Conference convened at Boonesboro, Iowa, June 17; district president, W. C. Nirk, and Elder Columbus Scott presiding; H. A. McCoy secretary. Branches reporting: Oskaloosa, Richland, What Cheer, Perry, Boonesboro, Des Moines Valley, and Des Moines. Elders reporting: W. C. Nirk, C. Scott, N. Stamm, J. P. Knox, G. Shimel, G. Thorburn, J. W. Morgan baptized 3, M. H. Cook baptized 1, W. H. Kephart baptized 9; Priests G. M. Jamison, J. M. Park, J. Barnes, C. B. Brown; Deacon Joseph Young. The committee appointed to report as to the legality of the rebaptism of Sr. Hannah Hull, reported as follows: We have investigated the matter of the rebaptism of Sr. Hull, and beg leave to report that we do not find justifiable causes for this rebaptism. 1. Because it becomes the duty, under the law, of every member of this church, wherein they have become dissatisfied with acts of their lives since baptism into the church, to make restitution by repentance and confession to God; and the church, where necessary, as cited in 1 John 1:9, "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive our sins, to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." The clause demands what seems not to have been done on the part of Sr. Hull. 2. We find no law authorizing any person demanding or administering rebaptism upon their own judgment, only of the authority of the person baptizing, or that the person baptizing is not living in accordance with the law. Signed, C. Scott, W. C. Nirk, and J. W. Morgan. Moved and carried that each branch in Des Moines district take up a collection once each month, for the support of the district president. H. A. McCoy was elected district treasurer, to whom all money thus raised shall be sent. Bishop's agent, W. C. Nirk, reported; report audited and found correct. (This report was by mistake kept by the auditing committee and could not be obtained.) Elder J. W. Morgan was elected president of district, W. C. Nirk sustained as Bishop's agent, H. A. McCoy secretary. Letters of removal were granted to all applicants from the Head Grove branch, now disorganized. The committee on reunion reported, recommending that the Des Moines district hold a reunion this fall, and that a committee of five be appointed, with full power to act in the matter. C. Scott, J. W. Morgan, T. J. Sheldon, W. C. Nirk, and M. H. Cook were appointed said committee. Bro. T. P. Cook of Des Moines branch was ordained a priest, and license granted him. Adjourned to meet at Des Moines, Saturday, October 14, at ten a. m.

REUNION NOTICES.

Massachusetts reunion will be held at Dennisport, Massachusetts, August 5. Nearest depot is North Harwich. Stage will take you to camp grounds. Pres. Joseph Smith, W. H. Kelley, Joseph Luff, M. H. Bond, John Smith, G. W. Robley, and H. J. Davison are expected. All information relating to board, rooms, houses furnished or unfurnished, can be obtained of Elder John Smith, Dennisport, Massachusetts. Those who desire tents communicate with Bro. F. P. Busiel, 225 Pearl Street, Somerville, Massachusetts. Price of tents ten days, 10 x 12 feet, $2.50; 12 x 15 feet, $3.50. All orders for tents must be in before July 10. Each branch president should find out how many of their members are going, and notify Bro. John Smith as soon as possible, so that ample preparation can be made for all. Prompt attention to these instructions will greatly aid the committee in their work, and prevent unnecessary trouble. A spiritual feast is anticipated. Let each one bring with them the spirit of peace, and contribute their portion of good, and thus gain our Father's blessing. Committee: S. W. Ashton, John Smith, and R. Bullard.

R. BULLARD, Dist. Pres.

Arrangements have been made for holding St. Louis district reunion July 21 to 31 inclusive. We have secured elegant grounds in beautiful Ramona Park. This park is about twelve miles west from St. Louis, located on the Suburban electric line, and our grounds are situated on a high elevation. There is plenty of shade, and a good spring of water on the grounds. The location is all the heart could desire for reunion purposes.

Tents for camping may be had at the following rates: 9 x 12, $1.50 for the ten days; 12 x 14 $2 for the ten days. This includes putting them up and taking them down. All you have to do is to move in, keep in good humor, and move out at the conclusion of the reunion. Those desiring tents, who have not already arranged for them, will please communicate with J. C. Hitchcock, 2507 Slattery Street, St. Louis, Missouri, as early as possible, as we wish to know definitely about how many tents will be required early in July. We have contracted for a large tent that will seat about fifteen hundred people, for holding public services, and it is hoped that every saint in the district who can, by making a reasonable sacrifice, attend this reunion, will do so. It is our first reunion in this district, and every reasonable effort is being made on the part of the committee to make it a complete success, and the indications are decidedly favorable at present. If you will come with the intention of helping to make the meeting a success, and a prayerful spirit, we would feel entirely safe in giving you a guarantee that it would prove to you a successful time.

Among the speakers who are expected to be present are: Elders I. N. White, Heman C. Smith, John D. White, George F. Barracough, and possibly others.

Special arrangements are being made on behalf of the Sunday school and Religio to have their part of our work properly represented. Sr. Edith Palfrey of Macon, Missouri, will be present, and an effort is being made to have Bro. T. A. Hougas, General Superintendent of the Sunday school also.

If you are so situated that you cannot take an entire tent, possibly only one member of the family able to go, write us, as we can doubtless arrange for your having a tent with some one else. If you think it at all possible for you to attend, let us hear from you, and possibly we can help remove some little obstacles. Remember this reunion is being given for the benefit of the saints, and for strengthening them spiritually, as well as for converting the honest in heart.

Don't forget the dates. Commence preparing now.

Reunion at Woodbine, September 15 to 25, 1899. We desire to give timely notice to all who will assist in the music, both vocal and instrumental, to come prepared. If instrumental, bring your instruments along. To all who have or can get Winnowed Anthems No. 1, practice numbers as follows: 5, 21, 30, 33, 35, 43, 46, 74, 106, 108, 113, 118, 132, 140, 145, 162, 166, 174, and as many more as you can. We want to use them as voluntaries. We want seventy-five to one hundred voices. Let all who can assist feel that we ought to do all we can to make the song service what it should be, and do it humbly and faithfully, just as the elders do the preaching services. If any have not got Winnowed Anthems No. 1, address Hope Publishing Company 167 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, enclosing fifty cents per copy, and ten cents postage if wanted by mail; or if in dozen lots order by freight. They can be had for $6.00 per dozen or fifty cents each, freight, express, or postage added. We have made arrangements with publishers, just receiving terms to-day.

All who will assist in the music, come prepared, and don't wait for any further invitation when you get there, but go forward and take your places.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

Two-days' meeting will be held in Kewanee district as follows: Eliza, Illinois, July 15 and 16; Pleasant Valley, eight miles east of Rock Island, August 5 and 6; and at Savanna, September 9 and 10. The meeting was first appointed at Pleasant Valley for August 12 and 13, but was changed to August 5 and 6, for good reasons. J. W. ADAMS, Pres.

A two-days' meeting will be held at Wheeler's Grove, in Pottawattamie district, on Saturday and Sunday, July 15 and 16. Let all who find it practicable attend, and help make the meeting a success.

H. N. HANSEN, Pres.

GROVE AND TWO-DAY MEETINGS.

The following grove and two-day meetings will be held in Galland's Grove district, Iowa: Grove meeting at Benan, commencing Friday, July 7, at 8 p. m., continuing over Sunday, July 16.

Two-day meetings: Galland's Grove, July 22 and 23; Salem, August 12 and 13; Auburn, August 19, 20; Deloit, August 26 and 27; Harlan, October 14, 15.

We have done the best we could in setting time for said meetings, considering the limited number of ministers we have to depend upon to do the work. Meetings will be in charge of the district presidents, or those they may be able to send. Branch presidents may solicit and secure outside help if they choose to do so, though we would like to know who will take part in the work. If ministers who can and will assist in conducting said meetings will so notify C. E. Butterworth, Dow City, Iowa, we will esteem it as a favor.

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale.

Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.)

Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

PROFESSOR CLARK RESIGNS.

LEAVES CHAIR OF HISTORY AT UNION COLLEGE.

HIS CHANGE OF BELIEF.

Prof. C. B. Clark, of the chair of history in Union college, the Seventh-day Adventist institution near Lincoln, has resigned his position, the retirement to take place at the close of the college year of June 20.

Professor Clark finds himself out of sympathy with the doctrines held by some of the church leaders and unable to believe in some of the books that an instructor is expected to use in his classes. He was seen by a reporter for the Journal yesterday and was asked for his reasons for leaving the college. He said they were fully explained in his letter of resignation. He does not retire from the church, and said that he did not wish to so long as he was given the right to do his own thinking. His letter is as follows:—

To the Board of Union College:—Recognizing, as I do the fact that the time has come when I cannot serve in the capacity you have so generously conferred upon me for the past seven years with the same sincerity and candor that I have in the past, I deem it proper to submit to you this writing.

It is a fact with which some of you are conversant that I was trained in the teachings of this church from my childhood, by as devout and Godfearing parents as is the fortune of but few to possess. For this I honor them. After completing my college education, I dedicated, without reserve, every faculty of my being to be employed in furthering the interests of our work. I believed it was God's work and was worthy of my best endeavors. If others doubted the sincerity of my devotion, I could not. I expected to find continual evidence of God's leading in this work and to devote my life to it so long as I should live. The experiences, observations, and study of the past eleven years, and especially of the past three, have forced upon me even against my will, conclusions I would have been glad to resist. The logic of facts has proven stronger than youthful devotion, and if I still preserve my native candor and sincere devotion to truth, I will acknowledge the conclusions of these events.

I submit these conclusions herewith, not in a spirit of novelty nor of unfriendliness, and ask that they be considered as my honest and candid convictions; neither do I present them in a spirit of prejudicial and unfair criticism, but as a seeker after truth. I will therefore esteem it the greatest favor to have pointed out wherein they may contain that which is not true, and gratefully appreciating the kindness will acknowledge my error.

I hold:—

First. That this denomination cannot in any special sense be considered God's favorite people only as its individuals prove themselves by irreproachable conduct to be walking in harmony with the divine will.

Second. That the erratic course taken by the denomination is due not to the leadings of God, but to the eccentricities of human nature.

Third. That the people of our denomination apprehend the promises of God much after the manner of the ancient Jews; i. e., in a materialistic and not in a spiritual sense.

Fourth. That I favor better education, but that the so-called "reformed education" needs reforming.

Fifth. That all indoctrinative methods of education are mediæval, unscriptural, and should be condemned.

Sixth. That a spirit of research and investigation should be encouraged in order that unlimited scope may be given to the development of individual genius, untrammelled by creed or potentate.

Seventh. That the memorizing of books or lectures is not education even though they contain no error.

Eighth. That schools cannot be successfully maintained while they fail to satisfy the intellectual wants of students.

Ninth. That the protective principle when carried to excess is the parent of innumerable evils and creates the wickedness it seeks to cure.

Tenth. That history is a science and should be taught as such.

Eleventh. That the function of history is not to serve as a handmaid to theology.

Twelfth. That the books "Empires of the Bible" and "Empires of Prophecy" are unscientific, quasi-historic and contain errors.

Thirteenth. That the age of Babylon was not a golden age, and that its so-called wonders are overdrawn in our denominational literature.

Fourteenth. That the science of the Bible is the science of salvation and that as such it is not and never was designed as a text book in geometry, logic, astronomy or any other natural science.

Fifteenth. That the inspiration of the scripture does not extend to its interpretation; i. e., to any opinion as to what the scriptures may teach.

Sixteenth. That the laity more than the priesthood are responsible for the making of the "papacy" and that the hierarchial system could never have materialized had the people maintained their rights and duty to exercise independence of thought.

Seventeenth. That the temporal sovereignty of the papacy was not established in 538 A. D., nor destroyed in 1798.

Eighteenth. That the Heruli were not one of the three powers plucked up by the "little horn" of Daniel 7.

Nineteenth. That the history of the church through the mediæval period and contemporaneous civilization were interdependent.

Twentieth. That to express honest opinion and candid conviction is not an act worthy of condemnation.

Twenty-first. That principles are first and individuals secondary.

Twenty-second. That our earthly and heavenly citizenship are not incompatible with each other.

Twenty-third. That the tithe to be acceptable in the sight of God must be voluntary.

Twenty-fourth. That it is unmanly to teach in a school where I would not send my own children.

Inasmuch as the foregoing conclusions are not the principles practiced in this institution, I herewith tender to this board my resignation, hoping that you will see your duty plainly to accept of the same, and thanking you in advance for the favor, I am, truly yours,
C. B. CLARK.

Professor Clark has been connected with the college for seven years. He has been a teacher of history for eleven years, having held a chair in Massachusetts before coming here. His students express unbounded confidence in him, and many have volunteered to give testimonials as to the benefit they have derived from his instruction. The following, from J. E. Moore, shows the general trend of this testimony, as well as the esteem in which he is held by his class:—

Prof. C. B. Clark, of Union college, College View, Nebraska, tendered his resignation to the college board at its last meeting. Professor Clark has held the chair of history in that institution for seven years and has made it the strongest department in the college. He is a very able man, with a broad and liberal mind, and one who bases all acts and judgments upon principle. As an instructor he is most thorough and painstaking, urging his students to self-investigation and research, and to exercise their own judgment, never permitting wrong conclusions to go uncorrected. He is a champion of right and a true leader. His influence on his students is uplifting and ennobling. He is unanimously held in the highest esteem by them. On May 7, a reunion of his students was held at his home and seventy-five gathered to renew acquaintances. An enjoyable social hour was spent, at the close of which the professor was presented with a handsome silver tea set and fruit basket, which were beautifully and appropriately engraved.

All of the students who have been questioned in regard to Professor Clark's work speak in the highest terms of his ability and the stimulating nature of his instruction. They have particularly noticed his sincerity and his desires to teach the truth. One student, E. Russell Potter, said:—

I have been inspired in his class work with his thoroughness, his love of truth, and his deep, genuine love for humanity.

B. L. Morse said:—

Professor Clark attempts to influence none with his ideas. He rather advises and accepts nothing but careful research among the most reliable authorities.

Ethel T. Reeder said:—

I feel that nothing that has ever come to me has done so much to develop in me a tendency toward independent thought and unbiased action.

Many others spoke in the same way.

Dr. Leonhardt of this city, who has known Professor Clark for a long time, and has been much interested in his spiritual and mental conflict, says that he is deeply impressed with the absolute honesty and sincerity of the man. Several Lincoln people have learned of the case, and have learned to admire Professor Clark for the manly way he left his chair of his own free will, when he found that he could not do what was expected of him by the leaders of his church.—Nebraska State Journal, May 29, 1899.

DO WE KEEP THE SABBATH?

Editor Breakfast Table:—Under the above caption B. H. B., of Reynolds-ville, in your last issue has expended some learning in arriving at a conclusion, which to him seems a satisfactory answer. I extract his ultimatum:—

Unless there is a divine authority for changing the Sabbath, from the seventh day to the first day of the week, it is not changed; so the Christian churches never have kept the seventh-day Sabbath, but the Jews do keep the Sabbath.

It is agreed among theologians that by this law nature itself one day in seven is necessarily to be consecrated to divine worship, with an interruption of worldly enterprises and physical labor. The Mosaic law prescribes the seventh day in honor of the grand miracle of creation; while in the new law, in honor of Christ's resurrection, and the descent of the Holy Ghost at Pentecost, the festival of the Sabbath was changed from Saturday to Sunday, the first day of the week. This we learn from the constant practice and tradition of the church, also from some reference to the Lord's Day in the canonical writings of the apostles. The most ancient of the Fathers, and the immediate successors of the apostles, mention the Lord's day as substituted in the whole Christian Church for the Jewish Sabbath. St. Ignatius, the disciple of St. Peter, alludes to it when exhorting the Christians of Magnesia not to be seduced into error as to the observance of the Jewish ceremonies. He bids them "not to keep the Sabbath of the Jews, but to lead a life agreeable to the Lord's Day, on which our life was raised from the dead by him, and through his death." (St. Ignat. Ep. ad. Magnes.) St. Justin, martyr, and Tertullian, also the only Christian emperors, call the Lord's Day Sunday. Such is the Catholic belief, in which Protestants generally acquiesce. Archbishop Synge's "Divine Authority of Church Government," a Protestant work, says that "the apostles were not only as judges and magistrates in a civil state, intrusted with the execution of the laws and institutions of our blessed Savior, but had also such constant, certain, and infallible assistance from the Holy Ghost, (who guided them into all truth. John 16: 13; taught them all things to their remembrance whatsoever Christ had said unto them, chapter 14: 26.) as put them beyond all possibility of error." The Protestant Bishop White, in his work on "The Sabbath," page 192, also Archbishop Bramhall, who died in 1663 at Armagh, insisted on the apostolic institution of Sunday as the Lord's Day. A long line of saints as Irenaeus, Dyonisius, Origen, Cyprian, Clement attest it in the past centuries. St. Leo says: "The first day of the week was consecrated by the greatest gifts of divine grace, which on it were conferred upon us." A second motive for this change of the Jewish Sabbath was to show that under the light of the gospel, the figures and shadows of the Old Law are passed away by giving way to the New; and that its typical ceremonial precepts ceased to oblige upon the promulgation of the gospel. The Jewish law was to be buried with honor, as St. Austin observes, when its typical rites and figures which represented Christ to come, were completed by his death and resurrection. From this time the Jewish sacrifices lost their efficacy, and their ceremonial rites were no longer of force. About the year 365 A. D., the Council of Laodicea expressly defines "that Christians must not Judaize; and refrain from manual labor on Saturday, but work on that day; and that, preferring the Lord's Day, they then must rest, if this can be done as becomes Christians." (Canon 29.)

In the American Monthly Review of Reviews for July the editor reviews the work of our delegation at The Hague up to date, presenting the latest phases of the arbitration question, with some consideration of its bearings on the present international situation. Among other topics discussed in "The Progress of the World" this month are "tariff trusts" as a political issue, the Dreyfus vindication, the war in the Philippines, the recent change in the civil-service rules, and the newly elected college presidents.

Christian Science is the religious fad of the day and it is astonishing to what lengths persons otherwise intelligent are carried by it. Rev. Ernest Hawley punctures the latest religious fad from a philosophical and theological stand-point in the Catholic World Magazine for July.

COST OF SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

A noted statistician and investigator who has lots of time for such work has been doing some figuring on the cost of the Temple of Solomon, and says few people even in these days of palmy extravagance and millionaire display have an adequate impression of the enormous cost of the great temple. According to Villalpandus, the "talents" of gold, silver, and brass were equal to the enormous sum of £6,879,822,000. The worth of the jewels is placed at a figure equally as high. The vessels of gold, according to Josephus, were valued at 140,000 talents, which, reduced to English money, was equal to £575,296,203. The vessels of silver, according to the same authority, were still more valuable, being set down as worth £646,344,000. Priests' vestments and the robes of singers, £2,010,000, and the trumpets, £200,000. To this add the expense of the building material, labor, etc., and some wonderful figures result. Ten thousand men hewing cedars, 60,000 bearers of burdens, 80,000 hewers of stone overseers, all of whom were employed for seven years, and upon whom, besides their wages, Solomon bestowed £6,733,970. If their daily food was worth 50 cents each, the sum total for all was £63,877,088 during the time of building. The materials in the rough are estimated as having been worth £2,545,337,000. This gives a total, just for this much of the expense, which by no means expresses the whole cost, of £10,719,760,261, or about $52,117,034,867.46.

TAKE A SHORT NAP DAILY.

"During the day every one should take a few minutes' sleep, preferably directly after the noon meal," writes Edward B. Warman, in his "Five-Minute Talks on Good Health," in the June Ladies' Home Journal. "The time given to it may seem too precious for one in business, but it will be more than compensated for by the mental and bodily condition that follows. Sit in an easy-chair. Lying down directly after a meal crowds the digestive organs and makes one's sleep restless instead of restful. Rest the head comfortably. Tip the chair to a pleasant angle for the body, not enough to have the weight of the body on the back. Place the feet on a chair as high or a trifle higher than the one upon which you are sitting; cross the limbs at the ankle joints, close the hands together by interlacing the fingers, place the fleshy part of the thumbs together in order to avoid grasping the hands too tightly, and close the eyes. Having thus closed the circuit, it will be necessary to relieve yourself of all nervous and muscular tension; think only of your slow, measured breathing and the desire for a restful sleep."

SOCIALISM IN RUSSIA.

From a secret report of the Chief of the Moscow police to the Governor of Moscow, giving details as to the spread of socialism among the workmen there, it appears that socialism is becoming a real power in Russia. The report holds the activity of Socialists in labor disputes responsible, and suggests as a remedy that the workers should be placed under strict police and state surveillance.

MODERN RELIGIOUS AGITATION.

To resume passing consideration of some aspects of present religious agitation and drifting.

The increase of this agitation is so rapid that it assumes startling proportions. The friction is wearing and generates a heat that is consuming not only the creeds, but also much of the faith of the devotees of the churches; and as the speed accelerates, so decreases and diminishes in like proportion the faith of the people; hence the growing indifference to religion and the dying out of the religious spirit and former devotional habits of the people, the falling off in church attendance, etc. The spirit, the peculiar life of any age, is manifest in the men and women and is perpetuated by the rising generation of that age. This tendency or principle is clearly discernible, openly apparent, in the people of to-day. The faith and zeal of the fathers is disappearing, and in the cities has almost receded from view. The effect upon the youth is apparent. Raised in homes where the devotional spirit has expired, they give little thought to the question of the future life and the obligations due the Creator for "life and breath and all things." They drift with the passing crowd into the realm of mere present existence, hence forget God and live for time and present sense only.

All movements that are popular are rapid, and it is plain that the present rapid advance in unbelief will not require many years to culminate in the general condition when, in proportion to the population of the masses, the coming Son of Man will scarcely "find faith on the earth." Men forgot and separated themselves from God in antediluvian times; and, living to a great age in the then long-life period, became developed in the extreme in what they followed—the spirit of materialism and its consequent worldliness and wickedness. The present age will equal, if it does not excel, that generation, for the reason that, though not reaching the great age of the antediluvians, it lives faster than did they, because of the different character of our civilization, the superior facilities and different conditions, the high-pressure character and consequent speed peculiar to the present age. The battle in modern times is to be brief, terrific, decisive. The forces of right and wrong are rapidly being marshalled, the hosts skillful, hence the development of the forces and the results are to be marked. It is an interesting, a significant conflict, having in view the eternal death or life of the world and the race, hence the magnitude of its importance and signification. It will be prayerfully and studiously followed by the children of light, who, inspired by the revealed truth of Him who presides over and directs the forces of right and who has decreed that truth shall be victorious, patiently and faithfully strive on to keep the faith, like the saints of earlier times, in the midst of a perverse and godless generation.

The saints themselves will not be free from the influences that are seeking to dominate the world. Surrounded by the forces that permeate and direct the general drift of human affairs, they cannot expect to be entirely free from realizing the effects of prevailing adverse influences to some degree. The people of God must expect to meet, to some extent, the opposing forces that are in the world, and to be made to sense the character of that which is destined to "resist" the truth. They have been admonished and warned that "the saints shall hardly escape;" that trials will be of such a character as to require of them entire dependence upon God, that exhibition of faith in him by which they shall find strength and preservation. A leading design of the gospel is to teach the people the necessity of faith in God by placing men and women in such position that there may be need of actual outcallings, manifestations of their faith. We are in the world, subject to its driftings and destinies if we become of the world; but the promise of life and salvation is to those who come out from and "who overcome the world."

One of the dangers of the present crisis is the spiritual drowsiness, the indifference of the people concerning the religious spirit. It is increasing at an alarming rate, and our people have need, individually and collectively, in their public gatherings and in their personal life, to "watch and pray" lest they be found among those who are going to sleep in the spiritual stupor of Babylon. We must not hope for the church as a body to save us; nor can we expect our mere membership therein to insure our safety. We must watch and pray, diligently and fervently, pleading with the Lord that we may be able to "always remember him [Christ] and keep his commandments which he has given them [the saints], that they may always have his Spirit to be with them." (D. C. 17:22.) The Lord has said to the church that "sanctification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true, to all those who love and serve God with all their mights, minds, and strength; but there is a possibility that man may fall from grace and depart from the living God. Therefore let the church take heed and pray always, lest they fall into temptations; yea, and even let those who are sanctified, take heed also." (D. C. 17:6.)

The people of God, who have found the truth, cannot afford to be half-hearted and slumber and sleep; neither should they become weak and faint-hearted, but be diligent and courageous, serving God with all "readiness of mind," being valiant in his testimony, which testimony includes all the conditions of service to him. There is too much holding back now, already. Every live man or woman is a kindling fire or light, inspiring others to action by the Spirit radiating from his example. There should be an increase, not a diminution in the number of the faithful, active, spiritual-minded in the church. Every lifeless, dead member is a hindrance and a load to carry. These are plain statements, but plain statements are needed. Our efforts should not be directed merely to please the people, but to do them good. The man who labors simply to please and thereby to gain favor, is not a true servant of the people, but does more harm than good. The church and the world, past and present, have had "men-pleasing" enough. Rugged common sense and integrity must prevail to carry us through. The church in early times, while in Missouri, in the early days of what now to us appear as days of pioneer life and native simplicity, in comparison to our own times of vanity and display—the church in that early day was rebuked for its "vanity and unbelief," and told that such vanity and unbelief had brought the entire church "under condemnation," and that such condemnation should remain until they remembered the Book of Mormon and the former commandments, not only to say, but to do according to that which is written, etc. Are we better than they? Are we sure we are avoiding all the mistakes made by the people of God in those early times? These are questions we should think about, personally and collectively. There is less of the spirit of piety in the world to-day than then, and more of a disposition to depart from God, as we have seen. Are we sure that as a people we have resisted such prevailing influences to that degree that we have clung tenaciously and devotedly to the work "in all faithfulness," and are we continuing so to do? In the midst of so much to take note of in the world about us, let us not fail to consider ourselves. We will be wise if we turn the penetrating searchlight clear around and let its rays reveal who, what, and where we are. We must not keep it swinging always in the outward arc of the circle. The Spirit of the Lord is quick and powerful, a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart, and is impartial, analyzing all, saint and sinner, by the light of truth. We cannot afford to ignore our defects or seek to hide our sins and shortcomings; neither is it manly, womanly, or honorable so to do. The true man or woman will not try to do it, neither will he or she seek to pass for more than he is worth.

With these reflections and convictions we may be better prepared to note further the present driftings of the religious world about us, written up in part in a recent HERALD.

We have more of Doctor Briggs, some interesting and new phases of the case, but will pass to other matters for the present.

The Episcopal Church, the present religious storm center, is now between two fires, the higher criticism represented by Dr. Briggs and his school, and the strong tendency to drift body and soul into the communion of the Roman Catholic Church. That the tendency is strong in that direction is evidenced by the movement in both Great Britain and America.

It will be remembered that shortly before his death Mr. Gladstone in his zeal for the welfare of the Church of England sought to persuade the Roman Catholic Church to recognize the "validity" of the clerical acts and authority of ministers of the Established Church. This Pope Leo and his associates refused to do, knowing evidently the strength of the flowing tide toward Catholicism in England. Since that time, brief as it has been, Roman Catholicism has been strengthened by annual accessions of about twenty-five thousand converts from the Church of England, that church has been threatened with "disestablishment," by which it would be separated from state favor and prestige and control, and no less a person than Mr. Balfour, prominent in British politics, has advocated a Catholic University for Ireland, under government patronage, to satisfy Catholic demands in that respect. In addition, the extreme ritualists or High Churchmen of the Church of England, are becoming bold in their adoption of obsequious ceremonies such as the mass, the confessional, use of incense, and other rites and forms approximating to the usages of the Roman Catholic service.

The movement is not confined to England, but has invaded unconventional, democratic America. Father Larrabee, an Episcopal minister of Chicago, has compiled a new prayer book or book of worship called "Prayer at Mass." The prayers are translated from the Roman missal. It is illustrated with drawings that are distinctly Romish in tone and makeup, and provides for prayers at mass, for the confessional, etc.

We append the following brief comment from the Chicago Tribune of May 23, 1899:—

THE "PRAYER AT MASS."

It is not likely that the Episcopal Bishop of Chicago is delighted with the little illustrated book called "Prayer at Mass" which Father Larrabee has prepared for the use of the members of his church. He is satisfied with the services of the Episcopal Church as he found them, and does not believe millinery and incense can add anything to their sacredness. At the same time the little book will not be a stumbling block of offense to him unless it contains something which violates the rubrics. The bishop is not a heresy hunter and will not interfere with any of his ritualistic presbyters unless they overstep the line. Presumably they will get as close to it as they can, but will be careful not to go too far.

The book is composed largely of special silent prayers, which are to be said by devout worshippers at appropriate moments. To the prayers themselves no exception can be taken, although they are mainly translated from the Latin prayers to be found in the Roman missal. The entire Episcopal prayer book is but a translation and condensation of that missal, omitting those features of the latter which were assumed three centuries ago to "savor of idolatry." There are many prayers of singular beauty which are not in the Episcopal prayer book. There is no reason why Episcopalians or Presbyterians, for that matter, should not use them if they feel inclined to do so.

The silent devotions of priest and congregation will not be interfered with by church authorities, no matter if the unuttered prayers do have a tinge of "Romanism." There are many things which are not forbidden by the prayer book and which may, therefore, be permissible when done "decently and in order," but whatever the prayer book orders to be done must be done. There is a direction that any of the consecrated bread and wine left over after all have communed shall be reverently consumed. A failure to do this is a violation of the law of the church. The consecrated elements must not be "reserved." Bishop Cheney omitted the word "regenerated" from the baptismal service. That could not be allowed.

The prayer book says that the Savior is "spiritually present" in the sacrament. On that point it differs radically from the creed of the Roman Catholic Church. If Father Larrabee ventures to change the communion service by expansion or contraction so as to introduce therein the doctrine of transubstantiation undoubtedly the Bishop will call his attention to the fact that he is guilty of a breach of his ordination vows. An Episcopal minister can introduce a great many novelties without becoming a heretic, but he must beware how he teaches doctrines his church has condemned or denies those it upholds.

This is a brief comment from a Chicago Catholic priest:—

The Rev. J. M. Scanlan of the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Holy Name was shown a copy of the book.

"It is decidedly Catholic," he said. "I am not astonished at the Catholicity of the book, however, for I had known that Father Larrabee had been leaning towards Catholicism for some time. I think, as does Dean Farrar, that the Episcopal ministers must either join the Catholic Church or stultify themselves. It is too bad that they go so far and yet do not go far enough, but it takes time for them to make up their minds. The three great English converts, Cardinals Manning, Newman, and Wiseman, waited for years before they were convinced. The Catholic Church is making many conversions among the Episcopalians in England, and out of fifty or so converts made during the year at the cathedral by far the greater part are from the ranks of the Episcopal Church. Of them many are from Father Larrabee's parish."

Father Scanlan said the book might be used in the Catholic Church, so similar was it to the Roman missal.

"There are some differences, however," he said, "but these are for the most part trifling."—Tribune.

The following special cable to the Chicago Tribune, of May 21, 1899, is also of importance in this connection. The last section concerning Bishop Potter was uttered before the Bishop had ordained Dr. Briggs:—

AT PARTING OF THE WAYS.

London, May 20.—Dean Farrar, of Canterbury, the most popular divine in the English Church, made an extraordinary statement yesterday on the critical position of the Church of England. He said:—

"The English Church is passing through the fire of controversy and dissension and deep division is being produced. There is no distinct mode of knowing where we are. A house divided was never truer in its application than when applied to the Church of England to-day. A church in two sections is always undesirable and productive of harm. A church with two such extreme parties as constitute the English Church at this moment is a struggle for life or death. God only knows whether the church will be permanently crippled. As far as I can see—unless the extreme party, and by that I mean those who are practicing a distinctly Romish ritual—relinquish their practices the inevitable end must be disestablishment or disruption.

FOLLOWS ROME IN WORSHIP.

"The prayer book is in all conscience liberal in its scope, but when a certain section follows Rome in worship, and in all but recognition of the infallibility of the Pope, there is surely just ground for complaint. The ritualistic party must be prepared to make concessions before the English Church can again be united.

"I am hopeful that from the Archbishops' court some good may result, and that more moderate clergymen may be influenced by the decision of the Archbishops, and may conform to it. Those who don't recognize it must be deprived of their livings. If that takes place the question will no doubt arise again in a more serious form."

"You think, then, Dean Farrar, that there is a distinct Romish tendency, and that it is not simply a divergence of views as to the scope of the prayer book?" asked the correspondent.

"Many of the extreme party," replied the Dean, "have already openly avowed for Rome in all but the Pope's infallibility, and make no secret that they are striving to see the Roman and English churches united. To bring about such unity the Church of England would have to sell itself body and soul, for it is well known that the Roman church won't swerve one millionth part of an inch."

"Within the Church of England there are agencies actively working on behalf of Rome."

"Are you cognizant of the effect the present dissensions are having on the American church?"

"I am not, but they certainly cannot have a good effect."

"Is the Roman church gaining?"

"It must be, in England, at least. The mere fact of there being such a party as the Ritualists points to an increase in the Roman Church."

"Have you followed the case of Dr. Briggs, of New York?"

"I don't know sufficient about it to express an opinion. Heresy, you know, is often simply some people's opinionated infallibility, and, at any rate, I have the greatest confidence that Bishop Potter will do right."

Such statements and from one eminent as is Dean Farrar in English Church circles, reveal the gravity of the situation in the Church of England. The movement toward Rome is not an ordinary one. It means much, very much, in the general trend and for the future of the Protestant and Catholic world. It invites and suggests sober thought concerning the future, the influence of such a movement upon the English-speaking people and the world in general. The student of history and of the present and the future of the race will discern in this movement one that tends to narrow the issues in the conflict—the conflict between truth restored and waning Protestantism, Catholicism, and Infidelity.

Our cover article shows a new field of agitation, in the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Elder Canright was the first in recent years to disturb that body, and now comes Professor Clark.

Who—what next?

"BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL KNOW THEM."

The following from the Omaha Sunday World-Herald for May 7, 1899, is significant. It is well to make a note of events as they transpire while we await developments:—

MRS. MATTIE HUGHES CANNON'S BABY.

ONE OF THE WIVES OF A POLYGAMOUS MORMON IS A MOTHER AND ALSO A STATE SENATOR.

Utah has been set aflame by the fact that Dr. Mattie Hughes Cannon, State Senator, has given birth to a child, a girl. She is the fourth wife of President Angus M. Cannon, the great Mormon ecclesiastic, who had six wives, but of whom two are dead.

This event in the life of the Cannons has proved to anti-polygamists that Mormons can practice polygamy in Utah and still enjoy the rights of citizenship.

Great indignation is breaking out all over the State as one prominent Mormon after another sends in his congratulations to President Cannon, thus serving notice on the public that he intends to live his religion, polygamy, and all.

Dr. Mattie Hughes, as her professional sign reads, is the most prominent woman, politically, in Utah. She has served the State twice as senator, and during the session which adjourned recently occupied her seat every day and voted for A. M. McCune, the millionaire candidate for United States Senator.

Toward the close of the term she talked of taking a trip to Honolulu for her health, and three weeks later notified her friends that she was about to leave for San Francisco. Her plans fell through, and she found it impossible to go into hiding. Her baby was born in Salt Lake City, and thus the story became public.

LEARNING that missionaries of the Utah Church were to hold services in the public park at Mount Ayr, Iowa, adjoining county seat, of Ringgold County, west of Lamoni, Bro. F. E. Cochran was requested to look after the interests of the work there during Saturday and Sunday, the 24th and 25th. The result of the whole affair is fairly well stated in the following from the Mount Ayr News, of June 27, for which our thanks are due the publishers:—

L. D. S. Missionaries.—Elders Nelsen and Hawkeswood, representing the Salt Lake Mormons, were not able to get a crowd to hear their doctrine expounded in the park Saturday afternoon. They advertise that they will hold meetings to-morrow and Saturday afternoons. Mr. Cochran, of Lamoni, representing the "Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints," came to Mount Ayr Saturday evening and remained over Sunday. His mission was to see that the public did not get the impression that the Lamoni and Salt Lake churches are of the same kind. As the people here pretty well appreciate the difference, it was unnecessary for Mr. Cochran to hold any public meetings.

APOLOGETICAL.

On the return of the editor to his usual haunts, ye proof readers confronted him with his "own handwriting," from which the associate editor had translated the word cavern instead of cañon (canyon), and the editor at home was fain to acknowledge that the necessity was not that the proof readers needed drilling on editorial handwriting, but that the editor needed to write better, which he promises to do.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND, of America, and Pope Leo, are said to be objects of ecclesiastical hatred at Rome and elsewhere in Catholic circles because of their liberal or American ideas. A London cablegram of June 24 represents the Archbishop as stating, in his defense of Americanism, as follows:—

If, finally, by Americanism, we mean activity of religious work, personal initiative, which leaves no stone unturned, seeking success, while always governed in what we do by superior direction of Pope and Bishops, then there is among us Americanism.

While Archbishop Ireland is a liberal Catholic, it is evident that he is conservative enough to be subject to the decrees of the church announced from Rome.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. I. Young, Weir City, Kan.,
June 27:—

I am striving to build up the work here. We have to labor under many difficulties. We are hopeful of the work in this place. This is one of Satan's strongholds—many saloons and other things to draw the minds of the careless away from the truth.

Bro. W. H. Kelley wrote, June 26, from Scranton, Pennsylvania:—

Preached twice here yesterday; meetings announced for this week. Go to East Pharsalia, New York, next Saturday. Has been very dry here but a fine rain came with my arrival. Ought to be no objection to this visit.

Bro. I. C. Bishop, Coragon, Polk County, Texas, June 26:—

As several families of saints have located here, we would like if some elder would give us a call and preach for us. We have the privilege of preaching in the church. Elder Wedlock preached for us last Sabbath. The people listened with great interest, some saying it was what they had been waiting to hear. We organized a Sunday school yesterday, with about forty-six pupils and some visitors, and collected money enough to send for Quarterlies and song books. I think from the prospect there is a wide field to be opened up here.

Bro. R. B. Howlett, Hamilton, Ontario, June 25:—

Just a few lines to say that the work of the Lord is onward. Some seventeen have been baptized by your humble brother, R. B. Howlett, and I am still trying to do the best to bring the work before the people in Hamilton, Ontario, after leaving Toronto. I have found that tracts have been a very great help to me, as I believe in going from house to house.

Bro. J. W. Whiteley of Soqua P. O., Douglas County, Washington, writes May 27:—

I have been looking long for an elder to come and start the work here. I am poor in this world's goods, but am determined to do all I can for the true gospel. I certainly love to hear of souls being converted.

He will give an elder a warm welcome to his home.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Bro. W. H. Braden, Coldwater Post Office, Ontario, asks the HERALD editors to send a missionary to that point, where, he states, there is a good interest, a desire to hear the word. Bro. and Sr. Braden are the only saints there, and have not heard the word for over two years. We refer them to Bro. R. C. Evans, in charge of the work in Canada.

Bro. Henry Kemp requests saints to state that the camp meeting of the Fremont, Iowa, district will convene August 19, not on the 17th. Remember the date, Saturday, August 19.

Mrs. James Pottorff, Eldon, Iowa, desires some of the ministry to labor there. She has heard the word through Bro. John Pottorff, who writes to this effect from Cairo, Nebraska. Eldon is about fifteen miles from Ottumwa, Iowa.

Bro. J. W. Waldsmith wrote from Lincoln, Nebraska, the 23d inst. He was in the field of labor in his district, then enroute to Wilber. We are indebted to him for the article concerning the Seventh-day Adventists which appears on the HERALD cover.

Bro. Criley informs us that some of the traveling missionaries do much for the HERALD and other church publications by selling many Herald Office books and publications, while others are not so active along those lines of effort. We trust all the ministry, general and local, also the saints, will remember the interests of the HERALD and our general supplies of publications.

Bro. J. W. Wight, returned from Chicago where he had been in the interests of special church work, left for the Rocky Mountain mission during the past week.

Bro. and Sr. Henry C. Smith, of the missionary force, returned to Lamoni of late from Seattle, Washington. Their return was necessary because of the poor health of Bro. Smith.

We go to press one day earlier this week (Saturday, the 1st) to insure due observance of the fourth. The Herald Office force worked on New Year's Day and on Decoration Day, but mean to enjoy Independence Day if possible.

The faithful disciple, like the Master whom he serves, realizes that he has meat to eat that the worldly minded know not of. Developed and developing in the higher life of the spiritual, he cannot be satisfied with the poverty of spirit and gaudiness and vanity that pertains to the world and those who love its shams and vanities. Having tasted of the good things of the world to come, he cannot, without perverting his better nature, feed upon the passing things that please the fancy but which can never nourish the inner spiritual nature.

Faithfulness in duty to attend and to aid in the social services of the church, is in evidence of devotion to the work. Any argument of lack in the character of the services furnishes added reason why all should help to improve them. Earnest activity in social meetings is essential to their success.

CHURCH IN THE WILDERNESS; OR, "MYSTERY OF INIQUITY."—NO 2.

BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

But since Jesus Christ organized the church, how could the church bring him forth! For, of "the man child" it is said he "was to rule all nations with a rod of iron." The things represented to John were shown in imagery; the mode of revelation was the ideographic. It was a mode of revealing at once elaborate, grand, graphic, and awful. The dragon-monster was, at the time of John, seven hundred years old. It was an agency through which Satan worked, hence, spiritually called Devil and Satan; all because of its intolerant, warlike, and wicked opposition to the truth, and many idolatrous systems of false religions.

The woman was not a literal woman, but because of the relation of the church to God and his Son, subject to and dependent on him, is represented as a woman, a bride. When, because of a sad apostasy from God she is morally forced to yield back her endowments,—jewels,—spiritual gifts, the power of the Holy Ghost, and her rights of betrothal, and he ceases to extend to her authority to act longer in his name, and all because of an unfaithful forfeiture of all the divine power and prerogative, she is in spirit to John represented as yielding up, in great travail and pain, the representative Lord. The ideography and imagery represent facts! The fact is what we want. What is the chaff to the wheat? The "rod of iron," with which he is to rule the nations, is his word.

To John, in vision, was given "a reed like unto a rod," to measure not only "the temple of God," but also "the altar," but more than these, by this rodlike reed the worshippers at the altar were to be measured likewise. Is not God's word that by which saints are measured in worship?

For twelve hundred and sixty years, or "forty and two months," was the outer court of the temple of God to be under the power of the Gentiles and not measured by the word of God. The outer court,—"the court which is without the temple,"—is the church visible—in the world; the inner court representing, typically, the holy of holies where Jesus now appears for us. (Rev. 11: 1, 2.)

God's word directs, controls, defines, points out, and assures, severs, and penetrates and reveals, and hence is represented as a measuring line, rule, or rod. It is irrevocable, immutable, unyielding, irresistible, and sure; abides forever; by it an eternal decision in the cases of all men and nations is to be made; by it men are to be saved or damned, and therefore is represented as "a rod of iron." Christ and his faithful ministry are to rule the nations with "a rod of iron."

But with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked.—Isa. 11: 4.

Of Christ's future and personal reign over the nations of the earth, King David declares:—

Yet have I set my King upon my holy hill of Zion. I will declare the decree: the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel. Be wise now therefore, O ye kings: be instructed, ye judges of the earth.—Psalm 2: 6-10.

The Lord's voice crieth unto the city, and the man of wisdom shall see thy name: hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it.—Micah 6: 9.

And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers: even as I received of my Father. And I will give him the morning star.—Rev. 2: 26-28.

And it came to pass that I beheld that the rod of iron, which my father had seen, was the word of God, which led to the fountain of living waters, or to the tree of life; which waters are a representation of the love of God; and I also beheld that the tree of life was a representation of the love of God.—1 Nephi 3: 49, large type edition.

So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.—Isa. 55: 11.

God's word is almighty in its accomplishments, and cannot fail. The authority, or "ministry of reconciliation," and "the word of reconciliation," operating conjointly with the official presence and operation of the Holy Ghost, constitute the church, or kingdom of God. Let God withdraw this trinity of powers or principles from the organization on earth, and what is there of divinity left? Simply nothing!

BEAUTIFUL, BUT SAD.

Beautiful was the virgin church as seen by the apostle in vision while yet true to her covenant with Christ; resplendent in the light of the Son of righteousness; of inspirational gifts of heaven; a crown of apostolic stars bedecked her brow; a robe of righteousness enfolded her personage; her feet protected with sandals of sound doctrine and the prophetic word, (Eph. 6: 15; Heb. 6: 1, 2,) while through the medium of the Holy Ghost she held sweet communion with her exalted and glorified head, Jesus. She looked with pity and love on poor, fallen humanity, and was reaching forth her hand to raise them up, offer hope to them; soothe their sorrows; enrobe them in linen white and clean; carry to them assurances of heaven's smiles and approval; give them the royal invitations to "an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled," and that abides forever, an inheritance of bliss, glory eternal, peace never ending, and where angels might be their blissful companions, where life continues for aye!

What a holy and stupendous, sacred mission was this! What a heavenly trust! What an exalted charge committed to her! Saints, can we realize the greatness, the sacredness, the holiness, and the divine weight of the mission of the Church of God on the earth? The eternal destiny of souls hangs on the deportment of the membership of the Church of God. The church was once drawn away from this mission. She failed to keep her agreement with Christ and God. She broke her "everlasting covenant," (Isa. 24:5, 6; Heb. 13:20,) and was allured by visions of worldly power, praise, glory, and flattery, from the strait way, and turned aside to fondle with the gaudy baubles of the world, and lost her standing with God. So God forsook her, and she was left to such aid as the world could give her. God took all her power and light from her. He would trust her no more. This must have been sad, both for heaven and the church.

But the church accomplished a great work in the world, and achieved a great victory before she fell. All heaven greatly rejoiced over it. She conquered and put to flight the gross idolatry of the pagan Roman government. It was so effectually destroyed that Satan could no longer resist the grand march of the truth through it. He had to abandon this mode of opposition. He was powerless, and fell. The systems of Roman paganism went down before the light of the gospel in its march as the forest trees fall before the whirling tornado. But this was done before the church had entirely forsaken the way of truth. Her great campaign, prosecuted in heavenly places, against principalities, and powers, and the rulers of the darkness of this world, and "against spiritual wickedness in high places," was directed by Jesus Christ. And the contest as viewed by John in panorama—ideography—is by him thus described:—

And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels, and prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven. And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him. And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night. —Rev. 12: 7-10.

And then John describes the armor with which Michael and his angels fought and gained so signal a victory thus:—

And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death. —Ibid., verse 11.

What a mighty conflict between truth and error! A conflict of five hundred years duration! An incessant struggle, "day and night." Satan did not sleep nights. But the victory of the Martyrs was complete! Satan was routed. Idolatry was brought down. It never arose again as before on the ground consecrated by the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. It had been imperial, crowned, gorgeous, and great, but now its strongholds were taken, its hosts brought to confusion, and its battlements to desolation. It was dethroned, overcome, put to flight, and gone down!

The victory of the church was so great that from the exalted spires of the church went up a great shout:—

Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ!

But this victory only prepared the church more fully for its fall. Pagan Rome went down. Pagan idolatry was overthrown. But Satan was not dead. He went to the earth, so did the church. She sought the aid of the earth, "and the earth," not heaven, "helped" the church (v. 16). Satan, ever artful and full of device, sought a new livery with which to disguise himself, also new allies preparatory to a renewal of the conflict. He remembered the tragedy of Eden. The church sought new fields of conquest. Satan became charming. He had been unequal in open battle, he therefore feigned great friendship, proposed joint honors in the conquest. The church gave way to his flatteries. The glory of earthly power is mine, said he. Accept of my honor. I will so unite your priests and bishops with the earthly powers, that the fortunes of the church and state will be similar; indeed, one.

The church having lost the spirit of discernment, saw only the exterior of things. She saw only earthly greatness. Satan now transferred "his power, and his seat, and great authority," to a now divided Roman government, many of whose greatest citizens had joined the new-modeled church, and had greatly enriched her and her clergy. Satan, hiding behind his new-found livery, seeks the hand of the church, and she yields to his caress. She partakes of his spirit and power, and consummates an alliance with the earthly rulers.

Constantine the Great heaped riches on the clergy. He found idolatry dying and uninfluential; courted the favor of the church; extended favors to the church. He had granted free toleration to all religions previously, but now, A. D. 319, he by a royal decree stigmatized all idolaters as slaves to superstition, and at the same time "acknowledged that all his victories had proceeded only from the 'supreme and holy God, Lord of the universe.'" He also caused a group of waxen figures to be publicly exhibited before the windows of the imperial palace in his new city of Constantinople, representing himself beneath the protection of the cross, trampling under foot the dragon of idolatrous superstition." He had awarded the Christians justice, he next extended to them partiality. Invited the bishops to reside in the imperial palace; gave them large sums of money with which to build churches, and to support the poor. He preferred Christians to offices of state, appointing them governors over provinces. He next overturned the yet remaining idols by violence and despoiled the temples of the idols of their treasures. He next proceeded to interfere with the internal affairs of the church. Assumed to arrange a gradation of officers corresponding to those of the state. He assumed, therefore, to arrange for patriarchs, exarchs, metropolitans, and archbishops. He then nominated the bishops of his four greatest cities, Rome, Antioch, Alexandria, and Constantinople, the patriarchs of the empire, taking care also that their revenues should be adequate to support with dignity and splendor the rank by himself conferred.

This new arrangement by Constantine, the Roman Emperor, was sanctioned by the council of Nice, A. D. 325. He made the spiritual authority of the bishop of Rome, Sylvester, equally as great in extent as the civil authority of the vicar of Rome. One of the bishops attending the thirtieth anniversary of his reign, congratulating the emperor, exclaimed that he was "appointed by God the ruler over all in this world, and destined to reign with the Son of God in the world to come!" How rapidly were the wings of the divided Roman Empire being now attached to the church. From the reign of this emperor the union between church and state was rapid.

And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent.—Rev. 12: 14.

In prophecy, "eagles' wings" represent earthly power to move with great rapidity. In Daniel's visions in which he saw the rise of ancient Babylon, its rapid development and power were represented by "eagle's wings." (Dan. 7: 4.) And in the same vision the kingdom of Greece is represented as having "four wings of a fowl," significant also of its division into four divisions. Rome was divided into the Eastern and Western divisions, at the time of which we write, Constantine being emperor of the eastern, and Licinius of the western division.

As an illustration of the rapidly growing power of the bishop of the Roman see, in the year 347 A. D. a council of Asiatic bishops assembled, and among other things resolved,

That whenever a bishop who is deposed asserts that injustice has been done him, the synod which condemned him shall write to the Roman bishop, who shall nominate judges to renew the investigation; and no other person shall be appointed to fill the place of the deposed bishop without the concurrence of the Roman bishop.

This synod of Sardica, therefore, expressly admitted the supreme authority of the Roman bishop at that early date.

But the assumptions of the bishops greatly increased as time passed, and with these went pride, arrogance, and intolerance. At first the followers and ministers of the lowly Master, who done good only, and who resisted not the hand of the opposer, gradually assumed to require obedience to their dictates, and not later than 450 A. D. Leo the Great, the Bishop at Rome, assumed to direct the affairs of the church in this world, and suggested to some extent in the state, but went farther and assumed to pronounce the penalty of hell against any bishop or others who might question his authority over any and all other church authority. Said he,

He who dares to dispute the primacy of Peter will find himself wholly unable to lessen that dignity; but puffed up by the spirit of his own pride, he will plunge himself deep into hell.—Lives of the Popes, p. 61.

"Presumptuous are they," said Peter, of false teachers. Doctrinal contentions rent the church at this date, and jealousies of official power and greatness caused the leading ministers to engage in envious works against each other similar to those that moved deadly enemies who contend for political spoils. No service of God in it. It was all for greed, power, and ambitious pride. To rule and domineer was the evil desire of the professed leading representatives of Jesus! Riches had been heaped on the church and its clergy by the state. Earthly potentates had fixed and graded the rank and officers of the church. And now another advance step was to be taken by the dark powers of earth to help the church. It was that the state enforce the decrees of the mandatory priesthood, or rather priestcraft, and this was not very long afterward realized. Rome was tottering and weakening to her final fall to rise no more, at this age (A. D. 450-540), and under the pressure of division, and the ravages of war, and the desolations of invading foes. Under the burden of adversity the emperors sought the favors of the church and the prayers of the patriarchs and other dignitaries. Here these ecclesiastics saw their opportunity. "Let the state now see that the decrees of the church are executed." Did the state respond? Let the history answer. Satan's time to show his hand in true color soon arrived. False doctrines had changed the form, policy, and aim and spirit of the church to that extent that God no longer owned her, but to the contrary now disowned her and she took a position, Satanlike, in "the place" (rather condition) He had prophetically "prepared for her." (Matt. 25:41; Rev. 12:6.) The church, once the pure messenger of God and of peace, now Luciferlike, (see Ezek. 28:14, 15,) "abode not in the truth," but committed to the world a heritage of "lies," false doctrines, — "damnable heresies," (Jer. 16:19; 1 Tim. 4:1-3; Jude 11, 12,)—and in harmony with Jeremiah's prophecy Gentile Protestants—Pro-test-ants—now confess this, and bear incontestible evidence to the truth of our statement and position.

See here: Is it true that God told the church to canonize and declare to the world as sacred truth that God had ceased to reveal himself to his people at the end of the Apostolic Age? That the college of Twelve Apostles in the church should end in the church with the original Twelve? That no prophets of God should ever arise after John the Revelator? That the celibacy of the clergy was a divine doctrine? That baptism was instituted "in order to wash away original sin?" Or, that the sprinkling of a few drops of water on the forehead of a little sinless child, as a baptismal rite, in order to save it from hell, was to be substituted for the command of God to penitent believers, to be baptized—immersed—in water for the remission of their personal sins, through the merits of Christ's atonement? Who authorized the church in those days of darkness and apostasy to teach as a doctrine of God, that "the body" and "the blood," "together with the divinity" of "our Lord Jesus Christ," is "truly, really, and substantially" transferred into the bread and wine used for the sacrament of the Lord's supper? That souls of the dead detained in purgatory are helped by the prayers of the saints yet on earth? Or, that images of Christ and the virgin Mary, falsely called "the Mother of God," and of the saints, are to be worshipped? Where in God's law, the gospel, did she find it revealed that "the sacrament of penance," confession to a priest or bishop in private, "is the sole means through which sins committed after baptism are forgiven"? Where did she find it recorded that the Apostle Peter alone, of all the apostles, was to have a successor? Or, that the successors of the Apostle Peter were to assume official infallibility in their ministrations, or official acts? That his successors were to become political diplomatists, and assume authority to dictate to earthly potentates, appoint them to rule, or depose them at pleasure? Who gave him alone to be the supreme head of the church on earth, and to be the "Vicar of Christ," "The Lion of the Tribe of Judah," "his Holiness," "Our Lord God the Pope," "King of kings and Lord of lords"? Said Pope Nicholas to the Emperor Michael, "The Pope, who is called God by Constantine, can never be bound or released by man; for God cannot be judged by man." What assumption and arrogant blasphemy!

But, did the state become the servant of the church as early as 532 A. D.? We quote:—

In the year A. D. 451, those pious emperors, (Leo and Marcien,) enforced with arms and edicts, the symbols of their faith; and it was declared by the conscience or honor of five hundred bishops that the decrees of the council of Chalcedon might be lawfully supported even with blood.—Gibbon, vol. 4, p. 520.

Here it is seen that this church that once, yea, two times, had suffered the loss of untold numbers of martyrs, and waded through streams of blood and bitter persecutions at the hands of those bearing the sword of opposition to the faith and the gospel of Christ, of peace, in vengeful spirit now took the dagger of death in her own hand, and turned to persecute the offspring of her glorious trial and agony, executing vengeance against them as against her pagan opposers. Of the days of Justinian's reign, Bower writes:—

The Christian religion or worship was now become no less idolatrous than that of the Gentiles, who therefore chose to retain their own, there being no material difference between one and the other—between worshiping the ancient heroes or the modern saints.—History of the Popes, vol. 1, p. 231.

The once humble, persecuted, and sorrowful church, the object of satanic hate and opposition, now became "the abomination of desolation." Once the kingdom of him who said, "My kingdom is not of this world, . . . [else] would my servants fight," now she stands guard of the state, while the state at her bidding enforces with fire and sword her command to all men to bow at her shrine, render her homage, and acknowledge her might and honor and faith.

Impatient to abolish the temporal and spiritual tyranny of the Vandals, he proceeded without delay to the full establishment of the Catholic Church.—Gibbon, vol. 4, p. 134.

Again:—

But in the creed of Justinian the guilt of murder could not be applied to the slaughter of unbelievers; and he piously labored to establish with fire and sword the unity of the Christian faith.—Ibid., vol. 3, p. 264.

Once more at this point of time:—

By an edict which Justinian issued to unite all men in one faith, whether Jews, Gentiles, or Christians, such as did not, in the term of three months, embrace and profess the Catholic faith, were declared to be infamous, and as such, excluded from all employments, both civil and military, and rendered incapable of leaving anything by will, and their personal estates confiscated whether real or personal. These were convincing arguments of the truth of the Catholic faith! But many, however, withstood them, and against such as did, the imperial edict was executed with the utmost rigor.

Here is the testimony that shows to a certainty that the assumptions and decrees of the ecclesiastical authority were legalized by the Roman state and by the state enforced.

THE CELEBRATION.

The Savior of man had died. He had been dead a great many years. So they said, "We will celebrate the birthday of the Savior of man." Why should they celebrate his birthday? Because he was more great and good than any or all men; and he taught men to be great and good. One asked, "How shall we properly celebrate his birthday?" They said, "As other people celebrate the day; and we will appoint committees to have charge of the matter."

So they appointed committees, and the committees worked hard. They found it no easy matter to commit; for many to whom they would commit would not be commissioned. But they labored on patiently day and night; for, said they, "Surely it is a worthy cause, to celebrate the birthday of the Savior of man." They gathered children to the house of the Lord, and drilled them skillfully. Sometimes they got angry at the children, and the children at them; and again there was great and boisterous laughter, and much jesting. What if they did forget that the Savior of man had said: "My house is a house of prayer;" "Much laughter is sin;" and "For every idle word, men shall give an account?" Surely he would not mind, so long as they celebrated his birthday.

They also set up a tree, and made beautiful designs with boughs of evergreen, as did their heathen forefathers in their worship, before they were converted by the Savior of man. They did not know when he was born, but that did not matter. An apostate had ordained a certain date to be celebrated, and they said: "If it will do for the apostate and her children, it will do for us; we will not take another time, lest they think us queer."

The date arrived. The house of the Lord was full of people. Everybody was there; also his father, mother, wife, and all their children. Only a few of them ever came to learn how the Savior of man taught men to be great and good. But what of that, if they are faithful in keeping his birthday? Order is secured, and Brother Elder offers prayer. He thanks the Father for the gift of his Son to be the Savior of man. He prays that this observance of his birthday may impress the young with the beauty, truth, and greatness of him and his word. Then the program really begins. There are many songs, some of them running about thus:—

Jack frost makes our fingers tingle,
While we're waiting for Kriss Kringle,
We will sing our Jesus jingle,
Hurrah for Christmastide!

Brother Elder does not like these songs as well as "Hail the blest morn," or "While humble shepherds watched;" but then it pleases the children—and whatever pleases them is right, on the birthday of the Savior of man—was he not a child himself?

There are speeches by the children—all of them who can speak, and some who cannot. They must all be on the program; their parents would be offended if they were deprived of the privilege of helping celebrate the birthday of the Savior of man. These speeches are about many things, the funny ones being most appreciated, probably because they must help people to be great and good. Incidentally many things are said about "Jesus, the babe in the manger," for they are celebrating his birthday, and must not forget it; but a certain Dutch clown, whose name I think is Sam T. Claus, seems to be uppermost in the minds of the children. Children love clowns, and if the Savior of man is popular with them, he must appear to them as this Sam T. Claus who presides over his birthday.

Then there are the plays. They show us angels in one scene, and bad boys and fussy old women in the next. They make lots of fun—not the angels—the bad boys and fussy old women. We hardly know what the angels are doing; but we know the bad boys are celebrating the birthday of the Savior of man, who taught men how to be great and good. Finally, Sam T. Claus, the Dutch clown, himself appears, and the children have great joy.

Then the presents are handed round. They were hanging on a tree, like our heathen ancestors used, before they were converted by the Savior of man. When he was born, the wise men brought him gold, frankincense, and myrrh. We have no gold, and don't know what frankincense and myrrh are; so we give the children tin whistles, drums, and popcorn, for we are celebrating the birthday of the Savior of man, and want our children to be great and good, like him.

prayer was not answered—but he is a queer fellow anyway.

Next day is the Sabbath. The Savior of man has said, "On this my holy day, thou shalt go to the house of prayer," so Brother Elder goes there to meet and speak to and with the people who were there last night, and tell them what the Savior said about being great and good. A very few are there. Where are the rest? Too tired to come. Most of them will come no more for a year, then they will come again to "show off" their children and see them have great fun with Sam T. Claus the Dutch clown, and celebrate the birthday of the Savior of man, who came to tell us how to be great and good.

CHURCH IN THE WILDERNESS.

In a letter written by one of the brethren, he wanted some light turned on the "church in the wilderness," so I thought I would take my pen in hand and turn some on. It may appear darkness unto him and others, but we will turn it on anyhow.

And it came to pass that I beheld that the wrath of God was poured out upon the great and abominable church, inasmuch that there were wars and rumors of wars among all the nations and kindreds of the earth, and as there began to be wars and rumors of wars among all the nations which belonged to the mother of abominations, the angel spake unto me, saying, Behold the wrath of God is upon the mother of harlots; and behold, thou seest all these things; and when the day cometh that the wrath of God is poured out upon the mother of harlots, which is the great and abominable church of all the earth, whose foundation is the devil, then at that day, the work of the Father shall commence, in preparing the way for the fulfilling of his covenants, which he hath made to his people, who are of the house of Israel.—1 Nephi 3: 51.

In the next verse Nephi speaks of John, who is also the writer of the book called Revelation, which is in the Bible, and says that John should write the rest of the vision, although the Lord showed it to Nephi, but forbade him to write. So now we will quote John:—

And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent.—Rev. 12: 14.

Verse sixteen says the earth helped the woman. Might we suggest that procreation might have helped her. Now the Lord calls some, my people who are of the house of Israel. Did he ever call his saints in the church more than his people? Is there any difference between the church in the wilderness and my people who are of the house of Israel? If anybody can show any difference, will they kindly show how large those two wings of the eagle were, and what eagle was so unfortunate as to lose its wings? I read in the eighteenth of Revelation of a voice calling from heaven, saying, Come out of her my people. And I for one think it is time that they were getting out of Babylon. I also read of God swearing to Abraham concerning Isaac's seed, or Abraham's seed; and if God separated his posterity, what did he do but there make a church an absolute necessity? Would not the church exist in his posterity instead of his posterity existing in the church? Is not church where people congregate to worship? And is it not right that people must exist before a church can? The priesthood also was given to Abraham's seed, and when God spoke from heaven and told Joseph Smith who he was, and gave him knowledge, does not the light he gave him teach lineal priesthood, or that the priesthood had lawful heirs on earth now who inherit the priesthood or the lawful heir? I know some extol priesthood. I am willing to honor it, but would like to see it kept in its right place. It seems to me if my glasses are not bad that there is but one conclusion to arrive at, and that is this that the church was ordained to come through Abraham's seed.

Yours for the truth,

GEO. DALEY.

A FEW QUESTIONS.

Editors Herald:—I inclose this article for you, thinking it might spur up some of our elders who delight in solving the prophetic problems of the Bible, and give them possibly a new line of thought, whether correct or otherwise. The old gentleman who writes this article is the same who sent the jubilee speech from here, and is the son of the first missionary here, and has acted in the role of a prophet in America, having sent to the President a warning, as from the Lord, etc. You of course will freely use your judgment about using the enclosed.

We are well and moving on slowly against a strong tide of opposition from French people, who wish to drive out all foreigners—and Catholic and Protestant, and the traders who dislike our influence with the natives—and our church is so scattered over so many islands it is impossible for me to get into personal contact with them all; but we work on and hope and trust.

Beyond all doubt we ought to have a good man to help us, from America. Peace be with you.

In bonds, yours fraternally, and in Christ,

J. F. BURTON.

A FEW QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED, OR STATEMENTS TO BE EXPLAINED.

1. Who is the man of sin, or son of perdition, of 2 Thessalonians 2: 3, 4?

As some say it is the papacy, how can that be, for the papacy is a system and not a man? Besides which, the papacy is believed to be the woman whom the beast carries—Revelation 17—a woman being the symbol of a church power.

2. It is objected that the seventieth week of Daniel 9 cannot be yet in the future, as this would separate it from the sixty-ninth!!

I answer that the circumstance of the case render it necessary that it should be so, as the Prince who is to confirm the covenant is yet in the future, and until he comes it cannot be confirmed. Besides which, the object for which the seventy weeks were designed has never yet been attained by the Jews, namely to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy. These things must yet be accomplished, or the prophecy will prove to be a failure and falsify the words of our Lord.

I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not; if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive.—John 5: 43.

The Messiah was cut off after the sixty-ninth week by the Romans; it must therefore be a Roman prince who is yet to confirm a covenant with the Jews for the remaining week of the seventy. Isaiah speaks of this as their covenant with death. (See Isaiah 28: 14-20.) And in Daniel 8: 23, 24, it is said:—

When the transgressors are come to the full, a king of fierce countenance, and understanding dark sentences, shall stand up. And his power shall be mighty, but not by his own power: and he shall destroy wonderfully, and shall prosper, and practise, and shall destroy the mighty and the holy people.

And in verse 25 it is said:—

He shall also stand up against the Prince of princes; but he shall be broken without hand.

And St. John, in Revelation 17: 11, in speaking of the Roman power, says that the beast who carries the woman, "was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the seven, and goeth into perdition." Louis Napoleon supported the papacy for twenty-one years, until the Pope called the ecumenical council and declared himself infallible, which was virtually saying in his heart, "I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow." According to this prophecy, Louis Napoleon may be expected to appear again on the stage of human action, and at the head of ten kings make war with the Lamb, and is to be overcome by him. (See verses 12 to 14.) For my part I can see no more difficulty in the seventieth week being yet future, and thus separated from the sixty-ninth, than for a man who may have been called off from a certain service returning to complete the term agreed upon with his employer.

It is said that not one person can point to an intimation in the prophecy that the seventieth week should not immediately follow the sixty-ninth. The people of the Prince that shall come, are distinctly shown to destroy the city and the sanctuary during the absence of the prince; there must therefore be an interval between the destruction of the city and the coming of the Prince, for it is very clearly shown that the city is destroyed during his absence; he cannot therefore confirm the covenant until he comes and understands the nature of the covenant he is to confirm. In order to get over this difficulty, some assert that it is the Messiah who is and has already confirmed the covenant; how can this be, for he was a Jew and is already cut off? Another prince is here introduced, whose people the Romans are to destroy the city and the sanctuary, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. The place has accordingly been left desolate ever since, near nineteen hundred years, until just now when a considerable number of Jews are returning to Palestine, and I understand there are already seventy synagogues in Jerusalem, which is an indication that the person who confirms the covenant cannot be very far distant, and that person must be a Roman prince, as it was the Romans who destroyed the city and the sanctuary; and it cannot be Christ who confirms the covenant, for Isaiah 28: 14-18 says:—

Wherefore hear the word of the Lord, ye scornful men, that rule this people which is in Jerusalem. Because ye have said, We have made a covenant with death, and with hell are we at agreement; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come unto us: for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves. Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone [Christ], a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste. Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet; and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place. And your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with hell shall not stand; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it.

Instead of the Jews being cut off as some say, everlasting righteousness has yet to be brought in; blindness in part has happened to them, but their fulness has yet to come. The anti-christ is to put down their renewed sacrifices and set up the abomination that maketh desolate his own image as an object of worship; this will bring about the fiercest persecution that ever was, for all who will not worship his image shall be killed. (Revelation 13: 15.) It therefore becomes very necessary that we should have some idea as to whom this individual may be; it is distinctly shown in Revelation seventeen to be the beast who carried the woman, the mother of harlots, to judgment; and if we mistake not, this was done when Louis Napoleon supported the Pope at Rome for twenty-one years, when the papacy is represented as saying in her heart, "I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow;" which was virtually done when the Pope called the ecumenical council and declared himself infallible.

But it may be objected that Napoleon is dead, and therefore cannot be the man of prophecy; but I would ask, What saith the revelator? Does he not say that he "was, and is not; and shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and go into perdition: and they that dwell on the earth shall wonder, whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is?" (Rev. 17:8.)

According to this prophecy I look for Louis Napoleon to appear again on the stage of human action, to the astonishment of those "that dwell on the earth, . . . whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is." And thus be received by the Jews as their promised Messiah, fulfilling our Lord's words, "If another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive;" and thus they will not only receive an impostor, but a man of another nation. It therefore becomes essentially necessary that all Bible readers, and in fact all who are desirous to obtain eternal life should study this subject, that they may not be taken unawares when the son of perdition is revealed. The latter half of the eleventh chapter of Daniel is very explicit in regard to the doings of this man of sin, the holy covenant is there made mention of several times.

It is urged by some that the thousand years' reign of Christ will be in the heavens, and not upon this earth!! To meet this theory, I would ask those who advocate the same, Is the reign of Christ in the heavens to be limited to but a thousand years? No; but by studying the fourteenth chapter of Zechariah and the twentieth of Revelation, it will be seen that the scenes therein described take place upon this earth, for the Mount of Olives is to be rent asunder and become a great and mighty valley; and it would appear from the description given that the land of Israel would escape the action of fire, and be renovated at the coming of Christ instead, for it is distinctly stated that "there shall be no more utter destruction; but Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited" (Zech. 14:11); and thus a seed would be preserved for the propagation of mankind throughout the endless ages.

These are some of the conclusions arrived at by me from a prayerful study of the prophecies for nearly half a century past.

Editors Herald:—I desire to say in reference to my article on "Roman Catholic Denunciations," now being published in the Herald, and which will probably be completed in two or three installments, that the extracts contained were not all copied from the works in which they were originally written. However, part of them were copied directly from the works referred to at the beginning or ending of each extract; the others were taken from works which had reproduced them from the ones wherein they were first published. In all cases I only gave the references to the books or papers in which the extracts first appeared, deeming it all that was necessary.

I have full confidence in their reliability, and do not believe that the slightest injustice has been done to any of the many Catholic authors quoted from, either by myself or by those whom I copied them from second-hand. I publish them for what they are worth to the saints, chiefly the ministry, and I think if there is any commendable feature about the article as a whole it is the fact that instead of the enemies of the Catholic Church being allowed to tell what Catholics believe, they are allowed to tell it themselves.

Respectfully submitted,

ALVIN KNISLEY.

DETROIT, MINNESOTA, REUNION.

Editors Herald:—The Detroit, Minnesota, reunion and conference passed off very pleasantly, with fine weather, good attendance of saints, and fair hearing on part of friends. Altogether it may be written down as "successful."

Bro. I. N. Roberts was in charge and aided in his work by Bro. T. J. Martin and son, Pennel; Bro. Jones, secretary of district; Brn. Henry Way, William Barnhard, Florence Ammon, Bro. Erickson, and Bro. W. W. McLeod, Bishop's agent; and, after the 21st inst., by the undersigned.

Miss M. Fidella Hawley was faithful and efficient at the organ and in song; and Bro. William Nun and Sr. Miller supported the effort materially bearing the burden as Detroit saints.

It was all delightful, except the mosquitoes, and these much fewer in quantity than at Wadena, last year. The number present, however, were just as hungry as the Wadena pest.

An excellent feature of the services was in the fact that in the prayer and social service every one seemed to take part; this not once, but all the time. How much farther advanced will the church be when every member in every branch will be found doing faithfully his or her duty in all matters. This will be the step which will bring the church "up higher;" and I often think, why not offer special prayer for this object? By so doing we pray for each other, and especially the weak ones.

Hastily,

HENDERSON, Iowa, June 27.

Editors Herald:—Children's Day at the church on Farm Creek, of the Henderson branch, Sunday, June 25, was a grand success. This is the headquarters of the Sunday school workers of this the Fremont district; not, however, that the other schools are not up to date in their labors of love in this important line of work; for they are all doing well indeed. But here lives the superintendent of this district, also the Superintendent of the General Sunday School Association of the church.

They are well posted in this line of work in all its ramifications. The teachers also are well adapted to their work.

The children were well trained. Their recitations, songs, and other exercises were ably executed. In the afternoon nine of the dear ones were baptized, by Elder D. Hougas, witnessed by a large attendance of saints and friends. The confirmation meeting was excellent; the Holy Spirit was present in power, giving us the assurance of the acceptance of these dear ones, also confirming us in the faith and in the divine favor of the Master upon the Sunday school work. Quite a number of the children of this school are nonmembers of the church, but their parents are not prejudiced, and they also turn out to hear and see for themselves, and bring their baskets well laden with that which satisfies the natural man, under the shade of the trees at noon. Thus we passed one of the most pleasant and interesting days of our life.

Yours for the onward march of truth,

HENRY KEMP.

BOONESTEEL, S. D., June 24.

Editors Herald:—Since leaving Shelton, Nebraska, March 30, I have labored in unorganized territory, inland, or isolated from railroad facilities, and where the days for sod and log houses are not past; but under the roofs of such dwellings are to be found as zealous Latter Day Saints as many of those found in more commodious and modern dwellings in organized territory and amid railroad facilities. Moreover, in these primitive dwellings there are found those who have assumed the God-appointed and grave responsibility of wife and mother pretty well versed in the art of housekeeping, and the interior of one of these primitive dwellings, with a poor and limited lot of furniture, properly arranged, free of dust and finger marks of children, etc., is more pleasant to a lover of system, order, cleanliness, etc. (as every Latter Day Saint should be), than more modern buildings in organized territory with an abundance of more costly furniture disarranged and void of system, etc. Then, too, many of those dwelling in these primitive buildings, despite their limitedness, manage to find a resting spot for a traveling elder as do many inhabiting more modern and costly houses in organized territory, as the writer well knows. And he believes the inducement to partake of proffered hospitality should not be accepted because of evidence of worldly prosperity, or be refused because of a limitedness in that regard; but because of existing or visible evidence of a welcome; and then, too, when and where such hospitality is extended with evidence of inconvenience to those offering it, the recipient thereof should evince a willingness to share some inconvenience too, with a practical demonstration of appreciation, always remembering that he through and by the clemency of those having control is but a visitor, a recipient of favors, which fact necessitates the exhibition of a becoming modesty as a preventive to a presumption or undue inquisitiveness in matters that in no way concern him, unless his opinion or counsel should be solicited.

As Christ's representatives, we should know and practically keep our place, in every legitimate position occupied, thereby being exemplary. Then there may be times that we should be seen and not heard, our communications being yea, yea, and nay, nay.

What I mean by unorganized territory is where no branch or district organizations are found; and it is a matter for regret that some of our young elders find little or no inducement to go to and stick at such places. The writer remembers a circumstance developing thus in the long, long ago. To a young man it was said, on his first appointment to a mission, "Go to — and die there rather than leave, unless told to leave." Doubtless some of our stalwart advocates of liberty may denounce that as tyranny, despotism, etc. Possibly it savored of it, or it might have been an extreme, to say the least; yet it is probable that it was a wonderful stimulus to the young, unsophisticated, noncollege-bred, inexperienced, illiterate youth. But, ah me! anything savoring of such counsel to-day, or coming within a thousand feet of it, would be terrible, and be instantly denounced as despotism of the very worst type. God's word is a verity, therefore mandatory and restrictive, and if discipline, order, system do not mean restriction, what is it? or, what is its purpose?

I am in favor of the rising generation being encouraged, to bring in their natural and acquired ability for Zion's welfare; but in the event of their assuming the grave responsibility of a traveling elder, they should have some conception of the changes, vicissitudes, etc., incident to the life of a traveling elder, so as to discriminate between that and picnicing, as the latter is understood, and as the life of a traveling elder should be understood. But they need experience. Granted. But an experience obtained under that known as liberty, and experience gained under strict gospel discipline, are vastly different. The one is precipitant, and may prove revolutionary; the other leads to unity, and is perpetuated by a constant cooperation of ministerial labor, according to the gifts and calling of God unto us. For were it otherwise, law-defining duties and prerogatives of the several officials God has placed in the body, as a preventive to schism in that body were purposeless.

Time and money spent in preaching, for instance forty sermons over a territory of five hundred miles, would be less concentrated than the same number of sermons preached within a radius of fifty miles; the latter being a better utilization of time and money than the former. And if there is a people that a strict economy of both time and money is more imperative upon than another, I believe that people to be the Latter Day Saints. And I believe it is important that we should seriously think to determine whether we have been as studious and practical in this matter as we should have been. To make ourselves accusers of the brethren would be a wide divergence from gospel precepts; but a persistency in a wrong, if a wrong has been committed, would be a grave mistake.

As per previous arrangement I arrived here after my tour in Scott's Bluffs and Cheyenne Counties, Nebraska, June 1. Have held eighteen meetings, talked organization, etc. Bro. W. A. Willoughby settled here eight years ago, began to circulate the church literature, by which many were moved to inquire and investigate. Subsequently Bro. S. Swenson began preaching very successfully and baptized quite a number. Bro. W. H. Walling came later, and has been diligent. I find there are over thirty members in this county. I am expecting to meet Bro. S. Swenson and with him (or at his request) visit other points in this and North Dakota; so when I learn more of the work I will report.

In bonds,

SWEET HOME, Oregon, June 20.

Editors Herald:—It has been so long—years—since I have seen anything in the Herald from Sweet Home, that I thought I should like to express my appreciation of that paper, and also the labors of the ministry. I expect a reluctance to speak of the miserable condition our branch has been in has kept some from writing. It is not a pleasant theme, I guess I will leave that for some one else to tell, and I will take the pleasanter task of telling the Herald readers how we have enjoyed the meetings Bro. Holt has been holding here.

He was here about three weeks and he held about twenty-five meetings, including a testimony and sacrament meeting, held at Bro. Z. Thompson's, which was perhaps the one most enjoyed by the writer. There were only a few present, all saints, but God poured out his Spirit upon us in a marked degree, making this miserable earth heavenly for the time being. It is a pleasant thought that the time is coming, and not far distant, when these glimpses of heaven will not be so far between.

What a privilege it is to live where you can attend church regularly, what a help to keep you in the narrow way! You who enjoy this blessing do not fully realize it. But there is another thought right here: If we do override the temptations that beset us on every hand, our reward will be great too.

The meetings were well attended for Sweet Home. On Sundays there were two other meetings in the town, and I guess we had our share of a crowd. A few outsiders were interested, but not enough to enter the fold; but friends were made to the cause and the saints helped and strengthened immeasurably. The time was all too short, but from the number of calls coming in from all parts I guess we had our share.

When I joined the church I never had a doubt but what God did give Joseph Smith authority to do the great work he did. I knew if God gave the authority it was all right, and my faith was so firm I never had any doubts there; but they were in another direction: There were so many branches after the Seer's death—which one had the authority now? I told no person of these doubts, but with God's help fought it out alone. Whenever those miserable doubts came I would go and pray God that if this was his church to remove the doubts; and, I read too. A few days ago I was thinking of God's blessings to his children; that I was not blessed as some are, in a miraculous way, and I felt rather depressed; when all at once the thought came, "You are not satisfied, when it is years since a single doubt as to the church has entered your mind; and immediately I felt so grateful for the gospel and for the assurance given.

Sometimes when I think what my life would be without this blessed gospel, I feel very thankful for God's kindness to me.

I thought when I begun I would write a short letter, but it is hard work to start some people and hard work to get them to stop when once they get started, sometimes. May God bless all his children, especially those bearing heavy burdens, for he can lighten the load and make the pathway more smooth.

Your sister in Christ,

MABEL WATKINS.

NEW CHURCH, FULTON, IOWA.

On Sunday, June 4, 1899, occurred the dedication of a new church building erected through the efforts and toil of the saints at Fulton, Iowa. The church is located about three miles from the town of Fulton, in a fine farming community, and is well built, free from debt or incumbrance of any kind, and is the result of the prayers and efforts of the brethren there, who love the truth and who felt the need of a proper place in which to manifest the same in proper worship of God to the young, and their friends and neighbors, as well as to rejoice in the same themselves. It is well. Let the song of praise ever arise to Him who hath given the way of life to his children.

Among those directly taking part in this work of building are Brn. J. Roush, John Heide, J. R. Sutton, and these were also present at the dedication. Quite a number of others took an active part in the work of building, but the reporter mislaid his notes and is by the changes of travel five hundred miles from them and must rely entirely upon his memory.

The exercises of dedication was preceded by work and entertainment of the district

Sabbath school association, which proved to be good and profitable.

Brn. W. A. Smith, C. E. Hand, J. R. Sutton, and D. J. Dierks, of the missionary force, were present and took part; as also Bro. E. L. Kelley, of Lamoni, Iowa; Bro. W. A. Smith offering the dedicatory prayer, and Bro. Kelley preaching the discourse. The pulpit was dedicated free to all lovers of truth and seekers after salvation, that the light of truth should be manifest by whom-ever of God's messengers brought. K.

MANCHESTER, Eng., June 15.

Editors Herald:—Since my last, I have spent much of my time in the Manchester district. I had no idea of remaining here more than a few days when I arrived, but yielding to invitations from the local authorities to visit the several branches, I was pleased to render them whatever assistance lay in my power, in both branch and Sunday school. I preached six sermons in Salford branch, seven in Cornbrook, eight in North Manchester, two in Northeast Manchester.

I am now preaching a series of seven sermons in East Manchester branch. The latter is a new branch; they have lately moved into new quarters, a nice hall in a clean neighborhood. They have purchased new furniture, and the unity and zeal manifest bid fair for their future. As far as I can judge, all the branches are doing fairly well and are blessed with some faithful workers.

Two of the branches have adopted the envelope system and are prospering financially as a result. The system is simple and one that I can recommend to all. Each member of the branch, little and big, agrees to pay a certain amount weekly, if only a penny. No one is asked to give more than he is able. Each member is then furnished with thirteen little envelopes, one for each Sunday for three months, in which to put their weekly donation. The name of the giver is on the envelope. When the collection is taken up on Sunday these little envelopes with the money inside are dropped into the plate or basket and a record kept of the amount each one gives, and the account is audited every three months. If one is absent or misses a Sunday, he can make it up on the Sunday following. By this system each member bears a portion of the burden, making it fall lightly upon all; and each one is given credit for the amount given.

In my travels I have found a few members who appear very sensitive about collections, but I find they are generally people who are not very generous with their means. A man or a woman who receives the benefits of this beautiful gospel and is too stingy to help pay for it, deserves to have his feelings hurt; at least so it seems to me. It is all a mistake about it being free in that sense, and costing nothing. Light, fire, hall rent, costs money. Somebody has to pay it; and if I do not pay my share, somebody else must. I have sometimes thought when we boast about everything being free and "no collection," we make the gospel too cheap to be attractive. Very often people value an article according to the price they have to pay for it, hence we may make a mistake in making the work appear too cheap, in their eyes, to be worth their consideration.

On May 20-22, I had the pleasure of taking part in the district Sunday school convention. When first invited I thought I should be unable to be present on account of the annual conference of the Birmingham district convening at the same time, but I remembered that He who said, "Feed my sheep," also said, "Feed my lambs;" so just once, I made the lambs my choice. Of course it was a success. Whoever heard of the young people making a failure? They work to win and they generally win. God bless them. The lessons were interesting, and several instructive papers were read. I hope the papers will be sent in for publication so the Sunday school workers over there may see what is being done on this side.

On Sunday afternoon all five schools united and marched through the streets headed by a banner and band of music. Sr. Pitt and I claimed to be scholars, so were permitted to march with the rest. We met in a large public hall. A very pleasant and profitable time was had in singing and in hearing short addresses on Sunday school work by a number of brethren. The sisters here appear to be a little more backward in this public work than they are in America, but do not be surprised if you should hear of the sisters having a place on the program with the brethren sometime in the future. I just throw out the hint for thought.

Supper was furnished to all in the saints' meeting room. "Tea," it is called here, and then we had another march through the streets and assembled in the large hall again. I was appointed to speak, and enjoyed fairly good liberty, talking to the young and concerning the kind of food they required. The collections more than paid expenses. The balance goes toward purchasing a district Sunday school banner.

From the convention we were called to Lydney, to engage in the services of laying the corner stone of the saints' new church at that place. The day was beautiful. A nice company gathered on the afternoon of May 25, hymns were sung, prayers offered. I addressed the people relative to our work, after which Sr. Pitt was given a trowel with which to spread the mortar under the corner stone, and the stone was lowered into its place. At this interesting moment a photographer took a snap shot of the scene. These are offered for sale at fifty cents each. Should anyone feel like assisting these saints in erecting their church and securing one of these views, he can send the amount to Mr. Thomas Griffiths, Tutnalls, Lydney, England. The lot is paid for and is nicely located. The branch is small, and it will be quite an effort for them to build. It is largely a work of faith with them, but we believe "living faith"—faith and works combined—and we do not doubt they will succeed. But they are worthy of all the help you can afford them. Here is one place where the sisters' aid society is a success.

From Lydney I was unexpectedly called to Wales and spent a week in the country, ten miles from the nearest railroad station, about fourteen miles from Aberystwith. Here I found Bro. J. D. Jenkins teaching the natives in their own language, very few of whom could understand English. There are no members of the church here, but the people are very kind-hearted, and appear anxious to hear the gospel story. Bro. Jenkins lived in this neighborhood when a boy and is pretty well acquainted, and the people are astonished, so they told me, to hear him preach so well. We preached on the roadside several nights during the week, to good audiences most of the time. On Sunday it was very warm. I walked about fourteen miles that day and preached three times or, rather, I assisted Bro. Jenkins, for they could understand him better. In the morning we had an audience of, I should judge, about seventy-five; in the afternoon about one hundred and twenty-five; and in the evening nearly one hundred and forty. I think I never wanted to preach so bad in my life as I did on Sunday evening to that crowd of anxious listeners. Many gathered to the spot before we arrived and seemed loath to leave after Bro. Jenkins had finished. I spoke a few minutes, but I do not believe a dozen there could understand me, but they seemed to enjoy the singing. The Welsh are great lovers of music, and where we failed in preaching we tried to make up in song.

Our nearest route back to Manchester lay through North Wales, so we availed ourselves of the opportunity of visiting a few of the principal places of interest in this beautiful country. We rode by van to Aberystwith, the nearest railway station, quite a pretty little watering place by the sea. Here Sr. Pitt joined me. We spent one day at Aberystwith and proceeded on to Carnarvon and were made welcome by Bro. and Sr. Lloyd and family. They are the only saints in the town, but are firm in the faith and patiently waiting, like many other scattered ones, the redemption of Zion.

Three days at Carnarvon and then we proceeded on our way, stopping off one day at Llandudno, another pretty watering place, with a fine long stretch of sea beach, where hundreds of children love to dig and make little canals on the white sands. Seeing no chance to plant the gospel here, the place had little attraction for us, so hurried on. We stopped off a few hours at Conway and wondered over the castle, a splendid old ruin; also made a short stop at Chester, a quaint old city, one of the few cities in England which is inclosed by a stone wall in good state of preservation. In the business portion they have two rows of shops and two sidewalks, one above the other.

The style of architecture is very quaint. We just had time to walk through the market and museum, and glance inside the cathedral, and run for the train to convey us back to Manchester, where we met a warm welcome at the home of Sr. Clark, who generously offers us their home for our home while we remain in England. May the Lord reward them richly for their many kindnesses, as well as others who have helped to make our work a success.

We expect to finish our series of meetings here to-morrow, and begin a series at Leeds next week. We have many points in mind we want to reach this summer. We trust the Lord will lead where we can accomplish the most good. We feel a little lonely at times when the magnitude of the work looms up before us, and we realize our own limited abilities and powers. God hasten the day when more laborers shall be sent into this field, is our prayer. My health is good. Sr. Pitt has enjoyed better health this summer than last.

Still hopeful, in bonds,

F. G. PITT.

P. S.—Thanks to the many kind friends for sending us literature. Ensigns, Hopes, and tracts are still in demand, Autumn Leaves also. Address them to F. G. Pitt, No. 1 Shakespeare St., C. on M., Manchester, England. When you send by freight or express, kindly send me receipted freight bill, to prove to the company on this side that it is paid.

PORCUPINE, Wis., June 22.

Editors Herald:—Our conference is over. We had one of the best conferences ever had in the Northern district. All the gifts were manifested with great power. The preaching was good and inspiring. Six were baptized, all noble young men. So the work is onward. There are more near the kingdom.

One thing I notice here is, the young members take hold of their work in earnest. The officers are doing their duty. Well, we had some good promises given us in this district for the future. May God help us to be faithful.

I will go from here to Ono, Pierce County, to open up some places; then go to Barron and Chippewa counties, where the calls are coming so much for preaching. I will try to fill all I can. The missionaries are doing all they can to build up the work in this State. So may God help us to continue to work for the Master.

OAKLAND, Cal., June 23.

Editors Herald:—I suppose there is quite a number of your readers that would like to know what has become of Haws. Well, I am at home on the sick list with old troubles, doing but very little work, so I have had a very serious time for the last three months; present conditions unimproved, notwithstanding careful eating, nursing, and administrations. The Lord has not yet removed the terrible afflictions, but I try to be patient and bear my troubles, saying, "Lord, thy will be done." But it is hard to be patient with a ravenous appetite and plenty of good food set before you, which you dare not eat because the mill is worn out. But still I am not discouraged, for I know in whom I trust; so I have not written to burthen others with my trials, knowing that all saints are being tried to the very core, and that trials will increase as the powers of the adversary increase in the last days. But I want my brethren and sisters to remember me and pray for me, that this affliction may be removed, and I once more be able to go and preach the gospel, if it shall be his will.

My faith and confidence in the latter-day work have not diminished. It means life eternal to those who are faithful, and on the other hand, weeping, wailing, and darkness to the unfaithful; so let us work hard to overcome self now that joy may come in the morning of the first resurrection with the laudit, "Well done."

This will answer several who have written to know my condition.

Your brother in Christ, with love to all,

A. HAWS.

DORA, Oreg., June 15.

Editors Herald:—As I have received so much comfort and help in reading the Herald and Ensign, I could not do without them; they are so much to a hungry soul. I never heard this gospel preached until last summer, when Elders H. L. Holt and A. M. Chase came through here with a tent. One of my sisters and I were baptized September 9. O how I love this work; it becomes dearer and dearer to me every day. I am trying to help others to see that this is the true gospel of Christ. Brethren D. L. Harris and A. M. Chase left here on the 12th; they preached thirteen splendid sermons. At the close of the last sermon I heard one old Methodist gentleman say it was the best sermon he ever heard in his life. I think some are near the water's edge; I hope the brethren can come this way again. May God protect them is my prayer.

MRS. R. M. MINARD.

MEADVILLE, Neb. June 20.

Editors Herald:—We have a little band of saints here that are trying to follow the Master as well as they know how. The most of us were baptized by Elder W. A. Smith in the spring of 1898. There are no elders living near here, so we do not get to hear preaching very often, but meet together on Sundays for Sunday school and prayer meeting.

Elder W. W. Whiting has been here holding meetings the past week. He left for his home in Iowa yesterday. The people turned out well to hear him, considering the busy time and the country being so thinly settled; and though none were baptized, we feel that much good was done in the way of removing prejudice.

Sunday, June 11, the next day after Bro. Whiting came, the Baptists were holding their quarterly meeting in a grove close by the schoolhouse where we hold our meetings, and came and invited us down to their grove to hold our meeting. We accepted the invitation, and then after Bro. Whiting's sermon we all stayed to their meetings. They gave Bro. Whiting a very cordial invitation to preach there again in the evening, but he declined, telling them he did not wish to occupy so much of their time. We were very well pleased with the day's program, as there had been rather of an unfriendly feeling existing between the Baptists and saints heretofore. Last Sunday the saints had a basket meeting in the same grove and then services at the schoolhouse in the evening. That closed our meetings here for the present. We were sorry to have Bro. Whiting leave so soon, but look forward to his coming back again in two or three months. His little daughter, Dolpha, was with him, and they had an organ along, which she played, and it was a great help to the singing. Both are well thought of here by those outside as well as those in the church, and we hope to see them back here again in the near future.

Ever hoping for the advancement of the latter-day work.

BLANCHE M. SLONECKER.

COVE, Ark., June 28.

Editors Herald:—One J. W. Parker, representing what he claimed to be the Church of God, came to our town, Cove, Arkansas, and waged combat at the saints; challenged us for debate, abusing and slinging us to a considerable extent. Several seemed to coincide with him in order to down the Mormons, as they call us. Bro. J. D. Erwin came and proposed fair and honorable defense, and to give him a chance to refute our position or belief if he could; also to present the church of which I J. W. Parker am a member.

The debate began on the 18th and closed on the 25th, lasting eight nights; large crowds and considerable interest. The first four nights were devoted to "The church of which I, J. W. Parker, am a member is scriptural in origin, organization, doctrine, and practice, and is the true Church of God." J. W. Parker succeeded in proving the name Church of God was in the Bible, but utterly failed to prove he had that church. He claimed the gospel was first preached on the day of Pentecost, and the church established, and the Holy Spirit first given on the day of Pentecost. The Bible being against him, he was routed from all these non-scriptural positions. J. W. Parker declared vehemently for church perpetuity, succession from the days of the apostles down to the present time; said when he reached history he would slide home. Finally church history was reached, Bro. J. D. Erwin reading Mosheim, Miller, Marsh, etc., J. W. Parker brought Swinton's Sketches of the World, a history, to prove church succession. J. D. asked for the book, but was refused. However Mr. Swinton's history was obtained, and Bro. J. D. Erwin used it with telling effect on him, and landed him in the Catholic Church and defied him to get out. Sure enough, he did slide home to remain in the Catholic Church without any effort to get out.

He dropped history willingly and resorted to the Bible again, claiming God was never without a witness on earth. But Bro. J. D. confronted them with Amos 8:7; Micah 3:4-6; Daniel 7; Matthew 11:12; also 2 Thessalonians 2; and told him to fight it out with the Hebrew prophets, Jesus Christ, and Paul; and defied him to bring forth one authentic history to sustain church perpetuity.

He wound up leaving us all in the dark about the origin of his church organization, doctrine, and practice; and failed utterly to sustain his proposition.

The last four nights were devoted to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Bro. J. D. Erwin first took the origin of the church, confronted him with Matthew 20; Luke 20: 9-15; Matthew 22: 1-15; Luke 14: 17; showing God's manner of dealing with the race in all ages and dispensations; and defied him to disprove a single point, using his charts to make everything plain. J. D. Erwin presented a grand avalanche of evidence in proof of this latter-day work that was never touched, not even noticed. J. D. Erwin proved the origin, organization, doctrine, and practice of the Church of Jesus Christ plain and unmistakable, hence sustained his proposition.

The last night of the discussion went off finely. The saints' prayers were heard and the Lord intervened in our behalf. J. W. Parker completely gave under on his last speech and said if Bro. Erwin was out preaching to save souls he had nothing to say against it. The saints are feeling fine over it. One was baptized, others almost persuaded.

HOW CHRIST MAKES USE OF COMMON LIVES.

"THE MAN WITH THE PITCHER."—Mark 14: 12-16.

In the afternoon of Thursday, April 6, 30 A. D., while Jesus tarried at Bethany, probably in the home of Lazarus, he sent two of his disciples, Peter and John (Luke 22: 8) to Jerusalem to prepare for the passover. He and the other disciples were to follow in the evening. He had appointed unto the two disciples he sent a sign, mysterious and secret, whereby they might know where to prepare the passover; he told them on entering the gate of the city they would meet a servant carrying a pitcher of water, and they were to follow him. The reason they were sent in this way may have been to prevent Judas finding out where Christ would be, so he could not betray him before he had partaken of the passover meal. They found the man with the pitcher, as Jesus had told them, and followed him to the house, where they were to say to the good man or master (not the man they had followed), "Where is the guest chamber?" or as the Revised Version has it my guest chamber. This man is supposed to be Joseph of Arimathea, and was a disciple, perhaps secretly, "for fear of the Jews." The circumstances seem to imply that Jesus had had an understanding with the man before concerning the matter. The preparations for the passover consisted of a room swept, and clean, and supplied with table and couches; the food consisted of unleavened bread, wine, bitter herbs, and the paschal lamb, that was to be slain in the temple between three and five in the evening, and cooked in a private house. The unleavened bread was made by the male members only of the company, who were to partake of it; and for the purpose of mixing this bread pure water was solemnly drawn by each family, and while drawing it the man was to say, "This is the water of the unleavened bread." In nearly all other places of the scriptures we find women at the wells or carrying water, but in this instance it is a man.

In this humble dwelling the upper room was prepared as a guest chamber for the Savior. In it was witnessed the assemblage of the apostles on the day of Pentecost, the final meeting of Jesus with his disciples. Here the eucharist was established, and Jesus introduced the ordinance of washing the apostles' feet. It is a great privilege to have Christ to dwell in our homes, and make use of our property, talents, and time. Here we find him making use of a servant—the man with the pitcher, the good man of the house, and the house itself. His first miracle was performed at a humble wedding feast in Cana of Galilee, and the material used was that at hand—the humble element, water, which he ennobled by turning it into wine. Another miracle—that of feeding the five thousand. A small boy (how happy that lad must have been that he had the loaves and fishes with him) had a part in feeding the great multitude. Christ might have fed the multitude with his own hand and with other means, but he preferred to use the common material on hand, and employed his disciples to help him. He breaks the bread of life and his ministers distribute it. Thus we can be coworkers with God; we cannot save souls, but like the lad with the barley loaves, we can bring men the bread of life.

No one is too insignificant to be of use in the cause of Christ. He never ignores the young, and always utilizes the commonest material. It is the same to-day as nearly nineteen hundred years ago. He gave minute directions for the preparation of the passover; he will still guide us in every detail of life.

He did not find it beneath him to take upon himself the common lot of honest poverty and worked at the carpenter trade, thus making labor a pure and noble thing. His disciples were chosen from men in the lowly walks of life, such as fishermen, and Matthew was a publican. He visited at the homes of Simon the leper, and Zaccheus the publican, and other humble homes. And so to-day Christ is using the common lives and common means to save souls with the common salvation spoken of by Jude. We are none of us too young to help bring the gospel to others; we need not think our talents too small, our means too meager, or our opportunities too few, if we only consecrate them all to his use and service. We cannot turn the machinery of our great mills and factories, but we can let the water on the wheel; we cannot push the steamship across the ocean, but we can let on the steam for the engine to do it.

My prayer is that each of us young people will find out in what way Christ may make use of our lives, and like the man with the pitcher, and good man of the house, see that the upper room or guest chamber—our hearts—will be swept and garnished for the Master at his coming.

FLORALICE.

TIONA, Tahiti, May 12.

Dear Readers.—Our mail for the month of March is here, and our hearts have been made glad by the many good things contained therein, both in the printed matter and letters. I have, during the past six months or more, received several letters from sisters in the church, who were heretofore unknown to me, and from quite a number of those endeared by acquaintance, that I have not answered personally, for want of time. To such I will say, Yes, dear, kind, thoughtful sisters, your letters have indeed brought a "ray of light" with them, and all are very acceptable. And I would be pleased if any or all of you would write again, even if I did not answer personally, which I intend to do sometime.

We are now staying for a week or two at Tiona—Zion—in a small niau cabin, not quite high enough at the eaves for me to stand straight. The missionary cottage built by T. W. Smith has become too badly shattered to live in. I sweep off the native matting, which is laid over freshly cut grass strewn on the ground, with the wisp broom that Sister Smith left in her house here. No one would take it out of the house or use it. Do you not think they were honest? One of the sisters—Teroromatta—brought it to me yesterday, saying we were missionaries, and had a right to use it.

I am sorry to tell, that it is because of Mr. Burton's ill health that we are here, where there are only a few saints, to see if the rest from almost incessant talking and ministering in some way in both the spiritual and temporal affairs of the church and its members, and also to see if the sweet mountain air will be of benefit to him, so that he may be able to resume his work again when his printing paper arrives from New Zealand. He is not now able to sit and write at all. He has his hammock—na na iho i hamani* (the Tahitian for "he made it himself")—hung beneath the thick shading branches of a great mango tree, and lies there all day, but still continues to read and study. I know we are remembered in prayer by many in our native land, and trust the Spirit will reveal our necessity to some, or at least prompt some to make special request in his behalf, that he may be restored to health again. I feel that he will be, or at least the weight of lonely anxiety has been taken from me.

There are some very discouraging features in this mission, yet we see some encouragement, and do not wish to leave it yet, unless the Lord sees that it is best. The saints here are very kind to us, though all are not as thoughtful about not wearying him as our people would be; yet few would walk five miles to bring a bottle of milk and a loaf of bread, as Pai did the other morning, because he failed to catch the mail carrier, when there was bread out here to be bought, but not so good.

This Zion, of these islands, is "beautiful for situation," on the sloping side of a high mountain. The view from the crest of the hill, where our cabin sets, is grand. At a little distance across a ravine, in horse shoe shape, is a green bluff point with a background of cocoanut and other trees climbing up the mountain side; beyond the point is the shallow water, then the reef of breakers, and beyond that the ocean. And from another position we see the jagged and saddle shaped top of the Island of "Moria," and the belt of blue ocean that separates it from Tahiti. But it is very difficult of access, there is no wagon road up the hill, only a path, and the hill is long and steep. Water and all other needful things, except what grows on the trees that are here, must be carried up the hill by the natives; neither is the main road in sight, so it is more secluded than our California Mount Olivet.

JUDGE NOT.

Where we see but the darkness of the mine,
God sees the diamond shine.
Where we can only clustering leaves behold,
He sees the bud they fold.
Where we can only threatening clouds descry,
He sees the hidden sky.
Dark is the glass through which we see each other;
We may not judge a brother.
We only see the rude and outer strife;
God knows the hidden life.
Where we our voice in condemnation raise,
God may see fit to praise.
And those from whom, like Pharisees, we shrink,
With Christ may eat and drink.—Selected.

THE library work is fast gaining ground amongst the districts. One by one the district librarians are appointed, and work is begun by them at once. The library work is yet in its infancy; but even now the results are very marked in various localities. More difference is noticeable in the ideals set up for a library than in any other phase of the work.

BRO. M. C. FISHER, superintendent of Massachusetts district Sunday school association, writes for names and addresses of some of the "most active of district superintendents." He wishes to open a correspondence with them, with a view of gaining some good points in the management of district work. The scheme is a good one, and if district superintendents will respond to the calls he may make, it will be of great mutual benefit. We trust, too, that they will give the readers of the department the benefit of their work. "Come, let us reason together."

AGAIN we receive an encouraging report of the work done in Oklahoma district from both Brn. S. Smith and W. S. Macrae. It will be remembered that the saints in that region are very scattered, and that the church work there is comparatively new. These conditions would usually result in the work being given up. But they have worked energetically and hopefully, till they have placed their work upon what seems to be a firm foundation. They enjoy the distinction of being the "district association without a school in it" at one time. However, the two schools with which they started, and which afterwards became disorganized, are now in good working order, and another added. Let all district officers "think on these things" and take fresh courage and added zeal. We are made glad to see the work move on, and regret to see it standing still. Let us work.

"DID you ever think that teachers and methods, as well as books and other things, get out of date?"

"A CHILD may seem a bother, an unthankful nuisance, or a precious blessing of humanity, a gift from God. The teacher or officer who does not consider his work in the Sunday school a pleasure, has not a proper conception of the material and possibilities before him."—Selected.

SOME one has said, "It is not so much the wisdom of our brains for which humanity hungers, as the sympathy of our hearts." Very few, if any, of us are too slow at giving advice; so many know how everything should be done so much better than those who happen to be trying to do it. The right kind of advice is good; but would it not be more profitable to give a little assistance along with it, working in harmony with those in charge and helping to demonstrate the efficacy of our ideas, instead of offering a lot of wordy advice and little or no assistance?—Sunday School Advocate.

ANY investment must be made before the proceeds are received. The man who is unwilling to use or invest what he has, is not likely to secure large returns. The unsociable Sunday school member who complains that, though he has been to Sunday school for eight or ten years, no one ever comes to shake his hand, or tries to give him a good time, is probably suffering from a lack of investment in the sociability market. Has he ever offered to shake the hand of a stranger in that Sunday school? Is the man who complains that he is "not appreciated" doing all in his power to appreciate others? From a purely selfish standpoint, we must be willing to give if we expect to get. From God's standpoint we should give, without taking thought for what we may get. Then give to the world the best you have, and the best will come back to you.—Selected.

"OF course there will be times that you will become discouraged, by reason of the obstacles that will arise. But instead of allowing these discouragements to cause you to fail, it should only increase your faith in its divinity; for I have learned whenever the Lord wanted to do a work, no matter in what age of the world, or under what conditions, the satanic influence would increase in proportion to the work to be done.

"If everything was smooth sailing, it is safe enough to conclude the Devil is in a measure satisfied, and is to a degree resting easy. I do not say this to be poetic, but it is a truth. I have found by experience, it to be a safe landmark. So I hope when these difficulties arise you will be able to treat them wisely, and with the thought that your efforts are acknowledged by the Most High. If you are in your line of duty, and if you don't accomplish as much as you would desire, there is the satisfaction that you have done your duty, and God will take care of the results." J. A. GUNSOLLEY.

"I WILL say right here in this connection, that from what I have observed, together with what I have read and learned otherwise, that the Sunday school work is assuming a position with reference to the church that is marvelous; and I am not so sure but the time will come when it will be regarded equally important with the church. It reaches a class of people that the church itself does not reach—a class that is in touch, you might say, with an element we need. And I am glad to see young men and women with minds calculated to influence giving the Sunday school question deep and earnest thought; not only are they thinking about it, but are giving their time and talents to raise it to a standard paramount to all other institutions in the church. And whether or no their efforts are crowned with success as far as their aim is concerned, they will surely be rewarded as far as their motives are concerned in their efforts to advance the cause."—J. A. Gunsolley, in 1897.

The following resolution was adopted by unanimous vote: Whereas, the people of the State of Utah have elected to represent them in the Congress of the United States, Brigham H. Roberts, a man who is an avowed advocate of polygamy, and who was at the time of his election, and still is, in open defiance of the laws of the United States in general, and of the State of Utah in particular, cohabiting with at least three women; we believing that it is unquestionably unconstitutional for a law breaker to be a law maker, and that his course in general is greatly detrimental to the morals of the people, and that if he is recognized by congress as worthy of a place in our government, it will lower the position we occupy among the civilized nations of the world. Be it therefore, resolved, that this conference of Northern Michigan district of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, assembled at Freesoil, Michigan, do hereby earnestly protest against the said B. H. Roberts being permitted to take his seat in the Congress of the United States. J. J. Cornish was sustained as president of district, C. B. Joice secretary. Three were baptized. Preaching by J. H. Committee on reunion reported having decided upon and secured Ramona Park, near St. Louis, on the suburban line. Had arranged for a large tent for $18, tents 9½ x 12 for $1.50, 12 x 14 for $2 for the ten days. This price to include putting up and taking down. Time of reunion July 21 to 31 inclusive. EASTERN MAINE.

Conference convened at Indian River, May 20; Bro. S. O. Foss chosen to preside, A. S. Kelley sustained as clerk of district, and U. M. Kelley as president of district. Bishop's agent's report read and accepted. Agent of tract fund reported: On hand last report 13 cents; received since 97 cents; paid out $1; due church 10 cents. Moved and passed that Bro. Frank Smith be recommended by this conference as a subject worthy for ordination to office of priest. It was moved that Bro. T. C. Kelley be appointed to prepare a document disapproving of the seating of B. H. Roberts; said document to be presented to our representative in congress. It was very rainy during the whole session of conference, therefore the attendance was small; but despite the elements, we had an excellent testimony meeting, and the preaching was very clear. Hoping, praying, and waiting for the "good time coming," let us press onward to the mark of the prize. Time and place of next conference left in the hands of the president of district.

Committee to whom was referred the appeal of Albert Comer reported that by request of the defendant the case was dropped. Report adopted. Request from Hiteman branch asking for the ordination of John J. Griffiths to the office of priest was granted. Recommendation from the Pleasanton branch for the ordination of Bro. S. W. Moffet to the office of teacher, and Bro. D. B. Morey to the office of priest, was ordered. A paper from T. C. Clapp was presented, asking for an appeal from the decision of an elders' court, and adopted by the Lamoni branch, he being defendant in said case. Appeal was granted and court appointed. It was resolved that ministers required to report to conferences do so in writing. Moved and seconded that tent work be left in charge of missionaries in charge and district president. Carried. Moved and seconded that we request each branch in the district to take up a special collection for tent work and district expenses; and that the money so collected be placed in the hands of Bro. B. M. Anderson, the treasurer of the district. Carried. Moved to discontinue the appointment of district missionary for the present. Carried. A collection was taken up amounting to $8.68. Preaching by J. S. Sively, J. R. Lambert, and A. H. Smith. Adjourned to Lamoni, Iowa, date to be fixed by district president.

NAUVOO.

Conference convened at Keb, Iowa, June 17 and 18; Elder J. R. Evans president, Elder James McKiernan secretary pro tem. Elder R. Warnock sent in his report and resignation as secretary; conference accepted the resignation and gave him a vote of thanks for faithful services. H. S. Salisbury was then elected secretary for the unexpired term. The elders reported several baptisms. A resolution was passed, declaring it to be the sense of the conference that it would be unwise to attempt to hold a reunion at Bluff Park this year. Resolutions were passed against the seating of Mr. B. H. Roberts, of Utah, in congress. The Bishop's agent and the district secretary reported good balances on hand. Elders J. R. Lambert and F. M. Weld, of Lamoni, were present; the branches were well represented, and the time very profitably spent. Adjourned to Rock Creek church, in Illinois, October 7 and 8.

NORTHEAST MISSOURI.

Conference convened at Bevier, June 18 and 19; Joseph Tanner president, George A. Tryon secretary, D. L. Morgan assistant. Bro. Robert M. Elvin chosen to preside over business sessions. Branches reporting: Bevier, Higbee, Pollock, Salt River. Ministerial reports read: J. A. Tanner, J. F. Petre, R. M. Elvin, W. E. Summerfield, R. R. Jones, J. T. Williams, William Chapman, F. T. Mussell, William Kelso, Daniel Edmunds, Robert Thutchley, E. E. Petre, J. T. Richards, J. R. Allen, John Morgan. Bishop's agent's and treasurer's reports were read and referred to an auditing committee. Resolved, that hereafter we request all branches to report by one of branch officials. Whereas, Huntsville branch has become practically disorganized, and some are desiring letters of removal; therefore, be it resolved, that we empower the president and secretary of district the right to grant letters to those that desire them. Bills were allowed of district president $2.55, and secretary $2.35. Joseph A. Tanner was retained as president of district, W. E. Summerfield chosen as vice president, George A. Tryon retained as secretary and treasurer, John T. Williams retained as Bishop's agent. Adjourned to meet at Higbee the first Saturday before full moon in October.

Sunday School Associations.

DECATUR.

Convention of the above district met at Lucas, Iowa, June 22 and 23, 1899. Superintendent J. A. Gunsolley in charge, J. P. Anderson secretary. Ten schools reported. Reports were read from the superintendent, the secretary, the treasurer, and the librarian. Superintendent was authorized to call a district institute. The program as published was slightly modified, the paper on "Uses and Abuses of the Quarterly" being deferred to the afternoon of the 23d. The primary class drill was in charge of Sr. Roxanna Gaylord, and the intermediate class drill in charge of J. A. Gunsolley. The Sunday school newspaper was instructive and entertaining. Cantata "Bethlehem" was well rendered. The writer of the paper, "An effort to discover who should not attend Sunday school," failed to find anyone who should not attend. God's Spirit was present in power at the prayer and testimony meeting. The attendance was fair. The interest was good, but not what might have been desired. Adjourned to meet at call of district superintendent.

NOTICES.

Resolution passed on the 31st day of May, 1899, by Canadian Center branch, of Guy, Oklahoma: Whereas, the Utah Church in connection with polygamy and other abominations, also fosters dancing in their church; and as we refuse to be classed with them, and as we are assured that the associations surrounding the ballroom are not conducive to spiritual advancement, but rather as lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, from whom the Apostle Paul says turn away; therefore, be it resolved, that we will not fellowship dancing in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale. Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

WHAT THE BIBLE HAS BEEN MADE TO TEACH.

There is scarcely an "ism," sect, or sectlet in the history of religious thought that has not appealed to the Scriptures in confirmation of its peculiar views, and a collection of such peculiar interpretations of the Scriptures is made by the German savant Carl Stuckert. He publishes his collection in the Welt, of Leipsic, from which we glean the following specimens:—

The absolutism of kings was based on scriptural authority, as the Christian kings were declared to be the legitimate successors of the Old Testament theocratic kings. The court theologians of Justinian used the example of Melchizedek to prove that the Greek emperor was entitled also to the prerogatives of a priest, and that he was master not only of the state, but also of the church. On the basis of Psalm 82, James I. of England declared that the kings are God's representatives and as such sit upon God's throne and are themselves called "gods" by the Lord, and that the king's will is absolute law. On the other hand, the Scriptures have been made to sanction revolution. During the peasants' war in the Reformation period, the peasants with the Bible in their hands demanded political freedom and deliverance from their taxes and tithes; and in the famous Twelve

Articles in which they embodied their revolutionary claims, they expressly base them on the Scriptures, and state that if these claims can be proved anti-scriptural they will abstain. When Cromwell began to organize military opposition to the powers that were, he found a justification in Zephaniah 1: 3, and maintained that he was the Lord's Shilo. In the conviction that he was fulfilling the Lord's will, he consented to the decapitation of King Charles. Only recently the Social Democratic leader Seidel, in Zürich, opened the Bible in a public convention with the words: "Here is the book of Democracy!"

When Pope Urban II. in the religious convention at Clermont declared that the children of the free woman should no longer be the servants of the descendants of the Egyptian bond-maiden, the whole multitude cried out, "God wills it!" and the crusade was a fixed fact. Innocent III. in his letter to the spiritual and temporal lords of England, France, and other countries, declared that he based his appeal for support on the words, Does not your Master pay tribute? As early as the end of the twelfth century the Abbé of Calabrian, Joachim, taught that just as Joshua had pronounced a curse upon all who would undertake to build up the walls of Jericho, thus too all would be cursed who would try to restore the city of Jerusalem.

At an early period the Bible teachings were used to justify the severest of measures against heretics. Firmicus Maternus exhorted the sons of Constantine the Great to annihilate the Gentiles because in the Old Testament the unbelievers had been destroyed. Jerome, the great theologian, justifies violence against heretics with the words of Deuteronomy 13: 6. Even St. Augustine interprets the passage, "Compel them to come in," as a justification of forced conversion. Charlemagne writes to Leo III. that he had followed the example of Joshua and Moses in their contest with the Amalekites, and accordingly declares it to be his duty everywhere to force acceptance of the Catholic faith by heathen people. The heresy trials of the Middle Ages were justified on the basis of the words of Christ, that he who does not abide in him as a branch in the vine shall be burned. Bloody Mary of England received the impetus and spirit of her prosecutions from the war of destruction waged by the Israelites. When Louis XIV. was engaged in his crusades against non-Catholics, he was encouraged with the words that he who spares the rod spoils the child. Baronius declares to Pope Paul V. that it was his office to feed and to kill, for in the vision to Peter the latter had been commanded: Kill and eat.

Leo I. and his successors have all along appealed to Matthew 16: 18 as a basis for the universal primacy of the Pope, and as Samuel had the right to declare the throne of Israel vacant, thus, too, the Pope had the right to depose kings. This was the claim of Gregory VII. Suarez, on the basis of the words that institute the office of the keys, made the same claim for the successor of Peter. Boniface VIII., in his bull "Unam sanctam," applies to himself the words addressed by God to Jeremiah assigning to the latter the work of destroying, breaking, etc. The application made of the two swords to the spiritual and the temporal powers is well known; and, on the other hand, Luther, Zwingli, and Calvin have with the same Scriptures undertaken to prove that the Pope was the anti-Christ and the great foe of mankind.

In hundreds of cases the Scriptures have been used to prove that African slavery was right. Livingstone tells us that the Boers of South Africa justify inhuman treatment of the blacks by an appeal to Deuteronomy 20: 10-14. David's dancing before the ark of covenant is often employed to prove that dancing is honorable. Passages like Job 33: 23, 24, Psalm 91: 11, and others have been cited to prove the correctness of appealing for the intercession of the angels. Paul's words that in Christ there is neither male nor female is used by the Quakers to show that women have a right to speak in the public assembly. The honoring of religious relics is often based on such passages as 2 Kings 2: 14 and Acts 19: 12. Instances of this kind could be multiplied almost ad infinitum.—Translation made for the Literary Digest.

DISCOVERY OF A MAMMOTH.

On February 8, a Swede and his partner, while marking their claim on Dominion Creek, discovered, according to a Dawson newspaper, a body of a mammoth 40 feet below the surface. The story was that the body was in a perfect state of preservation. Unfortunately, there were no scientists in Dawson to examine the body, but according to press statements, it measured 44½ feet long. Its right tusk was broken, but its left tusk was perfect, so that it was probable that the right tusk may have been snapped off in the fall that caused its death. The tusk which remains measures 14 feet 3 inches in length and 48 inches in circumference. The flesh was covered with woolly hair 15 inches long, of a grayish-black color. The neck was short and the limbs long and stout, the feet short and broad, and had five toes. The flesh was cut and tasted sweet. Mammoth flesh has been tasted on other occasions. It is very unfortunate that an expert geologist was not upon the ground at the time of the find, as it is of considerable importance.—Scientific American, April 8, 1899.

SCIENCE AND SPIRITUALISM.

We have recently been entertained by the daily press with accounts of a spiritualistic investigation of the immortality of the soul, which is remarkable, not so much for the novelty of the results obtained, as for the prominent position occupied by the chief inquisitor as a professor in one of our foremost institutions of learning. *

That Prof. Hyslop believes that he has found in spiritualism additional and complete proofs of the soul's immortality can hardly be questioned. He states that he has arrived at his conclusions only after a most thorough and painstaking examination, in which all possibility of fraud was carefully excluded. Indeed, it is the very method of investigation employed which Prof. Hyslop so strongly emphasizes; for he lays great stress upon the scientific methods, the care, and exhaustiveness which characterize his inquiry and distinguish it from previous work in this direction.

Prof. Hyslop has asked the public to withhold its judgment until he has published a full account of his experiments and submitted the facts which he has gathered to the scientific world. As a matter of mere courtesy and justice we should wait. But in the meantime we cannot help remarking how puerile and fruitless have been the results of previous attempts, how disproportionate the time and effort expended. Such men as Marsh, Keble, Dr. Hodgson and Prof. James have also attempted a scientific investigation of spiritualistic phenomena. Mr. Marsh, we are told, talked with Adam and Eve, with Methuselah and other biblical personages. Mr. Keble conversed with Washington, Bonaparte, Byron and a host of equally distinguished men, and both Hodgson and James have brought all the undoubted critical acumen of their minds to bear upon the case of Mrs. Piper. The actual results, judged from a dispassionate, scientific standpoint, are very disappointing. Even in the case of Hodgson and James, they are vague, trivial, and inconclusive.

The many newspaper articles which have appeared on Prof. Hyslop's experiments give us (chiefly because of his reticence) no coherent account of what he has actually accomplished. From the little that can be gleaned, however, we are not very sanguine that anything new has been added to what is already known of spiritualism.

In his spiritualistic experiments, Prof. Hyslop has been associated with some of the most distinguished psychologists and alienists, men who have become well known through the value of their contributions to mental science. For this reason we have a right to expect something more than the vagueness and ambiguity which have ever been characteristic of spiritualism, something which will at least prove amenable to the ordinary laws of evidence, and afford us that sensible proof of immortality, the desire for which is coeval with the existence of the human race. Although the publication of the results of his examination into spiritualism may not be accompanied by "such a wave of excitement as the world has never seen before," we trust Prof. Hyslop will keep his promise, and if he presents us with results in the way of spirit communication, we hope they will be marked by that dignity and practical utility which have been so invariably and conspicuously wanting in all previous communications.—Scientific American, July 1, 1899.

DR. HILLIS CRITICISED.

Dr. Hillis has hardly seated himself in the pulpit of Brooklyn Plymouth Church before he finds himself persona non grata with the Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, the well known pastor of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church. The two counts in the Cuyler indictment are (1) the massacre of the Scriptures in the pulpit, and (2) the taking of texts from popular novels for Sunday evening sermons. As to the first count, it is not for a layman to decide when the preachers themselves are not agreed as to what constitutes a scripture massacre. The second count seems to hinge upon a question of taste and pulpit conventionalities. If Dr. Hillis has erred at all it is in calling his secular essays sermons and dressing them up for church use by fitting texts to them as collars. As they are purely literary, and only remotely ethical, there is no good reason why they should masquerade as sermons. Dr. Cuyler's point is well taken, but he should remember that rigid Presbyterianism and free and easy Congregationalism have little in common either in the essentials or the non-essentials. Dr. Hillis' predecessor, Lyman Abbott, strayed far from the beaten paths of orthodoxy, but Dr. Hillis himself is liable to wander all over the surrounding country.—Chicago Tribune, April 20.

CERTAIN CURE FOR INSOMNIA.

"Insomnia is a self-inflicted curse through the violation of Nature's laws," writes Edward B. Warman, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "The cause may be overanxiety, planning for the morrow, thinking and worrying over the yesterdays and to-days, but no opiate can remove the cause, even though it may bring sleep. If the cause is merely mental overwork it may be quickly removed by relieving the brain of the excess of blood. Physical exercise is a panacea for about every ailment which human flesh is heir to. Therefore, stand erect, and rise slowly from the heels; descend slowly. Do this from forty to fifty times until you feel the congestion in the muscles of the leg. Almost instant relief follows, and sleep is soon induced. For those who are averse to a little work I would recommend, instead, a bowl of very hot milk (without so much as a wafer) immediately before retiring. The hotter the milk the better for the purpose. This will prove a better sleep-producer than all the opiates known to medical science. It brings about an increased activity of the blood vessels of the stomach, causing slight temporary congestion, which relieves the blood vessels of the brain. The hot milk is also quite strengthening to the stomach."

PROGRESSIVE MOHAMMEDANISM.

The fact that there are now not far from 130,000,000 Mussulmans under the British flag entitles England to be called the greatest Mohammedan power in the world. The Mussulman population in India alone is estimated to be about 80,000,000, and is steadily increasing, not only by natural growth, but by accretions from the Hindoos. To such an extent is this going on that it has brought forth a cry of alarm from many leading Brahmins, who see in the tendency of their people to accept the doctrines of the more militant faith the approaching end of their own influence.—New York Sun.

WE have often spoken of the danger of contamination of wells by sewage, and a striking confirmation of it was offered when the water works machinery of a Maryland town of three hundred inhabitants broke down. For one day, water from an old well was used. Ten days later there was an outbreak of inflammatory intestinal disorders, and three cases of typhoid fever resulted. The water was tested and found to contain not less than 4,100 bacilli in one cubic centimeter, which is, of course, equivalent to about fifteen drops. The regular water supply contained 80 bacilli to a centimeter, which cannot be considered very satisfactory.—Scientific American.

NORWAY has passed a law prohibiting the sale of tobacco to any boy under sixteen years of age without a signed order from an adult relative or an employer. Foreign travelers are also forbidden to offer cigarettes to boys, and make themselves liable to prosecution if they do so. The police are required to confiscate all the pipes, cigars, and cigarettes of boys who smoke in the public streets. A sliding scale of fines is provided. They vary from 50 cents to $25.—Scientific American.

THE EDITOR ABROAD.

Bro. Roush and the Editor took train for Dawsons, a switch on the Leadville branch of the Colorado Southern road, on Friday, June 16, at 8:15 in the forenoon, reaching that mountain station at ten of a warm day. We found Bro. George Kemp waiting with his mules and a spring wagon to take us to the place of meeting ten miles away, up, up, towards the clouds, over the ridge, and still up. All things human have an end; so did that ride; from eight to ten miles, in first experience nearer twenty. However, when at last we reached the hospitable home of Bro. James Kemp, who has for some twenty years or so kept the camp fire blazing, the road weariness was past and we rejoiced in the presence of the genial life of a mountain home, on the old wagon trail between Denver and Leadville. After a night of rest, during which, as a resident stated in the morning, ice formed on the watering trough thick as a windowpane, we rose refreshed. At all events the blankets were welcome—in the middle of June.

Conifer church is perched on the crest of the divide some 7,500 feet or so above sea level. The waters one side flowing down Platte Cañon, on the other going to the Platte River by another route—name not called to mind.

We held four meetings here, Bro. Roush taking the lead on Saturday p. m., 2:30, on the principle of the righteousness of faith. In the evening the Editor followed; audiences not large but willing to hear.

Meetings on Sunday were at eleven a. m. and eight p. m., in which the editor was the preacher. Audience in the evening quite good.

At the noontime meal the preachers, with Bro. Kemp and wife, were the guests of Sr. Elliott, on invitation of herself and husband, at one of the old-time ranches for which this mountain road was famous during the stage line period of development before the puff of the iron horse disturbed the echoes of the dells and forests of the hills. We realized what the proverb meant which says, "If thou be a man given to appetite" better to put a knife to thy throat; a fine admonition of the dangers of eating too much when viands are appetizingly prepared.

At these services we had the assistance of Mrs. Stevens and her husband for the song service, Mrs. Stevens being both a good singer and organist. The evening on Sunday was the best attended of any of the series.

On Monday, after an early lunch, the preachers left with Bro. James Kemp as convoy, by wagon through the cañon for Morrison, the terminus of another narrow gauge road to Denver. It was an eighteen or twenty mile ride, as much down, down, down, as the other was up, up. It was much more enjoyable. The mountain scenery was much grander and prettier, the road often being but a narrow ribbon of dusty reddish-gray lying against the mountain side; above, the peaks; below, the rocks and mountain stream way down in the gulch. At 4:30 the town, a straggling array of houses, business and residence, strung along the little stream next the mountain sides and on the narrow strip of valley between was reached. Bro. Kemp left us to return to his home, while we waited the starting time of the train. We took note of the things we saw. Among them, a man past middle age rode up to the post office and store on a small donkey, so small indeed that the saddle, of western pattern, covered the entire length of the back from withers to hip bones, and the feet of the rider dangled near the ground. He gave us a courteous half military salute, raising his hand to his "sombbrero." Another was the coming in along the mountain road of a slip of a girl mounted à la cowboy style on a trim looking bay colt, evidently not more than half broke. She sat her horse like a man, with the upright seat and long stirrup leather so common in the West, and rode with the assurance of long habit, wearing the conventional divided skirt, now obtaining at Denver and other western cities in both horseback and bicycle riding. This lady rode to the post office, the postmaster brought her mail, papers and letters, which she nonchalantly tucked away in the bosom of her blouse without dismounting, and rode off whence she came, unconscious of having done anything out the ordinary.

As for the Editor, he saw and took note; and not seeing anything immodest in either attire or manner, he made mental comment thus: If the man's seat in the saddle is safer for the rough rider, the general in the field and the cavalryman, the hunter, and the gentleman in the park or along the boulevard, why should the woman be compelled to adopt and be kept in the more unsafe and dangerous habit of the sidesaddle?

All waits come to their end, so this of the preachers ended when at 5:35 the little iron horse pulled his one car of lumber, one box car, and one combination express, baggage, and passenger car out of the side track for the still downhill run to Denver, twelve and one half miles from Morrison, through a country rich in vegetation from irrigation. Acres of the alfalfa, clover, wheat, oats, barley, corn, potatoes, and other food crops lined the way until the city was reached. Indisposition kept the Editor indoors for the next three days, kindly ministered to by the best of sympathizing nurses, like those of whom it is sung,

"Who kindly feel another's woe
And long to ease his pain."

On Thursday, the 22d, the Editor met Professor Whiteman, wife, and daughter at dinner at Sr. Lewis'. The professor is the chorister at St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral, a general teacher of orchestral and choral singing, his wife a leading solo singer in St. John's choral service, and the Jewish synagogue as well. Both are cultivated singers, somewhat acquainted with the existent state and trend of church society, and both rather disturbed, if not dissatisfied with their relation to the things they see and realize are not as one would have a right to expect in professedly religious circles. The Professor asked some questions, which were answered by Mrs. L. A. Schmutz, Lewis, and the Editor, whether satisfactorily or not we cannot write. Mrs. Whiteman sang one little song, which was excellently rendered. She has a rich, full voice, strong, free, and cultivated. It was kind of her and very pleasing to us who heard.

On Friday, the 23d, after a lunch with Bro. Joseph and Sr. L. A. Schmutz, the preachers Roush and Smith left the mile-high city at the foot of the Rockies for the cities of the plains.

At Sterling where we were billed for services the 24th and 25th, we were met at the train by Bro. George E. McConley, and Citizen Sherman, who kindly took us in his carriage to Bro. McConley's home, where we found lodgment for our stay.

It was near night, so we spent the time in friendly chat till the evening meal was past. Soon after it was over Bro. E. Curtis and wife, Bro. C. Curtis and wife, and Bro. Corf and wife, came in from the far southeast, near the cattle-famous city of the plain, Yuma. These made a capital addition to the little band of saints who assembled in the city hall, in the county building, at 2:30 on Saturday, the 24th, to give the preachers welcome and hear the word of life. The audience was small, but so fully in sympathy with the gospel teaching that Bro. Roush was well furnished with the needed inspiration to occupy faithfully and well at 2:30 and eight p. m.

On Sunday, 25th, the Editor was called on to speak to fair audiences at eleven a. m. and at eight p. m., which he did, as best he could. Both efforts were well received.

Here, as at Conifer, we had outside help with the song service. There was an excellent piano in the hall, and at Bro. McConley's request a Mrs. Bennet led the singing with music. She played well and we sang as saints do, who love to sing to the praise of God.

We here met Bro. Hudson and family, Bro. Boyd and wife, and a number of others whom memory fails to hold, with whom we spent a pleasant Sunday both in the public service and in the sacramental and confirmation season at the house of Bro. McConley in the evening; for here as at Wray baptism was performed, a son of Bro. McConley and a son of Bro. Hudson, obeying. We took pleasure in greeting our young brothers, George McConley and Leroy Hudson, in the fold. Bro. Roush performed the rite. We also met one of the younger sons of Bro. Archibald M. Wilsey, one of the oldtime saints and one of the earliest in the Reorganization, Archie Wilsey. We had lost sight of him for years and were pleased to see him once more.

With the service of Sunday evening ended our promised stay in Colorado, and on the 26th, at 5:35 p. m. the Editor parted with Brn. McConley and Roush at the station, enroute to Grand Island, St. Joseph, and home.

The stay at Sterling was pleasant. Bro. McConley is a live, active, and coming man. He has been county judge, and is now county and city attorney and secretary of the Logan County Fair Association; and a practicing attorney at law. He seems to have the confidence and good will of the community; and if there is any prejudice against him as a man we did not see the manifestations of it. His religious connection is known, as he does not hesitate to avow it, or to identify himself with the latter-day work.

The county of Logan is not large in population. Sterling is the county seat, and is located in one of the most fertile regions of the West, so-called. It is a grass and cattle growing region whence tons of hay and car loads of cattle are shipped every season. The town is some six hundred in population and easily does the business of one of three times its size in a less favored region. The Editor was introduced to quite a number of the business men of the place, and found them the same genial, wholesouled men as are the men of the western country wherever found. We noticed that their courthouse was a model in point of neatness of architecture, to secure the best accommodations for the county business with the least expense and without unnecessary outside ornamentation. In this their example is well worth commendation and emulation.

The Editor reached home on the 28th of June, ending his visit abroad, it is to be hoped with some good results for the cause. He hopes so anyway.

SIGNIFICANT STATEMENTS BY PRESIDENTS YOUNG AND SNOW.

It will seem by and by that more significance should be given the words of Joseph Smith as stated by Elder William Marks, according to his statement published in HERALD for January, 1860, than has hitherto been accorded:—

He said he had desired for a long time to have a talk with me on the subject of polygamy. He said it eventually would prove the overthrow of the church, and we should soon be obliged to leave the United States, unless it could be speedily put down. He was satisfied that it was a cursed doctrine, and that there must be every exertion made to put it down. He said that he would go before the congregation and proclaim against it, and I must go into the High Council, and he would prefer charges against those in transgression, and I must sever them from the church, unless they made ample satisfaction.—Saints' Herald, vol. 1, pp. 22, 23.

Pres. Brigham Young, before his death, stated that the doctrine of plural marriage was "revealed to him" while he was in England, and before he had any conversation with the Prophet Joseph on the subject.

And now, Pres. Lorenzo Snow asserts that it was revealed to him before being named to him by the Prophet.

It is not difficult to guess who may have been the transgressors referred to by the Prophet Joseph, if the statement of Pres. William Marks is taken as true.

Surely the preacher stated the truth when he wrote:—

Fear God and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man: for God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing.

WHO BROUGHT THE SALOON TO UTAH?

Under the above caption the Kinsman, a periodical published at Salt Lake City, Utah, in its issue for June, 1899, seeks to refute the claim often made by the dominant church in Utah that, "before the advent of non-Mormonism, into the Territory, when all the laws were made and enforced by Mormons, not a saloon could be found from Idaho on the north to Arizona on the south."

The Kinsman appears to have a strong case, if the evidence quoted can be relied upon; and we are of the opinion that the claim made of no saloons is a tricky dodge. There may have been no places bearing the name of saloon, but evidently there were places known as "Liquor Stores," and places bearing other titles where intoxicants were sold.

The Kinsman requests us to reproduce the points made in its columns, but for the present we must decline to do so, for the reason that we have not investigated the ground sufficiently to justify us in becoming a party to the promulgation of the theory.

If the Kinsman has been as unfair in this as in some other things, we should be humiliated if we repeated its statements. For instance; we find in the same issue of the Kinsman the following:—

LIQUOR SELLERS WERE WELCOME.

I was in the city council and moved that any person in the city of Nauvoo be at liberty to sell vinous liquors in any quantity, subject to the city ordinances.—History of Joseph Smith in Deseret News, April 18, 1855.

This is published in a separate paragraph without any explanation, and with the evident intention of conveying the idea that Joseph Smith favored the liquor traffic. If the quotation made by the Kinsman is correct, it only commits Joseph Smith to the opinion that whatever privileges were granted by the city ordinances should be extended to all citizens alike. The motto seems to have been: "Equal rights to all, and special privileges to none."

This purported motion does not even commit him to the indorsement of the ordinance, but simply to the theory of equal privileges under that ordinance. Yet if the Kinsman had quoted the ordinance it might have looked far different. No date is given as to when Joseph Smith is reported to have made the above remark; but we presume the ordinance referred to is the following:—

AN ORDINANCE IN RELATION TO TEMPERANCE.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Nauvoo, That all persons and establishments whatever, in this city, are prohibited from vending whisky in a less quantity than a gallon, or other spirituous liquors in a less quantity than a quart, to any person whatever, excepting on the recommendation of a physician duly accredited in writing by the "Chancellor and Regents of the University of the City of Nauvoo;" and any person guilty of any act contrary to the prohibition contained in this ordinance shall, on conviction thereof before the Mayor or Municipal Court, be fined in any sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars, at the discretion of said Mayor or court; and any person or persons who shall attempt to evade this ordinance by giving away liquor, or by any other means, shall be considered alike amenable, and fined as aforesaid.

Sec. 2. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed February 15, A. D. 1841.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

—Times and Seasons, vol. 2, p. 321.

Though the above may not be as advanced ground on this subject as now is taken by temperance advocates, yet for its time it was fully up with if not in advance of public opinion upon the subject, and with the enactments of other cities.

In this connection it will be interesting to note Joseph Smith's comment on the passage of this ordinance. He states:—

In the discussion of the foregoing bill I spoke at great length on the use of liquors, and showed that it was unnecessary, and operates as a poison in the stomach, and that roots and herbs can be found to effect all necessary purposes.—Ibid.

While the Kinsman persists in this kind of misrepresentation it must excuse us from reproducing its unverified statements.

MEAT DIET IN SUMMER.

The rapid increase of cancerous maladies among the people calls to mind the expressed opinion of eminent physicians, that prevailing excess of meat eating, practiced by the people with few exceptions, tends to promote cancerous troubles. The Lord in the Word of Wisdom has admonished that meat when used at all should be used "sparingly;" also that its use should be limited to "times of winter, or of cold, or famine. Habits (meat eating in excess, winter and summer, among the number) are formed, which cling to us, but can and should be broken when higher lines of action are demanded. They who have learned to free themselves from the consumption of flesh food in summer (except fish, which are not prohibited by the hygienic statute) find themselves improved in health and clearer in mind, also in better spiritual tone. Meat, especially beef, mutton, and pork, clog the system in summer and dull the brain. It heats the blood and tends to feverish and other baneful conditions, physically and morally. Break away from the habit, if you have formed it, observe the commandment to abstain, with other commandments and you will feel clearer, better. In the present day of variety in food products, easily accessible, it is not difficult to find or to make up excellent substitutes for meat diet. We have every necessary reason and encouragement to observe the word. We cannot afford to ignore it unless we can afford to fail in seeking for the blessings of health and strength, and the hidden treasures of wisdom and knowledge, and deliverance from the destroyer, promised to those who observe to keep said word, walking in obedience to the commandments. These are the days that are to try men's souls. We need to live by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God, if we are to endure, and to labor for the cause, and to overcome.

THE following notice of the death of Bro. R. J. Anthony is taken from the Salt Lake Tribune for May 30:—

DEATH OF ELDER R. J. ANTHONY.

R. J. Anthony, a missionary of the Josephite persuasion, died here yesterday morning at the home of Hans Lawerson. The immediate cause of death was Bright's disease of the kidneys. Mr. Anthony has been visiting friends in this section for a number of weeks; three weeks ago Monday next he was taken ill, and has been confined to his bed since. His home is in Iowa, where he leaves a wife to mourn his departure. He has a daughter married in Northern Utah and one in Mexico. Mr. Anthony was sixty-seven years of age. D. W. Wight, from Mr. Anthony's native State, has been at the bedside of the sick man for a number of days. Word has been sent to the home of the deceased inquiring as to the disposition of the remains, but at this writing nothing had been learned.—Sevier County Times (Elsinore), May 27.

It is known that the body was brought to Lamoni for burial. He fell at his post.

THE HERALD does not publish citations to trial. A General Conference resolution, adopted October 7, 1876, prohibits it. The resolution is as follows:—

Resolved, that the practice of citing members to trial on their church membership, through the Herald, be discontinued.

Those interested will please take notice.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. W. Waldsmith, Nebraska City, Nebraska, July 6:—

I baptized an elderly lady at Brownville on Monday. I found all well here when I came home. Sr. Forscutt, her sister, Mrs. Johnson, of Kansas City, and Mrs. Amy Parr, of this city, all left Wednesday morning for California. We wish them a pleasant trip.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Referring to comments in Bro. T. W. Williams' letter, present issue. The HERALD gave the press comment for what it might be worth. However, if Rev. Jeffries is opposed to the career of his son, we are glad to know it and to do him reverence therefor, so far as the HERALD is concerned, Concerning the reliability or unreliability of the press, it seems to the writer that we cannot take the extreme view of ignoring entirely its reports, but must discriminate, so far as possible, concerning its statements. We are certainly dependent upon the press for many good and valuable items which give us much light on matters of importance concerning the history of the past and the developments of the present and future. The closing paragraph of Bro. Williams' letter is applicable here, that relating to acquiring general knowledge.

At a late meeting of the Board of Directors President Joseph Smith resigned the position of President, and Dr. J. H. Hansen was appointed President of the Board, and R. S. Salyards Secretary, for the ensuing year. Bro. Hansen expects to travel and solicit students and funds for Graceland during the summer and fall months. He will shortly visit Western Iowa, and expects to reach other points later. He expects to make an active campaign in behalf of Graceland.

Bro. J. A. Gunsolley, of the college faculty, has gone to Kansas City, to enter upon an added course of study, to more fully prepare himself as an instructor in the Commercial Department. Educational work is progressive, and the competent instructor makes it a point in his work to keep abreast with the times. Bro. Gunsolley expects to visit several of the leading commercial colleges that he may make quite a thorough inspection of their methods, in addition to taking a regular "post graduate course."

Keep posted; the world is moving, uncovering, bringing truth and error to light, for the information and use of the race, in every branch of knowledge. Even the unknown frigid Arctic and Antarctic regions of the globe are being explored in the interests of knowledge, to contribute to man's good. The moving, overturning forces will never cease their operations until the world is emptied of error, truth reigns triumphant, and man is free.

Bro. F. C. Keck reports that the Spring River district tent was "blown to pieces" on the fourth; that the same tent was "cut to pieces" four years ago.

The Chicago Tribune, of July 7, contains the following "list of victims" of Fourth of July accidents, from which it appears that some change in the program of celebrating the Glorious Fourth is needed: Dead, 35; injured, 1,851; fire loss, $422,570; crackers, 849; sky rockets 129; powder explosions, 248; firearms, 238; cannon, 259; bullets, 60; accidents, 82.

Persons sending us selected poetry are requested to indicate it as such, otherwise it is published as "original" matter, unless recognized by the Editors.

Elder Angus M. Cannon, President of the Salt Lake Stake, of the Utah Church, has formally been charged with unlawful cohabitation, or polygamy, the warrant for his arrest being based on the filing of certificate of birth of a daughter born to Martha Hughes Cannon, his third wife.

CHURCH IN THE WILDERNESS; OR, "MYSTERY OF INIQUITY."—NO 3.

BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

This notable edict to force by arms the Catholic faith on all men, in the brief period of "three months," was issued in A. D. 532 or 533. But we will allow it eight years to be carried into full effect. This would give us A. D. 540 as the date at which to begin the reign of the "mistress of nations," with a twice crowned ruler, a Universal Bishop or Pope at her head. Her position in the wilderness of sin is fully confirmed. The church from her dizzy and exalted heights looks down on all the world with proud defiance, as with Satan's charms she is flattered and bewildered. The state, the political element of the great union effected, yields all deference to the ecclesiastical, the church. The professed Christian world, in reality destitute of all divine authority and light of God, desolate of all former endowment of heaven, her covenant with God broken, bereft of all divine help, is in "the wilderness," seen in her true state and light by the aid of the Holy Ghost only. As to her true condition, unseen by mortal mind, undiscerned by human intellect! "In the wilderness," a desolate and bereft condition in all relations to God, really, but "where she is nourished . . . from the face of the serpent." Some writers attach to this language the idea that the woman was taken by the eagle's wings to some wilderness place out of the reach of, away from the serpent. To sustain this view an idea has to be added to the statement not embraced in the language. It does not read, "nourished away from the face of the serpent," but "from the face of the serpent." Her nourishment, doctrine, came from the intelligent but wily face, the charming countenance of the Devil. It was "the doctrine of devils." Notice this phraseology, "nourished from," as compared with other scriptures:—

But there went up a mist from the earth.—Gen. 2: 6.

And God went up from him [Jacob] in the place where he talked with him.—Gen. 35: 13.

And Moses went down from the mount unto the people.—Ex. 19: 14.

So they gat up from the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.—Num. 16: 27.

From his right hand went a fiery law for them.—Deut. 33: 2.

And his strength went from him.—Judges 16: 19.

It shall come as a destruction from the Almighty.—Isa. 13: 6.

For I will bring evil from the north.—Jer. 4: 6.

And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts.—Ezek. 38: 15.

When he was come down from the mountain.—Matt. 8: 1.

And as they came down from the mountain.—Matt. 17: 9.

Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet.—Acts 1: 12.

But now is Christ risen from the dead.—1 Cor. 15: 20.

For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout.—1 Thess. 4: 16.

Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power.—2 Thess. 1: 9.

As the elements with which the wicked are to be destroyed at Christ's coming in glory come from his "presence," "and from the glory of his power," so was the church,—woman,—"nourished from the face of the serpent," in the wilderness of apostasy.

In effecting this memorable union of church and state, by the clergy in general councils, important questions had been discussed and decided, and from the very nature of the case we would be led to suppose that they discussed in those days something like the following:—

"Is the Holy Church of God separately considered from the state, the kingdom of God?" And no doubt it was while this and other similar questions were being discussed, that imperial majesty presided. And the sequel goes to show that this and all other such questions were decided negatively. The church to be the kingdom, must needs be so compromised and united with the state that she may be enabled to fly on the wings of political and military power. She must be clothed upon with the body political and resplendent, as the spirit with the body, hence, a unity of design in both, and then the spiritual head is doubly endowed with authority. In the contest for supremacy over the earth the church became impatient, like Abraham of old, to realize the promise (Gen. 16), and, like Abraham, she got into difficulty.

It is not necessarily the design of earthly governments to seek and make contests and acquire additional territory by force of arms. The constitutional design of the state is: 1. To form a more perfect union. 2. Establish justice. 3. Insure domestic tranquility. 4. Provide for the common defense. 5. Promote the general welfare. 6. Secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity. And the liberty by constitution provided includes the right to be just what anyone pleases to be religiously, as long as he does not infringe the rights of others, and here the state must stop, or go beyond its constitutional design. The constitutional design of human government, then, is to guarantee to, and secure man in, his natural, civil, and his self-chosen religious liberty, and not to religiously regenerate mankind. God's design in the establishment of his government, or kingdom, is man's salvation from sin, his moral and spiritual regeneration, to redeem him from religious doubt, uncertainty, darkness, condemnation, spiritual bondage, and death, as also temporal death. Into these religious regions the state never was designed to reach and rescue. On the other hand the church had no right to step forward and in any way encourage the state in any politically unconstitutional enterprise, as for instance, religious coercion, or through the state to infringe on the rights of others anywhere or time.

Divine inspiration in the state is designed for purposes altogether secular; his inspiration as diffused into his kingdom is for altogether dissimilar purposes. With the former, his design ends with man in this life legally, with the latter his design reaches on into the eternity beyond. If the eternal reward and undying condition can be attained by constitutional service to the state only, then was the mission of our Savior uncalled for. The kingdom of ancient Israel was the nearest a church-state of any of which we have record, but though established and governed by laws given of God, it could not save its citizens in eternal glory. Christ died for them. (Gal. 4: 4, 5; Heb. 10: 3-11.) And while Israel had at times "set up kings, but not by" the Lord's direction or sanction (Hosea 8: 4), and although in matters of state God exalts kings and rulers, and abases others (Dan. 2: 21), yet his purposes therein are that those nations, as nations, may be civilly, socially, and politically exalted and blessed. And though God providentially fortifies one land against another, or any one "land against all other lands," it is done by civil, not gospel means, not by his gospel kingdom. When for any reason civil governments are used to crush civil governments, it is not the part of the kingdom of infinite mercy to join hands as such, in the work of death, destruction, and woe! Is it?

Apply this question to to-day, and then suffer the questions, Which one of all the existing churches is "the stone" kingdom? The question can just as pertinently and as logically be propounded by the Catholic, Methodist, Congregationalist, or Baptist, in regard to his own church, as it can by the Latter Day Saints: "Are you quite sure that the Church of ———, separately considered, is that 'stone' kingdom?" And from their respective standpoints, what will be the reply? They all sustain the same relation now to the earthly governments that the saints do, do they not? If not, what is the difference? The conquests of our great and grand government will clear the ground for the liberty of them and the proclamation of their faiths as it does for the free advocacy of the faith. The fortification of this land against all other lands, so far as it relates to religion, gives the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints no preëminence over any other church. Does it? If therefore the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is not the "stone kingdom," "separately considered," it is not, conjointly considered with either the government or the land it occupies, any more than is any other church.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is or is not the "stone kingdom." If it is not, it is not the fulfillment, incipiently, of the prophecy of Daniel 2: 44, and may "be given to another people" than the saints (Matt. 21: 43), and may not "stand forever;" but if it is, we are assured that "the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure" (Dan. 2: 45) concerning it. The kingdom of God symbolized by the little "stone," like all other kingdoms, has its elementary, organic, and its developing stages before its crowning, supreme stage can be reached and realized. The initial elementary and organic stages of the kingdom are the only ones in which it can exist prior to the second advent of the king—Jesus. The visible revelation of its majesty can only be realized then. Until then its authority is administrative only. When he comes the judicial and executive powers of royal authority will be exercised by him and his authorized ones. Till then its gospel stages only can be asserted, so far as its prerogatives can be exercised by mortal man. If these conditions can characterize the "stone kingdom," the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is that kingdom "separately considered." What are the elements of the kingdom of God? Are they not "righteousness" everlasting (Daniel 9: 24), "on earth peace, good will toward men" (Luke 2: 9-14), "and joy in the Holy Ghost?" (Rom. 14: 17.) Are they not God's eternal "word," the gospel? (Matt. 24: 14; Luke 8: 11; 1 Peter 1: 25.) Is it not love to enemies and friends? To do good to all men? (Matt. 5: 38-48.) Is it not "honor" or the administrative authority by which its laws and ordinances are proclaimed and administered? (John 5: 44.) Are not officers and their prerogatives as apostles, prophets, evangelists, bishops, pastors, teachers, helps, governments, and deacons, as well, a leading element of the kingdom of God? (See 1 Cor. 12: 27, 28; Luke 10: 11; Eph. 4: 8-13; Phil. 1: 1.) Is not God's power to cast out devils, speak in other tongues, ordain men as ministers, and heal the sick, an element or principle of the kingdom of God? And are not all the foregoing elements of God's kingdom the sum of the gospel of the kingdom? (See Matt. 9: 35; 12: 28; Mark 16: 16-18; 1 Cor. 4: 18-20; 1 Thess. 1: 5.) Also, in "the gospel of the kingdom" is included the authority to raise the dead, when the time arrives for the kingdom to assert itself thus, and to immortalize man, reign, judge, and also execute the judgments written. But these last mentioned stages will be reached only when, and after the glorious coming of our blessed Savior has occurred.

Now the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints may not be "that stone kingdom," but it may be the kingdom represented by the stone, that God was to set up in the latter days as foretold by the Prophet Daniel. And as the king, in his dream, saw the stone representing that kingdom roll forth, and increase in magnitude and power till it filled the whole earth, we would be led to conclude that the thing represented by the stone, the kingdom, when set up, would increase in power and greatness till it will ultimately fill the whole earth. "It," the stone, as seen in the dream, and "it," the kingdom, as represented in the interpretation, though associated in revelation of a later day, must be kept distinct from each other in the mind of the student who would understand. Now the fact that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is, in the revelation (Doc. and Cov., sec. 65), so associated, is an evidence difficult to contest, that it is the kingdom represented by "that stone," in its elementary stage, and no other. Now read the entire section, keeping the distinction between the stone of the ancient dream, and the kingdom or "gospel of the kingdom," represented by the stone in mind, and what do we have?

The keys of the kingdom of God are committed unto man on the earth, and from thence shall the gospel roll forth unto the ends of the earth, as the stone which is cut out of the mountain without hands shall roll forth, until it has filled the whole earth; . . . call upon the Lord, that his kingdom may go forth upon the earth; that the inhabitants thereof may receive it, and be prepared for the days to come, in the which the Son of Man shall come down in heaven, . . . that thy enemies may be subdued.

The metonymy used here is characteristic of divine revelation. The stone here used as it seems interchangeably with the word kingdom, strictly speaking, rolled forth only as seen in the dream. The gospel or kingdom does or will in reality roll forth, for the interpretation of the dream is sure. Of the rich man's five brethren it is said, "They have Moses and the prophets;" that is, their writings. Try this:—

Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces.—Dan. 7: 23.

Is it the beast, or the kingdom represented by the beast here, that shall devour the whole earth? By the association of the representation of a future event or truth represented, in the inspired revelator, it is said:—

And the woman which thou sawest is that great city, which reigneth over the kings of the earth.—Rev. 17: 18.

Thus, as in such forms of revelation where a great truth is representatively or comparatively set forth, by symbol and interpretation, a city is a woman, a kingdom is a beast, and a stone is a kingdom, and a prophet is his writings. So we have the poets Scott, Longfellow, and "Bobbie Burns" in our libraries to-day. And we are thankful for these accommodations of language, for by it we learn that the Church of Latter Day Saints is "that stone" kingdom. Our "assumption" here is found in the revelation itself! This inspired association of the stone, the thing representing the kingdom, the thing it represents, is sufficient, so that with Daniel we may say,

But there is a God . . . that revealeth secrets, and maketh known . . . what shall be in the latter days.

Lift up your hearts and rejoice, for unto you the kingdom, or in other words, the keys of the church, have been given. Even so. Amen.—D. C. 42: 18.

The keys of the kingdom of God are committed unto man on the earth, and from thence shall the gospel roll forth unto the ends of the earth, as the stone which is cut out of the mountain without hands shall roll forth, until it has filled the whole earth; yea, a voice crying, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, prepare ye the supper of the Lamb, make ready for the Bridegroom.—D. C. 65.

Those holding the keys of authority in any department of God's work or kingdom take precedence, or open the door to that department or work or dispensation. The keys of the concluding dispensation of God's work in this world, before Jesus comes, have been committed and are now held by men.

For unto you (the twelve), and those (the first presidency), who are appointed with you, to be your counselors and your leaders, is the power of this priesthood given, for the last days and for the last time, in the which is the dispensation of the fullness of times, which power you hold in connection with all those who have received a dispensation at any time from the beginning of the creation; for verily I say unto you, The keys of the dispensation which ye have received, have come down from the fathers; and last of all, being sent down from heaven unto you.—D. C. 105: 12.

of times" (Eph. 1: 10), as here brought to light, is the final crowning one of all the dispensations; the one by which all in Christ, both in heaven and on earth, are gathered in one. By it the way is prepared for the coming of Christ to reign "over all the earth" (Zech. 14: 9), and rebuke the nations, and be the judge among them (Micah 4: 3). Then it is that he will "break" the heathen, and subdue all things unto himself (Ps. 2).

Daniel the prophet saw in vision, at a later date than the king's dream, the same governments, as was shown to King Nebuchadnezzar, represented in another form, or forms, and with many added particulars, or features. (See chapter 7.) The four successive universal kingdoms, Babylon as a lion, Medo-Persia as a bear, Grecia as a leopard, and Rome, "a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly," having "ten horns." The time occupied by the four great kingdoms here named, as they are covered by prophecy, is from B. C. 530 to A. D. 476, to the days of the ten kingdoms, in their rise, reign, and decline. Daniel saw, too, an eleventh horn rise among the ten from the head of the fourth beast, Rome. This horn represented a kingdom or dynasty also. It had eyes, and a mouth speaking blasphemies. In these two respects it differed from the ten horns, and it cast the truth to the ground, and "made war with the saints," and prevailed against them for a period of twelve hundred and sixty years. The ten horns represented ten kingdoms, so the angel told Daniel, and were the ten kingdoms into which the Roman government was subdivided, as early as A. D. 476-500.

The eyes and mouth of the eleventh horn represented the religious elements or powers that attached to it, and that did not characterize the other ten. They were purely political, while it was a combination of religion and politics. Being political, it is represented as a horn or kingdom; being also religious, it is represented to John the Revelator as "a woman" seated "on a scarlet colored beast." (Rev. 17:1-5.) The eyes and the mouth of this horn, or kingdom, represent that at its head is a line or succession of kings who claim to rule over mankind in all the world, in all things that pertain to their religion and their politics. But, as God alone through his Son Jesus Christ holds the right to dictate to man what his religion shall be, these kings assumed to be the equals of God, and because they blasphemously claimed this divine prerogative, they are called by Paul "the man of sin," and as these kings exercised force to make men be religious in their way, and used the officers of the law and the soldiers to force their religion on all men, and as God never forces man to be religious, but leaves man free to be religious or not as he chooses, these kings, or "man of sin," Paul says, would exalt "himself ABOVE ALL THAT IS CALLED GOD, or that is worshiped." (2 Thess. 2: 4.) This man of sin, or the eleventh little horn, this union of church and state, or fallen woman, this line or succession of kings, these popes, began their "reign of terror" over the bodies and consciences of men about A. D. 540, in the days of Justinian the Roman Emperor, and their power over both church and state continued till 1800 A. D., about the close of the French Revolution that began A. D. 1792, a period of twelve hundred and sixty years. This period measured the duration of the union of church and state. This period does not measure the duration of "the abomination that maketh desolate" the earth of the true faith, however, but it measures the period during which "the man of sin" uses temporal power to force mankind to accept the popes' dogmas. "The desolation of abomination," or the religious power and pretensions that desolated the earth of the true faith and church did not end in A. D. 1800. We know of no prophetic period that measures the duration of that power. But the twelve hundred and ninety years (Dan. 12:11) seem to measure the time during which "the daily sacrifice," or the true faith, or gospel worship and church, would be absent from the earth, or on earth be desolate. If this be made apparent, and the desolation of abomination was "set up" as early as A. D. 540, this latter period would bring us to A. D. 1830. It would take some time after the temporal power was wrested from the hands of the popes, to permit the people to become sufficiently tolerant, free, and enlightened to enable them to consider the full blaze of gospel light, or the idea of the restoration of the gospel again, by an angel of light. Thirty years was a short time, and the majority of the most enlightened are not ready for it even now. This we know, Daniel, in his vision, does not record all he saw, only the general outlines, or "sum of the matters" (7: 1), and hence does not describe the rise or fall of those governments, nor does he describe how the kingdom of God "in the latter days" was to have its beginning. (Dan. 2:28-34, 44.) But like as the cases of the earthly governments, he is shown them in their greatness, so he saw and described the divine government in its ascendent glory and zenith. He does affirm the transfer of all earthly dominion to the hands of the Son of God at and after his coming in glory and clouds (7: 13, 14), and that at this time "the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High" (verse 27), and this is the kingdom that "is everlasting," or that "shall stand forever" (Dan. 2: 44).

But this kingdom, like all others, has a beginning, and that beginning is separate from political power,—"cut out without hands,"—and its beginning and the manner of its initial establishment were left to the prophets of a later day than Daniel, (Jesus, Matt. 24: 14; Paul, Eph. 1: 10; to John the Revelator, 14: 6, 7; 18: 4, and to Joseph Smith the Martyr, D. C. 17: 1; 1: 4; 5: 3,) "in this, the beginning of the rising up, and the coming forth of my church out of the wilderness; clear as the moon and fair as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners," as well as to other and later prophets and apostles.

The kingdom of God to be established "in the latter days,"—in the end of this world," (see Matt. 13: 40-50),—is to have its ministry calling stage (Matt. 20: 6), or that stage when the seed is planted or sown (Matt. 13: 31), also its "leaven" working stage; during this stage its workings, like the yeast in flour or dough, seem to be almost invisible, like the work of fishing (Jer. 16: 16; Matt. 13: 47); but after patient, faithful labor the fruitage appears, faith, joy, hope, and love divine. And the kingdom cannot assert itself otherwise than thus at its progressive stages in the nature of the case. Man's intelligence, disposition, heart, and agency are all involved in this question. But the kingdom is at work. It is moving! We are getting out of the wilderness; we are approaching the plains of light. Darkness now will not be able to resist light. Error cannot now overthrow truth, nor wrong remove the right with the honest in heart. The word of promise is sure, "at evening time it shall be light"! God has said at other times, "Let there be light," and it has never failed. He has said the gospel, as administered by "the keys" of the kingdom, "shall roll forth" unto the ends of the earth, (D. C. 1: 4 and sec. 65; Dan. 2: 35,) and that by and by it shall fill the whole earth! The kingdom will assert itself in a powerful and visible way when God's time arrives, and whether it comes "with observation" or not now, the kingdom in its power will be seen, for so the word of prophecy assures, (see D. C. 83: 24,) and when the Lord shall come we shall then, if faithful, realize the rending of the earthly "kingdoms," and the throne of David's Son. And it will be further demonstrated that the church with the keys of authority given is the kingdom represented by "that stone" of Daniel 2: 34. From these considerations we conclude that the claim that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the kingdom represented by "that stone kingdom," is the very essence of the salt of truth itself, and not mere grains of salt mixed with a large amount of—dirt(?). And if we can see in the latter-day revelations referred to herein, the kingdom of God in fact, we are not drawing on our "imagination," but abiding in the truth and facts of God. Nor is it merely "assumed" "that the church as constituted is that . . . kingdom," unless it can be shown that there is another constitution for the kingdom than the one found in the gospel, and that will supersede this one contained in the principles of the gospel. Will it be necessary after awhile to introduce a new and different constitution for God's kingdom to the one now supplying it its organization? Or, will the kingdom as now existing, like the germinating seed, grow to the filling up or out, of its constitutional designs and requirements? Which? Let us remember that the constitution of the kingdom, as now existing, is fully adequate to the final gathering together "in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth."

The church or kingdom may not, nay, does not exercise all its constitutional prerogatives at any one time, especially while existing in its developing stages. But all its prerogatives of disciplining, organizing, growing, practicing, ruling, reigning, judging, subduing, and inheriting the eternal glories are provided for in the constitution already revealed, nor do we feel that it is vain, or "vanity," to behold the flattering prospects, as viewed from our outlook, by the faithful children of our loving Father, whose the kingdom is.

We have by following this diversion wandered at some length from the subject of the "Church in the Wilderness," but as we have been viewing the coming of the church out of the wilderness, perhaps by the contrast our subject may be seen all the clearer. It will be observed that as the taking away of the keys of authority from the church under the beautiful yet sad representation of the ascension of "a man child," left the church to wander off into the wilderness of darkness, left the church in a disorganized condition, it will be as plainly seen that until those keys of authority are brought back again, by heavenly restoration through angels and prophets, (Rev. 14:6, 7; Amos 3:7,) the church cannot be organized again by divine authority. In the absence of those keys of Christ, who has the right to organize again the church or kingdom according to the heavenly order and constitution? Who can tell where to begin, or when?

ORDINATION OF JOSEPH AND OLIVER.

During the few years past we have met representatives of the church who hold that an individual can ordain another to an office that he himself does not hold, and confer authority that was never given him. We notice also that the same position is taken in the church history; namely, that when Joseph and Oliver were ordained to the Melchisedec priesthood, that Peter, James, and John were not present, and that they simply ordained each other by commandment.

It does not seem clear to us, nor to be in harmony with God's way of directing his work; we therefore would like the privilege of presenting our objections to the positions taken, and hope, if we are wrong, that some of the brethren will kindly show us wherein, and remove the objections.

It is well understood by this church that one of the four purposes of the laying on of hands is for the ordination of the ministry. Furthermore there is no other method, at the present time, for ordaining, but by the laying on of hands.

All agree that when Joseph and Oliver were ordained to the Aaronic priesthood that the angel John the Baptist was present and actually laid his hands upon them. Now it would seem strange that if when they were ordained to the greater or Melchisedec priesthood, that it would be by commandment alone, and not by the immediate presence of Peter, James, and John.

As a people we have always placed great stress upon the subject or question of authority, claiming that God moves and works according to law that he has established; and that no one has the right to preach the gospel or administer in its ordinances unless they are ordained by proper authority. But if the first elders of this church were not ordained by some one holding the Melchisedec priesthood, then we have no succession in the church back to Jesus Christ.

Is it reasonable to hold that God would step aside from his usual way of doing business and permit, or appoint an individual to ordain another to an office that he himself does not hold?

In the revelation "on priesthood," Doctrine and Covenants section 83:2, we find that the conferring of the holy priesthood (Melchisedec) is traced from Moses, who "received it under the hand of his father-in-law Jethro," to "Esaias, who received it under the hand of God."

Seeing that God himself ordained Esaias, is it not reasonable to believe that if God did not ordain Joseph and Oliver, that he would send messengers who were empowered to perform the work? We verily think so. It would seem strange that if it was necessary for an angel to be sent to confer the Aaronic priesthood, that the Melchisedec could be given simply by commandment. Will some one please tell us why this should be the case?

Turning to Doctrine and Covenants 26:3, we read:—

And also with Peter, and James, and John, whom I have sent unto you, BY WHOM I have ordained you and confirmed you to be apostles.

It is claimed that because Joseph and Oliver made no mention of being literally ordained by these angels, they were not so ordained. This certainly is an unwarranted conclusion in the face of the foregoing quotation, which positively states "whom I have sent unto you [that does not mean that they did not come,] and BY whom I have ordained you."

This ought to be enough to prove to all that Peter, James, and John did the ordaining. If we take any other position we do violence to the revelation. But if no mention whatever was made of their being ordained by angels, it would be both unfair and unreasonable to claim that they were not ordained by the laying on of hands; just as unreasonable as the claim made by some of the sects, that because the New Testament nowhere states that the "thief on the cross" was baptized, that he therefore was not baptized at all. The facts are that the scriptures teach that baptism belongs to the gospel, and that it is impossible to "enter the kingdom of God" without it. So with ordination; the scriptures and the revelations teach that ordination to the priesthood is to be performed by the laying on of hands. This is one of the four special purposes for which the laying on of hands was taught and practiced in the New Testament history.

It is further claimed that the word "ordain" has several definitions. We grant it. So has the word "baptize" several definitions according to common usage, but only one according to the Bible. So with the word "ordain." Its scriptural signification, so far as setting apart the ministry is concerned, is to invest with, or to confer ministerial authority.

And now it came to pass that after Alma had made an end of speaking unto the people of the church, which was established in the city of Zarahemla, he ordained priests and elders, by laying on his hands according to the order of God.—Alma 4:1.

From the foregoing it is apparent that the "order of God," relative to ordinations, was by the laying on of hands. Surely in view of the foregoing we cannot consistently claim that scriptural ordinations can be made save by the laying on of hands.

If Joseph and Oliver received no literal ordination save by ordaining each other, then there seems to be a conflict with Doctrine and Covenants 17: 1, 2, which says:—

Joseph Smith, Jr., who was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the first elder of this church; and to Oliver Cowdery, who was also called of God an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the second elder of this church, and ordained under his hand.

If they had received no ordination prior to ordaining each other, then Oliver Cowdery would have been the first elder, for he was the first ordained; and Joseph Smith would have been the second, for Oliver afterward ordained him. Will some one please clear this up for us?

From the statement of Oliver Cowdery it seems that an angel had a hand in the ordination. He says:—

I was also present with Joseph when the higher or Melchisedec priesthood was conferred by the holy angel from on high.—History of the Church, vol. 1, page 64.

Note the words, "conferred by the holy angel from on high;" does that not sound as though an angel was present?

If it was not necessary that heavenly messengers should lay on hands to confer the Melchisedec priesthood, will some one please tell us what was the need of an angel coming to confer the Aaronic priesthood?

HEWERS OF WOOD.

Some time since I was informed that some held the opinion that the expression "Hewers of wood and drawers of water" did not appear in the Bible. I am inclined to believe that whatever form of words used in preaching finds its origin in the following:—

Your little ones, your wives, and thy stranger that is in thy camp, from the hewer of thy wood unto thy drawer of water.—Deut. 29: 11.

To this add:—

And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but let them be hewers of wood and drawers of water unto all the congregation; as the princes had promised them. Now therefore ye are cursed, and there shall none of you be freed from being bondmen, and hewers of wood and drawers of water for the house of my God. And Joshua made them that day hewers of wood and drawers of water for the congregation, and for the altar of the Lord.—Josh. 9: 21, 23 and 27.

THE MOTHER'S SACRIFICE.

There is no more beautiful sacrifice in life than that which a mother makes for her children. A woman who is left alone with a family of children and who brings about her death through overwork, which she cannot help, deserves one of the brightest crowns of martyrdom. And the children should hallow her memory and make it sweet and precious, not by mere words or use of phrases of endearment, but by lives that, were she living, would fill her with pride and gratitude.—Galesburg Republican-Register.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., July 1.

Editors Herald:—Time and passing events only serve to impress us more and more with the importance of the work intrusted to us as a church and body of people making singular and peculiar claims, in large measure antagonistic to popular and world-wide religious opinion.

We have perused with interest the many good things in current number of Herald, and have noted with satisfaction the high and yet practical gleanings from the world literature as found in Herald covers, and bearing upon our claim as a religious body. And while we may not expect to convert the world to our way of thinking in a hurry, yet, it is satisfactorily clear to our mind that things are coming our way quite rapidly; or perhaps, to speak more modestly, the world is finding out the truth that God through his own order and way has been trying to tell them for the last seventy years—that "they were all wrong."

To what extent men may be persuaded to allow the Almighty himself to correct these errors into which this old world has fallen, may be another question. The task and burden of making successful or acceptable witness of these great truths, however, is the work unto which we as a people are assigned.

Angel messengers and God's prophets and servants told the world more than threescore years ago that God's methods of salvation had been obscured, and that the primitive gospel faith and power and assurance by divine manifestation had suffered eclipse, and pointed clearly, intelligently,—and with such candor and honesty of purpose as rebuked hypocrisy and pretense,—the necessity of return to the "old paths" where, once more, the intelligent and hungry soul might "find rest." They have scorned the message, save the comparative few; and the disaster provoked by rebellion, not against man, but God, already threatens their house.

The Rev. H. D. Atchison says "the Methodist Church is face to face with a crisis" and "during the twentieth century would undergo startling changes." Why the need of "startling changes," if "the old time religion is good enough for me"? or if it was or is entirely safe to say and sing, "I'm a Methodist till I die"?

Rev. T. W. Strobridge admits "that for Christianity" "the tide is out," and that the liberals had "captured the field by proving that there was no need for any church." Rev. C. H. Zimmerman said it was true that the "tide was out," and his reason was, "The church was shedding no light on the social and economical problems of the day."

The Rev. John Nate said: "The mistake was that the doctrine of the Holy Spirit was not preached." What a pity it is that these people will not allow God's servants opportunity or privilege to explain matters and show them the way out of their troubles!

These gentlemen are laboring under confusion, as their Babel oratory clearly manifests! "The tide" for real "Christianity" is coming in, thank God; and only an apostate and unauthorized and emasculated Christianity—an hybrid system which men have invented, that is going out on the tide of a world-wide opinion, has been weighed in the balance and found wanting in vitality sufficient to warrant the claim of divine authorship.

It may be true, as says the Rev. Zimmerman, that the cause of their failure is because their church, as well as other churches, "was shedding no light on the social and economical problems of the day." But when we tell him and them that the Lord doeth nothing save he revealeth his secret to his servants the prophets, and that God by his own prophet has shed great light upon these questions, they have no ear for our testimony. And when Rev. Nate lays the cause of their threatened disaster to the lack of "Holy Ghost" preaching, he would probably be angry with and oppose Latter Day Saints who might charge him with persistently remaining with and defending a church or churches who "having a form of godliness" persistently and always deny the "power" by which Joel and Peter say God's "servants and handmaidens" were to be characterized and known in these "last days."

Matters are moving along satisfactorily in many respects in the Eastern district, but we are all liable to be careless of our spiritual growth and development, and to neglect the detail of our privileges, or to watch the "little foxes" which "spoil the vines" that promise nourishment.

We are expecting Elder F. M. Sheehy soon in Boston, from his mission in the Pacific Slope; also President Joseph Smith at our Cape Cod reunion.

Strangers continue still to attend our meetings, both social and preaching, with what permanent result we may not at this time declare; only prejudice and misunderstanding is being destroyed, and friends, if not converts, made for our cause.

In gospel bonds,

M. H. BOND.

MALAD, Idaho, June 7.

Editors Herald:—I came here to attend conference May 20, 21. We expected Brn. J. W. Wight, R. J. Anthony, and likely D. W. Wight; and the people here were disappointed a little; but as that is not a great rarity in these latter days, no very serious results ensued. However, after hearing of the illness and departure of our Bro. R. J. Anthony to the "shining shore," we understood the cause of the failure to respond on the part of our brethren. However, it is my opinion that self-reliance and trust in divine wisdom will successfully tide every disappointment in life, and good often results from the bitterest disappointment in earth life.

When armies fail to unite and cooperate as anticipated by the sagacity of the best planners in the drama of warfare, it devolves upon those on the ground to nerve themselves for extra duty and service, that the honor of the flag be maintained. "Hold the fort, for I am coming," is the signal from the heights overlooking the whole panorama under the Master's watchful eye. I do not ask you to fight the battles of Zion, said the great Captain; "I will fight your battles." All he asks of us is that we be true and loyal, that we study day by day to learn our duty, and do the same; that our eye be single to the Master's cause. Zion's cause must come forth as the "brightness of the firmament," "and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever."

If the children of Zion would only wake up, arm themselves with zealous care and love unfeigned, and do what the Lord has asked, for the welfare of his people, and for the establishment of Zion's cause in this the day of "small things," how very soon would the starry heavens shake in the behalf of the "pure in heart." All kinds of excuses are urged for the failure to strip ourselves of habits or sins which shut out the "showers of refreshing from the presence of the Lord." If I am given to profanity, how is my admonition to my brother to break away from his habit of lying to be made effectual? Let us each strive to get the beam from our own eyes; and if we do this, all eyes will see clearly. To rule by the law of love and unite in one all the forces in the Master's cause, calls for constant study and earnest desire before the Lord for wisdom.

Well, we have some earnest hungering souls in this valley, but the work as an active energy for Zion's redemption is at a low ebb. The tide seems to have run down about as low as it can or should go. It surely is time the saints did "awake to righteousness and sin not," if we are to be of those who will go in to the "marriage supper." "All have not the knowledge of God, I speak this to your shame," said Paul to the church at Corinth; and I dare say it can apply to many places today.

Under the circumstances I can say I enjoyed the conference here nicely, though pained to see how low the "campfire" has burned. Spiritual vigor and growth moves every impulse to assist in the Master's vineyard. It sadly needs pruning with loving care. It needs watering; culture which none but those can give who will give their whole heart's love in the work, as Paul said of Timothy to the Philippians (2: 20-22), not as recorded in 3: 18, 19. Pastors whose whole love is lavished with tireless care and loving zeal in the wisdom of the Lord, for the care and feeding of "the flock of God." Men and women who can and will give themselves fully and freely as Paul says, Philippians 2: 1-5. "I will raise up unto myself a pure people, zealous of good works." His word will not fail, and it is for me to say if I will be of that people. Every adopted son and daughter should be a mighty inspiration for good, and only for good, wherever they are.

I attended the Presbyterian prayer meeting here one evening, as I always do if I know of any such gatherings where I am. The pastor was absent, and the one in charge, Bro. Jones, asked me to occupy. I said I always aim to be ready for any good work. The subject was St. John 15: 1-18; a most excellent topic. After service a most cordial invitation to attend their gatherings was given me. The Spirit which teaches the truth "as it is in Christ" was there. What a power is the Comforter for good among men! What a holy energy it infuses through the deepest chambers of the heart, purifying and sanctifying unto the Lord every aspiration of that soul who is wedded to the work of the Lord!

I was up to Elkhorn, ten miles northwest, and held service and attended Sunday school in which Bro. Elias Richards is superintendent. Though but a boy in the work, he shows a zeal, which if fed and nurtured in the love and wisdom of the Lord, will make him a fruitful branch in the "true vine." The "Spirit enlighteneth every man through the world, that hearkeneth to the voice of the Spirit." To listen to and do the pleasure of the "good Shepherd," following none other call indicates a healthy flock.

In every branch of the church there should be one man and at least one woman whose whole time can be given to the care of the flock, to the young especially. When people care more for the pleasure, profit or fashion, fame or glory, of the world, than to promote the righteousness of God, the work languishes. Some can quickly understand the astringency of the word of God, but all should step up to their ideal in manhood or womanhood and follow that ideal through shadows or sunlight, come weal or woe.

To promote Zion's cause should be our thought and desire by day and by night. Now, dear saints, in all the land, let us sing,

"We feel it a pleasure to serve thee,
And love to obey thy commands," with the spirit and with the understanding also. Let us be wedded to the Lord. Then we will know what Millennial peace will be. Are we going to wait till the Governor rises up and shuts the feast door before we discern our nakedness? Can we not put on the "wedding garment" any place, wherever our lot be cast? "Resist the Devil, and he will flee from you." Jesus gave no heed to temptation, but replied with what was written for our admonition and learning, that we might become "wise unto salvation." "Yielding is sin," surrendering to the enemy; this is treason in the service of our country. It is treason to our best Friend.

This is a beautiful valley. What a glorious time the people might have if their hearts were only loyal to Him who fashioned in wisdom so many beautiful things to "please the eye" and gratify the mind and "enliven the soul"—that is, to those whose eyes and ears He has opened to catch the inspiration of the music of the spheres, the old love song of the spheres! It often seems to me that the people are like fish which have been snagged so much they are inclined to smile at all kinds of bait, or are become as in the days before the flood—fully set in their own righteousness, eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, etc. Yet multitudes, multitudes are in the "valley of decision."

The harvest is great indeed, while laborers, who truly labor for Zion, are few. Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that he send more laborers into the vineyard. Let us be "clean who bear the vessels of the Lord."

I staid several days in Pocatello, Idaho, enroute to Malad. Great need is there among a population of five thousand or more—a great railroad center—for gospel work. I only learned of three members of saints there, but they bear an excellent reputation for honesty. I live in hopes more ("such as shall be saved," for these should be excellent "helps" in the "harvest time") will turn wholly to the Lord.

Sr. Thomas Jenkins, of Samaria, is sorely afflicted. This has been a source of worry and anxiety on the part of some of the saints. About fifteen of us went over the Monday after conference here (May 22) and held prayer service with them and administered to her; but for causes best known to Him who doeth all things for the best, she has not recovered. Let us try and be one in the unity of the faith that our prayers be not hindered.

May the Master's Spirit flow more freely through the faithfulness of the sons and daughters of the Lord, for the convincing of unbelievers of the power of the gospel to purify the heart from sinful desire. May we be doers of the pleasure of the Lord, not deceiving ourselves. The Lord helps those who help themselves. By the prayer of faith, by watchfulness, by faithfulness, shall the children of Zion be redeemed in righteousness; and not in our own, but the righteousness of God.

Yours loyally for Zion's weal,

CHARLES ALBERTSON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 1.

Editors Herald:—We sail in about an hour. Everything is in ship-shape. Had a very nice time last evening at Father Knight's. It did me much good to meet the old veteran of former days. I was especially glad to hear from a living witness, and especially one whose memory is so clear concerning the days in Nauvoo as compared with the days of Brigham Young. The Religio met at his house last evening and rendered an entertaining program. I was especially glad to see that the society paper aimed rather to instruct than to amuse. After the Religio, by our request we were set apart for our ministry and special requests asked of our Father for our special needs. The Spirit spoke words of comfort, pointing out blessings if faithful, and warning of some special, unlooked for trial that would weaken our trust in Divinity.

Bro. T. W. Chatburn, whom we had known since we can remember, and also a member of the same quorum, assisted in the administration. Bro. F. B. Blair, with whom we worked eleven years ago, in St. Joseph, Missouri, was also present; also Bro. Holmes, of Joy, Illinois, as also his daughter and son-in-law, Bro. and Sr. Bean. Altogether we had a good and we trust a profitable affair.

In a few hours we will have only the memories of this and similar kindnesses to remember as they were shown us in Lamoni and Clinton, Iowa. We well remember the little company at the latter place that separated themselves from those of the world and waved us good byes. May they always keep themselves aloof from the evils of the world.

In bonds of extending peace,

J. W. PETERSON.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 29.

Editors Herald:—In your issue of the 21st I note you quote the following in relation to the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons bout: "Jeffries had the good wishes of his clergyman father out at Los Angeles, California. This wire was placed in his hands as he reached the ring: 'Jim, we know you will win. Keep good spirits. Be confident of our blessing.'" I feel confident this is a fake. I talked with the "Rev. Jeffries" myself and he expressed a desire that his son would be defeated, hoping that he would then forsake the ring, turn and serve the Lord. Jeffries may have received a dispatch, but to fasten it on his sire and then make a great "hubbub" over it, is the special forte of "yellow journalism." What care they for Christianity? Nothing, unless it serves their purpose. You cannot rely on anything the newspapers print to-day.

As the New York Sun editorially says on "the press," "The rank and file of the daily press of the whole United States is stifled with lies. Never in the history of civilization was there such a debauchery of the press, such an inundation of falsehood and fraud. The whole quality of the news it gets is debased, perverted, and infected, as necessarily it would be, having passed through the hands of swindlers." What a confession and arraignment!

"'Tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis 'tis true."

Truth is of secondary consideration with the American newspapers to-day. "How much money is there in it?" if answered substantially, so overshadows the moral principle involved that only too frequently it is relegated to the waste basket.

But suppose "Rev. Jeffries" is guilty as charged, what of his accusers, the newspapers? "Three pages in the Examiner (and other big papers) to describe the fight. Five inches on the fourth page to an event that threatened the life of the great French Republic." Why this contrast? Ah! "to reach the level of 'public taste' one need not climb, but dive he must; aye, deeper than a drop from Brooklyn bridge!"

What think you of the status of newspaperdom and its patrons when Julian Hawthorne, the pride of Massachusetts culture, writes up the fight for the leading American daily? John J. Ingalls, for seven years Vice President of the Senate, wrote up the former one. How slender the vail 'twixt civilization and barbarism! The great surging world to-day is but a step from savagery, and far too many are ready to glut themselves in scenes of blood. But the most appalling spectacle is the "savage" with "brains, talent, and education," ready to sell himself to lend the color of respectability to something as brutal as a slaughter house and dish it up for the "flower of civilization."

We can safely report some progress in church work in Southern California. I baptized five more here last Sunday, Mr. A. M. Greene, a very promising helper, among the number. The sentiment is practically unanimous for the erection of a church building at once. We have already raised six hundred and fifty dollars the past six weeks and purchased a lot. We have about seven hundred dollars in sight within a year to apply on the church. We expect to borrow enough to erect the building, the members of the committee going security therefor. We will then avoid a mortgage and the consequent expense and worry.

Owing to the kind consideration of the trusts, it will cost us some two hundred dollars more to build than before they cornered the market; but as no man can "buy or sell save he that had [hath] the mark" of the beast, we are compelled to pay tribute to that extent, there being no evidence of a decline, but rather a further advance in prices.

Could I but present our true condition to the many saints throughout the East and Middle West, I know they would help us in this laudable enterprise. We do need help, and trust the good Father will move upon some to contribute. The California saints have done nobly in the years gone by. They have cheerfully responded to the frequent calls coming from various quarters. I do not think they have ever asked for aid. Can you not, gentle reader, above your tithing and freewill offering, send your "mite" to help us along? If so, send to my address below.

Good reports still come from San Bernardino. Bro. George Wixom was lately ordained to the priest's office. He has a bright future, and will prove a valuable accession to the priesthood there. The new members are excelling the old in enthusiasm and consecration. In harmony with the counsel of the missionary in charge, the officers of the various branches have commenced an active nurture and pruning campaign. Nearly fifty per cent of the membership in Southern California are either "scattered," "lukewarm," or "cold." No special effort has been made to keep track of those removing from one place to another. Thus many are "past finding out." Branch officers, and the clerk especially, should keep track of all members, whether "at home or abroad." It is rather discouraging when the branch record contains the names of some two hundred members and you cannot locate more than half; the remainder being you know not where. If care was taken when parties first left a place to follow them up by correspondence, this undesirable condition of things would be avoided.

Experience satisfies me that this lax, careless way of doing things prevails to a large extent all over the church. Some systematic method should be evolved to solve this vexed question.

There is not much renown in reporting a general church membership of forty-two thousand, when possibly not over sixty per cent can be located physically or spiritually, and a too large percentage of the balance are in the doubtful column.

I am practically alone in mission service in this southern field. Bro. Gibson is too aged for general missionary work, yet does what he can in visiting sick and weak ones in San Bernardino and vicinity. Bro. Dana has been hindered most of the past year, and is not free yet, owing to an afflicted son, which affliction demands his attention; but his heart is in the work and he is doing what he can. Bro. Griffiths has gone "up north," and we now await reinforcements.

Those who have never visited California can scarcely imagine what a delightful climate we have here. Last winter, when nearly the whole country was held as with a vise in the grasp of ice and snow, it was one balmy spring day here. In fact, during February we experienced our warmest weather thus far. The summers are delightful unless one gets too far inland. Though in midday the sun's rays are very hot, yet the air is not humid nor sultry, and the nights are refreshing.

The cost of everything is extremely high, due, I am told, to the protracted drought. Berries of all kinds sell for about double what they do in Iowa and Missouri. There is plenty of all varieties of fruit, but debaring oranges, lemons, and apricots, the prices are higher than in the Middle West. Nearly everything sells by the pound here. Potatoes have been three and four cents, or about two dollars per bushel. They are down to one dollar and a quarter now. Apples very seldom get less than five cents a pound. The best butter retails for thirty-five cents. You can get some grades for twenty-five and thirty cents. Eggs are twenty and twenty-five; they will soon be thirty-five cents a dozen. Pineapples sell for fifty cents apiece; Bananas thirty cents a dozen.

I have received letters from various parts of the country asking advice as to the propriety of moving here. To all such I say: Don't come, if you must depend on your labor for your maintenance. If you have plenty of money to live on, or are assured of a good salary, then there is no more congenial place in the world than California. The labor market, as well as the professional field, is overdone and there are several men for every position; so do not come to California expecting to live by "the sweat of thy brow"—people here live by the sweat of the other man's brow. The "forty-niners" made a golden calf, and the Californians have been worshiping it every since. No people in the world are as devoted to their idol as the typical Californian. It's everything for the dollar, and they have no scruples as to charges, the only check being, "What will the market stand?" Money and pleasure sway the masses. As to religion, there is an abundance of the kind, but it would not stand a rigid examination by any code of ethics known to man.

There has not been leaven sufficient among our people to have any perceptible influence on the whole. At present there is more danger of worldly influence in the church than church influence in the world. We are working, hoping, and praying for a general awakening. Will it come?

Please say to Bro. Keck that I had no intention to detract from divine interposition by presenting the medicinal virtue of olive oil. But inasmuch as God has always demanded that whatever entered into ceremony and sacraments should be "pure and holy," my contention is untouched that "pure olive oil" should be used in administering to the sick. God has warned us against adulterations, and he could not consistently wink at our willful use of substitutes for the genuine article.

If the oil has no efficacy in this "divine sacrament" why specifically make it a part of the healing formula? Why not use water? Oil, pure olive oil, is commanded, and it must be because oil serves the purpose better than anything else. Impure oil taken into the stomach imposes an added task on the Almighty. He must intercept the evil effects of impurity thus forced on the system ere he can effect the cure for which said adulterated article was administered.

Our reunion will be held at Anaheim, beginning July 7 and continuing over the 16th.

The National Educational Association will convene here in two weeks, and it promises to be the largest gathering Southern California ever had. Expect to attend if at all possible, as I believe that we, of the general ministry, have been so eager to present our views that we have not been magnanimous enough to carry out the golden rule, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." If we expect men to hear our side, we must surely consider theirs. Our ministry should not be censured in acquainting themselves with the world's movements, even though it necessitates their attendance upon occasional lectures and the frequent perusal of published matter outside the realms of church literature. We haven't near all the truth there is in the world and should heed the Nazarene's injunction, "Go in and out and find pasture."

Ever yours for Christ,

Editors Herald:—I have at this writing a copy of the Herald dated July 9, 1892, on page 438 in which I see extracts from a letter from Bro. John Eardley, of Helena, Montana, stating the deaths of Elders John Parsons and John Livingston, and making mention of one Joseph Morris who revolted against the rule of Brigham Young in 1862.

Will someone give an explanation of Morris and John Banks in that memorable raid.

NEVADA, Iowa, July 5.

Editors Herald:—We are trying to get the gospel before the people, at Nevada by having preaching and Sunday school as often as we can get together. The saints here are in a scattered condition, and some do not make much of an effort to attend; others are doing all they can.

We are few in number. Some few nonmembers attend Sunday school, and like it. Good attendance at church. MRS. W. C. HIDY.

GALVA, Ill., July 1.

Editors Herald:—Your weekly visit is looked forward to by me, I being one of the many who do not have the privilege of attending church very often where the gospel is preached in its fullness.

I attended our district conference at Canton, June 1, returning to Galva so much stronger in the faith. I am so glad we know for ourselves that this is God's church. I rejoice this morning that I am a Latter Day Saint. I am young in this work, just a little over two years; but if brought to the test I would give up my life for Jesus before I would leave this church and join another.

My home is in Canada, and for three years I was an invalid. I was in the hospital for three months, and while there underwent a severe operation. My friends did not expect me to recover, but I thank my heavenly Father I rallied and improved enough to leave the hospital. The doctor advised me to have a change of climate, so I came to visit my relations here and in Kewanee. Not being acquainted with any but my relations, I concluded to go with them to the Latter Day Saints' church. I was what I thought a good Presbyterian, but soon found I was living on husks. After attending the services for two months I requested baptism. I was a sick girl and so discouraged because I was so weak, but was baptized on the 9th of February. When I was confirmed my heart leaped for joy, when that sweet promise came that if faithful I would have better health; and to-day I am a well girl. Dear saints, do you wonder now why I want to be true to God?

I long for the time to come when the Lord will come to reign on the earth. My prayer is that we may endeavor to be more faithful. I do think we ought to fast oftener than we do, especially when we want a prayer answered.

Our Savior said, "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting;" and so much depends on those words. Some may say, "I am not strong enough to fast;" but by more faith and prayer we will receive strength to go without one meal at least.

At our late conference it was requested that we should fast Sunday morning. We did so and were well paid. The Lord spoke to us through Bro. Lake, just what our soul was hungering for. What a comfort to know our Father will speak to us in these latter days! I ask you to pray that I may be faithful to the end.

I love Him far better than in days of yore,
I'll serve him more truly than ever before;
I'll do as he bids me, whatever the cost,
I'll be a true soldier, I'll die at my post.

Your sister in the faith,

MABEL A. BARNES.

ROSTOCK, Ont., July 1.

Editors Herald:—Our dedicatory services held at Arthur village, June 25, are now pleasant memories of the past. It will be remembered that nearly two years ago the latter-day work came to stay in Arthur region. Since that time many have been added to the number of those first baptized, until a membership of about seventy has been reached. The untiring, energetic labors of our worthy branch president, George Buschlen, have been the chief factors to bring about present gratifying conditions.

Last winter at a special business meeting of the branch a motion prevailed to build a church. The saints went to work with a will; nearly all contributed very sacrificingly, and now they present a place of worship for the accommodation of saint and sinner, worth nearly seven hundred dollars. The church was dedicated, and not a cent of debt against it.

The church occupies a pleasant locality, easily reached by all. At the rear of church is a commodious shed 24 x 66, which proffers special advantages to farmers. Indeed, it has already proved to be of great value, for so great was the crowd at the dedicatory sermon we were compelled to take to the shed, which was all seated ready for the throng.

Elder R. C. Evans preached the sermon. He was at his best; carried his vast audience with him for about an hour and a half; text used, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it."

The speaker had occasion to refer to the evangelistic work of Messrs. Crossly and Hunter, now being carried on in the village. All we care to say about that reference is that we sympathize with those who sympathize with said evangelists. Of course Elder Evans sympathized with them (?) in his usual way. Crossly and Hunter felt the smart and were down next morning bright and early to where Elder Evans was stopping. Their plea was, "Peace, peace!" but there was no peace, for Evans castigated them again. The Elder preached again at 7:30 to an overflowing church. People could not begin to get in.

We look for big results in Arthur village, if the saints will only seek to live the Christ. One notable feature about the church is that directly over the outside front door is painted in large bold type, "An Open Bible and a Free Pulpit;" while over the pulpit on the wall is a bronze motto: "Let There Be Light." May the good work go on.

In bonds,

EDITED BY FRANCES.

ROCK ISLAND, Illinois.

Sister Ida:—After reading your article in Herald of February 1, I am impressed to write a few lines. I agree with you that it is indeed sad news to hear, that many of our young are leaving the church. I think the fault is largely with the parents. They teach them the first principles, and at the age of eight or thereabouts, they are ready for baptism. After this sacred ordinance is performed, the parents think they have done their duty and their child is in the hands of God, and he will take care of him; therefore they cease to teach them, and they are left to starve to death spiritually.

In St. John 21:15, Christ said, "Feed my lambs." I think they are his lambs and should be fed until they reach the years of accountability, then they are no more his until they have entered the sheepfold through the door, which is baptism. They are then lambs of the fold, and must be fed on the milk of the word, "not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works," of baptism, etc. (Heb. 6: 1). And as they grow stronger and older, feed them on the strong meat. If this is not done, how do we expect them to withstand the temptations of this wicked generation?

I do not for one minute doubt God's wisdom, and if we live up to all his commandments, (and his commandments are not grievous,) and come up higher, as he has exhorted us from time to time, we would enjoy a greater portion of the Spirit, and when teaching our children they would partake of that same Spirit, which is grander than all the pleasures of the world. If we would do this they would have no desire to leave the church.

I fear that all-important part—family worship—is too often a stranger in the homes of the saints; and the little ones should also be taught to pray, not a formal prayer, but for the blessings they need daily. We should teach them of their heavenly Father, until they learn to know and love him, so that when they pray to him they will feel that they are speaking to a God who is very near to them by his Spirit, and who is able to hear and answer their prayers. A God who will guide their footsteps in the path of rectitude and right if they will only let him. Not a God who is in some foreign land, whom they would fear to approach lest they offend him.

I have been blessed with five dear children, one has been baptized. On a cold winter day she went forth in obedience to the command, with a determination to serve her Lord and Master. She is but thirteen years old, but takes her part in the family worship, and is able to defend the cause when spoken against by her playmates. This winter my boy has requested baptism, which will be attended to as soon as an opportunity presents itself; and, by God's help I intend to continue to teach them, and to pray with and for them, and leave the result with the Lord.

I do not think it is right to raffle, either to raise money for the church or any other purpose, for many times much more than the article is worth is realized by raffling it. This is not honest, and we are taught that we should shun the very appearance of evil. I think the saints should be very careful not to bring reproach on the church.

Ever praying for the onward and upward growth of all God's children, I ask the prayers of all that certain things that I have long and earnestly prayed for may be granted, if it is God's will; if not, that I may be resigned. In hope of eternal life,

MARY STRANG.

PROVERBS FOR THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.
"Keep the schoolroom well ventilated at all times."
"Be sparing of commands; but whenever you do command, command with decision and firmness."
"The best way to keep children quiet is to keep them busy."
"To be true is greater than to talk about truth."
"To be is greater than to seem."
"If a thing isn't worth doing, it isn't worth beginning. But a thing that ought to be done ought to be begun."
"Leaving things behind at the right time is as good a service as taking hold of the right thing to begin with."

"The dissipations of youth are drafts upon old age, payable at compound interest, about thirty years after date."

"Moderation is like a silken thread running through the pearls of all the virtues."

"Few people distinguish between dissipation and pleasure; dissipation weakens, while pleasure helps and strengthens us."

"It is those who do not care for what this world can give them who finally have the best there is in a higher world."

"In making or enforcing rules look back to your childhood; recall your own experiences, your own impulses. Put yourself in the place of the child to be governed, then act."

"Regard all pupils as trustworthy until you find them otherwise. Children rarely forgive a teacher who suspects them of wrong when they are innocent."

"Do your own governing as far as possible; it weakens your authority to call upon the superintendent for assistance." J.

WHAT DO OUR PUPILS READ?

BY S. A. BURGESS.

In a large number of observations among children of from six to fifteen years old, inclusive, it has been found that their early heroes are likely to be those of their own acquaintances; but later, their ideas of what is heroic in man or woman, their ideals, are radically affected by the books they read. Their books thus form their ideas of right or wrong, their moral code, for they will feel it beneath them to do anything their hero or ideal would not do. Hence what they read, taken as a whole, has much to do with making or marring their character in life.

The Sunday school takes but a few hours each week for the preparation and recitation of the lesson, so if a teacher is to do his class any lasting good, he should find some other way of reaching them in their daily lives. What better way can be found than through their reading matter? He cannot select their associates for them, but if he can influence their reading, they will not long care for inferior company. The books he selects should be instructive; they must be interesting, else he will discourage and disgust his pupils before they get fairly started.

One teacher tried the plan of having her pupils keep a list of all the books they read during the year, and at the end of the period she called a special meeting, where these lists were compared and discussed. Thus they had a pleasant evening, and she had a splendid opportunity to learn what they had been reading, and so what class of literature they were capable of enjoying. Thus she would select something a little more advanced, and while cultivating a taste for what is best in literature, exert a powerful influence on their daily lives.

It is not necessary that they should read much, but that they should read well. To paraphrase: A ready reader may not make a good, that is, a thorough reader; but a good reader will in time make a ready reader. The one who has read one good book, and digested its contents, is better read than he who has read many but studied none. We never hear a person who has read a great deal of light literature called well read, but we do hear men so called who know their Bibles thoroughly.

We are told to seek out of the best books words of wisdom, to seek learning by study as well as faith. So it is clearly worth that teacher's while who has entered heart and soul into the Sunday school work, to learn what their pupils are reading in their leisure moments, and try to better prepare them for the greater school beyond. When one has completed his college career, there is a commencement day to enter the larger school of life. But is not death a greater commencement day to introduce us into the greater schools under the tutorship of Christ? Our education is not formed so much from our schooling, as from what we read in our leisure moments, and this is the portion of a pupil's life a thorough teacher most desires to influence.—St. Louis District Sunday School Newspaper.

A CHILDREN'S day program was arranged for and nearly completed, but on account of an unexpected and unusual amount of work coming in, it was impossible to complete it in time for the majority of the schools. We very much regret the disappointment, if such it was to anyone; but it was the only thing that could be done under the existing circumstances. We hope that all schools will arrange to give their schools some special work during the summer. It is one of the many ways of interesting, holding and increasing the numbers of your school.

One feature of the contemplated program for children's day was the instruction and encouragement and consecration of the children to the service of the Lord. We trust this feature of the work will not be overlooked in any school. If there is a child over eight years of age that is not a member of the church, the child should be taught the necessity of being baptized, and encouraged to take the step. While it is not wise to over persuade the child, it is not wise or right to let them go uninstructed on this point. Parents should studiously seek to perform their full duty on this line. Read paragraph 4 of section 68, Doctrine and Covenants.

"And again, inasmuch as parents have children in Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized, that teach them not to understand the doctrine of repentance; faith in Christ the Son of the living God; and of baptism and the gift of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of the hands when eight years old, the sin be upon the head of the parents; for this shall be a law unto the inhabitants of Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized; and their children shall be baptized for the remission of their sins when eight years old, and receive the laying on of the hands: and they shall also teach their children to pray, and to walk uprightly before the Lord."

averse to any infringement of the principles of right therein involved; and, whereas, we believe that the teaching and practice of polygamy is an act of open rebellion against this government, and is an abomination in the sight of God, and is contrary to the laws of the land, and especially in violation of the laws of the State of Utah. And believing that a lawbreaker should not be a lawmaker; and, whereas, Brigham H. Roberts, congressman elect from the state of Utah is an open and avowed advocate of the doctrine of polygamy, and is living in the practice of the same, having three living wives; Therefore, be it resolved, that we earnestly protest against the seating of said B. H. Roberts in the congress of the United States; and be it further resolved, that a copy of these preambles and resolution be forwarded to the representative of this congressional district at Washington, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the leading papers of Lansing, Grand Rapids, Detroit, and Saginaw. PASTORAL.

What are the elders and priests in Pittsburgh district doing? What have you done, and what are you going to do? Elders J. Craig, O. J. Tary, L. D. Ullom, J. Reese, C. E. Miller, G. W. Hull, R. Perrie, and J. Moxon; also priests W. H. Forbes, Thomas Gaskill, and W. E. Rush are moving out in the line of their calling, while if there be others equally active I am not conversant with the facts.

All told, there are quite a number of elders and priests outside of the above number, in the district, that we hear nothing of from one year's end to another, only as the branch reports are read at the district conferences. Shall I ask why they were ordained? Are they serving the needs of the church as their office demands? Do they feel secure and at ease in Zion, with such grave responsibilities imposed upon them? Were they called of God, or by man? If by man, a sad mistake was made by the man calling some of them; if by the Lord, a serious matter confronts those called if they do not show themselves approved, by moving out at least in the regions about home, making efforts to get doors open for themselves and others.

To illustrate: a branch with five or six elders and six or seven priests, and all these do in the way of preaching, save now and then, is to preach when his turn might come Sunday night in the branch, which would be once in twelve or fourteen weeks, and it might not average that all round. Quite a school of practice, twelve or fourteen weeks between opportunities given by the president of the branch, as of course he does not wish to be partial. Following such a course, how long shall we have to wait to have men "approved" to send out anywhere to help save sinners? At the rate things are moving in this line in our district, the much talked of millennium for such faithful (?) workers is a long way off.

The active laborers behold the vastness of the harvest, and deplore the limited number of laborers. The number of elders and priests virtually doing nothing, so far as preaching and securing opportunities, is far greater than the number working with might and main—making the sacrifice of all that is most dear—while dozens who have been ordained to holy callings not venturing a "Sabbath day's journey" on Sunday to try to get a hearing.

I will use two priests to illustrate, namely, W. H. Forbes of Beaver Falls, and Thomas Gaskill of Fayette City, Pennsylvania; both work hard every day to support their families, one a machinist, the other a miner. The former was ordained in November, 1898, the latter in March, 1898. Bro. Forbes has been preaching as often as three and four times a week regularly, and working hard every day; he seeks new openings, and is becoming an able defender. Bro. Gaskill is preaching, and is an active, zealous agent in the hand of God, and both of these men will yet become men of power, if they but continue as they have begun. Their natural talents as speakers were not above the medium, but realizing that the work demands earnest effort by all, and that they must answer for the use or abuse of the talents given, they willingly move forward, honoring their office, and God is honoring them, and they are reaping already their sowing; they are humble men, and the Lord says, "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted," and as they honor and are content in the office they hold, God will call them, doubtless in his own due time, to higher stations and responsibilities, because of proven worthiness.

Let all others emulate (a striving to equal) their example by pushing out, and not bury your talent, or have your talents taken from you and given to others more worthy.

And to the presidents of branches let me say, as president of the district, I desire your hearty cooperation in this serious matter that confronts us. Urge upon everyone under your charge who, by virtue of his priesthood, has authority to preach, to move out,—one, two, three, four, or five miles (or farther) from home,—on Sundays at least, and help get this doctrine we claim to love so well before the people, and those who will not, report the same—name and address—to president of district, and further steps may be taken to draw the line between the willing worker and the unwilling. We cannot afford to have men holding priesthood, idle from year to year.

Again, from this time on, be very sure that men to be proposed for ordination to any office are of the Lord's choosing, and that they will at once move forward in the line of the duties imposed. There have been mistakes made in the past in ordaining men, as results plainly show. What honor is there to the branch or church to have a host of men holding priesthood doing nothing save when an opportunity is offered now and then in the branch.

I hope our next district conference will take this matter in hand in such a way as to awaken the sleeping, inactive priesthood, and if needs be give them a limited time to get awake and on their feet, after which those who will not arouse to activity, revoke their license, that the church may learn who are at their every post of duty, for we are in an enemy's land, and it is one of the essentials that all guards at their several stations be wide awake.

Some may think I am harsh, but I venture that not one of the faithful workers will object to what I urge upon the priesthood, for, "Rebuke a wise man and he will love thee."

As your presiding officer for a time, I must speak. It is high time; delay is dangerous. I think it meet (necessary) to stir you up, by putting you in remembrance of your duties. May God continue to bless the faithful, valiant laborers in this district, and crown their labors with success. Also, that he may move upon the indifferent and careless, that they may see themselves as he sees them, and come forward to the front and help onward in the conflict, and not fall, or remain behind unworthy and dishonored.

REUNION NOTICES.

The Southwestern Iowa reunion, or the reunion of the Fremont, Pottawattamie, and adjoining districts, will be held in the grove of Bro. D. Hougas, near Henderson, Iowa, commencing Saturday, August 19, at ten o'clock a. m., and continuing over the second Sunday.

The arrangements are completed as far as possible at the present time and are as follows: Dry wood on the grounds free. Provider for horses at market rates. Straw for beds free on grounds. Straw near by may be had for horses free. Bed springs may be rented for thirty cents for the entire session. Tents may be rented: 10 x 12, 3 foot wall, $1.85; 12 x 14, 3½ foot wall, $2.10; 14 x 16, 3½ foot wall, $2.60, for the entire session, delivered on the grounds. The committee will assist any who need help in setting them up. Please note carefully: 1. That all orders for tents must be received by me before August 13. 2. That tents ordered must be paid for whether you use them or not, as this is the requirement of the tent firm at Omaha. But of course you can countermand your order any time before the goods are shipped from the house. 3. That you will have no care of the tent at the close of the meeting. All you need to do is to move out and the committee will care for the tent. We suggest that the two larger sizes of tents are the better suited to your comforts. No tents will be sent for unless ordered.

If you wish to purchase a new tent, we can get it for you at the wholesale price. Write us stating about size you want and we will give you prices.

Provisions, including fresh bread, will be kept on the grounds. Fresh meat delivered daily. We will be able to provide board and lodging for a limited number on and very near the grounds. Write ahead if you wish board or lodging. Board $3 per week, including lodging $3.50 per week.

The grounds are nicely located, and heavily shaded and sodded, and large enough to accommodate two hundred tents nicely. Is easily reached by wagon or train. The committee has done all it could to make the accommodations complete, and look and hope for a very large attendance.

Bro. Heman C. Smith, Isaac M. Smith, Henry Kemp, and others of the missionary force are expected. The Sunday school work will be represented fully, and be in charge of the General Superintendent and district officers. The new district tent has been completed and will be used. Prospects are good for an interesting and profitable time. Branch presidents in the districts interested will please to help us to advertise the meeting. Any inquiries directed to me will have careful attention.

By the secretary of committee,
T. A. HOUGAS.

Since our former notice of the St. Louis district reunion was written, have succeeded in securing some favorable concessions from the car line and tent people, which will assist materially in making our effort a success. Can now furnish the small tents 10x12 $1, and 12x14 for $1.40 for the entire ten days. This to include putting them up and taking them down, nothing for you to do but move in and out. There will be an eating house on the ground, conducted by the park people, lunch in any quantity, or by special arrangement regular meals twenty cents each. The dates are July 21 to 31 inclusive. Please remember this is our first effort of the kind in the district, and your support is needed. Good speakers will be present. The Sunday school and Religio properly represented, and it will be a profitable as well as a pleasant time for you. Such are the indications at least. For further particulars, write J. C. Hitchcock, 2507 Slattery Street, St. Louis, Missouri. By the committee,

W. O. THOMAS.
WM. JACQUES.
G. F. BARRACLOUGH.
J. C. HITCHCOCK.

The undersigned committee wish to make the following report. We secured the amphitheater and park at Nine Wonders, in Cedar County, Missouri, to hold services in, from August 11 to 21. Camp ground just north of the park, and west of railroad switch. Pasture fifty cents a team for ten days, or three cents a day per head. Good dry wood will be furnished on camp ground free. Hay, corn, bread, and other conveniences will be on the ground. Anyone wishing tents must notify John Hardacre, at Veve, Missouri, on or before July 15. Give size of tent wished. Price will be for tent hire and freight. A lunch counter is to be on the ground, to serve those who do not wish to cook. Straw or hay will be on hand for bedding. This camp is within twenty rods of railroad station. Cool and pleasant, with all the natural advantages one could ask for. Come one, come all, and let us have a spiritual feast. A special request to the ministry: Come, we expect those in charge to be with us Brn. I. N. and D. C. White. Come with the Spirit and songs of rejoicing.

WM. LOWE.
A. OGLESBE.
G. W. BEEBE.
JOHN HARDACRE.

A reunion will begin September 15, and end September 25. It will be at Berry's Ferry, Indian Territory, on Neosho River, twenty miles south and a little east of Baxter Springs, Kansas; two miles north and two miles east of Fairland; two miles north of Prairie City, on Frisco railroad. The brethren will furnish a hack to haul the saints to and from Prairie City. Wood and pasture will be furnished free by Mr. Berry. Good speakers will be in attendance. Tuesday, the 19th, will be devoted to Sunday school work, in charge of Sr. E. A. Davis. Come and get acquainted with the Lamanites and territory people. Good spring water to drink. Come prepared to take care of yourselves; missionaries will be cared for. Those wanting tents must write to J. T. Riley, Fairland, Indian Territory, so he can order them. By order of committee: O. P. Sutherland, J. M. Richards, F. C. Keek; sub committee: J. T. Riley, W. Hillen, G. Rhonermus.

BISHOP'S AGENTS' NOTICES.

To the Saints of Clinton, Missouri, District:—The undersigned having been appointed Bishop's agent for said district, takes this opportunity to let the saints know where to send tithes. Address: G. W. Beebe, Sen., Lebeck, Missouri. In order to start right, make an inventory of all you have. If in debt subtract the debt from the full amount. The remainder is yours less one tenth, which belongs to the Lord. As fast as you can get in shape to turn his part in, it is your duty to do so. You have no right to use the Lord's money while the missionaries' families are in want. We will take the tenth of your produce at its actual value. So don't wait to get $50 or $100 to send at once; but come with your pennies and dimes. Ten cents per months from each member would pay all that is due, and leave a surplus. Come down to strict economy and you will see the Lord's work loom up as never before. I would like to record the name of every one in the district on the tithing list.

Branch agents, appointed by Bro. D. C. White, will continue to look after branch tithes, and remit to me what is not absolutely required for the worthy poor. Come to the help of the Lord. Our covenant in the waters of baptism was to serve the Lord with all our might, mind, and strength; with all we have and are. Observe this and God will bless abundantly. Neglect it, and losses and disasters are the history of the past. We cannot afford to tempt God.

I am your brother and fellow servant,
G. W. BEEBE, Sen.,
Bishop's Agent.

He was carried to his last resting place by his comrades of the G. A. R., of which he was a member, on Saturday, June 17, from the United Brethren church hard by. His high esteem was attested by a large number of sympathizers at the funeral. Elder J. M. Terry, of Chicago, preached the sermon, showing the complete atonement wrought out by the Christ. Rev. Clark, pastor of the church in which the services were held, offered prayer and the benediction. Peace to the ashes of our brother.

She came to Omaha over forty years ago with the Mormon immigration to the west. She with her family remained, and was baptized into the Reorganization May 6, 1866, at De Soto, and has been a firm believer and earnest worker ever since, dying strong and contented in the faith. True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale.

Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.)

Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844,—to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

SENTIMENTS OF AMBASSADOR WHITE.

The following London dispatch to the Chicago Tribune, of July 9, in an account of honors paid to Grotius, said to be the father of international law, contains statements from Ambassador A. D. White which will prove of interest in view of the fact that his late work on the higher criticism of the Bible was written from the standpoint of a pronounced evolutionist. Considering the prominence of Ambassador White as an ex-educator (formerly President of Cornell University), a writer on theological questions, and a diplomat, his statements are significant:—

It is but seldom that the former President of Cornell University, author of the modern conflict between science and religion, strays near the borders of the theological realm, but there was one passage at the end of his address in which he trod close to sacred precincts. Long before the days of Paley many eminent men discoursed on the evidences of religion to be found in natural theology, but few expected to find evidences of design in international law, and fewer still ever expected that Mr. White would be the man to reveal them.

Grotius based his system upon an antiquated theory of theology, but Mr. White thinks that Grotius was probably nearer right than many of his critics. He said:—

May it not be that in the distant future international law, while basing its doctrines mainly upon what nations have slowly developed in practice, may also draw inspiration more and more from that power in the universe, not ourselves, which works for righteousness?

But still more surprising was Mr. White's invocation of the shade of William of Orange, "The Silent," in order to suggest the possibility of intelligent observation, if not of communication, between the other world and this—a spiritist doctrine which Ambassador White was always supposed to have held in special disdain. Yet what spiritist could wish for a more definite expression of hope and belief than is to be found in the following passage:—

But if the dead, as we fondly hope, live beyond the grave, if undisturbed by earthly distractions they are all the more observant of human affairs if freed from earthly trammels.

Their view of life in our lower world is illumined by that infinite light which streams from the source of all that is true and beautiful and good. May we not piously believe that the mighty and beneficent shade of William of Orange recognized with joy the birth hour of Grotius as that of a compatriot who was to give the Netherlands lasting glory? May not that great and glorious spirit have looked lovingly upon Grotius and recognized him as one whose work was to go on adding in every age new glory to the nation which the mighty Prince of the house of Orange had, by the blessing of God, founded and saved?

When he spoke he was standing at the tomb of Grotius, and a few paces from the grave of the jurist there stood a monument to the great Dutch hero, William the Silent.

In his peroration Mr. White said he seemed to hear a voice bidding the peace conference be brave, true, and trustful in that power in the universe which works for righteousness.

IS DR. GUNSAULUS A HERETIC?

Another heretic has entered the arena and flung down his gauntlet, not tentatively nor timorously but audaciously and nonchalantly. Dr. Gunsaulus, reared in Methodism and late the Paladin of Congregationalism, stands before the members of the Congregational Association and unblushingly tells them that modern orthodoxy is so unprogressive that every one of its doctrines may be made heterodox by "a life inspired by the spirit of holiness." Proceeding on the lines of this basic statement, he directed the battery of his rhetoric at the inspiration of the Old Testament and riddled the patriarchs and prophets with grape and canister.

The older ministers of the association sat speechless with indignation and the younger ministers breathless with doubt as they were told that the Psalms of David are not so inspired as many of the productions of the modern poets; that Tennyson's "In Memoriam" marks a much higher and finer wave of inspiration than the Songs of Solomon; that Browning's "Death in the Desert" is "truer in its inspiration" than the Book of Ecclesiastes; and that "the inspiration with which the soul of Lincoln trembled and was yet steadied when he wrote the Emancipation Proclamation is greater and diviner than the inspiration with which Joshua commanded the massacre of a prostrate foe." In a word, Dr. Gunsaulus believes that inspiration is as possible in the present as it was in the past, as possible in Chicago as in Galilee, as possible in any individual as it was in the apostle or the patriarch. It may be inferred from the tenor of his address that he also believes modern inspiration is superior to the ancient, and that the poets and seers of to-day have reached a higher and finer inspiration than those of the days of "the sweet singer of Israel."

If this belief is the outcome of broader development of orthodoxy; if, as Dr. Gunsaulus declares, "the orthodoxy of to-day is the result of a long process of evolution and growth, and almost if not everything in its structure which influences the moral life of the time has had to make its way against the orthodoxy of yesterday," it would seem eminently the proper time for the church to take observations and find upon what course it is sailing, and whether its rigging and steering gear are not of too antique a pattern for further use. This can be easily done by the Congregational brethren, as their sailing directions are more liberal than those of some others in the fleet.

It may be that Dr. Gunsaulus is all wrong in his diagnosis of inspiration. If so, it should be demonstrated, and David, Solomon, Joshua, Isaiah, and the rest should be vindicated. The Tribune presumes that even Dr. Gunsaulus as poet will not claim that Browning or Tennyson has ever reached the sonorous majesty of the Psalms of David or the monologues of Job or the sensuous beauty of Solomon's songs of love, so the investigation need not go beyond the technique of inspiration. It may result in finding that Dr. Gunsaulus is heretic, but no penalty can be attached, for he is now a free lance. Upon his present rostrum he is free to say what he thinks. He is not speaking to Congregationalists but to the people in the People's Church. He appeared before the Illinois Congregational Association evidently not so much as a representative of that denomination, to take part in routine proceedings, as to exhibit to the brethren the spectacle of a butterfly which has burst the fibers of the chrysalis and is exulting in its freedom.—Chicago Tribune, May 19, '99.

HAS HIGHER CRITICISM TRIUMPHED?

If silence speaks louder than words, the theological seminaries are producing some significant eloquence of this sort in regard to Dr. Briggs' book. Here is a text book designed to be put in the hands of young theologues which teaches that the Old Testament is composed of myths, legends, and poetic tales of fiction. In or near Chicago there are five or six large theological seminaries of the leading evangelical denominations, yet scarcely a protest has come from any of them. The Tribune undertook last week to find a theological professor who would review Dr. Briggs' book in a strictly conservative spirit, but the quest was practically in vain. The seeker was told that it would be useless to look for a strongly adverse critique in the Methodist, Baptist, or Congregational seminaries, and that the only possibility of getting it lay among the conservative Presbyterians who had condemned Dr. Briggs for heresy. The natural inference is that these Methodist, Baptist, and Congregational professors, like the Episcopalians, have no serious objection to Dr. Briggs' book.

Professor Robinson, who holds the chair of Old Testament exegesis in McCormick Seminary, reviewed the book adversely in last Sunday's Tribune. Taking this as a fair representative of the extreme conservative position, it still shows a degree of liberality which indicates that the so-called higher criticism has not been without its silent effect, even among the Princeton school of theologians. Professor Robinson's shafts are aimed rather at the chip-on-the-shoulder attitude of Dr. Briggs than at his heretical doctrines. Nowhere has there arisen any authoritative voice condemning the mythological view of the Old Testament origins. This silence is significant of a radical change in theological circles over the ideas of a few years ago. If the conclusions of the higher criticism are no longer combated then they are tacitly accepted, and in another decade we may expect to see them taught in the schools.

Professor Briggs' "Study of the Holy Scriptures" is by no means a radical book when compared with those of Strauss, Renan, and many of the archaeological critics of the present day. Its significance lies in the fact that it is intended as a text book in theological schools and that nobody appears to be particularly shocked or alarmed over such an innovation. If the professors in the leading theological seminaries have no quarrel with the statements that the Old Testament is composed in large part of mistakes, myths, and legends, and that the New Testament draws largely from "poetic sources," there has been a silent theological revolution going on without the knowledge of the lay public.—Chicago Tribune, May 22, 1899.

HOW TO DEAL WITH HERESY.

The Rev. Dr. Noble of the Union Park Church preached Sunday on "Heresy in Our Congregational Churches and How to Deal with It." His plan of dealing with heresy calls for praise. It is "to make protest and wait." In his opinion—and it is that of all who have paid any attention to the results—"heresy trials do no good. The ultimate settlement of all questions of belief must come, and it can only come, through free discussion." Dr. Noble admits that it may be necessary to wait a long time for a settlement, "but it is better to wait and to suffer the consequences of waiting than to use compulsion in the attempt to correct ideas. Compulsion, often of a violent kind, has been resorted to by pagans, Catholics, and Protestants. It has accomplished nothing good.

There have been instances, says Dr. Noble, "in which there was no other way of convincing the world that certain notions had no aggressive vitality in them than just to wait and let it be seen how utterly void they were of all fruitfulness." That is to say, "if this work be of men it will come to naught; but if it be of God ye cannot overthrow it." A heresy trial creates scandal and strife, which never promote the growth of religion. Such a trial may determine that a certain doctrine is at variance with some old creed. The actual truth or falsity of the doctrine is not determined. Time alone can settle that question.

If a Congregational or Presbyterian minister gives publicity to views which his colleagues are disposed to believe are not orthodox, the best plan to pursue is for them to discuss those views amicably with him. If he converts them, or they him, all will be peace and harmony. If it becomes apparent that there can be no agreement and that the unorthodox brother stands alone, a sense of delicacy and propriety will induce him in most cases quietly to step down and out. No man likes to stay where he feels he is an unwelcome guest. It is much better to let the heretic go of his own accord than to hold a trial, and cast him out, and consign him solemnly to the buffetings of Satan.—Chicago Tribune, May 23, 1899.

This delightful health and pleasure resort is having another prosperous season, the Burlington railroad having helped matters by establishing low excursion rates to the springs and all parts of the Black Hills. Each year many sufferers from rheumatism visit the springs, as the curative power of the waters is remarkable. The C., B. & Q. ticket agent has for distribution some booklets about the Black Hills country which are extremely interesting.

ROME PROVED MORE ANCIENT.

Early Roman history, like that of Troy, will have to be rewritten if archaeologists agree on the genuineness of the recent discoveries in the Forum. A little while ago a black stone, believed to be the "Lapis niger" that marked the "burial place" of Romulus, was found. They have now dug under the stone and unearthed, amid many votive offerings, a cippus of tufa rock, marked with an alphabetic inscription. This is declared to be in Achæan characters, the earliest known, which may give a Greek origin to Rome, like that of Cumæ and Marseilles, dating some centuries before the traditional "year of the city," 753 before Christ.—New York Sun.

ORIGIN OF THE AMERICAN INDIANS.

Mr. Wickersham, one of the associate editors of the American Antiquarian, has just published a reply to Major Powell's Forum article, in which it was set forth that the American races were either autochthonous or that they came to America at an ancient geological age and developed here independently of all other races. Mr. Wickersham, however, claims that there are many evidences of contact with the Chinese and other nations and that this contact has influenced the arts, customs, symbols, and language of the American Indians.—Chicago Tribune, July 8, 1899.

ENGLISH SPOKEN BY ONE TWELFTH THE INHABITANTS OF THE EARTH.

The population of the earth is approximately 1,452,000,000. Of this number six sevenths speak one of the ten leading languages of the world. Chinese, in its many modifications, is spoken by the greatest number, 302 millions of people, more than one fifth of all the earth's inhabitants. The different dialects of India are the mother tongue of 286,000,000. The many dialects which are grouped under the adjective "African" are spoken by 210,000,000. Of the civilized tongues of the world English is the language of 116,000,000, Russian of 85,000,000, German of 80,000,000, French of 52,000,000, Spanish of 44,000,000, Japanese of 40,000,000, and Italian of 34,000,000. None of the other languages is spoken by as many as 35,000,000 people.

BONN on the Rhine has been investigating the liquor drinking habits of its small children. Out of two hundred and forty-seven children of the age of seven and eight years in the primary schools, there was not one who had not tasted beer or wine and about one quarter of them had tasted brandy. Beer or wine was drunk regularly every day by one quarter of them. Eight per cent received a daily glass of cognac from their parents to make them strong, and sixteen per cent would not drink milk because they said "it had no taste."—Scientific American.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of some to attack the statement made in the Church History, Vol. 1, p. 65, regarding the ordination of Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery to the Melchisedec priesthood.

As those responsible for the substance of the history we wish it to be understood that by our statement as found in the history we did not intend to reject the statement of Doctrine and Covenants 110: 20, 21. Times and Seasons, Vol. 3, pp. 935, 936.

We did mean to state that as historians we found no data other than that we produced on which to affirm when, where, how, and by whom the Melchisedec priesthood was conferred upon Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery; not being able to state time, place, and manner of any other ordination, in such clearness that when asked for our evidences we could give them without hesitancy.

As to how the higher, or Melchisedec priesthood was conferred, Oliver Cowdery did not state although he stated distinctly that he was present when it was done. He did state clearly, however, how that being commanded of God they ordained each other.

We did not choose as historians to give a labored argument to prove by a series of inferences and deductions that the ordinations were performed by the laying on of the hands of Peter, James, and John, in the manner employed by Bro. George Derry in his excellent article, preferring to leave that to the personal privilege of each elder who is conversant with the word; it being our business to give facts if we found them, and to refrain from manufacturing them when we failed. We believe in the angel's message, and are satisfied that the right to administer in the gospel ordinances, in inviting men to enter the Church of Christ was duly conferred, and Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery properly called and authorized to preach, baptize, lay on hands for the conferment of the Holy Ghost, and to call under God's direction and ordain others to the same holy calling, notwithstanding we are not as historians prepared to state further than we have when, where, how, and by whom the confirmation to this authority, the conferring of the priesthood, or the ordination to the higher order was performed.

The able article of Bro. Derry in itself shows how difficult it is to determine just when and where the setting apart took place. We do not question the right of the angel, the office work of Peter, James, and John, nor the grand character of the restoration of both the gospel and the authority to administer in all its rites and ceremonies; so that our brethren may rest assured we are in the faith and in the contest.

Any facts which our brethren may have to offer for our consideration we will be pleased to receive and give consideration to; but our brethren ought not to expect of us as historians to use the conclusions of arguments and the deductions of logic as historical facts.

JOSEPH SMITH,
For Heman C. Smith and himself.

MODERN RELIGIOUS AGITATION.

We think it well to furnish the HERALD readers some of the later developments in popular religious circles, though we can but briefly pass over some of the leading features, because of the widespread and changing character of the new departures being made in various church organizations. The fever is spreading and many clergymen, anxious to "keep up" with the "progress of the world," are catching it, or trying to invent something equally as radical as much of the new ground now occupied by prominent ministers East, West, North, and South; also by ecclesiastics in Europe; for the present movement is almost universal; in fact, it is practically universal in the Protestant world.

Sectarianism now is giving a consistent exposition of its untenability and inconsistencies. It began in apostasy, in human efforts to change from an established divine order, hence must change and continue to change in an effort to justify its existence and its dogmas before the world.

It does not make a clear-cut claim of leading the world in religious doctrines and ethics, but admits that it has been in the dark and behind the developments of the modern world in intelligence and in general conceptions of truths essential to the well-being of society. It thus follows the world, hence must change and accommodate itself to its departures and developments; thus if the world goes wrong, it must share in its errors and policies, mixing its evil and its good into an imperfect, faulty, theological mess of shifting articles and opinions. Such destroys faith and brings unbelief and religious despair to the people.

A striking instance of this is seen in the present drift of religious teachers toward the claims of the so-called scientific schools of thought. Most of the prominent ecclesiastics of the Protestant communion now are strongly influenced by the evolution theory, and carry it into if they do not make it the basis of all their analyses of scripture. This is clearly shown in their pulpit utterances and later writings. Abbott, Briggs, Harper, McGiffert, Potter, and others too numerous to mention are among the shining lights in Protestantism, with others of the Roman Catholic communion who share in the scientific opinions of the times and indorse the methods of the higher criticism.

The currents of modern religious movement are drifting toward the unknown; there is no consistent system, no uniformity, no order in the movement. Instead of moving side by side or becoming amalgamated in an orderly combination having one well defined purpose in view, it assumes the character of a whirlpool or maelstrom which carries to destruction all that becomes engulfed in its turbulent, destroying mass.

All forces of nature are potent for good under proper direction and control, but unrestrained become instruments or means of destruction. Man himself is no exception to the rule. Even faulty science, so-called, teaches the orderly sequence of physical forces in harmony with some great design to prepare the world for man's occupation. It limits itself, however, to the study of rocks, soil, plants, sea, and air. It is unscientific in the fact that it ignores the spiritual nature of man, the highest type of intelligence upon earth, and the study of whose character, tendencies, and destiny should form a branch of scientific investigation (at least the investigation should be conducted upon proper lines) to make the present scientific system or methods comprehensive or approximately complete. Scientific men, however, are limited, finite, narrowed down or confined to mere material lines of thought and action, hence unacquainted with the philosophy and economy of the spiritual. Theologians upon the other hand are being brought largely under control of the material spirit of the age. With an open Bible under their very noses they have claimed the prophetic period of open communion with God by revelation of his will to have been for ages a thing of the past. Notwithstanding Nature itself teaches the providences of a Supreme Intelligence, and the word itself presents God in active communion with his people from "the beginning" through all the ages of the past to the close of the apostolic age—with prophets, priests, kings, and people enjoying the favor of God, and the word replete with promises of favor to Israel and the nations until the end of time,—men as religious wards of the people have insistently taught that inspiration was limited to the New Testament epoch, hence that open direction like unto that received by the ancient apostolic church need not be expected. It is not or ought not to be a matter for surprise that the spirit of the scientific world is strongly materialistic—earthly—in its tendency and results; nor that the theology of the times is becoming decidedly influenced in the same direction. The church—the various sectarian bodies since the Reformation—by its teaching has discouraged faith in the open manifestations of the Spirit of truth, hence has to a great extent been responsible for the settling of public opinion against the doctrine of present-day communion with the Deity. Scientific schools, strengthened by the developments of the modern school of theologians, are joining hand in hand to practically get rid of the Almighty and to drive him from his own dominions. But "He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh; the Lord shall have them in derision." (Ps. 2:4.)

The latter-day work, including the general providences of God in the world, as part thereof, reveals that God presides in the midst of all things, in earth as well as in heaven, and, as declared in latter-day revelation, "their folly shall be made manifest." The fathers have eaten the "sour grapes" of no communion with God, and have taught that doctrine so industriously, that "the children's teeth are set on edge." The evolution and other godless theories taught by the modern school are products of what the theology of the times has taught. Things are in commotion, and the religions of the people are being tried in the general conditions of trial and test that are to try the systems and general institutions of men. Many evidences of the material spirit of the religious world appear, in various features. Dwight L. Moody is quoted as stating that while three thousand were converted at Pentecost, by one sermon, now three thousand sermons are required to effect one conversion. Does this indicate a difference in the potency of the sermon of Pentecost and "the modern instance?" The latter is generally "scholarly" and "well prepared;" but what is wrong that it does not prove effectual?

The German Emperor, a pronounced Lutheran Christian and head of the German Protestants, appeared as the central figure of a distinguished group of royalties, statesmen, army and naval officials, etc., in a recent dramatic tour of the Holy Land, and while there celebrated the consecration of a Lutheran church, which he characterized as an important event of portentous and lasting significance to Protestantism universally. After the usual indulgence in outward forms of sensational devotion to the sites of historic interest the Emperor completed his tour by making "demands upon the Sultan," it was stated, that would yet bring rich returns from the Holy Land to the Empire of William III., and tend to release or loosen the hold of the followers of Mohammed upon Palestine and the residents there of Hebrew and Christian faith. It will be remembered that Emperor William then practically assumed the "guardianship of the holy places" long claimed by the kings of France, and combined with his religious parade and attitude of devotion that of the "commercial traveler." This is worthy of note in connection with his program of wresting Kiaou Chou from China as indemnity for the killing of German missionaries. It is a "material" point, represented by the declaration of Prince Henry his brother, who went to preach the gospel of "Your Majesty's sacred person." The Emperor in the Greek and Crete affair, which the powers jointly settled, stood for the interests of German bondholders having Turkish paper, against any compulsion of the Sultan. He is now interested in a German railway in Persia that threatens the dominions of the Turk.

The following will prove helpful to an understanding of the general situation. It is further in evidence of the religious disunity of Europe:—

AUSTRIA REVOLTING AGAINST ROME.

For some time there has been developing in Austria a movement, the motto of which is "Loose from Rome." In a review of the progress of the movement the Frankfort Zeitung says:—

"The movement is particularly strong in the northern part of Bohemia. The number of persons who have already left the Catholic church for Protestantism is estimated at more than 6,000. Clerical circles are much disturbed in consequence, and the higher clergy have hastily called a conference at Prague in order to consider means for checking the movement. The government has also decided to take action to suppress it.

"The leaders of the movement make no concealment of the fact that their motives are based on national political grounds. The Catholic clergy is hostile to the Germans, so the Germans are attempting by leaving the church to punish Rome or to force it to assume a more friendly attitude. The present movement in Austria is not simply a religious but a German national movement, which interests all Germans and has an important bearing on the fate of the Hapsburg monarchy."—Chicago Tribune.

The Czar also, head of the Greek Church, looks upon Palestine and other Turkish territory and provinces with religious interest strongly tinged by the material side, as instance the following, among other incidents:—

Constantinople, May 1.—It is becoming more evident daily that Russia is extending the influence of the state church more and more in Palestine, with the object of controlling Jerusalem.

The election is announced to-day of Mgr. Malateos as Patriarch of Antioch by the Antioch Synod. This election is directly contrary to the Sultan's views, and met with strong opposition from the Greeks.

Russian influence, it is predicted, will finally overcome the long standing control of the Greeks in the Holy Land.

Who will finally control, Emperor or Czar? or will the former act in conjunction with the latter? It will be remembered that King William has placated the Catholics in Germany; that he has visited the Pope and made friends with him, declaring later that he felt himself to be divinely commissioned to bring about the temporal and spiritual freedom, and the greater influence of the Pope, upon the masses. He has lately complimented and gained the good will of France, by visiting a French naval vessel. Is the Emperor looking well to the material side through the religious? His program is part of the moving panorama of change. It looks quite material, to say the least, and he is supported in his efforts to increase the realm of German influence by the German people.

The situation in Europe is similar to our own; kindred ties of faith and similar general influences are at work affecting the religious and social status there as in America. In evidence we present the following valuable item, from the Literary Digest of May 27, 1899. Note its significant statements concerning the religious conditions of both people and clergy:—

RELIGIOUS CONDITIONS ON THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE.

To most Englishmen the religious life of their neighbors across the channel in the various countries of Europe is a terra incognita, and an indifferent world at that. General Booth, however, is not one of these. He has twenty-five hundred officers of the Salvation Army at work, carrying on outdoor missions and evangelical labors in every town of considerable size on the Continent. His opinions, based on recent careful investigations, will surprise not a few people. He says, in the Illustrated Missionary News (April):—

"We find in every city we occupy (except, perhaps, in some Swedish ones) a vast majority of the population, and we cannot but be struck with the apparent abandonment of these multitudes by the churches. No matter whether 'the church of the majority' be Catholic or Protestant, we find its buildings closed as a rule at the hours when the working classes might, if they wished, attend their services. The people are left to the theater, to the music hall, and the café, where they find themselves generally in the company of those who worshiped at the church in the morning. And, upon inquiry, one finds that this abandonment of the masses to their indifference or unbelief is rendered the more inevitable by a general want of faith in the saving power of Jesus Christ. In Lent, and sometimes at other seasons, special preaching takes place at many churches, but few seem to hope that this preaching will affect many of those who are actually indifferent. There is a certain class who habitually visit such services annually, and adopt certain religious practices in connection with them; but nobody seems to dream of anything like those general efforts to evangelize the whole population of a city which are so common in this country and in America. The more I reflect upon it, the more this general indisposition to missionize Europe astounds me.

"The Catholic Church has in every nation where it once predominated 'made itself impossible' for the masses by its meddling with politics and its neglect of the poor. The 'Catholic reaction,' of which one sometimes hears in France, whatever it may signify, certainly does not mean the gathering together of more people in the churches."

Protestants and Catholics seem everywhere to have adopted the conclusion that there is no God, and have lost faith in both divine and human government. Yet General Booth sees the coming of a light amid the clouds and does not give up hope of better things before a great while. Says he:—

"I cannot doubt that in another twenty years we shall see all over the Continent a religious change as vast as has been witnessed in the last twenty years in this country. Only the other week a professor of theology said to one of my comrades: 'How can you wonder at the want of an efficient clergy when, of six professors of theology at our university, I am the only one who believes in the divinity of Christ?' While in another, and that one of the largest universities in our country, a professor said to me personally, 'Half our divinity students are skeptical, which is about the same proportion as prevails among the professors who instruct them in theology.' I do not wonder at all. But I should wonder if all this was not to be changed by Christians, who really believe in a living Christ, who cannot only save them from hell in the future, and sin in this life, but make them consistent and enthusiastic disciples and soldiers of their Lord."

A NECESSARY PLEA.

The HERALD for a few weeks to come will be sent to its readers unstapled. The Business Manager informs us that the stapling machine is about worn out and must be supplanted by a new one.

He also states that other machinery is badly needed; that constant care is necessary to do the press work with the old presses, which have been in use for many years, and need constant watching and repairing, and are liable to give out and leave the office in the lurch at any time.

The morale of this disquisition is this;—

1. The Herald Office patrons want their papers, books, and other supplies.

2. New machinery must be purchased.

3. It is bad policy to borrow money at interest to buy said machinery.

4. Therefore all delinquents should "pay up" and help out in the time of need.

5. An invitation, full and free, is therefore extended to all in arrears to square accounts at once. Please remember it and remit at once.

Bro. Criley and the Bishop are ready to take the first train for Chicago to purchase machinery—on receipt of old accounts due the office.

Don't put off remitting; remember the address, Frank Criley, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

CANNON APPEARS IN COURT.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 12.—Angus M. Cannon, President of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion, who was recently arrested on the charge of polygamy, appeared before a justice of the peace to-day and waived examination. To a reporter he refused to say anything about the case, but did not deny that he was the parent of the child born last April to Mattie Hughes Cannon, State Senator for Utah. President Lorenzo Snow, of the Mormon Church, declined to discuss the new crusade against polygamy or what methods, if any, would be used in defense.

The above is from the Chicago Tribune, of July 13.

The Semi-Weekly Salt Lake Tribune, of July 11, (a Gentile organ,) devotes over half a page to the Cannon case. The warrant for Cannon's arrest was issued on the complaint of one C. M. Owen, "a well-known civil engineer" and a resident of Salt Lake since 1887. Mr. Cannon, through his son, John M. Cannon, attorney, entered a plea of not guilty, and a bond was filed for his appearance. The date of the trial is not stated.

The Tribune, same date, states thus of the case:—

In answer to a question as to why he had instituted the proceedings against Mr. Cannon, Mr. Owen said:—

"It is a straight question of principle. As I understand the situation, Wilford Woodruff, Lorenzo Snow, and others of the highest officials of the church declared under oath before Judge Looftbourow that the intent of the solemn manifesto of 1890 was that the members of the church of which they were the official representatives would refrain from any further practice of polygamy and its kindred offenses. This they have not done.

"Mr. Cannon, a high official of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, cannot plead ignorance of that declaration. Mrs. Martha Hughes Cannon, who has the reputation of being an exceedingly bright woman, is in like condition. There is no doubt in my mind nor in any of the right-thinking members of the community that the conditions that predominated up to 1890 are extending throughout the community.

"THE LAW OF THE CASE.

"Under the Enabling Act it was a proviso that proper safeguards should be enacted in the Constitution. The Edmunds-Tucker Act was to all intents and purposes reenacted under the new Code. In the Legislature that adopted this Code, Martha Hughes Cannon sat as a member, and under this Code the prosecution of her polygamous husband will be conducted.

"If these laws were honestly enacted, with the honest intention that they should be properly enforced, I consider that in justice to the members of the Mormon Church themselves, as well as to the whole community of the State of Utah, these laws should have a chance. If it is true, as many people say, that these laws cannot be enforced, that juries will not convict on adequate evidence nor judges punish, then the lawabiding people of Utah should know it and the people of the United States should know it. While I desire no more notoriety in this matter than I can help, and I expect a large measure of abuse from the organ of the church, I have every hope that the end of this polygamic condition is near."

Mr. Owen was also asked as to what the arrest of Mr. Cannon portended, and if other prosecutions were to follow. He declined to state, however, anything regarding his intentions in the matter.

The Semi-Weekly Deseret News, of July 11, church organ, is silent on the Cannon case, making no comment whatever.

A PREACHERS' TRUST.

The trust mania has broken out in an unexpected quarter. The Ministerial Association of Marshalltown, Iowa, has served notice upon the State Board of Control that its members will no longer preach sermons at the State institutions for three dollars each, which is the price fixed in the board's schedule. After July 1 the rate will be five dollars a sermon. The board, however, does not propose to submit to the demands of the trust. Rather than pay more than the customary three dollars its members will do their own preaching, and Governor Larrabee will set the ball rolling by preaching at the Soldiers' Home a week from Sunday next. Singers have volunteered their services, and the gospel will be supplied "without money and without price."

The ministers who have sought to raise the tariff on sermons by combining have made a mistake. There are others who can preach as well as they, and they may even preach better. In that case the inmates of the State institutions may become so enamored of the board sermons that they will decline the pulpit sermons at any price. In that case the preachers will have cut off their own market. They cannot destroy competition when the competitors can afford to give away their goods. Their ill-advised action may also have the effect largely to increase the number of producers. In every community there are plenty of laymen and laywomen of an evangelistic turn of mind who would jump at the opportunity to exhort in the State institutions. There will be no difficulty in supplying them with preachers.

The Ministerial Association should thoughtfully study the words of St. Paul bearing upon the situation. In one of his letters to the elders he tells them he has never coveted any man's gold, silver, or apparel, and his parting word to them was: "It is better to give than receive." In his letter to Titus he admonishes the bishops that they should not be "given to filthy lucre." In a long letter to Timothy he tells his friend how bishops and deacons should be qualified for their high office. They must be "blameless, husband of one wife, vigilant, sober, of good behavior, given to hospitality, apt to teach;" they must be "patient, not a brawler, not covetous," and they must have "a good report of them which are without," which the Marshalltown Association will not have if it insists upon five dollars a sermon.

It is clear from Paul's advice that if he were a member of the Marshalltown Association he would rebuke his brethren for "covetousness" and fondness of "filthy lucre." He would set an example for them by preaching in the State institutions for nothing, and he would preach "the words of faith and good doctrine," not "profane and old wives' fables." The State pensioners would get better sermons than the Marshalltown preachers can deliver and it would not cost the State a penny. And finally, brethren of Marshalltown, hear the greatest of all preachers once more: "For the love of money is the root of all evil, which, while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith and pierced themselves through with many sorrows." These solemn words were written to Timothy from Laodicea, which is the chief city of Phrygia Pacatiana, but they are of equal import to every member of the association of Marshalltown, which is one of the chief cities of Iowa.—Chicago Tribune, June 30.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

An excellent picture of Bro. E. Banta, former member of the Bishopric and of the Board of Publication, and also missionary in the early days of the Reorganization, has been donated to the "Home," by the children of Bro. Banta, in a neatly worded letter signed by them indicating their interest in the work their father did so much to aid. We give letter below:—

LAMONI, Iowa, July 12, '99.

Trustees of Saints' Home:—We send you a picture of our father. We hope for the success and prosperity of the Home, and that its inmates may be happy.

Bro. A. W. Parsons, A. B., an aged occupant of the Soldiers' Home, Marshalltown, Iowa, writes, sending a hymn of his own composition. He is firm in the faith and states:—

I am walking only a little upon crutches and with no hope that I can ever recover to any extent. Praise God for the shortness of the journey yet before me. My hand is on the door while I wait in the entrance.

Bro. W. S. Taylor, Sherwin Junction, Kansas, July 6:—

The debate between Bro. Peak and Elder Popplewell is a thing of the past. It closed on the 22d of June. The results are good; the cause did not lose anything, but removed a great amount of prejudice from those who were unbiased and not of us. They say Bro. Peak won a great victory. We had a good conference and large attendance, and I trust it will result in a great amount of good.

Bro. J. M. Terry, Chicago, Illinois, July 14:—

The saints of the city gathered to the number 120, at the Lang Mission, No. 3411 Cottage Grove Avenue, on Wednesday night, and after having a short program with appropriate and touching ceremony presented the "missionary and his associate missionary" a purse amounting to over the ninety-dollar mark. Ice cream and cake and a happy, social, congratulating time followed. Truly such magnanimous generosity was scarcely witnessed before by the writer. Bro. S. C. Good, William Strange, E. J. Lang, G. H. Henley, F. M. Pitt were the principal leaders, with an army of over eighty of saints and friends as assistants. May God bless the good saints of Chicago for their timely aid in time of need, and we hope they will be rewarded under the promise, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

The secular editor of the Chicago Tribune offers some timely admonitions and exhortations to the clergy—the professional clergy. See our cover articles. "Read, note, and inwardly digest," they will prove instructive concerning the general situation. It has come to pass that a respectable sized minority of the public is demanding a consistent attitude on the part of the teachers of religion, as pertaining to doctrine—general items of faith. There is enough of sarcasm in the editor's comments to show that the present religious attitudes of many clergymen are lessening their own influence as public teachers and causing Christianity to be listed among the collection of purely speculative theories. The world—the better portion of it—will respect a consistent contention for "the faith once delivered to the saints." It is the only faith that will stand in these days of crucial criticism and drifting from past anchorages. Those who know the truth have constantly increasing ground for greater and devoted appreciation of it. It is the only thing that will endure and that can save from darkness and "final great loss and destruction."

Camille Flammarion, the eminent French astronomer, who formerly accepted spiritualism, now declares he has been deluded by spirit influences that have deceived him. He attributes their influences and communications to psychic force, but denies that they proceed from spirits of the dead.

CHURCH IN THE WILDERNESS; OR, "MYSTERY OF INIQUITY."—NO 4.

BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

"THE EARTH HELPED THE WOMAN."

When the church-woman, during the fifth and sixth centuries after Christ, let earthly potentates take her by the hand, and accepted their proffered aid of political and military power; when through her bishops and other clergy she compromised the pure doctrine of Christ, by laying aside as unnecessary such parts of it as would not harmonize in any sense or human interpretation with the idolatrous heathen dogmas and philosophy, as a means of obtaining power and worldly greatness, and so arranged her creed as to suit the taste of the swarming multitudes constituting the divisions of the Roman government, she accepted the help by the earth tendered; she drank the intoxicating doctrinal mixture, mingled with the blood of saints and martyrs. (Rev. 17:6; Dan. 7:21-25.) And when, through the councils held, the religio-political combination was arranged, organized, and established, it brought into being, and constituted the mongrel "beast" that John saw "rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy," as described in Revelation 13:1-8, that was "to continue forty and two months," or twelve hundred and sixty years. Here was a government composed of the peoples of Greece, Rome,—Vandals, Ostrogoths, Northern Barbarians,—with their mixture of laws political and religious combined; and all held together and enforced by the authority of the dragon, that old serpent, the Devil. This to the unregenerate world was a respectable and acceptable mixture! The body like "a leopard," feet as those of "a bear," mouth like "a lion,"—kingly, strong, and fierce, cunning! Is it any wonder that "power was given unto him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations"? Is it any wonder that the religious part of this all-powerful combination thus intrenched reigned over all the kingdoms of the earth? Is it strange that her name should be "MYSTERY, BABYLON, THE GREAT, the Mother of Harlots and Abominations of the Earth"? No marvel that John should be carried in "the spirit into the wilderness" to view such a sight as is here presented. The power here described as rising out of the sea—waters of humanity—is identified with union of church and state seen by John as portrayed in chapter 17, by several points. "The beast"—government earthly—is full of names of blasphemy, is uttering "blasphemy," in both cases. It has the "ten horns." The beast supports the church, or the religious organization, as represented by "the woman," arrayed in gorgeous apparel. And the beast here, as in chapter thirteen, has "seven heads," and "the woman" is "in the wilderness," the very condition that he saw the woman fly into, as seen in chapter 12. She is "the great city" that reigned "over the kings of the earth," and as she reigned or ruled over the beast and the ten horns, or kingdoms, there was no earthly rule or government independently of the reign of the church, hence they received power from, through, or by the church, "as kings one hour with the beast" (17:12), and used the political power as her instrumentality to kill heretics, and force her creed on all men, and thus was she seen "drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus" (verse 6). Assuming to reign over these earthly kingdoms by divine power, the popes thus blasphemously ruled the political governments as well as the religious elements of the kingdoms and through them brought all under her religious and tyrannical domination. And thus was the church in the wilderness of abominations for a period of twelve hundred and sixty years. Thus she enslaved "multitudes, and nations, and tongues" with the spiritually intoxicating doctrinal wine of her lewdness. And from her golden cup, or creed, have flowed as streams, the doctrines that have formed the bases and religious warp and woof of the creeds of many religious institutions now existing. With her the doctrines originated; from that "golden cup" their creeds and authority came, and she is their spiritual and legal mother. The "power," and "great authority" of the papal beast, and of the woman, Babylon, that he carried, was and is from "the dragon" (Rev. 13:2); it originated in "the bottomless pit" (chap. 17:8), and "perdition" is its ultimate doom!

In reality, then, the hope of the world now, is the restoration of "the keys of the kingdom," "the everlasting gospel," as seen by John the Revelator (chap. 14:6, 7), and that began to have its accomplishment in 1827-30 A. D., and which is the voice of God to the honest in heart everywhere (Rev. 18:4) to come out of this Babylon, cease to drink of this wine of her cup, obey the gospel, and thereby be translated into the kingdom spoken of by Daniel the prophet, be regenerated, sanctified by the truth, and prepared for the coming of the King in his glory.

THE SEED OF THE WOMAN.

Before the Dragon—Pagan Rome—yielded his power, seat, and authority to Papal Rome, or the religio-political power, along during the fourth and fifth centuries, as the church fell and flew into the wilderness, many of the true followers of Christ refused to be a party to her marriage with earthly kings and kingdoms, refused to break their covenant with God and depart from the gospel, and consequently did not go into the wilderness, and thus constituted "the remnant of her seed," (Rev. 12:17,) "which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ." What the dragon failed to accomplish before losing his power, in exterminating this remnant of saints, the papal power, after its rise, 500 to 540 A. D., finished. For of this power it was predicted:—

I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; . . . and he [eleventh horn] shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws; and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time [1,260 years].—Dan. 7:21, 25.

"And I saw," says John, "the woman drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus: and . . . I wondered with great admiration." (Rev. 17:6.) As for the dragon, the saints "overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony" (Rev. 12:11, but in the unequal contest with politics and religion combined, as afterward developed in the papacy, they were prevailed against. This shows most conclusively that the claim of some in this age of the world, that the dissenters from the mother church, who meet oppositions to their assumptions and false claims, on the part of other Protestants, are the remnant of the seed of that church that was once the bride of Christ in ancient days prior to her apostasy from God, is not founded in fact. That institution seen by John, and by him called "a great red dragon," was cast down; he "prevailed not" against the saints (Rev. 12:3, 8); and that institution went down, ceased to be, with the rise of the "leopard" "beast" (Rev. 13:4), and of this latter beast, Papal Rome, "It was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations." (Rev. 13:7.) These comparisons are sufficient to show that the claim of our Seventh-Day Adventist friends to be the remnant, or seed of "the woman," is only assumed, and is untrue. They assume, as usual, that "the commandments of God," as the remnant are said here to keep, are the decalogue, and that "the testimony of Jesus Christ" is the gospel, and by the same assumption lay claim to being the saints referred to in Revelation 14:12, assuming that "the commandments" there mentioned are the decalogue! They forget that though the decalogue—ten commandments—had been given at Sinai, yet that before Christ came to Israel, "everlasting righteousness" had not yet been brought in (Dan. 9:24); or, in other words, "God was" not "manifest in the flesh," and that before Jesus came thus into the world revealing the Father, there was no eternal rock on which to build for everlasting life, or on which to found the church, (1 Tim. 3:15, 16; Matt. 16:17, 18; Matt. 7:26,) and that, until the Father is revealed to man's conceptions, in his perfections and attributes through the life and teachings of Jesus (John 14:8-11), eternal life would be absolutely beyond the reach of man. And, therefore, after this great revelation of the Father is placed within the reach of man, inspiration declares that,

But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets; even the righteousness of God which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe; for there is no difference: for all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God; being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus: whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God; to declare, I say, at this time his righteousness: that he might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus. Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay; but by the law of faith. Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law.—Rom. 3:21-28.

Since, then, there is no "everlasting righteousness" in the law, (and it is admitted that the law here contrasted with the gospel is the decalogue,) and as there is no justification in Christ by doing its deeds, of what use is it under the gospel? There is neither "righteousness," "justification," nor "life" in, by, or through it. (Gal. 3:21.) Under the gospel it is only a "curse." (Gal. 3:10.)

But now we are delivered from the law, that being dead wherein we were held; that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.—Rom. 7:6.

The old "letter" is thus defined by Paul:—

Who also hath made us [Christ's gospel ministry] able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. But if the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not steadfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away: how shall not the ministrations of the Spirit be rather glorious?—2 Cor. 3: 6-8.

Gospel ministers, then, are not called of God to administer the letter—law. It is dead. Why, then, should servants of God spend their lives in advocating as essential that which neither justifies nor gives life, is not righteousness, but is dead, and is a curse!

“The commandments of God” given through Jesus Christ, God’s commander to the people, are those for the observance of which the saints were martyred. They are the gospel of God. (See Isa. 55: 4; 51: 16; 59: 20, 21; Acts 3: 22, 23; Luke 4: 18, 43; 6: 46-49; John 8: 30-32; 12: 49, 50; 2 Peter 3: 1, 2.) “For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth” (Rom. 10: 4); and, “the righteousness of God” is revealed in the gospel. (Rom. 1: 16, 17.)

“The testimony of Jesus Christ” possessed by the remnant of the seed of the church, is declared to be “the spirit of prophecy.” (Rev. 19: 10.)

Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, . . . when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow. Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desired to look into.—1 Peter 1: 10-12.

Paul, that grandest of missionaries, the apostle and gospel teacher to the Gentile world, was constituted “a witness” as well as “a minister” of Jesus Christ, by the power and revelation of God (Acts 26: 12-18), and hence could “testify the gospel of the grace of God.” (Acts 20: 24.)

But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me: and ye also shall bear witness, because ye have been with me from the beginning.—John 15: 26, 27.

The Spirit of truth, the Holy Ghost, that shows God’s children things to come, is “the spirit of prophecy,” “the testimony of Jesus Christ.”

“The commandments of God” as embodied and revealed in the gospel of Jesus Christ, with “the Spirit of truth,” was the sacred charge committed in trust to “the remnant” of the seed of the woman, or church. To these as their religious code they chose to adhere, and meet in combat the opposition of Dragonic Rome, rather than follow the palliating, crystallizing creed of the church and enjoy the ease and glory of the world and abide in the wilderness of darkness, false doctrine, and sin.

But, says my Adventist friend, is not the decalogue “holy, just, and good”? We answer, Yes,

If a man use it lawfully; knowing this, that the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawless and disobedient, for the ungodly and for sinners, for unholy and profane, for murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, for manslayers, for whoremongers, for them that defile themselves with mankind, for menstealers, for liars, for perjured persons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to sound doctrine; according to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which was committed to my trust.—1 Tim. 1: 8-11.

The characters described here by the apostle cannot be dealt with by law in the church, unless the church, like the Israelitish commonwealth, was a union of church and state. The only thing that the church under the gospel can do with such persons is, if impenitent, to disfellowship them. To receive the penalty for their wrongs, they are committed to the officers of the state where breaking the law. This is the fact. By the officers of the state only, then, can the law here referred to by Paul be used “lawfully.” This is sufficient to forever destroy the assumption that “the commandments of God” referred to by John (Rev. 12: 17; 14: 12) include the decalogue.

The law of God, of righteousness, revealed in the gospel, that creates man anew, that is designed to govern man from the inception and conception of his thoughts, (Matt. 12: 34-37.) his words, and that directs his life work in God’s service, that begets morality and Christlike spirituality, life, justification, and glory hereafter, that law that embodies “everlasting righteousness,” is the treasury of “the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus Christ.” Saints “fulfill the law of Christ,” (Gal. 6: 2; James 1: 25; 2: 12,) “the law of liberty.”

CHURCH COMES OUT OF THE WILDERNESS.

The original creation or production, building of the church, before going into the wilderness, was effected through the coöperative agency and instrumentality of the wisdom, power, authority, law, Spirit, and ministry of God and our Lord Jesus Christ. This will not be denied by Bible believers. And had the church remained, under laws of her creation and being, steadfastly true to the coöperative powers that gave her organic existence, she would never have gone into the wilderness.

God’s will embodies his wisdom, power, authority, law, Spirit, and ministry, so far as it relates to the salvation of man. His will as thus made manifest, is like himself, immutable. God’s will in all things is known by what he does. The act of creating the universe reveals God’s will as to what the universe should be—is. The act of God in creating man reveals his will as to what he designed man to be, in organic construction. The organic construction of our government reveals the constitutional will of the fathers, and is the best illustration of the will and constitutional law. So the act of God in building his church is the only infallible expression of his will, and illustration of the divine constitution of the church to the mind of man.

Whatever, therefore, the church was originally organically, such will it be in its reproduction on coming out of the wilderness; the same power, wisdom, authority, law, Spirit, and, therefore, a like ministry, will be used as in its original construction. This cannot be otherwise unless God changes.

The law used at first was the gospel (Mark 16: 14-16); the Spirit was that of God (Acts 1: 8); the will was that expressed in the law and by the Spirit of revelation. (Rom. 12: 2; 1 Cor. 12: 11, 12; Eph. 1: 17; Rev. 22: 17.)

The official ministry were apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, bishops, elders, high priests, teachers, deacons, “helps, governments.” (Matt. 10: 1-7; 1 Cor. 12: 27-30; Eph. 4: 8-13; Phil. 1: 1; Heb. 5: 1-5.)

The authority of the ministry was divine, and was given to them from God through Jesus his Son by revelation.

As the commission of the ministry was given of God by the revealings of the Holy Ghost through Jesus Christ (see Luke 6: 12-16; 10: 1-3), by angels (Luke 1: 11-17; Acts 8: 26; Gal. 1: 8; Heb. 1: 14), by the Holy Ghost and prophets (Luke 3: 3; Acts 13: 1-5; Eph. 3: 5, 6), so in the giving of the authority and commission to organize again the church at its calling out of the wilderness, and its admission into the light of the truth, angels and prophets are the media through whom the revelation comes. And it was to be just before the downfall of Mystery Babylon, as foretold by the revelator John, as follows:—

And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her [Babylon], my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities.—Rev. 18: 4, 5.

Here is a prophecy that a voice from heaven, of God, will, at a time subsequent to John’s day, give commission to his servants to call his people out of their confused and divided state, to a condition of safety from Babylon’s sins and plagues, that they may escape the judgments predicted. No guesswork, such as has characterized the religious reformers of the three hundred years past, is permissible in this work here foretold, but on the contrary heaven’s certainty is essential, for divine judgments await the disobedient, and plagues are to overtake those who rebel against this call.

In harmony with the foregoing prophecy, in point of time and the character of the work to be done, John again prophesies:—

And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.—Rev. 14: 6-8.

Not only is the message defined,—the gospel,—but by this prophecy the way in which the authority to preach it, when renewed, is clearly revealed. It is through the ministry of an angel of God. And, it is to be heralded to all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people.

As there is but one gospel of God, only one "everlasting gospel," (Gal. 1: 8, 9,) and the curse of God is to rest on any man or angel that would attempt to pervert it or offer a substitute for it, we feel absolutely confident that the angel above referred to would commission no man to preach any other than the one made valid by the blood of Jesus Christ. Hence, it must be the one declared by Jesus and the ancient apostles.

Of this same great latter-day work of God, Jesus prophesied:—

And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come.—Matt. 24: 14.

This gospel of the kingdom, proclaimed by divine commission, delivered to men by a holy angel, is the means by which God's people will be gathered into the one fold and organized into the "one body," the church; "called out" of "the wilderness."

It was in the years A. D. 1823 to 1830 that the heavens were opened and the messengers of God communicated to Joseph Smith the Seer, to Oliver Cowdery, David Whitmer, Martin Harris, and to others that the time was at hand for the gospel of Jesus Christ to begin to be proclaimed to the nations, and that as many as would believe and obey the message of salvation as authorized through angelic media, should become the church coming out of the wilderness, and it was later revealed that this was the manner of the coming of the church out of the wilderness; and to the elders it was revealed in October, 1830:—

For verily, verily I say unto you, that ye are called to lift up your voices as with the sound of a trumpet, to declare my gospel unto a crooked and a perverse generation; for, behold, the field is white already to harvest; and it is the eleventh hour, and for the last time that I shall call laborers into my vineyard. And my vineyard has become corrupted every whit; and there is none that doeth good save it be a few; and they err in many instances, because of priestcrafts, all having corrupt minds. And verily, verily I say unto you, that this church have I established and called forth out of the wilderness; and even so will I gather mine elect from the four quarters of the earth, even as many as will believe in me.—Doc. and Cov. 32: 1, 2.

Again, speaking of the three witnesses to the Book of Mormon, it is said:—

I will give them power that they may behold and view these things as they are; and to none else will I grant this power, to receive this same testimony, among this generation, in this, the beginning of the rising up, and the coming forth of my church out of the wilderness; clear as the moon and fair as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners.—Doc. and Cov. 5: 3.

These passages show that as the gospel as restored is declared among the nations of the earth, and the children of men obey it and thus come unto the light of the truth, emerge from the darkness of error, false doctrine, superstition, and sin, they, like the materials of Solomon's temple, are brought already prepared to the great spiritual building, and it rises into organic visibility. Says the foregoing passage, "It is the eleventh hour, and for the last time that I shall call laborers into my vineyard." And so it is represented by the Savior. (See Matt. 20: 1-6.) The eleventh hour call of the ministry to prune the vineyard before the final harvest is the concluding one.

May mankind be enabled to see, appreciate, and improve their opportunity.

WAS JOSEPH SMITH ORDAINED BY PETER, JAMES, AND JOHN TO THE MELCHISEDEC PRIESTHOOD?

It is stated in Church History, Vol. 1, page 65, that it is not safe to say that Peter, James, and John laid their hands upon Joseph Smith to ordain him to the Melchisedec priesthood. Question: Is it safe to believe the statement of Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery respecting their ordination to the Aaronic priesthood? Both testimonies agree that they were ordained under the hands of John the Baptist. What objection have you to the ordination of Joseph Smith to the Melchisedec priesthood by Peter, James, and John? It is plainly manifest by section 26, Doctrine and Covenants, that the same authority that sent John sent also Peter, James, and John to ordain Joseph Smith to the Melchisedec priesthood. Was the manner of conferring the Melchisedec priesthood of any less importance than the conferring of the Aaronic priesthood? If you reject the method and the parties in the latter case, why not in the former? Is any part of the ceremony necessary in the former case that is not equally important and necessary in the latter? The revelation says, "Listen to the voice of Jesus Christ." (D. C. 26: 1.) Again: "And also with Peter, and James, and John, whom I have sent unto you, by whom I have ordained you and confirmed you to be apostles and especial witnesses." (D. C. 26: 3.) That is God's method and according to his law ever since the days of Adam, as we read in Doctrine and Covenants 104: 18: "This order was instituted in the days of Adam," and the mode of conferring and confirming authority upon others was by the laying on of hands, and whenever the apostleship has been conferred it has been by the laying on of hands and by the power of the Holy Ghost in the one ordaining. We know of no exception. It cannot be otherwise. The law of the Lord is perfect and endureth forever. The same authority sent John to ordain them to the Aaronic priesthood, and they both testify he laid his hands upon them. If language means anything, Joseph Smith was as much ordained and confirmed by the laying on of the hands of Peter, James, and John, to the Melchisedec priesthood as Joseph and Oliver were ordained to the Aaronic priesthood. What reason is there for a different ordination? Why throw doubt and uncertainty upon these witnesses? Here are two men claiming to be called of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ. If their statement is doubtful, how much of their evidence and testimony is reliable? Does it follow that it is unsafe to believe in the ordination of Joseph Smith by these men because there has been no date or detail of the ordination left on record? When the disciples were with Jesus upon the mount with Moses and Elias, he told them to tell no man the vision. Would it prove because he so instructed them that no vision had been given? Did not these messengers perform their mission? Most certainly they did, though we have no date or detail.

The Prophet Isaiah in speaking of Christ and his mission says, "in his humiliation his judgment was taken away," and it became necessary for him to comply with the law he came to teach and become like unto his brethren in order that he might work out in life, in example and in teaching, that which would bring eternal life and salvation to man. God does not change his law concerning ordination nor his rule of conferring priesthood authority upon man. All the ancient worthies from Adam were ordained by the laying on of hands by those having authority given first by the hands of God. It is written Moses laid his hands upon Aaron and gave him part of his honor. He also laid his hands upon Joshua and he was filled with the spirit of wisdom, and without doubt through the medium of Moses the last one holding the Melchisedec priesthood; and the fact the record says Moses took the holy priesthood with him is strong evidence his mission with Elias upon the mount was to confer the same upon Christ, because without baptism he could not fulfill all righteousness, and without ordination could not be a faithful high priest and become in all things like unto his brethren. The ordination of Joseph Smith is parallel with the ordination of Jesus Christ. Moses was the last one holding the holy priesthood, and when he was taken from earth took the holy priesthood with him. The lesser priesthood continued with the house of Aaron till John, whom God raised up, being filled with the Holy Ghost, baptized in his childhood, and ordained by the angel of God at the time he was eight days old, and yet no date given.

Among the latest records of the church established among the Jews on the eastern continent giving an account of the rise and fall or decline of the church, we find a statement made by Jesus Christ to his servant John on the isle of Patmos that the woman, representing the church, was carried away into the wilderness; and the man child, representing the priesthood, was caught up unto God and his throne. The church was cared for in the wilderness, where she had a place prepared for her till the time for her to come forth, or her restoration or coming forth out of the wilderness. (See D. C. 5: 3.) "What do we hear?" "The voice of Peter, James, and John, in the wilderness, . . . declaring themselves as possessing the keys of the kingdom, and of the dispensation of the fullness of times." (D. C. 110: 20.) It looks to me more in harmony with the law and revelations of God to believe the records as they have come down to us than to believe these three men came with a command of God only that these men, Joseph and Oliver, should ordain each other. To be consistent with the law of God they must have the power to so ordain. Before either of those men could give the necessary keys or authority they must receive them from those that legally held them, and the keys must be given according to the everlasting gospel plan, that which was in the beginning, for the promise is, It shall be had again in the end of time, or the latter-day dispensation. And thus all things were confirmed unto Adam by a holy ordinance, that of the laying on of hands. Whatever the term "holding the keys of the kingdom" may mean, the power to confer, to ordain, has been the same ever since the days of Adam. And in order that the same priesthood may exist in our day, it must of necessity be conferred by the power of the Holy Ghost through the laying on of hands, or there is no ordination or authority according to gospel rules.

In Doctrine and Covenants, section 19, we find: "Behold, there shall be a record kept, . . . and in it thou shalt be called a seer, a translator, a prophet, an apostle of Jesus Christ." How did Joseph Smith become prophet, seer, and revelator? Those powers and prerogatives have always come to man by ordination, not simply by command of God by those that held them. Section 17 says Joseph Smith was called of God and ordained to be an apostle of Jesus Christ, and this was previous to the organization of the church on April 6, 1830. And after he had received the Aaronic priesthood where did the seership come from? Peter held that authority. (See Inspired Translation.) John was a revelator; James was an apostle; the three combined ordained Joseph Smith, as see Doctrine and Covenants 26: 3, and while we have no date or particulars of the ordination, we cannot, we dare not reject the statement. We fully and freely believe in the divine mission, calling, and ordination of Joseph Smith as set forth in the statements made by him and others in the way and manner herein provided.

It is quite possible, and I may say very probable, that Joseph Smith was ordained in the wilderness in the woods aside from the abodes of men. John the Revelator says the church went into the wilderness. Joseph Smith says, "What do we hear?" "The voice of Peter, James, and John, in the wilderness, . . . declaring themselves as possessing the keys of the kingdom, and of the dispensation of the fullness of times." Again, Joseph Smith says that on a certain day in May, 1829, "we went into the woods to pray." While thus employed "a messenger from heaven descended in a cloud of light, and having laid his hands upon us, he ordained us, saying, . . . Upon you, my fellow servants, in the name of Messiah, I confer the priesthood of Aaron."

If John could come, why not Peter, and James? Are they not ministering spirits for those that are heirs of salvation?

HOW DID JOHN ORDAIN THEM?

Joseph Smith says, "Having laid his hands upon us, he ordained us." Oliver Cowdery says, "We received under his hands the holy priesthood." (Church History, p. 38.) Again, Doctrine and Covenants 26: 3: "Also with Peter, and James, and John, whom I have sent unto you, by whom I have ordained you and confirmed you to be apostles and especial witnesses." That is God's method and is in harmony with his law ever since the days of Adam, and the mode of conferring and confirming was and is by the laying on of hands and the power of the Holy Ghost in the one ordaining. We know of no exception to this rule. The law of the Lord is perfect. The same authority that sent John to ordain them to the Aaronic priesthood sent Peter, James, and John to ordain them to the Melchisedec priesthood. If language means anything, Joseph Smith was as much and as surely ordained and confirmed an apostle by the laying on of the hands of Peter, James, and John, as Joseph and Oliver were ordained to the Aaronic priesthood by John the Baptist. What reason for a different method? Could not the three come as easily as the one, if only a command of God was necessary? All the command necessary in the case was given to the three persons named to come and ordain Joseph Smith that he might be the first elder in the church and have power and authority given him to ordain Oliver Cowdery that he might be the second elder in the church, according to the revelations and commandments of God. To this agree all the revelations given on this important subject and the belief and teaching of the elders for more than sixty years. To reject these witnesses and their statements is to question the validity and veracity of all that is written and what the Lord says is faithful and true.

Joseph Smith was the first elder in the church, if we accept the revelations and commandments of God. (Sec. 17, D. C.) If we accept the modern interpretation, Oliver Cowdery was the first, and that would bring confusion, being illegal, not according to rule. The mode and method of conferring priesthood authority upon man "is governed by law, is also preserved" and perpetuated by law. "All beings who abide not in those conditions, are not justified." The angelic visitor told Joseph Smith the Aaronic priesthood, which he conferred upon him, had not the power to lay on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. If he had not this power, how could he ordain by the gift and power of the Holy Ghost? Impossible! If the foundations be destroyed or removed, what will the righteous do?

I believe in the angel message; that angels came and restored the priesthood in power and authority as at the first. I never questioned the validity of the testimony of the men so ordained. I accept the statement of Christ, "by their fruits ye shall know them;" and truly the signs of the apostleship were abundantly manifest in them and those sent through their authority, for the gospel came to me with power in the Holy Ghost and with much assurance, and the testimony of these men and the sealing power of the Holy Spirit with me is an end of controversy. For these reasons and others that might be given, I believe that Joseph Smith was ordained and confirmed an apostle and special witness to hold the keys of the kingdom as herein stated. (See D. C. 26: 3.) To believe and teach contrary to this would in my judgment be unsafe and reckless indeed.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 7.

Editors Herald:—Chicago is still alive and the gospel light is burning brightly, giving to all an opportunity to look into its beautiful truths and partake of their saving power. It is difficult in the midst of worldly pleasure and spiritual indifference to eternal things, to allure the people into an investigation of our claims. The few are coming usward, and by dint of advertising we succeed in reaching some.

The good feature of the work here is the united, earnest condition of the saints, with few exceptions. The frequent mention in Herald and Ensign of brethren of the Twelve being in Chicago on church work might lead the uninitiated to the thought that some terrible upheaval had occurred in the Chicago church; but we are here to state that Chicago branch is in no way responsible for the visitation of these brethren to our city; but this being a convenient center, they met here.

The gospel is preached at four different points in the city each Sunday, at which about eight sermons are preached, with three sermons and four prayer meetings during the week.

The writer's householder is being visited by affliction, our son having been sick for three weeks.

We were highly pleased with the editorial in the last Herald, whoever wrote it. We think the time for an advanced step has come in spiritual lines. Is this the "hastening time," in what way is it affecting the church? Or, does it mean this is the time for hastening, but the actual hastening dependent on the energy and effort of the saints? As one who wants to come up higher and lead many others with me, I am,

Your brother in Christ,

J. M. TERRY.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 4.

Editors Herald:—The day we celebrate! There is clash and bang enough here in Philadelphia to celebrate most anything, if noise will do it; but then we were all boys once, and some of us have not yet got over boyish tricks.

Well, we lay our plans to do, but how often we fail to accomplish. A month ago I was just going to open, or try to open, in different parts of the city places for preaching and other services, and had made partial arrangements to that end, when the hot hand of fever fell on me and held me struggling in its grasp. Administrations seemed to have little if any effect on me, and I grew worse. With my temperature at 104° and a high fever, I felt bad enough.

Bro. and Sr. Christy did all in their power for me and made me as comfortable as possible under the circumstances. But it seemed to me a case of get home or have a chance to preach on the other side; and I preferred, for some reasons not necessary to mention, to do a little more preaching on this side of life, so made up my mind to try and get home while I had some strength left. Bro. John Zimmerman kindly made all necessary arrangements for the journey and, better than all, went with me to Providence. May the Lord remember his kindly deed.

Bro. William Fenner and my wife met me at the station and took me in a carriage to the house of Bro. Bond, where I received administration at his hands. The light and power of the Holy Spirit were present, bringing joy to our hearts and health to my body, and although very weak I began to recover. The way back to health is a little uphill, but I am nearing the top. While at home Bro. and Sr. Edwards were very kind to me, sending fresh milk and fruit as well as flowers, all of which I appreciated very much.

On June 18 I preached at Fiskville, although very weak, but gained strength by doing so. The next Sunday I baptized a sister at Fiskville, preached to them there in afternoon and at Providence in the evening.

I left home last Friday and arrived here next day. We had sacrament meeting here Sunday morning and the writer preached at night. I am glad I am here again; was sorry to leave, but it seemed necessary. I desire to work for the Master and let him guide. May the Lord be with us all.

Yours in hope,

G. W. ROBLEY.

CHILLICOTHE, Ill., July 6.

Editors Herald:—After attending conference at Canton, June 3 and 4, Bro. Adams and the writer started for Peoria, stopping a short time at Farmington. Arriving at Peoria we loaded our baggage on the "trolley" and stopped in front of No. 228 Hancock Street. We landed here and found the comfortable quarters of Bro. and Sr. B. F. Ordway to be most inviting to the missionary, who occasionally feels like home would be a delightful place to stop over night.

We held a few preaching services at their home and shortly secured the use of a nice little hall on a prominent street. We concluded services there last Sunday night. While in this city we also filled several appointments at Orange Prairie. At the latter place we were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Sr. Epperson. While Mr. Epperson is not a brother, yet we feel that he may be sometime if his investigations continue. Here also we find Bro. Jesse Weaver who was brought to the knowledge of the gospel through the efforts of Sr. Epperson and Sr. Hegewood. Though struggling against terrible prejudice these noble saints are not hiding their light.

Both here and in Peoria we were remembered in a substantial manner, for which we are very grateful. May God bless according to his promise, those who minister unto his servants. We also shared the hospitality of Bro. and Sr. Clarke, two of the active workers in the city, especially in Sunday school and Religio work. Space prevents our mentioning names farther, but suffice it to say we left the saints feeling good and manifesting a spirit of activity. Before leaving we baptized eight, leaving others very near the kingdom.

Tuesday we came up the river to this place, having an escort of several of the Peoria saints who brought with them baskets filled with good things, just such as make a "Fourth of July picnic" enjoyable. Rain was the order of the day, so we "picniced" at the home of Bro. Joseph Kahler. The memories of the day will not soon fade.

Thunderstorms are announced for to-night, but if they do not arrive we expect to hold forth in the city park till Sunday night. We believe Bro. Crabb occupied the same stand last summer. These open air meetings are becoming quite "popular," so we might as well prepare for that mode of warfare.

We are of the opinion that one or two sermons in a place do very little good, but a continued effort is necessary; and while it is a "day of warning," yet sometimes it requires quite an effort to warn, and in some localities the saints need some preaching as well as those outside the church. If the saints would all make their lives correspond to their teachings, much trouble would be avoided.

We are feeling good in the work, and firmly believe that more good has been done in our going "two and two" than if we had been alone.

May the Father richly bless all those who are earnestly striving to do his will, and help us all to come up higher.

In gospel bonds,

F. A. RUSSELL.

XENIA, Ill., July 6.

Editors Herald:—The circular inclosed will inform you where Clark Braden is and what he is doing. I listened to six of his lectures against the work, as published in the circular; I don't think, judging from what I have read and heard, he had anything new to tell us. Challenges from the Campbellites and the Latter Day Saints were handed out. No agreement on propositions has been arrived at.

Our conference passed off quietly with a very large attendance. I baptized three, all heads of families, a few days before our conference near Alma, in Marion County, in about two or three miles from where Clark Braden is living, and where he is principal in a college controlled by the Christian Church. I am expecting to do some preaching in the town of Alma before long. I would not be surprised if they did not imagine vain things and the heathen rage.

In bonds,

J. D. STEAD.

BLENCOE, Iowa, July 7.

Editors Herald:—When I wrote before I was detained at home on account of the sickness of my wife, which continued so that I have not felt it advisable nor safe to leave her more than a day or two at a time, which has confined my labors within close proximity to my home; but I have tried hard to occupy as effectively as I could, and whatever criticism may be offered because I have not done more within the last six months, I wish to say to those criticising that I have done what in my judgment I thought best for the work. I am very grateful that no criticism of that character has greeted my ears with all else I have had to endure, but even had this been the case, I am sure God's grace would have been sufficient. My desire to do service for God and humanity has been largely increased.

During the late experiences, I have learned myself better, and have been drawn closer to God, and farther away from the world, for which results I am very thankful.

I have sought every opportunity to comfort the feeble minded, instruct the weak, and give the proper strength by which they might by legitimate efforts be enabled to overcome. Satanic power has in various ways sought the overthrow of some, but none as yet are lost, and in the stead thereof all are recovering themselves, though the trials of some have been very severe and are yet quite severe; but all are more hopeful, humble, and better instructed to meet the enemy with his deceptions and efforts to destroy. The cautious, discreet, yet firm disposition of the district president, and the almost perfect unity of action between all officials, both local and general, has been the greatest force in securing peace and relief, and is placing the work in this mission upon a more secure basis than I have ever known it to be; and my knowledge of and association with the work of this district extends over a period of about twenty years. It is true the saints are not in a condition that I would advise them to gather more closely together than they now are, but believe they are more willing and better prepared to live as now locally gathered in an approved manner than they have been; and my prayer is and labor will be to secure to each such a disposition that when the Lord calls upon his people to come to Zion and consecrate to build the House of the Lord, such a call will be met with willing, joyous response.

On the 29th ult., through the kindness of Brn. Joseph L. and Charles Benson, I was conveyed to Moorhead, where it just happened to be the eve of their Religio meeting, and in attending sought to encourage by what help I could render, as is my desire to do in connection with all the departments for good. The great good that has been and is being rendered to the church by the help these departments have rendered has not as yet been appreciated but by the few. Much discouragement has been endured by the Religio from those from whom just the opposite should have been expected, but some of it has grown out of unwise actions by those associated with the Religio, from a lack of understanding the true object of the organization. Unwise actions of the past should be forgiven, especially when it is seen that an effort is being made to do better, and to occupy a place in the church so necessary to meet a growing demand among the young people of the church.

On the 30th and July 1, I occupied in the evening, continuing over the Lord's day with the Moorhead saints. I found a deeper interest on the part of the saints than when I was there previously.

Came here the 5th inst., and raised our tent and on the 6th began services under much more favorable circumstances than when here last summer. The people seem to be more friendly and desirous of hearing the word.

The stormy season is now nearly past, so we feel safer than earlier in the season to do tent work.

The district convention and conference met at Magnolia, Iowa, June 16-18, and resulted in good to those assembled, and we hope will be of benefit to the work of the future. One was ordained an elder, the Spirit bearing witness of his calling, and two children blessed. The priesthood meeting of the district was the beginning of an effort to call all the priesthood of the district together from time to time for counsel, advice, and encouragement.

My faith is strong, my hope is bright, and God seems nearer to me and his work dearer to me than ever before.

Looking for a speedy consummation of all things prophesied of, I am,

Your brother,

J. F. MINTUN.

DIVINE HEALING.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 5.

Editors Herald:—A few lines concerning a dream I had about divine healings. This may be of some benefit to encourage the dear saints abroad. On the evening of June 23, 1899, I dreamed that my wife, who has been sick many years, called on me to administer to her, and I thought she had been administered to so many times it would be of no worth. And the Spirit seemed to say to me, O, ye of little faith! You pray to God and Christ to heal your wife, and you believe that I, the Lord, have power to heal, and when you administer to the sick you don't believe I will heal the sick, and you do doubt me, and that is the reason why the sick do not get well when they are administered to in the church by the hands of my elders in these latter days. It is my will that all of my elders, through me, the Lord Jesus Christ, have power to heal, and you have done my will according to mine apostle, James, as recorded in James 5: 13.

And the Lord said to me again: My servants in days of old had power to heal the sick. I gave them power and told them to go and heal the sick and cast out devils.

I said to the Spirit that I did not have power to heal the sick; then I was told that I had not prayed to the Father for that gift in his name, and if I prayed the Father in Jesus' name, power would be given me to heal the sick, and that power had to be in the elders who lay on hands.

Dear saints, it is very true that I have not prayed for that gift. And again the Spirit said to me that my wife was in the hands of God and I was not to worry about her, but preach the word, and if she lived she would live unto God, and if she died she would die unto the Lord. Then the Spirit said unto me to take up the Bible and read the seventh chapter of Luke from first to last, to my wife, then tell her the dream and anoint her with oil. And I did as the Spirit bade me, and I can safely say, dear saints, she has been improving ever since. O, may God increase our faith and confirm our hopes and perfect us in love.

I was also promised through the Spirit that I should have the gift of healing. This is a strange dream for me indeed, dear saints. O, may I follow after charity and desire spiritual gifts, but the greatest of all gifts is charity; for we need God's blessings among the colored race of people.

I am strong in the faith, but business goes very slow here in this wicked city of Chicago. I have baptized ten and three more are very near the kingdom. Dear saints, lend us your prayers that our work may prosper in Chicago, and our prayers are ever for you all.

Yours in Christ,

G. H. GRAVES.

NEW YORK, July 6.

Editors Herald:—May all who contribute to your pages ever go on with your good work of making plain gospel truth and its restoration in these latter days. I have been enabled through the spirit of latter-day revelation, to learn many things since I entered into the door of the sheepfold. It makes me seek to be humble in mind and thought, and often with fear and trembling while striving to work out its principles of faith in my life. God has been enabled somewhat to do his will and good pleasure, as I submit myself to him. I believe him as willing to bear witness to the gospel to-day as well as in the early church, both in signs and wonders and divers miracles and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will and power.

For myself I can witness to his goodness, having been healed when sick. I have had three visions, five dreams of a beneficial character, in which I was shown the marked difference of knowing as well as trusting for my standing before him. Of one of his kindnesses to me in healing I will make mention here. It happened two years ago. The saints were having a reunion in Boston and I was there suffering with rheumatism, from which I was kept awake nights. As the testimony meeting was being held a sister arose and in the spirit of prophecy said that the Lord would heal at once any who would call upon the elders for anointing at the anointing service. I made my request to be anointed and went in to be administered to. I believed all that had been given, but as I sat down while the elder prayed I saw a pair of hands descend from above my head and rest upon me. So great was the manifestation I arose from my chair, thinking the elders were through. When they told me to sit down as they had not anointed me with the oil, I did so, and when I left the chair I had also left the rheumatism; but on entering the room where the saints were I was accosted by an elder whose wife had the same trouble as myself, and he kindly offered me the name of a bottle of medicine to use. I told him how the Lord had relieved me of the necessity of it, and he wondered at my faith; but I have had no return of rheumatism whatever since the two years have passed, and I think the oil has been blessed in my case at least.

I am now in New York City and go to Brooklyn to the meetings of the saints. Bro. Potts has been doing some open air gospel preaching, and it is rather cheering to see the multitude ask questions and also occasionally warn him of false prophets. But one has to get used to being called a Mormon and a dangerous man, and have others told to look out for you, saying that you are crafty. These pleasures I have had mixed in with my experience, as a saint only, but a cross that is worth taking up is worth bearing. It has paid me here on earth to obey the gospel as I did four years ago at Plainville, Massachusetts, and my testimony is baptism for the remission of sins, and the joy of abiding in the true vine far exceeds my greatest conception of truth. I made no mistake; the restoration is all right in the right time.

I thank God for the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants, in which is the fulness of the gospel. They are very powerful in cases of the old leaven of sectarianism. A poor fellow doesn't have or get much comfort out of it. I have had an experience in missionary and other work in the sectarian line, and my surroundings in these lines would naturally make me inclined to seek office and position, but not by any call or through a knowledge of God's order or principles of revealed righteousness of the gospel could I say he sent me forth to preach the gospel to the heathen of the Congo of Africa. I had a gospel, but not the gospel of Jesus Christ. I thank God for a chance to obey him according to the righteous revelation of the gospel, and being accepted by obedience, and not by sacrifice of my body to be burned, or some great effort of bestowing myself upon him through worthless gifts of zeal without knowledge.

I have found a place to rest in Christ's body, his Spirit taking the abode to possess my life. I ran both to the East and to the West for rest, and found none; but it came to me in the Church of Jesus Christ by obedience to the gospel, a sure foundation. Jesus Christ himself the chief stone of the corner, thus enabling me to have the spirit of knowledge of the truth of the gospel, its revelation to my own life through his prophets and servants, that I can make no mistake, nor run before being chosen of God.

How ignorant I have been, and yet I have many things to learn. How cheering it was to have a prophecy given me that even when I thought my heavenly Father was afar off he was high unto me; and when I would have fainted he gave me strength; and that even while young his angels had ministered to me and guided me; and that out of a furnace of much affliction he had gathered me into his kingdom; and that I should be purified as gold in the fire. All this was a Father's love to me; severe, hard, at times, almost unbearable; yet all for the best, leading me towards truth's precious gifts; and I hope and pray that my highest aim and purpose will be a humble, contrite spirit, that it may teach me the beauty of a Christ love for his true church, bought and sealed by his Spirit in the atonement and sacrifice of himself, that he might so endow it that the Father would also be pleased to bear witness to its truth and fullness forever and ever.

Yours in the faith,

A. M. MERRILL.

MALLARD, Iowa, July 8.

Editors Herald:—For three weeks our district tabernacle has been doing service for the cause of truth in this place. Elder R. Wight and I began the meetings but have been ably assisted of late by Elders C. Derry and W. W. Whiting. The latter was with us ten days, then returned to his mission field in Nebraska. Bro. Derry remained one week, then on to Coalville. Meetings have been fairly well attended such a busy season. Some have expressed themselves satisfied with the message we bear and of an intention to obey. A union meeting and picnic dinner was held in the tabernacle last Sunday which was a success in every way. Brn. Derry and Wight occupied the morning and afternoon preaching hours. A heavy rain prevented evening service.

By request of Bro. Derry a meeting of the saints was called Monday, July 3, for the purpose of considering the advisability of building a chapel in which to worship God in this town. Bro. Edmund Ford, president of the branch, was selected to preside over the meeting, and all present favored building a church house, size 36 x 24, with vestibule and alcove. A soliciting and building committee were appointed consisting of Brn. E. Ford, J. Fish, and J. Truog, which certainly means success to the enterprise. Over six hundred dollars was subscribed in two days. This town has only two church buildings; viz., Catholic and Lutheran.

We are under promise to locate the tabernacle in Lake City, Iowa, the latter part of this month.

Dear saints, I take this opportunity to remind you that I am still your Bishop's agent for the Galland's Grove district. Please do not neglect to send in your tithes and offerings.

Address me at Deloit, Crawford County, Iowa.

Faithfully yours,

C. J. HUNT.

Editors Herald:—The thought of Bro. Isaac S. Henry, in Herald of July 5, in reference to the land of Israel being exempt from fire when the world is burned, is new, but may be true. We are told that in Zion and in Jerusalem there will be safety, and if the "regions round about" and the stakes are exempt, why not also the land of Israel?

His Napoleonic theory also is a very odd one. There is no need for a Napoleon to rise from the dead, as there is one here who is impatient to rush upon his awful destiny. He has done all that he can do to hasten the end, and the royalists of France are doing all they can to put this latter-day, Roman Prince Napoleon upon the throne of France; but prophecy says that the Jews are to place him there, and in return he will assist them to recover their long-lost promised land. He is now an officer in the Russian army, and will soon make a covenant with the Jews which he will keep only long enough to accomplish his ambitious purposes. He will restore their city, rebuild their temple, and with their former splendor restored they will conclude that he is their long looked-for Messiah, thus fulfilling the words of the Savior that another will come in his own name, and be received. He will work out his plans by all "deceivableness of unrighteousness."

When all is matured, he will in their own sacred temple declare himself supreme, then their eyes will be opened and they will reject him; then all who will not receive his mark, the mark of the beast, (or Papacy,) will be treated worse than heretics were in the days of the inquisition; then will commence the last half of the great tribulation as described in Revelation. As leader of the hosts of hell he will circumnavigate the globe, and for a time be supreme ruler of the earth. Truth will seem crushed, and liberty lost forever; but over all of this wreck and ruin a light will burst forth. It will be the glow of His appearing. The Christ will come, and restore all things. Our Redeemer and Deliverer, for thee we confidently wait in hope, though between us and thy coming, yawns this dark abyss.

Editors Herald:—We have just closed a very profitable conference of Northeastern Texas and Choctaw district. Four persons were baptized at the close. The saints were edified and built up in the faith by the preaching of brethren Hilliard and Short. We left the Erwin brothers and Bro. John Kent to continue the meeting during the week. I am glad to say the work is moving nicely in this part of Texas. Very sickly here at present; crops fairly good.

"FAULT-FINDING YOUNG SISTER."

My Dear:—Wishing to help you see the sin there is in dancing, I take pleasure in submitting the following for your serious and prayerful consideration. Paul says, "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" (1 Cor. 10:31). Now it is easy to see how one can glorify God in eating and drinking, thereby caring in a proper manner for the body, the temple of the Holy Ghost, and bringing about the highest physical condition possible; thereby having fewer physical and mental infirmities to contend with, and aiding in that mental and spiritual growth which reflects credit upon himself and the church to which he belongs.

We are commanded to present our "bodies a living sacrifice" (Rom. 12:1). Surely that does not mean living for or in pleasure. Also notice 1 Timothy 5:6, "She that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth." You remember also that excess of laughter and lightness of speech are condemned. (Doc. and Cov., pages 181, 238, 242, 343.) But we are also commanded to be cheerful. So we must carefully distinguish between the two, and walk according to God's commands. Now I would like to ask, "Will the conversation usually heard at the dance meet with God's approval when examined in the light of the above quotations?" "The glory of God is intelligence" (D. C., p. 251), and we are commanded to grow in grace and knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ (2 Pet. 3:18). Is there anything in dancing that adds to our intelligence, grace (in the sense used by Peter), or knowledge? If not, are we glorifying God as he expects us to do when we indulge in dancing? If dancing is all right, why do worldly people sneer so contemptuously at "dancing Christians"? Perhaps that may not be true in your community, or you may never have heard the criticism. I believe I have never lived in a place where it was not considered very inconsistent for church members to dance, and I am not now referring to Latter Day Saints, but to the various Christian denominations. Since the world regards dancing in such light, how can Latter Day Saints indulge in it and not bring reproach upon themselves and upon the church?

And, my dear, honestly and candidly, do you not allow young men certain liberties in the dance that you would instantly and most emphatically resent at any other time and place? Why is it less immodest in the dance than elsewhere?

Now do not think I condemn all recreation and pleasures. I do not; but I do say, "Let our pleasures be of a restful, elevating nature." Let us thereby gain some new strength, peace of mind, and knowledge.

Not long ago the Spirit said to one of our young sisters, "Let thy companions be those of the church, lest thy heart be turned away." Do you meet more young saints, or more of other denominations, or those of none at all at dancing parties? Does the dance cause you to love the church more, or to lead you to feel indifferent as to her welfare? Would you like to go from the dance to the sacrament? Could you feel yourself in a proper frame of mind, and as accepted of the Lord, if you did so? In what way does the dance make you more fit to meet our blessed Lord and Savior when he shall come? or in what way does it qualify you for that "abundant entrance" into the kingdom of heaven, that Peter speaks of?

My dear, does the dance make you think more frequently of our Savior, or cause you to love him more? Does the Spirit of God rest upon you at the dance as it does at the prayer meeting? When attending the dance, are we "denying ungodliness and worldly lusts," living "soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Savior Jesus Christ"? (Titus 2:12, 13.)

Now study these questions carefully; answer them as between yourself and God, and see if you cannot find the sin that is in dancing. From the above I would say that it is a sin, because:—

1. It does not glorify God. (1 Cor. 10:31.)
2. It is not presenting our bodies a living sacrifice. (Rom. 12:1.)
3. It is mere worldly pleasure to say the least, and places one in the condition of being "dead while she liveth." (1 Tim. 5:6.)
4. It leads to excess of laughter and lightness of speech, which are forbidden. (D. C., pages 181, 238, 242, 343.)
5. It prevents our growth in grace (favor with God), knowledge, and intelligence.
6. It is condemned by the world, who hold "dancing Christians" in contempt, and brings reproach upon the church.
7. It is immodest.
8. It throws us into the company of those with whom the Lord says we are not to associate.
9. It unfits us for partaking of the sacrament.
10. It makes us unconcerned as to the nearness of Christ's coming.

These are not all of the reasons that prove that dancing is a sin. Others could easily be given. The above quotations from the Bible and Doctrine and Covenants throw enough light upon the subject, that anyone who is willing to do so, can easily see that dancing is detrimental to our spiritual interests. I trust I have been able to point out to our "fault-finding young sister," and to all others who are willing to learn, just why and in what way dancing is a sin; and that they will, by the grace of God, at once and forever abandon the practice, and substitute some form of recreation about which there could be no question. Lovingly,

SISTER STEWART.

IF WE WOULD.

If we would but shirk the speaker,
When she spoils her neighbor's fame;
If we would but help the erring,
Ere we utter words of blame.
If we would, how many might we Turn from paths of sin and shame.

Ah, the wrongs that might be righted,
If we would but see the way;
Ah, the pain that might be lightened
Every hour and every day,
If we would but hear the pleadings
Of the hearts that go astray.

Let us step outside the threshold
Of our selfishness and pride;
Let us lift our fainting sister,
Let us strengthen ere we chide.

Let us ere we blame the fallen
Hold a light to cheer and guide.

Ah, how blessed! ah, how blessed
Earth would be, if we'd but try,
Thus to aid and right the weaker,
Thus to check each sister's sigh;
Thus to talk of duty's pathway
To a better life on high.

In each life, however lowly,
There are seeds of mighty good,
Still we shrink from soul's appealing
With a timid "If we could,"
But the God who judgeth all things Knows the truth is—"If we would."

Sisters of the Home Column:—Wishing to add my mite to your pages, I will do so by giving a little experience. My early training was in bitter opposition to the church. I was taught that they were all bad; and when I heard the gospel preached and was convinced that it agreed with the Scriptures, that it was truly the gospel preached by the apostles, with all its gifts and blessings; the next thought which presented itself was, Why do not the saints live by what they preach, knowing that they have the truth and manifestation of God's power among them and obedience to his law would bring his blessing upon them? The query, Why cometh disobedience? Why are there five wise and five foolish? All seem to rejoice for a time in hearing the word; but when the cares of this world, the love of pleasure, and the deceitfulness of riches enter and choke, or uproot the good word, until the individual becomes barren or unfruitful.

It is noticeable that many of those who come into the church in their youth become careless and unconcerned. What is the cause? Is it lack of proper training and a good example? A beautiful thought was presented by a friend, in reference to a wayward boy. She said, "Children with proper home training and influence do sometimes go astray, but what can we expect of those with bad example and influence at home?" What a great responsibility rests upon parents, and mothers in particular, on whom the greater part of the early training depends. How careful we should be to study God's law, to learn and to obey it; for how can we teach a law which we do not obey ourselves?

Strength for to-day is all that we need,
As there never will be a to-morrow;
For to-morrow will prove but another day,
With its measures of joy and sorrow.

Strength for to-day, that the weary hearts
In the battle for right may quit not,
And the eyes bedimmed by bitter tears

IN a letter from Bro. D. W. Wight, a missionary in Utah, is the following report from some of the work being done in that part of the field. The report is very encouraging, especially so when we consider the conditions that obtain in the greater part of the State. Do not let this be your last report, Bro.

Wight. And we trust, too, that your suggestion concerning the Sunday school work at the reunion will not be overlooked.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK IN UTAH.

Sunday, June 11, was a gala day at Pleasant Grove. The Provo and Pleasant Grove Sunday schools met in convention, about one hundred being present. Regular Sunday school work occupied the morning hour, after which all present did ample justice to a picnic dinner. The afternoon program consisted of literary and convention work. Many excellent thoughts were presented by those present, and the following paper, reminiscent in its character, and replete as well with suggestive thought, was read by Miss Hilda Anderson, secretary and primary teacher in Provo Sunday school. The work in above-named places is in the hands of faithful workers and undoubtedly received great impetus from the effort made. In Ogden the Sunday school is prospering nicely under the excellent supervision of Sr. N. D. Cooper, with Sr. Jennie Garr assistant, Sr. Vieve Chase secretary.

At my last information, Srs. Hannah Larson and U. Coleman were in charge at Nephi, and faithfully persevering in the work.

Permit me to suggest that every possible effort be made to advance this important part of the work; and perhaps the missionary in charge will grant a portion of the time at the annual reunion, for a consideration of the Sunday school needs that this work may be placed upon a better basis.

In bonds,

D. W. WIGHT.

To the Brethren and Sisters and Friends, Colaborers in the Sabbath School Work; Greeting:—It is a source of great pleasure to me to meet with you this afternoon. Gathered as we are from a few parts of the county, we signify by our presence our interest in this department of the work we love so well. We acknowledge our responsibility therein, and manifest a willingness to help carry whatever there may be of burden to the work. We recognize, too, that while we are but few, preparing and furnishing opportunities for labor, we are erecting a mighty bulwark against the incursions of sin and error upon the child, the home, the community, and against the kingdom. We are enlisting an army that will invade the territory of sin, of the world, and rescue from its haunts and prisons precious souls, and save them from inevitable loss.

We have assembled here this afternoon in convention capacity, and we pray God's blessing to rest upon this meeting, his Holy Spirit to abide in every heart and that all may feel that we are laboring for him and the upbuilding of his kingdom on this earth.

In the spring of 1894, while Bro. H. N. Hansen, of Iowa, and Bro. R. Etzenhouser, of Missouri, were laboring in the mission field of Provo, they thought it wise to organize a Sunday school, in order that the young should receive instruction as well as the old. So a meeting of a few saints in Provo was called at the home of Sr. Reese, on Sunday, March 18, 1894. Bro. Nels Olson was chosen superintendent. . . . The following Sunday twenty-six scholars and seven officers and teachers were enrolled. A great interest was taken, all trying to do their part.

But finally in 1896 some began to get discouraged and dropped out one by one. So Sunday school adjourned until 1898 when Brn. D. W. Wight and R. J. Parker working in the mission field, with the assistance of the saints, organized a Sunday school July 24. . . . There are now forty-five scholars, officers, and teachers enrolled, and every one seems to be taking an interest in the work. When Sunday morning arrives we wend our way to Sabbath school with prayerful hearts. The superintendent steps into the room with a smile on her face and a kind good morning to all. All officers and scholars arrive fifteen minutes before school is taken up, for song service. The librarian passes all books before song service begins. At 10:30 the superintendent calls the school to order by announcing the opening song. Then prayer is offered by one of the brethren, after which we sing the second song. That is followed by responsive reading; the superintendent reads alternately with the school, after which she states that classes will take their places. They are now in readiness to begin their work. Then as the teachers have attended teachers' meeting, and all decide on what are the most important points in the lesson, and all teach the same points, we shall then see the grandeur and harmony in uniformity of thought and mind as well as the grandeur of uniformity of texts. They must study to bring out the most central thoughts, and agree upon what they shall teach. All should be in readiness for the review, which should begin as soon as classes have marched back to their places. The minutes of the last Sunday are now read, the closing hymn is then announced, and Sunday school closes with the benediction.

Let us try to make the future as successful as the past, and never get discouraged. By this method we will rapidly grow higher and higher. Many try to grade their Sunday schools in one day, and are discouraged because they fail; it is not done in that way. The best graded school we know of took five years to grade. The end of the year is a good time to look over the work that has been done and plan to improve during the opening year. Love the children, love the work, and pray, and God will not leave you alone.

Several items I will not try to enumerate, but in summing up the work, would say in the words of another, "We have done the best we could. We recognize God's hand in the work, and praise his name for the strength and courage he has given us when we were in the need thereof." May the blessing of peace, love, and unity rest upon us and God's Holy Spirit direct us, both during this meeting and in all times that is to come.

The above district Sunday school association held its annual convention in the saints' meeting room, South Manchester, May 20 and 22; Elder S. F. Mather in the chair, W. R. Armstrong secretary. Opening remarks by Elder F. G. Pitt were suitable and encouraging. Delegates credentials adopted. Elder Pitt was admitted to voice and vote in convention. Bro. Mather read his report, which was very interesting and hopeful. Reports of school superintendents were read. Officers elected for ensuing twelve months: S. F. Mather superintendent, W. R. Armstrong assistant, J. Taylor secretary, W. R. Roberts minuting secretary, C. H. Barton treasurer. Saturday evening Bro. Pitt said the watchword of Sunday school workers was "Forward." A model lesson was then given by W. R. Armstrong on the "deluge." In his opening remarks he said that models were far more effective in teaching the children than either words or pictures. The date of the deluge was said to be B. C. 2348. The size of the ark was compared with that of the Great Eastern. A toy ark was made use of for the benefit of the younger children, the inmates and animals being exhibited and examined with interest and profit. The difference between the clean and unclean animals was shown, with the hoofs of the horse and cow, and sketches of the animals named. Noah's faith and obedience ended in his preservation. He showed great faith in God's word, by continuing the building of the ark and entering it when there was no sign of a flood. It was universal, and man's sinfulness involved the destruction of the beasts. It was shown to be confirmed by traditions of peoples in the four quarters of the earth. The questions as to how animals crossed the seas, and how the fish, vegetation, and amphibious animals were preserved, were mentioned. It was said that they were miraculously preserved. In conclusion the deluge was said to be a divine judgment upon men, which extended to the utmost limits of man's habitation, and that no definite traces of it could be found. Proofs in favor of such a flood were offered from Isaiah, Peter, Paul, and Christ. The lesson was concluded with questioning, and where possible parallelisms from everyday life, and the latter-day work were used. Questions were put to the teacher at the close. On Sunday, five local schools met at North Manchester meeting room and marched in procession to the Churnett Street public hall, headed by our band. This is the largest procession our schools have ever had. The children looked beautiful in their bright summer clothing, and we felt hopeful for the future. At two p. m. appropriate addresses were delivered by J. W. Rushton, J. Arber, H. Greenwood, T. Taylor, J. Worth, W. Hanken, F. G. Pitt, W. R. Roberts, J. Harper, J. Dewsnup, Sr., S. F. Mather, W. R. Armstrong. After which a suitable program was rendered. The scholars and friends now marched back to the meeting room, where refreshment was provided for them. Tea over, they marched round the immediate neighborhood, returning to the public hall in time for the evening service. The speaker was Bro. F. G. Pitt, whose text was "Feed my Lambs." He appealed to both old and young to take part in Sabbath school work; branch officers were especially invited. The usefulness of the Quarterlies and the work of the Zion's Religio-Literary Society was made very clear. A fervent appeal was made to all present to assist us in "feeding the lambs"—the future hope of the church. There was present at this service the largest congregation the church has yet had in this mission. On Monday morning the statistical report of the district was read by the secretary, the financial part of which was not complete, as one school had not reported. Resolved that the secretary's report be accepted with the understanding that the item of finance be completed afterwards. Twelve schools were reported, with 534 scholars, 66 officers, 49 classes, 51 teachers. One school had been organized during the year; viz., East Manchester. Eleven schools were represented by 17 delegates, and Clay Cross was unrepresented. The list of schools is as follows: Farnworth, Hunslett, Leeds, London, East Manchester, Northeast Manchester, South Manchester, North Manchester, Salford, Sheffield, Wigan, Clay Cross. In answer to a question, the chairman said that a school which requires the visits of the district officers should be prepared to pay their railway fares, or part of them, as the financial condition of the association was not so strong. Resolved that J. W. Rushton and J. Arber audit treasurer's book. Resolved that the association officially recommend its schools not to enroll children under two years of age. Resolved that F. G. Pitt represent the association at the general church convention of 1900 in America. The report of the Salford superintendent, J. Taylor, was here presented and received. Resolved that the association procure a banner, and that the surplus money of the convention be appropriated in purchasing one. At two p. m. business was resumed.

*Subscriptions will be thankfully received from any brother or sister who reads this report, by W. R. Armstrong, No. 1 Shakespeare Street, Ardwick, Manchester, England, for the object named.

The auditing committee's report was now presented. Resolved, that the Sunday school district appoint a committee to collect moneys to purchase a banner, and the following brethren were appointed: H. Greenwood, W. R. Armstrong, and J. W. Taylor. Resolved, that when this meeting adjourns it shall do so to meet again in North Manchester room at seven p. m., June 3, 1899, to receive the report of committees. Resolved that the superintendent, assistant superintendent, and secretary of this association be authorized to make arrangements for holding next annual convention. The financial report was ordered adopted and spread upon the minutes. Resolved, that the utilization of time at district or mission conference be left in the hands of the superintendent. Papers were presented by: J. Arber, on the "Sunday School Teacher;" J. W. Taylor, on the "Sunday school;" J. Dewsnup, Jr., on "Is the Sunday school an auxiliary to the church or an independent organization?" The papers were most interesting and instructive. Proceedings were interspersed with singing. At 6:30 p. m. an experience meeting of all Sabbath school workers and friends was held. A very profitable and pleasant time was spent by all the saints present, and the outlook for the future appeared hopeful. Bro. Pitt offered the closing prayer. Thus closed one of the most successful Sabbath school gatherings yet held by the Reorganization in this country, and we had the largest concourse of people ever yet seen in one of our meetings in the city of Manchester.

On June 3, 1899, the following report of the finance committee was presented. "We the undersigned on behalf of committee, present to you our report of labor done in connection with the Sunday school convention of 1899. We congratulate you upon the success of the first demonstration held in Manchester, and thank one and all for their cooperation in the matter. As a program committee our action has been proved by the success of the program adopted; as a location committee we were able to supply the needs of all delegates; as a finance committee our success is shown by the fact that we have a balance in hand of £6. 8s. 2d., after paying away £7. 13s. 8½d. for hire of hall and other things. In asking for the discharge of the various committees we trust that we have given along with the brethren concerned entire satisfaction. The following is the list of subscriptions: Brn. W. R., and Sr. Lloyd, 7s. 6d.; Farnworth Sunday school, 19s. 2d.; Sheffield Sunday school, 4s. 6d.; Wigan Sunday school, 4s. 3d.; Zion's Hope Sunday school, London, 12s. 3d.; Clay Cross Sunday school, 14s.; North Manchester Sunday school, $2. 15s. 10d.; South Manchester Sunday school, £1. 3s. 6d.; Salford Sunday school, 6s. 6d.; Northeast Manchester Sunday school, 10s.; Hunslet Sunday school, 12s. 6d.; J. NAUVOO.

Sunday school association met at Keb, Iowa, June 16. Opening address by district superintendent, G. P. Lambert. A credential committee was appointed by the superintendent. The superintendent's report was read and received. Elder J. S. Snively addressed the convention. Reports of Burlington, Montrose, Rock Creek, Fort Madison, and Keb schools were received. Responsive reading was conducted from Nehemiah 8:1-18. As the attendance was small, the convention was divided into two senior classes, taught by John R. Evans and John Jervis. Forty-five minutes were spent in study of the lesson. In the evening a very delightful program was rendered by Keb Sunday school, the musical numbers especially showed hard labor on the part of both the scholars and their instructor, John L. Morgan. The music that was rendered was made more enjoyable by the fact that it was all original, being composed especially for the evening. It was mostly the work of John L. Morgan of Keb. Adjourned to one day previous to, and at same place as next district conference.

NORTHEAST MISSOURI.

District Sunday school association met at Bevier, June 17; Louise Palfrey superintendent, M. J. Richards secretary. At nine a. m. a short time was used for prayer, and at 9:45 business session was held. Three schools were represented and reported: Higbee, Salt River, and Bevier. Superintendents F. T. Russell of Bevier, and E. E. Petre of Pollock, reported in writing. Treasurer's report adopted: On hand last report $7.94; receipts $7.01; expenditures $5.38; balance on hand $9.57. Bills of expenses of superintendent 85 cents, and program committee $1.75. Bro. T. A. Hougas attended convention and held two sessions of institute. Some of the subjects that were discussed were, "The officers of the Sunday school," "Sunday school discipline," "District conventions and institutes," "Object lessons," and "Black-board work." Sunday school at nine Sunday morning was divided into ten classes. One hundred and forty-one scholars and five district officers were present. Elder R. M. Elvin gave the review. Collection amounted to $3.39. Adjourned to the day prior to district conference in October, in Higbee.

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN AND NORTHERN INDIANA.

Convention at Clear Lake, Indiana, May 26, was called to order and James Baggerly elected chairman pro tem., who conducted the meeting until S. W. L. Scott took the chair. L. Fay secretary pro tem., O. Storey assistant. The forenoon was occupied by remarks on the management of Sunday school work. The committee on credentials found that many of the schools had sent credentials and delegates, but the former custom of voting by the body was allowed. Many of the school reports were found to be correct, but a few were ordered to be returned for correction. The numerical strength of the schools as reported is as follows: Hartford 40, Buchanan 30, Galien —, Flint, Ind. 30, Coldwater 46, Englishville 15, Clear Lake 73, Grand Rapids 56, Knox 25. No reports from Anderson, New Troy, and South Scott. [Letter received from Anderson after conference. —Sec.] We feel hopeful to get perfect reports in the near future. The principle of representation is also improving. An interesting discussion was had upon the following topics, by questions and answers thereon, by Bro. Scott, Sr. Ella Davis, Sr. Jessie Corless, Elder G. A. Smith, and others: "How teachers can assist the superintendent." "What constitutes intermediate work?" "What should be the test of fitness for intermediate work?" "Should examination be had prior to promotion?" "When had a scholar ought to be promoted?" "The test of promotion." The treasurer's report showed $2 14 on hand. The secretary's bill of 50 cents was allowed. The present district officers were sustained. All were happy, and the association adjourned to meet the day and place previous to the next sitting of district conference.

BISHOP'S AGENTS' NOTICES.

To the Saints of Northern Nebraska District:—Having been appointed by the Bishop to act as his agent for Northern Nebraska district, I take this method of informing those interested in regard to the same, and hope that among those who live in the district, we may have a record for obedience to the temporal laws of the church, that when the time may come for us to have a reckoning along with all others, we may not be found wanting; but that we may have it said of us that we have done the work required of us in an acceptable manner before the Master, and have a right to the rewards promised to those that are faithful to the trusts imposed on them. The needs of the church, financially, are great; and without the means being furnished by those whose duty it is to pay tithing, the work will be crippled; therefore we urge on all members to pay their tithing, and try the Lord whether he will fulfill the promises made to the children of Israel for the payment of their tithes, and we think that if the promises made to those who obey the first principles of the gospel are sufficient to repay for obedience to that part of the gospel, should we not place just as much confidence in the further promises made to those of the household of faith, and obey the duties required of us to the church as well in regard to the financial part of the work as to the spiritual.

Those living in Omaha and vicinity can pay to Bro. J. Avondet, No. 1315 California Street; those at Platte Valley branch, to Bro. George H. Wilson, Valley, Nebraska; those living at or near Fremont, to Bro. J. P. Ogard; those at Columbus, to Bro. H. J. Hudson; those living at the Lake Shore branch, to Bro. Ira C. Lewis, Decatur, Nebraska; or send direct to me.

Hoping the foregoing may meet the approval of all those residing in the district, and that they will govern themselves accordingly, I remain your fellow servant in the service of the Master,

JAMES HUFF, Bishop's Agent.
1818 North 21st Street, OMAHA, Neb.

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale.

Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

Address, FRANK CRILEY, Business Manager, LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844,—to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

IS BROTHER MOODY DRIFTING?

The Chicago Tribune, which discovered Brother Moody and first gave him the fraternal name by which he is so well and familiarly known, is somewhat surprised at the theological departure which he has recently made. The Tribune has always regarded Brother Moody as the one thing fixed and unalterable in this world of uncertainties. It has believed he was not a Berean searching the Scriptures to see whether things were so, but that he accepted every statement in them because it was so "set down in holy writ." Up to the present time the three children in the fiery furnace, the astonishing ventures of Samson, Jonah's remarkable subaquatic experiences, the mistakes of Moses, the orgies of Solomon and David, Ruth in "the alien corn," and beautiful Queen Esther, Adam and Eve and the apple story have found their most vigorous defender in Brother Moody. There was a time when Brother Moody would have contended for the truth of the Bible stories even if they had said that Jonah swallowed the whale, but a change seems to have come over the spirit of his dreams.

It is well known that Brother Moody is the head of the theological institution at Northfield which he founded and built up. Temporally and spiritually his jurisdiction there is absolute. No one can speak at the summer meetings except upon his invitation and with his permission. Many of the leaders in this institution and many of Brother Moody's ultra-orthodox friends are now in a state of mind because Professor George Adam Smith was one of the speakers there this summer. Professor Smith is a representative of the higher criticism. He does not believe that the whale swallowed Jonah or that Samson slew the Philistines with the jawbone of an ass, and he does not hesitate saying that these and other similar stories are myths. His appearance therefore was like a bombshell among the brethren, and they indignantly remonstrated with Brother Moody, and their newspaper organ has taken the matter up, saying: "No amount of gratitude to Mr. Moody can blind Christian men to the fact that in extending his patronage to the higher criticism he has gone right in the teeth of the growing force of Christian conviction. We believe that the time has come when this cluster of blasphemies must be faced and when men must take their side."

Brother Moody listened quietly and replied that the professor was a godly man and it wouldn't hurt the college boys a bit to hear him, and then he penned an extraordinary public letter, in which he says: "The churches are suffering from too much controversy. Bitter intolerance is as evil in itself and in its effects as wrong theology. The question of the authorship of the individual books of the Bible has become of less immediate importance than a knowledge of the teaching of the Bible itself." This shows a most remarkable change in Brother Moody's attitude. The Tribune, which realizes its responsibility for the brother, is not disposed to censure him. On the other hand, it is inclined to rejoice that he has become more liberal, even though Jonah and Daniel, and Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego have lost their staunchest champion. But what will happen next? The foundations of the great deep of orthodoxy are broken up. There is no longer anything that is sure in the world. Brother Moody truckling to the higher criticism! Can it be possible? Is Brother Moody drifting?

EMPEROR OF CHINA INTERESTED IN SCRIPTURAL BOOKS.

The Rev. T. J. N. Gattrell, who for ten years has been a colporteur of the American Bible Society in Northern China, has returned to the United States. In his last report of the society he says: "Ever since the presentation copy of the New Testament went to the Dowager Empress our depository has been visited almost daily by officials of the court. They say the Emperor observes 'worship' gay (Sunday), and that he frequently goes to a lonely place to pray to 'Tien Chu' (God), and that when he is thus engaged no one dares disturb him. Some time ago he purchased through our agency a large number of scientific and scriptural books, and we hear he is delighted with some of the stories of the patriarchs, and particularly with an illustrated life of Christ, which he has ordered to be bound in velvet and to be put in a convenient place in the library. He has applied to our store for copies of books treating of the differences between the Catholic and Protestant churches."—N. Y. cor. Chicago Tribune, July 18.

THE "RADICAL DEFECT" OF MODERN PREACHING.

Charles Edward Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle Church in New York City, admits that many present-day preachers do not come up to the demands of the times. Since entering the pulpit he has discovered the justice or injustice of the criticisms he made when in the pew, and he gives the fruits of his experience and observation in a book of talks devoted to lay views of the cloth. In a chapter entitled, "What is the matter?" he tells where the clergy make their great mistake. As the shortcomings of clergymen are such frequent topics of discussion, both in conversation and print, Mr. Jefferson's view will be of wide interest. He says:—

"I have no objection to telling you what I conceive to be the radical defect in much of the preaching of our time. It is lack of spiritual passion. The tone of authority is faint. Too much of the preaching is like that of the Scribes. Clergymen are numerous, but prophets are few.

"Here lies the trouble. Only a prophet can achieve genuine success in these hurried and fascinating days. Time was when a scholar could do it. When books were expensive, and locked up in the libraries of the elite, a man versed in book lore could find a Sunday audience eager to listen to the information which he was willing to impart. Those days are gone. Before the rise of the daily paper, the preacher could be an editor, and make his sermons running commentaries on current events. This sort of preaching was once counted successful. It is a failure now. Before the multiplication of lecture platforms and music halls and art galleries, and other sources of intellectual entertainment and esthetic gratification, fine music from the organ loft and exquisite essays from the pulpit seemed to satisfy all reasonable demands. But music, while it may still have charms to soothe the savage breast, is not conspicuously successful in attracting nonchurchgoers into the house of God. And much of the finest literary work displayed at present in American pulpits seems to be hopelessly lost on this unkempt and stiff-necked generation. Even the pulpit reformer does not wear his crown long. He has had his day, like the editor-preacher and the rest. By striking one special evil hard, he may cause the world to resound for a season with the echoes of his blows, and may even succeed in chipping off a fragment of some false custom or established wrong; but unless a preacher is a great deal more than a reformer, he cannot long hold the attention of an intelligent congregation, or hope to build an enduring Christian church. In short, the poor preacher has been ousted from the snug position of editor, lecturer, essayist, reformer; and there is nothing left him now but the arduous vocation of a prophet. . . .

"Notwithstanding the discussion ad nauseam through the week in the daily press of every happening and event, there are preachers who have the temerity to expect people to come to the church on the Lord's Day to hear the old newspaper straw threshed over again. And notwithstanding every center table groans with periodicals and magazines edited with consummate ability, and filled with articles written in many cases by the pen of genius, there are ministers who dabble on the Lord's Day in literary discussion and philosophical speculation, and then wonder why the blessing of the Almighty does not rest upon their labors. There is an itch abroad just now to work reforms. Everything is being overhauled, from systems of theology to boards of aldermen. The social order is rotten, the industrial system is accursed, the ecclesiastical regime is ripe for burning—so men assert. There is a hubbub of discordant voices, each voice screaming out a panacea, and promising the golden age; and in this fury for readjustment and reconstruction, too many pulpits, I am inclined to think, waste their time and strength. It is a proof of Christ's matchless greatness that he stood in the presence of the Roman empire and never struck it. His work was to strike the heart. By striking the hearts of peasants, he overturned the empire. He says to his heralds, 'Follow me!'

"Unless a sermon is different from all other forms of address, the world to-day does not care to hear it. If tired men and women are to be expected to attend public worship Sunday morning, the atmosphere of the house of God must be made different from that which these people breathe through the week. . . .

"Bright things, true things, helpful things are said in abundance, but the spiritual passion is lacking. The service smacks of time and not of eternity. The atmosphere of the sermon is not that of Mount Sinai or Mount Calvary, but that of the professor's room or the sanctum of the editor. The intellect is instructed, the emotions are touched, but the conscience is not stirred, nor is the will compelled to appear before the judgment throne and render its decision. The old tone of the 'Thus saith the Lord' of the Hebrew prophets is lacking. Men are everywhere hungering and waiting for it, but in many churches they have thus far waited for it in vain."—Literary Digest, January 28, 1899.

INTEMPERANCE IN DRUGS.

There is a source of nervous ailments entirely special to this age, and the unexpected outcome of our nineteenth century chemistry and advertising. Intemperance in drugs is becoming more common, and it may possibly outstrip the abuse of alcohol in its evil results. The manufacture of new chemical products is supplying the public with endless carbon derivatives of high molecular power and of imperfectly known physiological action. Some are most dangerous, and their continued indulgence leads to confirmed neuroses or hopeless neurasthenia, and it thus comes to pass that as the therapeutic activity of the profession tends to abolish disease, that of the public is manufacturing it.

While the increasing purity of natural foods has reduced our mortality, modern ingenuity has been the unintended means of occasionally supplying poison in food. Fortunately ptomain poisoning is an unusual accident. A much more serious and widespread evil has been the indiscriminating substitution by mothers of condensed milk and manufactured foods for the fresh supply of milk. This neglect of fresh milk and the untutored administration of artificial foods, even of the best kind, without due regard to proportion and suitability, have been disastrous.—British Medical Journal.

The Des Moines Leader, justly styled "Iowa's Greatest Daily," is now sent by mail at $4.00 per year for both the Daily and Sunday editions. Added to the remarkable ability with which that great newspaper is being edited, this marvelously low price will certainly place the Leader in a great majority of the homes of this State.

RUSSIA'S ACTIVITY IN PALESTINE.

The Russians are displaying great activity in Syria and Palestine—the instrument for that activity being a missionary society which is inspired, controlled, and assisted by the imperial government. Not only has this society a great establishment at Jerusalem—in fact a Russian colony—and an organization for helping Russian pilgrims, but it has also a network of primary schools all over the Holy Land. In these schools Russian alone is taught, and the schoolmasters converse with the children exclusively in the Russian language.—Ex.

DIES FROM RELIGIOUS FERVOR.

Wichita, Kas., July 17.—Mrs. Gregg Leonard, fifty years old, fell dead at a revival service at State Holiness camp meeting to-day, during her religious fervor, from a broken blood vessel. Mrs. Leonard had been present at every service of the camp meeting. She took an active part in the morning service, singing and shouting prayers as the words of the minister especially influenced her. Suddenly she arose from her seat and walked hurriedly to the edge of the tabernacle tent. Before assistance could reach her she sank to the ground and died.

THE following opinion concerning the Des Moines Leader, is merely an expression quoted from a business letter:—

"I think the Leader is the best paper published in Iowa to-day. It is edited with remarkable ability. I do not know of any Chicago daily which has in it so sensible and non-partisan, fair-minded, comprehensive and brave editorials as the Leader. I wish it all success. Very truly yours,

EQUALITY—TITHING—CONSECRATION.

It should be known by this time that the church has neither right nor power to enforce its rules of finance, or compel obedience to its mandates; except by an official withdrawal of its fellowship or an expulsion from its membership, by vote.

It ought also to be understood that the finance law of the church is in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

So far as the old Scriptures may enter into the subject, it confirms the rule of tithing from Melchisedec to Christ.

The New Testament plan is variant from the selling all and laying the purchase money at the feet of the apostles to the weekly gathering on the Lord's Day of Paul's letter to the Corinthians.

The equality idea is presented in a variety of ways, as people variously understand what equality means in a gospel sense.

Tithing, or the law of tithing, is the only rule of finance the church has; and as variously interpreted forms the basis for the receipt and disbursement of moneys by the church through its accredited financial agents, the Bishop and his assistants.

We are of the opinion that freewill offerings, tithing, and consecrations are but branches of the one law, and would put them thus:—

Tithing; that part of the financial law of the church under which the church may define how much a member ought to pay and comply with the law.

Freewill offerings; that part of the law of finance of the church, under which those who may not be subject to the tithing rule may pay into the public treasury such amounts as they may themselves determine, or choose. Also, a rule by which those who may have been already tithed may pay such additional sums as they may choose.

Consecration; that part of the law under which those who may so choose after having complied with the tithing rule may devote such sums of money, or amounts of property as they may choose to set apart by the spirit of sacrifice to the general church work, or any branch of it.

The essence of consecration is, that it is the result of sacrifice in some form upon the part of those who so consecrate.

The church may receive either moneys or properties thus consecrated; and if the purpose is not stipulated, whatever is so set apart will go into the general funds.

The surplus—the subject upon which most has been said and written in connection with the finance question, objectionably, is the surplus idea; and the substance and operation of the revelation of 1838, section 106, of Doctrine and Covenants, have been severely criticised, because of its terms. But when due examination is made, it will be discovered that this surplus idea was not new in 1838. For instance; in February, 1831, this was given:—

And again, if there shall be properties in the hands of the church, or any individuals of it, more than is necessary for their support, after this first consecration, which is a residue, to be consecrated unto the Bishop, it shall be kept to administer unto those who have not, from time to time, that every man who has need may be amply supplied, and receive according to his wants.—D. C. 42: 10.

We do not see how a surplus could be more clearly indicated than by the words we have italicised. "More than is necessary for their support," surely means a surplus, something left over and above their daily or yearly needs.

That this is correct is seen also from this, given in May, of the same year:—

And again, let the bishop appoint a storehouse unto this church, and let all things, both in money and in meat, which is more than is needful for the want of this people, be kept in the hands of the bishop.—D. C. 51: 4.

The words, "which is more than is needful for the want of this people," again indicate the nature of the moneys and property from which consecrations were to be made. While the word surplus does not appear in either of the revelations, the idea is clearly seen. The word surplus means:—

That which remains when use is satisfied; excess beyond what is prescribed or wanted; overplus.

This is in harmony with the language of both quotations given above.

Sacrifice is given as meaning,

To give up in favor of a higher or more imperative object of duty; to devote with loss or suffering. Devotion of desirable object, in behalf of a higher object, or to a claim deemed more pressing.

One meaning of the word consecrate is,

To appropriate to sacred uses.

From this it can be seen that when the saints contemplate making a covenant with the Lord by sacrifice, a way has been provided in which they may do so, and be in harmony with divine will.

With the fact in view that the revelation to gather in the regions round about is in force, and the terms of it are such that those who gather there are to do so in carefulness, and have all things prepared before them; that it be not "in haste nor by flight," no hasty or ill-contrived measure will be adequate to a safe and solvent gathering.

There are two ways in which Zion, locality, may be redeemed; one, is by purchase; the other is by blood. There are a good many reasons why the method of redemption by blood ought not to be adopted, but the one given by revelation is sufficient:—

If by purchase, behold, you are blessed; and if by blood, as you are forbidden to shed blood, lo, your enemies are upon you, and ye shall be scourged from city to city, and from synagogue to synagogue, and but few shall stand to receive an inheritance.—D. C. 63: 8.

The principle is the same now as when given in August, 1831, sixty-eight years ago. And the conditions of society, the population of the region, and the general state of the local State and the National Government are tenfold more difficult and against the idea of redemption by blood than in 1831.

There is left for us, or those who may choose to essay the desired redemption, or who shall be commanded to undertake it, the one way in which a blessing may come; that is, the purchase plan.

We concede now, as always heretofore, that in the case of a positive and specific command of God there is no room for hesitancy or fear of failure. God knows and will not command what cannot safely be undertaken.

The methods by which purchase of lands is to be carried on are given only in general terms, to purchase, but not specified just where, or just how. Except, that it must be done legally by wise men chosen for the business.

Whence the means to purchase is to be derived, is pointed out; it is to be by voluntary sacrifice and consecration.

A little plain, common-sense statement and reasoning may be profitable, and we think very helpful, especially to those in our midst who may be urgent in their conclusions that the church has been and is now derelict in duty in that there is not now a universal all-things-common system by which "the needs and wants of all are amply supplied."

To make computation easy, we assume that there fifty thousand communicants in the church. These are divided into some four hundred congregations, scattered over the United States, Europe, Australia, and the islands of the sea. These fifty thousand people are made up of people engaged in a great variety of occupations, from the divers for pearls to the makers of jewelry, from the common day laborer to the workers in the factories of textile fabrics and wood, iron, steel, brass, and copper; from the toiler in the garden and on the farm to the delver in the mines. Just how many are employed in the several occupations, trades, and professions, we do not know; but we do know that lawyers, doctors, surgeons, school-teachers, professors, preachers, editors, and printers are found among them, as well as farmers, mechanics, engineers, workers in wood, brass, iron, steel, silver, and gold, butchers, bakers, druggists, storekeepers, real estate dealers, bankers, cattle dealers, and a host of other kinds of business are represented.

To divide the fifty thousand membership into families, on the average usual in the enumeration of the population, would give us ten thousand families. The usual idea applied would give a possible ten thousand heads of families, or producers. Of these the greater number are found in the rural districts, the large towns and cities having the smaller number.

There are not many wealthy men or wealthy families among the whole, by far the larger number being in moderate circumstances only.

The whole number if gathered now into one place would make a city less than the size of St. Joseph, Missouri; less than half the size of Kansas City, and perhaps only ten times as large as Independence, Missouri. Could the whole be colonized as workers on the land only, or would it be needful to have the diversified employments now represented?

About all the communististic colonies the United States has known were at the start rural; doing their own manufacturing as a successive step, an afterthought incidental to their continued existence. The most of them have failed, fallen into decay for lack of progressiveness in the members.

Is it practicable to establish absolute equality in a city and country, a manufacturing and agricultural community? Can the mass be moulded on those lines that will secure what is commonly understood to be the "all-things-common" condition of things?"

TOKENS OF CHEER ALONG THE WAY.

Bro. W. H. Kelley in reporting the conditions in his field writes some pleasant things; we quote:—

I came here, Painesville, last evening. The sky is clear and soft winds sweep over the landscape as the farmers gather in the rich harvests already ripe. Recent rains have about assured the potato and oat crops, so that Mother Earth is being kind to the husbandman the present season. The toilers are being rewarded for their labors. But gifts of Nature are not always proof of divine acceptance. He sends his rain upon the just and the unjust. Good soil with proper effort and rain in season is apt to insure abundant harvests whether the workmen are good or bad. Another test is required to measure the full value of the moral standing. The kingdom of heaven is one thing, and what "the Gentiles seek" after is quite another.

The great Endeavor movement in the world is keeping pace with a waning and lifeless Christianity, alluring and blinding the masses to the gospel of fact, in search of broad and smooth ways. The message of doctrine and authority and the claims of sacrifice, self-denial, and holy life are accounted strange and hard to the common mind—not suited to the spirit of the times. So the world moves on apace.

But there is wheat among the chaff; possibly in such measure that should one be taken, but one would be left. The sensations are, local politics, the mutterings of preparations going on for next year's conflict in the political arena—the stake the Presidency, floods, Dreyfus the Jew, the Peace Congress at the Hague, the Philippine war, and the kissing bug, the latter just now being seriously considered, as she not infrequently overpowers her victims. Amid all of this and tenfold more the gospel message with its light to grasp and survey the field and read the signs of the times becomes intensified—good tidings of great joy to faithful witnesses, announcing the soon coming King, the end of all things, when the refuge of lies will be swept away and the faithful burden bearers secured in their inherited rights. So with feet upon Mount Nebo, and so fine a perspective, embracing "the now, and the then," radiating with the all-pervading witness accompanying the angel message to earth, confirming the hopes and making strong the heart, we feel happy even amid the world's myths and shadows, contradictions and envy, in the great harvest field, knowing that He that is behind all things cannot fail of success.

Before reaching Scranton, I dreamed one night of standing upon a high projecting rock beneath which surged along the dark and deep waters of a swift running river. The water seemed jet black. A heavenly messenger stood near me and I had in my hands a fishing pole, line and hook, but there was no bait on the hook. I thought I would cast the hook in anyway at a venture, and see if a fish would take hold of it, the messenger looking on approvingly. So I let go the hook and swung it out the full length of the line, and it had no sooner entered the water until a fish was on it, which I lauded secure at my feet. It was not a very large one and looked like a perch; it was transparent and beautiful. I could see through it as well as if X rays had been applied while it yet lay on the ground. I was puzzled as to when I might find that fish. So it turned out that just on the eve of leaving Scranton, a little girl, nine years old, of Bro. Van Why's, presented herself unsolicited for baptism. A time and place were set, the house of Bro. Williams, where we met on the 30th of June, and after sounding the dark waters of the Lackawanna River, finally settled on a suitable place. The water was saturated with slack and coal dust that comes down from the mines. At 2 p. m., a number of saints had gathered on the banks of the stream, and the little girl, fair, and dressed in white, was buried beneath those dark waters and arose again amid the shimmering sunlight, looking enough an angel, and was handed to her parents and friends. All the time that fish catching scene was impressed upon my mind.

Now there may have been no more meaning to this baptism than to others, but the singular presentation, the likeness in the dark waters, the catching without bait (for she presented herself), and the assurance that heavenly messengers watch our going, know where believers are and guide to them, together with the sweet and pure atmosphere and bliss that seemed to pervade this whole transaction—seen only as developed—enriches it with a tinge akin to the extraordinary or heavenly, strangely confirming the accepted belief, hitherto received with some question, that the ninth year is a suitable one in which to be baptized. Simple as this transaction all through may seem, there was a joyousness of feeling associated with it and peaceful contentment and bliss that transfigures it into something of greater moment in one's personal experience, than some things called great in the world.

Years ago, I found myself fishing in a stream of water very clear and containing many fish. When I would throw the hook in, the bait would swell so the fish could not swallow it. I would draw it out, trim the bait to the hook, but it was no sooner in the water than it would swell so large that the fish could not take it. I repeated the trimming with like results, so caught no fish. I would rather fish without bait and catch, than with bait and not catch. It took no bait to catch this last fish. She was ready. Maybe the Sabbath school and home training had something to do with it.

THE Ottumwa, Iowa, Courier, June 27, 1899, published a "history of the Mormons," in connection with a proposed debate between Bro. J. S. Snively and a Utah elder, adding other comments, in its issue of the 28th, in which the church and its faith were very greatly misrepresented. The Courier declined to publish a correction written by Bro. J. R. Lambert; but the Ottumwa Press published a lengthy defensive article from the same writer in its issue of July 11. Following this Bro. Lambert also secured a hearing in the Chariton Herald of July 13, from which we publish the following comment.

We publish below with pleasure an article contributed by Elder J. R. Lambert, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, of Lamon, Iowa. . . .

There are many members of this church in Lucas County and they do not wish to be misunderstood in regard to their teachings or beliefs. The article below clearly states their position, and we hope our readers will carefully read it.

The Herald has no comments to make. We believe in each person worshiping God according to his own beliefs and convictions. However, we will say that there is no more loyal or better citizens than the people of this church; and that among the most respected men of Decatur County are President Joseph Smith, Elder Lambert, and the other officers of the organization, with whom we are personally acquainted.

The Press and the Herald have acted a commendable part in giving our people a fair hearing and we thank them for the fairness and manliness they have displayed. The item from the Herald may aid the elders as evidence of what our neighbors think of our people where the largest body of the church is located.

ANGUS CANNON PLEADS GUILTY.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 18.—Angus M. Cannon, President of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion, charged with polygamy, entered a formal plea of guilty before Judge Norwell in the Third District Court to-day, and Thursday next was named as the day for sentence. Cannon did not appear personally, the plea being entered by his attorneys.

There is much speculation as to the severity of the punishment that will be imposed. There are those, both Mormon and Gentile, who believe that a light fine will be the maximum. Others say it is proposed to make an example of Cannon. The extent of the punishment meted out to Cannon may be taken as an index as to how far the new crusade is to be pushed.

Mr. Cannon was seen at his office, and asked as to whether he had considered what his punishment would be. He said:—

"It is a matter of history that in the olden times six month's imprisonment, $300 fine, and costs was the regulation punishment. There has been but one arrest since the stoppage of the old crusade, and the defendant in that case was fined $100 without imprisonment.

"What the Judge will do with me I have no means of knowing. You might ask the Judge and then come and tell me, so I will be ready for my fate," he said with a smile.—Chicago Tribune, July 19.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 20.—Judge Norrell today sentenced Angus M. Cannon, who recently pleaded guilty to the charge of polygamy in having married State Senator Mattie Hughes Cannon, to pay a fine of $100.

Judge Norrell, in passing sentence, said:—
"This case must stand upon the facts as they came under the supervision of the court just the same as all other cases. The court finds that in this case the law has been violated."

Judge Norrell said he wanted it distinctly understood that action in this case would have nothing to do with any other that might come up.—Chicago Tribune, July 21, '99.

When a man loves the Lord with all his heart, with all his mind, his might, and his strength, he will not disregard the word by using tobacco nor by other acts of personal conduct fail to make his profession and example a credit to the work. A high line of religious life—a consistent example that is proper for young and old to imitate—is necessary to be in harmony with the word. "Straws show which way the wind blows," and personal example is a true index to the spiritual and moral status of man, woman, youth, or maid.

BROTHERLY KINDNESS AND CHARITY; OR CONSECRATION AND GATHERING.

Peter says that the saints, giving all diligence, should add to their faith virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity. (2 Peter 1: 5-7.) It seems that these are laws unchangeable and as important to be observed as repentance and baptism, for if ignored they will effectually prevent any man, woman, or church from entering into the everlasting kingdom of God though he, she, or they may have obeyed all outward forms of church worship found in the gospel of Christ. Peter says he who lacks these things is blind (verse 9), and it is very doubtful if spiritually blind people are going to enter into or build up the everlasting kingdom of God.

It was a lack of a thorough knowledge and application of these laws to the characters and conduct of the saints that caused them to first pollute and then be driven from their inheritances in 1833. (See D. C 98: 1, 3.)

Paul says if charity is present the following indications will prove it:—

Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own.—1 Cor. 13: 4, 5.

The Lord tested Martin Harris to show whether or not he had charity when he said to him,

And again, I command thee that thou shalt not covet thine own property. . . . Impart a portion of thy property; yea, even part of thy lands, and all save the support of thy family.—D. C. 18: 3 5.

If Brother Harris had faith in these words that they were from God, and charity in his heart, he did as here commanded; if not, he did not.

If you would be perfect, said Christ to the young man, sell what you have and give to the poor; but the ideal life of brotherly kindness and charity was too high for him, so he turned away sorrowful. (Matt. 19: 21.)

The laws of brotherly kindness and charity embrace all that God has enjoined upon his people by which they are to cooperate one with another for the peace, edification, and prosperity both spiritual and temporal of the whole church. The whole economy of God is cooperative and not competitive, hence these laws. And this is the difference between the wisdom of God and the wisdom of this world.

The wisdom of God is, "Whosoever will, let him" come, for "there is enough and to spare," both spiritual and temporal. (Rev. 22: 17; D. C. 101: 2.) But the wisdom of the world, like boys in a race, looks for self only (is competitive). The children of God ought to say, Come with us and we will do you good (both spiritual and temporal), for God has spoken good concerning Israel. If this is true, and I believe it is, it was intended in the economy of Christ's gospel that the minister and lay member should stand side by side, the minister to traffic in spiritual things that he might have wherewith to impart to all who were in need, the laity in temporal that he or they might have wherewith to impart of temporal things, and in this way all equally inherit celestial glory. Paul says in Romans 8: 17 that the saints are to be joint heirs with Christ, and Doctrine and Covenants 85: 33 says "the saints shall be filled with his glory, and receive their inheritance and be made equal with him" (Christ). (See also Eph. 4: 13.)

Paul says charity seeketh not her own, beareth all things, believeth all things. (1 Cor. 13: 5, 7.) Paul means here that charity believes all the conditions that God has enjoined, not that we are to believe a lie and be damned, whether it comes from a brother, an angel of God, or any other source. This would not be charity. Charity rejoices in the truth. (Verse 6.) Charity beareth all things; that is, the man who has charity accepts all the conditions that God lays upon him, even to death, if necessary. Charity seeketh not her own. A converted man should say, "My body, soul, and spirit, and all I have, Jesus, I give to the conditions of thy law;" not that any should be slothful in business, but fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. (Rom. 12: 11.)

The Lord made Brother Harris a strong example of this law when he asked him to lay his moneys before the Bishop of the church, and he said:—

This is a law unto every man that cometh unto this land, to receive an inheritance.—D. C. 58: 7.

"But," says one, "that law is not binding on us." No, not if you don't intend to come to Zion, it is not. The Lord says it is binding on every one that comes. If you are coming, that means you. Again:—

Lord, show unto thy servants how much thou requirest of the properties of thy people for a tithing? Verily, thus saith the Lord, I require all their surplus property to put into the hands of the bishop of my church of Zion; . . . and after that, those who have thus been tithed, shall pay one tenth of all their interest annually; and this shall be a standing law unto them forever.—D. C. 106: 1.

But it may be asked, Why does God ask this sacrifice on the part of his saints? I answer, It is (among other things) to lay the foundation of Zion. But what does laying the foundation of Zion mean? I answer, It means to fill the inheritance of God round about Zion with saints. Compare section 106: 1, fourth line, with section 98: 10, where the Lord says, "Buy lands and gather together upon them, and in this way they may establish Zion." Locke says establish means to settle, found, ratify, confirm.

He shall write a description of the land of Zion, and a statement of the will of God, . . . and an epistle and subscription, to be presented unto all the churches [branches of the church], to obtain moneys, to be put into the hands of the bishop, to purchase lands for an inheritance for the children of God. . . . And . . . inasmuch as there is land obtained, let there be workmen sent forth, of all kinds, unto this land, to labor for the saints of God. D. C. 58: 11, 12.

The matter now stands to my mind about like this: Some officer of the general church, holding the same authority that Sidney Rigdon held, should write a communication and subscription in harmony with the above instruction and send a copy to every branch of the church. The officers of the branch should thoroughly expound the matter to the members, and if agreeable call a meeting of the whole branch, consecrate their surplus property into cash, send it to the Bishop, appointing a competent agent at the same time to cooperate with the Bishop. When suitable land was found the Bishop and agent buy it together. The title to be vested in the church (so the deed could not be broken by anybody. See D. C. 42: 9). When the land is bought and house or houses built, the Bishop or branch agent shall report to the branch who furnished the funds in harmony with the law which says,

Let the privileges of the lands be made known, from time to time, by the bishop, or the agent of the church [branch]; and let the work of the gathering be not in haste, etc.—D. C. 58: 12.

The question now seems to be, Who shall receive first inheritance, or occupy the above lands and houses? It seems to me that the Lord purposes that this church shall duplicate the work mapped out for the old church. As proof of this I cite the reader to section 122: 6:—

Therefore, the law given to the church in section forty-two, over the meaning of some parts of which there has been so much controversy is as if it were given to-day.

This section therefore should be carried out to the fulfilling of instructions contained therein before the saints ask God to give more revelation concerning the gathering. The first thing on gathering in this section is this:—

And, behold, thou wilt remember the poor, and consecrate of thy properties for their support, that which thou hast to impart unto them [surplus property], with a covenant and a deed which cannot be broken; . . . and they shall be laid before the bishop of my church and . . . every man shall be made accountable unto me, a steward over his own property, or that which he has received by consecration, inasmuch as is sufficient for himself and family.—D. C. 42: 8, 9.

It seems clear, then, that the branches should send forward their poor first and afterwards others could follow as the way opened up, and in this way begin to establish Zion upon principles of equality and righteousness.

"But," says one, "the opportunity to do this is now past. The saints should just stand still and wait for the salvation of God." Well, brother, come to the law; where do you read this?

In section 117 as quoted in Brother Hilliard's article we read:—

Let my commandments to gather into the regions round about, and the counsel of the elders of my church guide in this matter until it shall be otherwise given of me.

This command is very like the one in the Book of Mormon on marriage, and the saints having the Brighamites for an example should be slow to change a law before God himself does.

When I remember that this church has been proselyting and claiming to teach all the counsel of God for about forty years, and not one family to my knowledge has received an inheritance according to the laws of consecration and by direction of the Bishopric, I feel that modern Israel have allowed their harps to hang upon the willows of Babylon long after their captivity might have come to an end.

But again we hear, "Does not the law say, 'Let not your gathering be in haste?'" True it does; but does that mean that no action at all shall be taken? This clause of the law may be defined by the adage which says, "Be sure you are right, then go ahead;" or until the heads of the church take action on section 58: 11 by sending a declaration of the will of God and a subscription to all the branches that the elders may know how to counsel the branches in harmony with the Bishopric that there may be no confusion, but that order and concert of action may prevail amongst all parties concerned in this matter. And inasmuch as the Lord has given no definite instruction to this church as to how this law is to be carried out, is not that proof in itself that the revelations given to Joseph the Martyr are to guide in executing this law?

Now, saints, let me ask again, Have we got charity? Paul says charity believeth all things; endureth all things. Paul does not mean by this that it is charity to believe a lie, but it is charity to believe all that God has commanded, and it is charity to be willing to do all that God has commanded. Have we got this kind of charity? Paul says if we have not, our prophecies and tongues and everything else is but sounding brass. (1 Cor. 13.)

But it may be said again, "The church has not got surplus property enough to buy all the lands spoken of in the covenants." Has she got enough to buy one inheritance? If she has, ought not that one inheritance to be bought and some poor brother sent forward to occupy as the law of God directs, and so the church prove by this step that she wants to come up higher?

Reader, may I ask, Do you pay tithes? and if you do, had you any surplus property when you began? and did you bring it to the Lord as a sacrifice and offering as the law of God directs in section 106 which says:—

I require all their surplus property to put into the hands of the bishop of my church; . . . and this shall be the beginning of the tithing of my people; and after that, those who have thus been tithed, shall pay one tenth of all their interest annually; and this shall be a standing law unto them forever.

Did you do this? If you did not, don't you know you are a robber in God's sight? "Will a man rob God?" (Mal. 3: 8.) Yet you have robbed God, even this whole church, or as many as had an offering to bring—provided for in the above law—and did not bring it. How will you meet the Lord's rebuke in Matthew 26: 41-46?

But it might be asked, If I bring my consecrations to the Lord as provided in the above law, will I have to do it more than once? Yes, you will.

And again, if there shall be properties in the hands of the church, or any individuals of it, more than is necessary for their support, after this first consecration, . . . it shall be kept to administer to those who have not, . . . and for the purpose of purchasing lands, . . . and building houses of worship, and building up of the New Jerusalem, . . . that my covenant people may be gathered in one. . . . And this I do for the salvation of my people.—D. C. 42: 10.

According to the above we will be called upon to consecrate a second time, and more; for,

It is not said at any time, that the Lord should not take when he please, and pay as seemeth him good: . . . and he hath set you to provide for his saints in these last days, that they may obtain an inheritance in the land of Zion, and, behold, I, the Lord, declare unto you . . . that they shall obtain it.—D. C. 64: 6.

And I believe if Zion will justify herself she will continue this process until not one poor man can be found amongst her people.

But how shall we harmonize this with section 106: 1 as already quoted, which says after they have thus been tithed by consecration they shall pay one tenth of "their interest annually"? This to my mind means that the Lord will not call for the surplus every year, but something like this: First for the poor, second for building the storehouse and inheritances for the saints or others besides the poor, then for building the temple, etc., etc. These calls may come three, five, seven, or ten years apart, and during these intervals of years the Lord asks but one tenth of the increase over and above a living.

As proof that this held good in the days of Joseph the Martyr you will notice that ten years after the Lord told Sidney Rigdon to write the will of God and an epistle and subscription to the saints, as already shown in this article, for consecration, he instructed Joseph to write a proclamation to the President of these United States and to the rulers of all kingdoms of the earth to bring an offering of gold and silver to the house of the daughters of Zion. (D. C. 107: 3.) This proclamation should have been written in 1841, while the one Sidney Rigdon should have written was in 1831. These proclamations, if in existence, should be brought forth as patterns to guide this church, otherwise the church is false to her trust.

And again, if it was the Lord's will that the college at Lamoni should be built, why did not the authorities of the church write an epistle and subscription to the churches, calling for consecrations according to the above patterns, which should be observed in all such work? (D. C. 42: 10.) The fact is, Zion hath forgotten the law of her God for the examples of Babylon, preferring oyster suppers, etc., to that which is written.

The priests and teachers shall have their stewardships [inheritances], even as the members, and the elders, or high priests, . . . are to have their families supported out of the property which is consecrated to the bishop, for the good of the poor, and for other purposes as before-mentioned.—D. C. 42: 19.

A stewardship or inheritance, therefore, to be right, should be sufficient to support the parties receiving it; and may be illustrated in the following: A. is qualified to farm, but being destitute, the saints send him forward upon an inheritance. He should receive sufficient land to support him and his, also a house, outbuildings, farming implements, a team, seed, and provisions for one year. Approximately speaking, this is an inheritance sufficient for a living, and should be applicable for all men of like occupation for all time to come.

Impart a portion of thy property; yea, even part of thy lands, and all save the support of thy family.—D. C. 18: 5.

The Lord admonished the church to imitate Martin Harris' example.

See that ye love one another; cease to be covetous; learn to impart one to another as the gospel requires.—D. C. 85: 38.

Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

In full faith that the three standard books are the written guide to our salvation, both spiritual and temporal, I remain,

Your brother in the gospel of Christ,
D. E. HOUGH.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

In the Religious Telescope of March 8, 1899, we find two articles on the subject of (so-called) "Mormonism." The first one is published under the caption of "Some features of Mormonism in Iowa," and was written up by Rev. E. W. Curtis, at Des Moines, Iowa.

Rev. Curtis is a minister of the United Brethren Church, and, I infer, has charge of what they call the "Corning District." He says:—

As this town [Lamoni] is located within the territory of Corning District, I visit the locality once in three months, and often come in contact with their missionaries. This has given me an opportunity to see Mormonism as it is in Southern Iowa.

He then proceeds to criticise the name "Saint;" and as a kind of climax on this point, I suppose, offers the following query and statement:—

Are these the saints of these latter days? Such exceedingly presumptuous titles would be hard to find elsewhere in this enlightened land.

Does not Rev. Curtis know that the term saint, as applied to God's people, is found about forty times in the Old Testament, and about sixty times in the New Testament? Where, then, is the presumption in applying this name to those who are called with the same holy calling to-day? Let Rev. Curtis, who is supposed to be a Bible reader, or some one else "in this enlightened land," tell us.

Next, we have an indistinct line of distinction feebly indicated between us and the church in Utah, with the evident intention to leave the impression that we are about the same, after all.

This branch differs enough from the Utah branch to have a separate organization, but not enough for its members not to be Mormons. Present day writings divinely inspired and equal in authority to the Bible, miraculous deeds, baptismal regeneration, and post mortem repentance are claimed and publicly taught.

Because we hold some doctrines in common with the Utah Church, does it therefore follow that we are in affiliation with them? If it does, then the United Brethren Church, of which Rev. Curtis is a representative, is in affiliation with the Catholics, Adventists, and (so-called) Campbellites, for they hold many points of doctrine in common.

Present revelation, a belief in miracles, and probation after death, for all who have not had full opportunities in this life, are Bible doctrines, and an inevitable result of full and intelligent faith in God. As for "baptismal regeneration," the faith of the saints at Lamoni, as set forth in their standard and sacred books, is that through a proper baptism of water, and the Spirit, men are regenerated, "born again." Baptismal regeneration, without the work of the Holy Spirit, has never been announced by the church, and is not taught in their standard books.

Rev. Curtis speaks of a "rigid tithing law to be obeyed by its members;" says, by implication, that "a leader among them" explained that their "fine church property" was purchased and built by tithing money, etc., etc. The truth is that our churches are built, as a rule, by free will offerings and not by tithing. The "Brick Church" at Lamoni was built that way. While we believe in tithing, we do not make it a test of fellowship. With us, it is a free will offering systematized.

The closing portion of this paragraph is a dark mixture, and misleading in its statements. It reads as follows:—

This feature [tithing] is less popular than many others seen in them, but to me it is the best thing I see in the Mormonism of Southern Iowa. When Mormonism appeals to the selfishness and takes advantage of ignorance or superstition or provides for the gratification of lust, it is often popular, but when it demands benevolence it often loses its popularity.

It would have been much more satisfactory to the honest investigator, had Rev. Curtis pointed out those features which he found in the "Mormonism of Southern Iowa" which appeal to selfishness, take advantage of ignorance or superstition, or provide for the gratification of lust. If they exist, we would like to know what they are. After thirty-six years experience in the church, thirty-three of which I have been a minister, I have failed to find them.

Now Rev. Curtis comes to polygamy. He admits that the church at Lamoni has "no harems." That they have "more to say against polygamy than we hear" elsewhere, "because they have the enemy in their own camp, and some are fighting it." "In such a State as Iowa polygamy could not live. A tree that would bear such fruit would be hewn down and cast into the fire."

What are the facts in the case? The work of reorganizing on the original basis commenced as early as 1853, and the whole record of this people is against polygamy and all its kindred evils. Had they desired to practice polygamy could they not have gone to Utah? Are we to understand that the reason why Rev. Curtis and his people do not practice polygamy is because they are restrained by the strong arm of the law?

But here is the conclusion of the whole matter:—

It was recently published in our daily papers that resolutions were passed at Lamoni, in favor of unseating Roberts, about three fifths of all who voted being for the resolution. Had that been a United Brethren assembly, not one vote would have been cast in the negative. Does not that vote give evidence that the taint of polygamous sentiment exists in disguise even in Iowa?

I have before me the official account of the church secretary, at Lamoni, concerning the action of the church against seating B. H. Roberts, which action was had on January 3, 1899. This account was copied from the record, and the closing statement is as follows:—

Motion as amended put and carried unanimously.
A. B. HANSON, Branch Clerk.

On the 12th of February, 1899, the Decatur district passed a preamble and resolutions against seating B. H. Roberts. This district comprises eight counties in Iowa and three in Missouri, with a membership of about 2,200. There were but two negative votes, one the vote of the Associated Press reporter, the other the vote of a little boy who was not eligible to vote.

The Independent Patriot of Lamoni, took the Associated Press reporter to task for his false statements in both reports, in its issue for February 23, 1899. It quoted both the branch and district records against him, closing with these strong words:—

And the Associated Press should see to it that they furnish Lamoni with a reporter who has both the disposition and the ability to tell the truth.

I learned while at Lucas, Iowa, last week, that Rev. Curtis has a brother living near that town whose wife and daughter have been baptized into the Reorganized Church, and that he himself is favorable to the faith of that people. And if I mistake not, another brother was baptized into the Reorganized Church, at Des Moines, Iowa, by Elder Kephart.

The second article comes from the pen of G. O. Long of Tuskeego, Iowa. He knows what he is talking about and seems to have the disposition and courage to tell the truth. He too is a minister of the United Brethren Church and lives right among the Latter Day Saints. He evidently had no ax to grind. Rev. G. O. Long writes under the caption of "What the Mormons Believe." His first paragraph with the first sentence of the second, read as follows:—

In the Telescope of February 1, I see an article headed "The origin of the Mormon Bible." As I am stationed only six miles from the now Joseph Smith, or Lamoni, Iowa, headquarters, and as I am surrounded by them, as one of our ministers, I beg a little space in the columns of the Telescope.

What do the Mormons believe?

He then proceeds to give our faith as he finds it stated in our epitome of faith, using the word "they" instead of "we" at the beginning of each paragraph.

Our thanks are due to Rev. Long, because he was willing to state our faith correctly. And if it was done by design rather than by accident, our thanks are due to the editor of the Telescope for inserting Rev. Long's article in the same number that contains the misleading and false statements of Rev. Curtis.

"Honor to whom honor is due."

ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

LAMONI, IOWA.

THE GATHERING.

Under the above caption appeared an article in the church papers last fall that seems to have agitated the minds of the saints more or less all over the church. Lest some should have got a wrong understanding from it, I herewith offer a few thoughts explanatory.

I wrote that article believing the time was at hand when the preparation should begin in earnest to accomplish God's will in the gathering of the saints and the redemption of Zion. My object was to educate the saints and assist them in getting a better understanding of the law, and their duty on that subject. All we do should be done understandingly, and in perfect obedience to the law, that we may be successful in our efforts. The failures of the old church (as it is called) should make us the more careful, and we should profit by those historical lessons.

In 1894, when the Lord said that the law given in section 42 was the same as if given to-day; to my mind consecration and tithing as contemplated in that section was renewed to us; and as a natural consequence that which followed after in the book, in force. And as "the Bishop and his counselors, and the high council, and the Bishop and his council, and the storehouse and the temple and the salvation of my people, are the same to me now that they were in that day when I gave the revelation," it seemed necessary to educate the saints along that line. And if the purpose of God were carried out the saints must be gathered and Zion built up. And as "Zion cannot be built up unless it is by the principles of the law of the celestial kingdom, otherwise I cannot receive her unto myself; and my people must needs be chastened until they learn obedience, if it must needs be, by the things they suffer"—I thought we should proceed, as the hastening time had come, to set the law in operation and accomplish God's purpose as soon as possible.

But I did not intend to convey the idea that this could be accomplished in any way only that set forth in the written law. It does not warrant individuals, men or women, to select tracts of land, and call on saints for money to pay for it, and settle on it, and in this way form colonies, constituting themselves leaders in the matter. We do not deny the right of individuals to buy lands and form colonies in their own right; but we do deny their right and enter our protest against them doing this under the pretense of authority of church law, thereby deceiving the saints.

Section 51 would warrant a branch in gathering their moneys together and appointing some one to buy lands and settle upon them; but even that should be done by proper counsel. And I hope those movements by individuals to lead saints to invest their means in forming colonies contrary to the rule laid down in the law may not succeed in getting the saints to waste their money, lest it terminate in partially or wholly destroying their faith.

In section 117:11, the Lord said:—

Let my commandments to gather into the regions round about, and the counsel of the elders of my church guide in this matter until it shall be otherwise given of me.

Those commandments in part were set forth in my former article (and it was neither Texas nor the Ozark Mountains) on the gathering. Now if the law governs in this matter, the counsel of the elders must be had, otherwise disaster and loss may ensue; but if we wait until proper counsel is had, and "all things prepared before you," as the Lord has said, we will most likely succeed.

In section 58: 12, we read:—

And let the privileges of the lands be made known, from time to time, by the Bishop or the agent of the church; and let the work of the gathering be not in haste, nor by flight, but let it be done as it shall be counseled by the elders of the church at the conferences, according to the knowledge which they receive from time to time.

The object now should be to educate the saints and thus prepare them to gather in harmony with the law, that we may avoid confusion and disaster. And no one as yet having been appointed by the counsel of the church, collectively or as a branch, no one has a right because of church prestige, or the saints' desire to gather, to make such a move and form such colony, thereby thwarting the object the saints had in view, to gather according to the law and build up Zion. For if the saints put all their money in those private enterprises, they will have none left to buy with, when the Bishop or agent calls for their surplus to buy lands and build up Zion as contemplated in the law.

It is only a few months until General Conference convenes and the chief quorums of the church will meet together, and may have opportunity to meet in council, and direct in this as well as all other things pertaining to church work.

There was no intention on my part to cause anyone to move prematurely in this matter, or of assuming duties and prerogatives belonging to others. But I did then, and do now desire to educate the saints, and prepare them for the gathering, as the time is near when it should begin. But unity and harmony are essential in order to make it a success.

And where no counsel is, the people fall: but in the multitude of counselors there is safety.—Prov. 11: 14.

Again:—

Without counsel purposes are disappointed: but in the multitude of counselors they are established.—Prov. 15: 22.

And again in Proverbs 19: 20, 21:—

Hear counsel and receive instruction, that thou mayest be wise in thy latter end. There are many devices in a man's heart; nevertheless the counsel of the Lord, that shall stand.

If the counsel of the Lord shall stand, let it govern in all our work that we may not fall nor fail.

In 1894 the Lord convened a council by revelation and commandment, and said:—

It should have been done before, but the adversary hath hindered, desiring to prevent the success of my work in the earth.

This shows the necessity of proper counsel in all our important work. And surely after such a reproof, stating it ought to have been had before, those chief men on whom "rests the burden of the work" will not wait to be commanded again to convene a council, that they may "counsel together, and agree on the things of the law and the general affairs of the church."

That we have in the past been slow and neglectful of duty, is clearly shown by the reproof given, when we failed to counsel together as we should. Also in this the adversary hath hindered us in the discharge of duty. I trust this may never occur again, but that we may meet together in council at the conferences from time to time, and agree on all things pertaining to the work of God on earth; that as the hastening time has come, we may do our part faithfully and not impede the progress of the work; but having a proper understanding of all things pertaining to the spread of the gospel, the gathering of the saints and the building up of Zion, that the Lord may come, for,

When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory.—Ps. 102: 16.

And that we may all do our part faithfully and well, and thus be prepared to dwell with the pure and good when the "Redeemer shall come to Zion," is the prayer of,

G. H. HILLIARD.

THE CREATION.

And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.

From this short account of the formation of man we have three distinct parts spoken of: 1. The "man" (body), composed as we are informed by scientists, of "carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, sulphur, phosphorus, iron, and lime, all found in the "dust of the ground." 2. "Life." 3. "Breath," possessed by life. The combination constituting "a living soul." The first two composed the real man, and the third was simply an ingredient to sustain the combination of the first two.

The body composed of the elements of "the ground" formed the "earthly house," the "visible," "outer man." At death it dissolves and "returns to dust as it was." As the elements are inert by themselves, a combination of them did not produce force. No intelligence or motion was manifested till another part was added, namely, "life." When this second part was placed in the composition of the "crowning work of God" is not stated. We simply have the account of man being formed "of the ground" and God giving life, breath, through the "nostrils" of the body. "Breath of life" is a possessive phrase meaning life's breath. As the body without "life" does not need breath, nor life without the body, but a combination of "life" and "body" does, we conclude that life was placed in the body just before "God breathed into his nostrils" its breath.

We have no statement in holy writ conveying the thought that life is placed in the body through the "nostrils," but we know that breath comes through those organs and is an essential ingredient to sustain "a living soul." Life must first be in the "man," then the breath, as food and drink are used to perpetuate the combination. Breath does not manage and control life, any more than food and drink, but life controls it. There are many instances recorded of men who refused to breathe, and others who refused to eat, and the results were the same in each case, a separation of life and body. Neither breath nor food produced the life, but simply sustained the combination as it existed before they played their part. Therefore we cannot conclude that "man neither possessed life nor mind before 'God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life.'" As the phrase, "The home of Socrates," conveys the fact that such a person was in existence before he had a home, so does the phrase "breath of life" convey the idea that life was in existence before God gave it breath.

Yours for truth,

WARREN E. PEAK.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 21.

Editors Herald:—The vote on the Federal Bill or Commonwealth Bill, was taken again yesterday and carried by a large majority of over 21,000 votes in New South Wales.

So we can say that Federation into a "United States of Australia" is an assured fact. One of our Sydney dailies says this morning: "The bill accepted;" a "United Australia;" "a nation born in a day."

The first Federal Parliament will meet in about two years. The federal capital will be in New South Wales, on land specially granted for the purpose by the local government. The "United States of Australia" will consist of all Australian colonies and also Tasmania. The "Federal Constitution" is undoubtedly better and more democratic in many ways than that of the "United States of America," for the senate will be elected by the voice of the people direct, the same as the representatives. Why should not Australia's constitution be in some respects better than that of "Uncle Sam's?"

American federation was consummated one hundred and ten years ago, when federal governments were unknown on earth and when conditions were ten times more unfavorable, and successful government under federation was yet to be demonstrated.

Australia's conditions are very different. They have the "United States" and "Canada's" federal history before them and can profit by their mistakes as history has demonstrated.

Bro. Walter Haworth is with us, making his first efforts as a general missionary and district president, with manifest satisfaction and pleasure to all.

Bro. Gomer Wells has been making special efforts to get the truth before the people in New Castle district, which we hope will result in much good to the cause.

Bro. Butterworth, though afflicted for a time, is again in the field in Victoria, and we pray that God's lovely latter-day work may yet unfold and blossom as a rose of beauty in Victoria. The work as a whole has prospered more in New South Wales than in Victoria, but there is much improvement required in the lives of some of the saints before things will be "altogether lovely." Sometimes saints and officers treat lightly the counsel of the traveling ministry by reason of supposed imperfections that they see in their lives (which if true are only of a trivial nature), and which they always pass by unnoticed in the lives of other members of the church, and much less wish exposed in their own lives by way of criticism.

At our last conference a prophecy was manifest, saying that the saints should heed the counsel of those whom the Lord had sent to teach his people, which was refreshing to the soul of the writer, to know that with all his many faults and with all the fault-finding of others, God who called him to declare this beautiful gospel still acknowledged him in the God-appointed office of a teacher in his church.

A Campbellite minister, Elder Ewers, has appeared in two religious papers exposing Mormonism in a way that does grave injustice to us by charging Joseph the Seer with being responsible for some of Utah Church's heresies. I have sent replies and hope they will be published; if not we can only do our part and leave the rest with our heavenly Father, who doeth all things well.

With love to all the saints in Zion and all parts of the earth, and wishing to be remembered in all the prayers of the faithful,

JOHN KALER.

GROVE SPRINGS, Mo., July 11.

Editors Herald:—I began meeting last evening in the Kindrick schoolhouse, about forty being present.

Have recently returned from a tour in the eastern part of the district. I did not find the saints at the points visited getting on as well as they might. However, at some of these places they were doing fairly well.

On my return trip I stopped with Rev. E. S. Curry, of Christy, Missouri, who had just begun the publication of a book on American Antiquities which I believe may be valuable to the saints in aiding to prove the divinity of the Book of Mormon.

I have given his address that the saints may correspond with him should they desire to do so.

I wish to say to the Herald readers that I have read much of the book entitled "True Succession in Church Presidency," by Apostle Heman C. Smith, and I consider it fully refutes the arguments of Elder B. H. Roberts, of the Utah Church, in endeavoring to prove that Brigham Young was the lawful successor of Joseph Smith in church presidency. The style used by Bro. Smith in his book is elegant and shows that he does not believe in abusing an opponent simply to make a point against his theory.

This little work should be not only in the hands of the saints who reside among the Mormons in Utah, but it should be in the hands of the saints East, West, North, and South, even among those who never see a Utah Mormon. To my mind this book "caps the climax" in the way of evidence that the church was rejected in the days of Brigham Young, and that the Reorganization under the leadership of Young Joseph, is truly the Church of Christ.

I don't believe in worshiping the church or any man in the church; but I do believe in us being able to give a reason for the hope that is within us, that we may better please and worship him who is the author of the Church of Jesus Christ as established in these last days.

May the good Lord prosper Zion is my prayer in Jesus' name.

HANNIBAL, Mo., July 15.

Editors Herald:—After an unavoidable delay at Lamoni I went to Independence for a short visit. Was present on "Rally Day," and preached the morning sermon the following Sabbath; thence to Higbee, where I preached to small audiences ten times and added one to the fold by water.

Attended at Bevier the Sunday school convention and institute, as also, the district conference. These gatherings were all interesting, and I believe profitable to the cause. Bro. T. A. Hougas was present, and left a good impression with the Sunday school workers. This department of church work needs help and encouragement in some parts of this field.

The morning sermon at conference was by Priest William Chapman, and was a timely effort. In the evening the laboring oar was in the hand of Jonah, and I was humbly thankful for divine aid. Continued meetings at Bevier until the 2d; baptized two, June 19, and five, July 5. Came to this "waste place," the 7th, and began that evening holding meetings. Attendance has not been large, but some interest is manifested. Place of meeting is in the extreme south of the city, and the evenings have been excessively hot, while the "kissing bug" is far too numerous for the timid. There are but a few of the faithful here, and the expense of hiring a meeting house will be a hindrance to establishing the work.

One of the most discouraging things I have to meet is the carelessness and neglect of so many who have a name on our books, but no works as an evidence of their saintship.

I return thanks to saints and friends for kindness received.

The last book out against Mormonism, is "The False Star," by A. D. Gash, a Chicago lawyer. He is quite an attractive, and interesting writer without being very particular about the truth. On duty,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

WHITE, S. D., July 11.

Editors Herald:—I came to this place the last of May. Met Bro. and Sr. Delap who moved here from East Delavan. Will say if the elders could always find such noble and respected saints as these it would be a pleasure to open up the work.

I secured the German M. E. church and put in about three weeks expounding the gospel for the first time in this place. Some of the ministers were very much afraid their people would get deluded and deceived on the Sabbaths. They would cry long and loud, Beware of these impostors and deluded ones. Through the week they were busy visiting and looking after their flock; and, to cap the climax, a revival was started at the close of my meeting which I think did us good. They were going to get fifty converts besides all the backsliders. They sent for new ministers. At the close of their meeting four elders were present; results, one convert and no backsliders.

I just closed a two-weeks' meeting at Hetland, South Dakota, on Sunday. There are some to be baptized when I go back. Elder Swenson was with me, but owing to sickness he was not able to preach. We separated yesterday, he going to Howard to meet Bro. Caffall, I to this place where the smoke has cleared away and on the battlefield several good honest souls with a welcome salute and a hearty shake which did my soul good.

I expect to start meeting near town soon, then give them a few more sermons here if the Lord is willing.

Yours for the spread of the gospel,
W. H. WALLING.

LONEROCK, Oregon, July 12.

Editors Herald:—As stated in a late issue of the Herald, the debate between myself and Rev. Fredenburg, of the Missionary Baptists, was to have begun on June 26, but on account of a funeral that day it was put over one day, and then the fur began to fly; yet not until they had completely gone back on the propositions they had affirmed and drafted new ones, as follows:—

First. That the Missionary Baptist Church possesses the scriptural characteristics sufficient to entitle it to be recognized as the Church of Christ, and vice versa.

Three nights were devoted to each proposition. We were to occupy the Baptist church, and did one evening, but because I said Matthew 8:12 was a mistranslation, the resident minister turned all hands out and we had to resort to the schoolhouse. A good crowd attended and excellent attention was given. The saints nearly all sat with pencil and tablet, taking notes of both sides, while not a Baptist took notes except the speaker.

Bro. D. L. Harris acted as my moderator, and gave universal satisfaction. Bro. Harris is a fine man, a good speaker, and has endeared himself to the entire community, many saying they would help to pay him if he would stay and preach for them.

A Methodist (our justice of the peace) acted as chairman, and also gave entire satisfaction. When I showed that the Baptists once practiced polygamy, my opponent got somewhat riled and challenged me to meet him again on the same propositions in Mayville, and of course I accepted (providing Bro. Holt is satisfied). The time is set for September 25.

Altogether it was an overwhelming victory for truth. Saints were strengthened, our position planted in the hearts of many, and the weakness of man-made doctrines made manifest.

Ever praying for the welfare of the pure in heart,

Yours in the faith,

W. A. GOODWIN.

DOLBY SPRINGS, Texas, July 16.

Editors Herald:—This leaves me well and doing my duty. Indeed, we had a very fine conference at Lydia, Texas, July 8-14. Bro. G. H. Hilliard met with us to present to us the law of God in his bold and fearless way. Brother Hilliard does not sugarcoat the truth to please anyone, but declares the whole counsel of God, the law of tithing and the Word of Wisdom being his special theme, using his reasoning powers that Nature has so richly blessed him with.

O, how the pipes and tobacco were laid aside! Coffee and tea must go also. Some of our Texans who were slaves to the filthy weed, tobacco, cleaned up and quit. That is what we need, preachers like G. H. Hilliard, who are not afraid to tell the truth. Our little twenty-two caliber preachers and missionaries must read up and straighten up and take a bold stand for Christ and all that is pure and good.

I am here, holding meetings in this town, a summer watering resort. I began meetings last night with fair interest. Bro. J. W. Kent is with me.

I will go from here to Little Rock to meet Doctor Brown in debate. I would be glad to hear from some of the Maysville, Arkansas, saints concerning the debate with G. W. Leonard, September 4. Must hear from them or I cannot meet Mr. G. W. Leonard. Please write me, Saltillo, Faulkner County, Arkansas.

The work is onward in North Texas. E. A. Erwin is doing a good work.

In bonds,

J. D. ERWIN.

MALAD CITY, Idaho, July 10.

Editors Herald:—The Saints' Herald, a most pleasing thought that saints have a Herald, bearing the good tidings to feed the heart hunger of those "called to be saints," as good news from a far country. How poorly our Herald is prized by some of the "household of faith!" In some homes you never show your blessed face; in some there is no time spared from toil or pleasure to read, much less feast, upon the food you bring for the heart's reading table each week.

It is a missionary's duty to preach the gospel to the people. To those who merely labor from a sense of duty, I venture to say the day star may or may not have cast its rays of pale light athwart their pathway. The "sun of righteousness" has not shed his attractions before the inner eye, nor have the ears of the heart heard the sweet sounds of the musical air of the old love song of the spheres, or duty would be lost in the joy of redemption. Heart pleasure is the reward of the earnest, intelligent, loving heart which drinks "of the river of thy pleasures." The heart must be attuned to the things which God loves, must be truly born of God, or it cannot love as the first command requires. No command is needed where love rules, for every power of body and mind is enlisted to please. The soul that is not captivated with the sweets of the "oil of gladness" has many trials and sorrows under the chastening hand of Him who chastens but to check or correct. "The Lord does not afflict willingly." The horse requiring the lash or checkrein wearies and worries. When will the lambs and sheep heed the voice of the Shepherd, and hearken lovingly to the "voice of the Spirit"? I do always the will of the Father, said the one of whom the Father said, "This is my beloved Son, hear ye him." Is it our pleasure to say, "The Lord our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey"?

Saints, can we, and will we, put away our sins which shut up heaven from us? We bemoan the dearth of spiritual power; who is to blame? If we cannot and will not comply lovingly with what is pleasing to the Lord, we would not comply graciously with a command. Shall we leave our privileges to our children? Now is our day of salvation. The pure in heart shall "gather." How many to-day are ready to do as we pray, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done," etc., by us? Do "we feel it a pleasure to serve thee, and love to obey thy commands"? or do we lie to the Lord and before man? Many kind-hearted sons are troubled with what we will call the foul mouth, a most filthy disease. Will we defile, with impunity, the temples God gave us to sanctify unto him through the law of Christ? For shame! Let us be "clean who bear the vessels of the Lord." Saints of all grades are called to bear the vessels of the Lord. We are the ones to say very largely what vessels we will bear. "In a great house there are not only vessels of gold and of silver, but also of wood and of earth; and some to honor, and some to dishonor," etc. We can be color bearers if we so elect. The best material in the army is needed for this.

We long for Zion's redemption and talk of a "portion in Zion." In items from "Temple and Tabernacle," as I find in Idaho Enterprise, published in Malad City, for May 27, 1899, "Eugene Lewis, also of the Southern States Mission, had greatly enjoyed his work among the people of Florida, and characterized them as a kind, courageous, and magnanimous people; but the prejudices of the Southern people are very intense, and their opposition often takes the form of violence when dealing with the Mormon elders. Elder Lewis referred to the spirit of love and forbearance that characterizes the Mormon people, and said if they could live in Zion as they live in the world, Zion would be invincible, and the stranger within her gates would be constrained to yield the palm, because there would be the invincible force of example."

This is no slip of the tongue of a thoughtless youth, for I have heard this many times among the Brighamite people. It is folly to dream of bliss in Zion if saints cannot live as pure lives there as in the world. Better remain in the world and dream of bliss in "the sweet by and bye," than to gather and feel that Zion is but an idle dream. How often have we been wrapped up in a felicitous dream of bliss, as though heaven itself was taunting us with the advance rays of the sun of peace. A day-dream of the possibilities of the human soul, following the inspiration of divinity,—of "God in Christ reconciling the world unto himself,"—a perfect reconciliation with God; redemption's glad, sweet dream fully realized, spirit and element inseparably united under the celestial law.

"The invincible force of example." Indeed, this is needed more among saints and the world to-day than all the flowery sermons within the capacity of the human tongue. How long must Zion's cause languish, ere the daughter of Zion will deliver herself from captivity with Babylon?

Does our righteousness exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees? "They say but do not." "Shun every appearance of evil." What is not pleasing to the Master, certainly has the appearance of evil. The "thought of foolishness is sin," if we have pleasure in the thought. To "love righteousness and hate iniquity," or everything we are not certain is pleasing to the Master, that savors of sin, or has the appearance of sin is our duty; for "whatsoever is not of faith is sin."

"Zion cannot be built up unless it be by the principles of the law of the celestial kingdom, otherwise I cannot receive her unto myself," says the highest court of appeal. The gathering theme is always in order, in the thoughts of "my saints;" but to be saints, wherever we are, is the golden text, which should be in our minds continually. "Hell from beneath is moved to meet thee at thy coming." What a mighty effort is being exerted to stay the work of God.

"A faith that keeps the narrow way Till life's last hour is fled," is needed more and more.

"That bears, unmoved, the world's dread frown,
Nor heeds its scornful smile;
That seas of trouble cannot drown,
Nor Satan's arts beguile.

"Lord, give us such a faith as this,

A faith that shines more bright and clear,
When tempests rage without."

Bro. S. D. Condit and I took a morning walk on the 8th inst. to Elkhorn, about ten miles westerly from Malad, stopping over night with Bro. Thomas Jenkins and family, where we found what in our opinion was good material for Latter Day Saints. We held services at ten a. m., Sunday the 9th, after which Sunday school under the care of Bro. Elias Richards as superintendent. There is material there for a good Sunday school and a whole host of Latter Day Saints if our people will only walk loyally before the Lord. The Master is sifting the sand from the gold, and the separating the chaff from the wheat is in process. To-day, I am satisfied if the people of these valleys expressed their faith in this latter-day work, it would be much more in harmony with our views than Brighamite. The people are beginning to think and ere long it will bear fruits.

There is a good time coming, only let us be saints indeed. Be courageous and strong in the Lord's errand. Let Zion arise and put on her beautiful garments, casting far off her filthy rags. Let us hold the banner of the cross before the people, for it is the most beautiful emblem the eye of man ever beheld. All men are looking for it. "As soon as Zion travailed she brought forth." Think over this, ye saints. Our sins have hid His face from us. Let us put these away, and the sun will shine. Yours for Zion's weal,

CHARLES ALBERTSON.

MINNEAPOLIS, Kan., July 15.

Editors Herald:—Bro. J. F. McClure and self preached on the streets of Minneapolis a couple of weeks back. Though attendance was not large, we feel our effort was a successful one. The editor complimented the preaching in his paper.

The "Comeouters" also had been occupying the streets before our arrival, but they steered clear of us. It seems to me that people know we have the truth about everywhere we go; not all, but many of them, and they are afraid in every place to allow our work to be investigated.

We have been laboring in the harvest field during the last two weeks, except Sundays; about three or four days we spent threshing. Several say it is the first time they ever saw preachers work, and express surprise. Well, I am glad I know how and the Lord gives us strength, as this is a means of my getting money to defray missionary expense; but we are not the only ones at this work. I have letters from other missionaries who are doing the same thing. Our wages here are one dollar and twenty-five cents per day. Last year, where Bro. Pender and I worked, in Ness County, wages were two dollars per day, as hands were scarce. We hope we do not speak of this to boast of strength and sacrifice, but then you wouldn't know what we are doing if we didn't write and tell you; and I cannot other than give you credit for wanting to know how the missionaries are spending their time.

We start to preaching regularly next week, perhaps near Delphos. We are occupying on Sundays among the saints in the stone school-house, seven miles south of Minneapolis. We have the Spirit in talking and the saints represent themselves as edified.

Thinking perhaps some of our readers would like to know Elder Dowie's attitude toward exchanging religious views through his paper with the saints, I will write you a copy of the letter I wrote him, and inclose his answer:—

"Elder Dowie:—Will you please explain in an early number of your paper the prophecy in Ezekiel 37: 15-21, relating to the joining together of the two sticks; one of Judah, the other of Joseph, and its connection with the regathering of Israel into their own land. May I have space in your paper to express my views of above-mentioned prophecy, providing your interpretation falls of my satisfaction?

Your brother,

"Wm. H. Mannering."

"Zion, 1201 Michigan Avenue,

"Chicago, U. S. A., June 7, 1899.

"Mr. Mannering:—Your letter of April 6 date received May 31.

"We have not time for any discussion of prophecy in a letter and do not know that we shall be led of the Lord to discuss it on the platform.

"We could not promise to give place in our paper for any views you may have on the subject, for the paper is crowded now, and we have not room for all that we desire to publish. I am faithfully,

"Yours in Jesus,

"John Alex. Dowie."

How unlike the Herald and Ensign are those sectarian papers for correspondence—haven't time nor room in their paper, neither do they expect to be led of the Lord to discuss prominent issues with the Latter Day Saints.

Yours in the gospel,

W. MANNERING.

KIRKSEY, Ky., July 15.

Editors Herald:—I have just returned from Livingstone County, Kentucky, where I have done the first preaching done in that county by any of the Reorganization. I was impressed to go there and I found that the Utah elders had been there and had baptized quite a number, among those baptized a Mr. Garland, a preacher of the Christian faith. After awhile the elders began to give the converts strong meat, as they called it; that is, to teach them polygamy. Their members asked why they did not teach it before. The answer was that they were not able to receive it, but needed the milk of the word first.

They told Mr. Garland they would ordain him to the office of elder as soon as the one in charge came down, and that when he came he would bring a regular suit of elders' clothing; that they always furnished their elders clothing. So Mr. Garland began to think the matter over and concluded to place the matter before the Lord, as he had doubts as to polygamy being right. So he fasted and prayed that the Lord would show him if the church known as the Church of Latter Day Saints was right, and if polygamy was right.

He saw Joseph Smith stand with a bright countenance with a brilliant light around him; then Brigham Young appeared with some fifteen or twenty women standing in a row behind him, with sad countenances. Brigham's face was black, and where he and the women stood it was very dark. This he understood to mean that the church was true as organized by Joseph Smith under command of God, but that Brigham Young had departed from the faith and brought in polygamy and had gone into darkness. So when the one in charge came with the clothing and to ordain him, he refused and went back to the Christian Church and told the church he had been deceived and wanted to still labor with them, as the Christian Church was the best thing in sight. They received him back, but are not pleased with his preaching, notwithstanding he told them he would preach what he found in the Bible. This they agreed to, saying, "Of course you can preach what you find there."

He is now investigating the claims of the Reorganized Church. He was greatly pleased the last night I spoke in that place, on the restoration of the gospel through the ministry of Joseph Smith, and the departure under Brigham Young from the faith.

Bro. M. M. Turpen passed through on his way to Alabama. I find in him a wise master builder. There is one thing very sure about him that is encouraging to us Johnnies here in the South; he is not writing many jots by the wayside in the Ensign or the Herald to make it appear that he is a hustler; but is going right on with his work, with not a word as to whether he thinks the people are civilized or not here in the South.

Hoping that when the gathering time comes there will be a few saints from the South who will have on the wedding garment, is the prayer of,

Your humble servant,

C. L. SNOW.

WOODBINE, Iowa, July 21.

Editors Herald:—I resume my pen to contribute my mite to the continual flow of good news running through your luminous pages. The above is not flattery, but the utterance of a soul grateful for the light given.

Since my last writing I have labored in many places, some of which are in Pottawattamie district, Little Sioux, and Galland's Grove districts. By invitation from those in charge I attended conferences in each of these districts, also preached in some of the branches. It did me good to see the good Spirit prevailing with both ministry and members. Business was transacted harmoniously, the reports favorable, and preaching excellent; not so much for "excellency of speech of man's wisdom," but for the earnest, clear, and forceful utterance of divine truth by every speaker. In fact, it seemed to be true, as I heard a good old sister remark, who had been listening to some of the sectarian ministry. Comparing their preaching with that of our ministry she said: "We have no poor preachers in our church." This is because they seek the Holy Spirit's aid and do not depend upon human wisdom, but draw their inspiration from that divine source. For this I am thankful.

The prayer meetings, which are a good test of the spiritual condition of a branch or district, were full of the divine influence, as was manifest not so much for the outward manifestations of tongues and prophecy, which, thank God, are given when needed, but for the deep, earnest love for the truth, and the divine light which shone in every prayer, testimony, and song of praise, to the strengthening of all present.

There was manifest also a determination among the ministry, both local and general appointees, to sow the good seed broadcast according to their abilities; and a good degree of unity prevailed. Yet it was evident there was room for improvement and always will be until we have "all come to the unity of the faith," or as the Inspired Translation gives it, "Till we, in the unity of the faith, all come to the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," for which condition, with all saints, I earnestly pray. But it will require a constant and incessant labor on our part to bring us up to that exalted standard. There is no time for dallying with the world with its empty baubles of wealth, and fame, and ungodly lusts. We must watch, labor, and pray for the needed strength, or we shall fail.

Neither ministers nor laymen can afford to lay their heads in Delilah's lap, or we like Sampson, shall be shorn of our strength. It saddens and sickens the heart to hear that any of God's children, whether official or unofficial, are thus found. It discourages the weak, and grieves the strong, if such there be, and stamps a foul blot upon the fair banner we bear to the world. My observation and experience have long since taught me that I cannot safely listen to the syren song of the Delilahs, nor toy with the lusts of the flesh, nor even allow unholy thoughts to dominate my mind. If my life is to be pure my thoughts and words must be, for my actions will take their shape, because, "As a man thinketh, so is he."

I would like to impress upon every mind, and especially the young, the necessity of cultivating pure and holy thoughts; and never allow the tongue to indulge in filthy language, nor walk with those who use it. "Evil communications corrupt good manners," hence it is not safe to listen to them, and much less safe to indulge in such. Truly did Jesus say, "Those things which proceed out of the mouth, come forth from the heart; and they defile the man. For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders adultery, fornications, thefts, false witnesses, blasphemies;" from which may God help us to flee.

The man who makes his boast that all the girls are "mashed on him," is in danger. He had better halt and examine his own heart and see if the fire of lust is not kindling there; and the sooner it is quenched the better, for if allowed to burn it will consume him. Never allow undue familiarity with the other sex, either by ourselves or by them. Kindness is all right, but it must not gender familiarity. Keep a respectful distance both in place, manner, and words, is a safe rule for all. Avoid flattery. Don't use it; it is a deadly poison to the soul. Don't be ensnared by it; its gates lead to destruction. Let our hearts and minds be concentrated on the pure and the good, that which is wise, virtuous, and true, and we shall "escape the pollution that is in the world through lust."

Let us keep our eyes on the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus. This life is the glorious standard by which we should measure our own, and that continually. Let us not imagine we can encroach upon the border land of evil without crossing over. The nearer we approach the stronger the attraction, hence the more imminent the danger. "Avoid it, pass not by it, turn from it, and pass away." "The wise man seeth the evil and avoideth it, but the wicked pass on and are punished."

On the 23d of June I again left home for Galland's Grove district, by request of the authorities there, going round by Mondamin, where I tried to break the bread of life. The branch in general seemed alive under the watchcare of Bro. James Gunsolley. I was invited to tarry over Sunday, but my appointments were arranged so that I could not without disappointing others. I was kindly received and treated and aided on my journey by those who anticipated my needs.

On the 24th I was met at Cherokee depot by Bro. Nathan Hayes, of that city; Brother Hayes and wife have been staunch supporters of the work in this vicinity, and so continue to be, and their example has done much to recommend the truth to the people; at least it has proved to their neighbors that the gospel we preach is calculated to uplift mankind in the scale of being. It was my privilege to break the bread of life to the Pilot Rock branch twice on the 25th. A son of Sr. Hayes by a former husband, named Nelson, presides very acceptably over the branch; and I found a very earnest people; not numerous, but in earnest, and, I believe, growing in gospel graces. I preached in two separate school-houses to fair and attentive audiences, and was urgently requested to remain longer; but being requested to be at a tent meeting at Mallard, I pressed onward, being aided in the journey by the saints, and, as before, without solicitation on my part; for I still adhere to my life-long rule to seek only to God for the supply of my necessities, and I have this to say, he never fails me. I enjoyed the kind and generous hospitality of Bro. and Sr. Hayes while in this vicinity.

On the night of the 26th I found myself in a tent at Mallard, Palo Alto County, Iowa, listening to Bro. Whiting proclaiming the good news and glad tidings of the gospel, and I began to think I was like the fifth wheel to a wagon—not needed here, Brn. C. J. Hunt and Romanan Wight being present; but the latter two brethren went to Ayrshire to hold meetings and left the tent to Bro. Whiting and myself.

I understood they had had full meetings until I got there; but perhaps my ugliness scared them so that they did not crowd the tent while I was with it. Bro. Whiting insisted upon my doing the preaching, under the plea that his throat was affected. Rain had something to do in keeping the people away. There are no saints as yet in town, but the saints live a few miles outside of town and they attended when they could. I preached three times during the week and Bro. Whiting twice. Brn. Hunt and Wight returned for Sunday, July 2. I was requested to preach twice to-day by the brethren in charge, but on account of storm I only preached in the morning, Bro. R. Wight doing good work in the afternoon, and the storm at night prevented any meeting. The saints here in general seem to be in earnest and very devoted to the cause of truth, and are desirous of building a church; and as they informed they were able to do so, I encouraged the movement; and I see by Bro. Hunt's letter they have made a good start. I advised them to build within their means, and I think they will.

There are a number of families whose young people, as well as the old, are inclined to serve the Lord, and are without a spiritual home. Bro. John Ford is presiding over the branch, a very careful man, of large experience and good judgment, and he is seconded by other good substantial men and women, and I expect to see a good work done in that vicinity. Brn. Butterworth, Whiting, Hunt, and others have labored effectually there, and their labors seem productive of good. I found a kind and truth-loving people there.

On the 3d of July I was met at Fort Dodge by Elder Samuel Jordison, and conveyed to Coalville, where I had the pleasure of celebrating the glorious Fourth in a Sunday school picnic, and a grand time we had. I cannot tell of the rich provisions made for the inner man. Suffice it to say it was indicative of the large, generous, and patriotic hearts of both brethren and sisters, and was free for all comers. Dinner and supper were eaten on the ground in a pleasant grove and a great abundance left. The Sabbath school did excellently. Sweet music and singing cheered the heart. There were no blood and thunder, nor yet spread eagle speeches, but good patriotic utterances, showing duty to God and the nation, from the various speakers. It was good to be there.

I spent the remainder of the week with them, dealing out the rich treasures of the kingdom of heaven to them, until Sunday night, Elder George Thornbury preaching in the afternoon. This branch is under the faithful watchcare of Elder Samuel Jordison, a very earnest and conscientious man, and he is aided by good assistants. Of course here as everywhere there are some who do not seem to appreciate the high and holy privileges afforded them of the Lord; but in the main they are a very earnest, devoted people, and generous to all God's servants.

Elder Butterworth desiring me to assist him in a ten-days' grove meeting at Benan, I started for there on the 10th of July, being conveyed about fourteen miles by Bro. S. Jordison, to Dayton. From there I went to Auburn, spent one night under the hospitable roof of Brother and Sister Carroll, and on the 11th Sr. Annabell Carroll kindly took me about twenty-two miles to Benan, where I found Bro. B. holding the fort. We occupied alternately until Sunday to fair audiences and splendid attention, but on Sunday it seemed like one of our reunions. Vast numbers were there from Lake City, Auburn, Carroll, Glidden, Lohrville, and surrounding country. By request from Bro. Butterworth I spoke in the morning and afternoon and Bro. Butterworth did splendid work at night, from which I hope to see an ingathering into the fold of God.

I returned home on the 17th; found all well, thank God.

Pardon this lengthy letter, I don't trouble you often. May God speed the gospel plow.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

WE come now to the consideration of the subject of health, and as it is one in which every man and woman (especially those who are parents) ought to be most deeply interested, we purpose giving to the subject a fuller consideration than otherwise would seem advisable. It is a sad thing for anyone to have their lifelong usefulness destroyed or impaired through the ignorance or neglect of those who have charge of their physical, mental, and moral training in childhood; and yet how shall they who are ignorant of the laws governing their bodies know when these laws are violated, or how to so order their households as to insure their observance?

REQUIRED READING FOR AUGUST MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINTS.

God's law written in our members is just as sacred as God's law written in the Bible. Transgressions of that law result in suffering, disease, and death. And for these transgressions there is no "day of ignorance to be winked at." Physical law is inexorable; it always exacts its penalty. Through heredity it comes to pass that the penalty for the parents' transgression is often exacted from their innocent children. Hence, to understand and obey the laws of health is the moral duty of every parent.

The housekeeper is largely the health-keeper of the family. More than anyone else she controls the ventilation, heating, and lighting of the home; she decides what shall be eaten, and how it shall be cooked. Upon these things the health of the household very largely depends. Sir Francis Head, a distinguished English physician, says: "Almost every human malady is connected, either by highways or byways, with the stomach." The mother holds the key to the stomachs of her household, whose health depends very largely upon what she admits there. If she introduce therein unwholesome food, or continual doses of medicine, she opens both byways and highways to all sorts of diseases.

She also decides how frequently her children shall be bathed, how much and what kind of exercise they shall take, how many hours they shall sleep, how much sunshine and fresh air shall be admitted to their rooms. All these things are intimately connected with the health of her household. Understanding this connection, she finds it just as easy to order her household in accordance with the laws of health as to be continually transgressing them and making her family suffer the consequences. The purpose of this chapter is to give a few simple principles on which healthy living is based, and some practical suggestions concerning what to do in specific cases.

The first requisite of a healthy house is plenty of sunshine and air. If you wish to know the effect of deprivation of sunlight on organic life, look at a potato sprout grown in the cellar, and as you look at it, resolve that no fear of faded carpets shall ever deter you from flooding your house with life-giving sunshine. Of course you may have too much of it, as of every other good thing. There are times when you need to shut out the glaring sun, but we think the tendency of modern housekeeping is in the direction of too little sunshine rather than too much, hence we emphasize its necessity. Nothing in Nature is so potent as the sunbeam; do not deprive your household of its vivifying influence. Boards of Health tell us that the window space should equal, at the very least, one tenth the superficial area of the room. In building your house, arrange to have the living room and bedrooms on the south side. Hall and parlor can occupy the north side, but let the rooms in constant use have a southern exposure. Provide for shutting out the sunshine when too glaring, but make sure that it has free access to every part of every room at least once each day. Its power in preventing disease and in restoring to health is demonstrated by the record of epidemics and of hospitals. When the yellow fever raged in New Orleans it was found that six times as many cases originated on the shady side of the street as on the sunny side. Patients in the southern wards of hospitals recover more rapidly and surely than those in the northern wards. These and similar facts emphasize the necessity of sunshine to health.

Equally essential is plenty of pure air. "What is plenty?" you ask. The New York tenement house law requires that every bedroom must have direct communication with the outside air, and must allow six hundred cubic feet of space to every occupant. Of course the provisions of a well-ordered home should not be less than those of a New York tenement house; yet we very much fear there are bedrooms in houses whose occupants are "arrayed in purple and fine linen," where these requirements are not complied with. Test the matter in your own home, and see whether your arrangements for a supply of pure air are all they should be.

A man's breath will vitiate three hundred cubic feet of air in the twenty-four hours, and this amount of air must be supplied to sustain the maximum strength. Fortunately none of our houses are air-tight, so the fresh air forces its way in through cracks and crevices. Opening doors give further relief, but these are not to be relied upon for constant supplies of air. This should be provided for as systematically as we provide bread for the family; for air is more necessary to life than bread is. If you are building a house, arrange ventilating flues in connection with the chimneys, whose heat will produce an upward current of air. Let these flues have openings into every room; currents will thus be kept up which will keep the air pure without danger from draughts.

An open fire is one of the best possible ventilators, as it causes from six to ten thousand cubic feet of air to enter and leave the room each hour. When you figure on the price of fuel, an open fire may seem extravagant; when you take into consideration its value as a ventilator, it is wise economy to keep one burning on the hearth all winter. You may save the extra cost of fuel in doctor's bills, for a room thus ventilated is much less liable to engender colds than a close, heated room, whose only ventilation is obtained through opening windows. This is apt to produce draughts, from which some one suffers. The fire will produce a gentle movement of the air, two and a half feet per second, sufficient to keep it pure, but not producing a dangerous draught.

But you may not have built your house, and may be so unfortunate as to live in one whose builder planned for neither ventilating flues or fireplaces. In this case you can probably do no better than to ventilate by the windows; but in doing so you must guard against draughts. A simple way of doing this is by fitting a board, three or four inches broad, into the lower part of the window; then raise the lower sash just enough so that it shall not come above the board. This breaks connection of the sashes in the middle and allows a current of fresh air to flow upward between them into the room. If there is a stove in the room, affix the board to the window nearest it, that when the cold air falls, as being heavier than the air in the room it will do, it may be warmed by the stove before striking anyone. If the wind is not in that direction, lower the upper sash of a window on the opposite side of the room. This provides both for ingress of pure air and egress of impure air.

Cold air is not necessarily pure air, as some people seem to imagine when they attempt to ventilate a warm room by opening a door into a cold one, in which confined air may have been stagnating for a week. Florence Nightingale says, in regard to this, that we must learn that windows are made to open and doors to shut if we would succeed in rightly ventilating a room: that is, the necessary air should be admitted from outside through the windows, instead of attempting to get it from other rooms through doors. And in the same connection she punctures the bubble of our fears concerning night air, which makes people afraid to open their bedroom windows at night. "What air can you breathe at night except night air?" she asks. The only question is whether you shall breathe it as it comes from outside, comparatively pure, or breathe the same air over and over again after it has become surcharged with deadly gases from your lungs. Stagnant air is quite as deleterious as stagnant water, and the fact that it is cold does not make it pure. Happy are you if you have not learned this fact by having been put into a "spare bedroom" to sleep, when the thermometer ran down to zero. Yet the air was stifling from weeks of confinement therein of the carbonic acid gas breathed out by the last occupant.

Make sure that at least once each day the air of every bedroom to be used at night is thoroughly changed by opening the windows and allowing the wind to blow through it. Instead of losing heat, as you fear, by this process, you will actually gain it, for the air thus admitted being rich in oxygen, better supports combustion in your body and thus keeps you warmer. Just here a word about cold bedrooms; we do not believe in them, if by cold is understood, as it is in many houses, down to the freezing point. The temperature of the lungs is nearly a hundred degrees; breathing into them air sixty or seventy degrees colder is very apt to result in lung difficulty. Again, in such a temperature bathing is impossible, and this introduces another element of disease. Of course the temperature of sleeping rooms during the night ought not to be as high as that of sitting-rooms during the day. Seventy-five degrees for the sitting-room and fifty-five degrees for the sleeping-room is about right. These degrees should be shown by a thermometer in the middle of the room, at about the height of the mantel. If it hangs higher it will mark a higher temperature, because warm air rises, while the floor on which the little ones are playing may be uncomfortably cold. Doubtless many cases of croup or colds originate from draughts of cold air to which children are exposed while playing on the floor. A baby-box will obviate this. Take a box the size adapted to the size of your room and of your child, put castors on it, and cover the inside with a padded lining so arranged as to be easily removed for washing. Set baby in the box with his playthings, and he will be safe, comfortable, and happy much longer than he could be sitting on the floor, where cold draughts chill him and his playthings roll out of his reach.—Childhood: Its Care and Culture.

ELDER T. A. HOUGAS, EDITOR.
Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

As I have been invited "to write and read a paper on Sunday school work," I undertake the task, realizing to some extent, at least, the importance of the work in hand. As the faithful and loving wife stands by the side of her husband,—ready and anxious to help whenever her assistance is needed, either by an encouraging look, a loving caress, or a display of her delicate strength,—so stands the Sunday school to the church. While the husband, with strength of body and force of mind, is capable of grappling with and overcoming sterner difficulties of life, yet many problems of a more delicate nature can only be solved by his "helpmeet" and companion in life; so it is with the church and Sunday school.

The church with her general officials,—apostles and seventies; spiritual, experienced, and brainy men,—is capable of moving out in new fields, meeting the enemy in his own territory, and by the assistance of the Lord, gaining the grandest victories for truth. The poor, honest-hearted soul that has been held in error's prison for so long, is weak and debilitated in spiritual things, and needs the most tender care. In fact he is an infant, and must have the "sincere milk of the word." Paul speaks to this class and says, "You have need of milk and not strong meat." (Heb. 5.) Then is when those missionaries—the spiritual warriors of the Lord—need the "helps" spoken of in 1 Corinthians 12: 28.

That the Sunday school is one of those "helps" is, I believe, admitted by all. Thus we see how important it is, and how careful we should be to perform ever duty devolving upon us in connection with it. While there is a necessity for having Sunday school organization, to have "government," yet it is not necessary for the officers to be ordained. Hence it is a work that all can and should be engaged in.

As the Lord directs in the ordination of men in the church, so they will be set apart "according to the gifts and calling of God" unto them; thus showing that an ordination to an office to which God has not called a man, will not qualify him to fill the position with honor. So in the Sunday school. When we place a person in a position in the Sunday school, it should always be done with care, and with the sole object of advancing the school. We should never let petty prejudice nor personal feelings rule in the least. "Teachers are born, not made," has been aptly said. We should seek for them, and when we find them, sustain them in the positions they are best qualified to fill.

My experience as a teacher in the Sunday school has been confined almost entirely to the primary department. I have taken an interest in my work, and can truly say, I have enjoyed the Spirit of the Lord, which has edified and encouraged, giving me a degree of success in my work that causes me to be thankful to my heavenly Father, and rejoice to know that my services—though weak they have been—have been accepted by him.

Be encouraged, dear saints, and remember that God will bless every effort that has been made for good. MRS. W. E. PEAK.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

In many schools it may be difficult, if not quite impossible, to carry out the following suggestions. But in the smallest schools,—where infants, primaries, intermediates, and seniors are found, or even if only juniors and seniors,—some plan should be discovered whereby all these classes can be carried on, either in separate rooms or so screened off from the main school as to be able to work with as little interruption as possible.

Where ample accommodation exists, remember the importance of adaptation to any thorough system of instruction. A little study will teach us much in this direction; for, there, no one thinks of mixing standards and infants in one assembly, and using one common lesson. But instead, each grade receives the special instruction and training it requires. Teachers may be scarce, but if accommodations are good, and a separate room can be obtained for each grade, then three good teachers, with the help of a few (say four) young sisters can work a school of about one hundred and fifty scholars with good results. That is, one teacher each for senior, intermediate, and primary; the latter two each having two sisters among the scholars to assist in keeping order and attention. I know of one sister who has taken a class of from sixty to eighty infants in a class room in this way, which in an open school would have been out of the question, and could not have been done with less than a half dozen teachers.

On the other hand, some of us have to manage with one room, and that not a large one, to conduct the recitations of all the grades of the school in; but if a sufficient number of teachers are obtainable, then the difficulty for want of accommodation is greatly reduced, for the scholars can be split up into small classes, and each given in charge of a teacher, and then a short review taken after class work is closed.

But sometimes both accommodations and teachers are lacking. For good volunteers are hard to obtain (sisters, please note this) and impressed men are little use in Sunday school work. They may help to keep order, but the children are not edified. In this case large classes have to be resorted to, which makes it hard for all concerned. Sometimes all the grades have to be taught from the desk, in which case the youngest classes should have the preference.

There is a prevailing idea in some quarters that the Sunday school is outstepping the church. I know of a school independent of its branch, although working in harmony with it. But this condition cannot obtain if the church and school are in their proper order. The church is parent to the Sunday school, and the branch should be responsible for all the responsibilities of its school, not necessarily to discharge them, only when the school cannot do so for itself. The president of the branch should be connected with the Sunday school, either as officer, teacher, or member, and be well known at its sessions, and confer now and then with the superintendent upon the work. It is not advisable that he should be superintendent, unless the school cannot get some one that fills the office to their satisfaction. The school is auxiliary to the church, and a lever whereby the church in the future will be able to do a powerful work. For if used as the nursery of the adults (new members young in the faith) as well as the young in years, it can educate them in the gospel until they are a stronghold for the truth; therefore all branch members, and especially new ones, should be members of the Sunday school, and take an active part in its work.

It has been said the sisters have no ministry. What about the Sunday school? "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world," is a saying with some truth in it, and in the Sunday school there is room for all who are willing to do something for the Master. There may be a few who cannot possibly attend the school session, these could be members of a home department, and study the lessons from the Quarterly at home, and by an occasional visit ask and be asked questions on the lessons, and thus be edified and feel themselves one of the family.

Yours in the gospel,

J. W. TAYLOR.

Conference Minutes.

EASTERN WALES.

Conference convened at Victoria room, Nantyglo, July 1; Brn. Griffiths and Gould presiding, T. Jones secretary. Branch reports: Cardiff, gain by baptism 6, and 6 by letter of removal. Lydney, no change. Nantyglo, gain 1 by letter. Elders reporting: H. Ellis, T. Gould, T. Jones, John Jones, T. S. Griffiths, A. N. Bishop; Priests J. E. Holford, F. Bevan; Teacher C. Kelsey; Deacon H. Jones. The district president's report was read, in which he stated the necessity of an elder who could devote his whole time to ministerial labor in the district; also that the saints of Lydney are building a church, the estimated cost when completed will be about £200, and that means are urgently needed to complete the same, as the saints in that town are numerically weak; also, he urged the saints to pay their tithes and freewill offerings. Bishop's agent's report: Tithes and offerings £15. 11s.; expenditures £8. 2s. 5d.; on hand £7. 8s. 7d. Resolved, that the district treasurer be requested to send a fully itemized account in future to each conference. Bro. Gould tendered his resignation as book agent, which was received and a vote of thanks given him for his services. Resolved, that all the spiritual authorities of the church be sustained by our faith and prayers; also the missionary in charge, and our district officials. Sunday services: Morning prayer meeting; short sermons in the forenoon by the brethren; afternoon, saints' meeting, when a good, spiritual time was enjoyed throughout the meeting; preaching in the evening by Brn. Gould and Griffiths. A very peaceful conference throughout. Time and place of next conference to be left with the district president.

The following officers also reported: Elders Herman Janssen, Pai, Mahana, Luko, Teahio, Tera, Mauri, Mahuru, Tuarai, Tehau, Moko, Tematagihoa, Maruake-Tetaura, Nganahau, Temanahe, Taie, Tekaropa, Pakaka, Tehavaru, Toiti, Tetuaitevai, Araiaiti, Terii, Peretei, and Tuahiva. Teachers: Taufu, Hiti-Temanava, Tautu, Tekaua, Moe, and Teahu. Deacons: Kakahu, Rua, Moerai, Terii, Tekihi, and Hatuparua.

After these reports were received, the conference ordered by vote that enough money to pay Mr. Narii Salmon the balance due him on the Tarona land be deducted from the money collected by the conference committee here, and be placed in the hands of the committee on Tarona land, for that purpose.

The following were appointed a court of elders to act during the conference: Lui, Tevaia, and Taneterau.

The following rule was then read to the conference, to be a law to govern the elders and members of the church in these islands: Any member of the church, whether male or female, who puts away their married companion and takes to themselves another one, without first being divorced from their former companion, and married to their new or second companion, shall be dealt with by the officers of the church for the sin of adultery, and if they do not repent and cease that sin, they should be cut off from the church, as the law of the Lord directs. Any member of the church should be cut off from the church who commits the sin of adultery, unless they truly repent, which if they do, they may be forgiven for the first offense, but if they commit the sin again, they must be cut off from the church. All who are living with companions, unmarried, as husband and wife, are hereby counseled to straighten out their marriage relationship as soon as possible, according to the law of God, and the law of the land, if they wish to retain their membership in the Church of Jesus Christ. It is the duty of all parents to teach their children the great evil of this sin, and to do all they can to keep them from committing that sin, which is causing the death of so many of the youths of this land—both of soul and body.

One p. m.—Reports of quorums. Elders: Have met 4 times, average attendance 58, sermons preached 1,754, number baptized 53, confirmed 57, ordained 18, children blessed 57, sick administered to 225, gospel dialogues 10, couples married 20, branches organized 2. The following rules were agreed to by the quorum. Each elder will pay one dollar to the quorum each conference to assist their own quorum. This tax will begin next conference. The names of Elders Haroatea, Pai Tehutu, and Tetuaitevai were removed from the quorum record, as they are not married to their companions. Pai Haoatua, Tuarai, and Maruake were received as members of the quorum. The quorum by vote sustained the president of the church, Joseph Smith, and his counselors; the patriarch, apostles, seventies, high priests, Bishop and counselors, the secretary, and recorder; the president of this mission, J. F. Burton, and presidents of the divisions, and of the quorums, and all other officers and members of the church. Wiriamu president of the quorum, Pofatu secretary.

By vote, conference gave the branch of Tiputa the balance of conference collection, to assist them in building a chapel.

The committee on printing reported: They had printed 800 copies of Te Orometua each month for six months, from May to October of 1898, making 4,800 copies, 38,400 pages, and had to stop then, as they were unwilling to put a debt on the church. They had also printed and bound in neat paper covers, 800 Sabbath school books of 47 pages each, 37,600 pages. Thus they had printed altogether 76,000 pages, at a cost of $750.10 Chili, or $316.70 American money; of which sum they received $592.79, leaving a balance due them of $157.31, Chili, nearly $67.50 American. J. F. Burton, D. M. Pohemiti, Metuaore, Pori, and Hotu committee.

The committee on Tarona land debt reported that they had received $86.70 from the conference collection, and with it had finished paying Mr. Narii Salmon the debt due him. The conference committee reported having received the following sums from the branches named: Tiona $3, Tarona $3.50, Apataki $5, Arutua $10, Niau $20, Tikahau $11.90, Tiputa $12.50, Avatoru $12.50, Makatea $7.50, Takapoto $14.50, Manihi $15, Takarua $4, Taenga $1, and Raroia $1; total $121.40, of which they had given to the Tarona land committee $86.70, and to the branch of Tiputa $34.70.

The committee on Tarona land debt reported as follows: There is due to Mr. Mapuhi $752, French money, and to the Notary, including interest, $440. After considerable discussion upon the matter, it was decided to obtain the money to pay this debt as follows: These branches being present, and agreeing to the plan, the debt being divided among the branches which were willing to assist; those who will pay Mr. Mapuhi, are to deliver to him bufa as follows: Manihi 2,500 kilos, Niau 2,000 kilos, Raroia 1,000 kilos, Taenga 400 kilos, Takapoto 800 kilos, and Takarua 500 kilos. This with the proceeds of the sale of the Papaoa chapel will pay Mr. Mapuhi; and for the Notary's debt, Apataki will deliver 1,000 kilos of bufa, Arutua 1,500 kilos, Avatoru 1,000 kilos, Fakarava 200 kilos, Kaukura 2,000 kilos, Tikahau 1,500 kilos, Tarona 500 kilos, Tiputa 500 kilos, Tiona 300 kilos, Tiarei 200 kilos, and Ioane Tamaiti 100 kilos. This will leave about $140 due the Notary, and it is expected that Hao and Amanu branches will make up that much. The names of all givers, and the sums given, are to be printed in Te Orometua.

After some consideration the conference passed a resolution that the Te Orometua should not be distributed gratis to branches—there were over 1,000 copies sent this year to branches which have not paid anything towards helping the press committee; they have also received over 200 of the Sunday school book.

It was also resolved that the papers, Te Orometua, be kept in Papeete until the end of the year, and then be bound and delivered at the conference to those who subscribe and pay for it. The presidents of branches which were present were requested to call their branches together and learn from them how many wished to subscribe for the book of Te Orometua, and report to conference. The printing committee stating that they could print and bind 400 for $2.50, Chili, about $1.04 American, and have 200 copies left on hand unbound.

The following committee on Bishop's agent's books was appointed: Teehu, Viriamu, and Ioane Tamaiti. After which an extract from Bishop Kelley's letter was read, advising the church here not to use the tithings for building churches, buying land, or for any other purpose than that which is designed in the law of the Lord, and other profitable instruction. After which, by unanimous vote, it was decided that for the purpose of carrying out the instruction of Bishop Kelley, that there shall be but one Bishop's agent for this mission, and that all the church property be deeded in his name, and that he shall at once execute such legal papers as shall secure such property, whether lands, chapels, dwelling houses, or any and all church property to his successor in office, who shall be appointed by Bishop Kelley.

There was then presented to conference a sample blank form of branch reports from H. A. Stebbins, Church Recorder, and explanations made.

April 7, 8 a. m.—Report of court of elders concerning Tahua and Temaharo, who were found guilty of wrongdoing. They confessed their sins before the court of elders and the conference, and were forgiven; but Tahua's office should be taken from him until next conference at least. They also reported that the trouble between Hotu and Teuu had been settled by them amicably. Report received and acted upon according to their recommendations. Report of committee on Bishop's agent's books: Metuaore had received $473.20; had paid out $295.90; balance on hand $177.30. Hotu received $230.22; paid out $159; balance due church $71.22.

Report was read from Ragahua, Maevatua, Kapu, and Haroatea concerning land for a chapel in Makemo.

Hotu was requested by conference to put on the table the $70 which was placed in his hands in Hikueru over two years ago for the branch of Raroia, he afterwards did so, and it was placed in the hands of Vaipouri, the president of Roroia branch.

A report was read from Sr. Tematau, giving land in Niau for building a chapel upon.

The laws concerning organizing districts and branches were read from section 120, paragraphs 1 to 3 of Doctrine and Covenants, and section 4 Book of Rules, with some explanations, after which Elder Tuteirihia stated that he had organized the two branches in Raiatea without consulting with either the president of the mission or of the district; but he did not intend to do wrong, did not know the law, and asked to be pardoned for his error, which was freely granted by vote of conference, and his work was also accepted. The president of the conference advised the elders to more fully honor the laws of the church hereafter.

The presidents of branches reported the number of Te Orometua they would require as follows: Arutua 25, Takapoto 22, Niau 46, Kaukura 56, Apataki 15, Fakarava 6, Tikahau 35, Manihi 43, Taenga 15, Raroia 10, Avatoru 30, Taronia 5, Opoa 13, Makatea 31, Hitia 3, Ioane Tamaiti 20, Tapuni 2, Tiarei 2, Tubuai 10, and Hao 5.

Elder Tematagihoa, Bishop's agent's assistant of Tauere, reported having given Elder Tapuni, missionary, $40.70 to assist him.

Metuaore, the Bishop's agent, reported having received $43.30 from his assistant Tahua, and $26 from his assistant Lui.

One p. m. The following persons were received by conference, to be ordained: Alfred Sanford and Tahuu, elders; Tepiki and Nui, priests; Rua, Haorea, Maui, Hiti Temanava, and Turatahi, teachers; Turi, Titi, Roo, and Tumatau, deacons.

A report of the gift of a piece of land in Tautara to build a chapel upon, was read; it was given by Terii Tauaroa (wife) and Hapaie (husband), and Teriiteraahaumea, 8 meters wide and 12 meters long.

Court of elders reported that Mahetau, Taahu, and Pou be cut off from the church; and that Taurateau give up his license until he gets married.

April 8, 8 a. m.—Tuteirihia reported having incurred a debt of $27 to Rua, and desired the conference to order the Bishop's agent to refund it. The conference by vote refused to do so, as the missionary is not at liberty to place a debt upon the church.

At this time the conference arose and sang a hymn of welcome to Bro. John Hawkins and his company from Tubuai, who had just arrived. After which Elder Hawkins reported he had preached 58 times, and done other work in Tubuai agreeably to his office, and spoke very feelingly of the work and of his fellow workers. He had joined the church in 1845, in Papeete, and loved the church yet.

The conference decided that the next conference should be held in Taronia, Papeete, and that each branch should provide its own food, tables, and dishes for the feast. The following committee were appointed to build a suitable house in Taronia for the conference of April 6, 1900, Metuaore, Pai, and Teotahi; and that each member of the church coming to conference shall give to that committee $2.50 to defray the expenses of building that house and other necessary expenses.

The committee on Takaraoa land reported that they could not settle that business until they got deeds and settled with the Notary, and that the money on hand for that purpose be placed in Metuaore's hands.

Hotu reported that he had $45 of the Sabbath school offerings on hand, and that he would hand it to the committee on printing, as the conference had ordered.

Conference agreed by vote to have the Doctrine and Covenants translated, and for this purpose each member of the church will bring or send to Metuaore or Iotefa 40 cents Chili money.

One p. m. A unanimous vote was passed amid some furore of glad expectation, requesting Pres. Joseph Smith to attend our next conference in Papeete.

By vote Mauri and Peeri were ordered to give up their offices until they got married.

By vote the offices were restored to Tauriteau and Tepoaitu.

The following requests were granted: Marere $6, Ioane Hawkins $12.

The following were appointed a committee on the Takaraoa land business: Metuaore, Pohemiti, and Teuira.

The officers of the church in America and in this mission were sustained by vote. Metuaore was appointed by this conference as the Bishop's agent for this mission, with the request that Bishop Kelley ratify this recommendation.

Sunday, 7 a. m., preaching by Ioane Hawkins; ten a. m. by J. F. Burton; twelve m., singing by Tubuai branch; one p. m., baptism of 10 persons; at two p. m., confirmation and ordination and testimony meeting; at seven p. m. Ioane Purauai preached; eight p. m., matutus, which closed the day's services about 9:30 p. m.

Monday morning. Elders' quorum reported concerning Rere. No evidence presented to them against him; he therefore was acquitted. Report received.

Ioane Hawkins, Lui, and Tapu were appointed to ordain the quorum officers which had been accepted by the quorums and conference.

The following missionaries were accepted by conference—they to go at their own expense: Pohemiti, president of Tahiti division, and Kehauri. Vaiarea, and Varoa missionaries with him. Ioane Hawkins, president of Tubuai division, and Maevatua missionary there. Herman Jansson, president of Amanu and Hao division, and Taia missionary with him. Viriamu, president of Raiatea division, and Tuteirihia and Mauna missionaries with him. Temai, president of Rarotonga division, and Ioane Purauai missionary with him. Taneterau, president of Fakarava division, Marere and Tepava missionaries. Tapuni, president of Raroia division, and Temarie missionary. Lui, president of Mangareva division, and Neri missionary with him.

Conference agreed by vote that each branch should select not less than two men, who should go to Papeete by February 1, to assist the committee to build the feast house, and make all necessary arrangements for next conference.

There were present at conference 643 saints, and 220 persons not members of the church; 20 branches were represented. They gathered in 26 boats, 3 vessels, and 1 steamer. There were 32 tables, 15 matutus or religious dialogues, 70 recitations and songs, and the feast lasted ten days.

Conference adjourned to meet in Taronia, Papeete, at eight a. m., April 6, 1900.

CHURCH SECRETARY'S NOTICE.

ENROLLMENT IN QUORUMS.

The law provides for enrollment in quorums of all church officers, including elders, priests, teachers, and deacons. (D. C. 104: 31; 118: 1; 120: 10.)

Such enrollment is regulated by rules adopted by General Conferences, which provide that all applications shall be forwarded to the Church Secretary.

Applications should contain full name, office, dates of birth, baptism, ordination, and by whom ordained; also permanent address, and labor done, for quorum records. None of these items should be omitted.

Quorums make selections from applications in the Secretary's hands.

The Secretary cannot enroll anyone in a quorum. Quorums report all enrollments to General Conference. Presidents and their counselors are authorized to select names and enroll members to fill vacancies, between conferences, subject to quorum approval or disapproval.

The General Conference of 1897 authorized the Secretary to enroll applicants in quorums of elders, priests, teachers, and deacons, which was done and referred to the Quorum of Twelve, for completion of said quorums by selection and ordination of officers, at the General Conference of 1898. However, the Twelve were unable to complete said organizations then, because of absence of parties and other hindering causes. Brethren whose names appeared in published lists prepared by the Secretary will therefore understand the status of said applicants. Statements designed to reach the matter of more complete enrollment will be made to the General Conference of 1900. In the meantime, vacancies in existing quorums may be filled by quorum officers, from applications in the hands of the Church Secretary.

CERTIFICATES OF APPOINTMENT.

Certificates of appointment are issued only when appointments are made; not annually, unless General Conferences are held annually. Duplicate certificates will be issued, on application, when originals are lost.

LICENSES.

General officers of the church, including presidents and counselors of quorums, are entitled to licenses from the general church, signed by the President and Secretary. In almost all cases such have been issued. Presidents and counselors of quorums who can furnish items of ordination as such (not accessible to the Secretary) will be furnished such license on application.

Local officials obtain their licenses from branch or district authorities and should apply to them for renewals, except in unorganized territory, in which they may be obtained from or renewed through missionaries in charge. In bonds,

R. S. SALYARDS, Church Secretary.

LAMONI, Iowa, July 19, 1899.

CORRECTION.

I see in minutes of Northern Michigan district a mistake of mine. Reed City branch should be 29, loss 1, instead of 39, gain 9; also Bro. J. A. Grant writes me that he baptized 1, not 7.

WARREN TURNER, Pres.

J. R. SUTTON, Sec.

The conference of Northeastern Illinois district which adjourned to meet in Chicago, September 9 and 10, has by vote of the different branches, been changed to September 2 and 3, owing to the fact that in past years the railroads have made a rate of one and one third fare for the round trip a few days before and after labor day, and the time was changed in order to enable those coming to conference to take advantage of these reduced rates, if they are given this year. On Thursday night, August 31, the Religio will give an entertainment. September 1, (Friday) morning and evening, will be devoted to Sunday school Institute work, and the greater part of the afternoon will be devoted to Religio work. Sunday at six p. m. a Religio Book of Mormon class will be held. Church workers, Religio and Sunday school workers, everybody, whether living in this district or not, come in time for the Religio entertainment on Thursday night, and stay over until the last meeting Sunday night. Begin and make your plans now, so that you can come. Particulars as how to reach the meeting place, what car lines to take, etc., will be printed in the regular conference announcement in the course of a couple of weeks. TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

There is to be a two days' meeting at Webberville, Michigan; and as there are so few here that are saints, we invite all who can to come and come with pure heart, trusting that our meeting be not in vain. True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale.

Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

SERMONS ON INGERSOLL.

CHICAGO MINISTERS REFER TO HIS SUDDEN DEATH.

The sudden death of Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll called for notice in many Chicago pulpits yesterday. Generally the remarks were corollaries to sermons already prepared when the great Agnostic passed from earthly life. A number of ministers, when asked if they purposed allusions to his death or doctrines, answered with an emphatic "No." Of those who mentioned his life or its results most spoke kindly of the man, while deploring the drift of his teaching, and a number affirmed the profitableness of his work to the church in calling attention to the errors of old doctrine. It was the general opinion that the results of his peculiar infidelity were disappearing rapidly so far as disciples were concerned. In nearly all the sermons there was a savor of hope that he had awakened to a brighter, sweeter, wiser life than his agnostic philosophy had permitted him to hope for. Few attempted to declare his present state.

The Rev. J. H. O. Smith at Union Christian Church said of Colonel Ingersoll:—

At last the eloquent voice is still and the thinker's brain is pillowed in silent mystery. With a brilliance born of generations of believing ancestors he assailed the faith, too often mistaking grotesque representations of our religion for the story of redemption told in the Bible and fighting the ghosts of his imagination whom he named "the gods."

This is not the time to discuss the merit or demerit of his life, but a time to recall the facts. It seems sad that he should have preached the gospel of gloom in the brightest age of faith since Calvary, and should have used his splendid gifts in draping with exquisite rhetoric the skeleton of unbelief. With charmed imagery borrowed from the Bible he sought to brighten the gloom of the grave. "From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word, but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing." Was it not the star that stood over Bethlehem and the rustle of wings of angels, who came on that resurrection morning long ago to proclaim this a world of gateways and not of graves?

He mistook death, the daybreak of an eternal morning, for the sunset tragedy that must mark at last the end of each and all. The light of his philosophy could not penetrate the darkness which shrouded the tomb, or paint a rainbow of hope on the dark background of human tears.

The great agnostic is gone and while we deplore his teachings we have more respect for the honest doubter who makes an open fight against faith than for the professing friend of Christ who betrays him with a kiss while hailing him as his Lord.

The Rev. G. D. Cleworth, pastor of the Ada Street Methodist Episcopal Church, quoted from Colonel Ingersoll: "We cannot say, we do not know whether death is a wall or a door," and continued:—

Here is uncertainty, surely. But it is not denial. What a prince Robert G. Ingersoll would have been had he turned his brain and tongue to proclaiming the positive, burning truths of religion instead of disseminating the miserable, cold negatives of infidelity. Perhaps we should admit that he has done religion a service. He turned his artilleries of ridicule and invective against the hypocrisies of the church. The "Mistakes of Moses" and of other men formed the target for his witty eloquence. He made the mistake of attributing these mistakes to religion.

In his personal life Mr. Ingersoll was better than men ordinarily will be who accept his teachings. He loved his home, was temperate in his habits, held the esteem of his neighbors, and did not forget the poor. In the time of our country's peril he fought for the union. Let us believe that his hunger for immortality, voiced toward the end of his life, shaped itself into a prayer that his unknown and offended God might receive his spirit.

The Rev. P. F. Matzinger, at Campbell Park Presbyterian Church, spoke thus:—

In simple fairness let us not ignore his good qualities. His early training in a Christian home will account for it better than his unbelief. Let us admit the richness of his fertile imagination and the power of his rhetoric and the charm of his eloquence, the love of his family circle and his kindness to others. But if he really was so good at heart did it ever occur to him that he was robbing uncounted numbers of people less fortunate than he of the consolation of future happiness? His humanitarian principles—one cannot object to them, only he advocated them to the exclusion of the Father in heaven. Still no true friend of Christianity but feels satisfaction because of his scathing but just denunciations of superstition, dogmatism, and perversions of the spirit of Christ's sayings.

Forbid it that any of us should assume the responsibility of judging his life. He is facing one more capable of doing him justice than any man. Ingersoll himself said some twenty years ago: "No forgiveness. Eternal, inexorable, everlasting justice, that is what I believe in, and if it goes hard with me I shall stand by it, and I will stick to my logic and I will bear it like a man." May he find the Judge more kind than he thought.

The Rev. Dr. H. Atwood Percival, Normal Park Presbyterian Church, said:—

I have always fought Colonel Ingersoll's teachings, but not the man, and now that he is dead, I cannot find it in my heart to say mean things about him. The form of Christianity with which he was familiar in early youth was a travesty on the genuine article. Narrow, loveless, bigoted, prejudiced, long-faced, professing Christians, who have sipped their full of dogma and creed, turn more people from the Christian churches than a thousand Ingersolls. I am thankful we are not to be his judge. It is not the prerogative of the Christian Church to consign men to a state of eternal rewards or punishments. We just leave him in the hands of God, who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind. The God of the whole earth will do right.

Reviewing his life, I find many excellencies; his cordial manner, his wonderful oratory, his bursting patriotism, his kindness to all forms of life, are worthy of imitation; and yet his influence on undeveloped minds was pernicious in the extreme, and eternity alone will reveal the mischief he has wrought. The wrath of his hostile criticism in seeking to destroy the scriptures was only the crushing of the spices which made them more fragrant far. The truth of God's word is indestructible and must prevail.

As Christians "we climb well up the heights" and still look upward and onward and expect a crown set round with gems more unfading than the stars. Mr. Ingersoll spoke, too, of climbing up the heights; but instead of still gazing upward and onward he looked backward upon a vale of superstition and tears. Which is better?

The Rev. Frank G. Tyrrell said at the First Christian Church:—

Ingersoll was a man of words. His words were well chosen, but he seldom rose above the rhetorician. It is significant that a man of his caliber stood alone for so many years as the only well-known apostle of infidelity—significant of the weakness and unpopularity of the gospel of dirt. Mr. Ingersoll showed great wisdom in always avoiding debate. Much that he said was directed against ancient and abandoned theologies; it was not only a man of straw, it was of rotten straw.

Like infidelity in all ages, this dead advocate was entirely negative and destructive in his method. He affirmed nothing, but ignorance; he built nothing, but a private fortune; he left nothing, but a memory that will soon perish. He was the lonely advocate of a long lost cause, and that the cause of the powers of darkness.

This is not saying that he uttered no truth, or that he lived an incarnate life. Even the Devil himself possesses the virtue of attending strictly to his own business, and no doubt Ingersoll had his virtues. But his feeble, flamboyant efforts to weaken men's faith in the Man of Galilee, to extinguish malevolently the light of a deathless hope, and give back to the grave its victory—these were not virtues.

The Rev. Bruce Brown, at the West Side Church of Christ, said:—

Robert Green Ingersoll was the product of his early religious environment. He tells us that his earliest remembrance of the church was in a little community where the whole population was regularly converted every winter at the annual revival and just as regularly backslid every spring. He heard ugly and angry discussions on the form of baptism and church government. He heard his own father unjustly criticised by members of other churches. He heard with horror of unconditional election and of the cries of the lost as they were thrust into roaring furnaces of fire. He was shocked beyond measure when he heard it taught in the name of religion that the fair-faced, innocent child was wholly corrupt and a subject of the wrath of a righteous God. Legends and traditions, piously accepted by others, were rejected by him when reason and history told him that they could not be true. His successful battles were not against what was in the Bible, but against what ecclesiastics had written between its lines.

His criticism has been profitable to the church, for it has become more practical and less cumbersome, and there are probably more church members to-day than there would have been if Robert G. Ingersoll had never been born. He was not a seer, but he uttered one prophecy that has been fulfilled. He said, "The church must go," and it has gone with leaps and bounds! But it has gone forward and not backward, and is stronger than ever before. The Bible, likewise, has come through the heat and strife of the centuries without losing a page or a chapter. God lays away his workers, but the work goes on forever.

Dr. D. F. Fox, at the California Avenue Congregational Church, said:—

Ingersoll's fundamental error was in his assumption that religion enslaves the intellect. To believe, he held, is to put a fetter on the intellect; to disbelieve is to enter into intellectual freedom. From this he went on, repudiating the faith of his parents, classifying the Bible among the romance books of history, and in a series of mere negations and denials he claimed to find liberation of intellect and growth of mind. Never was there a more entire and mischievous blunder, and Mr. Ingersoll was himself a most glaring example of the mistake and mischief of his position. If he was a great orator, it was in spite of his infidelity and not because of it. When we sum up his career it is easy to perceive that the absence of religious faith produced defect and limitation, not enlargement.

Did the wisdom of Jesus fetter or emancipate the intellect of Paul? It is not the faithful, but the faithless, who dwell in a contracted life with half the intellectual faculties dormant or dead for lack of use. Hear Christ's own candid words: "In my father's house are many mansions. If it were not so,"—if this were not the truth: "I would have told you." I prefer Paul to Ingersoll, and Christ above all others.

The Rev. Dr. Peter Moerdyke at Trinity Reformed Church said:—

Colonel Robert Ingersoll did not enter into the kingdom of Christ. He stood without deliberately, boastingly. His rare gifts, his splendid opportunities should have moved him to seize the key and enter into the essential knowledge of God. His merely outside view of spiritual truth and of scriptural teachings and of the Church of Christ was his radical defect. His own character and happy domestic life a deeply thoughtful man would have credited to Christianity with reverent gratitude. Pity he reviled the hand that so nobly fashioned him.

"The worst heresy is that which misrepresents God, gives men wrong conceptions of his character and relationship toward them, and thus hinders the reconciliation that God seeks in Christ." This mighty orator perverted his talent in taking away the key of knowledge. He shut up the Bible, the way of salvation, the kingdom of heaven to the multitudes whom his coarse caricatures and ridicule and unworthy sophistries beguiled.

One of his masterly campaign arguments heard in '96, clear, cogent, captivating, excited pity that he was not, from an inside experience and vision of redeeming truth, pleading for, as he was, alas! antagonizing, Christianity. Such characters and careers fall under the "woes of Christ."

In Moody's Church last evening the pastor in charge, the Rev. Dr. James M. Gray, drew some lessons from the life and death of Colonel Ingersoll. He said it had been asked whether the sudden death of this distinguished man was a judgment of God upon his blasphemy.

"The judgment of wicked men comes after death," said Dr. Gray; "they would be safe and happy, indeed, if their judgment was confined to the experiences of the present life, and that is one reason why the theory of annihilation is so popular with them. But Jesus' parable of Dives and Lazarus revealed a different prospect for those who die in their sins.

Which sentiment would you prefer to live by, even though your life was limited to the present time? This of the agnostic, "Beyond the tomb we cannot see," or this of the Apostle Paul, "We know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God." This man advocated suicide as a relief from human ills, but there were thousands in the city where he dwelt who found a surer and holier relief in the personal experience of the divine burden-bearer, Jesus Christ."

President Charles A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, preached at the Warren Avenue Congregational church on those who die in sin. He began by reviewing the career of Colonel Ingersoll. He said:—

Ingersoll lived sixty years and his opportunities for accomplishing good extended over a period of forty years. Can anyone name his good works? Does anyone know of any orphan asylum, hospital, or educational institution that he ever aided? If you can put your hand on any good work he did, then you may say that his life was a success judged by his standard. One finds that all his life he reaped from fields planted by others. You say he was good to his family—a wild beast loves its cubs. As compared with Moody, he was a wretched failure.

If a man live in sin and die without repenting and confessing that sin he must suffer everlasting punishment as a penalty, according to the Bible. For forty years Ingersoll was guessing; now he realizes the truth, and if he could return he would doubtless have testimony of a different kind to give.

In the course of his sermon on "Agnosticism and Religion," at the South Congregational church, the Rev. Willard B. Thorp made the following allusion:—

Colonel Ingersoll is not worthy to rank with the scholarly exponents of agnosticism. He was neither a scholar nor a philosopher, but a popular orator. And yet he stood before the masses as the popular exponent of those ideas which in more scholarly form dominate the writings of Huxley, Spencer, Tyndall, Harrison, and the great agnostic school of thought.

The best way to refute an argument is to find out all the truth there is in it and freely concede it. From the point of view which most Christian believers occupied when Ingersoll began to lecture, he could not be refuted. But that point of view has greatly changed, and long before the arch infidel died the strength had been completely taken out of his arguments by the expanding thought of Christendom.

The lesson of the career of Ingersoll is that Christian teachers should frankly present all the facts to the people, and interpret them in the light of the gospel. If this had been done by the last generation of Christians Ingersoll never would have had the opportunity which he so brilliantly used on the side of infidelity.

The Rev. Dr. A. C. Hirst at Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church made only a short reference. He said:—

Whether Colonel Ingersoll's utterances from the lecture platform and from the printed page were the result of profound conviction as to their truthfulness or whether they were an evidence of his own earnest search after truth is a question that he only could answer, but his eloquent lips are forever still. Who knows but what, if his wish had been granted, "not to die suddenly, but slowly, retaining consciousness," he would have left a message to his fellow men that as far as possible would have blotted from their memory his false teachings?

As the apostle of agnosticism he had many admirers and followers. Through that magic power he held over his hearers many a life has swung away from the safe moorings of a faith in God and his saving grace, into doubt, then scorn and defiance of the Bible, reaching the climax of hopeless atheism. His private character seems to have been without reproach, and his home bright and fragrant with gentleness and love. Girded thought and girded faith in God will give the human soul its sublime destiny, a deathless immortality.

THE MAKING OF A JOURNALIST.

Oddly enough, no book has ever been published which may be fairly called an adequate treatment of the business of American journalism. It is to fill this gap that Julian Ralph, "the best reporter in the world," has written for the Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia, a series of twelve papers on The Making of a Journalist.

Mr. Ralph writes from the view-point of one who has reached the top of his profession; who has labored unceasingly in the newspaper field for twenty-five years; who has pursued the elusive thing called "news" into every corner of the globe, and knows the business from Alpha to Omega.

To young men who would make journalism their life-work Mr. Ralph says, "Don't;" but, having thus freed his conscience, he elaborates entertainingly with anecdote and reminiscence the joys, the vicissitudes and experiences of the young man who has ink in his blood. The series will begin in the Post of August 12.

In the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August the editor comments on educational conditions in the South, with reference to the future of both the white and colored races. In the same magazine is the address delivered at the Capon Springs, W. Va., conference in June by Dr. J. L. M. Curry, one of the foremost educational leaders of the South and an active executive officer of the Peabody and Slater funds.

The Des Moines Leader is by far the best newspaper ever published in Iowa, and it will be sent to you by mail, Daily and Sunday, for $4.00 per year.

GRIEF OF THE INGERSOLLS.

WIFE AND DAUGHTERS CANNOT BEAR THE PARTING.

New York, July 23.—Death maintained possession to-day at the home of Colonel Robert Ingersoll, high on the Dobbs Ferry hills. All thoughts of an immediate funeral were put off; widow, daughters, and other members of the family refused to have him buried. They could not bear to give him up. . . .

All day Mrs. Ingersoll, Mrs. Brown, and Miss Maude Ingersoll sat in the death chamber. Since Colonel Ingersoll died they have not left the room for a minute. They sleep there, and what little food they eat is taken there.

On a bier where the embalmers left him lies Colonel Ingersoll, looking as natural as in life. Beside it is a couch where the widow lies by day and sleeps by night, so near that she can take the dead man's hand. The daughters rest on the bed close beside. . . .

"Mrs. Ingersoll and her two daughters cannot bear to let him out of their sight. They know it means forever. They cannot bear the idea of putting him away for all eternity. Until they can we can do nothing. They will not even leave the room now. Colonel Ingersoll lies there as natural almost as life on his bier, not even dressed for the grave. There the three women watch him and talk to him and fan him as if he were alive."

New York, July 25.—The arrangement made yesterday for the incineration of Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll's body at Fresh Pond to-morrow was abandoned to-day out of deference to the uncontrollable grief of his widow and daughters, who still refuse to give up the body.

Walston H. Brown, after vainly pleading with the grief-stricken women, was forced to announce to-day that the cremation had been postponed until Thursday.

No hour had been fixed, and unless Mrs. Ingersoll and her two daughters become more reconciled to their loss than they were this morning it may be necessary again to postpone the cremation.

The three women are still in a state of collapse, grieving beside the shrouded form of their dead. They will hear of nothing that means a parting from the body of the husband and father, and the warnings of the physicians that their physical and mental welfare demands that the present condition of things be brought to an end are without the slightest effect on them.

The simple funeral ceremonies outlined by the family took place this afternoon at four o'clock. The exercises were strictly private, and only the family and the intimate friends of Colonel Ingersoll were admitted to the room. There were readings of the utterances of Colonel Ingersoll by his two old friends, Professor John Clark Ridpath and Major Orlando B. Smith. Professor Ridpath, who knew Colonel Ingersoll in the West a number of years ago, read "The Declaration of the Free."

Dr. J. L. Elliott read the eloquent eulogy which Colonel Ingersoll delivered a number of years ago at the grave of his own brother, to whom he was warmly devoted. . . .

New York, July 26.—Walston, at Dobbs Ferry, where Colonel Ingersoll died, was a quiet place to-day. The body of the dead agnostic lay on his flower-covered bier. Only the widow and daughters sat near. The women wanted to be with him alone, for it was the last day.

They asked that the body be not placed in the coffin till the last moment. They wanted to see no trappings of death—those three women, widow and two daughters, who from to-morrow onward can hope for nothing. Their unbelief is still unshaken. When Colonel Ingersoll is cremated to-morrow they believe they will never meet him again.

We devote some space in the present HERALD cover to expressions of leading Chicago ministers on the life, work, and future of Colonel Ingersoll, the celebrated agnostic. Mr. Ingersoll and his work represent a condition that bears strikingly upon the developments of present day thought; for this reason we have thought well that his work as reflected through bright and able minds should be presented for the consideration of those interested in the conflict between opposing forces for and against the doctrine of a future life and religion in general.

Though loath to present this dark picture of the stricken, despairing home circle of the agnostic, we give what is already made public as an object lesson. His family cling to his agnostic ideas, but find and manifest, even in their declared unbelief, a love for the departed that is in itself one strong proof of immortality, and without which life to them must ever be fateful, dark, and stifling. How different the picture of the mourning yet believing saint, who sees in the death of the righteous the passage from the scenes of the temporal to the world of the eternal. Truly the grief and hopelessness exhibited by the loving wife and daughters of Colonel Ingersoll furnish in themselves a pitiful appeal for sympathy that desires for them a better condition—a conscious realization upon their part that God has provided better things for them than despair, doubt, and hopeless unassuaged grief.

A later account describes the incineration of the remains at the crematory and states that the ashes were placed in an urn and handed to the widow and daughters, who wept over what to them was all that remained of a loving husband and father. To them death now seems to have ended all, but we doubt not that years of continued sense of loss will awaken and give life to the normal hope of meeting again the departed.

HEBER J. GRANT ACCUSED.

Heber J. Grant has been charged with the commission of adultery. The complaint was yesterday sworn to by C. M. Owen, the complainant in the Angus Cannon case, and forwarded to County Attorney Putnam. It is expected that Mr. Putnam will direct the issuance of the warrant to-day.

The law makes the charge of adultery more serious than that of unlawful cohabitation, the one under which Angus M. Cannon was prosecuted. The offense of adultery is a felony, punishable by imprisonment in the State prison for a term not exceeding three years.

The complaint against Grant sets forth that the complainant is informed and verily believes that Heber J. Grant, an apostle of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day saints, whose legal wife is Augusta W. Grant, is living in open and notorious adultery with one Emily Wells, otherwise Grant, and of whose illegitimate child he is the acknowledged father, contrary to the peace and dignity of the State of Utah, and in defiance of the laws in this case made and provided.

In support of the complaint the affiant cites as witnesses Augusta W. Grant, Lucy Grant, Rachel Grant, Rachael R. Grant, Florence Grant, Emily Wells, or Grant, Heber M. Wells, Brigham H. Roberts, Lorenzo Snow, George Q. Cannon, Joseph F. Smith, John Henry Smith, Angus M. Cannon, Nelson A. Empey.

The foregoing is from the Salt Lake Semi-Weekly Tribune, July 25. Is the war on against polygamy to its final extinction? We await developments.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Has a deacon the authority or right to lay on hands for the healing of the sick or afflicted?

The Book of Covenants, sec. 17, par. 11, has the following:—

But neither teachers nor deacons have authority to baptize, administer the sacrament, or lay on hands; they are, however, to warn, expound, exhort, and teach, and invite all to come to Christ.

It appears that the law says No to the question. We therefore say, No.

DECREASE OF HARMONY SOCIETY.

A brother has sent us a clipping from the New Harmony, Indiana, Times, the place where the Harmony society existed in connection with the Rappites, before going to Economy, Pennsylvania. It is an editorial written upon the occasion of a visit from Mr. John Duss, of Economy, to the cemetery of the Rappites, a yearly custom. We quote from this editorial:—

The Harmony Society had been managed by excellent and benevolent Christians, men who were not qualified to cope with the duplicity of the nineteenth century. One imposition after another depleted the splendid estate of the Harmonites and "charity beyond wisdom" bade fair to lose to the remaining members an inheritance that at one time amounted to over $2,000,000. It was fortunate for the survivors that at this time Mr. Duss assumed charge, as his strict business management has again placed the society in an easy position and while they can never hope to attain their former opulence the members are assured of a peaceful and a happy old age.

At the present time nine members comprise the Harmony Society, seven women and two men. The estate represented by these will amount, with all debts paid, to about $250,000. Many of the industries once carried on by them proved signal failures and have been discontinued. The Rappites are now as they originally were, farmers, and depend almost entirely upon the rents of their lands for their support.

The Harmony Society has been put to enormous expense of late years by litigation brought about by discordant members who involved the peaceful community in discord with their wrangling. They have been settled with at various times and this has been a source of great loss to the society.

Mr. Duss' discourse Friday evening placed the people of New Harmony in touch with the Rappites and gave them a perfect understanding of the life of these people since they left New Harmony. He spoke with reverence of Father Rapp and represented Messrs. Henrici and Lenz as men of much Christian charity and benevolence.

He himself does not claim the distinguished qualities of either the foregoing, but rather acknowledges being a man of business parts. And fortunate for the people that he is. There is no disputing the fact that Rappite benevolence and their belief in general uprightness was an anachronism. It may have belonged to the happy past, but for any society to flourish at the present day it must needs have at its head a man of business affairs, one whose knowledge of men enables him to cope with the world with confidence and success. Happily for the members of New Harmony's ancient colony events placed John Duss to the front where his excellent business management has proven of incalculable benefit to his people. Mr. Duss' success can best be explained by his favorite maxim: "Find out what the other man is going to do, and do it first."

His visit to New Harmony will be long remembered as a very pleasant epoch in the lives of his newly made friends.

It may be remembered by many that not many years ago it was supposed that the Prophet Nephi had been seen and heard. A brother Leabo, it appears, had been chosen as one worthy to receive a visit from the ancient leader of the people of the Book of Mormon story. We were asked many times about this coming of Nephi and pressed for an answer to the question, "What do you think of this alleged appearance of Nephi?" We knew nothing of the circumstances attending the alleged appearance of Nephi; but we did know that if it was a genuine coming of the ancient leader, its portent would be good for the honest in heart, and that the saints would in due time, be made aware of the message to them if any was intended. We learned that two of our brethren were looking the matter up, and were told that arrangements had been made by letter by virtue of which Nephi was to be at the last conference held at Kirtland. The conference was held, but no Nephi came. Whether there was a misunderstanding; because of a failure to write plainly, or there was a bit of deception practiced, we are not authorized to write; nor do we care to state an opinion.

"If the thing prophesied come not to pass," the medium of communication, the prophet, is not to be feared at all events. So we in accordance with that word may all rest without fear from that source, until further developments.

BRO. GEORGE H. BRUSH writes from Mooring, Tennessee, July 18, in regard to a series of mounds in the Mississippi Valley, which he expresses a desire to investigate, but lacks both means and an opportunity. We have only this to write, that if there is any one of the saints who has the leisure and the money to spend in hunting over that particular field of research, he might be assisted by Bro. Brush, in his way. But that field along the Mississippi has long been known and many have entered it and much has been written in regard to the finds secured there; so we would advise that before much is expended there, a personal visit be made to the region by the intending explorer with a view of ascertaining whether there is really anything in probable prospect; that is, whether the field has not already been worked—as it is possible it may have been.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, of July 21, published a three quarter column article on the "Latter Day Saints' Reunion" which opened on that date at Ramona Park, that city. The article briefly states the faith of the church, its ministerial methods, something of its history, and closes with a brief description of the local churches and officials in and about St. Louis. The article is also adorned with a good cut of Bro. J. C. Hitchcock, president of the St. Louis branch. But not content with this good work, the Globe-Democrat repeats the effort on the 22d with a description of the camp, of the church in general, in an excellent analysis of the faith and history of the church, including a statement of the Utah apostasy, the succession in the Presidency, etc. The St. Louis saints and the church in general will be greatly benefited in the public mind by these friendly articles. The truth in relation to the church—the first organization and the Reorganization—is destined to be made clear to the nation and the world, thank God. We have but to do our part and be honorable and upright as a people to see the work made honorable and the church triumphant in her work for good.

Bro. E. A. Stedman, of the missionary force, is at his home, Lamoni, Iowa, where he is recuperating and recovering from the effects of a surgical operation performed of late, and which promises to benefit his health.

Following the articles published in the Ottumwa, Iowa, Press and Chariton, Iowa, Herald, referred to in last issue, the Ottumwa Independent, of July 21, also comes to our help. It publishes Bro. J. R. Lambert's lengthy article, the Reorganized Church, and the proprietor sends us several copies of the paper with request to exchange. The refusal of the Courier to publish opened the columns of three other papers. These are days when liberal sentiment is in the ascendency. We thank the editors of the Press, the Herald, and the Independent for their fairness and courtesy.

Presidents Joseph Smith and A. H. Smith returned from St. Joseph, Missouri, on the 24th and 25th; and Pres. A. H. Smith and Bishop Kelley left for the East on the 26th, going to the Massachusetts district, stopping at Detroit and Grand Rapids, Michigan, enroute.

Ulysses Heuraux, President of San Domingo, was assassinated at Moca, San Domingo, July 26.

The two articles published in this number of HERALD in wide measure, "Was Joseph Smith a Polygamist?" and, "Apostasy or Perpetuity, Which?" the former by Bro. Heman C. Smith, the latter by Bro. James Caffall, will be issued as tracts. They are valuable and timely contributions to our tract literature. The world is yet to know the facts concerning the origin of the church and its subsequent history. The article on polygamy was prepared to rebut certain statements going the rounds of the press which placed the origin of polygamy with Joseph Smith. The article was afterwards evolved into a tract. The evolution was by design, pure and simple, and saints and friends would do well to place it in the hands of the public that the fallacy of Brighamite statements concerning polygamy may appear. Prices next week.

Bishop Kelley wrote from Hartford, Michigan, the 28th ult., where, in company with Pres. A. H. Smith, he was attending a two-days' meeting; Brn. L. Scott, G. A. Smith, S. Stroh, Dr. Royce and others present. They were cordially received at Galien by Bro. E. A. Blakeslee and his estimable wife, who evidenced their continuing interest in college work by a donation of fifty dollars toward the proposed dormitory, which will probably be erected soon. Brn. Kelley and Smith had called on Bro. David H. Smith, at Elgin, Illinois, and found him improved in general health,

WAS JOSEPH SMITH A POLYGAMIST?

There is now going the rounds of the press an account of a celebration held at Salt Air, near Salt Lake City, Utah, June 1, 1899, in honor of the ninety-eighth birthday of Brigham Young deceased.

It is said that six of his surviving plural wives were present at the banquet. Two of these; viz., Zina D. Huntington Young, and Emily D. Partridge Young, it is asserted, were once the wives of Joseph Smith, and subsequently became the wives of Young, for time only, to be delivered to Joseph Smith in eternity. On account of this latter claim the report has been sent us by several persons with the request that we reply.

First, we will state that the question as to whether Joseph Smith taught or was in the practice of polygamy or not, is not a material one so far as our faith is concerned; for Jesus Christ, and not Joseph Smith, is the author of that faith, and the conduct of Joseph Smith cannot affect it.

Only our estimate of Joseph Smith as a man can be affected by his conduct. Believing as we do that Joseph Smith was an instrument in God's hands in restoring the ancient gospel, we prefer to believe that he remained faithful and pursued the paths of honor and virtue unto the end of his life. The representatives of the Reorganized Church have therefore and do now call upon those who affirm that he was a polygamist for the proof. The rules of evidence do not require anyone to affirm a negative, hence we do not affirm that he was not guilty, but call upon those making the charge to establish their affirmation; but we claim the right to examine the testimony offered. This we consider legitimate and fair.

Let us examine the evidence upon which the claim is based that these two women sustained that relation to Joseph Smith. Each claims to this effect, and upon their statements the case rests so far as we know.

We will take the case of Mrs. Zina D. Huntington Young, as given in their own publications. In "Representative Women of Deseret," page 12, the following statement is found:—

Sr. Zina was married in Nauvoo, and had two sons; but this not proving a happy union, she subsequently separated from her husband. Joseph Smith taught her the principle of marriage for eternity, and she accepted it as a divine revelation, and was sealed to the Prophet for time and all eternity, after the order of the new and everlasting covenant.

Neither the date of her marriage to Mr. Jacobs nor that of her sealing to Joseph Smith is given in this extract; but fortunately we have the required data at hand. In the Record of Marriages in Hancock County, Illinois, Book A, page 40, is the record of the marriage of Henry B. Jacobs and Zina D. Huntington, March 7, 1841, by John C. Bennett, Mayor of Nauvoo.

A careful search of the records discloses no divorce of these parties.

In the "Historical Record," published by Andrew Jenson, of the Utah Church, volume 6, page 233, is found the following:—

Zina D. Huntington, afterwards the wife of Pres. Brigham Young, sealed to the Prophet Oct. 27, 1841, Dimick B. Huntington officiating.

According to these statements, taken from official records, and the publications of the Utah people themselves, it was just seven months and twenty days after her marriage to Jacobs that she was sealed to Joseph Smith. During this seven months and twenty days she bore two sons to Jacobs, separated from him, obtained a divorce (of which there is no record), received instruction from Joseph Smith on the "principle of marriage for eternity," and was sealed to him. To suggest that further refutation is necessary would be an insult to the intelligence of the reader.

In the case of Emily D. Partridge Young, we need to say but little. In her testimony in the famous Temple Lot Suit she testified that she was married to Joseph Smith. At one time in her testimony she said this event transpired on March 11, 1843, and at another time gave the date May 11, 1843. (It is immaterial which date she intended to give.)

She also said:—

I was not married to Joseph Smith under the revelation on sealing, but I was married to him under the revelation on plural marriage.

Under cross-examination she was asked:—

Q.—Now, I would like for you to explain how you were married to Joseph Smith under the plural marriage revelation when the church you belong to claims that revelation was not given until July, 1843; just tell how you could be married under a revelation in March that was not given until July?

A.—Well, I do not know anything about that.—Plaintiff's Abstract, p. 364.

This certainly throws suspicion upon the testimony of this woman.

Elder Orson F. Whitney, in an article entitled, "An Ensign for the Nations," now running in the Southern Star, published at Chattanooga, Tennessee, in order to cover this point states:—

It [plural marriage] was a key to the highest heaven, where family relationships formed on earth according to divine law, were perpetuated. Hence the revelation on plural marriage, committed to writing July 12, 1843, but the principle of which was revealed and practiced before that time by the Prophet and other leaders of the Church, etc.—Southern Star, June 24, 1899.

A clever dodge is this; but unfortunately for Mr. Whitney they published this so-called revelation on plural marriage in their Doctrine and Covenants as early as 1876, under the following headlines:—

Revelation on the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant, including Plurality of Wives. Given through Joseph, the Seer, in Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, July 12th, 1843.

It will hardly do now for Mr. Whitney to assign an earlier date for the giving of this revelation. It only throws suspicion upon the whole affair, and causes thoughtful men who are judges of evidence to suspect that the so-called revelation is a trumped up affair, gotten up by men already in the practice of crime, who connected Joseph Smith's name with it to give it prestige among those who had confidence in his teachings.

In rebuttal we offer:—

First. That there can be found no word in favor of plural marriage in church publications issued before the death of Joseph Smith, June 27, 1844.

Second. That there is not nor has been any progeny of Joseph Smith except by his legal wife, Emma Hale, whom he married January 18, 1827.

Third. That after the death of Joseph Smith the existence of polygamy and plural marriage was universally denied, even by Brigham Young and his associates, until August 29, 1852.

Fourth. That on August 29, 1852, the purported revelation on plural marriage was made public, for the first time, at a special conference held in Salt Lake City, Utah; and that at that time Brigham Young declared:—

Though that doctrine has not been practiced by the Elders, this people have believed in it for years.

In support of the first statement given above we submit the following passages as being positively opposed to the plural wife system, and invite the presentation of any authorized statement supposed to favor such system:—

Wherefore, my brethren, hear me, and hearken to the word of the Lord: For there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none: For I, the Lord God, delighteth in the chastity of women.—Book of Mormon (published 1830) Jacob 2: 6.

The following was given through Joseph Smith, February, 1831:—

Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else; and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit; and if he repents not, he shall be cast out.—D. C. 42: 7.

The following was given in March, 1831:—

And again, I say unto you, that whoso for-biddeth to marry, is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made.—D. C. 49: 3.

On August 17, 1835, the Doctrine and Covenants was accepted by the church in General Assembly; first by each of the quorums separately, and then by the assembly in collective capacity. An article on marriage, was at that time by unanimous vote, ordered printed in the book, as the following will show:—

President W. W. Phelps then read an article on Marriage, which was accepted and adopted, and ordered to be printed in said book, by a unanimous vote.—Minutes of General Assembly, D. C. p. 330.

That article on marriage contained the following ceremony:—

Marriage should be celebrated with prayer and thanksgiving; and at the solemnization, the persons to be married, standing together, the man on the right, and the woman on the left, shall be addressed, by the person officiating, as he shall be directed by the Holy Spirit; and if there be no legal objections, he shall say, calling each by their names: "You both mutually agree to be each other's companion, husband and wife, observing the legal rights belonging to this condition; that is, keeping yourselves wholly for each other, and from all others, during your lives." And when they have answered "Yes," he shall pronounce them "husband and wife" in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by virtue of the laws of the country and authority vested in him: "May God add his blessings and keep you to fulfill your covenants from henceforth and forever. Amen."—D. C. 111: 2.

The Times and Seasons, published at Nauvoo, Illinois, which was at the time the official church organ, in its issue for October 1, 1842, contains the following certificates:—

We the undersigned members of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints and residents of the city of Nauvoo, persons of families do hereby certify and declare that we know of no other rule or system of marriage than the one published from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and we give this certificate to show that Dr. J. C. Bennett's "secret wife system" is a creature of his own make as we know of no such society in this place nor never did.

This agrees with the statement made by Elder P. P. Pratt, who was then one of the Twelve Apostles, and Editor of the Millennial Star, published in England. In the August, 1842, issue of the Star he states editorially:—

But, for the information of those who may be assailed by those foolish tales about the two wives, we would say that no such principle ever existed among the Latter Day Saints, and never will; this is well known to all who are acquainted with our books and actions, the Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants; and also all our periodicals are very strict and explicit on that subject, indeed far more so than the Bible.—Millennial Star, vol. 3, p. 74.

The utterances of Joseph and Hyrum Smith up to a few months before their deaths, and so far as we have authentic information of their teaching, were positively against polygamy or the plural wife system. The Times and Seasons for February 1, 1844, contains the following notice:—

NOTICE.

As we have lately been credibly informed that an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by the name of Hiram Brown, has been preaching polygamy, and other false and corrupt doctrines, in the county of Lapeer, State of Michigan:—

This is to notify him and the church in general, that he has been cut off from the church for his iniquity; and he is further notified to appear at a special conference, on the 6th of April next, to make answer to these charges.

JOSEPH SMITH,
HYRUM SMITH,

Presidents of said Church.

—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 423.

In the same publication for March 15, 1844, is found a letter from Hyrum Smith, of which the following is an extract:—

NAUVOO, March 15, 1844.

To the Brethren of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, living on China Creek, in Hancock County, Greeting:—Whereas Brother Richard Hewitt has called on me to-day, to know my views concerning some doctrines that are preached in your place, and states to me that some of your elders say, that a man having a certain priesthood, may have as many wives as he pleases, and that doctrine is taught here; I say unto you that that man teaches false doctrine, for there is no such doctrine taught here; neither is there any such thing practiced here. And any man that is found teaching privately or publicly any such doctrine, is culpable, and will stand a chance to be brought before the High Council, and lose his license and membership also: therefore he had better beware what he is about.—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 474.

The Times and Seasons, then edited by John Taylor, one of the Twelve Apostles, stated editorially in its issue for April 1, 1844:—

If any man writes to you, or preaches to you, doctrines contrary to the Bible, the Book of Mormon, or the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, set him down as an impostor. You need not write to us to know what you are to do with such men; you have the authority with you. Try them by the principles contained in the acknowledged word of God; if they preach, or teach, or practice contrary to that, disfellowship them; cut them off from among you as useless and dangerous branches, and if they are belonging to any of the quorums in the church, report them to the president of the quorum to which they belong; and if you cannot find that out, if they are members of an official standing, belonging to Nauvoo, report them to us.

Follow after purity, virtue, holiness, integrity, godliness, and everything that has a tendency to exalt and ennoble the human mind; and shun every man who teaches any other principles.—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, pp. 490, 491.

On our second proposition extended remarks are unnecessary. It is generally conceded that Joseph Smith had no issue except his children by Emma. Should there be any who dissent from this general concession, we invite them, as we have often done before, to authenticate the claim by bringing forward the heir, or by other competent evidence.

Mr. Wilford Woodruff, then President of the Utah Church, did in 1892 concede this lack of issue. On May 30, 1892, Mr. H. Neidig (not a member of any church), of Wampum, Pennsylvania, wrote Mr. Woodruff on this point, and Mr. Woodruff, through his secretary, George Reynolds, replied as follows:—

The facts that you refer to are almost as great a mystery to us as they are to you; but the reason generally assigned by the wives themselves is, that owing to the peculiar circumstances by which they were surrounded, they were so nervous and in such constant fear that they did not conceive.

Comment is unnecessary, but we are not surprised at the effect of this on Mr. Neidig. He writes, under date of June 20, 1892, as follows:—

The answer came June 7th, and amazed me. I am not yet fully recovered from my astonishment that a grave man, on a grave subject, on a question which is bound to be a hinge on which must turn an important point of Mormon history, should thus seek to account for what he concedes to be a fact.

The inquiry of Mr. George F. Edmunds, of Carthage, Illinois, when considering this theory of Mr. Woodruff's, is pertinent. He says:—

WHAT! A MATURE MARRIED WOMAN, MARRIED BY THE SANCTION OF ALMIGHTY GOD, IN FEAR? IN FEAR OF WHAT?

When we remember that this revelation was purportedly given for the purpose of raising up a righteous seed, and then consider the claim that all these women (twenty-seven or more, according to the allegations) became so frightened as to prevent the purpose of the institution being realized, we have reached the climax of absurdity.

If the reader will here pardon the digression we wish to kindly remind him that the claim that polygamy was or is essential to the raising up of a righteous seed is opposed to the revealed will of God, as the following passages will show:—

And did not he make one? Yet had he the residue of the Spirit. And wherefore one? That he might seek a godly seed. Therefore take heed to your spirit, and let none deal treacherously against the wife of his youth.—Malachi 2: 15.

The teaching of the Book of Mormon is clear:—

Behold, David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which thing was abominable before me, saith the Lord, wherefore, thus saith the Lord, I have led this people forth out of the land of Jerusalem, by the power of mine arm, that I might raise up unto me a righteous branch from the fruit of the loins of Joseph. Wherefore, I, the Lord God, will not suffer that this people shall do like unto them of old. Wherefore, my brethren, hear me, and hearken to the word of the Lord: For there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none: For I, the Lord God, delighteth in the chastity of women. And whoredoms are an abomination before me: thus saith the Lord of hosts.—Jacob 2: 6.

In January, 1831, the Lord instructed his servants to go to Ohio, and promised to reveal unto them a law there, one of the purposes of which was to gather "a righteous people, without spot and blameless." The language of the revelation is as follows:—

And that ye might escape the power of the enemy, and be gathered unto me a righteous people, without spot and blameless: wherefore, for this cause I gave unto you the commandment, that ye should go to the Ohio; and there I will give unto you my law; and there you shall be endowed with power from on high, and from thence, whomsoever I will, shall go forth among all nations, and it shall be told them what they shall do; for I have a great work laid up in store, for Israel shall be saved, and I will lead them whithersoever I will, and no power shall stay my hand.—D. C. 38: 7.

They went to Ohio, according to direction, and there the Lord fulfilled his promise, and the law was given containing the following:—

Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else; and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit: and if he repents not, he shall be cast out.—D. C. 42: 7.

This, then, was one among the many means that God ordained to gather "a righteous people, without spot and blameless;" and this is made emphatic in each of the three records. Can we then doubt what his will is concerning the union of the sexes?

Not only does the above indicate what the will of God is concerning marriage, and that the effect would be righteousness; but it indicates that by obedience to this law the church would "escape the power of the enemy." Then those who depart from this law must fall under "the power of the enemy." There is no escape from this conclusion.

In support of our third proposition we present the following:—

In Times and Seasons for November 15, 1844, appears a communication signed "An Old Man of Israel," from which we quote:—

Woe to the man or men who will thus willfully lie to injure an innocent people! The law of the land and the rules of the church do not allow one man to have more than one wife alive at once, but if any man's wife die, he has a right to marry another, and to be sealed to both for eternity; to the living and the dead! there is no law of God or man against it! This is all the spiritual wife system that ever was tolerated in the church, and they know it.—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 715.

This alone might not be considered authentic, but it received the indorsement of the Editor, Apostle John Taylor, who was afterwards President of the church in Utah. He wrote:—

For the communication of an "old man of Israel," and the letter of Elder Addison Pratt from the islands of the Pacific Ocean, we bespeak a hearty welcome. They are genuine.—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 711.

This same Apostle Taylor, in a discussion held at Boulogne-sur-Mer, France, in July, 1850, resented the charge of polygamy in the following vigorous language:—

We are accused here of polygamy, and actions the most indelicate, obscene, and disgusting, such that none but a corrupt and depraved heart could have contrived. These things are too outrageous to admit of belief; therefore leaving the sisters of the "White Veil," the "Black Veil," and all the other veils, with those gentlemen to dispose of, together with their authors, as they think best, I shall content myself by reading our views of chastity and marriage, from a work published by us, containing some of the articles of our faith.

He then read the article on marriage from Doctrine and Covenants, from which we have quoted the marriage ceremony. (See public discussion between John Taylor and C. W. Cleve, et al., p. 8.)

In 1851 Elder William Smith, the only surviving brother of Joseph Smith, was industriously promulgating his charge that Brigham Young, et al., were practicing polygamy. Col. Thomas L. Kane wrote to President Fillmore in defense of Brigham Young and the Mormons, seeking to vindicate Young and accuse William Smith of slander. He wrote:—

The remaining charge connects itself with that unmixed outrage, the spiritual wife story, which was fastened on the Mormons by a poor ribald scamp, whom, though the sole surviving brother and representative of their Jo. Smith, they were literally forced to excommunicate for his licentiousness, and who thereupon revenged himself by editing confessions and disclosures of savor to please the public that peruses works in yellow paper covers.—Millennial Star, vol. 13, p. 344.

It may be claimed that the Mormons were not responsible for what Colonel Kane wrote; but they were willing to accept the benefit of the denial, and published it, without explanation, in one of their church papers; viz., the Millennial Star, under the headlines, "Charges against the Governor of Utah [Brigham Young] Disproved and Withdrawn." This was November 15, 1851, about nine months before they publicly avowed polygamy.

In conclusion upon this point we quote the testimony of William Marks, who was President of the Nauvoo Stake at the time of Joseph Smith's death:—

A few days after this occurrence I met with Brother Joseph. He said that he wanted to converse with me on the affairs of the church, and we retired by ourselves. I will give his words verbatim, for they are indelibly stamped upon my mind. He said he had desired for a long time to have a talk with me on the subject of polygamy. He said it eventually would prove the overthrow of the church, and we should soon be obliged to leave the United States, unless it could be speedily put down. He was satisfied that it was a cursed doctrine, and that there must be every exertion made to put it down. He said that he would go before the congregation and proclaim against it, and I must go into the High Council, and he would prefer charges against those in transgression; and I must sever them from the church unless they made ample satisfaction. There was much more said, but this was the substance. The mob commenced to gather about Carthage in a few days after, therefore there was nothing done concerning it.

After the Prophet's death, I made mention of this conversation to several, hoping and believing that it would have a good effect; but to my great disappointment, it was soon rumored about that Brother Marks was about to apostatize, and that all that he said about the conversation with the Prophet was a tissue of lies. . . .—Saints' Herald, vol. 1, pp. 22, 23.

It is not difficult now to locate some of the transgressors referred to, as two at least of the men who have since been prominent in the Utah Church have confessed to having known about this system before Joseph Smith mentioned it:—

In a speech of Brigham Young, of June 21st, 1874, (See Deseret News of July 1 of that year), is found the following statement relative to the origin of the doctrine of polygamy:—

While we were in England (in 1839 and 40), I think, the Lord manifested to me by vision and his Spirit things that I did not then understand. I never opened my mouth to anyone concerning them, until I returned to Nauvoo; Joseph had never mentioned this; there had never been a thought of it in the church that I ever knew anything about at that time; but I had this for myself, and I kept it to myself.—The Messenger, vol. 1, p. 29.

Now comes Lorenzo Snow, the present President of the church in Utah, and in a sermon delivered at St. George, Utah, May 8, 1899, he says:—

There is no man that lives that had a more perfect knowledge of the principle of plural marriage, its holiness and divinity, than what I had. It was revealed to me before the Prophet Joseph Smith explained it to me. I had been on a mission to England between two and three years, and before I left England I was perfectly satisfied in regard to something connected with plural marriage.—Deseret Semi-Weekly News, June 6, 1899.

In support of our fourth proposition but little is necessary.

It has frequently been admitted, and never to our knowledge denied, that the revelation in question was not made public until August 29, 1852. Therefore to quote largely upon this point is unnecessary. However, we will give the latest statement coming under our notice. Elder O. F. Whitney, in a "Sketch of Utah and Mormonism," published in a "Souvenir of Utah," issued in 1899 from the press of George Q. Cannon and Sons Company, for E. L. and T. L. Talbot, says:—

As early as 1862 Congress had legislated upon the subject of polygamy, the plural marriage system of the Saints, practiced by Joseph Smith and other Mormon leaders at Nauvoo, but never publicly promulgated by the church until 1852.

The statement of Brigham Young made on August 29, 1852, that the doctrine had not been practiced by the elders, is found on page 31 of Supplement to volume 15 of Millennial Star. It may be that this statement of Mr. Young's is false. We would not undertake to defend it. But his friends in Utah cannot afford to impeach him, for he is the principal witness upon whom they rely to prove the genuineness of the document introduced as a revelation on August 29, 1852. They may take either horn of the dilemma they choose. If they reject him as a witness, then they should dismiss their case which rests upon his testimony in favor of the genuineness of the plural marriage revelation. If they retain him as their witness, they are logically and legally bound by his testimony, and we shall insist that they accept his statement that the elders (which would include Joseph Smith) had not practiced polygamy or plural marriage before August 29, 1852. We await their motion. Shall the testimony of Brigham Young be stricken out or not? What say you?

An exhaustive treatise upon the issues would be too voluminous, nor is it necessary. We present this as a sufficient refutation of the allegations brought by our opponents, and await with patience the verdict of the jury—the public.

APOSTASY OR PERPETUITY, WHICH?

BY ELDER JAMES CAFFALL.

Reader, will you pause amid life's commotion to think, and from a biblical standpoint decide in your mind as to the truth or falsity of an apostasy from the organic form of Christ's church, and his doctrine, as they are taught in the New Testament?

On the hypothesis that Christ did build or establish the church, revealing doctrine as a method of adoption whereby to acquire a citizenship in said church, thus forming a relationship with God, one of two things must be apparent to even the surface thinker; namely, the organic form of that church with its method of adoption has been perpetuated and preserved intact, or an apostasy or departure therefrom has occurred.

Tradition may have taught you to believe that the continuance of Christ's church, from its inception until now, is incontrovertible. If so, a little investigation will in no way disturb your religious equilibrium.

On the admission that the New Testament is a true and authoritative reflection of both the organic form of Christ's church and his doctrine, though close study may be needed it will not be a difficult task to decide as to whether an apostasy from that church has taken place, or whether both the organic form of the church and its doctrine have been perpetuated. If the former, prophecies found in the New Testament will reflect it, and the teachings and practice of religionists since the death of the apostles until the present time will confirm these prophecies in the event of an apostasy. And if the apostasy is thus confirmed, the idea of the perpetuity of Christ's church is absurd, and vice versa.

The writer therefore claims an apostasy, and in the inception of this investigation places in juxtaposition two passages of scripture:—

Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen.—Matt. 28: 20.

If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.—John 15: 6.

If, as claimed by some, that Matthew 28: 20 is proof of the perpetuity of Christ's church, then John 15: 6 is without significance, in which event the claim made in the light radiating from Matthew 28: 20 as to the perpetuity of Christ's church is fallacious; for John 15: 6 affords a basis for belief that Christ's promises, whether pertaining to this life or that to come, are but attainable upon given and written conditions. Let this be obliterated from God's divine economy,—together with the fact of man's will power or moral agency,—and the divine economy or God's saving method, is a farce—a purposeless design, therefore a reflection on the character of God.

In Christ's interview with the apostles he declared, "I will build my church" (Matt. 16: 18), which serves as proof that no other one was authorized to do that essential work; therefore, Christ is the head of the church. But Christ's church is referred to as a kingdom (Mark 15); a body (Col. 1: 18; 1 Cor. 12: 12-14; Rom. 12: 5); a building (Eph. 2: 21); signifying a system of spiritual government. Hence these designations: body, kingdom, church, building, etc., mean one and the same thing.

But the advocates of the perpetuity of Christ's church, by an unbroken succession, may use Christ's declaration; namely, "And upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," as proof therefor, claiming that the fact of an apostasy would falsify Christ's promise in Matthew 28: 20, etc. But the God-fearing biblical student will see the necessity of a proper comparison of scripture with scripture, with a view to a proper understanding and with a due appreciation of instruction contained in Mark 7: 1-13, which involves a necessity for a proper discrimination between tradition and Christ's doctrine.

The fact of a time for a righteous retribution, when all are to be rewarded according to deeds done while probating on the earth, affords a solid basis for belief that man may exercise his will power in choosing good or evil; therefore, by choosing the good which leads to abiding in or by the conditions reflected in God's revealed method, he is justified of God, and in the ultimate is saved. But if choosing evil, he is condemned according to the enormity of his crime, or to the extent that he has sinned against light and knowledge.

Christ prophetically declared against the Jews in reflecting the calamities that should come upon them, saying:—

How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not.—Matt. 23: 37.

Hence we learn they refused the overtures of God's mercies, and were condemned.

For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.—John 3: 20, 21.

The conception of language to convey a more vivid contrast between the obedient and disobedient, and at the same time give greater evidence as to the reception and retention of God's favor, on conditions, would be difficult indeed.

EVIDENCES OF APOSTASY.

The reader is now invited to perambulate in thought in a field of prophecy which reflects a departure or an apostasy by the people subsequent to the death of the apostles:—

For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them.—Acts 20: 29, 30.

Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity [the Jews]; but toward thee [the Gentiles], goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off.—Rom. 11: 22.

In treating on Christ's second coming, Paul inspirationally declared:—

That day shall not come, except there come a falling away first.—2 Thess. 2: 3.

And he further declares:—

In the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away.—2 Tim. 3: 1-5.

Let the reader pause and consider the characters and proclivities made conspicuous in the above, and ask himself if the effects of covetousness, blasphemy, boasting, pride, disobedience to parents, unthankfulness, a lack of natural affection, trucebreakers (one who violates a truce, covenant, or agreement), false accusations, incontinency, etc., were ever more visible than in the present age?

You may be young, old, or middle-aged; historians or nonhistorians; observant or nonobservant; studious or nonstudious; but you certainly cannot fail, though you never read a column in a newspaper, to hear comments by a frequent reference to passing events, and thus be impressed with the thought that we are living in perilous times, and that men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming upon the earth. (Luke 21: 26.)

Nor can you close your eyes to the fact of distress of nations. And if you have never before thought of the fact of the declaration—that when these perilous times are upon us, so graphically described by Paul, the people were to have a form of godliness but to deny the power thereof, you may now consider, and be convinced, and therein discover the verity of these predictions relative to the apostasy. Further:—

I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; preach the word: be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables.—2 Tim. 4: 1-4.

SOUND AND UNSOUND DOCTRINE.

One of the most conspicuous features in the above is the fact of the time coming at some period subsequent to the time when Paul spoke, when they (the people) would not endure, believe, defend, and obey sound doctrine. By informing ourselves as to what is sound doctrine, we may determine the truth or falsity of Paul's prediction.

For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine.—2 Tim. 4: 3.

Jesus answered them (the Jews) and said:—

My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself.—John 7: 16, 17.

It must follow that the doctrine Christ taught was sound, true, and the only doctrine God did or will recognize.

From Mark 16: 15-18, we learn: (1) that Christ commanded his disciples to go and preach the gospel in all the world; (2) "he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved;" (3) "he that believeth not shall be damned;" (4) these signs enumerated were to follow them that believe.

Matthew's testimony runneth thus:—

And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world.—Matt. 28: 18-20.

BAPTISM IS IMMERSION.

We may, with injury to none, examine that which has obtained publicity, for the sake of comparison. The quotations from Matthew and Mark warrant the claim that teaching is to precede baptism; it must, therefore, follow that that which is styled baptism, more commonly known as sprinkling, is not sound doctrine. For it is made to appear that faith and repentance were prerequisites to baptism; and as infants are not capacitated to exercise faith, or to know as to the purpose of repentance, they, therefore, are not the proper subjects for baptism. Hence in the establishment of aspersion, or infant sprinkling, we have evidence of a failure to endure, preach, defend, and practice sound doctrine; for the baptism of the New Testament is immersion, its purpose being for the remission of sins.

Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins.—Matt. 3: 5, 6.

And John also was baptizing in Eon near to Salim, because there was much water there: and they came, and were baptized.—John 3: 23.

And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he [Philip] baptized him.—Acts 8: 38.

Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.—Rom. 6: 3, 4.

Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead.—Col. 2: 12.

Peter declares, referring to the flood:—

The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us, (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ.—1 Peter 3: 21.

Kind reader, whatever may be your proclivities, you would hardly insist that sprinkling or pouring would be a like figure to the flood, which covered or buried the earth and all things therein or thereon.

OBJECT OF BAPTISM.

Your attention is now solicited while going in quest of instruction to learn as to the purpose of baptism. Listen:—

And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways; to give knowledge of salvation unto his people by the remission of their sins.—Luke 1: 76, 77.

And he [John] came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins.—Luke 3: 3.

John did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins.—Mark 1: 4.

And all the people that heard him [John], and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John. But the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves, being not baptized of him.—Luke 7: 29, 30.

Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation.—Acts 2: 37-40.

To the keeper of the prison, who tremblingly appeared in the presence of Paul and Silas, the response came in answer to his interrogation:—

Sirs, what must I do to be saved? And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house.—Acts 16: 30, 31.

For no guaranty of salvation is given without a belief in Christ, and a belief in Christ is only evinced by obedience to his mandates; the conclusion, therefore, that the jailer was saved by a mere assent of the mind, or tacit belief in Christ, is premature; for we read:—

And they [the apostles] spoke unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in the house. And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway.—Acts 16: 32, 33.

The claims that the jailer was saved by belief without baptism, or that the form of baptism was sprinkling or pouring, because himself and his house (household, therefore children made up that household) were baptized straightway, are farfetched and unwarranted. The above quotations prove that the mode of baptism was immersion, or a burial, to resemble Christ's death and burial; and as Christ was raised from his actual death by the glory of the Father, so those thus baptized, buried in water, rose to a spiritual life, divinely new, by the glory of the Father, which is compatible with Paul's testimony.

For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.—Romans 8: 2.

Compare this with Romans 6: 4, and divine proof is given that baptism was that law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus, preceded by faith in God and Christ, with a godly repentance; and that baptism is for the remission of sins.

LAYING ON OF HANDS.

Next in order is the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. (Acts 8: 17-19; Heb. 6: 2.) Further:—

In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.—Eph. 1: 13, 14.

Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.—2 Cor. 1: 22.

Now he that hath wrought us for the selfsame thing is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit.—2 Cor. 5: 5.

Now who were these that were thus sealed, receiving the earnest (assurance) of the Holy Spirit? Let Paul answer:—

For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ.—Gal. 3: 27.

Would you, respected reader, claim that those received the sealing, the earnest of the Spirit, that had not put on Christ, or that those had put on Christ that were not baptized into Christ? Think soberly and decide wisely.

The response of Peter, on the day of Pentecost, to the interrogation: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" runs thus: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost;" and it is compatible with the above quotations setting forth the order of God's saving method; and it teaches the God-fearing biblical student that faith, repentance, and baptism in water for the remission of sins, are the prerequisites for the gift of the Holy Ghost, the sealing process, by the laying on of hands. And, therefore, without a compliance with or honoring of these prerequisites there is no guaranty of the precious gift of the Holy Ghost, or being sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise as an earnest of the inheritance.

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.—Romans 8: 14, 15.

In the light radiating from the above, the reader will hardly object to the following conclusions: 1. If those led by the Spirit of God are the sons of God, those that are not led by the Spirit of God cannot be the sons of God; hence the distinction between those adopted into Christ and those not adopted. 2. Those repudiating the method of adoption cannot be adopted. The climax of evidence as to the essentiality of water and Spirit baptism is found in John 3: 5:—

Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

And upon the same authority evidence is given against the decision reached by many learned theologians of the day; namely, John's baptism was not a Christian baptism. For Christ in response to the demurrer John made to baptizing him, said, "Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness" (Matthew 3: 15); which is further attested, if that is necessary, by the manifestation of the Spirit and the Father's recognition of his beloved Son. Can you, kind reader, furnish evidence of the Father's recognition of his Son in this public manner before his baptism by John? If not, what evidence have you that God will recognize you, if failing to accept or obey the ordinance of baptism which Christ declares to be a part of righteousness?

DOCTRINE OF CHRIST.

The reader's attention now is called to a recapitulation of Christ's doctrine given by Paul in Hebrews 6, which we find to be faith, repentance, baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. Thus we have six fundamental rules or doctrines underlying the great and God-revealed science of life—eternal life; and no one of these fundamental doctrines can be repudiated and we be the recipients of blessings guaranteed by our acceptance of this system as a whole, than we could become the recipients of the benefits of mathematics by repudiating one of its fundamental rules. For James declares those are blessed who look "into the perfect law of liberty"—hence those who fail to look, learn, and to do, must suffer deprivation. (James 1: 23-26.) John plainly declares that those abiding in the doctrine of Christ have "both the Father and the Son," while those failing to abide therein have neither the Father nor the Son. (2 John 9: 10.) And Paul unhesitatingly says, whether man or angel "preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed." (Gal. 1: 9.)

Hence, as we search for proof in God's word, touching the organic form of Christ's church, and pause to contrast the systems of men, evidence of an apostasy is made so visible that persistent efforts to make valid the claim to the perpetuity of Christ's church as builded and left by him, or an unbroken succession, would be a betrayal of ignorance as to the force and significance of God's word, or willfulness evincive of policy rather than a love for principle.

The New Testament teaches that the above doctrines were taught under the auspices of one general government. Hence Paul taught:—

For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body [church, kingdom, or government], whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.—1 Cor. 12: 13.

The claim as to the impracticability to see eye to eye, upon a given topic, found no favor under Paul's spiritual jurisdiction. Hence he reproved the saints for contentions, advising that they be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment. (1 Cor. 1: 10.)

BODY OF CHRIST.

The careful reader, by a due study of the twelfth chapter of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, will see that Christ's mystical body (church) is compared to man's physical organism, which exists as a whole by integral parts; the integral parts of the former being apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, bishops, deacons, etc. (1 Tim. 1: 1, 2, 12; 1 Cor. 12: 28, 29; Eph. 4: 8-14.) And through the instrumentality of these officials the work of the ministry was to be performed, the body of Christ edified, the unity of faith enjoyed, the knowledge of Christ acquired, the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ reached, and the saints prevented from being tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men and cunning craftiness whereby they lie in wait to deceive, Christ being the head. 'Tis true that Paul adds (after declaring that God had set some in the church, first apostles, etc.) helps and governments; yet this cannot be construed to mean diverse and conflicting governments, but rather that such helps and government should be added as necessity should require under the auspices and direction of the one government. Hence we read:—

For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office: so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another.—Romans 12: 4, 5.

Further, we find that when in about the year 53 A. D. dissension began of a threatening aspect (Acts 15), the elders and apostles came together to consider the matter, and after due deliberation it pleased the apostles and elders with the whole church to send chosen men to give publicity to the decrees or decision reached. Read the chapter entire, and no evidence will be seen of a recognition of diverse governments; but rather that all must recognize, live, move, and work under the one general government; for Christ is not divided. And as he gave no command for diverse or conflicting governments, he will not recognize them; for he is not the author of confusion. (1 Cor. 14: 33.)

APOSTASY—CHURCH AND STATE.

About the year 96, John, who was banished to Patmos, severely denounced the seven churches of Asia Minor for a divergence from Christ's teachings, and for essaying to establish practices of a demoralizing character in lieu thereof, which were far from legitimate efforts to endure, preach, defend, and practice sound doctrine, rather evincive of a retrogression. And about the year 312 A. D. Constantine the Great, as is claimed, took the religion of Christ to his "unhallowed embraces of the state, assumed to unite in his own person the civil and ecclesiastical dominion, and claimed the power of convening councils and presiding in them, and of regulating the external affairs of the church." (History of Romanism by John Dowling, D. D., page 30; also Eusebius in his life of the Emperor.)

This would appear as an unwarrantable interference with and a repudiation of the order Christ established in setting in the church first apostles, and a preparatory step towards a consolidation of church and state, which, as history teaches, culminated in about the year 538; but certain it is that the eighteenth verse of the seventeenth chapter of Revelation reads thus: "And the woman which thou sawest is that great city, which reigneth over the kings of the earth." And this woman is presented as being degraded, having committed fornication with the kings of the earth, arrayed in scarlet color, decked with gold and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand, full of abomination and filthiness of her fornication. The close affinity of this lewd woman with the scarlet colored beast is doubtless a figurative representation of the consolidation of church and state, which accelerated her progress in the presentation of the golden cup to the nations, from which they drank and became spiritually intoxicated. No risk is made in the claim that Rome is the only city known which has reigned over kings since the coming of Christ; and she is mystery, Babylon, etc., which is to fall. (Rev. 14: 7, 8.)

Few if any biblical students will question the claim that the seventeenth chapter of Revelation, under the figure of a fallen woman with the beast, is reflective of and warrants the belief of an apostasy, or the establishment of an apostate church; which is compatible with apostolic prediction as noticed above, and that known in history as the Reformation being supportive of this thought.

THE REFORMERS.

The writer would detract nothing from the many Reformers of which history speaks; but would respectfully suggest to the reader to test the validity of all purporting to be religion, in the light radiating from the teaching of Christ and his apostles, ever bearing in mind the truth that the most potent and convincing fact as to the verity of an unbroken succession, would be the fact of those claiming to be successors of the predecessors, the apostles, treading in the footsteps by teaching the identical doctrine under the auspices of an organic form identical with the form of government Christ established; and anything short of the above fails to be a reflection of God's given pattern, therefore is an imposition, however good the intentions of those advocating the same.

HISTORICAL EVIDENCES.

Cyprian, in A. D. 250, in referring to the fact of the apostles going to Samaria to confirm those that Philip had baptized, says:—

Which custom is also descended to us, that they who are baptized might be brought by the rules of the church, and by prayer of imposition of hands to obtain the Holy Ghost.

Again, in Epistle 72:—

It is of no purpose to lay hands on them to receive the Holy Spirit unless they receive the baptism of the church.

Augustine, of the fourth century, writes:—

Still we do what the apostles did when they laid their hands on the Samaritans and called down the Holy Ghost upon them.

Mosheim, in his history:—

After baptism they, by prayer and the laying on of hands, were solemnly recommended to the mercy of God, and dedicated to his service.—First Century, part II., chapter IV.

The attempt to establish aspersion, or sprinkling, was a retrogressive step from the scriptural mode of baptism, tending towards an apostasy. Eusebius (who is called the Father of Church History) says aspersion, or sprinkling, was applied to Novatus about A. D. 263, on this wise:—

Who, aided by the exorcists, when attacked by an obstinate disease, and being supposed at the point of death, was baptized by aspersion, in the bed on which he lay; if, indeed, it be proper to say that one like him did receive baptism. But neither, when he recovered from disease, did he partake of other things, which the rules of the church prescribed as duty, nor was he sealed [in confirmation] by the bishop. But as he did not obtain this, how could he obtain the Holy Spirit?—Eccles. Hist., b. 6, c. 43.

The Monks of Cressy, A. D. 754, inquired:—

Is it lawful, in case of necessity occasioned by sickness, to baptize an infant by pouring water on its head, from a cup, or the hands?

To which Pope Stephen III. replied:—

Such a baptism, performed in such a case of necessity, shall be accounted valid.

In speaking of the foregoing, Basnage says:—

This is accounted the first law against immersion. The Pontiff, however, did not dispense with immersion, except in case of extreme necessity. This law, therefore, did not change the mode of dipping, in public baptisms; and it was not until the legislature in a council of Ravenna, in the year 1311, declared immersion and pouring indifferent.

The above historical items are extracts from the tract on "Baptism," published by the church, pages 8, 9.

THE EVERLASTING COVENANT.

The reader will find the twenty-fourth chapter of Isaiah a chapter of prophecy. The fifth verse contains the following:—

The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant.

And it is a significant fact that no other gospel ordinance has been changed but baptism, for touching the laying on of hands, apostles, prophets, the gifts of the Holy Spirit, etc., it is said they are done away, being no longer needed. Nor is it any more strange that the prophet should look through the vista of time, and by inspiration see the acts of men, in changing the ordinance of baptism, than it was for him to note the event as described by John in Revelation 18: 3, which he so vividly describes in his twenty-ninth chapter, saying:—

They are drunken, but not with wine; they stagger, but not with strong drink.—V. 9.

Or that he should foretell Christ's birth hundreds of years before it came to pass, his death, etc. (See ninth and fifty-third chapters.)

The declaration of the prophet; namely, the breaking of the everlasting covenant, may possibly excite surprise, leaving the reader in a quandary as to how man could break that which is everlasting.

Let us see: Christ called and ordained his apostles, saying, "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you." (John 15: 16.) The acceptance of this ordination by the apostles was, as the writer believes, tantamount to entering into a covenant with God to acquit themselves of duties attaching to the accepted positions; thus the two parties unto a covenant, which on God's part was everlasting, to culminate in eternal life if they, the second party, should keep this covenant inviolate; but the prophet saw the time when this everlasting covenant was broken by man through transgressing the law, etc. To be understood on this wise: Baptism by immersion, as we have seen, was a part of the gospel, hence by virtue of the covenant, man by the acceptance of God's proffered ordination covenanted to preach, defend, and practice that kind of a baptism; therefore, a change or a failure to practice that baptism, and corresponding efforts to establish another form in lieu of the one God gave, was, so far as man is concerned, a violation of the everlasting covenant to that extent that man was deprived of blessings guaranteed when keeping the covenant inviolate; but with God the covenant is still unchanged, therefore everlasting in that sense. For if God shall see fit to renew that covenant with man, his promises will be identical with promises made with the apostles as above. But in the absence of evidence of a renewal, no evidence of the existence of Christ's church among men is known in view of the fact of an apostasy, which is claimed because of a failure to abide in or by God's revealed conditions, which in no way invalidate God's promises, all of which are accessible now as ever, if abiding in the doctrine of Christ.

A CORRECTION.

My attention has been called to a quotation in my article, "Roman Catholic Denunciations," from Judge Taney, which is just deficient enough to make him responsible for the very opposite to what he intended to say and did say. It reads as follows:—

Negroes have no rights which the white man is bound to respect.

To do him justice it should read:—

They [negroes] had for more than a century before been regarded as beings of an inferior order; and altogether unfit to associate with the white race, either in social or political relations; and so far inferior, that they had no rights which the white man was bound to respect; and that the negro might justly and lawfully be reduced to slavery for his benefit.—Dred Scott vs. Sanford. (19 Howard 395) 58 U. S. Supreme Court, to page 701-61 Book 15.

This was an unintentional blunder of mine, and I most gratefully acknowledge the brother's criticism.

Editors Herald:—I stopped here over Sunday on my way east. I found Bro. J. S. Roth at home, but not idle. I opened meeting twice for him. He preached two good sermons and those that heard them said they were powerful sermons. One was on apostasy, the other was, "What is true religion and how to get it."

There was a fair audience present and the best of attention to the word. Several are interested and I think will obey soon.

Brother Roth is well thought of by the saints and outsiders. I think him an able man, and he has great influence over his congregation, and has a goodly portion of the Spirit of God, and speaks with power. Our gospel came not in word only, but in power and the giving of the Holy Ghost.

Brother Roth will leave home again for his field in a day or two. May the good Lord bless him in his work wherever he goes.

I am not able to do much in this great work on account of my deafness, but I love to see it rolled on by others; for there is no time to waste for anyone. I hope the time is not far off that I shall receive the blessing of my hearing. This may seem strange to some, but there is nothing too hard for the Lord; hence I shall stick to my last.

DALBY SPRINGS, Texas, July 18.

Editors Herald:—On the 8th of this month district conference convened on Shawnee Prairie, and indeed we did have a joyful conference and a spiritual feast. We had Brn. Ellis Short and Hilliard from Independence, Missouri, who did us some fine preaching.

It makes my soul rejoice to meet with such noble men that God has called in this latter-day work.

Bro. Hilliard preached us a sermon on tithing and one on purifying our lives, and O! what a telling effect they had. Many of the saints laid down their tobacco and snuff and said by the help of God they were going to quit the habit, and many of the saints said they were going to pay their tithing.

Bro. Hilliard has done lasting good by coming into this country. May God bless him in his work and send him among us again, sometime in the future.

We are thankful to Bro. Short and Bro. Hilliard for their visit, and give the praise to God.

President Earl D. Bailey and J. D. Erwin and I. P. Baggerly, John W. Kent and H. L. Dalby, were with us.

Since conference Brother J. D. Erwin and myself came to this town, which is a great watering place. We have been preaching here since the 14th to a fair audience and quite an interest, and one of the best opportunities to scatter the work I ever saw. There are people here from many places in Texas and Arkansas and some from Mexico; so we feel that much good will be accomplished.

Bro. J. D. Erwin will start from here the 20th to Little, Arkansas, to hold a debate. I will continue in Northeastern Texas. Outlook good.

LAKE CITY, Iowa, July 24.

Editors Herald:—The grove meeting held at Benan, Carroll County, Iowa, closed last night with an excellent feeling existing. Meetings were held at this place over three Sundays in succession, and services were held nine week-day evenings during that time. Benan Salisbury's grove is a great place to secure a large audience on Sunday, many people coming from seven to fifteen miles to enjoy the beautiful shade of the grove and attend services. Elder Charles Derry and the writer did the preaching, being ably assisted by branch officers and singers. One was baptized this morning and we hope the good seed sown may bring forth more fruit in the near future.

Yesterday the local Sunday school at Benan under the care of their superintendent, Ormon Salisbury, gave a Sunday school entertainment in the grove, which was quite good, and largely attended. The children and young people taking part in the exercises all did very nicely. Let them take courage and try again at a favorable opportunity and the Lord will assist and bless.

Elder C. J. Hunt baptized four promising young people on the 16th inst., whose conversion was largely the result of recent tent work at Mallard, Iowa, conducted by Elders C. J. Hunt, W. W. Whiting, C. Derry, and R. Wight. I think you have been informed that the Union branch have decided to erect a saints' chapel at Mallard this fall. We hope and pray that they may succeed not only in building a church, but in assisting many of their neighbors and friends to accept and obey the gospel of Christ. May the light of Christ long shine forth through their godliness and Christian sacrifices and labor.

I arrived at this place to-day and found the tabernacle nicely located, neatly and comfortably seated and Elder C. J. Hunt and wife and the few saints located here doing all they can to make meetings a success, and trying hard to show the people of this city the light, glory, and power of the gospel of Christ as restored by divine command and the ministration of angelic messenger sent down from heaven. What the results may be remain yet to be seen. Elder R. Wight has returned home to take care of his harvest and the writer will assist in tabernacle services for a time at least.

It seems strange that so few obey the gospel when its truths are so beautiful and easy to be understood. There is so much joy and satisfaction coming to the souls of those who believe and obey the truth that it makes the disciple of Christ to know not only that the present life is worth living, but that there is a never-ending life of joy and peace prepared of God for all who endure in faith unto the end. Every saint should be energetic and alive to the interests of the work. They should be true teachers by example as well as by precept, that they may lead a dying world to rejoice in the goodness of Christ and the glory of Christ. When every member of the church shall have so far advanced in the divine life as to be able to discharge their every duty, the ministry will be much encouraged and their work of warning the world will be comparatively easy and a pleasant work. May God help us each and all until our work is accomplished, that we may be glorified in him.

RIVER PHILIP CENRE, July 20.

Editors Herald:—In a few hours I board the "chariot" (Is it Nahum's?) for St. John, New Brunswick, and on to Jonesport, Maine, where I expect to labor a week or more, then on to the Massachusetts reunion—Dennisport. Yes, I am positively in favor of "reunions." I think Maine made a mistake when she weakened upon them.

The conference at Williamsdale was a good one in many ways. The saints are getting better acquainted with one another and with the work, and I feel, to thank those who made a sacrifice and an effort to be present, although they spoke of being well paid, and still the reward is ahead. Thank the Lord for good, faithful saints who love the cause and are determined to do their part. Others would have attended were it possible.

Our hearts were made glad by the presence of Elders Luff, Bullard, and Foss from a "foreign shore." Their prayers, preaching, and counsel were of the highest type. And may the saints not forget the voice of the Spirit: "Separate yourselves from that which savors of this world."

Three have been baptized of late by Elder S. O. Foss and so the work moves along.

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, July 24.

Editors Herald:—I returned here last Friday. Had quite a preaching tour since leaving this place the 1st of May; visited quite a number of places in the Pottawattamie district and in this the Fremont district, and am pleased to be able to state that we find the most of the saints in all these places trying to let their light shine. We think we are safe in stating they are "increasing in wisdom and the knowledge of God."

My colaborers, I. M. Smith and D. R. Chambers, are doing the best they can, and our brethren who labor locally are doing remarkably well, both presidents of branches and officers, with those who branch out on the Sabbath to preach the word of life to the people. They tell me they feel blessed of God. His Holy Spirit is with them, giving them the assurance that their work is acceptable. The people turn out to hear; thus they feel satisfied they are in the line of duty, which brings peace to their souls.

We hope all the dear saints who possibly can will make it a point to attend our reunion. Come, and rest your weary bodies, and feast your souls in the goodness of God for a week or ten days, and be the better prepared to endure the toils and hardships of life.

The brethren of the Farm Creek branch are doing their very best to make this meeting a success. Do your best, dear saints, to attend, and let us show a willingness to receive the rich blessing God shall see fit to bestow.

Your brother in bonds,

HENRY KEMP.

MANEBACH, Germany, July 12.

Editors Herald:—On the 14th day of June, Bro. F. Steffe and I started from Boston on S. S. Canada and reached Liverpool, England, the 23d a. m. Went by rail to Grimsby dock on the east of England and left the same night for Hamburg, Germany, and arrived Sunday, four a. m., the 25th day of June. We took train together for Bebra and in the afternoon we parted, Bro. Steffe for Märzhausen, in Baden, and I for Ilmenau in Thüringen, and arrived there at eleven p. m. Next day I walked to Manebach, my birthplace. I was received by all in a manner words fail me to describe. A king could not have had a better reception.

This country is very beautiful, though very mountainous, and the bluffs are covered with pine trees. Many strangers are here for their health, from all parts. I have found three gentlemen from America.

I have written the American Minister at Berlin to see to it that Bro. Steffe and I receive permission to preach in all Germany and also send letters to him from the Presidency to himself and the Emperor William, but have no answer as yet.

I had my name put in register at the office of the Bürgermeister, who is also a friend of old, and when I asked him if he had any objection if I should preach in Manebach, he said, no, not at all, but that I might ask the preacher. This of course was more than Robert Oehring could do. I have preached three times in a dancing hall. The first time to about five hundred and the other times to about four hundred. Some are very much astonished of the doctrine, while others say, "He need not think that we are heathen; he can go back to America. We think as a man he is all right, but such doctrine we will not believe. We are taught that little children must be baptized, and so will we do." Others say: "If you preach that we must not drink beer, you can make up your mind, that you will not accomplish anything here."

I do not open my meeting with prayer for fear of trouble. One thing, it is in a dancing hall, and I fear I shall lose the hall if I say one word about their peculiar way; and on the other hand is the State religion, and as yet I have no permit, and it is just possible that I be fined or imprisoned if I pray as a preacher. I am well, and God's Spirit is with me.

Bro. Steffe wrote that his sisters greeted him with: "If you come to preach, you cannot come into our house." Also the people say if he preaches they will drive him out of town or imprison him.

Anyone having friends and desire that we shall see them may send us the address and if we have the means to reach them we will do so. Address as follows: Manebach, in Thüringen, Germany, Europe.

In bonds, yours,

ROBT. OEHRING.

P. S.—I have received the two Heralds all right and see that one is imprisoned for prayer.

This is not America. I knew this before I came here, and am prepared. One of the five school-teachers in Manebach took notes of my sermon and had me to say that Jesus was born near the Salt Lake in America. Not one word of the kind had I said. He told me before many that there was no heaven nor hell and Jesus never had a mother and never ascended to heaven, all things had to be understood spiritually. Excuse me for writing on both sides. I intended to write more and this is all that I can send for twenty pfenige; more would cost double.

R. OEHRING.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 21.

Editors Herald:—During the two-days' meeting held at Garden Grove, I ordained Bro. Albert Carmichael a high priest, as ordered by the General Conference of '98. Bro. C. has given ample proof of his eligibility to the office. He has the confidence of the saints. The Holy Spirit was present in great power at the ordination, attesting the call of the brother.

I spent a few days at San Bernardino, where I held several meetings which were well attended by saints and friends. Bro. Jones, the president of the branch, is a faithful shepherd. His coöfficers are supplementing his efforts. A goodly number have been added to the church there by baptism within the last few months. The prospects for good work there are encouraging.

On my way north I stopped a few days at Tulare, where I preached a few sermons. I felt blessed in my labors and trust that some good was accomplished. Bro. Flory, president of the branch, Brn. Deuel (son of Gordon E. Deuel) and Clark, his associates, are alive to the good of the cause. The saints here are scattered over a considerable territory. Notwithstanding they are miles apart they get together often to serve the Lord. By the way, I must not forget to mention our worthy Sr. Twaddle, and her faithful horse "Rattler" whose name is familiar to all the ministry who have traveled in that locality. May the old nag live to carry many more of the missionaries to fill their appointments.

I arrived here on the 27th ult., just in time to give Bro. Sheehy the parting hand as he left that evening for Boston. Have been busy since my arrival, operating in Oakland and this city. We have had some excellent meetings in both places. The San Francisco branch is now the best equipped, in point of officers, of any branch on the Pacific slope, three having been added to the official list by ordination of late—two teachers and a deacon. Bro. Parkin, the president, is one of our good and faithful workers, and displays a willingness at all times to render assistance in the work. The Oakland branch is improving finely. Bro. Ferris is at the head of this organization, and is one known for his zeal and push. A teacher and deacon have been ordained there lately, which will be a great help to the branch. Bro. Blair has been requested by me to do pastoral work in the Oakland and Santa Rosa branches for a few months: hence we will look for a revival of the work in these places.

We set up a new tent in East Berkeley last week, which is being operated by Brn. Bar-more and D. A. Anderson, Bro. Blair preaching some for them during the week. Quite an interest is being manifested by the people, the tent being full every night thus far.

Bro. T. W. Chatburn wended his way to the Southern California district on the 3d inst., where he will labor the remainder of the conference year. We have received good reports from his work there already.

Notice is hereby given to all the saints of the Southern district that Bro. T. W. Williams has been placed as missionary in charge of said district; therefore all matters requiring the attention of the missionary in charge should be directed to him.

Shall leave the latter part of next week for Oregon and Washington, and may accidentally cross over into British Columbia. Just please state that if Bro. R. C. Evans wishes to retaliate he is at liberty to do so. Health good. Climate cool here in Frisco. Feel happy in the work.

Yours in haste,
GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

City of the Saints,
Ramona Park, Mo., July 25.

Editors Herald:—Our reunion opened last Friday under very favorable circumstances; in fact, much better than the committee had anticipated. A general good feeling existed and the saints all seemed happy they were living and able to attend the reunion. Organization was effected, Bro. I. N. White elected president, Sr. J. C. Hitchcock secretary, and the reunion commenced in earnest. A number of newspaper reporters from the city were on the ground the first day.

Owing to the exceptionally favorable "writeups" given us in the leading city papers, many visitors were out from the city on Sunday, some for sightseeing, some to hear the gospel. Many expressed themselves as surprised and pleased. Our large tent is all the heart could desire in that line, and the camp is favorably situated.

At the prayer meeting Sunday morning it was clearly demonstrated that God had a hand in the reunion and was pleased with the effort. It is admitted by even the conservative that our reunion, for the good it has done the saints and the good accomplished by the very favorable press comments and extensive articles, has done us as a people more general good than hundreds and hundreds of sermons would have done.

Next Saturday is Sunday school and Religio day. Many are becoming seriously interested in our work here already and we hope more good results.

Yours hastily,
MRS. J. C. HITCHCOCK, Secretary.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

MY SPIRITUAL DWELLING.

If my soul stood on the brink of eternity, and all earthly things that warp the mind and cloud the vision were swept away, and the unprejudiced light of the "brighter day" were dawning, I would see myself and my life just as it stands; and would I then deem myself worthy of the rest given the faithful, or would panic seize my soul at that futile moment, and would I cry to the God I had not trusted in life for the mercy I had never bestowed on my erring brother or sister on the journey of life?

In frenzy the soul would cry out, "O God, save me! I am vile, Lord; but thy grace is all sufficient. I have trusted in the arm of flesh, all my life, but it can no longer aid me. The money I have worked so hard to gain will avail me nothing. I am helpless, Lord; so helpless. Wilt thou forgive me, and take me into thy rest?"

What will he answer that soul?

God is a merciful father, but can he lay aside his own law to listen to a soul's piteous pleadings? If he does so with one, he must do the same with all, and thus invalidate his own decree. He tells us that mercy is meted out to us according to our own measurement, and we will be judged by the same rule we have used in judging our fellowman. Will he lay aside this law for my soul? No, my soul, if thou would save thyself this agony, prepare thy future dwelling before death drives thee from this temple of clay, for the day will surely come when thou must return to God with an account of thyself, and woe is thy lot if thou shalt hear, "Depart; ye are none of mine."

This must not be. Now is the time for us to build for eternity,—not to-morrow, but to-day,—this very moment; for we do not know how many moments time may add to our lives before they are required, and "the Spirit of God will not always strive." So do not delay a duty, lest conscience ceases its importunities; but act now, while the day lasts.

There comes before the writer's mind a duty that has been neglected long years. During the years of a faithful mother's training, that duty was often brought before the mind, but was always put off till to-morrow. Her counsel is now stilled; many years have passed since her counsel was given, and the duty is still undone. This is not right, and should not be allowed.

In our character building, one of the first stones should be activity—an activity that will never allow us to close our eyes on a duty undone. Then with integrity and bravery, firmly cemented with an abiding trust in God's promises and mercy, we will have a fair foundation upon which to rear our spiritual structure. We are each the architect of our future home, and we must dwell in just what we build—there is no escape. Then let us arouse ourselves and see to it that we build well, for the years of eternity will try that building and prove its workmanship.

Around us lie the most unlimited possibilities for our work. All the beauty of nature is a tour finger's end; all the precious materials of God's creation can be had for the effort in attaining, and our building may be resplendent with beauty and glory, or it may be a blot upon God's fair footstool. Which shall it be? We are building—every moment adding something. Is it precious stones, or is it miry clay?

June 15.

Dear Sisters:—I have been impressed time and again to write to the Herald, but thinking others were better able than I to write, I would defer it. But to-day I must write to inform you how glad I am that I am a Latter Day Saint. I feel to thank my heavenly Father for his great mercy, and that he saw fit to bestow his blessings upon me. I was baptized when I was about twelve years old, and I am now thirty-one years old; and O, how the Lord has protected me since then, tongue cannot tell! I have been healed when very sick, by the administration of the elders, and I have been promised through one of the Lord's servants that there were heavenly times coming to me. About six weeks before my babe was born, the Lord spoke to me through the president of our branch, and said that the child that was unseen to me was to be a servant for him, and he was to do a great work for him, and that I had one in my care that was dear to him, and that was going to be an instrument in the Lord's hands to do a great work for his name, and that my time was near at hand that I should be set free from the bondage that was around me.

O, dear sisters, I am so pleased to inform you that I have been loosed, and have been brought from the old country (South Wales) and am now living on Joseph's land, and I wish I could tell you how we were brought here; but it would take too much space in the Herald. I will write again.

I had a dream about a week ago, and I would like if some one could say who was the man I saw. I was in some house, and I could see three persons in the house. I looked out and saw a buggy coming towards the house, and it was full of little girls, and they were dressed in light clothes, but not white, and my oldest little girl Catherine Ann was driving it, and I was so glad to see them, for I thought they were little sisters. I ran into the room to tell the folks to come and see the little sisters, but they didn't care at all; they didn't move. So I went to the other bedroom and there was a man sitting on the side of the bed, and O what a beautiful man he was! He was dressed in fine black clothes. He was dark complexioned, had long dark whiskers and dark hair. He had no hair on the top of his head. His face was beautiful; and he looked so meek and pleasant. There was a big lamp at his side, which was dark blue in color, and a beautiful light in it. There was no glass over it, only the bare light. I felt as if I knew him well, and was so glad he had come. I did not see him coming in or going out, and I asked him his name. He told me his name, but I could not say it after him. I wanted to introduce him to the other folks, so I asked him to spell his name, and then I could say it; but he only smiled at me and gave me a little note with the number 101 on it. I took it with joy and went out from him to ask a certain brother and sister to come and see him, and the sister asked me what sort of a man was he? I told her all about him, and she looked at me and clapped her hands together, and said, "Oh dear, how can I stand the great day!" I said to her, Don't be afraid of that beautiful man, he is our brother. Then I awoke.

I would like some one to tell the meaning of that dream.

I have six children, and I do my best to teach them the beautiful law of God, and teach them to pray.

Your sister,
MARGARET THOMAS.

SHE WAS A STRANGER.

A Sunday school missionary, while addressing a Sunday school noticed a little girl shabbily dressed and bare footed, shrinking in a corner; her little sunburned face buried in her hands, and sobbing as if her heart would break. Soon, however, another little girl about eleven years old got up and went to her. Taking her by the hand, she led her out to a brook, where she seated the little one on a log. Then kneeling beside her, this good Samaritan took off the ragged sunbonnet, and dipping her hand in the water, bathed the other's hot eyes and tear-stained face, and smoothed the tangled hair, talking cheerily all the time.

The little one lightened up; the tears vanished; and smiles came creeping around the rosy mouth. The missionary, who had followed the two, stepped forward and asked,

"Is that your sister, my dear?"

"No, sir," answered the child with tender, earnest eyes; "I have no sister."

"O, one of the neighbor's children," replied the missionary; "a little schoolmate, perhaps."

"No, sir; she is a stranger. I never saw her before."

"Then how came you to take her out and have such a care for her?"

"Because she was a stranger, sir, and seemed all alone, and needed somebody to be kind to her."
IDA SKANK CASTOR.

THE PARENT'S DUTY TOWARD THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Parents, do we ever think what has been required of us by the One in whom we trust to be the "author and finisher of our faith?" As we look around us and see what has been intrusted to our care, can we afford to let our thoughts stand and become stagnant, and not improve upon the talent God has blessed us with? We as parents hold one, if not the greatest responsibility resting on the human family. This being the case, we can be the instruments in God's hands of doing a great work in bringing the little ones which have been given us to a knowledge of his divine plan. And we can be the cause of turning them from the plan which he has established. We all realize that the child must be trained from the beginning to learn the necessity of obeying. And we believe we are too negligent in this direction. If this be true, God will hold us responsible, and not the child, for not obeying the gospel.

We must study the disposition of our child; see in which way will be best to govern it, then we can use our influence for good over the child. We must show to our children our firmness as to what we desire of them. Make laws in our homes and live up to them. And the greatest of these laws should be tending our family prayers and calling our little ones around us, kneeling and asking God for wisdom to direct us as parents, and to bring our children up under perfect obedience to his laws.

Through the wisdom of God there has been to help us in this direction an organization called the Sunday school. Now the question should arise in our minds to-day, What can we as parents do in making this a success and a blessing to our children? How can this be answered?

As our children come to years of understanding, we must press upon their minds what the Sunday school is for. We must give the child to understand that there is something more in Sunday school than just going there and rehearsing the lessons. We should help officers and teachers to make the school a place to which the child desires to go. We can do this by talking about the Sunday school at home, telling our children how God has blessed the workers in the Sunday school, and giving them to understand that there is a God in the work that they are doing. After awhile you will see the interest increase in our school.

How many of us parents are doing this to-day? If we are not, then we are a stumbling-stone to the advancement of the Sunday school work. Stop and think for a moment over the disposition of any child to go to such places, unless the parents exercise their power in showing them why they should go. How many would we have in our schools? We are compelled to say but few. Father and mother must make a special effort to attend these places, and if there is no interest there for the parents, how can they expect the child to be interested? They should make calculations for Sunday school meetings the same as other meetings. If this is done, our schools will prosper, and more interest will be manifested in our church throughout the land, and more of the blessings of God poured out on his people. And as our little ones grow to manhood and womanhood, we will rejoice in the interest they are taking in the spreading of the gospel, and all these places that are calling to hear the sound of the gospel will be filled.

Parents, you are the life of our schools, and it is our duty to work to keep these institutions moving. Don't let us be backward in this work. Remember that while God has called some to go preach the gospel, he has called us to just as great a responsibility. And now let us do all that we know to be our duty in advancing the Sunday school work, and always pray and uphold those whom you have chosen as officers to direct the affairs of your schools. Show them your desire to see the work prosper by your presence, and by so doing we will all see the society accomplish that which God designed that it should.

What are our Sunday schools for? and why do we send our children there? Just for the name of it? God forbid. We of all parents should realize that responsibility that rests upon us, and we should be just as fervent and zealous for the welfare of our own as for the spreading of the gospel to others who know not the truth. Paul has said, If any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he "hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel." This providing is not merely the caring for the body, food, clothing, etc.; but applies also to the care of and nourishing of the spiritual nature, which can be elevated or raised to a higher plane by careful instruction in the truth.

I will say that we, as parents, should realize that Sunday school work is one of sacrifice and steady toil. But as it is a part of the work of God, we should rejoice that we have a part in it, and do all that we can to keep our children going, and giving our support to the officers, whom we have elected to preside, and the teacher which has been chosen to teach our little ones the perfect law of God, by our presence, and let our prayers go to God for the advancement of this great cause.

WORDS OF CONDOLENCE.

Bro. and Sr. B. M. Anderson.—Whereas, in the providences of God it has been best in his universal wisdom to permit the grim messenger Death to enter your home and pluck a fair flower in the freshness of her exquisite bloom (Enger Viola); not to wither, but to take her place in the bouquet that Christ holds, which fills the kingdom of heaven with its eternal perfume, "Little children are holy, being sanctified through the atonement of Jesus Christ,"

Therefore, we, the employees of the Herald Publishing House and Bookbindery, hereby declare and offer to you our deepest sympathies in this time of bereavement; and pray that God may give you grace and strength to bow with resignation to his holy will.

Your friends in sorrow,

HERALD OFFICE FORCE.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Conference of Central Nebraska district will be held with Clearwater branch, August 26 and 27. District Sunday school convention on the 25th, at two p. m.

LEVI GAMET, Pres.

The annual conference of Ohio district will convene at Creola, Ohio, September 9, at nine a. m. All who cannot reach there on the six or eight a. m. train, should come on Friday, the 8th. We desire to have a truly spiritual gathering. Let every one come who can. Bring the Holy Spirit and your Hymnal with you. Branch officials, please see to it that your branch reports are made out in due time, full and complete, upon proper blanks, and either bring or send in due time to H. K. Smith, or James Moler, Creola, Ohio. All who have tents please bring them; those who have none, please do not stay away on account of not having one. We expect Pres. Joseph Smith, Apostle W. H. Kelley or Joseph Luff, and other prominent ministers present. And now last, but not least, I wish to say that the few saints and some noble friends are making commendable effort to build a chapel at Creola, and they have succeeded well; but in order that the house may be dedicated during conference, they need some help from you. I therefore, as president of the district, appeal unto you in their behalf. Let each one who possibly can, come prepared to assist a little at least. It is not an individual enterprise, but one for the good of the district, and in fact for the whole body. The saints of Creola are mostly poor, but they with friends will gladly care for you and make you comfortable during conference. Let us therefore remember the admonition, "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." May the Lord bless us and may we have a time of rejoicing.

JAMES MOLER, Pres.

REUNION NOTICES.

The reunion of Des Moines district, authorized by the late conference, will be held at Runnells, on the Wabash railroad, fifteen miles east of Des Moines, beginning August 24, and to continue for ten days, ending Sunday evening, September 3. Let all the saints and friends in the district who can, arrange and be there. Let all arrange to board and lodge themselves. A co-operative boarding tabernacle will be conducted on the grounds, where one hundred or more can have good meals at minimum prices per meal, so that none camping need be at the inconvenience of arranging to do their own cooking, unless they choose. Come to board and thus help to defray the cash expenses of the reunion. Let's divide the burden, and so make it light for all. Walled tents can be had for ten days for rent as follows: 7 x 9 feet, $1.35; 10 x 12 feet, $1.50; 12 x 14, $2; 14 x 16, standard, $2.50; 10 x 14, 2 rooms, $3; 14 x 14, 3 rooms, $4; 14 x 21, 5 rooms, $5. Johnson, Room 702, Youngerman Block, Des Moines, Iowa, who is authorized to attend to these matters. No fuel will be needed if you board, and hay in plenty will be supplied cheap for teams. Every convenience essential will be supplied. Runnells is noted for a large attendance at gatherings. Come for the work's sake. Saints of neighboring districts come over and help us. If twenty-five tents are ordered a discount of twenty-five per cent will be made to the reunion. "Lookout" for announcement of speakers and further particulars next week. For the committee,

J. W. MORGAN.

PASTORAL.

To the Saints of Northeast Kansas District:—Having been placed in charge of the missionary work in your district, I wish to call your attention to the fact, that in order to carry on the work successfully, we must labor together in the spirit of unity and wisdom. All should interest themselves in the work, laying aside all jealousy and selfishness, endeavoring to properly represent the work of the Master in our conduct as well as conversation. All are not called to preach, but all are called to practice the gospel. Local authorities and scattered saints should interest themselves in looking up new localities and ascertaining where work can be done, and inform me, and I will do my best in the matter. Write me at No. 912 North Seventh Street, Atchison, Kansas.

We also have the district tent in operation and aim to keep it going all the season. This requires money. Bro. L. G. Gurwell, of Fanning, will receive contributions for this purpose; send promptly, and make him feel happy.

Also, let me suggest to those who take the Herald or Ensign (and all should do so if possible) that you do not destroy them; but if you do not wish to keep them, write to Bro. Gurwell, J. W. Hudgens, Baker, or the undersigned, and we will inform you where to send, that these papers may be distributed among the people. Let us exercise care and wisdom, and do all things in the spirit of Christ, striving to increase in faith, spirituality, and good works, and we will have but little difficulty in extending the work and establishing ourselves in new localities.

Trusting that we may have the hearty cooperation of all,

I am yours in gospel bonds,
PETER ANDERSON.

CHURCH SECRETARY'S NOTICE.

ENROLLMENT IN QUORUMS.

The law provides for enrollment in quorums of all church officers, including elders, priests, teachers, and deacons. (D. C. 104:31; 118:1; 120:10.)

Such enrollment is regulated by rules adopted by General Conferences, which provide that all applications shall be forwarded to the Church Secretary.

Applications should contain full name, office, dates of birth, baptism, ordination, and by whom ordained; also permanent address, and labor done, for quorum records. None of these items should be omitted.

Quorums make selections from applications in the Secretary's hands.

The Secretary cannot enroll anyone in a quorum. Quorums report all enrollments to General Conference. Presidents and their counselors are authorized to select names and enroll members to fill vacancies, between conferences, subject to quorum approval or disapproval.

The General Conference of 1897 authorized the Secretary to enroll applicants in quorums of elders, priests, teachers, and deacons, which was done and referred to the Quorum of Twelve, for completion of said quorums by selection and ordination of officers, at the General Conference of 1898. However, the Twelve were unable to complete said organizations then, because of absence of parties and other hindering causes. Brethren whose names appeared in published lists prepared by the Secretary will therefore understand the status of said applicants. Statements designed to reach the matter of more complete enrollment will be made to the General Conference of 1900. In the meantime, vacancies in existing quorums may be filled by quorum officers, from applications in the hands of the Church Secretary.

CERTIFICATES OF APPOINTMENT.

Certificates of appointment are issued only when appointments are made; not annually, unless General Conferences are held annually. Duplicate certificates will be issued, on application, when originals are lost.

LICENSES.

General officers of the church, including presidents and counselors of quorums, are entitled to licenses from the general church, signed by the President and Secretary. In almost all cases such have been issued. Presidents and counselors of quorums who can furnish items of ordination as such (not accessible to the Secretary) will be furnished such license on application.

Local officials obtain their licenses from branch or district authorities and should apply to them for renewals, except in unorganized territory, in which they may be obtained from or renewed through missionaries in charge.

In bonds,
R. S. SALYARDS, Church Secretary.
LAMONI, Iowa, July 19, 1899.

TO ALL LATTER DAY SAINTS.

In obedience to a resolution of General Conference a college has been erected at Lamoni, Iowa, for the education of the children of Latter Day Saints and such others as may wish to attend.

This college is giving a good course of instruction and is worthy of your patronage.

Its success depends upon your support and cooperation. Ask yourselves if you have a duty in this matter, either to your children or to the church. Education is a great help to the laborer either in the gospel or in the affairs of the world. This is most keenly felt by those who are not educated.

I believe it is better that your children should be educated where they can at the same time be built up spiritually rather than where their religion will be mocked.

I appeal to you to assist the Board of Directors to maintain this college, both with your patronage and with subscriptions of money. Remember it is not our college. It is not the Lamoni college. It belongs to the church. It belongs to you.

In a short time I shall visit some of the branches in the Missouri Valley and, as best I can, explain to them the condition and needs of the college. Please think and pray over this work. Our children will live for eternity. "What shall the harvest be?" Will you help us educate them where there will not be so many "tares sown" and where there will be some one near to encourage them to remain firm in the faith once delivered to the saints?

Correspondence as to scholarships should be sent to R. S. Salyards, secretary. Money should be sent to Wm. Anderson, treasurer, Lamoni, Iowa.

Yours in gospel bonds,
J. H. HANSEN, M. D.,
Pres. Board of Directors.

LAMONI, IOWA, July 31, 1899.

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale. Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, — to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

INGERSOLL AND HUMAN HOPE.

Hope is largely a Dead Sea apple; expectation is seldom realized, desire is but half granted, and faith sickens at its own deceits. Yet, these things are the sources and springs of all human action. To destroy them is to leave the future beggared of even a prophecy. Whether faith is founded on a fact or wholly fancied, it has always been the food upon which unappeased hunger of mankind has fed. It is universal and common as nature and among all tribes and races of men. It is whip and spur to endeavor along all the avenues of right conduct and it is the solace beyond words to the grieving and heavy hearted. It is more the fruit of science than it is of ignorance. There is more reason in the religion that can fix a universe on law than in that of the savage who is appalled by an eclipse or dumb before the hurricane. The great man who sought to destroy the washer-woman's song, to blot out the only star in her sky, to turn the fire in her soul to dead embers, is dead. He took from the sunlight of hope to curtain life with midnight. Head master of the language, he vainly tried to impale all religions, all faiths, all hopes, on the point of his wickedly bright epigrams, and as vainly attempted to entomb them in a shroud of magnificent denunciation. He sugared the lotion, that the noxious draught might be swallowed with the honey of all words. He lured men to believe him by his pathos and emphasized love of children, wife, and home. He failed to know that science may, with its strong glass, discover a sun and still the most erudite philosophy be unable to quench the little and pigmy star of faith that comes out of remoter depths and blacker nights. He had nigh the perfected power of human speech; he could touch every chord of the soul, but one; could utter all harmonies, but one; could hear all melodies, but one; but he lived and he died, powerless to describe the ruin, the wreck of a world stripped of its religious beliefs.

The faith of the Juggernaut is better than none. Byron's Dream of Darkness faintly discloses the scene, for chaos would come again. Real as the mountain or idle as a dream without memory, to religious beliefs we owe the world's onward and upward strides. The greater blessings of civilization, the welfare of society, the betterment of peoples, the humanization of war, the great white harvests of peace, are so universally coincident with the faith of the Christian religion that we are bound to say they are its results. The dead man could have been better mourned for the great good he might have accomplished.

Destructive as the loosened gun on the Claymore, death has ended his clamor against the gods.—Joseph G. Waters, in Topeka Capital.

INGERSOLL AND THE PULPIT.

Naturally the late Robert G. Ingersoll was the theme of many pulpit discourses on Sunday last. For several years he had been an unflinching and persistent opponent of orthodox religion, more particularly in its Calvinistic form. It was to be expected therefore that the orthodox pulpit should pay its respects to his memory. In the sermons preached here and elsewhere, however, there is evident a lenient disposition, considering the bitterness with which the clergy has been attacked by him in the past. Few assigned him to eternal perdition and still fewer accepted his death as a visitation of divine indignation. Considering the gravity of his offense against orthodoxy, the comments upon his life and peculiar views were exceedingly charitable, and general satisfaction was expressed that at length he was in that world where he would know whether his message was true or false.

All this shows progress and more liberal judgment. Had Ingersoll died twenty years ago that judgment would have been harsher and death would not appreciably have softened the indignant invective of the pulpit. Indeed, Ingersoll himself softened as the years went by. His latest utterances were less bitter. Perhaps he realized the impossibility of inflicting serious injury upon the Christian religion. More likely, however, the liberalizing of Christianity and the softening of old dogmas under the influences of modern thought and the higher criticism made him less intemperate in his onslaughts, especially when he realized that this evolutionary change came from within the church itself and was not the result of his or any other agnostic's teachings.

From one point of view injustice has been done to his memory. It is charged in some of these pulpit discourses and in some press criticisms that he inflicted great injury to the compensations of life by destroying human hope. Without in the least subscribing to Ingersoll's views it may be said that he never intended to destroy the hope of others, and it is questionable whether he abandoned hope himself. Numerous citations might be made from his writings to demonstrate that he always hoped. As long ago as 1879, in the beautiful eulogy pronounced at the grave of his brother, he said:—

Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud, and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word, but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing.

Twenty years later he expresses the same hope. In a letter to Mr. Geer, written in April last, he says: "There is to me no evidence of the existence of any power superior to nature. In my opinion the supernatural does not exist. Still, we can wish in spite of, or against, evidence and we can hope without it." Two months later, in his last published utterance, a poem in the Truthseeker, he says:—

Is there beyond the silent night
An endless day?
Is death a door that leads to light?
We cannot say.
The tongueless secret locked in fate
We do not know. We hope and wait.

But Ingersoll is through with hoping and waiting. He either sleeps an eternal sleep or he knows whether it was an open door or a closed gate. He could offer nothing in exchange for what he sought to destroy but his own ideal of life, and that was high and honorable. As to anything else he did not know and not knowing he could not believe. His long and profitless struggle with the unknowable is over and the world is disposed only to remember what was lovely and of good report in his life.—Chicago Tribune, July 25, 1899.

MRS. BARTLETT IN SORROW.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 21.—News of the death of Colonel Ingersoll was received with profound sorrow by the Rev. Carolina Bartlett Crane, who as the Rev. Carolina J. Bartlett, was pastor of the People's Church of Kalamazoo. It was while delivering a lecture in Kalamazoo, three years ago last winter, that Colonel Ingersoll declared that the People's Church was the only church he had ever found that he would belong to, and that if there was a similar church in his home city he would affiliate with it, if it would accept him as a member. Mrs. Bartlett replied the People's Church would admit Colonel Ingersoll for the same reason that it offers fellowship to Catholic, Presbyterian, Unitarian, Jewish, agnostic, atheist, or Mohammedan, its object being to make people better.

In offering to extend fellowship to Colonel Ingersoll Mrs. Bartlett said that the things which divide the well meaning people are superficial, while the bonds which unite them are fundamental. She said the atheist who combats wrong is a religious man, because he serves the good, which others call God. She would therefore extend fellowship to Colonel Ingersoll because he believed in good and wanted to lessen the physical and moral evils which she held were the despair of the world; also, because she believed few men had been more misrepresented and maligned, and because she believed him to be an honest man, who righteously revolted against a false and cruel theology.

Continuing, she said that she believed the charge of blasphemy against Ingersoll to be unfounded; he only spoke against a God of cruelty. He did not deny the Bible, but only the wrong use of the Bible. She declared if she had to choose between the theology of Colonel Ingersoll and the theology he combated, she would stand by him, and if there were no church which would admit an honest man of fearless utterance she would never be minister or member of any church.—Tribune.

IDEAL VACATION FOR CHRISTIANS.

The ideal vacation, for ordinary, sensible Christian men and women, will be characterized by moderation, common sense, and regard for others. It will seek to provide the greatest good, rather than the greatest amount of fun. It will make it emphatic that a vacation is a means to an end and not the chief end of man and woman. It will bring a man home to his regular duties, not only more sunburned as to cheek and caloused as to hand, but sunnier as to heart, happier as to mind, and better prepared for the work to which God has called him.—Baptist Standard.

GREATER AMERICA EXHIBITS.

The splendid exhibits at the Greater America Exposition are nearly all in place and even the critics are compelled to admit that the showing made is both comprehensive and creditable. The government building is complete and contains not only the entire Libby Prison War Museum, but hundreds of relics from the battle fields of Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines. In Machinery Hall the live exhibits, machinery in actual operation, far surpass the showing made last year and the public is beginning to realize that this building contains many things well worth seeing and that here is shown the various processes by which American artisans excel all others. The fine art exhibit of more than 1,000 valuable paintings and 300 pieces of statuary and art bric-a-brac is conceded to excel the showing made last year, and those who are qualified to judge have set upon this magnificent collection the seal of their unqualified approval. In liberal arts, colonial exhibits, mines and mining and the winter garden the displays are practically complete and worthy of a careful inspection. The Agriculture Building will not be filled until the harvests are gathered, but the space is taken and many counties are already at work upon elaborate exhibits. The Greater America Exposition will stand upon its own merits and will not need either apology or excuse. Those who fail to visit this great educational exhibition will have cause for regret when its gates have closed and the opportunity is past.

BEAUTIFUL SYLVAN LAKE.

When the Black Hills are spoken of, one usually has in mind the great mining industry there, or the Hot Springs resort. Only a few know of that little gem in the mountains, "Sylvan Lake." It is near Custer, north of the Hot Springs, further in the hills, and is an ideal spot. Many well-known people have registered at the comfortable little hotel there. Many have gone for a week and spent a month.

Among the guests this year have been Hon. J. Sterling Morton, ex-Secretary of Agriculture, Earl Comstock, De Forest Richards, C. E. Perkins, president of the C., B. & Q., and party, and a number of others equally well known. The attraction lies in the perfect cool atmosphere, the beautiful lake and scenery.

WHY THE PEACE CONGRESS FAILED.

The Peace Congress has been prorogued, and up to date little or nothing has been done to bring about the purpose of its convening. Behind its pleasant meetings there is a little bit of history which casts a somber light on the whole proceedings.

The Catholic World Magazine for August publishes a story, evidently from a trustworthy source, to the effect that the Congress was originally suggested by the Holy Father. It was not only suggested but all its preliminaries were arranged for. The proceedings of the Congress were forecast by him; the place of meeting was selected by him; and when it came to the assembling of the Congress, through the representations of the tottering Italian Empire the Holy Father was shut out from the deliberations of the Congress.

To have a Peace Congress and to shut out the representative of the Prince of Peace is the most farcical performance that the closing years of the nineteenth century have witnessed. The unknown writer in the Catholic World Magazine for August speaks of the matter as follows:—

"Thus once more one of the most effective means of furthering the cause of peace was set at naught, simply because the Vicar of Christ, the natural arbiter in the disputes of nations, was ignored. And yet the student of history cannot but reflect that the result must have been far otherwise had this legitimate title and prerogative of the Pope been recognized. History teems with instances where the successor of Peter has saved the world from devastation by the sword, and from the shedding of torrents of blood, and from the multiple horrors and curses that long and bloody wars bring in their wake. Even in modern times, from the day when Pope Alexander VI., by drawing the famous demarcation line between their possessions in South America, prevented Spain and Portugal from flying at each other's throats and pouring out their immense resources of blood and treasure in a needless war, the only result of which must have been a legacy of hatred for the offspring of either nation, down to our own day, when Leo XIII. effected a dispassionate and bloodless settlement of the dispute between Germany and Spain over the Caroline Islands, and finally even to the present moment of writing, when the same Pontiff has under his consideration the pacific arrangement of the frontier trouble between the Republics of Hayti and San Domingo, the Holy Father has proved that between nations in their angry moments none other than he can come and adjudicate in a perfectly frank, disinterested, and satisfactory manner."—Catholic World Slip.

Railroads generally East and West are rapidly fitting their freight cars with air brakes and automatic couplers. An officer of the Burlington road said in Chicago recently that on his line there are 39,000 freight cars, 60 per cent. of which are equipped with Westinghouse Air Brakes, and 90 per cent. with Master Car Builder Automatic Couplers.

So many people nowadays suffer from nervous prostration. Constantly the question is asked, "Where can I go for rest, quiet, pure air and good food." The place of all others for the invalid to recuperate is the Black Hills of South Dakota. Either at Hot Springs, where the great plunge bath of crystal water is, or at Sylvan Lake, a beautiful spot farther in the hills. The pine-perfumed air and the healing waters have the most astonishing results. Our friend, the C., B. & Q. ticket agent, is well posted about the Hills and invites inquiries.

INGERSOLL DEAD.

Mr. Robert G. Ingersoll, the noted agnostic of America, is dead.

Mr. Ingersoll has been misunderstood by many, and misrepresented by others. An agnostic is one who professes to be ignorant; one who believes that man has no way of knowing many of the things which men profess to believe or to be assured of, especially in regard to the existence of God, the future state, and topics of a kindred character.

Mr. Ingersoll's statements summed up were: There may be a God; I do not know that there is. If there is, I have no means of securing knowledge of his existence. Nor do I believe what is said and written of him by other men, who so far as I can see have no better means of knowing of him than I have.

We believe that he at no time assumed to say "There is no God." He was quite too shrewd a man for that; for, according to his own philosophy, having no evidence at his disposal that God did exist, he also had none that he did not. His scoffings at the writings found in the Bible, his sneers at other men's beliefs, were neither arguments nor proofs; they were only the ebullitions by which he fortified himself in his creed of unbelief.

His death came in an instant; a sentence started with a smile, the smile remained, the sentence was unfinished. It is stated that he earnestly wished to be in a conscious condition when death came. He wished to realize, to take cognizance of the approaches of dissolution; to mark the sensations; to be aware of the loosening of the coil and experience the emotions of transition. And it is further stated that he had something he wished to say before the last moments came. But, what the nature of that communication would have been, not a clue is left.

In private life Mr. Ingersoll was an estimable man; kind, amiable, courteous, loving. He leaves a wife and two daughters, to whom he was husband, father, friend, mentor, and companion. They refused to part with his body until forced to do so by the exigency of the case; they could not in decency keep it longer. To them parting with the man so suddenly taken from them was the entering in upon an eternal separation. His teaching, his avowed belief, his philosophy, his course in life, accepted by them, left not a hope in their minds for a meeting over on the other side. To them death, his death, came unannounced, unwelcome, unlooked for; and now in the bitterest of human anguish they are unprepared to meet the beautiful world of this life, its beauties all enshrouded by the blackness of the pall that has fallen upon them. Mr. Ingersoll's body will be cremated. Fire will dissolve the fleshly tabernacle, and a few ashes will be put in a vase and kept until accident or design shall despoil the vase and scatter the ashes whither the winds will. But what of the inner man, the one that made the husband, father, friend, so kind, so loving—the man who waked into action by occasion grew eloquent over human wrongs, and voiced the sentiments of deepest patriotism? What of the intellectual spiritual being that occupied the tenement now vacated and still, the being that chose to scoff at others' fate and almost defy the God who made him to live and gave him so beautiful a world to live in—what of this man? Ah Christian, in whom dwells the hope of perpetuity of life, call on thy soul to answer! Wouldst thou leave a wife and daughters to so sad a heritage as the one now left to the wife and daughters of the prince of good fellows, the orator, the wit, the almost ruthless iconoclast, the unbelieving Robert G. Ingersoll?

It is said now that Mr. Ingersoll died a poor man, and that his family are but poorly provided for. That notwithstanding his long life before the public, his princely legal fees, the astonishing sums received by him for lectures, all has been spent as received, and no provision made for the sudden call from activity and life which struck him down. It is said too that much of his earnings was expended in charity, the relieving of distress with which he came in contact. That is well.

Since his death some have said that it was a "judgment," a visitation sent of God to visit his displeasure upon Mr. Ingersoll because of his outspoken infidelity.

Mr. Ingersoll's unbelief came as the result of the outcropping of such a spirit as such remarks exhibit. Meeting that spirit of human malevolence in those who claimed to be the servants and people of God and pretended to be good, better than their neighbors who differed from them in belief, roused the elements of skepticism in his nature, and from doubting humanity he reached the doubting of deity.

It has been but a repetition of what Professor Swing stated to his brethren: "I hold that the church itself is responsible for much of the infidelity that is in the world." This was said of the church body of which Professor Swing was a member and from which he was virtually expelled for heresy.

CZAR AND PROTESTANT.

St. Petersburg, July 29.—It transpires that the peasant woman who assisted the Czarevitch when he was dying belonged to the Protestant sect of Molokanes. The Czar has commanded the Grand Duke Michael-Nicolaievitch to publicly express to the Molokan community the imperial thanks for the good feeling manifested by the woman and her coreligionists, who have also received recognition from the Dowager Empress.

Russia is Catholic, which is the state religion, woven into the warp and woof of the lives of her people. The Stundists and other Protestants, also the Jews, have been objects of bitter fanatical persecution.

The above is a hopeful indication. Kindness shown to one of the royal family by a Protestant, in the hour of dissolution, has brought public acknowledgement from the Czar himself through the Grand Duke Michael, and the Dowager Empress has done likewise. "One touch of Nature makes the whole world kin," and even the harshness of a despotic religious system of state yields to it in a time of affliction.

The Czar has of late removed from Siberia the ban of being a penal colony, thus opening it to residence and giving its occupants the opportunity of citizenship granted to other citizens of the empire—those not under sentence as criminals.

The world moves in the main for right and liberty. The young Czar is said not to be a strong man, but so far, except in the instance of Finland, has done something for the uplifting of his race and for humanity in general. He, like all others without exception, should be credited with the good he does and held responsible for his errors. There are forces at work in the world, directed by the Ruler of the Universe himself, whose ultimate is the enlightenment and emancipation of humanity. He who aids, whether in public or in private life, the good work of maintaining the rights and privileges which belong equally to all mankind, collectively and individually, is worthy of due credit and will receive it "according to his works;" while he who resists such forces or is apathetic, content, Dives like, to care for himself and his alone, must answer to the people and to God, both in the present and in the time to come.

Liberty is enlightening the world, but there are yet many conflicts ahead at home and abroad, in public and in social life, ere the equality and the good of all, without respect to persons, is finally established. They are the truly great, among men and women, who are willing to sink self and to labor in humility to advance the race. Jesus Christ sought not his own glory, but became and labored as a servant of all. A peculiar feature of his life, surrounded as he was by the then popular scribes and Pharisees, was that he ignored the presumptuous ruling or leading classes among the Jews and sought out the common people, to whom he loved to minister. He loved rich and poor, popular and unpopular; but could do nothing with the former because their god was the world and its ambitions, its love of prestige, socially and religiously. The Master refused to be compromised by their methods because he could not indorse their spirit. He rebuked them and in so doing laid the foundation for the overthrow of their hypocrisy, ambition, and vanity. Hence to this day the character, teachings, and example of the Christ represent and stand for the right—the right applied in fact to the uplifting of those who truly are worthy, to a common level, the exalting them of low degree, to the humbling of the proud and selfish.

God has not changed, and though wrong may seem to have strength, and has a strength peculiar to itself, yet in comparison with the right it is weak and must fall and fail. God reigns and "justice and judgment" are the habitations of his throne—the principles he means to enforce in all the world.

As a people we should love such principles, even unto death if necessary, and stand by them at whatever cost. We cannot afford to ignore them, nor to be negligent in asserting them, frankly, calmly, fearlessly, without boasting or railing. We should, in all things, see to it that we are in harmony with right, and then stand by it at whatever cost, prayerfully seeking to be humble and teachable, but avoiding any tendency to drift or be diverted from the right. To stand for right is to stand for God and truth; to desert it is to prove false and recreant to both. There should be both salt and sand in Israel that true convictions and the courage to maintain them may gain the victory against the seductive influences that come of evil. We cannot ignore our personal responsibilities. It is ours to meet the issues squarely, and to prove ourselves to be "just and true."

THOSE who believe and would receive the benefits of the Word of Wisdom may be interested in the following recipe. It furnishes a "barley" beverage without the (to some) objectionable malting process:—

GOOD BEVERAGE FOR ATHLETES.

A good drink for the woman who comes back from the links or from a spin on her bicycle, so thirsty and warm that she could "drink dry Saratoga Springs," as one energetic golfer expresses it, is barley water. It may sound weak and harmless and suggestive of the sickroom or the nursery, but for the athletic woman it is far better than strong waters, iced lemonade, or iced tea or coffee. When properly made barley water is quite as tasteful as if it were not the most cooling and wholesome beverages. To make it take a tablespoonful of pearl barley and wash it in two or three waters; mix with it two lumps of sugar, the thin rind of one lemon, and the juice of half a one. Then pour a quart of boiling water on it and let it stand for two hours or more. When it is cool strain and serve.—New York Commercial-Advertiser.

TWO NEW TRACTS.

The two new tracts, No. 26, "Was Joseph Smith a Polygamist?" by Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian; and No. 28, "Apostasy or Perpetuity, Which?" by Elder James Caffall; are both now on sale. Price, each, 15c per dozen, $1.00 per hundred. Address orders to the Business Manager, Herald Office.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Who is this choice seer spoken of in the Second Book of Nephi, Book of Mormon, who would be like unto Moses, to do a great work for his brethren, even to the convincing them of God's word which shall have already gone forth among them? Is this Joseph Smith, or is it one from the Lamanites, the branch broken off as indicated in the chapter?

We understand the choice seer to be Joseph Smith. We think a careful study of the prophecy referred to, also of Genesis 50 I. T., Doctrine and Covenants 1:4; 19:1; 104:42, etc., will make it clear to the reader.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

A brother, writing from Chicago, July 29, calls attention to the following. Please note his request, addressing Bro. E. E. Johnson as requested:—

Bro. E. E. Johnson, secretary Northeastern Illinois district, requests that all saints not living close to any of the branches in the district, whether members of any branch in district or not, send their name and address to him at once. He also requests those throughout the church who have friends or relatives in Northern Illinois belonging to the church to send their names and addresses, that he may have complete list of all members of church living in district, and by this means the district officers be enabled to keep in touch with every member whether isolated or not. He also requests that anyone having friends or relatives in Chicago belonging to the church, to send name and address of same. The experience of the past year has demonstrated that there are quite a number of saints, especially young people, who have failed to hunt up the saints' meeting places after coming to the city; and the Chicago branch officers are anxious to find every one belonging to the church living there. If you are living in the district or in Chicago, or have any friends living in the district or in Chicago as above explained, sit down as soon as you have read this and write Bro. Johnson, 1972 North Marshfield Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The District Religio Association is anxious to interest each one of the isolated ones, both old and young, in the Home Study Class, and by this means help them in their isolated condition; so don't put off writing because you think somebody else will write about the same parties you have in mind. A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether, would send in the desired information in a very short time.

Bro. James Caffall, writing from Howard, South Dakota, July 26, concerning the necessity for more missionaries in his field, says:—

In the big States of South Dakota and North Dakota, we have but three missionaries, with the little help I am trying to give them for a time. Is it not time for the church to halt and stop the terrible yearly leakage of thousands of dollars for big reunions, and think more seriously of the prayer Christ told his disciples to offer (Luke 10:2)? To preach the gospel is a divine injunction which is always in force, and any and all measures that tend in any way to militate against or hinder this God-imposed work is so much against this divine injunction, or so I believe; and I speak that I believe with due deference to all concerned. Though I deplore my limited progress, yet without arrogating to myself, I state that with nearly twenty-seven years experience as a traveling missionary I am thoroughly convinced that if one half of the money that has been expended in the past ten years for General Conferences and big reunions had found its way into the church coffers and been used to increase the ministerial force in the Lord's great harvest field, aiding the needy, etc., much, very much more good would have been accomplished in spreading the gospel to nooks and corners where spiritual darkness prevails, than has been done or can be done by these gatherings, which are increasing as the years go by. These are some of my proclivities. The adoption of gentile measures must lead to gentile entanglements, as sure as day succeeds night, or causes and effects have ceased.

Bro. L. Gamet, Clearwater, Nebraska, July 28:—

Bro. W. W. Whiting and I closed a series of tent meetings at St. Edwards, Nebraska, on Sunday evening the 23d inst. We were assisted in the song service by Srs. Grace Smith and Nellie Gamet, of Clearwater, and Srs. Alice and Elizabeth Watkins, of Columbus. The meetings were held at the request of Sister Gill, who lives at St. Edwards, and who kindly fed and lodged the elders and singers during their stay. No immediate result is discernible. Audiences were fair in size most of the time and for the most part very attentive. Some expressed regret that the meetings did not hold longer and wanted to know when we would return. On our way home we preached Monday evening at a schoolhouse near Loretto, a son of Levi Anthony making the arrangements and entertaining the travelers. His name is J. F. Anthony. To-day Bro. Whiting goes to Inman, then to Star, to stay over Sunday, then to Keyapaha County, in the northwest part of the district.

Bro. W. A. Smith, Wilton, Iowa, August 1:—

Closed our tent meetings at Muscatine last Sunday and on that day baptized two more precious souls into the kingdom. That makes ten at that city. Left good interest there. Came here last night; will commence to-night. I sold the Church History to an outsider there. So the good work goes on.

Bro. S. O. Foss, Waverly, Nova Scotia, July 27:—

All goes well. At last accounts Brn. Luff and Bullard were in Delhaven and good was being done. Bro. H. J. Davison left last Thursday for Massachusetts reunion.

Bro. Columbus Scott, Perry, Iowa, August 13:—

We are here conducting tent meetings. Will be here till after Sunday, August 6, then tent goes to Adel for a time. Tent was blown down last Monday night and injured some, but we repaired it and are going forward again. We hope to have a number of Decatur district saints at our reunion at Runnells, beginning August 24.

Bro. J. W. Waldsmith, Fairfield, Nebraska, August 2:—

I have been here for some little time. All is going along smoothly, considering. Some have been trying to sow seeds of dissatisfaction, but have not succeeded well. What a grand thing it would be if people could only learn just to attend to their own business in righteousness, and stop at that. I go from here Friday, to Shelton, to attend the reunion.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Local officials of the Chicago branch and district are endeavoring to locate and look after the spiritual and general welfare of members of the church in the city and throughout the North-eastern Illinois district; see their request in another column. This is right, and we note it among the encouraging signs of businesslike faithfulness in the important work of caring for the scattered flock. A competent, reliable visiting officer feels the responsibility of looking after the members placed under his charge, and will locate and visit each one, if at all possible. Much that should be done is often neglected in this line of duty, hence we note this effort of the brethren. We cannot fully accomplish our work as a church until there is a response to duty from every department—local and general—"according to the effectual working in the measure of every part." Competent, faithful branch officers are not as plentiful as they should be. The demand for the services of such men is daily on the increase, and they who develop in that calling will find blessing and added usefulness come to them. There is work and blessing and honorable service awaiting every man who is faithful in the discharge of duty. These are days of calling and days of choosing. Many are called, but few are chosen; and those to be chosen will be found among those who have been faithful—who are "called, and chosen, and faithful." The inspiration of the work and the demands of duty call for men to prepare themselves by study and by constant performance of their work for whatever the Lord may require and permit them to do. To labor with God and for him is indeed a privilege to be esteemed and not to be received with indifference.

Dwight L. Moody, according to the New York Bureau correspondence of the Chicago Tribune, of July 30, favors the construction of "roof tree gardens" on the churches in order to reach the people. He says they must be had and that lemonade and other beverages should be sold to the congregations. Is this a confession that the gospel as taught by Moody has not attractiveness enough in itself to reach the masses? Is Moody's gospel evolving into a roof-tree-garden-lemonade gospel? Next.

Some of the old people at the Saints' Home say they could get out to church services more regularly if they had a suitable conveyance. They think a large well seated vehicle, a hack, would answer their purpose; something with steps at the side or rear, that could be entered and left easily. We mention it because some good souls may be inclined to remember the Home people with such a convenience. They like to attend church services, but cannot always walk the distance, especially in bad weather. There are now about thirty inmates at the Home. They have horses and drivers and are all ready to hitch on to a suitable rig.

Aunt Katherine Salisbury, surviving sister of the Martyr, celebrated her eightieth birthday at Webster, near Carthage, Illinois, July 30. This we learn from the Chicago Tribune August 1.

Bro. Henry Sparling sends us a clipping from the Springfield, Missouri, Republican, for July —, which contains a purported communication from Robert G. Ingersoll through Mrs. Cora Richmond, a spirit medium in attendance at the spiritist camp meeting at Springfield. Spirit mediums have an eye to business, and Mrs. Richmond or her "control" (if she has such) has been prompt to seize the opportunity to advertise herself and spiritualism on the fame of Ingersoll. The address contains the usual platitudes of arguments used by Spiritualists in favor of the future life, and of course, contains some good things, but shows the hand of Esau. The diction is not the rhetoric of Mr. Ingersoll, but the speech of Mrs. Cora Richmond.

the 2d inst., for Dennisport, Massachusetts, to attend the Atlantic coast reunion; to remain away about one month. He was accompanied as far as Chicago by Bro. Frank Criley, whose destination was Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, his former home.

The Philadelphia Times, Sunday, July 30, sent us by Bro. G. W. Robley, contains a sensational article, a purported interview with Mormon missionaries in New York, by a woman newspaper correspondent. It depicts the philosophy (?) of polygamy and the claims of its power to elevate womanhood! The same paper also contains a purported statement by Emmaline Wells Young, daughter of Brigham Young, on Mormonism. Let the newspaper fraternity call attention to the Utah philosophy if they will. The truth must be as widely and more widely disseminated than the false stories of newspaperdom and the wrongs of Brighamism. It only remains for the people of the Reorganized Church to live the faith. The world will then see and acknowledge the righteousness of the cause. We have nothing to fear but ourselves.

The cabinet ministers of Belgium placed their resignations in the hands of King Leopold on the 1st inst. This action grew out of the rejection of the government electoral bills. Belgium is thus again brought face to face with the dangers of a month ago, when a revolution was threatened from the riotous demonstrations of the Socialists. The trouble grows out of the complicated character of the country's electoral system, which has brought Belgium to the verge of revolution by driving from parliament the moderate Liberals or Conservatives and throwing the legislative power into the hands of extreme, fanatical Clericals (Catholics). Rioting occurred in June last until the king was awakened and compelled to interfere. What the outcome may be remains to be seen, but larger concessions to the people seem inevitable. Such situations will not quiet down without equal privileges, which, in the language of the word, belong "to all mankind."

Confessional boxes are said to be found in five dioceses of the Church of England.

Some of our people may be interested in a statement in the August number of the Iowa State University News-Bulletin to the effect that "the demand for trained nurses has already become greater than the school can supply." We would like to know of some of our people devoting themselves to that profession. There is need among us for professional, trained nurses in the care of the sick. The profession is one that could be acquired at moderate cost. It would bring and insure substantial remuneration.

neration and enable the possessor to occupy and do much good in a field too long neglected by us. The trained nurse is a ministering angel in a line in which the Master himself did what he found to do among the afflicted and suffering. There is abundant room for Clara Bartons everywhere, to give the sick and helpless intelligent help and care.

Yellow fever, which has appeared of late in the United States, is said to be distinctively "an American pestilence." "It first appeared in Philadelphia in 1669. Again in 1762 it ravaged the City of Brotherly Love, and in 1791 broke out in New York. During this century it has appeared many times in New Orleans and other southern cities. During the great epidemic of 1878 there were 65,000 cases and 15,000 deaths in the United States."

"Why the Peace Congress Failed" as the title under which we publish in advertising announcement of the Catholic World on this week's cover. The outline of the article there will give the reader an understanding of its scope. Catholic writers claim much not only for the faith and authority of "Mother Church," but also for her beneficence(?). Aside from the bad taste this writer manifests in claiming for Pope Leo XIII. the authorship of the Peace Congress, he has the audacity to claim that the Popes have saved the world from many bloody wars. There may have been instances in which the Popes have prevented wars, but how many have they caused? Any student of mediæval history knows that the Popes and their sovereigns were almost constantly intriguing and causing war and bloodshed to gain their selfish ends and control in the political and civil affairs of Europe. The history of Papal supremacy and domination, the long reign of terror in the Dark Ages, the struggles of the Reformation, including the massacres of St. Bartholemew and of the Protestants in Holland, not forgetting the general inquisition, speak for the history and policies of Popery. The world has gone beyond Rome and Canosa. Catholicism represents antagonism to toleration, discovery, and progress. Bruno, the astronomer, burned at Rome, yet lives to rebuke the bloody history of the church of Rome, in a monument erected to his memory in the city of Rome itself; and the blood of the martyrs slain by Popes and their minions has proven the seed of emancipation and progress which have enlightened the world.

Brn. Heman C. Smith and R. S. Salyards, desire to obtain two copies of the SAINTS' HERALD, Vol. 1, No. 7, July, 1860; one number for each, to complete volumes. Any who may have that number who would sell it are requested to kindly inform them, stating price, addressing one or both at Lamoni, Iowa. They also desire to obtain volumes 1, 2, and 3 of Times and Seasons, if possible.

An "Ingersoll Memorial Meeting" will be held on Sunday, August 6, at Chicago, with a view to provide means to raise funds for a monument to Colonel Ingersoll. The city of Peoria is also interested in the project.

The Franco-German entente, well under way, thanks to Emperor William's ingenuity and versatility, is said to be threatened by the coming visit of M. Delcasse to St. Petersburg and the renewal of the Russo-French understanding.

The entire gulf coast was swept by destructive storms on the 1st inst. A number of towns were totally wrecked.

Is the church, branch or general, "carrying you," bearing with your waywardness, indifference, or worse? or, are you helping to lift it up and carry forward its work? It is one thing to be one of the "workers together for good;" it is another to be a dead weight—a barnacle, a hindrance to forward moving, to progress.

"The strongest natures are ever the calmest."

"Restlessness is a manifestation of weakness not outgrown."

Be early at church services. Composure of mind is essential to spirituality, and promptness to composure.

Original Articles.

MY FIRST.

While others are delving into prophecies' mysterious depths, or into essential characteristics of the church as a body, or elaborating the "six principles," my mind has been more especially led to consider former and latter-day revelations in their teachings upon matters of individual experience; at the same time, since I am a new comer, very careful observations have been made to learn whether the experiences of the people in this church correspond to revelation—especially latter-day revelation.

Faith in the system of truth, as revealed to Joseph Smith, has been unshaken from the time I joined this church. In fact, evidences have multiplied from time to time to confirm my faith—such evidences as are given in administering to the sick, and in tongues and prophecies, and in the abiding presence of the Holy Spirit; also in the consistency and harmony of latter-day revelation with former revelation, and that in every essential particular, thereby giving very strong internal evidence of the truth of these writings.

A careful study of the Book of Mormon and the Book Doctrine and Covenants has greatly edified me in the true sense of that word. Invariably "spiritual refreshing" has come to me while reading these books. The conviction of the divinity of these writings deepens as knowledge of them increases.

I cannot doubt that Joseph Smith was called, commissioned, and anointed of God to do what he did do; namely, restore the gospel anciently given to the saints—the gospel with "signs following" to divinely back up human instruments, and thus prove it to be of God. So likewise should every other minister be called from among men and authorized by present revelation from God to him personally. What less can be satisfactory to the individual himself?

Yes, the divine evidences in this latter-day work are sufficient for all necessary proof and consequent conviction and comfort; so that no one needs to change anchorage and seek other theological harbors for rest, safety, and satisfaction. Our theology is harmonious, consistent, and reasonable. Its fundamental principles are unchangeable, like its author. I am charmed with it. Its inspiration is seen on every page. A divine influence seems enshrined in its sacred thought. It cannot be read candidly and prayerfully without a spiritual uplifting.

The spirit and teaching of the Book of Mormon, when read by unprejudiced minds, are wholesome and helpful to all inquirers after truth. The book of Doctrine and Covenants, when taken as a whole and read with its historical connections, is a grand setting forth of gospel truth in a general way; and moreover it comes down to particulars very minutely, and so becomes modern and practical. In it we find the great cardinal doctrine of atonement, redemption, faith, repentance, baptism, obedience, and holiness clearly taught on the one hand; on the other hand there are special calls to individuals, particular warnings and instructions to designated persons. Much may be found in it of a local character that has to do with a specified place, person, or persons. This kind of teaching, while it has no direct bearing on others, is nevertheless full of instruction to all, since it reveals the divine will and method of working. Both books explain and amplify many principles and doctrines which are quite obscure in the King James Bible.

"But," says one, "you have told us what you think of their doctrine, books, and prophet, now tell us about the people." Very well, I will try to do so as best I can from a rather limited knowledge of less than three years. During that period I have devoted considerable time to the study of the books named, and have been deeply impressed with the high standard of saintly character taught and required as necessary to enter the celestial glory and dwell with Christ and those just persons who overcome "through the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony;" hence it is possible that I have been expecting too much of probationary saints. Whether I have or not, the books tell me that Latter Day Saints are to be lawkeepers and not lawbreakers, and so when one arises in meeting and confesses, "I do many things I ought not to do, and leave undone many things I ought to do," what conclusion do the hearers come to? Why of course they say such an one is a lawbreaker. He is living a life of rebellion. He virtually confesses that he is a rebel instead of a lawabiding citizen. Which is the more proper name for such an one, saint or sinner? Sin is the voluntary transgression of known law. If voluntary and intelligent, it is also willful. Now put the same testimony into its proper form, and what is it? It is thus: "I voluntarily and intelligently and willfully do many things which I ought not to do," and "I voluntarily, intelligently, and willfully leave undone many things which I ought to do."

Now I see many a good elder arise in righteous indignation and qualify and soften down the above conclusion, by talking about "infirmities," and "weaknesses," and he asks the Lord to forgive his "infirmities," and he takes special pains to tell the people that "there is no such thing as perfection in this life," and he quotes, "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us."

Pet theories aside, let me say to such, that while they will find plenty of sympathizers, they will not tone up spirituality nor advance the cause of Christ thereby. God have mercy on those who are forever apologizing for sin, and calling it "infirmity" and "weakness." Better say "sin" in most cases, for that is its right name. God says in all his revealings, "Quit sin!" "Keep my law!" "He that committeth sin is of the devil." "Reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin," etc. The whole system of divinity is an anathema against lawbreaking. Don't you see it this way who have been for forty years a church member? Or do you consider that you still have a license "to do many things you ought not to do," etc. Well, if so, God bless you. You'll get there. Where? Echo answers, "Where?"

There is another class of our people who seem to justify themselves in a more positive form of outward sin, and yet remain in church fellowship and enjoy, or have a semblance of enjoying its gracious benefits. They call on the elders for administration, partake of the sacrament, talk, sing, pray, and say "shibboleth" just like the faithful ones. "Yes! yes!" says one, "but you know the tares and the wheat are to grow together." In a general way, yes; but there is a limit to this tare (tear) business, otherwise the church will be badly torn to pieces. Who will write up the wheat side of this tare question?

How can intelligent Latter Day Saints be anything less than their name indicates? Considering the near coming of Christ, and the gathering and sifting time soon to be; considering what we must do and be to inherit the highest and best the Master will have to give; considering all the gracious revelations to us in these last days, it is strange that there can be such a neglect of tithing, searching the scriptures, and secret devotion.

This article is already too long, but before closing allow me, with uncovered head, to make obeisance to a large class of men and women in this church who are giving every outward evidence of keeping the law which entitles them to the highest glory. They are true followers of the Master. There is no class of people on this green earth who are more to be honored than they. What have they not cheerfully done and suffered for Christ's sake? They are to be kings and priests forever and ever. They are "the salt"—"the light" and the life of the church militant. God will take care of his own here and hereafter. While I believe in giving honor to whom honor is due, yet words fail to express my appreciation of a true Latter Day Saint. My desire is to spend an eternity with them. "Wouldn't you take in the untrue ones also?" It is written, "He shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." I'll choose it this way. Amen.

MORE BRIGHAMITE TRICKS.

While in St. Joseph, Missouri, last winter, the Brighamite elders were challenged by me to prove that Joseph Smith introduced and practiced the doctrine of polygamy; and in response to the challenge they produced in evidence the reprinted copy of the Nauvoo Expositor, and since then I have learned that they have done the same in other places; and I thought it might be well to furnish the Herald readers with the character of the evidence which they rely on to carry their points, they themselves being the witnesses.

The following quotations are from the Historical Record, published by Andrew Jenson, of the Brighamite Church, who is the statistician of that organization. On page 549, volume 7, we find this in regard to the character of the men who were responsible for the statements of the Nauvoo Expositor:—

About the 10th of May a prospectus of a paper called the Nauvoo Expositor was issued and distributed among the people by these apostates. The prospectus stated the intentions of the publishers. . . . Its signers were no others than the two Laws, the two Higbees, and the two Fosters, everyone of them vile, adulterous, base men, who had been guilty of the most outrageous wickedness.

So much in regard to the character of the men. Now the opinion of that historian in regard to the contents of the paper; page 550:—

The Expositor made its appearance June 7, 1844, and was filled with the foulest abuse of Joseph and the saints. . . . Almost every line breathed a murderous spirit, and it was very clear that if such a sheet were suffered to remain in existence, mobs would be raised, and the acts of violence and bloodshed which had been endured in Missouri would be repeated, and the saints be driven from their homes. Anything that disturbs the peace of a community is properly called a nuisance. This sheet was to all intents and purposes, a nuisance.

On page 773, volume 8, the historian quotes from B. H. Roberts, as follows:—

The first, and indeed the only number of the Expositor, was published on the 7th of June, 1844, and contained a most scandalous attack upon the most respectable citizens of Nauvoo. It at once filled the entire city with indignation, and the city council immediately took into consideration what would be the best method of dealing with it.

I have italicized the words, "vile, adulterous, and base men;" "foulest abuse," "most scandalous," etc., to call attention to them especially. No fiercer denunciation of men or things could be uttered than is contained in these paragraphs quoted. The vileness of the sheet is in keeping with the vileness of the men who produced it. What shall we say of the men and the cause which use such weapons to carry their points? If the establishment of the Nauvoo Expositor and its circulation was calculated to raise mobs and persecution then, and these men who have resurrected that "vile and libelous sheet" suffer at the hands of mobs and are persecuted as they claim, will they not simply be reaping what they sow? Only in this instance they are suffering, not for righteousness' sake. At any rate, the above reveals to what desperate straits these men are driven to sustain their theories, and fasten upon the innocent ones the responsibility of their own guilt. But as has been prophesied in days of old, their refuge of lies shall be swept away, and their vileness be revealed. Job was a farseeing man when he said, "Oh that mine enemy would write a book," for out of their own mouths they stand condemned.

UNBELIEF.

There is no unbelief.

Whoever plants a seed beneath the sod,
And waits to see it push away the clod,
Trusts he in God.

Whoever says, when clouds are in the sky,
"Be patient, heart; light breaketh by and by,"

Trusts the Most High.

Whoever sees 'neath winter's fields of snow
The silent harvest of the future grow,
God's power must know.

Whoever lies down on his couch to sleep,
Content to lock each sense in slumber deep,
Knows God will keep.

NANTYGLO, Wales, July 7.

Editors Herald:—I am pleased to say the work of the Lord is progressing here, though not so well as I should like. There is one thing evident, that the saving knowledge of the truth is made known to all who obey the gospel of Christ. Interest is good here in outdoor preaching. Brighamite elders, are busy preaching and tracting a few miles from here. They have a few converts at Abertillery. Myself and a few brethren have been at the places where they preach on the streets, making known the difference between them and the Reorganized Church. I generally read President Woodruff's manifesto and then compare it with the page cover advertisements; namely, books to defend blood atonement, plural and celestial marriage, one of which, a brother here received from a relative in Utah as an eye opener to us Josephites. I feel to go on in this work, realizing that God's hand rules for his people.

I add for the benefit of the saints the following incident which happened June 10, 1899. I and my wife went to see the beautiful scenery at Llanelly, Brecon, a few miles distant, and we were admiring the lovely waterfalls, and as we were wending our way by the side of the stream as hundreds of people do every holiday, Sr. Jones accidentally slipped on a green stone, which sent her headlong down the stream. I just caught her dress as she was going down a slope of rock ten feet in length; but I was on very awkward footing, and in trying to rescue her I slipped in too and in a moment we were struggling for our lives, in nine to ten feet of water. Neither of us could swim and no human help being near, shouting was useless, we knew. Awful thoughts pervaded our minds alike; friends, relatives, and what would be surmised, suicide perhaps, for saints this would be awful. The more we struggled the farther in we seemed to get. I cried to God, saying, "To die here is terrible." I thought of prophecies given by several brethren and promises in sickness to be restored for a purpose in God to labor for him; but hope was almost gone, yet I thought, "Death cannot be now," God having just raised me up, after ten months' suffering and affliction; his purposes cannot be thus; he will yet save us.

We expected to see a bright one come to our rescue, but God's ways are not ours. I now seemed to have supernatural power, and pushed my wife to cling to a rock. I got out then, and pulled her out. We then shouted aloud, praising God for our miraculous deliverance. A man that found our hats said that had he not found our hats on the top of the pool he would not have believed we had got out unaided.

I have taken many of the saints to view this spot and they too agree with me that the power of God saved us. This testimony with many others confirms our faith, and I say to all, as the good Master did, "Have faith in God." My desire and prayers are that Zion's cause may prosper.

The following verses were given to me by the Spirit in a fellowship meeting. For all good gifts and blessings, let God be praised.

O Zion, lovely Zion,
Our thoughts are still on thee;
God's promise we rely on,
Sweet land of liberty.

Zion, holy Zion,
Thy glory bright shall shine,
When all the saints are one in Christ
At that Millennium time.

The Son of God will come
To receive a righteous band,
Who mark of beast would not receive
In their foreheads or their hands.

Zion's children then shall have
The sealing power of God;
The dead shall rise from earth to skies
And shout the praise of God.

I remain your brother and colaborer in Christ,
THOMAS JONES.

TEMPLE, Ohio, July 25.

Editors Herald:—Reunion times are almost here again, and casting a retrospective, I note that the reminiscences begun last year were not completed. As a softening introductory to the unions now soon to follow, it may not be too late or out of place to finish. It was my introduction to a "World's Reunion" of saints. For so many years it had been my fortune, or misfortune, as the case may be, to be attendant upon things of less magnitude, towards the rising sun. But sometime everyone is apt to meet with an opportunity. This was mine.

I arrived in Woodbine, unaccompanied, at 8:30 p. m., September 14, a little worse for wear. Complained a little, but not much. I dislike to hear people complaining; it is the easiest thing in the world to do. When a number get at it it grows irksome. Seems to be epidemic with some. Even the well and strong ones begin. It goes like sneezing or coughing. One has the "rumatiz," a "stitch in the back," "crick in the neck," "indisposition," "bile on the stomach," "bowel complaint," etc.; indefinite, and all to but little purpose except to make others miserable. But what will be done when one is really in trouble? Do not say so much about it. If severe, retire to some quiet nook, call a friend, let wisdom have her perfect work, and fight it the best you can; never mind if it isn't in the papers.

Bro. S. B. Kibler, "who seemed to be somewhat" all through the reunion, met me at the depot. He showed me to his pleasant home, where I received a saints' welcome. In a day or so I learned that at one time I was well acquainted with Sr. Kibler, while yet in the teens, thereabout; stayed at her father's and preached in the neighborhood, cast sly glances at the girl (as people will do sometimes), and now she is a married woman, with children grown. A new introduction was needed. It struck me with force, started my thinker going over the past. Looked in the glass to see the color of my hair, with the thought, "Where am I at?" Now past meridian, yet I think I never was called on to preach a sermon from then until now but what I was ready to try at least. So time moves on, and we are somewhere along the line. Sr. Kibler is of the old stock, a thorough saint, every way. Her husband needs no reference. He is there all along the line and all the time.

Next morning I went out to the beautiful shady grove where the great white tent was spread. Bro. Kibler and others were busy arranging the seats and stands on the inside. My first speech was, "Where are you going to find people to fill all of this space?" "You wait," was the reply. Western people have the reputation of doing things on a great scale. At ten a. m. the reunion convened and organized by selecting Presidents Joseph Smith, Charles Derry, and the writer, to preside; S. C. Diggle, secretary; S. B. Kibler, chorister; James Pearsall, assistant; with other required aids; then adjourned. President Smith was absent, so the main duty of guiding fell upon the two last named; one a thorough Englishman, and the other a stalwart American, now yoked for duty. But what of it? Dewey had smashed the Spanish fleet and England and the United States had come together. The two flags were waving together in sympathetic union over the brave and the free. Then the gospel knows no Englishman, American, or any other nation as such. It takes in all nations who will serve in truth and in all times. But Bro. Derry and I had met before. Some of my first missionary efforts were made with him. We had eaten together at my mother's home; both now in the service many years. It was a pleasure to sit with him.

At 7:30, the writer, assisted by Bro. Derry and Mintun, made his maiden effort in the great tent, before an already assembled great audience, and still they were coming.

Friday night, Saturday, and Saturday night the people kept on coming; wagons, teams, tents, like a cloud. It seemed the whole country was turning "Mormon." The suggestion came, "The danger now is, 'popularity.'" At one time I knew nearly every saint in that part of the country; and now of acquaintances I had to pick them out, one here and one yonder, or pass them by unrecognized. My gray hairs did not look just right to them; favored Will Kelley some, but there was a change. We had all been in the war. Time had gone on; they too had changed. So we met, after so many years, and sound in the faith. The faith is the alpha and omega of everything with thorough saints. What is the world? What is the flower that fades, the bread that perishes, the chaff to the wheat?

Saturday evening was occupied by our brilliant young brother, A. M. Fyrando; the audience largely increased, the effort good.

Sunday was a perfect day. The sky was clear and a gentle breeze swept through the leafy bowers, fanned and refreshed the merry campers, while sunbeams gleamed from forest, farm, and town. Watermelons were piled on the ground; an eating house stood at the entrance, a book stand in front of the tent, a spring of water convenient, small tents on every side, and wagons and teams in the rear—what a line of them! Pleasant faces, happiness and good cheer were everywhere. It was the "World's Reunion" of saints. "Is it the beginning of the millennium?" the thought came. But this was soon eradicated. A man drove up and hitched his team in the passage way; the police ordered him to move it; he refused; then a fight. I made up my mind there was no millennium yet; old Satan wasn't bound. There was a large number in attendance at the morning prayer service. Each one seemed anxious to say something in favor of the great work; but there was not time.

At 10:45 the writer, assisted by Bro. D. Dobson, stood under the white canopy before a full audience to make a second effort. It was a serene presence. The Lord was in the camp and it was no trouble to preach; seemed to do itself. Just sweat and blossomed right out from the air; gathered like the dew-drops.

At 2:30 p. m. Bro. Charles Derry, assisted by Bro. Fyrando, occupied the hour. It was a rare occasion, and Bro. Derry seemed to be there on purpose to meet it. His best days seemed to be upon him as that round, full voice, which would be noted anywhere, swept over that great audience with such force and emphasis in support of the message of "good tidings of great joy." It was a pleasure to listen.

At evening Bro. Charles Butterworth, supported by William H. Kelley, occupied. It was an interesting occasion. Brn. Butterworth and Kelley were soldiers together in the American war. This intensifies sympathy. The speaker acquitted himself manfully. Every word seemed to be the right thing said, and put in the right place, effect magical. Altogether it was a memorable day. The singing was elegant and the whole day's service seemed to be on a rising inflection, from morning until evening. Everyone seemed to be happy, and contentment and good fellowship reigned supreme; all satisfied to be saints.

The meetings continued throughout the week up to high water mark, in point of effort and interest. Not a murmur or word of discontent, I think was heard upon the grounds. That is rare. But of course space will not permit a delineation of the week's services. What is given was introductory; the rest may be inferred. Among those taking a leading part, however, and not mentioned elsewhere, were Joseph Seddon, Jonas Chatburn, Frank Criley, W. A. Smith, George Montague, F. A. Smith, D. Brewster, William Belville, W. H. Garrett, J. C. Crabb, S. Wood, H. O. Smith, D. R. Chambers, C. Carlson, Henry Kemp, J. Baker, and mayhaps others. Every one called upon seemed prepared for an effort.

The Sabbath school work occupied a considerable time, under the guidance of Bro. T. A. Hougas. It was made a leading feature and attracted much attention.

Wednesday, the 21st, President Joseph Smith arrived upon the grounds, and on Thursday at 10:45 and 7:30 he discoursed with ease and interestingly, being assisted by Brn. A. W. Ballard and S. F. Cushman. Our President is no shirk; walks right in to do his part, sometimes when it would be more becoming did he guard with greatest care his physical, to keep quiet. Better to wear, however, than rust, even with the tic doloreaux. He is popular among saints, and his presence infused new animation in the meetings.

By Saturday Bishop Hilliard was on the grounds, and at 7:30 made a rattling among the dry bones along his lines; seemed to have on his war paint; struck an attitude; gesticulated after the Bryan order; stamped and orated until everybody seemed to be going his way. He seemed bound that every saint thereafter, if not before, should believe in colleges, as well as paying tithing; anyway, to be willing to pay the debt contracted by themselves on their own. It was a "hot time in the old town" for irreconcilables.

Sunday, the 25th, was the day of days, the last day of the reunion. The wind blew briskly from the south; the top of the big tent rose and fell like ocean waves, and what was loose, of whatever wear, fluttered in the breeze. The sun shone brightly, the atmosphere warm, and there was dust in the air. Crowds gathered until the grounds seemed packed. After prayer service at 10:30 President Smith discoursed effectively. All could not hear. Thousands were present. The writer was ailing but said nothing. He was on for 2:30 p. m. He longed for the time—not to come. But it came. Bro. Hilliard was to open, but he was called out to address an overflow, out on the grounds, yet there was more people than could hear. The full time came. Tent curtains flapped in the wind, a kind of restlessness seemed to pervade everything, yet there was anxiety to hear. At length we had our say, whatever the effect. A good report came of Bro. Hilliard's effort. If anything was lost in the day, it was gained at evening, when the new apostle, J. W. Wight, posed before a greatly reduced but still large and attentive crowd. Quiet reigned, and Bro. Wight made a fine showing for his side, which was drunk in by most of the hearers. Then followed music, adjournment, benediction, and the "World's Reunion" was a thing of the past.

Monday morning following, along with others, I took train for Omaha. It was too hot and disagreeable to venture out to the fair, so changed cars and went to Macedonia and stayed over with Bro. James M. Kelley, and Wednesday, the 28th, arrived at Lamoni, Iowa. Spent the time until October 8 in trying to get ready to leave for the East. On the 8th, by invitation from President Smith, I accompanied him to Spickards, Missouri, fifty miles distant. We went with his private conveyance, two horses and an open buggy. The country was new to me; the road lay mainly through prairie lands, farms upon either side, but there were large bodies of timber also. The country was now rolling with a fine view for miles away, then hilly, knolls, and creek bottoms, desirable lands and undesirable. President Smith took pleasure in pointing out the most conspicuous places. He knows Northern Missouri pretty well. We dined at Cainesville. In the afternoon we passed through two or three little towns, the names of which are forgotten. The road lay along a high ridge. I thought this the most desirable country I had seen. Of course things looked Missouri like. In spite of all that is said and sung of "Zion in the fields of the woods" and on the "sides of the north," there has been so much wrought reflective of Missouri, it takes effort to keep down one's prejudices, like something scared, all the time expecting to see something, and feel like moving erect, with ears dropped forward and eyes looking either way. Human as well as animal nature is strange, after all. Journeying, however, in President Smith's company makes up for much. He is genial and companionable; can see a point before it is made and keep up his side in a running fire of wit and humor.

About sundown we arrived at Bro. McVey's, where we received a kindly welcome and stayed over night. Met with Bro. Alfred White here also. I was tired and went to bed early, but Bro. Smith went to meeting three miles away.

Sunday, the 9th, the little church built by industrious and sacrificing hands in the neighborhood was dedicated. President Smith preached the sermon, which was a good one, and the writer offered the prayer. A heavy rain came up, and few, comparatively to what were expected, were present. But the business was accomplished. Brn. A. White and Frank Chatburn were the missionaries here, but they turned the main work over to the new ones, and aided. A child was blessed and there was a baptism, Bro. Frank Chatburn officiating.

Monday, the 10th, in company with Brn. McVey and Chatburn, we visited Spickards. At evening, assisted by Brn. White and Chatburn, I preached in the newly dedicated church, Bro. Smith, this time, going to bed early. The saints were very kind to us, and will compare favorably with the best; but their names we failed to write down.

We were favorably impressed with the country and people. It looked to be a good place even for a lazy man. Things seemed to grow anyway. Prairie and timber lands about equally divided; plenty of water and a good climate; fruit and fowl in abundance. What flocks of turkeys! Chicken every day. I felt some like becoming a permanent resident, and I thought things had a pretty good hold on President Smith.

On Tuesday we returned to Lamoni. Sr. McVey prepared us a bountiful lunch, and the horses were provided for. We nooned in a nice little grove west of Cainsville. I was interested in seeing what President Smith knew about timber, whether it was all book learning, or some practical. We took a walk out in the grove, and he soon selected out the burr oak, jack oak, red oak, white oak, post oak, hickory, ash, dogwood, possibly other kinds. His opinion was that black-jack made the best firewood of all the oaks. I found my companion up to date on the wood question, so laid in a supply of black-jack for winter. We were sometimes cheerful, sometimes solemn. Talked of old time experiences in Missouri; the mobbers, the saints, Zion, revelation, visions, dreams, and politics. The day was passed pleasantly, at least with the writer, and altogether he booked it down as among his sunny days.

Arrived at Lamoni at dusk to find all well; soon to learn that on Saturday following I would be expected to start to Michigan, and so on East for the winter; notwithstanding I heard of a fellow who wished to enter the ministry in order to get a rest. I admire (?) him. Don't you?

WILLIAM H. KELLEY.

LAMONI, Iowa, July 27.

Editors Herald:—I believe I can truly say that my love and admiration for the restored gospel are gradually increasing. In it we find ample provision for the removal of all our imperfections, and for the development of all the good that is found within us. This latter-day work is a perfect system of truth, which has emanated from the divine Being; while outside of it, we find truth and error, in different proportions, in all the different creeds and systems, both religious and irreligious, the former being presented to the people in fragmentary ways.

All this work needs, to be appreciated, is to be understood. Our appreciation of it grows stronger and stronger with our increased knowledge of its principles, provisions, and promises. But how shall we secure this necessary and constantly increasing knowledge of the work? Important question, indeed! First, we must see to it that our motives are right, and our desires pure. We must "hunger and thirst after righteousness." Humble and earnest prayer, with reading and meditation, (in short, right living,) will bring the blessing.

Some time ago, in a communication from England or Wales, Bro. F. G. Pitt expressed his regret and disapprobation of a seeming tendency, in the church, to use high titles. I appreciated this criticism. What possible good is to be secured by the use of high titles where the office held is known by the people, or where there is no knowledge, and consequently no appreciation of the offices of First Presidency, Apostle, Patriarch, and High Priest? Why not use the simple title of Elder when reference is had to those holding the higher priesthood? So far as I am concerned, this is title enough.

"For one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren."—Matt. 23: 8.

In the last Herald is found a letter from Bro. Charles Derry, containing much valuable instruction. I hope the saints will give it a careful and prayerful reading. It indicates in no uncertain way the needs of the hour.

In the past, as I believe, we have been too anxious about getting people into the church, but not anxious enough about their conduct and development after their first obedience to the truth. It is more important to secure the complete salvation of those who have accepted the gospel, (so far as we are able to do so,) than it is to bring others into the church, provided this latter effort necessitates the neglect of the saints.

The successes and failures of the past are strongly suggestive of the needs of the present. To extend our work as widely and rapidly as we can, while we take good care of what we have, is, I think, our reasonable duty. But undue haste, which resulted in unsafe building, with a seeming desire to report baptisms, etc., has been one of the leading causes which has led to the present, and almost lifeless, condition of many of the branches.

I do not believe that it is necessary for us to be continually bending under the burdens of heavy indebtedness, either as individuals or as a church; nor do I believe that God looks with favor upon such a condition. We must reach a different basis, and pursue a different policy, I verily believe, before we secure that degree of permanent prosperity promised of God.

I will not take space to detail what little I have done for the cause. Have tried to do all that I well could under the circumstances. O that I was able to do more.

The Ottumwa Courier, in its efforts to neutralize the effects of Bro. J. S. Snively's debate with a Utah elder, evidently made a mistake. Our reply has been published in the Ottumwa Press, and in the Independent. Bro. J. R. Evans succeeded in getting a short but good article inserted in the Democrat; so, I think so far as the newspaper fight is concerned, we came out in good shape. We are thankful to God, whose work it is, that we are trying to defend, for such favorable results from the rostrum and the press; but when, oh when, will pulpit and press cease repeating falsehood to the people?

Your brother,

J. R. LAMBERT.

MUSCATINE, Iowa, July 24.

Editors Herald:—We are still holding tent meetings in this city with fair interest. Last Tuesday we were called to leave our tent for the day to go four miles north to preach the funeral sermon of a brother who did not belong to the church. I think he had heard but one sermon and that was about four weeks ago. I was called upon to preach his brother's funeral sermon, and he did not belong to the church either.

The last week past has been a very pleasant week to me in the work of the Master. Bro. and Sr. W. B. Thomas, from Center Junction, Iowa, came down and spent a few days with saints and attended our meetings, and it did me good to see their pleasant faces in our midst. They came by the way of Masillon and brought Bro. Warren Turner, our district president, with them, and we had his kind assistance for a few evenings and we appreciated it. Bro. Turner is a noble brother and we think worthy of the position that he occupies, and we recommend him to the saints of the Eastern Iowa district; and if we hearken to his wise counsel we will all come up higher.

Last Tuesday Bro. and Sr. W. B. Thomas took Bro. Turner, Sr. Yingling, and the writer in their carriage to the funeral, and there was quite a large procession. Mr. Miller was an old settler of Muscatine County. We came back to the city by the way of Bro. C. G. Dykes', and O, what a happy surprise we had there! And we found there Srs. William Strang, Cora Potter, and Clara Johnston, from Rock Island; also Brn. Patterson, J. W. Adams, and Bro. Russell, from Illinois; and then last of all who should we see seated at the head of the table? Bro. J. C. Crabb. What a pleasant meeting for the writer; what a joyful time we had! But the worst of all, we found Sr. Dykes very sick, but we called a little prayer meeting, Bro. J. C. Crabb in charge, and then she was administered to and was blessed at once; and she is one of the handmaidens of the Lord that is worthy of the blessings of God. And Bro. and Sr. Dykes love to administer to the servants of God, and they have been a brother and sister indeed to the writer; and I can say to my traveling brethren, You always have a home there. Well, about four o'clock we all started for the city to attend tent meeting that night, leaving Bro. and Sr. Dykes and family rejoicing. We arrived at the tent about six p. m., that I had left all day in care of the boys, and found things all right.

Now we were in a quandary; six preachers, who now would preach? But the lot fell on Bro. J. C. Crabb, and we were blest to hear our aged brother defend the truth, especially the writer; for Bro. J. C. Crabb was one of the brethren that had charge of the series of meetings held in Persia, Iowa, when my wife and I obeyed the gospel; and while writing tears of joy come to my eyes when I think of that blessed day.

Well, the singing was grand, as their voices floated out on the night air. Srs. Strang, Potter, and Johnston are beautiful singers; and then just think we had Bro. Russell to preside at the organ; and then to make the singing complete, you that are acquainted with the writer, can imagine how the air did ring when we saints did sing. Now at the close of the meeting came the hardest part for the writer, when it came good bye, good bye, and we all parted again, maybe some never to meet again in this life.

Well the good Lord is blessing our efforts in this place. Yesterday was a joyful day for us. The saints and friends came to the morning meeting and brought their baskets to have dinner in the tent. After the morning meeting we went down to the river and had the pleasure of leading five precious souls into the waters of baptism into the kingdom of God. This makes eight we have baptized in this city. We came back to the tent, had our dinner, then about 3:30 p. m., gave them a short talk and then had the confirmation meeting; and, dear brethren and sisters, for me to move forward and do the confirming alone, O, how weak I felt! but as we went forward to do our duty, that Spirit of love and peace and freedom was with me to bless, and after confirmation we had a prayer and testimony meeting, assisted by Bro. Brooks, and a noble brother too, and it did my soul good to hear the saints arise and testify to the truthfulness of this work, and especially the young children just come in. My heart was full and I felt that my labor had not been in vain here. Just before the meeting closed Bro. C. G. Dykes came to me and said: "Bro. Smith, I am ready to be ordained now." He had been called to the office of priest about a year ago through Bro. J. W. Peterson and others, and had been voted by district conference to be ordained, but had refused until God would reveal it to him, and he felt within his soul now, "Father, it is enough;" and we ordained him to the office of priest. We were blessed in the ordination, but we did something that made me feel bad; I had to do the confirming alone, and when we were called upon to ordain Bro. D. I forgot or did not think that Bro. Brooks could assist in the ordination, and it never came to my mind until I called upon him to dismiss, and then it came to me; but Bro. B. is one of those loving spirited brethren that can overlook a mistake.

Good attendance last night; expect to move to the northern part of the district in a few days, or farther north, don't know just how far. It looks bright for the work here. We are hoping and praying for a branch in this city, in the near future. Dear saints, please remember me when at the altar of prayer.

Your loving brother,

W. A. SMITH.

P. S.—When any of the brethren call at this city you will find a welcome at Bro. Houston Yingling's, East Sixth Street, No. 915.

W. A. S.

HARP, Ala., July 18.

Editors Herald:—We had a good conference; Bro. M. M. Turpen was with us, also Bro. G. T. Chute, of Bay Minette, Alabama. Large congregation on Sunday, and sorry we could not accommodate with house room under the gospel sound.

Dear saints, we look back and see some mistakes, but let us look forward for better times and cooperate in the Master's vineyard, with loving zeal in the wisdom of the Lord, not only say "Lord, Lord," but do his will; get the beam from our eyes, then we can see clearly and will be willing to work in the Master's cause.

In bonds,

M. K. HARP.

GLADSTONE, Ill., July 25.

Editors Herald:—I am isolated from the church, and know nothing of the progress of the truth in the world only as I see it published in the Herald. I am glad to see the truth onward. I would be glad to have any of the elders call on me at any time. I am doing what little I can in a private way to keep the testimonies of the Lord and stand by the divinity of the word, which word evidently contains a foreknowledge of things to come.

The Apostle Paul declares the church is built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; the chief and fountain head of light of the whole body, the church, the foreknowledge of all things, the light and the hope of the world and of other worlds also; for we read in Hebrews that by faith the worlds were framed by his word, and for his glory were they created; and Christ prayed, "Father, glorify me with the glory that I had with thee before the world was."

May we all attain to that glorified state, being sanctified through the truth and foreknowledge of God the Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To all the saints, greeting.

JACOB L. RUST.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.

Editors Herald:—We have a branch of Brighamites here and they are working hard to get the people to hear them. They are preaching in the public square, and Bro. Bond, hearing of it, enters into the warpath and takes up the same place and fires away with the words of truth and shows to the people the differences of the two churches, because they (the Brighamites) say there is no difference.

Bro. Bond has challenged them to prove that they are Latter Day Saints by the books, but they sneak away as though they were afraid of him. Bro. Bond was well supported by his brethren and sisters. My prayer is that God will bless Bro. Bond with health and strength so that he might do a good work in this city.

Yours in the gospel,

T. H. MOORE.

SOMERVILLE, Victoria, June.

Editors Herald:—It has been some considerable time since I last contributed a line to the columns of our valuable paper; not because of lack of interest in it, but having nothing of special importance to communicate. I have been doing very little towards propagating the restored gospel for the last few months, on account of ill health. My whole system appeared to be run down and out of order; so that after preaching once on a Sunday I would be upset and nervous for days; and when just recovering, I took the whooping cough, which has shook me about for nearly a month, in a most unpleasant manner. Our four boys were down with the "whoop" at the same time, but we are now all on a fair way to recover.

It is rather discouraging, both to myself and the saints, to realize that we have only one missionary in Victoria, and he kept so long at home; but I hardly think anyone feels it more keenly than myself. I suppose we must all find our own "Gethsemane," and climb the heights "Calvary" to suffer a brief moment with "Him," somewhere along life's pilgrimage. There is one thought that I prize a great deal in this latter-day work; and that is, I have never had cause to doubt its divinity, for the God of heaven has stood by and confirmed its truthfulness and upheld its representatives at every turn; and all who accept its precepts with a contrite heart and live up to its requirements become living witnesses to its divinity by the operations of the Holy Spirit which leads and guides into all truth.

I have been highly pleased to read the articles of late on "Gathering," and must say from what I can observe, I think the time has fully come to talk "gathering" or to advocate the principles which will prepare the heart and mind to be ready for such an event when it does come. There are many reasons which could be given why we are not ready to gather at present, of which most of us are acquainted. One will suffice to explain: There is the principle of tithing, which so many cannot see at present, and this will have to be taught in such a cogent manner, under the operation of the Holy Spirit, that they can see and comply, before they are ready to gather to Zion. Some of us are too "wise in our own conceit," and pride ourselves on our power of reason, I fancy.

I would change my mind a little if all of Zion's children could truthfully breathe this sentiment "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy way acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." I think the Lord will not hasten to add revelations until we are willing to accept and live up to the ones already in hand. I long for the time when we will learn not to be nagging at the Bishop and his counselors about their interpretations of the financial law of the church, when God has put them there to execute that law, but honor each one in his calling as we would like to be honored.

May peace dwell within Zion's walls, and her stakes be strengthened, that the way may be prepared before us, is my great desire.

In bonds,

C. A. BUTTERWORTH.

ORCHARDVILLE, Ill., July 28.

Editors Herald:—We are still hoping, working, and praying for the good and final success of Zion's cause, trusting that when the battles and conflicts of this earthly probation are all ended that we may be fully prepared to enter into that eternal rest prepared for all the true and the good.

Divine approval seems to have characterized our work since our connection with the latter-day work, and we hope to live worthy of such divine favor throughout all time to come. We have not baptized great numbers of people in our mission this year, but in small numbers the honest in heart are coming into the fold of Christ. Four have lately been added to our branch here by baptism and three have been baptized by Bro. Stead near Alma, in Marion County, where he seems to have a good interest.

Bro. Stead has gone into Crawford County to administer the rite of baptism to other parties who have lately demanded it. Clark Braden has been here of late and delivered six lectures against the church, and quite a large number of people were out to hear him both in the church and also those outside. But if he has convinced any of our people here that Campbellism is true, I have not heard it.

Arrangements seem to be about completed for a discussion between him and Bro. I. N. White, missionary in charge, on same propositions debated by them at Eldorado Springs, Missouri; viz.: "Was Joseph Smith a Prophet of God?" 2. "Is the Christian Church (commonly called Campbellites) in fact the Church of God, harmonizing in faith, doctrine, organization, and practice with the Church of Jesus Christ set up by divine authority eighteen hundred years ago?"

So far as I can see I don't think Braden has anything new against the work. Those who are well informed in the Braden and Kelley debate have about all that Braden has in substance to present against us. He is not such a foe to be dreaded after all as some might suppose who never have heard his tirade of abuse against the church. I think we have dozens of elders who have not been reported as great debaters either who are fully competent to meet him in debate and do it successfully too, and I think he ought to be met in every locality where he misrepresents the work in the presence of those who are not acquainted with his mode of warfare. Because he has been met in other places by our brethren where he has assailed the work is no evidence to me whatever that he should not be met in other localities where he may assail the work in like manner. I do not fear a discussion here with him would injure our cause in the least, as hundreds of people are likely to come and hear our side who would not come otherwise. Again, if God's servants are required to meet the adversary of souls in all his cunning work to blind the children and to overthrow the holy church of God, then why should they hesitate to meet "I, Clark Braden," in a public discussion anywhere upon this earth where he might destroy our influence for good by his glaring misrepresentations? So far as I am concerned I shall contend that he should be met in debate in every vicinity where he may slander the work, and thus keep him from blinding the hearts of those who are honest and uninformed in regard to our position, provided he will meet us upon fair issues. Pray for our success.

Yours, still working and praying that truth and right may prevail,

F. M. SLOVER.

GAYLÖRD, Kan., July 29.

Editors Herald:—I left Oklahoma April 15, in company with wife and baby Maude, for Colorado, having arranged with the Presidency and those in charge of the two fields for a transfer, it appearing that the climate in that field was decidedly against me. We traveled with team northward from Blackwell, Oklahoma, to Delphos, Kansas, where we made a short stop with relatives and friends. This is a place where the writer had done missionary work three years ago and where a fine interest was manifested. We had a good hearing for an effort Sunday night.

Thence we traveled to Blue Rapids, calling at "the land of Goshen" on our way. After a stop of about ten days at Blue Rapids we turned westward to Greenleaf, where the writer "laid up for repairs" a few days. We next moved to Cuba, in Republic County, calling on old friends about four days. Back to Greenleaf again and the decision is reached that we will locate at once and make our home there and the missionary will travel alone the rest of the journey. We were very kindly assisted in various ways by the saints of Greenleaf, and on the morning of July 20 the parting good-bye was said to home and saints and the ponies were headed westward. Fortunately I met with Brn. Smith and Carson, from Idylwild, who were on their way to Minersville, about thirty miles west. We traveled together during the day, camping at noon in Strawberry. It relieved the lonely sad feeling of the missionary to have the company of these brethren that day.

The following night found me at Grandpa Knapp's place near Beloit, where I preached and visited for nearly a week. Here I preached years ago, doing about my first missionary work, and preaching the first sermon ever presented in that place. I found Bro. Mannerling here upon my arrival and had a pleasant visit with him and enjoyed his association while there in gospel duty.

I spent some time with my brother, Thomas J. Duncan, who by the way is a Methodist. He is in very poor health and probably has consumption. Three years ago while I was visiting with him he requested me to administer to him in company with a Methodist minister. This I declined to do, giving my reasons that we did not recognize the priesthood of that church, and offering either 'to officiate alone or to call an elder of the Latter Day Saints. He declined my proposition and so I advised him to call two elders of his own church if he wished to be administered to. Since my return I learn from him that the Methodist elders did not administer; that while one of them was willing to proceed along the usual line employed by us, the other claimed that the ancient practice was to anoint the whole body, and that this custom must be followed if he officiated, so nothing was done in the matter and the question was dropped. I make note of this to show that the Methodist Church at least is coming our way on doctrine, even if they fail to see the point on priesthood.

But to resume the story of my travels: I left Beloit the 27th inst., calling over night with Bro. James Coop and family near Downs. The following day I came to this place, where I will spend Sunday and fill appointments made for me by local authorities. In two or three days I shall pass on westward, calling at Edmond with saints in that vicinity. My health is improving and I am much better than for some time past. I believe that I shall yet get strong and rugged again. I shall be pleased to yet spend many years preaching the gospel, and fulfill the prophetic utterance spoken through Bro. G. T. Griffiths at my confirmation more than twenty years ago, which was, "Thou shalt do a great and marvelous work."

My confidence in the work increases with each year's additional experience, and I rejoice to see the cause advance. Several baptisms are reported from Oklahoma where the writer has labored in connection with other brethren. It was hard to say good-bye to the saints of that field, and their kindness will long be remembered.

My permanent address is Greenleaf, Washington County, Kansas.

In gospel bonds,

C. R. DUNCAN.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 29.

Editors Herald:—Our reunion at Anaheim was, in some respects, the best I ever attended. Though the number of speakers was limited (Bro. Chatburn and myself), yet the good Father condescended to graciously bless our feeble efforts, and the saints were more than satisfied; they were filled with joy unspeakable. I am satisfied that it augers much for the work in Southern California. It was another "waymark" indicating a long stride forward.

While Bro. Chatburn dealt herculean blows at "religion so-called," I occupied part of my time in educating the saints along practical lines. The "gathering," "all things common," "equality" and "consecration," were all considered; and, though at first quite a number objected, yet during my last effort along this line the Lord overshadowed his servant and the entire camp was melted to tears, and men who hitherto had stood out urging that "the time has not come yet," came to me with tears in their eyes saying, "Bro. Williams, I cannot withstand the witness to the truth of your position as given me of God to-day." Had a roll call been taken, as to how many were ready to consecrate their last dollar to the church and enter the Zion cooperative commonwealth. I know that the flower of the church in Southern California would not have been found wanting.

The saints here are anxious, yea, waiting for the church to move out as God has already commanded them; and let me assure the Presidency and Bishopric that they will meet with moral and substantial financial support from this district whenever the move is made.

With the law of consecration now in force, (for God said in 1894, "The law given to the church in section forty-two, over the meaning of some parts of which there has been so much controversy is as if it were given to-day"—D. C. 122:6,) we should at no distant day commence to call for consecration "for the purpose of purchasing lands for the public benefit of the church, and building houses of worship, and building up the New Jerusalem which is hereafter to be revealed, that my covenant people may be gathered in one, in that day when I shall come to my temple. And this I do for the salvation of my people." (D. C. 42:10.) If we wait for God to speak farther ere we proceed to enforce what has already been given, I fear it will be another rebuke and reiteration of past communications as most of the late revelations have been.

What if all things are not right in Zion? There is a cause for it, and I am morally certain it is largely due to the present accursed order of doing things; and instead of an improvement we can but expect to see the evil aggravated under the present regime.

Instead of the inhabitants of Lamoni and other places continuing the chaotic methods of the world—competition, every man for himself, thus begetting petty strifes, jealousy, hatred, and division, why not commence and establish a nucleus for the gathering?

Competition divides. Coöperation unites. If we continue to live under competition, will we not always be divided? If we institute coöperation, will the gathering together not necessarily follow? If a tithe of the energy expended by many of the brethren and saints in discussing corrupt and petty partisan politics was expended in the study of God's plan "for the salvation of my people," lasting benefit would follow. The Devil laughs when he sees leading churchmen all split up and divided over local and general politics.

I am satisfied, if God's word is true, that the rectification of moral and social wrongs, both municipal and national, lies not in the hand of either of the political parties. All are, or will be, but the tools of plutocracy. Nothing but the enforcement of "God's plan" will save either this land or any part of it.

As the battle 'twixt labor and capital waxes warmer and the toiler is crushed down to absolute slavery, then the worm will turn and all o'er America, and the world for that matter, every man's hand will be against his neighbor, and carnage and chaos will reign. Only those who are living under God's law will be safe.

Let us shun partisan or party politics and bend our entire energy to consummate God's "equality plan." There is not an issue before the American people to-day but what I can find a clear and explicit solution of it in the Book of Mormon or Doctrine and Covenants. May the General Conference of 1900 mark the initiation of the divine order "for the salvation of my people."

There have been thirty-five additions in this district during the last five months, and now with the added impetus given the work through the advent of Bro. Chatburn we hope for greater things.

Sr. Crane, eighty-seven years of age, passed over to the other side the 21st inst. She has been a member of the church since 1838. Bro. Crane is very infirm and will not live long.

We expect to break ground for the erection of our new church next week.

We have had near a dozen earthquake shocks of late, two quite heavy ones, sufficient to satisfy the most adventurous. Some damage was done in various parts of the country, but no lives lost. People here do not become much exercised over such little (?) things.

It is quite cool here at present. Wraps are necessary after sundown. How is it with you?

Yours in hope,

T. W. WILLIAMS.

HARTFORD, Mich., Aug. 1.

Editors Herald:—The series of two-days' meetings in the Southern Michigan district have been successful and are progressing splendidly. Galien, Troy, Buchanan, and Hartford have entertained the efforts with commendable zeal. At Buchanan and Hartford the occasions were made memorable by the Sunday school service under the direction of our esteemed superintendent, Sr. J. H. Royce, whose labors in the department have so stimulated and rendered the work successful in the district.

The gatherings have been pleasant and edifying. Growth is apparent all along the line, toward higher ground. However, additions to the ranks come slowly, the limited number of workers causing a lull in that direction. Efforts to hold the position of advanced lines already gained are receiving attention. Elder G. A. Smith is pushing the work to a nice advantage as presiding officer. Has a cute faculty of doing business "on the square." Bro. Granger is also in line of duty, and progressing in the good way. Bro. Stroh, Bishop's agent, now doing his first mission work, is in the front, to inspire with his meek and enviable way, the department in which he is "set for defense." Growth is perceptible in our brother.

Elders E. L. Kelley and Alex. H. Smith dropped in at Hartford, Friday p. m., and the services were beautiful. Light came in straight lines, and all felt duly encouraged by the gracious teachings, especially on Sunday evening service, when a quiet melting spirit accompanied the speaker—Elder A. H. Smith—pervading the audience, lifting the mind to the heavenly, the beatific, the grand.

Those attending from a distance were, Bro. and Sr. Royce and Johnnie, of Baroda; Srs. Dora and Ola Green, Galien; Bro. Kirby, Allegan; Sr. Robert Crawford, son Alvin and wife, Decatur; with citizens of Hartford and vicinity, made the gathering very interesting. The few saints entertaining as they did, royally, are worthy of praise. While we have some dark and discouraging experiences in this district, the many good, earnest saints are usually in line and pushing the interests of the great cause. Victory will surely come, and peace crown the ending.

Our next point is Little Prairie Ronde. But we will stop on the way and raise the ensign at Hamilton, in Bro. Crawford's neighborhood, on Thursday and Friday evenings.

In hope,

HIGBEE, Mo., August 1.

Editors Herald:—Held four cottage and seven chapel meetings at Hannibal; the smallest attendance seven and largest about a hundred. I am of the opinion a work for the Lord could be done there, if we had a place to meet and a live minister located there who would preach every Sabbath, and by an upright life, gain the confidence of the people. One family of Utah Mormons reside there, but they will not attend our meetings.

Have been here since the 21st ult. Have a better attendance than at any former visit, notwithstanding many of the brethren are away from home on account of the strike among the miners.

I am satisfied from observation that it is neither wise nor safe for the saints to become overzealous in worldly operations or organizations. Like Israel of old they should "stand still and see the salvation of God," or as directed in a later revelation, "stand in holy places." If absolutely necessary to obtain employment they have a membership with like laborers, it would be to their spiritual advantage to play the part of sleeping partners; that is, to keep their dues paid up, but take no active part in the aggressive work. The danger that I perceive is, saints are in association with those that are reckless and by times unwise and unjust in conclusion and action. This is liable to work to the brethren a loss of the Spirit and a shipwreck of faith. We cannot afford to lose any of our numbers, neither to have their usefulness crippled.

On the watchtower,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

SOLDIERS GROVE, Wis., July 31.

Editors Herald:—It is with deep interest that I note the events happening along in connection with the progress of the church as they are found noted on the pages of your paper from week to week. However, during the past few months it has only been now and again that I have been permitted to briefly scan its pages. First, very much of the time I have not been where it was to be had; and, second, had but little time to read it, even when opportunity afforded.

The months of April and May were spent at Buckwheat, Hayke, Flora, and some little time at Lancaster in Grant County, in company with Bro. Peter Muceus. At Hayke we had quite good attendance, considering the busy time of year. Some few seemed interested.

We worked while there, both clearing and planting, preparatory for a harvest of corn, for Bro. August Cratz, as well as clearing and sowing gospel seed preparatory for a harvest of souls when the Lord shall come with his reapers.

At Buckwheat and Flora I think good was done by encouraging saints and interesting others; but in these places, as is so often found in others, we found a great need for good men to minister to the saints and build up the work where once the foundation had been laid.

On June 4 the pleasant association of Bro. Peter and I came to a close; he starting east to Iowa County to labor for a short time and later to attend the district conference in Walworth County, while I started north to Crawford and other counties to labor.

On my way I stopped a short time at Bradtville, and preached a few sermons. I also called at Wyalusing, where I found Bro. J. H. Baumer full of zeal and interest in the Lord's work.

Since coming to Crawford, Richland, and Vernon counties I have been busily engaged. In Excelsior and in a community near by I held meetings for several weeks, with good attendance and seemingly good interest. Several families seemed interested. One man, a class leader and local minister for the United Brethren, seemed in a fair way for accepting the gospel. Whether any will or not I cannot tell. The harvest is the Lord's and I trust he will care for the wheat.

Yesterday I began meeting in this community, with good attendance and prospects for a good opening in gospel work. When I get through there are several other places in this locality where I think good openings can be had, where I expect to occupy.

There are eleven or more families, or parts of families, living in this region of country, but very much scattered. Among them is Bro. C. W. Lange, who perhaps some of the pioneers of the Reorganization will remember. The old brother is now passing through the evening shades of life, and is confined to his bed, where he has been for months, and isolated from the association of the saints. The only source of consolation in gospel work, which he so loves, is the reading of the Herald and Ensign. A few days ago when I visited his bedside and began to converse on gospel work the aged brother began to relate some of his ministerial experience in Iowa, Wisconsin, the Canadas, and other places in the early years of the Reorganization, and as he did so the aged brother's zeal and interest all seemed to revive as in days of old, and he almost seemed to forget his age and affliction. But to hear of the trials, persecution, and deprivation experienced by the brother in the years that have faded and gone, was a lesson to the young missionary and gave added courage. And as I looked upon the aged brother's affliction and turned from his lonely bedside, my sympathy felt to say, God bless the dear old brother's few remaining days of life.

Your brother in bonds,
LEONARD HOUGHTON.

MOORING, Tenn., July 18.

Editors Herald:—I feel that all saints are interested in the work of the mound builders (Jaredites), as described in the Book of Mormon, as well as myself. I will tell you something about their work that still remains visible in this great Mississippi River Valley, which seems to have been a leading stamping ground for them. I wrote to the Ensign some time ago, stating that a Mr. Johnson had told me of a village of about thirty of those mounds; but since writing to the Ensign I have visited this immense village or city myself, but in haste; and from all appearances there must be over one hundred mounds in this city. There are a number of them in fields in cultivation. I have visited another village of several mounds about four miles from this city, also another small one about three miles in another direction, and have heard of another about three miles in another direction from this large city; this being four villages within five miles square. I also know of two other villages, one about fifty miles above here in this valley, the other in Missouri, about seventy-five miles from here, but not in the Mississippi Valley, in which is one mound about twenty feet high and about two hundred feet in diameter, and a farmhouse was erected on top of it. I saw and lived within a mile of this monster mound, about twenty-seven years ago, when I was a boy, and knew nothing of the Book of Mormon claims. We would plow up fragments of crockery, etc., but paid no attention to them. The village about fifty miles above here is in Missouri also, and I lived near it one season before I knew anything of the builders; and as there is a little mystery attached to it, I will just state what the citizens told me of it. Some people believed there was a barrel of money in one of those mounds, and several attempts had been made to dig into it, but were defeated or scared away by unknown sights and heartrending voices. Others would brave up and say they could dig into it, but one trial did all that tried it. I told them I could dig into it, and they offered to bet me that I would not dig one hour, so I decided to let it alone.

All saints know what power it was that prevented investigation in this mound. As for my part I fully believe there are some valuable parchments in this mound, and the wise wicked one put it in the hearts of those people to dig for money, in order that they might find them; but God did not intend them to do so, or at least there is something mysterious about it some way.

Well now, we will come on down here to these villages. Mr. Lacey Barr told me that two men had undertaken to dig dirt from one mound (about four miles below here) to build a chimney, and they began to find strange things of fine workmanship; one pipe made of stone, etc., but all at once there came such a fearful odor from the dirt that they were compelled to get their dirt elsewhere, and quit the mound. He says the citizens have threatened to go and dig, but from some cause they have not done so. Mr. William Riley, son of the owner of this large city, told me he was continually plowing up broken pieces of crockery and various things. Mr. Sam Boyd told me the other day he found a larger piece of jar similar to ours some years ago, except it was softer and was beautifully scrolled and carved. I have not been able to see anything as yet that came out of these mounds, but if I were able I would like to explore them. I would like to be able to go up and down this great valley and see all the wondrous works of this great people. If you are interested and wish to know all about these mounds, write me and let me know if you could lend us a helping hand either physically or financially. I would like to make up an exploring club of saints to investigate these Jaredite towns, and I believe if we will go to work with the Book of Mormon and to further the gospel, the Lord will permit us to find whatever may be hidden therein. What do you think about it, dear reader? Hoping to hear from all saints that feel an interest in this noble work,

Yours in hope,
GEO. H. BRUSH.

ROGERS, Texas, Aug. 1.

Editors Herald:—Bro. J. W. Bryan has just been with us and preached four times; three sermons at Rogers in the Christian church, and one in a private house. Had small crowds, but paid good attention.

Bro. Bryan had good liberty in presenting the plan of salvation and therefore we feel that some good was done. I know that I was benefited by his preaching. We were sorry to see him leave but hope Bro. S. R. Hay will renew the effort soon. I ask the saints to pray for me.

OMER, O. T., July 29.

Editors Herald:—Being a constant reader of the Herald for several years, also a true friend to the Church of Latter Day Saints, and having as much evidence of its truth, and more so, than I ever had that there was such a man as Ulysses S. Grant, yet there are things that are not quite clear to my mind. For instance; article in Herald for July 26, last, in "Brotherly Kindness and Charity," it says, "I require all their surplus property."

Now as I have no Webster Unabridged, and can't say when I will have, would like to know the meaning of surplus, as in article referred to. I believe every word of the article, and have thought "surplus" here used would mean all above what it actually took for one's living, from year to year. Am I right?

So far as I am personally concerned, it makes no difference, as the Church of Latter Day Saints is welcome to all I have at any time. At present I live on one hundred and sixty acres of land, and owe eight hundred; and the height of my ambition is to get it paid for, and then I am willing to donate all to the church. I do not understand how anyone belonging to the church, professing what they do can sit idle with plenty of the necessaries of life, and do comparatively nothing towards the support of the same. God knows I only wish I had the means to advance all the work. I love the saints, and whenever any of the ministry are where I am, how my heart goes out to them in the wish that I had something to give. As for myself, personally, I am not sure there is such a thing possible as my coming forth in the morning of the first resurrection, although I know I have never committed the sin against the Holy Ghost. The elders often stop over night with me, and God knows they are welcome. May God bless his people everywhere, is my wish.

THE COMING OF HIS FEET.

In the crimson of the morning, in the whiteness of the moon,
In the amber glory of the day's retreat,
In the midnight, robed in darkness, or the gleaming of the noon,
I listen for the coming of His feet.
I have heard His weary footsteps on the sands of Galilee,
On the temple's marble pavement, on the street,

Worn with weight of sorrow, faltering up the slopes of Calvary,
The sorrow of the coming of His feet.
Down the minster aisles of splendor, from betwixt the cherubim,
Through the wandering throng, with motion strong and fleet,
Sounds His victor tread, approaching with a music far and dim—
The music of the coming of His feet.
Sandled not with shoon of silver, girdled not with woven gold,
Weighted not with shimmering gems and odors sweet,
But white-winged and shod with glory in the Tabor light of old—
The glory of the coming of His feet.
He is coming, O my spirit! with His everlasting peace,
With His blessedness immortal and complete,
He is coming, O my spirit, and His coming brings release,
I listen for the coming of His feet.

WE ARE GLAD.

Yes, we are glad; and so are thousands more. We are only one, and a very small one, too; but the earth is composed of atoms and the sea of drops. We are glad, and we must speak, or the rocks will cry out against us. What for? For not showing our gratitude, and for not giving thanks for the blessings bestowed on the church. We feel this morning like exclaiming to the world: How great, how glorious are the church privileges! That is, the blessings of the gospel, and also the auxiliaries.

Now as we cannot in our locality and circumstances enjoy them publicly, we must do the best we can privately, but we must speak; yes, we must speak of it, and how can we except through the press? Now if the press should say: "Sr. Almira, don't trouble us so much—keep still like a good girl," how then? Probably about as it was when mother scolded her for reading and talking so much in her childhood. The desire was lulled for awhile, but never quenched. But we are wandering from the point. We were prompted to speak on the church auxiliaries. Happy should be every saint who is blessed with a house of worship, and thankful for health and strength sufficient to attend the same. Our periodicals are an inestimable blessing, too. A great help to the active, privileged members, as well as to the drones or isolated ones.

I cannot find words to express my opinion of the Herald; but will say, it is complete in what it was designed for—the church organ. Out of it has grown the Hope, and the Autumn Leaves from the Home Column especially. We think the children are equal in worth to their mother, and fully as indispensable, and no doubt they will keep pace in progress. They each have been in the right time, and in the right place, even as were Washington, Lincoln, and McKinley. We are not so familiar with the other periodicals, but have seen enough of them to know that they are equal in worth to those named. As our people's facilities for education are so wonderfully improved, our speakers and our periodicals must come up to a higher standard in the general progress of the age, and thereby be able to catch more fish out in the great waters of the world. The next generation will have still greater advantages than the present, and we are glad. We older ones had better advantages than the founders of the church did, but nowhere on the earth can be found either brain power or spirituality of a finer, purer quality than that which they possessed.

We are glad that the Father inspired his laborers with the thought of building a college, and are glad to have the privilege of casting in a mite, though it would furnish only a few nails. We are pleased to see the picture, and as we must be satisfied with that, will say, dear students, great are your privileges, great are your possibilities, and God grant that great may be your success, and greater still may be the good bestowed upon the world through your instrumentality. We are glad that those who have had a love of study, and a thirst for knowledge, that have not had opportunities for the same, can indulge in the comforting thought that He who gave the desire will grant the wish when all things shall be restored.

We are also glad that provision has been made for the aged, homeless members of the church, and we intend to invest a little in the cause. 'Tis good to invest in such a noble enterprise, though it may be a small investment. God loves a cheerful giver, and the progress of his work rests upon the efforts of his followers, not only on the elders, but also on the lay members. They are expected to hold up the hands of the field laborers by prayer and faith, and not by that only, but by that which will supply the daily needs of life. No doubt all who have contributed to the Saints' Home are glad they have done so. It reminds one of the home the Master has gone to prepare, and if we invest money in the former, we shall have a better right to occupy with Christ and his followers in the latter. The best way to lay up treasures is to make investments in God's business. To make sacrifices for the comfort of mortals, and to labor for the saving of souls. 'Tis the crowning business of earth and heaven, and joy of all eternity. We are glad to do something in this great and glorious work.

ANGUS, Iowa.

Dear Sister Frances:—Seeing and knowing of so many dreadful calamities that are coming upon the earth, I feel I ought to write an experience I had, for it was given for all of the household of faith, as well as to me. A few years ago I was lying in my bed at an early hour before the sun had risen. My dear mother was by my side. I was thinking upon God, and his promises to his people. All at once the room was lit up with a soft, beautiful light, and these words were spoken to me:—

"Verily, verily thus saith the Lord, Great destruction is coming upon the earth to this people; but you and the household of faith shall be saved if you will adhere to my commandments."

The voice was sweeter than any music I ever heard, and it echoed back and forth until lost in the distance. I lay still a few minutes, thinking my mother must have heard it and would speak. But she did not; and I said, Mother, did you hear that? She spoke and said, "What; I heard nothing." Then I knew it was given to me through the Spirit. It made my heart rejoice to feel that God thought me worthy of such a manifestation of his power, weak creature that I am. I have thought of sending it to the Herald, but feared of intruding upon its valuable pages.

Such manifestations are a great comfort to me, for they make me feel that I will be accepted by God if I hold out faithful to the end. And in the perils of terrible storms the sweet words come to me, and I feel safe, knowing that God's words are sure and cannot fail to all who love and trust him, which I try to do with all my heart.

Pray for me that I may hold out faithful to the end.

Your sister,

MRS. PAULINE RUBY.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Sr. Agnes Keck, Plano, Illinois, writes: I have many times felt impressed to request the prayers of the sisters in my behalf, but something has always hindered. My affliction is the loss of my hearing, which is a great barrier in the way of teaching my little family, to say nothing of the church duties and privileges thus denied me. In years past I have doctored some, and specialists pronounce my case hopeless; but my faith has ever been strong in God's healing power, and I believe he will grant me this blessing, but for some cause I seem unable to place myself in position to receive the blessing. If so led, will you please remember me with your faith and prayers?

"I have a sister troubled with heart disease; she has been treated by as good doctors as St. Louis affords. They have given her up as incurable; therefore, I request the prayers of the children of God in her behalf. She has a family of small children. May the God of heaven see fit to grant my request."

Bro. and Sr. E. W. Grim, Canton, Illinois, desire the Prayer Union to remember their daughter Winifred, who is sick.

Sr. William Kennicutt asks prayers in behalf of her mother, Sister Leach, that God will remove the disease from her body, and she will give God the glory.

THOUGHTS WORTH THINKING ABOUT.

1. With a teacher it is not so much the great brain as it is the great heart that leads to the light.
2. Show me an able worker—one who is able to meet difficulties—and I will show you a person that has a well defined plan outlined.
3. The question is not how much do we know, but how do we use our knowledge.
4. Criticise the doings of our fellow teachers and workers; but, mark you, it is the manner of that criticism that is an index to your spirit.
5. The highest duty that comes to the teacher is not the act of standing before her pupils to instruct them, but rather to suffer and endure with them for the truth's sake.
6. Beware of sarcasm in the Sunday school. Shun it as you would the Devil.—Fremont S. S. Newspaper.

"HE who recognizes his duty of influencing his scholars, teaches as for his life and theirs."

"Any wise parent knows, that his power over his children for good, depends more on his endeavors to influence them to right, than any effort which he makes to instruct them in the right. It is not that he is to neglect their instruction, but while instructing them, as well as at other times, he is to strive to influence them in the direction of his longing and his prayers for them."—Trumbull.

EMERSON WHITE gives a simple diagram showing how oral teaching may decrease and book learning increase as the pupil advances in age. Book study should not be imposed upon a pupil until he is fully able to grasp the thought of the printed words.

FROM A BROTHER.

DISCIPLINE IN SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Discipline means, "to instruct and govern." Are we to presume that instruction can be properly given where governing does not prevail? If we instruct, we should manifest as much interest in the lesson as we desire to have manifested on the part of the instructed. A listless teacher cannot well command attention from pupils and gain and retain it. During time of instruction due sobriety with becoming cheerfulness should characterize the teacher. If the teacher appears in earnest about the lesson, as though it was of vital importance, such action will call forth wonderment from the thoughtful pupil and excite interest upon his part as to the value of the lesson's contents, or what the lesson really means. If we discipline a class, we then must discover that discipline is essential with the teacher. We cannot expect others to be interested in that concerning which we ourselves might act indifferently.

Discipline, like courage, is oftentimes contagious. The impression should be conveyed to Sunday school pupils by the teacher, that the lesson being taught relates to God and his dealings with mankind; that God is very great in goodness, as well as in power; that we are to reverence him, by honoring his word; and that it is necessary we should be attentive unto him in the things taught; that it is a solemn matter, and we cannot and should not treat any of his words, or the history of his dealings with people lightly.

When possible, seek to instill into the minds of the pupils that Sunday school work is pleasing unto God, and that he hears what we say, knows how we attend upon hearing the lesson taught. And let the teacher also know that God attends to observing how the lesson is being taught; the spirit which actuates the efforts; the quality of the interest had therein, the earnestness of soul, willingness of heart, and solicitousness of the teacher's mind regarding the welfare of the pupils.

A teacher should pray for light and help from God for the accomplishment of his or her task as much so as an elder seeks for guidance in the delivery of discourse. All this upon the teacher's part will have a salutary influence on the class.

In connection with all this, there is another time and place where discipline should be; that is in the home, under the care of those of whom it has been said: "The hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world."

If some attention is not given in the home by speaking words at opportune moments respecting God and his work, a respect for prayer, for God's word, etc., all Sunday school discipline work may not prove so fully effective as otherwise it would.

We would suggest that mothers help us in this direction. Paul said: "We are collaborators together with God." Let us seriously contemplate the really great responsibility our position as Sunday school teachers imposes upon us. We are to be people of conscience, of thought, of prayer; persons of heart as well as of mind, persons of spirituality, as well as of intellect. The way we attend upon our part will help convey an idea to the pupils of what we expect from them. This can be maintained by continued perseverance upon the teacher's part. Patience also is a virtue in Sunday school discipline. We should not expect too great results in a brief period of time.

A MODEL SUNDAY SCHOOL OF SIXTY YEARS AGO.

In a little brick schoolhouse in the New England hills, in the vicinity of New London, Henry P. Haven organized a Sunday school about sixty years ago. This school consisted of nine pupils and seven teachers and one superintendent, in all seventeen members. Although few in number, in the superintending of his school Mr. Haven was thoroughly systematic, exercising that quiet enthusiasm which he would have shown in a much larger school, raising to their highest standard the spirit and methods of management and direction.

The exercises of worship were of such a nature that both pupil and teacher could take part, one special feature being the song service.

This school was carefully classified putting each pupil in exactly the work suited to his mind. The teachers were assigned their duty according to their special fitness. All classes studied uniform lessons.

A thorough review closed up the work of each quarter. Although he had no published quarterly, his work was practically and systematically carried on. Special programs for Christmas and Easter were rendered to keep up the interest and add a little spice to the work.

At the close of each session the teachers' meeting was held, in which the truth to be taught was brought out as well as the best method of how to present that truth.

A register of membership was kept from the start, the record of teachers and pupils being kept separate.

At the close of the first year the superintendent gave a Bible to each pupil who had been a member from the beginning, and promised a similar gift to all who should attend the next seven years. One at least received the fifth Bible, and was still a member at the fortieth anniversary of the school.

Although a man of family as well as business, and living four miles from the place of holding Sunday school, Mr. Haven was strongly opposed to a winter vacation, such as most of our country people indulge in, thinking they cannot possibly keep up the school in severe weather. For forty years Mr. Haven held forth. Winter and summer alike found him at his post of duty until death released him from his labors. When the school had been running twenty-five years, of the 418 persons who had been members, more than 100 had joined some church; four were ministers of the gospel. The entire membership of the school averaged only 37, 29 pupils and eight teachers. In the forty years 648 persons had belonged. Of the 2,080, 2,055 found him at his post of duty. In nearly nine years no session had been intermitted for any cause whatever.

When we consider that this Sunday school was organized in a district which was a resort for the evildoers and rum drinkers of a seaport town and the Sunday school was anything but welcome in their vicinity, and note the influence of the Sunday school workers, we are able to estimate some of the value of Sunday schools in our country. The influence in this neighborhood was very obvious. The homes were improved, the district gained a new character. It became known for its sobriety and uprightness of life, and the religious standing of the people, instead of by the evil deeds of those who resorted there. The success of the superintendent and his school depended on the presence and cooperation of all each Sunday. We can all lend our presence to the work of the Lord, be we gifted with one talent or many. Let us exhort each one to try as hard for the success of our individual school as did Mr. Haven and our efforts be blessed with the thought that we have done our best.

BISHOP'S AGENTS' NOTICES.

To the Saints of Florida District, Greeting: Dear Saints:—At our recent conference you signified by your vote that you would sustain the Bishop's agent, which means more than an indorsement of him as an officer in the church, and means, really, that you indorse the law of tithing, and aim to sustain the agent by duly paying your tithes and offerings. The patriarchs of old payed tithes, and were blessed in the deed. The Lord revealed the law of tithing to Moses in the wilderness, and commanded: "Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of thy seed that the field bringeth forth," etc. As long as tithes were paid it seems that prosperity followed the Jews, but after the lapse of a long time, in which we see great trouble had come upon them, we hear Malachi telling them: "Ye have robbed" God. "Ye are cursed with a curse; for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation."

Christ taught tithing, and in Doctrine and Covenants, 64: 5, we are told that this is a day of tithing and sacrifice. Also in section 106: 2 we are told that if we do not observe the law of tithing we shall not be worthy to abide among the people of Zion.

Dear saints, can we afford to be cast out from among God's people, because we have worshiped our money and possessions too much to contribute to the support of the gospel? God has commanded us to be laborers "together," and how else can a lay member help the sacrificing elders, who have left wife and children, farm and all, to preach the gospel, to warn this generation? Can we not help warn them? Can we not divide our substance, which God has given us, to help on the cause we say we love? How much do we love it? If one of us have ten dollars and fail to give the one dollar, do we love the kingdom as well as we do the one dollar?

The gospel came to us more than thirty years ago, for we find that the first missionaries were sent to the Southern States in 1865. God blessed those who accepted the message for a long time, but finally God withdrew from us and the district went down, till the district organization was lost and conferences abandoned. What was the matter? Some one or all, were robbing God, for up to May, 1895, thirty years after those good, sacrificing elders came to us, we find no record of one cent being paid as tithing! All this time we had been eating and drinking as unprofitable and unthankful pensioners on God's bounty.

In May, 1895, I was appointed Bishop's agent, and I now have twenty-four names on my books, with a net receipt of nearly $500. One brother has paid over one half of this amount, and another nearly $100, and some have only paid ten cents.

Dear saints, can't you love this work more than ten cents worth? How many of us making the remaining twenty-two names on my books can emulate these two, who show they are in love with this work? We love to pray God to bless us, and we love to have the elders pray God to bless us and heal our sick; but God has said: "When ye do what I have commanded you, then am I bound, otherwise ye have no promise." And how many of those several hundred, whose names are on the records, can come forward with their mites and show that they want to be worthy to be saved in Zion, and be worthy of God's blessings here and hereafter?

Dear saints, you say you are too poor to pay your tithes, some of you; and do you know you are shutting off the great source of help from which all blessings flow, and insure to yourselves poverty here, and in Zion as well? How often we see a member who cries "poverty," "too poor to pay tithes," yet he or she must have their coffee and tobacco!! How shocking!! how traitorous!! Only think of us feasting upon the things which are forbidden, and which injure us, to the robbing of God of his one tenth of all he has given us!! What a small lease, what a small rent the Lord requires! Only one tenth, while men in all business charge a great deal more.

Now, dear saints, let us do our part cheerfully, so we can go to the Lord with a clear conscience when we pray, that we may the sooner get in touch and rapport with the great mind of God, and be blessed both here and hereafter.

Your colaborer,
S. D. ALLEN, Bishop's Agent.

The death of this exemplary young lady has cast a shadow of sorrow over an entire community, and filled the otherwise happy home of Bro. and Sr. McKeown with the deepest sadness. Jennette combined the rare qualities of personal beauty, an active mind, moral worth, and a life strikingly free from blemishes. At the age of nineteen this lovely girl was called from earthly activity to a higher home. Her short life was replete with good deeds and kind words. Funeral service conducted by Elder D. R. Chambers, at saints' chapel in Hazel Dell, Iowa. She left to mourn her departure a father, mother, three brothers, and three sisters. Of them it may be truthfully said:—

We loved her; yes, we loved her;
But the angels loved her more,
And they have sweetly called her
To yonder shining shore.

The pearly gates stood open,
A gentle voice said, "Come,"
And with a farewell unspoken,
She calmly entered home.

DEPUE.—At Tiff City, Missouri, June 27, 1899, Sr. Evaline Edith, daughter of Bro. and Sr. E. W. Depue, aged 10 years, 5 months, and 20 days.

ORDWAY.—Near Davis City, Iowa, July 13, 1899, Leah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Ordway, aged 1 year, 1 month, and 21 days. The only child taken leaves a great vacancy. Funeral services at the house of the grandfather, Mr. Frank Ordway; sermon by Elder H. A. Stebbins; burial in Davis City cemetery.

MYERS.—At Porcupine, Wisconsin, July 5, 1899, Bro. Charles H. Myers. He was born March 27, 1868, at Frankfort, Wisconsin; married to Sr. Elsie Longsdorf, November 29, 1894; baptized June 19, 1899, and afterwards bore a faithful testimony to the work. He was accidentally shot on the 4th of July, the ball penetrated his skull above his right temple; he was conscious about three hours. He kissed his wife, and bade her and others good-bye. He was loved and respected by all who knew him. Funeral sermon in saints' church by A. V. Closson.

ENFIELD.—At Fairbury, Nebraska, February 24, 1899, Flossie May, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Enfield, passed away after a sickness of two days' duration, aged 10 years, 1 month, and 11 days. She was an interesting, affectionate child, a regular attendant of the Sunday school and at the meetings of the saints, and had expressed a desire to unite with the church. Sermon at the saints' church, Sunday, July 16, by Elder C. H. Porter.

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale.

Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

CHANGES IN CHURCH PAPERS.

Readers of church papers have noticed a growing tendency of these denominational publications to adopt the methods of the daily press and secular periodicals. This tendency, especially in the Outlook and the Independent, has been commented on by the Churchman and the Christian Advocate.

The Christian Union, which was founded by Mr. Beecher in 1869 to express "the common Christian sentiment of the churches," instead of the sentiment of a particular denomination, altered its title in 1893 to the Outlook, in order to express what it called "the broader view." From its new title no intimation of its being a religious paper is to be gained. Its articles deal with current economic, political, and educational topics; its stories and literary notes are similar in character to those in the simply bookish or popular magazines. One issue, in January, three years ago, contained seven pages of purely religious matter, exclusive of the sermon, printed in another department; only three pages of religious matter appear in a July (1899) number.

The Independent retains a religious department, averaging seven pages. Exclusive of its other departments and editorials, it has about thirty-five pages of contributed matter. In these contributed articles it seeks subjects of popular interest, written by well-known men, sometimes of a religious nature. Its first aim is to be a "family paper." There has been no change of policy with the change to magazine form; only an infusion of life into it. Yet to keep pace with the times certain departments have been dropped—as, for instance, personal news concerning ministers, etc.

In denominational papers, too, there have been many concessions to the news-hungry. Much more space than formerly is given to summaries of general news and to editorial discussion of public questions.

In its seventy-three years the Christian Advocate has changed much in appearance and in character of its contents. From a four-page blanket sheet, devoted wholly to religious matters, it became in 1876 a sixteen-page journal, containing in one issue a story by E. P. Roe, two and a half columns of secular news, and nearly two columns of market reports. With these changes in size and form there has naturally come an increase in the number of advertising columns.

The editor of the Churchman says that the only change that has been made in his denominational weekly is the addition of a page of "Chronicle and Comment," and a general modernizing of its contents. "Our leaders are concerned with modern problems of general interest . . . but we are primarily a church paper."

Clippings from four literary magazines, digested news of the week, financial news, a page devoted to the reviews of popular books, are the only signs of a concession to secular influence shown by the Christian Intelligencer, the organ of the Dutch Reformed Church. "We are the official church paper, and hold our principal space for purely religious matter," declare its editors.

Out of sixteen contributed articles in a recent issue of a Catholic monthly, the Rosary Magazine, only three are on matters strictly religious.

The introduction of news and other secular matter into denominational papers is defended by the Intelligencer on the ground that "men know about them from other sources, and it is the legitimate province of the religious press not only to give information about them, but to coordinate them with Christian truth."—Chicago Tribune, July 22, 1899.

FREE EMPLOYMENT OFFICES.

Wednesday nearly two hundred men and women got work through the just opened State free employment offices. But for them many of these seekers for work would have failed to get it. If these offices keep up the pace they have started out with nobody will dispute their value or begrudge the small amount of money they cost the taxpayers. It is often the case that one set of men want work and another set want workers, but neither knows where to look for the other. The worker wastes his time in wandering from shop to shop without happening to hit on the one where he is needed. The employer may stick up a sign that he needs help, but the right man may not happen to see it. The new employment offices form a common meeting ground for those who wish to buy labor and those who wish to sell it. If, for a small expenditure, employer and employee can be brought together and the latter saved from spending days of enforced idleness, the community is the gainer.—Chicago Tribune, August 4, 1899.

PENSIONING EMPLOYEES.

One of the first acts of the Pennsylvania railroad corporation under the guidance of its new president, Mr. Cassatt, is the decision to establish a pension and superannuation fund for the benefit of its employees. The arrangements for this are now being made, and it is understood that at the fall meeting the directors will complete the plan and put the necessary fund in operation.

Seventy years has been fixed as the age of retirement, and employees who have been in the service of the company thirty years, but who have not reached the age of seventy, will be entitled to the benefit of the fund when favorably reported upon by the Administration committee. The allowance will be based upon length of service and the average wages received by employees, and to make the fund effective will require an annual payment by the company of $300,000. The Philadelphia Press says it will not interfere in any way with the employees' relief fund, but will work in harmony with it, the rules governing the fund being put in form through conferences between the executive officers of the company, the General Manager, the Controller, and the Advisory Committee of the Relief Department.

It is a wise step which the Pennsylvania company has taken, and one which will redound to the advantage of both employer and employed. The road itself will get much better service, and officials and men will work together in harmony. Employees who know that their old age will be provided for will give the road their best and most faithful service, and the danger of friction between them will be minimized. And, again, as the Press observes: "In the absence of a pension system the retention of employees after they have passed their days of usefulness is a real drawback. Even corporations hesitate about discharging a man who has worn himself out in their service, but in retaining him they injure themselves. It is far better to put a younger man in his place, and to give the old servant that which he deserves—honorable retirement upon a pension." As to the employee himself, it removes a possibility which every wage-earner fears—the danger that he may be thrown upon the world in his old age without means of support. In an ideal world every man who has labored faithfully through his working lifetime would have enough to live upon in his declining years. Such action as the Pennsylvania company has taken brings about a near approach to these ideal conditions.

So far as is practical the action of the Pennsylvania company should be imitated by every corporation in the country. It is a wise, just, and far-seeing step. Its benefits will be measured not alone by dollars and cents, though even as a financial step it will be profitable in the end. Its greatest advantage will be the creation of a better feeling between employer and employee. It will be a long step towards the settlement of laboring men's grievances and the reconciliation of labor and capital.—Chicago Tribune, August 4, 1899.

SIBERIA NO LONGER A PENAL COLONY.

Consul General Halloway at St. Petersburg has transmitted to the State department a copy of the order issued by the Czar in May last which will end Siberia as a penal colony. Under its provisions a commission is to be formed which is to work out these problems: To replace transportation of criminals by punishment by courts; to abolish administrative transportation by peasant bands; to reorganize penal servitude; to better the condition of the convicts now in Siberia; to improve prisons where criminals are confined; to establish compulsory public labor and workhouses as penal measures; and to provide means for carrying out the measures necessary for the reorganization of the transportation of criminals and of penal establishments. In the preamble to the order the Czar says that the sending of criminals to Siberia has become pernicious to honest emigrants, and that "with the development of the ways of communication and industries of Siberia the country has lost something of its penal character." In other words, one of the first effects of the great trans-Siberian railroad has been to close Siberia as a penal colony. Other civilizing and humanitarian reforms may follow when that vast region is brought into closer communication with the world.

ROOFLESS RELIGION.

On top, or rather underneath, Dr. Myers' electric beacon comes the roof garden of a New York minister, who, like the Chicago divine, does not hesitate to use in the cause of religion the wiles that hitherto have been supposed to belong to another world. A church roof garden devoted to revivals instead of reveling, and where perhaps raspberry vinegar would be substituted for the ruby wine, may not seem alluring to the godless, but no doubt such places could be made attractive.

It is to be regretted that the roofs of Chicago churches were not built with reference to gardens. Yet the slanting sides might be utilized for "shooting the chutes," and such a feature would afford a striking illustration of the precipitancy with which sinners glide to their doom, but it is doubtful whether the most progressive of ministers would go as far as this. At any rate, it would be well to construct the churches of the future with an eye to the possibility of roof escapes.—Tribune.

THE LAST OF EARTH.

The body of Robert G. Ingersoll was cremated yesterday. Only his memory remains, but that memory has much which is tender and beautiful. Rarely has anyone displayed a greater love of nature and of art and of books in all their manifestations of beauty or of friends and family than this man whose heart was large enough for hope, but whose soul could not be convinced to the limits of belief. Those who were nearest and dearest to him in that singularly happy home shared whatever of hope and the same absence of belief which the husband and father had had.

The sorrow which has visited that household therefore is no ordinary one. When death enters a circle whose members have steadfast belief in a future life and the immortality of the soul and a hope as steadfast that they will meet again the one who has passed on they have both consolation for their grief and compensation for their loss. In this case, however, all consolations are denied them. They may have an indefinite longing, but even that longing becomes an added sorrow when it is confronted with the sternness and hopelessness of disbelief. Hence the persistency with which those stricken ones have clung to all that was left them, and their unwillingness to part with it. Even memories, sacred and beautiful as they may be, can go no further than poignant regret when those who have them cannot believe they will ever meet the absent one again and reflect that he has passed away from them forever. For such there can be no consolation. Even nature is powerless to soothe. This world has no compensations for such a loss and the other is veiled from their sight.

The light of this stricken home is extinguished and the pathos of the consequent darkness is infinitely touching. Surely never was greater sorrow than this. To those who are bowed down and crushed with grief, sitting alone, hopeless, and un-comforted in their desolation, will come the sympathy of all gentle men and women, whatever their creed or belief may be. In the presence of such a sorrow as this indignant clamor will be hushed and asperity of criticism cease. In their place will come the thought more than once expressed by the great agnostic himself: "From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word, but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing."—Chicago Tribune.

Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls has written for the Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia, two valuable papers upon the later career of President Garfield. These articles, written by a man who knew Mr. Garfield in his youth, and afterward saw at close range his public acts, constitute what is perhaps the most dispassionate and judicial estimate of the man ever made. Mr. Ingalls' brilliant prose, enlivened by anecdote and strengthened by first-hand knowledge, is well worthy of his subject. In connection with these papers, fac-similes of unpublished letters from Mr. Garfield's physicians will be printed. The first of these papers will appear in the Post of August 26.

In the same issue will be found contributions by Ian Maclaren, Harriet Riddle Davis, Julian Ralph, and Charles Battell Loomis.

A GEM.

And when we think of God as our father, who will help us over the rough places of life and put his everlasting arms beneath us in time of great distress, it seems entirely natural that he should make us feel his presence and speak in such tones that we can hear. And, again, when I turn the pages of the book and find that he has actually done these things in times past, my soul cries out that his arm has not been shortened and that he can do them again.

The subject is one of intense and absorbing interest, and its contemplation kindles enthusiasm within us. It makes God and Christ so real and brings them so close to us! The heart beats quickly as our eyes behold the possibilities that are presented, and the realization of them would make the desert bloom like the rose.—Ex.

PRAYED TO PUT DOWN MORMONS.

Bro. Caffall sends us the communication given below, which we presume he wishes put in HERALD, though he does not say so:—

Editor Bonhomme County News, South Dakota; Sir:—In your issue July 12, under the heading of "Pleasant Ridge Dots," the following item appears:—

"It is now in order for that man that prayed on the Fourth that Mormons should be put down, to show his faith by his works, by helping the Lord to put them down. The schoolhouse is open for him. Don't let the opportunity pass."

Now, who that gentleman might be, expressing so ardent a desire for putting down Mormons, and then what his proclivities might be, I could not divine; especially could I not presume to think what motives might have prompted such praying on that day of days, when American citizens, irrespective of name, party, or sect, had met to jubilate because of guaranteed liberty in the past, full of anticipation and hope of its continuance, under the stars and stripes. But, sir, with due deference, I incline to the opinion that efforts culminating in singling out a party and praying for it being put down on such a day, evince one of two things; namely, a zeal not according to knowledge, or giving evidence of a religious intolerance quite incompatible with the spirit of true Americanism.

If the latter, one would have supposed that the reverend gentleman would have been sufficiently proficient in self-government to have subjugated that intolerance until a time and place that a defense to such an attack would have been permissible, fair play being a jewel. Every fair-minded person must concede that such a prayer, at such a time, was impotent for good. And in the event of Mormons being present, and as ready to resent an offense as the gentleman was to offer it, the effect might have been unpleasant.

What construction this praying Christian may place upon what he might term "Mormonism," I don't know. But, sir, I here affirm: If the gentleman can at any time point out in the Book of Mormon that which affords a pretext or license for disloyalty to earthly governments, or practices that would estrange man from his Creator, or encourage him in doing violence to neighbors, etc., he would confer a great favor upon some few honest toilers in the vicinity of Pleasant Ridge, who have had the courage of their convictions to indorse the teachings of that book.

Very respectfully,

JAMES CAFFALL,

Representative of the Reorganized Church (anti-polygamist) of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Done at HOWARD, Miner County, South Dakota, July 19, 1899.

Should you not grant us a hearing in your columns, will you please return?

Respectfully,

JAMES CAFFALL.

We regret not being able to give space to your article. We find nothing in it for which we would refuse it publication, but on former occasions having given our columns to matter of this kind, we found the replies on both sides so numerous we had to refuse to admit anything further.

Sincerely,

ROBT. A. DEVERS.

Publisher News.

TYNDALL, S. D., July 24, '99.

P. S.—We held service at the Pleasant Ridge schoolhouse, July 16, intending to continue part of the ensuing week, but the house was closed against us (and all others as I suppose) save Sunday evening with a charge of twenty-five cents. It is perhaps just to say that some were not in favor of closing the house.

LAWLESSNESS IN GEORGIA.

We have noticed for the last few days brief mention of "Mormon elders" being maltreated in Jasper County, Georgia; but as the accounts were somewhat conflicting, we were unable to give our readers reliable particulars. We have learned a few facts, however, which we think are approximately correct. Three elders; namely, G. M. Porter of Fair View, Wyoming; S. D. Rogers of Snow Flake, Arizona, and A. C. Candland of Mt. Pleasant, Utah, (the Southern Star in giving the account does not mention the latter,) were doing missionary work in the region where the outrage was committed, with some success, having baptized five converts.

They were warned to leave, but did not heed the warning. While a few evenings ago (July 23) they were at the house of Mr. William Cunard, they were attacked by a body of armed and masked men, who succeeded, after a struggle, in capturing them and taking them into the woods. There a consultation was held, and the final decision was to let them go, and give them orders never to be seen in the community again. The assurance was given by the elders, and thus eluded their persecutors. It is said that Mrs. Cunard recognized the leader of the mob, and called him by name, whereupon he gave orders that she should be shot. One of the ruffians shot her in the face with a shot gun, and wounded her severely. It is thought that she will not live.

None can be more uncompromisingly opposed to what we regard as the immoral features of the faith that these Utah elders represent; but we denounce such dastardly conduct, as resorted to by this mob, as being a relic of savagery, and unworthy the civilization of the nineteenth century. We sincerely hope that these savage and inhuman wretches may be apprehended, and punished to the fullest extent of the law. The good citizens of Georgia owe it to the reputation of their country to aid in bringing these offenders against the law to swift and adequate punishment, as provided for in the law.

A PECULIAR MANIFESTATION.

The following letter and communication are printed at the request of Sr. Mary A. Hines, of Independence, Iowa. It must not be thought that we assume to classify the phenomenon—a communication from the spirit of a child only forty-eight hours old—but publish the occurrence as one of those peculiar things attending the modern development of spiritualism, of which so many are on record. The sentiment is strongly corroborative of the mission of the coming King of Glory; and must not be cast out as evil, though the source through which it is said to have come may provoke a smile of doubt. In the days when the Savior came those possessed recognized him as the "Son of David," in whose hands the reins of government should finally fall; but not before the time of judgment and power would the King exercise his right. In the meantime the adversary—spirits good, bad, and indifferent—evil-minded and worldly-minded men would be permitted to exercise within the confines of their own limits, until the end decreed should come. Whether the communication was dictated by the spirit of a newly born, newly released soul, or was written by the medium herself at the direction of her own unconscious will, coming from a spiritualistic source, it has the appearance of an enforced recognition of the Savior, similar to the one of many years ago in Illinois, when a medium was requested to ask of her professed control, whether the Book of Mormon was a true record, and entitled to credence. The answer was, very unexpectedly, "Yes, the Book of Mormon is a true record, and was the work of the divine mind in its giving to the world." It was an unlooked for answer, dampened the ardor of the seance for a little space, but left no lasting impression.

INDEPENDENCE, July 24, 1899.

TO MR. JOSEPH SMITH, Lamoni;

Dear Brother Joseph:—I saw in Herald, No. 28, volume 40; an article on "Science and Spiritualism." Now, with your permission, I wish to add my mite. My parents came from England in 1833, and I was born in January, 1836, 5th day; and the 23d of October, 1837, my mother gave birth to a pair of twins, a girl and a boy; the girl she named Jane Augusta, the boy she called Thomas Augustus. The boy died at the age of forty-eight hours. The girl is living yet. When she was fifteen years old it was discovered that she was a medium, or could call up spirits. The neighbors would flock in where my sister worked, to get her to call up their departed friends, so they could converse with them. I would not go near, for I did not believe in it. So one day she came to me and handed me a piece of paper, with the inclosed communication written on it. She said she had been able to get a communication from her twin brother. She said she had been a long time getting it, for when she would ask for her brother, she would be told that he was in the fifth sphere; and when they got as high as that, it was hard to come back to this world, or first sphere. I am satisfied she had never seen that in print, and am quite sure I had never seen it before. That was the most important communication she received.

When Elder Hand was here preaching for us four years ago this coming November, he said the spirits did not confess Christ as the Son of God. I told him that I knew of one instance where they did acknowledge Christ as the Son of God. He said he never heard it before. So I determined to send it to you as soon as an opportunity offered. I would like very much to have it published, but if you think it is not worth it, please return it to Mary A. Hines, Independence, Iowa. I send stamp.

Spiritual communication, written by Jane A. Suddick, guided by the spirit of her brother, Thomas A. Suddick, who died at the age of forty-eight hours. Given in the year of our Lord, 1853.

"But who is he that cometh to burst open the prison doors of the tomb? To bid the dead awake; and to gather his redeemed from the four winds of heaven? He cometh on a fiery cloud, the sound of a trumpet goes before him. Thousands of angels are on his right hand. It is Jesus, the Son of God, the Savior of men. He cometh in the glory of the Father; he hath received power from on high. Mourn not, therefore, child of mortality, for the spoiler, the cruel spoiler, that laid waste the works of God, is subdued. Jesus has conquered death. Child of mortality, mourn no longer."

A NEW HASH.

Bro. John M. Terry, of 665 Sheffield Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, sends us a fragment of a Chicago Journal for June 30, containing an article entitled, "How Mormon Church was Originated," written by Mrs. H. S. Caswell, Secretary of the Woman's Department of the Congregational Home Missionary Society, New York. The article is dated Boston, June 29, and is prefaced thus:—

The society and its representatives have been interested historically in the overthrow of Mormonism, and consequently in disabusing its adherents and advocates of their errors.

Then follows a column and a quarter of the most absurd statements we ever saw in one article of its length upon the subject of Mormon history. Bro. Terry has marked fifty-nine errors in history and fact, and succeeded in getting a short review in the Journal for July 18, correcting and contradicting Mrs. Caswell's errors.

We have not the space in HERALD to spare, and life is too short and full of busy cares of more moment to bother with repeating Mrs. Caswell's mistakes and Bro. Terry's rejoinder. It is the same old "hash," with a little more of moral caustic potash in it. If the Home Missionary Society of the Congregational Church really desire to help us and others out of an adherence to the angel's message, it will have to quit telling such notoriously wicked and lying things as Mrs. Caswell has flung together. So palpable are these errors, that it would shame any half-way informed Latter Day Saint not to know better.

PERSECUTION IN THE SOUTH.

The following from the Chicago Record of August 9, indicates that the opposition against the Utah elders in the South is growing more intense and assuming dangerous proportions:—

MORMONS SEEK PROTECTION.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8.—The campaign against the Mormon elders now at work in Kentucky, Tennessee, and Georgia has reached the stage where the governors of the three states have been appealed to for protection. President Benjamin Rich, of the Southern Mormon mission, wired that he would be here to-day to see Governor Bradley. He did not come, but instead sent a telegram on the "outrages on Mormon elders in various Kentucky counties." He said he would keep his elders in the field in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, and Louisiana if it took $1,000,000 of the money of the church of Utah to protect them, the authorities at Salt Lake City having assured him of that sum.

Sixty elders were sent to mountain counties of Kentucky and Tennessee several weeks ago and twenty have been assaulted and subjected to indignities. In Tennessee their church was wrecked and the elders beaten and driven out. Then Rich sent twenty more elders to the scene. Then assaults on the elders became epidemic. The people declared that they should go.

Four elders were badly beaten yesterday in different parts of Kentucky. In Carter County a mob of fifty men took out Elders Turman and Snow and was preparing to "stretch their necks with ropes," as the leaders said, when Elder Turman got the men to listen to him a minute. He told of being born in Montgomery County, Kentucky, and that he hated to be treated in such a manner by the natives of his own State. The mob after this turned the elders loose, warning them to leave.

In Bell County, near the Tennessee line, Elders J. N. Titenor and James Miller were beaten by a mob of mountaineers. Elder Titenor is badly hurt.

Mormon elders in the Pineville section are having a hard time, and at Pineville the sheriff has ordered them to leave or they would get in serious trouble. They told the sheriff they were American citizens and had the right to remain. The Rev. Joe Jones, a brother of the evangelist, Sam Jones, said: "Boycott the elders; give them nothing to eat, and as they are penniless, starvation will force them to leave."

We believe it is the duty of the saints in the South and elsewhere to see to it that the public shall understand that we have no sympathy with the obnoxious teaching and practice of the Utah people. But it is also our duty to unequivocally give the public to understand that we have no sympathy with the policy employed by their opponents. We do not need to investigate to determine whether the mob is justified or not, for there is no possible provocation that can justify mob rule. The effects of mob violence are bad, and only bad. Let every saint stand boldly for law and order, and let his influence be felt so far as possible against the degrading, debasing, anarchy-producing spirit of mobocracy.

ROMAN CATHOLICS EXCOMMUNICATED.

Bishop Janssens, the Roman Catholic Bishop, of Belleville, Illinois, has excommunicated a rebellious congregation about seven hundred in number at East St. Louis. The offense of the congregation (St. Patrick's) is a refusal to permit the newly appointed rector to officiate in the church and occupy the pastoral residence. When the former priest, who was an Irishman, died, the Bishop appointed a German as his successor. The parishioners wanted another man, one of their own nationality. The Bishop refused to give them the man of their choice. The people claimed the right to voice and vote in the matter, claiming some of the rights usually accorded to a congregation.

Mass meetings were held at which the Bishop's threat of excommunication was discussed. Repeated gatherings occurred, at which the Stars and Stripes and the green flag of Ireland were displayed from the flag-staff of the church and at which steps were taken to prevent the Bishop or his priests from entering the church. At twelve o'clock noon, the 9th, the decree of excommunication went into effect and the assembly dispersed. The congregation is now deprived of the sacraments of the church and of the right of burial in consecrated ground. They say they have the advice of some high church officials to stand by them and will have the support of every Irish priest in America.

This is the second congregation excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church in America. Whether it will result in a more general movement looking to the exercise of suffrage by Catholic congregations, in selecting ministers, remains to be seen.

Some idea of the methods of discipline adopted by the Roman Church may be gathered from the closing portion of the Bishop's decree, which was read in all the churches of the diocese of Belleville:—

"The time of mercy and forbearance is at an end. As Bishop of the diocese I am necessitated, for the cause of justice, for the safeguard of ecclesiastical authority, for the good of religion, to have recourse to the extreme measure of inflicting the severe punishment of the church on the guilty ones. It is, therefore, with a bleeding heart, but in fulfillment of my sacred duty, that I hereby publish the following decree:—

"All those members of St. Patrick's Congregation, East St. Louis, Illinois, or any other subjects of the Diocese of Belleville, Illinois, who after midday of Wednesday next, the 9th day of August, by counsel, approval, or deed will abet the rebellion now existing in St. Patrick's Congregation, East St. Louis, Illinois, or help in preventing the lawful rector from fulfilling his duties by officiating in St. Patrick's Church and occupying the pastoral residence without molestation, shall by the very fact of such counsel, approval, or help given, or such deed performed, be excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church."

WORLD ITEMS.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 9.—The following mail advices were received by the steamer Empress of Japan to-day:—

The Ashai-shimbun, said by the English press to be a newspaper of high standing, was complaining to the Japanese government in an open letter that American and other foreign missionaries are in the habit of engaging Chinese loafers to sit on the penitent benches and shout "Praise the Lord. Amen," in fact, to act as coaxers to their heathen brethren, who are thus encouraged to come into the fold.

A terrible flood has swept over the subprefecture of War Chow, where 1,850 houses were destroyed and thousands of poor people rendered homeless. A band of thousands of robbers is ravaging the country. Ten junks full of soldiers to head them off were captured, arms taken from soldiers, and the junks burned. Hundreds of the soldiers were drowned. Seven hundred natives who resisted the onward march of the enemy were killed, while 2,000 saved their lives by joining the robbers.

Valparaiso, Chile, Aug. 9.—A tidal wave burst into the bay, tearing down the embankment and sweeping off a number of cars, locomotives, and tons of merchandise. The loss is estimated at a million dollars.

St. Sebastian, Spain, Aug. 9.—The Republican and Socialist parties have agreed to organize a campaign demanding the expulsion from Spain of all the religious orders. Señors Salmeron and Iglesias and other Socialists are prominent in the movement.

Vienna, Aug. 9.—The Neue Frete Presse says the peasantry of portions of Bessarabia (Russian territory, bounded on the south by the Danube and the Black Sea) have revolted from famine. Troops sent there have had encounters and a score of peasants have already been killed and many have been wounded.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 9.—Laden with relics of the cliff dwellers, the Rev. Dr. George L. Cole has returned from the ruined cities of Southeastern Colorado and New Mexico. On the Santa Fé River, fourteen miles from Espanola, New Mexico, there is a dwelling of not less than 1,600 rooms. The dimensions are 240x300 feet. In the burial mound a woman's femur nineteen inches long was found, showing a giantess seven and one-half feet tall. The cliff on which the ruin stands rises 1,000 feet above the surrounding country.—Chicago Tribune, August 10.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 10.—Two million bushels of wheat are estimated to have been lost in to-day's hailstorm, which partially destroyed the crop on 250,000 acres of land in the State. Farmers who were busily engaged this morning in cutting wheat were driven to their barns for shelter and afterwards found no work left to do. Heavy wind and hail did the work of destruction. Similar reports come from Minnesota points, where the destruction was also very great.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—The worst storm ever experienced in Porto Rico struck the city of Ponce on Tuesday, the 8th, at nine a. m. Ponce was flooded at midnight and at least three hundred persons were drowned. Two hundred bodies, mostly those of poor people and including many children, have been recovered. All the buildings are damaged and hundreds have been destroyed.

"The Governor General of Porto Rico confirms the report that upon the 8th inst. a hurricane swept over that island, entirely demolishing many of the towns, destroying lives, and reducing, as far as he can estimate, not less than 100,000 of the inhabitants to the condition of absolute destitution, without homes or food. Unless immediate and effective relief is given these unfortunates they will perish."

The known dead in Porto Rico are 353. President McKinley has appealed to the American people to aid the stricken Porto Ricans.

BRO. HEMAN C. SMITH hands us the following item, which we publish for what it may be worth, as corroborating statements or facts of history:—

NETAWAKA, Kan., Aug. 3, 1899.

Apostle H. C. Smith; Dear Brother:—I have just read, "Was Joseph Smith a Polygamist?" In 1861, in Syracuse, Ohio, Apostle James Blakeslee and myself were in conversation concerning the heresies that crept into the church which resulted in its rejection, according to the word of the Lord. Bro. Blakeslee related many things from knowledge that you have in the early forties before Joseph's martyrdom.

When the statement of Elder William Marks, as published in the True Latter Day Saints' Herald, vol. 1, was under consideration, he said it was truth.

He asked me if I was acquainted with Captain Dan Jones. Being answered that I was, then he asked if I knew whether Elder D. Jones went into polygamy or not. To this I had to say I did not know, for I had lost track of him after 1853, when I began to retrace my steps from the old church.

Bro. Blakeslee in those days lived some distance from Nauvoo, but he was informed in some way of the heresies that were secretly creeping into the church at Nauvoo, and it grieved him and he came to Nauvoo to inquire whether the report was true or not; and he went to Joseph himself, and Captain D. Jones was in the room with him, and Joseph after a little hesitation answered to his question with a manifest grief, "Yes, and I am afraid it has gone too far to be checked [polygamy] and it will result in the overthrow of the church;" and Joseph rose to his feet with much apparent anxiety over the matter and commanded both in the name of the Lord (Blakeslee and Jones) to proclaim against the heresy in preaching and teaching with a loud voice.

You see now why he asked whether D. Jones went into it or not. If there is anything in this has added evidence in your effort to set down error and contention, you are welcome to use it.

Your brother for the truth,

HENRY GREEN.

In the winter of 1887, while at Wheeling, West Virginia, Bishop George A. Blakeslee, son of Apostle James Blakeslee, referred to in the foregoing, related to the writer in substance the same statement as made to Bro. Green, with the exception that he made no mention of Captain Dan Jones.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Columbus Scott, Perry, Iowa, August 7:—

Tent will go from here to Adel, to-morrow, the 8th, and no doubt our time will mainly be occupied there till the 25th. All the older saints, others as well, would have been glad to have had Bro. I. N. White to attend the reunion, since he labored so much in this district years ago, and would have been greatly pleased to have had one of the First Presidency. We expect to see our reunion grow to become the State reunion. Des Moines is central and all railroads in the State lead there.

Bro. Albert Haws, Oakland, California, August 4:—

My health is still poor. Am just getting up from a very severe attack of partial paralysis of the stomach and bowels, which lasted about ten days; but I am now improving again, which I am very thankful for.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Utah elders held services in the public square, Youngstown, Ohio, and were reviewed on their statements by Bro. A. Morgan, Superintendent of the Telephone Company in that city. The Youngstown Telegram, July 21, commends the effort of Bro. Morgan. Many expressed themselves as pleased by his effort and glad to obtain the information he furnished them.

The Durango, New Mexico, Herald, July 27, 1899, sent us by Bro. R. H. Wight, has a sermon on Mormonism, by Rev. Collett, from which it appears that the Columbian Encyclopedia is relied upon as authority on the subject. The Spalding Story is revamped. The Reorganized Church is also mentioned and the Book of Mormon as against polygamy.

Sr. E. E. Bailey, Weeping Water, Nebraska, writes earnestly urging that some of the ministry call and preach the word. A good work could be done there, she thinks.

Next comes a copy of the St. Joseph, Missouri, Herald, Sunday, August 6, in which is a column article on "Mormons" "attempting to make converts in St. Joseph." It appears that twenty Mormon elders under one "Elder Kelsch," "President of the Northern States mission," have been expounding their philosophy in the courthouse and that Bro. H. O. Smith proceeded to cross-question them.

The result was a cross-fire discussion on polygamy and other issues. The advertising of Mormonism on the one hand and of the true faith on the other is being kept before the readers of the press. There can be but one result where right and wrong are before the people in active opposition; viz., the right must prevail, the wrong fail. We have but to steadily push ahead and patiently await the finale. Brighamism as such will be hemmed in and crowded to the wall in due time, and the honest in heart among the Utah Church be delivered from their spiritual and temporal bondage.

Bro. J. M. Terry reports twenty-one Brighamite missionaries at work in Chicago. He sends for the new tract, "Was Joseph Smith a Polygamist?" for distribution, but needs many more than we are able to supply him. Chicago is an excellent field for our work, and as the Utah elders are making some impression in localities there, Bro. Terry and his aids should be well equipped with all available aid and ammunition to do effective, valiant service. Not least in such equipment would be an abundance of good tracts. Chicago is the second city of the Western Continent, the leading city of the Middle West, and a center of education, culture, and influence where we should build up and be well represented and widely known, that the truth might be radiated therefrom abroad. Any who may be in position to supply Bro. Terry with literature would do well to do so. Tracts, or funds therefor placed in his hands, would be judiciously, conscientiously distributed. His address is, No. 665 Sheffield Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

True, discriminating men and women will not be attracted to persons simply because of outward assumed pleasantness of manner, but because of the genuineness of the character revealed. Social culture of outward ability to entertain or please is often a mere veneering, a guile that catches and influences many to their hurt. Look beneath the surface of assumed manner and studied expressions for true integrity, for genuine manhood or womanhood. A right to the title, "A True Man," or "A True Woman," is a right to the only true crown for humanity to wear. It is the rare exception, not the rule, where social and other leaders deserve such appellations. The masses are caught with guile, in many phases of life; it is the rare exception where judicious, impartial discrimination is developed and exercised. There is need for it everywhere, in every circle, not excepting among our own associations.

Bro. David Brand, Marengo, Illinois, aged eighty-five, recounts the labors of Utah elders in that region and wonders why the Reorganization is not heard from more through its ministry at that point. The harvest is great, the laborers few.

Mrs. Mary E. Fry, a member of the Baptist Church, Ellington, Missouri, and a friend to the cause, writes expressing a desire to hear the word. She sends for tracts to read and circulate.

Bro. Henry Tabbiner has been having some discussion with atheists, freethinkers, and others of like opinion in one of the English papers, a clipping of which has been sent us. We like to see our brethren wisely seeking to maintain the truth whenever opportunity presents. We are in the world for good and ought to be good for something—to do all we can for good.

"The wise shall understand"—because they will seek to see, and comprehend and know; and that from a developed and constant cultivation of love of truth.

The American Baptist for August 3 has a militant article headed thus: "Adverse animadversions, amplified annotations, and affectionate answers, anent the acrimonious assertions, arrogant assumptions and awful attitude of A. A. A —, Arkansas." It seems to be part of a "religious debate;" but we didn't read the article, the heading seemed enough—to judge of the contents. It is painful to note how little is left for the people between the strifes of certain Baptists and Campbellites. They quarrel perpetually and after much debate and disputation leave the field with no one the wiser—unless it be with a deep seated conviction that both are wrong. One is reminded of the remark credited to a young man who being immersed into the communion of Alexander Campbell's organization, coming out of the water said: "Now I'm ready for a dispute!" This of course would apply to some, but not all of that communion.

"Eight persons in Detroit have been injured during the last eight days by pouring kerosene into a stove."—Press Dispatch.

Life is beset with difficulties and attended by problems so complex that its responsibilities pass from those of a mere personal to those of a general character. Our good or ill affects not us alone, but our associates and surroundings. No one can afford to do less than his very best. Good character, right doing, true service, are demanded and needed everywhere, in all the walks and conditions of life. Humanity, in every soul and sphere, is encompassed by ills to which the spiritual, moral, and physical man is heir, and from which all must be delivered if all are to attain to fullness of life. The race is struggling amid low conditions from which God would emancipate it. There is need of light and help, and everyone in whom is light and upon whom God has laid help should be faithful and true in his sphere of action, however humble. We cannot afford to yield to discouragements, to surrender to difficulties. It is ours by right and in duty to receive grace to surmount and overcome. Courage, resolution, and endurance are necessary. It is ours individually to gain or lose the crown of eternal life. Which shall it be with us, gain or loss? "If any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him."

EQUALITY.

In the consideration of any subject or principle, the point of view, or the special application from the individual standpoint, naturally, is apt to have the greatest weight with us; and indeed a spirit of striving for the mastery is too apt to control our discussions, to the hindrance of the accomplishment of the true end of all investigations, the promotion of the general good.

1. What do we mean by equality?
2. Is there such a thing in fact?
3. What is our standard of measurement?
4. To whom shall it apply?

Shall it be to mankind in general, or to the Aryan, Caucasian, Semitic, Slavic, or Negroic races; Shem, Ham, or Japheth? Men or women; all, both, or to any race or sex distinctively; or to those by adoption designated as children of God alone, and if to them men or women, boys, girls, children, one class or each, and all individually without consideration of age or sex. Shall it apply intellectually, morally, spiritually, physically, economically, or politically, all or each?

In its ordinarily recognized sense, equality does not seem to exist anywhere,—that is, in the universal application of the term covering the various qualities and conditions of human existence; nor in that sense do I find in the written word of the revelations of God to mankind, in ancient or modern times, any evidence of the existence of such equality in the past, or expectation of it in the future. From the lowest forms of organic life to the highest exemplification of such existence in man, so fitly termed a "microcosm of the universe," there is such diversity and inequality in the individual members, that it would seem self-evident that equality in the sense of form, strength, beauty, comeliness, intellectuality, capacity of whatever nature, inherited tendencies, force, character or opportunity, and all those things which ordinarily tend to the production or acquisition of natural things, the power to do, or to accomplish good or evil, does not exist.

Men and women are born into the world under the most unequal conditions—amid wars, desolations, among peaceful pastoral scenes, in lordly palace or in peasant's cot, among enlightened, liberty loving peoples, or from an imbruted, groveling superstitious ancestry—all grades and conditions, from sublimest intelligence to degenerate idiocy; from holiest virtue to basest vice, in ever varying degree of manifest inequality.

Is not this condition of inequality in organism,—physical, moral, spiritual, —inherent and continuous? Is it not a fact that there is no equality in all the creations of God; but on the contrary, diversity in form, texture, color, fiber, quality, and magnitude, yet harmony throughout? Is it not harmony, therefore, rather than equality which should now be sought?

But while there is not, and cannot be, an individual equality in all the term implies, is there not in the divine economy something of this nature contemplated, which in accordance with the endowment given, shall from the individual thus endowed, expect proportionate results? If man or woman shall possess—because of inheritance or otherwise—qualities superior to others, does not the God and father of all, the fountain of all intelligence and good, whose glory is the happiness of his children, expect that those qualities shall be used for his glory? Hear the Savior's words, "Unto whom much is given, of him much shall be required."

I do believe with all my heart that while there can be no equality of being, and there is no equality of endowment, and hence no equality of accomplishment, there should be a proportionate equality of effort, so far as that being and endowment make it possible.

Politically it is claimed equality exists; and the words of the American declaration of independence, which we regard in a measure to have been inspired of God, surely conveys this idea: "We hold these truths to be self-evident—that all men are created equal; . . . with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and institute a new government, laying its foundations on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

The basic thoughts here are:—

1. That all men were created.
2. All men free and equal, coming into this world.
3. All men have certain inalienable rights.
4. These are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.
5. That to bring such results, governments are formed by men.

To my mind,—notwithstanding the inequality of man's being and organism, endowment and attainment, in order that he may accomplish in accordance therewith,—there should be some plane of equality upon which he, with all others, should stand; which, from its absolute level base, would show the marked differences of individuality and qualification, and by organization and consideration, put each actively to the best possible use for the perfecting of the race and the accomplishment of the purposes defined in the declaration; that base, to my mind, is economic equality. To bring this about, however, is the problem of the ages, accomplished will be in the millennial age.

The revelations of God in holy writ seem to take into consideration the imperfect, abnormal conditions of humanity, and of human governments. They do not attempt to revolutionize existing conditions, or overturn such governments; but teach a course of individual conduct, which practiced and carried into all the affairs of business and political life, would ultimately result in bringing about the golden time of peace.

For a short time under peculiar conditions in the days of the first apostles, many of the wealthier saints sold their possessions and placed the results in the hands of the apostles, that the poor might be cared for; and it is said that they had everything in common. But no arrangement seems to have been made to perpetuate this system, called into existence, apparently, by the very exigencies of the situation, as might be again done under similar circumstances and surroundings.

The teaching of the Savior, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, and thy neighbor as thyself," would imply that eventually, in the perfecting of character, there should be a perfecting of means, by which a neighbor loved should have that care which each would award unto himself. The golden rule, "Do unto others as you would that they should do to you," helps to an understanding of the question.

In all this, however, mark it, there is no equality in the ordinary sense, no distinction of sex. Man is too apt in considering that which should be, notwithstanding his love for woman, to regard her in the light of a possession; disguise it as he may, a sense of his own superiority is almost constantly made visible, and many times he fortifies himself in the thought that it was so designed, by reference to the utterances of other men he deems inspired of God, and who without doubt were so inspired at times. That which we do,—our form of thought and its expression, peculiarities of speech, our habits and our methods,—originate frequently from some peculiar requirement of a former time; and while conditions change, the habit formed remains; and so the habit of woman's subordination, formed in barbaric times, has been perpetuated. That it was not God's design is evident, Paul's frequently quoted and apparently prejudiced statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

In speaking of the creation—spiritually—of man (in the generic sense, meaning the race, not the sex) God through Moses records: "Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness; and it was so." "And I, God, created man in mine own image, in the image of mine Only Begotten, created I him; male and female created I them."

Let us not forget, therefore, when we think or talk of equality, that in whatever the term may mean, or wherever its application may be made, that be they male or female, all alike are God's children and entitled to equal consideration. The inequality of the sexes has arisen from the encroachments of evil, and the degeneracy of the world through strife, barbarity, and lust.

Has God in latter days pointed out some way by which unequal in being, endowment, opportunity, and attainment, as are his children, there yet may be evolved conditions where there shall be some measure of equality in the distribution or use of temporal things? I think it can be shown that he has done so. True, no provision has been made for that form of equality, or rather inequality, known as "all things in common."

In section 42, Book of Covenants, consecration was taught, but stewardships likewise, each of his own property, and an unequal condition touched upon and provided for.

Here I may be excused in quoting from editorials on the gathering, etc., in Saints' Herald, April 12, 1899: "The first revelation in which equality in temporal things is treated upon is section 36, . . . is a matter of history and instruction," a "prophecy of Enoch." "Section 38, . . . paragraph 8, refers to the appointment of certain men, whose duty is pointed out, and applies to those removing from New York to the Ohio;" is not of general application.

Section 51, given May, 1831, makes provision for an equality in temporal things at Independence, Missouri; but this, in paragraph 4, seems to have been a privilege, and for a time local in its application—not for the church at large—although a pattern locally for all churches. Qualified in paragraph 4: "And thus I grant unto this people a privilege of organizing themselves according to my laws; and I consecrate unto them this land for a little season, until I, the Lord, shall provide for them otherwise, and command them to go hence." Paragraph 5: "Behold, this shall be an example unto my servant Edward Partridge, in other places, in all churches." Paragraph 1 shows the organization was to be "according to the laws of the land." Under present conditions incorporation would be the method. Paragraph 3. That all rights would inhere to the members of the organization, whether composed of all the members of the local church as contributors, or only part; and that the funds obtained could not be alienated to other churches or branches, unless by consent of the organization, and even then only as a loan to be repaid.

Section 70, given November, 1831, is specifically: Paragraph 1. To Joseph Smith, Jr., Martin Harris, Oliver Cowdery, John Whitmer, Sidney Rigdon, and William W. Phelps, names them as "stewards over the revelations and commandments" given them, "to manage them and the concerns thereof; yea, the benefits thereof," practically partners. Paragraph 3 says: "Nevertheless, in your temporal things you shall be equal;" while paragraph 4 still further confirms the same idea.

The vision, section 76, given February 16, 1832, deals, as stated in said Herald, with the future condition of the church in the presence of God. (Par. 7.)

Section 77, to Enoch, given March, 1832, to those ordained to the high priesthood. Paragraph 1. An order of Enoch, in which it is said to the membership of said order, "for if ye are not equal in earthly things, ye cannot be equal in obtaining heavenly things." A special agreement by the members of said order, benevolent yet practical in its organization.

Section 81, given Thursday, April 26, 1832, is named in Church History, vol. 1, p. 247, as "more instruction concerning the poor and the enlargement of Zion." The heading in Doctrine and Covenants states it as a revelation "showing the order [of the work] given to Enoch and the church in his day"—recognizes in paragraph 4 a difference in calling, office, work, needs, responsibility, nine individuals named to be bound together by a bond and covenant; in other words, to be under bond for the faithful discharge of the duties of their various stewardships. Paragraph 5 states it is "an everlasting order unto you and unto your successors," referring to the foregoing, "to manage the affairs of the poor, and all things pertaining to the bishopric." Paragraph 4, "for the benefit of the saints . . . and for a stake of Zion." This certainly is not general in its application, but in harmony with section 51.

Section 82, given Monday, April 30, 1832, provides for maintenance of widows and children, under given conditions. Its reading: "That widows and orphans shall be provided for, as also the poor," does away with all idea of economic equality.

Section 101. "Given to Enoch, concerning the order of the church for the benefit of the poor," revealed Tuesday, April 23, 1834, as in section 81, refers to two distinct localities, and also to two organizations. The fact that these were separate organizations makes it clear that the duties, obligations, properties, and benefits belonged to the members of said organizations and the special blessings or in case of default condemnations, applied only to the faithful or delinquent officers or members of these orders; and not to the membership of the church, as has sometimes been authoritatively taught. As applying to the condition of society,—the people, and governments of the world, as at present existing, which conditions the Lord in his revelations has evidently recognized, the only equality which I can find is the comparative equality of contribution provided for in the law of tithing; not the law as generally understood and taught, one tenth of what each individual has left after they have expended all that they need, or fancy they need, for their own purposes—an exceedingly flexible and variable standard—but one tenth of the earning or interest as the case may be, called increase.

A confusion of the terms sometimes arises, in which surplus and tithing are separated or joined together, and it may be wise to inquire what is surplus and what tithing, as defined in the law.

Remember, we are living under conditions which render as yet impossible that equality named in Doctrine and Covenants, section 76, vision of the future of the church in the presence of God, so that we must use the law only in its application to the conditions existing. No varying or unequal standard depending upon imperfect judgment, selfishness, or generosity can be properly considered; but the law which God has given. If God claims from me one tenth of my income and I have not been rendering it to him, then most certainly one tenth of all I possess is a surplus in my hands, which, if I wish to live in harmony with his law, I should turn over to the authority of his appointment. Conflicting ideas obtained in the early history of the church because of the various revelations on economic subjects and the various constructions put upon them, and on July 8, 1838, at Far West, Missouri, was given section 106, reading as follows:—

"In answer to the question, O Lord, show unto thy servants how much thou requirest of the properties of thy people for a tithing?" the Lord says: "Paragraph 1. Verily, thus saith the Lord, I require all their surplus property to put into the hands of the bishop of my church of Zion, for the building of mine house, and for the laying the foundation of Zion, and for the priesthood, and for the debts of the presidency of my church; . . . and after that, those who have thus been tithed, shall pay one tenth of all their interest annually" (and this the law of tithing, first the Lord's surplus and next the increase) "shall be a standing law unto them forever." Paragraph 2. "Verily I say unto you, It shall come to pass that all those who gather unto the land of Zion shall be tithed of their surplus properties, and shall observe this law, or they shall not be found worthy to abide among you."

How plain, simple, and easy of application is this; no room for dubiety or misunderstanding. "Unto whom much is given, of him much shall be required." If a saint's income is small, the contribution would be small; if large, it would be proportionately so.

Is this equality? I freely answer, NO; but it is the only provision in an economic way provided under existing conditions. How such conditions may be changed,—and the duty which the church owes to the individual, whatever his or her circumstances may be,—forms another and equally important chapter of the same subject, without which the faithful compliance of the individual saint would not effect the object intended under the law, for which the individual sacrifice was made.

The "example" given to Bishop Edward Partridge, in section 51, is to my mind the true method which should be used in the operation of the law of tithing, making it local in its collection and distribution for the purposes named in sections 106, 42, and others, where debts are contracted by the officials in charge for the benefit, and by the authority, of the church, for the poor, and especially for the faithful poor, who live up to the economic or financial law, the payment of the expenses, upbuilding of houses of worship, etc., as wisdom may direct.

BAPTISMAL FONTS.

Flowers have their time to bloom,
And leaves their time to fall;
Life comes to none too soon,
And death is sure to all.

Men have sought out many inventions, some tending to great good and others to great evil to man. To attempt to scan the field of invention and discovery, even in the religious and spiritual realm, if possible to make the investigation complete, would be productive of but little good to mankind, while a survey of the fields of science and art would be entirely foreign to the subject; suffice it to say that every departure from or attempted improvement upon nature, in the physical and spiritual world, has wrought corruption, misery, and death.

The introduction of the baptismal font into religious rites and ceremonies we consider an innovation, which in no way adds force, or sanctity to the rite of baptism, but tends directly to mar its beauty and simplicity, and breaks at once the link that would bind to us the gospel as it was delivered in the dispensation of Christ and the apostles.

"Men do not gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles;" but men do plant vineyards, grain, and fig trees, and from them they may expect to reap, in the proper seasons, their respective harvests, if care has been taken to plant proper plants and sow grain in suitable soil and climate, with the necessary care after planting. With a little carelessness or ignorance in the selection of proper grain, though the soil and climate might have been suitable, the harvest will be entirely different from what was expected; likewise if good seed be selected, and it be not properly planted, a full crop cannot be expected; or if it be sown broadcast on top of the ground, if the ground be not turned with the plow, and the grain buried, it will not grow.

The design of the gospel we believe to be to transfer subjects of the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of light; to accomplish which, certain ordinances were instituted among men, among which was the ordinance of baptism for the remission of sins that are past, which ordinance we believe to be a type of death, burial, and resurrection.

Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection.—Rom. 6: 4, 5.

Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead.—Col. 2: 12.

It also signifies a change of location or translation.

Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son.—Col. 1: 13.

Washing or purification:—

Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently.—1 Peter 1: 22.

And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord.—Acts 22: 16.

That he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word.—Eph. 5: 26.

And hence cancellation or remission; but not, as many suppose, for the forgiveness of sin; that is a condition of soul brought about by a godly sorrow, after conviction which worketh repentance, humility, confession, and where possible, restitution; and these are designated as works meet for repentance; these works being wrought, obedience to the ordinance of baptism brings remission.

Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins.—Acts 2: 38.

John did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins.—Mark 1: 4.

People are not buried until they are dead. The body that is lain away at death, is but the tabernacle or clothing of the spirit that has vacated the tenement. "Without the spirit the body is dead." While the spirit is in the body it is not a fit subject for burial; burial is the laying away of the matter which has become useless to the real or spirit body; if the burial is made before the spirit's departure, great physical and mental suffering must be endured: so with the burial by baptism, if made before the person is dead to sin, (having crucified the lusts of the flesh by doing the works meet (suitable) for repentance,) the motions of sin will remain in the flesh, causing trouble and unrest; the party not being fitted for the birth of the Spirit will remain a dead branch spiritually, sooner or later to be lopped off from the visible body or Church of Christ.

Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin.—Rom. 6: 6.

The crucifixion of Christ was not the laying of his body in the tomb, but was his suffering unto death on the cross, and if "our old man" is crucified (put to death) with him, in order that the body of sin may be destroyed, it must be before the burial in baptism.

It is not our object in this article to establish the fact, in the minds of the saints, that baptism to be efficacious must be by immersion; but since so much is at stake to the husbandman in the proper planting of grain to produce a harvest, so likewise everything is at stake to the candidates who present themselves as grain to be planted, as they suppose, by the Lord's husbandman for the great harvest of the world, it becomes them to consider well, not only the authority of the one representing himself to be a servant of the Lord, and the soil—kingdom or church—in which they expect to grow up after their typical resurrection; but the form or manner of planting in detail should be carefully looked to as well, that in the rite nothing be lacking to render the type of the death, burial, and resurrection of the Master complete. Jesus says, "follow me." The husbandman, when he prepares the ground, does not do so by removing the soil to some convenient place for planting the grain, but to the hillside, valley, or plain he resorts; and when the grain comes forth all is beautiful and harmonious with nature, and has become the type of a death, burial, and new birth. When men select a place for the burial of the dead they go forth and choose a spot under the open sky, there they lay their dead away where the dust may naturally return to the dust as it was.

If baptism is a fitting type of the planting and springing forth of grain,—or the death, burial, and resurrection of the physical body,—we fail to see the reason why the element in which the rite is to be solemnized should be removed and placed in a receptacle of woodwork or masonry, wherein the type is destroyed; it certainly has nothing in reason or nature to recommend, or in scripture to agree with it, and we know of no plea favoring a baptismal font in the basement of a building, to a lake or river under the open sky, other than convenience or popularity, or both; and when they are made the choice, the type is lost, as much so as in sprinkling or pouring, or immersing in rubber suits; or in the case of Cain offering the fruit of the ground in sacrifice instead of the fruit of the herd or flock. Pause for a moment and contrast the scenes if they will bear it,—a few persons taking their way into the basement of a building, the candidate and minister ascending and descending by steps into a basin or tank, the minister standing in the water, or beside the tank, raising his hand overhead in performing the ceremony,—with the scene of Jesus on the banks of Jordan, saying unto the porter, John the Baptist, "Thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness," and under the broad canopy of heaven in the presence of the assembled multitude going down into the water and being baptized of John and coming up out of the water, the voice from heaven bearing record, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased," then go forth under the open sky to the city of the dead and stand with the assembled friends and mourners who have come to pay the last sad rites to the departed, while the minister of God who stands with uplifted hand commits earth to earth, dust to dust, or the dead to his last resting place, and answer to yourselves which of the two is a most fitting symbol of the last.

"But," says one, "if immersion in the font or tank is not a legal baptism, what will be done about persons who are sick and request baptism, and are unable to go to a lake or pond for outdoor baptism?"

"It is written," "There was a man sent from God, whose name was John." If he was sent of God he did the works of God. He came preaching in the wilderness and baptizing in Jordan, and it was pleasing to God that he should there baptize. He was also "baptizing in Enon," "because there was much water there" (John 3: 23).

But the question of convenience still being urged, we ask: With whom did the precedent of convenience arise, with the priest or with the people? Surely not with the people, for the cross makes no provisions for convenience; and the mind of the penitent at once follows the footsteps of the Master and his disciples to Jordan and the seaside, through Judea and Galilee.

We believe the precedent arose with the priest, and for his convenience, and not with the Latter Day Saints. We are told there was a molten sea in Solomon's temple, but we are not cited to the scriptures which tell us it was placed there for baptizing for the remission of sins for the living; neither are we told why it was placed on the backs of twelve oxen. We state in reference thereto, to place the baptismal font on a parallel with the molten sea, it must be placed within the foundation, resting upon twelve oxen, before the superstructure is raised, like as was Solomon's temple. Its object should also be defined. If it was for baptizing for the dead, it is a fitting type, being placed under the Temple. As the spirits of the unregenerate dead are in the lower parts of the earth, it is an appropriate symbol to perform for them the rite of baptism by proxy, in the foundation of the temple, where the living are not wont to resort—the twelve oxen representing the animal of sacrifice by the twelve tribes. It should also be stated if this type was for Jewish times only, or does it extend to all times, for all nations. William Smith, in his dictionary, says it was for the washing of the priests. Joseph Smith says it was for baptizing for the dead.

And again, verily I say unto you, . . . there is not a place found on earth that he may come and restore again that which was lost unto you, . . . even the fullness of the priesthood; for a baptismal font there is not upon the earth; that they, my saints, may be baptized for those who are dead. (See D. C. 107: 10-12.)

It is further asked, What will we do in case of a person demanding baptism who is sick of dangerous illness and likely to die. We answer, The promises of the gospel are sufficient for all cases, and we venture the assertion, if the sick person has never heard the gospel in its fullness before being brought to a bed of sickness or death, and there first hears and believes the gospel, and repents and demands baptism at the hands of a faithful, authorized servant of Christ, opportunity will be granted, or sufficient strength will be given for the ordinance of baptism in a legal manner without detriment to the sick; besides cases are on record of persons sick, apparently unto death, being carried to the water and baptized, and instantly healed.

But again, if the person has heard the gospel and is taken down sick apparently unto death, becoming penitent, or demanding baptism from previous knowledge, we think it the duty of the parent and elder, knowing the fact, to make no delay in granting the request for baptism; for Jesus says, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved;" and we think the more dangerous the illness the greater need for a speedy attendance to the ordinance, for an extension of time may not be granted in such cases.

Jesus says you must be born again, must be born of the water (John 3: 5). It may be urged that immersion in a font or tank is legal baptism as much so as in the lake or river. We simply state it is not according to the command or pattern, and fails to be the similitude of the planting of grain or the burial of the dead.

Paul says we are buried by baptism into his death (Rom. 6: 4). Men do not convey soil to the basement of buildings, or other convenient places, to plant their grain or bury their dead. Jesus says, he who is sent of God doeth the works of God. I do always the things which please the Father. Jesus was baptized in Jordan; it therefore pleased God that he should there be baptized, and not in a font.

Contrast the restraint and awkward mechanical stiffness attending the ceremony at a baptismal font with the natural freedom and suitable relation of all the parts of a consistent whole with the majesty and sublimity of the scene as one goes forth in strict obedience to the commandment to "go down into the water" (realizing that he is following in the footsteps of the Master), and there in the yielding wave bury the penitent, dead to sin, and bring him up again out of the water to walk in newness of life, in harmony with nature and the law of God.

We claim that baptism is not complete until both candidate and administrator are out of the water.

And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him.—Matt. 3: 16.

And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him.—Mark 1: 10.

"He who is sent of God doeth the works of God." We think if John the Baptist had been standing in a baptismal font, or in the basement of a building, Jesus would not have come to him to be baptized, and he would not have seen the Spirit descending from heaven (John 1: 32). And if

Philip and the eunuch had not come up out of the water, the Spirit would not have caught away Philip, as the baptism would not have been complete.

And they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip.—Acts 8: 38, 39.

In the Book of Mormon we read:—

And he said unto them, On this wise shall ye baptize; and there shall be no disputations among you. Verily I say unto you, that whoso repenteth of his sins through your words, and desireth to be baptized in my name, on this wise shall ye baptize them: Behold, ye shall go down and stand in the water, and in my name shall ye baptize them. And now behold, these are the words which ye shall say, calling them by name, saying: Having authority given me of Jesus Christ, I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. And then shall ye immerse them in the water, and come forth again out of the water.—Book of Nephi 5: 15-18.

And when they had thus prayed, they went down unto the water's edge, and the multitude followed them. And it came to pass that Nephi went down into the water, and was baptized. And he came up out of the water, and began to baptize. And he baptized all those whom Jesus had chosen. And it came to pass when they were all baptized and had come up out of the water, the Holy Ghost did fall upon them, and they were filled with the Holy Ghost, and with fire.—Book of Nephi 9: 10-14.

We now quote from the Doctrine and Covenants, 17: 21.

Baptism is to be administered in the following manner unto all those who repent: The person who is called of God and has authority from Jesus Christ to baptize, shall go down into the water with the person who has presented him or herself for baptism, and shall say, calling him or her by name: Having been commissioned of Jesus Christ, I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, Amen. Then shall he immerse him or her in the water, and come forth again out of the water.

While the font may be more convenient for the priest, it is certainly not always convenient for the people; but it may be more genteel than to go into a muddy stream, and it certainly is more popular; but popularity, in many cases, is but another name for pride; but "God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble," and this may be one of the reasons for the dearth of the spiritual gifts and slumbering condition of the church at the present time. John was baptizing in Enon near to Salim, because there was much water there.

A number of converts were made recently in Davis City, where was abundance of water in the river; but they were baptized in a font in Lamoni, seven miles away. Was it convenience or popularity, or to gain prestige for some individual, custom, or place, that led to the change? If not, what was it? Surely the reading of the Scriptures—either Bible, Book of Mormon, or Doctrine and Covenants—would not lead to make choice of the font so far away in preference to the quiet stream near by.

"But," we are asked, "is not immersion in the font, where there is sufficient water, as truly or legally a baptism as it is in the open water or running stream?" We reply that immersion alone is not baptism. "To the law and to the testimony, if we speak not according to that, it is because there is no light in us."

The question should not be, how far we may depart from the pattern given to still retain sufficient resemblance to the original to avoid detection; but should be, how fully can we keep the commandments and how closely adhere to the original that when the work is completed it may be genuine. It ought to be sufficient to know that when Jesus came to do the will of the Father, that what he did was according to the will of God. Jesus said:—

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.—John 10:1.

If it can be shown that the baptismal font in the foundation of a building is a symbol, type, or pattern of the Jordan River, then it may reasonably be considered the door into the kingdom or sheepfold; if not, it may be some other way. If Jesus set the door of the kingdom in the open water, a connected part of the natural world, and Jesus and the porter both had to go down into the water, and come up again out of the water, to enter through the door, his authorized ministers cannot well do the same work by doing less.

DANIEL SECOND CHAPTER.

In the interpretation of the great image of Daniel, second chapter; we will notice first a part of the twenty-eighth verse:—

But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days.

This scripture needs no explanation. Next a part of verse 32 reads:—

This image's head was of fine gold.

This was to represent the kind of government and not a particular government. In verse 38, Daniel says, "Thou art this head of Gold." So he was; and so was the kingdom of the Medes and Persians represented by the head of gold. Also the Grecian was represented by the head of gold. So also has every kingdom that has existed since that day, down to our day been represented by the head of gold. Then the head in the image is intact, and good to day. A part of verse 32, "his breast and his arms of silver." This is represented by the papacy. Daniel says in verse 39, "and after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee."

The function of government is to protect life and property, and when we measure the papacy by this standard, we find that it is greatly inferior to the kingdoms of the earth. Then again, their revenues are collected by contributions, and are mainly in silver, and is in line with the idea that their revenues are also "inferior" to the revenues of kings. Then again the silver in the image is good to-day, as the papacy is with us to-day. "His belly and his thighs of brass." (Verse 32.) This is represented by the Mahomedan power. Daniel says in verse 39:—

And another third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth.

This has been applied to Alexander's government, because he is said to have conquered the world. But history shows us that the Mahomedan power came nearer conquering the world than any power that ever preceded it. Then again, their small money is brass, and is in line with the idea of being represented by an inferior metal. "His legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay." (Verse 33.) This is represented by the United States.

And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron: forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things: and as iron that breaketh all these, shall it break in pieces and bruise.—Verse 40.

The United States government is a government by the people, for the people, and is as strong as iron; and her principles of government have gone out into the world, and bruised all the kingly powers, by compelling them to give to their subjects constitutional forms of government, and to make better laws; and have broken France of her king, Brazil of her king, and Mexico of her king, and the tendency is to still further growth. These great things have been done by our example and influence, while we have stayed at home and attended to our own business.

And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potter's clay, and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay. And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong, and partly broken. And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay.—Dan. 2:41-43.

This is represented by the negro. He became a part of the image when he was given the vote. Before that he was a chattel. The negro mingles with the seed of men, but does not cleave to each other any more than iron will cleave to the clay. He has been in the image nearly thirty years, and occupies the same position he did at the commencement. The toes represent the president and vice president, and the eight cabinet officers.

The negro vote helps to elect them.

The image is now completed, and has only lately been completed, and is now ready intact for the blow.

Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and broke them to pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them; and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth.—Dan. 2:34, 35.

Please notice the image must be complete before the stone smote the feet, and that the whole thing came down together. Evidently the stone is the true Church of Christ in the hands of the Master at his second coming. The image is now ready, and the world is looking for his second coming. Are the people of God ready? This interpretation is my brother A. W. S's, down to the stone.

THERE IS NO DEATH.

BY ELDER T. C. KELLEY.

There is no death to those who love the Savior;

He that on me believes shall never die;
And though we cross the dark, the mystic river,
Beyond it lies the land of cloudless sky.

There is no death; "He that on me believeth,
Though he were dead, yet shall he live again;"

Thus Jesus said to the heart-stricken Martha,
When of a brother's loss she did complain.

There is no death. "I am the resurrection,"
To stricken ones 'twas said, with gentle voice;

It comes to us now, like the sweetest echo,
And our sad hearts it maketh to rejoice.

There is no death. O! smitten ones, take courage;

Trust ye in Christ, the Mighty One to save,
Who the strong bands of death did break asunder,
And rose again triumphant o'er the grave.

There is no death; 'tis only passing over,
And though the other side we cannot see,
We do not doubt the promise of the Savior,
He that on me believes from death is free.

There is no death. We do not fear its power;
Since Jesus rose triumphant from the tomb;
For thus he says, "There soon will come the hour,
When all who hear, from out their graves shall come."

There is no death. O! grave, where is thy triumph?
Thou canst not hold our loved ones 'mid thy gloom;
Like sweetest flowers in the resurrection,
They'll rise to life with never-fading bloom.

There is no death. Aye! we shall live forever,
In that bright world, secure from ev'ry harm;
And from our loved ones we'll be parted never,
If we in faith our duty here perform.

There is no death. Hushed be each sigh and sorrow;
Let tears of anguish no more fill your eyes,
For with your loved ones you may meet tomorrow,
And dwell with them in lands of cloudless skies.

Brice Hospital,

TUSKALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 2.

Editors Herald:—Some dear, kind, saints have so greatly befriended me since I arrived here, I feel anxious to try to express my appreciation of the same through the pages of this nice little paper. As I have already made known (through Ensign's pages), several of my afflicted friends here seem greatly interested in "our belief," and no doubt but many saints would smile if they could only peep in the big room every afternoon and see how attentively several of the invalids listen to my reading from our church publications, also the New Testament and the highly appreciated letters written me by kind, thoughtful, sympathetic saints whom I have never met; but they don't seem like strangers to me.

Some dear, accommodating friend has been sending me the new Herald for about three weeks, and this morning my heart was caused again to rejoice over a new copy of Autumn Leaves, which not only brought delight to me but to others who have been so interested in those sent by Sr. M. E. Jamison, of Denver, Colorado. They all seem so interested in the autobiography of Bro. Luff, and it seems that all letters and sermons must be read, and the poetry, and those "good pieces" mustn't be neglected; and it is no strange or unpleasant noise to me to hear Mrs. Norrell and Miss Portis (the two most deeply interested) call out, as soon as we return from dinner every day, "Come on to the big room and read; we are ready." And if anyone enters, disturbing those who are listening so attentively, I am assisted in getting them out immediately.

They often remark that they wish saints would pray for them, and have asked me to mention this when I write for the paper again. Miss Carrie Oliver, my best-old-maid, kind-hearted friend, on "Hall 1," seems so delighted over the Autumn Leaves and Hopes, and she and Mrs. Slegall, another interested friend on the same hall, have already mentioned that they "want to read them all;" and as you all know, this is much pleasure to me. How I wish I could prove my appreciation to those dear, kind saints, who are sending me the papers by actions, as words fail to describe it. If you would like to have book-marks painted, just send the ribbon and I will gladly do the work for you, you who are so kind to furnish us the papers; and I only wish I had ribbon, and knew your names, so as to surprise each of you by sending the marks. Interested friends have also asked me to send their thanks for the same, and to ask saints to please remember all of us in their prayers.

Before writing more I must thank Sr. Burnett for her kindness a few days since, also Sr. Nora Butterfield, of California, and Bro. G. R. Outhouse, of Iowa, for their thoughtfulness of me. Such letters, as written by each of them, and Sr. Rivers, I have found to be "great relief for the melancholy, homesick feeling," and not only consoling to me, but also to these interested friends; and each of them asked me to send their love when I write. I am so glad Grandma Burnett, of Missouri, and the sisters spent such a delightful time at surprise party, and wish I could have been with them. Must again say, Thanks, darling Sr. Burnett, for paper and what you inclosed in it.

I felt delighted to hear from Bro. M. M. Turpen through Bro. Snow's letter in Herald of July 15. I always feel so glad to hear from Brn. Turpen and Gillen, as I believe it was through their patience and prayers that I was led to see the truth. How delighted I would feel to be among saints at Garland, after Bro. Turpen reaches there; but I am now striving for patience to remain here until Christmas, as Papa so greatly desires this, and I feel anxious to follow his instructions. Please pray for me in this way also; dear brethren and sisters, that I may be more patient, that the days may not seem so long, and nights sleepless, and that I may not suffer so terribly with homesickness. With love and best wishes to all,

Your loving sister in Christ,

JENNIE PAGE.

MACON, Mo., Aug. 1.

Editors Herald:—To those who, like myself and family, have for the past eighteen years been isolated from church organization, there is no greater blessing outside the gospel itself than the weekly visits of the dear Herald and Ensign, bearing record, as they do, of the progress of God's work in redeeming mankind in this our day. But oh how it hurts when we read anything unbecoming of those that have so great a work in charge.

It is written, that though we give ourself as a sacrifice, and have not charity, it availeth nothing. I would then ask, Where is the charity or love if that part of Bro. C. L. Snow's letter in Herald of July 26, in which he so plainly intimates that the author of "Jots by the Wayside" so writes to make people believe that he is a "hustler." I know beyond a doubt that nothing could be further from the intention of the writer of "Jots" than that, and I also know that he is a hustler in every sense, and none will bear me out in these statements quicker than the good brother, M. M. Turpen, to whom Bro. Snow refers in the same letter.

It has been the pleasure of myself and family for years past, when either or both of these brethren have been in this part of the country, that my home was and is theirs. I know these assertions to be the sentiments of all true saints throughout this part of the country, so far as I have learned; I also know that the best do not please all. I therefore fear for some, unless they get themselves in shape to be pleased, no matter what their pretensions may be.

In gospel bonds,

Editors Herald:—Work moves slowly enough here in the East; but there are a few noble souls who have their hands to the plow, and are not "looking back." We hope they will be "fit for the kingdom of God." One promising young man, Eugene Braun, baptized last Sunday. Great hopes are entertained that he will develop into a useful worker in the church, both as a minister and otherwise. So may it be; for good, faithful workers are among the greatest needs of the church in these parts.

Still in the faith, and trying to work in the interest of the truth,

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 1.

Editors Herald:—The reunion of Southern California district is a thing of the past; and although we labored under disadvantages from several causes, yet it was a success from start to finish; so admitted by all whom we heard speak of the results. Ten persons were baptized, three adults (women) and seven girls, aged from nine to thirteen years. Several others have since announced that they intend to be soon. We hope that the evil one will not be able to prevent them, by sowing tares in their pathway.

The social atmosphere was tempered with joy and peace, with slight exceptions; notwithstanding the saints made this occasion the first practical test in the line of coöperation, in the cooking and eating department; it proved thoroughly satisfactory to those participating in it; and those who did not, or the most of them, were heard to say they would go into the coöperative business next year. Meals were served at the nominal cost of seven and one half cents each, including 123 given away to the missionaries and friends. This system enabled the sisters to enjoy more freedom from toil and care, thus adding to their social and spiritual enjoyment, though they saw where improvement can be made next time; and the "Zion" plan made more feasible, when the consecrations and the surplus moneys and means of the people of God shall be placed in the hands of the Bishop to redeem Zion. So much for the social department, and now we will write of the spiritual.

The writer being one of the reunion committee, was deprived of attending several of the morning prayer meetings, because of having to meet the trains two and one half miles from the camp ground; not even being able to get back (every time) at the commencement of the forenoon preaching meetings. But the prayer meetings which he did attend, and what he was told of the others, assured him that they were of a very spiritual nature, and greatly enjoyed by all present; the power of the Holy Spirit descending and resting upon the various speakers, making them buoyant while testifying of the restoration of the gospel in its primitive purity and fullness. The gift of prophecy rested upon some, which had a softening influence, even upon some who have not yet entered in by the door to the sheepfold. One Elder Wilbur,—a minister of the Church of God (so-called), a believer in the seventh day Sabbath, and in the sleep of the soul between death and the resurrection,—attended most of the time, and said he was much pleased with what he saw and heard. But what benefit he has or may receive, the future will have to disclose. One Elder Jones, of the Baptist Church, who wanted a debate (or said he did), also attended the afternoon service on the last Sunday, his wife also accompanying him; but after meeting he was not quite so eager, as his wife was heard to tell him that he had better let that fellow (T. W. Chatburn) alone. I was told that he said that he was not prepared to complete the arrangement for a discussion, and is still hanging fire.

There is also some talk of a debate between Elder Wilbur and T. W. Williams, which many are anxious to have take place, but no certainty of it at present.

Brethren Chatburn and Williams did most of the preaching during the reunion, and much of it was the most powerful appeal to the hearts of their hearers (members and non-members) that I ever heard, carrying with the appeal the necessity to obey every command of God, making very strong impressions for good on the minds of outsiders; who, in turn, have carried the good news to the ears of their neighbors. So that an influence favorable to our views has gone out, the results of which none but the God of heaven knows.

And now if all the members of the church would live up "to the mark of their high calling in Christ Jesus," and thus bid defiance to the tongue of slander, what a power for good they would soon become in the land; and hundreds of good, truth-loving people would soon flock to God's standard of truth, and the saints of God would soon be looked up to as models, instead of, as at present, being scorned and looked down upon. Improvement is still a much needed qualification.

Our reunion was held within the limits of Newport branch; the general surroundings not being first-class, and some prejudice existing in the other branches because of the location; it became apparent that a strong exertion must be made to put the grounds in the best condition possible, with the limited means and help at the disposal of the committee, in order that success and the greatest amount of good possible should accrue. Therefore, the active members of the committee, (I say active members because you know there are generally some of the number who are only committee-men in name,) and the active members of Newport branch united their efforts to make the reunion a success. It required a long and strong pull to overcome the various obstacles that loomed up in the way; but many of noble sisters, and several of the same sort of brothers of that branch, came to the rescue of the committee, and worked with unflagging zeal; causing tired hands and feet, with weary bodies and minds. But unitedly we surmounted the difficulties one by one; and now we thank God for courage and strength to perform those arduous duties; and as we contemplate the amount of good done, we are glad that we were instrumental in his hands for the accomplishment of so much good, and feel assured that the future will bring the reward for well-doing. We also feel encouraged to continue the effort while life and strength last.

All seemed sad as the time for separation began to draw near. Some outsiders remarked, that "it is too bad to close these meetings; why, you are just now beginning to get advertised, and you ought to continue here for four weeks." One man said, "Surely Joseph Smith must have been a Prophet of God," after listening to a powerful sermon on the restoration of the gospel by T. W. Williams. Another person said, "That is all truth." Another, standing near by said, "Yes, and see what we have lost by not being at all these meetings."

On Saturday, at noon, the coöpers were so well pleased with the results of their cheap living, that they determined to give their boarders a chicken dinner on the next day (Sunday), so they sent out agents to procure the chickens; and sure enough, at dinner, the chickens materialized, together with a dish of ice cream, but the latter at ten cents a dish extra, the profits to be divided equally among missionaries present. The result, in profits, amounted to just ten dollars.

On Monday morning the writer of this article was very much surprised to receive five dollars of the ten, and was told that the other five was to go to old Bro. William Gibson. Four missionaries on the ground, and five dollars each to two of them, would naturally cause a little astonishment; but three days later, on hearing that a purse of more than fifty dollars had been given to the other two, his surprise wilted just a little. The two who were presented with five dollars each, were well on in years, and as the old men of the church are now relegated to the rear, and dubbed old fogies, or cranks, by some of the young men of the missionary forces, it does not require an especial or extra amount of the gift of the discernment of spirits to understand why such generosity was displayed, in bequeathing the full amount of the ice cream profits to the two old fogies. But then, of course, they ought to be satisfied (?) with the crumbs which fall from their Master's table; but somewhere we have read "that the Lord is no respecter of persons;" and, "Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?" And again: "I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect angels, that thou observe these things without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality."

Now, Mr. Editor, this article is somewhat lengthy, but as we do not come very often, we would be pleased to see it published in your columns verbatim. The last part may be considered to be somewhat sarcastic; but we believe good will accrue from its publication, therefore we hope to see it in full, or have it returned to University Station, Los Angeles, California.

In hope,

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 1.

Editors Herald:—Just home after nearly four months' crusade among the branches of South Missouri district, and not having burdened the pages of the best paper in the world for a long time, I will run the risk of spending my time and these scribblings finding their way to the waste basket. I began to take the Herald in the year 1870; I think I have taken it every year since, but one, (the year 1872, wish I could get that volume too,) and have them on file. Have also every number of the Messenger, Expositor, Advocate, Autumn Leaves, Zion's Ensign; and not least among our church periodicals, Sandheden's Banner, (Truth's Banner—a Danish paper,) printed in our own mother tongue, and edited by Elder Peter Anderson. I felt sad to think that so grand a little paper should be discontinued, as it was surely a wonderful source of comfort to the saints in our fatherland, as well as to thousands on this side of the shore. But that is not all. I notice with sorrow that our people upon that far-off land have been left without a shepherd for a number of years; left to die a spiritual death, or to live or die as best they can, and to say nothing about them. Is it possible that all in that land have heard the sound of the gospel, and that there are no one else to be saved? If not, is it not time that some one should be sent to look after the interests of our work there? Have we not an elder of Danish blood among us that would venture to give his life, and his all if need be, for the life and salvation of his race, and that of Norway—which are of the same blood and language originally? Has not Denmark furnished her thousands to this grand and glorious latter-day work, and but for the shame and stink brought upon the church by Brigham Young, hundreds, yea thousands more might have been brought into the fold. But for all said and done, we hope some one or more will be sent, or volunteer to go from our next General Conference. Who shall it be? Let our Scandinavian saints make this subject a matter of prayer, that the Lord may speak and direct in this matter; for if one or more are sent by his direction, he will assuredly stand by them, and there need be no fear as to the results, let the ingathering be few or many. As soon as possible, the publication of Sandheden's Banner should be renewed.

I do not see how some of the saints live without the church publications, as they are now low in price, and in reach of all. I took the Herald when it was only half its present size, monthly, and $3 per year. I longed for its coming then, and do now since it has become a weekly.

During the last conference quarter I have visited every branch in the district. Some are making progress, while others are taking a rest. I think that some of the branches suffer by reason of officers pushing out away from the branches, opening up new fields, thereby neglecting home work in both church and Sunday school, having meetings in the branch but one or two Sundays in the month. Where there are more than one elder or priest in a branch, the spirit of push and work is commendable on that line, and in order; but let them and the officers in charge of the branches counsel together as to the best method of performing said labor, and let it be remembered that the teacher and deacon are standing ministers to the church (branch), to which they belong. When we go out into the world, we preach to the law and to the testimony; the same rule should at all times apply to us. If I should step up and labor in a higher calling than the one whereunto I have been called, I fear that Bro. I. N. or some one else would step up and tap me on the shoulder, saying, Bro. J. C., are you not a little venturesome? Little boats should stay near shore, big boats may venture more. By this I do not wish to convey the idea that there is or should be a big I and a little U, or that one is any greater in the sight of God than the other, but every man in his own place and calling. A good shoemaker is not always a good carpenter, and vice versa; yet every tradesman works remarkably well at his own profession, to the good of all concerned. And let not the lay members think that they are any the less because they are not elders or apostles; for while they cannot and have not the ability to preach to the public three hundred and sixty-five days in a year, they can preach by insample and example the same number of days in the year to maintain and sustain them that have been called to officiate publicly, and their reward will be in accordance with labor performed and sacrifices made just the same. The ministry know the great responsibility resting upon them, and who will be held responsible—if so be that one or more of them are compelled to leave the field of active labor to look after and provide for loved ones at home, when at the same time the laborers are few and the harvest ripe, and the grain falling and the cry coming from all quarters, Come and help us, come at once; but if tied—how shall we respond, and who shall be made to answer. The lovely expression, "God bless you," carries with it a double meaning, which when carried out, make the wife and children at home feel good, and put the north side of the elder's garments in good repair—hence an equal reward to all for the same amount of labor.

Our conference at Pomona was good, and that branch on the way to improvement. Wife, daughter, and youngest son (Nephi) met me there on June 22, that being the twenty-fifth anniversary of our wedded life. Feeling thankful to God for his blessings of the past, we shall try to trust him in the future and what it brings.

Bro. Hilliard's article in the Herald of July 26 has been commented on considerably, and some inclined to think that he means to convey the thought that the Ozark Mountains are not within "the regions round about," hence not the place to buy homes, or a place of gathering. However, I do not so understand him; but for all, I hope that he will make an explanation. It takes considerable money to buy homes in and about Independence, while here in the Ozark Mountains and valleys good homes can be secured for from three hundred to one thousand dollars—good enough for a king; raw land still cheaper. And oftentimes you can trade a good team, harness, and wagon towards a home. Bro. George W. Hicks, of Buel, Michigan, has bought a splendid farm for this country within a half mile of Vera Cruz, in Douglas County, and is pleased with the country. Anyone wishing information about the Ozarks will do well to correspond with him, as he is honorable and reliable. I will also refer you to N. Bishop, of Sweden, Missouri; E. W. Anway, of Larissa, Missouri; and J. E. Swegard, of Beaver, Missouri; and your humble servant will be glad to furnish you with any information at his command, upon the receipt of a two cent stamp. But again, I warn and forewarn the saints not to move to this mountainous country till you come and see, and learn for yourself, no matter what this one or that one may say, think, or do, as some will be pleased while others will be displeased. Ever looking after the interests of myself, as well as others, I remain,

Yours in gospel bonds,

J. C. CHRESTENSEN.

GALLAND'S GROVE, Iowa, July 9.

Editors Herald:—I feel to thank God for the blessings that I receive. When I first entered the latter-day work, I worked hard, and everything went against me. I could not get anything ahead. I thought I could not pay anything to the church, or take the Herald. I finally paid a little tithing and my luck turned. I have increased a little every year; and I have been blessed. If we think we can be in keeping with the law and not pay tithing, I think we will be left out of the city. We can't send the gospel abroad without money. Let us wake up and do our duty. I don't believe that because we are in debt we are excused from paying some tithing. If every one would study the law and do it, they would get the promised blessing. The Lord will do his part if we will do ours. I have had trials, and I thank God that I have had them; without them I would not have known what I do. The evil spirit has tried to get me out of the church, but I will stay with it till I know it is not right. The trials came on me for not doing my duty.

Now, brethren and sisters, see that you erect your family altar, and show by every act that you are a child of God. Don't let the evil overcome the good, as I have done. If you do, you will suffer for it, as I have done. I thought I was so ignorant that I could not do anything this year. I made up my mind that all I have in this world was given to me as my living, and I must leave it here sooner or later, and then be called to give an account how I used it. My prayer is that God may guide his children, so that everyone will do his will. Study what charity is, and see if you have it. Never desert the army, and have the sentence passed, Depart ye workers of iniquity. May the Spirit of God be with you all, is my prayer. I ask all to pray for me, as I have been afflicted with deafness so long, but believe I will hear again.

Your brother,

F. T. DABIE.

GALLAND'S GROVE, Iowa, July 26.

Editors Herald:—The Herald is spiritual food to me. We are told to study; I have been trying to do so this year, and God has prospered me and built me up in the faith. I do not think that I would ever give up the work, even should my life be at stake. I have been in the work here for sixteen years, and I ever expect to. Life was no pleasure to me. I had been lulled to sleep; but I am waking up, and the good Spirit is returning. I wish I could help bear the gospel; but I am so ignorant, and my mind is nearly gone. I am getting better, and have always thought I would. I think if I can keep up my courage and pay my tithing, God can give me all I have lost. I have all this world's goods I need, but not as much of the Spirit of truth, which I am trying to get. I am hungering for the Spirit of God, and will still try to implore his blessing.

I feel to rejoice to think I am worthy to bear the trials, and that the Spirit of God is still with me. My trials have been great; being so I could not hear the gospel. This is the kind of a gospel I always believed. I never had any pleasure in the things that the world call pleasure. I had a desire to serve God, and anything that was in conflict with the teachings of Christ, I could not accept. Now let every one study his duty, and be ready to give a reason for the hope within him. To do this, let every saint's house have the Herald in it, and let it be a house of prayer; and be sure that your name is on the Bishop's books.

Your brother,

F. T. DABIE.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Aug. 3.

Editors Herald:—There are two Utah elders stationed here, preaching on the public square every night, representing themselves to be followers of the doctrine as taught by Joseph Smith. They are teaching the first principles of the gospel and claiming to be the church. Bro. Strachan is away to the old country. Bro. Harris is in charge, but he has no time, so I could not stand their misrepresentations any longer. I just went for them myself.

My acquaintance with the Doctrine and Covenants and Book of Mormon and Church History came in handy. I had splendid liberty. My mind was clear and I could think as fast as I could talk. It was my first attempt to speak before such a crowd, but I went over the history of our church from 1830 to 1844, told them how it was disorganized, how many were in the old church, how many other leaders besides Brigham attempted leadership, and how Brigham organized the Utah Church, and his teachings as compared with Christ's on polygamy, Adam-God, and blood atonement. I made them admit publicly they believed in the principle of polygamy. One of them admitted I had a little the best of the argument, but hid behind the counsel of the church not to discuss. But they are like a goose; they are hard to teach and stubborn, so they still preach on the corners, but they do not attract the attention they did at first.

I stepped out the other evening after they got through and read to their hearers, the questions and answers of Herald of February 15, 1899. Some of the hearers shook hands with me, and spoke to me the next day, and said they were glad I had opposed them. I send you one of the Youngstown papers which noticed my attempt at checking them.

Yours truly,

ABE MORGAN.

BALD KNOB, Ark., Aug. 8.

Editors Herald.—Ah! what hot weather we are having down here in Arkansas, but I am standing the heat all right since Bro. Hilliard persuaded me to quit coffee and not to eat too much chicken in summer.

My debate with Dr. Brown, Campbellite, near Little Rock, proved to be a flash. I arrived at Ingleside and met with saints and friends July 23, expecting to begin the debate on the 24th; but no Dr. Brown. I hear money was the cause. Some said they did not know why Cousin Bence did not come to meet me.

I held meetings for two weeks. Sickness preventing some, but we had good meetings and much good was done. Our Baptist friends became stirred and are trying to get J. N. Hall, the great debater of that Baptist fame to meet me. I will be pleased to meet J. N. Hall, Missionary Baptist. If he can prove their church he will do something no other man has ever done.

Bro. James Moore lost his sweet little girl Frances while I was there. I preached its funeral in the Methodist church to a large gathering of people. Bro. Moore is a man of much faith and patience. May God bless him to endure all things to the end.

I had the pleasure of listening to Bro. James M. Smith preach, our Arkansas logician. Bro. Smith is a very fine young man. May he continue in the work. I will begin meeting here to-night. Will meet G. W. Leonard at Maysville, Arkansas, September 4. I hope he will be there. But if he don't come, I can't help it.

In bonds,

J. D. ERWIN.

LONEROCK, Oregon, Aug. 3.

Editors Herald.—Thinking some might wonder what has become of Bro. D. L. Harris, I beg a little space in your valuable paper to say a few words. On April 23 I bade good-bye to loved ones at home, and started for Oregon and Washington by request of Bro. G. T. Griffiths, to spend the remainder of the year in this field. I joined Bro. H. L. Holt at Los Angeles, and together took train for San Francisco, stopping at Tulare, my former field, and spoke to the few saints there. The last night there they thought we looked warm, and tried to cool us off by giving us a treat to ice cream and cake. Bro. Holt did his part then; but the writer not being much of a hand did only fairly well. At San Francisco we parted; he going by rail to Oregon, and the writer by boat to Coos Bay. H. L. was not a tall a larmed, nor the least bit scared (as the colored man put it) of the water; but he had business on the railroad, while the writer could take his chances on the boat.

We left the harbor of San Francisco, May 9, for Coos Bay, a distance of four hundred and four miles. When we reached that point it was too late for the outgoing train, which only runs three times a week to Myrtle Point, our objective point. We were on the boat seventy-three hours instead of forty-eight, which was the time to make the trip in, owing to head winds and heavy seas. Four of us passengers hired a team to take us to Coquille City. There we took boat for Myrtle Point, where I found a horse and saddle awaiting my arrival. A ride of ten miles brought us to where Bro. A. M. Chase was to meet a Seventh Day Adventist in debate, and I was expected to look on, which I did. The debate passed off smoothly. In the eyes of some, both were victorious.

From there Bro. Chase and I went to Bandon, where we had some good meetings, and baptized five; then left for other parts for a week, then back to Bandon for ten days more, when four more gave their names for baptism. At Bandon we were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Culver, not members by enrollment, but should be; and my prayer is may God richly reward them for their kindness to us.

Next we proceeded to Minard's Mill, where arrangements had been made for a week's meetings. From here we were taken to Looking Glass by Mr. Mase, who is not a member as yet, but I hope he may be some day; we appreciated his kindness, for it took him four days to make the trip. In Looking Glass we held forth for a week. Bro. Orson Buell took us to Roseburg, where we took train for Summit Station, and stopped off and baptized one. Then on next day to Portland, where I parted company with Bro. Chase, which I was loth to do, for I had found him a very agreeable companion and an able defender of the faith. He went to Castle Rock, Washington, and I to Lonerock, Oregon.

Since my banishment to the lonely desert of eastern Oregon, I have accomplished little for the Master. I was a looker on at the debate between Bro. W. A. Goodwin and the Rev. Fredinburg of the Baptist persuasion, when a victory was won for truth, which was apparent to all present, with the exception of a few. At Lonerock several are much interested. From Lonerock Bro. Goodwin and I went to Wagner, and being closed out of the schoolhouse by the good Christians (which house would not make a respectable chicken coop), the infidels opened their card arbor for us, and we spoke twice to an attentive crowd; and we thought, "by their fruits ye may know them."

Monday I started for John Day, Grant County, and Bro. Goodwin for home. Well, after a ride of eighty miles over some of the worst country that a team has to go over, I reached John Day. Found a few saints there, who seemed glad to see me. Although we had never met before, I was kindly cared for by them. Held a few meetings, but there was no interest, and having received word of the reunion, I turned my face for it, and shall keep looking till I find some place where the people want to hear. In the fall and winter I am told this is an inviting field. Well, it may be then, but it is not now. I missed it in leaving Coos County, where the people want to hear, and begged me to stay. But I am not in the lead, and the revolving light of this field was hurrying me up, hence the reason we left. On the coast it was rain, rain; but here it is dust, dust. Quite a contrast. I leave to-morrow for reunion.

D. L. HARRIS.

DENNISPORT, Cape Cod, Mass., Aug. 8.

Editors Herald.—The New England reunion, now fairly under way, began as advertised, Saturday, August 5, in the afternoon, in its opening session in Snow's grove, where we are pleasantly situated among the pines, within sound and almost sight of the Atlantic Ocean, one half mile away.

The presidents of the church present and expected. Presidents of the mission and of the district were chosen as presiding officers of the reunion, having direction of all meetings as to time, appointments, etc. Pres. Joseph Smith and Joseph Luff arriving in time for evening service, the former occupying the preacher's stand at night.

Sunday morning, the 6th, saints and friends assembling in the spacious tent at nine, enjoyed a spiritual feast and time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Preaching in the forenoon by Elder Joseph Luff, under the power and illumination of the Holy Spirit. In the afternoon Pres. Joseph Smith continued for us the feast of entertainment according to the gospel supply. In the evening Patriarch Alexander H. Smith was the speaker, occupying with excellent liberty and evident satisfaction to the large audience that filled the tent to overflow.

Monday, at nine a. m., saints met in social service; the Spirit's presence lending power and comfort and edification. In the forenoon preaching by Elder M. H. Bond. In the afternoon a large assembly gathered at the ocean side, and two precious souls were buried in baptism in the waters of the old ocean, Pres. Joseph Smith officiating. In the evening Elder F. M. Sheehy gave a lecture on Book of Mormon, illustrating by the aid of a large map the ancient civilizations of the American continent.

This (Tuesday) morning, prayer service according to regular order, followed by preaching by Elder Holmes J. Davison of Nova Scotia.

The meetings are a success. Beautiful weather; beautiful surroundings. The presence of the principal elders of the church, the mutual good will and affection, the presence of the Holy Spirit aiding in the preaching of the word in so marked a manner, as well as in our social exercises, leaving no doubt upon the minds of any as to the approval of God in gatherings of this kind.

The pleasures of ocean surf bathing are added to the enjoyment of our gathering, and Brethren Joseph and Alexander say they are happy and enjoying themselves finely, and you may take our word also for it, they are telling the truth.

As we close this hurriedly written note, Bro. W. H. Kelley is seen striding across the grounds, putting in a welcome, though somewhat delayed appearance.

M. H. BOND.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 10.

Editors Herald:—In a city like this it is somewhat of a puzzle to know just how to reach the people with the gospel message. We have religion enough here and at present there are a number of churches running tent missions in various parts of the city. I cannot say how well they are attended as I have not visited any of them up to the present time. Beside these mission tents there are the street preachers. Among the latter you may count the writer as a late convert to street preaching. "If the mountain will not come to Mahommed, Mahommed will go to the mountain;" so as the people do not flock to us in great numbers here in this city, we thought we would go to the people.

We have held forth a number of times on the north side of the city hall, where there is plenty of room for all who want to hear. On arriving at the above-mentioned place Friday night last, in company with Brn. W. H. Kelley and John Zimmerman, we found a young man there already under a full head of religious fervor trying to gather up a crowd. We walked some distance away on the other side of the entrance and were about to begin our services, when about thirty men marched across the street with sticks in their hands forming a circle they unfurled the sticks, and lo! a banner was attached to each stick and upon each banner the words "Twentieth Century Revival." They started to sing at once and were presently joined by a wagon full of ladies who also joined in the exercises. The poor young man who was first there was drowned out, or his voice was, and forsaken by the crowd he had to give it up.

The twentieth century revival does not seem to differ much from the revivals of the past, only possibly it is a little more foolish and a little less like Christ. However, we had come there to preach, and the city hall is a big place; so moving to one side as far as we could we began our service on the plan of the revivals started by Jesus Christ and the apostles a long time ago. We held some of the people until we closed, and trust good was done. Two preachers opposed me after one of my meetings and seemed to enjoy themselves in telling the people not to be deceived.

It is hard work and wearing on the voice to speak out of doors very often. I don't know whether I like it or not, but if I can reach one honest man in this way, I shall feel the effort has not been in vain; but if no results of a spiritual character can be pointed to as a sequel to our street meetings, one thing can be said: a few more have heard the gospel as a "witness."

The writer was made glad on Friday morning last to see Bro. W. H. Kelley walk into our place of abode, as he was not expected. But surprise gave way to joy, for we needed his help at the conference which was to convene next day at Baldwin. We enjoyed a pleasant chat and a trip about town, and next day with about twenty saints took the train for Baldwin, Maryland. What a nice thing it is to be with a lot of saints going to a conference. The business session passed off with unity of spirit and the best of feeling prevailed.

Saturday evening we had a ministers' meeting; Brn. Bacon, Harrigan, Angus, Kelley, Carter, and Robley spoke in the order named. Sunday morning at 9:30 the local school had a session which was interesting. At eleven Bro. Kelley preached an instructive discourse, which all seemed to enjoy. In the afternoon the young saints took their hymn books and went over the bridge and down the winding romantic road that leads to the mill. The old woods rang with the sweet melody poured forth with full hearts as they sang the songs of Zion. A refreshing rest among the tall trees and green grass, the cool and delightful shade, the changing landscape, the happy faces, altogether made a picture not soon to be forgotten. At 6:30 we met for prayer and sacrament meeting, which was very spiritual; a splendid meeting, only we did not begin it soon enough. At eight Bro. Kelley preached to us again, one of his characteristic sermons, which was well received. After this service we went to the water and the writer baptized Bro. James R. Carr, a young man of seventeen years. Confirmation followed at the church, also an ordination, Bro. Daniel C. Carter being ordained to the office of priest.

At 10:30 the Philadelphia saints took the train for home. Bro. Kelley went with the Philadelphia saints and then on to Cape Cod, Massachusetts. I wish—I wish — — O, how I wish; but then—well, never mind, some other year.

Good day,

GEO. W. ROBLEY.

JOY NOTES.

Come, let us sing a glad refrain,
Let praise our powers employ,
Our harps attune to glad, sweet strains,
Sound high the notes of joy.
For God is ever merciful
And gracious unto all;
On rich and poor, on high and low,
Alike his favors fall.
And murmur not that hard thy lot,
Though humble be thy home;
For merit as oft dwells in a cot,
As 'neath a palace dome.
And gentle peace, and calm-eyed joy
You'll find more oft abide
In humble homes, where never comes Cold scorn and boastful pride.

Though severed all the tender links
That bind thy soul to earth,
Faith lends her wings and sweetly sings
Of things of heavenly worth;
And thus unfettered thou may'st rise
Above earth's dust and grime,
And find beyond these clouded skies
Thy soul's congenial clime.

Should sorrow come to be thy guest,
Or even pallid pain;
Or sordid care abide with thee,
Still mercy doth remain.
Nor will she fail while thou hast need,
And ever there will be
Some honeyed drop within each cup,
She mingleth for thee.

Should every earthly prop give way
On which thy hopes are stayed,
Then lean upon the Changeless One,
Nor be at all dismayed.
Thou shalt be kept in perfect peace
Though rough time's billows roll.
Be thou assured upon his word,
That naught can harm thy soul.

SALINAS, Cal.

Dear Mothers:—I believe it to be every parent's duty to have their children baptized while young. The Book of Covenants (68:4) tells us plainly our duty toward our children, and if we are willing to be governed by part of its teachings we should be by all. We have five children, the youngest being twelve years old; we had them all baptized when children. We have not been where we could enjoy the comforts of the church for the past thirteen years, except on a few occasions; but I feel they have been helped greatly by being in the church, and at times enjoy much of God's Spirit in our home circle. So by being in the church I feel that the Spirit will help them, where if not in the church they have nothing to help them. Also, when they grow older, the influences of the world and the power of Satan have a greater influence over them. I fear that some will say, I will sow my wild oats first, then drift entirely away.

Mine do not always live as I would like to have them; yet, if an argument arises by an unbeliever, reproaching the church, they are always ready to defend it. I realize some, when grown, will say, Why did you not wait until I was older and could investigate for myself? We have not taken their agency from them; if they are dissatisfied they can draw out if they choose. But if children are properly taught, I think they will be contented. The pride and pleasures of the world may draw them away for a time, but God's Holy Spirit will help them to return.

Parents should be firm in teaching and practicing the law God has laid down for us to abide by. Children's ideas should not worry us when we do our duty, then leave the rest with them and their Maker. One of Jesus' apostles betrayed him, then did Christ make the mistake in calling him, or was the fault with man?

I know this is God's work, and what he has laid down for us to follow we need not fear to obey. Many are the blessings I have received of his hands; often at death's door, and been restored to health.

While speaking of children, I will mention one blessing received through their prayers. A few years ago I was very sick, and had been in bed six weeks or more with lung trouble, which the doctor said was consumption. I would take spells like asthma, and get quite low. But this day I had been having smothering spells all day, and as night came on I got worse. We had the doctor, but he did not help me any. At midnight it seemed as though I must go; several times my breath was gone. It would have been a relief to me could I have gone. The children were all in bed. Mr. McKee called them, but I was unable to speak to them. They prayed earnestly for me several times, when my oldest daughter told them by the Spirit that if they were very faithful I would be spared to them, and from that time on I slowly began to amend. The Lord will always do his part if we do ours; so, children, do not think because you are young or isolated from the church, you can do nothing; it is not so. Where duty calls, or danger, be never wanting there; be ever ready and willing to lift high the banner of King Immanuel to the world.

Let us ever strive to walk upright and just before God and man, is the prayer of a sister in Christ,
MRS. R. Y. MCKEE.

SIGOURNEY, Iowa.

Sisters of the Home Column:—Wishing to add my mite to your pages, I have often wanted to let you know that I have been helped by your letters, and thought perhaps I might say something that would interest some one else. I have five little children, and I am trying by the help of our heavenly Father to be a good mother to them, and to teach them the right way to live and how to serve their Father in heaven.

We live twelve miles from our church, and do not get to go to Sunday school; but I teach the children, and we have our little Sunday school at home. My oldest child is eight, and he knows more about the gospel than I did when I came into the church. But I have done some hard studying since I came in. I have enlisted for life in the army of our Lord. I believe in raising up a child in the way it should go, and when it is old it will not depart from it. They may wander away for a while, but I think they will return. Children should be taught that if they sow wild oats they will reap wild oats; as they sow they shall reap also. I think it is a grand thing to bring children up in the true gospel. I believe in setting a good example, and talk to our children and coax them, and then if they just will disobey, I think the rod comes in useful. I love my children as well as a mother can, and it grieves me to see them punished; but I try to explain to them why I do so. I think that we as parents should not let the children think we are the only ones that are perfect, and they are the ones that have all the faults. I often tell my children where I make mistakes, and I tell them I have to be careful how I talk and how I act to be a good Christian; and so I tell them that they must be careful too.

Our children are very good for their age. Their papa and I both try to do the best we can, and ask our heavenly Father to guide us in bringing them up to be good men and women. It takes the father and mother both to teach children as they should be taught.

Dear sisters, I am only giving some of my views. I have been silent a long time, reading the good pieces others have written; so I thought I would write and let them know that I appreciated them, even if I say nothing to interest others, although I would like to do so.

Your sister in the faith,

R. J. ROWLEY.

BORN.

DANIELS.—At Malad City, Idaho, October 6, 1898, to Mr. John N. and Sr. Martha Daniels, a son, named Thomas Calvin. Blessed July 7, 1899, by Elders S. D. Condit and Charles Albertson.

DIED.

McCLUN.—At Wilber, Nebraska, July 23, 1899, Sr. Sarah E., wife of Mr. Nathan McClun passed away after an illness of two days, during which time she was unconscious. She was stricken while on her way to town; had been suffering for some time with pain in her head, but was apparently no worse than usual. When a short distance from town she told her husband she felt very strange, and the pain in her head had ceased. Directly she complained of being unable to move her feet and hands. She then said, "Nate, I am dying," and immediately became unconscious, and so remained until death. Her maiden name was Rutter. She was born in Hardin County, Ohio, September 17, 1858, and was married several years ago; was baptized January 19, 1896. She rejoiced in the gospel and remained firm in the faith until the end, and leaves a husband and many relatives and friends to mourn her loss. Funeral at the saints' church, sermon by Elder C. H. Porter.

BEST.—Sarah A. Blankenship was born in Mecklenburg, Virginia, July 5, 1813. At the age of one year, with her parents, removed to Rutherford County, Tennessee. She was married to George W. Best, July 1, 1829, and emigrated to Illinois in the winter of 1836, and to Iowa in 1845. To them were born twelve children, five of whom died in infancy. One son died in the army in the civil war. The oldest daughter died at twenty years of age. Mr. Best went to California in 1849, during the first rush of the goldseeking excitement, and died there November 5, of the same year. Sr. Best departed this life May 17, 1899, at Chelsea, Kansas. Surviving her are Captain James Best, of Grenola, Kansas; George W. Best, of St. Joseph, Missouri; Mrs. Sarah E. Shroeder, of Birmingham, Iowa; Mrs. N. L. Mayhew, of Eldorado, and Mrs. James Scott, of Chelsea, Kansas. Sr. Best made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Scott, during the last years of her life, and it was here that she passed from this to the life beyond. Her husband and herself united with the latter-day work in 1843. At the breakup in 1844-6 they started to go west; but stopped at West Point, being dissatisfied with what they saw and heard. They refused to accept the rule and dogmas introduced under Pres. B. Young. Sr. Best united with the Reorganized Church on her original baptism in 1860, at Montrose, Iowa, and lived and died in the faith.

BRUCE.—At Hartford, Michigan, Bro. Solomon Bruce, in the seventy-fourth year of his age. He was a consistent, humble communicant of the church till death claimed temporary victory. Bro. Bruce was trustful and childlike in faith and loved by all. He was president of Hartford branch, and threw all his energies to its interest. He died in the faith of a glorious reward, July 14, 1899. Funeral from saints' hall, Elder S. W. L. Scott preaching the sermon. He was laid to rest in Watervliet cemetery.

BOOTHMAN.—Joseph Boothman was born in Waddington, Yorkshire, England, December 24, 1820; died in Salt Lake City, Utah, July 6, 1899. He was married to Mary Smith, May 8, 1851, who still survives him. To this union two sons were born, both of whom passed away in early life. Bro. Boothman united with the church in 1837, connecting himself with the Reorganization some nine years ago, dying a firm believer therein, and like a shock of corn fully ripe, he passed to his rest. Funeral services were conducted by Elder J. W. Wight, at the home of his nephew. No higher tribute can be written of any—He was faithful.

CRANE.—Sarah Ann Crane was born in Frederick County, Virginia, August 18, 1812; died July 21, 1899, aged 87 years, 11 months, 3 days. She was married to Samuel L. Crane in Fayette County, Illinois, in 1835, and lived at Springfield, Illinois, until 1845. They removed to Mercer County, Missouri, and in 1856 started across the plains, arriving in San Bernardino, California, March 4, 1857. She has lived in Pomona, California, and vicinity for over thirty years. She united with the church in 1838, at Springfield, Illinois. A husband, three sons, one daughter, fifteen grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren are left to mourn their loss. Sr. Crane bore her testimony to the truth of this latter-day work and to the moral and spiritual integrity of Joseph the Seer, and his non-complicity in polygamy up to the time of her death. Funeral sermon at the old homestead in Pomona, by Elder T. W. Williams.

SMITH.—Agnes, only daughter of Sr. C. Smith, was born at Bingham, Utah; died in Los Angeles, California, July 21, 1899, aged 21 years, 6 months, 23 days. She united with the church about twelve years ago. She retired apparently in the best of health; her mother was awakened about midnight, and found her daughter in much pain. Immediately she was stricken with paralysis, from which she never recovered and in three hours she was dead. Agnes was a lovable girl. She leaves a large circle of friends both in and out of the church. Funeral sermon at the undertaker's parlors in Los Angeles, by Elder T. W. Williams.

BLAIR.—Sr. Deborah, wife of Elder Winthrop H. Blair, was born March 18, 1827, in Friendship, Alleghany County, New York. Her maiden name was Axtell. Her parents removed to Lee County, Illinois, near Amboy, in 1844, and there on April 2, 1846, when she was nineteen years old, she was married to W. H. Blair. Nine children were born to them. One girl and three boys died in their childhood, and five daughters grew to womanhood; namely, Srs. Delia Leaf and Amy Wright of Livingston County, Illinois, Srs. Almira Dillen and Fannie and Nettie Blair of Lamoni. Sr. Blair was noted for great kindness of heart, affection for her family and friends, generosity to all, and for her confidence in and love of the gospel. She and her husband were among the little band that welcomed Joseph Smith at his coming to and being received as president of the Reorganized Church on April 6, 1860. They removed to Decatur County, Iowa, in 1882, and into the town of Lamoni in 1890, where she died August 5, 1899, aged 72 years, 4 months, and 18 days. At the age of 78 years, and after over fifty-three years of companionship, Bro. Blair awaits the time of his departure, and his daughters sorrow over the loss of the true and faithful mother. The sermon was preached by Bro. Henry A. Stebbins. Bro. F. M. Weld assisted in the service.

NICOLL.—Florence Fortella Nicoll, aged 1 year, 4 months, and 13 days, died at St. Joseph, Missouri, July 17, and buried in Mount Mora cemetery. Funeral from the church; sermon by Elder H. O. Smith. She was the daughter of J. E. and Ida M. Nicoll, of Ft. Worth, Texas. The death was a sad one. Sr. Nicoll was on her way to Canada, to visit her mother, and had stopped here to visit friends and relatives, when the little one sickened and died, leaving the mother to continue her journey alone, bereft of the bright, happy little one who had been such an unflinching source of happiness and joy.

GROWNEY.—At Independence, Missouri, August 5, 1899, Sr. Emma J. Growney; born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, June 22, 1836. She united with the old church, and also with the Reorganized Church, and died firm in the faith. She leaves a husband, three sons, and one daughter to mourn. Funeral service at the residence to a very large gathering in and around the house, by Elder J. C. Foss.

WILLETS.—July 19, 1899, Frankie, only son of Mr. Oliver and Sr. Dora Willets, aged 2 years, 2 months. Was blessed February 27, 1898. Services were held in the saints' chapel, at Broad River, Connecticut, sermon by A. E. Stone.

HARLOW.—Bro. J. M. Harlow was born in the State of Wisconsin, June 24, 1849, and died June 23, 1899, in Sacramento, California. He leaves a wife, six children, father, mother, two brothers, and two sisters to mourn their loss. Funeral services conducted by Elder George Daley.

MORSE.—At her home in San Bernardino, California, July 16, 1899, Sr. Eliza C. Morse, aged 71 years, 1 month, 13 days. She was born in Canada, June 3, 1828. She joined the church when a young woman, and passed through the dark days; followed the church to Utah in 1850; leaving there in 1852 for California, where she remained till death claimed her; she died in good faith. A husband, two sons, and four daughters are bereft of the loved one. Funeral services at the home; sermon by Elder William Gibson, assisted by Elder Jones.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 4.—Health Commissioner F. C. Schulz recommends the passage of a bill providing for the medical examination of all young men who apply for marriage licenses.

In describing the diseases which have caused havoc in the health of the community, embracing smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and kindred ailments, the commissioner includes certain forms of insanity, dipsomania, and other ills, and enlarges upon the baneful effects of allowing them to go unchecked.

Dr. Schulz makes reference to a law in Ohio which embraces this subject,

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale.

Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

THE ZIONIST MOVEMENT.

There appears in the current North American Review a hopeful and impassioned appeal for the permanent colonization of the Jewish nation in Palestine, written by Professor Richard Gottheil of Columbia University. The author, himself a Jew, believes that the Zionist movement is the only hope for the happiness and preservation of his race. Twenty centuries of anti-Semitic persecution have convinced him that this prejudice against his race and religion will never die out until the Jew has a country and a government of his own. Palestine, the ancestral home of the Israelites, has sentimental and religious associations that still draw the scattered exiles to it, and Professor Gottheil believes a common ground has been found on which all the diverse factions of his creed and race can stand.

The approach of the third annual Zionist congress at Basle gives a timely interest to Professor Gottheil's statements. Whatever one may think about the feasibility of this strange modern crusade, its progress in the last three years must be admitted to be remarkable. Before the first congress of Basle in 1897 there were in various parts of the world 117 societies whose aims were more or less Zionist. At the second Basle congress in 1898 their number had risen to more than 800. In the last three years the American Federation of Zionists has come into existence and now includes 125 societies, besides a number of other Zionist societies not yet affiliated with the federation.

In Palestine itself the movement has attained considerable proportions. The May Laws of Count Ignatieff marked the beginning of the modern Zionist movement. Instinctively the Jew turned to his old home. Colonization societies were formed in Russia and Roumania. Attempts at colonizing the Jews in Palestine had been made in the '50s by Sir Moses Montefiore, Lord Shaftesbury, Laurence Oliphant, and Dr. Friedman, but the first real colony was founded in 1870 by Charles Netter under the auspices of the Alliance Israelite Universelle of Paris. An agricultural school was started, around which sixteen mother colonies have since grouped themselves, with other settlements attached, which bring the total to twenty-five. They are located around Jerusalem, near Haifa and Jaffa, in Galilee, and even beyond the Jordan. There are now 60,000 Jews in Palestine.

Thus far the colonists have been successful, thanks to the solid interest taken in them by Baron Edmond de Rothschild, who has spared neither expense nor trouble in helping them over the experimental stage. Professor Gottheil does not pretend that they have yet passed that stage, but he says as soon as they find a market for the wine, cognac, scent, and soap produced there they will be self-supporting. Already good schools and a national Hebrew library have been founded and are well maintained. A part of Baron de Hirsch's great bequest for the colonization of Jews in the Argentine has latterly been turned to the support of the Zionist movement. For the most part, however, the funds by which the cause is being advanced come from the poorer Jews in all parts of the world. The hundreds of societies now back of the project indicate that the experiment will at least go much further before the wave of Zionist enthusiasm has passed.

Professor Gottheil, Dr. Herzl, Max Nordau, and the other leaders of the movement have abandoned the idea of religious unity as the basis of the new Zion. The ideal is that of a fixed home and a renewed life in common for all Jews. The pressure of anti-Semitism calls for a refuge, and the traditions of Judaism draw toward Palestine. Professor Gottheil tries in his article to show that Zionism deserves support from Turk, Christian, and Jew alike. The world at large will continue to doubt the economic feasibility of grouping any considerable proportion of the 7,000,000 Jews of the world in the narrow confines of Palestine, but it is an interesting fact that the tendency to try the experiment has reached a stage where it must be regarded as one of the social phenomena of the day.—Chicago Tribune, August 13, 1899.

MOVEMENT OF THE ZIONISTS.

It has always been the pious Jew's desire "to die in Jerusalem;" to be buried in the holy ground with his forefathers, and in the course of time quite a number of those who could go have made the pilgrimage. To-day the young generation joins the old in the wish to go to Palestine, not to die, but to live. This great change is directly due to the untiring and unceasing energy of one man, Dr. Theodore Herzl, the leader of the Zionist movement.

Dr. Theodore Herzl was born in Buda Pest in 1860. After passing through school, where he had many peculiar experiences, he began to study law in Vienna, and in 1884 received a lawyer's degree. Dr. Herzl was something of a playwright, for he relates in his autobiography that he wrote much more for the theater than for the law courts, although he held a position (unsalaried) in a law court as a judicial clerk under a judge in Vienna and Salzburg, but, seeing that a Jew could not become a judge, he left legal affairs altogether. He then began to write for newspapers and the theater, and many of his plays received great favor, while others proved failures. In 1891 he became the Paris correspondent of a German newspaper. In Paris he first became acquainted with politics. In 1895 he returned to Vienna.

During the last two months of his stay in Paris he wrote the Judenstaat (Jewish state), which work advocated a Jewish state to be established in Palestine. It first appeared in 1896, and, although attracting attention from the greatest minds of Europe, the scheme was judged impracticable in the extreme. But Herzl began to work with such vigor that the first Jewish congress was announced to take place in 1897 in Munich, but the place of meeting was soon changed to Basle, Switzerland. To call together a congress of Jews who are scattered all over the world was a great task, but Dr. Herzl accomplished it and about two hundred delegates assembled to discuss the question of securing a home for the Jews.

The derision which had at first greeted Dr. Herzl from all sides now turned to respect and wonder, and the Jews of the whole world at once began to flock around Dr. Herzl's banner. Even Max Nordau, who was not even known to be a Jew until that time, duly announced himself to be an ardent Zionist and made fire orations at the first and second congresses. At the second congress there were about 400 delegates.

To explain in detail what Zionism is would take up too much space, but the reader can get an excellent idea of it from the following program, which was passed unanimously by the first Basle congress: "The aim of Zionism is to create for the Jewish people a publicly, legally assured home in Palestine." Or, to take the words of Dr. Herzl himself, which he addressed to the English Zionists recently: "What is our aim? We desire to prepare in the ancient fatherland, Palestine, a legally assured home for the Jewish people. This we consider the complete and final solution of the Jewish question. This solution presupposes three things: First, the existence of the Jewish nation; second, the suitability of Palestine for settlement; thirdly, the assurance of a legal basis for the resettlement of our people. In the first place, at the time we began our movement we only believed there was a Jewish nation. To-day we know it."

Although the Zionist movement began only two years ago there has already been established in London a $10,000,000 bank—a beginning for the practical work. The remarkable thing about this bank is that its stockholders number about 100,000, all poor Jews, the rich Jews being against the movement. The value of one share has been purposely made only one pound, or $4.89, payable at once or in five installments. So far over 280,000 shares have been taken out.

That Jews can be agriculturists, which is their ancient calling, has been proved by the twenty-five self-supporting colonies in Palestine, most of which were established by Baron Edmund de Rothschild, who was a Zionist even before the present movement. In all he spent about 13,000,000 francs in the aid of his coreligionists. But colonies that have been attempted outside of the Holy Land have always failed. Argentine Republic may be cited as an instance. Baron de Hirsch spent here millions to establish colonies and to make Jews agriculturists, but they have not proved such a success as to warrant further experimenting. It is a significant fact that the Argentine Republic Jews sent delegates to the Basle congress. Before the first congress in 1897 there were about 117 societies in the various parts of the world, which have increased to over 800 in 1898. America has about 125 societies, but it is the least Zionistic of all.

Very interesting and important developments are expected at the third congress, which is to take place at Basle, Switzerland, this month.—The Wichita Daily Eagle, August 13.

PROGRESS OF THE ZIONIST MOVEMENT.

At no time has the Zionist movement, which has for its object the establishment of a Jewish nation in Palestine, had as encouraging prospects as now. The conference which opened at Basle yesterday finds the idea much further advanced than it was at the first conference held two years ago. Then the Jews of the world had just read the little booklet of Theodor Herzl, which the brilliant Viennese had published in the previous year. The return to Jerusalem had been a long cherished dream of the Hebrews, but Dr. Herzl was the first to give the ideas definite form, demanding the reconstruction of the Jewish people as a nation, the founding of a great Jewish company to be the executive of the nation, and the finding of a permanent home for that nation. Societies were formed to carry out Dr. Herzl's ideas, and at the first conference in 1897, 117 organizations were represented, while in 1898 the number had grown to 913 and the present conference is likely to find the number doubled. Everywhere the plan has met with a warm reception by the Hebrews. Since the last conference a Jewish company has been founded called the Jewish Colonial Trust, and 280,000 shares had been applied for a month ago by 100,000 shareholders in 10,000 towns scattered in all parts of the world. It is believed that the Jewish colonies in Palestine will be successful and lay the foundations of a prosperous existence. The Sultan of Turkey is said to look with approval on the scheme, having been persuaded to do so by Emperor William of Germany.—Chicago Tribune, August 16, 1899.

DEGENERATE SONS OF WESLEY.

Two recent utterances have directed in a marked degree attention to John Wesley. The first was the declaration of the London Spectator in an editorial that "England as a whole is as truly interested in Wesley as in Shakespeare; and it may well be doubted whether in the long course of her history any one person has ever influenced her life in so direct, palpable, and powerful a way as has John Wesley." The other utterance was the recent official declaration of the Wesleyan Conference that it was not expedient for that body to direct that persons engaged in the liquor traffic should not be eligible to official positions in the church. If John Wesley were living the appreciative declaration of the Spectator would not surprise him more than that of the body which was designed by him to continue the work to which he devoted his life. The reason assigned by the conference for its action was that it should not impose disabilities upon those who sell liquor which should not apply to those who buy and use liquor; but in taking this position the conference departed from the position maintained by Wesley for many years.

There were two evils which Wesley persistently assailed with all the power of his mind and will—slavery and intemperance. It is true that in his day and to some extent even in his mind temperance did not imply total abstinence, but according to his teaching it practically did so, and it absolutely did so far as selling liquor was concerned.

Early in the Methodist movement—in 1743—John Wesley adopted certain "general rules" for the government of his societies. These rules have been in nominal operation in the Wesleyan Church, as also in other branches of Methodism, for more than a century and a half. The rules state that those who united with Mr. Wesley's societies were expected to "evidence their desire of salvation, first, by doing no harm, by avoiding evil of every kind, especially that which is most generally practiced, such as drunkenness, buying or selling spirituous liquors, or drinking them, unless in cases of extreme necessity." It is stated that in the most select circles, that met for the most intimate spiritual communion, the members were forbidden to "taste spirituous liquors of any kind unless prescribed by a physician." These rules were rigidly enforced by Mr. Wesley, evidence of which is found in his remarkable journals, which are not only a daily history of the Methodist movement but are the best history of the England of that day. According to the record in his journals, between December 30, 1742, and March, 1743, a date just previous to the publication of the general rules, seventeen persons were expelled for drunkenness from the Methodist society at Newcastle, and two from the same society for retailing spirituous liquors.

Scarcely a day passed that Wesley did not in his sermons, pamphlets, letters, or conversation denounce the sale and use of spirituous liquors. In his "Thoughts on Nervous Disorders" he wrote: "One cause of [nervous disorders] is the use of spirituous liquors. This is one of the horrid effects which naturally follow the swallowing that fashionable poison. That liquid fire lays the foundation of numberless diseases, and of this in particular. It is amazing that the preparing and selling this poison

REORGANIZATION.

The Southern Star in its issue for July 15, 1899, quotes an editorial note appearing recently in the SAINTS' HERALD concerning Bro. F. E. Cochran being sent to Mount Ayr, Iowa, to be present at a meeting to be held by Utah elders, in order to represent our side of the issue and to see that we were not confounded in the public mind with the Utah Church. The Star then comments as follows:—

Or, in other words, they wish the world to understand that they are still with it, and therefore it will not be necessary for anyone to persecute the Reorganized Church, through mistaking them for that other organization which was sent by God to "stand forever, never to be thrown down, or given to another people." (Dan. 2: 15,) and therefore would need no reorganization. The Lamoni Church, being of the world, seems awfully afraid persecution might come upon it by being mistaken for a church not of the world, and hated by the world, including that part of the world called "The Reorganized Church."

There is nothing more contemptible in controversy than for one party to put his own conclusions and deductions into the mouth of a competitor and represent them as being the sentiments of his opponent. It is needless for us to say that we wish the world to understand no such thing. We are anxious for the world to understand that we are "with it" just so far as it is right. We are anxious too for the world to know that we are not with the people of Utah in the practice of immorality and crime which outrage the finer feelings of humanity and trample upon the principle of virtue. We wish the world to understand further that we are not in opposition to any "organization" "sent by God" for any purpose; but we wish them to understand, and by the grace of God we intend they shall understand, that we hold that an organization provided for by the Almighty is not licensed by such provision to do wrong nor to abandon the basic principles upon which the government is founded; that when such an organization does depart from the faith upon which it was founded, and violates the commands of God, it is no longer acceptable to its divine Promoter.

The Star refers to Daniel 2: 15; but no such language as it quotes is found there. We suppose that the reference is a typographical error and the intention was to refer to Daniel 2: 44, as this is the nearest to the Star's language that we can find. Here is the language of the book. Please read and carefully compare with the language of the Star:—

And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever.

Now, we submit that there is nothing in this as it reads that is inconsistent with a Reorganization. Webster defines the word "reorganize" as follows:—

To organize again or anew; as to reorganize a society or an army.

When we speak of reorganizing society we are not understood as meaning that we expect to discard all the elements of former society and use new material only; nor are we understood as meaning that society has been destroyed. To speak of the reorganization of an army does not mean that the reorganized army is to be composed solely of new recruits, or that the army has been destroyed. It simply means that society or the army has fallen into disorder, and to again bring about a condition of order it is necessary to rearrange or reorganize the former material with the supplement of such other material as may be available, discarding only such of the old material as may not be compatible with the order sought.

When the word "reorganize" is applied to a church it must mean precisely the same thing; and this is just what was done in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

When we first heard this argument by the Utah representatives, we thought it was a desperate contingency resorted to in an emergency; but we have since heard it so often that we are forced to the conclusion that some of these men do really believe that before a reorganization can take place the thing to be reorganized must be totally destroyed. Strange logic, but if the Star does not mean this, what does it mean? Daniel's words cannot be made to oppose the true idea of a reorganization. God himself thought in 1841 that a rejection of the church was possible, notwithstanding the words of Daniel.

He said:—

If you do not these things at the end of the appointment, ye shall be rejected as a church with your dead, saith the Lord your God.—D. C. 107:11.

The Twelve Apostles at the time accepted this philosophy, as appears from an epistle signed by nine of their number which was published in Times and Seasons, December, 1841. They said:—

The building of the Temple of the Lord, in the city of Nauvoo, is occupying the first place in the exertions and prayers of many of the saints at the present time, knowing as they do, that, if this building is not completed, speedily, "we shall be rejected as a church with our dead," for the Lord our God hath spoken it.—Times and Seasons, Vol. 3, p. 625.

It is not the purpose of this paper to discuss whether the conditions of rejection obtained or not, but simply to show that neither the Lord nor his servants considered the language of Daniel a guarantee against rejection and the consequent necessity of a reorganization.

After the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, June 27, 1844, the necessity of a reorganization was frequently admitted, and the church under Brigham Young, which the Star represents, did proceed to reorganize, and were thus committed to this policy long before "that part of the world called The Reorganized Church" was. Parley P. Pratt relates that as he was returning to Nauvoo, soon after the death of the Martyrs, and that while in prayer to God concerning the situation, the Spirit spoke unto him, and among other things said:—

Go and say unto my people in Nauvoo, that they shall continue to pursue their daily duties and take care of themselves, and make no movement in Church government to reorganize or alter anything until the return of the remainder of the quorum of the Twelve.—Autobiography of Parley P. Pratt, p. 371.

If this be true, and surely the Star will accept the testimony of Elder Pratt, then the Spirit recognized the necessity of a reorganization.

On December 23, 1847, the Twelve issued from "Winter Quarters, Omaha Nation," a "General Epistle," addressed to the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, abroad, dispersed throughout the Earth; Greeting." In this epistle they said:—

We now, having it in contemplation soon to re-organize the Church according to the original pattern, with a First Presidency and Patriarch, feel that it will be the privilege of the Twelve, ere long, to spread abroad among the nations, etc.—Millennial Star, Vol. 10, p. 86.

On January 23, 1848, Brigham Young wrote a letter from Winter Quarters, to Orson Spencer, in which he gives an account of the materialization of this contemplated reorganization, relating that he was chosen President with Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards counselors. (Ibid., pp. 114, 115.)

In 1854 Elder F. D. Richards, then, as now, one of the Twelve, published at 15 Wilton Street, Liverpool, England, "a Catechism for Children," written by Elder John Jaques. On page 82 of this catechism occur the following question and answer.—

Q. When was the Church re-organized with a First Presidency of three?

A. At a General Conference held at Winter Quarters, Omaha Nation, west of the Missouri River, on the 24th of December, 1847.

A strong commendation of this catechism is found in the editorial column of the Millennial Star, Vol. 15, p. 762.

In the light of these historical facts what organization could the Star have referred to which "would need no re-organization"? Certainly not the one it now represents, for it was reorganized according to the testimony of their own publications.

We regret the necessity of a reorganization as much as others can, but the necessity is so apparent that we cannot fail to recognize it. The Utah people, as we have shown, have also recognized this necessity. So this issue should not again arise nor can it arise between us unless they deny their record.

The only issue now legitimately remaining is; which reorganization is the nearer to the law and revelations of God? This issue we are prepared to discuss at any proper time and place with either pen or voice.

HORACE GREELEY ON POLYGAMY.

In 1859 Mr. Greeley visited Salt Lake City, had interviews with Brigham Young and others, studied the situation upon the ground, and expressed his opinion. Among other things said, we notice the following:—

On the whole I conclude that polygamy, as it was a graft on the original stock of Mormonism, will be outlived by the root; that there will be a new revelation ere many years, whereby the saints will be admonished to love and cherish the wives they already have, but not to marry any more beyond the natural assignment of the one wife to each husband.—Life of Horace Greeley by James Parton, p. 427, published 1872.

In the light of subsequent events and recent developments this is quite remarkable, and shows the keen perception and wonderful foresight so characteristic of Mr. Greeley.

We invite especial attention to his very correct solution that polygamy was a graft upon the original stock, and his philosophical conclusion that the root would outlive the graft. The prediction regarding the new revelation is very remarkable, as it is in exact harmony with their recent interpretation of the Woodruff Manifesto.

The leading men of the Utah Church are now insisting that the manifesto only prohibited the taking of more plural wives, but that they are under obligations "to love and cherish the wives they already have," which in the estimation of the polygamist means to continue his criminality with them.

It must be a little humiliating to the leaders in Utah that notwithstanding all their boasted inspiration, others saw the situation in those early days clearer than they, and were enabled to forecast the policy which the Utah Church was compelled to adopt, against their will.

THEY ALL TELL THE SAME STORY.

It is urged in some quarters as an argument against the Reorganized Church, that when one has heard one of the elders he has heard them all, for "they all tell the same story." One of the apostolic injunctions was that the disciples should be "of one mind speaking the same things." The direction of the Master to the disciples was to "preach the gospel" to every man.

It is stated that Joseph Smith being asked by an elder about starting on a mission, "What shall I preach?" replied, "Preach the first principles." "Well," said the elder, "when I have preached the first principles, what shall I preach then?" Again the reply was, "Preach the first principles of the gospel." Again came the query, "When I have done that, then what shall I preach?" To this the prophet replied, with emphasis, "Preach the first principles of the gospel."

No change having been made in the gospel or its ordinances, the minister chosen, ordained, and sent to preach it can do no safer thing for himself and the cause he is sent to represent than to teach the principles of that saving power, the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. And, the charge made against the elders of the Reorganized Church, that they all teach the same thing, tell the same story, is to their credit, not against them. It is certainly an evidence of unity of spirit, when a large number of men coming from the several churches, and from no church and even from the ranks of the unbelieving, can find so assured a basis for a common faith and work, that they all are moved by the same Spirit and tell the same story. This is more remarkable, because there has not been and is not now exercised any personal surveillance over the views and beliefs of the several ministers in the field by the recognized leading men of the church, every man being expected to bring himself into a relationship with the great Master, and be taught by him and his word. The counsel of leaders may be sought, accepted, and acted upon if it is commended to the understanding and reason of the recipient; but no priestly domination or assumption of arrogant rule will be tolerated. Every man expects to answer to God direct for the faith he has and the priesthood he holds; and none accepts the belief that his manhood may be hidden in servitude to the extent that the servant may do what the human master bids him do, the servant to escape blame if the thing so done be wrong, and the master bear the punishment. The individual man cannot so change the point of responsibility. The human superior, who directs the wrong doing of his inferior, is deserving of the greater punishment; but he cannot remit the strokes which his subordinate deserves by wrong doing, though such wrong doing may be the result of advice, or command of the superior. We use the words "superior" and "inferior," in an official sense only; for there are no superiors nor inferiors in the work of God—for they are all one in Christ Jesus—and he who would be greatest must become the servant of all.

With so great a diversity of peculiar organizations, such varied opinions, so wide differences of qualifications, it is quite remarkable that there is so great a unanimity, so few who break away from the faith and the ministry.

The principle that every man must answer to God for himself makes no provision for the absolutism of human rule. The man is the same as the Master in both kind and degree of responsibility. Both must answer, and both for the same things, varying only in that the Master may answer for ten talents, the man for one. The one for opportunity, the other without. Though every man may in a sense be his brother's keeper, yet no man is justified in assuming lordship over his fellow, as of natural right.

So far as the doctrines of the church may enter into the account, there should be great, if not a complete harmony of sentiment and belief among the elders, both in the field at large and in the home service; however much difference in peculiarity of personal presentation, or individual belief on other topics there might be. It is greatly to the credit of the body of elders, as a whole, that there is but little to complain of in this regard.

In regard to the history of the church, both that of the body under the presidency of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and that of the Reorganized Church as its successor, the better it is understood by the elders the stronger the foundations of the hope of the saints are found to be, and the less of fear is felt regarding attacks from without, or possible defections from within.

Whatever has been done by the Reorganized Church has been done openly, with a desire to understand the law of the church, as found in the revelations of God to the church, concerning organization, and to conform to the rules and usages under the law with strict regard to the requirements thereof. This has been done in conformity to the revelation of God, to the effect that the law of God for the organizing of the church was in the Book of Covenants; and those who were members of the church under the presidency of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, who were seeking light and a way out of the darkness of their surroundings, were directed to proceed according to the pattern and directions given in that book. It is then now no wonder that the history of the Reorganization being so clear and straight, the elders should obtain a knowledge of it, and each, satisfied of its correctness, should tell it as it is known to all—all telling the same story.

SIGHT RESTORED.

Hersey, Mich., Aug. 11.—A remarkable cure by prayer is reported from the home of Elder John Pennells, of Hersey Township. His ten-year-old daughter Nina has been entirely helpless for the past year, being blind and having lost the use of both limbs. The leading physicians of Reed City, Evart and Hersey, were called, but none could locate the cause, or do anything for the poor little sufferer. Mr. Pennells, so the story goes, went to the leader of the Latter Day Saints, Rev. Joseph Smith, who ordered prayer and communion.

Sunday morning the saints held their meeting at the house of Mr. Pennells. Rev. Joseph Shippy, of Hersey, administered the sacrament. The father brought the child out in his arms and as soon as the prayers were offered the child is said to have opened her eyes and began to walk and sing. The cure was witnessed by fifty of Hersey's leading citizens. The News correspondent called on the parents yesterday, and talked with the child. She is very bright and tells of her sufferings, and said that as soon as the prayers were said she felt the disease leave her and pass out of her body and her sight came to her.—Detroit News.

PRAYERS OF THE LATTER DAY SAINTS

HAVE RESTORED A HELPLESS CHILD AT HERSEY TO HEALTH AND ACTIVITY.

Hersey, Mich., August 11.—Special.—Nina Pennells, the ten-year-old daughter of Elder John Pennells, of Hersey Township, has been entirely helpless for the past thirteen months, being blind and unable to talk or use her limbs. Nearly every doctor in the county had been called to see her and all were baffled.

Sunday last, by and under the instructions of Rev. Joseph Smith, the Mormon elder, the Latter Day Saints held prayer and communion at the home of Mr. Pennells. Rev. Joseph Shippy administered the sacrament and bid the child to walk, and in the presence of fifty citizens of the township the child arose and began to sing. The Journal correspondent made the parents a visit last night and talked with the child. She is bright and tells of her diseases leaving her as soon as the prayers were offered. The case has created considerable interest in the village.—Detroit Journal, August 11, 1899.

Bishop Kelley, writing from Detroit, Michigan, August 12, sends us the foregoing clippings from the papers named. He writes:—

I inclose you two clippings, which are important in the fact that both papers state that their special correspondents had examined into the case and thus report. Better publish both, as they can be used in the hands of the elders.

The case of healing is in evidence of God's power manifest in his church and in answer to the prayer of faith. Inasmuch as we are commanded, "Neither boast of faith, nor of mighty works," etc., we should receive and speak of such blessings humbly and carefully, in harmony with the spirit of our work and as those dependent upon God, who shows favor and grace upon those who receive with thanksgiving and to his glory.

We have added reasons for thankfulness and gratitude to God, who so freely and abundantly manifests his favor in behalf of his trusting, faithful children. "Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen." (Eph. 3: 21.)

ZIONISTS MEET AT BASLE.

Basle, Switzerland, Aug. 15.—The third congress of Zionists assembled to-day, with three hundred delegates present, including a number of Americans. Dr. Herzl, who presided, declared that a primary object is to acquire a charter from the Turkish government authorizing settlements in Palestine. Emperor William's reception of a Jewish deputation at Jerusalem, he said, placed the legality and loyalty of the Zionist movement beyond question.

The foregoing with our cover articles will give the HERALD readers all available news we have to date of the Zionist movement. We are too busy for extended comment; nor is such necessary. While anti-Jewish agitation, the underlying cause of the celebrated Dreyfus case, threatens France with revolution if not dissolution, the great Friend of the Jew, the Father of Abraham and his race, is ruling and overturning in behalf of his purposes for the restoration of the ancient covenant people and the redemption of the race.

The world is forgetting God, but his people should "stand in holy places" and "be not moved," by fear, lack of faith, or any contrary influences. These are the days that try men's souls; days in which Babylon is rapidly disintegrating, but in which all the true Israel of God will be found "upon the watchtower," among those "called and chosen and faithful."

Let us stand firm in the truth and thus "see the salvation of God" who is bringing in the Gentile fullness and the day of Israel's restoration.

WORLD ITEMS.

Belleville, Ill., Aug. 13.—The excommunicated parishioners of St. Patrick's Church, in East St. Louis, met at the church this morning and held services of a character never before held by a Catholic congregation.

Without the intermediary services of a priest they made all the customary responses, to signify that Bishop Janssen could not cut them off entirely.

Speeches were made and a determination expressed never to surrender.

No action of any kind was taken by Bishop Janssen to-day.

Rumors from Washington state that Martinelli, the Papal delegate, will overrule Janssen in favor of the parishioners.

Lisbon.—Earthquake shocks accompanied by torrential rain, are reported from the central portion of Portugal.

Hongkong.—There were twenty-three deaths from the plague during the last week, and twenty-five new cases were reported.

Lisbon, Aug. 16.—Experiments made at the Pasteur Institute here identify the Oporto epidemic microbes as those of the bubonic plague.

Madrid, Aug. 16.—The Spanish government urges all Spaniards now in Portugal to remain there, with a view of preventing the propagation of the plague in Spain.

London, Aug. 16.—The local government board has been officially notified of the existence of the plague at Oporto, and has ordered all necessary precautions against the introduction of the disease at the various ports of the United Kingdom. Orders have also been given for the Royal Mail liners to cease calling at Oporto.

Oporto.—Since the outbreak of the plague here there have been eleven deaths out of twenty-six cases.

Milford Haven.—The American line steamer Paris has arrived here from Falmouth to be docked for repairs.

Alexandria.—Cattle are infected with the foot and mouth disease. There have been 1,827 cases reported since July 18.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bishop E. L. Kelley, Detroit, Michigan, August 12:—

Had good success at Grand Rapids and entire satisfaction manifest. Brn. E. C. Briggs and G. A. Smith held business meeting on Tuesday of last week and the branch was placed in working order with full corps of officers and business all transacted without a single negative vote. If the saints so keep in the Spirit, the work will advance in the Rapids.

Bro. J. W. Adams, Chillicothe, Illinois, August 15:—

Have been blessed in my labors. There are many calls which we cannot fill in this district. Some say it is a hard field to labor in, but Bro. Russell and myself have been together for some time and have had the pleasure of inducting twenty-nine into the kingdom so far this season, and others are near.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Late departures for the missionary field from Lamoni include Bro. Heman C. Smith to Tabor, Henderson, and Runnells, Iowa; Bro. J. R. Lambert for points in the Eastern Iowa and Des Moines districts; Bro. E. A. Stedman for Minnesota, and Bro. F. M. Weld for Centerville, Lucas, and other places in Southern Iowa. Bro. Stedman returned to his field improved in health; hurried away by the many calls for preaching.

Bro. James Caffall secured the publication of an excellent article from his pen, in Miner County Democrat, Howard, South Dakota, August 11. The faith and general matters of interest in connection with the Reorganized Church were ably, clearly presented to the public. The truth is marching on. God speed the right.

The second convention of the National Association of Colored Women's Clubs, convened at Washington, August 14.

Paris, France, was the scene of most serious disturbances on Saturday night and Sunday, the 20th and 21st, recalling some aspects of the commune following the Franco-German War. Anarchists and Socialists started demonstrations and disorders which culminated in armed conflicts with the police. Fierce fighting occurred in several parts of the city, in which fifty-six persons were injured and many arrested. Religious edifices were attacked and sacrilegiously pilaged. Altars and statues were hurled to the floor and smashed, pictures were rent, etc., and the host and crucifixes thrown down.

Original Articles.

BROTHER! DOES THIS MEAN YOU?

"Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savor," etc., what are you fit for?

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

Does this mean to let your light shine at home? If so, how?

For I say unto you, That except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.

But I say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment, etc.

What is a cause that would justify you in getting angry with your brother? The scripture says to forgive before it is asked, and if your brother asks, you should forgive him "seventy times seven." But suppose you have a cause. Will that make you free from the "danger of the judgment"?

Is finding fault with the members of a branch, criticising the Bishopric for not using funds as we think they ought, getting angry with my brother?

Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. . . . But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

Can we expect forgiveness when we are continually upbraiding our brother (behind his back) and the whole church in general, and we not be merciful and forgive them before they ask it?

But thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face; that thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.

Have you ever been rewarded openly?

But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things [which are necessary] shall be added unto you.

Judge not, that ye be not judged, etc. And why [?] beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye; and, behold, a beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye.

Has the Bishop got so large a mote in his eye that he can't see to handle the real estate and moneys of the church according to the law? Or, has the beam grown so large in my eye that I can't see anything but the imperfections of my brother? Has the beam grown so large that I can't see the law and understand it? If so,

When thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.

Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.

Is it any part of the gospel law in 1899? If so, why not put it in practice? Stop finding fault with your brother. Treat your brothers and sisters (husband, don't forget your wife) at home with kindness. You will feel better, and so will those around you. Don't put your candle under a bushel basket. Your light might go out. What is a candle used for but to give light? Did you ever extinguish the blaze from a candle and leave the charred wick with a small coal yet burning, that sent up a very small blue stream of smoke? Did you ever notice how soon the smoke filled the room, and how very disagreeable was the smell? Did you ever discover that to relight or entirely "sniff the candle" were the only ways to stop the accumulation of the offensive odor? And that ventilating the room, or letting in fresh, pure air soon drove out that which was impure?

Is it possible that when a brother or sister becomes troublesome, their light is burning low and almost gone out? When our light has got so low that it is smoldering, do we become offensive and cause trouble? If so, how do you remedy your light? Will you relight it or permit it to be "sniffed" out?

Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?

Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them.

Are Latter Day Saints known by their fruits? If so, what kind of fruit, —bitter or sweet?

Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.

Except ye . . . become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. . . . For of such is the kingdom of heaven.

Am I striving to become as innocent as little children? If not, what am I doing? Anything that is creditable to the church and my neighbors? Why not?

And again, inasmuch as parents have children in Zion, . . . that teach them not to understand the doctrine of repentance, etc., . . . the sin be upon the head of the parents; . . . and they shall also teach their children to pray, and to walk uprightly before the Lord. . . . And their children are also growing up in wickedness. . . . These things ought not to be, and must be done away from among them.—D. C. 68:4.

All children have claim upon their parents for their maintenance until they are of age, etc.—D. C. 82:2.

But I have commanded you to bring up your children in light and truth.—D. C. 90:6.

The command is here given to bring up the children in "light and truth," and if we of mature years let our light go out, how can the children be brought up in the light? But I imagine I hear some one say, (not all imagination, either, as I did hear it said,) "My children won't do as I tell them." "The more I talk the worse you boys get." "That is always the way: you never would mind." "You never do anything to please me," etc.

What is the trouble? Are not parents responsible for the existence of their children? Are they not also equally responsible for their training? If a man plants corn, wheat, potatoes, and other seeds, who is responsible if the weeds choke the young plants and he gathers no crop?

We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good to edification. For even Christ pleased not himself, etc.

If we are trying to follow Christ, why seek to have everything go to please us? If we are strong and our children weak, why not help them bear their burdens? As Christ came not to do his will, but to help others, why not we who are claiming to be his children devote our time in helping others to see the light, and not smother our light by faultfinding, fretting, worrying, etc. An M. E. minister recently said, "A good Methodist ought to be too sensible to be sensitive. He said this in connection with the thought of others who were tattling, backbiting, etc.

Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted. Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ. For if a man think himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself. . . . Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

Brother! what are you sowing? Discord by talking to your brother about the finances of the church not being used right? Graceland College can benefit only those who are rich? The high priest, president of the district, makes some very unwise decisions and hasty ordinations? The bishop's agent talks too much about tithing, etc.? Can't afford to take the church publications?

If you are doing any of these things, I want to ask you: Do you pay any tithing? Do you believe an education procured outside of the influence of the church better than one procured under its influence? Do you believe the law where it says a high priest should be chosen to preside over districts and large branches? If so chosen, is he entitled to the gift of wisdom? And would not his decision be more apt to be right than a decision of a lesser priest, who was ordained years ago and persistently refuses to act in his calling? Is it the duty of the bishop's agent to teach the law of tithing?

Do you pay one dollar per year for a farm journal, one dollar for a family magazine, twenty-five cents per quarter for the latest fashion plates, etc.? Did you ever receive a notice from the Herald Office stating that your subscription was a year or two past due, and unless heard from by a certain date your paper would be discontinued? Did you remit, or did you say, "Let them stop it. We can't afford to pay so much"? Do you pay your subscription promptly for secular news and let your church periodicals cease? If so, why so?

FELIX.

THE FAITH THAT HEALS.

MORE THAN A MERE BELIEF.

Whereas, health is the greatest physical boon; and, whereas, some of the saints have grown weary and disgusted by sending for elders to administer while they realize no blessing therefrom, therefore, I may be excused for having given the subject earnest, honest thought. I may be pardoned for asking a little of the Herald's valuable space.

OBSERVATIONS.

Some who are not model characters in the church are frequently the recipients of marked blessings; others who might be envied for their attainments as followers of the meek Nazarene importune for healing in vain; some in squalid poverty are instantly healed, while the well to do occasionally succumb to the same, or a less dangerous disease. It seems that not even the higher lights in the church are so frequently healed of dread disease as are the weaker ones.

Whatever the cause of this may be, it seems to correspond with the conditions that obtained in the church in the first century.

But God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honor to that part which lacketh.—1 Cor. 12: 24.

Many of us not being gifted with knowledge, or wisdom, or discernment, are necessarily ignorant, shortsighted, and weak. For "knowledge is power." We recognize the fact that we occupy a lower sphere in this life than those who are "anointed with the oil of gladness above their fellows." But God is good to us. "He hath tempered the body together," "dividing to every man . . . as he will."

If God should give the same "faith to be healed" to those richly endowed with wisdom, knowledge, and discernment as to us who are sadly deficient on these lines, would the body "be tempered together?" Would there be a due mixture of different qualities? (See Webster.) Would God be "without respect of persons"?

Our lack of knowledge makes us easy prey to various maladies. We are more liable to make ignorant yet honest mistakes. Have we not a greater claim on our loving Father's clemency than the wise and astute? But the rich, the poor, the wise, and the ignorant, all alike, are more or less subject to pain, disease, and premature death; therefore, the burden of this effort is to become, if possible, acquainted with the conditions of cure, or to familiarize ourselves with the faith or power by which disease is exchanged for health.

ANXIETY VS. FAITH.

We may believe the promise made in James 5: 14, 15; we may send for the elders while we pray for a fulfillment; but if we are involved in the toils of anxiety the chances are against us. When Jesus said, "Take therefore no thought for the morrow: . . . sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof," he evidently referred to anxious thought, borrowing trouble, worrying over what the future might or might not bring. He would hardly prohibit thought of business transactions, unless imbued with anxiety, since he took such thought himself, and instructed his disciples relative to the future. (Matt. 16: 3; Luke 13: 33.)

The future will bring evil enough. Why anticipate it? Have you a heavy burden to move on the morrow? Don't shoulder it now, and groan beneath its weight all night. No; be at ease,—rest, eat, and sleep in peace; conserve your strength until the time comes. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." He was only referring to evil thought.

Again. If it is not advisable for us to take "thought beforehand" to premeditate our defense when we are arraigned by those who are seeking our lives. (Luke 12: 11; Mark 13: 11.) Or, in other words, if it is not necessary for us to be anxious in times of great danger, how much more uncalled for is it for us to be uneasy over the trivial affairs of everyday life? Our duty once done, the results are wholly out of our control. Leave them where they belong.

INSOLVENCY VS. FAITH.

Surely the writer knew whereof he spoke, and meant every word of Romans 13: 8, "Owe no man anything." Bitter experience forces upon me the conviction that it is nearly out of the realm of possibility for a man to apply these sublime truths to his own life while he is involved in the vortex of insolvency. It is a blighting curse, a horrid nightmare. Man's duty is not done until he pays his debts. His time is not his own; he is a slave, and the faith that heals is more readily exercised by free men.

DIFFIDENCE VS. FAITH.

Lack of confidence in oneself, underrating of one's own powers is very disastrous. It subordinates the spiritual powers, and places a deadlock on the wheels of spiritual growth. It is more disastrous than the other extreme. We are created in the image of God, after the similitude of his own Son; the masterpiece or crowning effort of their creative energy. Is it not an insult to compare ourselves to "filthy rags" and "worms of the dust?"

God pronounced his work very good; he gave man dominion over all the rest of his creatures. Why should we esteem ourselves very bad and bring ourselves low down? Humiliation brings on depression, melancholy, and dejection. We do not need to abase ourselves in order to be humble. Man,—who can reason from cause to effect, who has dominion over the earth and all its creatures, who is the autocrat of steam and electricity,—has a right to be proud of his position; not conceited and arrogant, but lofty and splendid. He should appreciate his powers, and accept God's free gifts. There is nothing Christ-like or manly in the cringing, cowering proclivities of full grown babies. We should stand erect; recognize our immortality, our worthiness, our merit; not be as guilty culprits pleading for mercy.

LOVE THE PROPELLING POWER OF FAITH.

James 2: 20 says, "Faith without works is dead." He must have had reference to the "works of love," for faith "worketh by love." (Gal. 5: 6.) "As the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works [of love] is dead also;" hence cannot purify the heart or the physical body.

The sick who send for the elders, believing that health will be given, their faith not being actuated by love, is like an engine without steam, or a watch without a spring, or a "body without the spirit"—dead, DEAD. Love, the life principle of the faith that heals, molds our thoughts, welds them in a proper direction, prevents evil thoughts,—such as impatience, envy, vanity, pride, selfishness, and wrath (1 Cor. 13: 4-7),—is as eternal as the heavens (verse 8); gives us a knowledge of God (1 John 4: 7), which is equivalent to eternal life. (John 17: 3.)

FEAR VS. FAITH.

There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear.—1 John 4: 18.

O what a revelation! Is there any principle or creature responsible for half so much misery as fear? Alice B. Stockham, M. D., says in Karezza: "Fear and anxious thought, far more than bacilli or bacteria, are productive of pain, disease, and suffering." A dying man once said: "My son, I have seen much trouble in my life, but the half of it never came true."

No two principles can be more antagonistic than faith and fear; like noonday and midnight they cannot be blended together; as one comes the other departs; they appear to be natural antipodes. No human mind can give both a reception at the same time. We stand between them for an instant, then like a timid hart we flee from fear and pray for faith; but alas, as long as fear casts its shadow upon us faith is somewhere else. Can we not see the need of "perfect love" to cast out all our fears, and to give life, shape, motion, and power to our faltering belief in God's promises?

FAITH HATH PEACE.

This compound called faith, containing belief, resignation, and love, contains also the soothing ingredient of peace—a natural result of the absence of fear and anxiety. "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." Now enjoy this peace and "let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." (John 14: 27.) The influence of these virtues or thoughts bring us into a receptive mood; a condition to receive the blessing during administration. Let me illustrate what thought has to do with the gift of healing. Bro. A. sickens, sends for spiritual-minded elders who are known to enjoy the gift of healing; but he is jealous of his wife, finds fault with his neighbors; "none of them care a snap for me, some of them haven't been in to see me but once this week." He is cross and insolent toward his children, peevish and petulant with his nurse—none of them can please him. His whole being is out of harmony with the universe and chafes against its environments; his nervous and mental tension is such that he cannot rest when not in pain. The elders' faith does not prevail.

On the other hand, Sr. C. when sick sent for any elder the messenger could find, and the one who came was actually in transgression; but her thoughts permeated with the fire of God's love, placed her in touch with her surroundings; she knew she had complied with the law; her faith working by love purified her heart, together with her body. (Matt. 9: 5.) She was healed. The elder, like Solomon, was blessed for the people's sake. Is there not a principle involved here? Are we not justified in concluding that faith, to a certain extent, is a science of the mind? And may it not become a volition of the mind that is trained in its Maker's fixed law?

THE POWER OF THOUGHT.

"Whatsoever things are true," honest, just, pure, lovely, virtuous, or "of good report," "think on these things." (Phil. 4: 8.) For "as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." (Prov. 23: 7.) There is much meaning in this last quotation. It is true in more ways than one. These thoughts of ours are potent things. Everything is governed by thought.

We shall not only give account in the judgment, but we are daily giving account for every idle thought. Not only our spiritual and mental growth, but our physical development is governed by thought. (I will not at present try to define or recognize any distinction between spirit, mind, life, thought, intelligence, etc.; but will suppose they are all essential toward making up the perfect ego or soul, and I may use them interchangeably.)

The unseen forces of life,—the underlying principle of spiritual, mental, and physical energy,—invariably goes in the direction of man's thoughts. This principle culminating brings a healthy person to a position where he may be compared to a live engine under a full head of steam. Just see the manifestation of power waiting to be applied; throttle wide open; feel her heavy vibrations; the mighty rocks upon which you stand are made to tremble. If her mechanical energy is not applied, she wastes her forces upon herself; but you see that power applied in a thousand ways. So is man,—pulsating, throbbing, vibrating man,—he is fairly bubbling over with life.

This surplus life, commonly called passion, may be foolishly wasted to gratify desire, or it may be "worked up," as Emerson says, "into poetry;" or may be grafted into the body of rousing sermons. Some weave it into works of art; some, like Edison, manufacture it into inventive genius; some ramify it into every act of life, giving them opulence and power. Others conserve it until it is generated into new truths and original ideas.

Still others, with their souls filled with love, learn to mingle or couple their surplus vitality with the weakened vitalities of suffering humanity, and lift them out of affliction, just as they would double teams with their fellows and pull them out of the mud; or just as you would combine your strength with the strength of a friend to help him shoulder a sack of wheat. "In union there is strength." Anxious thought is evil, because it is in open violation of nature's laws. You cannot intelligently console yourself by saying, "my broodings and forebodings will harm no one but myself." Your thoughts cannot be withheld; they go out from you. Evil thoughts are more contagious than the smallpox; while intense thinking of the good and grand and true surrounds one with a halo of celestial glory that can be felt by very many. Your presence can be felt, even though you may not be seen.

What is it that is called the gift of discernment? It is man's keen perception of his fellow's atmosphere. It is not my prerogative to say how much more it may be. Why do we feel at home in some people's presence, and like an exile when in the presence of others? Why are some people's presence so conciliatory and acceptable in the sick room? and why do wise nurses turn the key against others? Why do students seek acquaintance and give receptions to some freshmen, while they haze others or ignore them altogether?

It is because man's thoughts go out from him and help form what in occult parlance is known as man's atmosphere. It is because of our spiritual and mental absorption. Because we partake of the spirit of our surroundings. Our silent thoughts go out and wield a wonderful influence for good or for bad, as the case may be. If we were only educated in the science of doing our whole duty promptly, and to leave the results with God, instead of worrying and anxiously anticipating evil instead of good results, faith would become more nearly indigenous.

THE METAPHYSICAL MOVEMENT.

We frequently read of the wonderful development of modern science, and we know of no branch that is making more rapid strides than the one called mental science. It is being demonstrated every day that mind governs fleshy matter. We are daily confronted with the fact that healing by faith is becoming very popular outside the church.

The Free Methodists meet and pray especially for the sick, who are often healed. The Holiness people believe and practice the laying on of hands for the healing of the sick, the same as do the saints, and their Gospel Trumpet has a department wherein many testify to being healed. The young Brighamite elders say to me, "we know we have the authority, for the sick are healed under our administration." The world is being flooded with thousands of testimonies of the healing power of Christian science, mental science, occult science, divine science, etc., while magnetic healers are building up great infirmaries in different cities, and are healing every form of disease. Mesmeric and hypnotic healers are rapidly multiplying.

What answer are we going to make? The flood is upon us with resistless power. If we denounce it as of the Devil we are still confronted with the formidable fact that a large majority of these people hold strongly, in fact are anchored to the gospel principle of "peace on earth and good will to man." They teach their students and patients that whatever is antagonistic to peace and love is alike antagonistic to life and health. Some of them go so far as to stoutly maintain that there is no evil, but that what appears so is simply undeveloped good. Some teach that nothing is real but spirit, or truth, or God. They do this (ignore evil) that they may the more successfully adhere to the good, knowing that life clings to, belongs with, and flourishes in the presence of good, while it pines away when yoked in with evil. Some of them teach that love is life, that the two are an indivisible unit.

The writer is not yet convinced that all these cases of healing are of the Devil; but if such should yet be proved, and then should it be proved still farther that the means or power employed is in part or in toto the same as prevails in the church, I ask, How could it be construed to appear derogatory to the gospel?

Two great nations are at war; disease prevails in both camps. If the privates on either side should learn that the remedial agents used on both sides were the same, would it surprise them? Would it convince them that their cause was unjust?

The writer never did look upon the gift of healing as the greatest integral part of the gospel.

A powerful emetic given to an American soldier will have the same effect as if given to a native Filipino. Like causes produce like effects.

Therefore, if to be in harmony with the vibrations of the universe, or in touch with their environments, or at peace with the world, including themselves, or in strong love with all of God's creation, coupled with positive will power and belief, enables so many Christian scientists, so many Pantheistic evolutionists to rise above or "demonstrate over disease," what may the same be expected to do for the saints when coupled with the rest of the gospel principles and shorn of monstrous dogmas? It may be expected to continue doing just what it has done, just what it is doing; namely, instantly relieving the possessor of any form, type, or stage of any disease whatsoever.

I notice the members of the Holiness Church are schooled in the gospel principles of "love to man," peace of mind, resignation, etc. If a recognition of this fraction of the truth puts them in possession of health, under the hands of their elders, what will it do for us who have been careful to subscribe to the whole truth? If their elders, without a shadow of authority from God, witness such results from their administration, what should be witnessed by us who have been "called" and "chosen" to declare the angel's message? We have seen hearing restored to the deaf, sight to the blind, broken bones healed; we should see the dead raised to life again. For if we are to believe our Savior's words, we are driven to the conclusion that the faith that heals knows no limitation of power. It is not only almost, but altogether absolute.

I admire the metaphysical movement for the truths they are helping to bring to the surface, just as I admire Edison for his inventions.

The fact that man is quickened by a mighty, forceful agent which some call spirit; some, thought; some, magnetism; and others call it life; and that this agent by a proper application of the gospel principle of love may be developed so that it will not be held in subordination to the flesh, but have the ascendancy, have a governing and controlling power over the body, applies alike to agnostics, spiritualists, and atheists; also to theism, pantheism, and polytheism.

The writer is convinced that no other ism, body, or sect has so few obstacles in the way of its development as the saints. No other people have such a preponderance of truth with which to develop it.

This life of "light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world" (John 1:9) is given "more abundantly" to his disciples. Christ's mission into the world was to give his people this life of light in abundance; but like every other good thing, it must be developed, uncovered, disclosed, untrammelled. "Freely ye have received freely give." When the woman touched the garment of Jesus, he perceived that virtue, active quality, strength, or efficacy had gone out of him. This quality or power may be, and doubtless is given direct from heaven many times. Some of us may have fooled away our birthright, in which case the healing virtue must be supplied from the great storehouse to meet the demand of "faith to be healed."

CRUCIAL DEDUCTIONS.—NO. 1.

BY D. L. SHINN.

As a result of prolonged study and close research the writer of these statements and conclusions alleges, as his only excuse for their appearance, a strong desire to see justice and truth triumph over pulpit prejudice, press pusillanimity, and historical hypocrisy. The writer does this with the firm conviction that such teaching will ultimately inure to the benefit of all who ever become identified with the church or in any way interested in this matter. The real truth should be told, professed history to the contrary notwithstanding.

OUR BELOVED MARTYRS OF 1844.

If Joseph Smith had done as other reformers did—taken the scriptures only for his authority—he would have been a false teacher, because there is no authority there for him. True, there is to be found a written command to teach and baptize (Matt. 28:20), but that was given in the year A. D. 33 to certain chosen, educated (by the Lord), and ordained apostles, and to none others. There is no man living can show that the authority given in Matthew, Mark, or Luke was intended for any but the apostles. The record is clearly and distinctly written that he (Jesus) met them at a place previously appointed by him and that was in (on) a mountain in Galilee. No one can prove that any were present to see and hear the Lord at that time but "the eleven" apostles. And as further evidence of this the writer concludes (Mark 16:20) with these words:—

And they went forth [as commanded], and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following.

Those in subsequent times who presumed to go forth under this commission, did not have the Lord to work with them as he did with the apostles. And the reason is obvious—they were not apostles, they were presumptuous men!

There is another fact observable in this connection: After the Lord had given this command to the apostles he directed them to wait for an endowment of power from on high:—

And, being assembled together with them commanded that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me.—Acts 1:4.

And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high.—Luke 24:49.

The Lord nowhere commands them to write their testimony. No one can show that the Lord ever authorized the New Testament to be written. It can only be a matter of conjecture or presumption that any of "the Gospels," as they are called, Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, were ever written by any special commandment of the Lord.

Luke says in opening his record:—

Forasmuch as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us, even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eyewitnesses, and ministers of the world.—Luke 1:1, 2.

Again, in beginning the Acts of the Apostles, Luke, addressing himself to the same person (Theophilus), refers to the former treatise (“Gospel of Luke”), but not a word is said about having been inspired or in any manner commanded to write these things. In the former treatise he only says, “It seemed good to me also,” etc.

John intimates that the testimony was written for a purpose when he says:—

And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book: but these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name.—John 20:30, 31.

To whom this writing is addressed does not appear. It was more than likely directed to the church—to those who came into the church under traditional influences. This Gospel is dated A. D. 33, but many believe it was written after John’s return from Patmos.

It is true that Joseph Smith followed the direction of the scriptures of the New Testament in seeking the Lord from the first, but did not make himself a minister as others do, by assuming a position from the commission given to those special apostles and witnesses of Jesus. If Joseph Smith had risen to notoriety as a reformer in this manner, he would not have been hated by the world, and especially those false teachers whom he exposed by the claims he made, and by the light he brought into the world.

Mr. Wesley assumed something like apostolic authority:—

I conceive myself at full liberty, as I violate no order, and invade no man’s right by appointing and sending laborers into the harvest.

I have accordingly appointed Dr. Coke and Mr. Francis Asbury to be joint superintendents over our brethren in America, as also Richard Whatcoat and Thomas Vasy to act as elders among them by baptizing and administering the Lord’s Supper.

To justify his course Mr. Wesley said:—

I firmly believe that I am a scripture episkopos [bishop] as much so as any man in England or in Europe; for the uninterrupted succession I know to be a fable which no man ever did or can prove.—See Watson’s Life of Wesley by John Emory, p. 247.

Wesley believed that bishop and presbyter is the same office. But he was never ordained to either office in the English Church, but was ordained a priest under the hands of the Bishop of Canterbury. Mr. Watson says:—

The American Methodist Episcopal Church, since their episcopacy is founded upon the principle of bishops and presbyters being of the same degree—a more extended office only being assigned to the former, as in the primitive church.

Mr. Wesley followed the example in the New Testament of the ordination of Paul and Barnabas (see Watson’s Life, p. 253) in ordaining bishops or presbyters for America and Scotland.

But let it be remembered that Paul and Barnabas were apostles, which Mr. Wesley himself, who performed the ceremony upon the heads of Thomas Coke and Francis Asbury, could not claim to be. It is an example not to be followed by any man. For,

There were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, . . . and Saul. As they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said [here was a direct revelation from God], Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them.—Acts 13:1, 2.

In this case the Holy Ghost is the presiding authority and power. But in the case of separating Coke and Asbury, Mr. Wesley is the presiding authority, and whereas, in the example, Paul and Barnabas “were sent away by the Holy Ghost,” Mr. Wesley sent Coke and Asbury. Mr. Wesley himself says he found himself at liberty to send “laborers into the harvest.” Here is the language of Wesley:—

I have accordingly appointed Dr. Coke and Mr. Francis Asbury.

But to show the fact that he presumed to send them as the Holy Ghost had sent Barnabas and Saul, I refer the reader back to the foregoing, namely, bottom of page 244:—

I conceive myself at full liberty, as I violate no order, and invade no man’s right by appointing and sending laborers into the harvest!

It is clearly evident from these facts that this man Wesley, with all and every other phase of popery, assumes the place of the Holy Ghost “sitting in the temple of God,” following more the example of the man of sin than that of the apostles and prophets at Antioch. This, we observe, comes to pass in fulfillment of prophecy, as also the work of Joseph Smith. If these things had not taken place, how could the scriptures have been fulfilled? Wesley in one age and department of prophecy, and Joseph in another.

“The world loves its own.” But the world did not love Joseph Smith. He is a prophet. He is like them—even the apostles and prophets of Jesus Christ; like them in his calling, in his self-sacrificing devotion to truth; in his influence and spiritual power—faith, knowledge of God; in his sufferings (persecutions and final martyrdom), following the servants of God for the testimony of Jesus—“the spirit of prophecy.”

I fully believe in Joseph Smith as much as God requires belief in men—men of God. I am led by Joseph’s mission and testimony to believe in Jesus Christ as the true Messiah. Joseph did not arrogate to himself the rights of others. He claimed for himself the call directed of God to him in his time. If he had assumed only the commission of the ancient apostles as found in the New Testament he would not have attracted our attentions more than did Wesley or Campbell. But Joseph is a unique character, the history of whom, as given even by enemies, gives the lie to their tales of crime and villainy attributed to him, because such things are absolutely inconsistent with their own story of his early manhood and lifelong toil, poverty, energy, industry, and true devotion to God, mankind, and country, and above all, his success as a minister. Such an abject and abandoned wretch as his enemies paint him would not have been followed by so many thousands of intelligent individuals.

I admit that if the charge of “false prophet” could be truly established by competent testimony, the case would be entirely different with many. But alas! for that side of the case. The prophet, like all other accused people, remains innocent until his alleged guilt is fully proved. What shall be the ultimate verdict of mankind?

Letter Department.

KINMUDY, Ill., July 24.

Editors Herald:—Since last writing I have held some very interesting meetings here in Marion County, near Alma. I have succeeded in arousing quite an interest among outsiders. Some of the best people in the vicinity are investigating our claims, some of the best families in the neighborhood have joined, and a number of others very near the kingdom. Bro. I. M. Smith will no doubt be glad to hear of the work being revived here, as he was one of the first to come into this part of the district to open up the work, and under trying conditions. I was told so by some who stood by him some twenty years since. Some of those parties are still living here, and speak very highly of Bro. Smith, among them Messrs. Marshall and Raney.

Since coming here I have had the pleasure of interviewing an old gentleman, eighty-six years of age, Mr. G. G. Galloway, in his home near Alma. Mr. Galloway tells me he used to do the printing for our people in Nauvoo, and will evidently be remembered by some of our folks, the older ones since this time, and by others who no doubt have made his acquaintance since. Mr. Galloway is very feeble at the present, just recovering from a bad spell of sickness; was barely able to sit up while he talked to me, and owing to his feeble condition and deafness it was hard for the writer to obtain the desired information sought. I mention only a few things which may prove to be of interest to some.

He says the people lie about the Mormons, and misrepresent them; that Joseph Smith was a special friend of his. Alexander Smith had written to him sometime in the past telling him he would pay his expenses if he would go with him and show him where the all-seeing eye was hidden away that was in the Temple in Nauvoo, as he stated he was the only person living that knew where it was. How is this, Bro. Alexander?

I also met another gentleman while here; Alexander Sanchez Cardella, a native of Old Mexico, quite intelligent and well educated in his own language; can speak some six different languages; is a practical machinist. Mr. Cardella says he can trace his genealogy back and knows he is a descendant of the Aztecs and is of pure blood, a Lamanite indeed; but was entirely ignorant of the fact. He became interested at once on approaching the subject of the origin of the Aztecs. He knew they were here when the white man first came to America, but where they came from and how long they had been here, he knew nothing about. On reading to him from Bro. R. Etzenhouser's book some things that had been discovered in Mexico he said it was true, for a number of things mentioned in his book he said he had seen with his own eyes. He told me some things he had seen that are mentioned in the book, before anything was said about their being in the book.

He stayed for my meeting that evening and I preached on the Book of Mormon and concluded by reading from Bro. R's book. I asked Mr. Cardella to state to the audience if what I had read was true, which he did and with telling effect, I trust, to those who were there.

That which interested me most was his relating to me what he knew of one of his neighbors in Mexico finding some plates of metal and a roll of parchment hid away in the earth in an earthen vessel. His statement concerning the finding of these plates was as follows: When Mr. Cardella was about twelve years of age he was at a neighbor's when the hired man came to the gentleman who owned the place and told him what he had found while plowing on some part of the farm. The gentleman with his boys and young Mr. Cardella with the rest proceeded to the spot where the hired man had plowed up some plates of metal covered all over with hieroglyphics and a roll of parchment, all together in an earthen vessel. He did not only see the plates, but handled them. He says that which was written on the parchment was written in the Aztecs' language and was an explanation of what was on the plates. This man's father, an old man, cautioned him to hide away the plates and parchment, for the time had not come for the world to have them; but they would be given to the world in time and would be of great worth to them. It occurred to me the old man must have known all about the plates, and they were being handed down from father to son. Young Cardella on his return home told his father, who became interested and anxious to learn more about the find; but they refused to let him see the plates or reveal their contents. The news naturally by this means got out and large sums of money had been offered them, but they had refused to sell them or make known what they contained. The man in whose possession they were has since died, and they are now in the possession of his son, whose name is Juan Maxtha Zarate, who resides in Tierras Del Zacate, Mexico. If one can believe this he might be persuaded to believe that Joseph Smith found some plates. There would be this difference in this instance: we only have one man's testimony. In the case of Joseph Smith finding plates we have the testimony of twelve men. In this case there is nothing said of the Lord or an angel having anything to do with it; and in the case of Joseph Smith the Lord and an angel had a great deal to do with it; too much for the people to believe in it, for they had thought the Lord and the angels had gone out of business.

Since writing the above I have baptized four more precious souls into the kingdom, near Kibbie, the fruits of other men's labor.

The reunion of Southeastern Illinois district is a thing of the past, closing Wednesday evening, August 9. Our attendance was not large, but our meetings most of them were good. Our missionary in charge, I. N. White, was present. Bro. F. M. Slover, of the missionary force, was stricken down with the fever and could not be present. Bro. I. A. Morris, district president, was also detained at home on account of his wife's sickness, throwing the burden of the work on I. N. White and the writer. Bro. W. R. Smith, of the local elders, assisted in the preaching and others of the local forces assisted in other meetings, which help was appreciated. Perfect harmony prevailed throughout the entire reunion, and I think I would be safe in saying all went away feeling amply paid for the sacrifice made to attend, and without a dissenting voice voted we hold another reunion in this district in the fall of 1890.

Your colaborer,

J. D. STEAD.

LEEDS, England, July 31.

Editors Herald:—It may be interesting to some of your readers to learn how we are progressing in this place. We have had two visits from Bro. and Sr. Pitt, and have appreciated very much the efforts of our respected missionary in charge, and am sure that his labors in the branch here have been conducive to good. We have appealed to the district for the establishment of two more branches; one in Hunslet, where a mission has been for about two years, and the work has been accepted by some, and fair prospects for a still further increase; and one to be organized in Burley, thus making three in all. For some time the work has been practically at a stand still, much discord and dissension has caused many bitter sorrow; but we believe that owing to the kind counsel and advice of Bro. Pitt and our district president, we seemed to have entered into a new epoch of history, so far as Leeds is concerned. May God bless our united efforts for the spread of truth, and keep us in the bonds of peace and love.

On the 26th, Brn. Pitt, Aveyard, Moir, and the writer were in Morecambe, a beautiful little seaport town, very popular in Lancashire and Yorkshire as a health and pleasure resort. We distributed a quantity of Heralds to all who would accept, and finding it impracticable to hold a meeting independently, joined in with the Salvation Army, who kindly allowed the writer to speak in their meeting. We do not know of any result, but the word was cast like seed into the soil, and having put the address of Bro. Pitt on the papers, it may be some one will correspond.

Sunday, July 30, was a glorious day in every way. The sun arose in power and splendor, flooding the earth with a shimmer of gold, and our president being eager for the fray (for we had determined on a new and bold scheme), wended our way to a large tract of ground, beautifully laid out with beds of variegated flowers, freighting the air with delicious perfume; long avenues or walks, bordered by trees and shrubberies, and on one side a wide undulating plain of ground carpeted with green verdure and decked with square slabs of stones to serve as pulpits for different meetings, known as Woodhouse Moor. Here we met several of our brethren, and Bro. Aveyard, with a degree of skill worthy of a politician, soon introduced a means to draw a congregation. There is an individual who frequents this place, and preacher of the gas pel (?), who because of his witticisms and buffoonery, draws an immense crowd. We solicited this man's aid, and being honest-hearted, readily acceded to our requests to join him in his meeting. Away he stumped down, (for he only possesses one leg, the other being substituted by an apology of one in the shape of a wooden stump), and occupied his pulpit (?). In an incredible short space of time there was a crowd of people, numbering between two and three hundred, which gradually increased; but it was easy to observe that some had come for fun. After our friend had opened the meeting and spoken in his way, he jocosely introduced Mr. Pitt, as a friend from Chicago, America, and then retired, taking the noisy rabble with him like the "Piper of Hamelin," leaving a congregation of the before-mentioned proportions, who were very much interested in the word delivered to them by Bro. Pitt, who spoke with excellent liberty, followed by the writer. Afternoon we held another open air in Wortley, close to the meetinghouse, at which a number of the brethren spoke with power and demonstration. In the evening, according to our advertisement of the morning, we occupied again on the Moor, employing similar tactics. The result was beyond our expectations, for Bro. Pitt and self had the pleasure of preaching to a mass of people numbering at least five hundred, all strangers to the truth. After closing, we had some papers addressed from F. G. Pitt, No. 1 Shakespeare Street, Manchester. We informed the people of this. So eager were they that not waiting to have one given, they literally tore them out of the hands of the brethren; not out of scorn or ridicule, but with a sincere earnestness to learn of this strange doctrine.

It was a sight not to be forgotten. We rejoiced and thanked God, after our labors were done, for the manifestations of his power and love during the day. We purpose occupying during the week, and on a Sunday, all through the fine weather. Bro. Pitt left us to-day for Manchester. We regret parting, but necessity knows no law. The conference of this mission convenes next Saturday. Praying for a good time, and wishing prosperity to all God's people, I remain,

Yours in bonds,
J. W. RUSHTON.

ST. LOUIS, Missouri.

Editors Herald:—Our reunion is now a thing of the past, but it has passed, leaving a pleasant recollection of its joyous, happy, peaceful times, and a sigh for the experiences, which leave us wiser, but not sadder.

Ramona Park while not all that could be desired in the way of a reunion ground, yet, had its many pleasant complements, and next year the committee may profit by what was learned at this assembly.

We believe that the many newspaper articles, reviews, etc., that were given in our behalf did good, and the work was placed before the public as never before. Fairness was the order of the day, so far as treatment by the press was concerned, and although some mistakes and misstatements were made, they were of a trifling nature.

Apostle I. N. White was made chairman of the reunion, assisted by others holding offices of minor importance. The order of sessions was as follows: Prayer service at nine o'clock, preaching at eleven, again at 2:30 p. m., and in the evening at eight. Sunday school was held the two Sundays of the reunion, Bro. J. J. Billinsky being in charge. Bro. Wallace Robinson was present the last Sunday, assisting in Sunday school work. Especial services of the Sunday school and Religio were held Saturday, July 29. Bro. Robinson gave a Sunday school talk Saturday morning. Others assisting in this especial work were, Sr. E. Palfrey, of Macon, Missouri, Joseph Jaques, of Belleville, and among our local workers were numbered John White, J. C. Hitchcock, R. B. Trowbridge, Joseph Swift, and Mrs. E. Burgess. A number of excellent papers were read by the people named, and a good showing was made in the interests of the Sunday school and Religio.

Bro. E. C. Briggs, of Lamoni, Iowa, was present and did some good work in the way of preaching; other speakers were Brn. I. N. White, J. D. White, George Baraclough, and J. C. Hitchcock. Bro. I. N. White used his chart and a great interest was aroused therein. Four were baptized, and there are others to follow we believe.

As we close comes the remembrance of the good prayer meetings we enjoyed on the camp grounds; the Spirit of the Lord was present, counseling to better living, nobler striving, and next year we hope to profit by the lessons gleaned at this time. May the Lord bless others in their "reunions" and bring us all to that state of perfection when all shall be permitted to join the great reunion when Zion shall be established and the saints dwell together in unity and peace.

Sincerely,
ETTA M. HITCHCOCK, Sec.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 14.

Editors Herald:—The district tent is going in full blast. Not seats enough to seat the crowd that comes; but as the nights are very pleasant, the men and boys can sit around on the grass. I have the best attention I ever had. This is my eleventh sermon, and I have never once had to speak about order. There are quite a number who seem to be much interested, and I am expecting an ingathering before the meeting closes. I have the tent set up on Dale and Glenarm, one block from the speaker's home, and I feel glad to see my neighbors turn out so well. There are many comments made in favor of the preaching, and I think there are a great many getting alarmed about so many coming out to the tent. The few noble saints left here are very anxious that we make this effort a success. We have missed our noble Bro. and Sr. Pickering so much, and more especially since the tent started. But our loss is Kansas City's gain. Bro. J. C. Chrestensen has assisted the speaker every night so far, but duty calls him to other parts, and then I shall be left alone. I only ask our kind, loving Father to continue to give me his Spirit as he has since I commenced these meetings.

May God bless all our coworkers, and especially the tent workers and the tent givers, for I believe they are a power for good. I have reached more people in these eleven sermons than I reached in the whole winter in the hall. With best wishes for the general good of the work, I am, in bonds,

HENRY SPARLING.

ADEL, Iowa, Aug. 14.

Editors Herald:—Appreciating the good letters in the Herald from time to time, we thought to drop a word along with the rest. Three weeks ago my wife and myself joined Brn. J. W. Morgan and C. Scott in Perry to help with district tent work. We continued there for nearly three weeks. None were baptized, but some good people are investigating.

On the 8th Brn. Scott and Morgan left for Des Moines on important business, and on the 9th I shipped the tent to Adel. With my limited experience I felt a little backward in going myself, but realizing that God has promised to help the weak and humble, I consented to go and with the help that God would give me do the best I could until the brethren would get there. Arriving there in the evening, on the morning of the 10th, with the help of Bro. Bean, we got the tent up and held services that night. We had not secured an organ yet, hence our singing was slim, and our crowd also. But next evening we had an organ and we sang before time for services to begin. When the time came for us to open we soon found we were not alone, for the angelic choir from heaven came and sang with us. My wife heard several voices, and such a beautiful bass voice she glanced around to see who was singing; but seeing no one, she soon discovered that they were not earthly voices, but heavenly. The music was so beautiful that people passing by who would not come in the tent, stood all along the walks to listen. Bro. and Sr. Bean, my wife, and I were the only saints in Adel. Bro. and Sr. Bean heard the voices also, and being unacquainted with the pieces, they looked around to see who was singing, but to their astonishment they discovered no one. Having to assist myself, I soon discovered that the good Lord was pouring his Spirit upon me, for I enjoyed good liberty in praying and preaching. I never heard such lovely singing in my life. We occupied the whole hour. It was said by outsiders that our singing that night was just lovely. They said it was better than all the rest of the churches in Adel put together. So you see how good it is to be a saint in latter days. God has promised to be with his people to comfort them, and we know that his promises are true, and when we feel the weakest, then he blesses us and makes us strong by the power of his Spirit. I thank him and adore his name for the marvelous work and wonder of the latter days.

Bro. Morgan arrived Saturday. Brn. Scott and Sheldon will be here this week. Will continue meetings all this week, and then the tent goes to the reunion. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I am,

Your brother in Christ,
G. W. THORBURN.

OGDEN, Utah, Aug. 14.

Editors Herald:—Landing in Utah on Saturday, July 1, I remained in Salt Lake City for Sunday, coming on to this place next day. Here I learned that a debate was on the tapis, but after a tilt with two professors of the Weber Stake Academy and a final negative decision by the president of that stake, the debate was "off"—the bravery of "Utah Mormonism" being in talk rather than action.

Closing the work at Plain City, where Bro. Parker had baptized four, D. W. Wight and his uncle remained here to conduct tent work, while Bro. Parker went to Idaho for a like purpose in conjunction with Bro. S. D. Condit. We kept the tent here for three weeks, that numeral being the number of people we baptized; all from the Mormon Church.

From here we removed to Willard, where attendance and attention were all that could be asked for—away above the average in Utah with respect to the latter fact. On the first Sunday night of our stay there, the writer being absent in the city, the bishop had a meeting announced on purpose to lecture against us, and David being alone, of course called in the tent appointment and attended, taking notes. A request to talk and for the use of the house in which to reply were both refused in terms more positive than polite. He was, however, granted the privilege of an announcement, and invited them to be present the next night at the tent. Fully one hundred and fifty listened in breathless silence to his masterful reply. But the following Wednesday night was the climax of all. The crowd was large; the silence on the part of the audience complete. The speaker was not only David by name, but for the time at least was a man after God's own heart. And as the heavenly inspiration filled his soul and his voice rang out piercing the stillness of the night air afar, as he descanted upon the "Necessity of a Reorganization," the thrilling cadences of that melodious voice thrilled the very soul and pierced both "joint and marrow" of at least one present, and it seemed indeed that obtuse must be the mind that would fail to grasp the logic of the argument so freighted with the distilling dews of a munificence divine.

Did anyone ask questions that night? Well, yes; one poor fellow asked what of Abraham, though the marriage question was not in any sense an issue of the discourse. Out here we look for three editions of questions, in stereotyped form, however, no difference what the subject—Abraham, David, Solomon! Ancient Americans sought to "excuse" themselves because of certain "things" written of the latter two, but what of that? Spiritual opaqueness enshrouds, mentality is in the gloaming, and so the play goes on! Men and maids desirous of hymen's domain are "anointed," "robed," take the "oaths" of death, practice the "grip," get a "new name," the feminine portion of the above having first been tempted by his satanic majesty, who, now days, is dudish, young, gallant, has his apples (real) piled about, but practices not the serpentine crawl! Bah!

With a desire for truth,

J. W. WIGHT.

ARLINGTON, Iowa, Aug. 13.

Editors Herald:—I always enjoy reading the letters from the saints. It makes me so much stronger to read the words of those who have such abiding faith in God. I am tried and tempted a great many times, but I know that God, who is so mindful of even the little birds of his kingdom, will not forget one of his children in time of trouble. He has promised us that we will not be tempted more than we can bear, and if we go to him and pour out our hearts to him in earnest prayer for his Spirit to guide us and help us to resist the temptations which come to us, he will surely answer our prayers. Being young, I have many temptations in the way of worldly amusements, but I am striving each day to draw myself farther away from them and to center my mind more completely on God and his blessed word. I earnestly pray that the young saints may be weaned from these amusements which may, in the course of time, lead them down to the very depths of sin and degradation.

O, dear saints, we must be so careful in everything we do or say. We are told that we must bear no malice in our hearts, but must be loving, tender-hearted, forgiving one another. If we would only try to be more gentle and more free to forgive. We little know the pain and sorrow caused by sharp, stinging words uttered in a moment of anger. Let us improve every opportunity to use a kind and gentle word to those around us.

A little word in kindness spoken;
A motion or a tear
Will often heal the heart that's broken,
And cause rejoicing here.

Our little branch is striving to do its part in the glorious work. We have had many trials and difficulties to overcome and the way has seemed very dark, but I thank God that the clouds are lifting and the beautiful silvery lining is almost in view. The saints are taking a great interest in our little saints' meetings. We will long remember the testimony given by Bro. Miller at our last meeting. It was full of cheer and comfort to saddened hearts. I think every saint there felt that the Spirit of God was very near unto us.

Dear brothers and sisters, pray for me that I may not falter, but may let my light shine so that by my works I shall be known as a Latter Day Saint. Ever praying for the advance of Zion, I remain,

A YOUNG SISTER.

FREMONT, Neb., Aug. 15.

Editors Herald:—I have been trying to do my full duty to God and the church, but as to how well I have succeeded is not for me to say. I can say this, that I have enjoyed the presence of the Holy Spirit to a goodly extent in preaching the word, although I cannot report a great work done at any place. Have met some opposition by the knowing ones, but the great and effective argument that has been used is the "Stay away from them" kind, and it apparently has been used quite freely. I baptized one—a single man—at Laurel and left a few more greatly interested, if not believing, but they did not feel to take hold of the work at present. If they ever do, I believe they will be a great help to the work there. The young man baptized is in a great many regards a model man, and I hope with the gospel as an assistant his influence for good will be far-reaching.

I attended the Nebraska State reunion and was made its secretary, so will give a brief report of it. Elders F. A. Smith and W. E. Peak were chosen to preside, which they did very acceptably. Twenty-four preaching, eight prayer, and two business sessions were held, and God acknowledged his saints by giving a goodly portion of his Spirit to assist all in their worship. There were eight administrations to the sick—in some cases with marked results—and one baptism and confirmation. The attendance was small, owing to the lateness of harvest. There were thirteen tents on the grounds and a fair attendance from the town and surrounding country evenings and Sundays. All the saints assembled seemed to enjoy themselves and went to their homes spiritually refreshed.

Mrs. J. P. Johnson of Farnam, Nebraska, a member of the Church of God (Restitutionist) attended the reunion, and at the business meeting the last Saturday afternoon presented, and had read, the following: "To the saints at this place who have been so kind and made my stay here so pleasant, I wish to offer thanks. Although we are not one family, we can at least be friends. I shall always remember this as one of the brightest scenes in my life, and although I could not thank you, will everyone accept it the same as if I had thanked you personally." Mrs. Johnson is a woman of good information in the scripture and is investigating the doctrine in earnest. If she accepts the gospel she will make a defender of it of no small ability.

The ministry from a distance present beside those named above were I. M. Smith, C. H. Porter, S. D. Payne, W. M. Self, C. W. Prettyman, Levi Gamet, and J. W. Waldsmith. The question of holding another State reunion was left to the missionary in charge for the next conference year.

The reunion was held in a good shady place in the edge of Shelton, Buffalo County, from August 5 to 13.

In gospel bonds,

CHARITON, Iowa.

Editors Herald:—Since my last communication I have visited Warren County, where I found the saints all alive and strong in the faith, but laboring under difficult circumstances. There was a branch organized there one year ago, but at the time of the organization they had no branch record book. The saints were all new in the work, and no record was kept of the branch, and they could not make a report to the conference. I assisted them in completing their record, and organized a Sunday school, with Bro. William Griffin as superintendent. I have since heard from them, and they say the school is a success. While there I confirmed Bro. Carpenter, who was baptized by Bro. Robert Bare, the president of the branch. Bro. Bare is young in the work, but has on the whole armor, and is a valiant soldier.

I then went to Sigourney, the county seat of Keokuk County, where Samuel Rowley has secured the use of the Free Methodist church. We had a fair congregation. On the third evening I noticed a man in the back of the church had got the attention of a number of gentlemen, and seemed to be very busy. I stopped and asked him what was wrong. He said I was misrepresenting the scriptures in Acts 8:16, by claiming that the Holy Ghost had not fallen on anyone yet. I read the quotation to show the people how he was trying to mislead them. As soon as the congregation was dismissed he left the house, and on inquiry I found that he was a Christian Union preacher, by the name of Quick, who has been a great enemy of ours at Hammonsburg and Milo. The next day he went around Sigourney and tried to injure me. He went to Comrade J. C. Gillett, who was giving me a home, and told him he would not allow me to come into his house. Comrade Gillett asked him if he had anything against me as a man. He said no; but the terrible doctrine I was preaching. I was told that he could do me no harm, as he has been a standing candidate for office for years, but has not got friends enough to elect him. I then went to What Cheer, and stayed over Sunday, as the Free Methodists occupied the house, and, just as I expected, when I returned on Monday, the presiding elder had forbid them to allow me the use of the house, as some of his members seemed much interested. He told them they should abstain from the very appearance of evil. I asked one of them why they shut me out of the church. He said I was a good talker, and made things look so plain on the blackboard, that there was danger of dividing the flock, and they cannot pay their preacher now. But Bro. Rowley had secured the use of the Advent church. I spoke two evenings in it; but owing to the extreme heat, I closed, and have the promise of the church in the future. I found some good people there. A special friend in Comrade J. C. Gillett. Bro. Gillett is a Presbyterian, but a man of liberal views, and willing to investigate for himself. He subscribed for the Ensign. I then called on the new saints at Sand Ridge, and to say that they are alive in the work, is but mild; they have a Sunday school of little ones, forty in attendance. They keep up a weekly prayer meeting and saints' meeting every other Sunday, and preaching by Bro. Barnes and Elder Miller.

By permission of missionaries in charge, I visited Hiteman, stayed one week, baptized four, and had the pleasure of saying the few words that made Sr. Kate Martin and Charles White husband and wife. I am now detained at home; both of our daughters are down with the fever, and quite sick.

My home address hereafter will be Chariton, Iowa.

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., Aug. 15.

Editors Herald:—The inclosed card is an announcement of a lecture by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Spalding, at which I was a listener. He treated on the threefold life, or, in other words, the three natural kingdoms, showing the supremacy of man over both the animal and the vegetable, and how God placed us here, each in our sphere, to live lives to his honor and glory. He used a great deal of scientific logic, which was very interesting, elevating, and beneficial to the mind. He also maintained that, though man had been gifted with mechanical ingenuity to a very great extent, that the greatest of them realize that there is something greater still to be done. I listened with admiration to his discourse and felt benefited very much for my trouble. I went out of curiosity to hear "Bishop Spalding." I know curiosity is a feminine characteristic, but I am rather pleased that I was gifted with a little of it in this case.

I have been at Mackinac Island since the last of June and expect to be here until the last of September. I do know not if there are any other Latter Day Saints here or not. If there are, I would be glad to meet them. Address me in care of L. L. McArthur. It makes me feel like one of the scattered sheep of the fold to be deprived of church privileges, as I have always been used to attending meetings and Sabbath school. I now realize what it is to be one of the isolated ones who do not hear a sermon for months. Although not in the fullest extent do I realize it, for I have the hope of mingling my voice with God's saints in the near future, which hope the isolated are deprived of. But though deprived of that hope, they can join with myself and all other Latter Day Saints in the hope of a triumphant resurrection, if we prove faithful to the end. So cheer up, dear scattered brothers and sisters. God's mighty hand holds the helm, and since it does we need not fear. But as the poet has said, "Trust in God and persevere."

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion and the building up of his kingdom, I remain,
Your brother in the gospel,

WALTER L. BENNETT.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 14.

Editors Herald:—I left San Francisco, California, the 25th ult., on the fine steamer Walla Walla for Seattle, Washington. Was over three days and nights on the Pacific Ocean and the Puget Sound. San Francisco showed up to good advantage as we passed through the Golden Gate. After the first day out the sea got very rough, which caused the ship to rock and roll around considerably, and as a consequence nearly all of the passengers got very sick. The writer was unable to go to the table for two days.

On the morning of the fourth day we reached Victoria, British Columbia, where we stopped four hours. Here are to be seen the House of Parliament and the Dunsmuir Castle. Victoria is quite a seaport town. Large steamers call here from Japan, China, and Australia.

We had a lovely voyage from Victoria to Seattle. The water was as smooth as glass, and the Sound is surrounded with high mountain peaks covered with snow and ice.

We arrived at Seattle about 2:30 p. m. the 25th ult., and after wandering around for some time I at last found the home of Bro. G. E. Ward, president of the branch. Bro. Ward was not home. However, his good wife and her sister Florence gave me a kindly greeting and a welcome to their home. Held three preaching meetings. We have only a few members here, but they all seem strong in the faith.

On the 5th inst. I left on the steamer Fair Haven for Bay View, Washington, to attend the reunion, which convened on the 6th. Only a few of the saints were in attendance. However, we had some good meetings. Brn. Holt, Harris, Chase, and myself did the preaching. We truly hope some good was done.

On Friday, the 11th, Bro. Harris and I left there for this city and reached here Saturday at 4:45 p. m. Held one preaching service here yesterday and Bro. Harris will continue the meetings over Wednesday night. He will go to Eatonville on Thursday, where he will labor as long as the interest is good. I leave here this afternoon for Orting, but will return here on Wednesday. Expect to be at Castle-rock by Sunday, the 21st. Brn. Holt and Chase will be with the tent up north for some weeks yet. Sr. Chase has been poorly of late. Was some better when we left. We ask the saints to pray for her. We expect to ordain Bro. Townsend ere we leave, so that he can care for and feed the few saints here.

Bro. Harris is a willing worker and a grand traveling companion. Brn. Holt and Chase have done a good work in Oregon and this State. I feel that the time has come that a district should be organized in both States in the near future. Brn. N. C. Enge and Goodwin have done considerable in the ministry within the last year. Brn. Moore and John Davis are in the mission and we hereby give them and Brn. Enge and Goodwin an invitation to labor wherever they can find anything to do. We ought to have four elders in each State to meet present demands. We hope that all the local brethren will push out and open up the work in new places and that the officers of branches will be more faithful in performing the duties of their office.

Praying that success will attend our weak efforts for and in the interest of the salvation of our fellow men, I remain,

Your brother in the one faith,

GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

FLAG POND, Va., Aug. 14.

Editors Herald:—I am a poor woman without father, mother, brother, or sister, and if you will allow me to ask a small favor of the dear ones who read the Herald I will be glad. It is this: I need medicine and other things, and not wishing to be a burden to anyone, I ask all to look up their very old cancelled stamps and send them to me, which I can exchange for medicine and clothing and other things I need.

As to my condition of health, I refer you to Dr. C. V. Young, of Stickleysville, Virginia, who has doctored me for years. But I am now a shut-in and never will be well; but Jesus is with me, bless his holy name. I want all to at least to write me a word of cheer.

Yours in hope of eternal life,

MRS. N. J. ROLINETT.

P. S.—Brother, you can insert a part of this letter. You will know how to do it and what I deserve. If you think I should not have the old stamps, just let me go. I hope I soon will inherit the riches of that land above.

N. J. R.

[We insert the above, but advise that all appeals for aid be sent rather to the Bishop or his agents, who have charge of ministering to the necessities of those needing help.—EDS.]

MOLINE, Ill., Aug. 9.

Editors Herald:—Last March I had the pleasure of baptizing two in the kingdom at this place, for which my life was threatened. The heathen raged and people imagined vain things. Since that time we have been laboring in other parts of the district and have been permitted to do but very little preaching here, but the leaven has been working and the seed sown last winter is bringing forth fruit, for we have been permitted to baptize fifteen in this vicinity since. Have baptized each day now for three days, thus causing the Rock Island branch to rejoice by seeing members added to the church daily. A number of others here are near the kingdom, some of whom cannot come in because of circumstances which they cannot control. We hope and pray the way may soon open for them to obey.

We expect to go to Chillicothe to-morrow to hold a few meetings and to induct some into the kingdom who have given their names for baptism.

Last Saturday and Sunday we had a two-days' meeting six miles from here. The rain prevented us from having meeting until Saturday night. Most of the saints were there from the three cities. We had a time long to be remembered because of the spirit of peace and unity prevailing.

Your brother,

J. W. ADAMS.

WESTON, Iowa, August 14.

Editors Herald:—The Herald is a very welcome visitor at our home, and it makes my heart glad to read the many encouraging letters from those whom God has sent forth to preach the gospel, for we know the harvest is truly great and the laborers are but few.

Dear brethren, be not discouraged, though you may have trials, for surely the Lord of the harvest is watching over you, and great will be your reward at the end of the race, if you have been faithful in your duty. We know this gospel shall be preached to all the world, and then shall the end come; but it will only be the pure in heart that will be accepted of God.

Eight precious souls have lately been added to our branch here at Hazel Dell; seven are members of our Sunday school. The Lord is surely blessing the Sunday school work, and many children are being taught the precious truths of the gospel. They were baptized by Bro. D. R. Chambers, our worthy missionary, who has won the love and confidence of the saints in this neighborhood. One baptized was Bro. Frank Hough, whose wife has been a member for some years. We had a time of rejoicing, which I hope the saints will long remember. God is blessing our branch with his Holy Spirit, and some remarkable cases of healing have occurred here from time to time. I believe the saints should exercise more faith in God, and when sickness overtakes us, instead of sending for a doctor, we should send for the elders. As we are promised, the prayer of faith shall save the sick.

Dear saints, the promises of God are true; and if we will do our part we must be humble and prayerful, if we expect to enjoy the blessings of God. I had a dream some time ago, which I feel impressed to tell you. I saw a very large congregation of saints, like our large reunion meetings. Bro. Henry Kemp was preaching to them; but the saints were slumbering, and paid little or no attention to the preaching. When Bro. Kemp had finished his sermon, Bro. J. S. Strain arose in the center of the congregation and spoke by the Spirit and power of God, saying: "O, ye saints of God, arouse yourselves from your slumbering condition, and arise and move forward." The saints arose and formed a line; they began to march forward, and each one had a certain work to do.

Dear saints, let us not neglect our duty, for if we do, we suffer loss, and are hindering the work of God. May God bless his people everywhere, is the prayer of your sister,

CHRISTINA RASMUSSEN.

THE TRAMP PAINTER'S STORY.

We, my sister and self, were seated on the cheerful porch of the former's house one warm day in September, watching our little ones play together, when we noticed a neatly dressed man limping painfully up the sidewalk. When he came to the gate he turned in. He walked with a cane, and in the free hand carried a small satchel. My sister answered his knock at the screen door (the porch was screened in), and the cripple inquired if Mr. M. lived here, and on being answered in the affirmative, asked if he was at home. To this my sister replied that he was not, but was at his office in the courthouse. The man hesitated when told this, and then said, "I was informed that Mr. M. was an Englishman, and being one of his countrymen, I thought I would come to him. I thought he might help me to get work," and stated that he was a fancy painter and decorator, and walked from place to place in search of work.

When told this, my sister advised him to go at once to Mr. M's office. But this he did not like to do, saying he did not like to go into a man's office to solicit aid, as he was frequently snubbed. Then he turned as if to go, saying, "I am very tired, ma'am, would you mind if I sat down in the shade here to rest?" At this Mrs. M. threw the door open, and told him to come right in and take a chair. He slowly and painfully climbed the steps to the shady porch, saying, as he did so, "This is the first time I have had an American woman ask me to take a chair; they all seem to think me not good enough to enter their houses;" and he sank down in the proffered chair painfully.

After some precluding remarks, in which he became assured that he had our sympathy, he told the following story of his experience in America. I hope not many have such.

He had come to America, with his wife and children, nine months before, and soon had work with his uncle and brother, decorating the interior of a large theater in some eastern city. While engaged in this work, the scaffolding on which they were working fell, killing both his brother and uncle, and breaking his leg and dislocating his hip. For seven months he lay in a hospital. During this time his wife was taken sick, and soon after his release from the hospital she died, leaving him with two little ones "like these," he said, as he patted the little head nearest him; and tears welled to our eyes as well as his. Having nowhere to keep his little girls, he had been forced to send them back to his parents in the old country. "And," he said, looking at the little ones playing about him, "I love my children as much as any man, but I cannot hear from them, for I don't know where I'll be."

He had our entire sympathy by this time, you may be sure. He also told how his all had been spent in his own illness and that of his wife, and he was left penniless and almost helpless, to try to eke out a living as best he could. He had gone to the painters of the town, but they informed him they could spare none of their jobs. And as a last resort he had come to his fellow countryman to ask aid. At last he arose to go, after our assuring him that he would run no chance of being snubbed in Mr. M's office, and promising to tell about him. And we felt better with the idea that by our sympathy we had eased a wounded heart as we saw him limp away.

At dinner we related the circumstance to Mr. M., who was rather inclined at first to think we had been taken in by a fake; but we felt sure that when he saw the sufferer he would feel different. At supper we inquired if he had called as expected, and found he had, and Mr. M. had given him three dollars, and bought him a ticket to another town, where work was more plenty, as well as "Englishmen."

It don't take long to listen to an afflicted one's story, and when we have listened, let us not withhold our sympathy, if we have nothing else to give. Do not let it be said of us that we shut the door on the wanderers. Everyone is not a tramp because he is going afoot. Some of the best of earth's pilgrims have had to do likewise. You can never tell what sad misfortune has made the wanderer an outcast. Always remember that we must "be not forgetful to entertain strangers," for "some have entertained angels unawares."

SMITHLAND, Iowa, Feb. 21.

POSSESSED.

"In your patience possess ye your souls" was and still is the plain declaration of our Master, and how true it is. Every Christianized and every civilized person knows that it is an eternal fact, more reliable than the everlasting hills; for its author has said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my word shall not pass away." The experience of individuals and of nations prove it in both a temporal and in a spiritual work.

"In your patience possess ye your souls" are just the words one needs to repeat over and over, silently, when the trials of poverty (such as poor wood and a poor stove) and the many cares and trials of domestic life seem almost overwhelming, as well as when one leaves home, friends, and all their attachments, and goes to break the bread of life to starving souls.

We find in the word many cases where people were possessed with evil spirits, and in every instance Jesus was able to cast them out, whether one or many. We have often thought on this subject, so submit our conclusion to the minds of others, and would be pleased to know their opinion.

If in our patience we possess our soul, we by being patient control or govern our soul; and as the spirit and the body constitute the soul, we have command of both our spirituality and of our worldly interests, whether we own little or much, whether we are made of all kinds of work in our family or sit as a queen on the throne of state.

In the days of Christ it was said that people were possessed of the devil, and we think that several similar cases have come under our own observation. That is they were controlled by evil, and as all evil originates with the devil, they were governed by him. We develop according to our manner of thinking, and we speak and act in harmony with the same. One may let the mind dwell so long on one subject that he will be possessed by it. If the subject is in accordance with Christ's teaching, all is well; if not, all is wrong. Seven devils were cast out of Mary of Magdala, and as she was forgiven much, she loved much. What a comforting thought! We are inclined to think that she had yielded to a large number of evil propensities, till they completely overcame her good traits, consequently they possessed her.

One of her evils might have been the habit of always trying to be on the opposite side of a question; another, a spirit of jealousy; another, a spirit of hatred, a spirit of revenge, an indulgence of theft, a malicious spirit, or a licentious spirit. If a person long indulges in one or more of those evils, each individual likeness will be pictured on the face, and it will not need a magnifying glass to see it either. He who resisted the devil will help us. O God help us all to prove it, and let us not be a torment to others and a castaway ourself! SR. ALMIRA.

PROFESSING AND DOING.

What are you doing, my sister,
To honor the Master's name?
Enrolled with his friends, your name on the book,
Do you earnestly work for the same?

Does professing, to you, mean doing,
And living your life in the light?
Enriched by God's love, the fullness received,
Are you reaching for his grand height?

Is Jesus to you most lovely,
The nearest of all to your heart?
Self-denied, clothed in robes of his making,
Does this life of yours form a part?

If so, you are ready for service,
And your life may a great blessing prove.

The world will acknowledge you as his child,
And give heed to your words of love.

Never shrinking or shirking duty,
With boldness do work for the right;
And Jesus, your friend, will help to the end,

And give you success in the fight.

COMMITTEE.

Sunday School Department.

ELDER T. A. HOUGAS, EDITOR.

Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

WHOSE NEGLIGENCE IS IT?

There are several district librarians that have never reported to the General Librarian, Sr. (Miss) Mamie A. Allen, Lamoni, Iowa, nor has their appointment been reported by anyone. The election of all district officers should be promptly reported to the General Secretary, Bro. W. N. Robinson, Independence, Missouri. District secretaries should take notice of this, and if your last election has not been reported, report it at once. This is necessary, in order that the General Association records be kept up to date. We regret to say that many of the districts have not thus reported for years. This neglect is due partially to a lack of understanding on part of the district secretaries. All officers should seek to inform themselves upon the duties of their office, and then fill the office, not simply "hold it down."

It is necessary to report to the General Librarian, to get in closer touch with the work intrusted to your care. The General Librarian has the general oversight of the library work in the Sunday schools of the association. She wants to hear from you, what the condition of the work in your district is, and what the prospects are. And, too, she will have some useful pointers for you. Write to her, and get into line of work.

LIFTER OR LEANER, WHICH ARE YOU?

There is a little poem that says, if my memory serves me right:—

"There is only one lifter,
To twenty who lean."

But in the work of the Lord, a work that all believers testify to being the one true way, and are positive in their statement, and who therefore should be actively engaged in every good work; how is it? What has been your experience in regard to the Sunday school?

This work is admitted by the great majority of Latter Day Saints to be a good one, and in this as in every undertaking, there is always a certain amount of work to be done, and some one must do it, or the work will be a failure.

A person once remarked that "the restored gospel is the Lord's work, and he will see that it does not fail." Yes, that is true; but the Lord always uses human instrumentality to bring about the desired result, and we are to be workers together with God. Now if we are faithless to the trust and the commands God has given us, the charge will be given to another, and ours is the loss. We lose the reward that would be ours if we had cheerfully performed our duty, and used the talent given us.

In the Sunday school, all may help; and those not qualified to lead, may help lift the load, by showing an interest in the study of the lessons; and if they are parents, by encouraging their children in studying the lessons and conducting themselves properly in the Sunday school. Those who aid in any way to make the school or class better, ought to be classed with the lifters, because the burden on the superintendent or teacher is lightened; and that is not all either, for each one who tries to do what they can, be that much or little, finds by experience that they themselves have been blessed, and have profited by their efforts.

All who have attended Sunday school can realize that it is oftentimes the case that a few have to stagger along under the weight of the indifferent ones, who have just interest enough to come; but who haven't studied the lesson, because they "hadn't time," or "didn't feel like it," or "had to go visiting." And while such would likely be very indignant should you imply it, still they are nevertheless leaners that make the Sunday school work drag along in a weary manner.

Some may think that these are only found among the general membership of the church, and that the ministry is free from any application of this saying. How is it? How quickly did the ministry recognize that the Sunday school work was an important part of gospel work! With a few exceptions the ministry held aloof, until it was gradually forced upon them that the Sunday school was a "help" to bring souls to Christ, and that God approved of it. Not so very long ago, the Sunday school workers, when in convention, felt that some of the ministry who were present were only lookers on, to say the least. But we are glad to acknowledge that the ministry are admitting the important part that the Sunday school is taking in teaching the young, middle aged, and old, and thus clearing themselves of any blame. They far more quickly act on their convictions of duty, generally speaking, than the members do, and seem to realize that it is bearing the burden of the weary and almost discouraged Sunday school worker to speak the kind, friendly word of cheer whenever possible, and whoever so bears each other's burdens, are thus fulfilling the law of Christ.

May the time speedily come when the band of lifters may be in far greater proportion than they now are, and when we all do our simple duty, then we can say, without hesitation, joyfully and truthfully say the blessing of God and the prosperity that comes with cheerful obedience is ours.

ELLA J. GREEN.

For the Eastern Iowa district convention.

"TRUTH is every way better than error. Because this is so, it is better to emphasize one important truth than to denounce fifty dangerous errors. If a traveler be shown the right road to pursue, he has more practical help in his journey than if he told of fifty wrong ways that he must avoid, while still left in doubt as to the one safe way. Letting in a single ray of clear sunlight gives more cheer to a room than trying to shut out a hundred tons of darkness.

"Outline your work as you study it at home. 'What we work out ourselves has a value of its own, even if it lack artistic finish. We teach clearly only what we have perceived. One's own analysis of a lesson may be inferior in some respects to one in a book or paper, yet for one's own use it may be better.'"

"Our judgments of others are apt to be mistaken, because we take a one-sided view. We see them at but one angle, instead of using the imaginative sympathy that is needed to get an all-round view of them.

"One who does right to-day need not be troubled about doing right to-morrow. Every act done is a seed that will bear fruit, each after its own kind.

"Being approved by good men is no sign of being right; neither is being disapproved by good men. The right is right, whether good men approve or disapprove.

"Established usage may be a powerful factor for evil. Most of the opposition to improved methods, based on the alleged fear that life will become too complex and mechanical, is the opposition of the greatest machine of which the world knows anything, — treadmill, conventional, conservative habit.

"In making or enforcing rules, look back to your childhood; recall your own experiences, your own impulses. Put yourself in the place of the child to be governed, then act.

"Regard all pupils as trustworthy until you find them otherwise. Children rarely forgive a teacher who suspects them of wrong when they are innocent.

"Few people distinguish between dissipation and pleasure; dissipation weakens, while pleasure helps and strengthens us.

SOME NOVEL STATISTICS.

"A delver in statistics has discovered that in the year 1898, the English speaking people of the earth produced no less than eighty novels a day throughout the twelve months, not excepting Sundays and holidays. Five new novels a day were actually published in Great Britain alone, and three in the United States, a total of eight daily. And as only one novel in ten is ever published, it was calculated that 29,200 were produced.

A STERN TEACHER.

"God keeps a school for his children here on earth, and one of his best teachers is named Disappointment. He is a rough teacher; severe in tone, and harsh in his handling sometimes; but his tuition is worth all it costs. Many of our best lessons through life have been taught by that same old school-master, 'Disappointment.'

GOOD INTENTIONS.

"Many a good intention dies from inattention. If, through carelessness, or indolence, or selfishness, a good intention is not put into effect, we have lost an opportunity, demoralized ourselves, and stolen from the possible pile of good. To be born and not to be fed is to perish. To launch a ship and neglect it is to lose it. To have a talent and bury it is to be a 'wicked and a slothful servant.' For in the end we shall be judged, not alone by what we have done, but by what we could have done.

THE MINISTER'S TEXT.

"A little girl of three summers was taken to church by her parents. The minister took for his text the twenty-third Psalm, — 'My cup runneth over, surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life.' On their return home, the little girl was asked if she remembered the minister's text. O yes! she replied brightly, — he said, Mercy goodness, I've tipped my cup over.' — Selected.

Resolved, that all resolutions presented to conference for consideration be submitted in writing, signed by at least two members of the conference. Whereas, there have been some hasty baptisms in the different branches of this district; therefore, be it resolved, that we recommend that no one shall be received by baptism into this church unless they witness before the church that they have truly repented of all their sins and are willing to take upon them the name of Jesus Christ, having a determination to serve him to the end, and truly manifest by their works that they have received of the Spirit of Christ unto the remission of their sins, according to Doctrine and Covenants 17:7. Whereas, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints stands pledged to the doctrines of loyalty to civil government, and is adverse to any infringement thereon; and that all men are bound to uphold the respective governments in which they reside; therefore, be it resolved, that Brigham H. Roberts, representative from Utah, should not be permitted to take his seat in the fifty-seventh congress of the United States of America, for the following reasons: 1. He is a believer in polygamy, and has more than one wife: 2. Polygamy is contrary to the laws of Utah, which says all polygamous or plural marriages are forever prohibited. 3. Polygamy was contrary to the laws of the United States when Utah was admitted to statehood. 4. Polygamy is contrary to the laws of God, found in his written word. 5. B. H. Roberts was punished for polygamy in May, 1889; he was fined two hundred dollars and confined in the penitentiary four months, and is still an offender. Preaching by D. W. Cook and C. L. Snow. Make it a point to come in time for the convention, and we bespeak for you a good time. Come and have a good time, and learn a great deal about school work and how to make it interesting. Branch secretaries, please get out your reports for conference in good time. We desire to get a full report of the district this fall; so if you have not a blank report, send for some at once, and have it filled out and carefully examined by the branch, that there may not be mistakes in it. The priesthood will also remember their reports. All Sunday school secretaries are requested to send reports to this convention. Please do not overlook this duty. Superintendents, write out and send an account of the general condition of your school, so we will know how to help you. BISHOP'S AGENTS' NOTICES.

To the Saints of Decatur District; Greeting:—Brethren and sisters, I am compelled to call upon the Bishop each month for from one hundred to two hundred dollars more than I ought, to supply the families of missionaries put on my list to supply with their allowances. This should not be, and would not if Decatur district was doing her part. We are one of the largest districts, if not the largest, in the church (as to numerical strength), and should lead in our tithes and offerings; but instead of that, we are way down in the list.

Brethren and sisters, the time has come when we must be more active to duty, all of our duties, if we expect to stand. Let me plead with you, yes urge all to "watch and pray always," and remember the Lord with your tithes and offerings, for it is as essential as any other part of the law. If one was to keep the rest of the law closely, and omit this, he would not be entitled to the celestial reward.

Saints; if you haven't begun to pay tithing yet, begin now; take God at his word, and after you have commenced to comply with the law you will see the beauty in the system, take pleasure in complying, be happy, and blessed in your efforts. It is God's divine plan.

Remember, if the district is to get credit for its proper amount, all tithing and offerings paid in the district should be paid to the Bishop's Agent of the district, or his sub agents in the different branches, otherwise, when paid direct to the Bishop, it goes on the general church books, and no district given credit. Any members in Decatur district desiring to pay tithes or offerings, can pay to my sub agents in the branches, or send them direct to me at Lamoni, Iowa, and on receipt of same, will return receipt.

To members of Lamoni and vicinity, will say, if you don't see me in town, you can pay to Bro. Frank Criley or Clara Cochran Smith, at the Herald Office, or to Sr. Jennie M. Leland at Bishop's office, who are all instructed to receive and receipt for same. Anyone wishing to pay in produce, please refer to my last notice, and follow directions, and you will be properly receipted.

Hoping and praying God will be able to bless and prosper his people on account of their good works and worthiness. I am as ever your brother in Christ, F. M. Weld, Bishop's agent, Lamoni, Iowa.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

If God permit, the saints of Glover's branch, near Moore's Junction [State of Michigan.—Ed.], will hold a two-days' meeting at the Umphrey schoolhouse, on September 16 and 17. At a meeting of the saints, held here July 23, presided over by Bro. J. J. Cornish, we were organized into a branch. Bro. James Burch was chosen president, Bro. Aaron Brintnell teacher, the writer secretary. The work is well alive here, and we are all anxious to push it along. All traveling preachers are cordially invited to come and take part. All denominations will be made welcome, and as much at home as possible. We hope all saints in reach of us will turn out and aid us in a good cause. We have plenty of room. Come one, come all.

should be permitted (I will not say in any Christian country, but) in any civilized state."

After the death of Wesley the antagonism of his followers to the buying, selling, and use of spirituous liquors declined until in course of time not only was the general rule not enforced by the Wesleyan Church but the use of liquors became the common practice of nearly all the ministers. Spirits were even kept in the cupboard of City Road Chapel, John Wesley's famous preaching place, and visiting preachers from abroad were invited to refresh themselves at the close of their sermons with a glass of liquor. Such an invitation was extended to the distinguished American Methodist divine, Bishop Simpson, and the custodian of the chapel could not understand why his invitation should be declined. Not only were ministers accustomed to use liquor but the conference at one time adopted a resolution which practically prohibited the holding of total abstinence meetings in Wesleyan chapels. During recent years there has been a revival of temperance interest in the Wesleyan Church, due to the organization of Bands of Hope, and a large number of the ministers are now total abstainers. The effort to prohibit the holding of office by liquor dealers, notwithstanding its defeat by an immense majority, indicates, however, an increase in total abstinence sentiment. That such prohibition will ultimately prevail is evident from the temperance attitude of the various branches of Methodism in the United States, not one of which would retain in its fold a minister who was known to use intoxicating liquors as a beverage, or a member who was engaged in the liquor business. The pressure in England will become stronger also, for in all other branches of English Methodism the ministers are, with scarcely an exception, total abstainers and the members are urged to be so. — Chicago Tribune, August 13, 1899.

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale. Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, — to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

DARK DAYS FOR FRANCE.

FEAR REVOLUTION OR CIVIL WAR AFTER DREYFUS VERDICT.

London, Aug. 20. — The Observer publishes the following dispatch from Vienna:—

It is probable that a formal contradiction of the statements of the French Generals at Rennes regarding the Schneider letter will be communicated to the French government, with a request that the Generals in question publicly withdraw them.

Such action by Austria-Hungary would break the ice for the German and Italian governments.

Rennes, Aug. 20.—A cloud is gathering over France, which every day grows more somber and more sinister. Of it the Dreyfus case forms part, but it is far greater than any individual question of his rights or wrongs.

All the conditions of civil war exist, much more perfectly, much more bitterly than in the United States before the war of the rebellion, and the Dreyfus question, like the slavery question, is bringing them to a climax.

Serious men here predict that in case the Republicans, Socialists, and Jews stand together the outcome will be civil conflict.

But if this anomalous, unnatural revolt should break apart and the Jews stand alone, they make another prediction. They prophesy another red and black page in French history. The prediction is too horrible to be put into words.

JESUITS AGAINST THE JEWS.

Reinach and his followers are urgently seeking to influence their dominant party in the Chamber to put in force the law on the statute books that expels the Jesuits from France;

on the other side the Jesuits and Catholics are working to break the power of the Jews in every way.

It can be broken by a popular uprising.

The two great dominant forces in France, natural enemies by religion, bitterer enemies still by social and financial rivalry, are face to face, and neither can quit.

One or the other must go, and, as Cavaignac truly predicted, there is no other solution, and the best hope of all fair-minded men is that it shall be a fair fight, with France equally, divided, rather than the terrible tragedy of another St. Bartholomew or the ineffaceable horrors of another Commune.

Chincholle, the famous and popular correspondent of the Figaro, called me over to him when I entered the Lycée this morning and with a significant look tore off a fragment of a letter just received from a friend in Paris, giving him an account of the scenes on the night the government raided the Deroulede plotters. The fragment was as follows:—

"All night long the cry has echoed from thousands of throats under our windows, 'Death to the Jews, death to the Jews.' You know that Guerin's house in the Rue Chabrol is but a few doors from us. Sad. Sad. What is it that is coming?"

DREYFUS ONLY AN INCIDENT.

The arrest of Dreyfus in '94 was the outcome of a bitter movement against the presence of Jewish officers in the French army, which began four years preceding, when all the French students at St. Cyr—which with the Polytechnique constitute the two pet training schools of the French army—declared they would have nothing whatever to do with Jewish students in the same institution.

Excepting the Jews, all these students came from Jesuit preparatory schools, many of them from the school in the Rue des Postes, in Paris, and this started the movement. Then Adelin, manager of the school in the Rue des Postes, joined forces with Drumont and started the Libre Parole, whose venom against the Jews is known to all.

OBJECT OF THE CRUSADE.

The object of this and a score of similar journals which followed was to educate public opinion to the idea that all Jewish officers in the French army were traitors. Their further text was that as all Protestant officers had long been suspected of treasonable sympathy with England, so all Jewish officers were naturally treasonable sympathizers with Germany.

Then came the Drumont duels, the killing of Captain Edmond Mayer by the Marquis de Mores, the outrages by the Camelots, who attacked the bridal party when Gustav Rothschild's daughter was married, the Camelots even throwing unpleasant projectiles into the bride's carriage.

In 1891 Deroulede charged the Jews in the chamber with dechristianizing France. At the same time Francis Lauer moved for the expulsion from France of the Rothschild family and was supported by thirty-one votes.

Cavaignac, writing at the time in L'Autorite, said Lauer's motion was a little premature—only premature—but there would come a day when there would be no escape from the dilemma—either the Catholics or the Jews must leave France.

That statement was true and the time seems near at hand.

The plot against Dreyfus in its beginning was born of intense anti-Semitic hate with the purpose of driving officers out of the army. It had no other origin.

SIGNIFICANT WARNING.

To-day the local Catholic daily Le Patriote Breton devotes a whole front page to an article declaring the Jews own all the industries of France, are purchasing all the country estates, are reducing Catholics to serfdom, or, in other words, are steadily increasing, while diminishing and destroying the revenue and power of the Catholic Church.

The article is pitched in the same key as Drumont's article, in which he said:—

"Why are the Jews so eager to enter the army? It is better to shoot traitors than targets. Already the masters of finance and of administration are dictating the decisions of our tribunals. They will be complete masters of France the day they command the army. Rothschild will then demand to see the plans for mobilization and you may well ponder what will be his design."

This Rennes paper is the leading Catholic paper in Brittany. Last Tuesday in the Cathedral, amid the magnificent, awe-inspiring splendors of the feast of the assumption, the Archbishop read a pastoral letter counseling all good Catholics in these warlike times to be calm, to repress unfraternal feelings. Any outsider hearing such a letter might easily have imagined that war was about to be declared.

This, then, explains the venomous hate in the Dreyfus affair; the great conflict which the Dreyfus case crystallizes.—Chicago Tribune, August 21, 1899.

THE RUSKIN COLONY.

Some time ago the cooperative colony at Ruskin, Tennessee, was put in the hands of a receiver. This week its property was sold under the hammer, and the colony, which was started to show how easily the social system can be regenerated, is practically at an end. Evidently the world is not ready for a change yet.

The colony was founded first at Tennessee City in 1894. Nineteen men, who were able to raise in money and materials about $15,000, bought a large tract of wild land in Tennessee, and set to work to improve it. They discovered soon that the land they had bought was worthless, so during 1895 they removed to another and better spot in the valley of Yellow Creek, and proceeded to make the wilderness blossom like the rose.

Up to a year ago the colony seemed to be on the high road to success. The number of colonists increased to over 300 and the value of the assets exceeded $100,000. A number of commercial and manufacturing enterprises were started and they became profitable. A newspaper called the Coming Nation was printed. It had at one time a circulation of about 60,000. A large building was erected to be occupied by "The College of the New Economy." Each member was required to work forty-eight hours a week at that labor which he or she was best qualified to perform. The work done was not paid for in gold, silver, or currency, but in "colony money"—in certificates setting forth that the bearer had done so much work and was entitled to draw the equivalent value in food, rent, clothing, etc.

This cooperative or socialistic colony, so prosperous for a time, was wrecked by that which has wrecked so many other communities. There were differences of opinion among the colonists which could not be reconciled. There is no reason why 300 or 3,000 people who think exactly alike about everything cannot establish and conduct a successful cooperative enterprise on socialistic lines. The nonemployment of money in the dealings of the members among themselves will be an element neither of strength nor of weakness. That is a fad.

But the Ruskin colonists were not of one mind long. There came to be a majority and a minority faction. The minority stockholders—every colonist was a stockholder—not being able to have their own way, had the common property put into the hands of a receiver to be divided. He sold it at auction, and the land was bought in by the minority stockholders for less than its value. They are going to try to reorganize the colony on a somewhat different basis. Some of the majority stockholders, not discouraged by what has happened, are looking out for a new field of operations in Virginia. They are still loyal to Fourier and Bellamy, and when one Utopia falls about their ears, will try to build up another.—Chicago Tribune, July 29, 1899.

ENEMIES OF FRANCE.

The worst of it is, the enemies of France are so near home, in its own camp, within its own household. Not only are the government and the army of France just now in the trough and squall of a nasty sea over the Dreyfus matter, but influences appear to have been at work profoundly vitiating the French character. Even the Figaro grows serious as it warns the French people against the terrible increase in the indulgence in the deadliest of alcoholic drinks. The country of "light wines" is becoming more famous yet for its absinthe. The consumption of alcohol in France compared with that in Germany is as 14 to 10; with that in Switzerland as 14 to 9; and that in the United States as 14 to 6. The Figaro suggests that every Frenchman would do well to think as he rises in the morning: "I belong to the most besotted nation in the world. Alcohol is the death of any race. Shall it be the death of France? It is madness, it is cruelty, it is vice, it is poverty. I must fight alcohol if I would save France."—Chicago Tribune, August 18, 1899.

ZIONIST MOVEMENT IS THRIVING.

The feature of the third annual session of the Zionist congress at Basle is Dr. Herzl's announcement that a total of $60,000,000 has been pledged in favor of the project. With the aid of such a sum it ought to be possible to colonize a large proportion of the 7,000,000 Jews of the world in Palestine. As there are now over 800 Zionist societies, 125 of them in the United States, there seems to be every assurance that this projected movement of the Jews toward their ancestral home will reach significant proportions. The removal is especially to be desired for the Jews of Russia and Roumania, who outnumber those of all other countries and who are most oppressed. The Dreyfus case has undoubtedly given an impetus to the cause. All Christendom will take a friendly interest in this modern attempt to fulfill the scriptural prophecy about the gathering together of Israel at Jerusalem.—Chicago Tribune, August 18, 1899.

TYPICAL WESTERN PUSH.

To those who are familiar with the history of exposition building in this and other countries the Greater America at Omaha presents some interesting and unique features. In this lone instance a mammoth exhibition has been conceived, its principal exhibits collected from the distant parts of the earth and its gates opened to the public within a period of six months, and without one dollar of public funds. That it was not entirely complete on July 1 is not a matter of surprise, and that it is complete to-day is due solely to the typical western push and ability displayed in grappling with a gigantic problem and solving it successfully. The people of Omaha felt, at the close of last year's exposition, that the war had materially affected the attendance and that eastern people had not fully appreciated the great western enterprise. With this thought in mind and the realization that a demand existed for definite information regarding those distant islands acquired in the late war, the people of Omaha decided to hold a Colonial exposition which should not only exploit the peoples, products, and industries of Cuba, Porto Rico, the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, but should also be typical of the west, its progress and resources. That these laudable objects have been attained is gratifying to the promoters and should be keenly appreciated by all the people of the Trans-Mississippi country, as the success of this magnificent enterprise reflects credit upon the west and incidentally brings other substantial returns.

A few years ago hard times made the Western farmer deny himself everything save the barest necessities of life. Then came the great crop year of 1897 and with it a story.

A Nebraska farmer carried a mortgage of $4,200 on his property, and it was a burden hard to contend with. The wheat crop in '97 was enormous and prices were high. He appeared at the bank shortly after harvest, pulled out $4,000 and asked for a loan of $200 to enable him to cancel the mortgage note. The banker, who held the note, urged him not to bother about it, but go and buy cattle with his $4,000, feed his corn crop and in that way get the maximum for his product. "No, sir," replied the farmer, "I want to pay that note now. Then when I harvest the corn crop I'm goin' to pay you back that $200 I just borrowed, and then do you know what I'm going to do?" and his honest face beamed all over with pleasure. "I'm going to buy a buggy!" This little incident tells the story of thousands of others out in Nebraska, and the fact that during the past six months one concern (The Stover Carriage Company of Chicago) have shipped to one firm in Omaha alone one hundred and thirty carloads of buggies and carriages, averaging about 22 to the car, makes it very evident that prosperity is with Nebraska. It is a wonderful state with great resources, and the crops of the past few years have put Nebraska farmers in an enviable position.

REFLECTIONS ON CO-OPERATION, ETC.

RUSKIN COLONY DISRUPTING.

Clarksville, Tenn., July 23.—Internal dissension has caused serious trouble at the socialist colony at Ruskin, twenty-five miles from here, in Dickson County. This coöperative association has been widely advertised and attracted attention all over the United States. A member of the colony who is here states that the trouble was the result of the machinations of thirteen disgruntled members who objected to the wives of other members securing stock in the same manner their wives did, and several injunctions have resulted.

Trouble has been brewing for eighteen months and the property is to be sold by a receiver on the 26th of this month. Speaking of the methods adopted by this association, this member said: "We are ahead of the times, and like all the people of all ages who have been in advance of their day, we are laboring under disadvantages. But this thing is bound to come, and we who believe in it are more contented, because more conscientious, in living this way than in doing each for himself after the ordinary manner. The times are full of signs pointing our way. The trusts are only a blind step in that direction."

It is proposed to organize a new association after the old one has been sold, to be in the form of a trust, under a trustee, all colonists to be made beneficiaries. A week or two ago there was an exhaustive account printed of the methods of this socialist colony, but it appears now that all the hopes of the founders of the original socialist organization have been blasted, and the outcome is of much interest, not only in this section, but throughout a large portion of the United States.

The foregoing press item indicates the disruption of the Ruskin Coöperative Colony. Another item states, whether correctly or not we cannot tell, that free-love doctrines among certain members had much to do with the trouble. Late press items also chronicle the disbanding of the Zoarites, of Ohio. We quote the following from the Literary Digest, April 16, 1898:—

The society of the Separatists of Zoar, more commonly known as the "Zoarites," has decided to disband after nearly a century of communistic life. The society is not, it is said, in such financial difficulties as has been reported. It owns 7,000 acres of the best land in Ohio and a valuable lot of blooded live stock. Out of the original colony of nearly five hundred members there remain but ninety-two.

We now present some other reports; two concerning successful coöperative colonies; one a report of a late movement in Ohio:—

ONLY SUCCESSFUL CO-OPERATIVE CITY.

In the hills along the Ohio River is the only coöperative city which the experience of years has shown to be thoroughly successful. Founded forty-three years ago, and named Tell City, after the great William Tell, it now has a population of three thousand and boasts of the fact that ninety-three per cent of the families within its limits own their own homes. Within the limits of the city are twenty-six coöperative factories, employing five hundred and four workmen. These men meet once a year and fix their own wages by a popular vote. They also elect their own foremen and officers. In the history of the town there has never been a failure among the factories. Last year the earnings of the workmen and the surplus profits, distributed among them amounted to six hundred and sixty-three thousand dollars. Of the inhabitants one thousand five hundred are Swiss, one thousand two hundred are Germans, and the rest Americans. Tell City is said to be the best kept city in Indiana, and its people are, on the average, the best dressed.—Chicago Tribune, August 2, 1899.

PROGRESS OF GO-OPERATION.

London is the best place for the holding of the sessions of the International Coöperative Society, for it is in Great Britain that the idea has made the greatest progress. Since the establishment of the Rochdale Society in 1844 the movement has increased until now the coöperative societies have over 1,500,000 members, which would mean that one family in six in the United Kingdom has part in the coöperative movement. The British societies have a capital of $90,000,000, and do over $300,000,000 worth of business annually. In the United States coöperation has made but slight progress, and hence, the election of the Rev. George C. Lorimer of Boston, president of the international society, to succeed Earl Gray, is an unusual compliment. Dr. Lorimer is now pastor of Tremont Temple in Boston, but he is as well known in Chicago, where he was pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church for several years. His son, George Horace Lorimer, is editor of the Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia.—Chicago Tribune, August 17, 1899.

CO-OPERATION ON A BIG SCALE.

Toledo, O., Aug. 14.—The Brotherhood company, incorporated to-day at Columbus, has been organized for the purpose of placing in operation the greatest coöperative scheme ever attempted in the country. Among those mentioned in the list of incorporators are Mayor Jones, of this city, and J. A. Johnson, a millionaire of the State of Washington.

The Brotherhood proposes to distribute stock over the country in small amounts, the investors being fully protected by coöperative life insurance. The plan includes a great amount of educational work, but in connection with the actual operation of the coöperative plan is the building of cities and placing coöperative farming communities. In every place where the sentiment has developed the projectors propose building one of these colonies.

The first of these colonies will be established on the shores of Lake Erie, near this city, and it is understood that more than half the money required has been pledged by people of Toledo.

Along the lines of education there are many plans for coöperative schools which the projectors have not fully wrought out. The organization as now formed has liberal financial backing.

Mayor Jones to-night stated that while the Brotherhood was not as wide as his idea of coöperation, it would serve to assist in working up the sentiment.—Chicago Tribune, August 15, 1899.

BELIEVE IN CO-OPERATION.

Coöperation was the subject of the discussion yesterday at the Lake Bluff sociological convocation. Dr. Evans opened the program with an exposition of coöperation. He pointed out the excellent results where coöperation obtains and referred to the English coöperative plans, which, he says, have thrived. Even in certain parts of America, the speaker said, coöperation exists and works well. In Rockford, Illinois, it was said there is a colony of woodworkers under the coöperative policy; also in factories in Wisconsin and Indiana.

"It is only a question of time," said Dr. Evans, "when this system will be universal."

The discussion favored without dissent the system of coöperation.—Chicago Tribune, August 22, 1899.

One fact is overlooked by the opponents of coöperation; viz., the number of failures—private and public—under the present competitive system, not to mention the many and universal evils it entails. The failures of coöperative movements are held up to ridicule, but the misery of the present Ishmaelitish system of every man for himself, where every man's hand is for himself and to some extent against his neighbor, is not emphasized.

We are not advocating any present system of coöperation now in probationary development in the world; nor are we advocating any hasty, untimely movement upon the part of our own people. We are simply calling attention to the passing interest in and efforts to secure better conditions under fraternal coöperative principles. The failure of the Ruskin Colony and of other communistic movements does not prove that coöperative principles are untrue and incapable of being realized; no more than the apostasies in past dispensations prove that the faith of the saints is untrue and its ultimate impossible of realization. We thank God for the success of the people in Enoch's day, and humbly trust that God's people will learn, in due time, to be so faithful to present duties that they may be prepared to enter upon the successive stages of development and progress in which the Lord shall see fit to direct, and in which the inspiration of the Lord must guide and be regarded as the controlling force, if we ever emerge from the wilderness into the promised condition of rest and peace. But, we can scarcely hope for progress if we do not consider and prepare to be prepared. We should look forward and upward, and live and study and work for better things. We may then be assured that the Lord will direct and overrule; but it is useless to expect success if we are either disinterested on the one hand, or hasty or fanatical on the other.

Any man with ordinary judgment, whether religious or not, ought to be able to see that society is not based upon permanent foundations; that the present methods of our social and economic system are no more true than were those of Egypt, Babylon, Greece, or Rome, except that some progress has been made. He must also discern that the peculiar and rapid diffusion of intelligence peculiar to our own times must ultimate in a general insistent demand upon the part of the people for better things, for a generous consideration of the wants of all concerned. The people are feeling and thinking and acting as never before in the history of the world. It is no longer possible to keep them in ignorance of facts or conditions; and it is comforting to reflect that God himself has moved in the field of invention, discovery, and education to the information and uplifting of the people—not of the few, but the many, the masses of what tyrannical priests and kings have heretofore, and many of whom would or do yet, designate as “the common herd.”

This is significant; it means something; it means much to the world in general. We are in a period of social, economic, and political transition, preparing for better things where right prevails and men are consistent enough to be just and unselfish; but also prepared to see sore trouble wherever the spirit of tyranny and selfishness bears rule and clings to exercise of power.

The prevailing spirit of investigation and progress throughout the world is indicative of the overrulings of Him who is guiding and controlling in the earth beneath. In the midst of all the conflicts of the past and present his hand is discernible and the race is being prepared for better conditions. Its errors and miseries reveal the impotency of the human mind to supply the remedy, and must lead the thoughtful to look with an eye of faith to higher wisdom and purer nature, to coöperation of humanity with divinity.

That the Lord is to found Zion in fact and to demonstrate through her system of government the true economy of life, we verily believe; and that the poor of his people (the pure in heart everywhere) will safely “trust in it,” according to the prediction of the ancient prophet, we are assured; that out of Zion “the perfection of beauty”—the operation of a beneficent happyfying system—God shall “shine,” in justice and judgment, to plead for the oppressed of every land. We have but to be very prayerful and very faithful as God has commanded; to seek for the inspiration, the direction of his Spirit in all our movements; to be sure that his counsel is sought and regarded when given, in all the various departments and phases of our work, to insure success.

Every faithful elder knows, and every saint ought to know, that God must be in our work, in all we do therein, personal or general, if we are to succeed. The work of the kingdom of God is peculiar and distinct in this that it cannot be carried on successfully unless the light and influences of the Spirit are sought for and obtained and regarded in all we do in the cause. Eloquent sermons may be preached and well prepared arguments made, and yet be but “the letter” which killeth, and which, lacking the Spirit, does more harm than good. Men and women—officials and laity—in the kingdom of God, all of us, must learn to know the truth, to seek for it and be guided by it—to know its voice and to heed it carefully and closely, by bringing forth fruit in harmony with the commandments given to be faithfully kept, to be closely adhered to under all circumstances in life, and in all faithfulness.

What do we learn from Israel in the wilderness and in the promised land, and from the Jaredites and Nephites? Briefly this: Israel was continually either sighing for the food and perverted life of Egypt, or the glare and glitter of the Babylonish gold or garment, and murmuring and disobedient to the word spoken. From Moses and Aaron whom we duly honor, but who manifested some weaknesses, (due respect to their memories) down through the ranks with scarcely an exception, the influences of former surroundings and life were seen and felt, and by which they were slow to hearken to the counsel of God, but swift to follow their carnal inclinations and selfish desires, until finally, after years of degrees of progress and retrogression, in which they received good in the former and suffered depths of miseries in the latter, including almost every form of wickedness and slavery—they became extinct as a national organization, and a synonym of disgrace and reproach. God designed and provided for their moral, their material, their social, and spiritual good. Called to be a happy and a free people, blessed with blessings of heaven above and earth beneath, they despised the riches of God's goodness, and failed and fell, and their children inherited centuries of cruel persecution and serfdom, in which the Gentile found a means of developing his baser nature and a cause for reproach of Jewish civil and religious ideals; whereas the God of Abraham, and through Abraham's seed the God of the race, designed the very opposite in his call to the Jew to become the head of the nations, a light and a salt of the earth, the missionary nation through whom it was designed to teach the peoples of Egypt, Assyria, Babylon, Persia, Greece, Rome—the world entire—the morals and social and material economy that can only be developed by hearkening to the voice of the Spirit of truth.

Israel failed, and her lamp went out, or was circumscribed in its illuminating power because of her disobedience; gentile customs, and morals, and civilization, and gentile systems of faith—idols of human invention or devilish design—prevailed instead, because unrebuked by an illustration of the power of the true order. Enoch and Melchisedec prevailed against surrounding, highly-developed wickedness; but Israel went down before it. Her kings and her people gave way to heathen ideals, whereas had Israel been faithful none could have prevailed, and her light would have extended abroad and beyond to all the world.

The history of the American aborigines, God's people of the western world, is much the same: sometimes a faithful ruler and a careless people; sometimes a wicked king and a distressed people; ending finally in pride, dissension, selfishness, misery, and barbarism.

The present era opened with the revival of learning, the discovery of a new continent; civil and religious liberty gave opportunity for invention and progress, and, greater than all—or rather in connection with all other means for good, which it includes—came the restoration of the gospel. Humanity never had a freer, a larger, a better opportunity; human agency never looked out upon a clearer field of endeavor. The conflict still goes on apace—between light and darkness, freedom and bondage, truth and error, right and wrong, slavery and serfdom. While it assumes new forms, apparently so, it is the same old contention, the same contest that has been waged from the beginning. Selfishness, oppression, desire to rule, to dominate, to oppress, to gain the ascendancy, in church, in state, and in economic life, without regard to the welfare and equal rights of others, is the animating spirit of the one; and all that is opposite thereto, of the other.

We should recognize the principles of error wherever exhibited, in whatever guise, in whatever conditions or personalities, and rebut, repel, and war against them with truth; but not with carnal weapons of those who champion such principles. The nations, including ourselves, will pass under the rod until men and women learn to know the right and to array themselves on the side of truth and justice, in all the phases of life at home and abroad, in matters of religion, social, economic, and political life. This we should do in the spirit of the gospel, which teaches us to be wise servants—discerning and discriminating men and women, and thereby able to detect deception and error of every kind, willful or other evils—yet to be “harmless as doves,” not rendering evil for evil, but resisting it by truth, by firm adherence to principle, by skill in detecting and correcting it, by fearless action against it.

The spirit of the gospel teaches this in essence: We quote the word of that divine and chief servant of the race, the exponent of the Father of the world himself, the Christ: “Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.” (Matt. 22:37-40.)

This word the Christ wrought out in spirit. Loving God, he freely and fully yielded obedience to his will and consecrated his entire energies to his service. Loving God he loved truth and loved the people, whose welfare he ever sought, rebuking the arrogant, the ambitious, and the proud, and exalting those of low degree; thus applying love of God to love for man. He took cognizance of and denounced the wrongs fastened upon the people and the political, social, and religious oppressors of his times. His life was, in brief, a life of prayer and communion with the Father for grace and strength, and of sympathy with and teaching of and doing good among the masses of the people.

He is the type for minister and layman to-day. His spirit and life are ours to obtain and imitate, to apply in the spheres of our individual life to the glory of God, the salvation of ourselves and the race, in all things pertaining to life here and hereafter; here and now and there and then.

A TALE AND A MORAL.

Bro. C. L. Snow, of Tennessee, who has been laboring in the States of Kentucky and Tennessee, writes to Bro. J. C. Clapp concerning experiences with mobs in Kentucky of late. Bro. Snow found determined opposition in the form of an organized mob with a lawless leader, which determined to stop his work. He finally concluded to talk the situation over with them frankly and kindly, and so gained their good will that they concluded to give him a hearing. It seems they were opposed to “Mormonism” as represented from Utah, with polygamy. He finally convinced them of the attitude of the Reorganized Church on morals, and hopes in due time to disabuse their minds of prejudice, though he considers that danger still lies before the missionaries in that region. He cheerfully accepts the situation, however, and sensibly concludes that the condition must be met, courageously and wisely, and the people enlightened fully concerning the faith of the Reorganized Church, in contrast to the errors of Brighamism and sectarianism.

One thing Bro. Snow speaks of, the need of tract literature to distribute. He gave the mob all he had to spare, tracts he had purchased with his own funds. His address is Pilot Oak, Kentucky, should anyone desire to do a good work by sending him a suitable collection of published matter.

Bro. Snow commends the labors of Bro. J. C. Clapp in the South, stating what is a pleasure to repeat, and with no desire to flatter or praise anyone; that the influence of his work was for good wherever he labored. This is as it should be; and in so saying we wish to be understood as stating that we have no favorites to name or praise, that we do not believe in the policy of praising men, and think Bro. Clapp only did what was his duty to do, and what every minister should also do; viz., honor the work by a godly example. We have no use for praise or exaltation or advertisement of any man. Let all stand upon their merits and their merits alone, without respect to name, station, age, race, or color. Our work is a work of divinity in which there is no room for the human policy of human praise, human ambition, human method, etc., under which the human spirit inspires men to honor themselves and exalt themselves or others to fame and station. It is ours to substitute the divine nature for the human, and if we are safe builders and have the sincere welfare of the work at heart, we will reject all mere human motives, policies, and designs that would lead in any degree to self-exaltation, the praise of men, the chief seats in the synagogue or high places in the kingdom.

Jesus Christ sought not his own glory, but the glory of Him who sent him. Not the human, but the divine, is what we should exalt in our work. All humanity is weak and have ever been so. Only so far as God is manifest in the flesh is any man in any degree Christlike.

The kingdom of God is no place for personal vanity, love of place or power, ambition for self, friends, favorites, relatives, or others. Merit, based upon sincere humility and devotion to truth, will pass the divine inspection and prove a basis for effectiveness through God in us, and merit only—God in us.

Bro. Clapp will pardon us if we have felt led through this item to “point a moral,” if we have not “adorned a tale.”

SOUTHWESTERN IOWA REUNION.

When we arrived on the ground a little after noon on Saturday, the 19th inst., the large tabernacle was already up in an open space in the beautiful grove belonging to Bro. Daniel Hougas, near the northeast corner of Mills County. Several tents were already on the ground, and a cheerful people were busy preparing their temporary homes. At 2:30 p. m. the assembly was called together by Elder D. Hougas, president of Fremont district; an organization was effected by choosing Elders Heman C. Smith, Henry Kemp, and D. Hougas to preside; Bro. Charles Fry secretary; Brn. T. A. Hougas and Charles Fry choristers; Bro. Samuel Orton chief of police, with Brn. J. Graybill, G. Needham, A. Smith, A. Badham, A. Anderson, J. Kemp, and George Skank his assistants. To this force has since been added Brn. E. H. Needham, A. J. Davidson, Frank Goode, R. E. Stone, P. W. Frederickson, and A. McClenahan.

So far the reunion has progressed finely. The weather has been almost perfect. The health excellent, but one person having called for the administration up to this writing, Wednesday, 23d. Four were baptized yesterday: Sisters Mary M. Thomas, Gertrude Smith, and Alta Z. Elswick, by Bro. Henry Kemp, and Bro. Ralph E. Stone to-day by Bro. I. M. Smith. The attendance has not been large, but is daily increasing. Besides quite a force of local workers, the following brethren of the general missionary force are present: Heman C. Smith of the Twelve, Henry Kemp, I. M. Smith, and F. A. Smith of the Seventy. The preaching has generally been good, and a spirit of peace and enjoyment prevails in the camp.

LOSSES IN MAILS.

Bro. Frank Criley requests us to state to patrons of the Herald Office that money should not be remitted without being registered. Complaints made to the Herald Office of money simply inclosed in envelopes being lost, show that several hundreds of dollars have been lost by letters being opened and robbed in transit.

This matter has been reported to the Chief Inspector of Post Offices and cars at Washington, who is investigating it.

From the fact that complaints come from parties whose mail comes by certain routes, while like remittances come from others not coming over said routes, the Business Manager thinks some postal employee has been "spotting" Herald Office mail.

Remittances should, in all cases, be made by draft, money order, express order, or registered letter. Parties sending money otherwise do so at their own risk.

Remitters are also cautioned to write the office address plainly, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. Some mail, carelessly addressed, goes to Lamont, some to Decatur City, Iowa, etc. Please take notice. 35-4t

WORLD ITEMS.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—The government to-day added another defeat to its already long list. The Landtag disapproved the Dortmund Rhine Canal bill, rejecting it on second reading by a vote of 212 to 209, and defeating the Central or Midland Canal bill by 228 to 126. These measures are specially favored by the Emperor. It is thought the Diet will be dissolved. The struggle before the country between the Conservatives and the government will amount to little less than revolution.

The newspapers of Berlin recognize the fact that the rejection by the Diet of the canal bill marks an epoch in the political history of the country, and point out that the Conservatives, for the first time since the formation of the empire, have openly defied a mandate of their sovereign.

One of the results of the present political situation is that the Socialists are applauding the firmness of the agrarian junkers in upholding the principles of constitutional right.

The President of Brazil, in a late address, made reference to "a South American Union without prejudice to other nations."

Ponce, Island of Porto Rico, Aug. 21.—It is now estimated that the bodies of 2,500 victims of the recent hurricane have been buried, that 10,000 persons were injured during the storm, and that 2,000 people are still missing.

Opportunities for investors are presented in the lack of money for repairing damages, replanting, and replenishing stocks.

Ponce is healthy, though bodies continue to be found in the fields.

The authorities have decided to burn the ruins of Yabuco.

St. Petersburg.—Reports from Southwest Russia say that the recent drought in that portion of the country has caused the utter loss of the winter and spring wheat crops.

A St. Petersburg telegram to the Frankfort Zeitung states that the Siberian pest has broken out in the Province of Samara, in Southeastern Russia, and that the district has been quarantined by several regiments of soldiers.

Madrid, Aug. 20.—Three fresh cases of bubonic plague are reported from Oporto. They are said to be of a mild character. The Spanish Consul there will be prosecuted for failing to notify the Spanish government of the outbreak. It is estimated that already the commerce of Oporto has suffered a loss of $500,000.

Lisbon, Aug. 20.—The Sanitary board has resolved to isolate Oporto, where the bubonic plague has broken out, with a sanitary cordon.

Paris, Aug. 20.—An official decree authorizes the Pasteur Institute here to prepare a quantity of anti-plague serum.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Prof. Richard A. Harkness, Ph. D., a prominent educator in the State of Iowa, and formerly of Highland Park College, Des Moines, and Parsons College, Fairfield, has been employed as Senior Professor of Graceland for the fall term. This action is a result of the final conclusion of Bro. E. R. Dewsnup, who has decided to remain in England, hence will not be connected with the college work. Professor Harkness is well known among educators in the State, and his coming to Graceland will be to the decided advantage of every student enrolled.

The Board of Directors expect to make some permanent arrangement for a head to the college faculty between the opening and closing of the new year. Students who expect to enter upon college work with the opening year should remember the date—Tuesday, September 12; preliminary examinations on Monday, the 11th. The faculty will be prepared to receive students and to assist them in obtaining good homes among the people of Lamoni.

The Providence, Rhode Island, Journal, of August 21, contained a full column article descriptive of services held in connection with the dedication of the saints' chapel there. It gives an excellent summary of the dedicatory sermon preached by Pres. Joseph Smith. Received too late for present HERALD. We may be able to insert it next week.

Dr. J. H. Hansen, of the college Directors, left Lamoni on the 23d inst., for Henderson and Runnells reunions in Iowa—reunions of the Fremont and Des Moines districts. He will also visit Council Bluffs and other points in the interests of Graceland College.

Under the caption, "Some Mormon History," Bro. R. M. Elvin wrote a column and a half article in the Macon, Missouri, Times, August 18, in which he pointed out the barbarous treatment of the early saints in Missouri, including an account of affairs in and about Far West, and their extermination from the State. He also defends the faith and the Martyr against the charge of polygamy. The truth is being brought to light. Let the good work go on; in due time the faith of the church will be vindicated and the responsibility for the introduction of polygamy be placed where it belongs.

Bishop Kelley returned from the East on Saturday, the 26th, and left for the Independence reunion and western points on Tuesday, the 29th.

Reports continue to the effect that large numbers of Utah missionaries are being put in the field in various States. This but widens our field of labor, and if we are stirred to extra activity thereby, all well and good. Calls come to us from many new places, near and remote, where Utah elders are laboring, asking for tracts setting forth the faith of the Reorganized Church.

Original Articles.

CRUCIAL DEDUCTIONS.—NO. 2.

BY D. L. SHINN.

The article by E. Keeler in Herald of November 2, 1898, is worthy of more than a passing notice. That the "woman clothed with the sun" (Rev. 12: 1) means the church is admitted. It must be understood that all the terms used with reference to the "great wonder" of verse one are figurative; viz., woman, sun, moon, feet, head, crown, and stars. Let us write out the true exposition.

1. The church clothed with the light of the gospel.

Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid.—Matt. 5: 14.

2. "The moon under her feet." The world overcome by the saints, is represented by the moon. This, Bro. Keeler says, is the Mosaic law, etc. Why should the law be under the feet of the woman? There is not the slightest ground for this interpretation anywhere.

3. "Upon her head a crown of twelve stars"—the twelve apostles of the Lamb. John (Rev. 1: 20) in explaining "the mystery of the seven stars," says: "The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches." The Greek angelos translated is messenger. A priest is "the messenger of the Lord." (Mal. 2: 7.) Each of the seven churches had a messenger. This was an officer, not a president, but one who carried messages to or from the church. They were prophets. (Acts 15: 25, 27, 32.) John sent the revelations "to the angels" of the churches, and, presumably, by these the churches all received the letters of John. These were read and taught them by the messengers as in Acts 15: 30-32. If we find that men in the churches because of their peculiar positions in the service of the Lord were called "stars," it is not unreasonable or unscriptural to conclude that, judging also from the number twelve, the apostles were referred to, and symbolized by, the crown of twelve stars in the passage under consideration.

Now let us read the interpretation: There appeared a great wonder in the typical heavens; a church clothed with light and truth, completely eclipsing the light of the world, and overcoming the powers of the same, having her head, as it were, to be Jesus the Christ and his twelve witnesses.

This was at one time a very little flock. Comparing them to sheep, the Lord addressed them under this figure thus:—

Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.—Luke 12: 32.

It pleased the Father to give it them on the day of Pentecost, then and there endowing the little flock of saints with power as messengers, ambassadors, subjects, and rulers, truly giving them the kingdom of God. The light, power, love, and justice, mercy, and truth of heaven invested therein. And truly did Paul say:—

In whom ye also are builded together for a habitation of God through the Spirit.—Eph. 2:22.

Again, the church is the temple of God. (1 Cor. 3:16.) Entering into the church is also entering into the kingdom. The church, however, is not the kingdom but the ecclesia which receives the basileian. It was an ecclesia, "little flock," called out of the world before it was given the kingdom—basileian. From this we draw the conclusion that the kingdom was given when the Spirit was given; that they were builded together for a habitation of the Spirit and the kingdom. The organization and government of the ecclesia (church) was the kingdom of God. Everyone who entered into the church became a subject of that kingdom. And the "pain" and labor of the woman was to "bring forth" (establish) the kingdom on earth. And it must be admitted that wherever the church prevailed, the kingdom was established and the subjects were governed by the word and Spirit of God.

Pagan Rome "stood before" the church to oppose and destroy that establishment, therefore it must be apparent to all that the kingdom given on the memorable day of endowment was the same "brought forth" by the woman and "caught up unto God, and to his throne." Hence the church was left destitute of her organization and power.

This man child was to "rule all nations with a rod of iron," which the saints taught and expected then. Many were led astray with this idea which the apostle corrects (2 Thess. 2:1-12) in A. D. 54.

The distance (in religion) between Rome and the church, was as great as the distance from earth to heaven. But after this period, the church began her long journey to the city of Babylon, and ere long she is so changed that she commits fornication with the "kings of the earth;" forsakes or loses her crown of twelve stars, and assuming the royal robes of a queen, sits "upon a scarlet colored beast" (in the wilderness), holding out "a golden cup," symbolizing the book containing her false teaching. This church was called "the temple of God." Not a temple made with hands, Bro. Keeler, such as "St. Peter's, at Rome," but that "builded together for a habitation of God through the Spirit" (Eph. 2:22); and I mean to say that God, the Holy Ghost, did sit in this temple,—the Church of Jesus Christ,—the "body of Christ," figuratively speaking, having members and Spirit, mind and life, so to speak. The mind and power and life of this body was the Holy Ghost. But when this left it, then ("he who now letteth [hindereth] will let, until he be taken out of the way") the man child of sin took possession of the church,— "the temple of God;" where once the Holy Ghost—the kingdom of God—sat and reigned supreme, the man-spirit, life, and power was exalted to the holy seat (holy see) of the divine Spirit, and called "God the Holy Spirit"!! and the Holy Ghost is thus being blasphemed unto this day. For that wonderworking enthusiasm in the systems of Roman sectarianism is not the spirit of the apostolic church. It is not the kingdom of God, but that of men; not a heavenly, but an earthly institution. As Rome invaded the sacred precincts of the literal temple and raised the standard of the abomination that maketh desolate, so she took possession of the spiritual habitation, and erected there the standard of Romanism. The holy habitation of God "through the Spirit" became the habitation of the god of this world. And that vast corporation that was finally consummated in Rome between pseudo Christian bishops and pagan pontiffs was called in prophecy, "the Beast," which all men were commanded to worship. "And the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority." (Rev. 13:1, 2.)

"Man of sin," Bro. Keeler says, could not have meant the Roman pontiff, because he is called "the son of perdition," and the man who fills this prophecy must have at one time received the Holy Ghost, etc., therefore B. Young must be drawn upon to fill the bill. This defers the whole affair to the days of Nauvoo and thence to Utah Mormonism. Brigham Young "the son of perdition!" etc. All this is merely assumed without scriptural foundation. The man of sin is not a real man. It must be a spirit, sitting "as God" (the Holy Spirit) in the seat of God—the body of Christ—the mystical body. It was God who occupied the temple at Antioch when Barnabas and Saul were separated "to the work" to which they were called. While these prophets and teachers "ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said," etc., etc. Peter was never known to occupy that "chair." But it is only assumed that he did, and the Pope sits, ostensibly in the chair of Peter, but really personates the great spirit of the age who "gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority."

"The remnant of her seed" our author assumes to be "the reformers" who fled to this land in the seventeenth century, about fourteen centuries after the events under consideration! The Baptist theory is therefore vindicated by Bro. Keeler, and the gospel with the authority, etc., has been brought down from the apostolic church. If this be true, our claims to a complete apostasy and restoration are refuted.

THE TWO COVENANTS.—NO. I.

THE BIBLE IS THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE NEW TESTAMENT; OR, THE OLD AND THE NEW COVENANTS.

BY ELDER JOSEPH F. BURTON.

It would be unprofitable to enter into a lengthy disquisition upon covenants in general, or of the many which God has made with individuals, or with individuals for peoples; or of the various methods he used in making covenants with men; or of the many covenants which men have framed, and then sought God's acknowledgement of. But we wish to treat upon the two covenants, commonly called the covenant of Sinai, and the gospel covenant.

In attempting an exposition of this subject, it may be thought proper to begin at the beginning, but, like some other things contained in the Bible, there is very little written concerning the beginning, and it is only in the development of the purposes of God that the Bible narrative of these two covenants broadens out. Nevertheless, we may call attention to the fact that there are two powers among men, one tending to good, represented by Jesus, and the other tending to evil, represented by Satan. They were formerly in heaven. Jesus said, "I came down from heaven."—John 6:38. He also said, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven."—Luke 10:18.

Jesus, who is the life and power of the new covenant, was foreordained before the foundation of the world; and whatever virtue dwelt in the covenants of offerings and sacrifices, was derived from the fact that Jesus was the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

Therefore under the old covenant, and also under the new covenant, "there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved," consequently

JESUS IS THE ONLY REDEEMER.

Not in the name of prophet, priest, or king—not in the name of Jehovah alone—can man be saved, but in the name of Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God, must all men be redeemed who are redeemed, for Jehovah has thus ordained it.

In the realms above, where Christ was foreordained to be the Savior of the world, there must have been granted to him sufficient power and authority to do that work; and when commissioned from that royal court to create a world, he was to become as God to that world,—their Savior,—whose duty it would be, in saving men, to give them a knowledge of the Father and the Son; therefore Jesus said,

I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world, [and,] This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.—John 17: 6, 3.

This world and all its inhabitants were placed under his authority and dominion; he was to have charge of it; all power was his to do this work. But he could only save upon the terms given to him of the Father, which terms are all included in the gospel of the Son of God. And he who obeys the gospel has both the Father and the Son.

All things are delivered unto me of my Father.—Matt. 11: 27.

My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.—John 7: 16.

Thus we learn that God is the author of eternal life through Christ, and he gave to Christ the gospel of salvation; and all power and authority in heaven and on earth that should be needed to perform the work of redemption was bestowed upon Jesus the Savior of man.

The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand.—John 3: 35.

THOU SHALT NOT EAT.

Before considering, directly, the two covenants before-mentioned, it may be advisable to consider two other covenants, the one being the cause, and the other, the foundation of those covenants; the first being this:—

And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die.—Gen. 2: 16, 17.

This command, "Thou shalt not eat," contained a warning to Adam, to keep him from dying. In it was no promise of additional blessing, but if he obeyed, he would not lose that which he already possessed. And we may notice the fact that this principle is of necessity a part of every law the title of which is, "Thou shalt not." In the nature of things, such laws cannot add to, but may preserve that which a person may be in possession of; but he who would develop, he who would grow, must obey a different law.

But Adam did not keep that law given to him, therefore death, sin, and sorrow came into the world. In eating of the forbidden fruit he had acquired the right or power to KNOW GOOD AND EVIL.

From the statements in Genesis 3: 22 we learn that man was in a condition "to know good and evil," which may convey the thought that man was then in a condition to know all good, even unto life eternal, or all evil unto perdition. If he desired to avoid learning evil, he must abide the laws, "Thou shalt not," which cannot assist him to know good, excepting that by abiding those laws, man is in a condition to abide those laws whose title is, "Thou shalt," which will assist him to know all good. The one keeps man from going downward, the other leads man upward.

The principle underlying the Sinaitic covenant was, "Thou shalt not," in the keeping of which men may retain possession of that which is already theirs; while those underlying the gospel are, "Thou shalt," in the keeping of which life eternal is obtained. And the guard which was placed by Jehovah to keep the way of the tree of life stands sentinel still, and no Adam can ever pass that flaming sword until he has followed the counsel of the Almighty in his edicts, "Thou shalt." He who does this is eating of the knowledge of good, and will grow in knowledge of good until he knows God and Christ. Such a one is saved, for this is life eternal, to know thee the Supreme Good.

THE SEED OF THE WOMAN PROMISED.

This second covenant of promise is recorded in Genesis 3: 15:—

And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

Thus was an eternal conflict begun, a warfare declared, and upon either side there can be no truce, no compromise. Man cannot serve the seed of the woman and the serpent both at once; and the gist of all laws in the Bible whose titles are "Thou shalt not," is in the thought, Thou shalt not serve the serpent; and the others whose titles are, "Thou shalt," is in the thought, Thou shalt serve the seed of the woman.

We are informed in Revelation 12: 9 that the serpent is the representative of Satan, the Devil.

In all the wide world there has been but one who was the seed of the woman; that is, Jesus of Nazareth.

The first Adam was not of woman. The second Adam was not of man. The virgin Mary was the blessed mother of the Redeemer who was conceived of the Holy Ghost, and thus Jesus was the seed of the woman, who should

BRUISE THE SERPENT'S HEAD.

When Jehovah, speaking to the serpent, said of the seed of the woman, "He shall bruise thy head," in contrast with, "Thou shalt bruise his heel," he not only foretold the conflict of the ages, but also of the superiority of the seed of the woman, and of the final conquering; and of the seed of the woman being wounded in the heel—for our transgressions—on Calvary, and of his bruising the serpent's head, when he took from him the keys of death and hell, and also when he shall bind him, and cast him into the lake of fire, where he shall remain forever and ever.

And all the covenants which God has made with man from thence on, are but the unfolding of the infinite purposes of God, as revealed and contained in these two covenants; the one before and the other after the great transgression in Eden.

THE ABRAHAMIC COVENANT.

About 2,250 years before Christ was born in Bethlehem of Judea, the land of Canaan was given to Abraham and his seed by covenant of the Almighty as follows:—

Now the Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee.—Gen. 12: 1.

Verse five says:—

And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and the souls that they had gotten in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

In verse three this statement is made:—

In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.

And in chapter 15: 18 we read:—

Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates.

After these things the word of the Lord came unto Abram in a vision, saying, Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward. And Abram said, Lord God, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless, and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus? And Abram said, Behold, to me thou hast given no seed: and, lo, one born in my house is mine heir. And, behold, the word of the Lord came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir; but he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir.—Gen. 15: 1-4.

Thus was the land of Canaan bestowed upon Abram and his seed, and the more wonderful covenant of promise made with him that,

IN THEE AND IN THY SEED SHALL ALL NATIONS BE BLESSED.

The Lord had said before this that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head, and thus all the children of Adam be blessed by reason of the work which should be done by him; and now God tells Abram that in the line of his descendants shall come the "seed of the woman" who shall bless all nations. But Abram had said, I have no children, and the children of this Eliezer will be my heir, and he is not of my kindred nor country, but is of Damascus; and the Lord had answered him, "He that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir."

As time passed on and no children were born to them their faith began to wane in the promise of God; and, finally Sarai, having lost all expectation of giving a son to Abram, gave her handmaid to him, as a concubine, that they might thus raise up seed to themselves. Abram listened to his wife, and Hagar became the mother of Ishmael; Abram being eighty-six years old when this child was born to him.

The Lord, who never changes his laws, not even to gratify those whom he calls his friends, had commanded man to cleave unto his wife, and the violation of God's laws always brings sorrow, as it did in this instance. Abram violated God's marriage law, and brought such domestic infelicity into his house that Sarai, with his consent, so ill used Hagar, that she drove her away. And Sarai said to Abram, "My wrong be upon thee," thus recognizing the fact that she had done wrong, and repenting of it, placed it upon him.

Thirteen years after Ishmael was born, Abram being ninety-nine years old, the Lord appeared to him again, and renewing the former promise, changed his name from Abram, the father of elevations, to Abraham, the father of a great multitude, and his wife's name from Sarai, my princess, to Sarah, princess of the multitude.

And God said, Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed; and thou shalt call his name Isaac.—See Gen. 17: 1-19.

And Abraham was a hundred years old, when his son Isaac was born unto him.—Gen. 21: 5.

We also read in this twenty-first chapter of Genesis, that on the day Isaac was weaned, Abraham made a great feast, and Sarah saw Ishmael mocking, Wherefore she said unto Abraham, Cast out this bondwoman and her son: for the son of this bondwoman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac.—V. 10.

Abraham was much grieved at this, but Sarah had repented of her wrong, and now demanded that he should repent also and put away that bondwoman, rightly judging that as she had given Hagar to him, she had the right to require him to put her away; for when God speaks in this matter, he justifies Sarah, and said unto Abraham, "In all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice." And thus was the bondwoman and her son cast out; and when Paul refers to this transaction, he says that the law, or covenant from Sinai, which was four hundred years after this, was fitly represented by this bondwoman and her son, and should be cast out, and should not be heir with Isaac; that is, the law of Sinai should not be any part of the gospel law, but should be put away, and that covenant from Sinai with all its laws or ordinances, and ceremonies, was intended to be in the line of fulfillment of the first part of the covenant made with Abraham. Thy seed shall inherit the land of Canaan; and was not in fulfillment of the other and greater part of that covenant, "In thee and in thy seed shall all nations be blessed," except as it was incidental to it, and thus we read so often in the law, passages like this:—

Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this day, that ye may be strong, and go in and possess the land, whither ye go to possess it; and that ye may prolong your days in the land, which the Lord sware unto your fathers to give unto them and to their seed, a land that floweth with milk and honey.—Deut. 11: 8, 9.

In the twenty-second chapter of Genesis we have the wonderful story of Abraham attempting to offer up his son Isaac as a sacrifice. After this trial of his faith he received the following blessing:—

By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son, that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies. And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed.—Verses 16-18.

It may be noted that in this blessing God calls Isaac his only son, the only son of Abraham, and Christ comes through his lineage, and represents the covenant of the Jerusalem from above, while Ishmael is not here recognized as a son, is cast out, and is represented by the law of Sinai. And it is surpassingly strange how anyone believing in the Bible, and in Abraham and his seed, which is Christ, could for one moment suppose, that all nations are to be blessed through Ishmael, or through the covenant which he represents, the covenant from Sinai.

The first statement concerning the seed of the woman is, "He shall bruise thy head," the second statement is, "He shall possess the gate of his enemies," and the third one is, "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Thus two thousand years after Jehovah covenanted that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head, and two thousand years before he came to earth, this man Abraham offered his son—his only son—as a sacrifice upon the altar,—a type,—a reminder of the Savior promised from the beginning, who indeed should be wounded for our transgressions, but who in bruising the serpent's head, should give life to all men again, and life in bliss to all those who become heirs with the seed of Abraham; not by the child Ishmael, or the law of Sinai, but by Isaac, or the gospel of Jesus, the seed of Abraham. Therefore "in thy seed" means in Christ, in the gospel, in obedience to commands "thou shalt." In that lineage shall all nations be blessed, because in that line all men may become heirs with Isaac, with Abraham, with Christ, with God, and not heirs with the bondwoman, not with Ishmael, not with the serpent, Neither, because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children: but, in Isaac shall thy seed be called.—Rom. 9: 7.

About eighty years after Abraham and Sarah were laid in the sepulcher in the cave of Machpelah, the Lord said unto Isaac, Unto thee, and unto thy seed, I will give all these countries, and I will perform the oath which I sware unto Abraham thy father; and I will make thy seed to multiply as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these countries; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed.—Gen. 26: 3, 4.

And of Jacob it is said,

I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed; . . . and in thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed.—Gen. 28: 13, 14.

In this brief presentation of history we have learned that from the first, God designed to bless all mankind through the seed of the woman, and that in the meridian of the day which dawned in Eden, when the promise was made, and which set on Calvary, when the promise was fulfilled, did the Lord locate the seed of the woman in Abraham.

Thus Abraham knew of Christ, and of his laws, therefore the gospel was preached unto Abraham, and he was redeemed by it, and therefore believed in both God the Eternal One and in Jesus Christ, for

He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.—2 John 9.

The covenant which God made with Abraham, that in his seed all nations shall be blessed, is the continuation of the covenant from Eden, the seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head. And there is none greater; all other covenants are minor ones, and but incidental to these.

THE SECOND.

To all the saints of the one family or household of faith, I extend the right hand of fellowship. What reason we have to rejoice, in this probationary dispensation, that God has condescended to give us through his latter-day prophet so much additional light, in the shape of old truths in new dress, or rather in modern English. Much of the obscurity of the King James Bible is owing to the expression of thought in a style of language which, like Shakespeare's writings, may have been clear to people who were contemporary with the writer, but to later generations, has come to be obsolete. Eight or ten generations of thinking, speaking, reading, and writing the language, has so greatly modified it, that the dialect of three hundred years ago, and that of to-day, are altogether different, and hence the need of an interpreter. Readers of Shakespeare know how true this is.

Thanks to God that readers of the inspired writings, given to us in this century, do not have to wrestle with these obscurities, for the king's English, by inspiration, has been modernized. Other peoples may need expensive commentaries to explain the text of the English, as spoken in 1611 A. D., and found in the Authorized Version of the Bible; but Latter Day Saints need no such helps, for revelations given to or through Joseph Smith, for they are given in the English of to-day.

This being the case, we have no excuse for ignorance of these writings, on the ground that they are hard to be understood. The fact of revelation from God in any age implies an obligation on the part of man to become familiar with its teachings, and know its bearing on their present and future welfare. If true of past revelation, it is more emphatically true of present revelation, by which I mean both that which has come to us in these last days through the latter-day seers, and also that which has come to individuals from time to time through the many channels of inspiration which God has at his command,—such as visions, dreams, and interpreted tongues; also prophecies locally pronounced in branch prayer meetings, or at confirmation services, or in administrations to the sick, or in patriarchal blessings, or by the voice of the Spirit directly to the inner consciousness. No matter through what channel it comes, if God speaks, let man hear, heed, and remember. Moreover, let him make and keep a sacred record of these specialties, to guide and admonish him in the coming days, for they will make an interesting chapter of life's history, which like a patriarchal blessing, may be helpful in old age, and a treasure to his children.

The age in which we live has a powerful influence to divert our attention from things sacred to things secular, so that we need to make use of all helps afforded us. They are many. Some are visible; others are not. The visible helps are many, and tangible; the invisible are more numerous, and mighty. If our eyes could be opened,—as God, in answer to Elisha's prayer opened the eyes of his servant,—we might see not only the "mountains" but the valleys "full of horses and chariots of fire," and so get a proof that "they that be with us are more than they that be with them." (2 Kings 6: 16.) Our helpers are "legion." Let them who have had the heavens opened to them in ecstatic vision rejoice, but also remember while we who have not been so favored will plod on obediently (but not blindly), having as much faith in inspiration as though we had had "the abundance of the revelations" which Paul had. (2 Cor. 12: 7.)

Forget not that his revelations cost him "a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure." Probationary experiences are so well balanced by the all-wise Father that we need not complain. God will give all we deserve. He withholds no good thing from them who walk uprightly.

We must remember that no amount of help from the Spirit, angels, church fellowship, revelation or gifts, will ever entirely do away with experiences suggested by such terms as cross-bearing, self-denial, temptation, sacrifice, crucifixion, and the like. These experiences are necessary to the average free agent, and will be varied to suit individual necessities. "What are they for?" Chiefly to bring man's will to a complete submission to the Divine will. The will is man's helm. In the fall it (the will) was handed over to Satan, and so ever since Satan has largely controlled it, and has been working in man to will and to do of his (Satan's) good pleasure. In other words, Satan has been at the helm. The purpose of God is to persuade man to voluntarily make over his will to his heavenly Father in an everlasting covenant, so that he (God) "may work in him to will and to do of his good pleasure." That is, God wants the helm.

If man will thus submit himself and give the full control of his life, in every particular, into the hands of his Creator, then the process of crucifixion by suffering will be greatly simplified, and the use of the chastising rod less frequent. Obedient children need less chastisement than the rebellious, as Bro. Smith said so forcibly in an editorial awhile ago.

Why should there be any dillydallying on this matter of complete submission to a Supreme Being? The Creator has certain rights over his creatures; one of these rights is full control of spirit and body in man. Not the kind of control which he has over inanimate matter, and which man has over machinery and brutes; but such as he has over unfallen angels and the spirits of just men made perfect—in a word, such a control as he had over Christ, whose testimony was, "I came," "not to do mine own will," and who prayed, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt."

"But, brother, you go too far." Wait till I get through. Such a submission is required of "saints" as will mean a combination of deliberate choice, unswerving faith, pure love, and adequate knowledge—a surrender on our part which is unconditional. There should be, must be no reservations, mental or physical, for God claims the whole man; nothing less will secure to him his rights; nothing short of this will insure to man his privileges. This surrender of will power is the secret of success in the divine life. It must be voluntary. To force the will is contrary to God's economy. It would rob him of his due, and us of merit.

Do you wonder that Satan has fought desperately to hold this power over man? He knows it is "the key to the situation." If he gets the will, he gets it all. If God controls the will, he thereby controls every other faculty and power. Shall we not therefore make over to God this kingly attribute in a quitclaim deed, with no mortgage restrictions in favor of Satan or self? Is it too precious to lay on God's altar? Do we love Satan or self more than God? Do you not see that previous to the surrender of the will to God, such traits as pride, selfishness, rebellion, and unbelief have the ascendancy in human lives, while outside stand humility, obedience, faith, and love waiting to come in and enrich us? Will you then, by refusing to consecrate your will to him, continue to rob him of his rights and yourself of his riches? Say No!!

S. F. CUSHMAN.

IS IT I?

Like the disciples of the Master in olden time when told one of them should betray him, they answered, "Lord, is it I?" so we, individually, when anything with which we have to do is hindered, or lags, or fails, should ask ourselves in like manner, "Lord, is it I?"

Believing it would be wise to organize and unite the scattered forces exhibited in the various societies of young people in the church, Zion's Religio-Literary Society came into existence. Its foundation was laid in righteous principles; namely, to study the word of God and become acquainted with his law revealed in the books of the church; also to cultivate a higher and better condition of sociability, intellectuality, morality, and spirituality among our young people.

Unwittingly there crept in a subtle and false spirit of evil, and almost led us into bondage; but, thanks to our Master, our prayers and fasting were heard and answered to that degree that we were enabled to retrace our wayward steps, cease our wandering, and follow more closely in lines of true growth and development.

This phase of opposition having been overcome, we moved along nicely, everything prospering. But we were not to go on unopposed; and, resorting to different tactics, a spirit of disloyalty was turned loose and sent on a mission amongst us. Quite a number were influenced by it and persuaded that some parts of our plan are faulty, more particularly our financial system. And as in the church some are opposed to tithing, so with us, some were opposed to assessments.

This opposition took active form, in a few instances resulting in open rebellion to the laws of the organization of which they were a part. And instead of standing loyal to the central government, awaiting the coming of the General Convention when opportunity would be had to revise the laws and correct faults in them, a sort of "states rights" doctrine was advocated, some resisting the collection of just assessment, and some threatening to "withdraw from the union."

To quiet this rebellion no force of arms was called into requisition, but an army of faithful ones, though small in numbers, clothed with the power of the Highest, are importuning the great Captain to so direct the campaign that this species of opposition may likewise be overcome.

It is not reasonable to expect our plans to be perfect. Even the church is imperfect as we see it to-day; but do we not expect it to go on to perfection? How would it affect our condition because we are not satisfied with some things in the church, to us imperfect, to withdraw therefrom? Will not the church go on to perfection in spite of us? Verily, yes. How will it affect our interests, because we are not satisfied with some things we see imperfect in the Religio, to withdraw? Will not the society go on improving? Truly, it will, if we are humble, prayerful, and faithful.

Shall we not then cleave to both the church and the Religio, sustaining them, and all other good works, rejoicing in the good we see, and bearing the imperfections with patience, for in thus patiently enduring we shall be perfected individually, until in the Lord's own due time perfection comes?

J. A. GUNSOLLEY, President.

"CULTIVATE THE GIFTS OF MUSIC AND OF SONG."

Music is one of the greatest gifts of God to man. That the majority of the human family realizes this, is apparent from the fact that one very seldom hears or knows of any individual who does not admire the gift when it is executed in harmony. When mention is made of the subject we find them not only admirers, but a desire of becoming or being performers with the past, present, or future; some having an excuse for negligence, others still the ambition to try, while some look forward to the crowning day when their anticipations will be realized to the neighbors at least. Thus we see its grandeur is apparent to the larger portion of the children of men by their appreciation.

Whether righteous in their makeup or otherwise, it seems no line is drawn between them in this particular, for the unthinking and evil-minded will become silent, sober, and earnest at times, when the influence of music overpowers them. Yet farther; for it does not only exert a power over and upon man, but many instances are upon record where the dumb creatures have shown appreciation and influence of music.

Hence we say that this gift has many advantages over various other civilizing influences and powers, and yet so abundantly given, methinks it is as the rain falling upon all classes, all kinds.

Has man used this treasure as its own nature indicates, which God intends as a leading educator to that which is so high and noble a perfection? As usual the old adage comes in place, "Consistency, thou art a jewel." We surely do not have too much of this "jewelry" in our natures; for much that could be infinite is finite in many instances with our dealings. Hence we can easily become aware of the influence of music and song to draw downward into degradation as used by man in the saloons, ballrooms, and many doors of infamy, as they swing back and forth, let the sweet strains of music, glad and happy to escape, as it seems, into purer air. Oft such harmony makes us wonder how it dare be used among the wicked and low.

God has said, as a command to his church, to "cultivate the gifts of music and of song." Especially to the young does this have reference. There must be a necessity for its work, religiously, or God would not have included this advice among latter-day instructions to his children.

As may be gleaned by careful thought upon this subject, music and song are in their nature calculated to lead higher, to infuse grander thoughts and principles in the minds of men, by its influence. Hence this is its only true position, and cannot profitably be placed otherwise. The praise service to our Creator is one of the most fitting; so to fill this necessity God has enjoined upon us the task (or pleasure) to cultivate these gifts. Could it be that some being thus reminded would form some excuse to avoid it, such as they need not try, as it seems impossible in their case, or time did not allow them to? If so, some seed has fallen upon stony ground.

The word is "cultivate," and as there are generally some germs implanted within all, they must necessarily diminish and waste away without this work of cultivation. So we can see a need for the "young men and maidens" accepting this advice. Cultivation means hard, continuous, and possibly slow work, to arouse the germs of music and song, to feed them by study until they become an honor and a glory to the name of God the giver.

Continued discouragement is nothing more than failure, as it drowns out all ambition. There is nothing beneficial in an accomplishment, but success has a preface of hard, faithful study and work. All that is life is caused by activity in every law and organization, and to become successful one must have active impulses that will not be overthrown by any difficulty, because this is the life and power of growth. If such great gifts as music and song were easy to make successful, why, everyone would be as accomplished as another, without an effort, and no merited reward would be secured, which is contrary to all the divine instructions and laws that we are privileged to labor under. Then our first impulse is not to be followed unless we have a sincere determination to conquer, and the many difficulties which arise to thwart our purpose are more readily overcome, and perhaps one help would be to learn the saying of one leader among fellowmen who said, "Difficulties were only made to overcome," so that soon we would be cultivating our gift without fear of it being to no purpose, and a joy and pleasure is added by knowing we are not slothful, in one regard, at least.

In the song service of religious worship, we often find a detriment in trying to please every one who has just and equal rights to likes and dislikes, though there are all tastes and classes. After careful study and experience, it seems that one of the best ways is to select a chorister who is the most gifted in this work to be secured in each branch organization, and with him becoming or being familiar with musical terms which regulate all music as to time, etc., the leader should be regarded and our own likes become secondary. Should the one elected prove unsatisfactory to the majority, and another chosen, it does not lessen the capability of the one who is in the minority of election; but our aim should be to work harmoniously together. A uniformity in time could thus be easily arranged; for none would prefer to rob the composer of his privilege in setting the grade of time, by regarding our own tastes. This law in music would do away with those who wish to gallop away over all songs and also those who wish to sing so slow we get tired of waiting. One may imagine a song adapted to the cheerful spirit and a joyful nature, set to music written in andante or adagio time, slow and dragging, and vice versa.

This strict time is only to be regarded however, in services where the choir and congregation are singing with a chorister to lead or direct. And the service when liberty for all holds sway, is in the social service, when each have the right to his or her own tastes, and we can show our talents by singing with them. All songs are prayers to God, and this should not be forgotten in our endeavors to show we have been cultivating. The church of God has a great need to become "a light to the world, a city upon a hill" in music and song; to become prominent in this respect, we cannot forget we are far behind until we have all endeavored, (especially the young of the church,) to cultivate these great gifts as the word has been given.

MY SHEPHERD. 6s and 5s.

BY A. W. PARSONS, A. B.

The Lord is my Shepherd,
No want shall I know;
He leads in great kindness,
Wherever I go;
He journeys before me,
Preparing the way,
And keeps me in safety
By night and by day.

He fosters me always,
That I may not stray;
And knowing my Shepherd
I would not delay;
For when he is leading
I'm never alone,
But have the assurance
That God knows his own.

Letter Department.

AUBURN, Iowa, Aug. 22.

Editors Herald:—Bro. C. J. Hunt and the writer held a very successful two-days' meeting at this place last Saturday and Sunday. Saints came in from Carroll, Lake City, Sac City, and from near Schaller, and helped to increase our numbers and make the meetings a success. Sr. Elizabeth Wallace of Rockwell City, who in connection with her husband has for many years made their home a pleasant stopping place for the ministers of the church, came down and was baptized and confirmed, thus becoming a member of the Church of Jesus Christ and a child of God. Those who know her will be glad to know that she has obeyed the truth.

On the 12th and 13th insts. Elder Charles Derry and the writer enjoyed the association of the saints at Salem and Persia, and enjoyed the presence and help of the Spirit while conducting a two-days' meeting in Lealand's grove. We may safely say that all the two-days' meetings held in the district thus far this season have been a success, as they have been profitable both to the ministers and people attending them. I almost forgot to say that Sr. Abbie Rounds came down from Newell, a distance of thirty-five miles, to attend the meeting at Auburn.

Owing to the poor health of their companions, both Elder Charles Derry and the writer returned to their homes from Salem for a few days, in order to render their families needed assistance. It is encouraging to us ministers to know that God and Christ and the church, which they represent, only require a reasonable service. If saints do sometimes complain that the missionary does not do as much as he should, it is either because they do not understand the whys and wherefores, or else there is occasionally just reasons for complaint. The writer is of opinion that every minister should earnestly strive to discharge his whole duty in the fear of God, so there shall be no just cause for complaint by anyone, and that every member should exercise due care and the required amount of Christian charity lest they cause unnecessary mental suffering on the part of the missionary, and thereby help make his task an unpleasant one. Even ministers, if they are not on their guard, will at times feel discouraged. If indeed we are "laborers together with God," it is necessary that each and all should so watch and pray and work, that confidence might be begotten and perpetuated, so that all might labor together in unison and love for the good of the church, and the salvation of souls, and the glory of God.

It is encouraging to know that we have the truth, and that every individual who accepts it and is careful to reduce the same to practice, will become a true follower of Christ and a successful Christian. It is pleasant to know that our God will render a just judgment to every soul according to their works. We may be misunderstood by men, but "God seeth us" and understandeth us perfectly. I sometimes think that the most of our difficulties and disappointments are the outgrowth of misunderstandings. The law evidently so teaches, and for this reason the Savior once said: "Moreover if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established. And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church; but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as a heathen man and a publican." (Matt. 18: 15-17.)

If branch officers, as well as members, were more careful to see that the law was fully complied with by everyone, there would indeed be a great forward movement made, much good accomplished, and an increase of spirituality. We would thereby "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."

Our cause is a glorious one, and our work is of so much importance to us and the world that it should demand our careful attention, earnest spiritual prayers, with the best labor that each and all can perform. There is so much brought to bear against us and our work from without, and the enemy wherever found is combined, that for us to wage a successful warfare it is very necessary that we should be so firmly cemented together in the bonds of love and union and true fellowship that we may indeed and of a truth stand and fight for the right on the Lord's side, as we follow the lead and command of Jesus our captain and king. So long as we remain united and stand with God, we have nothing to fear. Satan may rage, and his followers scoff, and his soldiers charge and fight; the winds may blow, and the cyclones roar; the waters may roll, and the billows foam; women's faces may pale, and men's hearts fall; but within the Christian's breast there will be a holy place, and his mind will be inspired with divine hope, and his heart will overflow with eternal love as he listens to the voice of Jesus saying, "Peace, be still."

Who can faint while such a river
Ever flows from God, on high,
Coming down in spiritual blessings,
From the hand that rules on high?

CHARLES E. BUTTERWORTH.

CADILLAC, Mich., Aug. 20.

Editors Herald:—I have never helped to fill the columns of the Herald, though I love to ponder over the truths that are in it, and to read the grand advice given by many of our elders, and all who write. They are inspiring, encouraging, and strengthening. They are food to the hungry soul; they are tidings of great joy to all who read and will profit by them. I have come to the conclusion that more of us who are lovers of this grand and glorious work should write to our church papers and let our light shine. Let us be more willing to impart to others that which God has given us without money or price. Let us not think that we cannot do any good by writing or telling of God's goodness. He declares that he is no respecter of persons, but is willing to bless all who work righteousness, regardless of their nationality.

Why should we shrink from our duty when we know that the gospel is true, and that the revealments are being fulfilled from time to time. If we are growing cold in the work, look back and realize that the angel spoken of in Revelation 14: 6, 7, has come: "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come." That angel has brought the everlasting gospel; it is in the hour of God's judgment. Now this gospel of the kingdom is being preached; let us all help that it may soon reach all the world, then the end will come. Some may say, "Well, brother, we cannot all preach the gospel. How can we help to roll on that little stone which is cut out of the mountain?"

My dear brother or sister, the only way is the right way. Let me refer you to Doctrine and Covenants, section 106, verses 1 and 2: "Verily, thus saith the Lord, I require all their surplus property to put into the hands of the bishop of my church of Zion, for the building of mine house, and for the laying the foundation of Zion, and for the priesthood, and for the debts of the presidency of my church; and this shall be the beginning of the tithing of my people; and after that, those who have thus been tithed, shall pay one tenth of all their interest annually; and this shall be a standing law unto them forever, for my holy priesthood, saith the Lord. Verily I say unto you, it shall come to pass that all those who gather unto the land of Zion shall be tithed of their surplus properties, and shall observe this law, or they shall not be found worthy to abide among you. And I say unto you, If my people observe not this law, to keep it holy, and by this law sanctify the land of Zion unto me, that my statutes and my judgments may be kept thereon, that it may be most holy, behold, verily I say unto you, It shall not be a land of Zion unto you; and this shall be an ensample unto all the stakes of Zion. Even so. Amen."

So we can see from those words of our Lord that we all have a work to do, if we be found worthy when he comes. We as a small band here in this part of God's vineyard are striving to walk in the light of God, would be glad to have some elders come our way when time will permit. We had Elder J. J. Cornish and Elder Beckley with us last week, and had a good sermon from Elder Cornish. He also had the pleasure of joining Bro. L. Chamberlain and Sr. E. Rasmussen in the bonds of wedlock while here.

I ask for the prayers of all the saints of God, that I may always be worthy of the name I bear. My prayer is that God will bless all his children, especially those bearing heavy burdens, for he can lighten the load and make the pathway more smooth.

Your brother in the one faith,

A. WHITEHEAD.

TEMPLE, Ohio, Aug. 17.

Editors Herald:—This beautiful morn I essay to write a few lines from the house of God, as most saints love to hear how the work is prospering here and there, and are especially interested in the building up of the waste places of Zion. I have not kept silent for want of something to write; just waiting for the time, as it is said there is a time for all things.

In taking a retrospective view of this place and people as outlined in the revelations, I have been forced to ask myself, Have we learned anything by observation as experienced by others? How oft, strange as it may seem, those whose names are on the church record verify the statement, "What doth it profit a man if a gift is bestowed upon him, and he receiveth not the gift?" (D. C. 85: 7.) How discouraging it is for one to spend his time and talent, though small it may be, to help people who profess to love God and his perfect law best of all in life, and then discover that, as said of some other Christians, they believe God's word and love it, but do not care to get too near, for fear their evils might be seen. Yet these kind of saints love to talk about our perfect law. If they would only stop to digest these thoughts before expressing them, it seems they could not help but discover their case was a hopeless one. If a perfect law won't make people any better than an imperfect one, what benefit will accrue to man by preaching the perfect law against the opposition brought to bear by the supporters of the imperfect in the final consummation? God said, "That which is governed by law, is also preserved by law, and perfected and sanctified by the same. That which breaketh a law, and abideth not by law, but seeketh to become a law unto itself, and willeth to abide in sin, and altogether abideth in sin, cannot be sanctified by law, neither by mercy, justice, or judgment; therefore, they must remain filthy still."—D. C. 85: 8.

If it was not for the statement of Jesus concerning the kingdom, I fear I should form other conclusions than occupy my mind at present. The kingdom of heaven is like a net cast into the sea, which gathers all kinds. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Along the coast of Maine the net cast into the waters gathers largely a fish called the sculpin, it is of no earthly use. It is mostly mouth, and its body is inflated with air. It makes a fair appearance at first, so far as its body is concerned, but lo! the disappointment that waits the uninitiated when the air escapes; nothing left but mouth! I often think of the Savior's illustration of the fishes, also of the ten virgins—only half of them wise, the other half failed to look into the great mirror of truth, and do the necessary toileting for the coming of the Bridegroom. Think of it, dear saints; no man should think himself too good to take a retrospective view of the character he is building, by looking into God's word. If all mouth, the sooner we know it the better, if you will allow me to use these homely illustrations to get my feelings and thoughts before you.

In the fall of 1830, Elders Parley P. Pratt, Ziba Peterson, and Oliver Cowdery, visited this part and led Sidney Rigdon and most of his congregation to believe in the angelic message. In two or three weeks these brethren baptized one hundred and twenty-seven souls into the kingdom of our God. This number soon increased into one thousand, and in a few months two thousand saints graced the hill and flat of Kirtland. The latter part of January, 1831, Joseph the Seer and wife made their first visit to this place, as directed by revelation. June 3, 1833, the word of the Lord came, directing the building of the house of God. The event that ever kept in memory the work in this part began by the laying of the corner stone of the Temple at Kirtland, July 23, 1833. The earnestness manifested to keep the commandments of God by those saints stands as an exhortation to each called to be saints now, to be more earnest and remember the commandments of our loving Father. As he had to reprove some of those good people then, as we read, "Behold, I, the Lord, am not well pleased with many who are in the church at Kirtland." Too bad! But why? Read on: "For they do not forsake their sins, and their wicked ways, the pride of their hearts, and their covetousness, and all their detestable things, and observe the words of wisdom and eternal life which I have given unto them."—D. C. 95: 4.

What of present conditions? Not long since, the good Lord smiled upon his people here, and said: "Humble yourselves, O ye, my children, that I might bless you. Love one another." Much more was said, but let this suffice. It indicates there is need of improvement, getting nearer the Lord. Humility and earnestness are needed. Will we not submit to these gentle wooings of the Holy Spirit? In them is found our life; outside of following their leadings is death.

The work here moves very slow; although our congregations are increasing in numbers, our spiritual progress is not keeping pace therewith. This place has been the arena for every foul spirit known in this gospel age, and these scenes coming down by tradition, and later acts, as told by opposers or the indifferent ones, makes it difficult to reach the intellect of the denizens. Between these sacred temple walls God has sought to instruct (in the past as well as in the present) his people. Satan, in his subtle way, has performed some of the most dastardly acts of this age. Hence time and proper government are necessary to obliterate these sad scenes of the past, ere truth will prevail to any degree in this part, in converting fallen man. It is hard, seemingly, for man to recognize golden opportunities and seek to occupy with that dignity that belongs to a child of the king.

Visitors from most every part of the United States, and a few from England, have passed over the threshold of the house of God. It is astonishing how little people know of this work. A better opportunity is not afforded to get the work before the people than is offered here in conversation, properly administered to these visitors. I have had them to take seats, and ask if I would not favor them with a discourse on the coming forth of the work, and tell them the difference between our church and others. I have done six times more preaching in the seventeen weeks, now spent here, than I could have done anywhere else.

Elders from Utah are frequent visitors. Among some of the sayings had during different conversation with these elders, occurred the following statement:—

Those who are not married for eternity will only be an angel. That is what Jesus meant when he said there was no marrying in heaven; they must do that here, for that eternal condition, else they would be unmarried; hence could not go into the presence of God.

Where will the children come in? Two of their elders were here last Sabbath. I asked them what the church was likely to do in regard to Angus Cannon and Heber J. Grant? They thought it would do nothing, as Cannon had paid the penalty of the law, and the church law not being broken by his act, it would do nothing. I asked, Do you not have a law against lying? They said, Yes. I said, Then you do not consider that when these men, with the church, covenanted with the government that they would cease unlawful cohabitation, that they lied, as per evidence in Cannon's case? Well, yes; in that light they or he did. How can the church then vindicate her fidelity to this nation, unless she tries these men for lying? Well, I do not know; it does look that way.

A few days ago I was asked by quite a bright appearing lady how soon my church would hold another conference with the Utah Church. She seemed astonished when I told her such a thing had never occurred. Why, she says, don't you hold your conferences together every five years? What next?

Hopefully moving on, seeking to do the people as much good in these parts as possible, I remain,

Yours in bonds,

A. H. PARSONS.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 18.

Editors Herald:—Since our reunion at Detroit, in company with Bishop Kelley we visited the saints at Audubon, Cormorant, Silver Lake, and Clitherall; the Bishop doing the preaching, which was appreciated by all. Much good counsel was given which we believe will result in good. We arrived in the city on Saturday, July 8; began meetings in the tent that night, the Bishop being the speaker. He also spoke Sunday at eleven a. m. and eight p. m., and in his logical way gave good counsel to the saints; also pointed out to the outsiders the way to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. The only regret was the small turnout of saint and sinner.

The writer continued on alone for a few evenings, when Bro. Eli Hayer, of the missionary force, came to my assistance, and has labored very acceptably to all. These meetings are still in progress; but I am sorry to say they have not been as fully attended as we would like. However, many have heard our doctrine who never did before. Not over one third of the saints have been in regular attendance at these meetings. This I am sorry to say, but it is true just the same.

My wife came on the 21st of July and is trying to help along the work by organizing a sisters' prayer union. Reports say they had a good meeting. May God bless their effort, is my prayer. Sr. Mary White presided at the organ very acceptably for two weeks. She made friends while here and her assistance in the meetings will ever be remembered by those who were present to share in the blessings of the music department.

On the 13th of August Bro. E. A. Stedman came in to assist in tent work. He is in rather poor health, but willing to work. Bro. Hayer is a good helper and a pleasant companion to be with. He leaves to-night for his home in Lamoni, being called to see his sick wife. He has presided at the organ since Sr. White went home. He has also done his share of the speaking, and very acceptably too. Bro. Stedman and the writer will continue the meetings for a few days and then visit other parts of the mission, where calls are coming from. Some of the good sisters here have taken the counsel of the Bishop and have held two ice cream sociables. The first one netted them nine dollars and sixty cents; the last one, which was held last night, netted them eleven dollars even. These were well attended and all seemed to enjoy themselves quite well. O how much good can be done when the saints will work together and cease surmising and speaking evil of one another.

I am well and in good spirits and in full faith of the triumph of this the work of God. It has been extremely hot up here this summer. The heat with plenty of hard work has reduced my avoirdupois from two hundred and thirty-eight to two hundred and eleven pounds; but I feel better by it. Yes, Bro. Terry, I remember the mission we took to Kansas in '84, and often think of the many blessings we enjoyed, although your stay was but short on account of sickness in your family. May God be with all Israel of latter days is my humble prayer.

Yours in faith,

I. N. ROBERTS.

KNOX, Ind., Aug. 23.

Editors Herald:—We tarried at Hartford for a few days after the two-day effort, and conducted services with good interest. And on Wednesday repaired to Paw Paw River and inducted Sr. Margaret Pearson into the kingdom. Mr. and Mrs. Avrell—intelligent people, the latter identified with the Disciple Church—are very much enthused over the latter-day work, and promised to unite with its interests and fortune at no distant day. From Hartford we joined Brn. Stroh and Granger at Hamilton, where I preached one evening to a young but interested audience, with quite fair liberty and light. On Saturday morning we continued our journey to Decatur, enroute to Little Prairie Ronde. Bro. McInterfur met us at Decatur with team, and we rolled over the beautiful country stretching between, enjoying the scenes and fragrance of peppermint fields, intensified by a welcome shower of raindrops. The two-day services opened at this place with a splendid testimony meeting on Saturday afternoon. The saints, although few in numbers, enjoyed the visitation of the Spirit to a marked degree, and set to work to make the looked-for gathering successful; and they did not fail. Bro. Granger addressed the meeting on Saturday evening. Sunday forenoon the writer talked to the assembly. Bro. Stroh led off in the afternoon on the financial theme. I again was permitted to address a large audience in the evening hour, my theme being "The latter-day work."

During the evening a message was flashed over the wires to your humble servant from Coldwater announcing the death of Mr. Leggett, husband to Sr. Beatrice and father to Sr. Maude Leggett. The best of friends must part; so after riding across the country, the distance of sixteen miles, we boarded the car which landed us into Coldwater at noon. The funeral was held at the house, three miles north of the city, at 2:30 p. m., same day. 'Twas the largest funeral I have seen at a private house since Bishop Blakeslee was laid to rest. Had splendid liberty in treating of the Savior's mission—the justice of God attached to the judgment of all men "according to works." Mr. Leggett passed over the mystic river without obedience to the gospel, but with many commendable traits of character, which he who "notices the sparrow fall" will not overlook. 'Twas sad, but the mourning hearts left are assured of a liberal bestowment of sympathy.

We have held services here at Knox since Saturday.

On Sunday afternoon we repaired to Yellow River and baptized one, a Sr. Smith.

On this, Wednesday morning, we retraced our steps to the river, and one more, Sr. Dipert, was buried with Christ by baptism. This last addition is a sister of Sr. Lybarger, of South Scott, Indiana, and she will doubtless rejoice to hear this item of news. The services continue to-night, but it is hard to kick against the extreme hot weather gods. Thermometer registering 96° in the shade. 'Tis very dry, also no rain at this particular point for some weeks. Bro. Stroh came down Saturday and touched the saints up on the finances and returned yesterday. The interest here is fair. Saints trying to hold up the banner, and striving.

Hopefully,

S. W. L. SCOTT.

LEBECK, Mo., Aug. 14.

Editors Herald:—I have been very much interested in the letters in the Herald from Bro. T. W. Williams. I have for several years been making a close study of our social conditions. I have come to the conclusion that the world will never be regenerated by any political movement that can be invented by men. I thoroughly believe in the principles of socialism, which I understand to be simply a coöperative commonwealth.

Only those that have taken the trouble to inform themselves in regard to the true conditions of our laboring and poorer classes have any idea how matters stand. Too many people are with political and social questions like they are with religion: "That that was good enough for Father and Mother is good enough for me."

I want to see coöperation put into effect as soon as possible. What little I have, together with what labor I am able to perform, is ready to be put into a movement of this kind, if organized on right principles. The fact that one after another of these coöperative colonies has gone down does not prove that the principles of coöperation are wrong. The one trouble is that we cannot get those interested that have a good "fat job." As a rule, the condition of the fellow out of a job is never thought of.

There ought not to be any reason why a man that will work cannot obtain those things needful for the comfort of himself and family, but such is the case. There are plenty of little children here in Eldorado Springs branch that will not have the necessary clothing the coming winter, and will live principally on corn bread and sorghum. The crumbs from the tables of those in the church that are in good circumstances would be considered a luxury by them. The cast-off clothing of the rich ones of the church would be gladly received to be made over for these little ones to wear. These things ought to be considered. If there has been any prosperity for this country of late, it is not for the poor man. We admit that the late war has made good times for the contractors. There is no use trying to deceive; the laborer of this country will occupy a position that is no better than that of other countries; the same cause will produce the same effect. Our only hope is in this grand old gospel; and we wait and cry, How long, O, how long?

Hoping that a movement of some kind will be put on foot to enable a worthy poor man to earn a livelihood, I am yours for the success of this gospel,
A SOCIALIST.

BOTTS, Fla., Aug. 19.

Editors Herald:—I write to inform you how glad I am that I am a Latter Day Saint. I feel thankful to my heavenly Father for his goodness and mercy in allowing me the privilege of hearing and accepting his gospel. We have just had a two-days' meeting; preaching by Elders M. M. Turpen and D. E. Tucker. One brother was ordained a priest; and as our branch had gone down considerably, we feel to take heart again that the good Lord has not forsaken us. An old gentleman here once remarked that what members the Latter Day Saints had got were fooled in the church by men sent here from the north. My prayers are that the good Lord will continue his fooling process till the whole world is convinced of the truth of the work.

I close by asking the prayers of the saints everywhere.

SALT REMEDY.

FULTON, Iowa, Aug. 24.

Editors Herald:—For a couple of years or longer, I had what might be called a cancerous wart on my nose. It kept growing larger, slowly but constantly, till it was about the size and shape of a wax bean. It was not only disagreeable, but greatly disfigured my face, and also gave me serious cause for alarm.

About three months ago I began to apply strong salt brine on the wart. I put it on every day as frequently as I would think of it and could do so conveniently, while about my work. In a little while I thought I could see that it had diminished in size. This encouraged me to keep on applying the salt, till a short time ago, when the wart had entirely disappeared. No one could tell now that it ever had been on my face, as there is no trace left of it.

Thinking a very simple remedy which I have tried with such good success might be of benefit to others, I give the above for the benefit of the readers of the Herald.

Your sister in Christ,
MRS. MARTHA J. ROUSH.

ALPENA, Mich., Aug. 16.

Editors Herald:—I write to inform you how glad I am that I am a Latter Day Saint. I thank my heavenly Father for his great mercy, and that he saw fit to bestow his heavenly blessing upon me. I have not seen a letter in your paper from this place for some time, but we are still happy. I think the saints of this place are striving to overcome all evil, and do the will of the Master. It is five years since I was baptized and I am not sorry that I embraced the gospel. I feel my weakness, for I have not lived so I could enjoy myself as I could if I had lived as a saint. I thank God for opening my eyes so that I could see my sins, for I had many to overcome. I would not give up the gospel and the blessings that are in it for the world and all its pleasures. I know I have a work to do, for the prize is at the end of the race, if I can come forth at the last day. My prayer is that I may have the strength and charity that belongs to a saint. The thought comes to me that I must work while it is day, for the Lord has said that the dust must soon return again to mother earth, and unto God the spirit go, who will then judge its worth. Come all ye sons of men, draw near and hear the word of God, for you must all in time to come sleep 'neath the silent clod. The Lord says you must be born again, if you would see the kingdom of heaven. Murmur not, for it must be done by all like you and me.

To-day I thank God I try to obey his commands, though I fear at times I am like Babylon's king of old, my wanting will be found. I hope my light will shine in the day of the Lord's coming, is my prayer in Jesus' name. Your sister in one faith, ROCKSEY TATE.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 21.

Editors Herald:—I have something to make known that has been very pleasant to me, and I trust and feel sure that others will enjoy the same. After the nice papers reached me, we as usual met in the big room and read the interesting sermons. I feel sure that I have never read one more pleasant and instructive than what was so beautifully explained by dear Bro. Greene in the Ensign of August 17. This, with the contents of so many nice letters in Herald and Ensign, such as written by Bro. C. R. Duncan, Sr. Pauline Ruby, and many others years ago, seemed to create a great excitement with one, especially of my interested crowd—the Miss Carrie Portis, of whom I have before made mention. She and I are afflicted alike, and can deeply sympathize with each other; but some time ago she caused me to feel somewhat discouraged when she remarked in such an impatient, nervous tone, after I read to them, "I will never leave the Methodist Church;" but just imagining how I felt yesterday, when after reading the above-mentioned article she came to me in such a loving way and in such a kind, gentle tone said, "I see it all; my eyes are opened to it, and how I wish I could be baptized by the saints real soon." She then said, "May I use your Testament? I want to begin in first of Matthew and read through, and when I go home know where to find scripture to explain it all to sister and her husband."

While I am writing she is in the room alone reading. After we had finished reading yesterday several had met to go in to supper, and Carrie remarked, "It causes me to possess a new good feeling, since I've seen it;" and one old lady said, "What, are you going home that causes you to feel so good?" She replied, "No, ma'am; something better than that." This excited curiosity and caused me to take an old-time healthy laugh, and then after some one spoke of the sermon preached in the hospital in the afternoon the subject of baptism was mentioned, which seemed to worry the friend, who seems so anxious to read more Autumn Leaves, and she let us know that baptism is not necessary, and this seemed to trouble Carrie, and she "wished that Miss Oliver could see it as we do."

All this caused one of our Methodist friends to think "Carrie's mind is real badly affected," and of course I suppose some of them think "I am one of the crazy ones;" but I hope to be given strength to do my duty, and to overcome my many evil, wicked ways. As I write another interested friend, Mrs. S. E. Palmer, has asked me to "read some more," and has also said "she wants those saints to pray for her and her loved ones."

Well, I must not forget and write too much, and if you will forgive me for writing this, I will try hard to wait longer next time. Carrie, the twenty-three-year-old interested convert, has come in, and says, "Tell the saints to be sure to pray for me;" and I must again say the same myself. Much love to all saints and thanks for the sermon to dear Sr. Mary McDonald, of Godfrey, Illinois. With best wishes to every saint, I am,

Your loving sister,

JENNIE PAGE.

HIGBEE, Mo., Aug. 23.

Editors Herald:—After closing services here on the 7th, I went to Macon and spent a day with Bro. Palfrey and family; thence to Bevier, where I held forth until the 20th; attendance not large, but a manifest interest upon the part of some. Thanks to the kind-hearted for their remembrance of ye missionary.

Some time since I mentioned "The False Star" as the last book against Mormonism. I am now in doubt as to it being the last, as Miss Lily Dougall's "Mormon Prophet" is an 1899 production. The Macon papers gave Mr. Gash's book a favorable notice. I wrote a review and Bro. Palfrey had it published in the Republican and Democrat. Soon after I received the enclosed letter, and have the writer's consent to publish. On the 21st I called at — and visited the home of this young lady. She is quite anxious to follow out the convictions of religious duty. The father and mother, and especially the father, seem to have no desire to know anything about our church and its faith. He seems to be fully satisfied that we are the workers of evil, and the same as the Utah people. He and I had but little conversation, and he opened the ball with, "If you expect to stop in this town over night, you had better hunt up a place to stay, as it is not agreeable for you to stay here." I hid me away to the hotel; not, however, until I had plainly stated our position and ate supper. Notwithstanding this man may have the zeal of Saul of Tarsus and his mind in a like state of darkness on account of his opposition and prejudice against the truth, yet I formed a favorable opinion of him, and shall make an effort to bring him to the knowledge of saving truth. To me it is a marvel and a wonder how this maiden has been brought to an understanding of the gospel, and for her I pray that wisdom and courage shall be divinely administered, that she shall not yield to the temptation of surrendering or turning away from the light of God. I accept this case as an evidence that God is moving upon the people by his Holy Spirit.

The strike among the miners is still on, and is resulting in some evil and misfortune to our cause. To the uninitiated there are some very strange things in the code of miners. There is, as a universal rule, an intense and unyielding bitter feeling against the Afro-American, and such of them as may be employed by the companies that do not subscribe to the demands of the miners are dubbed "scabs," or "crapshooting coons," etc.; and yet if these ignoble (?) creatures can be induced to unite with the "Union," then presto change, they are men among men and up to the standard. I cannot help the cogitation of my mind: Is this real and genuine, or is it only put on—hypocrisy? In the parlance of the miner, working for those who are the other party to a strike is scabbing, or blacklegging; and the most upright and honorable man of a community, if he is guilty of scabbing, is at once considered worthy of a mark as despicable as that placed upon Cain.

The general outlook for our work is fair, and many of the saints are earnestly struggling to learn and perform their duties. I expect to disturb the water this evening. The weather still continues hot—a hundred in the shade is trying on ye scribbler. Have written several articles for local papers, and have received kind, courteous treatment from newspaper men as a rule.

On duty,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

MISSOURI, August 3, 1899.

MR. ROBERT M. ELVIN,
218 Tenth Street, South Side,
Hannibal, Missouri:—

About five years ago I attended a protracted meeting at a Cumberland Presbyterian church, and was converted, and united with that church. I was young and thoughtless at that time, and had never paid any attention whatever to the doctrines of the different churches, they all seemed very much alike to me then. And as my early training had not been a religious one, I was not a Bible student; but I commenced to read it with great diligence after my conversion, and wished to be baptized by immersion, which is the only way I ever could believe. The minister and elders all raised a protest against it; the minister condemning baptism, and the doctor, who is also the leading elder of that church, told my father that I would surely die if I was put under the water; and my father, who is an ardent Presbyterian in belief, filled with anxiety for my life, added to the influence of the others his own persuasion. The entire church was against me, and after awhile I gave up in despair, and went through the mock ceremony of having a little water poured on my head, and I have never been satisfied since, and could never read my Bible with a good conscience.

I expressed my dissatisfaction, and by so doing brought upon myself the displeasure of the entire church.

The minister delivered several lectures on church polity and baptism, but was unable to convince me. There was no other church that I liked any better than I did that church. To be sure I might have been baptized in others, but I found them no more to my liking. I became more discontented every day, and at last demanded a letter of dismissal, which was granted the 10th of May, 1898. I did not unite with any church after that. I was by this time quite familiar with the teaching of the different churches, and also with the Bible, and they all seemed to unite in an endeavor to explain away the teaching of the Bible.

A few years ago some missionaries of the church of the Latter Day Saints came through here, and it rained so hard they were not able to preach; but they left some tracts, in which I became very much interested, for I found them to be more in accord with the Bible than anything I ever found before, and I have ever since desired to investigate and know more of that faith; but the address given was "Utah," and while I like the church of "The Latter Day Saints, Reorganized," I will frankly confess I do not believe in Brigham Young and all the doctrines of the people in Utah, and for that reason I never made any attempt to write to that address for information, and I knew not where else to turn for enlightenment, and I was never sure, until I saw your letter in the Macon Democrat, that the two churches were not one and the same, and it just seemed as if that letter must have been written to answer the questions which I have so desired to ask. I felt like "Cornelius" must have felt, when the Lord told him to send for Simon Peter, who would tell him what he ought to do; and with the knowledge that the false teaching of Brigham Young had no part in the faith of the true Latter Day Saint, the last obstacle to my joy was removed. I ask not for information just to satisfy an idle curiosity, but because I wish to investigate, with the intention of becoming a member of that church. I do not live near any church of that faith, and for that reason would not have the pleasure of attending, which would be a great inconvenience. I do not know where to seek membership and baptism.

Will you please answer my letter, and tell me what to do? and send me some tracts containing the articles of faith? and where can I get such information as I need?

Hoping my earnestness and great need will excuse the liberty I have taken in writing to an entire stranger, and in burdening you with an uninvited and perhaps an unwelcome confidence, I shall hope and pray for further enlightenment until I find a way.

Yours sincerely in search of the truth,

MISS MATTIE JONES.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINTS.—CONTINUED.

Bathing ranks next to sunlight and fresh air as a health preserver. Revert to what was said concerning the functions of the skin in chapter second, and you will recognize the necessity of keeping its millions of pores open. As before stated, two or three pounds of waste matter should be thrown off by the skin of an adult each day. If this is retained in the system, as it will be unless the pores of the skin are kept open, disease ensues. To perform its threefold work thoroughly the skin must be kept clean; this does not mean simply that it shall not look dirty, this it seldom does except where exposed—but that there shall not be any "invisible dirt" stopping up its pores.

We believe that one-half the colds from which children and their elders suffer during the winter result from breathing impure air and neglecting bathing. It is not those most exposed to the weather that suffer most from colds, but those who shut themselves up in close, heated rooms, and are afraid of cold water. "In summer our children are bathed all over once a week," remarked a parent to me, "but in winter we only bathe them once in two weeks for fear of colds." "Are your children subject to colds?" I asked. "Very much so," was the reply; "they are hardly free from them all winter." I did not wonder. They spent the winter in a sitting room and small bedroom adjoining, from which, so far as possible, all fresh air was excluded; the temperature was kept over eighty degrees by a huge base-burner, they were not allowed to go out of doors from November to April, and were bathed once a fortnight. If such treatment does not kill them it will be a wonder.

How often should people bathe? That depends. Vigorous persons are better for a full bath daily; feebler ones can not bear it so often. The test is in the afterglow; if reaction quickly follows the bath, bringing a warm, bright glow to the skin, the bath has been beneficial; if such reaction does not follow, or a chill is produced, the bath has been injurious. We believe there are few healthy children who will not be benefited by a daily bath. Everybody believes babies require this; why should they not need it fully as much when they grow older? Boys and girls should early be trained to take their bath themselves. If they cannot command a bath tub, a sponge bath may be made very effective. The bath should be taken in a warm room, when the body is warm and the circulation brisk; hence a short walk or run before taking it is good. Do not take a bath when you are very tired, or chilly, or after a full meal. Let the bathing be done quickly, followed by brisk rubbing of the whole body with a rough towel and the bare hand, till a warm glow is produced. A tepid bath is best adapted to all ages and conditions; cold baths suit persons of vigorous health; hot baths, as Florence Nightingale shows, cleanse the skin most thoroughly, hence should be taken occasionally. They are best taken just before retiring, to guard against taking cold.

A Turkish bath will often break up a cold or an attack of rheumatism. Dr. Alice B. Stockham gives directions for taking it at home; we have seen them followed with great success. Spread over a wooden arm-chair a blanket in such a way that it will hang to the floor in front; seat the patient in this chair, "dressed in his complexion only," as Mark Twain would say, and enveloped, chair and all, except his head, in blankets. Put a moist napkin round his neck, or on his head; place a teacup half filled with alcohol under the chair, and light with a taper. The heat of the burning alcohol, closely confined in the tent of blankets, ought, in three or four minutes, to produce perspiration. If it does not, bathe the body with a damp sponge. Give him plenty of water to drink, and let him remain in the bath fifteen or twenty minutes. Meanwhile, rub, pat, pinch, and pound with the hand his flesh thoroughly, till every surface muscle has had its share of "kneading." Then bathe off the body quickly, without exposure to the air, rub it dry and have the patient lie down, still enveloped in the blankets. Usually he will drop to sleep and awake much refreshed.

"Plenty of sleep" we found to be an essential element in healthy babyhood; it is quite as essential in adult life. No one should sleep less than eight hours out of the twenty-four; growing children require more than eight hours' sleep. Dio Lewis gives this quaint recipe for preserving the health, which includes, besides the duty of going to bed early, other things of equal importance. His famous recipe is: "Bedibus nine o'clockibus, Quitibus chawibus et smokibus."

Constipation is very common and very much of an evil. The bowels form one of the main gateways by which impurities are carried out of the system; if this is closed, and the impurities retained, they taint and poison every tissue. Especially do they proclaim their presence in an offensive breath and a bad odor emitted by the skin; indeed, "unclean" seems written on every part of a body ruled by constipation. The trouble may be hereditary or caused by sedentary habits, too much brain work, use of cathartics or errors in diet or dress. If it is hereditary, intelligent care of your children from their very birth may eradicate the tendency. Marian Harland relates the case of two boys, one with a marked tendency to constipation, the other with an equally marked tendency to diarrhoea, who, by the wise care of their mother in regard to diet, dress, and exercise, grew into robust health. To give this care the mother must know the causes leading to constipation, and the proper correctives for it. Sedentary habits tend to constipation because they afford little exercise to the abdominal and intestinal muscles. Exercise which brings these muscles into play, like horseback riding, is a corrective. Dr. Stockham, in her admirable book, "Tokology," gives in her chapter on constipation, full directions for exercises that have this effect. Wide-awake children seldom suffer from lack of exercise, so we will not dwell on that point here.

With them, improper food is probably the leading cause of constipation. Highly seasoned foods and stimulating drinks tend to produce it, because at first they excite undue secretion of the digestive fluids, and this undue activity is followed by a corresponding reaction of torpidity. Tea is especially hurtful in this direction because of the tannin it contains. Chocolate and coffee have a similar effect, though in less degree. Concentrated foods, especially fats, sweets, and those containing much starch, furnish too little residuum and too little water to keep the bowels open. Rich cake, pies, fine flour bread when hot and saturated with melted butter, and fried salt meats are especially bad. Baking powder is very frequently adulterated with alum, a powerful astringent, and thus becomes responsible for much constipation. Of fruits, blackberries and raspberries have a similar effect. All these foods should be avoided where there is a tendency to constipation. Live largely upon cracked wheat, whole wheat flour, and fruits, except blackberries and raspberries. Dr. Stockham says that a good motto for the wall of every dining room is, "Feast on Fruits." Fresh fruits are especially good from the amount of water and the acids they contain. Dried peaches, prunes, and apricots thoroughly cooked are good correctives for constipation, as are figs eaten freely.

A wise choice of foods will usually keep the bowels open; if this is not sufficient, try simple remedies rather than resorting to cathartics. An enema of tepid water is much better than "pills." A glass or two of soft water, drunk on going to bed, or the first thing in the morning, eating a raw orange or apple before breakfast, drinking a glass of water into which a tablespoonful of bran has been stirred, have all been found efficacious in removing the trouble. Establish and maintain habits of regularity in evacuating the bowels, and let nothing interfere with regular visits to the water-closet. Here is one great cause of trouble, especially in young girls. Another cause, and to this cause are traceable some of the most distressing and obstinate cases of constipation, is improper dress. Tight corsets and heavy skirts, supported only by the hips, inflict most serious injury upon the stomach, bowels, and all the abdominal organs. If women, especially young girls, will wear them, nothing but disease can ensue. But we are glad to note a healthy growth in public sentiment in regard to healthy dress, diet, and modes of living.—Childhood: Its Care and Culture.

ELDER T. A. HOUGAS, EDITOR.
Henderson, Mills Co., Iowa.

(Send communications for this department to the Editor. Address minutes and notices of conventions, etc., to "Editors Herald, Lamoni, Iowa.")

A FEW OBSERVED FACTS.

1. The most successful teachers are those who teach the principles of the gospel of Christ by assigning duties to be performed by their pupils, which involves those principles in their everyday acts.

2. Conducting the exercises of each Sabbath in exactly the same manner, from one year's end to the next, becomes unattractive if not irksome to the pupils. Let there be variety in the superintendent's methods of conducting the exercises of the school, as well as variety in the teacher's methods of conducting the recitation.

3. The lack of encouragement from those who are abundantly able to give, has frequently been the cause of some pupil, teacher, or superintendent failing to accomplish all that lay in their power to do. True modesty prizes honest and hearty commendation when something worthy has been accomplished. Were every feeble effort met with inspiring encouragement instead of contemptuous silence and every noble deed welcomed with a word of commendation, the ranks of the Sunday school would be filled with zealous, true, and talented workers.

4. Superintendent's reviews are frequently failures. In fact, they are a hindrance to the progress of the school unless studied and made instructive and interesting. In some schools the review is looked upon with pleasure and as necessary by the pupils. In others they are looked upon with a sort of has-to-be indifference, and this because reviews and methods of conducting them are not adapted to or understood by the one in charge.

5. In the ranks of the Sunday school are teachers who have not failed to grasp every opportunity for self-improvement. It is wonderful what advancement some have made in fitting themselves, both in methods and facts for teaching. But there yet remains a few who have for years occupied—rather, held down—the position of teachers without making any perceptible advancement. Standing before the same class, employing the same methods one lesson with another. Preparing no work outside the Quarterly, taking no part in conventions or institutes, reading no papers and books on teaching or useful information, how may we expect to be live, progressive Sunday school workers?

SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

Are you establishing Sunday school libraries in your schools? Does your librarian inspect every book as to its moral, intellectual, and spiritual merits before placing it on the shelves of the library to be perused by the unsuspecting minds of youth?

Does your librarian ask information of the Association Librarian whose duty it is to suggest no book not personally known to be of worth? It is not, How many books in the library? but, What are they?

A book which does not portray a type of humanity, whether true or fictitious; that will not entice to nobler efforts; one that does not excite an admiration for true worth; inspire a desire for godliness, and tend to spiritualize the thoughts and deeds of the young, has no place in the Sunday school library. There is nothing that impresses the young like character study, and our shelves should be laden with the biographies of the world's best men.

QUOTATIONS ON THE SABBATH.

"The law of the Sabbath is the keystone of the arch of public morals. Take it away and the whole structure falls.

"There are many persons who think Sunday is a sponge to wipe out the sins of the week.

"There is a Sunday conscience as well as a Sunday coat. And those who make religion a secondary concern put the coat and conscience carefully away to put on only once a week.

"Sunday is the golden clasp that binds together the volume of the week.

"I long to have the children feel there is nothing in this world more attractive, more earnestly to be desired than manhood in Christ Jesus.

"The longer I live the more highly do I estimate the Christian Sabbath and the more grateful do I feel toward those who impress its importance on the community.

"When we are out of sympathy with the young, then our work in this world is over."

FROM minutes of the Interstate Sunday School Institute of 1897. The subject of the Library was led by the General Superintendent, and the following thoughts were presented:—

LIBRARY.

1. Utility.

- 1¹ Benefits to officers and teachers. (Note 1.)
- 1² Bibles, church books, etc.
- 2³ Bible dictionaries.
- 3² Commentaries.
- 4² Works on teaching.
- 2¹ Benefit to pupil. (Note 2.)
- 1² Bibles, church, and song books, etc.
- 2² Commentaries, dictionaries, etc.
- 3² Bible stories.
- 4² Histories.
- 5² Natural histories.
- 6² Biographies.
- 7² Books of travel.
- 8² Scientific books.
- 9² Essays.
- 10² Works on fiction very carefully selected.

2. Object. (Note 3.)

- 1¹ To instruct.
- 2¹ To entertain.
- 3¹ For moral intellectual culture.

3. Quality of books. (Note 4.)

- 1¹ Good ones we should select.
- 2¹ Worthless and dangerous ones we should discard. That which pretends to tell the truth, but does not, is the most dangerous.

4. How to obtain.

- 1¹ Purchase. (Note 5.)
- 2¹ Donation.
- 3¹ Exchange.
- 4¹ Loan.

Note 1.—Not all teachers are able to afford all the dictionaries, commentaries, or works on teaching that they would like. One book of a kind rightly used will suffice for several to use. To supply the officers and teachers should be the first aim of the Sunday school library.

Note 2.—All your books should be selected by a competent librarian or committee, with a special object in view—to exclude all books that did not possess some special merit, and all that did possess some special demerit. In this, remember, as librarians you are the guardians of the children's thoughts. Further, when an application comes for a book, furnish one suited to the individual case. Bible stories may be good for one, natural history for another. You must know your books, you must know your children. You can then act intelligently and wisely.

Note 3.—One object is to instruct especially along religious and moral lines. But many children inherit or acquire a distaste for instruction of any kind. These you must hold by entertaining till a taste for something better can be cultivated. You may be able to both entertain and instruct, but the latter must be more of a result than a direct aim. The fun-loving child can usually be interested in natural history, travel, or biography till a desire for other matter may be created or awakened.

Note 4.—But one quality of books should be permitted in a Sunday school library—good books. Those which possess no good points or those containing seducing influences should be entirely discarded. Better have no book at all than a bad one.

Note 5.—Never purchase a book till you know that it is good. The sets of books sold by Sunday school supply houses are seldom if ever cheap. Usually but a small portion of them are fit for a Sunday school library. Buy your books one or two at a time.

BORN.

DOSS.—To Bro. William C. and Sr. Lucy C. Doss, at Perry, Iowa, November 1, 1898, a son. Blessed August 6, 1899, by Elders George Thorburn, J. W. Morgan, and C. Scott, and named Marlow Annis.

GRIEVE.—At Bevier, Missouri, June 20, 1899, to Bro. Robert and Mrs. Mattie B. Grieve, a son. Blessed August 16 by Elders Robt. M. Elvin and J. A. Tanner, and named Gust Allen.

MARRIED.

WEEDMARK—COOK.—In Lamoni, Iowa, on Wednesday evening, August 9, 1899, Bro. Nathan Weedmark and Sr. Ellen Cook were united in marriage, Elder H. A. Stebbins officiating. The children and grandchildren of this couple were the guests of the occasion, and by them a bountiful wedding feast was prepared in honor of the event.

DIED.

JOHNSON.—In Lamoni, Iowa, August 12, 1899, Joseph Reese, infant son of Mr. George W. and Sr. Luella J. Johnson, aged 1 year, 1 month, and 27 days. A grandchild of Sr. Elizabeth M. Tyrrell. He suffered much from spinal trouble before death released him. Services at the residence by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

DOWNARD.—Near Leon, Iowa, August 1, 1899, Bro. Joseph Downard, aged 55 years, 2 months, and 15 days. His wife died August 26, 1898. Two little girls have been adopted by others. He became a member of the church in 1875, being baptized by Elder Samuel Gurley in Decatur County. He was brought to Lamoni for burial, and prayer was offered at the grave by Bro. H. A. Stebbins.

BARBEE—PERRY.—Otis and Clarence, sons of Bro. and Sr. C. C. Barbee, and Earl B., second son of Bro. and Sr. — Perry, were brought back to the Baxter depot, Jasper County, Iowa, dead. These three boys left their parental homes Monday, July 31, 1899, for the Northwest, filled with hopes of success. They intended to work in harvest, and, if they liked the country, to rent a farm. On Friday morning, August 4, about six o'clock, when within a mile or so of Humboldt, Humboldt County, as they were crossing the Northwestern railway, the fast train struck them, and thus ended the life work of these three noble and promising young men. They were aged as follows: Otis Barbee, 19 years, 7 months, 17 days. Clarence Barbee, 17 years, 7 months. Earl B. Perry, 17 years, 9 months, 24 days. They were cousins. Funeral services were held in Smith's Grove. There being no building in the town large enough, kind friends erected a stand and seats in the grove. The sympathy of all present for the parents, brothers, sisters, and friends in their great loss and sore bereavement was plainly manifested by this vast assembly. The ceremonies were conducted by Elder William C. Nirk, kindly assisted by Reverends Clancey and B. F. Logsdon. The choirs of both churches of the town rendered appropriate and excellent selections. The caskets furnished by the railroad company were nice, and beautifully banked with flowers, with the inscription surmounting all, "Our Boys at Rest." After the last farewell look had been taken, it was estimated, by over one thousand sympathizers, the remains were taken to their last resting place in Bethel cemetery. We mourn not as those who have no hope.

THOMPSON.—In Lamoni, Iowa, August 18, 1899, Sr. Ruby C., daughter of Bro. Frank L. and Sr. Arema Thompson, aged 16 years, 4 months, 1 day. Her passing away was preceded by a long battle between the powers of life and those of death, but the enemy prevailed, and there was taken one of the fair, sweet daughters of Zion. She was the oldest of four girls, and had come to the age of much usefulness to her mother, and was also showing those qualities of heart and mind which made her of value in the Sunday school work, and as an example of modesty, virtue, faithfulness, and integrity as a young maiden among the young people of the church, and as one who loved the gospel and its interests. She was baptized April 27, 1891, at Little Sioux, Iowa. It was hard for her parents, grandparents, (Bro. and Sr. Montague, who were present during her illness,) and for her sisters and other friends to give her up. But all efforts in her behalf brought no permanent relief. Thus she passed to the happy company beyond. Funeral sermon by Elder H. A. Stebbins, assisted by Elder R. S. Salyards.

HIRST.—At her late home, in Missouri Valley, Iowa, on July 18, 1899, Sr. Minnie L. Hirst. Sr. Minnie was born in Harrison County, Iowa, January 4, 1877, and at the time of her death was 22 years, 5 months, and 14 days old. She leaves a husband, and little Jessie, and one brother to mourn her untimely death. Sr. Minnie united with the church at Persia, Iowa, September 6, 1887. Funeral sermon by Bro. A. M. Fyrando. The remains were laid to rest in Persia cemetery.

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS. (Volumes 1 and 2 now ready.) Provided for by action of General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Written and compiled by President Joseph Smith and Apostle Heman C. Smith. Invaluable as a correct historical narrative, as a means of conversion to truth, and as a defensive weapon in meeting old and new objections urged against the latter-day work. It contains important documents connected with the establishment, growth, and internal and external affairs and progress of the church. The revelations given in this dispensation are inserted, in connection with accounts of the circumstances under which they were given. Biographical sketches, illustrations, complete indexes, sidenotes for ready reference, etc., are some of the features of the work. Volume 1 begins with the birth of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer, in 1805, and narrates the circumstances of his calling and ministry, the rise of the church in 1830, and until the close of the year 1835. Volume 2 continues the history up to June 27, 1844, —to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum Smith.

WANTS A CHURCH GARDEN.

A suggestion that the Edelweiss garden, at Cottage Grove avenue and Fifty-first street, might be used for religious meetings comes from the Rev. Johnson Henderson of Armour Mission, who, in searching for an illustration of his principle that the churches may learn from the saloons, stated that such a church would be the one he would desire and that the Edelweiss orchestra could furnish the music he would prefer for services.

"I don't wish to be sensational," he said. "I don't wish to be misunderstood as favoring the saloon. But there are some things for which the saloons stand that would be good for the churches. How would I make a practical application? Well, I should like to preach at the Edelweiss garden and I should like to have the music of its orchestra. The people go to such places, or would go if they could."

Mr. Henderson holds that the churches need the democratic spirit of the saloon, that they need its aggressiveness, its aptness in adapting itself to changed conditions, and the readiness with which it meets the demands of its patrons. His opinion is based upon close observation of the saloons of the Seventeenth Ward, which he made the chief objects of his study during his residence at Chicago Commons settlement.

"I studied the saloons in the Seventeenth Ward carefully," he said. "I know just what they do to get patronage. They furnish music and decorations because they could not sell beer without doing it. The saloon is a wonderfully wideawake, progressive, and energetic institution. I know all about the attractions they furnish to draw people, their gymnastic appliances, their free lunches, newspapers, billiards, music, and cards.

"I suppose there are people who disagree with me and I suppose I shall be condemned hastily by some people. I do not wish to be sensational in the matter and I do not favor the saloon.

"One of the prime faults of the modern church is its exclusiveness. The saloon is democratic. It is a free meeting place for all classes. I had an illustration of the exclusiveness of the church some time ago. A clerk in one of the dry goods stores downtown told me that a young woman, who was associated with him in Sunday school work, came in the store one day in company with another young woman. The young man offered to speak to the young woman whom he knew in Sunday school work and she became highly indignant. She reported him to the management and he was discharged. She was willing to know him in church, but not out of it. The young man never went into a church again."

Mr. Henderson was asked how he would apply anything that the saloon might be able to teach the church to Armour Mission.

"That would be difficult," he replied. "Mr. Armour will not permit an organization to have charge of the mission, and without an organized body one cannot do much in this way. I believe in the institutional church. I would have clubs and athletics. I would have literary bodies and I would furnish amusement. I favor the theater, and I do not oppose dancing. I would have the best amateur baseball club right out of the Sunday school."

The Rev. Mr. Henderson . . . announces that as soon as he is able he intends to outline in a course of sermons the application he would make of the principle that the saloon may be the instructor of the church.—Chicago Tribune, August 15, 1899.

WHEN INCENSE IS LAWFUL.

The cabled summary of the decision of the Archbishops of Canterbury and York concerning the use of incense in church omitted to give the single mode in which incense may be used lawfully. According to these eminent prelates incense was used in two ways prior to the reformation. It was used ceremonially after the fashion of the Ritualists, and also for purposes of fumigation. When there was a bad smell in the church incense was burnt to smother it, just as musk and other strong perfumes were used to hide stenches in royal palaces. This last use of incense is still lawful.

The Archbishops say that by act of Parliament ministers are prohibited to use any ceremony not ordered in the prayer-book. As the ceremonial use of incense is not ordered, it is prohibited. But its use is not permanently excluded. New ceremonies may be ordered by the crown, with the consent of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and in them the use of incense may be permitted. The clergy, however, must take the prayer-book as they find it, and if they burn incense it must be outside the worship, to sweeten the church. That is the way George Herbert used it. The Archbishops do not say that incense is in itself an undesirable accompaniment to divine worship. For it was used by divine authority in the Jewish Church. Its use in the English Church, however, is not authorized.

The Archbishops decide that lights cannot be carried in procession as a part of the worship, for the prayer-book does not permit it. But decorating a church with flowers or holly or lighting it up brilliantly is permissible, even though the prayer-book does not mention these things. They are not acts of worship.

The Episcopal Church in this country is quite independent of the Archbishop of Canterbury and of acts of Parliament. His decisions will have no weight with American Ritualists, who, if he attempts to enforce any against their English brethren, will call him "a persecutor of the saints." In this land of the free, an Episcopal minister can burn incense before, after, or during service, to kill a smell or to make a smell, and none can object to any purpose save his parishioners. If the incense makes them sneeze or cough they can protest, and if he keeps on incensing them they can go to another church. Probably if Americans fancied the smell of incense greatly more of it would be used in churches.—Chicago Tribune, August 16.

"When a splinter has been driven deeply into a child's hand it can be extracted by steam. Nearly fill a wide-mouthed bottle with hot water, place the injured part over the mouth and press slightly. The suction thus produced will draw the flesh down, and in a minute or two the steam will extract splinter and inflammation together."

Father Walworth's "Reminiscences of a Catholic Crisis in England Fifty Years Ago," now running in the Catholic World Magazine, describes in a delightful way his experiences among the peasantry, both English and Irish.

A GRAND OLD RUIN.

Large as is the elephant he is a small and weak creature beside the fossil monster called the dinosaur that has been unearthed near Laramie in Wyoming. Even the whale could cut no figure in comparison with this colossal animal whose footsteps shook the earth, and which was perhaps the largest creature that ever lived on it. The fossil bones, which alone weigh 20 tons, are 130 feet in length. It is hard to get an accurate idea of the thing as it appeared in life. It probably weighed 60 tons, had a neck 30 feet long and a tail 60 feet long. The ribs are about 9 feet long and the cavity of the body with the lungs and entrails out would have made a hall 34 feet in length and 16 feet in width, covered by an arch 12 feet high. Forty people could have been comfortably seated inside the dinosaur. Four cavalymen could easily have ridden abreast between his fore and hind legs, provided he had not objected. Prehistoric man, had he lived during the age of the dinosaur, and killed one, could have cut a round steak from the ham at least twelve feet in diameter, and the butcher could have taken out a bone 12 by 14 inches. Every time he put down his foot the animal covered a square rod of earth and must have settled the earth like a steam road roller. Fortunately nature gave the beast a head no larger than a ten gallon keg, so that he probably had little brain and was sluggish in his disposition. In the presence of this 20 ton skeleton how futile seems the claim of the Europeans that we have no ruins in this country.—Cameron Observer.

CHURCHES AND SALOONS.

Brother Moody thinks the church can learn something from the roof garden. The Rev. Mr. Henderson, who preached at the Armour Mission last Sunday, thinks the church can learn something from the saloon. These sentiments may shock men who believe that the saloon is a den of iniquity which can teach no good lessons, but it must be admitted that the success of a saloon or of a church depends on ability to get an audience, and if the saloon, by the use of methods which are not bad in themselves, can draw a crowd, there is no reason why the church may not resort to the same methods, in order to draw crowds into the sanctuary.

The Rev. Mr. Henderson says the methods of the church are antiquated and threadbare, and that it does not adapt itself to changed conditions, as the saloon does—that the church is trying to work now exactly as it did a century or two ago. That is not quite fair to the church or to the churches. There are few of them which have not changed or added to their methods, and which do not do a great many more things to keep in touch with the world than a century ago. The churches look out after the young people as they never used to. Church creeds and services remain unaltered, but the churches do not depend on services and sermons as they used to.

According to the Rev. Mr. Henderson the saloon is aggressive and it is democratic. It is a "common meeting ground for the masses and the clubhouse of the poor." The church, on the other hand, has "relied too much on mere talk" until ministers are preaching to empty pews. Too many churches, it is alleged, have "an exclusive character," often based on no higher standard than money. But the preacher did not tell how a church which is exclusive, as some are, is to shake off its exclusiveness and democratize itself. Nor did he tell what aggressive policy the church should pursue which it has not already tried, or which some section of the church has not tried. It is easy to tell churches to learn something from the saloons, but what is it specifically they shall borrow? Shall they start temperance refreshment rooms in church basements, for instance, and offer a free lunch to all who attend divine service?—Chicago Tribune, August 15, 1899.

PRUSSIAN LANDTAG.

Emperor William's failure to control the Prussian Landtag must be a bitter pill for him to swallow. Things had gone his own way in the past. While the one man, one vote principle obtains in the election of members to the empire's Reichstag, Prussia is still governed by the electoral law of 1850, which provides for indirect election. The voters are divided into three classes, according to the amount of taxes they pay, and each class chooses an equal number of electors, who choose the members of the Landtag. Wealth therefore controls the election of Deputies, and the masses have but slight chance against the middle class and the wealthiest. In the 1898 elections the Socialists, Radicals, and all the Democratic and Liberal voters combined with the Clericals. The result was a victory for the opposition, who elected 229 of the 433 Deputies, although 100 of the majority are Clericals, while the Radicals have but 35. Yet the alliance is able to oppose the Emperor's plans for the first time in the history of Prussia.—Ex.

NOTE FROM BIBLE READING.

But the most sublime phenomenon of shooting stars of which the world has furnished any record, was witnessed throughout the United States on the morning of the 13th of November, 1833. The entire extent of this astonishing exhibition has not been precisely ascertained; but it covered no inconsiderable portion of the earth's surface. . . . The whole heavens seemed in motion, and suggested to some the awful grandeur of the image employed in the Apocalypse, upon the opening of the sixth seal, when "the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind."—Burritt's Geography of the Heavens, p. 163, ed. 1854.

END OF THE NESTORIAN SECT.

Protestant and Roman Catholic missionaries have made many efforts recently to make proselytes among the Nestorians, who have now gone over almost in a body to the Greek Church. Those in Russia are now within the fold; those in Turkey alone remain outside, and it is expected that the latter will shortly follow their brethren into the Greek communion. The Nestorians have existed as a separate sect since the fifth century, and their number last year was estimated at 80,000, chiefly living in Russia, Turkey, and Persia. The founder of the sect was Nestorius, a Syrian Bishop, who raised a schism in the Christian church by declaring the existence of two distinct persons as Christ, united solely by a unity of will and affection. Under the califs Nestorianism thrived and claimed 1,000,000 adherents, but gradually the sect has died out, and now its remnants have joined the Greek Church.—Ex.

ALL THE WORLD SPEAKS ENGLISH.

Stepping on board one of the neat little steam launches that ply about the city I was addressed in fluent English by the Swede in charge. "Wherever did you learn such excellent English?" said I. "I've forgotten the biggest part of it, sir," said he, "but I served under the English flag for seventeen years." "Did you ever meet an English sailor who could speak Swedish?" I queried. The idea seemed to tickle him immensely, and he burst out laughing, adding, "I never met an English sailor who could speak another tongue than his own, but he's no need to, for the first language a native shopkeeper learns in any foreign port is English."—London Spectator.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for September contains a remarkably attractive group of contributed articles. The timeliness of the subjects treated is seen by a glance at the table of contents. The war in the Philippines is summed up by John Barrett; the outcome of The Hague conference is set forth by W. T. Stead; the subject of trusts is discussed by George E. Roberts and by Henry Macfarland; Hezekiah Butterworth writes of "The Future Value of the New England Farm," while Prof. L. H. Bailey answers affirmatively the question, "Does Farming Pay?" Sylvester Baxter tells of the progress made by the State of Massachusetts in her public library system, and Gilbert K. Harroun describes the work of the Cuban Educational Association of the United States; a sketch of "The New Secretary of War" is contributed by Henry Macfarland, while Dr. William Hayes Ward writes of Colonel Ingersoll and Erica Glenton of the late Grand Duke George of Russia.

The completion of the million and a half dollar terminals of the Burlington Railroad at Quincy, Illinois, marks an important stage in the development of that system. It was only five years ago that the road built into St. Louis, and established there an enormous freight yard, with a capacity of 3,000 cars. Elsewhere, at Chicago, St. Paul, Kansas City, and Denver, the Burlington has facilities for handling freight and passengers that are unexcelled.

CONSECRATION, AND OTHER THINGS.

With five thousand heads of families as a basis from which to figure, a pretty fair view of the possible practical working of plans to establish a communal society may be had. It is much easier to say or write, "Something must be done," than to point out the way to do it.

Not one of those hitherto writing on the subject is a man of wealth. One, we believe, may have a few hundred acres of land of no very great value; which we presume he would have been willing to dispose of long ago, if he could have found a purchaser.

"Why not turn it in to the church treasury?" may be asked. It is answerable: Because the church could no more sell it than the brother can; and if not sold, it would be a burden, a tax paying burden to the church.

"Why not settle some poor saints on it?" is also asked. Because no one wants to go into that region to live on a farm; too hard work and too far from the body of the saints. It is a fact, and a stubborn one.

Perhaps three thousand out of the five thousand own the homes they are occupying; the other two thousand do not. Not many of the three thousand who do own their homes have much more than a competency while they are able to work. When they stop, either from desire or compulsion, their income stops. So, also, with the two thousand who do not own their homes. Many of this class are getting fair wages, but when sickness occurs, or work is stopped, the pay stops too. There is not a millionaire in the entire five thousand. We think we can count on the fingers of one hand all whose wealth at fair computation would reach from $50,000 to $100,000, and we are not sure of that. The wealth of these few is in land and its accompanying stock, farm machinery etc., all in use by them and those who help do the farming. As times are now, they could not sell; nor could they raise much ready money, if they wished so to do. There may be a few who have their wealth in mortgages, notes, bonds, bank stock, money in bank, etc.; but we do not know them and their wealth. The Lamoni State Savings Bank is the only institution owned and run by a company of those in the church. The laws of Iowa require a public statement of business every once in so long a time. The State Savings Bank's public statement shows well for the integrity of the men carrying it on, in spite of the adverse comments and flings of those who think all banking to be systems of robbery, and who know positively nothing about the men or their business. It is one sort of cooperation; and community reaps some benefit from it in a business way.

A brother started a broom factory, by outside help, we hear. A broom factory would make many brooms with few hands. But no one or ones could see their way clear to put money into the venture. He advertised broom corn seed and proffered to buy broom corn when ready to make up. How many choose to cooperate in that way? How many!

A brother invented an engine, advertised for a partner to make them; but failing to find one, went to another town where enterprise gave him a chance. How well he is doing we don't know. He deserves success. Being poor he could not spread out in business to employ others.

It is easy to figure, "Why, there are 50,000 of us. If each one would give ten cents a week for fifty weeks, it would be $5.00 each or a total of $250,000. And there surely is no one so poor in this church that they could not pay ten cents a week."

We have seen this statement sometimes, but have failed to see the practicability of it; for we know of many families the members of which do not have the ten cents a week to give, nor any way to earn them. As a rule, the giving falls on the head of the family, and five thousand of them would give but $25,000 for a year if all were able to give it.

It must be remembered in this connection that this ten cents referred to is an addition to all the charges the family may incur for living, for other church designs, for business, and local church expenses, all of which must be paid, and too frequently there is no surplus out of which to pay the pitiful ten cents per week.

All the enterprises yet suggested make a supposition that a certain sum or sums be raised by donations, small and large, and the aggregate laid out in the purchase of lands, etc. The Bishop is not authorized to call for such donations for the purposes stated as a church measure. The law provides tithing and freewill offerings and consecrations, or the surplus; these the Bishop may receive. And when those of us who can are willing and ready to make a sacrifice, a consecration, there may be hope that some start will be made.

That individuals and associations of several persons may buy lands and settle on them is conceded as their right; but, as it is charged by some that the church is at fault because there is not now a full care of the poor, and a community of interests, "all things common" system, we have been curious to know who the church was, or who was meant by the term, "the church."

Who is to be blamed for the failure? None of the leading men of the church is engaged in temporal business affairs, none of the Presidency, none of the Twelve, and we believe none of the Seventy; a very few of the High Council are, or have been; but the majority are not, and are by no means rich, counting riches as men of the world count them.

"If we had forty to fifty thousand dollars to begin with, we could appoint men and start a colony, and furnish employment for many of the poor people of the church;" is frequently said by a man here and there.

Yes, if a man or a few men had that sum to put into a colonizing scheme, it could be employed in a colonizing scheme; or a cooperative industry plant somewhere, and employment be given to some.

Such a sum would buy several acres of land, which could be subdivided into small holdings and an agricultural community established there. It would attract some who have not means to buy land for themselves, and who would be willing to accept the aid to be thus afforded. At ten dollars per acre it would buy fifty farms of a thousand dollars each. There is not much eligible farming land to be bought in vicinity of markets for less than ten dollars per acre in any locality we know of.

When the land is bought, there are the improvements to be considered. These coming out of the original fund would lessen the amount of land which could be bought of such a fund by just so much.

"But all would not want a large piece of land; and forty acres of land is all any man can work by his own labor," is stated. "Nor is it intended that all shall be farmers. There must be all kinds of enterprises. Just so, and each sort will require to be looked after and provided, so that not only the heads of families but all the family of each head can find employment; and it is the duty of the church to make provision for all."

This is the problem, and how shall it be solved? Bro. Hilliard has one way; Bro. T. W. Williams has another; and several have others, all more or less differing one from another.

The Economy Society has now left of its splendid venture nine members, seven women and two men. One of the men is in charge of the property, and he is a man of business, or a business man.

The Amana Society of Iowa has many hundreds of acres of land, workshops, factories, and other concomitants of a communal society; but the membership has fallen off by reason of some sort of material or social dry rot until there is much too large a percentage of nonproducers; so that, as contrasted with the general citizenship of the State the ratio of production per individual is as $2.75 to $2.50 against the society and in favor of the conditions obtaining in the State. Bad as the competitive system obtaining in the State of Iowa is held to be by some of those who have written and talked up the communal phase, the result in the case of the Amana Society is against it.

The Ruskin Colony begun so auspiciously a few years ago in the South has broken up, and its membership scattered. It is claimed that a part of the society still holds to the original scheme and will establish the effort somewhere else, where the conditions are more favorable. And so it goes.

"If man would only do right?"

Yes, if they would, then there would be little necessity for any anxiety over the final outcome. But, men are as they are, and no amount of philosophical argument will change them. A sense of individual need is the spur to action, and at the same time the dread and nightmare of the social fabric.

The evil of each day's existence is sufficient for the time, without undue worry about the future; yet our orators are prone to magnify the sadness of human existence present with a gloomy outlook for the future, in the physical life; which is contrary to the injunction, "Take no thought for tomorrow."

The church is the collective mass of believers, and anyone using the word in a restricted sense as applying to the few who are constructively leaders may speak unadvisedly when reflecting blame upon somebody for failures to relieve the pressure of a supposed stricture of wealth vs. poverty. For this reason it is wise that men speak and write carefully.

Orders of Enoch are available if men choose to engage in them. They are lawful, so far as the law in Doctrine and Covenants is stated; and they can be made and carried on in accord with the law of the land.

Coöperative schemes are permissible, and there are numbers of them from the small ventures in which labor is the chief integral part and small money means is the smaller or auxiliary, to the gigantic trust in which money capital is the all-powerful lever and labor but the fulcrum on which such lever rests to create great results. Both are combines, both are trusts; the difference being in size and possible motive, more than in principle of action. Each is organized to increase itself, and is successful if properly managed. In the one case there may be present in too great a measure the love of filthy lucre; and in the other, too little of worldly wisdom.

CHAPEL DEDICATED.

SERVICES BY REORGANIZED CHURCH OF LATTER DAY SAINTS HELD YESTERDAY.

EDIFICE ON BELLEVUE AVENUE WAS CROWDED TO THE DOORS.

The Dedicatory Address Was Made by Joseph Smith of Lamoni, Iowa, Son of the Founder of the Faith, and Other Prominent Mormons Were Present.—Services Conducted by Joseph Luff of Independence, Missouri.

The Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints dedicated their chapel on Bellevue Avenue yesterday morning. The single room of the edifice where the exercises were held was crowded and there were not seats for all that attended. On the platform, which was decorated with palms and cut flowers, were prominent representatives of this branch of the Mormon faith. The central figure was Joseph Smith of Lamoni, Iowa, son of the man who found the Book of Mormon and established the faith. He is the head figure of the Mormon sect that disavows polygamy. With him were Rev. George A. Gates, president of the corporation of the chapel; Rev. George H. Smith, the local pastor; Joseph Luff of Independence, Missouri, who led the meeting; Rev. M. H. Bond of Providence; Elder George Robley, formerly of Providence, a missionary in Philadelphia; Apostle Alexander Smith of Lamoni, Iowa, brother of Joseph Smith; F. M. Sheehy, who comes from Boston, a missionary in California.

After the opening devotional service Rev. George A. Gates read a letter announcing that the chapel, which had been built after many trials at a cost of $4,500, had been cleared of its mortgage of $2,300. On March 17, 1899, when the semiannual interest, which had been at the rate of six per cent per annum, was due, the mortgage had been cancelled. A warranty deed had been made out to Bishop Kelley of Lamoni, Iowa. Joseph Smith, holding the deed in his hand, arose while the letter was read. Mr. Luff then announced that Joseph Smith would make the dedicatory address.

Mr. Smith is a man of powerful build, resembling the patriarchs of old, with his long, white beard. His eyes are prominent and give him a peculiar aspect. In speech he is quiet, with no attempt at oratorical effect, and in what he had to say he appeared to be thoroughly in earnest. His sermon was of a very general nature. He referred to his own religious experience and to the work of his father. In just a sentence he spoke of the relation of this branch of Mormonism to marriage. Taking as his text a portion of the eighth chapter of Paul's epistle to the Hebrews, Mr. Smith said in outline:—

"One of the principal questions that arises before us in the dedication of a chapel of this sort to the worship of God is this: What shall be the character of the teaching that shall take place from the pulpit? What shall be the nature of the doctrine disseminated and what the character of the moral teaching? The New Testament makes a marked distinction between the old and the new dispensation. It is clear to us that God is unchangeable. While mankind may change in their opinions, beliefs, and methods, God's ways are unaffected. We always know where to go and upon what to rely in exigencies touching the service of God.

"We know that it is a part of God's plan to save the human race. By the teaching of Jesus Christ, man is to have salvation. Our theory contemplates that from the beginning Jesus, the Christ, had never lost sight of this doctrine. He did not come to judge, but to save the world. There is some latitude in his teaching. In the last day he will judge.

"In one of the revelations given to the church in 1831 the doctrine is stated that if a man continue in his disbelief he shall be damned. One thing stated was that the economy of the gospel of Jesus Christ should be continued. It is said that those who have heard the marvelous bells of the Kremlin in Moscow involuntarily take off their hats. Wherever there is worship we can worship in spirit. Men are to worship in spirit and in truth. In spirit alone is not sufficient. We must worship in truth. The question for us as Latter Day individuals is what is the truth. I wonder whether that same spirit is with the people now as in the days of their fathers, who drove forth Roger Williams. There is a spirit of intolerance there.

"Sometimes it seems the more freedom of intellect allowed in searching for the truth the more we wander away from it. In one sense of the word I have affinity with the iconoclasts of the period. My reason is that I feel sure that that which is not of the truth will go down before such attacks, and the better it is for us. It is well that the myths of the past should be destroyed. But when these men attack the truth we have a right to take a safeguard. We may hear. We have a right to do that. If you follow the New Testament you can tell whether these individuals are telling the truth or not.

"You will pardon me if I diverge for a moment to take up a personal matter. I came to Providence with the prestige of being the son of Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism. I am not accountable for being his son. I am only accountable for the use I have made of myself as his son. The question must arise, what was my choice in a spiritual sense. When I started to study law my mother gave me a King James version of the Scriptures and told me that she had no desire to influence my choice. I had heard something of it and I read it and saw the differences between it and that in which I had been brought up. When I took to myself a wife I told her before answering the important questions she must leave me free in religious matters so that I might unite with any body that seemed to me to possess the truth. The thought came to me in reading this book that here was the threefold testimony. If God is unchangeable, here was the constant basis of the church. I have not seen a line that ever was published that warranted such a divergence as took place in 1845, '46, and '47, up to 1890. In the judgment day I shall stand on these three books and my obedience to them. If condemnation follows then it would be cruel and unjust. What think ye of it?"

"We do not expect that the theories we represent will be popular in the largest sense of the word. Let me enjoy you that you walk worthy of your high calling. Teach by example as well as by precept. I trust that in the presentation of what we consider the truth there will be consideration of the faiths of other men. What comes from the pulpit is public property, and we have a right to weigh it. But in attacking error, it is not necessary to attack the individual. We are to obey the law of the land until Christ comes, who will reign in majesty and power. The rule of a king has no terror for us, and we look with a considerable degree of complacency on certain things that are taking place to-day." Mr. Smith closed with summing up the general duties of the followers of the faith.

Mr. Gates, as president of the corporation, then handed the key of the church to Rev. Joseph Smith. Mr. Smith accepted the key, and with it the liberty of the church, and presented it to the presiding elder, with the injunction that he should see to it that the church was kept open.

Rev. M. H. Bond then offered the dedicatory prayer, and after the collection and benediction by the pastor, the exercises came to a close. An impromptu reception followed, in which everyone shook hands with everyone else.

The dedicatory exercises were continued in the afternoon, with services at 2:30, and in the evening.—Providence, R. I., Journal, August 21, 1899.

SOUTHWESTERN IOWA REUNION.

The interest remained good until the end. The speakers were blessed with liberty, and were encouraged with attentive and appreciative audiences. The weather was fine, and though there was more sickness towards the close than at the beginning, the health was comparatively good. The attendance daily increased until the last day.

Bro. J. H. Hansen arrived on Thursday, and thereafter made Graceland College a prominent feature.

Bro. T. A. Hougas, by his restless activity, kept the Sunday school work to the front. The Sisters' Aid Societies were represented by zealous workers. The Religio had no representation. None of the Bishopric were there, nor were they represented by any of their agents. It was the general verdict that the reunion was a grand success, and the end was reached on Sunday night, the 27th ult., with many regrets. Provision was made for another reunion in 1900, by appointing a committee to make necessary arrangements, consisting of Brn. M. W. Gaylord, P. W. Frederickson, and Frank Becksted.

Monday morning, there was a general break-up, and the saints scattered to take up the threads of business life where they had laid them down ten days before.

We trust that new courage, inspiration, and zeal were imparted by the reunion, and that all will have their lives cast in pleasant places during the year. Four more were baptized, since last writing, by Bro. Henry Kemp: Emma M. Clites, Theodore E.

Skank, Jonathan C. Harrington, and Martin R. Groshong. We enjoyed the society of the earnest saints of Southwestern Iowa, and feel benefited by our association with them.

DES MOINES REUNION.

On Monday night, the 28th ult., we arrived at Runnells, Iowa, on the Wabash Railroad, fifteen miles southeast of Des Moines. We were met at the depot by Bro. C. Scott and conducted to a beautiful grove on the outskirts of the village, where the saints of Des Moines district were assembled in their first reunion.

The saints are not nearly so numerous here as in Western Iowa and some other places, but nearly all parts of the district are represented by zealous and earnest workers. We arrived on the fourth day of the gathering, and have now spent three days in the camp. A good and cheerful spirit prevails, and the meetings are much enjoyed. The proximity of the State Fair at Des Moines has detracted some from the interest and attendance, yet the congregations have been quite good, especially so at night, and considerable interest is manifested. Health is quite good, and social meetings are spiritual.

The local force has been represented by several faithful brethren, including Elders W. C. Nirk of Rhodes, J. W. Morgan of Perry, M. H. Cook of Des Moines, and J. P. Knox of Sandyville.

The general missionary force is represented by J. R. Lambert and Heman C. Smith of the Twelve; C. Scott and J. S. Roth of the Seventy; and T. J. Sheldon of the elders.

Dr. J. H. Hansen is here in the interest of Graceland College, and is at work.

The Sunday school and Religio have several fervent and earnest representatives present, under the general direction of Sr. Roxanna Gaylord of Lamoni. Up to present writing, Friday morning, September 1, there have been six baptized. The first reunion experience of the Des Moines district promises to be a success.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. F. Mintun, Sloan, Iowa, August 30:—

Tent work closed at Onawa last Sunday. Two were baptized, a Sunday school organized, and arrangement made for social services. Began tent meetings here last night.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Graceland College authorities have received a number of congratulations because of having secured the services of Professor Richard A. Harkness, and some express intention of coming to Graceland, in preference to schools formerly attended, on that account. Professor Harkness is widely and favorably known as an educator in the State of Iowa, and will take charge of the college and push its interests and its work with a vigor and talent based upon well qualified ability, and valuable experience. He has also been a leading factor at teachers' institutes, and is well known among the educational fraternity.

The Chicago Chronicle, August 29, has a sensational article on "Mormons in a hot fight," in which reference is made to the work of Utah elders and to that of Bro. J. M. Terry, Bro. G. H. Graves, and others of our brethren in Chicago, who are working diligently to get the true situation before the people. This article shows one thing at least — that the Utah Church and the Reorganized Church are two separate and distinct bodies. It seems that "Mormonism," so-called, is again being brought very prominently before the people — both the perversion of the faith and the faith pure and simple. It is the destiny of error and truth to appear, that both may be "made manifest." The Utah Church has attained much prominence, a prominence that is odious so far as its position on polygamy and some other evils is concerned, hence as a prominent faction it must be placed before the people for close inspection, for final analysis. But, in due time it will shrink away and become broken and riven by the forces of truth, which are actively undermining every plant which God has not planted. The present apparent aggressiveness of the Utah propaganda is but a weak effort, a very weak one; and we shall not be surprised to see pitiable evidences of its collapse at no distant day. As it is, its representatives fear to and will not defend its record or its claims, against the Reorganization.

Under the caption, "Who is right?" Bro. A. L. Lightfoot secured insertion of an article in the Granger, of Auburn, Nebraska, for August 25; in reply to wholesale criticisms on "Mormonism" by one Rev. Chamberlain, at the Auburn Chautauqua. It appears that a "terrific" fire was opened on the Mormons, with no opportunity to reply. This the Granger condemns and criticizes editorially. Bro. Lightfoot's article is well written, is published in double column squarely in the center of the paper on its first page, and altogether forms a piece of conspicuous advertising for the truth as taught by genuine Latter Day Saints. It was timely, as the Granger for July 28 shows that Brighamite elders had also been in that region.

Bro. Fred M. Smith returned to Lamoni from West Virginia on Sunday, the 27th. Bro. Fred has been engaged in the service of a telephone company operating in the States of Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. He has severed his connection with said company in order to take up work in Graceland as one of the instructors in the departments of science and mathematics.

Prof. George N. Briggs, superintendent of Lamoni Public Schools, has of late completed a canvass of the counties adjacent to Decatur County in Southwestern Iowa, in the interest of Graceland College. His canvass included attendance at various county teachers' institutes and calls upon graduates of high schools and others who contemplate entering upon college work. He realized a fair degree of success in his work and thinks there will be quite a number of students who would otherwise have gone elsewhere. He reports a number as much pleased with the head of the faculty of Graceland.

Sr. Bessie Braby, for a number of years employed in the bindery department of the Herald Office, was married on Sunday, the 27th, to Mr. Clarence Bootman, of West Plains, Missouri. Sr. Braby was widely and favorably known in Lamoni, and will be missed by many. We congratulate the happy couple. The ceremony was celebrated at Lone Rock, Missouri, Elder C. H. Jones officiating.

Sr. Ella Franc Rich, formerly instructor in shorthand and typewriting in Graceland, has severed her connection with the college work. Sr. Rich was married to Bro. Carlton Hawley, of Defiance, Iowa, on Tuesday, August 29, at the residence of Bro. and Sr. Criley; Bishop E. L. Kelley officiating in the service. The happy couple left the same day for their home, Defiance, Iowa, followed by the good wishes of their friends.

Bro. T. W. Chatburn, Santa Ana, California, August 27: "We have just closed a successful six days' discussion with E. G. Jones, of the Missionary Baptist order. Large audiences from start to finish. Interest good. We baptize to-morrow."

One "Dr. Hill" lectured recently at Moundsville, West Virginia, on the subject of "Mormonism," in which the usual indiscriminating attack on the faith was made without reference to facts past and present. To this Bro. J. F. McDowell offered strong and clear-cut objections, in an article published in the Wheeling Intelligencer, of August 31, in which the ground was cleared of erroneous statements and Dr. Hill given an opportunity to affirm his assertions in public discussion. Bro. McDowell wrote as if in good form and ready for the fray if necessary to enter upon a conflict. Every attack upon us furnishes an opportunity to wisely stand in defense of the work, to the enlightenment of the public mind.

DANCING: IS IT AN EVIL?

This, to-day, is a significant question, viewed in its relation to morality. What are its tendency and fruits? Does its exercise develop the moral quality of the mind and heart? Does dancing lend its influences to the elevation of the mind into the realm of moral purity, spiritual strength, and deepen the heart's love for God? Or does immoral enslavement and spiritual dearth and degradation hedge its paths? Which? Is it an angel of light, or are its ways devious and dark? Does it in reality enhance health, or does physical ailment more often lurk in its path? Answer, honestly, who will. And let your answer be that for which you would be judged by your children, future generations, and your God. I speak of dancing as we know it in history, and in society high and low in our times.

What moral principles support dancing, what religious or spiritual precepts, as we know religion, back it up? Are there any? What are they? Does it not beget the love of dissipation and sensual pleasure, more than the love of God and good?

Liquor and cards are the almost constant companions of dancing, and other evils continually seek its company. It cannot consistently be done in the name of Jesus Christ. Its practice does not beget added intelligence; no intellectual advancement attends it. It works no beneficial reforms. It was never known to rebuke wrong. It leads no one to repentance from sin. It never advocated the divine law. It knows no deity. Its God is sensual appetite, its practice drives away from the hearts of its devotees spirituality, and its fruit is moral paralysis, its end spiritual death.

It is not the "succession of rhythmical movement of the body," called dancing in the abstract, that we are treating of here. It is the "rhythmical figures and revolutions" of the body, as illustrated in the society entertainments, that is here referred to, and that calls to its shrine the high and the low, the good and the bad, the moral and the immoral, and seeks to place them all on a common level, and does for the time being, and places the lady and the renegade, the person of ill repute and the man or woman of good repute as one. And here all are brethren bowing at the same shrine, partaking of the same spirit, building character together alike, a like "benevolent assimilation" and reward.

ITS ORIGIN.

The origin of dancing is hid in ancient fable and legend. Original records of it find it among barbarians.

So far as we can know, it originated among the savage tribes of the earlier days. A fit origin for it. A fit mode of celebrating morbid and brutal victories, a religious mode of celebrating murder. A fit companion of death. A part of the religious worship of the ignorant idolaters of olden times. It is still a gleeful attendant of the vengeful orgies of our savage Indians. It originated among barbarous savages. It is a "relic of barbarism." It has no logical or legitimate place in civilization. It blunts and mars the roseate tints of civilization and refinement, and civilization should root it out, and let it die and be buried with all the rest of its uncivilized relations.

The ancient Egyptians ascribed its invention to their God, Thoth, and, hence, was a part of their idolatrous worship. It flourishes greenest where the true God and Creator is unknown. And, hence it is, dancing leads no one to the true God. When ancient Israel knew not yet the true God, they were at home in the dance before the golden calf. (Ex. 32: 6.) Israel had learned this in Egypt, the land typical of sin and death.

When we study the origin and tendency of dancing, is it any marvel that what was known as the "Dance of Death" was practiced in mediæval days? Practiced to represent the triumph of death.

Three dancing skeletons are sculptured on a sarcophagus near Cumæ, also on a Roman lamp, and in a Pompeiian fresco. And on an antique gem in the Royal Gallery at Florence, there is an old man (death) piping to a dancing skeleton. The attributes of Greek dancers were studied by the Greek sculptors in order to delineate the passions, anger, terror, vengeance. In the dancing mania of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries many of the victims entirely lost their wills, went into frenzies.

But is there not "a time to dance" as well as to do other things? Yes, when the anger, terror, vengeance, and brutality of the savage are memorialized, or we wish to remember grim-visaged skeletons, and incur spiritual death, and of which the skeleton dance is fitly a type. When you have an enemy on whose grave you feel like dancing, then dance!

Whence, then, the dance? It cannot be affirmed to be of God. It is no element of the gospel. It has no place in true Christianity. It gives birth to a laxness in morality, a looseness in deportment between the sexes that is foreign to true gentility and holy "reserve,"—that sanctuary of purity that gives forth confidence and a beauty unparalleled. By the dance revelry is lasciviousness roused into active life and operation. Lasciviousness, the forerunner of seduction and attendant crime. Lasciviousness, a seductive and condemnatory element in fallen and unregenerate nature. (2 Cor. 12: 21; Gal. 5: 19.) A wicked work of the flesh that closes the door of the heavenly kingdom against men. The dance makes welcome as attendants, jealousy, anger, terror, vengeance, swearing, drunkenness, lying, deception, and every other evil work. It smiles on, but never rebukes, these evils. It revels in the "crime" of pride. It seeks not the benediction of real prayer. It seeks not the sanctity of divine religion, it recommends not God and Christ, nor does it make aught of promise of heavenly, holy joys higher up or hereafter. It is not an innocent pastime for the young and the gay, therefore, but is spiritual dearth and final death instead. What greatness or goodness can be laid to its charge? What purifying, elevating, and exalting influences does it exert on society? What grand moral reforms has it wrought in the world? What religious inclination? Dancing has wrought no good in the world, but much evil. Whence, then, its origin? Let us listen to the words of wisdom freighted with the Spirit divine and seriously ponder ere we follow the flowery dance bubble too far.

For behold, a bitter fountain cannot bring forth good water; neither can a good fountain bring forth bitter water; wherefore a man being a servant of the devil, cannot follow Christ; and if he follow Christ, he cannot be a servant of the devil. Wherefore, all things which are good, cometh of God; and that which is evil, cometh of the devil; for the devil is an enemy unto God, and fighteth against him continually, and inviteth and enticeth to sin, and to do that which is evil continually. But behold, that which is of God, inviteth and enticeth to do good continually; wherefore, every thing which inviteth and enticeth to do good, and to love God, and to serve him, is inspired of God. Wherefore take heed, my beloved brethren, that ye do not judge that which is evil to be of God, or that which is good and of God, to be of the devil. For behold, my brethren, it is given unto you to judge, that ye may know good from evil; and the way to judge is as plain, that ye may know with a perfect knowledge, as the daylight is from the dark night. For behold, the Spirit of Christ is given to every man, that they may know good from evil; wherefore I show unto you the way to judge: for every thing which inviteth to do good, and to persuade to believe in Christ, is sent forth by the power and gift of Christ; wherefore ye may know with a perfect knowledge, it is of God; but whatsoever thing persuadeth men to do evil, and believe not in Christ, and deny him, and serve not God, then ye may know with a perfect knowledge it is of the devil, for after this manner doth the devil work, for he persuadeth no man to do good, no not one; neither doth his angels; neither do they who subject themselves unto him. And now, my brethren, seeing that ye know the light by which ye may judge, which light is the light of Christ, see that ye do not judge wrongfully; for with that same judgment which ye judge, ye shall also be judged. Wherefore I beseech of you, brethren, that ye should search diligently in the light of Christ, that ye may know good from evil; and if ye will lay hold upon every good thing, and condemn it not, ye certainly will be a child of Christ.—Moroni 7:8-16, large edition.

I am thankful for the foregoing embodiment of divine instruction as here given in the sacred Book of Mormon. The rule therein presented, as to the way to judge of institutions and practices and principles, as to their origin, nature, character, as to being good or evil, also their tendency and results, manifests its divinity by its simplicity,—plainness. And, judged in the light of this rule, that whatever invites and inclines to do good and leads to repentance and to God, is of God, and that which inclines us away from good and God is of the evil one, dancing must surely be adjudged evil in character and tendency, hence used of Satan to enslave the souls of the children of men. For evil, religious indifference and absolute wickedness are continually in the wake of the dance. I cannot find a Christian or human virtue in it. I would, for the sake of some of my friends, like to be able to find one single good, or virtue to attribute to the fantastic and fairy-like dance or its tendency, but, alas! I am unable to do so. I am unable to discern one.

"But," says the young man or woman, "I would rather dance than eat. It is my select and most preferred pastime or diversion."

Is that your reason for the indulgence? Your love of it? That same reason is given by others for the use of tobacco and intoxicants. Nor is dancing more popular than they.

"O, but my friends dance. I mingle with them there."

Do you meet only your friends and social equals there? Are you not perforce thrown into a social equality there, with those you would not associate with elsewhere? Young lady, are you not thrown into the company, and the arms of some in the dance you would not salute on the sidewalk or in the dramshop? What more virtue in being his equal in the dance than in the saloon? Are you uplifting him morally, or is he lowering you? Is he on the ascendant in the moral scale, or are you on the decline? Which? We must not think to don the Devil's armor to fight him with! He will overcome you sure.

"But, strip the dance of the admitted evils that attend it: liquor, high wines, cards, pride, gaudy display, and make it pleasant exercise."

Do that, and who and how many would attend? How long would it wear? It would be like the prayer service stripped of all else save the hymn book. The aged are too tired to go, they can pray at home, and the young would not be inclined to attend because it is too stale, dry, tasteless.

We assert, without the fear of successful contradiction, that dancing rouses into life the evil propensities of human nature, and leads to fruits of evil only. Like the reading of chaffy fiction, it begets a morbid condition of mind and body, a condition of unrest, of dissatisfaction that only storm waves of excitement can meet. To be satisfied out of a hurricane of excitement is entirely out of the question. No one of experience in the dance or reading of cheap fiction will deny this.

This being true, dancing works just the opposite of that crucifixion "with" Christ, of the works of the flesh, that is necessary in order to live with him, (Rom. 6:6,) and hence it helps those who engage in it to "serve sin," and the passions of sin are kept alive and we die to Christ and that which is good. This was noticeable as early as the days of Job. Of "the wicked" it was said,

They send forth their little ones like a flock, and their children dance. . . . Therefore they say unto God, Depart from us; for we desire not the knowledge of thy ways.—Job 21:11, 14.

Those who dance are led to "desire not the knowledge" of God's ways. How unchangeable are its tendencies. "How oft is the candle of the wicked put out."

ITS HISTORY AND ASSOCIATIONS.

All nations and tribes from the earliest days of history have observed dancing of some kind for some purpose. With some it was a religious observance, with others an expression of gladness over some signal blessing or fortune. But it is remarkable that it has always consented to be the handmaiden of ignorance, superstition, and diabolism. Among the ancient Greeks, when in their religious services they offered sacrifices to the "infernal deities," music was sometimes played while the worshipers "danced around the altars" while worshipping the devil or devils.

The ancient Egyptians, while following the dance custom, worshiped crocodiles, oxen, cats, and hawks as gods, and fought among themselves as to which of these gods was the greatest!

In the rude and undeveloped days of Israel, when just emerging from under the yoke of Egyptian bondage, and from the idolatrous customs of the land of darkness and slavery, when the Lord so wondrously delivered Israel from the hand of their oppressors, overwhelming them in the waters of the Red Sea, in Israel's exultation, many of their women led by Miriam, Moses' sister, went out with musical instruments and danced. But Israel was at this time without true conceptions of God,—was yet barbarous. (Ex. 15:20.)

Later, Israel danced in their idolatrous worship of the golden calf, and Aaron excused their dancing before the image, saying to Moses,

Thou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief. For they said unto me, Make us gods which shall go before us.—Ex 32:19-24.

Aaron made the idol, but Israel worshiped it by the acts of dancing. And these acts of dancing constituted one of the chief elements of idolatry, and so the Apostle Paul viewed it, and enjoined on saints under the New Testament law, saying to us, Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them [Israelites]; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.—1 Cor. 10:7.

It is noticeable in this connection that the Apostle places dancing here in company with "fornication," murmuring against God, tempting Christ, as being equally evil in the sight of God, and warns us against Israel's example. Also religious feasting when turned into an illegitimate channel, or purpose. And had dancing ever been recognized of God, how much more heinous the sin of devoting it to idolatry.

At a later date in Israel's history, the daughter of Jephthah went out with timbrels and in the dances of them that make merry to celebrate the victory of her father, the judge of Israel, over the Ammonite oppressors of Israel; but if we may credit the story of her later history, she was, after two months from the time of the great deliverance, offered on an altar as a sacrifice. (Judges 11.)

David's victory over the Philistines was celebrated by the daughters of Israel with music and dancing, but it worked him no good. King Saul became jealous of him, and he was banished from his people, wandering among strangers, and the King became David's enemy to the day of his death. (1 Sam. 17.)

It was once said in ancient Israel of the worship of God,

Let them praise his name in the dance.—Ps. 149:3.

But a great many things were said and done in ancient Israel that were not right, were not of God. Even before the days of King David, "in those days [when] there was no king in Israel, but every man did that which was right in his own eyes," the daughters of Israel held an annual dance (imitating the wicked predecessors of Israel in Canaan) near Shiloh, their place of worship, but the arrangement seems to have been a kind of exhibition to attract the attention of marriageable young men. (Judges 21:16-24.) After the days of David God found dancing among the evils for which Israel was carried into captivity by Babylon. (Lamentations 5:15.)

At the "birthday" festivities of Herod, king in Galilee, the daughter of his unlawful wife danced before the "lords," "high captains," and the other guests present, and the king was so intoxicated with her that at the request of her mother and herself he had the Lord's holy prophet, John Baptist, beheaded. Thus sensuality, murder, and dance joined hands, and the dance became the occasion of the murder. The woman with the murderous heart danced. But no murderous heart could truly pray to God. No one taught by the gospel could truly pray to God and dance at the same time. The two are alien to each other. Prayer retires with downcast eyes and heavy heart from the presence of the dance. The one cannot bid the other Godspeed! (Mark 6:17-28.) Could the dance have been inherently good in the abstract on that occasion and not have opposed and rebuked the murder?

When Laman and Lemuel and their company had forgotten God, and because of their evil disposition and rebellion against God and their godly brother Nephi, the prophet, they hardened their hearts, and while on the voyage of emigration from the Old World to the New, and after having "been driven before the wind for the space of many days," they, "their wives," "and the sons of Ishmael" "began to make themselves merry, insomuch that they began to dance, and to sing, and to speak with much rudeness; yea, even that they did forget by what power they had been brought thither; yea, they were lifted unto exceeding much rudeness." And when the Prophet Nephi rebuked them for their "iniquity," they refused to hear his entreaties, and went and bound him with cords so that he was imprisoned on board the ship he had builded for their deliverance. And in this as in all other cases, the dance had no meekness, no humility, no prayer, confession, or forgiveness in it. What practical good ever came of it? Echo answers, what good! (1 Nephi 5:113, large edition.) Nothing Christlike seems to ever attend or come of it.

From what we gather from this historical sketch of dancing, and from what you have seen and know of it, reader, would you recommend that saints dance? Can you afford, morally, to compromise the cause of Christ with the world and its ways, and tarnish his holy profession by engaging in dancing? Can we keep ourselves "unspotted from the world" and follow dancing? Can you, as a saint of God, mix the dance and "pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father" and be guiltless? (James 1:27.) Can you indeed be a follower of Jesus Christ, and follow him in the dance? Come! Answer! (Matt. 10:38.) Can saints engage in the dance and not be "conformed to the world"? (Rom. 12:2.)

Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting.—Gal. 6:7, 8.

Can saints engage in the dance and not sow to the flesh? and not reap corruption? Can they patronize the dance and "abstain from all appearance of evil?" (1 Thess. 5:22.)

For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God.—Rom. 8:5-8.

For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—Verses 13, 14.

As many as are led by God's Spirit are his. No more. As many of you as are led by the Spirit of God to dance, speak up, that we may have your testimony. But be sure you do not mistake your carnal appetite and fleshly desire for the leading of God's Holy Spirit. Is your parlor a dancing platform and an altar of prayer, the one at evening and the other at morning? Do you make both of the same material.

Another has suggested that "the parlor dance bears the same relation to the ballroom that the social glass does to the saloon," and is this not true? And what effect does the parlor ball have on your life in its gospel relation? Can you consistently invite the friends you oftentimes meet in the dance to attend the Sunday school and gospel services with you? What effect has your dancing on the church in its relation to your outside friends and associates? Care you not whether they be saved? Some of my young friends, baptized two years after I was, told me they watched me during those years to see the effect of my obedience on my life. What would have been the effect on their lives here and hereafter had I failed during those two years? Now while it is true that our failure to live the truth does not render it untrue, yet the way we live does affect the lives of others. Our Savior knew this, hence he said,

Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. . . . Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matt. 5:14, 16.

Says the Savior,

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.—Rev. 3:20.

After having opened the sacred door of your heart to the Savior by accepting the gospel and obeying it, and you have thereby admitted him,—his Holy Spirit,—do you take him with you to the dance, have him cutting the figures of the cotillion, and gliding around in the waltz? Or do you grieve him away by inviting him to vacate that morally swept and garnished palace, and give way to another, opposed to him, while you dance? Is your heart to be a fountain whence flows both good and evil?

To whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness.—Romans 6:16.

"Ah," you say, "is it not asking too much of me to ask me to give up this diversion, this dissipating pastime? It is my pleasure, my delight."

Which is your greater pleasure, delight, the dance or the prayer service? The dance or the divine worship? Cheap fiction or the word of God? To dance or to pray? The dance or to visit the home of the lonely and the needy and afflicted? To gratify self in the dance or heal the sorrowful heart?

You answer, "I do both."

Granted, but which is your greater pleasure? Into which do you enter most heartily? Which costs you the most, all things counted? Which of the two do you invest in the more freely?

Can one give up too much of the world and evil for Christ? There was home, heaven, glory, bliss, angels, purity, peace, music, and eternal felicity in his Father's house on high, while he walked this vale of tears, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, but he left it all for you,—for thirty years,—all for you! He rejected the kingdoms of this world and all their glory for you and me. He refused the sparkling waters of heaven and drank the bitter cup,—wormwood and gall,—and by so sacrificing he won a glorious victory over the world, evil, sin, and all its fleshly, carnal delights and degrading, enslaving pleasures. And now he offers to aid you and me to gain a like victory, and to make us equal heirs with him of all those joys, glories, and heavenly pleasures and delights that he left above for awhile, pleasures and delights that are everlasting if we, following his leading, availing ourselves of his aid, achieve the victory over sin, the flesh, and evil. He has asked you to give up only that which enslaves, degrades, and results in spiritual death. The dance and its low accompaniments does carry death in its wings and bosom. Exchange death for life.

If ye live after the flesh, ye shall die.

Now I pray to God that ye do no evil. And I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of your Lord Jesus Christ. Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it.—1 Thess. 5:23, 24.

BOONEBORO, Iowa, June 5, 1899.

The following pathetic advertisement appeared the other day in a Lebanon, Pa., paper: "Public Notice—I hereby notify all saloon and hotel keepers, or any other persons, not to furnish liquor of any kind to me, as I am making an effort to quit the drinking habit, and cannot do so as long as anyone will give me liquor."

THE TWO COVENANTS.—NO. 2.

THE BIBLE IS THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE NEW TESTAMENT; OR, THE OLD AND THE NEW COVENANTS.

BY ELDER JOSEPH F. BURTON.
INTO EGYPT.

While Jacob dwelt in Canaan, Joseph, being seventeen years old, was sold by his brethren into Egypt, where by the blessing of God he became a great ruler; and as he had received knowledge of a seven years' famine which should come upon that land, he made preparation to save the nation. Because of that great famine Jacob and his family went into Egypt, and were allotted a dwelling place in Goshen, where they abode as God had shown to Abraham. Jacob died there, and his sons took him into Canaan and buried him in the cave of Machpelah, where were buried Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebekah. Joseph lived until he was one hundred and ten years old. He died and was embalmed in Egypt.

As the years passed on all the sons of Jacob died, and their children's children increased wondrously, and there arose a king in Egypt who was afraid that the rapidly multiplying Hebrews would become a power which might overthrow his nation, and he sought to stay their increasing; severe burdens were put upon them, and harsh taskmasters required unusual labor of them. Then there arose Moses among them, who, interfering in a quarrel between an Egyptian and a Hebrew, slew the Egyptian and fled from the country, for Pharaoh sought his life.

Moses went to the land of Midian. There he dwelt with Jethro, a priest of Midian, whose daughter Zipporah he married. As he kept the flock of Jethro, he led them to Horeb, and the angel of the Lord appeared to him in a flame of fire, out of the midst of a bush, and said unto him, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob; and I am come to deliver my people out of the hands of the Egyptians, and to bring them unto the place of the Canaanites. (See Ex. 3.) This is in fulfillment of the promise to Abraham, and thus was Moses sent of God to deliver the children of Abraham from bondage, and to lead them into Canaan.

And the Lord said unto Moses in Midian, Go, return into Egypt: for all the men are dead which sought thy life.—Ex. 4:19.

OUT OF EGYPT.

Moses went upon his mission, and after a succession of most marvelous judgments of God upon Egypt and the Egyptians, Pharaoh let Moses and the Hebrews depart from Egypt. But he afterwards sent his hosts after them. They were destroyed in the Red Sea.

Then Moses taught them of Christ and of the gospel, as Abraham had in his day. Paul when speaking of Moses and of Israel after coming out of Egypt says:—

For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them.—Heb. 4:2.

He also says in 1 Corinthians 10:1-5:—

Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ.

And in Hebrews 11:26 Moses esteemed "the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt," so we learn that the gospel of Christ was preached to them, but it did not profit them, for through unbelief they hardened their hearts, and would not abide in its doctrines.

But it must be remembered that that wonderful people had been many years in bondage under a heathen and an idolatrous nation, and the brightness of full independence and freedom, in contrast with their former condition of servitude, and the light of the gospel of Christ, the religion of their father Abraham was too bright and dazzling to their eyes,—they could not assimilate it,—and breaking away from years of enforced obedience, they would not willingly obey when they knew that there was no iron-handed taskmaster to enforce obedience; and they had for so long a time witnessed the worship of God personified as one of the planets or an animal or some other visible object, they could not easily worship him who to them was invisible; so they refused the gospel, rejected it and Christ, and not being willing to abide in that higher law, a lesser law must be given to them, which would keep them from extermination until Christ, the seed of Abraham should appear to them in bodily form; and to this end were they led to mount Horeb, and there the Lord would appear on mount Sinai, and give to them laws which should be to them as a schoolmaster, to bring that nation back to Christ.

When Moses received his commission to go down and release Israel, he inquired of the Lord thus: When they ask me, What is the name of the God of our fathers, who sent you to us, what shall I say unto them? And he answered and said, "Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, 'I AM hath sent me unto you.'"—Ex. 3:14. And fifteen hundred years after this Jesus said to the descendants of that people, "Before Abraham was, I AM."—John 8:58. Therefore I AM was the God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, and was Jesus of Nazareth, the Redeemer of men.

THE ISRAELITES AT SINAI.

The multitude of Israelites were gathered at the foot of mount Sinai. They were about to receive the laws which were to guide them as a nation. Great preparations were made. The Lord was about to impress upon the minds of the children of Israel the truth that the God which had led them out of Egypt was not a God of wood or stone, and they were about to witness a display of power which would ever after impress upon their minds the fact that Israel's God was a God of power, might, and majesty. And thus do the Israelites still regard that manifestation of power on Sinai, at the giving of the law, the covenant.

That manifestation of divine power was not made for the purpose of fixing extraordinary value upon that portion of the law received that day, but was for the purpose of establishing in the minds of that people the truth that their God was a God of power and majesty always, or as Moses said of this matter, "God is come to prove you, and that his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not."—Ex. 20:20. Not on that day only, but always, certainly, the words of the Lord to Israel were as authoritative, and as much the word of the Lord which were uttered say forty years after as were those words from Sinai upon that day. But that was the beginning, and it was a blessing to Israel in after years as well as then that such a wondrous display of power was made. But we will read the record:—

And it came to pass on the third day in the morning, that there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud; so that all the people that was in the camp trembled. And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount. And mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the Lord descended upon it in fire: and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly. And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice. And the Lord came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount: and the Lord called Moses up to the top of the mount; and Moses went up.—Ex. 19:16-20.

Then the Lord told Moses to go down and warn the people not to come up to the mount lest they perish, after which the Lord "spake all these words," the ten commandments.

And all the people saw the thunders, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking: and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off. And they said unto Moses, Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die. And Moses said unto the people, Fear not: for God is come to prove you, and that his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not. And the people stood afar off, and Moses drew near unto the thick darkness where God was.—Ex. 20:18-21.

This visible display of power produced the awe which was designed, that Israel might have the fear of God before their faces, that they sin not, for there was yet before them the long, wearisome journeyings in the wilderness, before they would enter the promised land. And how often was his divine love and power manifested toward them, and how often did they refuse his counsel; Israel, so much beloved for their father's sake, so erring, so impatient, so disobedient. O Israel, how wayward thou; how merciful and kind thy God!

THE COVENANT MADE AT SINAI.

The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb. The Lord made not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day.—Deut. 5:2, 3.

And He wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.—Ex. 34:28.

All Bible believers are agreed as to the fact that God made a covenant with Israel at Sinai, but all are not agreed as to what that covenant was. Whatever it was, it was to be abolished, done away with, and another covenant take its place. It therefore is important that we should know, if possible, what that covenant was, and when it should cease to be operative. And that we may know beyond a reasonable doubt what that covenant was, we present the following:—

The first verse of Exodus 20 is, "And God spake all these words, saying." Then follows the ten commandments. After which God spake to Moses, and Moses spake to the people by their request, and those words are called in verse one of chapter 21, "These are the judgments which thou shalt set before them," and then follows in chapters 21, 22, and 23, a list of those judgments, and in chapter 24 we read:—

And Moses came and told the people all the words of the Lord, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, All the words which the Lord hath said will we do. And Moses wrote all the words of the Lord, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and twelve pillars, according to the twelve tribes of Israel. And he sent young men of the children of Israel, which offered burnt offerings, and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen unto the Lord. And Moses took half of the blood, and put it in basins; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar. And he took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people: and they said, All that the Lord hath said will we do, and be obedient. And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold the blood of the covenant, which the Lord hath made with you concerning all these words.—Ex. 24:3-8.

There can be no reasonable doubt that this is the covenant from Sinai which is alluded to by the apostle in the third and fourth chapters of Galatians.

Are the ten commandments in that covenant? or more correctly speaking, are the judgments in that covenant? for that the ten commandments is that covenant, is placed beyond doubt by the inspired writer.

It is stated by some that the ten commandments are one code of laws, and that the judgments, or ordinances, are another code of laws. If so they would have distinctive titles. The title of the ten commandments in Exodus 20:1 is, "God spake all these words;" or in other words, "The words of the Lord." And the title of the ordinances in Exodus 21:1 is, "These are the judgments;" or in other words, their title is, The judgments.

In Exodus 34 we read that Moses went up unto mount Sinai and that the Lord said to him, Write thou these words: for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee and with Israel.—Verse 27.

Who made the covenant? The Lord. With whom? With Moses and Israel. What "words of the covenant" which God made with Moses and Israel was Moses commanded to write?

And He wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.—Ex. 34:28.

How was that covenant made with Israel? This we have shown by the quotation above, from Exodus 24:1-8, but will recapitulate that we may be sure we are right. Moses came and told the people all "THE WORDS OF THE LORD" and all "the judgments," and they said, "All THE WORDS OF THE LORD" will we do. Then Moses wrote "THE WORDS OF THE LORD," after which he read the covenant from the book, and the people answered, All "THE WORDS OF THE LORD" will we do and be obedient, and when Moses sprinkled the blood upon the people, he said, Behold the blood of the covenant which the Lord hath made with you concerning these words, "THE WORDS OF THE LORD." And as this is the title of the ten commandments, those commandments were the covenant which the Lord made with Israel from Sinai. And to this agrees the statement of Moses to Israel nearly forty years afterwards:—

And the Lord spake unto you out of the midst of the fire: ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude; only ye heard a voice. And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even ten commandments; and he wrote them upon two tables of stone. And the Lord commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and judgments.—Deut. 4:12-14.

In this, as in the making of the covenant at Sinai, there is a distinction made between THE WORDS OF THE LORD, and the JUDGMENTS, and THE WORDS OF THE LORD is the covenant, and the judgments are not called the covenant. The one is THE WORDS OF THE LORD, and of the other Moses says, The Lord commanded me to teach you. And he also says to Israel,

When I was gone up into the mount to receive the tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant which the Lord made with you.—Deut. 9: 9.

He here again affirms the fact that the ten commandments is the covenant which the Lord made with Israel at Sinai.

And now we may ask, Were the judgments of chapters 21, 22, and 23 of Exodus in that covenant? It is just possible that they were, but the weight of evidence is against such a thought. If the record had said, "Moses wrote all the judgments, and read from the book all the judgments," and the people had said, "All the judgments will we do and be obedient;" and if the Lord had said, "I made a covenant with Israel at Sinai, even of many judgments," there might have been a shadow of a thought that the judgments were the covenant and that the twentieth chapter was not included, or that it was of less value and importance than the other chapters, and so its distinctive title would be swallowed up in the other; but the reverse was the case, and the words of the Lord directly to Israel was the covenant which God made with them from Sinai.

The Lord never sought the consent of Israel to the code of laws called judgments, ordinances, and statutes. All these without exception were given to Israel by Moses as he received them from God, and were not in the nature of a covenant proper, but were laws commanded of God to Israel, who must obey or suffer the penalty. These were the only alternatives. Israel was not asked to accept or reject the ordinance concerning the Sabbath breaker, "The man shall be surely put to death." This was not a covenant, but an ordinance necessary in administering the covenant then, and so of all the laws, ordinances, judgments, and statutes given by Moses to Israel from God, excepting the covenant from Sinai. It was first repeated by Moses to all Israel, who said, "All the words which the Lord hath said will we do." They were then written in the book of the covenant and read to Israel, who again answered, "All that the Lord hath said will we do, and be obedient." The covenant was then sealed by Moses sprinkling the blood of the sacrifice upon the people, saying, Behold the blood of the covenant, which the Lord hath made with you.—Ex. 24: 8.

And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.—Ex. 34: 28.

Is it possible to believe that the ten commandments are not that covenant from Sinai?

Bill Nye says: "The peculiar characteristic of classical music is that it is really much better than it sounds."

CASSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 23.

Editors Herald.—On the 26th of July, wife, baby Florence, and myself seated ourselves in the vehicle, pulled by the noble horse Prince, and started on a missionary tour. On the first night we were hospitably entertained at the home of Bro. and Sr. Andes, at Nashville, Missouri. Next morning Bro. Andes shod my horse and we continued our journey, reaching the home of Bro. Souders late in the afternoon. Here we were rested from our journey, and enjoyed our visit with those dear saints, who always make an elder welcome.

Next day we proceeded to Irwin, a distance of five miles, where we commenced meeting that night, and continued over the following Sunday, preaching about six sermons. We enjoyed the Spirit of the Master, especially in preaching upon the subject of Divine Healing. There are several Christian Science people in this neighborhood, and of course our views on the subject of healing were very different. But we were not personal in our remarks, and all took it in good humor. While here we stopped with the family of Bro. Charles Rodgers. Sr. Rodgers and her daughter Mary are earnest workers. We believe there are some interested at this place. A Baptist lady handed me fifty cents, and some seem quite favorable.

On the last day of July we started for Bro. Killebrew's home, near Sarcocie. We were welcomed. I learned that Bro. Spurlock was holding forth at Stott City. I went over to see him, and he insisted that I should stay with him awhile. I stayed three days and enjoyed my visit exceedingly well. I came back to Bro. Killebrew's and opened up the work in the Creamer schoolhouse, nearly three miles from Sarcocie. We had a good meeting. The people seemed anxious for meeting, and invited me back, and wanted me to stay longer. This is a good point for Bro. John A. Davis, if he can reach it conveniently.

I forgot to mention, on our road to Bro. Killebrew's from Irwin we camped out. We couldn't find a place in any of the houses. But we were fortunate to find a load of lumber piled up by the road. We made a shelter out of this, and passed the night quite pleasantly.

Well, we reached this point about the 9th of August, and in connection with Bro. Grimes we commenced meetings in a brush arbor, about one mile from Cassville. We instituted the question box, and about the first question, "Do you believe Joseph Smith was a prophet of God?" This question was postponed for several nights. The Devil began to imagine vain things. One night a man got very boisterous, and said he could prove by living testimony that Joe Smith was a murderer, horse thief, and a rascal of the first water. He also warned the people to beware, or we would run off with their wives and daughters to Salt Lake. Two were baptized during these meetings, Bro. Grimes officiating. I find Bro. Grimes and Love to be earnest workers. I enjoyed presenting our views to the people on the subject of the "confirmation of members" in the church. At the close of our meetings the boys threw rocks at us, but fortunately none of them hit us. I commence preaching to-night in the Spark schoolhouse, about three and one half miles from where I am stopping. Expect to leave these hills next week and work my way toward the reunion in the Territory.

In gospel bonds,

A. M. BAKER.

CALHOUN, Mo., Aug. 24.

Editors Herald.—On July 21 I arrived at Nevada, Missouri; found Bro. F. C. Keck battling away against the "isms" of that town. The Devil is doing his work to perfection in that place. Magnetic healers are found on almost every corner, and hundreds of people are there from all parts of the United States. I was told by one of Mr. Witmer's agents that his cash receipts were twelve hundred dollars per day.

We put up tent and located at Deerfield on July 26; held forth there for ten days, with fair interest; left some almost ready for the water. At Rich Hill preached two evenings. Went to Eldorado Springs to attend the reunion. This is a beautiful park, with nine mineral springs, and is called the nine wonders. There is a fine pavilion in the park that cost about three thousand dollars—a lovely place for holding services; all was free to the saints.

On the evening of August 11, a number of the saints met in the pavilion and organized, choosing D. C. White to preside over the reunion, and Elder J. C. Foss secretary. The following missionaries were at the reunion: J. C. Foss, F. C. Keck, R. T. Walters, M. L. Sory, A. C. Silvers, C. P. Welsh, George W. Beebe. The preaching was good; the social meetings spiritual. Six were baptized, four or five children blessed, and a large number of sick administered to, of which most of them received a blessing of the Lord. All seemed to enjoy themselves, and each no doubt went away happy that they had been there.

Bro. Alma Houts brought me from the reunion to this place, a distance of sixty-five miles by team, through dust and hot winds. I shall remain here and preach over Sunday, and then go to Washington Park to attend the reunion, and shall go from there to Hickory County, to hold meeting for three or four weeks.

Yours in the gospel,

D. C. WHITE.

FAIRBURY, Neb., Aug. 28.

Editors Herald.—I attended the reunion held at Shelton, Nebraska, which was a spiritual feast indeed. Five were baptized.

I came to Fairfield and held meetings. The Spirit cheered and comforted all the saints. Met Bro. Waldsmith, and we went together to Hebron. Found appointments out for us. We held five meetings to interested hearers, then went to Fairbury, where we found Bro. Myers holding the fort with appointments out for Saturday evening and Sunday, with a nice little Sunday school which promises better things in the near future. Two worthy souls were baptized here by Bro. Myers, and I hear that the waters were troubled at Nebraska City and two more added. So the good work goes on.

I find the Sunday schools in Southern Nebraska district in very good condition and the saints all cheerful and alive in the good work. Bro. H. W. Belville is doing what he can for the work, holding regular meeting near Bro. Robinson's. Bro. Belville is the happiest man in the West, having a fine baby girl, which received the blessings of the Lord under the hands of the elders. I feel very hopeful for the work in Southern Nebraska district, for it is in the hands of worthy brethren. Our Sunday school association will convene at Nebraska City, September 8 and 9. Come, one and all, and see what can be done for our children, for we know the Lord is in the work if we will only do our part; but if we do not, the Lord is not pleased, and we are the losers. May the heaven work till all is leavened and Zion perfected, is the hope and prayer of,

Your brother in Christ,
W. M. SELF.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aug. 1.

Editors Herald:—Just a word, to say that Elders Kaler and W. J. Haworth have gone north to adjust matters in one of the branches and prosecute missionary work. They ride bicycles. I have come to Sydney to aid the brethren for a time. There is a very important enterprise on hands by which they are intending to get the printed word before the thousands of city dwellers who have heard it not. More of this by the middle of the month, when evidences of the same will be forwarded.

Before I left New Castle, I launched a boat and helped two of our worthy young people to get into it. It was a matrimonial barque. Bro. Ernest Davis is the captain, and Sr. Louisa Dalhousie Reed signed papers as mate. It was a quiet affair and occurred in the Gosford Road chapel, Hamilton. They start out under pleasant weather conditions. Several attested to presence of the Holy Spirit during the ceremony. Why not? It is ordained of God.

G. R. WELLS.

HIGHLAND PARK, Ky., Aug. 25.

Editors Herald:—July 22, I went to Rego, Indiana, where I met Bro. George Jenkins, also Bro. Peter Flen of Leavenworth, Indiana, for the first time. I had met with Bro. Jenkins since the Deney and Jenkins debate, February 21 to 25. On Saturday night I spoke. On Sunday, July 23, I preached Bro. James Peters' funeral sermon, according to request. Some said it was the largest crowd they had seen gathered. Between eight hundred and one thousand people gathered in Vol. Mattox' grove, two miles from Rego, south of Pike. I continued preaching there until Wednesday, the 26th; on that day I baptized one in Blue River, and confirmed at the water's edge. On the 27th, left for home, and stayed until August 4, when I left for my field of labor, Louisville, Kentucky. Preached in the city until 13th. I baptized six more, making twenty-eight members now in Louisville branch. I baptized an old lady, born in 1812, making her eighty-seven years old. Two more have given their names for baptism. Bro. James W. Metcalfe and I took a trip down in Larue County, where the Utah Mormon elders have been preaching. We preached four times, the Mormon elders being present. I showed up the true succession of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, and the false doctrine taught by Brigham Young; showed that the Utah Church was no part of the true church after 1844 and August 5, 1847; and that they had fulfilled many of the prophecies of both the Old and New Testament, and had transgressed the organic law of the church, as organized in 1830, also 1831, when the law was given. I showed by the three books that they had apostatized and were no part of the kingdom of God; they had disgraced the fair name of the church.

I find Bro. Metcalfe a true and faithful companion, and able to present the truth. We find it is very hard to get the truth before the people. Prejudice is very great in Kentucky. People don't want to hear the truth, especially that connected with Joseph Smith's teachings. That abomination in the West has almost destroyed the fair name of the church, and many reject the gospel on account of it, not being able to understand the difference; and prejudice of the people will hinder our elders from getting places to preach in. It is very hot and dry here; dusty roads make it inconvenient to travel. Baptists, Campbellites, and Methodists are holding protracted meetings now; and once in grace always in grace, seems to take the lead here. They say all we have to do is only to believe in Christ. By grace you are saved, not of works, lest any should boast. It seems that the Devil has got the most of the people. May the Lord bless all of his Israel.

WOODBINE, Iowa, Aug. 31.

Editors Herald:—There seems to be a rumor afloat that the reunion grounds at Woodbine, Iowa, are in bad condition, which is not true.

By way of correction we wish to say the grounds are dry and in as good condition as the first year reunion was held at Woodbine, and all desiring to attend we fully believe will be satisfied.

Madam Rumor often does a good deal of harm.

Mr. L. D. Butler will have charge of the boarding tent again this year, and the patrons of the reunion will be assured of the usual good treatment.

Everybody come and enjoy yourself.

SEILING, Okla., Aug. 24.

Editors Herald:—The saints of Oklahoma are striving to keep the gospel banner waving before the people, although its position is not as prominent as some; yet we hold out terms no other can offer. Our faith is evil spoken of by some, but this does not detract our attention from the grand things before us.

We realize the promises of an allwise and merciful Father are greater than the offers of men. Truly, Satan's picket extends the world around. His influence is felt everywhere. Sin's combinations are stronger today than ever before. Life is the gift of God; then it certainly may be and ought to be used for the purpose for which it was created, but we only have to glance over the histories of the past and the stirring events of the present to determine that such is not the case.

The saints of Oklahoma seem to be alive and active for the interests of the gospel. The gospel tabernacle, since the May conference held at Morrison, Oklahoma, has been located at Clayton, Ingalls, Downs, Nicely, and the above place. The object of coming here was the Dewey County camp meeting. Camp meeting commenced August 11 with the following elders and priests on docket: D. S. Crawley, R. W. Davis, R. M. Maloney, H. F. Durfey, W. P. Pickering, James Yates, L. A. Hall, J. Scott, and S. Smith. Owing to sickness of his father, Elder W. S. Macrae was unable to be with us. Nothing of an evil nature marred the proceedings, only much sickness was brought upon us to try our faith and endurance. The Spirit of God was manifest to a certain degree in rebuking same. Four services each day was the order. Preaching at eleven and evening. Prayer in the morning nine to ten. Book of Mormon study in the afternoon. The first night Bro. Pickering commenced the story of the gospel to fallen man in this place, followed Sunday at eleven by D. S. Crawley, whose subject was Ecclesiastes third chapter. R. M. Maloney was the speaker in the afternoon, telling the people of the mission of Christ. At evening R. W. Davis handled Matthew 20 in a masterly way. The good Spirit was present, making his arguments clear and convincing. He made use of his new chart, which was arranged well. Elder Durfey posed before a large crowd the next evening with excellent liberty. It is really bad to have such able men in the work and not make constant use of them.

August 15 was a record breaker—eight sermons in two hours. Subjects discussed: Sunday school and Religio, S. Smith. Faith, J. W. Squire. Redemption of Zion, D. S. Crawley. Book of Mormon, James Yates. Tithing, W. P. Pickering. Utah Apostasy, R. W. Davis. Conversion, R. M. Maloney. Duty of Branch Officers, H. F. Durfey. Friday was devoted to the interests of the Sunday school. About the same ground was covered that the last convention in May did. Institute work, local needs, etc. The library question was discussed at some length. A Sunday school entertainment was given in the evening to the satisfaction of all. Our aged brother, D. S. Crawley, stood before a large crowd the next evening and based his remarks on the 16th chapter of Mark.

The last day of the meeting was the best. A large crowd was present at all the services. At evening the largest audience ever assembled in the tabernacle had congregated together to listen to Bro. Davis in his effort to show the people that in all ages God deals with mankind precisely the same and "he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him." The effort was a good one. There were about three hundred present at this meeting. A good feeling exists with the outsiders as well as with the saints. The people are very hospitable and kind. Quite a number of saints have moved here from all parts. Much prejudice has been removed. One, a Mr. Nation, is willing to swear any time that Joseph Smith was a bank robber, etc. His wife is also very bitter against the work, going around making false statements, etc. But this does not count with thinking people. She does, or has done, a great deal of preaching here, but the people now have little confidence in her. Bro. Crawley one year ago held a discussion with her, which broke her belief and church all to pieces. Outsiders say not one point was gained by her in the discussion. This glorious cause is bound to stand, respected by all, and that which comes against it to oppose, will result in disaster. The combined forces of hell shall not prevail against the rock of revealed truth.

The tabernacle goes from here to Mathewson, Oklahoma, and from there to Stillwater, to the reunion, commencing October 6. One was baptized at this camp meeting. Our labors at Nicely, I am certain, will bring forth fruit in the near future. I was ordained to the office of priest July 23, and since then I have been engaged with the tabernacle, and I like the work well. It is my first efforts along this line. My greatest desire in life is to be an able defender of this gospel of Jesus Christ. We hope to have a good time at our reunion. Bro. Hougas has promised us his presence in behalf of the Sunday school. May this work prosper, is my desire and prayer.

In gospel bonds,

STEPHEN SMITH.

BYRNEVILLE, Ind., Aug. 30.

Editors Herald:—For four weeks I have been unable to do much walking on account of carbuncles. I would say to those that have been looking for me in different parts of my field, they can now look for me; though I am not entirely well, I will begin my work again.

The work is moving along as well as could be expected, there being but few to prosecute it. The Byrneville branch is going through a severe trial at present, which threatens disaster to some extent on account of not having the proper understanding of Section 119:7 of Doctrine and Covenants. If all understood the circumstances under which this section was given this confusion would not have been. We hope and pray the branch may pull over the rifle and no hurt be done, and all come to a better understanding of the law. If all would pay heed to the instruction given in Section 120:4, much contention, bitterness, envying, and jealousy would cease and the saints be edified and built up, keeping in connection with this Section 122:1, union and peace would prevail. Let him that runs, read.

Bro. Kelley and I have just closed a series of meetings here in the branch for the purpose of arousing the spirituality of the work. The good thus done, if any, remains to be revealed in the future. On next Saturday evening I go to Hearsttown, where Bro. Sammie Scott has been conducting some meetings with good results, some being baptized and more to follow. I wish we had more locals like he and Bro. Kelley who would push out in the work. It would be a great help to us in this district. We have calls on all sides, so much so I cannot meet them all, so will have to content myself by doing all we can under the circumstances. Campbellism has been awakened in this part since the debate last February with Rev. E. G. Dennie and the writer. Rev. J. Goldman is to meet Bro. Kelley. The debate will come off this fall if Rev. Goldman sticks to the text.

I am just about through reading "Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism," by D. H. Bays. We have nothing to fear when such a man as Bays with his experience cannot produce an argument against the work but what can be utterly overturned. What is the use of a Clark Braden, or E. G. Dennie, or a Goldman to attack the work? It would be like trying to uproot the everlasting mountains or hills. It is as Daniel says, it is not to be thrown down or given to other people. It will stand when everything else will fail. Let me say to the saints, Let us push forward to see how much we can do, and not how little, remembering that every good deed we do there is a reward laid up in store for us; and God will reward us for what we do, and not for what we say or believe. We need not expect a reward for what some one else does, but for what we do. Then for every day we fail to do something for the Master we will be losers in the day of reckoning. Each one must work out his own salvation with fear and trembling. We need not expect a reward for what some good brother or sister has done; we must do our work regardless of what others do or do not do.

I am glad of this, for if we had to depend on some one else to do our work, it perhaps would be left undone. Let us labor to build up the work. If a brother or sister is getting on the background, let us speak some kind word and try and lift up the fallen ones. The weak are the ones that need help, not the strong so much; while all need help, but especially the weak ones.

Your brother,

G. JENKINS.

EAST JORDAN, Mich., Aug. 22.

Editors Herald:—The first of July, Wife and I started for a visit to our people in Michigan, and I have not been idle here. I attended a two-days' meeting at Minden City. Preached two or three times there. We had one of the best meetings I have been privileged to attend. Everyone seemed filled with the Spirit. I also preached at Bayport, where I first heard the true gospel and obeyed. We had a good meeting of old friends and saints. A sad thing happened to Bro. C. U. Grant's family while here. The mother sent to the drug store for some castor oil, and the boy in the drug store put carbolic acid in a bottle and labeled it castor oil. The mother gave the little fellow (a boy fifteen months old) a teaspoonful, and in five hours it died.

I preached for the saints at Grant. Stopped at Coleman and Farwell and preached for them, then on to Kingsley and got in a sermon for them there. Had a good time all along the line. Then came to East Jordan to visit Wife's people. Last Saturday and Sunday we had another two-days' meeting at Boyne City, where I met Bro. Ellis and listened to him proclaim the gospel message. He is alive and well, and by the looks of his smiling face, is happy in the work of the Master. We had a good meeting throughout.

I expect to start next Sunday for Cleveland and will soon be back to my own field, where I expect to labor where the missionary in charge may direct, and I shall be pleased to hear from him soon.

I forgot to say I preached the funeral sermon of Bro. Grant's little boy; also preached the funeral sermon of a little baby boy at South Arm. We are all quite well but our oldest boy. I hope the Sisters' Prayer Union will remember him in their prayers that God will heal him. Still in the faith,

Your brother in Christ,

F. C. SMITH.

ARGENT'S HILL, N. S. W., July 27.

Editors Herald:—On receiving my certificate of appointment to the mission field, I gave the requisite notice of my intention to quit the employ of the business house for which I had been working, and on May 1 left home for Sydney, where Bro. Kaler and I preached on the streets as often as the weather would permit. On June 21 I returned to Wallsend just in time to assist Bro. Wells in a week's mission, held in the rotunda of the Plattsburg Park; the Wallsend saints assisting greatly by their presence and in the singing. An organ kindly lent by Sr. Cox of Merewether and played by Sr. Carrie Ferrett of Sydney also proved very effective in drawing a crowd for us, sometimes the audiences being larger and more attentive than any I had ever seen gathered in this town to hear God's word dispensed. We hope that good will result from the seed sown. The Wallsend branch is now in a better condition than it ever has been before. They now have a small place to worship in, and a few real live workers looking after the interests of the work there. Last year ten of the old withered and lifeless members were lopped off the branch tree (record); but since the beginning of this year the writer has had the pleasure of inducting thirteen others into the fold, some of whom are proving quite an acquisition to the branch.

On July 18 Bro. Kaler and I left Wallsend, mounted on bicycles, with our front wheels pointing northward in the direction of this place, distant about three hundred miles. We arrived here in time for dinner the following Saturday, just four days being spent in covering the distance. We did not call at any of the preaching points on the way, except at one or two places where we passed the night with the saints, and resumed our journey next morning, because difficulties in the branch here demanded our immediate attention. As soon as we settle the trouble here we will return, preaching by the way. This branch has been having a deal of trouble for some time now, and the only way left open to us, if we want to "put the sin out, is to put the sinner out with it."

When will the saints live up to their own teachings? When will they discard the world and its ways and live for God and God alone? We who have received such a perfect plan from our heavenly Father should abide by that plan. But in this country, when the saints get into difficulty or see others in trouble, instead of adopting God's plan,—which never fails,—they follow in the steps of the world, and begin right away to scandalize each other, and to do just as the world has always done. Surely this old way has been tried often enough and has failed quite enough to show its uselessness, and make the saints look round for a "more excellent way" of adjusting their difficulties.

We have commenced a campaign among the people here, and we appeal to the saints not to destroy by their example that which we are trying to teach both by example and precept.

Yours in bonds,

WALTER J. HAWORTH.

JUNIATA, Mich., Aug. 22.

Editors Herald.—Some of your readers may be wondering if the M. E. preacher at Burt, Saginaw County, killed me last winter, after I held forth in the Indian M. E. church at Taymouth for five weeks. About every night, towards the last, it got too warm for the Rev. Armstrong of Burt, a white man in color, but not very white in heart. Just before I left, he came to see the Indian preacher, and forbid him to let me speak in the church any more. Said I was worse than the Advents, and he said they were worse than the Devil. So you see I must be away up in G's in that kingdom. He told the Indian preacher if he didn't close me out he would take steps to make him. The preacher asked him if he had heard me preach. He said no; but he heard of me. Well, said the Indian preacher, you come and hear him preach once, and you will find he preaches the Bible to us, and tells us what we must do to be saved. Then when we die we go home. Rev. Armstrong said I was a Mormon, and hell was their home, etc. The Indian preacher said I had nothing to say against this brother. I can say nothing. Something tells my spirit (clapping his hand on his breast) that God sent this brother here to preach us the fullness of the gospel, and that Spirit tells me if we do what this brother tells us, when we die we will all go to heaven. He says we must all be baptized, and follow Christ, and he preaches it from the Bible; and he tells us nothing but what he preaches from the Bible, etc. He made this statement in the church, when Armstrong was present. After he had the talk with him about me, the house was full of people. Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Adventists, and all kind of church members, and non members, and they could see that the Indian brethren were not well pleased at something, for after I got through speaking, which was about two hours, as this was my last opportunity to bear my testimony, and no one present but the M. E. preacher from Burt was ready to part. The Indian brother spoke at length in Indian before he told us the above in English. The poor old brother, I must call him, while he stood and spoke of the good I had done among them since I came, and entreating them to pay heed to what I had told them, for they would have to give an account of it at the day of judgment, and the tears streaming down his face. I also felt that sweet influence of the Spirit that brings peace and happiness to the children of God, and felt encouraged in the good work, and that the Lord would care for his own. And although Satan would come up to battle against the work of God, that when the smoke would blow over, we would find more on the Lord's side, as he is always sure to overdo it, and want to prove too much against God's work. And this was poor Mr. Armstrong's fate.

He came out and lectured against us in the Indian M. E. church, and announced it after I announced that I was going home. Some of his members from Burt came and told me, and insisted that I should stay till it was over. When it came off, he brought the sheriff and deputy sheriff with him, and all could come from Burt to his help. The church was filled to standing room. He started out to tell in his way how the Latter Day Saints came to life. Said they were so bad, in time they divided, and part went to Utah, and the rest went here and there, carrying on their hellish work to deceive, etc. I won't take space to tell what pet names he gave us. He told us us he knew what he was talking about, for he lived among them and drew water from the same well a Mormon preacher did. This was at Bayport, Michigan. Said they were the most inhuman people he ever saw. Let their sick die. Told of a woman that died, and he preached her funeral sermon. I'll say right here, that that woman is alive to-day, so I was told by Bro. Dowker's daughter, my brother George's wife, who was raised in Bayport, and knew about it. So the next time I went back to Saginaw County I spoke in the Advent church, and the Indian M. E. church. I told them of that wonderful sermon that Armstrong preached over the dead body of a sister—a saint—that she couldn't have stayed dead long, for she is alive yet, and numbered among the saints. I said that wasn't the biggest lie he told, and you all know it; and about all in the church broke into a laugh, and a voice said he told fifty; yes, said another, one hundred, etc.

Bro. J. A. Grant was here a short time ago, on his way to Deanville to attend a two-days' meeting. He gave us four rousing good sermons, which won't be forgotten soon. Come again, Bro. John.

While here, Bro. Grant told me he was the neighbor that drew water from the same well as Mr. Armstrong at Bayport, and says that Mr. Armstrong was very mean while there, and wouldn't say anything against the saints and couldn't; but as soon as he got away he could tell lots about them that was not true. I suppose he would tell the truth if he could think of it. But those fellows when they get after us never stop for the truth. That don't go fast enough for them. Armstrong told, with other abuse, that the Reorganized Latter Day Saints and the Utah Mormon saints were getting one again. In fact they were one all the time, but held different conferences. But now they all meet together, and have just one conference, etc. Said he knew what he was talking about. (If he didn't nobody else did.) He was so mad to think that I was allowed to speak in the M. E. church for five weeks, and preach such hellish doctrine. He said I called it the good old Jerusalem gospel, that saved the people eighteen hundred years ago, and the same would save the people to-day. Yes, he says it will make Mormons of you. I smiled, and the people pricked up their ears and thought he was coming to the truth again. But he soon drifted on to abuse again.

After he got through I stepped to the stand and asked him if he would meet these statements in public and prove them. He said, No, I won't meet them anywhere, nor you either. Said I had my say for the last five weeks, etc. Well, I did, and it's got such a start that he can't pull it to pieces with all the force at his command. One of his own members told me I had more of the grace of God in me than he had, or I would have knocked him off the stand. I let Mr. Armstrong do the knocking, and he did to the extent that about twelve of his members have left his church, and some who were studying under him to make preachers. What hurt the people most was, he said the person that would harbor me, and take me in, and give me a meal was worse than I was. But the dear people say as long as they have a crumb I am welcome to it, and Armstrong can go somewhere else; and every week comes a letter to know when I am coming again.

I expect that after our fall conference Elder J. A. Grant will supply them with some gospel truths. The Freewill Baptists are holding tent meetings three miles from here. I attended three of them. The first night they forced me to take a seat near the front. I took part with the rest in testifying. Second night I took a seat down at the door. They had a sort of a Mormon eater for a speaker, and sure enough he could throw clubs. He said some people now-a-days think God sends angels to talk to them. Said one fool was told if he would go and dig in the side of a hill he would there get a Bible. The speaker's text was, "I'll draw all men unto me." And he said that wasn't Joe Smith and Brigham Young. Then he told what awful bad men they were. It's strange how those Devil-killers can get their tongues around such big words without making their mouths all black.

When time came to testify on the Lord's side, I was soon on my feet, and the preacher was glad when I sat down, and said aloud Amen. He said the books that the brother was talking about were in heaven that we are going to be judged by, etc. After the meeting was over both preachers gave me a hearty shake of the hand, and said they were so glad to see me out. What was the use of their lying like that? I didn't ask them for it. The people knew they lied when they said they were so glad to see me.

Sunday afternoon I attended again, and the same man was the speaker. He was making balls from the start to throw at the saints; but he kept them till the last. The ball was the Mormon Bible, and taught the most damnable doctrine on earth; and it was from the Devil, etc., etc. At the close he gave no chance to testify. I took notes of what he said; and as I started to the stand I saw he wasn't coming down. And as I went, the boys said, There he goes for him. I called the speaker to one side, and asked him if he had that book, and where I could get one. He said, What do you want to get one for? Haven't you got one? I said I never saw such a book as he described. He said he hadn't got one, nor never had, and wouldn't have one in his house. I asked him then, Could you tell what was in that book, and why he stood up there and made statements that he could not prove, and he knew they were lies? I told him I believed a good deal that he said as regards the work out in Utah was true; but I wasn't going to stand and be branded with that class of people out there; and that he was a coward to stand up there and talk the way he did, then run when I asked for proof. He also said he wouldn't meet anything, and if the coat fits, put it on, etc.

One of their head members, and the man who owns the ground where the tent stands, and who feeds those preachers, invited me to tea, so I could stay till the evening meeting, right before this preacher. Don't know how he took it. I couldn't stay, as I had company, and they had ten miles to go after they got to my place.

Since our June conference I have labored what I could for the Master in Lapeer and Tuscola Counties. Baptized one, a head of a family. At this baptism I preached one hour on the river bank, as there was a crowd of people present that hadn't heard any of our people preach before. I had the best of liberty, and they wanted me to come again and have it more widely published. I also solemnized one marriage and administered to the sick, with good blessing attending them all. One case where the lame leaped for joy, as she had thought she would lose the use of one limb. O this God we serve and whose we are, he is mighty to save and to restore. Praise his name.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

A. MCKENZIE.

P. S.—Since writing the above I got a letter requesting me to come at once and administer to a young saint that's sick with typhoid fever, sixteen miles of a walk. I have already walked eighty-two miles in answering to calls since our June conference.

ATHENS, Tenn., Aug. 14.

Editors Herald:—It seems very evident that the first part of the prophecy of Lehi, in 2 Nephi, chapter second, as referred to in Herald of August 9, has reference, plainly, to Joseph the Seer—no one could doubt it for a moment; but the latter part of the prophecy seems to be to another individual, and another work, which is to be done by a Lamanite, and expressly for that people.

This later prophecy was made more distinct by the words of Nephi—when he was here. He said that the sealed plates of the Book of Mormon are to come forth by the hand of a Lamanite, and that the people who receive this later message, which is expressly for themselves, will have great faith, and will "hearken to the words of the book."

Nephi, as tried by the infallible test, was surely a messenger from God. He said, moreover, that the work which he was sent to inaugurate among his own people was not to interfere in the least with the work under Joseph.

Joseph is the head of the Church of Jesus Christ on the earth, until he comes whose right it is to reign. H. B. E.

GREENLEAF, Kan., Aug. 28.

Editors Herald:—Our Northwest Kansas district reunion closed last night. We had a splendid meetings and good order. The interest taken by the several young saints speaks well for the future success of the church in these parts.

Among those who preached were Brn. Hilliard, Pender, Kent, Johanson, and Brown. The attendance on the part of both saints and others was good. Five were baptized.

CONTENT.

Though my cottage home is humble,
Though no pictures grace its walls,
Yet o'er all the blessed sunlight
Without stint or measure falls.
And the breezes flower-scented,
Fraught with healing, through each room
Freely wander, brightly tinting
Each loved cheek to healthful bloom.

Yet I envy not my lady,
Though so fair her mansion is;
All adorned with costliest paintings,
Hung with silken draperies.
Lest they dim the wondrous beauty
Of those paintings rich and rare;
Lest they fade those silken hangings,
Must no sunbeam enter there.

Though my life be filled with labor,
Though my hands be rough and brown;
And from early morn till evening,
Lets her dusky curtain down;
Comes for me no restful leisure,
Sometimes scarcely time to pray;
Yet 'tis for my loved I labor,
And love cheers each toil-filled day.

So I envy not my lady,
Though from toil her life is free;
She has missed the compensation
That love's labor brings to me.

Of more weary with her leisure,
Than with all my toil am I;
Drag for her the leaden moments,
Swift for me the days go by.

Though my gown be poor and simple,
Though of jewels I have none,
Save the ones kind heaven lent me,
Rarest jewels 'neath the sun.
Yet I envy not my lady;
She hath never known the bliss,
Of a child's fond, warm embraces,
Or a baby's honeyed kiss.

And an empty heart she carries
'Neath her silks and laces fine;
Gleam of gold and flash of jewels
Bring her no such joy as mine.
For I'd rather feel the clasping
Of my darlings' arms to-night,
Than to wear the richest robings,
Or be decked with jewels bright.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 24.

Editors Herald:—As secretary of the sisters' meeting at the Ancient Apostolic Gospel Mission, 1802 Armour Avenue, I would like to send a few words of comfort and encouragement to the rest of our brothers and sisters who are laboring for the cause, hoping they will not think it presumptuous of one so young in the faith. I have only been entitled to the name of saint for a little over four months, but believe me, I stand firm. I would not exchange that title for any other on earth. I am proud to be called a saint, and am daily trying to live deserving the name. We have very few members at our sisters' meeting, but we all know that God has promised to be with us wherever two or three gather together in his name.

Sisters, do you ever think of that promise, and how much benefit there is to be gained by those little gatherings; and also when almost discouraged with our daily work, to stop for a few moments and think that we are God's children, and that God loves us and is watching over us every hour, yes every minute? O, what a grand thought! I do not see many reports of sisters' prayer meetings in your letter department, and think it would be a good thing if there were more of them, even if they were only official reports. It would at least keep some of the sisters alive, spiritually; for no matter how small the mission is, there can always be two or three meet for special prayers once a week, where they would find both comfort and instruction combined. I think that newspaper correspondence would be of great benefit to many who are backward in bearing testimony before a crowded church. It seems that a good many find it hard, at such times, to express their feelings, not through a man-fearing spirit, nor that they are ashamed to own Christ; but it seems that some of them have been in the habit of burying their thoughts, until it is almost impossible for them to express themselves in public, while if they take up pen and paper they are perfectly at home. For one I believe they should be encouraged to let their light shine in whatever way the Spirit leads them.

Sisters, let us be up and doing; let us be more faithful. I am afraid that some of us get a little sleepy, as it were, by the way; but we must remember that faith without works is dead. Our sisters' meeting, Thursday afternoons, is a great comfort to us all, and I find myself even now looking forward to that "sweet hour of prayer."

I must not forget to mention that our weekly Bible class, on Sunday afternoons, under our able teacher, Bro. George H. Graves, is gaining ground rapidly, and in fact is intensely interesting. Also our monthly reunions at the Lang Mission, 3411 Cottage Grove Avenue, where we are always sure of a spiritual feast on the first Sunday of every month. I wish that every brother and sister who reads this could meet us there, and enjoy the blessings poured down upon us. It seems as if we were all indeed sitting in heavenly places. I would ask your prayers in behalf of our little mission, and especially in behalf of Sister Graves, who I am happy to say seems to be enjoying better health than she has for some time. May God continue to pour down his blessings upon both her and her companion, that they may always prosper in this blessed work. For myself, I feel as if I can say with the poet of old:—

Since first Thy word awakened my heart,
Like new life dawning o'er me,
Where'er I turn mine eyes, thou art—
All light and love before me.
Nought else I feel, or hear, or see;
All bonds of earth I sever—
Thee, O God, and only thee,
I live for, now and ever.

Like him, whose fetters dropped away,
When light shone o'er his prison;
My spirit, touched by mercy's ray,
Hath from her chains arisen;
And shall a soul thou bid'st be free,
Return to bondage—never.
Thee, O God, and only thee
I live for, now and ever!

Asking an interest in your prayers, I remain,
Yours in all truth,

SARAH HESS.

SPASMODICISM VS. CONSTANCY.

In the region of Yellowstone Park there are a number of spasmodic fountains called geysers. If we visit one of these, we see the water bursting high into the air, sent forth by some great power hidden in the earth; but if we wait we soon see the volume of water growing smaller and smaller, until the flow ceases altogether. After awhile it bursts forth again, thus repeating the operation day after day and year after year. What a vast amount of energy is here expended! What a great display of power, but to no purpose but to engage the wondering eye of man!

In Minnesota there is a small stream of water, only twelve feet wide, which runs gently away from a lake known as Itasca. The lake is clear and calm, and the water flows away almost without a ripple. There is no wonderful power manifested here, and while we may admire its beauty, there is nothing there to cause such amazement as the geyser. This stream flows on day after day, increasing in size, never stopping, but incessantly and persistently running to the sea. On its waters are carried all those things that bless man; it turns the wheels of hundreds of mills and factories, and men have learned to appreciate the benefits of that noble river—the Mississippi.

What a contrast! One displays wonderful power, but its energy is wasted, because it is spasmodic; the other makes no wonderful display of power, but is perpetually working, quietly and gently, for the good of man.

How can we apply this lesson in our lives? Do I go to Sabbath school on Sunday full of knowledge and enthusiasm, ready to do a great deal, but forget all about it during the next six days? If so, what I did not do through the six days destroys the effect of what I did on Sunday. Or, do I go to the annual camp meeting and work earnestly and hard, but when I return home fall back into a state of lethargy? If so, my idleness overbalances my work, and like the geyser, my energy has been spent in vain.

But again; do I keep working here and there and everywhere, wherever I am, on Sunday, through the week, or whenever I can; quietly, persistently, striving to do some good; speaking a kind word to this one, doing a kind deed for that one, lending a helping hand to the weak? If so, I am like the river, in that I am using my energy in a manner that it will benefit and bless others.

I fear many sometimes think they are not doing enough, or that their labors are fruitless, because they do not see immediate results; but remember that that which takes the longest to mature is the most enduring, and that your modest, but persistent work in the Sabbath school in the country school-house, or in the village chapel, is having its influence for good, and that influence will continue to spread like the waves from the pebble dropped into the water.

In our feeble efforts to spread the truth abroad, we have wondered at times if our words were effective, or whether they were lost. We could see no results of our teaching, but the voice of the Comforter came to cheer us in our efforts, assuring us that "not one word shall be lost." So we say to the workers; do what you can to-day, keeping faithful in the discharge of your duties, and by thus doing you can well afford to leave the result with God, for although we may not see the growth of our planting, that growth is nevertheless going on, and sometime the fruit will come, and thus we may be able to rejoice in the salvation of some as the result of our labors.—Selected.

PUNCTUALITY.

An eminent Sunday school worker said, "The teacher who is on time is late." Sunday school promptness is not to be there one minute before the bell taps, but to be in advance, to prepare for the work, and be ready for every emergency. Much is lost by being in a hurry; something is forgotten; something overlooked, which might have been useful if the officer or teacher had had time to think of it.

Be ahead of time, and your work will be more successful than if your pupils have to wait for you.—Selected.

HISTORY AS A FACTOR IN SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHING.

The question has been asked, "Why do we teach so much history in the Sunday school? Why not teach just the gospel, and not so much history?" We answer: first, because the revelation of the gospel to mankind is inseparably connected with history; second, abstract truths are more difficult of comprehension than when connected with historical events; third, the effects of gospel truth are clear when seen in the lives and acts of others.

Events of the past form a basis in the mind for truth to rest upon, and the child readily understands it. When we think of baptism, how soon do our thoughts fly back to John baptizing in Jordan; and in teaching baptism, would it not be better to tell of that incident, showing what it was for, and the change in the lives of those baptized?

There is no better way in which the results of disobedience can be taught than to show how it affected ancient Israel, or what happened to Jonah because of it; and in teaching implicit obedience, there should stand out, in bold relief, the purity and righteousness of the great model—Jesus of Nazareth. A knowledge of such incidents will help the pupil to understand, to remember, and to apply to his own life the truths which will make his life what God desires it to be.

Jesus often referred to historical events in support of some truth, and our Sunday school workers will do well to follow the same plan, and continue to teach sacred history in support of the gospel of Christ.—Selected.

VALEDICTORY.

As we close the first Sunday school educator, we must express our gratitude for the interest that has been taken in this work. Progress is being made, and the newspaper is becoming a prominent feature in the district conventions. If you have not tried it, now is the time to begin, and we are assured you will find it a means for good.

Your Editors have labored under disadvantages, but if our efforts have benefited anyone here, or if we may be the means of setting the ball rolling in some other field, our efforts will be fully repaid.

What we have offered you here we realize to be imperfect, but it remains for each one to gather out those things that may be most useful, and apply them as he has opportunity.

In entering upon the work of another year we look forward to new experiences and new lines of work, and we trust that the ensuing year may be full of rich experiences for all, and that the Sunday school cause may keep apace with the progress of the church, and be the means of bringing many souls into its fold.

The Sunday school cause is progressive, hence there is a demand for progressive workers. The field is wide and inviting, and how shall it be filled, so that the work may be more perfect? We need every faithful worker to continue diligent. We need every occasional worker to put on the whole armor and enter the cause, determined to be active during the subsequent year. We need many, who have not yet taken up the work, to enlist in this part of the Master's service, for we assure you there is room for all, and plenty for all to do.

In all our work we need divine guidance; but before we can be led we must exert ourselves, and if the heart is right, there will be little danger of lacking the guidance we need. It is said "the Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind;" so when the mind is willing, and the heart right, the Lord is willing to guide, and we are in the way of success. We bid you all a prosperous future, and trust that your work may be acceptable to the church and to God.—Selected.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

The Sunday school convention of the South Sea Islands convened at Avatoru, April 3, 1899, at eight a. m. Opened in the usual manner with the superintendent in the chair. Officers chosen for convention were, Tapu president, Emma Burton and Pou Haroatea associates, Teuira and Emma Burton secretaries. Minutes of last convention were then read, also reports from Tapu, Emma Burton, Pou Haroatea, and Teuira, all of which were approved. Thirteen Sunday schools reported. The officers of the association: Tapu, superintendent; Emma Burton and Pou Haroatea, associates; Teuira native, and Emma Burton foreign, secretary, were sustained for the present year. Business was dispatched quickly, on account of having to attend a funeral; and at an early hour the convention adjourned.

April 4. The morning meal, which was served promptly at six o'clock, was dispatched as quickly as possible, and no time lost in clearing the spacious building preparatory for the exercises of the day, "The Mahana oaoa"—for these native people can work fast when they choose to. The floor of the building, which was the sandy ground, well covered with a stringy sort of dry grass, was not overlaid with the Niau matting as usual, but of matting made of the Pandanus leaf, which gave it a very "dressed up" appearance. The building was large and commodious; the main entrance being on the side towards the trade winds. An opening of twenty or thirty feet, which admitted a nice sweep of cool air across a large portion of the arena designed for the class exercises, rendered the whole building comfortably cool; seldom indeed was a fan needed. Superintendent Tapu called the house to order at eight a. m., and a class of seventy persons from Panau branch, the greater portion of which were females, and all dressed in white, marched into the arena six abreast and twelve in length, less two in the back row, and so arranged that when they turned to face the stand there would be four rows of women in front, and two rows of men standing back of them, and sang for the opening hymn, "Who are these arrayed in white," and sang it well.

It would occupy too much space were I to give the program in full, a brief sketch must suffice. There were seventy-five exercises on the program. Forty-seven classes of grown people, ranging in number from six to seventy persons in a class. And I am pleased to report that there were fifteen classes of children, four of which were little tots, scarcely old enough to talk plain. It was their first experience of the kind, but they did not manifest the least embarrassment. No indeed; they were too well pleased to be dressed up nicely—and some were dressed as prettily as dolls—and have an important part in the festivities of the day. They did splendidly, not having to be prompted once in their exercises, which exercises were the crowning interest of the day. The class of six that was taught here at Taronu had the benefit of the best selections. The missionary's wife arranged a few simple questions and answers on the nativity of Jesus for them, ending with the moral of the wise men bringing their offerings, and worded a little prayer appropriate for them and the occasion, all of which the missionary translated, also the words suited to the tune of "There is a happy land." A little girl about ten years of age led the class out, and asked the questions and the little tots answered simultaneously, and then all dropped on their knees and repeated the prayer in the same manner. A little class from Arutua was very interesting also. After their simultaneous recitation of the fifth, sixth, and seventh verses of the first chapter of James, the four little girls knelt in a group facing Lewis' little boy, who stood with his little arms partly outstretched over their heads while they all repeated a prayer. In fact all were interesting and all did well.

Interspersed among the class exercises were thirteen five-minute speeches by the leading elders of the church in these islands and the officers of the Sunday school association, thus embracing nearly all the saints in the building.

The good Spirit that was so abundantly poured out upon us at our sacrament meeting two days before, was still with us, producing joy and harmony during the entire day. At the close a child was blessed, during which time a marked degree of the Spirit was manifest. Some of us almost wished there was time for a half hour of testimony meeting. It would not have done violence at all to the spirit prevailing. After the benediction was pronounced, many were the congratulations on the doings of the day. All were pleased, and more than pleased with the result of effort put forth in behalf of the little ones.

In the early part of the year the second officer of the association had agitated the thought of bringing more children into the "Mahana oaoa," and had sent a letter to all the islands to that effect, through the Orometua, also through the same channel had answered questions and given instructions how to proceed. Much of this work was done without the privilege or opportunity of consulting with the superintendent. And this same officer came to the superintendent and said in the native tongue, "Are you pleased, Tapu, with my work in the Sabbath school this year?" With face all aglow, and shiny eyes, he placed his plump hand on the pit of his stomach and replied, "Mea rahi oaoa i roto tau aau," which means, "Very great joy in my heart."

The saints of Tupuai were not present to join in the exercises. They arrived just one day before conference adjourned, but time was given between meetings for their recitations. The singers of Tikahau and of Niau rendered each a song in English, both in word and voice: "Washed in the blood of the Lamb" and "Safe in the arms of Jesus." I was pleased to note the absence of satin and velvet dresses.

EMMA BURTON,
Foreign Secretary.

Suitable persons will be put in charge of each department of work, but let each one prepare themselves to do whatever may be assigned them. Let all teachers study the markings of class books, as suggested by the association, that such markings may be used at the reunion. I urge all who can to bring Winnowed Songs, Bibles, and Quarterlies. Don't forget it.

Since the Lord's prayer is quite universally used in Sunday schools, and in nearly every school different verbiage used, I suggest the following form for use at the reunion, that harmony may exist in its repetition: Our Father who are in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven. Give us day by day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us; and suffer us not to be led into temptation, but deliver us from evil; for thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever and ever, Amen.

Bring August Autumn Leaves and Book of Mormon for Religio work.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

Miscellaneous Department.

NOTICES.

To whom it may concern: Whereas, one J. S. Lee, whom Elder James Caffall silenced as an elder about March 20th, has persisted in his course of teaching, contrary to the accepted teaching of the church, in various items of doctrine, also in denouncing the authorities of the church as "robbers;" and after patient effort to reconcile him, charges were preferred, a court of elders called, and he duly expelled from the church. And the saints are hereby warned against him; his influence is bad, and brings darkness and spiritual blindness to those who come under the same.

LEVI GAMET,

President of Central Nebraska District.

This is to advise that William Jaques, of Belleville, Illinois, has been silenced as an elder of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

J. C. HITCHCOCK,

President St. Louis District.

CHAPEL DEDICATION.

The dedication and presentation to the church authorities of the chapel occupied by the Providence branch of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, situated on Bellvue Avenue, which took place last Sunday, was a most gratifying and successful affair.

The presence and satisfactory service performed by the President of the church, Joseph Smith, Patriarch Alexander H. Smith, and Apostle Joseph Luff, assisted by the general church missionary force who were present: F. M. Sheehy, George W. Robley, John Smith, and M. H. Bond, and local elders—faithful workers in the gospel cause, made it a memorable day for the Providence saints, and one not to be forgotten by many strangers as well, we have reason to believe.

The song service opened the day's exercises at 10:30 a. m., followed by prayer by F. M. Sheehy, and the fine, though we thought somewhat brief dedicatory sermon by President Joseph Smith, and the presentation of the warranty deed of church building and keys, and grounds upon which it stands, was made in a nice speech by Elder George H. Gates, with a brief statement of the work of Bro. Joseph Luff, in connection with others, in raising the money and paying off the obligations under which the branch was resting, and giving to the church, general and local, a neat, clean home, free from debt or incumbrance, where the gospel of Jesus Christ, unhindered, unlet, and unfettered by the creed of men, may find voice and expression, and where the foot of the stranger, travel worn in search of the truth that makes men truly free, may hear or learn to hear even the voice of God speaking to the souls of hungry men and women to-day as in the olden time before the awful change that apostasy from the primitive plan had made havoc with men's faith.

The dedicatory prayer, offered by Elder M. H. Bond, followed by benediction by Elder George Smith, presiding pastor of the branch, closed the morning exercises.

At 2:30 Pres. Alexander H. Smith presented the gospel plan to the people, with liberty of the Spirit, and satisfaction to the people.

At night Elder Joseph Luff gave to the people, which crowded the church, a characteristically powerful gospel witness, which left us all in a happy and grateful mood, happy in the association of men and women devoted to so great and so good a cause; grateful to the great and good God and Father who had so plainly guided us in this matter ever since the beginning of our effort, years ago, when we were in Providence and the Eastern mission, to obtain a church home by securing the lot upon which the chapel now stands, and of which this day's service and blessing was the culmination.

The impression made upon the public in the appearance and speech of Pres. Joseph Smith in Providence, has been of a salutary and satisfactory character, if we may judge by observation and report. The personal and social experiences of his visit to us have been of a most tender and endearing kind. We were glad to have him with us, and sorry to see him go from us, and pray that his life may be prolonged unto great success in counsel and in his calling and office as a servant of the Most High.

M. H. BOND.

DORCHESTER, Mass., Aug. 25.

DIED.

SPENCER.—At El Moro, Colorado, August 8, 1899, while Bro. G. L. Spencer was cutting away for a timber in a mine, a rock fell, killing him; his youngest son and three other persons were present. Bro. Spencer was born January 19, 1842, at Glovergap, West Virginia; was 57 years, 6 months, and 19 days old. He leaves a wife and eight children, and six grandchildren and his aged mother and brother to mourn. In his early youth he united with the Baptist Church. In 1861 he united with the Bickerton branch of the church and was one of the seventy. In 1865 he was baptized and ordained an elder, and has been a faithful servant of his Lord and Master all these years, and has brought many into the fold of Christ. Funeral services by Elder G. Matthews; followed by the Rev. Fleming of the Presbyterian Church; also by Rev. Bray of the M. E. Church, who extolled the character of the deceased. Interment in Masonic cemetery, Trinidad, Colorado.

HALL.—At her birthplace and home, Wilton Center, Illinois, Sr. Maryetta Hall passed peacefully "over the river with the boatman pale," on August 16, 1899, at the age of 30 years, 15 days, leaving a bereaved husband and two small children, taking the babe with her. Her widowed mother, Sr. Bickford, is left with one son to comfort her in her declining years. Her trust is in the arm of Jehovah, upon which she leans. The funeral service was largely attended, at the M. E. church; the sermon by Elder J. M. Terry, of Chicago, assisted by the resident Methodist and Baptist ministers, who spoke highly of the departed sister. Honor comes to the upright in death.

GRIFFITH.—Willard Griffith was born at Amherst, Ohio, August 16, 1814; died at Shenandoah, Iowa, August 1, 1899, lacking but 15 days of 85 years. The deceased was married to Esther Redfield, April 5, 1838. She had passed on before to meet three of their children who had left them in infancy. Six children had been given them; three remain behind: Sisters Mary T. Gaylord and Roxana E. Griffith, and Mr. W. H. H. Griffith, the daughters rejoicing in the faith in which their parents lived and died. Elder M. H. Forscutt, of Nebraska City, preached the funeral sermon outside the house and under the shade, by which means ample space was supplied for the large concourse of people. Seatings from the city park were supplied by the city authorities. Further respect was shown by attendance at the grave, where the remains were interred in the sightly cemetery overlooking the city.

WARNER.—At his home, Columbus, Nebraska, August 23, 1899, aged 77 years and 11 days, James Warner, teacher of the branch thirty-four years. He was born in Lincolnshire, England; came to America in 1851; was married to his present wife in St. Louis, Missouri, on December 4, 1859; coming to Genoa, Nebraska, December, 1857, taking a homestead in Platte County, 1863; in 1884 he removed to Columbus, where he has since resided. He was a member of the church in England; united with the Reorganization in 1865, and exemplified in his life the sincerity of his faith in the latter-day work, and peacefully fell asleep, expecting an inheritance in the first resurrection. His widow, a daughter, and a grandson are the relatives left to mourn. Funeral services conducted by Elder H. J. Hudson from the residence, a large concourse of old friends following the body to the cemetery. Elder George W. Galley will preach the memorial sermon, September 10, from the chapel.

True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale.

Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

Archæological Committee's Report, WITH MAPS.

Evidences Supporting the Book of Mormon.

This work presents the results of labors of the "Committee on American Archæology," appointed at the General Conference of 1894. The work has been written after much time and special labor in investigating every available source of written information on the subject.

It is divided into three parts. Part 1 contains a preface, and outlines the history of the Nephites. Part 2 is a synopsis of Jaredite history, and includes a summary of the conclusions reached by the committee, with a statement of the evidences upon which said conclusions are based. Part 3 contains much miscellaneous matter of general importance, including a list of early authors on American antiquities, with their opinions concerning the origin of the ancient Americans; a list of authors quoted; also an index of names of lands, cities, rivers, etc.

The committee has outlined and located the civilizations, lands, cities, rivers, and boundaries of countries named in the Book of Mormon. These are shown on six specially prepared Maps, included in the report. Other engravings also appear—illustrations of "Mexican Picture Writing," "Landa's Maya Alphabet," "LePlongeon's Egyptian and Maya Alphabet," "Book of Mormon characters," "Bas Relief from Palenque," and "Inscriptions from Palenque."

The committee has summarized the leading archæological evidences obtainable in support of the claims made by the Book of Mormon; evidences have been gathered from sources not accessible to the average reader, making it a manual of defense of its archæological claims.

The preparation of the work has been completed at considerable expense, but the price has been made as low as possible.

philosopher Moses Mendelssohn, this attitude has been changed, and the whole modern Jewish type of life has become something new. Mendelssohn demanded of his fellow religionists that they should become a part and portion of the peoples among whom their lot had been cast, and be not only Jews, but also Germans, French, or English. It was thought that such a union could be effected without any detriment to the religious views of the Israelites; but in this respect those who advised the innovation were seriously mistaken. Modern civilization is essentially a product of Christianity, and participation in its best work is possible only by recognition, to greater or less extent, of the principles of Christianity. Moreover, the new attitude of the Jews could not but make them more susceptible to the same influences that have given to other peoples their unique type of culture and civilization. In this way the ground was prepared for a greater influence of the Gospel on the Israelites, and this influence has been at work all along with good results.

nearly 225,000 additions to the Christian churches from the Jews during the present century. These baptisms are, as far as the leading countries are concerned, distributed as follows: Russia, 84,500; Austro-Hungary, 44,760; Great Britain, 23,500; Germany, 22,500. A regular proportion has not been maintained in these additions, the lowest numbers being in the sixth and seventh decade. At present the average additions per year number as follows:—

Protestant Church	1,450
Roman Catholic Church	1,250
Greek Catholic Church	1,100
Mixed marriages	1,450
Total	5,250

"These figures are increasing each year, and it is becoming more and more apparent that the Protestant type of Christianity is proving more attractive to the Israelites than either of the Catholic churches."

These conclusions are in part corroborated by the figures published in the annual, the well-known Jahrbuch for 1899, of the Church of Germany, edited by Pastor J. Schneider, of Elberfeld, which (pp. 201-210) enters fully upon the question, supplementing to a considerable extent the account of Nathanael. From this source we extract the following data:—

"The number of conversions from Judaism to Christianity in Germany has increased right along. Twenty-five years ago the average number was about 65, but of late years it has been about 500 and more, most of these taking place in Berlin. Among these converts are many philologists, jurists, and other educated men."—Translations made for The Literary Digest; September 9, 1899.

IS CHRISTIANITY MAKING PROGRESS AMONG THE JEWS?

In many Jewish circles it is regarded as a well-established fact that no Israelite becomes a Christian except for sordid reasons. Christians, on the other hand, point to such cases as Neander, Pick, Philippi, and others prominent in church and state as evidence of the fact that the gospel is a power also among "the lost sheep of the house of Israel." A careful statistical study of this problem is found in Nathanael (Nos. 3 and 4), the mission journal published by Professor Strack, of the University of Berlin. The article, which covers nearly fifty pages, is from the pen of Pastor de le Roi, himself a convert, who has published a three-volume work on the subject. The substance of his article is as follows:—

"In the present nineteenth century the attitude of Israel toward modern civilization has been completely changed, and this change has been of a kind that paved the way for a recognition of the claims of Christianity among this people. Before the present century, both by choice and by necessity, Israel sought absolute isolation from the rest of the natives, and did not seek to enter into the life and development of the peoples in the midst of whom they lived, preferring to remain a religious communion by themselves, not influencing others nor being influenced by them.

"Largely through the efforts of the

"The only reliable basis, however, for a computation of the extent to which Christian principles have become a factor in modern Jewish life is that of actual statistics. Such statistics are accessible from the Protestant, the Roman Catholic, and the Greek Catholic churches, as also from the many special mission societies and from the official lists of converts as reported by the statisticians of Germany. Taking all these sources together, and putting only a conservative estimate on their data, we have the remarkable fact that gospel work among the Israelites has, from the point of numbers, been relatively more successful than among any other people of the world. The summary of the accessions made to the Christian Church from the Israelites since the beginning of the present century, as collected from all the reports of baptisms, are as follows:—

Received into the Protestant Church.....	72,740
Received into the Roman Catholic Church.....	57,300
Received into the Greek Catholic Church.....	74,500
Total	204,540

"Then, too, in the case of 'mixed marriage,' i. e., marriages between Jews and Christians, it has been demonstrated a hundred times over that the gains in conversion of parents and children are in nearly all cases in favor of Christianity, and the accessions from this source have been during the past hundred years nearly 20,000, making in round numbers

"HOPE" IN TWO CREEDS.

BUDDHIST AND CHRISTIAN ETHICS.

President John Henry Barrows, of Oberlin, delivered in Kent Theater yesterday afternoon the fifth of his lectures on "Buddhism and Christianity." The special subject was "Buddhist and Christian Ethics."

"The ethics of Buddhism are scarcely worthy to stand on the same level with modern socialism, or even the superficial humanitarianism which seeks chiefly to better external conditions," he said. "Buddhism seems to abandon the hope that human conditions can be ameliorated. It regards the world as a predestined prison-house of pain. And therefore Buddhism has not unjustly been regarded as pessimistic.

"It may be that Buddhism has hope.

It seeks for spiritual peace through the conviction that life here is transient, and that its woes cannot be remedied. The greatest minister of hope that our earth ever saw was Jesus Christ.

"We must not forget that however solemn are some of the undertones of the Christian gospel—and these solemn undertones belong to the nature of things and sound their deep notes in the inmost heart of all religions—the prevailing tone of Christianity is one of brave encouragement—a trumpet call to triumph. This world is in the hands of an infinitely loving God, and the law of life and progress runs its golden threads through society. Christianity is a rational optimism; it is Faith seeing the harvest field; it is the soul looking at the sunrise which is sure to come, gilding the clouds on the mountain peak or driving the vapors from the lowly valley; it is the spirit looking through delay and through defeat to final victory, and beholding even in the sunset the dawning of life on other and distant spheres.

"Thus John Milton got hold of the divine law, that victory belongs to righteousness and truth. And perhaps the greatest service of some of our modern poets, especially of Browning, is that they have the peculiar Christian quality of inspiring a brave optimism and of leading men to see that 'right is right, for God is God, and right is sure to win.'

"We are saved by hope. And after glancing at the world to which Buddha brought his partial blessing, I can but respond to the words of the late laureate of England, when he sings of Christmas time as 'the birth-time of hope.' It is only Christianity that can make the world young again with the youth that craves and prophesies immortality. It does not lay a cold hand on young fancies and crush them; on young affections and blight them. It rather uses whatever of noble joy springs up within us as a prophecy of a world where ideals shall be realized, where bliss shall be perpetuated, and where service shall be perfect freedom and joy.

"To each of our souls there is a time when this world is as young as was Adam's. Paradise, with all her stately palms, is replanted to those who walk the paths of youthful hope and affection. Eden, with all her happy bowers and many brooks, is reborn whenever two hearts meet each other in the bliss of youthful love, and every mother who clasps to her bosom her newborn child dreams that she is the first Eve that ever drank at the fountains of maternal joy.

"And when the frosts of sorrow and the chill of death come to this paradise, the voice of heavenly love explains that the discipline is but temporary, and that high above earth's glooms and mutations glows a heavenly sphere, and that what began in joy and hope shall end in a kingdom of love and gladness, in a fellowship where in God and man shall have part together."—Chicago Tribune, August 21, 1899.

PLAYS TRICK ON SLATE MEDIUM.

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 27.—The annual camp meeting of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists closed today, with the Rev. Moses Hull of Buffalo, New York, on the platform.

Benjamin Lukens, a skeptic, offered a reward for any message coming from spirits to him on a slate.

Some time ago Lukens proposed that he be allowed to furnish two slates. They were nailed together and sealing wax placed on the nail heads.

Lukens brought the slate back to the city and kept it two days as agreed, and to-day took it back to camp, where a medium and the committee took the slates apart.

A message written on the slate was directed to the Rev. Moses Hull and was represented as coming from Mrs. Colby Luthern, a noted dead spiritualist.

Three small pictures of Mrs. Luthern were also found.

The medium at once declared she had superinduced the message from the spirit, and Dr. Hull declared the message and pictures genuine.

Lukens then told of how he took small wooden wedges and pried the slates apart sufficiently to slip pictures between and then fixed a slate pencil to a wire and wrote the message. His statement was attested by prominent business and professional men.

Dr. Albert W. Miller, Judge Alfred Ellison, and Benjamin Lukens have offered five hundred dollars for proof of genuine communication.—Chicago Tribune, August 28, 1899.

FUNERAL OF JUDGE GROVER.

Warsaw, Ill., Aug. 27.—The funeral services of Judge William N. Grover were held at two o'clock this afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church, with burial in the local cemetery.

Judge Grover was one of the pioneer lawyers of Western Illinois, and practiced with Lincoln, Douglas, Browning, and Bushnell. He was 83 years of age. He came to Illinois in 1837 as a surveyor, later studying law.

During the Mormon troubles, beginning about 1840, he took a prominent part in the expulsion of the sect from Nauvoo. He was a member of the Warsaw troop that marched up to Carthage at the time force was needed to arrest Joseph Smith, the prophet. Some members of the troop joined the mob that attacked the jail and killed Smith and his brother Hyrum. Young Grover was accused of being one of these, and with nine others was indicted for the murder of the prophet. They were tried before Stephen A. Douglas in 1844 and all were acquitted.

Judge Grover moved to St. Louis about 1850, where he took a prominent place at the bar. Abraham Lincoln appointed him United States District Attorney for St. Louis, after a unanimous petition of the St. Louis bar had been presented in favor of Grover. He served brilliantly, but suddenly gave up his practice and returned to this little place because of his wife's ill health.

He continued to practice law until last Friday, when he was taken ill and died in a few moments.

Judge Grover was an uncle of Secretary of State Hay. He is survived by his wife, but had no children.—Chicago Tribune, August 28.

ANARCHISTS PLANNING FOR ACTIVE WORK.

Enrico Maltesta, one of the most widely known of European Anarchists, is in the city. His family is one of the best and oldest in Italy, and he is entitled to call himself Count, but he refuses to use the title. Many of his relatives hold places of honor under the Italian government. He has been imprisoned in almost every country in Europe for the too free expression of his opinions, and a few months ago he escaped from an Italian prison. Since then he had been living in England until his visit to this country. He has written much upon economic and social questions.

He intends to make a tour of the United States, organizing Anarchist groups among the Italian, Spanish, and French workingmen.

John Most will also start in a week or two on an organizing tour among the German Anarchists, in which he will go as far as California. Most will be followed by Mrs. Margot Kuehne, a recent arrival from Europe, who will make a tour of the Eastern States.

Emma Goldman has just returned from a lecturing trip in the mining regions of Pennsylvania.—New York Cor. Chicago Tribune, August 28, 1899.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
HEMAN C. SMITH, }
JOSEPH LUFF, } CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPT. 13, 1899.

THE EDITOR ABROAD.

The senior Editor left the sanctum August 2, the objective point being the dedication of a chapel at Providence, Rhode Island, on the 20th; and incidentally to attend the reunion of the Massachusetts district, to be held at Dennisport, Cape Cod, from the 5th to the 13th, inclusive. From Lamoni to the camp, on the historic cape, via Chicago, Detroit, Niagara Falls, and Boston, is a pleasant trip if one is in reasonable health, and can enjoy the hurrying landscape flying by at the speed of the fast train.

The Editor reached Boston on the 4th, and found the homes of Brn. Richard Bullard, Owen L. Newcombe, and Alexander Kenty, where in the quiet one of Bro. Newcombe and wife Hanora, rest and refreshing sleep were found by a wayworn traveler. On the morning of the 5th, Bro. Kenty and bride Addie, with the Editor raced against time to reach the new central station in time for the train leaving for the cape at 1:08 p. m. Were in time to get tickets, baggage checked, and have three minutes to get into train—but, like some other things not understood, we found that we had mistaken the time, train not going until 1:38 instead of 1:08, and so were chagrined because we were in such a racing hurry. We found a lot of the saints at the station, said to be the second largest and finest in the United States, if not in the world. It is certainly a very fine piece of railway architecture and business convenience.

The train was crowded so that Bro. Luff, kind-hearted and busy seeing that every one of his flock had a seat, lost his twice, some one preempting it by the right of "squatter sovereignty" when he was temporarily absent intent on kindly ministrations.

At a little after four p. m. the cavalcade rode into the camp, two short miles from the station, at North Harwich, part in a hack, part in a vehicle called a "barge," drawn by a pair of bony grays (not bonny grays). Why it is called a "barge" the Editor failed to see, unless it came from the facility with which it received and carried from twenty to twenty-five of the saints. It almost resembled an overloaded horse car in the palmy days of that antiquated convenience of city and suburban travel. We found Bro. Alexander Smith, Richard Bullard, M. H. Bond, and a whole lot more already on the ground.

An organization had been effected, and the reunion was in full blast. The time was fully occupied from start to finish, the burden of preaching being borne by the visitors from abroad. But such men as W. H. Kelley, A. H. Smith, Joseph Luff, M. H. Bond, O. E. Coombs, H. J. Davison, John Smith of New Bedford, George W. Burnham, R. Bullard, John Gilbert of Fall River, and a lot of others, made up a strong band of defenders of the faith. There was an excellent band of singers, led by Sr. Ora Holmes of Providence, and Sr. Linney of Fall River, with Sr. Livina Ashton at the organ, and an orchestra for the last three or four days, which greatly aided the song service. Fourteen baptisms were the net results of the meetings, as a gathering net; though the candidates were the converts of local elders in the branches whence they came. The parting came on the 14th and 15th, and the members were scattered to be regathered in their homes in the regions round about the "hub."

Bro. Luff and the Editor went to Plymouth, the historic place where the Pilgrim fathers landed in 1620. On arriving there we found that Bro. Nehemiah Nickerson had advertised three meetings, against specific injunction, so we had to acquiesce, or the "dear public" would be disappointed—so disappointed.

Bro. Peter Hanson, a resident of Plymouth for twenty-seven years, and the keeper of the arcade and the gates which shelter the rock on which the pilgrims landed from their boat so many years ago, conveyed us from the camp grounds to Plymouth, and Sr. Henry Hemmerly, who with her boy came with the party from Dennisport, took us to the home of her husband and herself, where they gave us a New England welcome, Bro. Henry Hemmerly being employed in the extensive cordage works, working at night, gave up his time to make our stay pleasant.

We filled the three appointments Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, August 15, 16, 17, Bro. Luff occupying Wednesday evening, the Editor the other two. The meetings were held in the saints' neat chapel on the hillside, next door to the residence of Bro. Nehemiah Nickerson. One of Bro. N.'s daughters, assisted by Bro. Leland, furnished the music.

The attendance was small, possibly not a half dozen strangers all told. The little band of saints do what they can to keep together; of the wisdom of methods we cannot say, as we were not there long enough to know what might be best. Both Bro. Peter Hanson and Bro. Nickerson are zealous, and feel the strangeness of the situation; but Plymouth has the atmosphere of those who burned the witches hanging round it still.

We visited Plymouth Rock. The identical rock, so says tradition, onto which the hardy Pilgrims stepped when they landed in 1620, is now covered by a stone canopy, with iron rails and gates on each side between the corner pillars. Bro. Hanson is the custodian of the keys of the gates, and opens them each morning to the patriotic sight-seers. We wandered down the earliest historic street between the rows of houses on either side, saw the Governor Winslow's and Bradford's residence; drank at the fountain which is supplied from Elder Brewster's spring; the steady flow from which for these three hundred and seventy years has not impaired the quality of the waters of which these Puritans drank on their settlement made so long ago. A placard on the wall of the house standing close by, gives the analysis of the waters of the spring, which are stated to be second to none in the United States for purity and good qualities, as a beverage. We drank with an unbreathed prayer that as the fathers of the Plymouth colony drank of those waters, in the body, so might they soon or late be permitted to drink of the waters of Life that flow from the perennial spring from under the throne of God in the redeemed earth.

We visited Coles Hill, sat on the site whence the iron-nerved Pilgrims gathered to look out across the sea to the inhospitable places when they fled to find the New Canaan in a land they knew not of. We passed into the Burial Hill grounds, where the bones of the valiant men and fair and brave women of that early settlement lie in wait for the trump that will wake the warriors and the women alike to the judgment. Shall we meet them? Shall we know the wise Bradford, the brave impetuous Miles (or Myles) Standish; the scholar John Alden, the ladylike Lady

Bradford, the shy but lovable Priscilla, who preferred the man of letters to the man of the sword; and woke him to her regard by her gentle "Why dost thou not speak for thyself, John?" The happy issue is one of the bright lights in the dark shadows of that historic period and the place the landing of the Pilgrims; Miles Standish and his sword; the courtship of John Alden and Priscilla Mullen, "John and Priscilla," are made the subjects of souvenirs of the place in many forms, to please the tourist and enrich the purses of the thrifty burghers.

We visited a house built for Mr. William Crow in 1664. Saw the beams and boards, the fireplace in which the crane and hooks are still swinging as we were told; and the stone sink, a huge disc basin hewn out of the solid granite at great pains and labor, and brought over from Holland in one of the vessels plying back and forth for the Colonies. It still stands in the corner of what must have been the kitchen, one edge supported by the outer wall, through which its rude spout still protrudes to let the waste water run, the other upon a rude bench which has borne its burden all these years. The house was built in 1664, with an addition on the front built in 1727. The roof boards and rafters still bear the shingles and turn the rain and uphold the snows as when this historic Crow lived.

We, the Editor, confesses to a creepy feeling while standing in this ancient domicile, whence every descendant of the original occupant has passed away; and where strangers raise their children with little thought of the little ones whose feet trod the floors in careless disregard of the dangers to which fathers, mothers, brothers, and sisters and themselves were exposed in that stormy period; Indians without the settlement, witchcraft within.

Bro. Henry Hemmerly took us—with his wife and Sr. Nickerson, (one of the daughters,)—around the head of the bay, to the Sudbury settlement. Here we visited the Myles Standish monument, situated on one of the highest points on the point that juts into the sea. The Editor, in company with Sr. Hemmerly, climbed the one hundred and twenty-five steps that led to the top of the monument, and took in the various sights seen from that conspicuous elevation.

We saw on our trip the Miles Standish house, and the house of John Alden; but did not go into either, for want of time. It was a notable ride, and our thought peopled those shores, headlands, hills, and vales with those hardy religious adventurers, to whom the teeming thousands of the present population are partially indebted for their love and enjoyment of liberty.

We enjoyed a clam bake on the shores of Plymouth Bay, the last day of our stay, Bro. Hemmerly being the master of ceremonies, Bro. Luff was too ill to attend, but the Editor proved equal to the share of bivalves allotted to him.

We, Bro. Luff and I, left Plymouth on Friday morn—leaving an appointment for Bro. Holmes J. Davison to be filled by him that night. We reached Providence at near two p. m.; secured a lunch, the proverbial clam chowder, and then found the residences of Brn. George H. Gates and M. H. Bond; the former becoming the guest of Bro. Gates, the Editor of Bro. Bond.

At Dennisport we were cared for by the committee for the reunion, and ate at Mr. and Sr. Long's, and slept at Mr. and Sr. Nixon's, eating our last two meals at the latter place. We filled an appointment at the chapel in the village, Bro. Nathan Eldredge presiding, the Editor doing the preaching. The long continuance of the reunion had tired all; and the Editor may have failed to keep his audience awake, the transition from out of doors to the confines of a house proving to be quite a sedative.

But at Providence the elements were propitious. A meeting was held on Wednesday the 16th, for prayer, and on Friday evening, Bro. A. H. Smith gave an excellent discourse, which was well received.

On Sunday, August 20, the day was clear and warm; the chapel was filled full of saints of the Providence and adjoining branches with a goodly attendance of them of the outside. The exercises began at 10:30 a. m., and closed at 12 m. The sermon was by the Editor, the prayer by Bro. M. H. Bond. Not a jar occurred; all passed off in much pleasantness.

The Editor, in behalf of Bishop Kelley, received the key, and in turn placed the building dedicated to the service of God and his people in the custody of Bro. George Smith, to be kept open for the advocacy of the truth; the watchword being a "Free pulpit and an open Bible." An auxiliary meeting was held on Tuesday evening, August 22, at which Bro. Holmes J. Davison was the preacher, a fair audience.

On Wednesday Bro. A. H. Smith and the Editor left Providence for Fall River, where meetings had been arranged for Sunday, the 27th.

Providence marks the place where Roger Williams sought safety and solitude among the Indians when banished from the Massachusetts assembly because of his open opposition to the dictation of the state in religious affairs. He did well, founded the Providence Plantations, and the Baptist Church in America. We honor the sound sense and sturdy manliness of Roger Williams.

On the evening of our arrival the Editor presided over the usual weekly prayer service, at the request of the officer in charge. The branch was not out in force, and the meeting was small; but a good spirit prevailed.

Thursday, the 24th, was a gala day in Fall River. The Veteran Firemen's Association for New England held their annual meeting on that day in the city; and thousands upon thousands of citizens and visitors thronged the streets from an early hour. There was a parade of resident and visiting fire companies to the number of thirty-seven, with seventeen bands and thirteen drum corps to make music. The procession passed to the park, and as soon as the company was in, the clouds broke and rain—wet drabbling rain—began to fall, and continued until the crowds were either dispersed or drenched. We believe that forty to fifty thousand people "got wet." Such a sight we have not seen for many a day. "Uncle Alex." and the Editor ate a lunch at a wayside, temporary, out of doors restaurant, under one umbrella; from one side of which the rain ran off one side into the sugar bowl and open mustard cup, and off the other on the Editor's left arm and down his neck. Ugh!

The rain cleared up in the afternoon, but the Editor had enough of sightseeing, so he stayed indoors, when Dr. John Gilbert, "Uncle Alex.," and the women folk went to the City Park to hear the music and see the fireworks. The last-named did not occur, being "put off" like those other and more terrible works of fire, "until a more convenient season."

Bro. A. H. Smith preached an acceptable sermon, in the "little church around the corner," on Friday evening; and on Sunday, at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 in the evening, the Editor spoke on the themes of salvation through Jesus and the ethics and office work of doctrine, the doctrine of Christ, and their effect on the race by design of God. The audiences were good, very attentive, and the Editor enthused.

Fall River is in advance of some of the branches, east and west, in that it has some excellent song and musical talent willing to "do what they can," to aid the great work by using their talent.

While at Fall River the writer and "Uncle Alex." were the guests of Bro. Dr. John Gilbert, and family; a pleasant and genial home.

During our stay at Fall River Bro. Gilbert took the Editor on his "rounds" for a day; visiting the Mayor, the City Hall, the Hospital, and the Poor Farm; all of which was very interesting as well as instructive. The city expends something over one hundred thousand dollars, in her works of charity per year, according to the statement of Mayor Jackson; who is a very pleasant gentleman, in appearance reminding the Editor of Ex-Governor Frank Jackson, of Iowa—wonder if the Jacksons, like the Smiths, are related—if one goes back far enough. By the way, the family was well represented at the Providence dedication, George Smith, President of Branch; John Smith, President of District; A. H. Smith, Patriarch; and Joseph Smith, President of Church.

A visit was also paid to the medical preceptor of Bro. Gilbert, Dr. Jackson, with whom was spent a pleasant half hour in converse on the church and its tenets. The Doctor was a Baptist, but has changed somewhat, in that he is willing now to say that he cannot see why the church should not be what it was in the days of the apostles at Jerusalem.

From Fall River to Boston is but a step or two for the iron horse; so on the tick of the clock at 1:42 p. m. on Monday, August 28, "Uncle Alex" and the Editor left the town of spindles and rugged rocks, for "The Hub," Uncle Alex. to the shades of Bowers Street, the Editor to the airy realm of Arlington Heights.

The trail from the foot of State Street, where the famous cup of tea was brewed the determinate fragrance of which pervades the haunts, streets, forums, and business places once occupied by Adams and his associate patriots, leads through Cambridge, past the site where stood the Black horse Tavern, the spot where stood the house where a band of soldiers was captured, and Spy Lake, a little sheet of water on the shore of which somewhere a spy was captured, and Arlington Heights afforded a spot whence the patriots could watch the friends in red of King George and Lord North.

The instinct and habits of commerce and the needs of the suburban population of a city like Boston of nearly a million of inhabitants, are fast blotting out the receding landmarks of the Revolutionary period, and a generation hence will likely neither know, nor care for the times, incidents, and places of "our fathers."

Yesterday, the 1st of September, the Editor in company with Bro. Frank E. Busiel, of No. 225 Pearl Street, Somerville, visited some places of note in the old town. The Old Statehouse, in front of which the first blood of the Revolution was spilled, in a clash between the citizens and a squad of soldiers, in which one, Attucks, a negro, was killed. The spot is marked by a sort of rosette shaped bit of pavement like a wheel laid in granite blocks. A plate set in the wall of a business house contains the legend of the event pointing to the spot. It is easily seen from the front windows of the Old Statehouse.

Inside the Statehouse, preserved by the Boston Historical Society, are many relics of the early times; not the least curious and instructive of which is a series of maps of Boston covering a period from 1633 to 1899. One, a map made by a French army engineer planning for an attack upon and capture of "Baston," as it was called. Some three or four of the maps have the word spelled with an "a."

One would suppose that on so rugged a coast, the universal rule would be that the granite rocks of the eternal hills underlay "The Hub" and its suburban surroundings, but in our wanderings we saw the foundations of a very large building being laid, in preparation for which wooden piles were being driven into the soil or debris, on which to rest the proposed structure of granite and iron designed to occupy the space. Will the years of the future show a faulty foundation under the fair structure; or will the permanency of the structure be taken as indicating a solid basis on which it will be taken into the centuries before the end of all earthly things, as is now the case in some spiritual structures surrounding us? What a revelation of secrets there will be, by and by.

BOOK OF MORMON DOES NOT TEACH POLYGAMY.

The San Francisco Call in its editorial column of a recent issue, in discussing the attitude of the United States towards the Sultan of Sulu and the religious institutions of his government, said:—

That religion is Mohametan, and the institutions are polygamy and chattel slavery. While we extend our jurisdiction over the Koran and polygamy and salary the sultan who believes in the one and practices the other, the Stars and Stripes, protecting the harems of Sulu, waves as a banner of virtuous vengeance to strike terror into the harems of Utah. The Book of Mormon and the continuing revelations that project it, like the Koran, teach polygamy as a religious duty, not assumed exactly as a burden but rather as a means of offsetting certain austerities in the observance of creed and ritual.

To this the Deseret News, the organ of the Utah Church, in its editorial column for August 10, 1899, replies:—

Of course there are no harems in Utah as the term is applied; there are no Moslem institutions connected with the "Mormons," though there would be no difficulty in the Call finding the seraglio as an institution in San Francisco. But we will not find further fault with its use of the term, since it seems to please it, and perhaps it knows no better. As to its assertion of what the Book of Mormon teaches, however, that being a statement which no one with a regard for truth would make without some reasonable foundation, we suggest to the Call that an error has been made in naming the book that teaches polygamy. It should have said Bible, to be accurate; and then the doctrine is not to "offset certain austerities," the violation of which pharisaical moralists assume is necessary.

We do not propose, in these columns, to enter into the controversy between these periodicals, so far as it relates to the attitude of the United States towards slavery and polygamy; but we call attention to the admission of the News that the Book of Mormon does not teach polygamy. This has always been our understanding and we hasten to chronicle the conversion of the News to this position. Hereafter if any misguided representative of the body of which the News is the official organ asserts that the Book of Mormon favors polygamy, we hope the ministry will remind them of the fact of such an assertion "being a statement which no one with a regard for truth would make without some reasonable foundation," and suggest to them "that an error has been made in naming the book that teaches polygamy."

This narrows the issue considerably, and makes the teachings of the Bible alone the field of controversy. On this point we deny the correctness of the News' position, that the Bible teaches polygamy. It does historically give instances of the practice of polygamy; but we invite the News to show that it anywhere teaches polygamy as a divine institution.

MOB VIOLENCE IN THE SOUTH.

The Southern Star, organ of the Utah Church in the South, contains in its issue for August 19, 1899, the following account of an interview with Governor Bradley, of Kentucky, by Elder Ben E. Rich, President of the Southern mission of the Utah Church:—

PRESIDENT RICH RETURNS.

Friday, August 11, President Rich was in conference with Gov. Bradley of Kentucky. While the Governor has no right to issue a warrant for the arrest of an individual, it is his duty to use the power of the state in the interests of law and order, and protect American citizens, whether residents of the state of Kentucky or of some other state.

He said it was our duty to first appeal to local officers and if they refused to do their duty, then to go to the circuit judge. He regretted very much the destruction of our churches and numerous lawless acts against our Elders. The laws of Kentucky would compel proper officers to be stationed to guard our church buildings if necessary in order to preserve them from mob violence.

The Governor advised that the Elders appeal to local authorities for protection and justice, and if they failed to receive their rights from them, and the judges of the circuit court, then it was our duty to file affidavits before him, and as Governor of the state it would be his duty to put down lawless acts if there was power in the state to do so. The Constitution of the United States should and must be respected instead of trampled underfoot.

As stated heretofore, while the Reorganized Church is interested in giving the people, South and North, to understand the differences between it and the Utah Church, it is also interested in the suppression of mob violence and all forms of injustice or persecution inflicted upon any people, the Utah people included.

Governor Bradley, it seems, is not a man of expediency, as was Martin Van Buren, and evidently intends that law and order shall rule, in the stead of mobs and the extremes with which the State has been troubled.

In this connection the following item indicates progress toward the extinction of mobocracy in Georgia. The clipping is taken from the Chicago Tribune, August 21, 1899:—

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 20.—By the indictment of six men for lynching in Hall County a step has been taken toward the first legal punishment ever administered in this State to men guilty of mob violence.

The lynching took place at Gainesville and much mystery surrounded the crime until Taylor Hamilton was duped into confessing. He implicated Oliver Bell of Atlanta, Mark Bell of White County, Thomas Bryson of Gainesville, Charles Tanner and Henry Towey of the same place, all of whom are prominent and who have been indicted for murder.

Fear is entertained for Hamilton's life, as threats of vengeance have been made.

FROM SWITZERLAND AND GERMANY.

Late letters from Bro. Robert Oehring, in Germany, and through him from Bro. F. Steffe, in Switzerland, report their experiences in missionary work. Bro. Steffe found decided opposition to his efforts among his relatives and from others where he endeavored to make efforts in Switzerland. He thinks a hall should be hired in Zurich, Switzerland, and states that the board of the missionary must be paid. He has not yet learned whether the law would permit preaching in that country; severe and bitter prejudice exists, however.

Bro. Oehring finds religion, religious privileges, and about everything else, under the control of the state, in Germany. Everything is the state, and the state is everything, hence the powers that be are all in all, and the liberties of the people merely nominal, being very much circumscribed. He had, so far, not met with any encouragement in obtaining permission from authorities to preach, having been advised not to preach, by some. However, he had been kindly received by some, in public and in private life. He found the people nominally connected with Lutheranism, though lacking in knowledge of fundamental and essential truths of the Bible. They needed simple teaching, more simple in fact than our tract literature furnished. He also expressed the opinion that halls must be hired and the expenses of the missionary paid from America, by the Bishop, if the work is to be carried on. He was setting forth the faith of the church, the latter-day apostasy, in explanation of the Reorganized Church, etc., and some, high and low, were "astonished at the doctrine." It will thus be seen that the brethren have difficult work before them; but we trust they will succeed, now they are in those countries.

One is astonished to learn there is really so little liberty in the countries named. We should appreciate the liberties of lands where free speech and a free press are granted the people. As to conditions in Switzerland, we are not posted, but from conditions in Germany, presented by Bro. Oehring, it seems that the people are under a rigid state system that offers little hope for progress until there is a great change. However, the change will come, in due time, in every state where now the people are denied the exercise of just and proper rights. The heaven of liberty is working and will work until all mankind are emancipated from political, social, and other phases of bondage.

A WHALE STORY.

Some time ago one of the brethren sent us a lengthy article from the Cleveland Leader and Herald, of July 18, 1891, entitled, "A Modern Jonah," a purported account of a New Bedford sailor having been swallowed by a whale and living in the whale's stomach for thirty-six hours; the account published originally in the St. Louis Globe Democrat, from a New Bedford correspondent. The article graphically described the cruise of the whaling vessel "the Star of the East," of New Bedford, and how in the vicinity of the Falkland Islands James Bartley, one of the crew, was swallowed by a whale, being among the crew as the small whaling boat was overturned while engaged in the harpooning and pursuit.

The sensations of the man were duly pictured in detail, his final loss of consciousness, etc. After the cutting up of the whale Bartley was found in the monster's stomach, his skin where exposed being bleached and shriveled by action of the gastric juice; Bartley being finally restored to consciousness and sanity.

We forwarded the whale story to Bro. John Smith, of New Bedford, for inquiry and report, and who makes the following reply and inclosure:—

526 Purchase St., NEW BEDFORD,
Mass., August 30, 1899.

Dear Brother:—Your "whale story" is considered a "fake." I called upon two of the leading whaling owners mentioned in the inclosed letter from the Mercury, and they have no knowledge of such a vessel named "Star of the East." I called also at the Custom House, and they had no knowledge of such a vessel. The Mercury is the oldest paper in the city, and is considered an authority on shipping.

I also inclose you another whale story found among my papers, which you may have for what it is worth. A great many forecastle stories find their way into print that never happened.

Any further information wanted will be furnished so far as able.

You will see that most of the "whale stories" are told away from home, and are made to appear sensational. The one I inclose I have not tried to verify.

Yours in the faith,

JOHN SMITH.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 29, 1899.
MR. JOHN SMITH, 526 Purchase St.:

Dear Sir:—None of the reporters of the Mercury know anything about this story and all think it a "fake." The shipping man says he does not know of any whaler "Star of the East" of recent years. If James Bartley is in the city he is known to no one in the office.

Some of the whaling sharks, John Wing, of J. and W. R. Wing, or Leander Brightman, or Gus Moulton, at J. and W. R. Wing's, would be able to trace such a ship, if there was one by the name given, and also to give the captain's name. Yours,

R. A. SWAN.

So much for the value of some unverified newspaper reports. It suggests the necessity of care in using such reports.

Bro. Smith's clipping may be reproduced as space permits.

LOSSES IN MAILS.

Bro. Frank Criley requests us to state to patrons of the Herald Office that money should not be remitted without being registered. Complaints made to the Herald Office of money simply inclosed in envelopes being lost, show that several hundreds of dollars have been lost by letters being opened and robbed in transit.

This matter has been reported to the Chief Inspector of Post Offices and cars at Washington, who is investigating it.

From the fact that complaints come from parties whose mail comes by certain routes, while like remittances come from others not coming over said routes, the Business Manager thinks some postal employee has been "spotting" Herald Office mail.

Remittances should, in all cases, be made by draft, money order, express order, or registered letter. Parties sending money otherwise do so at their own risk.

Remitters are also cautioned to write the office address plainly, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. Some mail, carelessly addressed, goes to Lamont, some to Decatur City, Iowa, etc. Please take notice. 35-4t

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Bro. I. N. Roberts was refuting attacks on the faith made by three Adventist ministers, at Clitherall, Minnesota. They had refused to discuss regular propositions or accept set rules for debate, hence he was obliged to agree upon a general, running, night-about, informal discussion, upon which he would enter on Tuesday, the 12th. In this connection we may state that Bro. Charles Barr, of Lamoni, who has made an extensive examination of the Advent movement, has a work on that subject in manuscript, which he hopes to publish some time this fall. If published it would prove useful to ministry and laity in pointing out the errors and in refuting the claims of Mrs. Ellen G. White and other prominent Advent writers.

Bro. Stephen Butler, Kingfisher, Oklahoma, wrote, late date, that there were seven churches in that city which had always given him "the cold shoulder." Though he had billed the town for some of the elders, but few came. He therefore concluded to flood the place with tracts; so taking horse and buggy, with a boy on each side, he had driven through the place, leaving tracts, HERALDS, Ensigns, or Leaves, at every house, also placing them in wagons and buggies. This he has done covering a period of ten years, and had also kept two Books of Mormon in circulation. As a result many former opposers now are friends to the cause. He reports two of the churches now without pastors, as a result of dying sectarianism. Would that every place was as well supplied with literature as Bro. Butler reports of Kingfisher.

The Gospel Advocate, Nashville, Tennessee, August 10, contains an article "Mormons vs. Mormons," by one R. B. Neal, an anti-Mormon writer of whom we have heard slightly in the past, in his efforts to destroy the foundations of Mormonism, so called. Bro. E. W. Nunley writes in the same publication, setting forth our antagonism to Brighamism, etc. In Mr. Neal's article he proposes that the Josephites clear away the Brighamites, next to set the Whitmerites after the Josephites, after which we will dispose of what remains of Mormonism. Mr. Neal may succeed, but so far we have seen little results, if any, from his puny efforts. Many clergymen, so called, are hunting a career that will bring them into public prominence. So far Mr. Neal does not appear to have attained fame or to have astonished the country in his work. At last accounts Bro. Nunley was to hold a discussion with a Baptist minister, with prospects that other discussions would follow. He was formerly a Baptist.

Arrivals during the past week include Bishop Kelley and Brn. Criley and J. A. Gunsolley, from Independence reunion.

Mrs. Eva Mee, a sister ill in the hospital at Fairhaven, Washington, would like to be administered to by elders at or near Seattle. She also desires to become acquainted with saints of Seattle, where she lives. She asks elders and saints there to write. Address her care West Street Electric Railway, Seattle, Washington.

We announce elsewhere the opening of the "Iowa School for the Deaf," at Council Bluffs, September 30, 1899. This is an excellent school, conducted under State patronage, and is "free to all deaf persons of school age of Iowa."

The Indianapolis News, August 5, sent us by someone, contains a lengthy article detailing at length the work of Utah elders in the Indiana metropolis. The article contains copious quotations from the so-called revelation on polygamy and is adorned with a cut from "the Book of Abraham." There certainly is need that someone refute the statements named and set forth the truth instead. We hope in due time to have capable representatives in every city throughout the country, as we ought to have.

Bro. J. W. Whitley, Toqua, Washington, who is in poor health, asks prayer for recovery. He has labored to get the truth before the people, some of whom await the coming of an elder, to be baptized. He thinks a branch could be built up there, and requests a "good elder" to visit the locality. He lives forty miles from Cooley City on the Columbia River, near Bridgeport, Douglas County, Washington, in what is called the "big bend."

Chief Black Hawk, the most noted of the chiefs of the Wisconsin Winnebago Indians, died at Brockway, Wisconsin, September 4, aged ninety years. He was a friend to the white people and often averted Indian wars.

Dreyfus, the Jewish soldier, was convicted in his second trial by the military judges at Rennes, France, and sentenced to ten years imprisonment. The Berlin Tageblatt says of the verdict that blind prejudice has prevailed against reason, and that the "alliance of the saber and holy water has triumphed over the Third Republic." Great indignation has been caused, almost throughout the civilized world at the result, and it is said that monster petitions in Dreyfus' favor will be sent to France, and that the Exposition of 1900 may be boycotted by foreigners.

Russia has pronounced in favor of compulsory education throughout the Empire; another evidence of the dawning and growth of universal liberty and equality.

Bro. William Davis, Uby, Michigan, September 4: "The work is moving along nicely in the district at present. Have been very busy this summer. We have had five two-days' meetings in succession. I am holding the fort in Uby at present; have the tent there, and large audiences and good interest. Expect to continue there for two weeks at least."

THE TWO COVENANTS.—NO. 3.

THE BIBLE IS THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE NEW TESTAMENT; OR, THE OLD AND THE NEW COVENANTS.

BY ELDER JOSEPH F. BURTON.

THE SINAITIC LAW.

We may be aided in obtaining a correct view of these laws by keeping in mind the times and circumstances surrounding those people who were to be governed by them; and also by remembering the covenant to Abraham, Thy seed shall inherit Canaan. Viewed in the light of this promise, the Exodus, the law, and all their attending circumstances are not separate transactions, standing in history as independent events, but are among the events necessary in their times in the unfolding of the purposes and promises of God to Abraham.

As those Hebrews stood before Sinai they were without law. They had removed from Egypt into the wilderness—possibly three millions of them—as though a nation should be born in a day, without law or officers; these were yet to be provided, and from Sinai Israel began to receive laws for their commonwealth, for the well-being of their society, and the necessary laws, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not kill, etc., had the same signification then which they have now in the codes of laws of all nations.

THOU SHALT HAVE NO OTHER GODS BEFORE ME.

The first words which were spoken to Israel from Sinai were,

I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt.—Ex. 20: 2.

This spoken by the voice of God himself, was far in advance of the idea of God as held by the Egyptians and more or less imbibed by the Hebrews during their sojourn in that land. Not an image of an animal, not the sun, moon, or star is Israel's God; but a living, eternal, powerful God; and he brought them out of Egypt, and was about to give laws for the guidance of that nation which he had brought out of Egypt, and not for any other nation or people.

Those laws were prefaced by the term, "Thou shalt not," excepting possibly two, one of these being the Sabbath to be kept holy, in doing which, the declaration is, "Thou shalt not" do any work on that day; and the reason assigned for giving this law is as follows:—

And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the Lord thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm: therefore the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath day.—Deut. 5:15.

The other one is,

Honor thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.—Ex. 20:12.

These two at least are surely for Hebrews only; for, to them was given the land of Canaan; and they were brought out of Egypt. And whether these commandments were ever given to any other nation or not, we need not now inquire; but it is certain that this covenant was not made with Abraham, Isaac, or Jacob, as they could not have accepted the declaration, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." This statement is both declarative and mandatory. Jesus, who made this statement, by it declared to Israel that they should be without God in the world until in the fullness of times all Israel should be saved. (If it was Jehovah who spoke, he declared that Israel should be without Christ until they should be willing to say, Blessed is he who cometh in the name of the Lord.)

When Abraham received the information that in his seed all nations should be blessed, he received the gospel; that was the very essence of the gospel, and to Abraham the strength of the promise was in the fact that in Christ all the world should be blessed. And who could bless all the world but God? Therefore was not that promise, the promise of Christ, the Son of God? And as he is the one through whom all men will be blessed, there is no other. Not in the name of Jehovah alone, but in the name of Jesus must man be saved, for there is no other name given among men whereby we must be saved, for Jehovah has ordained salvation in that way, consequently he who obeys Christ obeys Jehovah also, therefore has both the Father and the Son.

Therefore Abraham could not have subscribed to a code of laws like those of Sinai which would have prevented him from accepting Jehovah; and as Isaac and Jacob were in the Abrahamic covenant, the gospel, we are easily prepared to believe the statement of Moses,

The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb. The Lord made not this covenant with our fathers.—Deut. 5:2, 3.

Abraham could not have entered into such a covenant without rejecting the other covenant which Jehovah had made with him, that his seed should be the Christ, the Son of God. And all who have been baptized into Christ are Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise; therefore cannot regard a law which would forbid us accepting Jehovah. And one of the great blessings which came to man eighteen centuries ago, was the fact that Jesus fulfilled that law, and took it out of the way, as it was against us, forbidding us to accept God the Eternal One. Moses said,

Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord.—Deut. 6:4.

The statement that "God sent his Son" is an inconceivable one unless we think of two persons. "My Father is greater than I," must mean two persons. "This is my beloved Son," is one person speaking of another. "He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son." In this sentence the word both expresses the thought of two persons. "He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son."

THOU SHALT NOT TAKE THE NAME OF THE LORD THY GOD IN VAIN.

Jewish commentators interpret this to mean that the names ascribed to deity shall not be used to designate any other person or object of worship, but should be reserved for God only, and should never be uttered, except to designate the Eternal One.

There was a custom in the Society Islands for persons to change their names when anything out of the usual order of events occurred to them, as the names of Abram and Sarai were changed; but when the kings changed their names, the words which they chose from the language for their new name, should never again be had in common use. Thus King Tu, being sick, and coughing considerably at nights, changed his name to designate this. Po was their word for night, and ma re for cough; thus his name became Pomare, after which those words were dropped from common use, and rui is now night, and hota is cough. The other words, po and mare, had become sacred to their king.

And thus the Jews were commanded not to use the names of deity to designate anything excepting God, and to use them disrespectfully in common language was blasphemy, punishable with death.

Assuming that it was Jehovah who uttered the law from Sinai, he who would say of Christ, "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever," and, "The Word was God," uttered blasphemies against the law which says, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain," and by its ordinances was punishable with death. Therefore the high priests quickly condemned Jesus as worthy of death, for he had ascribed to himself a name which was deity's alone. And whether we may believe it was the Father or the Son who gave the law, it was equally violated by accepting the two, as is necessary in the gospel. "Ye believe in God, believe also in me," (John 14:1,) is the teaching of Jesus in the gospel, the new covenant; and the Sinai covenant says, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." Therefore it was against us, until in the fullness of times God provided a body for Christ. Then God was manifest in the flesh, and the old covenant passed away by limitation and fulfillment.

MAN A SINNER. WEAKNESS OF THE LAW.

From the day of the transgression in the garden of Eden until now, man is a sinner. No mortal ever has lived, or will live, who by reason of his own inherent or acquired goodness will be able to pass the flaming swords, unaided by Jesus the Redeemer.

Man is a sinner. Sin cannot enter into heaven. He who would enter there must get rid of sin before the judgment day. If man reforms to-day, his sins of yesterday are still upon him. Who shall bear them off? who shall cleanse the unclean? No man can, for all men need cleansing themselves. Therefore some one more than man, more than mortal, must help man, or man is lost. As no man can cleanse mortals of their sins, so also no law can do that great work. No matter how good the law may be, law cannot save. The blood of bulls and of goats could not take away sin, and the defiled blood of the sinner as an offering would but sink him deeper into darkness; and as there is no other name given under heaven by which man can be saved, except in the name of Jesus Christ, so there is no way by which mortals can be made free from sin, but in the precious blood of Christ the Lamb of God; and in no other way can it be applied for this purpose, except through the gospel of the Son of God. In fact, that is the glad tidings of great joy to all the world; and Jesus has come to redeem all who have died, are dying, or will hereafter die, who would have obeyed the fullness of the gospel, had they known of it and had opportunity; redeem them by cleansing them from all their sins, or by cleansing them from all the sins which they were unable to cleanse themselves of, either by not having the opportunity, or by reason of not being able. And the song of the redeemed will be,

Thou . . . hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation.—Rev. 5:9.

Under the covenant of Sinai, no man received a remission of sins. The blood of Christ was not applied to the sinner for that purpose under that law. It was but a shadow.

The Israelites in the wilderness, untutored and unacquainted with self-government, must have stringent laws or they would have degenerated into a nation of idolatrous and wicked people. And in the laws which were given them, ample provision was made for the development of their physical natures. But a vail was over their prophet, their spiritual natures were not willing to see the glory of God; and their worship was in signs and symbols, in offering and sacrifice, by priest and high priest. No Israelite might enter into the holy of holies and witness the shekinah, or glory of God, except the high priest, and he only once a year. And their laws, if not violated, kept them from drifting into iniquity, which was all it could do. Eternal life was not found in the law, "Thou shalt not kill," and all their offerings and sacrifices could not take away sin, nor cleanse the sinner. Eternal life is found in him who declared of himself, "I am the resurrection and the life," and that life is brought to light in the gospel and not in the old covenant of Sinai. "An eye for an eye" was the law to Israel; but, "Resist not evil" is the law of Christ in the gospel. He who does not kill because he fears the law, is not a murderer in the eyes of the law; but he who hates his brother sufficiently to kill him, and is only restrained by fear of the law, is a murderer under the new covenant.

But it is inconceivable that such a law should be needed among immortals as, "Thou shalt not kill" each other, therefore he who with his last expiring breath could utter a prayer for his murderers, as did Stephen, belongs to a sphere where such laws are unknown; are not needed; have no place. The law of Sinai did not teach Stephen to pray for his murderers, for that law said, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy" (Matt. 5:43); but the gospel says, Love your enemies and forgive all men their trespasses.

The Sinai law kept men from going downward through fear of punishment; the other lifts man up and ennobles him through love. Moses said that the display of power on Sinai was for the purpose "that his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not" (Ex. 20:20); but Jesus said, "If ye love me, keep my commandments."—John 14:15. Not the commandment to kill your brother if he should pick up sticks on the sabbath, but the commands of the gospel, in which is the law, Forgive all men their trespasses; not the commands of that law by which nothing was made perfect, but the commands of the perfect law of liberty, the gospel, which laws are to be regarded through love, and not fear.

The command, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," is not equivalent to the command, "Ye believe in God, believe also in me," for those who would receive life "must honor the Son, even as they honor the Father. He that honoreth not the Son, honoreth not the Father which hath sent him."—John 5:23. What, then, of the law which forbids me receiving them both? Eternal life is the gift of God through Jesus Christ; but the law which forbids me receiving but one of these, either Jesus Christ or Jehovah, keeps me from receiving eternal life; for to have eternal life we must have both the Father and the Son. Therefore the Sinaitic covenant was against us, contrary to us, and was inadequate to the work of redeeming man, for by it no sin was remitted, consequently no salvation in it.

THE LAW FULFILLED IN CHRIST.

All that was written in the law and the prophets and the Psalms concerning Jesus must be fulfilled; he came to fulfill the law and the prophets, and not only in sacrifice and offering and prediction did Jesus fulfill the law and the prophets, but in saying he came to fulfill the law, he certified to its limitation; and as the law was a guide, or as a schoolmaster to lead Israel to Christ, when he came the law was fulfilled,—in him, in his coming,—as well as the fulfillment of the prophecies concerning him. The promise of Canaan to Israel was not from Moses, but from Abraham, and the law was four hundred years after that promise, and was but an incident in the fulfillment of it. Made necessary by Israel's disobedience, and tracing backward from Christ to the promise of an inheritance in the heavenly Canaan, we do not find it at Sinai, but we pass it, and find it in Abraham. And when the promise made to Abraham was fulfilled and Christ came, the law, which was between these promises, and which was but an incident in the fulfillment of the promise, ended by limitation.

And when our great High Priest entered into the heavenly tabernacle and the way into the holy of holies in heaven was made manifest, no longer would men need the earthly tabernacle, nor earthly holy of holies, and because they were no longer needed, the vail of the temple was rent in twain by divine power; and the voice of God from mount Olivet to all men is, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Hear ye him." No longer hear Moses and the law, but Jesus and the gospel.

THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN.

Jesus, after his baptism, began to preach, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." Therefore, that kingdom whose seat of government was in the temple on mount Moriah; whose laws were from Sinai; whose officers were high priests and rabbis, was not the kingdom of heaven. And when Jesus declared that his kingdom was not of this world, he affirmed that the ministers of his kingdom were not to administer the laws of the kingdoms of this world, therefore if a citizen of the kingdom of God should violate the law of the kingdom of the world, he should be delivered up to the officers of those kingdoms.

The laws of the kingdoms of the world are intended to protect men from evil doers, and for the punishment of such, by the administrators of those laws. The laws of the kingdom of heaven are for the ennobling and saving of mankind, and if any of its citizens violate the laws of the kingdoms of the world, the officers of the kingdom of heaven are not at liberty to punish them, excepting by withdrawing fellowship from them. The officers of the Church of Christ cannot stone a man to death for idolatry, sabbath breaking, or murder, for Christ's officers are not administering the law of death, and the laws of condemnation and of death remain in the hands of the officers of the land, as were the laws of Sinai in a great degree.

The work of the church under Christ, is to provide for the spiritual development of man, as the Sinai covenant did for the moral and physical development of man. But if the spiritual nature of man could have been perfectly developed by the Sinai laws, then would there have been no need for a better covenant, upon better promises.

Letter Department.

LYDNEY, Gloucester, England,
August 23.

Editors Herald:—As doubtless you and many others are interested in the progress of this great latter-day work and believe with me that it will finally triumph over all the works of men and the Devil, I write a few lines in order that you may see there are some this side of the Atlantic who are persuaded that the day of faith and works has arrived; and believing as we do that there are many in this church who are better situated than we are here in Lydney, I say without hesitation, Go ye and do likewise.

Since coming into the Church of Christ my experience has been that there are many very good saints until some finance is required, and then we begin to find out the sore place and where the boot pinches, etc.

There are a great many who don't quite believe the teaching of the Savior where he said, "Lay not up treasure upon the earth, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moth and rust doth not corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal; for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

Now some are not discouraged because of these things. Among this happy number is Elder T. Griffiths, our district president, who we trust will shortly have the desire of his heart gratified; namely, a church that will hold nearly two hundred, or rather a meeting house in this place, so that we shall be enabled to meet the opposing powers and to invite the honest in heart in to hear the pure gospel preached in all its beauty and grandeur.

Bro. Griffiths is a valuable man in these times, when competition is so keen and when there are so many conspiring men abroad in our land.

Being a carpenter and builder by trade, of course you will say at once we have the right man in the right place. Now to all whom it may concern and those who are in any way interested to know, I may tell you it is an iron church which we have erected and it is to be lined with matchboards on the inside. The cost of the whole thing when completed and seating accommodation is provided will be upwards of two hundred pounds, which means that we shall have to take up one hundred pounds or more on mortgage. Of course this is not a pleasant thing to do, but we are doing the best we can under the circumstances. Will our readers in England and Wales please notice that October 7, 8, and 9 is the time appointed for the opening and dedication of this house of prayer. On October 7 the district president and other officials have decided to hold a district conference. On Sunday, October 8, preaching services will be held, when we hope to have the pleasure once again of hearing Brn. F. G. Pitt and William Newton, also A. N. Bishop. We shall be glad to see any present who pray the prayer; namely, Thy kingdom come, thy will be done upon earth as the angels do it in heaven. All intending visitors will please notify us at least fourteen days previous, so that sleeping accommodations and food shall be provided; also please note that all must be prepared to pay their own expenses, as our funds are about run out.

Perhaps you will remember Bro. Pitt's recent letter in your valuable paper about the photographs, etc., which we had taken when the foundation stone was laid. Now an aged sister in Lamoni, Lewis by name, sent for one of the photographs, and also sent four and a half dollars as her subscription to our new church. This sister is upwards of eighty years of age. She was a saint in the days of the Martyr. May our God grant her his richest blessing and may her end be peace, is my prayer. Sr. Stephen Woods followed her good example and did likewise. Should any others feel inclined to add their mite in the way of helping furnish the church now is the accepted time; for it takes more than good desires and long prayers to build churches.

I learn from Nantyglo that they are doing outdoor preaching and in a fair way to accomplish much good there. Praised be God, for he has truly blessed them in this the latter-day. The brethren in Cardiff are holding outdoor services on Sundays with good attention, A. N. Bishop preaching to fifteen hundred on Sunday last. Tell Elder Caffall and others who are in the harness, when we sing with the poet 'tis from our hearts,

"From East to West, from North to South,
The Savior's kingdom shall extend;
Till every man in every place
Shall meet a brother and a friend."

Now I do not want to intrude too much upon your space, neither do I dictate in any shape or form to anyone. If there is anything in the way of food for thought contained herein, eat it; if not, away with it to the winds. In conclusion I remark that the time has at length arrived when one man should devote the whole of his time in this Eastern district of Wales, that the many honest souls whom Christ has redeemed shall hear the gospel. Your colaborer,

HENRY ELLIS.

PERRY, Iowa, Sept. 5.

Editors Herald:—The enclosed clipping from the Perry Chief shows the results of Anthony McCoy drawing two money orders sent to me for the benefit of Bro. J. W. Morgan. These orders were both sent from the Des Moines branch; one for $2.61 and one for $2.60. As the brother who sent them failed to use my full address, the other party got them and cashed them, and I fear the money is lost to us entirely. Anyway, we have to await the decision of high postal authorities.

Now a word to the saints: My address is H. A. McCoy, Box 630, Perry, Iowa. So in future be sure to send to that address.

I appeared against the gentleman at Des Moines before the United States Commissioner. He admitted enough to convict him, and no doubt he will have to serve a term in prison. Truly the way of the transgressor is hard. In bonds,

H. A. MCCOY.

MALAD CITY, Idaho, Aug. 26.

Editors Herald:—I often wish you would carry the good news of a general advance along the whole front. When will we sleepy outposts, and garrisons as well, rouse up and determine, in the strength of the Lord, to push the battle into the enemies' country, and hold to every advantage gained? Along some points of the line, after a good lively campaign, there is either a retreat, or the forces settle down seemingly to enjoy the little victory or harvest, till all the soldiers scatter, and loiter around, and lose all energy and taste for duty. Grant and Napoleon Bonaparte owed their success to their unconquerable energy and determination to keep the foe on the run. The true soldier never loses energy, because he cannot crush out all opposition at one, or any number of strokes. This campaign is vastly more important than any carnal effort, if we as individuals go to with our might, mind, and wisdom to study and strive to stand approved as workmen in our several spheres or stations; though we preach, work, watch, and pray as long as Noah, and our labor as fruitless. There is no wisdom in allowing the shadows of apparent failure to settle as darkness over us; as this only obscures our pathway and makes our labor irksome.

When our duty becomes irksome, be assured love is waning. Where duty points, step out and up loyally and fondly to the work. Shadows hinder and obscure the sunlight; they are advantages gained by "our friend, the enemy." To keep above the clouds, and in the sunlight, is to keep out of the power of the prince of darkness. Our vision is obscure in the mists. Those who love most succeed best, everywhere along the line of the struggle for the riches which perish not with their use. The more they are used the more they accumulate. If our talents are few, the more is the credit for their wise continued use. All may not be able to move nations by their powers of appeal to their reason, or touch the tendrils of their heart, at their pleasure. Far more than eloquence, we need the love which will hold captive every thought to the obedience which crowned the Master's work. If the heart beats but to honor and please him who gave his life that we might have life, and more abundantly; an eloquence born of love will leave its leaven in the soul, as the oil of gladness. Eloquence is good, but it will never, no never fill the place to us of loving fidelity.

To entirely cast behind us all desire, except to please Him who so truly loved us, and study continually, by day and night, to advance and assist by heart and purse in Zion's cause, is loving with all our might, mind, and strength. Do not let us forget that the "Lord will raise up a pure people, zealous of good works." Purity of heart is excellent, but if we sit around and pride ourselves that we are all right, that all is well in Zion on our part, a most important part is neglected. To be zealous of good works in assisting to win by kindness, by love unfeigned, by diligence in all the efforts and measures adopted by the church for good, is so clearly our duty, and should be our pleasure.

To fear God and keep his commandments is the whole duty of man, so said one who had vainly sought the sweets of felicity outside its heaven-ordained realm. All who seek it thus must fail, as did he. The well-beloved sought felicity in fidelity and love for the Father, and learned that his commands were life everlasting; a savor of life unto life. It is easy to obey the law of adoption into the kingdom; but to obey from a love of the truth—in all its parts and its daily practice—all the precepts which "mark the perfect man" in Christ, is where the true metal is tested.

O, brother, you are an old crank! say some, who are wedded to their idols—darling sins. Very good, brother or sister. My advice is free; it will cost you nothing to read or listen to what I may say as an ambassador of Christ. I have received my errand from the Lord, to "cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show my people their transgression, and the house of Jacob their sins." "The Lord cannot look upon sin with the least degree of allowance," and "the thought of foolishness is sin." No one has authority to add to, or diminish the wisdom of the Lord. Thus saith the Lord, thy righteousness, Will my people even now turn their hearts fully to me? How long will ye say Lord, Lord, and not do the things I have asked at your hands by the former prophets? Ye are even yet slow to walk in my precepts; come now let us reason together, saith your Redeemer, which of my precepts are grievous? Will not even the wisdom of your wise men support what I have given aforetime by my Spirit, by the gift of wisdom through my servants, whose words you have slighted, and turned away your ears from hearing them with pleasure? Have you hearkened with pleasure to the counsel of those I have chosen to advise and direct the spiritual and temporal affairs of my kingdom, and the gathering and uniting of the remnants scattered abroad on the face of the land, even after the rebellious were led away as captives to the "wilderness of the people?"

Now read and ponder upon my word, given my servant Isaiah, 58 and 59 chapters. Come now, my people in whose hearts my wisdom should be most precious, study earnestly my word which you have received by the lips and pens of the former servants I gave you in ancient times, and neglect not to heed my counsel given in your own days, for the recovery and gathering of my people to the land upon which the Zion of God shall stand. If ye will not believe and obey my counsel for your salvation, ye cannot be established; for ye must seek your restoration to my favor and to the land I have appointed, with all your might, mind, and strength. "Loose thyself from the bands of your necks, O captive daughter of Zion." "Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion." Will ye not now break every band to your idols, and betroth yourselves to me in love, chaste virgins, to your Lord? Put on your bridal trousseau, and the necklace of truth, and love around your neck; keep your attire without spot or wrinkle. Betroth yourselves to me in fond desire, look to me in every thought, and I will come near to you as a swift witness in your favor. Ye seek a witness at my hand, and from my mouth, of the verity of my presence in your midst as a church, yet I know your hearts are given to covetousness, pleasure, and sins of convenience. Ye love the creature more than me, saith your Lord and Creator. Do ye not lavish your money to provide for the gratification of sexual pleasure? Do ye not flatter me with your lips, and your time and energy is wasted to keep pace with the Gentiles? Worldly gratification causes you to neglect my vineyard, and the solemnity of eternity is not before my people as it should and must be. Yet I have sons and daughters who love me and my wisdom, and they are loved of my Father and I, saith your Lord.

Do you not remain away from the house of God—the house of prayer, of devotion—because you are too weary to offer your oblations acceptably to me? Is it seemly to weary your bodies and worry your minds to get the mammon of unrighteousness to defile your bodies in vile practices, in polluting the sanctuary of strength? Is not lust, in its various forms, the god of this age? Is it not because the world of unbelievers and hypocrites set at naught the counsel of the Holy One of Israel, through desire to gratify the lusts of the eye and heart, that mine anger is kindled, and I must humble the nations by sword, by fire, by tempest, by plague? My scourge shall go forth and increase, till man shall fear and tremble, and quake at the manifest displeasure of that God, whose counsel they have rejected, and turned their faces and hearts far from me.

Awake, awake, O ye my saints, and give heed to my words of wisdom and warning. "Make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame" and the blind "be turned out of the way." Will ye not hearken to my words of counsel, lest ye awake to behold your nakedness before me? Turn ye to me, and not to folly, sin, and shame. Look upward, and keep all my commands; they shall be life to your flesh, and marrow to your bones.

Let us be loyal to the counsel of the Lord, for should we be taken as a bird in Satan's snares; let us be wise servants, and harmless as doves; not seeking in the least to establish our own righteousness. "Turn, O backsliding children, saith the Lord; for I am married unto you; and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion; and I will give you pastors according to mine heart, which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding." "The pure in heart shall come to Zion with songs of everlasting joy." If we are of this blessed number, all will be well; but such will be awake to every good work, zealous of good works. If members of a household absent themselves from their own home circle, as a rule, and only come on special occasions, few will believe their professions of love for their homes and families. Profession and works must agree. If a wife or husband finds more congenial company with others, all will conclude their honeymoon has passed behind the clouds—their first love has grown cold. Commands to love with the whole heart lose their weight when the eye, the ear, and the sympathies of the heart are awake to respond to the call of love. The man or woman is always at home for each other, if love inspires. God is always at home for us, if our interests all center in his pleasure.

Missionaries are expected to report from their fields of labor. I cannot say I have been as successful in results as my heart yearns for; but one thought is ever present. Before the only wise God, whom I desire to honor and sanctify in my heart, I never want to leave a field where the people have cause to say it were better that he had not been here. I want to teach and practice what I teach, even the whole counsel of God, as the Comforter manifests it to me. If I make mistakes, O Master,—before whom I bow my knees, and on whom for blessings I call,—let me learn the lesson of prudence and wisdom from such; but give me favor and grace in thy sight, that my life shall be a bright and shining light to the world, every day or night, before all men, and in the sight of heaven's King.

Have been in this valley since conference, May 20 and 21. One reason for so long a stay here is that I do not feel it is best to make a sortie at a point, and then off to another place. Now this is as I see my duty to the Master's cause. Expect to attend the Provo, Utah, reunion, September 8 to 17. Have visited here among the people, very agreeably, so far as I am aware, and with the desire to advance the errand of the Lord, for whom I desire to serve, in honor to myself and the interest of the work. I hope to live and die in the hearts of the saints, and my life hid up in Christ my Lord. Have baptized a son of Bro. W. S. John, president of the branch here, last Saturday, the 19th, and he was confirmed at the sacrament and prayer service held at the chapel at two p. m. the 20th inst.

Held funeral service at Bro. Henry A. Evans' residence, at two p. m., the 25th inst. Leo, five months old, the son of Henry W. and Mary J. Evans, son and daughter-in-law of H. A. Evans. Mary J. is daughter of Bro. and Sr. William Richard, of Malad City. Thus another cherub was recalled from the land of shadows and sunshine to eternal day. What a blessing it would be could earth's children truly learn that life is but a sphere for education and cultivation, that when this chrysalis changes, 'tis a translation to the likeness and image of the divine, if we but wisely improve our time and opportunity. Mortality clothed upon with immortality, everyone in their own order, as their works insure, under the eye of the Just Judge.

Have made my home with Bro. and Sr. James Thomas, whose hospitality I will always remember with sincerest pleasure. It has been a most pleasant sojourn, and it seems like leaving home for a strange land; but as the Lord has graciously promised to be with me by day and night, as a shield and comforter, and give me friends everywhere I roam as a loyal, loving servant in his name, I have no fear I shall go hungry or friendless. The best friend man can have is the only wise God, whose handiwork we behold all around us, above and below; who rules on high, and in the destinies of those who love his laws. In my home here are the two I have named, and whose hearts are warm for the cause they love. I will ever pray the Lord to comfort and lead them gently through to their journey's end, and grant that they may be satisfied by awakening in the resurrection's glad morn in the likeness of the Son—the express image of the Father of light.

I omitted to say that H. W. Evans is government superintendent of Indian farms, and lives about eighteen miles westerly of Ross Fork, Bingham County, Idaho, about sixty-five miles north of here. They brought their child here for burial.

O saints, what a most precious hope we hold for the future, if so be that we truly honor in spirit and in truth the faith as restored in our day—the golden age indeed of this grand little world—if so be that we bring and keep to the end our bodies in accord with heaven's celestial laws. Let us lovingly and diligently see that we perfect the title to "our purchased possession." Are you not pleased and rejoice daily that our times are in the dispensation of the fullness of times? Who but the all-wise God could have arranged so wisely for those who truly love and obey him? If the fullness of the Gentiles is glorious (in intelligence), what will be the end or fullness under Christ's reign? If the Gentile fullness has brought in ambition and the control of the elements for the use of man, how much grander and more glorious will be the intellectual advancement in the transfer to the saints of the Host High? What pen or tongue will portray the glory of the celestial world? Verily, "God is in Christ, subduing the world unto himself." Let us not deceive ourselves by looking beyond the mark. This is the day of salvation for us—our day of preparation. Will we let our chance—our golden privilege—slip by, while we idly dream we can fold our arms and say, All is well, I belong to the church of the Firstborn? We are to be workers, not dreamers. Satan is an expert fisherman, and many snagged by him never recover. The wonder is that man bites at such vile bait as dangles on the hidden hook of that expert angler. But young and old nibble and nibble till at last the hook is felt in the jaws. Then listen to the twitter of the angler hard and fast as he holds the silken cord. If Mother Eve was as easily beguiled by such bait as Satan offers to-day, she might well feel shame in his confession. "And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest me, and commanded that she should remain with me, she gave me of the fruit of the tree, and I did eat." "And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat." (Gen. 3:17, 19, I. T.) However, like good children, they told a straight story. But all through the ages the same old story of verse five has been the rule with all who "would not hearken unto my voice." The trouble to-day is they usually do not care to hear his voice; but those who hearken and obey can be free if they "love much." The depths of that Genesis story is not learned in a day, nor is its equal found in common lore. Adam (God) did not frame it, that is evident. Pity it is that saints will not read, think, and be wise; watch and pray, instead of sleeping. Many ears are heavy. Would that God would wake the people up quickly. Blessed are the ears that hear, and the eyes that see the truth indeed, and take righteousness as the girdle of their loins. Always pray and work for Zion's weal.

CHARLES ALBERTSON.

WRAY, Colo., Aug. 31.

Editors Herald:—When I last wrote to your columns I was at Gaylord, Kansas. I spent Sunday there, preaching and visiting with the saints; and on Tuesday, August 1, in company with Mr. T. C. Patton, I drove to near Dentonia, in Jewel County, and visited until next day with Mr. Samuel Patton of that place. His wife is a member of the church, as also two of his daughters in Oklahoma, Srs. Bly and Berry. Mr. Patton is a prosperous farmer and of course is something of a politician (as he resides in Kansas) and ought to be a Latter Day Saint. He was formerly rather skeptical on religion, but contact with Brn. Pender and Johnson seems to have removed this, and "Now why tarriest thou?"

From Gaylord I drove westward up the Solomon Valley to Big Bend, staying over night with Bro. Brownlee. Next night found me at Edmund enjoying a visit with my uncle, Mr. Hark Jones. He is one of the few of my relatives who thinks I am on the right track religiously, although not a member of the church. Bro. Greer and family live near town. I preached four times while here. On August 9 I drove to Bro. John Sears', ten miles west of Lenora; stayed over night and administered to their son Abraham, who was sick. On the 10th I drove to Clayton and camped for dinner. Here I made the acquaintance of Mr. E. L. Pease, uncle of Bro. H. A. Stebbins, who by the way is postmaster of Clayton. Passing on I reached Bro. Long's place, where I tarried over Sunday, preaching twice, and visiting with saints of that branch.

Up to this date I was in doubt as to whether or not I should undertake to reach the conference at Wray, Colorado, August 19 and 20. On the morning of the 16th I decided to head the ponies toward Wray. I had about one hundred and fifty miles before me and only three days to drive. Well, to use an Oklahoma phrase, I "got a Sam Hinkle move on the ponies" and reached the North Willow schoolhouse in Colorado in time for conference on Saturday morning. On Wednesday night I camped in a cañon between Oberlin and Atwood. There was no trace of civilization in sight. I felt a little fearful of a storm as my wagon was very light. I knelt down and humbly asked divine protection during my journey. The Holy Spirit rested upon me in power, removing every feeling of fear and giving assurance that a higher power was watching over me. I felt at the time that it was an extraordinary experience. Next day I saw the meaning of it all. As I drove along about three o'clock p. m., I saw a black funnel shaped cloud forming to the south of me probably two or three miles. I soon discovered that it was a genuine cyclone. It came whirling and twisting across the road less than one mile behind me. I caught a breeze from the outside current which did no more than make my wagon curtains flop pretty lively. Toward the middle it was certainly furious. My wagon would have been no more in its way than a feather. Whether the storm spent its force on the bare prairie or whether it went far enough to do any great harm, I never learned. I was content to know that I was safe, and as I had to make lively time I moved on. Friday night I camped on the Arickaree two miles west of Haigler, Nebraska, and near the Colorado line. Here the mosquitoes bit my face during the night until I was quite fat in the face next morning. I had about ten miles to drive to reach conference on Saturday morning.

We had a very pleasant time at the conference, an account of which will no doubt appear in your columns from another pen. Brn. Kemp, Roush, O. B. Thomas, and E. D. Bullard, of the elders, were present. Sr. L. A. Schmutz, of Denver, was present, looking after the interest of the Sunday school. On Tuesday, August 22, I went, in company with Bro. Kemp, to St. Francis, Kansas, to call on Elias Brewer, who was at one time associated with John N. Burton in Otoe County, Nebraska. Mr. Brewer gave me valuable information as to the history of the Burtonite faction, from which sprang the "True Follower" movement in Oklahoma. I will soon be ready to publish the whole story so that the world can see the origin of this movement.

From St. Francis we drove westward again into Colorado, stopping over Sunday with saints of Highland branch. Back to Wray again, where Bro. Kemp takes train for Denver and home. I shall return to Highland branch to-morrow to labor for awhile with local brethren, and probably make some new openings in the regions round about. My trip from Oklahoma in the wagon was certainly a great benefit to my health. I am quite strong again, and am, so far as I can see, quite free from any lung troubles.

A word to Bro. T. W. Chatburn: You may write of California earthquakes, but just come to Eastern Colorado and get into a nest of fleas and you will have some material for "jots by the wayside."

In gospel bonds,

TUSCARORA, Nev., Aug. 29.

Editors Herald:—My permanent missionary address is Genoa, Nevada.

I arrived in this mission May 24 and have been trying to prosecute the work to the best of my ability. I traveled considerably and have done lots of preaching. I opened up some new places. I thank the Lord for his Holy Spirit that has accompanied me in presenting the word. I have met with considerable opposition in the shape of threats and firecrackers. Whole packs of the latter were thrown around me when preaching on the street, after I had been closed out of the M. E. church. After twenty-one sermons I baptized seven. I have baptized 14 since June 6.

I spoke in this town last night in the church to a fair congregation. There are no preachers in town but myself. I think there is no danger of being shut out. I have baptized two, man and wife that did belong to the Utah Church.

It is a very expensive field to travel in. Stage fare ten cents per mile; car fare, full fare, five cents per mile; meals off in the mountains fifty cents. I am thankful to the saints and friends of Nevada that they have been mindful of me in sending money to bear my expenses, thus providing and supplying me with everything that is necessary to prosecute the missionary work. God bless them, I pray. I can truly say like the Seventy of old, I truly lacked nothing.

This State is very large and I am told that there are only forty or forty-two thousand at most in the State. I am well and in good spirits. The altitude is very high, the air very light; I cannot breathe as easily as at six or seven thousand feet lower. I am alone in the mission, and still I am not alone, for God is with me.

Now, dear saints, let each one do his duty, and if we are not in a proper condition to receive the promised blessing that our heavenly Father has in store for us, let us get right, and all place ourselves in a proper condition that God can use us to accomplish the work he intended we should do.

ELDER THOMAS DALEY.

SOUTH RAWDON, N. S., Aug. 18.

Editors Herald:—The work in Nova Scotia, so far as I can learn, is with some exceptions moving on quite finely. Have labored thus far in Halifax, Cumberland, and Hants counties, I think with fair success. Have baptized six; others seem very favorable. Interesting reports come to me from all around, encouraging both to preacher and laity.

My labors for awhile will be confined to Kings County; Delhaven will be my address.

May all sense the admonition, "Come up higher." In bonds,

S. O. FOSS.

On an Island in the Sea, July 30.

Editors Herald:—I am writing this under a tree on an island in "Puget Sound." A beautiful island it is; large and small islands in every direction, all heavily timbered; good water on most of them, and generally a good breeze for sailing makes it a fine place for camping and rest, eating clams, and catching fish. Most of the islands are uninhabited, so we are not troubled with visitors.

But some one will say, "What are you folks doing there?" Having a good time; what else do you suppose? You would think so if you could see us just now. Sr. C. and Sr. Hill-singer are reclining on cots in the cool shade, reading. Bro. C. is out a few hundred yards in the boat, fishing, while I am writing up the layout, so others can be comforted by seeing the good time we are having.

Well, you see we have no conferences, "two-days' meetings," or big reunions in this mission—nothing but hard work the year round; but we are going to try and have a reunion now.

August 29.—I will now finish this letter I commenced almost a month ago. Our reunion is a thing of the past. It passed off pleasantly; not as largely attended as we had hoped for; still we feel satisfied with it and what it has led to. We are all much pleased to meet our genial president and col laborer, Bro. Griffiths, and to have the pleasure of listening to his instructive sermons. Bro. Harris also put in an appearance; of course a little late; but better late than not at all. He got there in time to preach us a sermon that was by some said to be the best effort of the reunion, and that is saying considerable, when it is remembered that Bro. Chase and the writer each spoke their piece. But it is all for the same end, so no difference who does it, so long as we all try.

From Bay View, where the reunion was held, we, Bro. C., wife, and the writer, came here, Mount Vernon, and set up our gospel tent. Have been here a little over a week. Interest is good; tent full, and many standing inside and out, at times. We had the promise of the Campbellite church, but when we applied for it to commence meeting, they had just got a minister for a few days and were going to use it. I was so glad that we had our tent and was independent. I wish I knew a country where I could handle a tent the year around, and the church would send Bro. Chase and I there.

Things seem to be quite favorable to us here; we are getting the crowd, that is certain. We had considerable opposition in the way of other meetings, but all have closed now; some say for the want of congregations. Be that as it may, the coast is now clear, interest good, and the best of freedom in speaking.

There are no saints here, so we are left to the tender mercy of others. Their mercy may be all right, but their liberality is not very great; so far their donations have been from fifteen to sixty cents, but Bro. C. told them last night that I liked pie, so now he expects some of that most excellent article.

Bro. Griffiths has returned to California, while Bro. Harris is at Orting; has left the eastern part of Oregon. Yes, east or west in this mission is no playground; still it yields the peaceable fruits of righteousness if one is rightly exercised in it. Easy fields away from home are hard to find these days. I have worked in Eastern Washington and Oregon a part of four years and am not through there yet.

We intend to go from here to Laconer, from there to Annacortas, Tacoma, Orting, and from there to Ellensburg, which will end our tent work for this season. We expect to reach the latter place the first of October.

And now let me say to the saints of this mission, that we need a little help in this tent work, for the reason that we are pushing the work into new fields this year, where there are no saints to support us. We are willing to do the work, but want to eat while doing it, and we know the saints of this mission want us to do so. Please direct all communications to Castle Rock, Washington.

H. L. HOLT.

FULTON, Iowa, Aug. 28.

Editors Herald:—Our conference at Fairbank, Iowa, was well attended the 19th and 20th of this month; not a jar in our business meeting. The discussings were for the up-building of the saints and ministry. Bro. Lambert was present with us and gave us some good counsel. May God bless him with fair health so he may be able to do much good in the place wherein he stands. We all felt encouraged by having met with one another in conference. When Bro. Lambert spoke Sunday forenoon and Bro. Smith Sunday afternoon the tears came unbidden and we felt to praise God for the gospel of these latter days.

We saints here enjoy our little church, which was dedicated last June, Bro. Kelley being then present with us. He also gave us good counsel; and may we profit by it. We find in Acts 20:31 that Paul said he had warned the saints night and day for three years. Should not we as saints of God be careful that we may be the means in God's hand of bringing those of an honest heart to God by wise counsel, honest and pure lives; not crack so many jokes on the stand, for those of a finer feeling are often disgusted by these jokes. The work we are engaged in is a grand work. Let us as ministers for Christ be thoughtful, earnest, sober, pure; pure in talk; abstain from those things that the Lord said are not good for man, that God's Holy Spirit may dwell in us richly.

I would say to the saints in this the Eastern Iowa district, please let us not rob our kind Father by withholding the tithes and offerings. Send them to me at Fulton, Iowa, and I will send you a receipt by return mail. Do not wait until you can send a great amount, and then that time never come; but send what is the Lord's. He will hold you responsible. God can get along without our help, but where will our reward be? Make all money orders payable at Fulton, Jackson County, Iowa. Bank drafts are all right on Chicago, Illinois.

JOHN HEIDE.

CEDAR SPRINGS, Ont., Aug. 29.

Editors Herald:—On my arrival here I and my wife were greeted with a welcome reception in the house of Mr. and Mrs. David Maynard (my daughter and son-in-law) with twenty of the saints. Elders Shields and Mortimore were in attendance. Many of our old friends and relatives gave us a hearty welcome also; Elder George M. Shippy was chosen chairman of the gathering. The program of the hour was, vocal and instrumental music, short speeches, and recitations, after prayer, singing, and dismissal by the benediction. A bounteous repast was had; all enjoyed themselves in social conversation and interchange of thought.

Since then I have preached in Blenheim and here five times, and have an appointment in Blenheim next Sunday. Attention is good and the congregations generally large for this place. The saints here, eighteen in number, are ably presided over by Elder George M. Shippy, who is an earnest and good Sunday school worker. All the saints here, old and young, bear their testimony in prayer meetings, a fit example for saints in every place.

I have also done a good deal of fireside preaching, as it is generally called, and believe the result will be good, as many are investigating the latter-day work, and I believe some of them will yet obey. The saints in Blenheim are still in good hope and their presiding elder, Richard Coburn, is so well known and so well advertised through the Herald that I need not eulogize him. More anon. Your brother,

JOHN SHIPPY.

MANCHESTER, Texas, Sept. 3.

Editors Herald:—A few words from North-eastern Texas. We have just returned from Wilburton, Indian Territory, where we had a fine meeting; four baptized and many others ready to come in. Some already gave their names for baptism. Wilburton is a nice little mining town with a great many good people. It has about two thousand inhabitants. The saints have a nice branch there, but they let Satan get confusion in the branch and it kept the work down; but, thank God, while we were there the saints got together in a business meeting and God greatly blessed us with the Holy Spirit, and O, what a happy meeting we did have! The Spirit was present in power; the saints were all made to rejoice and confess their faults, and said that by the help of God they were going to live better in the future and lay their bad habits down, pay their tithing, and try and live to meet Jesus Christ when he comes to reign with his people.

We found some noble men among the miners. If the saints live faithful there will be a grand branch at Wilburton; and, thank God, all past trouble in the branch is now settled. We found Bro. Peter Adamson, Bro. Perkins, Bro. Dock Dalbey, Bro. Booker, and others trying to do all they could to carry the work on.

Bro. Adamson is an old soldier in the cause and is trying to do all he can to get the work before the people. The outlook for the gospel in the Choctaw Nation and Northeastern Texas is good; the field is white and the laborers few. May God soon call others to the harvest. If the elders will live faithful the time is near when God will bless us with great power. Let us live to go higher in the spirit of our calling.

I will start south this week to open up new places. May God bless us with his Spirit.

Yours in bonds,

E. A. ERWIN.

ROGERS, Texas, Sept. 2.

Editors Herald:—I love to read the Herald and Ensign. We take them both, and could hardly do without them. I have been a member of this church for five years and I know it is the only true church. I am perfectly satisfied. My husband has been a member of this church six years, but we have not had the pleasure of hearing many sermons preached since we have been in the church. But I hope we will soon be where we can go to preaching every Sunday and where we can send our little ones to Sunday school. I have three little boys, the oldest six years of age. I ask the saints all to pray for me that I may live more humble in the future than in the past. I hope the saints will pray for me and that I may have better health. I am poorly at times; I am not stout at all. I cannot do any hard work. I am only twenty-two years old.

Your sister,

JOSIE HELMS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 29.

Editors Herald:—On July 16th, a letter from Eldor Philemon Pement, at West Pullman, invited me to come to the colored mission, No. 2515 Kensington Avenue, to the Methodist Protestant Episcopal Church. Their confession of faith, that we believe in the only true God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; that these three are one; the Father in the Son, the Son in the Father, and the Holy Ghost, equal in essence or being as well as invisible; and furthermore sustains, governs, protects, and supports the same. (See their Discipline, pages 5 and 6.) Their God is without body or parts. I came out from them, so I know just what to do to catch them.

While I was preaching at Kensington of course my name was changed from Graves to the Utah Mormon, Brighamite, preaching the Doctrine of the Utah Church and come from Salt Lake City, etc.

Sure I must fight if I would reign;

Increase my courage, Lord;

I'll bear the toil, endure the pain,

Supported by thy word.

In the midst of tribulation while the heathen raged and the people imagined vain things, I had the pleasure of baptizing two noble souls into the kingdom, who live at the above-named place, August 23; Professor Carter and his noble wife.

On August 2 an entertainment by Sr. Marie Clark in the lead, assisted by Bro. E. E. Johnson and those who took part. At the table were Sr. J. M. Terry and Sr. F. M. Pitt and Sr. Sharmon Persey Lange. Eight pieces were spoken by F. M. Pitt, Jennie Keir, J. M. Terry on the blackboard, Elder Strange and wife, E. J. Lange and wife, S. C. Goode and wife; those all of the ministry, and other sisters took part, saints and friends, perhaps about seventy-five. The evening was fine and all seemed to enjoy themselves.

The writer and wife were also made glad when Elder J. M. Terry presented us with a very nice present. May God bless all his saints. Come again, dear saints, we love to see you come. We have a lovely, jolly lot of young people here who are very bright indeed and also the older ones are very nice. The elders are all at work here on all sides of three cities in one. I am also busy.

Our conference is at hand. We hope to have a good time with a goodly number of missionaries with us.

Yours in the one faith,

G. H. GRAVES.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 31.

Editors Herald:—On the 10th of July I again resumed my post of duty, after a long siege of serious illness; spending about three weeks at Conneautville, Pennsylvania, looking after temporal matters preparatory to locating there. I might have been longer, but the good neighbors turned out and helped me with my work. This speaks much louder than words for the generosity and kindness of the people among whom my lot will be cast in time to come.

From there I went to Rootville, in the same county, and preached fourteen times, creating quite an interest. The fourteen days I was there I stopped with fourteen different families; preaching in the pulpit at night, and in their houses all day. I never was at a place where the people in general accepted our teachings with such little opposition.

In regard to this people I had the following dream. Whether it portends the work of the future or not, it encouraged and comforted me much, and the divine feeling which attended me for several days gives force to its spiritual significance.

After retiring, the third evening of my efforts there, to my room, I began meditating over the work there, and would my efforts be in vain among people who, seemingly, were so honest in their service toward God. Was it simply blind zeal and to end in such, or had God some pure in heart whom he would bring to the true worship?

I thought I was sitting on a small mound of loose dirt viewing the beautiful landscape, when I began digging in the mound with my right hand, the dirt yielding and rolling down at the slightest touch of the hand, when suddenly I unearthed a small grain of pure gold, about the size and shape of a buckwheat grain, which immediately brought forth the exclamation, "I have struck gold!"

and began eagerly to dig deeper. I had removed but a very little more of the loose dirt when I came to a literal bed of the purest gold mortal eye ever looked upon; so bright was it that I could not look upon it at first. I began at once to take it out, and to my great surprise found it to be soft and pliable, so I could knead it like dough. At the base of the mound stood two men, one whom I thought to be Bro. Etzenhouser stood at the right of me. I was taking the gold from its resting place and balling it up in balls about the size of a base ball, and had my arms full, when those two men began taking some out. Instead of feeling covetous or resentful toward them I felt perfectly willing that they should share with me in the discovery.

The following is the interpretation which so forcibly came to me the next morning: The dirt mound represented the false and mixed-up doctrines of the people of that place; for truly they were mixed up; some believing they were wholly sanctified and could not sin, some contended earnestly that we are soulless, others said unless we had the same experience that was manifested on the day of Pentecost we could not be saved, etc., etc. The grain of gold represented the little truth they had, which also encouraged me to dig deeper. The yielding of the dirt, the readiness with which they threw off the error. The pure gold and its pliability, meant their subsequent condition, and their willingness to be shaped to the truth. The elder on the right of me would be the next one there to gather in, or to shape some of the honest (gold).

This is being verified, for I have never seen a people who seemed to be more willing and eager to learn more of the strange doctrine than they. Bro. Etzenhouser was the next one to labor there. I shall watch the outcome with interest.

I came here the 18th inst. to act as moderator for Bro. J. F. McDowell in a debate with a representative of the Advent order. Our church, Sabbath question, and Book of Mormon, the proposition. We are now four nights on the last proposition, Book of Mormon. Bro. McDowell with his extensive knowledge of American archaeology is making it quite interesting for his opponent, so much so that on last evening he publicly acknowledged that he was not prepared to meet the issue, but would study up. We are in correspondence with a Campbellite preacher of Fayette City respecting a debate there. Will likely begin after the district conference which convenes there September 16.

Bro. Forbes is the president of the branch here, and a hustling one too, and in connection with his excellent wife, is making his influence felt for good among their neighbors.

Bro. Ullom is with us, making his home in the tent. Bro. Devore left for points in West Virginia and Southern Ohio, but will return in a few days.

Many calls for preaching in the Kirtland district. I hope to put in a solid winter's work in Western Pennsylvania, where the gospel has never been preached, as there seems to be many grand opportunities for the establishment of the work there.

Cheerfully,

F. J. EBELING.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

Work for some good, be it ever so slowly.
Cherish some flower, be it ever so lowly.
Labor! All labor is noble and holy.
Let thy great deeds be thy prayers to thy God.

A SISTER who is a widow with four children, finding herself very uncomfortably situated, and her children mistreated because of her faith, would be very glad to obtain work where she could support them under more favorable circumstances. She is of good family, and can furnish the best of reference if desired. If any of the saints who read this can offer any inducement to her, a letter sent to the editor of Home Column will reach her.

SR. A. MEEHEN, of Fosston, Minnesota, would be glad of such reading matter as would be interesting to children who have no Sunday school or church privileges. She would be glad to send postage for old Sunday school papers if any have such to spare. Sisters who have plenty of good reading matter for your little ones, here is an opportunity to "pass some of it on" where it is much needed and will be greatly appreciated.

TYPES OR FIGURES.

All temporal things are types of spiritual things. Figures on a bill are not of use or of worth in themselves; they are of worth only as they represent the worth of something else—money or its equivalent. But how could we estimate the condition of our business if we had no knowledge of the use of figures? How then can we estimate the worth of the beauties and the glories of our promised home unless we try to acquaint ourselves by the study of God's word and the study of his visible works all around us? After a long storm in early summer, when the sun shines forth in all its beauty and grandeur, how lovely, how exhilarating is everything that meets the eye—to say nothing about the many sweet odors that are gladly accepted by our sense of smell—all free gifts from our Father and all types of the eternal. O how all nature seems to rejoice! and is it not our reasonable duty also to rejoice? It is our inestimable privilege to sing praises as do the birds among the branches above our heads. How beautiful is the grand firmament above and the green carpet beneath our feet, decorated with innumerable plants and flowers, each after its own kind—showing that order is heaven's first law—and each dyed its own allotted color. Each and all show that God's power cannot be limited, cannot be estimated.

When we gaze out on a calm body of water we are reminded of the sea of glass spoken of by the revelator, and when we see a river it reminds us of the river of life, also a tree reminds us of the tree of life. The temporal tree yields its fruit only once a year, whereas the tree of life yields its fruit twelve times a year, and its leaves are for the healing of the nations—and besides it lives forever.

"The fool has said in his heart, There is no God." O how true are those words! notwithstanding their author turned somewhat away from the path of honor. No one who has been endowed with an average amount of sense can look at one single plant or tree and say there is no God unless he has become a self-made fool. We quite as often meet a self-made fool as we do a self-made man. Not an idiot, but a fool, one that has not made use of the ability given him; or one who has not sought wisdom, would not ask for it, consequently had only an instinct at his command, or only an impulse to be governed by. Such a person makes himself lower than the beasts of the field, for they have no promise of wisdom being given them, only a certain amount of instinct. Again, such people are lower than an idiot; have made themselves lower, because they have not used the talent given them, and they must give an account of the same; while the idiot who never had the capacity to develop his brain, and consequently his soul, never had power to enjoy any of God's gifts to mortals, will appear before his Maker as a little child—no privileges to render an account for.

As children are to their parents, so are we to our heavenly Father, only an earthly parent is liable to err in judgment—a heavenly, never. As kind brothers and sisters are to one another, so should brothers and sisters in the church be—each striving for the other's interest, according to the example of our Elder Brother.

Every wedding reminds us of the marriage of the bride—the church—and the Bridegroom—the Christ. In the latter case peace and harmony, joy and gladness, will exist forever; while in the former the same often dies at an early age—not so designed in the beginning.

Every parent's work, and every teacher's work, as well as that of the elders are types of Jesus' work. O may each by his blessing try to be as faithful in teaching and in leading as was he! Every farmer has a wonderful text-book continually before him. As he digs and dresses the soil preparatory to dropping the seed, how can he help drawing a simile between the growing of vegetables and the growing of spirituality? They come forth in purity from beds of impurities, showing God's wonderful power, as does every soul that is brought out of a state of sin up into a pure state, by obedience to the plan of salvation.

Many, very many more illustrations might be drawn, but we essay to only start a few, and give the reader a chance to proceed himself, or herself, hoping we have not spent our time in vain.

"Better to hold a high belief,
Though what we hold to ne'er may be;
Better to do through life so brief,
Though noble toil no fruits shall see."
—Selected.

AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER?

The late Frances E. Willard says: "I once asked the greatest of inventors, Thomas A. Edison, if he were a total abstainer; and when he told me that he was, I said: 'May I inquire whether it was home influence that made you so?' and he replied, 'No; I think it was because I always felt that I had a better use for my head.'"

There is a peculiar significance attached to this answer, having come from one who evidently had not only found his place in the world but was filling it in a proper manner. Had Mr. Edison discarded the thought expressed in his answer and became a friend to the cup, who could measure the loss the world would have sustained thereby? If he had allowed his brain to have become sodden with alcohol, the world of to-day might not be the recipients of the great benefits they have received through his marvelous inventions. This man knew that he owed the world something, and he sought to pay it. Should anyone think for a moment that man was created to live for self alone, he certainly has lost that stamp by which we recognize him to be the creation of the Divine Being, and like Cain of old, he is ready to be cast out from the associations of men.

Every man is his brother's keeper and is required to use his energies for the good of his fellow man; and when one individual destroys those energies by drink or any other debasing means, he is robbing mankind of what God designed to do for them through his instrumentality. Think of the thousands who are thus robbing the world, keeping back those things which rightfully belong to it. They have not learned the grand object of life; they have not learned the wants of the great world of mankind, but are a world unto themselves, satisfying only their own wants. How many Edisons the world might have had had it not been for drink!

We believe that if man were not contaminated with this curse he would more readily understand the mission of the world's Savior and would be willing to heed his precepts. O, if all men would learn to love their fellow men, to live the life of the righteous, and to pour out to the world the divine light and knowledge which God gives to the pure mind and the clean heart, how soon would the progress of the world be complete and man be ready to enter into that condition in which there would be no evil or sorrow, but all joy and peace!

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER'S LIFE.

There are two sides to the Sunday school teacher's life; the spiritual and the intellectual. The spiritual side is developed by the study and perusal of the teachings and life of the Master together with a study of God's dealing with his people at all times and in all ages, obeying the precept of Paul when he said, "Continue steadfastly in prayer," that you may have the Holy Spirit; for nothing can compensate the teacher for this lack.

The intellectual growth is made by a study of the facts and principles contained in the Bible, together with normal instruction for the development of the teaching faculties. A popular Sunday school worker has said: "The great object of normal instruction is to develop the art, the enthusiasm, and love of teaching." Teachers, do you need spiritual growth? Study for it, live for it, pray for it, and do not rest until you obtain it. Do you need normal instruction, get a good book on normal training and teaching and study. If you have an opportunity to attend the Sunday school institute, do not let it go by unimproved.

"FEED MY LAMBS."

One of the great purposes of the Sunday school is to care for those who have been made members of the kingdom of heaven. A thought is sometimes entertained that when a person becomes a member he is safe and needs but little attention. This is a great mistake. Jesus said, "Feed my lambs," showing that they required care.

If the sunshine be shut off from a tender plant which has been planted, it will droop and die; so if the individual, young or old, who has been planted in the kingdom of heaven is not fed by that spiritual sunshine he too will droop and die. The Sunday school should cause the light of truth to shine into every soul that it may grow into a noble and useful life.

HOME STUDY.

Home study is one of the most neglected departments of Sunday school work, neglected not only by pupils, but by some holding the office of teacher as well. Well, why? Is it a lack of time? Think a moment. Is it a lack of time, or is it a lack of interest? If lack of time, why, just take the time; that is the remedy. If lack of interest, well, what then? Yes, what is the question? Create an interest. How?

In the first place, teachers are you giving the pupils credit for what they are doing? Do you insist on their reporting or telling you just how much they have studied at home? No, I don't, says one teacher, because the class requested me to mark them just what I thought they deserved and I think it shows the pupils' faith in the teacher. Yes, it does, and it shows too the pupils' lack of interest in the work. The class records are gotten up with three points in view; the attendance, deportment, and home preparation. Are you keeping your class record right? If you grade your pupils on the recitation, you are not. I would rather the teacher give me what she thinks I deserve, is a sly way of saying, I am too proud to answer before the class that I have not studied my lesson, and I may be able to read a little in the class and appear to know something about it while I have not studied it.

Second, are you assigning special work, encouraging comparisons, lessons told in story form, etc.?

Third, Do the parents say, Come, children, let's study our Sunday school lesson, or are they left to study not at all or when they please? With the primaries the study of the lesson at home rests entirely with the parents; and we would like to know if there is a mother who claims to be a Latter Day Saint who cannot devote five minutes a day to the teaching of her little ones. We feel assured that if five minutes were given to the little folks each day, by Sunday morning they would know enough to aid the teacher in making the lesson a lasting impression.

Are the parents doing their duty? It is a duty enjoined on every parent to teach their children, and there is no easier way than by following the Sabbath school lessons.—Sel.

Freer, and through him to the honorable representatives of these United States in Congress assembled, greeting: Whereas, one B. H. Roberts of the State of Utah, has been elected a member of the Congress; and whereas, it is a notorious fact that the said B. H. Roberts is a polygamist, and in the practice of which he has boldly defied the laws of Congress, and the united voice of the people of these United States; and whereas, we the West Virginia district of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, representing a membership of about three hundred, believe that the Congress of the United States should not in any manner recognize, either directly or indirectly, as worthy of respect the institution or practice of Utah polygamy; therefore, resolved that we do unanimously and earnestly protest against the seating in Congress of the said B. Roberts of Utah, has been elected to represent his district in the United States Congress; and whereas, said B. H. Roberts was on his own plea of guilty fined $200 and condemned to four months' service in the penitentiary, and is yet an offender and unpardoned criminal, still practicing polygamy; therefore, be it resolved that we as a body petition Congress to save our nation the disgrace of allowing this practical polygamist to be seated in the council of our nation. H. Roberts being allowed a seat in congress, not because of his religious faith, but because he is living, according to the best light we have, in open violation of the laws of our country. Suitable persons will be put in charge of each department of work, but let each one prepare themselves to do whatever may be assigned them. Let all teachers study the markings of class books, as suggested by the association, that such markings may be used at the reunion. I urge all who can to bring Winnowed Songs, Bibles, and Quarterlies. Don't forget it.

Since the Lord's prayer is quite universally used in Sunday schools, and in nearly every school different verbiage used, I suggest the following form for use at the reunion, that harmony may exist in its repetition: Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven. Give us day by day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us; and suffer us not to be led into temptation, but deliver us from evil; for thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever and ever, Amen.

Bring August Autumn Leaves and Book of Mormon for Religio work.

Chairman of Committee.

IOWA SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF.

FREE TO ALL DEAF PERSONS OF SCHOOL AGE IN IOWA.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Sept. 1, 1899.

To Parents, Friends, Guardians, and Pupils:—Notice is hereby given, that the next term of school will commence October 1, 1899, and it is expected that all pupils will be present on that day, or the day prior; namely, September 30. Conveyances with officers of the institution in charge will meet all trains on arrival September 30 and October 1. After these dates, parents and pupils must not expect to be called for by teams of the institution unless same can be done without detriment to other requirements. Parents need have no fear as to the care of, and attention to, their children after they reach the railroad depots at Council Bluffs, if they arrive on the dates above-named. There have been the usual betterments and improvements made during the past vacation tending to the comfort, health, advancement, and contentment of the children. Parents and friends are sincerely welcome when accompanying the children and visiting the school, but they cannot be entertained either as to lodging or meals. A postal card notifying each parent or friend of the safe arrival of the child will be issued immediately after registry of name. All trunks or baggage should be checked to local depot, Council Bluffs. This is imperative to avoid trouble and delay. Please bear this in mind. Promptness as to date of attendance is urgently necessary. Do not think it will be as well to send the child a day, a week, or a month later. It is an injustice to the school, unfair to prompt scholars, and detrimental to the tardy pupil. Sickness can only be considered a legitimate excuse for delay. There being a probability that a uniform kind and style of clothing will be suggested, it is recommended that pupils' wardrobe be not as extensive as heretofore. Every parent or friend interested in one of our children should be interested in all the deaf persons of school age in the State, and are therefore requested to give this notice the widest circulation and greatest publicity possible.

Hoping for a prosperous year, and ready at all times to answer any and all communications, I remain, truly yours,

HENRY W. ROTHERT, Supt.

LOST.

The president of the Fourth Quorum of Priests (J. I. Young) has been lost to the corresponding secretary since April conference of 1898. Correspondence has failed to locate him. Should anyone know his whereabouts, kindly inform the writer. Should the president see this, respond at once. Also, all members of the quorum write and send their addresses, as matters of importance to the quorum need to be communicated to each one. All respond promptly. Eben Miller, Box 28, Cleveland, Ohio, corresponding secretary of Fourth Quorum of Priests.

NOTICE BY GENERAL CHURCH RECORDER.

Branch reports have not yet reached me from the districts named below. Such reports are now overdue, and they should be forwarded without further delay, if it is possible: District conferences were held in May, 1899, whose reports have not arrived, as follows: Southern California, Idaho, and Fremont.

June conferences were held by the Southern Indiana, Montana, and Southwestern Texas districts and the branch reports have not yet come to hand.

In July the Northeastern Texas and Central Texas districts met in conference. In August the Central Nebraska district held conference, but branch reports have not been received from their officers yet.

Neither have reports come from the Ohio district since their session of August, 1898, a year ago; nor from Nevada for a still longer time. From Oklahoma district no reports for February and May, 1899. From Utah the only one received during this year, is the report of the Provo branch, forwarded by kindness of the clerk.

Numbers of districts have appointed to hold sessions in September and October, and if the district clerks will forward branch reports promptly I will feel greatly obliged. Those so appointed are: London and Chatham districts, Ontario; Mobile, Central California, Florida, Northern Illinois, Kewanee, Nauvoo, Des Moines, Decatur, Little Sioux, Northeastern Kansas, Spring River, Eastern Maine, Western Maine, Massachusetts, Southern Michigan, Far West, Northeastern Missouri, Independence, Southern Missouri, Northern Nebraska, Southern Nebraska, New York, Kirtland, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pittsburg, Southern Wisconsin.

Those that adjourned without date, or have not yet published notice of time, are as follows: Sheffield, Alabama, Idaho, Southeastern Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee, Eastern Michigan, Northern Michigan, Northern California, Southern California, Southern Indiana, Montana, Nodaway, Clinton (Mo.), Northeastern Texas, Central Texas, Eastern Iowa, Fremont, Southwestern Texas, and West Virginia.

I publish the above in order to urge upon delinquents the need of closer attention, while those who are habitually prompt need not be hastened. To avoid times and seasons of "rushing," it is better to attend to business promptly, that reports may be copied upon the General Record soon after conferences are held. Where district clerks can have branch reports corrected I am glad to allow a reasonable time for that work, and in such cases, help will be afforded so far as I can give aid. Respectfully submitted,

H. A. STEBBINS,

General Church Recorder.

LAMONI, Iowa, September 8.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Southern California conference convenes at the saints' chapel at San Bernardino, Friday, October 20. It is hoped that all the priesthood will be present, also as many of the laity as possible. Special attention of the branches is called to the resolutions passed at our last district conference, as follows: "All business of the district conference shall be done by the delegate system;" and that "any member of any branch, in good standing, shall be entitled to act as delegate to represent said branch;" also that "each branch shall be entitled to one delegate for each six members or major fraction thereof, in good standing;" that "a delegate present from any branch shall be entitled to cast full vote for his branch, providing such power shall not include over twenty votes." Let branch authorities be careful to have full and accurate reports. Those desiring their names to appear on the tithing list in Bishop's agent's report to conference, should pay their tithing or offering at least two weeks before conference. A Carmichael, district president and Bishop's agent.

Conference of Mobile district will meet with Bluff Creek branch, October 14, at ten o'clock a. m. It is hoped that all will come who can. Sunday school convention will meet at same place on Friday evening before conference, at seven o'clock. All schools and branches not represented will please report to either F. P. Scarcliff, or C. I. Carpenter, at Scranton, Mississippi.

Conference of Northern Nebraska district will meet with Lake Shore branch, near Decatur, September 29, at 7:30 p. m. Butts, district president; James Huff, district secretary.

Conference of London district will meet with London branch, Ontario, September 30, and October 1. We trust all will make an effort to be present, and have a spiritual feast. At last conference the word of the Lord to us was that it was pleasing to him that his people should often assemble together in such assemblies. Let us try to remember this and make such sacrifices as we can to get to conference. Sunday school convention meets on Friday, at 2:30 p. m., one day before conference. Make it a point to come in time for the convention, and we bespeak for you a good time. Sunday school work is no mean part of our church work, and our conventions deserve the appreciation and support of every true born Latter Day Saint. Come and have a good time, and learn a great deal about school work and how to make it interesting. Branch secretaries, please get out your reports for conference in good time. We desire to get a full report of the district this fall; so if you have not a blank report, send for some at once, and have it filled out and carefully examined by the branch, that there may not be mistakes in it. The priesthood will also remember their reports. All Sunday school secretaries are requested to send reports to this convention. Please do not overlook this duty. Superintendents, write out and send an account of the general condition of your school, so we will know how to help you. Hoping all who can will be present at convention and conference, and that all will come prepared to do their part towards having a good time in the service of God. Maggie MacGregor, Arthur, Ontario, secretary of London district and district Sunday school association. After September 25 address me No 381, Adelaide Street, London, Ontario.

Conference of Nodaway district will meet with Ross Grove branch, Missouri, Saturday, September 30, at eleven o'clock. Let all reports be sent in good time. Bro. I. N. White is expected to be with us. All come.

Kelley, A. H. Parsons, and other ministers will be there. Come one, come all; bring with you the spirit of the work.

R. ETZENHOUSER, Submissionary.

P. S.—October 1 is the time for the quarterly ministerial reports. Be prompt, please, brethren.

She lacked four days of being six months old; was gentle in spirit and patient in her sufferings through long, hot days and restless nights. The bright one has gone to join her sisters Helen and Ruth in the beautiful waiting place where the "spirits of just ones" and the innocent dwell till they shall be placed in immortal bodies when Christ comes. True Succession in Church Presidency.

THIS is a book just issued by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, from the pen of Elder Heman C. Smith, Church Historian. It is a complete answer to and refutation of Elder B. H. Roberts on "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," and to Elder C. W. Penrose on "Priesthood and Presidency." It follows Mr. Roberts closely and points out his false statements, misrepresentations, historical inaccuracies, illogical arguments, and untenable interpretations; while answering Mr. Penrose directly and incidentally.

It also takes into account the official acts and teachings of Brigham Young and his associates from June, 1844, to the present, showing conclusively that they departed from the faith, and taught immorality and criminality.

The work of the Reorganization is also presented from an affirmative standpoint, and her standing as the acknowledged Church of Jesus Christ is clearly maintained and the authority of her priesthood and presidency convincingly defended and conclusively established.

There has long been a demand for this work, in consequence of the Utah missionaries having used the book of Mr. Roberts, wherever their ministry have operated. This book in the hands of all who desire the truth will be effectual against the influence of their sophistry.

It will make a book of about 160 pages and will be sold at the lowest possible price, as we are more interested in the circulation of the work than in the profit derived from its sale. Bound in neat paper covers, 35 cents each.

Archæological Committee's Report,

WITH MAPS.

Evidences Supporting the Book of Mormon.

This work presents the results of labors of the "Committee on American Archæology," appointed at the General Conference of 1894. The work has been written after much time and special labor in investigating every available source of written information on the subject.

It is divided into three parts. Part 1 contains a preface, and outlines the history of the Nephites. Part 2 is a synopsis of Jaredite history, and includes a summary of the conclusions reached by the committee, with a statement of the evidences upon which said conclusions are based. Part 3 contains much miscellaneous matter of general importance, including a list of early authors on American antiquities, with their opinions concerning the origin of the ancient Americans; a list of authors quoted; also an index of names of lands, cities, rivers, etc.

The committee has outlined and located the civilizations, lands, cities, rivers, and boundaries of countries named in the Book of Mormon. These are shown on six specially prepared Maps, included in the report. Other engravings also appear—illustrations of "Mexican Picture Writing," "Landa's Maya Alphabet," "LePlongeon's Egyptian and Maya alphabet," "Book of Mormon characters," "Bas Relief from Palenque," and "Inscriptions from Palenque."

The committee has summarized the leading archæological evidences obtainable in support of the claims made by the Book of Mormon; evidences have been gathered from sources not accessible to the average reader, making it a manual of defense of its archæological claims.

The preparation of the work has been completed at considerable expense, but the price has been made as low as possible.

Neatly bound in heavy paper covers; price 50 cents, mailed to any address.

HEAD OF THE CHURCH.

PRESIDENT SMITH VISITS THE CITY.

Special services were held at the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints on Claffin Street, Flint Village, Sunday morning and evening, at which Elder Joseph Smith, President of the Mormon Church, of which the local organization is a branch, was the principal attraction. He was accompanied by his brother, Elder Alexander Smith, a patriarch of the church.

The morning service was at 10:30 o'clock, and the church was well filled with people who had gathered to listen to the teachings of the leader of the sect. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with bright flowers and green, and an orchestra furnished special music to accompany the congregational singing.

The service was conducted by Elder John Smith, President of the Fall River branch of the church, who is not at all related to the noted elders from the West. He introduced President Smith, who gave a highly interesting and instructive address. The Mormon Church represented by the Elders Smith is not the one whose headquarters is in Salt Lake City, Utah; but this Mormon Church has its head at Lamoni, Iowa, and it does not believe in or allow polygamy among its members. It is the bitterest enemy of the Utah Mormons, and it has publicly protested against the admission of Congressman-elect Roberts as a member of the next House. It was organized in 1831 and is the original Mormon Church from which the Mormons of Utah separated at the time of the death of President Smith, father of the present head of the church. The speaker has been President since 1860, and he is the editor of the Herald, the official organ of the sect.

Elder Alexander Smith offered the prayer of the service, after which President Joseph Smith was introduced and proved an able advocate of the cause he represents. He said the presence of so many persons showed that there was a latent, if not an active, belief in the religion of Jesus, the Christ, which fact was encouraging. He spoke of the practicality of the age in which we are living and said that things theoretical and impractical are no longer a factor to be considered.

According to the belief of those he represents, it is better for the accomplishment of the design of life to take a common sense view of the subject of religion and salvation, and to avoid, if possible, the mysticisms and myths of olden times. He had come not to try to weaken the religious convictions of his hearers, whatever they might be, nor to shake their belief in the Bible as the inspired word of God, for he had the greatest respect for the belief of others and for the views of those who do not pretend to believe at all.

Touching prejudice, he claimed that it was hard for persons nowadays to be unprejudiced on religious subjects, owing to the manner of living and the kind of instruction received in the present times. Had he been brought up as most people are, he felt that he, too, would be prejudiced upon the same subjects.

The basis of his belief may be found in the New Testament, and his example of life in him known as Jesus, the Christ. His church believes in the history, convictions, and philosophy of the Christ life as found in the New Testament. The Mormons believe it has been correctly enough translated to be a witness either for or against them and the church. They believe that man is no better than his belief and cannot be; that men are answerable to God for the deeds of the body, which brought them to the conclusion that it is the duty of man to seek his individual salvation; that he must answer to God directly for himself and that he must put forth efforts to gain salvation. He must live according to laws specifically laid down by the Divine One, and which cannot be found in nature—or anywhere else except in God's teachings.

The Mormon theory takes in the assumption that from the first God's idea was to save the human race from final destruction and that God has never lost sight of this plan for an instant; that he has shaped all things physical, religious, and political for the ultimate accomplishment of this end, and that in the contest between good and evil, the good is bound to triumph finally through Jesus, the Christ. In some things the belief carried him along side by side with his religious contemporaries, while in others it brought them to the parting of the ways.

The Mormons believe that God speaks directly to man in our time as he did in the ancient times, and that he will continue so to do until eternity. They believe that God did not create this world out of nothing and things uncreate, but that he shaped the existing invisible things into the beautiful world, placed man upon the earth and that he will hold him responsible for every living creature thereon which has the breath of life. They realize that this increases our responsibility and our opportunity; but we should try to accept the one and improve the other.

They consider the crucifixion only one of the incidents in the remarkable life of Christ, but not the most important one. It is, in their minds, an identification proof as to Christ. The greatest incident in his life will be the final redemption of the world. If Christ came to save the world he brought the only means for the accomplishment of the redemption of the human race.

The strongest thing to commend Jesus to them was that he realized what he came for, the enormity of the mission, and that he did not shirk the responsibility of it nor utter a complaint against it.

Elder Smith said he regarded baptism as a direct law and command of God, and had not Jesus complied with this command he would have been a lawbreaker, and would not have been worthy of our faith and trust. He obeyed in this as in every other command. The greatest sin of the world is disobedience in its varied forms. Not until Jesus had obeyed the command and been baptized by John was he acknowledged by the Father as his accepted Son, the Savior of the world. Jesus is a witness, a leader, and a commander. As a witness he must have something to which to testify; as a leader, he must lead; as a commander, he must command.

In closing, President Smith said that his last visit here was twenty-five years ago, at which time he endeavored to bring the gospel to his listeners as he had tried to do at this time. He had nothing new to offer them and likewise no new story to tell . . . — Fall River Herald, August 28.

DECREASE IN THE BIRTH RATE.

The vital statistics of England for a series of years show that the birth rate has declined materially in the twenty-two years between 1876 and 1898. The causes assigned for the retardation of the growth of population are deferred marriage, the decreased number of marriages, and diminished fertility of marriage. These depopulating influences are less active in the farming than in the manufacturing and industrial counties; but the tendency of population is to leave the rural districts and move into the manufacturing centers, and this tendency, therefore, may be added to the causes for the decrease in the birth rate. In the last two years England has enjoyed unusual prosperity, and the result is seen in a slightly increased marriage rate.

These facts supplement and confirm, as far as England is concerned, the striking information recently tabulated by Mr. Bodio, the eminent director of the statistical bureau in Italy. He has shown that in nearly all the countries of Europe the birth rate is diminishing. In other words, while the population in all the countries is still increasing, the rate of increase is diminishing, and this diminution is a little more rapid in England and Scotland than in any other country of Europe publishing vital statistics.

Based upon the statistics of a long series of years, Mr. Bodio gives the mean annual rate of decrease in England and Wales as nearly a third of 1 per cent, or 0.306 per cent; in Scotland, 0.267; in the Netherlands and Germany, each 0.244; in Belgium, 0.239; in Greece, 0.209; in France, 0.179, and on account of the low rate of births the population of France increases more slowly than that of most civilized countries; in Russia, 0.158; in Sweden, 0.147; in Switzerland, 0.128; in Denmark, 0.078; in Austria, 0.076; in Roumania, 0.033; and in Hungary, 0.024. In several countries the rate of growth of population is increasing, the mean annual increase in the birth rate in Portugal being 0.475, or nearly half of 1 per cent; in Italy, 0.083; in Spain, 0.040; and in Norway, 0.012.

Except where emigration or immigration prevails on a large scale, the main factor in the depopulation or overpopulation of a country is the birth rate. There is nothing alarming in a decreased birth rate in densely peopled regions unless, as is usually the case, the decrease is due to causes that diminish the comfort and well-being of the inhabitants. For one cause or another there is reason to believe that the standard of living, in all its phases, has been retrograding instead of improving in some of the countries of Europe. The condition of the rural population in parts of Germany has recently been described in no flattering colors, and yet no one has inferred that an improved condition of the people would result from the present tendency to desert the country and flock into the towns.

Herr Bebel was accused of misrepresenting the facts awhile ago when he described the hovels in which the agricultural laborers of East Prussia live, but his statement seems to be confirmed by the Emperor himself, if the story be true that when Wilhelm II. recently visited his new estate at Cadinen he remarked: "Changes must be made here. This cowhouse is a palace compared with the work-people's houses. It must be seen to that the pigsties are not more habitable than the laborers' cottages."

The English woman who expressed a wish to learn of the condition of the peasant class in America was much surprised to be told: "There is no peasant class in America." Nothing is better calculated to stimulate appreciation of our country and its institutions than an opportunity to compare the condition of the most fortunate agricultural and industrial laborers in Europe with that of the same classes of toilers here. Any American who sees much of these foreign workmen in their fields, shops, homes, or meeting places must perceive that there is something in the essence of American society and the system of government it has evolved that is worth more to our millions of homes than all the wealth of the world. — New York Sun.

MEN LACKING IN BACKBONE.

Speaking of "Human Invertebrates," the Rev. Bruce Brown said last night at the West Side Christian Church:—

"Nature intended man to walk erect and to this end fitted him out with a spinal column, but unnumbered thousands bid defiance to nature's plans and grovel in the dust. The highest and noblest of God's creation is the only animal that fails to fulfill his destiny. The social invertebrate has become the pest of the state. Without push and principle enough to make a place in life for himself he becomes a leech and sucks his living out of the earnings of others. The crying need of the times is not more men but more manhood.

"There are many invertebrates among the politicians. Many an office holder finds it impossible to be true to his constituency, for in making pledges to get the office he bartered away his principles. Some men seem to have been born with twine strings in their backs instead of spinal columns.

"But the theological invertebrate, the man with a custom-made religion, hemmed and stitched, who must not search for light and is afraid to speak the message in his heart lest a position or popularity shall no longer be his, is the saddest specimen of all. The preacher of a great truth, born beyond the skies, cannot speak with palsied lips or a paralyzed tongue.

"True courage is uncomplaining. David Livingstone, walking thousands of miles, suffering from a hundred attacks of African fever, with his right arm broken and crushed by the jaws of a lion, not seeing a white face for six years, dying while kneeling in prayer during the night watches in his rude, grass hut, spoke these matchless words, 'I never made a sacrifice.' A loyal man, true to his convictions, a servant of his day and generation, is the noblest work of God." — Chicago Tribune.

LAST OF THE CHURCH CONTEST.

Belleville, Ill., Sept. 2.—The prolonged fight between the parishioners of St. Patrick's Church in East St. Louis and Bishop Janssen of this diocese was declared to be practically ended at a mass-meeting to-night. The parishioners have won a partial victory in the resignation of Vicar General Cluze, the German pastor to whom they objected, and the appointment as administrator to Father James Harkins, an Irish priest. No doubt is expressed that the victory will be made complete by the appointment of an Irish priest as soon as Mgr. Martirelli can take action.

At the meeting in the parochial school yard to-night resolutions were adopted expressing joy over the termination of the controversy and declaring that Father Harkins would be accepted as administrator without reservation or condition and all his commands would be obeyed.

The parochial school will be opened on Tuesday by Father Harkins. The prospect of the children going to the public schools is said to have been the lever which hastened a partial settlement. — Chicago Tribune.

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPT. 20, 1899.

THE EDITOR ABROAD.

On Sunday, September 3, we attended service in the neat chapel occupied by the saints at No. 54 Broadway, in Somerville, the near suburb of Boston. When we last met with them it was on Howard Avenue, Boston.

Time has made inroads on the ranks, and a number of those we greeted in the "Hub," on that occasion have passed over to the "bourne whence no traveler returns." Their places are occupied by others, more talented if possible, but not more faithful, diligent, or hopeful.

Bro. Richard Bullard, presiding officer, and Uncle Alexander, had gone to Little Compton to attend a two-days' meeting with Bro. John Smith; so Bro. Myron Fisher, the next officer in charge, requested Bro. Luff to take the lead, which he did, the Editor speaking at both the morning and evening services, attending the sacramental meeting in the evening in the interval.

This was to us a very refreshing season, as it was the only occasion on which we ate and drank with the saints of the East in their fellowship meeting in our entire trip.

The meetings were fairly well attended both by the saints and the outside element; and we had the usual liberty in the pulpit.

A Sunday school picnic had been arranged for on Monday, the 4th, by the school under the superintending care of Bro. Lewis, formerly of New York, a rising young man of ability; the meeting to be on the shore of the reservoir at Arlington Heights.

We met with them and stayed long enough to be at the opening exercises and the lunch, eaten under the trees on the grassy places. But, we had to part with them in time to arrange for passage to Wheeling, West Virginia, enroute to Creola, Ohio, our next point for Sunday services. So at a little after one in the afternoon Bro. Luff accompanied the Editor to Boston, to the Fitchburg Railway station. Here we parted with Bro. Joseph Luff; he to look after the far east, we to meet with the saints of the Southern Ohio district in conference at Creola, Vinton County, Ohio, and to aid them in dedicating a building in that place for worship.

At three o'clock we were off on the moving train, and at midnight the next day, we arrived after an hour's stop at Youngstown, from which place we passed to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, thence to Wheeling.

The State Fair for West Virginia was in progress at Wheeling, and incidental to it, the Editor had the privilege to occupy a cot in one of the hotel hallways, anent the elevator, for half of the night, no room being available, and the hour being too late to hunt the saints up at Benwood. The city was full of guests.

At the coming of the day we hunted up Israel A. Smith, son of the Editor, and with him found the saints, Albert Smith, O. J. Tary, Sr. Mollie Brewster, Sr. Gill, Joseph Ebeling, Sr. Ebeling, Sen., and others. Bro. L. D. Ullom and F. J. Ebeling and Bro. J. F. McDowell were off up the river somewhere, where Bro. McDowell was standing for the defense in an attack from the Christian or Disciple folks. We heard a good report from Bro. McDowell's work.

We stayed over Wednesday, the 6th of September, and at the request of Bro. O. J. Tary presiding, spoke to those who came out, six men, four women, and a baby. The men were at work on the night shift and were at their places of labor, so that their absence was accounted for.

In company with son Israel A. we visited the Fair. The showing was creditable, so far as the State has progressed; but the absence of shade trees, the heat and the dust made a long stay undesirable.

The State is coming to the front slowly, and is deserving of credit.

We left Wheeling at eleven a. m., Thursday. The train was late, and kept losing time all the way to Columbus; so that we missed connection and had to stay in Ohio's capital for a night. Here as at Wheeling, the State Fair was in session, and no room at the hotels was to be found, so large was the crowd "at the Fair."

But a benevolent citizen followed us to the Park Hotel, and offered to take us to a respectable private house where we would be permitted to occupy a room in a quiet and pleasant place. We went with him, and he took us to his own house, No. 783 Kerr Street, where we had pleasant quarters.

This gentleman's name was Swartz, which is German for black, but his treatment of the stranger was quite the reverse of black.

There was a farmer and his wife, from Licking County, who had come to town to see his friends and the Fair; his name was Bash. He had attended the first fair held in his county, and keeping track of Fair methods had become disgusted with the many gambling devices to which the Fair management had descended. We thought to go with this farmer and his son and family to the Fair Grounds to see Pain's panoramic display of the fight at San Juan, Cuba; but learning that it would be a late performance, we did not go, but stayed at the house, and retired at an early hour. We were afterward glad that we did so, for there were four wounded by stray bullets fired either by the soldiers in the mimic fight, or by careless revelers firing revolvers. Two of those hurt were fatally wounded; one, a boy of seven years sitting in the grand stand by the side of his father was shot through the heart; the other, a soldier in the front rank of the assault was shot in the head and would die; the other two were less severely hurt. Such an occurrence would have spoiled any entertainment for us.

All waits come to an end, if time serves, so at 8:15 the morning of Friday, September 8, we left Columbus for our destination, Creola, a little hamlet of a dozen houses hid among the hills of Vinton County, and on the Hocking Valley Railway between Logan and McArthur.

We found Bro. S. J. Jeffers on the platform awaiting us, or who might come, and in the little station Bro. W. H. Kelley, missionary in charge, and Bro. Aaron B. Kirkendall, president of the branch, busy, very busy putting the finishing touches on the beautiful chapel which we came to help them to dedicate. It is a beautiful structure and is placed on a pleasant site, and big enough to hold the entire town in mass meeting.

Our first question was, What did you build so large for? Where will you find people to fill it?

To these Bro. Kirkendall laughed and said, "O, don't get scared. Wait and see."

We did wait, for at evening we were asked to open the campaign, before a comfortable audience; which we did from a favorite text, John 14: 1-13.

Conference was to convene Saturday, the 9th. All day from early morn by wagon, buggy, and by train; by ones and twos and threes and dozens, the saints and their neighbors poured into that peaceful valley, until the house began to look small. Brn. L. R. Devore, James Moler, J. L. Goodrich, T. J. Beatty, Thomas Matthews, made a grand rally; so that by the hour of meeting there was a splendid representation of the latter-day forces.

The business session passed pleasantly, if slowly; so that when Sunday came all were ready for the spiritual exercises of the day.

Bro. L. R. Devore occupied the pulpit on Saturday evening, giving a clear and pleasant as well as argumentative exposition of the gospel requirements to salvation. We could easily determine after hearing him why it is that he is so well liked as a gospel preacher. The Editor filled the morning and afternoon hours, the latter service being the dedicatory one. Bro. W. H. Kelley, the veteran pleader, occupied the evening hour.

The question, Where will the people come from? was practically answered, for such a host as turned out to that meeting was a surprise, genuine and full.

The day was perfect, and the crowd was more than twice as many as could get into the chapel, which was filled to the doors, both morning and afternoon.

The song service with Sr. Kirken-dall as chorister and Sr. Barstow as organist, was very good, and pleasing to all. Bro. H. E. Moler, who has usually been there to look after the choral exercises, was away, so that the singers felt embarrassed for a time, but soon rallied and all did well.

The chapel was duly turned over to the church by Bro. A. B. Kirkendall, chairman, in behalf of the committee; Mr. Fry, Mr. Defy, and Bro. Kirken-dall being the committee; Bro. Jeffers receiving the deed on behalf of the Bishop. It is the only church in the place, and was built out of the desire of the saints and their friends to have a place where they could meet with room.

Whatever part the Editor was able to take in the final scene he did it with gratefulness that he was one with the people in their effort; which was in itself so commendable, and so carefully and well executed. The Editor confesses too that he was greatly, pleasantly surprised at the numbers and friendliness of the people; for a better, more attentive audience never greeted us than the one at Creola.

We left them on Monday, September 11, reaching the sanctum on the 12th.

MORMONISM IN BOSTON.

Only a few days ago, Elder Ephraim Jensen, one of a band of elders from the Utah Church, secured a permit from the Hon. Josiah Quincy, Mayor of the ancient borough of Boston, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to preach on the Common, the historic arena on which heresy, sedition, the seeds of political revolution, sound policies, and the principles of human freedom in religion and politics have been discussed from the time contrary to which the memory of the present generation runneth not. The elder occupied on this permit for an occasion or two, when, the Mayor revoked the permit, assigning no reason to the elder for so doing.

In an interview with a Boston Herald man, the Mayor stated that the permit was secured without his knowledge that Elder Jensen was a Mormon, and that he would not have granted it had he supposed that "Mormonism" would be advocated under it. So! Elder Jensen appeared at the place of meeting last Sunday, August 27, but a policeman notified him that he had instructions to arrest him if he presumed to preach; so the elder was silent.

On Wednesday, August 30, the Herald, contained an open letter to the Mayor, enlightening that officer concerning the traditional liberty of speech, supposed to have been so long exercised and enjoyed on the historic grounds, making several statements about the people of Utah and their faith. Among these is the following:—

You must also have understood that the practice of polygamy ceased at the time of Utah becoming a State. Furthermore, the Mormon missionaries do not, and never did, preach the doctrine of polygamy in any direct or indirect manner. As regards myself, I never had but one wife, and I do not know of one among the eighteen hundred missionaries of our church now out in the world who has a second wife. Not more than about three per cent of our people ever practiced polygamy, and persecution raged against us and the prophets were slain long before this practice was known to the church. And, though our enemies talk as if polygamy and Mormonism were synonymous, neither of these terms is descriptive of our faith and worship. The first is renounced and the second is but a nickname.

Elder Jensen unwittingly stated a fact in his letter in this item, for which he is entitled to our thanks.

It has so long been our contention that the "prophets were slain," before the dogma and practice of plural marriage was "known to the church," that we welcome the occasional lapse into the truth-telling habit of those who deny our contention.

We may approach the Mayor, by letter, and by the personal representation of those in charge of the work in the Massachusetts district; Brn. Luff, Bond, Smith, and Bullard; but cannot foresee the result; especially so as principle would demand that if Elder Jensen and his associate elders are denied the liberty of the Common, we and all others should be also excluded, if the Mayor is consistent.

We fancy that we see the fine hand of our Presbyterian neighbors in this move of the Honorable Mayor. A pressure from them, joined by some others may have brought the Hon. Josiah Quincy to think that the morals of the staid Bostonians were seriously threatened by this elder from Utah. But as "error should not be feared if truth be left free to combat it," he could have safely let this disciple from Utah have his say, and let the people judge between the right and the wrong of it.

Brn. Bullard and Busiel went to the Commons last Sunday to hear Elder Jensen, but were disappointed, the elder refraining from his effort for the reasons stated.

THEY ARE NOT MORMONS.

The News will state in answer to a query that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints which is holding its reunion at Kansas City has no connection with the Mormon Church whose headquarters are at Salt Lake, save a historical connection. The head bishop of the former organization is the son of Joseph Smith who was killed by the mob at Nauvoo, Illinois. The organization is entirely independent of the Utah Mormons and has its headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa, and numbers thousands of adherents in Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and other states. It is bitterly opposed to polygamy and has always been since its organization. It regards the Book of Mormon not as a substitute for the Scriptures but as auxiliary, or rather as an addition to the Bible. This church believes in the continuity of divine revelation. It holds that revelations have been made since the time of the apostles and that Joseph Smith, "the Seer," was a latter-day prophet. The membership is made up of good people but they have been exceedingly modest in disseminating intelligence concerning their beliefs and have therefore been confused with the Utah Mormons.

The foregoing is from the Des Moines Daily News, September 1, 1899. This is a fair statement, and we thank the News for its courtesy and fairness. Should we take exception at all, it would be to the statement that the Reorganized Church has been exceedingly modest in disseminating intelligence concerning its belief.

To one not fully acquainted with the conditions to be met and the history of the Reorganized Church, such might and doubtless with some does seem to be the case. But when it is considered that the Utah apostasy with polygamy and a train of other evils, including long continued opposition to the government's efforts to suppress polygamy, made "Mormonism," or the faith of the Latter Day Saints, odious and a synonym of evil, it is not strange that knowledge of the position of the Reorganized Church is not more extensively known. The task of vindicating the faith of the church and of rendering honorable the name of the church, was not an ordinary one. Added to the odium fastened upon both by the heresies taught by Brigham Young, there has been a strong sectarian prejudice, with the statements of popular writers and prominent publications to contend against. In the face of these obstacles the Reorganized Church, few in number and limited in means, has steadily pressed forward in advocating and defending the faith in pulpit, through the press, and by every legitimate means at its command.

Perhaps we have not done all we might have done; but we are thankful for results already realized and, having succeeded against such strong odds, are hopeful that the forces which have sustained the work will carry it on to ultimate and complete victory.

SHOULD THE UNITED STATES BOYCOTT FRANCE?

It is quite clear to the citizens of the American Republic, that the verdict of guilty found by the military court martial against Captain Alfred Dreyfus, of the French army, on an accusation of Treason, is a most flagrant outrage against right and condemns an innocent man.

But, the idea that the United States as a government should because of that unrighteous verdict refuse to keep faith with the French Republic in the International Exposition affair to be held at Paris, in 1900, is a very unsound and untenable one.

The French Government is not in itself the responsible agent in finding that verdict. It was the product of an army court, held in time of peace for an alleged crime against army discipline and rules, and the proceeding was against a man obnoxious to the leading army officers because he is a Jew. The fault lies with that court and the vicious rule, and the too great power which the military arm of the government has been permitted to exercise. So that, the Republic of France, struggling yet under the difficulties of the formative period of a Republican form of government, may be permitted great latitude in dealing with those questions more immediately connected with its own internal affairs.

For the United States Government to boycott the World's Fair which France is to hold in its capital city in the initial year of the twentieth century, would be an act of folly entirely inexcusable, if such action is based upon the unfortunate slip in administering justice in the Dreyfus case.

We believe, strongly, that Captain Dreyfus is innocent of the crime for which he was tried and condemned; that the evidence was entirely insufficient to warrant any punishment whatever; but that does not justify the American Republic in becoming a party to the quarrel.

The people may, as they claim the right to do, either go to or stay from the Exposition; of that the Government may take no cognizance; it is their right; but the national promises made, or implied, the government should keep.

France long ago helped America when she needed help, took the chances of war with England, and recognized our struggling effort for national existence. That was but a short time since as the life of a nation is counted, quite too short for America to turn ingrate upon a question of pure sentiment in which no national interest is involved.

We therefore do not look for the United States to boycott the French Exposition.

DES MOINES REUNION.

This reunion continued to enjoy success until the end, which was reached Sunday night, September 3.

The preaching and the spiritual enjoyment of the social services were of a high character. For a time it seemed that the financial feature was to be a failure, as the expense was greater than the income until the last day; but by the close all the expense was met and the reunion was pronounced a complete success. Arrangements were made for a second reunion in 1900 by the appointment of Brn. C. Scott, W. C. Nirk, and J. W. Morgan a committee on arrangements. The saints parted in fine spirits and will look forward with fond anticipation for the second annual reunion of Des Moines district.

HEBER J. GRANT APPEARS IN COURT.

PLEADS GUILTY TO UNLAWFUL COHABITATION AND IS FINED $100.

Heber J. Grant was arraigned before Judge Norrell this afternoon, on the charge of unlawful cohabitation, to which, by his attorney, Franklin S. Richards, he pleaded guilty. The defendant waived the time for passing sentence, the court ruling that this could be done in cases of misdemeanor, when Judge Norrell ordered that he pay a fine of $100, or that he be imprisoned in the county jail, one day for each dollar thereof unpaid. The fine was paid.

The proceedings were extremely brief, consuming less than five minutes' time. Shortly after two o'clock Mr. Grant entered the court room, accompanied by Attorney F. S. Richards. County Attorney Putnam called the court's attention to the defendant's presence, at the same time stating that he was ready to plead. Attorney Richards thereupon informed the court that he appeared for Mr. Grant and would waive the reading of the information. Continuing, Mr. Richards said: "We desire, your honor, to enter a plea of guilty."

"Very well," said Judge Norrell; "let the defendant be brought in Monday for sentence."

"We desire to waive the time for passing sentence," said Mr. Richards, "and will ask that judgment be pronounced now. We are ready."

Judge Norrell then asked Mr. Grant to stand up, and on the order being complied with, his honor fined the defendant $100.

Quite a number of persons were in the court room, mostly attorneys, witnesses, and jurors, however.

The foregoing is from the Salt Lake, Utah, Deseret Evening News, September 8, 1899. This is the second prosecution for unlawful cohabitation of late, both of prominent men of the Utah Church. The fine in each case has been fixed at one hundred dollars, and the case quickly disposed of.

The whole proceedings are little more than a travesty on "law and order," and indicate the strength of judicial sentiment, in some quarters at least, on the question of unlawful cohabitation.

Utah polygamists will find little to deter them from the practice, with such occasional prosecutions and easy terms of legal settlement.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Is it right for a branch president to persist in presiding over a branch against the wishes of the majority of the members?

No. Proper self-respect ought to prevent anyone taking such ground.

If a branch president will not resign, nor call a business meeting to give the members of the branch a chance to express their wishes in the matter, what course should be taken to enforce the principle of "common consent" in the branch?

If there is no stated periods at which business meetings are held, and the president at the request of the other officers of the branch, refuses to call a meeting for business, the other officers, priest, teacher, and deacon, or any two of them, may call a meeting, giving due notice of time and place when and where meeting is to be held, being sure to give the presiding elder previous notice of their intention to call such meeting if he does not do so himself.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. G. R. Wells, of Australian mission, sends the following, dated August 14, 1899:—

This leaves us quite busy. The winter has been quite cool for this climate on the coast; down to freezing point once in Sydney, and snow and ice came nearer the coast this time than for years. Considerable of sickness lately. The branch here is endeavoring to start a church paper to get our work before the thousands of this city. It is to be called "The Ensign;" size, demy-quarto, eight pages; to be published monthly, three thousand copies; enough advertisements have been accepted to pay the printer. It will be distributed gratis. Elders Kaler and Haworth are still north.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Graceland College opened upon another year's work on Tuesday, the 12th inst., in charge of Prof. R. A. Harkness. The opening exercises were interesting and profitable. The number of students is not large, but additions are being made and those in charge are hopeful that the attendance will run up to forty or fifty during the fall term and steadily increase with the growth of the year. Miss Alida Logan, of Chicago, formerly of the University of Washington, D. C., has been secured as instructor in shorthand and typewriting, and the faculty is a good one, capable of effective service throughout. Those who contemplate attending should enroll as soon as possible and commence with the opening of the work of the college year.

Bishop Kelley left Lamoni for Western Iowa and the Woodbine reunion on Tuesday, the 12th; followed by Bro. and Sr. Criley and Sr. J. W. Wight, who also left for Woodbine on Friday, the 15th.

Pres. Joseph Smith and wife and daughter Lucy and youngest son Richard left Lamoni for the Woodbine reunion on Saturday, the 16th inst.

Late departures from Lamoni include Bro. Heman C. Smith, for the Maysville reunion; also Bro. and Sr. E. A. Smith and wife, of the Herald Office force, who go to represent the Herald Office at Maysville.

About one hundred members of the Lamoni branch residing about six miles west of the city, in what is known as the Green schoolhouse neighborhood, have obtained letters of removal from the parent branch and become organized into a separate branch. They have also begun the erection of a church building, which they expect to complete within about thirty days. These sisters and brethren have held regular services in their schoolhouse for years, as a result of which many have been brought to obedience of the truth. They intend to continue their good work, and are to be congratulated on their zeal and success, thus far. They build without going into debt, in harmony with the counsel of the Lord in his revelations to the church, hence move out upon a sound business basis. Bro. David Young, priest, is president of the new organization. Success to it.

Sr. Anna Nielsen, Nebraska City, reports the late conference of the Southern Nebraska district as enjoyable and profitable in every respect. Prospects for continued growth favorable.

Sr. Carrie Sund, Butte, Montana, would like to purchase a Book of Mormon published in the Swedish language. Anyone who would sell such a copy, please address her. This noted by request. Swedish Book of Mormon out of stock Utah publishing houses.

Dr. J. H. Hansen, President of the Board of Directors of Graceland, went during the past week to the Maysville reunion in the interests of college work. He would go thence to the general reunion at Woodbine.

Bro. and Sr. H. A. Stebbins left Lamoni on the 14th inst. for points in Illinois and Wisconsin, their objective point Janesville, Wisconsin.

The late Trust Conference, held in Chicago under the auspices of the Chicago Civic Federation, was largely attended by men prominent in public affairs throughout the country, including governors of States, congressmen, judges, members of the bar, representatives of labor organizations, educators, political economists, and others. The discussion involved matters of vital interest to the people and was conducted on broad, non-partisan lines. It is encouraging to note the growing disposition to inquire into all public affairs affecting the interests of the people. It is gratifying and an indication of broader development to note the growing ability to discuss public questions dispassionately. It encourages belief that the people will get at the truth and see that it is applied to economic, social, and general interests of life. We are interested in these questions.

Local workers are active in and about Lamoni. There is a wide field for usefulness and development for the local ministry.

Bro. J. H. Peters, Coleman, Michigan, was a visitor at Lamoni of late. He left his son Richard at Graceland.

THE TWO COVENANTS.—NO. 4.

THE BIBLE IS THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE NEW TESTAMENT; OR, THE OLD AND THE NEW COVENANTS.

BY ELDER JOSEPH F. BURTON.

GOD ANNULS THE OLD COVENANT.

It might be supposed that a people who had entered into covenant under such awe inspiring circumstances as did Israel at Sinai, would have faithfully kept it; but the history of that people is a recital of oft repeated violations of that covenant. Notwithstanding this, God often wrought wonderful deliverances for them, until in the fullness of time ordained of God that the seed of the woman should come, preparation was made to annul that covenant, and God forewarning Israel of this, said by Zechariah:—

And I took my staff, even Beauty, and cut it asunder, that I might break my covenant which I had made with all the people. And it was broken in that day: and so the poor of the flock that waited upon me knew that it was the word of the Lord. And I said unto them, If ye think good, give me my price; and if not, forbear. So they weighed for my price thirty pieces of silver. And the Lord said unto me, Cast it unto the potter; a goodly price that I was prized at of them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them to the potter in the house of the Lord.—Zech. 11: 10-13.

The substance of this prophecy is, that a covenant which God had made with all the people, with all Israel, was to be annulled by him; and the time of annulling it is so plainly set forth, even to the very day, by certain events which transpired upon that day, that the poorest of the flock would know of a certainty that the covenant was annulled, and the day upon which this was done.

In trying to understand this prophecy we naturally ask the question, What covenant did God make with all Israel, or with all the people? God made a covenant with Noah for all people, but it was made with Noah, and not with all the people. God made a covenant with Abraham for all nations, or all people, but it was made with Abraham and not with all people. And never but once did God make a covenant with all the people, all Israel,—three millions or more of them,—and that was at Sinai.

The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb. The Lord made not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day.—Deut. 5: 2, 3.

Who were those who are here spoken of as "US, EVEN US," "ALL OF US"? The verse above says, "Moses called ALL ISRAEL," and the Lord made a covenant with "ALL OF US." What covenant? "This covenant." And Moses immediately repeats the ten commandments, therefore it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that the covenant which the Lord will break upon that certain day is the Sinai covenant, and it is the ten commandments.

When will that covenant be broken? On the day that the Lord is sold for thirty pieces of silver and a potter's field is bought with the money. Therefore on the day that Christ was sold for thirty pieces of silver by Judas, and the high priests bought the potter's field with that price which Jesus was prized at of them, was the old Sinaitic covenant annulled.

Christ annulled it, because the prophecy says, "That I might break my covenant," "give me my price." "So they weighed" "my price." The "covenant which I had made." Therefore the Lord who made the covenant with Israel at Sinai was he who annulled it when he was sold for thirty pieces of silver, and the poorest among Israel knows that it was Jesus who was sold for thirty pieces of silver, called in this prophecy "the Lord."

And on that day the ark containing the covenant in the temple was exposed to the gaze of all, for the veil was rent, and the holy of holies in which was the ark of the covenant, was no longer sacred: and the bondage which began at Sinai ended, and all Israel were free to accept Jehovah, the Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

And from that day to this, no mortal has entered into that covenant with God. For God, the party of the first part to that covenant, has annulled it, withdrawn from it, as the parties of the second part to that covenant had repeatedly violated it, and made it of none effect through their traditions.

Thus ended the Sinaitic covenant.

THE LAW CONTAINED IN ORDINANCES ABOLISHED.

When Paul wrote to the church in Ephesus (see Eph. 2:15) he says that Christ, "having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances," thus broke down the middle wall of partition between Jew and Gentile. We may notice that the apostle does not say that Jesus had abolished the ordinances, but he had abolished the law contained in ordinances. To illustrate this see Numbers 15:15, 16:—

One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger that sojourneth with you, an ordinance forever in your generations: as ye are, so shall the stranger be before the Lord. One law and one manner shall be for you, and for the stranger that sojourneth with you.

And in the same chapter is related the event of a man—perhaps a stranger—gathering sticks on the sabbath day. And the Lord gave the following ordinance to Moses: "The man shall be surely put to death."—Verse 35. Should that man be put to death because he had violated the ordinance? No, there was no ordinance when he picked up the sticks, but he had violated the law, "The seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work."—Ex. 20:10. And when this law was violated no one knew what to do in the matter. After inquiring of the Lord they received this ordinance: "The man shall be surely put to death." This then became the ordinance by which the above law was made operative. It stated the punishment to be inflicted upon the violator of that first national sabbath law. The law that was contained in that ordinance was, "Thou shalt not do any work" on the sabbath day. "He that killeth any man shall surely be put to death."—Lev. 24:17. Why? Because he violates this ordinance? No, but because he violates the law, "Thou shalt not kill."

Therefore, when the LAW OF COMMANDMENTS was abolished, the ordinances which contained those laws ceased of necessity to enforce those laws, and it was not necessary for the apostle to say that the ordinances were abolished. These ordinances were for the purpose of making operative; that is, of administering the law of Sinai. The ten commandments was that law, and it was contained in ordinances which made it operative. And Paul tells us that the law contained in ordinances was abolished by Christ; thus breaking down the middle wall of partition between Jew and Gentile. Was not the ten commandments the wall between Jew and Gentile? And who will strive to keep up that wall? A follower of Jesus? That cannot be.

THE MINISTRATION OF DEATH.

In 2 Corinthians 3 are some statements concerning a "ministration of death" and a "ministration of condemnation" which was glorious once, which glory was to be done away, and which ministration was done away, in contrast to something which excelled in ministration, and in glory, and which remains; and in connection with the first of these are mentioned the engraving in stones, and Moses; and in the second, Christ, the apostles, and the Spirit of the Lord and liberty.

The ministration of death, written and engraven in stones being glorious, primarily refers to the glory of God upon the countenance of Moses when he received the two stones engraven with the ten commandments, and it must also mean the administration of that law which was engraven on stones; and the glory of that ministration was done away, and the ministration of death and condemnation was also done away.

That which was engraven on stones was the ten commandments, the ministration of them was the ministration of death. Who ministered them? The priests, high priests, and rabbis of Israel. What did they minister? That which was engraven on stones, and Paul says their ministration is done away, and its glory also. Those commandments are not done away, in the sense that they are lost to men, for they are still in the Bible; but as the glory of their ministration, and their ministration have ceased, they are but as matters of history; waymarks in the progress of Israel from Egyptian servitude to the liberty of the children of God under Christ.

Some twenty years ago California changed her constitution. The old one ceased to be administered, and the new one took its place; but the old one was not obliterated, and lawyers and judges might refer to it, but not to administer it. The administration of it has ceased; it is inoperative; it has no longer the force of law, and although some parts of the former one were transferred unchanged into the new one, and thus are operative, and are law, they are not so by reason of having been in the old constitution, but by reason of becoming a part of the new one. Thus the apostle says, the ministration of that which was engraven on stones has ceased, is done away, consequently that which was engraven on stones is inoperative, has not the force of law. When the law-making powers say that a certain law shall cease to be administered, all men know that that law is no longer of force as law, but has passed into history.

What then? Shall men be without law? No, for that which remaineth is more glorious than that which has passed away. What is that which remaineth? The law was added because of Israel's transgression of the gospel, and when that law which was added passed away, the gospel remaineth. The law was added until "the seed should come," therefore the limit of the time in which the law should be operative is here fixed to the time of the coming of the seed of Abraham, which is Christ.

But Christ being come a high priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, . . . entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.—Heb. 9:11, 12.

The old covenant ceased by limitation, and the new covenant, the gospel, which was preached by Moses before the law was added, remains after the law is done away, and is plainly seen when the veil is removed.

Under the ministration of the Spirit, men receive the Spirit of the Lord, "and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." But Israel in receiving that law of Sinai, were afraid of the Spirit of the Lord, and demanded of Moses that he should put a veil over his face, for "they were afraid to come nigh him," is the record in Exodus 34:30. And the veil is still upon the hearts of Israel, and some Gentiles also, in the reading of the Bible; for they do not see that which is so plainly stated that the ministration of death written and engraven in stones with its glory was done away in Christ, and not increased.

And if the glory of its ministration is done away, that ministry are no longer ministers of God, for the glory of a ministry is that they are ministering God's law, and their glory attaches to them by reason of the glory of the law which they administer, consequently the glory of their ministry ceased because the glory of the law ceased.

But the glory of God did not cease, but was transferred to the law of the gospel, "For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death," (Rom. 8:2,) and the ministry of the Spirit, or ministration of the Spirit, exceeds in glory the ministration of the law of Sinai, as the law of life exceeds the law of death. And when Israel shall turn to the Lord, the veil shall be taken away. Turn from what, and to what? Turn from that old covenant, which they are still trifling with, to the new covenant, the gospel of Christ.

If the ministration of death was glorious, "shall not the ministration of the spirit be rather glorious?" "Now the Lord is that Spirit." Moses was the minister of that which was engraven in stones. But the Lord is the minister of the Spirit. The ministration of the one is done away, the ministration of the other remains, and Paul says "we have this ministry."—2 Cor. 4:1.

THE OLD COVENANT NOT RENEWED.

In Hebrews eighth chapter we learn that Jesus obtained a more excellent ministry (than the ministration of death), as he was the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises than was the covenant of Sinai. The promise upon which this covenant was established was as follows:—

Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice, indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine: and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and a holy nation.—Ex. 19:5, 6.

The gospel was established upon the better promises of the remission of sins, and of the gifts of the Holy Ghost, which should culminate in the resurrection from the dead in the first resurrection, and eternal life in the kingdom of God. The first earthly, the second spiritual.

The apostle also says in the seventh verse that the first covenant was faulty, and if it was not faulty there would not have been a necessity for a second one. Is the second one faulty also? No, for it is the perfect law of liberty. It is the first one, the one from Sinai, that is faulty, and therefore being imperfect it cannot be the same as the second one, the perfect one. "I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts." Are not those laws the ten commandments? No. How could Jesus put the law, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," into the hearts of his disciples whom he had taught, "My Father is greater than I," (John 14:28,) and, "Ye believe in God, believe also in me"? (John 14:1.) It is simply unthinkable.

Those laws of Sinai were in the hearts of Israel long before Jesus came to them in the flesh and asked them to turn from it to the new covenant. Even in Moses' day it is said of Israel, in speaking of the ten commandments and statutes, "And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart," (Deut. 6:6,) and, "The word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it."—Deut. 30:14. Therefore if that old covenant is put into the hearts of Israel again, there is nothing new about it, the old does not vanish away, and instead of it being a better covenant, it is the same old covenant; and instead of being faultless, it is the same old faulty one; and instead of not being according to the old covenant, it is according to it; and instead of being a new one, it is the old one. But the apostle says that the covenant of which Jesus is the mediator, is a new one, a better one; established upon better promises; by a more excellent ministry; not faulty; not according to the former covenant, consequently was another one, a different one.

Under the new covenant Israel were to receive a remission of sins, and should know the Lord, which are not possible under the old covenant, for under the new covenant "all shall know me, from the least to the greatest, . . . and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more." Israel may receive a remission of sins under the gospel covenant only. Therefore the old covenant "decayeth and waxeth old" and "is ready to vanish away."

THE STONE KINGDOM.

This is not written merely for the sake of argument, but for the sake of whatever true principle may be embodied in the question of Bro. Kelley, "Are you quite sure that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, separately considered, is that kingdom?" It is true that the reading of "Church in the Wilderness.—No. 3," is the primal cause for this production. In the argument propounded,

If therefore the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is not the "stone kingdom," "separately considered," it is not, conjointly considered with either the government or the land it occupies, any more than is any other church.

This is correct so far as the government is concerned. Because this government being based upon the principle embodied in the second great commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," as shown in a former article, this is a government of liberty unto all peoples and religions so long as they do not infringe upon the rights of others under the laws of the government, made so by the movement of the Spirit of God upon its founders, and the purposes he had in view in its establishment. But with the land it, the government, occupies, and the bringing up out of the wilderness of the people and building up of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints based upon the revealed will of God that its adherents shall love the Lord their God with all their heart, mind, soul, and strength, as demanded in the first commandment, and the part this government will unconsciously take in the fulfillment of the purposes of God upon this land and over all the earth where this stone shall operate, until the final ultimate, is another question. I am in full accord with the brother in the characteristics which must be exemplified in the lives of those who become partakers in the glories of that ultimate. The trouble is that apparently he sees but the one side of the picture which he rightly calls spiritual. The Lord has, however, declared that all things with him are spiritual, the word temporal only being used to meet our understanding. (D. C. 28:8, 9.) This being true, we now have arrived at the point where we can properly use the brother's own questions and answer:—

What are the elements of the kingdom of God? Are they not "righteousness" everlasting (Daniel 9:24), "on earth peace, good will toward men" (Luke 2:9-14), "and joy in the Holy Ghost"? (Rom. 14:17.) Are they not God's eternal "word," the gospel?

Yes, all of this. Yes, all that is enumerated in the remainder of the paragraph. It appears then from these, that the earth, the land, and men will be necessary quantities in this kingdom as well as the principles, "laws," that shall govern, for without territory, and men upon it to be governed, law would have no force.

We now arrive at the point, Where shall this stone kingdom, or the kingdom represented by the stone, commence its operations? The correct answer would be, At some point designated by the Lord upon the earth. The coming forth of the day and age of the world in which we live has been looked forward unto by all the prophets of God from the days of Adam down with thrilling anxiety and hopefulness. And while the knowledge possessed by Adam and his descendants down to the days of Enoch have been sparingly handed down to us from Enoch's day, we have an abundance of evidence of the purposes of God looking unto these latter days and confirmed by the revelations of God given to his servants the prophets in our own day and generation. The first we will notice is the word of the Lord given unto Enoch:—

And the Lord said unto Enoch, As I live, even so will I come in the last days, in the days of wickedness and vengeance, to fulfil the oath which I made unto you concerning the children of Noah. And the day shall come that the earth shall rest. . . . And righteousness and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood, to gather out mine own elect from the four quarters of the earth, unto a place which I shall prepare; an holy city, that my people may gird up their loins, and be looking forth for the time of my coming; for there shall be my tabernacle, and it shall be called Zion; a New Jerusalem.—Gen. 7:67, 68, 70.

Where?

Woe to the land shadowing with wings, which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia. . . .

All ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth, see ye when he [the Lord] lifteth up an ensign on the mountains; and when he bloweth a trumpet, hear ye. . . . In that time shall the present be brought unto the Lord of hosts of a people scattered and peeled, and from a people, terrible from their beginning hitherto; a nation meted out and trodden under foot, whose land the rivers have spoiled, to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, the mount Zion.—Isa. 18.

Where?

Behold, Ether saw the days of Christ, and he spake concerning a New Jerusalem upon this land; . . . unto the remnant of the seed of Joseph; . . . wherefore the remnant of the house of Joseph shall be built upon this land; and it shall be a land of their inheritance; and they shall build up a holy city unto the Lord, . . . and they shall no more be confounded.—Book of Ether 6.

Where? It is presumed that the Prophet Isaiah when he uttered the above was in or near the city of Jerusalem in Asia, and that the rivers of Ethiopia were the rivers of Africa. (See Bible Dictionary.) If you will get your map of the world and place your straightedge one end at the city of Jerusalem, run your line a little north of west, (on the sides of the north,) you will pass through Algeria, Morocco, the Atlantic Ocean, through the United States, and land in Independence, Jackson County, Missouri, or near the present center of the United States from east to west. Or if you wish to draw a line to any point mentioned in the Book of Mormon, from Ablom on Massachusetts Bay to the point where Lehi landed in South America, you will pass through the land and beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, this making a certainty of the land Isaiah was speaking of. And it was not until after the Lord had taken a rest, while the pruning, scattering, and peeling of the seed of Joseph had been chiefly accomplished, whose land the rivers had spoiled and are still spoiling, that the Lord commanded through Joseph the Seer the setting apart of the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, the mount Zion.

Hearken, O ye elders of my church, saith the Lord your God, who have assembled yourselves together, according to my commandments, in this land which is the land of Missouri, which is the land which I have appointed and consecrated for the gathering of the saints: wherefore this is the land of promise, and the place for the city of Zion.—D. C. 57: 1.

Again:—

A revelation of Jesus Christ unto his servant Joseph Smith, Jr., and six elders, as they united their hearts and lifted their voices on high; yea, the word of the Lord concerning his church, established in the last days for the restoration of his people, as he has spoken by the mouth of his prophets, and for the gathering of his saints to stand upon Mount Zion, which shall be the city New Jerusalem; which city shall be built, beginning at the Temple Lot, which is appointed by the finger of the Lord, in the western boundaries of the State of Missouri, and dedicated by the hand of Joseph Smith, Jr., and others, with whom the Lord was well pleased.—D. C. 83:1.

Again:—

Zion shall not be moved out of her place, notwithstanding her children are scattered, they that remain and are pure in heart shall return and come to their inheritance; they and their children, with songs of everlasting joy; to build up the waste places of Zion.—D. C. 98:4.

The keys of the kingdom of God are committed unto man on the earth, [Where? Within the bounds, and under the government and protection of the United States of America,] and from thence shall the gospel roll forth unto the ends of the earth, as the stone which is cut out of the mountain without hands shall roll forth [unto the ends of the earth], until it has filled the whole earth; . . . make known his wonderful works among the people, call upon the Lord, that his kingdom may go forth upon the earth; that the inhabitants thereof may receive it, and be prepared for the days to come, in the which the Son of man shall come down in heaven, clothed in the brightness of his glory, to meet the kingdom of God which is set up on the earth.—D. C. 65.

Where? Under the protecting care of the United States government, known in the books as the Gentiles.

But if they [the Gentiles] will repent, and hearken unto my words, and harden not their hearts, I will establish my church among them, and they shall come in unto the covenant, and be numbered among this the remnant of Jacob, unto whom I have given this land for their inheritance, and they shall assist my people, the remnant of Jacob; and also, as many of the house of Israel as shall come, that they may build a city, which shall be called the New Jerusalem.—Nephi 10:1.

And thanks be to God, thousands of the people of this land have obeyed and thousands more will obey the teachings of the servants of God whom he has called, appointed, and authorized to teach salvation unto them.

He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.—Rev. 21:7.

If the above quotations and the deductions drawn from them be correct, and the conclusions arrived at in my former communication are based in truth, then there are good grounds for the conclusion that so far as the protection of this government is concerned, all men of whatever faith they may be are living here under the great and grand fundamental principle upon which this government was founded, that all men are born free and equal with the inalienable right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," subject only to the Constitution and laws established by wise men raised up by God for the purpose. But as we have herein seen, the land and its destiny are in the hand of God as an inheritance for those who shall become subject to the perfect law of God and endure until Jesus the Christ shall come to reign, whose right it is.

Under present conditions the conclusions of my brother are good, that

The kingdom of God symbolized by the little "stone," like all other kingdoms, has its elementary, organic, and its developing stages before its crowning, supreme stage can be reached and realized. The initial elementary and organic stages of the kingdom are the only ones in which it can exist prior to the second advent of the king—Jesus.

The visible revelation of its majesty can only be realized then. Until then its authority is administrative only.

Thanks, my brother, for the proper expression of present conditions. This government of the United States was, according to the word God has given us, brought into existence by his hand and power upon this land of promise, a land from the beginning of time blessed above all other lands, and also predestined as the land upon which his Zion, the New Jerusalem, should be built in the latter day. And in the due time of the Lord he established, according to his own will and foreknowledge, this the Church of Jesus Christ, and placed it within the protective care of the United States. And while the United States has had to throw off many of the excrescences which clung to her at and after her organization, the Church of Jesus Christ has had to pass through a severe cleansing to rid her of the barnacles which had clung to her in the shape of polygamy, Adam "the only god with whom we have to do," blood atonement, etc., and has passed into a Reorganized condition, cleansed and purified. Still, neither have passed the danger line.

While the basic principle upon which the United States government was laid was universal freedom and good will to all mankind, or in other words, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," and while it is a sorrowful thought that the great majority of her people have by their actions apparently reversed it and make it to read, "Self first and self all the time," still it is gratifying to realize that there are thousands of self-sacrificing, noble, and grand men and women in this nation as in others who in the greatness of their hearts labor early and late to relieve suffering and want wherever they can find it; and while they spurn the truths of God because of the man-made creeds and isms abroad in the land in which they have been taught and raised, yet the truth stands out boldly that they are honorable men and women of the earth and will not lose their reward. And this state of things will still continue until the Master comes and sweeps wickedness from the face of the earth and brings in an era of righteousness and peace on earth, good will to men.

It is also true that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints raised up from the ruins produced by false teachings, the emanations of the barnacles which had attached to the first organization, has again become firmly fixed upon the solid foundation principles, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, the creator of all things both in heaven and earth, including Adam; and, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, for these commands are one. She too has her trials to pass through, and will have until the cry shall be heard, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him;" but lo, that cry will find them slumbering and sleeping, and when they are awakened there will be but half of them who will have oil in their lamps and be found in a condition to enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb.

There is, however, another side of this picture still, which may give us an insight into the operations of this nation as a forerunner and protector of the latter-day kingdom of God prior to the Master's coming. One of the ancient promises made by Jesus when on earth was,

And again, this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come, or the destruction of the wicked.—Matt. 24: 32, I. T.

In a revelation given September 28, 1882, I read:—

Ye cannot now prosecute missions in many foreign lands.—D. C. 118: 1.

Why? Because the intolerance of most of the foreign governments was such that any innovation which might present itself in opposition to their long established religious faiths could find nothing in them but repulsion. But since then, conditions are changing, the foundation principles of these United States are becoming realized and felt in all the civilized and semi-civilized nations and peoples of earth, the spirit of American liberty is beginning to operate in a stirring degree, and to such extent that the solidest thrones of emperors and kings begin to tremble with the shock, and the circumstances that have transpired in the last few years have caused such a reaction of feeling that in whatever clime or among whatever peoples the ships bearing the emblems of this government may be cast, they meet a royal welcome. And to my mind's eye the time is not far distant when the truths of God may be carried to any and every people and be treated with respect when it is known that those who bear them are under the protecting care of the American Eagle, as much so if no more than those of other faiths. And if those who may be sent shall attend strictly to the business they will be sent of God to do, his protecting arm will also be around them and they need not fear. Ah, my brethren, this government of the United States was not created under the hand of God so near the closing scenes of this world's tableau as a plaything to create a little diversion without a purpose. There is no one who has any insight in the purposes of God in reference to this world of ours but ought to see in the labors of this government in the last two years that the hand of God was with it in the overthrow of the arrogant power of Spain, and will be with it in all lawful acts calculated to liberate mankind from the thraldoms of the past, and assist them in rising up into the light of God. But, this government must also remember that God will also cause his judgments to fall upon her for all acts that may be wrought by her people who are in fact the chief component part of this government, for all petty acts of tyranny exercised, and also for all things introduced among those peoples which are calculated to degrade the bodies and darken the souls of those who may come under their care.

And for this purpose have I [God] established the Constitution of this land, by the hands of wise men whom I raised up unto this very purpose, and redeemed the land by the shedding of blood.—D. C. 98: 10.

Hail to the brightness of Zion's glad morning;
Joy to the lands that in darkness have lain;
Hushed be the accents of sorrow and mourning;

Zion in triumph begins her mild reign.

Hail to the brightness of Zion's glad morning,
Long by the prophets of Israel foretold!
Hail to the millions from bondage returning!
Gentiles and Jews the blest vision behold.

Your brother,

WILLIAM HAWKINS.

Editors Herald:—The saints' reunion of the Des Moines district has come and gone; held at Runnells, August 24 to September 3. Missionaries in Charge J. R. Lambert and H. C. Smith were chosen to preside, and C. Scott and J. W. Morgan to assist; T. J. Sheldon was chosen secretary, Srs. Roxanna Gaylord and Flora L. Scott appointed organist and chorister. Ushers and police chosen, and business resumed, and was promptly prosecuted to the end. All endeavored to do their duty, and voluntarily; and when the donations were called for to meet the expense incurred, the response was prompt and ample.

The preaching was spiritual and to the point, up to the times; and the prayer services assumed a high spiritual plane at the opening and maintained it to the end. Energy, fervency, and promptness, with devotion, insured their success.

The fact that one fare for the round trip on account of the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines, did not bring so many to the reunion as was anticipated; yet to those who did attend it seemed so great a privilege and blessing, it was decided to hold another reunion in the district next year, and a committee of three was appointed to arrange for it.

Some sickness on the grounds, but not one administered to, to my knowledge but was healed or blessed. Dr. and Sr. Pence, of Runnells, being ill, were not able to attend, but were remembered in prayers of saints.

A splendid rain immediately preceded the commencement of the reunion, but none fell during its continuance, and the weather was nice. Ten persons were baptized by Bro. J.

S. Roth and others. Bro. Kephart was not present, owing to sickness in his family, we think, and we truly hope Bro. H. C. Smith found his children better, or well on his return home. We feel lonely since separating from the brethren, and look forward to great reunion beyond with longing anticipation, when saints shall go up to the King "from year to year to worship," "the Lord of hosts," "whither all the tribes of the Lord shall go up."

Am here, and we have the district tent up ready for a series of meetings; prospects good for a large hearing. Yours,

C. SCOTT.

Editors Herald:—I have always believed in God's power, and have in my weak way trusted in him, and submitted to his will, knowing he doeth all things for our good. And I often wonder why so many harden their hearts against him. Things that were always as a candle hid under a bushel were made a shining light to me during my terrible sickness last winter; indeed, not one of my family or friends thought I would live to see summer.

God so willed it for us to meet with Elder P. Cadwell and his loving wife. They came every day to see me during my long illness. They being Latter Day Saints, and me not knowing what doctrine they believed, I supposed they believed in Mormonism. Investigating proved them to be as much opposed to Utah doctrine as we are. Then they told me what I often wished to know: laying on of hands, anointing with oil, etc. I found that Elder P. Cadwell could administer to me. I requested him to do so. He turned to my husband, saying, "Are you willing for me to administer to your wife?" Thanks be to our blessed Redeemer, my husband was willing. After singing and prayer, I was administered to by the laying on of hands and anointing with oil. After a short time I could sit up a few moments, and in a month I could walk from one room to the other. I believed that did me good.

I began to think of being baptized, and my husband was very anxious I should be. He came home from Elder P. Cadwell's one day and said, "Grandpa and Grandma Cadwell want you to be baptized when you get strong and the weather gets warm;" and I asked my husband what he thought about baptizing. He said, "I think it best for you to be." I always did want to be baptized, believing it was the only right way. My parents had me sprinkled when I was quite a young infant. After I became a woman I asked one of our ministers to baptize me. He said he could not, as sprinkling was baptism. I told him I did not think it was, for the Bible says Jesus went down in the water and came up out of the water, and I believed that the Bible should be fulfilled by us as near as we possibly can; and if you do not, very well, there are other churches that will baptize me. I never had any of my children sprinkled.

My youngest child asked Elder P. Cadwell to bless her the third of this month, which he did.

Twenty-nine years have passed away since our minister and I had the above conversation. I never found a church that baptized as I believed Christ was. I said to Bro. and Sr. Cadwell one day, "I do not want a crowd around; if I live to be baptized, I want no one but you two and my own family." They said it could be so. I never did believe there was anyone present but Christ and John; at least I never have found where it records there were. And I said to them, "I will have Elder P. Cadwell to do so." So the 25th of June he came over for us and we went to his house. I rested awhile, then we went a few miles to the river, found it high; but haying faith, and trusting in God, I was baptized, thinking no one near but God, my family, and Elder and Sr. P. Cadwell; but my husband saw one of our neighbors looking from the opposite side. After which we returned to their dwelling, and changing our garments, he confirmed me. I have never heard a latter-day sermon preached, as there is no branch here; but hope if Elder P. Cadwell's son, Wm. C. Cadwell, settles here, and God so blesses us by sending some of your mission ministers here, I hope to live to hear a sermon from a saint of God. I am not entirely well, but so I can do very little fancy work. I am very thankful it is as well with me as it is. I leave my children and husband with God, believing in the promises of the Savior. Pray for my two daughters and husband, dear saints, and I desire the prayers of all saints in behalf of Elder and Sr. P. Caldwell; they are almost blind, and also myself. Trusting God will heal us, I remain,

A sister in Christ,

MRS. EMMA L. BECKLEY.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Sept. 8.

Editors Herald:—At present writing I am out of my own field of labor, having been called here to administer to Bro. A. M. Fyrando. Will the saints please remember him at the throne of grace? He is a man of God, and one whose soul is in the work of the Master.

The work in Southwestern Iowa is moving along, and the saints seem to be striving to attain to higher grounds, and to walk more closely to God. There are some things to overcome yet, but "where there is a will there is a way" and, though the way may be hedged in by obstacles that human strength cannot remove, the Lord is our help, and in him is our strength. The harvest is, indeed, very great; the laborers, compared with the amount of work to be done, are so few that the task seems enormous. Let us pray that God may come to the rescue; and let us strive to live so that he can work in us, as vessels of honor fitted and meet for the Master's use, in the accomplishment of this great latter-day work. There is work for all, but I have never yet been able to find any place in the kingdom of God for the idler. "Thrust in your sickle and reap" is good for the preacher, and it is also good for the lay member. "Better wear out than rust out," is an old saying; but it is certainly true, as applied to the children of the kingdom.

The rest for the people of God is over on the other side; but now is the time for work.

Work done for the Master should be done in wisdom. The man who "shoots off his mouth" on every occasion, the man who boasts that he has never failed to bear his testimony, may have lots of zeal, but he certainly lacks wisdom. To get up and talk in prayer and testimony meeting to "keep the time from going to waste," is about as senseless as trying to eat a whole watermelon to prevent its going to waste, and the result is usually worse.

Brethren, don't talk to kill time, nor to prevent its "going to waste." It is a great cross for some saints to get up and talk in prayer meeting; but it seems to be a greater cross for others to keep from talking. I have known elders who seemed to think that they must pray and bear testimony every time the saints meet for that purpose, young people's prayer meeting and old people's prayer meeting; also in the Religio, in the Sunday school—everywhere you go you have to listen to them. We sympathize with the man who does not know enough to talk, but we have very little sympathy, or patience either, for the man who does not know enough to keep from talking.

Fault-finding, did you say? Well, perhaps I am; but I didn't start out with that intention. Am sorry there is any necessity for fault-finding along this line, but there is, just the same. Lest this should find its way into the waste basket, because of its fault-finding spirit, I will now stop.

Am still in the faith, and still laboring for the cause of Zion. In gospel bonds, ISAAC M. SMITH.

DUNSEITH, N. D., Sept. 1.

Editors Herald:—On July 5 I was conveyed from Bonesteel to Arbour, South Dakota, sixty miles, by Bro. W. C. Rhisohl, which point I left on the 6th, at nine a. m., for Springfield, the distance being less than one hundred miles. I did not reach it until six p. m., waiting for connection. Railroad facilities in North and South Dakota are limited, compared to those in Nebraska, Iowa, etc., and fare four cents per mile.

At present, points of interest are few and far between. But between Arbour and Springfield I noticed several small towns in such proximity that missionary work could be done with little railroad travel. In view of the much interest talked of and expressed desires for the spread of the gospel, I wonder if two young elders are available with sufficient perseverance, gospel grit, resignation, evincive of a willingness to sacrifice the gratification attributable in attending four quarterly conferences a year, several big reunions, etc., and spend one year in South Dakota, and thus practically demonstrate their love for God and humanity? Should two such elders be found, spending a year in spreading the gospel in new localities with little or no success other than warning the natives, a new field might be sought. Then, too, if desirable, two such young men, as little missionary work can be done in the months of August, September, and October, save on Sundays, might turn their attention to work in the above months, and be ready for gospel work in the Lord's harvest field in the winter. Work by willing hands at two dollars per day and board has been easily obtained this season. Farming is done on a big scale. I have seen five binders in one field; one shocker to each binder.

I remained at Springfield and vicinity until July 18, thence to Howard, being driven from thence to points in McCook and Lake counties by Bro. C. Howerly, for ministerial work. And after some perplexities incident to the life of a traveling elder, by the politeness of Bro. Anderson, was conveyed to his residence from Hillsboro, eleven miles, and by similar arrangement reached the place of worship of the Star Hope branch in time for sacramental service, August 6. I find there are sixty-one names recorded on the church records; place of worship, Trail County, a few miles from Clifford, North Dakota. Bro. William Sparling has labored in points of South and North Dakota for several years, and surely his perseverance, upright and godly procedure have greatly tended to make the name of a Latter Day Saint honorable. He has been a power for good. This is claiming much; but substantial reasons therefor are visible. Then, too, Bro. S. Swenson's labors have been effective for good in this direction. It's a real pleasure to travel after such godly brethren.

Bro. William Sparling, per force of circumstances, is at home for a time in spring and fall; but is diligent the residue of the time in the Lord's great harvest field. Would there were fifty such men free to devote their entire time to ministerial work for the Dakotas after the order of Christ's revealed pattern. These brethren have done effective work in Clifford, North Dakota, to allay prejudice, making friends for the cause; but as in other small railroad towns, it's difficult to establish the work.

I met Bro. W. H. Walling at Howard. The necessity being apparent, conferred the eldership upon him. Bro. Walling has been diligent, meeting with some success. As per his own request, with the consent of the missionary in charge, turned his attention to work during harvest time.

Young brethren should not feel too sanguine because of large congregations at the inception of their ministerial work; nor discouraged if apparent interest should prove but momentary. Nor should the fact be overlooked that the most effective method to obtain and retain respect, in public and private, is a practical demonstration of self-respect, with a non-effort to seek applause, being proof against flattery from any and every source, which greatly aids in evidencing self-respect.

Experience obtainable in attending quarterly conferences, reunions, etc., is earnestly sought, and (as I think) unfortunately greatly encouraged. But the experience obtainable by a General Conference appointee in a faithful observance of labor imperative by virtue of the acceptance of such an appointment is better, far better. In a whole year of faithful labor in an appointed field, though nothing else may seemingly have been accomplished than the gospel being preached for a witness, is infinitely better than a three years' labor consisting in skipping from point to point as cattle when turned into a new pasture, hastening from point to point, as if in quest of the choicest feed.

After attending nine meetings in Clifford, and the saints' house of worship, with Bro. S. Swenson, were driven to Maysville, Thursday, August 17, by Bro. Anderson, thence over the Great Northern to Leeds, holding a few meetings here, partaking of the hospitality of Bro. and Sr. F. G. Spaulding. Were taken on Wednesday thirteen miles by Bro. Tigner. Held a meeting in his private room. But an unlooked for exigency developed as a preventive to further service. We left Knox on Monday, August 28, at one p. m., for Bottineau, and though but fifty-three miles distant, through delays it was eight p. m. ere we struck Bottineau, being a mixed train. The anticipations of Bro. S. in securing accommodation for the night were blighted. He kindly suggested that I stay at a hotel, he pushing on to Bro. G. Lowery's, five miles, returning on the morrow with a team, etc. But in view of this method being suggested as being economical, and thinking I should not be less economical than my collaborer, assuring him of my appreciation of his kindness, I purposed to accompany him. We started on, and on we sped, frequently sighing within myself, thinking these five miles were the longest I ever walked over. Eleven o'clock, still we marched on; but fifteen minutes later, and my collaborer made a halt, a silence ensued, soon broken, however, by a doleful sound reverberating on the midnight chilly air, "I am lost." Being near a patch of grass, I stretched myself lengthwise, instantler. And though momentary, my rest was glorious. But my anticipations for its continuance were blighted, as were the anticipations of my collaborer in finding rest at Bottineau by a sharp order from my file leader for a forward march. I obeyed with as much alacrity as possible, still thinking of the length of these five miles, and soon we struck a field of grain with many shocks, whereupon I suggested the gathering of some sheaves for the construction of a bed, until the break of day. But a quick response came from my leader to the effect that he knew the location; that his little confusion was attributable to a change of the road since he last traveled it. The sequel proving this correct, we soon struck a standing field of grain. Wading through it, we soon struck a dense grove, emerging from which we brought up in front of a house. Very soon my guide came in contact with a window, which he struck as hard as he dare, which aroused the sleeping inmates, with a sharp inquiry, "Who's there?" followed from the throat of my coworker with no uncertain sound, "Swenson and Bro. Caffall; will you let us in?" Quickly the door flew open, with a cheering evidence of welcome, and soon the table was spread with fresh bread and milk (we wished for nothing better). With myself, consumption soon began and was successfully prosecuted; but alas for my guide, who, too, had began the work of consumption, from which essential work he was necessitated to desist to offer an explanation to a demand made thus: "Why in the world, Bro. Swenson, did you fail to apprise us of your coming, that we could have met you at Bottineau? Why, the idea of walking eight miles after eight o'clock, through these mountains, is monstrous! Why did you neglect to write," etc. But my coworker, though a cessation of the consumption was distressing, with as good grace as possible laid down his spoon, giving a satisfactory explanation. One woe was passed, but another confronted my coworker. My sympathy was aroused, but I managed to prosecute the work of consumption. Bro. S. claimed the distance was five miles. How was this? It is eight miles from our house to Bottineau. But my leader proved equal to the task, and gave a satisfactory explanation. The good sister soon replenished the milk pitcher, and by twelve o'clock we were located in a comfortable bed, to enjoy the needed repose.

In bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

MAYSVILLE, Ark., Sept. 11.

Editors Herald:—Two more nights end my thirtieth debate with one G. W. Leonard. Leaving the reunion near Independence, Missouri, I arrived here the 2d of September and began the debate on the 4th; S. W. Simmons moderating for me.

G. W. Leonard is dirty and mean, but not able, like S. F. Cayce, of Martin, Tennessee, or W. J. Haynes, of Alabama, and J. W. Chism, of Texas. The debate will do much good, I think. Bro. S. W. Simmons, F. C. Keck, Smart, Baker, Haden, and W. S. Macrae are all with me; indeed, it is pleasant to have so many of my collaborers with me.

It seems hard for me to get rid of debates. I would much rather preach, but some one must do this part of the work. Who will take it off my hands? I told Bro. Frank Sheehy up at the reunion near Independence, Missouri, if he would come down I would turn this part of my work over to him; but he laughed at me. However, the Lord has blessed my feeble efforts with much success in this line of work, which quite likely will last until Christ comes, when all our wrangles will be over and all debates will end. I hope to meet all my opponents when that glorious day comes; but I have my doubts if I do.

I will go from here to the camp meeting in the Territory. I am having a fine time attending reunions this summer. But the poor world that never heard the gospel, what will become of you? It is nice to have an easy place, you know. Will we get any reward for it? My address is Cove, Arkansas.

In bonds,

J. D. ERWIN.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Aug. 29.

Editors Herald:—Herewith I beg to hand you minutes of the Birmingham district conference. They are not so full as I could wish. I had hoped to get statistical reports balanced up before writing, but as we have adopted the new form, and as the record has not been kept up to date as one could wish, I think it better to omit giving figures until we have got straightened up a little; and I hope that by another conference we shall be quite straight in this matter.

I wish to say, however, that we had a good conference in every respect; and while we were able to recognize in every act a desire to progress, not in one or two but in all, and the guiding influence of God's Spirit, and a determination to do all we could to improve the work, both in quality and quantity, to this end we met and to this end we parted as the assembly broke up at the close.

We were, however, short of two who were with us last year; Apostle H. C. Smith and High Priest F. G. Pitt; the former having returned home and the latter being too busy in another part of the mission; hence we had to dispense with song service by way of solos by F. G. Pitt, such as given by the latter last year.

I am pleased to say that while we are not making much noise and stir as though we were of the Salvation Army, I believe we are progressing slowly and surely. We find, as missionaries have found, how hard it is to persuade people of the truth and genuineness of the work in which we are engaged. Our lines are too straight and doctrines too deep. They get too near home, and I think that after some people have heard a little of it and see what they have got to give up for it, they fall out; so it seems to me. However, our duty is straight before us; we must not resort to any side issues; and if the people will not accept the truth, we cannot help that. We find, however, our hands tied to a considerable extent for want of means to enable us to prosecute the work as we would like, but trust the time will come when we shall be able to go forth and preach the word with signs following.

Your brother in the gospel,

CHARLES WALTON, Secretary.

STOTT CITY, Mo., Aug. 5.

Editors Herald:—Having recently had some experience with spiritualism and spiritualists, I thought a few thoughts on that subject would be of importance to Herald readers. I have long since believed that spiritualism was a growing delusion, but when I attended the spiritualist camp meeting at Springfield, Missouri, in July, my views just expressed were confirmed.

When Elder Sparling invited me to go with him to the park to listen to a lecture on spiritualism, objections began to arise in my mind; but after hearing a few words from Bro. S. and thinking the matter over, I consented to accompany him to the lecture.

The lecturer quoted freely from the Scriptures to prove present revelation to be a necessity and made the claim that spiritualists do receive direct communication from the spirit world in this age. He also made the claim that the spiritual gifts mentioned by St. Paul in the Corinthian letter were to be enjoyed to-day. The lecturer did not so much as intimate that any of the manifestations mentioned in the Bible were from an evil source.

When the lecturer was through speaking, a woman from Chicago entertained the crowd by giving what they called "spirit tests." This was done by some one sitting in a chair near by the medium, who was standing; one holding to one end of a handkerchief, the other to the other end. The medium was blindfolded. She then claimed to receive communications from the deceased friend or friends of the one in the chair, which she communicated to the audience, which caused those like myself who were not accustomed to such to be somewhat astonished. This "test" business closed the afternoon exercises.

At night we had the privilege of asking questions. Many were presented to the medium. The writer asked the medium if the Bible was inspired, to which question she gave a negative answer. I am not sorry I went to hear them, as it did not make me a spiritualist, but it has enabled me to answer their arguments better than if I had not personally investigated the matter. However, I don't feel anxious to go again, being satisfied that they are not in harmony with the truth, hence I believe them to be in darkness and error. I am convinced that children of the light should associate with such only enough to be enabled to resist and expose their errors. I don't believe in making any compromise with spiritualists. While they have some truth, yet the system as such is built on a sandy foundation, and must fall.

In a book entitled, "A few truths roughly told, or the enemies of spiritual liberty," written by Owen Lovejoy, of San Francisco, we find the following on page 15: "She [spiritualism] declares against ignorance or the binding of one child in the iron arms of dogmatic obedience. She upholds Copernicus, Galileo, Newton, Harvey, Thomas Paine, and Gaul, and declares for the principles of Washington and his compatriots as against the Jewish Bible, ecclesiasticism, and political knavery." Wonderful assertion this! In making this statement spiritualists endeavor to make it appear that those who obey their teachers are ignorant and in bondage. It is true that if people yield obedience to blind guides they greatly err, but to make the statement, or rather convey the idea by implication that obedience to teachers is wrong, would supplant the truth that we should accept Christ and the apostles as our teachers. The writer of this book must have had reference to those teachers as mentioned in the Bible because he further declares against the "Jewish Bible," which shows that Christ and his ministry should be accepted as our teachers. However, those who follow these teachers do not follow "in the iron arms of dogmatic obedience" or simply some opinion of men, as the word "dogmatic" implies; but such follow in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made them free.

Spiritualism endeavors to place the Bible in a false light (so to speak) by stating that "she upholds Copernicus, Galileo," and other learned men, including "Washington and his compatriots as against the Jewish Bible." Who besides spiritualists has heard of Washington being opposed to the Bible? Any truth that Copernicus, Galileo, or any other wise man taught, either in ancient or in modern times, harmonizes with the Bible. I do not say, however, that science always harmonizes with men's understanding of the Bible, but I do say that the Bible when properly understood harmonizes with true science.

On page 18 of this book we find the following: "You would lock us in dungeons if you dared; would chop off the head of him who writes this with as little sympathy as a butcher feels when cutting the head off a sheep." I don't know of any of the saints who are anxious to kill spiritualists. "Charity suffereth long and is kind."

On page 75 he says: "Is there an American who loves his country and her institutions who can subscribe to the teachings of such a book and do obedience to clergy or priestcraft who draw from its pages their inspiration and love? Read for yourself and learn, ere it is too late, that from that source comes the stream of filth that is to wash away every boon that liberty confers." This is a strong and clear statement, showing that the teachings of spiritualism are arrayed against the teachings of the Bible. The Holy Scriptures being of divine origin, it is not hard to see from what source springs that that opposes them. Spiritualism, however, as we understand it, is nothing new, but was practiced in "old Bible" times. (See Deut. 18:9, 12.) "When thou art come unto the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations. There shall not be found among you anyone that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer. For all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord, and because of these abominations the Lord thy God doth drive them out before thee." Now who is it that can't see that these witches, wizards, necromancers, and so on were practicing just what modern spiritualists are to-day? The Lord plainly says that it was an abomination unto him then, hence it must be an abomination unto him now. That which is an abomination unto the Lord should not be practiced; hence I say to people who believe the Bible, Have nothing to do with spiritualism, except to oppose it, for certainly it is a strong delusion.

NORTH PLYMOUTH, Mass., Sept. 10.

Editors Herald:—Reading the Herald this morning, and feeling thankful to God for such a beautiful paper, thought I would write a few lines to let you know how I appreciate it. It filled my eyes with tears of joy when I read the letter written to Bro. Robert M. Elvin by an outsider, and my heart was made glad, as I thought how the Lord does bring the honest in heart to the light of the gospel. I truly love to see people hungering and thirsting after righteousness, for I know they will be filled. Isn't it consoling, dear saints, to know the honest in heart will be gathered in God's own time. My heart goes out to God in prayer for the seekers of truth. I like to see the world dissatisfied with their faiths, when they do not agree with the word of God.

I wish I could write something to comfort Sr. Jennie Page. I see by her letters she is quite lonely and discontented at times, as she asks for prayers for patience to endure. Of course, dear Jennie, we know it is hard; but you don't know what a work you might do in your affliction out there, and besides he has said these light afflictions are but for a moment, and work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Suppose you should be the means of bringing one or two souls in his kingdom, to partake of the most precious fruit, which is the Holy Spirit. Wouldn't you feel repaid for your suffering? For you know it says, how great is the joy in heaven when one sinner repenteth; and besides, how great is the joy for the individual who is an instrument in his hands of saving one soul in his eternal kingdom. So let us try to stand in our lot and place, in the place the Lord would have us, because we don't know what good we can do by submitting ourselves to the will of God. Of course we all come far short of doing this. We are apt to think our way is good enough sometimes. In how many ways, no one knows but myself, the Lord has watched over me. I thank him this morning for the glorious work. My desire is to press my way on through dark times as well as bright, for it will be hard to be shut out from his presence and the presence of God's dear saints—those whom we have learned to love through obedience to the gospel. I will copy a few lines from a hymn in the Saints' Hymnal, as it might bring some comfort to Sr. Jennie:—

"O Lord! my best desires fulfill,
And help me to resign
Myself and all things to thy will,
And make thy pleasure mine."

Hoping this letter will interest some, I will close with love and best wishes for the children of God. I am one of your number.

HATTIE GENEVA NICKERSON.

BANDERA, Texas, Sept. 7.

Editors Herald:—On the 21st of last month, according to previous arrangements, I found myself confronted in a nine session discussion, on church identity, with Elder L. D. Ferguson of the so-called "Church of Christ"—commonly called Campbellites. Notwithstanding my weakened condition of body, caused by a three-weeks' siege of malarial fever, contracted as I came down through Indian Territory, I was able by the help of the Master, to so represent the cause of truth to the satisfaction of myself and those interested in it. The elder still having a sweet tooth unsatisfied, he was anxious to examine our claims to the divine origin of the Book of Mormon. We agreed to meet on Friday and Saturday of the following week, to discuss this book that everybody hates, except they that know something about it; but unfortunately I was taken down again with fever, and this time a few hard shaking chills thrown in for good count, hence a postponement till some more convenient time. This is not a sickly country, but to the contrary, a pleasant climate, with mountain streams and springs, affording plenty of fresh water for man and beast.

The church work in this district is not what it ought to be by any means, yet there are some noble, God-fearing saints living in southwest Texas. The district is large, offering splendid opportunities for gospel laborers, but where are they? Let me right here appeal to the many bright and intelligent minded young men of the church. I see you at General Conferences, your faces beaming with zeal and love for the spread of the gospel. You especially who hold the priesthood, could you not make the sacrifice of your time, without cost to the church, and help us build up the work in southwest Texas as well as elsewhere? and I guarantee you will not go hungry, but will meet with welcome? May the Spirit of truth so incline the hearts of all those who are qualified to thrust in their sickles and reap for the Master. Come down and help us, is the prayer of,

Yours in hope of triumph,

T. J. SHEPPARD.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 10.

Editors Herald:—I have been impressed very much of late to write. I do not know why, yet we do not always know how the Spirit works with us; nor do we know the results which may follow.

Two weeks to-day we had with us Bro. Davison, of Nova Scotia. His visit was very enjoyable to all, and he spoke the words of truth as found in the gospel. We pray that he with the rest of God's chosen men may receive such aid and assistance from Him who is so willing to give to his children that will enable him and them to stand firm and faithful to the end.

Last Sunday, August 27, we had the pleasure of entertaining Bro. Alexander H. and Joseph Smith. The day was beautiful; everything seemed to be in harmony with the day of rejoicing which all the saints looked forward to. The first service was held at 10:30 a. m., in charge of Bro. Alexander H. Smith, and John Smith, of New Bedford. The church was very prettily decorated with ferns and flowers by two of our young sisters, Susie E. Gilbert and Evenora Whiting. The music selected for the occasion was very appropriate, and was rendered in a very pleasing manner. It was under the direction of Srs. Ashton and Linney. Bro. Joseph addressed the audience, which was large and very much interested. He spoke to them in a bold and fearless manner. He also spoke in the evening to a much larger audience. His theme was, The belief of the Latter Day Saints, of which he was a representative. As he stood before us, fearless and brave, representing the cause of Christ, our hearts were touched, filled with love towards God that he had been so kind and so mindful of us in this day and age as to restore the gospel in its fullness and power, and that he had called such noble men to take charge and lead his people in the true way. Could it be possible that we were really listening to a true prophet, one who was chosen of God, ordained and set apart to do his work here on this earth—one who could have communication with our heavenly Father and receive from him those things which he desires his people to know, to reveal his will unto us as a people? Do we realize this as we should? Do we as a people feel thankful for the grand opportunities held out to us in the gospel? Do we think of the privilege we have of meeting together from Sunday to Sunday with the saints of God, in a place set apart for the worship of our divine Creator, where amid the trials and disappointments of this life we may find peace and comfort, and where, if we are in a condition to receive them, have those blessings which come from his bountiful hand, that which feeds and satisfies the hungry soul, while so many of our brothers and sisters who through circumstances in life are deprived of this grand opportunity, and the only way by which they can hear the word of God as preached by his servants, is by reading the Herald, and many of these no doubt do not have that even, owing to their condition in life?

Ah, dear saints, should we not be up and doing that which the Master has intrusted to our care? Is there any time for us to sit with folded hands when we are told the harvest is great but the laborers few? Is there not room then for you and I to do our little part? Let us arise, shake off the coals from our garments, awake from the sleepy condition which we have drifted into. Let us put our shoulder to the wheel and stand at our post of duty.

Remember that we are in a great and mighty army. Each of us is a soldier for Christ. If so, we must each stand in our lot and place, so that when our comrades who are in line ahead of us are called to pass away, to be ready and willing to go forward when our turn comes to stand at the front. We must prepare ourselves daily. We cannot do this of ourselves; we must become humble and ask for divine aid and assistance.

Have you ever stopped to think of our noble men who go out to preach the gospel, how they leave their homes, and many of them have families who are near and dear to them, and all this is sacrificed that the gospel may be preached to all who are willing to hear and accept of it? It was by this means that you and I were ever lead to obey this glorious gospel. How faithful we should strive to be, and how we should when opportunity presents itself always strive to do whatever our hands find to do, even though it be but a little mite. By so uniting our little mites together we may, by the aid of the Spirit, accomplish much good.

Have we ever thought of the Savior during his mission to this earth? Can you find anywhere in his life where he was neglectful in his duty to his heavenly Father? Even in the midst of his greatest temptations, did he ever give up or shirk his part of the work? I think not. Can there be found anywhere a more perfect life than that of the Master, so kind, loving, humble, and obedient, in all things? Then do we not desire to become like unto him, to follow in his footsteps, to be led and guided by the same Spirit, that we may at last be permitted to live and reign with him forever?

How often do we find some of our people staying away from church because of some little fault which they have discovered in one of their brethren or sisters. Ah! have they become so perfect that there is no faults within themselves? Or have they reached to such a height that they do not have temptations or weaknesses? If so, do you think they would be finding fault with their neighbor, who perhaps is not so strong as they, and who is easily overcome by temptations? I say, no. If they have reached to such a position, they would not have time for this; they would be doing those things of a higher and a nobler character. When we are found in this condition, is it the Spirit of the Master that is dwelling within us, or have we allowed the evil one to creep slowly into our hearts, which causes us to look for the evils of those who are around us? Let us not become discouraged at the little faults which we may see in others.

Let us examine ourselves and see if there is not room for some little change there. If we do this we will not have time to watch our neighbor. Let us take courage, ask God to help us in our efforts from time to time; for he has said if we ask in faith believing we shall receive of his blessings, and I know he will not send us away empty. I have proven this, and know that he hears and answers the prayers of his children.

May he so bless you all and strengthen you for your different trials in this life, that we shall be able at last to enter into his kingdom; and when he shall open the book of life, that our names may be found therein, and we may receive the reward for our faithfulness in this life.

Your sister,

B. C. WHITING.

CANTON, Ill., Sept. 7.

Editors Herald:—The Kewanee district conference convened at Peoria, Illinois, September 2 and 3. A peaceful and joyful time was had throughout the entire session. The neat and commodious little hall in which conference was held seemed to be filled with that feeling of joy and love; and where this feeling exists, peace must be the result.

Our hearts were made to rejoice, when we heard the glorious gospel of Jesus proclaimed so beautifully by the meek and humble servants present. After this joyful time has been and come to a close, there comes the parting time. How hard it is to part from sweet and loving faces, ones probably that the eye will never again rest upon in this life. But a consoling thought comes to us, that if we will live obedient to the laws and commandments of God we have the promise of meeting on the other shore where partings will be no more and the shedding of tears will not be known.

The thought often arises in my mind in regard to these partings: it is hard for us as brethren and sisters to part from one another, although we know it must be; but just think of the missionaries that leave wife and loving little ones and all the pleasures of home life, in order that they may go and proclaim this beautiful gospel. Oh what a sacrifice it must be for both missionary and his loving companion! But it seems to me more so for the loving companion, or sister, as I may say, as she has all the cares of home. She toils for the little hands and feet, as lovingly she soothes the little broken hearts and patiently pacifies the little minds. While in the calm and lonesome twilight hours when little ones are far away in slumberland, dear sister watches over them, as well she knows the Great and allwise Being is watching over all.

I do kindly say to our missionaries and their loving companions, Dear ones, be not discouraged, for God will care for you in dark temptation's hour if you are faithful, and will richly reward you in the end, so I close with these words:—

May many, many more years be added to your sum,
When late at last in tenderest love the beckoning angels come.

As ever in the faith,

IDA L. JONES.

DANBURY, Conn., Sept. 12.

Editors Herald:—August 31 we left Providence by advice of missionary in charge to attend Broad River, Connecticut, conference and labor in the New York district as we might find opportunity for a season. Saturday, 1:30 p. m., a goodly number of saints from Brooklyn, New York, boarded the steamer near the great bridge and we all enjoyed the forty-mile ride up Long Island Sound with its, to the stranger, interesting scenes and sights of numerous craft of all kinds.

The sights and sounds of the great city passed at Hell Gate, the view changing to a fine, natural scenic display in the green shores and pleasant villas as the Sound widens out in places to a distance of from three to ten miles.

Landing at South Norwalk about five p. m., all boarded trolley car for Broad River, conference convening 7:30; Bro. George Potts, district president, and the writer chosen as officers presiding at conference.

The attendance of strangers was not large, but the church representation was excellent, and the social services especially of a marked spiritual and satisfactory character. The writer was unable to dodge the insistence and burden of all the preaching services, which, however, seemed to be satisfactory from a one-sided view at least.

Bro. Stone, of New Canaan, was chosen as their district president for ensuing six months by a margin of one vote; everything pertaining to the business part of the conference passing off without friction or jar, and was of a pleasant and expeditious character.

The district Sunday school association convened Monday following, and Bro. Stone refusing to serve longer, Sr. Viola Squires, of Brooklyn, was chosen as their president. We are glad to see the young people everywhere taking hold of our religious work, in church, Sunday school, and Religio departments.

Tuesday we returned with saints who had not already gone before to Brooklyn, preaching at that place Wednesday and Friday evenings. Having made previous arrangement with Bro. Hobson to come to this place last Saturday, on Saturday at twelve, noon, we left Grand Central Depot, New York, arriving here about 2:30 p. m., where now we are comfortably quartered and nicely entertained at the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Underhill, who although not of the faith in full or so far as obedience to the law of the gospel is concerned, seem to be headed that way, their former religious experience with ministers and churches having disgusted them, and leaves them face to face with the alternative of the truth or nothing in the way of religion so far as future prospect may indicate. Present prospect for a crowd, however, seems very slim, and between the phariseism that dominates the religious world and intimidates the timid and the coward and time server of no faith, and the numerous "lovers of pleasures" and general craze after every species of tomfoolery, we are not, at present date, expecting to turn the town over. Indeed, if the other side is as bad as the one already presented, we don't care to.

Churches closed, of course, and our present place of meeting is uninviting and in a measure undesirable. We have sought newspaper aid and advertisement and have been courteously treated as pharisaical politeness and business interests would allow.

There are two or three persons interested already in our work, but this has already been started through the efforts of our faithful resident brother, Bro. William Hobson, who has a good reputation as an honest man, and of his zeal, no one is disposed to question.

We may go from here to New Haven. Some talk was had at conference looking that way, but we are waiting for word that arrangement has been made or way opened for gospel work.

There are interested people in Brooklyn; more strangers and better liberty according to our feeling and view than any other place we have as yet seen.

In the faith,

M. H. BOND.

LENORA, Kan., Sept. 10.

Editors Herald:—I have always considered that I was under more obligation to state my trials and troubles to the saints than to those outside the church, and I think it is the duty of every saint to help their brethren, especially over the rough and stony roads of our journey in this life, and guide them to a more navigable highway. Two years ago my little ones and I had the misfortune of losing a tender mother and loving companion and wife, and has thrown the children in the care of the outside world principally.

I have a good home for them, but cannot care for and raise them properly without some one that will take the place that their mother did. If God would bless me in this respect, I would feel that my home had been restored and I could train them as I used to. Otherwise it will be necessary for me to seek some parties that want to adopt them in their homes, and will train them in a way they should be trained. I have three children, the oldest one a girl seven years old, the second one a boy four years old, the third a boy two years old.

I will gladly and promptly answer any correspondence from the saints.

I desire God's blessing to be with me and guide me in the proper course to take in behalf of my children, and that my life may be an example for them; and I pray that I may be permitted to instruct them.

Anyone writing, please address Lenora, Kansas.

"Wo to the soul which, having let Christ go,
Some better thing than he is hopes to find!
For in uncertain wanderings to and fro
(As one whose eyes are blinded walks behind
A groping leader that himself is blind,
Its hunger, still unsatisfied, shall grow,
Its cry shall ring unanswered on the wind,
And only endless sorrow shall it know.
Be not, O soul of mine! this lost, sad thing;
But as a bird flees to the mountains, flee
Rejoicing to the cross on Calvary,
And find thy refuge with thy Lord and King.
Only the Crucified can make thee whole.
Fix there, fix there thy resting place,
My soul!"

PERE CHENEY, Mich.

Dear Sister Emma Burton:—In August Autumn Leaves you ask, "Will the Spirit bear witness to others in like manner?" I can testify that the Spirit bore witness unmistakably to me in power and tears. Especially in this number, and in the number where you related the dialogue you had with the Spirit, and had a vision of Jesus, before going to Australia. I had after reading that, the strongest manifestation of the Spirit I ever had since joining the church, about six years ago. It happened this way, and I thought I should write it at that time, thinking it might cheer you to know the good your history was doing, but I put it off. But I can no longer wait, as you ask about it. A widow lady, a neighbor, who was staying with us, investigating the latter-day work and believing, and our district school teacher being with us, also believing from reading our literature, one Sunday, as conversation lagged, I asked if I should read to them out of our new Autumn Leaves; they gladly assenting, I said, "Shall I read Beatrice Witherspoon first?" They had read the most of the former chapters, as that was the preferred piece, I commenced to read. My husband and some of the children listening as well. As I read, the Spirit bore witness more and more strongly, until as I was reading the narration of the dialogue you had with the Spirit, the manifestation was so strong that all in the room felt it, and were in tears. The power was on me from head to foot. I turned to the teacher and said, "Do you not feel a power?" and she said, "Yes, I do!" Tears were streaming down the cheeks of my husband and Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson was baptized about two weeks ago, at Oxford, Michigan, by Elder E. H. Durand of Detroit. She was converted by Elder J. J. Cornish's preaching up here last autumn. The Autumn Leaves is considered the best of reading in this community. One family takes it now. Elder Cornish has been here preaching recently, and we think there is a branch in embryo here. Grand sermons, preached by the power of God, and deep interest amongst the people. Those interested are called Mormons already, but it does not feaze them. They are a noble little band of Bible students at present, and we look forward with joy to the time when we can call them brothers and sisters.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Bro. R. C. Russell, of Hillman, Michigan, requests the prayers of the saints in behalf of his brother, "who has lately been afflicted with sunstroke, apparently beyond all human aid."

OUR HARVEST HOME.

What have you done, oh, gleaners all,
What have you done with the year?
What seed have you sown in the furrows deep,
What sheaves are you bearing here?
"What have we done? 'Tis a mighty tale
You would have us tell to-day,
For the year was long and the fields were wide,
And we'd never an hour to play.
What have we done with the year? Oh, year!
What a story you could tell
Of the souls that have turned to pathways safe,
From the yawning mouth of hell.
Some days when the sun shone full and strong,
We toiled in the furrow's way;
Some days when the storms rode in the sky,
We turned us aside to pray,—
For work and prayer go hand in hand,
As the fields need sun and shade,
And the work is better left all untouched
If the heart has never prayed."
Had ye victories ever, gleaners all,
From the sowing to harvest day?
And why are you wearied who gather here?
Was there never an hour to play?
"Ah, ye cannot know or ye would not ask;
Strict watch doth our enemy keep;
Shall we then turn from the furrow-side
For an hour of idle sleep?
Had we victories ever? Nay, not so,
For that enemy stands beside,
But his doom is written in sentence sure,
And we'll win whate'er betide.
We work and pray, we watch and wait,
We hope and we help alway;
Our Master hath care for his harvest fair,
And there cometh that great white day,
When the serpent who follows our weary feet
To the hurt of the precious grain,
Shall know the end of his power to slay,
And lie himself with the slain.
"Oh, Chieftain, your sheaves are many and full,
Your faith hath been large and deep;
While you are beside in the harvest field,
Where our vigilant watch we keep.
Our courage grows with the growing year,
We crown you with love to-day.

The One who hath led us all, will lead
Till we find that perfect way,
Where the children's feet may walk unharmed;

And our youths and maidens fair
Shall know no hurt in the path of life,
No clutch of the dread despair
That follows the steps of a sinful joy.
Oh, the future looks heavenly bright!
The victory cometh—its herald sign
Is the gleam of a ribbon white!"

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER'S TEN COMMANDMENTS.

1. Thou shalt reverence the Bible above all other books, and shalt not make for thyself an image of other Bible students, nor bow down thyself to serve them.
2. Thou shalt take a teachers' journal and read it, that thou mayest be informed.
3. Remember the teachers' meeting, and come prepared to discuss the lesson.
4. Honor thy superintendent, and aid him in carrying out the program of the school.
5. Thou shalt be present at all sessions, and in place on time.
6. Thou shalt close class work on time, and be ready to comply with requests of the secretary.
7. Remember the power of example, and do not indulge in questionable amusements.
8. Thou shalt not neglect thy daily study, nor to continue steadfastly in prayer.
9. Thou shalt not teach that which thou dost not live. Beware of hypocrisy.
10. Thou shalt strive to be a Solomon in wisdom, a Moses in meekness, a Paul in perseverance, a John in faithfulness.—Selected.

HOW CAN WE HOLD OUR PUPILS?

How can we hold our pupils is a question that sometimes puzzles the alert as well as the indifferent teacher. The visiting committee complain, We get new pupils to come, but the teachers fail to hold them; and when we visit them to inquire the cause of their absence, have been answered, "O, we got tired." One little girl said she had rather stay at home, because she could go barefooted and play in the sunshine. Was she interested in the lessons taught? Did she love her teacher? A father was trying to persuade his little boys to go to a Sunday school nearer their home than the one they were accustomed to attend, and when he had talked for some time, one of the little fellows said, "I tell you what Papa, you had better let us go to that other school, because the teacher makes lumps come in our throats." How many of the teachers have enough of the love and Spirit of Christ to make lumps come in the little throats. Those of you who have, will have success holding your pupils in school. It takes a love for both Christ and the children to enable the teacher to so interest the little minds that the heart rises in stifling love for her and the great Teacher.—Selected.

GEMS.

Search others for their virtues, thyself for thy vices.

Teachers, become familiar with the school library, and help and advise your pupils in their reading.

Let thy discontents be thy secrets.

Get to your class work. Do not give the children time to begin to play and whisper to each other before the lesson begins.

Grace thou thy class, and let not that grace thee.

There is just one way, that is the right way.

Have a definite aim. Go straight for it. Master all details.

He that can have patience can have what he will.

Make good use of other men's brains.

The noblest question in the world is, What good may I do in it?

Preserve by all means in your power a sound mind in a sound body.

Who has deceived thee so oft as thyself?

A true teacher educates both himself and his pupil.

As we must account for every idle word, so also we must account for every idle silence.

INTROSPECTION.

Am I a superintendent? If so, do I prepare the review with every class in mind, and select such questions as are suited to each? When the hour of meeting arrives, am I on time, and do I ask my assistant to aid me each Sabbath? Do I try to select teachers exactly suited to each class, and classes suited to the teacher? Do I hold teachers' meetings? If so, is it because I know all there is to be known, and I want to tell the teachers a little, so they will have something to teach? or is it because I desire to learn of others, and we meet that we may better acquaint ourselves with the views of others, that we may be better equipped to carry on our work?

Am I a teacher? If so, do I come in late? and do I spend more time on my toilet Sunday morning than I have on my lesson during the week, because I positively have not had time to get my lesson? or have I prepared my lesson carefully, thoughtfully, and prayerfully, with my class in mind, and a desire to do them good?

Am I a secretary? If so, am I ready to attend to all duties promptly, and do I read with a voice that can be heard across the room? If I do not, will some one please ask me to resign?

Am I a librarian? If I am, do I understand the books of the library, and can I read in a pupil's face what his failing is, and suggest a book that will lead to the road to a higher and a nobler life? Can I tell by the childish countenance just the kind of stories most interesting to the mind? If I find a pupil who is not fond of reading, can I tell him enough about some good book that he will want to know the rest, and will take the book and read it? Do I distribute and gather up the books without confusion?

Am I a pupil? If so, do I love my teacher, and do I think each week of the lessons learned, and try to live better because I have studied them? Do I prepare my lessons either to please my teacher or myself?

Am I a parent? If I am, do I send the children to Sunday school, or do I take them? Do I sit down and say, "Come, children, let's study our Sunday school lesson?" or when the children ask to go to play, say, "O you had better get your Sunday school lesson," which they do. Do they? Do I tell them the last thing, "Now be careful and don't muss your hair or dress, for none of the children look so nice as you do?" or do I remind them that they are going to the house of the Lord, and to reverence the same? Do I give them the eggs the hens lay on Sunday to sell for their Christmas offering, and then tell them the hens lay more on Sunday than any other day? Do I do these weak, vain things? or do I try to teach them by the example I set, as well as the teachings of the Master, that humble, meek, and loving spirit that brings peace to every soul?

Do we each and every one ask God's guidance in all our undertakings, and to him render all honor for our success?
