other people, unless we know their deeds to be low and base. This not only hurts the person whom we insinuate against, but gives the world a chance to criticise our faith. If we were more united we could then instead of trying to crush our brother, lift him up and help sustain him.

Brethren and sisters, let us all strive to overcome our every weakness.

I am young in the faith, but love this gospel of latter days.

Your brother,

BERTIE L. WHITE.

Original Articles.

ARE YOU GOING TO HELP?

MENTAL and spiritual advancement is always marked by a keen desire to obtain knowledge and instruction. It is absolutely impossible for individuals or communities, acted upon by enlightening forces, to remain in a state of intellectual idleness and nullity. Such stagnation must result in decay, ruin, and ultimate extinction. On the other hand, progression widens the possibilities of development, the growth being in direct proportion to the intensity of the motive power. Latter Day Saints claim to be actuated by a power and influence of a degree unknown to the external world, and, if so, they, above all others, should be anxious to promote the highest mental development and culture, thus establishing their possession of the power claimed by its visible results. In so doing they not only provide the needed demonstration, but also open out vaster fields in which the spiritual ego may attain to more symmetrical and beautiful proportions, and hence be better fitted for communion with the Divine Personality. To this end God has instructed his people that they should seek after the knowledge of things both in heaven, and in earth, and under the earth. (D. C. section 85.)

It follows that all who accept the divine word as a practical guide, must, as the logical sequence of that acceptance, favor efforts to procure intellectual and spiritual growth within the church. And is it not the purpose of true education to develop and cultivate the human faculties that the possessors thereof may be placed in the most favorable condition for right living,—a living which shall harmonize body, mind, and spirit? Such an education is calculated to produce the best specimens of humanity, the nearest resemblance to the perfect manhood which God pronounced "very good."

That the mental aspect of human training holds quite an important position is evident from the constant injunctions of the Almighty and his servants. The Wise Man said:—

My son, if thou wilt receive my words, and hide my commandments with thee; so that thou incline thine ear unto wisdom, and apply thine heart to understanding; yea, if thou criest after knowledge, and liftest up thy voice for understanding; if thou seekest her as silver, and searchest for her as for hid treasures: then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God.

And again:—

Wisdom is as good as an inheritance, yea better too, and by it there is profit to them that see the sun. For wisdom is a defense, and money is a defense; but the excellency of knowledge is that wisdom giveth life to them that have it.

There can, then, be no dispute as to the desirability of wisdom, knowledge, education; but the methods of acquiring the same are open to criticism. Accordingly some have questioned the legitimacy of the way in which it has been sought to favor the growth of intellectuality within the church, though none deny the excellence of the motive prompting such movement. Whether prior procedure has been wise or unwise, timely or untimely, action has been taken, and stands in its concrete form as Graceland College. Its future is the main question at issue.

It is within the power of the body of saints to say either "Die" or "Live" to that college. Death may be brought about either by forcible deprivation of vital powers or by the more lingering method of starvation,—the latter possessing any virtue but that of charity. On the other hand, the maintenance of life can only be insured by careful nutrition of vital powers. Which is it to be?

Death is the ultimate penalty of the law, and should not be pronounced save when every other remedy fails. Now has every other remedy been tried? Has that due support been given to the college which would have strengthened it in the struggle against untoward environments? On the plea of disagreement with the primary and secondary actions taken, the starvation method has been allowed free play, and, as pointed out above, such a policy is one of death and destruction.

Destructive criticism is ever popular, because it is easy of application, but it often annihilates actual good, and still oftener potential good. Let those who disagree with the present educational policy confine themselves to constructive criticism; let them formulate some better scheme, and place it publicly before the body. If they cannot do so, let them not refuse to actively aid in the support of the institution. Possibly, methods may require alteration, but do not stand passively by until they arrange themselves to your satisfaction, but come, work and help along till Time's impartial arbitration justifies the wisdom, or otherwise, of your opinions. Nothing will ever be accomplished except with united action, and remember, O Saint, that inaction is potential opposition—the uncharitable, the unchristianlike starvation method of killing. You cannot escape your share of responsibility.

The college is not a theological school, has no intention of supplanting the divine election and inspiration of the ministry, of imparting that doctrinal teaching which is supplied by the church and its spiritual adjuncts; but does purpose to give to its students the strictest moral care and training, based on the principles of the meek and lowly Jesus. Its resolve to exclude all vice and impurity from its precincts is firmly established, and church members with others may rely upon obtaining for their sons and daughters that combination of secular and moral training which will tend to fit their offspring for fulfilling the loftiest functions of this life.

Provided there be no startling inferiority in the training offered, it is a DUTY, incumbent upon saints, to send, whenever possible, their children to the church college rather than to outside institutions, the tendencies of which are always to allure and entice away from the pure and undefiled religion of Jesus Christ. Fears for the educational welfare of Graceland students are unnecessary and superfluous, for the character of the instruction and courses given is such as will compare favorably with that of many larger and older established institutions. Dilatory and unprogressive students will be unsuccessful at any college, and no discredit can possibly attach itself to an institution on account of the unsatisfactory nature of work done by such. Nevertheless, the church college attempts to handle even this class of scholar, and root out mischievous habits, substituting therefor diligence and wisdom.

Intellectual and moral environments are such as will tend to produce highly cultured Christian men and women, carefully trained in the independent use of the faculties with which God has endowed them, and of whom it may be said, as of Daniel and his companions, that they are,

Children in whom was [is] no blemish, but well favored, and skillful in all wisdom, and cunning in all knowledge, and understanding science. And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king inquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers [representing the world's system of education] that were in all his realm.

Let us give the college a fair chance of justifying its existence, and of accomplishing for the church the good work which it is capable of doing.

ERNEST R. DEWSNUP.
LAMONI, IOWA, August 26, 1898.

INFIDEL ARGUMENTS ANSWERED.
NO. 2.

BY C. J. SPURLOCK.

IN the book entitled, "Cause and Cure of Infidelity," written by Rev. David Nelson, M. D., we find on page 13, the following statement relative to the cause of infidelity.

Infidelity is caused from two causes acting conjointly. The primary or remote cause is man's depravity; the second or approximate cause is man's want of knowledge.

Infidels would do well to consider this statement. In a lecture delivered by John R. Kelso, and published by the liberal and scientific publishing house, office of Truth Seeker, New York, on page 14, we find the following:—

Either science or religion is bound to be utterly false. If as science teaches the physical forces eternal and inherent in nature produce all the phenomena in nature, then it is evident the gods do not produce any of them.

Let the reader note the language, "if as science teaches the physical forces in nature produce the phenomena in nature" and so on, you see this statement is based on the preposition "if", which denotes doubt, and which shows conclusively that the infidel is in doubt as to whether the phenomena in nature was and is actually produced by the inherent forces of nature itself. So we see the infidel doubts science and doubts the Bible being true, thus showing that he is in a terrible predicament indeed. We should do what we can to show him his error, and then if he persists in it, we should be sorry; but will have the satisfaction of having tried to show him the truth. On page 102 we find, "I will prove the Bible represents the earth as a flat body," and then quotes Isaiah:—

Thus saith God the Lord, he that created the heavens, and stretched them out; He that spread forth the earth.—Isa. 42:5.

Does the saying that, he "spread forth the earth" prove that it is flat? It does not. A round body may be spread as well as a flat one. He further claims the Bible to be false, because it claims there was light three days before the sun was created, it having been created on the fourth day. Now to say there could have been no other luminous body giving light to the earth prior to the creation of the sun is merely a presumption.

On page 136 Kelso says:—

I propose to prove: first, that God was once the tutelary divinity of the Hebrew nation alone; second, that he has a body.

Thus the infidel proposes to prove God to be a respecter of nations, because it appears that there was a time when he revealed his will only to the Hebrew nation. True, it appears that there was a time when the Hebrew nation alone received revelations from God—that is as a nation; but the reason for this was doubtless because no other nation was in proper condition to receive them. There are instances, however, in very ancient times when individuals not of the Jewish race received revelations; for instance take the dreams of Pharaoh and Nebuchadnezzar. Besides, it is true the gospel was preached in the days of Abraham, and no doubt to all nations.

The infidel says he can prove that God has a body. Suppose he can, that does not disprove the divinity of the Bible; but it would prove some of the creeds of men to be false. To prove the creeds of men to be false is easy enough, an unlearned man can do that; but the philosophers combined cannot prove the Bible to be of human origin. In Philippians 2:6, it says, speaking of Christ, that he was "in the form of God;" hence God evidently has a body. Kelso quotes Job 2:10 and Micah 1:12 to prove that God sends evil on men. Now it is quite evident to every candid reader that the evil spoken of in this scripture simply meant punishment at the hands of the Lord. Now punishment, as infidels must admit, is a good thing. When men break the laws of the land, should not just punishment be meted out to them? Evidently it should. In the book of Amos, fourth chapter, we are informed that God sent the rain on one city and caused it not to rain on another city. Now while this was the work of God, we have no just cause to believe he did wrong by either sending or withholding the rain, both were a blessing, yet the people may have thought God did evil in withholding the rain. So with Job; though afflicted and bereft of both property and family, it proved to be a blessing to him.

Mr. Kelso quotes Exodus 32:14 to prove that God repents. Now this is only a mistranslation in the King James version of the Bible. It contains many such, as the best of Bible students admit. In the Sunday school teachers' edition of the King James version, we find in the Bible Helps, page 11:—

We have no perfect manuscripts either of the Greek or Hebrew Scriptures, neither have we of any Greek or Latin classic author. On the contrary, there is no ancient book sacred or secular of which the text is not more or less imperfect. In this respect the Hebrew Scriptures stand in the same position as all other writings of antiquity.

It is folly to say that the whole of the Bible is untrue because errors have crept in in translating it. Mr. Kelso quotes 2 Samuel 12:11, and adds, "and do you believe the infinite power that rules the universe ever made and executed so abominable a threat?" Surely it was a terrible threat, if one should call it that; but it seems to the writer that David deserved great punishment. Terrible diseases require terrible remedies. Let us see what heinous crime David had committed. Why, he had Uriah killed to get his wife! "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap." So David was to reap the reward of his folly, by having his wives taken from him.

Kelso quotes Joshua 7:24-26, where the Bible states that Israel stoned Achor because he had "wrought folly in Israel." Truly this was a severe punishment or penalty; but do not crimes deserve penalties attached according to the character of the crime and the circumstances connected with it? Israel was a hard-hearted and stiff-necked people, and naturally required strict laws well executed. It certainly is better that a few men perish when they willfully break the laws of God, rather than let them live and a whole nation be destroyed by following the bad example of the few. This is a divine principle, and one that should not be lost sight of in our Bible study. Does the infidel of to-day think more of the few (comparatively speaking) lawbreakers in the United States than he does of the whole nation? I think not. The Lord being infallible, knows when and how to punish men; but man is fallible and often makes mistakes on this line.

On page 144, Kelso says the Bible teaches polygamy, and quotes 2 Samuel 12:8 to prove it. In the quotation given, the Bible says the Lord had given David his master's wives; but it does not say he should take two or more at once, as Kelso infers.

On page 145, 2 Timothy 3:16 is quoted, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God," and so on. True, the Scriptures, when properly translated, are given of God and are profitable for doctrine, correction, and instruction in righteousness; but the interpretations that are often placed on them are far from being inspired. Where the trouble lies is in a misapplication of the Scriptures. Kelso quotes Ezekiel 14:9: "And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the Lord have deceived that prophet." This is a mistranslation. Another translation, which was made by Joseph Smith, reads differently. Instead of containing the words, "I the Lord have deceived that prophet," it reads thus: "I the Lord have not deceived that prophet." On page 155, Kelso says that Paul teaches that God makes certain ones believe a lie, and quotes 2 Thessalonians 2:11, 12 to prove it. It reads thus:—

And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie; that they all might be damned who believe not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness.

Now it is quite evident that mankind has been warned over and over again that they would be deceived if they would not believe the truth, and if men will not believe the truth they must believe the opposite, which is a lie, but they do it with their own free wills.

THERE IS DANGER AHEAD.

"OH, LORD! thy people bless;
Arm them with holiness."

There has been brought most vividly before my mind this morning some of the dangers that threaten the peace and spiritual development of Zion in these last days, and of these things I feel impressed if not commanded to write.

I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night: ye that make mention of the Lord, keep not silence.—Isaiah 62:6.

Son of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel: therefore hear the word of my mouth, and give them warning from me.—Ezek. 3:17.

As a watchman in Zion I feel a measure or portion of the burden of the word of the Lord, by reason of what I see that is evil in the sight of the Lord. There came ringing through the church a few years ago this word, "Come up higher." As if by magic there was a sudden response to this; a visible awakening to duty and service was in many places apparent. The hopes of many who had become in a measure despondent because of indifference and coldness in many of the members, were brightened, and our beautiful work took on added beauty, because young and old renewed their diligence in Zion's cause.

A new impetus was given to Sabbath school work. "Sons" and "Daughters of Zion" formed their societies for mutual benefit, social purity, etc. Zion's Religio-Literary Society came prominently to the front in its work of religious thought and literary attainment. The "Mothers' Home Column" was laden with some of the grandest gems of thought that were ever published, whether pertaining to moral ethics, or for the cultivation of the finer faculties of the soul. These departments of work in the church are still in the van, and demand the admiration and recognition of us all. But there is coming with stealthy step in our ranks that which has not only disturbed and overthrown earthly kingdoms, but has time and time again brought ruin and rejection of God to his church below—the love of dress, pride, and fashion of this world.

Who is this I see coming to service wearing an up-to-date bonnet or hat, with plumes of costly feathers, expensive ribbons, and lace, finishing the adornment for the head?

That is a Latter Day Saint.

Who is this I see coming in just as the service begins, with the rustle of silk, and yards of costly ribbon fluttering by her side as she walks to her seat?

A Daughter of Zion.

And who is this by her side with collar well up under the chin, acting as check rein, to keep the head erect—with clothing of latest cut and design, with cuffs almost to the finger tips, and a prominent crease to the pants, gold cuff buttons, gold watch, gold chain, gold ring on finger, and diamond glittering in shirt-front?

This is one of our young brothers of the Church of Jesus Christ—a follower of him who "had not where to lay his head."

There is the opposite to this picture in our church. Here comes the poor sister with her garments very plain and inexpensive, somewhat faded, but clean. Her hands hard and brown with labor, ungloved, but clasping her well-worn "Saints' Harp," she shyly takes a seat where some one of her own walk in life is sitting. A poor brother comes with clothes almost threadbare, rather old fashioned, much of them brushed away in trying to keep them respectable for meeting; he sighs when he sees and feels the difference between himself and his well and fashionably dressed brother. But he consoles himself somewhat with the thought that "God looketh not on the outward appearance, but on the heart." Yet there is a breach, and it is felt by both; how can it be closed or bridged? The poor man cannot do it, and in many cases the better dressed brother will not; so the breach widens, and who can tell what the end will be?

Now, Mr. Watchman, what are you going to say concerning these things? Why cannot men dress and act as they please under this perfect law of liberty? I will deliver my message to you, and judge ye what I say, for I give you that which is written:—

The voice said, Cry. And he said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field; the grass withereth, the flower fadeth, because the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it: surely the people is grass.—Isaiah 40:6, 7.

This is the outward man that must soon perish. However beautiful to the eye it may appear, time with its withering hand will change beauty and the freshness of youth to the wrinkles and feebleness of old age, even as the sun dries up and withers the grass and the flower of the field. Why, O why then, should so much valuable time and money be wasted in the adorning of the body by the saints, when we are requested to present to the Father our bodies as a living sacrifice? How can it be called a sacrifice when we are adorning it for our own gratification and for the admiration of those with whom we come in contact? How can our bodies be well pleasing to him when we ignore his word?

Whose adorning, let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price. For after this manner in the old time the holy women also, who trusted in God, adorned themselves.—1 Peter 3: 3-5.

I will therefore that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting. In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array; but (which becometh women professing godliness) with good works.—1 Tim. 2: 8-10.

And again, thou shalt not be proud in thy heart; let all thy garments be plain, and their beauty the beauty of the work of thine own hands, and let all things be done in cleanliness before me.—D. C. 42: 12.

Men of God, who bear the vessels of the Lord, be ye clean in your bodies and in your clothing; let your garments be of a sober character and free from excess of ornamentation. Avoid the use of tobacco and be not addicted to strong drink in any form, that your counsel to be temperate may be made effectual by your example.—D. C. 119: 3.

But beware of pride, lest thou shouldst enter into temptation.—D. C. 21: 1.

But beware of pride, lest ye become as the Nephites of old.—D. C. 38: 9.

There has been a need of the Lord warning his people continually against this sin, which has brought his church in the past into all manner of abominations, as history declares. Let us once more refer to the New Testament, and we have a warning from "the faithful and true witness."

Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked; I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.—Rev. 3: 17, 18.

This word was to the saints of Laodicea, in Asia, showing what havoc pride and love of this world's goods had done for them. They had become lukewarm in spiritual things, and were rejected of God. We will now turn to the Book of Mormon, and hear what that faithful servant of God, Jacob, had to say to his brethren, as he delivered to them the word of the Lord.

And now behold, my brethren, this is the word which I declare unto you, that many of you have begun to search for gold, and for silver, and all manner of precious ores, in the which this land, which is a land of promise unto you, and to your seed, doth abound most plentifully. And the hand of providence hath smiled upon you most pleasingly, that you have obtained many riches; and because some of you have obtained more abundantly than that of your brethren, ye are lifted up in the pride of your hearts, and wear stiff necks, and high heads, because of the costliness of your apparel, and persecute your brethren, because ye suppose that ye are better than they. And now my brethren, do ye suppose that God justifieth you in this thing? Behold I say unto you, Nay. But he condemneth you, and if ye persist in these things, his judgments must speedily come unto you.—Jacob 2: 4, 5.

I have selected but a few from the many admonitions and words of warning given to God's people in the ages past, also given to us in this latter dispensation from the Lord through his servants the prophets, that they might break away from their idols and not be lifted up in pride and vanity, and divorce themselves from the Spirit of God, which always teaches humility and lowliness of heart before God and all men.

There is a need to-day of this word; there is a need of a word of caution, when the pride of the flesh, and vanity, is taking hold of those who could be noble workers in the church, and are hindered through a lack of spiritual light and power. There is a need, a great need of more spiritual power among us; more of that deep humility which is always so acceptable to our heavenly Father, and without which this spiritual power cannot abide with us. When we consider the fact that we cannot get away from our responsibility to God and his law, how foolish of his children to seek to gratify the unlawful desires of the heart and go contrary to his divine will and commands, which must entail loss and hinder our progress in the divine life.

Who will hear the cry, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh"? Who will be ready for his appearing? Who will lift up their heads and rejoice at his approach? Who will be accounted worthy to share in the peaceful reign of Jesus the Christ? The meek of the earth; the pure in heart; the humble and contrite in spirit. "Those who have followed the Lamb whithersoever he goeth; who have taken the Holy Spirit for their guide, and have not been deceived."

Then we must gather up strength against the day of our trial and test—against the time when everything that can be shaken will be shaken; and that alone will be able to stand which is founded upon the word of God. If we would have our prayer meetings seasons of spiritual power and a time of feasting to the soul, let us come together clothed with the garments of humility; and put pride, vanity, and show far from us. Let us be one, and not go to extremes that destroy the oneness that should characterize the family of God. Wound not the feelings of the poor of God's heritage. You who have been blessed of God with temporal things, do not remove yourselves so far from your poorer sister and brother, by your personal adornment, that they feel uncomfortable by the contrast; but "let all thy garments be plain, and their beauty the beauty of the work of thine own hands."

Let not the storehouse of the Lord suffer through your extravagance and love of finery. If you have robbed God in the past, by putting upon your body as adornment such things as the teachings of God prohibit, do it no more, so that when the time comes for the gathering together of God's people, you may be among those of whom the Psalmist writes: "Gather my saints together unto me; those who have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."

Saints, let us awake to righteousness.

WATCHMAN.

Conference Minutes.

NORTHERN NEBRASKA.

Conference of Northern Nebraska district convened May 28, J. M. Stubbart in the chair, R. Brown secretary. Bishop's agent reported: Balance last report $109.73, received since $160.50, paid Bishop $264.00, on hand $6.23. Account audited and found correct. Tent committee reported: Collected $67.50, balance still due $2.50; J. M. Stubbart, Nelson Brown, F. A. Smith. Account of secretary for district: Record $2.50, and 50 cents for stationery was accepted. Branches: Omaha 253; 7 baptized, 2 received, net gain 8. Platte Valley 61; gain 3. Union; no change. Blair 28; gain 1. Elders reporting: J. M. Stubbart, F. A. Smith, N. Brown, James Caffall; Priests: H. W. Belleville, S. Wood. Bro. J. M. Stubbart was sustained as Bishop's agent, Bro. Nelson Brown was elected district president, Bro. James Huff as district clerk. Preaching by H. W. Belville, F. A. Smith, Samuel Wood, and J. M. Stubbart. Adjourned to Fremont at call of district president.

KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE.

Conference was called to order by Bro. J. F. Henson, vice president of district, J. C. Clapp temporary chairman. Permanent organization: J. F. Henson president, J. C. Clapp vice president, Miss Adah Roberts, secretary pro tem. Reports of elders: J. F. Henson baptized 2 in Illinois, J. C. Clapp, C. L. Snow baptized 1, H. W. Griffin, P. B. Seaton, J. H. Adair. Priests: R. Warren, Elias Cook, Bro. Haws. Teachers: Bro. Oliver, Bro. Caldwell, Bro. Ross. Deacon Harris reported. The ministry in this district not under conference appointment to labor in their respective localities as circumstances permit, under the direction of the district president. Branch reports: Eagle Creek 32. Farmington 83. Foundry 50. High Hill 56. Bishop's agent, D. W. Cook: Received $200.59, paid out $87.32, on hand $113.27. Communications were read from missionary in charge of Southeastern mission, also from Bro. Theodore Gerber to Bishop E. L. Kelley concerning a small farm and house on Lookout Mountain, Tennessee. Bro. Gerber offers the house free to any elder who will come and occupy and preach as circumstances permit. Bishop E. L. Kelley referred the matter to missionary in charge of Tennessee. As there was no one present to accept Bro. Gerber's kind offer, the matter was laid over for future consideration. Sunday morning, met for priesthood meeting; J. C. Clapp spoke on the subject of church government, and answered questions in regard to the duties of officers of the church. The spiritual authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness:—M. M. Turpen as missionary in charge of the Southeastern mission, J. F. Henson as president of district, A. J. Myers as secretary, and D. W. Cook as Bishop's agent. A vote of thanks was tendered the saints and friends of Eagle Creek for their kindness in entertaining the visitors. Preaching by J. C. Clapp, C. L. Snow, and J. F. Henson. Adjourned to meet at High Hill, at the call of president of district.

NORTHERN WISCONSIN.

Conference at Valley Junction, Monroe County, Wisconsin, June 4 and 5; A. L. Whiteaker president, A. V. Closson secretary. Branch reports: Evergreen 86; 1 died. Frankfort 81; baptisms 9, by letter 1. Reeds, no report. Ministry reporting: Elders A. V. Closson baptized 6, A. L. Whiteaker baptized 1, E. D. C. Smith; Priests S. E. Livingston, F. Sanford baptized 2, J. B. Wildermuth baptized 1; Teacher J. W. Hooker; Deacon O. A. Warren. No report from Bishop's agent. J. F. Warren of tent committee reported that he had received and paid out $6.10, which leaves amount due A. V. Closson on tent $5.70. The committee was continued and requested to raise the balance before next conference. Resolved that Bro. W. Hutchinson be ordained an elder, and that he be recommended to the Bishop as his agent for this district. It was decided to hold a two-days' meeting at Valley Junction, time and speakers to be appointed by the president; also that we consult with the authorities of the Southern district in regard to holding two-days' meetings at North Freedom, Sauk County, Wisconsin. Preaching by A. V. Closson, J. B. Wildermuth, and F. Hackett. Sacrament meeting in charge of Bro. A. L. Whiteaker. Bro. A. L. Whiteaker was sustained as president and A. V. Closson as clerk for one year. Adjourned to Twin Lakes, Chippewa County, Wisconsin, November 26 and 27.

NAUVOO.

Conference convened at Keb, Iowa, June 4; President F. M. Weld in the chair, R. Warnock secretary. Elders reporting: F. M. Weld, J. S. Snively, J. R. Evans, F. Johnson, R. Warnock, W. T. Lambert, W. E. Williams, and J. McKiernan; Priests G. P. Lambert and F. M. McDonald; all reporting in writing. G. P. Lambert, Bishop's agent, reported: On hand February 12, $18.90, received $291.47; paid out $258.75, on hand June 1, $51.62. J. L. Wright, district treasurer, reported: On hand last report $3.56, received since $8.25, paid out $3.80, balance on hand June 1, $8.01. Reports audited and found correct. Branch reports: Keb 53, New London 44, Burlington 108, Rock Creek 68. The Keb branch recommended John Brennan for ordination to the office of an elder. J. R. Lambert stated that J. R. Evans was set apart by the General Conference to the office of high priest and referred to the presiding missionary for ordination. The religious services consisted of preaching on Saturday evening by J. R. Lambert. Prayer meeting Sunday morning in charge of F. M. Weld. J. R. Evans was ordained a high priest and John Brennan an elder at this meeting. Preaching in the forenoon by J. R. Lambert. Dedication of the Keb chapel in the afternoon, in charge of J. R. Lambert; A. H. Smith delivered the sermon, and J. McKiernan the dedicatory prayer. After this meeting four children were baptized by Elder John Brennan. Preaching in the evening by J. McKiernan. Adjourned to Rock Creek, Illinois, the first Saturday and Sunday in October, 1898.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Conference met with Wayne branch, in Wayne County, August 6-8; Bro. G. T. Griffiths chosen to preside, assisted by G. H. Godbey, J. B. Russell secretary. Reports of ministry: G. H. Godbey baptized 12, D. L. Shinn, W. R. Odell, J. W. Trout, J. Carpenter, and J. L. Williams. Visiting saints invited to participate, among them Elder James Moler. Priests: B. Beall, J. M. Moore, and J. Biggs. Bishop's agent, B. Beall: Received since last report $117.40, paid out $104.15, due church $13.25. Branch reports: Clarksburg 21, Cabin Run 27, Mt. Wayne 11, Union Grove 23, Bellegrove 34, Harmony 22, Buffalo City 23, Mt. Zion 14, Wayne 37, Fairview no report. Officers of the district were sustained; G. H. Godbey president, B. Beall Bishop's agent, J. B. Russell secretary. Preaching by G. T. Griffiths, D. L. Shinn, and James Moler. A resolution of thanks was tendered Bro. G. T. Griffiths for past labors in the district, and the district request that the editors of the Herald and Ensign publish the resolution with the conference report. Adjourned to Mt. Zion branch, Goose Creek, the last Saturday and Sunday in August, 1899. Thus closed one of the best conferences ever held in the district. One was baptized during the session by Bro. G. H. Godbey.

RESOLUTION.

Whereas, our late missionary in charge, Bro. Gomer T. Griffiths, is among us for the last time, at least for some years to come; and whereas, the said brother by special acts of kindness, purity of life, faithfulness to duty, firm and self-sacrificing devotion to the cause we love has greatly endeared himself to us; we take this method to express our deep sorrow and regret that he is called away from us to labor elsewhere. Wherefore, resolved, that we, the members of West Virginia district in conference assembled, tender our brother a vote of thanks for his services in aiding us in the great work, and in setting our district in order under the influence of the divine blessing with which he always seemed inspired; that we thank him for the special interest and extraordinary efforts manifested and put forth in our behalf. That we do now in all confidence, commend him to God in prayer and to the saints where he goes, and to all others to whom those presents may come, as a man of God and a faithful servant of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

FREMONT.

Conference with Henderson branch, Farm Creek, June 4 and 5; Bro. D. Hougas was chosen to preside, Bro. H. Kemp and G. H. Hilliard his associates. Reports from following branches received: Henderson, Hamburg, Riverton, Tabor, Glenwood, Thurman, and Shenandoah. Written reports from elders: W. C. Matthews, J. Comstock, H. Kemp baptized 4, G. Kemp, I. M. Smith baptized 1, W. Leeka, G. F. Walling, T. A. Hougas, J. C. Moore, W. W. Gaylord, W. Schick, J. V. Roberts, H. F. Durfey baptized 1, S. Orton, A. Badham baptized 1, D. Hougas. Priests: F. Goode, L. C. Donaldson, C. Fry, F. Becksted, G. F. Dungee, L. D. Fredrickson. Teachers: W. R. Calkins, E. S. Wilcox, G. F. Skank, C. M. Roberts, B. F. Knight. Deacons: E. F. Wilcox, W. F. Gard, S. S. Clark. J. V. Roberts and I. M. Smith were appointed to audit Bishop's agent's report, which was found correct. The tent committee reported they had taken steps to obtain side walls for the tent, and a motion to accept the report and continue the committee prevailed. The following missions were assigned: Plum Creek and vicinity: A. J. Davidson and L. D. Fredrickson. Egypt, Bartlett and vicinity: S. Orton, F. Goode, G. Kemp. Stennett, Excelsior and vicinity: G. Needham and A.

Badham. Glenwood and vicinity; G. W. Walling. Shenandoah and vicinity; J. V. Roberts, J. B. Cline, W. W. Gaylord, and E. Wilcox. Sunnyside church, Ash grove, and Sycamore schoolhouse: H. F. Durfey and M. W. Gaylord. All local elders to labor as circumstances permit. The following officers were elected: D. Hougas president, T. A. and Emma Hougas secretaries. Bro. H. Kemp and his co-laborers were sustained, also Bro. Leeka as Bishop's agent. Preaching by Bro. C. Carlson at 7:30 p. m. Regular Sunday school session at 9:30 a. m. Sunday morning. Preaching at 11 a. m. by Bro. G. H. Hilliard. Social service in charge of D. Hougas and H. Kemp at 2:30 p. m., after which one was baptized. At 8 p. m. the one baptized was confirmed, after which Bro. I. M. Smith occupied the stand. Adjourned to Thurman, October 29.

SOUTHWESTERN TEXAS.

Conference at Pipe Creek schoolhouse, Bandera County, Texas, August 12 and 13; vice president O. D. Johnson in the chair, W. H. Davenport clerk. Elder T. J. Sheppard to assist Bro. Johnson. Priesthood reporting: Elders T. J. Sheppard baptized 6, J. A. Currie, O. D. Johnson, W. H. Davenport; Priests E. B. Bennett, W. G. Willis; Teachers W. L. Clark, C. N. Powell. Branch reports: Medina City 42, Bandera 36, San Antonio 21, Oak Wood no report. Elder J. A. Currie elected president of district, Elder O. D. Johnson vice president, W. H. Davenport secretary and treasurer. Bro. L. L. Wight having resigned as Bishop's agent, Elder O. D. Johnson was recommended to Bishop E. L. Kelley for appointment. Auditing committee on Bishop's agent's books reported that there is due church $5.65. Preaching by Elder T. J. Sheppard. There will be a ten days' reunion held by this district, to begin Friday, September 23, at Jett crossing of Medina River, Bexar County. Adjourned to November 25, at saints' church, two miles east of Medina City, Bandera County.

Sunday School Associations.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

St. Louis district Sunday school convention will convene at No. 2518 Elliott Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri, September 10 and 11. All are cordially invited to attend.

GRACE ANDERSON, Sec.

Miscellaneous Department.

PASTORAL.

IOWA AND MINNESOTA MISSION.

Elder Heman C. Smith, of Lamoni, Iowa, has returned from the European mission; and in harmony with the appointment given him last April, will now labor with me in this mission, including the temporary care of the Decatur district, unless the First Presidency shall order otherwise. Bro. Smith is in joint charge with myself, needs no recommendation from me, as his efficiency and worthiness are well known. He may be consulted with reference to missionary work and the work of the Decatur district.

J. R. LAMBERT,

One of the Missionaries in Charge.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

As the time for holding Pittsburg district conference has not yet been decided upon, the statement made in the notice of Kirtland conference was an error. Our conference will probably be on the 8th and 9th of October. Particulars later on.

C. EDWARD MILLER, Pres.

Those coming to Northeastern Illinois district conference from the south on the C. R. I. and P. will come to Blue Island and take Illinois Central to West Pullman. Those coming on C. and E. I. or Illinois Central (main line) will come to Kensington and take street car or Illinois Central suburban line to West Pullman. Those coming into Chicago will take either Illinois Central suburban or elevated south side and Calumet electric to West Pullman.

FRANCIS EARL.

Conference of Eastern Iowa district will convene at Clinton, Iowa, September 24, in Good Templar's hall, Fifth Avenue, between Second and Third Streets. We desire reports from all branches and from all district officers and committees. A conference resolution asks for a report from each elder, priest, teacher, and deacon in the district, to be in the hands of district secretary on or before first day of conference. To assist all such we permit all reports to be sent in care of D. L. Palsgrove, No. 111 Second Avenue, Clinton, Iowa. Let us all be prompt and sustain the action of conference with regard to reporting, and being servants of the body, let us serve well.

J. W. PETERSON, Pres.

J. R. SUTTON, Sec.

Independence, Missouri, district conference will convene in the saints' church, Independence, Missouri, September 10, at ten a. m. Come all who can. Election of district officers will occur during this conference.

R. MAY, Pres.

W. E. MCKELVEY, Clerk.

NOTICES.

Zion's Religio-Literary Program for September 3, Midway Park Reunion: 2:30 p. m., opening exercises. 2:40, object of our meeting; J. C. Hitchcock, St. Louis, Missouri. 2:50, paper, "Benefits to be derived from organized effort in church affairs as compared with unorganized work;" John D. White, Clinton, Missouri. 3:00, music. 3:10, paper, "To what extent should we consider ourselves our brother's keeper;" Miss Iva Keck, Lebeck, Missouri. 3:20, paper, "What is the best way to improve our young people?" Mrs. Vina Goff, Eldorado Springs, Missouri. 3:30, music, quartet. 3:40, paper, "What the society will do for its members;"

Willis Kearney, Nevada, Missouri. 3:50, paper, "What the society will do for the church;" Mrs. Willis Kearney, Nevada, Missouri. 4:00, music. 4:10, miscellaneous and dismissal. 7:00, opening exercises. 7:10, paper, "The relationship of our young people to the Sunday school, church, and home;" Mrs. D. Miller, Verdella, Missouri. 7:25, organization and the Religio's work; J. C. Hitchcock. Program subject to change as the conditions may warrant.

Will the following named saints, whose names now appear as members of the Brooklyn branch, or any who may be in possession of knowledge of the whereabouts of the same kindly report to me the addresses of same, so as to enable us to properly adjust the record of God's people of the Brooklyn branch.

Wake up, saints! ye whom this concerns, and report to me. Failure to report within thirty days from date will compel us to report all as scattered members: William Taylor, George Smith, William Harris, William Colbery, David Shepherd, Leslie Green, William H. Satterler, Mary A. Mason, Iantha Stillwagon, Herman Wirz, Adolph Wirz, Mark Watkins, Julia Watkins, Eliza Lockwood, A. R. L. Gunn, Mary Ann Warren.

Yours in bonds,

EPHRAIM SQUIRE,

Sec. Brooklyn branch.

Sunday school workers who can come to Chicago are earnestly invited to attend the institute held in behalf of Sunday school work at West Pullman (a suburb of Chicago), Thursday and Friday, September 8 and 9. On arrival report to R. N. Burwell, 11,827 Lowe Avenue, or George H. Henley, 12,020 Parnell Avenue, West Pullman.

ADAM J. KECK.

If there are any saints in Pierce or surrounding counties that would like a visit from me with the view of ministering in word and doctrine, they can so inform me, and I will try and respond to the best of my ability. I expect now to be in this part the coming fall and winter. Address, Orting, Pierce County, Washington.

HENRY C. SMITH.

REUNION NOTICES.

On account of low rates to Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha the Reunion Committee has made no provision for reduced transportation to Woodbine. Parties coming from a distance can purchase round trip tickets to Omake and save more than by any arrangements the committee is able to effect with the Western Passenger Association.

We also wish to call attention to the fact that Mr. Butler will again have charge of the boarding hall on the reunion grounds, and will this year have a sleeping apartment with the boarding hall. Board and lodging furnished at reasonable rates. He will also keep a supply of pastry on sale.

By order of committee,

S. C. DIGGLE, Sec

BORN.

MERCER.—July 25, 1888, at Sedalia, Missouri, to Mr. John W. and Sr. Bridget Rose Mercer, a son, named Ellis Wellington; blessed by Elder Charles Peet. Same place February 10, 1890, a daughter, named Esther Rose; blessed by Elder John G. Smith. August 5, 1892, at St. Louis, Missouri, a daughter, named Charlotte May; blessed at St. Louis, Missouri, by Elder M. H. Bond.

WHITNEY.—At St. Louis, Missouri, September 5, 1888, to Bro. William H. and Sr. Minnie L. Whitney, a son, named Edward Sylvester; blessed by Elder M. H. Bond.

TRUMAN.—At Brooklyn, New York, May 31, 1898, to Bro. Holly and Sr. Lizzie Truman, a daughter, named Adeline Marie; blessed July 31, by Elders M. H. Bond and George Potts.

RANGE.—To Mr. Adam and Sr. Lucy Ann Range, at Eagle Grove, Iowa, December 26, 1897, a daughter; named Vera; blessed May 7, 1898, by Elder Eli Hayer.

LEETUN.—To Bro. Lars O. and Sr. Isabel Leetun, Dayton Township, Wright County, Iowa, March 27, 1898, a daughter; named Tracy Jenet; blessed May 11, by Elder Eli Hayer.

POKETT.—To Bro. Simon and Sr. Lizzie Pokett, Magnolia, Minnesota, June 26, 1896, a son; named Alva Sylvester; blessed July 17, 1898, by Elder Eli Hayer.

KEMP.—To Henry and Ella Kemp, of Thurman, Iowa, May 12, 1898, a daughter; blessed June 19, by Elders Henry Kemp and M. W. Gaylord; named Gladys Irene.

CRACROFT.—To Bro. B. L. and Sr. Emma Cracraft, May 15, 1898, in Poe Township, Ringgold County, Iowa, a daughter, named Gracie Mae. Blessed August 21, in Riley Township, Ringgold County, Iowa, by Elders Charles H. Jones, and C. Scott.

COSTER.—To Bro. and Sr. D. E. and R. E. Coster, of Bartlett, Iowa, July 16, 1897, a son; blessed June 26, 1898, by Elders Henry Kemp and Samuel Orton; named Clarence Hugenton.

MARRIED.

BLETT—WHEELER.—At Lansing, Michigan, July 30, 1898, by Elder H. Rathbun, Jr., Sr. Bertha, daughter of Bro. O. J. Wheeler, of Belding, Michigan, to Mr. Ernest Blett, of Belding. The wedding ceremony was a quiet affair, only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties being present. Mr. Blett yielded obedience to the gospel on Monday, August 1, and the twice happy couple left for Belding, their future home, amid the best wishes of their Lansing friends.

DIED.

MYERS.—At his home, near Savanna, Illinois, July 31, 1898, Hartson Myers. He was born February 3, 1833. A good moral man, and a soldier in the civil war. Funeral at Chestnut Park schoolhouse; sermon by Elder J. R. Sutton. The G. A. R. Post, of Savanna, had charge of the services, and rendered their usual rituals at the grave.

HENDERSON.—William Henderson died August 18, 1898, at the home of one of his sons, Denison, Iowa; interment at Moorhead, Iowa, services conducted by J. F. Mintun, assisted by Hubert Case. He was born July 22, 1818; baptized about thirty years ago, but because of personal disaffection was severed from the church, yet always retained his faith in the principles of the gospel. He never denied the faith, but some days before his death desired to be baptized, and requested prayer. He leaves an aged wife, two sons, several grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

GREEN.—At St. Louis, Missouri, May 2, 1898, Sr. Eliza Green. Was born at Bridport, Dorsetshire, England, about the year 1848; was baptized in England by Heber C. Kimball; rebaptized into the Reorganized Church June 6, 1894, in St. Louis, by Elder Charles Jones. Funeral service conducted by Elder M. H. Bond.

PONTIOUS.—At St. Louis, Missouri, May 17, 1898, Jessie E. Pontious. Born at Elkhart, Indiana, October 2, 1863. Funeral service conducted by Elder M. H. Bond.

DUBIEZ.—At Amsterdam, Holland, Sr. Antje, wife of Bro. Joseph Dubiez. Faithful, meek, modest, affectionate, devoted to her husband, a veritable handmaid of the Lord has passed into rest. Baptized at Nebraska City, Nebraska, January 22, 1865, by Bro. J. Vanderwoude, and confirmed by Elder Jas. Thomson. She won and retained the love of the saints in that city, whose sympathies with her husband in his great loss are deep. Her memorial sermon was preached in Nebraska City, by Elder Mark H. Forscutt, who esteemed her for her excellencies of spirit and life work.

PITCHER.—Bro. Loren Edwin Pitcher was born in Michigan, April 10, 1852, died in San Bernardino, California, July 4, 1898. He leaves a wife, one daughter, and four sons to mourn. He was baptized in 1897 by Bro. R. J. Parker, and was a devoted member until death. Funeral sermon by D. L. Harris.

AHLQUIST.—Bro. Carl G. Ahlquist was born in Sweden, November 19, 1822, died June 29, 1898, at his home in Omaha, Nebraska. Joined the old church in Sweden and the Reorganization in 1874 in Omaha, and remained a faithful member ever since; was ordained a priest December 26, 1875. His physical powers were waning for some time, and he often expressed himself as ready and willing to go. His spirit peacefully took its flight to the abode of the righteous. He leaves five boys and two girls to mourn. Funeral sermon by F. A. Smith. He was escorted to the cemetery by the tailors' union, of which he was a member.

HEVENER.—Robert Hevener was born in Booneville, New York, October 13, 1835. Was united in marriage with Melvina Rogers, 1859, near Sandwich, Illinois. Was a resident of Ford County, Illinois, thirty years, and was universally known as a kind father, a good husband, an honest citizen, and good neighbor. He served his country as a soldier for three years in the rebellion of 1861. He died peacefully at his home in the township of Pella, Ford County, Illinois, August 14, 1898, aged 62 years, 10 months, and 1 day. He leaves, a wife, one son, and numerous relatives to mourn. Funeral services at his home, by Elder F. M. Cooper, by request of deceased.

NEWBERRY.—At his home, near Argyle, Iowa, August 1, 1898, Abraham B. Newberry, in his eightieth year. Of him the history of Lee County says in part: "A fine representative of the pioneer element of the Hawkeye State, who came here at an early day and assisted in opening the way for a grand civilization. He has seen great changes in his time and his experience would fill a volume. He has contributed largely to the growth and development of this section of country, and is regarded with that peculiar veneration and respect which is accorded the little band of pioneers who are now fast passing away. Mr. Newberry settled in Des Moines Township in 1838, where he has since resided. He was a native of Warwick, New York." On New Year's Day, 1842, he was married to Miss Eliza Duty, a native of Newbury, Vermont, who survives him. Of this union three children were born. After the troublous times that came at the death of Joseph Smith, and the false teaching that followed, he stood aloof from all organizations, but always had a home for the elders of the Reorganization, and many times helped them on their way with money or by team. Funeral services at Argyle union chapel, Elder James McKiernan delivering the sermon. Interment at Meek cemetery near Vincennes, Iowa.

BENTLEY.—Nancy M. Bentley, born in Suffolk, Long Island, February 26, 1810, baptized October 18, 1874; passed peacefully away August 17, 1898, aged 88 years, 5 months, 11 days. Some years previous to her baptism she saw Bro. W. W. Blair in a vision, she being in a boat on a large body of water, when waves tossed and winds blew; he said be prayerful and faithful. Afterward seeing Bro. Blair she knew him at once, never before having met him. For sixteen years she stood alone in the work, none of her family belonging; but amidst all her afflictions she trusted in the Lord and was comforted by reading the church publications. "A mother in Israel is gathered home." Funeral services from saints' chapel, Magnolia, Iowa, sermon by Alma M. Fy-rando.

STREETER.—Elmira Lockling Streeter was born in Lyndon, Vermont, April 11, 1812; Married Morton Streeter April 23, 1847; united with the church in 1835; started for Utah in 1849, came to Council Bluffs in April, 1850, became convinced that Brigham Young had departed from the faith, she settled in Harrison County, Iowa; united with the Reorganization in 1861. Died suddenly July 12, 1898. Services at home of P. R. Shupe, near Magnolia, Iowa, sermon by Alma M. Fy-rando.

VEDDEN.—At Waddington, California, Ina Estella Vedden. Deceased was born January 9, 1883, at Rushford, Wisconsin; united with the church October 3, 1897; baptized by Elder S. B. Robinson. She died in hope of a glorious resurrection. A mother and one sister mourn.

POWEL.—At Galena, Kansas, August 3, 1898, Ethel Maria, aged 15 days, daughter of Bro. and Sr. J. C. Powel. Funeral services at the saints' chapel by Elder T. S. Hayton.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound$1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

G. A. R. National Encampment, Cincinnati, Ohio, September 5-10, 1898. Returning not later than September 13. An extension of time till October 2 can be obtained. Special G. A. R. train leaves Chariton 4:50 a. m., arriving Cincinnati same day at 9:05 p. m. Round trip from Lamoni $14.05.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth	$1 00
Sheep or library binding	1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 75
Morocco, gilt edges	2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges	3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth	$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia.....	1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges....	1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible.....	2 00

THE BOOK OF MORMON. Large Type Edition.

Cloth, leather backs and corners..	$1 50
Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges	2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth	$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia.....	1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible	2 00

THE TWO RECORDS. The Book of Mormon and the New Testament. (Inspired Translation) in large type; in one volume.

Leather back and corners	$2 00
Seal Grain Russia.....	2 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	3 50
Morocco, gilt edges	4 00

NEW TESTAMENTS. Inspired Translation. Pocket-size edition.

Cloth	$0 30
Cloth sides, leather back	50

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6½x8½, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net.....$2 00

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Rules for the government of general and district conferences, branch business meetings, and other assemblies. Instructions concerning general, district, and branch records, the holding of elder's courts, etc., cloth bound; price 40 cents.

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100$1 00
2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....1 00
3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100... 1 00
7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 1001 00
9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100.....1 30
10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 100.....1 20
12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 1001 00
13. Discipleism, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts; 100, 1 00
14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....$1 00
15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen..... 30
19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen..... 10
20. The "One Body;" or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100..... 30
27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....1 00
31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100..... 15
41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100..... 50
43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....1 00
44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100.....1 00
47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 1001 00
- Prophecy of the Rebellion; per 100 10

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS. A book for small children. Cloth...$0 20

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer, President.
 Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address:
 I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

BRO. B. F. ORDWAY, of Peoria, Illinois, will send 3 boxes of Quit-to-Bac post paid anywhere for $1.50, and positively guarantee it to cure your tobacco habit, or your money refunded.

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.

The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a Reward of $200 By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns. TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS. It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.
 Des Moines, Iowa.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL COMMITTEE REPORT. A manual of evidences in support of Book of Mormon archaeology, with maps. Price $0 50

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American. A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers. MUNN & Co., 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Machine that Talks Talk

FINER THAN EVER! The Latest Improved Graphophone, the highest perfection of the inventor's skill. The most wonderful invention of the age, now at a price within the reach of everyone. For home amusement, this will entertain a company by the hour. Well made and durable. Winds up like a clock, and so simple that a child can operate it. From $10 to $20 a day made last fall by hundreds of its users by giving entertainments. We guarantee the Improved Graphophone loud and clear enough to be distinctly heard in any hall or church anywhere. Plays all of Sousa's band pieces exactly as rendered by that famous band—Drums, Cornets, Trombones and all. Recites. Tells funny stories. Will repeat your own voice, your friends' voice, songs sung to it, or stories told to it. You can make your own Records easily and reproduce them at once as often as desired. Has been known to pay for itself in a single evening. Price $10, includes Improved Eagle Graphophone, 1 Extra Loud Aluminum Reproducer, 1 Concert Horn, Hearing Tubes for 2 persons. (If hearing tubes for more than 2 persons are desired, we will furnish them at the rate of 50c for each person.)

PRINCE OF ENTERTAINERS

Best Exhibition Records, (Musical or Talking) 50c each, or $5.00 a dozen. SPECIAL PROPOSITION Write at once for circular telling how you can secure one of the above outfits, with 12 Records for the trifling sum of 20c Should secure at once a sample of our new $20 Slot Machine. Selling like wildfire. Made of bronze. Very attractive. Operates automatically. Requires no attention whatever. Can be placed on top of show case or on a counter. About 10 inches high and 12 inches long. Simply coins money for the dealer owning it. Price $20.00 net. Will sell on $1.00 weekly installments to responsible dealers if desired. Complete New Graphophone and Record Catalogues mailed free on application. Address, Harger & Blish, Western Selling Agts. 904-910 Main St., Dubuque, Iowa.

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel. NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING. Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed. Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices. THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery. Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to RACINE HARDWARE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture and Supplies

The "Victor" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc. GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING. Agents Wanted Everywhere. THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

HOMESEEEKERS' EXCURSIONS

SEPT. 6
SEPT. 20
OCT. 4
OCT. 18

These are the days on which you can buy very low-rate round-trip Excursion Tickets to NEBRASKA and other points in the West, Northwest and Southwest, good for 21 days. Stop on your way and see the GREAT TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION AT OMAHA. This road publishes an illustrated pamphlet describing Nebraska, and also one about the Omaha Exposition. You can get both without charge on application to the C. B. & Q. ticket agent or to P. S. EUSTIS, General Passenger Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill.

Go and look for a New Home in Nebraska, a prosperous country, where a farm can be bought for one years' rent of an eastern farm.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, September 7, 1898.

No. 36.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:

The Law and the Testimony.....565
 Graceland College Opening.....566
 Canada Items; Church Revivals; etc.....567
 An Enemy to "Ossification".....567
 An Egyptologist Dead.....567
 Believers in God.....567
 Protestant Bells Create Excitement.....567
 The Second Zionist Congress.....567
 Jews Look Toward Zion.....568
 Wilford Woodruff Dead.....569

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:

His Will.....570
 The Isolated Ones.....571

LETTER DEPARTMENT:.....571

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Old Glory at General Conference.....575

CONFERENCE MINUTES:

Spring River.....579

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS.....579

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:

Bishop's Agent's Notices.....580
 Reunion Notices.....580
 To Whom it May Concern.....580

THE CZAR URGES EUROPE TO DISARM.

EUROPE'S ENORMOUS ARMIES.

Country.	Peace army.	War footing.
Russia.....	1,743,244	4,943,364
Germany.....	607,308	5,098,180
France.....	559,260	4,788,812
Great Britain.....	220,199	637,863
Italy.....	216,235	2,127,320
Austro-Hungary.....	277,192	1,709,811
Turkey.....	228,574	1,061,862
Spain.....	352,197	1,512,197
Sweden and Norway....	40,440	255,440
Belgium.....	54,839	170,939
Netherlands.....	101,594	234,194
Denmark.....	27,720	117,136
Switzerland.....	142,175	493,175
Bulgaria.....	32,642	226,342
Servia.....	65,452	271,170
Roumania.....	40,437	250,537

St. Petersburg, Aug. 28.—By order of Emperor Nicholas, Count Muravieff, the Foreign Minister, on the 24th inst., handed to the foreign diplomats at St. Petersburg a note declaring that the maintenance of peace and the reduction of the excessive armaments now crushing all the nations is the ideal for which all governments ought to strive.

The Czar considers the present moment favorable for the inauguration of a movement looking toward this end, and invites the powers to take part in an international conference as a means of thus insuring real and lasting peace and terminating the progressive increase of armament.

TEXT OF THE OFFICIAL NOTE.

The text of the note follows:—

“The maintenance of general peace and the possible reduction of the excessive armaments which weigh upon all nations present themselves in existing conditions to the whole world as an ideal toward which the endeavors of all governments should be directed. The humanitarian and magnanimous ideas of his Majesty the Emperor, my august master, have been won over to this view in the conviction that this lofty aim is in conformity with the most essential interests and legitimate views of all the powers; and the imperial government thinks the present moment would be favorable to seeking the means.

“International discussion is the most effectual means of insuring all peoples benefit—a real durable peace; above all, putting an end to the progressive development of the present armaments.

“In the course of the last twenty years the longing for general appeasement has grown especially pronounced in the consciences of civilized nations; and the preservation of peace has been put forward as an object of international policy. It is in its name that great states have concluded among themselves powerful alliances.

“It is the better to guarantee peace that they have developed in proportions hitherto unprecedented their military forces and still continue to increase them, without shrinking from any sacrifice.

“Nevertheless all these efforts have not yet been able to bring about the beneficent result desired—pacification.

PROSPERITY IS RETARDED.

“The financial charges following the upward march strike at the root of public prosperity. The intellectual and physical strength of the nations, labor and capital, are mostly diverted from their natural application and are unproductively consumed. Hundreds of millions are devoted to acquiring terrible engines of destruction, which, though to-day regarded as the last work of science, are destined to-morrow to lose all their value in consequence of some fresh discovery in the same field. National culture, economic progress, and the production of wealth are either paralyzed or checked in development. Moreover, in proportion as the armaments of each power increase, they less and less fulfill the object the governments have set before themselves.

“The economic crisis, due in great part to the system of armaments' outrance, and the continual danger which lies in this massing of war material, are transforming the armed peace of our days into a crushing burden which the peoples have more and more difficulty in bearing.

WOULD LEAD TO WAR.

“It appears evident that if this state of things were to be prolonged it would inevitably lead to the cataclysm it is declared to avert, and the horrors whereof make every thinking being shudder in advance.

“To put an end to these incessant armaments and to seek the means of warding off the calamities which are threatening the whole world—such is the supreme duty to-day imposed upon all states.

“Filled with this idea, his Majesty has been pleased to command me to propose to all the governments whose representatives are accredited to the imperial court, the assembling of a conference which shall occupy itself with this grave problem.

“This conference will be, by the help of God, the happy presage for the century which is about to open. It would converge into one powerful focus the efforts of all states sincerely seeking to make the great conception of universal peace triumph over the elements of trouble and discord, and it would at the same time cement their agreement by a corporate consecration of the principles of equity and right, whereon rest the security of states and the welfare of peoples.”—Chicago Tribune.

COST OF EUROPE'S ARMAMENT FOR ONE YEAR.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Army (budget estimate 1898).....$102,849,371
 Navy (budget estimate 1898)..... 111,113,099

RUSSIA.
Army (expenditure 1898).....	$222,448,670
Navy (expenditure 1898).....	51,628,500
FRANCE.
Army and navy (appropriation 1898).....	$119,614,765
GERMANY.
Army (budget appropriation 1898)	$115,765,342
Navy (budget appropriation 1898)	14,024,221
ITALY.
Army (appropriation 1898).....	$44,949,874
Navy (appropriation 1898).....	19,323,183
AUSTRO-HUNGARY.
Army (appropriation 1898).....	$50,463,072
Navy (appropriation 1898).....	5,249,454

COST OF WARS IN MODERN TIMES.
Civil war (U. S.).....	$6,190,000,000
Franco-Prussian war.....	3,000,000,000
Russo-Turkish war (1877).....	1,800,000,000
Austro-Prussian (1866).....	1,000,000,000
Graeco-Turkish (1897).....	280,000,000
Mexican war (1847-'48).....	200,000,000
War of 1812.....	240,000,000
Revolutionary war (1776-'83)....	350,000,000

INTERESTING WAR STATISTICS.
In times of Peace the armies of the world now cost each day..$	8,000,000
The burning of Moscow cost Russia.....	120,000,000
In less than 300 years Great Britain has spent in war.....	6,795,000,000
It is estimated since the birth of Christ the number of men killed in war is about.....	4,000,000,000
Battles in the world's history worthy of record number.....	1,521

THE CZAR'S PROPOSITION.

WITH the single exception of the questions involved in the Spanish-American war no subject has excited so keen and widespread an interest in political and governmental circles throughout Europe as the proposition of the Russian Czar, suggesting a general reduction of the military and naval armaments of the leading powers. Coming as a distinct surprise to most of them, both in the time and the manner of its suggestion, as well as the source from which it emanated, public sentiment has been a little slow in taking form on the subject or in finding a medium for its expression.

While there has been an almost unanimous disposition to credit the Czar with candor and sincerity in making the proposition, there is a wide diversity of opinion, not to say absolute suspicion, in estimating the motives of his official advisors. With few exceptions the tone of comment among English newspapers and politicians has been of a friendly character, while that of Germany has been less so, when not openly skeptical.

Evidently the Kaiser is disposed to await some more positive evidence of the full significance of the proposition and the manner in which it is likely to be received by other governments before giving it his unqualified indorsement, in spite of the report that he had contemplated putting forth something of the same sort during his proposed visit to the Holy Land. The expressions of approval from Austria are less equivocal, while those from government circles in Italy are friendly, as might be expected under a government which has felt the cost of maintaining a strong military and naval force for years past a heavy burden.

The most emphatic note of dissent so far heard comes from France. This is the more surprising in view of the intimate relations, amounting to a virtual alliance, known to exist between the French and Russian governments. The tone of comment indicates that the memory of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and the loss of the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine continue to rankle in the French mind, and that there can be no voluntary engagement to keep the peace until that wrong—as the French people regard it—has been avenged. While French officials comment upon the Czar's proposition in a guarded manner, the criticism in unofficial circles is more emphatic, going even to the extent of denouncing it as the "first flagrant betrayal" of the alliance.

The large majority of those identified with European governments, either officially or otherwise, who are making large profits or even comfortable livings out of large standing armies and the building of great fleets of expensive warships may naturally be expected to disapprove of the Czar's proposition for reduced armaments in time of peace. France is willing to stand taxation to the point of absolute exhaustion in the hope finally of being able to recover the two provinces of Alsace and Lorraine, which it took from Germany when torn and weakened by internal wars, and which France lost again in 1870. The demand now is for "revanche" and "rectification of the natural frontier."

The motives of all parties to the discussion are conspicuous and easily accounted for, originating in self-interest. The question of paramount importance is the object of the Czar.

Is it actually what he states it to be in his circular—or, as so widely suspected, something more with the most important consequences concealed?

Suppose, for instance, the great Trans-Siberian railway were completed and in operation to Port Arthur, as authorized by concessions already obtained from China, with branches penetrating into the heart of the Chinese Empire, placing the Kingdom of Corea in the Czar's grasp and giving him control of it, with the power to pour hundreds of thousand of Russian troops on the coast of Northeastern China, would the Czar now be so zealous a champion of disarmament? With the prospect that, under the concessions he has already secured, he may be able to accomplish this a few years hence, is it to be wondered at that he should be willing to secure a few years of peace?

With some 1,600 miles of the Trans-Siberian railroad still unfinished, and progressing at the rate of 400 miles a year, it will require at least four years more for its completion. In the meantime it is reported that urgent measures are being taken to induce aided (or subsidized) colonists to locate along the eastern end of the road. When the results towards which all these efforts seem to be directed—the ability promptly to transport a large military force to the far East and there find supplies ready for its support—are achieved it can scarcely be suspected that the Czar would hesitate to engage with Johnny Bull for supremacy in a field which both are evidently anxious to occupy. The Czar is not prepared for such a struggle now, but with a railroad finished across two continents, entirely within Russian territory, he will be in a position to play his part in the partition of China and close the "open door" to its vast trade by annexation, later on striking at British India and incidentally taking in Turkey and the Constantinople door to the Mediterranean.

With a population of 130,000,000—two and a half times greater than that of Germany and three times greater than France, Austria, or Great Britain—Russia stands in a most favorable position for setting an example to its rivals by disarming. Even if it should fail to do so—assuming that the Czar means what he says—the United States can afford to second his proposition and wish him success in carrying it into execution. We have nothing to lose by the disarmament of Europeans, and are not likely to be called upon to sacrifice any strength, either military or naval, by such a step, taking into account our population and extent of territory. It will do no harm to have a talk around the green table, but may do much good and possibly reveal what the European powers are driving at.—Chicago Tribune.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, September 7, 1898.

No. 36.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH ——— EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS ——— ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.
JOSEPH LUFF, }

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPT. 7, 1898.

THE LAW AND THE TESTIMONY.

WHEN Isaiah wrote the precept so often quoted by the elders, we doubt if he ever imagined to what queer uses and odd ends the passage would be put:—

To the law and the testimony: if they speak not according to this word there is no light in them.

The Psalmist is authority for the idea that the "law of the Lord is perfect; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple."

It is evident that the law of the Lord referred to is the statutes of the Lord's enactment. The gospel is rightly called the "law of the Lord." Law is a rule of conduct prescribed by legal authority. Municipal law is a rule of civil conduct prescribed by the highest authority in the land. The law of the Lord is a rule, or the rules of moral conduct, prescribed by the highest spiritual authority known to man. And it is legitimate to conclude that in giving law to govern moral conduct to man toward his fellows, he also gave a law by which man might shape his moral conduct toward God; and wherever the one prevails the other ought to be acknowledged and followed.

Let us try an instance to see whether we can reach a just conclusion.

Isaiah, writing for the benefit of the people who were not only in danger of being misled but were putting themselves in the way of it, by seeking to the dead, or to departed spirits for light, gave them warning that it was better for them to seek unto God, and not "unto familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep and mutter." And it was in reference to this class of would-be prophets that he wrote the precept, "To the law and the testimony;" if they, these informing spirits, did not speak in accordance to the law, and the testimony of prophets and of the history of God's dealings with his people, it would be because the communicating spirits were darkened in understanding and counsel, and therefore, ignorant and incapable of giving correct information. (Isa. 8: 16-20.)

Paul in writing to the Corinthians left this on record:—

God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets."

Some quote this as the law. But is it?

Both John and Jesus preceded the apostles. There was quite a following raised up by the preaching of John and Jesus before the Twelve were chosen, Jesus going to John, the forerunner sent of God, to be baptized before entering upon his mission. He began preaching A. D. 27, Matthew 4:17. He called Simon and Andrew, James and John somewhere between 27 and 31 A. D., Matthew in 31, and the calling of the apostles was not until 31 A. D., as recorded by Matthew, 10th chapter, where the names are given.

Mark gives the coming of John in the ending of 26, the baptism of Jesus in 27, the putting of John in prison in 30, and the preaching of Jesus in Galilee in the same year. Mark also gives the ordaining of the Twelve in 31. Mark 3: 14.

Luke gives the coming of John in 26, the baptism of Jesus in 27. Luke gives also the calling of the Twelve apostles thus:—

And when it was day he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles.—Luke 6: 13.

This he places in 31.

These are the testimonies of Matthew, Mark, and Luke.

In 1827 Joseph Smith began preaching; soon after others joined with him. In 1830 there were some thirty or more disciples, but the Twelve was not yet chosen, though Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery were called apostles, but were ordained to be the first and second elders of the church.

Preaching had been going on since the coming of John, disciples had been made, and the church established by command.

The work continued until in 1835, when on February 14 the Twelve were chosen, by command and appointment, three of those chosen being ordained that day. On the 15th six others were ordained, and on the 21st, seven days after, one, making ten. Two of the number chosen on February 14 were absent from Kirtland, but returned, one on April 25, the other the 26th, when they were ordained, making the Twelve.

It will be observed that the church had been in existence from April 6, 1830, to February 14, 1835, before the apostles were chosen, and the last of those chosen was not ordained until April 26, 1835.

A strong parallel exists between this testimony and the calling of the apostles by Jesus. Four were called somewhere during the time between 27 and the Twelve were not chosen and ordained until 31.

In 1851, seven years after the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and after the dispersion from Nauvoo a work of revival was begun among some of the many legal members of the church who rightly argued that the defection of few or many by the introduction of false theories or false practices could not affect their right to membership, and individual authority. This work continued, preaching was begun, converts made, church extension and organization were carried on, until by the recognition of the Lord and his command, a corps of seven apostles was chosen from among the disciples. One holding the highest priesthood office in the old church was from time to time chosen to preside; until by reason of necessity a presiding officer as contemplated in the law was chosen from among the disciples holding the priesthood.

From that on the principle has been observed.

The government of the church prior to the calling and ordaining the Twelve, was held and administered by Jesus and those laboring with him in person. It is conceded that after the choosing of the Twelve, either Peter or James was the acting presiding officer, James being the Lord's brother.

In tracing the starting or initial points of history concerning the church, there is a striking similarity between the three efforts, at the three periods referred to.

1. The church under the apostles was preceded by the forerunner, prophet, and baptizer John, the Baptist, then the Master, then ministers and disciples from whom the apostles were chosen.

2. The Master appeared in vision, a forerunner, a prophet and a baptizer was sent out, ministers were chosen, disciples were baptized, a church established, then from the disciples the apostles were chosen and took the burden of missionary labor upon them, or rather carried on a work prescribed to them by the Lord who set them in the church.

3. After a grievous falling away, the introduction of unwise procedure and evil and false doctrine, the scattering from the fold; the visions again are given, the Master's voice is heard, a gathering together of the disciples is had and by divine direction apostles are chosen and "set in the church." Prophecies and prophets, revelations, visions, dreams preceded in the work of each movement in its turn and in its time.

GRACELAND COLLEGE OPENING.

GRACELAND COLLEGE will open with its fall term on Wednesday, September 14. A good attendance is hoped for that those who have labored in the interests of our educational work may receive substantial encouragement and the institution be aided in its prescribed work. President Dewsnup and others are busily engaged preparing for the new year's general work with a view to advancing the entire interests of the school and the students who attend.

The number of inquiries received and parties heard from justifies the expectation that the list of new students will be materially increased in addition to the expected attendance of former students who have not completed their courses of study.

It is hoped that every friend of the institution will give it the aid of a helping hand that its progress may be sure and steady and its work a success.

It is the intention of the management to do all that lies in their power to make the college one of the best in the West. This can be done by substantial encouragement from those in position to forward the interests of the college work.

Lamoni offers excellent advantages to students who desire to be free from passing detrimental attractions that cause loss of time and opportunity to many students not so favorably located. The moral influences surrounding the student are such as to materially aid by contributing to proper mental, moral, and social development, each of which is a factor essential to success in all departments of life.

Terms of tuition and board are reasonable. For particulars, catalogues, including courses of study, etc., apply to the President or Secretary of Graceland College, addressing either at Lamoni, Iowa.

Catalogues mailed free on application.

CANADA ITEMS; CHURCH REVIVALS; ETC.

BRO. JOHN SMITH, of New Bedford, Massachusetts, sends us the following clippings from the New Bedford Mercury of August 20:—

Considerable alarm has been recently excited in certain parts of the province of Ontario, according to a New York Sun report, by the spread of Mormonism. The Latter Day Saints have for some time carried on a very active propaganda in Western Ontario, and gained many converts. Special attention has been drawn to their success, owing to their having held open-air baptismal services, at which, regardless of the season, converts have been immersed in the lake. This is the only province in which any sustained Mormon missionary effort has been made, or in which there are any organized churches. The head of the church in Canada is Elder R. C. Evans of London, Ontario, who is one of the twelve apostles constituting the governing body of the sect. There are about one hundred congregations in the province, with a total membership of 2,500. Fifteen missionaries are at work in Ontario. There is no paid ministry, the religious exercises being conducted, as among Quakers, by men who earn their living on week days in ordinary worldly callings.

Speaking of religious revivals in New York the Rev. Dr. J. Balcolm Shaw of that city says in the Church Economist: "For three successive winters these special efforts have been tried, and though strong, good men were behind them, they scarcely made an impression upon the religious life of the metropolis. Even Mr. Moody's visits are forgotten in less than a week. According to the returns of his recent manager, it cost about $7,000 to gather 33 people into our churches—over $200 apiece. More was spent in that week's campaign than the average church of this city spends in a year, and yet it hardly made a passing impression."

From the foregoing it appears plain that prevailing theology with popular revivalists are unable to make much impression upon the masses. Our brethren have complained of a growing indifference toward religious matters upon the part of the people, but have succeeded in making a far different showing from the report made by the Church Economist. Possibly the Economist and others may be obliged to confess that there is something in the restored gospel taught by the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints that has power to reach many of the people. It is certain that the demand for ministers to preach "the" word is greater than we as a church have been able to supply. Our ministry have not had the dollars nor the church buildings and accessories that have been placed at the disposal of Mr. Moody and his coworkers, but their work has been successful nevertheless. It will be well when the masses of the people get down to a close study of the causes and effects of present religious conditions in the world. Are we not trying to help them see the situation, and shall we not continue so to do? As for the professional "church economists" and "ecclesiastical statesmen" — when their creeds are found wanting they wipe their glasses anew and start out on some new theological tangent, which they follow they know not whither. We have been afraid, for some years past, that many of our religious societies and doctors of divinity so-called are religiously bewildered. It is just possible that some, like the mistaken Jews, are teaching for doctrines and carrying out as policies "the doctrines" and learned spiritual ignorance "of men." Do they not represent the spirit of Babylon which "shall fall?" The facts seem to justify the conclusion. But if we tell them so will they hear us? No doubt "the honest in heart" will both hear and understand, if we tell them so in wisdom and with a right spirit. Let us not attack them in harshness of spirit, but approach them in kindness and in love. We cannot drive men and women; we may and ought to exhort and teach all to come to Christ, in spirit and in truth.

AN ENEMY TO "OSSIFICATION."

ADOLPH SUTRO, the California millionaire and philanthropist, died suddenly at San Francisco, August 8. Mr. Sutro was known generally in his home community as "the people's friend," and because possessing characteristics which entitled him to that designation, we mention him. A passage from the press account of his life is worthy of repetition, and we insert it here, in favor of the ideas it emphasizes of interest in the welfare of the masses of the people; also because worthy of imitation, and imitated by far too few:—

That which made Mr. Sutro an unusual man was the combination of qualities rarely found in the same person. He had the money-making capacity in a high degree. But the exercise of that capacity did not produce in him that ossification to which rich men's hearts are so liable. He retained a warm, human interest in his fellow man, whether that man were millionaire or pauper. He has been called the "Czar of the Scavengers" by those who considered his outspoken championship of demagogy, but there was surely much of the old Roman about the man.

We know nothing of the political faith of Mr. Sutro, nor do we care to judge any man by his mere political faith. He seems to have been an independent genius and a firm friend to the common people—the poor among men, who need sympathy and encouragement and substantial help. There is too much cold, heartless ossification (a hardening process) in the world. We need more warm-heartedness and fellow feeling. It helps wonderfully in uplifting humanity. Coldness is chilling and death-producing; warmth is normal to life and is life-promoting.

AN EGYPTOLOGIST DEAD.

GEORGE M. EBERS, the celebrated German Egyptologist and scientist, died recently at Munich, Bavaria. His works on Egyptian art and life have done much to bring the ancient life of the Pharaohs and their people into modern view. Of some features of that department of his work a late press item thus speaks. We quote from the Chicago Tribune of August 9:—

Ebers made several visits to Egypt after first making the rounds of the museums of Europe. During one of his visits he discovered the papyrus E, afterward known as the papyrus Ebers, which he published in 1875 in two large volumes. This famous hieratic papyrus and its translation at once raised Ebers to a high place in the world of learning. Although it contained mostly medical information of a remote age it was also unusually important on account of the insight which it gave into the language and culture of the ancient Egyptians. Ebers also discovered the important inscription of the "Amem em Neb."

His signal achievement in translating the hieratic papyrus may be better understood by quoting a short passage in his autobiography: "At this time I had no dictionary and no grammar for the hieroglyphic language save Champollion. No Stern had treated Coptic in a really scientific manner. For the hieratic there was no aid save my own industry and the lists I had myself compiled from the scanty lists then at the disposal of the student. Lepsius had never devoted much time to them. Brugsch's demotic grammar had appeared but its use was rendered difficult by the lack of conformity between the type and actual signs."

BELIEVERS IN GOD.

THE following concerning Bismarck's religious faith is worthy of passing note. Gladstone and Bismarck, two great factors in modern political history, were celebrated for belief in the overruling providences of the Supreme Ruler, Bismarck of Jewish origin and Gladstone doubtless of Anglo-Saxon—Ephraimitish origin:—

When he was in the heyday of his fame, in 1887, he talked much to Sir W. B. Richmond about religion and prayer. "I remember," he said, "at fourteen thinking prayer needless, for it struck me then that God knew better than I. I think much the same now, except that the usefulness of prayer is in that it implies submission to a stronger power. I am conscious of that power, which is neither arbitrary nor capricious. Of a future life I do not doubt. The present is too sad and incomplete to answer to our highest selves. It is evidently a struggle, then only in vain if it is to end here; ultimate perfection I believe in.

Nor was he in the least disposed to shrink from professing his faith before men. When Mr. Gladstone died, Lord Salisbury described him in his eulogium in the House of Lords as a "most eminent Christian." Followers of the meek and lowly Nazarene would possibly be slow to recognize the man of blood and iron as a disciple of the Christ who was crucified. But Bismarck himself had no misgivings as to his place among the believers. Nor was his a deathbed repentance. He did not postpone his avowal of faith in the unseen until things seen were becoming dimly visible through the mists of death. In the supreme moment of his career, on the eve of the war which gave Prussia the leadership of Germany, in the midst of the war that made Germany the master of Europe, he avowed with proud humility that to him all that was vital in this life sprang from his faith in the life to come.—From "The Greatness of Bismarck," by W. T. Stead, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for September.

PROTESTANT BELLS CREATE EXCITEMENT.

TURKS and Hebrews, as well as Christians, have been much excited by the sound of the three bells of the new Protestant church in Jerusalem. For several centuries the use of bells by the Christians in Palestine, or elsewhere within the Ottoman Empire, had been prohibited by the Great Turk, who has conceded it now, however, to his friend and ally, the evangelical German Kaiser. In the "Theatre de la Turquie," published in 1688, it is said: "The Turks hate bells, as a symbol of Christianity, and do not permit even the Christians to use them. Only in a few remote mountain convents, or in lonely islands, where there are no resident Mohammedans, is the use of a bell tolerated."—Ex.

It would appear that the fundamental rule of the Prussian Order of the Black Eagle, which binds its knights in the most absolute manner to "uphold the maintenance of the true Christian religion, more particularly as far as the infidels are concerned," has been modified. It is otherwise impossible to understand the action of Emperor William in conferring this, his chief order, upon the Sultan of Turkey and more recently upon the Emperor of China, both of which potentates are regarded by the State Lutheran Church of Prussia as infidels.—Ex.

THE SECOND ZIONIST CONGRESS.

WE obtained, just before going to press, the Chicago Tribune's special report from the Second Zionist Congress, now being held at Basle, Switzerland, and which we take pleasure in presenting to the readers of the HERALD. Every true son and daughter of Israel will rejoice in what it brings to light; and many hitherto skeptical will doubtless catch the inspiration of the movement and press forward to give it zealous support. The friends of the movement, especially the sons and daughters of Zion represented in the great latter-day work, and who share in the destinies of Israel, have hardly looked for such rapid and wonderful developments in its favor as the report brings. In this connection there comes an Associated Press cablegram which states, under date of London, September 2, that England and Germany have entered into an agreement under which "it is said that as a quid pro quo [an equivalent] for Germany's support in Egypt, Great Britain will recognize Germany's claims to utilize Syria as an outlet for her surplus population." When it is remembered that much anti-Jewish prejudice—Anti-Semitism—prevails in Germany, and which has at times appeared in severe repressive acts and measures against the German Jews, the statement appears in its full significance. Another London cablegram of the 2d, to the New York Journal and Chicago Tribune, states concerning the Anglo-German treaty: "It provides that England will allow the emperor free swing in Asia Minor to carry out all his colonization schemes, which he expects to force on the Sultan of Turkey during his forthcoming visit to Constantinople and Jerusalem."

What there may be of truth in these press dispatches we may not know, but it is apparent that the Almighty is surely moving among the nations for the gathering of his covenant people; and the "fullness" or culmination of Gentile development and supremacy, known as Gentile "times" seems very close at hand, if not already come in. Great events are upon us and upon the world, and we may well ask ourselves if we are prepared as a church, individually and collectively, to do our part in meeting the issue now so rapidly being forced to the front. We hope to give the Herald readers fuller reports of the Zionist congress in later issues.

JEWES LOOKING TOWARD ZION.

HOPE OF BEING ONCE MORE A NATION
FOSTERED BY THE GOOD WILL OF KAISER AND SULTAN.
CONGRESS HELD AT BASLE.

[Special cable by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise to the New York Journal and the Chicago Tribune.]

BASLE, September 3.—The one supreme fact developed by the second Zionist congress this week is that the just powers of Europe have begun to show a friendly interest in this great movement to reestablish the Jewish people as an actual nation in Palestine, from whence they were led as captives by Titus seventy years after the beginning of the Christian era.

It is a fact that the German Emperor is unofficially represented in the congress by a trusted representative, charged with the duty of reporting to him minutely the plans and purposes of the whole undertaking. The Emperor has also allowed it to be known to the members of the congress that when he reaches the Holy Land he proposes to spend one night in the Jewish colony at Jaffa, the seaport of Jerusalem, founded through the munificence of Baron Edmund Rothschild.

But the one man in the whole world who has it in his power to reestablish Judea on her ancient soil with the coöperation of the great powers is the Sultan of Turkey. There is something thrillingly suggestive in the fact that in a reply to a message of congratulation sent by Dr. Theodore Herzl, President of the congress, to the Yildiz Kiosk, the commander of the faithful sent a telegram of hearty thanks and a most cordial message of good will.

These two facts alone stand out clearly as signs of the unmistakable progress of Israel back to the scene of her ancient spiritual splendor. That this work is not the fruit of idle dreaming is shown by the practical manner in which this second congress has promptly authorized the establishment of a bank with a preliminary capitalization of $10,000,000, and that of this sum $1,000,000 has already been subscribed without any definite plan being made known to the subscribers.

LOOK FROM EARTH'S ENDS TO ZION.

Ninety-five per cent. of the $1,000,000 was taken in individual subscriptions of $5, showing a total of not far from 100,000 subscribers. They are principally poor Jews, who are looking forward from the ends of the earth to Zionism and Zion.

In addition to this the congress demonstrated that the enrolled number of Zionists has increased seven fold within a year; that the number of delegates has been doubled and that the Christian friends of the Zionists have multiplied in the same proportion. The congress itself was an extraordinary and powerfully representative body. The great area of faces, curiously enough, would not suggest Judea to a man not familiar with the Jewish physiognomy of western Europe. The general type was neither Semitic nor Oriental, but rather Græco-Slavonic, owing to the preponderance of the Russian delegates, representing a population of 5,000,000 dwellers in the unhappy provinces of Jewish Poland in Russia.

Over the building flew for the first time what is to be the actual flag of restored Israel, the Biblical six-pointed shield of David in blue on a ground of white. This is the actual standard of the rejuvenated nation. By a singularly welcome and poetic coincidence the American flag flying over the American Consulate a few feet away almost touched the folds of the flag of Israel, whose people it has sheltered and encouraged for so many years.

EMINENT MEN PRESENT.

In the rows of delegates on the platform were to be seen some of the most conspicuous men of the race of this generation,

There were Dr. Nordau, the sociologist; Dr. Herzl, statesman and editor of the Vienna Neue Freie Presse; Dr. Dembo, the famous Russian scientist; Aaron Marcus, known to the Galicians as the Jewish Tolstoi; Professor Mandelstamm, the eminent physician from Kiev; Dr. Gaster, Chief Rabbi of the Portuguese Jews of England; Bernard Lazare, the indomitable defender of Dreyfus in Paris; Rabbi Rulf, formerly of the Prussian Town of Memel, through whose hospitable doors long processions of Jewish exiles from Russia have gone to every part of the earth; Brainin of Berlin and Sokolof of Warsaw, both gifted Hebrew poets; a delegate from the Argentine Republic, who said he hoped that the Jewish settlers of Baron Hirsch's colony in Argentine might journey from this present Zion to the Zion of their fathers in Palestine; a brilliant Jewish advocate of Bialystock, who has given up his profession for the sake of spreading the movement among his people; a gifted physician from Russian Poland, who has given 8,000 precious volumes to Abarbanel Library at Jerusalem, accepting rare books at all times in place of fees, and thus enriching his already precious gift.

The congress had more than 400 members, nearly all of whom were important factors in the life of Jewry in their respective countries. Practically every country in the world was represented. Indirect messages came from tens of thousands of Jews in distant countries, too poor to send delegates.

TALK IN MANY TONGUES.

Speeches were delivered in English, German, French, Russian, Italian, Hebrew, Polish, Roumanian, and the twice picturesque accents of Judea, German, or Yiddish were heard of course.

The great dramatic feature of the congress was Dr. Nordau's brilliant oration, in which he recounted the story of modern Jewish martyrdom throughout the civilized world, referring to Russia and Roumania as the classic lands of Jewish persecution, and dwelling upon England, America, Holland, and Belgium as the only countries free from the taint of anti-Semitism.

He lamented the utter lack of solidarity within the Jewish ranks and said that, while the Jews of France with few exceptions seemed to shrink in the background before the terrible passion of to-day, it remained for a few heroic Christians to stand forth in defense of Dreyfus, the Jewish victim of injustice. No wonder, he added, that there was widespread suspicion that the Dreyfus campaign was being carried on by a syndicate of Jewish capitalists, for, although the charge was absolutely untrue, there was some ground for such inference from the cowardly silence of those Jews who should have been the first to stand forth in behalf of any poor wretch whose defense of Judaism had made him the object of such a persecution.

He uttered, amid thunders of applause, the names of Zola, Scheurerkestner, Laborie, Colonel Picquart, and Minister Trarieux, and then, pointing to Bernard Lazare, he said:—

"He alone has stood forth as a Jew in defense of a Jew."

SHOUT FOR DREYFUS' DEFENDER.

Whereupon the multitude leaped to its feet and cheered, and Lazare was lifted on the shoulders of the delegates and borne triumphantly about.

A remarkable incident of the congress was the unanimity with which the proposal to send a telegram of gratitude to the Czar for his proposals for disarmament of Europe were approved. The congress also resolved to ask the powers of Europe to couple with this beneficent scheme some measure that would restore the people of Israel to the land of their fathers.

It is a fact not generally understood that the Jews have, to some extent, evasively succeeded in establishing something like 75,000 Jews in colonies and cities of Palestine, with the surprising result that, on the soil of their ancestors, they have enthusiastically taken up agriculture, an occupation which the world knows they have been compelled too long to eschew elsewhere.

The Vienna commission was headed by Dr. Herzl. He presented an exhaustive report prepared by Dr. Motzkin, who had studied local conditions in Palestine on the availability of the land for Israelites in their ancient occupation of farming and herding, together with new industries.

TO BUILD FACTORIES IN PALESTINE.

In this connection it is interesting to know that Baron Edmund Rothschild of Paris, who is known as the "Protector of the Colonies," has undertaken, quite aside from Zionism, to build a number of great factories in Jerusalem for the employment of Jews. This work is to be assisted and extended by a great Jewish colonial bank authorized by the congress.

It was definitely determined by the congress that no further infiltration of Jews into Palestine will be sanctioned by Zionism until the Sultan himself has been won over and his official sanction has been secured for the work. It was laid down as an absolute principle of the movement that the highest mutual toleration should be observed by the two great sections of the Jewish race who have some differences in their points of view respecting the faith and practice of Judaism.

During the congress there was a typical students' festkommers, where during the feasting the old psalms and songs of Zion were sung in the old tongue.

But the most striking of all was the Sabbath morning service, where Jews from every quarter of the globe, Arabs, Egyptians, Greeks, Italians, Americans, Englishmen, French, Russians, Belgians, Syrians, South Africans, Germans, Portuguese, and other remnants of the scattered tribes stood together in the town synagogue and offered up once again the prayer of the Jewish prophets in the tongue of Jewish Prophets for the rebuilding of Zion of their fathers.

Such a scene has not been witnessed since the destruction of Jerusalem. In those somber, lofty strains there seemed to be combined the echo of all the Jewish Ghettos, where the chosen people have languished in degradation and captivity for centuries.

The final session of the congress, which lasted for nearly twenty-four hours, ended at dawn of Wednesday, and as Dr. Herzl with tear-dimmed eyes spoke the closing words: "The old wandering of Jews has come to an end and in its place let us begin the spiritual pilgrimage to Zion and hope that a new and better day has begun," the first ray of day-break shone prophetically upon his glorified face.—Chicago Tribune, Sept. 4, 1898.

WILFORD WOODRUFF DEAD.

PRESS dispatches announce the death of Elder Wilford Woodruff, President of the Utah Church, at San Francisco, California, September 2, at 6:40 a. m., where he had been sojourning for the benefit of his health. Elder Woodruff was born March 1, 1807, hence at death was in his ninety second year. He was baptized into the original church of Latter Day Saints in December, 1833, was afterwards ordained to various offices in the ministry, and on April 26, 1839, was ordained an apostle in the quorum of the Twelve, at Far West, Missouri. He accompanied other members of his quorum on the celebrated mission to England in 1841. He was an active minister and was closely identified with church interests until the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith in 1844 and the breaking up and scattering of the church, 1844-47.

He supported the movements of Brigham Young and others in the exodus to the West together with the reorganization under President Young at Winter Quarters, which culminated in the settlement in Utah. He succeeded Elder John Taylor, the successor of Brigham Young, as President of the Utah Church, in 1889. What effect his death may have upon the church in the valleys of the mountains, remains to be seen, and therefore remains a matter for time to reveal. Heretofore the President of the quorum of the Twelve has been considered and received as the successor to the Presidency of the Utah organization. Should the rule be followed, the Presidency would devolve upon Elder Lorenzo Snow, now President of the Twelve Apostles. Whether the former procedure will still be followed, will appear in due time.

The counselors to Elder Woodruff, who with him composed the First Presidency, were Elders George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith, both of whom survive him.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. R. M. ELVIN, Pollock Mo., Sept. 1:—

We had nine two-hour sessions on the first proposition, and I forced five sessions on the second. It was a weak effort on the part of Padget. The Book of Mormon is now under discussion. At first the people seemed afraid of tracts; now we do not have one third enough to meet demand.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

TRUE conversion and spiritual character are revealed or found to be lacking in the acts, not alone in the professions of men and women. Continued absences from preaching, social, and sacramental services are manifest evidences of spiritual indifference—that the interest of the absentee is elsewhere than with the assemblings of the people of God. Some may love ease or pleasure better than the service of the Lord's house, some may remain away for other reasons; but habitual remaining away or but occasional attendance is a significant and sad confession in itself. It is true that in some instances regular church attendance is not possible with some, but such instances are rare. Those who neglect such "means of grace" must both realize, show, and in their lack of spirituality confess to their lack of interest in church work. Let us be alive and earnest in the cause of truth. There is both need and room for growth, and we may and ought to grow daily, surely, constantly, even though our growth be neither marked nor rapid. Natural growth is gradual, steady, sure progression to perfection of each form of life in its sphere. Each has his place, each is essential to the general economy. No one can afford to be careless concerning his own spiritual welfare; no one can be guiltless by setting an example of carelessness or indifference. It is bad enough for the world to be heedless of God. He has commanded his people to do and expects of them better things.

Bro. F. P. Scarcliff, president of the Mobile, Alabama, district, writes that he will remove from Scranton, Mississippi, his present location, to Mobile, to be in the center of his district.

"The late man" to church if not a disturber of the peace, is a detractor from the attention of the congregation. Be on time; it is as easy to be prompt as to be late. Laxity in meeting spiritual and other engagements indicates a want of character, a lack of tone and training somewhere. Spiritual-minded, devoted men and women mean business in their church work and get to services on time. They move and act from the abundance of grace as a moving force in heart and mind.

Bro. J. F. Mintun requests the attention of Sunday school workers to the school program provided for the Woodbine reunion. See it in the miscellany. He reports good attendance at tent meetings at Smithland, Iowa, August 30.

Sample copies of the HERALD, also catalogues of church publications, are forwarded free of charge, to any address, upon request. Address such requests to the business manager.

Matter intended for publication should not be addressed, "Saints' Herald," but to the editors, in all cases. Compliance with request to so address would favor us and often save us time and labor. Please remember it. Persons having business dealings with the office should address the business manager. The editorial and the business departments are separate departments.

A brother writes that he finds most of the branch officers in his district to be without the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, and is anxious to place them in their hands as soon as possible. It seems hardly necessary to state that no branch officer can successfully serve the people without a knowledge of the word given to govern the church. If the brethren have been unable to obtain the church books the fault is not theirs, though their power for good has not been developed as it ought to have been. "Knowledge" is power, and deprived of it anyone is below the required standard in effectiveness. "Let every man learn his duty," commanded in a revelation to the church, seems to be the precedent to the admonition "Let every man do his duty."

Bro. Nicholas Stamm writes from Richland Creek, Iowa, describing good work already mentioned in the letter of Bro. E. B. Morgan, last issue. Bro. Stamm has spent much time in the service, and though aged and somewhat infirm, still presses forward in active work.

The good sisters of the Lamoni Mite Society have presented the Saints' Home with a beautiful and brand new edition of the stars and stripes—Old Glory, which proudly floats high in air from the Home flagstaff. It is an inspiring sight to behold the starry banner waving high in midair and it lends enchantment to the general good looks of the Home, its occupants, and of the good sisters who gave the gift of the flag; for good looking to start with, the sisters show an added sense of attraction in the consciousness of having done a worthy deed, though many others stand to their credit. The editors would have been pleased to have made mention of the gift some time ago, had they earlier been aware that the flag was a gift to the Home.

The HERALD editorial rooms have been cleaned, painted, and newly papered of late, much to the credit of the office and the comfort of its occupants. Our enterprising business manager, aided by some of the office workers, moved by the spirit of renovation, worked with a will, and the improvements were made with little cost. Our walls and ceilings, formerly broken and somewhat dismal, are now covered with neat and attractive paper that makes the general surroundings more cheerful and comfortable. Floors have been painted, curtains and other fixtures adjusted; and, altogether, if we do not present "a handsome appearance," we feel quite respectable.

"At White Lake, New York, August 16, a man mistook his sixteen year old son for a deer, while hunting, and shot and killed him. A few years ago another son was shot and killed in mistake for a bear." It might be well to send the remainder of the family away, if any do remain, unless the father could be persuaded to sell his gun. Some folks never know when to stop, it seems. Of course innocent sports, indulged in moderation, are harmless; but it is to be hoped that this father will finally "draw the line somewhere."

Improvement of time, best use of the passing hours, presents itself as one of the admonitions of these busy, stirring times. There remains so much to be acquired and attained if we are to perform the work pertaining to our high destiny as a church that we cannot afford to ignore the admonition to "cease to be idle;" to "cast away your idle thoughts," etc., etc. The demands for service are pressing themselves upon us.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Not as I will!"—the sound grows sweet
Each time my lips the words repeat.
"Not as I will!"—the darkness feels
More safe than light when His thought steals
Like whispered voice to calm and bless
All unrest and all loneliness.
"Not as I will," because the one
Who loved us first and best has gone
Before us on the road, and still
For us must all his love fulfill—
"Not as we will."

HIS WILL.

HOW LONG the summer morning had been—how intense the heat! From a cloudless sky the sun poured down his direct rays into the bosom of the responsive earth. But while all inanimate nature sprang to his embrace, both man, beast, and fowl, as far as might be, shrank from it seeking shelter wherever to be found.

A woman, slight and delicate in appearance was busily engaged in preparations for the noonday meal, and as she moved about it was plainly to be seen that discouragement and weariness were tugging—the one at her heart strings, the other at her frail body. Neither time nor place was to be found for rest. The laborers from the field would soon be there, and so she added more fuel to the fire and hastened her steps.

"I am weary unto death," she murmured, "and if it is always to be like this I have no desire to live. I am willing to work, but this is more than either my body or spirit is equal to, and more than I believe God ever intended to lay upon anyone;" and with a swift motion she placed her hands to her head, pressing her brow as though she would still thought and relieve the pressure upon her brain.

For a few moments she stood there perfectly still, unminful of the heat—of the crowding cares and weariness; then suddenly her bowed head was lifted, and she listened intently as though some one was speaking just at her side, and in truth she heard these words:—

"Trust in the Lord and he will send Deliverance, whence you least expect.
Trust in him still and do his will,
That he may all thy ways direct."

It was not with the natural ear that the weary woman heard them, but spirit may speak unto spirit, and tears of relief, if not of gladness, coursed down her pale cheeks as she realized that she was not forsaken neither left alone.

In relating this incident afterwards to an intimate friend she said:—

"But the one thought which seemed to impress me most of all was conveyed to me in the word, "that". Sweet as was the promise of deliverance, and much needed as was the exhortation to trust in Him, there came to me as in a perfect flood of light the consciousness of God's inability to direct the way of that man or woman who was not doing his will. Overrule he might, but direct he could not. I can never convey in words the impression this thought brought with it, but its solemnity lingers with me like a strain of music on the chords of memory, and I pray God it may never be effaced."

Is there a Christian father who does not desire to see his child walking in paths of uprightness and integrity. O how his heart longs for this, but how often has he not felt his utter powerlessness so long as with it, his wishes were rejected that his child might follow his own will.

THE ISOLATED ONES.

Day follows day to make the week,
And weeks pass by;
No saint a cheering word to speak,
Not one is nigh.

Blessed art thou if clean and bright
Thy faith shines out;
Then Satan cannot thee affright,
Him thou canst rout.

God's spirit be to thee so near,
And fill thy cup;
Yea, come thy lonely life to cheer,
And with thee sup.

Yet when ye meet and clasp the hand
Of those whom ties
Of gospel truth hath made a band,
Tears fill thy eyes.

Those tears of joy! they truly show
A pleasure deep,
The isolated saint doth know,
And mem'ry keep.

When we, bound by these bands of clay,
Rejoice to meet,
Think of the joy on that sweet day,
When we shall greet.

No more the lonely hours, no more
The parting hand.

Then ye shall "count your suff'rings o'er,"
A happy band.

ELLA J. GREEN.

May 19, 1898.

"CULTURED and refined" is a term often used, but perhaps quite as often misapplied, for in its broadest sense it will be found to apply to but few.

Matthew Arnold says: "The meaning of 'culture' is to know the best that has been thought and said in the world. It is the criticism of literature upon life."

If this definition be a correct one (and we believe it is), then that person who by close study and diligent application of the word of God to his or her life, has made himself acquainted with its sublime truths, may justly be esteemed a cultured man or woman, for the best which has been said or thought is contained therein. Hence it is that the man or woman conversant with the Bible, if we judge merely from a literary standpoint, will always possess advantages over one who is not familiar therewith, even though the latter may have had many more literary advantages than the former. A close communion always has a tendency to make us like those with whom we commune, even as the face of Moses reflected the glory of God when he descended from the mount.

Letter Department.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 26.

Editors Herald:—I have been in this city for nearly three months, associated with Bro. Bishop in the work, and believe at least some good has been done. The first Sunday night here, a Rev. Dr. Bird essayed to enlighten the public mind on the subject of Mormonism; Bro. Bishop attending the lecture while I filled our appointment. His lecture consisted largely of a rehash of the oft-exploded stories of "the Smith family," and trying hard to make them responsible for all the evils committed by the Brighamites, and then roundly roasting the Mormons in general. Some things we thought needed puncturing a little, and therefore succeeded in getting two letters in the Tribune, in which we invited Dr. Bird to publicly discuss the issues between us; but since then have heard nothing of him.

We have held meetings here twice every Sunday, besides having a good Sunday school, and also doing work by way of preaching, and otherwise offering words of encouragement as best we could during the week in Taylor, Hyde Park, Providence, and Dunmore.

The Utah people have been trying to do a work in this city, but to what extent they have succeeded we are not informed. We have stood both on the defensive and aggressive sides here, challenging the Utah Mormon elders to publicly investigate their and our claims, but alas! the predominating power of the church in Utah has gagged the mouths of their elders, and, I presume the latter are glad of it; to debate with a Josephite would doubtless cost them their license, hence they have seemingly preferred to puddle along in their deceptive philosophy as best they can. Alas, how has the gold become dim! What a change a few years have wrought! The elders of the early church which these men claim to represent, were ever willing, both in public and in private, to investigate their respective claims for the church; but now, with these Utah propagandists, debate is non-productive of good. I presume the statement is true if applying it to the Brighamite institution, and they know it, especially if debating with one of the Reorganization.

I have had six long articles published in the Scrantonian, a Sunday paper, which we think have helped the people here, or many at least, to see the distinctive lines between us and the Utah people; and the Utah elders have graced the columns of the Scrantonian but once with their inspired scroll in reply, though the editor told them they should not be ruled out but have equal privileges with others. Perhaps the "hot shot" we fired at Elder Wallace frightened him away, but we didn't mean to do so, and are sorry he ran. The editor of the Scrantonian has treated us with every courtesy, for which we feel very grateful indeed, as it is not often we meet with editors who so candidly stem the tide of popular prejudice as to give our side of the question prominence before their patrons.

Of saints in Scranton, I have but words of praise and commendation, for many of them, especially for the young people, who have stood by the work here, and so nobly and grandly rallied round our genial Bro. Bishop and "ye missionary" in their efforts to get the gospel before the people. Their untiring energy and zeal have been manifested not only by contributions of means, but on every Sunday, also in all the week-day meetings, they were always there to help by virtue of their presence. With them largely lays the element of success of the work in Scranton, as some of the older ones have grown very careless and indifferent in the great latter-day work, and seem to exult in faultfinding and otherwise trying to cripple the work. Growling with them seems to have become chronic; and from the building of the Independence church, the Gospel Boat, and Grace-land College down to the sending of "ye missionary" to the city of Scranton, all is wrong. No one right but their own dear selves; and, doubtless, they would be very highly offended if one should try to make it appear that the combined wisdom of the church is equal to at least about half as much as they know, and that they don't know more than about twice as much as the whole church combined. And does it not seem strange to hear one say, "I love this great latter-day work," and yet notwithstanding service is being held in close proximity to them every Sunday for months and months, yet they are always conspicuous by their absence, never once showing their faces in the place where the saints assemble for divine service? And besides this, from apostles down to local talent all is wrong, and a continuous growling and faultfinding kept up with regard to their work. "By their fruits ye shall know them," were words uttered by the great Teacher; and Oh! how distressing to the missionary in his work and labor for Christ, while seeking for the fruits of righteousness among saints, to sometimes realize indeed that it has been like one seeking to "gather grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles." I am of the opinion, in fact I am fully convinced, that if the chronic growlers and wicked, drunken, professed saints in Scranton were dealt with, and severed from the church, as they should be, that those who have been trying for the last year to redeem the work here would be enabled to accomplish the end sought and make a grand success. Bro. Bishop and his splendid family are deserving of much credit for the success attained in the work during the last year in this city; and the undaunted courage and indomitable persistency of the brethren and sisters who have been pulling with him is worthy of great praise; and we hope they may continue in every way possible, as they have in the past, to rally around the right and support the work. Bro. Bishop has given fully half of his time to active service in the work since I have been here, and I have found him to be a splendid man to labor with. Genial and happy as the sun in its course, and withal, well posted, and an able defender of the faith. It is indeed pleasant to labor with such men; and we hope in the near future that financial affairs may shape themselves in such a way as to release him entirely for constant labor in the missionary field.

The young people's meeting, which is held during the week, has in it the elements of success; and will, if not hindered in its object and design, become a strong leverage in the near future in getting the gospel before the people. There are some excellent young saints here, who if continuing to exercise their talents in the right direction and faithfully discharging their duties, are destined to make their mark in the world, and to be felt as a power for good in the work of God. Brn. Tallie Jones and William Hawkins as also Sr. Bessie Bishop are worthy of special mention in this regard.

We also made a short visit to Plymouth, where we were royally entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaacs, and Grandma Jones; the latter two belonging to the church, and hopes entertained of the former complying with the sweet angel's message further on. Grandma Jones is about eighty-two years of age, and has belonged to the church for a great number of years; and while we listened to her testimony of experience in the great latter-day work, in the manifestation of her faith and confidence in this the sunset of her life, we felt indeed that "It is good to be a saint in latter days."

I also had the privilege of spending two weeks in Palermo, New York, where some excellent people have embraced the faith, and where a splendid work may be effected if the proper amount of time and labor can be expended there. Different places are open for the ministration of the word in that part of the field, and proper assistance—financial and otherwise—upon the part of the Palermo saints, would be tendered to the missionary prosecuting the work there. This was demonstrated by a generous giving of means to help the writer during his short stay among them.

In conclusion permit me to say I have been properly and royally cared for since leaving my home for this field of labor, the saints here anticipating my needs and amply providing for the same. Brn. Isaac and Tallie Jones, two splendid young men, thinking we needed additional wearing apparel, put their hands down into their pockets and finding the necessary wherewith there, they purchased the "preacher" a nice suit of clothes, besides otherwise contributing in a financial way. May their shadows never grow less.

We thus feel encouraged with the noble effort being put forth by the good saints in Scranton; and how glad would we be if all the saints in the Wyoming Valley would only arise and supplement the work of the elders in their efforts to get the gospel of peace before the honest-hearted ones by living lives which would commend the gospel plan to the honest seekers after truth. But while people belonging to the church are careless and indifferent regarding the means or work of grace, absenting themselves from the meetings and actually bringing disgrace upon the cause by virtue of a total disregard of the counsel of proper authorities representing the church, thereby becoming a law unto themselves, and are constantly finding fault with all that is done, neither doing right themselves, but hindering those who would do right, to my mind it can hardly be expected that great good may be accomplished. The only way that I can see to remedy such an evil is to take down "the big knife" and prune the tree, that those who would do right be not hindered. Better are half-a-dozen saints trying honestly before God to live their religion than five hundred of the dog-in-the-manger kind; and while our mission is to strive to seek and save the lost, to the wayward, careless, and indifferent ones in Scranton, as elsewhere, we entreat, beseech, and implore you to arise from the dusty maze of sensual gratification, self-righteousness, and disregard of duty, to a full and free determination to henceforth "base all your integrity of character upon the principles of right, and in doing this, never reckon the cost."

That God may richly bestow the benedictions of his grace upon his true, loving, trusting children, here as elsewhere throughout the world, is my honest, earnest, humble prayer. Very truly and sincerely,

WILLARD J. SMITH.

LEHI, Utah, Aug. 25.

Editors Herald:—Three months ago yesterday Bro. D. W. Wight and the writer arrived in these valleys. We are glad to report that our experience thus far has not been of a character to discourage, but has been more interesting than we had anticipated.

We have tried to utilize our time to the best advantage, and although we have been stormed out several times, and made several forty-mile moves in wagons, we have averaged one sermon a day since we have been in the State.

Our first point was Provo, where we found some forty-five members. We held forth there about a month, with very fair interest, and upon an urgent request by some of the Nephi saints went to that place, forty miles south from Provo. There are about twenty members at Nephi, but they have no officers, hence no preaching only when the missionaries happen around; they have their prayer meeting and Sunday school each week, and most of them seem to be doing the best they can under their unfavorable circumstances. We preached there twenty-one times and gave out a good many tracts on "Polygamy," "The necessity of a reorganization," etc.; held one sacrament meeting and baptized one little girl. Some of the folks seemed to be quite stirred up over the meetings, and some quite interested.

Our next point was Springville. Here we found five members. Only one attended our meetings very regularly however. This was Sr. Humphrey, at whose comfortable home the missionaries found a very pleasant shelter and a cordial invitation to come back any time, from herself, also from her husband and son, who do not belong to the church. We preached eighteen times, and while our meetings were not largely attended, those that did come seemed to be quite interested. One lady heard us preach on "succession" and when we got through, came up, shook hands, and said: "That is the first sermon I ever heard preached by the Josephite people, and it is what I have been wanting for years." She attended all services held after that, and we visited her several times. She had been a member of the Utah Church for twenty-six years, but the last few years had been studying the books, and had reached the conclusion that something was wrong; and after a thorough investigation was baptized last Monday, and I feel sure she will make a good faithful saint.

While in Springville we visited the Brighamite church, or tabernacle as they call it, and one of the speakers said: "I understand the Josephite outfit is here; I don't consider it worth while to go to hear them, for they have nothing to give us." He talked quite a bit about the Josephites, and as they announced the closing hymn I arose and asked permission to ask a question, but the pious Bishop said: "Not in the house." I said, it is just a simple question, but again the gentle voice was heard, "Not in the house." I suppose he wanted me to go out of doors to ask my question. All the time we had been holding meetings in the tent we gave them the privilege of asking questions, and offered to let them use the tent part of the time to present their side and show where we were wrong. If they had given me the privilege to ask a question, I was going to call their attention to the fact that about three years ago some of their missionaries visited the Josephite church at Independence, Missouri, and heard something they took exception to, and requested the use of the church to present their side; their request was granted, and the people turned out en masse to hear what they had to say. Now would they be as liberal as we and let us use their tabernacle and come and hear our side of the question. I did not much expect to get the building, but thought we would be allowed to ask for it anyway.

From there to Spanish Fork, a town of some four thousand, but one Josephite living in town, and one about four miles west. We preached seven evenings on the differences between the churches and had a very good crowd, from fifty to one hundred, the seventh night one of the Utah elders named T. D. Evans, said to be a lawyer, came to the front at the close of the service, and began to urge objections against our claims, and we told him he might use the tent the next night and present his objections so every one could hear them. He accepted the offer, and we announced him for the next evening; that brought out the crowd; I suppose there were four or five hundred in and around the tent to hear him defeat our claims. When he got through we announced a reply the following evening. So the following evening, the writer, accompanied by the good Spirit of the Master, spoke for an hour and a half, in reply to the objections urged against the Reorganization, to an audience estimated at from six to eight hundred. Mr. Evans was on the stand with us taking notes, and when we got through we presented five propositions and asked if he or any of their elders would take up these questions in proper shape and debate them? We presented the propositions to Mr. Evans, but he left them on the seat and took his hat and books and never said good-bye, but got out of the back of the tent, and we have not seen or heard from him since. The independent element congratulated us and said there was but one side to this question and we had that side. Bro. Wight continued the reply the following evening to a large crowd, but not near as many as the night before, as a storm came up just about meeting time. The whole town seemed to be worked up over the meetings; they were debating on nearly every corner. Some are satisfied we have the truth, but want a little time to study; some of the young folks said they were going to read the book for themselves; that it looked like there was something wrong that their elders would not meet us young men on those fair propositions.

Bro. J. W. Wight came and gave them one of his forcible sermons, and gave opportunity for questions, and they kept him there till about eleven o'clock. I did not have the pleasure of hearing Bro. J. W., as I had to go to Pleasant Grove to fill his appointment. I am quite sure good will result from these meetings if the people are not neglected too long at that place. We closed there Sunday night with an audience of two or three hundred people and best of attention, having preached sixteen times.

Tent work is a success out here; don't see how we could reach the people in any other way.

We started here last night, had about a hundred present I think. We expect Bro. J. W. to speak to-night, and have announced him, and I look for a large crowd. The Utah Church people have been very good to us in letting us have the use of their land to put our tent upon, and let us have lumber to make seats of free of charge.

We are both well and feel encouraged in the work, but sometimes we have that peculiar feeling they call "homesick," which is enjoyed (?) I presume by all the missionaries that have to be gone from home for so long a time.

I don't like to talk about my neighbors, but in my short experience in life, I never saw a more irreligious class of people, who made any profession at all. I was talking with one of their elders last Sunday. He said: "The people out here were not half as good as they were thirty years ago." He said the only test of membership now was your tithing receipts, and you could cheat your brother, lie, steal, or get drunk; nothing was said about it. Of course I cannot vouch for the statement, but can give the man's name and address, and he is an elder in the Utah Church.

I heard different ones say, before I came out here, that they would send missionaries out as a kind of penalty for their conduct, but I did not believe it, but since coming here I find this is true and attested by those of the church as well as those outside; that when a young man is in the habit of getting drunk, and a little unmanageable, they send him on a mission for two or three years to reform him, and some of them come back when their time is up, and go to drinking again. Of course I don't mean to say that all the men they send out are of that character, but some of them are.

Very few of the young have any interest in church affairs; all they care about is dancing and shows of various kinds; seem to know but very little about the church books, and care less; a great many of the older ones seem to care but very little about the church. I have asked quite a number if they belong to the Brighamite Church, and they would say, "Well, I suppose so; I was baptized when eight years old, and have never been cut off that I know of." I think if all the careless ones were taken out their numbers would be reduced materially.

Yours for the triumph of truth,
R. J. PARKER.

MONTROSE, Iowa, Aug. 30.

Editors Herald:—On July 16 I left home for the purpose of visiting relatives and friends for a few weeks about the old home in Western Iowa; reminded that one should not become so cosmopolitan as to forget that he owes something to relatives and early associates. I learned that an old uncle whom I had not seen for forty years had been borne to his grave. For near a score of years I have sought a convenient time and opportunity when I might visit him, but postponed. Now that he has gone to rest, I have some compunctions that he was not treated just right. There is something in the ties of consanguinity, and it is proper to be concerned in behalf of one's own, even if there are urgent duties lying in other directions.

Out at the old homestead, an older brother lay sick, just recovering from a close call. A strong frame now subdued and reduced to feebleness, reviving in the mind afresh the decrees of fate, that sooner or later the most robust must succumb to their call. Suggestion of "What is man?" What will it profit if he gain the whole world? Lessons by the way.

What a rich and beautiful country this western world is! Enormous crops are growing, corn, wheat, oats, etc., and fat cattle, and the "pig." Many changes have occurred in late years. Some rich have grown richer, some poor, poorer. The grasp for greed is prevalent, seemingly without a thought as to whether the hoardings shall be left to a "wise man or a fool." Some have fought hard to win financial success and failed, and now stand demurely looking on, scorning fate. These lessons impress one, that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of that which he possesseth." After viewing the field over, I have no regrets that I made the choice to try to put treasure where "thieves do not break through and steal," rather than enter the conflict and grab for worldly holdings that last but for a day, and may leave the possessor poor indeed—"in need of everything." Time enables us to weigh and measure, and become confirmed in the feeling that the "pearl of great price" is worth all else.

At Glenwood, where I attended school while in the teens, some remain who knew me then. The papers gave a very flattering notice of my visit. Many have watched the career of the boy that chose a strange faith to them, as to what would be the outcome. Some are more than suspicious that he may have made a wise choice after all. The cultivation of the graces and the restraint of appetite and passions leave their impress, as against the opposite course. Men of experience are not blind, and cannot help admire that which turns out the best. Gospel impress leaves its image to be scorned by none.

Attracted to the little band of saints in Glenwood, I preached for them once with pleasure and seeming satisfaction to them. Met here also Bro. I. M. Smith, who was rushing the tent work. Just got started in that place, with indications of success. This is the home and business place of Bro. P. P. Kelley, an all-round man, and though not a member, keeps a keen eye on what is going on in the church, and is not disinterested. While out at Bro. James M. Kelley's in Macedonia, self and family spent a day and night at Carson with my old-time associate and fellow yokesman, Bro. R. W. Briggs, and his reputed better half. For many years Bro. Briggs and I were laborers together, but there came a time when we entered diverging roads; he went into the law business and politics, rose to distinction, was elected to the legislature, became Speaker of the House, etc., enough of glory for any one poor mortal to grapple with, who started out in the humble calling of a gospel minister. I traveled on in an even-tenor kind of way, satisfied that I was connected with the best thing there is, even if there was not worldly honor and emolument to be achieved by it. We had a pleasant visit and there are more surprising things occurring almost daily than to see Bro. Briggs to the forefront wielding the "sword of the Spirit" as of yore, in defense of the truth. Later on, I preached, morning and evening, in the saints' cozy little church at Carson, to a small audience, but considering that there was present a professor, attorney-at-law, an ex-Speaker of the House, banker, etc., not to mention the good saints present, concluded that the meetings in point of audience were a big success. Weather was hot. Morning service went well; at evening dragged, but the speaker sweat it through. We had time to visit at the home of Bro. Amazon Badham's while in the neighborhood, where we spent the day pleasantly. Here we met with Bro. Carlson, active in the ministerial field. For lack of time others were passed by whom it would have been a pleasure to have met.

An understanding having been reached with the First Presidency that I was to prolong my stay in the West and attend the Bluff Park, Maysville, and Woodbine reunions, I adjusted myself accordingly, and accompanying my family to Lamoni, where they are to tarry for the present. Sunday morning, the 20th, found me at the Bluff Park reunion. The grounds are beautiful, difficult to excel; not a large number present, but all seemingly happy and wearing pleasant faces. Of the ministry in sight, were President Joseph Smith, James McKiernan, J. S. Snively, I. M. Smith, F. M. Weld, J. C. Crabb, Eli Stedman, and others. Yesterday in company with President Smith, Bro. H. Dillon, and wife, with about forty others, I visited the historic city of Nauvoo for the first time. President Smith pointed out the chief places of interest. It is a beautiful place for a city, but desolate. One is almost made to think of the owl and the bat. A weird loneliness broods over it. Rich, but under present surroundings, not desirable. At evening we returned to camp with our mind crowded with thoughts about the past, the present, and the future.

Brn. A. H. Smith, Joseph Luff, and E. L. Kelley are laboring in the extreme east of the Eastern mission, and Bro. G. T. Griffiths is in the western part with excellent associates. With these aids the work will be cared for. The writer hopes to reach that field again in October. For the present direct to Lamoni, Iowa, or Temple, Ohio.

Things are going well at the reunion. President Smith is in an unusual happy mood. Brn. Roth, J. R. and Daniel Lambert, and G. H. Hilliard have arrived upon the grounds also. Interest improves.

In the faith,

WM. H. KELLEY.

ARGENTINE, Kan., Aug. 26.

Editors Herald:—Since last writing I have had quite a number of pleasant and refreshing showers from the presence of the Lord in my ministerial labors, to encourage me. God in his own way has opened doors for me at Turner, where I have been preaching every Sunday evening for several months in the Baptist church. While I see no visible results of my labors in the way of baptisms, I have accomplished two things; first, the entire community has learned what the doctrine of the Latter Day Saints is; secondly, they are not only my personal friends, but have become friends of the church.

Brethren, it is profitable to obey the instruction of the Lord, when he says in substance, to preach the gospel and let other churches with their beliefs alone. I was glad to read in the HERALD what Bro. J. W. Wight said, that first principles and kindness are the antidotes necessary for Utah's theological diseases. I have long known that that is the Lord's medicine given into our hands to administer to the people everywhere. We can never accomplish good by abusing people and insulting them in regard to their doctrine. An old deacon once remarked to a young minister, "If you go out and tear people's houses down, they will fight you; but if we build them a better house and invite them to come in and occupy, they will love you and you will be true friends." Just so with the gospel; when we tear a man's faith down he is offended and we lose our influence and fail to accomplish good; but when we preach the gospel in its fullness, we accomplish good, and gather in the pure in heart, and build up the kingdom of God, and lay up reward for ourselves.

Bro. A. Haws has run the district tent in the two Kansas Cities, in which I have assisted him, and feel that good was accomplished, though we are not gathering the hundreds or scores, but the ones and twos, and are glad to know that we are making progress.

Yours in bonds,

F. C. WARNKY.

MONROE CITY, Mo., Aug. 23.

Editors Herald:—You will be glad to hear that the gospel is being proclaimed in this part of the land. I have been holding meeting here about eight months nearly every Sunday, doing my best to open the eyes of the blind to their eternal welfare. We hold our services at the house of Bro. Hollidough. Bro. Frank was baptized by the writer. Sr. Mary and Brn. Bent and Anthen were baptized in Nebraska, and Sr. Susan was also baptized by the writer; all noble, God-loving saints, always ready to do all they can for the advancement of the cause of truth and for the good of mankind. May God ever bless them.

We now number seven saints here. We hope to be worthy. We have a good deal of the world to contend with, but by being prayerful and good-natured we can begin to see that truth will prevail. We hope so.

We would like to have an elder call on and assist us here, for we are weak and desirous of doing some good. We are located about thirty miles west of Hannibal. Brethren, remember me in your prayers; the cause is true. May God bless you all.

Your brother in the gospel,

JAMES FOXALL.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 27.

Editors Herald:—I wrote you from South Yarmouth in July, where Bro. Bullard and the writer were holding tent services. Bro. Bullard was called away to preach a funeral sermon, intending to return soon, so the writer was left alone. I tried to run the tent alone for a week, but found it to be a dismal failure. On the 24th I preached by invitation in the Methodist church in South Harwich, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Smith, doing all he could to make things agreeable.

On Sunday evening, not hearing anything from Bro. Bullard, I closed services, and on Monday took down the tent and moved it to Dennisport, where the reunion was to be held in a week or two. I started on my friend, the "wheel" (in this case a friend in need), at three p. m. for Wareham, arriving at Sr. Bessie Sears'—well, in time for supper. I was made welcome and comfortable for the night and started next morning for the city of God's Providence. Arrived at home safe, after a hard ride. Sunday I preached at Fiskville. August 5, with family large and small, in a rainstorm we started for the reunion. The rain ceased, the clouds went away, the sun shone—all was bright. Of the reunion we have already written. August 21, preached at Fiskville, afternoon and evening, to good audiences.

The 23d found me at Attleboro, where I met Bro. Bullard, who had already been hard at work putting up the tent. Rain prevented us from holding service that night, but next night we began, and the writer talked to a few. The audiences have been increasing, and last night the tent was packed. The saints from Plainville and Attleboro are assisting all they can, and doing it cheerfully. "The Lord loveth the cheerful giver," whether it consists in money, attendance, musical ability, prayer for success, or anything else.

We were glad the second meeting we held by the presence of three members of the male quartet from the Providence branch—Brethren Pierce, Johnston, and Smith—who dispensed to the audience sweet strains on the oldest and by far the best musical instrument ever invented—the human voice. These brethren deserve praise for their energy and their manifest desire to do good with the talents God has blessed them with. Come often, brethren. Bro. Bond brightened the doorway of our tent on Friday night, and gave us "meat in due season," and again on Sunday afternoon he was the speaker, but left for Providence after service. Bro. Orrin Coombs assists with his cornet in the services and makes the musical part of the meetings interesting. We trust some may obey. Hopefully,

GEO. W. ROBLEY.

TULLAHOMA, Tenn., Aug. 26.

Editors Herald:—I am on my way to Tracy City. I have had splendid turnouts in Warren County, as a rule; people are very much interested in the true gospel. Prospects good so far. Hope for good results.

Wife and I are as well as common.

Yours in bonds.

E. W. NUNLEY.

POLLOCK, Mo., Aug. 29.

Editors Herald:—The debate between Elder R. M. Elvin and Elder Padget is progressing nicely. The first proposition closed Saturday afternoon. It commenced on Tuesday night, the 23rd; after that we had two sessions a day, making nine on first proposition.

Elder Padget in denying used a great deal of slang. His main weapons were J. D. Lee and David Whitmer's Address and a few selections from the Book of Covenants. A number of the people were disgusted with his slang and threats of what he was going to do with Bro. Elvin, and went away in disgust.

Bro. Elvin is holding his own, proving his proposition by the word of God, and has not got scared once.

They commenced on the second proposition this morning, and Elder Padget is in the lead in this proposition. Bro. Elvin is in the lead with the argument and in points of scripture. The saints are hopeful and feel satisfied of the outcome. More anon.

Yours for truth,

W. E. SUMMERFIELD.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Aug. 29.

Editors Herald:—It was with great pleasure and much profit that we read the articles by Elder Cocks on "Latter Day Events," published in the last two issues of the Herald: and we would like very much to see the same published in pamphlet form, as it would be so much handier to use, and would be a great help to the saints.

Yours respectfully,
CHAS. H. FISH.

ELKPORT, Iowa, Sept. 2.

Editors Herald:—Bro. J. R. Sutton and I held meetings at Nashville and Massillon last month with fair success; stirred up quite an opposition among the M. E's. at the latter place. Several were left believing, but popularity held them back. I like popularity myself, but I desire it hereafter. I want to be popular in heaven, and I am willing to labor for it here. I would rather be popular in heaven than popular here.

Was home a couple of days this week, but could not bear to see these lovely evenings go by unoccupied. Commenced near here last night and expect to continue till about the 17th, if the interest will permit.

Several of the saints propose to have an outing at Guttenburg, on the Mississippi River, from September 17 to about the 22d, and I expect to do some preaching there in the evening, either in the hall or in the park. We extend an invitation to the saints and friends of Wisconsin to enjoy a profitable time with us. Bro. Burr, please take notice and lend a helping hand.

J. W. PETERSON.

HOPEVILLE, Ont., Aug 31.

Editors Herald:—In consequence of severe pains in my head I have been compelled to come home and rest, leaving a splendid interest in Sauble Falls, as heretofore stated. Many new interesting items connected with the progress of work in that region I could write, but for fear of intruding too often, forbear. Turning out from one place to another seems to be the order of the day; we were first turned out of school, then out of Lowry's grove to be followed by an expulsion from the Jackson grove, and lastly Dr. Lowry, who practically owns Sauble Falls, gave orders to all tenants that none of the houses should be given me for preaching.

Several determined to pay no heed to such an order, but seeing we could gain a point with the honest in heart, we quietly retired to a private house outside the corporation, where the crowds followed for the truth. Mr. William Gerrie, foreman of the large mill, was somewhat annoyed and worried over the receipt of such an order of expulsion, and retiring to the back part of the mill yard one afternoon at three p. m. he was there enlightened, cheered, and confirmed by the presentation of a glorious vision of no uncertain character. While reclining, anxiously thinking over the busy, stirring, persecuting scenes peculiar to the introduction of this gospel, he was startled by the appearance of a heavenly light, accompanied with such a peculiar power, the which, says Bro.

Gerrie, "I never before felt." While gazing upon it he heard a voice speak out in audible tones, "What is the matter?" At this he looked in the direction of the coming of the sound, thinking some of the workmen was speaking; but seeing no man he continued his now pleasant meditation, while the celestial light continued its penetrating purifying rays. While thus wrapt up in heavenly entrancement the stillness was again broken by that strange voice, this time with testimony that devils dare not deny. Hear what it said! "The Latter Day Saints are right!"

Oh what feelings of eternal assurance must have filled the mind of our brother, who had just obeyed the gospel two days previous. And not only does this tend to banish doubt from the minds of many newborn saints but those partly believing in the work are confirmed in that belief of this the "marvelous work and a wonder."

Brethren of the ministry, cannot we as well as those of olden times declare with solemn truthful affirmation, "The Lord works with us, confirming the word with signs following"? Newspapers far and near are slandering us bitterly; some avow the intention of sending for a big gun in Dakota to meet the issue in debate, saying that it will require a man who can talk two hundred words a minute. I hope R. C. won't get scared when reading of this.

Eight more have been baptized since our last—twenty-eight all told. Remember the writer in prayer that I may speedily return to my field. I close by giving a quotation from the Port Elgin Times: "The ball rolls merrily along and people that have never went to church before are dead struck on the Saints." Yours in the faith,

DANIEL MACGREGOR.

TULARE, Cal., Aug. 12.

Editors Herald:—We are pleased with the missionaries sent to this State, and especially the one returned to this district—Thomas Daley. Bro. and Sr. Daley departed June 7 for San Jose. May his labors be as effectual elsewhere as they have been here; twenty were baptized and some new places opened.

At present we have sixty-six members scattered over four counties; Fresno, Kings, Kern, and Tulare; most of them active in the work. Our branch officers are deserving a great deal of credit for the activity and zeal they manifest. Heat, cold, nor distance prevents them from being at the post of duty, traveling by team each Sunday twenty and thirty miles after working hard all week. The weather is very hot, 98° to 112° in the shade, a dry year, light crops, and but little fruit.

An elder living here for some time and preaching in this vicinity, who was associated with a former missionary here, has lately united with the Christian Church, the Christian minister giving him a letter of recommendation to preach in any Christian church as long as he used the Bible for his guide. The last sermon he preached to the saints was warning them to be faithful, that trials awaited them they knew not of. It is a mystery that one can depart from the faith and preach another faith, so soon after receiving the miraculous manifestation that I know he has received. But I suppose it is an easier way to make a living.

Bro. Daley held a debate with J. B. Crooks, an ex-lawyer and minister of the United Brethren Church, at Pixley. The discussion was to last twenty-eight nights, two hours each, half-hour speeches. Four propositions were agreed upon: first, the Reorganized Church identical in faith, doctrine, and organization as the one established by Christ; Daley to affirm, Crooks to deny. Daley made the opening speech, Crooks attacking the Doctrine and Covenants in his first speech, and slandering Joseph Smith's character, stating that he would bring living witnesses on the stand to prove that he was a polygamist. The witnesses on finding they would be sworn, failed to make their appearance. He made the statement that the Book of Mormon was copied from Solomon Spalding's romance. Elder E. S. Burton, one of the moderators, read the affidavits and letters also the second chapter of the book, [Spalding's Romance?] and asked if he should read more. Judging from his looks it was more than he wanted to hear. After seven nights, using all the trickery a lawyer with the aid of His Satanic Majesty was capable of, backed out and would have nothing more to say, having mixed all the propositions together.

Daley did well. The attendance was large, removing prejudice and causing some to investigate. Since then two Utah elders came visiting from house to house, distributing tracts, claiming the only difference between the two churches was that of authority.

In striving to be good, let us not only be good, but be good for something. May the interest I have in this work never grow less,

MARY A. TWADDLE.

Original Articles.

OLD GLORY AT GENERAL CONFERENCE.

IN the May 11 number of Herald, page 301, is an article from the pen of Bro. Holmes J. Davison, of Nova Scotia, written in criticism and protest against the action of the saints at the late General Conference in giving prominence in the conference hall to the American flag—"Old Glory"—and greeting it with such enthusiastic applause; which, on account of the excellent character and evident good intention of the writer, together with the kind of influence the article may have upon some minds, deserves notice.

Surprising as it is that one of Bro. Davison's acumen and knowledge of the potential forces that enter into, effect, and shape latter-day events, should drift out in such a line of thought, may only be another evidence that even yet "There are stranger things than fiction." It would be ungenerous to even surmise that Bro. Davison was envious, hence his article simply discloses settled convictions, the free expression of which the American flag stands as the greatest guarantee.

The "stars and stripes" that adorned the conference hall, and was so heartily applauded on the occasion referred to, is the people's flag of this great commonwealth, treasured and loved by every American heart as the ægis that protects their liberties, firesides, their entire religious and social compact. It was not forced upon them by blind ambition and the hand of tyrants, but the people of the United States set it up of their own accord, as the emblem representing their rights and national virtues; the palladium of their country. Why then should it not be unfurled and placed in conspicuous places and greeted with acclamation in the sacred places of their conclaves? Do thyself no harm, Bro. Davison, this flag is an existing protest against the feared uniting of church and state. It was this government that divorced them, so there is no imminent danger of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, or any other church becoming a state church so long as the people retain their senses, and what that flag represents is cherished by them. Neither is there danger of "trammeling influences" of any and all governments along these lines, for the whole spirit and genius of American institutions is opposed to a union of church and state. The torch of "Liberty enlightening the world" stands at the haven of the sea and fairly represents the trend of the inspiration of the chief government on Joseph's choice land.

Sympathy is extended over the pressure of feeling and chagrin experienced which led to the "hiding" of the "Daily Ensign" in order that "Adventists might not laugh," inexplicable though it is, since it is so well known to the experienced, that they are so prone to laugh from the wrong corner of the mouth. We fail to see the laughing point, however, for to the initiated, to see an Adventists laugh in derision is nearly prima facie evidence that the truth is on the other side of the question. However, all men have their trials!

There was no call for the Canadian flag to occupy in the conference hall, except it might have been as an ornament; for the Canadians living in the United States are largely citizens, and revere the stars and stripes, and those who were not citizens were entirely secure under the protecting folds of the flag and there was not the least danger of a "mine" exploding under the "Maine." Neither was there a call for a "Chinese," "Spanish," nor any other flag to aid in expressing sentiment, or protect, on that occasion, for all of merit found in other governments was largely, if not altogether, represented in the stars and stripes, as well as the guarantee of protection. What else could be asked?

True, the "United States government" may not "protect the church" in America any better or more heartily than the "Canadian government" will "protect the branches" in that land, which if true we are heartily glad. In that case we see no reason why the "Canadian flag" should not be unfurled from every high tower, church steeple, tent pole, or where else, where the gospel is being preached on Canadian soil, if it does protect, even if the Queen's picture is emblazoned upon it, and thus give honor to that to which honor is due, and that must be a very ungrateful Canadian subject who would not feel it in his heart to place it there. It is the flag of his country and no mean country at that. Were the writer preaching anywhere on Canadian domain, in hall, or tent, or church, and the government extended its protection, he would just be delighted to see the proud banner waving over him in testimony that the good intention would be carried out.

No, of course, "Christ" owes nothing to the "nations;" but they owe much to him, especially the United States, as we shall see.

But, it is asked, "Was it not the government that permitted the mob to slaughter the prophet?" No; it was the State of Illinois that was directly committed in that transaction; and the soldiers employed were of the State militia. Then the soldiers were not in sufficient number to have protected at the time of the tragedy, had they been so minded. The strength of the mob was too great for them to have overcome it.

Again, "Did the government redress that crime?" No; but there is something of a palliation in the fact that the "crime" was of that class that renders it difficult, if not impossible, for the executors of the law to reach it, even if so inclined. Then the doctrine of State's rights was in vogue. The facts are, the excited and vindictive people were into it, in defiance of law, as may be seen in transactions of the present, seen in the work of "moonshiners," "whitecaps," burning of colored men at the stake, taking prisoners from the jails and to death, etc.

Lamentable as that circumstance is to all right-thinking men, we have never been able to see that the general government was directly committed to it. The State government of Illinois, with its governor, was committed. But whether they plotted with the enemy or were over-confident and believed the men safe, is a question not of easy settlement to this day. It was mob violence that did the work, and the laws of the country were disregarded and outraged.

But, "Was it not a United States President that said, Your cause is just, but we can do nothing for you?" Yes; but the President was blinded by John C. Calhoun's State's rights vagaries which prevailed over masses of men at the time, and those views were never really settled until they were fought out in the late Civil War between the North and the South, and the fourteenth amendment was written in the Constitution of the United States. Enough of perfidy and unholy work was indulged in, however, by guilty parties, whose name may have been "legion," yet difficult to locate. That the government did not act in that matter according as men view the government's rights and duty to-day, is clear; but that it did not act as people saw things then may be putting it too strong. The doctrine of State's rights as then interpreted was mischievous and ruinous.

Whoever it was that objected to the Queen's picture occupying conspicuous places in the Dominion of Canada must have been extremely captious, "straining at a gnat;" they may have been in mere jest, however, for all Americans revere the amiable Queen Victoria of the Britons for her own sake, to say nothing of her country. The writer would just be delighted to have a picture of the famed Queen grace the walls of his home. But eloquently it is asked, "What does the church offer to the government? Simply nothing; nothing." What! nothing!! Are you sure?

"O, sympathy, some may reply!" Is sympathy nothing? Has not the "government of the people, by the people, and for the people," a right to know what the people think of its movements? "Sympathy" is a powerful factor, and often means much. Ask your wife if "sympathy means nothing." Had the conference telegraphed to the President that the war with Spain was pusillanimous, and that it would not support the government in such barbarous work, it would soon have found out that the want of "sympathy" meant something. But why the conference express itself at all? For the good reason that the government of the United States belongs to the Latter Day Saints as well as other people. It is owned by no political party or sect. Latter Day Saints should not be unconcerned and dumb constituents, but active supporters; so should express themselves.

Sympathy and friendship may become powerful factors. Just now the sympathy of Britain for the United States has something to do in standing off war with other nations, when Her Majesty's great war vessels match up along in number with those known to be unfriendly or doubtful in the harbor of Manila. But Latter Day Saints can do more than extend "sympathy;" they can aid with muscle and means; and he would be a poor makeshift of a Latter Day Saint who would refuse his government aid in any holy cause. They are taught that, "Whatever is good and leads to do good, is of God." Since the beginning of the world before, has it been known that a nation went to war purely for humanity's sake, to rescue the perishing, give liberty to a people in a death struggle for freedom from a vindictive and uncompromising tyrant? Is it not proper for the Church of Jesus Christ to encourage such work? What is gospel work but the work of humanity, along lines that liberate, enlighten, elevate, and save?

It is said that ninety per cent of the inhabitants of Cuba can neither read nor write. But one religion is represented, and that the most tyrannical and nonprogressive. With the genius of republican institutions represented there, under the "stars and stripes," and there would be a veritable transformation among the inhabitants. Free schools, toleration, and the rights of men would cause the land to blossom as the rose, and all hearts be made to rejoice in the air of freedom. Withal, it would open the way for the preaching of the gospel, without which it never could be done. Cannot all saints encourage work of this kind, acting within their proper sphere? Is it too much to say that God is in the work of humanizing conditions in Cuba, in Porto Rico, the Philippines, etc., in the liberty-loving inspiration that is sweeping over them, and the struggle of men to attain better conditions? Nothing strange that Admiral Cervera, the noblest of Spaniards, was made to say, in addressing Commodore Schley and Captain "Bob" Evans: "I could have gotten away; my orders to concentrate fire on the Brooklyn were carried out, but your ships have a charmed life, sir." Aye, so did the person of Washington, and the patriots of the revolution. Others have noted "the charmed life" associated with America's destiny, and Spaniards are learning.

Thomas Jefferson wrote: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." This was indorsed and incorporated in the declaration of principles at the beginning of the government, as against the theory of the divine right of kings and a ruling aristocracy. Through the clash of arms victory was given to the doctrine of "equal rights," that that is the political boon of the race. It is moving on. Our beautiful religion teaches that God raised up "wise men" and inspired them to lay the foundation of this government. Is not what God inspires in the government as good as that which he inspires in the church? What he inspires in a Jefferson is as sacred as that which was inspired in a prophet or seer at Sinai or Jerusalem. Cannot all Christians support them as well? Indeed, are they not these "self-evident" "truths" which lie at the foundation of this great government, loved and cherished by a free and loyal people, and represented in their flag, that are making crowned heads uneasy because of Liberty's tree prevailing in the earth? They constitute a continuous protest against the theory that some men are born to govern and to rule, without even the consent of the governed, while others should be educated to lead, and the rest to be kept in ignorance and made to follow and serve. The principles of political liberty, the doctrine of free schools, the privilege to read the Bible, the right to select one's own religion, the separation of church and state, and universal education as symbolized in "Old Glory," are marching on in glory and triumph, causing the older governments to attune themselves to the inspiration of the new, or fail and fall. Blessed are they who are moved with entreaty and are willing to make concessions.

Another most justifiable reason for putting the national flag in a conspicuous place in the General Conference hall may be seen in the fact that had there been no American flag there had been no Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, hence no General Conference; for there was no other political soil in which it would have been protected while it germinated and grew, but the rich soil of political liberty and universal toleration. The saints who unfurled and applauded the flag at the session of conference were largely citizens of the United States, and they love their flag and their country, and prize the principles the flag represents. They know, too, what liberty cost; that it was wrenched from the hands of oppressors at a fabulous cost. The very privileges enjoyed at that conference were wrapped up in that flag and God Almighty put them there. Why then should they not applaud it? What ingratitude had they not.

Still more. A revered book says, page 66, large edition:—

And I will fortify this land against all other nations; and he that fighteth against Zion shall perish, saith God; for he that raiseth up a king against me shall perish.

God has made this land the land of liberty by using the American armies; and by these he fortifies it "against all other nations." For there are to be no "kings upon this land." How significant, when the old world is dotted with them. "No kings," hence no preferred aristocrats, gentlemen, grandees, and nobility to lie around, sport, and eat up and destroy the hard earnings of the people with impunity, infringe upon the rights of others and lead into captivity, bondage, and serfdom. Maximilian tried the king business in Mexico, backed by European influence; but it failed. He was ignominiously shot by an insulted and enraged people for the attempt. God has said there are to be no kings upon this land. The reason why there are none is because the American flag floats in the heavens in defense of the principles "inspired" in the institutions of our country, and sustained by the American armies.

Again:—

Thou beholdest that the Gentiles who have gone forth out of captivity, and have been lifted up by the power of God above all other nations upon the face of the land, which is choice above all other lands, which is the land the Lord God hath covenanted with thy father that his seed should have for the land of their inheritance.—B. of M., p. 22, paragraph 120, large edition.

It is the people which constitute in a large measure the government of the United States who went forth "out of captivity" (from the governments of Europe), and have been "lifted up by the power of God above all other nations upon the face of the land." The secret of her success is in her declaration of principles covering the rights of men, inspired of God and woven into the foundation of the government. She thus becomes a haven of rest to the oppressed, a shield to those struggling for liberty. This great commonwealth, powerful and successful, is represented in her most complete and attractive aspect by her beautiful flag unfurled high and lifted up above that of all other nations, the emblem of freedom, toleration, universal education, the separation of church and state, etc.; and God Almighty has lifted it up. Should there be any place then in the United States too sacred for that proud banner to have a resting place, which has been "lifted up by the power of God?" It represents all of honor, glory, and success that has come to a nation of freemen, and vouches for their future safety. Would it not have been mean ingratitude, and an insult to both God and man not to have had it in their hearts to honor the flag and place it where they did? It is easy to believe that the rights enjoyed under the "Union Jack" would not have been so complete had it not have been for its close proximity to the great republic, where the battles of human rights were being fought out against tyranny and oppression. The liberty-loving leaven of the new world has been a stay to the efforts of progress in the Dominion government, as well as in other lands. Almost within a generation the premier of England, the "grand old man," following the lead of the liberating West, has transformed the Imperial government into a more complete representative form, and relieved it of much of its former arbitrary right. She is so thoroughly impregnated with republicanism at this day, that with a few changes made, the crown could be supplanted by a president's chair, and the people, so far as the practical workings of the government are concerned, would scarcely know the difference. England is progressive. She was too shrewd not to extend liberal grants to her colonies that lay beside freedom's home; but the vain uncompromising and priest-ridden Spaniard never learned anything, and now he is reaping that which he has sown. He sowed to the wind, and is now reaping the whirlwind.

But a farther and leading reason why it was proper for the conference to send the telegram to the President of the United States, lies in the fact that the government was about starting out on its mission of destiny, to liberate the captives and set the prisoners free; to feed starving men, women, and children, and save them from misery and death. It was eminently proper that the conference in-dicade to the Chief Executive its sentiments toward a movement of this kind. It would have been improper not to have done so. Saints should be interested in and ready to aid every movement that tends to good, the bettering of the conditions of humanity when opportunity offers. Small as a people as they are, they count, and stand in the forefront as advocates of the broadest principles of freedom, toleration, and liberality, and the asserters of the best means of progress, as well as being the representatives of the most beautiful system of religion extant. Why then should they not be heard and left free to express themselves on all leading questions involving their interests, whether in church or state? Unquestionably they are interested. To the writer, then, the hand of God is so really in the government of the United States, and so easily traced; its destiny so great, and mission so humane and benevolent; its flag so significant, and means so much, and of the best, so truly a Godsend, that where it could not occupy and be heartily applauded, especially in its own realm, he would not go. Was it a rag flaunted by the hand of tyrants, representing mischief, tyranny, and oppression, he would think differently. Honor the flag!!

Last but not least, "What right has the stone kingdom, as a kingdom, to sympathize between nations?" is presented. The "stone kingdom" is the one that is to "break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms," represented by the metallic image. If so, it certainly ought to assert itself somewhere, in order to be effective. But is it a settled question as to what that kingdom really is, in its present stage of development? Are you quite sure that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, separately considered, is that "stone kingdom"? If it is, at present rate of progress, how long will it take for it "to break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms"? Christ said, "My kingdom is not of this world." The Church of Jesus Christ has never "broken in pieces" even a township government. In a contest for mastery the church has been prevailed against rather than prevailed. She has gloriously assailed, criticised, and broken creeds, swept aside dogmas, educated, reflected light, preached the full gospel, etc., and who is to say that she has not been following in her legitimate line? It seems to be assumed, not proven, that the church as constituted is that "stone kingdom." There are grains of salt in the claim, no doubt; for that kingdom is finally to embrace all of good. The assumption splendidly flatters Latter Day Saints' vanity, but even they may have drawn too strongly on their imagination. It really looks that there is to be added power and light in order to fill the picture in one's mind in regard to that kingdom. Christ's followers dreamed constantly of "David's throne," but he of something else. May not Latter Day Saints have presumed something (if the suggestion in the criticism correctly represents them) as to the real work of the church in preparation? Is there a fixed view, the questioning of which is rank heresy?

Anyway, it is a good subject to think about. The Book of Covenants says:—

And from thence shall the gospel roll forth unto the ends of the earth, as the stone which is cut out of the mountain without hands shall roll forth.—65: 1.

It does not say the church is that "stone." If the church in essence and all essential detail is the "stone kingdom," is there not a little ambiguity attaching when it is considered in the light of the United States being a political power of wonderful growth and strength, and of which the inspired record says, that God raised up "wise men" and inspired them to "lay the foundation" of this government? If he inspired the laying of the foundation of this government, is he thereafter to set up a "stone" to "smite" and destroy it? Is he divided? May it not be that the doctrine of human rights and political liberty inspired in the Constitution of the government, one factor to be considered, after all, in the composition of the "stone kingdom" as a finale, that is to "break in pieces and consume"? Is not the "inspired" in the church, and the "inspired" in the state one, as effecting God's purposes and work? And is it not the "self-evident" "truths" of Jefferson that lie at the foundation of the government which have wrought so wondrously and effectively, loved and cherished by a free and independent people, that are sweeping over the nations as a new inspiration, and "smiting the image"—the "divine right of kings" and an inherited aristocracy—liberating and planting hope in the people, to be considered in the work of the "stone kingdom" as well as the divine in the church? Where floats the "stars and stripes" the gospel may go. Where the flag cannot go, or its civilizing and liberating influences be felt, there is little or no place for gospel work. There is a breaking to pieces to accompany or precede. Where the influence of the state obtains there is liberty, toleration, free schools, an open Bible, and gospel privileges fostered and protected. In the divine economy, then, the church is not independent of the fostering care and work of the state. So we say,—Go on Dewey, go on Schley, go on Sampson, go on Miles, go on Shafter, go on the great God-ordained American Republic; "smite the image," if image it is; break the yokes of tyrants and let the people go free. Strike off the shackles from Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines. Plant the principles of liberty in all lands encircling the globe, where it has not obtained, "that this gospel of the kingdom" may be "preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations," that the end may come.

Who knows but it is the inspired in the church, and the inspired in the state, with the needfuls added, that will enter largely into the full constitution of that universal government of promise that is to prevail on the earth when the promised ruler comes to destroy utterly every vestige of the metallic image? Why even then haul down the stars and stripes? It stood for the rights of men, represented the "self-evident truth" of the state, and protected the "self-evident truths" of the church, and is thus bathed in supernal glory by nations blessed and redeemed. Float on, then, thou beautiful star-decked blue-ground, with streamers gay,—the red, white, and blue! Float on, thou chief of all earthly banners, that taught the nations freedom's boon and filled the world with light and hope! Float on, thou God-sent gift that sowed the principles of freedom in the world and protected as by a shield the great gospel message, and let all the world applaud and say, Amen!

So saying, the writer will climb upon the fence, listen to the wind blow and whirl, and make up his mind as to which side it is safe to climb down on.

WM. H. KELLEY.

GLENWOOD, Iowa, August 5.

Conference Minutes.

SPRING RIVER.

Conference at Weir City, Kansas, June 4 and 5; O. P. Sutherland in the chair, assisted by F. C. Keck; T. S. Hayton secretary. Branches reported: Angola; Webb City, gain 2; Pleasant View, gain 3; Blendville, gain 7; Weir City, and Columbus. Showing a net gain of 12 members. Written reports of labor received from one of the seventy, ten elders, one teacher, and one deacon, and several others of the ministry gave oral reports. The district secretary advised that branch clerks be particular in giving items from their branch records; to not abbreviate, but write all names in full, to keep duplicate or copy of all statistical reports and of all important correspondence, then errors can be more easily traced and corrected. The Bishop's agent reported: Receipts $218.26; disbursements 197.39; balance $20.87. Conference granted petitions and ordered that Brn. B. N. Sims, David Love, and J. F. Grimes be ordained to the office of elder. The chair and others spoke regarding the advisability of dividing Spring River district, advising all concerned to consider this matter for it will come before next district conference for further consideration. A motion prevailed that we request that the mission reunion be held in Spring River district at Midway Park, near Joplin, Missouri. Conference was well attended and an edifying, peaceful time was had. Adjourned to Angola, Kansas, October 29.

Sunday School Associations.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

To the Sunday school workers who expect to attend the Woodbine reunion:—The committee have concluded on having at least six sessions of Sunday school, using the last six lessons in the Quarterly for July, August, and September. Sr. Dora Young will have charge of the Primary Department; Bro. T. A. Hougas will be present to superintend the work in general. All who expect to be present will come prepared on these lessons, especially those who are at present teachers, and come expecting to take part in the work, as the teachers will be selected after we assemble for the reunion. Many practical subjects will be treated upon in papers and short talks, and exercises of a normal character. The use of the large tent has been kindly granted by the committee for all our exercises, so that all can be conveniently accommodated who wish to take part with us.

Two sessions of the Religio will be held in connection with the reunion, in which papers from the general officials and exercises of a general character will occupy the time.

Bring Bibles, quarterlies, by-laws, programs, and Winnowed Songs; and with prayer in your hearts come to make these departments of the reunion spiritual and beneficial, and give evidence of the growth of these departments for good in the church.

Committee, J. F. MINTUN.
DORA YOUNG.
S. B. KIBLER.

Sunday school association of Mobile district will meet in convention at Bay Minette, Alabama, Friday, September 30, at seven p. m. All reports sent by mail address to C. I. Carpenter, Bay Minette, immediately after September 25, so as to be sure to arrive in time. Every school should be represented, and all are invited.

C. I. CARPENTER, Supt.

Convention of London, Ontario district, will meet in Stratford, Friday, October 9, one day before conference. A prayer meeting will be held at ten a. m., and business session at 2:30 p. m. A session will also be held in the evening. Secretaries and superintendents are requested to each be sure to send a report. Come all and have a good time. Trains will be met on Thursday and Friday.

G. C. TOMLINSON, Supt.
MAGGIE MACGREGOR, Sec.

HOPEVILLE, Ontario.

Miscellaneous Department.

BISHOP'S AGENTS NOTICE.

To the Saints of Texas Central District:—Let us wake up to our duty and comply with the law of tithing and offering so that there may be means in church to carry on the propagating the gospel in all its needs and necessities, that this district may be self-supporting. I call your attention to the fact that the Bishop demanded of us $10 per month to the support of H. P. Curtis, our missionary in Texas, whose home is at San Antonio. Remit your tithes and offerings to me at Durango, and I can forward same to him. Necessity demands this from us to keep the work rolling on while we have opportunity to work. It is our duty to render the Lord what is due, whether it is claimed or not, as we learn in Malachi 3:7-9. Shall it be said of us: "Even from the day of your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them;" and further, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me."

The good Lord says: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes.—Mal. 3:10, 11.

All along in the dispensations of the gospel this principle of God's ordinances of the gospel has been taught, and God's word proved a blessing if we comply with it, if not cursing and disaster will surely follow.

Now, dear saints, put on the whole armor of faith, and live by every word that proceeds out of God's mouth for us to obey, so when the change comes we can be accepted of him. Remember the instruction given on this law after one-tenth of the increase. All you have is increase to begin with; after this all you make after the reasonable expenses paid in making, is increase, above that you had when you brought yourself under the law of tithing. Then we are required to make offering of our portion, the nine-tenths, and required to put in the storehouse of the Lord to be disbursed by the Bishop or under his instructions. So I call your attention to college fund notice. Please, brethren, make this sufficiently plain to the saints in its order, and in this little article add or take them as you see for the good.

Your brother in Christ,
E. BATES, Bishop's Agent.

REUNION NOTICES.

As the time is nearing for the Woodbine Reunion (September 16 to 26) the prospects for a large gathering brighten daily. Suitable arrangements for feed, fuel, and all that is necessary for comfort and convenience at very reasonable rates will be provided for. Also our furniture dealer has a number of cots, bed springs, and bedsteads, that he will rent for twenty-five cents each for the term. Let us all come together praying for the Spirit of God to be with us to a greater degree than ever before, and that our reunion may be as a light set on a hill to all the surrounding country, saints revived, and sinners converted.

S. B. KIBLER,
Chairman Reunion Committee.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

At the last General Conference Bro. C. E. Hand was referred to the missionary in charge. This was done because of a matter of difficulty then pending between Bro. Hand and another brother. This is to certify that the difficulty referred to has been fully and satisfactorily settled, and Bro. C. E. Hand is hereby requested and appointed to labor in the Eastern Iowa district. May the Master's rich blessings attend his labors is the prayer of the missionaries in charge,

J. R. LAMBERT.
HEMAN C. SMITH.

NOTICES.

The following list of names, from the Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, branch, are upon the scattered list of the aforesaid branch, and their address is unknown. No doubt some one will know the whereabouts of some of them; and if they do, notify me and they will greatly oblige, and do a good deed at the same time, possibly: Henrietta Robertson, Lulu Ann Warnock, Samuel Evans, Ephraim Evans, Sarah A. Smith, T. A. Lathrop, Doctor Moses Madison, Ida A. E. Udick, Theo. Cummings, Aaron Morehead, Mary Eaton, Moses D. Lovey, Annie J. Farrell, Clara L. French.

T. S. HADFIELD,
Branch Clerk.

No. 20 Lacock Street, ALLEGHENY CITY, Pa.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Conference of the Mobile district will meet at Bay Minette, Alabama, Saturday October 1, at ten a. m. All branch reports to be sent by mail should be addressed to C. I. Carpenter, Bay Minette Baldwin County, Alabama, in time for the conference. Every branch should be represented, and all are invited to attend.

F. P. SCARCLIFF, Pres.
C. I. CARPENTER, Acting Sec.

Northeastern Missouri district conference will convene with Pollock branch, September 24 and 25. Reports from all branches and priesthood are desired; forward to Bro. George Tryon, Huntsville, Mo. The Pollock saints are going to dedicate their church at this meeting; come all who can, and assist to make the conference a success.

J. A. TANNER, Pres.

Independence district conference will meet at Independence, Mo., September 10 and 11. Come, saints, all that can; you are invited to take part with us in a splendid feast. Let every branch send a full report, and let every elder and priest report. This is the election of officers, and other important business will be transacted. Elder I. N. White expects to be present.

R. MAY, Pres.

Conference of London district, Ontario, will meet with Stratford branch the second Saturday and Sunday of October. Secretaries are requested to have reports made out in good time and sent to me at Hopeville, or else in care of Mrs. George Lindsay, G. T. R. shops, Stratford. The local ministry are also requested to send reports of labor done. Trains will be met Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. We hope a good time will be had and that the attendance will be good.

MAGGIE MACGREGOR, Sec.
HOPEVILLE, Ontario.

The saints of the Nodaway, Missouri, district, will please remember by their prayers and presence, the conference which convenes at Avenue City, Saturday, October 1, at eleven a. m.

M. F. GOWELL, Pres.

The Eastern Michigan district conference will convene at Flint, Michigan, October 1 and 2, 1898. Branch secretaries please make full reports to William Davis, district secretary, at Flint, Michigan. Missionaries and local officers all invited to attend.

A. BARR, Pres.

DIED.

WALTENBAUGH.—At Higbee, Mo., August 20, 1898, Jacob Daniel, infant son of Bro. David and Sr. Lizzie Waltenbaugh, aged 6 months and 7 days. Funeral in charge R. R. Jones; discourse by Elder George Thorburn.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound $1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges 3 00

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

G. A. R. National Encampment, Cincinnati, Ohio, September 5-10, 1898. Returning not later than September 13. An extension of time till October 2 can be obtained. Special G. A. R. train leaves Chariton 4:50 a. m., arriving Cincinnati same day at 9:05 p. m. Round trip from Lamoni $14.05.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth $1 00
Sheep or library binding 1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges 1 75
Morocco, gilt edges 2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges 3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

THE BOOK OF MORMON. Large Type Edition.

Cloth, leather backs and corners.. $1 50
Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges 2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

THE TWO RECORDS. The Book of Mormon and the New Testament. (Inspired Translation) in large type; in one volume.

Leather back and corners $2 00
Seal Grain Russia 2 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges 3 50
Morocco, gilt edges 4 00

NEW TESTAMENTS. Inspired Translation. Pocket-size edition.

Cloth $0 30
Cloth sides, leather back 50

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6½x8½, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net $2 00

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Rules for the government of general and district conferences, branch business meetings, and other assemblies. Instructions concerning general, district, and branch records, the holding of elder's courts, etc., cloth bound; price 40 cents.

TRACTS.

TRACTS Order by numbers.

1. The Nature of Man. Is he Possessed of Immortality? Per dozen, 15 cents; 100 $1 00
 2. Truth Made Manifest; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
 4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church, and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3 cts.; 100 15
 5. Questions and Answers (on First Principles of the Gospel); per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
 6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per dozen, 15 cents; 100... 1 00
 7. Who then Can be Saved; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
 8. Fullness of the Atonement; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 30
 10. The Narrow Way; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
 11. The Plan of Salvation; per dozen, 20 cents; 100 1 20
 12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 13. Discipleism, or the Claims of Alexander Campbell to a Restored Primitive Christianity Examined; per doz., 15 cts; 100, 1 00
 14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 $1 00
 15. How to Enter the Kingdom; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
 16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
 18. Necessity for a Reorganization of the Church; per dozen 30
 19. A Statement and a Correction of It; per dozen 10
 20. The "One Body;" or the Church under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c; 100, 1 00
 21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
 22. Faith and Repentance; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
 23. Baptism; per dozen, 10 cts.; 100 65
 24. The Kingdom of God; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
 25. Laying on of Hands; per dozen, 5 cents; 100 30
 27. The Sabbath Question; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
 41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per dozen, 3 cents; 100 15
 42. Rejection of the Church; per dozen, 10 cents; 100 50
 43. One Wife or Many; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 44. Crooked Paths; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
 47. The Future State; per dozen, 15 cents; 100 1 00
- Prophecy of the Rebellion; per 100 10

TRACTS IN LARGE LOTS.

Special prices on application for tracts in lots of 1000 or more.

THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS. A book for small children. Cloth... $0 20

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer, President.
 Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address:
 I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

BRO. B. F. ORDWAY, of Peoria, Illinois, will send 3 boxes of Quit-to-Bac post paid anywhere for $1.50, and positively guarantee it to cure your tobacco habit, or your money refunded.

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.

The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a Reward of $200

By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns.
TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.

It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State
PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.
 DES MOINES, IOWA.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL COMMITTEE REPORT. A manual of evidences in support of Book of Mormon archaeology, with maps. Price $0 50

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year, four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Its Easy Writing

If its a Blickensaefer No. 5.

The universal favorite with all classes of operators who desire a simple and speedy machine.

More "Blicks" in use among Iowa and Nebraska newspapers than all the rest of the $100 machines together. The only Typewriter on the market doing hundred-dollar work that is sold at a popular price.

Has 28 Keys, of 84 Characters and Letters; Portable, weighing but Six Pounds with case.

Copies and Manifolds perfectly,—12 carbon copies being easily taken at one writing.

Only one price—$35.00 net. On ten days approval to any responsible man in Iowa or Nebraska. Address,

HARGER & BLISH,

General Agents,

904-910 Main Street, DUBUQUE, IOWA.

$35

MANGLES

—FOR—
FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.

NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.

Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.

Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.

THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture AND Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.

GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery.

Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to

RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS

SEPT. 6
SEPT. 20
OCT. 4
OCT. 18

These are the days on which you can buy very low-rate round-trip Excursion Tickets to NEBRASKA and other points in the West, Northwest and Southwest, good for 21 days. Stop on your way and see the GREAT TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION AT OMAHA. This road publishes an illustrated pamphlet describing Nebraska, and also one about the Omaha Exposition. You can get both without charge on application to the C. B. & Q. ticket agent or to P. S. EUSTIS, General Passenger Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill.

Go and look for a New Home in Nebraska, a prosperous country, where a farm can be bought for one years' rent of an eastern farm.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, September 14, 1898.

No. 37.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
Can the Aaronic Priesthood Administer?.....	581
Requests and Reflections.....	581
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Select Reading for October Meetings of Daughters of Zion.....	584
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
LETTER DEPARTMENT:
Ellmore-Evans Debate.....	588
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Can the Aaronic Priesthood Administer the Sacrament?.....	589
"The Church in the Wilderness".....	591
The Joseph Smith Interview.....	592
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
European Mission.....	593
Pottawatamie.....	594
Ohio.....	594
Nevada.....	594
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
South Sea Islands.....	595
Manchester and Sheffield.....	595
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Bluff Park Reunion.....	595
Reunion Notices.....	596

WAS THIS STRANGE MANUSCRIPT WRITTEN BY MOSES?

VERY REMARKABLE HEBREW AN-TIQUITIES JUST UNEARTHED
IN PALESTINE.

COPIES OF SOLOMON'S SEAL AND THE MOST ANCIENT HEBREW COINS EVER FOUND.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—For several years a German preacher from the town of Walbroel has been at work, personally and through native agents, in collecting ancient manuscripts and coins from the excavations in Palestine. The preacher's name is Bruesselbach and he has just published a little monograph giving the results of his labors. The publication has attracted wide attention among archaeologists and scientific men, for the reason that the discoveries which Bruesselbach claims to have made and which seem to be authenticated by the facts are the most important made in many years. The finds possess other than scholarly interest, as they nearly all relate to Bible history.

The most important of the discoveries related by Bruesselbach is that of a manuscript supposedly written by Moses himself. The margin bears the name of Moses and the writing relates to the subjects treated in the early books of the Bible which have come down to us as the books of Moses. If the explorer can prove the accuracy of his belief in the august authorship of the manuscript which he has unearthed it will be studied with interest as one of the oldest and probably the most valuable specimen of early writing in existence.

The fragment is remarkably well preserved and appears to be made from the skin of some aquatic animal, probably the hippopotamus or Nile-horse. It is a yellowish brown in color, crinkled and dry with age. The three drawings on it are done in black ink, and, as interpreted by the discoverer, apparently refer to the labors of the enslaved Israelites in Egypt.

The Bible story runs (Exodus 1, 11-14): "They (the Egyptians) set over them (the Israelites) taskmasters to afflict them with their burdens. And they built for Pharaoh store cities, Pithom and Raamses. And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigor. And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field."

The first picture on the recovered manuscript shows a Jewish maiden milking a cow, referring to the labors with flocks and herds. Above is a pack saddle with its two girths, a reference to the work of transport. There is also an Egyptian eagle drawn exactly as it is found on the Egyptian monuments. The second picture is that of two Israelites holding up a large winnowing frame, in illustration of their labors in the state granaries established by Joseph.

The Semitic type of the two men is characteristic and unmistakable. The third picture is that of the foot of a pyramid, or the base of a fortification wall, a specimen of the labor of brick-making and building, in which the captives were employed. Upon the column is perched a hawk, the hawk and eagle being sister symbols of upper and lower Egypt.

While the pictures are interesting, the most important part of the papyrus is the inscription across the top. It is written in ancient script, hitherto unknown, but so primitive as to approach very closely to the hieroglyphic stage. It is translated by the discoverer: "Their yearning for freedom from the oppressor is full; their long continued sins cry unto thee, O God."

Whether or not the interpretation is accurate the sentiment is a proper one to emanate from him who succeeded in giving the Israelites their desired freedom.

The first five books of the Bible have always been known as "The Five Books of Moses." According to the history of Josephus, the original manuscript of these, in the handwriting of Moses, was preserved in the Temple at Jerusalem. The fragment in the possession of Dr. Bruesselbach was unearthed from the ruins of the ancient city, known in the Bible as Lachish. The explorer explains the transition by saying that when the temple and city of Jerusalem were destroyed by the Romans (70 A. D.) these and other treasures were buried and later removed to the city of Lachish, where many scholars had taken up their residence. The ruins of this city have only lately been unearthed.

Dr. F. J. Bliss, acting for the Palestine Exploration Fund of England, found it while digging in the Tel-el-Hesy, as the Arabs call it. He found that Tel-el-Hesy was indeed "a mound of many cities," no less than eight existing there, each one being built upon the ruins of its predecessor. It was in a portion of the mound untouched by Dr. Bliss that Bruesselbach and his coworkers made their discoveries.

In his explanation of the Mosaic manuscript the explorer calls special attention to the forms of the letters used in the inscription upon the papyrus. The first letter, called Aleph, an ox, is really a drawing of the horns of that animal. The second letter, Beth, means a house. The third, Gimel, stands for camel, and so on, throughout the alphabet, there is a remarkable correspondence between the names and the objects.

This discovery Bruesselbach thinks may solve what has long been a puzzle to scholars. In all school geographies the origin of the alphabet has been ascribed to the Phoenicians. Many modern scholars have been inclined to doubt this theory, for the reason that the letters were not sufficiently primitive. The inscription just discovered, which is presumably the first specimen extant of early Hebrew writing, seems to bridge the chasm hitherto existing between the hieroglyphics and conventional letters of later times.

Dr. Bruesselbach says: The result of our investigation is that the manuscript, judging from all external and internal evidence, is genuinely Mosiac. If this be so the religious world is on the point of some startling discoveries, for where one manuscript has been found there may be others and the next one unearthed may contain some portion of the Bible in this ancient script, thus supporting the tradition of the Mosiac authorship of the Pentateuch, or parts of it at least.

The Palestine Fund reports other interesting discoveries, among them a coin of earlier date than any heretofore known. The oldest Hebrew coin discovered before this time bore date of 143 B. C., and Bruesselbach's party discovered a large bronze coin of David's time. It shows the crown of David with a circlet of stars. The crown was said, according to story, to be made of gold of the value of a talent. The inscription about the coin reads: "David, King of Jerusalem." On the reverse side is an eight-stringed harp with the inscription: "Fear ye, repent ye, who are strong in the faith."

Scholars and numismatists alike are exhibiting deep interest in this coin, which was struck off almost three thousand years ago and passed current among the subjects of King David in Jerusalem.

Another more notable discovery reported by Dr. Bruesselbach is that of the "Seal of Solomon." There is no story more clearly remembered by those who have read the "Arabian Nights" than that of the mystic ring by which the genii were summoned to the service of its possessor. Arabic and Hebrew literature is full of the legends of the wonders performed by the might of Solomon's Seal, made through the wisdom of this wisest of monarchs.

The inscription is not so easy to read as those on the coins because of the peculiar shape of the letters and the fact that they are interwoven with the design on the seal. The name of Solomon has been deciphered. If this is the genuine seal of Solomon it also has on it "the ineffable name" of God Jehovah, but Bruesselbach has not been able to make this out to his own satisfaction amid the various lines traced upon its surface.

Another coin brought to light is evidently to be located about 175 B. C., in the time of the king-priest, Jason. The inscription is in a peculiar dialect of Syro-Aramaic belonging to that period and is written from left to right, contrary to the Hebrew custom in writing. The decipherment of the inscription is "K. Jehason G. Is. Coin of the City," which has been translated: "Jason, the high priest (Kohen Gedol) of Israel." On the reverse is a palm branch and a smoking altar, illustrating the priestly function of offering sacrifices in the temple.

Strictly speaking, Jason is not a Biblical character, for he lived in the time just following the close of the Biblical period, the accounts of which are very scanty.

A seal ring, bearing the name of Simeon, the Maccabee, who ruled 143-135 B. C., was among the other discoveries. The inscription is most distinct of all, being the most recent, and is therefore more easily read than the others. The letters are arranged around a seven-pointed star and run: "Simeon, the High Priest."

While Dr. Bruesselbach has made no attempt to exploit his discoveries he claims that there is no doubt of their authenticity. At the same time he says that there is likely to be controversy regarding the genuineness of some of them and he therefore proposes to place these and other manuscripts, coins and ring, which he has dug up, before competent scholars to settle, if possible, beyond a doubt, the question of their accuracy.

The fact that he has found a manuscript purporting to come from the hands of Moses, bearing his name and that of Joshua (his successor) on the margin, written in very primitive characters on the most primitive material ever found, would seem to be important in itself.

But there have been skillful forgeries of such documents before now, and, until a number of experts have passed upon the matter, judgment may have to be suspended. This discovery is, however, in line with other startling finds of the past few years.

The unearthing at Nippur of inscriptions which carry civilization back to five or six thousand years B. C., showing that the art of printing was known and practiced at that early day, settles one of the objections which has frequently been raised against the possibility of Moses having written any part of the Bible, the natural doubt as to the use of writing at that early date.

The discoveries of Dr. Bruesselbach will certainly arouse widespread interest and awaken renewed enthusiasm for the work of exploration in the Holy Land.—San Francisco Call, Aug. 14.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Sarcastic references to the German Emperor's pilgrimage to Jerusalem continue to appear in the English press. Persons who make these comments are not well informed. The Emperor is too clever to go to Syria without having a practical business policy, even if he invites two hundred Lutheran pastors to see the holy places with him.

There has been a great increase in German trade in Asia Minor during his reign, and the Emperor himself is now as influential as the Czar in the councils of the Sultan. German trade influence will be enlarged by the Emperor's pilgrimage, which is anything but a quixotic adventure or a sentimental journey.

The new missionary paper entitled Signs of Progress in China, published, we believe, in London, gives some exceedingly interesting information relating to the great change which is going on at the great centers in China, such as Shanghai and Foo-Chow. Chinese merchants are educating their sons in English schools at an expense of $8 per month. The barrow gives way to the bicycle, and the sedan chair to the carriage and pair. The anti-foot-binding movement and the Chinese Ladies' School also indicate the great change which is going on in China.—Ex.

ADDRESSES.

Elder F. G. Pitt; field address, No. 14 Council St., Hulme, Manchester, England.

J. W. Wight, care Carrier 12, Salt Lake City, Utah.

W. N. Robinson, Sec. Gen. S. S. Association, Independence, Missouri.

Elder Henry C. Smith, No. 647 South Spring Street, Los Angeles, California.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord; for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, September 14, 1898.

No. 37.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.
JOSEPH LUFF, }

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPT. 14, 1898.

CAN THE AARONIC PRIESTHOOD ADMINISTER?

THE author of the article on the subject of administering the sacrament states that he does not seek or wish any controversy on the subject upon which he writes; yet states at the close of his note accompanying the article that he would be pleased to hear from him, or them who may have, or think they have better light on the subject. We may not be of either class; but suggest the following:—

1. The author knows, or ought to know, that the church has from the first in its practice understood that the priest had a right and the power to administer the sacrament, including the blessing of the emblems, both bread and wine. He knows that this has been and is the practice of the Reorganization.

2. In the discussion of the question, Who may administer the sacrament? in conference, raised upon an editorial in the HERALD in which it was assumed that the teacher and deacon might assist in administration by passing the emblems, the conclusion was reached that neither teacher nor deacon could officiate, and that administering the sacrament included both the blessing and the passing the emblems. It was further decided that the priest could legally administer, by virtue of his office. This is also known to the author of the article.

The rule of law on which the church has based the practice of permitting the priest to administer the sacrament, is found as follows:—

The priest's duty is to preach, teach, expound, exhort, and baptize, and administer the sacrament. . . . In all these duties the priest is to assist the elder if occasion requires.—D. C. 17:10.

But neither teachers, nor deacons have authority to baptize, administer the sacrament, or lay on hands.—D. C. 17:11, latter clause of paragraph.

The exception introduced by the word "but," clearly shows that the priest may administer the sacrament, but teacher or deacon may not.

The elders or priests are to have a sufficient time to expound all things concerning the Church of Christ to their understanding, previous to their partaking of the sacrament, and being confirmed by the laying on of the hands of the elders.—D. C. 17:18, the duty of members after baptism; etc.

In this both elders and priests are included in the duty, or privilege of administering the sacrament, but the laying on of hands is confined to the elders.

It is expedient that the church meet together often to partake of bread and wine in remembrance of the Lord Jesus; and the elder, or priest shall administer it.—D. C. 17:22.

The author states that "No possible stretch of the English language could make 'administer' mean 'to bless,' and can only be understood as combining the spiritual and temporal together, with the higher and lesser priesthood. Administering makes it harmonious." In paragraphs 10, 11, 18, and 22, the word administer is used in reference to the whole act; and in each the word administer is used in stating the duty, privilege, or power of the priest to so administer. And, as nothing is said as to who shall or shall not pass the emblems, the church has concluded that to administer the sacrament includes both the blessing and the passing of the emblems.

And, as sections 22 and 23 define the manner of administering, both the bread and the wine, and give the formula; and state that "the elder or priest shall administer it," the sacrament, it would seem improper to conclude that the priest could only pass the emblems when not a word is said about so passing them. It would seem to be equally improper to state that the paragraphs referred to provide that the elder alone has the right to "administer;" that is, to bless when the command is that "the elder or priest shall administer it," clearly meaning that either might do it.

Had the language been the elder "and" the priest shall administer it, then there might be room for the author's rendition. In each instance where both officers are mentioned in connection with the sacrament it is elders, or priests; elder, or priest.

REQUESTS AND REFLECTIONS.

WE REACH out the editorial pen to touch and to knight every minister in the field of gospel work, general or local, as a reporter for THE SAINTS' HERALD. We mean by this formal act to more fully bring the HERALD'S interests to the notice of those who, out in the world and in the service, as scouts, sentinels, on guard, or on the field of battle, are active observers and participants in the campaign, the war now being waged in the interests of truth. We desire the cooperation not only of the ministerial force, but of all members of the body—all, from generals down to the last recruit in the ranks.

This is a busy, passing, changing world, and in the developments peculiar to the present conflict it is necessary that we gather up and analyze every principle, every measure, and every discovery or theory presented having a bearing upon moral, spiritual, and general problems connected, immediately or remotely, with our work. We want not only to study the word pertaining to the first principles of the gospel; but this done, to study more deeply—into the philosophy, the spirit, the life of the spiritual economy. We must take broad and comprehensive views of the great work of God, endeavoring to discern the unity of action and the harmony of principle existing in the various forces he employs in the world of seen and unseen things, which are discernible to those who cultivate the art of seeing. By seeing we mean more than the seeing with the natural eye; we mean the development of that spiritual-mental insight and perception which gives penetration, foresight, comprehension, analysis, and classification—the wisdom, knowledge, and power to rightly divide and rightly conclude upon all questions presenting themselves for solution.

The facts and conditions of our own times plainly reveal the character of the work to be done by us as a church. Problems of grave import, questions of deep and lasting significance are pressing themselves upon the attention of the church and the world. Can they be ignored and the issues be met? Certainly not. What then is the logical course of action demanded of us as a people? Clearly this: That the imaginations, inventions, and devices of the world, of men and unseen powers, are to be sifted and analyzed with a view to adopting whatever of good they contain and rejecting whatever is erroneous, misleading, mystifying, and darkening. In this age of the world we are not surrounded so much by open physical opposition, but by deception and erroneous conceptions. It requires light and truth to clear the way; the searchlights are to be turned on the sea of action, that those possessing the light of truth may assume an intelligent offensive or defensive attitude, as the case may require.

Much is being uttered and published of interest and of value to us as "the children of the light." We use the definite term recorded in the word, for the reason that it signifies the position the saints of God are called to occupy. If we do not sufficiently understand the positions of men or organizations who oppose the truth to refute their theories, certainly we shall be "in the dark," and thus be disqualified to act clearly in our own behalf and in the interests of others who come to us for instruction and deliverance. We make claims to represent and therefore to present the path of life to men and women without the light of life in the world. Such claim demands of us that it be made good by an intelligent comprehension of our work, that we be justified in the eyes of God and of men. We must show that the claims we make are justified by ability to clearly represent and show forth their superiority, that they so be made apparent. Less than this will fail to justify an acceptance of our work.

We kindly ask those whom we have formerly requested to remember the interests of the HERALD, that they keep an active outlook for and let us have the many good things that directly or indirectly bear upon the great latter-day work. Our desire is to bring to the readers of the HERALD the best possible matter obtainable, that we all may be advanced in knowledge, in harmony with the philosophy of our work. We are aware that some do not need this formal invitation to write for or forward matter to us; but many do, and to them we make the statement. We are acting for the good of the body, and with that purpose in view have no hesitancy in thus placing the matter before all.

Many of the brethren have gathered much excellent matter, which, placed before the church, would prove of great value to its workers. Some withhold through fear of not presenting matter of value. It is a good plan not to presume too much on the information of readers or hearers; and this can reasonably be taken as a course of action, for though some may be acquainted with matter presented, others are not; and good things bear repetition. Things are not known till fixed in the mind. Repetitio est mater studiorum.

Another feature of this matter becomes apparent. In the many departments of knowledge having connection with our work, specialists are being developed. Men in their fields meet forms of opposition or phases of religious belief that are not met in others. Special study of such subjects is therefore made, resulting in the development and compilation of much valuable matter. With an exchange of products all are benefited and the better qualified for the service. All are therefore armorers of one another, as iron sharpeneth iron. Men are also variously constituted or qualified; one is the close text preacher, another the philosopher or more specifically philosophical in style; another has a diverse method; but each blends with the other, and variety appears in the unity of spirit and diversity of work; thus truth is focused into various mental instruments who develop its lights and shades and reveal it in proper perspective. No one artist is able to make up all the picture. And it will require some time yet—probably all of eternity (if we may comprehend such term) to bring out all the strength, the symmetry, and the beauty of truth. For this reason we think it well to urge a free exchange or reciprocity of trade in good matter. It would advance our personal development and tend to promote the acquisition of knowledge by all concerned—the whole body. The presumption would also be safe that greater dynamic force would thus be generated, and stored up, and used. And the use would not diminish but rather increase the supply of potential, striking, forceful energy.

In the ages of the past much of Nature's energies have remained potential but partly inert. They have been ready to do the bidding of man, the agent of providence, but though surrounded by them he remained for ages in ignorance of their existence, hence failed to obtain their benefits. In the developments of modern times, in these last days, "knowledge" has been increased. According to the statement of Daniel the prophet that "many shall run to and fro and knowledge shall be increased in the earth," something has touched the nature and habits of man universal as by a common impulse, and the race has arisen in the spirit of discovery and application. Following the Dark Ages a revival of learning ensued, a love of liberty developed. A new continent was placed at the disposal of the race for the free unhampered exercise of its genius, and liberty to think and speak and act, under the divine overshadowing but ever enlightening Spirit that is moving the world for good, is resulting in the beating back and dispelling of mists and darkness, and God is being revealed in principle, in power, and in personality.

Our civilization so far as good is the result of learning the principles essential to or that are included in the character of God. Every truth in scientific teaching that has been effective for good in the arts, the sciences, mechanical, electrical, economical, and otherwise has blessed the race through study and application of the principles and forces of Nature, the appointments and powers ordained of God for the benefit of man. When we study God's works we learn of him; when we apply the principles pertaining to material science we are benefited and civilization is advanced. Our present attainments as a race are the result of the discovery and application of principles of law ordained of God, hence true science in material lines is one with the spiritual, in that it also with the spiritual reveals the ever present beneficent overruling one "who presides in the midst of all things," "God over all, blessed forevermore," and to whom belongs the ascription of praise and power and dominion; dominion not only over the forces of nature, but whose love and wisdom should rule in the hearts and minds of men universally, that there may be harmony in all the works of God; that sin and death may give way to righteousness and life.

Men may deny the existence and revelations of God, but no one stands independent of or removed from him. The daily benefits, the forces that sustain and control the universe, show forth the majesty and power of his constant presence and superintendence. It is useless for anyone to deny the potent visible facts of God's existence and constant unwearying interest in the works of his hands. As the race studies his works it advances in actual practical knowledge and is elevated in the life conditions of progressing civilization. It retrogrades toward barbarism as it turns from God and truth. The practical applications of electricity, so markedly developed and being extended in our own times, is but the application of force that is similar to the spiritual, and which man has been able to discern, and apply, controlling, to a degree, its energies to do his bidding, hence to better the life conditions in many ways. The logic of all scientific teaching emphasizes the claim of the spiritual; viz.: That man occupying in his true and natural sphere is in communion with God; that possessing by creation the attributes of mind which, purified and enlightened, are able to comprehend the character of God, spiritual, and moral, and general knowledge is strictly essential to his education, development and welfare; that his normal state is an exalted one.

This, with much more, is practically stated in Doctrine and Covenants section 90, paragraph 4. In that section we are informed concerning the nature and proper status of man; that his place is with God; that the way to him is the path of truth, the way of knowledge and obedience. "Truth is knowledge of things, as they are, and as they were, and as they are to come;" a comprehensive definition indeed; defined to us by him who is the Spirit of truth. The field of study and observation is certainly a broad one. There is also a promise that the Spirit of truth shall manifest "all things that are expedient" for the disciple to know.

Having indulged in these hastily penned reflections we repeat the request that the brethren and sisters who are students of truth remember our efforts to place good matter before the readers of the HERALD, for the common good. It is our work "to advance the cause which" we "have espoused, to the salvation of man, and to the glory of" God. (D. C. 77: 1.)

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BISHOP E. L. KELLEY, Stonington, Maine, September 5:—

We are well and getting along fairly. Have held meetings every night and two to three times on Sunday since reaching Maine. Alexander was in demand in Providence and Boston and remained over for two Sundays, but will join us at Jonesport, Maine, on Wednesday next for conference.

Bro. J. W. Wight in a letter dated Fairfield, Utah, September 1:—

Boys have tent at Lehi and are raising the "natives." I tell you those "boys," R. J. Parker and D. W. Wight, are men. Almost astonishing the success they have had this summer in tent work. They have baptized seven so far. I baptized six at Pleasant Grove last week. Two ladies wished to be, but husbands bitter. Have them stirred up here (old Camp Floyd). Am better physically, and never felt better spiritually.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH SMITH, Brn. W. H. Kelley, William Anderson, J. R. Lambert, and others too numerous for personal mention, returned from the Bluff Park reunion during the week of the 4th.

Bro. W. E. Summerfield sends us a report of the Elvin-Padget discussion which was held recently at Pollock, Missouri, from which it appears that Bro. Elvin succeeded nicely on his propositions, while Elder Padget's efforts to damage the work were without effect, save to show the futility of such work. We omit report because the matter has been reported, in effect, of late.

Brn. Heman C. Smith and Thomas J. Bell, of the missionary force, opened up the work at Humeston, Iowa, on Saturday and Sunday the 4th and 5th insts., in one of the city churches. They were well received, having fair-sized audiences, though attendance was lessened on Sunday evening by stormy weather.

Bishop G. H. Hilliard arrived at Lamoni from the Bluff Park reunion on Wednesday, the 7th, intending to remain for a time in the interests of church and college work, but was suddenly called away by telegram on the 9th on account of the serious illness of his eldest son, a resident of Southern Illinois.

Bro. Frank Criley will be present at the Woodbine reunion with a full line of church publications on sale; also with mailing lists of the HERALD, Autumn Leaves, and other periodicals. Persons wishing to settle Herald Office accounts, to subscribe for publications, or purchase supplies, will find Bro. Criley prepared to supply their wants.

Taking advantage of the absence of Bishop E. L. Kelley, employees of the Herald Office renovated, papered, and painted the Bishop's office, which heretofore has been badly in need of such attention. Some time ago the General Conference provided for better quarters for the Bishop's offices, but nothing had been done until, seeing an opportunity to better conditions, the employees stepped in and acted as stated.

The Empress of Austria was assassinated by an Anarchist at Geneva, Switzerland, on the 10th inst., while proceeding from her hotel to a steamboat dock. Universal sympathy is felt for the aged Emperor and the Austrian people. Her death will put a stop to the contemplated jubilee in November in commemoration of Emperor Francis Joseph's accession, for which elaborate arrangements had been made.

"London, Sept. 10.—Instead of the century closing in universal peace, with the nations joining in with the Czar's proposition for disarmament, Europe has not been for years so close to the verge of general disaster. War, discord, death, and crime seem to have suddenly burst forth in all parts of the globe. The assassination of the Empress of Austria is liable to have a far-reaching effect, while the situations in Crete and Africa have assumed such critical aspects to-day that all manner of gloomy predictions are made. Taking up Austria's case first, the old Emperor, Franz Joseph, is a broken-down man. His son was murdered in a criminal intrigue. His country is fast going to pieces, and now his wife is assassinated without reason. Several times the Emperor has been on the point of abdicating, and this last blow may be his end. Everywhere it has been said for years that he will be the last Emperor of Austria-Hungary, for at his death or retirement the federation would surely dissolve. What international complications such dismemberment might cause no one can foretell. It undoubtedly sooner or later would bring bloody strife between two or more greedy, avaricious powers, as well as internal discord between the various small countries forming the empire, who have never affiliated or welded their interests in common. Little Crete nearly involved Europe in hostilities last year, and now again is burning like an incendiary's torch. To-day the admirals of the powers sent an ultimatum to the Turkish Governor, giving but a few hours for disarmament of everybody on the island, including even the Turkish regulars. What may result from this is beyond even the most diplomatic guessing. It is simply a case of hoping for the best."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

SELECT READING FOR OCTOBER MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

BEHAVING.—CONTINUED.

WHEN you attend a concert or church behave yourself. Don't wriggle and twist and fidget till the nervous woman back of you is all of a tremble, fearing you will fall to bits in her presence, and do not whisper or giggle or shuffle your feet, or hunch your neighbor. Only last Sunday night a very impressive sermon was almost ruined for me by a young man and maiden sitting behind me who kept up a running comment on the preacher, the choir, and the congregation. All these things which you do thoughtlessly are infringements of the law of kindness, which is the keystone in the arch of true politeness.

Whether on the street, at home, at school, anywhere, please do not talk slang. If you only knew where most of the uncouth expressions which have unaccountably become the fashion, originate, you would be very careful how you let them pass your lips. What an incongruity to think of a sweet, dainty young girl associating with stable boys and roughs, or frequenting saloons or other ill-smelling resorts; yet most slang originates in just such places, among just such people; by using it you arouse the suspicion that these are your chosen associates; that instead of being the well-taught, well-cared for children you are, you have been neglected and left to run wild. Often on the street we hear a well-dressed pretty-looking girl accost another with, "Hallo! Grace," to receive the response, "Hallo! Gertie," and at once we doubt the testimony which their fine clothes and pretty faces gave, that they were little ladies, and almost believe that the spirit of some rough, coarse man has taken possession of those dainty bodies. Sometimes we have heard that same Gracie accosted as "Tom," and Gertie answering to the call "Pete."

My dear girls, if you only could know how these things jar on the ears of those who love you, and how they impress strangers with a conviction that you are ill-bred, I am sure you would need no imploring of mine to make you "mend your manners" and your speech. No matter how fine your clothes may be, how ladylike your motions, how sweet your face, if the moment you open your lips, your "speech betrayeth you," either by the loudness of its tone, or by its slang, you will be accounted no lady by well-bred people. I would not have you "prim, precise, and prosy;" chatter nonsense to your heart's content, but do it in good English, free from taint of the dram-shop or prize ring, and in sweet, clear tones. Worse even than slang is a cross, ill-natured tone of speech, for this shows fault of the heart, while that may proceed from mere thoughtlessness. Bite your tongue every time you catch it saying hateful, ill-natured things. When you feel inclined to say or tell anything bad about anyone, subject it to the test of these three questions: Is it true? Is it kind? Is it necessary to be told? And do not let it escape you unless you can answer "Yes" to all three.

How shall we treat company? That depends in some measure upon whether it is your own company or your parents'. But whether the guests are your friends or your mother's friends, it is for you to give them cordial welcome and do what you can to make their stay pleasant. If a lady calls to see your mother, do not rush at once into the parlor to see who it is, to stare at her and perhaps annoy her by handling her clothes and asking impertinent questions. Whether you shall go in at all or not depends upon how your mother has trained you. Stop and think whether she likes or does not like to have you come in to see her friends without being called. If she does, it is right for you to go at the proper time and in proper order,

Do not rush in at once; two people are freer to talk by themselves than in presence of a third, so let your mother and her visitor have time to "break the ice" before you go in. Then see if you are in proper plight; do not mortify your mother by going in with hands and faces smeared with the mud with which you have just been making mud pies, or your clothes and hair ruffled with tumbling on the hay. Having made up your mind to go in, open the door wide enough to walk in respectably, not a mere crack through which you can just squeeze; walk through it, turn and shut it gently with your hand, not backing up against it or slamming it together. Go directly to your mother and stand by her quietly until she introduces you, if the visitor is a stranger, or if an old friend, till she addresses you. Answer her courteously, and if she offers her hand, not without, shake hands with her, and then sit down and sit still. If she wishes to talk with you she is to make the first advance, and you are to meet her half way. If she and your mother prefer to continue their own conversation, all you have to do is to listen; it is the height of ill-manners to interrupt them by questions or by any other effort to bring yourself to their notice. Sometimes children who are too well trained to interrupt by talking, do so by drumming with their fingers upon the table, fidgeting around, or doing other things to attract attention. This is worse than speaking right out, it disturbs just as much, and is not so honest. Usually it rests with the elders to make the advance, but you children must meet them half way and bear your share of the conversation. Think of something beside "Yes ma'am" and "No ma'am" to answer; something that will lead on to talk.

You propose giving a party for your young friends. How shall you do it? Think over who will enjoy themselves together and invite them. You can do this by word of mouth, or by invitations neatly written on a whole sheet of paper, with envelope to match. These may be sent by mail, but the nicer way is to deliver them personally. Invitations often bear the letters R. S. V. P., which means, "Answer if you please." Whether invitations bear these letters or not, they should always be answered with regrets if we cannot go. Look up all your amusements beforehand, and see that they are in good order—the swing, croquet-set, the requisites for archery or lawn-tennis, if the party is an afternoon one, and all sorts of in-door games if it is in the evening. Then dress yourself, not in your very best, for a hostess should not be better dressed than the plainest of her guests, but in your second best, which should be pretty, bright, and becoming. As guests come in, your mother and yourself should be near the door to receive them, saying some pleasant things to each and seeing that each has pleasant company to talk to, or some interesting thing to look at. After all have arrived, your mother can leave you if she chooses, or remain, as suits her, but you are to try your very best to make every one of your guests have the nicest time possible. There will always be some shy people who settle down in corners alone. Don't rush up to them and say, "What are you sitting here for, all alone by yourself?" and thus make them more conscious of their shyness. Contrive to bring to them some bright body who can talk and will lead them to talk, till they forget their shyness. When the games commence, see to it that the "other girls" and their brothers have places in the first set—those who would naturally be left out if you did not manage it. Let the favorites of "our set" wait, they can find plenty of amusements.

If there is music, take your share in it, even though you cannot play or sing as well as some others. You do this not to show off, but to make it easy and pleasant for others. If you refuse others will do the same, and thus the pleasure of the company will be marred. Whether you are host or guest never wait to be teased into anything. Some young misses—their older brothers and sisters as well—think it is fine manners to refuse to play, sing, or do anything else for the entertainment of the company, expecting to be coaxed into doing it. This is very bad manners, besides being dishonest. Nine times out of ten you mean to do and wish to do the thing required, but think it will enhance your own importance to make people coax you to do it. You should have such a lesson as Benjamin Franklin had. One morning before breakfast he was sent on an errand to a Quaker neighbor's a mile or two away, arriving there just as the family were sitting down to breakfast. "Will thee not take breakfast with us?" said the old gentleman. The long walk had made Benjamin ravenously hungry, and the meal was very inviting, but he thought it was not quite the thing to accept the first time he was asked, so he said, "No, thank you, I don't wish any," fully expecting to be asked again. But he was not; the family sat down to the table, and the sight of their eating made the hungry boy still hungrier, till he could stand it no longer, and said, "I believe I will have some breakfast with you." "No, thee will not," said the staunch old Quaker; "if thee wanted it thee should have said so when I asked thee." Franklin adds: "From that day to this I have never waited to be coaxed to do anything I was asked to do and wished to do; I always eat breakfast when it is offered me."

When the request to play or sing comes from your parents, it is worse than discourteous to refuse. They have expended much money on your music lessons; the only proper return you can make is to respond cheerfully to their requests for music.

If your party is in the evening, it is your business as hostess to see that no girl goes home unattended. As the guests come in, notice who came alone, and tell your brother and other boy friends who, during the evening, are to arrange to go home with the designated girls. Have this matter settled early. It is very uncomfortable for a girl to feel anxiety all the evening as to how she is to go home; far worse is it to run the gauntlet at the door with the chance that no one will offer to accompany her. Hostesses sometimes forget about these things, or feel a delicacy about "interfering." Do not you, for either cause, fail of doing your duty in this particular. A moment's thought will show you it is the kindly thing to do, and a little tact will enable you to do it in such a manner that it shall seem to do itself. If your guests pass into the dining-room for refreshments, you must also see that all are properly attended and properly served there.—Childhood: Its Care and Culture.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

I REQUEST the prayers of the sisters Prayer Union. I have been afflicted for three years with dropsy of the stomach, and at present I am hardly able to do my household work. I ask to be remembered in the prayers of the sisters. MRS. MARY JANE ANDERSON.

A sister whose husband is out of the fold desires the prayers of the Union, that he may be speedily brought to a knowledge of the truth and a place of safety within the fold.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOU GAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

KEEP this thought always in mind: Don't do things for to-day alone. Remember the influence you exert upon the scholars before you, lasts through eternity.

From the St. Louis District Sunday School Newspaper. WHATEVER the young man lives for includes a future. The glutton and drunkard think of the immediate future, others look farther ahead; but the longer the view into the future, the stronger the reaction on life, and the more elevating the influence.

IN attending to little things it is important not to exaggerate them. It is true that one who attaches no importance to little things will never do great things; but it is just as certain that the man who exaggerates mole hills to mountains is not the man to remove mountains. Moreover, a man who cannot become interested in a mole hill until he has exaggerated it to a mountain, cannot be profitably interested in it after it is exaggerated. It is the man who attempts to strain out a gnat as if it were a camel, who is given to swallowing camels without noticing them.

"Go to bed early on Saturday night, get up early on Sunday morning, and thou shalt be a blessing to the Bible school of the church," exclaims an experienced Sunday school worker. At first glance it might seem to have more conclusion than premises. However, there is a good deal in the suggestion. Many a teacher has often been unfitted for Sunday by a lack of Saturday night rest,—unfitted, not merely to enjoy passively, but unfitted to do active, hearty, earnest, inspiring work in the Sunday school class. Bodily and mental conditions have so much to do with spiritual effects.

"THE spiritual state of a school will not raise higher than the spiritual state of its leaders. How necessary, then, that we should be devotional men and women. Faith is the mainspring of our religion, while devotion winds up the machinery and keeps it in motion."

THE following is taken from the writing of Thomas M. Hammond, on "The Business End of a Sunday school":—

"The Sunday school is an institution—recognized, reputable, and responsible. It has a mission second to that of no institution on earth. It is, in a certain sense, a divine institution; yet it is manned by common, fallible mortals, and has a distinctly material side. It must have money and must have supplies, and must pay its bills all the while that its good work is going on; yes, in order that the good work may go on. Money is money, and bills are bills, and books are books, whether in the church, the school, or the saloon; and we must look after things as they are and as they occur. Business principles sensibly applied, enhance the success of a Sunday school just as much as of a great mercantile establishment; and neglect of business principles will bring dry rot and disaster just as quickly to one as to the other."

"THE Secretary should not be selected upon the basis of the sole qualification of being a "nice boy," or of being "Deacon Johnson's daughter." There must be other items of fitness for the position. The secretary should be, and must be in a successful Sunday school: first, intelligent; second, active; third, always prompt in attendance; and last and always, thoroughly conscientious in every detail of the work."

THE following blackboard design was presented by the General Superintendent at the Bluff Park reunion in reviewing the several successive lessons on "Turning from God."

Explanation: This is God's balance. If the pan of "Good" be filled the pointer will turn toward "God." If the pan of "Evil," the pointer will turn toward "Devil." But if I should hide the pans and you saw the pointer moving toward "God" you would know that the pan of "Good" was being filled. If it were moving the other way, you would know that the pan of "Evil" was being filled. And, if I should hide the pointer, and you should see the pan of "Good" being filled, you would know that the pointer was moving toward "God." But if the pan of "Evil" was being filled you would know that the pointer was turning toward the "Devil." Hence it does not matter which one you see, you know how the other is moving. And so it was with the people of God in olden times and in our times as well. If you see a person doing good you know he is moving toward God; or if you see him moving toward God, you may know he is doing good. And, conversely, if you see one doing evil, you know he is moving toward the evil one, or if you see him moving toward the evil one you know he is doing evil. To whom will you turn and move?

Letter Department.

BANDON, Oregon, Aug. 27.

Editors Herald:—I have not seen anything in your columns for some time from our Washington and Oregon missionaries. We are now about as far west as we can get and still be in the Union. Bandon is somewhat of a seaside resort, as many come here to enjoy the beach. I cannot say that I like the place very much as such a place, as the winds have been quite cool and strong since our coming here until the past few days; but this being my first introduction to the great "briny deep," I have enjoyed it immensely. The beach, boating, and scenery are all new to me, and this in connection with the good meeting we have been having have been a constant delight.

Elders Holt and Chase came to this place almost three weeks ago and set up the gospel tent and after considerable advertising through the town were greeted with a full tent the first night, and they have continued to come up to present time with the exception of last Sunday, when the good Christians or churchgoing people made a little diversion. They secured the largest church for their biggest gun to interest the people, but notwithstanding all their efforts, while they kept many away on that day, the next night after his departure the people came back, most of them, and so we still have a tent full of attentive, interested people. This we judge from the questions found in the question box each night.

There are a great many men of an infidel turn of mind in this place, and those who know Bro. H. can testify of his peculiar adaptability to interest this class of people; so in the congregations each night we notice quite a number of this class. Last night the subject was, "The moral man—what will be his doom?" The help of the Spirit was given to a marked degree during this effort and the people were more than usually pleased. This was manifest in more ways than one, for just as we rose to sing the closing hymn we noticed one of the congregation very quietly taking up a collection for our preacher.

Considerable visiting has been done among those of our congregation and the people are of such a sociable, friendly disposition that it will keep us busy till time to leave to visit all who have invited us, and especially the invitations to dinner; and we must take in all we can of the latter, as Bro. H. is very anxious for the people's welfare hereafter, and likes to give men as many such chances as he can to earn a reward. However, I think a great deal of good can be and is done by a certain degree of sociability with the people who come to hear.

The Grand Army encampment convened in the grove here last week, and our gospel tent preachers were both invited to speak for them, which of course they did. A. M. could not satisfy himself without giving them quite a gospel sermon. Both were well received and appreciated, judging from the praise and applause received; and, too, they remembered them in a more substantial manner.

Our camp now consists of one less than it did a week ago; A. M. is filling a call that came for preaching at Gravel Ford, about thirty miles from here, he being preacher, player, and singer in himself, it was concluded that he with his "pet" (the little organ) would best fill the bill while the rest of us remain here to keep up the meetings. The "rest" are Bro. Holt, Bro. Mallory, of Washington, a music teacher who has been traveling with us this summer for his health and helping with the singing, and Miss Giles, of Myrtle Point, is at present with us. Well, we hear good news from A. M.'s district; he is preaching in an Advent tent that was already set up for him, and having crowded tent and good attention, and thought that if they continued to come he would about tomorrow night have to raise the tent and build seats on the outside; and so the good work goes on.

But as we have gone from place to place this summer and have witnessed the large attentive congregations that come to hear the gospel, many of whom will investigate, ask questions, and say, "It is the truth;" "Tis Bible doctrine;" "I believe every word of it," etc.; but when it comes to obeying it they are not always there. It makes me almost wish it was just a little easier and more popular for people to unite with us. It is surprising to me to see how much greater the prejudice and opposition is here than in the Central States. But this is due somewhat to the fact that the gospel has not been presented as widely here as farther east. Just think, only two missionaries for Washington and Oregon—two whole States! When I see the calls come to them for preaching from all over I cannot help wishing the time to come when the Lord can send more laborers into the vineyard. Some of those good faithful workers we remember around Lamoni would be very acceptable and be of great good among these Oregon hills. I fancy, too, it would be quite an experience to them.

Well, if it does seem to take more determination or true stamina to obey this message, I notice that as a rule it has a more lasting effect; for when we meet those isolated ones, many who have not heard a sermon for years still firm in the faith, it makes me think that God's way or planning of it was best after all; for surely the gospel finds some of the best of the land.

Well, may the time soon come when all the honest in heart will have the privilege of obeying this glorious message, is the prayer of,
Your sister in Christ.

MRS. A. M. CHASE.

EDMOND, Okla., Sept. 5.

Editors Herald:—The Oklahoma reunion closed last night after one of the most peaceful, happy meetings I was ever permitted to attend. From the time the first campers arrived till the close, there was no visible discord; no jealousy, anger, nor strife; but a happy, united effort on the part of all to make the reunion a success.

The attendance was in fact better than had been expected. The farmers being very busy, did not attend during week days, but good turnout at night. On Saturday nights and Sundays the tent would not hold the people. Last night there were nearly as many on the outside of tent as inside. The preaching has been of a kind to win souls to Christ. Good liberty enjoyed by each speaker.

It was decided to make the Oklahoma reunion a permanent meeting. Next one will be in October, 1899. Two were baptized; many who were not acquainted with us, and knew not the difference between the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints and the so-called Latter Day Saints of Utah, have now become friends to us, and favorable to the true gospel.

We are encouraged, thankful, and rejoice in the prospect for Oklahoma mission. The Lord is in the work and moving it on to victory. The indebtedness on the tent was relieved, and the expense of reunion raised with a small surplus on hand.

Next year we hope to see all the saints in the mission come to the reunion and enjoy the same good feast.

We intend to pitch the tent next at Norman.

District conference was held on Wednesday with Vice President S. J. Hinkle in charge. Everything passed off quietly and orderly.

I go home for a few days then return to Norman to be with tent and labor with the trowel. My address for several weeks will be Norman, Oklahoma.

Yours in the work,

R. M. MALONEY.

DELHI, Ont., Aug. 24.

Editors Herald:—Our two-days' meetings at King Lake were a great help to the work. Three have been baptized, residents of King Lake, all heads of families. Elder S. Brown remained with me over a week, then went to Walsingham Centre to build up the work, and I was left to fight the battle alone, and yet not alone, for our blessed Master stood by me in my efforts to teach the way of life. One, Rev. Mr. Griffin, of the Methodist faith, undertook to injure the work by lecturing three Sunday evenings against the church and its organizers, claiming that our blessed prophet and his assistants were bad men, and hence the church was bad, as an evil tree could not bring forth good fruit. We challenged him for a public debate, but he declined and said he was too old. We asked him if his church would furnish a man to meet us. He said he did not think they had a man that would. We then gave notice to the people that we would reply to his lectures the following Tuesday evening and continue to follow him as long as he saw fit to abuse us. We replied in the grove on Tuesday evening as announced. We turned on the light on the organizers of the reverend gentleman's church, they themselves claiming to be evil trees and heirs of hell.

Hear what the founder of his church has to say of himself: "This, then, I have learned in the ends of the earth, that I am fallen short of the glory of God; that my whole heart is altogether corrupted and abominable, consequently my whole life, seeing that an evil tree cannot bring forth good fruit; that alienated from the life of God as I am, I am a child of wrath, an heir of hell."—Richard Watson's History of John Wesley, pages 46 and 56.

He, Wesley, was also charged with high, unwarranted ecclesiastical authority, his conduct towards a Miss Williams, of Georgia, was highly resented by her friends. Thirteen indictments for alleged offenses were found against him, but before the time of trial he fled to England, left under cover of his friends at night. (History of the United States by Wiley, published in 1830, New York.) I also showed his authority was from the Catholic Church, that they term the Mother of Harlots, as he, Wesley, was ordained by the Archbishop of Canterbury, who received his authority directly or indirectly from the Pope. This did not fit very well upon his dear children, so some of them robbed a poor old turkey which was trying to bring forth some chickens for their preachers, and introduced them, shells and all, to me; but they were either poor marksmen or the power that quelled the storm protected me; for I never received a speck upon my person. Some small spots were left on a book I had open at the time; but this was the last I was molested, as I changed the lectures to Sunday afternoons at 2:30.

I continued my lectures for four successive Sundays with good crowds of people to hear. Much good will no doubt result from those lectures, as we showed the church was pure up to Joseph's death, taking Stenhouse and Beadle's, and other works to prove the same. One Methodist lady was baptized after the lecture and several have said to me, "Mr. Tomlinson, those lectures have made ten friends for you to one you had before they began." Several of the reverend gentleman's flock were disgusted at him and say they will give him no more support, neither go to hear him; so again the Lord has caused the wrath of man to praise him.

In June last I went to a miller named Griffin to see if he would contribute something to the building of our church. He said he would sooner sign a petition to drive me out of the country. This was a pretended good Baptist. He gave me quite a lot of abuse. It went well with him until the 22d of July, when he went to Niagara Falls on an excursion and left the sons to run the mills. They lit the fire in the mill one Monday morning and went in to breakfast and while at breakfast the mills took fire, and both gristmill and sawmill and something like sixty thousand feet of lumber already cut and a quantity of logs and a hog pen, all went to ashes, with but a very small insurance. They say it has crippled him. Others who have spoken evil of me here have been smitten, and many have come to the conclusion that it does not pay to fight this work or speak disrespectfully of God's servants; and as the poet has it, "They who fight against Zion will surely be smitten at last."

The work of the Lord is onward here; two have been called to the ministry, Bro. Beemer, the good Samaritan spoken of in my last letter, to the office on an elder, and Bro. Isaac Pearson to the office of a priest. As far as we can judge, these brethren will prove a blessing to the body of Christ. I have notified and requested the presidents of the mission and district to effect an organization here. Asking the prayers of all who may read this letter, to remember us at the throne of grace, and the work in this place, and with love to all,

ELDER S. W. TOMLINSON.

LAKE CITY, Cal., Aug. 31.

Editors Herald:—Perhaps some of your readers would like to know how God's work is prospering in this part of his vineyard. The purpose of this writing is to let you know, and in doing so the writer will endeavor to combine mercy and justice.

Here as well as in some other places it seems hard to secure concert of action among the saints. They do not appear to realize that the maxim, "Unity of action is the hope of our cause," is applicable to gospel work. Its absence is the principal cause of the lack of success where such lack appears to exist. It was by it the work succeeded so well in the way of accessions in the days of Joseph the Martyr. The ministry worked by deep, well-laid plans, and by so doing made every stroke count. The laity, too, were busy as bees, every one making himself a diligent worker in the great hive. Such is not the case in too many places now, for the ministry are working at random and the members are doing practically nothing.

The local ministry are sometimes idle, also waiting for something to turn up, instead of trying to turn up something. The reason that some do not work is more because they have no system to work by than on account of indisposition to labor. Because of this condition the work done is performed in a single-handed manner. Everyone appears to be working along the line which his fancy dictates, instead of laboring by plans digested by common counsel and modified by mutual interest. He seems to be consuming his zeal upon himself and his own sentiments in a vain attempt to see his methods successful. All such efforts scrape the skies and soar among the stars, instead of taking effect upon earth where the beings live who are in need of the gospel.

There is also a degree of pride among the membership which prevents them from embracing existing opportunities, and causes them to fail in the discharge of the duties which lie nearest. By this I mean they fail to make use of their facilities and opportunities, because they are not as good and great as they would like to have them. They are like people who are too proud to wear home-made jeans or flax clothing, but have not the means to purchase anything better. To all such I would repeat the following verse I learned at school:—

Ye who long for work of nobler mold
Learn how little things will aid;
He who digs for precious gold
Must needs use first an iron spade.

This, also:—

Despise not the day of small things.

All the above I say in the spirit of sympathy and regret, rather than that of fault-finding.

There are two things of great strength which we have to encounter out here. They are indifference to the subject of religion, and religious prejudice. The latter is not worse than elsewhere, but the former obtains to a greater extent than anywhere I have been. Only well directed, constant efforts will tell under these circumstances. If our work is scattered and unsystematic, and it appears to have been hitherto, we are compelled to neglect some places so long that the work expires. In the absence of the elder or elders it dies a natural death from indifference, or is assassinated by the prejudice of religious bigots.

Notwithstanding the above there are some as fine saints here as were ever "born again," but we can easily see that Jesus told the truth when he said, "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea and gathered of every kind." It is a sad fact to contemplate that any should enter the church as tadpoles and afterwards become frogs. Wonderful improvement (?), remarkable progress (?).

Bro. F. B. Blair joined me the 16th ult. Both of us are of the opinion that we make a good team. We appear to pull together well. We have had an average interest everywhere we have been. At Canby we baptized two and at Fort Bidwell three. At both of these places the interest was good. At the last named place others had the disposition to covenant with God, but Satan hindered. We expect to return there soon, when we hope to baptize others.

To the saints of this district I will say in conclusion: We are looking for success and will not admit of failure.

In gospel bonds,

A. C. BARMORE.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 1.

Editors Herald:—For three months I have been pounding away with all my might, mind, and strength in the Western Texas district alone most of the time, resulting in the baptism of twelve, to this date, the condition of Bro. Curtis' health preventing him from rendering any ministerial help whatever. The district feels the loss of his labors, as there is no other one to take his place.

This district is sadly in need of a man who could give his whole time. Bro. A. B.

Moore, who did a good work in this part of Texas some years ago, is a man well qualified to labor among this people. He endeared himself to those outside as well as the saints, and I am confident that if those in authority could arrange to send him here to take the oversight of this district grand good would be the result. The work absolutely demands that something of this kind should be done, as I will be obliged to labor in another district where the work demands my attention.

I expect to be at Hearne, Robertson County, Texas, by the 15th of this present month, at which place I hope to receive the quarterly reports of all the brethren laboring in Texas under church appointment. Brethren please be prompt in sending them in.

I would be pleased to hear from any in Central Texas, of the demand for preaching while my address is at Hearne. Brethren, please remember that it takes some money to travel on the trains in Texas, and if I don't visit all places where the work demands, it will be on account of the need of finances.

May our heavenly Master lead and guide his saints for the best good to the work in this field, as well as all others, is the prayer of,
Yours in bonds,

T. J. SHEPPARD.

BOZEMAN, Mont., Aug. 25.

Editors Herald.—Since writing my last, in which I referred to statements made by some of the Utah elders in the western part of the State where they had stated that the Reorganization believed and secretly practiced polygamy, some objections on their part have been made in a round-about way; and lo and behold! some reorganized Latter Day Saint says "they have told the truth;" and for proof refers to the actions of some individual he has heard hasn't done just right, hence the church countenances it: Doesn't this sound just like the argument the Utah Mormons used in congress when the Edmunds bill was pending when they accused the government of polygamy because some of the senators' lives were not in keeping with moral principles?

Is it just to charge a church or society as fostering or practicing corrupt principles because some of its membership have dishonored their calling? If that is correct, every church and society in the land is guilty of upholding vile practices, and if this rule were applied and were true, there would be nothing good, or pure on earth or in heaven. This seems to me like silly twaddle, and should be beneath the dignity of fair-minded people.

I am ready to defend what I said, and the work I represent, and its founder. There is no evidence by which polygamy or its kindred evils can be saddled onto Joseph Smith or the church. I will either defend the work and its founder honestly and conscientiously or politely step down and let some one else do it. I am tired of hearing Latter Day Saints intimate "that they know something." Let us either prove our assertions or keep still. For my part I can make no compromise between the Reorganization and Brighamism. I am ready to receive them with open arms when, like the Spaniards, they sue for peace on the terms laid down in the books. It is unjust, it is unkind, it is inconsistent, especially for some of our own rank and file to say our own church upholds corrupt practices. Hence I ask, "Who are the friends of truth?" In gospel bonds,

GOMER REESE.

FLINT, Mich., Sept. 5.

Editors Herald.—The Flint saints are all rejoicing in the goodness of God to us. We have been struggling on here for the last four years trying to spread the gospel, until we have fourteen in number without any authority among ourselves, and only now and then that an elder stops with us for a few days. But the way has opened so that we are to entertain the Eastern district conference October 1 and 2. There are only a few families of us, but I feel that the Lord is with us. We have procured a hall with all accommodations for that purpose. So we feel that "if the Lord be for us who can prevail against us?" The evil one is hard at work, blinding the eyes of the people that they cannot see the truth.

We have had the promise of the Eastern district tent, so we are all uniting our prayers in behalf of all who are honest at heart that when the truth is placed before them they may see and be desirous of obeying, that the Lord may have a people in this place who will rejoice in a knowledge of him. We invite all who read this, in any part of Michigan or elsewhere, to attend this conference. Flint is so situated that saints from all three districts can attend. We are looking forward for a goodly number and also that all who may come may bring a portion of God's Spirit with them, that it may be said it was the best conference ever known in the Eastern district. All trains from all directions will be met, and it is only three blocks to the hall. So come one, come all. Yours,

SOPHIE COLLINS.

CLEARWATER, Neb., Sept. 5.

Editors Herald.—I have just returned from a tour into Brown and Keyapaha counties, in company with Elder W. W. Whiting, having visited and preached at Inman going and coming. We visited and preached at Meadville, holding seven services. Bro. W. baptized one, a Sr. Dixon, who has been believing for a long time.

We found a little band of noble saints who have been doing valiant service in defending the faith against the opposition, which has been very bitter in some instances. We are expecting to return after a few weeks.

In gospel bonds,

LEVI GAMET.

ELLMORE-EVANS DEBATE.

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 9.

Editors Herald.—The much talked of discussion between Elder R. C. Evans, and William Ellmore, of the Disciple faith, to commence September 5, is now in progress in this city. Last night ended the first proposition, which read, "Is the church of which I, R. C. Evans, am a member, the church of Christ and identical in faith, organization, teaching, ordinances, worship, and practice with the Church of Christ as it was left perfected by the Apostles?"

Many of the saints living in the surrounding country have been in attendance, and here and there they are to be seen and heard expressing their satisfaction in the fullness of the gospel and in the forcible way in which Bro. Evans met the attack of Mr. Ellmore.

Mr. Ellmore has thus far shown himself to be an honorable man. Once or twice though he resorted to a little trickery, but this we attribute to his moderator, Mr. Keffer, who has a well-earned reputation of mud slinging, using both abusive and obscene language. It appeared at first as if Ellmore was going to put up a good fight, and by that I mean nothing pugilistic; but a keen, snappy defense; but every time he advanced a point (for he got into affirming) Elder Evans got after him in such a way that Bro. Ellmore thought the safer way would be for him to avoid making reply, and so gave himself to the fulfillment of prophecy as it relates to Judah.

Elder Evans made a masterly affirmative, which the negative failed to touch after his first night. One of the "tricks" indulged in by Ellmore was to make it appear that he regarded all the different denominations before him as Christians. This, as usual, was done to solicit sympathy. By the records of his own church R. C. showed that they claimed that the Roman Catholic Church is the Mother of Harlots and that the Protestant churches are the daughters of that mother; that the churches were "an adulterous brood" and a "den of thieves;" that the Baptist Church is a relic of popery;" that Methodism is a "counterfeit religion, Christ was not the head of it nor never would be;" that "Calvinism is the defeat of Christianity and a death-dealing system." This effectually checked Ellmore's soliciting sympathy.

Touching the name of the church, after putting up nearly a half hour's speech on it being the "Church of Christ" and not the Church of Jesus Christ, Bro. Evans pressed him so strongly that he said it was the Church of Jesus Christ. The audience saw the point and gave him the laugh and a clap of the hands. Seeing what he had done, he apologized by saying, "It was a slip of the tongue," which only made it worse. Elder Evans told him he hoped his tongue would always slip if that was a necessity to him getting at the truth.

To-night Ellmore is in the affirmative for his church. Large crowds, good attention, clean debate;—we're happy.

More anon,

F. GREGORY.

A hair of the beard of the Prophet has been presented to the Constantinople poorhouse by a lady of that city named Fatma Hanum. A great procession of State officials and military accompanied the relic when the transfer was made.

Professor Hamy estimates that the black race embraces about one tenth of the inhabitants of the globe, or 150,000,000 persons.

Original Articles.

CAN THE AARONIC PRIESTHOOD ADMINISTER THE SACRAMENT?

EDITORS HERALD:—I respectfully ask for space in the Herald to give a few of my reasons for believing the Aaronic priesthood has no right or power to bless the emblems for sacramental purposes. I am not seeking controversy in your columns, do not wish any; but if the question should produce thought in them that think, and they, one or all, have better light and a clearer understanding of the law pertaining to this question, I shall be pleased to hear from them. Address, George Derry, Lamoni, Iowa.

Question: Does the Aaronic priesthood hold the right to bless the bread and wine for sacramental purposes?

As we understand the general tenor and teaching of the law, he does not. We do well to consider. The law of God is based upon a perfect system, bounded and conditioned as the human body. The office work of the different parts of the body are made to work in harmony with each other. The feet cannot take the place of the hands and yet remain in harmony, as intended by the Creator. So we go to the law as we find it in the standard books of the church, and we are told that the law of the Lord is perfect. And that we may better understand it, the Lord has kindly given us a key, in one of the late revelations, by which we may safely arrive at a proper understanding of our duty. In paragraph 8, revelation 1894, it says:—

That part of the law which says: . . . is to be understood by the revelation which went before, . . . and which follows after it in the book.

So with a great part of the law given of God, it must be taken as a whole; no isolated passages will prove the ordinations and teachings of the gospel system. Jesus Christ said, He that believeth, and is baptized, shall be saved; but that does not point out the mode of baptism, nor who shall administer. Paul said, By grace ye are saved; and the Christian world clings to that for salvation. John the beloved writes, Whosoever believeth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is born of God. All these sayings are correct, yet not one or all of them prove the divinity of the gospel ordinances; they do not point out who has authority to baptize, or how the grace or favor of God is obtained, or what kind of a confession is necessary to be born of God; in order to prove that, we must study the law in all its details.

In the law books of the kingdom of which we are citizens, the bounds and conditions are well defined—both initiatory, governmental, and temporal. The law defines the duties and privileges of both officers and members, partaking of both spiritual and temporal; and there is no part of the gospel system, or government of the church, but includes both the spirit and the letter, and calls into operation the highest authority known to man,—namely the law of God. In order that his law may be taught and understood, he has delegated man with authority to act in his name and by his authority. The Melchisedec and the Aaronic priesthood have been given their official duties—are bounded; and the conditions wherein their official acts can be recognized and sanctioned by the great Lawgiver. The higher priesthood governs all the spiritual affairs of the church. The lesser, all the temporal. And after summing up and defining the different offices in the church, in section 53, Doctrine and Covenants, we find this very significant language:—

Therefore, let every man stand in his own office, and labor in his own calling.

Why? That the system may be kept perfect. Again in section 104:—

Wherefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence.

Section 41:—

Hearken, O ye elders of my church whom I have called; . . . by the prayer of your faith ye shall receive my law, that ye may know how to govern my church, and have all things right before me.

It seems every means were afforded by which the elders could be properly instructed in their official duties. There could be no church built and sustained unless the officers built according to the pattern given in the law. Civil law is of no binding force or value unless administered according to the letter of the law. The lesser officers of the civil law honor and respect those holding higher authority, and the strong arm of the law sustains them. The lesser officers may be as good citizens; may be as well educated, and as well versed in law; but they lack legitimate authority to act as judges of the higher courts. The law of God is of no force or value unless administered according to the spirit and letter of the law; and no official in the church is at liberty to go outside the limits or bounds of God's appointment. And no official in the church that desires to be a co-worker with God can afford to change the bounds and conditions of his office. Any willful change destroys the contract,—annuls the conditions. The Lord has said he will not be mocked. Ye shall see that my law is kept. When ye do whatsoever I command you then I am bound; otherwise ye have no promise.

There are two priesthoods; namely, the Melchisedec and Aaronic. Their official acts and duties are in some respects alike; but in others a marked difference; so with the apostle and the elder. The apostle is an elder; but the elder is not, in the same sense, an apostle. The office work of an apostle is, in part, to regulate all the affairs of the church; to set in order all the other officers in the church. He holds the right of presidency, and has power and authority over all the offices in the church, to administer in spiritual things. The office of an elder, holding the same priesthood, is a standing minister of the church; having the watchcare of the membership. Although holding the Melchisedec priesthood, he cannot officiate as an apostle, even if invited through courtesy by apostolic authority. An invitation to perform some official act beyond the jurisdiction or bounds of his office, would not legalize his act, or make it valid. He could not legally act as an apostle, in the full sense of the term.

The Aaronic priesthood bears a very similar relation to the Melchisedec priesthood. Their official acts and duties are in some respects alike, but in others a marked difference exists. The higher can legally officiate in all the duties of the lesser; but the lesser is strictly confined and restricted in his official acts. In section 17:10 Doctrine and Covenants, the Aaronic priesthood is clearly defined as to his official duties in the church; namely, to "preach, teach, expound, exhort, and baptize, and administer the sacrament," because this is strictly a church ordinance, and without the higher priesthood there could be no church. In paragraph 8, we have the duties of the apostle and elder defined in part.

About May 15, 1829, Joseph Smith and O. Cowdery received the Aaronic priesthood. About the same time, as seen in section 16, the Lord made known to them the necessity for calling twelve apostles. In section 17 there is defined the official duties of apostles, elders, priests, teachers, and deacons; and yet no church organized. Joseph and Oliver both held the power and authority of the Aaronic priesthood, and for nearly one year preached and baptized; but no sacrament administered; and why, because they only had power to assist in administering, when there is an elder present in the church. And as yet no church existed—no Melchisedec priesthood had been given. The historian says, We now became anxious to have that promise realized to us, which the angel, that conferred upon us the Aaronic priesthood, had given us; viz., that provided we continued faithful, we should also have the Melchisedec priesthood, which holds the authority of the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. On the 6th of April, 1830, we learn from the record the church was organized by the will and commandment of God. Having called the brethren together, and stating the object of our meeting, to which they consented by unanimous vote, Joseph says, I then laid my hands upon Oliver Cowdery and ordained him an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, after which he also ordained me to the office of an elder of said church. We then took bread, blessed it, and break it with them; also wine, blessed it, and drank it with them.

Question: If the Aaronic priesthood had authority to bless, why did they not exercise that authority before receiving the Melchisedec priesthood? Because there was no elder present, as stated in the instructions, as given by commandment of God in section 17, paragraph 10. The same rule applies to the twelve chosen by Jesus Christ among the Nephites; they had no power to bless while holding the Aaronic priesthood only. It would seem the gospel dispensations have been introduced to the world through the ministry of the Aaronic priesthood. John the Baptist did not presume to act outside the bounds of his official calling. He preached baptism for the remission of sins; told the people that one mightier than he should confer greater blessings. When Christ appeared to the Nephites on this continent, he called Nephi, and afterward twelve others; gave them authority to preach and baptize. He was strict in giving the necessary instructions as to who were proper candidates for baptism; also the proper formula or words to use, and the proper mode of baptism. See Book of Mormon, Nephi 5:14-31, large ed. These twelve evidently held the Aaronic priesthood,—this fact is very plain.

It is said Jesus commanded his disciples

That they should bring forth some bread and wine. And when the disciples had come with bread and wine, he took of the bread, and brake it and blessed it; and he gave unto the disciples, and commanded that they should eat. And when they had eaten, he commanded that they should give it unto the multitude.—Nephi 8:19-23, large ed.

It will appear that these twelve, chosen by the Savior himself, only held the Aaronic priesthood. They had power and authority to preach, and baptize; but not to bless the bread and wine. Verse 24 says:—

Behold, there shall be one ordained among you, and to him will I give power that he shall break bread, and bless it, and give it unto the people of my church. And this shall ye always observe to do as I have done.—V. 24, 25. (Read verses 24 to 30 inclusive.)

He not only gave power to Nephi, but he gave power and authority to the twelve he had chosen. (See Nephi 8:51; also Book of Moroni chapter 2.) The record informs us that he touched, with his hand, the "disciples, the twelve whom he had chosen," one by one, even until he had touched them all, and spake unto them as he touched them; and the multitude heard not the words that he spake. But the disciples bear record that he gave them power to give the Holy Ghost. Jesus afterward appeared to them, and it came to pass that he brake bread again, and blessed it, and gave it to the disciples to eat; and when they had eaten, he commanded them, the disciples, to break bread and give it unto the multitude. He also gave them wine to drink, and commanded that they should give it unto the multitude. And to those men that formerly held the Aaronic priesthood, and to whom he afterward gave power and authority that they should bless both bread and wine, he further emphasizes and instructs, saying, And this shall ye always observe to do, even as I have done, even as I have broken bread and blessed it, and gave it unto you.

And we say this very important command is as enduring as the gospel system; and no official in the church has any right to go outside or inside of that boundary. Another important item connected with this sacred ordinance was, than those men were authorized to bless and administer, were commanded they should not suffer any one knowingly to partake of my flesh and blood unworthily. They were to use all diligence to warn and properly instruct the candidates before partaking of the sacrament, because of the fearful consequences. (See Nephi 8 c.) And if of such importance, that no one should partake unworthily, it is of equal importance that the ordinance should be properly administered according to the pattern and command of Jesus. He said unto the twelve, Remember the words which I have spoken. Behold, I have given you the commandment. Therefore, keep my commandments.

The object in partaking of the sacrament, and properly administering it, is that we may witness unto God that we are willing to take upon us the name of Christ, and always remember him and keep his commandments which he has given, that we may always have his Spirit to be with us.

To my mind the teachings and example of Christ, in the three books accepted by the church as their rule and guide, are so plain that no one need go astray. It is as plain as language can make it, that he holding the higher priesthood, having authority to administer in spiritual blessings, blessed both bread and wine, and gave it to the twelve he had chosen holding the lesser priesthood, having power and authority to administer in outward ordinances, and to assist the apostle or elder when occasion requires. The fact that the priest is restricted in his official duties when there is an elder present is evidence sufficient to show that the lesser has no legal right or power to bless the emblems, and no possible stretch of the English language could make "administer" mean "to bless," and can only be understood as combining the spiritual and temporal together, with the higher and lesser priesthood. Administering makes it harmonious, and without a conflict, as a late revelation says there is no conflict in the law.

Paragraph 8, section 17, Doctrine and Covenants, defines in part the duties of apostle or elder, as given by commandment of God, to take the lead of all meetings.

Paragraph 9 says they are to conduct the meetings as led by the Holy Ghost, according to the commandments and revelations of God. Section 46 says, It always has been given to the elders of my church from the beginning, and ever shall be, to conduct all meetings as they are directed and guided by the Holy Spirit. And we wish to be understood, that no elder or other official, when guided and directed by the Holy Spirit, will ever change one iota of the plain teaching and example of Christ; or willingly ignore one of the least of God's commandments. In 1832 it was said to Joseph Smith and six elders, And your minds in times past have been darkened because of unbelief, and because you have treated lightly the things you have received. And as before stated, if we take the general tenor of the law, there is not a line in the teaching and example of Christ to show that one holding the priest's office has the right to bless the emblems. If there be an elder present HE can legally bless and administer, because he can perform any duties belonging to the priest; but if there is no elder present there is no church; and this is purely a church ordinance, and the lesser cannot officiate because this ordinance is strictly confined to church members. My object in writing my views is not contention. I desire to be right, to be in harmony with the example and teaching of Christ; keep within the bounds or limits of my official duties, and if possible suggest to others what I believe is the safest path to success. I verily believe I am a citizen of the kingdom of God, and section 85 of Doctrine and Covenants makes it plain to my mind, that unto every kingdom is given laws, and unto every law there is certain bounds and conditions. All beings who abide not in those conditions, are not justified; and if there was no other proof, that is sufficient. Therefore, let every man act in his own office, and labor in his own calling, that the system may become perfect. GEORGE DERRY.

LAMONI, July 15, 1897.

"THE CHURCH IN THE WILDERNESS."

BRO. H. L. HOLT wishes to know what is to be understood by the above expression. I will give in brief my opinion. The church in the wilderness is composed of that class of people who exist in the world who would have obeyed the gospel if the gospel had been presented to them, and it will include all such, up to the coming of Christ, as well as little children who die, and all others not being accountable unto God.

Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God.—Mark 10: 14.

And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him [the beast], whose names are not written in the book of life.—Rev. 13: 8.

The names of little children are evidently written in the "book of life," and will remain written there until erased because of their own transgression. John saw that the woman (church) "fled into the wilderness, where she had a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand and two hundred and three-score years." (Rev. 12: 5, I. T.) Wilderness—"State of affliction and desolateness," or destitute of priesthood authority, or in an unseen state so far as man could behold.

Thus saith the Lord unto you, with whom the priesthood hath continued through the lineage of your fathers, for ye are lawful heirs, according to the flesh, and have been hid from the world with Christ in God.—D. C. 84: 3.

This being "hid from the world"—both as to the priesthood and the membership which would have existed had the priesthood been on the earth—is the church in "the wilderness."

The tares choke the wheat and drive the church into the wilderness.—D. C. 84: 1.

If the church "fled into the wilderness," or was driven "into the wilderness," and is "fed" while in the wilderness, then in that case she must be looked upon (at least by the mind's eye) as the church while in the wilderness, and not the "mother of harlots" as spoken of in Revelation 17. For further proof see Doctrine and Covenants:—

And my vineyard has become corrupted every whit; and there is none which doeth good save it be a few; and they err in many instances, because of priestcrafts, all having corrupt minds.—32: 1.

They have all gone astray, save it be a few, who are the humble followers of Christ; nevertheless, they are led that in many instances they do err, because they are taught by the precepts of men.—2 Nephi 12: 14, l. e.

The "few" in both of the above texts, together with little children and the mentally disabled, constitute the "church in the wilderness."

In this, the beginning of the rising up, and the coming forth of my church out of the wilderness.—D. C. 69: 3.

"The rising up" signifies that there is something to rise, and the text shows that that which is to "rise" is the church; and yet this was said in March, 1829, before there was any priesthood or visible membership developed, just as the child may exist before it comes to human view. And as the child could not come out until it first existed in, neither can the church come out (of the wilderness) unless it had existed in the wilderness, as shown by further reference to Doctrine and Covenants:—

That this church have I established and called forth out of the wilderness.—32: 2.

As to the church existing without organization, see Matthew 11: 12, "And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven [or church] suffereth violence," showing that the kingdom of heaven or church existed in John Baptist.

In view of the above there is nothing standing in the way of our position, in that we hold that God has restored both the priesthood and the church. For if the church "fled into the wilderness," where she was "nourished from the face of the serpent,"—or in other words where she was seen and nourished of God, and where she was neither seen of man nor of Satan, thus showing the need of God bringing her into view, which he has done by angel administration and Spirit visitation, acting like himself in blessing his people of his visible church as he did in the past,—who is there that has any just cause for complaints? I say, no one. And those who are willing to despise “wonder and perish,” notwithstanding there will be a work worked in their day that they will not believe, “though a man declare it unto them,” I see no other show than they will have to take the consequences whether they will be satisfied therewith or not. If I have failed to comprehend the subject in hand, or failed to set it forth to the comprehension of others, I stand ready and willing to be forgiven.

J. C. CRABB.

CANTON, Illinois.

THE JOSEPH SMITH INTERVIEW.

THE following letter of Elder Robert J. Parker, missionary of the Reorganized Church to Utah, and the reply thereto by Elder Joseph Luff, of Independence, Missouri, are sufficiently suggestive touching the false and malicious publication made by Messrs. Spencer and company under the title of “Copy of Interview” with “Joseph Smith, President of the Reorganized Church,” as to forever settle the question of the unholy scheme entered into by these evidence manufacturers, and by permission of Elder Luff we give the correspondence to the public, that those who falsified the interview with Joseph Smith and those who seek to maintain the false and absurd publication of the same by Mr. Spencer, et al., by misrepresenting the position of Elder Luff may be rebuked together.

INQUIRY OF ELDER ROBT. J. PARKER.

SPANISH FORK, Utah, Aug. 16, 1898.

BRO. JOSEPH LUFF;

Dear Bro.:—Since we have been laboring here we have had presented to us several times that interview held between four or five Utah elders and Bro. Joseph Smith in your presence. They say Bro. Joseph denied it, but you would not deny it. Would like to have a statement from you regarding the matter. Have had pretty good crowds since coming here. Feeling quite well.

Yours as ever,

R. J. PARKER,

Address SPRINGVILLE, Utah.

REPLY OF ELDER LUFF.

STONINGTON, Me., Sept. 4, 1898.

ELDER ROBT. J. PARKER, Springville, Utah;

Dear Bro.:—Upon my arrival here this morning, yours of the 16th of August was found awaiting me, having been forwarded from home. It finds me with somewhat improved health, for which I feel thankful to God.

Regarding the statement which you say is being circulated there, to the effect that I would not deny the correctness of the report published in the Deseret News regarding the interview had in my house and in my presence, between President Joseph Smith and Elder Spencer and three other elders of the Utah Church, I have only this to say and I put it plainly: IT IS FALSE. I have denied its correctness more than fifty times, and many of the Utah elders whom I have met in various places know that I have denied it with emphasis to them and pointed out some of its almost self-evident falsities. It is a garbled thing in some of its parts. It is disarranged as to the order of the real interview, and in other instances it states the very opposite of what President Smith said. When the thing was first shown to me I denounced it as a vicious misrepresentation of the interview and wrote to President Smith to that effect. I pointed out several of its bad features to different parties.

The statement afterwards published by President Smith relative to the interview is correct, and a copy of it can be had at Herald Office. Surely those people who account President Smith to be a knave will not pretend to believe him to be a fool; yet such he must needs be if in that interview he said what those elders published over their names, for it sets forth a direct contradiction of his public and private utterances and all his writings on the subjects involved, as can be easily discovered by reference to said writings. If Elder Spencer intended to honestly represent President Smith, he ought to have pursued a different course from that which he followed. He pretended to have some questions down in writing and would ask one at a time, then begin writing when an answer was given, and, that too without hearing the answers in full. He never showed us a line he had written nor read a line of it in our hearing. As these men left my house door I turned to President Smith and said: “The next time you hear from that interview you will scarcely be able to identify it,” and the sequel proved that I was correct. It was a scandalous piece of work and far beneath the dignity of men, to say nothing of elders of a church, and you are perfectly at liberty to use this statement from me wherever and however and whenever you please, and to let everybody know that I brand the Deseret News' published report of said interview as an unprincipled thing and as bearing the indications that characterize the work of unscrupulous men.

Experience of several years among men who have been seeking to bolster up Utah Mormonism has confirmed me in the belief that I was slow to accept at first; viz., that it would require more than an ordinary lifetime to follow up and expose the malicious misrepresentations of the Reorganization that have been created and peddled by advocates of the Utah Church philosophy. It may be possible that in Utah, Elder Spencer's word may be taken in preference to ours; but the all-seeing God of truth knows who are publishing the naked facts, and to him my testimony is committed, awaiting the judgment hour.

Yours for truth,

JOSEPH LUFF.

The attempt of these Utah elders under the leadership of Elder Spencer to find a way to meet the position of Pres. Joseph Smith by falsifying the same before the public, is so in harmony with the spirit and work exhibited by the sworn and unscrupulous enemies of Joseph Smith's father, that a person conversant with the methods of the two parties can hardly help believing that the same old spirit of falsifying and open slanderous accusation which actuated the opposers of the Martyr during his fourteen years of public life which pursued him to his death, is the same one which imbues those who accept it as their pious duty to make a warfare against the public work and life of his son. It is the old story over again, of the professed followers of “Moses,” rejecting and misrepresenting the very work that Moses said should be done.

In other societies and in the open warfare against public men and their policies, the honorable and just rule is, to let the parties speak for themselves, and if they deserve condemnation, let it be “out of their own mouths,” or acknowledged utterances; but in the instance of Joseph Smith the Martyr by his enemies, and in that of President Joseph Smith of the Reorganized Church by his enemies, all just and honorable means of opposition to their claims are ignored as useless, and the old crafty spirit that found entrance to its work in the garden of Eden through falsehood and deception, rears its head against these men, and attacks them; not for what they have said or done, either in public or private, but upon the ground of the perversions that these enemies have conjured up, and which the parties themselves did not say nor believe.

Such unholy, unmanly, and despicable methods need not deceive any honest, candid searcher after the truth, whether man or woman, if they will but stop and think. Joseph Smith is a free, independent, American citizen, capable of stating for himself what are his principles and faith, and is upon record both in his public discourses and his numerous publications through the press; and the infamous position that some interviewer has come along and after a conversation with him has succeeded in more properly representing him than he could represent himself, is so absurd and ridiculous that no person can be gulled by it, unless they have an unholy alliance with the perverter of the truth, and greedily deceive themselves in order to sustain a degenerate cause.

The only surprises in this dishonorable attempt are in the fact that any person ever claiming any connection and belief with the Latter Day Saints, who have suffered and endured so much evil by reason of just such methods as employed by Spencer and Company, could be found stooping to the use of such weapons of Satan, and that any newspaper not given over to the destruction by foul and unscrupulous means of the "marvelous work and a wonder" introduced into the world by Joseph Smith, could have been found to publish such absurd and ridiculous work.

It is evident from the unfair and erroneous positions assumed by Spencer and Company that the accuser of the brethren is still trying to get in his work, and Elder Luff has done another good thing for the cause of truth by turning on the additional light.

E. L. KELLEY.

Sept. 5, 1898.

Conference Minutes.

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Annual conference met in the saints' meeting-room, Priestly Road, Birmingham, July 30; Elder H. C. Smith in the chair, W. R. Armstrong secretary. The president stated that no provision was made in the rules for reports from missionaries, but as they were ex officio members of the conference, would be expected to report. Resolved that Elder F. G. Pitt assist the president of the conference. Resolved that Frank Edwards and Herbert Smith be appointed deacons of the conference, and that C. E. Walton be chorister and organist. Resolved that Elder W. Roberts assist the secretary. Resolved that we have read as a matter of courtesy the reports of elders of London branch, now in the hands of the secretary. The Bishop's agent's report for England was presented, and by motion referred to a committee to audit, consisting of Brn. F. Swan, E. R. Dewsnup, and W. Roberts. Resolved that the brethren of Western Wales, movers of a resolution at our conference of 1897, containing a proposed financial system, be allowed to withdraw their resolution, the consideration of which had been deferred until 1898. An appeal from the Penygraig branch against its alleged illegal disorganization was presented. Resolved that the Penygraig branch appeal be referred to a committee consisting of presidents of Birmingham, Manchester, and Sheffield districts, for the purpose of investigation, and that they report to this conference. Elder E. R. Dewsnup here presented the following: "That this conference emphatically disapproves of districts or branches within its jurisdiction making recommendations for the appointment of missionaries unless such recommendation receive the indorsement of a mission conference or missionary in charge." Resolved that the further consideration of the above-named motion be made the special order of business on Monday morning. Resolved that the conference take up and consider the question of the licenses of London branch. Resolved that the licenses recommended by London branch be indorsed. The chairman said that as the rules did not provide that London branch should send in its licenses to conference that the indorsement was of no effect. Resolved that it is the sense of this conference that the rules adopted last conference were intended to take the place of all previous rules. Resolved that we grant to the Sunday school association time from nine to 10:30 Monday morning. The Bishop's agent's financial report from Eastern Wales was presented, by request read, and by motion referred to the auditing committee appointed on the Bishop's agent's report for England.

Monday, August 1. Resolved that the ruling of the chair in declaring missionaries members of the conference be recorded in the minutes. The motion referring to the appointment of missionaries as stated in a proposition by Elder E. R. Dewsnup was now taken up, considered, and being put to the vote was lost. The following was then put and lost. "Resolved that this conference emphatically disapproves of districts or branches within its jurisdiction making recommendations to the general church authorities for the appointment of missionaries to labor in the European Mission unless such recommendation receive the indorsement of the mission conference." Two p. m. The following report of the committee on Bishop's agent's reports presented, approved, and ordered spread upon the minutes: "We have examined the Bishop's agent's report for Eastern Wales district and find that the credit balance of 12s. 9½d. should be 12s. 11½d., this amount being due to the agent. The calculations in other respects are correct. We have made the correction on the balance sheet. We have examined the Bishop's agent's report for England and find that the total in his book was incorrect, and that there were items omitted on the balance sheet which were shown in the book. We have made the necessary additions and corrections, and find that the balance in hand is £83. 5s. 5d. instead of £81. 18s. 5d. a difference of 27s. ($6.48.) The error is simply a clerical one. We have had no vouchers or papers supplied us for the items of expenditure, and we are therefore unable to report as to the legitimacy of payments." Resolved that we tender our best thanks to Elder H. C. Smith of the apostles' quorum for his services during the time he has been in charge of the European mission, and hereby desire to place on record our high appreciation of the honorable and straightforward manner in which he has discharged his duties. Further, that we desire to place on record our appreciation and approval of the report sent by him to the conference in America, April, 1898, relating to the work in this country, and further, that in the opinion of this conference the time has come when the proper authorities of the church should take under consideration the suggestions contained in that report and devise means whereby the missionary work in this country may be prosecuted by brethren from among the ministry in this country.

Expressions of esteem and deep regard for Bro. H. C. Smith and his labors were made by a number of the ministry present. His straightforwardness, impartiality, and strict attention to duty were especially mentioned.

In reply, Bro. Smith said: "It is always satisfactory to me when I receive the confidence and respect of my brethren, but I never depart from the line of my duty to obtain it, and I have never made any efforts to please anybody. When I go from this place I go having a better understanding and also with a higher appreciation of you. I was told by some one when I left America that I would find an Englishman a very hard man to handle. I told them I did not want to handle anybody, and do not wish anyone to be handled by me even if I could. I am satisfied that the brethren here are deeply concerned in regard to this work and its progress, and their love for it is as strong as that of the brethren in America. So far as my official action is concerned in regard to this mission, I go acting upon a basis that I can trust you, and shall be pleased to do so. I wish to call your attention to some particulars of that resolution, that is, that you think the time has come when the mission work here can be done by native elders; and I would say that it would be well to be ready with men to recommend when the time shall come—men that are willing to sacrifice home. I formally delegate this mission to Elder F. G. Pitt, and pray, and shall pray that God may be with him, and that his work will be more successful than mine. And now allow me to introduce to you Bro. Pitt, president of the European mission."

Bro. Pitt, who was much affected said: "Brethren, in accepting this new position I do so feeling the weight of the responsibility of a position as I have never felt before. I have been called to act in positions before where I have felt the weight of responsibility, but never as I feel the weight of this responsibility. I ask you to sustain me with your prayers for the work's sake. I cannot expect to fill the place of my predecessor, but I can truthfully say that I will do the best I can. Remember when you see my weakness and failures that I was not appointed to this mission because I was seeking after it. I never sought it, and in this service I am only occupying because some one else has placed me here, and they must be responsible for that. My strongest desire is to see this work advance. We may differ in our methods, but I hope we will be honest in our differences. One thing I ask, that if you see anything you think is not right, please tell me about it. Don't talk about it; it injures the work. The work is above all personal ambition and thought. I ask you for the work's sake to sustain those placed in authority; not only the missionaries but those in the branches. I can assure you that to the best of my ability I shall labor for the interest of the work. I shall feel a loss as well as you in losing our Brother Smith here."

Resolved that the full fares of Brn. Smith, Pitt, and Newton be paid from the last place they left to attend conference. Resolved that when the conference adjourns it does so to meet at the place to be decided by the missionary in charge. Resolved that we sustain the local and general authorities of the church. A vote of thanks was awarded the brethren and sisters of Birmingham branch, also Mr. and Mrs. Udall, for their hospitality to visiting brethren and sisters. Resolved that we sustain the secretaries and treasurer of the mission. Resolved that we tender our best vote of thanks to the secretary of the mission for the indefatigable way in which he has performed his laborious duties during conference; also the assistant secretary. Resolved that a vote of thanks be awarded Bro. T. Taylor for his services as Bishop's agent; also Bro. Gould of Eastern Wales. The following report of the committee on the Penygraig appeal case was read and adopted: "From the documentary evidence presented, and from evidence of brethren examined by us, we gather that the committee appointed by the district conference of the Eastern district of Wales in reference to the Penygraig branch were appointed to investigate the affairs of that branch and report their labors to next conference of said district, and in our opinion the act of disorganization of the Penygraig branch is premature and the said branch remains an organization until action of the district conference be had on the report of the committee they appointed. (Elders C. H. Caton, J. Austin, and J. Dewsnup, Sen., committee.)" Resolved that Bro. Caffall's testimonial be forwarded, the cost of framing defrayed, and our thanks be tendered Bro. W. R. Armstrong for writing and illuminating the same. Resolved that a letter of condolence be written and sent by the secretary to Sisters Hoole and Gell, of Sheffield, the wife and mother respectively of our late brother, Elder H. Hoole, who was instantly killed at his employment in Sheffield, January, 1898.

Sunday, July 31. The morning service was in charge of Elder F. G. Pitt, assisted by Elder W. R. Armstrong. Elder Pitt, the speaker, said he would have a familiar talk with those present upon the methods to pursue in order to spread our cause. The discourse was delivered in plain language, which all his hearers, mainly saints, understood. The afternoon testimony meeting was in charge of Elder William Newton, whose wife and daughter were present. He was assisted by Elder T. Taylor. Testimonies were borne and the gifts of the Spirit were manifested to the joy and comfort of all present. The evening meeting was in charge of Bro. Smith, who was assisted by Bro. F. Swann. The former addressed a full house from Hebrews 13: 1-11. He showed what true progress is; that it is individual and within the body first, then without. We could make progress without adding to our numbers; God would attend to that if we did our part. Our mission was shown to be among the poor of the earth. (It has ever been so in these islands.) He exhorted all to personal holiness, and showed that true merit only would be rewarded. He spoke scornfully of any ministry truckling with politicians or seeking to please the wealthy and "better classes" (?). The only better class God would recognize, and we could recognize, were those who kept his laws.

The Manchester and Sheffield district Sunday school association held its business session on Monday morning at 9:25 a. m. Elder Pitt presided in the absence of Elder Mather. Eleven schools were reported, with a membership of nearly 600 scholars. Officers were elected for the ensuing year, and reports read. The association are sorry to lose our esteemed brother, E. R. Dewsnup, who has been an active member of our association; and we unitedly pray that God's blessing may attend him while presiding at Graeceland—not as an Englishman, but as a saint.

POTTAWATTAMIE.

Conference at Hazel Dell, August 27; J. P. Carlile presiding, J. A. Hansen secretary pro tem., Jennie Scott assistant. Statistical reports: Boomer 25. Council Bluffs 256; 1 baptized, 1 received, 2 removed. Crescent City 135; 3 received, 4 removed. Hazel Dell 68; 1 received. North Star 98; 3 received. Wheeler's Grove 85. Fontanelle, no report. Total gain in the district, 3 by baptism. Elders reporting: H. Kemp, H. N. Hansen, Joshua Carlile, D. Parish, S. C. Smith, R. McKenzie, D. R. Chambers, Isaac Carlisle, S. Butler. Priests: C. J. Carlson, C. C. Larson, P. M. Hansen, S. Underwood, P. Rasmussen. Teacher P. W. Frederickson. Deacon H. Hansen. J. P. Carlisle, Bishop's agent, reported: On hand last report, $23.50; collected since, $225.95; total, $249.45. Sent to Bishop E. L. Kelley, $125; paid to ministry, $95; paid to poor, $13; total, $233. Balance on hand, $16.45. A balance of $5 left from collection for delegates' expenses to the General Conference was ordered paid to Bro. S. Butler, who had been unable to go. A committee appointed last conference to audit the accounts of the Bishop's agent reported finding the same balance reported to this conference by the agent. On motion the following was adopted: Whereas, The Lord has said in his law to the church, The several elders composing this church of Christ are to meet in conference once in three months, or from time to time, as said conference shall direct or appoint, and as the law must be honored by those whose calling is to teach it, that their labors may be effectual and with the object in view that a harmonious effort may be put forth by the ministry of God; be it resolved, that this conference remind the eldership of their duty to report to the district conference either in person or by letter, and the district president be requested to labor with the negligent, and that he be further requested to report the heedless to their respective quorums, and if not enrolled to demand their license. On separate motions the following were sustained: J. P. Carlile president and Bishop's agent, J. C. Jensen Secretary. Adjourned to meet at Carson, Iowa, November 26.

OHIO.

Conference at Vales Mills, August 27, 28, 29. G. T. Griffiths and James Moler chosen to preside. A. W. Kriebel secretary pro tem., H. E. Moler assistant. Ministry reports: High Priests: James Moler, S. J. Jeffers; of the Seventy: J. L. Goodrich, H. E. Moler, Thomas Matthews; Elders F. C. Smith, A. W. Kriebel, V. M. Goodrich, A. B. Ervin; Priests Thomas W. Rhoades, Keith Hill, Hiram K. Smith, Charles Hunter, James Moore. Bishop's agent reported: Receipts $438.42; expenditures $427.59; balance due church $10.93. Audited and found correct. Branch reports, Liberty, Bierly 28, Syracuse 29, Vinton 100, Highland 69, Byer 64, Milton 54, La Grange 55, Hocking Valley 74, Creola, Middletown, and Hemlock, no reports. James Moler reelected district president, S. J. Jeffers associate, Hiram K. Smith elected clerk, S. J. Jeffers sustained as Bishop's agent. A vote of thanks was tendered by the conference to Bro. G. T. Griffiths, our retiring missionary, for his long, kind, impartial, and efficient services in the district as missionary in charge. A vote of thanks also tendered Sr. O. H. Riggs for services as district clerk. Preaching by J. L. Goodrich, Prof. Weethey, G. T. Griffiths, F. C. Smith, D. L. Shinn. Adjourned to meet at time and place the district officers shall designate. A peaceful, quiet conference. On Sunday hundreds came in from the surrounding country and almost every one seemed happy.

NEVADA.

Conference at Fairview, Carson Valley, August 28; T. R. Hawkins president and secretary. On motion T. W. Chatburn, missionary in charge, was chosen president of conference. Branch reports: The clerk of the district stated there were errors in the branch records. He had the books in his possession correcting the same, consequently the branches could not make any report. The reports were laid over to next conference. Elders reports: T. W. Chatburn stated he had preached but little since being in Nevada; trying to become acquainted with the saints and others; wanted conference to outline the route where the most good could be accomplished. D. R. Jones and T. R. Hawkins reported, also Priest Robert Trimmer. Bishop's agent, D. R. Jones, reported funds on hand $14.30. Report of the tent committee: Only two being present, stated that there was but a small sum collected, and the amount of $30 collected by one of the committee (not present) was not available at present. After some discussion the matter was laid over to next conference. Some timely remarks were made by T. W. Chatburn. On motion, as Bro. Chatburn is to remain in Nevada mission until 1899, that he act as district president until next district conference. T. R. Hawkins sustained as district clerk. Afternoon, sacrament and testimony; very enjoyable meeting. Preaching in the evening by T. W. Chatburn to a large and attentive audience. Adjourned to Diamond Valley, November 6, at eleven a. m.

Sunday School Associations.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

According to adjournment of 1897 the Sunday school association met at Takaroa, April 3, 1898, at eight a. m. The following officers were chosen to preside over the convention: Tapu president, Louis Bellais and Pou (of Manihi) associates, Teuira secretary. Reports were received from the following Sunday schools: Kaukura, Arutua, Niau, Apataki, Makatea, Tikahau, Maratua, Rairoa, Tarona, Takaroa, Manihi, Takapoto, Anaa, Raroia, Mahu, Taahuia, and Huahine,—the last three being on the island of Tubuai, also Taenga. Reports from Sr. Case, Tapu, and Teuira were read and accepted. A portion of the Christmas offerings were then handed in, $44.40. Adjourned till Monday at eight a. m., at which hour the convention was again assembled and business resumed. The minutes of the former meeting being read and received. Sr. Case's request to be released from the office of superintendent of the association, because of her removal to America, was received, and the following officers for the association duly chosen: Tapu superintendent, Emma Burton and Pou (of Manihi) associates, Teuira native secretary, Emma Burton foreign secretary. The convention then considered about the Sunday school lessons; motion prevailed to adopt the Gospel Quarterlies; and further, that those lessons be printed in book form with paper covers, embracing lessons for one year. And further, Resolved that seven hundred and fifteen such lesson books be printed in the Tahitian language, confining the lessons to one page each of Autumn Leaves size. And also, Resolved that the Christmas offerings be put in the hands of the printing committee to defray the expense of printing said lesson books. The business of the convention having been completed, the meeting adjourned till eight a. m., Tuesday, April 5, which would be the opening of the "Mahaua oa oa." Before the hour arrived, that spacious Niau building was packed with people, young and old, in "gala" apparel. White predominated. Here and there a heavy crimson velvet, and a few shimmering satins—black, scarlet and canary yellow. I was sorry to see those; the soft white lawn looked so much prettier and more becoming too. The exercises filled the entire day. The classes were large and numerous. The exercises were very interesting. A greater variety of subjects, and executed in a more entertaining manner than those of a year ago, indicating progress here as well as elsewhere, the which we noted with pleasure. Those of Tarona, Papeete, having had a sample lesson from the "quarterlies," and been instructed by the missionary in charge, in the method adopted by the Sunday school at Independence, briefly illustrated a Gospel Quarterly school, which was well received. A number went through with their Christmas exercises. Several made selections from the "Orometua," among which was a part of Bro. Joseph's first epistle to the church, written in 1861; also the portion of a letter written to the saints here by Bro. Luff, in a letter to Mr. Burton. This was had in both recitation and song. The Kaukura saints having adjusted it to music, they take great pleasure in singing it. Also sang several new pieces taught them during the year by Bro. and Sr. Case, and three by Sr. Burton. The Tikahau saints sang two pieces from the Gospel Hymn Book in what they supposed to be English, assuming the English sounding voice. The natives sing from the mouth rather than from the throat. Both of these pieces—one of which was "Pull for the shore," were well rendered, and being something new, was highly appreciated. They were indebted to a lady from New Zealand for their instruction and thorough drilling. But the most interesting of all—to us at least—was a class of five little children from Anaa. They first sang a song, then commenced at the twenty-first verse of the third chapter of Luke, where is given the lineage of Christ, and recited simultaneously the balance of the chapter without a moment's hesitation or ever once having to be prompted. When the recitation was finished they struck off into a hymn in the next breath, sang it through, and each dropped down on one knee, bowed their heads, raised their clasped hands, and said the "Lord's prayer," and retired.

I regret much to say there were only three small classes of children in all those exercises. The Mau Matutu—a kind of dialogue on scripture—occupied from two to three hours of each evening during the entire week. Christmas offerings for the year, $92.
E. BURTON, Secretary.

MANCHESTER AND SHEFFIELD.

The Manchester and Sheffield district Sunday school association held its annual convention in the saints' meeting room, Priestly Road, Birmingham. In the absence of Elder Mather (Supt.) Elder F. G. Pitt presided. A letter from Bro. Mather explaining his absence was read. After the delegates' credentials were read it was resolved that all Sunday school workers present should be allowed to have voice and vote in the assembly. The secretary reported eleven schools with a membership of 581. The number of officers 60, classes 46, and teachers 45. The following schools were reported by their superintendents: Claycross, G. E. Holmes; Farnworth, D. Hope; Hunslet Carr, E. H. Tordoff; Leeds, G. T. Girdham; London, J. Worth; North Manchester, H. Greenwood; Northeast Manchester, F. Tappin; South Manchester, S. F. Mather; Salford, John Taylor; Wigan, W. Hankin; Sheffield, Joseph Arber. The financial was now considered and satisfactorily disposed of. A letter from Bro. Pitt suggesting that our schools purchase copies of selections from Winnowed Songs, which could be had at a cheap rate. The matter was deferred. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the following being returned: Elder S. F. Mather superintendent, W. R. Armstrong secretary, Elder W. Robert assistant secretary, Elder C. H. Barton treasurer. The above meeting was adjourned for want of time, and will meet again on Saturday, October 1, 1898, in the North Manchester meeting room. All workers in Sunday schools are invited and will be duly notified.

WM. R. ARMSTRONG.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

Northeast Missouri district association will convene at Pollock, Friday, September 23, at nine a. m. for prayer service, ten a. m. for business. Your secretary regrets that she cannot be present with you, for she has long anticipated this meeting at Pollock; but being called to leave you and depart to another part of God's vineyard, I earnestly plead and ask all interested workers to be present, as this will be the first time the convention has been held there. It needs all workers to be aroused to a full sense of their duty to make it a success. Regretting indeed that I cannot be present with you, I now bid you the Northeast Missouri district association farewell. May the peace and blessings of the Master be with you always, and his Holy Spirit be present to comfort and cheer you shall ever be my prayer and desire. Please bring your notebooks, Winnowed Songs, and quarterlies, and especially the Spirit of the Master, and your efforts will be crowned with success.
ALLIE THORBUN, Sec.

Pottawattamie convention will convene at Carson, Iowa, October 1 and 2, at two p. m. Everyone kindly invited. Each school in the district is requested to send delegates and also a complete report to this convention.

JENNIE SCOTT, Sec.

Miscellaneous Department.

BLUFF PARK REUNION.

The saints and friends began to assemble quite early on August 19, a number coming the night before. The camp was very busy, all hands trying to get settled for the session. A preliminary meeting was called at 7:45 p. m., and Joseph Smith, J. R. Lambert, and W. H. Kelley were chosen presidents or directors of the meetings, F. M. Weld secretary, James McKiernan chorister, with privilege of choosing his assistants and organists. Brn. D. Tripp, R. Williams, A. S. Hall, L. Willey, and others were chosen special policemen; after which Joseph Smith gave one of his characteristic talks for about forty-five minutes, to open the session.

The attendance was estimated as high as 800 to 1,000, many coming by team, some by boat, and others by rail. All present seemed to enjoy themselves, being impressed with the spirit of the gathering, expressing themselves desirous of returning next year.

The preaching was excellent, even above the average, and enjoyed by outsider as well as saints. The forty-two sermons were delivered by the following: Joseph Smith 11, J. R. Lambert 5, W. H. Kelley 5, G. H. Hilliard 6, I. M. Smith 7, James McKiernan 1, J. S. Roth 2, E. A. Stedman 1, J. C. Crabb 1, J. W. Adams 1, J. A. Gunsolley 1, C. E. Willey 1.

The following brethren gave good service in assisting the speakers and presiding over prayer meetings in which the Spirit of God was manifestly felt. William Anderson, J. S. Snively, F. M. Weld, E. B. Morgan, H. T. Pitt, William Lambert, E. A. Smith, F. E. Cochran, and L. Willey.

During the session nine precious souls were led into the waters of baptism, by Brn. Joseph Smith, J. S. Snively, E. B. Morgan, and J. S. Roth.

The Sunday school in its several sessions under the management of Brn. Hougas and Gunsolley, while not as largely attended as we would like to have seen, were good and instructive; also the Religio in its sessions, which were excellent and demonstrated to all present its true worth as an auxiliary to the church in preparing the young for usefulness.

On Wednesday, August 31, a business meeting was called, in which it was decided to hold a reunion again next year. A committee of three was appointed to locate the time and place, James McKiernan, William Anderson, and J. S. Snively. A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring committee for their faithful service; especially should Brn. Anderson and Snively be commended.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Decatur district conference will convene at Davis City, Iowa, October 8, ten a. m. Branch officers will please take notice, and see that their respective branches are properly reported. Branch and ministry reports forwarded to the secretary should reach him by Thursday, October 6, at Lamoni, Iowa.

B. M. ANDERSON, Sec.

By order of Missionaries in Charge.

Conference of Chatham district will convene with Zone branch, October 1, at ten o'clock a. m. Officers of branches will please see that their branches are correctly reported.

GEORGE GREEN, Pres.
RICHARD COBURN, Sec.

Northern Nebraska district conference will convene Saturday, October 1, at Fremont, Nebraska. Let all branches have their reports ready (using the blanks furnished by the church as per conference resolution), and with their credentials send them to the secretary before the convening of conference. Branch clerks, please take notice; don't fail. It is desired to have a full report of all labor done in the district, therefore all elders and priests are requested to send in a written report, and such teachers and deacons who have done preaching out of their respective branches please be sure and report it in writing. The Sunday school convention is expected to meet on Friday, September 30, at the same place. Be sure and send all reports and credentials to James Huff, Fremont, Nebraska, in care of J. P. Ogard.

NELSON BROWN, Pres.

Nauvoo district conference will convene at Rockcreek, October 1 and 2. Branch presidents, please see that your reports are in the hands of secretary, R. Warnock, Farmington, Iowa, or sent to me at Adrian, Hancock County, Illinois, care G. P. Lambert, early. Saints, let us all sacrifice sufficient to attend the conference and do our duties and advance the cause to the best of our ability.

F. M. WELD, Pres.

The Far West district conference will be held on Saturday and Sunday, September 24 and 25, with the Wakenda branch, in Ray County, Missouri. It would please us to see a good representation.

DANIEL E. POWELL, Pres.
CHARLES P. FAUL, Sec.

REUNION NOTICES.

To whom it may concern: The Rocky Mountain reunion will convene in Ogden, Utah, in the Utah tent, lasting October 4 to 11. A general invitation is hereby extended. Come prepared for a week's camping and spiritual enjoyment. Don't forget the date. On behalf of committee, J. W. WIGHT.

Woodbine reunion, September 16 to 26. It is raining to-day, and now looks like the dust would be fully overcome. Grounds are in good condition, and arrangements are being made to accommodate all who come. Good board, also lodging, can be had with Mr. Butler on grounds, also at private houses up town at very reasonable rates. We look for a large gathering, and let us pray that it may be spiritual as well.

S. B. KIBLER, Chairman.

BORN.

BROWN.—At Lenora, Kansas, October 15, 1897, to Bro. and Sr. Horace E. Brown, a son; named Horace Erwin; blessed at Leon, Iowa, by Elder H. A. Stebbins, assisted by Elder J. M. Brown, the grandfather of the child. The mother passed away to rest some weeks ago.

HORTON.—To Mr. Eugene and Sr. May Horton was born June 17, 1898, in Chicago, Illinois, a darling little daughter, to whom they gave the name of Viola Lillian. She was blessed at the saints' church in Chicago, August 21 by Elder J. M. Terry. Such are beautiful types of the kingdom of heaven.

DEVRIES.—John B. A., son of Bro. John B. and Sr. Ellie Devries, born at Oland, Harrison County, Missouri, October 18, 1896. Rhea Adentha, born same place, June 17, 1898. Blessed August 28, 1898, by Elder H. N. Snively.

DIED.

AVERY.—Sr. Martha Avery, born in Ontario, Canada, May 12, 1832, died July 22, 1898. She has been a resident of Nebraska for forty-one years, and leaves two boys and two girls to mourn. Her companion preceded her twenty-eight years ago. Funeral at her home, ten miles west of Omaha; sermon by Elder F. A. Smith, in the presence of a very large concourse of friends.

PRUYN.—At Davis City, Iowa, August 24, 1898, Sidney A., son of Bro. Theodore and Sr. Marietta Pruyn, aged 19 years and 19 days. It was a very brief illness. He was born in Black Creek, Wisconsin. His parents came to Decatur County when he was a babe. He is said to have been a noble-minded, conscientious young man, honest and just. He had not obeyed the gospel, though he believed it. Like many others he put off obedience, and the call hence came suddenly. The sermon was in Davis City chapel by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

HARRIS.—At Andover, Missouri, August 20, 1898, Sr. Susie E., wife of Bro. Charles Harris, aged 23 years, 4 months, and 1 day. Was a daughter of Bro. Edward Lampkins who died near Lamoni, on August 3, 1898, and she and her husband came from their home in Standley, Indian Territory, to see him, but arrived too late. She was taken ill a week later, and died at the home of Bro. Peter Harris. She leaves a little boy with his sorrowing father. She was buried at Lamoni cemetery, the sermon by Bro. H. A. Stebbins, assisted by Bro. R. M. Elvin. Sr. Susie was baptized in 1893, and was a good daughter, wife, and mother.

DAVIS.—Elder Robert Davis was born March 16, 1815, in Ireland. Was baptized March 18, 1869, at Lewisville Ontario; was ordained an elder July 24, 1869, by J. H. Lake. Bro. Davis on hearing the gospel believed it from the first, and walked forty miles to be baptized. Since his ordination, Bro. Davis has been engaged nearly all of his time in the ministry, and has done much good among men. He passed through cloudy and dark days, but remained in the faith, and ever bore his testimony to the truthfulness of the restored gospel. His labors were chiefly in Canada and Michigan, where he has baptized over four hundred people into the church. Bro. Davis was only sick a few days when he passed peacefully away, and retained his right mind until his spirit left for the paradise of God to wait the resurrection of the just. Funeral sermon by Elder David Smith.

MILLER.—Clyde Allen, son of Bro. Robert and Sr. Rhoda J. Miller, was born April 24, 1898, blessed June 5, by Elder F. J. Smith, and passed away in Cleveland, Ohio, August 17. Funeral sermon by Elder E. H. Garrett.

YOUNG.—Bro. G. J. Young, at Livermore, Alameda County, California, August 26, 1898, in the sixty-third year of his age. He leaves a wife and large family, of mostly grown up children to mourn their loss. He died in the faith and has gone to his rest to await the resurrection of the just. Funeral services at his home, where a large circle of friends assembled to bid farewell to the departed. Services conducted by C. A. Parkin.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844,—to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound$1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.
G. A. R. National Encampment, Cincinnati, Ohio, September 5-10, 1898. Returning not later than September 13. An extension of time till October 2 can be obtained. Special G. A. R. train leaves Chariton 4:50 a. m., arriving Cincinnati same day at 9:05 p. m. Round trip from Lamoni $14.05.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth	$1 00
Sheep or library binding	1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 75
Morocco, gilt edges	2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges	3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth	$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia	1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible.....	2 00

THE BOOK OF MORMON. Large Type Edition.

Cloth, leather backs and corners..	$1 50
Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges	2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth	$0 65
Morocco Grain Russia	1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible	2 00

THE TWO RECORDS. The Book of Mormon and the New Testament. (Inspired Translation) in large type; in one volume.

Leather back and corners	$2 00
Seal Grain Russia	2 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	3 50
Morocco, gilt edges	4 00

NEW TESTAMENTS. Inspired Translation. Pocket-size edition.

Cloth	$0 30
Cloth sides, leather back	50

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6½x8½, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net

.....	$2 00
-------	--------

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Rules for the government of general and district conferences, branch business meetings, and other assemblies. Instructions concerning general, district, and branch records, the holding of elder's courts, etc., cloth bound; price 40 cents.

GRACELAND COLLEGE,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Telephone 71.

For catalogues or further information, Address, PROF. ERNEST R. DEWSNUP, President, or R. S. SALYARDS, Secretary, LAMONI, IOWA.

THE INSTRUCTOR. A compendium of the faith and doctrines of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by Elder G. T. Griffiths.

Cloth	$ 75
Leather.....	1 00
Flexible binding	1 50

JOSEPH THE SEER. His prophetic mission vindicated and the divine origin of the Book of Mormon defended and maintained.

Paper	$0 35
Cloth, limp.....	50

THE SAINTS' HYMNAL. The popular edition of words and music, in general use.

Paper covers	$0 30
Cloth and leather	50
Full leather	1 00
Gilt edges.....	1 25
Flexible	1 50

THE SAINTS' HYMNAL. Word edition.

Paper	$0 15
Cloth	25
Cloth	35

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

Branch statistical reports; per doz.	$0 40
Annual statistical reports; two for	05
Certificates of baptism and membership; per dozen.....	12
Baptism and confirmation certificate books, with stubs	25
Certificates of removal; per dozen..	12
Marriage certificates; per dozen ...	25

THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS. A book for small children. Cloth...$0 20

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer, President.
 Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.

W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address,
 I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

BRO. E. F. ORDWAY, of Peoria, Illinois, will send 3 boxes of Quit-to-Bac post paid anywhere for $1.50, and positively guarantee it to cure your tobacco habit, or your money refunded.

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.

The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a

Reward of $200

By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns.

TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.

It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State

PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.
 DES MOINES, IOWA.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL COMMITTEE REPORT. A manual of evidences in support of Book of Mormon archæology, with maps. Price $0.50

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Machine that Talks Talk

FINER THAN EVER! The Latest Improved Graphophone, the highest perfection of the inventor's skill. The most wonderful invention of the age, now at a price within the reach of everyone. For home amusement, this will entertain a company by the hour. Well made and durable. Winds up like a clock, and so simple that a child can operate it. From $10 to $20 a day made last fall by hundreds of its users by giving entertainments. We guarantee the Improved Graphophone loud and clear enough to be distinctly heard in any hall or church anywhere. Plays all of Sousa's band pieces exactly as rendered by that famous band—Drums, Cornets, Trombones and all. Recites. Tells funny stories. Will repeat your own voice, your friends' voice, songs sung to it, or stories told to it. You can make your own Records easily and reproduce them at once as often as desired. Has been known to pay for itself in a single evening. Price $10, includes Improved Eagle Graphophone, 1 Extra Loud Aluminum Reproducer, 1 Concert Horn, Hearing Tubes for 2 persons. (If hearing tubes for more than 2 persons are desired, we will furnish them at the rate of 50c for each person.)

PRINCE OF ENTERTAINERS

Best Exhibition Records, (Musical or Talking) 50c each, or $5.00 a dozen. 20c
SPECIAL PROPOSITION Write at once for circular telling how you can secure one of the above outfits, with 12 Records for the trifling sum of COUNTRY DEALERS Should secure at once a sample of our new $20 Slot Machine. Made of bronze. Very attractive. Operates automatically. Requires no attention whatever. Can be placed on top of show case or on a counter. About 10 inches high and 12 inches long. Simply coins money for the dealer owning it. Price $20.00 net. Will sell on $1.00 weekly installments to responsible dealers if desired.

Complete New Graphophone and Record Catalogues mailed free on application. Address, Harger & Blish, Western Selling Agts. 904-910 Main St., Dubuque, Iowa.

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.

NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.

Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.

Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.

THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture and Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.

GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas.

Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery.

Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to

RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS

SEPT. 6
SEPT. 20
OCT. 4
OCT. 18

These are the days on which you can buy very low-rate round-trip Excursion Tickets to NEBRASKA and other points in the West, Northwest and Southwest, good for 21 days. Stop on your way and see the GREAT TRANSMISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION AT OMAHA.

This road publishes an illustrated pamphlet describing Nebraska, and also one about the Omaha Exposition. You can get both without charge on application to the C. B. & Q. ticket agent or to P. S. EUSTIS, General Passenger Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill.

Go and look for a New Home in Nebraska, a prosperous country, where a farm can be bought for one year's rent of an eastern farm.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, September 21, 1898.

No. 38.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
Graceland College Again.....	597
President Snow's Statement.....	597
A Celebrated Case.....	598
Lorenzo Snow Succeeds Wilford Woodruff.....	599
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Rule by Love, not by Fear.....	600
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT:
The Sunday School as a Factor in Character Building.....	601
LETTER DEPARTMENT:
Graceland College.....	602
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Elders, Paste This in Your Book of Mormon.....	608
Infidel Arguments Answered.—No. 3.	610
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Eastern Colorado.....	611
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS.....	611
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
A Request.....	612
Two-Days' Meetings.....	612
Brief Reminiscence of Bro. Isaac Ashton.....	612

BISHOP JOYCE ON THE ORIENT.

BISHOP JOYCE, the celebrated Missionary Bishop of the M. E. Church, who has but recently returned from a two years tour in the Orient, has recently been interviewed on a subject of interest to many:—

"I sailed for the Orient two years ago, since which time I have been traveling and inspecting our mission work there. I have traveled extensively and saw much of interest while abroad. I traveled twice around my circuit which embraced Corea, Japan, and China, covering in all 22,000 miles; was on board of thirty-five different ships, visited the domains of 65,000,000 people and talked to the natives through fourteen different interpreters. Japan, my first scene of labor, is a beautiful land, resting on the earth's surface like a hammock, swung higher at either end and sweeping to a lower level in the centre. Japan, once so full of promise as a mission field, is now full of obstacles to the spread of the gospel. Not many years ago the spread of the gospel there became so marked as to stir up intense opposition on the part of certain liberal schools of religion, and at once the entire monarchy was in a tumult of debate and speculation. The Japanese are of liberal spirit and withal full of the mind of inquiry. The cause of missions there is now gaining. We have 43,000 protestant Christians in Japan at present, all under one conference.

"The Japan citizen is progressive—much more so than the Chinaman or Corean. He has a quick eye, is prompt to catch a new idea, and is the greatest imitator on earth. The Chinaman is also endowed with the faculty to reproduce anything in art, machinery, or fabrics.

"These orientals are shrewd in business. When they find an importer making headway, introducing a line of goods, they get out an imitation and flood the field with it. This is a peculiarity hard to meet, and English and American traders find it a serious obstacle.

"In Shang-Hai I got a suit of clothes made to measure by a Chinaman tailor, which fit as well and was as satisfactory every way as any suit I ever had. Corea is a most interesting country, and its proverbial prejudice against foreigners is fast disappearing. An American from the south, named Holmes, is now the contractor for building a railroad from Chemulpo to Seoul, Corea. A couple of Americans from the Pacific slope have secured a concession or lease on twenty miles square of gold bearing territory in Corea and are introducing American-made machinery, and American methods of mining. They have flattering prospects of great wealth. The Anglo-saxon is getting a foothold also in China. Americans are constructing a railroad connecting Shanhaiguan, Tien-Tsin, Hankow, and Peking. Twenty locomotives have been shipped to this road from the Baldwins in Philadelphia. It is interesting to note how a change of customs in these oriental lands gradually opens the way for enterprises born under entirely dissimilar civilizations. Our missionaries, tourists, and resident merchants are teaching the natives new and superior arts. One of these is American sugar cane mills and evaporators, now used to some extent in China, and destined to greatly extend. In Seoul, we have a college and some printing presses of American make at work. In Shang-Hai there are three English daily papers, all printed by English or American presses. Customs of centuries are beginning to crumble and fall before the advance of higher types of intelligence. Quite a sentiment is springing up, confined to the higher classes, in favor of abolishing the barbarous custom of binding the feet of the women. In Shang-Hai three rich Chinamen have endowed a female school, something unheard of in the celestial kingdom, for Buddhism takes no account of girls. They propose to teach the girls medicine, law, and other professions open to women in the more advanced nations. They boldly declare that the women of China must be advanced to a plain similar to western civilization. They insist the feet-binding must cease. This would be an innovation of the most startling nature. This movement is receiving the indorsement of much of the best thought in China. The official classes are beginning to assume Americo-English dress. The system of education for these thousands of years has been by the memonitor method. Everything was memorized. Now a new order is setting in. The Viceroy of China declares that Chinese young men must be made practical like Americans, and educated on practical lines, as in western countries. They are now introducing the study of geography, mathematics, etc., and are teaching by maps, charts, and other western schoolroom methods. In Peking a native of wealth has founded a college where all branches are to be taught on modern lines. There we have 55 missionary societies, embracing every evangelical church in christendom. In these fields 2,700 missionaries find employment. In the empire are 85,000 Protestant Christians; 43,000 in Japan and 10,000 in Corea. The M. E. Church alone has 22,000 in China, 5,000 in Japan, 2,100 in Corea. The M. E. Church has a university at Peking and one at Nankin with full college courses including medicine and theology, and one at Foo-Chow in which both English and Chinese are taught. All these schools are crowded. Fully 25,000 young people in China attend our colleges and boarding schools. In Japan we have colleges at Tokio and Magasoki. The first germ of progress was planted in Japan when the American Navy, under Commodore Perry went there in 1853. In 1870 the first Protestant Church was organized. Since then the form of government has changed from despotic monarchy to constitutional monarchy. Within twenty five years railroads and telegraphs have been introduced. Japan has now a compulsory common school system, with ten months terms each year. She has twelve hundred newspapers, 300 of them being dailies. She has 136 national banks and 600 private banks, all run on the American plan. Japan has 2,600 higher institutions of learning. Under her present constitutional form of government, Japan has freedom of religious worship."—Chat-tanooga Times Cor.

DR. JAMES M. GRAY FINDS THE FUTURE OF RUSSIA AND THE JEWS IN EZEKIEL.

SAYS ZION WILL BE A NATION.

THE proposal by the Czar of Russia of a peace conference to discuss a disarmament of European nations, and coincident with it the recent developments in the movement known as Zionism, aiming at a reassembling of the Jews in Palestine, afforded the theme for a sermon by the Rev. James M. Gray, D. D., of Boston last evening at Moody's church. The speaker pointed out the relation of the prophecies recorded in the Bible to present political conditions and to probable future developments, concluding that according to the teachings of the prophets the Jews will be reestablished as a nation, but that the Czar's plan will not become a reality.

Many other preachers chose for their topics the idea set forth by Nicholas II., Czar of Russia.

Dr. Gray's subject was "Russia in Prophecy," and he gave an exposition of Ezekiel, 38 and 39, covering, as the speaker said, the future history in outline of the Empire of Russia.

The prophetic setting of the chapters was set forth. Jesus Christ was to reappear a second time on this earth at the close of the present age, the speaker said, this second coming to be an act of two scenes: first, he would come for his saints, then he would come with them.

Between these two scenes certain great events would be culminating on earth, with Palestine and Jerusalem as their center. The Jews would be regathered there in some kind of a national capacity, perhaps under the suzerainty of the Sultan. In this connection Dr. Gray spoke of the efforts of influential Hebrews now making in that direction under the name of Zionism, as set forth fully in a cablegram to the Sunday Tribune yesterday from Basle by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise. Soon after their regathering there the nations of Europe—i. e., the nations representing the old Roman Empire—would combine against them under the personal leadership of a great secular despot, identified as the antiChrist in the Book of Daniel. He would be destroyed by the coming of Christ, and with him the whole governmental system he represented. This would be the time of the conversion and deliverance of the Jews as a nation so often spoken of in both Testaments.

Now it is, according to Dr. Gray, that the Bible teaches that Russia appears on the scene for the last time. As indicated, he said, in the chapters of Ezekiel referred to, after the other European powers have failed to possess themselves of the key to the riches of the East, Russia seeks the prey for itself, but meets with a disastrous and lasting defeat through supernatural as well as natural agencies.

IDENTIFIES RUSSIA AS "ROSH."

Dr. Gray's identification of Russia in the prophecy spoken of is through the fact it is mentioned by name as Rosh, especially in the Revised Version. Philologists, he said, see in Meschec and Tubal the great cities of Moscow and Tobolsk; Gomer stands for Crimea; Togarmah for the Turkomans; while Gog is the name of the highest peak in the Caucasian range. Even the military combination with Russia in that day is indicated, the preacher declared, as being Egypt and Turkey.

It was indicated, he said, that Turkey, under the fostering care of Russia, was likely to maintain its present strength for awhile, and even to increase it as the end of the age draws near. The present supposed alliance between France and Russia could not continue because the word of God clearly taught that in the final crisis the former must keep its place in touch with its old neighbors of the Roman Empire, to which Russia never belonged. The present strain between these two nations over the peace proposals of the Czar pointed in the direction of such a separation.

On the other hand, it was more than likely that Germany and Russia would come more closely together towards the end, as they were both outside the pale of the old Roman Empire, which everywhere in prophecy is represented as compact in the concluding struggles of history in this age. The friendliness of William and Nicholas on this disarmament question was a straw pointing in that direction.

Dr. Gray thought the latter might be perfectly sincere in his overture on the subject, but the teaching of scripture, he said, showed it would come to naught. The millennium would be brought about in another way.—Chicago Tribune.

DEPENDS ON THE RICH JEWS.

Some of the Jewish rabbis in America are opposed to the plan for colonizing the Jews of the world in Palestine and others are in favor of it. The opponents of the plan have little to say against it save that it is impracticable. Whether it is feasible or not depends entirely on the wishes of the rich Jews of the world. Do they want Judea reestablished? If they do, all the firmans that the Sublime Porte can concoct between now and doomsday will not suffice to keep the Hebrew nation out of its ancient fatherland.

A large share of the wealth of the world is in the hands of Jews, especially in Europe, and wealth means power and influence. The Jews are influential enough in the capitals of Europe, as landholders and capitalists, to bring about this Palestine colonization project if they want to do it. There is no doubt about that. They also have a vast influence in America in any such a matter. Let it be known that the wealthy and philanthropic members of the "chosen people" are willing and anxious to buy the land of their fathers back, and there will be no lack of powerful Christian sentiment to aid the movement in the United States. This country has no love for the murderous Turk, and if nothing but the Sultan stands between the scheme and its realization, American public sentiment can speedily crystallize into some potent persuasion at Constantinople. It all turns on the rich Jews, who would have to back the scheme in order to make it successful.

There have already been experimental Jewish colonies established in the Holy Land, and they have attained a degree of success that shows what can be accomplished with sufficient capital. The persecuted Jews of Europe must find some place to go, and Palestine is the logical and proper place for them. Almost every government in Europe would be willing to solve the anti-Semitic problem by helping to compel the Sultan to withdraw his obnoxious edict. It only remains for the Jewish capitalists to say the word and their nation can again be gathered together in its historic home.—Chicago Tribune, Sept. 14, 1898.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, September 21, 1898.

No. 38.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.
JOSEPH LUFF, }

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPT. 21, 1898.

GRACELAND COLLEGE AGAIN.

THE duty of putting the College at Lamoni, and its claims for consideration before the readers of HERALD from time to time, is our only excuse for again referring to the subject.

It was determined that an institution of learning was needed, and that the time had come when the church could be justified in securing one; and hence the authorizing men chosen from the body to carry the measure into effect.

The President of the church was one of the number so chosen and the Bishop was another; those chosen have with their successors been from time to time sustained by the voice of the conference and, so far as known, have performed the duty imposed by their appointment, conscientiously. It now remains for the church to continue the work begun and put their institution upon a safe footing.

Many colleges have struggled for recognition and usefulness through years of difficulty; few have been successful from the start; and it must be expected that ours may not be an exception, and spring into prominence and greater usefulness at the first.

We much regret to see a disposition on the part of some to withstand the claims of the college to the attention and support of the members of the church. Rumor is busy with objections, which tend to retard the efforts authorized by the conference last spring to be made by the Bishopric, which ought not to be.

We hope that better conditions will ensue and the hopes and wishes of the better disposed toward the college will be permitted to prevail. It seems to be too bad that when a work is decided upon by the church in its conference assemblies, men are selected to carry the work into execution and they undertake the task in good faith, that then men of the church, officers and delegates who were present at the time the matter was ordered and men designated, should allow themselves to throw discredit upon the acts of the body and present obstacles in the way of the work ordered and necessary to be done. We wonder when we hear of such things, whether the rule is applied. "As ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them."

The church needs help, material help, from every available source; moral, religious, and financial. Possibly the chief of these is that strong sustaining force that comes from mutual confidence and esteem, without which no body of men can proceed with safety and succeed in their undertakings.

The men engaged in the college work were selected by the church in open meeting; they did not appoint themselves, nor in any way labor for their election, hence ought to be free from the suspicion, to say nothing of the charge of selfish interests and motives, if anyone should choose to entertain such a thought, which we hope none does.

PRESIDENT SNOW'S STATEMENT.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Sept. 15.—Lorenzo Snow, the new President of the Mormon Church, gave the following statement to the Tribune to-day:—

"I believe in the revelation given to Joseph Smith, the prophet, on celestial marriages; that is, a marriage for eternity, and that under certain conditions Latter Day Saints would be doing no moral or religious wrong in practicing plural marriages under divine sanction and religious regulations. But I do not think it would be right to break the laws of the land against that practice. Polygamy—that is, marrying plural wives—ceased among the Latter Day Saints on the issuance of President Woodruff's manifesto October 6, 1890, and his inhibition will not be changed by me.

"Polygamy does not exist in Utah, either secretly or openly. It is forbidden by the church. There have been no polygamous marriages to my knowledge since the issuance of the manifesto against them. There are men who married plural wives previous to that time who now care for them, and regard them sacredly as their wives for all eternity, being married to them with that contract.

"They have respect for the law, yet consider it their duty to provide for them and for their children. But polygamy, which has a different significance in law, has ceased entirely in this State, so far as Latter Day Saints are concerned. It will not be expected by any reasonable persons that the plural family relations existing when polygamous marriages ceased by action of law and the inhibition of the church would be at once abolished."

The choice of President Lorenzo Snow to succeed the venerable Wilford Woodruff in the Presidency of the Utah Mormon Church, is a continuation of the precedent set by Pres. Brigham Young and his associates in the fall of 1847. Whether the precedent be correct or otherwise, the church in the valleys is committed to it.

We present the statement published in the Chicago Tribune for September 16, and if it correctly represents Pres. Lorenzo Snow, we may rightly inquire whether the attitude thus assumed is calculated to incite his constituent church members to an honest obedience to the law of the land.

President Snow states that:—

Polygamy—that is, marrying plural wives—ceased among the Latter Day Saints on the issuance of President Woodruff's manifesto October 6, 1890, and his inhibition will not be changed by me.

This statement seems to make the religious act, or performance of the marriage rite by which polygamous marriages are consummated the act against which the United States laws prohibiting the practice of polygamy were enacted and enforced, when President Snow knows, as does every other well informed person in and out of the church, that the practice of men and women living and associating together as husband and wives by virtue of such polygamous marriage rite having been performed was what was intended to be prohibited by the United States laws, and against which the laws were enforced by prosecutions in the courts.

It was understood by the people, Jew and Gentile, in and out of Utah, that by the manifesto of President Woodruff and its subsequent acceptance and adoption by the church in public assembly, the practice of polygamy was to be abandoned by the church; but President Snow's statement gives occasion for the thought that all that was affected by that manifesto was the ceremony of marriage, not the practice of association and cohabitation after marriage.

Again: President Snow must know as President Woodruff did, that the simple performance of a religious ceremony of marriage between man and woman with the view, intention, and purpose, that the parties to such marriage ceremony should assume marital relations and association in eternity after death, was not, and is not the thing intended to be inhibited by the law of the land, the statutes of the United States. If the rights, privileges, and associations of the marriage relation supposed to have been conferred by said supposed marriage for eternity to be enjoyed in eternity, had not been relegated to the earth sphere and the life of the flesh in the United States and under its laws for their practice and enjoyment, there would, most likely, never have been a Reorganized Church, nor a United States statutory enactment concerning plural marriage, or polygamy. Or, if such marriages had been confined within the provisions of the organic law given to the church in 1831, and embodied in its solemn declaration of faith in 1835 and 1844, which provided for but one living companion in wedlock at a time for either man or woman, there would never have occurred such a spectacle of departure from the faith and consequent conflict between the law of the land and those who broke it, as the church in Utah has furnished the people of the United States and the world.

President Snow confidently states that "polygamy does not exist in Utah, either secretly or openly." At the same time he asserts that there are men who married plural wives before October 6, 1890, who care for those wives "as their wives for all eternity,"—that being in effect the essence of their contract of marriage with them. Further, President Snow puts in as a sort of matter of course affair, this:—

It will not be expected by any reasonable persons that the plural family relations existing when polygamous marriages ceased by action of law and the inhibition of the church would be at once abolished.

If this purported statement of President Snow is correct it places the successor of Presidents Young, Taylor, and Woodruff in a very unfortunate light. It presents him assuring the world that the practice of polygamy has ceased in Utah by action of law of the United States and by inhibition of the church; that is, the United States has enacted laws against the practice of polygamy and the church has by public edict and vote prohibited it, but that reasonable people are not to expect that said practice is abolished.

The word "polygamous" is given as meaning,—“Inclined to polygamy; having a plurality of wives.” Polygamy is, “A plurality of wives or husbands at the same time, or the having of such plurality; usually the condition of a man having more than one wife.”

Reasonable men outside of the Mormon Church in Utah, and out of it, had the right to expect that when that church had compelled the United States to enact special laws for the suppression of polygamous practices and the punishment of those continuing those practices, and the church had taken public cognizance of the existence of such laws, and had consented to such laws by church edict announcing prohibition of the practices named in the law,—that then such practices should be abolished and at once abandoned.

If there are men in Utah belonging to the Mormon Church who are maintaining the "plural family relations" which existed at the time the laws against polygamy were made and the church edict against it was issued, then polygamy does exist in Utah, "secretly or openly," or both. And, if it is known to President Snow that there are such men and he is informed who they are, then, notwithstanding his statement that "there have been no polygamous marriages to my [his] knowledge since the issuance of the manifesto against them," those who read the statement will be justified in believing that it is intended to mislead, because that the very practice aimed at in the laws and edict referred to is continued in the Mormon Church and is covertly concealed and defended by its chief presiding officer.

Pres. Lorenzo Snow is on record thus, having made the statement in January, 1886. We quote from a Utah publication:—

Though I go to prison, God will not change his law of celestial marriage. But the man, the people, the nation, that oppose and fight against this doctrine and the church of God will be overthrown.—Historical Record, vol. 5, p. 144.

A CELEBRATED CASE.

IN a now famous case pending in the California courts, one of the lawyers is busy unearthing the precedents in United States courts upon the question of the laws governing extradition of persons charged with crime from one State to another for trial, or from the United States itself to foreign countries. The San Francisco Examiner for September 5, sent us by Bro. F. M. Sheehy, has the following:—

Attorney Frank McGowan, one of Mrs. Botkin's lawyers, is delving industriously in the law books seeking for precedents to aid in preventing extradition. He says he will look out for facts later—just now he wants law and lots of it.

Some of the cases which have been resurrected by Mr. McGowan make very interesting reading. One of them relates to Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet, who was forced to leave Missouri. Smith located in Illinois, and while he was a resident of that State a murder was attempted in Missouri. It was claimed that Smith was in a conspiracy which had murder for its object, and an attempt was made to extradite him. The result is quoted as follows:—

"The Circuit Court of the United States for the Illinois Circuit, in a decision made in 1843, upon the case of Joseph Smith, the Mormon Prophet, fully sustained the position that a Governor of a State in directing the surrender of a fugitive from justice, acts under the Constitution and laws of the United States; that to justify his interference the case must be brought by the proofs within the act of congress, and that if neither the indictment found nor the affidavits produced make out the necessary facts to authorize the removal, the 'misrecitals and overstatements in the requisition and warrant cannot be received as evidence to deprive a citizen of his liberty, and transport him to a foreign State for trial.'

"The Governor of Missouri, in his demand, called Smith 'a fugitive from justice' and stated that he 'has fled to the State of Illinois.' The Governor of Illinois, in responding to the call, recites the same facts. But the court, in examining the affidavits on which the proceedings were founded, ascertained that Smith was not charged in the affidavits with being in the State of Missouri at the time the offense was committed, or with being a 'fugitive' from the justice of that State; but it appearing, on the contrary, that Smith was a citizen of the State of Illinois, and had not been absent from the State at the time of the offense, the demand of one Governor and the warrant of the other were alike disregarded as unauthorized, and Smith was discharged."

LORENZO SNOW SUCCEEDS WILFORD WOODRUFF.

LORENZO SNOW, formerly President of the Quorum of Twelve in the Utah Church, has succeeded Wilford Woodruff as President of that church. He is the third successor of Brigham Young, and assumes the Presidency at the advanced age of eighty-four, having been born April 3, 1814:—

Salt Lake, Utah, Sept. 13.—At a special meeting of the council of apostles, held this morning, Lorenzo Snow was chosen President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of President Woodruff.

THE Christian Index, published at Des Moines, Iowa, sent us by Bro. C. J. Hunt, contains the following item in its issue for September 7:—

D. H. Bays has been ordered by his physician to go home (to Michigan) for two months absolute rest from all labor, mental and physical. We are sorry to hear this, but the Irwin church has voted him a vacation and we hope he will return restored and ready to continue his good work.

THE Christian Index, of Des Moines, Iowa, advertises the following in its "want column":—

BAPTISMAL PANTS—Send number of shoes worn. We fill orders promptly. They are warranted by one of the best rubber firms in the United States.

It looks as if some folks would get wet if not very careful. Why not provide baptismal suits for candidates, to cover the entire body, hands and face included, if the administrator is to be so carefully protected? Some persons seem very much afraid of coming in actual contact with water in the act of immersion, though claiming to believe in the ordinance of baptism; that it was taught and practiced by the Savior and his apostles. Possibly the modern tendency to "do away" with the principle of baptism, and the practice of the Campbellite Church of receiving converts from other churches, have something to do with the seeming aversion to water.

THE following, from the Searchlight, published by the Hedrickite brethren, indicates that the publication of that paper will be suspended:—

SEARCHLIGHT MAY SUSPEND!

The Searchlight will probably be discontinued after publishing the next four numbers. While our paper is small in size, and apparently inexpensive, nevertheless it has at no time paid expenses. The monthly deficit has been cheerfully paid by devoted brethren, and to continue to ask them to bear the burden, is very repugnant to us. If all our expenses, as a church, were confined to the paper, we would not feel like stopping its publication; but there are many expenses to meet, such as taxes and repairs on the Temple Lot; the poor have to be cared for, and considerable is required for missionary purposes. All these different places for money, when added up, make quite a respectable total, and a big load on the church, considering the fact that most of our people are poor, and those who did have means were drained almost to the last dollar by the big expense in the Temple Lot litigation. Many have written us that they liked our paper, but were too poor to pay for it; some are in arrears for their subscription, but are, doubtless, too hard run to pay up. So it seems that in justice to those who have to bear the financial burdens of the church, we should discontinue publication, and such will, doubtless, be the case unless we receive timely aid from some unexpected quarter.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. ALEXANDER H. SMITH, writing from Stonington, Maine, September 1:—

Yours of 25th August at hand. Glad to hear from you. Brn. Kelley and Luff are in Maine. I go there next week. Have appointments here next Sunday. Go to-night to Attleboro to aid in tent work there. Brn. R. Bullard and George Robley are holding the fort there in tent work with fair audiences this week.

Bro. J. J. Cornish wrote from Gulliver, Michigan, August 24:—

I am getting them terribly stirred up here, Bro. Joseph, and am feeling well in body and mind, spirit and soul.

Bro. J. M. Terry, Chicago, writes:—

The interest in our meetings increases, and our Sunday school is very prosperous, in numbers and spiritual interest. I am feeling excellent in spirit and very hopeful of success. No baptisms yet, but a number seemingly near at hand.

Sr. Ida A. Layton, of Independence, Missouri, has favored us with a report of the late Maysville, Missouri, reunion, from which it appears that the sessions were well attended, interesting, and profitable from the beginning to the end. A number of the general ministry were present, also local officials of the district. It was decided to again hold a reunion, in 1899, a committee being appointed to arrange therefor. Religio and Sunday school work was duly represented. The report closes with the following general statement:—

Large crowds were in attendance all through. The evening meetings were especially well attended, the large tent not being large enough to hold the audience. The grounds being so close to town, the citizens of Maysville availed themselves of the opportunity of hearing our strange doctrine. The preaching being both interesting and instructive, much good must result therefrom. The district tent was converted into a boarding house under the control of Benjamin Dice and family. Meals could be had by all who wished. The De Kalb Democrat, printed at Maysville, devoted a column and a half to a very favorable mention of the camp meeting.

Bro. A. Greek, Roseburg, Oregon:—

I think we should live differently from those that are worldly. If we cannot give up the follies of the world, stay with them; but do not bring them into the church. "Either make the tree good, and his fruit good, or else make the tree corrupt, and his fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by his fruit." I cannot see why anyone should wish to come into the church until he is ready to forsake folly. It is as easy to give up tea, coffee, and tobacco as it is swearing; and it is a shame for one to pretend to give up all for Christ and then hold on to part of his "superfluities of naughtiness." Yours, for a better life.

Bro. J. C. Clapp, Swan, Kentucky, September 11:—

I have been quite busy of late,—preaching, expounding, and exhorting, but I find it very hard on me, as I have no means to get from place to place. I cannot walk much and cash is out of the question. Just got back from Tennessee to attend the conference here. Conference closed last night. Will get back to Tennessee as soon as I can.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

By the kindness of Bro. Gilbert J. Waller, of Honolulu, the capital city of the latest acquired territory of the United States, we are permitted the perusal of a copy of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser, for Saturday, August 13, 1898. It contained the story of the flag raising on the 12th, when the flag of Hawaii was exchanged for "Old Glory," and the government of the Sandwich Islands became that of the republic of the United States. We thank Bro. Waller for his thoughtful remembrance of us, and the account of the doings of that memorable day for the Hawaiian Islands seems to have an added impressiveness when read from a journal printed on the spot where the stirring events took place. We trust that only good may come to the inhabitants of those islands over which King Kamekameha once ruled.

Bro. Russell Archibald, of 2512 Slattery Street, St. Louis, and now presiding over the branch at that place, secured a pretty fair presentation of the church claims and faith in a late number of the Post-Dispatch, one of the leading journals of the city. In the main the article is fair, but in a few particulars there are mistakes which make Bro. Archibald to state what he did not, and of things which he could not know, and consequently would not state. He tried to get a correction in the paper, but they declined to publish, preferring their own "write up," so he was obliged to let it pass uncorrected. Bro. Russell is among our coming men, and is doing much to establish the cause in the city of St. Louis.

We have recently had inquiries for church literature from Guatemala City, Central America, from a lady who addresses us as "Friends in Christ." The church is in position to act the part of a great friend to the world. May many be brought to Christ through her active efforts.

Bro. A. D. Penrod, of Boise City, Idaho, desires to obtain addresses of saints residing in or near that city. He writes: "I would be pleased to see them, and perhaps I could be of some use in a way to the church."

Elder B. H. Roberts, of Utah, was nominated for Congress at the Democratic State convention held at Salt Lake City, September 14. He was formerly a candidate for United States senator when Senator Rawlins was chosen. It appears that some, to say the least, of the ecclesiastics of the Utah Church, still have political ambitions and other worldly interests largely at heart; and are not interfered with, as was Moses Thatcher, in efforts to gratify their ambitions.

"Idle rumors" are not always idle; they frequently manifest a vigorous activity that results in the doing of much harm. It is well to beware of idle rumors, idle comments that run to the detriment of many an innocent and worthy person. Idle rumors like idleness are often "the parent of mischief," or the offspring of mischief makers.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins left Lamoni on the 15th inst., going to Wisconsin to attend a conference of the Southern Wisconsin district. He may prolong his stay for a few weeks, and visit and labor at points in Wisconsin and Northern Illinois.

Bro. W. H. Kelley returned from the Maysville reunion during the past week, departing soon after for Western Iowa and the Woodbine reunion.

Bro. Frank Criley, of the Herald Office, left Lamoni on the 15th inst., going to the Woodbine reunion. He carries with him a good supply of church publications, also subscription lists of the various church periodicals for the accommodation of all who wish to purchase supplies, renew subscriptions, or settle old accounts.

Bro. J. W. Wight arrived home on the 13th inst. He returned to the Rocky Mountain mission, via the Woodbine reunion, on Monday, the 19th.

Pres. Joseph Smith went to Woodbine, Iowa, on Tuesday, the 20th inst., to attend the Woodbine reunion.

Press items present a dark picture of the crowned heads of Europe. The Czar is said to be taxed with an unbalanced mind. Vienna, the gayest capital, is in dire distress caused by the assassination of the Empress. The death of the Queen of Denmark is imminent and will put into mourning the family of the Prince of Wales as well as the reigning houses of Greece, Russia, Sweden, and Denmark; and the Spanish court will likely remain under depression for some time to come.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"A loving heart carries with it, under every parallel of latitude, the warmth and light of the tropics. It plants its Eden in the wilderness and solitary place, and sows with flowers the gray desolation of rocks and mosses."

RULE BY LOVE, NOT BY FEAR.

WILL you admit me to your circle this morning for a quiet chat on home topics? I know you are all striving to build up happy Christian homes for yourselves and loved ones, therefore will be willing to listen to any helpful suggestions on that point. I come, however, as an advocate of very mild and gentle measures in the government of a family, therefore am not much in sympathy with the theory of the wise King in regard to the rod as a potent factor in affairs of this kind, for I have learned from close observation that those parents who are the most rigid disciplinarians usually had the very worst children. They may appear very well at home, but just as soon as they escape from under the argus eyes of their parents their youthful natures seem to undergo a change, and there is a rebound to the other extreme; therefore I prefer to rule by love, and teach the children to act naturally at all times.

Parents should not notice all the little pranks of their children when there is no malice in their intent, or check their exuberance of spirits; but you should be with eyes and ears ever on the alert for anything like deception or falsehood.

Some parents are too ready to say "No" to the request of their children for some innocent and healthful amusement, through a fear that some harm may come to them. In that way they are driven into sly underhanded ways. A neighbor of mine had a great fear of drowning. One day she came to my house, laboring under great excitement and agitation. She said to me, "Do you know that your boy and mine go in swimming?"

I answered her that "my boy went swimming with my consent. I thought it was necessary for him to learn to swim, which he could never do unless he went into the water."

She looked appalled and said, "Well; I have forbidden Robby going near the water, and I will punish him very severely if he goes again."

But Robby did go again; and nearly every day he would leave school at the noon recess, and not being allowed a bathing suit, was prohibited from swimming with the other boys near town, so had to go off to some secluded spot by himself, where the danger was far greater. I think it was then that Robby took his first lessons in deceit and intrigue, as well as in swimming.

Another case in point was of a man, although he made claims to being very religious, had such an ungovernable temper that his family studied how best they could deceive him. In the morning if his daughter did not appear in the breakfast room on time he would rush up stairs, and in anger and rudeness would enter her room without even knocking; but she would hear him coming, and would instantly kneel by her bedside as though engaged in her morning devotions. He, on seeing her thus, would go quietly down and say to his wife, "What a sweet, angelic spirit Abbie has;" but she, on speaking of it to her girl friends, would laugh at the way she had cheated her father. One can scarcely blame her for putting on the livery of heaven to serve her own ends, when by so doing she averted a very unpleasant family jar. The happiness of many homes is marred by the continual bickerings and disputes of its members, which parents should never for a moment tolerate. Make home the sweetest spot on earth to your family now, so that after the years have come and gone that have separated them from you and from each other, they will in a fond and grateful memory often turn back to review the peaceful scenes of their childhood.

If there is anyone under your care who has any blemishes or peculiarity in their organization, see to it that they are not made the object of ridicule for the more fortunate ones. I have noticed that all such children are very sensitive to the fact; therefore we should strive to smooth the rough places for them and draw the silken cords of love and gentleness more closely about them, that they may not feel that they have been placed as a lonely mark to bear the sins of others. I once knew a very bright and lovable little miss, but one of an excitable temperament, whose life was made a burden to her by her brothers on account of her "freckles and pug nose." The constant teasing brought on nervous prostration and St. Vitus' dance, which would have been avoided had she been surrounded by a more quieting influence, and been spared that "crucial test of mental poise."

One boy who was the possessor of a beautiful crown of golden hair that anyone might be proud to own, but by his companions was dubbed "Red Head," "Carrots," and other obnoxious names, and was made the sport of the family; even his parents would sometimes smile at what they considered the harmless witticism of their children, and although the boy seldom resented their jokes he felt that he was within the grasp of a cruel and hopeless fate, till unable longer to bear it, he ran away from home. Then the parents marveled that Providence had given them so wayward a son.

Be very attentive to your housekeeping, making everything as cheerful and as attractive as you can, not forgetting yourself that children are very sensitive of the personal appearance of the older members of the family. One little girl who often brought home her schoolmates to play with her, one day after two of them had been there and gone, came and putting her arms around her mother, said, "Mamma, you always look so nice! Sarah and May's mother (naming the girls that had just left) do not dress up afternoons as you do."

Sisters, think you not that mother felt amply paid for the little trouble it had been to make herself presentable, especially since that dear girl has gone to dwell with the angels?

I know our people cannot all afford a musical instrument in their homes, but to as many as can I would advise you to procure one, even at the sacrifice of something else. You will find that music will exert a subduing, refining influence over the young minds under your care, not to be attained in any other way; and it will give an air of happy cheerfulness to an otherwise dull and cheerless home; and, too, it will often prevent boys from passing their evenings from home in questionable company. I am at least sure that my own boy was saved from such a course through his love for the family organ. There is such an alarming amount of evil in our midst, alluring our boys and leading them down to ruin, that we should exert ourselves to keep them within the home circle.

When my oldest child commenced her first term at school, home seemed very lonely all day without her; and as the hour for school to close drew nigh I would go out and stand at the gate and watch for her return. One day she met some friends who asked her to stay awhile; she answered, "No, I must not stay; for Mamma will be watching for me at the gate." But now dear Ella is watching for Mamma at the "Golden Gate."

Sisters; what I especially wish to impress upon you is that you should make the most of your family now that they are with you, for the time will come all too soon when the last fledgeling will have left the parent nest forever. Till then you cannot know the sad, lonely feeling that will come like a shadow, stealing over the heart, eclipsing the sunshine and stilling life's music. A feeling that the summer of your life has passed—its harvest ended. But many of you will live to witness other scenes in the drama of life, and what more beautiful for you than a serene and peaceful old age? placidly sitting and resting after your busy life, and surrounded by children and grandchildren, and with your beautiful silvered hair that has been bleached by the passing years, and the rays of a gloriously setting sun, illuminating your pathway to the other shore.

I. B. STILLWAGON.

EAST SAN JOSE, Cal.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Sister Eugenia Harvey, of Davis City, Iowa, earnestly requests your faith and prayers that God may be pleased to restore her sense of hearing if it is his righteous will.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

THE following article was read at the morning session of the Sunday school day at the Bluff Park reunion, by Bro. J. A. Gunsolley, First Assistant Superintendent of the General Sunday School Association. It should receive a careful reading by all, but especially by those who are careless concerning the teaching of their children and indifferent to the progress of the Sunday school work.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL AS A FACTOR IN CHARACTER BUILDING.

REPUTATION is what we are in the sight of men. Character is what we are in the sight of God. Character is the resultant of the forces represented in the acts of years. It is the building erected by the process of activity going on as the days pass. It is moulded and fashioned from day to day, and from week to week, and from year to year. It is not a primary element, but a compound. Character cannot be affected by influences from without, as reputation may be destroyed, but yields only to that which comes from within.

Character is either good or bad; good if produced by goodness, and bad if produced by badness. All goodness is godlike; all badness is devilish. Good character, then, is godlike character, as God is good; and the perfection of character is the reflection of the image of God.

A good reflector must receive the light-rays and send them back in such a way as to preserve their original relation to each other. To thus reflect, it must be polished to a high degree. This polish is received by coming in contact with that which is able to change and mould the substance to be made into a reflector.

The gospel is the great burnisher by which we are polished and fitted to reflect the image of God. Our lives are wrought upon in proportion as we learn the principles of truth and put them into practice. So it is that one can reflect the image of God only as he is able to understand the principles by which he may act them out in his life. The Sunday school, then, it is my purpose to show, is one of the powerful agencies by which the principles of truth are disseminated and brought into contact with the life of the individual, so that this polish is received, and he is fitted to reflect the perfect image of Christ.

This work of polishing, or preparation, should begin early—in childhood. Then it is that the mind is susceptible of receiving impressions readily, and may be fashioned at will. In these tender years Satan hath no power to tempt him (Doctrine and Covenants 28:13), and he is left untrammelled by those hindrances to proper education which beset him in more mature years. Faithful and believing, full of trust, he receives instruction as readily and naturally as food. It is food for his mind, and the quality of mind developed depends largely upon the kind of nourishment given at this time, as surely as the quality of body depends upon wholesome food and exercise.

The Lord has clearly placed the responsibility upon the parents to teach the child the ways of righteousness. (Doctrine and Covenants 68:4.) And if any fail to do this, and the child wanders from the path of rectitude and right, the sin is upon the head of the parents. While we do not in any sense hold that the Sunday school does or should take the place of the parental instruction, we do hold that it is a potent agency in bringing about a better education in righteousness. This is true because it provides a systematic course of instruction in the fundamental truths of gospel teaching. How many parents are qualified to search out and classify the principles of the gospel and teach them so effectually as can be done by following the order presented in the Sunday school plan? I venture to say not everyone.

There are not only many not qualified to do this, but there are many who do not seem to find time to do it, and hence leave this work, expecting the Sunday school to make provision therefor. It is not my purpose to argue whether this is right upon the part of the parents, but to show that the Sunday school supplies a work just here that is thrust upon it. Then there are many children whose parents are not professors of Christ who find their way into the Sunday school, and there receive their first and only ideas about the truth of truths.

The Sunday school has come to be an adjunct of the church organized within and fostered by it. As such it is the nursery of the church in which the young plants are trained and nurtured.

To grow into a godlike character one must not only know the right, but he must acquire the habit of doing the right. Absolute right can only be determined by the standard of truth—the gospel. The closer one's acquaintance with the standard the more readily can he conform to the standard. Hence, the study of the word of God begets this understanding and facilitates conformity thereto. In the Sunday school is to be found a systematic setting forth of the principles of truth as revealed not only in the Bible, but in the other sacred books as well. The requirements are such that those who participate in its benefits are expected to become familiar with the truth. Not only so, but he is drilled into the habit of searching the word which contains the way of life.

Then there are other habits acquired which are of great value, one of which is that of being active in those things which pertain to godliness. The spirit of giving to aid in the propagation of the truth is cultivated. And I should like to know who has the promise of eternal life without giving both of time and means, if he have to give. The gospel does not promise salvation except to those who have earned it. It is only the idle and indolent who act as if they expected to reap where they have not sown or to gather where they have not scattered. The Lord said emphatically that "the idler shall not eat the bread nor wear the garments of the laborer." Hence it is that the Spirit which comes with an effort to know and do the right begets habits of giving and doing.

Familiarity with the word of God serves as a mighty bulwark of resistance against the attacks of the enemy, whether it be in the way of outward and direct temptation or in the more subtle and dangerous form of deceptive spirit manifestations. He who is familiar with the word of God is able, ten to one, to resist when temptations come, as against the one who has not thus become acquainted with it. Every apostasy recorded in history is the result of departure from the written law of the Lord. For a character, therefore, to be strong it must be able to detect the designs of Satan wherever manifest. The enemy seeks in various ways to lead captive the hearts of men. To some he comes in the guise of temptation to do wrong. To others he comes as a sly, quiet, seducing spirit, apparently doing good in order that he may attract. Satan told Cain to make an offering unto the Lord, which in itself was a good thing to advise, but in his advising he told Cain to offer that which was contrary to the commandments of the Lord, and thus brought him under condemnation, making of him a servant of Satan instead of a servant of God. The test of one's service is not the profession he makes, but the character of his doings as compared to the commandments of the Lord. If one speak in the name of the Lord, and it come to pass, it is of the Lord, if he keep the commandments. Hence it is that those whose characters shall be sufficient to enable them to stand in the trying day, will be those who "walk in the commandments of the Lord blameless."

The war of the righteous is one of conquest and not one of defense only. One who possesses the true spirit of Christ will be found making an effort to warn his neighbor, and in this day of many churches and many "lo heres, and lo theres," one, in order that his warning may be received, must be able to give a reason for the hope that is within him. Any reason not based upon the word of God should be rejected. Here again, we see the place of the Sunday school as a factor in character-building.

And what shall be said of the pure in heart? The Master said, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." God inhabits the celestial kingdom. Those who are to see him and dwell with him, must be fit subjects to inherit there. This kingdom is to be governed by the celestial law: The celestial law is the gospel of Christ. Can any be obedient to the law of Christ except they are familiar with the principles of said law? Zion is the pure in heart. How our hearts throb at the mention of that word Zion; the fondest hope earthly cherished by our fathers; a consummation portrayed by the pen of all the prophets of all ages; the end toward which the people of God in every dispensation looked with fond anticipation; the grand ultimatum to accomplish which martyrs have bled and died, and even the Son of God himself left the courts of glory, came to earth and suffered the most cruel agonies incident to mortality. And the Lord said, "In as much as parents have children in Zion or in any of her stakes which are organized, and teach them not," etc., "the sin be upon the heads of the parents."

What means the spectacle we behold yonder across the river [Nauvoo]? What means the little hamlet in Ohio where stands the only house built to completion unto the Lord in this latter dispensation, abandoned for many years, and now surrounded by but a handful of saints? What means the little tract of land in Jackson County, Missouri, occupied only by a little frame structure called a church? What means the possible forty thousand followers of the restored covenant as against the two hundred thousand of fifty years ago? What means all these? Echo answers, "unfaithfulness." They forgot God and Satan led them captive and they were "scattered and peeled." "Unfaithfulness!" This is not only the echo of the last days, but has come down through all time, and hence is the echo of the ages, from Adam and Cain. Unfaithfulness! Israel came to the borders of the "promised land" and the Lord told them to go in and possess it, but Israel would not, and why? "Unfaithfulness!" Jesus Christ came into the world and sought to build up his church among Israel, but Israel would not. "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem! How oft would I have gathered you as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" Unfaithfulness! Modern Israel was called out from spiritual bondage, gathered to the borders of the promised land, and told to go in and possess it, but they would not; and why? "Unfaithfulness!" And now after almost forty years wandering the Lord has said that in due time they shall be gathered again to the promised land, shall find favor with the people, that stakes shall be organized, and that the pure in heart shall possess the land, no more to be moved. Shall it be said by our children, "Our fathers were unfaithful and would not?" Shall the echo of the future be, "unfaithfulness?" If it shall not be, it will be because we have become acquainted with his word, because we have taught our children to become acquainted with the word of the Lord, not only to say, but to do. And from this knowledge of the word, and a diligent keeping of it shall come characters which alone can stand in the trying day, fitted and qualified to abide in the celestial kingdom.

Letter Department.

GRACELAND COLLEGE.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 8.

Editors Herald:—In your issue of the 7th inst., I am reminded that the "fall term of Graceland College" will commence on the 14th proximo. How deeply I am interested in the perpetuity and progress of "our college," I have neither language to illustrate nor financial strength to demonstrate. It is, however, because of this interest I now address you.

So many have enquired of me orally and by letter, "What is your opinion of Graceland College?" that I now ask a little space in your columns in which to answer this question briefly, and suggest a thought or two. I write "briefly" for I am as conscious of my inability to properly represent the college as I am of the fact that the use of your pages by me, so far as it interdicts the better employment of them by abler and more acceptable writers than I, is a wrong for which I ask and anticipate your pardon as Herald custodians, ex officio.

To the question of my opinion. I assure my friends that a careful and in some respects, a critical examination of the history of Graceland College, a review of the avowed policy of its official staff compared with the practical measures adopted, the sacrifices made and the obligations assumed by them, furnish every assurance that can reasonably be asked that they are operating solely for the public good, and without any selfishness, present or prospective, discernible in any of their movements in reference to the college. To show friendship for them personally is to manifest friendliness towards the institution; for their acts have been those of service in the cause of education. To befriend Graceland is to befriend an institution which possesses a potency for good now, one that, if we give it the support which is its due, and which is particularly and specifically the well merited due of the brave men who have thus far borne their portion of the burden, and a large, too large proportion of our part of the burden also, as integral parts of the body corporate which appointed them to receive, supervise, husband, and employ the resources with which it is our duty to supply them.

The gentlemen and ladies whose proficiency in attainments and aptness to communicate the essentials of a basic and advanced education on modern and advanced lines, none have been disposed, or have manifested a disposition to question, are personally and professionally known to me, though not to my querents, and to indicate my "opinion" of them I write:—

Had I children or grandchildren of suitable age, and possessing such acquirements as would entitle them to be enrolled among the students of a university, if I felt deeply solicitous for their progress and for the development of their characters, morally, mentally, and physically, and for the harmonious blending of their complex natures into the beautiful whole of an approximately ideal manhood, I know of no other institution of learning in which I could place them with equally confident expectation that the result would be favorable to my parental hopes. Not that I regard Graceland College as now perfect, but it possesses the element of progressiveness in an eminent degree, and it is subject to the united voice of the ministry of God.

The encouraging fact that its foundation is so broad as to be nonsectarian, proclaims the liberty that underlies the structure, and as it is virtually under the control of the Church of Christ, the free votes of whose liberty loving people will ever be its security, gives to it the status that a free American and a liberty-loving Englishman demands for his posterity, and yet surrounds it with such a guard of honor as the saint requires for the protection of his descendants from the destructiveness of vice, and the fatalities of irresponsible error. Here and there are the few who assert the I in the glorious majesty of their individual cognition of right, who even in youth despise the fawnings of the sycophant who denies his own best conceptions of the right and the true before men of place and power, that he may win their favor; but the many are very much what their environments are. For the sake of the many it is of essential importance that only such surroundings as the Trustees and Directors of Graceland College are honestly and earnestly striving to place around that institution, form the outer bulwarks of defense for our posterity.

Ancient Israel's blessings were to his children and to his children's children. Had I wealth at command, a portion of which I desired to invest for the benefit of my children—our children and our children's children—I can think of no better investment for them than that which would be furnished by an inalienable deed of trust in favor of Graceland College. Blessed are the poor in their children in many places abroad, for thoughtful and provident bequeathments were there made by gifts to such institutions, by means of which the bright-eyed sons of impecunious parents have been clothed and educated, and have become the recognized leaders among the nations, their wisdom and eloquence electrifying peoples and their rulers, changing and elevating governments and their policies. Yet but for such deeds of trust, gifts, etc., these Moses' and Joshuas might have lived and wrought and died as did their fathers, unknown to fame, to all save their fellow workmen.

Let Graceland's debt be lifted, and let her light shine forth as the morning sun.

Let those whom God hath blessed with more than an abundance for their descendants, now step forth from the ranks, and in the intensity of their love for God, lift Graceland high in honor; and when our children's children shall come forth with the well-merited diploma in their hand, the good they do shall reflect honor upon him who made possible the doing. MARK H. FORSCUTT.

DEVIZES, England, Aug. 30.

Editors Herald:—After a sojourn of six weeks in this land I essay the task of writing a few thoughts. It was near the end of June when I bade adieu to loved ones and the many kind saints at Tabor, Iowa, to visit parents, brothers, and sister from whom I had been separated almost since childhood.

Chicago became my home for ten days, during which time I visited an aged aunt of the Christian Science faith, but my efforts to speak to her of the gospel truth were vain, as she was quite deaf and insisted on telling me of Christian Science. This one had one time received the truth with gladness and had sacrificed home and friends in this country for a life with the people of God, but in Utah she discovered the awful deception and turned away in disappointment and sorrow, and as in her opinion there was nothing to which she could then look for hope, no God that she felt she could trust, she fell into the ranks of infidelity. Even there the belief in God could not be laid aside, but her soul kept reaching out for something she had not, and when Christian Science presented its claims it seemed to fill the void and was gladly received. As I thought of her experiences I called to mind others whose life had likewise been blasted and whose faith in God had been destroyed by the latter-day apostasy, and I began to realize the great responsibility which rests upon the ministers for Christ: they certainly should see to it that their every word and action tends to lead people to God.

While in the city we had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of Bro. Terry and of spending the Sabbath with the saints. We were especially pleased with the lively interest taken by the pupils of the Sunday school, whom we were told were mostly non-members. This speaks well for the workers there.

On embarking on the Etruria, at New York, we were again pleased to make the acquaintance of Bro. William Newton and family of Kansas City. Bro. Newton was on his way to England as a missionary and we found him to be one who was not afraid to push the truth wherever possible.

Since bidding him good bye at Liverpool, we have not seen a Latter Day Saint. If there are any in this county we have not been made aware of it. Prejudice reigns here with this money-making, liquor-drinking, and pleasure-seeking generation, and people generally refuse to listen to reason or truth; and while it is a country of churches, people worship God with their lips and words while their hearts and actions are far from him. However, we believe there are many honest-hearted souls who would gladly receive the light if once they understood it. We have tried that our actions might speak well for the truth, though our words may be rejected. Wiltshire furnished its quota to the church in an early day, and we feel that when the work can be established here again many true-hearted souls will be brought into it. May the Lord send laborers into this region to call again the people to repentance.

As I look over the experience of my past life, how I was led away from my home to America when only thirteen years of age and now am permitted to return—not as I went, but laden with the precious gospel truth which may be the means of saving my relatives through my instrumentality I must say

"God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform."

And so the strange things of my life may be simply the fulfillment of God's designs. I desire that my life may bespent to the honor and glory of God. I rejoice to know that some of my teaching has been received and already shows signs of bearing fruit. Praying that the truth may prosper in every land, I remain, Your brother in gospel bonds,

CHARLES FRY.

LUCAS, Iowa, Sept. 12.

Editors Herald:—From Adel I returned to Perry and baptized six, all heads of families, and left others that I hope have obeyed before this. I stayed three weeks at Adel, where I met with great opposition from the united clergy, who formed a conspiracy against me and each denomination sent out a representative to warn the people not to come out to the tent.

The Holiness preacher made a pretense of being sick and had strangers come to her house, so that she could instruct them regarding the danger of Mormonism, which she claimed to do from the Book of Mormon, declaring that it taught polygamy. I took two witnesses with me, went to her house, and asked to see the Book of Mormon that taught polygamy. She handed me a book against Utah Mormonism written by Mrs. Stowe. I then presented the Book of Mormon and read to her from page 116. I then asked her where she got her authority for preaching. She said she took it from the fact that Jesus told Mary to go tell his disciples that he had risen from the dead. She told in one of her discourses in the M. E. church that she was married to Christ and was not going to be divorced, and before the tent left Adel she, with her husband, loaded all their effects into a wagon and left four months' rent unpaid. This looks queer for the "Lamb's wife."

I left a good interest in Adel on the part of some good people, who no doubt will obey in the near future. I then moved the tent to Youngstown, where I stayed two weeks. The congregations were not always large, but some were much interested and we hope will obey.

I then took the tent near Grimes, in Polk County, where we had good congregations considering that there were two thrashing machines at work in the neighborhood, and at the end of the first week the Campbellites started a series of meetings within one mile of the tent. We held the greater part of the people in spite of their unchristian act in trying to break up our meeting. The saints say much good work was done, and mountains of prejudice removed, and the way opened for a good work in the future.

I will set up the tent near Milo this week, and commence services next Sunday. I have been alone all summer except at Perry, and one week at Adel, where I was assisted by Bro. J. W. Morgan, of Perry.

I have come home for a weeks' rest, my eyes are quite sore and have annoyed me for the past month.

Yours in the one faith,
W. H. KEPHART.

ISACA, Texas, Sept. 8.

Editors Herald:—This leaves me well. Just closed a fine meeting at De Kalb, Texas. I have been laboring in company with J. W. Kent; find him a good worker, and a pleasant man to labor with.

Our preaching at De Kalb stirred the people up. Lo and behold, they brought one of their best preachers out to demolish us. Yes he would debate, but after hearing us two sermons he declined the idea, refusing to sign propositions; but on the last night got up and howled about Joe Smith and raising the dead, making false statements about what we believed.

We answered him and politely asked him to defend what he taught, but he refused. The next day we baptized two of his members, two fine people, honest souls hunting for truth, Freewill Baptists. Others will follow in process of time no doubt. Our meeting did much good.

I found a fine man at Sylvan, Texas, belonging to the Utah Church, and succeeded in convincing him of his mistake, hence he accepts the better way. I will begin meeting at Sylvan, on the 10th inst., to hold one week, thence on to Standley, Indian Territory. I find the world ripe for the gospel in nearly every place. Bro. J. W. Kent will leave soon for home.

In bonds,
J. D. ERWIN.

PERE CHENEY, Mich., Sept. 9.

Editors Herald:—Since last writing I have been in the upper peninsula of Michigan. I came down about a week ago and assisted the brethren a little in the tent at Mancelona, then came to this place where I had promised for over a year past to do some preaching. I commenced last night, and had a fair turnout and also had good liberty in presenting the gospel before them.

While in the upper part I found nearly all of the scattered members, and in every place where an opportunity offered I did some preaching. I put in five discourses at Acker's Mill, where there were about twelve houses and one shingle mill right in the woods, about three or four miles from Wetmore, and several miles from any other settlement. There were eight members there. I also administered the sacrament to them, blessed their children, etc., and left them feeling good in the work, and left others believing who were not believers before. I heard Bro. Acker's name mentioned in connection with the work at different places, and all spoke well of him. He is not afraid to let the people know that he is a Latter Day Saint, neither is he afraid to let them know what Latter Day Saintism is, and all who spoke of him did so with respect.

I visited Rapid River, where resides one member of the church, Bro. Ambrose Shippy. He got a hall, and we gave out meetings for Sunday afternoon and evening, but few came out to hear. There was a picnic there that day which hindered them from coming in the afternoon, and in the evening they were too tired. Bro. Shippy is well respected in his village.

I then went to Munising to see another saint, but the family had moved away. At Grand Marias I found five members. There did not seem to be a good opportunity for preaching, hence did no preaching there, but called the members together, administered the sacrament to them, blessed a child, had a little fellowship meeting, and did some talk, and encouraged them the best I could, and left for Gulliver, where there were four more members,—three sisters and one brother,—all alive in the work; the brother, a single man, the three sisters were married, and whose husbands were not members of the church; one was a member of the Presbyterian faith, I preached a few sermons in their schoolhouse, visited and did fireside preaching, etc., and baptized the three men, and another man, and administered the sacrament to them, blessed their children, and left them rejoicing in the work of the Lord. Those men are and move among the leading spirits of the place, and seem to have the respect of all. Those sisters took part in and with the few members of the Presbyterian Church, all along in the past, in hopes to gain their favor to the truth, which they were not afraid to present from time to time when proper opportunity offered; and by so doing they had hopes that when representatives of our faith would come they would all come out to hear the truth; but to their surprise, but few of them attended. Nevertheless, several others came, and there are others thinking well of the latter-day work.

While at Gulliver I was informed that they wanted me to come to another village near by, called Hunt Spur, and preach some, and that I should write to a Mr. Cann. I did so, but on arriving there I was informed that it was a mistake and that they did not want to hear me at all. I said I would move on, that I did not have much time to stay, and if they did not want to hear our claims I would move on. They said that was the best thing I could do as I would not get a crowd anyway.

All told, I visited Ford River (by request of the Bishop and my own desire to visit the upper peninsula), Escanaba, Rapid River, Munising, Wetmore, Grand Marias, and White Dale, etc., and all told I found twenty-three members of the church, and all seemed alive in the faith, and who showed me their faith by their works, by (from one and another) paying in over forty dollars tithing.

The upper part of Michigan is a pretty wild country, nearly all of the little places are mining and shingle and lumbering towns, with a few stores and many saloons. In many places the people are chiefly Catholics, and as a rule they are not so anxious to hear the gospel as in the lower part. Much of the land is rocky, and prairie-like, while there are at other places good farming land. Many places go down after the lumbering is done. When the pine is off the cream of that kind of the land is gone, while other parts is hardwood, and when the hardwood timber is gone, the land is good for farms.

Dear brethren of the North Michigan district, do not forget that we have two more men in the ministry this year, and that, as usual, my daughter, at Reed City, will receipt you for all your tithes and offerings you send me there to my address.

Very truly,
J. J. CORNISH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 7.

Editors Herald:—We are still holding the fort here, and proclaim the "good news" to all whom we can induce to listen. Strangers are always present at our services, so we have the satisfaction of knowing that they have the opportunity of hearing the message.

We had the pleasure of having young Bro. Blair with us not long since, and was much pleased with him and his preaching. Then came Bro. Sheehy to encourage and instruct us. We were much pleased with him also. So far we are quite proud of the missionaries sent us, and we are glad to shake their hand and call them brother.

Our branch is in a good condition, and doing well. A good spirit generally prevails. And we all, as a rule, are strong in the faith, and anxious to help the cause along. I have never enjoyed more of the Spirit in presenting the word than at present, and I think I can safely say the same for my brethren associated with me. Strangers are interested and saints satisfied. How grand this latter-day work is when viewed with the Spirit of inspiration, and what a lasting joy to us to feel that the Holy Spirit is really with us in our efforts to present the word, and what a satisfaction to see the lovelight in the eyes of the hearers, certifying that they too feel the same Spirit, bearing witness to the truth!

We have found several church members among the soldiers stationed here; some of them are at all our services. We have Bro. North and Eads from Southern California, Bro. Kelley, son of W. H. Kelley, in the Iowa regiment, and Richard Kent, son of Elder Kent, in the Missouri regiment. I visited young Kent to-day, and Kelley last Sunday. We also had the pleasure of entertaining five young soldiers from Leon, a few nights since. Quite a number of Uncle Sam's boys are now hearing the gospel for the first time. Perhaps they will remember it when they reach home.

We are not at all discouraged with the outlook for the cause here. Our faith is strong, and we think we can see better times ahead. Love to all. In bonds,

GEO. S. LINCOLN.

SCRANTON, Kan., Sept. 13.

Editors Herald:—I would like to say a word in defense of this latter-day work, because I rejoice in it, knowing that in the gospel is the power of God unto salvation, both to Jew and Gentile. But how does this power come? may be asked (wisely) by the inquirer. We reply, by obedience to God's holy law. Should we all be obedient alike to this law? Yes, if we all desire to receive the same reward, because Jesus said that one jot or tittle would not pass from the law, because what God doeth he doeth it forever, and we as followers of Christ will have to walk as he did, and teach as he did—teach the law in its fullness. If we neglect a part, what have we then to boast of? "Surely none of the men that came up out of Egypt, from twenty years old and upward, shall see the land which I swear unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob; because they have not wholly followed me: save Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenazite, and Joshua the son of Nun: for they have wholly followed the Lord."—Numbers 32: 11, 12.

Then the promise is to him who wholly complies with the law; so we understand. Do we all comply? Do we, that are called saints, all speak the same thing? "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ." The mind that was in him was to do his Father's will. Are we all doing our Father's will? If so, we will have the same spirit, even the spirit of love, because God is love; and if we are his children, we must partake of the substance in order to maintain in our bodies the soul-reviving news to teach the work in season as directed by the Spirit.

I rejoice to see some trying to lift up the fallen ones, as there are many of them. We call for help because soon will come the midnight cry. Who is ready when the Lord shall come? Them that have wholly kept the law. I did rejoice to see a sister put forth an effort in the Herald of August 3, page 488, called, "The successful teacher." Yes, this is worth more than the price of the Saints' Herald to me, and should be read in every Sunday school that belongs to the church.

Let us be clean of all filthiness if we want to have the Spirit of God. We must be clean and honor God's law. Dear saints, there is too much done for pleasant pastime on the Lord's holy Sabbath day. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," is the command of God to his people. (Isaiah 58:13, 14.) Let us love not the world, neither the things that are in the world, nor the fashions of the world; because if we do, "the love of the Father is not in us." Let us be the light to the world, and not the world a light to us. If we follow the ways of the world because we think them nice, then the world is a light to us, and we are guided by that light, and our light is no more shining as it should. I have lost what I thought my best friends because I rebuked them for not remembering the Sabbath day to keep it holy, when they would be indulging in worldly pleasures; but it was done openly; and we read that an open rebuke is better than secret love. (Proverbs 27:5.) I think this is a point lacking in the church, to some extent at least, because when I asked some of the traveling elders concerning it they seemed to think it all right to have all common pleasure; that Moses' law was very strict. Yes, and so is God's law. Did not Moses teach God's law? Let us read section 59 of Doctrine and Covenants. Are we divided on the Lord's day? Why, it is part of God's law. Let us keep all the parts and make the whole.

And O! is that not also in its place of Bro. Watchman's, in a late Herald? Yes, dear saints, I fear it is. Let it be a warning voice to us all. Let us shake off the coals from our garments and arise in the strength of the Lord. Let us not think we know it all, and be so selfish, because we all should know a little, and when we compile all our littles and reason one with another according to the law, we see that we are learning and on our way to perfection. Let us not be proud as if we were big or great in the eyes of those that are weak in the faith, but let us be humble as little children that God may have a chance to exalt us, if exalted we may be, and then we can give God the praise; but if we exalt ourselves, we may be abased, and shame will surely follow. May God give us all wisdom, knowledge, and understanding that will enable us to live as becometh his children, is my prayer for all that have made a covenant with Christ.

JAMES BAILLIE.

POLLOCK, Mo., Sept. 12.

Editors Herald:—I have just completed a careful reading of "Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism."

The first scripture that comes to mind reads: "If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!" Add to this: "For a dream cometh through the multitude of business; and a fool's voice is known by multitude of words." Without doubt, of a long time the author has been dreaming of fame, and the chief object of the publication of the book was to obtain that desired fame and get gain. We remember his efforts to change the belief of the elders upon the question of the "Rock" of Matthew 16:18, and the boast, "I am the only man that dared to meet this issue in the church."

Permit me to point out a few of the mistakes of the book. Page 27, he says: "Nephi, with his two younger brothers, Jacob and Joseph, separated from their elder brethren, Laman, Lemuel, and Sam." Notice, in this Sam is associated with Laman, while the Book of Mormon informs us: "Wherefore, it came to pass that I, Nephi, did take my family, and also Zoram and his family, and Sam, mine elder brother, and his family, and Jacob, and Joseph, my younger brethren, and also my sisters, and all those who would go with me."—2 Nephi 4: 2.

On page 75, the date of the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith is given: "in June, 1884," a mistake of forty years. Page 162, the resignation of Apostle Jason W. Briggs was presented "at a conference held at Independence, Missouri." Mistaken again, as the resignation of Jason W. Briggs was received and acted upon at a General Conference, at Lamoni, Iowa.

Page 183, in citing Isaiah 29: 9, it reads, "say yourselves," instead of "stay yourselves." Page 185, he makes Isaiah 29: 19, to say, "The weak also shall increase their joy in the Lord." It should read: "The meek also shall increase their joy in the Lord." Page 153, makes Church History p. 65, read, "Hence Peter, James and John could have been ordained by holding and exercising the power to direct." The word "been" is not in the History and changes the meaning of the original, and instead of making sense, it makes a jargon.

Page 295, says: "Latter Day Saints argue that Philip, being a deacon at that time, was not authorized to perform the rite of the laying on of hands." The Church of Latter Day Saints has never passed officially upon what office Philip held, therefore the above statement is both misleading and a misrepresentation of the church. This same misrepresentation is repeated on page 296, where he states: "They (Latter Day Saints) maintain that Philip had no authority to administer in this supposed ordinance, being at the time a deacon."

Page 340, William Marks is made to say: "About the first of June, 1884." William Marks had been dead for a number of years prior to "June, 1884." Page 344, in fourth line the words "my servants" are omitted between the words "justified" and "Abraham." On same page, thirteenth line, last word "in" is not in original. Page 345, second line, eighth word should read "were" and not "was." Same page, last line, the word "by" is omitted between the words "but" and "me." Page 346, fourth line, and third word, "whatever," in the original reads "whatsoever." Same page sixth line the word "stand" in the original reads "remain;" and in the eighth line "eth" is added to the word "remain." Again on same page, paragraph 4, third word, "any" should read "a;" and in the fifth line, second word "is" should read "are;" and the last line of that page, the word "course," should read "force."

Page 347, par. 6, fifteenth line and eighth word should read "unto," and not "into." Page 348, par. 8, twelfth line, fifth word, "is" not in original; and thirteenth line, first word, "death" should read "deaths." Page 349, par. 12, third word, "promise," should read, "promises"; and in par. 13, fifth line and fourth word, "promise," should read "promises." Page 350, par. 14, eighth line and sixth word "promise" should read "promises," par. 15, eighth line, and eighth word, "unto," should read "to." Par. 16.

sixth line and second word "receive" should have "th" added. Page 352, par. 20, ninth word, "unto" should read "to." And in the thirteenth line the word "you" should appear between the words "unto" and "my."

Page 353, par. 22, first line "Joseph" is omitted between the words "servant" and "put." Par. 24, the word "if" omitted between the words "and" and "he" in fourth line. Again in the fifth line, the word "is" omitted between the words "then" and "he." Page 354, reads: "Therefore he is justified." It should read, "Therefore is he justified." This transposition is found in the third line, par. 25, in the eleventh line, the word "minister" should read "administer;" and in the sixteenth line the fourth word, "unto" should read "to."

The mistakes,—twenty-six in number, from page 344 to 354 inclusive,—are all found in the purported revelation on polygamy, and my comparison was made with an 1891 Liverpool, England, Utah Mormon edition of Doctrine and Covenants.

Page 389, par. 9, he has Joseph Smith presenting and Hyrum Smith reading the polygamous revelation to the High Council, August 12, 1844, or forty-six days after the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. Page 394, last paragraph, line fourteen and the seventh word, "to" should read "unto;" while in the next line the word "also" is omitted between the words "and" and "every."

My judgment is that two or more brethren who are close observers and quick to detect mistakes in print should carefully examine this book and compare every extract with the originals, and give the eldership the benefit, for we will have to meet the adroit work of this foxy enemy. He imposes upon the uninformed by reason of his long association with the church. The uninitiated and those of limited experience do not fully realize the value of the word: "They went out from us, but they were not for us; for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us; but they went out, that they might be made manifest that they were not all of us."

Some will come under the provision of the word: "And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie: that they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness." We are living in the time when men shall arise who with fair words and winning speech will seek to "deceive the very elect." On duty,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 12.

Editors Herald:—At the close of the first proposition we sent particulars as briefly as we felt we could, now that the second proposition has closed we wish to record the fact and some few items of interest.

The second proposition reads as follows: "Is the Church of which I, William Ellmore, am a member, the Church of Christ and identical in faith, organization, teaching, ordinances, worship, and practice, with the Church of Christ as it was left perfected by the apostles?"

The readers of the Herald have heard this proposition threshed out so often that we deem it unnecessary to go into detail, but think it sufficient to say that Mr. Ellmore failed to support this claim to identity, but did well with the poor material he had to make out his case with. In the main Mr. Ellmore acted the part of a gentleman, but in the last speech, when smarting under a signal defeat, he misrepresented the Book of Mormon (besides it being new matter), and made a personal attack on R. C. He also referred to a private conversation had with Bro. Evans prior to the debate, making particular mention of the fact that R. C. had predicted a dirty debate. This was done to show Bro. Evans a false prophet, as it had been clean and gentlemanly all through.

When it came to replying, Mr. Ellmore appeared uneasy as Bro. Evans got after him by referring to the same conversation only more fully. Richard had told Ellmore that he was surprised that he was going to have as his moderator Mr. Keffer, and that if Keffer had any influence over him he would predict a dirty debate, judging from the three debates he had with Keffer previous to this; but the climax was reached when R. C. told the audience that Ellmore had confessed to him on the fourth night of this debate that the Disciples had tried to persuade him to throw dirt; but that he would not and that Keffer had no influence over him in this debate.

The debate was largely attended throughout and all that we have seen, except Disciples, are unanimous in saying that we had a big victory. As evidence of where the interest of the people centers we had good crowds at our two services yesterday while the Disciples held forth in the hall (of debate) to a congregation of twenty each time, and that counting the preachers.

October 17, I expect to meet Dr. Mason, of Toronto, on the sleep of the soul, and the apostasy and restoration. R. C. will be with me.

Yours,

F. GREGORY.

VINTON, Iowa, Sept. 11.

Editors Herald:—I will try and write a few lines about my school, as I thought some of the saints would like to know about the college for the blind and the way we read and write.

This structure is four stories high. There is a south wing, main building, and north wing, which are partitioned off in rooms, offices, etc. On the fourth floor in the main building are rooms in which pianos are kept, in which the students practice. I do not know the exact number of piano rooms. Our chapel is in the main building; there we have our exercises every morning at ten minutes to nine, and also on Saturday evenings our society is held there, and the closing concerts at the end of every term. We have a very funny way of reading and writing. Our letters are raised letters, called points. We have two kinds of letters, the raised print and the point. Our capital letters are of the same style. Our figures are raised also. We have our point libraries, in which all books of useful knowledge are kept, such as histories, dictionaries, bibles, etc.

Our dining room is of immense size, containing about fourteen large tables, each seating sixteen students. We have a place for polishing our shoes, and a place for washing. This immense building cost some millions of dollars. It has been in Vinton for thirty-five years. It covers forty acres in all, counting in the grounds which surround it. The ground leading from the portico is kept in good shape and is covered with trees of large size and great height. Each student has a portion of the ground to keep clean. Those who are competent are assigned to this work.

In regard to our clothing, we now furnish our own clothing if possibly able. We pay nothing for our lodging. We have our graduating classes every two years, which consists of those who are in the twelfth grade. This school has fitted many blind students for the world, giving them an education which is hard to surpass in any other college in the land. There are some here who are totally blind, but who seem to be contented and enjoy life as well as anybody. They are resigned to what misfortune has given them. There are some of the best musicians here that a person ever heard. In regard to time, it is not like the common day school. Our studies are divided into periods which consist of forty minutes each, commencing at about half past nine and lasting until four in the afternoon.

I will now close my letter for this time. Much more could be said of this immense building, but I hope what little I have said will be of much interest to those who read it; therefore I say, if any of the saints have any children that are afflicted with blindness, and they seem to have a talent for music or any other art, this is the place for them.

Yours truly,

BERTIE L. WHITE.

COLDWATER, Mich., Sept. 13.

Editors Herald:—We are in the midst of a series of two-days' meetings throughout the district—Grand Rapids, Coldwater, California, Jamestown, Flint, and South Scott have received their portion, and we trust, "in due season." At some points "rumors of war" against the speaker were heard and of a loud, but very dishonorable type. At Jamestown, "eggs" of ancient origin were talked of, and as to how the "Mormon" would adjust to such a sticky mixture. We told them, if our choice in the matter bore any weight, we would rather have them fresh and more of them. A deacon at that point was so vehement he would "shoot" us "down as quick as he would a Spaniard." So there, is a note as to progress made by some in Christian civilization. But large crowds attended the services and gospel "seed" scattered like November leaves. The spirit throughout is splendid, and many new investigators are pushing aside the old musty curtains of priestcraft, and endeavoring to get a "peep-o-day."

Leaving Bro. Briggs to hold the situation at South Scott, we hastily drove to Coldwater to speak words at the funeral of Sr. Ball, which occurred on Sunday, the 11th. We tried to relate the old story of New Testament "hope," as best we could, with ease and interest to a large audience.

War with Spain closes with a tapering finis. Will it be possible in adjusting overtures of peace, that the United States will become entangled in the Kaleidoscopic meshes of the "Eastern question?" One thing is very certain: Spain is one of the toes of the great metallic image and the "stone" has smitten it, with a view of knocking the old nail of tyranny away, emphasizing the nineteenth century principle, the divine right of the people, instead of the divine right of kings to rule. The very breath of the kingdom of God, is human liberty, blown into the dark despotic lungs of the world by an "inspired Constitution," and it "shall never be destroyed," but "it shall stand forever."

Our next meeting is with the Clear Lake saints, Saturday and Sunday, then on through the district till our conference convenes at Galien in October. "The laborers are few," but willing and aggressive, in line with modern spirit. The work moves slowly but solidly. The major portion of saints are still "good," and chances for the beautiful inheritance first class. Hope the opportunities will broaden.

Corn crop in these regions is large; in fact, the temporal blessings range abundantly through all kinds of the necessities of life. "Prosperity" in that line has come, but it comes from the wrong direction for big men to appropriate to themselves very much praise or credit. 'Twould have come to the humble farmer, if big men were not on the face of the earth.

Still hopefully,

S. W. L. SCOTT.

WILBER, Neb., Sept. 14.

Editors Herald:—This section of country has been blessed with a few days of rainy weather, for which we all feel very grateful. This is the first bright day since the 8th inst. There are several cases of illness in our community, some among the saints, but none we trust of a serious nature.

The writer was billed for services in the Graf schoolhouse for last Sunday, but the weather was too bad for us to make the connection. Next Saturday night and Sunday we are billed for gospel work in the western part of Saline County.

Your brother in Christ,

C. H. PORTER.

ALDRIDGE, Mont., Sept. 2.

Editors Herald:—I arrived here July 3, thinking to better my condition, and found that the work was going very slowly. The company had lost some contracts and had to stop about seventy-five of their men. The superintendent told me if I could wait awhile he would put me on. I had to wait or start out on foot, as my money was all gone, so I made up my mind to stay, and went to work for the Lord.

I was informed that it was a hard camp; the M. E.'s and Presbyterians, and Congregationalists, Christians, and Catholic priests all have been here trying to get the people out to church, but all failed to get above six or seven of those that were religiously inclined. I also found a Mr. Johnson with two or three ladies trying hard to keep up Sunday school. So I put on the harness and went to work with them. Mr. Johnson is the superintendent of the Sunday school and he put me in charge of the Bible class. I suggested that we should have a teacher, and meeting and Bible reading every Wednesday evening, which was adopted and we are getting along finely, and our Sunday school is increasing in interest and number.

After the Sunday school was closed last Sunday the superintendent asked me if I would preach to them next Sunday. I told him that I would be very glad to have the opportunity if the people would turn out to hear. "Well," said he, "could you preach for us this evening?" "Yes, sir; I am at your service as long as we can get the people out to hear," I replied. The announcement was made for 7:30 and we were all agreeably surprised to see the house full of attentive listeners. I never had better attention given me and the Lord was with me, and I have been informed that all were well pleased with the sermon, and that all the saloons in town but one closed Sunday and came out to hear me. I started to work here the 10th of last month. Pray for me.

Yours in bonds,

E. E. WILLIAMS.

WESTON, Iowa, Sept. 13.

Editors Herald:—The district conference met with Hazel Dell branch here, the last Saturday and Sunday in August. We had a good conference and a time of rejoicing together, which we hope the saints will long remember. On Sunday the meetings were held in a beautiful grove, as our church is too small to accommodate all who attended. The morning prayer meeting was truly a spiritual feast, and the hearts of the saints were made glad by the presence of God's Holy Spirit. The speakers were D. R. Chambers, C. J. Carlson, and S. Butler; they were all blessed in presenting the gospel. I feel thankful to God that he gave me a desire in my youthful days to obey the gospel. And as the years have passed, God has truly blessed me many times, and my faith gives strength and my hope grows brighter. I believe the hastening time has come when God is preparing a people who will be ready to meet him. I feel impressed to tell you a dream which was given me a short time ago.

I saw myself walking on a railroad track, with a bright lantern in my right hand. I had a certain distance to go, and I came to a house where two women came out to meet me; they were much pleased to see me and bade me come in. I asked them if they had any oil in the house, and they said they had plenty. I told them that if they had some to spare I would like to have some, which they said I might. I told them I thought I had enough to last till I reached the station, but I wanted to be sure and have plenty, so I would take some. I entered the house with them, and as one of them filled my lantern the Spirit rested upon me and these words were given to me: "This is just the way it will be with many of the saints, they will think they have plenty of oil, but when the cry is made, 'Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye forth to meet him,' they will find they have not enough."

I asked God to show me what this dream meant, and it was given to me like this: "The railroad track you were walking on is the straight and narrow road which leads unto life eternal, and the lantern you were holding in your hand is the Spirit of the living God which is given unto you."

Dear saints, I believe this is a warning to each one of us to live so before God that when Christ shall come to make up his jewels we may be found among them.

Your sister,

CHRISTINA RASMUSSEN.

SMITHLAND, Iowa, Sept. 7.

Editors Herald:—The following incident occurred while tent meetings were being held at River Sioux, Iowa, in August, of which I failed to make mention in my letter referring to my labors there; and believing it will be of some interest I now make mention of it.

At the close of the evening session after I had preached with excellent liberty, the Spirit of God was associated in the singing of No. 80 Saints' Hymnal:—

How gentle God's command!
How kind his precepts are!
Come, cast your burdens on the Lord,
And trust his constant care."

And the inspiration of this tune so affected Bro. John Dickie that over and over again did it occur to his mind until he slept, when he was given the following lines by dream, which upon awakening he immediately arose and wrote:—

"O, worthy is the Lamb!
His righteousness proclaim;
With one accord unite to praise
His ever blessed name.

"O, may he prove to us
A source of strength divine;
That we in weakness may rejoice,
And worship at his shrine.

"And when life's journey's through,
O, may it well be said,
That we in righteousness have wrought
Through Christ, our living Head."

The above lines can be sung to the tune "James." The brother said it was the first time he had any intimation that he was poetic.

The meetings here have been only fairly attended. Part of the time, a Seventh-day Advent camp meeting was in session about a half mile away; then came on the extreme heat, associated by a host of mosquitoes, which made it quite unpleasant; and this week it is so cold that it is uncomfortable, some wearing overcoats during the service. Those who attend seem to be much interested, a few having said they desired to serve the Lord. We continue here over Sunday. A more particular account of the services here I will give in my next.

Yours in the hope of eternal life,

J. F. MINTUN

APPLEDORE, Ont., Sept. 13.

Editors Herald:—The debate between Bro. R. C. Evans and William Elmore of the Disciple faith, came to an end on Saturday evening. The chairman, Mr. Merrifield, of Chatham, felt it wise not to give his opinion to the public as to which of the two men had gained the victor's wreath; but the saints feel to rejoice that the work in which we are connected is in direct harmony with the teachings in the Bible, as shown by Elder Evans. The hall was well filled each night during the debate.

We are expecting Elders Evans and Gregory to visit the Lindsey branch next week. The prohibition question is drawing much interest just now. We expect Bro. Evans to deliver a temperance lecture at the Chatham town hall next Tuesday evening. Every Latter Day Saint should take time and cast his vote for prohibition on the 29th of September, 1898; you may never have another opportunity to whip out one of Satan's great devices to destroy both body and soul of mankind. Many a true and noble character has been ruined by taking the first social glass. Then, dear saints, let us suppress the evil all we can while the day is ours.

Our convention and conference commences the last day of September and continues first Saturday and Sunday in October. Hope we may have a spiritual time.

M. M. GREEN.

BOOTMAN, Mich., Sept. 6.

Editors Herald:—It has been a long time since I have written a word for the Herald. It is a great task for me to write, and I keep putting it off from time to time. The work in this part of the vineyard is moving along nicely. I never have seen the time since I came into the church, twenty years ago, that there was such a call for preaching as there is at the present. The people everywhere seem to want to hear the gospel. There seems to be a famine in the land, not of bread or water, but of hearing the word of God. I am preaching every night, yet there are many places where they wish me to come and preach and I am not able to do so. Indeed, the field is white and ready to harvest. We need many more ministers in this part to fill the many calls from every source. We have several missionaries in this mission and they are all noble men of God and doing all they can to advance the great cause, and yet there are many places where they are calling for us to come and we are not able to go. I pray that God will send more laborers into the field, and I also pray that God will help the laity to see and feel that they have a part to do in this great work, not in administering the word, but of their means to care for the families of the ministers while they spend their time. I believe when brethren and sisters pay their tithing and offerings, and sacrifice to help the spread of the gospel they will be rewarded equally with those who spend their time preaching the word.

I often think of what sacrifices the ministry make when they leave homes and families and go out to face the prejudice and persecutions of the world; not only that but the great sacrifices some elders make when they say, "We will devote our time to the ministry," some leaving a salary of forty to seventy-five dollars a month when they enter the ministry their family gets maybe fifteen to thirty dollars; the sacrifice they make is from fifteen to forty dollars a month. I often wonder if the laity realize the fact. I know some do and are doing all they can; may God bless them, and he is. I often hear them say, "God has prospered me wonderfully since I began to pay my tithing," and I think one of the first things saints ought to be taught is their duty of tithing and offerings, because there seems to be an idea in the minds of people of the world, because we have no salaried ministry that the church moves along with the tide and the ministry live on wind. Every minister ought to teach the law of tithing and free will offering, that all saints might see the need, the great need, of living up to that law, that the great cause might move speedily along, for there is a great work to be done and but a short time to do it.

I baptized four a few days ago, all heads of families. The interest is good and many more are believing. I feel it will not be long before more will obey.

We had quite a time here with the Adventists. Three of their ministers came and put up a tent and remained nine weeks. We proposed to discuss the issues between us and them, but they would not agree to discuss at first, but the people told them they wanted a discussion. If their doctrine was right why not discuss it? Finally they agreed to meet us on the Sabbath question; but they never would agree on a time when to commence. Finally they pulled up their tent and went away. I think it did as much good for the cause as if they had discussed, for the people saw that they were afraid to meet us.

Now we have a Dunkard preacher here. He is a little on the warpath, but he does not fight himself, but says he has a brother who is coming here soon; he will show the people who and what we are. But I am thankful that many are finding that out by investigating and obeying the truth.

I am striving to advance the great cause as best I can, praying for wisdom and the Spirit of God to direct me in all things. Hoping that I with the rest of God's servants may be faithful unto the end.

J. A. CARPENTER.

Original Articles.

ELDERS, PASTE THIS IN YOUR BOOK OF MORMON.

TO OBTAIN the results found below, we first corrected in the present edition of the Book of Mormon, the 328 changes found in the Palmyra edition, from the original manuscript, as discovered by the committee appointed by the church for that purpose. These changes appear in Vol. 31, No.

34 of the Herald. Next we corrected all errors and changes wherein there was any difference in words or punctuation between the Palmyra and the present edition. Then we compared this corrected Book of Mormon (which is now exactly like the original manuscript) with the Bible where the same matter appears in both.

The italics in the Bible were added by the translators to make smooth reading.

Our opponents' arguments against the claim of the book's antiquity appear below.

Punctuation is a matter of individuality.

It has become a recognized principle, that Punctuation is as much a matter of taste and judgment as of rigid rule.—Bigelow's Handbook of Punctuation.

Those who think everything in the Bible inspired of God, including its divisions into chapters, verses, and punctuation, should read the following and profit by it:—

"Of the four generally used points, only the period (.) dates earlier than the 15th century. The colon (:) is said to have been first introduced about 1485; the comma (,) some 35 years later, and the semicolon (;) about 1570."

Not till the 10th century was the uncial character abandoned, and the cursive or running hand generally adopted; but it was felt necessary long before this time to have recourse to something like punctuation. This is indicated in some manuscripts by a point or a space, and in others by writing the text in short lines, according to the sense. The latter system, known as "stichometry" was introduced in the second half of the 5th century, while punctuation proper dates no farther back than the invention of printing (1438).—Bagster.

From the above we conclude there were no punctuation points on the plates, therefore the punctuation was either inspired, copied from the King James version (which some of our opponents claims), or was independent, or partly so, from either. The manuscript committee in their report say:—

The punctuation is deficient in a large part of the Manuscript, yet there are pages where the punctuation is found and made at the time of writing without doubt. In other parts whole pages are punctuated with a pencil; and as the punctuation agrees with that in the Palmyra edition, it was evidently made before the publication of that edition.

Elder W. H. Kelley, a member of the committee who examined the original manuscript, says in a letter referring to this matter in answer to an inquiry on the subject:—

It is my opinion that the printer did the larger part. The manuscript shows that the scribe did some of it. I do not think the punctuation was upon the plates, neither was it inspired. I think it was the work of either the scribe or the printer. Most likely both, and the larger part by the latter.

OUR OPPONENTS' ASSERTIONS.

Braden and Kelley Debate, page 159:—

The concoctors of the fraud told Gilbert, the printer, that the manuscript was the work of inspiration, and it must not be changed a particle. It had in it not a mark of punctuation, not a capital letter at the beginning of sentences, was badly spelled, and the grammar was atrocious.

On page 160 he contradicts himself and says:—

The fabricators of the Book of Mormon have copied the obsolete words, the obsolete grammar, the violations of grammar, and the one of them, with scarcely an exception, made verbatim from our modern English version [italics his] the King James' version of the Bible, made a little over 200 years ago.—Ibid., p. 239.

Just think of it! Those bishops, 200 years ago, translated from a Hebrew text that has been handed down to us from generation to generation, copied and recopied a thousand times over, perhaps; and their translation from such a Hebrew text is found to accord exactly, even to the minutest particulars, with a translation made by an angel directly from Egyptian plates 2,600 years old, less one single transcription, and that made by the inspired prophet Mormon.—Ibid., p. 244.

The following are the results by careful comparison as stated above and give the facts. (See table.)

stead of "senine" in the above. Here is another instance of the right difference between Bible and Book of Mormon. The italics are used to show the omission in Book of Mormon:—

Bible:— But I say unto you, Swear not at all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne: nor by the earth; for it is his footstool: neither by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black.	Book of Mormon:— And again it is written, thou shalt not swear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths. But verily, verily I say unto you, swear not at all; neither by heaven, for it is God's throne; nor by the earth, for it is his footstool; neither shalt thou swear by the head, because thou canst not make one hair black or white.
--	--

The following are a few specimens of the differences between the two

Difference in words used to express the same thought.	Words added and omitted.		Words used in the Book of Mormon similar to italics in the Bible.	Words used in the Book of Mormon different from italics in the Bible.	Italics added in Bible; no corresponding word used in Book of Mormon.	Punctuation added and omitted.		Total number of differences between matter in the Bible and same matter in the Book of Mormon.
	BIBLE	B. OF M.				BIBLE	B. OF M.
147	691	1,941	279	119	163	175	292	3,528

punctuation of King James' version. . . . They are like the Chinaman that a lady employed to make some plates to fill out a set of china-ware. She had but one plate to give him as a pattern and it was cracked and nicked. To her amazement and amusement when John brought to her the two dozen plates she had ordered, every one was cracked and nicked just as the plate she gave him. He copied everything, supposing it to be a part of the pattern. Just so the fabricators of the Book of Mormon have copied every crack and nick in King James' version.

The Golden Bible:—

The words repeated from his [Christ's] Judean life have the disadvantage of an imperfect human translation, being quoted verbatim from our present English version of the Bible.—Page 45.

We find that the Lord Jesus, when he first appeared to the Nephies, . . . after saying a few words (more than one half of which are selections from his various words as recorded in the four Gospels), began to repeat the sermon on the Mount, as recorded by Matthew in the 5th, 6th, and 7th chapters, and repeated the entire sermon word for word. Then followed this, with about as much more material filled in constantly with short phrases or whole sentences taken from other portions of the Bible. When He came back the second time and addressed them at some length, he quotes verbatim nearly two whole chapters from the book of Isaiah, and closes up his speech with a repetition of the two last chapters of the book of Malachi.—Ibid., p. 187.

But why need we specify words, single words, or now and then an isolated passage, when there are sentences by the thousands, and whole chapters [italics his] whose very presence in the Book of Mormon, in the form in which they are found, settles the question of the modern origin of the book beyond the possibility of dispute. . . . They are every Braden says cracks are exactly the same. Lamb says quoted verbatim. Here are the facts.

In the above, of course the third column is not added in the total. Where the words in italics, added by the King James translators, are the same in the Book of Mormon, they are generally some simple conjunction or a word where the choice for using a different one was limited, such as "is," "in," "he was," "was any," "his," "and," "art," "am," etc.; but notice in the parallel passages below, the strong individuality shown in the choice of words where the italics are used in the Bible and a change in the Book of Mormon of such italicized words.

When Christ came to this continent he adapted himself to the conditions here existing.

For instance, in Jerusalem he said:— Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing.	To the Nephites he preached:— Verily, verily I say unto thee, thou shalt by no means come out thence, until thou hast paid the uttermost senine .
---	---

Lamb says Christ preached the same sermon here as in Jerusalem, in fact verbatim, and says the Book of Mormon disgraces Christ by making him a repeater. The facts are there are somewhere near 385 differences between the sermon on the Mount in Bible and in the Book of Mormon.

How easy it would have been to have made Christ say "farthing" in-books, and prove the translations are from different sources, and from different originals.

NOTE.—The italics in the Bible quotations are the words supplied by the translators. Where italics are used in the Book of Mormon quotations, they show difference between it and the Bible. This mark "*" shows an omission in Book of Mormon from same text in Bible.

WHERE FOUND IN THE BIBLE.	WHERE FOUND IN THE BOOK OF MORMON.
---------------------------	------------------------------------

Thy pomp is brought down to the grave, and the noise of thy viols; the worm is spread under thee, and the worms cover thee.—Isa. 14: 11.	Thy pomp is brought down to the grave; * the noise of thy viols is not heard ; the worm is spread under thee, and the worms cover thee.—2 Nephi 10: 15.
---	--

And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth.—Isa. 53: 9.	And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no evil , neither was any deceit in his mouth.—Book of Mosiah 8: 3.
---	---

Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.—Matt 5: 3.	Yea, blessed are the poor in spirit which cometh unto me, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.—Book of Nephi 5: 9.
--	---

Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.—Matt 5: 10.	And blessed are all they which are persecuted, for my name's sake, for theirs is the kingdom of Heaven.—Book of Nephi 5: 9.
--	---

Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men.—Matt 5: 13.	Verily, verily I say unto you, I give unto you to be the salt of the earth; but if the salt shall lose its savor, wherewith shall the earth be salted? The salt shall be thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men.—Book of Nephi 5: 9.
---	---

And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell. And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is	Not in the Book of Mormon.
---	----------------------------

profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.—Matt. 5: 28-30.

Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven. Therefore when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men.—Matt. 6: 1, 2.

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men.—Matt. 6: 5.

Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?

And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts. —Malachi 3: 5.

Awake, awake, stand up, O Jerusalem, which hast drunk at the hand of the Lord the cup of his fury; thou hast drunken the dregs of the cup of trembling, and wrung them out. There is none to guide her among all the sons whom she hath brought forth; neither is there any that taketh her by the hand of all the sons that she hath brought up. These two things are come unto thee; who shall be sorry for thee? desolation, and destruction, and the famine, and the sword: by whom shall I comfort thee? Thy sons have fainted, they lie at the head of all the streets, as a wild bull in a net: they are full of the fury of the Lord, the rebuke of thy God. Therefore hear now this, thou afflicted, and drunken, and not with wine: thus saith thy Lord the Lord, and thy God that pleadeth the cause of his people, Behold, I have taken out of thine hand the cup of trembling, even the dregs of the cup of my fury: thou shalt no more drink it again.—Isaiah 51: 17-22.

O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord. Therefore thou hast forsaken thy peo-

Verily, verily, I say that I would that ye should do alms unto the poor; but take heed that ye do not your alms before men to be seen of them; otherwise ye have no reward of your Father who is in heaven. Therefore, when ye shall do your alms, do not sound a trumpet before you, as will hypocrites do in the synagogues, and in the streets, that they may have glory of men.—Book of Nephi 5: 11.

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not do as the hypocrites * for they love to pray standing in the synagogues, and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men.—Book of Nephi 5: 12.

Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, even so will he clothe you, if ye are not of little faith.—Book of Nephi 6: 1.

And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger, * and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts.—Book of Nephi 11: 1.

Awake, awake, stand up, O Jerusalem, which hast drunk at the hand of the Lord the cup of his fury; thou hast drunken the dregs of the cup of trembling * wrung * out; * and none to guide her among all the sons * she hath brought forth; neither * that taketh her by the hand, of all the sons * she hath brought up. These two sons are come unto thee; who shall be sorry for thee: thy desolation * and destruction, and the famine * and the sword: And by whom shall I comfort thee? Thy sons have fainted, save these two: they lie at the head of all the streets, as a wild bull in a net: they are full of the fury of the Lord, the rebuke of thy God. Therefore, hear now this, thou afflicted, and drunken, and not with wine: thus saith thy Lord, the Lord * and thy God * pleadeth the cause of his people, behold, I have taken out of thine hand the cup of trembling, * the dregs of the cup of my fury; thou shalt no more drink it again.—2 Nephi 5: 9.

O house of Jacob, come ye * and let us walk in the light of the Lord; yea, come, for ye have all gone astray, every ple the house of Jacob, because they be replenished from the east, and are soothsayers like the Philistines, and they please themselves in the children of strangers.—Isaiah 2: 5, 6.

And the mean man boweth down, and the great man humbleth himself: therefore forgive them not.—Isaiah 2: 9.

And he said, Go, and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not.—Isaiah 6: 9.

Isaiah 2: 10-22.

Isaiah 3: 9.

Isaiah 3: 11.

Isaiah 3: 18.

Isaiah 3: 26.

Isaiah 4: 5.

Isaiah 5: 1.

Isaiah 5: 8.

Isaiah 5: 9.

Isaiah 5: 28.

Isaiah 5: 29.

one to his wicked ways. Therefore, O Lord, thou hast forsaken thy people, the house of Jacob, because they be replenished from the east, and hearken unto soothsayers like the Philistines, and they please themselves in the children of strangers.—2 Nephi 8: 4, 5.

And the mean man boweth down, and the great man humbleth himself not: therefore forgive him not.—2 Nephi 8: 5.

And he said, go, and tell this people, hear ye indeed, but they understood not; and see ye indeed, but they perceived not.—2 Nephi 9: 3.

2 Nephi 8: 6-8.

2 Nephi 8: 8-10.

2 Nephi 8: 11.

2 Nephi 8: 13-19.

BRO. and SR. C. EDWARD MILLER,
E. HARRY THOMAS.

PITTSBURG, Penn., August 6, 1898.

INFIDEL ARGUMENTS ANSWERED.

NO. 3.

BY C. J. SPURLOCK.

INFIDELS say God was unjust in causing or permitting the children of Israel to drive out and destroy other nations in the land of Palestine, that they might have room to dwell. That God did help the children of Israel with their wars, in the heathen nations by which they were surrounded, is quite evident; so let us carefully consider whether he was justified in so doing. I surely think that if we will carefully consider this matter, the infidel will not censure the Almighty for doing as he did; but that they can see infinite justice in his acts.

In the first place, let us consider the fact that the earth was made for the righteous. Matthew tells us the meek shall inherit the earth. The natural tendency of society is downward. One bad man or woman in a community is detrimental to the advancement of good society in that community. This being true of one bad person, it is also true of a whole nation or several nations combined.

Although but few infidels read the Bible extensively, I believe most of them are conversant with the fact that the heathen nations, who dwelt in Palestine at the time of its invasion by Joshua, were ripe in iniquity. Evidently it is better that several wicked persons be destroyed that a few righteous may be preserved, rather than for all to become wicked and all be destroyed together. While this is true of individuals, it is also true of nations.

The Lord promised to Abraham that in him, and in his seed, should "all the nations of the earth be blessed." Christ was to be of the seed of Abraham, hence a righteous seed must necessarily be preserved. Had the Lord not kept this promise in mind, and taken proper steps to its fulfillment, the plan of salvation must have been frustrated; but the plan of salvation could not be frustrated, else God would cease to be God. Some seem to think that the Hebrews had a better chance of salvation than the other nations; but when we consider that the gospel had been preached to the Gentiles and they refused it, we may see that they brought all the trouble on themselves by rejecting the truth.

To prove that they rejected the gospel I refer to Galatians:—

The Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham.—Gal. 3: 8.

"God justified the heathen through faith"—significant expression, Who were the heathen referred to but those in Palestine, who in four hundred years were driven out of the land by reason of their rejecting the gospel and becoming ripe in iniquity? The Lord said to Abraham, thy seed shall sojourn in a strange land four hundred years, "for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full." (Gen. 15:16.) The Amorites were the wicked people, dwelling at the time in the land of Palestine, and who would be ripe in iniquity in four hundred years; so much so, that the Lord could not justly longer endure their abominations.

Having found that the nations driven out of the land were wicked in the extreme, we shall now examine the character of their wickedness, to see to what special sins they were addicted. It appears from reading their history in the Bible, that their marriage laws were corrupt, and when this one law is violated for hundreds of years, infidels must admit that the nations so doing would be in a miserable condition. For example take the worst class of society to-day, and place them in a colony to themselves, and let them remain even for two hundred years, and imagine if you can what would be their condition? But this is a sad picture; let us turn from it and consider another sin characteristic of these nations. It was that of spiritualism under another name. This clearly is one of the evils for which they were driven out of the land.

When thou art come unto the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations. There shall not be found among you anyone that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer. For all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord; and because of these abominations the Lord thy God doth drive them out before thee.—Deut. 18:9-12.

Now we see that they had witches, and consulted with familiar spirits. This is what spiritualists do to-day.

A man also or woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death; they shall stone them with stones; their blood shall be upon them.—Lev. 20:27. (See Deut. 13:13.)

Also see first Samuel, twenty-eighth chapter, where Saul sought after a woman who had a familiar spirit.

Now these scriptural citations, with others that might be given, reveal something of the terrible condition into which these heathen nations had fallen, and show what would be the inevitable and natural result of placing a righteous nation among them, and allowing them to remain together for centuries. The Hebrew nation could not serve God acceptably in Egypt while they were sorely oppressed, hence it was but natural and right for the Lord to take them out of Egypt and place them in their own land, even though the wicked nations occupying there were destroyed to accomplish this righteous purpose in God. Hence we read in Psalms:—

Thou hast brought a vine out of Egypt; thou hast cast out the heathen, and planted it. Thou preparedst room before it, and did cause it to take deep root, and filled the land.—Psalms 80:8, 9.

Since we have seen the heathen nations were driven out, and the reason of their expulsion, let us be fair, and see if some of the Hebrews themselves were not destroyed for their wickedness also. It is said that Moses started from Egypt with about two and one-half millions of people,—including men, women and children,—but when they arrived in Palestine, behold only two of that vast multitude had made the entire journey. Joshua and Caleb were the only persons left of the original number; so we see that while God loves and cares for his people, he cannot look on sin with the least degree of allowance, even among the Hebrew nations. Thus it was that the young and more righteous of the Hebrews were rightly and justly permitted to drive out the more wicked nations in the promised land, that they might have room to serve God, that truth might finally prevail among all nations.

May 28, 1898.

Conference Minutes.

EASTERN COLORADO.

Conference at Conifer, Colorado, with Rocky Mountain branch, at ten a. m. August 20; J. B. Roush presiding, associate J. W. Gillen, C. E. Everett secretary. Branch reports: Denver 132; gain 5. Rocky Mountain 34; loss 1. Laird 37. Eustis 47; gain 6. New Windsor 21. Cedar 21. Highland 20; gain 2. Coal Creek (disorganized) 9. Cottonwood (no report) 63. Total 384; net gain 12. Ministry reporting: Apostle J. W. Gillen; Elders J. B. Roush, O. B. Thomas, E. F. Shupe, A. Kent, James Kemp, G. E. McConley, Jas. Houston. Priest M. F. Ralston. Bishop's agent's report: On hand February 15 $12.65; receipts $216.85; expenditures $207; cash on hand $22.50. Report audited and endorsed. A committee was appointed to arrange for the organization of a district Sunday school association at next district conference. The district secretary was authorized to call upon the different branches of the district for necessary funds to repair the church building at Conifer, Colorado. C. E. Everett, Bishop's agent, chairman, Elders J. W. Gillen and James Kemp were appointed as a committee to see that the repairs were made as soon as possible. All officers of the district were sustained for the ensuing six months: J. B. Roush president, E. F. Shupe vice president, C. E. Everett secretary. Motion to sustain the Bishop's agent, carried. Speakers during conference: Apostle James W. Gillen, Elders J. B. Roush, A. Kent, and G. E. McConley. A vote of thanks was extended to the saints and friends for entertainment during conference. Adjourned to Denver, the third Saturday and Sunday in February, 1899. Brn. J. B. Roush and A. Kent held services for one week after conference, baptizing one.

"It is estimated that since the beginning of the historical era 13,000,000 persons have perished in earthquakes."

Sunday School Associations.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

Northern Nebraska district Sunday school association will convene at Fremont, Nebraska, September 30, at two p. m. All are invited.

H. W. BELVILLE, Supt.
EMMA OGARD, Sec.

Des Moines district Sunday school association will meet at Clear Creek schoolhouse, near Baxter, September 30, at ten a. m. The morning session will be devoted to regular business; the afternoon to the discussion of the following question: Can the Sunday schools of this district be successfully graded; if so, how? if not, why? Opened by Brn. E. B. Morgan, Fred Chandler, Marcus Cook, W. W. Owens, W. C. Hidy, J. S. Roth, Srs. Mattie Hughes, Martha Young, Sr. Martin (of Perry), W. H. Kephart, Allan McCoy, and C. Scott. The evening program will consist of recitations, dialogues, etc. Please let each Sunday school be sure and send report, also a delegate if possible.

MRS. ETTA SPRINGER, Supt.

Convention of Nauvoo district Sunday school association will convene September 30, at Rockcreek, Illinois. Secretaries of schools please send reports to Sr. Marjorie Wright, 1,001 South Tenth Street, Burlington, Iowa.

JOHN BRENNAN, Supt.

The Sunday school association of Chatham district will convene with the Zone branch on Friday, September 30, at two p. m., the day before our fall conference. Superintendents and secretaries are requested to send a correct report of their Sabbath schools to the convention. The district superintendents have prepared a program, which we trust will be instructive and interesting. Come one and all and learn more of Sabbath school work.

G. M. SHIPPY, Supt.
MARY M. GREEN, Sec.

Convention of Decatur district will convene at Davis City, Iowa, October 7. Prayer meeting at 9:30 a. m.; business session at eleven. Institute work: 2:15 p. m. Duties of district officers, W. B. Paul. 2:45, Duties of Sunday school officers and teachers, G. W. Blair. 3:15, How to organize and conduct a Religio, J. A. Gunsolley, president. 7:30, The Sunday school as a factor in character building, J. A. Gunsolley, First Assistant Superintendent General Association. 8:00, The Religio—relation to the home, the Sunday school, and the church—what it will do for its members, the home, the Sunday school, the community, and the church, F. E. Cochran. Special attention is called to this "institute work." If you are interested in Sunday school work and have not learned all, come; if otherwise, come and impart. To be ignorant of Religio work is to be ignorant of one of the most active and energetic church "auxiliaries."

W. B. PAUL, Supt.

Miscellaneous Department.

A REQUEST.

If this attracts the notice of Dr. Chase Taylor, the colored brother who was ordained to the office of priest at Lamoni, a few years ago, I would be pleased to have him correspond with me, as to his whereabouts, and what he is now doing for the work. If any of the saints who read this can give me any of the above information I will be very thankful.

F. M. WELD.

LAMONI, IOWA.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

There will be a two-days' meeting, or lasting from the evening of the 7th to the 10th of October, in Grovehill branch, to be held in Oran Center schoolhouse. Those coming on the train will be met at Fairbank and also Oelwein. Come saints, let us have a good, profitable time in the work of the Lord.

There will be a two-days' meeting held in Osterdock, Iowa, branch, October 15 and 16. Will the saints of the district, especially of the northern counties, please take notice. Come, and let us have a good spiritual time. Saints coming by way of train will be met on Friday and Saturday at Elkport.

J. W. PETERSON, Pres.

J. R. SUTTON, Clerk.

BRIEF REMINISCENCE OF BRO. ISAAC ASHTON.

Isaac Ashton was born in Hampshire County, Virginia, July 4, 1811. He united with the United Brethren Church when he was about twenty years of age, with which church he remained until the year 1840, when he heard and obeyed the gospel at Nauvoo, Illinois, where he lived till the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. He said before his death and made record of the following, as found in his daughter's family Bible, written by his own hand a few days before his death:—

"Joseph (Smith) prophesied some eight months before his death, that at no very distant day the church would be all broken up and scattered. In a few days after his death S. Rigdon came and claimed guardianship of the church until young Joseph came to mature age to take his place at the head of the church. In a few days Brigham Young appeared on the stand and claimed himself head of the church as president of the Twelve, and said 'They could never put a head over the Twelve,' and here occurred the transformation. Brigham was stamping the floor and pounding the desk with his fist, then his voice raised to the highest key, and all at once his voice and his countenance changed to that of Joseph Smith, which caused some to say that the mantle had fallen upon Brother Brigham, and here the scattering began, the different leaders drawing as many after them as would follow. But some stood still to see the salvation of God. I drew off and settled in Monona County, Iowa, where I lived for many years, until I heard the sound of the gospel as taught by the elders sent out by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ. I knew the sound and came back into the fold, since which time I have tried to live so that when my time comes to depart this life, I might be ready to go in peace, praying God, ever to be with me."

He made his home for several years before his death, which occurred in May, of which occurrence Bro. Dana Condit made mention in a letter to the Herald, he preaching the funeral discourse in the saints' chapel at Little Sioux, Iowa, near which place he was laid to rest to await the resurrection day.

J. F. MINTUN.

SMITHLAND, IOWA, Sept. 7, 1898.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Des Moines district conference convenes with the saints of Clear Creek, Jasper County, some eight miles southwest of Rhodes, eight miles south of Collins, and five miles west of Baxter, October 1 and 2, commencing Saturday at ten a. m. Those coming by train from the east come to Rhodes, on the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul R. R., and inquire for William C. Nirk; those from the north come to Slater, on the above road and to Rhodes; likewise those from the west. Those from the south and southwest, take the Chicago, Great Western R. R., and go to Baxter; inquire for William Owens, and Columbus Barbee. Conveyances will meet conference visitors at these points. Do not forget the Sunday school convention on Friday, September 30, at ten a. m. Let the young people come en masse. All holding priesthood, have your reports written and on hand in time. Branch statistical reports should be promptly on hand, without fail. It is quite probable that Elder H. C. Smith, one of the missionaries in charge, will be with us, also other missionaries. Come one and all, praying that the Lord be with us to magnify and extend his work.

C. SCOTT,

By order District President.

Pittsburg district conference will be held at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, October 22 and 23, at the Hall, 67 Fourth Avenue. W. H. Kelly is expected to be in attendance.

C. ED. MILLER, Pres.

St. Louis district conference will convene at Belleville, St. Clair County, Illinois, September 24, at 2:30 p. m. All are invited.

J. G. SMITH, Sec.

Northern Michigan district conference will convene October 15, at Whittemore, Iosco County, Michigan. We hope to have full reports from all branches and officers. All come who can; as on former occasions we expect to have an enjoyable time.

J. J. CORNISH.

Conference of Northern Minnesota district for the fall of 1898, will be held in Maine, Otter Tail County, at the schoolhouse near Elder William Barnhard's on Saturday and Sunday, October 15 and 16. The railroad station nearest to Elder Barnhard's is Underwood, on the road from Wadena to Fergus Falls. All are cordially invited to attend.

G. L. JONES, Sec.

Northeast Texas and Choctaw district conference will convene at Wilburton, Choctaw Nation, Saturday, October 15. Please remember the date. Let us have a good attendance and a profitable meeting will be the result.

ELLIS SHORT, Pres.

Massachusetts district conference will convene at Fall River, Massachusetts, October 8, at 2:30 p. m. Let all statistical and priesthood reports be in my hands by October 1, at latest. Address, corner Greenwood and Fowler Streets, Dorchester, Massachusetts.

M. C. FISHER, Clerk.

DIED.

OLSEN.—At Angola, Kansas, August 24, 1898, Sr. Ellen Olsen, about 80 years old. She was ready to depart, and had always tried to serve the Lord. She leaves one son and five grandchildren. Funeral services in charge of W. France and R. H. Davis.

RUSSEL.—At Davisville, California, August 6, 1898, Luella O. Russel. She was laid to rest to await the resurrection of the just, at Dublin, California. Funeral conducted by C. A. Parkin at the grave, where about forty or fifty friends came to pay the last tribute to the dear one. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

STAWPERT.—Sr. Sarah Stawpert passed peacefully away at her home, the home of her son, Chicago, Illinois, August 23, 1898, at the age of 67 years. She was born in Manchester, England, and passed through the "western experience," going thence in 1849. Her husband, George Stawpert, preceded her to the spirit state fifteen years. She leaves two sons and two daughters, the sons only being present—the daughters living on the extreme coasts could not come. She suffered much, yet patiently. When the fatal hour came, peace rested upon her, and her oft repeated prayer was answered that she might pass to the "rest in Christ promised." Funeral in charge of F. M. Pitt, sermon by J. M. Terry.

TASE.—Mary A. Tase was born in Nottawa Township, St. Joseph County, Michigan, March 11, 1837. November 4, 1862, she married Walcott H. Lawrence, who died in 1888. To them were born four children, two of whom, G. H. Lawrence of Florence, and Mrs. Gertrude Brook of Ann Arbor, survive them. Died of paralysis August 23, 1898, being sixty-one years, five months, and twelve days old. She had been an invalid for several years and was a great sufferer. She lived a quiet Christian life and died in full evidence of the faith. The funeral was held Thursday from the residence in Florence.

TRAINER.—Sr. Chloe Trainer was born near Vales Mills, Ohio, May 31, 1833; died August 18, 1898. She united with the church January 29, 1898, and has lived a faithful life since, and bore a strong testimony. She was much older in actions than in years, and was loved by all who knew her. Many sad hearts followed her body to its last resting place. Funeral services at Vales Mills chapel, by Elder S. J. Jeffers, assisted by Elders H. E. Moler and F. C. Smith.

GRACELAND COLLEGE,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Telephone 71.

For catalogues or further information,
Address, PROF. ERNEST R. DEWSNUP,
President,
or R. S. SALYARDS, Secretary,
LAMONI, IOWA.

THE INSTRUCTOR. A compendium of the faith and doctrines of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by Elder G. T. Griffiths.
Cloth $ 75
Leather..... 1 00
Flexible binding..... 1 50

JOSEPH THE SEER. His prophetic mission vindicated and the divine origin of the Book of Mormon defended and maintained.
Paper $0 35
Cloth, limp..... 50

THE SAINTS' HYMNAL. The popular edition of words and music, in general use.
Paper covers $0 30
Cloth and leather 50
Full leather 1 00
Gilt edges..... 1 25
Flexible..... 1 50

THE SAINTS' HYMNAL. Word edition.
Paper $0 15
Cloth 25
Cloth 35

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.
Branch statistical reports; per doz. $0 40
Annual statistical reports; two for Certificates of baptism and membership; per dozen..... 12
Baptism and confirmation certificate books, with stubs 25
Certificates of removal; per dozen.. 12
Marriage certificates; per dozen ... 25

THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS. A book for small children. Cloth... $0 20

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth $1 00
Sheep or library binding 1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 75
Morocco, gilt edges 2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges 3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible..... 2 00

THE BOOK OF MORMON. Large Type Edition.

Cloth, leather backs and corners.. $1 50
Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges 2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

THE TWO RECORDS. The Book of Mormon and the New Testament. (Inspired Translation) in large type; in one volume.

Leather back and corners $2 00
Seal Grain Russia..... 2 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 3 50
Morocco, gilt edges 4 00

NEW TESTAMENTS. Inspired Translation. Pocket-size edition.

Cloth $0 30
Cloth sides, leather back 50

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6½x8½, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net $2 00

..... $2 00

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Rules for the government of general and district conferences, branch business meetings, and other assemblies. Instructions concerning general, district, and branch records, the holding of elder's courts, etc., cloth bound; price 40 cents.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound $1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.

Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

G. A. R. National Encampment, Cincinnati, Ohio, September 5-10, 1898. Returning not later than September 13. An extension of time till October 2 can be obtained. Special G. A. R. train leaves Chariton 4:50 a. m., arriving Cincinnati same day at 9:05 p. m. Round trip from Lamoni $14.05.

Its Easy Writing

If its a Blickensderfer No. 5.

The universal favorite with all classes of operators who desire a simple and speedy machine.

More "Blicks" in use among Iowa and Nebraska newspapers than all the rest of the $100 machines together. The only Typewriter on the market doing hundred-dollar work that is sold at a popular price.

Has 28 Keys, of 84 Characters and Letters; Portable, weighing but Six Pounds with case.

Copies and Manifolds perfectly,—12 carbon copies being easily taken at one writing.

Only one price—$35.00 net. On ten days approval to any responsible man in Iowa or Nebraska. Address,

HARGER & BLISH,
General Agents,

904-910 Main Street, DUBUQUE, IOWA.

$35

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.	Officers.
David Dancer.	David Dancer,
Wm. Anderson.	President.
Geo. H. Hilliard.	Wm. Anderson,
Frank Criley.	Vice President.
A. K. Anderson.	W. A. Hopkins,
G. W. Blair.	Cashier.
Oscar Anderson.	Oscar Anderson,
Ella D. Whitehead.	Assistant Cashier.
Lucy L. Resseguie.
Alice P. Dancer.
W. A. Hopkins.

Directors.
David Dancer.	W. A. Hopkins.
Wm. Anderson.	Ella D. Whitehead.
Frank Criley.	Lucy L. Resseguie.
A. K. Anderson.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address,
I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

BRO. E. F. ORDWAY, of Peoria, Illinois, will send 3 boxes of Quit-to-Bac post paid anywhere for $1.50, and positively guarantee it to cure your tobacco habit, or your money refunded.

MANGLES — FOR — FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.

An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.

NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.

Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.

Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.

THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture and Supplies

The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.

GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.

Agents Wanted Everywhere.

THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE

Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery.

Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to

RACINE HARDWARE CO., Racine, Wis.

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.

The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a

Reward of $200

By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns.

TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.

It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State

PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.

DES MOINES, IOWA.

WANTED.—Copy of JOURNAL OF DISCOURSES. State price and condition copy is in, etc.

C. EDWARD MILLER,

280 Rebecca St., Allegheny, Pa.

HOMESEEEKERS' EXCURSIONS

SEPT. 6
SEPT. 20
OCT. 4
OCT. 18

These are the days on which you can buy very low-rate round-trip Excursion Tickets to NEBRASKA and other points in the West, Northwest and Southwest, good for 21 days. Stop on your way and see the GREAT TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION AT OMAHA.

This road publishes an illustrated pamphlet describing Nebraska, and also one about the Omaha Exposition. You can get both without charge on application to the C. B. & Q. ticket agent or to P. S. EUSTIS, General Passenger Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill.

Go and look for a New Home in Nebraska, a prosperous country, where a farm can be bought for one years' rent of an eastern farm.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, September 28, 1898.

No. 39.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:

A Searchlight Criticism.—No. 1.....613
Canada to Vote on Prohibition.....616

ORIGINAL POETRY:

"Esto Perpetua".....618

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN.....618

LETTER DEPARTMENT.....619

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Origin of the Seventh-Day Adventist

Church.....623

That Defiance Debate.....624

Is This Gospel?.....626

CONFERENCE MINUTES:

Kirtland.....627

Northeastern Illinois.....627

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:.....628

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:

Woodbine Reunion.....628

Reunion Notices.....628

THE CHINESE FORWARD MOVEMENT.

THE consular reports from China continue to bring to the State Department new and strange stories of the awakening in the Celestial Empire—stories so strange and so in conflict with the proverbial characteristics of the people that they almost challenge belief. These reports consist of translations of imperial decrees. One decree authorizes the promulgation of the Christian religion and orders the local authorities to protect the missionaries. Another declares for the freedom of the press and orders the newspapers to "print the truth concerning all the daily happenings of the empire," whether they are creditable to the government or not.

Still another decree relates to the proposed enactment of copyright and patent laws and rewards for the development of the material and other resources of the empire. The text of this decree is of striking interest when compared with the immemorial policy of the Chinese rulers. It assumes, in what may be called its preamble, that China is full of resources and that "men of intellect and brilliant talent, capable of learning and doing anything they please, are not lacking, but their movements have hitherto been hampered by old prejudices, which have formed a bar to thinking out and introducing to practical use new inventions." The decree then announces that, as "we have entered upon the highroad towards the education and enlightenment of the masses, for the purpose of making our empire strong and wealthy like other nations, our first duty should be the encouragement and employment of men of genius and talent."

With this commendable end in view, the Emperor commands that if any one of his subjects shall write a useful book or invent a new design in machinery or produce any useful work in art or science he shall be honored and rewarded, "in order to serve as an encouragement and exhortation to others of similar genius and talent." In case such persons have sufficient ability to become officials the Emperor agrees to appoint them to posts or grant them "decorations or fine raiment," while they will also be allowed to enjoy the fruits of their labor by being "presented with papers empowering them to be the sole manufacturers and sellers within a certain limit of time." The Emperor also offers lucrative rewards "to such as have administrative talents and the necessary funds either to build schools or begin irrigation works for the benefit of agriculture, or build rifle factories or cannon foundries, all of which will be of great benefit to the population of the empire at large." The decree closes with a command to the Tsung li Yamen "to draw up the regulations which shall govern the various matters noted within this edict and report at once to us."

The world will note with surprise as well as interest the signs of the forward movement in China after its long sleep of centuries, but will be inclined to ask, first, if it is all true, and, second, if true, will the Emperor be able to infuse his subjects with the same spirit of reform which seems to have inspired him? The rapidity with which he is making suggestions and issuing reform decrees may be explained by the proverbial enthusiasm and aggressiveness of fresh converts, but it will be a far different matter for him to infuse his slow-going subjects with the same spirit. And yet this is what must be done in China if its government does not wish to see it divided up among the European powers as Africa has been.—Chicago Tribune, Sept. 21.

NEW PRIESTS WANTED.

HOW WAR AFFECTS THE CHURCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19.—Under the instructions given the peace commissioners by the President the Catholic Church in Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Philippine islands is to be allowed to look after itself. Its interests, from the point of view of our government, are not involved in the terms of peace.

When any portion of Spanish territory is annexed to the United States all citizens, whether clergy or layman, will be subject to the laws that now stand upon the statute books, just as they are in the several states and territories at present, and no special legislation will be enacted for their benefit. The Catholic Church in the new colonies will be allowed the same liberties that are allowed in Chicago, where it has churches, schools, monasteries, nunneries, and all sorts of benevolent institutions. It will be permitted to have the same establishments in the newly acquired territory and will be allowed to conduct them in the same way.

Religious subsidies are not recognized by the Constitution of the United States, and therefore the annual allowance which has been paid to the church from the government treasury in the Spanish provinces will be discontinued, and all of its property which is not used for ecclesiastical purposes will be taxed just as it is in the United States.

There is a perfectly harmonious understanding between President McKinley, Cardinal Gibbons, and other members of the Catholic hierarchy in this country. They appreciate the situation, they understand public sentiment, and they approve the President's course in eliminating religious questions from the peace negotiations. They realize also the enormous difference in intelligence and in the moral and physical conditions between the members of the Catholic Church in this country and in the Spanish colonies, and it is understood that the authorities at Rome will intrust the necessary reforms to American prelates.

The ecclesiastical jurisdiction of Cardinal Gibbons will be extended with the territory of the United States. A commission of American bishops will shortly be sent to Cuba and Puerto Rico for the purpose of making an investigation into the condition of the church in those islands and recommending to the holy father what is necessary to be done to meet the changed conditions. Undoubtedly the first thing they will recommend will be the recall of the Spanish priests and monks and the substitution of progressive and intelligent Americans in their places. This cannot be done suddenly. It will be the work of months. Such a religious organization as will be found in Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines could not exist under our Constitution and laws, and it is believed that it will be easier to educate the people than the priesthood to the new conditions.—Chicago Record, Sept. 20.

DWELL LONG ON THE EARTH.

PROBABLY few persons outside statistical circles are aware of the fact that the Jews are considerably longer lived than any other civilized race.

Of 100,000 Hebrews born on the same day there will be 50,684 males and 49,316 females.

At the end of the first year the 100,000 Jewish infants will have established in a most remarkable way their superiority in point of vitality, for only 8,091 will have died, as compared with 14,192 in the English experience and 16,706 Americans.

Striking as this difference is, it will be found to be practically maintained throughout the later stages of life. At the end of five years only 13,844 Jewish children out of the 100,000 will have died, while out of a similar number of English children 24,679 will have joined the great majority, and America will still keep her bad pre-eminence with 26,912 angels.

Making a leap to middle-age, the deaths at 50 years of age will have been 26,519 Jews, as compared with 49,079 English; and at the age of 65 the mortality returns will stand at 37,442 and 66,110, respectively.

But the full force of the comparison is hardly seen until the point of extreme old age is reached. At 85 years no fewer than 25,135 of our 100,000 Jews will be still living, while the survivors of the English band will be a meager 5,566.

Besides the curious reversal of the usual proportion of males and females, there is another unique feature in the Jewish statistics. The general experience is that the average duration of life is higher with the female than with the male. The opposite is the case with the Jews. Of the 25,135 Jewish survivors at the age of 85 there will be 16,225 men and only 8,910 women—a percentage of 64.60 males and 35.40 females. The English experience shows that at that age 59.90 per cent of the survivals will be females and 40.10 males.—London Daily Mail.

CHINA WILL PROTECT OUR MISSIONARIES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Minister Conger at Peking transmits to the State department the interpretation of an important decree issued by the Emperor. The importance of this decree is found in the fact that the Emperor emphasizes the treaty provisions authorizing the promulgation of the Christian religion and forcibly reiterates his instructions to the authorities in the various provinces to see to it that proper protection is accorded to missionaries, and enjoins on local officers to receive missionaries when they ordinarily call upon them.

Such an order, coming from the Emperor, has never before been promulgated. It will serve a good purpose, for missionaries will now be able to make representations direct to the officials concerning their work or their difficulties and time, trouble, and expense will thereby be saved. Action must be taken without loss of time to bring all unsettled cases to a termination, and any lack of energy in this respect by the local authorities is promised effective punishment. The decree says:—

“In a word, the local authorities have not been able to show their respectful indebtedness to us and carry out the specific injunctions which we have solemnly enjoined upon them; and whenever cases have arisen involving Christians and non-Christians, if they have not been careless and given no attention to them, then they have been laboring under the idea that these are outside matters. They have not exerted their influence for good, and any ill-feeling existing among the people against Christians has easily led to trouble.

“It is not strange, then, that missionary troubles are occurring more and more often. The high authorities of all the provinces are now specially commanded that whenever missionary cases occur they must particularly instruct the local officers to act in good earnest to give proper protection, and whenever missionaries wish to call upon the local officials these must not of their own free will and accord cut off or decline to have communication with them. Such intercourse will lead to mutual trust, good faith, and confidence. The native Christians will then not cause trouble and the people will be admonished that they must not for trifling reasons create disturbances.

“In the event of a sudden uprising among the people, if the officials of the place deal with the matter on an impartial and equitable basis, it will not be a matter of difficulty to prevent a calamity before it has actually broken out.

“The Tartar Generals, Viceroy, and Governors, therefore, must strenuously instruct the officers under their respective jurisdictions that as occasion arises they are to satisfactorily and carefully devise a plan of action in the premises.

“As to the cases still remaining unsettled, let such action be taken as is necessary to bring them to a settlement without loss of time and as in future will prevent missionary troubles again occurring.

“Should there be any lack of energy shown in taking precautionary measures to prevent trouble, the delinquent officials will be severely punished in accordance with the new rules framed and submitted to us by the Yamen of Foreign Affairs. The Tartar Generals, Viceroy, and Governors also will not be allowed in such cases to shift the responsibility imposed on them upon any one else.”—Chicago Tribune.

“What we want,” said a Mohammedan, “is not merely education, but character, and that we have not got.”

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, September 28, 1898.

No. 39.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPT. 28, 1898.

A SEARCHLIGHT CRITICISM.—NO. 1.

It is well enough for those who may choose to criticise the work of the Reorganization, and we of that body should profit by all just criticism. It is in this disposition that we call attention to something which our neighbors, the "Church of Christ" (the Hedrickite, or Independence, Missouri, branch), present to their members, and incidentally of course to everybody else, in their organ, the Searchlight. We present the article in full from pages 213, 214, Searchlight for April, 1898:—

The following letter, written from a town in Michigan, by a gentleman who prefers to have his communication signed "Enquirer," deserves an answer and will be treated accordingly.

January 30.

JOHN HALDEMAN, ESQ.,
Independence, Mo.

Dear Sir:—There is now several questions in my mind that I would like some one to answer from the New Testament.

(1.) How is it that the Church of Christ, and the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints both claim to be the true Church of Christ, both springing out of the church organized in 1830. By what infallible rule, sign, or authority can the looker on tell which, if either, is the true Church of Christ, as he left it with his apostles; the Reorganized Church claims the signs following the believer, so does the Church of Christ in Zion. How shall we know the true from the false?

(2.) If Christ "set in the church, first apostles, second prophets," etc., then by what authority does the said church change it thus: first, prophet, seer and revelator; second, apostles, etc. There were prophets and prophetesses in the church in Paul's time, but I do not understand that they were the head of the church, besides the New Testament claims that Christ is the head of the church, and first officer next to him is the apostles; and in Paul's time it appears that all the apostles were prophets, seers and revelators, more or less.

Will you kindly give the above subjects justice, to the best of your ability, in the columns of the Searchlight, and you will confer a favor on me. I do not wish a controversy, but only the pure light; hence my questions. . . . One more question: Do you hold that the signs should follow those that believe, as recorded in Mark, or do you hold that none but the elders should lay on hands for the healing of the sick. The result of the Temple Lot suit has set me to thinking in and on many things. Awaiting your reply, I am,

Yours truly,

ENQUIRER.

"Enquirer" wants to know what rule, sign, or authority can be employed by the looker on, to tell which, if either, is the true Church of Christ. The infallibility of the rule sometimes depends upon the willingness of the person to accept the principles upon which the rule is based. It might be possible for us to bring forward proofs which, to our mind, would be infallible, but which, to the mind of "Enquirer," would appear of little importance. We will say this, however, that we know of no better rule to determine the soundness of the claims of any church, than that given by the prophet, where he says "To the law and the testimony, and if they speak not according to these, it is because there is no light in them." As far as "signs following" is concerned, they prove, nor disprove nothing as to which one of the factions is the true Church of Christ, for it is a fact that Brighamite, Josephite, Whitmerite, Hedrickite, and every other "ite" that are believers in the Book of Mormon, have the "signs following" in a more or less degree.

In the second part of his letter, he asks, "If Christ set in the church first apostles, second prophets, etc., then by what authority does the said churches change it thus: first, prophet, seer and revelator; second, apostles, etc. We wish to say in reply to this that the Church of Christ, from the present day back to the year 1830, cannot be justly charged with having made the arrangement indicated in this letter. Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery were the two men called out the day the church was organized on April 6, 1830, to be its first elders; these men both claimed to be apostles, so the criticism of "Enquirer," as far as the Church of Christ is concerned, is unwarranted; however, not so much may be said of the Reorganized church: it is true that they have reversed the order, as indicated in the New Testament, and instead of having apostles first in the affairs of the church they have substituted a quorum called their First Presidency, and to make the matter worse, there is not one of this first presidency who claims to be an apostle. Thus we see they differ materially from the organization of the apostolic church, in this manner: in the days of Peter, James, and John, we find their first presidency was composed of men from out the quorum of the Twelve, and yet it is in no manner certain that this first presidency of the apostolic church, possessed any powers superior to the quorum of the Twelve; in fact it is reasonable to suppose that they simply held and exercised delegated authority, and acted as a sort of subcommittee of the remainder of the Twelve, in order to expedite business and centralize efforts. Now the Reorganization has a first presidency, but instead of being composed of apostles, it is made up of elders in the Reorganization.

Your last question whether we hold that the signs should follow those who believe, we will answer that we certainly do believe that the sign should follow the believer in Christ. The last instruction in the New Testament concerning the administration to the sick is found in the fifth chapter of James, thirteenth to fifteenth verses inclusive, where definite instructions are given, and there we find that it is the elders of the church who are to do the anointing with oil and who also are to pray over the sick; as these are the only definite instructions we have regarding the manner of administrations, we deem it safe to strictly conform to the regulations there provided.

"We wish to say in reply to this that the Church of Christ, from the present day back to the year 1830, cannot be justly charged with having made the arrangement indicated in this letter."

The "Church of Christ" is on record in the Searchlight as having indorsed the Book of Commandments, or the revelations of Joseph Smith until February, 1834, and the organization of the church April 6, 1830. So that in quoting from the revelations given to Joseph Smith and others for the purpose of instituting and establishing the church and its governmental guidance and direction, our neighbors must accept these revelations as well as we.

On February 17, 1834, there was an assembly of twenty-four high priests of the church at Kirtland, Ohio, for the purpose of organizing a high council of the Church of Christ. This is history and not revelation; but in the minutes of the organization as given in the Book of Covenants and history, Joseph Smith, Jr., Sidney Rigdon, and Frederick G. Williams were acknowledged presidents, by the voice of the council. There were forty-three of the membership present and voting in the name of the church.

The statement is made that the council was appointed by revelation; that is, that it was the result of a revelation previously given.

Joseph Smith and some others reached Independence, Missouri, April 24, 1832, and on the 25th called a general council of the church at which he was acknowledged as the President of the high priesthood, to which office he had been ordained at Amherst, Ohio, January 25 the same year. The Bishop, Edward Partridge, on behalf of the church, then gave him the right hand of fellowship.

In March previous to this a revelation was given calling Frederick G. Williams to be a counselor to Joseph Smith, to whom the keys (authority) "which belong to the presidency of the high priesthood" attaches. This revelation further states that F. G. Williams was called to be an high priest, nothing said about being an apostle.

In the revelation on priesthood given September 22, 23, 1832, occurs the following:—

And as I said unto mine apostles, even so I say unto you; for you are mine apostles, even God's high priests: ye are they whom my Father hath given me; ye are my friends.—D. C. 83: 10.

This was given to Joseph Smith, Jr., and six elders, and was the "word of the Lord concerning his church." And the seven men called elders were also called apostles and high priests.

Neither Joseph Smith nor Oliver Cowdery belonged to the Twelve when the Presidency was organized, were never enrolled in the Quorum of Twelve, and were known to be the first or presiding elders of the church. The Searchlight states that they claimed to be apostles. The history shows that these two were called apostles, just as much as it does that they were called out to be the first and second elder of the Church of Christ; so that though not reckoned in the apostolic quorum of Twelve they were recognized to be apostles, and were called elders.

In the revelation of June, 1829, in which the calling of the Twelve is referred to, the men so to be called and chosen were called disciples:—

And now, behold, there are others who are called to declare my gospel, both unto Gentile and unto Jew; yea, even twelve; and the twelve shall be my disciples, and they shall take upon them my name.—D. C. 16: 5.

All through the revelation the men to be chosen at some future time were called twelve, to distinguish them from other apostles.

A commandment was given to the church on April 6, 1830, thus:—

Behold, there shall be a record kept among you, and in it thou shalt be called a seer, a translator, a prophet, an apostle of Jesus Christ, an elder of the church through the will of God the Father, and the grace of your Lord Jesus Christ.—D. C. 19: 1.

Again:—

And thou shalt not command him who is at thy head, and at the head of the church.—D. C. 27: 2.

The one referred to in this and the quotation from section 19 is Joseph Smith.

From all this it is not hard to discover that whatever the "Church of Christ" posing in the Searchlight may be, the Church of Christ that was organized in 1830 had a leader who was called an elder, an apostle, a prophet, a translator, a seer, and had been recognized as the President of the high priesthood, and with his counselors, Sidney Rigdon and Frederick G. Williams, constituted the Presidency, or First Presidency.

That this body held only delegated authority in the church is true. So is it true of the apostolic quorum chosen by the Savior, not one of them, nor all of them held any other kind of authority. Nor has any other kind of authority ever been claimed by any intelligent elder since the world has stood. But, the "subcommittee" (a new word for the presidency of Peter, James, and John) held concurrent jurisdiction, and James at least decided questions authoritatively that stood intact, without the concurrence of the Twelve as a body.

It is clear that this Presidency was in fact in the Church of Christ organized 1830, long before the Twelve Apostles were chosen.

Joseph Smith was called an apostle, but held no place in the Quorum of Twelve. Neither Sidney Rigdon nor Frederick G. Williams was in the quorum, and we are not aware that either was called an apostle, yet both occupied places in the Presidency.

So far as the Presidency of the Reorganized Church is concerned, its First Presidency after organized in April, 1860, consisted of two from the high priests and an apostle. At the death of William Marks, another was chosen and ordained a high priest and set apart to act as counselor, leaving it as before. After the death of Pres. W. W. Blair, who was an apostle when chosen to the Presidency, two were pointed out by revelation to act as counselors, thus filling up the quorum, one of whom was an apostle, and chosen from the acting Quorum of the Twelve, and one an acting high priest and bishop; as near a counterpart of the First Presidency after 1830 as need be, only one of whom seems to have been an apostle; and certainly our Searchlight friend would hardly say that such First Presidency was chosen from the Twelve as a "subcommittee."

Paul, who wrote the epistle to the Corinthians, from which the writer of the letter to the Searchlight quotes, and upon which he based his question for answer, wrote also to the Ephesians, and referring to the organic structure of the church in its official makeup, states:—

And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ, etc.—Eph. 4: 11, 12.

In this there is no priority, no specific giving of one more prominence than another, but arguing the unity of the whole from Christ the head to the remotest and weakest member. It is in this sense that the Reorganized Church understands the other portion, found in 1 Corinthians 12: 28. This is apparent from the language, "Are all apostles? are all prophets?" etc.

Besides this: From the language of one revelation already quoted, it appears that the Lord called certain elders "apostles and God's high priests." It may be properly stated, we think, that the three leading quorums which are named in section 104, which the Searchlight does not accept, but which the Reorganization does, all come within the pale of that statement, "Ye are God's high priests;" and in the sense of being those who are sent are apostles, though not of the Quorum of Twelve, as much so as Joseph and Hyrum Smith, David Whitmer, Oliver Cowdery, Martin Harris, Frederick G. Williams, Sidney Rigdon, or any and all who were called apostles in the church from 1830 to 1834, the date which the Searchlight for the "Church of Christ" has fixed as the time when Joseph Smith became a fallen prophet.

The Reorganization accepts the governmental proposition given in section 104, paragraph 11, in which the necessities growing out of organization and increase of numbers and consequent responsibilities are recognized and provided for; following:—

Of necessity, there are presidents, or presiding offices, growing out of, or appointed of, or from among those who are ordained to the several offices in these two priesthoods. Of the Melchisedec priesthood, three presiding high priests, chosen by the body, appointed and ordained to that office, and upheld by the confidence, faith, and prayer of the church, form a quorum of the presidency of the church. The twelve traveling counselors are called to be the twelve apostles, or special witnesses of the name of Christ, in all the world; thus differing from other officers in the church in the duties of their calling. And they form a quorum equal in authority and power to the three presidents previously mentioned. The seventy are also called to preach the gospel, and to be especial witnesses unto the Gentiles and in all the world—thus differing from other officers in the church in the duties of their calling; and they form a quorum equal in authority to that of the twelve especial witnesses, or apostles, just named. And every decision made by either of these quorums must be by the unanimous voice of the same; that is, every member in each quorum must be agreed to its decisions, in order to make their decisions of the same power or validity one with the other. (A majority may form a quorum, when circumstances render it impossible to be otherwise.) Unless this is the case, their decisions are not entitled to the same blessings which the decisions of a quorum of three presidents were anciently, who were ordained after the order of Melchisedec, and were righteous and holy men. The decisions of these quorums, or either of them, are to be made in all righteousness, in holiness and lowliness of heart, meekness and long-suffering, and in faith and virtue and knowledge; temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity, because the promise is, if these things abound in them, they shall not be unfruitful in the knowledge of the Lord. And in case that any decision of these quorums is made in unrighteousness, it may be brought before a general assembly of the several quorums which constitute the spiritual authorities of the church, otherwise there can be no appeal from their decision.—D. C. 104: 11.

According to this, the Twelve and Seventy are two bands of especial witnesses, or apostles, holding concurrent jurisdiction in regard to matters in the church under their administration. The Presidency, composed of three, who are presiding high priests, are also apostles, and in matters of grave import to the church, coming within their administration, hold a similar jurisdiction to the Twelve and Seventy, so that in case of serious disagreements, or maladministration by either quorum, the safeguards of the church are provided for in the fact that the other two quorums may decide in opposition and overrule the one. In case the President or Presidency should become ambitious to rule, or become the victim of self-importance and self-delusion, or the prey to designing, evil-minded men, or seducing and evil spirits, and should present revelations to the church to foster his own subtle and ambitious designs, the Twelve and the Seventy, acting in their own right, could at once check the evil effort and save the people from priestly deception and tyranny. And such remedial action could originate with either quorum. In a similar way the Twelve or Seventy would be subject to the action of the other two quorums. And as a final measure of public safety the decisions made by these several quorums may be called in question by and before a general assembly of all the quorums. No church constitution that we have had access to the study of provides such certain safeguards against imposition and deception from its ruling officers as are found in the organic laws of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, as instituted by command of God in 1830, and fostered by the Divine Care until the rules for its successful government were fully given.

It has been supposed by some that the words of Paul as quoted by the writer of the letter to which the Searchlight replies, "first, apostles," are to be taken as indicating that the apostles as a quorum were the first officers set in the church organization in point of time, and before any others were called or chosen. If that was the law then Jesus was hardly within the rule, for John preceded him preaching and baptizing; Jesus himself engaged in preaching and calling his disciples went about with them some time before he called and ordained the Twelve, and it was not until he had chosen these twelve that he called them apostles; they were called disciples only. Seventy were called, as stated by Luke in A. D. 32, and the language used indicates that either others had been called before that, or the Twelve were considered as were the Seventy.

After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come.—Luke 10: 1.

It seems to have been left to the immediate successors of Jesus in the direction of affairs, to organize churches and to call and ordain elders and deacons and bishops, yet these seemed to be necessary.

A similar omission seems to have occurred in 1830. Joseph Smith began his mission in 1827. He was with Oliver Cowdery ordained first to the Aaronic authority, then began preaching and baptizing; afterward he and Oliver were ordained to the Melchisedec priesthood as elders, and were called apostles, but were not put into the Twelve. Hence apostles were not set in the church until there was a church to set them in, notwithstanding they were provided for in the law.

Prophets preceded the primitive church; witness, the angel to Mary and Elizabeth; the prophecy of the high priest concerning John; the mission of the prophet, John the Baptist; the prophecy of Simeon, and the baptism and mission of Jesus for some time before the apostles were called and set in the church. Those called and sent out to preach were not set in the church as an official quorum, yet existed and did their work just the same.

The apostles were not to be of the first and final importance in the church, and the very chapter of Paul's letter from which quotation is made contains admonitions against presuming to hold one more essential than another. The one cannot say to any other, "The body does not need you;" all were then essential; prophets, teachers, and the speaking in tongues, miracles, etc., all essential and not one to be preferred before another.

The Reorganized Church has not set a seer, prophet, or revelator as of supreme importance and rule in and over the church to the belittling or exclusion of the Twelve, Seventy, or any other of the officers which the government of the church makes necessary. No such thought or disposition has ever been manifested in the governmental affairs of the church. No effort has been made to place one man, or one quorum in the supremacy, one over the other in any absoluteness of rule. And each officer, and each quorum of officers has always regarded the law of the Lord to be the rule to be observed, and has always been ready to answer to the church, the people, for the proper performance of duties performed by them in pursuance of the authority derived from the people as the body of Christ, the church.

Mr. Granville Hedrick, the first and leading officer in the "Church of Christ" at its organization somewhere along the fifties, was an elder in the old church, as we understand it, and was ordained to be the presiding officer of that body, "the Church of Christ," by Elder John E. Page, one of the Quorum of Twelve at the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. Elder Page was a successful minister in 1837 and presided at a conference June 10 of that year, at Portland, Upper Canada. He was called to the Quorum of Twelve by revelation July 8, 1838; and was ordained by Brigham Young and H. C. Kimball, December 19, 1838, at the same time that John Taylor was. Whatever of divinity there may have been in the calling of Elder John E. Page and his ordination to the office as one of the Twelve inured through a revelation after February, 1834, and ordination in the church still intact from its organization in 1830, done in 1838. This man, we suppose, though we have not the data at hand to refer to, was the one whose authority endowed Granville Hedrick with the office of President of the "Church of Christ," when he was elected, July 19, 1863.

(Continued.)

THE following, of possible interest, is republished for "what it may be worth." If true it is in line with the sale of indulgences and other mercenary practices to "get gain," by working upon the fears and superstitions of people subject to such fanaticism:—

SOUL LOTTERY IN MEXICO.

A soul lottery was held recently at Puebla-de-Los-Angeles, Mexico. The affair was held under the superintendence of the local clergy and aroused much interest, many tickets being taken. There were three winners, and the results were announced as follows: No. 840, the soul of James Velasquez has been delivered from purgatory and has arrived in paradise; Nos. 41 and 762, the souls of Mme. Calderon and the old widow, Mme. Francisco de Parras, have been delivered from purgatory and have entered into paradise.

The next drawing will take place at the Church of St. Savior on January 1 next, and the winning numbers will release four martyred souls from purgatory with free right of entry into paradise.—New York Sun.

CANADA TO VOTE ON PROHIBITION.

TORONTO, Ontario, Sept. 18.—For the first time in the history of the world the people of an entire country are to vote on the question of suppressing the liquor traffic. On September 29 the people of Canada, from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, are to take part in a plebiscite on the question of prohibiting the manufacture of all malt and spirituous liquor in the Dominion. Nearly every province in Canada has already voted to suppress the liquor traffic at plebiscites which have been taken in years past, but all these previous plebiscites have been merely provincial.

Ontario, Manitoba, Prince Edward Island, and Nova Scotia have cast 266,498 votes in favor of prohibition, to 133,580 against—a majority of 132,918. These votes were cast at separate plebiscites on purely provincial measures. The vote on September 29 will be for the entire Dominion on the question of national prohibition, and the American people will watch it with keen interest.

Quebec and British Columbia are the only provinces about which there is any doubt, and these are not included in the general claim of the prohibitionists. It is believed the majority for prohibition in the other provinces will more than overbalance a prohibition loss in these two.

At the last session of the Dominion Parliament the Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture and a lifelong temperance worker, introduced in the House of Commons a bill for submitting this question to the people:—

"Are you in favor of the passing of an act prohibiting the importation, manufacture, or sale of spirits, wine, ale, beer, cider, and all other alcoholic liquors for use as beverages?"

This is the question which the people of Canada will vote on September 29. The bill provides that all entitled to vote for a member of the House of Commons under the franchise act of 1898 shall be entitled to vote at the plebiscite. The franchise act of 1898 adopts the entire franchise lists of all the provinces for Dominion purposes, so that the Dominion vote on the 29th will be as near an expression of the Dominion's view on prohibition as it is possible to obtain.

The campaign is being carried on so quietly that little regarding it has reached the eyes or ears of the Americans across the border. Temperance agitation in Canada is so old that the interest stirred up in the Dominion is a great deal less than it would be in the United States if a similar question were to be voted on here.

Canada has been agitating the question of prohibition ever since the confederation. In 1873 the Legislature of Ontario petitioned the Dominion Parliament to submit just such a measure as the people of the Dominion are about to vote on. No action was taken, however, and the next step was to call a convention at Montreal. The people of Ontario declared in favor of prohibition in that province by 60,000 majority.

In 1878 the Mackenzie government passed through Parliament the Canadian temperance act, better known as the Scott act, which permitted cities and counties, by a majority vote, to prohibit the retail sale of liquors within their boundaries. Within seven years the law was in force in every county of Prince Edward Island, in five sixths of New Brunswick, three fifths of Nova Scotia, one fourth of Quebec, nearly half of Ontario, and in some parts of Manitoba, and in 1888 the act had been adopted in fifty-eight counties and five cities, by an aggregate majority of 50,000 votes. The Scott act was imperfectly enforced, however, and soon became a dead letter.

PARLIAMENT FOR PROHIBITION.

The Canadian Parliament then adopted a more comprehensive liquor license law, but the Judicial committee of the Privy Council decided that the power to regulate the retail sale of liquor belonged with the provincial Legislatures. In 1884 the House of Commons adopted a resolution that the right remedy for intemperance was a total prohibition, and declared its readiness to promote such legislation as soon as public opinion would sustain it.

Parliament did not meddle with prohibition for six years after that. In 1890, however, strong pressure induced the Dominion government to submit a motion for total suppression of the liquor traffic, but the motion was defeated in the House. Instead, a commission was appointed to inquire into the effect of the sale of liquor on all interests in the Dominion. The commission submitted a voluminous report, declaring that the buying and selling of liquor could hardly be said of itself to produce injurious effects, but that what evils did arise came from the misuse of the article. The commission also reported that nowhere could it discover that prohibitive laws, when enacted, had been effective. A license system was recommended instead.

The plebiscite which is about to be held is the keeping of a pledge of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then leader of the opposition, which was made on condition of the election of his party. It did not commit the party to prohibition, but was a promise to give the people of Canada as a whole a chance to express their views on the prohibition of the making and sale of liquor. It was adopted as a part of the reform party's policy at the Liberal convention at Ottawa.

REASONS OF THE OPPOSITION.

The anti-prohibition people have confined their arguments against prohibition almost exclusively to hand bills and campaign literature. A specimen of the literature is the following "ten reasons," which a few days ago were scattered broadcast over the City of Toronto by the hotel and restaurant men:—

"1. Because I value personal liberty.

"2. Because prohibition would necessitate the raising of nearly $9,000,000 annually by direct taxation.

"3. Because the debt of the country would be increased by from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 to compensate those whose business would be ruined.

"4. Because it would throw thousands of men out of work and place them on the already overcrowded labor market.

"5. Because prohibition has proved a failure wherever and whenever tried, and leads to dives and secret drinking—for example, the Scott act.

"6. Because prohibition would create ill-feeling and breed informers, spies, and perjurers.

"7. Because prohibition would ruinously affect many other lines of trade and lead to wholesale smuggling.

"8. Because it would be class legislation and would lead to further restrictions on personal liberty.

"9. Because it would require an army of officials if an attempt were made to enforce it, and even then it could not be enforced.

"10. Because experience has shown that it is the worst method of dealing with intemperance, and that it induces the weak and vicious to use drugs and other dangerous stimulants."—Chicago Tribune, Sept. 19.

The foregoing shows that the good people of Canada, our sister neighbor across the line, are awake, to a large extent at least, upon an important question of moral reform, and are resolved if possible to suppress the liquor traffic. The spectacle of an entire nation aroused, as are the people of Canada, is imposing, and deserves more than passing note. It illustrates the force and power of public opinion under our modern methods of popular public discussion, and under which it is possible for "the people" to assert and maintain their sovereignty in all matters pertaining to the common weal.

The American people will watch the result of this uprising with no uncertain interest; and if the Canadian people rise to the occasion and pass a national prohibitory law, as we believe they will, will be given due credit for their excellent example.

Many politicians in the United States, as well as in Canada, have asserted and continue to assert that prohibition is against "personal liberty," at the same time declaring that "prohibition does not prohibit." Both propositions can scarcely be true, in the absolute at least. However, politicians, as such, are to a large degree untrustworthy. Men under the influences of partisanship are scarcely capable of rendering an unbiased, impartial opinion on public questions; and, as facts have shown, are quite apt to hedge against if they do not openly sacrifice public interests where party welfare is at stake.

Prohibition, according to impartial, competent authorities of public note, both in Canada and in the United States, does very largely prohibit the operations of the liquor traffic. Criminal prosecutions have lessened largely in the State of Iowa under the operation of a prohibitory law, according to the testimony of court judges on the bench. Were the results of prohibitory enactments such as to cause an increase in the use of intoxicants, as claimed by supporters of the license system we should hear no more outcries from the liquor dealers against prohibitory enactments.

The "reasons of the opposition," which appear in the foregoing article under the various paragraphs numbered 1-10, amount to nothing. The fallacy of such reasoning, if such it may be called, is apparent. It is evident, as in all pleas in support of wrong, that the positions of the opposition are untenable. Personal liberty, as defined in the interpretations of liquor men, is restrained and controlled by every legal enactment for the suppression and punishment of crime. All the legal prohibitions, "Thou shalt not kill," etc., are checks or restraints upon so-called personal liberty. It is the criminal offender against the public good who wants to be free to do as he pleases. The plea for the public revenues would justify the legalizing of all forms of crime, in effect, "for revenue." Men in criminal business, of course, ought not to be thrown out, etc., etc., and so with the list of so-called objections.

We hope the Canadian people will rise to the occasion, and that their example will be followed by the enactment of a national prohibitory law in the United States. No doubt "our people" will stand for the right, as in the past, on the question, as at Plano, Illinois; Lamoni, Iowa; and Independence, Missouri; where their vote has always been given in support of prohibition.

Our people should not be indifferent to any movement based upon principles of truth and right. They are "called" and "chosen" to sustain the right, wherever found, and recognize its principles, wherever seen, as part of the great system of reform which God himself has set in operation to redeem the world from evil.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. E. A. STEDMAN, Magnolia, Minn., Sept. 16:—

I am now holding meetings here every night with fair congregation for a place of this size. Am to hold over Sunday, and longer if deemed profitable. Shall try and go to Rock Rapids when I come here again. Am feeling well in the work, and the good Spirit is with me.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE San Francisco Call for September 11 contains an interesting account of the life of Wilford Woodruff, the deceased President of the Utah Church. In the column of "Church Notices" of the same paper we are pleased to find a standing announcement of the "Reorganized Church," No. 320 Post Street. Brn. Parkin, Lincoln, and others of the local staff are doing good work for the cause, as are all who strive to maintain the work in the various branches of the church. It does one good to see earnest steady efforts to keep the truth before the people. The church will be built up wherever there is sufficient effort made to maintain its interests. We have but to labor, and in a right way, to win success.

Lorenzo Snow, recently appointed as President of the Utah Church, has nominated George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith as his counselors in the First Presidency. Messrs. Cannon and Smith were also counselors to the late President Woodruff.

Recent advices report that the Emperor of China has yielded the scepter to the Dowager Empress, who, displeased with the liberal tendencies of the Emperor, has recalled Li Hung Chang, the aged statesman, under whose regime Russian influence maintained ascendancy to the detriment of British interests. London advices of the 24th report that the British Asiatic Squadron has been ordered to make a demonstration against the present government and its movements, at Peking.

The Sunday Telegram, Providence, Rhode Island, for September 18, contains a lengthy statement of faith of the Utah Church from the pen of some of its elders, a number of whom are said to be proselyting in New England, under the presidency of Elder John M. Whitaker. Portraits or cuts of said elders also accompany said article; and a report of a semi-annual conference of "the New England mission" appears in another part of the paper. It is probable that there is more to the report than to the mission work being done. We have found in a number of instances that such was the case. The Brighamite elders fail to include spiritual marriage and other objectionable dogmas, in their statements of faith, though when pressed to the issue admit belief of most or all the tenets taught and practiced under the regime of Brigham Young and others.

Sr. Mary Anderson, Franklin, Nebraska, writes requesting that some of the ministry labor at that point.

Bro. Arthur Allen, 2210 Wabash Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri, desires to purchase bound or unbound volumes of the SAINTS' HERALD from 1860 to 1874. He desires correspondence with those having said volumes, any or all of them to sell.

Bro. J. M. Hooker made correction of impressions made by Brighamite elders at Spokane, Washington, through an article written by him which appeared in the Chronicle, published at that point. Sr. Hooker, writing of the work there, states that it needs the help of some of the traveling ministry. Other church organizations are active in propagating their mixed and conflicting theories, and which, as usual, are accepted by many of the people—for want of something better on the part of some; or from lack of inclination to look carefully into the questions involved, on the part of others.

Rev. E. A. Stedman will preach at the church Sunday morning at 10:30 and in the evening at 7:30. Come and hear him. His sermons are argumentative and logical in reasoning power. While many may not believe in his doctrine, yet they must acknowledge that if all men would live up to his ethical teaching the world would be happier and better off.—

Magnolia, Minnesota, Initiator, Sept. 23.

Under the heading, "Latter Day Saints at Bromley," the East End News, of London, England, for September 10, contains a friendly statement of an address delivered in the saints' hall at that point by Bro. F. G. Pitt. The effort of Bro. Pitt both distinguished between the original faith and the Utah Church and set forth the leading features of the faith as delivered to the saints in ancient and modern times. This friendly notice with others ought to aid the cause in Great Britain. Time and work will place the work in a favorable light with the British as well as American public. The work of God was established to be a light to the people. Truth must prevail; it cannot forever be suppressed. The force within it is stronger than that of error. Courage and faith and good work will bring the victory.

Bishop E. L. Kelley, who while enroute home was obliged to go to Jacksonville, Florida, on account of the serious illness of his eldest son Winfred B. Kelley, is still in the South, but expects to return as soon as his son is able to endure the trip. Bro. Winfred Kelley is a private in one of the Iowa regiments stationed at Jacksonville and among those who contracted fever while in camp.

The late tornado and tidal wave in the French and British West Indies caused the death of 300 persons and rendered 20,000 homeless, besides doing an immense amount of other damage to the islands and general property. And now Vesuvius, the historic volcano, has renewed activity and threatens the destruction of the surrounding country if not of the city of Naples itself. The largest of the lava streams is 750 feet wide and about 50 feet high. It advances like a huge serpent at the rate of eleven feet an hour. Three streams are advancing and threaten the villages of Veterana, and Crocella and the town of Pesina, the latter having a population of 13,000. The latter is the site of the ancient Herculaneum.

Bro. J. S. Snively, of the Nauvoo district missionary force, is ill at his home near Lamoni, hence is at present unable to respond to calls for labor.

Original Poetry.

"ESTO PERPETUA."

BY H. S. SALISBURY.

Fair Graceland College, sunlight crowned,
My heart goes out to thee!
I love thy halls, they speak to me
Of light and liberty.

The precious light our Savior brought,
The light, divine, the martyrs sought
To save from anarchy
By struggles hard and danger fraught,
The truth which makes us free.

Through distance vast, from out the past,
Comes down the war cry, grand,
Of heroes struggling to the last
Against Apollyon's band;
Striving to vindicate the right,
Upheld by God's own hand,
Which crowns our race with strength and might

And culture and refinement bright,
In this enlightened land.

Through all my dreams, our College seems,
A living monument;
Where those who heed may always read
Of how the battle went
On Restoration's bloody field,
How bigotry was forced to yield,
At tower and battlement;
And error, foul, so long concealed
To judgment swift was sent.

Fair Graceland, may you ever live,
Upheld by Christian men!
Whose countless sacrifices give
Your children strength to win.
Immortal crowns; while from thy bounds
Flow out those living streams
Which fill the deserts with delight,
And gladden Zion's city bright,
The goal of all our dreams.

CARTHAGE, Ill., Dec. 26, 1897.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"As sea-birds ride upon the waves,
So floats my soul on grace;
Nor other resting-place she craves
In wide, world-weary space.
A deep illimitable sea
Of sunlit azure, running free,
Rocks underneath her placid breast,
With soft, pacific swell,
Upbearing her in perfect rest;
She knows that all is well!"

BUNYAN, in some of his writings, gives expression to this thought, "Let thy heart be without words rather than thy words without heart." There is a subtle alchemy in human nature which almost invariably enables us to detect the hollow and insincere. Hence it is that often the pressure of a hand or the falling tear when the lips are silent convey to the heart in trouble more of sympathy and comfort than the most eloquently spoken words. From words without heart in time of trouble, the very soul recoils as from the pain of a freshly opened wound, and shrinks as if begging to be left alone with its own dead.

FARO, Kaukura Island, May 23, 1898.

Dear Readers of the Column:—I had intended giving you a full account of our trip to conference, but it will be so far in the past before the writing could get to you, and Joseph having already sent a brief outline of events, I will forbear entering into details. I expected to be very lonesome, but my moments were so thoroughly occupied with difficult work that I had no time to be lonesome. Still had there been a sister companion in the work the task would not have been so difficult, and the time would have passed more pleasantly. Perhaps some may desire to know what this work was. It is that of balancing the sisters' books. Every branch has a "prayer union," sisters' meeting they call it. All have their secretary and treasurer. The names of different ones and at different times are put on the book, together with the money they give during the year, and all bring them to conference; it is the duty of the missionary's wife to see that the money received corresponds with that specified in the books. Their writing is peculiar as well as the language, and until one becomes accustomed to it, it is difficult to read. Still all that could soon be disposed of were it not that the names must be copied to send to America. All the ten cent pieces each one has given picked out, added up and put opposite their names; and also the Christmas offerings, together with their names. I only attended a portion of two sessions of conference; I could not understand what was being done or said. There was no one there to jot off two or three words now and then in English as was the case last year, so I kept at my books during the sessions, since there was little or no opportunity between sessions. Our room was so small and so many of the brethren had business with Joseph, that the room was kept full and some one always outside the door waiting their turn for admittance.

The sisters' meeting on Thursday during conference was I think the most spiritual testimony meeting I have attended since I came to the islands, notwithstanding the fact that it was opened to the tune of "Old Dan Tucker." I will say right here that this people are entirely free from the prejudice that American Christians sometimes feel in regard to tunes on account of evil associations. They know nothing about that. I have never heard of natives dancing or having a dance anywhere, except upon such occasions as a national fete, and then it is to the beat of the drum. The high-toned French people give a ball about once a year, to which they invite their guests; but for some reason the natives have never imitated them. Probably because the climate is too warm and the people too fleshy to enjoy hopping about a room four or five hours at a time.

But to return; our meeting was in a good-sized house void of partitions, clean new matting was spread on the floor, and all except Bro. Janssen and I sat on the floor. The sisters desired me to lead the meeting, and Bro. Janssen was there to interpret. The house was well filled, and several were out on the porch clustering about each doorway.

After meeting nearly every one present came forward with a ten-cent piece, and yet not all ten-cent pieces; some gave fifty cents and some as high as one dollar, and a good round sum was realized. The sisters are very faithful about bringing their money; sometimes when they cannot be present themselves, they send their little money.

After conference was over, Joseph devoted one day to instructing a portion of the brethren more perfectly in the science of navigation, showing them how to get their latitude at noon. The next day I devoted to wringing flannels from hot water and laying them across him to relieve him from that terrible pain that seized him again, and succeeded in breaking it up. On Friday a little fleet of eight boats, large sail boats, left for home. All were to halt at Takapoto, after which they would scatter to their various destinations. Joseph was not at all well, but we must needs go with the crowd, and the crowd would not wait longer, since provisions were all gone. For my own part I was nearly starved; had been living on hard bread mostly for three days, and no appetite to eat even that. A famine always follows these feasts. Had it not been that Bro. Janssen was with us we should have fared worse, for there was no place to cook in anywhere near the house where we were. This was our first experience in boating since we came to the islands. There were eighteen on the boat we were on—Tapu's, and fifty on one of the brethren's. The sea was very rough. There had been a strong wind all the week of conference, but we were going with both wind and sea, so we went smoother than we otherwise would have done. At Takapoto the fleet anchored. When the anchor is thrown out from one of those boats, a man jumps overboard and goes down immediately after it and hooks it on a knot of rock or some rough place in the coral reef. These coral reefs do not consist of the soft, white, spray-like coral, like the specimens taken home. When the boats were made fast our captain and one of the chief men on board made ready and started ashore; one of them had some mail matter to carry. Both the swell on the reef and the men were too heavy for the small canoe they carried, so they just dropped overboard and walked ashore, keeping head and shoulders above water and holding the mail above their heads.

We stayed there five hours, all of which time the brethren were busy swimming stuff off to their boat. I saw one man come down to the water with as many coconuts thrown over his shoulder as he could stagger under—they have a way of fastening them together. When he got in deep water he let them drop from his shoulder and as he swam pushed and pulled them along with him to his boat. The sun was sinking low when we left for Arutua. There was just room below deck to spread out our bedding and lie down. Joseph and I were the only ones below. The fumes were not pleasant, and I was too sick to move about much, but managed by keeping perfectly still—"to hold my own." There were frequent rain squalls during the night, and the women and children on deck were drenched with salt water and fresh water by turns. It puzzles me to know how they keep from sliding overboard, especially when asleep. The rail is only about three inches high, and the house a foot above deck. And the lee rail is usually level with the water, if not altogether under, for these people carry a very large sail on their boats, also a topsail and two jibs.

(To be continued.)

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

TO ALL SAINTS:—You are earnestly requested to pray and fast October 9, in behalf of our esteemed and afflicted sister, Elizabeth Vawter, of Scandia, Kansas, with the hope that by so doing the disease that is preying upon her person may be rebuked and the effects thereof removed forever. The Prayer Union is especially requested to make this matter a subject of prayer. May God bless our efforts by healing the faithful sick.

By request,
BETSY BONNER.

PROGRAM FOR OCTOBER MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

Opening hymn, 154. Prayer. Scripture reading, Matthew 6. Study, Select Reading in Home Column. Roll call. Business. Closing hymn, 566. Dismissal prayer.

Report of Sisters' Aid Society, of Galland's Grove, Iowa, for the year 1897: We have met twenty-eight times, with an attendance of nineteen members, averaging about eleven each meeting, with an average of two visitors. We have made four quilts and sent to the "Home," have helped those that were in need, and have received $37.50 for work done during the year. We have also set apart one hour each day we met for scripture reading, prayer, and testimony, and we feel that we have been blessed in so doing.

ELLEN CRANDELL, President.
MARTHA BLACK, Secretary.

Letter Department.

FOSSTON, Minn., Sept. 17.

Editors Herald:—The work in Minnesota is still gaining slowly. Our reunion at Wadena was one of great spiritual good to the saints. I never was in better prayer meetings than we had there. Every case of sickness was healed at once and great and good testimonies followed. The preaching was good and much prejudice was removed from the outsiders. One was baptized. Since the reunion I learn there are some inquiring when we will come again. The assistance rendered by Brn. Kelley and Smith was of great good to saints and others.

After the reunion I went back to Audubon to rest up a little and arrange for the campaign in the city of Minneapolis. On the 7th of July, in company with our worthy young sister, Miss Fidella Hawley, went to the city. On the 8th the work began by a good sermon from our worthy brother, C. J. Hunt, of Deloit, Iowa. We continued the meetings in the city until August 20, when we closed. Many of the people showed their appreciation of our efforts by requesting our return. We estimated that about two thousand people had been in attendance during our meetings. Prejudice is a thing of the past with the greater part of those who attended our meetings.

Bro. C. J. Hunt is a good worker and made many friends, who will be glad to see him come again. The tie of companionship formed between this brother and the writer will ever be remembered until the hand that now writes is still forever. The service of our sister Fidella Hawley, who so kindly presided at the organ, will be remembered by the saints of the city, also by the writer. It was a sacrifice upon her part to leave her home for nearly seven weeks and devote her time free of charge to help on this great work of God.

During the time we were moving the tent in the city from one place to another the writer overdone himself and brought back the heart trouble that caused him much unpleasantness during the remainder of the meetings, but was always ready for duty. In five weeks' time I was reduced from two hundred and thirty-six to one hundred and ninety-six pounds. However, I received through faith and prayer the promise that I should be healed, hence the affliction was borne with patience, until September 4, when the saints of Audubon and Detroit met in fasting and prayer to God in my behalf. After prayers to the number of nine had been offered Brn. Martin, Way, and Ericson administered to me, and I was healed at once, praise the Lord. O, such a good meeting! The Spirit was manifest in power with the promise that my days should be extended fifteen years. Our hearts rejoiced. The Spirit further admonished the saints to faithfulness and to abstain from worldly pleasures. May God help all to heed and live for the blessings promised, is my humble prayer. More anon.

I. N. ROBERTS.

HILLS, Minn., Sept. 13.

Editors Herald:—I came to this part of my mission last Tuesday and preached the funeral sermon of Bro. Charles H. Marshall on Thursday, the 8th, he having died on the 6th, of dropsy of the heart. The services were held at his home with a goodly attendance the house being full with many on the outside. I found prejudice very strong, with a desire by some to cut us as short as they could. I spoke about thirty minutes from John 14: 1-3, and those that were the most prejudiced against us admitted that my remarks were fine, and were well pleased with the sermon. I am satisfied that some good was done, and shall try and hold a series of meetings there soon if I can secure some place to speak in. The funeral was held in Luverne, where Bro. Marshall lived. It is a nice city of about twenty-five hundred inhabitants on the Worthington and Sioux Falls Railroad.

I am now at Bro. O. H. Midgorden's and held services at Hills last Sunday night, and also in a schoolhouse about a mile from town in the forenoon. I find that we cannot do much in the country places yet, because the farmers are so busy with their fall work and will not come out at night while working so hard during the day. And I do not feel like blaming them, for I presume that I would do the same, were I in their place.

The most of my labor so far this year has been in Dodge and Goodhue counties. Have had large congregations at some places and have been able to hold them; while at other places they have been small, but seem to have been interested in what was said. But I find a growing indifference about religious matters in the minds of the people, and it seems hard to make any impression upon them, and have felt at times when speaking that it was like pouring water on a duck's back, it would not even ruffle the feathers. But I feel assured that good has been done; seed has been sown that will in time germinate and grow, and bring forth fruit to the glory of God. The prophet has said, "In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand; for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good." It has been with this in mind that I have labored this year; some one will reap in due time if they faint not.

I know that there has been much to occupy the public mind this year. The war with Spain, its object and its results has stirred the minds of the people to their very depths, and they have been made to rejoice because of the greatness of our republic, this Yankee nation. As for myself I am not surprised at the results of the war, for what a Yankee cannot do is not worth trying to do. They have never lost a war yet, and will not as long as they fight from just principles. Had Spain known as much about us as a nation as we know, they would never have gone to war with us. I read a short time since about a Yankee going to a foreign country and it pleased him so well that single handed he captured a large section of it, brought it over the water and annexed it to this country. Now if one could do that, what cannot two hundred thousand do. I am not surprised at the result of the war. But I am glad that peace has come, and hope that it will continue.

I expect to work my way from here to St. Peter, where I am to occupy the Methodist church, Sunday, October 2, with the understanding that I am to preach the gospel, but not doctrine; must not tell anyone that I am a Mormon—only preach the gospel. Well, I shall try and conform to the requirements, and let the people judge whether or not I have preached doctrine. I have never tried as yet to preach the gospel without preaching doctrine, and may fail; but will try it just to see how it can be done. I find the saints here a good, warm-hearted people, with a desire to aid in the spread of the truth, and they put these desires into practice. Would that all would do the same. I am feeling well in the work, and desire to continue.

For truth and right,

E. A. STEDMAN.

MADISON, S. Dak., Sept. 13.

Editors Herald:—Thinking perhaps some of the readers of the Herald would like to know of my whereabouts, will say that Madison will be my address for the next sixty days, care of W. W. Cole. I am in the vicinity where Bro. Swenson baptized some in June. Last Sunday I preached to a crowded house, mostly adults and strangers to the work; during the hour it seemed like the windows of heaven opened and God let his blessed Spirit into the bosom of every one present. Words cannot express the joy there was manifested; strong men gave way to the influence of the blessed Spirit of the Master, and could not keep back the tears of joy. Bro. Howery who drove fifteen miles to attend the meeting said he was well paid for his trip and would come again next Sunday. Others said it was the first time they ever heard the gospel; some said, "Who could keep from shedding tears in such a meeting as that;" another said, "I will have to stay away from the meetings or else get baptized, it is the truth—no one can get around that." I feel encouraged in the work. I expect Bro. Swenson here before long, and then by his help and the help of God expect to reap a goodly harvest. The saints and friends are learning quite a number of hymns from the Saints' Hymnal, so are making preparation for a good time when Bro. Swenson comes. Ever praying for the Spirit of the Master to abide with his saints, I am your brother in the gospel of Christ, W. H. WALLING.

CARSON CITY, Nev., Sept. 15.

Editors Herald:—I have just read Bro. W. H. Kelley's "Old Glory" article Herald page 575, the reading of which every saint will testify to its inspiration; and I wish you to say for me, "Them's my sentiments"—and they are pinned on my headboard.

Bro. W. H. here's our hand, and I am sure you're off the fence, and we hope you will do no climbing now.

A brother in bonds,

T. W. C.

DALLAS, Or., Sept. 12.

Editors Herald:—On August 10 we—Bro. Holt and I—commenced services at Bandon, Oregon; but I believe my wife has told you of the work there, and also that I took a scouting expedition to Gravel Ford to hold a week's service. Well, the liberty, audience, and interest there were all fine, and many were the invitations to "come back again." From here I went back to Myrtle Point, on Tuesday, August 30, to meet the folks there, preaching on Tuesday and Bro. Holt on Wednesday eve.

On Thursday, September 1, we were taken, baggage and all, to Minord's Mill, near Dora P. O., where we commenced services the same night, preaching here until the 9th, preaching thirteen sermons in all and baptizing two—Srs. Roxana M. Minard and Laura Mayse (both of excellent character) and leaving many warm friends and several near—very near—to the fold.

As all things must have an end and other calls were pressing, the morning of the 9th found us packing up for a move to this place, moving via wagon to Roseburg and from thence to this place by rail; where we landed last eve at about 4:30. The evening of the 6th a Rev. Schofield, of the Congregational faith, announced that he would preach at the Dora schoolhouse at 11:30 and would endeavor to show by examining some scriptures used at the tent and also other texts that baptism was not necessary to salvation. Bro. H. proffered him the use of the tent the next evening, but he declined upon the plea that as he had to work hard for a living days—splitting shakes, etc.—he could not be ready for the task as soon as that. Some of the friends of the work were very anxious that one of us should stay and hear his effort and reply if necessary. We did not see how it could be done; there were forty-five miles over the mountains to be made, and our train left Roseburg at 7:30 on Monday morning, and we thought we had an appointment out for preaching at Lookingglass (ten miles on our side of Roseburg) for Sunday. Finally, as we were packing up a young man by the name of John Porter volunteered to take a couple of saddle horses and take me out to Lookingglass Sunday night, a ride of thirty-two miles over the mountains. Well, it was so decided and I stayed behind to guard and to bring off the rear in good order, promising to join the “command” sometime Sunday night or Monday morning, at Lookingglass, in time to start for Roseburg to catch that 7:30 a. m. train. Well, Sunday 11:30 came as usual, and we were at the schoolhouse and listened to a display of “Irish” in an attack on “Mormonism” in general and Joseph Smith in particular that lasted about an hour, and then followed about as long an attempt to show that “born of water” did not mean water at all. The schoolhouse being a public one, I did not go through the formula of asking permission of the directors, except one privately (by the way, the Rev. S— was one of the directors), but as soon as the benediction was pronounced (care was taken that no opportunity was given me before) I announced preaching “in just five minutes.” Of course there was a buzz, but I told the Rev. S— that I was simply using my rights as an American citizen, and invited him to stay. He refused to do this, but as he was going out some of the neighbors got between him and the door and shamed him into staying. However, the most of his “flock” left the field, but I still had an audience that nearly filled the schoolhouse. I apologized for keeping them longer without dinner, but told them of my journey ahead and then took up the subject. I did not pay very much attention to his tirade against the church, except to show the falsity of one or two assertions, and then devoted my time to “baptism for the remission of sins.” Well, I feel that the gospel still stands, and some are nearer obedience than before this episode.

After a lunch with Srs. Minard and Mayse and Mrs. Krantz and families, I bade them good-bye and at 3:25 p. m. was off for Lookingglass. We stopped at Mr. James Lard's, where we received a hearty welcome and supper (both hearty), and then on up the dark canyon and over the mountain, reaching L. G. at one o'clock Monday morning. We got to bed as quickly as we could, but at 2:30 the order came to “turn out,” and a little after three we were enroute for Roseburg. O, yes! while at Minard's mill we received a challenge to discuss the Sabbath question with a Rev. F. Bunch, of Gravel Ford, and this will necessitate our return to that place sometime before long.

Our work at Myrtle Point resulted in the baptism of one, a Sr. Sloan. Our week's work at Gravel Ford was in the tent owned by the S. D. Adventists, who treated us royally, but who can't agree with us on the questions of the Sabbath or the nature of man. Well, as I am to go back there to help examine the question of the Sabbath with them ere long, I pray that some of them may be led to see the light.

As ever, hopeful in the work,
Your brother in Christ,
A. M. CHASE.

DALLAS, Oregon, Sept. 15.

Editors Herald:—At last writing I was at Drain; had just closed the debate with Elder Badger, who told some of his people at Fall City that he came out ahead. A man that heard me in Fall City some years ago said he did not believe him, and that he would go to the expense of fetching me to Fall City and let him do so there, he might be forced to try and make his assertion good.

Our time has been well occupied this summer so far, in tent work. Have held meetings at Cottage Grove, Drain, Roseburg, Lookingglass, Dora, Myrtle Point, Kitchen Creek, Bandon, Minard's Mills, and now have the tent up here. Came here day before yesterday; commenced last night; about fifty out.

Bro. C. and I have found it necessary, in order to fill the many calls to separate at times, and then we find it impossible to fill all requests, all openings. After we got started at Bandon an opportunity occurred to hold meetings in an Advent tent at Gravelly Ford, so Bro. Chase and the “little organ” took advantage of that, leaving Sr. C., Sr. Giles, Bro. Mallery, and the writer to hold the fort at Bandon. Bro. Mallery took sick, which left the burden of the singing on Sr. C., but she proved equal to the emergency. And that was not the only emergency that arose while at that place; every night at the close of our meeting people would come up and ask her to go and visit them, and then she would want me, in Bro. Chase's absence, to go along and keep the dogs off. Paul says to “beware” of them, and everybody knows that I don't like to visit. Well, that woe is past, for Bro. Chase is with us now.

One result, I notice, arises from having a woman along: we have much more visiting to do; but I don't find it hard when Bro. C. is along, as all I have to do is to take my place at the table and do service there. We agree well; he likes to talk, and I like to hear him, so harmony prevails and the work moves on.

We held twenty-one meetings there, the tent being full most of the time and at times more than could be seated, our tent seating about one hundred and fifty. Questions were and in our query box every night, the infidels putting in some pretty hard ones; a number relating to Joseph Smith, as follows: “In what way do you differ from the Mormons calling themselves saints, such as Smith and Brigham Young?” “What do you think of Joseph Smith's revelations?” “In what respect was Joseph Smith like Jesus Christ?” These I read, but deferred answering until further on, took them up, and made them the basis of my talk the last two nights. I felt well, and so did the audience, as is usually the case when the speaker does. I was a little afraid when I brought Joseph forward and showed his connection with the work that the sentiment that had been so decidedly with us would change; but change or no change, I was not going to leave until I had presented all. I was so pleased to see unmistakable evidence in the hearty handshake and such expressions, “I was much pleased to hear you this evening on that subject;” “That talk this evening removed a whole lot of prejudice from me;” “Say, I am willing to admit I have learned something this evening.” They convinced me that the tide was still flowing our way.

I noticed an old man pushing his way through the crowd up to the stand. On getting near me he put out his hand, gave mine a hearty shake, and said: “Elder, I know a whole lot about what you were saying this evening.” There are so many of those knowing ones that I was just a little suspicious of him, but his handshake convinced me that he did know, so I said, “Yes,—well, I am glad of it;” conveying the idea that of course he knew I told facts. “Yes, sir,” he said, “I can testify to the greater part of what you said. I was raised in those parts and know of what I am speaking.” I could see and feel that it had weight with those standing around, and felt in my soul to thank God that he has raised up witnesses to speak in behalf of his servant. I have spoken many times in behalf of that man, but don't now call to mind a time when I was not blessed in doing so. I rarely ever leave a place without presenting that phase of the work. The last two nights I sold sixteen copies of the Voice of Warning. Three would have been baptized, but were disappointed in not getting to the place appointed. A number were almost persuaded, but wanted a little more time to study over the matter, and will I think be ready when we return.

The morning we left, when the tents were partly down, some of the citizen's came to me and wanted to know if I was obliged to go that day, I told them no. An appointment was out at Myrtle Point for that night, but I knew Bro. C. would fill it. They then told me that they wanted me to remain and lecture that evening on labor and capital and that they would get the “Armory Hall,” bear all expense, and help me besides, to which I consented.

It is said by many that Bro. Chase preached the funeral sermon of Adventism at Gravelly Ford, but if so the resurrection has come, for they sent him a challenge to discuss the Sabbath with them, which he will do. We take all such as that in. We came from there to Minard's Mill, of which Bro. C. has written. All goes well.

I am a little amused at the report that comes from California. Not a little disappointment seems to be felt by those eastern lights. Well, it is said, "It is an ill wind that blows no one some good." Judging from present reports, California will not be troubled in the future by those hunting good climate, cheap fruit, and a pleasant place to live, but California will live just the same. If the elders of California have made a mistake in the past, in worshiping too much and in not devoting a part of their own and the people's time during our gatherings to fun and frolic, it has not yet been found out: and do you know when I hear people telling how bad they felt on leaving home, friends, and dear familiar scenes, etc., I wonder why they left home. But we will live and learn, to do for the best I hope.

My address for a time will be Dallas, Oregon, and as usual we are always glad to hear from saints and friends. Will try and respond to all calls for preaching when not too expensive. We intend to labor in the Willamette until the latter part of October; will then go into Eastern Washington or Eastern Oregon for the winter. We have not decided which; it depends on how the way opens. There is work that should be done in both places. We are desirous of doing all we can, and trust that God will direct.

Yours in the work,

HIRAM L. HOLT.

NEOSHO, Mo., Sept. 19.

Editors Herald:—Since our reunion at Midway, Bro. George Beebe and myself have been associated together. So far we have rejoiced in our work because the Lord has recognized our efforts. We opened up the work at Dayton and left a regular appointment for Bro. Graves to fill on the fourth Sunday. His neighbors are all anxious to hear him preach. Bro. and Sr. Graves are saints of the true stripe. They gave us a hearty welcome and all the encouragement possible. I believe we will see the fruit of the labor done in the due time of the Lord. The people were prejudiced. But last night the house was nearly full; and we gave them a good sermon, because it was all truth, seasoned with the Spirit of God.

Last Saturday we went out near Indian Springs to fill our regular appointment. We were greeted with a full house. A Baptist minister had been trying to hold meetings there during the week, but only a very few came out to hear him. He made an appointment right over my Sunday night appointment; and of course the people expected to see a conflict and the whole neighborhood turned out to see how it would terminate. The schoolhouse was crowded. Some were standing, and children were lying around on the floor, and on the outside people were crowded around every window and the door was blockaded. I convinced the Baptist minister by kindness that the appointment was mine. At any rate he told me to go ahead.

I used my chart and tried the Reformers and Joseph Smith for heresy. We came out all right. The Baptist minister made a few statements at the conclusion of my remarks and said he could prove that Joseph Smith was a bad man and that we were Mormons. I accepted his proposition for discussion. Then he began to take to the background. Said he wasn't a debater, but would get a man to meet me. I told him to furnish a representative man. At the conclusion we attempted to draw up propositions. He wouldn't stand the test. Brcke and ran out of the schoolhouse, leaving his overcoat in his rush. This makes two preachers we have scared out. Wonder who the next one will be? We have the good will of the people and many are interested.

Bro. Beebe gave them an excellent sermon yesterday afternoon. The Lord was in it, and we all rejoiced. The people were amazed to hear our views on the "probationary state." I thank Bro. Pement for that book of his; it is grand. We will soon be on our road to Barry County.

May God bless his servants and all the saints. Ever praying for Zion's success I remain,

Your brother in Christ,

A. M. BAKER.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 20.

Editors Herald:—Our district conference convened on the 3d and 4th of September, at Broad River, Connecticut. Although the weather was extremely warm, the saints from Brooklyn like good soldiers of the cross, were not to be daunted by the unfavored weather. Our business was done fairly well, considering all things. Some were a little disappointed because none of the traveling ministry were present, but the writer was quite consoled in the thought that the Lord would be present, because we were going to attend to our duty. We felt that we were in harmony with the revelation of 1894, paragraph 7. The local ministers were present and responded when called upon to preach the word.

The saints of Broad River did their part well in providing for the temporal wants of the visiting saints. There was one whose name should not be forgotten though, not a member of the church, who had prepared a place for six persons to sleep. That was Mr. Canfield, who lives near the church. There were others not of the church who were ready to render what aid they could to make everyone comfortable. So we may safely say that the conference was a success.

There are some prospects of the work widening out in Norwalk in the future. We cannot say much of the city here, as city work is well known to all of the ministry. So I have no need to mention it. We are still in the faith, and hope for better days.

In gospel bonds,

JOSEPH SQUIRE.

FAIRFIELD, Nebr., Sept. 16.

Editors Herald:—Two years ago next October I held a debate in Panama, Nebraska, with Rev. T. H. Popplewell, of Independence, Missouri. During his last speech on the proposition "Does the Bible teach that Joseph Smith was a true prophet?" realizing that he had not accomplished his undertaking, he desired and contended for two more sessions. There were ten sessions more agreed on and I refused to grant more time on the proposition than was agreed to. This seemed to annoy him very much, so he made some very uncomplimentary remarks, insinuating that I was a coward, and stating what he would do anyhow, and then challenged me to debate the question again. I told them I only considered it "the whine of defeat" and refused to grant his request of more time.

The next evening I informed the audience that I did not seek debates, neither did I enjoy them, but that when I found a man that was so anxious for discussion as my opponent, I was determined to satisfy him; and told him I would accept his challenge and affirm "that Joseph Smith was a true prophet if he would affirm the same Church proposition that he was to affirm in this debate and that we would hold the discussion in Bennett." He reluctantly accepted. It was plain to see that he was not so anxious for a debate as he was the night before.

At the close of the debate we talked the matter over and the understanding was that when he was prepared to enter into an examination of the questions, he was to let me know. It is hardly necessary for me to say that I never expected to hear from him, for all the fight was out of him before the ten sessions were over. We had agreed on twelve sessions, and the second evening he fairly raved to have fourteen, but before it was over, he humbly requested me to drop two. I told him I would if he would make the statement publicly that it was done at his request. This he readily agreed to.

Not having heard from him, about the middle of last June, I wrote him a letter, asking when he would be ready to meet me at Bennett according to agreement.

This is his reply:—

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., June 24, 1898.

W. E. PEAK, Shelton, Nebraska.

Dear Sir:—I am ready now, to meet you anywhere on earth in debate. But the people at Bennett, Nebraska, I suppose, know what they want and need. If they want a debate, I can serve them most any time.

Our people like many others, are tired of the blatant brazenness of Mormonism seeking notoriety at their expense.

Respectfully,

THOMAS H. POPPLEWELL.

He was perfectly satisfied for us to obtain "notoriety at" their "expense" at Panama before the debate, but it seems that he has had a change to come over him since.

I replied to him as follows:—

FAIRFIELD, Neb., July 2, 1898.

REV. T. H. POPPLEWELL,

Independence, Missouri.

Dear Sir:—Your letter of the 24th ult. received to-day. It has all the ear marks of Campbellism. What a similarity exists in this brood hatched by Campbell, Scott, and Stone. Have you forgotten your braggadocia talk at Panama? You say, that if the people "at Bennet want a debate, I can serve them most any time." Am I to understand from this that you will not meet me at Bennet unless the citizens hire you?

How many at Panama wanted me to meet you in debate before your emissaries challenged me? The first I knew of the affair they came with your written propositions. Have you realized your inability to meet the issue? I realize that "our people" are "tired" of debating with the Latter Day Saints. But please state why you challenged me to debate with you again, if you were "tired." Did you do it for a bluff? Or did you "tire" after making the display of your bravery? I have waited nearly two years for you to write, and state when you would be ready to carry out your agreement.

I was to affirm that "Joseph Smith was a true prophet" for six evenings, and you were to affirm your church proposition for the same number of evenings. How will August 14 suit you? If you can come on the above date, let me know at once, and send propositions and rules signed.

Please come to time and write business, for your egotistical bluff will not carry you through.

Yours for truth,

W. E. PEAK.

I have patiently waited for a reply, but to the present time have received nothing.

I am feeling well and hope to be found at my post of duty till the Master says it is enough.

Your brother in Christ,

W. E. PEAK.

Original Articles.

ORIGIN OF THE SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST CHURCH.

EVER and anon questions are asked about the origin of the Adventist Church. Believing the following correspondence and notes would be of interest to your many readers, I submit them.

On April 10, 1895, I addressed the following queries to the Review and Herald, Battle Creek, Michigan, and Signs of the Times, Oakland, California, which are the leading Adventist papers:—

1. What church was William Miller, the leader of the Millerites, a member of, before beginning his distinctive work? Was he an ordained minister?

2. Were Elder James White and Mrs. Ellen G. White members of the William Miller movement? and were they present in 1843-44 when so many gathered, believing Christ would come on the days set by Mr. Miller?

The Review and Herald editor, Uriah Smith, makes the following reply:—

William Miller was a member of the Baptist Church before he commenced his work of publishing and expounding the prophecies. He was not then an ordained minister.

Mrs. E. G. White was a member of the Methodist Church before she entered the Advent movement, and Elder James White was a member of the Christian Church. They took part in the movements of 1843-44, but I do not know what you mean by the language, "when so many gathered, believing that Christ would come on the day set by Mr. Miller;" for there was no general gathering on that day, but the churches of course held religious services, each in its own locality.

Mr. W. N. Glenn, of the Signs of the Times, kindly replied to the same questions:—

1. William Miller was a member of the Baptist Church, of Low Hampton, New York, and was licensed to preach in 1833. I believe he was not an ordained minister.

2. Elder James White was a member of the Disciple Church, and Mrs. White (then Ellen G. Harmon) was a member of the Methodist Church. They were both interested in the movement conducted by Mr. Miller. Mrs. White never did any public labor or writing until after that movement was past. Elder White did some preaching in connection with that work, being then but a young man.

Not being fully satisfied with the questions already submitted to Elder Uriah Smith, I sent two more, April 15, 1895:—

1. Was William Miller, of the Millerite Church, formerly a member of the Baptist Church, founded by Roger Williams in America, in 1638, or the church founded by Menno Simon, of Holland, in 1536?

2. What year was the Seventh-day Adventist Church organized?

Under date of April 17, 1895, the following reply was received:—

1. William Miller was a Baptist of the Roger Williams stripe, and not a Mennonite.

2. The Seventh-day Adventist Church began in 1845, but was not regularly organized; that is, no special church organization was started among them, until the year 1857, when what we call church order was established among us. This at first related to individual churches only, but has since been extended to State Conferences, General Conference, Tract Societies, Sabbath Schools, and lastly to the International Religious Liberty Association.

Of legal organizations we have Publishing Associations, Educational Societies, Health Institutes, and General Conference Association.

From the Adventist Camp Meeting Journal, Sparta, Wisconsin, June, 1898, under the caption of "A Brief Sketch of Their Origin, Progress, and Position," we extract the following from page 3:—

SEVENTH-DAY SABBATH.

But how did the observance of the seventh day become a cardinal feature of their faith and practice? The primary causes of this change were the following: Late in the autumn of 1844, the time of which we have been speaking, Mrs. Rachel D. Preston, a Seventh-day Baptist, removed from the State of New York, to Washington, New Hampshire, where there was a flourishing company of Adventists. All parties were zealous to give and receive new light, and a mutual exchange of views took place; she adopting their views of the soon coming of the Savior; and they, by faith seeing the ark containing the ten commandments in the temple in heaven, as a part of their views of prophecy, were all ready to accept her views of the binding obligation of the Sabbath of the decalogue, and to begin its observance. Thus the doctrine of the observance of the seventh day, and the doctrine of the soon coming of Christ, came together; and those in whom these views were united, thus became Seventh-day Adventists. The first church of Seventh-day Adventists was thus developed in Washington, New Hampshire, in the last three months of 1844.

DATE OF SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTISTS.

These views of the sanctuary modified and enlarged their views of prophecy to a great extent; but their doctrines did not become sufficiently formulated to begin to constitute a settled system of belief till the following year, or 1845; which may therefore be set down as the year in which the Seventh-day Adventist denomination began. The work commenced in great feebleness; its promoters being few in numbers, and without means or influence, learning or position, to give them a standing before the world. They were obliged to labor with their own hands to procure means with which to meet the first small outlay necessary for the work.

GROWTH OF THE WORK.

These few statements sufficiently set forth the origin of this people, and one of their views of prophecy which is fundamental to their position. The growth of their work has come about in the ordinary way; that is, those who became interested that these views should be set before the people, have gone forth to present them publicly, and these have everywhere found adherents to accept the views and espouse the cause.

On page 4 we read:—

This people hold that their specific work is symbolized by the third message of Revelation 14: 9-13; the whole advent movement of the present generation, being brought to view in this and the two preceding proclamations, the prophecy of which begins with verse 6.

Before receiving a copy of the Journal, questions had been submitted to the Signs of the Times, to which the editor, M. C. Wilcox, answers in a letter, July 11, 1898:—

In reply to your question, I would say in brief that William Miller and his associates gave the first part of the message of Revelation 14: 6, 7. The whole of it in its fullness is not yet given, and will not be until the gospel work closes.

The first church of Seventh-day Adventists, was, I believe, in Washington, New Hampshire, in 1844. From that time forward the Sabbath began to come in among them more and more.

Here we have the statements of the Adventists on their church origin. Wonderful! This proud and aggressive church claims to be proclaiming the angel's message of Revelation 14: 6, 7, which reads:—

And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters.

Query: Did the angel who was intrusted with "the everlasting gospel" message really appear to Mr. Miller, or did Mrs. White or Mrs. Preston steal a march on the old veteran? Will some Sabbatarian or soul-sleeper please explain how the angel intrusted the precious message to the prime movers of Adventism when the heavenly messenger did not appear to them? The facts are, neither God, Christ, nor their angels directed them in their "movement."

The first principles which the society held so dear were taught by Mr. Miller, and thousands of earnest people believed his doctrine of the "set time" of the coming of Christ in 1843-44, placing their all into the hands of their instructors (?) that the world might be warned before the before-mentioned years should close.

Alas! the Savior did not come, but to their happy relief Mrs. Rachel D. Preston, a Seventh-day Baptist, came from the great Empire State, not from heaven, to Washington, New Hampshire, where she found a company of Adventists or Saviorless Millerites, and introduced the Sabbath of the decalogue. From that time they began to observe Saturday as their day of rest and worship.

"Come now, and let us reason together" on the above account, and you will find that the Seventh-day Adventist Church grew out of the corrupt doctrines and dismal failure inaugurated by William Miller & Co.

Our Adventist friends may tell us that "the dead know not anything;" but we say there are some living who declare that Mr. Miller lost confidence in his first (?) love, the Baptist Church, while listening to the masterly discourses of Elder Jared Carter of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (a missionary in the Eastern States in 1832-34), on the subjects of the second coming of Jesus Christ, the resurrection from the dead, the millennial reign on the earth. Mr. Miller would not accept the true gospel, preferring a "cunningly devised fable" instead.

Kind reader, the heavenly messenger of Revelation 14: 6, 7 has delivered his message of truth to earth. That angel appeared to Joseph Smith, restoring the everlasting gospel. The church of the true and living God was organized April 6, 1830, and the heaven-born truths are being presented to a restless world by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, which church is the only true church in succession from 1830.

To all seekers after the "old paths, where is the good way," we ask you to make a careful, impartial, and prayerful investigation of the angel's message, and you will find sweet rest to your troubled souls.

C. J. HUNT.

DELOIT, Iowa, Aug. 22, 1898.

THAT DEFIANCE DEBATE.

JUST previous to the Bays and Williams debate, held at Mondamin, Iowa, last May, Elder Bays delivered a series of lectures on so-called "Mormonism," at Defiance, Iowa.

On May 6, the following article of agreement was duly signed:—

To Whom It May Concern: This is to certify that on the evening of May the 5th, 1898, Elder D. H. Bays, of the Christian Church, and C. E. Butterworth, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, agreed to the following in the presence of a large audience of people; to-wit: That Elder D. H. Bays will debate with any representative of the said Reorganized Church, at Defiance, Iowa, the propositions which were signed some time since, by himself and Elder T. W. Williams, and to be discussed at Mondamin, Iowa. Debate at Defiance is to take place at a time mutually agreed upon by the disputants, who shall be subject to the same conditions, and governed by the same rules and standard of evidence as shall govern in the debate which is to commence at Mondamin, Iowa, May 9, '98.

The above agreement is to be subject to the approval or disapproval of Elder Joseph R. Lambert, of Lamoni, Iowa.

D. H. BAYS.

CHARLES E. BUTTERWORTH.

Dated at Defiance, Iowa, May 6, 1898.

A copy of the above article of agreement reached me at Lamoni, Iowa, on the evening of the 7th of May, just the day before I started for the Mondamin debate.

One day, while at Mondamin, Bro. J. F. Mintun and I called on Elder Bays, in his own room, in order to talk over the prospective debate, at Defiance. I myself was the first to call his attention to the article of agreement. I then and there informed Elder Bays that I would honor the agreement so far as the propositions were concerned, also the nine rules which governed at Mondamin, provided that three of them were slightly amended so as to give us more time on the church propositions and the Book of Mormon, and to avoid misunderstanding, unpleasantness, and waste of time, during the debate.

On the matter of time, it was agreed that I should find out whether our people and friends, at Defiance, would be willing to bear the burden of so lengthy a discussion, and Elder Bays to make like inquiry of his people and friends. In a few days I received a letter from Defiance, stating that so far as our people were concerned, they would stand their part of the burden, even if there were eighteen sessions. No objections were offered by Elder Bays to the other proposed amendments; but it was agreed that I should write him, in due time, which I also did, as follows:—

LAMONI, Iowa, June 23, 1898.

Elder D. H. Bays,
Persia, Iowa.

Dear Sir:—I have just got around to the prospective debate at Defiance. Hope we can get along with but little correspondence as I am overwhelmed with work.

Bro. Butterworth thinks that the middle or latter part of October will be the best time to commence the debate. If you agree to this, we can select the exact date.

As I told you at Mondamin, our people will stand their part of the burden, even to eighteen sessions, if necessary. But as you will see by my revision of rule 4, I only ask for sixteen sessions.

On a separate sheet I inclose rules 2, 4, and 6, revised. I trust they will meet with your ready approval. The other rules of the Mondamin debate to be left as they are with the exception of time and place of holding the discussion, etc.

I will not consent to any change in the wording of the propositions, nor the order in which they are to be debated.

This covers the ground, I believe, and if you consent to it, we can put the propositions and rules in shape to be signed, and I will inroduce you to your opponent as soon as I have secured him.

Yours truly,

J. R. LAMBERT.

The proposed amendments to rules were as follows:—

Rule 2. Substituting the word "matter" with the word "evidence," thus making it to read: "But in the closing speeches no new evidence shall be introduced except by the mutual consent of the disputants."

Rule 4 asks for "four sessions of two hours each," on the church propositions, instead of three; and six sessions on the Book of Mormon proposition, instead of four, thus making sixteen sessions in all, (two to the fourth proposition,) instead of twelve as had at Mondamin. But, it should be borne in mind, the original rule as agreed upon between Williams and Bays, and the only one they could possibly have in view at the time the above article of agreement was signed, required fifteen sessions. The time was reduced to twelve, by mutual consent, because of an urgent demand of the people of Mondamin and vicinity, and it was not done until the very day on which the debate commenced.

Rule 6, as originally agreed upon, reads as follows:—

The King James' translation of the Bible shall be the standard of authority; but either disputant may bring evidence from whatever source he may deem proper within the rules adopted to govern the discussion.

Notwithstanding the wording of the above rule, and Elder Bays' express statement to Elder Williams, by letter, that under the wording of this rule American archæology could be admitted on the Book of Mormon proposition, it is a fact, which Elder Bays will hardly dare to deny, that just as soon as Elder Williams introduced this kind of evidence, Elder Bays stoutly objected to its use! But after the consumption of much valuable time, the point was decided against him. So, to avoid this unpleasantness, and loss of time, I asked for the following addition as an amendment:—

This rule to be so construed as to admit of the use of American archæology on proposition No. 3.

On July 23, I received a reply to my letter from which I extract the following:—

I have laid the matter before those directly interested in the proposed discussion, and they are unanimous in declaring they will consent to no change in either propositions or rules from those governing in the Mondamin debate—that if there is a discussion here [at Defiance] the signed agreement must be adhered to by the parties concerned.

This letter, of course, was signed by D. H. Bays.

The reader will please note the following points:—

1. The article of agreement provides for the "approval or disapproval" of the missionary in charge.

2. The missionary in charge, under date of June 23, specifically stated that he would consent to no change in the propositions. He asked for no new rule, nor that any one or more of the rules, governing at Mondamin, should be expunged.

3. That those people at Defiance, (Elder Bays' people,) instructed or not instructed, by Elder Bays, as the case may be, refuse to allow their champion to debate with the Latter Day Saints, at Defiance, if the proposed amendments are allowed. That is, they are opposed (!) to more time on the propositions—sixteen sessions instead of fifteen, or as they would put it, instead of twelve. Why this opposition?

4. They are opposed to changing the word "matter" to "evidence," though at Mondamin, Elder Bays admitted that the word evidence would avoid misunderstanding, and that it would be fair to both sides.

5. They intend to try to rule out American archæology on the Book of Mormon proposition, at Defiance, with some hope of success, or else they object to the proposed amendment to rule 6, because it would cut off from them the blessed privilege of another wrangle and waste of time! Which is it? If Elder Bays and his people, one or both, as the case may be, wish to beg off on such grounds as these, they are welcome to it, so far as I am concerned.

But if there should be a lingering doubt in the mind of any reader as to the correctness of my conclusions, let him be patient, and give close attention to what is yet to follow.

Under date of August 4, I wrote Elder Bays that I would consent to the following on rule 2:—

But in the closing speeches no new evidence or argument shall be introduced, except by the mutual consent of the disputants. . . .

If you object to the introduction of American antiquities on the Book of Mormon question, will you debate it with the Bible alone as the standard of evidence? Will you agree to sixteen sessions? If not, will you agree to fifteen?

At Persia, Iowa, August 12, 1898, I received the following reply to my offers:—

The people there [at Defiance] are willing to stand by the written agreement, but will not consent to any changes. The sentiment is, "Let him stand by the article of agreement or back squarely out."

Our correspondence has been voluminous, but the above furnishes the substance of the situation, and discloses the true character of Elder Bays' opposition. He was well aware from what I said to him at Mondamin, and what I wrote him on June 23, that I would insist upon a better understanding of some of the rules, which would, of course, necessitate a slight revision; so, he cunningly refuses to accede to any changes whatever, and then tries to make it out that I have backed "squarely out." But the truth is, as he well knows, that I have backed out from nothing.

A few more quotations from my last letter, dated September 9, will suffice:—

I ask for sixteen sessions, instead of twelve, because it is better for the cause of truth, and much worse for the cause of error, without any regard to whether you or us have the truth. I have simply asked that rule 2 be so amended as to avoid misunderstanding and consequent wrangling, in the midst of the debate. I have even consented to make it read so as to grant all that you contended for at Mondamin, and still you object! On rule 6, I simply ask that there be a perfect understanding, before the debate begins, as to whether or not, American antiquities shall be permitted as evidence. I stated plainly, as you know, that we would debate it with the Bible alone as the standard of evidence if you objected to the use of American antiquities. To all this you object, hiding behind the miserable subterfuge that the people of Defiance (your people) object to such wording of the rules as will lead to a better understanding, thereby removing the occasion for wrangle, ill feeling, and waste of time! If I regarded the holding of a debate with you at Defiance, as essential to the success and perpetuity of the cause of truth, I might well afford to accede to your unjust demands; but I do not so regard it.

My proposed amendments, as you certainly know, are just as fair for you as they are for us. I challenge you to show wherein they are unjust or unfair. And in the absence of such showing, or even the attempt, up to date, I am fully justified in the statements of my last letter to which you so vigorously object.

You now concede that you meant to compel me to answer "yes," or "no," to that article of agreement; no more nor no less. This being true, you ought not to object to a dose of your own medicine. Your position is that there must be no change in the wording of any of the rules which governed at Mondamin. In a former letter I asked you what about "rule 1" which provides that the debate be held at Mondamin, beginning on May 9. Up to date, you have been silent as the grave about it. Do you want this rule to govern at Defiance, without any change in the wording? Please answer "yes," or "no," I am not particular which.

Please do not neglect to take at least one dose of the medicine you have prescribed for me. The article of agreement requires that the debate be held at Defiance, but the wording of rule 1 requires that it be held at Mondamin, in May, 1898! And in your last you say that you have repeatedly declared "that no changes of any character, whatever, will be made." The italics are yours.

Having learned that many of these men, who profess to be Christians, do not hesitate to misrepresent and falsify, through their papers, and from the rostrum, I have thus taken pains to submit some facts "to a candid world."

J. R. LAMBERT.

LAMONI, IOWA, September 21, 1898.

IS THIS GOSPEL?

AND, behold, one came and said unto him, Good Master, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life? And he said unto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments. He saith unto him, Which? Jesus said, Thou shalt do no murder, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Honor thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. The young man saith unto him, All these things have I kept from my youth up: what lack I yet? Jesus said unto him, If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me.—Matt. 19: 16-21.

To the mind of the writer some very important truths are taught in the above text. The first one we notice is the implicit obedience to the commandments required as a condition for entering into life. Again, when the individual claimed to have been thus obedient, the Lord required the proof, and struck right at the root of a grasping, avaricious nature, requiring a practical illustration of the commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself;" and the sequel shows that the young man had deceived himself, and notwithstanding his boast of having kept the commandments from his youth up, he "went away sorrowful" because of his great possessions.

Agreeing with this text from Matthew, we find another in Luke 10: 25-47. This time it is a lawyer that stands up and tempts the Lord with the question, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life? He said unto him, What is written in the law? how readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live.

Again, in Luke 12: 15 Jesus says:—

Beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.

This teaching is followed by the parable of the rich man who concluded to tear down his barns and build greater in order to bestow his fruits, and emphasizes the lesson taught in the parable of the good Samaritan, which exemplifies the commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

The principle of coöperation is being discussed through the Herald, and men seem to be taxing their brains to devise a plan whereby coöperation can be successfully carried on. The thought occurs that it would be as well for us as a church to consider well the plan that God has appointed. As we preach the gospel to the world we emphasize the thought that God has appointed the gospel law, and point to the practice of the apostles as an example for us and all that may come after us. With power the elders of this church have marshaled the witness of the books that the law was perfect and perfectly adapted to save men to the uttermost, both here and hereafter; and have urged implicit obedience thereto as a means of salvation; quoting the apostle, Romans 1: 16, that the gospel is the power of God to save them that believe. Now let us see if coöperation is a part of that law.

I think it will be conceded that what the apostles practiced after their endowment with power from on high was among the things Jesus commanded. (Matthew 28:20.) The power attending the work and teaching of the apostles at that time was proof that God recognized them and their work.

Turn to Acts 4: 31-37:—

And when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness. And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul: neither said any of them that aught of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common.

"Oh," says the objector, "that has been tried, and failed time after time." We ask, When? Where? Where has a people that were of one heart and soul tried the "all things common" principle, and failed? We are answered, "Where will you find such a people?" We reply, In apostolic days the gospel of Christ made just such a people: in the words of another, "Men were converted clear down to their pockets." Being filled with the Holy Ghost, the carnality was purged out of the minds of men, and they were filled with the love of God and of their fellow men. Has that same old Pentecost gospel been restored? We have so claimed. Such was the fruit then of obedience to the gospel law; what of the fruits to-day?

A friend remarked, in conversation a few days since, that coöperation could not be carried out until the millennium. I made answer, "Those people were not living in the millennium, but simply humbled themselves to that extent that they were ready to live on an equality with each other."

"But," remarked the objector, "that order only obtained for a short time and then we hear no more about it."

Granted. But was it right? Let the text we have quoted from the Acts answer:—

And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all.

Yes, I can well believe the testimony given here, and obedience to the same gospel ought to bring the same results to-day. Suppose such results should obtain to-day. There would no longer be any ground for the statement that no difference existed between the saints and the world; and what a testimony it would bear to this unbelieving generation. We claim to "preach the gospel as a witness." If the saints were living to the requirements of law as received in our own day, there would not be those class distinctions that are sometimes found among them, whereby the feelings of humble ones are wounded and seeds of ill feeling sown that rankle and disturb for years.

So far I have written from a Bible standpoint, and now I want to call attention to some statements of revelation given in our own day:—

Wherefore, hear my voice and follow me, and you shall be a free people, and ye shall have no laws but my laws, when I come, for I am your lawgiver, and what can stay my hand? But verily I say unto you, Teach one another according to the office wherewith I have appointed you, and let every man esteem his brother as himself, and practice virtue and holiness before me. And again I say unto you, Let every man esteem his brother as himself: for what man among you having twelve sons, and is no respecter to them, and they serve him obediently, and he saith unto the one, Be thou clothed in robes and sit thou here; and to the other, Be thou clothed in rags and sit thou there, and looketh upon his sons and saith, I am just. Behold, this I have given unto you a parable, and it is even as I am: I say unto you, Be one; and if ye are not one, ye are not mine.—D. C. 38: 5, 6.

In the light of this quotation, are we the people of God? We have claimed to obey the same gospel that the ancients obeyed, but are we one? Consulting the three standard books of the church, we take up the Book of Mormon, and on pages 478, 479 we find that the people on this continent practiced the principle of all things common for the space of two hundred years.

And now in this two hundred and first year, there began to be among them those who were lifted up in pride, such as the wearing of costly apparel, and all manner of fine pearls, and of the fine things of the world. And from that time forth they did have their goods and their substance no more common among them, and they began to be divided into classes and they began to build up churches unto themselves, to get gain, and began to deny the true church of Christ.—Nephi 1: 7.

Reading the entire chapter, no one can fail to be impressed with the blessed condition that the people of God attained to while they remained of one heart and one soul.

I now call your attention to a revelation in Doctrine and Covenants, section 51:—

Hearken unto me, saith the Lord your God, and I will speak unto my servant Edward Partridge, and give unto him directions; for it must needs be that he receive directions how to organize this people, for it must needs be that they are organized according to my laws, if otherwise, they will be cut off; wherefore let my servant Edward Partridge, and those whom he has chosen, in whom I am well pleased, appoint unto this people their portion, every man equal according to their families, according to their circumstances, and their wants and needs; and let my servant Edward Partridge, when he shall appoint a man his portion, give unto him a writing that shall secure unto him his portion, that he shall hold it, even this right and this inheritance in the church, until he transgresses and is not accounted worthy by the voice of the church, according to the laws and covenants of the church, to belong to the church; and if he shall transgress, and is not accounted worthy to belong to the church, he shall not have power to claim that portion which he has consecrated unto the Bishop for the poor and the needy of my church; therefore he shall not retain the gift, but shall only have claim on that portion that is deeded unto him. And thus all things shall be made sure according to the laws of the land.—Par. 1.

Again, in paragraph 4, the Lord says:—

And thus I grant unto this people a privilege of organizing themselves according to my laws.

Again in paragraph 5 we read:—

Behold this shall be an example unto my servant Edward Partridge, in other places, in all churches. And whoso is found a faithful, a just, and a wise steward, shall enter into the joy of his Lord, and shall inherit eternal life.

We learn by this that the Lord gave the church in 1831 the privilege of organizing according to his laws, also gave directions how to so organize, and by whom it should be done; also tells the Bishop of that time that this instruction should be an example in other places, and in all churches. The question is, Is the instruction given in this revelation applicable to the Bishop and the church now, or has the privilege that God gave the church in 1831 been withdrawn? If we answer (as we claim) that we are still the people of God, and possess the same rights of priesthood that were then enjoyed, it follows, logically, that we have a plan of coöperation given of God, directed by his word, and in obedience to which we may confidently expect to succeed, if organized with his sanction and by men of his choosing and appointment. This to me is gospel. It it is not, will some one tell me where I am wrong?

The writer, after an experience of seventeen years in trying to live the principles of all things common, or coöperation, has come to the conclusion that he wants no more of man-made institutions in this line of gospel work, than in any other. But whenever the saints of God shall move forward to occupy a higher plane of life for the love of God and fellow men, I hope to be with them, heart and soul. Praying that these few lines may stimulate thought, and be a help to a higher life, I am your brother in hope of eternal life,

GEORGE MONTAGUE.

Conference Minutes.

KIRTLAND.

Conference met with Akron branch, September 10 and 11; F. J. Ebeling and G. T. Griffiths in charge, W. J. Baldwin secretary. E. Garrett assistant. Ministry reports: R. Etzenhouser, F. J. Ebeling, L. W. Powell, F. Steffe, E. Garrett, G. T. Griffiths, John T. Davis, J. F. McDowell, Richard Baldwin, Eben Miller, Hugh Palmer, C. E. Warner. Bishop's agent reported: Total receipts $203.91; expenditures $203.91. Statistical reports: Sharon 34. Conneautville 26. Blake Mills 77; received 2. Kirtland 96; by baptism 1, received 7. Cleveland 42; by baptism 3. Akron 31; by baptism 8. Washingtonville, Toledo, and Youngstown, no reports. F. J. Ebeling sustained president of district, George Powell associate, W. J. Baldwin secretary, L. W. Powell Bishop's agent. Resolved, that the resolution respecting ordinations passed at Sharon, March 19, by this district be rescinded. The following brethren were ordained: Richard Baldwin, elder; W. J. Baldwin, priest; Thomas M. Ryhal, teacher; Isaac True, priest; Charles Dalburg, priest; Frank Spriggle, teacher; Thomas Jenkins, deacon. Preaching by Elders F. C. Smith, L. W. Powell, John T. Davis, J. F. McDowell. Resolution of appreciation approved by conference: Whereas our brother, G. T. Griffiths, has labored among us for several years, and by his faithful discharge of duty, his counsel and righteous concern for the welfare of God's people in this mission he has won our respect and warm esteem for him as a servant of God; therefore we do hereby extend to him our hearty thanks for services rendered, and pray our heavenly Father's blessings may attend his labors in other fields whither he has been sent by the church, and bespeak that success of which we believe him to be worthy. Adjourned to Kirtland, Ohio, the first Saturday and Sunday in March, 1899.

NORTHEASTERN ILLINOIS.

Conference of above district convened at West Pullman, Illinois, September 10; Elder J. H. Lake elected president, Henry Southwick assistant, Elmer E. Johnson secretary. Following brethren reported: Henry Southwick, W. Vickery, J. M. Terry, F. M. Cooper, H. E. Moler, C. G. Lanphear, A. J. Keck, J. Midgorden, Francis Earl, G. H. Henley, G. H. Graves, and D. A. Anderson. Plano reported 193 members; no change from last report. Wilmington 67; 2 baptized. Chicago 132; 1 baptized, 1 by certificate, 1 removed, 1 died, 1 ordained. Sandwich 82; 1 baptized. Piper City 25; no change. Mission 127; 1 removed, 1 ordained. West Pullman 36; 1 by certificate. Ladd 16; 1 baptized. Bishop's agent reported cash on hand $25.88; but also reported that he owed elders' families for September $95.00, leaving $69.12 to be raised before this debt can be paid. Bro. H. Southwick was sustained as president, W. Vickery as vice president, Elmer E. Johnson as secretary, and W. Vickery as Bishop's agent until next conference. Adjourned to Mission, Illinois, second Saturday and Sunday in June, 1899.

Sunday School Associations.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

The Sunday school convention of Northern Michigan district will convene at Whittemore, October 14. A full report and representation of schools desired.

C. B. JOICE, Sec.

Miscellaneous Department.

WOODBINE REUNION.

The following, from Pres. Joseph Smith, was received after the HERALD forms had been made up. It is inserted in the HERALD miscellany to avoid "holding over" another week:—

WOODBINE, Iowa, Sept. 24.

I reached the reunion camp on Wednesday, the 21st, at the nooning hour, and found the usual exercises in full swing.

The organization was effected on Friday the day of assembling, and Brn. W. H. Kelley and Charles Derry were in charge of the spiritual affairs of the camp, to be joined by me when I came. The program for each day had been carefully arranged and as carefully carried out. The preachers selected for each recurring service promptly responded, and the light of love and life in the gospel of the Son of Peace was with all.

A secretary had been appointed, and ushers, chorister, and other necessary official assistants provided for.

Bro. Thomas A. Hougas, with his corps of efficient Sunday school workers was at the front and had possession of the afternoon of my arrival, and so far have done excellent service for the cause.

It is said that the preaching has been excellent, the moral tone of the speakers elevated, and the teaching spiritual, enlivening, cheering, and encouraging.

The College and its needs have been faithfully and plainly presented with good effect. A better understanding has been had and much encouragement given of ultimate success.

There are some hundred and forty tents already pitched in the camp, with a stream of new arrivals every hour; so that a larger camp will be on the ground, it is thought, than last year.

The attendance at the preaching services is large; the best of attention and good order prevailing. The attendance at the prayer and Sunday school service is good and great interest manifested

Quite a number of baptisms has already taken place, the scenes at which have been impressive.

The congregation on the first Sunday was large, but a much larger one is expected tomorrow, when a crowd that will tax the capacity of tent and outer circle it is thought will be present.

The faces of some of the pioneers and old time stand-bys are missed; whitened locks and spectacled eyes and bent forms mark the flight of years and show the nearing end of others constant attendants at the yearly meet. But an increasing host of younger men and new accessions to the faith are filling the ranks with noble men and women "prepared for Zion's war." New voices are heard, new faces seen at each recurring session, until it is easy to see that "God is marshaling his army."

The saints present are from many sections, and come from all points of the compass; and as they bear testimony to what the Lord's work is and of their interest in it, hearts are filled with gladness, the Spirit responds, and the eyes overflow with love for humanity and of God.

Brn. Pearsall, of Galland's Grove, and S. B. Kibler, are in charge of the song service, which is exceptionally good this session.

To-day, Saturday, the business session will be held, with what result is not yet known. One thing, however, is quite certain: the camp at Woodbine is in so far the best location at which the gathering has been had; whether it will stay here or go elsewhere, there has been a larger percentage of outside hearers attending the meetings and services than at any point where the reunion has been held in the West. It is easier of access, and the people surrounding the village and dwelling in it can more readily be present, it is to be presumed.

The weather has been almost perfect, and the peace and order of the camp excellent.

Bro. W. A. Carroll, with an able corps of brethren police has kept the best of order.

Yours,

JOSEPH SMITH.

REUNION NOTICE.

The saints of Southern Indiana district will hold a reunion with Byrneville branch beginning October 14. Come one, come all, and let us have a good time.

By authority of Byrneville branch,

G. JENKINS.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Southern California annual district conference will convene on Friday, October 21, in the new church one mile east of Garden Grove. This commodious building was erected by the noble efforts of the saints of Newport branch last winter; they making special sacrifice for its accomplishment. Elder Joseph Luff worked from early dawn till twilight ten full days and preached fourteen sermons in twelve days, also, which no doubt helped largely to bring on himself the spell of sickness which soon after prostrated him. Won't God reward such noble sacrifice? we believe he will. Now saints, one and all, we are aware that if we shall stand approved in the day of judgment we must put forth extraordinary efforts in this life to please the great Judge, for there will be no other opportunity in the great beyond. So let us express our gratitude to God, and to the saints of Newport branch also, by a general turnout and attendance at this conference. And surely if we do so, and go there praying for the blessing of divine approval, we will never regret the little time and means required to make the round trip. We hope and also pray that conditions may be favorable for the presence of Apostle Gomer T. Griffiths, missionary in charge of Pacific Slope mission. Elders D. L. Harris, T. W. Williams, and A. Carmichael, with others of the local ministry may be relied upon for their presence. Elder Carmichael, district president, wished me to urge a full attendance. Reports from all official members, including branch clerks and district clerk will be expected. The conference to last three days.

R. R. DANA,

Assistant District President.

Northeastern Kansas district will convene in conference October 29 and 30, at Fanning, Doniphan County, Kansas. We hope to have a large attendance and a full report of the branches and the ministry. Come one and all and bring the Spirit with you and enjoy a refreshing time from the Lord.

PHINEAS CADWELL, Pres.

WM. C. CADWELL, Assistant.

JAMES W. BURNS, Clerk.

NOTICES.

To Whom it may Concern:—I have this day placed Elder Albert Haws in charge of the fifteen counties that lie in the extreme southeast part of Missouri. This embraces all the counties east of the South Missouri district, and all south of St. Louis district. Those wishing Bro. Haws' services, address him at Acorn Ridge, Stoddard County, Missouri.

I. N. WHITE,

Gen. Missionary in Charge.

MARRIED.

BELL-SNIVELY.—At high noon, September 21, 1898, at the home of Bro. and Sr. J. S. Snively, in Harrison County, Missouri, six and one half miles southwest of Lamon, their second daughter, Sr. Nellie M. Snively was united in marriage to Bro. Jason B. Bell, an enterprising young farmer, of Pawnee, Harrison County, Missouri, Elder William Anderson officiating. The relatives and friends then partook of one of those inviting and palatable dinners that Sr. J. S. Snively knows so well how to get up. The young bride has the qualities to make a model wife, and one who indeed may be a helpmate to her worthy young husband. Some useful as well as valuable presents were presented to the young couple, with best wishes of all for a successful voyage on the sea of matrimony.

Royal makes the food pure,
wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

Cloth bound $1 50
Cloth, leather backs and corners.. 2 00
Full leather 2 50
Full leather, gilt edges..... 3 00

DANISH HYMN BOOK.
Salmebog Til Kirke-og Husandagt. Udgivet og Forlagt af den Gjenorganiserede Jesu Christi Kirke af Idste-Dages Hellige. Cloth, leather backs $0 75

C. B. & Q. EXCURSIONS.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION.
Omaha, Nebraska, June 1 to November 1, 1898. For rates and dates apply to agent.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free; $1.50 per year when paid in advance.

The traveling ministry, district, and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to Frank Criley, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.

Cloth $1 00
Sheep or library binding 1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 75
Morocco, gilt edges 2 25
Morocco, flexible binding, gilt edges 3 75

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible..... 2 00

THE BOOK OF MORMON. Large Type Edition.

Cloth, leather backs and corners.. $1 50
Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges . . . 2 00

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Cloth $0 65
Morocco Grain Russia..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25
Morocco, gilt edges, flexible 2 00

THE TWO RECORDS. The Book of Mormon and the New Testament. (Inspired Translation) in large type; in one volume.

Leather back and corners $2 00
Seal Grain Russia..... 2 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 3 50
Morocco, gilt edges 4 00

NEW TESTAMENTS. Inspired Translation. Pocket-size edition.

Cloth $0 30
Cloth sides, leather back 50

TEACHERS' BIBLE. "The Self-Pronouncing Sunday School Teachers' Bible" the same as the "Oxford Bible," with helps and maps, in good large print, bourgeois type, with marginal references; printed on thin paper, flexible binding; size 6½x8½, mailed post-paid at, per copy, net $2 00

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Rules for the government of general and district conferences, branch business meetings, and other assemblies. Instructions concerning general, district, and branch records, the holding of elder's courts, etc., cloth bound; price 40 cents.

GRACELAND .. COLLEGE,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Telephone 71.

For catalogues or further information, Address, PROF. ERNEST R. DEWSNUP, President, or R. S. SALYARDS, Secretary, LAMONI, IOWA.

THE INSTRUCTOR. A compendium of the faith and doctrines of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by Elder G. T. Griffiths.

Cloth $ 75
Leather 1 00
Flexible binding 1 50

JOSEPH THE SEER. His prophetic mission vindicated and the divine origin of the Book of Mormon defended and maintained.

Paper $0 35
Cloth, limp..... 50

THE SAINTS' HYMNAL. The popular edition of words and music, in general use.

Paper covers $0 30
Cloth and leather 50
Full leather 1 00
Gilt edges..... 1 25
Flexible..... 1 50

THE SAINTS' HYMNAL. Word edition.

Paper $0 15
Cloth 25
Cloth 35

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

Branch statistical reports; per doz. $0 40
Annual statistical reports; two for 05
Certificates of baptism and membership; per dozen 12
Baptism and confirmation certificate books, with stubs 25
Certificates of removal; per dozen.. 12
Marriage certificates; per dozen ... 25

THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS. A book for small children. Cloth... $0 20

The Machine that Talks Talk

The GRAPHOPHONE

FINER THAN EVER! The Latest Improved Graphophone, the highest perfection of the inventor's skill. The most wonderful invention of the age, now at a price within the reach of everyone. For home amusement, this $10 PRINCE OF ENTERTAINERS

will entertain a company by the hour. Well made and durable. Winds up like a clock, and so simple that a child can operate it. From $10 to $20 a day made last fall by hundreds of its users by giving entertainments. We guarantee the Improved Graphophone loud and clear enough to be distinctly heard in any hall or church anywhere. Plays all of Sousa's band pieces exactly as rendered by that famous band—Drums, Cornets, Trombones and all. Recites. Tells funny stories. Will repeat your own voice, your friends' voice, songs sung to it, or stories told to it. You can make your own Records easily and reproduce them at once as often as desired. Has been known to pay for itself in a single evening. Price $10, includes Improved Eagle Graphophone, 1 Extra Loud Aluminum Reproducer, 1 Concert Horn, Hearing Tubes for 2 persons. (If hearing tubes for more than 2 persons are desired, we will furnish them at the rate of 50c for each person.)

Best Exhibition Records, (Musical or Talking) 50c each, or $5.00 a dozen.
SPECIAL PROPOSITION Write at once for circular telling how you can secure one of the above outfits, with 12 Records for the trifling sum of 20c. Should secure at once a sample of our new $20 Slot Machine. Selling like wildfire. Made of bronze. Very attractive. Operates automatically. Requires no attention whatever. Can be placed on top of show case or on a counter. About 10 inches high and 12 inches long. Simply coins money for the dealer owning it. Price $20.00 net. Will sell on $1.00 weekly installments to responsible dealers if desired.

Complete New Graphophone and Record Catalogues mailed free on application. Address, Harger & Blish, Western Selling Agts. 904-910 Main St., Dubuque, Iowa.

STATE SAVINGS BANK, OF LAMONI.

Stockholders.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Geo. H. Hilliard.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 G. W. Blair.
 Oscar Anderson.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.
 Alice P. Dancer.
 W. A. Hopkins.

Officers.
 David Dancer, President.
 Wm. Anderson, Vice President.
 W. A. Hopkins, Cashier.
 Oscar Anderson, Assistant Cashier.

Directors.
 David Dancer.
 Wm. Anderson.
 Frank Criley.
 A. K. Anderson.
 W. A. Hopkins.
 Ella D. Whitehead.
 Lucy L. Resseguie.

This bank does a general banking business at Lamoni, Iowa. Interest paid on time deposits according to the rules of the bank. Correspondence and patronage solicited.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.

A house in Lamoni, Iowa, two squares from the business center. It has six rooms, a hall, and three closets, and is conveniently arranged for a family of six or more; is warm as a winter house, and has good ventilation for summer. Well and cistern at the door, and apple, cherry, plum, and peach trees on the two lots, which are the corner of a block. Address, I. N. W. COOPER, Lamoni, Iowa.

BRO. B. F. ORDWAY, of Peoria, Illinois, will send 3 boxes of Quit-to-Bac post paid anywhere for $1.50, and positively guarantee it to cure your tobacco habit, or your money refunded.

FIRE-BUGS! $200 REWARD.
 The premium payers of the State are maintaining a fund by popular subscription from which is offered a Reward of $200
 By the undersigned association, for the arrest and conviction of any incendiary in any of the associated towns.
TO FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.
 It is dangerous to place insurance on the goods of Tramp Merchants and irresponsible traders. Their many fires and fire sales of merchandise are heavy burdens on the property and business interests of the State
PROPERTY OWNERS FIRE ASSOCIATION.
 DES MOINES, IOWA.

WANTED.—Copy of JOURNAL OF DISCOURSES. State price and condition copy is in, etc.
C. EDWARD MILLER,
 280 Rebecca St., Allegheny, Pa.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.
 An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.
NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.
 Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.
 Send 2c stamp for new illustrated Catalogue, with prices.
THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

School Furniture AND Supplies
 The "VICTOR" Folding Desks are especially adapted for use in District and Parochial Schools. Our line is complete, including Stationary Desks, Double Desks, Adjustable Desks, etc.
GET OUR CATALOGUE AND PRICES BEFORE PURCHASING.
Agents Wanted Everywhere.
THOMAS KANE & CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE
 Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Battery. Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to RACINE HARDWARE CO., - Racine, Wis.

HOMESEEEKERS' EXCURSIONS

SEPT. 6
SEPT. 20
OCT. 4
OCT. 18

These are the days on which you can buy very low-rate round-trip Excursion Tickets to NEBRASKA and other points in the West, Northwest and Southwest, good for 21 days. Stop on your way and see the GREAT TRANSMISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION AT OMAHA. This road publishes an illustrated pamphlet describing Nebraska, and also one about the Omaha Exposition. You can get both without charge on application to the C. B. & Q. ticket agent or to P. S. EUSTIS, General Passenger Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill.

Go and look for a New Home in Nebraska, a prosperous country, where a farm can be bought for one years' rent of an eastern farm.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 5, 1898.

No. 40.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
A Searchlight Criticism.—No. 2.....	629
The Woodbine Reunion.....	632
Graceland College at the Reunion.....	632
Departing from Old Landmarks.....	633
Egyptian-American Signs.....	634
In Behalf of Graceland.....	634
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN.....	635
LETTER DEPARTMENT..... 636
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Is It the Stone Kingdom?.....	640
SELECTED POETRY:
A Little Lad's Answer.....	642
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Florida.....	642
Eastern Maine.....	642
Oklahoma.....	642
Far West.....	643
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
Kewanee.....	643
St. Louis.....	643
Notice to All Lovers of Music.....	643
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Southern Wisconsin Reunion.....	643

HALF A CENTURY OF SCIENCE.

THERE appears in the current Atlantic Monthly a comprehensive and timely article by W. J. McGee on "Fifty Years of American Science." The article is particularly appropriate on account of the fact that on the 20th of the present September the American Association for the Advancement of Science will celebrate its semi-centennial anniversary in Boston. That meeting will be a jubilee of American science, and even a cursory view of the amazing changes wrought in that half century should be enough to make the whole nation pause in thankful admiration.

Science has had a better chance in free America than in any other land under the sun, and here is where it has worked its greatest marvels and taken its longest strides. Men and women scarcely beyond the prime of life can still look back over the whole period of the revolutionary changes in question. Some of those who attended the first meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science traveled to Philadelphia in stage coaches or in the saddle, pored over their books by tallow dips, wore clothes spun and woven by their wives, and knew no practical means for communicating thought faster than by postchaise. All believed in the eternal fixity of animal and plant species, and probably none had dreamed of doubting that each species had been separately created in its present form. Man was still a thing apart, too sacred to have his origin investigated by scientific methods. Fifty years ago the population of the United States was hardly more than 20 millions; now it is 72 millions. Then our wealth was less than 7,000 million dollars; now it is 80,000 millions. At the beginning of 1848 there were 5,200 miles of railway in the United States; now there are 200,000—almost as much as in all the rest of the world put together. Most of the mails were still carried by coaches and postboys. The telegraph was little more than a toy, and the telephone, electric car, bicycle, and typewriter were undreamed of. Steel was regularly imported from Sheffield and iron from Norway. The steamship was still an experiment and the slow and uncertain navigation of the great lakes was the highest luxury of inland travel. Chicago boasted a population of 25,000. Settlers still avoided the great fertile plains west of the Missouri, where 10 million buffalo grazed, and the region was still mapped as "the great American desert." The Rocky Mountain region was a mythical land and California was ten times more remote in thought and interest than the Philippines are to-day.

Against this background the changed conditions of the present stand out, luminous and marvelous. The progress of the nation in the half century is beyond parallel. Not only has the national wealth increased tenfold but the subjugation of nature has gone on at a still greater rate, and the diffusion of intelligence has again surpassed that. The whole world has moved as never before, but the United States has outdistanced all other countries, and the agency back of nearly all this advancement has been the scientific spirit. As Mr. McGee says, "fully half the progress of the world during the last fifty years has been wrought through the unprecedented energy of American enterprise and genius, guided by American science."

Geology may well be regarded as the pioneer of modern science. Indeed, the association soon to celebrate its semi-centennial was first organized in 1840 as the American Society of Geologists. The broadening of thought that came from the study of the rocks helped to create aggressive thinkers. Then came Joule, Helmholtz, Grove, and Faraday, the four masters of physical science, whose combined efforts established the law of the conservation of energy—the law that force could be manipulated but never destroyed or created. Half a century earlier chemistry had established the law of the indestructibility of matter. Here were two great universal laws, making a foundation for rational thought. By timely chance Darwin came along at this time with his great work expounding the law of the uniformity of nature as applied to organic species, and, with Huxley and Tyndall to do the fighting, the joint forces of these cognate discoveries "quickly consummated the most sweeping intellectual revolution in history."

These great intellectual changes have proved the basis of similar material revolutions. These abstract scientific truths and the others that have come in an unbroken series since gave the inestimable benefit of right thinking, and in this freest of all nations the thinking has blossomed out into a marvelous variety of inventions and laborsaving machines. Mr. McGee tells of the harvester and steam thrasher, but he does not make enough of the improvements in agricultural machinery. If the crops now raised on American soil had to be harvested by the methods in practice in the '40s the work would certainly cost 1,000 millions of dollars more than it now costs.

Think of the improvement in railroad tracks and bridges, cars and locomotives, cheapening transportation. Think of the improvements in steamships, now built of steel to hold fifty of the proudest cargoes of 1848. Think of the facilities for making steam and for transmitting power, so that a unit of power is now sold as a pound of sugar was a half century ago. Think of the myriad uses to which electricity has been put in recent years, including the telegraph and telephone. Remember the drudgery from which women are set free by the invention of the sewing machine, the steam loom, the steam dairy, and a dozen other items of similar sweeping effect. But it is impossible to enumerate even the most important of these material results of science in America.

Mr. McGee names the following as the six greatest scientific leaps of the fifty years: The discovery of the persistence of motion, the invention of the spectroscope, the control of electricity, the discovery of the periodic law arranging all substances into a uniform series according to their atoms, the recognition of the law of evolution, and the culture classification of mankind. This last is an important result of the study of anthropology, or the science of the human races, in which America has surpassed all other nations. All classification is now based on force, not form. The uniformity of nature and the indestructibility of energy are the basic thoughts on which a whole new life has been built up since the coming of Helmholtz, Darwin, and their brave company. Well may Mr. McGee grow eloquent over the "modern miracle wrought by scientific work."

What the next half century will reveal in the way of new scientific truths and new labor-saving machinery can scarcely be imagined. In astronomy there will doubtless be important improvements in telescopic instruments, though it will need something revolutionary to equal the record of the spectroscope in the last half century. In chemistry there is still room for much work in getting a more definite knowledge of the primary atoms, of which all matter is composed. In physics there is every reason to expect further inventions for the subjugation of nature scarcely less startling than those of the past. For instance, we are evidently now on the verge of revolutionary changes by the turning of liquid air to commercial uses. There is every reason to believe that the next fifty years will witness the advent of some new fuel that will supersede coal, and of some new power that will supersede steam. Electricity will be created without steam and will undoubtedly usurp the whole domain of locomotion and manufacture. The recent discovery of the X ray opens new fields in photography and at the same time casts a new light far into the limitless darkness of what we have been wont to regard as the unknowable and impossible. It is certain that science and invention have not yet approached anywhere near their limits, and no nation has a deeper faith in the future of these things than the American. In the last half century America contributed fully one half of all the world's scientific advancement. In the next half century America will furnish a still greater proportion of the mechanical and scientific triumphs that make the most brilliant characteristic of the age in which we live.—Chicago Tribune, Sept. 4.

THE MIDWAY! THE MIDWAY!

Like the World's Fair, the Omaha Exposition has its Midway Plaisance—wild, riotous, unique, possibly wicked. There the meek-eyed camels carry human burdens at a quarter a ride; there are the Streets of Cairo; there are the Streets of All Nations, with a band playing the identical tune heard at the Columbian Midway.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for October gives special attention to the developments of the past month in international politics and to the lessons of the Spanish-American war. The editor, in the department of "The Progress of the World," discusses the attitude of the Spanish people toward peace conditions, the new relations between Germany and England, the Czar's proposition for disarmament, the Dreyfus case in France, England's reopening of the Soudan, and other serious problems confronting the European powers. Important contributed articles review President McKinley's course in the conduct of the war to a successful close and the deficiencies in our administrative machinery revealed by the fatal delays and breakdowns in the medical and subsistence departments of army management.

Beginning with the next (November) number, Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly will be changed in form and dress. Its price will be reduced to ten cents per copy, one dollar per annum. Mrs. Frank Leslie, whose association with Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly has been the chief factor in its success and fame, now resumes direct editorial control of the magazine, after three years' rest and sojourn abroad. This congenial work will occupy Mrs. Leslie's exclusive attention. Under her skilled and sympathetic guidance, the changes inaugurated in the long-time favorite illustrated family magazine will be in the line of development of the popular pictorial and literary features which have characterized it heretofore. At the same time, various novelties will be introduced. The tone and policy will be more than ever distinctively American, in the new, broad "imperialistic" sense.

A very interesting article on "Nervous Epidemics," by Dr. Seton, appears in the Catholic World Magazine for October. It goes a long way in accounting for the distressing phenomena witnessed in some of the outbreaks of religious fanaticism which have troubled the souls of men in the religious history of the world. Dr. Seton enumerates and explains a series of such outbreaks from the time of the Egyptians down to the camp-meeting craze of our own day, giving interesting accounts of the flagellating mania, the dancing mania, a mania known as Tarantism, and another called Les Convulsionnaires de St. Medard. The psychological facts of the article are of peculiar value.

Christianity among the Chinese is spreading with wonderful rapidity. The missionaries of the various denominations report great accessions to their ranks. "If the present interest continues," writes one, "there is no reason to doubt that each mission may soon be able to report its converts by the thousands."

The movement among the Roman Catholic priests of France in leaving the church has begun in Italy. The Methodist Church at Naples has received into its communion a Catholic priest. Another was recently converted at a service in a Methodist Church in Rome. In Florence, within a few months, four Catholic priests have left the church, and it is stated that a paper in that city has published an appeal from 450 priests praying that some way might be opened for them to earn a living otherwise than in the priesthood.

The religious dissent movement, known as the "Rascol," which in Russia has estranged millions from the orthodox state church, is proving contagious in neighboring lands also.

Notwithstanding the progress which Christianity has made in Japan, the custom of bowing to the Emperor's portrait continues, and the missionaries generally, as a matter of policy, advise the Christians to submit to the custom, while they may not believe in it.

It seems that the Supreme Court of Rhode Island was entirely unanimous in its decision in two cases recently before it which involved the right of Christian Scientists as practitioners to heal diseases without lawful license, certificate, and authority, and not duly registered according to law. The court ruled that the words "practice of medicine" must be construed as applying to the practice of medicine as ordinarily understood, and that the acts of the defendants did not constitute a violation of the law. The Christian Scientists were accordingly discharged.

The names, with lists of services, of 287 different Christian Science churches in the United States are given in the Christian Science Journal.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"Hearken to the word of the Lord; for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—B. of M., page 116.

Vol. 45.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 5, 1898.

No. 40.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, OCT. 5, 1898.

A SEARCHLIGHT CRITICISM.—NO. 2.

In the Truth-Teller, the organ of the "Church of Christ," published at Wilmington, Illinois, in the number for October, 1864, Vol. 1, No. 4, page 62, this occurs:—

It is nowhere said in the Truth-Teller how many persons were present at the conference when Bro. Hedrick was elected as President of the church. Bro. Hedrick was elected President July 19, 1863.

In No. 1, Vol. 1, page 6 of the same journal there appears the following, appended to a revelation said to have been given August 16, 1863, to the "Church of Christ, (of Latter Day Saints,) through Granville Hedrick, President of the church":—

Given in conference, held by the church in Livingston County, Illinois, in the presence of fifteen members, including the quorum of four apostles. And we, as apostles of the church, bear witness of the truth of this revelation as being given by the power of the Holy Spirit, whereunto we set our names.

JOHN E. PAGE.

DAVID JUDY.

ADNA C. HALDEMAN.

JEDEDIAH OWEN.

A. C. HALDEMAN, Clerk.

Whatever else the action of the thirteen or seventeen members of the "Church of Christ" by whom Granville Hedrick was elected President in Livingston County, Illinois, or near there, wherever it did occur, July 19, 1863, may prove, it demonstrates that that particular body of saints under that influence of the spirit that actuated Mr. Hedrick himself set a "Presidency" in that church of which Mr. Hedrick was the head. Nor was this action cancelled afterward, when on the date of August 16, 1863, following, the four apostles in that church, John E. Page at their head, set their names to an indorsement to a revelation given to that church through Granville Hedrick, "President of the church."

Italics are ours. (See Truth-Teller, Vol. 1, No. 1, p. 5.)

It does not appear that Mr. Hedrick, as "President" of the "Church of Christ" (elected as we believe by less than twenty of the scattered members of the old church) was merely a "subcommittee" chosen from among or of the quorum of apostles, having no jurisdiction different than that attaching to the quorum itself, but was acting as the head presiding officer and gave revelation as such. Nor does it appear that Mr. Hedrick was an apostle, or claimed to be one. He was certainly not one by ordination as an officer in the original church; neither was David Judy, Adna C. Haldeман, nor Jedediah Owen. It does appear, however, that in Vol. 1, No. 1, pp. 26 and 27, of the same journal, the articles governing the structural organization of the church as found in the Book of Covenants used by the Reorganization are given; and these include the quorum of the "First Presidency," of which the Searchlight says in regard to the Reorganization:—

However, not so much may be said of the Reorganized Church: it is true that they have reversed the order, as indicated in the New Testament, and instead of having apostles first in the affairs of the church they have substituted a quorum called their First Presidency, and to make the matter worse there is not one of this first presidency who claims to be an apostle.

The Reorganized Church from the first organization of its Presidency has had one recognized apostle in it, with the exception of the interval between April, 1896, and April, 1897, when the vacancy occasioned by the death of Pres. W. W. Blair was filled by the choice and election of Alexander H. Smith, who had been for many years an acting apostle with his quorum, and for the few years prior to his being chosen into the Presidency had presided over the quorum as its president. So much for the correctness of the Searchlight, as to the facts. But it should have been known to the Searchlight that the Presidency, in the sense of being called and sent are apostles, "God's high priests," in the sense both the Twelve and the Seventy are apostles in priesthood, but all differing in the especial duties in office; and further, we have the word of the Lord which says that an "apostle is an elder;" so that if the statement of the Searchlight were true that the Presidency of the Reorganization is composed of elders, it is still a valid organization. Section 3, in the first Doctrine and Covenants, 104 in the Lamoni edition, provides that "an elder has a right to officiate in his stead when the high priest is not present." (Sec. 3 (104), par. 6.) And that the Presidency are to be "three presiding high priests." (Sec. 3 (104), par. 11.) Put the two together with the rule that declares an apostle to be an "elder," and we have a threefold cord not easily broken.

Further, it appears that the "Church of Christ" had some sort of existence from 1853, for Vol. 1, No. 5, p. 65, of the Truth-Teller, has a statement to the effect that in 1853 the first edition of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, the Bible, and the Book of Mormon were received by the "Church of Christ" as the standards of faith. We quote:—

This is true which took place in A. D. 1853, which was adopted by a resolution in that year and held to until A. D. 1863.

It is stated that the change of position was the result of a revelation, the one we have heretofore in this article referred to as given to the "Church of Christ," (of Latter Day Saints,) through Granville Hedrick, President of the church.

We think it pretty clearly appears that the Searchlight should review its positions as we have quoted from its columns, for the "Church of Christ" (the Hedrickite brethren) by the action of its representatives indorsed the action of the church of 1830 to February, 1834, together with its Book of Covenants and church articles, and this includes the Presidency of Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon, and Frederick G. Williams, agreeing with the revelations which were publicly indorsed by Mr. Granville Hedrick under him, and given prior to February, 1834; and including the one given April 6, 1830, in which Joseph Smith was to be called a seer, a translator, a prophet, an apostle.

It appears further, that in Vol. 1, No. 2, pp. 26, 27, under the head of "The Governed Elect their Governors," the Truth-Teller for August, 1864, quotes from the revelation on priesthood, Doctrine and Covenants, section 3, paragraph 31 (104). This number was published one year and one month after the date of the revelation through Granville Hedrick, August 16, 1863, which was indorsed by John E. Page, David Judy, Adna C. Haldeman, and Jedidiah Owen, as apostles, before quoted.

The peculiarity of this publication is that the history of Joseph Smith shows that in the afternoon of March 28, 1835, the Twelve met in council and had a time of general confession, and as the time of their separation to distant fields was near, they asked forgiveness of those they had wounded in feelings, and asked for a revelation to "enlarge our hearts, comfort us in adversity, and brighten our hopes amidst the power of darkness." This was signed by Orson Hyde and William E. McLellan, clerks; and directed to President Joseph Smith, Jr., Kirtland, Ohio. The minutes of history state: "In compliance with the above request, I inquired of the Lord, and received answer."

Then follows the revelation on priesthood, beginning: "1. There are, in the church two priesthoods." Section 3 in the first edition D. C., 104 in Lamoni edition.

If, so far as the "Church of Christ" is concerned, there was a sort of general association and temporary organization from 1853 to 1863, when Mr. Granville Hedrick was elected "President of the church," and four apostles were elected, chosen, or ordained, it would seem that the Searchlight has made a mistake in its reply to "Enquirer," quoted by us at the head of this article.

The church in 1830 had an officer of whom a record was to be kept, in which he was to be called "a seer, a translator, a prophet, an apostle of Jesus Christ, an elder of the church," the calling of the Twelve Apostles took place some four or five years after this.

The "Church of Christ" had an officer or officers in it from 1853 to 1863, one of whom must have been a "prophet" and a "revelator," if not a seer; for in August, 1863, he then being "President of the church," elected July 19, previously, gives a revelation in which there is a very marked prophecy. And on April 24, 1864, the same man then acting as "President of the church," having been elected July 19 the year before, in which there is another marked prophecy, from which we quote:—

Hear, now, O ye people of my church—take counsel together that you may escape the awful calamity of war and famine which shall fall upon this people of the Northern States, beginning in the year 1871, at which time the sword shall fall heavily upon the people, and famine shall quickly follow, and thus shall the sword continue to be drawn, and by bloodshed shall this nation war and contend until they are overthrown and their liberties taken away from them, which shall terminate in the year 1878, and thus anarchy and destruction shall reign throughout the dominions of the wicked, while you, the people of my church, shall be assembled and grow up into a peaceable multitude, where I the Lord your God, will raise up a strong and mighty people, whose delight it shall be not to shed blood, but will trust in God and live in peace—for I the Lord will protect them.

It is now thirty-four years since this prophecy was published; twenty-seven years since the calamity of war and famine was to begin, and twenty years since it was to culminate. There has been no war in the United States north or south since the surrender of General Lee to General Grant in 1865, and none in which the United States has been engaged until the declaration of war against Spain, except some Indian fighting on the borders. Was the prophecy of the Lord? And did the character of the prophet uttering it continue good as a prophet after its utterance, if it was a false prophecy?

Of the occasions on which the revelations of August 16, 1863, and April 24, 1864, were said to have been received, the Truth-Teller, Vol. 1, No. 2, p. 31, has the following:—

The awful scourge that awaits this nation—how, when, and where you can flee to escape it, is plainly shown. Remember this, that these revelations were given through him whom the church in General Conference selected by vote, and was ordained president, prophet, seer, and revelator of the church by members of the Quorum of the Twelve. About seventeen persons were present on these ever memorable occasions when the God of Israel, in answer to fasting and prayer, filled the house where they were assembled with his spirit, which made every soul present rejoice in the God of their salvation. Brethren, it never will be forgotten by those who were thus favored with the privilege of being present when God again spoke to his church through the means he had ordained.

The names and addresses of a number of those present are given:—

There were some present, August 16, 1863, that were not April 24, 1864. The number in all was about seventeen—all of this State, as follows: Zebulon Adams, Atlanta, Logan County, has been a high priest in the church for about thirty years; Dennis Burns, Clinton, Dewitt County, came into the church over thirty years ago; John E. Page, DeKalb, DeKalb County, has been one of the Quorum of the Twelve for about twenty-five years; David Judy, Mackinaw Town, Tazewell County; and Jedidiah Owen, Lacon, Marshall County, have been elders in the church for about thirty years, and both of them were driven from Missouri at the time of the expulsion of the saints from that State. (They are going back again.) C. E. Reynolds, New Rutland, LaSalle County, came into the church in the city of New York about twenty-eight years ago; Granville Hedrick, Washburn, Woodford County, has been an elder in the church for about twenty-two, or twenty-four years; G. W. Gifford, Oak Dale, Livingston County, was baptized about three years ago; James Bradley and J. W. Frazy, Oak Dale, Livingston County, became members of the church about four years since. William Eaton and wife, Adaline, Long Point, Livingston County—Bro. Eaton has been a member for about twenty years; Sister Eaton was baptized about seven years ago. J. H. Hedrick and his wife Ann, Washburn, Woodford County, came into the church about eight years ago; Ann M. Hess, Decatur, Macon County, has been for over twenty years a member of the church; Nancy Bradley, Oak Dale, Livingston County, whom God has honored to be the mother of seven members of his kingdom, has been a member herself for about twenty-seven years.

Of this number whose names and their connection with the church are so carefully stated in the Truth-Teller, Adams, Burns, Page, Judy, Owen, and possibly Granville Hedrick, appear to have been members before 1834: Reynolds, Mr. Eaton, Mrs. Hess, and Mrs. Bradley, after 1834 and before 1844; and Gifford, Bradley, Frazy, Mrs. Eaton, J. H. Hedrick and wife Ann, baptized after 1844; six of their members before the fall of Joseph Smith, according to Mr. Hedrick, all the rest after that event, and five of them baptized after 1844, counting the date of 1863 the date of the first revelation as the basis of computation of times as given by Mr. Haldeman. Allowing the ordination of Granville Hedrick as an elder to have been twenty-four years prior to 1863, and it would place it as having occurred in 1839; if twenty-two years it would make it 1841; the first date five years after the alleged fall of Joseph Smith, the second seven years after; is anyone prepared to say which is correct? But it does not matter: either puts the ordination of Granville Hedrick as elder after the alleged fall of the Prophet and President Joseph Smith.

The article in the Truth-Teller, from which we have quoted as above, states that Mr. Hedrick, the one through whom the revelation written of was received, was "ordained president, prophet, seer, and revelator of the church by members of the Quorum of the Twelve."

The name of no one is given as an apostle except that of John E. Page, and he was, as the Truth-Teller states, for twenty-five years one of the Quorum of the Twelve; this puts the date of his ordination in 1838, four years after the fall of Joseph Smith, and legitimatizes the apostleship of Mr. Page during all the time of his connection, four years with Joseph Smith, about two years with President Young, a portion of time with King Strang, a number of years without connection with any organization, and lastly during some months with President Hedrick.

It would, therefore, appear that the Searchlight has made a mistake when it states that the "Church of Christ, from the present day back to the year 1830, cannot be justly charged with having made the arrangement indicated in this letter;" referring, of course, to the letter of "Enquirer." Will the Searchlight tell its readers who did make that arrangement in 1863, when the apostles set a president, prophet, seer, and revelator in the "Church of Christ," by a vote of the people? and the word "vote" is italicized in the Truth-Teller.

The name of Adna C. Haldeman does not appear in the article from which we quote as among those who were present on the occasions referred to, though his name is signed to the indorsement found on page 6, Vol. 1, No. 1, as one of "the quorum of four apostles."

The name of Granville Hedrick does not appear as an apostle, but as an elder; and if the Reorganized Church has only elders in its Presidency, was the "Church of Christ" more fortunate in 1863? Nor does it appear that Mr. Hedrick was a high priest, but Zebulon Adams was, and John E. Page was an apostle, ostensibly a high priest. The revelation, as quoted on page 27 of Truth-Teller for August, 1864, provides for "three presiding high priests," and "wherefore it must needs be that one be appointed of the high priesthood, and he shall be called president of the high priesthood of the church." Was Mr. Hedrick a high priest?

In the same revelation from which the Truth-Teller quoted, as we have given above, the following is found:—

And again, the duty of the president of the office of the high priesthood is to preside over the whole church, and to be like unto Moses. Behold, here is wisdom, yea, to be a seer, a revelator, a translator, and a prophet; having all the gifts of God which he bestows upon the head of the church.—D. C. 3: 42 (104).

In March, 1833, which is prior to the date set by Mr. Hedrick for the fall of Joseph Smith, is a revelation, in which, referring to Joseph Smith, the Lord said:—

You shall from henceforth preside over the affairs of the church and the school; and from time to time, as shall be manifest by the Comforter, receive revelations to unfold the mysteries of the kingdom, and set in order the churches. . . . And this shall be your business and mission in all your lives to preside in council and set in order all the affairs of this church and kingdom.—D. C. 85: 5 (87).

And in paragraph six, Frederick G. Williams and Sidney Rigdon are named as "counselors" to Joseph Smith. That this constituted what was called the First Presidency is seen by consulting sections 83 and 84, in one of which it is commanded that a house should be built "for the work of the presidency," May, 1833.

The Reorganized Church seems to have followed closely the revelations given to the church through Joseph Smith, while yet the "Church of Christ" concedes and claims he was in favor with God, prior to February, 1834.

The Truth-Teller places the two revelations from President Granville Hedrick, August 16, 1863, and April 24, 1864, together in importance.

About seventeen persons were present on these ever memorable occasions, when the God of Israel, in answer to fasting and prayer, filled the house where they were assembled, which made every soul present rejoice in the God of their salvation. Brethren, it never will be forgotten by those who were favored with the privilege of being present when God again spoke to his church through the means he had ordained.

Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, Frederick G. Williams, Sidney Rigdon were pointed out by revelation for their work; those revelations are published, and received the indorsement of the "Church of Christ," Granville Hedrick included; but it does not appear that Mr. Hedrick was pointed out by revelation to any of the callings to which he was ordained, or if there were such revelations they have not been published so that the church, and the branches of it, could have access to them. Nor is the date when Mr. Hedrick was ordained published, that we have yet seen or heard; nor is there any published notice on record when the branches of the church would meet and vote on the election of a president, in agreement with the Truth-Teller of August, 1864, page 27. "In the election of the first president, the branches composing the church vote for and elect the president who presides over the whole church," and he cites Doctrine and Covenants, section 2, paragraph 16.

The revelation of April 24, was indorsed by John E. Page in a letter dated May 5, 1864, and published in Vol. 1, No. 1, p. 4, of the Truth-Teller. The prophecy therein given which fixed the year 1871 as the time when "the awful calamity of war and famine" was to fall on the people of the Northern States, the year 1878 as the year when the overthrow of the nation and the taking away of their liberties should be terminated, failed utterly. Its failure marks the prophecy as one that neither God, Christ, nor the Holy Spirit dictated, hence Mr. Hedrick spoke and wrote presumptuously, and as the thing spoken did not come to pass, the people are warranted in accepting the scriptural statement:—

That is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously; thou shalt not be afraid of him.—Deut. 18: 22.

As the organ of the "Church of Christ," the Truth-Teller characterized the occasions when the two revelations were received as memorable ones, making no distinctions as to them, or the spirit by which they were given, the conclusion seems to be inevitable that the spirit which actuated Granville Hedrick, August 16, 1863, was the same by which he spoke and wrote April 24, 1864, eight months after; and as the evidence is clear that the last-named was not dictated by the Lord, nor his Spirit, it may safely be taken that neither was the first. It would seem to follow then that neither the "vote" of the people, nor his ordination to be "president," "prophet," "seer," and "revealer," "by members of the Quorum of the Twelve," made his revelation of God, or his prophecy true.

(Concluded.)

THE WOODBINE REUNION.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH SMITH wrote from the Woodbine reunion grounds, September 26, as follows:—

The Reunion at Woodbine for 1898 closed last night at 9:15, with one of the best audiences we have ever had in the West. The sermon was by Bro. J. W. Wight, on the latter-day work and the fulfillment of prophecy. He was much helped, and the sermon was more than good.

The Sunday school and Religio, under the pushing management of Bro. Thomas A. Hougas, who is deserving of much commendation, were represented in a session held after the afternoon preaching service on Saturday and a baptism at its close, which took till nearly sundown, but the little folks did splendidly. The Sunday school work seemed to be something of a success.

Sunday morning exercises began by a baptism at eight o'clock at which four were baptized, all grown, one a resident of Boone, Iowa, whose wife has been a member for several years. Two of the others were men and one a woman. At nine o'clock the prayer service in charge of Brn. F. Criley, of Lamoni, and G. M. Scott, of Little Sioux, Iowa, was much enjoyed by all. President Joseph Smith preaching the morning sermon at 10:45, with a tent full of people and a fringe of others standing at the outside of the tent around the circle of tent posts; it must have been that fifteen hundred were listening to what the preacher said; a gospel theme,

The noon interval seemed to be a long one; and by the time the hour of 2:30 p. m. came there was an almost immense crowd on the grounds. An overflow meeting in charge of Brn. G. H. Hilliard and Hyrum O. Smith, the first the speaker, took part of the crowd, while the tent was again filled, with the fringe of listeners as at the morning hour, and a moving, stirring mass of people, coming, going, walking, talking, and restlessly changing here and there, round and round like sightseers at a fair. There was no place for them to sit, and they cared too little for the preaching to stand still long enough to hear beyond a sentence or two, and then round and round like cattle in a "mill."

Bro. W. H. Kelley acquitted himself well, though I mistrust he has not faced such an audience in a while. The crowd was too great and his voice grew husky and broke a little before he got through; it was a good effort. Bro. Hilliard kept his hearers to the end in full interest; and I am told made a specially happy effort.

In the evening, Bro. Wight was especially blessed in his effort, and made an excellent impression upon all.

Bro. Kelley has not been in the West for many years and his efforts were well received and were well spoken of.

Altogether it was one of the best and most effective reunions ever held by the church. There were not so many baptisms as at some others, but there were many more hearers than at any other; the attendance of those not of the church from the town and surrounding country, however, was much larger than hitherto.

It is said that between four hundred and six hundred persons took dinner at the boarding tent on Sunday, so great was the crowd.

Everything passed off pleasantly, with one or two exceptions. One of the policemen had an unfortunate dispute with a man about the placing of his team which resulted in the policeman knocking him down. There was some excitement; some threats were made, but no disturbance followed.

At the business meeting on Saturday afternoon from the report of the committee it appeared that the cost of holding the reunion was something over sixty dollars. A collection in the evening of Saturday amounting to thirty-one dollars, paid up the deficit and left some money in hands of the committee for next year.

The choice of a place at which to hold the meeting in 1899 fell in favor of Woodbine, by quite a large majority of the votes taken. The same committee, Brn. S. B. Kibler, P. C. Kemmish, Fred Oviatt, S. C. Diggle, L. D. Swain, and Alma Fyrando, who served this year, was chosen for next reunion. The committee will report as to time of meeting in due time.

GRACELAND COLLEGE AT THE REUNION.

THERE was a direct agitation of the college, its purpose, situation, and needs, at the Woodbine reunion, Bro. George H. Hilliard presenting the matter to the assembly in pursuance of the duty imposed by the action of the last April Conference. His exposition was plain and forcible.

Bro. Hilliard's effort was seconded by President Joseph Smith, who set the facts of the situation and ownership of the college, grounds, and all that appertains to them, and the Herald Office, directly before the people.

We have always thought that the better way to get what was needful to the carrying on of any work among the saints was to make a direct statement and appeal. We have believed that Latter Day Saints were so constituted by education and belief that if the needs of any specific work were set before them they would cheerfully respond, regarding all that they can do as a pleasurable duty rather than a burden. If there shall be a failure in this college affair it will be a new and very disagreeable revelation to us, or a rude awakening from our confidence in the people of God.

There was quite an awakening of interest in regard to the college enterprise, and many expressed themselves as realizing the benefit and importance of the work. Some considerable means was raised and placed in the hands of the treasurer, and promises made to look into the affair and help to the extent of ability. This is all that is needed, all that could be expected of any.

We are at a loss to see how any one a member of the church can now go back upon the action of the body, and oppose an active effort to meet the difficulty and pay off the debt, clear the institution, and make a fund for the purpose of running it until the good students shall be gathered in sufficient numbers to meet all demands. There is little or no doubt that the burden once lifted, the way can be and will be opened for a reasonable carrying on of the work for which the college was designed, on such basis as must be approved by all.

The splendid spirit in which the efforts in behalf of Graceland were received comforted and cheered those on whom much of the burden is resting; and we sincerely hope that from thence it will radiate everywhere whither the attendants at that most interesting reunion may go. We would like to enjoin it on everyone who was at the reunion to aid the college effort by every means in their power.

There are three effective ways by which the saints, or others their friends can help the good work.

1st. By purchasing a lot or lots in Graceland. By so doing they can aid without absolute giving, or much material loss, if any, if the lots are never sold by them. And it is possible that the future may teem with such prosperity for our country and town that there will be a chance to sell with gain. Second: By direct donations. There ought to be fifteen hundred, or two thousand members who will donate ten dollars each for the relief of the college needs, and putting things on an upward course. Third: By sending students to the college.

There are somewhere about nine thousand families in the church. There ought to be among these nine thousand families, two hundred young men and women anxious to secure an education such as may be obtained in Graceland. Send them in.

There is a fourth way: and that is by the purchase of scholarships by those who may not have children or other dependents to send, but who may desire to see some other member's child advanced. Buy a scholarship, and pick some bright-minded young man or woman and send the scholar in.

Of course we hope that some one or more who may be able and willing will see it practicable to endow the college with a stable fund as a reserve force guaranteeing success.

Do not be discouraged because we are persistent.

DEPARTING FROM OLD LANDMARKS.

THE following from The Home Messenger for April, 1898, a monthly journal published in behalf of the congregation worshiping at King's Heath Baptist Chapel, Birmingham, England, speaks for itself.

That the Baptist Church after so long and so strenuously contending for immersion should practically abandon it for the purpose of gaining accessions, is but one of the strange revolutions taking place in the religious world, indicating a disposition to sacrifice principle for the sake of popular favor and financial support.

While this spirit is so prevalent in the churches let the saints be on their guard lest they compromise the interests of truth for political, religious, or social favor. We can afford to invite the consequences of doing right and adhering to principle whatever those consequences may be:—

OPENING SERVICES IN THE NEW CHAPEL.

This month we have the pleasing fact to announce that arrangements have been made for opening our new place of worship. On the following page full particulars are given of the services. It will be seen that the Rev. Samuel Vincent, President of the Baptist Union; Rev. J. G. Greenhough, M. A., an Ex-President of the Union; Principal Henderson, and Professor Medley, will occupy the pulpit, so that we are being well served by the leading men of our denomination. For six years we have been looking forward to, and working for, the day when we should have an enlarged building, and now our long period of waiting is nearly at an end. Will the members of the church and congregation keep the days free from other engagements, and make the services widely known. We give a cordial invitation to those friends who are not united with any other Christian church to make their spiritual home with us. The following is the basis of our Christian fellowship, and it will be seen that it is broad enough to include all who sincerely love the Lord Jesus Christ, and trust in him for salvation:—

1. We agree that a Christian Church is a Community of persons, who, believing in the Lord Jesus Christ as the Son of God and the Savior of man, have consecrated themselves to his service, and are daily striving to obey him in all things. The fundamental principles of our Church policy are—

(a) Spiritual life manifested by Repentance toward God and Faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

(b) Fellowship with other believers, with equal privileges and responsibilities. In order that we may be mutually helpful in doing the will of Christ, and promoting his kingdom on earth, we meet together in his name for instruction, fellowship, and prayer, and by the ministry of the word, and the observance of Christian ordinances, we testify to the world our faith and hope in him. We profess our unity on the basis of our common hope in Christ, leaving to each other freedom of judgment on the question of baptism and every other matter not essential to salvation. We recognize that our particular modes of confession and orders of administration are not binding on the consciences of all men. Without loss to its inward principle, the Church of Christ may take different outward forms and assume varied adaptations; hence we desire to affirm the spiritual unity in Christ of all believers, notwithstanding diversities of worship and discipline.

ii.— . . . and we agree that the following shall be the constitution of the Church—

(a) That this shall be an open membership church, i. e., it shall receive into its fellowship, on application by them and by vote of the church, members of other evangelical churches who shall be transferred from and recommended by the church of which they have previously been members.

(c) That the scriptural method of baptism; viz., the baptism of believers by immersion, shall be recommended to and urged upon all persons who for the first time are candidates for church membership, but that we accept as members those who for reasons satisfactory to the church wish to join it, but do not desire to submit to the ordinance of baptism.

(e) That this church shall be open in its communion, i. e., that members of other evangelical churches, and any who love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity, shall be heartily welcome to the ordinance of the Lord's supper.

THE celebrated Dreyfus case in France, which has for months attracted world-wide attention, has assumed a very serious if not a critical aspect. A Paris dispatch to the New York World and Chicago Tribune, dated the 27th, contains the following statements:—

Paris, Sept. 27.—The letter of the Minister of Justice to the magistrates throughout France about the attack on the army is a warning of the coming struggle here between the Jesuits who rule the army and the Ultramontanes and Radicals who wish to reap political power.

General Zurlinden left the Cabinet because he represented the Jesuits and especially the Alsatian party. Indeed, it is noticeable how many names in the Dreyfus case are Alsatian and almost German.

If the Jesuits win the day and Dreyfus is not released, it is quite on the cards that General Zurlinden may turn out another Boulanger, and that France will have a military dictatorship.

The Pope is aiding the Jesuits in the old historic struggle for temporal power.

Paris is quiet, but uneasy underneath the surface, and there may be an explosion any time.

The reader, acquainted with the policy and doings of the Papacy and the temper and history of the French people, will recognize the significance of the foregoing statements. They are worthy of note and of thought among the many religio-political and general "signs of the times." They are noted as useful to the observer and student of latter-day developments.

EGYPTIAN-AMERICAN SIGNS.

THE following, addressed to and declined by the Omaha World-Herald, is sent us by Bro. F. A. Smith, who states that, "Bro. John Weston works on the ground at the Exposition and made inquiry and found they had the signs all right." We suppose the signs are secret signs, and mysterious words or characters:—

Editor World-Herald:—The following paragraph occurs in your issue of August 6:—

"GLIMPSSES OF THE MIDWAY.

"THE TIE THAT BINDS THE RED MAN TO THE EGYPTIAN.

"Egyptologists may find food for reflection in the fact that the Egyptians in the streets of Cairo and a number of Indians at the Exposition have discovered that they belong to the same secret organization. The Egyptians claim that they learned the signs and words of the orders in far-away Egypt, while the red men knew the unwritten words, but were never in Egypt."

Egyptologists may not be prepared to explain this tie between the red man and the Egyptian, but there are statements made by revelation which have awaited many years this incident of the Exposition to give an added proof of the inspiration of the Book of Mormon.

1. It teaches that 2,500 years ago descendants of Joseph, like him, learned in all the knowledge of the Egyptians, migrated from Jerusalem and settled in the land now known as America.

2. These Hebrews retained their knowledge of the Egyptian and made use of its characters upon both sacred and historical plates, from which the Book of Mormon was finally translated. It is stated, however, that the true Egyptian became corrupted by use and was known among them as "Reformed Egyptian."

3. One or more powerful societies were known among them, the principal being called "Gadanton," and this at times was more potent than either civil or sacred law.

4. Because of their final great wickedness they were cursed, becoming dark skinned; in fact, we know them as the American Indians.

5. While the Egyptians continued their secret society from an unknown past to the present day, and members of it are visiting the Trans-Mississippi Exposition, the Hebrews carried the secret knowledge of the same secret order across the Pacific and instituted it upon American soil, which coming down through these aborigines was acquired by the red men of to-day, some of whom also appeared at the exposition and recognized the mystic signs of their ancient brotherhood.

Though not recognized by the saints as one of their number, the writer has of late been interested in the multiplying proofs of the genuineness of Joseph Smith's claims; and I am convinced that we, like the Jews of old, must build up a sepulcher to the prophet our fathers have slain; otherwise our case may be worse in judgment than that of the Utah apostasy.

W. K. LAY.

COLUMBUS, Nebraska.

IN BEHALF OF GRACELAND.

A NEW plan has been devised by which it is believed the problem of operating Graceland College may be permanently solved, and in harmony with which Bro. E. R. Dewsnup, president of the college, is sending out letters soliciting donations to the college fund. The plan has been suggested by friends of and workers in behalf of the college movement.

The method proposed is to secure a faculty to be compensated strictly on the "ministerial basis"—the mere cost of living, the same upon which the families of the ministry are supported. It is proposed that if sixty to seventy-five persons will subscribe twenty-five dollars annually for five years, the college, operated upon a strictly economic basis, as stated, can be successfully carried through the present time of difficulty, because of the proposed reduction in cost of running expenses.

We mention the plan as worthy of support, and bespeak for the effort being made a willing response. Of course it will be understood that final action will rest with the college Board, but if the plan proposed can be developed by sufficient subscriptions to insure its execution, the Board will be aided to that extent in its efforts and may adopt the plan, or make the subscriptions a basis of or aid to another or better, if a better plan is devised by the Board. Bro. E. R. Dewsnup, the president of the college faculty, himself left a lucrative position in England, and has come into the college work on the ministerial basis. It is believed that a complete faculty can be secured on said basis; that such an arrangement would be a legitimate and proper one, and such as would more fully commend the college to the support of the saints.

It is also believed by friends of the movement that those contributing or subscribing the amounts named should have the privilege of applying said amounts toward the education of worthy young people unable to pay the full amount of tuition.

Who can and will respond to the effort to help the college? The building must be paid for and should and will be operated—at least so we think. Why not step forward and make its success an assured one from this time on?

Lamoni saints and friends are doing their part. They have subscribed liberally to the list named. If others will do likewise the college work can take a new and we trust a permanent departure for steady and growing success.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE Ladies' Aid Society, of Woodbine, Iowa, composed of sisters and friends, donated, through Bro. Frank Criley, a sum of money to furnish a room at the Saints' Home. Said room has been carpeted and furnished with neat bedstead and dresser, and pictures adorn the walls. The furnishings make the room neat and attractive in appearance. They add to the comfort of occupants and reflect credit upon the generous donors. Thanks, good sisters, on behalf of the Home.

President Joseph Smith and Brn. W. H. Kelley and Frank Criley arrived home from the Woodbine reunion during the early part of the past week. All report themselves well pleased with the spirit and results of the meeting.

Bishop E. L. Kelley is still detained at Jacksonville, Florida. Correspondence forwarded to him while in the East, in Maine and Massachusetts, has been returned to Lamoni, necessitating reforwarding. Correspondents will receive attention as rapidly as possible; this we are requested to state.

Bro. J. N. Perkins, Fentress, Indian Territory, wrote September 27. He had just baptized a promising young Creek Indian, for whom he ordered a large type copy of the Book of Mormon.

Bro. J. S. Snively, who has been ill at home, is now much improved and is slowly recovering.

A sister, apparently isolated from church privileges, asks if she would be doing right to seek healing of infirmities at the hands of professed faith healers. We have no confidence either in the pretensions or powers of so called faith healers; and think the so-called cures have entailed more harm than the disease, in many cases. Mushroom faiths and systems are springing up as rank as noxious weeds in these degenerate times; some the inventions of men, some of even lower origin; and while we have charity for all, we have no confidence in them as "systems of faith." God "doth not walk in crooked paths." His blessings are to be found in the legitimate channels ordained of him. While we do not deny that some who know not the truth have received blessings of healing in answer to prayer, it has been because of their faith in God. Professed religious faith healers are, in our opinion, religious quacks, and should no more be run after than the mediums and spooks of spiritism which Israel ancient and modern has been admonished to avoid. Much of the beliefs and practices of so-called "Theosophy," "faith healing," and "Christian Science" (?) are but new developments in spiritualism and deception. Many rush with the passing crowd into such "new" movements which assume the garb of religious movements, but when the rush and excitement are over are worse off and more bewildered than ever—farther from God, and with less faith in true religion. The power and truth of God only will bring healing to body or mind. It is the gospel that is to redeem the race. It is the power of God unto salvation—moral, spiritual, and physical, and temporal salvation. The leaves of the tree of life are for the healing of the nations. "Faith in God" will bring the blessings to the obedient, both here and hereafter—faith in the God who spoke and organized the church in former and in latter times, and who placed gifts and powers in the church sufficient to meet every demand, every necessity of his people. "All power," "in heaven and in earth," is given unto Jesus Christ, and by him is administered through his constituted church and authorized ministry. (See Doctrine and Covenants Sec. 46, etc.) His word contains his admonitions and promises for help, from physical and other ills. We commend to the sister the exercise of faith in the promises of the Lord as revealed in his word both in ancient and in modern times. If the elders are not accessible because of distance, God is near to all who put their trust in him. The throne of grace may be reached by every faithful petitioner.

Lowell very aptly styled superstition as "the deformed child of faith."

Peking, Sept. 27.—An imperial edict issued to-day practically rescinds the recent reformatory edicts, and orders that Chang-Yen-Hwan, the former member of the Chinese Foreign office and opponent of Li Hung Chang, be confined until further notice. The edict, however, absolves him from complicity in the alleged plot to assassinate the Emperor.

The Queen of Denmark, "the Mother-in-law of Europe," is dead.

Bro. G. H. Hilliard, of the Bishopric, arrived at Lamoni from Woodbine and adjacent points on Monday, the 3d inst.

Peking advices of the 1st and 2d insts. report that the Emperor of China has been assassinated; that during the recent festival of the moon foreigners were subjected to indignities. British and Russian consulates are being protected by their armed forces. Events seem to foreshadow serious disturbances and changes in the country.

Subscriptions to the SAINTS' HERALD are always in order; price $1.50.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"The seas of God unbounded roll;
Their shores no eye can trace.
Unfathomed, underneath my soul,
They lie, those Deepths of Grace.
And whether I am weak or strong,
Grace still is broad and deep and long.
Uphearing not of self is this!
Of self it lies outside!
Grace buoys me on its clear abyss,
On to God's Glory-tide."

AH, the minds of literary wealth which the present day has brought within the reach of the most modest income! Why should we ever yield to loneliness when we may enter into unrestricted communion with the noblest of the earth? The Psalmist has said, "Commune with thine own heart and be still." To do this is a good thing, but there is holier communion than this within our grasp. Saints, angels, yes even the Father and the Son may through that book of books, the Bible, be communed with, and there we will find just that comfort, admonition, direction, and strength which we can nowhere else obtain. Philip Hamerton has said, "When I open a noble volume I say to myself, 'now the only Croesus that I envy is he who is reading a better book than this.'" Let us remember that amid all the literary wealth of the day preëminently stands the word of God, and it is now accessible to the humblest and poorest. "While some books," says Henry Ward Beecher, "like steps are left behind us, by the very help which they yield us, and serve only our childhood or early life, some others go with us in mute fidelity to the end of life, a recreation for fatigue, an instruction for our sober hours, and solace for our sickness or sorrow. Except the great outdoors, nothing which has so much life of its own, gives so much life to us. A house without books is like a room without windows. No man has a right to bring up his children without surrounding them with books if he has the means to buy them. A library is not a luxury, but one of the necessaries of life. A book is better for weariness than sleep; better for cheerfulness than wine; it is often a better physician than the doctor, a better preacher than the minister, a better sanctuary than a drowsy church."

ARRIVING at Arutua it presented a very neat and pretty appearance. As we wended our way up from the shore, everything was clean and tidy looking. The ground is completely shaded with cocoanut trees, and yet no cocoanut shells or bits of niau are to be seen anywhere. Prominent among the dwelling places in this cocoanut grove was Tapu's pretty new cottage with its fancy trimmings, broad porch and clean swept yards. This house was built to receive "Bro. Joseph" in; but in his absence Joseph "the less,"—e ta'na vahine—entered in and enjoyed what had been prepared for another. And I doubt if even Bro. Joseph could have been treated more kindly than we were, seeing everything was done for us that was in their power to do to make us comfortable and happy. And the children, too, exerted themselves to gather shells for me. Our meetings were spiritual feasts comparatively, being blessed with tongues, interpretation, and prophecy.

The brethren and sisters, just getting home from their diving period and also from conference, took a holiday off the three weeks we remained there, embracing the opportunity for instruction. This was well pleasing to the Orometua, and he talked almost incessantly. Still it was a rest from what the previous months and the conference had been. From Arutua we came in a boat to Panau, arrived on a Saturday afternoon. Almost the entire inhabitants of that place were prepared to go on Monday across the lake to Faro to the bufa "rahui," and were very desirous that we should go also and make our visit with them at that place. Having a desire to go to the rahui to see and learn what could be learned, and also to be with the Kaukura saints for awhile, we gladly accepted their invitation, though we remained in Panau with a few of the saints till the latter part of the week. Thus giving them an opportunity to get a niau house built for us. How like a little green bower it was before the niau began to turn brown; and for situation it was planted in the most shady spot on the margin of the lake. Besides the coconut trees there is a large green tree with broad spreading branches in front of the house, just a little to one side, so as not to intercept the view of the lake we have from the open door, and the many white-winged boats coming and going.

This portion of Kaukura island, lies in horseshoe shape at the far end of the lake from Panau,—the principal settlement—and was at one time the chief town. It was greatly devastated at the time of the hurricane in 1878, and there has not been any city—as they call it—here since. The people gather to make bufa when the rahui is open, but cannot land here at any other time without a permit from the governor. We are told that we are the first white missionaries ever here. We are well cared for, both here and at Panau. The people are equally as kind and generous as those at Arutura, and there are more of them. I am aware that some have been generous beyond their means, and yet are sorrowing because they cannot do more. This is a hard year for many. Shell is so scarce and price so low that some of the traders won't sell at all. It will be all the saints can do to pay the debts that are binding upon them this year. True, a valuable pearl is found by them occasionally, but like other good things of this world, they do not seem to find their way where they are most needed or would be the most wisely used.

I have wished some evenings since coming here that our friends and loved ones in America could look over the waters and see us and our surroundings. They would see a pleasant looking group in the open air. We two in chairs back to the house and immediately in front of us, native saints—men, women and children—sitting on niau mats thrown on the ground, forming themselves into three sides of a square. At a little distance in front of us lie the placid waters of the lake, bathed in the silvery light of the moon, which was casting upon the sand all about us various patterns of leaves and branches, as though to beguile us into the thought that we were resting our feet on a rich Brussels carpet. And when the moon failed to appear, a lantern was hung in the big tree, and a brush fire lighted at a little distance to one side, that cast its lurid glare about the grounds. The saints always gathered thus for prayer at about seven o'clock in the evening, and remained till nine spending the time in singing and profitable talk.

While here we have received our February mail. It is scarcely needful to say how hungry we were for mail. Will go to Panau in a day or so, where another month's mail is awaiting us.

Panau, June 7.—We have been at this place near two weeks waiting an opportunity to go to Papeete. Have learned the sad news of war at home, though the tidings came not from America but by way of New Zealand. We are in great suspense, not having heard a word since May 10. Time is beginning to hang heavily upon us until we shall get to Papeete. We pray that the Father may comfort the sorrowing ones who have seen their loved ones go forth in behalf of their country. Such going forth may be glorious when viewed from a distance. Brave women may say, "Go, and God bless you;" but when the shades of night gather about, and the loved ones are not found in their place in the family group, then comes the heartaches and the silent tears, shed for those who have gone forth. May the Lord so nerve them with strength, courage, and zeal for their country that they may not consider hardship or danger, but duty only.

(To be continued.)

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

TO ALL SAINTS:—You are earnestly requested to fast and pray, October 9, in behalf of our son and young brother, Calvin Dickey, who is low with consumption, that the disease may be rebuked and removed forever. The Prayer Union is especially requested to make this matter a subject of prayer. May God bless our efforts by healing the faithful sick.

Your sister in the faith,

MARY E. DICKEY.

A lonely, heartbroken sister in West Virginia asks you to pray that the trouble in her family may be removed; that her husband may be brought to repent, and that the evening of the day she was baptized may be a type of the evening of her life—peaceful and sweet—with her husband and children around her.

Letter Department.

GLOUCESTER, Eng., Sept. 12.

Editors Herald:—It is with pleasure I write a few lines, feeling thankful to God that I am one of the number who has been brought out of darkness into the glorious light and liberty of the gospel of Christ. I am thankful for the many blessings I have received, and for the sustaining grace that has been given me. My testimony to-day is the same as old Paul's. By the grace of God I am what I am. It should rejoice some to learn that I, who once was a bitter opposer to this latter-day work, am now one who is trying to uplift the banner of King Immanuel. Should this meet the eye of Bro. A. N. Bishop, he will be glad to know that what he and others have planted here in Lydney, the God of Israel has watered with his richest blessings.

I thought some would like to learn how the gospel wins its way in England, for this reason I write. It rejoices me to inform you that we have added four to our number in the year 1898; since January, 1897, our converts have numbered about 15, which means that we have gained more than all the churches of men put together. This is a sure sign to me that this work is the Lord's and his power is causing it to prosper in fulfillment of that which was spoken by the Prophet Daniel, where he said, the kingdom of God should stand forever.

I am glad to learn through your valuable columns that our late president, H. C. Smith and also Bro. E. R. Dewsnup, have reached their destination safely.

A striking incident which has occurred here, is that those who are not members of the church have begun to call for the servants of God to administer unto their sick ones, as had before been made known unto us by the voice of the Spirit. This has occurred twice, and I will relate the one incident for the benefit of the elders of Israel. One day in the month of July, feeling very tired and almost worn out with my day's toil, I returned home feeling so tired that I thought I would not attend the meeting which was appointed for that night. However the scene was changed, for about half past six a telegram arrived, saying I was wanted to go to Witcombe, a little village about twenty-five miles distant. I at once went and consulted Elder Thomas Griffiths, who as usual readily volunteered to come along. We took train from Lydney to Gloucester, and on our arrival we found we had five miles to walk. We inquired for a cycle house, and upon finding one secured two cycles and pursued our way. Arriving at the end of our journey, we found the doctor present, and we learned that it was a last resource that the elders were called, for the poor sick woman was nigh unto death. According to her request we administered unto her, calling upon our heavenly Father in solemn prayer. We were not blessed with any very marvelous outpouring of the Holy Spirit at the time; but as the result God blessed the ordinance which he set in his house, for three days later the woman was able to write a letter; and she and many others are living testimonies to the gospel of Christ being the power of God unto salvation. Have courage ye elders and go forward with the work of your God, for he will cause it to prosper in your day and generation.

We are expecting Bro. F. G. Pitt will visit us ere long, and by the help of the God who led Israel safely into the promised land do we mean to pull down the church which is of the Devil and establish the righteousness of King Jesus upon the earth, and in this manner bring about that day which must come to pass when the knowledge of our God will cover the earth even as the waters cover the mighty deep.

I don't want to intrude too much on your valuable space, as I feel there are better qualified men than I am to write letters to the Herald; but ere I close I want to ask all those brethren and sisters who are known to me, and also those who are not known, to pray that the Lord's own work will indeed prosper and grow in this England of ours, and where the branches of the saints are now few and very far between. May our all-wise parent hasten the day when every man in every place shall meet a brother and friend.

Your brother and colaborer in the Savior's cause,

HENRY ELLIS.

ANACONDA, Mont., Sept. 24.

Editors Herald:—I am still busy in Western Montana. The work in this part of the State is in good shape; the saints in this part are a noble people and are trying to preach by example, and are honored and respected. That is as it should be.

There are a few of the Utah elders in this part, but they are doing us no harm as all the people know the difference between them and us. My meetings are well attended, with some interest, and a few are casting their lot with us.

I have some fine openings here and it keeps me busy to fill my appointments, as they are so far apart. I have made many friends since I have been laboring here, and so far have kept the confidence of the saints.

I once thought it looked hard to be watched by the saints as well as those out of the church, but my mind has changed; for if we are what we profess to be—ministers for the Master—we will bear watching; and my experience has taught me that if an elder loses his prestige among the saints it is through his own folly; for we should be true in our walk and conversation and honest with the Master.

I have just been reading a letter from Bro. T. J. Sheppard. It brought to my mind the time when he and I roamed over the Bandera Mountains as ministers together and of the kindness I received from the saints and friends in Texas. So far as I am concerned I can say I feel a peace and security in this latter-day work that comes to me stronger as time passes by. May the Lord help us all to do right.

In bonds,

A. B. MOORE.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 26.

Editors Herald:—With this I send you a copy of the Denver Republican containing an article from me in the form of a synopsis of a sermon. I have secured the insertion of a number of articles in the city papers by writing a short synopsis for the Monday morning issue.

One was baptized here last week, Bro. Evan T. Johnson, of Chicago, who has been in the city for the past four weeks in the hope of improving his health.

By letter from Bro. J. W. Gillen I learn he was to baptize five or more at Antonito, Colorado, the 24th inst.; so the work moves slowly but surely.

I have been trying very hard to get a discussion with the Utah elders who are operating in the city, but they positively refuse to discuss. If I cannot get them to come out and meet the issues between us squarely, I shall try to make the differences between the two churches known through the press.

J. B. ROUSH.

BLAIRSTOWN, Mo., Sept. 25.

Editors Herald:—When I last wrote you Elder Pement and myself were holding tent meetings at Creighton, Missouri. We had a good hearing and quite a lively interest. Two were baptized: Walter Coleman, a bright, young man, and E. M. Hudson, formerly a steward in the Evangelical Church known as the Albrights. Bro. Hudson is made of the material that by rubbing will brighten.

On August 23 we started by team for the Midway Park reunion, Bro. Phil Pement joining us at Peter Creek; the weather was warm and the trip very hard on man and beast. We arrived on the grounds about midnight on the 26th. O. P. Sutherland and F. C. Keck had arranged the tents and everything in good shape to have a pleasant and peaceful time. The attendance was not large, but all seemed to enjoy themselves. The preaching was clear and pointed; prayer and testimony meetings were spiritual and full of thought. Some of those of the ministry that were present, as I now call to memory, were Henry Sparling, Philemon Pement, F. C. Keck, O. P. Sutherland, M. L. Sory, W. E. Smart, A. M. Baker, George Bebee, W. E. Haden, A. C. Silvers, and John D. White. Nine were baptized and among the number Mrs. Stone, wife of the son of ex-Governor Stone, of Missouri. We did not agree to hold another mission reunion but decided in favor of district reunions.

On our return Bro. Pement preached one evening at Nashville, John D. White and myself one night each at Verdella, in the Methodist church. House was full and gave the best of attention. Verdella is a small village where Bro. and Sr. Dr. E. F. Miller live. We shall long remember their kindness and good attention given to our needs. Life is made pleasant to be with such warm-hearted saints. We only wish we could have spent a few weeks there to have preached the gospel to that people.

On the night of September 7 we held services at Walker, Missouri. From there I was called home on account of sickness. My wife came near dying with a congestive chill. She is now up again, but about ten days ago I took down with bilious fever, also Bro. Philemon Pement with the same. This is why we have been unable to fill all of our appointments, but shall by the help of God soon be out in the field again.

I trust that all the saints in the Clinton district will remember their tithes and offerings. The work needs support. Do not hold back that which belongs to the Lord.

Yours in gospel bonds,

D. C. WHITE.

MAGNOLIA, Minn., Sept. 26.

Editors Herald:—I closed a series of meetings here last night with a full house and good interest. I began with about forty, and closed last night as above stated, and feel well over the result. I spoke about one hour and a half last night, and took them at short range and rapid fire, and never had better attention given in all my experience. Perhaps the secret of it was that I had a "Yankee gun" with the Lord working it, and of course good results must follow.

The Populist nominee for Governor of the State was present with his wife, as also the best citizens of the place and surrounding country. He told me after meeting that if I would come back after cold weather sets in he would see that a good place was secured for preaching, and would do all he could to make it a success, and also said, "We will make a lot of converts, too." So I am to come back.

I go from here to St. Peter to begin meetings in the M. E. church with the promise of another one as long as we want it. I learn also that two Utah men are near there and are having some success, and shall look after them, and if they will not meet the issue will make war upon them anyway. I never had better liberty in speaking than of late, and feel to rejoice in the Lord my Savior. The work is onward in the State and the outcome will be well.

For truth and right,

E. A. STEDMAN.

—, Tenn., Sept. 24.

Editors Herald:—Some one has said, "The world is full of changes and fools are fond of them." While this could not apply to all the changes we see in society, it has a most significant application to a case that has lately come under my notice.

It will be remembered that about two years ago Elder C. L. Snow was shot at and otherwise maltreated in Hardin County, Tennessee. The crime for which he was so illtreated was preaching the restored gospel and contending for the gifts and blessings of the same. But now in the very same locality the people are running wild over a "divine healer" in the person of a negro by the name of Jarrett. This sable gentleman has his circulars out all over the country and everybody is invited to come and get "free salvation." At the head of his circular in large letters is the following inscription:—

"Dr. Jarrett, Colored faith Doctor;" then in smaller letters: "In God I trust, you will all come and see my performance and work. Free salvation for all. Come one, come all and call on me." At the bottom of the notice is printed, "Call on or address Dr. James Jarrett, Lexington, Tennessee."

I talked with some who had visited this divine (?) or apostolic (!) healer and learned that his mode of administering divine aid to the afflicted was to suspend the Bible from a cord in the center of his apartment (I suppose he has no other use for the Bible) and if the patient is a Christian he or she stands under the Bible and then the man of divine power takes a towel and rubs it over the Bible and over the patient, and then folds up the towel and instructs the patient to hide the towel and not to let anyone see it, so the charm will not be broken. If the sick is not a Christian he or she stands to one side of the Bible, otherwise the performance is just the same.

On the doctor's circular is the testimony of three that state they have been helped by his performance, but the patients that I saw that had sought the gentleman's aid were nursing their aches and pains just as though Dr. Jarrett had never been in the country.

Now is it not strange that a people claiming to be Christians could mob and even shoot at a respectable man for preaching Christ and his gospel and then run wild over a colored humbug that knows no more about the gospel than the Devil knows about ice. It is a repetition of the old story; once a thief was chosen in preference to the Christ. And now an ignorant negro is chosen in preference to him that gave his life to heal and save the race.

Perhaps the Lord in his great mercy will wink at such ignorance.

J. C. CLAPP.

ELIZA, Ill., Sept. 18.

Editors Herald:—It is with pleasure I write of the condition of the work in the Kewanee district. We met with the Buffalo Prairie branch in conference, September 3. The business was done very nicely. Reports were received from a number of the brethren.

Reports were not very flattering. In traveling over the district I do not find the work in very good condition. Many are cold and indifferent, while others are striving to do their duty. The officers in some parts are not doing their duty, thus letting the work go down spiritually, and the flock goes unfed.

The conference appointed a grove meeting to be held near Dahinda. The speakers were Brn. J. S. Patterson, F. A. Russel, D. C. Smith, and the writer if circumstances permit.

Our little boy, Orval, fell off a bicycle and broke his arm and dislocated his elbow yesterday. We got it back to place and he is doing very well. I hope to be able to start for Dahinda by Friday, the 23d. I went seven miles from home to-day and preached in a new place. Had a nice crowd and good attention.

I have many calls for preaching, but as I do not labor under appointment and have to labor for the support of my family, many calls have to go unanswered. I am striving to do what I can.

Yours in gospel bonds,

J. W. ADAMS.

VENICE, Ark., Sept. 27.

Editors Herald:—I am now at this place, seeing after the work of the church. We have about twenty saints here at present. Some of them came from Independence, and Lees Summit, Missouri, and some from Illinois; but most of them are from Standley, Indian Territory. They have come to get employment at Bro. Ellis Short's wholesale yellow pine lumber planing and saw mills. This plant was begun about one year ago; now considerable business is being carried on.

We have a neat church building, which was erected at the expense of Bro. Short. We aim to organize a branch shortly. We already have a Sunday school in operation.

Bro. Short has done a great deal for the church in the South, in building houses of worship, by his preaching, and aiding with his means in many ways. An interest is being aroused in the regions round about, so we hope to do a good work here in the near future.

The reverend gentlemen of other churches are being aroused; some talk of debate. So goes the good work. We need more laborers in these parts. We want to organize other branches this conference year, as we have sufficient numbers at other places for organizations.

I want to visit the saints in Faulkner County, in the last of November; also other points of interest. In bonds,

J. W. JACKSON.

FAGUNDUS, Pa., Sept. 25.

Editors Herald:—We are so situated that we do not have a chance to go to church, as the nearest one is about forty-five miles distant. I can say I am glad I obeyed the gospel, and feel thankful to my heavenly Father for the many blessings bestowed, although it is sometimes hard to live just as I should; yet I try in my weak way to live each day better than the day before.

I can truly say there is not a day goes past in which I cannot see that God has his watch-care over me, and in some cases I can see his guiding hand in my daily works; for which I feel thankful. Sometimes I ask for blessings that I do not get, and when they do not come I think it is not the Lord's will that I should have them, or else I have not lived worthy of them. And I can as truly say that I have asked for things that have been granted in the next twenty-four hours.

I wish, if there be any saints at Sharon, or Greenville, Mercer County, Pennsylvania, they would please write or send me their addresses, as I wish to write them for some information about that part of the country; or if there is a branch nearer here than the above-named places, will some brother or sister please let me know? Address as above.

Pray for us that we may prove faithful to the end.

Your brother,

GEO. H. PARKER.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Sept. 28.

Editors Herald:—Of late I have been wonderfully blessed in presenting the words of everlasting life to the people. Last Sunday Elder Henry Resch, of Holden, and myself rode about twenty miles into the country, and I spoke twice to the few that came out, with good liberty. Bro. Henry and the girls did the singing. The men were so busy putting in wheat that I could not hold evening meetings through the week, so we drove back to Holden on Sunday evening in time for me to speak the third time that day.

On Monday morning as I came into the room for my morning meal Bro. Henry asked me if I wanted to go into the water that day. I answered, "If it's necessary." "Well, my son's wife wants to be baptized to-day." So we went about two miles to the water, and I verily felt the power of the lofty one present. I spoke again on Monday evening and confirmed Sister May, assisted by President Resch. The branch at Holden could be a rose among thorns if all would live as the law requires.

In the faith,

J. C. FOSS.

JASPER, Minn., Sept. 28.

Editors Herald:—Since reading the last issue of the Herald, and the article on the first page, "Graceland College Again," I have thought how President Joseph and those associated with him must feel to receive letters and complaints from saints for the step taken by the General Conference when the college building was first contemplated. As I understand it, there was no "snap shot" policy used in conference to start the erection of the college, but all was with deliberation; and now that the college is established and struggling for a firm footing, it seems to me the poorest kind of policy for some to discourage the work. Instead, all should put their shoulders to the wheel and push, and parents who are members of the church having children whom they can afford to send to college, should support the college to the extent of sending them to Graceland, I believe, even if they may have college privileges nearer by. No one need go beyond the limits of their vision to find many examples of neglected education, and why it is that there are any who will enter complaints regarding the college is more than I can see.

I do not want to be one of those who—like our deluded brothers in the valley of the West—blindly "obey counsel," but wish to know the why and wherefore of everything, and look into all matters intelligently; but it seems to me that this is a question that has but one side and that every saint should point with pride to Graceland College, and do all in his power to make its foundation sure and its running a success.

I have thought of a plan for the relief of the indebtedness of the college. We all can do a little, and if this little is given in small amounts, covering a whole year, it will in the end amount to a large sum of money.

Are there not one thousand members of the church who, aside from their tithing, will give one dollar a month during the next year so that at the close of this century our college will then be on a firm footing? I for one will pledge this, God being my helper.

This will require very little, if any, self-denial, as it is less than three cents a day, and who is there who will not be willing to do this much?

We say we love this work. Is there not one thousand members who will demonstrate it in a financial way for the benefit of those who shall come after us, and make it possible for Graceland to become a solid institution of learning?

If this meets with the approval of the college board, let all who will, between now and January 1, 1899, send in their names and pledge the one dollar a month during next year. Yours for higher education,

ARTHUR H. ADAMS.

HOWELL, Mich., Sept. 21.

Editors Herald:—The work in West Marion is at a standstill; we have had no preaching for a long time. We are sometimes made to wonder where we really belong, as the president of no district has ever visited us. They tell us we belong to the Southern district, but, as a sister says, it looks as if we were switched off on a sidetrack and forgotten. Still there is one thing we do know: we belong to God and are not forgotten by him. That assurance makes me able to say I am glad I obeyed the Lord's commands and stepped out on his promises when I did, for I feel that if I had waited awhile longer I might never have known the peace which passeth understanding. It helps me to freely forgive all who have deeply wronged or injured me, though to forget is not so easy; for I know full reparation, must be made for all wrongs, if not in this world in the great beyond.

At times, when the way has seemed so desolate and dreary I have almost doubted the goodness of God; then the thought would come that those he loves he chastens and I believe he allows us to see the falseness and frailty of humanity that we may learn to depend upon nothing or upon no one but God himself. When the heart is full of sorrow and so longs for peace and happiness, oh! how sweet it would be to rest in the arms of Christ and know we were free from all pain and sorrow. For it seems as if,

Only o'er rocks, go my weary footsteps,
Ever dark clouds obscure my sky;
Till in my blindness I can but wonder
If naught but thorns in my pathway lie.

Your sister in the faith,

A. J. DALEY.

PLANO, Ill., Sept. 29.

Editors Herald:—Bro. E. Wildermuth and I came here yesterday from Janesville, Wisconsin, where we had attended the grove meetings and conference of the Southern Wisconsin district. The conference passed off pleasantly; two were called and ordained to the office of elder, one to the office of priest, and one to the office of deacon; one was baptized. The weather was fine; the preaching was good; the world's people turned out fairly well to the night meetings and a goodly number of the saints of the district were in attendance. Some came and tented on the camp grounds in a beautiful grove and nicely situated on gently rising ground, granting a pleasant view of Rock Prairie, and the county buildings, and of Janesville in the distance.

From the opening to the closing of the meetings, for nine days, the sessions were peaceful, and not a word of unpleasantness was heard; the Spirit of the Lord was enjoyed, and words of comfort and encouragement were given to the saints. Bro. H. A. Stebbins and others gave the saints words of instruction which if heeded will do good to all the saints, old and young. Bro. O. N. Dutton and family were the only saints living near, but they were all that could be asked for of any one family. Bro. Dutton is one of the noble men of earth, and Sr. Dutton presided over the home and made all welcome, as a noble saint and mother would do; and the children helped in every way possible to make the meetings a success; all felt cheerful. They are what I call good, noble young saints, not proud, as if in a sense they thought they were better than others, but they manifested a spirit of kindness.

There is a band of noble saints in Wisconsin, and if they will keep humble there will be many more added to their number. A number of young men are entering the ministry who, if they keep humble, will help to thresh the nations that the wheat may be gathered out. Bro. W. A. McDowell seems to be managing them nicely, and he needs to be proud of them in the sense of caring for them as a wise presiding officer, and having charge of that part of the mission. Hope all may do well in the great latter-day work which has been committed to our trust. And all will have to give an account how we have occupied when the Master shall come.

Will close for this time, lest I be criticised, as I hear of some others, they are trying to tell it all.

Mr. Editors, will you please allow me to refer to a short note I saw in the last Herald, written by T. W. C. that all the saints would testify that W. H. K. was inspired when he wrote his piece in Herald, page 575. Yes, they might admit he was inspired; but, from what source? would be their right to inquire. "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits." "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." And he may be off the fence; but he may be on the wrong side; and, "over the fence is out."

Yours, as ever, for the truth,

J. H. LAKE.

FT. BIDWELL, Cal., Sept. 19.

Editors Herald:—We have just returned from Lake Anne, where two noble young ladies were buried beneath the rolling waves. This makes nine baptisms here and the end is not yet. We hope to see enough come in to form a good branch. There are no finer people under the skies than there are here.

We would like to meet the saints at the reunion, but believe that it would be sacrificing the work to do so.

Yours in bonds,

FRED B. BLAIR.

LAMONI, Iowa, Sept. 24.

Editors Herald:—I just wish to say to you that I think you have presumed too much in your supposed right, to forestall and misrepresent me in giving my simple reasons for refusing to believe the absurd dogma that the priest has the right to bless the emblems for sacramental uses. You tried to burlesque the idea that I did not want controversy, by quoting only part of my statement. Fortunately, those that read the article saw that it was in the columns of the Herald that I did not wish to enter as a controversialist. I simply wished to exchange friendly views on this subject in a friendly spirit, without malice, guile, or hypocrisy.

You ask in your editorial, "Can the Aaronic priesthood administer?" And those that read the article know that is not the question. Every one capable of judging for himself knows that the priest can and does administer every time he officiates in the priest's office. You say I ought to know that the church from the first in its practice understood that the priest had the power to administer the sacrament, including the blessing of the emblems. Never, since my first acquaintance with the church in 1849 till the time I came to this country did I ever see it practiced, or hear it taught.

Furthermore, you say I know that this has been and is the practice of the Reorganized Church. To this I reply that I had not the slightest idea that such was the belief and practice of the Reorganized Church till sometime in the spring of 1897, when Bro. J. A. G., as president of Lamoni branch, called upon Priest Robert White to bless the emblems. It was so revolting to my feelings that I could scarcely refrain from protesting against such an innovation. But there had been some talk about ordaining Bro. W. an elder. I then called upon Bro. J. A. G. for his authority to call for the priest to bless the emblems. He referred me to section 17:22, Doctrine and Covenants, and to the leading men of the church; hence my question to the editor of the Herald over one year ago. The answer I got was simply, Yes. I did not know, nor did I ever see it practiced till as before stated.

Let us compare notes and try to find who is in harmony with the command of God in section 17:10. The priest's duty is to administer the sacrament and to take the lead of meetings when there is no elder present. But when there is an elder present he is only to preach, etc.; equivalent to saying that he must not administer the sacrament unless there be no elder present, for the very same reason that Christ told the Twelve among the Nephites that there should be one ordained to the Melchisedec priesthood, as that gives them the right and power to bless. These men had been administering the bread and wine that Jesus blessed. He had told them it was necessary to observe that ordinance, and that they should be able to administer properly, "Behold, there shall be one ordained;" and finally, all of them received the Melchisedec priesthood with power to bless.

Paragraph 10 shows that in all the duties enumerated the priest is an assistant when occasion requires; and we are free to state as our understanding of the law of God there can be no sacrament administered only in accord with the instruction given in the Book of Mormon and the former command, "not only to say but to do according to that which is written." Without the Melchisedec Priesthood the sacrament is a farce; for the law says it is through the ordinances of the gospel the power of godliness is manifest; and without the ordinances of the gospel and the authority of the priesthood it is not manifest to men in the flesh.

Now, what is the claim of the leading quorums of the church, and the decision of the conference? Why, that the priest has the power to bless and administer the sacrament from beginning to end, independently of the elders; simply because paragraph 22 says "the elder, or priest shall administer." Their decision is based upon two letters, o-r; and it entirely ignores the office God hath placed in the church, and which makes it the duty of the elder to preside to confirm and to bless; and they have said by voice and vote, "The priest will answer our purpose better," and have treated lightly the pattern and example of the Lawgiver as taught in the Book of Mormon. They have refused to respect the office and the officer holding the keys of all the spiritual blessings of the church; and designed of God for helps, governments, for the work of the ministry and the perfecting of the saints. So, they have as quorums and conference rejected the word of the Lord and what wisdom is in them.

There is not a shadow of evidence presented to show that the reasons I offered were incorrect; not one ray of light from those that were to see that the law of God is kept.

Yours very respectfully,

GEORGE DERRY.

FT. BIDWELL, Cal., Sept. 22.

Editors Herald:—Bro. F. B. Blair and I are having great success here. We have baptized twelve so far. Others are very near, so the end is not yet. We would like to introduce the Herald among the people here, so please send us as many sample copies as you can afford to.

In bonds,

A. C. BARMORE.

NORMAN, Ok., Sept. 29.

Editors Herald:—After the Oklahoma reunion I went home for a few days; preached a few times there to good attentive congregations, made an address at the celebration of the "opening of the strip" on the 16th, worked on the farm, put up feed, hauled in pumpkins, and once more "Miss Topsy," the gentle gospel pony, was carrying me away from loved ones at home enroute to Norman, where I hoped to join the tent workers and during the progress of the meeting mingle my efforts with the "knights of the trowel."

But, during my experience in the ministry for more than five years now I have often longed and wished for opportunity to attend some other fellow's meeting where I could contrast his method with my own and also that of my brethren and see the secret, if any, of their success—their seeming success.

The opportunity has come. Reverend Culpepper, a noted evangelist from "Georgia," is here with a big canvas house large enough to cover over two thousand five hundred people, and has an average attendance each night of twelve and fifteen hundred people. The "contrast" is plain to be seen. His method is not like ours—his inducements to get people in the church are in nowise the same; and yet I say with all respect to all concerned, if some of this man's sermons could be preached in our General Conferences by some of our brethren they would surely move the cause of Zion. His advice and instructions as to how to live, how to treat our neighbor, our family, wife, husband, parents, children, and our friends of other churches, has not been excelled by anyone I ever heard. The manner of life "in Christ Jesus" has been so beautifully portrayed, so urgently and earnestly and kindly demanded, that I have listened with regret that the same has not been urged more by my own brethren.

We criticise such methods as are used by this evangelist in getting people into the (his) church, and they ought to be criticised, for I have not heard any explanation about doctrine, about the teaching of Christ, about the apostolic faith, about what officers should be in the church now; whether we should have prophets in the church or not; whether the signs spoken of in Mark 16, Acts 19, 1 Corinthians 12, should "follow the believer" in this age or not. All his efforts have been to get people to "forsake sin;" to "live godly and Christlike;" to "be good," etc.

Now, I do not charge my brethren with being wholly neglectful in this line; yet I have noticed hundreds of times when our elders come among a band of saints that they occupy the stand, preach a sermon on baptism, laying on of hands, apostasy, restoration of the gospel, the mission of Joseph Smith, the antiquities of America or of the gospel, or some theme like the organization of the church, insisting that we should have living apostles and prophets in the church to-day; do not all the saints believe that? "Why yes, but we want them to understand it better." I say amen! but let us not be moral cowards by going into a branch and with the spiritual discernment that we are entitled to comprehend the needs of a Christlike life among the saints, then get into the stand and preach on some of the above topics with a desire to keep the good will of the wayward, and have their praise and compliments for having preached a "good sermon;" when in fact there were those in the congregation who were corrupting themselves with evil habits, evil communications, strife, and ill will toward their brethren, breaking the spiritual law of Christ in many ways; but you didn't want to say anything about it for fear you would hurt their feelings. It is easier to cater to the ways of the world, and be "men pleasers" than (judging from a human standpoint) to live a life in Christ and fulfill the "royal law."

The membership of the church would surely not be so careless in their duties as saints if the elders would live nearer to God and preach more about the duty of Christians, the duty of saints. Part of the mission of the Holy Ghost is to "reprove the world of sin and of unrighteousness;" and as messengers of Christ and for Christ we have the right (and it is our duty) to reprove the world of sin in all its forms, wherever and whenever we may find it. The manner of doing it is the only question.

Brethren, I hope to improve until I shall be able to satisfy myself and the Lord as one of his ministers, as his representative in life, theory and practice. May I receive the sustaining grace of God and your faith and prayers.

In gospel bonds,

R. M. MALONEY.

PIPER CITY, Ill., Sept. 29.

Editors Herald:—Began meetings at the Heavener schoolhouse, near here, on the 17th inst., and have continued until the present, with increasing interest; good attendance and good attention. Quite a few seem interested. We had a splendid social meeting on last Sunday; many were affected to tears, including some not of the church. Will continue till over next Sunday. Am rather expecting A. J. Keck to join me here.

H. E. MOLER.

Original Articles.

IS IT THE STONE KINGDOM?

ARE you quite sure that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, separately considered, is that "stone kingdom"?

The above question appeared in a very patriotic article, where the glory and beauty of our nation, which is symbolized by "Old Glory," were presented in the most graphic manner, which was published in a recent Herald. We admired the manner in which the fact that God exercised a controlling influence in the rise and progress of our country was presented. This demonstrates the truthfulness of the statement that God "hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitations."

This being an enunciation of the underlying principle of the rise and fall of nations, we are hardly justified in concluding that the nation that Old Glory floats so majestically over is the only one that God has had anything to do with.

In looking over the history of the nations of the past we find that in many respects they have all had the same experiences. In the beginning they were to quite an extent on an equality. A broad territory uninhabited lay before them, inviting the energetic poor to enter, with the promise that by industry they could become comparatively independent. Under such conditions "wise men" have always made their appearance to guide the ship of state, and soon a young nation was seen forging her way to the front and surpassing the older ones in statesmanship, soldiery, and human liberty. But watch its progress. Soon its territory becomes thickly populated, and the wealth and power begins to settle into the hands of a few. The few become the aristocracy, and as their condition is very unfavorable to progression, their time and mental powers are soon devoted to the task of keeping the masses in subjection, thus developing selfish, tyrannical dispositions in themselves, and robbing the oppressed of all opportunities of advancement. A glance at the system of "castes" of Egypt and India, and the "feudal system" of the Middle Ages will clearly illustrate the position.

