Each morning some one of the teachers would tell some story about keeping the hands clean; about keeping their mouths clean; about not saying bad language; about praising your opponent when you beat him in a game, or when he beats you; about being polite, courteous, cheerful; and all these things.

At the end of the season we began to provide some little entertainment for the children. We arranged to take them on a trip down to Coney Island; so one morning we said, Now be ready on such a day and come to the church at half past one. We marched two blocks from the church to the car, led by three boys, imitating "the spirit of '76" with flag, fife and drum. This procession attracted the attention of the people and I was glad to be the captain of that army.

There are a whole lot of things I might say, but I have talked fully as long as I ought to. I believe this work is an indirect means of overcoming prejudice and of introducing new thought into the hearts of little children, and consequently it is a blessing to the church and community.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME, MANAGEMENT AND NEEDS.

At the late General Conference action was taken looking to the incorporation of the Children's Home under the laws of the State of Iowa, and selecting a board of seven trustees to manage and look after the needs of the home. Those appointed by the General Conference of 1912 are: Richard Bullard, of Independence, Missouri, and Callie B. Stebbins, of Lamoni, Iowa, for a term of three years; Heman C. Smith and Lucy L. Resseguie, both of Lamoni, Iowa, for a term of two years; and Joseph Roberts, Oscar Anderson, and Minnie B. Nicholson, all of Lamoni, Iowa, for a term of one year.

ORGANIZATION OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

President, Heman C. Smith; secretary, Oscar Anderson; treasurer, Joseph Roberts. Executive committee: President, secretary, and treasurer.

Committee on application: Heman C. Smith, Callie B. Stebbins, and Minnie B. Nicholson.

Committee on placing in private homes: Heman C. Smith, Richard Bullard, and Lucy L. Resseguie.

AN INSTITUTION FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN.

The institution should be maintained and operated in the interest of homeless children and viewed from the standpoint of necessity to the welfare of the church in carrying out its mission of love in the world and not from the viewpoint of a mere convenience. As a "mere convenience" the home could open its doors and soon be filled with boarders there to remain indefinitely; but from the point of "necessity" the benefits should be extended in the direction of accomplishing the greatest good to the greatest number, and the greatest good to a homeless child is to enjoy the blessing of a PLACE IN A PRIVATE HOME.

"Be it ever so humble, there is no place like home." The private home is the ideal environment for the child. Where a home is broken and the child is homeless, an institution may come as an angel of mercy and rescue the unfortunate, but that institution, to do its highest duty toward the child, should seek to find another private home where conditions are as nearly ideal as possible.

The trustees, sensing the importance of starting right in launching a project so vital to the interest of the church as to largely determine the future policies of the church in caring for homeless children, have made it the specific duty of a committee to place these children in private homes; believing that there are childless homes which can and will properly care for the homeless child when the opportunity is offered. Those desiring to take children into their homes for the purpose of making it a real home for the child, will make application to a member of this special committee, (see "Organization of board of trustees," for this committee) and proper application blank for filling out will be furnished.

ADMITTANCE INTO THE HOME.

The board of trustees, believing that the line should be drawn between proper and improper candidates to receive entrance into the home, have provided a committee whose special work is to investigate and receive applications for admittance. Application should be made direct to a member of this committee, (see "Organization of board of trustees" for this committee), and, in order that each child may be duly recommended, application blanks will be furnished. Without proper recommendation no child shall be admitted.

FINANCING THE INSTITUTION.

Whatever may be in future store by way of permanent endowment to furnish means to meet the running expense of the home, the facts are that the institution is not now self-sustaining, and must be sustained by the voluntary contributions from Saints and friends, and as the running expense is largely a cash outlay each month, there must be a continuous flowing of means into the treasury to meet the necessary expenses.

If our institution is to succeed as it should, there must exist that earnest sympathy on the part of all for the institution that will cause each to feel after the needs in a financial and material way with a willingness to respond to calls made from time to time when those needs are known, bearing in mind always that money is the greatest need and where the helpers can convert products into money to an equal advantage it is often economy to do so, sending the money instead.

Address all articles and moneys intended for the Children's Home to the treasurer who will forward promptly the receipt for same.

KIND SUGGESTIONS.

Calls are frequently made to the Saints for contributions to help along various departments of the gospel work, and unless we are prepared to sense clearly our duty as touching the building up of the kingdom of God and establishing God's righteousness upon earth, we may become weary of hearing the frequent call, and fail in doing those things which are made our first duty under the law of Christ.

All should be actively engaged in gospel service, and the needs of an institution dedicated to the care of homeless children appeal at once to all loving and true Saints for sympathy and support, and open up a field of service where many can enter upon and occupy. The Woman's Auxiliary in its various departments has done much and grandly to hasten into existence the home for children. The spirit which actuates these mothers and daughters can not falter but will ever continue to lead them on through sunshine and shadow and they be found at their post of duty pleading the cause of the children and true homes.

From various parts of the land come cheering letters, laden with earnest prayers for the success of the home and blessings upon the children. Along with these expressions of sympathy come the offerings from a child, an aged person, a Sunday school, a branch, or some society or department, of the Woman's Auxiliary. These offerings come in the form of moneys or useful articles and a record is kept of all these things. These contributions are not made in order that the names of the parties contributing may appear in print; in fact, they much prefer that publicity should not be given of the sacrifice offered. We only wish, however, that space could be had to publish a complete list of contributions, from time to time, believing that such publicity would suggest ways in which others might become useful and be an incentive to action. The heart and a willing mind qualifies for this sort of service the same as all other true service connected with the gospel of peace.

The trustees would be pleased to take up the matter of ways and means of helping out the home and discuss with any individual or committee or organization, and will be glad to answer any inquiries connected with the work.

The treasurer has on hand a goodly supply of post card pictures of the home. These can be disposed of at two for five cents. Write for a supply of these cards where you think you could dispose of some of them in the interest of the home fund.

We have endeavored to place before the readers such things as might prove helpful to them in understanding some things of the needs and somewhat of an insight into the present management. We have endeavored to emphasize the necessity for continuous service. Saints slacken their labors for one month even, and the result is felt keenly by the institution. That we may all duly appreciate the important task set before us as a people; renew our diligence; take courage; and heart and hand together, labor in the cause of Zion and her children, is the fond anticipation and earnest prayer of your brother and colaborer,

JOSEPH ROBERTS, Treasurer.

• * * * •

Some people seem to regard their business in life as that of convincing heaven that they have all the misery they can hold.

EXECUTIVE ABILITY.

Editor's Note.—It has been said that a man who can keep ten men at work is greater than he who can do the work of ten men himself. Bulwer says: "Every great man exhibits the talent of organization or construction, whether it be in a poem, a philosophical system, a policy, or a strategy. And without method there is no organization or construction." The man who works at haphazard, and tries to do everything himself, or thinks that he must attend to all details himself, is not a presiding officer, no matter what the vote of the branch or district or church may have said. This article emphasizes the importance of true executive methods. It should be of interest to all presiding officers.

"I have not heretofore referred to the quality of executive ability. It goes without saying that if you enter business life you desire to occupy ultimately a position of executive authority. Cultivate then, from the start, the habit and point of view of management. There are certain simple but important rules to follow:

"Acquire the ability to project your work away from you and study it in perspective. Keep it always before you as a whole and be constantly balancing up the situation. Do not supply the brains for your subordinates. Constantly stimulate and employ their brain capacity. The wise and competent executive always understands a given situation well enough to form a judgment as to the proper course of action, but he will not put his own plan of action in effect until he has considered well the plans of his department managers and accepted them if as good or better than his own.

"Some men fail as executives because they consider it their privilege and duty to furnish all plans and specifications. Others fail because they go to the other extreme, formulate no plans of their own and depend solely on their subordinate assistants. Every great executive officer adopts no plan of action until he has crystalized his own views as well as those of his immediate subordinates and gives preference to the latter, unless he can clearly prove that his own are superior."—W. A. Layman, president and general manager, Wagner Electric Manufacturing Company.

The above is from an address delivered before the engineering classes of Washington University, during May, 1912. Many times the term "executive ability" is used without a very clear idea of what is involved. The above is a remarkably terse, clear exposition.

"Project your work away from you and study it in perspective." Incidentally go over your plans frequently to test for possible errors. The superintendent on some construction work, involving an expenditure of a million and a half, approached the engineer in charge as to why he was not worth as much as the engineer. "You walk around and look at the men; and I walk around and look at the men.

You have suggested some changes; but I have suggested a good many."

"Do you see that laborer down there? He thinks about five minutes ahead of what he is doing—sometimes. That other fellow thinks a whole day ahead at times, and is usually an hour ahead of his work, so he is foreman. You are able to plan a week and sometimes nearly a month ahead of the job. So you are superintendent. While I had to have the whole thing pretty well worked out before we started. You know we are under contract with heavy penalty, if not completed within eighteen months." Then he showed him his time sheet, setting forth the minimum which must be completed each month; and the date at which each stage of the work must be finished. "That arrangement by which we lay four sections of pipe at once, was designed at the time, and is probably one of the things you have in mind. But these concrete cars" (used for carrying the mixed concrete rapidly in any direction for half a mile and dumping at any elevation up to twenty feet above the track) "after hunting the market over, I had to design something six months before we needed them, have castings made, and then hire men to build, because they could not safely be made in less time. They mean a saving of a hundred thousand, but they also mean a saving of two months on the job."

Then the superintendent saw, partly, why he was not drawing the pay of a chief engineer.

"He has considered well the plans of his department managers and accepted them if as good or better than his own." How often have we heard a man of marked ability criticize his superior on the grounds, "I furnish the brains, he gets the credit." Then go on to tell how the situation was tied up and HE furnished the idea and carried it out, which straightened things out. Why, in fact, he is always called in, when there is any trouble, yet the chief gets the credit and the pay. But he fails to realize that it is not the place of the chief executive to decide all questions himself. That it is his duty to confer with his department heads; and that he will prefer their plan, unless he can show his own clearly superior. This he does for the sake of esprit de corps, to encourage his associates, though he has the problem pretty well analyzed before going into conference.

There is just this difference between two men of equal mental ability, which should have much to do with determining who shall be in charge: The one will see his own plans, will decide all questions; the other will use the ability of others and their brains, give them the credit and prefer their plans. He will relieve himself of all the detail work possible, yet will be able to step into any place and attend to much of the detail, if need be.

The president of one of the largest corporations in the world is reported to have said to a new department head, on the only visit he ever made to his office, "Have you been informed of the rules of our offices?"

"No, sir."

"We have but one—Never do yourself what you can get some one else to do for you." Seeing the look of astonishment, he added, "Whenever there is a piece of routine—or other work, which you can turn over to a subordinate, or for which you can hire some one else, do so. Then you can give your time to studying out improvements in processes, how to save money and how to make more money for us."

It does not mean simply doing the work; it means doing it right and with the least possible expenditure. As an engineer once remarked, "I'll tell you, S——, an engineer is simply a fellow who can do with one dollar what any f—l can do with two."

In the church there is the same thought, but in even a higher sense, "In honor preferring one another." It is not a matter of self-preferment, but of the work's sake. Trained men will be needed, trained in things of the world and the things of God. Some men must of necessity be freed as much as possible from detail work, so as to consider the needs of the work as a whole. Some of us must do the detail work, and it is vital to complete success. The success of the work depends much on the immediate contact with the people, which is probably nowhere more completely carried out than in house to house visiting by the missionary force and local officers. So the ideal executive, while of necessity not able to attend largely to such work in person, still no matter how high in so-called rank, should be able to meet frankly and freely with his coworkers in any department—each recognizing the value and necessity of the work of the other.

S. A. BURGESS.

Sir Walter Scott resumed his pen at fifty-five to redeem an enormous liability. For a similar reason, but at a more advanced age, Mark Twain renewed his literary labors.

And besides . . . I think all ambitions are lawful except those which climb upward on the miseries or credulities of mankind.—Joseph Conrad.

Blessed is he who has found his work. From the heart of the worker rises the celestial force, awakening him to all nobleness, to all knowledge.—Thomas Carlyle.

The real life of any church is measured, not by its motions, but by the way that it leads us all to live the life of Christ.

Canadian Mirror

A FEW GLIMPSSES OF CURRENT HISTORY.

UNEARNED INCREMENTS INDEFENSIBLE.

At a recent session the Synod of Toronto by a unanimous vote decided against speculation in property in Toronto as a means of raising money for church purposes. It was held that the effort to take an "unearned increment" in this way was an indefensible practice and that it was improper for the church to hold lands for a gain that is due to the efforts of others. Synod property being held in a growing section of the city for higher prices had forced citizens to go farther out to build their homes. By reason of the land all about being built up, this property will eventually bring a very high figure. The action of the Synod appears to harmonize well with the doctrine of the single taxers that land only should be taxed according to actual value so as to prevent the holding of idle land merely for speculative purposes.

GOOD-BYE TO THE SMALL CHURCH.

With the thousands of abandoned churches in the United States and the thousands that in the United States and Canada are too small, divided, and poor to finance their affairs to the standard required, the movement towards church union gets some impetus. Governor Hoch, of Kansas, says that in his State there are a thousand churches that ought not to be in existence. He believes that the small churches should unite and form large, well-sustained places of worship, and that one well-educated minister is all a town of one thousand inhabitants can afford. Nevertheless there are many Ontario municipalities with populations in that neighborhood which now support as many as five, six, or more different denominational ministers. This burden upon the church membership will be lightened to some extent by the steps that are at present being taken by several of the Protestant denominations in the way of regulation of home missionary work and preventing of overlapping in new fields by agreements between the representatives of the churches interested.

STEPS TOWARD CHURCH UNION TAKEN BY THE PRESBYTERIANS.

The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada closed its 1912 session at Edmonton on the 13th inst. The 1913 session will be held at Toronto. A few of the interesting matters dealt with were, the budget for 1913, which provided for an expenditure of $1,200,000, and the provision made for the organization of a new college at Saskatoon. Principal MacKay, of Winnipeg, reported that the Methodists, Presbyterians, and Anglicans of the coast had agreed on a plan for the erection of a joint institution for instruction in theology. Though the assembly deemed it unwise to proceed immediately to the consummation of the proposed union with the Methodists and Congregationalists, the plan of immediate action was outlined as follows:

1. That it be an instruction to the home mission committee to arrange with the other negotiating church for the further delimitation of territory within which they shall severally establish new missions as well as for the fuller application of the principle of cooperation already adopted by the assembly.

2. That it be an instruction to the committee charged with the publications of the church to enter into correspondence with similar committees of the other churches as to the possibility of combining their work in whole or in part.

3. That it be an instruction to the board of the colleges to consider the possibility of cooperation with the colleges of other churches situated in the same localities so as to avoid unnecessary duplication.

4. That the union committee be authorized in conjunction with the union committee of the other negotiating churches in the province for the oversight of union congregations not originally connected with any of the three churches.

5. That the suggestion as to a modification of the proposed basis of union made by the Presbyterian sessions or individuals or that may be made before the first of November, 1912, be referred to the union committee for their consideration in the hope of removing objections and with a view to further conference with the committees of the other negotiating churches.

THEATERS AND PICTURE SHOWS.

The board of social service reported to the general assembly, among other things, upon the subject of places of amusement. Steps had been taken, especially in the provinces of Ontario and Manitoba, to regulate the moving picture theaters and fix the age of those permitted to attend them unaccompanied. But as regards the ordinary theaters, secretaries having personally visited some of these places of amusement had been greatly shocked at the extent to which the vulgar, suggestive, and even grossly immoral had found place. The board advised agitation for a careful censorship of all theaters.

While upon the subject, we desire to call attention to a very commendable use of the moving picture in the Canadian militia training camps. Colonel Hughes, minister of militia and defense, is arranging for the exhibition of moving pictures of historical subjects for the instruction as well as pleasure of the forty thousand young soldiers in the cadet camps this summer. This should be productive of good results.

BIBLICAL INSTRUCTION IN THE SCHOOLS.

This is a subject that seemingly will not down. The most recent contribution on the question is the speech of Bishop Williams at a synod meeting of a few weeks ago. His lordship pointed out that Christianity in the public schools of Ontario receives no more recognition than Mohammedanism, Judaism, Confucianism, and Buddhism. The selections devoted to these religions in the Ontario readers are quite as extensive as the extracts from the New Testament. The bishop contended that New Testament literature should be given a better showing to the exclusion of some of the extracts from the sacred writings of these other religions, excellent though they may be.

MORMONISM AT MONTREAL.

Some little stir was caused at Montreal about two weeks ago by some of the local ministry of that city attempting to have some Mormon missionaries from Salt Lake City barred from the docks of Montreal, because, it was said, they had been in the habit of meeting young women immigrants from England there for the purpose of persuading them to go to Utah. Reverend J. Chisholm, a Presbyterian minister, threatened to use force if the Mormon missionaries did not desist from their efforts to get two girls bound for Toronto to go to Salt Lake City instead. According to our latest information, Mr. Chisholm had laid the matter before the Ministerial Association, who were going to consider it.

CANADIAN FEDERATION OF ZIONISTS.

The Canadian Federation of Zionists met in the city of Ottawa on June 29 with about two hundred delegates in attendance from nearly every important city in Canada. The financial report showed $14,475.22 contributed to various objects of the federation since the last convention in Toronto. Over $5,000 of this went to the fund for the purchase of land for the settlement of Jewish colonies in Palestine.

C. I. DeSola, of Montreal, in his presidential address, said the most important undertaking of the last convention had been the creation of this fund. He announced that fifty per cent of the total cost of the first allotment had been subscribed and actually remitted in cash to headquarters for the first purchase of land in Palestine bearing specifically the name of the Canadian Zionistic Federation. After referring to the different persecutions of the Jewish race of late years, the speaker pointed out that Zionism alone had offered any remedy for them. A menace to their existence more serious than physical sufferings was the dangerous and insidious influence of assimilation, and he considered that the materialistic Hebrews of the free lands of the West required redemption every bit as much as the oppressed ones of the East.

BILLIARDS IN THE CHURCH.

The seemingly growing disposition to stay away from church has inspired many suggestions for making the church attractive to the people, among the more recent of which has been that of a clerical member of the Congregational Union at Montreal. His proposal is that the churches in that city establish billiard parlors. The London Free Press in an editorial in regard to this matter says, "The billiard player who joins the church because it has a billiard parlor is likely to remain a billiard player, no less and no more. What men are demanding of the church is rational, sane reasoning from the pulpit, music with a pure, clear note of prayer and praise from the choir loft, and the opportunity themselves to do something."

PRESBYTERIAN MINISTERS' STIPENDS.

The presentation of a report on ministers' stipends was the chief subject of interest and discussion at the July session of the London Presbytery in the First Presbyterian Church. It was presented by Reverend Doctor Ross, who pointed out that in the London Presbytery eighteen ministers receive less than $1,000 a year, nine receive exactly $1,000, and only eleven receive over $1,000. Country ministers receiving less than $1,000 have to pay $150 a year on the average for the maintenance of a horse and vehicle. On $900 per year, which was a common stipend, a minister could not educate his children. Doctor Ross compared the stipends paid to ministers with the wages of good workmen, showing that the clergy were underpaid. Further than this a minister had greater living expenses than mechanics, although they only received mechanic's wages in many cases. The cost of living yearly increases, but one congregation in the presbytery has not increased its stipend during the past twenty-eight years.

The report, which was seconded by Mr. Thomas Alexander, recommended that all congregations paying less than $1,000 be corresponded with, and unless they raised their stipends they should be placed on the augmentation list. It was pointed out that congregations would be reluctant to accept augmentation funds, and would thus voluntarily increase their stipends.—London Free Press.

R. J. FARTHING.

CHINIQUY LIBEL SUIT AGAINST "LA CROIX."

Those of our readers who know of the famous ex-priest Chiniquy and his exposures of Roman Catholicism will be much interested in the account given herewith, as it, we think, makes quite clear in an authoritative way the real status of the man after his renunciation of Romanism. Further comment is unnecessary, as the Canadian press dispatch we quote below makes all essential details of the matter quite clear:

MONTREAL, June 21.—Judgment was handed down this morning by Mr. Justice Greenshields in the Chiniquy libel suit. His lordship found for the plaintiff and allowed $3,000 damages.

This was an action brought by Mrs. Rebecca Morin, daughter of the famous ex-priest and writer, Father Chiniquy, and wife of Professor Morin, of McGill University against Joseph Begin, editor and publisher of the Roman Catholic weekly paper, La Croix, for $10,000 damages for libel. In an article on Chiniquy La Croix contended that as he had taken vows of perpetual chastity he could never legally marry and that the woman he proposed to marry was therefore only his concubine. Plaintiff contended that such a statement branded her as illegitimate.

The victory of plaintiff's lawyer, Gonzalves Desaulmiers, K. C., must be very gratifying to him, as La Croix; which purports to be the organ of all devout Roman Catholics here, has bitterly criticized him from time to time for his connection with Le Pas, organ of the advanced educationalists in Quebec, of which he is part proprietor, and the famous French-Canadian Masonic body, Emancipation Lodge, in which he was a prime mover.

When Justice Greenshields took his seat on the bench the court was crowded, though the defendant and his lawyer were both absent.

NO POSTPONEMENT.

His lordship began by dismissing the application to postpone judgment because of the new evidence supplied by David Latour, who signed the affidavit contending that Mrs. Morin was not the daughter of Chiniquy and therefore had no cause of action. The judge said it was clearly proved that Madam Lefebvre, the companion of Madam Morin, was the daughter of the Peter Murray or the Pierre Morras, of Illinois, claimed by the defendant as Madam Morin's father. He therefore dismissed the application for postponement with costs.

His lordship added that the defendant, by submitting the affidavit, had corrected his description of Madam Chiniquy as a concubine.

Mr. Greenshields then pronounced upon the merits of the case. He first of all read the plaintiff's plea that the publication in La Croix of the statement that her mother was a concubine was distinctly damaging to her, and the defendant's reply that he did not know that there was such a person as Madam Morin, daughter of Chiniquy, living, and that he spoke as a Roman Catholic to Roman Catholics, in the eyes of whom such a marriage as Chiniquy was alleged to have contracted must have been considered null because he was a priest and because it was tainted with irregularity.

MARRIAGE LEGITIMATE.

The judge then took up the question of the validity of the wedding. He said he had the marriage certificate of Charles Chiniquy and Miss Allard before him, and the defendant had not produced proof that the marriage had been upset by any competent authority. Then there was ample proof that the Chiniquys had lived together for many years. That, he thought, substantiated the claim of plaintiff that her parents were married. Next, he had the certificate of the birth of the plaintiff and following this the recognition of her as his daughter by Chiniquy. In that he found evidence of her right to bring that action.

Continuing, the judge said that no church, be it ever so powerful and great, had the right to override the law of the land, which really dominates them. He had come to that conclusion before the answers of the supreme court judges had given in the marriage reference.

Following up his contention that the plaintiff had abundant right to bring action against La Croix and its publishers for libeling her dead mother and father, Judge Greenshields said that the law of the province and of France recognized the justification of a living descendant suing a libeler or slanderer of his or her dead ancestor. In England a criminal action would have been possible. The lawyer for the defendant, combating this principle, pointed out that David Lloyd-George, the British chancellor, had called the ancestors of some of his political opponents robbers.

WOULD TAKE ACTION.

He (the learned judge) would like to say that were he a judge in England, and if Mr. Lloyd-George reduced such a contention to writing, he would very soon find out that a warrant for his arrest was in existence against him.

The court held that the records of England furnished plenty of precedents for the punishment of libelers of deceased persons. Men had been punished for referring to Henry the Eighth's matrimonial ventures, the wisdom of severing King Charles' head from his shoulders, and the good Queen Mary's alleged preference for Holland gin to her prayers.

In the present case it was the duty of the defendant to prove that there was justification for his article in La Croix. This he did not attempt to do. He contended that because Chiniquy was a priest once, he was always a priest and that he had never severed his connection with the Roman Catholic Church. However much truth there was in that, he (the judge) would not say. He knew this, however, that the church implemented any laxity on Chiniquy's part in this respect by excommunicating him and depriving him of all his offices.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY FRANCES.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. F. M. Smith, vice president, 630 South Crysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. D. J. Krah, secretary, 724 South Crysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. Letha Tilton, treasurer, Lamoni, Iowa, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, 1595 West Walnut, Independence, Missouri, Mrs. H. A. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.

Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Mollie Davis, superintendent, Pittsburg, Kansas.

Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Eugenics Department, Mrs. Clara Curtis, superintendent, 2200 Indiana Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.

Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, superintendent, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.

Young Women's Department, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, superintendent, 707 South Fuller Avenue, Independence, Missouri.

Sewing and Aid Societies, Mrs. M. B. Nicholson, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Misplaced Sympathy.

The city woman who pitied the country housewife and thought that her life must be one of care and drudgery only, while her own was one round of pleasure, was surprised and made thoughtful by the remark of her country sister. I have one daily pleasure of which you deprive yourself, and which means more to me than all which you have combined. I listen to my babies, kiss them, and tuck them safely in bed every night.

This world's a rare and joyous place

For those who deem it so,

With smiles enough for every face—

There is no tale of woe.

But yet, when all's been done and said,

Some little children creep,

At cuddling time, unkissed to bed

And sob themselves to sleep.

Their daddy's off at work somewhere,
 Their mamma's tired and worn,
 Both burdened down with carking care
 From the first break of morn.
 Each love-starved young one on the list
 Has troubles by the heap,
 Yet each must go to bed un-kissed,
 And sob himself to sleep.

Oh, world of sunshine mixed with storm,
 Oh, world of tears and joy,
 Oh, world of frozen hearts and warm,
 Oh, world of man and boy!
 Less were your sorrow, less your dread,
 If, when night's shadows creep,
 Each little lad went kissed to bed
 And smiled himself to sleep.—Sel.

No Place for Boys.

What can a boy do, and where can a boy stay,
 If he always is told to get out of the way?
 He can not sit here, and he must not stand there.
 The cushions that cover that fine rocking-chair
 Were put there, of course, to be seen and admired;
 And a boy has no business to ever be tired.
 The beautiful roses and flowers that bloom
 On the floor of the darkened and delicate room
 Are not made to walk on, at least not for boys;
 The house is no place, anyway, for their noise.

Yet boys must walk somewhere, and what if their feet,
 Sent out of our house, sent into the street,
 Should step round the corner and pause at the door,
 Where other boys' feet have paused often before,
 Should pass through the gateway of glittering light,
 Where jokes that are merry, and songs that are bright,
 Ring out a warm welcome with flattering voice,
 And temptingly say, "Here's a place for the boys"?
 Ah! what if they should? What if your boy or mine
 Should cross o'er the threshold that marks out the line
 'Twixt virtue and vice, 'twixt pureness and sin,
 And leave all his innocent boyhood within?
 Oh, what if they should, because you and I,
 While the days and the months and the years hurry by,
 Are too busy with cares and with life's fleeting joys
 To make round our hearthstones a place for the boys?

There's a place for the boys. They will find it somewhere;
 And if our own homes are too daintily fair
 For the touch of their fingers, the tread of their feet,
 They'll find it, and find it, alas! in the street,
 'Mid the gildings of sin and the glitter of vice;
 And with heartaches and longings we pay a dear price
 For the getting of gain that our lifetime employs,
 If we fail in providing a place for the boys.

A place for the boys—dear mothers, I pray,
 As cares settle down 'round our short earthly way,
 Don't let us forget, by our kind, loving deeds,
 To show we remember their pleasures and needs,
 Though our souls may be vexed with the problems of life,
 And worn with besetments and toiling and strife.
 Our hearts will keep younger—your tired heart and mine—
 If we give them a place in their innermost shrine;
 And to life's latest hour 'twill be one of our joys
 That we keep a small corner, a place for the boys.—Selected.

Letter Department

JOHNNIE, NEVADA, June 22, 1912.

Dear Herald: Would like this placed in your columns as a notice or application for a Latter Day Saint school-teacher who would care to accept a position in the school in Johnnie, Nye County, Nevada. Wages eighty dollars per month; board and room thirty dollars at the hotel, which we run. For particulars write.

In gospel bonds,

W. C. JONES, President School Trustees.

DETROIT, MICHIGAN, June 25, 1912.

Editors Herald: Eastern Michigan District has just placed on its record the best reunion ever held in the district. While it is now merely a matter of history, we feel confident in believing that it will continue to live in the hearts and minds of all, for the great joy and peace of the Holy Spirit which enlightened and encouraged those in attendance. All are united in believing it spells a continuation of the zeal and desire for advancement which has been evident on the part of the Saints. The majority of those in attendance were young people.

The reunion was organized with F. A. Smith, A. Allen, W. A. McDowell, William Grice, as presidency; William F. Sage, secretary; Sister Belleisle, chorister; J. Emlaw, policeman; H. McPherson, usher; Brother Dragon, janitor; administration committee, William Grice and Otto Fetting.

The preaching was of an high order, encouraging, instructive, and beneficial to all.

J. A. Gunsolley was on hand with his smiling and enlivening face, which brightened up all those around. The College and its work was presented in such a manner as to clear the visions of numbers about its purpose and work, and also to arouse greater enthusiasm concerning it. He also greatly assisted and directed the auxiliary workers in looking after the institute work. The institute work was very much improved over preceding years. Special attention was given to library, good literature, and home department work. Sister Taylor, of Chatham District, was present and told some of her large and varied experience. It served to arouse greater desires on the part of all for those lines of work.

The prayer services were the best we have seen in a long time. Scarcely a moment of any of the meetings was wasted. At numerous times several were on the floor at once. Two prophecies were given, by Brethren McDowell and Leverton, which greatly assisted the people of the Lord. They admonished us to remember the blessings already received, to be careful of those things which appeared to be harmless.

The young people were commended for their willingness to sacrifice those pleasures which had been planned, though entirely proper, yet they desired to devote their whole time to securing the blessings of the heavenly Father, in order to reach a higher plane.

The Michigan Quorum of Elders was organized, with Brethren William Grice, George Burt, and McKnight as presidency.

The Religio presidents and vice presidents also organized into an association for mutual development.

DAVID DOWKER,

WM. F. SAGE, Press Committee.

WALLACEBURG, ONTARIO, June 28, 1912.

Dear Herald: I do not know as I am doing very much for the advancement of this cause. My desire is that I always be found faithful until the end, for the Savior has said in his word that he that endures faithful until the end shall be saved, and I want to be among that number.

As the conference has appointed me to labor in the Chatham and London districts for the year, I wish the Saints that know where there is a new opening to be made would write me, for I want to get into new openings.

Your brother and colaborer for the upbuilding of the cause,
GEO. E. BURR.

CEDAR CREEK, TEXAS, R. F. D. 2, June 16, 1912.

Dear Herald: We are far away from any of the Saints and haven't heard a Latter Day Saint sermon in two years. We would be glad if more sermons were printed in the HERALD, as that is the only way we ever hear a Latter Day Saint sermon. I hope some of the elders will come here this summer. I wish the people down here could hear the true gospel preached. We are the only Saints in this community, and some believe we are Mormons. I hope the day will come when we can live where we can associate with the Saints and have church privileges.

We belong to the First San Antonio Branch, eighty miles away. I feel lonely down here sometimes, although we have some real kind friends and some that I believe would appreciate hearing the true gospel.

I have been in this church nearly four years and can say by experience this work is true, although I have had some very hard trials and disappointments. But the Lord will never forsake us so long as we look to him and try to do his will, and I ask an interest in the prayers of all the Saints that I may ever be found trying to do his will.

If Brother or Sister Mannering see this I would be glad if they would write to me, as Sister Mannering's health was very poor, the last account I had of them, and I would be very glad to know how she is getting along and where they are living. Brother Mannering preached the last good sermon we heard. Asking the Saints to remember us in their prayers, I remain a sister in the true faith,

SARAH M. MCWHORTER.

MANCHESTER, ENGLAND, 47 East Grove, C. upon M.

The Editors of the Herald, Lamoni, Dear Sirs and Brethren: Renewed opposition to the Utah body is going on all over this country just now, and we feel its influence to some extent. We don't intend to stand idly by, however, and with God's help will stand in the breach when opportunity arises.

Kindest regards to yourselves and all the members of your staff.

With sincere gospel love,

W. R. ARMSTRONG.

MALAD, IDAHO, June 24, 1912.

Editors Herald: Just closed a two-session debate with our Utah friends, at the little town of Samaria, about ten miles from here, the succession in church presidency being the issue. Had a good hearing and a great many favorable comments were heard at the close, as well as during the day following the first session.

We expect to follow up the work there and hope to reach the honest-hearted ones and bless them with the gospel of peace.

We have been kindly received by the people in general, and hope by persistent and systematic work to get the pure gospel before the people in a way that will be for their good and the glory of our God.

We are hopeful in the work and trust to see it move forward to perfection. The Saints seem to be coming up to higher places.

Hopefully,

J. E. VANDERWOOD.

BERKELEY, CALIFORNIA, June 26, 1912.

Editors Herald: By reading the following poems you will be able to see in a measure the watchcare that Uncle John (Elder J. M. Terry) has over his little flock in this part of the vineyard of the Lord.

I, being tired of the noise and strife of the city, one day chanced to be looking over the dental journal for the month of June, the outing number, and found in it this most beautiful poem which seemed to relieve the tired brain like music to the weary soul.

"I'D LIKE TO GO.

"It seems to me I'd like to go
Where bells don't ring nor whistles blow,
Nor clocks don't strike, nor gongs don't sound,
And I'd have stillness all around—

"Not real stillness, but just the trees'
Low whispering, or the hum of bees,
Or brooks, faint babbling over stones
In strangely, softly tangled tones;

"Or maybe the cricket or katydid,
Or the songs of birds in the hedges hid,
Or just some sweet sounds as these
To fill a tired heart with ease.

"If 'tweren't for sight and sound and smell,
I'd like the city pretty well;
But when it comes to getting rest,
I like the country lots the best.

"Sometimes it seems to me I must
Just quit the city's din and dust
And get out where the sky is blue—
And, say, now, how does it seem to you?

—Eugene Field."

These verses I mailed to him in the form of a token of love and friendship; as well as that which expressed my feelings. God made the country; man made the town and city, he also corrupted it. I love to live in the places where God and his angels with all his creations dwell. And Uncle John, with his soul full of spiritual food, sat down and in answer wrote me the following poem:

"I would love to go, Doctor, with you (and my wife)—
To some quiet spot where could not be found strife,
Where silver-toned bells called to service replete
With sweet satisfaction and comfort complete.

"Where each tick of the clock meant a moment well spent,
Where sweet messages came which from heaven were sent.
Where stately trees grew whose fruit would be 'peace,'
Where 'stillness' from strife and turmoil would ne'er cease.

"Where the 'bird' and the 'cricket' and 'katydid' too,
The mind from earth's cares and turmoil would woo,
Where 'peace' like a river flowed on full and free;
Say, Doctor, would you love to live there with me?

"In loving bonds,

"J. M. TERRY."

Thank you, Uncle John; you know just how and what to do when one needs help. Let the good work go on, and may the Spirit of peace be your portion.

Yours in the strife for the truth,

W. P. BUSH.

HERSCHEL, SASKATCHEWAN, June 21, 1912.

Saints' Herald: It fills my soul with joy to read the letters and articles that come to us through your pages. We came to Herschel, Saskatchewan, last April, a town just one year old. There are Methodist and Presbyterian ministers here, but no Latter Day Saint elder. We would be so pleased to have one sent here. We attend both of said meetings and the more we hear the more impatient we get. We had to witness infant baptism not long since, by the Methodists. Then they organized a Sunday school and wanted my husband to act as superintendent, and put him in against his will. When the minister had to attend conference he asked Brother Martin to fill his place here and he told him he had no authority. Oh, well, said he, just give them your experience.

The ladies' aid society asked permission to meet at our house, and when reelecting officers wanted me to preside. I declined, but they took no notice. I wonder what had best be done about it.

When the Methodist minister visited us, he picked up Elder Evans's book of sermons and Elder Luff's. I offered to lend them to him, but he said he had not time to read them, so I read some to him while here.

Brother and Sister Day live on a homestead about twelve miles from here. Both of us came from London, Ontario. We have been marvelously led to this place. It reminds me of a gift that came through one of God's servants in London about eighteen years ago, that some would go from that place to the north, south, east, and west. I have seen it fulfilled.

We have had miracles wrought in our home. Our heavenly Father has been good to us in different ways, for which we are very thankful and hope to do our part in spreading this glorious gospel.

Your sister,

MRS. A. E. MARTIN.

WARRENSBURG, MISSOURI, June 28, 1912.

Editors Saints' Herald: I take this method of letting the Saints know that I am out in the field, busily engaged in the duties of my calling as one of the Bishopric.

I gave Bishop Kelley my resignation the first day of the General Conference in April, because of the loss of my hearing, so he might have the place clear to put a man that was able to work in my place, for I knew he needed help and I did not want to be in the way when I could not work.

The conference did not release me, but by resolution kept me in the Bishopric. I was willing to work if I could hear, so I asked the prayers of the Saints at conference that the Lord might restore my hearing so I could go on and do the work necessary in the place where they said for me to work. The Bishop expressed his willingness for me to go and occupy as best I could. With what help the doctor could render, and the blessing of the Lord through the administration of his ordinance for the sick and afflicted, and the prayers of the Saints, my hearing was partially restored.

To-morrow I go to Holden to remain and preach over Sunday. I have been well received and had fair liberty in preaching, and believe my efforts are doing good. I have preached twenty times, besides doing other work when called on and am in better condition than when I left home in May. The work is in fairly good condition where I have been and the Lord is blessing his people.

Please remember me still in your prayers that I may be fully restored in health and hearing. I try to be thankful for the blessings received from God and his people, and am willing to work on.

As ever in the conflict, yours,

G. H. HILLIARD.

The very essence of a free government consists in considering offices as public trusts, bestowed for the good of the country, and not for the benefit of an individual or a party.
—John C. Calhoun.

News From Missions

England.

As is often remarked in your columns, it is a long time since you had a line from this part to remind you and the Saints there is such a city as Birmingham, England, in existence. I am now pleased to say there is, and that it is one of the best cities known, at least to me. There are two branches of the Reorganized Church here which are trying to do what they can for the progress of the work, I believe.

The work is very slow, which indicates the truth of the saying of the Master when he said straight is the gate and narrow the way, and few would in consequence find it. That is true; the way to and in the gospel require life to be lived too straight on lines too consistent for the world to embrace. There is not sufficient room for pleasure; not sufficient room for gold hunting, etc. The spirit of the world to-day seems principally gold and pleasure, pleasure and gold, and in regard to the latter it is said the Quaker, in giving advice to his son, said, Get gold; get it honestly if thou canst; but get it. We can not get converts as we would, this would be gold to us. A greater increase in numbers is what we want.

Speaking of the Priestley Road Branch, we are moving slowly, but I hope surely. I am pleased to say that last year we added four to our number by baptism. There has been a great deal of confusion around for some time past, and agitation against what is known as Mormonism, but I believe that slowly but surely the people are getting to realize that the Reorganization is not in sympathy with or connected with the Utah Church in any way, but that we denounce their teaching and practice. We have, by embracing an opportunity afforded us, good notice in a new publication, called the Birmingham Year Book, published by a highly respectable firm with the following:

"This organization has never had any connection with the Utah Church of Salt Lake City who are also known by the name of Latter Day Saints, and never believed in or practiced polygamy."

We have a nice chapel to meet in, about twenty yards long and well seated. There is a good class room at the back, suitable for parties, etc., in which sixty or seventy people can sit down for tea, and a good schoolroom back of that. Inside, from entrance to chapel, there is a glazed lobby where prints of church buildings or headquarters could be shown to advantage if we had them and got them framed.

We have a large notice board outside, fixed on posts, on which services are advertised, and also give the church headquarters at Lamoni and Independence, so there should be no mistake in reference to the distinction between us and Utah.

We are also registered as a place of worship; this protects us against unseemly conduct outside, and brawling inside, and also exempts us from rates. In this respect we are gotten into line with other religious bodies and entitled to the same protection.

We hope by these ways to break down some of the prejudice that has been exercised in the past. The last, and one of the most important items we have succeeded in getting, is the obtaining of registration for the solemnization of marriages. Up to September 27, 1911, no Latter Day Saint church had ever been registered in this country for this purpose. Our law requires that no marriage can be solemnized only in places duly registered, and to do this special conditions have to be met. We have met them, and therefore feel that we have overcome a difficulty and made a decided move forward, which we hope will be for the good of the church. As distances, or rather what we term parishes, is a consideration, our registration can not be of any service outside a certain area. In this respect our conditions are not so good as we would like, but we are thankful for what we have and hope other branches, especially where they have a chapel or separate building used for worship only, will soon follow on. We consider it one of the things that will assist us in making a place amongst the other churches, and help to break down prejudice and probably persecution. Having accomplished this much, we come to the first marriages. On Whit Monday, at one o'clock, May 27, the first marriages that have ever been solemnized (in this country) in one of our own churches, of our own people, and by our own ministry, were celebrated in the Priestley Road Chapel, which was a double event, the contracts being made between Brother George James Pitman and Sister Edith Anderton, eldest daughter of Priest Thomas and Sister Elizabeth Anderton. The second contract was between Brother Edmond Norton (deacon) and Sister Amy Sarah Ann Anderton, third daughter of the above Thomas and Elizabeth Anderton.

The chapel was packed to overflowing, with a very attentive congregation, and the service proved of a very interesting character. A committee had been appointed to prepare a service to embrace as far as possible the requirements of the church and the law of the land, in which suitable quotations were used from the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants; also a suitable selection of hymns from the Saints' Harp (that good old book). This we have printed in a booklet, which forms the service at the front, and the hymns at the end. The service was conducted by Elder C. Walton, branch president, and High Priest J. W. Taylor. Brother G. A. Walton gave selections on the organ. The order of service was hymn, prayer, scripture lessons, short address, hymn, ceremony of marriage, hymn, benediction, the whole occupying thirty minutes. On leaving the building the usual storm of confetti took place, just to show there was no ill feeling. The wedding party and friends made their way to Mr. A. Rodway's restaurant, Horsefair, and there partook of the wedding feast, the number of fifty sitting down to a well-prepared supply of good things necessary for this life, after which suitable short speeches were made by Brethren J. W. Taylor, T. Anderton, the host, H. Smith, J. Schofield, J. E. Meredith, the writer, and other friends, which was suitably responded to by the two bridegrooms. Then the company got into small groups and chatted one with another, intermixed with song, in which Miss Dora Hodgson and Miss Annie Taylor took prominent part until the early evening, when the company broke up after a very enjoyable afternoon. This brought to a close the first experience of a Latter Day Saint marriage of Latter Day Saints in a Latter Day Saint church by a Latter Day Saint minister in England. We trust these things will result in much good to the church in this country.

Yours in bonds,

CHAS. WALTON.

SPARKBROOK, ENGLAND, Priestley Road.

Wales.

I would again write a few lines to your columns, for oftentimes there is joy and benefit received by reading the letters and testimonies of various individuals who have embraced the faith that was once delivered to the saints (from experience I write), for although the gospel message was, and should be now, peace on earth, good will to men, I have been brought to the stern realization of the fact that oftentimes even in the church of Christ established in the latter days, peace does not prevail, and when we ask ourselves the question, Why is it? because the gospel has lost its power or the redeeming feature that it was designed for? or shall we say, in plain language, that man has not been born again? In John 14:27 we read from the words of Jesus, "Peace I leave with you, my peace. I give unto you." Did Jesus speak the truth when he said those words? I would say yes; but in my humble opinion he spoke them at least unto them who had been born of the water and of the Spirit. We do not see this peace manifest to-day in the church (especially in Wales). That peace can not be enjoyed by the church until it casts off the fetters of bondage which are crushing the life out altogether. We see daily the cause of all the turmoil and confusion that exists, namely: Jealousy, evil speaking, and backbiting, and my experience proves to me, and I am of the opinion that any of the authorities of the church who have been to this country will agree, that the church in Wales on that account is losing its spiritual standing, because as soon as any servant of Christ will teach the truth by the Spirit of truth, or explain the law or the duties of the individual, he is soon made to realize that that sort of teaching is not required.

I have no desire or intention to write this in the fault-finding spirit, but with that devout wish in my heart that others may benefit by it. I have been baptized in the church about five years, and while I investigated the claims of the church, I was satisfied that it was genuine in every way. After I was baptized and confirmed I received the witness of my acceptance with God. How my heart rejoiced when I felt that influence of God's Holy Spirit covering me as with a mantle! My whole soul seemed to swell within me with gratitude to that kind and loving Father whose word is ever truth, and while disbelieved by so many, yet remains truth all the time. The servants of God used to preach in the olden days with authority and with power, and I can bear my humble testimony that in my day I have heard some of God's servants preach with great power and authority, both inside the building, and outside on the highway. But unless they have the support of the church, viz: faith and the prayers of the Saints, how can they in such a wicked place ever hope to behold the fruit of their labors, or continue to manifest that power and authority? A few months ago in this little place the church was happy; the meetings were heavenly, and while being warned of God by prophecy that the Evil One was about to enter in unless the law was kept, it has proven all too true, for oftentimes now there are no meetings held at all, and when they are there is no benefit. They are all confused. Undoubtedly some of the missionaries that have been here will be sorry to learn this, knowing as they do that good times have been here.

Well, things are no different now than they were in the days of the Apostle Paul, for in Acts 20, verses 28, 29, 30, 31 we find how he spoke what was about to take place. The same cause produces the same effect in all ages and dispensations, whether in the church or out. They were warned then before it came to pass and they took no heed. The result was, by disobedience they lost the spiritual power and authority. The same is true in all cases; the breaking of a law entails its own penalty.

Having been ordained to the office of priest under the hands of Gomer T. Griffiths and E. B. Morgan on February 12, 1911, at Skewen, I have tried to live according to the law of God and to let my light shine among men. It may be little that I am doing, but I do the best I can under the circumstances, and my desire is to do all I can for him who has done so much for me. In the colliery where I work they call me "Simmons, the preacher!" That is the place to know the character of the man—from those with whom he has to associate daily, and also those who live by him. They are the best qualified to judge, as they judge from actual knowledge and not from supposition or hearsay. It is true that we can not please all, neither do we expect to hear all speak well of us, for Jesus said in Luke 6: 26: "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you," etc. We do not require all men to speak well, but we do expect that at any rate men will be honorable enough when they do speak to speak the truth. Perhaps I am expecting too much in this line, for when I reflect I find that men were not speaking truthfully about our Lord and Master; so if they treated him unfairly and unjustly, in all probability they will do the same about us. The whole world is full of confusion to-day; right the opposite of peace, and it is very plain, or should be at any rate, that there will be no peace until the law of God is understood and obeyed, for Satan causeth strife and confusion; that God is not there, neither is he the author of it. When we apply our lives to learn God's law, then we shall be able to enjoy that peace of God.

We all have a duty to perform and how shall we perform it until we learn what it is? It can not be done very well. We learn in Doctrine and Covenants, Let every one learn his duty. (I can not give section and paragraph, as I have loaned mine out to a friend.) So while the Lord tells us to learn our duty we fail to keep the commands of God. I fear that there is not enough taught the church from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, for although the world does not recognize it as the Lord's commandments, the church in general does, and there is plenty of opportunity held out to the ministry to teach those things from that book which would build up the faith of the Saints and impress more seriously the need to live agreeably to the laws of God. "Life is too short to quarrel, and hearts are too precious to break," is an old English song, but it fits in closely with the doctrine of Christ.

No man has the right to infringe upon the rights of others, nor to cause by folly or negligence or maliciousness, any unnecessary pain or sorrow to another human being. God looks down and loves poor, fallen humanity, and has extended his love and the gospel toward them, that those who desire may be redeemed by the gospel promises, but the man who willfully sins, after coming to a knowledge of the truth, stands in a very unenviable position. In Hebrews 10: 26 all may read for themselves.

Trusting that this may find its way into print, as I can assure all who shall or may have the privilege of reading that it is intended to benefit and not injure the feelings of anyone.

I am yours in gospel bonds,

F. SIMMONS.

PONTRYDYPHEN, SOUTH WALES.

England.

Many years have elapsed since a letter has appeared in the HERALD as regards the work of the Master in the Exeter Branch of the British Isles Mission, therefore I have ventured to write, and have thought fit to give a brief history of its rise and progress.

In the year 1888 Elder William Newton who, during his mission has labored in England for a great number of years, came with the glorious message to a little country village known as Broadclyst, North Exeter, Devon, I believe his home in early life. His teaching was listened to in earnest, and it was not long ere he had the pleasure of making converts; included therein were Brother and Sister Henry Wilson, who were previously connected with the Church of England. Brother Wilson was then ordained a teacher, and thus commenced his ministerial labor, and all who have made his acquaintance can speak of his diligence and faithful perseverance in the work. In later years, circumstances compelled him to remove to Heavitree, nearer to the city of Exeter, where the interest of the work was pursued with the assistance of Brethren Stephen Ireland and Thomas Nicholls, both, holding office in the ministry.

Until 1909 Brother and Sister Wilson gave their home for the assembly of the Saints, but the branch increasing in number, it was necessary to obtain a more convenient place to carry on the fellowship meetings, and after a great deal of trouble success was attained in getting a place for the purpose, and from then meetings have been carried on three times on Sunday and every Wednesday evening. Of course, the branch has had its ups and downs, and much persecution has been endured on account of the prejudice of many people and classifying our body with that of the "Mormons," who have for a number of years been systematically tractating and preaching in and around Exeter; but had it not been for the zeal and fervor of those holding the reins of ministry, along with efforts of some of the Saints, matters would not be in so good form as at present.

The writer, some few months since, went into the statistics of the said branch, and it was indeed gratifying to see that even though there were losses by death and leaving for other parts of this country, and elsewhere, there was never reported to the mission a decrease in membership; it was a number to balance last report, and ofttimes an increase, which speaks highly of the efforts put forward to gain recruits, with early response. There are now a total of forty-one members. In October of last year, six were baptized, five of one family (one brother and four sisters, one sister having been previously baptized), and it is expected to get the father and mother of said children, when there will be eight of one family initiated into the fold of Christ, exclusive of four other children who are now below the baptismal age. Elder William Newton visited the family when last in England, and it is believed his influential teaching (with subsequent correspondence) had much effect in bringing forth the above result. The work is now being pushed very favorably, occasionally outside assistance being given.

On Sunday, June 2, at a sacramental and prayer and testimony meeting, the Lord manifested himself, and by the voice of the Spirit gave words of encouragement, that if the Saints continued to labor in earnest the branch would prosper and grow. I have no hesitation in saying the Exeter Branch of the British Isles Mission is one that is working for advancement, and may intercessory prayer be made that the labor in righteousness will continue, and inasmuch as the future of the branch will depend largely on the younger folk, as most of the workers of past years are getting aged, it is to be hoped the standard of steadfastness will be kept up, and thus, in due time, receive the benefit of the Lord's promise. There is no reason why Exeter should not make as much progress in the cause of the Master as has been made in other parts of this country.

I have been requested to hereby convey the sincere thanks of the said branch to Elders E. Tucker, William Newton, J. W. Rushton, W. R. Armstrong, G. W. Leggott, and Thomas Jones for the services they have rendered in times past, and to wish them success in their labor of love.

Faithfully yours in gospel bonds,

JAS. BUNT.

PLYMOUTH, DEVONSHIRE, ENGLAND, 15a Notte Street.

A mirror shows the outward mold
Of those who pay a heavy toll
And own proud vanity's control;
Yet a deed of kindness will unfold
A fleeting vision of the soul.

—C. Karl Hill.

News from Branches

Independence, Missouri.

Very opportune and interesting was the lesson, and discussion of same, selected for study on the 16th by the Woman's Auxiliary. The subject was "Adolescence; the Girl," an article written by Sister F. M. Smith, who conducted the discussion in an instructive manner.

A supplementary reading was also given by Sister D. J. Krahl, and a beautiful vocal solo rendered by Sister Haberlein. These important topics, together with subjects taken up by the educational clubs, also the Friday afternoon first primary studies adopted by the Sunday school teachers of that department, with Sister Amy Wells as supervisor (who is also vice president of the Woman's Auxiliary local society), all afford ample opportunity for mental development.

Many of the thoughts expressed by Sister Jennie Weed in her fourth and last lecture before the sisters of the auxiliary were such as every mother should indorse; and perhaps the very plain truths she presented, on social purity, were quite new to many present.

Here are a few of the too true and very impressive ideas she offered at her important lecture on the afternoon of the 25th, before an audience of about sixty.

"If mothers have limited time for teaching their children, they had better talk to the boys rather than to the girls." "There is at present more frequent discussion in the medical associations on 'the black plague,' so called, than on any other disease; and the time will come," the speaker earnestly stated, "when it will be the law to be physically examined by officers duly appointed, in certain cases of marriage."

At the close of this lecture a vote of thanks was tendered the sister for her kindly services.

The morning service on Sunday, the 23d, was conducted by Bishop B. J. Scott. Our brother referred to the commotion in the political world, and he stated that "salvation from this disastrous condition can come only through the preaching of the gospel. The great conflict can now be settled only through the people's trust in God, and obedience to his commandments."

The evening sermon was by Elder Oscar W. Okerlind, who is preparing to go on his mission to Scandinavia.

The attendance at Sunday school was 846 and collection was $14.85.

The afternoon prayer service was an interesting one, with Brethren W. H. Garrett, G. E. Harrington, and C. G. Lewis on the platform. Doctor Leonard Harrington assisting also, gave excellent instruction to the Saints. Prayers were requested in behalf of Brother Clyde Baker, of Saint Louis, formerly an active member of the church and a teacher of a class of young men in the Sunday school. A little afflicted baby of Brother E. Brackenbury passed away day before yesterday and his frail body was laid to rest on the 26th.

Announcement was made of a memorial service of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith this the sixty-eighth anniversary, to take place at the church on the evening of the 27th, this being the date of their cruel assassination, June 27, 1844. The speakers announced for the occasion are President Joseph Smith, President F. M. Smith, Bishop E. L. Kelley, and Elder Mark H. Siegfried. There will be also congregational singing appropriate to the occasion.

In mentioning the cases of sickness and affliction we would not forget,—in asking an interest in the prayers of the Saints, the names of Brother McCord, at the Sanitarium, Sister Bonnie Sherman, and several little ones afflicted with whooping cough, also our little brother, Alma Hilliard, grandson of Brother T. W. Chatburn, who met with a serious accident yesterday. "For your prayers are much availing."

ABBIE A. HORTON.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

FAR WEST.—Conference convened with the Stewartsville Branch June 22 and 23, Temme T. Hinderks and Fred M. Smith presiding, Charles P. Faul, S. J. Hines, and A. A. Richardson secretaries. Branch reports: Pleasant Grove 74, gain 4; DeKalb 54, gain 2; Carmen 138, gain 1; First Saint Joseph 568, gain 5; Second Saint Joseph 137, gain 16; Third Saint Joseph 100, gain 4; German Stewartsville 83, gain 1; Oak Dale 49, gain 9; Kingston 82; Alma 49, gain 1; Edgerton Junction 50, gain 2; Delano 84, loss 1; Far West 46, loss 4; Stewartsville 229, loss 2. Ministry reporting through their respective presidents of the several branches: Far West, by Samuel H. Simmons; Delano, by R. R. Constance; Pleasant Grove, by S. J. Hines; Carmen, by J. C. Elvert; DeKalb, by Peipergerdes; German Stewartsville, by T. T. Hinderks; Stewartsville, by A. St. Lewis; First Saint Joseph, by V. M. Goodrich; Second Saint Joseph, by J. L. Bear, jr.; Oak Dale, by Coleman Snider; Kingston, by A. J. Seely; Alma, by L. F. Ferguson; Edgerton Junction, by G. W. Mauzey; Third Saint Joseph, by W. P. Pickering; N. V. Sheldon and Hale W. Smith gave a written report. Committee on the boundary line reported by T. T. Hinderks saying that the General Conference held at Independence, Missouri, April, 1912, had taken the matter up and the line was so changed to take in Livingston and Grundy counties to the Far West District. Report on motion was adopted. David H. Schmidt made a written report of the conditions of the library, he being a member of that branch of the work, and the report was received and spread upon the district record; also a report from the officers of the district Sunday school association and from the officers of the district Religio association. President F. M. Smith organized a quorum of elders which shall be known as the Far West Quorum of Elders, and shall include all the elders in the Northeastern Kansas District; all in the Nodaway District; all in the Northeastern Missouri District. Samuel H. Simmons was chosen by ballot to the office of president of the quorum. He chose as his counselors, J. T. Ford and Coleman Snider. The quorum in session elected W. S. Hodson secretary and treasurer. The counselors were ordained under the hands of F. M. Smith and E. L. Henson. Sunday, at 3 p. m., there were present at their meeting fifteen elders. Brother Smith stated that there were about seventy elders in the four districts named. The quorum will meet at each conference and reunion, also at the two sessions of the Sunday school conventions. A. Miller, of the Alma Branch, was ordained a priest. Election of officers for the coming year: B. J. Dice, president; D. E. Powell, vice president; Charles P. Faul, secretary, also sustained as bishop's agent. Preaching by Hale W. Smith and Fred M. Smith. Adjourned to meet with Alma Branch, October 19, 1912.

CLINTON.—The sixty-second conference of the Clinton, Missouri, District convened at Wheatland, Missouri, May 25 and 26, 1912. James Moler and W. S. Macrae were chosen to preside over the conference. District secretary being absent, Harry Paxton was chosen to act as secretary for the conference; W. S. Macrae was chosen as chorister; Bessie Paxton as organist; W. C. Hidy, Brother Lyon, and E. H. Athey were appointed as the credentials committee. The following district officers reported: James Moler, president; John W. Noyes, secretary and treasurer; Lucy Silvers, recorder and historian. The recorder's report shows a membership in the district of 1,027; it shows a gain of 54, loss 28, net gain 26. Of this gain 32 were by baptism. Ministry reported: Elders: C. J. Peters, T. R. White, C. P. Welch, C. H. Athey, Amos T. Higdon, S. C. Williams. Priests: John W. Noyes, W. C. Hidy, Harry Paxton, J. W. Strader. The following branches reported: Veve, Eldorado Springs, Mapleton, Wheatland, Rich Hill, Taberville, and Walker. The Nevada report arrived after conference had closed. The following district officers were chosen to act for the coming year: James Moler, president; John W. Noyes, secretary and treasurer; Lucy Silvers, recorder and historian; Elva Reveill, library board member. The place chosen for our next conference was Mapleton, Kansas, and the time October 19 and 20, 1912. On May 26 the Wheatland church was dedicated. W. S. Macrae was in charge of the service, dedicatory sermon preached by James Moler, dedicatory prayer offered by W. S. Macrae. At 2:30 p. m. a prayer and testimony meeting; preaching at 8 p. m., after which a vote of thanks was extended the Saints and friends of Wheatland for the kindness shown the visiting Saints and friends. John W. Noyes, district secretary.

SOCIETY ISLANDS.—The South Sea Islands mission conference opened in Avatoru, Rairoa, at 8 a. m., April 6, 1912. Called to order by M. Turatahi; hymn by Manihi Branch; prayer by Viriamu; hymn by Tiputa Branch. The following named officers were elected: J. C. May, president; H. W. Savage, assistant president; M. Turatahi, secretary, Tane a Temai, assistant secretary; Mrs. Belle Savage, foreign secretary; all teachers present, with Hora Hitu as president, to regulate affairs at conference. All deacons present were authorized to act with Teata as their president. Minutes of last conference were read and adopted, some small corrections in language were made. The following elders' reports read: Charles Lake, J. C. May, H. W. Savage, Viriamu, Hotu, Araiiti, Pohemiti, Temaunu, Varoa, Paia, Tenati, Tapuni, Kehaure, Hiti, Mauna, Teihoarii, Tetaku Tefautuata, Vaeara, Tearioroteha, Turatahi, Temanaha, Turi, Marerenui. Report of Tupuai district president read; also that of assistant president of upper division. Priests reporting: Moeava, Kana and Manumea. Adjourned at 10 a. m. till 1 p. m. Hymn by congregation, prayer by Tetaku. Conference convened again at 1 p. m., hymn by Niau Branch, prayer by Varoa. Reports read as follows: Kehauri on Tarona wall work; elders' quorum; Varoa as president of Tahiti District; elders' reports of Tane a Temai, Tai and Tetai of Niau. Quorum of priests reported; request to ordain presidents of quorum of priests read and referred to committee; request to have presidents of quorum of teachers ordained, read and referred to committee. Tetaku, Temarei, and Taia had been appointed as a standing committee to examine all such candidates. Report of Tetaku, bishop's agent of mission, was read. Auditing committee was appointed as follows, Tehani, of Niau; Taarua, of Rairoa; Hititemanava, of Tikehao. Financial reports of J. C. May and H. W. Savage read. Taenga Branch requested that Teaho be ordained a priest; referred to committee. Kaukura, Mataura, Takapoto, Taenga, Manihi and Takarua branches reports read. Takarua Branch reported the fact of having restored Taarua to good standing in his office of elder. Request from Kaukura Branch to ordain Tukaoko a teacher referred to committee. Report from Arutua Branch read. Adjourned till 8 a. m., April 8. Closing song by Niau Branch, prayer by Tanenui. Services on Sunday, April 7, were conducted as follows: Preaching morning at 7:30 by Rongotama, of Hao. Morning services followed by Matutu, (recital) on chart of the latter days and apostasy of Brigham Young and his followers. The chart is one sent here by Bishop May. The Matutu was conducted by Viriamu. At 10 a. m. Elder Tetaku preached one of the best native sermons on tithes and offerings that we have ever heard. At 11 a. m. Sunday school review conducted by H. W. Savage and Tetaku. Sacrament meeting at 3 p. m. in charge of Varoa, of Tahiti, and Rongotama, of Amanu. Preaching in the evening by Paia, of Manihi, followed by a Matutu which was a discussion concerning the lost books of the Bible and the plates upon which the Book of Mormon was written, conducted by Rairoa Branch. Closed with song and prayer at 10 p. m. April 8, at 8 a. m., conference opened again with hymn by Niau Branch, prayer by Hea, hymn by Manihi. Niau Branch report read. The following names were presented for ordination: Teae, of Niau, for a teacher; Atahi, of Avatoru, for an elder; Taruiarii, of Avatoru, for a priest; said names referred to committee. Avatoru and Makatea branch reports read. Committee on general affairs of the conference appointed as follows: Viriamu, Kehauri, and Hititemanava. Explanatory report of Tetaku showing names of all who paid tithing was read. Requests received from Tarona and Hao for conference to come to their branches in April, of 1913. Action deferred. Adjourned till 8 a. m., April 9. Closing hymn by Rairoa Branch, prayer by Taharangi. April 9, at 8 a. m., conference convened again; opening hymn by Manihi Branch, prayer by Kehauri, hymn by Niau Branch. Minutes read and adopted. Vote was taken on the two invitations for conference of 1913. Vote was 34 for Tarona, 55 for Hao. The conference then voted unanimously to accept the will of the majority to take the conference to Hao. Report of auditing committee read and adopted. Matter of how to complete wall around Tarona was discussed; Resolved, That we pay one dollar per member, and each branch to send two men to Tarona to build the wall in June, the several branches to support their respective men while at work. Bishop's agent's report of J. C. May read; referred to auditing committee. Adjourned at 11 a. m. till 8 a. m., April 10, closing hymn by Rairoa Branch, prayer by Taarua. April 10, conference convened at 8 a. m., hymn by Rairoa Branch, prayer by Faarii, hymn by Manihi Branch. Report of Elder Teangi read. Report of Tetaku, of money recently received was read. Report of Turatahi, mission secretary, showed present membership of 828. Committee on candidates for presidents of priests' quorum reported favorably as follows: Faarii, first assistant president, and Tahuka second assistant president. The following committee was appointed to ordain said presidents: Paia, Temarei, Tanenui, and Tehani. Collection was taken for Tarona chapel fund, resulting as follows: Varoa, $5.00; Tevaha, $5.00; Roo Vahine, $5.00; Roo Tane, $5.00; Takehu, $5.00; Hao people, $30.00; Taenga people, $2.50; Manihi people, $46.00; Sunday school $37.63; Avatoru Branch, $120.00; balance on hand, $275.00; total amount on hand, $536.13. Collection for Tarona wall amounted to $58.00. Adjourned till 1 p. m., hymn by Niau Branch, prayer by Tehani. Business began again at 1 p. m., after hymn by Hao Branch, prayer by Rongotama, hymn by Tikehao Branch. Faarii was ordained assistant president of quorum of priests, and Tahuka was ordained second assistant president of said quorum. Committee on general affairs of conference reported. The secretary, Turatahi, proposed the following resolution: That all branches pay fifty cents each to pay for printing branch report blanks. Carried. Marerenui asked that it be explained who should take care of branch collection box for the aid of missionaries. A long discussion followed and ended by resolution to leave it as before, that the presidents of branches take care of said money. The following appointments were read: Hotu, Viriamu, Tetaku, Turatahi, Pahoa, Tane a Temai, Terai, Teihoarii, Faarii, Hiti, Paia, Tenati, Tai, Taia, Horahitu, Marerenui, Varoa, Kehauri, Tanenui, Tetai, Parara, Taputupuniava, Araiiti, and Temanaha, native missionaries to the various islands of this mission. Bishop's agents appointed by Tetaku as follows: Tanenui, Teare, Taarua, Maopi, Tuamea, Tetai, Rua, Pahoa, Hotu, Turatahi, Araiiti, and Teiurea. All the above appointments were sustained by vote. Also all officers of the church. Adjourned till 1 p. m., April 11. Conference convened at 1 p. m., April 11. Minutes read and adopted. Adjourned to meet in Hao at 8 a. m., April 6, 1913. Closing hymn, "Till we meet again," by whole congregation. Prayer by Hotu. Mrs. Belle Savage, secretary.

GALLANDS GROVE.—District conference met at Coalville, Iowa, June 8, 1912, at 10:30 a. m. Organization was effected by choosing J. W. Wight, with the presidency of the district, to preside; Mrs. C. J. Hunt, secretary; W. A. Smith, chorister, with privilege of choosing organists; Samuel Dixon, janitor. The president of the Coalville Branch, Richard Jordison, was authorized to appoint ushers. By motion visiting Saints were granted voice and vote in the deliberations of the conference. C. Scott was appointed press committee. C. J. Hunt, one of the representatives of the Gallands Grove District in the Western Iowa and Eastern Nebraska Reunion Association, reported verbally. He stated that the outlook for a pleasurable and profitable reunion was very promising, both along church lines and in the auxiliary work as well, and urged upon all the benefits to be received and the advisability of attending this reunion, to be held at Council Bluffs, Iowa, August 23 to September 1, 1912. Branch reports were read from Cherokee, Mallard, Gallands Grove, Lanesboro, Dow City, Harlan, Salem, Deloit, and Coalville. Ministerial reports were read: C. J. Hunt, A. R. Crippen, William Shove, Frederick Hansen, W. A. Smith, C. E. Butterworth, J. L. Butterworth, George Juergens; also report of Floy Holcomb, Woman's Auxiliary worker. Moved and carried that the order of business and time and nature of meetings be left to the presidency of the conference. The bishop reported: On hand and received since last report, $316.88; expenditures, $669.95; balance, $146.93. Tent and expense fund on hand, $9.25. It was decided by motion that in the election of district officers the procedure be by open nomination and vote. C. J. Hunt was chosen president, with authority to choose his associates. Mrs. C. J. Hunt was chosen secretary, with privilege of choosing an assistant. She chose as her assistant Ora Butterworth, Dow City, Iowa. C. J. Hunt was retained member of library board. The choice of J. L. Butterworth by the president as his assistant was ratified by the conference. The petition to Little Sioux District regarding conjoint reunion was read. Also resolution of Little Sioux District pertaining to the same. Further action with regard to the matter was referred to the Gallands Grove representatives of the joint reunion committee. Cherokee was chosen as place of holding next conference. The time was left with presidency of the district. Short talks were given by C. E. Butterworth, C. Scott, J. W. Wight, and O. Salisbury. General trend of these talks was along lines of holiness, perfection, importance of keeping the body a fit temple for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Prayer service was held Saturday at 9 a. m., and Sunday 8 a. m.; Sunday school at 9 a. m. in charge of local officers. Preaching services by W. A. Smith, C. E. Butterworth, J. W. Wight, and C. Scott. Young people's social service at 7 p. m. The next conference will be held at Cherokee, Iowa, October 19 and 20. Mrs. C. J. Hunt, secretary.

Conference Notices.

The Eastern Oklahoma District conference convened at Haileyville, June 1 and 2, with district president H. R. Harder and Lee Quick in chair; D. O. Harder, secretary pro tem. Wilburton, Haileyville, and Fanshawe branches reported. Officers for district were elected as follows: J. W. A. Bailey, president; Sister Nettie Bowers, secretary; L. S. Moore, treasurer; M. L. Newlin, librarian. The next conference meets at Wilburton in January. Nettie Bowers, clerk.

The conference of the Northern California District will be held at Irvington, California, September 2, 1912, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. We hope for a complete report from each branch as to statistics and spiritual condition, also as to opportunities for gospel work for missionaries. Each one bearing the priesthood should also report in writing. Let us each one do something, then tell about it. Send all reports to our secretary, J. A. Lawn, 48 West Avenue, San Francisco, California. The conference convenes on the third day of the reunion. J. M. Terry, district president, 1202 Fourteenth Street, Oakland, California.

Southern Missouri district conference will convene with the Woodside Branch, near Alton, Missouri, July 27 and 28, 1912, at 10 a. m. Those coming by rail should get on trains due to arrive in Thayer on Friday morning, the 26th. Those intending to be present should write to G. A. Davis, of Thayer, or to A. M. D. McGuire, Alton, Missouri, who will make the necessary arrangements a few days before conference. All reports should be in the hands of the undersigned at least five days before conference. The clerks of the Logan Creek, Piedmont, and Naylor branches are requested to bring or send a complete record of their respective branches, to have them copied into the district record. Please give this your attention, and if possible all come and meet with us. Benjamin Pearson, district secretary, Tigris, Missouri, July 1, 1912.

British Isles Mission annual conference will be held in Birmingham on August 3, 4, and 5, 1912. W. H. Greenwood, mission president, Bishop R. May, and other members of the missionary staff are expected to be present. Business will commence in the Saints' chapel, Priestley Road, at 6 p. m., on August 3. Notice will be circulated later for the guidance of prospective conference visitors. Please forward all reports to W. R. Armstrong, of 47 East Grove, C. upon M., Manchester, according to By-law 6 of "Mission Rules."

Convention Notices.

The Sunday school convention of the Western Oklahoma District will convene July 26, 1912, at Calumet, Oklahoma. All Sunday schools in this district please send in reports at once. Normal work will be taken up at this convention. A. M. McGeorge, superintendent, 915 West Pine Street, Enid, Oklahoma; Inez Moldrup, secretary, Seiling, Oklahoma.

The Sunday school convention of the Central Oklahoma District will convene August 23, 1912, at Ripley, Oklahoma. Reports from all schools in the district should be in not later than August 1. A. M. McGeorge, superintendent, 915 West Pine Street, Enid, Oklahoma; C. J. Sheppard, box 185, Holdenville, Oklahoma. Normal work will be taken up during this convention.

The Portland District Sunday school convention will convene at Vancouver, Washington, August 9, at 1.30 o'clock. F. W. Hawes, district secretary.

Reunion Notices.

The joint reunion of the Kewanee, Eastern Iowa, and Nauvoo districts will be held at Prospect Park, Moline, Illinois, August 15 to 25, 1912. Tents should be ordered at once of C. G. Dykes, Muscatine, Iowa. Prices for tents are as follows: 10 by 12, $2; 12 by 12, $2.25; 12 by 14, $2.50; 14 by 16, $3; canvas cots 28 to 36 inches wide, 35 cents. O. E. Sade, J. B. Wildermuth, advertising committee.

Southern California District annual reunion of 1912 will be held at Convention Park, Hermosa Beach, August 10 to 25, inclusive. Conference: Monday, August 19, has been reserved for conference, beginning 10 a. m. Religio: Thursday, August 15, reserved for Religio convention, at 10 a. m., and program in evening. Sunday school: Thursday afternoon, August 15, and Thursday morning and afternoon August 22 have been set apart for the Sunday school, and Thursday evening, August 22, a joint entertainment by Sunday school and Religio. Each Sunday morning, 9.45 to 10.50, devoted to regular Sunday school session. Each Sunday evening, 6.30 to 7.30, set apart for regular Religio lesson. Especial attention must be given to tents. It is imperative that all orders for tents be in hands of secretary by July 15, as great difficulty was experienced in securing them for this year. Tents 10 by 12, $2.50; tents 12 by 14, $3; tents 12 by 16, $3.50; single wire spring cots, including mattress, $2; folding chairs, each, 15 cents; tables, 50 cents. Double cots could not be secured. In order to insure getting tents our order must be in with one third cash in advance by July 15. Write R. T. Cooper, secretary, 202 Lankershim Building, inclosing check or money order. All tents will be supplied with clean shavings, and be set up, ready to be occupied, Saturday, August 10. A few rooms can be rented by writing direct to Doctor Sanderson, Hermosa Beach, California. Cafeteria will be in operation same as last year. All General Conference appointees in attendance, and their families, will be provided with tents and accommodations at the cafeteria by the district, but it is imperative they write the secretary in detail their needs in tents, cots, tables, etc., by July 15. The big tent will be used again this year. Fare and one third, on the certificate plan, will be given by the railroads. Do not fail to get a certificate (receipt) when you buy your ticket. Buy tickets and check baggage to Hermosa Beach and tell the conductor to let you off at Convention Park (flag stop). A splendid array of speakers will be present, including Elbert A. Smith, F. M. Sheehy, E. Keeler, Evan J. Davis, Paul M. Hanson, Daniel Macgregor, T. W. Williams, H. J. Davison, and others. The afternoons are to be largely devoted to sociability, surf bathing, and recreation, and everybody is expected to be faithful and prompt in attendance at all the meetings. R. T. Cooper, secretary.

The Des Moines district association will hold their reunion for 1912 at Colo, Iowa, from August 16 to 25. Colo is on the main line of the Chicago and North-Western Railway. The reunion grounds are one half mile northwest of the town, on the lawn of Mr. Frank Lhommedieu. Workers in all lines of church work will be present to assist. Several leading ministers will be present to attend to the preaching of the word. Those desiring tents and fixtures will write as soon as August 1 to J. F. Minton, 1205 Filmore Street, Des Moines, Iowa. Tents 10 by 12, $2; 12 by 14, $2.50; cots, canvas, single, 35 cents; wire, single, 45 cents; double, 60 cents; mattresses, single, 35 cents; double, 45 cents; pillows, 15 cents; chairs, 12 cents; tables, 40 cents; two-burner stoves, 70 cents. Those wishing tents set up will add 25 cents extra. Those who desire lodging for a night or two, it will be necessary for them to give information when they will be present. Meals will be furnished on the grounds at reasonable rates. This will be the time to take your vacation and enjoy an outing, and partake of a spiritual feast there to be enjoyed. The committee, C. M. Richeson, R. R. 3, State Center, Iowa.

The Massachusetts District will hold its annual reunion at Onset, Massachusetts, beginning July 27, 1912, continuing two weeks. Tents 10 by 12, $4; 12 by 15, $4.50; cots, single, 40 cents; double, 80 cents. The commissary department will furnish meals for all who desire them. Price of meals same as charged last year. H. W. Howlett, secretary of committee, Washington Avenue, Pottersville, Massachusetts.

Two-Day Meetings.

A resolution was passed at our late district conference granting two-day meetings to branches that requested them. I hereby ask all branches wanting such meetings to send me their request as soon as possible, and some dates and places, and we will try to supply them as fully as possible. Remember that all can not have the same dates nor the same ministers. We also wish the district ministry all to report to us at once when they can attend these meetings with as little loss of time and expense as possible to the district and Saints. We will not be responsible for non-attendance of anyone appointed to attend these meetings. We will try to supply speakers as well as we can, but if they fail let the failure attach to them.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 The Name of the Church - - - - 653
 Notes and Comments - - - - 655
 HYMNS AND POEMS - - - - 656
 ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Daily Vacation Bible School, by William E. LaRue 657
 The Children's Home, Management and Needs,
 by Joseph Roberts - - - - 661
 Executive Ability, by S. A. Burgess - - - - 662
 CANADIAN MIRROR - - - - 664
 MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - 666
 LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - 667
 W. C. Jones—David Dowker and William F. Sage —George E. Burt—Sarah M. McWhorter—W.
 R. Armstrong—J. E. Vanderwood—W. P. Bush
 —Mrs. A. E. Martin—G. H. Hilliard. - - - - 669
 NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - 672
 Charles Walton—F. Simmons—James Bunt.
 NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - 672
 Abbie A. Horton.
 MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - 672

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.
 Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.
 When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.
 If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.
 All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.
 All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.
 Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.
 For advertising rates apply to the business department.
 Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.
 Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

As to dates, September 1 and 8 are taken. Other dates may be suggested by branches, but keep in mind the saving of expenses as much as possible. We hope to use some of the local elders, as well as missionaries; so take notice all and attend. If we can get our minister in general charge to attend some of these meetings we will be glad indeed, but he is very busy.

Please read carefully and comply with the above requests. Send all mail to Ray, Indiana, R. F. D. 1.

G. A. SMITH, District President.

July 1, 1912.

Cancellation of Reunion.

Owing to an epidemic of scarlet fever at Vanscoy and vicinity, the reunion billed for July 12, 13, and 14 is hereby canceled.

T. J. JORDAN, District President.

Quorum Organization---Eastern Mission.

In harmony with instructions from the First Presidency, a quorum of elders will be organized, including all in the mission. We hereby give notice that on Monday, August 5, 1912, at 2 p. m., on the reunion ground, Onset, Massachusetts, the elders are requested to meet for the purpose of organization. Either send or bring the items of your ordination.

The priests in Maine, Nova Scotia, and Massachusetts districts are requested to furnish items of ordination for enrollment in quorum.

Very respectfully,
 U. W. GREENE.

WINTER HILL, MASSACHUSETTS, 55 Grant Street.

Pastoral.

To the Saints and Friends in the Southeastern Mission; Greeting: I have been chosen to act as the assistant minister in charge of the mission, except that portion which is included in Southern Indiana, Kentucky, and Tennessee. I have for my coworkers Brethren Swen Swenson, Lloyd C. Moore, A. G. Miller, and J. W. Dubose. We are all workers together in order to advance the gospel work among the people, and I ask all the Saints and those who love the truth to be coworkers with us in this grand and glorious cause and be helpers indeed, in order that the power and glory of God may rest richly upon us all, in order that we may all be laborers together with him, so that this year may be a prosperous one for the spread of truth and righteousness among the people. While we feel rich in grace, we need your help and assistance in order to make others rich. Your duty is made plain in the gospel as taught in the three books of the church. As the servants of God we ask you to hear and obey, and you will rejoice with us in the blessings which God has in store for us all, and when the great struggle here is ended we will hear the good Master say, Well done, inherit the mansion which I have prepared for you. I trust these few words will encourage all who read them to do their best to keep the work before the people. My mission address this year will be McKenzie, Alabama. Do not hesitate to write me if you know where there are places to preach. Remember we are in the mission for the gospel's sake, and we have sacrificed the comforts of home and the pleasures of being with our loved ones, and we do not want to be idle servants, but rather workers. We ask your assistance that we may advance the work and make others rich and happy.

Your coworker in the gospel, F. M. SLOVER.

Quorum Notice.

To the Quorum of High Priests, Greeting: Whereas, there have been so many changes in addresses, and otherwise in the quorum during the past conference year, it was thought advisable to issue a 1912 annual; therefore, all the members who have changed their addresses since reporting to the quorum last March are requested to immediately notify the undersigned, that we may have correctly your permanent address, and this will include those fifteen members that failed to report. Please do not put this off, as the manuscript is being prepared now, and the secretary desires your assistance that the annual may be reliable in that which it contains for the use and benefit of those into whose hands it goes.

Your fellow servant,
 ROB'T M. ELVIN, Secretary.

LAMONI, IOWA, July 1, 1912.

British Isles Mission---A Correction.

In my pastoral to the Saints of the British Isles there is a mistake made in the list of appointments. In respect to Wales it should read thus: Elder J. G. Jenkins, Western Wales District; Elder Thomas Jones, Eastern Wales District. It should also be understood that these are missionary appointments.

W. H. GREENWOOD,
 Minister in charge.

Semcentennial Celebration.

The Deloit, Iowa, Branch, (called the Masons Grove Branch for a number of years,) will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its organization July 12 to 14. It was the second branch organized in the Gallands Grove District, and is one of the historic branches of the Reorganization. Preaching Friday and Saturday evenings and three services on Sunday. Elders Heman C. Smith, Charles Derry, and C. E. Butterworth have been invited as speakers. A picnic dinner on the churchyard lawn will be a part of the program Sunday.

C. W. WINEY,
 C. J. HUNT,
 LACY MYERS, Committee.

Died.

HASKELL.—Freeman C. Haskell passed peacefully from this life May 28, 1912, at Stonington, Maine. He was born on Little Deer Isle, Maine, December 23, 1856; married Mary J. Knowlton December 17, 1894; baptized by Elder U. W. Greene about twenty-three years ago. At the time of his death he was priest of Stonington Branch. A faithful Saint has entered into rest. Funeral sermon by U. W. Greene.

Colorado Is a Wonderful Place for Children

I don't know any other place where children are so benefited from a few weeks of outdoor life, as they are in Colorado. The summer life out there is about as ideal as can be imagined, and you can live there nowadays so comfortably, and at such moderate cost. There are scores of nice, clean, wholesome boarding houses and ranch houses in Colorado where the rates are from $10 to $15 a week, and where you can live well and comfortably. Then, of course, there are elaborate, modern hotels for those who require more. If you know of anyone who is going to Colorado, ask them to come in and get a copy of our folder, telling all about where to go, what to see, etc. It is easy to go to Colorado—only one-night-on-the-road—and the trains are so comfortable and modern that the trip out and back is really a great part of the pleasure of it all.

Summer Tourist Tickets on sale, daily until September 30.

L. F. SILTZ, Agent

C. B. & Q. R. R.

A NICE HOME

Near the Brick Church. 7 rooms and bath. Basement, well and cistern. Good walks. An abundance of fruit. Large lot.

Everything in first-class order. At a bargain for short time.

G. W. Blair, Secretary,
Lamoni Land and Loan Co.
Lamoni, Iowa.

SCHOOL FOR NURSES

The Independence Sanitarium Training School for Nurses offers exceptional advantages to single ladies of the church between 20 and 30 years of age to become Trained Nurses. New class is now forming, anyone desiring to take up nursing as a profession should write at once for application and full information to the

INDEPENDENCE SANITARIUM,
Independence, Missouri. 26-4t

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.

Order No. 248a, cloth75

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.

Order No. 232, cloth.....75

BEAUTIFUL OSAGE VALLEY

Being the first to locate in this valley and seeing the richness, also mild climate, cheap fuel, etc., we desired other Saints might share it, so advertised, resulting the locating of many Saints. As to honest, upright dealing we refer you to any of the branch officers, or members. OSAGE VALLEY LAND CO., 47 Mapleton, Kansas.

FOR SALE

A number of farms and town property in and around Cameron at rock bottom prices ranging from 20 to 600 acres. Can give possession or turn rental contract at once. Located in Far West District. Write for prices.

B. M. Seaton & Co., Cameron, Missouri,
Weaver Building, E. 3d Street. 20 tf.

For Sale, Lease, or Rent.—LAMONI STEAM LAUNDRY. In good running order. Will sell or lease with the option of buying. Or will rent to some capable person. Lamoni needs a laundry. This is a chance for some one to get a business cheap. Apply to R. M. Elvin, Lamoni, Iowa.

Address J. E. Nicoll, 319 South Lake Street, Fort Worth, Texas. 27-2t

WANTED.—Competent cook at the Children's Home. W. P. Robinson, Lamoni, Iowa. 27-3t

MAPLETON, KANSAS

Saints wanting reliable information concerning Mapleton, Kansas, write to B. C. Gifford. Inclose stamp.

NAME WANTED

The Southern California District will give a prize of the three Standard Books of the Church, for a suitable name for our Reunion Ground, to be selected by Reunion Committee next August.

All names should be sent to secretary.
R. T. COOPER,
202-3 Lankershim Bldg., Los Angeles, California. Alt to 8-1

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.

Order No. 241, cloth.....50

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

Order No.

141 cloth.....75c

141½ leather$1.00

174 flexible$1.50

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read book. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.

Order No. 248, cloth75

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.

No. 140, cloth50

ARE YOU INTERESTED

in

INDEPENDENCE REAL ESTATE?

If so, and you will tell us what kind, we will show you some bargains.

Write or call on us.

R. B. TROWBRIDGE,
Independence Realty Co.

205 W. Lexington St., Independence, Mo.
9-tf

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,

Cloth, No. 198.....50c

Paper No. 197.....35c

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, JULY 17, 1912

NUMBER 29

Editorial

UNSUSPECTED VALUES.

SYNOPSIS OF A SERMON PREACHED BY ELBERT A. SMITH AT SAN BERNARDINO, CALIFORNIA, JUNE 9, 1912.

I have borrowed my subject from Brother John W. Rushton. At least I heard that he had preached on such a subject. Unfortunately I did not hear the sermon, or perhaps I might have borrowed a good sermon to go with a good subject. I desire to use the following texts:

"And when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him."—Isaiah 53:2.

"Having eyes, see ye not? And having ears, hear ye not?"—Mark 8:18.

UNPOLISHED GEMS VERSUS DIAMONDS OF PASTE.

Men are very easily deceived by external appearances. We refer to those men who have not learned to use their eyes and look below the surface, applying such tests as may be required to determine value.

A diamond made of paste may flash very brilliantly, and by one not educated to judge diamonds might be esteemed of considerable value. But the man who understands diamonds quickly discovers that it is valueless, and by applying certain tests known to him may expose the worthlessness of the supposed gem. There are always tests in all things by which we may detect the false from the true.

On the other hand, a real diamond of the first water, uncut and unpolished, fresh from the mine, a gray, unprepossessing lump of matter, might be thrown away by a novice, ignorant and careless of the fact that he was rejecting a fortune. But the eyes accustomed to selecting diamonds in the rough would instantly appraise its real value. In like manner the careless and wicked, hearing the gospel, see in it no beauty and cast it aside, ignorant of the fact that they are throwing away that which is of eternal worth; but those who are really seeking after salvation never rest until they have discovered that gem of priceless value, and having sold all that they have, they purchase it.

FOOL'S GOLD AND UNSUSPECTED SOURCES OF WEALTH.

Early adventurers coming to America loaded their ship with worthless mica, or "fool's gold," and returned to Europe thinking that their vessel was laden with the purest and most valuable of metals. The yellow glitter of the mica, so obvious and attractive, fooled them. On the other hand, hunters and trappers wandered over the future copper mines of the Lake Superior region, and the gold ledges of Alaska and California, never suspecting the hidden wealth, until some one with eyes, educated eyes, discerning eyes, came to investigate. The whole of Alaska was purchased by the United States for $7,200,000, and nearly everyone thought that the purchase of that cold and barren land was the monumental folly of the administration. Since then Alaska has paid for herself two or three times over in a single year. Over $200,000,000 have come to the Government and citizens from her mines and fisheries.

That which advertises itself most immediately and emphatically as of great value in many instances is valueless, or nearly so. While that which has real merit and worth is appreciated only after careful scrutiny. This is as true of actions and opportunities and of men and systems of theology as it is of inanimate things.

THEY SAY THAT "MONEY TALKS."

The disciples with Jesus in their midst were watching the people cast their contributions into the temple treasury. Men of wealth came and made their liberal donations. The disciples nudged each other and called admiring attention to well-known men who were most generous in their offerings. But Jesus seemed strangely indifferent. Presently a poor widow came and cast in a single farthing. No one else noticed her, but the Master appeared to wake up at this juncture, and declared: "She has given more than they all."

There was an unsuspected value in that gift. It was the golden value of pure self-sacrifice prompted by loving devotion. Others gave of their abundance. They would never miss it. But she gave, knowing that she must go hungry and cold and shabby.

At one time I attended a meeting where contributions were being solicited for that which was considered a worthy object. A certain minister, Brother A., we will call him, was called upon for a speech.

He made a modest talk and subscribed a small sum of money. I was called on for a speech and replied: "They say that money talks. If that is true, I can not make a speech here. I could not make noise enough to be heard." A moment later a very well-to-do man was called upon and responded with a pledge running into three figures. The crowd applauded until the rafters rang. They did not applaud Brother A. Why not? He gave ten times as much in proportion to his income. But we too often make the mistake of looking at external appearances, just as the disciples did. We judge solely by the size of the donation.

We say that "money talks." Money did not talk to Jesus. He could not hear it. Money does not talk to Jesus to-day. Motives talk to Jesus. He sees and judges the heart.

THE STORY OF THE CARROT.

They have a folk story in Russia of a certain old woman who had lain in torment for a thousand years. At last she cried to the Lord for deliverance. He replied, "Did you ever do a single unselfish deed while on earth—a deed for which you did not demand pay?"

The poor old woman thought for a while, and then she replied: "Yes; but it was a little thing, not worth mentioning. I gave a carrot to a starving man, and he thanked me for it."

The Lord said: "Bring hither the carrot."

But the woman replied that it had been a long time and the carrot was long since lost.

The Lord answered: "The witness of an unselfish deed never perishes."

So he commanded an angel to go and find the carrot. The angel brought the carrot and held it over the bottomless pit. The woman took hold upon it and he began to lift her out. As she arose others caught her by the feet, the arms, and the clothing, until there was an ever lengthening chain of poor, struggling, lost souls being lifted out of hell.

But the woman became frightened and angry and cried out, "Let go of me. This is my carrot."

No sooner had she uttered the words "my carrot" than the carrot broke and all fell back into hell.

A single unselfish act begins to lift humanity out of hell. But when men begin to say this is mine, save me and let others go, they are plunged back into torment. There is an unsuspected value in simple, humble, unadvertised service that glorifies even so inconsiderable a gift as a cup of cold water, a thing that we would not think worthy of mention. Yet the Master said that he who gave a cup of cold water to a disciple in the name of a disciple should never lose his reward.

Religion does not consist of noise and profession. Religion is expressed in service.

THE SEARCH FOR THE HOLY GRAIL.

Then there is the story of Sir Launfal who went in search of the "Holy Grail," the very cup from which Christ drank the wine at the last supper. As he rode out the gate on his quest a poor leper halted him and begged him to go and fill a wretched cup that lay near with water, that he might drink. But Sir Launfal rode on. He had no time for beggars. Was he not consecrated to a more noble cause?

He searched through many lands for many years until he was old and broken. Discouraged and defeated he returned to his starting point. At the very gate he met the same poor leper. But suffering had taught Sir Launfal sympathy, and leaping from his horse he took the filthy cup and ran and brought water to the leper. Instantly the poor beggar was changed and became the Master, and the filthy cup was transformed into a beautiful cup of precious metal,—the long sought "Holy Grail."

Our service lies at our door. We never can see Jesus while our eyes are fixed on distant, future, glorious things that we dream to do. We can never see him until we see him in poor and needy humanity. There is a gold mine in humble service that men pass by unheeding, and run after the glittering "fool's gold" of fame and popular applause.

If men have failed to judge actions and opportunities correctly, they have also failed to judge other men correctly.

THE SHEPHERD OF MIDIAN.

In our mind's eye we see an old man, seventy-five years old, watching his flocks on the lonely plains of Midian. His garb is simple. His face is burned by the desert sun. There is no trace of the lily whiteness of city bred courtiers. There is little left to remind one of the sumptuous courts of Pharaoh. His humble clothing is covered with the dust stirred up by the restless feet of a thousand sheep.

Few looking at this man can see in him a great jurist, statesman, and general. Yet this is Moses. He is destined to become one of the most commanding figures in history. He is to be the great law-giver whose work shall form a basis for the laws of all civilized nations. He is to lead six hundred thousand fighting men, with their wives and children, out of Egyptian bondage; and organizing them, prepare the way for the growth of a great nation. His mind is to conceive the first books of the world's greatest literature.

Yet there he is, a disappointing figure, an obscure shepherd in a lonely land. Few men give a second glance to him who later shall be thronged all day long by men seeking his advice or begging him to judge their cases and settle their difficulties. He was of some moment when he posed as a prince in the courts of Egypt—but not now.

THE BOY WHO WAS LOANED TO THE LORD.

In imagination we see the child Samuel ministering "before the Lord, girded with a linen ephod." Everyone passed him by, seeing only a little child waiting on the temple service. They could not see in him the great prophet who was to be; the man who would make and unmake kings and priests.

There was something about this boy that could not be seen at a glance. He had been "loaned to the Lord" by his mother and God was with him. Most important of all, he had that character and disposition that enabled him always to do the will of God. His motto was, "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth."

It was this potential character hidden within the boyish frame, the fiber of the heart that beat beneath the linen ephod, that made Samuel great. And men could not easily see that character.

THOSE WHO WERE REJECTED.

Time would fail us to mention those of merit who were not only unappreciated but were actually spurned and rejected. There was Jeremiah, who came to his people in the time of their greatest extremity, predicting the ruin of Jerusalem and advising a national policy that would have been much better than the one that was pursued. His people saw in him only a crazy fanatic, or traitor, and thrust him into an abandoned cistern. It remained for the pagan conqueror to discover in him a man of ability and worth. There was righteous Stephen, stoned to death while declaring the truth of God; John the Baptist, beheaded for telling the truth about a kingly liaison; John the Beloved, banished to the lonely island of Patmos, rejected of men, yet worthy to behold the mysteries of eternity.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

History repeats itself in our generation. We see an obscure, unlettered boy coming out of the green woods on a spring morning. He is returning from his prayerful quest after spiritual guidance in one of "God's first temples." He meets a preacher who says: "Well, have you decided to join my church?"

With the light that emanates from celestial regions still illuminating his brow the boy replies: "I have had a heavenly vision. I have seen Jesus. I can not join your church now, for God does not approve of it."

The preacher retorts with anger: "Your vision is of the Devil."

The boy was Joseph Smith, and his rejection by the so-called "religious world" began right there. In due time God through him restored the old Jerusalem gospel in its simplicity. The church was restored, fully organized, with prophets, apostles, and all as at the first, accompanied by the ancient gifts and blessings.

Has the world been able to discern the beauty and value of this marvelous restoration? Not at all. Men are as slow as they were in the days of Christ to accept the old plan. Joseph Smith, like all of the ancient prophets, was unappreciated by the men of his own generation; and like them, he was murdered for his testimony. Jesus challenged the Jews to name one of the prophets that they had not killed or attempted to kill. They were silent. One generation kills the prophets; the next builds their tombs. When will men learn to accept and appreciate the good that comes to them in their own generation, instead of ever looking backward and saying, "Had we lived in the days of the fathers we would have accepted the prophets"? Had they lived in the days of Jesus they would have seen no beauty in him and would not have "desired him."

DESPISED AND REJECTED OF MEN.

Most melancholy of all melancholy spectacles of all history was the rejection of Jesus by his own people. Isaiah had foreshadowed that rejection in the wonderful fifty-third chapter of his book. The Jews had long looked for their Messiah, thinking to hail him with delight. But Isaiah said, "When we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not."

There was beauty in him, but they could not see it. His was the most beautiful character of all time; but they did not appreciate it because it did not conform to their standards. Having ears they heard not, and seeing they failed to comprehend. They looked at Jesus every day, yet never saw him. They had trained themselves to judge solely by external appearances, and Jesus did not come surrounded by pomp and kingly glory such as might indicate to superficial observers a great person, though in fact such often cover a mean and base character. His merit was in his character; but it did not advertise itself ostentatiously and was unsuspected by those who never looked below the surface of things.

It is an eternal fact in both natural and spiritual matters that those who do not care to search for values, and put things to the test, and investigate and prove, must be the losers. Diamonds are not scattered like pebbles on the beach; gold hides itself in the rocky veins of the everlasting mountains; pearls are not idly cast before swine. Swine are looking for corn and slop, and if given pearls would be disgusted and would rend the hand that sought to bless.

Men did not comprehend Jesus because they preferred something infinitely below his standard. There was beauty and worth in his character and teachings, but they preferred something of a different nature. Rejection of that which is good brings its own condemnation in the very nature of events, and that condemnation is not merely the indignation of a vexed God. He must condemn, even when he would prefer to bless, because he must always be in harmony with law.

THE REJECTION OF JESUS GOES ON.

Jesus was not rejected by a single generation. He has been rejected by many generations. And with him his gospel has been rejected. We present it to the people to-day but they see in it "no beauty that they should desire it." Yet it is the only cure for the many ills that affect this old world.

Men in the business world have taken up the cry for "scientific management"; but what the business world needs is Christian management. In the "religious world" we hear a great deal about the "men and religion forward movement." Get in the band wagon and make a noise and the men and boys will follow. What the "religious world" needs is a "men and religion movement" back to the old Jerusalem gospel, and an acceptance of Jesus in deed as well as in word. In the medical world men are elaborating methods to save men from the consequences of immoral conduct. What is needed is an acceptance of Jesus with his teaching: "Blessed are the pure in heart." A world-wide appreciation of that single sentence would blot out all social vice in a generation and with the removal of the cause would go the bad results that are corrupting society.

TWO LINCOLN STORIES.

Here are two Lincoln stories: Lincoln is considered the homeliest president that we have ever had. He was awkward, uncouth, and homely of feature. When he first went to Washington he was the laughing stock of the polished diplomats. Before the Civil War was over they ceased to laugh. Men ceased to think about the awkward body that God had chosen to contain a truly Christlike soul. They saw only the great dominant figure of that titanic struggle that battered down and wrecked many a handsome and polished popular favorite, but through the swirl and tumult of which stalked this great figure, intent only on doing God's bidding.

It is said that at one time Lincoln was riding through the woods. He met another man on horseback who drew a pistol and said: "Prepare to die, for I have sworn that if I ever met a man homelier than myself I would kill him." Lincoln looked the man over, and then with his characteristic humor said: "Fire away! If I am homelier than you, I do not care to live!"

There is another story of a mother, whose boy worn out with picket duty slept at his post and was condemned to die. The distracted mother forced her way past protesting secretaries to the presence of Lincoln himself and presented her plea for mercy. He asked a few questions and learned that the boy was only eighteen years old, and that he was on picket duty to relieve a sick comrade. Then he scribbled a note which pardoned the boy and set him free. Falling at his feet the mother cried: "Mr. Lincoln, they told me that you were a homely man, but I think that you are the handsomest man I have ever seen."

She sensed the character of Lincoln. She no longer saw his deep-lined and haggard face. She saw the tender and loving heart of the man who cherished "charity for all and malice toward none."

The Jews saw only the humble carpenter's son, the despised agitator, and there was no beauty in him for them. The disciples saw with clearer vision the character of the man who was to die on the cross. They saw him as the Son of God and the Savior of the world.

The salvation of the race depends on a clearer vision. This will come only when we are willing to study and also to accept the divine guidance of the Holy Spirit in our search for truth. Our redemption waits upon a dawning desire to find truth. God will help those who really wish to be helped.

Jesus said of those who rejected him: "Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

As the poor mother saw at last very clearly the beauty of Lincoln when he became her savior, so the Jews, and all others who have rejected Jesus, when they at last discern him as the Savior, will see the beauty that before was hidden, and every knee will bow and every tongue confess that he is the one altogether lovely. ELBERT A. SMITH.

A gentleman is a rarer thing than some of us think for. Which of us can point out many such in his circle—men whose aims are generous, whose truth is constant and elevated; who can look the world honestly in the face, with an equal manly sympathy for the great and the small? We all know a hundred whose coats are well made and a score who have excellent manners; but of gentlemen, how many? Let us each take out a little scrap of paper and make his list.—Thackeray.

What indeed does not that word cheerfulness imply? It means a contented spirit; it means a pure heart; it means a kind, loving disposition; it means humility and charity; it means a generous appreciation of others and a modest opinion of self.—Thackeray.

THE UNITED ORDER OF ENOCH.

ITS NEEDS.

The time having come for the beginning of the work of establishing the poor and those who are seeking homes, the officers and trustees of the United Order of Enoch, in harmony with the commandments of God, now call upon the Saints who can assist in the work, to at once begin to conform to the law pertaining to special contributions and donations to this order, and by so doing enable the order to perform the work enjoined in the law, at the hands of the people.

In view of the necessitous conditions of the order, the Board of Trustees has decided to put forth this brief statement and ask for a cooperative movement from the Saints throughout the world. It is no great thing that we are asking. We must have money to pay for lands already contracted for. Said purchase will allow us to offer to the Saints opportunities at about half the value of surrounding property. But we must have lands for agricultural purposes as well as town and village. Any wishing to purchase lots, send us one hundred dollars; and if, after inspection, you are not satisfied, your money will be refunded.

We suggest that everyone,—not only a few, but everyone—send us what you can, and send it now. If you represent the head of a family of three or five members, can you not send as much as three or five dollars? (More if you feel that you can spare it, even if it be by sacrifice.) If it seems impossible for you to send this all just now, can you not pay a part down and continue it for six months? To those who are more fortunate, can you send us from ten to one hundred dollars, monthly, for the next six months? If there are those who can spare from one hundred to five hundred dollars, send it at once. Do not wait till there can be found a certain number who will do likewise, but let us have your assistance now, while we need it. If sufficient can be raised (and we feel that it should be without delay), it will enable us to offer to those who desire city property, a good opportunity for locating. The money received from the sale of city lots can be used for the purchase of agricultural property for the locating of those who desire to follow pastoral lines of work rather than those of the city.

We wish to call attention to an article which appeared on the editorial page of the SAINTS' HERALD for July 3 by President Joseph Smith. Also a sermon which appears in the current issue of the Ensign, delivered by President Joseph Smith in Independence a few weeks ago. After reading these can we not hear from you? Brethren, will you not untie our hands?

Done by the Board of Trustees of the United Order of Enoch, at Independence, July 12, 1912.

ELLIS SHORT.

MARK H. SIEGFRIED.

E. L. KELLEY.

W. B. KELLEY.

D. J. KRAHL.

G. E. HARRINGTON.

B. J. SCOTT.

G. H. HILLIARD.

A. H. PARSONS.

J. T. CURTIS.

W. R. DEXTER.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

CHORISTERS' ORGANIZATION.—At last General Conference a movement was launched to organize the choristers of the church. Brother A. N. Hoxie, jr., of Philadelphia, was chosen general director for this purpose. In such capacity Brother Hoxie has visited Independence, Saint Louis, Lamoni, and other large branches and is arousing enthusiasm along the line of a general musical organization. The brother was recently in Lamoni and if hard work and enthusiasm will produce satisfactory results, we already predict success for the movement in his charge.

Original Articles

A REVIEW OF "MORMONISM AGAINST ITSELF."---PART 31.

BY S. W. L. SCOTT.

UNWARRANTED CONCLUSION.

On page 216, speaking of the revelation given to the three witnesses previously to their having viewed the plates, Elder Traum says:

Keeping in mind now that the Book of Doctrine and Covenants was published in 1835, and the Book of Commandments was published in 1833, this revelation does not appear in the earlier book at all; it is in it nowhere from cover to cover. The inference is conclusive, that this section was added to the later book, is itself a more modern publication, is a fabrication pure and simple, and was given for the express purpose of making coherent a yarn which under the wind of discussion incident to the coming forth of the Book of Mormon was being whipped into shreds.

Just because the said revelation was not printed in the "Book of Commandments" in 1833, is no evidence that such revelation was not in existence, and given at the time claimed for it. Such mode of reasoning would destroy the validity of the Bible. Jesus told his disciples, "I have yet many things to say unto you, but you can not hear them now. But when the Spirit of truth is come he will guide you into all truth, . . . and will show you things to come."—John 16: 12, 13. These "things to come" were not a part of the writings they then had, and of course when they did come by the revelations of the Comforter, had Elder Traum been present, he would have informed the church that it was a "later fabrication" for the purpose of making coherent a yarn which under the wind of discussion incident to the coming forth of the church was being whipped into shreds.

In Exodus 16:35 we are gravely told that the "children of Israel did eat manna forty years, until they came to a land inhabited, to the border of the land of Canaan." Now Traum will admit that this sixteenth chapter of Exodus was written before the last chapter of the book; and equally certain that it could not have been written before Moses died, for "forty years had not expired; they had not as yet come into the land. The point I wish to emphasize is, does this justify the mode of reasoning and conclusion based thereon, that it is a later publication, and a fabrication for the "purpose of making coherent the yarn" of Moses? Elder Traum knows that such a course in numerous other instances in the Bible of added matter, would remove the Bible from our midst.

Doctor Roberts says, in Companion to the Revised Version of the English New Testament, that from the best authorities on the subject we have "no fewer than seventeen hundred and sixty manuscripts of the New Testament in whole or in part." (Page 4.) On page 5, he suggests that the "most skillful and patient copyists easily go astray in the work of transcription." On page 23, Doctor Roberts says: "The Codex Beza is generally referred by critics to the sixth century. It contains only the Gospels and Acts in Greek and Latin, with a few verses in Latin (verse 11-15) from the Third Epistle of John. Many strange interpolations, and manifest corruptions occur in it, but it is nevertheless of great value."

For this great number (1,760) of manuscripts, the scholars have not access to the originals of apostolic autograph, in order to tell us just what was or was not in them. Beza edited the Greek New Testament, and published five editions, all of which were faulty, even without the originals for comparison. It is also stated on page 15, that the "insertion in the text of 1 John 5: 7, 8, was plainly due to a desire to uphold the doctrine of the Trinity." Will Elder Traum argue that such was introduced into the revelations of the New Testament "as a later fabrication, pure and simple, for the express purpose of making coherent a yarn which under the wind of discussion incident" to the development of the idea of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost as the triune God, "was being whipped into shreds"? He must answer.

We have, elsewhere, noted historic data, as to the printing of the Book of Commandments, and the cause of the faulty printed matter, the character of omissions, changes, etc., but on comparison with the original revelations, needed correction was made, and we have the "adopted" Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

MAKING A CASE.

On page 218, our critic takes a "hop, skip and jump" at the revelation given to Martin Harris, section 18, Doctrine and Covenants, but as he contributes nothing, and adopts such objections as Alexander Campbell said in debate with the infidel Robert Owen, page 358, "exhibit a very strange state of mind, and shows that the objector is entirely ignorant of the real grounds on which we assent to the divine authority of the revelations." Mr. Campbell was answering some objections to the Bible, precisely of a piece with these by Elder Traum; and those were infidel, and our critic must take gracefully the reproof administered by this "venerable patriarch," though it may not be so mild, on account of no inspiration, as was the reproof to Martin Harris, although needed to a greater extent. A number of revelations are simply ridiculed, without one stroke of the pen as showing them to be less than they claim to be. The same notice Traum gives them, is the one all infidels give the Bible, especially the Mosaic record. We give you a sample for your acceptance. See how long any divine revelation will stand under the fire of such criticism:

Says the skeptic, the Scriptures give us the most wonderful accounts of divine interference. Animals talk like men; springs gurgle from a dry jawbone; the sun and moon stop in the heavens in order that General Joshua may have more time to murder; the shadow on a dial goes back ten degrees in order to convince a petty king of a barbarous people that he is not going to die of a boil; fire refuses to burn; water positively declines to seek its level but stands up like a wall; grains of sand become lice; common walking sticks, to gratify a mere freak, twist themselves into serpents, and then swallow each other by way of exercise; murmuring streams, laughing at the attraction of gravitation, run up hill for years following wandering tribes for years from a pure love of frolic; prophecy becomes altogether easier than history; the sons of God become enamored of the world's girls; women are changed into salt for the purpose of keeping a great event fresh in the memory of men; an excellent article of brimstone is imported from heaven free of duty; clothes refuse to wear out for forty years; birds keep restaurant, and feed wandering prophets free of expense; bears tear children in pieces for laughing at old men without wigs; muscular development depends upon the length of one's hair; dead people come to life simply to get a joke on their enemies and heirs; witches and wizards converse freely with the souls of the departed; and God himself becomes a stonecutter, and engraver, after having been a dressmaker. He descends to niceties, and makes a pharmacist of Moses; himself furnishing the prescriptions, and informs Moses concerning the establishment of an apothecary shop, and gives him a first-class receipt for hair oil; hornets organize themselves into stinging battalions, and with javelin, and lance, drive nations off their inheritance to make room for the people of God; Jehovah substitutes the Urim and Thummim for Aaron's brains; a special mint must be established in an unheard of place, by unheard of materials, to pay the tax of a Jewish peasant, and a thousand other statements, incidents, and narratives of the volume of revelation could be brought under the test,—in the field where the lens used by Elder Traum would sweep them into kaleidoscopic ridicule. Such is not argument. It is simply arranging words, clauses, and sentences for the purpose of making a case!

In the reproof given Martin Harris, is doctrine revealed, of "God's punishment, which Traum would have never learned, save by revelation, until he passed within its awfulness. Reproofs are administered with reference to the degree of light and responsibility attaching to man. Martin Harris, like Peter, had received revelation from God; had viewed the things of God by his "power." Paul admonishes Timothy to "rebuke with all long-suffering, and doctrine" (2 Timothy 4: 2), and "them that sin, rebuke before all, that others may fear." (1 Timothy 5: 20.) In Revelation 3: 19 the Lord says, "As many as I love, I rebuke, and chasten." Paul says: "My son, despise not thou the chastenings of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him: for whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." Further, "God deal-eth with you as with sons" (Hebrews 12: 5, 6, 7). The time is yet future when "the Lord will render his rebuke with flames of fire" (Isaiah 66: 15) and direct such to "strong nations from afar." I advise Elder Traum to diligently peruse the injunctions God gave Israel under Moses, providing for an abundance to "tithes and offerings," of wine, oil, olives, grapes, corn, animals, and the "land." Then let him read the following reproof and compare with the one he ridicules:

But it shall come to pass, if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe to do all his commandments and his statutes which I command thee this day: that all these curses shall come upon thee, and overtake thee: Cursed shalt thou be in the city, and cursed shalt thou be in the field. Cursed shall be thy basket and thy store. Cursed shall be the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy land, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep. Cursed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and cursed shalt thou be when thou goest out. The Lord shall send upon thee cursing, vexation, and rebuke, in all that thou settest thine hand unto for to do, until thou be destroyed, and until thou perish quickly: because of the wickedness of thy doings whereby thou hast forsaken me. The Lord shall smite thee with a consumption, and with a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning, and with the sword, and with blasting, and with mildew: and they shall pursue thee until thou perish. The Lord will smite thee with the botch of Egypt, and with the emerods, and with the scab, and with the itch, whereof thou canst not be healed. The Lord shall smite thee with madness, and blindness, and astonishment of heart: and thou shalt grope at noonday, as the blind gropeth in darkness, and thou shalt not prosper in thy ways: and thou shalt be only oppressed and spoiled evermore, and no man shall save thee.—Deuteronomy 28: 15-29.

If this is not strong enough, let him read the second and third chapters of John's Revelation, where the "seven churches" are rebuked for their wrong. Lest he should say, such is too general and not sufficiently personal, or individual, as was Harris's reproof, we cite him to the one hundred and ninth Psalm and ask him to duplicate. Wonder if Israel could read these things in the Book of the Law "without rejoicing, and lifting up their heart for gladness!" Doubtless their expression "was much in the language that Exodus, 15th chapter, says they used on the day they saw the water divide, and stand up as walls: "Who is like unto thee, O Lord, among the gods? Who is like thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders."—Verse 11. If our critic should chance to see this review, he will doubtless see that his method of attacking the revelations would strike down the Bible.

A MORAL DEDUCTION.

On page 220, Elder Traum inspects, very partially, Doctrine and Covenants 27, and a more garbled and confused mass is difficult to find in the works of the rankest skeptic, blinded by prejudice. Reckless in the extreme is this critic, dashing on, cutting, searing, eliminating, disjuncting, and falling in blindness and rage. As in past ages, when the truth is being proclaimed, the government of God instituted, and Satan's kingdom begins to tremble because his slaves are promised freedom, counterfeits are pushed to the front, and unless there is a divine means of detection and protection, the kingdom of God is taken.

That Hiram Page has obtained revelations through a certain stone he had in his possession, is a fact of history. These revelations concerned the upbuilding of Zion, and the order of the church, etc., etc., and were all at variance with the order of God's house as laid down by the Bible. Oliver Cowdery and the Whitmer family were believing some of the things set forth by this "stone." This was at Fayette, New York. Now, mark you, Joseph did not learn of this affair until his arrival there from Harmony, Pennsylvania, which was the last week in August, 1830. The conference was set for September 1, not a week after Joseph learned of the stone revelations. Traum refers to this conference where the "stone revelation" trouble was settled, but in the meantime,—between the time

Joseph received information, and the date of the conference at which the difficulty was adjusted, Traum has Oliver Cowdery going to the Lamanites under the command of Joseph, taking Hiram Page with him, also at the command of Joseph, which Traum says, "was to get Page out of the way of his present environments, where it was known that he was a rival to the prophet." If Traum read that revelation he knows that these men were commanded "not to leave this place until after the conference" (see paragraph 4), and as Traum refers to the settlement of the affair at that conference (hardly a week after Smith arrived, and received information of it), what becomes of Traum's "moral deduction"? That Cowdery was requested to take Page along with him to the Lamanites and persuade him that the things which Page had been speaking were not from the Lord, is false to the record.

He was advised by the revelation, "to take thy brother Hiram Page, between him and thee alone," in accordance with the teaching of Jesus Christ in the New Testament, "and tell him that those things which he hath written from the stone are not of me, (God) and Satan deceiveth him,"—is the true reading of the text, and this all was done between the time of the last week in August, and September 1, at which time the conference convened, and all difficulty in connection with the "stone" was adjusted "to our mutual satisfaction and happiness." Can not anyone see the animus of this critic? A perversion of facts, and a perversion of interpretation manifesting a perverted judgment, shows the utter unreliability of the man.

The revelation points out, in strict conformity with the Bible that "surely the Lord God will do nothing except he revealeth his secret unto his servants, the prophets" (Amos 3:7), and in all the dealings of God with men in the past, he has ever recognized but one at a time, through whom divine directions to his people, as a whole, were given, for their government. Others attempted to "climb up into Moses's seat," but were promptly evicted. The usurpation of the prerogatives of Moses by Aaron and Miriam, recorded in Numbers 12:1-8, is to the point. They erred seriously in attempting to get into Moses's seat, and "the anger of the Lord was kindled against them," and they subsequently acknowledged they had "sinned." The Almighty stands for his own specific order in his church, as may be seen from the following: Hannaniah usurped the place of Jeremiah the Prophet, and attempted to give prophetic instructions as follows:

Thus speaketh the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. Within two full years will I bring again into this place all the vessels of the Lord's house, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took away from this place, and carried them to Babylon.—Jeremiah 28:2, 3.

Jeremiah predicted the return from the Babylonian captivity upon their serving the king of Babylon for seventy years, he submitted to Hannaniah the following test:

Nevertheless, hear thou now this word that I speak in thine ears, and in the ears of all the people; the prophets that have been before me and before thee of old, prophesied both against many countries, and against great kingdoms, of war, and of evil, and of pestilence. The prophet which prophesieth of peace, when the word of the prophet shall come to pass, then shall the prophet be known, that the Lord hath truly sent him.—Jeremiah 28:7-9.

This is substantially the same text the Lord gave in the instance of "Aaron and Miriam." Those individuals had wrought rebellion in the camps of Israel, and God stood out to vindicate his order. Hannaniah died in the seventh month of the same year. Jeremiah was the proper one, whom God installed as prophet, so we are informed in Jeremiah 1:4-10:

Then the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, Before I formed thee in the belly, I knew thee; and before thou camest forth out of the womb I sanctified thee, and I ordained thee a prophet unto the nations. Then said I, Ah, Lord God! behold, I can not speak: for I am a child. But the Lord said unto me, Say not, I am a child: for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak. Be not afraid of their faces: for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord. Then the Lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth. And the Lord said unto me, Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth. See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant.

We are safe, therefore, in the position that a specific order is instituted in the government of God, and added evidence may be seen in consulting Galatians 2:10, with Acts 15:19-28. Jesus says: Blessed is that servant whom the Lord finds giving the household meat in due season, when he comes. One such servant will be at the head of the house, the church when Jesus comes (Matthew 24:45, 46; Luke 12:42, 43).

In this instance cited by Traum, Hiram Page had violated the established order of the church, and smitten by a spirit of usurpation, will anyone doubt he was in a position to be deceived? Will Elder Traum argue that God did not do right in this, as in the cases cited in the Bible? Our critic must bear in mind that when men assume authority, and attempt official ministrations in a work to which they have never been called, they are not doing service for the Lord, and occupy a position in which they are easily deceived.

(To be continued.)

• • • • •

Thoughts put on paper are nothing more than footsteps in the sand; you see the way the man has gone, but to know what he saw on his walk you want his eyes.—Schopenhauer.

PROPER PROCEDURE WITH OFFENDING MEMBER PREVIOUS TO THE SITTING OF A COURT.

Read before the High Priests of the Independence Stake, by Robert Winning.

1. OFFENSES.

Jesus said of offenses: "Woe unto the world because of offenses (under existing conditions). It is impossible but that offense (shall) come; but woe to that man by whom the offense cometh."—Matthew 18: 7.

2. LOVE AND HATE.

"He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now. He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him. . . . He that loveth not his brother abideth in death. Whomsoever hateth his brother is a murderer. (Anger is a manifestation of hate, to the extent to which it may be indulged.)

"If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar."

"God is love. We are of God (if we love one another). (Because) Every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God."—1 John, chapter 2.

3. FORGIVENESS.

The Lord hath said, "My disciples, in days of old, sought occasion against one another, and forgave not one another, in their hearts, and for this evil they were afflicted and sorely chastened; wherefore, I say unto you, that ye ought to forgive one another, for he that forgiveth not his brother his trespasses, standeth condemned before the Lord, for there remaineth in him the greater sin. I, the Lord, will forgive whom I will forgive, but of you it is required to forgive all men, and ye ought to say in your hearts, Let God judge between me and thee, and reward thee according to thy deeds."—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2-4.

4. HOW OFTEN SHALL I FORGIVE?

"As oft as thine enemy repenteth of the trespass wherein he has trespassed against thee, thou shalt forgive him, until seventy times seven. If he trespass against thee and repent not the first time, nevertheless thou shalt forgive him; and if he trespass against thee the second time and repent not, nevertheless thou shalt forgive him; and if he trespass against thee the third time and repent not, thou shalt also forgive him."—Doctrine and Covenants 95: 7.

5. THOU SHALT NOT FORGIVE—WHEN?

"If thine enemy trespass against thee the fourth time (and repent not) thou shalt not forgive him, but shall bring these testimonials before the Lord and they shall not be blotted out until he repent and reward thee fourfold in all things wherewith he has trespassed against you; and if he do this thou shalt forgive him with all thine heart."—Doctrine and Covenants 95: 7.

6. HE THAT REPENTETH NOT, CONFESSETH NOT, SHALL BE BROUGHT BEFORE THE CHURCH.

"He that repenteth not of his sins, and confesseth them not, then ye shall bring him before the church, and do with him as the scripture saith unto you, either by commandment or by revelation, and this ye shall do that God might be glorified, not because ye forgive not, having not compassion, but that ye may be justified in the eyes of the law that you may not offend him who is your lawgiver."—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2.

7. OFFENSE AND RECONCILIATION.

The object of God's law is to save, hence the Savior said, "Moreover, if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go tell him his fault between thee and him alone; if he shall hear (listen to, consider) thee, thou hast gained thy brother."—Matthew 18: 15.

8. OFFENSE AND RECONCILIATION (SECOND STEP).

If explanation, apology, restitution, or reconciliation be not effected after patient, candid, and fair effort shall have been made by the one offended, then he shall take with him some teacher of the church, or if such teacher be not obtainable, or be an interested party, a deacon, if obtainable, otherwise a member, and shall try a second time to secure an adjustment of the difficulty existing, but shall not state the grievance to such officer or member, except in the presence of the party offending. (Rules of Order, 96.)

9. OFFENSE AND RECONCILIATION (THIRD STEP).

If no reconciliation shall be effected by this second visit and effort, the offended (remember always the mission of God's children is to save), if he shall so choose, may lay the matter before the presiding officer of the branch, or before the presiding elder of the stake (in accordance with the nature of the case), who shall cause to be appointed or appoint from the eldership of the church, such persons as may properly sit, to examine and try the case; or such court as may be appointed by the branch. (Rules of Order, 96, 158: 3.)

10. WORK OF RECONCILIATION BY CORRESPONDENCE.

"Where in cases persons can not meet together by reason of the great distance between them of travel, or other obstacles, over which they have no control, and which is sufficient to prevent meeting in person, the work toward reconciliation and labor referred to herein may be done by written correspondence between the parties."—Rules of Order, 96, 158: 4.

11. COURT SHALL BE APPOINTED—WHEN?

"Upon the failure of the accused to make restitution, or explanation, the court shall be appointed, and shall proceed to examine and try the cause upon the charge, the original of which, or a copy thereof, shall be furnished them by the party appointing them."—Rules of Order, 97, 158: 4.

12. CHARGES—HOW MADE.

"The branch, conference, or presiding officer appointing the court, shall cause the charge or charges made against the accused in writing, to be prepared, stating definitely and specifically what the offense is charged to be."—Rules of Order, 96, 97; 158: 4.

13. CHARGES—HOW WRITTEN.

It is better that carbon duplicates be made insuring absolute accuracy of the copies, one of which should remain in the hands of the presiding officer of the branch, one copy be delivered to the accused, and the original to the presiding officer of the court:

14. COPY OF CHARGES TO BE FURNISHED TO ACCUSED.

"Copy of charges shall be furnished the accused, if practicable, so that he may, if he so desires, make settlement of the difficulty by reconciliation or otherwise, and so avoid further action."—Rules of Order, 97, 158: 4.

15. COPY OF CHARGES—HOW FURNISHED.

"Copy of charges may be given to the accused by any teacher, or deacon, or member, in the absence of said officers, or if left at his usual place of residence, with a member of the family over eight years of age, it shall be held as given to him."—Rules of Order, 97, 158: 4.

16. WHO MAY APPOINT COURTS.

Stake president, branch president. A branch or conference at any business meeting by nomination and vote, may authorize presiding officer to name the elders of a court according to the nature of complaint, the time and the emergency of the case. (See Rules of Order, 90, 150.)

17. WHO MAY NOT APPOINT COURT.

Any officer in a case, in the issue of which he is a party in interest. See Rules of Order, 91, 150.

18. WHO COMPOSES ELDERS' COURT.

"Two or more elders, or other officers holding authority at least equivalent to that of an elder." Rules of Order, 90, 149.

19. COURT APPOINTS ITS OWN TIME AND PLACE OF MEETING.

Court "has the right to appoint the time when and the place where, it will sit to hear the case (provided that such time and place do not materially injure either party to the case."

20. NOTICE OF TIME AND PLACE OF MEETING.

Court shall give due notice of time and place of meeting to accusers, accused, counsel, witnesses,—to all expected to be present. See Rules of Order, 91, 151.

21. Court may require attendance of witnesses. See Rules of Order, 91, 152.

22. ATTENDANCE OBLIGATORY ON CHURCH MEMBERS.

Failure or refusal of principals or witnesses on due notice and request, is a breach of church discipline and fellowship. See Rules of Order, 91, 152.

23. DUTY OF ELDERS' COURT.

To make suitable inquiry, sit, hear evidence, and determine the truthfulness or falsity of the complaint made, which was the cause of convening the court, and report the guilt or innocence of members duly charged in such complaint. Rules of Order, 90, section 149.

• • • • •

DEALING WITH THE ERRING.—NO. 1.

BY CHARLES FRÝ.

Editor's Note.—It was our privilege to attend the reunion at Kirtland, Ohio, during the autumn of 1911. One of the very interesting features of that reunion was a series of lectures, or a "round table," conducted by Brother Charles Fry. These lectures were so interesting and instructive that we then and there secured a promise from Brother Fry to prepare a series of articles along similar lines for our use in the SAINTS' HERALD. Most of our readers are acquainted with Elder Fry; to those who are not, we present him as one of the presidency of the Quorum of High Priests, acting under General Conference appointment to the City of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, also recently selected as editor of "Zion's Ensign." The next article in the series will be entitled "Labor." It will be followed by articles on "Repentance," "Confession," "Forgiveness," "Charges," "Trial," "Penalty," in all eight numbers. The arrangement of subjects is orderly and logical. The Saints need education along the lines of practical scriptural procedure in dealing with the erring. All members, and particularly branch officers, should read these articles with care.—E. A. S.

OFFENSES.

Offense is a word having a very broad meaning, covering, from the viewpoint of the church, all the wrongs which may be committed in violation of the law of God. Webster defines it as "an open violation of law; a transgression; a crime." To meet our need under the law of the church the following definition is offered:

OFFENSE, an act, or condition, of a person, which infringes upon the rights of others, such act or condition being recognized by the persons affected and resulting in estrangement.

Of the many kinds and degrees of offense the following are perhaps the most common:

Against the physical body: as striking with the fist or with some weapon, kicking, projecting a missile toward a person by the hand or with some instrument such as a gun, pistol, sling, etc., putting injurious adulterations in foods, drugs, etc., causing pollutions to contaminate the air, water, or food which others use, leaving dangerous machinery unprotected or dangerous places where others have to work. The offense may be one of carelessness or neglect, as handling firearms or explosives under dangerous conditions, neglecting duty as an inspector, guard, nurse, etc.

Against one's feelings and peace of mind: such as threats to do physical harm, to take life, injure or destroy property; making disturbance by unnecessary noise; to unnecessarily endanger one's life, the lives of his wife and children, or the safety of his property; threats to injure one's reputation, to expose one's misdeeds; insults, especially before others. These, and many more, would destroy peace of mind and cause anguish of spirit.

Against one's property rights: as stealing, house-breaking, defrauding, refusing to pay debts, carelessly allowing stock to enter another's field, trespassing, and many others.

Against the reputation: originating damaging reports which have no foundation in fact; enlarging upon the faults or sins of another in retelling; telling of another's faults or sins to persons other than provided for in the law of God; implying by innuendo that which is not said, but which gives an unfavorable opinion of another, (innuendo "often increases the effect of what is intended to give pain or pleasure."—Standard Dictionary). Also writing or publishing matter which injures one's standing in the estimation of others.

Against society, or the church: In this class are laziness, uncleanness, needless ignorance, immorality, extravagance, pride; also disputings, quarrellings, covetous striving for property in division, drunkenness, swearing, etc.

Some acts which may be considered as offenses, and which are more strictly against the church rather than individuals, are teaching false doctrine, heresy, refusing communion, refusing to attend services, violating church articles, refusing to abide by lawful decisions of courts.

All these are but a few of the many offenses which may arise, but these are sufficient to show their variety and nature.

Rights are those things which one may justly be, have, do, and exact. Rights usually belong to all men equally, and true justice will not permit one man to deprive another of his rights. The rights of one person extend only to where they meet the rights of another, and they are never in conflict. Conflict comes when one attempts to usurp the rights of another. Such usurpation or infringement endangers the rights of all, and hence all law, both civil and divine, provides restraint for the aggressor, and guarantees protection to the innocent.

Through the perversity of human nature, however, men do not always know the bounds between their rights and others', and perhaps innocently deprive others of their rights under the idea that they are merely securing their own. But law is also designed to define man's rights, and no man living under the law is altogether justified in being ignorant of it. The civil law having its origin in humanity, defines man's rights as humanity has understood them, and could hardly be expected to be perfect, but at the present time civil law has reached a standard of excellence perhaps never before attained, so that he whose rights are maintained according to the law has little cause for complaint. The law of Christ only is perfect, and he who has come under this law and secures his rights therein will gain his all. This paper deals primarily with infringements of man's rights under this divine law.

All violations of the civil law are also in violation of the divine, for the Lord has said:

Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land (Doctrine and Covenants 58: 5), and for this reason offenses against the civil law by members of the church are to be referred to the civil courts, and the offenders are to "be delivered up unto the law of the land," to be "dealt with according to the laws of the land." (See Doctrine and Covenants 42: 21, 22.) The church is nevertheless under the necessity of dealing with such transgressors, unless they repent, confess, and forsake their transgression, and in dealing with such the record of their trial and conviction in the civil courts may be taken as evidence. (See Rules of Order, page 95.)

We believe there are but few instances where church members deliberately plan to give offense or violate the law. Stress of circumstances, temptation, the sudden impulse springing from some inborn evil propensity, the gradual leadings of selfish desire without controlling intelligence, are oftentimes the dominant causes of men's infringements of the law. The commonest and most serious mistake is that when men fall into transgression they so often seek to justify themselves therein rather than follow the law of repentance and confession. The civil law is harsh in dealing with those who break it, the object being to convict and punish. The divine law, though more strict, is more mild, and when the church through its officers deals with a transgressing member it is not for the purpose of convicting and punishing him, but to save him from his transgression; and only when he persistently refuses to forsake his wrong and be saved from it, can the church justly apply the penalty of the law, which is expulsion, and that is not for the purpose of punishing the man, but for the protection of others whose rights would be endangered were he left within.

No person is justified in committing any manner of offense whatsoever, for God has said that he "can not look upon sin with the least degree of allowance." When, therefore, a member is overcome and falls into sin and offends another, it is his duty to rectify it as soon as possible. The instruction of the Lord upon this point is found in Matthew 5: 23, 24, as follows:

Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.

When a member inadvertently falls into error, it is still within his power, (and it is his duty), to put himself right according to the law, and should he fail to do so, it becomes the duty of the party injured by his wrong to help him, or it may be the duty of the officers of the church to help him. The nature of that help will be shown in the paper on labor. The daily effort of every Saint should be, as the Apostle Paul instructed, to "give none offense, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God" (1 Corinthians 10: 32), but "to have always a conscience void of offense toward God, and toward men" (Acts 24: 16).

On the other hand, it is not the privilege of Saints to become grievously offended at the mistakes and minor transgressions of others, many of which would fade away because of their insignificance if let alone. To "watch for iniquity" is itself an offense which needs removing from the character of the one who does it, nor is it right to "make a man an offender for a word." He who has the love of God in his heart will not allow minor infringements upon his person or rights to disturb him very much, nor will he hold offense against anyone over matters of trifling concern. Charity "is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, beareth all things." He who broods over such trifles opens his mind and heart to the spirit of evil, which magnifies the trouble beyond all bounds.

According to our definition, an act does not become an offense unless it is taken cognizance of by the person affected and results in estrangement. If unity and love are to prevail in the church, estrangements must be removed. It must not be forgotten that the Lord is an offended party in every transgression; and reconciliation, to be complete, must be made to him as well as to the offended brother.

Offenses of a more serious nature, which are not soon settled by the offender, must be taken up by the one offended or by the officers of the church, and in the spirit of charity they must seek to reclaim the erring brother. If this fails and he "repenteth not of his sins, and confesseth them not, then ye shall bring him before the church, and do with him as the scripture saith unto you, either by commandment, or by revelation" (Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2).

Editor's Note.—The next paper in this series will deal with the question of "Labor." It is important that the labor performed with a view to reconciling estranged members or reclaiming erring ones should be performed in harmony with the spirit as well as with the letter of the law. Both are important. The object is to save, if possible, and in any event to protect the good name and vital interests of the church, and not merely to "make a case" that will not be thrown out of court. Nor should the scandal, of whatever nature, be spread abroad indiscriminately by unwise gossip. Many mistakes have been made along these lines. Read the next paper with care.

Of General Interest

The Guardians of Liberty.

FACTS ABOUT THE NEW ORGANIZATION, ITS PERSONNEL, PRINCIPLES, AND AMAZING GROWTH.

On the ninth day of June, 1911, Washington witnessed an event which was hardly second in importance to anything that has taken place in the memory of the present generation. It was the organization of the Guardians of Liberty. Men of the highest prominence in the affairs of the Nation, who from their exalted position were enabled to note the signs of the times that boded danger to the Republic, came together in consultation. The time was ripe for arousing the people to the duty of preserving their glorious inheritance of freedom no less from the danger of unscrupulous political methods than from the plotting of foreign ecclesiasticism to subvert the very foundations of human liberty and to make the church coordinate with the state.

At that conference, as though in response to a national necessity, the Guardians of Liberty came into being as an organization. Its rise since then has been phenomenal. It has received the prompt indorsement of the American people, by whose sovereign will it now exists. Its mission is to enlighten the Nation on questions that are vital to the continued existence of the Republic and to the maintenance of the great principles laid down by its founders.

As Minerva is said to have sprung full-panoplied from the brain of Jove, so the Guardians of Liberty came into existence spontaneously and with the necessary equipment for a great national exigency. In the highest sense, therefore, it is the creation of the Nation itself. It is not a political body, nor is it a secret society, as some of its critics have asserted. Its purpose is clearly set forth in its declaration of principles which we publish in this issue. Among its leaders are many famous Americans whose names and records are known in every household. Its rank and file, already numbering hundreds of thousands, include men of all shades of politics and every religious denomination. The sole qualification for membership is love of country and a conscientious determination to preserve its institutions, to protect the rights and privileges of American citizenship, and to defend them against attack.

The plan of organization of the Guardians of Liberty is as follows: The National Court consists of an executive committee of five members: Honorable Charles D. Haines, chief guardian, head of the court; Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, chief attorney; Major General D. E. Sickles, chief custodian; Rear Admiral G. W. Baird, chief vigilante, and Reverend A. E. Barnett, D. D., chief recorder. The national headquarters are at 50 West Twenty-fourth Street, New York City. On the list of national counselors are: General Horatio C. King, Brooklyn, New York; Doctor J. D. Buck, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Reverend Charles L. Goodell, D. D., New York; Isaac S. Hurst, Los Angeles, California; Rabbi Joseph Silverman, D. D., New York; David B. G. Rose, of Louisville, Kentucky; Major Edwin A. Sherman, of Oakland, California; Rear Admiral Trevor W. Leutze; F. A. Pope, national president Patriotic Order Sons of America; LaForest J. Paige, secretary Vermont Consistory, Thirty-second Degree; Robert E. French, grand custodian, Grand Lodge, F. & A. M., Nebraska; John Franklin Crowell, president American Civic Alliance; Colonel Ralph E. Prime, president American Flag Association; Colonel Henry H. Andrew, president American Peace and Arbitration League; Louis Annin Ames, president Empire State Society Sons of the Revolution; Colonel Henry H. Andrew, president general Union Society of the Civil War; James B. Gourlay, New York State counselor, Junior Order U. A. M.; Reverend L. L. Hand, State counselor Junior Order U. A. M., of N. J.; Major E. T. Paul, "American Continentals," Washington, District of Columbia. Local courts are created on application to the National Court, the form of application being shown in the photographic facsimile of a Local Court of the District of Columbia (which appears on page 647), accompanied by the signatures of its charter members. The signers of the Washington Court include Lieutenant General J. C. Bates, U. S. A.; Brigadier General J. C. Gilmore, U. S. A.; Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A.; Brigadier General Theodore Schwan, U. S. A.; Brigadier General Anson Mills, U. S. A.; Brigadier General C. H. Whipple, U. S. A.; Rear Admiral Royal B. Bradford, U. S. N.; Rear Admiral J. N. Hemphill, U. S. N.; Rear Admiral C. H. Stockton, U. S. N.; Rear Admiral C. H. Davis, U. S. N.; Admiral George Dewey, U. S. N.; Lieutenant General S. B. M. Young, U. S. A.; Major General C. F. Humphrey, U. S. A.

Hundreds of clergymen of various denominations in different States are on the rolls, and tens of thousands of workmen representing practically every trade. All are on equal ground within its ranks. All pay a nominal membership fee of one dollar. At its gatherings men of wealth and influence, pastors, professional men, merchants, tradesmen, and the humblest laborer meet on the common ground of love of country. They are knit together by the one desire to serve the Nation's best interests, and to prevent the laying of unholy hands upon its institutions. They stand for higher statesmanship, purer legislation, cleaner politics, national, state, and civic righteousness, the complete separation of church and state, and equal privileges for all.

The constitution is as follows:

"We, members of the order of the Guardians of Liberty, in national convention assembled, impelled by the conviction that the greatest treasure possessed by the citizens of these United States is that of civil and religious liberty, and with an earnest intent to encourage and promote a deeper, stronger and more active loyalty to the fundamental ideas of the founders of this Republic, do declare the following to be our

"DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES.

"First. We unite as a nonreligious, nonpartisan, nonracial moral force to promote pure patriotism and a sacred regard for the welfare of our country. It is our belief that every citizen should hold sacred his civil duties and responsibilities, and it is our desire and purpose that every office of the Nation, State and municipality shall be held by men of ability, integrity and true patriotism. We hold that no citizen is a true patriot who owns superior temporal allegiance to any power above that of his obligation to the principles of the Constitution of the United States.

"Second. As the fathers established, so are we resolved to maintain the complete separation of church and state.

"Third. We deny the right of any political or ecclesiastical organization to manipulate or control the sovereign citizenship of our people, or to dispose of their rights and privileges for political office or power, and we are determined that every citizen shall exercise his civil rights and privileges unmolessted, answerable only to his conscience and to his God.

"Fourth. We unite to protect and preserve the free institutions of our country, especially our public educational system, against any foreign or menacing influence and we particularly protest against the division of any public funds or lands to any religious purpose whatever.

"CONSTITUTION.

"Article I.

"Section 1. The government of the order of the Guardians of Liberty is divided into national, state and local courts. A state court shall not be established until the officers of ten or more local courts, in joint session, have framed a constitution and passed resolutions petitioning the National Court for a warrant to organize a State Court, and the National Court shall have issued such warrant; provided the State Constitution submitted by the petitioners shall be approved by the National Court. The petition shall state the time and place proposed for the election of State Officers, which shall be within thirty days after receiving a warrant, timely notice of such election having been given to all Local Courts within the State. State officers shall be elected by the officers of the Local Courts, a majority vote electing. The National Court shall take immediate supervision of all Local Courts until the formation of a State Court, and shall afterward assume such supervision whenever any local Court shall by petition of ninety per cent of its membership make such request, provided such supervision shall be for a period not longer than two years.

"Section 2. The National Court shall at first consist of five qualified persons who have subscribed to the Constitution and taken the obligation of the order at the time of its formation. The officers of the National Court shall be a Chief Guardian, a Chief Attorney, a Chief Recorder, a Chief Custodian, and a Chief Vigilant. The first officers chosen shall hold office until the third Tuesday in June, 1915, and until their successors are elected as hereinafter provided. The National Court reserves to itself the ultimate authority of the order and, as an appellate body, finally to pass upon all questions of policy and upon all disputes which may arise between the State and Local Courts. An appeal from a decision of the National Court may be taken to the National Convention by petition of three fourths of the State Courts. It may grant warrants of authority, for the establishment of State and Local Courts, and, for cause, recall the same, and may make such general rules and regulations as may conduce to the welfare, harmony and prosperity of the institution.

"Section 3. On the third Tuesday in June, 1915, a meeting shall be held in the city of New York, unless otherwise ordered by the National Court, for the purpose of electing a Chief Guardian, a Chief Attorney, a Chief Recorder, a Chief Custodian, and a Chief Vigilant. The Chief Recorder shall give at least thirty days' notice, by mail or otherwise, to all State and Local Courts, of the time and place of such election, and a majority vote of those officers of State and Local Courts present, or by proxy, shall elect. Thereafter biennial meetings for the election of the national officers shall be held under like conditions.

"Section 4. Advisory Board—Deputies. The National

Court, on the third Tuesday in June of each and every year, shall appoint an advisory board of twelve members of the order, who shall constitute the National Court of Counselors. Deputy or Departmental Guardians may be appointed by the National Court, who shall be granted warrants of authority to establish Local Courts, within designated districts, and to perform such other duties as may be set forth in such warrants.

"Section 5. Local Courts. Warrants shall be granted by the National Court for the formation of Local Courts until State Courts have been established, after which all such warrants shall be issued by State Courts. Five persons of constitutional qualifications shall be necessary to form a Local Court, and such Local Court shall be governed by a Master Guardian, a Master Attorney, a Master Recorder, a Master Custodian, and a Master Vigilant."

Other clauses follow, relating to the duties of members and the powers and duties of the National Court. Section 14 reads:

"It shall be the duty of all members to support candidates for political office who are good and true men, earnest patriots and loyal to the principles of the order."

Catholic journals have attacked the Guardians of Liberty on the ground that the new organization is a revival of Know-nothingism. Nothing could be farther from the fact. But Rome is afraid of the new organization, knowing that her own methods of political and ecclesiastical campaigning in this country will not bear the searchlight. Her truckling with presidential candidates; her arrogant claim of equality with royalty for her cardinals at public functions; her attitude toward civil marriage, and her imposition of the ban of illegitimacy on ecclesiastical marriages between Catholic and Protestant; her widespread interference in politics and her dictation to the "bosses"; her declaration that "the church will not come to her own until there are more Catholics in Congress"; and her demand, reiterated in her church organs throughout the country, that American Catholics should work together "to make of the United States according to a dream that is no longer visionary the first Catholic nation in the world"—these are among the reasons why the free and independent American people must jealously guard their privileges against a power which has been repudiated in every country in Europe, with one solitary exception.

Is free America, with its inheritance of liberty, to become Catholic America? That is the great question which now overshadows all others. Zion's Herald, an influential Methodist publication, puts the situation in a nutshell: "Unless all signs fail, the last stand of the Roman Catholic Church for supremacy is to be made here. . . . This is the explanation of recent events that have found their way into public print. Rome is determined to conquer in the United States. Her power in the Old World is all but gone. France has left her, Portugal has repudiated her, Spain has broken with her, Italy openly defies her. What is there left? Austria? Yes, but hardly anything else. If Rome is to continue a power, then she must be supreme on this side of the Atlantic. And here in the United States is to be made the last stand. . . . Do we want a Roman Catholic America? If not, we must be prepared to meet the challenge of the present."

Similar views are expressed by conservative journals in many parts of the country. Recent events have forced home the conviction that the Roman hierarchy is a political machine which aims to control the balance of power as between the two great parties, casting its influence in favor of those who are willing to serve, not the best interests of their country, but of the Catholic Church. "All the public pageants, the great military masses, and the monster parades of the Knights of Columbus are simply object lessons designed to impress the public and especially the politicians with the voting power of the vast political machine, which unites politics and religion so deftly as to justify the ruling of Pius X, who wrote in an allocution: "It is our duty to direct every individual, and also the rulers, in public, social, and political matters." Having already dictated the choice of judges, congressmen, and many high public officials in State and Nation, Rome is now engaged in attempting a far weightier task—to dictate the choice of a chief magistrate to preside over the destinies of 100,000,000 Americans. What a triumph for the Catholic Church to win in such a struggle! And what a humiliation for the Republic!

The Guardians of Liberty make no religious distinction, but regard all with the equal freedom and tolerance to which they are entitled under the Constitution. With creeds and beliefs they have no antagonism. It is only where a religion endeavors to impose itself upon the State and attempts for its own purposes to abridge the liberties of the citizen that the organization interposes in defense of these liberties, which its members are solemnly pledged to uphold and preserve. It means that with God's help and the united power of a free and independent people, no religious organization, papal, Protestant, or pagan, shall ever control the destinies of the Republic.

The chief recorder, Augustus E. Barnett, 50 West Twenty-fourth Street, New York, will answer all communications.—Christian Herald.

Letter Department

GRAHAM, TEXAS, June 25, 1912.

Dear Herald: I want to tell the Saints and friends of northwestern Texas that I am here to labor as the way opens for another year. I am pleased to be with you and am very anxious concerning the Master's work. I am willing to do more than my part, or more than I am able, for I was sixty years old the 7th of August. I can not walk like I once could, and the railroad will not carry me free. I hope that one and all will cooperate with me and the Lord, and some real good will be done. Do not expect me and the Lord to do it all, for if you do, you will be disappointed. You furnish the grease for the track and I will come and preach and you will have an interest in the business; otherwise you are unprofitable.

I am the bishop's agent, and am anxious to write receipts for tithes and offerings. I called loud and long last year and only received seventeen dollars and fifty cents; seven or eight of this coming from Avery, Texas. To me this sounds awful. Of course we have no branches and no district, but we have scattered members all over northwestern Texas. Sister Lizzie Simmons, of Wawaka, Texas, almost paid my expenses last year. Who will help this year? Wawaka, Texas, will be my field address this year. Send tithes and offerings there. Send grease to grease the track or you will have no preacher.

I am well and hopeful. I see tobacco and snuff used too plentifully by people called Saints, but they have no money. Hard times. Plenty of snuff. S. W. SIMMONS.

NAYLOR, MISSOURI, July 4, 1912.

Herald Editors: I thought I would let the Saints know that I will be ready to preach for them in southeastern Missouri at any time. I would be glad to hear from anyone that wants preaching, and I will try and accommodate them. I shall be out hunting new places as well as old ones. I would be glad to find new openings where the gospel message may be introduced and others be enabled to hear the good news, the gospel news, the angel's message.

H. V. BRAUN.

SUGAR LAND, TEXAS, July 5, 1912.

Editors Herald: I presume some would like to know how the work is progressing in this part of the Lord's vineyard. Though appointed to labor this year in the land of the Aztecs, Mexico, conditions there prohibit me, and the other missionaries sent there from going to that country. Brother W. H. Mannering and I, because of this, finally decided to labor in the southeastern part of Texas, under direction of those in charge. So, after the General Conference at Independence had ended, and the new conference year had begun, on the 17th of May I left Independence for Austin, Texas. This place I reached the evening of the 18th. I went immediately to the pleasant home of Brother and Sister H. H. Davenport, formerly of San Antonio. Brother Mannering had prepared for a meeting that night, so we went to work, he occupying the first evening. We preached alternately, and feel that we have been blessed in our humble efforts. As there was very little interest shown, we deemed it advisable not to hold forth longer than two weeks. This was the first time the gospel had been preached in Austin. One lady, a Missionary Baptist, though somewhat dissatisfied with her faith, attended most of our meetings, and finally bought a copy of the Instructor.

Leaving Austin June 3, we reached Katy. While here we were royally treated by Brother and Sister John Post, who, with their daughter, Sister Hobart, and son, Brother Rexford Post, all live here. We preached here for two weeks, in the nicest hall in town. The people that came nightly were of the Apostolic Faith movement. The attention and attendance were very good. We feel that friends are being made everywhere we go.

Houston was our next destination. We held preaching services here for two weeks, organized a Sunday school, and on last Sunday I led into the waters of baptism, Walter Birkland, Edith Armstrong, Elmer, Harold, and Stephen Armstrong. These are all noble young people and we expect to hear more of them.

Your brother in the faith,

CHARLES J. CADY.

KEOTA, OKLAHOMA, July 4, 1912.

Dear Herald: I take pleasure to send in my testimony. I am a new member of the church. Brother Quick baptized me at Skiatook, December 20, 1911. This is my first letter to the HERALD.

I am the only one of my family in the church. I have a husband, two girls, eleven brothers, ten sisters, a father and a mother. I want the prayers of all the Saints that they may come into the church with me. I have many trials and temptations. It is hard for a member to live as he would like to, when away from Sunday school and the sisters in the church.

I think the Saints are the dearest people on earth. May the Lord bless us and guide us through life.

JOSIE MCKINNEY.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, Station A, July 3, 1912.

Editors Saints' Herald: The Second San Antonio Branch is still in working order, officered by the following: Elder O. D. Johnson, president, which position he has held for a long while; Brother Robert Wheeler, priest; Brother O. G. Davenport, teacher; Brother A. R. Wheeler, deacon; Sister Viola Mannering, secretary and treasurer. We hold Sunday school nearly every Sunday, at 10 o'clock a. m.; preaching at 11; prayer service at 3; preaching at 8:30; regular prayer meeting Wednesdays at 8 p. m. Attendance not large, as a goodly number have moved away from the jurisdiction or the neighborhood of the branch. A missionary visits us occasionally and occupies the rostrum. Our district president preached for us on the 30th ult. Missionary Mannering's wife is living here while he is away holding meetings. He is one of the best missionaries that has been in the Southwestern Texas District. He has been in company of Brother Cady in Austin, Houston, and probably other places.

Your brother in the faith once delivered to the Saints,
W. H. DAVENPORT.

FALLBROOK, CALIFORNIA, June 30, 1912.

Dear Herald: I am writing just a line for your columns to tell you of another advance of our lines.

Elder Paul M. Hanson and Eugene Burr, (Campbellite) met in a sixteen night debate at this place, closing June 26. The propositions were: Book of Mormon, three nights; The Bible, final and complete revelation, three nights; Is baptism of the Holy Spirit essential to salvation? one night; Baptism may be performed by one not having authority from God, one night; Should there be apostles in the church to-day? one night; The dead are conscious between death and resurrection, one night; Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is in harmony with the New Testament church in origin, organization, faith, doctrine, and practice, three nights; Christian Church is in harmony, etc., three nights.

Reading from Anti-Mormon literature, evading the proposition and ridicule were the chief tactics by Reverend Burr in the first two and the last two propositions; the others were fairly well contested. We have heard no self-congratulations from the Campbellites since the debate but comments from outsiders have been numerous and favorable for Brother Hanson.

We hope to report further progress in the near future.

Your brother,

H. B. ROOT.

MCKENZIE, ALABAMA, July 1, 1912.

Editors Herald: I guess the Saints and friends would like to hear from the Southeastern Mission.

I am laboring at the present with Brother J. W. Dubose, once a Utah elder, now converted to the Reorganized Church. I find him death on the Utah people. As he once belonged to them he knows their position. Sunday, June 30, he led four into the water. Among the four were two Utah people. We find many good friends in this part of God's vineyard whom we have learned to love.

We will preach at McKenzie, Alabama, to-night. Then expect to go north to a new opening where Brother Dubose has labored in the past year.

Trusting that all things may work together for good to those who love the Lord.

LLOYD C. MOORE.

MERRILLAN, WISCONSIN, July 5, 1912.

Editors Herald: Just a few lines from this part of the vineyard. Although the Northeastern Illinois District is my field of labor, yet I have been called to labor thus far to quite an extent in Wisconsin. I am now just returning from the Northern Wisconsin reunion, held at Chetek, June 20 to 30. We wish to say to all the members not attending that it was a success, and all who attended were fully repaid for all the effort and sacrifice it cost. There were nine baptized and the preaching services were good; also the social services. J. A. Gunsolley was present in the interests of the Sunday school, Religio, and College. It was decided to hold a reunion at Chetek in 1913, and a new committee was selected for the work. We hope that there may be a better attendance in 1913. I stopped off here at Merrilan last Monday and am out in the country seven miles where I baptized two in June last year. Yesterday was July 4 and it rained all the morning, a very heavy rain that was greatly needed. There were three more to be baptized, so I attended to that in the afternoon in Hall's Creek. There was certainly "much water," as the heavy rain raised the creek greatly. The same thing happened last year when there were two to be baptized. We have suggested that when they have another dry time some one had better get ready for baptism and send for an elder.

I leave for home to-morrow and will say to the Saints of Northeastern Illinois that I expect to be in my field now in a few days. We hope all are remembering the joint reunion at Belvidere, Illinois, August 23 to September 1, 1912. Weather is very warm.

In bonds,

JASPER O. DUTTON.

PERRY, IOWA, July 8, 1912.

Dear Saints' Herald: The new church spoken of by Sister Isenhart some weeks ago is a reality, as will be seen by the following taken from the Daily Chief for July 6, 1912. This was written by the editor of the Chief.

"THE NEW CHURCH IS ALMOST COMPLETED.

"The new building in which the members of the Latter Day Saints denomination expect to worship in the future, is almost completed, and those in charge of its construction hope to have it ready for occupancy a week from to-morrow. If this is done services will be held there on that date.

"The church is a neat little structure and is located on Fifth Street, in the same block as the North Ward school-house. It is twenty-eight by forty-six feet, with a twelve foot ceiling, and rests on a three foot foundation. Everything about the church will be new, and it is expected to house a large congregation when opened.

"There are about thirty-five or forty members of the denomination in Perry and they are among the most active church workers in the city. Most of the expense of the new building they have borne themselves, but subscription papers which a few of the ladies have been circulating have been liberally signed by the business men.

"The ladies have agreed to pay for the seats and fixtures which will be used, and to-day started a series of exchanges at the Lida Willis-Snyder store, where they have sold many things from their kitchens. They expect to give these exchanges regularly, and as the baked goods, fruit, preserves, etc., are donated by some of the best cooks in the city, they will find a ready sale."

Week ago Sunday Brother Salisbury was with us preaching to the Saints after Sunday school. He also ordained Brother Fred Settles to the priesthood. In the afternoon about twenty-five of the Saints and friends went to the Racoon River where Brother Settles baptized three young people. After the confirmation Brother Salisbury with his wife and two children were obliged to return to Des Moines on account of other appointments.

We were made to rejoice over Brother Settles' calling, as now we can have a branch at Perry. If any of the Saints would like to help with the church they can send money order to Brother Fred Settles, Perry Iowa, as he is our treasurer.

I have one offer for help for the church that we do not know whether to accept or not. It is from the manager of the opera house. He has offered us one night's receipts from the moving picture show. I wish some one who knows if it would be right for us to accept this or not would write and tell me just what to do about it. The manager said he would get a religious play for that night, but some do not think it best to accept the offer. Please let me know as soon as possible, as we expect to hear from him before long.

There is quite a bit of sickness among the Saints here, but all are ready to obey God's command in regard to prayer for the sick.

Your sister in the gospel,
MRS. ALTA WALTERS.

1920 NORTH STREET.

Eastern Michigan Reunion.

The Eastern Michigan reunion of 1912 has passed into history and it will stand to the credit of all concerned. The first one for this district was launched in 1910, the second held in 1911, all on the same ground at Port Huron. Reunions were thought impracticable and impossible here, especially for the farmers, with shorter crop seasons and some added features of more labor required by some of the crops grown here. The impracticable and seemingly impossible has been accomplished, and a splendid success achieved; still it is only the prophecy of achievements ahead.

The reunion of this year was by far the best of the three, and, in some things in advance of all former experiences of the writer, even including General Conference occasions. That feature was the uniformity and high plane the devotional services reached and maintained throughout. Good services and then some not so good has been a common experience. These were uniformly good, the all-pervading peace of God in soul-satisfying degree attended all, while the outward demonstration of prophecy, vision, etc., added to the comfort at some of them; the trend of these being approbation of what was being accomplished and the occupying of higher ground in pure lives of entire consecration, the watchword and means of ultimate triumph. The young especially were encouraged. The meek and gentle Spirit was more in evidence in service and out among all ages. The young folks were discreet and careful, teachable, changed some plans for pleasure to other plans suggested that yielded more richly. Commonplace, everyday, worldly "fun" was minimized; other means of better realization accomplished. Young people's pleasures apart from services were indulged in, but of excellent selection and moderation. A proportionately deeper interest taken in duty and service in its time. Special commendation of this was given in heartfelt words from F. A. Smith, W. A. McDowell, J. A. Gunsolley, Sister Maggie Macgregor, and others.

A new feature this year was Sister Maggie Macgregor's effort along social purity lines for the ladies of all ages. The brethren woke up so late to this that the program for men and boys failed of execution—time for it was the same and available instructors more numerous. Moral: Speed up, brethren.

The organization of the Michigan Quorum of Elders; the work to be done by them; a place and time to meet for such work, together with Sunday school and Religio work, all emphasized reunion occasions as the way to supply opportunity for all these different lines, for which the district conference and two-day meetings are too short, as also for acquaintance and association among ourselves. When the voting time came for another, it was, I believe, entirely unanimous.

Elder Allen and fellow committeemen on grounds, supplies, commissary, and all, did well their part. Elder F. A. Smith and coterie of helpers conducted to success the services. The new helpers were W. A. McDowell, J. A. Gunsolley, and Maggie Macgregor. Brother A. Leverton did the work in patriarchal line mostly. Brethren J. J. Bailey and John Shields were present, but the latter only part of the time.

From over the line came too many to record by name, whose enjoyment and help seemed equal. Port Huron, heavily stricken with typhoid, deterred some, yet the attendance was excellent. Our genial Gunsolley remarked: "I haven't so much confidence in that bug business as some have." Such was his fear of contagion, and the campers seemed as a whole much of the same opinion. Nurses need hardly have applied in advance for situations. The weather was excellent. The writer having had a part in instituting reunions here, was glad to be present en route to his field, somewhat delayed by legitimate work. He was so heartily greeted and welcomed as to warrant saying he was welcomed by young and old.

The blessed occasion of this third reunion was enjoyed richly by all present; it will reverberate to others. Parting time came. Work for better success for the reunion of 1913—the watchword.

Happily, hopefully,
R. ETZENHOUSER.

Eastern Maine Conference.

The conference of the Eastern Maine District, which convened at West Kennebec on the 22d, was one of the best ever held here, at least that is what the "old timers" say. Our missionary in charge, Elder U. W. Greene, was present and presided, assisted by the district president.

Of the missionary force there were present Elders H. A. Koehler, J. F. Sheehy, and J. A. Koehler. The next conference will convene at Jonesport. Sunday was occupied as follows: in the forenoon we began with a Sunday school, this was followed by a lively prayer meeting, during which the time was too limited to permit all who desired to speak; sermon by J. A. Koehler. In the afternoon Elder U. W. Greene preached to a packed house, there being about fifty people on the outside who could find no room on the inside of the building. Following this a meeting of the priesthood of the district was held, then a baptismal service at which four were baptized. In the evening, preaching by Elder H. A. Koehler.

Saturday was devoted to business in the afternoon; in the evening one of Brother Greene's "boys," Priest Frank Dobbins, of Brockton, Massachusetts, occupied the evening hour.

Visitors to conference were given an exhibition of what it is to be hospitable by the Saints and friends of Kennebec. The large number of visitors were amply provided for and entertained.

Prospects for Eastern Maine seem bright. We trust that the effects of the conference will not soon wear away, but that the time and talents of the Saints will be consecrated anew to the work.

Let the Saints remember that "he that is tithed shall not be burned." Draw your own conclusion about the untithed. The writer is bishop's agent for Eastern Maine and is ready to give receipts for amounts from one cent up. Do not wait until you get a large amount before you remit; you may never reach the desired mark. A little done is much better than a whole lot of "going-to-do" undone. Some of you have done well. Let the ranks of the faithful be swelled.

Your brother, J. A. KOEHLER.

JONESPORT, MAINE, June 25, 1912.

The Stone Kingdom of Daniel 2.

"My kingdom is not of this world, else would my servants fight." This ought to be the key to the situation, as to the stone kingdom being a part, even in the least degree, of any government of earth. God does not pattern after human wisdom. Whatever excellency is in any human government is the result of a patterning after the government of heaven, as made known in past ages.

To the mind of the writer there does not seem to be anything mysterious, ambiguous, or hard to be understood concerning the matter. It seems like a plain, simple statement that at a certain time God is going to set up a government upon the earth. It is represented as a stone cut out of the mountain; hence a part of the mountain. That mountain existed long before the world was. It is none other than the government of heaven. When "his dominion shall be from sea to sea, from the river even to the ends of the earth," then that stone shall have become the mountain spoken of on the earth. This must be preceded by the preaching of the gospel, which the Doctrine and Covenants so plainly states in section 65: "The keys of the kingdom of God are committed to man on the earth, and from thence shall the gospel (italics mine) roll forth unto the ends of the earth, as the stone which is cut out of the mountain shall roll forth until it has filled the whole earth." The preaching of the gospel rolls forth and the setting up of the kingdom follows. Of course the "kingdom of our Lord and his Christ" will be a product of the church-kingdom (see Revelation 12: 3, 4). The mother must exist before the child, so let the mother (church) come, that the child (the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ) may follow. And why Christ, if produced by a "mother"? Simply because Christ is head of the church even as the husband is head of the wife—in other words, her husband.

It occurs to the writer that difficulty is involved in this matter only when we try to connect this kingdom with some earthly government; otherwise it is clear and plain.

H. J. DAVISON.

Theater Going.

When I read the resolution of the last General Conference about theater going, that "the church expressed itself quite positively as opposed to the habit," I felt very bad. The word "quite" qualified the "positively" and took away from it the decisiveness of being altogether positively. And the word "habit" gave it the sound at first reading that only as a habit it was opposed to it, and not the occasional going.

I inwardly repeated the sentence in the Book of Mormon, "Sin a little," etc., and wondered how much theater going was not sinning, and where the sin commenced. It seemed to me that many would take advantage of that statement to their harm, and some who had about made up their minds to obey the inward monitor that had been urging to take a firmer stand in holding fast to the covenant made at the waters of baptism, and renounce the theater, would see in that decision that the church was only opposed when it became a habit, which was equivalent to permission to attend once in a while. But maturer thought has shown me that my first view of the statement was as much a misunderstanding of the intent of the expression as to believe that God justified Adam in eating of the forbidden fruit because he gave him his agency in the matter.

• I now believe the motive in thus wording the decision was leniency towards the offenders in that line, lest they be dealt with too severely and cut off from the church. I can not make anything else of it without losing much faith in the leaders of the church being God-fearing and God-serving men, chosen shepherds of the flock,—God's children. To sanction going occasionally would be to lead into temptation; a temptation that while some may withstand, others could not. Sister Nixon has given the idea in her article, "The power and limitations of Satan," when she says she believes it is the tendencies these environments have on our personal, individual character that do the harm. And Sister Siegfried, in the same Autumn Leaves where she says, "The line can not be drawn except in making the sacrifice complete." And the admonition given of the Lord through Brother Bullard at the last April General Conference covers the whole ground. Will not our promising young folks who are doing much in many ways for the advancement of the work of the Lord, take more real pleasure in seeking to be worthy of those blessings the Lord said he was waiting to bestow than in going to questionable places of amusement?

Dear young people of the church and especially in the stakes of Zion, now is the time to take a firmer stand and let your influence be felt on the side of righteousness against the temptation that has recently come in your midst. Let the strong help the weak, and the Lord will help you.

Sincerely,

SISTER E. BURTON.

COLTON, CALIFORNIA, June 28, 1912.

Utah Take Notice!

Any of the Saints who may have relatives or friends residing in Provo or contiguous towns,—Pleasant Grove, American Fork, Lehi, Heber, Charleston, Springville, Spanish Fork, Castilla, Thistle, Salem, Payson, Santaquin, etc., are requested to cooperate with the undersigned as best they may, in securing a hearing for us and our message. Such cooperation will be appreciated, and blessed, we doubt not. And let Saints resident in these parts especially do all in their power to assist us by their faith, prayers, pure hearts, and righteous lives.

"Awake, Saints, awake! No time now for reposing."

"Awake to righteousness and sin not"! The blessing is ours if we live for it, in Utah or anywhere else. "And we know also that sanctification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true, to all those who love and serve God, with all their mights, minds, and strength."—Doctrine and Covenants 17:6. Jesus, in the greatness of his love, said: "And for their sakes I sanctify myself that they also might be sanctified through the truth."

—John 17:19. Are we sanctifying ourselves for others' sakes, that we or the truth may reach them? Let us do so. Let us "work out our own salvation," and not depend on another, "for by our own works we stand or fall," and "now is the day of salvation," if we use it. "He that thrusteth in his sickle with his might, the same layeth up in store that he perish not, but bringeth salvation to his soul."—Doctrine and Covenants 4:1. Are we complying with this pattern—with our might? Then we shall reap; save ourselves and others.

May peace, love, and truth, rest and abide with the faithful, even all the Israel of God.

M. F. GOWELL.

News from Missions

Indiana.

I arrived here last night in the rain, and it rained all night, until the Black River is out over its banks to-day. People are talking a great deal about the rain in this country as it rains about every other day, and the big creeks get out over the banks most every time. The people want the Lord to send less rain. They are getting either too much or too little to suit them, so they grumble, but they forget that the Lord has given them the law and promised to open the windows of heaven and shower blessings upon them if they will fulfill the requirements. On account of disobedience to his law the Lord has sent warnings to the world that troublesome times will come and that the world will be made to sorrow greatly. May the people give heed to the warning voice as the people of Nineveh gave heed to the warning of Jonah, and the Lord will send blessings in place of cursings.

Although the unfavorable weather has hindered us in the work to some extent, yet I have greatly enjoyed my work thus far this conference year. The Lord has greatly blessed me in my labors and my health has been better this year than it has for several years, for which I am thankful to our heavenly Father.

I have baptized six since General Conference; two at the Union Branch, near Wirt, Indiana. This branch has been about dead for several years, but when the writer held a two-weeks series of meetings in April it seemed to take new life, which was shown the writer in a dream before going there. The two baptized were James V. Fewell and wife. I received a letter from Brother Fewell a few days ago, stating that he has not used tobacco for about two months and is enjoying the work. I am glad to see quite a number of our young men in the church in Southern Indiana have quit the use of tobacco in the last two years, and a Sister Jove, at West Fork, who is eighty-seven years old, quit using it last winter. I saw her about two weeks ago and she says her health is better than it has been for some time. I baptized a Sister Forbes at West Fork a week ago Sunday and others are near the kingdom there.

Last week I held some meetings in the Sigler Schoolhouse, five miles southeast of Birdseye. I had a good interest for the busy time, as people were cutting their wheat. A basket dinner was held Sunday, and we sure had a time of rejoicing together. The writer was kept busy. Attended Sunday school, preached three times, baptized and confirmed two (Jacob Sigler and wife; they are both sixty-seven years old). Also baptized a Sister Bradshaw near this place in May. She also is in the sixties. The Saints of that place are poor, but they surely believe in doing what they can. May the Lord bless them in their labor of love.

My desire is to press on, that I may become of greater usefulness in the future.

JACOB G. HALB.

STEWARTSVILLE, INDIANA, July 4, 1912.

Ohio.

Being able to reach my field of labor for the year 1912, I came to Toledo and held some meetings with fair interest, there being a number of Saints in the city, and they being of that class who have a desire to do something for the Master's cause. Brother Hettrick and family moved to Toledo about five years ago from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and they are of great benefit to the work. They have started meetings and Sunday school, so have regular meetings every Sunday. Old Brother William Carns is taking the lead of the meetings for the present and it is deemed wise to organize them into a branch and Sunday school as soon as arrangements can be made. From there I went to Uniopolis, Ohio, for the purpose of taking part in the dedication of their new church, which had been completed in a year from the first talk of building. Arrangements for dedication were made for the 16th of June.

There were present R. C. Russell, missionary in charge; Bishop Becker, of the district; George A. Smith, of Ray, Indiana, he being among the first to bear the gospel message to the people of that place. Considerable rain fell during Saturday and Sunday, which prevented a number of the neighbors from attending. The Saints were present and a profitable time was had, the services being of a very intellectual order. The Saints were very much edified by the meetings.

The time set for the dedicatory services was Sunday afternoon. Brother George Smith had charge of the opening exercises, and Brother Russell delivered the dedicatory sermon. Bishop Becker received the property for the church and presented the key to the deacon to keep the church open for religious worship, etc. The dedicatory prayer was offered by the writer.

The building is of wood, size about twenty-four by thirty feet, and has a seating capacity of about one hundred and fifty. It is plastered on the inside and lap-sided on the outside, painted white, with a belfry and bell. It presents a neat appearance and the Saints and friends deserve credit for their work. I hope it will long stand, its doors kept ajar for the gospel news to be told, and its numbers swell till it will have to be enlarged to accommodate the people.

From there I accompanied Brother Becker to Kirtland, remaining there a few days, meeting with Saints in worship and at their homes. The old Temple presents a very pleasing appearance since Brother Hulmes has been touching it with his brush and paint. It looks good for another century. Brother C. Ed Miller keeps hustling, keeping things in place and making a pleasant appearance to the visitor. Patriarch Lake and wife are still sojourners, though age is doing its work, both being quite feeble. Brother Lake has charge of the kitchen department and Sister Lake allows him to do it, he being the most able of the two. They are patiently waiting for the change and both are cheerful in the conflict.

Some improvements have been made on the hotel, which makes it more cheerful. Sister Liston, of Wheeling, West Virginia, has charge, and makes a good innkeeper. We wish her success.

From there Brother Becker and I came to this place to operate the tent. We have been holding forth for about a week, and interest is fair. Saints and friends are very kind to us and are doing their part nobly so far, and if interest demands we expect to remain here until the time of the reunion to be held at Kirtland, commencing about August 16. We will be better able to report our success here later on.

SAMUEL BROWN.

WARREN, OHIO, July 2, 1912.

News from Branches

Independence, Missouri.

The memorial service of the sixty-eighth anniversary of the martyrdom of the Prophet Joseph Smith and Hyrum Smith was held at the Stone Church June 27 and the program proved to be a very interesting and instructive one. Much important information was imparted in the addresses made by Bishop E. L. Kelley, Mark H. Siegfried, President F. M. Smith and President Joseph Smith, and the musical part of the same was entered into by the congregation and choir in the true spirit of the gospel. Also Sister Ruth Smith gave an impressive and appropriate reading, and Patriarch E. C. Briggs offered the opening prayer.

The Independence Chautauqua will be held in a large tent on Pleasant Street, July 14 to 21. The Reverend W. R. Nelson, of the Memorial Methodist Church here, will be manager.

On Sunday, June 30, the attendance of the Sunday school was 806. Elder Hale W. Smith discoursed on the gifts of the gospel, treating on healing especially, at the morning hour, and in the evening Mr. E. J. Moore, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League gave an earnest talk on the saloon question before a small, but appreciative audience, and at the close a subscription was taken up for the purpose of carrying on the work.

The sultry condition of the weather seemed to be the cause of the late decrease in attendance at many of the meetings; but the announcement by Brother Krahl of a Sunday school picnic to be held at the Fair grounds on the Fourth of July was hailed with delight by the children. In fact this gathering proved to be a very successful one for both old and young, for every feature was well provided for, and many were the favorable comments made concerning the efforts of the orchestra, the address of Elder T. W. Chatburn and response by President Joseph Smith; also there was among all a fine spirit of congeniality displayed.

At the business meeting of July 1 about one hundred and twenty-five were present, with Elder W. H. Garrett in the chair and Sister Louise Geisch as secretary. Beside the routine business, several matters of importance were attended to by suggestion of President G. E. Harrington, and a recommendation was entertained for the ordination of three of our young men to offices in the priesthood. Among them was Brother Harold Bullard, whose ordination took place under the hands of Harry Hattey and M. H. Bond at the Wednesday night prayer meeting of July 3. The number of letters received was two, also letters granted two; the matter of church repairs and finishing of the towers was fully discussed also.

Although the mercury has for several days registered from 89 to 92 degrees, the attendance at Sunday school on the 7th was 831, and even that of the first primary, 144. The pulpit in the morning service was occupied to the edification of the Saints by Bishop G. H. Hilliard, and in the evening by Elder W. H. Kelley. While there are still a few cases of sickness, Sister Bonnie Scott—(by mistake named Sherman in our last) lingering with typhoid, and among the little folks, several being afflicted with whooping cough, yet the Saints have been greatly blessed in many ways, and can sing:

"In all my afflictions to thee would I come, Rejoicing in hope of my glorious home."

ABBIE A. HORTON.

Cleveland Ohio.

Since our last letter Cleveland Branch is putting on a more flourishing appearance, now we have Elder Richard Baldwin with us. He is the right man in the right place.

We have had large, interested crowds at the open air park services, and he has presented some indisputable facts to the members of the union services who have arrived in time to attend the service which commences at the close of ours.

We have been visited and received good cheer from Elders H. O. Smith and Gomer T. Griffiths. One baptism this morning, William Frank Webbe, nine years old, who received great words of promise under the confirming hands of Brother Baldwin.

The Spirit was in evidence this morning at the sacrament service and we have reason to believe that acorns can grow into sturdy oaks. Some are at the street services who were against street work formerly.

CORRESPONDENT.

Fall River, Massachussetts.

A line or two, or maybe more,
We write to you, but not to bore;
Just simply to, in words concise,
Convey to you these notes precise.

On July 1 was held the business meeting and election of officers for the ensuing term. The ones chosen to perform the duties of the different offices are as follows: Elder H. O. Smith, pastor; James Walter Heap, first priest; William Wylie, first teacher; Charles Cockcroft, first deacon; Lavina S. Ashton, organist; Enanora Whiting, chorister; William Baldwin, book agent, and Alma M. Coombs, library commissioner and correspondent.

On the Fourth of July was held the semiannual picnic of the Sunday school. The weather being fine, and all desirous of enjoying themselves, the result was a very enjoyable picnic. The participants returned home refreshed, happy, and also very much sunburnt.

A few evenings past, the class of John Pilling, sr., assembled at the home of Doctor and Mrs. Milton J. Gilbert to commemorate the anniversary of his birth. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present. Many and varied were the games. After refreshments were served the host was presented with a pretty and useful token. With wishes for many happy returns of the day, the guests then took their departure.

Lest we should by writing more,
Tell all the news and then deplore
The act, when at some future date,
We'd wish some topic to relate
And find, when we took pen in hand,
Our thoughts, a scattered, fleeing band,
We'll close and wish Saints everywhere
Good will, peace, and the answered prayer.

ALMA M. COOMBS.

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

EASTERN WALES.—Conference convened at Gloucester, May 25 and 26, 1912; presided over by District President E. J. Trapp; assisted by Vice President A. Jones. Statistical reports read as follows: Cardiff, 24; Gloucester, 39, gain 8; Nantyglo, 18. Elders reporting: G. Cope, A. Jones, Thomas Jones, James Evans, E. J. Trapp, Thomas Gould. District treasurer, P. Niles, reported: Receipts, £5, 2s, 6d; expenditures, £5, 1s, 2d. Bishop's agent, Thomas Jones, reported receipts of five shillings. Four members of the late Lydney Branch were expelled from the church, they having failed to make proper restitution according to findings of the elders' court. The following resolution was carried unanimously: "That this conference of the Eastern Wales District expresses its disapproval of the rota plan missionary system for reasons stated at our February conference of this year." Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the re-election of all officers as follows: E. J. Trapp, president; A. Jones, vice president; A. T. Trapp, secretary; P. Niles, treasurer. At 11 a. m. Sunday, the speakers were Thomas Jones and Thomas Gould. Fellowship meeting at 2.30, at which the good Spirit was present and a few encouraging testimonies uttered. At 6.30 the speaker was E. J. Trapp. Adjourned to meet at the call of the district president. A very enjoyable time was spent throughout the conference. This is the second conference of our church that has been held at Gloucester. Since the first one the local Saints have procured a new meeting hall which is much more convenient than the other. They are now looking forward to another gathering of the kind. A. T. Trapp, secretary.

ALABAMA.—District conference convened with the Lone Star Branch March 23, 1912. J. R. Harper and F. M. Slover were chosen to preside over the conference. All visiting Saints were allowed voice and vote in the conference. Officers reporting: Elders: J. R. Harper, F. M. Slover, W. J. Booker, G. O. Sellers, A. G. Miller, J. G. Vickrey. Priests: A. A. Weaver, A. G. Booker, W. A. Odom. Teachers: G. E. Wiggins. Deacons: J. W. Baldwin and L. G. Sellers. Bishop's agent reported on hand last report, $2; received since, $506.25; paid out, $318; balance on hand, $190.25. Agent's books were audited and found correct. Branches reporting: Pleasant Hill 256; Lone Star 157. The tent committee reported nothing done. Moved that the tent committee purchase a tent before next conference; if not purchased by that time the means secured for that purpose to be used for some other purpose to be designated by the conference. Motion laid on the table. G. W. Miniard offered his resignation as one of the tent committee, which was accepted, and A. A. Weaver was elected as one of the tent committee. The committee was instructed to confer with the Mobile District in regard to the purchase of a tent. W. H. Drake was ordained to the office of teacher. A motion prevailed that A. A. Weaver be ordained to the office of elder, if he would accept, and it is so directed by the branch to which he belongs. F. M. Slover, J. W. Dubose, Sister Alice Pickens, and Brother S. S. Smith were elected as delegates to General Conference, with authority to cast the full vote of the district; also majority and minority vote. It was decided by motion that this district adopt the same form of report blank that they use in the Mobile District, and the secretary was authorized to draw means from the treasurer and have five hundred copies of these report blanks printed. H. H. Wiggins was elected treasurer, with authority to collect means for the purpose of having these report blanks printed, and also for other expenses. The time and place of next conference was left in charge of the president and vice president of the district. G. W. Miniard, secretary, McKenzie, Alabama.

MINNESOTA.—On June 29, 1912, the Minnesota district conference convened in the reunion tent at Clitherall, J. W. Wight presiding, with L. A. Gould and L. Whiting to assist. Ministers reporting in writing: Jacob Harpster, F. G. Barnes, P. W. Martin, G. Guy Buell, D. A. Whiting, A. W. Whiting, H. Way, W. C. Griffin, George Day, M. O. Erickson, T. J. Martin, L. Whiting, Charles Lundeen, Henry C. Smith, L. A. Gould, L. Houghton, and B. S. Lambkin. All branches reported: Minneapolis 112, Oak Lake 71, Bemidji 55, Audubon 86, Union 180. Reports of bishop's agent and auditing committee were read and adopted. Two recommendations for ordination were presented and were referred to a committee of the ministers in charge and the district president, with power to act. It was moved and carried to unite the Audubon and Oak Lake branches. This matter also was referred to the last named committee, with power to act. Time and place for holding the next conference were left to the district president. Officers elected for the ensuing year: Leon A. Gould, president; Lurett Whiting, vice president; Hallie M. Gould, secretary-treasurer; Eleanore Whiting, member of the library board. Hallie M. Gould, secretary.

NEW YORK.—District conference held at Niagara Falls, New York, June 8 and 9, 1912. Conference was called to order by district president, Elder Stone. Organization for conference resulted in the selection of Elder Stone to preside, assisted by Elder Booker; the district secretary to act as secretary, with power to choose assistant; the chorister of Niagara Falls Branch to act as chorister; Anna Landes to act as organist, with power to choose assistants; the branch deacon and ushers to act as ushers. Visiting members granted the privilege of the floor. Frank Mesle and Lila Schofield appointed press committee. Morning session devoted to short speeches by Saints present. Statistical reports from Niagara Falls, New York, Buffalo, and East Pharsalia branches read and accepted. Ministerial reports of Elders Stone, Joy, Mesle, Lewis, Rathbun, and Brothers; Priests I. G. Davis and George Landes, and assistant priest William Landes, accepted and read. Treasurer's report read and book referred to an auditing committee, composed of Thomas Irvin and Frank Mesle. Bishop's agent's report from January to June, 1912, read and accepted. Order of meetings conference resulted in the selection of Elder Stone to day 8 p. m.; Sunday, prayer and baptismal service, 8 a. m.; Sunday school, 9.30 a. m.; prayer and sacrament service, 2.30 p. m.; preaching service, 7.30 p. m. The selection of speakers left with Sisters Updyke and Lila Schofield, and Brother Loveland. Petition from the district Religio asking the district to meet in conference on Saturday afternoons in future, rather than in the mornings, in order to leave Saturday forenoon for the Religio business, instead of Friday afternoon, granted. Motion prevailed that every officer of the district, high priest, elder, priest, teacher, or deacon should report to district conference. Report of auditing committee on treasurer's report and book, read and recommendations adopted. Organization resulted in the following district officers: President, A. E. Stone; associates, Frank Mesle and L. Lewis; secretary, Lila Schofield; treasurer, William Brothers; librarian, William Landes. Motion prevailed that collections be taken up at all preaching services of conference, and special collection at sacrament service, amount so collected to be divided amongst the missionaries of the district present. Motion prevailed that when conference adjourned, it do so to meet at Buffalo, New York, the first Saturday and Sunday in October, 1912, at 8 p. m. Collection, $1.41. Prayer service in charge of Floyd Rathbun and George Landes. Preaching by Elder Booker. Collection $2.42. Prayer and sacrament service. Special collection $7.38. Preaching by Elder A. E. Stone. Collection $3.39. A vote of thanks was extended to Niagara Falls for the entertaining of conference. Lila B. Schofield, secretary New York District.

NOVA SCOTIA.—Thirty-first annual conference of Nova Scotia District convened at the tent at Glenville, Nova Scotia, June 29. Elder U. W. Greene was elected president of conference, Elder Anderson associate. L. O. Johnson gave a verbal report of work done during the year. Elder Anderson gave an encouraging report in regard to prospects for future work in the district. Elder Shirk also made verbal report. Statistical report of Williamsdale Branch was read: Present number 24; no report from South Rawdon Branch. Bishop's

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 Unsuspected Values - - - - - 677
 The United Order of Enoch - - - - - 681
 Notes and Comments - - - - - 681

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 A Review of Mormonism Against Itself.—Part
 31, by S. W. L. Scott - - - - - 681
 Proper Procedure with Offending Member previous to the Sitting of a Court, by Robert Winning - - - - - 685
 Dealing with the Erring.—No. 1, by Charles Fry - - - - - 686

OF GENERAL INTEREST - - - - - 688

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 690

S. W. Simmons—H. V. Braun—Charles J. Cady —Josie McKinney—W. H. Davenport—H. B.
 Root—Lloyd C. Moore—Jasper O. Dutton—
 Mrs. Alta Walters—R. Etzenhouser—J. A.
 Koehler—H. J. Davison—Sister E. Burton—M.
 F. Gowell.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 694
 Jacob G. Halb—Samuel Brown.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - - 695
 Abbie A. Horton—Correspondent—Alma M.
 Coombs.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 696

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald," All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

agent's report showed a balance of $13.50 and was referred to auditing committee; K. Hyatt's bill for $1.96 was read, and motion prevailed that a collection be taken to meet it. Brother Anderson was appointed president of district for ensuing year. He selected as his counselors Oliver Shirk and L. O. Johnson. Anna O'Brien was appointed district secretary and treasurer for ensuing year. Elders Anderson and Shirk were appointed delegates to General Conference April 6, 1913. Secretary was instructed to buy a district record book and keep a record of the members of the district. Motion prevailed that a fund be raised to meet missionary expenses, buying of record, etc.; also a motion that district request branches to take up a collection each month for that purpose. A motion prevailed that at all conferences hereafter sacrament be served. Auditors examined bishop's book and reported it correct. Time and place of next conference were left to presidency of district, also appointment of services, which was as follows: Preaching at 8 p. m., prayer and sacrament at 9.30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m., baptism at 2 p. m., preaching and confirmation at 3 p. m., and preaching at 7.30 p. m. Everyone felt encouraged, feeling that the Spirit's power accompanied the conference throughout. William Anderson, president; Annie O'Brien, secretary.

Convention Minutes.

MINNESOTA.—Sunday school convention convened at Clitherrall, Minnesota, at 4.30 p. m., June 26, 1912. Called to order by superintendent P. W. Martin, who took charge. There being so few delegates present, a motion prevailed to suspend the rules and make this a mass convention. Reports read from secretary, treasurer, and home department superintendent. Election of officers resulted in the choice of M. Jepson, superintendent; L. Houghton, assistant superintendent; Alta Kimber, secretary; Ralph Murdock, treasurer; Ethel Tucker, home department superintendent; Penn Martin, member of library board. Adjourned to meet at time and place of fall conference to be set by district superintendent. Mrs. J. W. O'Neil, secretary.

Conference Notices.

Conference of the Southern Nebraska District will convene with the Blue River Branch, at Wilber, Nebraska, September 21 and 22, at 10 a. m. All branches send reports to H. A. Higgins or bring them with you. All are invited to join in conference with the Wilber Saints. W. M. Self, president.

The conference of the Eastern Colorado District will meet with the Colorado Springs Branch, September 14 and 15, 1912. Branches will please send all reports to E. J. Williams, 1210 South High Street, Denver, Colorado, in plenty of time for the above meeting. E. F. Shupe, president; E. J. Williams, secretary.

The Florida district conference will meet with the Alafloza Branch, Dixonville, Alabama, Saturday, August 10, at 10 a. m. Branch presidents, please see that your branch reports are properly presented and acted upon by your branch and signed by your president and secretary. Also try without fail to make these reports, as this is the way our general secretary is kept in touch with the changes in your branch. We expect some of the missionary force with us. Let all come. C. J. Clark, president; E. N. McCall, secretary, Dixonville, Alabama, July 4, 1912.

Convention Notices.

Southwestern Oregon Sunday school association meets with reunion at Bandon Oregon, July 26 to August 4. Day will be set at reunion. Sunday school workers are requested to come prepared to discuss Sunday school work. Pearl Goodman, district secretary.

Reunion Notices.

Southwestern Oregon reunion will be held at Bandon, Oregon, July 26 to August 4, 1912. It is hoped that as many as possible will come prepared to camp. An effort is being made to have able speakers. Look for further notice. A. A. Baker, district president, Bridge, Oregon.

The Saints of the Eastern Colorado District will meet in reunion at Cottonwood Grove, southeast of Wray, Colorado, August 16 to 24, 1912. Teams will meet those coming by train at Wray, the 15th and 16th, and convey them to the grounds free of charge. Those coming at a later date will please notify the secretary in time that arrangement may be made for their conveyance. Those wishing tents will also notify the secretary in time, as the committee wish to have plenty of tents to accommodate all who attend. Pasture with running water will be furnished free. Elder John W. Rush-ton has signified his intention to be present, as well as others of the missionary force. A long pull, and a strong pull to make this the best meeting of the kind ever held in the West. E. F. Shupe, F. A. Russell, L. G. Holloway, committee. Please notify Mrs. A. E. Tabor, Wray, Colorado, secretary, of your intentions, not later than August 1.

Just having received notice of our appointment to the vacant chairmanship of the reunion committee of the Northern California and Nevada reunion, and knowing the time draws near, we hasten to give notice that the above reunion will be held at Irvington, Alameda County, California, the usual place as already arranged for by the committee, commencing August 31, and will continue ten days. The accommodations will be fully up to or in excess of last year. Tents will be about the same rental, 8 by 10, $2.15; 10 by 12, $2.65; 12 by 14, $3.15. These prices are flexible. The dining room will be conducted the very best possible. Rooms can be procured as last year. Straw and wood will be furnished as cheaply as possible. The committee guarantee they will do all in their power to make the reunion a success; if all others do the same, success is already written on our banner. F. M. Sheehy expects to be present and informs us that Daniel Macgregor, our general Sunday school superintendent, will also be in attendance who, together with our missionaries and local officers will guarantee a long ministerial force. We are now ready to receive orders for tents and springs and mattresses, also for rooms if any wish them. As the time is near at hand, August 31 to September 9 inclusive, we hope all will take a deep interest and help to make it a spiritual feast. If orders are sent to me I will care for them. The district conference will convene on Monday, September 2, at 10 o'clock, and the Sunday school and Religio conventions as they may arrange. Let us all labor together with an eye single to the good of the blessed cause. Further particulars will be published as they are formulated by the committee. J. M. Terry, 1202 Fourteenth Street, Oakland, California, July 4, 1912.

Those desiring tents for the Rich Hill reunion, August 23 to September 1, should write James Houston, at that place early, so they may be secured. Only one size, 10 by 12, price $2 for ten days. The committee will do all in their power to accommodate the campers. W. S. Macrae.

The Northwestern Missouri reunion will convene on August 23, and continue for ten days. We expect a good attendance at this reunion, and to make it a success we are going to considerable trouble and work. We hope the Saints expecting to attend will not forget the date, and will make preparations to that end. Meals, twenty cents each or six for one dollar. Tents, 10 by 12, $2; 12 by 14, $2.50; those wanting tents will please notify us in time. Order of meetings: Prayer meeting at 9 a. m., preaching at 10.45, 2, and 8, except on Thursdays, when the day will be occupied by the Sunday school exercises, except at 8, when there will be preaching services. Arrangements are being made to have able speakers and good singing, so let us meet with the good Spirit of God, that it may be a blessing to us. Write for tent orders and information to B. J. Dice, secretary, Stewartsville, Missouri, or J. H. Hinderks, president, at the same address.

The first reunion of Southern Wisconsin and Northeastern Illinois districts will convene at Belvidere, Illinois, August 23 to September 2. The grounds are quite centrally located in the city. Those coming on the interurban from the east only have four blocks to the grounds from the station. Those coming on the interurban from the west get off at Cherry Street, one block from the grounds. The Chicago and North-Western Railway depot is only six blocks east of the grounds. A team to transport baggage from both stations to the grounds will be at the service of all. The Kiswaukee River forms one boundary of the grounds. There are a goodly number of shade trees and the grounds as a whole are not low. Meals will be served at the dining tent at fifteen cents a meal by meal tickets. Tents and cots will be furnished as follows, as nearly as possible: The private tents are rented in Madison, Wisconsin. Wall tents, 10 by 12, $2.25; 12 by 14, $2.50; 10 by 15, $2.75; 12 by 14, $3; 12 by 19, $3.25. Cots each cost 25 cents and must be ordered with the tents. Any who are aged or infirm may procure rooms in private house by writing J. A. Daer, 528 Buchanan Street, Belvidere, Illinois. For speakers we expect the ministry in general charge and missionaries of both districts. It has also been decided to procure a special field worker for Sunday school and Religio work. Address all orders for tents to J. O. Dutton, Evansville, Wisconsin, box 76, not later than August 15, and earlier if possible. Let all remember the word of the Lord in former years wherein he has said: "It is pleasing unto me that my people meet together from year to year," etc. Be willing to make the needed sacrifice and God will bless. Jasper O. Dutton, corresponding secretary of joint reunion committee.

The annual reunion of the Latter Day Saints' Church of the Chatham District will be held at Erie Beach, August 2 to 12, 1912, a delightful summer resort, twelve miles from Chatham, on the banks of Lake Erie, reached by the Chatham, Wallaceburg and Lake Erie Electric Road, which will furnish tickets at single fare from all points on the road, good to return any time during the reunion, provided they are stamped by the secretary of the reunion at the beach. The Pere Marquette Railroad will issue week-end tickets, good from Sunday morning till Monday evening at single fare and ten cents. Purchase Pere Marquette tickets to Cedar Springs, and change to C. W. & L. E. to beach. Meals will be served at the large dining tent at fifteen cents a meal. Tents rented for the entire reunion at the following prices: 12 by 16, $3.75; 12 by 14, $3.25; 9½ by 12, $3; 8 by 10, $2.75. Kindly send your order and size of tent required to Stewart Lamont, 66 Lydican Avenue, Chatham, Ontario. Order at once and make sure of tent. All ordering tents will be asked to provide all the necessaries for their own comfort. All not ordering tents will be provided tent accommodations and beds at fifteen cents a night, but if convenient bring pillows and blankets in shawl strap. Straw will be provided free to all wishing to fill ticks. The following speakers are expected: F. A. Smith, R. C. Russell, R. C. Evans, William Fligg, William Davis, John Shields, Brother Burke, and many other prominent speakers from the United States and Canada will be present. Let all come and enjoy the reunion. J. C. Dent, secretary and treasurer.

Pastoral.

To Whom It May Concern; Greeting: There are a few reports not in for the quarter as yet. It will not be possible this time to reply personally to but such as have asked for special information.

It is contemplated that at the reunion to convene at Council Bluffs, Iowa, August 23 to September 1 a quorum of elders will be organized. President Frederick M. Smith will likely be here to attend to such organization and the elders of western Iowa and the entire State of Nebraska are requested to be in attendance as far as possible. The lesser priesthood of Nebraska and western Iowa, save the Little Sioux District, will also be organized so far as possible. The Aaronic priesthood of the Little Sioux District is especially requested to be in attendance at the Magnolia reunion, September 6 to 15, for the purpose of organization.

Your brethren in bonds,
G. T. GRIFFITHS.
J. W. WIGHT.

LAMONI, IOWA, July 9, 1912.

To the Saints of Utah and the Utah District; Greeting: Since entering my field of labor (Utah) I was at your late district conference held at Malad City, Utah, chosen to act as president of the Utah District. I hereby salute you and earnestly pray for your hearty cooperation. Scandinavians, British Americans, and in fact every soul that has obeyed the gospel, proving themselves true to same, are one in Christ Jesus our Lord, without respect to persons, rich or poor, and to that end I hope to labor among you and kindly ask you to notify me as to your wishes, wants and needs, so that I may be able to make arrangements to give you such assistance as I can and at such time as I can. To me the field is new, hence I need your assistance as well as your fervent prayers that we may labor acceptably together before God and man.

Now, brethren of the local ministry, don't forget your responsibility, that you may be held blameless before God. Those desiring to write me may address me as follows: My

A New Edition of the Doctrine and Covenants

By order of General Conference a committee was appointed to correct all typographical errors, also Section 22 of the Doctrine and Covenants. This has been done and the book is now ready. It contains a valuable addition in the form of a new concordance. All the revelations up to date are included. You will need this edition.

Order

- No. 94, cloth.....$.65
- No. 95, full leather..... 1.00
- No. 96, imitation morocco, gilt edges.. 1.50
- No. 97, full morocco, flexible..... 2.50

Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa

field address is 772 East Fourth South, Salt Lake City, Utah; home address, Tigris, Missouri. J. C. CHRESTENSEN.

The Bishopric.

APPOINTMENT OF BISHOP'S AGENT, IN AND FOR THE UNORGANIZED TERRITORY OF ARIZONA.

Saints and Friends of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints Living Within the Territory of Arizona: Please take notice that Elder S. D. Condit address box 1774, Bisbee, Arizona, has been duly appointed bishop's agent in and for said territory, and is authorized to perform all the work as bishop's agent in and for said territory usually devolving upon agents of the bishopric in said Reorganized Church.

We commend Brother Condit and his work to the Saints and friends within said territory and speak for him, the co-operation and assistance of each lover of the truth and helper in the work of our blessed Lord.

Trusting that peace and good will may attend the helpers everywhere, I am in behalf of the Bishopric,

Very truly and respectfully,

E. L. KELLEY, Presiding Bishop.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, July 11, 1912.

Addresses.

J. C. Chrestensen, field address, 772 East Fourth South, Salt Lake City, Utah; home address, Tigris, Missouri.

Old Heralds Wanted.

The following issues of SAINTS' HERALD are wanted at the Presiding Bishop's office: June 20, 1891; May 28, 1892; June 3, 1893; May 16, 1894; May 15, 1895; June 17, 1896; May 26, 1897; May 4, 1898; May 24, 1899; April 4, 1900. Please mail direct to Bishop E. L. Kelley, Independence, Missouri.

Died.

ANDERSON.—Brother Jeremiah Anderson was born in the town of Miller, LaSalle County, Illinois, April 15, 1852. Was united in marriage to Miss Bertha M. Sampson, December 16, 1874. To this marriage were born eight children; five girls and three boys. Deceased was baptized by Elder J. B. Roush, July 7, 1895. Died on the farm where he was born April 1, 1912, aged 60 years, 11 months, and one day. The funeral services were held in the Mission chapel, town of Miller, LaSalle County, Illinois, April 4, 1912, in charge of Elder Thomas Hougas. Funeral sermon was preached by Elder F. M. Cooper, of Burlington, Iowa. Those left to mourn the departure of Brother Anderson are his wife, his daughters, Mrs. Eva Thorson, Mrs. Mabel Hayer, and Ida Hayer; Nora and Mildred Anderson, and the one surviving son, Martin Anderson; besides many other relatives, including a number of grandchildren. Brother Anderson was noted for his honesty, virtue, and uprightness of life. His life was a credit to the community where he had lived and to the church of which he was a member. Two of his sons, Thomas and Silas, preceded him to the world of spirits, the former at the age of three years, and the latter—an excellent young man—at the age of twenty-seven years.

JERNEGAN.—At the home of her nephew, Brother Blair Filmore, June 2, 1912, Sister Catherine Jernegan. She was born July 12, 1836, at Glenville, Nova Scotia; baptized November 16, 1902, at Glenville, Nova Scotia, by H. J. Davison; confirmed by H. J. Davison; sermon by William Anderson.

DAVIES.—Sister Ella Davies passed away at her home near Dewair, California, June 24, 1912, at the age of 36 years, 10 months, and 10 days. She leaves a husband, two children, a father, one sister, and three brothers, with other relatives. Her remains were brought to Oakland where was held an impressive service in the church she loved so much while living near it. She was the eldest daughter of Brother R. Ferris. Her mother preceded her in death. Her body rests in the beautiful Mountain View Cemetery in Oakland. Doctor Bush sang a solo, the sermon was by J. M. Terry. Many tributes of respect and love were shown in her behalf.

ANDERSON.—At the hospital at Clarinda, Iowa, June 27, 1912, after an operation for appendicitis, Katie, daughter of Brother and Sister John Anderson, of Ellston, Iowa, aged 9 years, 4 months, 3 days. A dutiful and affectionate child, and the only daughter, her sudden going is a hard blow to parents and brothers. Funeral service at Ellston, June 30, in the Christian church. It was filled, and many were standing, both in the house and at windows outside. Best opportunity to teach the truth we have had there for years, and there was excellent attention. Sermon by H. A. Stebbins.

FISH.—Viola May, daughter of Elder Robert and Sister Ethel Fish, was born near Mallard, Iowa, August 26, 1909, and died at the home, July 7, 1912, aged 2 years, 10 months, and 19 days. She was blessed February 19, 1912, by Elders C. C. Joehn, C. J. Hunt, and Robert Fish. Funeral services were held in the Saints' church July 9, and Elder C. E. Butterworth preached the discourse to a house full of sympathizing relatives and friends. She sleeps, awaiting the resurrection.

A New Book

has just been issued, entitled

Doctrines and Dogmas of Utah Mormonism

By Elder J. D. Stead

THERE ARE REASONS for publishing this book.

(1) The only way to render a JUST judgment is to know the FACTS.

(2) To get the FACTS don't go to the enemies of the Utah church. This is not fair nor just; go to the authorized publications of this church, and let them tell you what they believe.

(3) You can not get access to these publications for the reason that many of them are out of print and hard to find.

(4) The author of this new book has spent years as a missionary among the Mormons, and has patiently and carefully culled extracts from these old publications, thus giving you

A Whole Library of Information in One Book

The greatest care has been taken to make this book reliable.

The quotations in it are all testified to as being correct, and finally the proof readers testify that to the best of their belief the quotations are all correct. We have had this done so that you would feel secure in using the many evidences therein contained. Order No. 1a, price... $1.50

Herald Publishing House

Lamoni, Iowa

An Easy Trip Through Yellowstone Park

What can wipe out the weariness of a hard winter like a good vacation trip? And nowhere else in all the world are there so many curious and awe-inspiring sights as in Yellowstone National Park.

The journey to the entrance itself via the Burlington Route is full of pleasure and once inside, you are in a world of wonders. Your tour of the park may be made by stage-coach with stops at perfectly appointed hotels, or if you care for tent life you can spend a glorious week in camping out. Day after day is filled with eye-delighting geysers, mountain vistas that stretch to heaven, rocks the color of a sunset, and strange tumbling rivers that plunge thousands of feet in thundering falls. You will come home made over in mind and body.

Your trip will be all the more enjoyable if you will let me help you plan it and get your copy of our folder. Begin your plans early. Come in and talk over the trip you want to take, or write J. Francis, General Passenger Agent, Chicago—a postal will do.

L. F. SILTZ, Agent

C. B. & Q. R. R.

A NICE HOME

Near the Brick Church. 7 rooms and bath. Basement, well and cistern. Good walks. An abundance of fruit. Large lot.

Everything in first-class order. At a bargain for short time.

G. W. Blair, Secretary,
Lamoni Land and Loan Co.
Lamoni, Iowa.

SCHOOL FOR NURSES

The Independence Sanitarium Training School for Nurses offers exceptional advantages to single ladies of the church between 20 and 30 years of age to become Trained Nurses. New class is now forming, anyone desiring to take up nursing as a profession should write at once for application and full information to the

INDEPENDENCE SANITARIUM,
Independence, Missouri. 26-4t

BEAUTIFUL OSAGE VALLEY

Being the first to locate in this valley and seeing the richness, also mild climate, cheap fuel, etc., we desired other Saints might share it, so advertised, resulting the locating of many Saints. As to honest, upright dealing we refer you to any of the branch officers, or members. OSAGE VALLEY LAND CO.,
47 Mapleton, Kansas.

FOR SALE

A number of farms and town property in and around Cameron at rock bottom prices ranging from 20 to 600 acres. Can give possession or turn rental contract at once. Located in Far West District. Write for prices.

B. M. Seaton & Co., Cameron, Missouri,
Weaver Building, E. 3d Street. 20 ft.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
No. 248a, cloth75

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.
Order No. 249, cloth50

WANTED.—Competent cook at the Children's Home. W. P. Robinson, Lamoni, Iowa. 27-3t

MAPLETON, KANSAS

Saints wanting reliable information concerning Mapleton, Kansas, write to B. C. Gifford. Inclose stamp.

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
Order No. 232, cloth75

NAME WANTED

The Southern California District will give a prize of the three Standard Books of the Church, for a suitable name for our Reunion Ground, to be selected by Reunion Committee next August.

All names should be sent to secretary.
R. T. COOPER,
202-3 Lankershim Bldg., Los Angeles,
California. Alt to 8-1

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.

Order No. 241, cloth50

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

Order No.
141 cloth75c
141½ leather$1.00
174 flexible$1.50

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read book. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.

Order No. 248, cloth75

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.

No. 140, cloth50

TRY THIS

"Once Read Always Read"
MAGAZINE.

Illustrated and Interesting

THE PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE

(Motion Picture Stories)

BROTHER W. EVISON, Agent,
6250 Loomis Street,

Sample Copy 10c. Chicago.

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,
Cloth, No. 19850c
Paper No. 19735c

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, JULY 24, 1912

NUMBER 30

Editorial

BEARING FRUIT.

We are pleased to state to the readers of the HERALD that the suggestions made by us in a late issue in regard to substantially helping the development of The United Order of Enoch by those who might have that which they were willing to consecrate for the purpose, have borne fruit. A number of contributions have been received by the order following the lines suggested by us. We believe it to be a direct indication of the latent willingness on the part of many to accede to and agree with the revelation requiring the carrying of such organizations into effect. We believe further that the contributions so far received, like the scattering drops preceding the shower, will be followed by many others, who when the way was evidently pointed out were not only willing but ready to aid in so good a cause. It must be understood by those who read this, that the means requested are not asked for by the Presidency nor by the acting officers of The United Order of Enoch to build up any financial scheme, to result to the benefit of these officers of the church or the order. There is not and can not be any selfish designs upon their part in this movement. Whatever enterprises any of these men may be engaged in personally, aside from their assigned work in the spiritual affairs of the church, are separate and apart from the interest and affairs of the order, having no relation thereto only as monetary gains therefrom may by them be devoted to the interests of the order in precisely the same way as any and all others who may choose to aid in this enterprise.

In reference to the order having been organized at Independence it should be only necessary to state that under the circumstances there logically could not have been an initiatory organization originated and carried into effect anywhere else. It was necessary that it should begin at that place, and under the laws of the State of Missouri, to be in line and compliance with the order directing its institution. One of the strong reasons why we presented the appeal in the HERALD is that it seemed to us not only desirable but absolutely necessary that the experiment undertaken in the organization of The United Order of Enoch should have a more united effort on the part of the church as a whole, and receive support from a wider field, than the comparatively few who were gathering into proximity to Independence.

If it is to be considered as an experiment, it is worth putting forth every effort in the power of an united people, and the Saints are constantly singing that if they are not united they are not one in Christ. We should leave no legitimate means untried by which the experiment may be made a success. It is possible by an united effort to make this one experiment a success, a complete success, which will clearly point the way to the establishment of others elsewhere and for similar general purposes, though under different management, and thus widen the sphere and usefulness and determine the full effect of the virtue of the commandment given by revelation.

Another consideration may be presented, and that is: Supposing it is an experiment, there can be no real loss either to the individuals contributing thereto or to the church itself; for under the laws of its organization, in compliance with the statutes, whatever might remain of the order and its effects would merge into the general treasury to be used for the benefit of those who should have need, to be distributed under the fostering care of the Bishopric. If it should prove to be a failure as an experiment, and because its measures were found impracticable, it would simply be another failure upon the part of men to understand and carry into effect the will of God concerning them, and their human conduct with regard to themselves and their associates' welfare, like the many that have gone before it. We would have failed, not for the want of effort, not for the lack of will or disposition to do, but because we failed to understand the obligations imposed upon us and the mistake of failing to comprehend the how to do what we believed was necessary to be done.

These considerations are urged, not because we have any fear of failure or the consequences thereof.

It is ours to do, according to the best light we have, and leave the consequences with the Lord. We have faith that there will be success. Napoleon, when standing near the approach to the Alps, over the passes of which he proposed to convoy his army, questioned his general of engineers, "Is the route practicable?" The answer of the engineer was, "It is barely passable." Napoleon's reply and command was, "Let us go forward then." With his own hands he helped to push the cannon upon the passes, crossed the Alps, made his descent upon the other side, astonished his enemies, and won the victory, which made him the conqueror that he was.

The Lord has said to us, "Let us go forward." Shall we hesitate? Nay! We have only to go forward and the victory is ours.

We have lately noted anew a peculiar thing. We have heard men say, that they were willing and ready to do a certain thing which seemed to be desirable to be done. They have expressed a definite knowledge of what should be done and how it should be done in their judgment. They have not done the thing desirable to be done even in the way which they themselves have pointed out. We have made a mental inquiry as to why this is so. We have discovered that the statement, "I am willing and ready to do," hinges upon a mental reservation and depends upon the understanding or the facts that all others, knowing of the thing desired to be done, shall have first done as the one making the affirmation thinks it should be. In other words, he has failed to make good his declaration that he is willing and ready to do, by neglecting or refusing to do the thing according to his own understanding of how it should be done. As far back as 1866 or 1868 we stated in an editorial in the HERALD, that if every individual in the church would pay into the coffers of the treasury of the substance with which the Lord had blessed him, according to his own understanding of what and how much the Lord required, there would be no lack in the treasury, and none deficient in attempting to carry out their duty. After forty years of observation we feel inclined to repeat our assertion.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.—PART 1.

Can ye not discern the signs of the times?—Matthew 16:3.

IS THE WORLD GROWING BETTER, OR WORSE?

Some people hold that the world is growing better all the time; that this is the very crowning age of intelligence, morality, prosperity, and general advancement. Others argue that the world is growing worse all the time; that people are blind to the rottenness of society and the dangers that threaten the world.

Both classes may find justification for their belief if they take only a partial survey of the situation. As a people, we believe that we are living in the evening time of the world; and the times remind us of the closing of a typical summer day in the Middle West. We see the sun setting in a blaze of wondrous light and beauty. The heavens seem illuminated and the earth glorified. We say, What a wonderful evening! And it is wonderful! But even as we look, a chill shadow penetrates the atmosphere. Looking toward another part of the sky we see black and threatening clouds piled high into mid heaven. There comes a low, deep rumble of thunder that shakes the very earth; and a flash of lightning rives the sinister blackness of the cloud. We know that a terrible storm is about to break. Our lovely evening goes out in tempest and tumult. But we have faith that after the storm and the night there will dawn a most glorious morning, coming as it were upon a new earth all cleansed and purified.

THE IMPENDING STORM.

So to-day if we would correctly estimate the age we must look at all parts of the social horizon. If we look only at the incomparable development of education, the undoubted activity and devotion of social reformers and charitable institutions, the upward trend of sentiment and legislation in certain quarters in the interests of oppressed humanity, the astonishing achievements of invention, and human conquest of the forces of nature with the accompanying material development and empire, we will exclaim, "What a wonderful age! Surely this is the best of all periods of time and the world is rapidly growing better and pressing onward toward the millennium of universal peace, equality, and social justice."

But even as we look, a shadow falls across our pathway. Turning we see in another quarter of the horizon black clouds of social discontent, industrial disorder, threatened anarchy. There comes the detonation of exploded dynamite. We hear the fall of brick and mortar as the Los Angeles Times building goes down. Black, half discerned forms of terror ride the air. The storm is gathering. Will it break? Will there come later the dawning of a brighter day upon a cleansed and purified world?

SOME GROW BETTER; SOME GROW WORSE.

The fact is that the prophets foreseeing the time of the end foretold some strikingly bad features and some strikingly good features that would characterize that period. Not all men are growing worse. There is undoubtedly a large class of persons, honorable men and women of the world, who are more intelligent, active, and high-minded than any similar class of worldly men and women of any past age. To convince us of this we have but to investigate for instance the activities of some who have developed the Red Cross movement and directed its work in the interests of suffering humanity in times of peace as well as in times of war; or certain classes of public-school teachers, settlement workers like Jane Addams or Jacob Riis, hospital workers, and certain of our modern statesmen and of legislators, like Lloyd-George of England, who are striving in every way to promote legislation that will render more safe, comfortable, and prosperous the lot of the working classes. There are hundreds of men and women of this type so morally and intellectually far ahead of any class existing during the Middle Ages or even the boasted ages of chivalry, that there is absolutely no comparison.

But on the other hand, the forces of evil keep step with the times and enlist the brightest intellect that the age can produce and the modern universities polish and equip and graduate, the most deadly menace of civilization—an intellectual and educated man gone wrong. Our great universities and colleges send out brilliant and consecrated social workers; they also send out the thoroughly equipped and up-to-date lawyers who serve great corporations against the people. Every time the Government attempts to move against organized wrong there it faces a solid phalanx of the brightest legal talent of the age, such as led a British commentator to exclaim not long ago: "There are more brains behind the trusts than behind the whole United States Government." Every time the widow of a workman who has died as the result of an industrial accident seeks compensation at the bar of justice, she is faced by some brilliant, college bred lawyer who loves a princely salary more than he loves justice. And so to-day there are more brains enlisted in the liquor business, in the white slave business, in common burglary, in every form of organized or individual evil than at any time in any other age, and consequently these forces are more deadly and dangerous than at any time in the past.

The prophets did not say that in the last days all men should grow worse; they did say: "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse."—2 Timothy 3: 13.

The forces of crime, in their onward march, keep a little ahead of the forces of reform and correction.

Two "yeggmen," a typical production of the age, were conversing. One said: "Wot's new in de biz?"

The other replied: "Dere's a feller invented a vault door dat's five years ahead of de times."

"Say, dat's bad," commented the first speaker.

"But," continued the second, "Skinny Moss has invented a jimmy dat's five years ahead of de new safe door."

THAT WHICH DANIEL SAW.

"Shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased."—Daniel 12: 4.

Daniel by inspiration catching a glimpse of our crowded schools, libraries, colleges, and universities, and our swarming depots and docks, characterized that which he saw in a single sentence (or the Lord did it for him): "Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." This was to be a characteristic of "the time of the end." It is in some ways one of the most interesting features of our times.

"Many shall run to and fro":* One has but to visit the subway in New York City, note the ever surging crowds on the ferry at Oakland, in the union depots in Saint Louis, Chicago, Kansas City, or watch the shuttle like regularity of heavily loaded ocean liners plying to and fro over seas, to become impressed with the aptness of that expression. With incredible rapidity the long ages of the oxcart and the pack animal have given place to the railroad, the electric car, the steamship, the automobile, and the aeroplane. The universal travel of this age is quite unlike anything of the kind ever before witnessed. As a sign of the time of the end it is unique and extraordinary.

"Knowledge shall be increased": There have been a few educated persons in almost every century of the past. There were schools of learning (after a fashion) in Egypt and Rome; but they were for the few. But to-day education is placed within the reach of the common people. Yes; it is made compulsory in many places. There are common schools, everywhere, and at frequent intervals colleges and universities and other institutions of higher learning. The press is busy all the time. And the free rural mail delivery carries the daily papers, the weekly and monthly magazines, even the higher class of reviews to the most remote sections. Every town of any considerable population has one or more free libraries. Knowledge has advanced by leaps and bounds. It covers a wider field and is more diffused than ever before. As a sign of the time of the end, pointed out by Daniel, this condition is also unique and extraordinary.

THAT WHICH NAHUM SAW.

Nahum saw something that was to be in the time of the end, or as he expressed it, "in the day of His preparation," quite like that predicted by Daniel:

"The chariots shall be with flaming torches in the day of his preparation, and the fir trees shall be terribly shaken. The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways: they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings. He shall recount his worthies: they shall stumble in their walk: they shall make haste to the wall thereof, and the defense shall be prepared."—Nahum 2: 3-6.

It is only a short walk from my home to a point where one can see the overland trains from the East come down through the Cajon Pass into the San Bernardino Valley. Let us stand at that point, in imagination. It is night. Presently we feel a low vibration of the earth. We catch the sound of a distant rumble. A long white pencil of light flashes out from the dark recesses of the Pass and illuminates the Valley. "Fire-eyed and rushing the great overland train sweeps past, every window like a blazing torch, the great headlight flaming far ahead, running like the lightning, with a rush and roar that causes the very ground to tremble, and shakes the fir trees on the mountainside as it passes. The prophecy explains itself,—the "recounting of his worthies," as the conductor makes his rounds; their "stumbling in their walk," as they pass to and fro in the aisles; their "jostling one another in the broad ways," as the cars bump and jostle in street and switchyard. The description is so striking that it has been noticed by those not of a religious inclination. Some years ago the Four Track News, a monthly magazine published by the railroad interests of the East, contained an article in which this prophecy was applied to the modern railway train, and properly so, too.

And these things, we must not forget, were to characterize the day of "God's preparation."

KNOWLEDGE INCREASED; HOW ABOUT FAITH?

"Knowledge shall be increased," but how about faith?

The prophet said that "knowledge should be increased," but he did not say that faith should be increased or that virtue should be increased. And the divine plan is: "Add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge." Faith and virtue are the foundation on which education should build. Any age that is rich in knowledge but poor in faith and virtue is not in a good condition. The prophets said that in the last days "knowledge should be increased," but they did not say that faith and virtue should be increased. Indeed Jesus said: "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?"—Luke 18: 8. He answered his own question by declaring: "But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the days of the coming of the Son of man be."—Matthew 24: 37.

There was very little faith on the earth in the days of Noah. Men were eating and drinking and marrying and giving in marriage, and took no heed at all of religious matters, until destruction came upon them. We are told that the earth was filled with violence, men were corrupt, they had no faith; and as to virtue, they "took them wives of all that they chose." Our court records, hotel registers, and divorce statistics tell a similar story to-day.

As to faith, it is a matter of notoriety that, wonderful though our educational system may be, it does not conserve faith, at least not in the institutions of higher learning. This is notorious. The young man goes from a Christian home as a Christian, passes through the college and comes back a skeptic. It is not so long since one of the leading magazines published an article from the pen of Harold Bolc , who after investigating colleges all over the United States, and interviewing eminent educators from Maine to California, headed his article "Blasting at the Rock of Ages." Ex-President Eliot of Harvard, who should be the very highest type of educated man of to-day, in outlining his fancied "religion of the future," says that it will not be "a religion of authority"; that is it will not rest on the revelations of God, or claim any such authority, but will go no further back than the consciences of men,—that which the brain of man can study out and his conscience approve will be the religion of the future.

Harvard history runs back to the Pilgrim fathers, the school having been founded by God-fearing men of a very high type who believed in a God of power and a God of revelation and a religion of authority. Harvard has traveled a long way since 1636-8 when she started with an appropriation of about $2,000 and a few very moderately well-to-do students, until now, with her invested funds of over twenty-two million dollars and her great body of students and professors, including many sons of very wealthy persons, who live at Harvard in great luxury; but while the road may have led toward a richer curriculum and a broader estate, it has not led toward greater faith or more rigorous virtue.

"YE HAVE HEAPED TREASURE TOGETHER FOR THE LAST DAYS."

The fact is that this age is grossly materialistic. Our triumphs and glories are mostly material. Men have largely ceased to reckon with the God of the Bible. The god of the dollar claims their almost undivided attention. This is apparent even in many of the sanctuaries supposed to be dedicated to Jehovah.

The accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few is characteristic of the times. Nothing like the vast estates held by individuals and corporations, with corresponding power, was ever before dreamed.

The Literary Digest, June 15, 1912, notes the fact that as nearly as can be determined John D. Rockefeller's personal fortune is now $900,000,000. The human brain simply can not comprehend such an amount of treasure heaped together in one estate. Yet this is but one of several great fortunes approximately as important.

On this subject Doctor Josiah Strong, one of our best known students of social problems, is quoted in The Chautauquan for May, 1912, as follows:

"If one hundred workmen could earn $1,000 a year, they would have to work 1,200 or 1,500 years to earn as much as the annual income of these one hundred richest Americans. And if a workman could earn $1,000 a day he would have to work until he was 547 years old, and never take a day off, before he could earn as much as some Americans are worth. . . . The wealth of Cræsus was estimated at only $8,000,000, while there are seventy American estates, according to Mr. Shearman, which average $35,000,000 each. The nabobs of the later Roman republic became famous for their immense fortunes, but the entire possessions of the richest were not equal to the annual income of at least one American."—The New Era.

This too is a feature of the last days foretold in prophecy. James, in his wonderful fifth chapter, which to our mind is clearly prophetic, and not by any means limited to conditions in his own time, said: "Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days."

ELBERT A. SMITH.

(To be continued.)

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

TO REGAIN NAUVOO.—Various newspapers throughout the country have lately given space to a report that the Utah Mormons are going to regain Nauvoo and make it a stronghold. We have received a number of these in clippings from interested parties. This report contains enough inaccurate statements to make it patent that some hack writer was responsible for it. The Nauvoo papers have commented on this report. The Nauvoo Independent, under the heading, "An old story," says in part:

"But as to the report that the Mormons expect to return to the city, rebuild it and own it, we don't believe there is any truth in it. In fact we have good reasons to believe that they have no such thing in mind at present, as they have recently been offered some historical property, which they no doubt would have purchased had they wanted to get a foothold here. They stated that they had no intention of purchasing Nauvoo property."

The Nauvoo Rustler disposes of the matter as follows:

"AN ERROR.

"The Keokuk Gate City of Tuesday contained a column article concerning the Mormons and Nauvoo, which contained a number of misstatements. The article tells of the recent Mormon convention held in Illinois, and that the Utah Mormons intended to make Nauvoo again the headquarters of the sect. The article states: 'The Utah Mormons recently improved the lot in which Joseph and Hyrum Smith are buried, erected new monuments and made other changes. The tombstones being stately shafts with the names of the two leaders and the dates of their birth and death.' This is all untrue. No monuments have been erected in Nauvoo over the graves of the Mormon leaders, the Smiths, and the Utah Mormons have no intention of doing so. However, the Iowa Mormons have the matter under consideration and may carry it through. These Mormon articles that frequently find their way into the newspapers are certainly the work of some imaginary mind and the writers care nothing for the truth—just so they get their articles in print. The Gate City should know better; it is located too near the scene to make such rank misstatements."

CORRECT REPRESENTATION.—William Chandler, an English brother, sends us a long extract from the London People, which gives an account of the Utah Mormon propaganda in England. The article is called "The growing Mormon menace," and while it considerably overdraws and misrepresents the work of that church, which we deplore, it also affords us satisfaction because it gives evidence that the world is more and more learning that the original church did not practice polygamy, that Brigham Young led his followers away from original tenets and belief, and that the world is recognizing the Reorganized Church as a thing separate and apart from Utah Mormonism. From the article mentioned we quote as follows:

"They never call themselves Mormons; that would never do, for the name has become associated with all that is wretched and sordid to a degree. Their leaflets and tracts, which are manufactured by the ton at Liverpool in the offices of their official organ, The Millennium Star, always refer to these missionaries by the innocent title of elders; their church is spoken of as that of 'The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.' This literature never breathes the term 'plurality of wives,' and the whole subject is carefully screened from the notice of the convert until after he or she have taken the terrible oaths that bind them irretrievably to a system of dark moral corruption and slavery. In justice to a sect numbering several thousands in this country, and whose religion is without the slightest taint of moral irregularity, it should be stated that there are in existence at the present time a number of Mormon churches, the members of which suffer invariably from being classed with the 'Latter Day Saints.' But it should be explained that when the founder of Mormonism was assassinated by the bloodthirsty men from Missouri, the sect was split in twain. By far the greater number of Mormons placed themselves under the command of Brigham Young, who led them forth through the wilderness and ultimately established their city by the sides of the Great Salt Lake. They changed their name to that of 'Latter Day Saints,' and polygamy was first openly practiced at the instigation of Brigham Young, and has been identified with the Utah Mormons ever since.

"Those who remained in Missouri elected as their head Joseph Smith II, son of the murdered prophet. This gentleman is alive to-day, verging on ninety years of age, and has spent the greater part of his life in carefully explaining that his is the true Mormon church, and that there never has been anything of polygamy associated with their doctrines. At a conference held some years ago this church adopted the official title of the Reorganized Mormon Church, but they are usually spoken of in America as 'The Reorganites.' As has been stated, this section of Mormons have several churches in this country, particularly in Liverpool, Warrington, Manchester, and in Wales, also in the Midlands, and they have endured much injustice through being confused with the Salt Lake City Mormons, whose missionaries are now active. One of the leading 'Reorganites' in this country is Elder William Chandler, of Orford-lane, Warrington, who has very ably championed the cause of the church which he represents."

There is no contagion equal to the contagion of life. Whatever we sow, that shall we also reap, and each thing sown produces of its kind. We can kill not only by doing another bodily injury directly, but we can and do kill by every antagonistic thought. Not only do we thus kill, but while we kill we commit suicide. Many a man has been made sick by having ill thoughts of a number of people centered upon him; some have been actually killed. Put hatred into the world and we make it a literal hell. Put love into the world and heaven with all its beauties and glories becomes a reality.—R. W. Trine, "In tune with the infinite."

The Devil was piqued such saintship to behold,
And longed to tempt him like good Job of old;
But Satan now wiser than of yore,
And tempts by making rich, not making poor.
—Pope's Moral Essays.

Hymns and Poems

Selected and Original

A Marvelous Work and a Wonder; The Gospel Restored to Earth in Latter Days.

A youth whose heart was touched by Pentecostal fire,

Moving him to seek devoutly, and thus acquire
A life devout, consecrated to God and holiness,
Religious views to attain that heaven can bless.
Vainly for light on this, sectarian creeds he scans,
Each faction showing warped and biased plans.
Leaning now on God, to solitude he repairs;
Omnipotence he knows will heed his prayers.
Unbiased in mind, he applied Faith's key,
Still pleading for wisdom, on bended knee.

When lo, a light appeared, far greater than the noon,
Outshining the sun, and effacing the moon,
Revealing to Joseph, in this momentous hour,
Kind Heaven's resourceful aid and power.

A messenger to him, direct from heaven then came;
Nephi was this welcome stranger' s name.
Divine rapture thrilled in Joseph's breast,

As in love he beheld the heaven sent guest.

Wonder and fear fell back in great amaze,
O'erwhelmed with beams of celestial rays.
Nephi then spake to Joseph, calling him by name,
Delivering to him the message for which he came;
Explaining also work God had for him to do,
Relating to some records then hidden from view.

Those long tresured records, he said, contained
History most sacred, soon to be reclaimed.
Enshrined they were then, in Cumorah's hill;

God's marvelous love we see from them distill.
Of this hidden record, inspired lips had long foretold;
Seeing in vision its coming forth, inscribed on gold.
Precious drops of mercy ever mark God's course;
Exhaustless in love, they bubble from their source;
Love, from danger, carefully hid this book so holy;

Restoring it again from a bed secure and lowly.
Exultant is this claim, though few can understand,
Seeing love unfurl this ensign in Joseph's land.
This is Joseph's stick; with Judah's 'tis now combined;
One stick now in God's hand, as he designed.
Regarding fulfilled prophecy, many such appear to view,
Every blessing promised will ere long our earth renew.
Down all through dark and superstitious ages,

Terror and blood marked history's sad pages.
Opprobrium for Israel, in conflict oft-times break;

Even hope, long-clinging, would fain her seat forsake.
Almighty Father, the time is now full; why still delay?
Recall thy wandering children home, we pray.
Tenderly lift from Israel their long abject bane,
Healing all their sorrows in the millennial reign.

In Jesus' name, soon, a willing pardon speak;
No other name is given through which to seek.

Let his shed blood, through faith, their sins efface;
An atoning sacrifice, for Israel's covenant race.
The light bursts forth and illumines the chosen way,
Through Zion's pearly gates, to millennial day.
Enchanting visions there will hold our wondering gaze,
Revealing the "Man Divine," through shining rays.

Dangers are passed, when with Christ we rest;
Angelic throngs we'll join, amongst the blessed.
Yet a little while till He comes to lead his people home.
Sing his praises; glad hosanna; nevermore from him to roam.

IANTHA B. STILLWAGON.

NEW WESTMINSTER, CANADA.

Original Articles

DEALING WITH THE ERRING.—NO. 2.

BY CHARLES FRY.

Editor's Note.—In this number Brother Fry takes up the subject of labor. When one is offended is he to seek reconciliation? If so, how? Or shall he "lay low" and watch his chance to "get even" with the one who has offended him? That is the world's way. What is God's way? God's way is orderly and leads to peace and life. A violation of his rules will lead to strife and spiritual death. What are his rules? The next number in the series will be devoted to the subject of "Repentance."

LABOR.

When an offense has been committed and the offender does not take steps to make restitution and reconciliation, the law makes it the duty of the offended one to take the initiative and seek to bring about reconciliation. The scriptures are quite definite as to how this should be done, and the work required is termed labor.

Labor is a kindly, diligent, timely, and prayerful effort by an offended member, or officer on behalf of an offended church, to show an offending member his transgression, with a view of leading him to repentance and confession, and effecting complete restitution and reconciliation.

The first step in the work of labor is for the offended one to go to the offender alone, and without having stated the matter of grievance to anyone else, explain to him kindly what is considered to be his wrong, and seek in a peaceful way a settlement. If this succeeds the brother is saved from his sin, and saved from reproach which he must otherwise suffer if his sin were first heralded abroad. The statements of the law are:

Go and tell him his fault between him and thee alone.—Matthew 18: 15.

Seek opportunity to state his matter of grievance to the one offending "between him and thee alone."—Rules of Order, p. 96.

Thou shalt take him or her between him or her and thee alone: and if he or she confess thou shalt be reconciled.—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 23.

If this effort at settlement is unsuccessful, then the offended party must make a second visit, taking with him one or two disinterested persons who have heard nothing of the trouble except as it may be stated in the presence of the offender, and seek again to become reconciled. The statements of the law are:

Take with thee one or two more.—Matthew 18: 17.

He shall take with him some teacher of the church, or if such teacher be not obtainable or be an interested party, a deacon, if obtainable, otherwise a member, and shall try a second time to secure an adjustment of the difficulty existing, but shall not state the matter of grievance to such officer or member except in the presence of the party offending.—Rules of Order, p. 96.

If this second effort is unsuccessful then the law says to Tell it unto the church.—Matthew 18: 17.

Thou shalt deliver him or her up unto the church, not to the members but to the elders.—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 23.

The offended may lay the matter before the presiding officer of the branch.—Rules of Order, p. 96.

It is proper for either the party offended or the officers, to enter a complaint against such member, a copy of which shall be given to the member before the same goes before the church, and then presented to the officers of the branch.—Court Procedure, p. 4.

LABOR SHOULD BE KINDLY.

Labor should never be attempted in anger, as to do so would certainly cause failure in securing proper results, and most likely increase the estrangement. It is human nature for anger to arise against one who has injured and offended, but the man who is only trying to be a saint will remove it, if need be by fasting and prayer. To retain anger in his heart puts him in the attitude of an offender, and gives cause for his brother to still further stumble, and defeats all possibility of becoming reconciled.

The tendency to perform this labor in a perfunctory manner,—fulfilling the letter of the law without the spirit of it, should be guarded against. To make these visits with a view of punishing the brother for his offense and getting him "cut off" from the church, will be more likely to accomplish that result than the one designed in the law, viz, reconciliation. To be according to the law the visits must be made in good faith for the sole purpose of helping the brother to see his fault and turn therefrom, otherwise the effort can not be called labor.

It would be likewise detrimental to reconciliation for the offended to take with him persons who had already taken sides in the difficulty, especially when they favor the offended. The witnesses should be prepared to hear both sides patiently when they meet together, and offer their services to assist in a settlement of the difficulty and in bringing about reconciliation, but in no case should they take sides in any controversy except only as they stand for the right. The offender has the right to expect, whatever his condition may be, that he shall receive justice and kindness from the hands of his brethren, especially when they come to fulfill the law.

LABOR SHOULD BE DILIGENT AND TIMELY.

Two brethren had an altercation and separated in anger. About two hours later one went to make a visit with the other, who, in his anger, was unwilling to receive him. That same evening another visit was made with a witness, and the brother was seen on the street near his home, but refused to have anything to do with the visitors except to say a few uncomplimentary things about the one with whom he had had the altercation. He was soon called upon to answer to charges before an elders' court, and the accuser held that labor had been performed in accordance with the law.

It is apparent in the case cited that the effort at labor was untimely and far from being diligent. Had he waited a day, or several days, until the heat of anger had subsided, he would have had a better opportunity of reaching his brother and mutually adjusting the difficulty.

While haste is sometimes disastrous, in other cases delay is equally so. Two brethren have a business settlement, and afterward one discovers that an error has been made to his injury, and it seems to appear that the error was intentional upon the part of the other man. The time to make a visit for the correction of such an error is immediately, as delay would tend to justify the other party. Hence the timeliness of the labor must be determined by the nature of the difficulty, and also the disposition and immediate feelings of the one to be labored with, as also the one performing the labor.

While the law requires two visits to be made, several other visits may be necessary to make these two complete. The Lord says to "go and tell him his fault between him and thee alone," and if when a member seeks to make this visit he finds the brother in anger and unwilling to meet him, or in the association of other persons from which he can not conveniently free himself at that time, or busily engaged with some work or duty which he can not leave, or so limited in time that he can not receive the visitor, it would certainly be the duty of the member to "call again" as many times as might be necessary to give him the opportunity of talking over with his brother the matter of difficulty, or else assure himself that his brother was deliberately planning to keep him off and evade the meeting. This is what we mean by diligence in labor. As stated before, labor should not be perfunctory, and the effort at reconciliation should be diligently continued until the offended is assured that other steps are necessary to bring it about.

LABOR SHOULD BE PRAYERFUL.

It is frequently the case that when difficulties arise between brethren, bitterness develops on both sides. As seen before, bitterness and anger will disqualify one from performing labor according to the law, and where such exists it must be removed. But that is the difficult thing to do in most cases. It is easy to try to force the other man to get right, but like removing a mountain to get one's self to feel right; and it is a mountain that requires faith and prayer to remove. Prayer will help a man to get himself right before God, and not until he has come to that point is he in condition to make his prayers for his brother effectual, or to help him to get right. If bitterness or anger are not found in his heart he will still need to pray for guidance for himself and mercy and penitence for his brother.

GENERAL COMMENT.

A person offended or noticing a fault in another has no right to spread the report of such wrong to anyone, except to state it to such officer of the church as might have jurisdiction and whose duty it would be to perform labor or require another to perform it. If the wrong be a personal offense, the one offended is in duty bound to take up the matter and perform labor, and failing in an adjustment, must lay the matter before the church. To refuse or neglect to perform labor, or to lay the matter before the church, is to disregard the law of Christ. The command in Matthew 18:15-17 is direct and does not leave it optional with the offended as to whether he will perform labor. The language of Doctrine and Covenants 42:23 is still more positive in form: "Thou shalt take him or her between him or her and thee alone." "Thou shalt deliver him or her up unto the church."

The tendency is frequently seen to shift the responsibility, but each member of the church is made, under the conditions outlined in this paper, an administrator of the law, and in most cases it is an administration which no other one can perform. A member of the church seeing another in a transgression which is an offense to the church at large rather than to a particular member, such as being drunken, may report the matter to the presiding officer of the branch, district, or stake, whose duty it may be to see that labor is performed by the proper officer according to the law. That officer is usually a teacher.

The intent of the law is to keep down all scandal and keep each member as free from reproach as possible. One of the greatest hindrances to the erring member becoming reconciled to the church is the reproach placed upon him by the circulation of his wrong to the whole community. If the offense is a public one the offender can blame none but himself for being reproached; but if his offense be private, no other person has the right to make it public except it becomes necessary, through due process of law.

If any shall offend in secret, he or she shall be rebuked in secret, that he or she may have opportunity to confess in secret to him or her whom he or she has offended, and to God, that the church may not speak reproachfully of him or her. And thus shall ye conduct in all things.—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 23.

The world is not harmed by withholding the bits of scandal which so many seek for, to carry upon their tongues as sweet morsels, though the party involved may be saved by so doing; but on the other hand the world is harmed by having its mind filled with scandal, carrying with it suspicion and distrust, while the one about whom the scandal is told is also harmed by having to bear a lifelong reproach. The law does not warrant the covering up of sin, no matter who may be the sinner, but the essential purpose of the law is the elimination of sin; and if the sin can not be removed, then the sinner must be. If the sin can be removed without publicity, leading to scandal, well and good; but if not, then publicity must be had.

The rules of the church also provide:

Where in cases persons can not meet together by reason of great distance between them of travel or other obstacle over which they have no control, and which is sufficient to prevent meeting in person, the work toward reconciliation and labor referred to herein may be done by written correspondence between the parties.—Court Procedure, p. 6.

• * * * •

DID THE CONFERENCE ERR?--PART 1.

BY ROB'T. M. ELVIN.

Editor's Note.—During the late General Conference, while the usual motions to sustain church officials were being made, a motion was made to sustain President Joseph Smith "as prophet, seer, and revelator to the church." The motion was unanimously adopted. The author of the following article defends that action. We deem it quite legitimate for him to make through the official organ of the church a defense of an act done by unanimous consent of the entire church in General Conference assembled. Indeed, we would question the wisdom of a contrary course. Those who may challenge such act, if there are such, should have presented their challenge to the conference; or, failing in that, should seek a correction through an ensuing conference, or by action of leading quorums after presentation and deliberation. We feel much more confidence in the wisdom and inspiration of the entire body of the membership and priesthood in conference capacity in the house of God and after solemn fasting and prayer for divine direction, than we have in the wisdom and inspiration of some isolated member.—Associate Editor.

In answering this question to a brother I herewith submit the following, trusting that it may prove of some interest to those who have not taken the time to collect the data herein contained.

It will be observed that this article is in the form of a letter sent to a troubled brother.

Yours of the 19th of last month awaited my return from Independence, and since such homecoming I have been as busy as a honey bee in the season of fragrant flowers.

You seem to be suffering somewhat from mental perturbation on account of the vote of the late General Conference in the sustaining of the President.

"Brother, is life's morning clouded?

Has its sunlight ceased to shine?

Is the earth in darkness shrouded?

Dost thou at thy lot repine?

Cheer up, brother, let thy vision

Look above; see, light is near;

Soon will come the next transition,

Trust in God and persevere;

Trust in God and persevere."

You seem quite anxious to learn if I voted for the resolution; permit me to say: That Honorable Thomas Reed, while Speaker of the House of Representatives, ruled that all those who failed to vote were counted with the majority, and in this case, concerning which you have written to me, I would say: The vote was without a dissenting voice; and for the result I have no excuse or apology to offer, and so far as it shall affect my responsibility, no quarter is asked.

April 6, 1830, the day that the church of the true and living God was set up and organized in the last days, we have the following: "Behold, there shall be a record kept among you, and in it thou shalt be called a seer, a translator, a prophet, an apostle of Jesus Christ; an elder of the church through the will of God the Father, and the grace of your Lord Jesus Christ; being inspired of the Holy Ghost to lay the foundation thereof."—Doctrine and Covenants 19: 1.

The above is not of such an individual application that it can not be a guide and apply to each and all who shall be called to like office and responsibility in the church, for we again cite the word of the Lord: "Of the Melchisedec priesthood, three presiding high priests, chosen by the body, appointed and ordained to that office, and upheld by the confidence, faith, and prayer of the church, form a quorum of the presidency of the church."—Doctrine and Covenants 104: 11.

The foregoing clearly indicates the composition of the presidency of the whole church, and we need not make any mistake along that line, and we next examine: "I give unto my servant Joseph, to be a presiding elder over all the church, to be a translator, a revelator, a seer, and prophet."—Doctrine and Covenants 107: 39.

We are told in the above the high and holy rights and privileges of the presiding high priest of the church, and in our next we learn the method of the calling, and scope of his authority: "The president of the church, who is also the president of the council, is appointed by revelation, and acknowledged, in his administration, by the voice of the church; and it is according to the dignity of his office, that he should preside over the high council of the church."—Doctrine and Covenants 99: 6.

AT AMBOY, APRIL 6, 1860.

In all of our zeal and enthusiasm for individual interpretation of private theory, let us commit no violence against the least of God's commandments.

The most unassuming man of all my acquaintance is the present president of the church. Read with care the following straightforward, manly statement made by him April 6, 1860:

I would say to you, brethren, as I hope you may be, and in faith I trust you are, as a people that God has promised his blessings upon, I came not here of myself, but by the influence of the Spirit. For some time past I have received manifestations pointing to this position which I am about to assume.

I wish to say that I have come here not to be dictated by any men or set of men. I have come in obedience to a power not my own, and shall be dictated by that power that sent me.

God works by means known to himself, and I feel that for some time past he has been pointing out a work for me to do.—Church History, vol. 3, p. 247.

After he had made his statement and address to the conference, the following was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that Brother Joseph Smith be chosen Prophet, Seer, and Revelator of the Church of Jesus Christ, and the successor of his father.—Church History, vol. 3, p. 250.

No honest man would have kept his silence in that solemn assembly unless he were in accord and harmony with the resolution and fully comprehended all that the said resolution implied and portended for his future actions and life work, and that when he clearly understood that the action of the conference in the adoption of the said act by their motion conferred no office or priesthood authority upon him; and it would be the exhibition of rampant foolishness for the church to annually sustain him as president, unless the said act of sustaining included all the concomitant rights, privileges, gifts, authority, and spiritual emoluments appertaining to the high and responsible office of the president of the only true and living church of God.

The General Conference of April 6, 1860, acted discreetly, wisely, and in the spirit and letter of the law governing in selecting and installing a man in the office of presiding high priest of the high (or Melchisedec) priesthood. They first heard the statement of the heir apparent. Second, by an action by vote the heir was made a member of the body, and in so doing there were specifically named some of the gifts that inhere with the office of presiding high priest of the church. Third, the action of the conference was in direct accord with the rule of law in the following:

Joseph Smith was then ordained president of the high priesthood of the church, under the hands of Elders Z. H. Gurley, sr., of the Quorum of Twelve, and William Marks, of the high priests, according to the minutes of the conference. This ordination was previously ordered by the unanimous vote of the conference.—Church History, vol. 3, p. 251.

More than eight years after his ordination, namely, October 1, 1868, to meet the murmurings of some carping critics he wrote in explanation of his understanding and position occupied in the church as follows:

The honors which accrue to the occupant of the position which we now hold, come not from man; nor can man divert the curses sure to follow that man who refuses to do the duty before him because he can not in his manner of doing it please so great a variety of men.

The ordination we received at Amboy in 1860, was under the hands of William Marks, William W. Blair, and Zenos H. Gurley, to the high priesthood, and by the voice of the church we were acknowledged and chosen to be the president of the church.

There has been no "cast iron" policy nor priesthood about the matter from beginning to end, so far as we are concerned.—Church History, vol. 3, p. 508.

The foregoing positively indicates that without any arrogance or evasion upon his part, that with willingness of mind and cheerfulness of spirit he accepted and assumed the responsibilities of the office of presiding high priest of the church; and that, without a doubt, included the magnifying of the several requirements of that office as God, whose servant he is, shall from time to time direct. What more could be asked or expected of him?

TERMS DEFINED.

Noah Webster, LL. D., in his Dictionary of the English language, gives us the definition of the several gifts or privileges of the presiding high priest of the church as follows:

1. Seer; one who sees; as, a seer of visions. A person who foresees events; a prophet.
2. Revelator; one who makes a revelation; a revealer.
3. Translator; one who translates; especially, one who renders into another language; one who expresses the sense of words in one language by equivalent words in another.
4. Prophet; one who prophesies, or foretells events, a predictor; a foreteller. A person illuminated, inspired, or instructed by God to speak in his name, or announce future events, as Moses, Isaiah, etc. One who explains or communicates sentiments; an interpreter.
5. Apostle; a person sent forth or deputed to execute some important business; specifically, one of the twelve disciples of Christ sent forth to preach the gospel.

6. Elder; in some churches, pastors or clergymen are called elders, or presbyters.

By us all those holding office in the Melchisedec priesthood are usually given the title of elders, and this is a sufficient and better definition than that furnished us in the dictionary.

There being no imperative requirement in either law or logic that the separate individual factor of a proposition shall be established by such absolute minuteness that there can not possibly remain the shadow of doubt relative to a proposition, it therefore follows that when the major portions of the proposition shall be to our common sense and good judgment made to contain all the elements of truthfulness, exactitude, and reasonableness; and the evidence by which the proposition is thus so favorably recommended has not been impugned or impeached, we may safely stand upon such a platform, and withstand every storm and assault resorted to by gainsayers.

POSITION OF PRESIDENT SMITH EXAMINED.

In the examination and analysis of the proposition that Joseph Smith the present president of the church is the true successor of his illustrious father in fact all that his predecessor possessed, we will begin with the last and retrace our steps until we shall arrive at the initial of the question at issue.

The past fifty years of preaching, teaching, exhorting, counseling, baptizing, confirming, ordaining, administering to the suffering and sick surely should be sufficient certificate to the eldership of our chief minister.

For the propagation and establishing of the principles and organization that were contained in the renewed evangel in the ministrations of his father, Joseph Smith has visited the majority of the States and Territories of the United States of America, Canada, the Hawaii Territory, England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales.

One event that I was a witness to, I will here record. While in attendance at a reunion held at Logan, Harrison County, Iowa, a young sister of some eighteen summers was taken suddenly and violently ill, and the family and friends were so alarmed that they thought that her sickness was unto death. They sent for President Joseph Smith, and he requested me to go with him. Upon entering the tent we found the maiden stretched upon a low bed, and a number in the tent were weeping; we knelt down, had a short prayer, then I poured the oil of anointing upon her head, and Brother Joseph followed with prayer and the laying on of hands, the closing words of his confirmation being: "In the name of Jesus Christ I command you to arise and walk.

Amen." And immediately the girl arose and went and washed her hands and face, took up the duties of the tent, and was at worship as if nothing unusual had occurred.

Thousands of people have heard Joseph during his half century of gospel labor bear witness to the truthfulness that Jesus was the Christ, the Savior and Redeemer of mankind, and that there is no other name given whereby we can be saved; these several references are cited as his certificate of apostleship.

He has faithfully waited upon the Lord in behalf of the church, as is evidenced in the fourteen sections in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants given to and duly and regularly approved by the church for its guidance and government. Prophets of old have not to their credit near so much, nevertheless, we have not the temerity to call in question their prophetic labors. And there can be no sacrilegious act or committal of blasphemy in measuring the work of a present day prophet with that of an ancient prophet; and of one we read:

Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding, he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he.—Matthew 11: 11.

Another author writes:

And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spoke of this man were true.—John 10: 41.

The Bible rule of testing a prophet is:

And if thou say in thine heart, How shall we know the word which the Lord hath not spoken? When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously: thou shalt not be afraid of him.—Deuteronomy 18: 21, 22.

There has been no work of translating that God hath required at the hands of the presiding high priest of the Melchisedec priesthood during the past fifty years, but if there had been He who called the present president of the church would have done as he has always done in times past, and qualified his servant for the work that was for him to do. Translating by translators of the past, has been done by the use of the "Urim and Thummim," and God has that instrument in his own keeping and care; as Joseph has proved himself to be true and faithful to all other duties and the responsibilities imposed upon him in his calling and office, the case righteously stands thus: Whereas, he has stood the test and found not wanting in all other things required of him in his office; therefore, it is a paramount certainty that if God had required any translating to have been done, the presiding high priest of the church would have accomplished that work.

The giving of revelations has been well covered in a previous paragraph; however, there are in the hands of individuals revelations given through or by the president for their personal benefit, to comfort, guide, and cheer; also, there are some quite important revelations in print that have not been incorporated in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; these bear testimony that Joseph has not been lacking as a revelator.

And now for the last in the list in our examination from last to first upon the topic of seership. It was a wise sage of Israel who gave utterance to the statement: "Where there is no vision, the people perish; but he that keepeth the law, happy is he."—Proverbs 29: 18. And it was one of the minor prophets that foretold: "Your young men shall see visions."—Joel 2: 28.

And still later, Peter, while under the inspired influence of the Holy Spirit renewed the promise:

And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams: and on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out, in those days, of my Spirit; and they shall prophesy.—Acts 2: 17, 18.

The second record as a witness of God's dealings with the ancient people of this land has inspired teachings upon spiritual gifts, for in the first chapter we read:

And it came to pass, as he prayed unto the Lord, there came a pillar of fire and dwelt upon a rock before him; and he saw and heard much; and because of the things which he saw and heard, he did quake and tremble exceedingly.

And it came to pass that he returned to his own house at Jerusalem; and he cast himself upon his bed, being overcome with the Spirit and the things which he had seen; and being thus overcome with the Spirit, he was carried away in a vision, even that he saw the heavens open, and he thought that he saw God sitting upon his throne, surrounded with numberless concourses of angels in the attitude of singing and praising their God.

And it came to pass that he saw one descending out of the midst of heaven, and he beheld that his luster was above that of the sun at noonday; and he also saw twelve others following him, and their brightness did exceed that of the stars in the firmament; and they came down and went forth upon the face of the earth; and the first came and stood before my father, and gave unto him a book, and bade him that he should read.—1 Nephi 1: 3-5.

To the above we add an excerpt from the last chapter of the volume as follows:

And when ye shall receive these things, I would exhort you that ye would ask God, the eternal Father, in the name of Christ, if these things are not true; and if ye shall ask with a sincere heart, with real intent, having faith in Christ, he will manifest the truth of it unto you, by the power of the Holy Ghost; and by the power of the Holy Ghost, ye may know the truth of all things. And whatsoever thing is good, is just and true; wherefore, nothing that is good denieth the Christ, but acknowledgeth that he is. And ye may know that he is, by the power of the Holy Ghost; wherefore I would exhort you, that ye deny not the power of God; for he worketh by power, according to the faith of the children of men, the same to-day and to-morrow, and for ever. And again I exhort you, my brethren, that ye deny not the gifts of God, for they are many; and they come from the same God. And there are different ways that these gifts are administered; but it is the same God who worketh all in all; and they are given by the manifestations of the Spirit of God unto man, to profit them. For behold, to one is given by the Spirit of God, that he may teach the word of wisdom; and to another, that he may teach the word of knowledge by the same Spirit; and to another exceeding great faith; and to another, the gifts of healing by the same Spirit. And again, to another, that he may work mighty miracles; and again, to another, that he may prophesy concerning all things; and again, to another, the beholding of angels and ministering spirits; and again, to another, all kinds of tongues; and again, to another, the interpretation of languages and of divers kinds of tongues. And all these gifts come by the Spirit of Christ; and they come unto every man severally, according as he will. And I would exhort you my beloved brethren, that ye remember that every good gift cometh of Christ. And I would exhort you, my beloved brethren, that ye remember that he is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever, and that all these gifts of which I have spoken, which are spiritual, never will be done away, even so long as the world shall stand, only according to the unbelief of the children of men.—Book of Moroni 10: 1.

The extracts from the Book of Mormon are clearly in harmony with the dealings of God in all ages of the world, when men walked in faith and obedience before their heavenly Father, and all the servants of Christ would do well to make a personal and careful inventory of themselves by the aid of Heaven's searchlight, and see if they be in the faith.

DID THE WORK START RIGHT?

Now concerning the introduction of the great and last dispensation, did it begin right? and does it still continue right? The ancient rule will here apply:

To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.—Isaiah 8: 20.

The chief or foundation of what the world is pleased to call "Mormonism" is found in

If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.—James 1: 5.

As a result of compliance with the foregoing this gospel of emancipation from the terrorism of the conflicting and unsatisfactory religions of the world, the young prophet recites:

After I had retired into the place where I had previously designed to go, having looked around me and finding myself alone, I knelt down and began to offer up the desires of my heart to God. I had scarcely done so when immediately I was siezed upon by some power which entirely overcame me, and had such astonishing influence over me as to bind my tongue so that I could not speak. Thick darkness gathered around me, and it seemed to me for a time as if I were doomed to sudden destruction. But exerting all my powers to call upon God to deliver me out of the power of this enemy which had siezed me, and at the very moment when I was ready to sink into despair and abandon myself to destruction, (not to an imaginary ruin, but to the power of some actual being from the unseen world who had such a marvelous power as I never before felt in my being,) just at this moment of great alarm, I saw a pillar of light exactly over my head, above the brightness of the sun; which descended gradually until it fell upon me. It no sooner appeared than I found myself delivered from the enemy which held me bound. When the light rested upon me I saw two personages (whose brightness and glory defy all description) standing above me in the air. One of them spoke unto me, calling me by name, and said, (pointing to the other,) "This is my beloved Son, hear him."—Church History, vol. 1, p. 9.

(To be concluded.)

Canadian Mirror

Memories of Cumorah.

[These lines were penned by Elder F. R. Tubb, of Toronto, Canada, on the fifth anniversary of the visit of the Toronto Canadian Saints to the Hill Cumorah, under the guidance of Bishop R. C. Evans, on March 17, 1907.]

Our mem'ry still lingers fondly
O'er that springtime five years ago,
When under our bishop's guidance,
We crossed the fair waters blue
Of our lovely Lake Ontario,
Mid changing scenes and new,
To visit Cumorah's mountain
Sacred since days of old
When Moroni hid in that lonely bed
Those records of purest gold.

Though the snows of a thousand winters
Have since beat on this lonely place,
And for a thousand years the sun
Has shown on that sacred space;
While the soaring eagle only,
Or perchance the swift-flying hawk,
Were the only witnesses whose gaze
E'er glanced upon that small stone ark.

That ark from whence there was to spring,
After a thousand rolling years,
The golden plates that were to bring
God's glorious truth to myriad ears;
The truth of heaven's undying love
Unto a long forgotten race;
Showing that in his august sight
Those wandering sheep are sons of grace.

Though severed by seas and mountains,
And tempests and torrents of foam,
They are children still of the Father's will,
And the Shepherd will bring them home.
They are children still of the Father's will,
And his Spirit shall guide them home.

We can feel once more those breezes
That blew on yon mountain top,
While many strayed gathering flowers and leaves
And bark from the trees that grew near that holy spot,
To remind us all when again we viewed
The Bay of Toronto fair,
That a mountain stood near the silent wood,
Fragrant with memories rare.

But we knew ere we saw that mountain,
Or gazed on its lonely height,
By the Spirit pure and the peace secure
That breathed in the air that night,
That no human hand had lifted
For us the dear veil of years,
But a holier Sun had rifted
The mists of earth-shadows and fears.

Then sleep on, oh, lonely mountain,
Till that Being shall bid thee wake,
Who hid in thy silent bosom
The words of the good and the great;
And when my earth-stricken spirit
Shall come to the last, lone hill,
May the angel of dear Cumorah
Be near me and with me still!

Indian Population of Canada Growing.

OTTAWA, July 15.—According to statistics just compiled, the Canadian Indian does not yet show any sign of passing away as the American red men have done. Figures for the last fiscal year show that there are now 104,000 in the Dominion, an increase of a few hundred over last year. There are 5,000 Eskimos. This strange race of the frozen North is gradually fading from existence.—London Free Press.

Toronto Church Dedication.

An event historic and unique in the life experience of Toronto has just taken place in the dedication of the church building on Soho Street, Toronto, to the worship and service of God, free from debt or other incumbrance!

Sunday, July 14, 1912, is a date which will long survive in the memory of the large and populous army of the Saints living in Toronto and vicinity.

A large and expectant crowd awaited the opening organ voluntary at seven p. m., and heartily joined in the initiatory hymn. The dedicational prayer being offered by Elder F. Gregory, who by some happy chance was passing through Toronto, en route to the vast and golden Northwest, his mission field. Bishop R. C. Evans entertained the enthusiastic audience—as it was most fitting—with a succinct but vivid recital of the deep trials and high triumphs of the Toronto Branch; a full descriptive epitome of all, whose vicissitudes would not only fill an entire copy of the SAINTS' HERALD, but would require for its just and adequate execution a far abler pen than mine. Whose pen, indeed, could give pictorial utterance to such scenes of adversity on the one hand and of resurrection and rejuvenation on the other?

Weighted down at one time by a church debt the mere recital of whose figures had been well nigh sufficient to appall the stoutest heart and paralyze the strongest arm, save in that of a not only very numerous but very wealthy branch or district, or stake of Zion!

But for the same kind, powerful, and unerring arm of wisdom and of power which caused his respected servant, the bishop, to inaugurate and to initiate those now far-famed opera house lectures, who can either foresee or foretell how soon the sable pall of gloom, anxiety, and financial failure might have smitten and obliterated all Toronto's hopes like a baleful miasma of death or a maelstrom of ruin?

But time after time the Saints, including the young people, invigorated and reinforced by the Ladies' Aid Society of Toronto, have come nobly to the rescue of the chief speaker and originator of the lectures, with the result that even strangers in all parts of this city are speaking in glowing terms and in appreciative strains of the Latter Day Saints of Toronto.

Your correspondent, lacking the details necessary to form a complete analysis of the truly able and truly noble work that has been thus done, is very happy to have been made acquainted with the fact that a resumé of the work in a most attractive form is being prepared ab initio by the two men whose names,—“familiar in one's mouth as household words,” and held in universal respect—are undoubtedly and unquestionably the two leaders best fitted for so noble and so vitally necessary a task for the enlightenment of all.

Meanwhile I remain your brother in the commonwealth,
JULY 16, 1912. F. R. TUBB.

Of General Interest

Roman Catholicism and the State.

[Extract of a sermon preached at Saint Louis, Missouri, June 30, by the Reverend D. S. Phelan, LL. D., and reported in the Western Watchman.]

“And why is it the church is strong; why is it everybody is afraid of the Catholic Church? And the American people are more afraid of her than any people of the world. Why are they afraid of the Catholic Church? They know what the Catholic Church means. It means all the Catholics of the world; not of one country, or two countries, but all the countries of the world. And it means more than that: It means that the Catholics of the world love the church more than anything else, that the Catholics of the world love the church more than they do their own governments, more than they do their own nation, more than they do their own people, more than they do their own fortunes, more than they do their own selves. We of the Catholic Church are ready to go to the death for the church. Under God, she is the supreme object of our worship. Tell us that we think more of the church than we do of the United States; of course we do. Tell us we are Catholics first and Americans or Englishmen afterward; of course we are. Tell us in the conflict between the church and the civil government we take the side of the church; of course we do. Why, if the Government of the United States were at war with the church we would say to-morrow, To hell with the Government of the United States; and if the church and all the governments of the world were at war we would say, To hell with all the governments of the world. They say we are Catholics first and Americans decidedly afterward. There is no doubt about it. We are Catholics first and we love the church more than we love any and all the governments of the world. Let the governments of the world steer clear of the Catholic Church; let the emperors, let the kings, and the presidents not come into conflict with the head of the Catholic Church. Because the Catholic Church is everything to all the Catholics of the world; they renounce all nationalities where there is a question of loyalty to her. And why is it the pope is so strong? Why is it that in this country, where we have only seven per cent of the population, the Catholic Church is so much feared? She is loved by all her children and feared by everybody. Why is it the pope is such a tremendous power? Why, the pope is the ruler of the world. All the emperors, all the kings, all the princes, all the presidents of the world to-day are as these altar boys of mine. The pope is the ruler of the world. Why? Because he is the ruler of the Catholics of the world, the Catholics of all the world; and the Catholics of all the world would die for the rights of the pope. He is the head of the church, and they would die for the church. And the church is the church of Jesus Christ, and they need not have any misgivings on that score; there need be no misconceptions there—the Catholics of the world are Catholics first and always; they are Americans, they are Germans, they are French, or they are English afterward.”

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY FRANCES.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. F. M. Smith, vice president, 630 South Crayler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. D. J. Krahl, secretary, 724 South Crayler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. Letha Tilton, treasurer, Lamoni, Iowa, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, 1595 West Walnut, Independence, Missouri, Mrs. H. A. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.

Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Mollie Davis, superintendent, Pittsburg, Kansas.

Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Eugenics Department, Mrs. Clara Curtis, superintendent, 2200 Indiana Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.

Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, superintendent, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.

Young Women's Department, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, superintendent, 707 South Fuller Avenue, Independence, Missouri.

Sewing and Aid Societies, Mrs. M. B. Nicholson, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Home and Child Welfare Department of the Woman's Auxiliary. Reading for August.

THE YOUNG WOMAN.

There were nine of them, including the young hostess. Nine sweet young women, in their dainty white dresses, seated on the lawn. They had come, bringing with them their fancywork to spend an hour or two with their friend. They were laughing and chatting, as only young girls can when together, and their jesting and repartee only added more beauty to the picture.

As I looked into the sweet, pure face of each girl, I could not help wondering what life held for her. We will make the question broader, and ask of all young women if they have given this a serious thought? Mothers, have you considered this important question, and in the training of your daughters, endeavored to prepare them to get the best of purity and purpose that life can hold for them?

Girls, as you stand on the threshold of young womanhood and view the broad expanse before you, do you realize your possibilities? How necessary that you should make the right start, and keep in the right path till life's journey is ended? Do you realize that “Life is a gift from God, and is divine”?

The young woman who has been properly instructed and cared for, during the adolescent period, is better prepared for life, as she understands her nature and reverences her womanhood to a greater extent. How needful it is for her to understand her responsibility and value to the human race.

The young people of to-day are creating the conditions of the world in the years to come; therefore the physical part of their nature should not be neglected. Every young woman should learn to take care of her body, for that is the temple wherein dwells her spirit. She should take great care of her external appearance, as that indicates to a great extent her real self. She must take proper food, rest, breathe well, and give every other care for the preservation of her body. One prominent writer makes this statement: "We can all appreciate the value of a man-made instrument or machine, but the God-created body, a combination of instruments and machines of marvelous powers and delicacy, we neglect, or treat with absolute injury, and excuse ourselves on the ground that when we get older we will treat it more kindly."

The young woman should not be indifferent as to the selection of her friends. No intercourse is more ideal than that of two girls whose friendship with each other is sacred and lasting. She will do well to number among her most treasured friends, one of mature judgment and wisdom, who has not forgotten the gladness of her youth, ask of her advice when troubles and perplexities arise. She will be able to pilot you through many of them. If a young woman has a mother, she should take her into loving confidence. It will be a wall of safety for her. Mother, be a girl again with your daughters, enter into their pleasures, as well as being their counselor in times of trouble and discouragement.

Every young woman should choose friends who are refined, cultured, and lovely, she herself being in possession of the corresponding qualities. If one chooses those who are loud talking or vulgar and use slang, one is labeled then as belonging to the same class. If in the association of such unfortunate ones, you are the stronger and can assist them to rise to your level without lowering your standard, then you are helpers indeed. It matters not whether the chosen friend lives in an humble cottage or a mansion, though she wear fine clothing or plain, those are minor conditions. The important part is that she be gentle and refined, using good language in sweet, soft tones, and that she be a thorough woman, at home among the choicest and best people. We are not forgetful that pleasure and recreation form a very important part of what is necessary to her young life. A happy life is full of service, and service must have its fit equipment in a clear brain, pure blood, steady nerves, and a habit of being well. The practice of taking plenty of outdoor exercise and freedom helps in developing these conditions. She should each day practice deep breathing, filling her lungs with fresh, pure air. At certain seasons nature demands rest as a duty, and foolish is the girl who opposes this dictate, for in the future she may pay dearly for the neglect in suffering for days or perhaps years. Among the pleasures of the present time is the return of the long neglected art of doing hand sewing, embroidery, tatting, and crocheting. To cultivate these accomplishments means pleasant hours for thought, rest, or visiting with one's friends. This is a time when mother and daughter may spend many happy and never to be forgotten moments together, and who knows the influence hours thus spent may have on the future life of the daughter? Among other pleasures, we might mention a trip to the country, a picnic or excursion. On these occasions suitable company should be provided.

The young woman should consider it among one of her pleasures to cultivate the gift of ability to do simple cooking. Every day there are pleasures around us. When we look out on the beauties of nature, hear the birds singing, see sweet flowers blooming, they all speak of the goodness of God, and he means us to be happy in their possession. A most important influence upon a girl's life is derived from her choice of books. At the age of twenty she has not had time to read very extensively. If she has read good books, thus far, a good foundation has been laid. "Our books are our friends," and in the selection of them she indicates her tastes and character. Among her selections she will do well to include Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot, and other notable writers. These are historical books, as well as biographical books, containing much educational material. Read Longfellow's beautiful poems, J. G. Holland's Bitter Sweet, Kathrina, and others of his writing. A book which should be included in our daily reading is the Bible, from which we may learn to keep God's commandments. Through doing his will we may bring comfort to those around us.

Quite a number of our young girls have entered the business world as breadwinners. "Whatsoever thy hands find to do, do it with all thy might." A very essential thing to insure a successful business life is good health. She who best cares for her physical self will be most useful in this field of labor. Her dress should be plain but very neat, that she may not attract attention; and jewelry should be very little worn.

The question may be asked, if a young woman in business life is not subjected to a variety of temptations, because to some extent she is unprotected. There may be cases where she is placed in undesirable situations; however, if she be preoccupied with her work and conducts herself in a lady-like manner, she will repel those who would offer her insult. A perfect lady will be recognized always and her business life will be no exception to the rule. The majority of men who are her business associates, do not think of her in her feminine character; they take her on the merits of a fellow worker. The young girl who flirts with men, her associates in business, making herself a sort of good fellow, jesting openly, or in other ways, or assuming masculine manners, can not expect to receive the respect that is due her sex. She must remember she is making her own living and should have a higher standard than being admired or complimented by unprincipled men.

These helpful lines might be remembered:

"I know not the way I am going,
But well do I know my guide.
With childlike trust I take the hand
Of the mighty Friend at my side."

All of the young woman's time is not spent in business; she has time for her personal interests. Her cares and worries over what has happened or may happen in her business hours should be laid aside and be considered an ended page, so that her own hours may not be marred.

Now, again, may be asked other questions relating to her many interests in a business life, among which one stands out most prominently. "Is it possible for a business woman to live a Christian life?"

The answer is, "Most assuredly; yes." By her irreproachable conduct, by the price she places on her character, by the look of silent reproach when there is occasion. She will do well to follow after the example of the Savior, that through her life he may be glorified.

MRS. J. E. HAINES.

Program for August.

Song 18, Hymnal; prayer; reading, "The young woman," by Mrs. J. E. Haines; paper, "Should our girls be trained for wage earners or homekeepers"; song 62; benediction.

What is to come we know not.

But we know

That what has been was good—was good to show,
Better to hide, and, best of all, to hear.

We are the masters of the days that were:

We have lived, we have loved, we have suffered,

. . . even so.—William E. Henley.

Letter Department

MANCHESTER, ENGLAND, July 4, 1912.

Editors Herald: I am now free to wait upon my ministry, and I am truly thankful, for it has been a great struggle. It really looked at one time as though everything was against me, and but for the kindness of some of my friends I should have not been able to honor my appointment.

I shall now go forward with renewed faith and courage, and trust to be able to fight the good fight of faith.

With the kindest wishes for your success,

W. H. GREENWOOD.

23 CICERO STREET, MOSTON.

LOWER LAKE, CALIFORNIA, July 9, 1912.

Dear Herald: Since my last writing we have lost the president of our little branch, and his family (eight in all), making our branch a mere frazzle; three sisters, two brothers, one of the latter bedfast, who is praying and hoping that the prayer union will take his case to the Lord in mighty prayer that all hindrances to his healing may be removed. Last Sunday my companion brought the sacrament to him, which comforted him very much. He lives five miles from us, but we try to visit him and his family every Sunday afternoon.

We are anxiously looking for some announcement of our reunion which we trust will be held at the usual place—Irvington. We do not know how we could pass twelve months without the annual gathering of the Saints. The good gained by such meetings is like food to a hungry person. It seems to sustain us until the end of the year; when we hunger for a new supply.

We are hoping that we may have a resident elder here. Brother Mahlon Cannon would have done much more good if he had remained the entire year. He was well received by outsiders, and we greatly regretted the departure of himself and wife.

Hoping and praying for the redemption of Zion,

Your sister in the faith,

MARIE JULIE T. ADAMSON.

OTWAY, OHIO, June 30, 1912.

Editors Herald: We have a branch of about ninety-four members. Some of the Saints are somewhat neglectful of duty; this ought not to be. We have Sunday school nearly every Sunday. We hold preaching after the Sunday school, also in the evening. Our sacrament meeting is held the first Sunday night of each month.

Satan is lurking on every hand in strong opposition to the work of God, and bringing about the fulfillment of the words of Paul when he said men would be lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God.

I do not get to meet with the branch very often, as it is a distance of about thirteen miles. Our branch is situated on McCulloch, seven miles northeast of Otway, known as the Pleasant Valley Branch. Where the writer lives, the people have turned a deaf ear to the preaching of the gospel of Christ, which is the power of God unto salvation.

We find it is the doer of the law that is justified. We must be both hearers and doers of the law, which is the gospel. Dear Saints, let us try by the help of the Lord to live by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God, then we can enjoy a full and free salvation. We will be rewarded in this life according to our works, as well as in the world to come. If we do not receive blessings it is our fault. God withholds no good things from them that walk uprightly. (Psalm 84: 11.)

So, dear Saints, be faithful; it is only those that endure unto the end that will be saved in the celestial kingdom. I believe that the outsider that never heard the gospel will stand a better chance when he stands before the bar of God than we who have obeyed the gospel and have been baptized for the remission of sins, and who have neglected our duty and strayed into worldly pleasures again. When we stand before God we will have no cloak to hide behind. Now let us give the more earnest heed to things we have heard, lest at any time we let them slip, and earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the Saints.

May the Lord bless the editors and inspire them with the Holy Spirit in this great work, for it is the work of God. No man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost.

If the writer should fall away from this work there is no other salvation, for this is the work of God in these latter days. This is the church of Christ; his bride, the Lamb's wife, with all the gifts and blessings and the pure gospel preached as in the days of Christ and the apostles. May we all work and labor for the advancement of his cause and the upbuilding of his kingdom, that all may see the light of the gospel in due time. May God save all in his kingdom.

Yours in the one faith,

J. T. MITCHELL.

BREWTON, ALABAMA, July 3, 1912.

Dear Editors: I want a little space to tell the Saints I know the work is of God. I was baptized in 1866. I will be eighty-two years old on my next birthday, and I have never regretted a moment of my time spent in this great latter day work. I love the cause of Christ as dearly as I can and know how to love it. I desire the prayers of all the Saints that I may hold out to the end.

Your sister in Christ,

CAROLINE BOOKER.

ARGENTS HILL, N. S. W., AUSTRALIA, June 5, 1912.

Editors Herald: Sometimes there appears in the columns of the HERALD, through a mistake or oversight, something that gives the objector a club with which to fight the work. Such an item occurs in the issue of April 24, under the heading, "Culled from the papers," in which a truth was purposely so stated by the reporter to create an entirely wrong impression. It is certainly a great mistake for the HERALD to reproduce such statements without any correction. The statement referred to is found on page 392 and is as follows:

"Joseph Smith, a man almost blind and deaf, a sufferer, and eighty years old, was busy! He sat in a parlor with his back to the light, a table piled high with papers beside him. His eyes were closed and his hands clasped in his lap. His third wife sat near the window, one of her three little sons were playing about her skirts."

It is very evident that the purpose of the reporter who contributed the item to the Kansas City Star was to give out the impression that our President has three wives. What the purpose of our editors in reproducing it was I am unable to surmise. There are thousands of people in foreign lands, not only outside the church, but among our new members as well, who seeing such a statement as that, without comment of any kind in the pages of the HERALD, will think it is true. We missionaries have trouble enough without such statements as that being circulated by the HERALD. The Historian is reported to have said at the conference, that it was only the cheap papers, of the lower strata, that misrepresented us now. I am sorry to see the SAINTS' HERALD joining that class.

As a matter of fact the lady referred to in the objectionable article is not the third, but the only living wife of Joseph Smith. He was married in his youth, and after the death of the first woman, he married again, this woman dying also in after years he married again. Each woman he married being, while living, his only wife. If the editors of the HERALD knew how anxious the enemy is to take advantage of anything that can possibly give color to the story that the leaders of the Reorganization are practicing polygamy they would be very careful in reproducing such statements as the one objected to.

E. F. ROBERTSON.
F. G. PITT.

SOUTH, ALABAMA, June 26, 1912.

Editors Herald: How I enjoy reading your dear pages! My first evidence of this work was when I had the privilege of meeting Brother J. W. Dubose, of Independence, Missouri, in November, 1911. I was very sick at the time and asked him if he could do anything for me. He asked, "What will you have me do? Do you want to be administered to?" I told him I did if he thought it would do any good. He said, "I am only a priest and can not administer to you," and then asked if I was a member of the church. I told him I was not. He said, "I will make you one promise; if you will lay down all prejudice and ask God with an humble heart and contrite spirit whether or not I am representing the true church of Jesus Christ you shall receive a testimony. Then if you will obey the gospel and be administered to, you will receive your health."

I felt he was telling me the truth, so I went to God in prayer and that night I had a dream in which I saw my mother and daughter eating slop from a trough in a pig pen. I saw one other pen with a white pig in it. Brother Dubose then appeared before me with three gold bars in his hand. He spoke to me and said, "Come; go home with me, and I will give you the three gold bars." They shone brighter than anything I had ever seen before. Since then I have obeyed the gospel, and have had the glorious visitation of an angel while I was very sick. I have also heard a voice, saying, "Fear not, I am with you," while I was engaged in humble prayer, asking God whether I had done that which was right or not. Since then I have been administered to by Swen Swenson. My health is a great deal better, but I am not well yet. I might add that the doctors had pronounced my case incurable without a surgical operation.

I ask the prayers of the Saints.

Your sister in the gospel,

L. B. WILLIAMSON.

TAWAS CITY, MICHIGAN, July 6, 1912.

Editors Herald: I thought I would tell you a little of how we spent the Fourth of July, and of our progress in this part of the Master's vineyard. On the Fourth we drove to Whittemore, a distance of thirteen miles, to meet with the Saints at that place for an all-day meeting. The number going from this place was thirty-seven; some going by way of train, and there were many from other branches, till the number reached over one hundred and twenty-five. There were many baskets full of good things to eat.

In our prayer service the gift of prophecy was given by a sister. The Lord was pleased with the Saints for separating themselves from the world and meeting in this place to worship on this day and many more comforting words after dinner. A fine program was arranged and many fine patriotic and religious pieces were recited and songs sung. The writer preached with good liberty. The Good Spirit prevailed.

In our branch we are struggling hard to come up higher and build on the pure love of Christ.

Yours in gospel bonds,

M. A. SOMMERFIELD.

The Angel of Revelation 14: 6, 7.

There seems to be quite a number of the Saints considerably exercised in their minds in trying to reconcile the statement in these two verses with facts concerning the other angel that went before and those that were to follow. Also over the question as to which of the several that came to the earth and were seen by Joseph Smith, was the angel of those verses. I would just like to ask, Did it ever occur to those brethren that the Book of Revelation is largely types and symbols? The churches of Asia were represented by seven golden candlesticks; the source of life by a tree bearing twelve kinds of fruit, and yielding her fruit each month, and the leaves for the healing of the nations; the church as a woman; the Devil as a dragon; John had to eat a little book, and there are many more such symbols. Why must we take those two verses in the literal sense? This is what was shown to John, with all the other symbols.

It seemed a good way to represent the great latter day work to John, that it would be a restoration of the gospel by angelic ministrations. It may be argued that the hour of God's judgment has not yet come. Well, suppose it has not, neither has all been fulfilled yet that is represented to John by the angel and that connected with him which no doubt embraced all connected with the great restoration. Before that is all finished the hour of God's judgment will be here in its fullest sense.

By a too strict literalism in the book of Revelation we may involve ourselves in difficulty.

H. J. DAVISON.

North Dakota Reunion.

The reunion of the North Dakota District met this year at Logan, North Dakota, July 6 to 15. Organization was effected by selecting J. E. Wildermuth president, with William Sparling and J. S. Wagoner as associates; James C. Page secretary. The attendance was very good, considering the conditions and two years of drouth. Besides the above-mentioned brethren we had with us Joshua Carlile, patriarch, of Underwood, Iowa; Altha Deam, Sunday school field worker from Independence; and J. W. Wight got here to attend the last two services and preach the closing sermon. Five were baptized by Elders Sparling and Page; all adults.

The comfort of the campers was marred by rain, but all felt willing to endure it for the refreshing it brought to the crops.

The prayer meetings were very good, many interesting testimonies were given, tongues and prophecy were manifest, in warning and commendation. The sermons were convincing and instructive. A great many outsiders attended, and the press of Minot made favorable mention, and we believe a great deal of prejudice was removed.

The district conference was held on Tuesday, the 9th; Sunday school and Religio convention on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, with institute work conducted by Sister Deam. Saturday afternoon was devoted to the interest of Graceland; several students were present and assisted the service. About one hundred dollars in pledges were received.

Brother William Sparling was ordained a high priest by J. W. Wight and James C. Page, according to the order of last General Conference.

The Saints voted to hold a reunion next year at Fargo, jointly with the Minnesota reunion. The expense was readily met and all seem to feel that it is good to come together to worship the Lord.

JAS. C. PAGE, Secretary.

News from Missions

Arkansas.

Having been with Brother J. T. Riley in his conflict at Fisher, I thought it would be well to let the readers of the HERALD know that we are still alive and none the worse off for the wear and tear of the conflict. About the worst hurting we got was from the mosquito bites and not the Campbellites.

The questions discussed were the usual church propositions. Each man affirmed his own propositions for six sessions.

Mr. Stricklin, of Campbellite fame, would like to pose as a great debater. He said during the debate that Brother Riley was the eighth one that he had cleaned up, and that he was ready for eight more just as fast as we could bring them on. But Brother Riley being the first Indian he ever chewed on, he found his hide quite tough, and it must have lain heavily on his stomach from his actions, and I am satisfied he went away hoping and praying (if he ever prayed) that he would never see another Latter Day Saint minister. At the close of the debate a crowd of boys came up and pinned blue ribbons on Brother Riley and the writer in token of the victory won.

We went there as strangers to all, but left with a host of friends and six additions to the church, and several more near the kingdom.

Some one will have to trouble the waters again ere long. Brother J. M. Goodin has been living there the past three years, and his life has been above reproach. While he is a priest and has done some preaching, yet his daily walk and manner of living have been louder preaching than all the preaching he has done with his mouth. Quite a number spoke to us of his manner of living, that it was above reproach. If all who name the name of Christ would only live that way it would not be so hard for the elders to get a hearing when they go into a new place.

We left Fisher on the 11th, Brother Riley going to Sweet Lake, Louisiana, and I coming to this place. I expect to stay here a couple of weeks if the interest demands. We find lots of good, sociable Saints in Arkansas, and wherever we have been so far our expenses have been well met. May the Lord abundantly bless them for their kindness.

Let all remember that it takes something besides the wind to keep the missionary going. One and all should pay their tithing to the bishops, so the missionary's wife and children may have their needs supplied. In this way we can all be laborers together for the Master and assist in the spread of this great work. But very few know of the care and worry of the missionary's wife, and of the scrimping and saving she has to do to keep food and raiment for her little ones, and then half the time can not keep them sufficiently clothed to keep them in Sunday school.

As ever,

BALD KNOB, ARKANSAS, July 13, 1912.

W. R. SMITH.

Iowa.

History of interest to the readers of our valuable paper has been made since last I communicated with you.

On June 1 and 2 occurred the district conference of the Des Moines District, at Des Moines, Iowa, fraught with results that are and will be to the glory of God. Preceding the conference was held the convention of the Zion's Religious-Literary Society and Sunday school association, which were well attended and full of interest. The conference selected O. Salisbury as district president, with E. O. Clark and C. Malcor as assistants, and E. O. Clark as secretary. M.

M. Turpen, E. B. Morgan, and John Garver, of the Lamoni Stake, were present, and did their part as assigned. Charles M. Richeson, of State Center, was called to the office of priest and his ordination was ordered. On the 18th of June the ordination was attended to and the Rhodes Branch, which since the death of W. C. Nirk had been in a semi disorganized condition, was put into working condition with C. M. Richeson as its president, and Sister C. M. Richeson as secretary. God surely approved of this work. The Saints feel more encouraged, and I look for this place to be heard from in the not very distant future for the advancement made.

At Perry the Saints have built a neat church building to be occupied for the first time next Sunday, and it is contemplated that all indebtedness will be met soon, so that in the early fall it may be dedicated. Fred A. Settles has been ordained a priest and will be a great help to the work there. Previous to this ordination there has been none of the priesthood located there.

At Boone tent meetings have been in progress since the 23d of last month, each night and three times on the Lord's Day. The inclosed is a sample of a notice used to advertise us. Much interest has been and is shown. Four have been baptized, and others near the kingdom. M. M. Turpen is assisting me here, and doing very efficient work. It is an inspiration to be associated with such an one. The Boone Branch is showing greater spirituality and united interest than for years. Thomas Lewis has been ordained a priest since the beginning of the tent services, by reason of previous action had by the branch, and as janitor and as superintendent of the Sunday school is doing acceptable work, and if he remains humble in whatever position he may be selected to occupy, there is a bright prospect for him to do much efficient labor.

The Des Moines Branch is making a hard struggle to do the work required, but there are so many requests for private and personal visitations that can not be satisfied that much has to be left undone. Events that have of late transpired will lead the membership to a better understanding of the order of heaven, and I believe when this understanding is had the membership will not be easily persuaded to dictate or direct the officials legally appointed or ordained to look after the local and general work of the church, or to listen to criticisms unjustly made against such officials when in the line of their duty. Some have been baptized of late and others are to be baptized soon, and many are near the door of entrance, and if they are not hindered will soon enter. In some ways the Des Moines Branch is making progress, and when contention, strife, and the spirit to stir up division is eliminated from among the membership, and from every heart, I look to see scores flock to the standard of righteousness.

The district and branch officials throughout the district are making commendable efforts to bring about peace and unity, and to remove everything that has a tendency to disregard the respect that should be shown everyone in his place and to develop in each the qualifications set forth in section 4 of Doctrine and Covenants so that everyone may assist in the work of God. They are showing a consistent effort to teach the officials and members that to assist in this work they "shall be humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity, being temperate in all things whatsoever shall be intrusted to his care," and that "no one can assist in the work" except they show forth these characteristics, according to Doctrine and Covenants 11:4. This is resulting in great good and greatly encouraging the Saints in spiritual things, and attracting others to take special notice of the superior character of the Lord's work, and those permitted to represent it to that of other religions. Other churches are considering in the qualifications of their representatives, shrewdness, wit, ridicule, and eloquence, mingled with a degree of sarcasm, while in God's work spiritual intelligence directed by the spirit of humility, meekness, and love with an eye single to the glory of God is paramount. In some of the religious organizations the source of authority is wholly vested in the people, while in our work the source of authority is with God, and he chooses his agents. In the religious work generally the officials are taken on trial, and if they do not minister to please the people, then the people make an effort in political ways to not permit them to minister, but to get some one to minister who will act to please the people, but in God's work he directs and authorizes men to act to please him, and Paul says, "If I would please men I would not be a servant of Christ," and so it is in every age. Praise God for the authority conferred upon men in our day, and the qualifications that must be secured by every minister before he can use that authority so that it will assist to build up the kingdom of God.

C. E. Butterworth spent some time very acceptably in the district, and S. M. Reiste has been active, laboring of late at Charles City, Packard, Eagle Grove and vicinity. He is now at his father's caring for him in what is considered fatal illness.

Prospects for a successful reunion at Colo are bright. Several have expressed a desire to be present and are preparing to be there. We are expecting J. W. Wight and Gomer R. Wells, besides the district appointees, to be present, and it may be others of the ministry will be there to assist.

Splendid crops in all this region of the State, and plenty of rain just at present, but there is very little work for those who follow mining, but work will soon open up in that line.

Here at Boone the prospect of securing a larger and better place in which to worship God is being considered. It is greatly needed.

I have been delighted at the improved efficiency of the SAINTS' HERALD, Zion's Ensign, Autumn Leaves, and Hope, and pray God may continue to direct in every effort along literary lines, and that we may eliminate from our publications such books and tracts that do not agree with each other, or the action of the conferences and deciding quorums of the church.

Hopefully, I am,

J. F. MINTUN.

BOONE, IOWA, 502 South Main Street.

News from Branches

Omaha, Nebraska.

Though it may be rather presuming to say what a branch as a whole thinks, yet the writer feels quite safe in saying that we, in Omaha, are very well pleased with our new missionary, Elder Paul Craig.

It is generally conceded that the young people are the backbone of our branch, and now with a young man to help us we feel that our future can not be other than progress in the right direction.

Our Daily Vacation Bible School opened yesterday, July 15, with twenty-nine children and to-day we had forty-nine in attendance. What we need most is teachers, as we feel sure of a much larger attendance, though all things considered we are doing well. Brother Craig is jubilant; so are others.

Newly-elected Religio officers are enthusiastic. Hopes are high for the coming six months among Religians. Sunday school, though handicapped by hot weather, has hopes of increased attendance, justified by vacation school attendance. May the Lord hear our prayers and fulfill our hopes.

JULY 16.

W. E. STORT.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

EASTERN IOWA.—Conference convened at Muscatine, Iowa, June 15, 1912, 9 a. m. prayer service, with district president in charge; 10 a. m. conference session called to order for business with District President J. B. Wildermuth in the chair. District clerk being absent, by motion I. A. Chamberlain was chosen secretary with power to choose his assistants. James McKiernan, assistant minister in charge, was chosen to associate with district president in presiding over the business sessions of the conference. Martha Baggerly was chosen chorister. James McKiernan was given charge of the press committee work. Motion prevailed that visiting Saints be given courtesy of the floor, voice and vote. District president was chosen chairman of the program committee. Branches reporting: Baldwin, Oelwein, Clinton, Fulton, Davenport, Osterdock and Muscatine. Branches not reporting: Marion and Green Valley. District officers reporting: President, J. B. Wildermuth; secretary, Robert Smith; and Nettie I. Smith of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Brother John Heide's report as bishop's agent showed a balance on hand of $171.14. Seventies reporting: J. B. Wildermuth and James McKiernan. Elders reporting: C. G. Dykes, John Heide, I. A. Chamberlain, E. W. Voelpel, Robert Smith, W. E. Turner. Priests reporting: William Stahl, Wesley Richards, C. A. Biel, D. L. Palsgrove, Amos Heide. Election of officers resulted as follows: President, J. B. Wildermuth; vice president, C. G. Dykes; secretary, Melvina Dykes; bishop's agent and district treasurer, John Heide. Announcements of the Eastern Iowa, Nauvoo and Kewanee districts reunion, to be held at Prospect Park, Moline, Illinois, August 15-26, 1912, were then made by C. G. Dykes. The former secretary, Robert Smith, having removed from the district, the present secretary was authorized to notify him that the district extends to him a vote of thanks for his faithful services in the past. Preaching was by W. E. Turner, I. A. Chamberlain, C. C. Joehnk, and James McKiernan. Conference adjourned to meet at Davenport, Iowa, October 19, 20, 1912. Melvina Dykes, district secretary, Muscatine, Iowa.

UTAH.—The annual conference of the Utah District convened with the Saints at Malad City, June 8, 1912, and organized by electing J. W. Rushton, M. F. Gowell, and Richard Bullard to preside over the conference. Statistical reports were presented by the various branches, as also ministerial reports and financial reports from bishop's agent and district treasurer, the financial reports being duly audited and approved. The following auditing committee was chosen and elected as follows: Elias Richards for three-year term, Hyrum Swenson for two-year term, and C. A. Smurthwaite for one-year term. The following were elected as district officers for a term of one year: J. C. Chrestensen, president; C. A. Smurthwaite, vice president; G. J. S. Abels, secretary and treasurer, which last named brother was also sustained as bishop's agent, and Hyrum Swenson of Salt Lake City, A. C. W. Wardle of Midvale, A. G. Mathis of Provo, and Elias Richards of Malad, as subagents. The district secretary was authorized to secure such books as are needed to make the membership records more uniform and complete. The conference also adopted a set of rules for the government of the Utah District and authorized its publication and distribution for use of the ministry and membership. The conference was marked for its progressiveness, holding a series of meetings for the ministry and ordained local brethren, at which various needs in the different localities were thoroughly discussed and suggestions given for the betterment of local conditions and of the work of proselyting. There were seven applications for baptism, the ordinance being attended to by A. M. Chase, and a number of babies blessed, while the conference during the prayer meeting service received the word of exhortation and prophecy by the Spirit through Bishop Richard Bullard. The opera house was secured for the use of the Sunday night meeting and a very large congregation heard an excellent discourse from J. W. Rushton. Much of the success of the conference was no doubt due to the excellent singing rendered under the direction of A. M. Chase and family, also because of the large number of both ministry and Saints in attendance, as well as the excellent spirit that prevailed. The Malad Saints excelled in hospitality, the like of which had never heretofore been experienced in the Utah District. Conference adjourned to meet in Salt Lake City. Gerard J. S. Abels, district secretary.

SAINT LOUIS.—District conference convened at Landsdowne Branch, June 22 and 23, 1912. Conference called to order by President R. Archibald. Apostle J. F. Curtis presiding. Statistical reports were read from the following branches: Saint Louis 345; Lansdowne 148; Belleville 62; Oak Hill 53; Cheltenham 46; Saint Charles 35; Alton 26; Troy 21; O'Fallon 33. Ministry reporting, high priests: R. Archibald, T. J. Elliott, George F. Barraclough. Elders: S. A. Burgess, L. L. Joerndt, John Beaird, G. M. Vandel, J. Hull, F. L. Sawley, James Wild, N. N. Cooke, D. D. Lehman, Charles J. Remington, R. H. Mantle, Ivor Davies. Priests: J. E. Davis, J. E. Smith, J. M. Scott, J. W. Bogart, George Reeves, Sidney Hawkins, G. S. Trowbridge, T. Hawkins, W. H. Rhodes. Teachers: J. L. Anderson, F. Wiley, R. H. Cooper, E. W. Davis. Deacons: J. O. Barraclough, C. E. Smith, J. E. Anderson, H. W. Brunkhurst, J. F. Goll. Bishop's agent's report: Balance on hand March 9, 1912, $385.35; receipts to June 21, $525.89; total with balance, $911.24; expenditures, $502; balance on hand, $409.24. R. Archibald, bishop's agent. District treasurer, George Reeves: Receipts with balance, $73.11; expenditures, $16.45; balance on hand June 22, 1912, $56.66. Following officers were elected: R. Archibald, district president; George Barraclough, district vice president; Charles J. Remington, district secretary; George Reeves, district treasurer; Etta M. Weidman, district librarian; S. A. Burgess, district historian. Attendance at conference, about 450, being one of the largest conferences held in the district. Preaching by Apostle J. F. Curtis and Bishop Hilliard. At the close of the social service, song was given by the Spirit through Brother Archibald. There were fourteen baptisms, nineteen confirmations, fourteen ordinations. Conference adjourned to meet at Belleville, Illinois, Saturday and Sunday, September 21 and 22, 1912. Meeting at 6 p. m. on Saturday for business session. Chas. J. Remington, district secretary.

MOBILE.—District met in conference at Theodore, Alabama, June 22, 1912, at 10 a. m., Brother Warr presiding. Brother Slover was chosen in connection with the district presidency, to preside over the conference; Edna Cochran chosen secretary with power to choose assistant; Sister Clark was elected organist; A. G. Miller chorister. All visiting Saints were invited to take part in the proceedings of the conference. Branches reporting were, Three Rivers 150, Theodore 122, Bluff Creek 141, May Minette 337, and Horse Shoe 11. Ministry reporting: Seventy: F. M. Slover, Swen Swenson, Lloyd C. Moore. Elders: G. W. Sherman, W. L. Booker, A. E. Warr, Oscar Tillman, Frank Stiner, A. G. Miller, R. M. King, G. T. Chute, F. P. Scarcliff. Priests: T. W. Smith, G. W. Entrekin, Louis Lapree, Lester Miller. Teachers: T. J. Booker, D. W. Sherman, D. W. Tillman, James Powell. Deacons: M. D. Howell, Lester Smith. Bishop's agent's report; On hand last report, $6.75; collected, $239.05; paid out, $14.35; balance on hand, $231.45. Report of delegate to General Conference was heard. Brother and Sister Van-cleave were released from tent committee and secretary was authorized to notify them of their release and request them to send money they have collected to Brother Chute, chairman of tent committee. The secretary was empowered to write new license for Brother G. W. Entrekin. The money collected to defray district president's expenses to General Conference was placed in district treasury. The district officers were requested to investigate matters regarding a branch organization at Gulf Port and confer with missionary in charge and organize if it is wisdom to do so. The secretary was empowered to select a committee of two to assist in transferring names from the old record to the new. The following officers were elected: President, A. E. Warr; vice president, Oscar Tillman; secretary and treasurer, Edna Cochran; member of library board, F. P. Scarcliff. Brother Scarcliff was sustained as district historian. Conference adjourned to meet at Escatawpa, Mississippi, at the call of district presidency. Edna Cochran, secretary, Van-cleave, Mississippi.

Constant occupation prevents temptation.—Italian.
Vainglory blossoms, but never bears.—French proverb.

Convention Minutes.

EASTERN IOWA.—District Sunday school association convened at Muscatine, Iowa, in the Saints' church, June 14, 1912, at 2.30 p. m., with District Superintendent C. G. Dykes in charge. A. W. Heide was elected secretary pro tem. The address of welcome given by C. G. Dykes was responded to by J. B. Wildermuth. By motion the rules were suspended, making this convention a mass convention, and visiting Saints were granted voice and vote in all deliberations. Martha Baggerly was chosen chorister. Minutes of the last convention were read and approved. District officers reporting verbally were: Superintendent C. G. Dykes, Assistant Superintendent J. B. Wildermuth, Home Department Superintendent J. B. Wildermuth. The report of John Heide, district treasurer, was read and approved, showing a balance on hand of 96 cents. Normal work was then taken up, in charge of C. C. Joehn, which was continued at the evening session. Sunday school met in session Sunday at 9.30 a. m., in charge of C. G. Dykes. Convention adjourned to meet one day previous to the next district conference. Melvina Dykes, district secretary, Muscatine, Iowa.

MOBILE.—District Sunday school and Zion's Religio-Literary Society met in convention at Theodore, Alabama, June 21, 1912, at 2.45 p. m., Brother A. E. Warr in chair. All visiting Saints were given voice and vote in convention. Schools reporting were, Three Rivers, Bluff Creek, Bay Minette, Robertsedale, and Indian Springs. District officers and delegate to General Convention reported. One new school organized since last convention. Adjourned till call of district officers. Edna Cochran, secretary, Van-cleave, Mississippi.

Conference Notices.

The conference of the Western Maine District will meet with the Little Deer Isle Branch, August 24 and 25. Send reports promptly to W. A. Small, Mountainville, Maine. A large attendance is looked for. All come and have a joyful time together. F. J. Ebeling, president.

Convention Notices.

Southern California Sunday school convention will be held at Convention Park, Mermosa Beach, August 15 to 22. An interesting program has been arranged with interesting papers and talks. Olive M. Clapp, secretary.

The Sunday school association of the Florida District will convene at Dixonville, Alabama, with the Alaflora Branch, August 9, 1912, at 2 p. m. Papers will be read on Sunday school work, and Friday night, after the business session an entertainment will be given. All Sunday schools in the district please send in reports as early as possible. Anna Worlund, secretary.

Reunion Notices.

The reunion of the Spring River District will be held in the beautiful Lincoln Park, Pittsburg, Kansas, August 9 to 19. Services will be held in the park auditorium. Prominent speakers will be present. The auxiliaries will be represented by some of the best workers. The reunion of last year was one of the best ever held in the district, and it is the desire of the committee to make this one still better. There will be a boarding tent; meals will be served as follows: Single meals, 20 cents; 21 meals for $3.50; children under three years free, over three and under twelve, half rate. Price of tents, 10 by 12, $2.25; 12 by 14 (a limited number), $2.75. Those wanting tents must make their wants known at once. Orders will be filled until the supply is used up. Orders for tents to receive prompt attention must be in the hands of the secretary by August 5. Spring cots, 40 cents. Plenty of shade, good water, and the auditorium are at your command, and we invite you to come and help us to make this reunion the best yet. Address all orders for tents and information to O. Hempel, 407 North Fairview Street, Pittsburg, Kansas.

The Toronto District will hold its annual reunion in a beautiful grove on the shore of Lake Sturgeon, near Cameron, Victoria County, Ontario, July 26 to August 5. The time was set by order of the district conference, and the Bishopric was instructed to select the place. We have selected this grove because it is the most central place we could secure. Just a little more than three hours ride from Toronto. Those

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:

 Bearing Fruit - - - - - 701

 Signs of the Times, Part 1 - - - - - 702

 Notes and Comments - - - - - 705

HYMNS AND POEMS - - - - - 706

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

 Dealing with the Erring, No. 2, by Charles Fry - - - - - 707

 Did the Conference Err, Part 1, by Robert M. Elvin - - - - - 709

CANADIAN MIRROR - - - - - 713

OF GENERAL INTEREST - - - - - 714

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - - 714

 Mrs. J. E. Haines.

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 716

 W. H. Greenwood—Marie Julie T. Adamson—J. T. Mitchell—Caroline Booker—E. F. Robertson and F. G. Pitt—L. B. Williamson—H. J. Davison—James C. Page.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 718

 W. R. Smith—J. F. Mintun.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - - 719

 W. E. Stoff.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 719

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

Love thyself last; cherish those hearts that hate thee;
Corruption wins not more than honesty.
Still in thy right hand carry gentle peace,
To silence envious tongues.

SHAKESPEARE.

coming from Hamilton, Niagara Falls, and other southern and western points come via Toronto; those from Owen Sound, Collingwood, and Orillia, and other northern points come via Blackwater Junction. Secure tickets to Halls Station. This is a flag station about one mile from the grove. Trains will be met. Tents rented as follows: 7 by 9, $1.50 per week; 10 by 12, $2 per week. The committee will rent bed-ticks. Bring other bedding with you. Meals: fifteen cents each, or seven for one dollar. We extend an invitation to all missionaries and local ministry to come with us. We hope to have good speakers and a splendid time. Those wishing to secure tents apply to Bishop R. C. Evans, 35 Huron Street, Toronto, Ontario. R. C. Evans, J. T. Thompson, W. I. Fligg, reunion committee.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Centralia will conduct a bazaar soon after the first of November. They solicit the help of any neighboring societies or individuals who see fit to so aid them in any way for the good. LULA FISHER, Secretary.
CENTRALIA, WASHINGTON, Box 354.

Addresses.

Elder W. H. Greenwood, 23 Cicero Street, Moston, Manchester, England.

Died.

HIRST.—John Wesley Hirst was born November 20, 1840, in Ontario, Canada. He was married to Malinda Clothier in March, 1864. To this union nine children were born, five boys and four girls, of which seven are now living. He came to Iowa forty-six years ago and has resided in Harrison County for the past twenty years. He united with the Re-organized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints October 10, 1869, in which he was a faithful member at the time of his death, which occurred April 18, 1912, at the home of his daughter, in Missouri Valley. Interment in Saint John Cemetery. Sermon by Elder D. R. Chamber's.

SCHENKLE.—Frederick Schenkel passed suddenly from this life into his rest July 8, 1912, at Harbor Beach, Michigan. He was born December 23, 1858, at Thun, Switzerland, coming to this country 33 years ago; baptized October 13, 1907, at Rose City, Michigan, by L. R. Ingleright. He was a faithful Saint and went about doing good. Funeral services held from the Baptist church and burial at Rock Falls cemetery.

Victor Hugo.

All lovers of literature will share the deep regret of A. F. Davidson's many personal friends that his "Victor Hugo; His Life and Work," just issued by the J. B. Lippincott Company, is a posthumous work. French literary history was always his hobby and the successful publication of his "Life of Dumas" several years ago encouraged him to write the present volume on Victor Hugo. He did not actually begin it until he was in the grip of his last long illness. Although he was, fortunately, able to complete it, yet he did not live to read and edit the proofs. This was done by Mr. Francis Gribble, who writes that it was his aim to revise the proofs as Davidson would himself have revised them, nowhere correcting with any expression of opinion, but carefully correcting obvious slips of the pen, and making the few necessary but inconsiderable additions. Unquestionably this work is the most impartial English study of Victor Hugo, alike as a man, and as an author.

Two-Day Meeting.

There will be a two-day meeting at Beaverton, Michigan, August 10 and 11. Everybody invited to come and enjoy the blessings of God. Good speakers will be in attendance. All Saints coming from the north on the Detroit and Mackinac and Michigan Central Railroads, will be met at Gladwin with teams, Friday evening, August 9. George Burt, district president.

Notices.

The following appointments have been made, concurred in by the First Presidency, the ministers in charge, and the Presiding Bishopric:

- A. M. Baker, Independence Stake.
 - Luther Simpson, Northeastern Kansas.
 - P. B. Bussell, Eastern Oklahoma and Texas.
- FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary First Presidency.
INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, July 16, 1912.

Notice is hereby given of the appointment of Elder Thomas Reese to labor in Montana in the interests of the church finances. This appointment is made with the understanding and consent of the Presiding Bishopric.

JOHN W. RUSHTON, Minister in Charge.

The First Presidency concur in the above appointment.
FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary First Presidency.

If there is naught but what we see,
 What is the wide world worth to me?
 But is there naught save what we see?
 A thousand things on every hand,
 My sense is numb to understand;
 I know we eddy round the sun;
 When has it dizzied anyone?
 I know the round worlds draw from far,
 Through hollow systems, star to star;
 But who has e'er upon a strand
 Of those great cables laid a hand?
 —Edward Rowland Sill.

A New Book

has just been issued, entitled

Doctrines and Dogmas of Utah Mormonism

By Elder J. D. Stead

THERE ARE REASONS for publishing this book.

- (1) The only way to render a JUST judgment is to know the FACTS.
- (2) To get the FACTS don't go to the enemies of the Utah church. This is not fair nor just; go to the authorized publications of this church, and let them tell you what they believe.
- (3) You can not get access to these publications for the reason that many of them are out of print and hard to find.
- (4) The author of this new book has spent years as a missionary among the Mormons, and has patiently and carefully culled extracts from these old publications, thus giving you

A Whole Library of Information in One Book

The greatest care has been taken to make this book reliable.

The quotations in it are all testified to as being correct, and finally the proof readers testify that to the best of their belief the quotations are all correct. We have had this done so that you would feel secure in using the many evidences therein contained. Order No. 1a, price... $1.50

Herald Publishing House
 Lamoni, Iowa

South Sea Islands and Adventure.

The numerous and odd adventures experienced by Douglas Rannie as a government official among the natives of Oceania would have made Baron Munchausen and Louis de Rougemont envious. "My Adventures among the South Sea Cannibals," recently issued by the Lippincotts, is the title of the volume in which he recounts his experiences.

On one occasion, though he was a powerful swimmer, he narrowly escaped being drowned whilst voyaging in a recruiting vessel. During a hurricane she struck a reef, and afterwards became a total wreck. The mate endeavored to swim ashore with a line, but was never seen again. Mr. Rannie then volunteered, and with two of his native boatmen, leaped into the boiling surf. Then began a struggle such as he had never experienced before. Time and again he reached the shore, and dug his fingers into the sand, only to be torn back by the undertow, until at last, exhausted with the struggle, he was about to give up the fight, when his boatmen managed to seize him and drag him to safety. Such are the adventures with which the book teems.

Art in the August "Century."

Three special features of the August Century, the Midsummer Holiday Number, printed in tint, will be:

- (1) Eight full-page reproductions from lithographs, drawn by the noted etcher, Joseph Pennell, on a special sketching trip to the Canal Zone undertaken for The Century last February. These lithographs reproduce picturesquely the lock-gates at Pedro Miguel, the building of the Pedro Miguel lock, the Miraflores lock, several views of the great Gatun lock, and the great "cut" looking toward Culebra, mostly views not longer to be seen since the water was let in.
 - (2) Six gay decorative panels by Maxfield Parrish, now first published.
 - (3) Toilers in the Traces—a group of vigorous pictures of horses by Paul Bransom.
- There will also be a striking cover in color by Thornton Oakley, and pictures by a number of other artists including Oliver Herford, Yohn, Birch, Gruger, the Boutet de Monvels, father and son.

A New Edition of the Doctrine and Covenants

By order of General Conference a committee was appointed to correct all typographical errors, also Section 22 of the Doctrine and Covenants. This has been done and the book is now ready. It contains a valuable addition in the form of a new concordance. All the revelations up to date are included. You will need this edition.

Order

No. 94, cloth.....$.65
 No. 95, full leather..... 1.00
 No. 96, imitation morocco, gilt edges.. 1.50
 No. 97, full morocco, flexible..... 2.50

Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa

Herald Publishing House

$100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best of security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

These Bonds will be ready to issue on the 1st of April, 1912.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

Gained Ten Pounds in Colorado

Many a tired wife or business man, worn out with the year's work could put on needed flesh and vitality by a little vacation in Colorado. Some people pick up as much as ten pounds as the result of a two weeks' outing in this wonderful country. It isn't any one thing that does it. It seems to be just a combination of glorious air, brilliant sky and wonderful scenery. The beauty of Colorado somehow gets into the blood and before you know it your eyes begin to sparkle and you feel made new all over.

Anyone who has gone to Colorado over our railroad, the Burlington Route, will tell you that it isn't hard to get there, for the trains are wonderfully comfortable, and the service wonderfully good.

If you want to know just where to go in Colorado, how little it will cost and how long it will take you to get there, come in and get your copy of our Colorado folder and let me help you plan your entire trip. If it is not convenient for you to come in, kindly write—a postal will do. Just ask about Colorado trips and I will answer right away.

L. F. SILTZ, Agent

C. B. & Q. R. R.

A NICE HOME

Near the Brick Church. 7 rooms and bath. Basement, well and cistern. Good walks. An abundance of fruit. Large lot.

Everything in first-class order. At a bargain for short time.

G. W. Blair, Secretary,
Lamoni Land and Loan Co.
Lamoni, Iowa.

SCHOOL FOR NURSES

The Independence Sanitarium Training School for Nurses offers exceptional advantages to single ladies of the church between 20 and 30 years of age to become Trained Nurses. New class is now forming, anyone desiring to take up nursing as a profession should write at once for application and full information to the

INDEPENDENCE SANITARIUM,
Independence, Missouri. 26-4t

BEAUTIFUL OSAGE VALLEY

Being the first to locate in this valley and seeing the richness, also mild climate, cheap fuel, etc., we desired other Saints might share it, so advertised, resulting the locating of many Saints. As to honest, upright dealing we refer you to any of the branch officers, or members. OSAGE VALLEY LAND CO., 47

Mapleton, Kansas.

FOR SALE

A number of farms and town property in and around Cameron at rock bottom prices ranging from 20 to 600 acres. Can give possession or turn rental contract at once. Located in Far West District. Write for prices.

B. M. Seaton & Co., Cameron, Missouri,
Weaver Building, E. 3d Street. 20 tf.

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.

Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.

No. 140, cloth.....50

NAME WANTED

The Southern California District will give a prize of the three Standard Books of the Church, for a suitable name for our Reunion Ground, to be selected by Reunion Committee next August.

All names should be sent to secretary.

R. T. COOPER,

202-3 Lankershim Bldg., Los Angeles, California. Alt to 8-1

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.

Order No. 241, cloth.....50

Specimen of Type Holman Home Bible

22 Thus Joash th not the kindness father had done t son. And when he
LORD look upon it
23 ¶ And it can end of the year, th came against h

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed.

No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25
Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,
Cloth, No. 198.....50c
Paper No. 197.....35c

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.

No. 248a, cloth.....75

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.

Order No. 232, cloth.....75

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, JULY 31, 1912

NUMBER 31

Editorial

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.—PART 2.

"Can ye not discern the signs of the times?"—Matthew 16:3.

WARS AND RUMORS OF WARS.

Jesus said that just prior to his coming we should hear of "wars and rumors of wars." Men tell us to-day that war is past. They say there will never be another great conflict between armed nations. It is not so long, however, since such great conflicts were raging, and indeed wars of lesser magnitude are now in progress. The activities of peace commissions and conferences, though praiseworthy, give no great promise of success. The best indication of approaching combat between individuals is observed when both begin to reach for weapons with which to fight. They may profess friendship, but look out when they reach toward the pistol pocket.

The nations of the world are arming themselves. Their hands are hovering near the hip pocket. This in itself is sufficient to answer the assertion that there can be no more war.

Mr. Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain, is quoted by Robert Donald, editor of the London Daily Chronicle, in the Outlook for June 22, 1912, as saying that civilized nations now spend annually 500,000,000 pounds, or $2,500,000,000 for weapons of war. Great Britain alone spends 70,000,000 pounds, or $350,000,000 yearly; equal to $40 for every household in the kingdom. He adds that if this drain were cut off one dollar per week extra could be paid to every laborer in the kingdom without reducing existing profits of business.

If one wishes to get the exact significance of the statement, "They shall beat their plowshares into swords and their pruning hooks into spears," let him figure out the number of bushels of corn or wheat or grapes that are required every year to pay this enormous war levy, for by this process are plowshares converted into battleships, which is the modern equivalent of the old simile.

The United States has but recently launched the battleship Texas, the largest battleship afloat, carrying larger guns than have ever been mounted on any battleship for regular service. She will soon be followed by a sister ship, the New York.

These weapons are being manufactured. They will be used. Jesus made no mistake. There can be no permanent "peace on earth" without accompanying "good will toward men." The angels linked the two together in their song at the birth of the Savior. Man can not separate them.

THAT WHICH PAUL SAW.

In the third chapter of his second letter to Timothy Paul draws a very graphic picture of social conditions to obtain in the last days:

This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof; from such turn away.

THE DECAY OF HOME LIFE.

Passing by the opening verse, to which we will revert presently, we group two of Paul's specifications: "Disobedient to parents," "without natural affection." These terms refer to a weakening of family life only too patent to observers to-day. The discipline of parents is not what it used to be. Our fathers no doubt were too rigorous, while we are too lax. They feared to spare the rod lest they spoil the child, and so used the rod quite too much. We dispense with the rod entirely. There may be too, extreme positions on this subject. A little, insignificant sort of a man was heard to boast: "I can truly say that I never struck one of my children in my life,"—then he hastened to add, "except in self-defense."

Be that as it may, parents have shifted the responsibility of disciplining children to the shoulders of public-school teachers and public institutions. The disregard of parental authority is notorious.

There is also a weakening of the cohesive forces of the home, to which Paul no doubt referred.

In his address before the Interchurch Conference on Marriage and Divorce, at Washington, District of Columbia, January, 1905, Theodore Roosevelt said: "One of the most unpleasant and dangerous features of our American life is the diminishing birth rate and the loosening of the marital tie among the old American families."

George Elliot Howard says: "The freer dissolution of marriage is a world phenomenon, huge, portentous. . . . Assuredly it signifies somewhere the action of sinister forces, vast and perilous."—McClure's Magazine, December, 1909.

So evident is the menace to the home that some observers profess to see in changing conditions the forces that will finally completely destroy the home as an institution. The great tie that should bind a man and a woman together for life, and their children to them until maturity, seems to be weakening.

SELFISHNESS.

"For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous." The great obstacle that stands in the way of all reform to-day is this same covetousness and selfishness. Business has been conducted on the principle of "everybody for himself, and the Devil take the hindmost." Of course that principle has always been in vogue in the world, but the increased dependence of men upon one another, the ever-increasing interdependence, makes it more disastrous. And it is the more noticeable in an age that professes to be Christian and in nations that are called Christian nations, inasmuch as the very spirit of Christ's teaching was self-abnegation in the interests of all.

As a characterization of the age, harmonizing with what Paul said it would be, we reproduce a part of the address of the Methodist bishops to the late General Conference in Minneapolis:

We live in an age in which the vast enterprises essential to the progress of the world require the association of men of large means under corporate management. Out of this necessity has grown serious wrong and consequent resistance.

Organized capital stands indicted at the bar of public judgment for the gravest crimes against the common welfare. Among the counts in that indictment are these:

1. Conspiring to advance prices on the staple commodities indispensable to the life, well-being, and progress of the people.

2. Resorting to the adulteration of foods, fabrics, and materials in order to increase profits already excessive.

3. Destroying the competition in trade through which relief might be expected under normal conditions.

4. Suborning legislation, and thus robbing the people of the first orderly recourse of the weak against the strong.

These are sins against humanity. If God hates any sin above another, it must be the robbery of the poor and defenseless.

LOVERS OF PLEASURE MORE THAN LOVERS OF GOD.

While there are a few consecrated souls who go gladly to the house of God every Sunday, and more who go perfunctorily, the great swarming thousands and millions go to the house of pleasure. Where the treasure is, there the heart is also; where the heart is, the feet will go. So the masses are found at the Sunday ball game, the theater, the dance hall, the saloon, the club house, wherever questionable pleasure may be found; while the few are honestly trying to serve God.

For Paul said that in the last days men should be lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God.

HAVING A FORM OF GODLINESS BUT DENYING THE POWER THEREOF.

How well did Paul characterize the religious denominations of to-day. It is not necessary for us to dwell upon this point. Everywhere, in debate and in private conversation, we meet church members who profess godliness, observe the outward forms of prayer and religious devotion, extol Jesus very highly, yet instantly and vehemently deny the thought that the gospel has the same old power that was manifested in the apostolic church. The gifts and blessing and miracles are all ended, according to their affirmation.

PERILOUS TIMES.

We revert now to the opening statement: "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come."

These perils are, first, physical and personal; second, spiritual or social.

The very material development and multitudinous inventions of which we have boasted bring their grave perils to physical life. Some years ago an interstate commission, appointed to investigate railroad accidents, reported that in just three months of a certain year 1,650 trains were in collision. In three months 446 persons were killed, and 3,178 wounded as a result of railroad accidents. The Scientific American, commenting on the report, said that in its "bald and succinct enumeration of losses," it read not unlike a statement of the killed and wounded sent out from some great battle field. In the industries, it is said that a procession of all workers killed and wounded annually would stretch forty-three and one half miles, with a corpse every twenty yards and one hundred disabled men between every two corpses.

Then the roll of "special" horrors of the past ten or fifteen years is something appalling. There was the burning of the Iroquois Theater in Chicago, December, 1903, when 600 persons were burned or suffocated; the burning of the excursion boat, General Slocum, in East River, June 15, 1904, when 1,000 women and little children were burned to death; the more recent burning of the public school building in Collinwood, Ohio, with the awful loss of child life; the burning of the shirt waist factory in New York, where the continuous torrent of bodies of young girls leaping from high windows rained upon the cement walk until it was beaten through and they fell into the basement; the sinking of the Titanic with accompanying loss of 1,600 lives and $15,000,000 in property, plunging two nations into mourning; not to mention the destruction of Galveston by tidal wave, with a loss of 3,000 lives, the destruction of San Francisco by earthquake and fire, and the awful Johnstown flood.

Some of these disasters accord with prophecies found in the Book of Covenants: "And after your testimony cometh the testimony of earthquakes . . . and the voice of tempests, and the voice of the waves of the sea, heaving themselves beyond their bounds . . . with devouring fire. . . I, the Lord, have decreed many destructions upon the waters," etc. (See sections 61, 85, and 94.)

Some one may say, Have there not always been occasional disasters in the world? Probably the question must be answered affirmatively. But the disasters of past ages were unknown beyond a limited area. They were no sign of anything to the world at large, for the world at large did not know of them, as a rule. But these modern horrors are so awful! They are so spectacular! And our modern news service flashes the dreadful details instantly to the uttermost bounds of the earth, so that the whole world stands at attention, appalled and astounded. Then again they are more striking coming in an age in which the triumphs of man's ingenuity should have rendered life more secure. But just as we flatter ourselves that we have constructed an "unsinkable ship," she receives an almost imperceptible blow from an iceberg, and sinks in two hours with the most appalling loss of life known to marine service.

SOCIAL PERILS.

But the chief peril of these times which justifies Paul's expression, "In the last days perilous times shall come," is social. We refer to the social and industrial unrest that is becoming worldwide, and manifests itself in its most threatening aspect in strikes, agitations, and various violent outrages on the part of those more desperate members of the working classes who favor "direct action" and "sabotage," modern terms for old-fashioned violence expressing itself in up-to-date methods, such as dynamiting, tool breaking, maiming or killing individuals, combining to produce inferior and damaged goods, killing time, etc.

Of this unrest, Doctor Josiah Strong says:

Twice before in modern times has there been a deep and widespread unrest among the people—once on the eve of the great Reformation of the sixteenth century, and once on the eve of the French Revolution. Certain conditions which appeared just before the former reappeared just before the latter. It is most significant that these same conditions, among the most important of which is popular discontent, have again reappeared.—The New Era, quoted in Charitarquan, May, 1912.

THE MENACE OF THE I. W. W.

Some weeks ago we reviewed the situation in San Diego, California. We wish to refer to it again as an example of that which we have in mind. It will be remembered that hundreds and thousands of Industrial Workers of the World began a movement upon San Diego, being angered by a city ordinance intended to prevent them holding street meetings in a certain area, including several blocks of the business part of town, for the violation of which some of their members had been arrested. Their avowed intention was to flood the town, glut the jails and courts, and put an intolerable burden on taxpayers. In this they succeeded quite well for a time.

But a vigilance committee of citizens was formed which took the matter in hand, ignored all law and order, and proceeded to eject the intruders, using clubs, guns, tar and feathers, and even applying fire to the person of one of the leaders, if reports are true.

The situation became so serious that Governor Johnson appointed a special commissioner, Mr. Harris Weinstock, to investigate. Mr. Weinstock has given the matter an exhaustive examination on the grounds and has reported. A part of his report concerning the teachings of the Industrial Workers of the World we wish to quote, as it appeared in the Evening Index, San Bernardino, California, June 10:

Summing it up we find that they teach and preach the following:

- (a) That workmen are to use any and all tactics that will get the results sought with the least possible expenditure of time and energy.
- (b) The question of right or wrong is not to be considered.
- (c) The avenging sword is to be unsheathed with all hearts resolved on victory or death.
- (d) The workman is to help himself when the proper time comes.
- (e) No agreement with an employer of labor is to be considered by the worker as sacred or inviolable.
- (f) The worker is to produce inferior goods and kill time in getting tools repaired and in attending to repair work; all by a silent understanding.
- (g) The worker is to look forward to the day when he will confiscate the factories and drive out the owners.
- (h) The worker is to get ready to cause national industrial paralysis with a view of confiscating all industries, meanwhile taking forcible possession of all things that he may need.
- (i) Strikers are to disobey and to treat with contempt all judicial injunctions.

The evidence before me forces the conclusion that it is the organized and deliberate purpose of the I. W. W. to teach and preach and to burn into the hearts and minds of its followers, that they were justified in lying, in stealing, in trampling under foot their own agreements, in confiscating the property of others, in disobeying the mandates of the courts and in paralyzing the industries of the Nation. If all men and women in the Nation were to accept and to follow these teachings, it would make society impossible. It would simply mean a nation of thieves, liars, and scoundrels.

This expression of industrial unrest, taking form in such virulent teaching and practice is a deadly peril. It means anarchy,—the defiance of all law, moral or civil. But how can society meet it? How could San Diego have met it with the ordinary resources of organized society? That is a question that the commissioner says should be given grave study. The way in which it was met is full of peril, and shows how easily organized society may fall into disorder and revert to savage brute force under the stress of the strange new conditions that are arising. Of this the commissioner says:

The penalty of the crime committed by these alleged outcasts is not to exceed one hundred dollars fine or thirty days in the city jail or by both; whereas the crimes committed by the so-called vigilance committee are punishable, not only by a fine of five thousand dollars and by possible imprisonment for ten years, but under the law they are declared unfit and ineligible to any office of honor, profit or trust created by the Constitution or laws of the United States.

The question naturally arises, therefore, who are the greater criminals; who are the real anarchists; who are the real violators of the Constitution; who are the real undesirables—these so-called unfortunate members of "the scum of the earth," or these presumably respectable members of society?

Finally, in conclusion, he sketches the situation, and indicates the possibility of civil war between classes, in a manner that must sober even the most thoughtless. He says:

In conclusion your commissioner calls the attention of your Excellency to the new industrial and economic condition that has arisen in this country; a condition seemingly imported from the continent of Europe and brought about by the organization and growth of what is known as the Industrial Workers of the World.

Because of its unholy and reckless methods to attain its ends, as shown by the quotations in this report from its literature, should the organization reach large proportions it is likely seriously to menace the industrial peace and welfare of the country.

The scenes enacted in Spokane, Fresno, San Diego, and elsewhere, where multitudes of more or less irresponsible men make it a point to concentrate, with the direct object in view of fomenting industrial strife; or harassing public officials; of glutting jails and becoming parasites on the taxpayers of the community, are likely to be reenacted on a larger and larger scale, until a crisis will be reached and civil war threatened.

OUR CONCLUSION.

Necessarily our review of the signs of the times has been but fragmentary. As stated in the first article, we believe that some features of the age are splendid beyond anything that was known to any past age. Other features are quite the reverse. Our decision as to whether the world is growing better or worse may be determined by the point of the horizon toward which we direct our gaze. The man who says the world is growing better, states only a partial truth. The man who says that the world is growing worse, states only a part of the truth. A complete survey of world conditions shows them to be exactly in harmony with the prophecies concerning the last days. It is the evening time of the world, the time of "God's preparation."

The Master rebuked the Jews because they watched the face of the sky and were able to predict the weather of the morrow, but could not read the signs of the times. To-day we have many weather prophets, and maintain a government weather bureau that can predict the weather for the morrow, more or less accurately, missing no oftener than ordinary people do; but like the Jews, there are comparatively few who can read the signs of the times, or if noting them give them any significance religiously.

Jesus says that no man knows the day nor the hour of his coming, no not even the angels in heaven. Some in the past have figured out the exact time when he should appear. They gave their property away, put on their ascension robes,—and no one came. If any are trying to figure out the exact time of his coming, they might better save their paper and pencils. And any ordinary business suit that clothes a man who is doing his work well, keeping God's commandments, and serving his fellow men, looks good to Jesus. No need to worry about ascension robes.

But though we may not know the exact time of his coming, Jesus gave certain signs by which men might know when it drew near. It is our business to observe these signs, and so order our lives that we shall not be ashamed to meet him at his coming.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

The Bride of the Sea.

The ocean old,
Centuries old,
Strong as youth, and as uncontrolled,
Paces restless to and fro,
Up and down the sands of gold.
His beating heart is not at rest;
And far and wide,
With ceaseless flow,
His beard of snow
Heaves with the heaving of his breast.
He waits impatient for his bride,
There she stands,
With her foot upon the sands,
Decked with flags and streamers gay,
In honor of her marriage day,
Her snow white signals fluttering, blending,
Round her like a veil descending,
Ready to be
The bride of the gray old sea.

—Longfellow.

Original Articles

DID THE CONFERENCE ERR?—PART 2.

BY ROB'T. M. ELVIN.

DID THE WORK CONTINUE RIGHT?

Beyond the peradventure of a doubt the latter day work had a legitimate birth, and the spirit of life, energy, and vim has continued with those who have kept the faith; as to the successor of the putative founder of the church we offer in evidence that he measures up to the standard of a true seer the following:

In the summer and fall several things occurred that served to bring the question up; my sickness brought me near to death; my coming of age, and my choice of a profession were all coincident events; and during my recovery I had opportunity for reflection, as for weeks I could do no work. One day, after my return to health was assured, I had lain down to rest in my room; the window was open to the south and the fresh breeze swept in through the trees and half-closed blinds. I had slept and woke refreshed; my mind recurred to the question of my future life and what its work should be. I had been and was still reading law under the care of a lawyer named William McLennan, and it was partially decided that I should continue that study. While weighing my desires and capabilities for this work, the question came up, Will I ever have anything to do with Mormonism? If so, how and what will it be? I was impressed that there was truth in the work my father had done. I believed the gospel so far as I comprehended it. Was I to have no part in that work as left by him? While engaged in this contemplation and perplexed by these recurring questions, the room suddenly expanded and passed away, I saw stretched out before me towns, cities, busy marts, courthouses, courts and assemblies of men, all busy and all marked by those characteristics that are found in the world, where men win place and renown. This stayed before my vision till I had noted clearly that choice of preferment here was offered to him who would enter in, but who did so must go into the busy whirl and be submerged by its din, bustle and confusion. In the subtle transition of a dream I was gazing over a wide expanse of country in a prairie land; no mountains were to be seen, but far as the eye could reach, hill and dale, hamlet and village, farm and farmhouse, pleasant cot and homelike place, everywhere betokening thrift, industry and the pursuit of a happy peace were open to the view. I remarked to him standing by me, but whose presence I had not before noticed, "This must be the country of a happy people." To this he replied, "Which would you prefer, life, success and renown among the busy scenes that you first saw; or a place among these people, without honor and renown? Think of it well, for the choice will be offered to you sooner or later, and you must be prepared to decide. Your decision once made you can not recall it, and must abide the result."

No time was given me for a reply, for as suddenly as it came, so suddenly was it gone, and I found myself sitting upright on the side of the bed where I had been lying, the rays of the declining sun shining athwart the western hills and over the shimmering river, making the afternoon all glorious with their splendor, shone into my room distinct with life and motion, filling me with gladness that I should live. From that hour, at leisure, at work or play, I kept before me what had been presented, and was at length prepared to answer when the opportunity for the choice should be given.

—Biography of Joseph Smith, Life of Joseph the Prophet, by Edward W. Tullidge, pp. 757, 758.

The vision herein offered in evidence was received by him during the summer of 1853, or seven years before he was called at the Amboy General Conference to the office of president of the high priesthood.

After giving his experience of events of life, and interviews with numerous individuals upon the subject of connection with the religion and church of his father, he writes of another vision received in the latter part of 1856, or early in 1857, as follows:

One day, while pondering these questions, (and here, unlike some, I can not certainly state whether morn, or even, only that the sun was shining), I suddenly found myself sowing this piece of land to wheat. My brother, and this Mr. Yates I saw harrowing the wheat after my sowing. In passing over the land I met Mr. Yates as he drove to and fro, and our conversation was upon the Utah subject; and the same arguments and statements were repeated by him. To these I was urging again my reluctance to move, and the question was again presented, Why not go to Utah? I paused, rested the bag of grain that I was carrying across my shoulder, upon my knee, and turned to answer him. I heard a slight noise like the rush of the breeze, that arrested my speech and my attention. I turned to gaze slightly upward and saw descending towards me a sort of cloud, funnel shaped, with the wide part upward. It was luminous, and of such color and brightness that it was clearly seen, though the sun shone in its summer strength. It descended rapidly and settling upon and over me enveloped me completely, so that I stood within its radiance.

As the cloud rested upon the ground at my feet, the words "Because the light in which you stand is greater than theirs," sounded in my ears clearly and distinctly. Slowly the cloud passed away and the vision closed.—Tullidge, pages 762, 763.

Can anyone doubt the reading of these early visions, had by the present head of the church prior to his ordination, that he is possessed of the gift of a seer?

The climax to the young man in his ardent desire concerning his duty in the work left by his father was settled to him and the church, as he tells us in the following:

During the year 1859 the question of my connection with my father's work was finally determined. I became satisfied that it was my duty. The queries heretofore referred to were one by one being settled; until the final one, Where and with whom should my life-labor lie? was the only one left. This was determined by a similar manifestation to others that I had received to this effect: "The Saints reorganizing at Zarahemla and other places, is the only organized portion of the church accepted by me. I have given them my Spirit, and will continue to do so while they remain humble and faithful.—Tullidge, p. 772.

The leading and assisting grace of God's Holy Spirit guided the young man to the life-path of his future usefulness and official capacity that was his by birthright to occupy, and thus he was qualified to take up the work and office made vacant by the tragic death of his inspired father; we are therefore anxiously concerned to know if God still continues to abide with him in bestowing such blessings as are essential for his directing the ship of Zion safely amidst the human and satanic quicksands and unseen rocks by which deception, doubtfulness of mind, fraudulent devices to work the ruin of both individuals and the church? Already have I cited the revelations as they are published in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, the first of which bears date of October 7, 1861, and then on until the last one, which is dated April 18, 1909. Thus for a period of forty-eight years hath God's mouthpiece never failed the church in its time of need. As there are some revealments that are trustworthy as evidence, and are not compiled with the revelations as printed, I am impressed to submit "The following extraordinary vision of Joseph, the second Prophet of the Church." It will be read with a keen interest and will illustrate beautifully that inspired visions form the very gems of sacred literature:

THE HOUSE OF THE LORD. AS SEEN IN VISION.

In sleep, or in waking hour, I can not tell, I saw and realized what I shall try to relate; and, though some years have elapsed, what was seen and heard during that eventful hour remains vividly impressed upon my mind, as if heard and seen but yesternight.

I had slept and was consciously awake, and approaching a building, apparently eighty feet long by fifty feet in width, the walls of which were about twenty-five feet high from the top of the foundation, which was raised some five or six feet from the ground, and of stone, roughly dressed by the mason's hammer, though jointed and faced at the edges. The front was to the east, and as I approached it, from the northwest, I had time to note that on the outside of the building no attempt had been made by the builders at ornamentation, except that along the sides were a series of pilasters standing out from the main wall a few inches, though forming a part of the wall; the bases of which were finished in square work, pedestal and pediment, the tops in capitals rich and peculiar in style, but which I can not describe. At the front a flight of nine wide stone steps reaching nearly across the building, led up to the entrance; this entrance being an open porch about sixteen feet deep and thirty wide. Two finished pillars stood at the outer edge of this porch, supporting, with the walls at either side, three arches. These pillars had square and solid finishes at the base, but rose from their bases round and smooth, to their caps, which were very richly carved in square designs; the arches which they supported the inner and outer feet of, were exactly circular, and formed of cut stone, and were only a few feet below the ceiling of the porch. The inner side of the porch formed the outer wall of the assembly room, and was richly paneled between the open doors, one at either side of the porch opening straight into the building from the front, and apparently three and a half feet wide, and nine or ten feet high.

As I passed up the steps I seemed to know that the Saints were assembling for some purpose, and yet I felt no care nor responsibility respecting the nature of the assembly, any more than to be there with the rest. I found three or four brethren standing at the right, or north end of the porch, conversing in a low and quiet tone together. I joined them for a moment; and, while standing there, I saw numbers of both brethren and sisters come up the steps and pass across the porch and into the open doors, the brethren to the right, and the sisters to the left. Some I knew; some were strangers whom I had never seen before. Some, of both men and women, who came briskly up the steps and walked freely across the porch, went no further than the doors, when, for some cause that I could not see, they stopped, and either turned immediately round and walked hastily away, or turned hesitatingly, slowly and sadly, and, with frequent backward glances, went away as if overcome and distressed.

While standing thus a shadowy fear came over me, that, as I saw some turned away for reasons that I did not know, and as I then supposed by some one standing at the doors, so I might not be permitted to go in; and, in my perplexed and doubting frame of mind, I turned from the brethren with whom I was chatting and walked slowly toward the door upon the right, thinking that, if I saw the least sign that I was not to go in, I would turn at once away, as if I did not care to enter. As I came near to the doorway, to my surprise, I saw neither sentinel nor usher, neither door shutter, nor bolt, lock nor hinge, nothing but the open doorway with jambs, lintel and threshold smooth and free from any indication of there ever having been a shutter with which to close the opening. My surprise was increased when, being permitted to pass in, I found no one inside having charge of the door or aisle; nor anything to betray the mystery of turning those back that had gone away.

I went carefully in, taking my hat off as I passed the doorway, and walked about a third of the way up the aisle which led the entire length of the room, ending against the side of the pulpit platform. A dim and mellow light shone in the building, though I saw no windows; nor did it seem as if the light came from the sun shining out of doors, for none came in at the open doors. There were two aisles, one at either side of the room, a trifle wider than the doorway, dividing the seated portion into three parts; the seats were similar to some styles of church pews, or slips, finished in dark, heavy, polished woods, and at the two sides running level from end to end and across the room, except at the two sides of the pulpit platform, where they were placed lengthwise, facing the pulpit. The middle row of seats were in parallel lines with those at the side, and level with them for about two thirds of the way from the pulpit to the door, when they rose in a circle, arc down, until the last one was raised five or six feet. At equal distance apart, and at the outer side of the inner row of seats, were four pillars supporting the roof.

The pulpit platform was very elaborately finished, and contained a seated apartment, richly furnished; two small circular tables, one at either side, chairs, at the sides, and an orator's desk all of similar material and finish as the seats, only much more exquisitely carved and colored. The walls were, apparently, painted, and finished in pictured designs, that at the back of the platform much more elaborate and complicated than those at the sides; the ceiling, also, was richly decorated; the cornices profusely so, with carven imagery, scroll and counter-scroll, reaching along the sides, and down the corners, and along the walls in places, corresponding to the pilasters upon the outer surface. In suitable niches, and on brackets carved and embellished, were pictures, and statuettes, the pictures representing scenes in the life of the Savior, the apostles of the New Testament, and the Book of Mormon; the statuettes the figures of covenant leaders of both continents, ancient and modern.

I had, however, only time to catch a hasty glimpse of all that is so briefly described, when a sort of metallic, ringing sound from the left hand door, and a kind of flashing light diverted my attention, and I looked across to the other side, but saw nothing.

I had hardly time to renew my survey of the walls and ceiling, when I was fairly startled by a repetition of the sound already referred to, this time at the door on the right, through which I had come; I turned in my seat, and saw a man standing at the doorway facing it as if to come in, and in the doorway itself, two crossed swords; much like the old-fashioned broad swords, only a trifle broader; the hilts rested against the door-jamb, one at either side, two and a half feet from the floor, and the swords crossed each other, edge down, with their points resting against the opposite door-jamb, about the height of a man's shoulder from the floor. The hilts were plain, the guards like the common saber guard, the handle part of dark material; the blades polished till they shone like silver, with a golden tinge. As the man stood for a moment, the swords shook a little, as if held in the hand of a person nervous from excitement, and from them as they shivered, a pale, shimmering yellow light seemed to flash, or flow.

The man turned away with a sigh, and with a sad face; the swords remained just a moment, but before the footsteps of the repulsed man had reached the outer edge of the porch, they were drawn back apparently into the door-jamb itself, turning upward as if upon a hinge formed at the hilts. I looked the door-jamb all over after the swords were withdrawn, but there was no sign nor trace of any opening in which the swords might be hid; nor was there an evidence of the existence of the swords to be seen.

I turned to renew my survey of the room, and as my eyes became more accustomed to the peculiar light, I discovered new wondrous beauty in the workmanship and finish of the whole. I had, as it seemed, come early; for the arrivals were more frequent, the intervals between them shorter and shorter; the room was filling up on both sides, and in the center; the dropping of the swords in either doorway was also more frequent, the light flashing from them more continuous; while, now and then, from some cause, the falling of them seemed like a crash, as if they were clashed furiously together, at which the light seemed to blaze throughout the room and corruscate along the emblazoned imagery of cornice and column like yellow lightning. I sat in wonder, but not in fear, for within was complete quiet; I began to contemplate the arrangements of the pulpit, where now a page, a lad of some sixteen years of age, was moving to and fro arranging something upon the stand, the tables, and chairs.

A sudden loud crashing of the swords in the doorway just behind me, together with a vivid flashing of the strange light caused me to turn my eyes again in that direction; a man was standing outside the doorway, with his teeth shut tightly together, his hands clenched, and eyes blazing with fury and disappointment; before him were the crossed swords, quivering as if instinct with life, and endowed with emotion; the polished blades had changed their hue from the silvery, golden tinged glitter to the color of a golden flame, while the light that scintillated from them flashed over and filled the room to the remotest corner, flooding seat and pillar, pulpit and altar, niche and statuette, picture and scroll, with its terrible brilliancy. The man turned away, the swords were withdrawn, but in an instant he came towards the door quickly, and was almost in the room with his right foot touching the threshold, when with a crash that sent the blood before him, sending a flood of flame and light over the room surging through my veins with the shock, the swords fell again; he turned again away, and stepping back a few paces, he started toward the door the third time with determination, despair and fierce rage pictured in his face; and again those terrible swords, now white and glowing like molten gold, fell before him, striking fire from their clashing crossing, shaking the building with the fierceness and suddenness of their fall, and filling the doorway from top to bottom and from side to side with their quivering, eager motion, putting before the enraged and desperate man seeking an entrance, a wall of flaming swords and seething fire. I shall never forget the fearful expression of baffled desire and helpless rage depicted in the face of the man thus barred out.

I watched him depart, and though many came, some coming in, some being prevented and going away, I saw only the one who tried more than once to enter. It seemed that when a person came up who was to come in, no stir, nor change took place at the door; but when some one came who was not to come in, the swords dropped lightly into place across the doorway, striking slightly together as they fell. If the one thus stopped from coming in, at once turned away, the swords were withdrawn, without noise or light; but if they remained standing, as if waiting to come in or to question why they were thus stopped, the blades of the swords would begin to blaze and quiver with motion, and light would begin to emit from them, similar in appearance to the flame from a hot, briskly blazing wood fire; and the longer the person stood there, the more energetic would be the shivering motion of the swords, and the more vivid and intense would be the light flying from them, until in some instances, as in the one described, the room would be illumined with the light, which resembled that which heralds the rising sun seen as it comes unclouded from the shades of night; or like the glow at the setting of the sun.

I saw some enter whom in my waking everyday hours I knew were deemed not meet for a membership with the faithful; and I saw some rejected who were deemed most worthy.

Some walked briskly in, some slowly; none who entered seemed to take heed to whether there was anything to stop or hinder them; while some walking slowly and gently would find their way barred with the crossed swords, they having fallen into place gently and noiselessly; others, coming quickly, would be met suddenly by the fall of the swords with a clash and noise, as if sprung into place by the stroke of a nervous and impatient hand; and if entrance were insisted upon, or seemed to be, the crossed swords began to glow, moving up and down, quivering as if with emotion and life, and light would emit from them as from the burnished plow-share set in the sun.

My waking eyes never looked upon workmanship so complete, so fit, so richly elaborate in design and finish, so profuse and yet so grandly harmonious as that of the room I have so poorly described. The outside of the building was massive and solid, a building only impressive because of its solidity and strength; without a spire, and yet perfect in proportion, design and finish.

It faded from my sight, as sublunary things began to obtrude themselves upon my conscious being; but the impressions made upon my mind will never be effaced. Well may we believe that the "Flaming swords that turn every way to guard the way of the Tree of Life," and still stand as prescient sentinels at the open doors of the Temple of Eternal Peace, and dispute with the fierceness of awakened wrath the entrance of human or devilish design and work.—Tullidge, pages 730-737.

This vision was had prior to 1879, the date of the assignment of the copyright to the church by Tullidge the author, who gave us a reprint of the vision in his book.

There is an inadequacy in my use of language to express my appreciation and high spiritual value of the intrinsic worth of this inspired elucidation that man must come to God in the divinely appointed way; and in a most fitting manner it would emphasize the word of the Christ: "Indeed, I truly say to you, He who enters not by the door into the fold of the sheep, but climbs up another way, he is a thief and a robber."—John 10: 1.

There could not be successfully maintained an objection, should we offer this vision of the "Lord's House" as an explanation of the last cited scripture, neither would there be any unreasonableness in presenting the vision as an incentive to all lovers of the truth, not only as to the necessity of carefulness of entering the fold, but likewise of retaining the rightfulness of the promise: "I am the door, if any-one come in by me, he shall be saved, and shall come in, and go out, and find pasture."—John 10: 9. This is an amplification of a more ancient provision for the sons of God:

Whom shall he teach knowledge? and whom shall he make to understand doctrine? them that are weaned from the milk, and drawn from the breasts. For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little: for with stammering lips and another tongue will he speak to his people. To whom he said, This is the rest wherewith ye may cause the weary to rest; and this is the refreshing: yet they would not hear. But the word of the Lord was unto them precept upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little; that they might go, and fall backward, and be broken, and snared, and taken.—Isaiah 28: 9-13.

HARMONIOUS DEVELOPMENT AND WORK.

The divine manifestations that have come unto the church through the present presiding high priest of the church have been in harmony with the words of that old Prophet Isaiah, and his unfolding, development, and growth in experience, understanding, and knowledge qualifying him in his calling and office as pastor of the little flock of God have at all times been equal to the necessity of the church, as we have the evidence in the word of the Lord from time to time as follows:

Press onward, ye elders and people of my church, even my little flock, and as I have spoken to you in times past, so will I again speak to you as my friends, inasmuch as you speak in my name; and lo! I am Alpha and Omega, and will be with you unto the end.—Doctrine and Covenants 115: 1.

This was in March, 1865, and again we have:

It is not expedient that I command you further at this time; but be ye diligent, wise, and faithful, doing all things with an eye single for the glory of your God, and the good of his people. Thus saith the Lord.—Doctrine and Covenants 117: 14, and this was given March, 1873.

Still later in vision, section 126 was given to the church. These all stand as proof that Joseph has been a faithful servant unto the Lord, and to his trust in the church; and it was not an error for the General Conference to sustain him in his office, naming the gifts and privileges of that office in their act of sustaining him.

There are quite a number of the old-time visions and prophecies that in the scope of their prediction being marvelous, wonderful, and of world-wide interest, and they are still unfulfilled, although the men through whom they came have been sleeping the long sleep of death for hundreds of years, while we as a people are living in the times when a few visions and revelations have been given through a living prophet, and that which was foretold hath come to pass, and we are witnesses thereunto.

These confirmations of our faith administered by the will and revelations of God to his church and people are refreshing and uplifting, as is the mountain stream that waters the thirsty valley.

The people of the church have confidence in the promises made in the revelations concerning some things relative to the building up of Zion, so along in the early seventies they became overanxious, and in fasting and prayer besought God for instruction; and in his loving kindness he gave answer:

It is not expedient in me that there shall be any stakes appointed until I command my people. When it shall be necessary I will command that they be established. Let my commandments to gather into the regions round about, and the counsel of the elders of my church guide in this matter until it shall be otherwise given of me.—Doctrine and Covenants 117: 11.

The Lord did not go out of business in caring for his people, neither has he been slack in keeping and fulfilling his promises; so twenty-one years after he made an agreement that when it was necessary he would command, once more are the people reminded lest they should forget, in the following:

The Spirit saith further: that Lamoni, Iowa, having been made by agreement of the church under the law of the land the principal place of business of the church, it is wise and expedient that it should be considered and declared by the conference to be the seat of the presidency of the church, and in due time be made a stake. In the meantime the district may be left to the care of its district organization subject to the direction of the presidency, no one of the missionary force being appointed to the charge thereof for the conference year, or longer if it shall be found advisable.—Doctrine and Covenants 122: 12.

The patience of the Saints was not again so severely taxed in waiting for the Lord to keep his word and give the command, for only seven years after he told us that "in due time" Lamoni should be made a stake, the commandment came:

My people are directed to establish two stakes; one at Independence, and one at Lamoni, Iowa, organizing them after the pattern which is found in the law; a presiding high priest with counselors, a high council, and a bishop and his counselors. These stakes shall be made to comprise the boundaries of the districts as they now stand, the center at the towns and places named; and the majority of the councils that should be chosen should be residents of the places named; in order that there may ever be a sufficient body to transact the business required.—Doctrine and Covenants 125: 10.

What comfort and peace of soul to those who live in accord and companionship with a living oracle of the true and omnipotent; and to possess an intelligent conception of the unchangeability of God, that his ways are one eternal round! And this thought is amply established in the word of truth: "And also the Strength of Israel will not lie nor repent; for he is not a man that he should repent."—1 Samuel 15: 29.

This is a base or foundation of the stability and trustworthiness of the word of God, or as the emphatic statement of a later prophet affirms: "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of God shall stand for ever."—Isaiah 40: 8. In a sharp clash between some of the old line Jews and John Baptist the latter avouched: "John answered and said, A man can receive nothing except it be given him from heaven."—John 3: 28. And it was because of this truth that we have: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—James 1: 17. It is by obtaining these spiritual gifts that are bestowed upon man by a loving Father, and abiding in the channel of receiving, that we shall be able to continue in the path that leads aright through all the maze of innovation of churchianity up to the Tree of Life, therefore can we exercise confidence in the word of the last record of the older Jewish dispensation which reads: "For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed."—Malachi 3: 6. And so long as man shall abide in the unchanged provisions of the unchanged and unchangeable God, will the original plan of God remain with men; and this logical truth makes plain the word which announces: "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it; and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been, and God requireth that which is past."—Ecclesiastes 3: 14, 15.

Thus we have confirmed unto the household of faith the earnest of our inheritance in organization, ordinances, and spiritual gifts assured by him who decrees and none can hinder; that which comes from the hand of God is not to be detracted from, or to be supplemented by man, for there can be no emendations to that which is perfect, and no imperfect thing cometh from God, for all that is allotted unto man is by the selfsame rule "by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God." (Acts 2: 23.)

How will the above scriptural evidence and rules by inspiration given for the guidance and government of the church of God, compare with the following statement of Dan B. Brummitt, editor of The Epworth Herald?

Methodism is a system which is not afraid of being systematic. It has a lot of machinery, because it has found that organization is a large help to religious progress. And, of course, like all good systems, the Methodist system needs frequent adjustment and rearrangement. So, every four years, the Methodist Episcopal Church calls together the representatives of its wide-scattered forces, and these, over eight hundred in number, spend a month together overhauling the machinery and planning for its larger effectiveness."—The Christian Herald, June 26, 1912, p. 649.

At the risk of being considered unkind, I shall put in juxtaposition as a suggestive comparison, to act as a spur for thought, the "overhauling the machinery" plan of the quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, with the following:

For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book; and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.—Revelation 22: 18, 19.

My attention was inadvertently attracted to an article: "The court of the demigods," by Jay Hambridge, and as it can be made to fit in nicely as an illustration I will here introduce it:

Mr. Mutsu after breakfast at the Gaimasho or Foreign Office introduced his foreign guests into a charming sun-parlor where grew a dwarfed pine upon which had been grafted scions of pines from Syria and from Poland, from Norway and from Georgia. The original plant came from Ise, the holy land of the Japanese, and as Mr. Mutsu noted with pride even after all the grafting was done the original characteristics of the little tree prevailed against the intruders. It was an interesting object lesson.—Metropolitan Magazine, November, 1911, p. 29.

No sane man would cavil or set up an argument against the little Japanese pine tree being a most interesting and significant object lesson, and in asserting its individuality there is given color and fulness to:

And I, God, said, Let the earth bring forth grass; the herb yielding seed; the fruit tree yielding after his kind; and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed should be in itself, upon the earth; and it was so, even as I spake.—Genesis 1: 15.

It is only when man interjects his acts of grafting that there is a departure from the original creation and purpose; but there is another tree that men have attempted a large amount of artificial work upon, in the Bible it is called the "Tame Olive Tree," or in other words, the Church of God. By the acts of numerous ecumenical councils, and the equivalent conferences of many other churches, men have been doing overwork for hundreds of years at the business of "overhauling" and "grafting" upon the original, and with all their wisdom and labor they have not as yet succeeded in perfecting a church that will anywhere compare with the church set up by the great Masterbuilder and his apostolic associates, as it is outlined in the New Testament, notwithstanding the herculean efforts of all the ecclesiastical manufacturers to improve upon God's plan of salvation for man, but all such should take heed to the inspired warning: "Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God, on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness; otherwise thou also shalt be cut off."—Romans 11: 22.

The continuance was to be in the goodness of God, and not in a process of "overhauling" and changing, for "God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues."—1 Corinthians 12: 28; let it be indelibly stamped upon the mind what God did, and the reason why he did so is set out in: "But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him."—1 Corinthians 12: 18. The full antithesis of this would be: that which is displeasing to God would be contrary to the good of man; and therefore, should be shunned and avoided as inimical to his salvation.

HAPPY UNDER THE LAW.

As to spiritual gifts and blessings the present president of the church is upon record as teaching:

It appears from this that after the law is given whosoever accepts that law and does what is provided for therein is not, and need not be, an unhappy man, for he would be blameless in the eyes of the law, both the letter and the spirit.

While it is proper to believe that men might rejoice in an "abundance of revelations," it is also true that the provisions of the law, the rules and regulations given by revelation and duly recorded for the guidance and government of the church and its membership, will serve God's purposes in establishing his people and save them if they are heeded; nor does it require a constantly recurring stream of revelations reiterating the provisions already given to keep them in the view of the people and reenact their application and force. "To the law" is a sufficient tocsin to call men, Saints, to the standards; "it is written," ample to show the way to that already given.

Paul was writing of the law and charging its observance when he wrote,—I will come to visions and revelations, and puts a sort of safeguard over himself lest he should exalt himself through the "abundance of revelations."

One of the meanings given to the word vision is the faculty of seeing. This may also be understood as meaning the power or ability to see. If the organs of the eye be hurt or destroyed, so far as physical sight is concerned, the man so deprived of the organs of sight can not see; the faculty to see is lost.

Applying this in a wider, more comprehensive sense, we may with propriety say that if the faculty to note, observe, and take mental cognizance of what the eye may see, or the mind contemplate, is not present with the individual, or has by any means been lost, then there is with such a man no vision. Having eyes to see he sees not, having ears to hear he hears not, having a heart to feel he understands not.

This is the wider meaning of what the writer of the proverb meant. Given a people whose leaders have not this sense, this faculty to see, perceive, comprehend those things which are essential to a proper discharge of duty as well as an avoidance of those which would cause trouble, harm and loss, and we shall expect to find a people who are in darkness to a greater or lesser degree and in spiritual and moral danger. And, if with their leaders the people are included in such lack, the elements of mischief and possible ruin are lying under cover ready to break into a flame of disruption at the touch of any kindling influence possible from the conditions.

We believe in all the ways by which revelation reaches men, and should be loath indeed to know that any one of them was overlooked, ignored, or denied by the Saints; but, believing also that men should walk by the light of wisdom, the result of this ability to see, we are strongly impressed with the necessity of maintaining the claim that "wisdom should be justified of her children," and men should govern themselves by the laws given as they are interpreted by the spirit of wisdom in them whom the Lord has made overseers of the flock.

We further believe that in the gospel economy it has been provided for that those who become disciples of the Christ Jesus are entitled to receive, and, of faithfully hearing, obeying, and practicing what the gospel teaches, do receive through the ministration of the Spirit this spiritual faculty in the gift of wisdom written of by Paul in 1 Corinthians 12; to another the "Word of Wisdom."

It then follows that he to whom this ability to see, perceive, and comprehend is eminently qualified for the performance of whatever duties devolve upon him by reason of the call of God to him, if he be an official, and if not an officer, to qualify him to aid, strengthen, sustain, and confirm by counsel and advice within the sphere in which he moves.

Let us then accept the apostle's injunction to seek earnestly the best gifts, being contented with the visions that may be vouchsafed to us, and exercising the faculty to see and understand.—SAINTS' HERALD, vol. 47, p. 765.

This teaching after more than forty years experience by the presiding officer of the church, should be by the ministry accredited as being true, and a cheerful support be willingly extended to all such instruction, and no attempt made to sprag the spiritual wheels of our progress.

However, there are too many, by far too many, both anciently and now, that are clearly indicated in the words of the Christ: "And Jesus said unto him, No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God,"—Luke 9: 62. This looking back has leading steps that anticipate the final act; with some it is one thing that alienates them from the faith and fellowship of the church; too frequently it may begin in not giving heed to the word of advice: "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."—Hebrews 10: 25.

Since the days of the conspiracy of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram against Moses, at the time that they filed their protest and accusation against the servants of God: "And they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, Ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, everyone of them, and the Lord is among them; wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the Lord?"—Numbers 16: 3, this spirit of faultfinding, envy, and jealousy against the constituted authorities has ever hung upon the church to do the mischief and works of the opposer of the Christ. There are also the careless and listless ones, whose disinterestedness help to make up the rank and file of the kickers and driftwood of the church. The "standpatters" for the truth will appreciate the following ditty:

"DRIFTING.

"The boat that drifts with the current,
Will come to grief on the rocks;
And the life that has no purpose,
At the door of success never knocks.

"Life is a pull against wind and tide,
And to those who drift it means death;
'Be not weary in welldoing,'
Is what the Bible saith.

"It is easy to go on drifting,
And heed not when duty calls;
But the craft that is tossed by the waters,
Will soon go over the falls.

"Now the moral of this is simple,
And good for the young to learn:
Don't drift, boys and girls, but struggle,
And grow better at every turn."

—St. Nicholas Magazine, vol. 38, p. 1141.

We would substitute for the words boys and girls the words men and women; or still better, ministers and members.

All men are liable to blunder and make mistakes as men; how sad it would be for us in things pertaining to our salvation had we misplaced our confidence, for the wise man wrote: "Confidence in an unfaithful man in time of trouble is like a broken tooth, and a foot out of joint."—Proverbs 25: 19.

Not once during the consideration of the resolution was there a word uttered insinuating a suspicion that the President was ever unfaithful in anything that was his duty to perform, hence the sustaining of him, as the conference did, was no violation of any rule or law of the church, either in spirit or in letter.

The path that leads to the crown of eternal life, begins when we hear the servants of God as they plead: "Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God."—2 Corinthians 5: 20. And the day of our beginning to walk that narrow path is upon entering into a covenant with God in baptism, and will not end till we stand before the judgment bar and receive our sentence at the hand of the Just One.

HE THAT RECEIVETH A PROPHET.

Tests will be administered to all while they are in the probationary state, and that for our development, such as: "He that receiveth you, receiveth me; and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me. He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet, shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, shall receive a righteous man's reward."—Matthew 10: 40, 41.

The certificate that will admit us to an abundant entrance into the kingdom of celestial glory is found in the word of the Man of Galilee: "If ye love me keep my commandments."—John 14: 15.

And in consideration of life's conflict, let me ask, kind reader:

"Shall we meet by life's pure river,
Where pellucid waters glide?
'Mid the healing leaves and flowers
That in beauty do abide?
Where salvation's blessed harpings
Float in holy melody?
Where the monthly fruits are ripening
Upon life's immortal tree?"

Men are often referred to as trees, so I will close this paper with the following:

The ax is laid at the root of the trees, and every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit, shall be hewn down and cast into the fire; I, the Lord, have spoken it. Verily I say unto you, All among them who know their hearts are honest, are broken, and their spirits contrite, and are willing to observe their covenants by sacrifice; yea, every sacrifice which I, the Lord, shall command, they are all accepted of me, for I, the Lord, will cause them to bring forth as a very fruitful tree which is planted in a goodly land, by a pure stream, that yieldeth much precious fruit.—Doctrine and Covenants 94: 2.

I have made my humble plea, that the General Conference did not err in passing of the resolution sustaining the Presiding High Priest of the Church, and I most modestly, in this tranquil manner, and with due respect to all, ask for a verdict exculpating both the President, and the conference from any wrongdoing.

LAMONI, IOWA.

• * * * •

DEALING WITH THE ERRING.—NO. 3.

BY CHARLES FRY.

Editor's Note.—The natural result of successful "labor" is repentance on the part of the one at fault. But what is true repentance? How is it expressed? What are its values? Is it sufficient to say, when brought to time, "I am sorry," and then go back to the same old course? Is repentance composed of floods of tears, with sighs and groans? One has said, "Mere sorrow, which weeps and sits still, is no repentance. Repentance is sorrow converted into action." The next number in the series will be devoted to "Confession."

REPENTANCE.

Repentance is one of the fundamental principles of the gospel and is made binding upon all men. The Apostle Peter said that God commanded "all men everywhere to repent," which command was repeated in latter day revelation (Acts 17: 30; Doctrine and Covenants 16: 3), and the Lord has also said

And surely every man must repent or suffer.—Doctrine and Covenants 18: 1.

It is said that repentance is "sorrow for a thing done or said; the pain or grief which a person experiences in consequence of the injury or inconvenience produced by his own conduct." But gospel repentance is more than that, for while it is associated with repentance,

SORROW IS BUT AN ADJUNCT OF REPENTANCE.

Gospel repentance is "toward God" (Acts 20: 21) —toward all that is right and true and good, and a sorrow that has no thought of right or of God in it does not constitute the repentance taught in the Scriptures. Sorrow of itself is not repentance, for one may be sorry for wrongs committed without regard to their sinfulness, and with no desire to do otherwise in the future; and frequently a conviction of "guilty" is the cause of sorrow rather than a conviction of sin. Paul makes a distinction upon this point as seen in 2 Corinthians 7: 9-11:

Now I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance; for ye were made sorry after a godly manner, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing. For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of: but the sorrow of the world worketh death. For behold this selfsame thing, that ye sorrowed after a godly sort, what carefulness it wrought in you, yea, what clearing of yourselves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what vehement desire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge! In all things ye have approved yourselves to be clear in this matter.

So there is a godly sorrow, and a worldly sorrow, and while godly sorrow is an attendant quality of repentance, the worldly sorrow has nothing whatever to do with it. To meet our need in this paper the following definition is given:

Repentance is the renouncement of a belief, practice, or act, from a conviction that it is wrong; and an acceptance of, and a determination to do, what is found to be right.

From this it will be seen that merely ceasing to do a thing or renouncing it does not constitute repentance. To be true repentance it must be "toward God," and unless the "ceasing to do evil" is followed by a progressive course of doing right, little is accomplished. A mariner discovering his course through the ocean to be wrong would not reach port by stopping altogether, but must carefully determine his true course and diligently follow it. The ceasing to do wrong is but the beginning of repentance, or in other words, getting ready to repent.

True repentance is dependent upon a proper conception of the sinful nature of the thing to be repented of. So long as one thinks a practice to be right there can be no repentance, but so soon as he is convinced that it is wrong, and that some other way is right, he has a reason for repentance, and if he also has a desire it will be accomplished.

From this it is apparent that there can be no repentance except men are instructed in the right, and hence the necessity of the gospel, in which is revealed the righteousness of God, being preached "to every creature," that they may have opportunity to repent and enter the kingdom of God.

REPENTANCE INCLUDES RESTITUTION.

For many sins restitution can not be made. Life once taken can not be replaced, virtue once destroyed can not be restored by the destroyer, material things destroyed can not be reproduced, though in some cases the equivalent can be given in their place. In many cases, too, restitution can be made, partially or entirely. Property obtained by theft, or otherwise held wrongfully, may be restored; losses caused by fraudulent dealing may be made up if the defrauder has sufficient means with which to do so; an injured reputation may be to some extent mended by a full confession of the slanderer.

One who refuses to make restitution for wrongs committed, when able to do so, has not reached the point of repentance, no matter how strong his professions may be. A wealthy farmer had upon one of his farms a poor tenant who was to give a certain part of the grain for the rental. In dividing the grain the rich farmer took fifteen bushels more than his share without the renter knowing it. At a revival held some years later where the torments of the wicked in hell were vividly depicted, the farmer feared for his soul, and to get rid of his consciousness of the wrong done his tenant, arose and confessed the same and expressed a desire that he might be forgiven. He afterward testified to being "saved and sanctified," though no restitution was made, and the poor family never received what belonged to them. When the law given to Moses required restitution in all such cases (see Exodus 22), and the Lord himself confirmed the principle, commending the man Zaccheus for declaring his obedience to it, it is difficult to believe that this rich farmer found forgiveness. Selfishness was the sin which led him to defraud, and it was selfishness which kept him from making restitution, and it is apparent that selfishness remained with him to stand in the way of true repentance. Selfishness is the first sin of which he needs to repent.

REPENTANCE IS A PROGRESSIVE PRINCIPLE, AND APPLIES TO MEMBERS IN THE CHURCH.

Because repentance is a principle applying to men before they enter the church, and is one of the prerequisites of baptism, is no reason for its being left behind. It is operative while walking the narrow way as well as on the outside of the gate, and so long as any degree of sin remains in the human soul it must continue its work, otherwise that soul will never reach perfection.

Under the influence of the Spirit of God which men receive upon coming into the church, errors of belief and sinful practices or acts, which were not seen to be sinful before, are shown in their true light, necessitating a change of belief and conduct almost daily, or a ceasing of the wrong for the purpose of doing the right, which is repentance. In this way men develop and go on unto perfection. John the Baptist must have had in mind the thought of continued repentance for the followers of Christ when he said

I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance.—Matthew 3:11.

Again, it is not uncommon for those who have repented and have been baptized and become followers of Christ to fall into sin, doing some sinful act, or possibly some sinful practice which was once repented of upon entering the church. This gives cause for repentance. The frailty of human nature, with the environments of sin, subject the children of the kingdom to mistakes and transgression, but the divine law has made provision for them to recover from such. It is by repentance.

FORGIVENESS DEPENDENT UPON REPENTANCE.

The Scriptures clearly teach that repentance and baptism bring forgiveness of God. To those in the church who sin, forgiveness will also be granted upon repentance, (there are several exceptions which will be noted in a subsequent paper on Forgiveness) as stated in Mosiah 11:139:

Yea, and as often as my people repent, will I forgive them their trespasses against me.

Repentance also entitles the erring member to forgiveness by the one against whom he has transgressed. A transgression against a member is an inevitable cause of estrangement, and so long as the transgressor perpetuates his transgression the estrangement will continue, but when he repents and confesses and thus removes the cause, the estrangement ceases and forgiveness must be granted by the member.

The church is also required to forgive its erring members when they repent, but if there be no repentance the law specifically states that they shall be cast out. A member of the church refusing to repent of a wrong committed is thereby violating a gospel principle, and putting himself in the same attitude as the nonmember who refuses to repent, and since the latter is unworthy of membership while preferring to remain in sin, so is the former unworthy of remaining in the church when he prefers a life of sin. This topic will be discussed further in a subsequent paper on Forgiveness.

REPENTANCE NOT COMPLETE WITHOUT CONFESSION.

The Lord requires a broken heart and a contrite spirit, which will insure his children against being overcome by stubbornness in wrongdoing. Where one entertains an exalted opinion of his own righteousness, perhaps with a debased opinion of his brother's righteousness, he will not see his own faults as they are, and of course will not see the necessity of repenting, nor have the willingness to confess. Humility of spirit makes the way easy for him to confess his sins to God and to his fellow men so far as may be proper, and he has the promise of the Lord that:

The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit.—Psalm 34:18.

Confession is a natural result of repentance and makes it complete. It is like the signature to a document; it makes it legal. A person having suffered wrong at the hands of another would have no way of knowing whether the wrongdoer had repented except by his confession and restitution.

By this ye may know if a man repenteth of his sins. Behold, he will confess them and forsake them.—Doctrine and Covenants 58:9.

In conclusion, a Saint must keep himself in that condition of contrition so that he will be willing to repent whenever he has need, keeping sin from his life so far as possible, and if at any time finding that sin has entered into his life, be ready to remove it in harmony with the law which God has given, remembering:

That unless a man shall endure to the end, in following the example of the Son of the living God, he can not be saved.—2 Nephi 13:21.

Of General Interest

The Drug Habit.

From Charles B. Towns' "The Peril of the Drug Habit," in the August Century.

The most harmful of all habit-forming drugs is cocaine. Nothing so quickly deteriorates its victims or provides so short a cut to the insane asylum. It differs from opium in two important ways. A man does not acquire a habit from cocaine in the sense that it is virtually impossible for him to leave it off without medical treatment. He can do so, although he rarely does. On withdrawal, he experiences only an intense and horrible depression, together with a physical languor which results in a sleepiness that can not be shaken off.

Opium withdrawal on the other hand, results in sleeplessness and extreme nervous and physical disorder. In action, too, cocaine is exactly the opposite of opium, for cocaine is an extreme stimulant. Its stimulus wears off quickly and leaves a corresponding depression, but it confers half an hour of capability of intense effort. That is why bicycle riders, prize fighters, and race horses are often doctored, or "doped," with cocaine.

When cocaine gives out, its victims invariably result to alcohol for stimulus; alcoholics, however, when deprived of alcohol generally drift into the use of morphine.

I have seen over six thousand cases of drug habit in various countries of the world. Ninety-five per cent of the patients who have come to me taking morphine or other alkaloids of opium have taken the drug hypodermically. With few exceptions, I have found that the first knowledge of it came through the administration of a hypodermic by a physician. It is the instrument used which has shown the sufferer what was easing his pain. Restricting the sale of the syringe to physicians, or to buyers on a physician's prescription, is the first step toward placing the grave responsibility for the drug habit on the shoulders of those to whom it belongs.

Whether a man has acquired the habit knowingly or unknowingly, its action is always the same. No matter how conscientiously he wishes to discharge his affairs, the drug at once begins to loosen his sense of moral obligation, until in the end it brings about absolute irresponsibility. Avoidance and neglect of customary duties, evasion of new ones, extraordinary resourcefulness in the discovery of the line of least resistance, and finally amazing cunning and treachery—this is the inevitable history.

The drug habit is no respecter of persons. I have had under my care exemplary mothers and wives who became indifferent to their families; clergymen of known sincerity and fervor who became shoplifters and forgers; shrewd, successful business men who became paupers, because the habit left them at the mercy of sharpers after mental deterioration had set in.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY FRANCES.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. F. M. Smith, vice president, 630 South Crysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. D. J. Krahl, secretary, 724 South Crysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. Letha Tilton, treasurer, Lamoni, Iowa, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, 1595 West Walnut, Independence, Missouri, Mrs. H. A. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.

Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Mollie Davis, superintendent, Pittsburg, Kansas.

Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Eugenics Department, Mrs. Clara Curtis, superintendent, 2200 Indiana Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.

Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, superintendent, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.

Young Women's Department, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, superintendent, 707 South Fuller Avenue, Independence, Missouri.

Sewing and Aid Societies, Mrs. M. B. Nicholson, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

The Results of Deception.

Dear Mothers of the Home Column: The perusal of your beloved and instructive pages always affords much pleasure and valuable information, and when I read I wish every mother throughout the land might be benefited by your timely advice. I am one of those enthusiastic mothers whose delight is in teaching and helping the little ones, not only my own, but every little soul that I come in contact with. There is hardly a day passes but what I find myself with the little ones telling them the beautiful truths of nature, of God, and his love for them. How their little hearts respond to his wonderful plan, and how needful it is that we ever be watching and praying that by our example we may not deceive them! In the HERALD of February 28, I read with deep interest the article on "Subjection by fear," and my own heart was saddened as I recalled similar incidents where mothers frightened and injured their children for life by their frightful recitals of monstrous animals and black men, and even telling them that great snakes would crawl out of the attic if they did not be good. Oh, the awful mistake of it! It is no wonder we see so much deceit among children.

I have in mind a beautiful girl of sixteen whose mother's fond hope was sadly blighted when not long ago she found her daughter lost in deception and disgrace, and the other put behind prison bars for five years. My heart was wrung with anguish as this mother told the whole miserable story of how her precious, beautiful girl was lured from her, and she knew not where she was for three days and nights, and of the terrible presence of that evil one bending over her as she lay half crazed, knowing not whether her child was living or dead. Then after that terrible suspense to have her daughter return to her and to find she had been deceived by her. Worse still, I must say that ignorant mother had set the example of deceiving her child and her husband too. She had reaped as she had sown and now that mother's heart is broken, that home is a temple in ruins. The child is now going under another name that she may not be recognized in this city, and who is to blame? I am sure the time is coming when we mothers in Israel must awake and be doing all in our power to save our children; to raise them up monuments of honor and power in this great church of God. What a wonderful work this is for the coming young men and women in this church to do, and if we do our part, heeding the words given us in the revelations of God, he will surely bless our efforts and cause us to rejoice exceedingly.

I am trying, by the help of God, to be a faithful mother and handmaiden in the work of the Master, for we are everyone of us capable of rendering some service to the Master. He wants us all to fill in our niche, to accomplish our task, to leave the world better than we found it, and as I close those beautiful words of Mrs. Avery Stuttle come to me like this:

"O Christ, I know that thou dost see
The hidden motive of my soul;
Each word, each thought is known to thee,
And thou, O Christ, my judge must be.
Thou wilt appoint my lot to me
When like a mighty parting roll
The quaking heavens asunder roll.

"I know thy judgment will be just,
But O, thy gentleness is great;
Thou knowest that thy child is dust,
Thou knowest the fleshy heart of lust.
I will not fear, O Christ, but trust
In thy dear hands my fate.
Thou canst not leave me desolate.

"If man should judge my trembling soul
How drear, how sad would be my lot!
Then might I fear when tempests roll,
Then might I miss the glorious goal;
For ah, the struggle of my soul
Perchance my brother hath forgot,
Perchance my heart he knoweth not.

"But O, what joy that He who made
 My shrinking soul her judge shall be;
 I need not fear nor be afraid
 When in the balance I am laid;
 And in the scales of justice weighed
 By Him who faced Gethsemane,
 The sinless man of Calvary.

"For O, one crimson drop will pay
 The overwhelming debt of sin.
 One drop of blood in that great day
 From Calvary's mountain shall repay,
 And all my guilt shall wash away;
 And through the gates all free from sin
 That pierced Hand shall lead me in."
 Your sister in the gospel,

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

BERTIE WISE.

Dear Sisters of the Woman's Auxiliary: Our meeting for the month of May was of such a nature that I thought you would like to hear about it. We have a dear aged sister, Jane Knight, who belongs to the San Francisco Branch, and in her younger days was very active in all departments of church work. She is now seventy-six years old, and lives with her daughter in Elmhurst. We voted to hold our meeting this month across the bay with this dear sister. Eight of our members met at the ferry building and took the 12.40 boat across. This is a delightful sail of twenty minutes, the water being very calm. We glided past the numerous islands, each containing something of interest, one having the training ship and station for the soldiers, and another the prison. Passing boats and all kinds of shipping craft in the bay, and with the buildings on either side of us in view all the way, this is a very interesting trip.

After we reached the "Mole," a long wharf built way out into the water from the city of Oakland, we boarded an electric train and rode about thirty minutes, then got on a street car. We did not know the street or number where our sister lives, but when we told the conductor we were going to Mr. Oscar Teale's, he knew just where to let us off.

As we came to the bungalow in the center of a large, beautifully arranged garden, it was indeed a picture to gladden the artistic eye. Here were walks bordered with daisies, and such lovely beds of flowers of all kinds. A little farther along we passed through a rose arbor and came to an aviary containing a number of singing canaries, a little fountain and trees.

The same artistic arrangement was carried out with the house. Outside each window was a garden made by scooping out a log, and filling it with earth, and flowers of all kinds were in full bloom. From the ceiling of the piazza hung little rustic baskets of ferns. When we entered the house we voiced our delight. Roses, roses everywhere! Large branches over the pictures, huge bouquets on tables, piano, etc. Oh, it was lovely! Sister Teale had invited a number of her neighbors and there was quite a delegation from Oakland.

Sister Knight, in whose honor the party was given, sat there with a beaming face, to meet with those she loved so well, especially a cousin of her own age whom she had not seen for a long time.

At three o'clock our president, Sister Vira Lawn, called the meeting to order by singing "Blest be the tie," and prayer was offered by Sister J. M. Terry. Then followed the reading of the lesson by Sister Mamie Saxe, two readings by Sisters Teale, and Ewing, two solos by Sisters Huston and Holling, remarks by several of the sisters.

Sister Knight arose and gave expression to the joy and gladness she felt at being able to see the dear faces of her friends once more. Delicious cake and ice cream were served by two grandchildren of Sister Knight. Such a thoroughly good time was had that some of the Oakland sisters expressed a desire to have a Woman's Auxiliary in their branch. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Sister Teale for her generous hospitality.

SISTER CLEDA SIMPSON.

Request for Prayer.

Sister A. E. Scott, San Bernardino, California, is very sick with a complication of diseases; weak and nervous, and under the care of a nurse. She is seventy-one years old, and would be pleased to have the prayers of the Saints in her behalf. If it is the Lord's will, she wants to be spared to help do good for the Lord's work. She writes: "I can not get out much, but will do all I can. Am thankful it is as well with me as it is, and one of my greatest desires is to be able to be at church more. I am praying for the welfare of Zion."

Letter Department

MINDEN CITY, MICHIGAN, July 12, 1912.

Editors Herald: I feel impressed to write a few lines to your letter department. I have been a reader some time of your precious columns which has been a great help and strength to me spiritually.

We have an active branch of Saints here, numbering thirty-two. We meet every Sunday for Sunday school and prayer meeting. Brother John Henry conducts the prayer meetings. He is a priest and president of the branch. My husband, Elder Leverton, is in Canada, on a missionary tour. Sunday evening services had to be omitted for a time, until his return. His services are missed by Saints here and also by some that are not Saints.

I am alone, attending to home duties, yet I do not feel alone; I feel the presence of some One with a calm and gentle Spirit with me, which inspires me in my service to God. I have at times in the past been very discouraged and felt my life did not amount to anything and was not worth living, but by the Holy Spirit God has shown me that he still loves me and that my life is precious to him and that he has a work for me to do. I want to do whatever the Lord has for me to do.

I was going out to the garden to work when the Spirit commanded me to write. I felt I couldn't, but if these lines have helped some poor weak one like myself, I will feel repaid.

We had a grand reunion at Port Huron; a spiritual feast which strengthened me very much. I have just read an article or speech of Brother Walter W. Smith on summer school work. It is grand to note the spirit of love being taught and manifested among the teachers and children, thus turning them to God and manifesting the true love of Christ in them, drawing the little ones to Christ. I feel if more love was in homes, in churches, in all the Saints there would be more good done than there now is. God has blessed me much and still is blessing me. My testimony is that God the eternal Father is at the head of this church and rules and reigns and blesses his children the same yesterday, to-day and for ever.

Your sister in gospel bonds,

MRS. ARTHUR LEVERTON.

CASTLEBERRY, ALABAMA.

Editors Herald: I came to be a Latter Day Saint from working in the timber with a member, and I would make all manner of fun of his religion, but he never stopped telling how good the latter day gospel was. He was taking the SAINTS' HERALD and would read letters to me that had been written by some of the church members, and some nights he would go home with me and sing some songs that would cheer me along the weary road of life. You see he was building a lasting faith in me, and I was not aware of it; but he loved the glorious latter day work and he could not keep from telling it.

His education was very limited, like mine, but it doesn't always require an educated person to tell the good news. Everyone has his influence, either for good or evil. This man has taken all the pains he could to show me the right road. He continued to point to it and still I did not show any sign of belief. I have that love for him that never dies. He stands to-day in my mind like the great oak, and I pray God to-day to bless him for laboring with me in trying to show me the right way.

I did not belong to any sect and now to complete my belief in the gospel story, I heard an elder preach. He was Brother Frank West. I was carried away with his sermon. After the sermon I set out on an eight-mile trip for home on horseback. The distance seemed short, and when I arrived my wife asked me how I liked the preaching. I told her I liked it well enough to join them. All that I heard pointed me to a new life that I must live. I told her that the Saints were the best and kindest people I had ever met, and I was willing to cast my lot with them. You see, dear Saints, that God helps those who try to help themselves. I could read a little by spelling the words over. I had striven hard to know more about this new doctrine and I had only had two weeks in school, but the good Lord knew my desire to learn of him and he helped me in learning the better way.

Now it came time to go to a conference with my first builder, the man who had showed me that light that has been a guide to me over forty years. The conference was in Santa Rosa County, Florida. We had to walk thirty miles to reach the place. I met many dear ones, and their kindnesses to me, a stranger, will ever be remembered. Brother T. W. Smith was there. That was the first time we met. He said to me, "How do you do, Brother Shell?" He knew me, and while he held my hand I felt good and I told him I wanted him to baptize me.

I asked him to come to my home in Alabama. I wanted all my neighbors to see me start out to live a new life. While there I heard some fine preaching, and all of it was new to me, but my love for the gospel was increasing. I heard a member of the church speak in tongues, and that was a new thing to me. I felt good over all I saw and heard. The conference ended and I had to part from the newly made friends, which was very sad to me.

Later, Brother T. W. Smith came to my place and many people came to hear him preach, and also to see him baptize myself and my mother-in-law.

Dear Saints, you do not have to live in a well-running branch to live right. I have almost been isolated ever since I have belonged to the church, over forty years, and now the last sermon I heard wife and I went ninety miles to a conference at Theodore, Alabama, to hear. The principal speaker was Brother I. N. Roberts, on his mission in the South.

The restoration of the gospel in 1830 was only ten years before I was born. Till we meet again,

R. F. D. 2, BOX 43A.

G. H. SHELL.

LEEDS, YORKSHIRE, ENGLAND, June 22, 1912.

Editors Herald: I was in the church in my youth and was baptized at about the age of nine, but fell away into forbidden paths, until, having reached the age of about twenty-three, I saw the folly of the life I was living, and endeavored, as I then termed it, to go straight. This I found to be sweet, and also very difficult to do. This kind of procedure meant that I must forsake all my old companions and all the follies which I had been used to indulging in, such as drinking and smoking, which I realized was doing me a great deal of harm, and other vices which are of the world.

I did not realize until I had been converted, that I had been, and was then living a selfish life, and that I must apply and practice the teachings of Jesus Christ in myself. I first went to a mission hall and there received a great deal of help from the teachings given forth but there was not given unto me the understanding and strength which I required although I read nearly the whole of the Bible and prayed often and earnestly for understanding to be given me. It appeared to me that those who spoke did not go far enough into the details, such as faith, hope, and charity. So, after attending the mission for about a year, I commenced going to hear the teachings of the Reorganized Church on Sunday mornings. Here I might say I did receive food and understanding of the teachings of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and strength and guidance in all things, and of his mission upon this earth, teaching men that they must repent and do works meet for repentance, being baptized for the remission of sins, and to ever fight onward unto perfection. It is wonderful the number of faults I found in myself, and not only were these faults made known to me, but I was given understanding and strength to overcome them. I can truthfully say that I have many times seen my prayers answered, even regarding other people. This is a truly marvelous work and a wonder, and I do humbly thank the Lord for his guidance in bringing me back into this latter day work. I also thank him for the restoration of the gospel, and the light and understanding which I have received through the Book of Mormon and the Holy Scriptures. I pray that many may be brought out of darkness into light, even as I have been brought out of darkness into light, and to ever live faithful to what we know is the truth.

Surely God is a merciful God, and if we abide in the teachings given forth unto us, even in these latter days through his prophet, Joseph Smith, even the everlasting gospel as given to the world by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and his words in us, we shall ask what we will and it shall be done unto us. Your brother in the truth,

ARMLEY, 11 REDSHAW ROAD.

HERBERT STOCHDALE.

RIVER PHILIP, NOVA SCOTIA, July 9, 1912.

Dear Herald: Thinking that some of the Saints who know me would like to know how I am getting along in this, my first year's experience in the mission field, I thought I would write to the HERALD.

My general health is improving. I had been an elder only nine months, and had preached but five sermons before coming here, and of course have had some very severe experiences, and became badly discouraged, but feel some better now. By work, prayer, and trust in God I hope to make a full hand in life's great harvest field some day.

I had a dream about James E. Kelley, and feel impressed to relate it. I dreamed I saw him in the full bloom of health. He was stouter than he was when I saw him at General Conference this spring. His cheeks were red and his eyes bright, and he seemed full of work; good, sturdy, honest work, and appeared to be able to do a lot of it.

William Anderson, who is laboring with me, and myself arrived about May 20. The interest has been fair, considering all things. We are doing tent work now. Missionary in charge, U. W. Greene, is with us now.

I ask the prayers of the Saints, and remain,

OLIVER D. SHIRK.

Deloit Semi-Centennial Anniversary.

Sunday, the 7th instant, Sister Butterworth, Herbert, Vida E., and the writer drove to Gallands Grove, Iowa, where we had a pleasant time and basket dinner with the Saints, and preached after the Sunday school that convened at 10 a. m., and at 2.30 p. m., and returned to Dow City, attended Religio services at 7 p. m., and at the request of the president of the branch, Elder J. L. Butterworth, I again spoke and the day's work was done.

Having received a phone message from Mallard that my services were wanted, I went to Mallard the 8th, where I learned that Elder Robert Fish's only child had passed to the land of rest, and was free from suffering. Tuesday, the 9th, at 10 a. m., I preached the funeral of little Viola May to a full house of sympathizing relatives and friends.

Wednesday, the 10th, I went to Auburn to call upon and visit our well-known and beloved brother and sister, W. A. Carroll and wife, where I also found Priest John Jordison, and had the pleasure of hearing him deliver an entertaining and instructive discourse the evening of the 11th. The congregation was small upon this occasion, but the interest was good, and everyone present was benefited by the good received. Brother Carroll and wife are somewhat afflicted, but their love for the truth, and willingness to assist and entertain is just as strong as ever, and their faith is unshaken, and their hope brightens as they press forward, and upward.

Brother John is full of zeal, and was anticipating a pleasant time with the Saints at the Union Church Sunday, the 14th, though it was plain to see that Mary and the little ones were missed from his side. Every true minister of the gospel has an anxious care for wife and little ones.

Friday, the 12th, I left Auburn for Deloit, to attend the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the Deloit Branch, which was held in the Saints' church from the 12th to the 14th. At this place we found the Saints have put a new floor in the church, which is nicely varnished, and they have the platform and aisles covered with new carpet, and it looked very homelike. Some seats and a long table were put up under the shade trees in front of the church, where a goodly number of Saints and friends had a basket dinner Sunday, and the writer incidentally heard that some of the Saints and friends coming in from Dow City and Denison, on the I. C., 1.10 p. m., train, were in time for the remnant sale.

Services commenced Friday evening at 8 o'clock, and the speaker read as a lesson Luke 14: 7-20, and used as a text the words of the Pharisee, "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God." The positions assumed were about as follows: When we make a feast we should see that the poor, the maimed, the lame, and the blind have a place at the table, that they may eat and be glad. That God had made a great feast of spiritual things for the children of men, and all were invited, that the Savior was there in their midst as the messenger of the covenant to announce to them that all things were then ready and that all who would might eat of the spiritual feast and be filled, and indeed be blessed in so doing. That under the restoration of the gospel the young Prophet of Palmyra and his collaborators announced to a dying world at supper time that all things were now ready; and again it was possible that all who would might eat and be filled, and thus be made to know how "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God." That when John sent his disciples to ask Jesus, "Art thou he that should come, or look we for another? Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and show John again those things which ye do hear and see. The blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, [and as the climax] and the poor have the gospel preached to them,"

That Jesus was the true bread from heaven, and the true water of life. That those who would might eat and drink and be satisfied; and that too, without money and without price.

And still in another sense those who are prepared to eat and drink at the Lord's table are those who have first removed from their hearts and minds every root of bitterness, and are at peace with all men, and those who can meet in the assemblies of the Saints and eat the bread and drink the wine that represents the body and blood of the Lamb of God are indeed blessed, and know the full meaning of the words, "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God."

Saturday evening Elder Heman C. Smith was the speaker, and, if I remember correctly, read as a lesson Hebrews 12: 1-17.

His talk was along historical lines. He referred to his acquaintance with the Saints in the early days of the Deloit Branch, and other branches in the Gallands Grove District, calling many of them by name, and his association with them, and his first experiences as a minister of the church, and his association with Elder Thomas Dobson, and others, and the difference between those times and the times in which we live. I believe it was at this meeting that he referred to the birth of a little girl July 8, 1776, four days after the signing of the "Declaration of Independence." That little girl was Lucy Mack, and afterwards the mother of Joseph and Hyrum Smith; the spirit of liberty that inspired the patriots to form and sign the "Declaration of Independence" was bred and born in this little girl, her children, and the early elders of the church. That how long God had been working to prepare for the coming forth of the latter day work he did not know, but from the days of the Reformation, if not before. He spoke of the courage of Lucy Smith, and referred to her courageous actions and inspiration, as to how she took charge of the little colony of Saints that were moving from New York to Kirtland, Ohio, how she directed at Detroit, Michigan, after the courage of elders had failed, until they were through the blockade of ice just at the opportune moment, so that it was passed in safety.

Sunday, the 14th, a social service was held from 9 to 10 a. m., during which time there were a goodly number of earnest prayers offered, and some interesting testimonies given, and a number of sick persons were remembered before the Lord during prayer.

Sunday school opened at 10 a. m., with Brother Lacy Myers acting as superintendent, and I think I noticed among the teachers, Bishop C. J. Hunt, Mrs. C. J. Hunt, Mrs. A. H. Rudd, and the names of the others I can not now call to mind, though their features are familiar to the writer. Everything seemed to move along nicely in the Sunday school work, and near the close the superintendent called on one of the elders present for a five-minute talk on the conditions of the Sunday school in the early days of the branch. The speaker said in substance: Elder Thomas Dobson was the first Sunday school worker in the Deloit Branch and the Gallands Grove District that I remember. In those early days the Sunday school was not continuous as to-day, but existed for a few months and then died out, and was again taken up a little later. There was prejudice to contend against, which we are glad to know has been overcome. If anyone is opposed to the Sunday school to-day they know enough to keep still. In those days we had no lesson leaves or other helps, but chose our lessons from the New Testament. The first thing we had in the way of lesson helps was a little book put out by the church and known as "the Question Book," and we thought at the time it was very fine. I remember that when the lesson leaves were adopted that it was with difficulty that we persuaded some to drop the Question Book in favor of the lesson leaves, but it was finally done. I think in some ways the lesson Quarterlies put out by the church are superior to those put out by our religious neighbors. One point is found in the fact that there is not such a studious effort made to avoid doctrinal matter; that those using the lesson Quarterlies put out by the church will soon learn what the gospel is, while this is not the case with others.

In those days we selected our Sunday school hymns from a small book containing a selection of ~~hymns~~ made by Sister Emma Smith. We had no notes, so that we did not, perhaps, sing in those days with the same understanding we do to-day; yet when we sang under the influence of the Spirit, the melody was as sweet as anything we hear to-day.

At 11 a. m. Elder Charles Derry, one of the fathers of the church was the speaker, and the house was crowded with attentive listeners. He read a portion of the seventeenth chapter of John, and the leading thought of the discourse, as the writer remembers it, was about as follows: The necessity for love and unity, and that the Savior had lost none of those the Father had given him. That the Savior was able to teach, lead, bless, and save those who would follow him. He referred to Joseph Smith's first vision, and the "marvelous work of the latter days," and the sacrifices made by the early ministers of the church, and even the sacrifices made by the ministers of the church to-day, and thought that the sacrifices made by their wives and children were even greater; yet how willingly this sacrifice was made by many noble souls for the good of their fellows. He very feelingly referred to a number of the older members of the branch and district, and his association with them. That though their bodies slept they were not dead, and their souls rested in the paradise of God; and that they still lived and were represented in their children and grandchildren, and that there was still joy and hope before us. He occupied his full time, and all seemed to be interested and edified, and the Spirit's help was given.

At 2.30 and 8 p. m. Elder Heman C. Smith was the speaker. He continued the theme of Saturday evening, and again referred to stirring events of those early times, and the spirit of liberty and freedom that seemed to be at work for the salvation of the people.

He referred to Joseph and Hyrum Smith, David Whitmer, Oliver Cowdery, Martin Harris, and Peter Whitmer, jr., as being the charter members of the church, and that they were all young men. That in these days we would not think much of an effort made by that many young men to organize a church. And indeed there would not have been much to it in those days had it not been for the power of God was with them, and that they were directed in their work by revelation. He spoke of the magnitude of the work they did, and referred to the revelation requiring certain elders to labor among the Indians, and how strange it was that they went by the tribes near them, and past other tribes, and commenced their work among the Lamanites right where in later years the Government has established "Indian Reservation."

He referred to the death of the Martyrs and how the church was broken into fragments, and named the leaders of the factions, and gave a brief history of some of them, and referred to the fact that most of them had died out, or merged into the Reorganized Church. Referring to Lyman Wight and his company that went to Texas, he said, "I am a product of that faction." Indeed, his talk was not only good, but long, and as the writer had with him neither pencil nor paper, he could not be expected to give a verbatim account of what was said and done.

However, following the afternoon services three persons were baptized into Christ by Bishop C. J. Hunt, C. W. Whiney having charge of the services at the water, and the ordinance of the laying on of hands for confirmation was attended to in the fore part of the evening services.

Sister Butterworth and the writer called on Sister Sylvester Horr, and were glad to see that she was looking and feeling better. We also called on Sister R. R. Montgomery, who has been sick for some time, and found her improving. We did not forget to call on Aunt Melissa Jordan, who is too infirm to walk to church although she is alive to the interests of the work, with a bright and living hope, and we thought we discovered in the sister an indication of a joyous anticipation of a better time coming by and by, even if it should be in the paradise of God, or on the redeemed earth with the Saints, when Christ shall reign as "King of kings, and Lord of lords." The writer really felt while at her home that he would be glad to have had the authority to detail four of these fine looking, strong men at the church to take hold of the chair in which this sister was seated and carry chair and contents to the church, where she would have enjoyed the services, and had her share of the good things that were visible on that long wide table by the church.

Yours in gospel bonds,

CHARLES E. BUTTERWORTH.

DOW CITY, IOWA, July 15, 1912.

News from Missions

Saskatchewan.

It has been some time since I wrote to the columns of your paper. And in the meantime many changes have taken place. This writing finds me way up here in northwestern Canada. My last letter was written from the British Isles. On my way here from Columbus, Ohio, my home, I called at Cleveland and Kirtland. At the latter place I had the pleasure of meeting the patriarch, John H. Lake, and his companion, with many other old-time friends there. Said brother and sister, though aged and infirm, are cheerful and manifested great interest in the latter day work. Brother Lake is in his eighty-fourth year, but his mind is clear and active, and he is free from much of the suffering incident to old age. He is strong and undaunted in the triumph of the latter day work, as is also his companion. When we gave them the parting hand we offered up a silent prayer, that through the kind providence of our heavenly Father we might be permitted to meet once more on this mundane sphere.

I visited the Temple, and it brought old-time recollections to mind. We thought of the many brothers and sisters who had in times past worshiped there, but who are now passed to the beyond. Only one or two of the old settlers who were there when we moved there in the fall of 1885 are now living, and not one of the charter members of the Kirtland Branch organized in the spring of 1886 now reside in Kirtland. Some have died and the rest have moved away. Kirtland has grown some. We saw a number of modern buildings, which help to decorate the place, and make Kirtland look more beautiful. And, by the way, the opinion of the writer is that not a more beautiful spot exists in all the world. We found Brother C. Ed. Miller busily engaged looking after the Temple and taking visitors through. One of the visitors I saw was John D. Rockefeller, who had driven over from Cleveland in his fine motor car. He seemed very much contented with life, and appeared to enjoy himself. In appearance he is tall and slim, with peaked face and long fingers. He is light complexioned and wears a wig. He is very common in his appearance, and no one looking at him would suppose that he is the richest man in the world. Wherever he goes in his motor car he crouches down in his seat between two women, as a protection from the assassin's bullets. It is much more consoling to be a poor man, to come and go at will, than to be a rich one in constant fear of death. I also met Bishop Becker and Brother Samuel Brown of the ministerial force, who, while I was there, left for Warren, Ohio, to operate a tent. During my sojourn there I was the guest of Sister William Liston, who is running the Kirtland Hotel, whose hospitality I enjoyed with pleasure and thanks.

At Cleveland I met Brother R. Baldwin, who is conducting meetings in the park on Sunday and on the streets in various parts of the city two or three nights during the week. The officials of the branch spoke very highly of his efforts. Brother Topping, president of the branch, and his associate officers, are very much alive to the interest of the church work in that city, and treated me very kindly while I sojourned with them, which kindness I very much appreciate.

I only stopped a few hours in the city of Minneapolis. I did not see any of the Saints, as I had none of their addresses, but anticipate spending some time there on my return from the Northwest. The journey from that place to Calgary, Alberta, was very trying because of the excessive heat. I felt very much fatigued at the end of my journey after four days of constant travel. On arriving at Millet, Alberta, I was kindly cared for at the home of Brother and Sister Campbell. The next morning, to my happy surprise, I met on the street Brother T. J. Jordan, president of the district. Soon thereafter we beheld Brother E. E. Long stepping off the train. We were truly glad to see him, as we had been associated many times in ministerial work in years past. It makes one feel good to meet an old friend in a strange land. At two o'clock p. m. we met in a large hall and organized ourselves into a reunion, and notwithstanding the fact that we had considerable rain for several days, the reunion was a grand success. There were Saints present for many miles around. The social meetings were spiritual and the preaching was excellent. Two were baptized, and we feel confident that a great amount of good was accomplished. The Saints were built up and encouraged to press forward in the great warfare. All were cheerful and seemed to appreciate the privilege afforded them to spend a few days together in Christian fellowship and association. The writer felt at home and was glad to be associated with such a noble band of Saints. From there we went to Edmonton.

On the second inst., I preached in their hall and on the night of the third, Brethren Long, Jordan, and myself organized the Saints into a branch to be known as the Edmonton Branch. About forty members in all. Brother J. N. Baldwin was elected president. We are of the opinion that the prospects are good for a large ingathering, providing the officers and Saints continue active in the service of the Lord. This city ought to have a competent high priest to act as pastor; however, we have none at our command, hence we will do the next best thing, we will locate one of our traveling missionaries there for a time. Edmonton is a very enterprising city and growing very rapidly, and is beautifully situated on the banks of the North Saskatchewan River. The country all around is very level and the soil very black and rich and in places there is a considerable amount of short timber. Three leading railways center at this point. Doubtless this city has a great future. Brother J. L. Mortimer has done a good work in this place and his efforts here are well spoken of by the Saints. He baptized ten, and they seem anxious to have him returned.

On the morning of the Fourth we wended our way to Ribstone, one hundred and sixty miles distant, to attend another reunion, which convened on the fifth. The meetings were held in a bowery erected for that purpose on the premises of Brother A. W. Burton. There was quite a large gathering of Saints, from one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and fifty. This was quite a gathering for a new country, considering the widely scattered condition of the Saints. John J. Cornish and J. W. Peterson joined Brethren Long, Jordan, and myself of the general ministry, and with the local force, there were a goodly number of preachers on hand. Brethren Beckley, Levitt, and Walrath, presidents of the Ribstone, Edgerton, and Michigan branches were in attendance. A good feeling prevailed through all the meetings, notwithstanding the frequent showers. We feel safe in stating that the officers and members enjoyed themselves immensely, and it was with reluctance they separated after so many days of pleasant association.

On Monday, the eighth, Brethren Cornish, Long, Peterson, and myself came to this place, and on the evening of the tenth we organized a new branch to be known as the Artland Branch, about fifty or sixty members in all, who formerly were members of the Michigan Branch, but owing to the distance separating the members it was deemed advisable to organize another branch. Most of those remaining in the Michigan Branch live across the Alberta, with the exception of a few families. Brother W. J. Cornish, son of J. J. Cornish, was ordained an elder and elected president of the new branch. If he is faithful he will make a useful man in the church. Brother W. J. Levitt, president of the Michigan Branch, was also ordained an elder.

There are a great many Saints here from Michigan and other parts of the States, who have taken homesteads, which is a God's blessing to them, in my opinion. I like the lay of the country very much. There is more land here that could be taken up, but it is not quite as good as that already taken. However, it is good land, and within eight or ten miles of two main lines of railroad. A homestead (160 acres) can be had for ten dollars, and six months residence each year and cultivating thirty acres. Another 160 acres can be had as a preemption, which at the end of six years would cost about six hundred dollars. That is giving a man a farm of 320 acres for a little over six hundred dollars. A man with a little perseverance and grit can at the end of six years procure a good home for himself and family, or at the end of three years a good home of 160 acres for ten dollars. It is a great country for grain and stock raising. One can see vast fields of grain looming up on every hand. They can also raise many kinds of vegetables and berries, but no fruit trees of any kind. One of the beautiful sights is the many kinds of flowers in wild profusion everywhere. Roses of many colors, prairie lilies, bluebells, and many other kinds. I was almost tempted to take a homestead myself, but I guess I am too old and have not the time to stay in one place three years. Nevertheless, it is a good opportunity for younger men that haven't much of this world's goods. The Union Jack is a good flag to live under. It and the Stars and Stripes equally afford an honest man protection and religious liberty, and what more can a man ask of any government?

Brethren Long, Cornish, and Peterson are nicely located on homesteads, and are rendering good service to the church as ministers of the gospel. Their influence and efforts are very much needed in this new country, as it gives them an opportunity to reach the people before they get bound up by the dogmas of men. It is to the advantage of the church to keep able ministers in this country, as people of all nationalities are flocking here by the thousands, thus giving us an opportunity to reach many people that we could not reach in their own country because of their traditions and prejudices.

I am domiciled with Brother Peterson in his unique dugout, lined with poles and covered with sod, and comfortably arranged on the inside. Brother John is a splendid housekeeper and an excellent cook, and makes the weary wanderer feel at home. Anyone wishing further information concerning this country can write the following brethren: W. J. Levitt, North End P. O.; J. J. Cornish, Senlac; E. E. Long, Senlac; J. W. Peterson, Yonker; all in Saskatchewan, Canada.

I leave here to-day for the Iowa Branch, located near Saskatoon, and from there to Disley to attend the district conference, 17th to 20th inst. From there to Goodwater and Sunnyside to attend a reunion at each place. Brother Jordan will join me again at Disley and will accompany me throughout the district. I find him to be a congenial companion. He is wideawake to the interest of the work and stands high in the estimation of the Saints. The traveling ministry have no better friend and supporter.

With best wishes and gospel love to all, I am,

GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

ARTLAND, SASKATCHEWAN, CANADA, July 11, 1912.

Missouri.

Perhaps a few "dots and dashes" from this end of the world may be of interest. So far as I can find, the work in the Southern Missouri District is doing finely. Most of the missionary force are now at work, and good reports are coming in from them.

The last days of May I started for the southeastern corner of the field, and made my first stop and preaching near Naylor, Missouri, with Brother and Sister Hopkins. Held forth for a week and had fine interest. Thence to the Blackly Schoolhouse, where Brother Henry Braun had billed me to preach to the people of that place. Brother Henry opened this place to the preaching of the gospel. Well, you know Brother Henry can't sing, and so when he asked for a song the choir broke in upon that old eastern air, "The sun shines bright in my old Kentucky home." This song seemed to "hit the spot," and Henry opened his remarks by saying that, "We are all going to be like that old dardy, that we would soon have to leave our home here on earth, and then it would be 'weep no more, my lady.' There will be no tears up there." Here we had quite a tilt with quizzers, and left a good feeling with some, and a warm feeling with others.

Back we went to Brother Hopkins's, and held forth for a few more nights, with good interest. Thence to Puxico, Missouri, where we find some of our good old friends from Kentucky and Tennessee, who had already given out preaching. Good crowds greeted us at the Egypt Schoolhouse, but the first thing that I know the whole "kit" of Baptist preachers are up in arms, and out onto me. Five or six of them. The foremost of them, Reverend Club, got up at the close of my service and stated that he "would reply to what had been said when Davis was through."

I understood that to mean that he would wait until I was gone, and then he would take a shot at my tracks; so I told him that I did not like that way of doing things, that I had three more nights there ere I had to meet other appointments, and that if he would come out the next night that I would give him half the time, and we would thrash out matters and things in good shape, so the people could see and hear us both.

"All right, sir," was his vimmy reply.

Well, I told the people to all come out the next night, that we were going to have "sort of a union meeting there, like." And sure enough, the house would not hold them.

Daniel 2: 44, was the "bone of conflict." I preached forty minutes, and gave way for the "Club," and what a "whop" out you never read of. Well, say, Mr. Editor, I want to say right here, that if God was using that Club (as he is accused of doing), that he did some very careless work with it that night. All blows went wide of the mark; and all those other preachers got the fidgets so that they could not keep their seats, and began to jump up and want to say "something." I told them to just say on; that the Bible said that, "one should chase a thousand," and that I did not care how many of them took a hand. But that I did believe that if I had a dozen of such preachers there I would have some shouting.

Well, after about two hours of war I invited them all back for the next night. But "No, sir," was the Club's retort. "Well," said I, "if Brother Club won't come, let us try one of these other fellows." But no, not one of the braves would come the next night, so I had smooth seas. Closed my effort there with good interest. One name for baptism.

On to Mill Springs, where Brother Gibbs has meetings advertised. Preached nearly a week here, and baptized two dear souls into the kingdom.

Off for Dagonia, Missouri, walked about five miles, and "toted" my old grips, and when I got to Dagonia Brother R. H. Counts informed me that they "always met the elders in about three places when they came in to preach." I told him that they had "met" me in about three places like a "whurl." Preached here from Wednesday until Sunday, and got one name for the water. But, to our surprise, when we had given the good crowd a short sermon on baptism and then led Grandma Counts into the water, what happened but dear old Grandpa Counts came forward and was baptized; and again, as we neared the shore, here stepped forward another sister and was baptized. Then we dismissed, but not for long. Here came a runner saying, "The baptism is not over yet, there is a young man wanting to be baptized." This young man was deaf and dumb, but I did not feel to ask any questions as to how he knew anything about the gospel, but led him into the water and baptized him, and as we were stepping out of the water some one said, "Hold on, Brother Davis, the baptism is not over yet." Another lady was coming forward, and I shouted, "Glory to God, I believe the whole congregation is going to be baptized." Some one else said that "The angels surely had troubled the waters." This sister was baptized, making five dear souls there who gave their lives to the Master. And there were that many more who were "almost persuaded." I have promised to return and continue the good work.

Going back to Puxico, where I preached four nights in the Christian church, and baptized Sister Icy Tate. Am billed for another two weeks' siege, beginning this coming Saturday night.

Back to the deaf and dumb brother; after he was baptized, I asked some of his folks how he knew anything about the gospel. And I was told that he had informed his brother that an angel had come to him and had told him what to do, or how to live. He is a fine young man. Can read, write, and talk on his hands as fast as one can with his tongue.

In forty-three days I have preached forty-six sermons, baptized eight, confirmed six, opened one new town to the work, administered to the sick five times, and labored in six places.

Am leaving home to-day for other parts where they are calling, "Come over and help us."

Yours in the great latter day dispensation of the gospel.
Peace be to Zion.

J. T. DAVIS.

WEST PLAINS, MISSOURI, July 17, 1912.

He who refuses to be taught loses from life its charm and sacredness. Cease to learn and you will in time starve your powers of admiration, of reverence, of obedience, and all the rest of those delicate faculties which in their union are worship and the very strength of spiritual faith.—George Adam Smith.

News from Branches

Independence, Missouri.

The mercury of late has registered from 90 to 96 degrees, and the excessive humidity, no doubt, accounts for the decrease in attendance at all the meetings.

On the 14th there were about sixty at the 8 o'clock prayer meeting which was presided over by T. N. Smith and H. B. Sterrett. The total attendance at Sunday school was 770; of the first primary department 94, of the senior 111, collection, $14.59.

At six o'clock a reception was given by the officers and teachers to the editors of the second primary and intermediate Quarterlies, Sister Sears, of Boston, and Sister Zimmermann, of Philadelphia. They each gave a very interesting talk and at the close of the meeting a delightful ice cream service was given by Sisters M. A. Etzenhouser and Julia Braidwood.

The Sabbath morning sermon was by J. F. Curtis, who spoke on the subject of the new covenant, the unchangeability of God and his law; not failing to criticize the false doctrines of men, especially those extant now in Utah.

Bishop Ellis Short held forth at the evening hour to edification before an interested audience, and in the afternoon the attendance was small both in upper and lower rooms.

Our young brother, Carl Lewis, who has been afflicted a long time, was quite recently baptized in the church font by his father, C. G. Lewis, assisted by B. J. Scott. His extreme weakness was overcome at the font, and he now rejoices with his many brethren in the peace of the gospel which the world can neither give nor take away.

To the Saints as well as to others, the Chautauqua held here last week presented so many attractive features we can not pass it by without a respectful mention.

At the last meeting a coterie of home people took part in a concert number, and among these was our gifted brother, F. Criley, a foremost singer of Israel. As a closing feature was an "experience meeting," the object of which was to boom the Chautauqua for next year, and our popular and genial brother, J. L. Gray, was not behind in praise-offering, for he remarked incidentally that "this Chautauqua is the biggest and best thing that ever came to our city, and I will do all I can to make it a permanent thing."

On Sunday, the 21st, Bishop Kelley preached in the morning on the gifts and graces of the gospel, and exhorted the Saints to live in patience and unity, and B. J. Scott, at the evening hour, with wonted energy, gave counsel to all concerning their duties, spiritual and temporal.

The Sunday school attendance was 731. The regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at 4.30, and at its close the chairman of the ways and means committee donated on the part of the society fifty dollars to the Children's Home fund. Throughout the day the heat was extreme; yet the interest in spiritual things seemed not to wane, for the Saints had listened well to the stirring admonition contained in the text of the morning lesson, "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith."

The Saints enjoyed a good prayer meeting last evening, the 24th, Brethren Garrett and Gray presiding. It was well attended, although at the close of a typical July day when the "patience" is oft tried by worldly cares together with those mysterious, and pestiferous visitors, the crimson Missouri chigre. And he comes generally when we all love to sing of the sweet summer time,

"Sunshine and rain to nourish the golden grain, Send us Lord, the sunshine and the rain."

ABBIE A. HORTON.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

KEWANEE.—District conference convened at Millersburg, Illinois, June 1, 2, 1912. District president, O. E. Sade, and minister in charge, Fred A. Smith, presided. M. E. Gillin and Florence Holmes acted as secretaries. Seven of the nine branches in the district reported as follows: Kewanee 139, gain 1; Millersburg 126; Twin City 88, gain 6; Joy 86, loss 8; Buffalo Prairie 71, gain 2; Dahinda 55, gain 4; Peoria 47, loss 1. No report from Canton or Media. Charles L. Holmes, bishop's agent, reported a balance on hand of $355.63. Auditing committee certified this report, together with the books, to be correct. By an affirmative vote it was decided "to merge the missionary fund (a collection taken upon the first Sunday in July for missionary work) with the district funds, and no longer carry a separate account as such. A bill for $2.12 presented by the local historian, M. E. Gillin, for car fare to Galesburg, Illinois, and return was ordered paid. In harmony with the request of Buffalo Prairie Branch, Truman Ziegenhorn, of that branch, was ordained to the office of deacon. Election of district officers resulted in choosing O. E. Sade, district president; Charles L. Holmes, secretary; Mary E. Gillin, vice president; Charles L. Holmes, treasurer; Florence Holmes, librarian. Charles L. Holmes was sustained as bishop's agent, as was Mary E. Gillin as local historian. Reports from the late General Conference were given by Fred A. Smith, O. E. Sade, and Joseph Arber, and was of one of the most encouraging and helpful features of the conference. The conference was good throughout. We were benefited, cheered, and comforted by the counsel, and ministry of Fred A. Smith. Assisted by the divine Spirit, he seemed to sense the needs of the district in general, and of many of us in particular, and said just those things that were calculated to be helpful. The preaching was good, and was by Elders Joseph Arber, O. E. Sade, and Fred A. Smith. One was baptized; one ordained; several children were blessed; and a number received administration. Adjourned to meet at Dahinda, Illinois, September 21, 1912. O. E. Sade, president; M. E. Gillin, district secretary; 115 Clarke Avenue, Peoria, Illinois.

Reunion Notices.

The reunion of the Northwestern Kansas District will meet August 17 to 25, instead of August 10 to 18 as I stated in my notice to you the other day. Conditions are such that it was necessary to make the change. Please note the change. W. E. Peak, for the committee.

The Central Oklahoma district reunion begins at Ripley on August 16, 1912. Those desiring tents for use during this encampment should notify us at once. 10 by 12 wall tents, $2; 12 by 14 wall tents, $2.50. John Ballard, of the committee, will care for your order. Address him at Ripley. Order quickly. We expect a good attendance this year. Will run a cooperative boarding table. Come prepared to be good, do good, and receive good. A number of the local and traveling ministry will grace our assembly to assist by their word and presence. The Saints' privilege is to be personally the very vessels in which the Holy Spirit may reside; and many such vessels well filled when brought together will develop a mighty power. Come prepared to contribute your portion of the gospel power and to enjoy the soul-electrifying experience of its multiplication. J. E. Yates, district president.

Northern California and Nevada reunion. The reorganized committee has consummated arrangements for the coming reunion, to occur at Irvington, California, the usual place, commencing August 31, 1912, at 10 o'clock, and continue ten days, including two holidays. In buying tickets, be sure and get a certificate or receipt which will insure a return on one third fare. Don't neglect this. Tents will be rented for: 8 by 10, $2.15; 10 by 12, $2.65; 12 by 14, $3.15. Other sizes may be had by special order and price; these are the standard sizes. Please order your tents at once from the undersigned. Rooms may be obtained as last year. Springs and box mattresses for rent on the ground at reasonable rates. The eating house will be conducted under the best obtainable management, and as cheaply as possible. Additional conveniences will be had this year over last. Straw and hay and wood will be for sale on the ground. The district conference will convene on Monday, September 2, at 10 o'clock. The Sunday school and Religio conventions will convene on following days in the afternoon, as may be arranged by them.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 Signs of the Times, Part 2 - - - - 725

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Did the Conference Err, Part 2, by Robert M. Elvin 729
 Dealing with the Erring, No. 3, by Charles Fry 735

OF GENERAL INTEREST - - - - -
 MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - - 738
 Bertie Wise—Sister Cleda Simpson.

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 739
 Mrs. Arthur Leverton—G. H. Shell—Herbert
 Stochdale—Oliver D. Shirk—Charles E.
 Butterworth.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 742
 Gomer T. Griffiths—J. T. Davis.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - - 745
 Abbie A. Horton.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - 745

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1800.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.
 Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.
 When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.
 If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us.
 The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.
 All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.
 All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.
 Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.
 For advertising rates apply to the business department.
 Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.
 Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

The Woman's Auxiliary district organization will also have a hearing, as also other church work. Daniel Macgregor, General Sunday School Superintendent, will be present to prosecute the Sunday school work in all its departments, accompanied by his wife; also as an able minister of the word. Our worthy minister in charge, F. M. Sheehy, will also be present, who, together with our missionaries and equally worthy and able local brethren, will insure proficiency in the ministerial line. With all the blessed and necessary church work before us, it will fill the ten days full of useful and enjoyable service for the Lord and his church. The musical department will be ably managed by proficient choristers. The San Jose band, composed of about sixteen young men of the church, will be present with their "instruments of music of the reed and of the string, and instruments of brass" to add to the efficiency of the service. Let all come with a prayer and determination for a special baptism of the Spirit of peace and good will. All orders should be sent promptly to the undersigned. Any information gladly and promptly given. J. M. Terry, chairman of committee. Oakland, California, 1202 Fourteenth Street.

Arrangements have been made as follows for our Southern Indiana district reunion to be held at Wirt, Indiana, August 31 to September 8. All that contribute $2 to the reunion fund will be given meals free. Those who want individual sleeping tents will please remit $3, and reservation will be made for same. Gold Medal camping cots will be rented at $1 each. If you desire a cot please send us your order at once. Tent chairs will be rented at twenty-five cents apiece. Do not fail to write us at once, telling us your requirements, as it is the duty of each member to attend this reunion and to take part in this the furthering of the district work. John Zahnd, chairman of committee, 223 State Street, New Albany, Indiana.

The reunion of the Southern Nebraska District will convene August 16 to 25, 1912, in the W. M. Self grove, one mile south of the courthouse on the Eleventh Street road at Nebraska City, Nebraska. There is good shade, good water, and other accommodations equally inviting. Good speakers and those prepared to carry on the Sunday school work, also the work of the Religio, will be in attendance. We will not conduct a boarding tent this year, but there will be a stand on the ground where provisions may be bought at reasonable prices. Tents will be furnished at the following prices which include the freight: 10 by 12, $2.25; 12 by 14, $2.75; 14 by 16, $3.75. All orders for tents must be accompanied by cash and placed in the hands of the treasurer no later than August 10. Those coming to spend but part of the time, who do not care to rent tents, will be cared for at a reasonable rate, but the committee must receive notice of their coming on or before August 10 that due arrangements may be made. The above rule applies to single persons. Come with us and spend your time enjoying a spiritual feast, the preaching of the word, the Sunday school and Religio work, and the pleasantness of association of the Saints. Anyone desiring any further information, communicate with W. M. Self or H. A. Higgins at Nebraska City, Nebraska. H. A. Higgins, for the committee.

The Southeastern Illinois reunion will be held near Cisne, Illinois, August 10 to August 20. A boarding tent will be run on the ground, those coming to camp on the ground can get tents for $2. We are expecting to have a good reunion. We will have a number of good speakers, including one patriarch, with us. I wish for this to be an invitation to all, so that no one will wait for a special invitation. Write me for tents to Cisne, Illinois, not later than August 1. All coming by rail can come to Cisne or Jill; either place is just three miles from the ground. Coming from Jeffersonville is the nearest by rail. Pasturage and good water can be had handy. Fred O. Pritchett.

Notice to Spring River District.

Saints who subscribed money to tent fund at Purcell conference and have not paid, as also branches to whom notice for collection was sent, and others who may desire and are able to contribute, please forward your contributions to me as soon as possible. The tent should be in the field and we have not money enough to buy it yet. Mollie Davis, for committee; 115 West Jefferson Avenue, Pittsburg, Kansas.

Died.

SLOVER.—Sarah Slover, wife of Joseph Slover and daughter of William and Eliza Montgomery, was born August 5, 1861; died July 17, 1912, near Xenia, Illinois. After a lingering illness of about a year, she succumbed to inward cancer. Baptized May 5, 1896, by J. F. Henson; membership in Poplar Creek Branch. She had three children from her first husband, who preceded her years ago,—Hershel and John Edgington and Mrs. Anna Slover. Funeral in charge of I. A. Morris, sermon by S. S. Smith from the Christian church. Burial in Neadmore Cemetery. About four hundred people assembled at the funeral.

After two years' trial in his own and other classes Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale, now makes available for general use his Elementary Principles of Economics. [The Macmillan Company, New York.] Despite the rather natural first assumption that a book in which the treatment of economics follows to a considerable extent scientific and mathematical methods would be either difficult or impractical for use with the elementary student, the book will be found invaluable for giving the student a real foundation upon which to base his subsequent study, for the book is elementary and is concerned with economic principles, not their applications. In method of treatment it follows the modern tendency by proceeding from the familiar to the unfamiliar. The book thus rids the student's mind of many fallacies and supplies him with an intelligent comprehension of the principles underlying ordinary business accounts and usages. Hence, any instructor, whatever his opinion on controversial topics, may well choose this book either for exclusive use during the first part of his course or for use throughout the course with another volume. In the author's own and other classes the combination of this book with Taussig's Principles of Economics has been found most satisfactory. The book will be published within a few weeks.

The Government of American Cities, by Professor Munro, of Harvard University, and The Essentials of International Public Law, by Professor Hershey, of Indiana University, are to be published during the next month or two.

Herald Publishing House

$100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best of security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

These Bonds will be ready to issue on the 1st of April, 1912.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

Gained Ten Pounds in Colorado

Many a tired wife or business man, worn out with the year's work could put on needed flesh and vitality by a little vacation in Colorado. Some people pick up as much as ten pounds as the result of a two weeks' outing in this wonderful country. It isn't any one thing that does it. It seems to be just a combination of glorious air, brilliant sky and wonderful scenery. The beauty of Colorado somehow gets into the blood and before you know it your eyes begin to sparkle and you feel made new all over.

Anyone who has gone to Colorado over our railroad, the Burlington Route, will tell you that it isn't hard to get there, for the trains are wonderfully comfortable, and the service wonderfully good.

If you want to know just where to go in Colorado, how little it will cost and how long it will take you to get there, come in and get your copy of our Colorado folder and let me help you plan your entire trip. If it is not convenient for you to come in, kindly write—a postal will do. Just ask about Colorado trips and I will answer right away.

L. F. SILTZ, Agent

C. B. & Q. R. R.

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
Lamoni Land and Loan Co;
Lamoni, Iowa.

BEAUTIFUL OSAGE VALLEY

Being the first to locate in this valley and seeing the richness, also mild climate, cheap fuel, etc., we desired other Saints might share it, so advertised, resulting the locating of many Saints. As to honest, upright dealing we refer you to any of the branch officers, or members. OSAGE VALLEY LAND CO., 47 Mapleton, Kansas.

FOR SALE

A number of farms and town property in and around Cameron at rock bottom prices ranging from 20 to 600 acres. Can give possession or turn rental contract at once. Located in Far West District. Write for prices.

B. M. Seaton & Co., Cameron, Missouri,
Weaver Building, E. 3d Street. 20 tf.

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy. Order No.

- 141 cloth 75c
- 141½ leather $1.00
- 174 flexible $1.50

Trip To The Orient.

The Laconia, the newest of the Cunarders, has been chartered for Clark's 15th annual oriental cruise. Reservations now being made. Everything safe and pleasant. Trip to last 71 days, and includes the Holy Land in its itinerary. Full information for a postal to

Albert L. Floyd,

102 North River Boulevard, Independence, Missouri.

WANTED.—A first-class barber. A married man who would like to make a home here preferred. O. Dickey, Lamoni, Iowa. 31-1

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work. Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents. No. 140, cloth50

NAME WANTED

The Southern California District will give a prize of the three Standard Books of the Church, for a suitable name for our Reunion Ground, to be selected by Reunion Committee next August.

All names should be sent to secretary.
R. T. COOPER,
202-3 Lankershim Bldg., Los Angeles, California. Alt to 8-1

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet. Order No. 241, cloth.....50

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed. No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25 Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book, Cloth, No. 198.....50c Paper No. 197.....85c

BISHOP'S ANNUAL REPORT

Of Receipts and Expenditures of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints from January 10, 1911, to January 10, 1912.

RECEIPTS BY BISHOP.

On hand last report	$ 8,977.23
Aid returned	5.00
Local bishops and agents	40,843.48
Bishop's office expense	1.00
Bonheim place	1,885.45
Book of Mormon Translation Fund	1.00
Central Church account, offerings and rent	1,831.01
Children's Home	795.69
Christmas Offering	7,500.25
College running account	614.68
Consecrations	1,259.02
Woman's Auxiliary	5.00
Danish Book of Mormon	1.20
Elders' expenses returned	103.76
Elders' families returned	181.00
Hilliard, G. H., Counselor	508.26
Insurance returned	2.20
Interest received	567.76
Kirtland Home	780.00
Rent collections	1,315.58
Real estate improvements	6.18
Real estate contracts	17,522.57
Saints' Home	10,377.04
Sanitarium	2,139.24
Taxes	96.53
Temple consecrations	51.00
Tithes and offerings	34,302.10
Tracts	6.75
Zion's Religio-Literary Society	1,082.86
Bills payable	137,129.29
Bills receivable	5,093.33
Accounts (cash)	436.78
Accounts	34,793.16
Total	$310,220.40

EXPENDITURES BY BISHOP.

Aid	$ 15,480.42
Auditing expense	107.60
Bishop's agents	4,462.14
Bishop's office expense	4,402.26
Bonheim	3,279.37
Central Church	3,532.09
Central Church furniture account	100.00
Children's Home	11,917.68
Christmas Offering refund	1.00
Church buildings	127.69
College running expense	170.43
Elders' expenses	11,882.35
Elders' families	16,613.60
Exchange	25.16
First Presidency's expense	1,568.21
General expense	1,093.03
Graceland College, old debt account	360.00
Hilliard, G. H., Counselor	128.00
Historian's office expense	619.83
Home dam account	50.00
Kensington	524.67
Interest	8,196.67
Inheritance tax	50.00
Inheritance	380.00
Jerusalem Mission	421.33
Kirtland Home	1,205.29
Kirtland Hotel	638.11
Kirtland Temple repairs	329.40
Bishop's office library	101.27
Presidency's office library	151.09
Live stock	200.00
Mexico Mission	20.00
Patriarch's office expense	18.50
Postage	9.16

Merchandise	303.70
Quorum of Twelve expense	12.77
Recorder's office expense	920.36
Rent (refund)	30.00
Real estate expenses and repairs	1,112.65
Real estate improvements	2,489.41
Real estate contracts	4,613.15
Real estate	25,822.25
Saints' and Liberty homes	4,298.28
Sanitarium	6,138.39
Secretary's office expense	129.05
Steamship agency	73.62
Taxes, real estate	1,042.25
Tracts to missionaries	310.89
Utah Mission (rent)	208.00
Bills payable	112,494.51
Bills receivable	10,388.54
Suspense account	28.61
Accounts	51,637.62
Total	$310,220.40

REPORT OF G. H. HILLIARD, COUNSELOR.

Receipts.

Last report due church	$ 25.01
From tithes, offerings, and consecrations	1,129.80
From Bishop	147.74
From miscellaneous	48.00
Due counselor	121.59
Total	$ 1,472.14

Expenditures.

Paid Bishop	$ 926.00
Paid elders' families	312.00
Paid elders' expenses	181.14
Paid aid	53.00
Total	$ 1,472.14

REPORT OF E. A. BLAKESLEE, COUNSELOR.

Receipts.

Last report due church	$ 72.75
Total	$ 72.75

Expenditures.

Paid elders' expenses	$ 8.85
Due church	63.90
Total	$ 72.75

ACCOUNTS WITH AGENTS.

Receipts.

Balance due church last report, $33,425.66, less differences in balances, $1,609.98	$ 31,815.68
Received from Bishop	4,623.58
Received from other districts and agents	9,999.94
Received from tithes, offerings, consecrations, and surplus	138,965.58
Received miscellaneous	9,406.89
Due local bishops and agents	913.90
Total	$195,730.57

Expenditures.

Due agents last report	$ 301.75
Paid Bishop	39,594.98
Paid elders' families	76,601.72
Paid elders' expenses	8,336.98
Paid aid, poor and needy	9,937.13
Paid other districts and agents	11,533.72
Paid miscellaneous	11,362.11
In hands of local bishops and agents	38,062.18
Total	$195,730.57

REPORTS OF ELDERS.

Receipts.

In hands of elders last report, less settled balance and elders not reporting	$ 1,223.26
Donations from Saints and friends	14,920.60
Received from bishops and agents	24,823.57
Furnished by elders	3,386.90
Total	$ 44,354.33

Expenditures.

Expenses, traveling, etc.	$ 42,891.93
In hands of elders	1,462.40
Total	$ 44,354.33

STATEMENT AVAILABLE ASSETS.

January 10, 1912.

Cash in hands of E. A. Blakeslee, counselor	$ 63.90
Cash, notes, and accounts in hands of local bishops and agents	38,062.18
Bills receivable	47,528.55
Accounts receivable	53,144.40
Real estate contracts	9,290.50
Building stone account	284.32
Central Church, Kansas City, Missouri	12,578.21
Central Church, Kansas City, Missouri, furniture	100.00
Book of Mormon Translation Fund	14.65
Bonheim, inventory	1,417.78
Children's Home	15,017.83
Graceland College running expense account	3,151.70
Danish Book of Mormon account	301.56
Derrick	375.00
Furniture and fixtures	1,789.13
Historian's office inventory	304.79
Home Dam, Lamoni	3,163.53
Kensington Home, inventory	138.15
Independence Sash Door & Lumber Company, stock	741.00
Independence Planing Mill & Supply Co., stock	1,397.50
Kirtland Home, personal property	1,162.10
Kirtland Hotel, personal property	1,692.15
Library, Bishop's office	1,391.56
Library, Historian's office	48.83
Library, Presidency's office	440.54
Live stock	627.30
Saints' and Liberty homes	50,079.45
Sanitarium	56,847.98
Secretary's office inventory	193.00
Library, general church	1,415.20
Recorder's office inventory	348.15
Independence Stake inventory	374.80
Lamoni Stake inventory	412.00
Society Islands Mission	620.95
Steam engine	100.00
Supply Store	9,235.75
Automobile, Utah Mission	700.00
Real estate, not including church buildings	118,708.98
Total	$438,213.82

STATEMENT LIABILITIES.

Bills payable	$159,216.29
Accounts payable	10,692.88
Due agents	913.90
Cash account	436.78
Due G. H. Hilliard, counselor	121.59
Temple Consecration Fund	1,951.70
Zion's Religio-Literary Society	1,416.60
General Sunday School Association	1,900.00
Children's Home	959.70
Total liabilities	$177,609.44
Net assets	255,604.38
Total	$433,213.82
Net assets	255,604.38
Net assets last report	215,034.55
Net gain	$40,569.83

SAINTS' AND LIBERTY HOMES.

Receipts.

Care and board	$ 10,382.43
Tanks sold	50.00
Grain and hay	516.00
Groceries	1.45
On Independence Church debt	417.26

Labor	4.00
Live Stock	544.00
Offerings	207.55
Pasturage	179.88
Rent	129.00
Repairs	6.60
Supplies	.88
Discount	8.26
Expense	.10
Total	$ 12,447.41

Expenditures.

Aid	$ 222.20
Care and board	104.35
Clothing	24.99
Expense	39.60
Fuel	781.54
Furniture and fixtures	90.75
Grain and hay	77.20
Groceries	1,295.47
Implements	70.55
Improvements	75.18
Insurance	2.23
Labor	2,436.93
Medical services	300.60
Repairs	619.55
Light	157.76
Supplies	83.26
Account	25.00
General Church fund	6,078.76
In hands of Committee	11.49
Total	$ 12,447.41

SAINTS' AND LIBERTY HOMES.

Assets.

Bills receivable	$ 80.00
Buildings, fixtures, etc., Saints' Home	19,683.90
Furniture and fixtures, Liberty Home	1,473.20
Grain and hay, inventory	415.00
Groceries, inventory	481.00
Home Committee	11.49
Implements, inventory	311.00
Real estate improvements, Liberty Home	7,040.05
Real estate, Saints' Home	15,455.16
Real estate, Liberty Home	3,000.00
Real estate improvements, Saints' Home	935.25
Independence, Church	874.48
Live stock	1,300.00
Accounts	233.00
Total	$ 51,293.53

Liabilities.

Accounts due and unpaid	$ 1,214.08
Present worth	50,079.45
Total	$ 51,293.53

CHILDREN'S HOME ACCOUNT.

Receipts.

Balance real estate purchase	$ 3,000.00
Offerings, etc.	2,572.75
Pasturage	7.60
Freight and express refund	1.44
From church on account	11,917.68
Total	$ 17,499.47

Expenditures.

Real estate buildings and improvements	$ 12,411.60
Labor	63.68
Implements, harness, etc.	169.75
Expense	43.49
Clothing	52.02
Care and board	11.00
Medical and dental work	18.25
Fuel	141.76
Furniture and fixtures	1,321.79
Freight and express	98.00
Grain, hay, feed, etc.	68.48
Repairs	10.93
School supplies	28.42
Supplies	20.70
Water and Lights	20.40
Groceries	641.47
Salaries	904.42
Insurance	82.75

Taxes	19.54
Live stock	558.67
Reorganized Church, balance	795.69
W. P. Robinson, Manager, cash in hand.....	16.66
Total	$ 17,499.47

CHILDREN'S HOME ACCOUNT.

Assets.
Cash on hand	$ 16.66
Real estate	14,418.77
Implements, harness, etc.....	393.25
Accounts	978.91
Furniture and fixtures, inventory	1,207.64
Groceries, inventory	241.60
Live stock, inventory	761.00
Total	$ 18,017.83
Liabilities.
Due on real estate	$ 3,000.00
Present worth	15,017.83
Total	$ 18,017.83

INDEPENDENCE SANITARIUM.

Assets.
Office supplies	$ 57.99
Groceries	179.64
Bills receivable	21.43
Buildings	45,445.35
Medical and surgical supplies	214.21
Cash	74.14
Furniture and fixtures	4,297.91
Live stock	185.00
Real estate	7,599.72
Accounts receivable	3,619.15
Total	$ 61,694.54
Liabilities.
Accounts payable	$ 847.10
Due general church	3,999.46
Present worth	56,847.98
Total	$ 61,694.54
Present worth January 10, 1911.....	$ 59,099.95
Present worth January 10, 1912.....	56,847.98
Loss	$ 2,251.97

INDEPENDENCE SANITARIUM.

Loss and Gain Account.

Receipts.

From live stock	$ 95.00
From furniture and fixtures	15.43
From interest72
From drugs and dressings	70.90
From offerings	250.49
From discount	1.86
From operating room	575.00
From private rooms	4,998.93
From special nursing	494.96
From stewards miscellaneous items	68.67
From ward rooms	3,182.65
Total	$ 9,754.61
Net loss	2,251.97
Total	$ 12,006.58

Expenditures.

Paid for medical and surgical supplies.....	$ 665.89
Paid for groceries, etc.....	1,013.99
Paid for office supplies	20.40
Paid for administrative expense, sundries	697.99
Paid general expense	3.55
Paid for repairs	383.26
Salaries and wages	5,315.08
Paid for equipment of nurses	1.00
Paid for fuel	302.63
Paid for chicken feed	64.90
Paid for cow feed	305.90
Paid for horse shoeing	3.00
Paid for water	442.52
Paid for insurance	126.00
Paid for meat	327.05
Paid for butter, eggs, dairy products	267.02
Paid for tools, implements	82.50

Special rates	1,974.76
Loss on accounts	9.14
Total	$ 12,006.58

BONHEIM PLACE.

Receipts.

From care and board	$ 260.25
Fuel sold	1.65
Groceries sold	1.90
Offerings	265.90
Account65
From general church funds	2,710.67
Total	$ 3,241.02

Expenditures.

Paid expenses	$ 126.10
Paid for fuel	299.80
Furniture and fixtures	526.50
Groceries	1,035.40
Implements and tools	7.00
Improvements	432.01
Labor	667.59
Lights	22.00
Repairs	75.85
Account75
Supplies	40.49
Balance in hands of matron	7.53
Total	$ 3,241.02

Received and Disbursed by E. L. Kelley, Presiding Bishop.

Receipts.		Barnhart, Lucy D., Mo., t	5 00
Balance on hand December 31, 1910	$8,977 23	Barrett, W. and Ella, Iowa, t.....	2 00
A brother, Okla., t.....	200 00	Barrett, Mrs. George, Mo., acct.....	5 00
A brother, and sister, Ariz., t.....	25 00	Bass, M. E. Mo., t.....	5 00
A friend, Mont., o.....	10 00	Baskett, T. Lee, Kans., t.....	21 00
Friends, Germany, o.....	1 29	Basquin, Emma, Iowa, o.....	5 00
A member, Kans., o.....	5 00	Beaman, Emily, Mo., acct.....	10 00
A sister, Kans., o.....	4 00	Beal, A. M., Mo., acct.....	17 45
A sister, Ariz., o.....	2 00	Becker, Mary, Mich., o.....	26 00
A sister, Ariz., o.....	25 00	Palestine M.....	50 00
A sister, Kans., o.....	5 00	Beebe, Mrs. C. A., Iowa, t.....	100 00
A sister, Mo., t.....	50 00	Beebe, Angelina, Iowa, t.....	6 00
A sister, Cal., t.....	425 00	Biggs, Archie, Maine, o.....	1 00
A sister, Mo., o, Palestine M.....	1 00	Palestine M.....	300 00
A sister, Ill., t.....	10 00	Bell, Georgiana, Kans., dep.....	11 58
Abbott, W. N., Iowa, o.....	6 00	Bergersen, Bert E., Sask., t.....	25 00
Abbott, W. N., Iowa, t.....	2 00	Bird, Charles, Mo., acct.....	2 00
Ackley, Cora, Kans., t.....	2 00	Bieckford, Mrs. M. M., Ill., t.....	134,385 04
Ackley, Helen, Kans., t.....	1 00	Bills receivable	5,593 33
Adamson, Mrs. N. J., Cal., o.....	4.75	Ringer, C. Mo., acct.....	2 50
Albertson, Charles, Kans., t.....	200 00	Billings, Hannah (deceased), Oregon, o.....	1,000 00
Alabama, Mobile District, W. L. Booker, agent	112.00	Bisbee Sunday school, Ariz., b. o.....	3 00
Allen, Susan M., Mo., t.....	14 40	Bishop, J. L., Ill., t.....	10 00
Allen, Blanche, Mo., t.....	10 00	Black, Mrs. E. J., Okla., t.....	10 00
Andrews, W. M., Mo., t.....	10 00	Blawie, George W., and wife, Maine, t.....	26 00
Anderson, A., and wife, Kans., t.....	73 00	Bleil, Bertha M., Mo., t.....	27 30
Anderson, Emma L., Sask. o.....	1 00	Boise Branch, Idaho, o.....	6 20
Anderson, Anna C., Iowa, o.....	5 00	Bootman, W. P., Mont., o.....	20 00
Anderson, William, Pa., t.....	2 50	Bond, William S., Mo., o.....	10 00
Anker, Lena, Cal., dep.....	70 00	Bond, Mrs. M. H., Mo., t.....	8 00
Ansley, J. B., Kans., t.....	7 65	Bonheim Place	1,885 45
Anthony, Joana, Pa., t.....	10 00	Book of Mormon, t f.....	3 35
Arnold, F. M., and wife, Texas, t.....	10 00	Boyd, Mary A., Idaho, t.....	2 00
Armstrong, A. V., and Alice, Kans., t.....	5 00	Rooker Estate	900 00
Auld, William, and Sarah J., Kans., t.....	2 00	Bozarth, John and Edith, Cal., t.....	2 00
Awalt, Mrs. F. E., Cal., o.....	10 00	Boswell, J. J. and R. A., Kans., t.....	12 25
Bailey, George, Texas, o.....	2 00	Brackburry, E. Mo., t.....	1 00
Bailey, Jessie, Minn., t.....	75	Bradford, Mrs. L. A., Ill., t.....	1 45
Bailey, George, Mo., t.....	1 00	Branister, Irmie and M., Aus., o Palestine M.....	9 74
Baird, Ella, Mich., o.....	10 00	Brewster, Mary S., W. Va., acct.....	25 00
Baird, Ella, Mich., acct.....	55.00	Brown, Esther P., Mo., t.....	2 00
Baker, C. W., and wife, Mo., t.....	62 00	Brown, H. E., Mo., t.....	25 65
Balfour, Mary, Ohio, o.....	50	Brown, M. R., and wife, Ill., t.....	25 00
Baldwin, J. N., N. Y. and Pa., t.....	30 50	Brown, Mrs. M., Mo., acct.....	50 00
Baldwin, J. N., Pa., o.....	18 00	Brown, Mrs. R. S., Mo., t.....	1 00
Barracough, E. L., Okla. and Kans., e.....	6 80	Brown, Dorothy, Colo., o.....	6 50
Barracough, E. L., and Elizabeth, Okla., and Kans., s.....	8 00	Buchanan, Mrs. J. R., Cal., o.....	175 00
Bannester, James, Ont., t.....	25 00	Rullard, W. D., Missouri, t.....	2 00
Bannester, Walter, Ont., t.....	5 00	Burkett, Mrs. Parthelia A., Ill., t.....	4 00
Barksdale, S. H., Neb., o.....	100 00	Mo., t.....	10 00
Barksdale, William, Mo., t.....	5 00	Button, Sr. H. A., N. Y., t.....	5 00
Barto, H. L., Mo., t.....	5 00	Butts, Susan I., S. D., o.....	1 00
Bartholomew, W. L., Mo., dep.....	5 75	Cado, J. L., and wife, Nebr., t.....	12 50
Bartholomew, W. H., Mo., acct.....	31 00

California, Northern District, C. A. Parkin,
bishop3,250 00
California, Southern District, Fred Adam, agent. 538 70
Colvin, A. B., Mo., o10 00
Campbell, George, and wife,
Ont., t100 00
Campbell, J. G., Ont. t23 00
Campbell, H. G., and Martha, Mich., t50 60
Canada, R. C. Evans,
bishop7,501 00
Camey, Albert, and wife,
Kans., o2 00
Carson, C. D., Mo., t5 00
Case, Frank, Nebr., c5 00
Case, James M., Nebr., t71 00
Case, Martha M., Io., t15 00
Castell, Sr. Joshua, Cal., o,
Palestine M., t1 00
Catron, J. W., Mont., t40 00
Catron, A. E., Mont., t40 00
Central Church, Kansas
City, Mo.,1,831 01
Chapman, John, Iowa, t53 00
Christy, Mrs. E. A., Colo., t10 80
Chapman, M. G., Nebr., t61 25
Chapman, Mrs. D. L., Mo., t30 00
Chapman, J., Cal., t15 00
Chester, J., Cal., o25 00
Chapman, M. G., Nebr., o8 75
Chappelle, Mrs. L. L.,
B. C., t f50
Chase, A. M., Utah, t12 00
Christmas offerings7,500 25
Children's Home796 19
Chiles, C. N., Iowa, t17 50
Church, Charles P., Iowa, t15 42
Church buildings2 50
Clark, Ardelia M., Mass., t120 00
Clark, Charles F., Eng., t3 00
Clevenger, D. C., Okla., t3 00
Clevenger, Mary J., Ia., t3 00
Cline, Albert, and wife,
Mich., Orpha, Kans., t100 00
Cline, Mrs. Daniel, Colo., t5 00
Coddington, Mrs. J. L.,
Mich., t42 50
Constance, Milbert, Mo., t1 19
Constance, Essie, Mo., t1 04
Constance, Ida, Mo., t56 30
Cooper, Mrs. M. A., Mo., t63 30
Cook, Laura I., Md., t2 00
Cook, Laura I., Md., o1 00
Coonce, Emma, Ill., o25
Coonce, Nettie, Ill., o10 00
Corbett, William, Nebr., t1 00
Cotterell, F. H., Mo., t10 45
Cox, Andrew J., Iowa, t100 00
Crabb, J. C., Wash., t1 85
Crandall, L. F., Wash., t25 00
Creese, Jane F., Colo., c5 16
Crick, J. V., Colo., t9 00
Crick, J. V., Colo., t500 00
Crick, William, Mo., t500 00
Crowson, Mrs. E. A. (deceased), Ill., o3 00
Curtis, Frank, Kansas, t7 50
Curtis, H. M. and Maude
O., Mo., t542 98
Curtis, J. F., Mo., acct10 00
Curry, W. J., Ill., t7 00
Curry, W. G., Ill., t15
Curry, Millard, Ill., t2 50
Curtis, Myrtle, Kans., t10 00
Curtis, Lillian, Kans., t10 00
Curtis, J. A., Mo., t201 80
Curtis, Harrison M. and Maud S., Mo., t10 00
Cushman, S. F., Mass., t7 20
A friend, Mass., dep64 80
Drier, Ferdinand, Wash., o2 00
Dake, Sarah A., Mo., acct50 00
Dale, O. R., and wife,
Okla., t5 00
Daniels, H. M., Ark., t1 00
Daniels, Henry, N. Y., a ret5 00
Danish Book of Mormon1 20
Dancer, Alice P., Iowa, t20 00
Daries, John, Mo., o100 00
Daries, John, Mo., t200 00
Davies, Mrs. W. R., Cal., o4 75
Davis, W. H. and H. E.,
Ark., t3 00
Davis, Eugene A., Mo., acct25 00
Davis, Chester, Kans., t3 45
Davis, A. E., Kans., t38 20
Davis, M., Mo., acct5 00
Davis, Charles, and wife,
Kans., t25 00
Davis, T. B., Mo., t10 00
Deards, Mrs. C. H., Nebr., o5 00
Deards, Rose, Nebr., t25 00
Dennis, Ruth K., Ill., t1 00
Dennis, Angelina L., Mo., dep20 00
Derry, Charles, Iowa, t10 88

Des Moines Religio Society,
Iowa, t2 00
DeTray, George, Mo., acct. 20 00
Deuel, Caroline, Kans., o3 00
Dice, B. J., Mo., t10 00
Dick, Mrs. M. A., t5 00
Disorganized Sunday school,
Nev., o6 25
Dingle, Mrs. O. B., Mo., t5 00
Dittmore, W. H., Kans., t700 00
Dixon, Warren, Okla., t15 50
Doby, W. A., Mo., o30 00
Drury, John H., Mo., dep20 00
Dubose, J. W., Mo., dep226 00
Duffield, Margaret J.,
Okla., t5 00
Duncan, C. N., Wash., t10 00
Durfield, Margaret (deceased), Ill., t100 00
Duvic, Eva E., Colo., o1 00
Edson, C. F. and M. L.,
Wn., o10 00
Edwards, R. L., Pa., t5 00
Edwards, Evelyn, B. C., t10 00
Ekman, Andrew, Ill., o15 00
Eklund, Hilda, Mo., t3 00
Elders' family expense150 00
Elders' expense, ret98 16
Elmer, Mrs. E. A., Oreg., t100 00
Emmett, John, Mo., t50 00
Ewing, L. O. and wife,
Ill., t10 00
Emmons, Mrs. A. M., S.
Dak., t5 00
Engstrom, Annie Harris,
Kans., o1 00
Engstam, Minnie, Kans., o1 00
Ensign Publishing House, 148 45
Entrekin, George W., and family, Miss., t1 00
Etzenhouser, Rudolph, exploration fund100 00
Evan, Doctor Lloyd, Ariz., t60 00
Ewing, A. J., Kans., o2 00
Expense Bishop's office1 00
Expense, General10 00
Faircloth, Mrs. M. J.,
Mass., dep25 00
Faler, O. C., Mo., t41 02
Farmer, Richard, estate,
Inquest9 60
Farley, Mrs. John, Ariz., t1 00
Farrar, E. B., Cal., o1 00
Palestine M., t1 00
Farr, Mrs. F. B., Mo., acct40 00
Fairbanks, Ralph, Mo., t2 00
Fairbanks, Roy, Mo., t5 00
Fairbanks, Lizzie, Mo., t5 00
Fender, Fred E., Mo., t50 00
Ferrill, Miss A. E., Miss., t3 75
Ferrill, A. B., Miss., o7 05
Ferrill, A. B., Miss., t7 05
Ferrill, H. F., Miss., o2 00
Ferrill, H. F., Miss., t2 00
Ferry family, Miss., t10 75
Ferris, E. G., Cal., t7 50
Fields, Mrs. S. H., ret f11 00
Fisher, W. T., and wife,
Okla., t20 00
Fisk, Mary, Mo., t50
Flinn, Hulda, Mo., t2 50
Florida District, E. N.
McCall, agent20 00
Ford, Mrs. Edmond, Mo., t10 00
Poster, William, and family,
Wash., t7 00
Francard, Charles R.,
Kans., t10 00
Frederick, Catherine, W.
Va., o13 10
Frederick, Catherine, W.
Va., t13 00
Frederick, J. C., and wife
V., Va., t22 50
Frew, Agnes, Nebr., o5 00
Friends, Kans., o5 00
Froyd, William, and wife,
Va., o30 00
Fuller, F. M., La., t50
Fuller, W. I., La., t50
Gardner, Otis and Elsie
M., Nebr., t20 00
Gardner, Elva, Ill., t5 00
Garrett, E. H., Mo., t100 00
Garrett, M. M., Minn., o1 50
Gault, Jane, Nev., t175 00
Gault, Jane, Nev., o10 00
Gault, Jane, Nev., t f1 50
Gaulter, William, Mo., acct10 00
Gaw, John, and wife,
Sask., t150 00
Gee, Sarah, Mo., t5 00
Geisch, Louise, Mo., t55 00
General Sunday School Association500 00
Gil, Mrs. E. A., Idaho, t50
Gillespie, John, and wife,
Mo., t2 82
Gillespie, John, Mo., acct10 00
Glidden, Mrs. Volney,
Ind., o1 00

Glidden, Mrs. Volney,
Ind., o1 00
Glidden, Mrs. Volney,
Ind., dep20 00
Godfrey, Bluchell and Gift,
Nebr., t5 00
Godfrey, A. B. and C. M.,
Nebr., t25 00
Godfrey, W. F., Nebr., t5 00
Gold, Harvey E., Nebr., o3 00
Goldie, Henry, Ariz., t40 00
Goodin, Myrtle, Mo., t12 00
Goock, A. M., Okla., t36 75
Goodale, O. L. and Ella,
Mo., t37 53
Goodale, Mrs. O. L., Mo., t25 00
Goodale, Mary Ella, Mo., dep45 39
Graceland College614 68
Graybeal, Mrs. E. V.,
Mont., t10 00
Graybeal, Mrs. E. V.,
Mont., o3 50
Griffin, J. T. and Annie L., Ky., t10 00
Grenawalt, W. A., Iowa,
acct4 00
Greer, Matilda, Mich., t25
Greer, Bertha A., Iowa, o13 75
Green, Henry, Kans., bequest200 00
Green, Mary R., Mo., t5 00
Guinand, C. B., Mo., t2 50
Gunton, H. M., Kans., t10 00
Gunsley, J. F., Mo., acct30 00
Gurwell, C. A., Mo., dep321 62
Halley, Jesse A., Mo., t116 55
Hailey, Susie A., Mo., t11 25
Hale, Jacob F., Mo., t55 00
Hale, Katie L., Nebr., t1 93
Hall, G. B., Cal., t1 00
Hammond, Julia, Mich., c30 00
Hammond, Julia, Mich., s.159 21
Hammond, E. G., W. Va., t6 50
Hammer, Minerva A.,
Mo., t35 00
Hamil, Margaret E., Colo., c3 00
Hamil, Margaret E., Colo., t5 00
Hammer, William N., Ky., t50
Harder, H. R., Okla., acct5 00
Harding, Belle, Kans., o5 70
Hartman, Lottie J., Mo., t10 00
Hartshorn, S. B., Iowa, t500 00
Harcourt, Lovina, Mo., t3 00
Harcourt, Lovina, Mo., acct7 00
Harpe, Charles E., e. ret10 00
Harlow, B. E. and Olive,
Ark., t5 00
Harpold, Martha J., W.
Va., t2 00
Harpster, Jacob, Minn., t50 00
Harper, Mrs. D. A., Tex., t3 00
Harper, Mrs. D. A., Tex., o50
Hawkins, M. J., Nev., t10 00
Hawkins, William, Mo., acct15 00
Hawkins, Alma, Kans., dep182 00
Hawley, A. B., Mo., t20 00
Hawks, H. T. and E. H.,
Minn., t500 00
Head, Mrs. M. H., Kans., t6 00
Heavener, Melvina, Ill., dep5 00
Heavener, Melvina, Ill., t2 50
Herald Publishing House 1,789 11
Hethcoat, James M., Tenn., t28 00
Hilliard, G. H., counselor482 26
Hilliard, G. H., Mo., acct478 00
Hillman, J. T., Kans., t90 00
Hillman, Mrs. J. T., Kans., t10 00
Hillman, Reuben, Kans., t2 00
Hillman, Leroy, Kans., t2 00
Hill, Selena, Mo., acct6 00
Hills, Mrs. Sarah A., Mo., t25 00
Hocknell, W. H. and wife,
Mich., t10 00
Hodges, W. C. and wife,
Iowa, t9,000 00
Hodgins, John, and wife,
Mich., t10 00
Hoffman, Sarah A., Idaho, t30 00
Hoffman, Jay, Kans., t7 67
Hook, Sadie, Cal., t50 00
Holcomb, O. B., Mo., t50 00
Holmes, Zola, Nebr., t5 00
Holloway, L. G., Io., t25 00
Hopkins, Carl V. and Minnie, Kans., t10 00
Horton, M. E. B. C., t50
Horton, Abbie A., Mo., o75
Horr, Marion, and wife,
Io., t10 00
Howe, J. C., and wife,
Nebr., dep500 00
Howe, J. H., Wis., t50 00
Howery, C. D., S. D., t14 00
Hughes, Mrs. M. A., Io., t60
Hunter, Lora, Ont., t29 50
Hutchins, C. N., Nebr., t400 00
Hysatt, Robert G., and wife, t20 00
Hyde, Malinda J., Ill., t5 00
Idaho, Northern District,
Myron J. Durfee, agent, 100 00

Illinois, Northeastern District, John Migdorden, agent300 00
Illinois, Nauvoo District,
George P. Lambert, bp. 3,118 00
Illinois, Northeastern District, James H. Kutz, agt. 500 00
Illinois, Kewanee District,
Charles L. Holmas, agt. 380 01
Illinois, Southern District,
F. M. Davis, agent261 19
Independence Church87 25
Independence Shale Brick
Plant1,791 05
Independence Sash, Door and Lumber Co29 00
Independence Planing Mill and Supply Co100 00
Indiana, Southern District,
John Zahnd, agent200 00
Inman, J. N., Mo., t334 40
Inman, Loul, Allen, Mo., t5 00
Insurance2 20
Iowa, Gallands Grove District, C. J. Hunt, bp. 1,090 40
Iowa, Little Sioux District,
Alma M. Pyrand, agt. 1,650 00
Iowa, Fremont District, Lorena Leeka, agt.7,136 21
Iowa, Des Moines District,
Wardell Christy, agt.500 00
Iowa, Pottawattamie District, J. A. Hansen, agt. 1,340 00
Iowa, Edmon District,
John Heide, agent200 00
Interest549 76
Irving, Thomas, Ont., be-quest57 01
Isaacs, Mrs. M. A., Mo., o20 00
Jack, J. A., New York, t25 00
James, Orville, Okla., o50 00
Jeffries, Elizabeth, W. Va., t2 57
Jenkins, Ann, Oreg., o5 00
Jenkins, Thomas, Ida., t9 75
Jeppeson, Amanda, S. D., t20 50
Johnson, May, Minn., t65 00
Johnson, Leander, and wife, Nova Scotia, o75
Johnson, C. H., Mo., t18 84
Jones, J. R., and wife,
Mo., t23 00
Jones, Aseneth, Ill., t7 00
Kaiser, Augustus, Germany, t99
Kaiser, F. W., and wife,
Germany, t1 99
Kaler, John, Mo., o1 60
Keck, W. M., Ill., t25 00
Keck, J. C., N. D., t2 41
Keekor, Mrs. E. M., Nebr., t100 00
Kelley, E. L., Mo., acct700 00
Kelley, Jeannette V., Mo., t17 10
Kelley, Mary, Iowa, acct10 00
Kelley, Jas. M., Mo., dep500 00
Kelley, Mrs. C. B., Mo., t2 20
Kelley, Audencia, Iowa, t5 00
Kelsall, M. M., Mo., t20 40
Kemp, James, Colo., c5 00
Kinney, Inez, Iowa, o4 00
Kennedy, Emma B., Mo.,
acct59 25
Kennedy, J. M., W. Va., t5 00
Kennedy, D. J., and wife,
Mo., t24 00
Kennicut, Vada, Nebr., t6 72
Kepley, W. W., Mo., t4 00
Ketchum, George R., Mo., t20 00
Kinney, John, Nebr., t25 00
Keland Hotel50 00
Kirtland Home780 00
Knapp, Mrs. M. C., Nebr., t10 00
Knisley, John L. (deceased), Ont., t261 00
Knisley, Alvin, Mo., acct26 00
Korf, Lee, Colo., t200 00
Koupal, J. B., Nebr., t25 00
Koupal, Mrs. J. B., Nebr., t13 20
Krahl, D. J., Mo., acct11,200 50
Krahl, G. Frances, Mo., t1 50
Krahl, A. Kenneth, Mo., t56
Krahl, David G., Mo., t1 00
Krahl, D. J., and Grace,
Mo., t10 00
LaChapelle, Mrs. M. S. D., o10 00
Lade, M., Wash., t200 00
Ladies' Aid Society,
Oreg., o9 00
Ladies' Aid Society, Ariz., t1 10
Lake, Mrs. C. H., Mo., t22 60
Lamkin, Clarence H. and Clara B., Colo., t10 00
Lambert, E. W., Ohio, t1 00
Lambert, Edwin E. and Ada, Ohio, t2 00
Lambert, D. J., Ohio, t5 00
Lambert, Mary J., Kans., t1 00
Lanning, Joel, Kans., t10 00
Lancaster, L. M., t25 00
Lawson, Martin, Idaho, t40 00
Lawrence, Hannah, Sweden, o11 50
Lamons, L., Okla., t10 00
Layland, Rose B., Idaho, t3 60

Lear, Joseph, Ont., t. 1 10
 Leach, Mrs. N. A., Texas, t . 5 00
 Leach, C. O., Mo., t. 500 00
 Lepsky, Sr., Germany, t. 60
 Lewis, L. H., N. Y., o 10 00
 Lewis, Jennie H., Mo., o 2 00
 Lewis, J. P., Okla., t. 14 00
 Lewis, C. G., Mo., c. 14 72
 Lewis, J. H., Okla., t. 5 00
 Ledsworth, Enoch, Mich., t . 3 00
 Ledsworth, Charles G., and wife, Mich., t. 10 00
 Ledsworth, Martha E., Mich., t. 2 00
 Leibold, Robert, and wife, Mont., t. 15 00
 Leibner, Robert, and wife, Germany, t. 41
 Lichte, Minnie, Nebr., o 3 50
 Lindsey, C. W., Mont., o . 25 00
 Lippe, John, and wife, Germany, t. 40
 Liddy, Ralph W., P. I., t. 12 00
 Lofy, B. C. and Cora M., Mo., t. 40 00
 Lofy, Frank, and wife, Mo., o 10 00
 Long, W. M., Ala., t. 2 00
 Love, Christina, Kans., t. . . . 5 00
 Loveland, Hannah, Io., dep. 700 00
 Logan, Mrs. H. L., Okla., t 30 00
 Lucas, B. T., Kans., t. 2 00
 Luff, Alma, Mo., acct., 15 00
 Lundquist, Ellen, Mo., dep. 13 00
 Lundquist, Emma Bleanor, Mo., dep. 20 00
 Lundquist, Signa A., Mo., t 10 40
 Mader, Jay T., Mo., t. 15 00
 Madison, Lena, Mo., c. 130 00
 Madison, Lena, Mo., t. 36 00
 Madison, Lena, Mo., o 50 00
 Madison, Minnie, Mo., t. 3 00
 Mahoney, Margaret, Ida., t 20 00
 Mahoney, Mrs. M. A., Ida., o 25 00
 Maitland, William and Carrie E., Io., t. 10 00
 Maine, Eastern District, J. A. Koehler, agent. . . 175 00
 Maluch, Augustus, Germany, o 2 28
 Maloney, W. S., Kans., t. 5 00
 Manley, John W. and Lillie, Mo., acct. 10 00
 Mangschutz Sunday school, Germany, t. 1 99
 Marsh, Joseph and Hattie, Nebr., t. 10 00
 Martin, T. S., Okla., o 80 00
 Martin, Marie, Ark., t. 3 40
 Martin, T. S., Okla., t. 325 00
 Martin, W. F., Ark., t. 50 00
 Martin, Lucinda, Ind., t. 5 00
 Mason, B. L., Wis., o 2 00
 Mason, Mrs. O. B., Ohio, o 25 00
 Mash, John, Mo., t. 10 30
 Massachusetts District, M. C. Fisher, bishop 3 93
 Marsh, Joseph and Hattie, Nev., o, Q. of Twelve. . 24 00
 Marsh, Joseph and Hattie, Nev., t. 10 00
 Matfiall, A. D., Mo., t. 5 00
 Matthews, Annie, Mo., t. 19 25
 Matthews, S. N., Mo., t. 1 50
 May, Nephil, and wife, Mo., t 25 00
 May, Alvira, Mo., t. 25 00
 May, Mrs. R., Mo., o 25 00
 May, R., Mo., acct. 06
 Merrill, Charles and Lessie, Kans., t. 20 29
 Merrick, Mrs. L. J., Nebr., o, Palestine M. 1 00
 Messenger, W. E., and wife, Mo., t. 50 00
 Metcalf, J. W., and wife, t. 3 00
 Mexico Mission 20 00
 Mrs. Emma, Wash., o 50 00
 Michigan, Eastern District, W. F. Smith, agent. . 1,100 00
 Michigan, Central District, George W. Burt, agent. . 200 00
 Michigan, Southern and Northern Indiana District, Samuel Stroh, agent. 400 00
 Miller, O. R., Ohio, t. 1 00
 Miller, James A., Mo., t. 5 00
 Miller, Susan, Ill., t. 1 50
 Miller, Rebecca E., Iowa, temple, t. 60 00
 Minor, Mrs. C. A., Ore., t 5 00
 Minor, Ellis R., Ore., t. 10 00
 Minton, G. F., Mo., acct., 12 00
 Mink, John M., Mo., t. 6 00
 Minthorn, Kozia (deceased), Iowa, 54
 Minnesota, Leon A. Gould, agent. 175 00
 Mitchell, Flossie 5 00
 Missouri, Independence Stake, R. May, bishop. 1,354 03

Missouri, Far West District Charles F. Faul, agent. 250 00
 Missouri, Saint Louis District, Russell Archibald, agent. 1,000 00
 Moffit, Mrs. George, N. D., o 5 00
 Mohr, Peter, Wis., o 6 00
 Montana District, Thomas Reese, agent 8,113 00
 Montgomery, Eljah, W. Va., t 10 00
 Mannerling, W. H., ret. f., 20 00
 Montgomery, Belle, Ark., t 11 00
 Monroe, Lydia, Ida., c. 3 50
 Monroe, N. R., Mo., acct., 30 00
 Monroe, Lydia, Ida., t. 24 00
 Monroe, I. A., Iowa, t. 100 00
 Morgan, W. T., Cal., t. 3 00
 Morgan, D. J., Mo., t. 9 00
 Morgan, D. J., Mo., o 3 00
 Moore, A. R., and wife, Texas, t. 5 00
 Moore, John H., Mich., t. 5 00
 Moore, L., S. D., t. 50 00
 Mount, Jessie, Nebr., t. 10 00
 Morrison, Daisy, Mo., t. 20 00
 Munroe, Robert, and Agnes, Ill., t. 6 00
 Mullin, W. B., Mo., t. 61 75
 Murdock, Sarah, Ore., t. 6 00
 Myers, A. S., and wife, Ark., o 2 00
 McBride, Chris, Ont., t. 10 00
 McClenahan, Mary L., Io., o 25 00
 McCulley, Nellie I., Ore., t 10 00
 McDonald, Frances, Mich., o 35
 McDonald, Grace, Mich., o 20
 McDonald, Allen, Mich., o . 20
 McDonald, Earl, Mich., o . . 20
 McDonald, Guy, Mich., o . . 20
 McDonald, Ray, Mich., o . . 10
 McDonald, Roy, Mich., t. . . . 25
 McDonald, N. R., Mich., t. . . . 10
 McDonald, Mrs. N. T., Mich., o 25
 McDonald, Lester, Io., dep. 491 84
 McDonald, Lester, Io., t. . . 55 24
 McGee, T. L., Okla., t. 12 68
 McGlochin, W. O., Colo., t 25 00
 McKenzie, Mrs. A., Mich., o 2 00
 McKernan, Mrs. Francis, Mich., t. 70
 McKernan, A., Mich., temple f 1 00
 McKiernan, James, Io., t . 8 21
 McKittick, Rachel, Tex., t 55 00
 McLain, Samuel E., Kans., t 20 00
 McMurdo, William, Ont., t 591 10
 McVey, C. W., and wife, Neal, Grace, Mo., t. 1 50
 Nebraska, Northern District, H. S. Lytle, agent. 150 00
 Nebraska, Southern District, C. H. Porter, agent 150 00
 Nelson, William T., Mo., t. 100 00
 Nelson, William, Pa., t. 20 00
 Nelson, John E., Minn., o . . . 5 00
 Nelson, D. W., Mich., t. 3 00
 Nelson, William, Ont., t. 20 00
 Nelson, William, Ont., o 10 00
 Nesbitt, George W., Mo., t 40 00
 Newcomb, Mrs. T. A., Mo., t. 110 00
 Newcomb, Mrs. T. A., Mo., dep. 53 00
 Newton, Mrs. C. J., Cal., t 18 00
 Newton, Mrs. H. B., Mich., t. 50 00
 Newkirk, R. E., Mo., acct 50 00
 New York, Western District, F. J. Updyke, agt. 454 02
 New York and Philadelphia District, John Zimmermann, bishop 1,030 00
 Nevada District, D. R. Jones, agent. 20 00
 Nicol, J. E., Mo., t. 2 24
 Norris, W. R., and wife, Mo., t. 100 00
 North Branch, Conn., t f 1 75
 North Dakota District, J. B. Wildermuth, agt. 500 00
 Nowak, Robert, and wife, Germany, t. 99
 Nova Scotia District, Lois Johnson, agent. 64 60
 Oatley, R. L., Cal., t. 5 00
 Ode, Frederick, Ida., t. 200 00
 O'Dell, W. R., Mo., t. 10 00
 Ohio, Kirland and Pittsburg districts, J. A. Becker, bishop 43 00
 Oklahoma, Western District, Hubert C. G. agent 83 00
 Oldham, C. C., Mo., acct. 25 00
 Oliver, Sr. E., Io., t. 2 50
 Oliver, Sr. E., Io., o 50
 Oliver Sunday school, Ariz., h. o. 3 30
 Oregon, Southwestern District, William Smith, agent. 250 00
 Page, J. C., Kans., t. 400 00

Page, B. E., Mo., t. 5 25
 Page, B. E., Mo., t. 205 00
 Paisgrove, D. L., Io., dep. 3 81
 Pattison, W. D. C., Mo., t 5 00
 Patrick, Ellen, Mo., t. 50
 Payne, Frank, Nebr., t. 4 00
 Payne, Mrs. A. M., Okla., t 15 00
 Peasley, Mary A., Io., o Palestine M. 5 00
 Pell, H. J., Nebr., t. 50 00
 Pender, W. S., Mexico, acct. 55 00
 Perigo, William T., Ont., t 5 00
 Peers, Katie, Ore., b. o. . . . 1 00
 Peers, Katie, Ore., o 5 00
 Phelps, Emma, Mo., t. 5 00
 Phillips, Jessie, Mo., t. 5 00
 Pickle, Isabel C., Wis., t. 12 00
 Pickering, W. R., Mo., t 4,000 00
 Pickering Aid Society, Mich., o 10 00
 Plain, Christopher, Mo., acct. 97 24
 Pleasant, R. F., Wash., t. . . . 5 00
 Post, J. E., and wife, Texas, t. 22 00
 Post, Bexford, Texas, t. 2 75
 Post, Mrs. Adlene, Texas, o 1 00
 Powers, Joel H., temple fund 20 00
 Port Elgin Sunday school, Ont., o 8 00
 Potter, S., Mo., t. 52 00
 Preston, C. K., Mo., t. 450 70
 Price, Gomer MacInn, Mo., t 80 00
 Price, Daisy B., Nev., t. 80 00
 Privat, George F., Okla., t 6 50
 Private, Fritz, Okla., o 2 00
 Propst, Florence, Ore., t. . . . 5 00
 Propst, Otis W., Ore., t. . . . 66 00
 Propst, O. W., and wife, Ore., t. 9 00
 Pyle, Esther, acct. 300 00
 Radnall, H. J., Mo., t. 20 00
 Ralstin, Sr. N. L., Mo., tkgv., o 1 00
 Randall, Newton J., Mo., s 1 00
 Ransom, Emma E., Tex., o 20 65
 Ransom, Samuel H. 1 30
 Rawlins, C. H., and wife, Nebr., o 10 00
 Ray, Edith D., Mo., t. 10 00
 Raymond, Mary H., Mont., c 60 00
 Real estate contracts 5,130 60
 Real estate 15,658 15
 Reams, Lucy I. and I. C., Io., t. 20 00
 Redfield, Lenora, Mo., dep. 66 68
 Redfield, Charles H., Kans., t. 15 00
 Redfield, Earl N., Kans., t 10 00
 Reese, David T., Mo., t. 7 00
 Riggie, Mrs. James, Ala., t 1 00
 Rehr, Annie, Germany, t. 1 39
 Reimann, Gottlieb, and wife, Germany, t. 99
 Reinkenbach, Annie P., Mo., t. 1 00
 Remley, Joseph, Ill., t. 46 00
 Rent 1,295 58
 Rever, H. E., Isle of Pines, t 10 00
 Rever, H. E., Isle of Pines, o 10 00
 o, Palestine M. 70 00
 Reyner, G. E., Mo., t. 5 00
 Richardson, James, Cal., t 22
 Richards, Lillie M., Nebr., t 64 00
 Riddolls, A., Mo., acct. 10 00
 Riggs, Hattie, Mo., t. 25 00
 Riggles, Minnie, Ala., t. 4 00
 Riggie, Mrs. J. E., Ala., t. . . . 4 00
 Riley, Mrs. D. S., Tex., t. . . . 1 00
 Roach, Mrs. G. W., Mo., t. . . . 3 00
 Roberts, H. B., and wife, Mo., tkgv., o 1 00
 Roberts, Emma Myers, Wash., o 5 00
 Roberts, Emma Myers, Wash., dep. 25 00
 Robinson, Sadie M., Mo., t 7 79
 Robinson, Sadie M., Mo., dep. 120 00
 Robinson, W. P., and wife, Io., t. 10 00
 Robinson, S. B., Io., t. 55 00
 Robinson, J. A., and wife, Kans., t. 2 00
 Robinson, Saloma, Kans., t 3 00
 Rodger, Dr. G. W., Mo., t. . . . 40 00
 Rodger, Zalde M., Mo., t. . . . 46 00
 Rodger, Zalde M., Mo., s. . . . 20 00
 Rodger, Zalde M., Mo., o 25 00
 Rodger, Zalde M., Mo., o 3 00
 Rodger, Julia M., Mich., t. . . . 10 00
 Rodgers, William G., Iowa, acct. 10 00
 Rogers, S. A., Mo., acct. 50
 Rogers, O. D., Ill., t. 24 00
 Rogers, Mrs. S., Ill., t. 50 00
 Rogers, Walter, and wife, Mich., t. 50 00
 Ruon, Robert, Miss., t. 7 50
 Russell, R. C., Ont., c. 5 00

Russell, F. A., Colo., t. 12 84
 Russett, H. J., Mo., t. 54 90
 Saints' and Liberty Homes 10,377 04
 Sale, Mrs. Ed., Neb., t. 2 00
 Sandhacha Banner 75
 Sanders, Ella, Io., t. 3 00
 Sanitarium 2,130 24
 San Jose Branch, Cal., dep. 315 00
 Sanns, Mary, Ill., t. 7 00
 Sappenfeld, Delbert O., N. Y., t. 10 00
 Sargent, Ellen I., Mo., dep. 195 87
 Saskatchewan District, J. A. Beckman, agent. . . 1,100 00
 Savage, Mrs. Eliza A., Kans., t. 5 00
 Schaefer, George H., N. Y., t 50 00
 Schmitt, Katherine, Mo., s 40 00
 Schmitt, Katherine, Mo., t. . . . 5 05
 Schreier, Mrs. E., Kans., t 9 00
 Schreier, Mrs. Fred, Tex., t 2 25
 Scheidecker, Sarah, Ill., dep. 180 00
 Scofield, Pearl, Nebr., o 2 00
 Scott, H. A., Nebr., acct., 10 00
 Scranton Branch, Kans., t f 1 00
 Seaton, Cora, Mo., t. 1 00
 Second Quorum of Elders, o 24 00
 Secrest, M. W. and R. M., Tex., t. 5 00
 Sedoris, O. E., Mo., t. 30 00
 Sedoris, Mrs. H., Mo., acct. 5 00
 Sedoris, Harriett C., Mo., t 10 00
 Self, R. O., Mo., acct., 1,000 00
 Self, R. O. and Amelia, Mo., c. 800 00
 Shaw, Mrs. E. A., t. 5 00
 Shaw, Mrs. W. D., Ida., t. . . . 10 00
 Shell, G. H., Ala., t. 1 50
 Sheehy, G. H. and Josephine, Ala., t. 2 00
 Shirik, D. D., Mo., t. 1 90
 Shively, Mrs. S. I., Ida., t 5 00
 Short, Julia R., Cal., o 5 00
 Shower, J. D., Mo., t. 10 00
 Sires, Mrs. N. E., Mo., t. . . . 50
 Sires, Mrs. Nancy E., Mo., acct. 30 00
 Simmons, Jesse M., Okla., s 5 00
 Skinner, W. O., Mo., t. 10 00
 Skinner, George H., Mich., o, Palestine M. 5 05
 Skinner, Ira, Tex., t. 15 80
 Slover, Julia F., Mo., t. 2 00
 Smith, F. C., Mo., t. 6 00
 Smith, Edna M., Mich., t 10 50
 Smith, John, Nev., t. 50 00
 Smith, Nettie I. Heavener, Io., t. 10 00
 Smith, A., Nebr., t. 27 50
 Smith, Robert and Nettie I., Io., t. 117 50
 Smith, Joseph, Mo., e ret. . . . 60
 Smith, Joseph, Mo., t. 8 07
 Smith, Alvin, Mo., s. 5 00
 Smith, W. L. and Olive L., Mich., t. 17 27
 Smith, W. L. and Olive L., Mich., t. 33 47
 Smith, Annie E., Cal., t. 5 00
 Smolney, John, and wife, Germany, t. 1 99
 Snead, May, Mo., t. 3 50
 Smolney, Robert, and wife, Germany, t. 2 78
 Smolney, Sr., sen., Ger., t. . . . 1 99
 Snead, May, Mo., dep. 41 50
 Snider, J. L. and Della, Okla., t. 20 00
 Snoblen, Mrs. David, Ont., o South Dakota District, Edward Rannie, agt. . . 63 44
 South Dakota District, E. B. Willard, agt. 5 00
 Sparling, William S. D., t 59 32
 Sparling, Henry, Mo., t. 47 75
 Spangler, Mrs. D. O., Kans., acct. 20 00
 Spaum, Mrs. M. J., Mo., dep. 150 00
 Spencer, Mrs., H. B., Okla., t 5 00
 Sparling, James, and wife, Germany 60
 Sprague, Jennie, Nev., t. . . . 18 00
 Spurlock, C. J., Mo., t. 12 25
 Standefer, W. R., Tex., t. 4 00
 Stasiak, Rosolin, Ger., t. . . . 4 20
 Stephenson, Jennie, Io., t. . . . 5 00
 Starburt, Stella, Ind., t. 1 00
 Steele, Mrs. H. M., Mo., t. . . . 1 00
 Steele, W. R., and wife, Mo., t. 8 00
 Steamship agency 76 85
 Stitt, D. B., Ore., t. 25 00
 Stover, Jessie C., Mo., t. 5 00
 Stoddard, Will A., and family, Nebr., t. 35 00
 Stoddard, Will A., and family, Nebr., o 2 00
 Stone, Frank, Mo., t. 85 31

Table with multiple columns listing names, titles, and numerical values. Includes entries for individuals like Haden, W. E., and organizations like Oklahoma, Central and Eastern Districts.

Table listing various tracts and agents with their respective amounts. Includes entries like 'Tracts, Condit, S. D., Ida.', 'Tracts, Curtis, J. D., Colo.', and 'Tracts, Counts, R. H., Mo.'.

TABULATED REPORT OF LOCAL BISHOPS AND AGENTS FOR THE YEAR 1911.

Main tabulated report table with columns: Districts, Local Bishops and Agents, Received, Received, Received, Paid, Paid, Paid, Balance Due. Includes sub-sections for 'RECEIVED AND DISBURSED THROUGH COUNSELORS', 'REPORT OF GEORGE H. HILLIARD, COUNSELOR', and 'REPORT OF E. A. BLAKESLEE, COUNSELOR'.

Districts, Local Bishops and Agents.		Last Report Due.		Received.		Received.		Received.		Paid.		Paid.		Balance Due.
Church.	Agent.	Bishop.	Other Agents.	Tithes, Offerings, Consec. Surplus.	Miscellaneous.	Bishop.	Families.	Expenses.	Aid.	Other Districts.	Miscellaneous.	Church.	Agent.
Iowa, Eastern, John Heide		211.07		1,040.25		200.00	584.00	96.00				368.83
Iowa, Fremont, Lorena Leeka				8,143.01		7,136.21	1,074.00	8.00				434.02
Iowa, Gallands Grove, C. J. Hunt			2,588.43	2,587.23		1,090.40	3,042.00	152.84	46.15			72.30
Iowa, Lamoni Stake, Joseph Roberts				4,086.63	3,937.11		1,370.00	86.25				4,338.37
Iowa, Lamoni Stake, William Anderson				1,546.63	1,223.69		822.80	33.49		4,311.99		17.00
Iowa, Little Sioux, A. M. Fyrando				3,223.84		1,650.00	1,013.00	40.00				201.40
Iowa, Potawatomi, J. A. Hansen				235.19		1,948.00	636.00	289.00				383.50
Iowa and Illinois, Nauvoo, George P. Lambert				4,983.35		3,118.00	668.55	180.25				1,091.60
Kansas, Northwestern, John Cairns				379.80			308.00	26.35				22.58
Kansas, Northwestern, John A. Peeters				2,172.09			2,383.00	174.00	207.00			200.00
Kentucky and Tennessee, R. McClain		125.00		2,061.39			726.00	102.24	41.00			18.00
Maine, Eastern, S. F. Cushman				206.31			155.00			51.31		5.84
Maine, Eastern, J. A. Koehler			51.31	541.43		175.00	1,890.00	103.00				173.74
Maine, Western, H. B. Eaton				567.66			232.00	158.00	110.60			291.66
Massachusetts and Rhode Island, M. C. Fisher				4,181.25	2,481	3.92	2,178.50	223.75	433.75			343.32
Michigan, Central, G. W. Burr				1,634.46	40.00	200.00	1,402.00	250.90	91.40			1,823.88
Michigan, Eastern, William F. Smith				3,994.03		1,100.00	2,438.00	95.00	86.10			45.83
Michigan, Northern, J. C. Goodman				945.30		400.00	800.00	74.50	5.00			981.13
Michigan, Southern, and Northern Ind., S. Stroh		23.91		1,838.63			1,120.00	113.31	161.00			38.31
Minnesota, Birch Whiting		177.23		1,066.37			1,324.00	53.39	274.80	142.60		140.26
Minnesota, Leon A. Gould			142.60	160.60		175.00	100.00	45.00	7.50			167.62
Missouri, Clinton, W. E. Reynolds		63.00		1,145.55	25.00		1,194.00	48.80	119.00			50.00
Missouri, Far West, Charles F. Paul				2,075.86		950.00	2,563.00	182.00	203.00			188.47
Missouri, Independence, R. May				2,833.00	1,732.07	200.00	2,419.00	690.72	910.86	101.20		2,299.17
Missouri, Independence, R. B. Burt		375.00		1,743.10	1,719.97		2,419.00	80.14	501.66	152.27		874.31
Missouri, Nodaway, John T. Ford				5,575.04	309.76	467.50	2,724.00	138.21	1,026.81			685.29
Missouri, Northeastern, W. B. Richards		48.70		809.12			706.00	4.00	79.00			392.00
Missouri, Southern, Benjamin Pearson				147.49		1,000.00	1,000.00	5.00	11.28			29.31
Missouri, Saint Louis, Russell Archibald				3,295.73	510.00	3,113.00	1,507.00	111.00	35.96			654.51
Montana, Thomas Reese				906.23		150.00	937.82	33.00	20.00			249.85
Nebraska, Central, Levi Gamet				1,243.45		150.00	811.00	33.00	135.00			350
Nebraska, Northern, H. S. Lytle				920.43		150.00	808.00	94.45	55.00			182.32
Nebraska, Southern, C. H. Porter				149.05		20.00	64.00					1.27
Nebraska, Western and Black Hills, B. E. Hart				132.00			1,799.00	132.00	760.00			2,084.98
Nevada, D. R. Jones		159.12		4,841.20		1,000.00	1,799.00	146.00	40.00			2,084.98
New York and Philadelphia, John Zimmermann				1,020.34		404.02	2,177.00	4.00	23.00			951.59
New York, Western, F. J. Updyke				1,699.65		500.00	1,216.00	25.00	3.00			432.60
Nova Scotia, Mrs. Lois G. Johnson				90.25		43.00						6.63
Ohio, Piusing and Rirtland, J. A. Becker		923.00		4,646.31			3,894.00	530.33	129.75			68.99
Oklahoma, Eastern, Central, Ellis Short		550.00		1,968.63			1,025.50	37.00	5.98			339.92
Oregon, Eastern, A. Conral, Ellis Short				244.57			1,549.00	507.15	10.00			379.23
Oregon, Southern, William Smith				628.14		250.00	190.00	114.60	37.00			2.50
Oregon, Portland, L. Stover				545.72			190.00	59.00	19.00			93.84
Scandinavian Mission, P. Mucens		1,000.00		53.31			874.00	15.00	53.00			67.21
Scandinavia, Sundhedsens Banner				22.59			905.00	17.40	3.70			20.30
Scandinavia, Takaku a Moava				146.95	68.85							7.05
Society Islands, C. C. Hoague		54.07		822.82	321.68		531.59	81.30	42.50			99.71
South Dakota, E. E. Willard				5.00		5.00						172.86
South Dakota, E. E. Rannle				63.44								433.32
Texas, Central, J. M. Nymley				144.52			120.00	43.04				10.40
Texas, Northwestern, S. W. Simmons				139.00		200.00	35.00					38.97
Texas, Northwestern, B. F. Renfro				413.02			170.90	90.00				19.20
Texas, Southwestern, D. S. Palmer				414.47			431.06	51.15	5.00			138.72
Utah, G. J. S. Abels		61.29		18.39		2.00	40.00	41.00				118.81
Virginia, New Hope, Isaac Coffman				37.33			72.22	7.31	5.00			24.81
Wales, Western, Simon Goud		8.36		97.39			14.61	25.32				11.78
Washington, Seattle and B. C., Frank Holmes				1,479.52		300.00	796.00	40.00	120.85			5.07
Washington, Spokane, W. W. Fordham				1,642.14			908.00	168.45				1,287.22
Wisconsin, Northern, Nalmer Johnson				89.74			291.00	30.00				385.22
Wisconsin, Southern, C. C. Hoague				669.25			865.00	30.00	1.43			47.12
West Virginia, E. Beall				133.85				55.85	40.00			45.30
Total		$31,787.98	$301.75	$4,628.58	$9,980.94	$133,965.58	$9,406.80	$39,494.93	$76,001.72	$8,336.38	$9,937.13	$11,533.72	$11,362.11	$38,062.18	$913.90

RECEIVED AND DISBURSED THROUGH LOCAL BISHOPS AND AGENTS.

ALABAMA.

Mobile District.

Alabama District.

Frank Stiner, Agent.

George O. Sellers, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Alabama District, listing names and amounts.

Total $580 25

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Alabama District, listing items and amounts.

Total $529 26

Mobile District.

W. L. Booker, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Mobile District, listing names and amounts.

Total $161 09

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Mobile District, listing items and amounts.

Total $160 68

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Mobile District, listing names and amounts.

Total $175 50

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Mobile District, listing items and amounts.

Total $179 20

AUSTRALASIAN MISSION.

George Lewis, Bishop.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Australasian Mission, listing names and amounts.

Total $2,019 17

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Australasian Mission, listing items and amounts.

Total $2,019 17

Table of receipts for Sunday school and other groups.

Balmaln Branch.

Table of receipts for Balmaln Branch, listing names and amounts.

Leichhardt Branch.

Table of receipts for Leichhardt Branch, listing names and amounts.

Tuncurry Branch.

Table of receipts for Tuncurry Branch, listing names and amounts.

Nambucca Branch.

Table of receipts for Nambucca Branch, listing names and amounts.

Ballaladeh Branch.

Table of receipts for Ballaladeh Branch, listing names and amounts.

Brishane Branch.

Table of receipts for Brishane Branch, listing names and amounts.

Adelaide Branch.

Table of receipts for Adelaide Branch, listing names and amounts.

Table of receipts for other groups including McGrath, Sister, Oblation, etc.

Perth Branch.

Table of receipts for Perth Branch, listing names and amounts.

Scattered Members.

Table of receipts for Scattered Members, listing names and amounts.

Victoria District.

Table of receipts for Victoria District, listing names and amounts.

United Tent and Building Fund.

Table of receipts for United Tent and Building Fund, listing names and amounts.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for United Tent and Building Fund, listing items and amounts.

Building and Tent Fund.

Table of receipts for Building and Tent Fund, listing names and amounts.

Victoria District.

Table of receipts for Victoria District, listing names and amounts.

McConley, George E., and wife ... 60 00
McNamara, Charles D. ... 5 00
McBurney, William S. ... 5 00
Neef, Carrie ... 15 75
Nudd, Little S. ... 23 00
Oliver, John F. ... 1 85
Pople, Martha H. ... 42 50
Pople, Josephine ... 17 50
Parker, Ella L. ... 10 25
Pottorff, John, and wife ... 10 00
Pottorff, W. A. ... 5 00
Park, Ida ... 1 00
Richards, Emeline ... 3 00
Russell, Sarah A. ... 15 00
Roush, Belle B. ... 50 00
Schmutz, Lydia A. ... 5 00
Simpson, Nellie E. ... 23 90
Simpson, Matthew W. ... 6 00
Schall, Ina A. ... 4 50
Shupe, Homer and Eva ... 36 53
Shupe, E. P., and wife ... 2 25
Shupe, Leo, and wife, o. ... 1 00
Shumate, Fred B., and wife ... 6 35
Shumate, Maynard ... 08

Simpson, Blanche ... 1 00
Templeton, Florence P. ... 32 00
Tabor, Ellen B. ... 36 00
Tuttle, Stella C. ... 1 00
Templeton, Sister D. B. ... 10 00
Walkers, Henry, and wife ... 28 20
Williams, E. J., and wife ... 30 00
Westland, Martha ... 5 00
Ward, Alice A. ... 5 65
Kelley, E. L., bishop ... 626 00
Total ... $2,246 97
Expenditures.
Emery, Mrs. I. D., a. ... $ 5 00
Bullard, Richard, e. ... 10 00
Beebe, Mary E., a. ... 41 88
Curtis, J. D., f. ... 361 90
Curtis, J. D. ... 25 00
Heron, Margaret I., a. ... 23 60
Holloway, L. G., f. ... 315 20
Holloway, L. G., e. ... 22 50
Kent, John W., a. ... 10 00
Kemp, James, f. ... 219 90
Kent, John W., e. ... 10 00
Morgan, J. W., f. ... 404 00
McNemar, Myrtle, a. ... 5 00
Petra, J. F., f. ... 391 70
Russell, F. A., f. ... 200 00
Simmons, S. W., f. ... 200 00
Scott, Columbus, e. ... 20 00
Twombly, Samuel, e. ... 20 00
Total ... $2,105 66
Due church (cash) ... 43 81
Due church (notes) ... 97 50

FLORIDA.

Florida District.

E. N. McCall, Agent.

Allen, Avery ... $ 3 00
Allen, S. D. ... 119 70
Ard, E. J. ... 1 00
Barnes, James ... 16 00
Clark, C. J. ... 18 63
Chestnut, J. D. ... 30 00
Dixon, G. ... 2 00
Dixon, Joseph G. ... 20 00
Dixon, Samuel ... 5 00
Dixon, Rebecca ... 2 00
Jernigan, Jefferson N. ... 10 00
McArthur, Bessie ... 5 00
McArthur, John D. ... 100 00
McCall, J. Sidney ... 10 00
McCall, Emmett N. ... 25 00
Russell, E. P. ... 5 00
Webb, Clide ... 83 00
Total ... $372 83

Expenditures.

Kelley, E. L., bishop ... $ 20 00
Moler, H. E., f. ... 315 00
Slover, F. M., f. ... 25 00
Smith, S. S., e. ... 7 00
Total ... $397 00
Due church ... 5 83

HAWAII TERRITORY MISSION.

G. J. Waller, Agent.

Receipts.
Alberts, J. J. ... $ 15 00
Antone, Rachel ... 6 00
Hartbottle, Isaac ... 1 00
Hurley, John, o. ... 50 00
Kaohi, Ekela ... 4 00
Keawe, George, o. ... 75 00
Kahale, William ... 2 00
Kanaloa, Lehela, o. ... 75 00
Kanui, James, and wife ... 65 00

Mahuka, John ... 18 50
Mahuka, Tom and Fanny ... 8 50
Mahuka, Ekela ... 6 00
Mahuka, Mary ... 1 00
Mahee, Napahu ... 5 00
Moore, L. A., and wife ... 7 00
Namaletua, John, o. ... 1 80
Napela, and wife ... 3 00
Nato, Paulina, and wife ... 20 00
Oneha, Julia ... 6 50
Pihiko, David ... 1 00
Paoa, Henry, sen. ... 2 00
Paoa, Henry, jr. ... 1 00
Faban, Mary ... 1 00
Puuohau, James, and wife ... 2 50
Pooep, Emily ... 5 00
Pua, Esther ... 1 00
Sharp, Cecelia ... 5 00
Scott, John, o. ... 3 00
Scott, Maria, o. ... 5 00
Scott, Maria, t. ... 8 00
Thompson, Emily ... 8 50
Thompson, John C. ... 25
Thompson, W. F., jr. ... 1 00
Voeller, Annie ... 3 00
Waller, G. J., o. ... 100 00
A friend, o. ... 1 10
Total ... $306 65
Due agent ... 50 93

Expenditures.
Balance due agent December 31, 1910 ... $ 44 08
Barrett, J. B., f. ... 60 00
McConley, M. A., e. ... 7 50
McConley, M. A., f. ... 232 00
Poor account ... 14 00
Total ... $357 58

IDAHO.

Northern District.

Myron J. Durfee, Agent.

Receipts.
Balance due church December 31, 1910 ... $179 45
Allen, Brenetta ... 5 00
Dempsler, Alice M. ... 21 50
Hassell, Mrs. John J. ... 10 00
Ferguson, W. T. ... 31 00
Glonner, William ... 31 00
Wells, Ethel ... 10 00
Total ... $260 95

Expenditures.

Condit, S. D., e. ... $ 10 00
Davis, John, e. ... 41 50
Layland, A. J., e. ... 20 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop ... 100 00
Total ... $171 50
Due church ... 89 45

ILLINOIS.

Central District.

Luther Simpson, Agent.

Receipts.
Balance due church December 31, 1910 ... $109 01
Bartlett, S. J. ... 20 00
Burham, Mary ... 4 00
Bowen, Elizabeth ... 1 00
Bolt, Martin ... 5 00
Curry, M. T. ... 3 00
Curry, Alice ... 2 00
Curry, W. J. ... 7 00
Carroll, Sarah P. ... 3 00
Clifford, James ... 25 00
Davis, C. H. ... 109 01
Eitinger, Jacob G. ... 10 00
Grivey, David ... 25 00
Hartsell, George ... 15 00
Izatt, Frank ... 20 00
Jones, Thomas ... 50 00
Jones, Abram ... 13 00
Johnson, J. L. ... 5 00
Lilly, Carlina ... 9 00
Lufkins, Ordice ... 25
Lufkins, Susie ... 25
Longden, Charles, and wife ... 10 00
Miecnar, Mary ... 3 00
Malby, Myrtle ... 5 00
Mose, Mary ... 1 00
Nowack, Fred, and wife ... 10 00
Nowack, George ... 14 00
Oblation, district ... 16 53
Oblation, Taylorville Branch ... 21 03
Oblation, Pana Branch ... 10 46
Osland, Moroni ... 5 00
Osland, Zimroy ... 5 00
Rudow, Walter ... 1 00
Reynolds, Ed. ... 2 00
Ruppert, Mary ... 5 00

Richard, William J. ... 16 50
Richard, Maggie ... 2 00
Seegar, Maggie ... 12 00
Shoup, W. W. ... 1 00
Shoup, Charlie ... 1 00
Shoup, Emma ... 5 00
Stonger, E. B. ... 26 50
Stonger, Ella ... 20 00
Smith, Emma ... 5 00
Shotton, William, and wife ... 5 00
Shotton, John ... 2 50
Simpson, Luther ... 17 00
Shoemaker, M. R. ... 4 00
Thurman, Elmer ... 1 00
Total ... $544 13

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses ... $ 1 14
Burr, Charles, f. ... 72 00
Smith, Edgar H., f. ... 5 00
Walters, R. T., f. ... 304 00
Total ... $481 14
Due church ... 112 99

Kewanee District.

Charles L. Holmes, Agent.

Receipts.
Balance due church December 31, 1910 ... $462 73
Atkinson, Sister Matthew ... 10 00
Atkinson, Mrs. John ... 1 50
Atkinson, John B., and wife ... 10 00
Atkinson, Myrtle ... 1 50
Allen, J. William, and wife ... 40 00
Barnes, I. M., and wife ... 13 00
Barnes, Mary ... 3 50
Barnes, Ellen ... 11 00
Bath, D. I., and wife ... 7 47
Bryant, Tressie ... 32 00
Bean, J. W., and wife ... 50 00
Brother, A., and wife ... 425 00
Blodgett, William, and wife ... 5 00
Rice, Katie and Lucy ... 2 00
Beausieu, Clara ... 5 00
Breckman, Adam J., and wife ... 10 00
Branch, Millersburg, oblation ... 3 35
Branch, Twin City, oblation ... 21 28
Branch, Buffalo Prairie, oblation ... 7 76
Branch, Dahlinda, oblation ... 7 91
Branch, Joy, oblation ... 11 45
Cole, J. G., and wife ... 10 00
Cady, John ... 5 00
Cady, Mira ... 2 50
Cady, Havland, and wife ... 6 00
Conference, Kewanee District, oblation ... 6 40
Dawson, James, and wife ... 22 15
Dawson, Charles, and wife ... 25 00
Dawson, Thomas, and wife ... 5 00
Dawson, Philleta ... 3 00
Epperly, James, and wife ... 5 00
Ebin, Reuben, and wife ... 115 55
Elvin, Robert ... 2 00
Ginhardt, Della ... 1 00
Gritton, Sister S. C. ... 8 00
Gritton, Bertha ... 2 00
Gainey, Thomas, and wife ... 10 00
Holmes, Dale S., and wife ... 15 00
Holmes, Charles L., and wife ... 10 00
Holmes, D. S., and wife ... 10 00
Harvey, Mina ... 5 00
Honkins, Mary L. and ... 21 15
Hurt, J. H. ... 2 10
Hewood, Eugene, and wife ... 11 50
Hara, Sister James ... 7 00
Heginson, Mary ... 2 00
Jones, J. F., and wife ... 36 00
Jones, Elva ... 6 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop (rent) ... 37 00
Ladies' Aid Society of Buffalo Prairie ... 80
Lorance, Jacob H., and wife ... 16 00
Lamb, William, and wife ... 3 16
Melisch, E. A., and wife ... 6 00
Miller, Mary E. ... 5 50
Melisch, Mabel ... 2 00
Miller, Rega ... 2 00
Melisch, Edna ... 5 00
Mahaffy, Bertha, o. ... 1 00
Murdock, M. D., and wife ... 2 00
Martin, Martha ... 5 00
Maynard, E. F., and wife ... 5 00
McNeal, Willard ... 2 00
Norris, Henry, and wife ... 20 00
Norris, James, and wife ... 7 71
Norris, Richard, and wife ... 5 00
Norris, Flora ... 1 50

Nealey, Frank, and wife ... 1 00
Needham, Alfred C. ... 13 00
Oline, Bessie ... 17 31
Palmer, Edyth ... 2 00
Palmer, H. M. ... 2 00
Pine, Edward, and wife ... 5 00
Reynolds, Sister M. W. ... 52 00
Reamy, May ... 38 00
Richards, William, and wife ... 7 00
Richards, W. Wesley ... 1 00
Sackfield, Albert ... 5 00
Saints of Gilchrist, oblation ... 6 65
Saints of Mathersville, oblation ... 1 00
Sade, O. B., and wife ... 70 00
Stiegel, Sister William ... 1 00
Stanley, George R. ... 5 00
Swanson, Louisa ... 1 00
Tharp, Eliza ... 10 00
Terry, Joseph L., and wife ... 50 00
Wakeland, William, and wife ... 30 00
Willis, I. C., and wife ... 10 00
Willits, Tom R. ... 1 00
Winders, F. A., and wife ... 5 00
Total ... $1,962 03

Expenditures.

Arber, Joseph, f. ... $450 00
Arber, Joseph, e. ... 10 00
Epperly, James, a. ... 3 25
Goodenough, B. J., e. ... 25 00
Goodenough, B. J., f. ... 160 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop, (re-pairs) ... 7 25
Kelley, E. L., bishop ... 375 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop, taxes ... 7 66
Sade, O. B., f. ... 288 00
Wiley, C. E., f. ... 100 00
Wiley, C. E., e. ... 20 00
Williams, Lizzie E., a. ... 20 00
Total ... $1,466 16
Due church ... 495 87

Northeastern District.

James F. Keir, Agent.

Receipts.
Balance due church December 31, 1910, $752.11, less diff. in bal. 09 ... $752 02
Anderson, Mary, t. ... 20 00
Anderson, A. H., and wife, t. ... 100 00
Bone, Mary Etha, t. ... 8 41
Bone, Louise, t. ... 45 45
Bone, Violet, t. ... 40 40
Bone, F. B., and wife, t. ... 137 11
Blakely, Alice, t. ... 1 00
Blakely, Kenneth and Marion, t. ... 50
Brunson, Cora, t. ... 2 50
Brunson, Hiel and Laura, t. ... 10 00
Cox, Sister E. C., t. ... 1 00
Cook, Silas, t. ... 5 00
Cooper, F. M., and wife, t. ... 5 00
Castines, Emma, t. ... 10 00
Castines, Velta, t. ... 20 00
Camp, Joseph H., and wife, t. ... 10 00
Cannon, Cressel C., and wife, t. ... 100 00
Bolander, Jennie, and mother, t. ... 137 75
Drake, H., and wife, t. ... 5 00
Dare, J. A., and wife, t. ... 100 00
Darman, Edward, t. ... 8 95
Darman, William, t. ... 13 00
Danielson, C., and wife, t. ... 20 00
Erickson, George, t. ... 30 00
Erickson, Caroline, t. ... 10 00
Fairbanks, Blanch, t. ... 2 00
Ford, Frank and Maud, t. ... 35 10
Gregson, Sister C. t. ... 3 00
Goldsmith, Sister John, t. ... 3 00
Green, Gladys, t. ... 1 80
Hayer, Ellen, t. ... 4 00
Hartshorn, Francis, t. ... 4 50
Horton, F. L., t. ... 22 00
Heavener, Alice L., t. ... 11 30
Heavener, Dora, t. ... 1 00
Heavener, Melvina, t. ... 65 81
P. H., t. ... 1 00
Hartshorn, Lee, and wife, t. ... 12 00
Hartshorn, Chris B., t. ... 16 59
Hamilton, Mamie, t. ... 2 00
Harris, John, t. ... 13 00
Hougas, Thos., and wife, t. ... 100 00
Hayer, Blas, and wife, t. ... 10 00
Hayer, Ethel, t. ... 9 34
Hole, Electa, t. ... 5 00
Johnson, Ellen, t. ... 40 00
Johnson, Christina, t. ... 1 00
Johnson, Oscar, t. ... 50 00
Johnson, Grace, t. ... 48 50
Jorgensen, G. M., t. ... 22 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop ... 10 00
Kilgore, Sister R., t. ... 27 70
Keir, Lyle Marion, t. ... 5 00
Keir, and Cooper, t. ... 63 00

Table of financial entries for the first section, including names like Keir, H. P. W., and wife, Knudson, K. H., etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the second section, including names like Smith, William G., Stover, James W., etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the third section, including names like Miller, Sarah B., Miles, Eli, etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the fourth section, including names like Laughlin, G. G., and wife, Laughlin, Aleta, etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the fifth section, including names like Quick, Ada, Rogers, Luella, etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the sixth section, including names like Fields, S. H., e., Fields, S. H., f., etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the seventh section, including names like Agent's expenses, Byrne, E. O., e., etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the eighth section, including names like Sherman, Ellis, t., Sherman, Ernest, t., etc., with associated monetary values.

Southern District.

Table of financial entries for the Southern District, including names like F. M. Davis, Agent, Boyd, Andrew R., etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the ninth section, including names like Allen, James A., Allen, John J., etc., with associated monetary values.

IOWA.

Des Moines District.

Table of financial entries for the Iowa Des Moines District, including names like W. Christy, Agent, Balance due church De- cember 31, 1910, etc., with associated monetary values.

Table of financial entries for the tenth section, including names like Butterworth, C. E., e., Christy, W., e., etc., with associated monetary values.

Eastern District.

Table of financial entries for the Eastern District, including names like John Heide, Agent, Balance due church De- cember 31, 1910, etc., with associated monetary values.

Table listing names and amounts for Loveland, Charlotte; Loveland, Hannah M.; Long, Charles W.; Moser, Mary; McRae, John, and wife; McClout, F., and wife; McQueen, W. B., and wife; McQueen, John S.; McQueen, Bernice; Myatt, Louisa; McCumber, Alaska, and wife; Minthum, Dfer; Maharry, Ralph; Nedraw, Mary; Palsgrove, D. L.; Power, Vesta; Roush, Martha; Robnson, Ezra; Rorah, Amos, and wife; Riggs, Ethel; Richards, Wesley; Schrunks, Mrs. T. P.; Shields, Minnie, t.; Shields, Louisa; Smith, Robert; Sartwell, Emily; Sartwell, Vera; Speer, Edwin, and wife; Sweeney, Elizabeth; Swardfeger, Florence B.; Seward, Mrs. G. W.; Stoll, Williams; Sunshine Band; Tison, J. S.; Wildermuth, Dora; Williams, K.; Weir, John, and wife; Yingling, Harriette.

Expenditures.

Table listing agents' expenses and due church amounts for Hills, L. E., e.; Hills, L. E., f.; Kelley, E. L., bishop; McKlerman, James, e.; Turner, Warren, t.; Turner, Warren, c.; Wildermuth, J. B., e.; Wildermuth, J. B., f.

Fremont District.

Lorena Leeka, Agent.

Receipts.

Table listing receipts for Fremont District, including names like Brown, A. N., and wife; Beckstead, Mary E.; Beckstead, Frank, and wife; Beckstead, Simon, and wife; Barber, Louis; Benedict, Mary E.; Crawford, Mary; Costock, James, and wife; Chino, J. E.; Claiborn, A. M., and wife; Clark, George; Dunsdon, Marion M.; Dunsdon, Roy J.; Dawes, Mrs. Viola; Duncan, Emma Ross; Duncan, Emma Ross, o.; Eyer, Julia; Ettleman, David M., and wife; Gaylord, Moses W.; Huston, John, and wife; Hilliver, R. S., and wife; Hanson, Sadie Leeka; Hougas, T. A.; Knight, Jennie E. and F. B.; Knight, Mrs. F. B.; Knight, Ruth; Kemp, J. Henry, and wife; Leeka, Lorena; Leeka, W. Madison, and wife; Leeka, Jay, and wife; Leeka, Rachel S.; Mortimer, Nathan L.; Moore, T. C., and wife; Novinger, Frank, and wife; Newton, Mary A.; Osborne, Mrs. Angeline; Pace, Mamie; Pace, Mary; Roberts, James V. and Elnora; Roberts, Charles M. and Redfield, J. Frank and Lucy; Skank, G. Fred; Skank, Ethel I.; Schenck, O. R.; Schenck, R. S.; Topham, Mrs. Melinda.

Table listing names and amounts for Wardwell, Mrs. Anna; Wilcox, Eber S. and Clara; Wight, James R., and wife; Wight, Zuela Asenith.

Expenditures.

Table listing expenditures for Haden, W. D., f.; Haden, W. E., e.; Knisley, Alvin, f.; Kelley, E. L., bishop; Labor church insurance; Wight, J. W., f.

Gallands Grove District.

C. J. Hunt, Bishop.

Receipts.

Table listing receipts for Gallands Grove District, including names like Brogden, Francis H. and Julia; Dixon, Marie; Dilliver, Walter; Horst, Sylvester and Ellen; Hunt, Maynard, C.; Hunt, Arlo L.; Innes, Clarence, and Stella; Jordan, Melissa E.; Lewis, Louise A.; Myers, Myron and Sarah A.; Myers, Merle and Bessie.; Myers, Lacy O. and Myrtle; Miller, Rebecca E.; McIntosh, Melinda; Mewcom, Firman and Edna; Richardson, Mary I.; Rickman, John W. and Mary; Stevens, Sarah A.; Taylor, John B. and Stella; Wedlock, Silas F. and Cora; Winans, Arthur L. and Amy B.; Winans, Sabina.

Scattered Members.

Table listing scattered members: Edson, Elizabeth B.; McKim, Burton L.; Vassar, Lillie.

Auburn Branch.

Table listing names and amounts for Auburn Branch: Brady, Timothy C. and Jennie; Cushman, Chester T.; Chaseabro, Nancy E.; Reynolds, Abel B. and Martha; Wallace, Elizabeth.

Gallands Grove Branch.

Table listing names and amounts for Gallands Grove Branch: Belkham, Duty; Ballantyne, Marinda, and family; Baughman, Eugene A.; Baughman, Hezekiah N., and Irene; Baughman, Grace; Crandall, Frank E.; Crandall, Martha J.; Crandall, Lyman W.; Gunsolley, George H. and Ruth; Holcomb, Drayton A. and Floyd; Hansen, George I. and Ruth; Hansen, Julia E.; Howland, Sanford and Bessie L.; Handbury, Anna; Kuykendall, Marian; Kearnes, Wesley; Kearnes, Laura A.; Kearnes, Bertha; McCord, Hazel I.; McCord, Patrick C. and Nora; Pearsall, James and Harriet; Pitts, Carrie A.; Pett, William and Sarah; Pett, Mabel Z.; Pennell, Ellen; Shaw, Samuel N.; Roundy, Sophia; Roundy, Anna; Tripp, Lefa; Yeamans, Richard W. and Mary; Harlan Branch: Brewster, David; Brennan, Jane E.; McCord, Bradley L.; McCord, Grace N.

Table listing names and amounts for McCord, Daisy M.; McCord, Mary B.; Roberts, Mary B.; Scoosbe, Pearl, and family; Bullard, Jonathan; Bullard, James H. and Edith; Bell, John F. and Irene; Bell, Thomas; Hall, David and Emeline; Hall, Nellie; Hall, Alva and Lulu A.; Hansen, Frederick and Mary.

Coalville Branch.

Table listing names and amounts for Coalville Branch: Anderson, Carl E.; Beadle, William; Dixon, Samuel; Hay, William, Jr.; Hay, Roy; Hay, Mabel; Hay, Thomas and Elizabeth; Hedman, Cora A.; Jordison, William C.; Jordison, John and Mary; Jordison, Clarence; Jordison, Richard and Agnes; Jordison, William and Hannah; Ray, William and Lily; Sylvester, William and Polly A.

Lanesboro Branch.

Table listing names and amounts for Lanesboro Branch: Byerley, John H. and Etta; Duckett, Ellen; Duckett, Lora; Donkin, Frances; Juergens, George and Mary; Juergens, Gerrit; Salisbury, Herald and Pearl; Salisbury, George E.

Dow City Branch.

Table listing names and amounts for Dow City Branch: Baber, Irene; Baber, Velma; Baber, Nellie L.; Baber, Richard T. and Mary; Bell, Saphrona; Crandall, Jennett; Galland, William W. and Elizabeth; Hansen, Julia E.; Jackson, Helen L.; Jackson, Bernice L.; Merrick, Stella; Marks, Lillie A.; Rudd, Abel H. and May; Rudd, John R. and Serelda; Rudd, Gladys; Rudd, Sunshine; Schafer, Theresia.

Cherokee Branch.

Table listing names and amounts for Cherokee Branch: Crippen, Albert R. and Isabel; Hayes, Nathan and Catherine; Mann, Carl O. and family Sheldon; Frank M. and Ada; Yarrington, Juliette; Barker, Alexander, and family; Carmichael, Charles A. and Sara A.; Carmichael, Eleanor; Carmichael, Sara A.; Ford, George E. and Ora E.; Hartshorn, Marly W.; Hartshorn, Catherine; King, Darius and Julia E.; McDonnell, Alice; Truog, John, sen.

Expenditures.

Table listing expenditures for Cherokee Branch: Butterworth, Charles E., f.; Crippen, Albert R., e.; Hunt, C. J., e.; Agent's expenses; Hunt, C. J., f.; Hattery, Martha, a.; Jordison, John, f.; Kelley, James E., f.; McKim, Burton L., e.; Stationery, booklets, etc.; Price, John D., f.; Richardson, Margaret, a.; Wight, Romanan, f.; Total; Due church.

Lamoni Stake.

William Anderson, Bishop.

Receipts.

Table listing receipts for Lamoni Stake, including names like Abbott, Mrs. A. P., t.; A brother, (J. A.); Allen, Mary A.; Anderson, Daniel, and wife, t.; Anderson, Nellie M., t.; Anderson, Nellie M., o.; Anthony, L. G., t.; A sister (M. B.), t.; A sister (M. H.), t.; Baguley, Ruby B., t.; Bailey, Sarah J., t.; Baltenger, Abigail, t.; Banta, Mary C., t.; Barr, Mrs. C. H., t.; Booker, Frances C., t.; Boush, Mrs. S. B., t.; Bradford, Frank, t.; Breakie, Allan, t.; Burk, Charles B., and wife, t.; Butts, Jane, t.; Butts, Jane, o.; Carress, Addie, t.; Carmichael, Ronald, t.; Church, Charles F., and wife, t.; Evans, William E., t.; Pesler, Mary P., t.; Fisher, Mrs. E. A., t.; Fletcher, Mrs. J. M., t.; France, Joseph E., t.; Frazier, Bliza J., t.; Fuller, Bliza, t.; Giles, Edward J., and wife, t.; Green, O. E., and wife, t.; Hartschen, Matilda, t.; Hayer, Eli, and wife, real estate, c.; Hicks, Mrs., ret. a.; James, R. C., and wife, t.; Jamison, Pearl, t.; Jones, Cosie, t.; Kaestner, Henry, and wife, t.; Kelley, Lea, t.; Lamoni Mite Society, t.; Lane, W. R., and wife, t.; Lester, Martha, t.; Lester, Rutilla, t.; Lewis, Richard, t.; Mader, Mary, t.; Mather, William J., and wife, t.; McElroy, Clara P., t.; Miller, D. T., and wife, t.; Monroe, I. A., and wife, t.; Monroe, Zulpa P., t.; Morgan, John L., and wife, t.; Mull, Mima, t.; Nicholson, Gracia, t.; Nicholson, John, and wife, Jerusalem Mission; Nicholson, Minnie B., t.; Orton, Samuel, and wife, t.; Peat, Charles J., and wife, t.; Peat, Perry, t.; Rasmussen, Peter, t.; Roberts, Jesse, and wife, t.; Roberts, Joseph and Clara, t.; Rowley, Samuel, and wife, t.; Rowley, Samuel, and wife, c to Order of Enoch when established in Lamoni Stake; Sandage, Nevada, t.; Shippy, George B., and wife, t.; Smith, Jessie M., o.; Strickland, Alice, t.; Thompson, Grace, t.; Turman, Joseph, t.; Vandel, Silvia, t.; Watkins, John J., and wife, t.; Weedmark, Ed., and wife, t.; White, A. Otis, and wife, o.; Wight, Estella, t.; Wight, J. W., and wife, t.; Wilkinson, Fred O., t.; Willey, Roscoe C., and wife, t.; Williams, Daniel T., t.; Williams, Reese, t.; Williams, Robert D., t.; Williams, William B., and wife, t.; Wilson, William, and wife, t.; Young, Martha A., t.; Young, Zula Grace, t.

Collections for Stake expenses 0 00
 Loans returned (notes paid) 240 14
 Loans returned 35 30
 Bills receivable 33 50
 Received from bills receivable 150 75
 Notes from loans 203 00
 Real estate 434 00
 Personal property 33 50
 Total $6,350 01

Expenditures.

Anthony, Mrs. R. J., f. . . . $ 51 00
 Baggerly, I. P., f. 54 00
 Brantwait, Mrs. E., a. . . . 26 40
 Campbell, Duncan, f. 45 00
 Case, Mrs. J. M., a. 2 00
 Cochran, A. S., f. 54 00
 Cousins, Fred, a. 5 00
 Elvin, R. M., f. 54 00
 Evans, John R., f. 54 00
 Garner, Mrs. M. J., a. . . . 30 12
 Garver, John F., f. 63 80
 Goode, Emma, a. 26 45
 Goodwin, Mrs. Nelson, a. . . . 5 00
 Hicks, Ethel, f. 5 32
 Lambert, J. R., f. 54 00
 Lambert, J. R., e. 15 00
 Landon, Clara, a. 85 93
 Peterson, J. W., f. 72 00
 Potter, Rebecca, a. 7 19
 Reiste, S. M., f. 42 00
 Rodger, Mrs. M., f. 30 00
 Rodger, Mrs. M., a. 8 43
 Shippy, Mrs. John, a. 13 57
 Smith, Heman C., f. 120 00
 Smith, John, f. 54 00
 Smith, Nettie, a. 39 29
 Thomas, O. B., f. 75 00
 Bookkeeper 90 00
 Rent of telephone and post office box 5 10
 Coal for office 3 68
 Receipt blanks, journal, envelopes, etc. 20 74
 Stamps and pens 6 25
 Interest on note 1 50
 Stamps and stationery, stake presidency 2 40
 Elders' traveling expenses in stake 18 49
 Christmas Offering paid to Bishop Kelley 5 00
 Sanitarium fund paid to Bishop Kelley 25 00
 Loans (notes given) 263 00
 Loans 41 30
 Jerusalem Mission paid to E. G. Pitt 10 00
 Expenses on Gray house 4 90
 Real estate 484 75
 Graceland collections to F. B. Blair, treasurer 10 81
 Personal property sold 35 50
 Total $2,068 92
 Due church (notes) 2,530 40
 Due church (cash) 781 59
 Due church (real estate) $1,000 00

Lamoni Stake.

Joseph Roberts, Bishop.

Receipts.

Received from Bishop William Anderson, cash . . . $781 59
 Received from Bishop William Anderson, real est. 1,000 00
 Received from Bishop William Anderson, notes, $2,530.40, less paid $1,723.56 806 84

Allendale Branch.

Mull, Mima, t. 1 72

Andover Branch.

Bergman, Gus, sen., t. 300 00
 Bergman, Mrs. Gus, sen., t. . . 10 00
 Bierlein, Catherine H., t. . . . 4 00
 Heide, Arthur J., and wife, t. 100 00
 Jones, Sarah P., t. 1 00
 Perry, Nellie, t. 2 00
 Snethen, Christina, t. 2 50
 Stanley, Jane E., t. 11 00

Centerville Branch.

Angell, G. T., and wife, t 26 00
 Archibald, Mrs. Russell, t. . . 3 00
 Beard, Mrs. W. L., t. 2 00
 Duckworth, Mrs. Jean, t. 50
 Duckworth, Mrs. Jean, o. 50

Evergreen Branch.

Dillon, Charles, and wife, t 5 00
 Dillon, Emery W., and wife, t. 5 00

Evergreen Sunday school, o 40 00
 Johnson, Bertha, t. 50
 Johnson, Lizzie, t. 1 00
 Phipps, W. J., and wife, t 20 00
 Phipps, Mrs. W. J., t. 5 00
 Sister, A. O., t. 1 00
 Work, Mr. and Mrs. O., t. . . . 10 00
 Young, D. D., and wife, t. . . . 100 40

Greenville Branch.

McDaniel, J. G., t. 5 00

Graceland Branch.

Cackler, Eveline, t. 90
 Crooks, Dorcas, t. 5 00

Hiteman Branch.

Albers, John, and wife, o. . . . 50
 Batton, Daniel, and wife, t 60 00
 Batton, Parley, and wife, t 7 00
 Burk, Charles E., and wife, t. . . 18 50
 Gilles, Ed J., and wife, t. . . . 5 00
 Griffiths, John R., and wife, t. 7 00
 Jenkins, John, and wife, t 43 50
 Luke, Edward, t. 3 35
 Luke, Gertrude, t. 5 00
 Luke, J. R., and wife, t. 2 00
 Mayer, Eliza, t. 12 00
 Morgan, John L., and wife, t. 2 00
 Morgan, John L., and wife, o . . . 1 50
 Rowley, Samuel, and wife, t 10 00
 White, Samuel, and wife, t 5 00
 Wilkinson, William, and wife, t. 3 00
 Wilkinson, William, and wife, o 75
 Williams, David J., and wife, t. 85 00
 Williams, Joseph A., and wife, t 4 00
 Williams, Joseph A., and wife, o 50
 Williams, Joseph T., and wife, t. 9 00
 Williams, Reece, t. 8 00
 Williams, Thomas, t. 6 50
 Williams, William E., and wife, t. 2 00
 Wilson, William, and wife, t 3 30
 Wilson, William, and wife, o 4 00

Lamoni Branch.

Allen, Annie E., t. $ 55 00
 Allen, Annie E., o 20 00
 Allen, Mary A., t. 2 75
 Allen, Thomas R., o 80 00
 Allen, Thomas R., o (note) 70 00
 Anderson, Andrew, and wife, t. 175 00
 Anderson, A. K., and wife, t 10 00
 Anderson, Oscar, and wife, t 425 00
 Anderson, Oscar Kelley, t 18
 Anderson, Richard Carroll, t 38
 Atkinson, Nell G., t. 25 00
 Baguley, Ruby E., t. 20 00
 Bailey, Vaughn C., t. 10 00
 Banta, Ethel, t. 73 90
 Barr, J. W., and wife, t. 21 65
 Barrows, Jennie M., t. 1 93
 Barrows, Sidney, t. 5 78
 Blair, C. E., and wife, t. 28 00
 Blair, F. B., and wife, t. 5 00
 Blair, G. W., and wife, t. . . . 50 00
 Bowman, Clarence, and wife, t. 5 00
 Bouton, J. L., and S. E., t 1 02
 Bouton, J. L., t. 1 00
 Breakie, Allan, t. 2 46
 Brother, A., t. 47 00
 Brown, Susie, t. 65
 Burch, Thomas J., t. 10 00
 Butts, Jane, t. 2 12
 Castner, Peter, t. 1 00
 Cave, Lucina M., t. 2 50
 Chandler, Hattie, t. 3 00
 Chandler, Roy, t. 7 00
 Dancer, Anna A., t. 27 00
 Dancer, Alice P., t. 50 00
 Dancer, David A., t. 1 90
 Dancer, Howard M., t. 1 90
 Davis, Vivia, t. 5 00
 Dawson, Edwin T., o 25
 Denio, Evangeline, o 1 00
 Denio, Melvina, t. 6 00
 Denio, Melvina, o 7 00
 Early, Susannah, t. 50 00
 Elvin, Robert M., t. 1 00
 France, Mrs. Thomas, t. 50 00
 France, W. A., and wife, t 50 00
 Freeland, Thomas, and wife, t. 10 00
 Fuller, Eliza J., t. 1 72
 Garver, John P., and wife, o 1 00
 Godfrey, A. B. and C. M., t 100 00
 Goodenough, Jessie, t. 2 50
 Gray, Evan, t. 2 55
 Green, Irving S., t. 8 55
 Greenwood, Mrs. A. A., t. . . . 1 25

Greor, Bertha A., t. 51 50
 Grenawalt, G. R., and wife, t. 10 00
 Grenawalt, J. R., and wife, t. 50 00
 Grenawalt, W. A., and wife, t. 50 00
 Hall, Mina Hayey, t. 10 00
 Harger, Mary, t. 9 00
 Hartshorn, H. A. and wife, t. 14 00
 Hatcher, Beal, t. 50 00
 Hawley, E. P., and family, t 20 00
 Hayler, Belle, t. 5 00
 Hayer, Oliver, and wife, t. . . . 60 00
 Hayer, Mrs. Oliver, t. 5 00
 Hill, George, and wife, t. 10 00
 Hopkins, R. V., t. 20 00
 Hopkins, W. A., and wife, t 100 00
 Hougas, John, and wife, t 25 00
 Howery, George, and wife, t 2 00
 James, R. C., and wife, t and o 2 00
 Jamison, Pearl, t. 24 50
 Kaestner, William P., t. 5 00
 Keown, David, t. (note) 20 00
 Lambert, Anna E., t. 1 85
 Lambert, Lena J., t. 15 00
 LaFrance, Joseph, and wife, t. 10 00
 Lester, Martha, t. 3 00
 Lester, Rutilla, t. 3 00
 Lovell, Alfred, and wife, t 20 00
 Mader, M. Grace, t. 10 00
 McElroy, Clara P., t. 6 00
 McKeon, E. D., t. 25 00
 Moore, L. B., t. 1 10
 Needham, Julia, o 7 06
 Nelson, Carrie R., o 2 00
 Nicholson, Gracia, t. 5 00
 Nicholson, Minnie B., t. 30 00
 Olsen, Nellie, t. 5 00
 Pangman, C. H., and wife, t 5 00
 Parker, O. W., and wife, t 10 00
 Paul, W. B., and wife, t. 32 00
 Peat, Charles and Mary L., t. 2 65
 Peat, Perry, t. 1 00
 Peters, C. J., and wife, e. 50 00
 Plain, Esther, t. 1 12
 Plain, Carl, t. 12
 Prall, O. E. and Nellie, t. 25 00
 Purvis, Susan, t. 55
 Ressegue, Lucy L., t and o 60 00
 Roberts, Jesse, and family, 50 00
 Roberts, Jesse, and wife, t 23 00
 Roberts, Joseph and Clara, t. 92 00
 Salyards, Mrs. M. E., o 50
 Sanders, Ella, t. 4 40
 Scott, Elvah, t. 5 00
 Scott, R. C., t. 5 00
 Shogole, Mary, t. 10 00
 Shippy, G. B., and wife, t. . . . 10 00
 Silsbee, Carrie Cobb, t. 10 00
 Sister, A., t. 10 00
 Sister, A., t. 83 75
 Smith, John and Kate E., t 50 00
 Smith, M. Lillian, o 15 00
 Smith, Norman, and wife, t 15 00
 Snethen, James, t. 2 00
 Snethen, J. D., and wife, t 10 00
 Staggers, Hannah, t. 20 00
 Stowell, Mrs. J. E., t. 3 22
 Sumption, Benjamin, and wife, t. 9 00
 Thomas, Mrs. O. B., t. 5 00
 Thompson, L., and wife, t 15 00
 Thompson, Florence, t. 15 00
 Thompson, Grace, t. 16 10
 Turnbull, A. M., and wife, t 10 00
 Vail, J. W., o 5 00
 Wasson, Melissa P., t. 25 00
 Weedmark, John, t. 20 00
 Wells, G. R., and wife, t. 23 45
 White, D. C., and wife, t. 10 00
 Wight, Estella, t. 15 00
 Wight, Keith G., t. 25
 Wilson, Christian, t. 10 00
 Woodstock, Charles B., and wife, t. 6 50
 Wylie, William, t. 7 50
 Young, Zula Grace, t. 2 00
 Zenor, Sybilla, t. 130 00

Lone Rock Branch.

Hartchen, Matilda, t. 10 00
 Kinder, P. J., t. 3 00
 Sandage, M., t. 10 00

Lucas Branch.

Evans, J. A., and wife, t. . . . 100 83
 Williams, Robert D., and wife, t. 35 00

Oland Branch.

Braby, Joseph, t. 28 25
 Nichols, John and Emma, t 125 00
 Sharp, Grover, t. 16 50

Pawnee Branch.

Bell, T. J., and wife, t. 10 00
 Dunwoody, Sarah, t. 25 00

Hitchcock, Catherine, t. 7 50
 Sharp, Mrs. Ray, t. 5 00

Pleasanton Branch.

Alden, Leah, t. 5 00
 Beach, Ivan, o 25
 Leeper, Helen, t. 37 31
 Leeper, Ofie, t. 65
 Moffett, Jessie, o 25
 Moffett, L. W., t (note) 77 20
 Morey, Mary, o 1 00
 Morey, G. M., t. 15 00
 Sheen, Emma, o 25
 Turpen, M. M., o 1 00
 Vandel, Silvia, t. 32 45

Ward Branch.

Hull, G. W., and wife, t. 20 00
 Wilkinson, Fred O., t. 7 50
 Wilkinson James N., and wife, t. 20 00
 Williams, Rodger D., and wife, t. 25 00
 Wilson, May, t. 2 00

Miscellaneous.

Allredge, B. D., t. 2 00
 Lent, C. W., and wife, t. 30 00
 McGrew, Susanna, t. 5 75
 Taplin, Sister S. M., o 1 00
 Woods, Wallace, t. 50
 Interest 26 01
 Christmas Offering 16 00
 Children's Home 112 00
 Saints' homes 51 00
 Graceland College 11 04
 Money borrowed 370 00
 Loans 151 50
 Loans (notes paid) 317 86
 Bills receivable 1,405 70
 Real estate (note) 1,000 00
 Church buildings (Case house) 6 00
 Norway Mission 5 00
 Notes from loans 435 00
 Total $11,512 17

Expenditures.

Allen, John R., a. $ 5 00
 Anthony, Mrs. R. J., f. 153 00
 Baggerly, I. P., f. 178 00
 Bennett, Mrs. Alma, a. 16 00
 Brantwait, E., a. 2 00
 Brantwait, Mrs. E., a. 32 69
 Campbell, Duncan, f. 15 00
 Case, Mrs. J. M., a. 107 02
 Cochran, A. S., f. 162 00
 Cousins, Fred, a. 50
 Dickey, Mrs. C. M., a. 2 63
 Elvin, Robert M., f. 178 00
 Evans, John R., f. 133 00
 Garner, Mrs. M. J., a. 123 95
 Garver, John F., f. 240 00
 Goode, Emma, a. 33 35
 Goodwin, Ann, a. 39 50
 Graham, Cynthia, a. 5 32
 Hicks, Ethel, a. 12 55
 Hinkle, Lydia, a. 8 00
 Lambert, J. R., f. 178 00
 Lambert, J. R., e. 45 00
 Landon, Clara, a. 273 34
 Long, E. B., e. 2 00
 Morrell, J. W., f. 3 07
 Peterson, J. W., f. 24 80
 Potter, Rebecca, a. 2 69
 Reiste, S. M., f. 14 00
 Richtman, B. E., a. 50
 Rodger, Mrs. M., f. 90 00
 Rodger, Mrs. M., a. 22 97
 Salyards, R. S., f. 200 00
 Smith, Heman C., f. 360 00
 Smith, John, f. 178 00
 Smith, Nettie, a. 120 87
 Stedman, Mrs. E. A., a. 28 50
 Stubbart, J. M., f. 272 00
 Thomas, O. B., f. 241 00
 Thomas, Mrs. D. W., a. 4 66
 Toney, Mary, a. 65 58
 Wells, G. R., f. 376 00

Miscellaneous.

Peters, C. J., e. 39 25
 Bookkeeper's salary 272 00
 Office rent 27 80
 Office supplies 68 67
 Interest 1 50
 Stake expenses 13 81
 Children's Home 112 25
 Saints' Home 202 50
 Loans 446 00
 Loans (notes paid) 485 00
 Loans (notes given) 435 00
 Church buildings (Case house) 10 33
 Elders' traveling exp. 10 00
 Real estate sold 1,000 00
 Total $7,123 80
 Due church (cash) 1,979 83
 Due church (notes) 2,112 92
 Due church (notes) 286 12

Little Sioux District.

A. M. Pyrando, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910.....	$ 4 06
Adams, A. H., and wife.....	c 1 29
Adams, A. H., and wife.....	c 12 50
Adams, W. R., and wife.....	c 5 33
Adams, R. B., and wife.....	5 00
Adams, Alpha.....	5 00
Amundson, OJ., and wife.....	10 00
Amundson, Eimer.....	5 00
Asquith, Alice.....	5 00
Baker, Nettie.....	1 00
Baker, Glen.....	1 00
Ballantyne, Myrtle.....	37 00
Ballantyne, J. C., and wife.....	10 00
Ballantyne, Jane.....	25 00
Ballantyne, C. R., and wife.....	40 00
Ballantyne, F. M.....	18 00
Ballantyne, J. O., and wife.....	5 00
Barum, Ethel.....	2 50
Beckham, James, and wife.....	9 00
Bene, Arthur.....	11 25
Bene, Charles.....	50 00
Bennett, Rosa.....	1 00
Benson, Charles, and wife.....	100 00
Benson, George L.....	30 00
Benson, Joseph L., and wife.....	50 00
Bowers, John, and wife.....	4 80
Bowers, Sister John.....	1 45
Bryant, Geraldine.....	5 00
Bryant, Lucinda.....	1 50
Butler, Ann.....	23 75
Caffall, Eliza.....	9 35
Campbell, L. B., and wife.....	22 15
Carr, Joseph B., and wife.....	3 00
Caso, William, and wife.....	25 00
Chambers, Josephine B.....	5 00
Chambers, Frances E.....	1 00
Christy, Sister M. A.....	6 50
Coffman, William L., and wife.....	15 00
Correll, Sister.....	30 00
Currie, Joseph A., and wife.....	5 00
Deal, Oscar.....	2 25
Derry, Charles.....	15 00
Derry, Anna.....	3 10
Derry, Ollie.....	3 10
Fallon, W. B., and wife.....	102 00
Fessler, Mary P.....	3 00
Fry, Fred A., and wife.....	20 00
Fry, Opal.....	1 00
Fry, Julia.....	1 00
Fry, Gladys.....	1 00
Fyrando, Alma M.....	10 00
Gamet, Ira D., and wife.....	70 00
Gamet, Carl A., and wife.....	25 00
Gamet, Herbert S., and wife.....	24 30
Gamet, Byerett, and wife.....	10 00
Garner, John P., and wife.....	20 00
Gatrost, Michael, and wife.....	10 00
Goreham, Rhoda L.....	6 00
Halberg, Sister J. A.....	5 00
Hall, Milo, and wife.....	1 00
Hawley, Mary A.....	1 00
Harper, Allen F., and wife.....	1 00
Harper, Chloe.....	1 00
Harper, Hester.....	1 00
Harris, Anna May.....	6 00
Hewitt, Hattie.....	1 00
Hight, Asa, and wife.....	28 35
Hoffman, Arley E., and wife.....	105 70
Houghton, Edward, and wife.....	2 00
Hoyt, Sister A. O.....	2 00
Hutchings, Doras A., and wife.....	10 00
Hyde, Charles L., and wife.....	25 15
Jensen, Mark, and wife.....	15 00
Johnson, Julia.....	5 00
Johnson, Annie.....	5 00
Jones, Leona.....	2 50
Jones, John F.....	4 00
Kemish, Susan.....	40 00
Kemish, William.....	13 00
Kibler, Sylvester B., and wife.....	498 28
Kibler, Maud.....	5 00
King, Hannah M.....	2 00
Kinne, Orrin.....	5 00
Lamb, Charles W.....	24 91
Lane, Joseph, and wife.....	30 00
Lane, Arthur, and wife.....	100 00
Lane, John E., and wife.....	40 00
Lane, Charles, and wife.....	10 00
Lytle, Sister D. R.....	50 00
Magnolia Ladies' Aid Society.....	2 50
Mann, J. R., and wife.....	35 00
Mann, Laura E.....	12 50
Mann, J. W., and wife.....	30 00
Martole, John.....	1 00
Maule, Donald.....	50 00
Meggors, George, and wife.....	20 00
Merchant, Amasa L., and wife.....	50 00
Merchant, Joseph W., and wife.....	7 50

Morse, Annie.....	5 00
McDonald, Julius S., and wife.....	10 30
McDonald, Clyde, and wife.....	2 30
Newberry, Sister J. V.....	50 00
Niles, Mattie.....	3 00
Outhouse, Aggie.....	3 00
Outhouse, Joseph.....	3 25
Owitt, Fred C., and wife.....	100 00
Parker, Mary E., and wife.....	1 00
Parker, Ella.....	1 50
Pearley, Sylvester J., and wife.....	31 00
Pearley, Lawrence.....	1 05
Pearley, Clyde.....	3 00
Pearley, Mary A.....	23 00
Perkins, M. N.....	20 00
Phillip, James A., and wife.....	50 00
Phillips, Virgil.....	5 05
Phillips, Arlon.....	5 05
Pitt, Sidney, sen., and wife.....	20 00
Patt, John W., and wife.....	10 00
Pratt, Leona F.....	2 00
Purzell, Henry C., and wife.....	19 31
Redfield, Elmer, and wife.....	6 00
Reynolds, Ella.....	5 00
Reynolds, Ada.....	5 00
Reynolds, John.....	5 00
Rich, Owen.....	1 50
Runkle, Frank, and wife.....	5 00
Scott, George M., and wife.....	1 20
Scott, Sister G. M.....	95 00
Secley, Roy A., and wife.....	5 00
Shearer, Leona.....	3 50
Shupe, Cynthia.....	2 50
Smith, Louis J., and wife.....	5 00
Smith, Leona F.....	19 00
Smith, Joseph B.....	5 00
Smith, Samuel C., and wife.....	10 00
Smith, C. R., and wife.....	60 00
Smith, Elizabeth.....	25 00
Smith, A. J., and wife.....	125 00
Smith, Sister D.....	50 00
Strand, Thomas O., and wife.....	100 00
Strand, Sister T. O.....	3 50
Stuart, William, and wife.....	10 00
Stuart, Annie.....	16 25
Vredenburg, Charles, and wife.....	30 00
Vredenburg, David, and wife.....	160 00
Vredenburg, J. M.....	5 00
Wentworth, Emma.....	5 00
Whitsett, Robert, and wife.....	5 00
Wildner, Clarence M., and wife.....	11 00
Wilkinson, Sister James.....	5 00
Williams, Elizabeth.....	2 00
Worsencroft, J. T., and wife.....	16 50
Worsencroft, Martha.....	1 30
Worsencroft, Priscilla.....	27 00
Yocom, Nephi.....	16 00
Total.....	$3,263 90

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses.....	$ 17 00
Butts, Elsie.....	120 00
Caffall, Eliza.....	144 00
Chambers, Mary, a.....	5 00
Conyers, Joseph, a.....	10 00
Daley, Emma, a.....	120 00
Derry, Charles, f.....	240 00
Haner, Isaac, a.....	12 00
Holeton, Thurza, a.....	22 50
Kelley, E. L., bishop.....	1,650 00
Knisley, Alvin, f.....	88 00
McDowell, J. F., a.....	33 00
Parker, J. L., f.....	223 00
Smith, W. A., e.....	318 00
Wight, J. W., e.....	10 00
Wood, Lula B., a.....	50 00
Total.....	$3,062 50
Due church.....	261 40

Pottawattamie District.

J. A. Hansen, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910.....	$235 19
Anderson, Anna.....	5 00
Altrup, Henry.....	5 00
Altrup, Thomas.....	8 00
Allison, Sister E. A.....	5 00
Adams, Mary and May.....	11 25
Anderson, Hans, and wife.....	20 00
Beche, Emma.....	150 00
Baxter, Matthew O.....	50 00
Bardsley, Charles B., and wife.....	50 00
Carlike, Joshua, and wife.....	10 00
Carlike, Earl H., and wife.....	20 00
Campbell, Robert, and wife.....	450 00
Campbell, Joseph N., and wife.....	88 00
Carlike, John P., and wife.....	90 00
Carlike, John C.....	5 00
Christensen, Theodore.....	20 00
Darlington, Bertha O.....	2 00
Everts, John, and wife.....	53 25
Elswick, Edna.....	27 00

Elswick, Marlon F., and wife.....	90 00
Frederickson, Peter W., and wife.....	30 00
Fenn, Myrtle.....	5 00
Fisher, Elizabeth Ann.....	18 00
Hansen, John A., and wife.....	55 00
Harding, Estella.....	40 00
Hansen, Agnes.....	50 00
Hansen, Hans N.....	300 00
Harding, Zelma C.....	21 00
Hansen, Elmer.....	200 00
Hansen, George J., and wife.....	200 00
Hansen, Johanna.....	20 00
Hansen, Anna.....	16 00
Jacobsen, Stephen, and wife.....	35 00
Jensen, Martin, and wife.....	15 00
Johnson, Christine.....	8 00
Jensen, Ida.....	10 00
Jensen, Caroline.....	7 50
Jensen, Matilda.....	5 00
Johnson, Charles.....	10 00
Lapworth, James R., and wife.....	200 00
Lapworth, John C.....	200 00
McKenzie, Robert.....	20 00
MacKland, Joseph, and wife.....	40 00
Pratt, John A.....	25 00
Peterson, Petrus, and wife.....	50 00
Peterson, Marie.....	5 00
Peterson, Hans, and wife.....	50 00
Parish, D., and wife.....	20 00
Riley, C. I.....	5 00
Riley, Clarence A.....	10 00
Rasmussen, Christine.....	2 00
Rasmussen, Katie.....	5 00
Stewart, Lola M.....	11 10
Scott, Thomas, and wife.....	25 00
Scott, Mrs. William.....	5 00
Scott, Cora.....	2 00
Steele, Mrs. George.....	1 00
Tarbell, Sarah A.....	1 00
Tidwell, Helen M.....	28 00
Wright, Charles H., and wife.....	20 00
Wind, Viva.....	8 00
Wind, Floy.....	4 70
Wind, Hortense.....	3 00
Total.....	$2,754 50

Expenditures.

Anderson, P. T., f.....	$100 00
Baker, J. H., f.....	232 00
Baker, J. H., e.....	15 00
Hansen, H. N., e.....	200 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop.....	1,340 00
Lentell, J. R., e.....	17 00
Moss, Mary A., e.....	10 00
Scott, C., e.....	49 50
Scott, C., f.....	216 00
Vincent, Mrs. Charles, a.....	10 00
Wells, G. R., f.....	168 00
Wight, J. W., e.....	13 50
Total.....	$2,371 00
Due church.....	383 50

ILLINOIS AND IOWA.

Nauvoo District.

George P. Lambert, Bishop.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910.....	$261 30
By omission previous report, Lacey, Ethel A., t.....	5 50
Arnold, Isabella, o.....	2 50
Buchanan, Mary, t.....	3 00
Buchanan, John, t.....	55 00
Bauer, John, t.....	4 00
Biernan, Sena, e.....	20 00
Batley, Louisa K, t.....	11 00
Beary, Mrs. Linn, t.....	1 00
Browman, Frederica, t.....	1 00
Brown, Mary E., t.....	5 00
Bishop, Isabella, t.....	1 00
Bishop, Ella M., t.....	7 00
Clawson, Julia, t.....	3 00
Dean, Mary S., t.....	6 00
Billison, Eleanor, t.....	960 94
Englar, Margaret, t.....	50 00
Farrar, Mrs. W. S., t.....	2 00
Gelatt, Bmelia, e.....	1 00
Gibson, Christopher, and wife, t.....	5 00
Haverson, Andrew, t.....	10 00
Horsley, Catherine, t.....	10 00
Haas, Lester, and wife, t.....	2,355 00
Haas, Lester, and wife, o.....	50 00
Haas, Ellison H., t.....	3 40
Horton, Elizabeth J., t.....	10 00
Jacobs, Alice, t.....	5 00
Jacobs, Jeremiah H., and wife, t.....	500 00
Kemler, Addie, t.....	1 00
Kite, Margaret S., t.....	5 00
Kreiger, Florence, t.....	3 00
Kunz, Edward F., t.....	10 00
Lacey, Ethel A., t.....	17 95
Lawsan, John, and wife, t.....	10 00

Lambert, George P., and wife, t.....	111 00
Lewis, Evan, t.....	4 00
Lankford, Ellen, t.....	1 50
Miller, Louverna, t.....	2 00
McKiernan, James and wife, t.....	8 00
Ortleb, William, t.....	25 00
Parrish, Caroline, t.....	5 00
Reed, Catherine, t.....	6 30
Rodgers, Robert, and wife, t.....	5 00
Rayer, Leonard P., t.....	50 00
Salisbury, Don C., t.....	10 00
Salisbury, Mary L., t.....	19 52
Salisbury, Josephine, t.....	10 00
Schweers, William, t.....	15 00
Scott, Annie, t.....	7 00
Scott, Agnes, t.....	1 00
Siegfried, Mary E., t.....	12 00
Santee, Viola, t.....	1 00
Santee, Mrs. Ernest E., t.....	1 00
Santee, Mrs. George L., t.....	1 00
Stevenson, Grace A., t.....	5 94
Stevenson, Elizabeth, o.....	2 00
Stevenson, Elizabeth, o.....	1 00
Thomas, Eva, t.....	57 80
Vandine, Bert, and wife, t.....	16 00
Vandine, Warren L., t.....	5 00
Winter, Daniel T., t.....	10 00
Williams, Daniel T., t.....	1 00
Wallace, Mary A., t.....	1 00
Wright, Ida M., c.....	50 00
Wright, Ida M., t.....	337 50
Wright, Margaret S., t.....	5 00
Warnock, Susan, t.....	3 00
Willey, Joseph, t.....	2 60
Willey, Joseph and Lillian, t.....	5 00
Willey, Lawrence, o.....	1 00
Willey, Charles E., t.....	5 00
Willey, Mary L., t.....	1 00
Weaver, Jesse W., t.....	4 80
Total.....	$5,244 85

Expenditures.

Arnold, Isabella, a.....	$ 10 00
Cooler, Mrs. N. S., a.....	45 00
Cooper, F. M., f.....	180 00
Cooper, F. M., e.....	35 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop.....	318 00
Fry, Charles, f.....	175 00
Fry, Charles, e.....	44 25
Gibson, Albert, work on Smith homestead.....	2 00
Harris, Mary, a.....	5 00
Harpe, Charles E., e.....	30 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop.....	2,800 00
Lambert, George P., e.....	20 00
McClintien, Lafayette, a.....	7 00
McKiernan, James, f.....	240 00
McKiernan, James, e.....	34 00
McKiernan, James, ex f.....	20 00
Otto, Augusta, a.....	70 00
Siegfried, Mark H., f.....	96 00
Siegfried, Mark H., e.....	22 00
Total.....	$4,153 25
Due church.....	1,091 60

Northeastern District.

John Cairns, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910.....	$ 72 35
Brooks, William, and wife.....	10 00
Brooks, Agness.....	5 00
Blauser, Sarah A.....	20 00
Bell, Emeline.....	10 00
Boyer, Nora M.....	1 00
Baillie, James and Janet.....	10 00
Chew, Maggie.....	10 00
Cairns, George F.....	3 00
Cairns, John.....	50 00
Carney, J. L.....	1 00
Dittmore, W. H.....	10 00
Davis, George W.....	10 00
Elder, John M.....	50 00
Fletcher, Ellen and Jennie.....	15 00
Fenner, George C., and wife.....	25 00
Fish, Elizabeth.....	1 00
Green, Ann.....	15 00
Hayes, Lawrence W.....	4 35
Hedrick, Frank and Emma.....	11 50
Hedrick, Gilbert F.....	1 00
Hayes, Bernice.....	3 00
Ingles, Albert C.....	5 00
Jacobsen, Charles.....	8 00
Johnson, Robert.....	5 00
King, Brooks Viola.....	5 00
Knowles, Albert B.....	20 00
Kindel, Jane S.....	2 00
Kout, Mollie.....	2 00
Lyster, Julia.....	5 00
Lucas, William C.....	1 10
Lucas, Edward T.....	1 50
Lyster, Samuel.....	3 50
Lomestene, Chris N.....	35 00
Menzies, William.....	35 00
Murphy, W. H.....	60 00

Miller, J. A. and Elmira	17 65
Menzies, Joseph	5 00
McCray, Maggie	5 00
Norman, Joseph S.	9 00
Patterson, John	4 00
Perry, J. S.	1 00
Potter, Hannah	24 00
Rogers, V. F., and wife	37 25
Robinson, George H.	15 00
Spangler, David O., and wife	6 50
Sanneman, Sarah	2 65
Sanneman, Peter	100 00
Wise, Annas	8 00
Wolfe, Elizabeth	3 00
Total	$712 15

Expenditures.

Moler, H. E., f	$165 65
Okerlind, O. W., f	213 00
Peak, W. E., f	50 00
Peak, W. E., e	26 85
Swenson, Swen	60 00
Twombly, Samuel, f	180 00
Total	$695 00
Due church	17 15

Northwestern District.

J. A. Teeters, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910	$ 67 75
Anslcy, John B.	4 87
Brown, Maria	21 50
Bergeir, Mary	15 00
Bullard, E. L. and Lois	15 00
Cole, J. A. and Sadie	50 00
Drovetta, Sarah	2 00
Flemming, Grace	3 00
Palmer, H. A., and family	8 03
Sumner, Addie	5 00
Sears, Mary	10 00
Seaman, Mrs. L. M.	3 50
Teeters, J. A. and Eva	10 00
Teeters, M. V. and Mary	100 00
Ward, Alta	5 00
Wolfe, Mrs. F. B.	10 00
Total	$330 68

Expenditures.

Fields, S. H., f	$ 25 00
Madden, S. J., f	52 00
Teeters, J. A., f	231 00
Agent's expenses	30
Total	$308 30
Due church	22 38

Spring River District.

Ellis Short, Bishop.

Receipts.

Attoberry, William, and wife	$ 23 85
Angel, Charles, and wife	5 00
Byrd, Lottie	5 00
Bair, Ed K.	29 40
Bath, William, and wife	20 00
Byrd, Richard, and wife	20 00
Beck, Amanda	117 50
Bradley, Sarah C.	10 00
Bradford, O. L., and wife	7 25
Bradford, Edith	45 00
Barnett, C. H., (1910)	12 00
Brown, Maria	9 00
Barracough, E. S.	5 00
Briggs, Nancy	5 00
Budworth, W. W.	10 00
Blackwell, Sarah	2 00
Blackwell, Niele	2 00
Bowman, Ben, and wife	6 25
Cochran, James and Elizabeth	10 00
Cochran, James	50 00
Cochran, J. Scott	1 00
Calkins, C. E.	2 00
Calkins, Lottie	1 00
Carson, John P.	5 50
Cromwell, G. W.	10 00
Christensen, C. C., and wife	17 49
Christensen, Nellie	2 00
Curtis, Laura	10 00
Conner, E. N.	50 00
Conner, W. L.	100 00
Cheney, Warren	3 00
Davis, R. W.	15 00
Davis, Maria	19 30
Daniels, Elizabeth	10 00
Duncan, Sister O. A.	1 00
Foster, Roy, and wife	20 00
Gray, Anna B.	3 00
Gray, W. A., and wife	30 00
Guy, Katie	5 00
Hart, J. L. and S. L.	80 00
Hart, Jesse M.	23 00
Hart, Elmer, and wife	15 00
Holsworth, Mabel C.	20 00
Holsworth, Myrtle R.	30 00
Herke, Lizzie	6 00
Hartman, Lettie	8 00
Hartman, Elsie	5 00
Hayton, Nella	2 50

Hayes, R. L., and wife	1 00
Hudson, Samantha	5 00
Hudson, T. W., and wife	50 00
Jones, Ethel	5 00
Jones, H. B.	2 00
Jones, Sister M. S.	3 00
Jones, George	5 00
Kirk, William, and wife	14 00
Knox, Rachel	2 00
Keyer, Charles	5 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop	125 00
Lees, William	5 00
Lancaster, J. L.	25 00
Martin, W. M.	22 30
Martin, R. E., Coal Company	21 20
Miami, Pearl	5 80
Miami church, rent	53 51
Myers, C. O.	15 00
Mostler, Alice	1 00
Miles, B. F., e	50 00
McCall, Mary W.	3 00
McLain, J. B. and Mattie	2 00
McFarland, Mary	4 50
McCall, L. H., and wife	31 00
Needles, Alice	1 50
Nunamaker, W. H., and wife	10 00
Peterson, Charles	8 00
Parsons, Mary A.	7 00
Peck, Earl T.	70
Randall, Curtis and Sal-lie	16 35
Randall, Herman	2 50
Ross, Ella	9 00
Ross, Isaac	100 00
Ritchelson, H. N.	10 00
Randall, N. J.	1 00
Ray, Clara M.	2 30
Robinson, J. M., and wife	25 00
Richards, J. M., and wife	36 40
Richards, Ira	10 00
Ray, Clara	40 00
Simpson, Victor	44 60
Sutherland, O. P., and wife	53 35
Sutherland, Frank	10 00
Smith, James	5 00
Stoffer, Minnie	21 18
Stoffer, Minnie, acct.	47 50
Taylor, W. S.	29 00
Thomas, John T.	10 00
Thomas, W. A.	16 50
Thomas, Walter	1 10
Thomas, W. H. and G. A.	50 00
Thomas, Sister N. E.
Williams	4 65
Trebel, Bennie, and wife	5 00
Ulmer, John and Melvina	20 00
Virgin, John	60 50
Westervelt, W. E., and wife, son	7 00
Williams, Sister N. E.	14 89
Williams, Mark	30 00
Williams, R. J.	25 00
Watts, C. H.	13 00
Waldron, G. W.	1 25
Wheeler, George	4 90
Williams, Nellie	4 00
Young, Marshall	8 00
Young, Alexander	11 75
Young, W. A.	10 00
Total	$2,260 02
Due agent	701 46

Expenditures.

Balance due agent December 31, 1910	$ 36 48
Bailey, J. W. A., f	150 00
Bookkeeping, stationery, stamps, receipt books	50 00
Cochran, James, loan ret.	50 00
Davis, J. Alfred, e	82 00
Davis, Ewan, f	205 00
Davis, John Arthur, f	585 00
Herke, Lizzie, acct.	100 00
Harris, Otto, a	12 00
Jenkins, George, f	100 00
Kerns, Mrs. John, a	165 00
Keck, F. C., f	210 00
Page, J. C., e	90 00
Page, J. C., f	20 00
Piper, Mrs. A., a	11 00
Quiek, Lee, f	397 00
Riley, J. T., f	397 00
Rasmussen, Brother, a	3 00
Smart, W. H., e	17 00
Swartz, Henry, f	147 00
Slye, Roy, f	100 00
Spurling, Henry, e	15 00
Total	$3,000 48

KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE.

Kentucky and Tennessee District.

J. R. McClain, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910	$291 69
--------------------------------------	----------

Adair, Mary L., t	5 00
Adair, John J., and wife, c	1 00
Brian, Lizzie, t	3 00
Brien, Jimmie, t	6 00
Brush, George, t	5 00
Boothe, L. L., t.	50 00
Cook, Willie C., t	10 00
Cook, John R., and wife, t	20 00
Cobb, Iduma, t	3 00
Christopher, Reuben, t	1 00
Christopher, Joseph F., t	50
Christopher, Sarah, t	1 00
Campbell, William, t.	5 00
Campbell, Lester B., t	1 00
Dickson, Samuel E., t	10 00
Diffin, Annie D., t	40 60
Hendrix, John F., t	25 00
Hester, J. C., t	10 00
Harrison, Alma, t	1 00
Johnson, Messer W., t	40 00
McClain, J. R., t	10 00
McClain, Will L., and wife	100 00
McClain, Martha J., t	2 20
McGregor, Senie M., t.	1 00
Northrup, Mary J., t	5 00
Peoples, Alice, t	1 00
Sculock, T. C., t	10 00
Sullivan, Estelle, t	2 00
Sullivan, Jessie, t	10 00
Seaton, Rubie, t	3 00
Shupe, W. Scott, t	5 00
Shupe, W. Scott, c	1 00
Shupe, Fred, c	1 00
Shupe, Clyde, c	1 00
Sear, Jessie A., t	5 00
Ward, I. A., and wife, t.	210 59
Total	$893 08

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses	$ 3 00
Christopher, Joseph E., a	13 00
Dubose, J. W., e	2 00
Feed and pasture rent	15 00
Griffin, Annie B., a	16 00
McClain, J. R., e	74 74
McClain, J. R., f	498 00
Moler, H. E., e	10 00
Moser, Fred, jr., e	2 00
Shupe, W. S., e	13 50
Smith, S. S., f	228 00
Snow, Mrs. Roan, a	12 00
Total	$887 24
Due church	5 84

MAINE.

Eastern District.

S. F. Cushman, Agent.

Receipts.

Alley, George W.	$ 3 75
Crowley, Merton	7 00
Dobbin, Ada	3 00
Dobbin, Edith	5 00
Davis, Florence	2 50
Davis, Richard	2 50
Francis, Inez	15 00
Grey, Hallie E.	30 00
Hinkley, Lewis, and wife	50 00
Ingersoll, Herbert	2 00
Ingersoll, Annie	1 00
Joy, Darius	5 00
Joy, David E., and wife	5 00
Joy, Rebecca D.	1 00
Kelley, Aaron	10 00
Kelley, Sophia	12 00
Lamson, Mary	10 00
Leighton, Gertie	1 00
Lakeman, Lucretia	2 00
Look, Etta	1 00
Mealey, Jeremiah, and Manchester, George, and wife	4 00
Mitchell, Evangeline A.	2 50
Mitchell, Merrill C.	2 50
McDonald, Betsy J.	2 00
Norton, Lucy A.	5 00
Reynolds, Howard, and wife	15 00
Stinson, Eva	1 00
Smith, Lizzie	1 00
Smith, Frank P.	3 00
Watts, Florence P.	2 00
Wallace, Frank, and wife	7 26
Willing Workers	13 05
Woodward, Warren J.	5 00
Total	$206 31

Expenditures.

Foss, S. O., f	$155 00
Koehler, J. A., agent	51 31
Total	$206 31

Eastern District.

J. A. Koehler, Agent.

Receipts.

From S. F. Cushman, former agent	$ 51 31
----------------------------------	----------

Alley, George W., and wife	10 33
Alley, Rebecca	4 00
Beal, Lowell E., and wife	10 00
Beal, O. A., and wife	3 50
Beal, Obed L., and wife	5 00
Burns, Julia A.	5 50
Crowley, Merton	15 00
Crowley, Carlie	2 00
Crowley, Charlotte	1 00
Cummings, Mrs. P. R.	15 00
Dobbin, Ada	20 00
Foss, Mabel	1 00
Foss, Frances	2 00
Foss, Albert C., and wife	1 00
Faulkingham, Philmare	7 50
Frenn, Martie	2 00
Faulkingham, R. L.	15 00
Gray, Harriet	2 00
Guptell, Lulu	13 50
Henley, Lewis, and wife	100 00
Hall, Mary A.	5 00
Ingersoll, Herbert, and wife	1 00
Johnson, Howard M.	1 00
Jenkins, George, and wife	50 00
Joy, Mrs. David	1 00
Kelley, Sophie Grace	5 00
Kelley, Uriah	3 50
Koehler, Edith	1 00
Kelley, Ada	5 00
Kelley, Aaron W., and wife	10 00
Lakeman, D. W., and wife	2 00
Lakeman, Lucretia	1 25
Lamson, Mary	5 00
Lenfestey, A. A., and wife	15 00
Look, Etta	1 00
McDonald, Betsy Jane	1 00
Manchester, George C.	3 00
Mattatal, A. D.	2 00
Mealey, Jeremiah, and wife	5 00
Norton, Lucy Ada	5 00
Rogers, Herbert	3 00
Reynolds, Howard, and wife	20 00
Rogers, W. E., and wife	50 00
Rogers, Arthur	10 00
Sheehy, Elizabeth	5 00
Smith, Frank P., and wife	3 00
Smith, Henry, and wife	2 00
Smith, William C., and wife	12 00
Stinson, Mrs. John	1 00
Thompson, Horace	3 80
Reynolds, Horace	1 00
Woodward, Sherman	7 50
Wass, Nellie D.	50
Wallace, Frank T., and wife	5 05
Watts, Percy	2 00
Woodward, Warren, jr.	2 00
Woodward, Lulu	1 00
Woodward, George	1 00
Woodward, Lehman, and wife	20 00
Woodward, Warren, and wife	20 00
Wilson, Ed, and wife	5 00
Wilson, Newman	1 50
Wilson, Bertha	2 00
Woodward, Weston	1 00
Total	$592 74

Expenditures.

Foss, S. O., f	$189 00
Greene, U. W., e	35 00
Koehler, H. Arthur, e	20 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop	175 00
Total	$419 00
Due church	173 74

Western District.

Henry R. Eaton, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910	$178 40
Billings, J. J.	1 50
Billings, Rhoda	1 50
Billings, Harlan	6 00
Billings, Pearl	7 00
Billings, Philip	15 00
Billings, Walter	1 00
Blastow, Edwin	30 00
Billings, Arthur	2 00
Billings, Mark	2 00
Billings, Elmer	2 00
Blastow, George, and wife	10 00
Bowden, Roscoe	1 84
Beal, Etta	2 00
Begg, A.	5 00
Carter, Irwin	10 00
Clark, William H.	10 00
Candage, Willie L.	20 00
Carter, Joseph B.	50 00
Carter, Julia H.	20 00
Carter, Howard	1 00
Carter, Jennie	1 60
Candage, Willie E.	10 00
Dolton, Robert	2 00
Eaton, Henry R.	26 50
Eaton, John K.	5 00
Eaton, Emery F.	10 00

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals, including Eaton, Mary; Eaton, John B.; Eaton, Abbie A.; Eaton, Nathan; Eaton, Lewis; Eaton, Linnie M.; Eaton, Dennis M.; Eaton, Hosea B.; Eaton, Lewis A.; Forster, Judson; Gross, Addie; Gray, Mark; Holman, Jennie M.; Holman, Myron; Holman, Walter; Holman, Odessa; Holman, A. H.; Holman, Agnes; Holman, C. A.; Holman, E. B.; Hardy, George E.; Haskett, Willie D.; Haskett, Freeman; Hutchinson, Abbie A.; Kidder, Matilda J.; Knowlton, Cecil; Newman, Mrs. W. L.; Newman, Willard L.; Nesels, Mary; Nelson, Nancy; Nelson, Mildred; Pickering, Mattie; Robbins, Bert S.; Robbins, James; Robbins, Alice; Smith, Frank J.; Stockbridge, Ella; Smith, Flora; Shepherd, Cornelia; Stinson, Carrie; Smith, Hattie; Shepherd, Albert; Tracey, Anna; Torrey, Roland; Thomas, Julia; Thompson, Gertrude; Tainter, Mrs. E. S.; Wallace, Flossie; Zion Mite Society.

Summary table for the first section showing Total ($746 00), Expenditures, and Agent's expenses ($ 80).

MASSACHUSETTS AND RHODE ISLAND.

Massachusetts District.

Table listing names and amounts for Massachusetts District, including M. C. Fisher, Bishop; Receipts; Balance due church December 31, 1910; Error last report, Mary Flagg reported $9.50; Error last report, Arthur S. Nickerson reported $14.00; A sister, Dennisport, o.; Andrews, Thomas, and wife; Arnold, Henry W., and wife; Baker, Alpha, and wife; Baker, Charles Y.; Baker, Ensign L., and wife; Barnes, Michael H., and wife; Beare, Anna L.; Beare, Rosa Robbins; Bowen, Lucinda Waterman; Bowers, Annie M. (deceased); Bradbury, William; Bradshaw, George H., and wife; Bradt, J. H. and Clara E.; Briggs, Jane, t.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals in the second column, including Brown, Carrie E.; Busel, Julia C.; Carey, George B.; Carter, Wallace R.; Chase, Abbie W.; Chase, Lydia, t.; Chase, Mary R.; Chase, Rose, t.; Churchill, Elizabeth, t.; Churchill, Roy, and wife; Class 4, Bethel Sunday School, Fall River; Cliff, Joseph R.; Clough, Adelaide, t.; Clough, Phoebe, t.; Coates, David, t.; Cockcroft, Charles, t.; A sister from Fall River; Cockcroft, Myra, t.; Cockcroft, Nellie, t.; Congdon, Bertina, t.; Congdon, Hartwell, t.; Congdon, Helen, t.; Congdon, Marion, t.; Congdon, Sadie, t.; Coombs, Alma M., and wife; Coombs, Margaret; Craig, May, t.; Damon, Arthur, t.; Delano, Ada, t.; Dennisport Helping Hand Society; Dobbins, Ellery Bryant, t.; Dobbins, Frank S., and wife; Dobbins, Fred Elmer, t.; Donnell, Lavinia, t.; Douglas, Charles, Jr., t.; Edgar, Herbert B., t.; Edward, James L., and wife; Ella M., t.; Fairclough, Mary J., t.; Fairclough, Robert P., t.; Fenner, Joseph, and wife; Fielding, Susannah, t.; Firby, Christopher, and wife; Fisher, E. H. and M. C., t 500 00; Fisher, Lawrence, t.; Fisher, Sanford, t.; Flagg, Mary, t.; Fox, Edward A., t.; Fraser, Allan, t.; Fraser, Anna Laura, t.; Frost, Carl W., t.; Frost, William F., and wife; Gardner, Henry H., t.; Gardner, Mrs. Stephen, t.; Gates, Albert, t.; Gates, George H. A., and wife; Gates, Hazel, t.; Gates, Williamena E., t.; Gerrish, Clara D., t.; Glover, Eva D., t.; Goff, Eva M., t.; Gondolf, Matthias, and wife; Granger, Ann, t.; Greene, Edward H., t.; Grover, Louise, t.; Gwynn, Jennie, t.; Harvey, Mae, t.; Hatch, Emma F., jr., t.; Hatch, Emma F., sen., t.; Haverhill Branch, t.; Heap, John, and wife; Heap, Myra, t.; Hillthold, Jeanette, t.; Holmes, Christine P., t.; Holmes, James H., and wife; Howlett, H. W., and wife; Hoxie, John, t.; Interest on deposits; Johnson, Herbert B., and wife; Johnson, Mary B., t.; Jordan, Leon, and wife; Joy, Daniel F., and wife; Joy, Ethna F., t.; Joy, Victor, t.; Kelley, Eva E., t.; Kelley, Herald L., t.; Kelley, Polly M., t.; Kelley, William L., and family; Kimball, Rebecca B., t.; Kenty, Helen, t.; Knowlton, Cecil, t.; Koehler, Edna, t.; Ladies' Aid Society, Fall River; Law, Samuel, and wife; Lawrence, Mary S., t.; Leather, Annie, t.; Leckney, Florence, t.; Leckney, Anna, t.; Leland, Adena, t.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals in the third column, including Leland, B. W., and wife; Leland, W. B., t.; Leland, Ruth E., t.; Lewis, Elmer B., t.; Lewis, Elizabeth D., t.; Linney, A. T., t.; Lord, Evelyn, t.; Macfarlane, Elizabeth, t.; Marchington, John, and wife; Maude, Mary A., t.; Megathlin, John E. and Sylvia B., t.; Monks, William, and wife; Moore, Catherine, t.; Moore, Edwin, t.; Moore, Thomas H., t.; Morris, Anna and Ellen, t.; Mortimer, Sarah J., t.; McKee, Myra D., t.; Newcombe, Lloyd and Ada; Newcombe, Owen L. and Hannna; Nickerson, Arthur S., t.; Nickerson, Eva, t.; Nickerson, Hattie N., t.; Nickerson, Laura D., t.; Nickerson, Nehemiah R., and wife; Norton, Eliza A., t.; Nute, Marion, t.; Offering; Owers, J. C., t.; Pearce, M. C., t.; Perry, Carrie E., t.; Pierce, Nellie S., t.; Pierson, Laura, t.; Providence Aid Society; Providence Branch; Raymond, Franklin P., t.; Ray, W. H., t.; Roberts, Asa F., t.; Roberts, Frederick W., and wife; Roberts, Hannah R., t.; Roberts, William, and wife; Robley, George F., t.; Rogers, Fred C., t.; Rogers, Mary C., t.; Rogers, Mary E., t.; Rogerson, J. E., and wife; Ross, Mrs. J., t.; Russell, Mina, t.; Sanford, Albert L., and wife; Scoville, Dora, t.; Scoville, Gwendolyn, t.; Sears, Bessie M., t.; Sears, Calvin, t.; Sears, Lucie H., t.; Sears, Nettie A., t.; Sharpley, Carrie, t.; Sheehy, Byron, t.; Sheehy, Elizabeth, t.; Sheehy, John F., t.; Siddall, John, t.; Siddall, Lillian, t.; Sinclair, Oliver Gilbert, t.; Sinclair, W. A., and wife; Smith, Clifford, t.; Smith, Dorothy, t.; Smith, Harry C., t.; Snow, Hasebeth J., t.; Spinnett, Frank J., and wife; Spinnett, J. P., t.; Spurling, Annie R., t.; Stanley, Ida F., t.; Steele, Neta, t.; Steele, Mrs. Francis; Steele, Myra G., t.; Stevens, Eleanor, t.; Sutherland, Fattle G., t.; Suttill, Mabel G., t.; Thayer, Harvlyn, and wife; Thayer, Cassius E., and wife; Thayer, Ella, t.; Thayer, Lizzie J., t.; Thayer, Verna, t.; Thompson, Etta L., t.; Toombs, Otis and Eva, t.; Trask, Harriet B., t.; Turner, Sarah E., t.; Ward, Abraham F., and wife; Webster, Abbie L., t.; Webster, Charles M., t.; Wentworth, Stephen, t.; Wetmore, Amanda, t.; Wholley, Peter, and wife; Wetmore, Edgar, t.; Whitehouse, Lavina S., t.; Whiting, Emora, t.; Whiton, Mary C., t.; Wilcox, Lillian, t.; Wilson, Julia, t.; Wilson, Louise, t.; Wilxon, Thankful W., t.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals in the fourth column, including Wood, Alta, t.; Wood, Clara M., t.; Wood, Cyrus W., t.; Wood, Jennie L., t.; Wood, Margaret C., t.; Wood, Maude, t.; Wood, Thora I., t.; Wylie, William, t.; Yerrington, George R., t.; York, Everett, t.; York, George W., and wife; Young, William B., t.

Summary table for the second section showing Total ($5,303 12), Expenditures, and Due church ($1,823 88).

MICHIGAN.

Central District.

G. W. Burr, Agent.

Table listing names and amounts for Michigan Central District, including Receipts; Balance due church December 31, 1910; Anger, Golda, t.; Anger, Clarence, and wife; Angle, Orpha, t.; Angle, James, jr., t.; Archer, Hannah, t.; Atkinson, George, and wife; Atkinson, George, jr., t.; Atkinson, B. F., t.; Bailey, George W., and wife; Baker, Clarissa, o.; Barstow, Frank, and wife; Barnes, Thomas, and wife; Bellenger, John, and wife; Bennett, Elmore, t.; Bidwell, Julia, t.; Blackman, Pitt, t.; Blackford, Sarah J., t.; Bowlsby, Elizabeth, t.; Bowlsby, Sydna, and wife; Bolenbaugh, Mrs. M. J., t.; Bovee, Abram, and wife; Bradbourn, Abbie, t.; Brewer, Charles, and wife; Brintnell, Aaron, t.; Brintnell, Jane, t.; Brintnell, Sam, o.; Brintnell, Hiram, and wife; Brown, Mary, t.; Brown, George B., t.; Burr, Mary Ann, t.; Burr, Abram, and wife; Burr, Earl, t.; Burr, George W., and wife; Burr, Floyd, t.; Burr, Florence, t.; Busard, George, and wife; Campbell, Mrs. James, t.; Cain, Ammon, and wife; Carrick, Guy, o.; Carrick, Guy, o.; Carrick, Lynn, t.; Carrick, Edna, t.; Carrick, Bertha, t.; Carrick, Elizabeth, t.; Carrick, J. R., and wife; Carrick, N. A., and wife; Carrick, Wade, o.

Carrick, Wade, t.....	25
Cavenaugh, Thomas, and wife, t.....	1 00
Chaffee, Charles, t.....	80
Charters, Ellen, t.....	25
Churchil, Jane, t.....	25
Clingermer, Dora, t.....	2 00
Cornish, Mary Jane, t.....	5 21
Cornish, William J., and wife, t.....	2 00
Cornish, James, and wife, t.....	10 00
Cornish, Richard, and wife, t.....	6 20
Cornish, Bertha, t.....	5 76
Cornish, J. J., jr., t.....	11 50
Cornish, Leotia M., t.....	3 05
Cornish, Mla, t.....	1 00
Crist, A. E., t.....	2 00
Crist, A. E., o.....	10
Davis, Jane, t.....	1 50
Delong, Oscar, and wife, t.....	1 00
Degeere, Harvey, and wife, t.....	5 00
Deemes, Ida H., t.....	5 00
Demaray, Nettie, t.....	5 50
Derlyshire, Mary, t.....	2 95
Douglas, Adelbert, and wife, t.....	5 25
Echer, Mary E., t.....	80
Edwards, William H., and wife, t.....	2 00
Forser, William, o.....	1 00
Fields, William A., and wife, t.....	116 45
Flashman, F. E., and wife, t.....	2 00
Frank, Harrison, and wife, t.....	5 33
Frank, Omar, and wife, t.....	13 15
Frank, Levi, and wife, t.....	5 00
Fuller, John, and wife, t.....	5 00
Ferguson, Sister, t.....	25
Garbet, William, t.....	5 00
Goodwin, Mrs. C. M., t.....	100 00
Goodrow, Elizabeth, t.....	1 50
Goheen, Israel, and wife, t.....	50
Greer, Mary Jane, t.....	20
Greer, Michael E., t.....	10
Hall, Warren, t.....	50
Hall, Ernest, and wife, t.....	5 00
Hanson, Isadore, t.....	55 00
Hanson, Christian, t.....	55 00
Harder, Eugene, and wife, t.....	15 00
Harper, Thomas, and wife, t.....	15 00
Harper, John, t.....	2 00
Healey, Welcome, and wife, t.....	10 00
Hogle, Agnes, o.....	5 00
Ives, Brother, and wife, t.....	25
Jack, George, t.....	5 00
Janson, Cora A., t.....	20 00
Janson, Elsie O., t.....	3 00
Jergenson, Martin, t.....	30 00
Kier, Thomas, t.....	1 00
Kilbourn, Susan, t.....	5 50
Kinsey, Bessie, t.....	25
Kinsey, Lizzie, t.....	25
Kinsey, Alvin, and wife, t.....	25
Kinsey, Dora, t.....	25
Kipinger, Maud, t.....	50
Koyl, George, and wife, t.....	2 50
Koyl, Minnie, t.....	1 00
Lake, Charles, and wife, t.....	10 00
Lake, Victoria, t.....	7 00
Laur, Matz, and wife, t.....	1 00
Lent, George, and wife, t.....	1 50
Lent, John, t.....	1 50
Leithwait, James, and wife, t.....	2 05
Leithwait, Nellie, t.....	75
Manning, David, and wife, t.....	7 00
Mardin, Nettie, t.....	1 50
Mardin, Ruth, t.....	5 25
Maynard, Bliza, t.....	2 00
Merritt, Charles, and wife, t.....	75
Methner, Fred F., t.....	11 80
Methner, Frank F., and wife, t.....	45 00
Miller, Bertha, t.....	1 00
Mogg, John, t.....	19 00
Mogg, Ortesste, t.....	10 00
Mogg, George, and wife, t.....	5 00
Monroe, Blanche, t.....	1 00
Monroe, T. M., and wife, t.....	5 00
Morgan, Serrean, t.....	50
Morgan, Nettie, t.....	50
Morgan, Joseph, and wife, t.....	3 00
McColum, Charles, and wife, t.....	50
McCormick, Mabie, t.....	7 50
McDonald, Trabels, and wife, t.....	30 00
McIntosh, Matilda, t.....	1 00
McLargan, Daniel, t.....	1 00
McQuade, Ethel, t.....	25
Naab, William, and wife, t.....	4 50
Newberry, Alfred, t.....	35
Nichols, Ernest, and wife, t.....	15 00
Norcross, E. S., and wife, t.....	7 00
Norcross, Gladis, t.....	5 00
Norton, Ezra, and wife, t.....	1 00
Norton, Dowlight, and wife, t.....	7 75
Norton, Otta, t.....	25
Norton, Pearl, t.....	1 00
Notter, Nellie, t.....	25 00
Oesch, Samuel, and wife, t.....	25 00
Osburn, Sydna, and wife, t.....	1 00
Owens, Henrietta, t.....	1 75
Paul, Charles, t.....	1 00
Pendleton, Samuel, and wife, t.....	20 25
Perry, Arthur, and wife, t.....	30 00
Peterson, Fred, and wife, t.....	25
Peterson, Leo, t.....	2 00
Phelps, Elizabeth, t.....	1 80
Phelps, Gland, t.....	75
Phelps, Lydia, t.....	50
Phillips, Nancy, t.....	6 00
Pringle, George A., and wife, t.....	100 00
Provoast, Will, t.....	1 00
Provoast, Myrtle, t.....	50
Ranney, George, and wife, t.....	5 00
Remster, Frank, and wife, t.....	3 00
Remster, John, and wife, t.....	107 27
Reves, Edward, and wife, t.....	2 00
Richardson, John, t.....	51
Richardson, Henry, and wife, t.....	2 00
Richardson, S. C., t.....	5 00
Roe, Ephraim, and wife, t.....	6 75
Rowe, Asa, and wife, t.....	1 00
Rosavis, Guy L., and wife, t.....	20 00
Rouse, Wellington, t.....	25 00
Russell, Mrs. Bert, t.....	5 00
Shattuck, Elizabeth, t.....	4 00
Sheffer, Joseph, and wife, t.....	55 00
Sheffer, Josephine, t.....	50
Sheffer, Irvin, t.....	1 00
Shenkel, Fred, t.....	15 00
Shoultz, Tarcia, t.....	1 00
Simons, R. A., and wife, t.....	7 00
Simons, Seymore, and wife, t.....	5 00
Sles, John, and wife, t.....	14 00
Smith, Kate, t.....	1 00
Smith, David, and wife, t.....	2 00
Smith, Mrs. Filando, t.....	75
Smith, Judson, and wife, t.....	13 25
Sommerfeld, Michael, jr., t.....	2 30
Sommerfeld, George, t.....	3 35
Stark, Noel, and wife, t.....	5 40
Stewart, John, and wife, t.....	2 00
Stewart, Richard, and wife, t.....	12 00
Storks, William, sen., t.....	25
Sturbrook, Harry, and wife, t.....	5 50
Sylvester, Frank, and wife, t.....	1 40
Tessman, Charles, and wife, t.....	1 00
Tessman, Lillie, t.....	1 50
Thomas, Frank, and wife, t.....	2 00
Ulman, Mary Ann, t.....	80
Ulman, Joseph, and wife, t.....	8 77
Umphry, Susan, t.....	3 00
Umphry, Caroline, t.....	4 00
Umphry, Matthew, and wife, t.....	14 50
Umphry, Libbie, t.....	27 00
Vennard, William, t.....	5 00
Ward, Robert, and wife, t.....	6 55
Welch, Lewis E., and wife, t.....	1 25
Wheeler, Bell, t.....	1 50
Wheeler, O. J., and wife, t.....	9 00
White, Lillie, t.....	9 00
White, George, t.....	1 00
White, Nellie, t.....	5 00
Whitford, Elizabeth, t.....	3 00
Wiley, Glenn, and wife, t.....	26 19
Willis, Thomas E., t.....	25
Windiate, D. R., and wife, t.....	1 00
Woods, Clara, t.....	5 00
Yager, Nona, t.....	20
Yager, D. R., t.....	25 00
Yager, Horatio, and wife, t.....	9 25
Yager, Francis, and wife, t.....	15 25
Youngs, Deby, t.....	10 00
Total.....	$2,080 18

Smith, F. A., e.....	20 00
Yager, Henry, a.....	25 00
Postage.....	25 96
Incidentals.....	19 87
Total.....	$1,090 18
Due church.....	90 03

Eastern District.

W. F. Smith, Agent.

Receipts.
Balance due church December 31, 1910.....	$673 69
Allen, George, t.....	88 00
Allen, Hannah, t.....	2 00
Allen, Sarah, t.....	2 00
Andrews, Lizzie, t.....	7 70
Anderson, Cora, t.....	7 00
Baxter, F. H., and wife, t.....	12 00
Bailey, J. J., and wife, t.....	10 00
Bailey, Frank, and wife, t.....	10 00
Barss, Alexander, t.....	5 00
Becker, Marie, o.....	51 00
Becker, Marie, t.....	28 00
Bellislie, Paul, and wife, t.....	3 00
Benjamin, Jennie, t.....	1 00
Benedict, Frank O., t.....	26 90
Benedict, Phebe, t.....	2 00
Benedict, Andrew, t.....	5 00
Bennett, Walter L., and wife, t.....	12 50
Blasdel, Zella, t.....	20 00
Bropa, Margaret, t.....	10 00
Brakie, Isabella, t.....	2 50
Breakie, Isabella, o.....	1 00
Brown, Mrs. Thomas, t.....	9 22
Brown, Ida M., t.....	60 00
Brown, Robert, jr., t.....	40 00
Brown, Margaret, t.....	6 00
Brown, John, and wife, t.....	5 00
Brown, Arthur J., and wife, t.....	10 00
Brown, George, t.....	10 00
Brown, Elva, t.....	10 00
Burth, David, and wife, t.....	1 00
Buchanan, Caroline, t.....	2 00
Burley, Charles, and wife, t.....	2 00
Burley, Samuel, t.....	50
Burley, Martha, t.....	1 50
Cadow, Fred W., t.....	5 00
Cadow, Cathrin, t.....	5 00
Carpenter, Laura E., t.....	10 00
Carleton, Eliza, t.....	5 00
Carr, Julius, t.....	2 00
Carr, Myron, and wife, t.....	6 00
Carr, Mary, t.....	10 00
Carpenter, Joseph, t.....	2 00
Campbell, H. H., and wife, t.....	15 00
Campbell, D. G., t.....	50 00
Campbell, W. J., and wife, t.....	170 00
Chapman, Benjamin, t.....	2 00
Chute, Mrs. Henry, t.....	22 60
Clark, George, and wife, t.....	5 00
Cline, G. W., ret. l., t.....	15 00
Cline, Albert, and wife, t.....	15 00
Cline, Cynthia, t.....	15 00
Collins, Frankie, t.....	1 00
Cornish, Lucelia, t.....	6 50
Conklin, Grace, t.....	1 00
Conklin, William, and wife, t.....	20 00
Conklin, Howard, t.....	5 00
Corbett, Mary J., t.....	5 00
Cummins, Mary, t.....	1 68
Cummins, Lizzie, t.....	1 66
Cummins, Edley, t.....	1 36
Cummins, Emily, t.....	5 00
Day, Mrs. W. L., t.....	1 00
Day, Mary, t.....	11 50
Day, Maggie, t.....	5 00
Day, Willie, o.....	3 00
Day, Willie, t.....	1 50
Davis, Hattie, o.....	1 50
Davis, Edward, and wife, t.....	5 00
Davis, Mrs. William, t.....	5 85
Davis, William, and wife, t.....	11 70
Davis, J. W., t.....	10 00
Daut, Robert, t.....	1 00
Derby, Ella, t.....	1 50
Dempster, Thomas, t.....	5 00
Dowker, Hannah, t.....	1 00
Dowker, David E., and wife, t.....	2 50
Diem, E. R., and wife, t.....	70 00
Diem, Robert, and wife, t.....	30 00
Dlem, Bruno, and wife, t.....	25 00
Drager, Fred A., t.....	10 00
Drager, Fred A., o.....	3 00
Dutcher, H. G., and wife, t.....	30 00
Dutcher, Helen, t.....	10 00
Emlaw, J. J., and wife, t.....	2 00
Emlaw, Juddie, jr., t.....	50
Farley, John, and wife, t.....	20 00
Fetting, August, sen., t.....	2 00
Fetting, Mrs. Otto, t.....	5 00
Fetting, Otto, t.....	25 00
Fetting, Mary, t.....	10 00
Fetting, Albert, and wife, t.....	50 00
Fisher, Alice, t.....	10 00
Forbes, Thomas, t.....	43 00
Frisbie, Ray A., and wife, t.....	5 00
French, Aaron, t.....	5 00
Gault, James, and wife, t.....	2 25
Gault, Clyde, and wife, t.....	1 00
Gibson, B. J., and wife, t.....	5 00
Good, Pheba, t.....	2 00
Goheen, Ellen, t.....	5 00
Grice, J. R., and wife, t.....	5 00
Grice, Lena, t.....	3 65
Grice, Mrs. William, t.....	1 25
Grant, C. U. and Phebe, t.....	47 00
Grant, Goldie, t.....	7 20
Grant, Alma B., t.....	10 00
Grinshaw, Electa, t.....	1 50
Green, Jennie, t.....	3 00
Guy, Ann, and wife, t.....	2 00
Hawn, Arley, t.....	1 00
Hawn, O. J., and wife, t.....	12 56
Harder, Byron C., and wife, t.....	5 00
Harder, George W., and wife, t.....	10 00
Harder, Ralph A., t.....	58 00
Harriman, J. B., and wife, t.....	140 00
Hanscom, Winnifred, t.....	7 30
Hanscom, Winnifred, o.....	2 70
Hartzler, Henry, t.....	2 00
Harder, Howard W., t.....	77 10
Harder, Nevada, t.....	5 00
Harder, F. Z., and wife, t.....	10 00
Harvey, Anna, t.....	50 00
Hartnell, Elizabeth, t.....	16 00
Hartnell, Elizabeth, o.....	1 00
Hinton, Cathrin, t.....	1 50
Heaviland, Edward, and wife, t.....	14 00
Hoard, Irena, t.....	2 50
Huston, R. H., and wife, t.....	22 00
Hunter, Jean, t.....	8 00
Hunter, Elizzena, t.....	1 50
Hunter, Elizzena, o.....	50
Hutchins, William, and wife, t.....	2 00
Hutchins, Herbert R., t.....	47 00
Irwin, Pearl, t.....	12 00
Isles, Mrs. William, t.....	2 50
Janrow, Lewis, and wife, t.....	5 00
Jess, William, and wife, t.....	5 00
Jones, Mrs. George, t.....	8 00
Jones, W. C., and wife, t.....	60 00
Jones, Allen J., and wife, t.....	50 00
Jones, Alice, t.....	50
Johnson, George L., and wife, t.....	4 00
Kasdorf, Mrs. Fred, t.....	5 00
Keens, Christopher, t.....	20 00
Kile, Henrietta, t.....	1 00
King, Eliza, t.....	5 00
Kohel, Emma, t.....	5 00
Krouse, Fred, and wife, t.....	5 00
Lakin, George, t.....	15 00
Ladies' Aid, McGregor, o.....	5 00
Ledsworth, Calvin, and wife, t.....	5 00
Levitt, Agnes, t.....	5 00
Levitt, Isaac, t.....	50 00
Lewis, Delbert, t.....	5 00
Lewis, Anna L., t.....	12 00
Lewis, Erma, t.....	1 00
Leverton, Mrs. Arthur, t.....	15 00
Liscum, Adelaide, t.....	15 00
Lively, Maria A., t.....	1 00
Lively, Arthur, t.....	1 00
Lively, Henry, t.....	1 00
McClaren, Henry, and wife, t.....	10 00
McColum, Jeanette, t.....	2 00
McColum, Gertrude, t.....	1 43
McCough, Clarice, o.....	1 25
McDonald, Peter, o.....	5 00
McGar, R. H., t.....	17 00
McGregor, Adam, t.....	10 00
McIntosh, Arthur, and wife, t.....	20 00
McIntosh, Earl, t.....	1 00
McIntosh, t.....	3 00
McInnes, t.....	2 00
McKenzie, Margaret, t.....	2 00
McKenzie, Lucinda, t.....	9 00
McKever, Mrs. M., t.....	2 00
McTaggart, William, and wife, t.....	23 10
McTaggart, Alfred, t.....	7 75
McDonald, Murdock, t.....	15 00
Marshall, Albert, t.....	2 00
Marshall, Lena C., t.....	50
Marshall, Mrs. George E., t.....	1 00
Marshall, George, and wife, sen., t.....	2 00
Maxwell, Edward, and wife, t.....	1 50
Maezel, John, and wife, t.....	40 00
Martin, Anna, t.....	2 00
Myers, G. W., and wife, t.....	20 00
Miller, Gustave, t.....	1 00
Miller, Thomas, and wife, t.....	7 00
Mills, John, and wife, t.....	15 00
Morrison, Sarah, t.....	2 00
Morell, Ellis, t.....	25
Morehead, Orday H., t.....	25
Munro, Robert, t.....	25
Muir, H. E. C., and wife, t.....	19 50
Muir, Blanch, t.....	6 00
Muir, Joseph N., and wife, t.....	19 00
Newell, Cathrin, t.....	5 00
O'Brien, Joseph, and wife, t.....	46 00

Expenditures.

Kelley, E. L., bishop.....	$200 00
Agent's expenses.....	96 70
Burt, G. W., f.....	400 00
Burt, George W., e.....	64 20
Burr, A. B., f.....	240 00
Burr, A. B., e.....	50 00
Cooper, Sister, a.....	16 10
Campbell, Brother, a.....	7 68
Dowker, Hannah, f.....	236 00
Dowker, William, e.....	20 00
Fultz, E. D., a.....	5 00
Furgison, Sister, a.....	17 00
Grant, J. A., f.....	90 00
Hemminway, M., a.....	1 10
Ives, Amos, a.....	5 00
Paul, Charles, a.....	2 00
Pendleton, Samuel, a.....	1 50
Rown, Sister, a.....	10 00
Sheffer, Joseph, a.....	1 04
Smith, David, f.....	436 00

O'Brien, T. H., t.	2 00
Orma, Sarah, o.	5 00
Orme, Robert, and wife, t.	30 90
Overstreet, Cora, t.	10 00
Pangman, James, t.	5 00
Pangman, Orin, t.	2 00
Parker, Viola, t.	1 50
Parker, Silas, t.	5 00
Peer, Hattie, t.	1 50
Pearson, Barbara, t.	3 50
Phillips, Maud, t.	10 00
Phillips, Minnie, t.	1 00
Phetpface, B. F., and wife, t.	10 00
Plato, Jason V., and wife, t.	10 00
Popplewell, William, t.	4 00
Provost, Willam, and wife, t.	5 00
Rauh, Fred W., and wife, t.	13 29
Reeves, Winnie, t.	5 00
Reeves, Gomer, t.	1 25
Reeves, Sarah, t.	4 00
Ripberger, Charles, and wife, t.	42 00
Riley, David, t.	1 00
Rich, William, and wife, t.	10 00
Rohde, Mrs. G. C., t.	10 00
Rushon, Mrs. S. J., t.	3 00
Rushon, W. J., and wife, t.	10 50
Sage, W. F., t.	4 00
Schubner, Philip, t.	8 00
Schar, V. D., and wife, t.	3 00
Simkiss, Frederick, and wife, t.	5 00
Sherman, George, and wife, t.	25 00
Shaw, Martha A. M., t.	1 00
Sheuffelt, May, t.	2 55
Schribner, Anna, t.	1 00
Screviner, Charles, and wife, t.	20 00
Sherman, C. E., o.	5 00
Sherman, W. J., t.	1 00
Sheffer, Henry, and wife, t.	10 00
Skinner, Mae, t.	21 00
Skinner, George, t.	40 00
Skinner, Martha J., t.	20 00
Smith, W. L., and wife, t.	10 00
Smith, Charles, and wife, t.	1 00
Smith, E. J., and wife, t.	50 00
Smith, A. H., t.	1 00
Smith, George, and wife, t.	2 00
Smith, W. F., and wife, t.	11 00
Stewart, H. C., and wife, t.	6 00
Stark, Dora, t.	10 00
Stickney, Mrs. James, t.	7 50
Stevens, F. C., and wife, t.	2 05
Summers, Tennyson, and wife, t.	45 00
Summers, Ann, t.	10 00
Surbrook, Lula, t.	2 00
Surbrook, W. A., and wife, t.	170 00
Surbrook, Harry, and wife, t.	20 00
Sweet, J. L., t.	11 00
Sweet, Elizabeth, t.	5 00
Swoffer, Charles, t.	2 00
Taylor, D. M., and wife, t.	5 00
Tebeau, William, t.	1 00
Terry, L. A., and wife, t.	20 00
Thomas, Emma, t.	10 00
Thompson, Orvil, t.	5 00
Tremain, Elizabeth, t.	2 50
Tree, Frank E., and wife, t.	1 00
Voiz, Mrs. Charles, t.	10 00
Voiz, Jacob, and wife, t.	200 00
Voiz, Emma, t.	12 00
Voiz, Fred, and wife, t.	100 00
Voiz, Mrs. Fred, t.	15 00
Voiz, William, and wife, t.	125 00
Washburn, A. L., and wife, t.	1 50
Wade, Mrs. Dan, t.	2 00
Wade, Stella, t.	50 00
Wade, John D., t.	25 00
Walters, Mary M., t.	5 00
Warren, Edna, t.	4 10
Webb, George, and wife, t.	2 00
Weaver, Edward W., and wife, t.	67 00
Weaver, R. D., t.	15 30
Weaver, R. D., o.	1 00
Weaver, R. D., c.	10 00
Wess, Prudence B., t.	8 00
Westly, Howard, and wife, t.	3 00
Wellman, Olive, t.	5 00
White, Anna, t.	4 00
Whitford, C. C., and wife, t.	60 00
Williams, Bert, and wife, t.	3 00
Winters, C. A., and wife, t.	12 00
Wilson, Maud, t.	5 00
Wood, Robert, and wife, t.	50 00
Wyman, Ray E., t.	9 00
Wyman, Charles, t.	88 00
Wyman, Eugene, and wife, t.	4 00
Young, Lottie, t.	1 00
Zepke, Gus, t.	10 40
Total	$4,707 74

Expenditures.
Allen, Arthur, e.	$ 20 00
Allen, Arthur, f.	472 00
Albertson, Elizabeth, a.	25 00

Barr, Andrew, f.	72 00
Bailey, J. T., t.	240 00
Davis, William, f.	438 00
Davis, William, e.	15 00
Dowker, D. E., f.	240 00
Dowker, D. E., ex f.	30 00
Etzenhouser, R., f.	480 00
Hawn, O. J., f.	468 00
Hawn, O. J., e.	20 00
Peters, Mary, a.	2 00
Simkiss, Fred, l.	25 00
Stevenson, John, a.	4 10
Smith, F. A., e.	40 00
Sage, George, a.	10 00
Webb, Mrs. A. B., a.	100 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop.	1,100 00
Agent's expenses	7 51
Total	$3,726 61
Due church	981 13

Northern District.
John C. Goodman, Agent.

Receipts.
Aldread, Wesley, and wife	$ 57 73
Allen, William T.	8 45
Allen, Charles A.	5 00
Atkinson, Mildred E.	15 00
Atkinson, Thomas P.	7 00
Armstead, Elsie	3 60
Barney, Jimima	10 00
Barney, Jimima, o.	2 00
Barker, Edna B.	2 50
Barker, Edna B., o.	50 00
Barney, William	15 00
Bashaw, Lewis	1 00
Bashaw, Agnes, o.	25 00
Bashaw, Ellen	2 00
Blackmore, Edward	10 00
Boyblator	15 44
Brearly, Matthew, and wife	7 00
Brearly, Martha	05 00
Burch, David D., and wife	1 50
Burch, Cecil	14 00
Caffey, Theo., and wife, t.	1 94
Carpenter, James A., and wife	20 88
Carpenter, James William	46 00
Carpenter, James William	50 00
Cease, Eleanor	10 00
Davidson, Mary, o.	25 00
Deacon, Alice	3 00
Derenzy, Will, and wife.	6 00
Dudley, Leonard, and wife	6 00
Dudley, Caroline	2 25
Dunlop, William, and wife.	2 50
Ecker, George H.	20 50
Ellis, Lucian, and wife.	14 20
Emmans, Mary A.	1 00
Emmans, William H.	1 00
Emmel, Ellen	3 50
Emmel, Andrew	25 00
Flanders, Andrew	1 00
Ford, Charles, and wife.	5 00
Francis, William, and wife.	1 00
Gagle, Katherine	5 00
Gillmore, Esther	50 00
Goodman, John C., and wife	49 20
Goodman, Margaret	3 00
Graves, Katherine	5 00
Grace, Mrs. John	5 00
Grosett, Billy Ray	25 00
Harper, Nohb, and Bessie.	46 92
Harper, John, and wife.	6 10
Hardy, Thomas	75 00
Hardy, Anna	5 00
Heller, Anna	3 50
Hunt, Thomas, and wife.	15 00
Joslyn, George H.	12 00
Joslyn, Alice M.	9 00
Joslyn, Alice M., o.	5 50
King, Sophrona	75 00
La Fayette, Julia	10 95
La Lone, John	10 00
Lavery, Alvin, and wife	12 00
Lavery, Susan	1 00
Light, John	5 00
Lusk, Charles, and wife.	2 16
Matthews, Anna	1 05
Matthews, Fannie	1 00
Metcalf, Lydia	30 00
Meyers, Fred, o.	50 00
Moran, John, and wife.	10 00
Moran, Robert, and wife.	10 00
McAllister, Coda	16 00
McAllister, Coda, o.	3 00
McArthur, Lula	2 75
McCann, Emma Bailey	5 00
McCaw, Mary	20 00
McClain, William, and wife	49 75
McClain, William, and wife	15 00
McClain, Clara	2 00
McClain, Clara, o.	3 00
McClain, Lewis A.	20 80
McKinnon, Dora	6 18
McKinnon, Hechter	6 18
McKinnon, Charles H.	7 00
McLennan, Murdock	10 00
McNair, Mary	2 10
McNair, Jack	52 00

McNally, Emily J.	5 25
McWain, Almira	1 40
Odell, Ellsworth	1 00
Ogden, Minnie	5 00
Onaway Branch, oblation.	2 90
Orton, Madora A.	2 70
Orton, Gertrude	20 00
Orton, Mayme	7 50
Orton, Earnest	7 50
Oswalt, Edna	3 00
Parrott, Abraham, and wife	5 00
Parke, Charles, and wife.	9 00
Parks, Novella	10 00
Potland, Thomas	10 00
Randall, Lydia A.	4 50
Rands, Maud, o.	25 00
Rea, Mary	10 00
Richardson, Lizzie	1 00
Rudd, Cyril	2 27
Russell, Joseph J., and wife	7 00
Schoolcraft, Florence	20 00
Small, May J.	75 00
Shay, Claudia	2 50
Smith, D. Anna	20 00
Starkes, Arthur E.	21 35
Stillwell, Rosella	50 00
St. John, Laura	2 25
St. John, Laura, o.	85 00
Thoms, George W., and wife	5 00
Torsch, Goffred	45 00
Washburn, George D., and wife	1 85 00
Washburn, Bertha	1 00
Washburn, Edwin	1 00
Whiteford, Gladys	12 65
Wiggins, Jonathan	47 00
Wiles, William	3 00
Wilks, Pearl	2 00
Wisner, John	1 00
Total	$645 30

Expenditures.
Balance due agent Decem-ber 31, 1910	$ 23 91
Blackmore, James, f.	252 00
Blackmore, James, e.	10 00
Ellis, A. R., f.	216 00
Ellis, A. R., e.	16 00
Goodman, John C., e.	33 50
Hanson, John, f.	232 00
St. John, Benjamin, f.	100 00
St. John, Benjamin, e.	5 00
Smith, F. A., e.	10 00
Washburn, Edwin, a.	5 00
Agent's expenses	3 58
Total	$606 99
Due church	38 31

Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana District.
Samuel Stroh, Agent.

Receipts.
Balance due church De-cember 31, 1910	$ 4 24
Scattered Saints.
A friend	21 00
Ackley, Emily, t.	1 00
Bucley, Walter P., and wife, t.	4 35
Farrington, Sampson, and wife, t.	350 00
Hoyt, Lyle	2 00
Johnson, Mark, t.	10 00
Tong, Clarence, and wife, t.	5 00
Tong, Clarence, and wife.	25 00
White, Loren A., and wife, t.	16 00
White, Laura, t.	5 00
Ward, Asa A., and wife, t.	10 00
Alto Branch.
Dyrgert, Loren A., t.	5 00
Dyrgert, Mrs. Charles, t.	5 00
Ellis, Roxie M., t.	10 00
Ellis, William, t.	4 00
Ellis, Maces	5 00
Sparta Branch.
English, Carrie, t.	10 00
Gooderham, Charles, and wife, t.	10 00
Lankheet, Richard J., t.	50 00
Norton, Mary I., t.	16 60
Wismer, Catherine, t.	2 00
Wismer, Catherine	1 00
Walter, Ida, t.	1 00
Capital City Branch.
Dalley, Alvenia J., t.	2 00
Johnson, Sister J. A., t.	4 25
Premo, Mrs. Grant, t.	5 00
Parmer, H. L., and wife, t.	2 00
Roark, John, and wife, t.	41 00
Smith, Nathan, and wife, t.	5 00
Smith, Nathan, and wife.	25 00
White, Matilda A., t.	10 00
Yourn, Fred, and wife, t.	5 00

Grand Rapids Branch.
Evans, Edgar K., and wife, t.	1 00
Gray, Daniel, and wife, t.	10 00
Knox Branch.
Cannon, Fred, and wife, t.	20 00
Cannon, Glona, t.	8 00
Lohae, Bertha, t.	7 00
Prettyman, J. Burton, and wife, t.	500 00
Pierson, Mollie, t.	7 00
Clear Lake Branch.
Bailey, E. Jane, t.	18 00
Bailey, Florence, t.	8 00
Benjamin, Allen, and wife, t.	30 50
Benjamin, Allen, and wife	1 25
Baker, Julia, t.	4 00
Bailey, Ellen	2 00
Bailey, Ada, t.	11 15
Bailey, Ella	50 00
Emrick, Mary	1 00
Folk, Alba, t.	5 00
Housman, Willard, W., t.	14 04
Housman, Nettie	42 00
Huss, Jay, and wife, t.	6 50
Landis, Annie, t.	18 00
Landis, Harriet, t.	8 00
Landis, Harriet	1 00
McMurphy, Vine	1 75
Smith, Wayne, and wife, t.	7 00
Smith, Priscilla, t.	5 59
Teeters, D. Benton, t.	21 50
Teeters, Susan	75 00
Belding Branch.
Aelick, James, and wife, t.	15 00
Garver, William T., and wife, t.	5 00
Hill, Nathan A., and wife, t.	8 50
Hill, Allen, and wife, t.	26 00
Hill, Maud, t.	1 00
Hill, Mary, t.	90 00
Lavery, Jerome, and wife, t.	6 00
Sparks, Mary	60 00
Thompson, Nellie, t.	2 00
Galen Branch.
Alcott, Catherine	50 00
Blakeslee, Edwin A.	8 00
Best, Emelia	1 00
Clark, Lydia, t.	12 50
Clark, Lydia	3 75
Clark, Winnie G.	60 00
Green, Charles, and wife, t.	25 00
Green, Charles, and wife.	2 93
Green, Ola	1 25
Green, Bessie, t.	1 00
Green, Bessie	45 00
Green, Bernice, t.	10 00
Green, Bernice	45 00
Hooper, Mary, t.	30 00
Halter, Hazel	75 00
Harner, Permelia	5 00
McKnight, Agnes, t.	1 00
McKnight, Agnes	1 25
Moody, Esther	25 00
Most, Sarah	50 00
Stoner, Hattie B.	1 00
Shetterly, Agnes	1 00
Trell, Laura, t.	5 00
Tritt, J. J., and wife, t.	20 00
Marcellus Branch.
Drake, Nancy, t.	2 00
Goodenough, Miriel, t.	3 00
Goodenough, Amanda, t.	2 00
Goodenough, Vernie, t.	2 80
Coldwater Branch.
A friend, t.	40 00
Corless, Hiram, and wife, t.	1280 30
Corless, Hiram, and wife.	1 00
Crandall, Maud, t.	5 00
Davis, Vera, t.	55 55
Farmer, Grace	50 00
Freeman, Carl B., t.	8 50
Fay, Lorenzo, t.	5 00
Hamilton, John W.	25 00
Johnson, Melvin, and wife, t.	3 00
Lockerby, Cornelia, t.	5 00
Murphy, Carrie, t.	5 00
Stroh, Samuel, and wife.	2 00
Stroh, George F.	1 00
Van Patton, Lula, t.	15 00
Willard, Vine	25 00
Wicks, Mary	1 00
Buchanan Branch.
Bell, Bertha	50 00
Exner, Iva	65 00
Kiefer, John W., t.	4 75
Kiefer, Lena, t.	4 75
Most, Sarah	95 00
Richardson, H. A.	60 50
Richardson, Bessie	1 00
Hollings, Roxey, t.	1 00
Shook, Joseph	2 55
Shook, Caroline	1 20
Total	$1,942 87

Brown, Martha K., t. 112 00
 Brown, Martha K., o. 8 00
 Buxford Branch, oblation . . 45
 Bean, L. L. 15 00
 Bean, Elsie 5 00
 Bean, J. E. and W. E. 25 00
 Binstead, B. E., and wife. 10 00
 Beendahl, Robert, and wife. 10 00
 Brackenbury, Brother, and wife 50
 Brooks, Mabel 10 00
 Bailey, Albert 1 80
 Constance, J. S. 5 85
 Constance, S. H. 11 25
 Constance, Samuel 1 50
 Constance, W. B. 40 10
 Cosby, Lulu 3 00
 Craven, J. D. 50 00
 Cora, Mary 7 00
 Childers, Lizzie 50
 Clay, William 10 00
 Christiansen, Lars 30 00
 Dice, B. J. 50 00
 Dody, D. D. 25 00
 Elvert, J. C. 100 00
 Ersson, O. A., and wife. 50 00
 Ehlers, Mrs. August 35
 Ennis, Herbert D., and wife 3 00
 Far West Branch, oblation 13 69
 Fairbanks, Mrs. J. M. 1 00
 Foster, Guy L. 2 00
 Franklin, J. M. 6 75
 Flanders, W. R. 2 05
 Ferguson, Thomas 50 00
 Ferguson, L. F. 10 00
 Faul, C. P. 50 00
 Francis, Sister 1 80
 Fifer, Roy, and wife 5 00
 Fishburn, Herbert A. 10 00
 First Branch, St. Joseph, oblation 74 32
 Goodrich, W. M. 25 00
 Gear, Viola 2 00
 Goff, Josephine 2 00
 Gazell, Dora 1 00
 Goben, Ora 1 00
 Hinderks, Mary H. 28 60
 Hinderks, Omer C., and wife 10 00
 Hinderks, Moses H. 50 00
 Hinderks, Elias 600 00
 Hovenga, Trinky 20 00
 Hamann, C. C., and wife. 25 00
 Hamann, William, sen 100 00
 Harshorn, Leroy F. 13 50
 Hines, Amelia 5 00
 Head, M. J., and wife 2 00
 Holmes, Charles, and wife 4 00
 Hovenga, John 100 00
 Holmes, Lillie May 1 00
 Hawkins, Mary C. 10 00
 Hodson, W. S., and wife. 2 50
 Hill, Clarence 10
 Hamann, Henry E., and wife 56 00
 Jones, Robert 1 00
 Johnson, Telke 5 00
 Johnson, Henry H. 283 00
 Johnson, August 10 00
 Jeffries, Annie 10 00
 Jones, Orval 80
 Jones, Ora 80
 Ladies' A. Society,
 Saint Joseph 15 00
 Longsdorf, B. O., and wife 30 00
 Lewis, Anna 10 00
 Lewis, Emma 20 00
 Lewis, Carrie M. 25 00
 Lawton, J. S. 6 00
 Liggitt, Brother, and wife 5 00
 Milligan, May 6 00
 McCallum, Celia 146 00
 Middleton, John 50 00
 Mauzey, George W., and wife 10 00
 McKee, Belle 9 25
 McCord, Arch B., and wife 25 00
 McLove, Truman 25 00
 Mason, Vira 6 00
 McNitt, Ferdinand J. 10 00
 McNitt, Mrs. J. Ferdinand 10 00
 McNitt, Lena 10 00
 McNutt, Hugh O. 10 00
 McCormick, Elmer E., and wife 88 00
 Martin, Clara 4 00
 Nesser, John, and wife. 10 00
 Pickering, W. P. 1 00
 Pickering, Mrs. W. P. 1 00
 Pleasant Grove Branch, oblation 1 67
 Powell, D. B. 5 00
 Palfrey, Fred, and wife 60 00
 Piepergerdes, John 100 00
 Pugsley, Paul H., and wife 10 00
 Ruoff, A. 22 00
 Ranes, J. H., and wife. 10 00
 Rogers, P. I. 101 00
 Rapp, Fred 10 00

Richardson, A. A., and family 5 00
 Sloan, Sherman J. 80 00
 Simmons, S. H. 21 00
 Smider, Coleman 100 00
 Squires, J. H., and wife 35 00
 Summerfield, G. A., and W. A. 10 00
 Schoff, George 5 00
 Schoff, Louise 2 00
 St. Lewis, A. 10 00
 Spillman, Henry, and wife 2 00
 Spillman, Christina 0 00
 Saint Joseph, Third Branch, oblation 18 20
 Saint Joseph, Second Branch, oblation 18 43
 Taylor, A. M. 61 51
 Scott, Mary 5 00
 Smith, Nellie 5 00
 Tilden, Mrs. John P. 7 43
 Taddicken, Henry, and wife 18 00
 Stone, Sister 11 00
 Uphoff, Helen 4 00
 Uphoff, Adella 5 00
 Uphoff, Thilie 10 00
 Warden, W. H. 5 00
 Warden, J. Oliver, and wife 5 00
 Wilke, Margaret 45 00
 Wilke, Arthur 5 00
 Vail, Lemuel 11 00
 Name withheld 15
 Total $4,389 42

Expenditures.
 Anderson, Peter, f $556 00
 Davis, John f 326 00
 Davis, Mrs. O. C., a 15 00
 Dunn, H. C., a 5 00
 Elvert, J. C., a 10 00
 Goodrich, V. M., f 478 00
 Guyer, Mrs. W. H., a 35 00
 Garlich, Sister, a 9 10
 Harpe, Charles E., f 376 00
 Harpe, Charles E., e 15 00
 Hensen, E. L., f 416 00
 Hayes, Mary E., a 10 00
 Johnson, Mrs. Nancy, a 5 00
 Johnson, Mrs. Cella, a 10 00
 Kelley, E. L., bishop 250 00
 Lewis, William, f 316 00
 Lewis, William, e 15 00
 Luff, J. 70 00
 Mullins, Laura, a 10 00
 McWilliams, G. R., a 12 85
 Pickering, W. P., e 65 00
 Pickering, W. P., f 316 00
 Parker, Brother, a 25 00
 Roberts, I. N., e 72 00
 Roberts, I. N., f 273 00
 Roberts, J. A., f 316 00
 Roberts, J. A., e 15 00
 Summerfield, Mrs. W. E., f 120 00
 Smith, Henrietta, a 59 00
 Total $4,200 95
 Due church 188 47

Independence Stake.

R. May, Bishop.
 Receipts.
 Balance due church December 31, 1910 $1,970 71
 Ayers, Clarence W., t 86 00
 Abraham, Nels, t 209 00
 Ashbaugh, Ed, t 3 00
 Adams, Charles W., t 13 00
 Aylor, William M., and wife, t 150 00
 Ahern, Lewis, t 3 50
 Anderson, Benjamin M., t 50 00
 Austin, Elbert, t 5 40
 Anderson, Anton, and wife, t 58 50
 Bullard, W. D., and wife, t 1240 11
 Becket, William T., t 35 00
 Booker, Henry, t 5 00
 Bozarth, Alice, t 3 00
 Rydwold, Julia, t 11 53
 Buschaw, A. A., t 15 00
 Blankenship, Eliot, t 6 00
 Bennett, James, and wife, t 3 00
 Beal, A. M., and wife, t 24 50
 Berg, Augusta, t 27 00
 Bozarth, John E., t 25 00
 Bullard, Richard, Jr., t 2 00
 Bozarth, Rothford E., t 5 00
 Bronson, W. G., t 6 00
 Babcock, D. D., t 50
 Barrett, George, and wife, t 1 00
 Bayer, Alex., t 300 00
 Badder, H. J., and wife, t 5 00
 Bailey, Allen, t 1 75
 Burrows, George, t 5 00
 Rootman, H. J., t 2 00
 Creek, Thomas, and wife, t 300 00
 Creek, William, and wife, t 200 00
 Creek, Madeline, t 40
 Cockerly, John M., t 82
 Conolly, Robert C., t 20 00
 Cook, Charles, t 60 00
 Conklin, Goddan 5 00

Clemensen, James, t 18 00
 Clark, C. J., t 1 00
 Cook, M. E., t 5 00
 Conklin, Neri, t 5 00
 Crayne, May B., t 20 00
 Calms, William, t 1 00
 Cox, Andrew, t 1 50
 Crow, David, t 20 00
 Clark, Ann, t 5 00
 Curtis, William, t 10 00
 Clark, Ann, t 5 60
 Cook, Bessie, t 3 50
 Craft, Florence, t 1 00
 Cayne, Robert G., t 5 00
 Curkle, Mary E., t 5 00
 Clay, Robert, t 40 63
 Cleveland, Fred, and wife, t 3 00
 Campbell, Willis, t 5 00
 Coleman, J. A., t 5 00
 Christensen, A. A., t 10 00
 Christie, F. G., t 1 00
 Cobuly, F. C., t 1 00
 Chaburn, Mrs. T. W., t 1 73
 Davis, Ethel B., t 25 24
 Dempsey, Senterlow, t 80 00
 Davis, Eugene A., t 11 60
 Dobie, F. T., t 6 00
 Dempsey, Albert L., t 7 50
 Macken, Mrs. L. H., t 2 00
 Dark, Laura, t 1 25
 DeTray, Donald E., t 1 38
 Douglas, John, t 5 00
 Devore, Ella, t 2 75
 Dillon, Georgia, t 5 00
 Dunn, Letty, t 1 55
 Davis, Matthew, and wife, t 7 00
 Duncan, W. A., and wife, t 46 00
 Dunn, Letta, t 1 00
 Dickson, J. I., t 3 00
 DeTray, Emille L., t 17
 Deek, John, t 2 00
 Dooley, Hattie, t 5 00
 Pfenhouser, M. A., t 17 50
 Pfenhouser, R. D., t 5 00
 Edwards, Mrs. William, t 11 00
 Emmett, Mrs. Joseph, t 1 50
 Erickson, G. E., t 1 50
 Eriek, Bertha H., t 11 25
 Fisher, Sister R. L., t 17 50
 Fowler, L. A., t 100 00
 Fender, Ed., and wife, t 50 00
 Faler, Sarah, t 4 40
 Franklin, Nepth, and wife, t 15 00
 Fann, Elizabeth F., t 5 00
 Ferguson, Martha, t 1 50
 Fletkenger, Ellen, t 2 00
 Eriek, George, t 5 00
 Flynn, Helen, t 1 00
 Farrar, E. B., t 1 45
 Gopher, Ralph E., t 18 50
 Glimpore, William E., t 9 00
 Graham, William J., t 2 50
 Girrand, Maud, t 2 00
 Glimpore, Yanna, t 2 00
 Glimpore, Mary, t 2 00
 Caswell, S. B., t 2 00
 Caswell, W. H., t 50
 Gopher, Theo., t 5 00
 Glimpore, Mrs. Marshal, t 2 00
 Gopher, L. E., t 4 54
 Gopher, Charles A., and wife, t 10 00
 Gopher, Fred J., t 75 00
 Gopher, John V., t 22 91
 Gould, W. H., t 2 00
 Gray, James T., and wife, t 10 00
 Gibson, Mrs. M., t 5 00
 Gobel, T. T., t 2 50
 Hanson, Oliver, t 35 10
 Hanson, Oliver, team and wagon 200 00
 Hamington, G. E., and wife, t 5 30
 Hafflen, E. G., and wife, t 6 00
 Hughes, Leticia, t 2 20
 Hunkins, John, t 22 50
 Hande, A. B., t 14 00
 Handke, William, t 2 00
 Handke, Belle, t 3 35
 Handke, M. P., t 7 35
 Handke, Joseph, and wife, t 3 00
 Handke, Vira, t 14 00
 Handke, A. J., and wife, t 5 00
 Handke, A. T., and wife, t 5 00
 Handke, Sister J. E., t 6 75
 Harte, C. M., t 4 00
 Handke, O. E., t 10 00
 Hand, Charles, and Fannie, t 10 00
 Handke, Fred C., t 17 50
 Handke, Amy C., t 15 00
 Handke, David, t 100 00
 Handke, Jesse A., t 10 00
 Handke, Erskin M., t 10 75
 Handke, Mrs. George, t 20 00
 Hand, Rebecca, t 5 00
 Hand, Sister M. S., t 32 88
 Hans, Mary A., t 10 00
 Handke, John, sen., t 10 00
 Hans, Robert, t 15 00
 Kamm, Robert, and wife, t 95 00
 Kirby, Joseph, t 81 50
 Kenworthy, A., and wife, t 4 55

Kennedy, J. A., t 30 00
 Kalor, Asa, t 55
 Knisely, Alice, t 60 00
 Koontz, Paul, t 2 00
 Kenty, Alex., and wife, t 10 00
 Ludwig, Edgar P., t 7 00
 Largent, Bessie, t 35 00
 Loveless, Mary, t 50
 Ladies' Aid Society, Holden 4 00
 Long, George L., t 15 65
 Lloyd, E. W., and wife, t 25 00
 Luff, John Joseph, and wife, t 21 93
 Larson, Erich, and wife, t 22 00
 Luff, Mrs. John, t 2 00
 Lloyd, J. Ray, t 4 65
 Lovell, John, and wife, t 5 00
 Lentell, Thomas C., t 5 25
 Moneymaker, Francis, t 2 00
 Moorman, Oscar, t 5 00
 Moorman, Eva, t 6 00
 Martin, Alice, t 5 00
 Mengel, Irvin E., t 106 40
 Moore, Margaret, t 4 85
 Minton, Ellis, t 15 00
 Moorman, E. L., and wife, t 40 00
 Macrae, Mrs. W. S., t 5 00
 Maddon, Nellie, t 2 75
 Madden, George, t 2 00
 Mills, H. R., t 15 58
 Mills, A. H., t 10 84
 Mosier, Laura, t 4 00
 Mosier, Nellie, t 2 00
 Muse, Margaret, t 2 00
 Moler, Francis, t 4 00
 Mannering, Laura, t 3 00
 McDonald, S. H., t 5 00
 McWethy, Fred, t 19 00
 McIntosh, Alex., and wife, sen., t 11 00
 McIntosh, Alex., and wife, jr., t 14 35
 McLarene, W. H., t 19 88
 Nederveld, Anna M., t 1 00
 Neiter, G. J., t 9 00
 Nunn, J. C., and wife, t 45 25
 Nicoll, Samuel, and wife, t 1102 00
 Olsen, Eben, t 19 78
 Owens, W. V., t 50 00
 Petre, Elmer E., t 92 80
 Price, Maud, t 50
 Palmer, Helen, t 3 00
 Palmer, Emmet N., t 1 65
 Pooler, William, t 9 00
 Petre, Heman, t 1 50
 Pooler, Emma M., t 9 20
 Perry, Charlotte, t 4 75
 Preston, S. J., and wife, t 30 00
 Pointer, J. G., and wife, t 15 00
 Peterson, Peter, t 53 00
 Petre, J. F., t 1 70
 Petre, Charles, and wife, t 10 00
 Roberts, Samuel, t 30 00
 Richards, E. T., t 3 51
 Ravell, Ulla, t 30
 Robertson, Margaret A., t 22 50
 Roberts, H. B., and wife, t 19 00
 Redfield, Hattie, t 25 00
 Redfield, Edward B., t 42 50
 Redfield, Mabel, t 3 00
 Reynolds, Bertha A., t 10
 Reynolds, Sarah E., t 2 00
 Redfield, Earl T., t 11 30
 Rush, Willis R., t 1 00
 Ravell, Wesley, t 160 00
 Roberts, Ada, t 5 00
 Spunk, Charles, t 1 00
 Smith, Lyman H., t 23 00
 Sterrett, Birdie, t 2 40
 Sterges, Sister J. R., t 7 00
 Smith, T. N., and wife, t 6 80
 Steele, Mary E., t 15 50
 Scott, B. J., and wife, t 4 00
 Shores, Maggie, t 1 00
 Shores, Btta, t 15
 Shores, Lydia, t 15
 Shores, Harold, t 15
 Six, Carrie, t 2 00
 Spaul, Martha, t 1 00
 Shaver, Mrs. L., t 12 00
 Simpson, Sister M. B., t 5 00
 Sweigert, Sister O., t 20 00
 Souders, P. B., and wife, t 12 50
 Shirk, Dan D., t 1 85
 Shady, Seth S., t 40 00
 Slocum, Elsie, t 4 10
 Stout, Joseph, t 10 20
 Smith, C. R., and wife, t 10 00
 Sterrett, Lillia, t 3 00
 Smith, E. F., t 1 50
 Steele, J. W., t 2 30
 Soderstodt, Anna, t 1 40
 Sandy, Harvey, t 40 00
 Sermon, W. M., t 100 00
 Shmel, Jessie, t 49 00
 Smart, Margaret, t 10 00
 Simpson, Catherine, t 5 00
 Smith, Catherine, t 5 00
 Sabin, Lenna, t 5 00
 Stewart, Jessie, t 50
 Shmitt, Catherine 5 30
 Smith, Alvin, t 23 31

Savage, F. M., t	10 00
Sterrett, W. G., t	5 00
Schimmel, J. J., t	2 00
Savage, Walter, t	17 00
Snider, Ruth, t	1 00
Thatcher, Emma, t	2 50
Townsend, Arthur, t	31 00
Truster, Nettie, t	1 50
Tousley, Jasper M., and wife, t	10 00
Truster, James L., t	15 00
Tucker, John, t	50 00
Thompson, H. B., t	25 00
Victory, William, t	100 00
Vanderwood, J. E., t	2 00
Wright, Sister C. M., t	4 50
Whitehead, Ella D., t	10 00
Weston, J. P., t	8 00
Wunch, Elijah, t	9 00
Waddell, Sister W. O., t	1 00
White, Mary A., t	30 00
Wilton, W. A., and wife, t	4 20
Willis, Jennie, t	2 50
Winn, Mrs. F. C., t	1 00

Accounts.

Lloyd, E. W., and wife.	50 00
Gardner, John A.	9 44
Beal, A. M.	65 00
Telephone calls	2 30
Bennington Heights Branch	40 57
Esslin, Mrs. L. J.	10 00
May, Roderick	50 00
Notary work B. J. Scott	12 85
Hayne, R. S.	5 00
Smith, H. O. (interest)	21 88
Canceled check	5 00
Parsons, A. H.	10 00
Etzenhouser, R.	167 50
Hamilton, Sister R. B.	10 00
Warrensburg agent	1 69
Scott, Phillip	75 00
Mason, Raymond	25 00
Carson, C. D.	50 00
Nelson, S. W.	10 00
Shores, Maggie	6 00
Independence Shale Brick Plant	5 35
Error on Horton, George, account	20 00
Cleveland, Fred	4 00
Vanderwood, J. E.	27 00
Independence Branch on Star account	2 21
Kelley, E. L., bishop.	10 00
Hansen, Oliver	50 00

Cemetery.

Willie, Sister M. J.	45 00
Doving, Emery	40 00
Smith, E. F.	25 00
Moore, M. M.	43 00
Post, James J.	25 00
Johnson and Son	1 35
Williams, S. E.	15 00
Thompson, G. F.	5 00
Esslin, Charles M.	25 00
Truster, James L.	13 00
Bradford, Sarah	15 00
Pettyjohn, G. W.	3 00
Curtis, Josiah	5 00
Sterrett, William G.	45 00
Malone, John	25 00
Moss, Nancy	10 00
Ritter, P. A.	3 00
Booker, W. R.	32 00
Bevis, Holmes J.	1 00
Mallenson, George	13 00
Stuck, D. W.	5 00
Austin, J. M.	30 00
Hobart, M. S.	17 00
Martin, William	10 00
Chabburn, Jonas	25 00
Bowen, Phoebe	10 00
Martin, A. T.	10 00
Pine, Sister E. H.	15 00
Thatcher, Albert	30 00
Bishop, Mrs. C. A.	9 00
Laing, I. B.	1 50
Carson, C. D.	12 00
Hathaway	5 50
Greswald	3 50
Passmore, Mary E.	10 00
Williams, Charles	3 00
Dallin, Robert J.	9 00
Smith, Sister J. B.	18 00
Mitchell, Rachel	9 00
Hook, Kyle	5 00
Merrill, Sister Alva	10 00
Givens, Mrs. Dan	5 00
Chapman, Bess May	5 00
Gould, George A.	10 00
Newkirk, Roy	2 25
Dickenson, Caroline	8 00
Harris, Charles A.	8 00
Sheck, C.	16 00
Potter, J. D.	10 00
Latta, Sister J. L.	3 00
Craig, Mrs. M. E.	45 00

Oblations.
Englewood Mission	5 00
Chelsea Park	10 38
Holden	20 11
Second Independence Branch	37 47
Armstrong	3 65
First Kansas City	20 99
Independence	138 87
Second Kansas City	12 24
Bennington Heights	6 44
Quindaro	2 95
Warrensburg	6 82
Lees Summit	3 78
Malvern Hill	4 28
Tent Fund.
Second Independence Branch	11 50
Warrensburg	6 00
Pleasant View	7 00
Armstrong	21 50
Dobie, F. T.	3 00
Holden	34 00
Second Kansas City	12 51
Bennington Heights	4 20
Malvern Hill	2 50
Quindaro	2 50
Post Oak	2 00
Lees Summit	6 05
Argentine	4 42
Independence	125 00
Knobnoster	6 50
First Kansas City	6 05
Chelsea Park	7 25
Unaccounted for	13 30
Total	$9,559 58

Expenditures.
Allowances.
May, Roderick	$165 00
Garrett, W. H.	120 00
Knisley, Elizabeth	40 00
Smith, Edgar H.	100 00
Scott, E. J.	102 00
Kaler, John	202 00
Parsons, A. H.	125 00
Hamilton, G. E.	174 00
Clatburn, T. W.	92 00
Smith, H. O.	72 00
Kemp, Henry	100 00
White, Ammon	120 00
Curtis, J. F.	243 00
Kelley, T. C.	160 00
White, I. N.	125 00
Bond, M. H.	72 00
Smith, W. R.	275 00
Petre, J. F.	87 00
Aylor William M.	80 00
Dubose, J. W.	27 00
Metcalif, J. W.	37 00
Vanderwood, J. E.	44 00
Price, J. D.	26 00
Bullard, Richard	32 00
Aid.
Bell, May	9 45
Babcock, D. D.	46 76
Baker, Anna	5 00
Blakesley, J. A.	13 25
Benard, Peter C.	21 43
Burch, Ellen	48 50
Booker, Henry	5 00
Beal, F. J.	2 15
Bush, J. W.	4 55
Blah, Charles	5 00
Booker, John	5 00
Cairns, William P.	39 00
Chappelow, C. W.	11 75
Chapman, Bess May	5 00
Davis, Nellie, for Townsley	44 45
Dungee, F. G.	104 19
Dotty, John, sen.	12 25
Dell, Ling	10 00
Davis, J. A.	5 00
Dallin, Robert J.	9 00
Edwards, George	29 00
Ellison, Fannie	3 00
Pauls, C. M.	48 00
Givens, Dan, sen.	48 88
Green, James	148 75
Herman, Mrs. A. B.	103 01
Horton, George	65 16
Hewitt, William	30 25
Hancock, G. W.	54 50
Hughes, Lottie	17 75
Hayne, R. S.	10 00
Hill, John	11 50
Hughes, Maud	5 90
Hook, Kyle	5 00
Halderman, Mrs. L. A.	8 00
Johnson, Bessie	162 90
Johnson, J. T.	30 00
Jensen, Sybil	10 00
Johnson, Nancy	30 80
Jenks, P.	24 29
Knisley, Elizabeth	10 00
Kern, Nora	10 00
Layland, Ella	40 00
Layland, Jordan	116 25
Merrill, Mrs. A.	13 70

Milborn, Nora	17 00
Moxon, Mrs. Fryberg	34 00
Martin, Alice	10 00
Mitchell, Rachel	9 00
McGea, Ella	9 00
McCarty, Lewis M.	64 10
McCarty, C. H.	6 00
Price, Maud	12 00
Frasmore, Mary E.	48 00
Rudd, Mrs. H. A.	28 00
Ross, John	20 00
Rogers, Phillip	5 00
Richards, Louise	10 00
Richard, Mrs. Frank	1 32
Riddol, Sister	7 50
Searcliff, Elizabeth	35 20
Smith, Edith	9 00
Smith, Carrie	3 75
Smith, Mrs. J. B.	18 00
Shav, Marcus	10 00
Thomas, Parten	59 29
Taylor, John M.	2 25
Warnock, Mrs. M. E.	100 00
White, Valentine	10 00
Wilson, William H.	6 00
White, G. W.	29 00
White, Bert	10 00
Walls, Nancy	4 00
Ware, Sister S. F.	5 00
Wiggins, Sister J. S.	5 60
Wild, John L.	8 00
Wilborn, Nora	3 00
Yockey, S. S.	5 00

Accounts.
White, Valentine	10 00
Bennington Heights Branch	22 40
Giltspie, John	30 00
Lloyd, E. W.	50 00
Orצר of Enoch	4 63
May, Roderick	521 00
Drury, Jonas	5 00
Etzenhouser, R.	151 01
Bush, Mary	10 00
Independence Shale Brick Plant	5 35
Hamilton, Sister R. B.	10 00
Cook, R. B.	10 00
Libert, toll on phone	1 50
Parsons, A. H.	10 00
Beal, A. M.	53 00
McDonald, Eliza	3 00
Mash, J. P.	7 50
Shore, Maggie	8 00
Scott, B. J.	20 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop.	200 00
Unaccounted for	111 48
Bell, Charles	8 00
Knobnoster Branch agent	45 00
Ahren, Lewis, and wife.	25 00
Brown, Mrs. Andrew	5 00
Roberts, Mary B.	15 00
Livery hire	1 50
Harpold, Sister E.	20 00
Johnson, Elijah J.	25 00
Bishop, Mrs. C. A.	9 00
Mason, Raymond	151 92
Scott, Phillip	25 00
Neilson, Mrs. S. W.	10 00
Independence Branch for Star	2 21
Adams, Charles	85 00

Cemetery.
Bowen, Scott	256 20
Home Telephone Company	6 00
Independence Water Co.	5 34
Jackson County Bank (interest)	37 00
Bronson & McCord	2 95
McDonald, Elbert	25 00
Horse feed	14 25
Coal	6 27
Horse shoeing	3 00
Grave straps	12 50
Half interest in horse	1 50
Cement	8 00
Sterrett, William G.	3 50
Repairing buggy	17 50
Hansen, Oliver	3 50
Tent Expense.
Lamp for tent	9 05
Incidentals	10 00
Chairs	71 00
Organ	26 50
Phone calls	1 00
Harington, G. E. e.	2 00
Draying	180 84
Tent and settees	3 50
Repairing organ	3 50
Bishop's Office.
Postage	11 00
Kindling and coal	13 38
Post office box rent	1 50
Bell Telephone Company	7 85
Telephone calls	1 75
Brush and glass	3 50
Kelley, Grace	5 00
Home Telephone Company	10 55
Phone tolls	25 00
Cleaning chimney	50 00

Independence Electric Light Company		3 84
Ensign Publishing House	16 61
Mills, H. R., and Son	2 85
Post Oak agent	1 00
Electric light	7 85
Supplies	2 25
Horse shoeing	2 78
Water tax	8 90
Nunn, Mrs. J. C., salary	25 25
Horse feed	12 50
Valle Pure Water Company	1 05
Bronson & McCord	1 05
Independence Ice Company	60 00
Repairing buggy	3 50
Repair on typewriter	1 00
Presidency Office.
Kindling and coal	10 99
Bell Telephone Company	9 35
Kelley, Grace	5 50
Home Telephone Company	9 50
Cleaning chimney	50 00
Independence Electric Light Company	3 79
Stationery	8 00
Postage	5 00
Ensign Publishing House	2 05
Water tax	8 90
Typewriter ribbon	75 00
Mills, H. R., and Son	1 34
Valle Pure Water Company	1 05
Independence Ice Company	55 00

Elders' Personal Expense.
May, Roderick	210 79
Harrington, G. E.	108 28
Bond, M. H.	50 00
Garrett, W. H.	26 15
Parsons, A. H.	152 50
Scott, B. J.	110 00
White, I. N.	40 00
Stake Expense.
Cleveland, Fred	75 00
Nunn, Mrs. J. C., His-torian expense	1 36
Lewis, C. G.	40 00
Ensign Publishing House	6 65
Elders' Traveling Expense.
Searcliff, C. F.	2 00
Total	$7,960 75
Due church from Roderick	$1,484 33
May	10 00
To B. J. Scott, counselors	114 50

Independence Stake.

A. H. Parsons and B. J. Scott, Counselors.
Receipts.
From R. May, bishop	$.114 50
Accounts.
Green, George W., for office fixtures	4 00
Fryburger, Amy A., return on aid	50 00
Handy, A. D., return loan	25 00
Stamps on hand sold	2 62
Beal, A. M., return loan	53 00
Bennington Heights Branch on lot	10 00
Clemenson, James, on loan	17 80
Whiting, W. W.	111 30
Johnson, Bessie, rent	4 00
Mash, J. P., return loan	9 75
Kelley, E. L., bishop	375 00
Drury, Jonas, deposit	5 00
Jacobs, C. F., rent on Walnut street house	12 00
Shore, Maggie, return on loan	1 00
Scott, B. J., notary work	2 75
Order of Enoch, on loan	5 13
Crull, W. R.	7 75
Andes, Elizabeth, t	100 00
Arber, Joseph, and wife, t	2 00
Ashbaugh, Henry L., and wife	65 00
Bronson, W. G., and wife, t	3 00
Bullard, W. D., and wife, t	10 00
Bullard, W. J., and wife, t	10 00
Barto, H. L., and wife, t	5 55
Brown, Sister R. S., t	5 00
Barrett, George, and wife, t	1 00
Bennett, Doctor J. S., t	10 00
Braidwood, Julia, t	3 70
Beal, A. M., and wife, t	5 00
Brown, Mary, t	35 00
Brown, W. S., t	3 37
Beebe, H. R., and wife, t	5 00
Brown, Helen, t	2 05
Barto, C. N., and wife, t	2 50
Brown, Doris, t	2 05
Cowley, Robert C.	30 00
Cook, Hattie, t	5 00
Cook, R. B., t	6 50
Crow, David, and wife, t	25 00
Crow, David, o.	5 00
Cook, Hattie, o.	2 00

Table of names and amounts: Cook, Bessie, 1 50; Cook, Mary E., 1 50; Carlson, William, 2 00; Callin, W. H., and wife, 7 00; Carstensen, Sarah A., 5 00; Campbell, Willis O., 10 00; Conklin, Nerl, 2 00; Christie, F. G., and wife, 1 75; Christensen, Albert A., 11 25; Carson, C. D., and wife, 25 00; Crayne, May, 5 00; Davis, Euger, A., 7 15; Davis, Alroy C., and wife, 10 00; Dempsey, Albert, 2 20; Dobie, F. T., 2 00; Dunn, Lettie, 2 00; Donaldson, Bertina L., 12 80; Daves, Viola L., 1 70; Dillie, A. K., and wife, 7 00; Davis, Mary A., 15 00; Durye, Sister F. C., 1 50; Douglas, John, 5 00; DeBerry, Thomas C., and wife, 3 60; Donaldson, Carl, 3 00; Etzhen, Sarah, 10 00; Etzhen, Alfred, 10 00; Beckles, John M., 02; Etzhen, M. A., and wife, 15 00; Fender, Ed, and wife, 10 00; Flickeger, Ellen, 2 00; Faulks, James, 2 00; Frick, Bertha, 5 00; Farrow, J. B., 27 50; Faler, O. C., and wife, 20 00; Farrar, Sister E. B., 2 00; Frick, George, 2 50; Furgenson, Martha, 60; Franklin, Nephi, and wife, 2 00; Gardner, John A., 7 00; Garrett, W. H., and wife, 1 09; Griffiths, Bernice M., 1 50; Gurwell, C. A., and wife, 10 00; Heyworth, David, 15 00; Holcomb, O. D., 10 00; Handy, A. B., 1 00; Hughes, Violetta J., 25; Highman, James, and wife, 10 00; Hawkins, John, 15 00; Hiles, George M., 2 00; Harrington, Joseph, 5 00; Hellon, Fred G., and wife, 5 00; Hulmes, Sister M. E., 3 60; Harrington, Leonard, 10 00; Isanacs, Mary A., 10 00; Inman, John, 2 00; James, Pauline I., 1 50; Jenkinson, Jay G., and wife, 5 00; James, S. M. E., 3 80; Jackson, John D., and wife, 67 00; Koontz, Paul, 2 00; Kolliesching, Max, and wife, 10 70; Kirby, Joseph, 9 00; Kemp, Robert, and wife, 20 00; Fourth Kansas City Branch, 03; Kelley, Margret, 12 00; Kelley, T. C., 50; Kepley, H. O., and wife, 5 00; Kenty, Alex., and wife, 10 00; Keplinger, Jacob, and wife, 50; Keplinger, James, and wife, 50; Larson, Andrew, 10 00; Lloyd, E. W., and wife, 8 00; Lloyd, Arthur, 01; Lentell, William, 5 00; Marton, K. B., 3 00; Martin, Alvin C., 1 00; Moneymaker, John, 20 00; Mannering, Lura, 3 00; Moneymaker, Frances, 127 00; Martin, Alice, 2 00; Myers, Andrew J., and wife, 5 00; May, Nephi, and wife, 5 00; McIntosh, Alex., and wife, 10 00; son, 10 00; McCord, R. A., and wife, 10 00; McCoy, Missouri, 10; McIntosh, Alex., and wife, jr., 5 75; McFadden, L. M., 1 00; McMurry, D. W., 2 00; Netter, George J., 2 00; Nanny, John W., and wife, 6 00; Nunn, J. C., and wife, 25 00; Nelson, Mrs. S. W., 3 00; Newcomb, Tamsa, 2 00; Nolan, Rebecca, 1 00; Ortek, Edith C., 50; Olsen, Samuel, 5 00; Price, Mand, 1 00; Parsons, Viola, 1 00; Palmer, E. W., 8 20; Pooler, William, and wife, 2 50; Roberts, H. B., and wife, 2 00

Table of names and amounts: Roberts, Samuel, and wife, 10 00; Robert, 2 00; Robertson, Margret, 2 00; Rudd, J. F., 6 38; Ravelli, Elva, 5 00; Ravelli, Wesley, 3 00; Roberts, Mary E. P., 3 00; Roberts, Ada, 1 00; Roell, Mrs. M., 1 00; Robinson, Mrs. J. A., sen., 1 00; Ravell, Ulla, 1 28; Raw, Francis, 05; Smith, T. N., and wife, 2 20; Soderstodt, Anna, 50; Sperry, Squire N., 10 00; Scott, Minnie E., 1 00; Stewart, Jessie, 3 85; Sterrett, C. E., 8 00; Shmit, Catherine, 5 00; Sweringer, Sr. O. A., 10 00; Shmel, Amasa, 45 00; Smith, C. E., and wife, 11 00; Smith, E. H., 1 00; Steele, Mary E., 3 00; Scott, J. H., 10 00; Shearer, George, 10 00; Smith, Catherine, 5 00; Stout, Joseph, 75; Spangler, David, 1 00; Slocum, Elsie, 1 00; Scanlin, Frank, and wife, 1 00; Stable, Henry, 10 00; Spellam, Henry, 2 50; Toustey, Jasper M., and wife, 5 00; Tucker, D. E., and wife, 1 85; Toustey, George, 5 00; Tompson, Alice R., 1 50; Tomour, Jennie, 1 00; Thompson, Laban, 2 00; Taylor, Grace, 1 00; Townsend, E. A., 250 00; Tomason, P. O., 10 00; Welton, W. A., and wife, 14 00; Weston, W. J., 2 50; Williams, Nettie B., 1 50; White, Ammon, and wife, 50 00; Wright, Sister M. C. S., 1 00; Whitehead, Ella D., 2 00; Williams, M. B., 20 00; Willis, Jennie, 3 00; Wunch, Elijah, 11 00; Waddell, K. Mary, 1 10; Oblation, 1 60; Englewood Mission, 4 40; Quindaro Branch, 8 54; Post Oak Branch, 6 05; First Kansas City Branch, 5 17; Warrensburg Branch, 1 56; Bennington Heights Branch, 91 87; Second Independence Branch, 15 54; Second Kansas City Branch, 7 38; Armstrong Branch, 8 74; Holden Branch, 6 00; Chelsea Park Branch, 2 79; Tent Fund, 25 10; Independence Branch, 3 00; Highman and Company, 20 00; Curtis, J. F., 5 00; Hough, Daniel E., 45 00; Creston, William P., 10 00; Lloyd, E. W., for John Ross, 5 00; Bennett, C. L., by C. D. Carson, 10 00; Muir, James E., 23 00; BIRD, W. H., 25 00; Willgus, A. R., 20 00; Willgus, J. H., 66 00; Soderstodt, John, 5 00; Davis, Roy, 5 00; Anderson, George F., mowing machine, 10 00; Sheek, Chris, 4 00; Schulte, George H., 45 00; Snider, Ruth, 1 50; Dickinson, J. I., 28 00; Givens, Robert E., 31 00; Ballenger, S. R., 2 00; Johnson, Charles W., 9 00; Leaton, Mrs. M. M., 3 00; Boswell, L. J., by C. D. Carson, 8 00; Page, Albert, 5 00; Criley, Emma, 10 00; By error in bank balance, 02; Total, $3,036 88; Expenditures, Accounts, Handy, A. B., 5 00; Rogers, Philip, 3 50; Aherns, Lewis, 25 00; Malvern Hill Branch, 2 52; Whiting, W. W., 111 30

Table of names and amounts: Crull, W. L., 7 75; Johnson, Bessie, 4 00; Mash, J. F., 2 25; Milton, Bailey, 19 00; Bennington Heights Branch, 30 38; Scott, J. H., 2 00; Ball, A. M., 48 00; Kenworthy, A., 5 00; Allowances, Harrington, G. E., 78 00; White, I. N., 60 00; Bullard, Richard, 50 00; Dubose, J. W., 64 00; Curtis, J. F., 122 00; Price, J. D., 62 00; Parsons, A. H., 60 00; Smith, W. R., 125 00; Garrett, W. H., 50 00; Aylor, William M., 60 00; Charburn, T. W., 50 00; Keller, T. C., 74 00; Metcalf, J. W., 84 00; Scott, E. J., 74 00; Kemp, Henry, 50 00; Vandervoord, J. E., 84 00; Petre, J. F., 81 00; Kaler, John, 84 00; Snow, C. L., 108 00; Aid, Asbaugh, C. W., 10 00; Booker, Henry, 17 02; Chappelow, Sister, 1 50; Dell, Tina, 5 00; Ashton, Moroni, 8 80; Blakesley, H. A., 1 50; Dungee, F. G., 40 48; Faulks, C. M., 5 00; Givens, Mrs. Dan, 23 33; Green, James, 6 50; Herman, Mrs. A. B., 46 88; Hartcourt, Mrs. L., 1 50; Hill, Selena, 7 00; Hinderman, Mrs. L. A., 47 47; Horn, George, 60 78; Handy, A. B., 6 00; Johnson, Nancy, 12 00; Johnson, J. T., 10 00; Johnson, Phrona, 10 00; Kerns, Mrs. George, 15 00; Knisley, Elizabeth, 15 00; Jaffery, Mrs. E. R., 2 50; Layland, Jordan, 31 50; Lyle, Frances, 5 25; McGoon, William, 4 00; McCarty, Lewis, 93 95; Okerlind, Mrs., 1 50; Peck, Frank, 2 00; Shaw, E., 1 50; Simpson, Emma, 14 00; Smith, E. H., 1 50; Seareiff, Elizabeth, 15 50; Wild, John T., 1 00; Warmock, Minnie, 5 00; Wilborn, Nora, 16 50; Cemetery, Bowen, Scott, 115 75; Home Telephone Company, 2 00; Smith-White Company, 2 00; Bronson-McCord, 5 00; Jackson County Bank, 25 00; Mize Hardware Company, 4 00; Independence Water Co., 6 21; Horse feed, 30 97; McCurdy, J. A., 3 75; Willgus, J. H., 40 40; Willgus, J. H., 41 40; Skinner, W. O., 5 35; Bishopric's Office Expense, Bell Telephone Company, 4 80; Valle Pure Water Company, 1 25; Independence Ice Company, 1 13; Stamps, 4 81; Ensign Publishing House, 6 25; Home Telephone Company, 3 20; Broom for office, 50; Pledleton and Gentry, 65; Keys for office, 50; Post office box rent, 1 00; Repairing office chairs, 1 20; Coal oil, 1 20; Horse feed, 14 47; Electric Light Company, 9 75; Martin Parker, 1 00; Irving Pitt Company, 1 37; Stamps for agent, 10; Bar for horse, 10; Royal Typewriter Company, 75; Bronson-McCord, 60; Skinner, W. O., 6 70; Looking glass for office, 15; Stake Presidency's Office, Bell Telephone Company, 4 75; Independence Ice Company, 1 12; Home Telephone Company, 3 20; Mills, H. R., 75; Royal Typewriter Company, 75; Valle Pure Water Co., 1 25; Stamps, 1 07

Table of names and amounts: Electric Light Company, 44; Martin-Parker Company, 97; Elders' Expense, May, Roderick, 3 20; Parsons, A. H., 35 00; Harrington, G. E., 7 45; Garrett, W. H., 3 49; Scott, B. J., 30 00; White, I. N., 10 00; Stake Expense, Presidency, 8 48; Brown, W. S., 30 82; Tent Expense, Carnie-Coudie, tent, 180 84; Harrington for tent work, 16 00; Jenkins & Sons, rep. organ, 3 50; Elders' Traveling Expense, Bozarth, John E., 18 15; To Bishop Bullard, 152 27; Total, $3,036 88; R. Bullard, Bishop, Receipts, Bal. in pass book, $185 68; Checks not deposited, 27 50; 61 94; Checks unpaid, 275 12; Parsons & Scott acct, 118 30; Balance due church September 11, 1911, $156 82; Anderson, William, and wife, 50 00; Abraham, Nels, 100 00; Asbaugh, Charles W., and wife, 1 70; Adkins, Isa J., 3 00; Adkins, Gus O., 3 00; Anderson, Benjamin M., 50 00; Arber, Joseph, and wife, 3 00; Arber, Arvid, 1 00; Arber, Dorothy M., 50; Atkins, T. W., 50 00; Booker, J. L., 2 00; Bullard, Richard, and wife, jr., 3 00; Bullard, Richard, and wife, sen., 11 50; Bullard, Walter, 15 00; Bullard, W. D., and wife, 40 00; Brown, R. S., sen., 8 00; Barrett, George, and wife, 2 00; Buckley, Sister M., 3 00; Bond, Nellie M., 9 00; Bronson, W. G., and wife, 20 00; Brose, Paul J., 22 00; Brocker, John, 11 00; Beal, A. M., 24 00; Beal, A. M., on acct., 7 50; Biggs, Mrs. C. E., 1 00; Braidwood, Julia M., 4 64; Blair, W. A., and wife, 5 00; Blankenship, Dora, 3 00; Berg, Augusta, 30 00; Bowen, Cora, 4 00; Bushnell, W. A., and wife, 10 00; Bailey, Allen, 4 50; Bierlein, Martha, 4 30; Beebe, Jane, 5 00; Bird, William H., 5 00; Brendle, 7 00; Burgess, Robert E., 1 00; Bush, Mary, 60; Ballinger, Sarah E., 2 00; Badder, Henry J., 10 00; Caldwell, Sister L. P., 25; Campbell, Willis O., 25 00; Carson, George C., 2 00; Cook, Charles B., 104 25; Crow, David, and wife, 45 00; Cook, William, 45 00; Christie, F. G., and wife, 4 00; Cook, R. B., and wife, 10 00; Cook, Sister L., 3 00; Cook, Bessie, 3 00; Cook, Margie, 13 00; Cook, Lillie, 6 00; Christensen, A. A., 20 00; Carson, C. D., 15 00; Curtis, J. A., 3 00; Cleveland, J. Frederick, and wife, 1 50; Criel, Thomas, and wife, 25 00; Callin, W. H., and wife, 10 00; Cole, Edith, 4 00; Clow, Robert, 100 00; Clemenson, James F., 10 00; Clark, Anna, 18 25; Chatburn, Mrs. T. W., 1 10; Chatburn, William, 2 00; Crayne, May, 5 00; Carlson, Carl J., 4 50; Curtis, John T., 25 00; Chapman, Mrs. D. L., 20 00; Davis, Alroy C., 10 00; Dobie, F. T., 5 00

DeBerry, T. C., and wife...	5 00	Ketchum, George R.....	2 00	Spurlock, C. J.....	50	Cemetery.
Dunn, Lettie.....	2 00	Keplinger, Kate.....	1 00	Sheaver, George H.....	10 00	Carson, C. D., for Allie M.
Dempsey, Albert.....	2 10	Konny, Alex., and wife.....	10 00	Stewart, Jessie.....	1 50	Miller.....	0 00
Dennis, Angeline A.....	0 00	Konny, Alex., and wife.....	25	Scott, B. J., and wife.....	20 75	Scott, James H.....	25 00
Duroy, Sister F. C.....	1 00	Keplinger, James, and wife.....	1 00	Smith, T. N., and wife.....	3 30	Sheck, Chris.....	5 00
Deck, John.....	2 00	Kelley, W. H., and wife.....	5 00	Sterritt, H. B.....	50	Bullard, Harold.....	2 00
Dillee, Caleb.....	1 00	Kelley, E. L., bishop.....	40 00	Scott, James H.....	10 00	Johanson and Son.....	1 50
Deam, W. H., and wife.....	11 00	Knisley, Alice.....	11 90	Steele, J. W.....	2 00	Priest, C. D.....	5 00
Davis, Eugene A.....	5 00	Knisley, Alvin, and wife.....	5 00	Smith, B. C., and wife.....	10 00	Pine, E. H.....	8 00
Dubose, Mrs. J. W.....	25	Kaler, Sister John.....	9 00	Smith, Nora.....	1 50	Bullard, Richard, sen.....	7 00
Donaldson, Bertha.....	20 00	Kemp, James, and wife.....	3 00	Stafford, Elsie.....	5 00	Evans, Caleb B.....	49 00
Dickinson, Caroline F.....	1 20	Luff, Sister J. J.....	2 25	Steele, Frank.....	2 00	Bullard, Richard, jr.....	5 00
Dooley, Hattie.....	15 00	Lloyd, E. W.....	12 00	Savage, F. M. J.....	44 53	Creston, William P.....	15 00
Dishman, William.....	23 00	Layton, Irene.....	1 00	Schimmel, J. J.....	4 53	Parsons, Scott.....	5 00
Dark, Laura.....	40	Ladies' Aid, Holden.....	7 00	Smith, Rufus T., and wife.....	3 00	Callin, W. H.....	0 00
Deputy, Calvin.....	5 00	Loar, B. C. and Cora M.....	2 50	Smith, R. B., and wife.....	9 00	Bierlein, J. P.....	5 00
Ely, John, and wife.....	2 00	Lovell, Birdie.....	2 25	Smith, Ralph G., and wife.....	8 00	Drake, Harvey.....	25 00
Etzenhouser, Russel D., and wife.....	5 00	Loyd, Jesse O.....	4 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Total.....$5,631 27
Evans, Francis.....	5 00	Lyle, Fannie.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Expenditures.
Eckles, John M.....	16	Lloyd, Julia.....	2 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Ashbaugh, Sister C. W., a$	47 00
Eastwood, G. E.....	5 00	Lippencott, J. F., and wife.....	20 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Allison, A. N., a.....	12 00
Etzenhouser, Mrs. E.....	19 50	Lewis, William, and wife.....	40 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Ashton, Moroni, a.....	6 50
Etzenhouser, Virgil.....	15 60	Luff, John W.....	50 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Aylor, William M., f.....	100 00
Etzenhouser, M. A., and wife.....	12 50	Lee, Vernon W., and wife.....	10 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Burch, Ellen, a.....	25 00
Ely, William M.....	85	Martin, Alice.....	3 20	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Bell, Eliza, a.....	5 00
Erison, G. B.....	16 25	Martin, Sr. H. B.....	3 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Beal, A. M., acct.....	64 00
Ellison, Eleanor.....	100 00	Mills, Arthur, and wife.....	29 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Burrows, George, a.....	30 00
Fender, Ed, and wife.....	50 00	Martin, Alvin.....	2 50	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Booker, Henry, a.....	14 13
Fender, Fred E., and wife.....	16 00	Murphy, Harold L.....	6 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Bush, Mary, a.....	18 00
Fender, Americus.....	5 00	Murphy, R. F.....	30 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Bullinger, N. B., a.....	1 50
Fry, Orrin.....	1 00	Mumeymaker, Ticy.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Bond, M. H., f.....	12 50
Faler, Ora, and wife.....	5 00	Murray, Phoebe.....	22 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Bullard, Richard, sen, f.....	20 00
Faler, Neal.....	10	Matthewson, W. C.....	20 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Bullard, Richard, sen, e.....	15 00
Faler, Glenn and Eula.....	10	Mills, Sister H. R.....	80 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Cairns, William P., a.....	12 10
Faler, Sarah, t.....	10 80	Monroe, Norman R., and wife.....	14 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Cloffelter, Nettie, a.....	10 00
Faler, Sarah, c.....	77 37	Meggers, Henry, and wife.....	10 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Campbell, James F., a.....	28 74
Flower, Anna.....	1 00	Moodman Jane.....	13 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Campbell, James F., acct.....	5 00
Freslee, James L.....	15 00	Madden, George, and wife.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Curtis, J. F., f.....	234 00
Fishlock, Sophia.....	1 00	Morgan, A., and wife.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Chatburn, T. W., f.....	90 00
Franklin, Nepht.....	16 50	McCoy, Virginia.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Fausett, A. A.....	1 60
Frick, George W., and wife.....	6 50	McFadden, L. M., acct.....	15 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Dungee, F. G., a.....	81 47
Frick, Roland.....	3 25	McIntosh, Alex., and wife.....	5 50	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Dell, Tiny, a.....	24 75
Flinn, Hulda.....	5 00	McWethy, Fred.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Davis, Mrs. L., a.....	5 00
Frick, Bertha H.....	5 00	McIntosh, Catherine.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Drury, Jonas, acct.....	10 00
Farr, John B.....	5 00	McCord, R. A.....	10 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Dubose, J. W., f.....	125 00
Farr, Nellie G.....	6 14	Nesbitt, George W.....	20 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Grassby, Edith J., a.....	7 50
Garber, Fred J.....	100 00	Nesbitt, Bina.....	2 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Gillen, J. A., acct.....	20 00
Garber, J. A., and wife.....	3 50	Newcombe, Fannie.....	3 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Givens, Sister A.....	18 70
Garber, R. E.....	47 00	Newkirk, Roy E., and wife.....	11 50	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Green, James F., a.....	16 50
Gold, Samuel B., and wife.....	67 50	Nolan, Charles A.....	8 30	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Garrett, W. H., f.....	90 00
Golf, Chloe.....	1 00	Netter, George A.....	3 40	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Garrett, W. H., e.....	6 00
Gurwell, Charles A., and wife.....	70 65	Nanny, J. W.....	3 40	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Herman, Mrs. A. D., a.....	60 12
Golf, Sherman, and wife.....	1 00	Nunn, J. C., and wife.....	14 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Haldeman, Mrs. William, a	64 27
Griffiths, Bernice.....	3 10	Newton, Thomas.....	20 60	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Horton, George B. and Abbie, a.....	33 56
Goodfellow, J. W.....	1 00	Nederveldt, Anna.....	4 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Hughes, O. S., a.....	7 00
Goode, A. H., and wife.....	15 00	Nelson, Martha B.....	5 52	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Harrington, G. E., f.....	196 00
Garrett, W. H., and wife.....	11 50	Nelson, Leah R.....	60	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Harrington, G. E., e.....	50 00
Guinand, C. E.....	13 10	Odell, W. R.....	25	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Johanson, Nancy, a.....	15 90
Gillen, James A., acct.....	20 00	Oppelman, Henry.....	50	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Johanson, Phonia, a.....	2 15
Goodwin, J. C.....	10 00	Peak, J. A.....	2 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Johanson, John, a.....	5 00
Gubsen, Lizzie M.....	4 30	Parsons, A. H., and wife.....	15 20	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kairnes, W., a.....	9 29
Hobart, M. E., estate.....	30 00	Post, James, and wife.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kelley, E. L., bishop.....	467 50
Hobart, Mrs. T. C.....	15 00	Price, Maud.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kern, Nora.....	1 50
Hatch, Mrs. T. C.....	10 00	Pooler, Charles T., and wife.....	10 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Knisley, Elizabeth, a.....	20 00
Hanson, Vida.....	7 00	Pooler, Elmer E.....	25 73	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kennedy, Emma, a.....	8 75
Huckell, Elizabeth.....	5 00	Pointer, J. G., and wife.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kendrick, Ada E., a.....	7 00
Hartnell, William.....	3 00	Parker, E. J.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kenworthy, A. L., a.....	2 00
Hartnell, Clariotta.....	25 00	Painter, Maud C.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kemp, Henry, f.....	90 00
Hartnell, Polly.....	3 00	Pooler, Emma Mae.....	8 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kelley, T. C., f.....	150 00
Hiles, George M.....	1 00	Pooler, William, and wife.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Kaler, Mrs. John, f.....	170 00
Hudson, O. O.....	5 00	Parsons, Viola.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Layland, Jordan, a.....	71 50
Harrington, Joseph.....	20 00	Palmer, Emmet N., and wife.....	4 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Layland, Ella, a.....	33 00
Hepworth, David J.....	15 00	Peterson, Bert E.....	50 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Martin, Alice, a.....	17 00
Hawkins, John.....	3 00	Perry, Robert, and wife.....	2 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Monroe, Mrs. N. R., acct.....	8 00
Hefflon, F. G.....	5 00	Painter, Florence M.....	2 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	McCarty, Belle, a.....	22 95
Hobart, Pearl.....	20 00	Preston, S. J., and wife.....	22 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	McFadden, L. M., acct.....	15 00
Harring, George H.....	50 00	Roberts, Horace B., and wife.....	11 50	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Metcalf, J. W., f.....	175 00
Holsworth, Jesse A., and wife.....	10 00	Redfield, Forest.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Price, Maud, a.....	5 50
Hansev, Ida.....	3 00	Robinson, Mrs. J. A.....	4 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Parsons, H. F., i.....	10 00
Hulmes, Mrs. M. E.....	3 75	Resch, Clifton.....	20 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Parsons, A. H., e.....	29 05
Harvey, Charles.....	5 00	Roell, C.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Pierce, F. J., e.....	5 00
Horton, George and Abbie.....	1 00	Roell, Sister M.....	1 10	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Petre, J. F., f.....	125 00
Haas, L. H., and wife.....	15 00	Roberts, Ada.....	10 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Rudd, Sr. H. A., a.....	8 50
Howden, Mrs. Joseph.....	3 00	Ravell, John.....	25 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Rushton, J. W., sen., a.....	5 25
Harrington, George Leonard.....	7 50	Resch, Clarence A.....	1 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Roberts, John H., acct.....	15 00
Hutton, A. J., and wife.....	10 00	Resch, Orestas.....	8 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Roberts, John H., a.....	10 00
Hepworth, George J.....	10 00	Ravell, Wesley.....	27 71	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Simpson, Emma W., a.....	59 80
Harvey, Fred.....	15 00	Ravell, Mary O.....	1 60	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Scariff, Elizabeth, a.....	22 25
Highman, Mary.....	5 00	Roberts, Samuel, and wife.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Smith, J. M., a.....	10 00
Harrington, Edmund C.....	467 50	Rudd, J. F., and wife.....	26 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Spurlock, C. J., a.....	2 00
Hans, Ellison Hale.....	5 80	Roberts, Jesse A., and wife.....	2 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Severs, Mrs., a.....	1 90
Hards, J. P.....	10 00	Redfield, Eva Mae.....	3 30	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Scott, B. J., f.....	196 00
Hitchcock, George W.....	10 00	Redfield, Fattie L.....	11 95	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Scott, B. J., e.....	7 66
Inman, Sam.....	2 00	Reschfelt, Henry L.....	32 95	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Stegfried, Mark H., f.....	64 00
Johnson, John.....	5 00	Roberts, John H.....	16 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Stegfried, Mark H. e.....	3 00
Jenkinson, Jay G.....	5 00	Resch, Louis.....	76 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Snow, C. L., f.....	108 00
James, Mary E.....	3 60	Redfield, Pearl E.....	2 12	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Smith, W. R., f.....	225 00
James, Pauline I.....	1 00	Redfield, Sarah W.....	2 12	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Warnock, Minnie E., a.....	18 00
Jarred, Elizabeth.....	1 00	Redfield, Mabel A.....	3 25	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	White, George W., a.....	24 00
Jarred, Fannie.....	50	Redfield, Clarence L.....	1 30	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Walrath, William, a.....	2 00
Jones, Leona.....	2 50	Robertson, Margaret.....	3 25	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Watts, Nancy, a.....	2 00
Kenworthy, A., and wife.....	1 00	Rannie, Alma E.....	5 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Wilburn, Nora, a.....	27 43
Kirby, Joseph.....	13 50	Ringer, Harry.....	75 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	White, Bert H., a.....	3 00
Kemp, Robert, and wife.....	15 00	Rambo, William C.....	4 00	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	White, I. N., f.....	115 00
Krepley, Hugo O., and wife.....	3 50	Soderstedt, Anna.....	2 25	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50	Vanderwood, J. B., f.....	175 00
King, Thomas, and wife.....	1 00	Stoem, Elsie.....	2 50	Schwyers, Fred A., and wife.....	22 50

Bishop's Office Expense.

Box rent	60
Telephone	14 85
City Light Department..	1 35
Coal	10 42
Bronson & McCord	1 75
Stamps	4 16
Ensign Publishing House, property statements	2 75
W. F. Kennedy, horse shoeing	1 90
A. N. Allison, repairing chimney	3 00
May Grain Co., feed for horse	15 68
Mize Hardware Co., buggy seat	1 00
C. D. Crabtree, hauling kindling	1 00
Postage for Lexington and Warrensburg agents	24
A. H. Christianson, chang- ing sign on office	25
Calvin Swinney, labor in basement	1 00
J. E. Lewis, sand and cement for repairing flue	85

Stake Expense.

P. Rogers, repairing walk at Holden, church prop. organ	2 00
Jenkins Sons, repairing organ	1 00
Extra traveling expenses of stake officers	1 00
Independence Sash & Lum- ber Company	6 73
J. W. A. Bailey, street outfit	6 00
J. F. Mintun, for stake organ	10 00
J. E. Hilliard, freight and drayage on organ	1 20

Stake Secretary's Expense.

W. S. Brown, stipend	25 00
Stationery	3 51
Index file	2 70

Stake Presidency Expense.

Telephone	14 67
Postage stamps	3 25
Mileage for office use	12 50
Mileage for stake officers	4 55
Ensign Publishing House, letter heads, tracts, books	14 70
City Light Department	41
A. N. Allison, labor	1 00
H. R. Mills & Son	1 17
Bronson & McCord, miscel- laneous items	70
Independence Coal Mining Company	3 50
Calvin Swinney, labor on building	1 00
Independence Sash & Door Company	35

Accounts.

Whiting, W. W.	26 00
Wiltfong, J. D.	10 00
Kaler, John, funeral exp.	68 65
Masterson, Lewis	5 00
Otzenhouser, R.	40 22
Wright, M. C. S.	5 00

Cemetery.

Bowen, Scott M. s.	168 00
Shaw, George W., walks	56 25
Deads	4 00
Telephone	4 00
Kennedy, W. F., horse shoeing	1 85
Jackson County Bank int.	39 88
Independence Water Co.	6 84
Bronson & McCord	2 45
Smith-White Garage	1 00
Total	$5,031 81
Due church	599 46

Nodaway District.

J. T. Ford, Agent.

Receipts.

Received of former agt. $172 75
Beck, A. O., and wife, o.	1 00
Bond, William G., t.	25 00
Clester, W. H., t.	25 00
Clester, Ida E., t.	10 00
Clester, Etlice M., t.	5 00
Clester, Jessie W., t.	5 00
Fannon, Edward S., and wife, t.	25 00
Ford, Mary, t.	10 00
Ford, John T., and wife, t.	100 00
Hailey, Arthur, t.	5 00
Hawley, Alma, and wife, t.	50 00
Ivie, Tena, t.	1 00
Ivie, Thomas A., and wife.	25 00
Jensen, Andrew, and wife, t.	35 00
Jensen, Harry, t.	5 00
Jensen, Alec, t.	5 00

Jacobson, Andrew, and wife, t.	50 00
Kalstrup, Christian, and wife, t.	25 00
Kelley, Clara H., t.	10 00
Knudson, K. C., and wife, t.	25 00
Lorensen, Kas, and wife, t.	30 00
Meltbarger, James, and wife, t.	1 00
Nelson, C. C., and wife, t.	155 00
Nelson, Alma, t.	50 00
Nelson, John R., and wife, t.	10 00
Powell, Joseph W., and wife, t.	10 00
Powell, Vina, t.	10 00
Powell, Benjamin K., t.	10 00
Powell, Jane, t.	10 00
Ross, R. K., and wife, t.	50 00
Ross, Verna, t.	5 00
Ross, William T., t.	5 00
Rowlett, John, and wife, t.	5 00
Torrance, Caroline, t.	40 00
Torrance, W. B., t.	10 00
Wolford, Sarah, t.	2 00
Winslow, James E., t.	10 00
Total	$1,027 75

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses	$ 2 75
Kelley, W. H., e.	4 00
Kelley, W. H., f.	216 00
Silvers, A. C., f.	315 00
Showler, J. D.,	98 00
Total	$535 75
Due church	392 00

Northeastern District.

W. B. Richards, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church De- cember 31, 1910	$ 4 09
Byers, Paul, t.	16 75
Barnett, J. W., and wife, t.	50 00
Bogie, John, and wife, t.	1 00
Bogie, John V., t.	1 00
Chapman, William C., t.	3 00
Cochran, Rose, t.	17 05
Cochran, M. A., t.	1 00
Edmunds, Miles, o.	2 00
Edmunds, Charles, and wife, t.	12 00
Edmunds, Daniel, and wife, t.	1 00
Dockstader, F. A., and wife, t.	3 00
DeLung, F. O., and wife, t.	14 30
Frey, G. W., and wife, t.	55 00
Frey, G. W., and wife, o.	5 00
Fassnacht, John, and wife, t.	10 00
Foster, Jane Ann, t.	7 00
Graupner, J. W., and wife, t.	13 25
Hicklin, W. T., and wife, t.	112 00
Hill, Corinne, t.	50
Hill, Alice, t.	40
Hill, Marie, t.	40
Holver, Ruth, t.	1 50
Jones, David E., and wife, t.	2 00
Jones, Richard R., and wife, t.	20 00
Jones, Margaret, t.	9 69
Joyce, Samuel Jesse, and wife, t.	15 50
Johnson, Jessie, t.	2 00
Lilly, John, and wife, t.	2 50
Lewis, Lewis, and wife, t.	3 00
Lilly, William, t.	40 00
Lankford, C. F., a ret.	5 00
Mussell, F. T., and wife, t.	1 50
Miller, Elizabeth, t.	20 00
Maple, Eliza, t.	10 00
Minshall, Emma, t.	5 00
Morgan, Elizabeth J., t.	6 00
Miller, Sadie, t.	5 00
Pilkerton, Mary Ann, t.	3 00
Perkins, Robert L., and wife, t.	1 50
Runyan, Eugene, t.	50 00
Reesman, Florence, t.	20 00
Surridge, Ivor, and wife, t.	25 00
Surridge, Maggie, t.	14 50
Sharp, Ila, t.	10 00
Surridge, Mark, t.	1 00
Salver, J. W., and wife, t.	5 00
Simpson, George, t.	4 00
Triplett, Florence, t.	10 00
Thomas, Ed. B., t.	6 00
Tanner, Ben S., t.	13 00
Vansklike, John P., t.	17 50
Vaughn, W. T., t.	75 00
Williams, Hattie, t.	10 00
Ward, Emie, t.	9 00
Kelley, B. L., bishop	48 70
Bevier Branch, obligation	45 00
Higbee Branch, obligation	9 00
District obligation	6 28
Total	$861 91

Expenditures.

Henson, B. L., f.	$150 00
Kelley, W. H., (Independ- ence), f.	75 00
Kelley, W. H., e.	5 00
Richards, W. B., f.	321 00
Agent's expenses	3 25
Swenson, Sven, f.	160 00
Surridge, Laura, a.	10 00
Tanner, James, a.	69 00
Tent expenses	6 32
Total	$799 57
Due church	62 34

Southern District.

Benjamin Pearson, Agent.

Receipts.

Atkinson, J. C. and R. C., t.	$ 2 00
Boardman, M. N., t.	16 00
Bootman, Charles B., and wife, t.	6 00
Bateman, Melissa, t.	50
Brooner, Martha, t.	5 00
Davis, George A., t.	12 45
Davis, Sister E. S., t.	3 00
Frisbee, Gretchen, t.	1 00
Fritz, Homer J., t.	1 00
Gray, A. T., t.	10 00
Huntsman, G. A., and wife, t.	3 35
Hocutt, W. C., t.	5 00
Jordan, T. J., t.	5 00
Jordan, Lieu E., t.	5 00
Kemp, J. A., t.	6 80
Marshall, Allie, t.	50
Nesser, Sister, t.	1 00
Northrup, Fannie, t.	1 00
Pearson, Benjamin, and wife, t.	1 10
Quincy, J. W., t.	50 00
Sparling, Henry, t.	5 00
Sellers, J. W., t.	6 79
Total	$147 49

Expenditures.

Bateman, Melissa, a.	$ 5 00
Christenson, J. C. f.	100 00
Morford, Sr. E. B., a.	6 28
Smith, W. R., e.	5 00
Agent's expenses	1 90
Total	$118 18
Due church	29 31

Saint Louis District.

R. Archibald, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church De- cember 31, 1910	$ 66 74
Error last report, E. H. Crowson, t. $2.00, should have been $20.00	18 00
Archibald, R., t.	5 00
Beard, John, t.	55 00
Beard, John, e.	55 00
Billings, Mrs. J. J., t.	15 00
Boren, James, and wife, t.	5 00
Boren, Edgar, t.	3 80
Bortle, George H., t.	4 00
Bourzoret, Maria, t.	6 00
Bourzoret, Mary, t.	5 00
Boyce, L., and wife, t.	50 00
Brunshorst, H. W. and Esther T., t.	100 00
Carl, W. F., t.	2 10
Cheltenham Branch, obla.	11 57
Clayton, Elizabeth, t.	2 50
Cooke, Noah N., t.	15 00
Cooke, Sarah, o.	25
Cooke, Ivor, t.	15 00
Cosby, Mary, t.	1 00
Crudus, Anna, t.	200 09
Crudus, Anna, c.	200 06
Davies, Ivor, t.	15 00
Day, Benjamin B., t.	25
DeLong, Anna, t.	1 00
Doss, R. N., and wife, t.	10 00
Dowker, J. A., t.	2 50
Elliott, T. J., and wife, t.	20 00
Fairhurst, Anna, t.	5 00
Ferguson, Robert L., t.	5 00
French, Daniel and Laura, t.	5 00
Gale, Jacob F., t.	130 00
Gardner, Fannie, t.	5 83
Geeson, H. C., t.	60 42
Givnerod, Otis W. and Rosa E., t.	5 20
Hambleton, John, and wife, t.	328 70
Hansgrove, Walter and Florence, t.	171 80
Haverock, Walter and Florence, e.	3 20
Himmelmarg, M., t.	4 00
Houston, David, t.	3 50
Hull, John D., t.	15 00

Jacques, Richard and Florence, t.	173 72
Jacques, Richard and Florence, c.	5 00
James, Emie, o.	25
Johnson, Winnie, t.	21 00
Jones, J. T., jr., t.	40 00
Jones, J. T., sen., t.	20 00
Kemp, Belle, t.	2 00
Kendall, Mary Ann, t.	25 00
Lansdowne Branch, obla.	15 80
Lay, A. F., and wife, t.	13 00
Lehman, D. L., and wife, t.	84 00
Mantle, Bliza, t.	5 00
Mantle, Thomas and Eleanor, t.	144 70
Mantle, Thomas and Eleanor, c.	5 00
McBride, Ellen, Robert and Lillie, t.	260 00
McDonald, Mary, t.	10 00
McNealy, Lovie, t.	2 00
Meadows, Cora, t.	24 00
Meadows, Cora, c.	1 00
Molyneux, Elizabeth, o.	1 00
Motshaid, Fred, t.	10 00
Oak Hill Branch, o.	31 80
Owens, Mary M., o.	9 00
Owens, Leonard, t.	1 50
Parrish, Maud, t.	6 00
Parrish, Hazel, t.	5 00
Peach, James and Thoma- sina, t.	6 00
Peglar, George H., and wife, t.	51 00
Peters, Adelle, t.	5 00
Reeves, George, t.	40 00
Remington, C. J., t.	23 00
Roberts, Henry, t.	10 00
Saint Louis Branch, obla.	64 31
Scott, James, t.	3 00
Scott, Robert, t.	5 30
Shoup, Charles, t.	1 00
Shoup, Emma, t.	25
Shoup, W. W., t.	25
Sidwell, Roy, t.	37 80
Smith, Charles, and wife, t.	4 00
Smith, Louis P., t.	100 00
Smith, Mrs. O. G., t.	50 00
Sprotte, Alice, t.	100 00
Tandberg, Mabel, t.	1 00
Tandberg, Esther, t.	1 00
Thomas, Stella E., t.	4 00
Trowbridge, G. S., t.	42 20
Underwriter, Lorena, t.	3 00
Van, George M., and wife, t.	30 65
Vermillion, Mrs. W. L., t.	2 62
Volz, A. F. and Mary E., jr., t.	100 00
Volz, Ruth, t.	45 00
Walrod, Katie G., t.	10 00
Ward, J. R., t.	5 00
Ward, Mrs. J. R., t.	8 00
Whiteside, Mrs. C. T., t.	3 30
Whiteside, Mary, t.	15
Whiteside, William, t.	1 60
Whiting, Mary E., t.	2 00
Wild, Stella, t.	2 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop, (college fund retained) ..	10 91
Williams, John, and wife, t.	15 00
Wilson, Jeanette, o.	1 00
Total	$3,314 47

Expenditures.

Board, Albert E., a.	$ 10 00
Bullock children, a.	10 56
City of Saint Louis, special tax	6 00
Counts, R. H., f.	160 00
Dowker, J. A., e.	6 00
Dowker, J. A., f.	441 00
Jenkins, George, e.	25 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop	1,000 00
Kestler, George W., a.	15 40
Paxton, J. W., e.	30 00
Paxton, Mrs. J. W., f.	434 00
Rawley, F. L., e.	40 00
Rawley, F. L., f.	344 00
Sparling, Henry, f.	10 00
Sparling, Henry, f.	128 00
Total	$2,650 96
Due church	654 51

MONTANA.

Montana District.

Thomas Reese, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church De- cember 31, 1910 (cash) ..	$100 84
Balance due church De- cember 31, 1910, $5,584- 08, less $510 paid, (notes)	5,074 08
Allen, Ida, t.	5 00
Beck, Victoria, t.	5 00

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Beck, Josie, Bozeman Branch, Bills, Joseph R., Beck, J. W., District conference, Cazler, C. H., Christofferson, Emma, Davis, Margaret, Davey, Wilhelmina, Dodge, Alden M., Davis, S. A., Emmons, M. V., Esger, Eliza, Gains, Eliza, Eliason, Isaac, Eliason, John, Fell, Martha Ellen, Foster, Z. D., Fullerton, Arthur G., Green, Melissa, Green, A. J., Hanley, Gertie H., Hyatt, Robert G., Haskel, C. H., Johnson, John, Johnson, Mabel, Johnson, Jessie, James, Bessie E., Johnson, M., Jemison, J. F., Jones, Francis A., Kelley, E. L., Jr., Leibold, Robert, Murray, William J., Murray, Cella, Mason, Henry, Mauzer, James W., Meddleton, John, Newbey, R., Roll, Laura, Rasmussen, Walter, Rasmussen, Joseph, Rasmussen, Lizzie, Rasmussen, Mattie, Raymond, Mary H., Reese, Thomas, Spragg, G. A., Smith, Clara M., Sund, Carrie, Sacry, wife, Staffenson, Jacob, Thomander, Oscar, Wilson, Rosa, Wycoff, Anna, Whitney, Neil C.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Moore, William Shepard, Moore, Samantha B., Moore, Marlet B., Myers, J. L., Manchester, Frank J., Palmer, Mrs. William W., Slonecker, Blanch M., Slonecker, Nellie, Sprague, William, Stanley, E. J., Schrank, John, Willoughby, Mary, Vanalsyne, Louise.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Culbertson, Anna, Gamet, Levi, Prettyman, C. W., Smith, J. W.

Northern District.

H. S. Lytle, Agent.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910, Ahlstrand, Ed R., Ahlstrand, Sister Ed R., Bilyne, Alfred, Bilyne, Ellen, Case, W. Frank, Case, Bernard, Coffeen, Carroll, Condit, David, Deards, Sister C. H., Edwards, Ann, Gatros, Isaac, Himeline, Silvia, Hicks, T. A., Hecks, Margaret A., Hill, William N., Huff, James, Jensen, Sister J. P., Keck, Elizabeth, Lytle, Ivan B., Lytle, Herbert S., Larson, Edward, Larson, Minnie, Lewis, Ether, Murie, George, Marteeny, Lloyd, Marsh, Ellen, Peterson, Mike A., Peterson, Emery, Poffer, Anna M., Rumel, Raymond, Rumel, Nicholas, Snow, Leon, Staff, Arthur E., Staff, Mary, Satterfield, Rachel, Watkins, Susan.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Agent's expenses, Baker, J. M., Baker, J. M., Bilyne, Marcus, Kelley, E. L., Suttou, J. R., Suttou, J. R., Trusler, Sister James.

Southern District.

C. H. Porter, Agent.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910, Armbruster, William, Armstrong, Jeanette, Andrews, Blanche I., Anderson, Mrs. P. B., Anderson, A. P., Anderson, Hannah K., Benson, Lula, Blodgett, Caleb, Brelliar, Samuel, Christy, Elizabeth A., Cox, Alice, Cox, Ella, Dibble, Nellie, Dielendorf, Rena, Duvalvy, Martha, Ervin, Nancy J., Everett, George and Annie, Faunce, Frank.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Faunce, Ruby, Fromming, H. C., Fitten, Annie B., Graf, Adaline, Graf, David, Grubb, Earl, Grubb, Stella, Grubb, William E., Higgins, Harmon A., Jarrad, Rachel, Johnson, Nellie E., Keller, Henrietta, Keller, Edna, Munsell, J. Guy, Meredith, Mary J., Orr, Margaret S., Parr, Amy, Porter, Laura A., Porter, Carrine, Porter, Mrs. C. H., Sarratt, Anna A., Savage, Wilber, Self, Walter M., Stingley, Mary, Spear, Charles and Della, Trank, Vada, Waldsmith, J. W., White, Henry and Gertie, White, Robert, Woolsey, Emma, Wyckoff, Jessie.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Agent's expenses, Hanson, Paul M., Insurance, Kelley, E. L., Porter, C. H., Perrin, James, Porter, C. H., Rannie, Edward, Rannie, Edward, Self, W. M., Sutton, J. R., Taxes, Waldsmith, J. W., Due church.

Western Nebraska and Black Hills District.

Bert E. Hart, Agent.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Rarkdall, Ralph, Godfrey, Stewart E., Godfrey, William F., Goddard, Iva, Hart, Myrtle, McFarlane, Robert S., Stivits, Mrs. C. F., Stadlard, Will A., West, Marvin, Florence, Kipp, Grace E., Kelley, James E., Agent's expenses, Total, Due church.

NEVADA.

Nevada District.

D. R. Jones, Agent.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Jones, D. R., Ridlar, Sister, Twaddle, Sister, Smith, John.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Cady, Charles, Parr, F. B., Wiles, J. F., Cady, C. F., Hall rent, Total, Due agent.

NEW YORK AND PENNSYLVANIA.

New York and Philadelphia District.

John Zimmermann, Bishop.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910, Angus, Archibald D.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Batty, George, Bishop, Lot, Buttery, Homer, Carter, Daniel, Carter, Mary E., Cooling, Samuel, Cushing, Thomas, Davies, William, Desjardins, Paul, Desjardins, Paul, Engle, Susan, Evans, Elizabeth, Fossie, Nichols, Fowler, Rud, Founds, Paul A., Frees, Sarah, Freeland, Jennie, Fry, Lillian K., Fry, William E., Fry, William E., Feldmeth, Fred, Gregson, Gifford, Harrison, William H., Hawkins, Richard J., Hawkins, William F., Hiller, John, Hopkins, Sarah B., Hoyle, Albert N., Hughes, Add N., Hull, Ellsworth B., Hull, Ellsworth B., Interest on deposits (Scranton agent), James, David, Jones, Anna, Jones, Anna, Jones, Tallie, Kelley, D. L., Lawrence, John, Lester, Agnes, Lester, Alfred E., Lester, Stephen, Lewis, Albert, Lewis, Edward A., Lewis, Evan, Lewis, E. Walter, Lewis, Margaret S., Lewis, Maud, Maddux, Charles W., Maddux, Walter W., Matthews, W. H. K., Milligan, N. Edward, Morris, George, Morris, William, McGuire, Benjamin R., McGuire, Josephine, Nichols, William, Osborn, Ida, Oblations, Brooklyn Branch, Oblations, Elk Mills Branch, Oblations, New Park Saints, Oblations, New York and Philadelphia district conference, Oblations, Scranton Branch, Oblations, Philadelphia Branch, auxiliaries, Plunkett, William, Potts, George, jr., Potts, George, sen., Roth, Anna, Senior, Harriet, Shaw, Daniel T., Shaw, Evangeline, Shaw, Rosabel, Smith, Vincent, jr., Smith, Vincent, jr., Squire, Ephraim, Tract fund (Scranton Branch), Thomas, John, Tract fund (Brooklyn Branch), White, Rachel, Whitnell, Elizabeth, Wilson, James, Zimmermann, John, sen.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Agent's expenses, Hanson, Paul M., Insurance, Kelley, E. L., Porter, C. H., Perrin, James, Porter, C. H., Rannie, Edward, Rannie, Edward, Self, W. M., Sutton, J. R., Taxes, Waldsmith, J. W., Due church, Rarkdall, Ralph, Godfrey, Stewart E., Godfrey, William F., Goddard, Iva, Hart, Myrtle, McFarlane, Robert S., Stivits, Mrs. C. F., Stadlard, Will A., West, Marvin, Florence, Kipp, Grace E., Kelley, James E., Agent's expenses, Total, Due church, Jones, D. R., Ridlar, Sister, Twaddle, Sister, Smith, John, Cady, Charles, Parr, F. B., Wiles, J. F., Cady, C. F., Hall rent, Total, Due agent, Anderson, Sister William, Anderson, William, Carr, Harry, Farrell, Ralph W., Greene, U. W., Greene, U. W., Hull, Ellsworth B., Hull, Ellsworth B., Kelley, E. L., LaRue, William E., Lentell, John R., LaRue, William E., Lewis, William J., Matthews, M. O., Milligan, N. Edward, Missionary board, Mortality, Katherine, Morris, Ellen, Schultz, Jacob.

Table listing names and amounts for various individuals and groups, including Anderson, Sister William, Anderson, William, Carr, Harry, Farrell, Ralph W., Greene, U. W., Greene, U. W., Hull, Ellsworth B., Hull, Ellsworth B., Kelley, E. L., LaRue, William E., Lentell, John R., LaRue, William E., Lewis, William J., Matthews, M. O., Milligan, N. Edward, Missionary board, Mortality, Katherine, Morris, Ellen, Schultz, Jacob.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Stone, A. B., e., $25.00; Smith, W. W., f., $508.00; Stone, A. B., $232.00; Sundry assistances (Christ-mas), $15.00; Thompson, Venus, a., $20.00; Tracts, Scranton Branch, $4.10; Total, $3,709.70; Due church, $2,084.98.

Western District.

F. J. Upsyke, Agent. Receipts.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910, $100.00; Atkins, Merrit, and wife, $20.00; Burton, Hattie, $2.00; Blair, William, and wife, $10.00; Batchelor, J. Margaret, $23.00; Brothers, Anna, $5.00; Brothers, William, and wife, $25.00; Barrick, A. M., $23.00; Blue, Agatha, $5.00; Conference oblation, Niagara Falls, $5.64; Breggie, James, and wife, $5.00; Davis, G. J., $15.00; Fairl, Joseph, and wife, $1.00; Griswold, Mrs. W. B., $15.00; Griswold, W. E., $1.30; Goff, Eva, $3.00; Harper, Mary, $3.00; Joy, Edward, $3.00; Joy, F. D., and wife, $57.25; Joy, Ethna, $1.50; Koehler, Charles, $1.00; Koehler, Mrs. C. C., $2.00; Lewis, H. Lee, and wife, $10.00; Lands, George, and wife, $25.00; Lands, J. William, and wife, $25.00; Loomis, Mrs. J. Lina, $110.00; Leslie, C. Frank, and wife, $10.00; McLean, A. Isabelle, $10.00; Marden, Sanford, and wife, $100.00; Osmin, Cora, $2.00; Osmin, Sallie, $2.00; Rathbun, H. Floyd, and wife, $26.50; Rathbun, L. George, and wife, $3.50; Surdam, A. M., $5.00; Steere, Lillian, $65.00; Surdam, Rosa, $2.00; Spinnett, F. J., and wife, $22.65; Schofield, S. James, $20.00; Terrybury, Edson, and wife, $3.75; Terrybury, H. A., and wife, $22.20; Upsyke, J. Frank, and wife, $36.00; Upsyke, Elry, $50.00; VanDusen, Adline, $10.00; Weegar, Mrs. L. P., $24.00; Whitehead, A. George, and wife, $100.00; Warner, Alex. and wife, $35.00; Wahl, Conrad, and wife, $70.00; Wilkinson, N. Noble, and wife, $46.00; York, Charles, $10.00; York, Charles, and wife, $10.00; Total, $1,120.34.

Expenditures.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Agent's expenses, $17.27; Booker, Alma, f., $207.00; Booker, Alma, ex f., $10.00; Booker, Alma, e., $30.00; Davidson, J. H., e., $22.00; Daniels, Henry, a., $15.00; Greene, E. W., e., $12.00; Kelley, E. L., bishop, $454.02; Smith, O. H., e., $11.50; Stone, E. A., e., $20.00; Vansbury, Edwin, a., $10.00; Total, $868.79; Due church, $251.55.

NORTH DAKOTA.

North Dakota District.

Jerome E. Wildermuth, Agent. Receipts.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910, $323.18; Brother, A. o., $50.00; Brother, A. o., $5.00; Brown, Charles M., and wife, $9.00; Butler, Mrs. Lillie, $5.00; Carlson, Warden J., $6.00; Crowl, Blanche, $1.50; Bahl, Ole, and wife, $20.00; Darling, Joseph W., $10.00; Darling, Frances J., $5.00; Darling, Jessie, $1.50; Darling, Gladys, $1.50.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Fargo Branch, oblation, $8.45; Freke, Arthur, and wife, $10.00; Freeman, Carl B., $20.40; Graham, Charles, $50.00; Ganfield, Cora, $25.00; Graham, Ellen, $10.00; Holm, Mrs. Tobias, $10.00; Heisler, Mrs. Nettie, $4.00; Keck, J. C., and wife, $20.00; Langdon, Albert P., and wife, $17.00; Leetun, Lars, $10.00; Leitch, Thomas, $50.00; Massor, Samuel, and wife, $2.00; Moffit, Mrs. H. A., $2.90; Moline, Mary, $5.00; Murry, William J., $10.00; McElwain, J. W., and wife, $5.00; and Leta, $5.00; McLeod, Mrs. Emoline M., $90.00; McClelland, James C., $10.00; Moffitt, George, and wife, $15.00; Moline, Katherine, $5.00; Nash, Mrs. Rhoda F., $75.00; Page, Mrs. Irene, $2.50; Phay, J. J., and wife, $18.00; Remick, Mrs. Henry, $25.00; Rasmussen, Michael, $24.00; Rogers, Mrs. Ida, $5.00; Rogers, Nellie, $5.00; Rogers, Albert, $5.00; Rogers, Webster, and wife, $10.00; Spaulding, Charles J., $48.00; Smith, Charles A., $38.00; Stowell, Salo, $15.00; Sherman, Mrs. Ella, $3.30; Thompson, William D., and wife, $100.00; Thompson, John W., $50.00; Tilton, Mrs. Rose, $5.00; Trowbridge, Leveret H., $500.00; Trowbridge, Sarah A., $500.00; Weddle, Elmer E., and wife, $25.00; Wildermuth, Jerome E., and wife, $20.00; Young, Rachel, $12.00; Young, Milton, $2.10; Zimmerman, Jacob, $1.00; Total, $2,322.23.

Expenditures.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Agent's expenses, $50.88; Assisting in locating parties, $5.00; Houghton, Mrs. L. f., $372.00; Kelley, E. L., bishop, $500.00; Massor, Samuel, a., $3.00; Smith, J. W., e., $2.50; Shakespeare, William E., e., $1.25; Sparling, William, e., $25.00; Sparling, Mrs. William, f., $232.00; Tent expenses, $380.00; Wildermuth, J. E., f., $232.00; Whiting, Alonzo, f., $232.00; Total, $1,839.63; Due church, $482.60.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Nova Scotia District.

Lois G. Johnson, Agent. Receipts.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Dimock, Margaret, $10.00; Fillmore, Blair, $1.00; Hyatt, Mrs. John, $5.00; Johnson, Boyd, $25.00; Johnson, Leander, $25.00; Johnson, Mrs. Leander, $1.00; Jernogan, Mrs. Catherine, $1.00; McDonald, Mrs. Sarah, $25.00; O'Brien, Mattie, $4.00; O'Brien, Annie, $3.00; Wood, Wilfred, $10.00; Wood, Mrs. Bertie, $5.00; Total, $90.25.

Expenditures.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Agent's expenses, $65.00; Kelley, E. L., bishop, $64.60; Macgregor, Daniel, e., $15.00; Sheehy, John F., e., $10.00; Total, $90.25.

OHIO, PENNSYLVANIA AND WEST VIRGINIA.

Kirtland, Pittsburg, and Ohio Districts.

J. A. Becker, Bishop. Receipts.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Kirtland District. Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910, $51.04; Abbot, Jane, t., $10.00; Ahlstrom, Martin, and wife, $36.00; Akron Branch, oblation, $29.92; Allen, James, t., $1.50.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Allen, Sister Joel, t., $20.00; Allen, Verma, t., $1.50; Ashman, Charles, and wife, $5.00; Attwood, Floyd, t., $0.05; Baldwin Branch, oblation, $10.10; Baldwin, John, and wife, $12.00; Baldwin, J. W., and wife, $3.00; Barber, Minat, t., $11.50; Barstow, George, t., $25.00; Bartley, John D., t., $25.00; Bartley, J. M., and wife, t., $35.00; Becker, Mrs. J. A., t., $10.00; Becker, Pauline M., t., $50.00; Benbow, Dennis, t., $1.00; Bigler, L. E., and wife, t., $3.00; Billman, Emma, t., $6.00; Billman, Emma, o., $2.00; Blasey, Barbara, t., $2.00; Bomer, Elizabeth, t., $1.00; Braman, Earl, t., $50.00; Brockway, Frank, and wife, $14.00; Buchanan, Matilda, t., $2.00; Buchanan, Matilda, o., $1.25; Burdick, G. Leon, and wife, $53.50; Burdick, G. L., and wife, $2.00; Burdick, Mabel, t., $1.03; Calhoun, Daisy, t., $10.00; Canton Branch, oblation, $7.57; Carlisle, Belle, t., $25.00; Carlisle, James, and wife, t., $6.00; Carlisle, John, t., $5.00; Carpenter, Mrs. C. E., t., $50.00; Carrion, Paul, and wife, t., $9.00; Childs, O. J., and wife, t., $6.00; Cleary, Jennie, t., $50.00; Cleveland Branch, oblation, $52.80; Cleveland Z. R.-L. S., $1.31; Cokenauville Branch, obla- $5.85; Covey, T. A., t., $25.00; Cozadd, Mary, t., $10.00; Cramer, Charles, and wife, $3.00; Cramer, Dora, t., $1.00; Cramer, Elsie, t., $2.25; Cramer, Hazel, t., $1.00; Cramer, John, and wife, t., $2.75; Cramer, Ruby, t., $25.00; Cramer, Ruth, t., $25.00; Curry, Earl R., t., $3.00; Curry, Lemuel, and wife, t., $49.50; Davidson, Lawrence, t., $1.00; Dickterhote, Harriet, t., $48.00; Duncy, W. A., and wife, t., $1.00; Dudley, H. G., and wife, t., $4.50; Ebeling, Orville, t., $3.00; Erdman, Louis, t., $2.00; Erter, John, t., $20.00; Erter, John, c., $50.00; Farnfield, Mrs. J. C., t., $7.00; Fedderson, Miss T. C., t., $1.00; Pocht, Flora D., t., $40.00; Frew, Thomas, and wife, t., $10.00; Fuller, Robert, t., $8.00; Gale, Thomas, and wife, t., $40.00; Gale, Thomas, and wife, o., $5.00; Garland Branch, oblation, $1.75; Garwood, U. L., and wife, t., $3.00; Gaskins, Mrs. E. M., t., $12.85; Gaskins, Pearl E., t., $2.60; Gaskins, Geo. B., o., $2.40; George, William C., and wife, t., $21.77; Givens, Dora, t., $19.25; Givens, Martha, t., $1.00; Givens, Susie, t., $5.00; Gordon, Mrs. A., t., $5.00; Gordon, Mary, t., $4.00; Graf, Marie, t., $6.00; Gross, M. D., and wife, t., $20.00; Handy, Maggie, t., $1.50; Hardin, Jacob, and wife, t., $11.00; Hardin, Wilbur L., o., $9.50; Hanner, Mary, t., $21.50; Hartz, Joseph P., and wife, $6.50; Haynes, F. T., t., $55.00; Headley, Morah H., and wife, t., $9.00; Headley, Morah H., and wife, c., $1.00; Hollibaugh, Margaret, t., $11.00; Hollibaugh, Harry, and wife, t., $59.70; Hollibaugh, Samuel S., t., $1.00; Hollibaugh, Sarah C., t., $1.00; Holman, L. S., and wife, t., $11.28; Houghton, Carrie, t., $5.92; Houghton, Randall, t., $2.00; Houghton, Stewart, t., $7.50; Householder, Ewella, t., $5.20; Hulmes, R. F., and wife, t., $54.20; Johnson, Ford, t., $25.00; Jones, David H., t., $7.50; Jones, David H. o., $1.00; Jones, David R., and wife, t., $30.00; Jones, Hanna, t., $11.00; Jones, Jennie May, t., $10.50; Jones, John C., o., $5.50; Jones, Jennie May, o., $7.20; Jones, Elleanor G., t., $22.50; Keck, C. E., and wife, t., $22.50.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Kelsey, Frank, and wife, t., $50.00; Kelsey, William, t., $30.00; Kelley, Mrs. B. A., t., $2.00; Klur, A. B., $53.83; Kirtland Z. R.-L. S., t., $70.00; Lake, J. H., and wife, t., $24.00; Lewis, John D., and wife, t., $12.00; Logsdon, Martha, t., $25.00; Lohnagron, Sister, t., $3.00; Mackenzie, Margaret, t., $30.00; Manchester, A. R., and wife, t., $10.00; McConaughy, James C., and wife, t., $19.00; McCoy, John C., and wife, t., $3.00; McDowell, Delos, and wife, t., $18.35; McDowell, Delos, and wife, c., $1.00; McDowell, George, t., $3.70; McFarland, Nellie, t., $2.00; McKenzie, V. S., and wife, t., $3.00; McMillen, Mary, t., $50.00; McNeil, J. A., and wife, t., $65.00; Mellon, Thilie, t., $2.00; Miller, Mrs. C. Ed., t., $10.00; Miller, Eben, and wife, t., $10.00; Miller, Robert, and wife, t., $71.00; Minkler, Ida, t., $3.00; Minkler, Kittie, t., $1.00; Moore, James, t., $2.50; Moore, Lizzie, t., $25.00; Morris, Lucy Ellen, t., $25.00; Morris, Ferdinand, t., $15.00; Mottshand, Mrs. J. Charles, t., $5.00; New Castle Saints, oblation Philadelphia Branch, $31.93; Neville, Cecil, t., $20.26; Neville, Ethel, t., $5.50; Neville, George, t., $12.50; Neville, John, and wife, t., $0.75; North, Fannie, t., $2.00; Ovenden, Edith, t., $2.00; Parks, Isaiah, t., $1.25; Parsons, Martha, t., $1.50; Peck, May, t., $2.00; Pero, Frank, t., $50.00; Phare, John J., t., $1.00; Piper, Mary, t., $1.25; Proper, Auvergn, t., $3.75; Proper, David H., and wife, t., $8.00; Radler, Mrs. t., $1.68; Rhodes, Herbert, and wife, t., $1.62; Riblet, Sister S. J., t., $5.00; Rice, Emma, t., $1.00; Richards, Celia, t., $1.00; Richards, Olive, t., $1.60; Richardson, Edith E., t., $1.25; Richardson, Frances E., o., $2.00; Richardson, Frances J., o., $50.00; Richardson, Fannie E., t., $2.00; Richardson, George, o., $75.00; Richardson, John A., o., $6.00; Ritchie, Daniel, t., $10.00; Robertson, C. H., and wife, t., $7.00; Robertson, Eva S., t., $3.50; Robson, Edwin, and wife, t., $8.50; Robson, George, t., $30.00; Robson, John, and wife, t., $6.50; Robson, Robert, t., $5.00; Romig, Anna, t., $1.00; Romig, Charles, and wife, t., $11.35; Romig, Clifford, t., $1.09; Russell, Melzine, t., $5.00; Russell, Jennie, t., $1.00; Ryhal, Frank and wife, t., $3.00; Ryhal, Lamont, and wife, t., $6.00; Ryhal, Myrten, and wife, t., $1.50; Ryhal, Ransom W., t., $5.00; Schmidt, E. P., and wife, t., $50.00; Semler, Orin, o., $155.00; Semler, Orin, e., $5.00; Shafer, Wilson J., and wife, t., $200.00; Sharon Branch, oblation, $12.60; Shepard, Arthur, t., $19.50; Shepard, Jane, t., $18.00; Sparks, Lizzie, t., $2.50; Steinbaugh, Edward, and wife, t., $60.00; Stone, Cora, t., $2.00; Stottler, Silas, and wife, t., $3.00; Temple Branch, oblation, $16.36; Thomas, Anna, t., $1.75; Thomas, Cella, t., $4.40; Thomas, E. A., and wife, t., $1.00; Thomas, I. Z., and wife, t., $15.50; Thomas, M. S., and wife, t., $1.00; Thomas, Thomas, t., $1.00; Thomas, Thomas U., and wife, t., $21.50; Thomson, Margaret, t., $1.00; Thomson, Margaret, o., $1.00; Tibbts, Grace, t., $50.00; Tibbts, Lisle, t., $25.00; Titus, Harriet, t., $1.50; Titus, I. P., t., $60.00; Topping, John W., and wife, t., $90.00; Topping, Lillian I., t., $1.35; Topping, Robert, t., $9.00; Topping, Ruth, M., t., $1.00; Trolon Branch, oblation, $68.00; Warner, C. F., and wife, t., $1.00; Warner, Rosa, t., $11.00.

Table listing names and amounts: Watkins, James, and wife, 50; Webb, E. A. and wife, 32 45; Webb, Frank C. and wife, 5 00; Whitcomb, Sadie, 7 00; Wigton, Evangeline Robson, 1 00; Williams, John A., and wife, 1 00; Willson, Earnest W., and wife, 20 00; Yates, Martha, 1 05; Young, J. N., and wife, 6 40; Zwerman, Emma, 2 50.

Pittsburg District.

Table listing names and amounts for Pittsburg District: Allridge, Charles W. C., 50; Allridge, Corena, 2 00; Allridge, May, 5 55; Allridge, Minnie, 1 00; Allridge, Russell, 1 00; Anthony, Abner, 20 00; Anthony, Joanna, 5 50; Anthony, Rena, 5 50; Barnes, Elijah, 5 50; Barret, George, 4 00; Beam, Eunice, 4 00; Benner, Annie M., 5 50; Bishop, James E., and wife, 25 77; Biles, Elizabeth, 1 00; Bishop, Mabel M., 1 00; Birch, Eliza, 1 00; Booher, John R., and wife, 1 00; Bram, Edward W., 2 25; Brewster, Mary S., 2 00; Brewster, Mary S., 8 00; Brewster, William W., 5 00; Burk, Charley, 2 00; Call, Clara, 1 00; Chambers, Lillie E., 1 50; Clark, Lovina, 75; Clark, Johanna C., 1 00; Cleg, Nellie Henderson, 12 00; Collin, David, 1 50; Collin, John, 12 70; Collin, June A., 1 00; Cooper, Thomas, and wife, 9 00; Craig, James, and wife, 5 00; Crow, Clyde, 55 55; Curry, Ebenezer, and wife, 6 00; Curry, Lemuel F. P., and wife, 83 50; Daugherty, W. H., and wife, 6 00; Davis, Catherine, 20; Dobbs, Annie E., 13 00; Dobbs, Bertha, 85; Dobbs, Gordon, 25; Dobbs, J. Frank, 2 25; Dobbs, Jasper N., 1 00; Dobbs, Kathleen L., 25; Dobbs, Lillie M., 25; Dobbs, Lovina E., 10 00; Dobbs, Martha, 25; Dobbs, Rosa, 1 95; Dobbs, William A., 75; Dobbs, W. Henry, 5 50; Downs, Thomas, 2 00; Drenko, Mary, 1 00; Drenko, Mary, 1 00; Edwards, A. H. D., and wife, 5 30; Edwards, Joseph, and wife, 2 00; Elder, Anna, 50; Fayette City Branch, 5 52; Forbes, William, 1 00; Fry, Charles, and wife, 2 00; Gamble, R. N., and wife, 1 00; Gaskill, Samuel, and wife, 6 85; Glassford, Edith, 15 00; Grazier, Wm. C., and wife, 10 92; Gunn, Rhoda, 50; Hall, Charles, 20; Hall, Evert, 20; Hall, Samuel, 75; Harding, Walter, and wife, 2 00; Harup, Frank, 6 00; Haugh, Gemma N., 1 00; Hodge, Amanda, 1 00; Huffman, Jonathan, 1 00; Huffman, Mary, 1 50; Jaques, J. A., and wife, 31 00; Kaylor, Emerson, 5 00; Kaylor, Michael, 2 00; Kennedy, John, and wife, 10 00; Lamer, Presley, and wife, 2 00; Lang, John M., and wife, Jr., 22 00; Lang, John M., sen., 1 50; Lenhart, John B., 2 00; Liston, Matthew W., 25 00; Liston, William S., and wife, 15 00; Liston, William S., Jr., 1 25; Lockard, George, 2 25; Lockard, Henry, and wife, 18 00; Lucas, Sister C. A., 5 00; Lucas, Emmet, and wife, 4 00; Lucas, Joseph, 1 00; Lucas, William, 1 00; Lucas, William, 1 00; Lydick, Dora, 2 00.

Table listing names and amounts: Lydick, Della, 27 00; Lydick, Oma, 1 30; Martin, Chester, and wife, 2 00; Martin, John W., and wife, 8 00; Martin, Samuel A., 21 00; Mathews, Annie, 1 25; Mathews, Hanna, 2 50; McIlvain, Martha, 5 50; McMillen, John, and wife, 1 00; Miller, C. Ed., 10 00; Moore, James W., 10 00; Neutzling, Carrie, 1 50; Oliver, John F., 31 35; Oliver, Norman, 4 40; Pace, John G., and wife, 30 40; Perrie, Emma A., 2 70; Peterman, Eva Myrtle, 17 00; Phillips, Laura B., 2 00; Pittsburg Branch, 2 25; Pittsburg Ladies' Aid Society, 4 26; Rodabaugh, Elvira, 25; Rodabaugh, Jesse B., 1 00; Rodabaugh, Philip, 1 00; Raisbeck, Della, 5 50; Randall, Elijah, 1 00; Reddear, Arubel, 7 00; Reigle, Lena, 5 00; Richards, William, and wife, 15 00; Rush, William E., and wife, 2 00; Scott, Martha J., 5 00; Seung, Louis A., and wife, 47 70; Silvers, Maud, 2 00; Smith, Leroy, 10 75; Smith, William, 5 00; Sterck, Thomas, 1 00; Steubenville Saints, 10 47; Steubenville Z. R. L. S., 1 23; Stone, Elizabeth, 5 00; Tary, O. J., and wife, 36 25; Thomas, Clarence H., 20 90; Thomas, Evan H., 2 00; Thomas, Lydia, 4 50; Thomas, Myron E., 3 00; Treadway, Susan, 5 00; Ullom, L. D., 10 00; Wayt, Joseph, 2 00; Wensyl, Mary O., 1 00; Wentzel, L. L., 5 00; Wheeling Branch, 26 70; Wilcox, Charles, 3 00; Winship, Amos, 9 75; Winship, George, and wife, 2 50; Winship, Jesse B., and wife, 11 00; Winship, Robert H., and wife, 4 00; Winship, Robert H., Jr., 5 50; Yocum, Alphaus, 2 00; Yocum, Isaac E., and wife, 16 00; Yocum, William D., 25.

Ohio District.

Table listing names and amounts for Ohio District: Altman, Charles, 1 00; Altman, Samuel, 19 00; Bachelard, Sarah E., 5 50; Bealer, Martha, 2 25; Beaty, Mary E., 2 00; Beck, Lulu, 1 00; Bennington, M. L., and wife, 10 00; Bradish, Rachel M., 5 00; Brown, Samantha, 1 00; Cargan, Elizabeth, 1 00; Carter, Harvey A., 13 00; Cecil, Adon, 5 00; Clark, C. W., and wife, 7 50; Clements, H. B., and wife, 24 00; Clements, H. B., and wife, 1 00; Coddington, Lilly, 1 00; Columbus Branch, 64 31; Cook, Jane, 11 00; Cooper, Charles, and wife, 20 00; Cooper, Charles, 2 00; Crabtree, Dorcas, 1 00; Crabtree, Ellen, 1 00; Crabtree, Ida, 2 50; Culp, Harvey, 3 70; Culp, Marten, 2 00; Culp, Rufus, 6 00; Curtis, Rebecca, 5 00; Curtis, Rosa, 4 00; Duffner, Anna, 7 00; Duffner, Arena, 5 00; Elchorn, Eliza, 7 00; Ellis, John, 1 25; Eversman, Phoebe, 3 00; Eversman, Edith, 5 00; Eversman, Henrietta, 1 00; Eversman, Pear, 1 00; Fair, Peter, 1 50; Floodwood Branch, 3 15; Forst, Lewis, 1 00; Foss, Florence, 1 00; Foss, Lizzie, 1 00.

Table listing names and amounts: Foster, Charles II., and wife, 0 85; Foster, Lottie, 1 00; Frederick, Catherine, 40 00; French, Harry B., 6 00; Gabriel, Margaret, 50 00; Gallagher, Sarah, 5 50; Haller, Jessie, 15 00; Hammerstein, Flora, 65; Hanna, D. J., and wife, 40 00; Hanna, Grace, 5 00; Hanna, S. D., and wife, 50 00; Harnish, D. J., 1 00; Harnish, T. D., and wife, 5 00; Hiser, Nettie, 11 55; Ironton Branch, 5 00; Jeffers, S. J., 3 30; Jones, C. E., and wife, 1 00; Jones, R. B., and wife, 10 00; Kinsler, Charles, 2 00; Klein, Lillian, 2 00; Koon, Alice, 4 00; Koon, Alvirra J., 2 00; Kriebel, S. B., and wife, 15 00; Kriebel, Mrs. S. B., 16 00; Lanning, Mollie, 1 00; Layne, Alice, 1 00; Lewis, L. C., and wife, 16 00; Lewis, Thomas, 5 50; Limerick Branch, 1 10; Matthews, J. E., 2 00; Matthews, J. E., 2 00; Martin, Mamie V., 20 00; Masheter, Emma, 6 85; Masheter, Emma, 5 50; McLaughlin, Jane, 1 00; Meyers, Brother, 1 00; Middletown Branch, 34 45; Miller, Mary, 3 00; Miller, Verna, 2 00; Munyan, Jeremiah, 2 50; Munyan, Robert, 1 00; Nelsonville Saints, 4 35; Nieman, A. H., and wife, 10 00; Nieman, Frank, 25; Nieman, Harry, 25; Noble, Lulu, 4 00; Parks, Harriet, 9 00; Parks, Hewitt, 1 50; Perry, Joanna, 3 00; Paul, George W., and wife, 3 00; Pleasant Valley Branch, 18 61; Rhoades, P. Stacy, and wife, 40 00; Rogers, Harry, 2 50; Rogers, W. F., 1 00; Rowe, Harvey, 3 00; Rowe, Mary, 14 00; Sand Run Branch, 4 50; Scharfenberg, Charles, 1 00; Schmidt, Ida, 1 10; Schmidt, Theresa, 4 05; Schneler, Pearl, 1 00; Sisler, James, and wife, 3 75; Sisler, James, and wife, 3 60; Skeen, Addie, 20 00; Skeen, May, 10 00; Smith, Hiram K., and wife, 10 00; Smith, J. C., and wife, 7 00; Smith, Margaret, 3 00; Sparks, Eliza, 1 00; Sparnon, Elizabeth, 3 35; Stanley, Rosetta, 2 00; Steadman, Sister C. A., 5 50; Stephens, George, 2 50; Stowell, Frank, 75; Turvey, Frances, 3 00; Vale, Lute, 10 00; Vanmeter, James, 5 00; Vanmeter, Van, 10 00; Vales Mills Branch, 31 28; Vales, George, and wife, 20 35; Welch, T. C., 2 30; Welch, F. R., 2 50; Whente, Nathan, 6 00; Williams, Clara, 6 16; Williams, David, 2 00; Williams, George E., and wife, 26 90; Williams, Jeanette, 3 00; Williams, J. B., and wife, 90 00; Williams, Joseph, 0 05; Williams, Margaret, 3 00; Williams, Mary, 1 00; Winn, Merrill R., 9 75; Wolfe, Earl, 7 00; Wolfe, Emma, 4 25; Woods, Alice P., 10 00; Woods, I. P., 10 00; Woods, Martha, 1 00; Wren, Edith, 50 00; Wren, Edith, 42 87; Wren, Elizabeth, 10 00; Wren, T. R., 25 00; Wyatt, Minnie, 5 50; Total, $4,697 41.

Expenditures.

Table listing names and amounts for Expenditures: Baldwin, Richard, 25 00; Baldwin, Richard, 90 00; Becker, J. A., 191 53; Becker, J. A., 424 00; Booker, N. L., 5 00; Booker, N. L., 140 00; Burdick, G. Leon, 25 00; Burdick, G. Leon, 175 00; Craig, James, 195 00; Ebbling, Francis J., 25 00; Ebbling, Francis J., 376 00; Farnfield, John C., 15 00; Farnfield, J. C., 250 00; French, Harry B., 9 80; Fry, Charles, 304 00; Griffiths, G. T., 17 50; Griffiths, G. T., 400 00; Hillard, G. H., 15 00; Jeffers, S. J., 4 50; Kelley, E. L., bishop, 43 00; Lake, John H., 9 00; Lake, John H., 275 00; McConnaughy, James C., 20 00; McConnaughy, James C., 280 00; Metcalf, J. W., 18 09; Miller, C. Ed., 6 05; Miller, C. Ed., 315 00; Miller, O. R., 20 00; Miller, O. R., 160 00; Agent's expenses, 82 34; Parker, Mrs. George A., 10 00; Russell, R. C., 113 85; Smith, William, 5 00; Stubbart, J. M., 140 00; Thomas, O. B., 10 00; Thomas, T. U., 120 00; Tucker, D. E., 250 00; Wheeling Branch, for church building, 114 75; Total, $4,628 42; Due church, 68 99.

OKLAHOMA.

Eastern and Central Districts.

Ellis Short, Bishop. Receipts.

Table listing names and amounts for Receipts: Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910, $318 70; Bussell, P. B., 3 70; Black, Ellen, 11 60; Bennett, Richard, 5 00; Ballard, Mrs. John, 10 00; Brannon, R. O., 1 00; Berry, T. N., 75 00; Barker, Estella, 5 00; Burks, T., 10 00; Bowman, Leona, and daughter, 2 35; Butler, Mary, 5 00; Ballard, John, 15 00; Brannon, W. O., 4 00; Brannon, J. P., 3 00; Broughton, E. T., 5 00; Bailey, S. H., 25 00; Boren, J. H. and Becca, 5 00; Bussell, Sister S. B., 8 45; Baldwin, D. M., 5 27; Chrisman, Charles C., 7 00; Courtney, Samuel, 20 00; Crawford, Harry, 1 40; Coker, William W., 2 00; Cowley, Robert, 12 00; Dollings, Sister Toka, 24 00; Duncan, Henry, 5 00; Dillen, Frank, 50 00; Goss, Joseph, 20 00; Goodwin, A. B., 1 00; Gooch, W. A., 1 00; Gray, C. W., 25 00; Goss, S. L., 15 50; Hughes, Samuel, 50; Hubble, W. P., 10 00; Hickox, E. B., 10 00; Hogue, Zenas B., 4 90; Hogue, Sister L. B., 1 00; Henson, Frank, 10 00; Hanley, S. A., 2 00; James, O. L., and wife, 263 00; Kuykendall, James, 55 00; Kuykendall, Lena, 10 00; Kelley, E. L., bishop, 550 00; Kelsey, Joseph, 7 75; Kelsey, E. L., 2 25; Kelsey, J. B. (1910), 5 00; Kelso, Mattie, 5 00; Lum, D. L., 16 00; Moore, Belle, 6 00; Moore, Earl, 10 00; Mills, Frank, and wife, 30 35; Manning, Thomas L., 30 00; McGowan, Walter, 11 50; Peacock, W. W., and wife, 12 00; Patton, W. I., and wife, 10 00; Plumb, Shelby and Laura, 5 00; Peacock, Ruth, 10 00; Reed, J. S. and F. H., 10 00.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes Robinson, W. N., Stevens, J. C., Simmons, Jesse M., etc.

ONTARIO.

R. C. Evans, Bishop. Receipts.

Table of receipts for R. C. Evans, Bishop. Includes 'Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910', 'Arnold, W. I.', 'Burger, John L.', etc.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for R. C. Evans, Bishop. Includes 'Aylor, William, e.', 'Erwin, B. A. f.', 'Maloney, R. M.', etc.

Western District.

Hubert Case, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Western District. Includes 'Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910', 'Box, Zora, t.', 'Barraclough, E. L.', etc.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Western District. Includes 'Case, Hubert, f.', 'Case, Hubert, e.', 'Maloney, R. M.', etc.

Edmonds, Alexander and

Elsie, t. 50
Erving, Thomas, estate, t. 50
Fletcher, Daniel, t. 2 00

Table of receipts for Edmonds, Alexander and wife. Includes 'Fowler, Alonzo, and wife', 'Green, Frank and Annie', 'Green, Kezia, t.', etc.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Edmonds, Alexander and wife. Includes 'Kelley, E. L., bishop', 'Office expense', 'Total', 'Due church'.

Table of receipts for London District. Includes 'Soups, Aaron, t.', 'Spencer, Emily, sen.', 'Stover, John, t.', etc.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for London District. Includes 'Brown, Samuel, f.', 'Brown, Samuel, e.', 'Davis, James', etc.

London District.

John L. Burger, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for London District. Includes 'Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910', 'Armstrong, Thomas, and wife', 'Atkinson, Emma, t.', etc.

Table of names and amounts, including Farthing, R. J., t. 1 07; Farthing, W. H., and wife, t. 35 00; Kirby, George, t. 2 00; Mableigh, Sarah, t. 3 25; Gray, Frank, and wife, t. 19 00; Hanley, Ellen, t. 10 00; Hardey, Ethel, t. 4 00; Hardey, Ray, t. 1 50; Hardey, W. A., and wife, t. 25 00; Hardey, W. E., and wife, t. 1 00; Henley, G. H., and wife, t. 24 00; Hill, Bert, and wife, t. 5 00; Insell, Charles, t. 10 00; Interest, 11 70; Jenkins, William, t. 5 00; Johnson, Annie, t. 9 50; Johnson, Lizzie, t. 5 00; Johnsons, Levi, t. 20 35; Julie, James, t. 5 50; Julie, James, and wife, t. 5 50; Julie, Thilie, t. 2 50; Kinsman, Ira, and wife, t. 7 00; Kinsman, Myrtle, t. 4 30; Klein, Alexander, and wife, t. 15 00; Klein, William, and wife, t. 100 00; London Branch, o., 75 50; Longhurst, R. C., and wife, t. 55 00; Meadowcroft, Sister, t. 5 00; Moore, Samuel, and family, 20 00; McDonald, James, t. 2 00; Nantais, Milbrough Mary, t. 1 25; Parker, Walter, and wife, t. 4 00; Pearson, Lorne O., t. 175 00; Pettit, James E., t. 10 00; Pettit, James, and wife, t. 10 00; Phillipin, P. H., and wife, t. 10 00; Proctor, Harriet, t. 110 00; Reilly, James, and wife, t. 50 00; Richardson, George, and wife, t. 5 00; Rodwell, George, and wife, t. 25 00; Schrader, Benjamin, t. 10 00; Skelding, James, and wife, t. 4 00; Small, Elijah, t. 1 00; Small, Lyman, t. 1 25; Smith, Mrs. Samuel, t. 3 75; Smith, C. R., and wife, t. 5 00; Smith, Mary, t. 5 00; Stephens, Reuben, and wife, t. 5 00; Saint Thomas Branch, o., 23 54; Swain, Lorne, and wife, t. 7 33; Talbot, George, and wife, t. 10 00; Vanessa Branch, o., 5 00; Waterford Branch, o., 9 00; Wilsie, Charles, and wife, t. 1 00; Wylie, Lizzie, t. 5 00; Yerks, Lucy, t. 2 50; Yerks, Mary, t. 11 00; Yerks, Percy, t. 11 50; Total, $2,071 96

Expenditures. Evans, R. C., bishop, $850 00; Gregory, Fred, f., 128 00; Longhurst, R. C., e., 46 00; Longhurst, R. C., f., 180 00; Agent's expenses, 12 22; Mortimer, J. L., f., 100 00; Shields, John, f., 259 00; Total, $1,575 22; Due church, 496 74

Toronto District.

R. C. Evans, Bishop. Receipts. Arthur Branch, $ 4 30; Andrews, Mrs. William, 4 00; Arnold, Joshua, 25 00; Allen, Agnes M., 2 00; Archer, Ed. W., 200 00; Ashfield, Annie, 2 00; Bate, James, and wife, 19 00; Bate, John, and wife, 10 00; Bigger, R. L., 20 00; Braden, Jennett, 4 00; Berry, Mrs. Thomas, 50 00; Blow, Arthur, 7 20; Bricker, Lillian, 7 00; Blakely, Gean, 5 00; Brown, Mrs. William, 10 00; Barnhart, Royden, and wife, 84 80; Brown, Mrs. A., 5 00; Bondin, Humphry, and wife, 35 00; Barrick, Grace, 8 00; Barrick, Ethel, 10 00; Buschen, Simon, 25 00; Bricker, Charles, 60 00; Boyle, John, and wife, 5 00; Bray, William, 2 00; Black, J. W., 7 00; Brown, Maud, 5 00; Braden, James, and wife, 60 00; Burley, William, and wife, 25 00; Barrick, Edward, 200 00; Barrett, George, and wife, 5 00; Bogle, John, and wife, 20 00

Table of names and amounts, including Braden, Florence, 20 00; Claverling Branch, 11 45; Clifford, Emma, 10 00; Clark, J. V., and wife, 135 00; Chillum, Emma, 5 00; Crowley, Thomas, and wife, 3 00; Clark, Samuel, 10 00; Campbell, Maggie, 1 00; Church, Susan, 3 00; Catto, David, and wife, 15 00; Caskie, James, and wife, 40 00; Campbell, William, 10 00; Cameron Branch, 16 55; Crump, Philip, and wife, 5 00; Chapman, Ward, 10 00; Crowley, Joseph M., and wife, 10 00; Cooper, King, and wife, 45 00; Clark, Mary, 40 00; Chapman, Nellie, 19 00; Clark, Jennie M., 9 00; Culp, Leah, 6 50; Campbell, W. J., and wife, 1 00; Clark, Albert, 1 10; Clark, James E., 5 00; Cedar Valley Branch, 13 00; Clifford, Frank, 1 00; Campbell, Ella, 5 00; Clatworthy, Ella, 10 00; Cooper, William, and wife, 2 00; Clark, Maggie, 2 00; Cross, W. W., 5 00; Dack, William, and wife, 15 00; Davisville Branch, 4 33; Dodd, Molly, 5 00; Dobson, Robert, 50 00; Dobson, R. J., 1 50; Dobson, William G., 1 00; Denamore, Sarah, 5 00; Dobson, James, and wife, 10 00; Dack, Maud, 5 00; Derby, Belle, 30 00; Dudley, Charles, 2 00; Eaton, Maria, 5 00; Egremont Branch, 12 00; Elves, John, and wife, 5 00; Eaton, Mrs. George, 2 00; Foreest, Walter, 1 00; Farr, Charles E., 55 00; Ford, Burt, 20 00; Frazer, Daisy, 5 00; Field, Alfred, 5 00; Brazier, Henry, and wife, 19 61; Foreest, F. M., and wife, 7 00; Foreest, Alex., and wife, 14 50; Fuller, Charles, 15 00; Franks, Mamie, 50 00; Foreman, Emily, 2 25; French, Edwin, 7 00; Frazer, Harold, 5 00; Fields, B. J., 14 00; Forrest, Martin, 1 00; Fields, B. G., 2 00; Paulds, W. S., and wife, 5 00; Farrow, Alfred, and wife, 20 00; Gregory, Frederick, and wife, 4 70; Goheen, Frederick, 10 00; Goodman, George, 10 00; Guver, George, 1 00; Gilen, Rebecca, 5 00; Garrard, Charles, 3 00; Griffin, George, and wife, 6 00; Goodall, Sarah, 10 00; Gibson, Edward, 10 00; Gibbons, Fred, 5 00; Gibbons, Denver, and wife, 10 00; Gray, A. E., and wife, 25 00; Gordan, Martha, 5 00; Gee, May, ret a., 28 00; Hailstone, Harry, 4 00; Hamilton, Libbie, 5 00; Hathaway, May, 100 00; Hunter Bay Branch, 13 20; Hannah, Melvin, and wife, 40 00; Hulbert, William, 5 00; Humphries, Edwin, and wife, 20 00; Hannah, Charles, and wife, 20 00; Hannah, Hugh, and wife, 25 00; Hughes, John, and wife, 10 00; Hattie, Matilda, 5 00; Hannah, Ethel, 3 00; Hand, William, and wife, 8 00; Hillis, John, and wife, 5 00; Hooper, A. E., and wife, 25 00; Hill, Harry, and wife, 20 00; Hays, Mrs. J. B., 20 00; Hay, Thomas, 2 50; Howlett, Fred, 15 25; Jordan, Perla, 20 00; Jack, Charles, and wife, 8 00; Jack, William, and wife, 10 00; Johnson, William F., and wife, 12 00; Jordan, Myrtle, 3 00; Johnston, William M., 25 00; Johnson, James, 2 00; Jack, Joseph, 5 00; Kilpatrick, Matilda, 88 00; Keene, Charles B., 20 00

Table of names and amounts, including Kennedy, Angus, 4 00; Kenard, Nelson, 10 00; Law, Edwin G., and wife, 225 00; Long, Fred, and wife, 11 00; Lisle, Elbert J., 25 00; Leader, N. E., and wife, 25 00; Lake, Chester, and wife, 15 00; Lonsway, J. H., 5 00; Lane, Elisha, and wife, 5 00; Ludford, William, 3 00; Lonsway, W. H., 4 00; Long, Nathaniel, and wife, 3 00; Morrison, Sarah, 5 00; Morris, John, and wife, 4 00; Mark, Hugh, and wife, 100 00; Morrison, Jennie, 10 00; Marsdan, Talbot, 10 00; Mahaffy, Mable, 30 00; Martin, William H., and wife, 2 00; Madgan, Mrs. P. J., 3 00; Minor, Minnie, 1 00; Miller, Mrs. W. E., 2 00; Masonville Branch, 5 21; Morrison, Lizzie, 1 00; Minor, Mrs. Tiffany, 5 00; Minor, Harold, 2 50; Morris, Nathan, 2 00; Moffat, Reginald, 1 00; Marr, Armlna, 12 50; Moore, Mrs. George, 25 00; Murry, William A., and wife, 20 00; Moore, Maud, 20 00; Martin, Harry, 20 00; McLean, A. E., and wife, 5 00; McLean, Charles, 13 00; McKibbin, Annie, 72 85; McArthur, Mrs. John, 200 00; MacDonald, Clarence, 110 70; MacDonald, Viola, 10 00; McArthur, E., and wife, 10 00; McLean, Archibald T., 17 00; MacDonald, Austin, 15 00; McLean, Isabella, 3 00; McKibbin, Mrs. John, 1 00; McLean, Charles A., 1 50; McMurdo, William, 16 00; McPhail, Agnes, 25 00; McPhail, Frank, 5 00; McLean, Charles, and wife, 3 00; MacDonald, Levi, 60 00; Norgrove, Mrs. J., 10 00; Osbourne, George M., 11 00; Oliver, Mrs. E., 5 00; O'Neal, Ambrose, 30 00; Osbourne, Sister, 2 00; Prentice, Margaret, 7 50; Port Elgin Branch, 27 42; Perrin, Noble, and wife, 7 00; Parks, Mrs. Hiram, 5 00; Pycok, James, and wife, 35 00; Perkins, D. B., and wife, 100 00; Phillips, James, and wife, 15 10; Phillips, Wilfred, 2 00; Perrin, Parmenas, and wife, 10 00; Parfitt, Annie, 1 00; Parfitt, Edward, and wife, 25 00; Powell, B. M., 2 00; Phillips, Matilda W., 9 00; Parr, Mrs. Benjamin, 5 00; Park, Hiram, jr., 5 00; Rowatt, William, and wife, 25 00; Ridley, S. T., and wife, 40 00; Rouledge, John, 38 50; Reddie, William, and wife, 12 00; Rowatt, Ernest, and wife, 40 00; Redickville Branch, 4 85; Russell, William, and wife, 12 00; Randles, William, and wife, 50 00; Randall, H. R., 35 00; Randall, Madaline, 5 00; Rydal, Buford, 5 00; Rieley, Kate, 5 00; Rumley, Mrs. O., 5 00; Street, Lula, 12 00; Scott, R. J., and wife, 50 00; Smith, W. R., and wife, 10 00; Swainson, Earl, 10 00; Sharer, Mrs. Louie, 5 00; Shields, John, 2 00; Schrank, Ossie, and wife, 20 00; Schrank, Nora, 50 00; Swainson, Sadie, 5 00; Snell, Victoria, 35 00; Snell, Isaac, 5 00; Seymour, H. J., 10 00; Shannon, Edna, 2 40; Senson, Mrs. William, 5 00; Sovereign, Charles, and wife, 5 00; Sumpton, Edith, 50 00; Snell, Enoch, 12 00; Snell, William A., 15 00; Smith, Frank, 2 00; Snell, John H., 8 00; Snell, Sadie F., 1 50; Stewart, Sophia, 25 00; Sager, Lottie, 13 50; Turner, Jennie, 4 00

Table of names and amounts, including Thompson, Robert G., and wife, 10 00; Taylor, J., and wife, 25 00; Taylor, Isaac, and wife, 20 00; Toronto Branch, 54 72; Townsend, Elizabeth, 2 00; Taylor, William J., 10 00; Tubb, F. R., and wife, 12 00; Thompson, Joseph T., and wife, 5 50; Thaler, Mrs. David, 5 00; Thompson, R. J., and wife, 14 00; Thompson, D. H., and wife, 25 00; Taylor, W., 2 50; Taylor, George, and wife, 24 00; Thompson, William W., 50 00; Taylor, Mrs. W. A., 72 00; Thompson, W. J., 5 00; Twycross, Alex., 4 00; Vannard, James, and wife, 10 00; Whitman, James, and wife, 8 00; Wale, Walter C., 9 00; Warton Branch, 8 86; Washington, George, and wife, 24 00; Wilson, James, and wife, 105 00; Whitehead, J. T., and wife, 40 00; Whitehead, Robert, and wife, 10 00; Waters, Harry, 10 00; Whitworth, George, and wife, 100 00; Wilson, Susan, 20 00; Williams, Joseph T., 25 00; Ward, William, and wife, 100 00; White, John, 20 00; Warren, Mrs. George, 5 00; Ware, Martin, and wife, 10 00; Watson, James, 7 00; Waters, Frank, 1 00; Wilson, Fanny, 10 00; Wade, Walter, 10 00; Williamson, William, and wife, 10 00; Waters, Mary, 5 00; Young, Harry P., 10 00; Total, $5,115 09

Expenditures.

Table of names and amounts, including Dooner, Sister, a., $ 2 00; Evans, R. C., f., 316 00; Evans, R. C., e., 110 00; Evans, R. C., bishop, Ont., 2,100 00; Gee, May, and mother, acct, 28 00; Gregory, Frederick, e., 31 50; Gregory, Frederick, f., 27 00; Keeley, P. J., a., 10 00; Pycok, James, e., 100 00; Pycok, James, f., 100 00; McCarthy, William, a., 28 50; Russell, R. C., f., 160 00; Saunders, Sister, a., 6 00; St. John, Grant, f., 356 00; Smith, F. A., f., 480 00; Smith, F. A., e., 60 00; Shields, John, e., 5 00; Perrin, Grant, e., 45 00; Thompson, J. T., f., 240 00; Thompson, J. T., e., 85 00; Tubb, F. R., a., 10 00; Orders, etc., 7 03; Total, $4,515 43; Due church, 559 66

OREGON.

Eastern District.

A. J. Moore, Agent.

Receipts. Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1910, $ 91 69; Billings, Sister, Cash and Hise, bequest, 71 67; Dunap, William, t., 5 00; Dams, Mollie, t., 22 10; Dams, Mary, t., 5 00; Edwards, Jane, t., 10 00; Ladies' Aid Society, t., 3 15; Moore, Ebbin R., and wife, t., 7 00; Moore, Mirvin, t., 50 85; Harp, William, and wife, 40 85; Tharp, William F., and wife, 24 80; Tharp, Sarah A., t., 25 00; Tharp, Thomas A., t., 15 50; Rice, Mary J., t., 7 00; Wallas, Wallas, and wife, t., 6 00; West, Erma, t., 1 00; Total, $336 26

Expenditures.

Table of names and amounts, including Billings, Sister, a., $ 87 00; Cook, M. H., f., 100 00; Moore, A. J., e., 114 60; Agent's expenses, 90 00; Madison, Mrs. A. B., f., 2 00; Total, $344 10; Due agent, 7 84

Portland District.

L. Stover, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $ 63 49

Amund, Will, t. 8 00

Applomen, Maggie, t. 16 35

Applomen, George, t. 25 00

Becker, Carol, and wife, t. 25 00

Barker, Walter H., t. 20 00

Baldwin, Carol, t. 2 00

Cook, Marcus H., t. 32 30

Calkins, David H., t. 20 00

Coop, Bola, t. 11 75

Coop, Reuben S., and wife, t. 11 00

Coop, Orion, t. 1 30

Coop, Villa I., t. 10 00

Cummins, Agnes, t. 1 75

Chapman, Nephil T. and Jessie M., t. 110 00

Chapman, Robert E. and Elsa, t. 187 60

Chapman, Francis, o 6 00

Chapman, Ruth, t. 6 00

Chapman, Eva, t. 65

Clark, Mable, t. 2 00

Clark, Sarah, o. 5 00

Carson, Minda, t. 12 00

Cowdery, Calarinda, t. 1 10

Dopp, William H. and Olive, t. 5 00

Dopp, William H. and Olive, o. 3 50

George, Ana, t. 1 50

Harvey, Marion, t. 5 00

Harvey, Mary H., o 3 00

Harvey, Mary H., t. 3 00

Helpers, Willing, t. 5 49

Howard, Leonard, t. 10

Howell, Ruth, t. 1 03

Hager, Peter George, t. 29 00

Hager, Helen M., t. 4 50

Haus, Martha, t. 5 00

Haus, William, t. 5 00

Howard, Harriet M., t. 50

Jones, H. Allen, t. 1 00

Jones, Christina, t. 75

Lasley, Amos E., t. 22 50

Livingston, Clark, t. 6 00

Larson, Joseph, t. 5 00

More, Fred, t. 2 04

More, Mary S., t. 3 50

More, Samuel W., t. 3 50

More, Hilda, t. 1 20

Muckle, Carrie, t. 7 95

Muckle, Bertha, t. 12 40

Miller, John, t. 2 00

Morris, Myrtle, t. 24 00

Morris, Ervin, t. 20

Morris, Alfred, t. 20

Minor, A., t. 50 00

Pearson, George, t. 4 00

Russell, William H., t. 27 00

Root, Harry, t. 25

Stover, Leonard, and wife, t. 25 00

Stover, George W., and wife, t. 2 50

Shurwood, Mable W., t. 1 00

Strickland, Lewis, t. 10 00

Society, Aid, t. 10 65

Thorp, Thomas A., t. 18 00

Volgamore, Jessie M., t. 1 00

William, Charles E., and wife, t. 143 00

William, Erastus R., t. 7 00

Waight, Jennie E., t. 5 00

Witherbe, Willis, t. 2 00

Walling, Mattie, t. 25

Total $1,009 21

Expenditures.

Chatburn, F. J., f. $572 00

Condit, S. D., f. 302 00

Livingston, William, for missionary board 5 00

Sheehy, R. M., e 10 00

U'ndike, Grant, a. 43 00

Woolsey, Isabel, a. 10 00

Total $942 00

Due church 67 21

Southwestern District.

William Smith, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $ 52 32

Boyd, Laura M. 10 50

Baker, A. A. 1 00

Baker, Lena 5 00

Buell, Florence 10 00

Conover, Leah 15 00

Carpenter, Eunice 5 40

Carpenter, Lida 4 00

Corson, Amos 25 00

Dopp, W. H., and wife 150 00

Griffiths, Mary 8 00

Greek, W. A. 35 35

Gins, R. L. 13 75

Hunt, Robert 29 75

Total $922 00

Expenditures.

Chatburn, F. J., f. $572 00

Condit, S. D., f. 302 00

Livingston, William, for missionary board 5 00

Sheehy, R. M., e 10 00

U'ndike, Grant, a. 43 00

Woolsey, Isabel, a. 10 00

Total $942 00

Due church 67 21

Hunt, Byrl 1 00

Hansen, Florence D. 20 00

Johnson, Annie 60

Johnson, Mary 4 25

Kennicut, Hannah 4 50

Kennicut, Amy 50

Kennicut, Eunice 50

Laird, Ora 2 00

Laird, Annie 50 00

Laird, Verna 6 00

Marshall, Rhoda 2 00

Mast, Charlotte 1 75

McDonald, James 10 00

Reed, Margaret 10 00

Smith, William 49 50

Smith, Agnes 3 00

Smith, Lila 3 60

Williams, Lucy 100 00

Williams, Delmar 10 00

Unknown 43 10

Total $680 46

Expenditures.

Chatburn, Frank J., e. $ 5 00

Chatburn, T. W., e 59 00

Cook, M. H., f. 216 00

Coleman, John, a. 19 00

Keley, E. L., bishop 250 00

Sheehy, R. M., e 15 00

Stead, J. D., e 20 00

Agent's expenses 2 62

Total $586 62

Due church 93 84

SCANDINAVIAN MISSION.

Peter Muceus, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $ 60 14

Allengreen, Sister E., t. 6 21

Anderson, M., t. 5 54

Johnson, Hannah, t. 1 35

Lawrence, Hannah, t. 2 70

Muceus, Peter, and wife, t. 2 70

Paulson, Nelly, t. 4 86

Peterson, Sister Maja, t. 4 05

Skogan, Sister A., t. 5 67

Swenson, C. A., f. 25 23

Kelley, E. L., bishop 1,000 00

Total $1,113 45

Expenditures.

Johnson, Oscar, f. $191 00

Johnson, Oscar, e 8 40

Muceus, Peter, f. 444 00

Muceus, Peter, e 169 00

Nielson, Sister, a. 1 35

Swenson, C. A., f. 270 00

Agent's expenses 2 80

Freight on Book of Mormon 4 25

Aid to the poor 2 35

Total $1,093 15

Due church 20 30

Mission Fund.

Peter Muceus, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $ 7 51

Eidsvold Aid Society 13 50

Collections 9 09

Total $ 30 10

Expenditures.

Hall rent $ 22 70

Hansen, H. N., e 13 50

Freight on packages 1 00

Advertisements, postage, etc. 18 58

Total $ 53 78

Due agent 23 68

"Sandhedens Banner."

Peter Muceus, Agent.

Receipts.

Subscriptions $ 68 85

Donations 146 95

Total $215 80

Expenditures.

Balance due agent December 31, 1910 $ 54 07

For printing 145 95

Postage stamps, and paper 25 21

Interest on bill 1 70

Total $226 93

Due agent 11 13

SASKATCHEWAN.

Saskatchewan District.

J. A. Beckman, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $380 35

Anderson, B. M., t 10 00

Anderson, Lewis E., t 10 00

Anderson, E. B., and wife, t 20 00

Armstrong, Mrs. W. S., t. 5 00

Bear, Mrs. John, t 3 00

Beckley, J. R., t 8 00

Beckman, Ditta, t 6 50

Beckman, Art, t 25 00

Beckman, Alvin, and wife, t 100 00

Beckman, J. A., and wife, t 200 00

Benham, Ira I., t 30 00

Bergersen, B. E., t. 50 00

Bergersen, C. Burdette, and wife, t 225 00

Brooks, F. H., t 5 00

Carson, A. W., and wife, t 20 00

Carson, Peter, t 332 00

Clifford, Robert, and wife, t 25 00

Clifford, William J., and wife, t 50 00

Courtney, W. T., t 15 00

Davis, B. R., and wife, t 100 00

Diggle, J. W., and wife, t 25 00

Diggle, Mrs. J. W., t 16 00

Disley Branch, o 7 00

Dickson, James R., t 35 00

Dobson, Josiua, and wife, t 100 00

Dveritt, Eddie, t 10 00

Gadd, W. J., t 10 00

Gardner, L. K., t 25 00

Genron, Louis, and wife, t 200 00

Holme, Mrs. J., t 60 00

Hurst, Sister, t 2 74

Jenkins, R. J., and wife, t 35 00

Jenkins, J. H., t 125 00

Jenson, Elizabeth, William, t 1 00

Land, Charlotte Ann, t 20 00

Land, Eva, t 1 00

Land, Emma, t 9 00

McIntosh, William, and wife, t 25 00

Montgomery, Anna, t 8 00

Neill, Rosa, t 150 00

Neill, Rosa, o 15 00

Neill, Joseph D., t 5 00

Neill, J. W., (deceased), t 24 00

Newberry, John, sen., t 50 00

Peterson, Nels J., and wife, t 1,100 00

Peterson, Julian, A., t 100 00

Peterson, Mrs. Nels J., t 9 80

Peterson, Sister Iver, t 6 00

Perkins, Mabel F., t 4 30

Pettit, W. J., and wife, t 100 00

Roy, William H., t 25 00

Roy, Mrs. Alfred, t 10 00

Smith, Thomas, and wife, t 25 00

Smith, William, t 10 00

Scott, Thomas, t 50 00

Shaw, Joel, t 15 00

Toovey, Ray, t 5 00

Toovey, Ray, t 20 00

Toovey, A. Roy, and wife, t 25 00

Toovey, Florence, t 1 00

Williams, Mae, t 10 00

Williams, Mae, t 1 00

Williams, Mary E., t 1 50

Wilde, R. J., and wife, t 11 00

Wertz, Louise K., t 1 00

Wahlstrom, John, t 10 00

Wahlstrom, J., t 20 00

Wahlstrom, Mrs. J., t 1 00

Wahlstrom, Mrs. L. V., t 3 00

Walrath, Ruth, t 4 00

Walrath, Charles, and wife, t 12 00

Walrath, Hazel, t 30

Walrath, Clyde, and wife, o 25 00

Walrath, Cleveland and Ruth, t 5 00

Wertz, Mary, t 10 00

Wertz, Henry, jr., t 10 00

Total $4,208 49

Expenditures.

Beckman, J. A., e $ 16 35

Evans, R. C., bishop 1,000 00

Kelley, E. L., bishop 1,100 00

Lewis, William, e 30 00

Long, E. B., e 15 00

Mortimer, J. L., e 40 00

Mortimer, J. L., f 200 00

Page, J. C., f 142 00

Peterson, J. W., f 216 00

Peterson, J. W., e 18 50

Rowe, F. A., t 100 00

Tomlinson, S. W., e 20 00

Tomlinson, S. W., f 300 00

Postage and exchange 11 93

Total $3,269 78

Due church 998 71

SOCIETY ISLANDS MISSION.

Tetaku a Moeava, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $ 33 92

Turatahi, t 2 30

Petuela, t 50

Faatu, t 45

Matahira, t 20

Valrau, agent 10 00

Tetaku, agent $42 00

Tetaku, Christmas Offering, agent 28 00

Tiona Branch, Christmas Offering 3 00

Tupui, money returned 1 00

Hotu, Sisters of Manihi, o 2 00

Tuamea, agent, t. 8 40

Tarona Branch, Christmas Offering 2 90

Tane nui, t 1 00

Teua, t 2 00

Faatu, t 1 00

Matahira, t 50

Terituaeta, t 1 00

Tetovate, t 1 00

Tubual Branch, o 5 70

Matahira, t 50

Tahau, t 1 00

Sisters of Rairoa, o 11 00

Varoa, t 1 00

Elders' quorum, o 11 18

Sisters of Manihi, o 6 30

Teuravaea, agent 1 80

Tetaku, Christmas Offering, agent 29 10

Kaukura Branch, Christmas Offering 8 00

Tetaku, agent, t 100 00

Roo a Tara, t 10 00

Tanaui, t 3 00

Iakobo Tetunahi, t 1 40

Matahira, t 1 00

Roo vahine, t 1 00

Paata, t 1 00

Tama, t 2 00

Petuela, t 1 00

Matahira, t 1 00

Turatahi, agent, t 33 50

Araiaiti, agent, t 1 00

Tamaru, t 1 00

Tuamea, agent, t. 19 59

Tetaku, agent, t. 124 00

Turatahi, agent, t 18 00

Temanaha, t 5 00

Tuahiua, t 4 00

Tetaku, agent, t 10 00

Vaitua, t 1 00

Himaua, t 1 00

Mahinui, t 1 00

Tamaku, t 1 00

Manava, t 1 00

Tarona Branch, Christmas Offering 6 10

Tiona Branch, Christmas Offering 1 30

Tuamea, agent, t 14 60

Maopi, agent, t 15 10

Niau Branch, Christmas Offering 16 80

Takapoto Branch, Christmas Offering 7 10

Hereheretue, Teuivaera, agent, t 40 00

Kaiaho a Tuu, money for Order of Enoch 100 00

Received from printing work 118 38

Total $1,178 42

Expenditures.

Viriamu, a $ 7 50

Tuane, a 2 00

Kehaua, t 5 00

Kehaua, loan 2 00

Tupotahi, a 9 00

Teiho, a 15 00

Tai, a 3 00

Teupoara, loan 4 00

Alfred Sanford, loan 6 00

Tetawa, loan 5 31

Vaiarea, loan 3 00

Putoa, loan 4 00

Maukai, loan 2 50

Paa Matai, a 1 00

Haworth, J. W., e 4 00

Medicine for mission 11 18

Books for library 6 00

Postage 6 10

Stationery 8 65

Paint for missionary house 30 71

Kitchen utensils and incidentals for missionary house 13 90

Kelley, E. L., bishop, Order of Enoch 104 00

Kelley, E. L., bishop, Christmas Offering 96 34

Lake, C. H., e 32 30

May, J. C., and family, e 30 00

May, J. C., t 287 70

Savage, H. W., and wife, t 15 00

Savage, H. W., t 243 89

For printing work 111 63

Total $1,078 71

Due church 99 71

SOUTH DAKOTA.

South Dakota District.

E. Rannie, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $226 48
Expenditures.

Agent's expenses $ 27 54
Rannie, E. f. 120 00
Rannie, E. c. 15 50
Kelley, E. L., bishop 63 44
Total $226 48

South Dakota District.

E. E. Willard, Agent.

Receipts.

Bower, Sarah E., o $ 3 00
Denton, Ethel J., t 2 00
Total $ 5 00
Expenditures.

Kelley, E. L., bishop $ 5 00
Total $ 5 00

TEXAS.

Central District.

J. M. Nunley, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $234 85
Less $75 received 159 85
Allen, John G., and wife 5 00
Crawford, John M. 4 50
Drosche, Charles H. 1 00
Dotson, Edna 5 00
Dotson, Harry B. 10 00
Drosche, John E. 5 00
Drosche, Mollie M. 5 00
Drosche, Nola M. 5 00
Dotson, Samuel L. 5 00
Davidson, Thomas C. 5 00
Dotson, William A. 5 00
Dunnaboot, Minnie 1 00
Goodson, Annie 45
Goodson, Joseph W. 2 21
Goodson, Katie L. 1 20
Goodson, Thomas H. 2 00
Hill, Ella 5 00
Hay, Maude 5 00
Hay, Samuel R. 50 00
Hay, Sallie 1 50
Hay, Vida 75
Joslin, Will S. 4 00
James, Frank A. 1 50
Mitchell, Clinton M. and Mary E. 20 00
Norcross, Aaron 10 00
Nunley, Leonard Adam 15
Nunley, Emery L. 10
Nunley, Pansy 10
Nunley, Ruth 10
Norcross, Seleta O. 1 05
Spence, Charles W. 1 00
Squires, Mary J. 1 00
Sherrill, Romie 1 00
Standofer, William R. 1 00
Vanceleave, Rebecca L. 1 00
Vanceleave, Seleta E. 20
Total $304 37
Expenditures.

Agent's expenses $ 10 40
Kelley, E. L., bishop 200 00
Maloney, R. M., e 20 00
Nunley, E. W., e 35 00
Total $265 40
Due church 38 97

Northern District.

S. W. Simmons, Agent.

Receipts.

Boyle, W. A. $ 5 00
Boyle, Naomi 1 50
Bates, E. 3 40
Tucker, Julia 5 00
Weddell, Abbie 2 00
Simmons, Lizzie 1 00
Total $17 90
Expenditures.

Simmons, S. W., f $ 17 90
Total $ 17 90

Northwestern District.

B. F. Renfro, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $ 71 40
Bates, Elihu, t 25 50

Parker, Mary, t 1 50
Parker, Richard I., t 2 00
Renfro, Mantha, t 100 00
Taylor, Mary, t 10 00
Total $210 40
Expenditures.

Renfro, B. F., f $190 40
Renfro, B. F., e 20 00
Total $210 40

Southwestern District.

D. S. Palmer, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $123 41
Adams, O. L. 20 00
Adams, Olif 37
Adams, Ewing 75
Albright, Ettie 1 15
Applewhite, Minnie 2 00
Albright, Emory 5 00
Curtis, H. M. 90 00
Callahan, Joseph 15 00
Davenport, Jane 11 45
Davenport, William H. 6 40
Davenport, Hamilton, and wife 6 40
Gifford, Ruth 7 65
Haight, Josie 40
Herron, E. W. 2 92
Hodges, Minnie 2 20
Hodges, Vercy 1 50
Hodges, Vernon 2 00
Hodges, Sister Franklin 3 00
Hodges, Gentry 6 05
Hodges, Exie 5 30
Holt, Fannie 1 00
Irwin, Richmond 25
Johnson, O. D. 19 10
Johnson, Jim 11 00
Larman, Harriett 20 43
Minear, Hattie 2 30
Neal, Elma 15 00
Neal, Julia V. 6 50
North, William G. 25 00
Pike, J. E. 38 40
Paulger, W. H., and wife 50 00
Pauiger, W. H. 15 00
Riggs, Emma 2 00
Ruede, Pearl 2 00
Sibley, C. S. 10 00
Wallas, Sister W. G. 10 00
Total $536 43
Expenditures.

Allbright, Mrs. Ettie, a. $ 5 00
Harp, John, e 23 35
Manning, W. H., f 100 00
Maloney, R. M., e 4 50
Morgan, J. W., e 5 00
Palmer, D. S., f 331 08
Palmer, D. S., e 48 30
Total $517 23
Due church 19 20

UTAH.

Utah District.

G. J. S. Abels, Agent.

Receipts.

Abels, Gerard J. S. $ 20 00
Carlson, Ellen 9 50
Coleman, Anna 10 00
Coy, Sarah 15 00
Christensen, Fred 3 00
Cooper, Jane D. 1 00
Chase, Wells 10 00
Davis, Edward M. 1 00
Palmer, William and Mira 5 00
Gardner, Lorenzo 25 00
Hedlund, John E. 25 00
Jamison, Marshall T. 20 60
Johnson, Ola 25 00
Larson, Sister M. C. 25 00
Lorenson, Hans, and wife 25 00
Lorenson, Delbert 7 00
Lorenson, Hans C. 8 00
Laudie, Margaret E. 5 00
Mangum, Mary E. 2 00
Newman, Henry 4 25
Nelson, Caroline 1 00
Oblation, Utah District conference 10 51
Oblation, Utah District
reunion 7 15
Oblation, Ogden Branch. 7 05
Oblation, Provo Branch. 2 50
Oblation, Salt Lake
Branch 9 41
Pettit, Jané M. 10 00
Peerman, Harry L. 5 00
Smurthwaite, Charles A. 47 00
Sandell, Ellen 3 00
Winkworth, William Edward, sen. 20 00
Winkworth, William Edward, jr. 4 60
Wilson, Jefferson D. 10 00

Williams, Rachel 1 50
Woodhead, George T. 10 00
Wardle, James and Mary 30 00
Total $414 47
Expenditures.

Balance due agent De-
cember 31, 1910 $ 61 29
Chase, A. M., e 20 65
Gowell, M. F., f 40 00
Gowell, M. F., e 5 00
Rushton, J. W., e 25 00
Stubbart, J. M., e 5 00
Taxes, Ogden realty 1 10
Taxes, street improvements, etc., Provo 33 76
Agent's expenses 33 95
Total $275 75
Due church 138 72

VIRGINIA.

New Hope District.

Isaac Coffman, Agent.

Receipts.

Bowman, Noah $ 40 00
Brown, Elizabeth 1 00
Coffman, Isaac, and wife 2 00
Total $ 43 00
Expenditures.

Brown, Samuel, e $ 41 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop 2 00
Total $ 43 00

WASHINGTON.

Seattle and British Columbia
District.

Frank Holmes, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $348 77
Aid Society, Seattle, t. 5 80
Butterfield, Thomas, and wife, t. 15 00
Butterfield, Jessie, t. 7 00
Berringer, Jack, and wife, t. 16 50
Butterfield, Harry J., t. 1,000 00
Clark, Charles L., t. 50 00
Cushman, F. W., t. 42 00
Dunlap, May, t. 9 00
Emble, David A., and wife, t. 29 00
Emble, William, and
wife, t. 15 62
Gladwin, W. S., and wife, t. 11 55
Hartnell, John, t. 100 00
Holtman, Bertha, t. 70
Holmes, Almee D., t. 5 00
Hastings, Agnes, t. 3 00
Hartnell, Mrs. Richard, t. 30 00
Holmes, Frank, and wife, t. 25 00
Kinghorn, Samuel, and wife, t. 20 00
Matson, Ben, t. 20 00
Muirhead, R. J., t. 100 00
Mercer, Margaret, t. 20 00
McMullen, Isaac, and wife, t. 3 25
McMullen, Emily, t. 3 00
Owen, Etha, o 1 00
Pope, Samuel, and wife, t. 10 00
Pope, Samuel, o 2 00
Premo, May L., t. 2 35
Premo, Winnie, t. 75
Quigley, Mrs. D. F., t. 5 00
Rhoads, J. E., and wife, t. 5 00
Rhodes, Leonard, t. 44 00
Reed, W. C., and wife, t. 5 00
Stade, Henry and Mary, t. 50 00
Smith, Alice, t. 50 00
Water, W. H., and wife, t. 16 00
Williams, Mrs. H. B., t. 45 00
Ward, Jessie, t. 7 00
Wilson, Lena, t. 7 00
Williams, Moreley, t. 2 00
Total $2,128 20
Expenditures.

Agent's expenses $ 5 07
Johnson, William, f 380 00
McKim, Burton L., e 35 00
Sheldon, N. V., f 200 00
Sheehy, F. M., e 5 00
Wiley, C. E., f 216 00
Total $841 07
Due church 1,287 22

Spokane District.

W. W. Fordham, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1910 $262 78
Allen, Mary E. 12 50
Allen, Mary E., o 2 00
Allen, Thomas E. 5 00

Birdsell, William H., and wife, o 1 00
Benson, Zora L. 10 00
Blackman, George, and wife 5 00
Clark, Sarah 25 00
Cleary, Lettie 5 00
Coleman, Nathaniel, and wife 10 00
Coleman, May 5 00
Cuendet, H. B., and wife, o 1 00
Davis, Corda 22 00
Paul, Charles 1 75
Paulkner, Walter 1 75
Pels, Sophronia 4 75
Fordham, M. 80 00
Fordham, W. W. and
Ella M. 15 00
Friends, o 7 35
Gilmore, A. A., and wife 5 00
Gilmore, Maude and Pearl 3 00
Gilmore, Lucy A. 5 00
Gordon, George and Myanda 70 00
Grant, Minnie I. 10 00
Gunter, S. F. 10 00
Gunter, Charles 55 50
Gunter, E. M. and S. F. 10 00
Harp, William M., and wife 32 13
Harp, William M., and wife, o 1 40
Harper, Sterling P. and
Emma 2 01
Harris, Mina M. 7 50
Haskell, Christina, s. 20 00
Hoisington, Frank, and wife 90 00
Holmes, Lawrence E. 400 00
Hower, J. Oscar and Edith M. 17 00
Interest 6 80
Jenkins, Hyrum P., and
wife 2 00
Jorgensen, Christian and
Petra C. 5 00
Kellum, Ada 10 00
Martin, Jerome W. 14 90
Mite Society, Condon, o. 3 00
McClain, Ella M. 1 00
McDole, Dana S. 62 65
McDole, Dana S. and Emma T. 13 50
McDole, Robert A. 15 00
McKim, Ida 1 50
Oblations, Spokane Branch 69 75
Oblations, Columbia River
Branch 1 40
Place, Albert and Elsie 2 50
Powell, Wilson H., and wife 2 10
Richards, Ewan 115 70
Saints, Hood River,
Oregon, o 2 00
Silver, Locke Williams. 50 00
Stevens, H. R., and wife, o 60 Stevens, T. William, and wife, o 50
Story, James, and wife. 5 00
Sheldon, William T., and
wife 70 00
Sheldon, William T., and wife, o 1 00
Summers, Mary 10 00
Stedronsky, Frank A. and Mary 29 70
Tharp, Sarah A., o 50
Tharp, C. E., o 1 00
Tharp, T. A., o 1 00
Thompson, William H. and Clara 5 00
Tomlinson, Mary 5 00
Turnbow, Benjamin R. 36 00
Turnbow, John E. 5 00
Turnbull, Oliver 20 00
Turnbull, Mary Jane 20 00
Turnbull, Andy F. 15 00
Van Eaton, Claire 5 00
Van Eaton, J. H., and wife 5 00
Venke, Pearl 14 00
Twilgear, Elva 5 00
Winegar, James and Clara 25 00
Winegar, James and Clara, o 1 00
Winegar, Stephen A. and
Emma 15 00
Wood, William W., and wife 7 00
Total $1,904 92

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses $ 22 40
Boyce, Theresa, a 102 35
Case, Oscar, f. 20 00
Fordham, W. W., e 38 50
Hooker, S. F., a 7 50
Hart, Anna, a 1 00
Kelley, T. C., e 44 95
Kelley, E. L., bishop 300 00
Keeler, E. f. 240 00
Layland, A. J., f 378 00
Plumb, P. T., f 272 00
Rushton, J. W., o 20 00

Sheldon, N. V., e	35 00
Smith, A. J., a	5 00
Willey, C. B., e	30 00
Wells, Abbie J., a	5 00
Total	$1,519 70
Due church	385 22

WEST VIRGINIA.

West Virginia District.

B. Beall, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church De-
ember 31, 1910	$ 7 30
Biggs, Joseph	1 00
Beall, Barnet	5 85
Beall, Charles M.	2 50
Beall, Florence R.	2 50
Baker, Mrs. Reauscau	6 00
Cottrill, Joanna	3 00
Cottrill, Elden	5 50
Ferguson, Jennie	1 50
Griffith, Lucy L.	10 00
Johnson, Harry, and wife	5 00
Kidd, Mary F.	2 00
Kelley, Lizzie	2 25
Ross, Mabel	7 50
Robison, Phoebe M.	2 00
Ross, Katie	1 50
Ross, Sarah J.	1 25
Steele, Mary E.	1 00
Shinn, Frank L.	30 00
Skinner, Alex. N.	5 00
Smith, Francis	10 00
Smith, Thomas	1 00
Scott, Alice	2 00
Tamplin, G. F., and wife	4 50
Wilson, Laura	10 00
Wilson, Emma	6 00
Williams, Lucinda	5 00
Williams, Charles F.	5 00
Total	$141 15

Expenditures.

Beall, B., e	$5 85
Brown, Samuel, e	20 00
Richards, Ida B., a	40 00
Russell, R. C., e	15 00
Stubbart, J. M., e	10 00
Winegar, H. E., e	5 00
Total	$95 85
Due church	45 30

WINNIPEG.

Winnipeg District.

W. I. Arnold, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church De-
ember 31, 1910	$262 10
Arnold, W. I., and family	38 08
Burr, Martha	21 00
Burto, O., and wife	25 00
Conlin, Ethel	20 00
Clark, Forbes	50 00
Carleton, Helon	1 00
Carter, Selby, and wife	140 00
Dallyn, Ambrose, and wife	25 00
Gifford, Mariah	5 00
McGregor, William, and wife	50 00
Hayward, Minnie	20 00
Hayward, Estela	4 00
Krinnee, Caleb	10 00
McGregor, Edward	35 00
Ringland, Lucy	10 00
Venard, Mathew, and wife	102 50
Wilson, Wellington, and wife	400 00
Wilson, Nelson, and wife	200 00
Winnipeg Branch	6 80
Total	$1,425 54

Expenditures.

Braden, J. H., a	$10 00
Carleton, A. C., a	25 00
Evans, R. C., bishop	200 00
Lewis, William, e	25 00
Long, E. E., f	430 00
Long, E. E., e	18 00
Donation to church building	100 00
Exchange	2 41
Total	$810 41
Due church	615 13

WISCONSIN.

Northern District.

Nalmer Johnson, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church De-
ember 31, 1910	$ 89 74
Bettner, Mary	5 00
Collins, Mary	5 00
Colbert, Orlando	50 00

Fisher, Mrs. Ivy	1 01
Ganoe, Fletcher	10 00
Ganoe, Orin D.	50 00
Johnson, Noah	10 00
Johnson, Mr. and Mrs.
Nalmer	52 50
Johnson, Paul M.	40
Johnson, Hazel R.	30
Knapp, Orin	10 00
Lampman, Minnie	1 00
Lampman, G. B.	1 00
Mason, E. L.	10 00
Rich, Arthur, and wife	2 00
Runkel, Miss A. E.	15 00
Shedd, M. O.	10 00
Thompson, J. H., and wife	2 00
Whiteaker, A. L.	30 50
Whiteaker, Mrs. A. L.	13 50
Total	$369 55

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses	$ 1 43
Davis, R. D., e	5 00
Flint, Mrs. B. C., f	30 00
Robinson, W. P., f	72 00
Whiteaker, A. L., e	25 00
Whiteaker, A. L., f	189 00
Total	$322 43
Due church	47 12

Southern District.

C. C. Hoague, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church De-
ember 31, 1910	$ 75 81
Archibault, Hubert J., and wife	40 00
Askin, Sarah	20 00
Brown, Ira, and wife	27 00
Brott, William, and wife	8 25
Brott, Willie June	20
Brinkhoof, F. N.	10 00
Brethaupt, Archie	10 00
Brickner, Mabel	5 00
Carpenter, Floyd F., and wife	25 00
Carpenter, O. M., and family	18 00
Dutton, Julia N.	20 00
Dutton, O. N. and E. W.	120 00
Pavement, Mrs. Philip	4 00
Davis, Mrs. Porter	5 00
Ellis, A. Lincoln, and family	50 00
Ellis, W. R.	10 00

Ellis, Elizabeth	10 00
Edwards, John, and wife	25 00
Edwards, Irvine	10 00
Edgington, Eliza	6 05
Flint, Alfred	10 00
Gilins, Mrs. E. B.	12 00
Gratz, August, o	1 00
Gratz, August, and wife	1 50
Hudson, Alberta	5 00
Hield, Willard W.	4 40
Hield, Charlie	2 00
Houck, Mrs. M.	24 00
Hoague, C. C., and wife	11 20
Hoague, Charles C., jr.	3 75
James, Mary	1 25
James, Mary, o	5 50
Kelley, E. L., bishop	150 00
Leighty, Fred, and wife	10 00
Leighty, Mrs. Fred	10 00
Lanke, Bert, and wife	5 00
Matthews, William, and wife	2 00
Miller, Clara	3 00
McDowell, Mrs. W. A.	1 50
Noble, Hannah	5 00
Ott, Harlow S., and wife	6 00
Oates, Thornton	30 00
Orton, Lenora	1 00
Pearce, Clara	10 00
Pearce, Clara, o	3 00
Pearce, Harold, o	5 50
Fennock, Mrs. Willis	7 00
Fendleton, Joseph	6 75
Fendleton, Rosal F.	1 50
Robinson, Randall C.	5 00
Robinson, Helen	2 00
Rounds, Belle	10 00
Stevens, H. D., and wife	19 40
Sperry, Henry, and wife	3 00
Sperry, Ida	15 00
Tucker, Dora	5 00
Tucker, Lucy	5 00
Williams, Agnes	2 00
Williams, Agnes, o	5 00
Total	$895 06

Expenditures.

Dutton, J. O., f	$283 00
Flint, B. C., f	195 00
McDowell, W. A., f	360 00
Whiteaker, A. L., f	27 00
Davis, R. D., e	5 00
Flint, B. C., e	5 00
Smith, F. A., e	20 00
Total	$895 00
Due church	06

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES OF ELDERS, FOR YEAR ENDING, DECEMBER 31, 1911

NAMES	Due church Last report	Receipts			Total		Balance Due church
		Bps. and Agts.	Individuals	Furnished by Self	Receipts	Expenditures
Allen, Arthur	$ 6.07	$ 20.00	$ 353.31	$ 2.96	$ 379.38	$ 379.38
Anderson, William	18.03	71.00	68.00		159.99	159.99
Anderson, Peter T.
Arber, Joseph	14.35	41.00	139.40		194.75	179.10	15.65
Aylor, William		42.35	133.70	30.35	206.40	206.40
Byrne, B. O.		27.00	42.17	2.29	71.46	71.46
Bozarth, R. E.		1.00	14.40	.68	16.08	16.08
Bean, Benjamin		60.00	73.22	14.17	147.39	147.39
Baggerly, I. P.				10.00	10.00	10.00
Bailey, J. J.			118.63	64.69	183.32	183.32
Baker, J. M.	8.32	45.00	81.45		134.77	125.80	8.97
Baker, A. M.
Baker, J. H.		15.00	11.75	71.03	97.78	97.78
Baldwin, R.	3.30	157.00	56.23		216.53	214.23	2.30
Barmore, A. C.	14.96				14.96		14.96
Becker, J. A.		191.53	98.28		227.81	227.81
Blackmore, James H.	2.34	25.00	35.75		38.09	30.68	7.41
Booker, N. L.		30.00	119.79		144.79	138.91	5.88
Booker, Alma		30.00	147.45	1.22	178.67	178.67
Bond, M. H.	4.50	175.38	8.35		188.23	188.23
Bootman, W. P.	2.45	45.00	300.70		348.15	330.15	18.00
Braun, H. V.	32.38	10.00	.05	23.70	66.13	34.25	31.88
Brown, Samuel		76.00	74.75		150.75	138.03	12.72
Bullard, Richard		89.00	154.00	29.95	272.95	272.95
Burt, G. W.		160.90	25.00		185.90	183.85	2.55
Burr, A. E.		50.00	32.00	11.43	93.43	93.43
Burr, C. H.		89.00	83.20	16.57	188.77	188.77
Bussell, P. B.		135.00	26.25		161.25	161.25
Butterworth, C. A.			61.68		61.68	61.68
Butterworth, C. E.		7.85	168.87		174.72	154.59	20.13
Bailey, J. W. A.		11.00	66.57	3.60	81.17	81.17
Brackenbury, F. S.			61.01		61.01	61.01
Burdick, Leon		25.00	45.80		70.89	61.03	9.86
Cady, Charles J.	17.95	95.00	21.85		134.80	110.15	24.65
Campbell, Duncan		26.00	7.50	22.29	55.79	55.79
Carpenter, J. A.	17.79		12.25	30.43	60.47	60.47
Carpenter, Hubert		56.08	141.85	12.27	211.10	211.10
Chase, C. S.		5.55	17.00		22.55	20.55	2.00
Chase, A. M.		190.00	179.55	25.70	395.25	395.25
Chatburn, T. W.		92.00	45.50		137.50	137.50
Clapp, J. C.		90.00			90.00	90.00
Chatburn, F. J.		110.00	46.30		156.30	138.55	17.75
Cochran, A. S.			14	1.86	2.00	2.00
Cooper, F. H.			43.80	2.34	124.14	124.14
Condit, J. M.

NAMES	Due church Last report	Receipts.			Total		Balance Due church
		Bps. and Agts.	Individuals	Furnished by Self	Receipts	Expenditures
Condit, S. D.			10.00	151.68		161.68
Cook, M. H.	10.01		10.00	54.60	36.30	101.90
Crabb, J. C.				54.37	119.04	183.41
Craig, James				14.25		183.41
Crumley, C. B.			97.50	216.75	20.00	334.25
Curtis, J. D.			55.00	35.10	51.60	141.70
Curtis, J. F.	20.72		38.00	224.71		283.43	12.75
Cushman, S. F.				130.62		130.62
Chrestensen, J. C.			67.00	59.07	16.19	142.26
Dabose, J. W.			73.00	60.25		133.25	23.25
Davis, R. D.			48.00	60.36		108.36	03
Davis, J. W.			15.00	83.56	157.67	241.23
Davis, William			12.00	91.01		96.52	9.49
Davis, E. A.			105.00	137.80	10.30	160.10
Davis, J. T.			40.00	16.75	24.00	121.75
Davis, J. Arthur			30.00	68.00		132.00
Davis, James	5.85		141.50	70.29	4.00	93.25	7.04
Davis, John	9.00		165.00	117.55		268.90
Davison, H. J.	21			116.39		290.39	9.50
Derry, Charles			20.00	70.55		67.51	3.25
Deuel, C. W.			10.00	137.05	11.75	168.80
Devore, L. R.				10.00		10.00
Dillon, Edgar				280.00		280.00
Dowker, T. B.				169.75		169.75	15.65
Dowker, William	13.82		20.00	71.05		104.87	12.76
Dowker, J. A.
Dutton, Jasper O.			3.00	168.42	93	172.35
Davis, John Alfred				24.00	1.00	25.00
Ellis, A. R.			16.00	78.74	33.92	128.66
Ebeling, F. J.
Ellis, W. D.	67.27		10.00	103.76		181.03	23.91
Ellis, Clyde				118.37	22.01	160.38
Elvin, Robert M.				14.02	40.35	66.37
Erwin, B. A.				12.50	70.63	98.80
Etzenhouser, R.	40			25.00	3.17	98.30
Evans, R. C.	4.45		110.00	377.34		377.74	5.77
Edwards, George			10.00	54.25		168.70	2.65
Farnfield, J. C.	4.00		70.00	153.00		163.00
Farr, F. B.	10			75.25		149.25	8.40
Farrell, R. W.			100.00	124.70	3.80	228.60
Fields, S. H.				75.00		205.00
Flinn, P. A.	24.39					24.39	24.39
Foss, S. O.			25.00			25.00
Foss, J. C.			50.00	33.50	53.50	137.00
Fry, Charles			10.00	37.40	52.05	99.45
Flint, B. C.			34.25	130.62		164.87
Gamet, Levi	1.76		20.00	67.82		87.82	1.00
Garrett, W. H.	5.26		5.36	99.02	17.24	123.38
Garver, J. F.	5.18			4.30		47.20	7.48
Goodman, J. C.				90.22		95.38	11.10
Goodenough, E. J.	30.13		33.50	33.42		66.92
Goodrich, V. M.	2.36		43.00	76.92	44.16	184.21
Grant, J. A.			40.00	251.16		293.52
Gratz, August				14.70	05	14.75
Gregory, Fred	3.00		41.50	10.90	38.83	49.73
Griffiths, G. T.			261.84	87.92		132.42	22.50
Grimes, J. F.	65			20.01		290.85	5.00
Greene, U. W.	3.14					65	65
Gowell, M. F.			207.00	216.40		426.54	3.74
Greenwood, W. H.				30.25		44.25	17.80
Harp, John				52.84		101.50
Hanson, John H.				64.10		64.10
Hadsen, W. E.			43.00	31.50	53.72	85.22
Halb, Jacob	12.00		55.00	81.39	29.55	153.94
Hansen, H. N.			245.92	133.62		200.62
Hanson, Paul M.			110.00	26.25	28.73	300.90	16.84
Harrington, G. E.			238.73	95.00	22.68	227.68
Harpe, C. E.	10.66		92.50	8.20		246.93
Hawn, O. J.			20.00	91.35	21.24	215.75
Hayer, Eli				79.34		99.34	2.64
Hensen, E. L.	13.91		5.00	13.00		13.00
Hills, L. E.			51.00	90.49	9.13	118.53
Holloway, L. G.			47.00	57.00	26.00	134.00
Hougas, T. A.				77.80	51.87	176.67
Houghton, Leonard					12.40	12.40
Howlett, R. B.	15.75		32.50	74.89	29.55	136.94
Hull, E. B.	4.42					15.75	15.75
Hunt, C. J.			79.00	81.90		165.32	1.75
Harp, John			118.84	56.50		175.34
Haworth, W. J.
Hughes, J. E.				5.75	18.30	24.05
Jenkins, Rees	4.21		38.84	101.96		145.01
Jenkins, George			145.16	81.16		226.32	79.57
Joehnk, C. C.	15		135.00	59.30	88.25	282.70
Johnson, William			90.00	103.61	53.67	247.28
Johnson, Oscar				70.63		195.06
Jones, J. H. N.				15.16		91.52	1.22
Jones, Thomas
Jordison, John				11.00		11.00	1.20
Kemp, Henry			7.00			7.00
Keck, F. C.	2.38		30.00	158.28		190.66	34.30
Keeler, B.	7.65		20.00	164.64		192.29
Kelley, T. C.	23.78		74.95	250.20		348.93	50.00
Kelley, W. H. (Lamon)	9.45		72.50	121.35	30.70	234.00
Kelley, James E.			30.00	163.98	97.00	290.98
Kemp, James				17.00	5.85	32.85
Knitsley, Alvin	51.71					129.71	37.22
Koehler, J. A.			25.00	148.27	3.13	176.40
Koehler, H. Arthur	51		30.00	88.43	1.40	120.43
Kelley, W. H.			23.00		30.60	62.60	1.30
Lake, C. H.	21.15		142.50	50		164.15
Lambert, J. R.			75.00	93.30		168.30	14.22
Lambkin, B. S.			15.00	69.24		84.24
Long, E. E.			54.00	203.50		257.50	9.30
LaRue, W. E.	9.90		155.00	318.25	5.80	488.95
Layland, A. J.			80.00	145.30	34.40	259.70

NAMES	Duc church Last report	Receipts			Receipts	Expenditures	Balance Duc church
		Bps. and Agts.	Individuals	Furnished by Self
Lentell, John		74.00	89.20	55	163.81	163.81
Leaverton, A.			77.35	3.94	81.29	81.29
Luff, J. J.		10.00	5.28		15.28	13.40	1.88
Lewis, William		150.00	192.25	10.10	352.35	352.35
Longhurst, R. C.	46	46.00	33.11		81.01	81.01
Leggott, G. W.			38.00	21.00	7.31	7.31
Lake, J. H.			88.96	108.05	147.01	146.03	34.25
Lewis, George				22.08	22.68	22.68	93
McGeorge, T. L.				42.56	42.68	42.68
Mann, R. O.				97.85	127.85	127.85	2.11
May, J. Charles		30.00	35.00		138.75	122.55	16.20
Mortimore, J. L.		23.00	127.24		150.24	145.00	5.24
Macrae, W. S.			75.74	30.20	105.94	104.94	1.00
McClain, J. R.			7.50	166.60	189.60	174.10	15.50
McConley, M. A.	15.50	20.00	103.28		123.28	122.24	1.04
McConaughy, James		12.23	25.00	144.53	181.76	177.01	4.75
McDowell, W. A.			68.00	99.65	190.19	190.19
Macgregor, D.		2.68	34.00	107.53	8.21	152.42
McKierman, James			63.00	84.23	1.21	148.44
McKim, B. L.			36.00	135.00		148.44
McKnight, J. W.	3.83	4.12	49.75	86.58	6.33	174.86	5.58
Madden, S. J.			38.00	147.00	39.71	146.76
Maloney, R. M.			163.00	20.60	8.12	224.71
Manning, W. H.			38.00	99.66	7.67	191.72
Metcalf, W.			60.75	165.32	8.73	145.33
Miller, C. Ed.			121.40	70.45		234.80
Miller, O. R.			14.00	99.35		191.85
Mintun, J. F.	1.30		18.00	67.94		113.65	1.32
Moler, James	13		22.50	69.64		86.07	54
Moore, L. C.	23.79				115.93	85.53	11.27
Moorman, Ervin E.	3.03				3.03	104.66	3.03
Morgan, J. W.	8.10		72.00	80.55	9.30	169.95
Morgan, E. B.			108.36	24.80	63.10	196.26
Muceus, Peter			169.00	6.09	1.40	176.49
Moser, Fred, jr.			2.00	22.96	38.82	63.78
Moler, H. E.	28.44		32.00	133.29		193.73	40.19
Madden, New			30.00	53.95		83.95
Newton, William			210.35	4.25		214.60	5.47
Nunley, J. M.				16.45		16.45
Okerlind, O. W.			10.00	97.84	96	108.80
Page, J. C.			70.00	128.02		198.02
Palmer, D. S.		72	43.30	81.27		165.29
Parkin, C. A.			118.45	54.15		172.60	72
Parsons, A. H.			156.00	31.60		187.60
Paxton, J. W.			55.00	117.63	11.45	184.08
Peak, W. E.			131.35	68.20		215.35
Pender, W. S.	15.80					199.55	15.80
Peters, C. J.			35.00	31.65		66.65
Peterson, J. W.			90.00	121.90		211.90	29
Petre, J. F.	8.87		25.00	126.32		160.19	5.10
Phillips, A. B.	5.85		10.00	120.66	4.63	141.14	94
Pickering, W. P.			30.00	38.78		68.78
Pierce, H. N.						68.04	74
Pitt, F. G.			105.00	326.77	25.73	457.50
Plumb, P. T.			69.50	79.35		148.85
Porter, C. H.			27.45	17.25		44.70	1.47
Prettyman, C. W.				135.45	11.41	146.80
Price, J. D.			14.00	23.89	30.42	68.31
Prickett, Fred				50	8.74	68.31
Preock, J.			40.00	37.48	32.43	41.49
Pierce, F. J.	0.60					109.91
Parker, J. L.			10.00	24.25	17.48	9.60	9.60
Purfurst, A. B.			165.51	133.78		51.73
Quick, Lee	32.57		28.54		29.00	299.29	89.60
Rannie, Edward			5.00	191.71		90.20
Reiste, S. M.			23.00	62.90	43.97	196.71	11.00
Renfroe, B. F.			45.00	76.05		129.87
Resor, Everett			25.00			121.05
Riley, J. T.			25.00	53.70		25.00
Roberts, J. A.	14.57		15.00	97.80	132.68	211.38
Roberts, I. N.	24.72		65.00	3.50	5.01	127.37	23.99
Robinson, W. P.	49.33			23.16		98.23
Roth, J. S.				120.02		98.23	49.42
Rowe, F.						120.02	14.77
Russell, R. C.	78		300.15	180.49		477.47
Rushton, J. W.	1.74		138.00	280.70		481.42	3.95
Russell, F. A.			30.00	100.16	52.84	420.44	22.82
Richards, W. B.	7.50			69.98		183.00
Robertson, E. F.			22.50	140.75	66.50	77.48	5.50
Salyards, R. S.	1.17			101.05	46.02	229.75
Sawley, F. L.	26.05		59.00	89.80		149.14
Scott, S. W. L.	27		39.50	145.51	15	174.85	36.55
Scott, Columbus			105.35	136.56		149.14
Self, R. O.				64.65		185.43
Self, W. M.				77.05	27.58	221.91	20.74
Sheeby, F. M.			175.50	137.00	15.00	92.23
Sheldon, N. V.	05		135.00	120.75	50.38	92.05
Sheppard, T. J.			15.00	4.50	19.73	362.88
Shields, John	1.61		5.00	175.26	61.50	275.53
Siegfried, M. H.	2.15		25.00	13.86		81.00
Silvers, A. C.			10.00	138.41		181.87
Simmons, Jesse M.			10.00	53.10	3.36	41.01
Simmons, S. W.	36.10		54.00	120.50		156.41
Shippy, G. M.	15.84		25.00	133.00		66.46
Showers, J. D.			40.00	70.07	82	189.65	20.95
Slover, F. M.	19.30		22.00	237.34		173.84
Smart, W. H.			61.00	97.15		110.89
Smith, John	81			26.20	129.20	278.64	32.40
Smith, Edgar H.	2.18		32.00	64.50		158.15	30
Smith, Joseph			224.75	35.00		156.21
Smith, Walter W.				118.25	6.15	94.33	4.35
Smith, J. W.			58.00	69.75		259.75	2.00
Smith, W. A.	10.40			124.05		124.40
Smith, I. M.	2.10		70.00	108.50	81	127.75	9.38
Smith, F. A.			227.00	210.32		135.26
Smith, H. O.			102.50	114.00		180.60	1.10
						437.82	7.17
						216.50

NAMES	Due church Last report	Receipts			Receipts	Expenditures	Balance Due church
		Bps. and Agts.	Individuals	Furnished by Self
Smith, Heman C.		200.00	55.25	32.49	347.74	347.74
Smith, W. R.		51.50	77.10	13.60	142.20	142.20
Smith, David		35.00	77.75		112.75	112.75
Smith, S. S.		59.50	125.07		185.17	181.70	1.47
Snow, C. L.			34.65	57.80	92.45	92.45
Stead, J. D.		85.00	152.00		237.00	218.88	19.02
Sparling, Henry		112.25	61.10	50	173.85	173.85
Sparling, William		84.32	71.49		155.81	155.81
Stebbins, H. A.		6.25	29.05		35.30	35.30
St. John, Benjamin		59.00	20.82	39.58	119.40	119.40
St. John, G. T.	20.47	05.00	122.05		207.52	190.46	17.06
Stone, A. E.		65.00	70.53		135.53	132.35	3.18
Stubbart, J. M.	13.70	70.00	133.92		217.62	213.22	4.40
Sutton, J. R.	4.44	48.00	145.02		197.46	187.46	10.00
Swenson, Swen	8.76		61.88	04	70.68	70.68
Swenson, C. A.		75.00	1.58	13.59	90.17	90.17
Smith, Elbert A.	1.56	124.00	44.25		169.81	167.40	2.41
Shakespeare, W. E.		14.25	59.07	5.10	78.42	78.42
Sade, O. E.			108.95		108.95	108.95
Saehy, J. P.		25.00	52.30		77.30	76.48	82
Slye, R. F.		19.00	87.71		106.71	104.48	60
Tanner, J. A.	6.07	30.00	225.57		261.04	253.20	8.35
Taylor, T.		31.29	32.26		63.55	60.31	3.24
Teeters, J. A.			12.25	10.55	22.80	22.80
Terry, J. M.	20.00	20.00	268.40		308.40	288.40	20.00
Thomas, O. B.		37.00	74.50		111.50	103.20	8.30
Thomas, T. U.	1.00	137.00	126.95		264.95	264.95
Thompson, J. T.	3.92	40.00	104.97	88	149.77	149.77
Thorburn, George W.	94.32	40.00	118.20		252.52	190.02	56.50
Tomlinson, S. W.		30.00	57.75	62.40	150.15	150.15
Tomlinson, G. C.			5.00		5.00	5.00
Tucker, D. E.	42.72	15.00	33.33	5.95	97.00	97.00
Turner, Warren		30.00	47.50	18.11	95.61	95.61
Turpen, M. M.		13.08			13.08	13.08
Twombly, Samuel		50.00	91.10	24.95	166.05	166.05
Vanceleave, Albert		11.00	91.33	3.98	106.31	106.31
Vanderwood, J. E.		39.35	111.70		151.05	149.90	1.15
Williams, J. W.			54.00		54.00	54.00
Welch, Gomer R.			108.00		140.23	140.23
Walters, R. T.		24.00	47.45	17.19	101.18	101.18
White, Ammon			45.58	54.03	100.58	99.43	1.15
White, I. N.		55.00	36.05	63.60	104.74	104.74
Whiting, Alonzo	5.00		46.40		81.40	57.50	23.90
Whiteaker, A. L.		35.00	209.35		284.84	280.51	4.33
Wight, J. W.	2.99	72.50			41.95		41.95
Wiles, John F.	41.95
Wildermuth, E. M.
Wildermuth, Lester		32.00	40.32	21.91	94.23	94.23
Wildermuth, J. B.		60.00	76.46	35.85	172.31	172.31
Willey, C. E.		90.00	58.45	2.63	151.08	151.08
Wildermuth, J. E.	10.00	50.88	120.75		181.63	181.63
Winegar, H. E.		40.00	31.17		71.17	71.17
Wiltfong, J. D.		9.85	12.80		22.65	17.25	5.40
Welch, G. B.		27.30	8.37	6.00	41.67	41.67
Yates, James E.	10.00	25.00	142.00		177.00	177.00
Total	$1,223.26	$14,920.60	$24,823.57	$3,386.90	$44,273.59	$42,811.19	$1,462.40

SAINTS' AND LIBERTY HOMES FUND.

Offerings from January 10, 1911, to January 10, 1912.

Allen, Thomas R.	30 00
Adams, A. H.	5 25
Bogue, Mrs. N. B.	50
Butts, Sarah	50
Constance, J. and Sarah	5 00
Case, George	12 00
Edson, Mrs. E. P.	50 00
Frew, Agnes	2 00
Gunsolley, Rufus A.	50 00
Heavener, Melvina	2 50
Jones, D.	3 60
McKenzie, G. E. L.	25 00
Maddock, W.	1 00
Maynard, E. F.	1 00
Orton, S.	10 00
Peck, Kate J.	1 00
Robertson, Mrs. M.	1 00
Shenogle, Mary	4 00
Tanniber, Henry	1 55
Wetherbee, W. O.	25
A sister	1 40
Total	$207 55

BONHEIM PLACE.

Receipts from January 10, 1911, to January 10, 1912.

Brooks, Mrs. Annie	$ 3 00
Gault, Jane	10 00
Hobson, Jessie	5 00
Hudson, O. O.	5 00
Horton, Able A.	1 00
Lofty, Frank and wife.	1 00
Powers, Joel H.	5 00
Ross, Sister	2 00
Saundersfield, R. A.	15 00
Shirk, S. K.	40
Severin, J. C., and others	12 00
A sister	50
Zion's Religio-Literary Soc.	6 00
Baird, Mrs. Ella, acct.	200 00
Total	$265 90

CHILDREN'S HOME.

Offerings from January 10, 1911, to January 10, 1912.

A brother and sister, Cal.	$ 2 00
Anderson, R. B.	10
Anderson, Eliza	50
Anderson, Emma L.	50
Anderson, Nelson C. and wife	5 00
Anderson, Frank	50
Anderson, Robert	1 00
Alma Branch, Missouri	21 40
Andrews, Samuel	25 00
Atkinson, Harriett	2 50
Askin, Sarah	2 00
Austin, Ellen D.	15 00
A friend	50
A sister, Wales	1 47
A sister	1 00
Baldwin, J. N.	6 00
Bolander, Jennie, and mother	10 00
Boston Sunday School	8 50
Bond, W. S.	10 00
Bierlein, J. D.	5 00
Brown, Hannah	2 50
Broad River Sunday School	2 00
Brackie, Mrs. Belle	1 25
Button, Mrs. H. A.	5 00
Burke, Mrs. E. M.	60
Cato, Cynthia	21 00
Carlson, Minta	2 00
Carpenter, Mrs. C. B.	2 00
Corbett, Mrs. M. J.	4 00
Cook, J. R.	4 00
Colts, Brother and Sister	5 00
Conrad, Mrs. E. A.	1 00
Church, Sister	2 00
Chapman, Allee T.	3 00
Copmarant, Minnesota Saints	50
Dancer, Alice P.	7 50
Dreyer, Mrs. Joseph	2 00
Edwards, James L. and Ella M.	10 00

Evans, Mrs. Frances A.	2 00	Lofty, Frank, and wife.	1 00
Edson, Elizabeth B.	40 00	Leitch, Thomas	5 00
Evans, William J.	1 00	Lewis, Jennie H.	1 00
Frew, Agnes	1 00	McRae, John	6 00
Foster, Mrs. Foster	20	McPherson, Elizabeth	10 00
Gamet, Mrs. E. A.	2 00	McLeod, Mrs. Emalie	5 00
Gault, Jane	20 00	McGlynn, Sister	12 00
Gallands Grove and Little Sioux District	42 48	McPherson, Mrs. Robert	10 00
Gallands Grove Saints	5 30	McQueen, John	5 00
Green Ridge Sunday School		Mahoney, Hiram	1 00
Pennsylvania	2 00	Mahoney, Martha	25
Goodenough, Vernie	5 00	Mather, J. H.	200 00
Gravelford Oregon Saints.	4 00	Merrill, C. F.	100 00
Granger, J. R.	5 00	Morris, Steve, and wife.	1 00
Hansen, J. A.	5 00	Marks, Lillie A.	1 00
Hartnell, Mrs. E.	1 00	Maddock, W.	1 00
Hall, S. William	1 50	Mitchell, William, Jr.	1 10
Horton, F. L.	5 00	Motter, Mrs. M. E.	5 00
Hoague, Sister C. C.	2 00	Nunn, Grace	1 25
Howe, Bernice and Florence	1 00	Outhouse, F. H.	1 28
Hovey, Hattie	1 00	Palsgrove, D. L.	2 50
Hayer, Ida	1 00	Peek, Katie J.	2 00
Hovey, W. J.	1 00	Paniger, Sister I. R.	3 00
Heavener, Melvina	10 00	Peterson, Lillie	9 69
Hagood, Sister W. H.	3 00	Perth Branch, Australia.	1 00
Howe, Mrs. F. H.	1 00	Perchie, Jane	25
Howe, Theodor	1 00	Prun, Mrs. A.	50
Harding, Belle	2 00	Patten, Mrs. N. M.	50
Hiteman collection	4 20	Powers, Joel H.	2 50
Jones, W. E.	43 00	Rasmussen, Mary	20 00
Jones, Mrs. Lou	5 00	Rew, Mrs. E.	63
Johnson, Grace	5 00	Reunion Committee	2 00
Joslyn, George H.	1 00	Richardson, Retta	50
Johnson, Nalmer	18 00	Rogers, Mrs. S. M.	25 00
Johnson, Mr. and Mrs.		Ruland, Mr. and Mrs. D. A.	2 00
Leander	1 00	Roberts, Joseph, bishop	53 00
Kinney, K.	50	Reynolds, Howard, and family	10 00
Kinney, S.	1 00	Railing, Roxa	5 00
Kreibel, Mrs. S. B.	5 00	Rawlings, Abbie	5 00
Keown, Charles		Redickville Branch	20 00
Leckney, Anna	2 00	Stander, Ada	65
Lighty, Fred	5 00	Stevens, Mrs. T.	2 00
Lemburg, Minnie	5 00	Schulte, George	5 00
Land, Roy	25	Shupe, Cynthia	2 50
Lone Rock Branch	22 11	Schulte, Augusta	25
		Schulte, Lizzie	2 00

Shelburne Sunday School, Ontario
 Tripp, Mary B. 2 75
 Van Eaton, Pearl 55
 Vickrey, J. A. 5 00
 Wallace, Elizabeth 1 00
 Williams, Iris 2 00
 Waller, G. J. 4 00
 Wass, Mrs. Hervey H. 1 00
 Welding Workers, Phila. 50 00
 Wold, F. M. 4 00
 Willey, A. B. 2 50
 Mrs. M. B. Nicholson account 1,323 07
 Mrs. M. E. Hulmes acct. 150 00
Total $2,562 75

Received by Mrs. M. E. Hulmes, General Treasurer of Woman's Auxiliary, from April 6, 1911, to March 25, 1912.

Balance on hand last rep. $384 60
 Interest received on deposit certificate 8 13
 Engle, Mrs. H. C. 50

Arizona.
 Bisbee Branch 1 00
 Australia.
 Woman's Auxiliary, Adelaide. 5 00
 British Columbia.
 Bergstrom, Mrs. Emil A. 1 50
 Muirhead, R. L. 65
 Muirhead, Sister S. A. 60
 Mercer, Sister M. 65
 Mercer, Ana 60
 Smith, Alice 60
 Stade, Sister M. 1 00
 Tait, Sister M. M. 25
 Tait, Sister M. B. 25

California.
 Aldridge, Nellie 5 00
 Butts, Sarah 50
 Brush, Susan 6 00
 Greer, Mrs. F. D. 1 00
 Greer, Albert 1 00
 Gilbert, Mrs. H. B. 6 00
 Miller, J. M. 25
 Parkin, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. 2 50
 Parks, Benjamin F. 1 00
 Pickles, Elizabeth 1 60
 Isolated Saints, collected by M. A. Trotter 4 15
 Ross, Sarah J. 5 80
 Shinn, Mrs. Hulda 2 50
 Sides, Rosa L. 2 50
 San Bernardino Mite Society 6 75
 San Francisco Woman's Auxiliary and friends. 11 25
 San Diego Branch 3 00
 Santa Ana Branch 3 80

Colorado.
 Boyd, Sister M. A. 1 00
 Chambers, Mrs. S. P. 5 00
 McConley, Sister 1 00
 Pople, Martha H. 5 00
 Ralston, Augusta 1 80
 Rocky Mountain Sunday School 10 00

England.
 Maddock, W. 1 00
 Idaho.
 Hobson, Jesse 2 50
 Jennings, Davis 50
 Stevens, Mrs. T. 1 50

Iowa.
 Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. 5 00
 Albertus, Mrs. J. A., in memory of deceased daughter 5 00
 Beebe, Mrs. C. A. 25 00
 Boone Aid Society 5 00
 Brogren, Mrs. F. H. 1 00
 Basquin, Jennie 1 00
 Council Bluffs Aid Soc. 35 00
 Comstock, James 5 00
 Evans, Sarah 5 00
 Ersldn, Mr. and Mrs. Albert 5 00
 Hanson, Kate 5 00
 Hering, Elmo, and sister 1 72
 Keokuk Ladies' Aid Soc. 5 00
 Lapworth, J. R. 10 00
 Lapworth, Elsie 5 00
 Lapworth, Lizzie 10 00
 Logan Branch
 Miller, Mr. and Mrs. D. T. 10 00
 Oelwein Woman's Auxiliary 4 80
 Schrank, Lucy 10 00
 Vaughan, Sister S. A. 1 00
 Wildermuth, Mrs. J. B. 5 00

Illinois.
 A sister, Joy. 1 00
 Memory of Marion Hiel 1 00
 Brunson 1 00
 Brown, M. R. 1 50
 Randall, Belle 2 00
 Taylorville Prayer Union and Aid Society 5 00
 Vernon, Fannie 1 00
 Indiana.
 Beemer, Mrs. E. 1 00
 Kansas.
 Central Sunday School 2 05
 Drovetta, Mrs. T. H. 1 00
 Pittsburg Woman's Aux. 1 00

Maine.
 Blastow, G. W. 1 80
 Kelley, Ida S. 2 00
 Powers, Joel H. 5 00

Massachusetts.
 Dennisport Helping Hand Society 2 00
 Dinnel, Dean S. 1 00
 Wixom, Mrs. Edgar F. 1 00

Michigan.
 Brintnell, Jane A. 50
 Brintnell, Aaron 50
 Bates, Olive 50
 Cass River Branch 2 00
 Miller, Doris 4 00
 Rofth, Carrie E. L. 3 00
 Smith, Emma E. 50
 South Boardman Woman's Auxiliary 3 25

Minnesota.
 Adams, A. H. 5 25

Missouri.
 Bond, Mrs. M. H. 1 00
 Babbitt, Mary 25
 Bevier Woman's Auxiliary. 6 15
 Central Church, Kansas City 7 50
 Davies, Ellen 1 25
 Dixon, Sophia 1 25
 Dockstader, Mrs. F. A. 1 00
 Delong, Mrs. F. O. 25
 Davies, Margaret G. 25
 Donaldson, Mrs. L. W. 50
 Ellison, Mrs. Eleanor 5 00
 Evans, Mrs. M. A. 1 00
 Foster, Mrs. 1 00
 Franklyn, Emma 25
 Frost, Henry 1 00
 Hawkins, Mary 25
 Harris, Ethel 1 00
 Hicklin, Ruth 1 25
 Inman, Mrs. J. N. 1 00

Independence Woman's Auxiliary 232 40
 Joice, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. 50
 Jones, Mrs. D. B. 1 25
 Jones, Ella 25
 Layton, Ida A. 2 00
 Lewis, Ellen 1 25
 Lone Rock Branch 5 00
 Myers, Mrs. L. 50
 Martin, Clarence and Ida. 5 00
 Moss, Gertrude 50
 Moss, Emma 25
 Moss, Alene 25
 Miller, Howard 1 00
 Morgan, Grace 1 25
 Minshall, Emma 25
 Matthews, Mrs. Steve. 25
 Moss, Gertie 25
 Norris, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. 1 20
 Offerings, Independence 72
 Perry, M. A. 25
 Resch, Frances 15
 Ruch, Naomi 40
 Riggs, Marie, Benefit Concert, Kansas City 77 00
 Sheldon, Mrs. James O. 1 00
 Salards, Mrs. James 1 25
 Simpson, Lena 25
 Surridge, Maggie 25
 A sister, Independence 1 00
 Tanner, Ben S. 1 25
 Thomas, M. A. 1 50
 Thomas, Mrs. J. B. 25
 Weeks, Mrs. James 25
 Victoria Aid Society, Saint Louis 15 00

Montana.
 Jemison, J. F. 50
 Wilson, Mrs. A. B. 1 00
 Watrous, Rosa 2 00

Nebraska.
 Bordry, Sister Lesly 25
 Beatrice Home Department class 2 50
 Calgrove, Sister V. 20

Clearwater Woman's Auxiliary 1 70
 Calgrove, Frank 05
 Calgrove, Maggie 15
 Calgrove, Mable 10
 Cooper, Sister E. 50
 Godfrey, Will and Nellie, and children 55
 Johnson, Minerva 1 15
 Lapage, Sister L. 50
 McParling, Brother and Sister R. 20
 Maglema, Mr. and Mrs. C. 1 20
 Newberry, John and Mable 20
 Payne, Emma 15
 Payne, John 15
 Payne, Pearl 10
 Payne, Frank and Bella 30
 Stoddard, Will and Ida 30
 Stoddard, Pearl 15
 Stoddard, Alice 15
 Stoddard, Nellie 15
 Satterfield, R. A. 3 50
 Tryon, Woman's Auxiliary 1 80
 Woods, Wallace 10
 Webster, Sister Doctor 50

North Dakota.
 Berlin Sunday School 1 55
 Moffit, Mrs. George 1 30

Ohio.
 Allen, James 1 00
 Allen, Mary 25
 Brockway, Martha 30
 Cleary, Michael 1 00
 Cleary, Willie 50
 Cleary, Ottilie 50
 Cleveland Woman's Auxiliary 10 00
 Ebeling, F. J. 1 50
 Ebeling, Mrs. F. J. 1 00
 Early, Mrs. Harry 55
 Glassford, Edith 3 00
 Hulmes, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. 1 00
 Kirtland Woman's Auxiliary 6 00
 Minkler, Kitty 2 00
 Monaghan, James 1 00
 Monaghan, Alice 1 00
 Patten, Elizabeth 1 00
 Parks, Brother 25
 Romig, Brother and Sister. 50
 Stanton, Ollie 25
 Torrance, Brother 1 00
 Turner, Lottie 1 00
 Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. 2 00
 Thatcher, Sister Paul 1 00
 A sister, Willoughby 1 00
 Collected by Mrs. F. J. Ebeling 70 40

Oklahoma.
 Coody's Bluff Ladies' Aid Society 29 80
 Hill, Johnda Lewis 50
 Logan, Helen 2 50
 Martin, T. S. and Anna. 20 00
 Moore, Mrs. L. S. 1 70

Ontario.
 Riddell, Fred 25
 Dooling, Mrs. J. 25
 Gragg, Mrs. W. 25
 Hughes, Mrs. Fannie 25
 Hoyles, Fannie 25
 Leach, Bffa A. 25
 Lively, Mrs. William 50
 Lynch, William O. 25
 Souts, Aaron 25
 Vince, Mrs. Thomas 50
 Walton, Mrs. J. 25
 Walker, Mrs. G. 50

Oregon.
 Elmer, W. A. 5 00
 Minor, Mrs. G. A. 5 00
 Wallace, Rose 25

Pennsylvania.
 Mullen, Ira 1 50
 Thomas, Sarah C. 5 00

Saskatchewan.
 Martin, Albert E. 2 00

Utah.
 Ledingham, John S. 1 05
 Warburton, Sarah 1 00

Washington.
 Seattle Aid Society 3 45
 Smith, Eva Essie 2 00
 Vancouver Branch 7 05
Total $1,318 83

INDEPENDENCE SANI-TARIUM.

Receipts-Offerings.
 From January 10, 1911, to January 10, 1912.

Atkinson, Harlett, Colo. $ 50
 A sister, per J. Luff. 50
 Bean, Mrs. J. W. 50
 Button, H. A., Mrs., N. Y. 5 00
 Benson, J. L., and wife, Io. 15 00
 Columbus Aid Society, Kansas 10 00
 Denis, Mrs. R. W., and daughter, Kans. 75
 Davis, J. H., Kans. 25
 Dixon, Warren, Oklahoma. 2 00
 Fluby, George H., Eng. 61
 Frev, Mrs. Agnes, Nebr. 2 00
 Ferguson, Mary, Wash. 5 00
 Gauger, Mrs. J. R. 5 00
 Greer, Bertha A., Io. 50 00
 Gillaspay, James H., Io. 5 00
 Gault, Jane, Nevada. 10 00
 Grubb, Mrs. W. B., Nebr. 1 00
 Harding, Mrs. Belle, Kans. 2 00
 Kirk, William, and wife, Kans. 1 00
 Love, Mrs. Christina, Kans. 2 75
 London, Ontario, Branch. 6 05
 Maddock, W., England. 1 00
 May, R., report 78 19
 Mann, Solomon, Kans. 05
 McCan, Daisy, Kans. 25
 McCan, Sister, Kans. 50
 Mack, Edna, Kans. 50
 Morgan, D. J., Mo. 8 00
 McIntosh, Mrs. Melinda, Io. 1 50
 Nesbitt, George W., Mo. 30
 Peek, Katie J., Mich. 2 00
 Paulger, Sister J. R., Texas 2 00
 Perth Branch, Australia. 6 04
 Rondon, Curtis, and wife, Kans. 2 00
 Severin, Sister J. C., Kans. 25
 Satterfield, Sister R. A., Nebr. 10 00
 Spurlock, C. J., Mo. 25
 Taylor, W. S., Kans. 25
 Tharp, W. R., Wash. 3 25
 Wetherbee, V. O., Cal. 25
 Williams, Iris, Mo. 2 00
Total $250 49

Bean, Joseph, and wife, Joy, Illinois, 1 comfort.
 Cooper, Sister N. W., Independence, Missouri, per Mrs. J. Mather, 1 water bed.
 Hodges, Sister Minnie, Pipe Creek, Texas, 1 quilt.
 Kinnaman, Brother Carl, Saint Joseph, Missouri, 1 willow wheel chair.
 L. A. S., Buffalo Prairie, Illinois, 1 rug.
 L. A. S., Joy, Illinois, 1 comfort.
 Myers, Brother A. S., Purman, Missouri, 24 glasses of jelly.
 Millersburg Branch, Illinois, 38 quarts fruit, 6 glasses of jelly.
 Aflner, Sister Emma, Prescott, Iowa, 2 pillow slips.
 Nevada, Missouri, Saints, 1 quilt.
 Rohrbough, Sr. G. R., Nevada, Missouri, per Hale W. Smith, 1 breast pump, 1 individual cuspidor, 1 feeding dish, 1 candlestick.
 Simpson, Sister Emma, Independence, Missouri, 56 quarts fruits and butters, 2 tumblers, 1 toothpick holder, 1 bottle mustard.
 Williams, Thomas, Sister N. E., per Sister E. Short, 2 pillows.

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, CENTRAL CHURCH ACCOUNT.

Receipts.
 Anderson, F. S., and wife. $ 10 00
 Blair, D. H., and wife. 50 00
 Barnett, G. W. 1 50
 Burden, Mrs. L. L. 3 00
 Conlin, Ethel 10 00
 Cox, Mrs. J. F. 5 00
 Curtis, Doctor H. B. 5 00
 Dudley, D. R. 10 00
 Eltzroth, Mrs. W. F. 5 00
 Eltzroth, Minnie 1 00
 Eltzroth, Wilbur 1 00
 Ethridge, H. W. 2 00
 Graham, Mary 10 00
 Harvey, Mrs. Hattie 5 00
 Hendra, Alvin 1 00
 Hitchcock, F. P. 50 00
 Hendra, Ralph 5 00
 Harvey, Mr. 1 00

James, Effie	5 00
Jolly, Sister	25 00
Jordan, J. B.	2 00
Kaiser, Daisy	5 00
Lightfoot, A. L.	5 00
Lowe, Dora	5 00
McDonald, L. H., and wife	3 00
Manly, Sarah	1 00
Moneymaker, Kate	5 00
McMurray, D. W.	2 00
Palmer, Grace	5 00
Pickering, W. P.	1,000 00
Rambo, W. C. N.	5 00
Robinson, W. N.	100 00
Salander, Ryla	2 00
Sandy, S. S.	15 00
Salsader, Roy	5 00
Salander, G. W., and wife.	1 00
Short, Ellis	200 00
Shirk, Mr. and Mrs.	50
Slocum, Mrs.	1 00
Sandy, Harvey, and wife.	10 00
Swanson, Mrs. Alfred	20 00
Sollars, G. W.	10 00
Truster, Mrs. Nellie	1 50
Walker, Edna	5 00
Walker, Mrs. C. J. M.	5 00
Walker, Emma	5 00
Wamky, F. C., and wife.	15 00
Walburn, Myrtle	1 00
Winnig, Amy	5 00
Zerr, C., and wife.	10 00
Rent	176 51
Total	$1,831 01

PHILADELPHIA, PENN-SYLVANIA, CHURCH
ACCOUNT.

Angus, Archibald	$ 64 50
Ayers, Franklin	5 00
Branson, Anthony I.	5 00
Bortell, William S.	10 00
Bortell, James	4 00
Bortell, Charles	12 00
Cameron, Katherine	5 00

Carr, Sarah B.	4 00
Carr, Harry	8 00
Carr, Thomas	10 00
Christy, Ogden T.	5 00
Christy, Anna	1 00
Clark, Mary	1 00
Clugston, R.	10 00
Dingfelder, Mary	50
Copeland, Asa	25 00
Copeland, Gertrude B.	10 00
Desjardins, Paul	35 00
Edwards, Ada	5 00
Engle, Susan	13 00
Ewing, Hannah	25 00
Feldmeth, William	1 00
Fowler, Joshua P.	52 00
Firth, Alfred	2 50
Forbes, Frances	10 00
Freeland, David C.	37 00
Freeland, Jennie	10 00
Frees, Sarah	10 00
French, M.	1 00
Fry, Lillian K.	5 00
Fry, William E.	2 00
Generakiam, Jacob	2 00
Goodall, George	1 00
Hickey, James S.	25 00
Hambly, Anna	15 00
Harrison, Benjamin	1 00
Harrison, William H.	20 00
Harrison, Anna	25 00
Hall, Albert B.	15 00
Hettrick, Willard	5 00
Hiller, John	10 00
Hockman, Roland E.	5 00
Hopkins, A. J.	5 00
Hopkins, Sarah A.	1 00
Lewis, Walter	8 00
Lewis, Edward T.	5 00
Lewis, George	5 00
Lewis, Edward A.	25 00
Mitchell, May V.	5 00
Montgomery, Ira	12 50
Moulton, Samuel A.	10 00
Panting, Walter	5 00
Plunkett, William	5 00
Rawson, Sarah	1 00
Rittenhouse, Elizabeth	10 00

Roy, Mrs.	5 00
Sanders, Jennie	50
Sanders, Mary	1 00
Savory, Harry	1 00
Savory, Jane	2 00
Schwartz, Herman	2 00
Senior, Ernest	2 00
Senior, Harriet	1 00
Scott, Charles A.	25 00
Schneider, Christina	1 00
Schneider, Gertrude	1 00
Scott, Winfield	2 00
Senior, Marion	25
Shaw, Daniel T.	10 00
Smith, Walter W.	2 00
Snow, Ada	7 00
Stone, Sarah	10 00
Stone, Alonzo	1 00
Stone, Leroy	2 00
Stone, Clara	2 00
Stone, John	1 00
Swank, John H.	1 00
Stott, William Hubert	1 00
Taylor, Arthur T.	40 00
Unity Bible Class	20 00
Weber, Mr.	50
White, Jennie	5 00
White, Robert	5 00
Wenger, Anna	1 00
Willing Workers	31 52
Wilson, James	25 00
Young Men's Association	9 50
Zimmermann, John	1,000 00
Zimmermann, Albert	5 00
Zimmermann, Lillian	5 00
Zion's Religio-Literary Society	1 71
Anonymous Sundries	2,375 86
Total	$4,215 84

Expenditures.

John Hinkle & Company, brick	$ 12 00
Frankford Gas Fixture Company, new fixtures	98 25

Philadelphia Electric Com-pany, supplies	14 82
Adolph Christensen, brick work	52 00
William Steele & Sons, builders	7,000 83
Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Company, chairs	190 74
Charles Callahan, lining fireroom	40 85
H. B. Pancoast, steam and hot water systems	692 05
James Peters, and Sons, locks	11 75
John Zimmermann, sen., carpet	600 00
Total	$8,782 29
Deficit	4,506 45

JERUSALEM MISSION FUND.

Receipts.

Herald Office	$ 53 00
Kelley, D. L., bishop	83 33
Total	$136 33

Expenditures.

Furnishing rooms	$ 68 69
Cablegram to Bishop Kelley	4 48
Binding German Books of Mormon	59
Whitewashing house	7 79
Preparing furnished rooms for renting	11 26
Hired help	5 84
Personal expenses	8 70
Window lights, plowing garden	1 64
Incidentals	7 99
Exchange	1 47
Total	$118 45
Balance	17 88

Free Will and Human Responsibility, (The Macmillan Company, New York. Price by mail $1.60) is a philosophical argument by Herman Harrell Horne. The question as to whether the fate of man rests at all with himself or not is the problem which this volume discusses; it is one of parenial freshness and interest, to which the newest movements of thought always contribute additional data without thereby solving the issue. Each new generation of thinkers comes upon this problem afresh, and to it a class in philosophy will always respond. In his own work the author has felt the need of a clear, brief treatise covering both sides of the issue in outline, to which students might be referred, and which might be used as a text for discussion. This work is designed to supply just such a need.

The content of the argument will be apparent from the following: First, a survey of the "analogous issues" indicates the problem is not an isolated one; next, the brief "historical sketch of the issue" gives perspective to the discussion; then "the issue" is formulated in its intensive significance; in joining the debate the question is so stated that it falls to determinism to present the affirmative side in "the arguments for determinism"; next appears the "rebuttal of these arguments," after which come "the arguments for free will," this order in the argument being in accord with the racial development of free institutions. Finally, having reached the conclusion on the basis of reason primarily, in the final chapter the application of the conclusion is made. The author's conclusions favor the free will side of the controversy. The volume is remarkable for its comprehensive and novel treatment of a theme over which scholars have always found rich material for speculation.

Religion is not a merely individualistic matter. It must express itself in social organism. So says the popular consciousness. Professor Patten, in his remarkable book, The Social Basis of Religion (The Social Basis of Religion. By Simon N. Patten, Ph. D., LL. D. Professor of political economy, University of Pennsylvania. The Macmillan Company. $1.25), carries out this theory with respect to the whole origin and nature of religion. He interprets it as a social product "a social reaction against degeneration and vice." "Religion is by this means given a scientific foundation, and its doctrines are transferred from the traditional basis to the realm of social science." The true method of study is the economic, which sees religion in the process of being made. We can understand it only through that process; the "time concepts" are more important than the "space concepts," in which idea Doctor Patten indicates a philosophical attitude extremely similar to that of Bergson. Religion, to be true to its nature, must be completely socialized, and when that is done the sin, misery and poverty, which are all the same thing, will be done away.

Doctor Noel's Socialism in Church History (Socialism in Church History. By Conrad Noel. The Young Churchman Company. $1.75) seeks by a historical study to show the close relation between Socialism and Christianity, especially the Christianity of the Church of England. For this purpose he discusses the socialistic tendency of the Old and New Testament, and of the medieval church. These tendencies, which were lost in the individualism of Puritanism, he finds to be maintained in the essential concept of the "Catholic" faith as held in the English church. So long as he is concerned with what he calls the underlying elements of Socialism, namely, a regard for bodily welfare and for social fellowship, he makes a good case. But he hardly sticks to the primary definition of Socialism, which he accepts, as "the principle according to which the community shall own the land and industrial capital collectively and use them cooperatively for the good of all."

Doctor Tucker, in The Function of the Church in Modern Society (The Function of the Church in Modern Society. By William Jewett Tucker, ex-president of Dartmouth College. Houghton Mifflin Company. 50 cents), holds that for the church to fulfill its special task it must develop a ministry of spiritual authority and of human sympathy. The time has come when an authority depending on spiritual leadership is gladly welcomed. And human sympathy must take especial account of the demands of Socialism and of the social problems produced by emigration.

There is no duty we so much underrate as the duty of being happy.—R. L. Stevenson.

Cheerfulness keeps up a kind of sunshine in the soul, and fills it with a steady and perpetual serenity.—Addison.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, AUGUST 7, 1912

NUMBER 32

Editorial

SAINTS USE PRINTER'S INK.

FROM CHEHALIS, WASHINGTON.

From various parts of the world from time to time we receive evidences that the Saints are aware of the values of printer's ink as an aid to publicity. In this issue we note three widely separated fields from which we have heard of late.

The reunion number of the Northwestern Religio Advance is devoted to advertising the reunion to be held at Centralia, Washington, August 9 to 19. The Religio Advance is prepared quarterly and read before the Religio local at Centralia. The reunion number is the first number to be printed. It has six pages of well-edited matter designed to arouse enthusiasm and increase the attendance at the reunion, which is to represent the Spokane, Portland, and Seattle and British Columbia Districts. The following is gleaned from the reunion number:

"If a body meet a body
Getting on the train,
And a body greet a body,
And a body smile again,
Need a body ask a body
Where a body goes?
To reunion in Centralia
Everybody knows."

FROM DELOIT, IOWA.

Bishop C. J. Hunt, of the Gallands Grove District, believes in advertising and keeping things moving generally. He seems to make rather a specialty of anniversaries, home comings, and special days in the various branches of the district. These occasions are advertised by means of illustrated cards and folders showing pictures of church buildings and church workers, giving a brief history of the particular branch that is celebrating, and an announcement of the program.

The latest of these to come to our notice was the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the Deloit Branch, July 5. This was advertised, in the manner already outlined, by Brother Hunt and his associates on the committee, and space was later secured in the Denison Review for the following interesting write up:

The semicentennial celebration of the founding of the Latter Day Saints Church at Deloit was carried out as announced in last week's paper. The attendance was large and the meetings greatly enjoyed by all.

Elder C. E. Butterworth occupied the pulpit Friday evening with a doctrinal and historical sermon giving some very interesting reminiscences of his long and pleasant labors with the Deloit Saints. Elder Charles Derry, aged eighty-six, spoke with much interest of his labors as a pioneer preacher in Iowa and other States and countries. Many of his audience were moved to tears while he related privations through which he and his faithful wife passed in their gospel work. He has labored in Deloit and vicinity with Elders Thomas Dobson, Eli T. Dobson, William H. Jordan, James T. Turner, B. F. Wicks, W. W. Whiting, and others of sacred memory.

Heman C. Smith, church historian, of Lamoni, who was the principal speaker, gave three very interesting historical sermons on the rise of the church, its experiences, and its great prospect. Elder Smith began his missionary work under the saintly charge of Elder Thomas Dobson about forty years ago. Mr. Smith told many interesting experiences of early ministerial labors in those early days and spoke feelingly and tenderly of the true Christian character of "Uncle Tommy" and others with whom he has labored.

Five meetings were held on Sunday, including a social service and a Sunday school. Three united with the church by baptism and confirmation. The picnic dinner was amply provided by the ladies of the congregation and enjoyed by all.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was organized by Joseph Smith and others at Fayette, New York, April 6, 1830.

It embodied in its laws temperance, morality, social purity, obedience to civil law and spiritual development. In church organization it followed closely the New Testament plan, having apostles, prophets, seventies, patriarchs or evangelists, pastors or high priests, bishops, elders, priests, teachers and deacons. The church soon gathered into its fold people from the various walks of life—the rich and the poor, the learned and the unlearned, until they numbered many thousands.

A large number of the members soon emigrated from New York to Ohio, thence westward to Missouri and Illinois. They founded and built Nauvoo, the "City Beautiful," which was, in 1843, the pride of Illinois. It was at Carthage, near Nauvoo, that their prophet and leader, Joseph Smith, was killed in 1844. The church then numbered nearly two hundred thousand. The religious convictions of the Saints continued strong in opposition to the slave holding system of the Southern States and was one of the direct causes of the martyrdom of Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum. Of their untimely death, Ex-governor Ford, of Illinois, (pages 7 and 8) says: "It was cold-blooded murder, and the persons who committed the crime ought to have been made to answer for it."

The death of the Martyrs caused disruption in the church, and some of the Saints, in 1848, and in the early fifties, came to western Iowa. They traversed the rich valleys and fertile slopes, finally reaching Pottawattamie, Harrison, and Shelby counties. A number of them soon after resumed their travels and crossing the trackless prairies and fording the running streams in their "prairie schooners," drawn by oxen, located in what is now known as Crawford County. They made their homes in the sheltering forests that skirted the streams and were soon breaking the virgin soil, building saw mills and grist mills and putting up log houses for dwellings and public schools and religious services. Jesse Mason and his family were the first Saints to locate in the Grove since that time (1851) has been known as Masons Grove. Noah V. Johnson and his brother, George J., and Calvin Horr arrived the same year. Benjamin Dobson and family and his son, Elder Thomas Dobson and family, located in the fertile valley of the Boyer River, near where the town of Deloit was afterward located.

The church in its scattered condition was beginning to rise above the gloom and depression occasioned by the death of the prophet and the disorganization of the church; conferences were held, and in 1852 a reorganization was effected; missionaries were again sent out to preach and build up the church.

The first missionary to come to Crawford County was Elder John A. McIntosh, who came to Masons Grove in August, 1858, and held services in a log schoolhouse near Deloit. His efforts were supplemented by those of Elders Thomas Dobson and Eli Clothier and others whose labors resulted in the organization, July 5, 1862, of a branch of the church, since known as the Deloit Branch, with 11 members, viz: Thomas Dobson, pastor; Joseph Wheeler, priest; George J. Johnson, teacher. The other charter members were: Sarah Dobson, Eliza Mason, Eliza Johnson, Joseph D. Lane, Nancy Lane, Sarah Lane, John Whitney and Joseph Skinner. The last of these to pass to their well earned reward was Mrs. Thomas Dobson, who died about four years ago.

Regular Sunday services were held, in an early day, at the Deloit Schoolhouse, the Jordan Schoolhouse and the Mason Schoolhouse alternately. The branch grew and prospered and in 1873 the membership numbered more than one hundred. It was then that a brick chapel was built in Deloit, which is still used for church purposes, since which time hundreds have united with the church. A Sunday school was organized in 1866, which was superintended by Cyrus Dobson, which school is still in a prosperous condition.

The Deloit Branch has qualified for service several efficient Sunday school and church workers, and the following church offices have been filled by ordination, viz: local bishop, high priest, seventy, elder, priest, teacher and deacon.

During the past fifty years the Saints at Deloit have been favored with visits and instructions from Presidents Joseph, Alexander H., and David H. Smith, sons of the martyred Prophet. A number of the apostolic quorum and two presiding bishops of the church, also several other distinguished ministers and representatives have preached in their chapel.

FROM CLEVELAND, OHIO.

The Cleveland Saints have been conducting a campaign in which Elder Richard Baldwin figured as principal speaker. Brother Baldwin being a graduate of the great steel mills, a special appeal was made to laboring men, and thousands of little folders bearing Elder Baldwin's likeness, and the following text, were distributed among the mill men:

"As I then worked in the molding floor of the steel-mill, I now work in the greater molds of human hearts and minds—for the Spirit of God is waiting to flow therein once the bars are let down."—Elder Richard Baldwin.

From the mines and mills, a worker like yourselves, yet gifted with a message that rings true, that wins respect—he comes to work for you.

He has the freedom of the city to present Christ's truth, restored in all its purity; no money brings him, no fashionable society backs him—so he stands free to strike from the shoulder at much nonsense miscalled Christianity. Richard Baldwin has a word for you, workmen. Come and get your bearings anew.

The newspapers scented something out of the ordinary, and several reporters came to interview Brother Baldwin and write up his meetings, so that ever-widening waves circled out from the pebble dropped in the water. Brother Earnest Webbe also seized the opportunity to get a column article (prepared by Elder Paul Hanson) into one of the local papers, under the caption, "Come and See." Brother Webbe has the plate from which this article was printed and offers to send it to any elder who may have the opportunity to use it in a local way. His theory is that newspapers may be easily induced to run matter favorable to our cause if it can be furnished them plated, so that expense of setting up will be saved. A paragraph of local interest may be added by way of introduction. Brother Webbe's address is 944 East 146 Street, Cleveland, Ohio. We quote several paragraphs from the article in question.

In the New Testament is given the following record:

"Philip findeth Nathaniel, and saith unto him, We have found him, of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph.

"And Nathaniel said unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith unto him, Come and see."—John 1: 45, 46.

The last days are upon us—God's judgments are abroad in the earth. We advise men to worship God, if, in the day of sorrow, and mourning and lamentation they wish their prayers to be heard and God's ear to be open; and if eternal life is desired.

Let it be known everywhere that we are supporters of Christianity, of that church of which the Bible speaks. Why should we not have a church with apostles, prophets, evangelists, etc.; a church with the same gifts and blessings of former days; with the same doctrines, worshipping the same God?

What Jesus and his ministry taught, we believe in and teach; should we be condemned for believing so much. Should we believe less? If so, how much less?

"Come and see" if we have not found the church of God; the work which is spoken of in "the law and the prophets." Attend our meetings—you are welcome.

We approve of all intelligent efforts to secure publicity along right lines. We hope to see the day when the church will have a thoroughly organized publicity bureau that will be able to assist local workers in all such matters, and be prepared at a moment's notice to furnish good, live copy to be used in local papers in refutation of slanderous stories that so often appear against the church.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

FROM ENGLAND.

We have received from Brother Roderick May, acting bishop in the England Mission, and engaged in missionary work there, a copy of The People, a weekly published at London, England, for Sunday, July 14, 1912, from which we clip the following statement by the editor in regard to the two churches, the one in Utah and the Reorganized Church. The clipping speaks for itself, and undoubtedly points the trend of public opinion obtaining in the British Isles.

THE POLYGAMISTS AND THE "LATTER DAY SAINTS."

Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism, has been accused of practicing polygamy. There is no truth in this; he was a faithful and devoted husband to his wife Emma, who stood by him in many stormy scenes. The Prophet was the author of the book, "Doctrines and Covenants," which contains revelations uttered by Joseph Smith at various times. Upon these are founded Mormon doctrines. In one part of this volume the Prophet treats of marriage, and therein states specifically that a man shall have but one wife, and remain constant to her. A heavy condemnation is pronounced against those of his followers who depart from the way of chastity. And yet the followers of Brigham Young—those men from Utah who are so busy at the present time among the young women of this country recruiting "brides" for Zion—have the audacity to assert that Joseph Smith advocated a plurality of wives. To bolster up this statement they produce a copy of "Doctrines and Covenants," and point out to the convert, and any who are interested, a supposed "revelation" of the Prophet that on the face of it seems to bear out their assertions.

For there in black and white is the statement that the patriarchs and other biblical characters had "many wives," and following this is a sort of "go thou and do likewise" command, ushered in with a general exhortation to the faithful to take "many virgins," and winding up with the express declaration that it is not sin. What are the true facts of the case? In a simple word, the explanation is "Forgery."

When Brigham Young established himself at Salt Lake City he was no longer content with one wife. He desired many, and having a fertile imagination he soon discovered the way to carry out his lewd desires and still remain head of the Utah Church. He called a council of his chief men, and having laid their heads together they hit upon the idea of issuing a new edition of "Doctrines and Covenants," into which was inserted a number of revelations upon the subject of marriage, and which supported the idea of the faithful taking many wives.

The original editions of this work contained 127 sections. But the editions first issued in the year 1876 by Brigham Young to support his unclean way of life—and in which he was quickly imitated by his followers—contain a considerable number more. Therefore, any copies that contain more than 127 sections are not genuine, and are merely the result of the misdirected cleverness of Brigham Young.

As a result of this the original Mormon Church who gave their allegiance to Joseph Smith II (the eldest son of the Prophet) have suffered very cruelly. They are not and never have been polygamists. Neither are they "Mormons"—that term is a name exclusively appropriated by the Utah Church. The followers of Joseph Smith II are known as the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, and their headquarters are at Idaho, in the United States. They have also a large organization in this country, with many branch churches scattered about in the country.

The "Reorganized Saints" are a clean-living sect of Christianity, and totally different from the Utah Church Mormons. But the former have suffered grievously for the sins of the latter, and few writers have taken the trouble to distinguish between the two churches. As a matter of strict theological history the "Josephites" (as the true Saints are termed in America) form the original church founded by Joseph Smith, and the Utah organization is but an apostate church, because they have departed from the doctrines laid down by Joseph Smith. Those who attack "Mormonism" should be careful that their zeal is directed against the Utah Church.

We follow the foregoing clipping with an answer to a question taken from the same paper, which is strong and forceful.

A card from Brother May received by the same mail indicates that he is invited to visit the office of The People as he may wish. So far so good.

S. C. (Brighton).—You are mistaken. The "Josephites" are known in this country as the "Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints," and should not be confounded with the Utah Church Mormons, who are polygamous. You will notice our articles make a distinction.

The same copy of the paper contains accounts of rough usage accorded to the Utah Church at different points. We regret this, as we have no fellowship with unlawful proceedings.

WHERE'S THE DEAD LINE?

The following editorial in the Kansas City Journal for June 29 is in a sense and sensible way applicable to the ministerial work of the church. It is quite suggestive to the reasoning man or woman that if public employees should not leave their positions to which they have been called by the direct voice of the people, or by proper authority in conducting the machinery of government, both of the municipality and of the State, by how much more sacred bond of duty should they be diligent who are working under the direct call of the Master, and by that call placed in position to carry on the work which their call imposed upon them, and how much less excusable are the loiterers and those who leave their duty to serve private and personal ends!

We believe that thought spent in determining where the dividing line is should arouse many a sleepy conscience to wakefulness. Try it, you workers and banner-bearers.

WHERE'S THE DEAD LINE?

The discharge of a minor employee of the city for what Grover Cleveland called "pernicious activity" was eminently proper. The city does not pay its minor employees to engage in politics and to spend the time for which the city pays them in electioneering for this or that candidate or cause. Off with the head of any minor employee who permits his partisanship to become offensive in any such manner. The city wants service and not the advancement of anybody's political fortunes—during business hours.

But it would be extremely interesting if any industrious explorer could only discover that elusive dead line which divides "minor" from "major" employees. Somewhere there is an invisible division fence which separates the two. On one side of that fence are the humble employees who get "fired" if they take the people's time for the performance of political duties. On the other are those employees of city, State, and Nation who are so high above the fine distinctions that obtain lower down in the scale that they may commit with entire impunity offenses that are severely punished in the cases of the "minors."

Mayors, governors, and presidents, congressmen and senators, cabinet officers and a horde of lesser lights, but still luminaries who shine far above the little twinklers who work for day wages or small salaries, take really "dignified sums" of the people's money for services rendered, but they don't even get "docked," to say nothing of "recalled" and ousted, when they go on about their private affairs or engage in protracted political campaigns.

By all means compel the minor employee to stick to the "steep and thorny way," even though the majors "the primrose path of dalliance tread." But if only that subtle line could be found which tells where a minor ends and a major begins; where it is right for one and wrong for another to do the same thing. That would be worth more than the discovery of the two poles or almost anything else that has been missing a long time.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

WORK IN TORONTO.—In the last issue of the HERALD we noticed a statement by Brother F. R. Tubb, announcing the dedication of the church at Toronto, on Soho Street. We are pleased to see this notice. The effort which has been going on at Toronto, resulting in the enlarging of the church quarters from time to time, has been very successful, and reflects great credit upon the Saints at Toronto and those who took active oversight in efforts to keep abreast with the necessities of the church there. We have no doubt but that in the near future, if not now, the present local quarters are wanting room for the congregations who would come to hear. There is room to hope for further increase, both in numbers and in building.

A GOOD SHOWING.—The report of Brethren Peter Anderson and J. F. Curtis makes a pleasant showing. There have been some thousands of sermons preached in mission number 2; 141 have been baptized; 26 new openings effected; 3 branches organized; 1 Sunday school and one Religio organized. Besides this we know of one new church built since last conference at Scammon, Oklahoma, under the energetic administration of Brother T. W. Chatburn, the "Jotsman," who is noted for doing things. The church is thirty-eight by fifty feet, complete in all its parts, finished, platform, pulpit, chairs, steeple, belfry and bell, clear from debt, and by donated labor of the brethren, which shows what men can do when they agree.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF A COLLEGE EDUCATION.—Elder J. A. Gunsolley, president of Graceland College, has a very interesting article on advantages of a college education in the August number of Autumn Leaves. The frontispiece is a picture of the first class to be organized in Graceland College, with names of members. Earnest Webbe contributes an article on, "The young man who must make his own way in the world"—a good, practical paper for our young men to read and ponder. Another feature is, "A trip to the Orient," by Sister Peacock; and the regular John Howard story in the Editor's Corner.

Original Articles

DEALING WITH THE ERRING.—NO. 3.

BY CHARLES FRY.

CONFESSION.

Editor's Note.—This number takes up the subject of confession, a very important subject. Augustine says, "The confession of evil works is the first beginning of good works." But to whom shall we confess? To God alone? Or to the general public? Or in open prayer meeting? Or to the priest in his confessional? The next paper will be devoted to "Forgiveness."

Confession is a verbal or written acknowledgment of wrong, made to a person or organized body of persons, against whom such wrong had been committed, such acknowledgment being the result of conviction and true penitence, made in sincerity and humility, with a view to reconciliation.

CONFESSION IS COMMANDED OF GOD AND HAS THE FOLLOWING PURPOSES:

To show repentance.—It is an adjunct of repentance, and also a sign of repentance, as shown by Doctrine and Covenants 58:9: "By this ye may know if a man repenteth of his sins. Behold, he will confess them and forsake them." An unrepentant man usually seeks to justify himself in the wrong he has done, while the penitent is willing to confess his wrong.

To counteract the effects of the wrong.—Sin is a reproach to its author and to the church to which he belongs, so far as it is known. Confession is a renouncement of the sinful act which takes away, in a large measure at least, the cause of reproach. If the sin be against an individual, such as falsehood, the confession will also take away all reproach from the offended.

To effect reconciliation.—Where wrong exists between two or more persons estrangement is inevitable, and persons estranged can not dwell together in peace, in this world or the next. Hence, if they would be brothers in the kingdom of God, they must be reconciled. Confession of wrong is one of the steps that makes reconciliation possible and puts the erring one in the right attitude before man and before God. When confession is made it becomes the duty of the offending one to be reconciled, as stated in the law: "And if he or she confess, thou shalt be reconciled."—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 23.

To secure forgiveness.—The Lord says: "I the Lord forgiveth sins, and am merciful unto those who confess their sins with humble hearts."—Doctrine and Covenants 61: 1. And again in the Book of Mormon: "And if he confess his sins before thee and me, and repenteth in the sincerity of his heart, him shall ye forgive, and I will forgive him also."—Mosiah 11: 138. Confession completes the removal of the sin and its effects, so far as possible, upon the part of the sinner, and it is not right that any should hold that sin against him thereafter, nor refer to it to his injury. God forgives and he requires of man also to forgive his brother.

TO WHOM CONFESSION MUST BE MADE.

To one person privately.—When the difficulty is between two persons only and not involving others, confession should be made to the offended only. "Take him or her between him or her and thee alone; and if he or she confess, thou shalt be reconciled."—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 23. "If any shall offend in secret, he or she shall be rebuked in secret, that he or she may have opportunity to confess in secret."—Ibid.

To one person publicly.—"If anyone offend openly, he or she shall be rebuked openly." In a case where a member was charged with theft before a number of persons and was afterward found to be innocent, to confess the error to him privately would not meet the requirements of the matter. He has a right to be justified before his friends, and the confession must be public enough to reach those who knew of his accusation. The general rule is that the confession must be as public as the offense.

To several persons privately.—The offense may be against a family, a party of men working or traveling together, a committee, or other small number of persons, in which case confession made to the same group of persons would be sufficient.

To several persons publicly.—The offense being given publicly against a committee, a family, or other group of persons, the confession should also be made publicly.

To the church.—Faults of a general or indefinite nature, such as neglect of some duty, or inactivity in the church, and all minor faults, may be confessed informally before the church as stated in Doctrine and Covenants 39: 2: "Remember that on this, the Lord's day, thou shalt offer thine oblations, and thy sacraments, unto the Most High, confessing thy sins unto thy brethren and before the Lord." Confession of a specific act of transgression should come before the church in a formal way, the same as any other matter of business. This requires that it be in writing otherwise the church could not act intelligently upon it to grant forgiveness. Such confession should first be approved by vote, and by separate vote forgiveness granted, all of which should be recorded. If charges have been formulated to cover the offense, an admission of them recorded in the minutes would answer the same purpose as a written confession.

To God.—In all cases confession to be complete must be made to God. Every sin offends him and causes or increases estrangement, and all estrangement between God and man must be removed before one can dwell with him. Hence in the humbleness of prayer the erring one lays his sin before the Lord, confessing all. The scriptures teach that he that offends in secret should "confess in secret to him or her whom he or she has offended, and to God." "And if he confesses his sins before thee and me, and repenteth in the sincerity of his heart, him shall ye forgive, and I will forgive him also."—Mosiah 11: 138. The Saints when offering their oblations and their sacraments unto the Lord, should do so "confessing thy sins unto thy brethren and before the Lord."

IF CONFESSION IS NOT MADE.

Offender is to be brought before the church.—"And he that repenteth not of his sins, and confesseth them not, then ye shall bring him before the church, and do with him as the scriptures saith unto you, either by commandment or by revelation."—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2. "And if he or she confess not thou shalt deliver him or her up unto the church."—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 23. "If he shall neglect to hear them, [confess], tell it unto the church."—Matthew 18: 17.

To be cut off.—The church may not forgive a transgressor who does not repent or confess, but "He that receiveth my law and doeth it the same is my disciple; and he that saith he receiveth it and doeth it not, the same is not my disciple, and shall be cast out from among you; for it is not meet that the things which belong to the children of the kingdom, should be given to them that are not worthy."—Doctrine and Covenants 41: 2. Six times the Lord says in section forty-two of the Doctrine and Covenants that "He that repents not shall be cast out." Other scriptures upon this point are:

Let him be unto thee, as an heathen man and a publican.
—Matthew 18: 17.

And those that would not confess their sins and repent of their iniquity, the same were not numbered among the people of the church, and their names were blotted out.—Mosiah 11: 145.

If they repented and confessed not, their names were blotted out, and they were not numbered among the people of Christ.—Moroni 6: 8.

WHEN CONFESSION IS MADE.

Offended one must be reconciled.—"If he or she confess, thou shalt be reconciled." When the erring one has done all possible to correct his error, the offended one can ask no more, and if he refuses to be reconciled it is he who is perpetuating the wrong and keeping up the estrangement, which becomes a matter of offense in him, and which if persisted in will inevitably result in the loss of spiritual life, and in ultimate death.

CONFESSING ONE MUST BE FORGIVEN.

And if he confess his sins before thee and me, and repenteth in the sincerity of his heart, him shall ye forgive.—Mosiah 11: 138.

And ye shall also forgive one another your trespasses: for verily I say unto you; He that forgiveth not his neighbor's trespasses, when he says that he repents, the same hath brought himself under condemnation.—Verse 140.

He that forgiveth not his brother his trespasses, standeth condemned before the Lord, for there remaineth in him the greater sin.—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2.

When a man puts himself in such an attitude of humility and penitence before God, and receives forgiveness for his sins, it would hardly be consistent for his brother who has need of the same forgiveness, to refuse him that which God has granted. This will be considered further under the subject of forgiveness.

A REVIEW OF "MORMONISM AGAINST ITSELF."--PART 32.

BY S. W. L. SCOTT.

CAMPBELLITE VS. CAMPBELLITE.

There is so much of the method of conglomeration in Traum's write up that we are compelled to notice only the principal theories, none of which are dangerous save to himself. He adopts the Whitmer theory as his defense, however, and Sidney Rigdon is the author if the "hierarchy" order, as Traum calls it, including high priests, and other officers which Christ did not include in the church, either at Jerusalem or on the American Continent. We are almost convinced that fountain of jealousy sent its green-scummed streams gurgling through the Campbellite institution, from the time Sidney Rigdon and A. Campbell had "a passage at arms" in 1830, at Austintown, on the occasion of the dissolution of the Baptist Mahoning Association. Hayden's History, p. 298. This was "only two months previous to the fall of that star from heaven,"—Rigdon's acceptance of the restored gospel. Rigdon, however, did not receive the Bible doctrine of the hierarchy from Campbellites. They never were so Bible struck as to receive such teachings. However, we turn, and permit Campbellite to fight Campbellite, on this point as well as others. Hayden's History informs us that Rigdon was standing shoulder to shoulder with Campbell, Scott, et al., in the reform ("restoration") movement up to the fall of 1830. "That same fall," says the history, "he received in peace the messengers of delusion."—Page 207. "About the middle of November, 1830, at Mentor, Ohio, came P. P. Pratt and Oliver Cowdery with carpetbags filled with copies of the Book of Mormon." They stopped at Rigdon's. (See page 210.) Here is the time and place fixed by the Campbellites for Sidney Rigdon's introduction to the latter day work, and the Book of Mormon. What did that Palmyra Edition teach here in 1830 on the subject of the "hierarchy," high priests being among the people of God on this continent? A few texts from that book will show Whitmer leading Traum, as "the blind leading the blind," into the ditch! The Book of Mormon teaches the following:

And now as ye have been delivered, by the power of God, out of these bonds; [the oppressions of King Noah] yea, out of the hands of King Noah and his people, and also from the bonds of iniquity, even so I desire that you should stand fast in this liberty wherewith ye have been made free, and that ye trust no man to be a king over you, and also trusting no one to be your teacher, nor your minister, except he be a man of God, walking in his ways, and keeping his commandments. Thus did Alma teach his people, that every man should love his neighbor as himself; that there should be no contention among them. And now Alma was their high priest, he being the founder of their church. And it came to pass that none received authority to preach or to teach except it were by him from God. Therefore he consecrated all their priests, and all their teachers, and none were consecrated except they were just men.—Palmyra Edition, p. 203.

On page 192, same edition, we find where Alma went into the waters of Mormon with the candidates and "baptized" two hundred and four persons, and they were filled with the grace of God and "were called the church of God, or the church of Christ." This is the church he founded, and presided over as "high priest," mentioned in the above. On page 193, "And it came to pass that Alma having authority from God, ordained priests; even one priest to every fifty of their number did he ordain to preach unto them, and to teach them concerning the kingdom of God." Priests were "ordained" by "the laying on of hands." (Pages 221, 240, 534.)

"Priests and teachers were consecrated over the people." (Pp. 65, 66, 113, 154, 188, et al.)

Before the death of Mosiah, Alma was chosen to be "the first chief judge"; he at that time "being also the high priest, his father having conferred the office upon him, and had given him the charge concerning all the affairs of the church," (Mosiah 13: 6.) Alma and his son Alma both held the office of high priest, until the death of Alma the first. These high priests were of the "order" of priesthood, and they understood the "order." Alma says: "For I am called to speak after this manner, after the holy order of God, which is Christ Jesus."—Alma 3: 6.

This is in direct reference to authority by which he made known the commandments of God, the rules of the church, repentance, baptism, as well as the advent of Christ. He says again, "This is the order after which I am called." (Alma 3: 7.) After this, he "ordained priests and elders by laying on hands according to the order of God, to preside and watch over the church." The nature of the priesthood, or its character, its authority, was not only understood, but was defined; hence we read in Alma 9: 6 as follows:

And again: my brethren, I would cite your minds forward to the time when the Lord God gave these commandments unto his children; and I would that ye should remember that the Lord God ordained priests, after his holy order, which was after the order of his Son, to teach these things unto the people; and those priests were ordained after the order of his Son, in a manner that thereby the people might know in what manner to look forward to his Son for redemption. And this is the manner after which they were ordained; being called and prepared from the foundation of the world, according to the foreknowledge of God, on account of their exceeding faith and good works; in the first place being left to choose good or evil; therefore they having chosen good, and exercising exceeding great faith, are called with a holy calling, yea, with that holy calling which was prepared with, and according to, a preparatory redemption for such; and thus they have been called to this holy calling on account of their faith, while others would reject the Spirit of God on account of the hardness of their hearts and blindness of their minds, while, if it had not been for this they might had as great privilege as their brethren. Or in fine: in the first place they were on the same standing with their brethren; thus the holy calling being prepared from the foundation of the world for such as would not harden their hearts, being in and through the atonement of the only begotten Son, who was prepared; and thus being called by this holy calling, and ordained unto the high priesthood of the holy order of God, to teach his commandments unto the children of men, that they also might enter into his rest, this high priesthood being after the order of his Son, which order was from the foundation of the world; or in other words, being without beginning of days or end of years, being prepared from eternity to all eternity, according to his foreknowledge of all things. Now they were ordained after this manner: Being called with a holy calling, and ordained with a holy ordinance, and taking upon them the high priesthood of the holy order, calling and ordinance, and high priesthood, is without beginning and end; thus they become high priests for ever, after the order of the Son, the only begotten of the Father, who is without beginning of days or end of years, who is full of grace, equity and truth. And thus it is. Amen.

In the Book of Nephi 8: 6, recording the ministrations of Christ among the "sheep" not of the fold in old Judea, in the organization of his church we read that Jesus said unto his disciples,

Behold there shall be one ordained among you, and to him will I give power that he shall break bread and bless it, and give unto the people of my church, unto all those who shall believe and be baptized in my name, and this shall ye always observe to do even as I have done.

In the tenth paragraph we read; that,

Jesus touched the disciples whom he had chosen, one by one, even until he had touched them all, and spake unto them as he touched them; and the multitude heard not the words which he spake, therefore they did not bear record; but the disciples bear record that he gave them power to give the Holy Ghost.

Then continuing, he says: "And I will show you hereafter, that the record is true."

Following the record to its verification, we read in the book of Moroni, second chapter, the words of Christ to the twelve apostles chosen on this continent thus:

The words of Christ, which he spake unto his disciples, the twelve whom he had chosen, as he laid his hands upon them. And he called them by name, saying, Ye shall call on the Father in my name, in mighty prayer; and after ye have done this, ye shall have power that on him whom ye shall lay your hands, ye shall give the Holy Ghost; and in my name shall ye give it, for thus do mine apostles. Now Christ spake these words unto them at the time of his first appearing; and the multitude heard it not, but the disciples heard it, and on as many as they laid their hands, fell the Holy Ghost.

The foregoing establishes the so-called "hierarchy," on the Western Continent by the authority of Jesus Christ in his church, after "the holy order of God," and we advert once more, briefly, to the work of Jesus Christ at Jerusalem, before entering upon his mission to the "sheep" of the American "fold," and then we think we have the FORCE of the objection turned aside. Paul says in Hebrews 5: 10, of Jesus Christ, "called of God an high priest (for ever) after the ORDER of Melchisedec." If Christ was called "after the order of Melchisedec" (or Melchisedec after the order of the Son of God), it will give us TWO high priests of that order. But he was called of God a high priest after the order of Melchisedec," hence the order was existing previously to the date of his earthly ministrations. Paul addresses the Hebrew brethren as "partakers of the heavenly calling;" so this will give us, from among those whom Paul so addressed, some high priests after the same "order." Lest our critic shall say that the "profession" alluded to in verse 1, chapter 3, is that of being a follower of Christ, and refers to the church as a whole, and Christ, we would suggest that if this idea is used against high priests being in the church, it militates against the idea of apostles being there, for he is called the apostle as well as the high priest of the profession. Neither Traum, Whitmer, the Antis, nor others, can deny the fact of apostles being in the church, and that "God set them" there, "in the church"; Christ is the apostle as well as the high priest of the profession, "Paul called to be an apostle," was a "partaker of this heavenly calling," and the conclusion is irresistible, all the twelve were. As there was a "profession" of apostles in the Christian Church, over which Jesus Christ was the "chief apostle," therefore, there was also a "profession" of high priests, over which Jesus Christ was the "chief high priest." So Paul argues in the Hebrew letter as follows:

For every high priest taken from among men, is ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins: who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for that he himself also is compassed with infirmity. And by reason hereof he ought, as for the people, so also for himself, to offer for sins. And no man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.—Hebrews 5: 1-4.

"For," an introductory preposition, Webster defines as "introducing a reason for something going before," every high priest taken from among men, is ordained of men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. Baptism for the remission of sins, performed by the authority of the priesthood, is the "offering up" sacrifices under the gospel. Hence Paul affirms in the epistle to the Roman Church:

That I should be a minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, that the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost. I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jesus Christ, in those things which pertain to God.—Romans 15: 16, 17.

Will Traum deny that "the offering of the Gentiles" through the gospel ministrations was "acceptable to God"? In this work of "offering," he says, in verse 17, was "things pertaining to God." Just precisely the purpose for which, he said in Hebrews 5: 1, as mentioned above, "high priests were taken from among men, and ordained" to do.

Webster defines the word every to mean, "each individual of a whole collection, or aggregate number." Then according to verse 1 of Hebrews 5, "each individual of the aggregate number of high priests, is taken from among men, and ordained for men in things pertaining to God. If so, there are a number of them; "a quorum." But, says Traum et al, "that has reference to the high priests officiating under the law of Moses." Does it? Just read on: "For every high priest taken from among men, is ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins: (colon) who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for that he himself is compassed with infirmity. And by reason hereof ought, as for the people, so also for himself to offer for sins, and no man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God as was Aaron; so also Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest, but he that said unto him, thou art . . . a priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedec." This is conclusive that Paul was discussing the "calling," ordination, and general office of Melchisedec priests in the church, who receive, or partake, of "the heavenly calling," to minister for God in the new covenant, constituting a "holy priesthood."

We wish to note further that in addition to these provisions for the so-called "hierarchy," in both the Bible, and Book of Mormon, provisions were also made in a revelation given before the organization of the church in these latter times. Doctrine and Covenants 17: 17 contains the following: "Every president of the high priesthood (or presiding elder), bishop, high counselor, and high priest is to be ordained by the direction of a high council, or general conference." In paragraph 1, same section, it is written that Joseph Smith "was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the first elder of the church." Thus the two are connected, and the person to hold such position pointed out. Now in view of all this being provided for, in Bible, Book of Mormon, and before the church was organized, doesn't it appear a little suspicious in the case assumed by Traum, that he has commenced to build without requisite means for finishing? The Book of Mormon and the Bible contained the provisions, when the former book was brought to Rigdon in November, 1830, according to Campbellite authority. The revelations containing the provisions were in existence before Sidney Rigdon ever saw Joseph Smith, or before Sidney ever united with the church. And how could he be responsible for the idea of an "hierarchy" in the church, when provisions were made for such church organization in the three standard books, before the church came into existence? Not until the month of December, following his baptism in November, did Sidney Rigdon meet Joseph Smith. We make this historic statement because Traum intimated, though he takes no definite position, that the account of John the apostle tarrying was alluded to "in the story furnished them by Rigdon, and in the course of their reading they discussed the advisability of leaving this in the Book of Mormon."—P. 212. Traum does not know evidently, that certified copies of court records, with Hayden's History of the Rise of the Disciples in the Western Reserve, and Campbell's Baptist Harbinger, show to a certainty that Sidney Rigdon never had the opportunity of even knowing Joseph Smith until the autumn (November) of 1830, long after the Book of Mormon was printed. It is unquestionably established, on the other hand, that Rigdon was a Baptist preacher from 1822 to 1827, and at this latter date, and the year following, when the "Current Reformation" was launched, Mr. Rigdon seceded from the Baptist Church, and united his religious fortune, as an honest man, a man of "sincerity," says Hayden, an orator of power, in good standing, an associate, and senior, with Alexander Campbell, Walter Scott, Adamson Bentley, and other lights, until 1830, when in the month of November, "about the middle of the month," the two footmen came to Mentor, Rigdon's home, with the Book of Mormon. Again, "about three weeks after his adoption of the delusion, he (Rigdon) went to Palmyra to see Smith."—Hayden's History, chapter 9. See also Church History, vol. 1, pp. 146 to 152, for court records, historical and personal testimony. Thus is Campbellism against itself again, for it is conclusively shown that Rigdon was not in any way associated with Joseph Smith until December, 1830, "three weeks after his adoption of the delusion," and nine months after the Book of Mormon was printed. This theory of Elder Traum's assumes, without one scintilla of proof, that a class of men, some of whom Campbellite history affirms were "honest," "candid," and "sincere," were guilty of conspiracy, lying, intrigue, perjury, and other misdemeanors. Such a mode of attack among members of the legal fraternity would result in a case of trial, and the ones guilty of such dishonorable, unfair, and contemptible work would be disbarred. There is no warrant in either the divine or civil law for such procedure! The story of Rigdon's relationship to the Book of Mormon, as held out by Traum, received a deadly stab from the pen of Rigdon in May 27, 1839, to the Boston Journal, from Commerce, Illinois. Rigdon, at that early date, denounced the whole story a "base untruth." (See History of Church, vol. 1, pp. 144, 145.) Oliver Cowdery, as previously stated, affirmed in 1848:

I wrote with my own pen, the entire Book of Mormon (save a few pages), as it fell from the lips of the Prophet Joseph Smith as he translated it by the gift and power of God. . . . I beheld with my eyes and handled with my hands, the gold plates from which it was translated. . . . That book is true. Sidney Rigdon did not write it. I wrote it myself, as it fell from the lips of the Prophet.—History of the Church, vol. 1, p. 145.

On pages 222 and 223, Traum says after Rigdon was "captured" he found his way to Fayette "for a personal interview with the Prophet. The Lord appeared to be only fairly well pleased with him." Now, in the light of Traum's interpretation, that "the Lord" is "Joseph Smith," (p. 243 and elsewhere,) we have him (Traum) eating his own words, for on page 223 he says: "Sidney early found favor in the eyes of the Prophet." He then refers to the instruction of the Lord to the "Twelve," as to their commission to "baptize," "ordain," etc., in this language: "that although the commission to the "Twelve," was "that they should ordain, Edward Partridge was ordained by the hand of my servant Sidney Rigdon." Traum knew when he penned the foregoing that he was placing a false construction upon their, the apostles', commission, in order to deceive. There is nothing in the instruction limiting "ordination" to the "Twelve." But the law does say, that "the presiding elders, traveling bishops, high counselors, high priests, and elders" have the privilege of officiating in the ordinances of the gospel, have the privilege, under proper conditions, of ordaining others. Why did not this critic give facts? Again, on page 223, continuing the thought, he writes:

Edward Partridge was ordained "by the hand of my servant, Sidney Rigdon." Joseph apparently had forgotten the instruction that the Lord imparted earlier on the subject of ordination, so, taking Rigdon into partnership with himself, said: "And now this calling and commandment give I unto you concerning all men, that as many as shall come before my servants Sidney Rigdon and Joseph Smith, jr., embracing this calling and commandment, shall be ordained and sent forth to preach the everlasting gospel among all nations."

That they went right to work at their translation, known as "the Inspired Translation of the Holy Scriptures," is evident from the revelation given in December while Sidney was yet in Fayette, for they are told that "it is not expedient in me that ye should translate any more until ye shall go into Ohio." For the time being they should continue to build up the church, especially in Colesville, New York, after which the Lord would declare that "it is expedient in me that ye should assemble together in Ohio."

Referring to Doctrine and Covenants 35:2, this is found to be in strict conformity to the law previously given, that "no person is to be ordained to any office in this church, where there is a regularly organized branch of the same, without the vote of that church." And had the critic read paragraph 3 of section referred to by him, he would have read: "And this commandment shall be given unto the elders of my church, that every man which will embrace it, (the work Joseph and Sidney stood to represent) with singleness of heart, may be ordained, and sent forth, even as I have spoken." Is there anything in this limiting ordination to Joseph and Sidney? Yet such is the "stuff" an intelligent people are expected to receive as grounds upon which to renounce their faith, and Traum offers it as evidence (?) to "convict."

ABSENCE OF EVIDENCE.

Traum intimates in the following language that upon Rigdon's appearance at Fayette, the translation of the Holy Scriptures was immediately projected. Referring to Rigdon's visit to New York, December, 1830, he says: "About this time was born the idea of the 'inspired' translation of the Scriptures, for Sidney is directed 'to write,' and the scriptures shall be given you, even as they are in my own bosom for the salvation of mine elect." Continuing, page 223, he records:

Then follows a revelation under date of January, 1831, but so palpably absurd was the whole of it, and so ignominiously did it fail, and so miserably had Joseph's prophecy miscarried, that he got word from the Lord "by return mail" explaining the failure. James Covill was the subject of the revelation, and apparently warranted at the time the enthusiastic prophecy made concerning him, for had he not promised Joseph that he would obey the word? But when he saw how the Saints were persecuted, and when he remembered his worldly cares, he rejected the work and broke the covenant.

Now had Traum "returned from the investigation of 'Mormonism'" with the facts, as he claimed to have done, no necessity would exist for "calling him down" on this point. He could have written, that as early as the translation of the Book of Mormon, Joseph received intimation of the necessity for such work, in translating the following:

Behold, they have taken away from the gospel of the Lamb, many parts which are plain and most precious; and also many covenants of the Lord have they taken away; and all this have they done, that they might pervert the right ways of the Lord; that they might blind the eyes and harden the hearts of the children of men: wherefore, thou seest that after the book hath gone forth through the hands of the great and abominable church, that there are many plain and precious things taken away from the book, which is the book of the Lamb of God; and after these plain and precious things are taken away, it goeth forth unto all the nations of the Gentiles, yea, even across the many waters which thou has seen with the Gentiles which have gone forth out of captivity: thou seest because of the many plain and precious things which have been taken out of the book, which were plain unto the understanding of the children of men, according to the plainness which is in the Lamb of God; because of these things which are taken away out of the gospel of the Lamb, an exceeding great many do stumble, yea, insomuch that Satan hath great power over them.—Book of Mormon, Palmyra Edition, p. 30.

He could have informed the people through his work, Mormonism Against Itself, that as early as June, 1830, Joseph received divine instruction in the revelation of that which the Lord told Moses, as follows:

And now, Moses, my son, I will speak unto you concerning this earth upon which you stand; and you shall write things that I shall speak. And in a day when the children of men shall esteem my words as naught, and take many of them from the book which you shall write, behold I will raise up another like unto you, and they shall be had again among the children of men, among even as many as shall believe.—Doctrine and Covenants 22: 9.

This was FIVE MONTHS before Sidney Rigdon had the opportunity of knowing Joseph Smith, and upon the arrival of Sidney in New York, December, 1830, Joseph had been engaged in the work of translating the Jewish Scriptures by the spirit of revelation, so when Sidney arrived he was called to render valuable assistance by writing. As Elder Traum says, "it is not expedient in me that you should translate any more until ye shall go to the Ohio." They came to Kirtland the latter part of January, 1831. "The early part of September, 1831, was spent by Joseph preparing to remove to Hiram, Ohio, for the purpose of engaging in the translation of the Bible" (Church History, pp. 215, 221.) After locating in the township of Hiram, September 12, 1831, Joseph writes, "I recommenced the translation of the Scriptures in company with Elder Rigdon, who had removed to Hiram to act in his office of scribe to me." In January, 1832, Joseph attended conference at Amherst, Lorain County, Ohio, and on his return, "resumed the translation of the Scriptures, assisted by Sidney Rigdon as scribe." (History, p. 235.) Continuing in the work until sometime in February, the mobocratic spirit over which Elder Traum seems to gloat, interrupted them. Sometime in the following June, the history states, "as soon as affairs could be arranged, the work of translating the Scriptures was resumed."—Page 251.

The winter following "was spent in translating the Scriptures, in the school of the prophets, and sitting in conferences" (page 277); and in the month of July, 1833, the translation was "finished," the New Testament having been completed in February, previous. (Church History, pp. 278, 302, 303.)

Now we pause to ask him where he obtained evidence of the statements that "Sidney was called to translate instead of Joseph," and that at the time of Sidney's visit, December, 1830, "the idea of the translation of the Holy Scriptures was born?" Answer; he manufactured it in his own mind, and kept it there, for in his book he offers nothing to support the statements, and simply writes an assumption. He hasn't informed us as to anyone commanding him "to write" either.

(To be continued.)

Of General Interest

Is There a Jewish Race?

What would seem to be pretty radical doctrine is promulgated by Doctor Maurice Fishberg in a recent book on The Jews: A Study in Race and Environment. In it he concludes from a study of the Jews in various countries that there is no pure Jewish race, but that everywhere the Jews have so mingled with the peoples among whom they have lived for centuries as to show many of their characteristics. It has usually been believed that the Jews are a shining example of the preservation of a racial type by social isolation. It is true that we are apt to speak of German, Portuguese, or Polish Jews as if they were racially different, but this difference has been commonly held to consist chiefly in language. The Jew is a Jew, we have been accustomed to think, however he talks or dresses. Doctor Fishberg, however, sees in this recognition of difference a real alteration in each case, and he fortifies his position by observation and exact measurement. It could not be expected that such a position would go unchallenged. In The Popular Science Monthly (New York, July,) Doctor Abram Lipsky takes up the cudgels in behalf of Jewish racial purity. Doctor Fishberg's position is first stated as follows:

"He believes that the Jews are destined to be assimilated by the race among whom they live in Europe and America, and it is apparently in order to facilitate this manifest destiny that he arrays all the arguments he can muster tending to show that the Jews are not a pure race.

"There are certain physical traits generally assumed by anthropologists to be distinctive of race. Doctor Fishberg finds that in these respects the Jews are not different from the races among whom they live. Certain other characteristics of a moral, social, and vital or physiological nature, often ascribed to the Jews, are either denied existence or attributed by the author to economic and social status rather than to race.

"The chief physical characteristics relied upon to distinguish races are stature, head-form, and color. As to stature, Doctor Fishberg shows that the Jews rise and fall with the people in the land of their nativity, being short where the Gentiles are short, and tall where they are tall, though never quite as tall. . . .

"As to head-form Doctor Fishberg is more decided. The heads of European, Caucasian, African, and Arabian Jews vary in shape. Some are long, some are broad, some are round. Only the commingling of the blood of different races could have produced these differences, argues the author."

According to Doctor Lipsky, however, Doctor Fishberg is not quite fair in this contention. In eastern Europe, where the Jews have remarkably uniform heads, this uniformity is not taken to indicate uniformity of race, since the Gentiles in those regions have also uniform heads. That is to say, remarks the critic:

"When the Jewish heads are various in shape, it proves that the blood of various races flows in their veins, and when their heads do not vary much in shape, the same thing is proved. On one page Doctor Fishberg writes as if head-form were an unchangeable racial characteristic; on that page—since the heads of Jews in Europe, Africa, and Asia vary—the Jews are not a race. On another page, the Jews are not a race for the opposite reason, namely, because eighty per cent of them have heads of the same shape—since it happens that the many Gentile races living in the same part of the world also have similar heads."

Other arguments, relating to matters of detail into which there is no space here to enter, are similarly disallowed by Doctor Lipsky. But, after all, he thinks, these arguments are hardly worth while, for apparently it is Doctor Fishberg's opinion not only that the Jews are not at present a pure race, but that they never were one—in Doctor Lipsky's phrase, that "the Jews never were Jews" at all. We read:

"It would seem, offhand, that he [Doctor Fishberg] wished to convince us of the fact that the people now called Jews are not descendants of the same original stock. 'Ethnologically,' he says, 'there are practically no differences between Jews and other Europeans. Both consist of conglomerations of various racial elements blended together in a manner that makes it impossible to disentangle the components, or even the predominant race, out of the ethnic chaos.' But if his aim was to prove this, what was the use of wasting so much zeal and labor? On page 153 we are told, 'one thing is certain, however, the original stock of the Jews was not made up of a single and homogeneous race, as is supposed by some.' And again, on the same page, we read that the Bible itself records intermarriages between Jews and Gentiles, and 'that some of these races were not of Semitic stock has been established recently by archaeological research.' Why was it necessary to produce more evidence; why worry about blondes and long heads, if the Jews never were Jews?

"But why should we be concerned whether the Jews are, or ever were, a 'pure race'? What is a pure race? Would Doctor Fishberg know one if he saw one? If there ever was a pure race, how did it come into existence? Was it born pure, or did it issue pure from the hand of God? 'Religion,' says Doctor Fishberg, 'the Jewish as well as the Christian and Mohammedan, with the assistance of the state, artificially created the types of the Jews at the beginning of the nineteenth century. There is nothing unusual that an isolated community should evolve peculiar characters.' Does Doctor Fishberg know any other way than isolation by which races acquire peculiar characters? The Jews of remote antiquity seem to have had characters sufficiently peculiar to cause themselves to be known as Jews. How did they get those characters? Was anything but isolation ever the cause of such peculiarities? How did the American Indians, the Anglo-Saxons, the Ethiopians get their peculiar characters? Does Doctor Fishberg imagine they inherited them in an uninterrupted line of descent from a primordial group or pair that had them since first there were men on earth? . . .

"'Pure races' are anthropological postulates, like the atoms of physicists, which serve a scientific purpose, but never can be brought in to decide practical questions of politics or engineering. Doctor Fishberg tries to use the conception of a 'pure race' in such an illegitimate manner. In his eagerness he falls repeatedly, as we have seen, into inconsistencies unbecoming, to say the least, in a scientific work. After a candid perusal of it, one has to declare in true Irish fashion, that the arguments do not prove that the Jews are not a pure race, and even if they did, it would make no practical difference to anyone or anything."—Literary Digest, July 20, 1912.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY FRANCES.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. F. M. Smith, vice president, 630 South Crysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. D. J. Krahl, secretary, 724 South Crysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. Letha Tilton, treasurer, Lamoni, Iowa, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, 1595 West Walnut, Independence, Missouri, Mrs. H. A. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.

Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Mollie Davis, superintendent, Pittsburg, Kansas.

Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Eugenics Department, Mrs. Clara Curtis, superintendent, 2200 Indiana Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.

Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, superintendent, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.

Young Women's Department, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, superintendent, 707 South Fuller Avenue, Independence, Missouri.

Sewing and Aid Societies, Mrs. M. B. Nicholson, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Sewing and Aid Department.

Having been appointed superintendent of the Sewing and Aid Department of the Woman's Auxiliary, there are a few general instructions and answers to questions which I will endeavor to explain through a general letter.

It is well known that there are numerous women's organizations scattered throughout the church, which are contributing either in a local or general way to the financial interests of the church.

It is to be hoped that these various societies will unite in a common movement called the Sewing and Aid Department of the Woman's Auxiliary, also becoming associated with any other departments of the auxiliary operating in the same place by organizing a local with officers chosen conjointly.

Send for a copy of the constitution and leaflet of instruction in regard to organizing.

In joining the Woman's Auxiliary, it is not intended that you will change the purpose for which you organized and are raising money. It is expected that each society will be free, as heretofore, to decide where their funds shall be expended. It is believed, however, that by seeing the published report of all money raised by these societies at the end of the year will not only be an incentive to other societies in their work, but that it may help them determine where the money can be distributed to the best advantage. It is believed, too, that by using the space in the church papers which has been allotted to us by the auxiliary it will add to our interest and pleasure in this important work, to know what others are doing from time to time.

Besides the sewing and other societies in which the work of the hands results in such valuable assistance to the church, there are other aid societies which perform various services in the way of relief, it may be the gathering and distribution of clothing, etc., for the relief of the needy and unfortunate, or the sitting up with the sick at night, as well as visiting them by day with flowers, reading material, or cheerful conversation.

In all of this work it may be found practicable to appoint a committee or committees, that the work may be accomplished in a more systematic way. Where it is desired, a committee may be appointed to solicit donations for the Children's Home, as has been done in some instances; a day may be set apart to be known as Children's Home Day, when a special effort would be made to raise funds for this worthy institution.

A report of all your work, whether the contributions be large or small, should be sent to the superintendent of the department. An annual report should be furnished the secretary of the local, who in turn will report to the general secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary before the meeting of the General Convention in April.

An annual assessment of ten cents per capita should be made to assist in the work of the general society.

In effecting an organization of any society of this department, you should elect a president (vice president if desired), secretary, and treasurer, sending the names of the officers and name of society, as well as of the local, to the superintendent of this department. Where you have an aid, sewing or relief society, of whatever nature already organized, send us the name of the society and the officers.

Send in helpful items as to what you have done as societies, etc., and helpful ways and means of raising money, as well as other aids to the church.

Let us hear from you.

MINNIE B. NICHOLSON,
Superintendent of Department.

LAMONI, IOWA, July, 1912.

Notices.

Will the sisters and friends please take notice that Mrs. Letha M. Tilton, of Lamoni, Iowa, is now treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary, and not Mrs. M. E. Hulmes, as formerly? It is quite a little trouble for Sister Hulmes to receipt for and forward to Lamoni the money sent to her for the Children's Home and other auxiliary work.

We would like to call attention of all persons interested in the Home and Child Welfare Department of the Woman's Auxiliary, to the leaflets that are published monthly from the readings prepared for that department. They should be used by all societies of that department, and are worthy of being passed on among your friends. Subscriptions should be sent to Mrs. B. C. Smith, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri. Order at the rate of ten leaflets each month for one year for fifty cents.

MRS. B. C. SMITH, President.

Letter Department

MATHERSVILLE, ILLINOIS, July 20, 1912.

Dear Herald: I presume some would like to know how the work is progressing in this part of the Lord's vineyard. Elder O. E. Sade has been here preaching for seven weeks. Much good has been accomplished, and seven precious souls have been added to the church and kingdom. All the Saints are rejoicing in the glorious gospel of Jesus Christ. Oh, Saints, let us be up and doing while the day is here, lest when darkness overtake us the Evil One will get power over us and take what light we have away. As I look around and see those things our Savior spoke of coming to pass, it is evidence to me that the time is close at hand when the Holy One of Israel will come and find many not prepared to meet him.

We have a thriving little Sunday school. All seem to take good interest. We are looking forward to the time when we will be organized in a branch. There are twenty Saints here at this writing. This is a new town, only three years old. The outlook is good, as there are quite a number studying the work. We have no church building of our own, but one of the business men of the town has given us the use of his hall in which to hold meetings. Surely the Lord is blessing his Saints in this little town to open the way so the gospel can get to the people.

Yours in gospel bonds,

CHAS. A. DAVIS.

EDMONTON, CANADA, July 11, 1912.

Editors Herald: Having been chosen to act as the secretary pro tem by the Saints at their reunion, held on June 28, 29, 30, at Millet, I will try and give a slight outline of the grand times we had together.

The Saints of Millet had everything arranged for the Saints' coming in, who started to gather on the morning of the first day. Apostle G. T. Griffiths, Elders E. E. Long and T. J. Jordan, the latter president of the Saskatchewan District, having arrived the day before, were all ready to welcome us. In the afternoon Elder Jordan opened the reunion by use of hymn 266, prayer by E. E. Long, after which G. T. Griffiths was chosen to preside, assisted by Elders Long and Jordan.

The meeting took the form of a prayer meeting, which proved of great comfort and cheer to all. After the meeting closed the assembly adjourned to the dining hall where the sisters of the branch had spread out a repast worthy of a king and which was only a slight sample of the good things that followed.

There were a number of Saints came in in the afternoon from the Edmonton and Bon Accord districts, as well as Sister Abercrombie from Panoka. She proved herself a worthy Saint and one who gave cheer to many and one to be remembered by all. She lives right in Panoka, as do one or two other families of Saints, and there are always open doors there for elders or Saints that might be passing that way. They think there might be some good work done there yet. There was also Sister Churchill, who came from Washington, in advance of Brother Churchill who is coming later so as to be present at the reunion. She had been unable to associate with any of the Saints or attend any Saints' meetings for over six years, but with all the long separation had not in the least lessened her faith and had proven of great faith and comfort and cheer to many. She is visiting her brothers, one of whom is Elder Ira Benham, president of the Millet Branch. Although a young man, he is trying hard to keep the good work rolling on and I must say the same of the other officers of the branch there, but especially of the president.

Brother and Sister Alpaugh, of Conjuring Creek, west of Tedue, are Saints who proved a comfort and cheer to us all and have a welcome always for Saints that pass that way.

In the evening, Elder Long gave us an address, using as his subject the second coming of Christ. He gave good admonition to the Saints, by all means to be ready to meet the Bridegroom when he comes.

Next morning there was a grand prayer meeting and in the afternoon Brother Griffiths gave us a fine address on offenses of the different sorts; namely, the offenses of not doing and offenses of doing, of which God alone knows, as well as a number of offenses of which the church may know, but can not do any more than counsel with the offender. Then there is the offense against the church as well as against our country, besides numerous others against our fellow man.

Saturday evening Elder Jordan gave us a fine address, cautioning the Saints to stand in holy places and thus to set before the world a bright and shining beacon light. It was a subject greatly enjoyed by all.

Next morning, after a peaceful night's rest, we had a grand prayer meeting at which a number were administered to and all of whom were greatly helped, spiritually and physically. There were a number of children blessed as well.

In the afternoon, Brother Griffiths finished his address on offenses, after which Brother Long gave the men a fine discourse along the lines of social purity. In the evening, which was the closing service of the reunion, Brother Jordan gave us a fine discourse on pushing forward and preparing to partake of the great blessings God has prepared for us. As a grand closing climax, all were agreeably surprised when at the close of the evening service Brother Earle Shaw, the oldest son of Brother and Sister James Shaw, came forward and asked for baptism. He and Brother George Jubb, another promising young man, were baptized by Brother Griffiths, and the confirmation which took place the next morning, was grand.

Any time the Saints wish to have a good time, go to Millet. I will feel grateful to the Millet Branch for a long time. All the brothers and sisters, including the officers, deserve congratulations for the good time given and the great work being carried on there. I must say that everyone seemed to enjoy themselves to the fullest extent, going away with grateful hearts to the Millet Saints and a firm determination to push forward and upward to the mark of our high calling. The feeling was shown by the unanimous vote of thanks to the Saints there. We were somewhat disappointed in that none of the Calgary Saints as well as a number of others expected, were not present, but although there were not the numbers, yet as a whole it was a grand success spiritually as a first attempt, and I am sure it will not be the last.

Wishing godspeed to all his good works,

Your humble brother in gospel bonds,

GEORGE W. WINN, Secretary pro tem.

MANCHESTER, ENGLAND, June 29, 1912.

Editors Herald: It has been some years since I last troubled your columns, yet I still enjoy reading the many valuable letters of my brethren and sisters, appearing from time to time in the church papers.

Thirty years ago I accepted the "angel's message" in my earnest search for truth, and I can say that during the past years I have many times had occasion to rejoice in my knowledge that "God still reveals himself" to those who heed and obey his words, even in weakness. Many of our friends, however, prefer to regard our belief as fanatical and possibly as too orthodox from a scriptural point of view for their acceptance. The idea of heaven coming to men in this enlightened age is to them foolishness, but to the true Saint it is the power of God unto salvation. This period of the world's history is a very trying one so far as faith in God is concerned. The hurry and excitement so prevalent in our everyday life, especially in the large cities, is so absorbing in its intensity as to blind the spiritual vision to the things of God and to that which appertains to man's glory and immortality after life's fitful fever is past.

However, the fact still remains that God is still calling many sons to glory. He has made it sufficiently plain in his word that the weakest Saint may be encouraged in the way of life, even though trials and perplexity may seem to impede the soul's progress.

A few evenings ago, after reaching home after my day's labor in a large insurance office, I received a visit from the branch priest, a most worthy brother, loved and respected by all for his work's sake and sincerity in gospel work. For some time previous, this brother had, for conscientious reasons, withdrawn from active duty and we therefore felt glad to see him and were surprised at the sudden visit. During the conversation on church matters and the object of his visit, the Spirit rested upon me and I told the brother that as "he went forth from house to house, exhorting the Saints in the performance of their duty, the Lord would bless him and those who received him."

The Lord evidently knew this brother's past trials and his need for encouragement; so that we can understand even in our finite, human condition, the apostle's words concerning the "ministration of the Spirit." "We have this treasure in earthen vessels that the excellency of the power may be of God and not ourselves."—2 Corinthians 4:7.

Certainly the creature, man, being made subject to vanity according to the purposes of the Almighty, yet through grace and the birth of the Holy Ghost has power bestowed to develop into full stature as a son of God.

Ever praying for Zion's cause,

FALLOWFIELD, 15 CAWDOR ROAD.

F. BRUTON.

EAST PHARSALIA, NEW YORK, July 29, 1912.

Editors Herald: We are glad to note that Brother A. E. Stone has been with us some three weeks. The little time that was spent in honor of our Master was, as I believe, profitable to us all if we only heed the lessons taught. The words that were uttered by the brother were truly meat to us.

It has been very dry and backward, but crops begin to look more promising, owing to the rains we have had.

I must not forget to note that we are always glad to meet the Saints from different places and get acquainted, for when the time comes for the Christ to come and gather his children to himself we shall then not feel as strangers, but will be glad that we have had the privilege in this life to know and help each other on through the hardships of life.

Your sister in the one faith,

MRS. FLOYD RATHBUN.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, July 23, 1912.

Editors Herald: We received the HERALD this morning, a paper we look forward to the coming of each week with pleasure, as we find much good in it to inspire us onward and upward. With it also came the Appeal to Reason, which we do not judge as to its worth, but we find no time to read it. We have come to the conclusion that some one is sending it who is a member of the church. We know of no Socialists outside of the church. We would state first that as our time is taken up in reading the church papers and books, it is a waste of time and money to send it to us; not that we are prejudiced in any way, but we think time and money had better be spent in church work, as far as we are able to give either, than in politics. This paper, the Appeal to Reason, has been coming to us for over a year, and we have paid no attention to it, thinking the sender would tire of subscribing to it for us; but finding that is not the case, we hope this will end its coming, as it might be used to send to one who had more time to give to reading it.

Very respectfully, your brother and sister,
MR. AND MRS. O. L. ROCKHOLD.

OTTUMWA, IOWA, July 22, 1912.

Editors Herald: I am not able to do anything, so I will write to the HERALD. It is hard for me to write, as my nerves are bad. I wrote about a year ago, when I was first hurt by a street car. I got better for a while and then I got worse, until now I have not been able to be out of the house for ten weeks. The sisters of the aid society had an ice cream social at my home Thursday night, which was very kind of them. There was a nice attendance and a good time. I kindly ask all the Saints to pray for me that I may be able to walk again without crutches, and that I may be faithful to the end.

The letter in the HERALD from Viola Jones reminds me of the time when I lived in Arkansas. My husband took sick and I had to go to the field and husk a load of corn, put the baby in the load with me, and drive to town with it for the doctor. When I was picking cotton I would sing, "Pass me not, O gentle Savior," and it gave me strength.

I have two little girls in the churchyard at Curtis, Arkansas, so. I have a warm spot in my heart for the State. Some of the colored folks there were very kind to me in my hour of trouble. A friend in need is a friend indeed.

Love to all the Saints.

Your sister in the faith,

CATHEARN WILLIAMS.

138 FAIRVIEW AVENUE.

LOWER LAKE, CALIFORNIA, July 22, 1912.

Editors Herald: Last Saturday we laid our brother, Alfred G. Fitch, to rest, awaiting the resurrection of the just; the writer officiating, at the request of his companion. Brother Fitch united with the church March 13 of this year. Born February 24, 1865, at Healdsburg, Sonoma County, California; baptized by the writer and confirmed by Elder Mahlon Cannon. He often expressed a great desire to be able to attend reunion at Irvington so that he might be administered to. He felt that he had much to live for. He leaves a very deserving companion, four sons, and two daughters.

The Saints in this part of the district are rejoicing on the decision of the reunion committee, that we will again assemble at dear old Irvington. We are anticipating a spiritual and enjoyable time, uniting with our brothers and sisters, mingling our voices to our heavenly Father in prayer and praise.

Our little fragment of a branch is doing all it can to disseminate the truth. As superintendent of "Good Literature" the writer supplies all who are willing to read. I have just read Brother J. W. Rushton's address on good literature in Ensign, and hope to profit by its teachings. The first thing we do when Zion's Ensign comes, is to look for Brother Terry's letter, and feel disappointed when we fail to find it.

Yours in gospel bonds,
EDWARD F. ADAMSON.

MERCED, CALIFORNIA, July 15, 1912.

Dear Herald: We are isolated from church and Sunday school. I should like to know if there are any Saints living in or near Merced. We live in Merced Colony, about two miles southeast of Merced, the first house on the south side of the road west of the Geneva grammar school building. Please call or write.

I have enjoyed many blessings since coming into the church, but I am very weak physically, and my health seems very poor. I desire the prayers of all, that I may be made stronger both in spirit and in body, as I have two little ones intrusted to my care.

Your sister in Christ,
GERTRUDE DICKEY WALKER.

HAMILTON, MISSOURI, July 9, 1912.

Dear Saints: I am a member of the Oakdale Branch and I am proud of the fact for we have a fine branch here. We are only a few in number, but our heavenly Father has said he would bless us and we are surely gathered in his name. Dear Saints, I know I am, for were it not for the love of this gospel I would not be here. I want to keep every commandment God has given, and I believe that this is one of God's commandments that we gather to Zion. I am glad that I am living in Zion, but this is not enough. I want to do all I can to help my sisters and brothers come here. While I would love to have all come to Hamilton, I will be glad to have them locate in other branches as well. I feel that the time of trouble is very near at hand and that there will be no safety, only in the land of Zion.

We have a branch here of between forty-five and fifty members, all active, even the little children. We have a Sunday school and Religio. Our Religio officers are all young men and women.

With my prayer that God will bless his children and that they will obey him,

I am your sister in Christ,
NETTIE B. DIEM.

WARRINGTON, ENGLAND, July 13, 1912.

Editors Herald: I inclose cutting from The People, July 7, 1912, which is a clear and definite statement from the pen of their special correspondent, Mr. Frank Edward Farncombe. I have been earnestly fighting for this statement of fact for many months, beginning with a debate at Birkenhead, with the leader of the Liverpool Anti-Mormon Society, on the question, "Was Joseph Smith a Polygamist?" I have now finally seen the vindication of our beloved prophet's name in a British newspaper, and the Saints are rejoicing here in that fact. Trusting to be able to forward more details later, and wishing all the ministry and Saints godspeed in the fight for truth,

I am your brother in bonds,
WILLIAM H. CHANDLER.

July 15, 1912.

Herald Editors: We get very large audiences at Wigan in order to hear our side of this vexed question explained, and now the people are asking for doctrine, and with the help of local ministers we are holding forth the word of life.

Your brother,
WILLIAM H. CHANDLER.

NEW ALBANY, INDIANA, July 23, 1912.

Saints' Herald; Dear Brethren: I had quite an experience the past week in our city, on account of a public attack that was made upon me by the Reverend Albert Bennett, pastor of the Jennie DePauw Methodist Episcopal Church on July 16 at Glenwood Park, where a Chautauqua is being held.

Frank J. Cannon, of Utah, delivered an address at this time, and so carefully worded his lecture as to allow it to be inferred that there was no difference between the Utah Church and the Reorganization. At the close of his lecture there was a resolution put before the audience, which in itself had a tendency to do our church a public injustice from the stand that an unconcerned public naturally would have.

The above Mr. Bennett took especial advantage of this resolution to point out that there was no difference between our church and the Utah Church. Clippings that appeared the following day in the New Albany news of the Louisville, Kentucky, Times, and the New Albany, Indiana, Home Organizer of July 20, a paper that is circulated in every home in our city, are shown below. To this date the reverend gentleman has not had the manhood either to come out publicly and apologize or to defend himself in a public way, showing the injustice of his position.

Quite a large number of people have become interested in the matter and comments by members of his congregation, as well as a host of business men, have congratulated me on the stand that I have taken, which they say clearly points out the injustice of Mr. Bennett, as well as the justice of our position. I send you this, as it may be of interest to you as well as the HERALD readers, in showing the unfair methods that are brought against our work here as well as elsewhere.

With best wishes, I am,

JOHN ZAHND.

"RIPPLE OF EXCITEMENT.

"Quite a little ripple of excitement was created at the Glenwood Chautauqua Assembly at Glenwood Park, New Albany, last night on account of a tilt between John Zahnd, of New Albany, an elder of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and the Reverend A. L. Bennett, pastor of DePauw Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, in that city.

"The Honorable Frank J. Cannon, former United States Senator for Utah, who had been excommunicated from the Mormon Church on account of his opposition of polygamy, had delivered a stirring address against Mormonism, after which a resolution was presented declaring that it was the sense of the meeting that Congress take definite steps in the direction of the suppression of the practice of polygamy. Judge George B. Cardwill, of New Albany, moved the adoption of the resolution and two or three others made brief speeches seconding the motion.

"During the discussion Elder Zahnd, who occupied a seat in the audience, arose and stated that in justice to himself and members of his church who are law-abiding citizens of the community, he thought that the speaker should explain to the audience the difference between Mormonism and the Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints.

"At this juncture the Reverend Mr. Bennett arose and pointing to Mr. Zahnd exclaimed dramatically, 'It makes no difference what is the difference. You are all Mormons and you ought to be put out of business.' Elder Zahnd made no reply to this attack, and a vote was hastened on the resolution which was unanimously adopted."

"AN OPEN CHALLENGE!

"As I have been publicly attacked, as well as the church I am affiliated with, known as the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, who meet each Sunday, corner of Eleventh and Oak Streets, this city, 10.45 a. m. and 7.30 p. m., by Mr. Albert Bennett, pastor of the Jennie DePauw Methodist Episcopal Church, on July 16 at Glenwood Chautauqua, without chance for a public defense, and as I have been openly pointed out so unjustly by Mr. Bennett as holding the same views as the Utah Mormon Church and being no difference between us as a church, I hereby challenge Mr. Bennett or any other man to meet me in a public discussion where an honorable defense can be made and both sides heard.

"We are in no way connected as a church with the Utah Mormon Church and have publicly and openly exposed the abominable practices of the institution set up by Brigham Young and his cohorts ever since the establishment of this hierarchy in the West. And this Mr. Bennett well knows, or is ignorant, and in either case I challenge him or any other man to take the position that an honest man should, to either apologize publicly or to come out like a man in an honorable way as heretofore stated.

"JOHN ZAHND,

"President of the Southern Indiana District of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints."

Tracts and Church Papers Wanted.

This is an appeal to those who have church papers, viz, Ensigns, HERALDS, Hopes, and Autumn Leaves, that have been read and are now stored away, doing no particular good to anybody, but which should be in circulation nevertheless. These papers, brethren, are freighted with matter that is altogether too precious to let them lie around.

The world is dying, dear Saints, for the lack of the very message of life, which it pleased our heavenly Father to make us acquainted with. What shall we do with this inestimable gift, the restored gospel? Will we hide it, as one did with his talent, in a napkin? Or will we warn our neighbor, having been warned ourselves? I feel like telling the story to those who like myself have been groping in the dark, longing for the light of life and not knowing where to find it. Some will read when they will not listen. And in the regions round about where I live I want to distribute those old papers you may have put aside if you will kindly send them to me.

If you wish to send tracts they will also be gratefully received. You can order them sent direct from the Herald or Ensign office, and I will suggest some numbers that are quite good, Nos. 2, 6, 11, 17, 20, 23, and 202.

Do not be afraid to send all you can, they will be used in advertising the work I can assure you.

Yours in the fight of faith and the hope of eternal life,
PHILEMON PEMENT.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, 5217 South Forty-fourth Avenue..

Two-Day Meeting.

I will try to make a brief report of the two-day meeting held on the 15th and 16th of June, 1912, at the Saints' chapel, built by the Uniopolis Branch, which was dedicated on the 16th. The work was first introduced in this neighborhood about eleven years ago by Brother G. A. Smith, of Ray, Indiana. Sister Iona Harden was the first to be baptized, there being no organization at that time. I think she was identified with a branch at Clear Lake, Indiana, and since that time there have been twenty-five others come into the church, a few by letter, but most of them by baptism. I might as well tell it first as last—I will have to tell what they did instead of what we did, for I am not a member of the church and consequently can not claim any of the honor; but if it is not done properly you will have to blame Brother R. C. Russell, as he wouldn't let me off.

The first service of the two-day meeting was prayer service Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, after which they organized for the series of meetings. R. C. Russell was elected president; John Gross, secretary; S. D. Focht, reporter; that finished the morning service. Afternoon, at 2.30, the sermon by Brother G. A. Smith contained some very good advice. The evening service, at 7.30, conducted by Brother Samuel Brown, of Stevenson, Ontario, left a very good impression. This was Brother Brown's first attempt at this place and I understand he will be with us again before long.

The first meeting on Sunday morning was priesthood meeting at 8; there was sacrament service at 9, and at 10 a sermon by Brother J. A. Becker, of Willoughby, Ohio. The afternoon service was at 2. The first business was to liquidate the indebtedness of the church, which looked like quite a task. It rained almost all day and the attendance was much smaller than it otherwise would have been, but the amount was raised in short order. The sisters prepared a very fine repast and I think that helped wonderfully. We ate dinner at the church. You see I can use the word we in that connection. After the church was freed from indebtedness, Brother R. C. Russell began the dedicatory sermon. It would be useless to tell you he did well, for he has no knack of doing things otherwise. In the evening was children's service, which was enjoyed by all. The young folks can always be relied on to give you something good. It consisted of songs, declamations, and instrumental music. They can be proud of their part of the work. Brother G. A. Smith remained and preached again Monday evening.

About a year ago they began talking of building a church. Most of the people took it as a joke, but the joke was transformed into a reality and in less than a year they did the work. People outside of the church were very liberal and aided them in the work, for which the church is very thankful. There were several from a distance in attendance at all the services. I might mention some of them: Brother and Sister Ernest Myers and little daughter, Sister Licetta Nodine, Mr. Simon Smith, of Bryan, Ohio, Brother W. S. Hettrick, of Toledo, Ohio, Brother Binkley, of Lafayette, Ohio, started for the meeting and got as far as Lima, when an electric storm that had passed over had put the cars out of commission for a while and he had to return. He informs us that he has a donation for the church. His whole soul seems to be in the work. We will let Brother Binkley know when there will be meetings again, and will gladly meet him at the car.

Brother James Kelley promised F. P. Hardin and myself that if he ever got within fifty miles of here again he would pull in and make us a visit. Don't forget it; we are looking for you.

Yours truly,

UNIOPPLIS, OHIO.

S. D. FOCHT.

Reunion at Ribstone, Alberta.

July 5, 8 p. m., Elder T. J. Jordan, district president, called the meeting to order. After the opening services Elders G. T. Griffiths, E. E. Long, and T. J. Jordan were elected as reunion presidency. The evening was profitably spent in short speeches from the following brethren: T. J. Jordan, J. W. Peterson, J. J. Cornish, E. E. Long, G. T. Griffiths.

July 6. An enjoyable prayer meeting opened the day's program; the usual sweet influence of God's Spirit being felt by all. A most instructive sermon was delivered by G. T. Griffiths. J. W. Peterson discoursed to an appreciative audience during the afternoon. A fine program was rendered in the evening, young and old participating.

July 7. Prayer service again ushered in the day's devotions. All were made to feel the sweet benefits of the Holy Spirit. That well-known gospel warrior, J. J. Cornish, delivered a splendid sermon during the forenoon. Sunday school in session in the afternoon was well attended, there being one hundred and six present. Sacramental service followed, giving another opportunity to enjoy blissful communion. The reunion closed in the evening with a fine, instructive, exhorting sermon from G. T. Griffiths.

During the reunion meals were served on tables by the sisters. Although weather conditions during reunion were at times forbidding, nevertheless full sessions were in order.

M. E. SMITH,

W. OSLER, Press Committee.

Arthur Rozelle.

Arthur Rozelle is dead. He was one of earth's noblemen. He was more than a friend to the church.

When Brother Hale W. Smith and myself went to Webb City in the spring of 1911, Mr. Rozelle opened the front page of his paper, The Daily Register, for a daily report of our work. At a considerable financial loss he continued to advertise our work. He was approached with a view to discontinuing the same. The tempter went away and never returned.

He was not a member of the church. He did not make an avowal of any special religion. He felt we were entitled to consideration and support, and he gave it when we needed it most. He was the kind of a man to stand by the right at any cost. As a member of the church and a representative thereof, I wish to record my appreciation of the man and his work. It takes courage and manhood for a man to uphold an unpopular cause when his bread and butter is at stake. Mr. Rozelle did this.

We desire to extend to Mrs. Rozelle and little "Undine" our sincerest sympathy.

The church has lost a friend, Webb City, Missouri, a public-spirited benefactor, and society a good and noble man.

T. W. WILLIAMS.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, July 25, 1912.

Reunion of Northern Wisconsin District.

Convening on the old camp grounds, June 22 to 30, many new faces were noticed, and a vast territory represented to feast on what proved to be the most enjoyable and spiritual affair ever held in the district. It was a success in every way, especially financially, leaving about twenty dollars more on hand than last year, after paying twenty dollars for the grounds. All meetings were very spiritual and nine Sunday school children were baptized on the last day. At a prayer meeting the following, in substance, was given by the Spirit through A. L. Whiteaker: "Thus saith the Spirit unto my people: It is pleasing to me that you meet together this morning; yea, it is pleasing to me that you have met in this reunion. It is my will that you should meet year by year in these reunions. You should endeavor to make it a success by sacrificing your time and money. Thus saith the Spirit unto you, my people, that you have not been faithful and humble enough, but inasmuch as you shall humble yourselves you shall be blessed. These reunions are indicative of preparing you for the great gathering of my people when my Son will be with you and bless you. It is my will that you shall commence now for preparing for these reunions; therefore be faithful; if you are only faithful and do this you shall be blessed. Thus saith the Spirit, Amen."

This was of great help to some who had not the certainty as to the wisdom of reunion work, and doubt was replaced by a degree of enthusiasm that made parting a severe task. All look forward to the return of the event in 1913 which God has placed his seal of approval upon and tells us to prepare for from now on.

We will have different grounds next year; a tract of about three fourths of an acre running from the main sidewalk in the city of Chetek to the banks of Lake Chetek has been deeded to the church by Leroy Colbert and Orlando Colbert, a gift to be used by the Northern Wisconsin District for reunion purposes. The spot is a beautiful grove of pines, birch, and oak, and would sell for a thousand dollars. Three hundred dollars are to be raised by the district and paid in either to Leroy Colbert, secretary, or S. E. Livingston, treasurer, on or before April 1, 1913, for the erection of suitable buildings. An auditorium forty by sixty feet and dining hall twenty-four by forty feet will be erected, to be completed for the next reunion. A dock will also be built for boats to land and for fishing.

At the conference the following officers were elected: A. L. Whiteaker, district president; R. D. Davis, associate president; Leroy Colbert, secretary; Nalmer Johnson, bishop's agent; Laura Lafferty, member of the library board.

The bishop's agent's report shows $253 on hand. Statistical report showed twenty-four baptisms since February.

The following reunion committee was elected for next year: A. L. Whiteaker, Leroy Colbert, S. E. Livingston, John McGinnis, and Laura Lafferty.

LEROY COLBERT, District Secretary.

CHETEK, WISCONSIN.

News from Missions

Iowa.

I feel at least like giving a little geographical outline of my work since leaving Independence, Missouri, May 2, for my field of labor, the Nauvoo District.

On my way I stopped off in the Northeastern Missouri District, at Lagonda. But why stop there, brother? you were appointed to labor in another district!

Well, maybe I had better explain, for fear some one makes me an offender for a word, or a move, or a look. A few years ago I made my first attempt to preach a sermon in that district and continued to try to preach there for a little more than two years. The closing part of 1909 and the opening of 1910 I held a series of meetings at Lagonda. Preachers fought and people circulated falsehoods but we closed with a number of baptisms and many interested. Some will remember that I had some wonderful experiences there. I had not been there for more than two years. Before leaving Independence I got the consent of J. F. Curtis to preach a few sermons on his territory. I visited the Saints, preached a few times, and had the pleasure of meeting, among others, three young men whom I baptized. Since they have been called to the priesthood, and I learn they have been preaching.

While there I made my home with Brother John Tryon and family, who surely know how to make one feel at home. I can not help but speak highly of all the Saints there. They seem to be humble and active, and that is the only way to keep Satan in defeat.

The Sunday morning after my arrival the president of the branch, Elder Charles Miller, read a welcome address which had been written by Sister Jennie Ramsey for the branch, and the best part was they put their words into practice by the deeds.

Then I stopped off at Macon City, Missouri, one day. Met the good Saints of that place, who gave me a proper welcome; then on I went to the Nauvoo District. I went first to Montrose, Iowa, and preached twice to large congregations. I stayed with Brother Elmer Reed and family. They always say, Come again, the latchstring hangs out. Their son, Joseph Reed, is alive to the work and no doubt if faithful will declare this gospel to many. May God help him to be faithful through trials and discouragements incident to earth's life.

While at Montrose Uncle Tommy Simpson took me over the river to Nauvoo and showed me many places of interest. The resting place of Emma Smith-Bidamon, the old home-stand of the Prophet Joseph Smith, Riverside Mansion, and many other places of historical note. Brother Simpson seems to enjoy telling one what he knows about the old landmarks, and he knows a great deal about Nauvoo. I learn that some have been faked in the purchase of souvenirs. I wonder if I am one of the easy ones. I got a piece of stone said to be a chip from one of the Temple stones. Now do not laugh, for I did not pay a cent for it. It was given to me, and more than that, I have good reasons to believe it is genuine! I visited Keokuk, then Farmington, where our missionary in sub-charge, Elder James McKiernan, lives. Here in the Methodist Episcopal church, on May 26, a union memorial service was held. Sermon by Reverend Hamilton, pastor of the church. He was liberal enough to invite me forward and ask me to read a lesson for him.

Sister Miller arrived here from Independence just in time to accompany me to our district conference, which was held at Fort Madison June 2 and 3. At the close of conference and a little season we began tent meetings here, a few blocks from the church. A few evenings we had pretty good attendance, but our tent was blown partly down and torn until we had to dismiss for a day or two, then the weather continued damp and too cool to sit on the grass around the tent, therefore we have nothing very encouraging to write regarding the meetings, only we think we got into the papers in a way that evidently will do the cause good. We stayed principally with Brother and Sister Right and Brother and Sister Rogers while here; in fact, the Saints all tried to make us feel at home, and we can not help but mention it.

The first week in June Sister Right of Fort Madison, Sister Miller and myself visited the state prison; the first one I ever visited. We had a nice conversation with the warden, which resulted in my addressing the prisoners on Sunday morning, June 9. There were about five hundred present. Sermons all limited to twenty minutes. I was plainly told not to mention doctrine. I spoke with good liberty and splendid attention the full twenty minutes. Had a nice conversation with the warden. His ideas are good. He is simply teaching and trying to put into practice what Joseph the Prophet advocated three quarters of a century ago. He is conquering the prisoners with practical love. They have a nice orchestra; they are learning trades that will benefit them when they leave the prison; they have spare time to study, and many more points I might mention in the way of prison reform, but shall just say that it did me good to visit the prison and converse with a man who is stepping out in the face of criticism and standing for advanced principles. Any man who has his ideas and tries to put them into practice with enthusiasm may expect criticism; I notice that even in church work. If one steps out and tries to use up-to-date methods to reach the people of the age in the way of advertising for meetings, at once the critic or faultfinder will make himself conspicuous in the background with a declaration that some one wants to show out a little, or get their picture in the paper. Jealousy will boil! but such may be expected in this trying age; in fact, it can be traced in every age since the green-eyed monster was hurled from his high estate to earth; bringing that contaminating influence with him.

Back to the tent proposition. We took the tent down and shipped it to Farmington, Iowa, and raised it in the nice little park, where Brother McKiernan, Brother Harpe, and myself have been trying to get the gospel before the people. Have enjoyed good attendance. We learned that some of the parsons, several evenings, listened from a distance, but a few times we know they heard the sound of our voice at least, for they ventured inside the tent.

We have enjoyed a marked degree of God's Holy Spirit. Closed last Sunday evening, July 21, with an overflow meeting—tent filled and many seated around on the grass, notwithstanding the Baptists, Methodists, and Congregationalists were having a union meeting in the schoolyard in the center of the town. We held forth here three weeks. One baptized, others seemingly almost ready, many interested, and we hope prejudice removed.

Sister Miller and I are now occupying rooms in the home of Sister Manifold. She, as well as all the Saints of this place, have given us a saintly welcome. May God bless them! And I want to say further, that the Saints of this place are among the best people of the town. They have been living monuments of God's work and I want to say with emphasis: "Saints, a living testimony is the genuine testimony. Then when God's servants come among you to declare the gospel, the victory is half won, and you have won it. So let us be up and doing and as soon as possible be 'one,' so the world may know that God has sent us."

I am your brother and colaborer for Jesus the Christ,
O. R. MILLER.

FARMINGTON, IOWA, July 24, 1912.

Southern Wisconsin.

It has been some two or three years since I have written for your columns.

I came up in this part of the Southern District some ten days ago and am staying at the hospitable home of Brother and Sister Philip Davenport and family, who with their grown son and daughter, Leslie and Bessie, are strong in the faith.

The next day after we arrived here Brother E. J. Goodenough arrived also, and with the consent of the good and faithful pastor, Brother Art. Davenport, we began a series of meetings and have been holding forth nightly ever since.

This is a country of hills and valleys, and a fine dairy country, and most of the farmers are milking many cows, therefore have lots of chores to do. This is also a very busy time of year, farmers being in the midst of haying and harvesting, hence working early and late, as a consequence can not begin our meetings until nearly nine o'clock. But the attendance has been good from the start, and the interest also seems to be on the increase, and we will stay over this present week and next Sunday at least.

The famous R. B. Neal and Anti-Mormon cause is being furthered by being sent to this community, and is causing quite a stir, but it only causes the Saints to more thoroughly inform themselves, so as to be ready to give a reason for the hope of eternal life within them.

There are a number of good faithful Saints here and the Lord will reward them for their kindness to the missionaries that labor among them. The Saints here speak well of the labors of those that have preceded us in times past, and would be glad to meet any of them again when they could come this way.

It has been a year or more since there have been any of the elders here to hold meetings, and the people were glad to have us come and have proved it by their fine attendance and interest, though at the busiest time of the year.

Before coming here we held a series of meetings near Cazenovia and Lloyd, Wisconsin, in a schoolhouse in Willow Creek Valley. There has been no preaching there for twenty years, that I know of. Brother Fisher and family moved in there three years ago and have been wishing to have some call in there and hold some meetings for some time. They have indeed been letting their light shine and are honored and respected by their neighbors around them. The farmers were also very busy there, being in the midst of clover and timothy harvest; the attendance was fine and the interest fine, and the people insisted that we must come back when the farmers are not so busy and hold some more meetings. We don't think there is anywhere that people would turn out any better in the busy season than they do here.

We find Brother Eddie Goodenough a very congenial companion and enjoy being with him very much.

We just heard by letter from Brother Jott Bronson, of the Northeastern Illinois District, that he had baptized several in a new opening that we were together in just previous to coming to Wisconsin. We are glad the Lord is blessing the young missionary in his labor of love among the children of men in the last days.

The special object I had in writing this letter was to ask the Saints and friends anywhere in Southern Wisconsin to let me know if they would desire meetings in their locality, and we will be glad to respond so soon as possible. This is my first year in this district and I am desirous of getting acquainted with the Saints and friends and especially the scattered and isolated ones where we can open up the work anew, and to spread the glorious news of the restoration as far and as wide as possible. I can be reached by mail at any time in care of A. J. Fisher, Lloyd, Wisconsin, or mail sent to my home address will be forwarded to me promptly from Box 400, Plano, Illinois.

In bonds,
LESTER WILDERMUTH.

SOLDIERS GROVE, WISCONSIN, July 29, 1912.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHEASTERN ILLINOIS.—District convened with the Tunnel Hill Branch, June 1, 1912. Prayer service at 9 a. m. At 10 a. m. conference was called to order by P. M. Davis, district president. Organized as follows: Brother Davis chosen to preside; Brother J. F. Curtis to assist; A. H. Burroughs, clerk; Ada Sutton, chorister, B. F. Kelley to assist. Reports were read from the following branches: Brush Creek 384, 2 baptized, 4 received by vote, 3 died, absent from branch 100; Parrish 114, 1 expelled, absent 40; Kibbie 59, 4 baptized, 30 absent; Springerton 145, 2 died, absent 67; Poplar Creek 72, 2 baptized, 1 died, 1 ordained to office of elder, absent 12; Dry Fork 53, absent 23; Bungay 54, 1 died; Tunnel Hill 190, 1 baptized, 3 died, 2 married. Elders reporting: S. S. Smith, W. G. Smith, R. H. Henson baptized 1, William Clements, I. A. Morris, F. M. Davis, S. H. Fields, Lloyd C. Moore baptized 7, Sam Hoover. Priests reporting: L. M. Edmonds, Fred O. Pritchett, C. E. Bozarth, A. H. Burroughs, W. E. Presnell. Amount received for district treasury $4.95. A petition was presented from the Brush Creek Branch recommending Fred O. Pritchett to the conference for ordination to the office of elder. The conference approved of the recommendation and the matter of ordination was referred to the missionary in charge. The Tunnel Hill Branch also presented the names of E. W. Sutton for ordination to the office of elder, Charles E. Moore and David Cullen Moore to the office of priest. They were ordained at the evening meeting, also Lloyd C. Moore was ordained to the office of seventy, pursuant to the action of the General Conference. The bishop's agent's report was read, receipts for quarter ending June 1, 1912, $107.15; expended, $93.36; due church, $13.79. Report audited and found correct. The question of the time and place of holding the annual reunion was taken up. Cisne was selected as the place, and the time set for August 10 to 20, 1912. William Clements, Fred O. Pritchett, and Julius Strahl were selected for committee on arrangements. It was voted that the district purchase two dozen Zion's Praises for the use of the district tent. The preaching for the conference was done by G. H. Hilliard, S. S. Smith, and J. F. Curtis. Adjourned to meet at Parrish, September 21, 1912. A. H. Burroughs, secretary.

FREMONT.—District conference convened at Tabor, Iowa, June 22, 1912, at 2.30 p. m. Prayer by N. L. Mortimore. T. A. Hougas and N. L. Mortimore were chosen to preside; C. W. Forney, secretary; R. E. Pratt, assistant. The presidency was given power to complete organization, select speakers, and set time of meetings. Branch reports from Glenwood 58, Keystone 32, Tabor 61, Henderson 79, Hamburg 62, Riverton 50, Thurman 203, Shenandoah 117, Bartlett 38. Branch presidents: N. L. Mortimore, Hamburg; M. W. Gaylord, Tabor; T. A. Hougas, Henderson; James Vinnerd, Shenandoah; F. B. Knight, Glenwood; James Comstock, Riverton; J. E. Claiborn, Thurman; John Huston, Bartlett. Ministerial reports: W. E. Haden and C. E. Constance. Ministerial reports: High priest: T. A. Hougas. Elders: J. C. Moore, F. Becksted. Priests: C. W. Forney, F. B. Knight, J. E. Claiborn, J. R. Wight, L. C. Donaldson. Teachers: R. E. Pratt, D. M. Eittleman. Deacons: S. S. Clark, Jay Leeka, G. Fred Skank, R. V. Greenway, Layton White. Bishop's agent reported: Balance from 1911, $434.02; receipts since January 1, 1912, $664.98; total, $1,099; expenditures, $687; balance June 22, 1912, $412. Lorena Leeka, bishop's agent. Report was approved. Appointment of C. W. Forney as historian of Fremont District was ratified. Moved that district president investigate the matter of an elder for Shenandoah Branch, with power to act; carried. Petitions for next conference received from Thurman and Henderson. Vote 25 to 8 in favor of Thurman. Time for holding next conference left to presidency. W. E. Haden and C. E. Constance were appointed as a committee to investigate Keystone Branch, with a view of disorganizing. T. A. Hougas was chosen district president for a year. C. M. Roberts and N. L. Mortimore were chosen associates. C. W. Forney was chosen secretary and treasurer. Lorena Leeka was sustained as bishop's agent. Lorena Leeka was appointed chorister; Lillie Clark, organist; Wayne Richardson usher. At 8.15 p. m., preaching by H. N. Pierce, assisted by R. V. Greenway. Sunday at 8.30 prayer service; 9.45; Sunday school; 11 o'clock preaching by W. E. Haden; 2.30 preaching by Chester E. Constance; 8 o'clock preaching by W. E. Haden. Summary of reports: Membership of district 700, loss 17; sermons 78; baptisms 8; confirmations 8; children blessed 8; sacraments 10; administrations to sick 20; visits 14. C. W. Forney, secretary.

IDAHO.—District met in conference at Hagerman, Idaho, July 6 and 7, 1912. Organization was effected by choosing John Davis, assisted by New Madden, to preside; Sister T. B. Jackson, secretary; Emma Madden, chorister; and Lottie Condit, organist. Ministerial reports were received from New Madden, John Davis, and Alvin Knisley. Presidents of the Boise, Weiser, and Teton branches reported. Others of the priesthood reporting were: Priests: B. L. Hendrickson, C. N. Gentry. Teacher: John A. Ross. A very good report was received from each of the district officers. The following resolution was introduced by Alvin Knisley and New Madden: "Resolved, That it is the sense of this conference that articles 2, 7, and 12 of district by-laws, affecting the time of convening of conferences, should be submitted to such modification as will permit of conference being held in the spring and fall of the year, and that such alteration be taken up and adjusted at the January conference." The resolution was unanimously adopted. The preaching was done by Elders John Davis, New Madden, and Alvin Knisley. Adjourned "to meet at some point on the Minidoka branch of the O. S. L., or at Albion as the only exception, the specific location to be decided by the district presidency and the missionary or missionaries laboring in conference region." Mrs. T. B. Jackson, clerk.

NORTHEASTERN MISSOURI.—District convened at Higbee, Missouri, June 1, 1912, at 10 a. m., Elders D. E. Tucker and F. T. Mussell presiding; W. C. Chapman, clerk. Higbee, Bevier, and Menefee branches reported. Elders: D. E. Tucker, F. T. Mussell, William B. Richards, R. R. Jones, Ed E. Thomas, F. O. DeLong, William Kelso, William C. Chapman, and Priest Charles Edmunds reported. Bishop's agent reported: On hand and receipts, $486.37; disbursements, $288; balance due church, $198.37. District treasurer reported: On hand and receipts, $12.57; expenses, $11.26; balance due, $1.31. These reports were audited and found correct. Preaching by D. E. Tucker and William B. Richards. Adjourned to call of district officers. William C. Chapman, district secretary.

Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow.
Short and dark as our life may appear,
We may make it still darker by sorrow,
Still shorter by folly and fear.
Half our troubles and half our inventions,
And how often from blessings conferred,
Have we shrunk in the wild apprehension
Of evils that never occurred?—Selected.

Convention Minutes.

NORTH DAKOTA.—Convention of the North Dakota District of the Religio was held at Logan, North Dakota, July 11, 1912, at 2.30 p. m. Called to order by the vice president, Emily Coney. Altha Deam being present, was chosen chairman of the convention, with Sister Coney as assistant. James C. Page was chosen as secretary pro tem. Reports were read from the president and treasurer, the vice president reporting verbally. Report of treasurer showed no change—$4.97 on hand. Home department superintendent reported having forty-two members at present. Election of officers resulted in the following: James C. Page, president; Emily Coney, vice president; Bertha Graham, secretary; Sarah Stowell, treasurer; Birdetta Smith, home department superintendent; James C. Page, member of the library board. Motion prevailed that when we adjourn we do so to meet the same day as the Sunday school convention at Berlin, North Dakota, in January, 1913. An institute followed in which the following took part: Altha Deam, of Independence, Missouri; Bertha Graham; Lillian Butler, of Berthold, North Dakota; Sister Martin Spalding, of Sherwood, North Dakota, and Ellen Graham. Bertha Graham, secretary, Burlington, North Dakota.

FAR WEST.—Convention met at Stewartville, Missouri, July 20 and 21, 1912. Prayer meeting in charge of J. A. Gunsolley was held at 8.45. Business session at 10.30, with district superintendent S. H. Simmons in the chair. Reports of the different officers were very favorable. Summarized reports were had. On account of our present secretary moving to Houston, Texas, her resignation was handed in. Madge Head, of Stewartville, Missouri, was elected to fill the vacancy. It was decided upon at this convention that the Hyde Valley Sunday School be allowed to change their name to Second Saint Joseph Sunday School. An interesting program was given throughout the convention and a goodly attendance was had. All went home feeling well repaid for their efforts. The convention closed to meet with the First Saint Joseph Sunday School the third Saturday and Sunday in February. Violet Wilke, secretary.

Conference Notice.

Central Oklahoma District Conference will convene at Ripley during the reunion, on Friday, August 23, 1912. We remind the branch presidents to be prompt with their reports. We also urge that every elder, priest, teacher, and deacon in the district report labors, and the condition for labor in their locality. The undersigned will receive all reports and file them with the secretary of the conference. Will also receive orders for tents. Get your order in quickly. Remember that the reunion commences August 16. Good shade, good water, clean straw for bedding, nice river bathing within a mile, free pasture for horses, meals fifteen cents, less if possible, and a hearty welcome to all. Address communications to J. E. Yates, Ripley, Oklahoma.

Reunion Notices.

Conference and reunion of the Southwestern Texas District will be held in San Antonio, at the First Branch, beginning Friday night, August 23, with business session on Saturday, the 24th. Carl F. Wheeler, district secretary.

The Western Iowa and Eastern Nebraska Reunion Association, comprising the Gallands Grove, Pottawattamie, and Fremont districts in Iowa, and the Northern Nebraska District, will hold their reunion August 23 to September 1, in Walnut Grove, in the northwestern part of Council Bluffs, Iowa. Street car runs to the grounds. President F. M. Smith expects to be present and organize the elders, priests, teachers, and deacons into quorums. Elders G. T. Griffiths, J. W. Wight, F. A. Smith, and several of the district missionaries will be present. Patriarchs C. E. Butterworth and Joshua Carlile are expected to be at the reunion. The music committee have been active, and the auxiliary and normal workers have provided a special program, which promises interest and worth to all. The cooperative boarding tent will be run in an economical and businesslike manner. Supplies will be bought at wholesale prices and good substantial meals will be furnished as cheaply as possible. Tents can be rented as follows: 10 by 12, 3-foot wall tent, $1.50; 12 by 14, 3-foot wall tent, $2.00; 14 by 16, 3 foot-6 inch wall tent, $3.50; 10 by 13, 5-foot wall tent, $4.00; 10 by 14, 6-foot wall tent, $4.50; 12 by 14, 6-foot wall tent, $4.50; cots, 50 cents each; chairs, 15 cents each; blankets, 25 cents a pair; pillows, 15 cents a pair; 25 cents additional will be charged for setting up tents, if ordered set up, when tents are ordered. All orders to be sent to J. M. Baker, 700 West Fifth Street, Sioux City, Iowa, before August 20. Money must be paid before tents can be secured. C. J. Hunt, secretary.

Southwestern Oregon reunion will be held at Myrtle Point, Oregon, August 16, 1912. Because of popular demand and circumstances which arose, the time and place have been changed from that first published. Conference and Sunday school convention will meet with reunion. Bed springs can be rented for fifty cents for the ten days; tents one dollar a week. As tents are very scarce you had better bring your tents with you. A good attendance is expected. A. A. Baker, district president, Bridge, Oregon.

Reunion of the Northern, Central, and Western Michigan districts will be held at Traverse City from August 9 to 19 inclusive. A beautiful spot on the west side of town has been secured for the location of the camp. Good speakers have been invited and have accepted. H. M. Kinney will do praying for the following prices: Trunks, 10 cents; tents, 10 cents; suit cases, 5 cents. Please see that Brother Kinney does your work. A dining tent and refreshment tent will be on the grounds. An orchestra of several pieces will be present, and we hope that all who attend will bring Saints' Hymnals and Zion's Praises. Write H. A. Doty for tents: 10 by 12, $2; 12 by 14, $2.50. Come and enjoy the meetings and incidentally be benefited by an outing in one of the prettiest towns of Northern Michigan. H. A. Doty, secretary, 116 Monroe Street.

Saints of the Western Nebraska and Black Hills; and adjoining country: We extend an urgent invitation to be present at the annual reunion of the Western Nebraska and Black Hills mission, to be held September 13 to 23. One of our missionaries in charge will be with us. We expect our appointed missionary force and also we have arranged to have a patriarch present. We expect to hold a few sessions of institute work for the Sunday school. Altogether we expect to have a good spiritual time. The 13th will be assembly day. Organization Saturday, 14th, at 3.30 p. m. Sister Viola Barkdoll will have charge of music. Union Pacific trains will be met. Those coming over the Burlington will get off at Scotts Bluff, where they will be met if they will notify Brother Hart when they will arrive. Scotts Bluff is three miles from Gering; all trains are met by Gering hacks, fare twenty-five cents. Tents will be furnished free, to be paid for from the general funds. All orders for tents must be in not later than August 15, to insure attention. Meals will be served on the ground at about fifteen cents for adults and ten cents for children; for those who are able to pay. Any having produce may bring the same as it will save buying. Those wishing to attend and who desire to work may assist in the kitchen and dining room, as we will hire no cook as last year. Those who wish to camp and furnish themselves, the committee will be glad to assist. The committee can furnish no bedding, except for missionaries; so bring your bedding. We expect a very large attendance. We also expect to make this a missionary effort, as well as a reunion, and we ask all the Saints and friends throughout the district to pray that this meeting may be a success. Come, and bring a goodly portion of the Spirit with you. In the way of expenses, we will have to meet the traveling expenses of missionaries and patriarch, also sleeping tents, and a few dollars for advertising and incidental expenses. Now if you are sick or unwell, if you are old and feeble, or if you have children, come anyway and the committee will do their best to help you enjoy the meetings. Our grounds will be located in the southwestern part of town. Address all inquiries to Bert E. Hart, secretary, box 61, Gering, Nebraska. We will be looking for you. Committee: Charles S. Veach, chairman; Bert E. Hart, secretary; Grace E. Kipp, treasurer.

Two-Day Meeting.

There will be two-day meetings held at Shabbona, Michigan, August 17 and 18; at Valley Center August 31 and September 1; at Caseville September 14 and 15. Good speakers will be present. Come and we will do you good. William M. Grice, Otto Fetting, district presidency of Eastern Michigan District.

One need not strain himself to be useful; he can not help being useful if he is cheerful and brave, if he is bright and true, if he is clean and honest.—Charles G. Ames, D. D.

Quorum Organization---Northern California.

At the Northern California District reunion to be held at Irvington, August 31 to September 9, an effort will be made to organize a quorum of elders, and if found practical, one each of the Aaronic order, viz, priests, teachers, and deacons. Time set for September 4, 10 a. m. F. M. SHEEHY.

VANCOUVER, WASHINGTON, July 23, 1912.

The Bishopric.

AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints of the Portland District; Greeting: I take the pleasure of writing you through the HERALD and commending those who have been faithful to the gospel covenant in the past year by paying their tithing and offerings.

I want to say that the question asked the disciples by the Master where he says to the apostles: "When I sent you out without purse or scrip, lacked ye anything?" They said, "Nothing." So it has been my experience since acting as bishop's agent. When our funds have become exhausted and the time nearing to send the elders' allowances and a few dollars here and there to our needy poor in our district, at the end of the month usually the needed amount would come; but if not all, I have had confidence enough in this work to borrow the deficiency. Now because of four counties being added to our district, namely, Hood River, Wasco, Sherman, and Gilliam, the Bishop has added to our responsibilities. As we have not had the support of the new territory it has left us in rather embarrassing circumstances. But I am still confident that when you know the conditions you will all cheerfully respond.

I thank you all for your loyalty in the past, and I pray that God will help each one to see the necessity of paying their tithing, which is ten per cent of what we are blessed with. All money will be promptly receipted for.

Address, L. STOVER,
406 West Twenty-first Street, Vancouver, Washington.

Notice.

To Whom It May Concern: Notice is hereby given that Brother F. M. Cooper is released from his appointment to Burlington, Iowa, and will be permitted to labor as circumstances permit. This release from appointment as made by the conference becomes necessary because of the condition of Brother Cooper's health. Brother Cooper will continue to labor in church work as his health and circumstances will permit, and we cheerfully commend him to the Saints wherever he may choose to labor.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,

By Frederick M. Smith, Secretary.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, August 1, 1912.

Summer School Courses, Kirtland Reunion.

August 15-25, 1912.

Sessions will be held each morning except Sundays. There will be three departments as follows:

Normal Department, in charge of Sister G. T. Griffiths. As many classes will be formed as needed in Hurlbut's Bible Normal, and the Book of Mormon Normal.

Court-Procedure Department, in charge of Charles Fry. One class will be formed in this and the articles now appearing in the HERALD under the heading, "Dealing with the Erring," will form the course of study.

Department of the Home, in charge of Sister Mary E. George; one class. The subjects for study are Hygiene in the Home, Moral Teaching, and Training of Children, Religious Teaching and Training, Diet, with especial reference to its effects on mind and body, Home Environments and Their Effects, Literature in the Home.

Some literary and musical features will be added to the daily program. Saints please bring such literature as will help you in the several departments, and workers come prepared to work.

CHARLES FRY,
L. F. P. CURRY, Committee.

Courage is just strength of heart, and the strong heart makes itself felt everywhere, and lifts up the whole of life, and enables it, and makes it move directly to its chosen aim.—Reverend Henry van Dyke, D. D.

CONTENTS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

EDITORIAL:

Saints Use Printers' Ink - - - - - 749
 From England - - - - - 751
 Where's the Dead Line? - - - - - 751
 Notes and Comments - - - - - 752

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Dealing with the Erring, No. 3, by Charles Fry 752
 A Review of Mormonism Against Itself, Part 32,
 by S. W. L. Scott - - - - - 754

OF GENERAL INTEREST - - - - - 758

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - - 759
 Minnie B. Nicholson.

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 760

Charles A. Davis—George W. Winn—F. Bruton
 —Mrs. Floyd Rathbun—Mr. and Mrs. O. L.
 Rockhold—Cathearn Williams—Edward F. Adamson—Gertrude Dickey Walker—Nettie B.
 Diem—William H. Chandler—John Zahnd—
 Philemon Pement—S. D. Focht—M. E. Smith and W. Osler—T. W. Williams—Leroy Colbert.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 765

O. R. Miller—Lester Wildermuth.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 766

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. Smith, Managing Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance. When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

I hold it truth with him who sings
 To one clear harp in divers tones,
 That men may rise on stepping stones
 Of their dead selves to higher things.
 —Tennyson.

Local Ministry of the Rocky Mountain Mission, including the States of Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Montana; also Eastern Washington District.

Having been instructed by the Presidency per Frederick M. Smith to organize all the elders in the above-mentioned States into a quorum, to be known as the Rocky Mountain Quorum of Elders, it is intended to attempt to carry out this part of our instructions at the reunion to be held at Wray, Colorado, August 16. As many of the elders in these States as can attend this reunion are requested to make the effort to do so. All who can not attend in person are hereby urged to send in their name in full, age and address, to the address below, for enrollment. Every elder should be sufficiently interested to take up this matter. Let me hear from everyone promptly.

PRIESTS.

All priests in the State of Colorado are requested to attend the reunion or send in their names, ages, and full addresses, as we hope to organize a quorum of priests in this State, to be known as the Colorado Quorum of Priests.

The priests of Idaho and Utah will be organized into a quorum to be known as the Utah and Idaho Quorum of Priests, most probably at the next conference to be held in Idaho, or Utah. All names and addresses to be sent to address below.

The priests of Eastern Washington and Montana will be organized at the October conference of the Montana District. All priests in these districts will take notice, and if they can not attend send me names and particulars.

TEACHERS.

Quorums will be organized in Colorado, and all teachers in Utah, Idaho, Montana, and Eastern Washington.

DEACONS.

We shall attempt to organize quorums of deacons in same divisions as the teachers, so all please send me names and particulars.

JOHN W. RUSHTON.

DENVER, COLORADO, 1210 South High Street.

Religians and Sunday School Workers of Eastern Colorado District.

Have you caught the progressive spirit? We felt sure you had and have arranged accordingly an opportunity to learn the new and greater possibilities of the Sunday school and Religio, a session each day during the reunion devoted to this work by field worker R. S. Salyards. Time, August 16 to 26. Place, Wray, Colorado. Plan to attend and learn how to more successfully carry on the Lord's work.

WALTER W. WELLER, President Z. R.-L. S.
 MRS. LOUISA FISHBURN, Superintendent S. S.

Religio Picnic at Pertle Springs.

Everybody is invited to attend a picnic to be held at Pertle Springs, August 22. An entertaining program will be furnished by talent from Holden, Knobnoster, Independence, and Warrensburg. A basket dinner will be served, and we intend to help everybody enjoy the day. A reception committee will meet all trains at Warrensburg.

Notice.

The work of the Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service of the Kirtland District will be represented by Sister Mary E. George, at the reunion held at Kirtland, August 15 to 25. We trust all the sisters will lend a helping hand to make this work a success.

MRS. F. J. EBELING, Secretary.

WILLOUGHBY, OHIO, Route 2.

Address.

A. M. Chase, 772 East Fourth South Street, Salt Lake City.

Died.

BOURGUOIN.—At Lamoni, Iowa, July 22, 1912, Sister Susannah Bourguoin, aged 91 years, 10 months, and 11 days. She was born in Utrecht, Holland, in 1820, married in 1850; accepted the restored gospel in 1855; went to Utah in 1860; rejected the evil doctrines found there and suffered for it. Found the Reorganized Church in 1865 and united with it. Came to Saint Joseph, Missouri, same year. Came to Lamoni in 1889. She had a noble mind and was steadfast and faithful. Funeral in charge of Heman C. Smith, sermon by H. A. Stebbins.

WRIGHT.—Sister Anna Wright was born near Weston, Iowa, January 18, 1879, and was united in marriage to Charles H. Wright, April 20, 1904. She was baptized July 10, 1892, and continued in the faith until her death, which occurred July 9, 1912. Husband, one child, brother and sister and other relatives remain to mourn. The large attendance at the funeral of Saints and friends bore evidence of the high esteem in which the sister was held. Sermon by J. A. Hansen, assisted by C. B. Bardsley. The bereaved ones find comfort in the statement: "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." Interment at the Grange Cemetery.

SWENSON.—Brother John W., born December 7, 1854 in Sweden, died at Salt Lake City, Utah, on July 15, 1912, from paralysis. Funeral on July 16. He leaves wife, three daughters, and one son.

ASTON.—Henrietta, wife of elder John Aston, born in December, 1855; embraced the gospel October, 1904; died July 14, 1912, at Canton, Ohio; interment in the Woodlawn Cemetery. She leaves two sons and one daughter to mourn. She was prepared to go. The esteem had for the family was attested by about one hundred and fifty neighbors and friends and relatives, a few Saints among them. The married daughter, who had been a devoted attendant, was stricken ill and could not attend the funeral. Prior to death she requested the writer to conduct services, so we responded, tender feelings to the contrary notwithstanding. Services at the home, 256 West Clarendon Avenue, Canton, conducted by Elder Eben Miller, sermon by Elder Samuel Brown.

UPDYKE.—Sidney Grant Updyke died at Vancouver, Washington, June 25, of heart failure; he fell dead while in the garden working with his fifteen-year-old son. Was born October 21, 1868, in Linn County, Iowa; baptized at Springfield, Oregon, by E. Keeler; married Hattie Provost, at Dow City, Iowa, who with their six children survive him. Funeral sermon at the residence, by F. M. Sheehy. Buried in the cemetery at Vancouver, Washington.

DUNCAN.—Jasper N. Duncan died at Denver, Colorado, July 9, 1912, of heart trouble. He leaves a widow and two sisters, Mrs. Celia Stonum, of Lathrop, Missouri, and Sister Susie Lhommedieu, of Colo, Iowa, who made him a visit a month before his death. Funeral from the church at Denver. He held the office of priest for several years.

LILLY.—Thomas Lilly was born June 12, 1856, at Victoria, Monmouthshire, Wales; died April 21, 1912; was baptized by J. S. Kier April 29, 1880; married Sister Caroline Griffiths. To them were born twelve children, one of which survives him (Sister Lizzie Parrish), with his wife, and three brothers and one sister. He was ordained to the office of deacon May 7, 1895. Luther Simpson preached funeral sermon; large attendance of Saints and friends.

A New Book of Sermons

The Gospel Messenger

BY ELDER J. S. ROTH

Everyone that knows Elder Roth—and many that do not—know that he is a very successful missionary and an excellent preacher. This book of his sermons—thirty-five of them—covers so wide a range of subjects and does it so thoroughly that you need it for your own information, and to lend to your investigating neighbor.

Elder Roth is always a preacher for the people; uses enough scripture to make his utterances authoritative, tells where to find it, yet doesn't tire the reader with too much monotony. Quotations and citations have been verified.

The autobiography of the author is a valuable feature of the book.

Through the generosity of Elder Roth we are enabled to offer this well-printed, nicely arranged, and well-bound book at the nominal sum of 75c.

Order No. 248a.

Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa

If stores of dry and learned lore we gain,
We keep them in the memory of the brain;
Names, things, and facts, whate'er we knowledge call,—
There is the common ledger for them all;
And images on this cold surface traced
Make slight impression, and are soon effaced.
But we've a page, more glowing and more bright,
On which our friendship and our love to write;
That these may never from the soul depart,
We trust them to the memory of the heart.
There is no dimming, no effacement there;
Each new pulsation keeps the record clear;
Warm, golden letters, all the tablets fill,
Nor lose their luster till the heart stands still.

—Daniel Webster.

A New Book

has just been issued, entitled

Doctrines and Dogmas of Utah Mormonism

By Elder J. D. Stead.

THERE ARE REASONS for publishing this book.

(1) The only way to render a JUST judgment is to know the FACTS.

(2) To get the FACTS don't go to the enemies of the Utah church. This is not fair nor just; go to the authorized publications of this church, and let them tell you what they believe.

(3) You can not get access to these publications for the reason that many of them are out of print and hard to find.

(4) The author of this new book has spent years as a missionary among the Mormons, and has patiently and carefully culled extracts from these old publications, thus giving you

A Whole Library of Information in One Book

The greatest care has been taken to make this book reliable.

The quotations in it are all testified to as being correct, and finally the proof readers testify that to the best of their belief the quotations are all correct. We have had this done so that you would feel secure in using the many evidences therein contained. Order No. 1a, price... $1.50

Herald Publishing House
Lamoni, Iowa

Herald Publishing House

$100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best of security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

These Bonds will be ready to issue on the 1st of April, 1912.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

Colorado

A Children's Paradise

Why don't you take the children to Colorado—the land of cool, blue skies, mountains and flowers—this summer? Give them the opportunity to see the wonderful works of nature there. They can't help but enjoy it—everybody does. The crisp mountain air will put roses in their cheeks and sparkle in their eyes. It will do them good all over. There's no place on earth quite so good for children as Colorado—no place where they will be so jubilantly happy—so everflowingly healthy.

The world's greatest health resort is attracting thousands of happy families this summer. It's the vacation-land of your heart's desire—mountains, snow-crowned—streams filled with gamey trout—myriads of beautiful wild flowers, and above all that peculiar brand of sunshine which is familiar only to Coloradans. Every kind of a vacation for every kind of a person.

This is your summer for a never-to-be-forgotten vacation. Come in right away—before you forget it—and if you can't come, write—a postal will do—and get your copy of our Colorado and Utah folder. It is beautifully illustrated and tells all about what to see, the places to go, how inexpensive the trip really is—of the safety and comfort of the Burlington way—the courtesy and help rendered to women and children by Burlington employees, etc. I'll help you plan the trip and arrange all the details for you. L. F. Siltz, Ticket Agent, Burlington Route.

P. S. Don't forget about the annual "Shan Kive" and Summer Carnival at Colorado Springs—Manitou, Aug. 27-29. They're going to have a big time. Better arrange to be there, if you can.

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

- Order No.
- 141 cloth.....75c
 - 141 1/2 leather.....$1.00
 - 174 flexible.....$1.50

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed.

No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25
*Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,

- Cloth, No. 198.....50c
- Paper No. 197.....35c

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.

Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.

No. 140, cloth.....50

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
Lamoni Land and Loan Co,
Lamoni, Iowa.

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.

Order No. 241, cloth.....50

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.

No. 248a, cloth.....75

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.

Order No. 232, cloth.....75

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.

Order No. 248, cloth.....75

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestation of God working through his servant.

No. 216, cloth.....75c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right.

Cloth No. 243.....75

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, AUGUST 14, 1912

NUMBER 33

Editorial

SABOTAGE.

Sabotage is a new word of foreign origin and sinister import that is forcing its way into English lexicons.

It is said that when the silk weavers of Lyons, France, went on a strike some years ago, they hurled their wooden shoes (sabots) into the complex machinery of the looms before leaving the factory. Thus, it is said, originated the term sabotage, now applied to various methods of "direct action" by which the workingman may without much risk to himself injure or destroy the business or property of the employer.

To illustrate how it works in foreign countries and in America, it is related that during a bakers' strike in France a few quarts of kerosene were poured into the ovens. The odor lingered long after the strike was over. In fact, after three months of effort it was found necessary to destroy the ovens and build new ones, as the output retained the peculiar flavor generally associated with the name of John D. Rockefeller. In Amsterdam, when there came a strike of bakers, outside members of the union took their places and immediately began the practice of working soap, rags, mice, cockroaches, and lumps of salt into the dough, until the employers, in order to save their trade, granted the demands of the strikers. In another place, workers in a textile mill sprayed sulphuric acid over the looms. In still another place, they applied acid to the woven fabric and the trick was not discovered until later, when the cloth fell to pieces. In the United States, log cutters in the Southern pineries demanded higher wages. The demand was refused and they continued work, apparently having surrendered. Presently it was discovered that many of the logs coming to the saw were filled with deeply driven spikes that ruined so many saws that work was carried on with difficulty. In many similar ways work was hindered, machinery damaged, quality of output injured, and cost of production increased to a ruinous extent.

An advocate of sabotage is quoted by Woerkle, in the Outlook as follows:

"Easiest thing in the world to make a railroad come to time," he boasted, knowingly. "They can't guard the whole line, and it just takes a minute to drop a package of Gold Dust into a water tank."

He moved a little closer.

"What will it do? There'll be a laundry inside every engine that fills up from a Gold Dust tank, and every one of 'em will have to go to the shops to have the boiler cleaned if they don't want the cylinder heads blown off. If a water tank isn't handy, a little emery dust in the journal boxes or a squirt of kerosene into the air-hose connection will do just as well."

Sabotage is the doctrine of the Industrial Workers of the World, who have figured in the sensational struggles at San Diego and elsewhere of late. It is discountenanced by the old order of labor unions and by the Socialist Party. As already seen, it is an importation from foreign fields, and thus far in the United States is advocated and practiced mostly by foreigners. Associated with it are the kindred doctrines that no contract made with an employer need be kept or considered in any way sacred; and that court injunctions are to be disregarded, and any action of the Government in interference resisted, a favorite resort being to invite arrest in such numbers as to flood the jails and put an intolerable burden on the tax-paying community. Persecution is rather invited by open insult to the Government and to the Flag. So it may be readily seen that these doctrines, advocated and practiced, with flagrant and vile insult to institutions held sacred by the ordinary citizen, serve to infuriate communities, and account for the violence visited upon the persons of Industrial Workers of the World members and agitators in various cities. Their teachings are abhorrent and extremely repugnant to the man who holds to old-fashioned ideas of morality and honesty that, as one writer expresses it, have been like "the flange on the wheel of civilization," holding it on the rail of progress.

Yet, though these doctrines are at first glance repugnant, every injustice and oppression visited upon labor makes it easier for the agitator to make converts. As Mr. Woerkle says:

The peonage camps of the Southern woods, the steel works with their twelve-hour shifts seven days in the week, the child-eating cotton mills and glass factories, the sweatshops, the bleak mines made bleaker by the company store, the grading and construction camps with their grafting commissaries—these places are fertile seed-beds in which the I. W. W. principles sprout lustily, to bring forth hideous fruit in due time. Human life is cheap in the United States, horribly cheap, especially the life of the "wop," of the alien laborer out of whose nameless grave a damage suit rarely grows. An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth; so preaches the I. W. W. creed, so practiced the I. W. W. at McKee's Rock, Pennsylvania, when it ambushed the State constabulary during the Pressed Steel Car strike. Will this element, robbed by the padrone, cheated by foremen in collusion with employment sharks, killed and maimed with impunity, without redress, hesitate to take life when the weird oratory of the agitator has lashed it into frenzy?

It is said that there are about seventy thousand members of the Industrial Workers of the World in the United States. Our civilization is so complicated and intensive, our mutual dependence so great, that it can readily be seen that any rapid growth of such an organization and accompanying practice of sabotage would paralyze industry, bring on a condition of open class war, and cause widespread suffering. Reflect upon how dependent the ordinary citizen of every large city is upon organized light service, water service, transportation, communication, food supply. A little disturbance of this service and suffering instantly follows. He has not a week's supply of food at hand; his light, water, heat, and power to get to his work and earn his living depend upon others from hour to hour.

Every citizen who willfully closes his eyes to existing conditions and fails to keep step with the growing spirit of democracy and industrial justice and equality and help to the extent of his ability in the many modern movements for social betterment, makes it easier for the advocate of sabotage by his specious pleadings to win converts to his dangerous and damnable doctrines. The man who recognizes the dignity and justice of the demand put forth by labor for living wages, sanitary working conditions, reasonable hours of service, and some provision for old age and sickness, as well as compensation in case of accident, yet at the same time insists that these demands shall be made in legitimate ways and receive legal and orderly adjustment, is the true friend of labor and conservator of social advancement.

Granting for a moment that the cause represented by the Industrial Workers of the World is just in all particulars, if they should win their contention by the methods advocated, and secure control of society, how impossible it would be for them to build a new society, stable and decent, when they must work with men and women that they themselves have trained to violate the solemn contract, disregard all government control, and at the slightest provocation resort to violence and destruction of property. If the coming society is to be worthy of perpetuation it must be composed of men and women who respect the authority which they themselves by their own franchise have delegated to organized government, regard as sacred and inviolate their pledged word, and respect the rights of individuals and society at large.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

ALL ABOUT "THE HELLS."

The following which we cut from a late Kansas City Star is well worth reading by those who are conversant with the Bible and those who are not who are desirous of information. We may not attempt to state by what sectarian reasoning this particular divine reached the conclusions he has embodied in this sermon, but as there are "sermons in stones" we may examine those which are hurled from catapults in the sectarian pulpits, and determine whether there is anything of absolute good in them, or suggestive of anything that will lead us to better conclusions.

There are some nuggets of wisdom in this sermon as we see it, and some things suggestive of thought that will be of profit to the eldership if carefully examined. Chaplain Houston has in some instances hewn close to the line; and one thing is easily deducible, and that is, that the prophetic spirit which the Book of Mormon speaks of as foreseeing the time when there would be a moving to and fro among the people, and they would be showing signs of some spirit moving them to right conclusions, is having its fulfillment.

This Doctor Houston may have read the Book of Mormon, possibly the Book of Covenants. If he has he would hardly dare to tell his congregation, though it might be one composed of the inmates at the Kansas Penitentiary. The moral atmosphere which must prevail in an institution designed by the legislative powers of the state to serve the two-fold purposes of punishment and reformation, it seems to us, would most certainly move upon the intellectual powers of a good man, a lover of his mankind, to search the fields of research and thought open to him, to find something of mitigating circumstance in the purposes of Diety and his divine mercy, for the benefit of those suffering punishment under human laws to whom such good man might be addressing himself. It is with this thought uppermost that we commend the reading of this digest of research to the readers of the HERALD.

THE HELLS OF THE BIBLE.

To The Star: Is there a hell?

Well there's a hell in the Bible. That is, the word occurs in the Bible fifty-three times. The Old Testament has it thirty-one times, the New Testament twenty-two times.

Not only that, but the Bible speaks of three hells. Most of us read the old King James Version of the Bible and get our ideas of Bible teaching from it. And it is in that version that the word hell occurs fifty-three times. Just why the worthy scholars had to use this one word to translate four distinct words I can not say. From the Old Testament, written entirely in Hebrew, they chose to translate the word sheol into the English word hell thirty-one times. But the same Hebrew word sheol occurs in the Old Testament in thirty-one other passages in which it is translated into the English by the word death, and in still three others in which it is translated by the English word pit.

THE GREEK HELL.

Then in the New Testament we find the Greek word hades, which seems to be equivalent of the Hebrew word sheol and is translated hell. This occurs ten times. This might be said to be one hell, or the place and condition of the dead.

The Greek word gehenna occurs in the New Testament eleven times and is always translated hell. This, then, is the second hell to which the Authorized Version introduces us, and is that place or condition which is symbolized by the endless fire, punishment, bottomless pit, and similar expressions.

The third hell is mentioned but once, and is a place called in the Greek of 2 Peter 2: 4, tartarus, and translated hell by the King James men. It is the prison place of the fallen angels who were waiting for the final judgment.

What puzzles me is this: Why did our most worthy forefathers have to translate these three entirely distinct Greek words by the very indefinite English word hell or hole?

Tartarus, or hell number three, is only for fallen angels, so we need not concern ourselves about that.

WHERE CHRIST DESCENDED.

Hades, or hell number one, is for all human beings who die. Christ shared this destiny with us, as we are taught by Peter, who said: "His soul was not left in hell (hades) nor did his flesh see corruption." From there Christ was called by God, and from there will all who die, be raised. We need not fear this hell.

Gehenna, or hell number two, is the place or condition of punishment. It is symbolically described in the Bible as the place of fierce fire and destroying heat. No human being is there now, nor will any be condemned to be there, until after the final judgment at the close of this present world. It symbolizes the reverse side of the purity of God, which permits no impurity to remain, finally.

The world Gehenna is a parable, a word picture, an attempt to help us realize a spiritual condition. In a gorge outside the walls of Jerusalem called "Gehenna," the refuse, filth, and carrion, even the bodies of criminals were dumped and burned. The fires were continually smoldering, and worms crawling in the disgusting mass, and the offensive gases and odors arising therefrom, were, to an extent, neutralized by brimstone or other disinfectants.

"This," Christ taught and his disciples reiterated, is what God will do. "He will thoroughly purge his floors and burn up all the refuse."

THE PLACE OF FALLEN ANGELS.

This hell, gehenna, was no part of God's plan for mankind. It was originally prepared for the Devil and his angels. If it is ever shared by any of the human race it will be so, because those members choose to make the Devil their leader and share his fate. But the Bible does not say that even such are to be punished eternally. Because the punishment is said to be eternal, because the wrath of God abideth for ever, it does not follow that they live for ever in punishment. Penalties of human law stand after individuals have suffered under them. The reverse of eternal life is not eternal life in suffering, but eternal death.

IS GOD'S PURIFICATION FOR MAN?

In God's economy the purpose of punishment is not revenge, but correction, the elimination of evil. No one who will receive correction from a loving father and give up sin that it may be condemned and destroyed, need fear Gehenna. But God will finally destroy that sin, and if at last, even to the judgment day, anyone will cling so tightly to sin that it can not be destroyed and leave him, he must go with it into the purifying fires.

As for eternal torment, the Bible says that the Devil and two of his emissaries, not human beings, the "false prophet" and the "beast," shall be tormented unto the ages of ages. Can any of us understand that measure of time? No other living being is, by the Bible, condemned to that torment.

After the great and final judgment for the human race, the Bible says: "And death and hell (hades) were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death, even the lake of fire. And if any were not found written in the book of life he was cast into the fire."

Are death and hell physical or spiritual organizations to be punished by burnings? Or does this teach that, "death shall be no more" and there shall be no more need for the place of the dead, that they shall finally be destroyed? And if it be true, what does it teach as to the finally unrepentant and sinkilled soul?

THOMAS W. W. HOUSTON,
Chaplain of the Kansas State Penitentiary.

"OUR CHURCH COURTS."

The next Magazine Number of the HERALD will be called "Our Church Courts," and will appear September 18. As suggested by the name, it will consist of editorials and articles on matters pertaining to the different courts provided for in the law of the church.

"The judicial system of the church," by Elbert A. Smith.

"Leading rules of evidence," by I. A. Smith.

"Attitude of civil courts toward ecclesiastical courts in America," by S. A. Burgess.

"Form and functions of bishop's courts," by Joseph Roberts.

"Organization, jurisdiction, functions of stake high councils," by G. E. Harrington.

"The Standing High Council," by Robert M. Elvin.

"Questions and answers," by John Smith.

"Jurisdiction and trial before an elders' court," by Russell Archibald.

This number will be well illustrated and printed on good paper. Orders for extra copies should be sent in at an early date, so that they may be sent out with the regular issue. Price, five cents for single copies, fifty cents in dozen lots. Address all orders to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

Plan out ahead for three months, and for a year, if you can, what you are going to accomplish, first in your actual daily tasks, improving your present condition, and second in the development of your mind, the improvement of your general intellectual equipment.—Selected.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

CLOSED TOO SOON.—We are pleased to quote the Farmington Republican in regard to meetings held there recently by Brethren Miller, Harpe, and McKiernan.

MEETINGS CLOSED.

The Latter Day Saints meeting, which has been in progress at Anderson Park for the past three weeks, closed Sunday night with their tent packed to overflowing. The interest in these meetings has been increasing steadily and their closing is a keen disappointment to a great many people. Reverends Miller, Harpe, and McKiernan conducted the services, and each of these gentlemen are able, convincing speakers, and we are very sorry they have concluded to abandon the meetings just at a time when the people generally were becoming deeply interested.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL NUMBER 42:—The Brooklyn Daily Eagle for Tuesday, July 16, contains a brief write-up on the work the vacation schools and large halftone reproductions of pictures of the first session of school number 42, the Latter Day Saint school in charge of Brother W. E. LaRue. The names of all officers and teachers were also given.

THE "CHETEK ALERT."—The editor of the Chetek Alert (Wisconsin) made the following comments concerning the recent debate between Elder J. F. Curtis and an elder of the Utah Church:

The doctrinal discussions between the two branches of the Latter Day Saints, which closed Saturday night, were left undecided. We can not magnify the importance of these discussions to the public in general. The differences concern only the members of the two organizations.

We heard the arguments Saturday night when the question was upon the true status of Joseph Smith in his relation to the original church and the authority of Brigham Young as his successor.

There was some heated references to the revelations on polygamy. The Mormon elders proved from their authorities and affidavits that Joseph Smith was the original revelator of this pernicious doctrine. Elder Curtis of the Reorganized Church successfully saddled the infamy on Brigham Young who maintained a household of nineteen wives in this world and then turned them over to some one else for the next.

The Mormon elder frankly admitted that the Utah Church practiced polygamy up to 1890 and as brazenly defended Brigham Young and his polygamous practices in the face of the mandates of the United States branding it as a criminal offense and providing severe penalties therefor.

We noted this one thing in particular; that the Utah representatives used their own records, affidavits, journals and revelations for their authority, while Elder Curtis of the Reorganized Church built his arguments upon the precepts and revelations contained in the Bible. His opponents therefore were put to rout in every contention. Elder Curtis roundly denounced the entire Mormon propaganda and held Brigham Young and all his followers emissaries of the Devil.

WORK IN PITTSBURG.—We have received copies of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, papers which have chronicled the laying of the corner stone for a new church building for the Saints in that city. Each paper used a picture of Brother Charles Fry and called attention to a history of the Reorganization and showed wherein it differs from the Utah Church.

Hymns and Poems

Selected and Original

August.

Who can withstand the witchery of August days,
The sea's soft blue, that seems another sky,
The subtle perfume of winds' loitering by,
And veiling beauty of the low descending haze?
The whisper of the treetops, telling, each to each,
Of young birds pluming wings on outgrown nests,
And squirrels starting forth on plunder quests,
And caterpillars hanging cocoons, out of reach.

Who can deny the mystery of August nights,
When overhead, the moon, a shallop floats,
And all the stars are lamps in little boats
That sail a shoreless sea, freighted with lost delights?
A thousand insect voices swell an endless strain,
And in the garden, bushes bend and sway,
As though, unseen, some spirit passed their way;
Wearied of heaven, and earthward lured again.

Who can decry the potency of August charm,
Earth dreams, and all her dreams are warped of bliss
And woofed with pleasure, what a fabric this?
Woods green as jade, and harvest golden farms
Beauty above us, and the earth transcendent grown.
Look up, my soul, be young and brave and strong,
Helping to swell the universal song
That August sings, set high on summer's throne.
—Delia Mitchell.

Out in the Fields with God.

The little cares that fretted me,
I lost them yesterday
Among the fields above the sea
Among the winds at play,
Among the lowing of the herds,
The rustling of the trees,
Among the singing of the birds,
The humming of the bees.

The foolish fears of what may happen,
I cast them all away
Among the clover-scented grass,
Among the new-mown hay,
Among the husking of the corn
Where drowsy poppies nod,
Where ill thoughts die and good are born,
Out in the fields with God.
—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Press on, weary Christian, though thy sky be all clouded;
Press on, through the darkness, hold fast to the right;
Though the face of thy God from thy vision be shrouded,
Be sure that his eye always keeps thee in sight.
—Susan M. Griffith.

Original Articles

A REVIEW OF "MORMONISM AGAINST ITSELF."---PART 33.

BY S. W. L. SCOTT.

REVISION BY DIVINE HELP A NECESSITY.

Neither Traum nor his colleagues can afford to criticize the "idea," or the WORK of translation, with the history of Campbell's effort before them. The necessity for revision, a more correct translation, is conceded by the scholarly everywhere. Many efforts have been made, both before and since the publication of the Inspired Version, but nothing satisfactory has been produced. Hence the combined scholarship of the Eastern and Western Worlds, represented in the Anglo-American Committee, gave us the Revised Version in 1880, and in concluding the arduous yet delightful task, they publish in the Reviser's Preface, which now lies upon my table, the following significant conclusion which we commend to Elder Traum: Dated Jerusalem Chamber, Westminster Abbey, 11th November, 1880:

We now conclude, humbly commending our labors to almighty God, and praying that his favor and blessing may be vouchsafed to that which has been done in his name. We recognized from the first the responsibility of the undertaking; and through our manifold experience of its abounding difficulties we have felt more and more, as we went onward, that such a work can never be accomplished by organized efforts of scholarship and criticism, unless assisted by divine help.

Eighty biblical scholars of England and the United States concede the necessity of divine assistance in the work of accomplishing the correct revision. Then, if these learned men are correct in their statement, no version that has not been under the direct supervision of God is considered successful! On same page, of revelation to James Covill, Traum writes:

Then follows a revelation under date of January, 1831, but so palpably absurd was the whole of it, and so ignominiously did it fail, and so miserably had Joseph's prophecy miscarried, that he got word from the Lord "by return mail" explaining the failure. James Covill was the subject of the revelation, and apparently warranted at the time the enthusiastic prophecy made concerning him, for had he not promised Joseph that he would obey the word? But when he saw how the Saints were persecuted, and when he remembered his worldly cares, he rejected the word and broke the covenant. Thus by the revelation so soon was the reputation of the prophet spared.

In this objection, he overlooks the basic thought in all the promises of God, i. e., they are conditional. Depends for the accomplishment on complying with the conditions. James Covill was a Baptist minister, who came to Joseph, and his blessing and work, of course, was made contingent upon "if thou wilt hearken to my voice, which saith unto thee," etc., paragraph 3. The instruction is beautifully in accord with New Testament teaching, as Elder Traum well knows, but Mr. Covill refused to entertain it, for any length of time. He failed to abide in the truth, rejected the voice of the Lord, and returned to his former principles and associates. The receiving of gospel seed in a heart represented by "stony places," where anon, the individual "receiveth with joy," but "hath not root within himself, endureth for a while, and when persecution ariseth because of the word, he is offended" (Matthew 13: 20, 21), militates no more against the divinity of the revelation to James Covill than does the fact that "Many of the disciples of Christ went back, and walked with him no more" (John 6: 66), prove the spuriousness of the revelations of Christ, previously given to them, or at that time given, one of which in verse 27, reads: "Labor not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life which the Son of man shall give unto you; for him hath God the Father sealed." The "you" referred to, as receiving the promise of "everlasting life," included those who "went back, and walked no more with Jesus." According to Traum, this was "palpably absurd," and an "ignominious failure." If a refusal to abide the commands of God is an evidence of the failure of those commands being divine, then farewell to the whole system of God's government, from Genesis to Revelation, for FAILURE to obey God is written in the Bible covering a period of forty-one hundred years. Neither God nor his word are responsible for the failures of men. Let God be true, if all men are not so.

ANOTHER BLUNDER.

In resuming his "narrative" of the Saints, or rather his attempt to make a thread of narrative, on page 226, Traum refers to the conference of the 2d of January, 1831, at Fayette, New York, and adds: "At which was received the following revelation (Doctrine and Covenants 38.)" Not one word of said revelation is given by him. Instead, he directs attention to his idea of the church being directed to move to Kirtland, Ohio, which became the grand stake of Zion, where the first temple of the Lord was reared by the Saints in this dispensation. Now the only idea in this section 38 that he refers to is that "I gave unto you the commandment that ye should go to the Ohio; and there I will give unto you my law, and there you shall be endowed with power from on high." Not one word concerning "grand stake of Zion," or the first temple of the Lord reared by the Saints in this, or any other, "dispensation." At this conference, and in this revelation, Joseph did warn the Saints that in "secret chambers something was had to bring about their destruction in process of time" (paragraph 4). In the latter part of January, 1831, Joseph and his wife accompanied Sidney Rigdon and Edward Partridge to Kirtland, Ohio. Of this move Traum says, page 226:

The time was not long, with the careful tilling the soil had received by Rigdon during his ministry there, till a church grew up with an approximate membership of one hundred.

Has Elder Traum forgotten that at the time Sidney Rigdon and wife were baptized into the church, November 14, 1830, that with those previously admitted by baptism the little branch numbered twenty, and that the excitement was "so general in Kirtland and in all the regions round about that the people thronged the ministers,—Oliver Cowdery, Parley P. Pratt, Peter Whitmer, and Ziba Peterson,—"that they had no time for rest, or retirement"? That meetings were convened in different neighborhoods and multitudes came together soliciting the preachers' attendance, while thousands flocked about them daily; some to be taught, some for curiosity, some to obey the gospel, and some to dispute or resist it? Hayden's History speaks of the success as an "overflowing scourge." The History of the Church, page 155, says: "In two or three weeks from our arrival in the neighborhood with the news we had baptized one hundred and twenty-seven souls, and this number soon increased to one thousand."—P. P. Pratt's Autobiography, History, p. 155. He continues: "The disciples were filled with joy and gladness, while rage and lying was abundantly manifested by gainsayers; faith was strong, joy was great, and persecution heavy."—Ibid.

This was at Kirtland and vicinity during the autumn of 1830, twelve months and more before Joseph and wife came, yet Traum, to misrepresent and render diminutive the cause at all times, makes the blunder here. Traum represents, in his statement above, that there was not anything of the church at Kirtland when Joseph came. History records the membership as a thousand, at least. We are thus exposing his scheme to misrepresent, and belittle the restoration of the Lord's work through the unlettered boy of Palmyra, and this scheme is one the author of Mormonism Against Itself has made as a thread, upon which "hangs his tale." Traum knows the latter day work to be the biggest proposition that he has ever met. He doubtless will see, later, if not earlier, that it is THE proposition of modern times, as well as of all ancient times,—God's proposition.

THE PURPOSE.

Of the temporary stay in Kirtland and vicinity, with all the church work performed previous to the emigration of the Saints to Missouri, Elder Traum writes from no settled position. He says: "It is difficult to ascertain at this remote period the definite intention of the Saints at that time."—Page 226. He had just said, probably one half minute before, that from the revelation given in Fayette, January, 1831, Doctrine and Covenants, section 38, "the historical point is, the church is directed to move to Kirtland, which became the grand stake of Zion." Well, then, if this was the "point," then the settlement at Kirtland was "the intention," and the necessity of his statement that "it is difficult to ascertain the intention of the Saints at that time," is not true. But he uses the crafty idea that the Saints kept their intentions in the dark, all the way through. On page 227, Traum continues:

The added knowledge which Rigdon must have possessed of his own people, as well as of the temper of the people generally in the vicinity of Kirtland, might have become a strong incentive to make a move. They never appeared fully at ease, and all the time had a desire looking toward the West, which, if even it did possess some border ruffianism, would also be virgin soil for the culture of fraud. They were never able to entirely dispossess themselves of the belief they were to have a "gathering." A Zion of the vast proportions planned by them was well-nigh out of the question in the more densely populated East, where the price of land was higher than on the frontier, and this would have the tendency to cause furtive glances to be cast in a western direction. Be that as it may, there are not wanting the evidences producing the conviction that their stay in Kirtland was only temporary. Zion was their goal. Not that they were aware of its location, for Zion had not yet been located, but to some place, they were sure, would the Lord lead them at last.

Elder Traum should have enlarged his idea with reference to the "gathering." He would have ascertained that God sought to gather his people anciently, to "build them up," and make them "the light of the world." Some chronic grumblers at "the way of the Lord," say, "he promised them an eternal kingdom with Jerusalem for its capital, and its ritual the old law," yet all of his schemes for the Jews seemed to be failures. He, himself, fails not, but man, who is "crushed before the moth," fails. Jesus Christ's words are: Luke 13:

O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings; and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. And verily, I say unto you, Ye shall not see me, until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

Traum will not deny the purpose of God as set forth in the words of Christ that God had "often" sought to gather his people, before these words were spoken. The Saints accepted "the restoration" of the gospel, with attendant authority, as preeminently a "gathering dispensation." Paul denominates the work of God in the latter days, as follows:

Having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in himself: that in the dispensation of the fullness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him.—Ephesians 1: 9, 10.

This dispensation of the fullness of times, when

"Gentile times are closing," (Romans 11:25; Luke 21:24) was to be accompanied by divine revelation or direction, for the meaning of the word dispense or dispensation is to "hand out," to "deal out in portions," "to distribute, to administer, to execute," and God is the "dispenser."

In the work of translating the Book of Mormon before the organization of the church this instruction of the Lord was before Joseph and his associates in the following account given by Moroni when finishing his record:

Behold, Ether saw the days of Christ, and he spake concerning a New Jerusalem upon this land; and he spake also concerning the house of Israel, and the Jerusalem from whence Lehi should come; after it should be destroyed it should be built up again a holy city unto the Lord; wherefore it could not be a New Jerusalem, for it had been in a time of old, but it should be built up again, and become a holy city unto the Lord: and it should be built unto the house of Israel; and that a New Jerusalem should be built up upon this land, unto the remnant of the seed of Joseph, for which things there has been a type; for as Joseph brought his father down into the land of Egypt, even so he died there; wherefore the Lord brought a remnant of the seed of Joseph out of the land of Jerusalem, that he might be merciful unto the seed of Joseph, that they should perish not, even as he was merciful unto the father of Joseph, that he should perish not; wherefore the remnant of the house of Joseph shall be built upon this land; and it shall be a land of inheritance; and they shall build up a holy city unto the Lord like unto the Jerusalem of old; and they shall no more be confounded, until the end come, when the earth shall pass away. And there shall be a new heaven and a new earth; and they shall be like unto the old, save the old have passed away, and all things have become new. And then cometh the New Jerusalem; and blessed are they who dwell therein; for it is they whose garments are white through the blood of the Lamb; and they are they who are numbered among the remnant of the seed of Joseph, who were of the house of Israel. And then also cometh the Jerusalem of old; and the inhabitants thereof. Blessed are they, for they have been washed in the blood of the Lamb; and they are they who were scattered and gathered in from the four quarters of the earth, and from the north countries, and are partakers of the fulfilling of the covenant which God made with their father Abraham. And when these things come, bringeth to pass the scripture which saith, there are they who were first, who shall be last; and there are they who were last who shall be first.—Ether 6:1, 2.

In June, 1830, the following upon the subject was before the Saints in the rerevelment of the Lord's purpose through Enoch "the seventh from Adam":

And the Lord said unto Enoch, As I live, then so will I come in the last days—in the days of wickedness and vengeance, to fulfill the oath which I made unto you, concerning the children of Noah: and the day shall come that the earth shall rest, but before that day, shall the heavens be darkened, and a veil of darkness shall cover the earth; and great tribulations shall be among the children of men, but my people will I preserve; and righteousness will I send down out of heaven; and truth will I send forth out of the earth, to bear testimony of my Only Begotten; his resurrection from the dead; yea, and also the resurrection of all men; and righteousness and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood, to gather out my own elect from the four quarters of the earth unto a place which I shall prepare; a holy city, that my people may gird up their loins, and be looking forth for the time of my coming; for there shall be my tabernacle, and it shall be called Zion, a new Jerusalem.—Doctrine and Covenants 36:12.

On the 21st day of September, 1823, the angel of God who appeared to Joseph quoted among other prophecies of the Bible, the eleventh chapter of Isaiah, and announced "that it was about to be fulfilled." He also quoted Joel 2, and Acts 3:22, 23. These quotations involve "the great restoration," the initial work of which is in the period of the world just preceding the second advent of Christ, for the heavens were to receive (retain) him until that time. One grand feature of this "restoration," and one that divinely fixes the time, is the restoration, or regathering, of Israel quoted by the angel in Isaiah, chapter 11; and the lifting of the extra curse from Israel's land by the restoration of "rain," which the Almighty withheld from it. (See Isaiah 5:6.) On the 22d day of September, 1827, the angelic minister placed in Joseph's hands the golden plates from which the following was translated: "And it shall come to pass," ("after the book of which I have spoken shall come forth," verse 12) that the Jews which are scattered, also shall begin to believe in Christ; and they shall begin to gather in upon the face of the land; and as many as shall believe in Christ shall become a delightsome people."—2 Nephi 12:13.

In paragraph 14, "And it shall come to pass that the Lord God shall commence his work among all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people, to bring about the restoration of his people upon the earth."

The Saints also accepted the following, translated in that book: "And blessed are they who shall seek to bring forth my Zion at that day," for they shall be blessed with, or have the gift of the Holy Ghost, possess its "power." (See 1 Nephi 3:41, 42.)

In April, 1829, Oliver Cowdery was told through the Seer, "Now as you have asked, behold, I say unto you, Keep my commandments and seek to bring forth and establish the cause of Zion." Also the following May the same was communicated to Hyrum Smith and Joseph Knight, sr., and in June, 1829, David Whitmer was enjoined to "seek to bring forth and establish my Zion. Keep my commandments in all things; and if you keep my commandments, and endure to the end, you shall have eternal life, which gift is the greatest of all the gifts of God."

On the sixth of April, 1830, the day the church was organized, this language is used in a revelation concerning Joseph Smith:

For thus saith the Lord God, him have I inspired to move the cause of Zion in mighty power for good, and his diligence I know, and his prayers I have heard. Yea his weeping for Zion I have seen, and I will cause that he shall mourn for her no longer, for his days of rejoicing are come unto the remission of his sins, and the manifestations of my blessings upon his works. For, behold, I will bless all those who labor in my vineyard with a mighty blessing, and they shall believe on his words, which are given him through me by the Comforter, which manifesteth that Jesus was crucified by sinful men for the sins of the world, yea, for the remission of sins unto the contrite heart.—Doctrine and Covenants 19: 1-3.

In the presence of six elders, in Fayette, New York, September, 1830, the following information was imparted on the subject:

And ye are called to bring to pass the gathering of mine elect, for mine elect hear my voice and harden not their hearts; wherefore the decree hath gone forth from the Father that they shall be gathered in, into one place upon the face of this land, to prepare their hearts, and be prepared in all things against the day when tribulation, and desolation are sent forth upon the wicked; for the hour is nigh, and the day soon at hand when the earth is ripe; and all the proud, and they that do wickedly, shall be as stubble, and I will burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that wickedness shall not be upon the earth; for the hour is nigh and that which was spoken by mine apostles must be fulfilled; for as they spake so shall it come to pass; for I will reveal myself from heaven with power, and great glory, with all the hosts thereof, and dwell in righteousness with man on earth a thousand years, and the wicked shall not stand.—Doctrine and Covenants 28: 2.

We have followed this special thought, as it stands in the revelations to the church, from the initiative which the Almighty pioneered by angel ministers, up to the time the church was directed to Kirtland, Ohio. We have done so to demolish the insinuation of Elder Traum, that the Saints were moving in uncertainty. He would wish to impress his readers that the Saints were a class of people who had surrendered their individuality, and were blind dupes following an igneus fatuus, moving around uneasily, in the dark, with the eyes of a suspicious world constantly upon them. These quotations prove that the "gathering," the "restoration," the "Zion" faith of the church was a principle of purpose in Deity, embosomed in the foundation of the work, and not an after engraftment. They did not wish to "dispossess themselves," nor did they try to dispossess themselves of the belief that they were to have a "gathering." The doctrine of the calling and organization of God's people out of Babylon is, was, and will be, a scriptural doctrine and effectual just before the second coming of Christ. David, the tuneful bard of Judah's line, prophetically descants on the event in the following sweet strains:

Thou shalt arise, and have mercy upon Zion: for the time to favor her, yea, the set time, is come. For thy servants take pleasure in her stones, and favor the dust thereof. So the heathen shall fear the name of the Lord: and all the kings of the earth thy glory. When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory. He will regard the prayer of the destitute, and not despise their prayer. This shall be written for the generation to come: and the people which shall be created shall praise the Lord. For he hath looked down from the height of his sanctuary; from heaven did the Lord behold the earth; to hear the groaning of the prisoner; to loose those that are appointed to death; to declare the name of the Lord in Zion, and his praise in Jerusalem; when the people are gathered together, and the kingdoms, to serve the Lord.

This is a city to be erected before the Lord comes in glory, and the Saints accepted this as the word of the Lord in the Book of Mormon, as well as in the Bible, "established by the former," and "the proportions," which Traum says were "planned" by the Saints, were simply the proportions planned by the Lord, and given by him. "The set time" for "bringing forth" the cause of Zion, they believed, had come, and they were faithful architects in laying the foundations thereof. The "cause" of Zion, they labored so assiduously to found, by divine direction, will eventuate in the glorious culmination of a city, a "Zion," a "New Jerusalem" to receive the coming King from heaven, in fulfillment of the predictions. Isaiah's hallowed lips foretold in language more perspicuous than Alexander Campbell under enthusiastic ardor dared to express, the organization of the people called Zion, "the pure in heart," who were chosen to move along the great cause. Hear him:

O Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain: O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God! Behold the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.—Isaiah 40: 9, 10.

A city called Zion could not perform this work. A people, called Zion, who were of such city could, but it must be a people who possess "glad tidings," the "gospel of Christ," who dwell in "the high mountain,"—the highest form of government, the United States. Here where "the proud eagle exultantly floats, where eternal peace seems to have selected her quiet dwelling place," must this people who are intrusted as custodians of the "glad news" of the gospel be found, bearing the message of life, and redemption by "ambassadors in rushing vessels" being sent from this land "beyond the rivers of Ethiopia" (Isaiah 18), and these messengers must incorporate by divine authority, in their message the rehabilitation of the "cities of Judah," and the completion of the temple of their hope by the laying of the capstone—the coming of Jesus Christ, "his reward with him, and his work before him." But it would do the souls of the "Antiassociation," with its mouthpiece, Elder Traum, good, to know that the "gathering to Zion with songs of everlasting joy," the "deorganization of existing denominations," the approach of the "millennium" with attendant revolution resulting in peace, and dominion to the victors, "the literal reign of Christ," were all doctrines accepted by the Campbellites on the Western Reserve, until Campbell, who had an eye to policy rather than doctrine, put his foot on the ideas, and an embargo on the minds of his people. Listen a moment, Elder Traum, to your historian:

The ardor of religious awakening, resulting from the new discoveries in the gospel was very much increased about the year 1830 by the hope that the millennium had now dawned, and that the long expected day of gospel glory would very soon be ushered in . . . and so would be established the kingdom of Jesus, in form, as well as in fact, on its New Testament basis. . . . The prospect was a glorious one. . . . This hope of millennial glory was based on many passages of the Holy Scriptures. All such scriptures as spoke of the ransomed of the Lord returning to Zion, with songs of everlasting joy upon their heads, that they should obtain joy and gladness, and that sorrow and sighing should flee away. (Page 183.) Some of the leaders in these new discoveries, advancing less cautiously, as the ardor of discovery increased, began to form theories of the millennium. The fourteenth chapter of Zechariah was brought forward in proof—all considered it literal—that the most marvelous and stupendous physical and climatic changes were to be wrought in Palestine; and that Jesus Christ, the Messiah, was to reign literally in Jerusalem, and in Mount Zion, and before his ancients gloriously. The glory and splendors of that august millennial kingdom were to surpass all vision, as the light of the moon was to be made equal to the light of the sun, and the light of the sun would be augmented "sevenfold." William Hayden went to New Lisbon to fill an appointment. Calling at Brother Jacob Campbell's we found Brother Scott. Mrs. Campbell was a Christian lady of much brilliancy of talent, and intelligent in the Holy Scriptures. Salutations over, she broke forth in an animated strain: "Brother Scott and I have been contemplating how joyful it will be in the millennium, mortals and immortals dwelling together." Brother Scott then, with great fluency, descanted upon the prophecies of Jeremiah and Ezekiel relating to the return of the Jews and their reestablishment in the Holy Land, the coming of the Lord, the resurrection of the saints, and the gathering together unto him on the Mount of Olives. Scott had a vein of enthusiasm, to which these millennial prospects were very congenial.—Hayden's History, pp. 185, 186.

"The furtive glances" of the Campbellites at that time were not in a "westerly direction," but to a far eastern point for "the gathering,"—to "the Mount of Olives." These zealous students of the Bible,—Scott, Stone, Rigdon, and Campbell, seemed to have caught occasional glimpses of the light. They see eye to eye for a while. Why did they not continue? Here is the answer:

Many sagacious brethren perceived with regret the new turn things were taking. . . . Some supposed Mr. Campbell to be in sympathy with these views; and indeed some plausibility was lent to this opinion by the title of the new periodical, The Millennial Harbinger. Mr. Campbell, whose eye was fully open to all, was not slow to perceive all this, and he felt called on to undertake the needed correction.—Page 188. The effect was salutary, and remedy complete.—Page 189.

By the way, that was a peculiar title for a periodical devoted to the advocacy of doctrines diametrically opposed (?) to its title. But we must follow Elder Traum. However, to supply some missing thoughts in his thread of narrative, we subjoin a brief excerpt from an article entitled, "History of the church," published in SAINTS' HERALD for March 22, 1905:

As a result of the work done in and about Kirtland, it was decided to remove the headquarters of the church to that place, which was soon after accomplished, Joseph Smith arriving there about the first of February, 1831. In this vicinity the church made rapid progress, so far as acquiring numerical strength is concerned, and also in its organic development. In 1833, and doubtless as one of the results of the instruction before referred to, and also of additional light received at the time, the First Presidency of the church was organized, consisting of three members. Joseph Smith, who had been previously ordained president of the high priesthood in a conference of high priests, elders, and priests, held at Amherst, Ohio, January 25, 1832, was made the president, with Sidney Rigdon and Frederick G. Williams as counselors.

In 1835 the Quorum of Twelve Apostles was organized at Kirtland.

The First Presidency's duty was to preside over the whole church in a general way. The duty of the twelve apostles was to have charge of the missionary department of church work. Their authority extended in all the world, either to go themselves, or to send and direct others in the proclamation of the word.

(To be continued.)

• • • • •

THE POWER OF EARLY IMPRESSIONS.

It is always an interesting question how far the traits that a man is known to have may be said to be the result of inheritance, and how far they are the product of his early environment. In some the natural bent of the character and personality are so strong that environment seems to exert but little influence. The life has within itself so many elements of persistence that it goes steadily on in the bringing to full fruition that which belongs to it as its heritage, and is never shaped or swerved very much by anything external. We say such seems to be the case, for the truth probably is that every man is, as Whitman in his egotism said of himself, "The acme of all things accomplished, and also the resultant of the currents of life by which he is touched, especially in the days of his childhood and youth. Then, too, we are apt to read into a man's early life those qualities which we know him to possess in his maturity, so that around the childhood of many distinguished men a mass of legendary stories is thrown by biographers and others who seek to account for their fully developed characters.

Nine men out of every ten are slaves to the fiendish and cunning monster called circumstances or surroundings.

EARLY IMPRESSIONS.

Human life might be compared to tree or plant life. In order to thrive they require certain degrees of moisture, temperature, and also a certain kind of soil. Plant a lily or some other flower out on a barren or desolate prairie and how long will it retain its fragrance and beauty? In a short period of time it shrivels up and decays and passes into oblivion. So it is with most members of the human family. We are as weak as the lily or some other hothouse plant. In order to rise to our fullest heights, we must have every gale of misfortune arrested and every beam tempered, or we, like the lily, pass into comparative oblivion. Instead of imagining that we are creatures of circumstances, it would alleviate our fears greatly to think that we are creators of our circumstances. Our lives and actions build us an existence out of circumstances. From the same bricks and stones one man erects palaces, another hovels. They both had the same building material, but what a contrast is displayed in the appearance of the buildings. Many times in the same family and the same circumstances one man erects a colossal structure, while his brother, weak and vacillating, exists eternally amid wreck and ruin. The very stone that was an obstacle and stumbling-block in a weak and susceptible man's path often proves to be a stepping-stone to success and greatness of character to one who is strong and not so easily influenced.

In "Parental responsibility," by M. Eleanor Kearney, published by the Daughters of Zion, is found the following gems of wisdom:

Many a youth and maiden gone astray from paths of rectitude can trace their downfall to the lack of parental vigilance; for vigilance is the price of many things besides liberty. It is a parental duty to acquaint yourself with all that enters into your children's lives and forms their habits; and this watchcare must begin with their first consciousness. It is far less trouble to begin early to form, or to guide the formation of the child's habits, than it is to break them of wrong ones which they ignorantly form. The children must attend the public schools and it is not possible to exclude them from all undesirable associates; but we can and should make ourselves acquainted with those whom they make their intimate companions in order that we may meet the traits of character against which we would guard our own. The aim of our teaching should be to fortify them against the evils that they are bound to meet in the world, rather than to seclude them, or keep them in ignorance. Teach them that all the habits that they acquire in childhood will grow with their growth and strength, until those habits control their whole lives, making those lives righteous or unrighteous, according as they become addicted to habits that are good or evil. Insist on truth in all their statements. Never pass over untruthfulness in matters however small; little lies become great ones in time. Do not make promises where the ability to perform is doubtful; nor threaten them with that which you never mean to perform, such as breaking their heads, or whipping within an inch of their lives. We become the companions of the heroes and heroines of our reading whether in history or fiction. We enter far more intimately into their thoughts and feelings than it is possible to do with human companions of flesh and blood; and the persistent association of our minds with unholy thought, speeches, and deeds will leave their impure impress upon our own souls. Be not deceived, for "evil communications corrupt good manners" as oft in books as in life. There is still more involved in this home education, that all parents called to be Saints must take heed to;—the care and usage of the body as a part of their moral and spiritual instruction committed to your hands. Few are aware of the very early age at which immoral practices begin. The only safety is in being ahead of the Devil in your teaching, as the Lord commanded Israel: "Rising up early and teaching them."

Teach them that all functions of the body have their proper and ordained uses, and that the abuse of them will deprive them of such usages, by preventing the physical and mental development of manhood and womanhood, and causing disease and decay. This teaching can be accomplished without any gross references, or violence to modesty.

This all takes time, but nothing that is excellent can be wrought suddenly.

And in the leaflet, "The influence of companionship," by the Daughters of Zion, we find:

The child of tender years and even the youth is not wise enough to choose companions unaided, and as nothing can be of greater importance than the kind of company he keeps, it follows that the watchcare of the parents during all the years up to young manhood and womanhood is required to prevent the choosing of such companions as would do them harm, and to encourage the choosing of such as will prove to be helpful.

Do not let any sophistry mislead you in this matter. Professor Everett, of Harvard University, holds that hypnotism is but an exaggerated form of the silent but powerful influence which is constantly being exerted by human beings in their companionship one with another. "The suggestions made by our ordinary companions," he says, "simply perhaps by their ways of speaking and acting, tend to exert a like influence. They control us less because other influences are working in other directions; but almost every young person who falls into bad habits shows that these suggestions may sometimes get as complete control of a person as is the case in hypnotism.

Besides what are called "bad habits" there are other habits hardly less bad that are caught from one's companions. Such are habits of frivolity, of unkind gossip, and whatever may tend to lower the standard of our lives.

Good habits of life, of thought, and of feeling are helped as truly by good companionship as they are hindered by bad.

If the nature of the companions among whom we live has such an incalculable influence over us, we see what power we have to shape our lives by the right choice of companions.

Children naturally incline to imitate and soon fall into the ways of those with whom they associate intimately. There is an old and familiar saying that "Vice is a monster of deceitful mein,

That to be hated needs but to be seen;
But seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace."

The boy who has been taught that it is wicked to swear, or use bad language of any kind, if allowed for a time—and not a very long time, either—to make companions of such as swear and are profane, soon loses the disgust and horror he felt at first, and before long can equal his companions in the readiness with which he uses the same kind of language.

Give the children something to do, for idleness is the Devil's agent.

A wise teacher or parent will be patient with young lawbreakers.

A physician is not angry at the interference of a mad patient, nor does he take it at all ill to be railed at by a man in a fever. Just so should a wise man treat all mankind, as a physician does his patients, and look upon them only as sick and extravagant.

Ruth Cameron says: "There is one weakness that it seems to me if I were training a child, I should try to help him to grow up without—and that is the weakness of inaccurate statement."

The famous Doctor Johnson is reported to have said: "If the child says he looked out of this window when he looked out of that—whip him." I certainly should not advise any such strenuous measures as that, but I do think it is a good thing to make a decided effort to teach a child the habit of accurate and exact statement. Teach him not to be specific unless he can be accurate: not to say, "I walked four miles," or "I came home at five o'clock," unless it was exactly four miles of five o'clock.

Teach him if he is only speaking broadly to say "about," or "somewhere near," or any word or expression that denotes approximately. And, above all things, try to keep him from acquiring that painfully prevalent, slipshod habit of exaggeration. The famous boy who told his father he had seen "about a hundred cats scrapping down in our cellar," and then admitted, after a few searching questions, that after all, he was only sure "of our old cat and another one," has altogether too many prototypes, not only in boy life, but also among grown-ups. How many people's statements you take with a grain of salt. "She told me she cleaned every closet and every drawer and cupboard in the house, and changed the paper on all the shelves, and washed all the china yesterday, but I don't believe her." "He says he is getting just twice as much money as he was last year at this time, but I guess if you take $10 off of that you will get nearer the truth."

I hate exaggeration. It is so bootless. If you have the habit of exaggeration people will soon find you out, and then in self-defense will acquire a compensatory habit of deducting from your statements. Often they will deduct more than they ought. So everyone loses. "It is vinegar to the eyes," says Emerson, "to deal with men of loose and imperfect perceptions." That means exaggeration and inaccuracy, among other things.

Train your children to accuracy of thought and observation and statement, and you will have given them an equipment that will prove most valuable in all the relations of life.

TEACH CHILDREN ECONOMY.

One great secret of success in life is contained in the advice of Reverend Doctor W. E. Barton, that parents should teach their children the necessity of adjusting expenses to come within the limit of income.

The boy who is permitted to spend all his first earnings on himself is acquiring habits that may spell ruin for him when he is obliged to make his own way in the world.

The girl who has the privilege of "charging" her candy at the corner, and her own hats and gowns in the department store, is likely to grow up with a financial irresponsibility that will make her husband a bankrupt or a madman.

Every child should be taught to account for every dollar spent. Economy does not mean parsimony, but this is an era of prodigal recklessness, and foolish striving to outdo others in dress and style of living is one of the great evils of the times.

THE PASSIONS.

No one can have observed the first rising flood of the passions in youth, the difficulty of regulating them, and the effects on the whole mind and nature which follow them, the stimulus which is given to them by the imagination, without feeling that there is something unsatisfactory in our method of treating them. That the most important influence on human life should be wholly left to chance or shrouded in mystery, and instead of being disciplined or understood, should be required to conform to an external standard of propriety, can not be regarded as a safe or satisfactory condition of human affairs. And still those who have the charge of youth may find a way by watchfulness, by affection, by the manliness and innocence of their own lives, by occasional hints, by general admonitions, which everyone can apply for himself, to mitigate this terrible evil which eats out the heart of individuals and corrupts the moral sentiments of nations. In no duty towards others is there more need of caution and self-restraint.

That young man whose inner life is passion swept, one tidal wave of fierce temptation, hot on the heels of the last, until all the moorings are snapped, and he driven rudderless out to sea, if he is to gain control of his spirit and ride masterfully upon that sea, he must have the influence of early impressions of peace, virtue, and holiness.

That young woman who should be as attractive, and womanly winsome in the society circle where she moves, as God means her to be, must be able to shape her lips into a gently uttered, but iron ribbed no when certain well-understood questionable matters are presented to her. This rare pervasive ability should be given to her in childhood.

It takes vigilance and divine help to keep the body under control; the mouth clean and sweet, both physically and morally; the eye turned away from the thing that should not be thought about; the ear closed to what should not enter that in-gate of the heart; to allow no picture to hang upon the walls of your imagination that may not hang upon the walls of your home; to keep every organ of the body pure and undefiled, for nature's holy function only. This vigilance and divine help may be brought about by intelligent, early instruction, and much fervent prayer.

ORIGIN OF OUR MORAL IDEAS.

To each of us individually, our moral ideas come first of all in childhood through the medium of education, from parents and teachers, assisted by the unconscious influence of language. They are impressed upon the mind which at first is like a waxen tablet, adapted to receive them, but they soon become fixed or set, and in after life are strengthened, or perhaps weakened by the force of public opinion. They may be corrected and enlarged by experience, they may be reasoned about, they may be brought home to us by the circumstances of our lives, they may be intensified by imagination, by reflection, by a course of action likely to confirm them. Under the influence of religious feeling or by an effort of thought, anyone beginning with the ordinary rules of morality may create out of them for himself ideals of holiness and virtue. They slumber in the minds of most men, yet in all of us there remains some tincture of affection, some desire of good, some sense of truth, some fear of the law. Of some such state or process each individual is conscious in himself, and if he compares his own experience with that of others, he will find the witness of their consciences to coincide with that of his own. All of us have entered into an inheritance which we have the power of appropriating and making use of. No great effort of mind is required on our part; we learn morals as we learn to talk, instinctively, from conversing with others, in an enlightened age, in a civilized country, in a good home. A well-educated child of ten years old already knows the essentials of morals: "Thou shalt not steal," "Thou shalt speak the truth," "Thou shalt love thy parents," "Thou shalt fear God." What more does he want?

ON THE SPOILING OF CHILDREN.

Teachers are almost invariably the object of bitter criticism, much or most of which is wholly unjust, and almost all of which could be avoided if parents would take the time for personal investigation. Most men are unable to get away from business during school hours, and mothers won't take the trouble. Was there ever a boy or girl, not under discipline, whose eye did not light up with pleasure at the sight of a parent entering the schoolroom? Was there ever a teacher who did not welcome a visitor who came not to blame, but to learn what was going on? It is ignorance of conditions which is responsible for much of the fault-finding. The real faults are seldom mentioned. The lack of efficient Sunday-school teachers is caused by the lack of appreciation and gratitude by the parents. Teachers work with more zeal when they get definite personal encouragement from the parents.

The truth is, we parents are selfish. We are neglecting our children and trying to salve our own consciences by blaming others. No matter how much money is spent, no matter how good the system of administration adopted, we are not going to get very far unless parents take hold and do their proper share of education. In reality the teacher is only the parents' helper. It is not wholly an ideal condition to have children in school at all. The home is where they should get their best education, and where they ought even now to get the most of it. The school of to-day is a rather crude invention for accomplishing the greatest good to the greatest number, and it is of value only as we supplement its work at home. That is where the trouble arises.

But while we are selfish, we are an affectionate people. We spoil our children. We let them do pretty much as they please, in reasonable limits, so long as they do not bother us. The intelligent parent who spends ten minutes a day with each child in loving discussion of matters which interest the latter is not likely to have much trouble. Some parents do this, but it is safe to say that the majority do not. Isn't the teacher hired for that sort of thing? In any event, you are too busy, you must hurry off to the theater or to some social engagement, or to some church duty. But it is not wholly from a lack of time or inclination. In these days parents seem to have a feeling that they are not very good advisers for their own children, and have a sneaking hope that the schools will make up their own deficiencies. Until such conditions are changed there is going to be no improvement.

MUSIC.

The power of music as a character builder is being demonstrated every day in our land.

There is no home which can claim to be the best type of a Christian home that does not have the right kind of home music. Music that develops, music that modifies tendencies to evil, music that makes children obedient, music that makes parents patient and loving, that brings brother and sister together in a bond of love that shall never be broken, music which bring the hearts of lovers together, music that awakens all the associations of the past and quickens reverence in the minds of those who would worship God—music in the home where the family altar is set up. Music has such power that the greatest of writers through the ages have paid their tribute to it. One of the things I would recommend to you is the practice of "singing grace" at the table instead of the usual form of asking a blessing. Begin when the two of you, husband and wife, set up your home together. There was a family in Kentucky that began that way. Every child, as it grew up, joined in. Like a harp, it began with two strings, and every child who came was an added string. String after string was added until there were ten children, and thus twelve strings. Their voices were harmonious, and the sound of their "singing grace" was waited for by the children passing on the street and the neighbors opened their windows to hear it. As the years went on the harp strings were broken. One child died, then another, and then another; until at last only two strings to the old harp, the mother and one son, remained. The old mother had a friend staying with her for companionship. One day, after an absence, the son returned home, and the mother said to him, "I am glad that you have come; I want to 'sing grace' once more at the table." So the table was brought up from the kitchen where they had been eating their meals, the son sat opposite her and they "sang grace" again at the table. Think of the associations of the years of family life which that singing brought up to that mother.

MAKE HOME A FUN CENTER.

Don't be afraid of a little fun at home.

Don't shut your house lest the sun should fade your carpets, and your hearts, lest a hearty laugh shake down some of the musty old cobwebs there. If you want to ruin your sons, let them think that all mirth and social enjoyment must be left on the threshold without when they come home at night.

When once a home is regarded as only a place to eat, drink, and sleep in, the work is begun that ends in poolrooms, saloons, gambling houses, and reckless degradation. Young people must have fun and relaxation somewhere. If they do not find it at their own hearthstones it will be sought at other less profitable places.

Therefore let the fire burn brightly at night and make the homestead delightful with all those little arts that parents so perfectly understand. Don't repress the buoyant spirits of your children; half an hour's merriment round the lamp and fireside of home blots out the remembrance of many a care and annoyance during the day, and the best safeguard they can take with them into the world is the influence of a bright little domestic sanctum.

The child feels and understands the spirit and temper of the home. It knows when it is welcome and when it is not by the home spirit. It rests contentedly in the spirit of a loving home. But only in a small way does it know the personal characteristics of father and mother. Later the child learns the genius of mother for love, truth, beauty, character, and wholesomeness; and the genius of father for organization and execution and for honor and for justice. It is then that the child ceases to be a child and rises above the impersonal spirit of principle and law and attitude and type and order, all of which belong to a well-established home, and communes with father and mother in the atmosphere of a personal spirituality. Jesus Christ has brought this highest of all the spiritualities to light and his church must know the place and stand for the necessity of Christian spirituality in the life of man.

I think we may assert, that, in a hundred men, there are more than ninety who are what they are, good or bad, useful or pernicious to society, from the instruction they have received. It is on education that depends the great difference observable among them. The least and most imperceptible impressions received in our infancy have consequences very important and of a long duration. It is with these first impressions as with a river, whose waters we can easily turn by different canals in quite opposite courses; so that, from the insensible direction the stream receives at its source, it takes different directions, and at last arrives at places far distant from each other. And with the same facility, we may, I think, turn the minds of children to what direction we please.

We all need an example to follow: Our heavenly Father has provided for our necessities in this respect, that we have his word and messengers to lead us.

The world says with Emerson, "If you would lift me you must be on higher ground."

"See that thou make all things according to the pattern showed thee in the mount." That vision and that charge were given to Moses; the lessons which they teach remain for our profit, we may profitably trace the parallel between our work and of the Hebrew leader, and remind ourselves that to us, as well as to him, is committed a work of incalculable importance; to us is given a divine pattern for our guidance, and upon our ears also falls the solemn charge to follow faithfully the heavenly pattern.

All of us are builders for time and for eternity. The building of the sacred edifice of character which is to be a holy temple for God to dwell in; the raising of the stately structure of a lifework which shall be enduring as the years of God; the laying of secure foundations for that heavenly home in which we all hope to dwell, these are the high and heaven-appointed employments of our earthly years.

By constancy of purpose in following the patterns of Jesus Christ we will succeed in bearing the full fruition of our early impressions for good.

J. C. GRAINGER.

Most people have an idea in the back of their heads that they could have made a better job of the universe.

When God points the way through the desert you may be sure he will not fail to provide the springs of water.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY FRANCES.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. F. M. Smith, vice president, 630 South Chrysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. D. J. Krahl, secretary, 724 South Chrysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. Letha Tilton, treasurer, Lamoni, Iowa, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, 1595 West Walnut, Independence, Missouri, Mrs. H. A. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.

Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Mollie Davis, superintendent, Pittsburg, Kansas.

Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Eugenics Department, Mrs. Clara Curtis, superintendent, 2200 Indiana Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.

Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, superintendent, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.

Young Women's Department, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, superintendent, 707 South Fuller Avenue, Independence, Missouri.

Sewing and Aid Societies, Mrs. M. B. Nicholson, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Adornment.

Dear Sisters: While reading in the Book of Mormon, Alma first chapter, large edition, and especially the last part of the twenty-third verse, "And they did not wear costly apparel, yet they were neat and comely; and thus they did establish the affairs of the church," I was greatly impressed. Avenues of thought were opened, and how I did wish that I was capable of presenting to others that which appeared to me while reading. The above condition did exist among the Nephites as long as they lived righteously and obeyed God's law. In Doctrine and Covenants we have God's word to us right in the early days of the church. Doctrine and Covenants 42:12 says: "And again, thou shalt not be proud in thy heart; let all thy garments be plain, and their beauty the beauty of the work of thine own hands." We see that the Lord still desires the same thing of his people.

We have God's word still later upon the same matter. In SAINTS' HERALD, January 27, 1909, there is an article entitled "Prophecy fulfilled." The writer refers to a song of prophecy which was given by Brother Joseph Luff. And also on April 12, 1909, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, Brother Wight spoke to the Saints; one of the things spoken at that time was, "Cease from the vanities incident to outward adornment, and become more humble and faithful." Are not these things, coming as they do from the most high God who is our kind heavenly Father, enough to make us call a halt upon the outward adornment of our bodies? Shall we wait until the final redemption of Zion is here? or shall we wait until the Master comes? We can not do that, for if we are trying to follow the latest fads and fashions of this world we can not lay them off in a day; because through trying to follow the things of this world our spiritual life will have become dwarfed to a certain degree; hence we will not be ready for the Master when he comes.

The Lord does not ask us to go to any extreme in dress. He has not said that we should all wear the same kind of clothes; but he has said, let your garments be plain and neat, and their beauty, etc. God loves the beautiful and wants us to, but we must be sure that our ideas of beauty are not governed by the fashions of the day, because our ideas of beauty will change with the fashions. "The vanities incident to outward adornment" cost an amount of money in a year that would surprise us, if what each individual in the church spends were counted up. I mean the vanities which are not needed. In Alma 1:23 we learn that they did not wear costly apparel, yet they were neat and comely, and thus they did establish the affairs of the church, meaning that they were able, through that way of dressing, to give more, which helped to establish the affairs of the church.

In these times there are so many little fads to follow I wonder many times where and when shall we call the halt. Sooner or later we will have to cease following the world. Why not begin now, daughters of Zion? We can not force our daughters to see as we do (or ought to do) on this line, but we can set them an example, and that with wise counsel will have its influence. Think of it, dear sisters, the Master is almost here. Are we ready for him? So many of these useless outward adornments take money. Let us use that money in helping establish the affairs of the church. More than that, the time that is spent in these things could be better spent. There are lots of burdened souls and bodies in this world. As a daughter of Zion I am willing to try to adorn my body as our kind heavenly Father asks us to do. He wants us to prepare ourselves for Zion. This is one of the preparations. We will have to forsake many things if we desire to be able to dwell in the redeemed Zion. Why not begin now? There is no use thinking that "some day I will."

I have just been reading in an old Autumn Leaves what a dangerous thing that "some day" is. The Master has told us that he would come as a thief in the night. We may be overtaken. Or we may be called from this world at a time that we do not expect. Those of us who have small children can make their garments plain and neat. It may have its influence when they grow to womanhood. Even if it should not our duty is done. They will then be responsible for themselves.

May the Lord bless us and help us to try to solve the great problems of life, and one step towards this is to put less time on the adornment of our bodies and thereby we will help, at least, to establish the affairs of the church.

SISTER M. E. GEORGE.

Letter Department

WINFIELD, KANSAS, August 3, 1912.

Editors Herald: I enjoy reading the good letters and articles that come to me through the church papers, and I thought that a few lines from this isolated part of God's vineyard might not be amiss.

There is one member living in Winfield beside my mother and myself; also a few others living some distance out in the country in different directions from here. Three members live at Arkansas City, a distance of about fifteen miles.

By reason of the scattered condition of the Saints, together with the lack of energy, perhaps, we seldom meet together to worship. Yet, in behalf of all, which number about twelve, I can say that they are fine Saints, and Saints, too, that would be active if their opportunities were such as to permit of them meeting regularly.

We have been highly favored by having Elder J. Arthur Davis with us the past two Sabbaths, who gave us some of his good sermons in his good, Christlike spirit. A few days after the arrival of Brother Davis, Elder L. Conner, of Fairland, Oklahoma, joined us and assisted in the preaching services which were held in our home.

Brother Conner is a young elder, having preached but a few times previous to coming here. We all appreciated his presence and help. This brother seems humble of spirit, and if he remains so, in time, will make an able defender of the cause.

I was well pleased with the number that came to our house each evening, considering the fact of the meetings being held in a private house. Those who came (with few exceptions) seemed very much interested. Some will obey the message, I think, when they are more thoroughly educated to the truth as it is in Christ.

All the Saints except one (she could not be with us) met at the home of Brother George Vickery last Sabbath for preaching services in the morning and sacrament and social services in the afternoon. The Spirit of the Lord was with us, and the day proved profitable, I trust, to all.

This field is practically a new one, as but little preaching has been done in this part of Kansas. The question of purchasing a tent is now being agitated in different parts of this prairie land. Sunday, this question arose after services, and was discussed with much earnestness, when one party suggested that if we really meant to purchase a tent, to get busy. One brother with pencil and paper in a few minutes' time received names and amounts to the sum of sixty-five dollars. I think we were all surprised as to the amount raised. Wouldn't be counted much, of course, in a big branch of Saints, but when you stop to consider the little handful of scattered, hard working Saints, giving with smiling faces, of their means, I believe you will be compelled with me to say, "We did well."

We believe that God has sheep pasturing on the green fields of southern Kansas, in the cities, towns, and hamlets. We believe that with a tent the shepherds can sound the gospel trumpet and the sheep will hear their voice and follow where the Master leadeth. But how can they hear without a preacher, and how can they preach when so many doors are barred against them?

I wish to say to any and all the elders passing through Winfield, to and from their fields of labor, that our address is 1603 South Fuller Street. Jot this in your memorandum, and let me know when you are coming and over what road, and we will be only too glad to meet you at the depot and care for you as best we can while with us. Stop and help us get the truth before our neighbors and friends.

J. J. AND R. A. BOSWELL.

WIGGINS, MISSISSIPPI, July 31, 1912.

Editors Herald: We, as a family, arrived here the 11th of last April, strangers in a strange land. There are no other Saints in this county, so far as I can find out. Heretofore we were used to church privileges and without them my troubles seem, sometimes, very hard to bear. Never have I realized the necessity for secret prayer as I have done since I came here. We are commanded to pray always, a command which I try hard to obey.

Nephi tells us in his book that Jesus said, "Ye must watch and pray always, lest ye be tempted by the Devil, and are led away captive by him. And as I have prayed among you, even so shall ye pray in my church, among my people, who do repent and are baptized in my name. Behold, I am the light; I have set an example for you."

Alma writes that it is our privilege to pray for temporal blessings as well as spiritual ones. He says, "Ye must pour out your souls in your closets and secret places, and in your wilderness; yea, and when you do not cry unto the Lord, let your hearts be full drawn out in prayer unto him continually, for your welfare and also for the welfare of those around you."

Asking the prayers of the Saints in our behalf, and that if there are any Saints in Mississippi they will please write to me.

Your sister in the one faith,

MRS. O. BALLANTYNE.

SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI.

Editors Herald: As I have seen nothing lately in the best of all papers, the HERALD, from the Queen City of the Ozarks, I will send you a short message. We of the Springfield Branch are still in the fight for the truth and are using our feeble efforts to let our lights shine out to the world that others may catch the rays of the angel's message. We have a nice little chapel to worship in, for which we are more thankful than proud, and have many faithful Saints. Some are growing old in the work and stronger in the faith. Our young Saints are a bright and energetic and enthusiastic band of faithful workers with no other aim in life than to do good and work out their own soul's salvation and point others to the light that emanates from the Master of men.

We have Sabbath school at 9.30, preaching at 11 and 8, prayer meeting on Wednesday nights, and Religio on Friday nights, with good interest.

Now that we have told a few things about the branch, we want to say a few good things about our city. We are located on the very top of the Ozark Mountains, and have the best climate, the best water, and some of the best people to be found anywhere outside of paradise, and the best to eat that the world produces: strawberries and cream, cherry pie, peach cobbler, pear and apple preserves, potatoes, cabbage, and corn on the cob. Why should we not be happy? Our land will produce anything from goober peas to a full-grown Socialist, with very little labor. Farmers raise more with less labor than can be done in any other State in the Union. We do not say these things because we are land agents, for we are not: I am a common wagon and carriage maker and a Latter Day Saint preacher. We want the world to know that we have a good country, and we want all good people to come and cast their lots with us. Our city has passed the fifty thousand mark and is still growing. There are five railroads and more coming; three large railroad shops, and other large industries too numerous to mention. We want good Saints to locate here and help us build up this part of Zion. There is work for the worker in both a temporal and a spiritual way, so don't write to find out, but come and see. We are two hundred miles from the central gathering place, and some day expect to be a stake of Zion.

Springfield Branch has for some time been enjoying a spiritual feast. Elder W. H. Kelley, of Independence, Missouri, is one of our worthy missionaries this year, and he dropped down into our midst some time ago and has been feeding us with the best that the three records contain, and he does it in such a plain, simple way, you can not but feel the force of it. He certainly did us good while here, for which we are thankful. You know he is a retired blacksmith, and when he begins to strike sledge hammer blows on the anvil of truth, and the gospel sparks begin to fly, they strike one with such force they burn to the very soul. We would like to keep him with us, but there are others who want to hear the soul-reviving message as well as we. We are looking for a harvest of good things in our work here this fall and winter.

In conclusion, I want to add my testimony to the truthfulness of the angel message. The gospel found me a physical wreck, and now, sixteen years later, at the age of sixty-four, I am hale and hearty and able to do a big day's work at my trade, and I have the promise of living until I am satisfied with life. I was an inveterate user of tobacco, a coffee drinker, and a meat eater, but by the help of the divine Master of men I was able to overcome, and I made a covenant with God that if he would help me I would quit tobacco, and I quit. I lost the appetite at once. God will do for others what he has done for me, all things being equal. I tried in my own strength to quit and failed.

I have had dreams and visions, and other manifestations that I know came from God. I saw John the Revelator in a daylight vision; spoke to, and shook hands with him. I saw a picture of the temple that is to be, located in midair on a large platform, with three men standing on it; one I recognized to be Brother Joseph, for I had seen him; the other two I did not recognize. I saw an angel in the room one night while I was reading and alone. I had prayed to see one, but he didn't speak. I often feel that I am not worthy of the many wonderful and soul-stirring manifestations that I have received. To one and all I want to say, Live true to the covenant you have made; don't let pride and worldly pleasures canker your souls; live humbly; pay your tithing; shun every appearance of evil; keep yourselves unspotted from the world; then you will be able to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth. When the end of the world or the destruction of the wicked comes, you will be able to come forth at the sound of the trump; or if living, be changed to immortality and live and reign here on a glorified earth with him who spoke as never man spoke.

With love and good will for all Saints, and the hope of a speedy redemption of Zion, I am still strong in the faith,
J. W. QUINLY.

323 WEST PACIFIC STREET.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA, August 3, 1912.

Editors Herald: Just a note from Vancouver to those who are interested in our warfare. We can truly report a great measure of God's blessing to his people here. How often when we meet together to worship and sing praises unto him do we feel the presence of his Holy Spirit within us. How often, through the same Spirit, do we receive words of exhortation and comfort.

Although we are few in number, when we consider that we are in a city of nearly two hundred thousand, yet we are made to realize the truth of the words of the Master when he said, Where two or three are met together in my name. There he promises to be with his blessings.

We were all very much pleased to have Brother Johnston, of Seattle, with us last Sabbath. A change of minister is always refreshing, no matter how eloquent the presiding elder may be.

Our president, Brother I. McMullen, is our main stay and unwearied servant. We appreciate his service greatly. Our Sunday school and Religio are also pointing toward advancement although we miss the service of Sister Mabel Clark, who was called home to take care of her mother in Toronto recently.

Ever desiring to be a banner bearer for the glad tidings of the kind and loving Savior, I am,

In gospel bonds, J. A. KETTLEWELL.

MOORHEAD, IOWA, July 30, 1912.

Saints' Herald: I take pleasure in writing to you and to let you know that the work of God is on the move in Little Sioux and Gallands Grove districts.

I came to this place the first of July, where I was seven years ago, and had a series of meetings. I baptized forty-four at that time, and Sunday, the 21st, I had the pleasure of leading seven more down into the water and baptizing them into the church and kingdom of God, and we leave the work in good condition there; a noble band of Saints to carry it on. I have been blessed in presenting the truth this year.

So everything looks bright before us in the great work of God. I closed a three-week meeting at Coalville, Iowa, June 30, where I baptized one precious soul and left a noble band of Saints there in the spirit of the work of God.

I pray that God will bless all of his struggling children, and that we will obtain the crown.

Your brother, W. A. SMITH.

MARLETTE, MICHIGAN.

Dear Herald: While thinking on the past and future life, there came to my mind the thought of how easy it is to drift away from the true humble position we ought to occupy. How many of us are drifting! It is so much easier to drift than to put our strength to the oar and pull upstream against the current. But can we reach the port by drifting? When we start out in this work we aim to reach celestial glory, or to be where God and Christ are.

It is my earnest desire to be able to overcome the evils of this life and be worthy to receive the promised blessing. To this end I ask the prayers of the Saints.

In bonds, MRS. E. G. MAXWELL.

ARGYLE, MICHIGAN, July 30, 1912.

Saints' Herald: The Saints here are weighted down with worldly cares and some are afflicted until not much is being done; still we have hopes that a good work will be done, as some seed is being sown, and we trust it will bear fruit in due time.

The writer is the only officer in this branch. To those who scan the pages of our county papers for news in regard to my work, and fail to see it reported from time to time, will say, I am still holding forth at the Lee Schoolhouse every Sunday night, and hold one meeting the first Thursday in each month at Brother Raven's home. At both of these places interest is fairly good, crowds not large, but steady. Besides this, we have Religio, prayer meeting, and Sunday school on Sunday, followed by prayer meeting.

The writer tries to keep busy, and endeavors to keep others busy, as that means development, and we only make progress as we develop our abilities to do something.

Have you noticed the appeal to the Saints in HERALD of recent date, July 17, to comply with the law pertaining to providing for the needy poor? I expect to assist some in that worthy effort within six months, and you who know me will know that means sacrifice for myself and companion; but we have confidence in the work we are engaged in, and trust the men and all those intrusted to do the work as pointed out by our Lord and Master will provide against the evil day in a way approved of by the Lord.

Dear Saints, while we are telling our neighbors these are the last days, and that perplexing times are coming, do we realize that those times are here in our midst, or rather we are in the midst of them? There are many things to try the hearts of men. Shall we as Saints keep our patience, that the Lord may find faith on earth when he comes?

Hoping these few lines will answer the purpose intended, to entuse others to greater efforts, I am your brother in the gospel,
W. H. SHEFFER.

WASHINGTON, OKLAHOMA, July 23, 1912.

Dear Herald: I want to tell the Saints everywhere what a good time the few isolated Saints have enjoyed since June 17. My son and myself were going to town and when we came to the mail box there was a card from Brother R. M. Maloney. We went on to town rejoicing. He came and we were glad. He stayed nearly three weeks, preaching most of the time at nights, and two Sundays. The attendance was very good and there was some interest. Three were baptized. We think Brother Maloney hated to leave and we didn't like to see him go.

Brother S. W. Simmons came Thursday, after Brother Maloney, and preached four rousing sermons to a packed house; all could not get in Sunday night. My son's wife was baptized, making four in all.

We feel encouraged to go on, trusting in the good Lord for light and understanding of the angel message.

Dear Saints, I think I can see this Daniel kingdom growing if I am isolated and haven't heard a gospel sermon for nearly two years, until lately.

I am praying and trying every day of my life to live aright, and God is helping me with his Spirit to see my wrongs. I hope and pray that all the Saints are reading the HERALD, and read the article on the Order of Enoch and got as much good from it as I have. It is grand, and we are going to try and put forth an effort to respond just as soon as the way opens up. Dear Saints, let us not pass this by unnoticed, as there is so much in it for us all. Make a note of it; it is in the HERALD for July 17, and respond to the call and God will bless us, one and all.

Brother Maloney, don't forget us. We want another meeting here some time this year. Dear Saints, remember us in your prayers.
J. S. AND F. H. REED.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 1, 1912.

Editors Herald: Since I have read Sister Emma Burton's late letter in the HERALD touching on the important subject of theater going, I have felt moved upon to add a word, too. It may be some one will think we are too severe, for I feel were I to express my sentiments in the fullest degree they would be to only repeat the sister's words, which are these: "The line can not be drawn except in making the sacrifice complete." I find I can not do things by halves and get any satisfaction and I want to say for one I have battled this very thing over in my mind many times and have more than once sat in a theater debating the question in my mind while the play was slipping on, and I was miserable from having allowed myself to be found there. But, thank God, I have gotten to the place where I can say no, and I am no longer on the fence on that question.

Dear Saints, I have a companion that is not in this glorious work, and I have battles to fight unknown to those who are undivided in the gospel; but I feel there is much to gain in example, and if we are to be shining lights to the world, our example is the best way to show what we are. I believe, too, there are enough things to draw our little ones away from the high spiritual plane our Master would have them attain without our taking them to such places as moving picture shows, and low theaters, where slangy phrases and useless jokes are in order.

The time is coming when we must cease idle and useless pleasures. We are to keep ourselves pure and unspotted from the vices of the world. We are partakers of the world when we travel in the world's way. We want to travel upward. Our Master is waiting, patiently waiting for us to come up higher. That has been the call for some time, and I pray that we will take greater pleasure in doing the things the Master will approve.

Oh, may we get to the end of ourselves and do God's way, and great and rich blessings will follow. The Lord wants to use us and there is something for each to do. May we examine ourselves and see wherein we err. I praise God for his mercy, love, and leniency to his children. I want to be his child and live uprightly before him.

I am hopeful in the work and wish the HERALD editors and readers every success.

Your sister in the gospel,

BERTIE WISE.

450 EAST AVENUE 28.

SWEET LAKE, LOUISIANA, July 28, 1912.

Saints' Herald: Brother Riley has been here and preached a few times for us. We surely were glad to have him come and preach for us as we believe he is a man of God. We were made stronger in the faith by his coming. He baptized one here, my sister, and I think the people have a better understanding of the true gospel than ever before. May God bless him wherever he goes to preach the gospel. From here he went to Eros, Louisiana, as there is a small branch there.

I ask the prayers of the Saints that we may have strength to overcome all evil and that we may be able to do some good in this world. We don't have any church privileges, but we hope to have some day where we can go to church every Lord's Day.
Yours in the faith,

W. A. HELMS.

LITTLETON, COLORADO.

The debate between Elders Russell and Holloway, and E. C. Fuqua, of the Church of Christ, held at Bellvue a short time ago, is being repeated at Boulder this week.

Sunday was a busy day with the Denver Saints. Four children were baptized in the morning, before Sunday school. The Sunday school was better attended than for some time, and the sacrament service was very interesting, the Spirit being present in a marked degree.

The four children baptized in the morning were confirmed, and a large congregation partook of the sacred emblems.

In the evening Elder J. W. Rushton was the speaker, taking for a text, "Other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

Elders Russell and Holloway have been holding services on the street at Boulder since the Bellvue debate; they report interested audiences.

Sister L. A. Schmutz, who has been unwell since her return from General Conference, is some better at this writing.

Bishop Bullard arrived from the West in company with Elder J. W. Rushton. They will remain in the city until next week, and then to Wray to the reunion, which promises to be the best meeting held for some time in the east end of the district.

Brother Rushton reports two new branches organized in the western part of the district on his way over.

Prospects for crops were never better in Colorado than this year.
E. F. SHUPE.

VALLEY RIVER, MANITOBA, July 28, 1912.

Editors Herald: There is no paper that I long for each week as I do for the HERALD. I like to hear from the Saints, also the sermons do me a lot of good. When the paper comes I just sit down and read it through. I haven't heard a sermon preached by a Latter Day Saint for over twenty years; neither have I seen one to know him in that time. I have regretted many a time leaving where there was a branch of Saints, as the happiest time I ever had was when I would join with God's people and sing: "Sweet the time, exceeding sweet, when the Saints together meet."

Saints can not be too thankful for this privilege. The last sermon I heard was by Elder J. B. Jarvis, of Scranton. I belonged to that branch. I would like to hear from any of the Saints who belong to that branch.

I would like to get Elder Evans's sermons. Where can I get them? I also want some tracts to distribute. There are no Latter Day Saints that I know of around here, and I have been in here for fifteen years. I have talked to lots of people around here and some have left here telling me if ever they found the Latter Day Saints where they were going they would go and be baptized. It has been so long since I was in a church that I get very lonesome, but I thank God that my faith in the latter day work has remained unchanged since I first obeyed the gospel. I know it is the truth.
Your brother in the faith,

W. McMILLAN.

MARSHALL, OHIO, August 1, 1912.

Editors Herald: The laborers are few in Ohio this time, but the calls for labor are many. Brethren R. C. Russell and N. L. Booker have done a splendid work near Wellston, Ohio. They have baptized twenty-four there and ordained three. I hear of thirty-eight in all being baptized in our district.

It is a discouraging feature in this district to have so few presiding men to feed the flock when they are gathered in. I was made sorry yesterday to get a letter from Belmont, Kentucky, informing me of the death of Brother William Dobson, who died on July 1. He leaves a widow and three little children. She was baptized two years ago. May God bless her and her little ones, is my prayer.

I am as ever for the triumph of Zion,

J. W. METCALF.

With the Indians.

We inclose herewith a number of the names and addresses of recent Lamanite converts. Our purpose in this is to give an opportunity for those who may desire to cooperate with us by sending them church literature, or by personal correspondence with them. It is desirable that we impress them with the real interest in their welfare, which we as a people have.

Distrust toward the white man has been sown in their hearts (as a race) and has grown many a harvest after its kind since the white man first offered peace and friendship to the Indians in one hand, and smote him with selfish treachery with the other. In our ministerial labors with them in Oklahoma it has taken a number of years and a toilsome effort to establish the confidence with them which we now enjoy.

Their confidence in us as a body of church people who have a blessed message, especially for their welfare, must be established. Those who have united with the church need to know the attitude of the membership toward them in gospel fellowship, that their zeal and influence for the blessing of their own race by the power of the restored gospel may be increased.

Mail to the Lamanite Saints named herein, addressed to Red Rock, Oklahoma, will reach them.

Mrs. Ralph Dent; she is a young mother whose husband has not yet united with the church, but he is a good man.

Mrs. Eliza J. Koshiway; a young mother, widowed by a deserter husband. Her baby boy was blessed in the church by the name of Amos Lamoni.

David Pettit, and Ada, his wife.

Pauline, Lula, and Frank Pettit; a young lady, a girl and a boy.

Joseph Jeans, his wife Korline, and son Edmore. Church Recorder please take note that these names are Jeans instead of James as we at first reported them, and pardon our error.

Brother Joseph Jeans is now an ordained priest. He preaches to his people and has baptized several. He does not speak English, but his daughter reads his mail to him and answers correspondence while he dictates.

Edward Tohee; a young married man of good deportment, but addicted to the use of "peota" or "muscal," an herb used by many of the Indians as a tea which gives "visions," etc.

It may be nearly as bad a habit as some of the white people's good sweet tobacco, yellow juice producing snuff, or strong black coffee.

In the Wild Bird family who were baptized July 14 last we have: Emma Wild Bird; Violet Wild Bird; Hazel Wild Bird,—all young ladies—our girls could interest them by an exchange of postal photos, perhaps. Then there is, Mary Wild Bird, who is the mother, and Jack Wild Bird, the father, who is not yet a member of the church, and is perhaps as wild in some ways as his name implies, but he is a shrewd man and a great fellow to read. Good literature, or personal letters to him in the missionary spirit will quite surely not be a waste of effort.

Trusting that some may see in these suggestions an open door for personal activity in this branch of the latter day work of the Lord, I am your brother,

JAS. E. YATES.

News from Missions

Midvale, Utah.

This is the day of all days here in Utah—"Immigration Day"—a day of jubilee and yearly observance throughout the State in commemoration of the 24th day of July, 1847, when Brigham Young and his little band of followers for the first time set their feet on Salt Lake Valley soil and by sunset had plowed and planted to potatoes about five acres of ground. To-day in their parade may be seen their old immigration wagons, adorned with camping outfits, handcarts loaded down with provisions, etc., pulled and lugged across mountain and dale, through sand and water and dust by men and women in their homemade harness. It is a sight that impresses the mind of man at this late day and refreshes the memory of them that participated. No doubt of this experience the half has never been told. It is no wonder that the few who have survived the long and tiresome trip, who were not left on the plains in a shallow, unmarked grave, to be unearthed and consumed by wild beasts, should have reason to ever remember their hardships and sorrows and at last be crowned with success in a seemingly barren valley of heath and sagebrush, now rich in horticulture, agriculture, etc., under the present watering system. I noticed that little, if any, attention was paid to Uncle Sam's Fourth of July or his boys. We wonder why.

Well, we arrived in the field of labor June 3, in company with Elders J. W. Rushton, R. Bullard, and William Newton, noble collaborators, and men of God. Stopped off at Salt Lake City and Ogden on our way to Malad City, Utah, where we attended the Utah district conference on the 8th and 9th, which was a time long to be remembered for spirituality and hospitality among the noble band of Saints there, and by my surprise at meeting a first cousin that I had never seen, a Mrs. J. F. Hendrickson, a noble woman.

I landed at Logan, Utah, on June 17, where I met Elder C. L. Olsen of the Brighamite church, whom I had not seen for upwards of forty-nine years, having parted near Florence, Nebraska, in 1863, and although we differ widely as to church relationship, I enjoyed my visit with him and his noble wife, sons, daughters, and cousins to the number of forty. They made my stay very pleasant. By invitations (by committee) I attended the old people's yearly feast day on June 19 in their new and commodious dance hall on the college grounds, where upwards of four hundred of the old folks sat down to as fine a free dinner as I have ever seen. The president of the college and bishop of the fourth ward did what they could to make me welcome, no doubt on account of my relatives, uncle, aunt, and family, who are highly honored in their church.

On the 24th I attended the Scandinavian yearly gathering; having been invited by the presiding elder, G. W. Lindquist, husband of a first cousin, who took a great interest in making me welcome to a free dinner, speaking, singing, racing, dancing, etc. I enjoyed the day and time as best I could. The most important part to me was the dinner, which included ice cream and mild drinks. I might state here that the Brighamite people, young and old, seem to enjoy their weekly dances, and like all other meetings, they are opened and closed with prayer. To my mind it is simply a great incubator to hatch polygamy and other vices among them, and any other people or place on the earth. However, I believe there are thousands of the people of Utah who are honest in their convictions as to that and other doctrines taught and practiced by them. The blind lead the blind and both of them fall into the ditch.

We have a few noble Saints in Logan, Sisters Condit, Carlson, Oleson, and M. C. Larsen, at whose hospitable home we held a few meetings on the 23d. Elder Abels and wife came up from Ogden and gave us a helping hand. He is a noble, earnest worker—bishop's agent and district secretary.

On July 2 I returned to Salt Lake City, where I assisted Elder A. M. Chase in tent and street work. He is a hard worker, always on the move. His family are a great help to him in the gospel work and they never seem to tire of doing good. I am at the above-mentioned place doing what little good I can to advance the work in this branch, making my home with Brother and Sister James Wardle, who are doing everything possible to make my stay and work pleasant. I shall move south from here. A Brighamite asked me yesterday if I did not find it hard picking here. I told him I did; just as they did in Missouri.

Anyone having relatives or friends that they wish to have me visit may write me at 772 East Fourth South Street, Salt Lake City, Utah. My home address is Tigris, Missouri.

In gospel bonds,

J. C. CHRESTENSEN.

July 24, 1912.

Colorado.

We are not "dead," neither do all "sleep" in Colorado. We may not have many baptisms to report, but we are busy all the same. Last fall Brother Holloway and the writer conducted a series of meetings at Columbine Schoolhouse, west of Eaton. The interest manifested by many aroused the ire of a reverend (?) gentleman by the name of McMillan, living at Greeley, Colorado, who was of the Reformed Presbyterian Church. Report was made to us of some very bitter accusations which he made against the work, and of course we asked him to come and defend his action. This man regarded our demand as a challenge and wrote his willingness to enter discussion. We, therefore, sent him regular church propositions with signature, asking him to sign the same. A letter soon came back, inclosing a copy of the propositions signed, but not by him nor a minister of his own church. To be brief, the man, after making uncalled for bitter attack, utterly refused to defend his action and the church he represented, but confessed his sins (?) over another man, and sent him to battle.

In E. C. Fuqua, of the Church of Christ, he found a willing victim, and this name was signed to the propositions when returned to us. So far as McMillan was concerned, he flatly refused to permit his church to be put on trial.

Later, while near Fort Collins, we learned that Mr. Fuqua was conducting meetings in Bellvue. We visited him. Result: Arrangements made for two debates. Date for the first was set for July 8, in their church at Bellvue, and it came off as per schedule. Brother Holloway met the champion (?) of sixty debates, and if anybody cares to know how he met him, drop a line to Mr. E. J. Williams, Bellvue, Colorado; he was the chairman, and a member of no church, so far as we know. Mr. Fuqua is an educated egotist. What he has never seen nor heard (from his manner) does not in reality exist. His anxiety to engage in public discussion led us to think he might make a strong fight, but his attack was, in many instances, almost puerile. His criticisms consisted principally of the following: Church organized eighteen hundred years too late; no living apostles now—can be none; spiritual gifts not needed; high priests or seventy not in the church; no word from God except in the Bible; the Inspired Translation a farce; the Book of Mormon hardly noticed; our work most dangerous in the world because we baptized the people before telling them what we believe.

While pretending to affirm the Church of Christ proposition, Mr. Fuqua was so closely pressed by his opponent that he sought to reduce the discussion to the level of a back-alley scrap by indulging in such dignified (?) terms as "ignoramus," "turkey buzzard," etc., and repeatedly charged his opponent with falsehood. His method was most unfair in many instances. More than once we objected to his manner and the chair sustained our protest and required him to do differently. It surely is not pleasant to sit and take some of their statements, but the audience could easily see.

Brother Holloway made good defense for the truth as comprehended by us, and I am of the opinion that Mr. Fuqua's congregation would have been glad could their "champion" have made a better defense against the vigorous attack made by his opponent. But to the credit of the gentleman we will say that we believe he made as good a defense for an indefensible thing as the average man could make. It consisted chiefly in a bubble of egotism, and in the judgment of some of the congregation, Brother Holloway succeeded in puncturing the bubble.

We are satisfied with the results, which means a more careful study of the Scriptures by the people who heard. In a former debate Brother Holloway lost his shoes, and in this one he lost his hat—some one stole it one night during the service.

During the discussion we were splendidly cared for at the home of Brother W. H. Broliar. My job of moderator was not so strenuous but that I was able to put in some time fishing; and say, boys, you should have seen some of the fine black bass that found the hook. Brother Holloway was the principal man at the debate, and to tell you the truth he was "Chief George" with the pole and line.

From here we went over to Columbine to arrange a place for debate number two. Directors closed the house. No place obtainable there, so we secured a place in this city. Next Monday night we are at it again. My turn this time. McMillan wrote me that Fuqua would give me the worst peeling I had ever had, so I thought I had better send word to my friends before it happened.

We are preaching on the street nights when it doesn't rain. All well with us, but expenses hard to meet. People may have money, but we don't see much proof.

F. A. RUSSELL.

BOULDER, COLORADO, August 2, 1912.

Salt Lake City, Utah.

We wish to let you know that we are still alive here, and doing what appears to us that we can. For the last month we have had a gospel tent up in the center of this city, and this, with a nightly open air service, the last at 7.30 and the tent service at 8.15 o'clock, and all the other duties of local work devolving on us here, has kept us more than usually busy.

In this work we have received material assistance from Brethren W. H. Kelley, president of the Twelve; J. C. Chrestensen, our district president here; J. W. Rushton (the only J. W. R.); Richard Bullard, of Independence Stake Bishopric; M. F. Gowell, of Provo; Charles S. Chase of our Utah force also, besides Brother H. Swenson and others of our local force, to say nothing of our family and others who have assisted in our music nightly.

We have taken the tent down now, did so yesterday, and from now will push the open air work a little more vigorously, if possible. We had a very interesting and well attended open air service here last night, but have had them every night lately, and for some time past, but not having to go to the tent could devote more time to that service last night.

The National Convention of the plumbers is in full sway here now, and many are in town and on the street that would not otherwise be here, and we try to give them the message.

We have lately moved our residence to 772 East Fourth South and at our last branch meeting the Saints voted to take their services to the same address; so after next Sunday we give up the hall that we have been occupying here, and the place of our services, as also our address, will be as just given, 772 East Fourth South Street.

We are pained to be obliged to chronicle the demise of another of our number here, Brother John W. Swenson. This brother came from Sweden for the gospel's sake, but did not find conditions in the church he had accepted as he expected, and he with his family, consisting of three daughters and one son, accepted the message of the Reorganization as it was brought to them by their son-in-law, Brother Oscar Johnston, now of Sweden, where he with his wife are engaged in the work of the gospel.

We said "his family," but there is one daughter who has not as yet been numbered with us, but her faith is here and some time she will put it to the test. The ones left to mourn this loss are the wife and mother, Sophia, three daughters, Sister Johnston just mentioned, Sister Ida Swenson, and Mrs. Englander, and Brother Hiram Swenson, the only son.

With best regards to all the readers of the HERALD we are sincerely, in the faith,

A. M. CHASE.

Winfield, Kansas.

It is but right to give as well as secure from the HERALD. The Lord is blessing our labors in this unworked part of Kansas above our expectations. There are quite a number of conditions to contend with, such as the lack of membership to help, also the newness of the field, which altogether make it difficult to get at the people. We have preached a great deal on the streets. All our efforts along this line have done much good in enlightening the people as to the claims of the church, and a great many friends are made in this way. There is a right way of preaching on the streets, as well as in buildings. One should live so that he will have the Spirit of the Lord, then he will teach the gospel in meekness and in harmony with the golden rule: "Do unto others as you would be done by." It pays every time.

I have had painful experiences in going to some places and finding that some of our brethren had preached more about the faults of other churches than they had about the love of God in sending the gospel in our day. When they left the people were farther away from the church than when they came, and so embittered against the Latter Day Saint preachers that they would not attend the meetings. There is no need of doing this, according to my way of looking at it. If they don't fancy my way of preaching when I do my best in the Spirit of love and good will towards my fellow men, the Lord will in due time send the right man, when the people are in condition for the truth. It is true we all have our own individuality in preaching, and we should be ourselves in preaching, but we should bring ourselves to God's way, "be wise servants," etc.

Well, I had better tell what we have done, I suppose, and let the faults of others alone. In the city of Wichita, Kansas, we have a nice little band of Saints with Brother E. L. Barraclough as president. He is a live wire and a good preacher for his experience. They are doing all they can to build up the work. I have felt from the first that we have needed a tent in the field and have prayed that the Lord would move on the minds of the Saints to help. Since coming here I have talked with the brethren and sisters about the matter. On last Sunday, at the home of Brother and Sister George Vickery, after a good prayer meeting the tent question was taken up and sixty-five dollars was raised. That was good for fifteen Saints, was it not? Brother Vickery, known to many in Plano, gave twenty dollars toward the tent. Others in the field have expressed their willingness to help, so we expect to start tent work in the near future.

Brother Roy F. Slye is doing fine work. Brother W. L. Conner has joined here and is going to preach the rest of the year. He is a fine young man, son of Brother Frank Conner, of Fairland, Oklahoma. It does me good to see the spirit these young men manifest. If they keep faithful they will do a great amount of good.

It is very dry in this country at present. Wheat was good, and if they get rain soon other crops will be quite good also. May the Lord bless his work in all the world.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

J. ARTHUR DAVIS.

WINFIELD, KANSAS, August 1, 1912.

Owensville, Indiana.

After a two-month sojourn in the Kentucky and Tennessee District we returned to the Southern Indiana District to-day. We attended the reunion of the lower district, which was a success, everything considered. Fourteen were baptized. The preaching was by J. A. Roberts, S. E. Dixon, W. S. Shupe, J. R. McClain, Fred Moser, and the writer. The reunion over, the ministry at once began to scatter out to their various posts of duty.

We have a prospect for a debate with Elder J. D. Tait, of the Campbellite faith. November is the time suggested; near Paris, the place.

The reunion of the Southern Indiana District begins August 31, at Wirt, Indiana. We hope the Saints will all make a special effort to be there. Let all come and bring the good Spirit with them; also their Bibles, Gospel Quarterlies, Hymnals, Zion's Praises, etc., and thus prepare for a profitable and enjoyable time.

We are now with Brother and Sister Thompson, holding meetings in a schoolhouse near by.

Let us all as Saints of God become consecrated to the work of God, doing all in our power for the advancement of his kingdom in these latter days.

H. E. MOLER.

But we've a page more glowing and more bright
On which our friendship and our love to write.
That these may never from the soul depart
We trust them to the memory of the heart.
There is no dimming, no effacement there;
Each new pulsation keeps the record clear.
Warm golden letters all the tablets fill,
Nor lose their luster till the heart stand still.
—Daniel Webster.

"All sorts of right lives are worth while. The world needs them all. It needs the upright, kind, uneducated man or woman just as much as it needs the upright, kind, educated one. It needs the brave invalid as much as the brave soldier. Wherever a man or woman is, his or her life, if lived rightly, counts, and will have its reward."

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 Sabotage - - - - - 778
 All About "The Hells" - - - - - 774
 "Our Church Courts" - - - - - 775
 Notes and Comments - - - - - 776
 HYMNS AND POEMS - - - - - 776
 ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 A Review of Mormonism Against Itself, Part 33,
 by S. W. L. Scott - - - - - 777
 The Power of Early Impressions, by J. C. Grainger - - - - - 781
 MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - - 786
 Sister M. E. George. - - - - -
 LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 786
 J. J. and R. A. Boswell—Mrs. O. Ballantyne—
 J. W. Quinly—J. A. Kettlewell—W. A. Smith
 —Mrs. E. G. Maxwell—W. H. Sheffer—J. S. and F. H. Reed—Bertie Wise—W. A. Helms
 —E. F. Shupe—W. McMillan—J. W. Metcalf
 —James E. Yates.
 NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 790
 J. C. Chrestensen—F. A. Russell—A. M. Chase
 —J. Arthur Davis—H. E. Moler.
 MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 793

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

He who has a pure and unselfish love for any one being in the universe has thereby a new life, new powers, new possibilities, and new perceptions of all; and the very universe itself is a new universe to him, as viewed from his new center of love and light.—H. Clay Trumbull.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

SASKATCHEWAN.—Conference convened at Disley, July 20, 1912, at 9.45 a. m., with T. J. Jordan in the chair. On motion J. W. Wight and G. T. Griffiths were chosen to preside, to be assisted by the district presidency. Motion prevailed that Elders Long, Mortimer, and Peterson act as credential committee. Speeches were called for by the presiding officer; responses were made by Brethren Gregory, Macgregor, and Griffiths. Report of credential committee adopted with necessary corrections. All General Conference appointees were given voice and vote. Motion prevailed that temporary chairman act as chairman of the conference and reunion. District secretary was chosen to act with power to choose assistant. Chairman authorized to appoint all committees and officers necessary. Following were appointed: Local deacons, ushers; Grace Beckman, press committee; Fred Gregory, chorister; Grace Beckman, organist; Elders Peterson, Long, and Macgregor, auditing committee; B. Whiting, J. Dobson, C. B. Smith, and William Osler, administering committee. Official reports read. Statistical reports as follows: Ribstone 56, gain 2; Michigan (new branch) 47; Disley 36; Betland 26; Edgerton 10, loss 7; Sunnyvale 26, gain 3; Minnesota 57, loss 1; Millet 41, gain 2; Zion's Hill 29, gain 7; Iowa 47, gain 3. Bishop's agent reported as follows: On hand last report, $998.71; receipts, $1,427.15; expenditures, $2,392.70; balance on hand (including note for $300), $333.16. Treasurer's report: On hand last report, $10.37; receipts, $140.56; expenditures, $152.15; balance due treasurer, $1.22. Audited and found correct. Motion prevailed that hereafter the bishop's agent report all items of moneys received and expended and names itemized. Secretary's bill of expenses read and ordered paid. J. R. Beckley presented bill of nine dollars paid missionaries; on motion the bill was allowed and ordered paid. Ira I. Benham presented a bill for eighteen dollars paid elders for expenses to elders' court. It was allowed and ordered paid. Moved that we adopt the recommendation of the Book of Rules, that all priests, teachers, and deacons be considered ex officio members of the conference. A substitute prevailed that our present form and action with reference to the delegate system be annulled and hereafter we meet en mass. Time and place of next conference left in the hands of the district presidency. Recommendation was received from the Edmonton Branch for conference there. Motion prevailed that the recommendation of the Lumsden and Bon Accord Branch to be disorganized be adopted and district president and secretary be empowered to grant letters of removal. Motion prevailed to sustain bishop's agent. Motion prevailed that the matter of the Saskatoon Branch (disorganized) be left in the hands of the district presidency. Resolved that we appoint a committee, consisting of minister in charge, assistant minister in charge, and district presidency, to draw up plans on a division of the district and report to the next conference. Sacrament service held on Sunday morning. Elder E. E. Long lectured on social purity on Sunday afternoon. The following preached during the conference: G. T. Griffiths, Fred Gregory, Daniel Macgregor, E. E. Long, J. C. Crabb, and J. W. Wight. Collections amounted to $24.30. Grace Beckman, secretary.

Conference Notices.

Circumstances over which we have no control have made it necessary to change the place of meeting of the Eastern Colorado district conference to Denver, September 14 and 15. Please take notice. E. F. Shupe, district president.

The West Virginia district conference will convene on August 31 and September 1, 1912, at Clarksburg, West Virginia. Let me know when you will come. If you should be missed at train take the depot car at depot and transfer to the Mount Clair or Bridgeport car and get off at Stealey Heights. Inquire for the church. Frank L. Shinn, secretary.

The annual conference of the Toronto, Ontario, District will be held at Warton, October 5 and 6, 1912. Let every branch aim to be largely represented at this conference and make it one grand time of blessing and advancement to all. Send credentials not later than September 30, to the secretary. Floralice Miller, secretary, Dunnville, Ontario, box 340.

The Independence stake conference will convene at Holden, Missouri, Saturday, September 14, at 10 a. m. At the last conference there was a resolution adopted requiring uniform blanks for ministry reports for the ministry in and out of quorums. The secretary of the stake will furnish the blank forms to the various branch secretaries where they can be secured. Those of the ministry not belonging to quorums should send their reports direct to the stake secretary, L. H. Haas, box 115, Independence, Missouri; and the quorum secretaries are requested to send their reports not later than ten days next preceding conference to the stake secretary. It is to be hoped that a full representation of the various branches will be in attendance at the conference. G. E. Harrington, stake president.

Convention Notices.

Zion's Religio-Literary Society of the Northern California District will meet in convention at Irvington, September 3, 1912, at 2 p. m., on the reunion grounds. A large attendance is hoped for. District locals, please send in your reports and credentials. Pauline O. Napier, district secretary, 990 1/2 Twenty-second Street, Sacramento, California.

Reunion Notices.

To those desiring to attend the reunion at Prospect Park, Moline, Illinois, August 16 to 25, for a few days only, there will be provisions made for their entertainment at a nominal cost. C. G. Dykes.

Having been selected as the committee on transportation for the Kirtland reunion, we take this opportunity to notify in all visitors that we are making ample arrangements for the conveyance of yourself and your baggage from Willoughby to Kirtland and return at the following rate: Twenty-five cents single fare, fifty cents return, valises and suitcases free, but trunks charged at the same rate as passengers. Last year there was an agreement made with an outside party to convey all passengers at the rates as herein stated, but when there was but one, or sometimes two or three, to be taken he taxed them fifty cents or seventy-five cents each. The committee will provide badges for all authorized to carry passengers. Upon these will be printed "Reunion Conveyance, by order of committee." When you reach Willoughby, if there is not a conveyance driven by a party bearing the above badge ready at the depot, please go to the phone and call for "the transportation committee," at Kirtland telephone office, and we will have an automobile or other vehicle go for you at once. R. C. Russell, Richard Baldwin, committee.

Two-Day Meetings.

Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana District will hold the following two-day meetings at the places mentioned: Belding, Michigan, August 17 and 18; Clear Lake, Indiana, August 31 and September 1. Come to Ray, Indiana, by way of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway, Fort Wayne branch. California, Michigan, September 7 and 8. Come to Ray, Indiana, by way of Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway. Sparta, Michigan, September 14 and 15. Come by way of the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway—committee will wear blue ribbons. It is expected that some of the ministry of the district will be at these meetings. Let all the Saints come who can and have a spiritual time long to be remembered and be encouraged in this battle for eternal life. G. A. Smith, district president; W. P. Buckley, district secretary.

There will be a two-day meeting held at Rose City, Michigan, August 24 and 25. Come and bring the Spirit with you, that we may worship God in Spirit and in truth, and he will surely bless us. Good speakers in attendance. George W. Burt, district president.

Little Sioux District Reunion at Magnolia September 6 to 15 Inclusive.

Write to the secretary now for prices of tents set up on the grounds, cots, bedsprings, transportation, meals, lodging, or service of any kind connected with the reunion. He will answer by return mail. It is best to arrange in advance for tents and board and lodging. We need at least a week's notice if we reserve you a tent. We can furnish you with any size or kind if time is given us. Meals will be furnished on the grounds adjoining the camp by the committee at cost. Board or lodging at the homes of Saints can also be secured for all who desire. Free straw and wood to all tenters, hay and grain at cost. Local and long distance telephone on the grounds. Automobile and carriage service to the depot. Grounds and assembly tent lighted by electricity and plenty of water on the grounds. Bishop R. C. Evans, Elder S. W. L. Scott, Heman C. Smith, and Sister M. A. Etzenhouser have promised to be with us, and Elder J. W. Wight and Patriarch Charles Derry have been invited and are expected.

Every effort will be made to make your stay agreeable and profitable. We believe that it will pay you to take your meals at the boarding house that you may enjoy the meetings and rest.

JAMES D. STUART, Secretary.

MAGNOLIA, IOWA.

Error.

In the Kewanee district conference report, as printed in HERALD for July 31, the report reads that "Charles L. Holmes was elected secretary and M. E. Gillin vice president." It should read, Charles L. Holmes, vice president; and Mary E. Gillin, secretary.

Died.

HENDERSON.—Sister Carmalona Henderson was born in Bandera, Texas, August 3, 1851; was united in marriage to Brother J. T. Henderson April 25, 1870. To this union were born five children. She was the daughter of Elder Lyman Wight. Came to Iowa when a child of eight years. She was baptized when a child into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ and was a noble Saint and mother-in-Israel, and remained true in the faith. This dear sister fell asleep in Jesus July 26, 1912, at her home in Moorhead, Iowa, at the age of 60 years, 11 months, and 19 days. She was always kind, gentle, and loving to all. Funeral at the Saints' church at Moorhead, Iowa, in charge of N. A. Ballantyne. Sermon by Elder W. A. Smith. Her loving spirit rests in the paradise of God, and her body lies in the Moorhead Cemetery to await the resurrection of the just.

BURGER.—Sister Eleanor Anne Sherman Burger, born May 11, 1851; married to Charles Burger in 1869; six children were born, three having died, leaving husband, one daughter, two sons, many relatives and friends to mourn. Sister Burger died at the home of her daughter, Detroit, Michigan, after a short illness, on July 28, 1912. Funeral service at the home of her son, John Burger, Saint Thomas, Ontario, Elder Arthur Allen preaching the sermon. She was laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery at Saint Thomas. She was highly esteemed, as was evidenced by the large number at the funeral.

Now, blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold and cold for the hot. It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even.—Cervantes.

A New Book of Sermons

The Gospel Messenger

BY ELDER J. S. ROTH

Everyone that knows Elder Roth—and many that do not—know that he is a very successful missionary and an excellent preacher. This book of his sermons—thirty-five of them—covers so wide a range of subjects and does it so thoroughly that you need it for your own information, and to lend to your investigating neighbor.

Elder Roth is always a preacher for the people; uses enough scripture to make his utterances authoritative, tells where to find it, yet doesn't tire the reader with too much monotony. Quotations and citations have been verified.

The autobiography of the author is a valuable feature of the book.

Through the generosity of Elder Roth we are enabled to offer this well-printed, nicely arranged, and well-bound book at the nominal sum of 75c. Order No. 248a.

Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa

Herald Publishing House

$100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best of security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

These Bonds will be ready to issue on the 1st of April, 1912.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further
Particulars

How to See Colorado and the Yellowstone

By all means plan your summer vacation to include Colorado. A week of that glorious air will do you good for a lifetime. And that wonderful sky! Even Italy can not match it for clear, deep, turquoise beauty. Then the mountains—they tower above you everywhere seeming to raise your spirit with them into the cool and restful cloudland. It's a new experience.

But you must also see the Yellowstone to complete your vacation. And it's easy if you take advantage of the reduced fare rates offered to summer tourists. Your ticket will take you through Colorado, the Regal Rockies and on to Salt Lake City and then swing you northward to the wonderful Yellowstone country. Neither pictures nor words can give you an idea of the beauty of the geysers, mud volcanoes, brilliantly colored rocks, mysterious rivers, thundering waterfalls, precipices, chasms, canons and the million-year old mountains you will see there. Your trip will give you a fresh enthusiasm.

The trip out and back is part of the fun, if you go on one of the Burlington's luxurious limiteds. It does not cost any more to go that way and there isn't any good reason why you shouldn't have the best there is.

I am employed by the Burlington Route to answer all your questions. I'll tell you the cost, the best places to see, send you our handsome folders, and even arrange to reserve a Pullman berth, if desired, if you'll tell me about when you would like to go. When you write me, a postal will do. L. F. Siltz, Ticket Agent, Burlington Route.

P. S. The date of the Pike's Peak Region annual "Shan Kive" and Summer Carnival has been set as August 27, 28 and 29. It will be held at Colorado Springs—Manitou, and will be larger and grander than ever. You ought to arrange to be there at that time, if possible.

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

Order No.
 141 cloth75c
 141½ leather$1.00
 174 flexible$1.50

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed.

No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25
 Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
 Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,
 Cloth, No. 198.50c
 Paper No. 19735c

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.
 Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
 No. 140, cloth50

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
 Lamoni Land and Loan Co,
 Lamoni, Iowa.

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.
 Order No. 241, cloth.....50

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
 No. 248a, cloth75

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
 Order No. 232, cloth.....75

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read book. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
 Order No. 248, cloth75

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestation of God working through his servant.
 No. 216, cloth75c

LAMONI RESIDENCE FOR SALE

Two blocks from Saints' Church; excellent location. Two-story frame, six rooms, pantry, closet, bay window, porches; cemented cellar, cement walks, outbuildings. Lot 99 x 198. South front. Well and cistern water. Address, R. S. Salyards, Lamoni, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, AUGUST 21, 1912

NUMBER 34

Editorial

THE FINISHED PRODUCT.

Every factory is judged by its finished product. Every tree is known by its ripened fruit. The test is both scriptural and scientific. Men and institutions and powers, natural and supernatural, must abide the same test.

There are two great powers at work in the world shaping the characters of men. One is evil; the other is good. One is of God; the other of the Devil. One works through the church, and many institutions and individuals not directly connected with the church; and everywhere, in the language of the Book of Mormon, "inviteth and enticeth to do good." The other works everywhere, as opportunity offers, through individuals and institutions, and everywhere "inviteth and enticeth to do evil." Both must be judged by the fully developed human characters that result from their influence and dominion.

Some people, it is true, seem to think that the Devil has gone out of business. He does not hold the prominent place in creeds that he used to occupy; but there is something to the poem which says:

Men don't believe in the Devil now as their fathers used to do.
They have forced the doors of the broadest creeds to let his majesty through;
There's not a print of his cloven hoof, or dart from his fiery bow,
On earth, in air, or anywhere,—for the world has voted it so!
But who is blinding the souls of men and making them willing slaves,
To wreck their lives on the rocks of sin and fill up bloody graves?
Who dogs the steps of the toiling saint? Who digs the pit for his feet?
Who sows the tares in the field of time wherever God sows the wheat?
The Devil was safely voted out, and, of course, the Devil is gone,
But honest men would like to know, Who carries his business on?

THE DEVIL IS A GOOD ADVERTISER.

If men think that Satan is not doing business at the same old stand and in the same old way they deceive themselves. They do not read the advertising section of the world. The Devil is a good advertiser. He advertises all the time, in city and village and country. He uses the most alluring and seductive devices, the saloon, the theater, the dance hall, the board of trade, music, song, color, art, motion and emotion, everything that will appeal to the senses of men and women and children.

He is a good promiser. He makes wonderful promises of joy and satisfaction, and always stipulates that no one will ever find out, and no harm will result. But promises must be judged by the way in which they are kept. The advertisement must be compared with the finished product.

We will use three illustrations from their allied forces through which evil works to-day and has worked for many centuries.

THE DRINK HABIT.

The Chicago Home Herald tells about a man who was riding on a street car. He chanced to notice an advertisement in one of the advertising spaces overhead, printed in bold, clear letters: "Pure rye whisky—Tones up the body. Brightens the intellect. Invigorates the soul."

There was the advertisement and the promise. But dropping his eyes involuntarily he saw on the seat directly under the advertisement the finished product: a drunken man, slouched down in the drunkard's habitual attitude; eyes bleared, face bloated, intellect befuddled, body weakened, soul destroyed. The finished product gave the lie to the advertisement. The two are not always brought together so closely that we can see and judge as readily as in this case; but if we keep our eyes open and look far enough we can always see the results of sin in whatever form it may present itself to solicit our patronage.

While on the streets of San Bernardino the other day we chanced to notice a saloon that bore the proud title: "The Senate." We asked the question of our companion: "Where is the House of Representatives?" I will tell you. You will find the representatives of the saloon in the gutters and jails and poorhouses, and in the potter's field. It is so everywhere.

Not long ago, while riding through town we noticed on a certain front porch a great, bloated, purple-faced wreck of humanity. Some days later a companion pointed to the same house and said: "That is the home of an old saloon keeper." We replied, "No need to tell us that. We have seen the man." There he was, the finished product of his own business. The only difference between him and his former customers was that while he drank he sold, so that now he sits upon his own front porch, a mass of misery, while they stand at other men's back doors begging for a "hand-out."

The drink shop is one factory that is ashamed of its own output. Habitual drunkards are not welcomed at the saloon. They are driven away or are secluded in back yards behind high board fences, lest the public see the finished product and judge thereby. The raw material goes in, a boy or a man, bright, active, strong, beloved by his family. After years or months the finished product comes out, a besotted, bestial drunkard, a disgrace to his family, a menace to society, spurned even by the thing that has made him what he is.

THE "SOCIAL EVIL."

Our next illustration is borrowed from a very ancient "sociologist" named Solomon, and refers to forms of vice through which the forces of evil have worked for centuries past.

For at the window of my house I looked through my casement, and beheld among the simple ones, I discerned among the youths a young man void of understanding, passing through the street near her corner; and he went the way to her house, in the twilight, in the evening, in the black and dark night; and, behold, there met him a woman with the attire of a harlot, and subtle of heart. (She is loud and stubborn; her feet abide not in her house; now is she without, now in the streets, and lieth in wait at every corner.) So she caught him, and kissed him, and with an impudent face said unto him, I have peace offerings with me; this day have I paid my vows. Therefore came I forth to meet thee, diligently to seek thy face, and I have found thee. I have decked my bed with coverings of tapestry, with carved works, with fine linen of Egypt. I have perfumed my bed with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon. Come, let us take our fill of love until the morning; let us solace ourselves with loves. For the goodman is not at home, he is gone a long journey; he hath taken a bag of money with him, and will come home at the day appointed.—Proverbs 7: 6-20.

There was the lure and the promise; music and light and beauty and laughter. There was to be great pleasure in sin. No one would ever know—the good man of the house was gone away, etc. It is the old story: splendid advertising, fine promises, the bringing to bear on man of the most subtle, powerful, and dangerous appeal—the appeal of sex to sensuality. But now note the result:

With her much fair speech she caused him to yield, with the flattering of her lips she forced him. He goeth after her straightway, as an ox goeth to the slaughter, or as a fool to the correction of the stocks; till a dart strike through his liver; as a bird hasteth to the snare, and knoweth not that it is for his life. Harken unto me now therefore, O ye children, and attend to the words of my mouth. Let not thy heart decline to her ways, go not astray in her paths. For she hath cast down many wounded; yea, many strong men have been slain by her. Her house is the way to hell, going down to the chambers of death.—Proverbs 7: 21-27.

The natural result of the social evil in all its forms is disease and death—death both natural and spiritual. Many strong men and many beautiful women have been wounded or slain by it. The finished product as it finds spiritual expression in blasted and lecherous souls, physical expression in hospital wards and on operating tables, and social expression in ruined homes and degenerate posterity, is too awful to look upon with equanimity; yet he who reads the advertisement should look beneath it for the finished product.

MONEY MADNESS; GREED FOR GAIN.

Our next illustration is taken from the teachings of the incomparable Master teacher. It deals with the lure of wealth through which evil has long worked:

And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth. And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully; and he thought within himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits? And he said, This will I do; I will pull down my barns and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits, and my goods. And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry.—Luke 12: 17-21, I. T.

There is the advertisement and the promise: long life, plenty, bigger barns, finer houses, better clothes, opportunity to eat and drink and be merry, ease, luxury, power. But let us hear the conclusion of such a life:

But God said unto him, Thou fool! This night thy soul shall be required of thee; then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided? So shall it be with him who layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.—Luke 12: 22, 23.

Everywhere evil appeals to man and women; offering money as the one supreme consideration, the universal solvent, the thing to be obtained at any sacrifice. In the service of Mammon men lie, and cheat, and steal, and murder. And what is the result? They do not get the pleasure that was promised them. Only misery and remorse remain. And at the end comes the summons: "Thou fool! This night thy soul shall be required of thee; then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?" They come face to face with the proposition: "What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

JOHN BARCLAY.

Two or three years ago William Allen White published a book called, A Certain Rich Man. In that book he describes a portrait of John Barclay, who was the typical modern rich man, in these words:

The real work that reveals the soul of the sinner, is shown in three features. . . . In the face are two of these features: the mouth, a hard, coarse, furtive mouth,—the mouth of a liar who is not polished . . . the forehead, full almost to bulging, so clean and white and naked . . . a poet's forehead, noble and full of dreams. . . . But the wonderful feature about the portrait is the right hand . . . a long, hard, hairy, hollow, grasping, relentless hand, full in the foreground and squarely in the light . . . with artistic fingers, and a thin, greedy palm indicated by the deep hump in the back. . . . It reaches out from the picture, with the light on the flesh tints, with the animal hair thick upon it, and with the curved, slender, tapering fingers cramped like a claw; and when one follows up the arm to the crouching body, the furtive mouth, the bold, shrewd eyes, and then sees that forehead full of visions, one sees in it more than John Barclay . . . more than America, more than Europe. It is the menace of civilization—the danger to the race from the domination of sheer intellect without moral restraint.

The author has described a sinister figure in the business world of to-day, the strong, intellectual, unscrupulous man who is serving the god of Mammon without reservation, recognizing no moral restraint, overriding the laws of good men and God, a menace to society, and in his completely developed character a curse to himself.

Opposed to this figure is one suggested in the Book of Mormon, which we will sketch a little further on.

WHEN IT IS FINISHED.

Degradation of character is not instantaneous. The power of evil does not turn out a finished product in a day. It warps, twists, and hammers, and bends a man into shape so gradually that perhaps he does not know the process through which he is passing. The little changes may not appear so bad, each viewed by itself. But the finished product! That is the thing by which we must judge corrupt influence. The finished product is a ruined and debauched man, selfish, sensual, wicked, desperate.

Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like.—Galatians 5: 19-21.

Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death.—James 1: 15.

Sow an act, and you reap a habit; sow a habit, and you reap a character; sow a character, and you reap a destiny.—Broadman.

When finally such a soul stands before God it will be judged by its deeds, that is true; but the thing that the man is, himself, will be sufficient to condemn him. What we are, that is what counts. What we are, no one can get away from that! The finished product before the judgment bar of reason condemns or justifies itself!

GOD ADVERTISES, TOO.

The Devil is a good advertiser; but God is also a good advertiser, and he makes many promises, all of which are unchangeable and true. He is working everywhere, primarily through his church, secondarily through many other agencies, to reach men and lead them to obey him. There are a few little electrical signs along Broadway in New York City, but God is still the great advertiser. Go out into the open any clear night and you may see thousands of miles of brilliantly blazing display advertisements, blue background of eternal, infinite space, studded with suns and planets and stars unnumbered, and all declaring the glory of God.

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork.—Psalm 19: 1.

One can not look at the stars without feeling an impulse to do better. We can not see or read of a brave or noble deed without feeling a desire to be brave and noble. We can not come in contact with a good man or woman without feeling an uplift of spirit. In all things and through all things good and true God announces himself to us at every turn. Last, but not least, his word is to be found to-day in almost every home in every civilized land, to be read freely by those who care to even feel after that which is higher; and from cover to cover the Bible is an invitation and a promise.

Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.—Matthew 11. 28-30.

And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely.—Revelation 22: 17.

GOD'S WORKSHOP THE WORLD; HIS FINISHING ROOM THE CHURCH.

We sometimes feel that God is confining his operations to the church; but it is said of Jesus that he is "the true light, which lighteneth every man that cometh into the world" (John 1: 9). God's workshop is the world; his working day lasts for all time. Call the roll of great and good men of all ages. Every one of them was great and good because he lived in harmony with some part of the teachings of Jesus. He may not have known the gospel in its fullness; but he lived by that which he knew. Some time these men will know the law in its fullness.

But if the world is God's workshop, the church is his finishing room: "The Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." Perfection must ultimately be found under gospel administration and in the church of Jesus Christ.

THE GREATEST MIRACLE.

We speak of the miracles of Jesus, and instantly we think how he healed the sick, calmed the waves on Galilee, yes, even raised the dead. But no one of these was his greatest miracle. His greatest miracle was wrought in the living. It was the transformation of human character. We see in Peter, at first a rough, profane fisherman, later the pure and noble apostle, who expounded the gospel of character building: "Add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge," and so on, until the finished product stands revealed,—a perfect Christian character. It is still a day of miracles. The greatest sign that follows the believer to-day is the power of the gospel to change him into a true, high-minded, noble, Christlike man.

THE NEW JOHN BARCLAY.

Let us now revert to the picture of John Barclay, the rich man. John Barclay was not primarily mistaken in seeking riches. His mistake was objective and in methods. It is wrong to seek riches as an end in themselves or as a means to a bad end, or by corrupt and cruel methods. But listen to the Book of Mormon philosophy:

But before ye seek for riches, seek ye the kingdom of God. And after ye have obtained hope in Christ, ye shall obtain riches, if ye seek them; and ye will seek them, for the intent to do good; to clothe the naked, and to feed the hungry, and to liberate the captive, and administer relief to the sick, and the afflicted.—Book of Jacob 2: 23, 24.

This suggests a new John Barclay, whose figure we will sketch. First we note the full, high forehead, the forehead of a poet and a dreamer; one who can dream great things, and has the intellectual power to make them come true; an intellect to build and organize. Next we note the mouth, a firm, straight mouth, the mouth of a man who tells the truth. Then there is the right hand, full in the foreground. But it is not an instrument with which to grasp, crush, acquire. It is a hand that can both acquire and distribute. A hand that can both accumulate and bless. And when we follow that arm up to that figure, and note those eyes, that mouth, that forehead full of visions, sheltering a brain, every faculty of which is consecrated to the service of God and humanity, we see the coming business man, the hope of the race, the finished product of applied Christianity in the business world, the man whose financial powers are placed on the altar side by side with the eloquence of the preacher, the man who will make cooperation as great a power as competition has hitherto been, the man foreshadowed in the Book of Mormon and destined sooner or later to materialize under gospel administration.

And so all through the work of God, as applied to men of varied abilities and characteristics, if we will we can see the glory of his work. The finished product speaks for itself. It is the strongest argument that can be put forward in defense of the forces that work for good. It accords with the advertisement; it fulfills the promise. Yet to us is not fully revealed all that may be included in the term "the finished product." We must use the words in a qualified sense, for it is written: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him." ELBERT A. SMITH.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE FIELD.

By letter received we learn that Brother Rees Jenkins has lately baptized three at Jerusalem, one of them a German scholar, who from Brother Jenkins's report and also from notice given him in a little paper, The Truth, published at Jerusalem, may be said to be something eccentric. But we are prepared to grant a proper degree of eccentricity in those whom the Lord calls, if they accept and obey when they hear the truth preached or read it, and evidence which accompanies divine truth comes to them.

We are called fanatics, enthusiasts, and erratic in religious judgment, and yet the witness of the truth of God is borne in upon our minds by virtue of our being willing to listen to the whisperings of the Spirit when they are vouchsafed to us.

These baptisms at Jerusalem are pleasant to hear for the further reason that it requires a journey to the River Jordan, a distance of some miles, to secure a proper place in which to administer the rite of immersion; and it is possible that the place where these baptisms have occurred was one of those places that were used when the thousands went out and "were baptized of Him in Jordan."

By letter from the other side of the world, but in a different direction, we learn that Brother Frederick G. Pitt, in his mission in Australia for the last year, had baptized twenty-one, had preached one hundred and fifty-five sermons, and had given two hundred and fifty blessings, showing that his ministrations have not only been acceptable, but that he has engaged in an active ministry.

He and his companion have been well received wherever they have been and the musical talents of his wife as musician and himself as singer have endeared them to the Saints wherever they have labored and ministered.

By the same source we learn that Brother Pitt will remain for a longer term in Australia and will likely return by way of the South Sea Islands and Honolulu, instead of returning by the eastern route.

Sister Ada, the wife of President Joseph Smith, lately returned from a visit to her mother at Toronto, Ontario. She reports meeting with some of the Saints who had been attendant upon their reunion near Cameron, and that they had a very enjoyable season, the reunion being quite a success. Five baptized. We also learn that it is expected that Bishop R. C. Evans will by invitation be present at a Western Iowa Reunion, which we are sure will be pleasing news to the ministry and Saints of that region.

A NEW NATIONAL POLITICAL PARTY.

On the 5th, 6th, and 7th of this month, (August, 1912,) a convention of delegates from the different States of the Union convened in the Coliseum at Chicago for the purpose of organizing a new national political party. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and a number of others who were members of the Republican Party were dissatisfied with the action of the Republican convention held at Chicago, which began on June 18, and closed on the evening of the 22d, at which convention William Howard Taft, the present incumbent of the office of President of the United States, was renominated as the candidate of the Republican Party for the incoming term.

Strenuous but unsuccessful efforts had been made on the part of Colonel Roosevelt and his supporters to secure the nomination at Chicago. The dissatisfaction caused by this failure to secure the nomination resulted in a call being made by these dissatisfied members of the old party for the appointment of delegates to meet at the date mentioned for the purpose of organizing a new national party, based upon certain principles which were held to be in advance of those held by the conservative element of the party, which have been termed reactionary.

Without any attempt to discuss any differences that there may be between the principles called by politicians "reactionary" and "progressive," we simply note that at this convention, at the close of three days consideration, during which time a national party organization, including a platform of principles, had been effected, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was nominated for the candidate for the presidency, and Hiram W. Johnson, governor of California, was chosen as candidate for the vice presidency, and the party name adopted. This party name is "The Progressive Party."

At the present writing it is understood that there are six parties in the field; i. e., the Republican, whose candidate for president is William Howard Taft; the Democratic, whose candidate for the presidency is Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey; the Socialist, whose candidate for the presidency is Eugene V. Debs; the Prohibition, whose candidate is Eugene Chafin; the Populist Party, the national committee of which lately met at Saint Louis in an effort to revive the old-time issue, but who at the present writing seem to be somewhat undetermined whether to put a full ticket in the field or not, and the new Progressive Party, whose candidate for the presidency is Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

Thus it will be seen that there is room for a choice by men of almost every shade of political belief. Two of the somewhat noted politicians of the younger school, Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, and James A. Garfield, of Ohio, were among the delegates and active workers of the new party movement at Chicago, but the majority of the delegates were duly chosen from among the Progressive elements in the different States.

The platforms of these different political associations called parties will afford the same opportunity for men of peculiar views that the range of choice for the leading officer of the Nation gives as regards the man. It will not be necessary for the HERALD either to publish these platforms or to declaim upon the issues. They are sufficiently diversified in their expressed aims and principles to give each voter an opportunity to make up his mind clearly which platform he will choose and which candidate he will support of his ballot at the polls in November.

Mark Antony, in his speech over the body of Julius Cæsar, in giving a reason to the populace why the senators assassinated him, said: "But Brutus says that Cæsar was ambitious," and in justice to Brutus he stated that Brutus was an honorable man and the senators who stood with him were honorable men. The question was asked by him, whether the ambition of Cæsar was a criminal one against the state. So also may that question now arise in regard to the various candidates for the office of president of the United States; whether such an allegation, "He is ambitious," should militate against any of them as a wrong or criminal impulse. It is the boast of the American Fourth of July orator, the schoolhouse politician, and the stump speaker in the times of active campaigning, that any boy born in the United States and remaining a citizen of the United States, may aspire to be president; and this statement is made with a view that such aspiration is an honorable one, that it is a desire upon the part of the individual to fill a responsible position among the administrative forces of the Nation. There are successive steps which may be made in this great aspiration and may begin with the lowest offices in the gift of the people, and citizens may justly aspire to each and every one of them, and may make an honorable effort to secure nomination and election, if methods are honorable, and it is fair to presume in the political conflict that none so far forget the integrity of citizenship as to resort to dishonorable means to secure either a nomination or an election.

Hence we conclude, respecting these several aspirants presented by nomination to the American voters as worthy of their ballots upon the coming election day, that each is worthy to be voted for to serve in the highest office within the gift of the people of the Republic.

Since writing the above we have learned that the People's Party have not yet chosen a candidate for the presidency, but that a convention will soon meet at Saint Louis to determine what the action of the party will be in this matter, and others of national party importance.

From the data in our reach the ages of the candidates now nominated may be judged by the following: Eugene V. Debs was born in 1855, Woodrow Wilson in 1856, William H. Taft in 1857, and Theodore Roosevelt in 1858. This puts these men in the category of those who are still in the active field of workers, not yet broken by age, and capable of giving good service.

EVIDENCE OF SUCCESS.

We learn from a friendly source that since writing our editorial upon the subject of the United Order of Enoch, the Board of Trustees have received some twenty-three hundred dollars for their work, which will be reported in due time.

We are pleased to note this, for the reason that we were quite fully persuaded by reflection that there would be found among the sixty-five thousand members of the church a sufficient number of those who when they are moved by a favorable consideration do not only say, "I will do thus and so," but acting upon their resolution of thought they at once do what their thought has suggested to them, upon the hypothesis that to the doers belongs the credit and crown of accomplishment.

We trust that the word of encouragement which this will bring to all will lead others to put aside some of that with which the Lord is blessing the land this year for the purpose of again emphasizing their determination to aid in a work which has been directed through the voice of revelation in accordance with our teaching of a belief in present and direct revelation as a principle of faith.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

President Elbert A. Smith, writing from Hermosa Beach, California, August 13, says: "Patriarch E. Keeler died very suddenly at this place this afternoon. His death has cast a gloom over the southern California reunion now in progress at Convention Park. Death was due to heart failure and occurred on the beach, where he with others had gone to bathe."

"OUR CHURCH COURTS."

The next Magazine Number of the HERALD will be called "Our Church Courts," and will appear September 18. As suggested by the name, it will consist of editorials and articles on matters pertaining to the different courts provided for in the law of the church.

"The judicial system of the church," by Elbert A. Smith.

"Leading rules of evidence," by I. A. Smith.

"Attitude of civil courts toward ecclesiastical courts in America," by S. A. Burgess.

"Form and functions of bishop's courts," by Joseph Roberts.

"Organization, jurisdiction, functions of stake high councils," by G. E. Harrington.

"The Standing High Council," by Robert M. Elvin.

"Questions and answers," by John Smith.

"Jurisdiction and trial before an elders' court," by Russell Archibald.

This number will be well illustrated and printed on good paper. Orders for extra copies should be sent in at an early date, so that they may be sent out with the regular issue. Price, five cents for single copies, fifty cents in dozen lots. Address all orders to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

Original Articles

GRADED LESSONS FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

BEGINNERS' COURSE; FOR AGES 3, 4, AND 5.

Aim of the course: To teach the little child of God, as a heavenly Father; help him know that the heavenly Father loves, cares for, and protects him; simple truths taught in words the child understands; parental love a means of explaining the heavenly Father's love.

THEMES OF LESSONS.

First year: The heavenly Father's care; thanksgiving for care; thanksgiving for God's best gift; love shown through care; the loving care of Jesus; God's care of life; our part in the care of flowers and birds; duty of obedience; love shown by prayer and praise; love shown by kindness in the family; love shown by kindness outside the family.

Second year: The heavenly Father's protection; thanksgiving for protection; thanksgiving for God's best gift; our heavenly Father's protection in nature; our Father's protection in caring for his children; Jesus teaching how to pray; Jesus the helper; God's gift of life; God's gift of sun, wind, and rain; children helping; friendly helpers.

Third year: Giving; the baby Jesus; the boy Jesus; the man Jesus; home life; reverence; repentance; forgiveness; prayer; kindness.

(These themes may not be taken up in the exact rotation as here given.)

PRIMARY COURSE; FOR AGES 6, 7, AND 8.

Aim of the course: To teach faith and obedience by telling stories from the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Church History.

THEMES OF THE LESSONS.

First year: Prayer; stories showing the efficacy of prayer; faith; repentance; the new life; the springtime in nature; baptism and the resurrection; laying on of hands; confirmation; blessing of children; healing of the sick; obedience; missionary work, as shown by stories from the Old Testament and stories of our day; God's gifts in all ages, physical, material, and spiritual; giving thanks for God's gifts, leading to Thanksgiving time; giving the tenth to the Lord; God's best gift, leading to Christmas.

Second year; aim: To illustrate the first principles of the gospel with stories from the New Testament. Themes of the lessons; same as those of the first year.

Third year; aim: To illustrate the first principles of the gospel with stories from the Old and New Testaments, the Book of Mormon, and Church History, with special emphasis on obedience.

THEMES OF THE LESSONS.

Same topics, the stories and illustrations differing from the preceding two years; in addition also the presentation of the gospel in all ages; Adam, Moses, Jesus, and in our day; endowment of the Spirit at Pentecost and at the dedication of the Kirtland Temple.

JUNIOR COURSE; FOR AGES 9, 10, AND 11.

Aim of the course: To give an outline of God's dealings with man as given in the successive chapters of the Bible, revealing gospel principles, graces, and gifts as they appear in the bible characters and descriptive visions of the word.

THEMES OF THE LESSONS.

The first two years are taken from the Old Testament, with references to the Book of Mormon, as they historically occur in the prophecy of Joseph, the scattering of Babel, and at the time of the captivity.

The third year, the themes are taken from the New Testament, with two or three lessons on latter day events; and conclude with the story of the resurrection, second coming of Christ, millennium, the new earth, and the holy city.

INTERMEDIATE COURSE; FOR AGES 12, 13, AND 14.

Aim of the course: To aid in character building, by presenting religious and moral truths, with a historical background; and to teach the child his duty in everyday life.

(In preceding grades, the lessons have been taught in story form. The children of this grade will study from the scriptural text.)

THEMES OF THE LESSONS.

First year: A year with the Old Testament; bible geography; bible history, chronologically arranged; biography; Book of Mormon used in connection with Old Testament history.

Second year: A year with the New Testament; the New Testament church; organization; practice and teachings; biographies; downfall of the church; correlate the rise and fall of the church in America.

Third year: Restoration of the gospel; the latter day gospel; principles; method and manner of founding the church; officers.

SENIOR COURSE; FOR AGES 15, 16, 17, AND UP.

Outline of the course; first year: The Hebrew prophets, with contemporaneous Jewish history.

Second year: The apostles and their writings.

Third year: Jewish history from the fall of Jerusalem to modern times, briefly sketched, for one quarter; the Christian church, same period, one quarter; the Christian church, its restoration and development (Latter Day Saint), two quarters.

The above is the complete course as outlined by the Lessons Committee. Information as to the Quarterlies or grading of schools in harmony with the above may be had from The Sunday School Exponent for October, 1912. If you are not a subscriber, drop a card at once to the Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, for a sample copy, and your name will be placed on the sample list.

Officers should begin early to regrade their schools according to the above course of study. Secretaries of schools will please let the publishing house know before November 1, 1912, how many of each Quarterly they will need. Otherwise, they may find the edition exhausted when they send in belated orders.

1. Senior grade: 6 cents each per quarter; 20 cents per year.

2. Intermediate grade: 4 cents per quarter; 12 cents per year.

3. Junior grade: 4 cents per quarter; 12 cents per year.

4. Primary grade: 4 cents per quarter; 12 cents per year.

5. Beginner grade: 5 cents per quarter; 15 cents per year.

Superintendents will give this matter prompt attention. How many does your school want?

PROPER APPEAL AND TRIAL BEFORE THE HIGH COUNCIL.

(Read by Elder V. M. Goodrich before Quorum of High Priests at the General Conference of 1912.)

As I understand it, a proper appeal and trial before the high council would be according to the law and rule of the church. From this viewpoint I will endeavor to write.

APPEAL.

In an appeal from the decision of a bishop's court, the party appellant should serve notice on the bishop presiding over the court rendering the decision at the time of the decision or within sixty days from the date thereof; using form number 19 as found in Court Procedure, which is as follows:

NOTICE OF APPEAL TO HIGH COUNCIL.

.....name vs.name;
Bishop;address.

Dear Brother: Please take notice that I have taken an appeal from the decision of the court over which you preside in the above case, to the high council. you are therefore respectfully requested within six months from the date of your decision therein, to file with the First Presidency a certified copy of all documents and papers in said case, together with copy of your minutes and decision. Signed,
, appellant.

Notice of appeal should at the same time be served on the President of the Church in the Secretary's office, using form number 20, which is as follows:

..... name vs. name.

To the First Presidency of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Dear Brethren: I desire to appeal from the decision of the bishop's court in the above case and ask a rehearing before the high council for the following reasons: Here the full and complete detail of each reason why and upon what you base an appeal, whether there were prejudice of the court, injustice, or that the decision was not in harmony with evidence and facts in the case, etc., and signed by the appellant in the case.

It should be borne in mind that the First Presidency is privileged to pass upon the merits or demerits in an appeal to the high council; and that it is highly important that good and sufficient reasons be assigned for an appeal, based on principle, errors, injustice, fraud, new evidence, facts, etc. No appeal should be resorted to by anyone excepting for the purpose of obtaining justice, truth, equity, and righteousness; that unity, good will, and brotherly love may prevail among all parties concerned.

It is well for us to remember that God is just and true, and that he has no respect of persons one above the other, and that he is very zealous of justice to his children; therefore he has provided for and constituted the high council, and says of it that it is the highest tribunal in the church of the living God, and the end of all controversy when a decision is rendered by it.

This court is privileged to a high degree of inspiration, so much so that where there is not sufficient written, regarding principles or doctrine, that the council may understand and be enabled to arrive at a just and true verdict in all cases, the president may inquire and obtain the mind and will of God for their benefit and instruction.

An important fact then should be understood and discerned by every person anticipating litigation in the courts of the "living God," viz, God will see to it that justice and equity will prevail at and in the last court of resort. No one should resort to the church tribunals for adjudication of difficulties, unless all other methods provided for in the law and church have failed of adjustment, after careful application of the same has been made.

When once a decision has been rendered by a bishop's court, and perchance the verdict is adverse to the truth and facts in the case, as you verily believe (for in no other case should an appeal be taken) and you honestly feel that you have and are suffering loss or wrong from such verdict, and are sure that you are not blinded by the spirit of wanting to "beat," "get even," or have your way, right or wrong, then an appeal may and should be taken to the high council.

It is to be understood that no specific form or words are necessarily vital in making an appeal: howbeit, system is important in all things, and is after the pattern of heaven, and should be conformed to; and inasmuch as the church has provided blank forms, we think it best that these should be used, hence these forms have been copied herein.

A copy of the notice served on the bishop should in all cases accompany the notice of appeal to the president, and in reality does form a part of the notice to him.

It is by law made the duty of the officers of any court to render willing assistance which they may be able to do, to anyone wishing to take an appeal from their decision.

TRIAL BEFORE THE HIGH COUNCIL.

When notice of appeal has been received by the First Presidency, it will be the privilege of that quorum to first examine and pass upon the merits of the case as to whether there is proper grounds for an appeal:

Having so determined, it will be the duty of the secretary of the First Presidency to serve notice on all parties concerned, giving date, place, and hour, when the case will be heard, using form number 21 for witnesses as follows:

SUBPOENA BEFORE HIGH COUNCIL.

Plaintiff.

vs.

Defendant.

To _____

Dear Brother: Please take notice, that the above case comes up for hearing at the next sitting of the high council, beginning on the day of A. D., at which time and place we shall expect you to attend and testify to the truth in said case, as thus it becomes all good Latter Day Saints to do. A failure to appear will render you liable for unchristianlike conduct. (Section 153, Rules of Order and Debate.)

Your brother in Christ, Signed

Secretary of the First Presidency.

When this council convenes to act upon any case, the twelve councilors shall determine whether the case is a complex one or not; if not, two councilors shall speak; if a difficult one, then four shall be appointed to speak, and if more complex, six may be appointed, but in no case shall more than six be appointed to speak. The speakers are determined by the twelve councilors casting lots numbering from one to twelve; the ones holding the even numbers shall speak on behalf of the defendant, and those holding the odd numbers shall speak on behalf of the plaintiff.

The accused in all cases has the right to one half of the council, to prevent insult or injustice; and the councilors appointed to speak before the council, are to present the case in its true light, after the evidence has been examined; each man speaking and presenting according to equity and justice.

In all cases the accuser and the accused shall have the privilege of speaking for themselves before the council, after the evidence has been heard and the councilors who have been appointed to speak shall have finished their remarks.

After the evidences are heard, the councilors, the accuser and the accused have spoken, the president of the council shall give his decision according to his understanding of the case, and submit the decision to the twelve councilors, and ask them to ratify the same by their vote. But if the remaining councilors who have not spoken, or any one of them, should discover a mistake or an error in the decision of the president, after hearing the evidence and pleadings impartially, they can manifest it, and the case shall have a rehearing, and if there is any additional light given, the decision shall be changed accordingly by the president; but if no additional light be obtained, the first decision shall stand by the majority vote of the council, who have power to determine the same.

In complex and difficult cases regarding principle or doctrine, and where sufficient is not written to the understanding of the council, the president is privileged to inquire of the Lord and receive a revelation or the mind of the Lord on the subject.

Letter Department

JOHNSONVILLE, ILLINOIS, July 17, 1912.

Dear Saints: While full of love and rejoicing I feel impressed to tell you of the goodness and mercy of God, which he has shown to us. On July 4 quite a number of those who are near and dear to me by the ties of nature came in for a holiday, in a quiet and pleasant way. The forenoon passed quietly, but by the time dinner was over I saw my strength was about gone; however, I said nothing, hoping for the best. Having planned to make ice cream, I went to get it ready for the freezer, when my heart gave way.

I had been afflicted and fastly failing for some weeks, and every day brought greater suffering to me until I was too weak to hold up any longer. I told my sister to call the doctor at once. He being engaged in another call could not get away, as he thought, for two hours. There was no other doctor to be had. My sufferings were so severe I asked my sister to pray for me, for I was too weak to stand such suffering very long. I soon felt I wanted to get alone to pray, so I asked the women to pray with me while I was out. I hoped to come in full of rejoicing and relieved of my suffering; but not so. Just as I closed my prayer God blessed me spiritually; a light shone around me and I understood it was to let me know he had recognized my prayers, but my sufferings were greater. My heart was beating so hard I could not walk without catching to things as I came into the room. I told my sister to call Brother Hilliard Henson. I really felt my time had come to say good-bye to the vain world. I advised the girls how I wanted them to live and for them not to grieve for me, as my sufferings were great here. I had not the least fear. I told them I would be past speaking when Brother Henson got there, but to have him administer to me just the same. I knew I was now beyond any earthly power. The doctor realized it when he came and was honest enough to confess it. If I understood him aright, he said I might be built up with medicine for two weeks, but I must not have my head raised from the pillow or even turn from the position in which I was then lying.

Notwithstanding my great suffering I was feeling strong spiritually, and could not resist advising the doctor how I would like to have him live, and reminded him how strong and firm his father had lived in the one faith. He begged me to save my breath for I needed all the strength I could get, and when I got stronger I could talk all day with him. He went out and told a neighbor that there was no earthly chance for my recovery; that my heart had simply worn out; but thank God there was a chance, but not through an earthly power. The chance was only through obedience to the laws and commandments of our merciful God.

Brother Henson got here about nine o'clock, just after I had a severe spell of suffering. While I was suffering so severely Brother and Sister Henson and my sister sang, "Lord, we come before thee now." I felt the Spirit approaching with great love and with power. The cramping and strangling for breath continued, and when he prayed before the administration, how sweet everything was. I was willing to leave it all to God. The thought came to me while he was pleading with God so beautifully in my behalf, how nicely he is filling his worthy father's place: Such a short time ago when his father, J. F. Henson, was ready to take his departure and said to him, "Hilliard, step into my shoes; fill my place; help to carry on the good work." How pleasing it was to me to see the young face before me to labor for Him, and the father had said, Take my place. How willingly he seemed to be doing his part, and I could so humbly look to God in double faith, and say, Oh, God, if it can be thy will, raise me up, for surely it will greatly comfort and strengthen the one you have recently called to the eldership, for we all know without thy blessing to me my moments are few. He soon closed his prayer and laid his hands on my head, and through the prayer of administration I was eased and my breath given me that I could talk, but my heart was still very bad. I knew I would have to be administered to again. I felt there was a greater blessing in store for me yet. Soon all went and my heart gave way again. Some were standing by me who know but little of the teachings of God's people, and are not members of any church. I could not talk to them, but one of them noticed that I wanted something, and she spoke to my husband and told him I wanted something. He asked if I wanted to be administered to again. I answered by a nod. While the hands of Brother Henson were again on my head I felt the Spirit come with more power than before. Every muscle was restored to its place; my heart was given its natural action; every pain left me and I heard angels singing, and instead of being left to suffer and fans going on both sides of me to give me breath, as he took his hands from my head all were compelled to see and witness—I was going to say, almost a raising from the dead. Oh, why can not the world see and accept the gospel?

I love the gospel better all the time, and my life is devoted to it. I would like to live and do more good in the gospel work, and ask the prayers of the Saints that I may ever be found faithful in the discharge of my duties. I also want to be a source of strength over my family. We have a little darling of four years intrusted to us and I want to raise him up to the age of accountability and see him become obedient to the gospel laws. He tells me that when he is eight years of age he is going to be baptized, and when he is larger and God calls him to preach he will baptize lots of big men. He is only a gift to us, but not by nature. He could not be made to realize that he ever had another mamma or papa. If possible, his only being a gift makes me love him more dearly.

There are many good things I would like to tell you. I pray that we may all be faithful to the covenant and meet in the beautiful land with all the faithful.

JENNIE MILNER.

UTE, IOWA, July 29, 1912.

Dear Herald: I wish to inform you and the many readers of your precious pages that I am still among the living, after a severe spell of sickness. The doctor said I would have to undergo a series of operations in order to regain my health, and then it would be doubtful whether or not I ever would get well; but glory be to God, when I was at the worst and all that could be done had been done except to operate; I had been administered to three times with but little result farther than a great spiritual blessing, the elders were called again about July 17, and from that date I have been growing stronger. Now I am able to do all my housework and care for the babies, and I am able to do some shoe cobbling, which I have done during the last week. I don't believe I will have to undergo any operation. I haven't taken a treatment or a dose of medicine for three weeks, aside from olive oil, which I take three times a day.

Your sister in the faith,

SADIE BURCH.

VALLEY CENTER, MICHIGAN, July 29, 1912.

Dear Saints: We are still engaged in the Master's work, and though our branch numbers only about thirty, I am glad to inform you they are all lively church workers and interested in this great cause. They are keeping things moving in the right direction to the extent that outsiders become interested in what the Saints are doing in this branch.

About two years ago we erected a church building here which was plenty large enough for our number but this summer it is much too small to accommodate our crowds. Our prayer service, which is held at ten o'clock Sunday mornings, is largely attended, which number includes all the members living in the branch and many outsiders; likewise the Sunday school, which occupies the hour following.

Your writer preaches at eight o'clock every Sunday evening to a well filled church of very attentive listeners. The Lord is blessing our labors and will continue to, so long as we continue to labor in the spirit of unity and love. By allowing ourselves to be led by God's Holy Spirit, working hand in hand one with another in unity, having that love which characterizes a true Saint of God, we then place ourselves in a position where our Master can and will be pleased to use us as instruments in his hands for the accomplishment of much good. We will then be able to discern the rapid growth of our branches. We will see them coming up higher as we Saints are so oftentimes admonished by our kind Father.

July 28 we had with us our genial district president, Brother William Grice, who is also a missionary in the district, and a part of the Marlette Branch, whose presence we enjoyed greatly. Our prayer service in the morning was very spiritual. The gifts were present about all the time. Our heavenly Father was pleased to speak words of comfort and cheer to us. He was pleased with our meeting together and said he had truly blessed his people, but had greater blessings in store for them if we but proved faithful and came up higher.

Are we doing this? "Let us awake to righteousness," and prepare for those blessings that await us. We can not afford to idle away our time in so great a work as this. I sometimes think we Saints do not comprehend the importance or sacredness of this great work, and as well our covenant with our God. There is hardly one of us who would break a covenant we might chance to make with our neighbors in an earthly transaction (which is proper), but did you ever for a moment stop and consider that our more abundant life, that everlasting life, depends entirely upon our keeping the covenant we made with God at the water's edge? when we agreed to take upon us the name of Jesus Christ and serve him throughout this short life. Let us not lose sight of this fact, dear Saints; it means a great deal to us.

I truly felt happy last Sunday when I led one precious soul into the waters of baptism and immersed her beneath the waves after the pattern of the pure Son of God, and I expect to baptize others in a short time who have given their names now.

I often think of the words revealed from our God wherein he said: "Unto honor have I called you; honor great as angels knew," and think how true they are. This is the most glorious work mankind can be engaged in. The happiest days of my life are when I am discharging my duties as his servant. While I have trials to pass through and temptations to overcome with the rest of you, I do not wish to murmur under them, for I learn our Savior was made perfect through suffering. I rejoice to know there is one who reigns and rules supreme, who is abundantly able to strengthen us to the extent that we shall be made conquerors over the Evil One, his powers and influences, if we but put our entire trust in him.

I am happy in the gospel because I know it is the power of God unto salvation, and I hope to prove true to my covenant with the God of the Saints and prove true to the gospel, that I may accomplish every aim and purpose God has designed I should. I wish to be so grounded in the gospel that I will be ready to make any sacrifice God may require at my hands, and do it cheerfully.

Having much room for improvement, I beg an interest in the prayers of the Saints that I, with the rest of you, may prepare myself while in this life, that when the Lord summons me from this life I may inherit that place mentioned by the Savior when he said: "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am there ye may be also."

Ever praying for the advancement of the cause and the welfare of all the Saints,
Your brother in the gospel,

H. E. C. MUIR.

BURLINGTON, IOWA, August 6, 1912.

Editors Saints' Herald: Each human being some time must feel their grasp upon life relaxing so far as it relates to this material world, and under those conditions can better sense the ever present reality, "the things which are seen are temporal." But with the recession of earthly life comes the ideal vision of a world pregnant with immortality, and where life will for ever endure, so we approach the future with unflinching trust that "the things which are not seen are eternal." The earthly is absorbed in the rising splendors of the heavenly.

I deeply appreciate the kind consideration of the church authorities in releasing me from the responsibility which my physical condition would not permit me to carry with credit either to the church or to myself. But with release comes sadness as well as rest. It is hard, very hard, to leave a people to whom you are attached by every gospel tie; a people whose every act toward us will be a pleasant memory. Our acquaintance with the Saints of Burlington, Iowa, will be an added gem to the treasury of happy experience and love. It is but another contribution to the assets of life, which enhances its value in its relation to the past, the present, and the future. These dear people will live in our memories and affections as enduring as conscious life, and as we contemplate the culmination of the gospel hope in the light of our own sublime philosophy we realize that "we without them can not be made perfect." We must sense the social power of the gospel in the development of a pure and holy life within us, the creation of a love for each other "as pure as the lilies"—an ideal as high as the heavens,—and the bands that bind true Christian hearts together will for ever endure beyond the grave. This is the social basis of the gospel of Christ.

The laws of consanguinity, as understood and applied here, find their true type in natural life; but the laws and conditions that will satisfy the awakened soul finds its ideal in Christ, the Savior of men, and the unity of the human race centers in Christ alone. "We shall be like Him." Forty-two years ago, when I first began to preach the gospel, my ideals were not as clear cut as they now are. To illustrate, I then saw in the near future a Zion whose opulence and glory would thrill the world, and whose power would awe the nations of the earth. The conception still remains, but the ways and means for its accomplishment have been greatly augmented.

Our right to membership in the heavenly family was determined by our baptismal certificate rather than by an holy and upright life, and our right to salvation had been fully secured by obedience to the first principles of the gospel. By obedience to these ceremonial rules we were supposed to have gained "a corner" on divine grace in human salvation. Through the years we have modified, revised, and reconstructed—not the principles of the gospel—but our conception of God's justice in its relationship to all mankind, and the interpretation of the whole plan of salvation in harmony with that conception. Universal justice is the highest expression of divine morality. My ceremonial salvation merged into a regenerated life of moral and spiritual beauty. First principles had led the way to a higher life, but unless the individual reached the life of personal righteousness and holiness through these divine avenues there could be no saving virtue in his act of formal obedience. Nay, the individual places himself under a responsibility that brings the greater condemnation if he fails to live up to the standard of his profession. The law of compensation is inexorable, "For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required." The man outside the church who is pursuing his moral ideal to higher conditions of life is much in advance of the man in the church whose life is a moral wilderness. A sound moral basis underlies all real Christian men and women, for outside of this state there exists every type of criminal life.

As I look across the years I appreciate how time has entrenched the doctrines of the restored gospel in my judgment and affections. The ideals of this faith—to me—are the best, its hope the largest, its justice the divinest, its philosophy the most rational, its divinity the most evident, and its principles applied the most practical, of all the religions extant. Its utility for the uplift of mankind is universal and race-wide. This glorious light illumines the courts above, shines out in divine splendor from the restored gospel in this world, and its radiant glow will penetrate the darkest recesses of the "underworld" in the interest of man's eternal salvation. Every principle of our holy religion is pregnant with universal hope and is a perennial inspiration to the soul in its upward movements toward the goal of a perfected life. The altruistic optimism of our faith stands out in the universe as God's great light in contrast with the man made theories of religion, whose withering touch annihilates divine justice and love, and whose rewards fill heaven with criminals and hell with philanthropists. Such systems are but so many libels upon God's truth when measured by his love, justice, and mercy. A strong writer, in summing up, says: "Collect the whole relevant theological literature of the Christian ages, from the birth of Tertullian to the death of Jonathan Edwards, strike the average pitch of its doctrinal temper, and you will get this result: That in the field of human souls Satan is the harvester, God the gleaner: hell receives the whole vintage in the winepress of damnation, heaven receives only a few straggling clusters plucked for salvation." It is beautiful to believe that the love of our infinite Father, and the brotherhood of man, will rise higher and higher in the scale of human perception, through the light of the gospel, until injustice and selfishness shall be driven from the globe, and the racewide kinship of human kind be the crowning glory in the constitution of human felicity.

To encourage others to start in the good way, and to help those already in the way, and to love the service, is but the outward expression of the divine love that dwells within. Every act of life should be considered in connection with our relationship to God. Our motives and deeds, will they bring honor to the church of God and reflect divine righteousness in us? Is the true interpretation of the gospel exhibited in the acts and motives of the individual? That is the test. The utility and saving power of the gospel finds its true expression alone in the affections and concrete deeds of life. A good Saint may be a good theologian; but a good theologian may not be a good Saint. Goodness in life and character transcends all else in its contribution to the moral and spiritual wealth of our world. Life, in fact, without Christian goodness is a menace to the interests of the human race.

Christian righteousness would transform our world into heaven; but without Christian righteousness transforms us we can not inherit the heavenly kingdom.

Our worth as a minister or member of the church of Christ should be measured, first and last, by the rule of personal integrity, and if we are deficient in this we are disqualified for true Christian service, whatever may be our culture or personal attainments. Shun everything that leads away from Christian life must be the one unswerving policy of the people of God. All other roads lead to death. The church can only succeed in its divine mission by using the elements provided in the moral and spiritual nature of the gospel. Gospel ideals must be maintained, enlarged, and intensified, until the church reaches the finality of its objective mission. Change in motive, principle, or purpose means apostasy. This has been the bane of the Christian church in this and other ages.

The Reorganization has advanced along ethical and practical lines in the last forty-two years as well as in the time before. This is seen in church legislation, as well as in practice. The tobacco habit has been discouraged and its use by most of the membership is practically a thing of the past. The church has legislated against the use of all intoxicants as beverages, and the Saints almost universally practice total abstinence and are found arrayed everywhere against the liquor traffic. In fact, no one is considered worthy of the name of Saint who does not abstain from the use of strong drink. No doubt but the financial law of the church is better understood to-day than ever before in this dispensation by the people of the church. There has been great advancement along these lines in my day. In this marked improvement the church is indebted to the men who have had charge of the financial department, as well as to our heavenly Father. The idea of a local Zion has taken on new vestments in the last forty-two years, and the outlook is favorable for the establishment of the real Zionistic conditions in the time to come. Instead of the church's compromising with the world's ways and thoughts, it has steadily moved upward in its legislative acts, and if it "will practice what it preaches" its success is assured. This conservation of the moral and spiritual forces of the church is in great measure due to the persistent teaching and example of the First Presidency. The names of Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair will ever live as typical of the highest ideals of ethical and spiritual life, and their examples will be an inspiration to all that will follow them in the great latter day work.

The church must ever stand for business honesty, for personal integrity in both its ministry and membership, for a practical service that exalts and ennobles human nature and stands as a true model of Christian practice to the world. Following these exalted ideals our future is assured.

F. M. COOPER.

914 SOUTH TENTH STREET.

PERRY, IOWA, August 8, 1912.

Editor Saints' Herald: Mr. and Mrs. Van Zimmerman, now of Bridgeport, Nebraska, who, though not yet members of Christ, are deeply interested and are showing forth fruits meet for repentance, request the prayers of the Saints that their babe may be healed, so that it may fully recover its eyesight.

The Saints at Perry, Iowa, where they formerly lived, will fast and pray for its recovery next Sunday, the 18th inst. Others are requested to fast with them.

Sincerely,

J. F. MINTUN.

SOLDIERS GROVE, WISCONSIN.

Dear Herald: Just a few lines to let you know that five precious souls were baptized yesterday, and several others expected to be baptized soon. Brother Goodenough was called away to Madison to administer to the sick and I am trying to hold the fort in spite of the efforts of R. B. Neal opposition, who have an agent here. Satan rages and the Saints rejoice because of the additions to the church.

Yours from the firing line and the battle ground, and still hopeful for the future,

LESTER WILDERMUTH.

Kentucky and Tennessee Reunion.

We hate to trouble you again so soon, but we have good news to relate, that you may rejoice with us.

Our reunion has just closed, which was the best reunion in the history of the Kentucky and Tennessee District.

The following speakers were with us: J. R. McClain, district president; H. E. Moler, submissionary in charge; Elders J. A. Roberts, Fred Moser, jr., W. S. Shupe, S. E. Dickson, of the local missionary force; also Brother Peter Cook, of Independence, Missouri.

The preaching throughout the reunion was fine. All the speakers enjoyed a splendid portion of the Holy Spirit; even the outsiders were made to exclaim, "They speak as men having authority," and "That was the best sermon I ever heard in my life."

Large crowds attended all the meetings and much interest was manifested, and we have reasons to believe that seed was sown that will bring forth much fruit in the future.

The prayer and testimony services were well attended and the Saints enjoyed the Spirit's presence.

On Thursday, Children's Day was observed. Many recitations and songs were rendered by the young people, which reflected credit on the youthful speakers. Some time was devoted to discussing the question, "How can we increase the interest in the Sunday school of the district?" Many timely and good suggestions were presented by the different speakers, which we trust may not be soon forgotten, but shall be put into practice, that the schools of this district may no longer be known only as having a "dead form" of work.

Saints, let us not neglect this great work; one or two can not do it all; every Latter Day Saint has a work to do, regardless of how small that work may be, it's going to be missed if left undone. Your work may be only to study your lesson and present yourself at church each Sunday, but if you do that much you will be doing more than some others, and you will in no wise lose your reward.

Another word just here; don't forget what you heard about the Religio. You may hear more later. Elder H. E. Moler delivered a lecture on the great subject of social purity that should prove a timely warning to young men and women, especially those of the church, and to parents as well.

On Friday afternoon seven little girls presented themselves for baptism, which was administered by the hands of our worthy young missionary, Fred Moser, jr.

We trust this will prove an encouragement to our brother, and that he may yet be able to realize that faithful labor is eventually rewarded.

Sunday afternoon at the close of the reunion, seven more precious souls were put beneath the liquid wave in obedience to the example left them by their Savior.

Elder J. A. Roberts, of Independence, did the baptizing. A number of children were blessed at different times during the reunion week. Several that were suffering in the flesh were restored to their wonted health, which caused a season of thanksgiving around the camp of Israel.

The reunion was held on the farm of Brother John F.

Hendrix, who deserves much credit for what he did and sacrificed to make the reunion a success.

May the protecting hand of Jehovah ever be over him and others who cared for the reunion as they did.

The best of feeling prevailed, and everything was a unit, nearly, throughout the encampment. All who attended left the grounds for their respective posts of duty, renewed in spirit, built up in the faith, and encouraged to press onward in the army of the Lord.

Hoping again to come together, at the end of another year's labor, to rejoice together in Israel's camp, and ever praying for the advancement of the gospel work,

LOUISE A. WALE.

Minnesota Reunion.

The Minnesota Reunion, held at Clitherall June 22 to 30, was one long to be remembered by those privileged to attend. The feeling seemed to predominate that it was the best reunion ever held in Minnesota. Even the visiting minister in general charge made the statement that, with the exception of the reunion at Lamoni last year, he never attended a better. While the outward manifestation of the gifts were enjoyed to some extent, and fully appreciated, the feature that seemed to mark the reunion as in advance of all previous ones, was the silent witness of the Spirit which caused general rejoicing, blessing each in the effort to discharge duty. While heretofore the young have not taken much part in the social services of gatherings of this kind in Minnesota, at this reunion they took an active part, even setting an example for older ones.

The preaching was mostly of a very high order, and was well received. Among those occupying the stand were Elders J. W. Wight, B. S. Lambkin, W. L. Christy, J. E. Wildermuth, Leonard Houghton, and Alonzo Whiting. Brother and Sister Christy, chorister and organist, contributed no small part to the success of the reunion, as the many who have been acquainted with them in other fields will readily appreciate. One adult and three children were baptized and confirmed on the last Sunday of the reunion.

We speak of one testimony in particular, as, taken in connection with circumstances, the history of the past, the voice of the Master at this reunion and elsewhere, and that which is written, it seems to have a peculiar significance to Minnesota Saints. At least I think so. A brother had borne his testimony as to how the Lord had blessed him in complying with the law of tithing. Afterwards Sister Christy related how, while the brother was bearing his testimony, her vision was quickened and she beheld as it were the hand of God outstretched toward the little company holding packages tied, representing gifts which he was willing and anxious to bestow upon his children who were faithful in the discharge of every duty. Afterwards in reading the prophecy through Brother Bullard, published in the Ensign, we found the same thought contained therein. And as the Lord spoke to the Saints through Brother Wight, they were admonished not to forget to do duty "in every line," and "in every department of his work." And as we remember the statement in section 70 of Doctrine and Covenants, that in consequence of failure to comply with the financial law, the abundance of the manifestations of the Spirit shall be withheld, and remember also the comments of missionaries to our field in times past, that they found these blessings manifested in Minnesota to a lesser degree than in other missions, can not we cull a significant lesson therefrom? As bishop's agent, let me say briefly, that out of a membership of nearly five hundred in the district, representing about one hundred families, only about fifty-three names found their way to the bishop's agent's book during the last year. There should be something like an average of about two wageearners for every family. Reader, are you one of the hundred and fifty who didn't, or one of the fifty-three who did? Further, since we have the present year three missionaries' families to care for, which with other incidental expense will require about a hundred dollars a month, are we going to leave the burden entirely upon the shoulders of the fifty-three, as we did last year? If we do, we may rest assured that the reward will go to the fifty-three for this year's labor, as it belongs to them for last year's effort. And remember, the packages, the gifts and blessings, are for those who do duty. We are aware that some sent directly to the Presiding Bishop, and they should be numbered with the fifty-three.

Perhaps one of the things that contributed to the success of the reunion was the fact that that peculiar canine quadruped, so often kept as pets by the Saints, known as the Grouch, was so conspicuous by its absence, or if present was quite closely muzzled.

Brother Joshua Carlile, of the patriarchs, was present, and besides assisting in the preaching of the word, ministered in his patriarchal office, giving about forty-seven blessings in all, a source of great strength and encouragement to the recipients.

Sister Altha Deam was also present in the interests of the auxiliary work, and considerable time was devoted to these departments.

It was decided to hold the next reunion conjointly with the North Dakota Saints, provided the North Dakota Saints agreed, otherwise it was to be at Clitherall again next year. We see from the report of the North Dakota reunion that they decided on the conjoint reunion, so that it is now assured—if we all take hold and work for it. And we will.

LEON A. GOULD, Secretary.

BEMIDJI, MINNESOTA, R. F. D. 1.

Ex-Senator Frank G. Cannon Makes Distinction.

While our tent services were in full blast at Farmington, Iowa, I announced from the platform one evening that I would lecture on Mormonism the following evening. I also printed my subject on a blackboard and hung it in the post office so that I might reach all possible. The evening came, the tent was filled, the parsons of the town were there. I gave a chart lecture, showing the rise of the church, the Brighamite apostasy, the Reorganization with its firm stand against polygamy and other abominations taught and practiced by the Mormons in Utah. Also that the Reorganization appointed a committee which appeared before Congress and departments of the Government at Washington the 1st of December, 1881, and the early months of 1882. The committee urged upon Congress to pass a law against polygamy, and it was passed, and amid all this, sectarianism was as silent as a graveyard. Our meetings at Farmington closed, the Chautauqua came on, and August 4 Ex-Senator Frank G. Cannon appeared on the platform to give a lecture on "The Modern Mormon Kingdom."

However, just before he went on the platform I was introduced to him by the platform manager and we engaged in a few minutes conversation. I kindly asked him to make a distinction between the Mormons and the Reorganization. He replied by saying that he failed to see why he should make a distinction between the two mentioned bodies any more than he should between the Mormons and the Methodists, or any other sect, and continued by saying that his speech would be directed to Joseph F. Smith and the present abominations in his kingdom. I argued that we as a people had done more against these abominations than all Protestantism combined, yet many continue to insist that we are all the same and that I thought it only justice that he should make the distinction. He replied that he thought his speech would be so plainly directed to Mormonism that all would know that he had not reference to us or from where we derived our authority.

Well, I give him credit for making the following statements: He showed that Joseph F. Smith had with other Mormons promised the Government that they would stop the practice of polygamy, but they broke their sacred vows and to-day are indulging in the abomination. He told the people that a man of that character could not be believed on oath. Then he continued by saying that the great boast of Joseph F. Smith is that polygamy was taught and practiced at Kirtland, Ohio, and Nauvoo, Illinois, "but," says Mr. Cannon, "the people of those days deny it." To my mind that should have been plain enough for a blind man to see, but many went away from the grounds saying we were all the same and some said they felt so sorry for us who were present, for we had to take such a whipping, notwithstanding we applauded him from beginning to end, and when at the close some resolutions were presented we, along with the rest, voted for them. I say such people have ears but hear not, eyes but see not, neither do they understand.

Paul said there would be people who would turn a deaf ear to the truth, but believe "a lie and be damned. Some would have refused to believe there is a difference if Cannon had plainly told them so. However, some were honest enough to come to me and say, "Well, as far as I could tell, you and Cannon seem to agree, as he vindicated many statements that we heard you make." Well, after all, we can console ourselves by seeing such has always been the case. Few there be who find the truth!

Hopefully,

O. R. MILLER.

A Few Thoughts on This Dark World.

In R. G. Ingersoll's "Mistakes of Moses," he quotes thus: "And God separated the light from the darkness," and added sarcastically, "We all know how light and darkness will get mixed." When I read the statement many years ago, before much light had got mixed with my darkness, I was highly amused, and thought it rather witty, but have since learned that by making that statement Colonel Ingersoll simply exposed his ignorance of light and darkness getting mixed, which is a daily recurring fact. It is written that when the earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon it, "God said, Let there be light, and there was light." And farther on we read that he, God, separated or divided the light from the darkness, but we are nowhere told that he removed the darkness. The light comes and goes, but the darkness remains. And does it get mixed? The writer holds that it does, just the same as clear water and muddy water will mix. Put a little thick, muddy water in a basin, tub, or reservoir anywhere, where there is room for much more clear water, and as you turn clear water upon it, it will become thinner, clearer, and lighter in color until you can see through it; and when sufficient clear water is mixed with it, the mud is not discernible, only making the whole a little bluish, or reddish, as the color of the earth may be; but it is all there.

So it is with the light and darkness of this world. When the sun withdraws his light, and the silvery rays of the moon are turned elsewhere, and clouds hide the stars, the earth is enveloped in darkness. At length the light of day begins to appear. The watcher sees only a faint ray of light in the eastern horizon, with darkness all about it. The light grows a little stronger every minute, and mixes with the black darkness until the whole assumes a gray appearance, and we call it "grand day." As the sun continues to rise, using our familiar term, the light becomes stronger and stronger, thinning the darkness in every part of the earth where the light reaches, until the darkness is not discernible to mortal eye. And we think it is just as light as can be, because we none of us know what the pure light is, except those to whom it has been revealed in vision; then words can scarcely be found to explain or represent it, only that it is very white, very clear, far beyond any light we have seen, and yet not dazzling. The light of the sun does not disperse the darkness, i. e., to send it away during his hours of reign; it simply thins it. The darkness is here all the time. As proof of this, shut up a room, put heavy curtains to the windows, that the light of the sun can not penetrate, and you have black darkness.

Perhaps this darkness is left to mix with the light to temper it to our weak eyesight, that can not see one moment ahead in the events of life. But in the celestial world, where there is "no darkness at all," the light can not be shut out. It is all light. Astronomers have claimed that this, our earth, is the only dark planet in the visible universe. In its revolution it gains a position once in twenty-four hours where the light of the sun shines upon it for twelve hours. But when the sunlight can not reach it, and the moon doth not appear, and the stars are hidden by heavy clouds, are not we, the inhabitants of this earth, in "outer darkness"? We grope in our darkness for a time, but do not despair, for we know that God will bring us into the light again. And so remote are we from the myriads of bodies or spheres of light that glisten in the canopy above that they look like little, shining specks. We gaze up at them from our dark habitation and wonder what they are. And so powerless are we here in our blindness that we can see only the past, and to the natural man he knows not what circumstances he is walking right into. It is no wonder the Psalmist cried out, "What is man; that thou art mindful of him, or the son of man, that thou visitest him?" But it is everything to us to know that the great King is mindful of us, and that the Son has and will again visit the inhabitants of this dark world, within whose inward parts (the bowels of the earth) is the great prisonhouse and the pit, with their occupants, and also the headquarters of the declared enemy of mankind, who does not practice staying at headquarters, but roams the earth at large.

And yet we call it our "beautiful world." And so it is, for the loving Father has provided much to cheer and comfort his wayward children while passing through their allotted time in this house of correction,—probationary state. And to those who will learn obedience, he grants a guardian angel to ever be with them to ward off all evil, and give them joy in this life until they shall pass from this dark sphere into the pure light where all is joy and peace. Shall we not all seek to be obedient?

The writer can attest to this imperfect light of earth, being once permitted in night vision to be near to Christ, even to lean against and converse with him, to feel the influence of divine presence that filled me with light, joy, and peace unutterable, and love refined. No jarring element within or without, doubts and fears for the time having passed away, giving place to a satisfied feeling that is not known in earth life. But when the Lord withdrew, and I opened my eyes upon the daylight, even that of what we call a glorious June morning, how different it looked! How thick and murky the light of that morning appeared to me. The air seemed to be imbued with a reddish hue, like slightly roily water, and the ground was unpleasantly coarse looking with its roughness and tiny rocks, and even human love that I had thought so sweet that heaven would be shorn of half its charms if such were not experienced there—now was void and unsatisfying, and I felt like crying because I was still on earth and must take up the role of life again, with its doubts, fears, and disappointments, and plod on.

Many years have passed since the above was first written. I thank my Lord and Master for all these blessed experiences, and only hope I may be worthy to meet him in the great hereafter and be satisfied.

E. B. B.

News from the Battle Field, Chetek, Wisconsin.

Between Brother Emsley Curtis and Elders John I. Aston and Lars Madison, of the Utah Church. The Utah elders came to our town declaring on the street that Joseph Smith the Martyr was a polygamist with four wives, and when asked if the Latter Day Saints in Chetek were of their church they answered, Yes. At this time I butted in and challenged them for a discussion. They accepted and I phoned to Brother Whiteaker and Brother McDowell; they phoned to get Brother Curtis at Ashland, as they could not come, and when we reached Brother Curtis we found him at the depot just ready to take train for Ada, Minnesota; but changed his course for Chetek.

On his arrival here he drew up church propositions, so as to discuss successorship, etc. We had five hundred bills struck, billed the town and country, announcing discussion to commence Wednesday, next day, at 7.45 p. m., two nights to be devoted to each proposition, time to be equally divided. The Reorganized Church, whose headquarters are at Lamoni, Iowa, and Independence, Missouri, to occupy the first two nights, Brother Curtis in the affirmative, and Elders Aston and Madison, of the Utah Church in the negative; next two nights vice versa.

Brother Curtis made a good defense of young Joseph, the President of the Reorganized Church, showing that he had been set apart by anointing and laying on of hands by his father and then ordained at time he took the presidency, by Elders Marks, Gurley, and Blair, as provided for in revelation of Doctrine and Covenants, which reads that his successor should be appointed by himself and come in at the gate, and be ordained, that you may not be deceived, etc. And the laws of the land both in Kirtland Temple and Temple Lot suits had fully established the legal successorship through young Joseph and the Reorganization.

Elder Madison asserted that those men who ordained young Joseph had lost their priesthood because they had apostatized and been cut off, all of which Brother Curtis refuted. We had a full house throughout, and good order. I acted as moderator for Brother Curtis and kept time.

In the second proposition Elder Madison, having felt his defeat so keenly in his first speech, began to refer to young Joseph. Brother Curtis called him to order. They opened up by reading the polygamist revelation as contained in their Book of Doctrine and Covenants. Brother Curtis showed the inconsistency of the idea of Joseph Smith giving such a revelation in the face of all that was written from God in the Doctrine and Covenants, also in Book of Mormon.

The Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants have been adopted by the church at Kirtland, Ohio, on the 17th of August, A. D. 1835, and for over thirteen years the church progressed, and was wonderfully blessed of the Lord under the one wife system. To think that as smart a man as Joseph Smith would approach the Lord in the face of all that was written and commence by saying, O Lord, show me thy servant wherein thou didst justify thy servants David and Solomon in having many wives and concubines. Certainly it is inconsistent, illogical, and foolish to accuse Joseph Smith of any such thing. And further, we read in said revelation that a man may have ten or more wives, and commit all manner of blasphemy; that is to say, steal, lie, commit adultery, take the name of the Lord in vain, get drunk, etc., yet if he abide in this covenant, being faithful to the end, he shall come forth in the first resurrection, and inherit eternal life. Further, it is stated in this polygamous revelation that Joseph Smith is the anointed of the Lord to hold this great key. Now Joseph Smith, having been assassinated and gone to heaven with the great key, it devolved upon our opponents to show when and where Brigham Young came in possession of the key, and unless they could it was clearly established that Brigham Young and his successors have no authority or power to officiate in such sealing. This they failed to do.

Brother Curtis said that he heard Brother Whitehead, who was Brother Joseph's private secretary, state in two general conferences that he saw and heard Brother Joseph Smith prophesy at two different times over Brigham Young's head that if this man leads the church he will lead it to hell.

Elder Madison said that if anyone thought they were all devils in Utah, to come and see. He said that such historians as Bancroft and others speak highly of Utah people, etc. Brother Curtis cited Jeremiah 17: 5, 6; 2 Peter 2: 10-14.

The Utah elder also said that some people accused them of teaching blood atonement in the Salt Lake temples, and that he, Elder Aston, had been through the temple, and stated that they taught no such things in the temple, and anyone who said they did was a liar, and emphasized it by pounding the pulpit. Brother Curtis said in answer that was easy for them to deny, as they had stated all sealing was done in their temple. They further stated that sealing and baptism for the discussion was ended that it was taught outside the temple. They further stated that sealing and baptism for the dead were the principal things practiced in the temple and that such men as John Wesley, Martin Luther, George Washington appear and demand baptisms for themselves in the spirit in the temple.

Brother Curtis showed that all such work was nothing more nor less than spiritualism. And the only proof they had advanced to show that Brigham Young was a successor of Joseph was when Brigham Young arose in the assembly at the time they were considering as to who should lead the church, after Joseph and Hyrum had been assassinated, and Brigham Young assumed the voice of Joseph, declaring his right, all of which showed that he was a deceitful usurper, as stated by Paul in 2 Corinthians 11: 13, 14, 15.

Elder Madison said that Christ was transfigured, hence Brigham Young's transfiguring was in harmony.

Brother Curtis replied, saying that when Christ was transfigured he still retained his identity, and a voice came from heaven declaring him to be the Son of God. No such voice was heard at Brigham Young's transformation, and it was contrary to all of God's creation to be so transformed as to lose their identity, but to hold and retain their identity, so the transgressor could be known. Brother Curtis showed that this sealing for eternity was only a free love system, as taught by spiritualism, and was born of lust. When Brigham Young transgressed the revelation in Book of Doctrine and Covenants, which says that a man shall love his wife with all his heart, and cleave unto her and none else, or lose the Spirit and deny the faith, all of which Brigham Young and others did, and when they felt it so keenly they all volunteered and baptized themselves over and were reconfirmed, showing thereby that they desired the return of the Spirit, which they had lost by not repenting and putting away their many wives; then last of all sought communication with the dead spirits, like the spiritualists.

Then Elder Madison boasted and read from Isaiah 2: 2, when the Lord's house was to be established in the last days in the tops of the mountains, and all people would flow unto it, etc. Brother Curtis read the first verse, showing that it applied to Judea and Jerusalem and not Salt Lake Valley.

But notwithstanding they had denied blood atonement, on the last night Elder Madison loudly proclaimed Adam God, and many gods. Brother Curtis answered by calling attention to ancient Israel, who were forbidden having any other gods before Him, etc. Also cited Paul in Ephesians 4, where it reads: "One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God who is the father of all, and in and through all." Elder Madison declared ancient Israel practiced blood atonement. Brother Curtis called attention, in Hebrews, where God found fault with the old covenant and took it out of the way because it could not make the comers perfect, notwithstanding all the shedding of blood of men and beasts. That back of Christ they looked forward to Christ, while we look back to Christ, as there is no other name given under heaven or among men whereby we can be saved, only by the shedding of Christ's blood. And the absurd idea that a man whose sins had been pardoned by water baptism and Christ's blood, could then commit such grievous sins that Christ's blood could not atone for him, but he could have his own blood spilled and thereby obtain pardon. Brother Curtis said it was a hellish doctrine and set the blood of Christ below the human blood.

Elder Madison said in his last speech he wished he had more time. Brother Curtis informed him he could have another week if he wanted it, but he said he thought it would be time wasted. They took the train next morning north; Brother Curtis told them that when any of their elders wanted further discussion to let him know and he would accommodate them, but they seemed to be fully satisfied.

Brother Leroy Colbert boarded and kept them free of charge while they were here.

Much more was said pro and con, but this will give the reader an idea of the battle and victory for the truth.

Elder Madison did all the debating for the Utah Church except one speech. He is a man of considerable ability, a good reader and a fluent speaker,—too bad he has not the truth.

The Saints are all feeling good and thankful to the good Lord for the victory.

The Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants were the standard of evidence; all other books and pamphlets to be received on their merits. J. A. MCGINNIS.

Extracts from Letters.

Sister Emma Basquin, Masonville, Iowa, writes: "I inclose a small amount to help somewhere; I wish it were more, but it is all I have. I have been saving to get some of the church books, but thought some others needed something else worse than I needed the books. I am trying by God's help to do the best under the circumstances. I want the Saints to pray for my little babe, who has been sick for some time, that if it be the will of God she may be restored to health, and that I may be given strength to care for her."

Our trials act as a thorn hedge to keep us in the good pasture; but our prosperity is a gap through which we go astray.—Spurgeon.

The sun and every vassal star

All space beyond the soar of angels' wings

Wait on His word; and yet he stays His car

For every sigh a contrite suppliant brings.—Keble.

Truth is quite beyond the reach of satire—there is so brave a simplicity in her that she can no more be made ridiculous than an oak or a pine.—Lowell.

The greatest of faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none.—Thomas Carlyle.

News from Missions

Papeete, Tahiti.

We all reached Tahiti again in safety, and the first glimpse we had of the high mountains was a welcome sight, I can assure you. After eleven days of water to the front of us, water to the rear of us, and water to the side of us, a sight of land, no matter how small in size, is gladly welcomed. When we started out, it was with the thought that it would take twelve days for the trip, but we got in just twenty-four hours ahead of schedule time, for which we were very thankful.

We had a very pleasant voyage, the sea was smooth, and the steamer was a steady one, with very little roll. We passed the Fourth of July aboard, but as it was an English vessel, there was no special celebration. The first class passengers had games and music, and also gave a show in the forward saloon. We had a congenial company of passengers, which made the journey less tedious. But notwithstanding the genial companions, smooth seas, and a steady vessel, we were glad enough to get on shore again, and meet with the native Saints, whose greetings of welcome, and cordial handshakes are not to be met with in many parts of the world. It was Sunday when we landed, and the eight o'clock preaching service was going on when we reached the missionary house, and after it was over the Saints came in to greet us. Little Turatahi was very shy, and did not make up with his race very readily. His parents were not in Tahiti at the time, but came in from Rairoa the next day. He could not understand them, neither could they understand what he was saying, which is not to be met with very often, a four year old child that can not speak the language of his parents. He did not remember them very well, but now, three weeks later, he seems to have come to a realization of who they are, and what they are to him. They are very proud of a son who has been to America, and met with the Prophet of the church, been in Zion, and within the sacred walls of the Kiriland Temple.

Everything in Tahiti looks about the same, the wall around Taronia is nearly completed, on three sides, which face the street, and there are more banana stalks growing on the lot set apart for the missionary house, eight large bunches are now opened out, and two are nearly ripe. We will share with any of you who get here in time.

We went out to visit with the branch in Tiona the second Sunday after we landed, where they prepared a feast for us. A big dish of "poe" was placed before us, and it tasted just as good as ever, and the water cocoanuts were just as refreshing as of old. The native Saints spread their banana leaves on the floor of the assembly house, where they ate, and finished, as usual, much before we did, and had their tablecloths all cleaned up before we had fairly started.

Alfred Sanford, our old standby in correcting our Tahitian for printing in the Orometia, has built himself a new house, and the view from the back porch, looking out over the sea toward the mountainous island of Moorea, can not be excelled, at least, that I have seen. On the inside of the reef, before us, the water is colored and tinted so delicately that it would try the artistic touch of a Rembrandt to portray it on canvas. Then across the channel are the rugged peaks of Moorea, than which there are none more magnificent. The following Sunday we were invited out to meet the "Pupu" people who had been cut off from the church, and they outdid themselves in entertaining us. They have their land all paid for now, and many of them are building new frame houses. Their land is under a high state of cultivation, for this country, and bananas, papayas, mangoes, and breadfruit are growing everywhere, and the whole place is in a flourishing condition, temporarily, at least.

We found Elder May busy with the printing work, and are trying to help him out a little, for there is much writing and printing to do. Elder Savage is in the low islands, where wife and I are expecting to go in a month or so. The large part of the Saints of the mission live in these islands, there being less than a hundred here in Tahiti. We will most likely be in the low islands until after next April conference, which is to be held in Hao, the most distant island upon which we have a branch, to which place we will work our way by easy stages.

I have a request to make of the different elders who have gospel charts, that they will send us copies of them, either large or small. If only small sketches are sent, we can enlarge them here; therefore, brethren, send them along, and help us out in this difficult mission.

From your brother in Christ,

JULY 26.

C. H. LAKE.

Brisbane, Queensland, Australia.

After a little more than a year in Australia we have finally completed our tour of the branches. The last one reached was the Brisbane Branch, where we have been laboring since the 14th of last month. I think we can say that our labors in this land, taken as a whole, have been prosperous and delightful. The last twelve months have certainly been the most active year of my ministry. In looking over my diary I find we have traveled over three thousand miles, including something more than five hundred miles by carriage. We have held revival services in nearly all the branches, preached 155 sermons, baptized 21, and given 250 blessings.

We began the year 1912 at New Castle, attending the district conference. There are two branches at this point, known as the Wallsend and Hamilton branches. We held revival services in both branches, with fairly good results. We spent some six weeks here, making our home most of the time with our genial brother, Bishop Lewis, where we were made welcome. At Hamilton we were kindly cared for by Brother and Sister J. Williams, jr., in their pleasant home. The weather was very warm while we were at Wallsend, which may account in part for my health failing me, and we accepted an invitation from Brother Nat Williams to accompany him and his mother and two sisters to the Blue Mountains. We spent nearly two weeks here, roaming about these beautiful hills and valleys, which are among the most beautiful we have ever seen, and returned to Sydney much improved in health.

February 26 we left for Tuncurry, on the little, flat-bottomed steamer Tuncurry. Though the weather was fine and the sea not as rough as we have seen it, this without any exception was the worst ride we have ever had on the ocean. Poor Rose broke her record for being a good sailor. She was very sick, so sick she seemed at times to hardly know where she was or what she was saying. Occasionally I heard her cry out, "Ma, ma," but no ma came, and then I heard her mumble something about, "If the Lord would only help her out of this she would never ask another favor." Though we have laughed often since at this experience, at the time it was no laughing matter. I was not exactly sick, but I felt somewhat miserable.

We finally reached Tuncurry the next afternoon, and were kindly cared for by Sister Wright. This has been the home of the missionaries for years. We shall long remember our pleasant stay at Sister Wright's. We held several services in their neat little church during our three weeks stay; also preached across the river in Forster to good audiences, also several times in private houses near by, with excellent interest and some baptisms.

We next went to Avalon, where we enjoyed some two weeks visit with Brother Sid and Sister Ina Wright. Sister Ina, it will be remembered, is the daughter of the late Patriarch Alexander Smith. It is something over twenty years since I last met Sister Ina in Independence. I was pleased indeed to see her looking so well and happy, with her family of ten children, in her pleasant home in the "bush." We preached in the little hall at Avalon. Several were baptized here by District President Elder Jones and by Elder Davis.

April 4 Elder Jones drove up in his two horse carriage and we accepted his kind invitation to take us to Bulahdellah, to take part in the reunion at that place. We enjoyed the ride through the bush—something like fifty miles, if my memory serves me, and arrived at our destination some time after dark, and were kindly cared for at the pleasant home of Brother and Sister Burdekin, next door to the church. The reunion was well attended, and a good spirit prevailed, and all seemed to enjoy it. Unlike our reunions, this was held in the church, instead of tents, but was none the less enjoyable. Of course we were kept very busy, but we were pleased to be of service and we enjoyed our work, all the more too, because it seemed to be so much appreciated. We remained here nearly three weeks, then set our faces toward Argents Hill, Numbucca River, more than two hundred miles distant through the bush. It was finally arranged that Rose and I should have the gospel horse, Tommy, and the two-wheeled sulky, Brother Robertson to accompany us on his bicycle. We both enjoyed this long ride through the bush. We should like to tell you of the many interesting incidents en route, but it would make our letter too long. Suffice it to say that on our way we visited Coolongolook, Tuncurry, Avalon, Taree, Ghinni Ghinni, Croki, Cooperook, Johns River, Moorlands, Laurieton, and Kempsey. At these places we visited the Saints and held meetings and gave blessings. At Laurieton we were made welcome at the pleasant home of Sisters Rodger, nieces of the late Glaud Rodger. Here we remained five days and preached several times in the hall with good interest. I preached once in the Moorlands church to a full house; splendid interest. At Laurieton I was taken quite ill for a day or two. I was feeling very poorly when we resumed our journey but gradually recovered. Soon after leaving Laurieton Elder Robertson's bicycle broke down, causing him to have to walk several miles, till it finally dawned upon my mind how I could fix it if I could get a piece of wire. We finally came to a wire fence with a loose wire. This I availed myself of, and though I had a "splitting headache" I soon had the bicycle in working order and we had no further trouble with it the rest of the journey.

We reached Argents Hill May 16, twenty-two days from the time we left Bulahdellah, and were made welcome at the home of Brother and Sister M. J. Ballard. We labored here about three weeks, and had a very enjoyable time. Our labors seemed to be very much appreciated, and we trust we did good.

We secured a two horse carriage and on the morning of June 5, in company with Elder Robertson, started for Grafton, the nearest railroad station, to take train for Brisbane, Queensland. This journey consumed seven days, as we were detained at Brother McLaughlin's, at Upper Corindi, over Saturday, Sunday, and Monday on account of the rain. On Sunday we administered the sacrament to Brother McLaughlin's family, who, although they have been members of the church a number of years, up to that time had never partaken of the Lord's Supper. Our journey through the bush enabled us to visit and administer the word of life to a number of these isolated Saints. We preached at a neighbor's house

Sunday afternoon. Tuesday morning it was still raining, but we decided to make a start, though we only had an open carriage, we were furnished with waterproof robes, with these we managed to keep ourselves fairly dry. It cleared up in the afternoon, and we reached Brother Rees Thomas's home just before dark that evening. Here we were made welcome. On the next morning a few friends assembled at Brother Thomas's house and Brother Robertson preached. The city of Grafton is located in a very beautiful part of the country, I think the best we have seen in Australia.

On Thursday evening we took train for Brisbane. We reached Lismore about 9.30. Here our train stopped for the night, and of course we had to do likewise. We had heard that there was one Saint living here, but we did not even know their name, so we put up at the Royal Hotel. We learned afterwards that there were several members in this city, some of whom were much disappointed when they learned that we had passed through without calling on them. But they were no more disappointed than we were. We left for Grafton on the 7.30 train next morning and reached our destination about 7.10 that evening, after a slow but very pleasant journey. Brother Barkus, president of the Brisbane Branch, met us at the station and we were soon comfortably domiciled in his pleasant home.

The Saints have a neat church. We have been holding a series of meetings, which have been fairly well attended in the main, though not quite as much interest is manifest as in some places where we have labored. We hope the day is not far distant when this place will receive more missionary help than it seems to have received in the past. This is a good field and one that would yield good fruit if properly worked.

We expect to complete our labors here this week and on Saturday begin to retrace our steps by taking steamer to Sydney and revisit some of the branches there and in the vicinity of Melbourne. We had intended to have continued on south till we had reached Fremantle, and there joined Elders Davis and Robertson, and towards the end of the year accompanied them home by way of Palestine, and revisited Jerusalem again. But "the powers that be" have directed otherwise, and we are asked to remain another year, and in the meantime to visit the South Sea Islands and Hawaii. We also expect to visit New Zealand, as that will be on our way and can be reached without extra expense.

One little incident that happened at Argents Hill may be worth mentioning, as, had it not been for the Lord's protecting care, it would have proved very serious. Returning home from meeting, the last night of our series, in ascending a very steep hill, our horse Tommy, just as he had reached within a few feet of the top, refused to proceed further and began backing down the hill. In spite of all I could do we went over the embankment and I thought surely the horse would fall over on us and we would all land at the foot of the hill in a heap. To make matters worse Rose conceived the idea of jumping out to seize the horse by the bit, but in the attempt, her feet caught in the sulky, in some way, and the next instant her body was hanging out of the sulky, her head nearly under the horse's heels, her hands clinging to the dashboard and the shafts. But in less time than it takes to tell it, we landed at the foot of the hill in safety. Rose had a few bruises on her body and the print of the horse's foot, near the waist line of her coat. It is wonderful how we escaped. To us this is another evidence of the Lord's protecting care. The cause of the trouble, we learned afterwards, was that Tommy had lost his collar, and in trying to draw the heavy load up the hill with only the iron hames was more than he could stand.

We are feeling well in the work; our health is better and we are much encouraged in every way. We hope to make our work here a success. If so, to God belongs all the praise.

F. G. PIRT.

ROZELLE, N. S. W., 623 Darling Street.

England.

We are pleased to say that there are still few who are interested in this latter day work. Brother May is doing his utmost to keep the work of God moving against much opposition from the outside. There is still much prejudice against the Mormons in this city, and when Anti-Mormon meetings are being held in different places, making quite a stir, there is a class of people who will not believe that we are not of the Utah Church. I am of the opinion that they have a purpose in this, that if they admitted we do not have any connection with that church their stock in trade would be gone, as they can not stand when it really comes to the gospel.

Brother May is holding meetings in Victoria Park every Sunday, except when he is called away by his official duty. Then there is an effort made by Brother J. Judd of Enfield, who is well adapted to open air work, and so the park work is kept going. Toward the close of last summer we had Brother Thomas Taylor, missionary in London, who ably assisted in the park work and made quite an impression. No doubt he will be with us again sometime before the summer is gone. I may say the meetings in the park are well attended. Very often we have the largest crowd, although sometimes rather stormy; but still we are sure the truth is being made known, but as to how many will receive it we do not know. I am glad to say this glorious work is before the public in such a way as I have never known before since my sojourn with the church.

One of the leading weekly papers (The People) has taken in hand the exposure of the Utah Church and through the efforts of Brother May this paper is giving our work the best showing possible. It has shown very clearly the difference between the two churches and has placed the cause of the trouble where it rightly belongs.

We are glad to have Brother and Sister May resident in London, as they are really devoted to the work, and we pray that God may bless them for all their labors. We can not say the work has grown, but we hope that before long some will enter, as there are several interested.

I ask the prayers of all the Saints in behalf of the work in this great city, for I can say it seems a very few indeed have any use for godliness. I hope for the ultimate triumph of God's work.

JOHN W. WORTH.

LONDON, ENGLAND, 53 Saint Thomas Road.

Illinois.

The fleeting of time reminds us of our remissness of duty, as it is some little time since we wrote to the columns of the SAINTS' HERALD. Our appreciation, however, for the blessings received in reading the letters of others is in no wise diminished, for our souls have been cheered so many times while reading the happy experiences of others, and not least amongst these have been a number from over the seas, including some of our brethren in the British Isles. We are still much interested in that mission, and the work in general in our native land. We do so much love to learn of the progress of our brethren and sisters over there. Many that contribute to the HERALD are personally known to us, but we see once in a while those whose names we are not familiar with, but we delight to hear from them all the same.

This writing finds me at Etherly, near Victoria. I was fortunate enough to secure the use of the Methodist church in this place, and so far our meetings are increasing in numbers, as well as in interest. Some had attended our series of meetings in Dahinda, which we closed just prior to coming to this place. We certainly felt blessed in our efforts there; as it appeared an opportune time for an ingathering; during our stay of two weeks, we led four precious souls, all adults, into the water, who are now rejoicing in the truth. Others are very near the kingdom. Elder Roy Hopkins was here visiting relatives, and helped in the services, which gave no little impetus to the cause. Brother B. J. Scott, of the Independence Stake Bishopric, made a remark to me in his office, just before I left home in May last, that he felt that the "boys," meaning the missionary force, would be wonderfully blessed in their labors this conference year, which has been fully vindicated I feel sure, in the experiences of many, if not all of the missionaries, as the reports go to show; fulfilling minutely the promise made by the Lord not very long ago, when he said, "The work now lying before the missionary quorums of the church is of such increased magnitude and importance—the field so white unto the harvest, and the need for laborers so great—that the twelve and the seventy under their direction, together with such high priests and elders as can travel and preach as missionaries, shall be free to wait upon their ministry in gospel work, leaving the branches and districts where organization is effected to the care and administration of the standing ministers, high priests, elders, priests, teachers, and deacons, so far as possible; thus freeing these spiritual authorities and leaving them at liberty to push the preaching of the word into the new fields now widening before them; in which work, if they will but now take counsel, saith the Spirit, they shall feel a peace and vigor of mind surpassing what they have enjoyed in the past."

As yet few have responded to our appeal in our pastoral in HERALD and Ensign of last May. To the isolated of the Kewanee District, are there not places in your locality where new openings could be made? If so, please let us hear from you. Our field address is 2130 Fifth Avenue, Moline, Illinois; home address, Independence, Missouri, where mail will always reach us.

May God bless and prosper all his Saints and the work everywhere, that all may live, love, and labor together, that the pure in heart may be gathered in one, under the divine blessing of our heavenly Father, is the wish and prayer of one still in the conflict,

Your brother in bonds,
JOSEPH ARBER.

ETHERLY, ILLINOIS, August 8.

A tribute to the women who went down to death with their husbands—suggested by Mrs. Isador Straus's devotion.

Perfect Love Casteth out all Fear.

As side by side they traveled through the years
Strong in a love that daily grew in power,
So they together faced their final hour
With hearts whose steadfast courage conquered fears;
Eager for life, yet dauntless volunteers
Among the ranks of death. So great deeds flower
From scenes of tragedy. So great souls tower
About the grave and bid us dry our tears!

And womanhood throughout the world must thrill
Before the glory of that sacrifice
To love and loyalty. The ready will

That chose to die rather than pay the price
For life, and thus upon its latest breath
Proved to mankind love's triumph over death!

—Anne P. L. Field.

News from Branches

Independence, Missouri.

An interesting item of news came recently to us, which is, that Doctor G. L. Harrington and wife are about to start for Vienna, Austria, where our gifted brother intends pursuing his medical studies for a year.

Sister Emma Criley is teaching in the Philadelphia summer vacation school, and will continue until September.

Sisters Mamie and Bertha Steele are enjoying a visit among relatives and friends in California. They started in June for the beautiful Yosemite Valley and regions round about, and also went to Catalina Island, a famous resort of those going to Los Angeles. They will soon return to pursue their vocations in Lamoni and Kansas City.

Sister Irma Shaver is now visiting friends at Lamoni, and just previous to her departure from home, her fair sister took to herself a life partner; and so our Sister Lila and husband have the kind wishes and congratulations of their many friends here.

Sister Ruby Short is at home again, preparing to enter upon her duties as a teacher in the public schools here, after her unwearied pursuit of a course of studies in the New York School of Art. By the way, a course of study in agriculture is to be added to the curriculum of our high school here; and the "germination of seeds," "the chemistry of the soil," and "the rotation of crops," are subjects to be taken up.

This season of the year is sure to bring a few visitors, and some also find it to their interest and welfare to leave for other places.

Sister Floyd and son from Jerusalem are at present making their home with Brother and Sister Gurwell at the Order of Enoch house, and our beloved sister, Mrs. Nellie Sargent, who has been constant for many years in her attendance at church services, is about to bid the Saints here farewell, and leave her pleasant home for a time, for that of her granddaughter, Miss Margaret Sargent, at Berkeley, California.

Another faithful sister, S. L. Weed, who also is alert in every good word and work is just now visiting a daughter residing in Wichita, Kansas.

In mentioning the names of these humble workers, we must not forget that of Sister Christian Weiler, who, like Martha and Dorcas of old, finds in the midst of many cares, time for the Master's work at home; and at our last business meeting a vote of thanks was tendered her for an offering of pure linen and fine handiwork, in the shape of a beautiful tablecloth to be used for the monthly sacrament service.

In the line of branch statistics, we have to record that the following named brethren have lately officiated in the sacred desk: Presidents Joseph and F. M. Smith, Elders George Jenkins, W. H. Garrett, and F. C. Smith; also Elder J. H. Haldeman of the Church of Christ addressed the Religious on last Friday night, the 9th inst.

The Sunday school has varied somewhat in attendance lately: for on the 28th ult. the seniors numbered 105; juniors, 101; first primary, 75; second primary, 133; and intermediate, 108; total, 700, which was less than the average, on account of unfavorable weather. And we note incidentally that muddy walking, in places, and little white shoes on dainty feet were out of harmony: but on the 4th inst. the attendance was 820, and on the 11th, 759. The weather, although humid, has been delightful all through August, thus far, with the exception of a terrific thunderstorm which occurred last Wednesday evening just as the Saints were going to prayer meeting; but, they say, there was a fair attendance, and those present were well repaid; and all was fair and all was bright when they went home. At the business meeting on the 5th about one hundred and fifty were present and besides a few matters of business, there were seven letters of removal granted, and six received.

We have a few blessings of little ones, also two deaths to record,—one occurring on July 23, that of the little two-year-old daughter of Brother and Sister McFadden; also the funeral of Sister Phoebe Earl was conducted on August 1, she having passed away on July 30 at the home of her mother, Sister Herman, at the age of forty-nine years.

Thus the busy days are filled with both sorrow and rejoicing, but "There is a voice in the summer gale

Which breathes among regions of bloom;
It tells of hopes unblighted yet,
And of hours the soul can ne'er forget."

ABBIE A. HORTON.

Saint Louis, Missouri.

A most encouraging and edifying spirit reigned at both of our last sacrament services. Brother John Davis read a poem full of admonition to the Saints at the service the first Sunday in July, which was given to him by the inspiration of the Spirit. The theme of our August service was, "Thy will be done," and "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord."

We have had three baptisms and confirmations since our last report. A promising young sister from Troy, Illinois, Sister Pierre, of Alton, Illinois, and Roland, the little son of Brother and Sister Watkins.

The dear little babe of Brother and Sister Joseph Bourgeret was blessed August 4, under the hands of Brethren Archibald and S. A. Burgess.

Brethren Archibald, Elliott, Burgess, and Trowbridge delivered the discourses during the past month and many good and encouraging words were given us.

Sister Noah Cooke was taken ill very suddenly recently. Special prayers at her request being offered for her at our sacramental prayer service, we are pleased to report that they were heard and answered by our loving Father.

As this is the vacation season our attendance at services is perceptibly diminished. At the present time the absent ones are the Parrish sisters, with their brother, who are rusticating on the Gasconade River; the Bourgeret sisters in Vosholl, Missouri; and the DeJong sisters, and Luella Balson, who are sojourning among the mountains in Colorado. Others have been away and returned and thus the summer goes, by those privileged to enjoy the beauties of God's creation.

Among the worshipers recently were Sister Joseph Smith, of Independence, Missouri, and Sister Davis, of California. Sister Davis was formerly Olive Taylor of Saint Louis.

ELIZABETH PATTERSON.

2739 GREER AVENUE.

For lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in the land.—Bible.

Thanks to the human heart, by which we live,
Thanks to its tenderness, its joys and fears,
To me the meanest flower that blows can give Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears.

—Longfellow.

Virtue is not left to stand alone. He who practices it will have neighbors.—Confucius.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

SHEFFIELD.—The twentieth annual conference of the Sheffield District was held at Sutton-in-Ashfield, July 13 and 14, 1912, convening at 7.15 p. m. with Charles Cousins in the chair. Officers for the conference were chosen as follows: W. H. Greenwood, president; assisted by Bishop May and Charles Cousins; G. W. Rallings and T. Cousins ushers, and G. H. Holmes chorister. Visiting Saints were given voice and vote. All officers' reports were read and accepted. Resolution was passed empowering the district presidency to procure tracts when necessary. Meeting for the Seventh Quorum of Elders was appointed for 9 a. m. Sunday. At 10.30 Sunday morning preaching by Bishop May. Fellowship meeting at 2.30 in charge of the presidency of the conference. Preaching at 6 by W. H. Greenwood. The report of the mission presidency to place Sutton-in-Ashfield Branch on the record was accepted. Sutton-in-Ashfield Branch was organized December 7, 1905, by W. H. Greenwood, and the following officers elected: Robert Rallings, president; Henry Taylor, priest; John Holmes, teacher; Henry Taylor, chorister; M. J. Rallings, secretary; G. W. Rallings, organist; R. Rallings, treasurer; Henry Taylor, collector; M. J. Rallings, financial secretary. Services were held in the public schools every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 3 and 6 p. m. Bible class held on Tuesday evening and fellowship meeting Thursday evening. Only Sunday services are held in the schools. This is the first time the Reorganized Church has been represented in Sutton-in-Ashfield. Treasurer's report was read and accepted. Resolution was passed that all general and local authorities be sustained. Resolution passed to thank the Saints for kindnesses shown to visiting Saints. Resolved that the holding of the next district conference be left in the hands of the district authorities. Adjourned to meet at call of the district presidency. Joseph Holmes, clerk.

Convention Minutes.

SASKATCHEWAN.—Sixth semiannual convention of the Zion's Religio-Literary Society of the Saskatchewan District was held in the schoolhouse at Disley, Saskatchewan, July 18, 1912. First meeting at 10.30 a. m., C. V. Smith presiding. Elders G. T. Griffiths and J. W. Wight were elected to preside, assisted by C. V. Smith, district president. There were short addresses on the study of the Book of Mormon; official reports were read and the auditing committee reported that a difference of $4.55 was found between the district treasurer's report and the delegate to the General Convention, everything else satisfactory. The district president was authorized to appoint a committee to examine the books and vouchers of the district treasurer and make such corrections as might be necessary and report at the next convention. It was resolved that the secretary's expenses to district convention be paid and an order for payment of the amount be forwarded at least ten days before the convening of the said convention. Report of delegate to General Convention was discussed, which shows an amount of six dollars still due. An order for the amount was ordered to be drawn on the treasurer. Election of officers resulted as follows: C. V. Smith, president, Regina; Saskatchewan; Lewis Anderson, assistant president, Vanscoy, Saskatchewan; Mae Williams, secretary-treasurer, Brookings, Saskatchewan; Sister W. E. Nelson, librarian, Sedley, Saskatchewan; Estelle Toovey, home department superintendent, Radville, Saskatchewan; William Osler, superintendent gospel literature bureau, Ribstone, Alberta. A parliamentary drill followed, presided over by J. W. Wight. Preaching was held in the evening by J. W. Wight. Adjourned to meet two days prior to the next district conference and at the same place. Mae Williams, secretary-treasurer.

Convention Notices.

The Eastern Colorado district Sunday school association will meet in Denver, Friday, September 13, at 10 a. m. Chapel at Speer Boulevard and Logan Street. Mrs. M. E. Everett, secretary.

The Sunday school convention of West Virginia District will meet at Clarksburg, August 31, 1912, at 10 a. m. Reports and a good representation from each Sunday school in the district are hoped for. Joseph Biggs, district superintendent, 404 Stealey Avenue, Clarksburg, West Virginia.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:

The Finished Product - - - - - 797

Good News from the Field - - - - - 800

A New National Political Party - - - - - 801

Evidence of Success - - - - - 802

Notes and Comments - - - - - 802

"Our Church Courts" - - - - - 802

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Graded Lessons for Sunday Schools - - - - - 802

Proper Appeal and Trial before the High Council, by V. M. Goodrich - - - - - 804

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 805

Jennie Milner—Sadie Burch—H. E. C. Muir—F. M. Cooper—J. F. Mintun—Lester Wildermuth—Louise A. Wale—Leon A. Gould—O. R. Miller—E. E. Burton—J. A. McGinnis—Extracts from Letters.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 812

C. H. Lake—F. G. Pitt—John W. Worth—Joseph Arber.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - - 815

Abbie A. Horton—Elizabeth Patterson.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 816

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us.

The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department.

Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.

Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

Since I must play the game of life, this is my prayer,
 Though I may lose, let me preserve a smiling face,
 Let me not scorn the weak who falter in the race;
 Let me be merciful—let me play fair.
 —Caroline Reynolds, in Los Angeles Graphic.

Reunion Notices.

The reunion of the Southwestern Texas District will be held, beginning August 23, and closing September 1. The ground has plenty of good shade and water; a good place for camping, situated near to what is known as the old shoe factory. Strangers coming in take South Flores street car, get off at 3427 South Flores, Jackson's grocery store, and there receive definite direction. We hope to have Apostle J. F. Curtis and a number of other able speakers with us. A good time expected. J. W. Morgan, district president.

Notice to the Quorum of High Priests.

To the Quorum of High Priests, Greeting: This is to give notice that on or about the time you shall be allowed to read this, you should be in receipt of the H. P. Annual of 1912, and if you fail to receive it within a reasonable time and will write me, I will mail you another copy.

If you have changed your address since you reported and have not informed me of that change, it is possible that you will be missed when the Annual is sent to your old address.

Your fellow servant,
 ROBERT M. ELVIN, Secretary.
 LAMONI, IOWA, August 16, 1912.

Two-Day Meetings.

A two-day meeting will be held in the Northern Michigan District September 14 and 15, at Wilmot Township, five and one half miles northeast of Vanderbilt on the Michigan Central Railroad. Those coming from the south will be met at Vanderbilt; those from the north at Wolverine. C. N. Burtch, secretary.

There will be a two-day meeting at Bay City, Michigan, September 7 and 8. Everybody invited. Good speakers will be in attendance. Geo. W. Burt, district president.

In Response to Our Call.

Since issuing our call on July 17, the friends of the United Order of Enoch have contributed to the funds of the order by donation $376.50, and to apply on the purchase of lots in the order's tract, $658.48. Bishop E. L. Kelley has also received according to report to the order, $1,296.36, which has not yet reached the coffers of the order, but we trust will in due time.

We desire to take this means of expressing our appreciation and thanks for the assistance thus rendered by those who have so cheerfully answered to the call for funds made by us. We trust that the work will not stop here, but that contributions will continue to come into the hands of the treasurer until the United Order of Enoch shall be in condition to more fully perform the mission to which it has been called in caring for the poor and needy of the church.

The articles of association and by-laws of the order to which the Board of Trustees is held to strict account by the laws of the land, will not permit that the moneys of the order shall be otherwise distributed than for benevolent purposes. No one, then, need hesitate to contribute because of any fear of the funds being used for other than the purposes for which the order has been established.

Those who have contributed have given from fifty cents to one hundred dollars; thus it is seen that no one is barred from helping in this good work. Send in whatever you may have to spare for benevolent purposes, and the treasurer, Richard Bullard, will send you a receipt. The order is badly in need of funds at the present time, and any amount you may be able to give will be appreciated. Can not we have a few more of those hundred dollar checks that some of the Saints have been favoring us with? They look very fine to the Board of Trustees. Of course if you can not send a hundred, send fifty, twenty-five, ten, five, or one; whatever you feel that you can spare.

Notice.

CHANGE OF FIELDS AND MISSIONARY APPOINTMENT.

Believing it to be for the best interests of all concerned, Brethren Burton L. McKim and William Shakespeare are hereby transferred from their present field, Manitoba, Canada, the first to the Gallands Grove District, Iowa, and the latter to North Dakota.

Brother J. A. Beckman is appointed to labor in the Saskatchewan District in lieu of L. G. Wood, released at his own request because of necessity to look after his farm.

G. T. GRIFFITHS,
 J. W. WIGHT,
Missionaries in charge.

Brother Fred Moser, jr., is hereby transferred from Alberta, Canada, to the Southern Indiana District.

J. W. WIGHT,
 R. C. RUSSELL,
Missionaries in charge.

The First Presidency concurs in above changes and appointments.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary.

All remittances should be sent to Richard Bullard, L. B. 115, Independence, Missouri, as he is the treasurer of the Board of Trustees.

W. R. DEXTER,
MARK H. SIEGFRIED,
By order of the Board of Trustees.

Died.

SKINNER.—Sweet little Amber May, daughter of Brother and Sister Clarence Skinner, was gently and lovingly laid to rest in Rose Hill Cemetery, August 7, 1912, aged three months and four days. Memorial services were held at the Lamoni residence of the parents. Elder John Smith was in charge and offered prayer. Elder J. R. Lambert read a scripture lesson and delivered a short address. "For of such is the kingdom of heaven."—Jesus.

DUNCAN.—Jasper N. Duncan passed away on July 9, 1912, at his home in Denver, Colorado. Brother Duncan was born August 31, 1860, at Mirable, Missouri. He was baptized and confirmed a member of the church at Saint Joseph, Missouri, December 11, 1897. Was ordained a priest on May 22, 1901, at Stewartville, Missouri. The funeral services were held from the Saints' church in Denver. Brother Duncan had requested that Elder T. B. Nerren, whom he had baptized, preach the sermon; also that the hymn, "Oh, for a faith that will not shrink," and "Abide with me," be sung. Our Brother Duncan was resigned and ready to go. One of his closing testimonies was, "The gospel is a good thing to live by, and it is certainly a good thing to die by." He leaves a wife and two sisters. How good it is to know that in our lives "There is no 'finis' at the end of volume one, nor yet of volume two. Always to be continued, never to be concluded, are the life and love that are rooted in Jesus Christ."

A New Book of Sermons

The Gospel Messenger

BY ELDER J. S. ROTH

Everyone that knows Elder Roth—and many that do not—know that he is a very successful missionary and an excellent preacher. This book of his sermons—thirty-five of them—covers so wide a range of subjects and does it so thoroughly that you need it for your own information, and to lend to your investigating neighbor.

Elder Roth is always a preacher for the people; uses enough scripture to make his utterances authoritative, tells where to find it, yet doesn't tire the reader with too much monotony. Quotations and citations have been verified.

The autobiography of the author is a valuable feature of the book.

Through the generosity of Elder Roth we are enabled to offer this well-printed, nicely arranged, and well-bound book at the nominal sum of 75c.

Order No. 248a.

Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa

HILDEBRAND.—Sister Violet Hughes Hildebrand, born June 29, 1885, at Hackney, England, died August 12, 1912, in Independence, Missouri. Miss Violet Hughes became a member of the Reorganized Church, baptized by Elders William Newton and William Bradshaw, June 6, 1907. In 1908 she came to Independence. Was married to Mr. Lyle Hildebrand, October 7, 1910, at Walsenburg, Colorado. Sister Hughes was an earnest and interested worker with the young people; an efficient helper as a member of the choir, and highly esteemed by her associates. She leaves to mourn, her husband, a son eight months old, many acquaintances and friends in Independence, and relatives and friends in England. Funeral from the Saints' church, Independence, August 14, in charge of Brethren G. E. Harrington, W. H. Garrett, and M. H. Bond. Sermon by E. L. Kelley.

A New Book

has just been issued, entitled

Doctrines and Dogmas of Utah Mormonism

By Elder J. D. Stead

THERE ARE REASONS for publishing this book.

(1) The only way to render a JUST judgment is to know the FACTS.

(2) To get the FACTS don't go to the enemies of the Utah church. This is not fair nor just; go to the authorized publications of this church, and let them tell you what they believe.

(3) You can not get access to these publications for the reason that many of them are out of print and hard to find.

(4) The author of this new book has spent years as a missionary among the Mormons, and has patiently and carefully culled extracts from these old publications, thus giving you

A Whole Library of Information in One Book

The greatest care has been taken to make this book reliable.

The quotations in it are all testified to as being correct, and finally the proof readers testify that to the best of their belief the quotations are all correct. We have had this done so that you would feel secure in using the many evidences therein contained. Order No. 1a, price.....$1.50

Herald Publishing House

Lamoni, Iowa

Herald Publishing House

$100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best of security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

These Bonds will be ready to issue on the 1st of April, 1912.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

Escape the Summer Heat

Get away from it—that's all you can do. This is the greatest State in the Union all right, but sticking around in the same old place especially during the hot spell sort of gets on your nerves. Take a vacation. You've been wanting to see the West for a long time. Do it this year and come back with a fresh grip on life. Go via one, return via another route and make the entire circle. It will open your eyes. You can see the Yellowstone or Glacier Park country, cross chain after chain of giant mountain ranges, go through immense tunnels, see the wonderful fruit valleys, stop at Spokane, Seattle and Tacoma, see the "Charmed Land of the American Continent"—to which Nature has given a bewitching beauty and a climate unexcelled for healthfulness, and Portland (the famous Rose City); run on down the coast through the great woods of Washington and Oregon, via the Shasta Route, view the great Sierras, see the California Missions, enjoy the luxury of captivating San Francisco, and the beautiful "City of the Angels" (Los Angeles), take a dip in the glorious waters of the glorious Pacific, and then come home through Salt Lake City (by the Great Inland Sea), and then through beautiful and wonderful Colorado, with its great Royal Gorge and justly famous Pike's Peak region (where all the Pilgrims pause) and its many natural wonders, and Denver—that gateway to a marvelously beautiful wonderland among the clouds—and then back to the folks at home. This is one of the grandest rail journeys in the world. It doesn't cost a great deal either.

I'm employed by the Burlington Route to answer your questions, send you our dandy new folders, help you to change the usual way of going and coming if you desire, arrange for stopovers and in general be genuinely useful. Come in and let's talk it over. If you can't come, write—a postal will do, say when you are thinking of going—and I'll send the folder. L. F. Siltz, Ticket Agent, Burlington Route.

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

- Order No.
- 141 cloth75c
- 141½ leather$1.00
- 174 flexible$1.50

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed. No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25 Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,
Cloth, No. 19850c
Paper No. 19735c

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.
Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
No. 140, cloth50

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
Lamoni Land and Loan Co,
Lamoni, Iowa.

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.

Order No. 241, cloth.....50

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.

No. 248a, cloth75

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.

Order No. 232, cloth.....75

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and wisest known and read book. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.

Order No. 248, cloth75

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestation of God working through his servant.

No. 216, cloth75c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right.

Cloth No. 24875

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, AUGUST 28, 1912

NUMBER 35

Editorial

WHY WE BELIEVE IN GOD.

SKETCHING THE PICTURE.

An artist does not attempt to work all the details of a landscape into his picture. He places here a stroke and there a stroke, and arranges masses of shadow and light so as to suggest those things that can not be portrayed in detail. If when painting a mountain landscape he were to attempt to draw every pebble and blade of grass and every leaf, and the texture of the bark of every tree, his picture would be a confused mass of details. But he leaves much for the beholder to see with his mind's eye, as it is suggested rather than depicted.

So when telling the gospel story, as expounded in editorial or sermon or song,—the divine story of God's love, the delineation of organic church structure, the gospel plan, the preacher can only present leading ideas, suggesting many others that the hearer must discern for himself. And ever as he looks at sharply outlined and plainly delineated peaks of truth, the observer will see beyond still others dimly outlined, merely suggested, to which he may turn his attention and discover their beauty for himself. The preacher, like the painter, should open the eyes of the beholder to see for himself the many things that no man has time or skill or power to show in detail.

So with any attempt to outline reasons for "the hope that is in us," only leading thoughts can be presented, and the reader must work out suggestions to their logical conclusion, seeing the matter for himself and with his own eyes.

GROPING AFTER A FATHER'S LOVE.

Not long ago of a certain night the youngest member of the family was unable to sleep during two or more hours in the middle of the night. He seemed anxious all the time the parental hand should stroke his brow or hold his little hand, or the parental voice quiet his restlessness. At one time I became vexed at him, but immediately repented, for the thought came to me, How dependent am I in the midnight of trouble and despair upon a heavenly Father's presence and sympathy. May his hand ever touch mine and his voice ever speak peace to me at such a time.

The craving for a father's blessing and support in time of darkness and mental anxiety is universal. Man is ever reaching out in the night, searching for the divine hand. Happy are those who find it.

So we may say, first of all, that we believe in God because it is natural to do so. We have that in common with all people, for go where you will in the world to-day, or turn back the leaves of yesterday's history to any page you may choose, you will find men believing and worshiping. In Patagonia or Alaska, in the islands of the Pacific, in the Orient or the Occident, you will find that all races believe in some supreme or superhuman being. They may not call it God, but they do their best to carve their rude presentment of deity in wood and stone. Probably in the first instance they did not worship the image, but rather what it stood for. Their vision of God is obscured by ignorance and superstition and so their presentation of him is distorted and grotesque.

Their belief is not because of ignorance, but in spite of it, because when we ascend to higher peoples we find as strong a faith coupled with a clearer perception that forbids them attempting the impossible task of picturing the lineaments of Deity. Even in our own land, which we fondly believe stands intellectually abreast of any other, we find a general and public recognition of God. One day each year is officially set apart as a day of general thanksgiving. One day in every seven is quite generally recognized as a day of worship, at least formally.

So with individuals,—the clearest-headed statesmen, like Gladstone, have believed. Philosophers like Bacon have believed. Scientists like Darwin and Tyndall have believed. Darwin said, "The question whether there exists a creator or ruler of the universe has been answered in the affirmative by the highest intellects that have ever lived." Tyndall, while talking of the wonders of Nature, cried out, "Can it be there is no being or thing in Nature that knows more about these matters than I do?" He then went on to say that no man capable of profound thought would answer that question "by professing the creed of atheism."

RACE MEMORY.

What is this power that leads the painted savage to kneel in the forest and the enlightened scientist to kneel in his laboratory? Shall we term it instinct? If you choose. I am impressed with the thought that it is a form of knowledge. It is evident that men and animals know some things without being conscious of their knowledge. How did the wild bird hatched this spring in your apple tree know that he should go south at the approach of winter? How did he know that the South was warm and the North cold? He had never been far from his native tree. Yet his parents had been south for many generations. They knew; and what we term instinct in him was but a form of inherited knowledge, or race memory. Our parents walked and talked with God, as did Seth, Enoch, Noah, and many others. They knew him in the long ago and that knowledge became a mighty force through all succeeding generations. It has been dimmed by time and distance, yet fostered by all that we see around us. So, in common with all people, we believe in God because it is natural to do so.

CULTIVATED DOUBT.

It is not surprising that time and distance have at times bred doubt; that doubt has been encouraged by all the forces that work for evil in this world. Yet doubt is rather an artificial growth. It may by education be carried to any extreme. Many have educated themselves to the point where they actually doubt the existence of their own bodies. Now to most men the hourly testimony of the five senses is conclusive. Heat, cold, hunger, and weariness, pain, pleasure, rest, and satisfaction momentarily assert to our spirits the existence of a material body. Yet some have cultivated doubt until they were capable of impeaching these witnesses and bringing in a verdict of nonexistence. Others by the same reasoning have come to doubt the existence of the earth. Most of us by the simple process of falling down have early in life convinced ourselves of the solidity and reality of the earth. If that is not enough, an hour's work digging post holes will make the philosophy of the doubter look foolish.

That brings us to our first text: "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works."—Psalm 14: 1. Infidelity is an artificial growth that required a great deal of nursing to reach that climax. The men who have ever reached this point are extremely few in number, compared to the many who have not.

It is essentially foolish to assert that there is no

God, because though it were true it could not be known in this life, and there would be no future life in which to discover it. The infidel must ever proceed by faith, and the only hope that he will ever know is the hope that he is wrong. The Christian proceeds by faith, but if right he may know it in this life and will certainly know in the next. If wrong, his mistake will never be known; it will be buried in the common oblivion that will overwhelm all things. In either case he and his are happier and better now.

ATHEISM NOT A POSITIVE FORCE.

The more intelligent opposers of the God idea have avoided definite statement. You may read the lectures of Ingersoll from beginning to end and you will never find where he says there is no God. You will find where he says, "There may be a God; I do not know." You will find where he says that not for his life would he "extinguish one star of hope that shines for humanity." You will find where he said, "In the hour of death hope sees a shining star, and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing."

That calls to our mind the statement of Lord Bacon that "Atheism is more on the lips of men than in their hearts." The lips may formulate their creed, but in the hour of death the heart has its say and forces them to recant.

The few men who have actually reached the point where their hearts determined there was no God, have immediately proceeded to prove the truth of our text. Their lives have betrayed their foolishness. Men like the infidel, Lord Bolinbroke,—believing in no supreme lawgiver, permitted their own pleasure to become their law. Believing in no hereafter, their policy was to get as much from this life as possible. Sensuality, lust, crime, gluttony are the fruits of it, and show the foolishness of the man who cultivates the tree.

THE REIGN OF TERROR.

Men who had determined the nonexistence of God, at one time obtained control of France, the only time, in modern history at least, when the running of a government of importance has fallen into the hands of those who recognize no responsibility to a power higher than themselves. They proceeded to prove our text true. They destroyed the churches; they wrote over their cemeteries, "Death is an endless sleep"; they voted Christianity out of existence; they dispensed with the Sabbath; they erected an idol in the form of a nude woman, to represent reason, and worshiped her; they despised the cross, and called the guillotine "The Holy Guillotine"; they said, "Having dethroned the king of France we will proceed to dethrone the King of heaven." Under their rule there followed a reign of terror, an epoch of lust, an excess of cruelty, a carnival of crime that can not be described,—no, not by a Carlyle.

"The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." Who shall deny the appellation?

OBSERVATION CONFIRMS FAITH.

Again, we believe in God because the natural tendency to believe is strengthened by what we see around us. We do not find many things coming by chance in this world.

Chance as a creative force is not much in evidence.

Some years ago Doctor Bastian announced that he had demonstrated the possibility of the spontaneous generation of life. He took hay-tea and boiled it and sealed it in air-tight bottles, and in a short time it teemed with life. The doctrine of special creation seemed in a fair way to be disproved; but Professor Tyndall and other scientists took up the work and repeated the experiments with greater care, and the result was that life appeared, and now it is universally accepted as a scientific fact that life must spring from preceding life. So we trace it back until we reach the point that Lord Kelvin says God has "reserved for his own appearing."

We find in every city certain statutes enforced. For instance, there is a statute against trespass. No one need tell us that such a law introduced itself, voted on itself, and inscribed itself on the statute books, or that it enforces itself. We know there is a city council and a mayor back of it, and that a very material policeman looks after us if we violate it.

No one need tell us that all these houses designed and builded themselves, or that they sprang up in a night by chance, or that they evolved from a single crooked stick that sprang into existence years ago as the result of "a fortuitous concourse of atoms." We have never seen the designers or builders, yet their works testify of them, and we may judge of the magnitude of their intellect by those works.

So, though we might burn this old Bible and publicly renounce the God idea, I am sure that the first time we found ourselves free from artificial restraints, out under the eternal stars, our hearts would whisper over the articles of faith that our fathers repeated ere the Bible was written or infidelity was dreamed.

That brings us to our second text: "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork."

THE LAW OF ASCENDENCY.

Then we believe in God because of the laws of ascendancy. Two things are self-evident, the existence of matter and of intelligence. Which is the greater? Evidently intelligence. The body must go where the mind directs it, even though, protesting, it passes through fire. We know that matter can not possibly be destroyed. It can not cease to exist. Has the lesser, qualities that are denied to the greater? Is the material that composed the body of Christ still existent while the mind that resolutely controlled that body passed out of being over eight-hundred years ago?

A CHOICE.

Next, we believe in God because we wish to. It is a choice between anarchy and law. We do not care to go out and tell people that there is no law-giver to whom they must sometime give an account. We do not care to believe that or to have neighbors who believe it. Shortly before President McKinley was assassinated, Emma Goldman, the apostle of anarchy, known as the "Little Firebrand," lectured in various parts of the land. She lectured in San Francisco, and among other things, said, "I believe in no God. I believe in no hereafter." Here was one who said in her heart, "There is no God." Now note what followed, as naturally as darkness follows the setting of the sun: "I believe in no God; I believe in no hereafter; I believe in no civilization; I believe in no marriage; all property is robbery; all government is tyranny; right and wrong are prejudices; I believe in the red flag of anarchy; the rich and the rulers are only proper food for gunpowder, and dynamite; I am sworn to live and die by the articles of this creed."

She simply carried things to their logical conclusion. And let me tell you, if you convince most people that there is no God and no hereafter, you shortly will have no civilization, you will have no marriage, you will have no government, you will have no property. You will have anarchy, with every man his own best law, and bound to respect none else.

It is a choice between justice and injustice. Shall we believe that the pure and virtuous woman will be in no way better off than the degraded woman of the street? that a common fate, a common reward, a common oblivion awaits them both?

It is a choice between joy and gloom. It is a choice between hope and despair. We do not wish when death enters your home to be forced to come to you and tell you, "Look well upon that white face, note well while you may that still form; for you will never see him more."

He loved you more than life, and would have died for you. Were those the aspirations of a soulless clod? Has the intelligence that could be sublimate itself ceased to be, while the insensate clay remains?

We do not believe it.

We will not teach it.

We have other hopes.

Our third text is, "Which hope we have as an anchor to the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil."—Hebrews 6: 19.

A MORE SURE WORD.

We believe in God because we have in the Scriptures a revelation of him that speaks for itself. We find there things which man of himself could not have written. We find Daniel picturing the future of the world, and for over twenty-three hundred years the events of history in their orderly march have fallen into line to fulfill that prophecy. Media and Persia, Greece, Rome, and Europe—we could not describe their history in a few words better than he to Nebuchadnezzar, ere those nations emerged from the mysterious future. We find Isaiah picturing the coming of Christ, his life, his betrayal, his death. We find Christ telling of the destruction of Jerusalem; it is history. He foretold the gathering of the Jews; the daily papers tell us of its partial fulfillment.

Nor did inspiration end there. We have here a pamphlet called the Pearl of Great Price, printed in 1852, and in it we find Joseph Smith saying, "Verily thus saith the Lord, concerning the wars that will shortly come to pass, beginning at South Carolina, which will eventually terminate in the death and misery of many souls. . . Behold the Southern States shall be divided against the Northern States." Much more might be quoted from this revelation given so long before the war, but that will suffice.

Now we submit that the written word speaks for itself and shows an understanding of futurity that man of himself could not have.

Our fourth text is, "We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts."—2 Peter 1: 19. That we will endeavor to do.

PERSONAL TESTIMONY.

We believe in God because we find in his word the revelation of a perfect law, that if heeded would fill the world with love and bring equality and peace. We believe in God because we have something further than the written word or that which we may see. That brings us to our fifth and last text: "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine."—John 7: 16.

We have felt the influence of that Spirit promised to those who do his will, and know that it is not of earthly origin. We do not depend solely upon the word of others. Our gospel came not in word only. We received it not of men. It came in power, with assurance, and with the Holy Ghost.

We have sketched the picture, roughly, drawing in outline some of the truths that appeal to us. Others may fill in the details at leisure; and perhaps may discern some prominent points that are merely suggested in the sketch.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

EDITORIAL SELECTION.

LABOR DAY.

In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread.—Genesis 3: 19:

Labor Day is a typical institution. By celebrating it we formally acknowledge the honor and respectability of labor and pay tribute to it. Nowhere on the globe is the honest labor held in such high esteem as in the land of the free and the brave. America was the first to break with the ancient prejudice, as though labor, and especially manual labor, belonged to the slaves and was not becoming a free man.

It was the word of a curse, laid as a punishment on fallen man: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread;" but it came from the Merciful and Gracious, it was blessing in disguise. No doubt, labor has a serious aspect. It never betrays its origin. At times it is a painful obligation, which opens our eyes to the fact that it is no paradise any more in which we live, an endless battling against the thorns and thistles, which continually threaten to rob us of the fruits of our endeavors, and the field of our labor shows more dead and maimed than the bloodiest battle field. It proves a dire necessity, growing out of that eternal law: "That if any would not work, neither should he eat."

Nevertheless, it is a true saying that labor is the spice of life. Moses says that the strength of our years is labor and sorrow, and history clearly shows that the toiling on a barren soil and the battling with cold winds and waves has brought forth the master races which govern the world. In labor we find diversion and peace when troubles beset us; in labor we find the highest satisfaction, if we do it in that unselfish spirit, of which Saint Paul says that we should "labor that we may have to give to him that needeth."

To labor is indeed a blessing, and justly do we honor it. And, though we may often groan under our burden and sigh under the sweat of our face, we may comfort our soul with Him who has labored without ceasing, who lovingly stretches forth his arms and bids, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."—Editorial in New York Herald.

A CORRECTION.—We have received a letter from the person referred to, but not named in Brother Elvin's article, entitled, "Did the conference err?" This person desires to have us state that he did not question the propriety of the conference sustaining the President as a prophet and revelator; he challenged the use of the word seer, only, as he holds that the meaning of the word did not justify its use in the way that it was used. As the brother was not named in the article, or identified, or compromised in any way, we will not name him here.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Original Articles

A REVIEW OF "MORMONISM AGAINST ITSELF."—PART 34.

BY S. W. L. SCOTT.

ORGANIZATION AND WORKS.

In the further organization of the church, seventies were chosen after the organizing of the twelve, whose duty is to minister the word, a high council composed of twelve high priests. This was to be a judicial body, having the decision of cases arising within their jurisdiction which came to them on appeal. The general church organization was to have a presiding bishop, assisted by two counselors having charge of the general financial concerns of the church, (1 Timothy 3: 1-7.) And provisions were made for local organizations with branches, and stakes; also, provisions were made for keeping the records. 'Twas not an idle, easy, passive people, but a toiling, and self-sacrificing body who, as a monument to their industry, and sacrifice, their devotion to the cause established by inspiration of God, as well as evidencing their honesty, left standing on the hill at Kirtland the historic building known all over the world as the Kirtland Temple.

In those early days, it was remarkable when we note that no such cities as Cleveland, or Painesville, were in existence. No such lines of railway, as the New York Central, Saint Louis, or Lake Shore and Michigan Southern traversed that section. The people brought the stone on the ground as best they could, and the work progressed to completion.

"OF THE BLOOD."

In taking the Saints "west," Elder Traum drops a thought regarding the bishop, chosen at Kirtland. He must be of the "blood," must be "a literal descendant of Aaron," "that is a Jew." How shallow this looks! Traum himself, according to his logic, would cast derision at Saint Paul, who said, "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ, and if you are Christ's you are Abram's seed, and heirs according to the promise."—Galatians 3: 27, 29.

Traum had better be looking up his own pedigree, but as we do not have access to his genealogy, we pass along. Our critic spreads his "narrative" over a great deal of ground, and in the account he tries to give of the Saints going to Missouri, he quotes one paragraph of section 45 of Doctrine and Covenants whereas he cites two—paragraphs 12, 13,—and this one he garbles, (as usual) omitting words, and changing others. The prophecy refers to the ultimate establishment of the city, as expressing what the Lord would do if the people were faithful, that the inhabitants of Zion through righteousness were to become "terrible," in the same sense as Abraham's children when righteously obedient were "terrible," even "from their beginning." The Bible reads: "And they journeyed; and the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob."—Genesis 35: 5. Also of Israel under Joshua, see Joshua 2: 9. There is absolutely no warrant for Elder Traum's conclusion that the prophecy is a failure. Why did not Elder Traum quote paragraph 11 of this section? Why did he not quote paragraph 12, so that his readers might get full benefit of the "failure"? The whole prophecy of paragraphs 13 and 14, are based upon the conditions set forth in paragraph 12.

A FAVORED WITNESS.

Elder Traum devotes so many pages of his book fortifying an assumed position that the Saints finally in the exodus from Kirtland, organized "a military expedition," and under God, they were to proceed to "the redemption of Zion with power," that it is useless to notice his conclusion if we attack and demolish his premises. But before noticing this subterfuge of a foundation, we return with him, as he leads, from Missouri to Kirtland. In the Prophet's absence from Kirtland and vicinity, "the new converts" were privileged to become acquainted with the internal arrangement of the church, which revealed a plot. On page 233, he permits Simonds Ryder to explain the defilement, with "tar and feathers," according to Joseph and Sidney, March 25, 1832, as follows:

During the next spring and summer several converts were made, and their (the Saints) success seemed to indicate an immediate triumph in Hiram. But when they went to Missouri to lay the foundation of the splendid city of Zion, and also of the temple, they left their papers behind. This gave the new converts an opportunity to become acquainted with the internal arrangement of the church, which revealed to them the horrid fact that a plot was laid to take their property from them and place under the control of Joseph Smith the Prophet.

Of this Elder Traum asserts:

This according to Ryder, was the direct cause of the maltreatment of the Mormons when they again came to Hiram. There is no good reason to question either the historical or philosophical accuracy of that statement.

Oh, no, Elder Traum would not question the philosophical accuracy of Ryder's "statement." His mind is made up. The statement is from a "patriarch" of the Disciple Church, and against the "Saints' Church." "The internal arrangement of the church" revealed in the "papers" referred to, if any were left behind, was the "law" of the church given after they arrived at Kirtland, the promise of which law was made in a revelation to the Saints before they left New York. This law is found in section 42, Doctrine and Covenants, and after inculcating such commands as prohibit evil, and enjoin that which is good, in spiritual, and moral deportment, it says in paragraph 8,

If thou lovest me, thou shalt serve me and keep all my commandments. And behold, thou wilt remember the poor, and consecrate of thy properties for their support, that which thou hast to impart unto them, with a covenant and a deed which can not be broken; and inasmuch as ye impart of your substance unto the poor, ye will do it unto me, and they shall be laid before the bishop of my church and his counselors, two of the elders, or high priests, such as he shall or has appointed and set apart for that purpose.

The Saints were so misrepresented in their faith by "reports" which the people, disposed, as is Elder Traum to receive without question, and made up their verdict from "Mother Grundy's" altar of gossip. Ezra Booth, who had apostatized from the church, was prejudicing, exciting, and blinding the minds of the people, and stirring up persecution against the Saints by publishing scandalous letters through the columns of the Ohio Star, at Ravenna. Joseph and Sidney preached in Shalersville, Ravenna, and other points, allaying prejudice, and blindness, and persecution to an extent, correcting misrepresentations, and setting forth facts, and truths. Would it be any wonder that people would misunderstand, and misrepresent the faith of the church, when Howe in his batch of lies makes the eighth paragraph of section 42 read, "If thou lovest me, thou shalt serve me, and keep my commandments, and thou shalt consecrate all thy properties, that which thou hast, unto me, with a covenant and deed which can not be broken"?—Howe, page 129. I hope Elder Traum will make a note of this garbled quotation by his witness. He knew that the work he assailed could not be defeated by truth, hence the adoption of lies. The Campbellites knew the work would not down, by the facts in the case, hence the "tar and feathers."

ABOUT RYDER.

But we are going to prove that Simonds Ryder, et al, did not possess even a misrepresentation, upon which to base such a diabolical act. We wish Elder Traum to right about face, and listen to President B. A. Hinsdale once more, as he pours out eulogistic oil into the supposed wounds caused by Ryder's Mormon defection, during that funeral sermon:

It may seem strange that a man of Father Ryder's strong mind and honest heart, could even temporarily have fallen into the Mormon delusion. Let us not fail to remember, however, that Mormonism in northern Ohio, in 1831, was quite a different thing from Mormonism in Utah in 1870. It then gave no signs of the moral abomination which is now its most prominent characteristic.—Hayden's History, p. 252.

"Mormonism" in 1831, in northern Ohio, gave no sign of moral abomination. Nothing but good. Then why did these desperadoes, and religious bigots, carry on this satanic scheme? They were destitute of facts to meet the issue. Hinsdale tells us the thing that staggered Ryder regarding the faith of the Saints, over which he stumbled and fell, was the receiving of a "commission to preach," and in it he found "his name misspelled."—Hayden's History, page 252. Of course this was too much for learned minds. "Was the Holy Spirit so fallible as to fail in orthography?" An account of the destruction of Peking, China, he had read in June, and "remembered that six weeks before, a young Mormon girl had predicted the destruction of that city." He knew that Joseph Smith had commanded Mrs. Johnson to be whole, in the name of Jesus Christ, and her arm was restored to normal condition, so that she "at once lifted it up with ease, and on her return home the next day she was able to do her washing without difficulty or pain."—Page 250. He had investigated and found the ground occupied by the Saints solid and invulnerable. He knew not how "to explain the well-attested fact" of the healing of Mrs. Johnson's arm, save by the power of God. But the spirit of apostasy seizes him over the incorrect spelling of one word, and all of these "well-attested facts" become fictions, and now divested of argument and fact with which to meet the Saints in the open, in fair and manly encounter upon the platform, he seizes "tar bucket and geese feathers," sallies out under cover of night, heading a band of congenial spirits, (for whisky was in evidence) to carry into effect the doctrines (?) of the meek and lowly Jesus,—"the golden rule," to "do unto others as ye would have others do unto you." I do wonder if in this instance they carried into practice the "motto" of the current reformation,—"where the Bible speaks, we speak, and where the Bible is silent, we are silent"! But Elder Traum must have full benefit of all that justifies such a proceeding, so we permit Simonds Ryder to speak also. In the letter of which Traum transcribes a small portion, we have the following:

In the winter of 1831, Joseph Smith, with others, had an appointment in the south schoolhouse, in Hiram. Such was the apparent piety, sincerity, and humility of the speakers, that many of the hearers were greatly affected, and thought it impossible that such preachers should lie in wait to deceive.

During the next spring and summer several converts were made, and their success seemed to indicate an immediate triumph in Hiram.

Here are men of confessed "piety, sincerity, and humility," engaged in the honorable work of enlightening the people concerning a system of religion, which "at that time showed no sign of moral abomination," under the guaranteed protection of a republic, the base of which was rapidly spreading from ocean to ocean. It had reared its head,—its splendid dome decked with stars,—clear above the clouds, had taken out the foul records of the pestilential heresies, the thumbscrew, the fagot, the padlock for the lips, the chain, and forge of religious and political barbarism. These deep, and damning, and almost ineffaceable blots of dishonor, were throttled by the shining and resplendent keystone of the arch, the golden words, "All men are born free," to "worship God, according to the dictates of conscience." Whether the Saints were right or wrong, there was no justifying causes for the disgracing national honor, trampling the rights of men and society in the mire, and substituting mobocracy for law. Sympathizing friends may cover such cowardly conduct with glowing asseveration, as a model to parade in the gilded pages of history, but this strike at the guaranteed freedom of individual worship, the attempt at tyrannizing the consciences of men, which it entails, is a stain coextensive with such parade, that all the special pleas can not remove.

AGAIN NO CASE.

Page 238, chapter 18, Traum criticizes an account given by Joseph Smith, of an attempt to poison him. That at a certain point in Indiana en route from Missouri to Kirtland, they tarried for four weeks at a village near the falls of the Ohio River, stopping at a hotel. Of this event Elder Traum says:

One day, when I arose from the table, I walked directly to the door and began vomiting most profusely. I raised large quantities of blood and poisonous matter, and so great were the contortions of my muscular system that my jaw was dislocated in a few moments. This I succeeded in replacing with my own hands, and then I made my way to Brother Whitney (who was on his bed) as speedily as possible. He laid his hands on me, and administered to me in the name of the Lord, and I was healed in an instant, although the effect of the poison had been so powerful as to cause much of the hair to become loosened from my head.

Then adopting Elder D. H. Bays' demurrer to the same, he says:

D. H. Bays has demurred from the statement here made, issuing several reasons for the incredibility of the tale. Summarized, they are as follows: No proof was offered to show that poison had been administered to Smith by anybody—he only suspected it; no analysis had been made of the "poisonous matter" by a competent person, which would be the only means of determining the correctness of the suspicion; the fact that Smith turned sick at the table might have been produced in various ways, in the absence of poison; that the fact that Whitney laid his hands on Smith is no proof that he "healed" him, as the "vomiting" would tend to give relief from his nausea; that God never does anything by halves, hence the improbability of him having healed the prophet, while permitting the deleterious effects of poison to loose the prophet's hair; and, finally, that if God healed Smith under these circumstances, why did he not heal Whitney's broken leg?

Why, Elder Traum, you and your fellows try to make a case where there is none, and then demand unreasonable evidence to support it.

If the proposition that Joseph "vomited poisonous matter," is admitted because not denied, where is the necessity of proving that poison was administered? Mr. Smith is simply relating an experience, with no reference to legal process. The account does not represent him as trying to sustain a case against anyone, nor as trying to prove that Jesus told the truth when promising, "and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not harm them." If Joseph had intended to prosecute some one, he doubtless would have secured the evidence proper for the sustaining of his case, and even here, after proving that poison was administered, it were useless to prove the presence of it. That the account says that after the laying on of Whitney's hands in administering "in the name of the Lord," Joseph "was healed," but the effect of the poison had been so "powerful as to cause much of his hair to become loosened." This enables Traum and Bays to assert that "God does nothing by halves." This surely indicates the ideas these men entertained of the things of God, and their knowledge of the Bible. We cite Elder Traum to a case under the direct supervision of the Son of God, and ask him if his statement of "halves" can stand sustained:

And he cometh to Bethsaida; and they bring a blind man unto him, and besought him to touch him. And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town; and when he had spit on his eyes, and put his hands upon him, he asked him if he saw aught. And he looked up, and said, I see men as trees walking. After that, he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up: and he was restored, and saw every man clearly.—Mark 8.

But Traum asks, "If God healed Smith under these circumstances, why did he not heal Whitney's broken leg?" Now such reasoning involved in the question, would, applied to cases in the days of Paul, elevate Traum to an unenviable position. Timothy was sick, and the apostle advised "a little wine for thy stomach's sake, and thine often infirmities."—5:23. Why didn't he "heal him" by the laying on of hands? Again, Paul says: "Erastus abode at Corinth; but Trophimus have I left at Miletum sick."—2 Timothy 4:20. Why didn't he heal the man? Paul was afflicted, "a thorn in the flesh," a "messenger of Satan buffeted him," he prayed three times for its removal, and the answer to his prayers was, "My grace is sufficient." He had to endure it. Why did not God "heal" him?

Again, when Paul was on the island called Melita, and a viper came out of a bundle of sticks and fastened itself on Paul's hand, where was the "competent" authority to analyze the poisonous matter deposited in Paul's hand? Where is the "competent" person who determined that it was poison. "Competent" authority, "being the only means of determining the correctness of the suspicion," what then, there being none such, as demanded by Traum, the case is one involving the miraculous of New Testament times, yet is fraudulent. Will our critic thus entangle himself in the meshes? Luke is the only one who has sent down his testimony in the Bible to this "sign" following the believer.

NOT A LOGICAL CONCLUSION.

Now let us follow the "thread" spun out by Elder Traum, down into Missouri. The Saints had received instruction relative to the "gathering," up to this time, and as the "West" was pointed out to them as the principal place, and as the gathering at Kirtland and in the West were almost simultaneous, we will allow the historian to lead in the matter:

Soon after locating at Kirtland revelations were received providing that the principal place of gathering would in the future be in the West, with Independence, Missouri, as the center place. A portion of the church emigrated there as early as 1831, bought, and entered from the Government a great amount of land, which they improved to such an extent as to excite the jealousy of neighbors. They published also from Independence a periodical called the Evening and Morning Star. They also began the publication of the revelations received by the church under the title of "The Book of Commandments." The members of the church were principally from the Eastern States, while those among whom they moved were largely from the South. The prejudice that existed between these two sections of the country at that early day, and which finally culminated in the Civil War, served to make the breach wider and wider, until the friction became so great that the citizens of Jackson County, using the religion of the Latter Day Saints as a pretext, arose and expelled the Saints by force from their homes, destroyed the printing press, scattering the contents of the printing office in the streets just at the time when the Book of Commandments was in press, so all that was ever preserved of this book were some of the loose sheets gathered up by individuals which never had the advantage of being compared with the originals and thus corrected, and hence never received the indorsement of the church as a publication.

The expulsion from Jackson County took place in the latter part of the year 1833, and the Saints found shelter in the adjoining counties, principally in Clay, where they lived in harmony with their neighbors for some time.

Finally, though there was no outbreak of hostilities, more or less friction occurred, principally on the account of the efforts of the citizens of Jackson County, striving to stir up strife; and so it was mutually agreed that the county of Caldwell should be organized for the purpose of permitting the Saints to colonize there, they to purchase the land from the settlers who were in that territory. The act of the legislature providing for the organization of Caldwell County was approved December 29, 1836, having been introduced in the legislature by Honorable A. W. Doniphan, of Clay County. The Saints had previously commenced settling in the county, and they continued so to do until a large part of the territory was occupied and cultivated. Here Joseph Smith and other authorities of the church finally removed, and the headquarters of the church was established at Far West, the county seat of Caldwell County. For several years peace and prosperity reigned; but persecution again arose, the causes of which we have not space to present in an article of this kind, but which finally culminated in the Saints being driven from the State by order of the Executive, L. W. Boggs, in the winter of 1838 and 1839. This was the cause of much suffering on the part of the people who, in many instances, had their homes destroyed. They were driven out in the inclemency of winter, to make their way as best they could out of the State of Missouri. The majority of them settled in Illinois, in the vicinity of Quincy, finally purchasing a site including the village of Commerce, where they laid out and settled a city subsequently known as Nauvoo. Prosperity again attended them, and several thousands of the members of the church gathered from all parts of the United States and foreign countries, until it was estimated that in Nauvoo and vicinity there were about thirty thousand members.—SAINTS' HERALD, March 22, 1905.

Elder Traum, following the lead of David Whitmer, asserts that "the publication of the 'Book of Commandments' led to the expulsion of the Saints finally from Missouri." That "from the time some of the world got hold of the revelations the ill feeling toward the Saints began to increase."

We ask Elder Traum what was the cause of ill feeling and persecution before this time, in New York, and the bitterness of the world toward the Saints in Ohio, when mobocracy was usurping the place of the law, among the Disciples? All church history shows that the mobbings, and persecutions of the Saints, at the first, were because of the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, the promulgation of the restored gospel, and the general legitimate church work; and that which arose in Missouri was caused by the Saints being believers in the Book of Mormon, and the prophetic mission of Joseph Smith, coupled with the fact that the Saints were from the East, and were free state, and antislavery people. The persecutions, and ill feeling referred to, existed before, and led up to the destruction of the printing press by a mob, until which time the world did not "get hold of the 'Book of Commandments'"; for it was at this time the unfinished issue was scattered in the streets by the mob, and picked up by some, and in a demoralized condition, they preserved, and had them bound. A true copy would make our position easier of defense if we could obtain it, but where?

(To be continued.)

DEALING WITH THE ERRING. ---NO. 5.

BY CHARLES FRY.

FORGIVENESS.

Forgiveness is the acknowledgment of the repentance and restitution of one who has offended; the relinquishment of all claims against him, and the receiving him into fellowship; or, in case repentance is not shown, regarding the unrepentant with compassion and dealing with him justly and mercifully.

COMMANDED OF GOD.

The Apostle Paul taught that the saints should "forgive . . . one another even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you." (Ephesians 4:37.) The necessity of forgiveness is clearly set forth in the parable of the king who forgave one of his servants ten thousand talents, or over nine million dollars, because he professed willingness but inability to pay. This same servant went out and found a fellow servant who owed him an hundred pence, or about fifteen dollars, and demanded payment. His brother expressed willingness to pay but his inability at that time, and asked that he be given further opportunity, but the unmerciful servant refused and cast him into prison until he should pay the debt, with the result that the king canceled his forgiveness of the ten thousand talents and the wicked servant was required to pay all. (See Matthew 18: 23-35.) Men's sins against God are grievous and far surpass any which may be committed against them by their fellow man, and he who is unwilling to forgive his brother the minor sin is unworthy of God's forgiveness of the greater sin. The parable closes with the significant warning:

So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not everyone his brother their trespasses.

The Lord further instructs upon this point:

If ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you: but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your heavenly Father forgive your trespasses.—Matthew 6: 14, 15.

Ye ought to forgive one another, for he that forgiveth not his brother his trespasses standeth condemned before the Lord, for there remaineth in him the greater sin.—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2.

And ye also shall forgive one another your trespasses; for verily I say unto you, He that forgiveth not his neighbor's trespasses, when he says he repents, the same has brought himself under condemnation.—Mosiah 11: 140.

Those who insist that an offending brother shall come and ask forgiveness before they forgive him, find no warrant for such a course in the law of God, nor the rules of the church. Repentance and confession are the requirements necessary to entitle one to forgiveness, and when they are shown, forgiveness should be granted without further requirement.

Should an offender refuse to repent it still remains the duty of the offended to forgive, for "of you it is required to forgive all men." (Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2.) Of necessity forgiveness granted under such conditions must be of a different kind or degree than that granted upon a true repentance. Forgiveness of the unrepentant may still require the forgiver to administer justice though the same must be done with mercy and compassion, for the interests of the body, the church, must be considered as well as those individuals, and one unwilling to repent can not but endanger the welfare of others by remaining in the church.

Ye shall bring him before the church, and do with him as the scriptures saith unto you, either by commandment or by revelation. And this ye shall do that God might be glorified, not because ye forgive not having not compassion, but that ye may be justified in the eyes of the law, that ye may not offend him who is your lawgiver.—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2.

Bitterness, hatred, malice, have no proper place in the heart of a child of God, no matter what the provocation, but a merciful heart must not prevent true justice. The seeds of bitterness growing in a human soul if unremoved will bring spiritual death as certainly as the germs of disease if unremoved will cause the death of the body.

HOW OFT FORGIVE.

Till seventy times seven.—Matthew 18: 21.

Yea, and as often as my people repent, will I forgive them their trespasses against me. And ye also shall forgive one another your trespasses.—Mosiah 11: 139.

FORGIVENESS BY THE CHURCH.

Many offenses are against society or the church rather than against individuals, in which cases the church is to act the part of a brother in laboring with the offenders through its officers, and when they repent and confess the church must forgive. The only proper procedure in granting such forgiveness is after approving the repentance and confession at a regular, or especially called, business meeting, due notice of which had been given, that a motion should be properly made, seconded, and voted upon, granting such forgiveness.

There is no warrant whatever in the law for a repentant member having forgiveness withheld for six months or any other period of time. If he repents and confesses his wrong he has done all within his power and the duty is at once laid upon the church to forgive him. Some may urge that perhaps his repentance is not sincere and it would be better to wait awhile before forgiving him in order to prove him; but that is a separate matter from the one just stated. We have already stated that the confession of a brother overtaken in transgression should be approved by separate vote before forgiveness is granted. If there be reason to believe that he has not truly repented and that his confession is not complete, or is insincere, then such confession should not be approved, and under such circumstances forgiveness would not be in order. The church has a right to be satisfied that the offender has truly repented and that his confession is such as covers the offense; but when such satisfaction is given, the penitent member has the right to forgiveness, and that immediately.

On the other hand, the church is not permitted by the law to forgive any transgressor who has not repented and confessed. On no other grounds can forgiveness be granted by the church, and on this point the law is specific: "He that sinneth and repenteth not, shall be cast out." (Doctrine and Covenants 42: 7.) To forgive unrepentant sinners is to give place to sinners in the church or kingdom of God, and if it be permissible to retain such in the church, then consistency would require that we receive people from the world on the same basis,—without repentance. But that would not do; the church must be kept pure, and God has said to the elders, “Ye shall see that my law is kept.”

WHEN FORGIVENESS CAN NOT BE GRANTED.

There are a few crimes which the church may not forgive under any circumstances,—crimes which are so serious that he who commits any one of them has “sinned unto death.” (See Doctrine and Covenants 64:2.) They are,

1. Murder.—This crime must be proved according to the laws of the land, and when so proved is not to be forgiven.

He that kills shall not have forgiveness in this world, nor in the world to come.—Doctrine and Covenants 42:6.

For remember that he hath no forgiveness.—Paragraph 21.

2. Adultery, second offense.—It seems to be the general understanding that this offense refers to the second one of which the church has taken cognizance. The statement of the law is:

Thou shalt not commit adultery; and he that committeth adultery and repenteth not, shall be cast out; but he that has committed adultery and repents with all his heart, and forsaketh it, and doeth it no more, thou shalt forgive; but if he doeth it again, he shall not be forgiven, but shall be cast out.—Doctrine and Covenants 42:7.

3. Leaving companion in wedlock for the sake of another.—This does not refer to the crime of adultery, though adultery is a part of it. The real offense is leaving an innocent companion in wedlock, perhaps with children, without the support and care which a husband and father, or wife and mother, should give a family. An offense of this kind is never committed on the impulse of a moment, but upon deliberate consideration and planning, and there are none who have intelligence enough to be at the head of a family, but who must be capable of knowing the seriousness of such a violation of the marriage vows, and of the injustice, the anguish of mind, the burden and pain of the increased responsibility, and the loneliness and sorrow of a blasted life, which are all placed upon the deserted one. To do all this for the sake of another person who has no claims upon the deserter constitutes a heinous crime paralleled only by murder. The scriptural statement follows:

If ye shall find that any persons have left their companions for the sake of adultery, and they themselves are the offenders, and their companions are living, they shall be cast out from among you. And again I say unto you, that ye shall be watchful and careful, with all inquiry, that ye receive none such among you if they be married, and if they are not married, they shall repent of all their sins, or ye shall not receive them.—Doctrine and Covenants 42:20.

The church is here warned in regard to this crime, not to receive into membership any who are guilty of it “if they are married, and if they are not married, they shall repent of all their sins, or ye shall not receive them.” If such persons have married again they have put themselves beyond the possibility of repentance, for to leave the second companion in wedlock to go back to the first would be but repeating the offense. In other words, an attempt to make right the previous wrong, a repetition of that wrong would be necessitated.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The next paper in this series will be devoted to the subject of “Charges.”

• * * * •

LEAVES FROM LIFE.

EXPERIENCES: AND HOW I BECAME A LATTER DAY SAINT.—PART 1. BY ELDER H. N. SNIVELY.

As I have been requested to write a brief history or sketch of my life and experiences for the Fifth Quorum of Elders, I assume the task with a degree of diffidence; not but what I have that to write which might be of interest to all who read it, but I feel my inability. However, I will try.

I was born in Pike County, Illinois, April 9, 1845. When I was two years of age my parents moved to Vanderburg County, Indiana, and lived there about twelve years, then moved to Warrick County, living there until September, 1865, when they moved to Iowa. My parents joined the Latter Day Saint Church under the preaching of the elders of the old church.

My experiences in life have been somewhat peculiar, and of that character which have helped to confirm me in the truth of this latter day work.

I remember a time, when quite a small boy, of asking my mother who God was and where he lived; if Jesus was his Son, and if Jesus looked like God. These and many other like questions were propounded, some of which were answered to my satisfaction, and some others were not.

What my mother had told me, and what I had seen, had only aroused in me a desire to learn and know more about God and his watchcare over us.

I want to speak of that part of my life that I consider one of the most important, with the idea that it may be of help to some of the good mothers of Israel, as well as some of the sons of those mothers. When but a very small lad and much of the time under the direct care of my mother, it came forcibly to my notice that many of the children were afraid; some people call it natural fear, but to me it has always seemed to be unnatural fear. In noticing this it seemed but natural to mention it to my mother and find the cause of it all. I had seen nothing to cause one to fear and could not understand why anyone should fear any more at night than in the daytime. So I asked mother as to the reason for it. “Mother, don't you think that God looks after us just the same at night as he does in the daytime? If we should be in danger, wouldn't he do just as much to save us at night as any other time?" These and similar questions were laid at mother's door, and like the good mother that she was, she reasonably and consistently told me all about the love of God and that he was as willing to bless his children after the setting of the sun as at noonday. Thus, instead of having the fear of hobgoblins, bears, and other imaginary things to overcome, if I didn't do so and so, I was led to have the simple faith in God that wonderfully helped me in after years. I consider the early training of faithful mothers as having the greatest influence in the life of the growing child. The early impressions of the child are the most important ones. Mothers, teach your children when young to have that simple faith in God that it is in your power to do and you will never lose the reward.

I had a great desire to learn to read so I could read the Bible and learn some of the things I desired to know. My father had given me a little Testament, and when I got so I could read a little I would slip off to myself, sometimes, and read, where no one could disturb me.

My educational advantages have always been limited. In our days there were no free schools. At times there would be a teacher come into the neighborhood, and if he could get enough parents to agree to pay a certain amount for a term of school there would be a school formed. It was my privilege to attend such a school part of the time for one winter, but not steadily enough to help my education very much. This, with ten weeks in a business college in after years, has been the extent of my schooling.

One time, after reading in the Testament that my father had given me as to how the people were blessed with the Holy Spirit, by which they spoke in tongues and prophesied, I wished I might some day receive the same blessing. There was such a joyous feeling come over me at the time that I could not understand it and did not know what it meant. Since receiving the gospel, I have been made to realize what it meant to me, as I have received it many times since.

Time moved on, and from what I had read in the Scriptures I desired to know more about religion, and as there was a Methodist chapel only half a mile away where preaching was kept up pretty regularly, with a revival occasionally, I had a chance to go and learn something about religion.

Finally I went to one of these revivals, and, having a desire to see all that was going on and to learn all I could about the work of conversion, I went clear up to the front by the "mourners' bench," as they called it. Of course I was only a boy, so they took no notice of me, but I saw and heard enough to satisfy me that their religion was mostly excitement. I remember one night when a young man, a neighbor of ours, went up to the "bench." He didn't make as much noise shouting and hollering as some others did, and his old mother came back to him and said, "Shout, Billy; cry, Billy; your mother's here."

I concluded from what I saw and heard that the more noise they made the more religion they thought they had; consequently that kind of work was more of an amusement to me than a serious consideration.

Soon after this my father sold his farm and we moved into another locality in which were some people who belonged to the Christian Church, commonly called Campbellites. By and by my father and mother united with this church; were not baptized, just gave in their names so as to worship with them. Not long after this a young preacher came to me one day and tried to persuade me to come the next Sunday and be baptized. I told him I didn't think that the members of his church preached the gospel. Said I, "You don't believe in the gifts of the gospel as they were received in the days of the apostles." He said they were not necessary any more; for me to come and be baptized anyway and it would have an influence on some others and they would come. To this I replied that I did not want anyone to pin their faith on my sleeve.

Shortly after this there was a copy of the Mil-lennial Star fell into the hands of my father and he would read that paper almost day and night and one thing that seemed strange to us was that he at first did not want us children to get hold of it to read it, but we soon found out why he was so careful with it. It was because the paper taught polygamy.

One day I got the paper and found where it taught polygamy and I felt like throwing it into the fire. I didn't want to hear anything more about Latter Day Saintism.

My reason for referring to this incident is to show what followed. Sometimes that which appears to be bad turns out to be a good omen. Such were the facts in this case.

My father got the Salt Lake idea in his head and would not rest until he sold his place and started for Utah in the fall of 1865. I had told him when he was preparing to move that I would not go with him to Salt Lake; that I would never cross the plains with him. I kept in this mind and feeling until about three or four days before he started for the West. As the time drew near it made me feel terrible to think of my mother going away out west, and possibly I might never see her again. It was a little more than I could stand.

One day as father was fixing up the two wagons for moving I asked him how far he expected to go that fall. He said that he expected to go as far as Council Bluffs and stop for the winter.

When he told me this, I then said, "If you will give me enough money to bring me back to Indiana in the spring, I will go with you and help you through the winter."

To this proposition he said, "I will give you twenty-five dollars if you will go."

"All right; I will go then."

When some of my associates learned that I was going out West too, they seemed to feel very bad about it, and some tried to persuade me not to go. Others told me that I never would come back, but I insisted that I would be back in the spring, that my two sisters and my brother were not going, and that I would come back to them.

On the day before starting, one of my friends wanted me to come and stay all night with him, which I did. Upon retiring for the night, he said to me, "Nephi, this is the first time you have ever slept in my house, and it is said that what you dream the first night in a strange place will come true."

"Well," I said, "if I dream anything I hope it will be a good dream."

After lying on the bed thinking somewhat of this little incident and imagining some of the things I would like to dream about if dreams would come true, I fell asleep. During the night I had the following dream: I saw three personages, and though I had never seen them before was made to know that they were Joseph, Alexander, and David Smith; the three brothers, all at one place. Joseph was preaching; though to me it seemed more like a political address to the world. He was talking to quite a large congregation of people. I listened to his voice earnestly so that I might know his voice from that of anyone else. I also took especial notice of the clothing of these three men; the style of the hats, etc. I thought David was most peculiarly dressed. He wore a black coat with a broad cape to it, and a soft, broad-brimmed hat. In my dream I thought I could pick those men out of a crowd of people anywhere. When this thought was settled in my mind the dream passed away.

On awakening in the morning, my companion asked me if I had dreamed anything during the night. I replied that I had dreamed nothing of consequence. The dream that I had was so at variance with what I wanted to dream of and so little of my way of thinking that I did not consider it of any more importance than a usual dream, and could see no significance in it. I was to see the significance later.

When coming across the State of Illinois, one evening we stopped to camp for the night in Hancock County, not far from Hamilton. There was a man standing at a gate in front of a fine, large house.

There was a large barn and plenty of yard room. My father asked the privilege to camp in the lot over night. The man gave his consent, and we drove in. He then wanted to know where we were going. Of course Salt Lake was the answer. The man then said, "Why, there are lots of Mormons or Latter Day Saints just over the river in Iowa." He also said that there was a large branch of the church out on String Prairie, Iowa, and that the church had been reorganized with young Joseph as its president.

When father heard this he lost all ambition to ever go to Salt Lake. Next morning we moved on through the town of Hamilton and crossed the Mississippi River on a ferry boat into Keokuk, Iowa. So we moved on until we arrived at String Prairie; and there, sure enough, we found a large branch of the church, just as the man at Hamilton had told us we would.

I thought they were a queer kind of people. They acted so free with us, we being strangers to them, but I thought that might only be their way and habit.

We had been advised by James Newberry to go on about a mile and a half and we would find timber so we could have fire while we camped out, and thus get along until we could find a house to move into. We camped at the edge of the timber, close to John H. Lake's house, and while there his wife would come out to our camp and talk with my mother. By and by she began to talk to me, or rather to try to talk, for I kept out of her way as much as I could, but she would follow me around the camp fire preaching to me, as I called it. One evening when she was trying to talk to me I walked around on the opposite side of the fire and just then a stick of wood which had burned in two rolled down toward her and the smoke came up in her face. She gave the smoky stick a toss toward me with her foot and said, "Nephi, keep your smoke to yourself." I laughed and said, "I want to smoke you Mormons out." Of course I didn't mean it. I did say it in a tantalizing way and I shall never forget the look she gave me as she stretched out her hand toward me and said, "Nephi, I will live to hear you preach this gospel." She further told me that there was to be a prayer meeting next evening at a schoolhouse up on the prairie and that I ought to go up and see the young people and get acquainted with them. I thought the matter over and concluded to go. Her words had made such an impression on me that I was really anxious to go. While I didn't really believe her, I couldn't get the thought out of my mind. The idea of her being inspired by a higher power was more than I was ready to accept at that time.

Next evening I went to the schoolhouse, and when I got there meeting had just begun; the one having charge was talking, and as I went in he said, "The meeting is now open. Pray or speak, as the Spirit may direct." They began by singing a verse or two, then a prayer was offered; then one or two got up and bore their testimonies as they called them. I thought, Well, that is about like I have heard the Methodists do a great many times. Finally there was quite an old man got up. He had a staff in his hand and as he began talking he began trembling, and the staff began rattling on the floor. I thought, The poor old man; he has the palsy, or something as bad; when all at once he began talking a language that I couldn't understand. It amused me so that I began to laugh. All of a sudden there came to me such a feeling of rebuke that it made my very being tremble with fear, because it was told me by some power that what I was laughing at should at some time rest on me. I then understood that influence and asked the Lord to forgive me for laughing at that poor old man.

With this experience in my mind I desired to learn more, and kept on going to the meetings that fall and winter. As the district conference was held in the schoolhouse there on the prairie in December I had the opportunity of attending the conference, and I wish to say to all who may read these lines that at that time I had one of the grandest experiences of my life.

I went with my father and mother to meeting. When we arrived at the schoolhouse we found we were a little late; services had begun. We stopped outside the door to hear whether it was preaching or if some one was offering prayer. When I heard the voice that was speaking I hurriedly said, "Why, mother, that is the voice I heard in my dream back in Indiana, just before we left. It is the voice of Joseph Smith!"

We then opened the door and went in. I recognized the speaker as soon as I stepped in. I looked around for Alexander and David Smith, and soon saw and recognized them as readily as I did Joseph. Then I took note of the color and style of their clothing. I found it exactly as I had dreamed of seeing them. To me this was a grand experience—a revelation of facts which has helped me many times since, as you will see further on.

I attended meeting quite regularly that winter and became better acquainted with the people, thus learning that they did not believe in polygamy or any of the erroneous doctrines taught by Brigham Young. This relieved my mind wonderfully, as I had been brought to a condition something like that of King Agrippa when he said to Paul, "Thou almost persuadest me to be a Christian." But as my brother Joseph and two sisters still remained in Indiana I thought it would be better for me to wait and try to get them to come out and hear the doctrine.

That summer, 1866, I made preparation, and in September I went back to Indiana to my folks. I then began to talk to them, trying to coax them to move west, to Iowa. I was successful in my undertaking, after talking to them and telling them a great deal about the church and its doctrines. My brother-in-law asked me if I would work a while with him in a coal mine (he was a miner), and then he would move to Iowa. My brother Joseph, and my brother-in-law and sisters were all willing to move, so I went to work in the coal mine. This was quite an experience for me as I had never been in a coal mine before, but I was very anxious to get them to go out west.

I worked nearly a month in the mine, then we fixed up wagon and team and started overland across the State of Illinois with my two brothers-in-law; leaving Joseph and two sisters to come through by rail. I have often thought of this as my first mission and of how successful it was, because during the next spring and summer all came into the church. But before any of them were baptized I was very much concerned about them, especially Joseph. I wanted to get him in the church before I was baptized. One Sunday when I came home, as I was working away from home that summer, 1867, I asked him some questions about the church, to find out how he felt. From his answers to me I thought he was about ready to come into the church. I said to him, "Joe, let's be baptized." He answered me and said, "No; if you want to be baptized you can do so; I don't."

Well, I thought, I will wait on him a little longer. I believe it was the next Sunday that he was baptized without letting me know anything about it. I was glad when I returned home on that Sunday and learned what had been done. On the following Sunday my sister and brother-in-law and myself were baptized by Brother John H. Lake in the Mississippi River at Montrose, Iowa, it being the 7th day of July, 1867. Since that time I have passed through some wonderful experiences, some of which I will relate to show the wondrous love of God; how his watchcare has followed me all along life's journey until the present time.

After I had been baptized and was presented for confirmation by the laying on of hands, I expected to receive through this ordinance the Spirit and power of God to such a degree as I had never before witnessed, but I was disappointed. Along in the week following my baptism there began to come on me such a feeling of joy, peace, and happiness as I had never before experienced. At this time I was working at a sawmill, running the engine, and boarding with the miller and his wife, whose house stood about fifty yards from the mill. One evening when it came bedtime, I went down to the mill to go to bed. There was a little room in the mill loft where I slept. After feeling unusually happy and joyful all through the week, this night I was to pass through an experience which I shall never forget. When I went upstairs to bed and sat down to undress my feet the Spirit came upon me and something seemed to tell me that I ought to pray to the Lord to protect me through the night as he had done through the day. I was in the act of bowing in prayer when something whispered to me and said, "Why, they will hear you up at the house and make fun of you and laugh at you."

When this was told me I concluded not to pray. I knew that it was true that they could hear me and it was possible that they would make fun of my efforts. It did not occur to me that I could pray in any but an audible manner.

After I had made the decision not to pray, the Savior began talking to me again and said, "Are you ashamed to call upon me for protection through the night after my love has been manifest to you through the day? Are you ashamed to pray to your Lord and Savior? Then I will withdraw my Spirit."

That night I passed through the most trying ordeal that anyone could endure. The evil power came and fell upon me, and I was bound so I could not speak one word, though I tried with all the power I had. I wrestled with this satanic power until my strength was nearly exhausted, and all the time I was trying in mind and thought to pray to God for deliverance. By and by it withdrew from me. I felt very much fatigued, but I had passed through an experience that was a grand lesson to me; one I shall never forget. I think I can say that if the Lord ever spoke to anyone here in the flesh, he spoke to me. He suffered me to pass through this experience for my benefit, which in after years it surely was.

I attended church quite regularly all of that fall and winter; becoming more and more confirmed in the latter day work. There was one thing I had failed to do yet, which was to pray in public as well in secret; until one night at prayer meeting that fall at Montrose. Brother Borley was president of the branch and was presiding over the meeting. He called the Saints to order and announced a hymn which was sung; then he said, "Let us pray," and called on me to offer prayer. Well, I didn't know what to do. I tried to speak to him and ask him to excuse me, but not a word could I speak. I didn't know what to say, so I began to pray, after which all fear left me and the Lord blessed me with liberty.

Nothing of special note transpired until the next fall, when my mother was stricken with a complicated disease and passed away from this earth life, October 7, 1868. One thing she said to me as I stood by her bedside just before she passed away, which I hope I shall ever remember. She looked up into my face and said, "Nephi, be faithful. Blessed Jesus." Then she closed her eyes in death. This admonition I have tried to fulfill, and hope I ever shall. I have thought that if I am as well prepared for the change when it comes to me as I believe she she was, I shall be satisfied.

In March, 1869, the spring following the death of my mother, I went to Keokuk, Iowa, and began working at the carpenter trade. Soon after my arrival the branch there advised me to get my letter of removal from Montrose and place it in the Keokuk Branch, which I did. From this time I began to pass through some wonderful experiences.

In April of that spring I attended the General Conference of the church which was held at Saint-Louis, Missouri. Quite a large crowd went down the river on the boat from Keokuk, and returned by boat. We had a nice time. David Smith preached on the boat to a large crowd of people. I thought, "What a happy people the Latter Day Saints are!"

After I united with the Keokuk Branch that spring some began to talk to me and say that I ought to be ordained to the office of priest, but I didn't feel that it was my duty to occupy that position in the church until I received some evidence for myself.

One night I had the following dream: I dreamed that John the Baptist came to me and handed me a grain cradle, such as I had used at home many a time cutting wheat, and he said to me, "Here, take this. I want you to cut this grain." Just then there was a very large field of wheat and brush mixed together appeared to me. The brush looked like hazel and the same height as the wheat. The wheat had a beautiful golden color, fully ready to harvest, and I then asked him, "Shall I just go through and cut out the wheat?" He answered and said, "No; cut all clean as you go, but be sure and save all the wheat. Separate it from the brush; put it in piles by itself, and let the brush lay on the ground." I began work as instructed, and after receiving his approval as to the way he wanted it done, the scenery passed from my view. I had looked at him very earnestly; took notice of how he was dressed, the kind of clothes he wore, the color of his hair and eyes, and his beard. I noted the full, wide face and pleasant expression, so I might recognize him if I should ever see him again.

My name was presented for ordination, and on June 11, 1869, I was ordained to the office of priest. Soon after this I was elected presiding priest by the branch and occupied that position until March 3, 1878, when I was ordained to the office of elder.

The people who have nothing to say have the hardest time saying it.

Some folds have no wolves without because there are no sheep within.

Letter Department

DUNLAP, IOWA, August 12, 1912.

Dear Saints: It is one year since I saw the beauties of the gospel, and joined the church at Dunlap, being baptized by Brother W. A. Smith, of Independence, Missouri. Happy and never regretted is the step I have taken. I have been cheered and encouraged many, many times since, and I know by keeping God's commandments and doing the best that we can God will take care of us to the end. I have read many HERALDS and Ensigns and have always been cheered by them. The fact is, I am simply hungry to know more and more of the gospel, and I am reading all I can possibly get, as God has said, "Blessed are they who thirst, for they shall be filled."

It is my desire to so live that my light may shine, so I may be a good example to those around me. It is my desire, and my whole soul is set on one thing, and that is, to try to raise my three little children aright, and direct their little minds in the ways of Christ. Mothers, I believe it is our duty to accede when our little ones come to us at night and want us to read to them just a little while, before bedtime, or tell them a story. I know it is our duty to lay everything aside and give them attention. I never gave it so much thought until I visited my oldest sister, Pearl Langton, at Lawton, North Dakota. Oh, to see that beloved mother rule her little ones, with never a cross word, but only as a mother should, by love and obedience, it is an example to us all. And her children do certainly show their affection and love for their parents. Never a night did the family retire without, even to little Marion, four years old, saying a little prayer by mamma's help.

I have tried to be more patient with my little ones lately, and I find many times each day, they come and climb upon my chair, or lap, and say, "Mamma, tell me a story." I always try to tell some simple bible story, and I find they are very much interested.

While in Dakota this summer I attended the camp meeting at Logan, North Dakota, and never will forget the wonderful testimonies and good sermons. Five young folks were baptized while there and may God be with them is my prayer.

My husband is not a member and I ask an interest in your prayers that he may be a Saint some day. I ask you all to pray for my two children that are afflicted. Helen has walked on crutches now two years, from hip disease. We think she is better than she has been, and I believe God will answer our prayers if we ask through faith. May God be with you all.

Yours in faith,

ELSIE STEWART.

TORONTO, ONTARIO.

Dear Readers of the Herald: To-night has furnished me with a pretty striking illustration of the truth of the old English adage that "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," for my partner having gone with an aged lady friend, Sister Furness, to visit a brother and sister residing here in Toronto, and a heavy storm having arisen after I had returned from a men's bible class prevented my going to the house where my partner and friends are visiting, so I have been strongly tempted and prompted to write to your valued pages. I hope that peradventure it may accomplish an equal amount of good.

Do our lady and gentlemen friends and sisters who pen such able and interesting articles or letters for our official organ realize adequately how vast, nay, how valuable is the amount of good their pens not only have accomplished, but are still accomplishing, both to the church and to strangers outside of the church?

We are extremely apt to forget that the words written and printed remain printed, and often find pleased and anxious readers when we have peradventure entirely forgotten not only what we wrote but that we had written at all. These readers may take up and peruse our written words in times and scenes where we least expected or imagined.

These thoughts have vividly forced themselves upon my mind as our lady visitor took up this afternoon, quite casually, the Journal of History, and there commenced to read an article by Vida E. Smith, the biography of our late esteemed elder and patriarch, Alexander Hale Smith. The light but vivid diction in portrayal of events and scenery in a country which the writer has never had the pleasure of visiting; the skillful and masterly blending of the tranquil, ambrosial aspects of the lovely springtime and of balmy nature, contrasting with the intensely awful scenes of tragedy and persecution and sudden death itself form a picture which the mind loves, even though it shudders, to dwell upon.

I think it was either Lord Byron or Lord Macaulay who said that "Gazing upon the entrancingly peaceful scenes of Marathon with its myriad blushing beauties of land and sky and verdure made the beholder an absolute and uncompromising atheist as to the phrase, 'Battle of Marathon.'" This meaning, of course, that the sublime calmness and tranquility of the plains of Marathon rendered it next to a physical impossibility for the beholder to force his mind to believe that so calmly tranquil a spot can by any known possibility have ever been the theater of one of the masterful and sanguinary battles or encounters of either ancient or modern times, be the battle scene where or when it may.

Nature, indeed, whether in earth, air, sea, or sky seems to have and ineradicable distaste for the scenes of human fear and bloodshed, death and suffering, and seems early to avail herself at one stroke, sudden or silent as the case may be, of obliterating every trace of the holocaust of death or tragedy of trial or suffering. Even so that after the scenes of fearful stress and storm and confusion that beset Joseph and Hyrum, some sweetly poetic soul has been enabled to sing:

"I came to the spot where the two martyrs lay,
And pensively stood by their tomb;
When in a low whisper I heard something say:
'How sweetly we sleep here alone.

"The tempest may rage and the loud thunders roll,
And the gathering storms may arise;
Yet calm are our feelings; at rest are our souls,
And the tears are all wiped from our eyes.

"We wander as strangers and pilgrims below,
To publish salvation abroad;
The trump of the gospel endeavoring to blow,
Preparing a people for God.

"Go tell our companions and brethren most dear
To weep not for Joseph, though gone;
Nor Hyrum—for Jesus, through scenes dark and drear,
Has kindly conducted us home.'

"I wept for the church, for her prophets were slain;
And I felt that deceivers were near
Who would lead from the precepts of virtue so plain,
Once taught them by Joseph the Seer.

"But anguish gives place to a fullness of joy;
Revived are the hopes that lie slain;
From the seed of the Martyr called by the Most High Comes a prophet to lead us again."

And thus, dear readers, on and on through this evanescent and transitory life pass the scenes of stress and terror and turmoil. The stress of terror, of darkness and of death alternates most beautifully with the sweetly tranquil scenes of joy and peace; the peace of utter rest and quiet sunshine and hallowed tranquility.

This is so widespread, even universal a feature of our sublunary life that it is a physiological fact and axiom that the very excess of grief and misery over the sudden loss of life's dearest earthly idol will so operate upon the mind of man as to produce a reaction in which the sufferer or the mourner loses even the sense of absolute loss; or more accurately speaking, the sense of loss is really drowned and swallowed up in a complete paralysis of all emotion; for the sufferer seems to have actually gotten beyond feeling, for the time being at all events. This is kindly Nature's way of eradicating the desolating and destructive effects of the calamitous shock or blow to the system, and is one of the most merciful arrangements of an all-kind, all-wise, and all-powerful Creator and Preserver. It is exemplified in the merciful One who graciously and most magnanimously permitted his worn and sorrow-filled disciples to sleep, even in the awful Garden of Gethsemane.

It is recorded, doubtless upon exactly the same principle, of the natives of India and Ceylon where statistics prove that no less than an average of forty-four thousand persons annually fall victims to the lions, tigers, leopards, panthers, anacondas, etc., and that those patients who had been severely maimed invariably stated when interrogated by Doctors Graham and Mortimer that at the time of the attack they were so dazed and bewildered by the sudden and totally unexpected shock of the lion or tiger's spring, that although they saw their own arms or limbs terribly lacerated they experienced no pain or anguish whatever at the time. One gentleman whose right arm was terribly torn by a large panther, on seeing his friend about to shoot the savage animal, called out for him not to fire, as his only fear was that the ball, instead of killing the animal, would strike him.

Thus it is as Professor Loudoun says, and an established and incontrovertible fact that both animals and men killed under such sudden and startled circumstances enjoy an absolutely painless, because unconscious death. Precisely the same conclusion may be stated in the case of persons struck with lightning, as has been repeatedly detailed in the essays of the French scientist, Professor Arago, called "Essays on meteorology."

Thus, by a most wise and beneficent arrangement, two of the most terribly frequent causes of sudden and violent death in the tropical regions are rendered absolutely painless to humanity.

Were time and space available without encroaching upon the rights of others, this interesting subject might have been followed into other and scarcely less interesting and unexpected regions, but I will draw to a close, hoping that your many readers will have enjoyed this little talk upon a subject which exemplifies, in its limited sphere, the unlimited skill, wisdom, power, and understanding of Him who hath founded the earth.

Yours in hope of eternal life,

F. R. TUBB.

LEEDS, YORKSHIRE, ENGLAND.

Editors Herald: I will do my utmost to spread this latter day work which I know is the true work of God, and I do humbly and truthfully thank God, through his Son, our Savior and Redeemer Jesus Christ, for the light and understanding he has given me through the restoration of the gospel, and through his ministers who act as his spectacles. I can truthfully say that I have been brought out of darkness into life and light, and I also have a knowledge for myself that my sins, which were numerous, have been forgiven through faith and hope and charity and the crucifixion of our Savior.

I finished reading the Book of Mormon this morning, and it is what its name implies—more truth, and a true vindicator of the Bible. I am going to commence reading the Doctrine and Covenants, which book I have hardly looked into as yet, but who is he who can doubt this work, having read even the one book? It is my prayer that this glorious work may spread, and even as I have accepted this gospel as a little child, and am growing more and more firm in it every day, that many others, both Jew and Gentile, may have a similar experience, and then Socialism and the many other so-called teachings, will cease to exist, they having no method by which to obtain their ideal state of society, hence continually striving one against another, which is in direct opposition to their teachings of harmony and peace.

May the blessing of God rest and abide with all in the faith, even the true faith of God.

HERBERT STOCHDALE.

ARMLEY, 11 Redshaw Road.

WINFIELD, KANSAS, August 18, 1912.

Dear Herald: Your pages come to us each week freighted with information of value to all who read. Wife and I have been here thirteen years, and in those years we have been visited by some of the eldership, among whom were I. P. Baggerly, J. Alfred Davis, F. C. Keck, J. Arthur Davis, and L. Connor. Brethren J. A. Davis and L. Connor held meeting at the home of Brother J. J. Boswell and mother in Winfield each week night, and at the home of the writer the first Sunday, and at the home of Brother and Sister George Vickery the next Sunday, which was preaching by Brother Davis at 10.30 a. m. and at 2 p. m. fellowship and sacrament. All of these services were very much enjoyed by the few Saints in this part; all of whom were present at the last two services, and as the result of the meetings in Winfield we trust some may be led to obey in the near future.

At least one good, noble woman is surely believing, and we pray that the good Spirit will continue to strive with her, that she may be saved. We are very anxious to have a tent in this part of the country, as we have no church house in which the ministry can hold forth when they come among us; and for this purpose the few Saints here have subscribed sixty-five dollars, and we hope the remainder will be forthcoming soon.

W. VICKERY.

The Eastern Michigan Reunion.

The Eastern Michigan district reunion of 1912 has passed into history and those who were privileged to be there will long remember both the spiritual time enjoyed and the spiritual instruction received. Many representing the priesthood were present, among whom were F. A. Smith, Brother McDowell, Brother Etzenhouser, E. K. Evans, Brethren Lev-erton, Bailey, Shields, Allen, Weaver, and Dowker.

The Lord in the manifestation of the Spirit through Brother McDowell said he was "preparing a pure priesthood."

The talks along social purity lines by Maggie Macgregor were a new feature, but very highly appreciated judging from the repeated requests for "another talk." The subject was not by any means exhausted, although Sister Macgregor gave four talks along that line. Only "the pure in heart shall see God." And God wants a people consecrated to him and keeping aloof from the contaminating influences of the world. The world has set up its standard of fashion and pleasure and demands the devotion of her votaries, and tens of thousands eagerly hasten to obey her command and lay their all upon her altar. No sacrifice is too great, no suffering too severe for those who worship this empty bubble. The road to destruction is paved with allurements. It is made smooth and alluring with pleasures. The world is rushing madly to its doom, it is surely being prepared for the burning. If we would escape being drawn into its whirlpool of gayety and pleasure we must draw the line sharply between us, we can not dally with our salvation and say, "Good Lord, good Devil." "We can not serve God and Mammon." God needs a consecrated people. I once heard the remark, God is not hard up for money, but he is hard up for consecrated workers. Only "the pure in heart shall see God." Brother Alexander Smith, now gone to his reward, told Brother White in vision if I remember correctly, "There are not many Saints in celestial glory." Dear Saints, do not think eternal life is so easily won. It is a constant warfare of ourselves and of the world. Paul said, "Work out your salvation with fear and trembling"; "be valiant in testimony." Be up and doing, diligent and faithful.

In our branch meeting last Sunday, one of our sisters was permitted to see the recording angel recording each testimony and the gift said, "Be faithful and diligent if you would be protected from the terrible scourges soon coming."

MRS. A. MCKENZIE.

Alabama Reunion.

Having been elected reunion secretary, I am glad to report as follows: Reunion of the Alabama District was held at the Pleasant Hill Church, near McKenzie, Alabama, July 26 to August 4.

On the morning of the 26th the Saints met at 10 o'clock for prayer and testimony, after which organization was effected as follows: Submissionary in charge F. M. Slover was chosen to preside, with Swen Swenson as associate; A. E. Warr chosen secretary; D. T. Parker chorister; Sister Pearl Sellers organist; W. H. Drake janitor; Horace Sellers and Hiram Wiggins ushers.

Prayer service each morning at 9 o'clock. Preaching at 10.45 and at 8 o'clock at night each day. The speakers who occupied were J. W. Dubose, A. G. Miller, Lloyd C. Moore, F. M. Slover, Swen Swenson, F. P. Scarelliff, and A. E. Warr.

The reunion was, without doubt, the best in the history of the Alabama District. On the afternoon of the 31st, nine were baptized by Elder F. M. Slover, and on the following Sunday, sixteen more were baptized by the same brother, making a total of twenty-five, the majority being young people, some of whom are destined to shine as workers in the future, if faithful.

The good Spirit prevailed on all occasions, and at many times in power. The gifts of the gospel being manifested, bringing peace and joy to our souls. During the baptism of one young brother, another brother on the shore was wrapped in vision and saw him declaring the gospel to a large congregation. One sister was shown the baptism of her husband three times in vision, which was fulfilled during the reunion.

The callings of several young men were made known, and at the Wednesday evening prayer service following the reunion, after a day of fasting and prayer, three were ordained, viz: A. A. Weaver, formerly a priest, to the office of elder; D. E. Sellers to office of priest; and Hiram Wiggins to that of deacon.

Without detracting from the work of any, we desire to make special mention of the work of the presiding officers, which was of a high character, both in preaching and presiding. At the close of the reunion a letter and poem from our worthy Brother T. C. Kelley was read and much appreciated and enjoyed by all.

Reunion committee appointed for next year are: George Sellers, A. A. Weaver, and Hiram Wiggins.

Altogether the reunion was such a grand success that we have not space to mention, neither words adequate to describe it. Suffice to say, we had a grand, good time, and now may we carry into effect the instruction and admonition given, that we may be fitted and prepared for that great and grand reunion, is my prayer.

A. E. WARR, Reunion Secretary.

BAY MINETTE, ALABAMA.

Toronto Reunion.

The Toronto district reunion was held on the beautiful shore of Lake Sturgeon, from July 25 to August 5. Bishop R. C. Evans and Counselor J. T. Thompson, and James Pycock of the missionary force were chosen to preside.

The attendance was much larger than last year, there being over twice as many tents on the grounds. Several of the local ministry were present, but only one missionary. The preaching was done by R. C. Evans, J. T. Thompson, James Pycock, J. T. Whitehead, Frank Gray, and James Wilson. All the ministry were used, either to preside or to assist.

The preaching services were very largely attended, and interest kept up until the last service. Prayer meeting was held at nine, preaching at fifteen minutes to eleven, and preaching at eight. Two sessions of institute work were in charge of J. T. Thompson and James Pycock.

The weather was cold and wet, yet many enjoyed fishing, boating, etc., during the afternoons that were given over for recreation.

Sisters Hazel Hathaway and Elsie Hill had charge of the music, being assisted by an orchestra and choir.

Good meals were served at fifteen cents in the dining tent, in charge of Sister Faulds. Sister Hamilton had charge of the kitchen, where Brother A. Fields and Miss Fannie Dodd cooked, gratis. Sisters Lizzie Evans and Clark had charge of the refreshment tent. Several others worked hard; in fact, everybody did what they could to make the reunion a success.

The Cameron Saints did all they could by conveying people and goods and lending lumber, chairs, etc., to help the reunion along.

It has awakened some interest in the vicinity, and the committee in charge of arrangements are to be congratulated upon its success.

The Saints have returned home resolved to make next reunion larger and better than this one.

JAMES PYCOCK.

CAMERON, August 18, 1912.

Eastern Oklahoma Reunion.

Reunion met at Dagon Park, Wilburton, Oklahoma, August 2, at 10 a. m., and proceeded to organize as follows: J. F. Curtis chosen to preside, with Lee Quick and J. W. A. Bailey to assist; E. A. Erwin was chosen clerk; Doctor Dalbey, Lee Quick, and E. A. Erwin were elected press committee; H. R. Harder, Sister Dora Dalbey, Cora Harder, Johnnie White, and V. L. Lum were elected reception committee; J. F. Curtis was elected chorister; Effie Wallace organist.

The reunion lasted ten days. We had quite a number of good preachers with us. J. F. Curtis, Lee Quick, Jesse M. Simmons, J. W. A. Bailey, J. M. Smith, Alma White, of Independence, Missouri, S. W. Simmons, and E. A. Erwin.

The preaching was of a high order. We would often hear the remark, I never heard better preaching in my life. Our prayer meetings were fine. We had five services a day. Children's exercise at eight; preaching at half past ten; and at two, and at eight in the evening. All those services were enjoyed by all that attended them.

Alma White preached one sermon to the Saints. It was as grand a sermon as ever was enjoyed in this country. I hope the effects of it will never be forgotten by the Saints, and will help them prepare for the coming of our Savior.

There were some hindrances during the reunion; it rained several days, and on Sunday morning, the last day of the reunion, we experienced one of the severest hailstorms I ever saw. Some sickness was in the camp. Brother Curtis and Brother Quick were both on the puny list.

Brother Curtis left us before the reunion was over, to take part in the reunion at Pittsburg, Kansas. He was feeling better when he left.

On Sunday evening, the day the reunion closed, we gathered at the water's edge. Lee Quick led six beautiful little girls into the waters of baptism. It indeed was a beautiful sight. V. L. Lum baptized a lady during the conference week, making seven baptized during the conference.

The sad time came on Sunday evening, the 11th, when the reunion closed. Brother Quick preached the closing sermon. We remained together until 11 o'clock, wondering when we would all meet again. My prayer is that if we never all meet again in this world we will all meet in that great reunion when our Lord comes to reign a thousand years; when not only the living will meet, but we will meet with all the pure and good that death has separated us from so long.

Brethren J. N. and W. H. Cox and Sisters Jose and Eli and Goodman, and Mattie Kelsie, from northeastern Texas, attended our reunion. They returned home rejoicing.

E. A. ERWIN.

Reunion at Cisne, Illinois.

I am here at the Egyptian Hospital, where I am recovering from an operation performed soon after the close of our reunion, and as the secretary of our reunion I promised to write a little account of it. The reunion was held from August 10 to 19, at a point three miles from Cisne, Illinois, where Brethren Fred O. Pritchett and Lloyd C. Moore had aroused an interest and had baptized a number of members, and with the assistance of the citizens had built a church house.

Peter Anderson, of the Twelve, and William Lewis, patriarch, with daughter Ruth, came at the beginning and remained the entire time, except that Brother Lewis and Ruth had to leave after the 11 o'clock service Sunday. We also had of our missionary force, I. M. Smith and C. E. Bozarth; also S. S. Smith, who came in from Independence on the last Saturday. Brother Sawley, of the Saint Louis District, was with us the entire time. So with the local ministry we had plenty of help.

The prayer meetings were marked with a high degree of spirituality, and the sermons were mostly along lines of duty and instruction to the Saints.

The deportment of the Saints was very commendable, with few exceptions. It is very evident that the upbuilding influences that attend our reunions are having a good effect on the Saints who attend them from year to year.

There were one hundred and forty regular campers on the grounds, with perhaps thirty or forty transient campers; the church house was partitioned off with the walls of the big tent and occupied by a number. There were twenty-six canvas houses. The weather was against us some, but we only missed two meetings on account of the rain.

Brother Lewis and Ruth were kept very busy with their line of work. Three were baptized during the reunion. The arrangements for the boarding house did not materialize, so after coming on the ground and seeing the situation Sister Morris and Sister Nora Anderson agreed to run the dining tent for the ministry. With the help of faithful Cora Ellis, Bessie Wesner, and others, they did their work very acceptably.

The fact was emphasized in several ways that it is best to hold the reunions in branches where there are plenty of Saints to help carry it on, and a movement is on foot to secure ground and have a permanent location for the annual reunion. It is argued that the reunions could be carried on with less expense and with much more certainty about conveniences, etc. However, our reunion was pronounced a success and was thoroughly enjoyed by the Saints, who very patiently adapted themselves to the inconveniences of the situation.

The committee deserves credit for their work. We hope the reunion idea will grow upon the Saints, as it has a great influence on the lives of the Saints and teaches them to care less for the material things of the world and more for spiritual things.

A. H. BURROUGHS, Secretary.

MOUNT VERNON, ILLINOIS, August 22, 1912.

Aylor-Morgan Debate.

The debate between W. M. Aylor and F. W. Morgan, held eight miles west of here, is a matter of history and was a perfect success from our standpoint. It was well attended and hundreds of people heard the gospel set forth in its original fullness and purity. They also saw a nonprogressive Campbellite preacher decisively defeated.

The Campbellites challenged our people and we referred the matter to Brother Aylor, who came down and waited on them. Their little pentecostal cause went down when contrasted with the gospel in its fullness set forth by Brother Aylor. I think he is one among our great men of the church. He has the respect of the people who heard him as being a Christian gentleman and a debater of strength; dignified, but humble. Some of the Campbellites fell in love with him because of his ability. Considerable prejudice has been removed, and the Saints built up wonderfully. I would not have missed it for anything. I wished for so many of the Saints who were isolated and had not the privilege of hearing such things. The debate caused quite a stir and is the theme of conversation. The Campbellites are feeling sore over it. At the close of the debate one stated publicly that they were not satisfied and made another challenge, aiming to get a stronger man; so it may be repeated at Chilton, Texas, about October 1.

Brother Aylor got some bouquets. They wanted to pin them on him, but he didn't think it best, and they laid them on the table.

This is the first debate in this part, and the Saints are surely rejoicing in the fact that we have a faith that will stand the test. Opposition only makes it shine the brighter. I could set forth some points of the debate but will not. Suffice it to say that Brother Aylor, directed by the Lord, as I believe he was, met Campbellism at every turn, and his wit and humor entertained us nicely before the close. We were made glad we were Latter Day Saints.

Should anyone want to know about Brother Aylor I can tell them. He has been in our midst since July 19, and has been busy almost the whole time; accomplishing a great deal of good, building up the work and making many friends.

W. R. STANDEFER.

MARLIN, TEXAS, August 14, 1912.

Extracts from Letters.

Brother A. E. Martin, Herschel, Saskatchewan, sending a contribution for the Order of Enoch, writes: "We have moved out here and filed on a homestead. We thank God that we have the church papers to read. We are hoping that some day there will be a branch here. We hope to have an elder come and preach the gospel here. We go to hear both the Methodists and Presbyterians and get what good we can. The people here go to church and then to the ballroom. When they ask our opinion about such things we tell them that we do not believe in it and our church does not sanction it. It seems that pleasure is what the people want. We can say amen to the editorial articles in the HERALD about the Order of Enoch; it is just what we want to hear. We are thankful to God for the little we have and know that God loves a cheerful giver. We are sending the money to you, as we can not locate the address just now. Crops are good; never were better. Mosquitoes are very bad at present."

News from Missions

Utah.

A word from this part, regarding things as they are, and not as we would like to have them, may not be amiss.

As to the landscape, we have no fault to find with this valley of the mountains. Its altitude is 5,500 feet above sea level. Heber is a town of about two thousand inhabitants, and is not far from the head of Provo Canyon, which affords ingress from and egress to, the lower levels of Provo and Salt Lake valleys. But one can not live, either physically or spiritually, on mere scenery or pleasant landscape, be it ever so green and grassy. Neither can one truly live on the pleasures and amusements so much in evidence in Utah; at least not less so than elsewhere, when church houses or assembly halls are also dance halls, and I might say picture shows usurp the place of prayer meetings in the hearts and lives of the people, not excepting our own Saints altogether. There are many holidays and feast days, including the great "Pioneer Day" (July 24), peculiar to Utah. This afternoon (Friday), is here given up to baseball; all stores and even the post office closing during the game. I wonder if "Uncle Sam" knows it. To-night the dance in the amusement hall, hard by the synagogue ("Stake House"), overshadows all else, and competition with it is hardly to be thought of; that is, successful competition, yet we shall try to do something.

Brother Charles Chase and myself are domiciled with Brother and Mrs. Ola Johnson, and comfortably so. Brother Ola is the one "sheep" known to us in this locality. We hope there are others known to God, and that we may find them. I am glad to say that Brother Ola is all wool and a yard wide as to quality of discipleship, so far as I am able to judge. Mrs. J., whom Brother Ola has recently taken to himself, the wife of his old age, faithfully performs her part in caring for us, though a member of the dominant church. Hope our visit will not be to her disadvantage spiritually.

We have held two services in the Second Ward Meeting-house, with certainly not very large results (to be expected), when the attendance, or lack of it, is considered. Had to adjourn last night for choir practice, which did not convene seemingly, but sermonized on the street from 2 Timothy 3:1-5, being thus directed.

The night before, Brother Charles Chase discoursed intelligently and well on "Salvation for the dead." This subject seems to have full more consideration in Utah than salvation for the living. We announced a subject for a street service to-night, but have since been informed that there is a city ordinance against all street meetings. Well, we will be there to talk to whosoever comes and wills, and see what develops.

We had quite an excitement and some amusement after the street service last night, while Charlie fraced with John Murdock, who contended with us on a number of points. Charles held on and would not let him go. Time, nor our persuasion did not seem to admonish him, so Brother Johnson and myself "trekked," with the battle still on. Charlie reported in the morning that he got his opponent in a corner, on the question of ordination to the Presidency, and that the bystanders remaining saw it and said, "The kid has got him cornered," but it seems the next thing was, the town marshal got Charlie cornered and warned him (us) against holding further street meetings. So what are we going to do about it, or what is the next move on the checkerboard? Possibly we are frozen out in warm weather, just as we thought we had a fire started.

I might say that I think and know that there are some, I don't know how many, good people in Utah, but they are so bound up in the combination that exists, that it is truly a problem to know how to reach and extricate them. When we as ministers and members keep the whole law and labor in full accord with its provisions and specifications, there must come to us power for the solution of the problem. When we as ministers unitedly adjust ourselves for the reception of God's power, we shall receive it to the overcoming of the combinations of evil. Singly and separately we can do little. Individual faithfulness counts, of course, and should bring us to united faithfulness, and power for good. The law of "common consent" should not be lacking in the work and labors of a common ministry. The "Do as you are told" unity of Utah is not to be emulated or imitated by the true servants of God. Men are drafted and sent, here, at the will of the regnant powers. A strong and perfect organization or ecclesiastical machine is the boast. It does its kind of work, but who that knows God, delights in merely human rule, "a form of godliness that denies the power," that gives the power no sway, or that in the excess of human control, severely limits it? I think if we unitedly court this power, as was done on the day of Pentecost, or prior to it, and in the same humility, purity, earnestness and faith, we shall know what it is to be "sent forth by the Holy Ghost." If there was an endowment needed by the old organization at Kirtland, does not the Reorganization have the same need of the same preparation? And is not this a present need? We judge it is in Utah. Nothing but the power of God will "shew" these people the truth, or at least convert them to it.

We have more members here than real converts. Others may glory in quantity, numbers, endless increase, "eternal lives," etc. We glory rather in quality, in spiritual increase, in raising up seed unto the Lord, by and through his commandments.

"If I will, saith the Lord, raise up seed unto me, I will command my people." In no past dispensation, did he ever command polygamy? It can not be shown that polygamy ever produced a "godly seed." It is not now in evidence that it has here in Utah. There is a spiritual deadness that is admitted, by some of the church people at least. There is an alertness to all kinds and forms of pleasure.

Well, I will forbear, considering that there are many demands on your columns, and will state in closing that at a late hour we secured permission from one "higher up," the mayor, to hold street meetings, and questions and skirmishing on the subject, "Succession in the Presidency of the church," ended in a challenge for debate. The propositions which we have written up have been accepted, and are waiting the arranging of some details as to time, etc., before being signed. We feel hopeful, and enjoy the fight.

M. F. GOWELL.

HEBER, UTAH, August 16, 1912.

Norway.

It is some time since I wrote you, and as I have seen nothing in your columns from this part of the vineyard, I will once again inform your readers that we are still contending for the right, over here in the Scandinavian countries, and as yet we see no reasons for withdrawing from the conflict.

I have almost constantly, for more than a year, been engaged in the city of Copenhagen, Denmark, finding the conditions such that I deemed it unwise to discontinue the work there, even for a short season, hence made arrangement with Brother Muceus to leave Norway and take my place while I was spending some time visiting other parts of the field.

The brother arrived July 7, and a few days later I made a trip to Aalborg, where I hunted up the few Saints and friends whose acquaintance I made on my former mission. I found them glad to see me, and it was encouraging to learn that the good seed scattered at that time by myself and others, may not be in vain, but grow to bear fruit. My stay was short, as it seemed to be an inopportune time to do preaching, but I have reason to believe that my visit was productive of some good.

As information had reached us to the effect that Brethren Okerlind and Strand would sail from New York on July 10, I remained with Brother Muceus in Copenhagen, believing it would be profitable for us to meet and counsel together with reference to the work before us. There happened to be a delay, however, and instead of sailing on the 10th the boat did not leave until the 16th. The brethren arrived, however, in Copenhagen on the morning of the 26th, and we were happy to greet this reinforcement. We were now four elders together, which made one who had been battling alone for a year, feel quite strong. Brother C. A. Swenson was at Helsingborg, Sweden, and Brother J. H. Hansen, who little more than a month previous had arrived in Sweden, was also within easy reach, so those two brethren, together with several of the Swedish Saints, also joined us in Copenhagen, and Sunday and Monday, the 28th and 29th, we held three services each day, and though on a small scale, it reminded us of some of our conferences and reunions in America. Our meetings were profitable to us who were permitted to attend, and I believe helpful to the work in Copenhagen.

Our association was of short duration, however, as Brethren Hansen and Swenson, together with the Saints from Sweden, returned on the evening of the 29th. Brother Okerlind departed for Stockholm on the morning of the 31st. Brother Oscar Johnson, who has been alone in that city for a length of time, will be pleased to receive help. Brother Strand, Sister Hansen and myself left for this place August 1.

We arrived on the morning of the following day and at once made arrangements for meeting, and on Sunday, the 4th, preached to a fair attendance. Also the same day had a little sacrament meeting where the few Saints we found met and witnessed before the Lord that they still remembered him and were willing to serve him.

Brother Strand left us on August 6 to visit relatives, expecting to meet us in a few weeks somewhere in the field.

I am glad to report that the prospects for the work seem more encouraging. A few have been baptized in Copenhagen, and several are interested and investigating. I expect to learn ere long that Brother Muceus will have initiated several others into the fold. My stay here is only for a couple of weeks, but I am preaching as often as circumstances will admit during that time, hoping that the work will be taken up again in the near future by Brother Strand and by Brother Muceus when the latter returns from Copenhagen. Expect to visit Porsgrund, Kragero, and Eidsvold, after leaving here, also Stockholm, Sweden, hoping to reach Copenhagen some time before October 1.

I am endeavoring everywhere to make plain the distinction between us and the Utah people, but I am endeavoring to do it in a way that ought not to be offensive to any, remembering the golden rule: "Do unto others as you wish them to do unto you."

I spoke last night to a full house on this question and most of them seemed interested, but it was apparent, on the part of some, that it did not suit them because I did not condemn the latter day work, both root and branch. Yet quite a number, all strangers, expressed themselves pleased and said they were coming again, as they wanted to hear more. Our "cousins" from the West do not like it, however, and are doing their best to ignore us, evidently feeling that an open investigation would not be beneficial to their cause. They are, however, active when our back is turned, and I am, by them, said to be the meanest of men, branded as an apostate, and all that they can think of that is bad.

Those seem to be their favorite weapons of warfare, undoubtedly because they have no better. Andrew Jensen, recently in charge of their work in these countries, got after Hans P. Freece with the same kind of weapons, publishing in their paper an article in which he called him a "vicious liar," an "audacious slanderer," and "the most notorious graft on the Freece-house." For this, according to the newspapers, he was by the courts found guilty of libel and adjudged to pay a fine of four hundred kroner and one hundred kroner costs. Jensen, however, had left the country, and I don't know if the fine has been, or will be collected.

I shall not feel troubled on account of what they may say about me, and will endeavor to keep myself above their level and not seek to retaliate, feeling I can well afford to endure it all for the truth's sake. The use of sarcasm and epithets will not make our case one whit stronger, and I think best to refrain from such. I was sorry to see in the HERALD that one writer made use of the term: "the scoundrel Brigham Young." It did not sound well to me.

We have now in all seven elders in Scandinavia, and we trust under the blessings of God that good may accrue to the cause for which we are laboring. Though we have no general conference appointees in Germany, we have good news from the local brethren, which indicates that they are doing what they can under the unfavorable conditions that prevail in that land. It is to be hoped that He who rules over all, even holding the destiny of nations in his hand, and who is opening the way for the proclamation of his truth in many lands, may continue to influence the actions of men until the way shall be opened for the successful proclamation of the gospel of Christ also in Germany.

All is well with us, and we desire to be remembered by the Saints in the home-land. Sister Hansen feels a little lonesome at times, away from loved ones, but we have no reason to complain, but rather to be thankful to be accounted worthy to do labor for the Lord.

In gospel bonds,

H. N. HANSEN.

Permanent address: Blaagaardsgade 16 D., Copenhagen, Denmark.

Nebraska.

I wish to say to the many readers of the HERALD, that I am not dead, neither am I asleep, but I am out here in the North Platte River Valley, among the mosquitoes, fighting to keep them from devouring me entirely; and also trying to get the human inhabitants interested in the gospel of the kingdom of God. But on account of the people being so busy, and the mosquitoes so numerous, I have been unable to accomplish very much so far.

After attending the General Conference, I returned to my home at Raymond, Idaho, to look after temporal affairs at home before entering into the mission field assigned me, Western Nebraska, and having promised to return to Blackfoot and Aberdeen, in Idaho, and finish the work I had begun near those places, I fulfilled those promises, and succeeded in baptizing eleven precious souls near those places. I then came to Kimball County, Nebraska, and held a series of meetings in a schoolhouse, about seven miles from Kimball, and baptized two children. This was in a Kinkaid settlement. By Kinkaid, I mean homesteads of six hundred and forty acres, taken under the Kinkaid homestead law.

I was kindly cared for by Brethren H. H. Robinson, Ralph and George Brown, C. H. Rawlins, and others. Brother Robinson took me overland to Gering, with his team, and I continued there for a short time preaching, and visiting the scattered Saints. Here, as at other places, kind friends ministered to my needs. From Gering I went to Bridgeport, and held several meetings in the home of Brother Boodry. I then went to the home of Brother John Vandel, near Vance, and preached ten sermons in a schoolhouse near there. This is one of the places where Brother J. E. Kelley preached; and I am glad to labor in the places where he has labored, for he has left a good record. I then went to Bayard and Minatare, but did not preach at Minatare, and only preached twice at Bayard.

At present I am in Bridgeport, but will not remain here long. The Western Nebraska reunion will begin on the 13th of September, and I expect to attend, and would be pleased to meet all who can possibly attend.

I wish to say to all the dear Saints among whom I have labored in the past, I have not forgotten any of you, and pray that God will be with you till we meet again, and bless you all with that which is best for you to have. Hoping to be able by the power of God to faithfully perform the duties assigned me, I am your brother in gospel bonds.

A. J. LAYLAND.

BRIDGEPORT, NEBRASKA, August 21, 1912.

New York.

I started tent work about the middle of June, and have continued since that time, in three new places. Brother R. Etzenhouser was with me for a while, but since coming to this place I have been alone, so far as preaching is concerned, though my wife is with me and renders valuable service in playing and singing. We have been at this place nearly four weeks, and I have preached twenty-five sermons, and did a lot of talking and visiting, and sold one copy of the Book of Mormon. Though the weather has been against us, and it has rained nearly every day since coming here, we have not missed one meeting on that account.

The Lord has blessed me wonderfully in preaching the word, and many are convinced that we have the truth, but don't know whether any will accept it or not. I feel well in the work, and am never better pleased than when laboring for the upbuilding of this great work of God. I hope for its ultimate triumph, and the great victory for his people.

ALMA BOOKER.

NAPLES, NEW YORK, August 17, 1912.

Connecticut.

I last wrote you from the town of Dixfield, Maine. I confined my effort in the section of the country, around Dixfield Center, for the simple reason that it did not seem possible to get any other place to preach in just at that time. I visited a number of places, and hope that the way may be opened later to reach some of them with the gospel story.

I was made welcome at the pleasant home of Brother and Sister Holman while at the Common, and also at Brother Lee Blanchard's, Sister Tainter's, and Brother John Towle's. I continued meetings until July 7 and left Dixfield July 10 for Brunswick. Found Brother Young and wife well. Remained in Brunswick until the 15th, then went to Portland and took the boat for Boston.

I did not stop in Boston, but went to Brockton, as I felt I might be of some help to them. I remained in Brockton over Sunday and then went home for a few days. Met with the Saints in Providence in prayer service and Saturday afternoon, in company with my son Fred, went to the Massachusetts reunion at Onset.

To attempt a complete description of the reunion would require too much space and would be in a large degree impossible. The Spirit of God was there from the beginning and remained with us until the end. Every heart was gladdened and every soul enlarged by the divine fire. Revelations, prophecy, tongues, interpretation, etc., were some of the outward manifestations of the light within. The preaching was of a high order and the other exercises very pleasing.

Doctor Sinclair, of Somerville, had charge of the institute work, and with Sister Mary Mesle and Brother Frank Dobbins as assistants, made this part of the reunion one of the most pleasing of sessions.

Brother John Garver "blew in" from the West, with "fear and trembling," so he said, but nobody would ever have known it, if he had not told us so himself. However, the fear soon wore off and John was "Johnny on the spot," for the rest of the time.

The Massachusetts District is surely advancing in spiritual things, and a long step in advance was taken at this reunion in temporal things as well. Zion may be a possibility after all, and not as many of us have supposed, merely a glittering theory; a splendid picture; a magnificent hope; but hardly a reality.

The days at the reunion flew swiftly, and before we realized it the reunion of 1912 was over. Brother Greene sent the writer to Providence to look after the Sunday services there, so I lost the last day of the reunion.

Thursday, August 15, found me at New London, Connecticut, waiting for Brother Thomas Whipple to take me to his home. Somehow we failed to connect, and after wandering around town all day I was picked up on the road by Sister Daniel Whipple and saved a very long and hot walk. There are just a few of the Saints in this vicinity without organization or help, and I trust some good may be done while I am here.

I had the privilege of leading two people into the water at the reunion, Brother Justin Luce, of Dryden, Maine, and Sister Nellie Crowell, of Brockton, Massachusetts. The former became acquainted with the work while the writer was at Dixfield and the latter has known of the gospel from her youth. I will probably be in this place for two weeks or more, and then will go to Wareham, Massachusetts, for a short time, and then into the western part of Maine. Any of the Saints living in the western part of Maine that I am not acquainted with, or those in New Hampshire that desire an effort to be made to reach the people in their vicinity with the gospel light, please write me any time at my home address, Thornton, Rhode Island.

As ever,

GEORGE W. ROBLEY.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHERN MISSOURI.—District conference convened at the Climax Schoolhouse, near Alton, Missouri, July 27, 1912, at 10 a. m., with Vice President G. A. Davis in the chair, Benjamin Pearson secretary. After the opening exercises Elder W. H. Kelley was chosen to preside over the conference, assisted by the vice president. Reports from branches were as follows: Ava 95; Springfield 202; Beaver 85; Macomb 29; Thayer 34; Woodside 47; Logan Creek 43; Piedmont 12; West Plain 49. Branches not reporting: Grove Springs and Naylor. Ministry reporting: Elders: G. A. Davis, George Edwards, Benjamin Pearson, C. T. Orr, J. W. Quinly, J. F. Cunningham, T. J. Simpson, R. H. Counts, C. Quick, A. M. D. McGuire, A. J. Fletcher, McFadden, and W. H. Kelley. Benjamin Pearson as bishop's agent reported: Balance and receipts, $164.74; paid out, $162.25; balance due church, $2.49. District treasurer's report: Expenses, $5.45; receipts, $4; balance due treasurer, $1.45. A communication from the Macomb Branch was read, recommending John Poort for ordination to office of priest, and petitioning conference to provide for his ordination. Also one from the Ava Branch, presenting Albert Poort for ordination to the office of priest. On motion both petitions were referred to a committee of three, they to report to this conference. This was done, and the ordinations provided for. Officers elected: J. F. Cunningham, president; R. H. Counts, vice president; Benjamin Pearson, secretary and treasurer. The next conference is to be with the West Plains Branch, November 23 and 24, 1912. Preaching during conference by Elders Pearson, Edwards, Kelley, and Counts. A vote of thanks was extended to all those who entertained the visitors, and conference adjourned. Benjamin Pearson, secretary.

FLORIDA.—District met near Dixonville, Alabama, with the Alaflora Branch, at 10 a. m., Saturday, August 10, 1912. C. J. Clark, F. M. Slover, and Swen Swenson presiding, E. N. McCall and Albert Warr, secretaries. Priesthood reporting: Elders: C. J. Clark, W. A. West, B. L. Jernigan, S. D. Allen, W. S. McPherson, George O. Sellers, F. M. Slover, A. Warr, and Swen Swenson. Priests: J. H. Johnson, J. H. Barnes, E. N. McCall, C. Dixon, and James Cooper. Teachers: Willoughby Dixon and Frank Brantley. Deacons: J. N. Jernigan and T. J. Barnes. Branches reporting: Santa Rosa 86; Fairview 14; Alaflora 125; Open Head 38; Coldwater 88. Bishop's agent reported balance due agent last report, $67.17; paid out since, $275; total expenditures, $342.17; received, $176.50; balance due agent, $165.67. This report was audited by W. A. West, O. O. Simmons, and J. D. McArthur, and they reported that it was correct. C. J. Clark asked that the conference appoint an elders' court to take care of some cases pending in the district. G. O. Sellers, F. P. Scarcliff, and W. S. McPherson were appointed as such court. A request from W. P. Booker (colored) asking that a branch (colored) be organized at or near Pine Barren, Florida, was referred to the missionary in charge and district president. The next district conference will be held with the Fairview Branch, near Pensacola, Florida, 10 a. m., Saturday before the first Sunday in December, 1912. The reunion committee reported that the reunion will be held at the Alaflora church, Dixonville, Alabama, beginning October 19, continuing through two Sundays. Also that Brethren F. M. Smith and Ammon White are expected to be in attendance. Preaching by F. M. Slover and Swen Swenson. The services were peaceful and encouraging, and all seem to be made stronger to battle onward. E. N. McCall, secretary.

Convention Minutes.

FLORIDA.—District Sunday school association met in convention with the Alaflora Branch, at Dixonville, Alabama, at 2.30 p. m., Friday, August 9, 1912. Reports from the following schools were read: Open Head, Santa Rosa, Alaflora, Sunlight, Fairview. Coldwater Sunday School failed to report. Instructive discussion of the home department work in the district was heard after the business session. Interesting program in the evening given by all the schools. Anna Worlund, district secretary.

FAR WEST.—District Sunday school and Religio Society convention was held at Stewartville, Missouri, July 20, 21, 1912. Although not as well attended as former conventions, those attending expressed their willingness to continue in the Religio and Sunday school work. A number of papers and short talks were had which were well received, and much good was gleaned from all of them. The election of a secretary was necessary on account of former secretary handing in his resignation. R. L. Henry was elected to fill out the unexpired term. A new local was organized, which was Oakdale. Reports show that this local is in good condition and all working together nicely. All reports show a general good feeling and a desire throughout the district to press on in the work. The report of the treasurer shows a balance on hand of $11.41. Following is report of the standing in the district of a few of the locals for the quarter ending March 31, 1912: Locals holding thirteen sessions were Union, Edgerton Junction, First Saint Joseph, and Second Saint Joseph. Locals holding twelve sessions: Stewartville, Cameron, Trenton, Far West, and Zion's Hope. Locals holding ten sessions: Mount Pleasant. Far West local leads in average attendance, with an enrollment of twenty-four, an average attendance of twenty-five; Zion's Hope leads in membership gained during the quarter. For quarter ending July 1, 1912, reports show a total enrollment of 501, a gain of twenty-one. Locals holding thirteen sessions were Star of Bethlehem and First Saint Joseph. Oakdale leads with average attendance, with an enrollment of thirty, an average attendance of forty-two; Edgerton Junction leads in the number used on program per enrollment. As per recommendation of President Andes, the Kingston and Norborn locals were disorganized. A committee appointed by President Andes, composed of R. L. Henry, S. H. Simmons, and Thomas Fiddick, were empowered to secure a loose leaf system suitable for the needs of the district records, the system now used not giving the desired information along certain lines. Also a committee composed of the Sunday school and Religio district officers to have charge of the auxiliary work at the reunion to be held at Stewartville, Missouri, August 23 to September 1 inclusive. This committee named J. A. Gunsolley to act as field worker, and if impossible for him to attend to this, he to appoint his assistant. In joint session of the Sunday school and Religio society it was decided that when we adjourn we do so to meet with the First Saint Joseph Branch the third Saturday and Sunday in January, 1913. R. L. Henry, district secretary. Religio Society.

Conference Notices.

Conference of Southeastern Illinois District will convene with the Parrish Branch, September 21, 1912, at 10 a. m. Branch clerks please send reports to me at Xenia, Illinois, in time before I start to the conference. Do not forget assessment. We hope to have a good report from the missionary force, as also from the local ministry. A. H. Burroughs, district secretary.

Convention Notices.

Toronto, Ontario, district Religio Association will convene at Wiarton, October 4, at 2 p. m. In the evening there will be a joint session with the Sunday school, for which an instructive and interesting program will be prepared. We urge every Religio local and home class to appoint delegates who will come prepared to help make the convention a benefit to all, and a beginning of a better and greater year's work for our district. Floralice Miller, president; Victoria Snell, secretary.

The Northern California district Sunday school association will convene at Irvington with the reunion on Wednesday, September 4, at 2 p. m. Sunday school secretaries please send reports before this date. Home class workers take notice also. Brother Daniel Macgregor, general superintendent, will be present at this convention. A joint entertainment of Sunday school and Religio will be held on Friday evening. Mrs. L. Day, district secretary, 4663 Eighteenth Street, San Francisco, California.

Request for Prayer.

Brother S. G. Cummings, Keitch, Colorado, writes: "I have been down sick with rheumatism for some time. I request the prayers of the Saints that I may be healed of it is the Lord's will."

Two-Day Meetings.

There will be a two-day meeting at Spruce, Michigan, September 14 and 15. All Saints that come by train on the Detroit and Mackinac Railway will be met at Ossineke Friday evening. Everybody come and bring well-filled baskets. George W. Burt, district president.

CONTENTS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

EDITORIAL:

Why We Believe in God - - - - - 821

Editorial Selection - - - - - 824

A Correction - - - - - 824

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

A Review of Mormonism Against Itself, Part 34, by S. W. L. Scott - - - - - 825

Dealing with the Erring, No. 5, by Charles Fry - - - - - 828

Leaves from Life, Experiences of H. N. Snively, Part 1 - - - - - 830

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 835

Elsie Stewart—F. R. Tubb—Herbert Stochdale—W. Vickery—Mrs. A. McKenzie—A. E. Warr—James Pycock—E. A. Erwin—A. H. Burroughs—W. R. Standefer—Extracts from Letters.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 839

M. F. Gowell—H. N. Hansen.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 842

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.
Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

Correction.

In your issue of HERALD dated August 14, 1912, in the two-day meeting notice for Sparta, Michigan, it should read, "Come by way of Pere Marquette Railroad, or Grand Trunk. Committee will meet both trains."

Died.

RIVERS.—James Monroe, son of Brother John and Sister May Rivers, was born at Wichita, Kansas, March 17, 1911; died August 6, 1912, aged one year, 4 months, and 20 days. Funeral was held at the home Wednesday, August 7, at 10.30 a. m., in charge of Brother E. L. Barraclough, of Wichita; sermon by W. Vickery, of Winfield, Kansas. The good Lord comfort and bless the bereaved parents.

SCHULTE.—Henry Schulte was born in Price Mintun, Germany, September 9, 1848. When about two years of age his parents brought him to Cleveland, Ohio, for a short time, moving to central Wisconsin later, then to Sargent County, North Dakota, where he has since resided. Married Lizzie Bierlein, January 22, 1878, and to them were born seven children, five of whom are living, George, Sophie, Fred, Augusta, and Willie. He died at his home, August 2, 1912. He was a kind husband and father, and well respected by his acquaintances. Funeral service at the home and burial in the Brampton Cemetery; sermon by J. E. Wildermuth.

VANALSTINE.—Ida Etta Loomis was born June 23, 1880, at Augusta, Wisconsin. She was the daughter of Brother Jay and Flora Loomis. She was baptized April 23, 1893, at Wildwood, Wisconsin, by E. M. Wildermuth; died July 2, 1912. Sister Etta was a great sufferer for many years, being greatly afflicted. She was loved and respected by all who knew her. Died strong in the faith. Leaves a husband, Ray Vanalstine, two sons, many relatives and friends to mourn. Funeral service held in the Saints' church at Valley Junction; sermon by W. A. McDowell to a large gathering of relatives and friends.

MILLER.—Miss Chestia (or Jessie, as she was known) Miller, daughter of Mr. Jacob and Sister Clara Miller, was born April 23, 1890, at Bay Port, Michigan; died at the home of her parents in Madison, Wisconsin, August 7, 1912, aged 22 years, 3 months, and 15 days. She was baptized August 26, 1906, by John W. Bailey, confirmed by W. P. Robinson and W. A. McDowell. She lived a good Christian life, devoted to the church, and died strong in the faith. Loved and respected by all. She leaves to mourn, father, mother, one brother, one sister, and many friends. Funeral service held in the Latter Day Saints' church at Madison; sermon by W. A. McDowell, assisted by E. J. Goodenough. Many tributes of respect and love were shown in her behalf.

JOHNSON.—At Magnolia, Iowa, July 31, 1912, Sister Elizabeth Johnson, aged 81 years, 10 months, and 5 days. Born in Sweden September 26, 1830; married Andrew Johnson in 1861; came to Omaha, Nebraska, October, 1869 (Brother Johnson coming in 1867); she united with the Reorganization in April, 1872. They removed from Omaha to Magnolia, April, 1881. She was the mother of six children, of whom three sons and two daughters, with husband, survive, mourning her departure. Sister Johnson was a devoted wife and mother, a faithful Saint and good neighbor, loved and respected by all her friends. She loved the gospel and its Author, rejoicing in the hope of eternal life, saying:

"I am list'ning for His footfall,
And to hear His welcome voice,
For my heart has grown a-weary,
But in Jesus I rejoice;
Well I know He is coming,
And my aching head shall rest
On the bosom of my Savior,
Slumber on His loving breast."

Funeral service at the home; sermon by J. F. McDowell, August 2, at 2 p. m.

CARR.—After seven months of severe illness, Bertram Carr died at Jerusalem, Palestine, July 29, 1912. He leaves wife and three children here, and mother, brother, and sister in America to mourn his loss. He was born at Assumption, Illinois, January 22, 1869. Having become dissatisfied with the different denominations, together with his family he came to Jerusalem three years ago, and was strangely brought in contact with the latter day work; was baptized November 16, 1910, by Elder F. G. Pitt. Funeral service at the Saints' residence conducted by R. Jenkins, assisted by missionaries Thompson and Jago, of the Christian Alliance. All the Protestant missionaries in Jerusalem were in attendance. Interment at the American Cemetery. Sister Carr is sister to Brother H. W. Goold, of Independence, Missouri.

HARLOW.—Died at Dequeen, August 10, 1912, Brother B. E. Harlow, after an illness of four weeks, during which he suffered much. He told his family of two visions, in which he saw his deceased children, with the message that he was soon to join them. Two weeks before death the writer administered to him. He requested that I preach his funeral sermon, and said he was ready to depart. He was born in Kentucky, in 1855; moved to Iowa when six years old; thence to Arkansas. He accepted the gospel in May, 1908. He leaves a widow and three children. Brother and Sister Harlow have proved themselves Saints indeed and by humble and consistent lives won the respect of all who knew them. Sermon by J. E. Youmans.

HENLINE.—Brother B. H. Henline, after much suffering with stomach trouble, and finally an operation in one of Clarksburg's best hospitals, departed this life August 13, 1912, at Clarksburg, West Virginia. He was born April 17, 1851, in West Virginia; baptized October 14, 1910, at Orlando, by Elder James M. Stubbart. His wife, five sons, four daughters, three brothers, and several grandchildren survive. The esteem in which he was held was manifested by the large attendance at his funeral, which was conducted by Joseph Biggs.

You Owe Yourself a Taste of Colorado

You feel the need of a complete change and rest occasionally. Everybody does. Now in all the world there is probably no country which combines such perfect climate, glorious scenery, and opportunity to live comfortably and well at moderate cost, as Colorado. Colorado with its wealth of wild flowers, its wonderfully pure, clear mountain air, and its sparkling waters, is an ideal place to rest. To sit, just taking long breaths of that magnificent air, and basking in Colorado's peculiar brand of sunshine is to invite new life. Then, of course, there are all sorts of outdoor pleasures to interest those disposed to activity.

You have often thought of going out to Colorado, but somehow always put it off. I'd like to have you go this year and see what a fine time you will have and how well you will feel for the outing. Colorado isn't just a place for sick folks either—it's a place for everybody who enjoys good air and the most beautiful scenery that all outdoors affords. I can take you to places in Colorado that Europe would give a million dollars to get, but the Old World can't have them—they're ours to enjoy here in this country.

Your trip to Colorado will be nothing but pleasure from the very start if you select the right road to go on, the "Burlington Route." There are no more comfortable trains in the world than those in the Burlington service in Colorado.

Come in or drop me a postal and I'll send you our latest literature about Colorado, showing some wonderful pictures and introducing you to scores of places where you can spend an economical and restful vacation, prices for board, names and addresses of hotels, and full particulars. You can leave all details for this trip to me. Even to arranging your stopovers, engaging your berth and delivering your tickets. Write me while you think about it. Summer tourist tickets on sale daily until September 30, final return limit October 31. L. F. Siltz, Ticket Agent, Burlington Route.

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

- Order No.
141 cloth.....75c
141½ leather.....$1.00
174 flexible.....$1.50

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed.

No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25
Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,
Cloth, No. 198.....50c
Paper No. 197.....35c

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.
Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
No. 140, cloth.....50

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
Lamoni Land and Loan Co,
Lamoni, Iowa.

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.

Order No. 241, cloth.....50

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.

No. 248a, cloth.....75

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.

Order No. 232, cloth.....75

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read book. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.

Order No. 243, cloth.....75

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother-Evans and the marvelous manifestation of God working through his servant.

No. 216, cloth.....75c

WANTED.

Information of the whereabouts of William Bradbury, about fifty-eight years old, last heard of was in Bristol, England. Also information of Matilda and Margaret Bradbury, last heard of were in Bristol, England. Father's name was Thomas and mother's name Ann.

Address,
Eliza Ann Hancock,
Lamoni, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPTEMBER 4, 1912

NUMBER 36

Editorial

JESUS AND THE CLASSES.

PART I.—THE POOR.

A man went out through the San Bernardino Mountains one bright summer day. Birds sang sweetly among the trees, and flowers bloomed along the mountain passes. But he did not see the flowers or hear the birds. He was a sheriff in pursuit of a horse thief. The tracks of a horse thief were all that he saw or cared to see.

Another man walked along the streets of Los Angeles. Children were trooping home from school, singing and shouting, gayly clad in many-colored garments. But the man did not see the children or hear them. He was an old junk man, and "rags, bottles, and bags" were all that he saw or cared to see. These men were brothers—in spirit.

They had a third brother, who read the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. Its pages were filled with truth and beauty. But he did not perceive the truth and beauty. He was an atheist, seeking flaws. Jonah and the whale, the fall of Jericho, the "mistakes of Moses," these were all that he found or cared to find. Truly Jesus said that having ears they hear not and having eyes they see not.

Perhaps there is nothing more strikingly beautiful in all biblical lore than the tender solicitude of Jesus for the poor, the oppressed, the disinherited of this earth.

BACK TO THE MOSAIC LAW.

To discover fully the attitude of Jesus toward the poor we must go back to the beginning of the law given to Moses. The objector may say that we are going back of Christ, but not so. Christ said: "Before Abraham was, I am."—John 8: 58. He was with God from the beginning: "Without him was not anything made that was made."—John 1: 1-3. He it was to whom God said: "Let us make man in our image."

One of the earliest forms of the Sabbatic law says: "On the seventh day thou shalt rest: that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thine handmaid, and the stranger, may be refreshed."—Exodus 23: 12.

As Jesus announced later, man was not made for the Sabbath but the Sabbath for man. It was for the spiritual uplift of his mind in the worship of God and the contemplation of things divine; it was also for the resting and regeneration of his body. And in this law Deity displayed a tender consideration for the helpless; those whose pharisaical masters might be disposed to claim the Sabbath rest for themselves and send their servants and work animals into the fields to labor.

Under the Mosaic law final ownership of land was recognized as resting with God. He held eminent domain by divine right of creation. The idea was much similar to the idea that will prevail under the economy of stewardships when the law of Christ is in full operation. So of course it rested with God to direct as to land tenure. One of the provisions that he made, distinctly to the advantage of those who might fall into poverty, was that of the year of jubilee. If families fell into financial straits and were compelled to part with their land holdings, when the trumpet blew each fiftieth year announcing the year of jubilee they returned to their ancestral home—it was theirs again. (Leviticus 25.) The purchaser was not defrauded, for he regulated the purchase price according to the number of years remaining before the jubilee. Thus, once in each generation, the unfortunate were rehabilitated, and the people were always kept in touch with the soil. This was a wise safeguard against the evils that befall a country when the land passes into the hands of a few great landlords and the majority of the people become tenants.

The marginal rendering of verse 23 of this chapter (Leviticus 25) is significant: "The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine." The marginal rendering has it, "The land shall not be quite cut off for ever." Though it might be sold for a price, as the preceding verses show, there was a provision by which it always came back to the people who were the original owners (stewards).

Houses in walled cities when sold might be redeemed at any time within one year; houses in cities not walled were as the open fields and came back in the year of jubilee.

In addition to this the fields were to have their Sabbath rest every seventh year and the fruits that grew were free to all, as the Lord expressed it, "That the poor of thy people may eat."—Exodus 23: 11.

Land owners were forbidden to gather their harvests too closely or to go over the grounds a second time. That which was left was for the poor, who were free to come in and glean. One who employed the poor must pay them their wages promptly, each day, before the sun went down; one taking the garment of a poor man for security was required to return it at night that the man might not suffer for the lack of covering. Thus all the way through his law God recognized the primary importance of human life and the secondary importance of property.

The prophets who came later interpreted the law in the same humane and kindly spirit and directed their denunciations toward those who oppressed the hireling and "sold the poor for a pair of shoes."

WHEN JESUS CAME.

When Jesus came he brought with him the spirit foreshadowed in the law. To those who came from John asking for a definite answer concerning his Messiahship, he replied: "Go and show John again those things which ye do hear and see: The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them."—Matthew 11: 4, 5.

This statement, "the poor have the gospel preached to them," has a dual significance. We note first that Jesus did not exclude the poor from his mission, but rather seemed to make them his first care. Their need seemed most pressing and their sufferings appealed to his great heart of love.

We note next the character of the message that he delivered to them. He did not deliver first of all any one of the messages that modern agitators make the burden of their appeal. He did not advise them to resort to violence in an effort to secure their rights. He did not direct them to seek salvation through legislation. We do not mean by this that Jesus is opposed to legislation that benefits and protects the poor. In fact we believe that such legislation must merit and receive his approval. But in his opinion the first great need was for him to preach to them the gospel, and for them to accept it. The situation remains unchanged to-day in that particular.

A PROMISE AND AN INVITATION.

Jesus brought to the poor a promise and an invitation. He declared: "Blessed are the poor; for theirs is the kingdom of God. Blessed are they who hunger now; for they shall be filled."—Luke 6: 20, 21, Inspired Translation. "Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth."—Matthew 5: 7, Inspired Translation.

In the Inspired Version Matthew qualifies the above quoted promise to the poor by making it apply to those "who come unto me." A very important restriction.

The invitation is: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls."—Matthew 11: 28, 29.

Jesus sought to develop among the poor the right character, the right spiritual development, the necessary knowledge and wisdom, so that they might use their inheritance when it came to them. It is commonly supposed that God directs his most severe denunciation toward the ungodly rich, but he does not spare the poor who will not correct the evils of their lives. He says: "Woe unto you poor men, whose hearts are not broken, whose spirits are not contrite, and whose bellies are not satisfied, and whose hands are not stayed from laying hold upon other men's goods, whose eyes are full of greediness, who will not labor with their own hands."—Doctrine and Covenants 56: 5.

Jesus assumed an impartial attitude toward all classes. He condemned the ungodly rich and the ungodly poor alike; he commends both rich and poor when they do right.

JESUS IMPARTIAL.

To the poor he preached his gospel and invited them to come unto him. His gospel conveyed to them the message of repentance that was to all classes. They, like all men, "must be born again." This was his message to all classes. For those who would accept his gospel he had a plan that if carried out would right ancient wrongs, relieve the poor, and enlist the rich in a calling as high and holy as could be conceived.

His plan can not be carried out among those who will not accept him. If there are other plans that will insure economic justice and establish righteous conditions in the earth, we know not of them. If there are such we have no quarrel with them; nor have we with those who honestly believe that there are such.

Jesus commanded us to follow in his footsteps. Like him we must make it our first work to preach his gospel to the poor. With it there goes a glorious promise. But with the promise goes the commandment to repent, come to Jesus, get right with God and man, put away the old man and put on the new. We dare not sound the promise of a new dawn of justice and right, of the rehabilitation of the poor, and remain silent regarding the commandment to repent and come to Jesus. Lips that refuse to utter the name of Jesus and voice his cry of repentance are not commissioned to sound his promises. As we view the matter, no man can do more for the ultimate salvation of the poor, both temporal and spiritual, than to do as the Master did, and preach to all classes the gospel. But this preaching must be followed up by a further enforcement of his plan, as we shall see.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

THE DEATH OF PATRIARCH E. KEELER.

Because of his long and active service and his position in the church the Saints will be interested in more than a passing notice of the death of Brother E. Keeler, of the Order of Evangelists.

Brother Keeler was in attendance at the Southern California Reunion, at Convention Park, near Hermosa Beach, when his death occurred very unexpectedly, August 13. He had gone down to the beach in the late afternoon to bathe. He walked very rapidly from the camp ground to the beach, and going into the cold water in his heated condition may have caused a shock that affected his heart and thus terminated his life; but the doctor gave it as his opinion that death would have come in a short time in any event. He remained in the water only a few moments and then came out and lay down on the sand, and it soon became evident to those around him that he was ill, in fact rapidly passing into a condition of collapse.

He was administered to and while passing away himself offered a prayer, thus fittingly closing a devoted life. He was carried to the home of Mr. Cortelyou, which is near the beach, and as soon as possible a doctor was summoned, but life had already departed.

Brother Ebenezer Keeler was born at Elkhart, Indiana, March 28, 1835. He was married to his first wife, Sarah Ann Reed, about the year 1865. Three children were born, one of which, a son, still lives. His first wife died. He married Frances L. Anderson, May 12, 1897. She remains to mourn, and as she is nearly blind the loss is the more severe.

Brother Keeler united with the church August 17, 1870. For many years he has been one of our most active missionaries, pushing out into new fields and tramping over hill and dale with an energy and enthusiasm that might have done credit to a much younger man, for it will be noted that he was seventy-seven years old at the time of his death. Since 1906 he has occupied as an evangelist and patriarch.

The funeral services were held in Los Angeles, August 15. The sermon was by Elbert A. Smith, who as a fitting statement of the spiritual and mental attitude of the departed brother, read the words of Paul: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

"OUR CHURCH COURTS."

The next Magazine Number of the HERALD will be called "Our Church Courts," and will appear September 18. As suggested by the name, it will consist of editorials and articles on matters pertaining to the different courts provided for in the law of the church.

"The judicial system of the church," by Elbert A. Smith.

"Rules governing the production of evidence," by I. A. Smith.

"Attitude of civil courts toward ecclesiastical courts in America," by S. A. Burgess.

"Form and functions of bishop's courts," by Joseph Roberts.

"Organization, jurisdiction, functions of stake high councils," by G. E. Harrington.

"The Standing High Council," by Robert M. Elvin.

"Questions and answers," by John Smith.

"Jurisdiction and trial before an elders' court," by Russell Archibald.

This number will be well illustrated and printed on good paper. Orders for extra copies should be sent in at a nearly date, so that they may be sent out with the regular issue. Price, five cents for single copies, fifty cents in dozen lots. Address all orders to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

EDITORIAL SELECTION.

CONSCIENCE VS. APPLAUSE.

"Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you."

The true test of character is the ability and the willingness to adhere strictly to the path of individual duty regardless of what the popular conception of that duty might be.

Some men listen to conscience as the monitor which shall guide them from day to day; others are expert in the art of "keeping ear to the ground" in determining what the people would approve of and in directing their course accordingly.

The man who expects to get through life without making enemies may expect also that when his life record is closed it will be considerable of a blank so far as any positive influence is concerned.

There is a great deal of deification of goodness in this world. Some of it is quite far-fetched. We know good men who are actually good for nothing. They neither drink nor swear nor chew tobacco, but they would cut off their right hand quicker than express a positive opinion concerning any question upon which there was a division of sentiment in the communities in which they live.

Some of the best men we have ever known had a choice collection of enemies. They did their own thinking. They reached their own conclusions. They had the courage at all times to declare where they stood. They were invariably resigned to consequences.

It was the plain teaching of the Master that life's duties seldom lead along the rose-strewn path; that at every turn of the road there would be elements with which it would be necessary to fiercely contend; and Jesus himself was the great minority leader of his day. The majority was bitterly and cruelly against him. It was not for him to seek the lines of least resistance. He preached that which he believed. He went by the way of the cross to receive his crown.

Those who undertake to gauge their daily conduct by the tone or the volume of the world's applause may sometimes find they have been badly led astray. Public opinion is fickle and that which is applauded to-day may be hissed to-morrow. On the other hand, the fellow whom the mob sought to lynch one year ago may now be the recipient of flowers and angel food.

"Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you."

The largest measure of satisfaction shall be yours when at the end of this journey you can say I fought for the right as God gave me to see the right and I am content to leave my case in the hands of him "who doeth all things well."—Editorial in Des Moines (Iowa) Capital.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

MORMONISM IN HAWAII.—The New York Sun for August 25 gave a lengthy report from Honolulu of the growth of Mormonism in the Hawaiian Territory. We are using this report in our column Of General Interest.

"LOS ANGELES TIMES."—The associate editor forwards to us a clipping from the Los Angeles Times which gives a fine notice of the annual banquet of the Saints at Hermosa Beach where they are encamped. Representatives of the press attended, as also T. H. Hanneman, president of the City Council of Los Angeles at the time the Saints purchased the site for their settlement. Mr. Hanneman made an address. Brother R. T. Cooper acted as toastmaster and speeches were made by a number of the ministry, including William Schade, Eben A.

Davis, F. M. Sheehy, Elbert A. Smith, and Fred Adam. The Times gave a brief outline of these addresses, which will help put our work in a better light with the people of Los Angeles.

MODERN DIOGENES FINDS TRUTH.—We invite the attention of HERALD readers to the General Interest department where we reproduce two articles from The Truth, a Jerusalem publication.

GENERAL BOOTH DEAD.—General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, died on August 28, at the age of eighty-two years. General Booth's life work has been unique. "Genius disdains a beaten path," said Abraham Lincoln. In practical charity the movement begun by General Booth is a lesson to the world. His successor as head of the Salvation Army is his son, Bramwell Booth.

Hymns and Poems

Selected and Original

The Unconquerable Deep.

Roll on, thou deep and dark blue Ocean—roll!
 Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
 Man marks the earth with ruin—his control
 Stops with the shore; upon the watery plain
 The wrecks are all thy deed, nor doth remain
 A shadow of man's ravage, save his own,
 When for a moment, like a drop of rain,
 He sinks into thy depths with bubbling groan,
 Without a grave, unknelled, uncoffined, and unknown.

The armaments which thunderstrike the walls
 Of rock-built cities, bidding nations quake
 And monarchs tremble in their capitals;
 The oak leviathans, whose huge ribs make Their clay creator the vain title take
 Of lord of thee, and arbiter of war—
 These are thy toys, and as the snowy flake,
 They melt into the yeast of waves, which mar
 Alike the Armada's pride or spoils of Trafalgar.

—Lord Byron.

The Past.

Still shall the soul around it call
 The shadows which it gathered here,
 And painted on the eternal wall
 The past shall reappear.

Think ye the notes of holy song
 On Milton's tuneful ear have died?
 Think ye that Raphael's angel throng
 Has vanished from his side?

Oh, no! We live our life again;
 Or warmly touched or coldly dim
 The pictures of the past remain,
 Man's work shall follow him!

—Whittier.

Original Articles

ATTITUDE OF CIVIL COURTS TOWARD ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS.

AMONG THE HEBREWS; IN ROME, DURING THE MEDIEVAL PERIOD, AND IN ENGLAND.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This paper will be followed, in Magazine Number, September 18, by one on the "Attitude of civil courts toward ecclesiastical courts, in America," by the same author.]

The early government of the Hebrews was a theocracy. Hence, all laws were enforced as ecclesiastical. Even under the later kings this interrelation of civil and ecclesiastical law and procedure continued.

Also among other ancient nations of antiquity, we find the religious life so closely related to the government, as to become practically a part thereof. For example: The religious heads in Rome were not necessarily priests, but civilians. The king was the head of the religious body for the whole state; beneath him were the augurs, and other religious officers. There were regular religious ceremonies from the cradle to the grave, and this as part of the government. Every important act of the individual, the family, the gens, the curia of the tribe, or state was sanctified by solemn rites to tutelary deities. Every locality was sacred to some god. Religion was part of the government of the state, and was called in to decide great issues. The king was Pontifex Maximus. Under the republic this office was continued; and later both office and prerogatives again were merged in the emperor. The king in early Rome was the supreme judge, but the populace had an appeal in criminal cases to the Comitia Curiatae; plebeians, however, had no such appeal. In civil cases and also in religious cases the king was the supreme judge. Private law and sacred law were so mixed that distinction was difficult. Under the later empire, and especially under the Justinian Code, religious corporations were formed with power to hold property. Roman citizenship had been so weakened by that time that the empire was held together rather by the common religion (Christianity) than by the common citizenship. Church courts were organized. In fact the whole church organization was fashioned after that of the civil government of Rome.

Mr. Bryce in the "Holy Roman Empire," in speaking of this relationship between Christianity and the old Roman Empire, well states it: "Yet the league was struck with no mercenary spirit, for the league was inevitable. Of the evils and dangers incident to the system then founded, there was as yet no experience. Of that antagonism between church and state, which to a modern seems so natural, there was not even an idea. Among the Jews, the state had rested upon religion; among the Romans religion had been an integral part of the political constitution, a matter of far more national or tribal, or family feeling, than of personal."

Among the Jews the highest court was ecclesiastical, with power of life and death for blasphemy. When the Romans conquered Judea, they applied the same liberality as to other conquered nations, permitting a continuation of the former government. But with this difference, that the Sanhedrin no longer had the power of passing sentence of death. Yet it was on the whole recognized more as a Jewish court, than as an ecclesiastical court.

The division of power in the later Roman Empire placed the ecclesiastical courts in a distinctive position, although they were still recognized as component parts of the state government, and their relationship was far closer than between any modern government and church to-day. The decline of the civil power rather increased for a time that of the ecclesiastical. But this carries us into the next period, the medieval.

THE MEDIEVAL PERIOD.

As has been indicated above, in ancient times heresy was a crime against the state, and ecclesiastical questions were decided by the same court as decided other state and civil matters. During the Middle Ages, these courts became more distinctive, but still we find death sentence quite common for heretics. That each state should have its distinctive religion was taken as a matter of course; and that any attack upon it should be taken as an attack upon the state was also taken as a matter of course. But while the ecclesiastical courts were state courts, still they did not administer so freely in both capacities. There were distinctive state courts to administer each part of the law, though there may have been some exception.

The emperor, even after Christianity became the religion of the state, continued as Pontifex Maximus, and so assembled the various councils and other church bodies, as the head of the church. Later, as the empire was divided and became weaker, until its government of Rome and the western part of the empire was really a farce, the pope, or bishop of Rome, assumed ever-increasing temporal power, especially in Rome and neighboring provinces. This is particularly true after the invasion by the Lombards. Still, when Charlemagne was crowned as emperor at Rome, A. D. 800, he still claimed certain of those prerogatives of the early emperors; namely, to call councils and to decide church questions. He was probably the last emperor who was able to do so. The manner in which he was chosen became a subject of considerable debate in the succeeding centuries, and massive volumes were written to prove that thereby the right of the pope to choose the emperor was recognized. This is open to serious question, since he and succeeding emperors enforced the right to name the pope. But this did not long continue, as the pope soon managed to assume a power superior to that of the emperor, as he had already usurped the title of Pontifex Maximus. In fact, if not in theory, for the greater part of the time during the Middle Ages, the pope enforced supreme authority, and the title of emperor became an empty honor. Claims so large were so aggressively pushed by and on behalf of the Roman pontiff, that ecclesiastical courts assumed and exercised great powers; so great, that even in England they were not only able to maintain exclusive jurisdiction of ecclesiastical questions, but also to protect and try the clergy in civil and in criminal matters as well. This is of importance, since the rights of ecclesiastical courts to-day are founded upon the canon law and its developments.

ENGLAND.

In Anglo-Saxon times there was no distinction between the lay and ecclesiastical jurisdictions. It was not until the Norman conquest that the common law and ecclesiastical courts were separated. Before that the bishop of the diocese and the alderman sat together in the county court. The bishop was superior in ecclesiastical matters, the lay judges in temporal matters. Still the arrangement was very convenient, since the bishop added weight and reverence, with fear of eternal damnation to the lay proceeding. While on the other hand, the sheriff was quite useful in enforcing obedience to the decrees of the bishop, especially towards refractory offenders, who cared but little for theological thunder. There was but one supreme court of the realm: The Witenagemot, which had cognizance of both spiritual and civil causes, and executed both private justice, and also acted as a parliament for public business. After the conquest (1066 A. D.), the civil and ecclesiastical jurisdiction became separated. Also a separate parliament gradually developed for legislation. The reason for this was, that it pleased not the court of Rome to have local courts exercising both jurisdictions. Henry I restored the joint jurisdictions, but the revival did not long continue, as the bishop would not attend the lay court.

Through the canon law, Roman law gained a foothold in England, both in the ecclesiastical court and in chancery. There existed then, and still do, in England, regular courts of the land exercising spiritual jurisdiction; from the archdeacon's to the commissioner delegates. Prior to Henry VIII the pope exercised supreme appellate power, but even during that period it was claimed on behalf of the king. Now, the commissioner delegates act in the name of and behalf of the monarch.

Because of England having a state religion and state ecclesiastical courts, we find these courts more ready to take up and decide all ecclesiastical questions, including those of faith, doctrine, and procedure; but on the other hand, the common law and chancery courts are loath to interfere in spiritual matters. In some of the provinces the jurisdiction has been vested in a court which acts in common law, in chancery, and in ecclesiastical matters. Of course civil courts act in all matters which concern civil or property rights, but there is this distinction between the courts of England and those of America: That the English courts are more ready to take up questions of faith and doctrine and their interpretation.

The attitude of the English courts towards the ecclesiastical courts of other religions is quite liberal. The judicatory of other churches are considered in the same class with voluntary associations, clubs, secret societies, and the like. The basis of jurisdiction lies in the implied contract members have made to submit to its discipline, but the civil courts are quite willing and ready to look into the contract and its terms, and enforce compliance with its terms.

In the Church of England the right to a benefice must be determined by its character; whether it be donative, presentive, or collative. In the first instance the appointment is made by a layman, in the second case the bishop has the right of examination and approval, in the third case, the whole right rests with the bishop. The right to appoint necessarily involves the right of removal for cause. But this does not seem to be subject to review by the courts, but those in whom is vested the right of visitation have the free power of removal.

The policy of England in her colonies appears to be to recognize the local church. Quebec is Roman Catholic. India has its own distinctive religion. These are recognized and protected.

Space does not permit of discussion of the attitude of the civil courts of continental Europe, but it is safe to say that they are much more liberal to-day than in the past.

S. A. BURGESS.

• * * * •

The world has never been the better for the saints who advertise their crosses.

Some people never feel sure that the Lord loves them until he seems to chasten their neighbors.

It's no use talking about having visions of God if you can not see your own brother on the street.

DEALING WITH THE ERRING. ---NO. 6.

BY CHARLES FRY.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—Failing to secure repentance and confession from an offender, it becomes necessary to bring the matter of the offense before a properly appointed church court. This necessitates the formulating of charges. How are they to be formulated? What shall they include? To whom are they presented? Many more or less serious technical errors have been made in this matter. This paper may be read with interest and profit. The pamphlet referred to under title "Court Procedure" was indorsed by General Conference, and may be obtained from the Herald Publishing House for the sum of ten cents. Those who wish to examine these subjects further, or to secure practical aid in such matters, should obtain it, if they have not already done so. It should be an aid to uniformity of procedure throughout the church. The next subject in this series will be "Trial."

CHARGES.

A transgressing member, who has been properly labored with by the offended person or officer of an offended church, and who is unwilling to repent, confess, or make restitution, should be called to answer before the church for his sin. This must be done by the person offended or wronged, or by the teacher of the church, or other officer if necessity requires, by filing a charge against him.

A charge is a formal complaint made against a member of the church, accusing him of some specific transgression, made to the church before its proper officer. It corresponds to the indictment in the civil courts, and the rules governing the latter may, in a general way, apply to the former.

AN INDICTMENT.

An indictment is made by a grand jury and charges one or more persons with the commission of a crime, and to insure justice, the law is very strict as to its character and form. The sixth amendment to the Constitution of the United States provides that "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right . . . to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation," which is by means of the indictment. The following features of an indictment should also apply, with adaptation, to a charge against a member of the church:

No subject shall be held to answer for any crime or offense, until the same is fully and plainly, substantially and formally, described to him.—English Declaration of Rights, 1688.

It was a rule of the common law that no one shall be held to answer to an indictment or information, unless the crime with which it is intended to charge him is expressed with reasonable precision, directness, and fullness, that the accused may be informed as to what he has to meet.

An indictment must contain a certain description of the crime and precise and technical allegations of the facts and circumstances which constitute it.

The law has always required a specification of time and place as to every material fact in the indictment constituting the offense.

Where the offense consists of words written or spoken, such words must be stated in the indictment.

Where a crime can not be stated with complete certainty, it is sufficient to state it with such certainty as the circumstances will permit.

The matter constituting an indictment ought to be full, express, and certain, and not be maintained by argument or implication.—From Chadman's Criminal Law and Procedure.

The safeguards which the law provides for the accused require that great care be taken in preparing an indictment. In preparing a charge against a member of the church, the same care should be exercised to have it strictly in harmony with the law and according to fact such as can be proved by competent witnesses. The church rules require that a charge shall be made in writing "stating definitely and specifically what the offense is charged to be." (Rules of Order, p. 97.)

A member was once charged "with unchristianlike conduct," and it is needless to say that when she was called to enter her plea of guilty or not guilty before the elders' court, her only plea was "I don't know what I am charged with." With such a charge no member could have a proper opportunity of preparing a defense. Another charge which came to my notice was as follows:

We charge you with unchristianlike conduct, and swearing, the first part of which is identical with the first and has the same objection. The second part is defective in that it is too general and does not specify any particular instance wherein the defendant used improper language. It is apparent that if the accuser was unable to prove that the accused did at some particular time and at some particular place use certain improper language, that he could not prove a general charge of swearing. The accused is entitled to know definitely in what specific instance he was thought to have sworn, for he might be entirely innocent, and not knowing what he would have to meet he could not secure the necessary witnesses nor make his preparations for defense in fairness to himself after the trial was called.

TIME AND PLACE.

Time and place are things so closely related to an offense that they are practically parts of it, and must generally be proved in order to establish a claim that an offense has been committed. Where the offense is a continuing one, such as maintaining a nuisance, the complaint may show that it existed at some date and at other times, or to the present. In some cases the exact date may not be known when an offense was committed, as in an instance where property was stolen from a home while the family was absent on a two-week vacation, and which was not discovered until their return, when it would be sufficient to state that the offense was committed on or about a certain date, or between the dates of — and —. The church rules require that the time and place of the offense shall be stated. (See Court Procedure, p. 4.)

WHAT A CHARGE SHOULD CONTAIN.

Stating definitely and specifically what the offense is charged to be.—Rules of Order, p. 97.

Such a direct and simple statement of the matter as will disclose to the comprehension of one reading it the nature of the grievance,

Time and place of the offense,

Refusal of the accused to make restitution;

Also setting forth the privilege of the accused to make reconciliation before the appointment of the court for the trial of the case, if he desires to do so.—Court Procedure, p. 4, par. 3.

Inasmuch as a charge can not be lawfully entertained against a member without proper labor having been performed, it is necessary that the charge should include the statement of labor, and the complainant should be prepared to prove such statement at the trial. No evidence, or surplus language should be included in the charge, nor should prejudice or bitterness be shown therein.

PRESENTING CHARGE TO CHURCH.

The rules require that before a charge is laid before the church, the accused shall be furnished a copy, "so that he may, if he so desire, make settlement of the difficulty by reconciliation or otherwise, and avoid further action." (Rules of Order, p. 97.) If no settlement or reconciliation be effected it is then the duty of the member aggrieved to present the charge "to the officers of the branch or district or other division of church work, whose duty it is to act in such matters." (Court Procedure, p. 4.) The Rules of Order (p. 96) says he "may lay the matter before the presiding officer of the branch, or before the presiding elder of the district, or mission if it be not in an organized branch or district." This is according to the law of Christ which says:

Tell it unto the church.—Matthew 18: 17.

Thou shalt deliver him or her up unto the church, not to the members but to the elders.—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 23.

The laws and rules governing in the matter of charges, as in all other matters of court procedure, are framed to maintain the rights and privileges of members who may have occasion to bring accusation against others, or who are so unfortunate as to have accusation brought against them, and also the rights of the church, which is always a principal in cases arising through the transgression of its members.

Instances sometimes occur in which both complainant and defendant are guilty of wrong in the matter charged, when it is not only proper, but the duty of the defendant, to file in his answer to the court a counter charge setting forth what he considers to be the facts of the complainant's error.

This will enable the court to consider the whole matter and place the responsibility for the wrong upon either one or both. Without the counter charge the court might learn that the complainant was more guilty than the defendant, but would be powerless to legally declare him so. The counter charge is provided for in Court Procedure, page 15.

• • • • •

LEAVES FROM LIFE.

EXPERIENCES: AND HOW I BECAME A LATTER DAY SAINT.—PART 2. BY ELDER H. N. SNIVELY.

I will speak of some of the incidents and experiences that befell me prior to the ordination referred to. The first year after I was elected presiding priest, the elder who was then president of the branch was not sustained, and at a special meeting of the branch was released from that position. This left me in charge of the branch; and, although there were three other elders in the branch, I had to occupy that position for some time. I wish to say right here that my trials then begun. The elder who had failed to be sustained would come to me and try to persuade me to resign my charge and let the branch go down, but I tried to do the best I could and kept the flock together until by and by, through my request, the branch elected one of the elders to preside.

On November 23, 1870, I was married to Ellen Wilson, a member of the church, and one of the best girls, so I thought, that ever walked upon the earth. Before we were married I had promised her I would quit using tobacco. I learned to chew when only thirteen years old. I had kept on in that filthy habit of chewing and smoking occasionally for nearly five years, when my wife said to me one day, "Nephi, you promised me you would quit chewing tobacco. Why don't you do so?"

I said to her, "Ellen, I can't."

She replied, "I would be ashamed to say that if I were you."

Well, I was ashamed. I thought I had tried to quit it until one day as Brother Sam Ferris and I were walking up the street in Keokuk he said to me, "Nephi, stop a minute; I want to get me some tobacco"; and with that stepped into the store; but I stopped outside. I was then trying to quit using it; had not used any for about three days.

When Brother Ferris came out, just as he stepped out the door he bit off a chew. When I saw that it just set me almost frantic for a chew. I said, "Let me try some of that." He handed it to me and I took a chew and we went on up the street, but before we had gone the distance of three blocks I received such a rebuke and manifestation of God's presence and power as I had never witnessed before. The Spirit spoke to me and said, "Why don't you quit that filthy habit and keep your body clean and pure? It is injurious to your health; it is displeasing unto me." More was said but this is all I will relate now.

When the Spirit ceased speaking to me I put my hand up to my mouth and threw the tobacco out into the street, saying to Brother Ferris, with tears flowing down my cheeks, that that was the last chew of tobacco I would ever take. I then asked God for strength to resist the temptation and that it might become repulsive to me. I can truthfully say that the Lord answered my prayer; and from that day until the present I have never taken a chew of tobacco. It is repulsive to me to be where it is used.

Again I was left in charge of the branch, the elder who had been in charge having resigned. Time moved on, with pleasure and with trial. By and by I was spoken to by different ones claiming to be prompted by the Spirit that it was my duty to be ordained to the office of elder. Some said they knew it was my calling, but I wouldn't accept it unless I received some evidence for myself that it would be the will of the Lord. Finally I was spoken to by the presiding elder of the branch, saying he knew it was my calling to be ordained to the Melchisedec priesthood, so I could lay on hands for the healing of the sick. This was at a branch business meeting. They then urged me to allow them to present my name to the district conference, which was to be held at Montrose in March. I gave my consent with this provision, that if I received no evidence myself before the conference I would decline to receive the ordination. I prayed to the Lord for light that I might know his will concerning me, and one night I received the following: I was traveling along on a plank walk about eighteen inches wide and very straight, until I came to the end of it. I then looked around to see where to go, and just a few steps straight ahead of me was another walk, just twice as wide as the one I had been traveling on. I was told to step across on that plank and travel on it now; which I did. After this was shown me it gave me courage to comply with God's will, whatever that might be; and when conference convened I felt that I couldn't decline. Nevertheless I still felt my weakness and unworthiness and Sunday afternoon, March 3, just before I was to be ordained I went out into a little grove not far from the church and prayed to the Lord for strength that I might do his will; that I wanted to know his will, if I was accepted of him. I was told that I was, and that it would be so told me when ordained.

When I came back to the church it was almost time to open meeting, and soon after I went in, Brother John H. Lake, then president of the district, called the meeting to order and opened the meeting. After the opening exercises he stated that there was to be an ordination. He then requested Brother Alexander H. Smith to assist in the ordination. When he came forward he told Brother Smith to ordain me. When they were through and Brother Smith started back to his seat the Spirit rested upon him, and he said as he turned and spoke in prophecy to me; "Brother Snively, be cheered. The Spirit beareth witness of your acceptance with God"; just as the Lord had told me a short time before that it would be. This gave me courage and I was more fully confirmed in the truth that God would fulfill the words which he has spoken unto his people.

Soon after my ordination I was called upon to administer to the sick, and as I thought and always have that this was a most sacred ordinance, I have tried to present myself when administering to the sick in such a way that God would bless the act.

I will now relate some experiences I had the last three years I lived in Keokuk. In 1879 I was appointed to preach at Montrose once a month, which I did. Sometimes I would go up on the train Saturday evening and return Monday. At other times I would hire a horse and buggy and go up and back on Sunday, doing the best I could.

About this time the branch wanted me to take charge of the branch affairs, but I declined until I had the following dream: One night there came to me a messenger carrying a basket on his arm, full of the most beautiful fruit I ever laid my eyes on, and handed it to me, saying: "Here, take this and feed the people." I took the basket and examined the fruit, and found it to be like golden apples. Then I turned around to go and do as I was bidden, and behold, I was in the church, going around giving these golden apples to the Saints. After this dream, I thought, How appropriate, "Words fitly spoken are like apples of gold in pictures of silver." I accepted the presidency of the branch and presided over it until I moved to Lamoni, Iowa, in 1882.

I will now relate a dream that I had just before the conference convened at Plano, Illinois, in the spring of 1880, at which time I was received as a member of the First Quorum of Elders. I dreamed that I lay down on a couch to go to sleep, but for some reason could not go to sleep. I lay there in that condition, wondering why I couldn't sleep, until eleven o'clock, when suddenly there stood by my couch a heavenly messenger who said to me, "Come, there is a work for you to do. I want you to warn the people that this is the hour in which Christ will come."

I looked up at the clock and it was some minutes after eleven. I said to him, "How shall I warn them?"

He answered and said, "Come, and I will show you."

I arose and went with him, and passing out of the room I looked at the clock again and it was half past eleven. He led me a few steps from the house; when there opened up to my vision a very wide body of water, and out on it was a large vessel like a boat without cabin or pilot house on it—just a smooth deck. There were planks about two feet wide which reached from the vessel to the shore. He told me to step on this plank and walk to the boat. I did so; he walked by my side. When we got to the boat he said, pointing to a little pole about ten feet long, "Raise this up." I did so, and as I raised it I noticed a little banner about twelve inches wide and two feet long attached to the top with a little cord which shot up to the top of the pole and on it were these words: "This is the hour in which Christ is coming; be ye ready." I looked around and saw men standing all over that boat, shoulder to shoulder, holding up similar banners. I felt glad that I was worthy to hold up that banner, and as he had told me that at twelve o'clock Christ would come, I raised my eyes heavenward, when I witnessed a most glorious sight. I saw Christ with a host of angels coming from the heavens toward the earth, and as the vapor of cloud dispersed I could see his blessed face. I was made to rejoice and the vision closed.

In February, 1880, I came out to Lamoni on a visit, and as there had been appointed a two-day meeting at Farmington, Iowa, I thought I would attend those meetings on my way to Lamoni, which I did. On Friday night before I left, I saw in a dream five persons in a room; one a man who was lying down. When I stepped up to him he jumped up and began talking in a language that I could not understand and turned almost perfectly black.

Saturday morning I took the train for Farmington. When I arrived I found I was the only elder from a distance. Brother James McKiernan, then president of the branch, told me that I would have to do the preaching, which I did, except one time when he spoke.

Saturday afternoon as Brother McKiernan and I were coming down the street from his house we met a little girl who said she wanted Brother McKiernan to come and administer to her father. Brother McKiernan told her he couldn't go, as he had to go to the mill, but would send me. I went. When I entered the house I found this sick man lying on the bed and appearing to be in great distress. His wife, daughter, mother, and sister were sitting in the room. I asked his wife how long he had been sick. She said it had been two weeks since he had been out of his bedroom. I then stepped forward to his bed and asked him how he felt, when almost instantly he threw the cover back from him and sprang out of the bed to the floor, giving utterance to language that I could not understand and at the same time making his feet pop on the floor. His face and hands turned an iron black color. By this time I fully realized the situation. I raised my hand, calling upon God, in the name of Jesus Christ, to rebuke the evil spirit and cast it from him, and when I had spoken he dropped. However, I caught him before he struck the floor and lifted him back into the bed. He lay there almost breathless and as limp as a rag. I then took the oil and administered to him. It was getting quite late, and as it was my appointment to preach that night I returned to Brother McKiernan's.

The next day, Sunday, was a pleasant day for winter; the snow was melting and the water was running in the streets, making it very sloppy underfoot; yet that man who was the evening before in such a prostrate condition, walked to the church and attended the meeting. I speak of this to show how wonderfully God manifests his power when we put our trust in him.

In the years 1880 and 1881 I was elected secretary of the Nauvoo District, and during this time I tried to fill that office to the best of my ability, finding it quite a trial for one like me, with such poor education, but I kept trying to improve until I found I could do the work fairly well. One day during the last year of my service in that office several of the brethren came to me and tried to persuade me to accept the presidency of the district and I would be elected at the next conference, but I told them I was not competent to fill the position. They replied, "You can easily learn," but I declined. I have thought a number of times since then that I did wrong in declining.

I wish now to speak of an incident that I witnessed some little time before I moved from Keokuk. There was a young sister in the church who married a young man not in the church. After she was married, her husband would go to public balls and such places, and of course would take his wife along; otherwise he was a good, moral man. By and by she began to lose her interest in the church and finally requested her name taken from the branch record, saying that she couldn't live as she ought to, and therefore wanted her name dropped from the records of the church. Her request was granted. In course of time this young sister was stricken down with disease, and died; but before her death I passed through a trying experience. Her husband was a baker by trade, and kept shop in a large building, occupying the second floor as the living rooms. One night after she had become very low her husband came to me in the night, between one and two o'clock, saying that his wife had been calling for me all night. I went with him, and when we arrived, as we were going up the stairs to the room above I could hear that poor woman screaming in distress. I went to her bedside and spoke to her. As soon as I did this she seemed to be relieved of suffering. She began talking to me and said she had been a naughty girl; that she had not lived faithfully and asked me what I thought of her condition with God. I then said, calling her by name, "God knows what your desires have been, and all about your privations; he knows your weakness, and what you have had to pass through. Put your trust in God; be resigned to his will, whatever it may be." I then administered to her and she went to sleep.

I started to go home, but when I got out of the room she screamed out in distress, wanting me. When I returned to her she became quiet. I thought I understood the situation, and having tried a number of times to leave the house, sometimes getting as far as the lower steps, but always with the same results, I began to fully realize the trouble. The evil power was tormenting her, contending for her spirit. He thought that because her name had been stricken from the church records she belonged to him, I presume. Her mother and sister were in the room, and her sister, though not belonging to the church, spoke out and said, "I just believe the old Devil is in the room"; to which I replied, "Thou hast well said."

I then knelt by the bedside and, putting my hands on her head, asked God, in the name of Jesus Christ, to rebuke the evil power, that it might be banished, to trouble her no more. She then went off to sleep peacefully, and now as it had become daylight, I returned home. I was told that she remained in that quiet, peaceful condition until about nine o'clock, I believe, when she passed peacefully away.

This experience was a grand lesson for me and should be a lesson to all Saints who may read these lines. Much more I might speak of that would be of interest, but I will not take the space. However, I will speak of an incident that may be of interest to some.

(To be continued.)

• * * * •

Do not consider any vice as trivial, and therefore practice it; do not consider any virtue as unimportant, and therefore neglect it.—Bonar.

The longest hours and the shortest years belong to the man who has no task before him.

WORSHIP.

One of the distinguishing peculiarities of the true Saint is his trust in God. One of the tenets of his faith is that when God's children do as they have been commanded in the written word, then is he bound to recognize that service. It is the experience of the true worker that when one begins to work for God there is a constant unfolding of power and much ground for an increased trust in the Father of all.

It has ever been the trend of the human mind to look upward, even as the tiny flower of the woodland, which, in spite of rocks and crags and storms, ever turns its face upward to the sun, the manifestation of the power that created it. In the heart of darkest Africa; on the frozen plains of the far north; now, and in the past, men are and have been worshipping. Sometimes the form has degenerated until it could hardly be called worship, but the semblance is there—there is an homage to a mysterious something.

It is not enough that we be no better than the plant, or the wild man of the forest or plain. We are the crowning act of God's creation. We are the result of the decision of the Creator, who, after creating the universe as we know it, segregating the waters and the land, making the grass, the herb, the trees, the light for the day and for the night, the living creatures: the fowls of the air, the creeping things, the fishes of the sea, said: "And I, God, said unto mine Only Begotten, which was with me from the beginning, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and it was so." He was given "dominion over the fishes of the sea and the fowls of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing upon the earth. And I, God, created man in my own image, in the image of mine Only Begotten created I him; male and female created I them."—Genesis 1: 28, 29, Inspired Translation.

It seems imperative that the worship of man should be of the active kind. With the supervision of all God's creation, the "dominion" over all the lower creation, comes a responsibility not easily evaded. Merely passive faith has never proved satisfactory to the human mind. Spiritual inactivity, as all other forms of inactivity, produces spiritual disorder. The panacea for most of our disorders is activity. It is not only necessary that we be busy, but must have a purpose in it. Our energies should be actuated by some principle, for motiveless work is mere drudgery.

The busy Saint may sometimes conclude that public worship is demanding too much. It may seem easier to do as the monks: hie away to some dingy monastery, away from the haunts of men, and there, in practical solitude, try to worship God. To a degree this form of worship may be acceptable, but it seems to be the more natural way to help bring to pass the things we pray for. We see the insistent needs of our associates; let us pray for them, then do for them. When we think we are overworked in religious service it might be a good plan to try Thomas Edison's remedy—a little more work. We are indebted to the weariness that follows much effort for most of the inventions and ideas that have so increased our efficiency. The pain that comes to us brings us closer to our subject, and often the result of our serious thought is a better plan; a better way to do the same things. In our efforts to throw off the unnatural we come face to face with realities and have a better understanding of them.

In our worship, as in other forms of activity, it is necessary that we have diversion. Set forms and rules, when too numerous, tend to lethargy, and can do only the minimum amount of good. As diversion is natural to the physical man, so is it to the spiritual. We need to seek new ways of serving God. We should see that it is done properly. A true conception of God as a creator will open unlimited avenues wherein we may go in and out and find pasture. When we stop to notice God's handiwork everywhere; meditate upon the infinite variety found there, where not even a blade of grass is like another—everything different, yet subscribing to the laws of families and species, it will constantly bring us new ideas on the application of variety to the worship of the Creator of all.

Exercise of the functions of worship is essential. Men and nations, at different periods in history, have left off serving God and indulged in a riot of personal liberties. We adjudge them failures. It is not only necessary that we worship, but it must not be misdirected. All are not agreed on the personality and attributes of God. When the latter day message came to the children of men, and it was announced by its messengers that it was again possible to communicate with God and receive instruction from him, it was ridiculed. The conception of men had changed since the day of Enoch. The writer of the letter to the Hebrews says: "By faith was Enoch translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God."—Hebrews 11: 5.

In the various changes in the attitude of men toward God it is to be noted that they have usually attached a mysteriousness to him that seems out of accord with the divine mind in filling the hearts of his creation with the desire to worship. The result of this misunderstanding is to be found in various forms. When Paul found an altar on Mars Hill with the inscription, "To the unknown God," it was but the outcropping of this idea.

True worship is spontaneous. It requires an effort for some of us to really assert our individuality in our worship—we like the methods of others better because we know them better. What we need is to develop our individuality in our worship and shape it to the pattern of the Nazarene—assert the convictions that come from well applied experience, even if we be alone.

In the average American community there are many nationalities, yet all are one in the gospel. This is the Zionic idea. Paul wrote to the Galatian saints: "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." It seems to be the plan of God that by the burying of our wrongly directed desires we are enabled to take up others that really unite and are more satisfactory to us. If we are prone to clannishness it will do us good to associate with others of entirely different natures. If we are of the cold-blooded Saxon or Norman races we do well to commingle with the southern and more vivacious types. If we are of the morbid plain dwellers, (the Russians are an example) brushing shoulders with the people of the hills and mountains, with their sunny dispositions, will counteract our overbalancing tendencies.

All believers in the Bible as it is written, are agreed that the gospel must again go to the nations of the world. All men are to have an invitation to come into the kingdom of God and be accepted of him. We may be bearers of the message—likely will be in some way. With the experiences that come from an active and true worship of God we may be fitted to make the invitation simple, plain, and effective from having known its Author. The Master has said: "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." With the advent of liberty comes responsibility and power. We are judged by our use of responsibility and power. We are given wonderful opportunities; let us improve them.

EDWARD D. MOORE.

At seventy years of age Michael Angelo said, "I am still learning."

Wisdom is the ability or skill to properly use or apply knowledge.

Richardson was fifty when he published his first novel, "Pamela."

Of General Interest

The Modern Diogenes.

In our last issue we took note of the arrival in Jerusalem of an eccentric young German who goes about with a lighted lantern in broad daylight in quest of upright and healthy men.

There were so many peculiar versions concerning the object of his coming to Jerusalem—some even hinted that he was a German spy in disguise—that we thought it advisable to interview him personally as to his views and ideas which led him to follow a vocation that brings upon him heaps of ridicule and abuse.

Mr. Friedrich Roos most cordially responded to our invitation and with a beaming countenance came to the office of The Truth to give reasons for the faith which is in him.

He is a man of about thirty-five years of age, of slender build and medium height, bareheaded, barefooted, with only calico pants and tightly-buttoned calico coat, without which the authorities would not allow him to appear in the public thoroughfares.

He has a fine head of long, light brown hair which reminds one of Muncasky's picture of Christ before Pilate.

Although a linguist, he prefers to converse in his own mother tongue, which he speaks with an elegance that proves him to be a man of education and refinement.

He answered our queries with readiness, and a firm conviction that what he is saying and doing is inspired by Heaven, whose ambassador he has the honor to be.

The following is the substance of the interview:

"You ask me: why I go about with a lantern in broad daylight? I shall answer your question with another query: Did not the great Greek philosopher Diogenes act in a similar manner? And in fact, is the present generation less in lack of just and wise men than was the time of old Diogenes? Certainly not! The world has since not only remained unimproved but has greatly retrograded. What do we now find? We find that mankind is fast sliding down towards the unfathomable abyss of corruption, annihilation and utter oblivion. We find that there exists now, even in this greatly vaunted twentieth century, more idolatry, more wanton cruelty, more hypocrisy, more hidden immorality and indecency than in the darkest mythological epoch before Christ.

"It is the consciousness of the great and most terrible catastrophe kept in store for the unrepentant sons of men, that prompts men like myself to raise an alarm, and like Jonah in Nineveh, we shall not rest until all the wicked men of Jerusalem shall put on sackcloth and sit in ashes. Through my lighted lantern I invite all those who wish to escape the wrath to come to join me in my propaganda.

"So far for my spiritual message to mankind for the salvation of their souls; now to the material and utilitarian problems of life.

"You may perhaps have noticed that besides the oil in my lantern I carry a small tinful of water and some pieces of soda, by which I mean to inculcate the lesson that cleanliness is next to godliness, and that by the simple and cheap means of soda and water, if unsparingly utilized, man may attain a ripe and enjoyable old age.

"By frequent and thorough ablutions and vigorous rubbing of the skin, the pores open and emit all uncleanness whilst inhaling the necessary quantity of oxygen and hydrogen for the reinvigoration of the constantly strained nervous system.

"The Israelites of olden times strictly observed the natural hygienic principles and that alone accounts for the longevity which nowadays appears incredible and unattainable.

"Furthermore, I came to Jerusalem because, according to my belief, which is based on biblical prophecy, dreadful earthquakes will shortly take place there, and my object is to forewarn its inhabitants that they may fly to the mountains where I have reason to believe they will be quite safe."

The above is the quintessence of a long interview which might fill many columns of this paper, but we believe we have said quite enough to show our readers what peculiar mentalities we have in Jerusalem. We only wish all of them were of so innocent and inoffensive a character as the modern Diogenes decidedly is. He is a vegetarian; he neither drinks nor smokes, unlike the innumerable religious impostors and rogues here who rob the poor and dupe the credulous, and with the proceeds live questionable lives. We shall be glad to learn that the lantern of our German friend has had a salutary effect upon the fat priests and Levites, and that they have abandoned their richly provisioned pantries and wine cellars and fled to the mountains of Ebal and Ophel until the fearful day has passed.

YEDIDJAH.

—The Truth, Jerusalem, April 12, 1912.

EX-DIOGENES.

Our readers may possibly remember that in one of our last issues we published an interview with the "modern Diogenes," Herr Frederick L. Roos, who, like his prototype, was in earnest quest of true and upright men.

He used no other means than a small, unpretentious lamp in broad daylight—and lo! his search has not been in vain, as the following letter to the editor of The Truth will show.

The Truth with its accustomed impartiality gives every honest man a chance to express his opinions and vindicate his integrity of purpose:

"JERUSALEM, July 15, 1912.

"To the Editor of The Truth; Dear Sir: Kindly allow me space in your valuable columns to correct statements that are current to the effect that I claim to be the Christ. I hereby, most emphatically, deny that I ever made such a blasphemous claim. And I challenge any person to come forward and truthfully charge me with any statements calculated in any way to convey such an idea, either in conversation or in my writings. I consider the charge a mischievous and a malicious slander. I would also say, that I feel very grateful to my friends and all lovers of truth, and of the commandment, 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor,' if they will do me the favor of correcting anyone they may find laboring under this malicious falsehood concerning me, and oblige.

"I am also glad to state that I no longer go around with my lamp seeking for true representatives of the truth, as I have now found them; and I thank God for that. It affords me pleasure to announce myself a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

"The headquarters of this church are at Lamoni, Iowa, (where they have their printing house, known as the Herald Publishing House) and at Independence, Missouri.

"I may also say that the Reorganized Church is diametrically opposed to the doctrines, dogmas, and practices of the Utah 'Mormons.' I consider it very unjust,—and also a shame to Christian people—to confound this church with the Utah people, when there are ample opportunities afforded, by which those seeking for the truth may obtain conclusive evidence establishing the fact to a demonstration, that the church to which I now have the honor to belong, is not now, and never was, responsible for the evils of Utah 'Mormonism.'

"For years I refused to affiliate myself with any church organization, as it was my firm conviction that the church of Jesus Christ as an organization was not now on earth.

However, it was my fortune to meet with a representative of the Reorganized Church here in Jerusalem; and upon a close and prayerful investigation of the claims of this church, I became wholly convinced that the church of Jesus Christ is indeed on earth again. The true gospel has been restored in fulfillment of Bible prophecy. These, briefly, are my reasons for becoming a member of this organization. Thanking you for your kindness in thus allowing me to speak for myself,

"I am, sir, very sincerely yours,
"FREDERICK L. I. ROOS."

—The Truth, Jerusalem, July 19, 1912.

Mormonism Spreading in Hawaiian Islands.

HONOLULU, August 4.—While the growth of the Mormon Church in this Territory has been noted with more or less misgivings on the part of the other churches, only recently have the facts and figures regarding the strength of the Latter Day Saints in these islands become generally known. Now the Protestant organizations and the Roman Catholics are determined to make common war upon the followers of Brigham Young. With this end in view the Protestant churches have already formed a federation, and it is the intention to import speakers and singers from the mainland to assist in a house to house campaign among the native islanders.

The propaganda of the Church of Latter Day Saints is the newest among the people of Hawaii, but already its doctrines and many of its practices have gained headway among the native Hawaiians and the Orientals, two classes which constitute more than four fifths of the population.

Leading Protestant and Catholic clergymen are alarmed at the inroads made among the natives especially, and strenuous efforts will be put forth to stem the tide of Mormonism sweeping over the islands.

The Federal Government is expected to aid in the campaign. It is known that not only have the territorial officials been asked to make a careful report upon the situation, but that at least seven officers of the secret service, ostensibly here to look into the Japanese and customs infringement matters, are detailed to make reports on the doings of the Latter Day Saints, the number and nativity of their converts, the amount of property in the possession of the elders and, above all, to what extent polygamy is practiced.

That there have been hundreds of plural marriages performed or sanctioned by the elders is charged, but to obtain dates and facts in specific cases for the purpose of prosecution is very difficult, so devoted are the followers of the comparatively new church. But the federal district attorney is known as an industrious and persevering official and the church federation leaders are looking to his office to bring to bar the offenders, clerical and lay.

Bishop Willis of the Episcopal Church said to The Sun correspondent:

"Hawaii is credited with many menaces, industrial and martial, all the way from strikes among plantation laborers to war with Japan, but there has not occurred in the history of the islands a more terrible menace than this Mormon scourge, which not only threatens but is actually festering in the moral and political body of the Territory.

"The cancer had its beginning a long time ago with the distribution broadcast of Mormon literature, but only within a few years have there been zealous elders among the people, sent there by the mother church in Utah. At first they worked secretly and did not call themselves Mormons; but within the last two or three years they have become so strong in those remoter regions where the white man is in a very small minority that they have come out not only openly but aggressively for Mormonism and polygamy.

"From the natives it has spread to the Chinese, Japanese, and even to some extent among the Russian and Portuguese plantation laborers, so that to-day it is a positive disease eating into the vitals of the non-white races. I feel that all militant Christianity and in particular the churches of the United States should take up this great matter without delay and bring to the attention of the national authorities by letter, through the press and by personal work on the part of members of Congress, this iniquitous state of affairs.

"A hundred years ago New England sent her first missionaries to these islands, and the good accomplished by them and the noble men and women that followed from that time up to the present has been incalculable. The natives were lifted from a state of the lowest morality to a comparatively high plane; churches and schools were established, marriage was taught to be a sacred institution, and the natives were taught that lax morals were contrary to the health of the body as well as soul. And now all this splendid work is to be overturned and destroyed by these much wived elders from Utah!

"Some of them, as I have positive proof, have wives in Utah but have married one or more native women here. Will they be prosecuted in the courts? You may rest assured they will be; there will be many brought into the courts at the same time and properly dealt with. On this score I am fully convinced."

Bishop Libert, of the Roman Catholic Church, said that if Mormonism was allowed to spread unhampered it would within a few years number a majority of the people of the islands among its adherents. Catholic and Protestant missionaries had done a great work among the natives of Hawaii, said the bishop, but these Christian institutions had no means by which they might bring punishment upon polygamous offenders and even the courts were finding it difficult to get evidence; but he hoped all the churches would so awaken to the danger of Mormonism that a determined and united effort against it would be made.

"The elders are teaching these simple people that the flesh is the real sanctuary of God and that the more children born the greater will be the reward of parents," he said. "They preach polygamy in the native tongue and limit the number of wives one man may have to his capacity for supporting them. In the remote districts where women as well as men work in the fields, raise taro, make mats and brooms and curios, it is very easy for the Hawaiian to figure out that the number of wives he may possess is only limited by the number of women who will consent to live in his house; for here they do not pretend, as in Utah, Idaho, and Wyoming, to have a separate house for each wife."

The leaders of the federated church campaign against Mormonism fully realize that the very nature of the natives of Hawaii assists in the rapid growth of polygamy. It was only a hundred years ago, some place it as late as 1850, that a sort of free love was the rule among a majority of this brown race. Feastings, dances, revelry, and song were the chief amusements of the people, while intemperance among both sexes was widespread. Marriages were contracted in the most free and easy manner imaginable.

The established churches fought drunkenness and easy living at every turn and from one year's end to another much improvement in conditions was apparent. Under the monarchy, however, the liberal laws were even more liberally construed and applied and the penal institutions scarcely knew what it was to receive a prisoner sent there by the courts for the infraction of laws framed for the protection of women. Even to-day, though vast advances have been made in the apprehending and conviction of offenders, less attention is paid offenses of this character than perhaps in any other civilized community.

"The Mormon church authorities have seized upon these weaknesses of the easygoing natives of these islands," said a territorial official, "and I believe it is their hope to found an island Utah in the Pacific. The great majority of the voters of Hawaii are full blood natives or half whites, and with Brigham Young's doctrines followed by the larger number of these it would only be a question of a few years when the civil government, including everything perhaps but the higher courts, the judges of which are appointed from Washington, would be in their hands.

"This would but mean the hurrying of the day when a Federal commission would govern the Territory; a change from the present form that has been already much advocated because of Hawaii's prominent position as the most distant and important outpost of the Nation. The commission idea of government has been strongly opposed by a majority of whites, half whites and browns, but with Mormonism growing from day to day more strongly the people who have the best interests of the Territory at heart will be a determined unit in favor of a complete Federal control in civil as well as military affairs. Mormonism will not be tolerated by the twenty-five thousand whites."—New York Sun, August 25, 1912.

Letter Department

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI.

Editors Herald: After an absence from my office of nearly three months, I find on my return the need of an appeal to the Saints of the stake for a hearty and generous response to the immediate needs of the work financially. My brethren of the stake bishopric have been faithful at their post of duty, but there has not been manifest the interest and hearty cooperation we should receive from the Saints for the many calls made upon us. We need help; we need it right now, and we know you can do better than you are doing if you will; will you not do it for the work's sake, for the Master's sake? Paul says we are coworkers together with God; is that true of us? Are we considering what that means? God, Jesus Christ, and Company; we are the Company. We have pledged ourselves loyal to his cause; are we trying to meet the pressing needs of the work, are we making sacrifice for him, for his work? There was never a time when the call was more important than now. Bring in your tithes and consecrations, that we may carry on this important arm of the work.

Money can be raised for the convenience of our reunion gatherings, which at the best can only be of a temporary character; for the hastening time for the gathering together of God's people is upon us, and a large expenditure of money for the purpose of building houses, for reunion work seems to me to be against the spirit of gathering which has been emphasized by the Master, that we might build up a city of refuge and safety against the day of peril now upon the world, see Doctrine and Covenants 45: 12: "Wherefore, I the Lord have said, Gather ye out from the eastern lands, assemble ye yourselves together ye elders of my church; go ye forth unto the western countries, call upon the inhabitants to repent, and inasmuch as they do repent build up churches unto me, and with one heart and with one mind, gather up your riches that ye may purchase an inheritance which shall hereafter be appointed unto you, and it shall be called the New Jerusalem, a land of peace, a city of refuge, a place of safety for the saints of the most high God; and the glory of the Lord shall be there, and the terror of the Lord also shall be there, insomuch that the wicked will not come unto it; and it shall be called Zion."

The following paragraphs tell us why this work of gathering; and of preparation is urgent, and the work is yet to be done; but some of the children of God, with all the appeals made to them from those who have been appointed to teach these things to the church, treat them as an idle tale, and do the very opposite to what the Master has so wisely emphasized to us. Why, oh why, will we treat him thus, and try to evade the responsibilities placed upon us? Let us not be so blind to the most vital interests of our work as to continue to do the very reverse to what God has commanded us to do. If you will gather up your riches and place them where God says they belong, Zion will be redeemed, and the New Jerusalem be builded according to the purposes of the Almighty; but if we continue to ignore him, and do according to our mind and will, disaster must follow, as recorded in the history the church has made in the past; must we always learn obedience by the things we suffer? Must we have a repetition of the horrors of San Francisco in our cities east to waken us to the perils of the age? Is it not much better to harmonize our lives with the law and commandments of the Lord, and thus insure protection from him in the day when terror shall seize the disobedient, "because of the arrow that flieth by day, and the pestilence that walketh in darkness, for the destruction that wasteth at noonday; when a thousand shall fall at thy side and ten thousand at thy right hand," when the only conditions upon which safety will be insured to God's people will be "because they have made the Lord their refuge, even the Most High their habitation"?

Surely we should learn from the history we have made as a people, that it does not pay to slight the commands of the Lord, or treat lightly the wisdom he has displayed in all the counsel given to his church. When we do as he has commanded, we have the promises verified to us, but when we willfully ignore his word, we have no promise; we therefore say the greatest of all questions before us, and the imperative duty resting upon us all, is the building up of Zion as the Lord has commanded.

That means preparation of life in all godliness, which certainly calls for a perfect obedience to all he has outlined to us as duty; and the nearer we get to our Father in godliness, the more anxious will we be to keep all his commandments; hence the gathering up of all our riches (surplus), and sending it to Zion for the building of the city, the New Jerusalem; not the spreading out of ourselves after the manner of the Gentiles, in increasing the capacity of our barns as permanent storehouses, and increasing our obligations so that we are unable to hold all things material, with a loose hand, so that they can be disposed of when our call comes to gather to Zion.

I commenced my communication to the Saints of the Stake of Independence, but only the first paragraph is confined to the Saints of this section of the work, the rest of the letter has a general application; so read, mark, and inwardly digest.

RICHARD BULLARD.

Editors Herald: The Methodists and Baptists have just closed their annual encampments at Arcadia, Missouri, each encampment holding about two weeks, and we believe a larger attendance than last year; they having come from the different States to get into the beautiful Arcadia Valley to enjoy scenery, mountain climbing, fresh air, pure water, etc., but the only success I could concede from their meetings was the raising of money. On two Sundays the Methodists raised about eleven hundred dollars, and the Baptists, on two Sundays, raised four thousand dollars, but of course they were on a higher hill.

On Sunday night at close of meetings of the Methodists, Doctor McMurray preached a sermon that was really absurd from a Saint's point of view, and failing to fill the hour, one of the bishops arose and spoke a few minutes, and one of his statements was that God has no true church upon earth; said it was not visible; that he had not seen it, and he was not looking for it. I think this statement astonished many there; that was equal to saying his own church was false. But he stated afterward that all the good people would make the one true church. But what a mixture of faith this would be, and Jesus would be a polygamist, for he would have many wives when he descends from heaven.

Reverend G. W. Truitt, of the Baptist Church, in his sermon referred to Mormonism as a selfish and devilish thing, but left the people in ignorance as to whether he referred to polygamy of the Utah Church, or to the doctrine of Jesus Christ as the Latter Day Saints teach it.

I am making preparations to have Elder J. T. Davis preach for us in Ironton and Pilot Knob. I think there are some who will enter the waters of baptism when he gets through.

Wife and I are the only Saints living here, but we feel that we have done some good. May his work hasten is my prayer.

A brother in Christ,

ALBERT C. RICHARDSON.

FANSHAW, OKLAHOMA, August 21, 1912.

Dear Herald: We have a membership of forty or more, but some are not close enough to attend church services regularly. Our branch president, B. E. Goss, is faithful and has the interest of the work at heart. We have our regular prayer meetings and sacrament; also Sunday school.

In the midst of all this work there is the influence of the adversary to hinder the progress of the branch. There are grand promises for a brighter day in this branch.

Bethren J. M. Smith and J. M. Simmons, who were in attendance at the Wilburton reunion, came and held meetings for a week, meeting with large crowds and fine interest. Results are four baptisms on the 18th. The Saints were much encouraged and built up spiritually. Brother J. H. Lewis is rejoicing over seeing Sister Lewis come into the church after believing the work so long.

The brethren mentioned left for Midland, Arkansas, on the 18th to engage in a debate with a Freewill Baptist. J. M. Simmons is to do the debating, while Brother Smith is to do the moderating. These brethren, if faithful, will do a grand work for the Master. Our prayer is that the Lord will bless them in the different engagements to defend the truth.

I am glad the angel message came to me. I hope to live a life worthy of God's divine favor, and bring no reproach upon his great cause and kingdom. May the blessings of heaven rest upon all faithful Saints is my prayer.

W. O. BRANNON.

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, August 15, 1912.

Saints' Herald: We enjoy reading both papers and love to read the letters from the different parts of the vineyard. We came to California nearly two years ago, on account of wife's health, and thanks to our heavenly Father for his kindness and mercy and directing power, because we know that he must have had a hand in all our movements. Before deciding where to go we took the matter to the Lord in prayer, and while we did not receive any great manifestations, at that time, we can look back and see that God has been with us and blessed us temporarily, spiritually, and physically.

We left many kind friends in the tri-cities, Moline, Rock Island, and Davenport, whom we learned to love as though they were flesh of our flesh and bone of our bone, and I believe that it is that spirit of love sent down from on high that binds us together as one great family.

We have found a few kind and faithful Saints in this place; but oh, the wickedness that surrounds us on every hand! May God give his people power from on high to overcome and be found faithful to the end.

We wish the readers of the HERALD to know we are still in the faith and that we have not forgotten them, although we don't get time to write to all whom we would like to. Our admonition is to look up and lift up and pray; as the Savior said, Cease not to pray always.

With love to all the dear Saints and friends, and a Lord bless you to the church publications,

C. E. BALL AND FAMILY.

2114 I STREET.

COIN, IOWA, August 25, 1912.

Editors Saints' Herald: We wish to let the elders know that they will be welcomed to our house if they come to Coin. Come to our house and we will do our best to make you at home and be glad to have you with us.

MR. AND MRS. F. D. DUNCAN.

DOW CITY, IOWA, August 23, 1912.

Editors Herald: In a letter written by me and published in the HERALD several weeks ago, under the heading "Deloit Semi-Centennial Anniversary," in referring to the charter members of the church I used the name of Martin Harris when it should have been Samuel H. Smith. There was no intention of misquoting the speaker on that occasion, Heman C. Smith, and I will be obliged if you will give this letter a place in the HERALD.

Yours in bonds,

CHARLES E. BUTTERWORTH.

Reunion of the Southern Nebraska District.

The seventh annual reunion of the Southern Nebraska District was held at Nebraska City, Nebraska, on the 17th of August, 1912. It was organized by electing Elders J. R. Sutton, W. M. Self, and Sister B. I. Andrews, representing the Sunday school and Religio, as the presidency, and Elder Edward Rannie as secretary.

The attendance was smaller than usual because of hindering causes not necessary to name here, which the committee hopes to overcome next year. Those present expressed themselves as having been well paid for the time and money spent.

The weather was very favorable the greatest part of the time. There were ten tents on the ground. A few from the city attended the evening services. The greatest number present at any meeting was one hundred and thirty.

Sister B. I. Andrews had charge of the auxiliary work and several interesting sessions were held.

Two sessions of Bible story telling were had in charge of Sister Alice Briggs and E. Rannie. This was especially for the children and was had in another part of the park, while the regular preaching was going on.

On the 23d a sewing "bee" was held, under the management of the Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service. Nineteen towels were hemmed, and some other sewing done, all of which was for the Children's Home at Lamoni. The men folks were invited to take part in this work, and it was agreed that the one that was last in hemming his towel should treat the crowd; and this unfortunate part fell on Elder J. R. Sutton, and we enjoyed a fine watermelon at his expense. Elder W. E. Haden was the champion sewer, as he hemmed two towels.

The preaching was done by Elders J. R. Sutton, W. M. Self, Joshua Carlile, C. W. Prettyman, G. H. Hilliard, Joseph Roberts, W. E. Haden, H. S. Lytle, and E. Rannie, and Priest Joseph Meyers.

There were 22 sermons preached, 9 prayer meetings, 2 Sunday school sessions, Religio normal work 4 sessions, 2 business sessions, and 3 baptisms.

At the last business meeting a resolution was passed that another reunion be held in Nebraska City, in 1913, time to be set by the committee, which is as follows: E. D. Briggs (chairman), H. A. Higgins, W. M. Self, J. R. Jones, and Sisters Lee Faunce, Alice Briggs, J. W. Waldsmith.

It was held in Morton's Park, property of the city, a most beautiful and delightful place, and ideal place for camping out.

EDWARD RANNIE.

Jots by the Wayside.

The drenching rains and cooling winds have tempered the furnace heat. The purple leaf amid the somber hills, the closing petals of decaying flowers, housing their golden seed, the ripened sunflower, turning his face to the setting sun, the gathered grain, the ripening corn and stacks of hay, all indicate that 1912 is fast speeding away—but as the years come and roll into the eternal past, the gospel plow speeds its way. This has been a record year for the Spring River District, on its onward march to the goal. All the available churches have been dedicated and deeds properly recorded; many of the branches strengthened, and more nearly organized. The several quorums duly organized, brightening up the horizon of their future work. The reunion committee, a child of its own, standing on its feet; kingly rule reduced to a minimum; shackles that bind relegated to the misty past as trophies of desuetude. In fact, the modern spirit of progression has attracted church and state and the gray rays of the dawning of a brighter morning have shot athwart the land.

Our late reunion at Pittsburg, Kansas, was a signal success. There were forty-five tents on the grounds, filled to overflowing with happy Saints and friends. The preaching evinced a high order, and the progressive spirit. Our brethren all did well indeed. The street preaching was given a grand impetus, indicated by the multitudes that stood and heard the magnetic message, by Brethren Short, Curtis, Quick, Sly, and others. The auxiliary work was under the guiding hand of Brethren Gunsolley and Virgen; also Sisters Davis, Nichols, Stebbins, Holsworth, and others; awakening the latent energies of the "sleeping giant" of the church. The children sent the thrills of hope and joy to the hearts of pioneer Saints, and cheered the spirits of younger ones. Sister Stebbins's motherly meekness and saintly patience with her large class of "babes," planting and sowing the first leaven and gospel seed in their little hearts, brings tears of gratitude to the eyes of loving mothers and doting fathers, and will never be forgotten. The large and enthusiastic choir of young and old, marshaled by Sister McNichols, vied with each other in the "gladness of song." In fine, all were well paid for arduous toil and sacrifice, with the passing of another bright spot recorded on memory's walls.

The district ministry and laity are in harmonious activity, with a bare exception. The golden worth of minister or member must be measured first and last by the rule of personal integrity and sincerity to duty imposed. Gospel ideals must be maintained at home and abroad, before the church can reach confidence and its objective mission on earth. All other roads, if not forsaken, lead us to wreckage and death.

As an indication of the progressive age, we may state that the various quorums assembled and reported spiritual meetings, unanimity and power, with a decided willingness to assist in every detail for the onward march. A resolution passed by the priests requesting the district president to use his influence towards the abolition of branches using elders for priests in good standing, etc.; the other quorums having under consideration similar resolutions, all are very significant.

In passing we can truly say our faith has been strengthened, our hopes brightened, and we are still singing: "When the battle's over."

Now, dear HERALD, allow a little chaff with the wheat. That bump of ours became active, and diversion spread o'er our face on beholding a standing picture in a California paper, representing well-known brethren with hats and coats off, sleeves rolled up, sledge, shovel, and barrow in hand, standing around an army tent, on reunion grounds. Now, brethren, that won't wash in Zion's land. We believe in moving pictures. No beads of sweat dropped from those furrowed brows of those sons of liberty, and while we are not sighing, yet we are in the heated gasps of the torrid and need a real picture of sympathy. Allow us to suggest, it lightens not the burden of despair to say the cooling waves wash the coral beach somewhere; however, we are consoled in the thought that it takes a lot of horse sense to detect a mare's nest.

At present writing we are at Galena, Kansas, looking after the interests of the very few remaining of a pioneer branch. The old church house that has echoed and reechoed the angel's message as delivered by our most eminent men, is fast falling into old age and honorable decay; together with the only two families whose tables are back against the wall in consequence of old age and fledglings flown. Yet their faith is still firm and the Zion spirit brightens the eye and inspires the feeble step. Brother T. M. Beck still holds the office of president. Brother John Ulmer and amiable wife still furnish the missionary with a very pleasant home, providing substantially for his every want. "Uncle John" is hale and hearty, under the burden of seventy-eight years, rejoicing and proud of the "Fadder land," and that he is as "Dutch as sauer kraut." Brother Beck, long past the three score and ten of the "Fadder land," and that he is as "Dutch as sauer kraut." Brother Beck, long past the three score and ten still shows a pleasant, intelligent face, evincing worth and moral influence. Our hearts go out toward these isolated ones and we hope to comfort them for a time with the old, old story they love so well.

T. W. C.

Mission address: Pittsburg, Kansas.

Our daily talk should harmonize with our Sunday prayer.—Selected.

A man doesn't harden his heart until he has softened his head.—Selected.

A man may work his way into heaven by working his way into the hearts of the people.—Selected.

He who can not pray in public has no way of proving that he prays in private, except by the way he lives.—Selected.

The man who goes on to perfection through the course of a lifetime, will go on in perfection through eternity.—Selected.

A friend is such a valuable asset that a man can afford to go a little out of his way to convert an enemy into one.—Selected.

News from Missions

Utah.

Having decided to visit Salt Lake City again, in due time I arrived here, June 27, to find the Reorganized Saints pleasantly disposed, with an expressed feeling that I would not be an undesirable citizen among them.

I soon found Brother Amos Chase and family in their mission efforts in the city and suburbs. Brother Chase had provided a tent conveniently located where services were being held each evening; after this a short service had on the street, the street auditors being invited over to the tent service. Some of these meetings were quite good, enlisting a spirit of inquiry, tract distribution and reading, showing that the leaven of effort is working and some becoming interested.

Brother Chrestensen came in soon and took a leading part in the meetings on the street, in the tent and in the hall. Meetings were held in other places as wisdom directed.

I mention Brother Chase and "family" for the reason we like to give honor to whom honor is due, and the family is no inconsiderable part of the effectiveness on the street in gathering a crowd. When Sister Chase, Charley and the musical little Alice stand in the automobile, tune up and begin to sing, it never fails to arrest attention and gather a hearing. By the way, it is not all poetry in this kind of service, for it takes some religious fervor and devotion to the cause to be willing to be used where there is no incentive of novelty or popular applause, face a sea of faces, be stared at in order to summon people to listen to an unpopular gospel message in this day of doubt, disinterestedness, and indifference, not to say downright disbelief in any kind of gospel talk. However, Brother Chase seemingly never fails to interest his hearers along some line of thought. I was made to realize that there was inspiration present in some of the services which I attended. God bless this little family of workers and their associates in maintaining the gospel against the wrong and so formidable an array of numbers.

In a short time after my arrival Brother J. W. Rushton, missionary in charge, and Bishop Richard Bullard, of Independence, came to the city and took a hand in the services for several days. Bishop Bullard held forth consecutively, in the main with small audiences. At the instance of Brother Rushton, Brother William E. Winkworth was ordained a high priest as provided for by action of the General Conference. Brother Rushton and the writer officiated. Brother Winkworth and consort are well recommended as honestly engaged in the Lord's work.

Brother Rushton was alert to the interests of the mission and appeared to good advantage in all the meetings of the Saints. At an impromptu business meeting he put things as well in order as conditions of things in this place would seemingly permit, and on the last evening of his stay he presided with freedom in the tent to a good hearing, sending a few telling points towards the opposing cult, thus demonstrating what John can do when turned loose a bit without any strings on him. Very interesting. Nothing strange that he has an occasional lemon passed to him while holding forth on the street with the estranged brethren here.

Brother Bullard's visit here was appreciated by the Saints who heard him. Of course it is well known that the real working force here is not great. Too many, however, to undertake to name. There are a sufficient number of faithful workers to keep the Sunday school, Religio, and prayer meetings going and help materially otherwise.

A visit to Ogden found Brother William Newton encouraging those who were willing to be present and join in the services. Brother Newton's efforts were very commendable.

However, if he shall succeed in overcoming the spirit of general indifference seemingly prevalent there, he shall have done a good work. There are some good helpers. It was a pleasure to meet Brother Nels Chase and family again, as their home has been a secure abode for the workers in the field for many years. Brother Chase looks younger than he did five years ago. Providence has seemingly dealt kindly with him. It may be that it means something to be kind, considerate, and helpful to other people, and that rewards flow in sometimes when least expected, even before "the day of doom" comes.

The "Mormon girl" of Autumn Leaves is still in evidence, of good memory of things, and knows how to express herself.

Sunday morning, July 31, I played truant and attended the unveiling of a monument erected over the grave of Orson Pratt in the city cemetery. The children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren of Pratt were present, with others, gathered for the occasion. Elder Penrose, erstwhile editor of the News, Governor Spry, and Historian Jensen were present and many interesting and appropriate speeches eulogistic of Pratt's career and services to the Utah Church and people. It appears that Pratt was the first man that entered the Salt Lake Valley in 1847, when the emigrants first arrived there. According to deliverance, Pratt was largely the brains of the whole adventure on trek. Brigham Young possessed the dominating will, was the constructive genius, manipulator, and inspiring force; while Pratt possessed superior natural powers and was learned, Young had seen enough to recognize his worth. Whatever may be thought of Pratt as a religious guide, he was evidently a strong and capable man in some ways, and this is true of Young. It was their theology that flooded them. Great zeal and effort put forth in a bad cause; relying upon their own genius and wisdom rather than the work of God to guide them; blindly leading a blind following. And what is still bad, is that their false theories are being retailed upon their descendants who have been taught to revere and imitate their distinguished ancestors. Whether blinded by men or the Devil, or both, we may not know, but it is as clear as the noonday sun that if the textbooks containing the word of God are worth anything as standards of rightdoing and safe guidance, these men went wrong, were blind, and what may be worse, are still blind with the same blind following who refuse to see. A case, it appears, where "Ephraim is married to his idols."

I am more than ever proud of the position assumed by the Reorganization at the beginning in declaring for our adherence to the word of God as written in the textbooks: personal liberty, free discussion, there everything vital might be thrown upon the forum and be analyzed and criticized by the most astute and discerning in the open, and thus tested as to its correctness by the highest and best standards, relieved of a blind, bigoted, and dictatorial self-imposed priesthood. Thank God for a love of freedom, free schools, an open Bible, and the right to read it; relief from creeds and creedism and dictatorial leadership, who assume to be wise above what is written and deceive the people under the false plea of being the inspired oracles, and limited by nothing but their own blindness; who shut up the kingdom of God and will not enter nor allow those who are entering or would enter to enter. "Blind guides" who encompass sea and land to make a proselyte and when made he is two-fold more the child of hell than he was before.

But there was a cause for this condition; it was not spontaneous. Read: "If you do not these things at the end of the appointment, ye shall be rejected as a church with your dead, saith the Lord your God."—Doctrine and Covenants 107: 11. Again: "And it shall come to pass, that if you build a house unto my name, and do not the things that I say, I will not perform the oath which I make unto you, neither fulfill the promise you expect at my hands, saith the Lord; for instead of blessings, ye by your own works, bring cursings, wrath, indignation, and judgments upon your own heads, by your follies and by all your abominations, which you practice before me, saith the Lord."—Book of Mormon, p. 107.

If this revelation can be relied upon, we have here presented the social condition of things at Nauvoo, the place where it is affirmed by the most experienced Brighamite that polygamy, spiritual wifery, and other unsavory things were incubating. "Follies" and "abominations" were being practiced that vitiated and rendered null the whole organization, and it was "rejected."

But read on: "And if my people will hearken unto my voice, and unto the voice of my servants whom I have appointed to lead my people, behold, verily I say unto you, they shall not be moved out of their place."—Book of Mormon, p. 117. They did not remain, but were "moved out of their place," scattered, "rejected," not for the practice of holiness, but "folly," and "abominations." They discorded with the written word of God and put their faith in men as guides, fulfilling the following: "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord." What will happen? "For he shall not see when good cometh; but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness, in a salt land and not inhabited."—Jeremiah 17: 5, 6.

Here they are in Utah. Orson Pratt being the first white man to enter the parched wilderness and salt land from the trek. They left Nauvoo; were "moved out of their place," and scattered because of practicing "folly," and "abominations"; putting trust in man and making flesh their arm. Here they are in the practice of polygamy and concubinage, worshipping Adam as God; as they say it, "And all the God with whom we have to do." This leaving the word of God and following the effusions of self-imposed, inspired, living oracles; yet receiving no revelations, but being content to be dictated to, by men. Thus they are putting their trust in man and making flesh their arm. The moral turpitude obtaining at Nauvoo, exit and scattering, made it possible and necessary that the Reorganization be established. Among the rejected mass were faithful and devoted followers. They scattered with others, but loved the truth. In due time these were called upon under divine command to unite in a reorganization, the old one having been "rejected." They were called on to undertake the reclamation of the erring ones from the ways of folly and abomination; to inquire for the old paths, the gospel of peace from which so many had strayed. Some have heard the call of the Good Shepherd, others are still set in their purpose, married to their idols. An occasional one is looking for the light. This is encouraging. May there be a supreme awakening. We long that honest hearts may see the light and seek after it.

Later it was thought wise to remove the tent, close the hall, and continue the meetings on the streets, holding Sunday services in Brother Chase's private apartments, which are ample and pleasant. A good feeling prevails.

WILLIAM H. KELLEY.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, August 7, 1912.

Although affliction cometh not forth of the dust, neither doth trouble spring out of the ground; yet man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward.—Job.

"It is better to chase rainbows than to grunt and groan under the juniper tree."

Montana.

It seems as though the work might progress much faster, and while it seems I have not accomplished a great deal of good, I hope I may have done some, at least. Brother W. P. Bootman and I have been laboring together most of the time this summer. I find him to be a good, zealous worker and a noble companion in gospel work. We have opened up the work in some new places, with good interest. We have been having a little tilt with a Reverend Mr. Gaston, of the Presbyterian faith, of Hobson. Brother Bootman preached here in the hall for a few nights. He would not say anything while Brother Bootman was here, but as soon as he left, he advertised in the paper that he was going to answer the Mormon elder's errors. How he garbled the Scriptures on Christian baptism, and certain other scriptures! I had an appointment out, but withdrew it so I could be present at his meeting and take notes. I did so, and just before he had closed his meeting, I went in and asked him if I could talk a few minutes. He said, "No, sir; I know what you want to say."

When he dismissed I started to make an announcement for meeting the next night, but he came up and said, "You can't announce anything here; this is my crowd. Get your crowd."

I said, "All right; I will announce it on the street." So I just asked the people to wait on the street until they all came out, and I there made my announcement.

The next night I had a good crowd, where before the people would not come out to hear our people. The reverend was not satisfied with that. He came again with another sermon. Brother Bootman was present this time and took notes and answered him the following night. He had said he was here to stay and was camped on Brother Bootman's trail. Brother Bootman told him he was welcome to do so. He had a little article published in the paper with propositions for him to sign. He wrote Brother Bootman a letter and told him if he would be present at the meeting he would arrange for a discussion if he would agree to some very simple preliminaries. Brother Bootman had gone and did not get his letter, but I was present and heard what he had to say. He said he was sorry the Mormon elder was not present. I told him I was there to represent him, and he said, "I don't want anything to do with you. I want one of the biggest guns you have got in your church." He said the propositions would stand good until Brother Bootman came back, whether it was a week or a year.

When he came back we went to his meeting the next Sunday night, expecting him to sign up for a debate. He had his very simple preliminaries fixed up on the sixteenth chapter of Mark for Brother Bootman to sign. Brother Bootman told him he would sign them if he would sign the ones he had on the two churches. He would not do it at first—said he would sign nothing. Brother Bootman told him he would not sign his until he did; then he agreed to sign them. After they had both signed with witnesses, the reverend brought out a bottle of poison and wanted Brother Bootman to take it, and then they would go on with the debate. He said unless he did the debate would end right there. He would not let Brother Bootman say a word. When he would try to say anything he would say: "Shut up, you impostor. I hate you."

He kept that up till the people all got up and left him. He was getting pretty well worked up when the people left him. That ended the debate idea, and he has been very quiet since.

T. E. FITZWATER.

HOBSON, MONTANA, August 25, 1912.

From Over the Mountains.

It is near three months since I landed in my field. Thus far I have baptized fifteen. I like my field, as every other field I have been in, so long as I can find hearts receptive to the truth and have enough to eat, wear, and for traveling expenses, which faithfulness will always put into my hands.

There are some very long overland drives to take, and sometimes through dust which once and again arises in the rainless regions, almost to suffocation. But then the weather is warm; so that, after all, tediousness is about the only charge that is left to lay to the experience. One thing I have learned, simmered down, and stored away: a brown or gray suit is preferable to any in this mission, unless you will either everlastingly brush or everlastingly look dirty.

Give me plenty of bodily comfort in the midst of a people who are in reach of the rays of the Sun of Righteousness and a bugless bed and I am in heaven.

This is a land flowing with a great deal of milk and honey. The largest potatoes I ever saw were in this State, which bears the record of as many as a thousand bushels to the acre. Half that amount, I believe, is quite common. Purchasers of land have nearly paid for the same in a single year's crop when they were able to realize for them one dollar per hundred pounds. Tons of extracted honey can be bought f. o. b. at four dollars for a hundred and twenty pound crate; beautiful honey, and this is less than seven cents a pound. The freight to Independence is about one dollar and thirty-five cents, or one and one third cents a pound. Eight cents a pound would land it at the depot of the city of the Saints. Our merchants there could handle it and do well at ten cents a pound. Two cents a pound is enough for them to make—plenty. And in the case of a shortage in the crop of potatoes in that region of country they could get them here by the carload and make good money selling them there for one dollar a bushel after they have paid the freight. I expect about seventy-five cents per hundred pounds will be the approximate sale price this year. I would be glad to give information for the asking to any persons who express a desire and promise to purchase here to help our people there. But some exploiter who wants to double on the Saints can seek another informant. It is not right to charge all one can get just because they can get; no, sir. It is far better that one merchant wait on five thousand people and make two or three per cent than for one dozen merchants to make ten per cent. All of our people in centers like Lamoni and Independence ought to be able to buy as cheaply as dealers. Everyone ought to be reconciled to the condition which is the best for the most of us, which means the greatest happiness to the greatest numbers. Wait till the Order of Enoch gets under headway and see the transformation that it will accomplish and the status of financial affairs that it will establish for the financial well-being of those who will avail themselves of all the benefits God has for them. If one barber shop in Independence could take care of all the trade and make a respectable living at fifteen cents a cut, why pay twenty-five cents for no other purpose than to enable other swine to make a living at it?

But while I have the fullest and most implicit confidence in the ultimate success of the United Order of Enoch and the establishment of Zion in regions, of such a system of exchange of commodities as shall astonish the outside world, I do not believe that temporal advantages should be held out now or ever by our ministry as an inducement to the world to swell our ranks and occupy a place among the soldiery of the army of the Lord.

Dowieites and Scientists can not have healing without its conspicuous emblazonment on their banners in all the land and a manifest dependence on it for conversions to their cults. Simple Scandinavians have espoused the Mormon religion in the hope of a job in the valleys of the mountains. Men have professed faith in Elijah the Second and fled to Zion City because they expected a cure and a situation. Go out to the world to-day and no matter how skeptical they are of your message as to its spiritual side, hold out to them physical and temporal advantages and see how soon they will flop. People like loves and fishes to-day as well as in the days of the Serene One who supplied them.

Take the foreign missions of the sectarian churches. I have documentary evidence that a large share of the conversions in the heathen Orient have been unmitigated briberies. They have sapped millions of dollars from the people of this country, Canada, and England, with which they have in heathen lands been maintaining universities and colleges; theological, normal, and training schools; boarding and high schools; industrial and elementary schools; kindergartens, hospitals, dispensaries, orphanages, leper hospitals, homes for lepers' untainted children, asylums for the blind and deaf, rescue homes, opium refuges, homes for widows, and industrial homes. It is easier for the Chink to be a sectarian Christian and have free college and free schooling than to attend the government institutions and pay his way. It is easier for him to feign the Christian religion and get his rotten teeth filled for nothing than to put up with the toothache or go toothless. It is easier to acknowledge the Christ story as it is told in part by his persuaders and have his family doctored free of charge than to go sick, or die, or pay his own way.

Some of the great men of the great churches are becoming alive to the situation, and on the various expressions on the subject is one from Bishop Morrison, of Louisville, Kentucky, in the Pentecostal Herald, who says: "After fifty years of toil and a vast outlay of money, we have a mere handful of converts, compared with what we should have. The commission does not read, 'Go into all the world and educate every creature'; but 'preach the gospel to every creature.'" Again he says: "Tens of thousands of money and precious years of time have been devoted to teaching idolaters mathematics and literature and, at the same time, leaving them idolaters." Again: "You my build hospitals and colleges all you will, but the need of heathen lands to-day is ten thousand fire-baptized evangelists. . . . I fear the Laymen's Movement will dump great heaps of money here and there and leave the heathen to die without the gospel; that they will put vast sums into brick and mortar instead of putting the kingdom of heaven into the dark, desolate hearts of the millions of lost people dying without Christ."

Doctor Bach, who spent twelve years in Chinese mission work, says: "For nine years I mostly worked on educational lines, and found the Chinese very smart students. But out of the six hundred or seven hundred students, not one remained a Christian, but, as soon as there was opportunity to go in governmental service, they forgot all about Christian teaching and changed into Confucianists." (See book, Foreign Missions.)

But my correspondence is becoming too extended. I am preaching nightly and visiting daily. The weather is fine. Farmers have taken off their second crop of alfalfa and are in the act of taking it off elsewhere in the State where the elevation is higher. The elevation here in this delightful and sumptuous valley where the many delicious fruits are now in bountiful profusion, is between two and three thousand feet, but recently I was where it was about six thousand feet. They have three crops of hay in a season, and one acre of land will yield six or seven bushels of alfalfa seed, which is worth about fifteen dollars a bushel. They can make very good money on hay at four dollars a ton.

One of the greatest features is the electrical facilities which the State affords. Power is about the cheapest thing they can have. It is said that sufficient could be generated in Idaho by water to run all the machinery and lights in the United States. And you only need a trip through the valleys and along the various streams to have every doubt removed. I noticed one place in the valley here where a man even has his fence charged with electrical current to resist the stock. The electricity costs something, but it doesn't take so many wires. It is the cheapest power. It compensates for the wastes, the mountain roughness of the land.

But, Mr. Saint, don't you think of coming here and leaving the borders of Zion. You have no business. I would not answer your letters. Stay where you are or get nearer. The Lord said: "Let no one leave this place." (Doctrine and Covenants 107.) "The rebellious shall be plucked up and sent away." If you are a rebel, all right. Brethren here are looking east to the regions round about, just as God has told them time and again, both in the original church and in the Reorganized Church. Some have regretted they came here, and all have not improved their financial condition. And what if they have, if it has been at the cost of spiritual? No minister is authorized to coax members to Canada or Idaho, or away from the regions round about. Money is bringing ten and twelve per cent here, but they have none of mine.

We are at present at the home of Brother and Sister McKnight, who have been in the church many years, and their watermelon patch is just across the road; though I must observe that I am not much of a hand to deal with the personnel of my visitations, lest I ignore some against their pleasure.

Yours or else nobody's,
ALVIN KNISLEY.

HAGERMAN, IDAHO, August 20, 1912.

Salt Lake City, Utah.

We thought it might be interesting to let you know that we are still on the firing line out here, and having enough engagements to keep us interested in the work.

The evening of the 3d inst. we were informed by phone that the good bishop of the fifth ward of Ogden had advertised that Bishop Van Dyke, of the third ward would lecture before the Mutual of the fifth ward, the following evening, on the subject of "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." Our communicant urged that we be present to hear and make reply. After consulting with our local force here, it was decided that we would answer the call.

Well, we were present, and after listening to the bishop, who, by the way, was one of the company that visited Lamoni some years since, and who acquitted themselves so creditably there—according to their own write up, we rose, and remembering that our house had been opened to them on that, as well as on sundry other occasions, we said, "We would like to prefer a request to the bishop of this house; we would like to have the use of it on the morrow evening to make reply to the lecture of this evening."

Bishop Jacobs (Chariton Jacobs), made answer: "No, sir; you can't have it."

We then said: "Then may we make an announcement of an open air meeting?"

"No, you can't; that's enough; sit down," came the vehement reply.

Of course, as we know when we are sat upon, we sat down, but while the benediction was being pronounced we stepped out of the house and as the congregation came out made our announcement. Of course there was a buzz at first, some thinking we were doing something very presumptuous, but we informed them that we were standing on the ground of American citizenship and proposed that the people should know that there would be an open air service at the corner of Twenty-fourth and Hudson streets the next night at eight o'clock.

Well, we do not intend to boast, but will say that the next night found a crowd awaiting us at the appointed place and time. We think that the effort to suppress us only operated to make the people more anxious to hear the other side of the matter. We feel that good was done by this attempt to retard the work of calling the honest-hearted back to their inheritances.

This is one of the hopeful signs out here now, that instead of being able to keep the people from hearing the message by these unamerican methods, they only keep a few of the flock in willing subjection to their dictum. The heaven is working, even in Utah.

We have lately made a trip to Brigham City, where we preached twice on the street, also two trips to Ogden since the one just referred to. In these trips we have been accompanied by our wife and daughter, and some very good meetings were held. Also, at our open air services in this town, lately, there has been a good attendance and interest.

Out at Butlerville, where Charles Chase and Hiram Swenson made an opening a few months since, the good work has gone on till there are at least three who announce that they are ready for baptism. At this place we had the use of the ward house until the stake president ordered the bishop to close it against us, and since that we have occupied in a private house, holding one meeting each week. At these meetings the speakers have been Brethren Swenson, Charles S. Chase, Allen Wardle, and the writer; so the fruit will be the result of the combined labors of many—not only the preachers, but those who have assisted in the singing as well, and in this we have had the assistance of not only our immediate household, but of the family of Brother James Wardle, of Midvale, and Mrs. Rogers of this place.

The branch work goes on about as usual here, but we look for better times coming, for while our attendance is not large, there is a goodly degree of the Spirit with us in the services, and some are investigating here, and investigation spoils priestcraft every time.

Well, we do not think it profitable to take much time in recounting our experiences, nor do we have much to boast of, only as our boasting is in Christ who giveth us the victory in the gospel fight.

Of the other missionaries, as far as we know, Brethren Chrestensen and Stubbart are in Deseret, or somewhere in that vicinity, Brother M. F. Gowell in Provo, and Charles S. Chase, who for some time past has been associated with Brother Gowell in the work in and around Provo, is again in the city here, having been called here by Brother J. W. Rushton to do some printing on the multigraph which has been furnished us by the Bishop.

And just here we wish to say that we anticipate a campaign by a series of follow up letters issued from this multigraph, and which Brother Smurthwaite has in charge, that will accomplish much for the disseminating of knowledge along gospel lines among this people. We are taking the matter up and trying to get the Saints to each one send out a number of these letters each week, choosing their mailing list from those of their acquaintances who may be, by this means, brought to a more lively interest in the work of restoration.

These letters are to be gotten out on live topics, and so couched that they may be sent as personal letters, and in this way we hope to have many more than the number of missionaries who are now at work in this State, and all doing something to reach the public. Should any of our readers feel interested in this work and wish to take part, they may receive a supply of this literature by sending to us here, and inclosing a small fee for the expense of mailing them to their address.

Hoping for all things good for the cause, we are, sincerely,
A. M. CHASE.

772 EAST FOURTH STREET, August 22, 1912.

News from Branches

Independence, Missouri.

On Wednesday, August 14, Brother Alfred L. Floyd, of Jerusalem, was baptized in the font, and was confirmed at the evening prayer meeting. Also Sister Elizabeth Hudson, lately from Illinois, was baptized on the 28th, on the 17th Brother John H. Gibson, and on the 21st two sisters from Oklahoma came forward for baptism.

Since writing our last items there have been two funerals at the church. That of Sister Violet Hughes Hildebrand took place on the 14th, our beloved sister having passed away on the 12th, leaving a husband and infant son. Also on the 15th another faithful young sister, Maud Pointer, died, who had for several years been actively engaged in Religio and Sunday school work here.

Brother J. W. Metcalf preached a good gospel sermon on the 18th in the morning, and Brother A. V. Closson held forth to edification in the evening.

The Independence brethren of the ministry are actively engaged, and we hear of their labors at Mount Washington, Grand View, Orchard Home, Englewood, Argentine, Kansas City, Kansas, the Market Square, Courtney, and the South Side, all suburbs, or in the vicinity of this place.

The attendance on the 18th at Sunday school was 761, and on last Sunday, the 25th, it was 732. Besides the classes of the five departments, we have a class for mothers, over which a grandmother of "long standing" in the Sunday school work presides. There are generally about ten pupils in this class, which has a pleasant place in the first primary department.

On Wednesday, the 21st, while the Saints were gathered in prayer service, two couples were busily engaged in their wedding festivities at the respective homes of the happy brides. These young couples were Brother Paul Craig and Sister Jeannette V. Kelley, and Brother Eric P. Cook, jr., and Sister E. Altha Crick, all residents of this city.

Together with the meetings of the sewing and literary departments, also a few social functions, we must not forget to mention the regular gathering of the Home and Child Welfare Department of the Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service, which occurred on the 18th inst., when about one hundred and sixty-five were present. The names of those participating in the excellent program were Mrs. Pearl Gardner, Miss Carlotta Hartnell, Miss Bertha Anderson, Miss Flo Sterrett, Miss Ruby Short, Miss Zaide Rodger, and Miss Corinne Haines.

Great and wonderful as the words of Solomon were the splendid thoughts on display at that shining round table of young solons.

Much might be said of praise concerning the address of Sister Ruth Smith and the beautiful vocal solo of Sister B. Allen, but on account of lack of space we reluctantly desist. Concerning what we have passed through the past week, the Jackson County Fair, the same county's Teachers' Annual Convention, the meetings and meetings and the hot weather at 97.4, we will record further on.

ABBIE A. HORTON.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

EASTERN MICHIGAN.—Conference convened at Port Huron, Michigan, June 22, 1912, at 10 a. m. The following organization was effected: F. A. Smith chairman, assisted by the district presidency; F. O. Benedict secretary, assisted by R. H. Huston. The more important items of business were as follows: Report of delegation to General Conference; report of credential committee; branch reports from Cash, East Fremont, Saint Clair, Pigeon River, Port Huron, Evergreen, Bay Port, Flint, McGregor, Laing, Valley Center, Cass River, Black River, Allenton, Minden City, Applegate; reports of elders: J. A. Grant, Otto Fetting, William Grice, J. L. Sweet, W. F. Smith, Arthur Allen, D. E. Dowker, O. J. Hawn, F. Simkiss, W. L. Bennett, G. R. McCoucha. E. E. Wortz, Thomas Rawson, G. H. Skinner, Israel Goheen, R. H. Houston, W. J. Smith, Thomas Miller, H. E. C. Muir. Priests: F. E. Free, William R. Hutchins, B. F. Phetteplace, L. A. Terry, C. A. Winters, J. Volz, Charles Morgan, M. A. Carr, J. E. Harriman, D. G. Burtch, J. J. Emlaw, G. C. Lakin, Clyde Gault, J. B. McBride, W. H. Sheffer, R. D. Bennett. Bishop's agent reported: Receipts and balance on hand, $4,334.30; expenditures $3,561.14; due church, $773.16. A resolution prevailed requiring all the ministry to hereafter report to district president and he to summarize them for conference. William Grice was reelected district president, Otto Fetting assistant president, F. O. Benedict secretary. The matter pertaining to the district secretary's books was left to the district presidency and minister in charge. Bishop's agent William Smith was sustained. Sister A. M. McKenzie was reelected as member of the library board. By ye and nay vote the next conference, to be held in October, was given to Flint. Otto Fetting and J. R. Grice were reelected members of the reunion committee, Brother Allen sustained as president of the committee. At 3.45 there was a meeting held, in charge of F. A. Smith, for the purpose of organizing a Michigan quorum of elders. Young people's meeting held at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Preaching by W. A. McDowell. William Grice was ordained to the office of president of the Michigan Quorum of Elders; William Guy to the office of deacon; Ralph Harder a priest; Brother Burt to first counselor to president of the elders' quorum; F. Krause ordained a teacher; Brother McKnight second counselor to the president of the quorum of elders; R. D. Weaver ordained an elder. Preaching by R. Etzenhouser. Sunday school session in the afternoon. Preaching by William Grice. Particular mention should be made to the work of Sister Maggie Macgregor in the interest of the social purity movement. The fruit of such labor must ripen in eternity. F. O. Benedict, secretary.

NORTH DAKOTA.—Conference convened near Logan, July 9, 1912, at 2 p. m., district president, William Sparling, in charge. After the usual exercises Brother Sparling made a short talk and by motion the district president and vice president were chosen to preside. J. W. Darling was chosen secretary, and he chose Brother James C. Page to assist. On motion the conference was declared a mass conference and the courtesies of the floor were extended to the visiting brethren. Reports were read from William Sparling, district president, J. E. Wildermuth and James C. Page, missionaries, Elder J. S. Wagener, Priest W. H. Hagood, and Calvin Wagar. District secretary reported 337 enrolled in the district. Three branches reported: Fargo 34, gain 7; Milroy 37; Lansford 56, loss 5. The bishop's agent reported and the report was referred to an auditing committee. James C. Page reported as delegate to General Conference. The matter of disorganizing inactive branches was taken up. The Star of Hope and the Antler branches were deferred one year. The Leeds Branch was referred to the district officers to investigate and report to the next conference. The Lansford Branch was referred to William Sparling, J. W. Wight, and J. E. Wildermuth, to act as they think best. The recommendation of the district president as to the ordination of elders was referred to J. W. Wight and the district president. The matter of organizing a branch at Minot was referred to J. W. Wight and William Sparling. The conference ratified the action of the Star of Hope Branch in regard to the expulsion of Ida Nash. The action of the General Conference regarding the ordaining of William Sparling high priest was unanimously ratified. T. Leitch was chosen member of the library commission. William Sparling was sustained district president, James S. Wagener vice president,

CONTENTS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

EDITORIAL:

Jesus and the Classes, Part 1.—The Poor - - - 845

The Death of Patriarch E. Keeler - - - 847

“Our Church Courts” - - - 847

Editorial Selection - - - 847

Notes and Comments - - - 848

HYMNS AND POEMS - - - 848

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Attitude of Civil Courts toward Ecclesiastical Courts, by S. A. Burgess - - - 849

Dealing with the Erring, No. 6, by Charles Fry - - - 851

Leaves from Life, Part 2, Experiences of H. N. Snively - - - 852

Worship, by Edward D. Moore. - - - 855

OF GENERAL INTEREST - - - 857

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - 859

Richard Bullard—Albert C. Richardson—W. O. Brannon—C. E. Ball and Family—Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Duncan—Charles Butterworth—Edward Rannie—T. W. Chatburn. - - -

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - 862

William H. Kelley—T. E. Fitzwater—Alvin Knisley—A. M. Chase. - - -

NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - 866

Abbie A. Horton. - - -

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - 866

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to “Editors Herald.” All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

The only smile that helps anyone rises in the heart.

J. W. Darling, secretary. Adjourned to meet at Berlin, North Dakota, January 10 and 11, 1913. J. W. Darling, secretary pro tem.

Conference Notices.

Kewanee district conference will convene at Dahinda, Illinois, September 21, 22, 1912. Reports should reach the district secretary not later than September 18. Please take note of this. Mary E. Gillin, district secretary, 115 Clarke Avenue, Peoria, Illinois.

The conference of the Northeastern Missouri District will meet with the Saints of the Menefee Branch September 21 and 22, 1912. Saints, you are urged to be present at this conference and help to make it one of the best ever held in our district. Apostle Peter Anderson has promised to be with us. Election of officers will take place at this meeting, and there will be other business of importance to all interested Saints. Please notify Elder C. W. Miller, New Cambria, Missouri, when you expect to arrive, so arrangements can be made to meet you at the depot. Send all reports to William C. Chapman, Higbee, Missouri, route 3. William C. Chapman, district secretary.

Convention Notices.

Regular semiannual convention of Zion's Religio-Literary Society of Eastern Colorado District will be held in Denver, chapel, corner Speer Boulevard and Logan Street, September 12 and 13. Literary and musical program Thursday evening at 7.45. Prayer meeting Friday at 9.30 a. m. Business session at 10 a. m. Walter W. Weller, district president Zion's Religio-Literary Society, Eastern Colorado District.

The convention of the Northeastern Missouri District Sunday school association will convene September 20, 1912, at the Menefee Sunday school. A good attendance is desired, and a cordial invitation is extended to all. Willie Mae Chapman, secretary.

Elders of Eastern Mission.

At the Massachusetts district reunion the elders of the Eastern Mission were organized into a quorum, to be known as the Quorum of Elders of the Eastern Mission. W. A. Sinclair was chosen president, Frederick W. Roberts and Frank C. Mesle counselors, and E. H. Fisher secretary and treasurer.

We, respectfully ask the secretaries of the different districts comprising said mission to furnish us with a list of the names of elders in their districts, with items of their ordination, etc., that all may be enrolled and furnished with a license, and given instruction regarding the workings of said quorum, that all may work in harmony and effectually in their respective callings.

W. A. SINCLAIR, M. D.
WINTER HILL, MASSACHUSETTS, 166 Pearl Street.

Died.

WHITING.—Sister Elizabeth Ann Hacking was born at Saint Louis, Missouri, December 18, 1854; was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints February 16, 1866, by Elder William Cottam; was married to Thomas Whiting September 6, 1875; died in Boston Massachusetts, August 9, 1912, and was buried from the Saints' church, Fall River, Massachusetts, Monday, August 12, 1912. The funeral was in charge of and the sermon was preached by Elder Hyrum O. Smith. She leaves three daughters and one son to mourn their loss, with a host of friends, who testified to her worth by following her to her last resting place in the beautiful cemetery at Fall River.

FISHER.—Clara Fisher age seventeen, died July 11, 1912, at Regina, Saskatchewan, of typhoid fever. Funeral services were held at Tyvan, T. J. Jordan preaching the sermon. A large assembly was in attendance. She was a sweet, promising sister, beloved by all. The bereaved ones have the sincere sympathy of all. She left abundant evidence of her confidence in a glorious acceptance in the great beyond. We hope to meet her in celestial glory.

How to Explain Dreams.

The dream as it unrolls itself before the sleeper's consciousness is an allegorical or symbolical expression of the ideas which belong to his thought world, writes the Reverend Samuel McComb, D. D., in the September Century. Why should dreams take on an allegorical dress? Why are they not, as a rule, a literal transference of events and experiences from a waking state to a sleeping state? The answer is, because the normal waking consciousness which acts as a kind of check upon painful or disagreeable thoughts and feelings, relaxes its activities during sleep, and allows these thoughts and feelings to pass into consciousness, only, however, when their motives have been disguised under a hidden mass of symbolism. If it were not so, if dreams literally reflected the conflicts and yearnings of the workaday world, they would set up such emotional excitement as would arouse the waking consciousness and so make an end of sleep. Hence the valuable reflection is forced upon us that dreams fulfill the important function of preserving sleep. They are thus seen to bear vitally upon our health and happiness.

Another interesting question which modern investigation has been able to answer is, Out of what materials are dreams constructed? Nothing can come into our dreams that has not entered into our past experiences. The thoughts of the mental state immediately preceding sleep are hard to recover afterward, but when they are recovered they are found to persist in our dreams. But we may go further than this. There is nothing incredible in the supposition that, written, as it were, with invisible ink on our nervous systems are characters inherited from our most distant ancestors.—Century Magazine for September.

Cheap Tickets to West and Northwest

I know a way by which you can save a good portion of the ordinary expense of a trip west, and at the same time be extra comfortable. I am employed by the "Burlington Route" to give you this information, tell you all about our through car and train service, via various routes, the comfort of our splendid through tourist sleeping cars, the pleasure to be had by joining one of the special excursion parties in charge of a tourist conductor, and to help you in every way I can. I can point out to you how to travel comfortably and inexpensively, what to see and how to get there. It is my business to furnish you with maps and tell you about the special cheap tickets we offer, as well as assist you make your plans. I will engage sleeping berths and be of such help that all details of your trip will be arranged before you start from home. If you are going west, please call at my office or write me for information at once—before this opportunity gets away—a postal will do. L. F. Siltz, Ticket Agent, Burlington Route.

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

Order No.

- 141 cloth 75c
- 141½ leather $1.00
- 174 flexible $1.50

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed. No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25
Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,
Cloth, No. 198 50c
Paper No. 197 35c

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.
Order No. 249, cloth 50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
No. 140, cloth 50

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
Lamoni Land and Loan Co,
Lamoni, Iowa.

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.
Order No. 241, cloth 50

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
No. 248a, cloth 75

For Sale.

At Lamoni, Iowa. Bakery; splendid business, good location, first-class outfit. Good reasons for selling. Write for particulars to F. M. McDonald, Lamoni, Iowa.

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read book. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
Order No. 248, cloth 75

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestation of God working through his servant.
No. 216, cloth 75c

WANTED.

Information of the whereabouts of William Bradbury, about fifty-eight years old, last heard of was in Bristol, England. Also information of Matilda and Margaret Bradbury, last heard of were in Bristol, England. Father's name was Thomas and mother's name Ann.
Address,

Eliza Ann Hancock,
Lamoni, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPTEMBER 11, 1912

NUMBER 37

Editorial

JESUS AND THE CLASSES.

PART II.—THE RICH.

It was the pride of Americans in years gone by that there were no classes in America. But now we are told that there are sharply defined and antagonistic classes and that a great class struggle is going on between capital and labor. Events force us to believe that there is some truth in the assertion. It is not so long since the echoes died away from the explosion that wrecked the Times building in Los Angeles,—a blow struck, the striker thought, in the interest of labor. It is not so long since United States troops in a manufacturing town in Massachusetts, facing a great body of striking workers, were told to "shoot and shoot to kill." This order was given in the interests of invested capital. These incidents show the ferocity of the struggle as it sometimes manifests itself.

In this struggle there are those who may say amen with much fervor to the law recorded in the King James Version of the Bible: "Neither shalt thou countenance a poor man in his cause."—Exodus 23:3. But fortunately for our confidence in the great Lawgiver, it is rendered in the Inspired Translation, "Neither shalt thou countenance a wicked man in his cause." No matter which side may use wicked and corrupt methods, from them we must withhold our moral support. A wicked man is a wicked man and his deeds are evil, whether he be rich or poor.

On the other hand, there may be those who have nothing but hatred for the rich. They nurse the most insane class hatred. But remember, that when a certain rich man (a very rich man) came to Jesus, it is said, "Jesus beholding him, loved him." Jesus had use for both the man and his riches; but alas, he got neither. Rich men are human, much like poor men. Thousands of poor men who to-day rail against the rich would be in their places, and as bad as they, had they the ability, power, or opportunity.

WHAT DID JESUS CONDEMN?

What was it, then, that Jesus condemned among the rich? It was the unjust and cruel methods that some employed in securing riches, and the corrupt uses they made of the riches when secured. To the rich Pharisees he said: "Woe unto you, for ye devour widows' houses." And again, he says they "bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers."

James, as spokesman for Jesus, says: "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days. Behold, the hire of the laborers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth; and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter. Ye have condemned and killed the just; and he doth not resist you."—James 5:1-6.

No more awful arraignment of the rich and powerful who are corrupt in heart and deed could be imagined. But Jesus did not hate the rich merely because they were rich. He loved man; he hated the sins of men. The same Jesus who healed blind Bartimeus, the beggar, who cast his garment away and came to him naked, loved the rich young man who came to him for counsel; and both events are recorded in one chapter, so that the comparison is the more striking. Jesus preached his gospel to both rich and poor. He excluded neither from the mercy seat. To both classes that gospel brought the commandment to repent and be born again.

GOD'S PLAN OF RECONCILIATION.

Has God then no plan of reconciliation that will put these warring classes at one, in fact do away with class distinctions and divisions? Yes, he has such a plan; but it will only operate among those who "come unto him." Its fruition waits upon the voluntary cooperation of the people; for it is not like other plans that would make man honest and just automatically.

To understand this plan we must have recourse to modern revelation, for though we catch a glimpse of its operation, following the day of Pentecost, when those who had riches imparted to those who were in want, and all were one, the details of the plan are not given in the Bible.

The Book of Doctrine and Covenants contains the revelations given to Joseph Smith between the years 1829 and 1844. During those years the burning unrest that characterizes the industrial world of to-day was not known in America. Industrialism in America had hardly begun to develop. Joseph Smith and his followers spent most of their time in frontier places, such as Kirtland, (Ohio), Independence, (Missouri), and Nauvoo, (Illinois), where conditions of life were simple. Yet his revelations anticipated conditions that have come about in later years, and displayed an understanding of economic principles that could have come only by inspiration.

Let us see: In those revelations we find the principle laid down that poverty is not essentially necessary: The Lord said: "The earth is full, and there is enough and to spare."—Doctrine and Covenants 101: 2.

Only a short time ago, Mr. Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer of the British Empire, met with the leading churches at Cardiff, Wales, to discuss present social conditions, and he made it his postulate that poverty "is not chargeable to Providence," for God has created plenty for all who are willing to work and for the unfortunate who can not work.

The sentiment was loudly applauded by those present,—Protestants and Catholics and Episcopalians. Divine inspiration had anticipated the wisdom of the wise nearly eighty years.

AN ADEQUATE MATERIAL BASIS IN NATURE.

We have then an adequate material basis in nature. It remains but to put into operation the divine plan. This of course can only be done by those who subscribe to its conditions. It becomes absolutely necessary to form a nucleus or center from which to work, composed of those who are anxious for just and equitable conditions to obtain and are willing to abide the terms of the law. Such a body, of necessity will be composed of men and women who have accepted the gospel of Jesus Christ, and are willing to rise above self in the higher hope of community good. The gathering follows as a natural consequence.

So the next principle laid down is that of gathering: "The righteous shall be gathered out from among all nations, and shall come to Zion singing, with songs of everlasting joy."—Doctrine and Covenants 45: 14.

ENVIRONMENT AND REGENERATION.

There is no question that environment is a factor in the degradation of men, and it will be a factor in their redemption. The right kind of men in the right kind of environment will produce the highest type of society. But environment is not the only factor or even the chief factor.

If we plant a potato, we will say, in a dark cellar it will attempt to grow and produce potatoes, but the results will be very unsatisfactory. Plant the same potato in a fertile soil and give it sunshine and moisture and it will develop and produce normal potatoes. It responds to its environment. But notice, if we desire potatoes we do not plant sand burrs, for they will never produce potatoes no matter how excellent the environment may be. Nor can we plant selfish, greedy, immoral, violent men in an ideal environment and produce moral, altruistic, high-minded citizens. They will spoil their environment instead of the environment redeeming them. There is need of regeneration.

Regeneration is no obsolete principle in gospel economy. We know by observation that God can take men and women and transform them so that they will be no more like their former selves than a potato is like a sand burr. He transformed the blasphemous fisherman, Peter, and the woman of the streets, Magdalena, from whom seven devils were cast, and regenerated them. One became a monumental figure in the world's history, the other a pure and good woman. Both probably became members of that ideal society formed after Pentecost in which there were no rich and no poor. Thus God planted the right seed in the right soil. He used environment; but regeneration came first.

Had they rejected regeneration, Peter and Magdalena would have died as they had lived.

Those who accept the divine rule of life are the right kind of men and women; Zion will furnish the right kind of environment.

But some say: "The church moves too slowly, we have lost confidence in Zion and must turn elsewhere."

If we can have no confidence in humanity plus divinity, what hope is there in humanity alone?

Having the material basis in nature and the right class of people, organized and intelligent administration and effort become necessary, so the next step is:

"It is wisdom in me; therefore, a commandment I give unto you; that ye shall organize yourselves."—Doctrine and Covenants 101: 2.

A NEW IDEA OF PROPERTY RIGHTS.

The revelation then continues and introduces a new conception of property rights: "And appoint every man his stewardship, that every man may give an account unto me of the stewardship which is appointed unto him."

The old idea of irresponsible ownership must give way to the new idea of stewardship, which makes property a sacred trust to be used as God shall direct, in his service, and for the good of the community.

Then appears the principle of consecration: "This is the way, that I, the Lord, have decreed to provide for my Saints: that the poor shall be exalted, in that the rich are made low."—Doctrine and Covenants 101: 2.

"And, behold, thou wilt remember the poor, and consecrate of thy properties for their support."—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 8.

James shows that the same idea was present in the apostolic church, for he writes, "Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted: but the rich, in that he is made low."—James 1: 9, 10.

In this organized society, authorized of God and man alike, stands an institution, the treasury of the organization, into which the able and financially powerful place that which they do not need and can spare, and to which the unfortunate can come and get that which they need. Thus it acts as an equalizing force between rich and poor, abasing the one and exalting the other to a common level where brothers can dwell in equity and peace.

Thus appears the principle of equality, for the Lord has said: "In your temporal things you shall be equal."—Doctrine and Covenants 70: 3.

When equality comes in, class distinctions and class hatreds fade away.

It is not our call to take sides in the class struggle.

It is our call to elucidate the principles that will reconcile the classes.

But we are told that the classes will not accept our message. Well and good, that rests with them. Jesus did not keep silent, neither did he alter his program merely because the people rejected his message. Some time it will be accepted generally. Those who accept it now will be the more fortunate.

WHAT ARE THE TERMS OF THIS EQUALITY?

But what are the terms of this equality? Is it that all men shall have the same amount of cloth, grain, ~~meat~~, meat, flour, and the same sized homes, regardless of desires, tastes, occupations, and size of family? No. It is thus defined: "Every man according to his wants and his needs, inasmuch as his wants are just."—Doctrine and Covenants 81: 4.

There are those who plead for a new order in which every man shall receive the fruits of his own labor. Such a plan does not go far enough. One strong, capable man might have only his wife and one child to support. Another, less capable, not so strong, might have six children and his wife. The one could lavish upon one child more than the other would have to divide among his six. The gospel plan goes farther and ultimately gives to each according to his needs and just wants. Which is the better?

But it is alleged right here that this would open a paradise for the indolent in which they could live upon the substance of the industrious. Here appears one principle that we have overlooked: "He that is idle shall not eat the bread nor wear the garments of the laborer."—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 12.

"The idler shall not have place in the church, except he repents and mends his ways."—Doctrine and Covenants 75: 5.

A CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM.

We are glad that Jesus did not receive the rich young man with vituperation.

We are glad that he had a program that was constructive and not destructive.

He was prepared to tell the rich man how he could use his powers of organization and administration and his accumulative faculties in a high and holy calling. We are glad that he has the same program to offer to the rich and capable to-day. He opens to the understanding of those who have the ability to accumulate and create wealth, if they will but heed him, the ministry of material things. The despised Book of Mormon contains the commission to that ministry:

"But before ye seek for riches, seek ye for the kingdom of God. And after ye have obtained a hope in Christ, ye shall obtain riches, if ye seek them; and ye will seek them, for the intent to do good; to clothe the naked, and to feed the hungry, and to liberate the captive, and administer relief to the sick and afflicted."—Jacob 2.

Thus is opened up the ministry of material things to those who can not preach but can work, organize, cease to do evil and learn to do good, as a pre- to them. They may become colaborers with God.

POTENTIAL MILLIONAIRES.

We are told that we will not succeed in converting many millionaires to our program. Perhaps not.

But we may reach a great many young men of just as great potential ability whose hearts are as yet unspoiled.

God would rather have one such young man without money, but alive, with the ability to organize and build up, and the disposition to consecrate all in the divine service, than to have all the wealth of a dead Carnegie.

CONCLUSION.

In conclusion, we note again that to both classes Jesus preached the gospel. He invited them all to come to him. He called both classes to repent and create, and accumulate. A new incentive is given requisite preparation for the constructive program that he was prepared to outline. Consideration of these things moved Peter to say: "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him."—Acts 10: 34, 35.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

PUBLICITY FOR THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA REUNION.

As our readers know, we have more than a passing interest in legitimate methods of securing publicity for our church work. In that connection we wish to refer to one feature of the recent Southern California reunion.

During the reunion a banquet was held in the big cafeteria, to which all the Saints, the representatives of the press, and the city council of Hermosa were invited. The reunion grounds are in the city limits of Hermosa, while the press representatives were from the leading papers of Los Angeles.

Short speeches were made by members of the city council and by the reporters. These were interspersed with speeches by church representatives. Elder R. T. Cooper acted as toastmaster. Brother William Shade led out in a characteristic speech of welcome. Elder F. M. Sheehy spoke of the subject, "Our motives." Elder Evan A. Davis spoke of the subject: "Latter Day Saints; who are they?" Elder Fred Adam told about, "Our church finances," while Elder Elbert A. Smith told about, "Our church institutions." The banquet was followed by an illustrated stereopticon lecture by Elder Paul M. Hanson.

A fraternal feeling was established between the Saints and their guests. The members of the city council were given an idea of our character, standing, and ideals, and apparently went away entertaining the best of feeling toward the church. If this continues unchanged, no doubt they will often speak a good word in defense of our cause; and being men of some influence in the community, some good may be done. In any event it is better to be understood than to be misunderstood.

Three of the press representatives made short speeches. Two of them were women reporters, representing the Los Angeles Express and the Los Angeles Times. One we were told was a widow, her husband having been killed in the wreck of the Times building, after only seven months of married life. Whether or not this report was correct in all its details we can not say.

These two ladies expressed great appreciation of the courtesy shown them. They said that they had been accustomed to abuse and disrespect as a part of the reporter's lot, and never before had they been accorded the treatment that they had received from Latter Day Saints. As a convincing evidence of their sincerity they were at considerable pains to report the reunion at length and with accuracy and justice; so we secured exceptionally good press service. All through the towns of southern California these great Los Angeles dailies went carrying a fair report of our services and distinguishing between us and Utah Mormonism.

We write of this incident because of the value that it may have as an example. Publicity counts. It is worth while to secure correct representation when possible. Friendly relationships are valuable in securing correct representation. Courtesy and fair treatment, "getting in touch" with people, will establish friendly relationships. The lesson is obvious.

E. A. S.

"OUR CHURCH COURTS."

The next Magazine Number of the HERALD will be called "Our Church Courts," and will appear September 18. As suggested by the name, it will consist of editorials and articles on matters pertaining to the different courts provided for in the law of the church.

"The judicial system of the church," by Elbert A. Smith.

"Rules governing the production of evidence," by I. A. Smith.

"Attitude of civil courts toward ecclesiastical courts in America," by S. A. Burgess.

"Form and functions of bishop's courts," by Joseph Roberts.

"Organization, jurisdiction, functions of stake high councils," by G. E. Harrington.

"The Standing High Council," by Robert M. Elvin.

"Questions and answers," by John Smith.

"Jurisdiction and trial before an elders' court," by Russell Archibald.

This number will be well illustrated and printed on good paper. Orders for extra copies should be sent in at a nearly date, so that they may be sent out with the regular issue. Price, five cents for single copies, fifty cents in dozen lots. Address all orders to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

THE ENTERING WEDGE OF CHRISTIAN CHARITY.— Under this caption Autumn Leaves for September contains a story which is a true account of how Christian treatment accorded a nonmember resulted in the conversion and baptism of at least nine persons. The story carries its own moral. This number also contains an editorial, an illustrated review of "A new aid to missionary work." Other numbers are: "A sermon to young people," by Elder John Garver of the Lamoni Stake Presidency; "A travel sketch" visit to Switzerland, by Ruth Waller; and an article by Sister Clark, addressed to "The young woman who must make her own way in the world."

Hymns and Poems

Selected and Original

Invitation.

Tune: "I Will Sing of My Redeemer."

Song given by the Spirit at Lansdowne district conference of the Saint Louis District, June 23, 1912, through Elder R. Archibald.

Come, my people, fondly cherished, I will lead thee all the way,
By the counsels of my Spirit I will teach thee to obey;
I have heard thy supplications as before me ye rejoice,
And I gladly thus make answer, that ye now may hear my voice.

In the past I have been with thee, in thy joys and in thy tears,
And I still dwell in thy presence, by my wisdom calm thy fears;
I have promised thee my blessings that my work may onward go,
Past years' plantings now are ripening, as the harvests truly show.

Precious souls await thy efforts, minds in darkness seek the light,
And I bid you bear the message, halting neither day nor night;
For mine angels wait the summons to bind up the tares and wheat,
I am calling now for laborers, see the harvest, oh, how great!

Enter then with sharpened sickles, make the sacrifice I ask,
Toil with patience, fervor, meekness, fearing not how great the task.
Hearts devoted to my service must with Jesus sufferings bear,
Such griefs shall be turned to gladness, hope shall drive away despair.

I have promised that my vineyard yet should blossom as the rose,
And your eyes do now behold it, everywhere the fruitage grows;
This, my voice, is heard among you, that new courage you may take,
Saints, awake, I bid you forward. Save the world for Jesus' sake.

Barren places shall be fruitful, as the dews from heaven distill,
Hardened hearts shall now be softened and shall seek to do my will,
Out of weakness strength shall flourish, stubborn souls shall now relent,
He who has refused my favors now shall be a supplicant.

Precious blessings I have given, richer far await my grace,
For ye now behold my presence with the veil before thy face;
But the time is shortly coming when this veil shall be removed,
Nothing then shall separate me from the ones whom I have loved.

Answer this, my invitation, to be present where I am,
Ye are all again invited to the marriage of the Lamb;
Then put on the white apparel, robe of righteousness all wear.
Children, are you making ready, will you all be present there?

Original Articles

PRESENT HELP---THE BISHOPRIC.

Doubtless the general feeling will not be overdrawn if we state that it is expected that this department of church work will move forward, overcoming all barriers, whether in passing through the turbulent waters, or scaling the rough mountains to the highest peaks; and yet how very few stop to consider how important it is in order to accomplish the ever varying task allotted, that the fittings and supplies always essential to meeting such emergencies shall be kept in perfect condition.

The help designated under the law of Christ to be rendered by every officer and member of the body is ample for the "fittings and supplies" to carry forward His work; but less than this is not sufficient, and he who fails to perform his part of the work, whether the same be of small or great amount, just that far hinders, either failing to perform his work aright, or by failing to do; leaving a shortage. Can any of us afford to thus negligently or carelessly stop the wheels? So far as the question of a sufficiency of supplies enters, that is answered for by our heavenly Father in the assurance given, that if all fulfill the law, "there shall be plenty and to spare."

Provision is also made in the law for an ample supply, whatever the state, progress, or demands of the work. Each one should awake to the emergencies of the hour and be equal to the occasion, let this be what it may; it is not the wise policy to brush aside, or shift the burden upon others with the thought that all has been done that the church or Saints did years ago. They had their special burdens, we have ours.

TITHES AND OFFERINGS.

The demands of the work are in proportion to the progress made in the gospel cause, and all should be ready to move with it. Arriving where the instruction is applicable: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it," let every one act and none be found standing still. It is in keeping with the instruction given in Doctrine and Covenants 64: 5: "Behold, now it is called to-day (until the coming of the Son of Man), and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people; for he that is tithed shall not be burned (at his coming); for after to-day cometh the burning: this is speaking after the manner of the Lord."

The importance of fulfilling the entire law is further presented by the instruction in Doctrine and Covenants 72: 1:

"For verily thus saith the Lord, It is expedient in me for a bishop to be appointed unto you, or of you unto the church, in this part of the Lord's vineyard; and verily in this thing ye have done wisely, for it is required of the Lord, at the hand of every steward, to render an account of his stewardship, both in time and in eternity. For he who is faithful and wise in time is accounted worthy to inherit the mansions prepared for them of my Father."

The Lord never asks anything of his children but what is right and proper for them to do; neither does he ask anything which they can not perform. When he directs, then, let us use our greatest powers to comply, and thus "prove ourselves."

The work is extending its borders in every direction and the minister must hunt out the Lord's people, in foreign and home countries, from mountain and desert as well as plain, and from the holes in the rocks as well as from farms and cities. The families of these hunters must be cared for, fed and clothed and properly trained and schooled. The poor also must be helped and cared for. There is urgent need for all provided in the law to be supplied. Have we brought in the "tithes" which are provided to meet such condition?

SPECIAL CONSECRATIONS AND SURPLUS.

Stakes are organized and the work of "founding and planting" is upon us. The Lord's work must be accomplished, and to do this every man should have his stewardship so that we may labor together, not apart.

The law of Christ calling for "special consecrations and surplus properties" is to meet this emergency. Have we fulfilled this part? If not let us do so at once and there will be plenty and to spare. Let no man or woman be alarmed. The supplying of stewardships to those who have not, never takes away the stewardship of others. The Lord's plan is a holy adjustment, made with a voluntary cooperation on the part of the people because the people see that it is right, and they wish to walk as Christ's children should walk; not for a moment believing that the Lord would use in his work, or accept that which was taken by force, or improper methods, from others.

OFFERINGS FOR SPECIAL WORK.

The special educational work of Graceland College is before us and has been since the adjournment of the last General Conference. The board of trustees have the work in hand but they must have help. Here is another opportunity, but duly provided for under the law and by the general body, the church, in the way of "offerings." It should be attended to at once and may be with profit to every helper and without injury to a single one.

Are there any who are not glad that this opportunity comes to them to be a helper? It is a part of the work commended of the Lord, and will we not feel gratified that we may help and bless in the same?

The college is and has been a fountain of good to the youth of the church; its benefits radiating in many directions, blessing the young men and women who would have had few or no advantages for this special educational work, but for its help. But it must have means to keep up, furnish proper instructors, and aid in many ways worthy young men and women who have no opportunity to build and improve without its support.

Special endowment to the amount of ten thousand dollars is needed at once for this work. The board of trustees say they should have much more, but if we can furnish this amount in addition to the College Day collection, which is already duly provided for by the church, the college will be in better shape for good work than heretofore. Let us do it. We can, and without very much trouble and worry either, and without injury to other church funds if everyone will step forward and perform his or her part.

For the good of the treasury generally and the work, it will be better to raise this means through the bishops and bishop's agents, and have them transfer the funds direct to the college so far as practicable, rather than urge so much through the publications in a general way, and to aid in this it has been thought the fairer and better way to make a statement of what would be an equitable division among the stakes and districts and submit to the bishops and bishop's agents of these respective organizations for use if they prefer to handle the matter in this way. These officers, for this purpose, will be duly supplied with correct data at once and may act as they shall deem best in the matter.

GRACELAND COLLEGE DAY,

specially, is the first Sunday in October. No bishop or agent, district, or branch officer should overlook this. The college board, however, will doubtless give special instruction upon this College Day collection; the writer only urges that this be attended to upon the day, and then report the matter at once to the college treasurer and give relief, so that other church financial work shall not be hindered by unnecessary repetition of the college call.

We plead for the discharge of duty in every line of work, or as the apostle puts it, "Let us be forward in every good work."

Do not overlook the special funds greatly needing attention at once:

1. The general church fund, properly supplied under the law by our tithes and offerings.

2. The special helping fund, known as special consecration and surplus property, for work which can not be postponed.

3. The special offerings for the college and other benevolent work.

It will require good, honest, fervent, prayerful efforts on the part of each and every one to bring this work up; the Evil One will seek to hinder, but let us move forward with courage and faith, and all will be well.

Trusting the Lord may bless and direct, I am,

Hopefully in the truth,

E. L. KELLEY, Presiding Bishop.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, August 31, 1912.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

LEAVES FROM LIFE.

EXPERIENCES: AND HOW I BECAME A LATTER DAY SAINT.—PART 3. BY ELDER H. N. SNIVELY.

One time at a conference which was held at Farmington, Iowa, on Saturday, in the afternoon session the question arose as to whether a teacher had the right to preach. This was discussed pro and con for a considerable time without coming to any conclusion, until the time for the closing of the session. Brother J. H. Lake, who was presiding, said, "Let us arise and sing, 'Give us room that we may dwell.'" When the hymn had been sung, Brother Lake began to sing in the same tune that we had been singing, in an unknown tongue. When he had finished, the interpretation rested on Brother John Lambert and myself, and these are the words:

O ye people of the Lord,
Give your minds and voices too;
You are called to preach the word;
Every whit and counsel too.

Go to him who giveth all:
Spirit, word, and action too.
Everyone—the weak as well
As the strong shall preach the word.

Yea, because the Lord has said,
Those who are the weak have power.
Give to me the honor then,
I, the great I AM to you.

You have heard the word from me;
Now to others give the truth,
Keep God's glory in your view,
From the aged to the youth.

In February, 1882, I moved to Lamoni, Iowa, and located on a farm just across the line in Missouri, where I live at present, and where I have passed through a great many disappointments; not being able to do as much preaching as I would like to have done on account of my financial condition, which was very discouraging to me. However, I have done the best I could under the circumstances; preaching as opportunity presented and administering to the sick, in which I have witnessed some remarkable cases of healing. I will just speak of a few cases for the benefit of those who may read these lines.

In the year 1882 or 1883, I can not say which, I had a presentation and experience. One night after I had retired to bed the following was shown me: I saw a young man come to the door and knock. I arose and went to the door and asked who it was. He answered that it was James Atkinson. I opened the door, when he said, "I want you to come and administer to my sister; she is nearly dead." I then saw a woman sitting on a chair, with a little girl on her lap with a bed blanket thrown over her shoulders. I stepped up to them when the little girl looked up into my face and said, "I don't want to die." Then the vision closed, only to be renewed in its literal condition that night. About two o'clock James Atkinson came after me, repeated the same words which I had heard in the manifestation, and I went and found Sister Atkinson sitting on a chair with the little girl on her lap, with the blanket thrown around her shoulders, all just as I had seen it a few hours previously. When I stepped up to them little May looked up into my face and said, "I don't want to die." I said to her, "No, dear; you shall not die." I then administered to her, and received the witness of God's approval, through his Spirit, that our prayers were heard to the restoration of the child. To God be all the honor.

Again I will speak of an incident in which God manifested his power; this occurred, I think, in 1884 or 1885. One winter day, when there was quite a deep snow on the ground, and wife and I had just eaten our dinner, she looked out of the window and saw a man coming up from the road to the house. She said, "Who is that coming?" I looked out and saw that it was John Nichols, and said to her, "He is coming for me to go and administer to his sister, Sister Sanders." It seemed to be revealed to me just as soon as I caught sight of him. I hadn't heard or known of her being sick, but sure enough when he came to the door he said, "My sister, Sister Sanders, wants you to come and administer to her; she is almost dead." Oh, how I felt!

I felt as though I couldn't get there quick enough. I told him to go and get Brother Levi Atkinson, who lived a short distance from us, but to be quick about it. When he returned, we went as fast as we could and found Sister Sanders in a very low condition. She was partially unconscious. We learned from her friends who were there that the doctor had given her up to die; said she couldn't possibly live a week. That day she had gone into a kind of stupor; and when she came out of that she said she wanted me to administer to her. This we did, and the Lord answered our prayers in her behalf. I was led by the Spirit to speak to her and say that the Lord would grant unto her the desire of her heart, inasmuch as she would put her trust in him and be faithful; and that her life should be spared. Now this is what she had desired: she had wanted to live until her two children got old enough to take care of themselves; then she was willing to go. She lived six years after that and saw me baptize them both into the church. Truly the mercy and loving kindness of God were shown to this sister in answer to prayer.

Many more wonderful cases of healing have I witnessed, but I will not take space to tell them here. However, I will relate an experience that I passed through in the winter of 1886 and 1887. I was taken down with typhoid malaria on November 16, 1886, and was not able to do any work till the following May. During this time I passed through some very discouraging experiences; while at other times I received some most glorious blessings from God through the Spirit. I was administered to quite a number of times and was promised by the Spirit a restoration to health, but I thought it didn't come soon enough, so became discouraged. One day I offered myself to God in prayer and told him that if it was his will to restore me to health I would like to receive it; if not I was resigned to his will, whatever it might be. He then spoke to me and said, "O ye my servant, put not your trust in the arm of flesh, but put your trust in me and thou shalt be healed." Before this I had been taking medicine, but it did me no good, so I stopped. In concluding this incident: that spring Brother D. S. Mills, of California, was here at Lamoni on a visit, and hearing of my illness desired to come and administer to me. So he, Brother and Sister H. A. Stebbins, Sister Walker, Brother and Sister Atkinson, and Sister Mary Cazaly all came down; I think it was on Tuesday, I was administered to. At the time Brother

Mills spoke to me in prophecy and said, "O ye my servant, be thou faithful. I am the Lord thy God. A work thou hast done and a greater work thou shalt do. Thou art called as Nephi of old."

I received a great blessing at this time by which I was able the following Sunday to go to Lamoni and hear Brother Mills preach, and was taken into the stand and assisted him. I truly felt thankful to God for his love manifested to me and desired to do all that he required of me. At that time I could not see how I could do a greater work than I had done, as my children were small, the boys not able to do the farm work, and I was deprived of going away from home to do gospel work for a few years, but I would fill appointments around at different places on Sundays. By and by conditions at home were so I could get away for a week or two at a time and I would go and hold a series of meetings at different places: one at Greenville; one at Davis City; one at Ellston; and one at Lone Rock. Up to 1897 I am unable to give my labors in detail, but from 1897 to 1901, and part of 1902 I have a record of them. Two years of this time I labored as a missionary of the Decatur District, and was also chosen to act as assistant president to Brother R. M. Elvin, of Lamoni, who was then holding that position. Lamoni Stake was organized in 1901. In this time I preached three hundred and fourteen times, baptized thirty, blessed twenty-five children, administered to the sick three hundred and fifty-five times, and solemnized ten marriages. I feel thankful to the Lord that I have been able to do what I have and only wish I had been able to accomplish more.

I must relate another dream which I had a few years ago. It may be of interest to some who may read these lines. In my dream there was a personage came to me and said, "Come, there is a work I want you to do." I asked him what kind of work it was. He said, "Come, and I will show you." I arose and went with him, when there suddenly appeared before my vision a large body of water, something like I imagine the ocean would look, and at the edge of the water were a lot of men at work, some on one kind of material, and some on another kind; some on large, long timbers. As I entered the yard where these men were at work I thought they were building a boat. I said to the personage, "I am not a boat builder; I'm a house carpenter." He then showed me some small pieces of timber about four inches square by eighteen inches long, and said, "I want you to make keys out of these," and added, "No other one can make these keys as well as you can." I was then made to know that what he spoke was the truth. He further said to me, "Those keys are to hold the work together which the other men are making." I then understood it was a bridge that the men were building, and those little keys were to hold each span of the bridge together. I went to work and in a short time that bridge was done and stretched across the wide body of water, and I saw people of all countries and of all nationalities traveling over that bridge. But one peculiar thing about it was this: they seemed to be coming over to this country.

I wish to say, before closing this brief sketch of my life and experiences in this glorious latter day work, that I have tried to use as few words as possible to present the facts as they actually occurred. I have been made to see and to understand some things in this latter day work, some of which I have related, that have the appearance of egotism on my part, but be it far from me. If the reader will bear with me I will relate one or two more incidents and I speak of them as an evidence of the divinity of this blessed and most glorious work which God has caused to be established on the earth, and which you and I have the privilege of participating in.

The night before the conference convened at Lamoni at the time I was elected as assistant president of the Decatur District, I had the following dream: There was a personage came to me and said, "Come and I will show you what to do." I arose and went with him. Just then there opened to my vision a very large building. We stepped inside and just to the right of the door I noticed some marks or lines drawn on the floor, forming a square of about ten or twelve feet. He said to me, pointing to that square: "I want you to help put this room in order." I stepped over into that room as he called it, and began work. I looked around to see the condition of the rest of the building and noticed the same like rooms marked off on the floor of that wonderfully large building.

When I went to the conference and was chosen to assist in the district work I could readily see and understand what the large house and the rooms represented. The large building is the church and the rooms in it represent the districts and branches in the church.

Another incident I will speak of: One Sunday while at church in Lamoni I was not feeling very well and asked Brother Elvin to administer to me. This was at the close of the meeting. Brother Elvin said, "All right. Come down to my house and I'll have Brother Whitehead stop in and assist." Brother Elvin anointed me and Brother Whitehead confirmed the anointing, and in his prayer he said that I "was of the lineage of Ephraim, of the house of Joseph," etc. As the good old brother left us and walked down the street to his home I sat there for a while doubting and thinking that he didn't know anything about it, and that if I ever got my patriarchal blessing I would find out whether he had told the truth or not. All at once Sister Elvin, who was sitting just across the room from me, spoke out and said, "Now, Brother Snively, you are doubting what Brother Whitehead said to you. You don't need to, because it is true; every word."

I then said, "How do you know I am doubting it?"

She said, "I know you are; and you don't need to, because every word of it is true and you will find it so."

Well, I thought, if I ever get my patriarchal blessing I will see whether that is true or not. When I later received my patriarchal blessing at the hands of Brother Alexander Smith, he used, almost verbatim, the words that Brother Whitehead had spoken to me at that time. What a wonderful work this is, and who can doubt its divinity?

Now as my days of usefulness in the church are near to a close, I desire to remain faithful to the end, that I may be permitted to enter into that condition which I was shown a few years ago. I had better relate it here. First I will say that from a child I always had a great love and respect for my mother. I would be glad to see her, and have often desired to know as to the position she was occupying in the better world. The following was presented to me: I had been traveling. I don't know how far I had traveled, nor where I was going, but I suddenly came to a river, not very wide, only about thirty feet, and the water was very dark; almost black. I was made to know that I must cross this river, and there was no way of crossing it but by going right through the water, as there was no bridge or any other way by which I could cross. I stepped into the water and as I advanced it got deeper and deeper, but I felt sure of coming through to the other side all right. I soon became enveloped in the water and lost all consciousness of anything for a moment. I then emerged from the water on the other side of the river and found I was in the most beautiful place I had ever seen. The ground was covered with beautiful green grass and was very level, with beautiful shade trees, such as I had not seen before. As far as I could see either way, right and left, there was a table extended. This table was about two feet wide, covered with a white linen cloth hanging over the edge of the table about four or five inches. On this table were small white dishes about the size of a saucer, only a little deeper, filled with something that looked like rice, only whiter, spaced all along the table, about two or three feet apart. Then to my joy and comfort I met my dear old mother with other Saints whom I had known. Our blessed Lord stood there with smiling face welcoming me to the feast. I am unable here to express the joy that filled my soul at the blessed expression of our dear Lord as he stood there at the head of the table. I shall never forget the scene. It serves as a reminder of my oblitation to him if I expect to enter into that blessed condition.

At a prayer meeting held in Lamoni, March 30, 1890, Brother James Whitehead had borne his testimony that he knew Joseph Smith was a prophet chosen of God, and related several incidents by which he knew, after which the following was given by the Spirit through the gift of tongues and the interpretation:

Behold, saith the Spirit of God, I have inspired the heart of my servant, James Whitehead, to tell you these things that henceforth there may be no dubiety in the minds of my Saints, especially of my servants, respecting the ordination of my servant, Joseph. I have called him; yea, he was ordained to the work in which he is engaged before the foundation of the world, and he shall have power to accomplish that work. I will uphold him according to his diligence in keeping my commandments, and my word I will give through him; even line upon line, and precept upon precept; according to the diligence of my people in giving heed to what has already been given.

Oh ye my people, listen to him whom you call your Father, and I do own you as my children: ye are desirous of doing my will but you are weak; gird on the whole armor; draw near to me and I will draw near to you, and will support you in the works of righteousness and you shall be a delight-some people unto me, and ere long you shall behold my face. Occupy till I come Amen.

This glorious latter day work! I have been made to know that this work is of God, and that it will remain on the earth until Christ shall come. It has shown me when his covenant people will be gathered in from the different parts of the earth where they have been scattered and will be brought to their own land as God has promised in his word; and as the seed of Ephraim have been "sifted as wheat among the Gentile nations" this blessed gospel must be carried forth among them to gather them out as I understand they will be and that the Gentiles may also have the blessed privilege of becoming God's people through the gospel covenant, "Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise."

Therefore, dear Saints, may we who have made covenant with God live so that the Spirit of truth may be given to us to help us to overcome evil and to prepare ourselves so we may be worthy of those great blessings God has promised through the gospel, is the prayer of your brother in the name of our blessed Lord. Amen.

LAMONI, IOWA.

The greatest possible irony would be a literal answer to some prayers.

Some men never think of their souls until they have a pain in their stomachs.

You can usually tell a man's pet sin if you know the ones he denounces in others.

DEALING WITH THE ERRING. ---NO. 7.

BY CHARLES FRY.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The dignity of the law, justice, the purity of the church, all demand that church courts shall be conducted with order, with impartiality, and with intelligence. This requires a knowledge of law, procedure, and the value of evidence. How is an elders' court appointed? How is it organized? How does it proceed to hear a case? What are the values of evidence? Should the court listen to a witness who says, "I heard Sister Jones say that Deacon Brown told her that he had it straight from old man Jenkins that his wife saw so and so." Public opinion sometimes hears such testimony and convicts men on it. Those who desire to carry the subject further after reading this article will do well to secure some good work on "evidence," such as they may determine by inquiry to be that which they care to read. Such a study would be of considerable value to bishops, high priests, and elders. The next and last article of this series will be entitled "Penalty."

TRIAL.

Charges against a member of the church are heard by a court composed usually of three elders, though two may be sufficient, or a bishop and his two counselors, two of which may act if need be.

The elders' court is usually appointed or elected by the branch or district, though the rules provide that it may be appointed by a branch or district president where necessary, and by the leading officers of the church and missionaries in unorganized territory.

A bishop and his counselors are a standing court in the stake, district, or branch where they have jurisdiction, and cases may be referred to them for original trial.

Elders chosen for a court must needs organize by choosing one of their number chairman, and by choosing a secretary, who may or may not be a member of the court. They are to appoint the time and place of the trial, which should be as convenient to all parties concerned as practicable.

Should a party to a trial, either complainant or defendant, find that the time or place set for the hearing is impracticable, it is his privilege to file his objections thereto before the court, stating his reasons, which if considered just by the court would necessitate another time or place being designated.

If the law has not been complied with as to labor, etc., it is the privilege of the defendant to file a statement of such fact with the court, with an objection against the hearing of the case, and if complainant claims labor has been performed he must prove such claim to the satisfaction of the court before the trial can proceed. The court must give notice of the time and place of meeting to all parties concerned, including the witnesses, whose names have been given the court by both the complainant and defendant.

A duly appointed court has the power to require the attendance of witnesses who are members of the church, and should any such witness refuse to appear or to testify he may "be held to be guilty of a breach of church discipline and fellowship, and may be dealt with, the same as for any other act of unchristianlike conduct."

Should either party fear that he might not secure justice because some member of the court was prejudiced against him, or was disqualified for any reason whatsoever, it is his privilege to file with the court his objection to such member, stating the reasons why he should not sit on the case; and it is the duty of the court to consider the objection with the arguments and decide whether it is a valid one. If such objection is sustained the proceedings stop, and another court must be appointed; but if it is not sustained, the court proceeds to try the case. If the party raising the objection is still dissatisfied, he may have his protest against the proceedings entered upon the minutes, and make it the basis of appeal should he be dissatisfied with the decision.

If the case is to proceed, the chairman or secretary of the court reads the complaint, and the defendant is required to enter a plea of "guilty" or "not guilty." If he pleads "guilty," no further trial is necessary; but if he pleads "not guilty," the complainant must proceed in person or by his counsel to present the testimony of his witnesses, followed by the defendant or his counsel with his witnesses, all the witnesses being subject to cross-examination. Should the principals be without counsel, and they themselves be unable to handle the case, the court may call the witnesses and ask such questions as will draw out the evidence touching upon the facts at issue.

The court is to decide the matter according to the evidence presented, so that it is quite essential that the evidence be such only as should justly be considered in the matter. To admit and consider any evidence which was not just and fair would be to make liable an unjust decision.

KINDS OF EVIDENCE.

In considering the matter of evidence in this paper it is neither practicable nor desired to do more than mention a few leading points which may be applicable to cases in church courts.

Evidence may be placed before a court in three forms:

1. By the oral testimony of witnesses.
2. In writing or printing, which may include depositions, legal documents, contracts, letters written in regular correspondence, charts, building plans, newspapers, periodicals, and books.
3. Material objects, which would include any article which had direct bearing upon the facts of the case, which could be brought before the court.

A photograph, a stone, or weapon of any kind, a stolen article, a torn garment, are illustrations of material objects which might be presented in evidence.

Evidence may also be divided into direct and circumstantial.

Direct evidence is that which is based upon the actual knowledge of the witness, or furnished by documents or objects without resort to inference or assumption. Circumstantial evidence is that which tends to prove the thing charged, not directly, but by establishing other facts, leaving the fact at issue to be determined by inference.

ADMISSIBLE AND NONADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE.

Direct and circumstantial evidence are both admissible to establish proof of a fact, but all evidence must have a "logical connection with or relation to a fact in issue so as to assist in getting at the truth of it"; otherwise it is said to be irrelevant and is not admissible.

Competent evidence is "that which is by the rules of law fit and appropriate to establish the matter of fact in dispute, or 'that which the very nature of the thing to be proved requires,'" and which is of course admissible, but incompetent evidence is to be excluded.

"Hearsay is the kind of evidence which does not derive its force solely from the credit due to the witness, but rests also in part upon the veracity and competency of some other person, from whom the witness may have received his information." Such evidence is considered as having no value and is not admissible. "The term hearsay is applied to that which is written or done by others, as well as that which is spoken."

Some of the reasons for excluding hearsay evidence are: That the party against whom such evidence is offered has no opportunity of cross-examining the original source from which it is derived; the person testifying may have imperfectly heard, misunderstood, or inaccurately remembered the thing which he attempts to repeat; in giving such testimony it is easily possible for the witness to testify falsely without danger of being apprehended; the original statement is not delivered under oath, and hence the person making it would not be as careful as he would be before a court to state exactly the truth and the whole truth; the officers of the law, sitting in judgment, might not always discriminate between original and second hand evidence, so that the danger of an unjust decision would be increased. (These reasons are arranged from "The Laws of Evidence," by Chadman, from which work is gathered some other material and quotations in this paper.)

There are a number of exceptions to the exclusion of hearsay evidence, of which we mention only the following as most likely to come up in church courts:

1. When the fact at issue is whether a certain statement was made or not, and not as to whether the statement was true, the evidence of witness who heard it may be admitted. This exception applies in the case of slander where the accused denies saying the thing charged against him and witnesses are brought to testify of what they heard him say.

2. "Declarations which accompany and are a part of the fact or matter in controversy, and tend to illustrate or explain it, such transaction being itself admissible, are also admissible as being so connected with the transaction as to be a part of it." Exceptions under this heading are so numerous and varied that they can not be mentioned here.

3. Declarations relating to bodily and mental feelings. A statement of a person as to how and where he was hurt, made at the time of an accident, would be admissible under this exception. This rule would seem to apply to statements made in public or private, showing the belief of one who was being tried for apostasy.

4. Testimony given in a former trial where the witness is dead, or perhaps unobtainable, provided the trial is between the same parties.

5. Evidence as to one's general reputation, though hearsay,—being what others say about him, is admissible as showing his reputation. "General reputation is admissible when the truth or veracity of a witness is attacked, which may always be done. Otherwise general reputation is only admissible when the very nature of the proceedings, or the pleadings themselves are such as to put the character of the party in issue upon any particular subject."

6. Other hearsay evidence may be admitted if there be no objection by the contending party. "The failure to object to evidence which would be excluded under the rule as hearsay evidence, waives the objection to such evidence, and the jury may consider the evidence along with the rest, giving it such weight as they see fit."

The rules of the church make provision for the admissibility of evidence as follows:

Matters of record, and of public notoriety, should be received in evidence, without further proof than is required in courts of law; questions of the general reputation of an individual for truthfulness or virtue should be received; records of trials and convictions for crime in the civil courts, and matters of like character, duly certified to, are to be received in evidence.—Rules of Order, p. 95.

Depositions: No court or officer can take a deposition for any party to use in any case, where the adverse party has not due notice of the time and place of the taking of such deposition, and permitted to be present and cross-examine if he desires to do so, unless a deposition is taken upon written interrogatories, a copy of which must be placed in the hands of the adverse party, and he given the privilege of filing cross-interrogatories before the time of taking of the deposition. Affidavits or ex parte statements in writing can not be introduced as proper testimony upon the trial of a case. Every party to a case is entitled to be confronted by the witnesses, and should be privileged to do so at the time the deposition or writing is made, or before the court.—Court Procedure, p. 7.

To admit affidavits and other ex parte evidence would be to deny a party to a trial his right to be confronted by the witnesses to such evidence, and to cross-examine them. While an affidavit is a written statement made under oath, and might be given considerable weight as evidence in some instances, yet in most instances if the adverse party had had the privilege of cross-examination and having the answers incorporated in the affidavit, its effect and weight as evidence would be altogether changed.

Depositions.—The statements of persons who can not attend the trial may be taken in writing when both parties to the case, or their representatives, are present, and have equal opportunity of asking questions and having the answers incorporated in the statement. Such a statement is called a deposition, and is admissible. Ex parte statements are not admissible,—ex parte meaning, upon or from one side only, and refers to all evidence where only one side was represented in its taking.

Depositions may be taken by mail when it is impracticable to do so otherwise, (since persons are not required to take oath when testifying in a church court), by furnishing the adverse party in the case with a copy of the questions to be submitted so that he will have the privilege of submitting questions in cross-examination.

Manifestations of the Spirit,—real or imaginary, can not be introduced as evidence, except as they might be the facts at issue. Human testimony is the basis of proof. This is in harmony with the law which says:

Branches and district are to be conducted according to the rules given in the law as directed in a former revelation: They shall take the things which have been given unto them as my law to the church to be my law to govern my church. And these affairs are not to be conducted by manifestations of the Spirit unless these directions and manifestations come through the regularly authorized officers of branch or district.—Doctrine and Covenants 125: 14.

WITNESSES.

It is the duty of a member of the church to be present and testify before a church court when legally called upon to do so, for should members refuse, the innocent would in many cases suffer wrong, the guilty go unpunished, and the church could not be cleansed. Sin is as disastrous to the church as fire is to a house, and in either case if the persons within do not leave all and put forth an effort to stop the danger, destruction will come.

It is not requisite to administer an oath to witnesses testifying before a court of elders, as it is not to be supposed that a member of the church will testify falsely, either in court or out of it.

Persons not members of the church may give evidence before an elders' court, but when offered as witnesses they shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the court, as though they were members, and in case that they should disregard, or fail to properly respect the proceedings of the court, their evidence may not be considered by the court in making up its findings.—Rules of Order, p. 95.

THE COURT.

The court is to "hear patiently both the accuser and accused, the counsel of either or both, should counsel be employed, and the testimony of the witnesses" (Rules of Order, p. 92), and for that reason each of them sitting in the case must be present all the time while the court is in session. An elder, though appointed on the court, if absent from the trial, can not take part in making the decision.

Every trial involves the standing of a member in the church and kingdom of God, affecting him for time and eternity, and hence the necessity of the court "to strive by every lawful means to give the cause a fair and just trial and verdict."

The sessions should be opened and closed with prayer, and otherwise conducted in an orderly manner. All persons present should be required to be respectful in their attitude toward the court and with each other, and should anyone persist in showing disrespect or causing disturbance and disorder he may be held to be an offender to be dealt with as for any other offense in the church. Confusion tends to distort justice and all persons attending a trial should aid the court by keeping themselves strictly in order and avoiding disagreeable situations.

DECISION.

When the court has heard all the evidence from both sides which is proper to be admitted, "Its only duty is to decide as to the truth or falsity of the matters inquired into, the guilt or innocence of the member accused, and report the result of its inquiry to the authority appointing," "and also to present a copy of the findings to the defendant in the case." (Rules of Order, p. 93; Court Procedure, p. 8.)

The decision may be briefly stated, sustaining the charge or charges, or the court may write out at length its opinion, giving the reasons therefor. It is not proper for the court to find the defendant guilty of any other offense than the one of which he was charged.

The court may recommend in its decision to the body appointing them, and whose duty it is to pass final sentence, any action relative to the accused which it may desire, of mercy, or otherwise.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

WHAT ARE THEY? WHO MAY CONDUCT THEM?

In the progressive steps of our work, as the church of God, we are occasionally confronted with a new question. Never in the history of the church, from 1830 till now, so far as I know, has the question of revival services, what they are, who may conduct them, etc., forged its way to the front and demanded recognition. One part of the work made binding on evangelical ministers of the church (Doctrine and Covenants 125: 3, 4,) seems to be the immediate cause.

REVIVAL SERVICES—WHAT ARE THEY?

Webster's short definition of the noun revival is, "Act of reviving, or state of being revived; especially, renewed interest in religion."

The verb, transitive, is defined as follows: "Revive, 1. To return to life. 2. To recover from a state of neglect, obscurity, or depression." Intransitive verb: 1. "To bring again to life. 2. To recover from a state of neglect or depression. 3. To renew in the mind."

From these definitions it is evident that the leading and direct purpose of revival services, provided for in the revelation cited, is not to convert unbelievers to an acceptance of the Christian religion, but, rather, to find the wandering, lost sheep; to strengthen those who have become weak because of neglect or lack of knowledge; to reprove and correct the transgressor and evildoer, all of whom have obeyed the first requirements of the gospel, and have been properly numbered with the people of God. Or, in other words, the real purpose of a true revival is to restore, so far as possible, all those who have, for any cause, wandered away from God.

Incidentally, of course, this work of bringing back to their first love those who were once obedient to the truth as it is with God, will convert the alien, or unbeliever, to some extent, also help those who have never gone far enough to receive needed knowledge of God and Christ and the gospel. This is real gospel work, and should be done by real gospel ministers.

Another reason for believing that revival services are, primarily, for the benefit of the people of the church, and not of the world, is the fact, that in the one and only revelation which mentions them, so far as we know, they are enjoined upon the evangelical ministers, whose calling and work, in a leading sense, at least, belong to the church and not to the world.

In support of this statement, you are requested, first, to read carefully Doctrine and Covenants 125: 3, 4; second, the action of the First Presidency and Twelve, when sitting in council together, as herein presented:

LAMONI, IOWA, April 10, 1911.

To the Order of Evangelists; Greeting: In answer to the two questions propounded in the document sent to the Quorum of Twelve, we are authorized by the joint council of the Presidency and Twelve to report our action as follows:

"First. When you appoint men of our number to labor in special fields, is it done with the understanding that they are to labor as seventies or as patriarchs?"

"Second. Are we, by virtue of our calling and ordination, evangelists to the church or to the world?"

The following action was had:

"Resolved, That in appointing evangelists, it is our opinion that such are sent as evangelists to the church, as patriarchs and not as seventies."

Very respectfully submitted,

FREDERICK M. SMITH,
President of the Council.
FREDERICK A. SMITH,
Secretary of the Council.

The opinion of this council, composed of the first two quorums of the church, is certainly well founded. In the revelation which defines the duties and prerogatives of the patriarchs, we find the following:

The patriarch is an evangelical minister. The duties of this office are to be an evangelical minister; to preach, teach, expound, exhort; to be a revivalist, and to visit branches and districts as wisdom may direct, invitation, request, or the Spirit of God determine and require; to comfort the Saints; to be a father to the church; to give counsel and advice to individuals who may seek for such; to lay on hands for the conferment of spiritual blessing, and if so led, to point out the lineage of the one who is blessed.—Doctrine and Covenants 125: 3.

The true patriarch is a spiritual "father to the church," and is "to give counsel and advice" to its members (individually) when requested to do so. When holding these revival services, one of the leading purposes is "to comfort the Saints." This belongs to his office and calling. So we believe that revival services (with us) are to be conducted for the leading and special benefit of those holding membership in the church.

IS THERE A TRUE DEMAND FOR THEM ?

There seems to have been in the past, as there is now, a strong but strange proneness with God's people to wander away from the truth and the right. Why is it, seeing there is nothing so grand, reliable, and lasting as truth, (except the eternal God to whom all truth belongs) and nothing so safe, satisfactory, and just as righteousness? Is it because of man's great weakness, and the strength and cunning of the Adversary? If so, there is no place where God's people need help—all the help which God has provided—more than along this line.

History shows that human characteristics and tendencies have been very similar in all ages and all climes, though low and undesirable conditions among the people have been modified and improved, more or less, by proper opportunity and education. But what of our own age? Does the demand for revival services exist to-day? If it does not, there is no need of a supply to meet it. But if it does exist, then, so far as God is concerned, there is an adequate supply to meet it, or an adequate provision for the supply, which will be forthcoming when God's ministers and disciples learn to perform their part according to his will.

The prophetic word plainly indicates that in "the last days," the times just preceding the second and glorious advent of the Lord Jesus, there will not only be abundant opportunity for God's children to go wrong, but that, because of human weakness and existing conditions in the church and the world, many will foolishly begin to move away from God and his truth!

Of conditions which have a strong tendency to deceive the weak, unfaithful, and disobedient, the Apostle Paul wrote as follows:

This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away.—2 Timothy 3: 1-5.

Ask the missionaries who visit districts, branches, and scattered Saints all over the world; also presidents of stakes, districts, and branches, if any of these conditions trouble any of the Saints where they have been, as well as the world, and they will tell you.

The great Teacher, our Prophet, Priest, and King,—Jesus Christ the Lord,—has placed the matter before us in a terse, though significant and comprehensive manner. Speaking of the signs that will precede his second advent into the world, he says:

And again, because iniquity shall abound, the love of men shall wax cold; but he that shall not be overcome, the same shall be saved.—Matthew 24: 31, Inspired Translation.

"Because iniquity shall abound," etc. These are strong words. God pity the weak and unstable who are compelled to live in the midst of the condition herein prophetically described. Some, because of heredity and previous environment, have a strong tendency to forsake the truth and the right, and accept error and wrong in their place. It is surely godlike and important that we make a special effort to look after the weak and erring ones, and if possible, save them.

But to return to these strong words: "Iniquity, noun; 1. Want of rectitude. 2. An act of injustice or unrighteousness. Synonyms: injustice, unrighteousness, wickedness, sin, crime."

"Abound, verb, intransitive; 1. To be in great plenty; to be prevalent. 2. To be copiously supplied."

Want of space will not permit me to quote from the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants, the prophecies of which, touching this point, are in complete harmony with the above scriptures. Christ came into the world "to seek and to save that which was lost." It is surely fitting that his servants should be earnestly engaged in hunting up the lost sheep, and trying to induce the prodigals to "arise and go to" their "Father."

WHO MAY CONDUCT REVIVAL SERVICES?

The Twelve, Seventy, high priests, and elders, when under missionary appointment, may, we believe, when needed, and in harmony with local authority, hold revival meetings. More than this, local authorities—stake, district, and branch presidents—may, when thought necessary, conduct these revivals for the benefit of the Saints in their respective charges, calling to their assistance those whom they may have a right to call, or inviting others to assist. The character of the work these ministers are called to do, together with the authority which belongs to their office and calling, is our warrant for these statements.

But while all the above-named ministers may hold special revival services in the branches, when necessary, or when emergency requires, the fact remains that upon the evangelical ministers (patriarchs), is laid the responsibility of being revivalists and holding revival services. A patriarch is, or should be, a revivalist, both in his individual and public ministrations. This is the character of all, or nearly all, his work.

Others, who are not of the evangelical order, may hold revival services, it is true, and those who are of this order may preach the gospel to the world, baptize, etc., when emergency requires it, but all this does not change the general order of the work as laid down in the word. The best results do not come from ignoring God's general order, but from observing it. We may think that others are better prepared, and more able to do the work, but it is well to remember that God's thoughts and ways are always higher and better than ours, unless ours are in harmony with his, and even then, his are very apt to be much higher than ours.

The truth is, that true revival work involves the necessity of preaching the word in its fullness, without fear or favor, under the influence and direction of the Holy Spirit. This alone can truly revive the Saints, and secure the favor and approbation of God.

When it becomes practicable to more fully carry out the original design of the Lawgiver, that is, to establish at least one evangelist in every large branch of the church (see Doctrine and Covenants 104:17), the revival work can be more fully and efficiently performed. Let us pray that God, with the cooperation of his people, may hasten the day.

In conclusion, your attention is called to two passages from the Doctrine and Covenants which, though often quoted, can never become obsolete with us, until the work which God has enjoined upon us is completed and the victory won.

Therefore, let every man stand in his own office, and labor in his own calling.—Doctrine and Covenants 83:21.

Wherefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence. He that is slothful shall not be counted worthy to stand, and he that learns not his duty and shows himself not approved, shall not be counted worthy to stand. Even so. Amen.

J. R. LAMBERT.

LAMONI, IOWA.

* * * * *

CAN A PRIEST PRESIDE IN A BRANCH WHERE THERE IS AN ELDER?

(Paper read by Elder F. J. Ebeling before the Quorum of High Priests during the General Conference of 1912.)

As to the question, "Can or may a priest preside in a branch where there is an elder?" very little is said, so far as the standard books to the church are concerned, but custom and practice have established the fact that it may be done; hence, at the outset, we will answer the question in the affirmative, and proceed to substantiate the answer.

It should be remembered that a branch officer is elective; that no grade of ordination can be enforced upon the body by virtue of that ordination only. The right to select a presiding officer is left wholly with the body over which said officer is to preside. The elective franchise of a body of people should not be arbitrarily interfered with.

When a man is ordained to an office, he is ordained as an officer of the church and not in a branch; hence, has no prior rights in the branch, necessarily, by degree of office. However, all things being equal, the elder should be elected the presiding officer. The elder, holding the higher priesthood, the branch through him, as head, is entitled to greater spiritual blessings.

In selecting a presiding officer, fitness should always determine. I have known cases where the elder was of a high spirituality, gifted in ministering to the sick, but as a presiding officer, one to properly govern a body of progressive Saints, was an utter failure. In such instances, where there are priests giving evidence of presiding ability, one such should be chosen by the branch.

The matter of choosing branch officers, like everything else involving the body politic, should be done by common consent, as provided for in Doctrine and Covenants 25:1: "And all things shall be done by common consent in the church, by much prayer and faith." Also section 27:4: "For all things must be done in order and by common consent in the church, by the prayer of faith."

From the above, we conclude that the branch, by the elective franchise guaranteed to them by the church law, has the perfect right to select any member of the two orders of the priesthood whom they may select, by common consent, to preside over them. But to be more specific, we cite your attention to Doctrine and Covenants 120: 2: "A branch may be presided over by a high priest, an elder, priest, teacher, or deacon, chosen and sustained by the vote of the branch."

It may be argued by some that this rule only holds good in the absence of a higher officer. If that be true, then a branch could be organized and presided over by one single officer, and that officer may be teacher or deacon. We hardly think it proper to organize a branch with only one of these officers, for neither one could administer the sacrament; hence, one of the principal purposes of branch organization would be defeated; but where some of the higher officers are resident within a branch, either teacher or deacon may be elected, and especially a priest.

Some have thought that because it says in Doctrine and Covenants 17: 10, in speaking of the priest's duty: "He is to take the lead of meetings when there is no elder present, but when there is an elder present he is only to preach, teach," etc., the priest can not be elected to preside over a body where there is one holding the Melchisedec priesthood, but I understand the "elder" mentioned in this section, refers to an organized branch, presided over by an elder, and of course the priest could not assume this right when the elected elder is present.

Book of Rules, page 2, paragraph 4, in speaking of branch organization says: "Branches are the primary and congregational organizations of the church, and may be formed wherever six or more members in good standing may be resident in any one neighborhood, one of whom must be an elder, priest, teacher, or deacon." According to this, the choice of a presiding officer is left entirely with the body by election. Again, we wish to emphasize the thought, that should an elder be available and qualified, he should be elected.

Again, on page 2, Book of Rules, under the heading, Who may preside? we submit the following: "In all promiscuous assemblies of the church, where there is no organization (branch or district) it will be well to observe the rule 'the highest in authority shall preside.'" A suggestive course of reasoning would be this; that where there is a branch or district, the choice of a presiding officer is left to the selection of the body, regardless of the "highest authority."

In concluding, I wish to submit the thought that since we have a large number of aged and infirm elders, it would be the height of folly to elect one such in preference to a young, progressive, active priest, simply because he is an elder.

F. J. EBELING.

Letter Department

KINGFISHER, OKLAHOMA, August 29, 1912.

Editors Herald: Oklahoma is moving along in the gospel work. One dozen Indians have been baptized of late, and there is a prospect for a good ingathering. The reunion at Calumet was the best ever held in the State. The Good Spirit was greatly manifest all through; the manifest unity among the Saints, the fastings and prayers bore fruit. All left there rejoicing in the angel's message. Sixteen were baptized, and many interested.

The reunion at Ripley was also a good one; five were baptized there. Brother Ammon White, the patriarch, was at both the reunions and endeared himself to the Saints here. They learned the Lord approves of the labors of this servant whom he has called. The two young missionaries, Hughes and Christensen, are doing fine work. They report four baptisms lately and a goodly prospect for more. They are good young men and we commend them to the Saints everywhere.

Brother Keck, the wide-awake, hustling preacher, is at Reeding, preaching every night. He is well received all over the mission.

Yours in the true work of the Lord,

HUBERT CASE.

DENVER COLORADO, September 2, 1912.

Saints' Herald: To all who are interested in the mission among our Mormon friends in Utah and other places. We are desirous of reaching the members of this institution in a systematic and effective way; and in order to do this we have been supplied with a machine which will enable us to produce a series of short articles dealing with current matters of interest regarding Mormonism. We hope through this means to show where Mormonism has failed, and how; and then we will attempt to show wherein and how the Reorganized Church is justified in its claims to accurately represent the original mission and message of Joseph Smith.

Brother Charles A. Smurthwaite has kindly consented to edit this work, and all matter published in this way will have his careful supervision. Our brother is well qualified for this work and is in touch with the modern aspects of the Mormon problem. Brother Charles Chase will assist him in the mechanical part of the work.

We are making this special appeal to all who have relatives or friends who are members of the Mormon Church, to whom any help of the kind we are able to give would be received, to forward names and addresses of such to Charles A. Smurthwaite, 751 First Avenue, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Will you please give this your immediate attention and oblige,

Sincerely yours,

JOHN W. RUSHTON.

SMETHWICK, BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND, August 15, 1912.

Dear Brethren: We just had the British Isles mission conference in our meeting room, which I enjoyed very much, although I was not able to be present on the last day. On Sunday, at the afternoon service, I enjoyed the gift of tongues for the first time since joining the church, and the same brother interpreted the same, saying that God would bless the mission in this island and urged the elders to keep more faithful.

I think it a conference to be remembered by all. Several of our ministry have joined the Anti-Mormon League here in Birmingham and have kindly lent the use of schoolroom for the committee meetings. It is doing a lot towards making the difference between the Josephites and Brighamites plain.

I pray for the success of the work, that we may see the honest in heart turned into the kingdom of God.

Yours in gospel bonds,

W. B. ARROWSMITH.

53 UPPER GROVE STREET.

Kewanee, Eastern Iowa, and Nauvoo Reunion.

The joint reunion of the Kewanee, Eastern Iowa, and the Nauvoo districts was held in Prospect Park, Moline, Illinois, August 15 to 25. Elders J. W. Wight, F. A. Smith, and C. G. Dykes were chosen to preside. The preaching was of a high order, which was comforting to the Saints, and convincing to those not of the faith. The ministration of the word was by Elders J. W. Wight, F. A. Smith, James McKiernan, C. E. Harpe, F. B. Farr, Joseph Arber, O. E. Sade, W. E. Turner, C. C. Joehnk, D. S. Holmes, and C. G. Dykes. Others that assisted were Brethren M. D. Murdock, Henry Williams, Amos Heide, Reuben Elvin, and William Richards.

The auxiliary work was in charge of Sister M. A. Etzenhouser. Her work was appreciated by all.

The weather was ideal throughout the entire services. In all there were held 24 preaching services, 8 prayer meetings, 1 priesthood meeting, and 1 quiz meeting, which was not only enjoyable, but profitable.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. G. Dykes, president; A. C. Needham, secretary; Elmer Reed, treasurer.

Montrose, Iowa, was chosen as the place to hold the next reunion, in 1913. There were one ordination, one baptism, and two children blessed.

ALFRED C. NEEDHAM, Secretary.

Massachusetts Reunion.

The Massachusetts district reunion convened at Onset, Massachusetts, July 27, 1912, under the presidency of U. W. Greene, C. H. Rich, H. W. Howlett, G. W. Robley, H. O. Smith, and A. B. Phillips. The camp was situated on our beautiful reunion grounds on Onset Bay. The tabernacle tent was screened in from the mosquito and insect pests which abound in the sandy land of Cape Cod, and it proved a factor in making better attended services.

We had some good practical sermons during the course of our sojourn together. The speakers were J. C. Farnfield, A. B. Phillips, U. W. Greene, H. O. Smith, F. C. Mesle, G. W. Robley, S. F. Cushman, William Bradbury, F. J. Ebeling, John F. Garver, R. W. Farrell, J. F. Sheehy, M. C. Fisher, C. A. Coombs, H. W. Howlett. We had one very practical talk on tithing by W. N. Robinson. There were eighty-nine tents on the grounds and about three hundred campers.

The elders and priests of the Eastern Mission were each organized into quorums. W. A. Sinclair was chosen president of the elders' quorum; Frederick W. Roberts and Frank C. Mesle counselors; E. H. Fisher secretary and treasurer. Albert L. Sanford was chosen president of the priests' quorum; Edmund Brown and Franklin S. Dobbins counselors.

There were held 27 preaching services, 17 prayer services, which were of a high spiritual character and well occupied; testimonies 410; prophecies 24; tongues and interpretation 4. We held 3 Sunday school sessions; 12 Sunday school and Religio institute sessions; 8 business sessions. There were 8 baptized; 8 confirmed; 6 ordinations. The afternoons were given over to recreation, baseball, bathing, boating, etc.

During the last week of the reunion lumber was purchased and a goodly sized storehouse was erected, under the guiding hand of our architect missionary, Arthur B. Phillips.

The reunion committee are to be congratulated on the success of this year's gathering. It was a success from every standpoint, and financially they report that they are far in advance of any reunion held heretofore. The next reunion will convene July 26, 1913, to hold over three Sundays.

W. A. SINCLAIR, M. D., Secretary Reunion.

Clinton District Reunion.

The thirteenth annual reunion of the Clinton, Missouri, District is now a matter of history. James Moler and W. S. Macrae were chosen to preside. The attendance was better than last year. The weather was ideal. And the Lord was with us in all our services; and not only in the services, but throughout the camp, for all seemed to enjoy good health.

The preaching was by James Moler, W. S. Macrae, A. T. Higdon, C. J. Peters, C. H. Athey, W. H. Lowe, R. F. Slye, and the secretary. The auxiliary work was in charge of Sister W. H. Deam, and judging from the attendance at the services and the interest manifest, we think her labor was very much appreciated.

At the business meeting it was decided to hold a reunion in 1913 at Rich Hill, Missouri.

The attendance of outsiders at the night services was large, and many listened to the gospel on the street each evening at 4.30. We were also granted liberal space in the daily paper, which enabled us to get our position before the people who did not attend.

The music was grand; many of the young people having heeded the admonition of the Lord to "cultivate the gift of music and of song." We noticed that many of the older ones had not forgotten the gladness of youth.

Five precious souls were baptized on the closing day of the reunion.

Let us prepare to make the next one better than this one was.

A. C. SILVERS, Secretary.

Our Vacation Bible School in Boston.

The Daily Vacation Bible School held in the Saints' church of Greater Boston, is no more—for the present, at least. The teachers fought a good fight, and kept the faith; conquered the children, and won their hearts. And it is a big victory to win the love of two hundred and twenty-four children. We did it; and had a good time while doing it. Of course there were many hard days. The first of the term was held when there were many hot days; but we were too busy to think of heat and sweat. It meant a sacrifice, as all things worth while do; but what Saint would not sacrifice for the sake of teaching, directing, guiding, making better, little minds that God had placed among us?

The forms and fashions of a daily vacation bible school are pretty well known to most of the readers of this paper; I need not do more than give the characteristic features of our school held in Somerville, which is a part of Greater Boston.

Hamlet never felt more in doubt of the future, than did the principal of School Number 12, on the morning of July 8, when he stood on the steps of the church and said to himself: "To be, or not to be. Will they come, or will they not come?" They came! and for thirty days happiness flowed through uninterrupted channels. The children sang, worked, and played. They came early and left late. We heard the songs on the streets, and saw the girls sewing on the front verandas. The neighbors awoke to the fact that something unusual, something of worth, had been introduced into their neighborhood. Mothers brought their children, visited the school, and went home satisfied. The daily vacation bible school was something they had been waiting for.

○wing to a very partial distribution of circulars, only sixty-six children came the first day, but the number increased by tens and scores till we had all that could be cared for comfortably. Being handicapped in having no time for play, the average attendance ran down to about fifty per cent of the enrollment. However, this was considered remarkable by the New England secretary, who told me that one third had been the average in the Boston schools, heretofore. We were the fourth largest school, and the first in percentage of attendance. Miss Mitchel, musical director of the school, said that we had the sweetest voiced school. The musical instruction was under the direction and personal supervision of Sister Fielding, who came to us from the Fall River Branch, and did wonderfully well with the children, both in the music and the sewing—for she also had a class of girls who learned to sew and embroider. As for order, or discipline, we have reasons to believe that we had the most orderly school among the twelve. I was called upon to address the conference on the subject of how to keep order. We did not permanently expel a boy or girl, and we had some peculiar cases at first; but we won them with love, and on one occasion, the big boys came to me and said, "Mr. Farrell, we would fight for you."

Sister Clough had a class of girls, which she labored faithfully to instruct in the fascinating art of raffia weaving. And her efforts were not in vain. Sister Sears held the interest of from twenty-five to forty kindergarten children; all under seven. They enjoyed the school immensely—and the mothers enjoyed having them come. One visitor said the kindergarten exhibit was the cream of them all. Sisters Travers and Edwards had the most difficult class of them all—the boys between seven and eleven. But it seems that nothing is impossible to Latter Day Saints. When the classes became excessively large, or when material ran short, there was at times a degree of confusion: this was the fault of no one in particular, and as long as we could keep the boys happy, we did not mind a bit of noise, especially outside of class work. But even this defect was remedied after I secured a brother to assist in the hammock room, enabling me to visit the different classes. This brother was John Sheehy, and he took to the work like a duck to water, and in a few days time the boys were enjoying to the fullest the association with him.

And we wish to mention, with appreciation, the names of the following: Sisters Greene and Lanman, who were our pianists until reunion, and Sister Sinclair, who played at the commencement; Sister York assisted ably with the calisthenics and a brass class, for three weeks, after which Sister Whiting took her place in the school. Others who helped us several days were Sisters Newcombe, Hazeltine, Sadie Fisher, Lewis, and possibly a few others that I do not recall. Brother Sinclair gave one first aid talk, and Brother Fisher helped a day or two. The bible stories were told by R. W. Farrell, Florence Fisher, U. W. Greene, John Garver, Francis Ebeling, John Sheehy.

Several amusing things transpired, many good things were said of our work, mostly by outsiders, and we believe that success can be written by the jury when it passes its verdict. At the close of our school, the representative paper of Somerville had this to say of our work:

"The Daily Vacation Bible School, which has been running the past six weeks in the Saints' church, on Sewall Street, closed August 16. This is the first school of its kind in Somerville, and the twelfth in Greater Boston. In Boston the work was begun in 1908 with five schools. A steady growth each year has resulted in twelve schools, with an enrollment of 3,068, and a total teaching force of forty-eight.

"Of the 224 children who enrolled at the school held in the building owned by the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints over 100 attended daily for the term of six weeks. The school went on one picnic through the courtesy of the Traveler Fresh Air Fund. General commencement day was held in the Dudley Street Baptist church of Roxbury, on August 15. The big church was well filled, and the program was carried out successfully. The Somerville school gave a demonstration of first aid to the injured.

"Commencement in the local church was held Friday evening. It was a success in every particular. The adults who assembled with the children were enthusiastic in their praise of the results obtained in so short a time. The exhibit, which was held in the lower auditorium, consisted of raffia work, such as coat hangers, hooks, baskets and boxes; brass work, hammocks, balls, sewing and embroidery, kindergarten display, etc."

CORRESPONDENT.

News from Missions

Indiana.

Since writing last I held a few meetings at Oatsville, Indiana, in the schoolhouse, and the people played freeze out. They stayed away, so I had to leave. I then went to Littles and held a week's meetings and had a fine interest there. I baptized four precious souls into the kingdom, and there are others that will likely be baptized in the near future. The writer opened up the work in this place a year ago. Leaving Littles I came to Winslow, where I preached for two weeks in the United Brethren church, about five and a half miles south of town. Had a very good interest in this place and baptized two: a Mr. Garfield Coleman and wife. In this place the people closed the schoolhouses on our elders about ten years ago, but last fall Elder Byrn went in there and they opened the United Brethren church and he preached a week for them. The writer preached the two weeks mentioned above and they asked him to return again soon.

The writer and Elder H. E. Moler came to this place, near Birdseye, a week ago last Monday, and have held meetings ever since. Elder E. O. Byrn was with us over Sunday. We had a basket dinner at the Oak Hill School on Sunday, and we had a large attendance and a good interest. Two gave in their names for baptism, and they were baptized on Monday. Brother Moler and the writer will leave here in the morning and go to the reunion at Wirt, Indiana. We have been greatly blessed in our labors this summer, for which we are thankful to our heavenly Father.

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I remain as ever,
JACOB G. HALB.

BIRDSEYE, INDIANA, August 28, 1912.

Colorado.

Some of the many readers of the pages of our church organ will, no doubt, be pleased to know how the work is progressing in this part of the field. The opponents of the latter day work get busy sometimes, and as a result we are called to meet them in public discussion. We have just closed a ten session debate with E. C. Fuqua, representing the anti-progressive faction of the Church of Christ (so-called). This reverend (?) gentleman took occasion to attach his name to propositions that were sent to another man, so got into the fray very cheaply. Brother F. A. Russell represented our side, and to put it mildly, gave our opponent such a thrashing that I think he won't care to "butt in" soon again.

Our proposition came up first, and after the third speech of the opponent, he would scarcely examine a single proof that was presented by Brother Russell. Instead, he read extensively from literature furnished by R. B. Neal, of the Anti-Mormon Association. Brother Russell met this literature very successfully, and showed its utter unreliability. Among other things presented from this questionable source was a purported affidavit from Lucy Kimball, testifying that she was a plural wife of Joseph Smith. Mr. Fuqua referred to her as "Cousin Lucy," and when her testimony was read from "Abstract of Evidence," temple lot case, the people could plainly see the character of the woman that was brought into court to convict an innocent man. Fuqua pretended that the affidavit he was presenting had passed through court, but when it was examined by Brother Russell it was found to contain advertising matter for Mr. R. B. Neal. Brother Russell presented the fact that courts do not advertise literature for an individual, and plainly showed that this purported affidavit had never seen a court room as claimed by our opponent.

Fuqua also introduced the name of David Whitmer to prove that the Reorganized Church had gone astray as well as Joseph Smith. When Brother Russell pressed him to say whether he was ready to believe what David Whitmer said, he was as silent as the tomb. Time and again he was asked if he believed the testimony of his witness, which he asked the people to believe. The trouble is, our opponents like to believe certain parts of the testimony of the witnesses to the Book of Mormon when it suits their theory, but when it comes to other matters, they are ready to brand them as liars. Mr. Fuqua made the statement that he was "akin to everybody and everything," in the debate in order to overthrow the latter day work. In fact he was ready to walk arm in arm with those who were without question "sports in nest hiding"; also with those whom he admitted were representing societies that were founded by the Adversary himself, and were the offspring of hell. As the debate proceeded it became evident that he was hard pressed and the audience could see at a glance who had the truth. Our opponent resorted to any kind of methods that he could think of in order to make the work of the Lord appear offensive. He attacked the idea of two priesthoods in the church, also high priests and a presidency. Brother Russell showed him that we have a "royal priesthood" which is kingly, and that Melchisedec was a king, therefore we must have the Melchisedec priesthood in order to officiate in the name of Christ.

Our antagonist made the statement that we had some matter that was obscene and he would not read it before a mixed audience; that it was so bad that it would "make a dog vomit." Brother Russell asked him to place it on the table or else get up and tell the audience that it was a false statement. He never attempted to make good his statement, which caused the people to understand that he had told that which was absolutely without a shadow of truth in it. Brother Russell pledged himself to read before any audience anything indorsed by the church, and in so doing not a single blush would come upon the face of any who heard it.

Fuqua said the mob did a good thing when they killed Joseph Smith, which showed he was a murderer at heart and believed in mob violence. If he had had any shame about him I think he would have manifested it when Brother Russell showed up the spirit of a man who would say such a thing, but never did he show, in word or manner, that he was sorry for such unchristianlike statements. Not the same kind of a spirit that the Master showed when Peter cut off the ear of the servant of the high priest, as the Master was taken to be crucified.

It would be almost impossible to mention all the mistakes made by Fuqua in an article of this kind, so I will say that the work came out of the fray without a single serious objection against it.

When Fuqua affirmed his church he began at Pentecost and finished there. Simply around and around that historic spot where all the Campbellites love to encircle. Brother Russell urged Fuqua to tell the people the origin of the church, which he agreed to do, but all the insisting and invitations failed to get the desired information. Finally Brother Russell began to read from some of their own publications to show where and when their church did originate. This aroused the ire of our opponent and he tried hard to have all works outside of the Bible eliminated from the debate. The chairman ruled in favor of our opponent, but the decision was appealed from to the house, and they voted, by an overwhelming majority, to allow the introduction of the works objected to by Fuqua. Only two persons voted to sustain the objection.

Fuqua claimed that Christ did not preach a single complete gospel sermon, and was not a member of his own church. He said that Christ was the head of the church but not a member. Brother Russell asked him if his head was not a part of his body, and he said, "No." When the answer was given the audience simply roared, to the apparent discomfiture of Fuqua. He, however, continued to assert that Christ was not a member of his church, simply for the purpose of bolstering up his pet theory that the church was organized on the day of Pentecost. He also claimed, against the wish of his moderator, who tried to correct him, that the Lord's Prayer was not repeated after Pentecost. He admitted the gospel was preached to Adam, also to Abraham, but said that a different gospel was preached by John the Baptist, and also a different one after Pentecost; making in all three kinds of gospels, while Paul says there is only one true gospel. One of the most disagreeable features of the debate was that Fuqua would persist in misquoting Brother Russell, and in his closing speech on his proposition, he read a long list of the most palpable falsehoods as the positions of Brother Russell. Of course those who had heard the debate knew them to be untrue, but when he publishes his Word of Truth (?), a paper edited by him, I suppose they will come out as the real positions taken by Brother Russell.

Those who heard the debate will be reminded of the absolute unreliability of Fuqua. One thing that he said was that there was only just a little difference between us and the Salt Lake people, and that difference was polygamy. Brother Russell showed the audience that polygamy was only "a little thing" in the mind of his opponent, so he must be almost converted to the plurality of wives. He attacked the Inspired Translation of the Bible, but all he could say was that Joseph Smith was a very bad man for attempting such a work. The propositions were signed to the effect that the King James Translation was to be the standard of evidence, but Fuqua absolutely refused to use it, but read entirely from the Revised Version. When the Bible put out by Alexander Campbell was up for consideration, Fuqua tried hard to get the people to believe that Campbell was not responsible for it, but he certainly made a dismal failure in his efforts along that line.

Many came to us and remarked that they were wondering if Fuqua would hold out until the end of the discussion, as his defense was so weak. Much good was done, and several are near the kingdom, whom we hope to baptize in the near future. Brother Russell read a lengthy poem at the close of the debate which brought a storm of applause. It was very apparent that the reading of the poem did not please Fuqua or his moderator. Many other things could be mentioned, but we fear this article is already too long, so will close.

In hope of immortality,
L. G. HOLLOWAY.

WRAY, COLORADO, August 19, 1912.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

NAUVOO.—District conference convened at Fort Madison, Iowa, June 1, 1912, President Charles Harpe in charge. Ministerial reports from the following elders were read: James McKiernan, Charles Harpe, F. M. Cooper, W. T. Lambert, George P. Lambert, and O. R. Miller. District Treasurer George P. Lambert reported a balance of $38.93 on hand. Statistical reports from the following branches were read: Burlington, Keokuk, Rock Creek, Montrose, Fort Madison, and Farmington. Report on the organization of a branch at Fort Madison was read and approved. Recommendation of the Ottumwa Branch for the ordination of E. R. Williams to the office of teacher and John Buchanan to the office of deacon was approved and ordinations provided for. The annual election of officers resulted in the reelection of Charles E. Harpe for president, W. H. Thomas for secretary, and George P. Lambert for treasurer. The issuance of a teacher's license to J. H. Jacobs, of Keokuk, was approved. The management of the district tent was placed in the hands of the district president. The place and time chosen for the next district conference was with the Rock Creek Branch, at Adrian, Illinois, October 5 and 6. W. H. Thomas, secretary.

WESTERN MAINE.—District conference convened with the Little Deer Isle Branch August 24, 1912, at 2.30 p. m., with district president, F. J. Ebeling, in the chair. Chose Apostle U. W. Greene to preside, assisted by the district presidency; W. A. Small, secretary; F. J. Ebeling, chorister. Selection of organist left to chorister. Local deacon to act as usher, with power to appoint assistants. Visiting Saints allowed the privileges of conference. Minutes of last conference were read and approved. Statistical reports were read from Stonington, Mountainville, and Little Deer Isle. Stonington report was referred for correction to secretary of district. Motion prevailed that the correcting of the Stonington branch record be left to president and secretary of district. Ministerial reports were read from Elders George H. Knowlton, H. R. Eaton, J. J. Billings, J. H. Robbins. Verbal reports from Elders F. J. Ebeling and J. C. Farnfield; priest, H. H. Billings. Secretary's bill of expense was ordered paid. Communication read from Stonington Branch, recommending the ordaining of Thomas Sturdee to the office of priest. This was provided for. Voted to hold next conference at Mountainville the Saturday and Sunday before the full moon in November. Brethren Topping and Keck, of Cleveland, Ohio, at request of conference made interesting remarks, which were followed by remarks by Elder W. E. LaRue, of New York City, upon summer school work. Bishop's agent's report was read and accepted as follows: On hand last report, $79.61; receipts, $222.03; expended, $145; balance due church, $77.03. There was one baptism, one ordination, and one child blessed during conference. Preaching by Elders J. C. Farnfield, W. E. LaRue, U. W. Greene, and F. J. Ebeling. The spirit of unity and harmony was felt throughout the conference. W. A. Small, district secretary.

ALABAMA.—District conference met with the Pleasant Hill Branch July 26, 1912, with J. R. Harper, district president, in the chair. By motion F. M. Slover was chosen to assist in presiding over the conference. All visiting Saints were invited to take part in the conference. Minutes of last conference read and approved. Officers reporting: Missionaries: F. M. Slover, Sven Swenson, L. C. Moore, J. W. Dubose. Elders: J. R. Harper, G. O. Sellers, J. G. Vickery, and W. S. McPherson. Priests: A. A. Weaver, W. A. Odum, A. G. Booker. Teachers: G. E. Wiggins, W. H. Drake. Deacons: L. G. Sellers, J. W. Baldwin. Sermons reported preached in district, 183; baptisms, 11. Branches reporting: Lone Star 145, lost 6; Pleasant Hill 271, gained 14. Bishop's agent reported: On hand last report, $190.25; received since, $111.30; paid out, $295; balance on hand, $6.55. Agent's books audited and found correct. The tent committee reported having conferred with the Mobile District as instructed, but had not accomplished anything. Moved that the tent committee of this district confer with the tent committee of the Mobile District in regard to the purchase of a tent. Motion laid on the table. Moved that the tent funds be returned, as nearly as possible to the ones who gave them. Moved as a substitute that the tent funds be turned over to the bishop's agent, to be used for the benefit of the poor of this district. Motion and substitute lost. It was then moved that the tent funds be loaned out, on interest. Motion carried. Officers elected: J. R. Harper, president; W. S. McPherson, vice president; G. W. Miniard, secretary, with authority to choose his assistant; H. H. Wiggins, treasurer. Adjourned to meet with the Flat Rock Branch, November 2, 1912. G. W. Miniard, secretary.

Conference Notices.

The Massachusetts district conference will convene at Somerville, with the Boston Branch October 5, 1912, at 2.30 p. m. Reports and other matter for conference should be in the clerk's hands not later than September 25. All elders (not General Conference appointees) are required to report their labors. An itemized account is required, only items, brief and to the point. Come and bring the Spirit with you, that all may be benefited. Send communication to W. A. Sinclair, M. D., 166 Pearl Street, Winter Hill, Massachusetts.

Utah district conference will convene on September 29, 1912, at 772 East Fourth South Street, Salt Lake City, Utah. Customarily we convene on Friday or Saturday for business, but in order to take advantage of the low railroad rates of Utah, which covers from Saturday, September 28, to October 12 inclusive (the big conference and fair time), we are compelled to make the change, hence the conference business proper will begin on Monday, September 30, at 10 a. m. This will give the joint Sunday school and Religio convention a chance to commence the auxiliary work Saturday evening at 7.30 and complete it Sunday morning, so far as possible, and we are authorized to so announce. Please take notice; all comers to conference and conventions should arrive in the city on the 28th, bringing with them the Spirit of God, crowned with love and peace. All reports, petitions, and communications pertaining to conference should be in the hands of the secretary, G. J. S. Abels, 420 Twenty-fourth Street, Ogden, Utah, by September 26. Please be prompt in this and assist us in our work by so doing. Also, those intending to attend these meetings from a distance should communicate with A. M. Chase, 772 East Fourth South Street, Salt Lake City, Utah, and an effort will be made to provide for their entertainment during this time. J. C. Chrestensen, district president.

London district conference will convene with the branch at London, Ontario, Canada, on the 12th and 13th of October. Branch secretaries please take notice. Send all branch reports to the undersigned as soon as possible, that a complete status of the district may be presented to the president of the conference. Then everybody interested in the extension of God's kingdom, and the development of the district, come with zealous intent to do all that we can unitedly do as a body for the success of the Master's work, and that of the conference. P. H. Philippin, secretary of district, 92 Chesley Avenue, London, Ontario, Canada.

The Mobile district conference will convene at Escatawpa, Mississippi, Saturday, September 21, 1912, at 10 a. m. Let us try to get all reports in promptly. A. E. Warr, district president.

Convention Notices.

Toronto district Sunday school convention will convene at Warton on Friday, October 4, 1912. First session 10 a. m. In the evening a joint session with the Religio. Schools will appoint delegates and come prepared to do the business of the district. Be sure and come on Thursday evening, to be on time for convention, thus showing by your presence that you are interested in the auxiliary work. J. T. Thompson, district superintendent; Ada Hamilton, district secretary.

The Mobile district Sunday school and Religio convention will be held at Escatawpa, Mississippi, Friday, September 20, 1912. Prayer service at nine o'clock a. m., business session 2.30 p. m. Let us all come together for a good convention. A. E. Warr, district superintendent.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:

Jesus and the Classes, Part II.—The Rich - - - 869

Publicity for the Southern California Reunion - - - 872

“Our Church Courts” - - - - - 872

Notes and Comments - - - - - 873

HYMNS AND POEMS - - - - - 873

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Present Help—The Bishopric, by E. L. Kelley - - - 873

Leaves from Life, Experiences of H. N. Snively, Part 3 - - - - - 875

Dealing with the Erring, No. 7, by Charles Fry - - - 878

Revival Services, by J. R. Lambert - - - - - 881

Can a Priest Preside in a Branch Where There is an Elder? by F. J. Ebeling - - - - - 883

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 884

Hubert Case—John W. Rushton—W. B. Arrow-smith—Alfred C. Needham—W. A. Sinclair—A. C. Silvers—Correspondent.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 886

Jacob G. Halb—L. G. Holloway.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 888

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to “Editors Herald.” All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamon, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filing of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post-office, Lamon, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

Two-Day Meetings.

There will be a two-day meeting at Caseville, Michigan, September 14 and 15, 1912. All trains will be met at Caseville. Everybody welcome. Bring your lunch baskets. William Grice, president.

The Bishopric.

APPOINTMENT OF AGENT IN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF WEST VIRGINIA.

To the Saints and Friends of the District of West Virginia: Please take notice that upon the resignation of the bishop's agent in and for the district of West Virginia, Brother B. Beall, and by the recommendation of the district conference of said district of Brother Francis L. Shinn, of Clarksburg, West Virginia, for agent of said district, the said Francis L. Shinn is hereby appointed to act in and for said territory named, the district of West Virginia, in place of Brother B. Beall, resigned, and perform all the duties within and for said territory usually performed by bishop's agents for the said Reorganized Church.

The Bishopric take pleasure in commending Brother B. Beall for his work in and for said district in the past, and trust the Lord will bless and direct him in his labors in whatever he may engage in the future. The Bishopric also commend the appointment of Brother F. L. Shinn by the Saints and friends of West Virginia District, bespeaking for him their aid and assistance, and trust that each one will be prompted to confer with Brother Shinn and encourage him in his work by performing the work that they have to do through the agent in fulfilling the law of Christ.

Trusting the Lord will remember and bless each one, I am in behalf of the Bishopric,

E. L. KELLEY, Presiding Bishop.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, September 5, 1912.

Pastoral.

This is to notify all the branch officers in the Ohio District that on October 1 you are expected and required by resolution to report the work you have done in the respective branches to the district president. As the Presidency have asked us for a report of all the work done in the branches, it will be necessary that the officers furnish us with the items. There were four branches that did not report July 1, and I hope you will not fail this time. Be prompt, brethren.

J. W. METCALF, District President.

To the Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons of Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Utah, and Eastern Washington: A few weeks ago we advertised for the names, addresses, and ages of the brethren of the ministry in the above-mentioned districts, so that we could carry out the instructions of the Presidency and organize quorums as announced. The following results up to date have been received: Out of sixty-four elders in these districts, only thirteen have responded; out of sixty-four priests, only seven have responded; out of thirty-eight teachers, only four have responded; out of twenty-eight deacons, only one has responded. To date I have not had one response from Eastern Washington, of any of the ministry. Only one elder out of twelve in Utah has taken any notice of my request. And the same disheartening response comes from Montana. I have written to each of the presidents of the districts, and so far only one has had the courtesy to acknowledge receipt of my letter. I make this special appeal again and request that every man interested in this announcement who holds the priesthood named will at once respond, so that we may make the proper arrangements to carry out the order of the Presidency, who are acting under the authority of a General Conference action. It is neither courteous nor businesslike to treat official communications with contempt, and we are not acting in a perfunctory manner, but we mean to attempt honestly to carry out the commission assigned us. Let all cooperate and help to make a success of the organizations contemplated.

JOHN W. RUSHTON, President of Mission.

DENVER, COLORADO, 1210 South High Street.

Notice of Release.

To Whom It May Concern: Brother T. W. Williams, finding it impracticable to fill his appointment to Denver, notice is hereby given that the First Presidency has released him from such appointment.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,
FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, September 4, 1912.

Notice of Transfer.

To Whom It May Concern, Greeting: The climate of New Hampshire not agreeing with Brother J. H. Baker, he is hereby transferred from that State to the Lamon, Iowa and heartily recommended to all among whom he may labor.

U. W. GREENE,
G. T. GRIFFITHS,
J. W. WIGHT,

Ministers in Charge.

The above transfer is concurred in by the First Presidency.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, September 3, 1912.

Addresses.

J. W. Metcalf; field address, Creola, Ohio.

Died.

THORPE.—Brother Charles Francis Thorpe died August 24 at Mary Mill, Washington. He was born at Kewanee, Illinois, June 8, 1853; was married December 25, 1877, to Sarah A. Whitehouse. To this union were born seven children. Two sons and one daughter survive. Brother Thorpe was baptized by Elder Nephi Snively June 10, 1899. He was well respected by those who knew him. The man he had worked for during the last year or more said as he viewed his remains, "If every man had left a record as good as he had, he need not be afraid to die." Funeral service was conducted by Elder N. T. Chapman, assisted by N. E. Austin, at Condon, Oregon. The sympathy of the Saints and neighbors was extended to the family in their loss of a beloved father and husband.

WADDELL.—At home, east of Independence, Missouri, August 27, 1912, Sister Karen Mari, wife of Elder S. O. Waddell. She was born at Taageskow, Denmark, February 15, 1844, married to Brother Waddell at Copenhagen, April 4, 1865. With her husband she went to Utah in the summer of that year, until the fall of 1870, herself and husband being baptized by Elder E. C. Brand, December 3, 1869. They came to Independence April 4, 1878, gaining the esteem of all. Eight children were born to them, four of whom died early in life; two sons, Evan and Albert, and two daughters, Mrs. Rose Wheeler, of Chicago, Illinois, and Mrs. A. W. Crenshaw, of Independence, with the husband and father, are left to mourn. Funeral from the home August 28, sermon by Elder W. H. Garrett, assisted by Elder G. E. Harrington; interment in city cemetery.

SERRELL.—Jonathan B. Serrell passed away at his home, 511 Morgan Avenue, Minneapolis, Minnesota, July 4, 1912. Brother Serrell was born May 10, 1841, in New York City; came to Minnesota in 1855; was married to Rebecca P. Chase February 1, 1872. He is survived by his wife and six children. Brother Serrell was a veteran of the Civil War, having served in Company I, Second Minnesota, and was honorably discharged at Fort Snelling at the close of the war. Was baptized October 17, 1893, by J. A. Davis. Funeral sermon at the home by Elder Charles Lundeen.

ELLISON.—Charles Alma, son of Lehi Ellison, jr., and Fannie Ellison, was born August 19, 1910. He was blessed under the hands of Elder Lehi Ellison, his grandfather, August 28, 1910. His death was caused by falling from a back porch at the Children's Home, at Lamoni, Iowa, August 28, 1912, at the age of 2 years, and 9 days. So far as we know, no one was to blame for this unforeseen accident. Memorial services were held at the home August 30, 1912, at 10 a. m. Elder John Smith was in charge and offered prayer. A short address was delivered by Elder J. R. Lambert. He was laid to rest in Rose Hill Cemetery, where Elder Smith was again in charge. Little Charley was a very lovable child. Many heartfelt tears were shed for him. He was the idol of the home with all. "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven."—Jesus.

DIXON.—Clara Belle Dixon, born April 7, 1900, died at Parview Sanitarium, Savannah, Georgia, age 12 years, 4 months, 3 days. Funeral sermon in Saints' church, at Dixonville, Alabama, August 17, 1912, by F. M. Slover, in presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

BOOKER.—Hattie Booker, born October 20, 1863, died in Montgomery, Alabama, hospital April 2, 1912. Funeral sermon in Saints' church by F. M. Slover, at Skinnerton, Alabama, September 1, 1912, before a large number of relatives and friends. She leaves to mourn husband, three sons, four daughters, and twenty-two grandchildren.

TAYLOR.—At Browns Valley, August 3, 1912, Brother William Taylor, a native of Pennsylvania, aged 70 years, 4 months, 17 days. A widow and five children survive. Funeral sermon by George Daley.

BEVELHYMER.—Leroy Wesley, son of Brother and Sister Willard Bevelhymer, was born November 8, 1908, at Mishwaka, Indiana; died August 6, 1912, at Riverside, Michigan, at the age of 3 years, 8 months, 29 days. He was a lovable child and will be missed by all. F. J. D. Earl, of Hartford, Michigan, preached the funeral sermon to a good-sized audience of sympathizing neighbors and friends.

NETHERCOTT.—Sister Mary E. Nethercott passed from a life of affliction, yet of love, to the paradise of rest on August 17, 1912, at her peaceful home in Sacramento, California, after a long period of illness from rheumatism. She was 51 years, 6 months, 12 days old. She leaves as chief mourners a husband, Brother J. H. Nethercott, three daughters, two sons, and father, Brother W. T. Rowlands, three brothers, and one sister. She was buried on the 20th, surrounded by flowers that she loved so much in life. Sisters George Daley and Rose Dawson sang beautifully. The sermon was by Elder J. M. Terry.

JOYCE.—Brother W. H. Darius Joyce passed away early Sunday morning, August 25, at his home in Irvington, California, at the age of 49 years, 4 months, 28 days. He was buried from the Christian church in Irvington on August 26. Singing by the choir of the Christian church; sermon by J. M. Terry. Darius was a familiar personage at our reunions, and led a quiet and innocent life. He leaves two sisters, Sister M. A. Saxe of San Francisco and Sister E. Chase of San Jose, and one brother, Brother J. H. Driver, of Irvington. The funeral was largely attended, testifying to the high regard held for our brother.

SCHMUTZ.—Lydia Ann Schmutz, nee Martin, died August 26, 1912, at Denver, Colorado. She was born in Ohio, July 4, 1841; married Joseph Schmutz October 18, 1855, at Jackson, Ohio. In 1869 they moved to Ellsworth County, Kansas; in 1880 to Kansas City, and in 1891 to Denver. Sister Schmutz was a member of the Christian Church, but in 1881 she united with the Reorganized Church. Sister Schmutz was the mother of twelve children, one son, five daughters, twelve grandchildren, eleven great-grandchildren, and a brother and sister survive. The church thus loses a most exemplary woman, one of extraordinary intelligence and strong personality; with whom sentiment did not displace justice and right. She was always concerned about the welfare of her children, and the prosperity of the church, and the glory of God. Her life was full of hardship and trial, and yet she bravely met the emergencies; and moving forward to the realization of her hopes. Upon her deathbed she was faithful in testimony. A simple service was held in the artistic church in Denver, for the erection of which she had worked so zealously; interment in the pretty cemetery of Fairmount. John W. Rush-ton conducted the service in the church, and at the graveside was assisted by E. F. Shupe.

The love of the beautiful is becoming not only the possession of the rich, but the desire and possession of the poor.—Right Honorable John Burns.

A New Book of Sermons

The Gospel Messenger

BY ELDER J. S. ROTH

Everyone that knows Elder Roth—and many that do not—know that he is a very successful missionary and an excellent preacher. This book of his sermons—thirty-five of them—covers so wide a range of subjects and does it so thoroughly that you need it for your own information, and to lend to your investigating neighbor.

Elder Roth is always a preacher for the people; uses enough scripture to make his utterances authoritative, tells where to find it, yet doesn't tire the reader with too much monotony. Quotations and citations have been verified.

The autobiography of the author is a valuable feature of the book.

Through the generosity of Elder Roth we are enabled to offer this well-printed, nicely arranged, and well-bound book at the nominal sum of 75c.

Order No. 248a.

Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa

Herald Publishing House

$100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best of security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

These Bonds will be ready to issue on the 1st of April, 1912.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

Your Fall Vacation

If you are one of those who prefer an autumn vacation and are wondering where you will go this year, come in and let me tell you of the pleasures and benefits of a camping trip in the Rockies. For genuine enjoyment, there is scarcely anything that can compare with a trip of this kind.

Those who have camped out once in the Rockies need no invitation to come again, and those who want an outing different from the ordinary can do nothing better. The climate is very dependable, railroad facilities are excellent and good roads and trails lead off into the mountains in all directions—these, combined with good fishing, scenic attractions and tonic atmosphere, make camp life positively ideal.

Outfits may be rented or purchased outright at reasonable prices at any of the larger towns. The question of just where to go may easily be decided upon after reaching Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake or whatever may be your stopping point, or beforehand by a perusal of our Colorado and Utah folder. Your copy is waiting for you. L. F. Siltz, Ticket Agent, Burlington Route.

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

Order No.

- 141 cloth 75c
- 141½ leather $1.00
- 174 flexible $1.50

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.

Order No. 232, cloth 75

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed. No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25 Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,

- Cloth, No. 198 50c
- Paper No. 197 35c

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work. Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents. No. 140, cloth 50

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
Lamoni Land and Loan Co,
Lamoni, Iowa.

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet. Order No. 241, cloth.....50

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success. No. 248a, cloth 75

For Sale.

At Lamoni, Iowa. Bakery; splendid business, good location, first-class outfit. Good reasons for selling. Write for particulars to F. M. McDonald, Lamoni, Iowa.

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read book. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why. Order No. 248, cloth 75

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestation of God working through his servant. No. 216, cloth 75c

WANTED.

Information of the whereabouts of William Bradbury, about fifty-eight years old, last heard of was in Bristol, England. Also information of Matilda and Margaret Bradbury, last heard of were in Bristol, England. Father's name was Thomas and mother's name Ann. Address,

Eliza Hancock,
Lamoni, Iowa.

The Saints' Herald

"Our Church Courts."

September 18, 1912

In this Number:

- The Judicial System of the Church, by Elbert A. Smith.
- Leading Rules of Evidence, by I. A. Smith.
- Attitude of Civil Courts toward Ecclesiastical Courts, by S. A. Burgess.
- Form and Functions of Bishop's Courts, by Joseph Roberts.
- Organization, Jurisdiction, Functions of Stake High Councils, by G. E. Harrington.
- The Standing High Council, by R. M. Elvin.
- Questions and Answers, by John Smith.
- Jurisdiction and Trial Before an Elders' Court, by Russell Archibald.

MAGAZINE
NUMBER

HOLY BIBLE

BOOK OF MORMON

DOC & COV.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE, LAMONI, IOWA

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS, SECTION 99.

Minutes of the organization of the High Council of the Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints, Kirtland, February 17, 1834.

1. This day a general council of twenty-four high priests assembled at the house of Joseph Smith, jr., by revelation, and proceeded to organize the high council of the church of Christ, which was to consist of twelve high priests, and one or three presidents, as the case might require. This high council was appointed by revelation for the purpose of settling important difficulties, which might arise in the church, which could not be settled by the church, or the bishop's council, to the satisfaction of the parties.

2. Joseph Smith, jr., Sidney Rigdon, and Frederick G. Williams, were acknowledged presidents by the voice of the council; and Joseph Smith, sr., John Smith, Joseph Coe, John Johnson, Martin Harris, John S. Carter, Jared Carter, Oliver Cowdery, Samuel H. Smith, Orson Hyde, Sylvester Smith, and Luke Johnson, high priests, were chosen to be a standing council for the church, by the unanimous voice of the council. The above-named councilors were then asked whether they accepted their appointments, and whether they would act in that office according to the law of heaven; to which they all answered that they accepted their appointments, and would fill their offices according to the grace of God bestowed upon them.

3. The number composing the council, who voted in the name and for the church in appointing the above-named councilors, were forty-three, as follows: nine high priests, seventeen elders, four priests, and thirteen members.

4. Voted: that the high council can not have power to act without seven of the above-named councilors, or their regularly appointed successors, are present. These seven shall have power to appoint other high priests, whom they may consider worthy and capable, to act in the place of absent councilors.

5. Voted: that whenever any vacancy shall occur by the death, removal from office for transgression, or removal from the bounds of this church government, of any one of the above-named councilors, it shall be filled by the nomination of the president or presidents, and sanctioned by the voice of a general council of high priests, convened for that purpose, to act in the name of the church.

6. The president of the church, who is also the president of the council, is appointed by revelation, and acknowledged, in his administration, by the voice of the church; and it is according to the dignity of his office, that he should preside over the high council of the church; and it is his privilege to be assisted by two other presidents, appointed after the same manner that he himself was appointed; and in case of the absence of one or both of those who are appointed to assist him, he has power to preside over the council without an assistant; and in case that he himself is absent, the other presidents have power to preside in his stead, both or either of them.

7. Whenever a high council of the church of Christ is regularly organized, according to the foregoing pattern, it shall be the duty of the twelve councilors to cast lots by numbers, and thereby ascertain who, of the twelve, shall speak first, commencing with number 1; and so in succession to number 12.

8. Whenever this council convenes to act upon any case, the twelve councilors shall consider whether it is a difficult one or not; if it is not, two only of the councilors shall speak upon it, according to the form above written. But if it is thought to be difficult, four shall be appointed; and if more difficult, six; but in no case shall more than six be appointed to speak. The accused, in all cases, has a right to one half of the council, to prevent insult or injustice; and the councilors appointed to speak before the council, are to present the case, after the evidence is examined, in its true light, before the council; and every man is to speak according to equity and justice. Those councilors who draw even numbers, that is, 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12, are the individuals who are to stand up in the behalf of the accused, and prevent insult or injustice.

9. In all cases the accuser and the accused shall have a privilege of speaking for themselves, before the council, after the evidences are heard, and the councilors who are appointed to speak on the case, have finished their remarks. After the evidences are heard, the councilors, accuser, and accused have spoken, the president shall give a decision according to the understanding which he shall have of the case, and call upon the twelve councilors to sanction the same by their vote. But should the remaining councilors, who have not spoken, or any one of them, after hearing the evidences and pleadings impartially, discover an error in the decision of the president, they can manifest it, and the case shall have a rehearing; and if, after a careful rehearing, any additional light is shown upon the case, the decision shall be altered accordingly; but in case no additional light is given, the first decision shall stand, the majority of the council having power to determine the same.

10. In cases of difficulty respecting doctrine, or principle (if there is not a sufficiency written to make the case clear to the minds of the council), the president may inquire and obtain the mind of the Lord by revelation.

11. The high priests, when abroad, have power to call and organize a council after the manner of the foregoing, to settle difficulties when the parties, or either of them, shall request it; and the said council of high priests shall have power to appoint one of their own number, to preside over such council for the time being. It shall be the duty of said council to transmit, immediately, a copy of their proceedings, with a full statement of the testimony accompanying their decision, to the high council of the seat of the first presidency of the church. Should the parties, or either of them, be dissatisfied with the decision of said council, they may appeal to the high council of the seat of the first presidency of the church, and have a rehearing, which case shall there be conducted, according to the former pattern written, as though no such decision had been made.

12. This council of high priests abroad, is only to be called on the most difficult cases of church matters; and no common or ordinary case is to be sufficient to call such council. The traveling or located high priests abroad, have power to say whether it is necessary to call such a council or not.

13. There is a distinction between the high council of traveling high priests abroad, and the traveling high council composed of the twelve apostles, in their decisions: from the decision of the former there can be an appeal, but from the decision of the latter there can not. The latter can only be called in question by the general authorities of the church in case of transgression.

14. Resolved, that the president, or presidents of the seat of the first presidency of the church, shall have power to determine whether any such case, as may be appealed, is justly entitled to a rehearing, after examining the appeal and the evidences and statements accompanying it.

15. The twelve councilors then proceeded to cast lots, or ballot, to ascertain who should speak first, and the following was the result, namely:

OLIVER COWDERY, No. 1	JOHN JOHNSON, No. 7
JOSEPH COE, " 2	ORSON HYDE, " 8
SAMUEL H. SMITH, " 3	JARED CARTER, " 9
LUKE JOHNSON, " 4	JOSEPH SMITH, Sr., " 10
JOHN S. CARTER, " 5	JOHN SMITH, " 11
SYLVESTER SMITH, " 6	MARTIN HARRIS, " 12

After prayer the conference adjourned:

OLIVER COWDERY,
www.LatterDayTruth.org
ORSON HYDE,
Clerks.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPTEMBER 18, 1912

NUMBER 38

Editorial Department

THE JUDICIAL SYSTEM OF THE CHURCH.

No small evidence of the divinity of this work is found in the organic structure of the church. Joseph Smith was commonly supposed to be quite ignorant, or at least unlearned, especially in the early part of his ministry. Yet in a very few years, and while he was still quite young, under his leadership a church organization was perfected which included perfectly appointed executive, legislative judicial, and financial departments.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE CHURCH.

During the recent general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church the following item went the rounds of the press: "Minneapolis, May 7.—Judge Thomas Anderson of the District of Columbia Supreme Court addressed the Methodist Conference to-day on the establishment of a church court of final appeal."

The judge pointed out the absurdity of the general conference assuming both legislative and judicial functions, as has hitherto been done, which is the more pronounced owing to the fact that it convenes only once in every four years, thus adding long delay to other unsatisfactory features. The judge was only one of many who spoke on the subject.

The discussion grew out of the report of a judicial commission containing certain recommendations, a part of which we quote:

There shall be a final court of appeals. This court shall have power to hear and determine all appeals coming to it in due course in the administration of the church, as hereinafter provided, and any other question of law which may be referred to it by the General Conference.

This court shall consist of fifteen members, namely: Three bishops, six ministers, and six laymen, who shall be chosen by the General Conference as hereinafter provided.—Western Christian Daily Advocate, May 8, 1912.

It is perhaps worthy of note that the proposed court was to consist of fifteen members. The court of last resort in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints consists of fifteen members, twelve high priests presided over by the president of the high priesthood and his two counselors.

The recommendation of the judicial committee was not adopted; but some of the delegates explained that the general conference of the Methodist Church is extremely conservative (it took thirty-six years for them to decide to admit lay members as delegates and sixteen years to admit women) but in time would surely adopt something of the kind, as a great ecclesiastical body without a supreme ecclesiastical court is clearly very imperfectly organized.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH SMITH, PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COUNCIL BY VIRTUE OF HIS OFFICE.

(From an old ambrotype, never before published.)

This need was long ago met in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. As early as February 17, 1834, a supreme court known as the high council was organized by divine direction. This court consists of twelve high priests, presided over by the president of the church and his two counselors, or when necessary by any one of the three. In another part of this issue will be found an article on this court by Elder Robert M. Elvin, who has been secretary of the high council since 1890.

The object of this court is to discover truth and to administer justice, and technicalities are not permitted to interfere. In all cases lots are drawn by the twelve councilors, and those drawing even numbers, such as 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12 are to conserve the interests of the accused, that his rights may not be trampled upon. But these men, whether they fall by lot on the side of the accused or against him, speak according to "equity and justice," presenting the case in its "true light," as the evidence has revealed it, and not with any desire to condemn or acquit regardless of right and equity. Their speeches are an aid to the president, who formulates the decision; his decision being sustained by vote of the council, or corrected if the council shall discover in it any error. A careful reading of section 99 of the Doctrine and Covenants will benefit those who care to know more about this, the most important church court, after their perusal of the article by Brother Elvin.

STAKE HIGH COUNCILS.

Stake high councils are organized similarly to the high council of the church; being presided over by the president of the stake. At present there are two such councils in the church. The Lamoni Stake High Council is presided over by President John Smith, assisted by his counselors, Elders R. S. Salyards and John F. Garver. The Independence High Council is presided over by President G. E. Harrington, assisted by Elder Myron H. Bond and W. H. Garrett. These courts occupy in the economy of the stake a position somewhat similar to the position filled in the church by the church high council, being the "highest judicial body in the stake."

BISHOP'S COURTS.

Bishop's courts occupy an important place in the general church, as well as in stakes and districts where there are regularly established and located bishoprics. They consist of a bishop and his two counselors, excepting when the bishop is a literal descendant of Aaron, as pointed out in the article by Bishop Roberts, found in this number. These courts are destined to fill a still more important place, as the number of the bishops throughout the church increases so that such courts are more accessible. A regularly established bishop's court is in much better position to hear a case with resultant justice than is an elders' court, perhaps hastily called together, and composed of men who have not previously labored together and possibly have had no previous experience in court procedure.

ELDERS' COURTS.

An elders' court may consist of two or more elders properly appointed and organized. Information regarding the functions of such a court, the authority by which it is appointed, its procedure, as well as preliminary labor required, may be found in Rules of Order and Debate, pages 90 to 100. Also, those who need practical aid in such matters are referred to the little pamphlet indorsed by the General Conference of 1908, entitled Court Procedure and Blank Forms, to be obtained from the Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa. In addition to rules of procedure, this pamphlet contains blank forms for complaints, charges, summons, findings, appeals, etc.

CONCLUSION.

The integrity of the church courts should be conserved by every member of the church. Their decision should be respected and upheld until reversed by a higher court. Safety and justice will be found in such a course. Danger and anarchy result from a reverse course. Those who set aside the rulings of the courts of the church seek to become a law unto themselves, and such can not be preserved by law, not being in harmony with the law.

The courts themselves should occupy a high moral plane, and should always render according to the law. Back of them should be a strong public sentiment in the church that will help to enforce the findings of the courts when they may be opposed by persons of influence.

In his book entitled The Church and Labor, Charles Stelzle, head of the Department of Labor of the Presbyterian Church, thus severely arraigns the sectarian churches: "Discipline has entirely departed from the church, and men who are known to be grafters and law-breakers of the worst kind are retained upon the church rolls. It is an unheard of thing in recent years for a church court to dismiss a member because of unjust or even criminal practice, to say nothing about the most outrageous treatment of employees."

Our church courts should be and are a powerful weapon with which to purge the church of iniquity, as well as to settle matters of disagreement among members when such matters have passed beyond settlement by local visiting officers. It should be, and indeed is rarely the case that church members drag their difficulties into the civil courts. To do so is unnecessary and carries with it to one or both of the persons involved a measure of disgrace.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

RULES AS TO THE PRODUCTION OF EVIDENCE.

The Associate Editor assigned me the subject of evidence. But as the subject is broad and complex it is not possible within the limits of an article of ordinary length to deal with it as a whole without sacrificing too much to brevity. I therefore concluded that some particular and important branch or division of the subject could be presented more easily and be followed by HERALD readers with greater profit.

I. A. SMITH.

The question most baffling to those who find it necessary to assist in the conduct of trials at law, and those laymen who discover an interest in observing the same, is that of relevancy. Incalculable time and energy are expended in arguing to the court as to the admissibility of testimony; cases are reversed, new trials are granted, and serious and costly delays result in the final adjudication of lawsuits because of the errors of judges in admitting or rejecting testimony. It is generally acknowledged that this question of relevancy, or the production of evidence, is foremost, and I shall present a short outline of this division of the laws of evidence.

I shall not attempt to make any application of these rules to the conduct of ecclesiastical trials. To those who sit as a court in church trials is given much more leeway in the matter of passing on the relevancy of evidence. Very much, indeed, is left to the "sound discretion of the court." However, I believe a knowledge of these great rules, almost universally recognized by the courts, will be of considerable value to every person who is called to take part in the work of our courts.

The rules of evidence, like all the rules governing in the common law, have been adopted because it has been found that they conserve justice in the great majority of cases, though in isolated cases they may retard rather than promote equity. But in church courts it is not to be presumed that any rule would be enforced which would not aid in arriving at a righteous and just decision.

The four rules governing the production of evidence are as follows:

1. "The evidence must correspond with the allegations, and be confined to the point in issue."
2. "It is sufficient if the substance only of the issue be proved."
3. "The burden of proving a proposition, or issue, lies upon the party holding the affirmative."
4. "The best evidence of which the case in its nature, is susceptible, must always be produced."

These rules will be taken up in the order given.

"EVIDENCE MUST CORRESPOND WITH THE ALLEGATIONS, AND BE CONFINED TO THE POINT IN ISSUE."¹

We will at once assume that the allegations are material; that is, we need not notice those words or statements which are called "surplusage." In our courts the issues are arrived at by regular pleadings by way of complaint, answer, and reply, until the parties to the case have produced or shown their differences which are called "issues." Having reached this point, they are ready for trial, one party making certain, definite, and material claims or demands, the other denying or resisting the same.

Pleadings therefore are an admirable means of getting the contention to that point where differences are clearly established. If this could not be done, there might not be a clashing or a meeting of argument or proofs, one party following one line of evidence and the adverse party following another.

The truth of a certain allegation is maintained by the plaintiff and denied by the defendant. This is an issue, and the nature of the allegation has much bearing in deciding whether certain proposed testimony should be admitted. It may be conclusive proof, and again it may only support a "link in the chain," as corroborative evidence. It may be connected with the fact in issue so remotely that it can not be material. Stephens' second rule or article in his Digest of the Laws of Evidence is as follows:

¹ Best's Principles of Evidence, 229-249; Starkie on the Law of Evidence, III, 386; Greenleaf on Evidence, I, 50.

Evidence may be given in any proceeding of any fact in issue, and of any fact relevant to any fact in issue unless it is hereinafter declared to be deemed to be irrelevant, and of any fact hereinafter declared to be deemed to be relevant to the issue whether it is or is not relevant thereto. Provided that the judge may exclude evidence of facts which, though relevant or deemed to be relevant to the issue, appear to him to be too remote to be material under all the circumstances of the case.

Here Stephens gives the general rule, leaving room for the exceptions. Such an exception, for instance, would come under the res gestæ rule. In an action for assault with intent to commit murder, a statement made by the parties at the time of or closely connected with the episode, would be deemed to be relevant, although it might not in any way aid in determining the truth or falsity of the fact in issue—the guilt or innocence of the accused.

This rule excludes evidence of collateral facts, or all matter which aids in no way to determine as to the issue. Greenleaf says:

Such evidence tends to draw away the minds of the jurors from the point in issue, and to excite prejudice and mislead them; and moreover the adverse party having had no notice of such a course of evidence, is not prepared to rebut it.—Vol. I, 52.

It is obvious that what is agreed upon need occupy no time of the court. As to that there is no issue and there is no question before the court in regard to it. This rule goes so far as to preclude the jury from finding contrary to agreed matters though they are contrary to the truth. (Starkie, III, 388.)

Where knowledge can not be acquired by means of actual and personal observation, there are but two modes by which the existence of a bygone fact can be ascertained: 1st, by information derived either immediately or mediately from those who had actual knowledge of the fact; or, 2dly, by means of inferences or conclusions drawn from other facts connected with the principal fact which can be sufficiently established. In the first case, the inference is founded on a principle of faith in human veracity sanctioned by experience. In the second, the conclusion is one derived by the aids of experience and reason from the connection between the facts which are known and that which is unknown. In each case the inference is made by virtue of previous experience of the connection between the known and the disputed facts, although the grounds of such inference in the two cases materially differ.—Starkie, I, 13.

Nothing which is not supposed to be relevant, i. e., logically probative, shall be received. . . . There is another precept which it is convenient to lay down as a preliminary one in stating the law of evidence, viz, that, unless excluded by some rule or principle of law, all that is logically probative is admissible. This general admissibility of what is logically probative is not, like the former precept, a necessary presupposition in a rational system of evidence . . . but yet . . . it is important to notice this also as being a fundamental proposition.—James Bradley Thayer, Preliminary Treatise on Evidence, pp. 198, 268.

Whenever a question is made upon the admission of evidence, it is indispensable to consider the object for which it is produced, and the point intended to be established by it. . . . It frequently happens that an item of proof is plainly relevant and proper for one purpose, while wholly inadmissible for another which it would naturally tend to establish. And when this occurs, the evidence when offered for the legal purpose can no more be excluded on the ground of its aptitude to show the unauthorized fact than its admission to prove such unauthorized fact can be justified on the ground of its aptness to prove another fact legally provable under the issue.—People vs. Doyle, 21 Michigan 221.

Among the exceptions to the rule is the res gestæ rule already mentioned. Stephens has given this rule as follows:

A transaction is a group of facts so connected together as to be referred to by a single legal name, as a crime, a contract, a wrong or any other subject of inquiry which may be in issue. Every fact which is a part of the same transaction as the facts in issue is deemed to be relevant to the facts in issue, although it may not be actually in issue, and although if it were not part of the same transaction it might be excluded as hearsay. Whether any particular fact is or is not a part of the same transaction as the facts in issue is a question of law upon which no principle has been stated by authority and on which single judges have given different decisions. . . . —Article 3.

Acts prior to or after the transaction can be shown for the purpose of supplying guilty knowledge or intent, when these are ingredients in the crime charged. (Greenleaf, I, 53.)

It is true that in trying a person charged with one offense it is ordinarily inadmissible to offer proof of another and distinct offense; but this is only because the proof of a distinct offense has ordinarily no tendency to establish the offense charged. But whenever the case is such that proof of one crime tends to prove any fact material in the trial of another, such proof is admissible; and the fact that it may tend to prejudice the defendant in the minds of the jurors is no ground for its exclusion. . . . When such evidence is offered, the same considerations arise as upon the offer of other testimony: Is the evidence relevant and competent? Does it tend to prove any fact material to the issues?—Beatty, C. J., in People vs. Walters, 98 California, 138, and People vs. Tucker, 104 California, 440.

Where general character by plea or by nature of the case becomes a material question, it is sometimes competent to show evidence of other acts committed before the transaction in issue, but not afterward. (Greenleaf, I, 54.)

“IT IS SUFFICIENT IF THE SUBSTANCE ONLY OF THE ISSUE BE PROVED.”²

Greenleaf says:

In the application of this rule, a distinction is made between allegations of matter of substance, and allegations of matter of essential description. The former may be substantially proved; but the latter must be proved with a degree of strictness, extending in some cases even to literal precision. No allegation, descriptive of the identity of that which is legally essential to the claim or charge, can ever be rejected.—Vol. I, 56.

Where essentials and nonessentials are not divisible, they are equally material. Where nonessentials can be separated it is not necessary to prove them with precision.

² Greenleaf I, 56; Starkie III, 387.

Descriptive allegations must be strictly proved, but formal averments where they do not contain any part of the gist of the action, and are not descriptive, need not be precisely proved. The manner in which they are stated determines.

Generally allegations of "time, place, quantity, quality, and value when not descriptive of the identity of the subject of the action, will be found to be immaterial, and need not be proved strictly as alleged." (Greenleaf I, 61.)

If the substance of the issue is not proved, it is called a "variance." Any disagreement between the allegations and the proof in something which is essential to the cause of action, is a fatal variance. It is now quite well settled what elements are necessary to establish the different actions at law and equity, and so it is not difficult to determine when an allegation constitutes an ingredient of the claim or charge. The rule is that every part must be proved which can not be stricken out without losing an ingredient of the cause of action.

Starkie says:

It is sufficient if part of what is alleged be proved, provided it be sufficient to support the issue, although other matter be alleged which is not proved. Thus, in an action of waste for cutting twenty ash trees, proof that the defendant cut ten is sufficient; the issue being in effect whether any waste was committed.—Part III, 386, 387.

If the averment is divisible, and enough is proved to constitute the offense charged, it is no variance, though the remaining allegations are not proved. Thus, an indictment for embezzling two bank notes of equal value is supported by proof of the embezzlement of one only. . . . In an indictment for stealing a black horse, the animal is necessarily mentioned, but the color need not be stated; yet if it is stated, it is made descriptive of the particular animal stolen, and a variance in the proof of the color is fatal.—Greenleaf, I, 65.

While more than is alleged can be proved, provided it does not amount to a contradiction, less is fatal. Under our present code system pleadings may be amended to avoid the results of a variance.

"THE OBLIGATION OF PROVING ANY FACT LIES UPON THE PARTY WHO SUBSTANTIALLY ASSERTS THE AFFIRMATIVE OF THE ISSUE."³

This is the question of burden of proof. Some writers speak of the "shifting" of the burden of proof. This seems to be an inaccuracy. In a sense the burden of proof never shifts, but the burden of proceeding does. The plaintiff makes a charge which is denied by the defendant. It is always necessary for the plaintiff to make his case. He must finally prove by a preponderance of evidence that his contention is just. But after making a prima facie case against the defendant the latter can proceed to prove the allegations false. Then the plaintiff proceeds, so that in the course of a trial the burden of proceeding may shift many times. But the burden of proof remains with the plaintiff.

However, it sometimes happens that the defendant answers, as it is called, by way of confession and avoidance. This amounts to admitting the claim of the plaintiff, but setting up a state of facts which if true avoids the consequence of the facts admitted, such as a counter claim, or infancy, or insanity. In these cases the burden of proof is upon the defendant. He must proceed. This rule is one of convenience.

Sometimes the allegation is in form a negative one, as that the defendant is delict. The burden of proof is still with him who makes such allegation. "The true test," says the court in Leete vs. Gresham Life Insurance Company, 7 English Law and Equity, 578,— to determine which party has a right to begin, and of course to determine where is the burden of proof, is to consider which party would be entitled to the verdict, if no evidence were offered on either side; for the burden of proof lies on the party against whom, in such case, the verdict ought to be given.

Stephens' article is as follows:

Whoever desires any court to give a judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence or non-existence of facts which he asserts, or denies to exist, must prove that those facts do or do not exist.—Article 98.

"THE BEST EVIDENCE OF WHICH THE CASE IN ITS NATURE IS SUSCEPTIBLE, MUST ALWAYS BE PRODUCED."⁴

The purpose of this rule in short is to prevent or exclude any evidence which from its nature supposes that better evidence of the same thing exists. Thus a copy of a letter or instrument can not be introduced unless it is shown that the original is destroyed or for some other reason can not be obtained. This rule is necessary to the administration of justice, and where a party attempts to use secondary evidence the presumption is that he is seeking an advantage which can not be gained by producing the original.

The ground of this rule is a suspicion of fraud. If it appear from the very nature of the transaction that there is better evidence of the fact, which is withheld, a presumption arises that the party has some secret and sinister motive for not producing the best and most satisfactory evidence, and is conscious that if the best were to be afforded, his object would be frustrated. Subject, then, to the observations which will be made upon the operation of this rule, it follows, that of the several gradations in the scale of evidence, no evidence of an inferior class can be substituted for that of a superior degree. It is an universal rule, that the contents of a writing can not be proved by a copy, still less by mere oral evidence, if the writing itself be in existence and attainable. If a deed be lost, a copy is not evidence, if a counterpart exist. And no declaration or entry by any person can be given in evidence, where the party who made such declaration or entry can be produced and examined as a witness.—Starkie, part 3, 390.

³ Greenleaf, I, 74; Starkie, III, 376.

⁴ Greenleaf, I, 82; Starkie, III, 389, 390.

To this rule there are certain exceptions, all founded on general convenience, and refer to the quality and not to the strength of the evidence. There are well-known cases where the law requires evidence to be in writing, and in these of course no secondary evidence is admissible while the original exists and is in the power of the party. Where an instrument or document is in the hands of the adverse party and he will not produce it, oral or secondary evidence may be used to establish it. The law generally provides how proof of public records may be given, where books and records, because of their cumbersome nature, as also because of laws to the contrary, may not be removed from their proper archives.

Oral evidence is not competent to establish a written contract, unless the same is destroyed or unobtainable. Its absence must first be accounted for. Lord Tenterden said, in Vincent vs. Cole, 1 M. & M, 258:

I have always acted most strictly on the rule, that what is in writing shall only be proved by the writing itself. My experience has taught me the extreme danger of relying on the recollection of witnesses, however honest, as to the contents of written instruments; they may be so easily mistaken, that I think the purposes of justice require a strict enforcement of the rule.

Collateral writing, however, may be proved by oral or secondary evidence, as also inscriptions on walls, monuments, surveyors' marks, gravestones, etc.

I. A. SMITH.

Original Articles

THE ATTITUDE OF THE CIVIL COURTS TO ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS IN AMERICA.

BY ELDER S. A. BURGESS.

In Europe the question is affected in every respect by the existence of a state church. In America the consideration of the question divides itself; first, into those cases where property is affected by a trust. Second, independent churches or congregations. Third, congregations which are subsidiary to general church authorities.

Where property is affected by a trust, the court will look to the instrument of conveyance, and will try as nearly as possible to carry into effect the wishes of the donor or grantor. For this purpose, they will examine, if necessary, not only the instrument of conveyance, but also the faith, doctrine, and procedure of the association at the time that the gift was made, and will enforce the right of use in that faction, be it large or small, which upholds the purposes of the trust. The court will not attempt to pass upon the truth or the falsity, the right or the wrong, of points of doctrine, but only enforce, as nearly as possible, the terms of the gift.

In independent congregations the majority rules. It determines and enforces discipline, doctrine, and church government, and controls the use of the church property. But a congregation, forming part of a general organization, is controlled by the legislation and judicial acts of the general tribunals and officers. So that portion of a local congregation which adheres to the law as declared by the highest legislative and judicial body of the church, is entitled to the use of the church property. Nor does the relative size of the faction affect this rule.

There has been considerable confusion in this country, because of the large number of courts of last resort, and the different way in which the questions are presented by them; also because of a confusion of terms. But the vast weight of authority holds, that ecclesiastical courts have the sole right of decision in ecclesiastical matters, whether they be questions of faith, doctrine, conduct, discipline, or procedure. The civil courts will not attempt, as a general rule, to decide ecclesiastical questions. Hence, if the question is of that character, i. e., concerns only ecclesiastical or spiritual matters, no question of the conclusiveness of a decision of a church judicatory arises, since the matter is left entirely to the church authorities to decide. But if there is some civil or property right involved, the civil court will then take cognizance of the case. This may be a question of church title to property, the right to an office, if the emoluments are assured, or other civil rights. But if a civil or property right is founded upon the ecclesiastical law, they will accept the decision of the highest church court, before which the case has been heard, as final on matters purely spiritual and ecclesiastic, and enforce the civil rights accordingly.

In many instances, if not as a general rule, the requirement is made, even where civil or property rights are involved, that appeal must first be taken to the highest ecclesiastical tribunal of the organization to determine the ecclesiastical law and rights, before hearing will be had by the civil courts.

A church tribunal has no jurisdiction whatsoever of questions involving the Constitution of the United States or any of the States, the common or statutory law, torts, contracts, title to real estate, or crime. If such jurisdiction were attempted, its decision would carry no weight in the civil courts. But the same act, which constitutes a breach of contract, a tort, a misdemeanor, or even a felony, may also be, and often is, a violation of spiritual law and church discipline. For such violation or breach the church tribunal may try and punish; though such tribunal should confine its action to the offense against God and religion.

Also parties may voluntarily submit a question of contract or tort, to such arbitration as they may desire, and may even proceed so as to bind themselves and each other, though such jurisdiction is not ecclesiastic.

The decision of a religious judicatory, interpreting its constitution and methods of procedure, is ELDER S. A. BURGESS.

Attorney at law, Saint Louis, Missouri.

accepted as conclusive. The courts will not interfere to restore one to membership who has been expelled from the church for an alleged offense, unless there are property rights involved. The interest in the church building he may have as a member is not such a property right. Where the religious tribunal has jurisdiction, a civil court will not inquire, whether they have proceeded in accordance with the laws and usages of the church, or whether they have decided correctly, as their decision is final. The loss of clerical position is not usually a sufficient right of property to justify the intervention of the secular courts. Yet it has been held, where there is a definite secured income attached to such clerical position, in some States at least, the civil courts will take jurisdiction.

The right of the civil courts to require the production of the records of a religious judicatory for review is not uniform in the United States, but the weight of authority is very strongly against such right of review or control. An ecclesiastical court is the exclusive judge of the sufficiency of the complaint or presentment. It is not bound by the rules of law as to challenge of jurors or in matters of procedure, and where no right of property is involved, the ecclesiastical court is exclusive judge of its own jurisdiction. But it has been held, where property rights were involved, before the decision of a church court is accepted as final, it must be shown that notice was given and opportunity for defense.

So far as the idea of the independence of the church tribunal carried, that a civil court will not intervene upon the suspension of a bishop by the church judicatory, even though the bishop has been previously tried and acquitted on substantially the same charge. Nor will they interfere, if the church court refuses to consider objections to a member of the court. It has even been stated as being ridiculous for anyone to expect from the civil courts a different decision. We do not state this with any idea of encouraging such modes of procedure, but only cite it to emphasize to what extent ecclesiastical courts are left free to decide their own procedure.

The above applies principally to church organizations which consist of congregations organized into and under the supervision of a general organization, and having a definite church judicatory. If there is no certain religious tribunal, the courts will investigate more closely the action of a committee appointed to act as a court. Yet the decision of even such a committee, when appointed with care, has been considered and followed by the civil courts in making their decision.

However, in such independent congregations, i. e., where the congregation is not part of a general organization, the validity of a decision depends either upon the principle of arbitration, both factions agreeing to the submission and hearing; or more usually, the opinion of the committee is submitted to the congregation, and by it sustained, so that the opinion is upheld as being the action of the majority of the congregation. But in the case of a church having a general organization and regular judicatory, provided for by the general church law, the validity of the decision rests with the church courts as part of the general organization. This is true, whether the court is a standing one, or the members are specially appointed for the hearing of the case. The prerogatives and powers of such courts is determined by the law of the general organization. A person by becoming a member of the church, does so upon the implied condition of submission to its jurisdiction, and however much he may be dissatisfied with its exercise, he has no right to complain, or seek the supervision of the civil courts, so long as his civil rights are not involved.

Where there is a general church organization, points of faith and doctrine, legislative and judicial questions, will be taken as decided by the highest body within the organization that has spoken on the question involved. That person, congregation, or synod, which conforms to the decision of the general organization, will be permitted the use of the church property, regardless of whether a majority or minority of any particular congregation. Independent congregations usually decide by a majority vote. In the absence of the church property being held by the terms of a trust, the use of the church property will follow a majority faction. A minority has not power to expel the majority. It has been held in New York, that the majority in a religious corporation, has the right to decide questions of doctrine and discipline. The suggestion is there made obiter, that if a church desires to retain its ancient forms and beliefs, so as not to be in danger of change by a majority vote in the future, it is safer to remain as an unincorporated association.

Church organizations are left free as to matters of faith, belief, and conduct, unless they violate the law in their manner of church celebration. The constitution of New York and nine other States contains the following clause: "But the liberty of conscience hereby secured shall not be so construed as to excuse acts of licentiousness or justify practices inconsistent with the peace or dignity of this State." A similar clause is to be found in other state constitutions; also in the constitution of Argentine Republic, Colombia, Belgium, Switzerland, and Japan. But the absence of such a clause does not excuse nor protect a crime in the name of religion. Such matters are not left as ecclesiastic law to church tribunal to decide.

LIBEL AND SLANDER.

Matters spoken before civil courts possess absolute privilege. Words spoken before ecclesiastical tribunals are possessed of a qualified privilege. That is, it is privileged unless shown to have been made in bad faith and maliciously. It is, prima facie privileged, and the burden rests upon the complainant to show malice and bad faith.

"A communication otherwise actionable may be privileged, when made in the course of an investigation of conduct or character of one of the officers or members in a quasi-judicial body, such as a voluntary society, since such a member by accepting membership voluntarily submits himself to the government of such organization, so long as it acts within its authority."

"Members have authority to deal with other members for immoral and scandalous conduct, and for that purpose hear complaints, take evidence and decide, and upon conviction, punish by rebuke, censure, suspension or excommunication. To this jurisdiction, every member by entering the church submits, and is bound by his consent. The proceedings are quasi-judicial and those who complain or give testimony, act and vote, pronounce results, orally or in writing, acting in good faith, and within scope of authority conferred by limited jurisdiction, and not falsely or colorably, making such proceedings a pretense for covering intended scandal, are protected by law." A nonmember has been held to be protected by this privilege where there was a voluntary submission by the plaintiff to the investigation by the church.

"Irregularity of proceeding, ex parte, and without notice, does not rob of privileged character, and the necessity of proving express malice is not thereby obviated."

"So where one church member is a witness on trial of another before a proper tribunal, bona fide disclosure of all relevant facts is incumbent upon him as a private moral duty; and if these facts necessarily involve misconduct or even crime on the part of the person not a member of the church, it has been held that naming such a person as part of relevant testimony of the witness is within the protection of the privileged occasion."

This has been quoted with approval and applied by several of the state courts. On the other hand, it has been held in one case, that where A was on trial before a Masonic Lodge, B testifying, C then appeared and made oath that B could not be believed on oath. Neither B nor C were Masons. It was held that C owed no such moral duty, as to protect him, and make his statement privileged.

But a communication outside of the church court concerning a church member is not privileged, merely because made by one member to another. Nor are communications by any church official to members of the choir, or other members of the church, privileged, since the choir has no duty to perform of a judicial character, such as to make the communication to them either necessary or proper. Charges made according to the usage and discipline of the church are however privileged. So communications made by a member to the bishop, or church officer, or judicatory having power to hear, examine, and redress grievances, in respect to character or conduct of a minister of the gospel, is prima facie privileged.

The results of the investigation may be published in the denominational newspaper, when this is done in good faith. The mere fact that it may be, or is, brought to the attention of nonmembers of the church, does not take away its privileged character. But the publication must be fair and accurate, bona fide, and without malice; upon suit malice must be proved, as it will not be inferred. The privilege is defeated by nothing short of bad faith and malevolence, as that the defendant stated, what he knew to be false, or what he did not know to be true—reckless of whether true or false.

The above naturally includes, and it has also been expressly decided, that a church court has the power to pronounce the results of its deliberations, and to report same in writing to the church, and that they will be protected by law in so doing, if they acted within the scope of their authority. Whether the church was right or wrong, the civil courts will not inquire.

CONCLUSION.

It may thus be seen that the courts of our land are very liberal in their attitude towards ecclesiastical tribunals, and that church courts are conceded liberal privileges and prerogatives. They are not, however, courts of the land, but in matters within their jurisdiction are usually permitted to exercise the powers formerly belonging to established ecclesiastical courts. Such wide power being granted, it should be exercised with wisdom and discretion, and care taken not to needlessly involve those who are not parties to the action. Rather should clemency and wisdom be manifested, under the law of God.

• * * * *

FORM AND JURISDICTION OF BISHOP'S COURT.

BY BISHOP JOSEPH ROBERTS.

In order that the division of the subject of church courts assigned to me for discussion may better be viewed, as the writer sees the subject, (showing the relation of the one part to every other part, as also the part to the whole) the accompanying chart is made supplementary. Keeping in mind, however, that it is my privilege to discuss but two features, namely, form and jurisdiction of bishop's courts, shall as far as practicable try to confine this paper within its proper limits. It is not intended that the representations set forth on the chart should open up for discussion the whole subject matter, but simply show the correlation of bishop's courts in form and jurisdiction to other courts of the church.

Before entering upon the more detailed discussion of the subject under consideration I wish to make statement of certain underlying principles which should be understood by all members of the church. These I choose to term

TRUTHS FUNDAMENTAL.

1. Church courts are a last resort, and should not be appealed to until all reasonable and legitimate effort has been made to effect a scriptural reconciliation, or reach a proper understanding and adjustment of difficulties between all concerned.

2. Every member of the church becomes a member through obedience to law. Such membership is held inviolate unless upon testimony before the proper tribunal the member is proven a transgressor of law.

3. Furthermore, each member may lay claim to the protection offered through the judiciary department in its decisions, and that the church may be protected against lawlessness on the part of the membership, church courts are a necessity.

BISHOP JOSEPH ROBERTS.

Of the Lamoni Stake Bishopric.

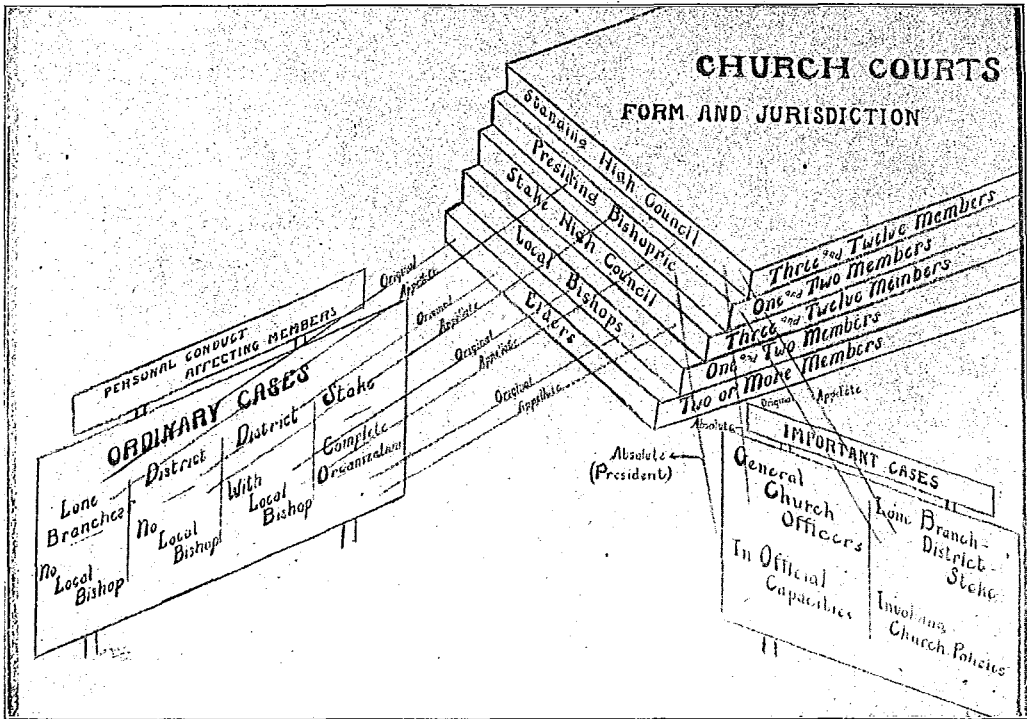

FORM OF BISHOP'S COURT.

The form of a bishop's court may be one of two. If a bishop be a literal descendant of Aaron he holds the authority to sit in judgment independently, without counselors. (Doctrine and Covenants 104:8, 34.)

2d. If not a literal descendant of Aaron a bishop must be a high priest holding the Melchisedec priesthood, unauthorized to sit in judgment without counselors chosen from the elders or high priests. (Doctrine and Covenants 104:32; 42:8, 19.)

JURISDICTION OF BISHOP'S COURT.

The work of a bishop is two-fold; that of the administration of temporal things, and to be a judge in Israel. (Doctrine and Covenants 104:32.) The one is as necessary to the good of the church as the other. A bishopric that has not the ability to discriminate between right and wrong, good and evil, justice and injustice, the worthy and the unworthy, has not the ability to minister in temporal affairs for this church. In fact, the two are so closely allied that in Doctrine and Covenants 72:4 the terms judge and bishop are used synonymously. The fact that there is jurisdiction is established when the authority to act in the office of bishop is restored. It now becomes my business to present the statute limitations to this jurisdiction.

(In this small chart the details are omitted; the general plan only is suggested. The rule only is indicated; the exception is omitted. The student will need to keep these points well in mind when studying the chart.)

TERRITORIAL EXTENT OF JURISDICTION OF BISHOP'S COURT.

Doctrine and Covenants 104:33 places the limits as follows: Zion, stakes of Zion, or branches where he shall be set apart unto this ministry.

BISHOP'S COURT A PERMANENT STANDING COURT UNDER THEIR RESPECTIVE TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION.

Throughout the membership of the church the more nearly complete are the local organizations the more permanent are the courts, and the better should be the conditions for making the gospel law operative and caring for the details of local church work. Thus, the branches or districts having no standing local courts, necessitate the appointing, when occasion requires, a court from among the eldership, while the more perfected organizations such as are represented in stake organizations, have two standing courts, namely, a bishop's court, a court of original jurisdiction; and an appellate court, the stake high council.

BISHOP A COMMON JUDGE.

A bishop being a common judge admits of any and all ordinary cases coming before his court. The term common we use in contradistinction to the term special. Thus, if a bishop's court is held to be an appellate court, his jurisdiction is made to apply only to special cases; namely, such cases as have failed to receive satisfactory settlement in the lower court, thus precluding many (for many cases will be satisfactorily adjusted before the original court) from coming before the tribunal which is, according to the law, made the court of common pleas. So we hold that this analysis of the term "a common judge" is tantamount to

A COURT OF ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

In all cases of a local character, a local bishop's court has original jurisdiction in the branch, district, or stake where a bishop is appointed to labor. It should be the earnest effort of this bishop to seek to prepare and qualify himself that he may be clothed upon with the mantle of his calling, even that of being a common judge in Israel, to sit in judgment upon testimony, and that there may be at all times in readiness in his territorial jurisdiction a standing court, prepared in experience and qualified in all things which go to make up competency, that, through this proficiency, the judicial arm of the church may be made strong and secure.

In illustration of the position of original jurisdiction we give for examples:

1. Two brethren are in disagreement over the distribution of a crop. The landowner claims what he thinks is according to the contract. The renter claims what he believes is right according to the agreement; and in the spirit of brotherly consideration they attempt to arrive at an amicable settlement between themselves. But, failing, they do as brethren should do; keep out of lawsuit in the courts of the land and appeal to the courts of the church. These parties go before the common judge, and a bishop's court sits as a court of arbitration. It has been my experience that when Saints seek to adjust their differences through the helps placed in the church, difficulties are settled more satisfactorily to all concerned.

Example 2. A brother desires to "lay all things" before the bishop. He does so, making statement clear and correct, setting forth all his possessions. The bishopric are then a court to sit in judgment upon the matter, to determine in a mutual way the "needs" and "surplus," if any, of the individual. This is a standing court of the church with original jurisdiction to determine these matters, and if they can not be mutually agreed to between the bishopric and member, the standing court of appeals, a high council, is to make the final decision.

Example 3. In organized territory, where a local bishop is appointed, and where a member is charged with immoral conduct, those charges should be placed with the standing church court having original jurisdiction. In cases where immoral conduct is involved, such as adultery, section 42: 22 provides that the case should be tried before two elders or more. If this instruction proceeded no further we would be led to infer that a temporary court of the church appointed from among the eldership takes the place of a bishop's court with original jurisdiction, but the qualification "it is necessary that the bishop be present also" makes it the duty of the bishop to be present to sit as a judge in the court to decide upon questions of jurisdiction, admissibility, or inadmissibility of evidence, questions of law and order, etc.; in fact, he is the president of such court, which is a court of original jurisdiction, and should the case be appealed, it should not be appealed to a bishop's court, a high council being the appellate court in this case. Should it be impossible or impracticable for the bishop to be present, then there would be jurisdiction for a bishop's court as

AN APPELLATE COURT.

An appeal should not be taken from one bishop's court to another, but there can be an appeal taken from an elders' court to a bishop's court, where there was no bishop present to sit in judgment at the elders' court. Especially is there a need for the bishop's appellate court in localities where there is no local bishop and in unorganized territory of the church where it is more convenient to provide the elders' court and impracticable for the bishop to be present.

BISHOP'S COURTS IN BRIEF REVIEW.

1. As to form:

- (1) A literal descendant of Aaron has authority to act alone.—One member.
- (2) One not a literal descendant of Aaron must be a high priest with two counselors chosen from the high priests or elders.—Three members.

2. As to Jurisdiction:

(1) Territorially.

- (a) Zion.
- (b) Stake of Zion.
- (c) District.
- (d) Branch.
- (e) Or wherever he may be set apart to this ministry.

(2) As to Initiative Proceedings:

- (a) Original—which is regular.
- (b) Appellate—out of necessity.

(3) As to Importance of Cases:

- (a) Local bishop's court.
- (b) Presiding bishop's court.

We have sought to write upon this subject freed from any petty prejudice or personal intrigue, stating frankly and consistently, we believe, our views as obtained through prayer, study, and personal contact with actual existing conditions incident to the life of one engaged in bishopric service, stating these views in an affirmative way, casting no shadows upon the practice of the past, and not unduly antagonizing any theories which may be held by others.

* * * * *

ORGANIZATION, JURISDICTION, AND FUNCTIONS OF A STAKE HIGH COUNCIL.

BY ELDER GEORGE E. HARRINGTON.

An organized stake high council is composed of twelve high priests, duly ordained to act as members of the council, presided over by the stake presidency. (Rules of Order, section 169.) The Independence Stake High Council was organized by the joint council of the Presidency of the Church and Quorum of Twelve, and ratified by the stake conference convened for that purpose, in the following manner, which may be taken as a sample showing how a high council may be organized.

Having nominated the president of the stake and his nomination being approved by the body, President Joseph Smith presented the names of seven for high priests to form a majority of the council, who were instructed to choose five others to make the council of twelve complete; this done, the stake president chose two counselors. All were ordained and set apart for the purpose named, thus constituting the council.

For ordinary business a full quorum is not required; seven of the council and its president constitute a sufficient number to transact business; but in case of the trial of any person before the council on appeal, a full council is necessary, and to be in a position to act, the following procedure is required.

The importance of and difficulties involved in a case have to be decided on by the council after hear-

JURISDICTION.

Jurisdiction tells us the limit of the field of its operations, territorially and otherwise, wherein it may act authoritatively. The stake high council performs its work within the confines of the stake. It may advise in both spiritual and temporal matters, or act as a court of appeals from a stake bishop's court. (See Rules of Order, section 171.) It may act as a court of reference, can be made a part of a council in church building propositions in locations where they exist. (See sections 122-126.)

It has been inferred from the law that where a failure occurs to secure a satisfactory adjustment between a member and the bishop of the stake, in temporal matters, that reference or appeal may be taken to the stake high council. It is further understood that a stake high council has jurisdiction in a stake similar to that of the high council of the church over the entire church. It may act in restraint of actions of high officials in the church (Doctrine and Covenants 104:14).

FUNCTIONS.

Its work is a work of protection and preservation of the highest spiritual state, enabling all to secure justice, being wide-awake to the interest of the stake, familiar with church law, understanding the relationship existing between civil and ecclesiastical laws and courts, capable of examining into and discriminating rightly on moral issues. It may be looked to for opinions of value, contributing valuable aid along general and special lines of church work.

Its position of responsibility places it on an equality with the Presidency of the Church, or Quorum of Twelve in their decisions. (Doctrine and Covenants 104:14.)

By a proper process in education they will have an awakened sense of the needs of the stake and be capable of fine judgment, of expressions of wisdom, and exerting a valuable influence for the betterment of the members in the stake. They should be watchful lest iniquity or apostasy or deceptive spiritual powers carry away the membership into the bondage of sin.

In court trials, it becomes their duty to make it possible for a case to be disclosed fully to their understanding, that a proper decision be given. It is their prerogative to ask questions to elicit the information needful to a perfect judgment. It is their privilege to point out errors in the judgment expressed by their president. It is their duty to support his judgment if unable to show him to be in error. Seven of them voting on agreement in any case is a majority. (Doctrine and Covenants 99:9.) It has been the judgment of the writer that no

www.LatterDayTruth.org

ELDER GEORGE E. HARRINGTON.

President of the Independence Stake.

ing a statement of the case. If it is an ordinary case, two of the council speak, one for the appellant (the one appealing), the other for the appellee (the one acting in defense on appeal). If it is a difficult case, two are to speak for each of the principals; and if still more difficult six may speak, three on either side; but there the limit is reached.

The method employed to ascertain the members of the council to speak for the accuser and the accused is by choosing numbers from one to twelve, odd numbers for the accuser and even numbers for the accused. The choosing of numbers is done in such a way that no one knows before what his number will be. When this is done the council is in a position to proceed, or is properly organized for such purpose.

member who desires to avail himself of the superior courts of the church should be subjected to the humiliation of having a decision, reflecting wrongdoing, publicly read, for the reason that a change of decision may exonerate him.

Hasty judgment is frequently wrong and unsatisfactory, especially to the losing side, hence it occurs to my mind that this important council should consist of men who are available and can give sufficient time and careful study to any case before them.

• * * * •

THE STANDING HIGH COUNCIL.

BY ROBERT M. ELVIN, SECRETARY OF THE HIGH COUNCIL.

There is ever a degree of attractiveness in the consideration of history, jurisdiction, and the scope of authority of the high council of the church, and it is likewise a matter of deep regret the paucity of that which was chronicled, both in the Old and New Testaments and the writers of the last century upon this interesting and important topic. It is therefore a subject that causes any writer thereon to be liable to be misunderstood; nevertheless, with no other purpose or object in view than to lace together such data as we shall think to be generic thereunto and of helpfulness to our readers, do we essay the task.

We are not so egotistical as to believe that he who said, "For the world is mine, and the fullness thereof," would make an innovation upon his priesthood gift or rule of government that would favor the church of the last days to the disparagement of either the ancient or the Christian dispensation wherein God's love was manifested in wise and equitable provisions for the people of his choice, for it is holy writ, "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the father of lights with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." From this scripture my conclusion would be that in every age God's care and government for his people would be the same.

God's rule of government in all ages has been to "inlaw" his people, whereby they may obtain at the hands of their fellow churchmen, equity and justice in all things pertaining to life, liberty, and the righteousness revealed in the gospel, wherein is the hope of eternal life. None can doubt but what all churches have realized the importance and necessity of a court of last resort, hence the formation of the Ecumenical Council by the Roman Catholics, which is the equivalent to the Jewish Sanhedrin. Many of the divisions of Protestantism have adopted the international synod, but to latter day Israel was given by divine inspiration, the Standing High

Council, and we are strongly inclined to the opinion that the high council was the court of God's appointment first, last, and all the time.

Webster gives the following definition of the Sanhedrim: "The great council of the Jews, which consisted of seventy members, to whom the high priests were added. It had jurisdiction of religious matters." I cite this definition to aid in understanding the provisions in the church of a court of last resort. In the revelation given to the church through Joseph Smith on priesthood, we read: "Wherefore, it must needs be that one be appointed,

ELDER JOHN CHISNALL.

Member of the Standing High Council.

of the high priesthood, to preside over the priesthood; and he shall be called president of the high priesthood of the church, or, in other words, the presiding high priest over the high priesthood of the church. From the same comes administering of ordinances and blessings upon the church, by the laying on of the hands." (Doctrine and Covenants 104: 31.)

"And again, the duty of the president of the office of the high priesthood is to preside over the whole church, and to be like unto Moses. Behold, here is wisdom, yea, to be a seer, a revelator, a translator, and a prophet; having all the gifts of God which he bestows upon the head of the church."—Doctrine and Covenants 104: 42. The reason for including the foregoing in this paper will be made to appear by the following: "The president of the church, who is also the president of the council, is appointed by revelation, and acknowledged, in his administration, by the voice of the church; and it is according to the dignity of his office, that he should preside over the high council of the church; and it is his privilege to be assisted by two other presidents, appointed after the same manner that he himself was appointed; and in case of the absence of one or both of those who are appointed to assist him, he has power to preside over the council without an assistant; and in case that he himself is absent, the other presidents have power to preside in his stead, both or either of them."—Doctrine and Covenants 99: 6.

ELDER WILLIS A. M'DOWELL.

Member of the Standing High Council.

The above from the Doctrine and Covenants clearly teaches first, that the presiding high priest of the Melchisedec priesthood is president of both the whole church and the high council. Second, that he is to be designated by revelation and upheld in his appointment by the vote of the church. Third, that two other presidents or counselors are to be appointed in like manner to the president himself. All of this is in harmony with the organic law of the church: "Every president of the high priesthood . . . is to be ordained by the direction of a high council, or general conference."—Doctrine and Covenants 17: 17.

William Smith, LL. D., in his Bible Dictionary, tells us under the title "Sanhedrim (accurately sanhedrin from the Greek, a council chamber"), called also in the Talmud the great Sanhedrim, the supreme council of the Jewish people in the time of Christ and earlier:

"1. The origin of this assembly is traced in the Mishna of the seventy elders whom Moses was directed to associate with him in the government of the Israelites; but this tribunal was probably temporary, and did not continue to exist after the Israelites had entered Palestine. In the lack of definite historical information as to the establishment of the Sanhedrim, it can only be said in general that the Greek etymology of the name seems to point to a period subsequent to the Macedonian supremacy in Palestine. From the few incidental notices in the New Testament, we gather that it consisted of chief priests, or the heads of the twenty-four classes into which the priests were divided, elders, men of age and experience, and scribes, lawyers, or those learned in the Jewish law. The number of members is usually given as seventy-one. The president of this body was styled Nasi, (Right Reverend Samuel Fallows, A. M., D. D., LL. D., in his Bible Encyclopedia, page 1522, 'He bore the title of chief or president,') and was chosen on account of his eminence in worth and wisdom. Often, if not generally, this preeminence was accorded to the high priest. The vice president, called in the Talmud, 'Father of the house of Judgment,' sat at the right hand of the president. Some writers speak of a second vice president, but this is not sufficiently confirmed. . . . As a judicial body the Sanhedrim constituted a supreme court, to which belonged in the first instance the trial of a tribe fallen into idolatry, false prophets, and the high priest, also the other priests. As an administrative council it determined other important matters."—Pp. 609, 610.

ELDER TEMME T. HINDERKS.

Member of the Standing High Council.

ELDER JAMES C. CRABB.

Member of the Standing High Council.

Doctor Fallows says, relative to the time of origin of the Sanhedrim, "The earliest mention of the existence of this council by Josephus, is in connection with the reign of Hyrcanus II, B. C. 69." I have given considerable time to research of several authors as to the highest court in the olden periods of the church and must confess that I find nothing fully satisfactory.

In the dim and distant past there was a gathering of God's people at the request of an eminent high priest, and the following is a record of that meeting: "Three years previous to the death of Adam, he called Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and Methuselah, who were all high priests, with the residue of his posterity, who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing. And the Lord appeared unto them, and they rose up and blessed Adam, and called him Michael, the Prince, the Archangel. And the Lord administered comfort unto Adam, and said unto him, "I have set thee to be at the head: a multitude of nations shall come of thee, and thou art a prince over them for ever."—Doctrine and Covenants 104: 28..

The deduction might read as follows: First, the high priest of the church called the foregoing council or conference. Second, the high priests present are mentioned by name as follows: Adam, Enos, Mahalaleel, Enoch, Seth, Cainan, Jared, Methuselah. Third, the rest of the church are all included by the word residue. Fourth, the Lord was present with them, see Doctrine and Covenants 99: 10. This promise is especially made to the high council. Fifth, those at that meeting blessed Adam and called him Michael, who is like unto God, that is in appearance to his father, who was God (Luke 3: 38). Sixth, there being no reigning king, the chief representative of God on earth is properly called the Prince; and Seventh, the Archangel which is rightly interpreted: the chief minister of the church, even the presiding high priest of the whole body of Christ, and therefore, was it said unto Adam, "I have set thee to be at the head." That is, to be the president in that age and dispensation. There are two who are paralleled in the gospel: "And so it is written, The first man Adam was made a living soul, the last Adam was made a quickening spirit."—1 Corinthians 15: 45. In Hebrews 3: 1, Christ is called both "Apostle and High Priest" "and he is the head of the body, the church." (Colossians 1: 18.)

Did you note that reference is also made to the faithfulness of Moses? We have somewhat to speak of him. In his presidency, watchcare, and guidance of Israel he had helpers. In proof of this we read: "So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill. And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed; and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed. But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun."—Exodus 17: 10-12. In favor of the above indicating a first presidency, I quote from Apostle William H. Kelley: "The institution under Moses, in general outline, was very similar to the one under Christ. Moses was the chief authority, the Melchisedec high priest." (Presidency and Priesthood, p. 53.) He is more plain upon this topic in the following statement: "The Melchisedec and the Aaronic priesthoods, Moses being the chief apostle and high priest and prophet or president, supported by two aids,—Aaron and Hur."—Ibid., 82.

ELDER JOSEPH A. TANNER.

Member of the Standing High Council.
Pastor of the Central Church, Kansas City.

The high council under this presidency of three were: Elizur, Nahshon, Eliab, Gamaliel, Ahiezer, Eliasaph, Shelumiel, Nathanael, Elishama, Abidan, Pagiel, Ahira. This list of the council may be found in Numbers 1: 5-15, and they were with Moses in the government of the Israelites. "And with you there shall be a man of every tribe; every one head of the house of his fathers. And these are the names of the men that shall stand with you: . . . These were the renowned of the congregation, princes of the tribes of their fathers, heads of thousands in Israel." (Numbers 1: 4, 5, 16.)

The evidence of a high council is not as satisfactory as I could desire it to be, nevertheless there are glints that fall across our path of investigation. Benjamin Wilson, in his history of the Greek text says, "But I say to you, That every one being angry with his brother, shall be amenable to the judges; and whoever shall say to his brother, Fool! will be subjected to the high council; but whoever shall say, Apostate Wretch! will be obnoxious to the burning of gehenna."—Emphatic Diaglott—Matt. 5: 22.

In the above, we have the words, high council, which may refer to the Sanhedrim, nevertheless this is quite doubtful, as we shall see: "But beware of these men; for they will deliver you up to high councils, and scourge you in their synagogues." (Ibid., Matthew 10: 17.) To this we add the following: "But take heed to yourselves. They will deliver you up to high councils; and to synagogues; and you will be beaten, and will stand before governors and kings on my account, for a testimony to them."—Mark 13: 9. The testimony of Matthew and Mark agrees in subject matter as to what the Christ said, and both use the plural, councils. The Greek word translated councils, surely was not the original of Sanhedrim if the author observed consistency in his work of translation: "And having brought them, they stood before the Sanhedrim; and the high priest asked them, saying."—Acts 5: 27. Here is additional evidence: "And they excited the people, and the elders, and the scribes, and coming suddenly, they seized, and led him into the Sanhedrim."—Acts 6: 12.

ELDER GEORGE A. SMITH.

Member of the Standing High Council.

William Smith recognizes the various courts mentioned in the New Testament, "1. The great council of the Sanhedrim, which sat at Jerusalem. . . . 2. The lesser courts . . . of which there were two at Jerusalem, and one in each town of Palestine. The constitution of these courts is a doubtful point. The existence of local courts, however constituted, is clearly implied in the passages quoted from the New Testament."—Bible Dictionary, p. 122.

In Doctrine and Covenants, section 99, we read: "Minutes of the organization of the high council of the Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints, Kirtland, February 17, 1834."

The presidency of the church: Joseph Smith, jr., Sidney Rigdon, and Frederick G. Williams, were acknowledged presidents by the voice of the council which voted, namely; nine high priests, seventeen elders, four priests, and thirteen members. These same votes elected the following twelve men to constitute the council: Oliver Cowdery, Samuel H. Smith, John S. Carter, John Johnson, Jared Carter, John Smith, Joseph Coe, Luke Johnson, Sylvester Smith, Orson Hyde, Joseph Smith, sr., and Martin Harris. Those interested should read the whole section carefully.

ELDER JOHN A. GRANT.

Member of the Standing High Council.

In the history of the organization of the high council are some events recorded that are of sufficient importance to be here entered: "On the 18th, I reviewed and corrected the minutes of the organization of the high council; and on the 19th of February the council assembled, according to adjournment from the 17th, when the revised minutes were presented and read to the council. I urged the necessity of prayer, that the Spirit might be given, that the things of the Spirit might be judged thereby, because the carnal mind can not discern the things of God, etc. The minutes were read three times, and unanimously adopted and received for a form and constitution of the high council of the church of Christ hereafter; with this provision, that if the president should hereafter discover any lack in the same he should be privileged to fill it up. The number present, who received the above-named documents was twenty-six high priests, eighteen elders, three priests, one teacher, and fourteen private members, making in all sixty-two. After giving such instruction as the Spirit dictated, I laid my hands severally upon the heads of the two assistant presidents and blessed them, that they might have wisdom to magnify their offices, and power over all the powers of the adversary. I also laid my hands upon the twelve councilors, and commanded a blessing to rest upon them, that they might have wisdom and power to counsel in righteousness upon all subjects that might be laid before them. I also prayed that they might be delivered from those evils to which they were most exposed, and that their lives might be prolonged on the earth. . . . I then gave the assistant presidents a solemn charge, to do their duty in righteousness, and in the fear of God; I also charged the twelve councilors in a similar manner, all in the name of Jesus Christ. . . .

"We all raised our hands to heaven in token of the everlasting covenant, and the Lord blessed us with his Spirit. I then declared the council organized according to the ancient order, and also according to the mind of the Lord." (Church History, vol. 1, pp. 432, 433.)

The instruction of the president to the council was timely, as the events soon following will clearly demonstrate. A wave of darkness and departure assailed the infant church and changes came to the high council, by its members being ordained to higher responsibilities and in removal from the seat of the Presidency. At a meeting of the council held at Kirtland, September 24, 1834, we note: "The High Council, of Kirtland, convened September 24, 1834, a conference being in session at the same time. At this council, Sylvester Smith was dropped from membership in the high council, but was permitted to retain his office of high priest.

"The President nominated Hyrum Smith to succeed him. This nomination was confirmed both by the council and the conference." (Church History, vol. 1, p. 523.)

The next change we note was at a conference held at Kirtland in September, 1837. There was a sort of sifting or winnowing of all the quorums, which resulted in rearranging the high council as follows: John P. Green, Samuel H. Smith, William Marks, to spiritual things, the arch enemy of the restored gospel manifested his work and intentions to overthrow the truth. The absence of the divine and the work of erring man is exhibited at the first General Conference held under the regime of Brigham Young at Nauvoo, Illinois, April, 1845, at which time one of the alterations made was: "Samuel Bent was sustained as president of the high council," making the council stand as follows: Samuel Bent, Alpheus Cutler, James Allred, Thomas Grover, Lewis D. Wilson, Ezra T. Benson, George W. Harris, William Huntington, Henry G. Sherwood, Newel Knight, David Fulmer, Aaron Johnson. This was neither the standing high council of the church, nor was it a stake high council. We have proved in this paper that the Presidency of the church are the presidents of the high council. A stake high council is organized with a presidency of three high priests, and twelve councilors. Thus we mark a step of departure from the original plan by the leading dominant faction of the disintegrating church.

ELDER SAMUEL TWOMBLY.

Member of the Standing High Council.

Oliver Granger, Jared Carter, Henry G. Sherwood, Asahel Smith, Mayhew Hillman, Noah Packard, David Dort, Phineas Richards, Harlow Redfield. (Church History, vol. 2, p. 109.)

Thus it will be seen that in about three and a half years the council was so changed that but two of the original members remained. Two years and a month later the council had another radical change, as a result of a conference held at Commerce (now Nauvoo), Hancock County, Illinois, October 5, 1839, as follows: George W. Harris, Samuel Bent, Henry G. Sherwood, David Fulmer, Alpheus Cutler, William Huntington, Thomas Grover, Newel Knight, Charles C. Rich, David Dort, Seymour Brunson, and Lewis D. Wilson. (Church History, vol. 2, p. 371.)

January 19, 1841, this council was all named by revelation, section 107, paragraph 41, Doctrine and Covenants, with the exception of Seymour Brunson, who during the space of fifteen months had died, and Aaron Johnson was chosen and ordained in his stead by divine direction. When that black pall of June 27, 1844, fell upon the church, all became dazed as

ELDER JAMES M. BAKER.

Member of the Standing High Council.

Sidney Rigdon was much more fortunate in his attempt at maintaining the original plan of organization, for he associated with himself Samuel James and Ebenezer Robinson, councilors to the president of the church, and he filled up a standing high council as follows: D. Savary, John Smith, James Logan, Matthew Smith, Robert Kincaid, James Spratley, C. A. Beck, Thomas J. Lanyon, J. A. Forgeus, Peter Boyer, Lewis James, John Frazier. The foregoing efforts to organize and keep up the church were all at a conference held April, 1845, at Pittsburg.

At the Amboy conference of April, 1860, the following high council were chosen, each member thereof by separate motion: John C. Gaylord, George Morey, Calvin Beebe, Oliver P. Dunham, Lyman Hewitt, Winthrop H. Blair, William Aldrich, Edwin Cadwell, Jacob Doan, Zenos Whitcomb, Dwight Webster, A. G. Jackson.

ELDER VINTON M. GOODRICH.

Member of the Standing High Council.
Pastor of the church in Saint Joseph, Missouri.

So far as I am aware, the vacancies occurring from April, 1860, until April, 1890, were not filled, and although during the past twenty years I have made diligent search for minute book or other record of the high council, my only reward has been disappointment, so that the record of changes and doings of the council for thirty years prior to 1890 is only fragmentary.

At the General Conference of 1888 the Quorum of High Priests presented thirteen names for ordination. Twelve of the names appear upon page 594 of the fourth volume of Church History.

The Lord said April 8, 1890, concerning these parties recommended: "Those who were presented by the high priests for ordination to their number, if approved by the council of the high priests now present, and the conference, may be ordained; and from their number there may be selected by a committee of conference composed of one of the First Presidency, the president of the Twelve, and one other to be chosen by the council of Twelve; the president of the high priests and one other to be chosen by that council of their number, a sufficient number to fill the vacancies now existing in the high council, that the high council may be properly organized and prepared to hear matters of grave importance when presented to them. And this committee shall make these selections according to the spirit of wisdom and revelation that shall be given unto them, to provide that such council may be convened at any general conference when emergency may demand, by reason of their residing at or near to places where conferences may be held."—Doctrine and Covenants 120: 9. Thus it will be seen that the men selected to compose the high council in 1890 were by revelation designated for this responsible place and calling.

"The committee provided for in the revelation, composed of W. W. Blair, A. H. Smith, W. H. Kelley, Charles Derry, and M. H. Forscutt, to select men to compose the high council of the church, after consultation reported to the body the following names to compose said high council: W. H. Blair, J. C. Crabb, William Anderson, F. G. Pitt, A. S. Cochran, David Chambers, J. H. Peters, David Dancer, J. A. Robinson, R. M. Elvin, Charles Derry, C. A. Beebe. These were all approved by the conference, and it resolved that the First Presidency call the council and attend to the matter of organization as soon as they can conveniently."—Church History, vol. 4, pp. 646, 647.

"Those nominated for the high council, with the exception of C. A. Beebe, met in the students' room in the church at Lamoni, Iowa, April 16, 1890, for the purpose of organizing the High Council of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Upon motion, President W. W. Blair was chosen to preside, and R. M. Elvin as secretary. The secretary read section 99, Doctrine and Covenants, and section 104: 14, 15. The president read Millennial Star, volume 15, pages 12, 109, 261, and 284. Reference was made to HERALD, volume 1; pages 55, 58, 104, and 106. Adjourned to meet at half past two in the afternoon. Benediction by Brother J. C. Crabb.

"A second meeting was held at half past two in the afternoon. Opened by singing hymn 311; prayer by Brother Charles Derry. Minutes were read and approved. President W. W. Blair offered his resignation, and upon motion it was accepted, and President Joseph Smith, being present, was chosen to preside. The following was the unanimous vote of the council, that the Presidency of the church are the presidency of the high council. Robert M. Elvin was elected as secretary. Motion, that the president give such instruction as the Spirit may dictate, and such other items as may be neces-

C. A. Beebe as soon as practicable. Minutes read and approved. Closed with prayer by the president.

"JOSEPH SMITH,

"W. W. BLAIR, Presidents.

"ROB'T. M. ELVIN, Secretary."

—SAINTS' HERALD, vol. 3, p. 280. Church History, vol. 4, pp. 654, 655.

On account of deafness Brother Winthrop H. Blair resigned his place on the high council, and by reason of ordination to the office of evangelist, Brethren Charles Derry and Charles E. Butterworth resigned.

The pale reaper has called the following to their rest since April, 1860: Andrew G. Jackson, August 25, 1863; Dwight Webster, August 19, 1868; John C. Gaylord, July 17, 1874; Jacob Doan, April 25, 1875; George Morey, December 15, 1875; Calvin Beebe; William Aldrich, December 27, 1876; Lyman Hewitt, October 26, 1880; Zenos Whitcomb, May 3, 1885; Edwin Cadwell, January 11, 1886; Oliver P. Dunham, September 25, 1887; David Chambers, January 27, 1897; David Dancer, October 23, 1898; John A. Robinson, April 12, 1902; Calvin A. Beebe, August 23, 1903; James H. Peters, September 21, 1903; and William Anderson, March 5, 1911.

The present enrollment is as follows: James C. Crabb, Vinton M. Goodrich, Robert M. Elvin, George A. Smith, James M. Baker, John A. Grant, John Chisnall, Asa S. Cochran, Samuel Twombly, Willis A. McDowell, Temme T. Hinderks, Joseph A. Tanner. Brother Pitt was ordained at the late General Conference, but no formal resignation as a member of the high council was presented, and no official action was taken to release him or to select his successor.

At the General Conference of 1892 there was some agitation and debate as to the scope of authority and purpose of the high council. Remarks were made by President Joseph Smith in regard to the high council, and reported by Sister Belle Robinson:

"The question was presented to the Presidency as to the duty and prerogatives of the high council and we have only what may be said to be the little written in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants concerning them. The high council was organized by revelation and forms a final court of adjudication to which appeal might be made and a decision had by them, I believe for the intent and purpose to provide for a place where controversy among members of the church and officers should cease. This seems to be the highest purpose, the most sacred and important duty to which they are called. The council which is now organized is the council of the church, the high council of the church, the general church, and as such has jurisdiction.

"The high council of the church has what may be called a concurrent jurisdiction in matters pertain-

ELDER ASA S. COCHRAN.

Member of the Standing High Council.

sary. President said it was his opinion that no councilor should compromise himself in any case, or doctrine, under controversy. When we act it is in the name of Christ, and for that which must abide as a final in the church. Motion that the council proceed to set apart and ordain the councilors, which was done according to their age. President Smith ordained Councilors Winthrop H. Blair, Charles Derry, James H. Peters, David Chambers, Asa S. Cochran, and Frederick G. Pitt; and President Blair ordained Councilors David Dancer, James C. Crabb, William Anderson, John A. Robinson, and Robert M. Elvin. Elder Rudolph Etzenhouser being present was blessed by President Smith, as witness to the above ordinations and organization.

"It was voted that the councilors understand that casting of lots is at the time when they shall convene to sit upon a case. A fund was raised for necessary expense; when it was voted that the secretary act as treasurer. . . .

"The secretary was instructed to prepare a report to be published in the HERALD, which shall also be our report to the next General Conference. It was ordered on motion that the president ordain Brother ing to the poor, forming with the bishopric a council of conference and decision and may stand in the position of an advisory council to the bishopric in this matter as provided in the law.

"In connection with the First Presidency, as I understand it, upon occasion they may take into consideration the trial and standing of members of the church high in authority, though it is our opinion that anyone in transgression may be subject to the common council of the church, and certain provisions are made by which a number of high priests will conjoin with them in order to form the requisite authority, but perhaps the best prerogatives of this council is the one first named.

"The high council in the stakes of Zion wherever they may occur, assume the jurisdiction in this sense of the stake in which they may belong or in the stake in which they may be appointed, but we have but one, this stands to us as the high council of the church with these prerogatives.

"I will give you the citations, those who wish to examine the matter. Section 42, paragraph 10, Book of Doctrine and Covenants. Section 99, paragraph 1, paragraph 11 same section. Section 104, paragraph 35. In connection in reference to one statement made by me, paragraph 37, same section."

—Zion's Ensign, April 23, 1892.

"Therefore, the residue shall be kept in my storehouse, to administer to the poor and the needy, as shall be appointed by the high council of the church, and the bishop and his council, and for the purpose of purchasing lands for the public benefit of the church, and building houses of worship, and building up of the New Jerusalem which is hereafter to be revealed, that my covenant people may be gathered in one, in that day when I shall come to my temple. And this I do for the salvation of my people."—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 10.

The above revelation was given to the church February 9, 1831, and April 15, 1894, the Lord gave his explanation to the church as follows: "And further the Spirit saith unto you, that 'with the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as a day'; therefore, the law given to the church in section forty-two, over the meaning of some parts of which there has been so much controversy, is as if it were given to-day, and the bishop and his councilors, and the high council, and the bishop and his council, and the storehouse, and the temple, and the salvation of my people, are the same to me now that they were in that day when I gave the revelation; nevertheless, that portion of that commandment which made it the duty of the high council to assist in looking after the poor and needy of the church, was not intended to put the high council over the bishop in the administration of the affairs of his office and calling, except as they might do so in an advisory manner, and in such way that no one of the poor and the needy should be neglected; nor was it designed that the high council should dictate in the matter of purchasing lands, building houses of worship, building up the New Jerusalem, and the gathering of the people, these last named being within the province of the presidency, the twelve, as a quorum, the councils or other officers of the branches or stakes where houses of worship are to be built, the conferences and the general assembly of the church, and the direction of the Lord by revelation. The high council could not in justice dictate to the bishop in direction in any of these matters and then try and condemn and punish him if he did not obey."—Doctrine and Covenants 122: 6.

ELDER ROBERT M. ELVIN.

Secretary of the Standing High Council.

"This high council was appointed by revelation for the purpose of settling important difficulties, which might arise in the church, which could not be settled by the church, or the bishop's council, to the satisfaction of the parties."—Doctrine and Covenants 99: 1.

When trouble arises in the church abroad, of a serious character, a temporary high council of twelve high priests may be formed. On completing their labor, "It shall be the duty of said council to transmit, immediately, a copy of their proceedings, with a full statement of the testimony accompanying their decision, to the high council of the seat of the first presidency of the church. Should the parties, or either of them, be dissatisfied with the decision of said council, they may appeal to the high council of the seat of the first presidency of the church, and have a rehearing, which case shall there be conducted, according to the former pattern written, as though no such decision had been made."—Doctrine and Covenants 99: 11.

"And inasmuch as the president of the high priesthood shall transgress, he shall be had in remembrance before the common council of the church, who shall be assisted by twelve councilors of the high priesthood; and their decision upon his head shall be an end to controversy concerning him. Thus, none shall be exempted from the justice and the laws of God; that all things may be done in order and solemnity, before him, according to truth and righteousness."—Doctrine and Covenants 104: 37.

"Again, verily I say unto you: The most important business of the church, and the most difficult cases of the church, inasmuch as there is not satisfaction upon the decision of the bishop, or judges, it shall be handed over and carried up unto the council of the church, before the presidency of the high priesthood; and the presidency of the council of the high priesthood shall have power to call other high priests, even twelve, to assist as counselors, and thus the presidency of the high priesthood, and its counselors shall have power to decide upon testimony according to the laws of the church. And after this decision it shall be had in remembrance no more before the Lord; for this is the highest council of the church of God, and a final decision upon controversies, in spiritual matters. There is not any person belonging to the church, who is exempt from this council of the church."—Doctrine and Covenants 104: 35, 36.

At the General Conference of 1893 the First Quorum of Seventy adopted and presented to the conference a resolution stating their understanding and defining the duties, etc., of the high council, (see Minutes, p. 71). This was debated at several sessions and then went over without reaching a vote. The same matter was taken up at the General Conference of 1894, and the conference referred the matter to the high council, asking that council to take the matter into consideration and to report an expression of their views as to their duties, powers, and privileges. The council in compliance, reported to the conference, April 13. (See Minutes, pp. 35, 36, and 37.)

JURISDICTION OF, AND PROPER TRIAL BEFORE, AN ELDERS' COURT.

BY RUSSELL ARCHIBALD.

Section 59 of the Book of Rules provides that "The functions of an elders' court being those of a commission of inquiry, it follows that when they have heard the allegations and the evidence their only duty is to decide as to the truth or falsity of the matters inquired into, the guilt or innocence of the member accused, and report the result of their inquiry to the authority appointing them."

An elders' court has original jurisdiction over all matters pertaining to the trial of the lay members of the church for any offense whatsoever recognized in the law as being sufficient, which proper labor upon the part of all concerned has failed to settle. Their jurisdiction also extends to the trial of cases, whether it be for membership or for priesthood authority, to and including the office of elder. Such jurisdiction is final so far as the question of guilt or innocence is concerned (except as to appeal), and the mere formality of a vote upon the part of the membership, affirming such findings, is in reality of no legal effect, inasmuch as such question has been delegated to the court and their findings are the findings of the body. This is practically the full extent of the jurisdiction of an elders' court, standing as it does as a delegated body, empowered to try for the church all matters affecting its general welfare in relation to the parties above mentioned.

Under the law as it stands at present an elders' court has no jurisdiction over the penalty to be assessed, in case of guilt, but only has the right to recommend, and this recommendation may or may not be approved by the body. Without digressing too much from the subject matter of this paper, we desire to state that this provision is hardly best for all concerned, inasmuch as the body, not having heard the evidence, is not in position to determine the merits of a recommendation for mercy, and oft-times ignores it. There would appear to be good reasons why the elders' court should have more jurisdiction over this feature of the case.

Proper trial before an elders' court necessarily comprehends that both parties to the action involved will proceed in the spirit of the gospel to an investigation of the issues, and not with the spirit sometimes manifested, that victory is more important for our cause than for the triumph of truth. This for the reason that it is not the purpose of the trial to condemn the accused, but to save them if possible, and nothing could serve more to drive them farther away than to exhibit toward them in any way an unchristianlike spirit. This is particularly true when the church is the complaining party, through its officers, although it is also true in trials between members. There is always a tendency in church trials to produce strife between the opposing parties, and under these circumstances this provision in the proper trial of a case is all the more important.

The charges being furnished the accused by the officer appointing the court, there is no provision in the law requiring that an answer to the charges shall be filed or made before the sitting of the court and after the reading of the charges before that body. In other words, this is the first opportunity which the accused has to make his pleading, and there would seem to be no good reason for expecting him to make answer until he appears before the body to whom his case has been submitted for hearing, notwithstanding we have at times heard considerable complaint with reference to this feature, claiming that an undue advantage is thereby given to the accused, in that the prosecution is not aware of the defense to be offered and can not therefore arrange its case as it would were the nature of the defense known. Even in our civil courts, pleading upon the indictment is not made until the trial is in progress, and in church cases, where the object is to arrive at the truth, there can be no good reason why the usual custom in this respect should be changed.

Another important feature in connection with the proper trial before an elders' court, is to strictly limit the investigation to the specific charge or charges made, and not to permit the introduction of other issues, even though other offenses may be apparent as the investigation proceeds. We have at times witnessed some startling violations of this principle, some even claiming that when an elders' court sits, any matters affecting the standing of the accused may be brought before it, whether they were mentioned in the charges or not. This appears to us to be absolutely improper and unfair to the accused, and taking an undue advantage which a strict administration of the law does not warrant, inasmuch as no charges are to be heard until proper labor has been had upon them, and the introduction of new charges, upon which no labor has been performed, is in itself a clear violation of the specific provisions of the law. A broad charge of unchristianlike conduct, if unrestricted, might permit such a procedure, but if such charge is made it should be specific, defining in detail the particular act or acts constituting the unchristianlike conduct. The purpose of the charges is to define the issues involved and to give the accused an opportunity to make specific answer; and furthermore, the trial of the charges made is all that has been delegated by the body to the elders' court, consequently they have no jurisdiction over and no authority to permit the introduction of matter foreign to the charges made.

Although the rules of procedure permit the parties concerned to appear in person or by counsel, it has always appeared, from our limited experience, that the better course is to appear by counsel, especially if the party does not hold the priesthood and is not fully posted in the law, as this in itself keeps in subjection much of the personal nature of the case and permits an investigation of the issues, free from personal feeling. The priesthood of the church are and should be better posted in the law and more competent to give to the parties concerned the full benefit of the law governing. Where this procedure is observed better results obtain, and we believe it should be strongly recommended in all cases.

There is much in this question of proper trial which is not clearly covered in the law as to detail, which good judgment and Christian demeanor must supply. For instance, it is not proper to have the accused appear there except on an equal footing with the parties making the charges, and the mere fact that he is the one against whom the charges are made should not affect his standing in the least before the court.

It is the duty of the court to determine the truth or falsity of the charges and decide as to the guilt or innocence. These findings should be definite and not report extracts of the evidence to the body and permit them to draw their own conclusions. Where there is a conflict in the evidence the elders' court should decide which is the truth and report accordingly to the body.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Notices.

The Montana district conference will convene at Deer Lodge, Saturday, October 5, 1912. Jerome P. Wyckoff, district secretary, Deer Lodge.

The Northern Michigan district conference will meet with the Onaway Branch, October 12 and 13. Business session on Saturday at 10 a. m. Branch secretaries please send your reports in early. Minister in charge, F. A. Smith, is expected to be present. Meals will be furnished for ten cents, as usual. J. C. Goodman, president; C. N. Burtch, secretary.

Saint Louis district conference will convene at Belleville, Illinois, on Saturday, September 21, 1912, at 6 p. m., for business, and continue over Sunday, September 22. A full report from each branch, and also the ministry, is requested. Let all who can come and make the conference a success. Do not forget the hour for business has been changed from 8 p. m. to 6 p. m. R. Archibald, district president; C. J. Remington, district secretary.

Gallands Grove, Iowa, District will convene at Cherokee, Iowa, October 19, 1912, at 10 a. m. Branch clerks please send reports to the address given below. Either J. W. Wight or G. T. Griffiths will be present, and an effort will be made to organize the priests, teachers, and deacons of the district into quorums. Branch reports should reach the secretary not later than October 12. Mrs. C. J. Hunt, secretary, Deloit, Iowa.

Western New York District will hold its semiannual conference at Buffalo, New York, 356 Grant Street, Saturday and Sunday, October 12 and 13, at 2.30 p. m.

Conference for Western Michigan District will be held at Freesoil, Michigan, September 28 and 29. All visiting Saints

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT:
The Judicial System of the Church - - -	895
Rules as to the Production of Evidence - - -	897
ORIGINAL CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Attitude of the Civil Courts to the Ecclesiastical Courts in America, by S. A. Burgess - - -	900
Form and Jurisdiction of Bishop's Court, by Joseph Roberts - - - - -	903
Organization, Jurisdiction, and Functions of a Stake High Council, by George E. Harrington	905
The Standing High Council, by Robert M. Elvin	907
Jurisdiction of, and Proper Trial before, an Elders' Court, by Russell Archibald - - -	916
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - -	917

"Live and let live" is a good maxim, but "Live and help live" is a better.—Anonymous.

and friends will be entertained without charge for meals. Statistical report blanks will be sent to each branch secretary. Please be sure to report.

Convention Notices.

Sunday school and Religio societies of the Western New York District hold their convention on Saturday morning, October 12, at 356 Grant Street, Buffalo, the first session of conference to be held at 2.30 p. m.

Friday, September 27, the Religio and Sunday school conventions of Western Michigan District will be held at Free-soil, and as usual the Religio will occupy the forenoon and the Sunday school the afternoon. Please get reports to the district secretary at once, also credentials. H. A. Doty, district secretary.

Pottawattamie district Sunday school association will convene in joint session with the Religio association at Hazeldell church, September 27, 1912, at 2 p. m. Floy M. Wind, secretary, 738 Washington Avenue, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Conventions of the Religio and Sunday school associations of Northern Michigan District will meet at Onaway, Friday, October 11. Social service at 8 a. m. Religio business session will open at 9.30 a. m.; Sunday school convention at 1.30 p. m. An entertainment will be rendered in the evening. Charles Burtch and A. E. Starks, district presidency.

The Bishopric.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

Permit me to say to the Saints of the Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana District, that on account of poor health I will be unable to get over the entire district before our fall conference, which I had planned to do. I started out soon after our spring conference at Galien, Michigan, in this work, but had only been out seven weeks in the northern part of the district when my nerves gave out and I had to return home. I am back with the elders' family allowances two months, and kindly ask you to come to our aid, so that the work may not be hindered in our district, thanking you for your help in the past. As we ask the kind Father to continue his blessing to us, so we should strive to continue to do our duty as required by Him who is the giver of all good. Let us who have failed to do our duty along the financial line remember that as God has blessed us, so he will hold us responsible in the day of judgment.

I came to this place about a month ago. I am with my son, who is in business here, and as I am not able to be out in the church work he wants me to stay with him and help him what little I can. I hope to regain my health so as to be able to go out in the church work and help with my weak efforts to forward the great cause that we should all love. So we again ask you to send in what you can, let it be little or much, and relieve the district of this condition.

Trusting I may have an interest in your prayers, I desire to remain your brother in gospel bonds,

SAMUEL STROH, Bishop's Agent.

PITTSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA, September 1, 1912.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. A. Smith, Managing Editor.
Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald," Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department.

Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

Request for Prayer.

Sister Josie Helms, Sweet Lake, Louisiana, desires the Saints to pray for her. She was operated on four months ago and is failing. She feels that she is a burden. She has seven children. She desires that the elders call on them.

Addresses.

Alvin Knisley, field address, Boise, Idaho.

Died.

FLETCHER.—Adam Fletcher, born November 8, 1841, at Cumberland, England; died August 29, 1912, at Kewanee, Illinois; was baptized October 26, 1870; ordained an elder June 3, 1871. He was a veteran of the Civil War; was a faithful husband, a kind and loving father, a respected and honored citizen. He leaves wife and eight children, besides other relatives and friends. Funeral was held from the Saints' church in Kewanee, Illinois, August 31, 1912, at 2.30 p. m., Elder O. E. Sade officiating. The G. A. R.'s and the Ladies' Relief Corps attended in a body and had charge at the grave. Buried in the beautiful cemetery in Kewanee.

MOFFETT.—Hazel Ann Moffett, daughter of Brother and Sister William Moffett, of Shenandoah, Iowa, was born August 1, 1893; died August 25, 1912, at Modisto Sanitarium, Modisto, California, of Bright's disease. She united with the church when eight years old, and her life since beautified by the Christian graces, has been to her companions a bright testimony of her great love for God and the church. Funeral at Shenandoah September 1; sermon by J. R. Sutton. She leaves mother and twelve children: F. W. Moffett, Louis Moffett, John Moffett, Floyd Moffett, Alma Moffett, Orval Moffett, Robert Adair, W. N. Adair, Mrs. Mary Welch, Mrs. Grace Crawford, Mrs. Cora Bins, Mrs. Fred Tyler. Nearly all of these were at the funeral.

SCOTT.—At Saints' Home, Lamoni, Iowa, August 15, 1912, Brother Lebbeus B. Scott died at the age of 78 years and 6 months. He was born in New York in 1834, and was baptized in Michigan in 1861 by Brother James Blakeslee. Later lived in Illinois, where his wife died in 1876. Came to Lamoni in 1909. Funeral sermon by Brother H. A. Stebbins, assisted by Brother A. S. Cochran.

WEISS.—Mary Adline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Weiss, of Woodbine, Iowa, born October 17, 1910; died May, 1911, at the age of seven months. The child had been sick but a few hours. Funeral service held at the residence, Elder Charles Derry conducting the same.

"Darling Mary, she has left us;

Left us, yes, for evermore;

But we hope to meet our loved one

On that bright and happy shore."

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Herald Publishing House

$100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best of security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

These Bonds will be ready to issue on the 1st of April, 1912.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

Have You Heard About It—
the great change in the homestead law?

Everybody entitled to a homestead wants one, of course, but until the recent law was passed, a homesteader was required to live continuously on the land for five years before the Government would turn it over to him to be his very own. Now it is altogether different, and irrigated farms in the Big Horn Basin of Wyoming and Yellowstone Valley of Montana, Mondell 320-acre free homesteads in Wyoming and 640-acre unirrigated free Kinkaid homesteads in Nebraska, can be taken up on a new and liberal plan. You can prove up and get title in three years' time, and will be permitted to leave your homestead five months each year, so that you can go home and earn money with which to buy stock and get your homestead farm going. This is very important and opens up a splendid opportunity to men, young and old, to get well fixed.

Write me what kind of land you are interested in, and I will write you all about the new law and the lands that the Government will grant you.

You can get a railroad ticket from Omaha to Thermopolis and return, for instance, at a rate of $31.75—and a proportionate rate from other points—any time until September 30, good until October 31st. On such a ticket you can see the 640-acre homesteads in Nebraska, the Mondell lands in Wyoming, the Yellowstone Valley lands at Huntley and Billings, Mont., and the irrigated lands in the Big Horn Basin. Think what a grand trip this would be!

Perhaps you could arrange to go with me on one of the homeseekers' excursions which the Burlington Route will run to these lands on October 1st and 15th, or know some one else who would like to go.

I have no land for sale—the Burlington merely employs me to give information and assist anyone interested in this wonderful country, without charge. Let me know from what point you will start and on what date you wish to go. I will send you information about the lands and tell you just how and where to meet me in Omaha. D. Clem Deaver, Immigration Agent, Burlington Route, 336 Q Building, Omaha, Nebraska.

ARTISTIC PENWORK

Penwork of every description. Card writing a specialty. Best oblique penholder made, fancy inlaid, price 50c. Five cents will bring you a specimen of my work. Write for prices.

Address F. R. BROWN

The Phelps Commercial School

Bozeman, Mont.

38tf

Reference, Elder L. E. Hills,

23 N. 7th, Bozeman, Mont.

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed.

No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25
 Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
 Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,

Cloth, No. 198.....50c
 Paper No. 197.....35c

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.
 Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
 No. 140, cloth.....50

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
 Lamoni Land and Loan Co,
 Lamoni, Iowa.

New from Cover to Cover
WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL
DICTIONARY
JUST ISSUED. Ed. in Chief, Dr. W. T. Harris, former U. S. Com. of Education. General Information Practically Doubled. Divided Page: Important Words Above, Less Important Below. Contains More Information of Interest to More People Than Any Other Dictionary.
2700 PAGES. 6000 ILLUSTRATIONS.
400,000 WORDS AND PHRASES.
GET THE BEST in Scholarship, Convenience, Authority, Utility.

Write for Specimen Pages to
G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.
 You will do us a favor to mention this publication.

LAMONI HOME FOR SALE

Square, hip-roofed, one story house with kitchen (L), five large rooms, large closet and pantry, two porches, back porch closed, good cellar, cistern, well. Woodshed with washroom having cement floor and drain. Cement walks entirely around house inside lot. Three large lots, with lots of fruit trees and berry bushes. Small stable, etc. Three blocks from business center. Owner a missionary, no time to look after it. A snap at $950.00, if taken at once. Fred B. Farr, Cameron, Missouri. 38-2t*

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
 No. 248a, cloth.....75

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, SEPTEMBER 25, 1912

NUMBER 39

Editorial

THE MINISTRY OF LOVE VERSUS THE MINISTRY OF FEAR.—Part I.

For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.—2 Timothy 1: 7.

There is nothing about the gospel to bring fear to those who are obeying it. To the contrary, it brings boldness and poise of mind.

Those who in the past have painted the terrors of hell with lurid skill, endeavoring to frighten men into the kingdom, did not understand the gospel. It does not appeal to fear. It appeals to love, and kindred lofty emotions.

It is true that we are told to "fear God and keep his commandments." But in this sense fear does not mean terror, but means, as defined by the American Dictionary: "Deep reverence; piety toward God—to venerate."

The old theological idea of fear can not be reconciled with fatherhood. If I were a boy, not well acquainted with my father, and one should tell me, "You must serve your father and love him, for if you do not he will beat you nearly to death, and may even saturate you with coal oil and set you on fire," in such an event I would surely get as far away from my father as possible, and as quickly as possible. Yet that is the way ministers have tried to lead men to their heavenly Father: "You must come to God and love him and keep his commandments, for if you do not he will bring all manner of suffering upon you, and finally will cast you into a bottomless pit filled with literal fire and brimstone to suffer and burn for ever." We have never observed any great stampede of men and women toward God as a result of such teaching. Many may have come to the mourners' bench or into the church, but God was not at the bench or in the church.

Boys are attracted toward their father only as they believe him to be kind, just, and loving. Men are drawn toward God only as they understand him as a loving father. All converts in all ages who have really come to God have come because of love for him and not because they were frightened.

Jesus said, "I will draw all men unto me." Fear can not draw. Fear repels. It is impossible to draw and drive at the same time. God's way is the right way. Those who come to him do not receive the spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.

What was the origin of fear? Humanity did not know the sensation of fear until disobedience entered in. Then they were afraid and hid themselves. Fear had an evil origin. The Devil baptizes with the spirit of fear; God baptizes with the spirit of love, and power, and of a sound mind.

The reign of fear throughout nature is almost universal, because everywhere there is the menace of death. If we walk along the seashore we catch a glimpse of the fierce struggle among the lower forms of life. Thousands of little soft-shelled crabs are washed up by each succeeding wave. If one of these crabs is in any way disabled, instantly he is set upon and devoured by multitudes of big sand fleas. If he escapes these and gets to water he is gobbled up by some little fish; and the little fish in turn falls prey to a bigger fish, while the bigger fish goes to feed some shark. Sailors tell of seeing mackerel so terrified by the presence of sharks and whales that they would crowd around the vessel in great schools, apparently too stupefied by fear to perceive the menace of man's presence.

Naturalists tell us that wild animals and birds practically never die of old age. Paradoxically, a "natural death" is unknown in "nature." The moment one of "the kindred of the wild" is disabled in any way, or becomes incapacitated by advanced age, and muscles stiffen, or eyesight grows dim, so that he can not strike as hard or escape as quickly as of old, he falls a victim to some of his many alert enemies. There are no old folks' homes for deer or sparrows. They never die in bed, surrounded by trained nurses and doctors. Practically all birds, beasts, and insects die a violent death.

Thus the struggle goes on in ocean and forest and wilderness, everywhere, and humanity is in some ways no exception.

One of the elders recently remarked: "Into everything that we do there enters to a greater or lesser extent the element of fear, and spoils it all."

This is true, to an extent. If the family goes to the mountain for an outing, the mother is disturbed by the thought of rattlesnakes, or the danger of accidents with firearms. If one goes to the surf to bathe, there is always the possibility that he will be seized with cramp and drown, or be wounded by a "stingaree" and have blood poison, or perhaps be attacked by a shark. If a railroad journey is undertaken, the thought of wreck, with mental pictures of splintered cars, scalding steam, crushed bodies, will arise at times, in spite of auto-suggestion to the contrary.

Those who stay at home may get what comfort they can from the old story of the man who was so afraid of death that he resolved that he would never venture from the door of his house. His companions all went on a hunting expedition; but he feared that some wild beast might kill him, or an accidental discharge of firearms cause his untimely end, so he stayed at home and bolted the door. When his friends returned they found that he had choked to death on a piece of beefsteak.

In all avocations and industries there are particular dangers to life or limb. And science, picturing dread disease germs lurking everywhere, riding upon sun-kissed particles of dust, or hiding in choice foods, or upon drinking cups, has opened up a whole new realm of terrors. Then there is always the fear of futurity, tormenting those who know that their lives are not clean and right.

Confidence in a protecting, overruling Providence which comes to those who obey the gospel begins to drive out this fear. As love grows fear departs; and "perfect love casteth out all fear." Yet fear is so ingrained in humanity that its eradication may be a slow process. One may have great faith in God; but if confronted suddenly by an unexpected peril, his heart will stand still momentarily, before faith and courage have time to assert themselves. Inherited natural fear is in his blood, coming from all past generations, and persists after the will has been regenerated and has become conscious of a higher power that is able to save.

But the tendency of the gospel is to drive out all fear. The three Hebrew children of fiery furnace fame, Daniel of the lion's den, Paul before Agrippa, the early Christians martyred by Nero, these were men who were very nearly free from fear of anything in life or in death. They were supremely confident that all things work together for the good of those who love God and keep his commandments. They were thoroughly imbued with the idea that if God is for a man nothing in all the world can prevail against him. So why should they fear? We have not all reached that condition yet. But the course is forward for those who live their religion.

The gospel tends to drive out fear, and the process will be completed for all obedient children in the good time to come when "nothing shall hurt or destroy in all his holy mountain." Sin, carnage, disease, pain, and death will be banished from the redeemed earth, and with those things will go the deep-seated fear that they have inspired. This universal fear that permeates all creation is not in harmony with God's will. He did not intend it to be so. And as all things must in time conform to his will, peace and contentment, power and love will finally have dominion on this earth.

But those who refuse to accept his gospel must abide the consequences, until such time as they may see differently and be permitted to change. With such the baptism of fear will become more and more complete, with "men's hearts failing them for fear," from "looking upon the things coming upon the earth, until the culmination is reached, at the end, when they shall call upon the rocks and the mountains to fall upon them and hide them from the destruction which they have invited.

Surely no sane man will hesitate long to make his choice along right lines, if he can only be brought to perceive the difference between the baptism of fear and the baptism of love, power, and a sound mind.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

(To be continued.)

SPIRITUAL MANIFESTATIONS AT THE LAMONI STAKE REUNION.

The Lord speaks to the people in many ways. He is not confined to tongues and prophecies as avenues of communication. He speaks through the inspired sermon, the fervent testimony, and the spiritual hymn or anthem, and in many other ways. The manifestations of the Spirit are "given to every man," and as one has said, are "almost as diverse as individual natures are"; and it would be difficult to say which methods of communication are most important.

No branch, district, or reunion should conclude that the Lord has not spoken to the Saints merely because the gifts of prophecy and tongues are not enjoyed. And after all this has been said, yet the fact remains that tongues and prophecies are gospel gifts, destined to be enjoyed until "that which is perfect" shall come. So it is encouraging to learn that they are enjoyed in goodly measure in the chief assemblies of the Saints.

It is reported that the late reunion of the Lamoni Stake was one of the best ever held, and the prayer meetings were of a very high order of spirituality, the gift of prophecy or vision being given some seven times. Four of these communications we are privileged to give herewith, as reported by Sister Estella Wight:

SPIRITUAL COMMUNICATION GIVEN AT THE SAINTS' REUNION,
LAMONI, IOWA, SATURDAY MORNING PRAYER SERVICE,
AUGUST 3, 1912, THROUGH ELDER JOHN SMITH,
PRESIDENT OF LAMONI STAKE.

Sister Carlile, the testimony of thine is true. Thy heavenly Father hath raised thee up as a witness and an evidence to his people, as well as to thee and thy family, that the power of God can save. And notwithstanding the people are sick many times, the Lord desires that his children should remember, especially this morning, that he never forgets them, whether they are sick or whether they are in health. In every condition the Lord remembers his children, and he is able to give them strength to pass through these trials.

And as I have advised my elders, so again I repeat to you [the elders] this morning, that when called to administer in the ordinances of my house, seek to exercise faith before me and I will bless you in life, and where my children shall die in the faith their death shall be sweet unto them. It shall be unto them that which shall relieve them from all sufferings. They need not have any fear.

And unto my children I desire to say this morning, it is the will of the Lord that you shall continue to live faithful and diligent, and when ye separate from these camp meetings, remember that the Lord hath been with you, that he will be with you elsewhere. He desires that you should constantly remember that if you are faithful when you may meet together his Spirit shall be among you. He desires also that we should so seek to purify our individual lives, that individually we shall be acceptable to him, and as he has said in the revelations of his word while here on the earth, we should not partake of the things of the world which are displeasing to him, and in this way and by this method of life ye shall become what he has designed his children should be, as a city that is set upon a hill, as a light that can not be hid under a bushel, but where it can be seen, that others may see and the influence of our conduct may have its effect, and thus the promises of the gospel can reach them, and they may be persuaded to see and understand the truth.

Therefore, the message unto you this morning is to rejoice; rejoice in your hearts; forget not his goodness and mercy; that he is blessing his people whether in health or in sickness. Remember, as he has said before, he will never forsake you, but he will be with you in every trial, and at last, if faithful, he will by his Spirit raise you in the glorious resurrection, and the coming of the Savior shall have for you no terror, and peace and righteousness shall rule and reign throughout the earth, and his people shall enjoy his blessings through all his eternity.

This is the message of peace and encouragement and cheer to my people this morning.

SPIRITUAL COMMUNICATION GIVEN AT THE SAINTS' REUNION,
LAMONI, WEDNESDAY MORNING PRAYER SERVICE, JULY
31, 1912, THROUGH ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

In times that are past I have called upon my people by the voice of my Spirit and warned them to be faithful; yea, to be very faithful, and the reason of this warning is manifest, that you may have strength to endure the temptations without yielding, and bear the trials that come to you without murmuring, and that you may not lose the integrity of your faith, but will be steadfast in the confidence that the gospel has inspired, that you may have a right to the tree of life, and rest satisfied with the reward that I have promised to the faithful.

And even now there are many present this morning in whose hearts is burning a desire that they shall discharge their duty, but there is something that they fear, and the weakness of their flesh is hindering; and I say unto you, Fear not, oh ye little flock, but put your trust in me, and I will give you strength, and as you shall occupy from time to time, and exercise yourselves in the privilege that I have vouchsafed to my people, you shall grow stronger and stronger as the days shall come and go, until many shall be strong with the witnesses of my truth in the midst of the earth.

Yea, the Spirit saith unto the Saints who have come hither: Many of you desire to hear my will concerning you, and the way and manner in which you shall hear is faithfulness in the discharge of your duty, and I will bless you. Therefore, hesitate not, neither await, nor put away from you that invitation that burns within your heart, that you shall be recognized as in the faith by the confession before my people as is required of you, that in public and in private you shall pour out your souls in humble, earnest prayer, and then you shall have strength that when God's Spirit moves upon you, as it has and should and now moves upon many here under this tent, that you shall be able to stand up and to bear witness that God hath wrought with you for good.

And unto my servant John [Garver], the Spirit of God saith unto thee; I have watched over thee; I have guarded thy ways and inspired thy thoughts, and he who has been the adversary of my work from the beginning hath taken note of that which thou hast been able to accomplish, and he shall not oppose thee, but through false friendship and flattery and deceit, through the instrumentality of those who shall be your false friends, he shall work upon you to destroy you, and by reason of making you think that you are more than you are. Therefore, be humble; be contrite; seek earnestly, my servant, for wisdom, for understanding, and for knowledge, and be on thy guard, and thou shalt have my Spirit and thou shalt not be deceived by that which comes to thee in the wrong manner.

And unto my servant George [Hilliard], I have watched over thee all these many years, called thee out of the world, and from the ways of sin, because of the integrity of thy heart; and notwithstanding thou hast offended thy brethren many times by thy plainness of speech, thou art forgiven. Be steadfast, for in thy trials and thy afflictions and thy difficulties, thy prayers and the prayers of my people have been successful in raising thee up for the work that I have for thee yet to do. It has indeed been wisdom in me, it has been my loving kindness for the good of my work that thou shouldst continue yet in the office that thou hast been called to.

And unto all my people, I say unto you this morning, Be ye steadfast, be ye humble; for I call upon you not to live in the spirit of the world, nor to be drawn away by the enticements of the world; but to be humble and sincere, keeping in the integrity of your hearts the covenant that you made with me in the waters of regeneration. I am not displeased with you when you labor diligently for the gathering together of the things of this world, and that you may become rich and strong. You shall be both, for you shall gather even of the strength of your hands and the strength of your minds in the accumulation of the things of this world, for my glory and for the upbuilding of my cause. And therefore it shall come to pass that my servants of the bishopric, even of the local bishopric and the general bishopric, that the time will come, by the moving of my Holy Spirit, that they will not need to beg the members of my church that they may fulfill their duty; but their time shall be occupied in caring for that which shall be willingly and readily brought into the treasury of my house. Therefore be humble, and be not harsh one with another; and the ministry shall not find fault one with another in their labors together for the upbuilding of my cause. Remember, oh remember that the time is near by in the past when I had to speak unto my servants to be not harsh one with another. Be not led in that direction; but let the spirit of wisdom, let the spirit of humility, let the spirit of love abide in you, and let your lives be devoted to my work, and, as the Lord God liveth, that which he promised unto his people, the blessings that you have received shall be forgotten by reason of the greater blessings that I have in store. My hand is held out. Fear not; be steadfast and faithful, and thus saith the Spirit, ye shall be blessed.

SPIRITUAL COMMUNICATION GIVEN AT THE SAINTS' REUNION, LAMONI, WEDNESDAY MORNING PRAYER SERVICE, JULY 31, 1912, THROUGH ELDER JOHN GARVER, OF LAMONI STAKE PRESIDENCY.

Unto my servant Lorenzo [Haye], I have a word of cheer this morning, if thou wilt hearken unto my voice. I have known thy weakness all the days of thy membership among my people; but I have also known of thy willingness to do thy part. Thou art more willing than thou art conscious, thou art more able than thou art conscious to do; and thou shouldst remember that thou hast been asked by the Bishop of my church to occupy where thou dost now occupy because the experiences of thy past life have given thee that wisdom and understanding that are necessary in the matters that thou art called to pass upon from time to time. And I, the Lord, thy God, will give unto thee that wisdom that thou lackest in the time of thy need, and will bless thee, and thou shalt be able to receive of my wisdom to perform thy duty. So fear not. I have blessed thee with health even beyond that which thou hadst before thou didst take upon thee this burden, and if thou wilt continue to work thou shalt have joy and comfort in thy service.

Thou art not able to go out in the field and work in the ministry as other men are able to do; but thou art able to work in this way. Therefore, continue in thy work until it shall be accomplished.

And unto my servant, W. B. Paul, I have a word this morning. Thou hast desired that I should speak unto thee. I am pleased to recognize thee. Thou hast been faithful unto that which I have called thee to do heretofore. In so far as conditions have permitted, in so far as the condition of thy companion would permit, and in so far as thou couldst withdraw thyself from thy daily toils, thou hast served me in an acceptable manner. Thou hast been enabled to do much and thy service is acceptable to me; and I desire to place upon thee an additional calling, even the calling of a priest among my people. If thou canst find it in thy heart to accept of this place I shall bless thee and my Spirit shall rest upon thee and shall be with thee, and thou wilt be able to labor in that manner that is acceptable unto me.

And there are many of you among my people whom I desire to call into my ministry. Even some who now occupy it is my desire in time, and very soon, to call them to other places; and there are those who occupy not now in any place in the ministry who shall hereafter occupy if they are faithful.

I would have my servants to remember that when they are called upon to occupy in the ministry in my church, they are required to study to show themselves approved; and when mine apostle wrote to one of my young ministers in this connection he was admonished, and he understood that he was admonished, not only to study the word of God, but also to study his own manner and method and his deportment, in the stand and out of the stand, that his admonition might always be effectual and accepted by my people. I admonish my servants that they should remember that it is I who have called them to do the work; not in their own way, but they should seek to perform it in my way; and they will not be able to do this unless they are occupying before me in that manner that shall enable them to call down upon themselves the peace and presence of my divine Spirit.

I have spoken unto thee by my Spirit this morning. Ye have hearkened. Your souls have rejoiced within you. Remember that I, the Lord thy God, am patiently waiting to bestow upon you more abundantly. It has been said unto you before upon these grounds that this my Spirit, of which you have been permitted to partake, is but a foretaste of that which will come upon you hereafter. Therefore, be of good cheer; press on to the mark of the high calling in Christ Jesus, and thou shalt experience hereafter even above that which ye have known before. My hands are full; my hands are heavy with blessings for my people, not only spiritual blessings, but temporal blessings also; and it is my good pleasure that you shall continue after this manner after you shall disperse from these grounds, and in your meetings in the various communities you will receive an added abundance of my divine grace. This will be possible unto you if you will continue acceptably and seek not to do your own will, and not to work after your own manner; but to study my ways that you may occupy in your calling in a manner acceptable unto me. Thus saith the Spirit.

A VISION GIVEN TO BROTHER R. M. ELVIN SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 3, 1912, AT SAINTS' REUNION, LAMONI, IOWA, AND TOLD BY HIM IN THE PREACHING SERVICE FOLLOWING.

Having occupied twice in the prayer meetings I hesitated to occupy at this time; but I went and told Brother Smith that which I had during the prayer meeting, and he and Brother Hilliard concluded I should present it before Brother Hilliard occupies.

I saw a beautiful plot of ground, perhaps twelve acres, and perfectly level, the first part of it with no breaks, then a slight incline with trees uniform and symmetrical in size, and in their being trimmed up about forty feet, spreading out, giving beautiful shade, and those around the tabernacle or pavilion were the larger, and they were smaller as they receded from the pavilion. There were flower beds in stars, in squares, in crescents, and in crosses, the most beautiful flowers that I ever saw.

The entrance to this plot of ground was about twenty feet wide, with two large stone pillars, one on either side of the driveway. The driveway was about twenty feet wide and ran about one hundred feet, then formed a circle around the tabernacle; but through the grounds from and around it there were many four-foot walks leading to the pavilion. The pavilion was about two hundred or two hundred and fifty feet long. It was built in the form of a cross. The farther end was perfectly square; the ends of the cross were perfectly square, and the pulpit and choir platform was a semicircle with the seats rising one above the other, accommodating about two hundred persons. The speaker's platform was about six feet wide and about fifteen feet long and stood outside the singers' platform, and from two pillars, one at either end of the speaker's platform, there was a sign (the ground-work was of a cream color, the letters standing out about an inch, were pure white, glistening white), on which was written: "Welcome to those who love the Lord." On the pulpit, the altar of God, were beautiful white letters. This altar was also of a semicircle. On this, the right side of the pavilion, perhaps forty or fifty feet away from the altar, was another written sign, and this sign was: "These are they who have made sacrifice and are my children." Upon this, the left side of the pavilion, was another inscription: "None are permitted here to whom the message of my truth hath been given and they have not complied with the instructions that were given unto them."

I was not permitted to enter into this great meeting. There were hundreds upon hundreds gathered. There was a veil between myself and the individual who was with me that gave me instruction, and the assembly; but on the platform I saw four aged men who were presiding over this meeting, and they and the congregation were dressed in white. Two of these men I thought that I knew. One looked to me like Bishop Israel L. Rogers, and the other Bishop George A. Blakeslee. The other two men I did not know.

In the congregation there was perfect order, and there was no rustling upon the floor. I neither know nor understand the reason why there was no noise. Even when men walked upon the floor there was no sound from their walking.

Among those that I saw stand up and speak, and they spoke very briefly, not occupying more than a minute at a time, the first one that I knew was David Dancer; the second one was James Whitehead. I also saw the father of William A. and Frank Hopkins, of Lamoni, and Elijah Banta, and many others.

I saw in that audience no living person that I now know, but many that I knew here and elsewhere of the church membership. There was a sweet, solemn, pleasant feeling in my heart. I know not what the vision meant, but I enjoyed the sight. It was as a flash to my view, and the Spirit of the Lord rested upon me. I felt impressed to tell it to Brother Smith, and I have told it now at his request.

It is not always wise to publish reports of spiritual manifestations, for at least two reasons. First, they are sometimes of a strictly personal nature, and concern only the one to whom they are addressed, and indeed can be understood only by him. Second, they are not submitted to the scrutiny of the quorums of the church, as are revelations coming from the one set apart to receive revelations for the church, and if published some are so unwise as to accept them as law and of equal binding force with revelations adopted by the church and published in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

But in this case there seems to be nothing in these manifestations of such a personal nature that harm will be done by publication, while there is much of general interest that may edify and strengthen the Saints. Let them be read with the Spirit and the understanding. And let the reader remember that all such communications, wherever published, rest on their own merits, not having been passed upon by the church, and should be read by individuals and weighed in the balance of common sense and scriptural comparison, all of them waiting the final test of time as to their fulfillment. E. A. S.

"JOURNAL OF HISTORY."

The Journal of History for October will contain as its leading article the Genealogy of Joseph Smith, by his great-grandson, Heman Hale Smith. This is a careful research into the family of the Prophet, and allied families, for several generations back. Those who are interested in the study of genealogy in general, and those who have special interest in the question so often affirmed that Joseph Smith came from a family of low morals and reputation, will find the study of this article very interesting and instructive.

This number will also contain the continuation of the autobiography of Elder Charles Derry; and the biographies of Patriarchs Alexander H. Smith and Joseph F. Burton. Subscribe now and do not miss this number. The Journal of History is only one dollar per year.

Address Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

MAGAZINE HERALD.

Because of one of those peculiar situations to which printing establishments are more subject than any other, we were forced, after having printed the cover of the MAGAZINE HERALD of last week, to make a change in order to keep within the bounds of twenty-four pages. Unfortunately the article of Brother John Smith most nearly corresponded in length to the excess and it therefore was forced out. We regret that anything had to be left out, and especially do we regret that it was Brother Smith's able article, one to which the brother has evidently given much thought and consideration. We doubly regret that through a fault in our method of getting out the HERALD we listed the brother's article on the cover, thereby whetting the appetite, only to disappoint our readers by its absence from the body of the paper. We take this method of making proper explanation and trust Brother Smith will pardon the error. If he can do so surely our readers will. We take pleasure in running this article in this issue.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

BROTHER PITT ACTIVE IN AUSTRALIA.—Brother F. G. Pitt reports that he has made a tour of all the branches in Australia. He has been in that country just one year at time of writing, the latter part of June. He had traveled more than three thousand miles, including five hundred miles by carriage; preached 155 sermons; baptized 21; and given 250 patriarchal blessings; besides doing a vast amount of work visiting the Saints, strengthening and comforting and educating them. The editors add the latter part, as Brother Pitt is not inclined to boast in his reports. He says that this has been one of his most active and most enjoyable years. Notice how enjoyment and activity go together in church work. Sister Pitt has been a great help to him in his work. They expect to remain a year longer than they had planned, and will probably visit New Zealand, the South Sea Islands, and Honolulu, returning home by way of the Pacific coast.

BROTHER LAKE BUSY AT TAHITI.—Under date of July 25 Brother Charles H. Lake wrote from Tahiti stating that he had arrived safely in his field and was hard at work. Brother Savage was at that time on the "low islands." Brother May was busy with the printing work. After helping him for a time with the translating and printing and kindred work, Brother Lake expects to make a tour of the "low islands." These low, coral islands, lie far out from Tahiti, are hard to come at, and present many hardships to the missionary. He reports that Brethren May and Savage are both energetic men and doing a good work there.

A LETTER FROM JERUSALEM.—Brother Rees Jenkins writes from Jerusalem reporting three new baptisms at that place. He is working away against difficulties. There is a great lack of literature in the various languages that are used in that place. Jerusalem is a rallying ground for all nations, and missionaries there should be equipped with tracts in various languages. He says that the nations are awakening to the fact that the Jews are returning. Jews with whom he has talked believe that in time the Holy Land will contain four and one half million Jews. But many of these Jews are not religiously inclined. They do not see the hand of God in the matter at all. It is merely a matter of sentiment, or of national pride, and national rehabilitation. The Bible has failed to reach the Jews. Perhaps the day is coming when the Bible and the Book of Mormon together will accomplish that work.

Hymns and Poems

Selected and Original

The Master's Touch.

In the still air the music lies unheard;
In the rough mangle beauty hides unseen.
To make the music and the beauty needs
The Master's touch, the sculptor's chisel keen.

Great Master, touch us with thy skillful hand,
Let not the music that is in us die!
Great Sculptor, hew and polish us, nor let Hidden and lost, thy form within us lie.

Spare not the stroke! Do with us as thou wilt!
Let there be naught unfinished, broken, marred;
Complete thy purpose, that we may become Thy perfect image. Thou our God and Lord!
—Horatio Bonar.

The man who lays his hand upon a woman,
Save in the way of kindness, is a wretch
Whom 'twere base flattery to name a coward.
—John Tobin.

Original Articles

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Paper read by Elder John Smith, president of the Lamoni Stake, before a meeting of the Quorum of High Priests at the General Conference of 1911.

Question 1: "Has the presiding elder of a branch the right to judge or decide as to whether or not due and diligent labor has been performed before the appointing of a court, when such elder is not implicated in the case or disqualified in any way? In other words, Is it the duty and privilege of a branch president to decide whether or not a case arising in the branch over which he presides is ready to go to trial? If not, whose duty is it?"

ELDER JOHN SMITH.

President of the Lamoni Stake.

It is the right and duty of the officer who appoints the court to ascertain if "due and diligent labor has been performed" before the appointing of a court, and if that power falls upon the branch presiding elder to so appoint, for this duty falls upon all men who have authority to appoint elders' courts. See Procedure in Church Courts, page 3, paragraph 1, "Precedent to any action in the church courts there must be full and consistent labor performed as required in the church laws and rules governing, and no action can properly be maintained against a member where due and diligent labor has not first been performed on the part of those whose duty it is under the law to do this work. In case a member should put himself out of the way of labor, making efforts to evade the officers so that labor can not be performed, or should he persistently decline to receive and hear the officers, whose duty it is under the law to perform this labor, then such action and refusal to hear on the part of the member may be shown in justification of the procedure against him; otherwise the basis of the action is the performance of kindly, diligent, and brotherly labor, for the purpose of, in good faith, reclaiming the member. Paragraph 2, after the full performance of labor referred to in the preceding paragraph, and in case where members refuse to hear either the party offended or the officers who have performed the work of labor, it is proper for either the party offended, or the officers to enter a complaint against such member, a copy of which shall be given to the member before the same goes before the church, and then presented to the officers of the branch or district or other division of the church work, whose duty it is to act in such matters, as provided in the Scriptures and outlined in the church Rules of Order."

What is it that is "provided in the Scriptures"? Jesus says, Matthew 18:15-17, Inspired Translation, "Moreover, if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone; if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses, every word may be established. And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church, but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto you as a heathen and a publican." The only proper place to "tell it to the church," is before an elders' court, and this should not be done until all efforts at reconciliation have failed, as outlined in the church Rules of Order, see Rules of Order and Debate, page 96, paragraph 3, and part of 4. "No member shall be entitled to proceed against another for an offense before any church court unless he shall first have made efforts to reconcile, or become reconciled to the member offending, as directed in the Scriptures."

The steps required are, "The member offended shall seek opportunity to state his matter of grievance to the one offending, as said by the Savior 'between him and thee alone.' If explanation, apology, restitution, or reconciliation be not affected after candid and fair effort shall have been made by the one offended, then he shall take with him some teacher of the church, or if such teacher be not obtainable, or be an interested party, a deacon if obtainable, otherwise a member, and shall try a second time to secure an adjustment of the difficulty existing, but shall not state the matter of grievance to such officer or member except in the presence of the party offending." If no reconciliation shall be effected by this second visit and effort, the offended, if he shall so choose, may lay the matter before the presiding officer of the branch, or before the presiding elder of the district, or mission, if it be not in an organized branch or district, who shall cause to be appointed or appoint from the eldership of the church such persons as may properly sit, to examine and try the case; or such court may be appointed by the branch." After the first and second effort at reconciliation, the accused is to have a third chance to become reconciled. After the charges have been placed in the hands of the person authorized to appoint a court, paragraph 4, "When it shall be determined to call an offending member before a court of the church, the branch or officer appointing the court shall cause the charge or charges made against the accused in writing to be prepared, stating definitely and specifically what the offense is charged to be, a copy of which shall be furnished the accused, if practicable, so that he may, if he so desire, make settlement of the difficulty by reconciliation or otherwise, and avoid further action. This copy may be given to the accused by any teacher, or deacon, or member in the absence of said officers, or if left at his usual place of residence with a member of his family, over eight years of age, it shall be held as given to him."

Upon the failure of the accused to make restitution, or explanation, the court shall be appointed, and shall proceed to examine and try the cause upon the charge, the original of which, or a copy thereof, shall be furnished them by the party appointing them. They shall also give due notice to all parties of time and place and when and where the trial shall be had, as provided in the Book of Rules. This is the third and last effort provided in the law, and my experience teaches me that it is profitable to follow, and not until this is done should the court be appointed. I have seen, at this stage, an adjustment reached without the court being appointed.

Question 2; Has a presiding elder the right to direct the teacher or teachers in the branch in their labors to bring about a reconciliation between its members when there is trouble between them? If so, to what extent?

It is both the right and duty of the presiding elder not only to direct the teacher, but instruct him what to do, and assist him all he can in having difficulties adjusted. Branch officers are under the jurisdiction of the presiding elder of the branch, and they should listen to needful advice when given in a proper manner.

Question 3; Is it right for a missionary in charge or a district president to appoint or cause to be appointed a court to hear any case between members of a fully organized branch without first consulting the presiding elder of the branch, regarding the case, when such elder is not a party interested or disqualified in any way?

No; if the missionary or district president or any other church officer wants to do anything in a branch, he should consult and recognize the presiding elder and inform him what he thinks should be done, and learn why the matter to which he refers did not receive his attention. In Doctrine and Covenants, section 122, paragraphs 7 and 8, we read, "The work now lying before the missionary quorums of the church is of such increased magnitude and importance—the field so white unto the harvest, and the need for laborers so great—that the Twelve and Seventy under their direction, together with such high priests and elders as can travel and preach as missionaries, shall be free to wait upon their ministry in gospel work, leaving the branches and districts where organization is effected to the care and administration of the standing ministers, high priests, elders, priests, teachers, and deacons, so far as possible; thus freeing these spiritual authorities and leaving them at liberty to push the preaching of the word into the new fields now widening before them; in which work, if they will but now take counsel, saith the Spirit, they shall feel a peace and vigor of mind surpassing what they have enjoyed in the past. That part of the law which says: 'It is the duty of the Twelve, also, to ordain and set in order all the other officers of the church,' is to be understood by the revelation which went before and in accordance with which it was written; and which follows after it in the book; and when those officers are ordained and set in their order, in the church, they should be left to administer in the things unto which they were ordained, having charge of the affairs over which they are called and set apart to preside; the Twelve and Seventy administering as those prosecuting the work of preaching with the warning voice, baptizing, organizing and setting in order, then pushing their ministry into other fields until the world is warned. It is the will of God that they do this; yea, verily, thus saith the Spirit, If they will now enter upon this work, leaving the burden of care in organized districts or conferences to the standing ministry, under the presidency of the church; observing the law already given to ordain and set high priests or elders to preside in large branches and in districts."

The above shows that the Lord intends that all officers should be recognized in their places, Doctrine and Covenants, section 120, paragraphs 4, 7: "In both branches and districts the presiding officers should be considered and respected in their offices; nevertheless, the traveling presiding councils of the church being made by the law, their calling and the voice of the church the directing, regulating and advising authorities of the church, and representing it abroad, should when present in either district or branch be regarded and considered as the leading representative authorities of the church, and be respected as such, their counsel and advice be sought and respected when given; and in cases of conflict, or extremity, their decision should be listened to and regarded, subject to the appeal and adjudication provided for in the law. . . . In matters of personal importance and conduct in branches or districts, the authorities of those branches and districts should be authorized and permitted to settle them; the traveling councils taking cognizance of those only in which the law and usages of the church are involved, and the general interests of the church are concerned. Where cases of difficulty are of long standing, the council may require local authorities to adjust them; and in case of failure to do so, may regulate them as required by their office and duty; and this that the work and church may not be put to shame and the preaching of the word be hindered."

The Lord has work for all the officers of his church, but he wants willing workers. Could the language be any plainer?

Brethren, hear what the Lord says, Doctrine and Covenants 104, paragraph 44: "Wherefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence. He that is slothful shall not be counted worthy to stand."

Well might the psalmist say, Psalm 119: 18, "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law." The law must be obeyed to come into the church, and when a member is separated from the church, it should be according to law.

Question 4; Is it right for an offended member to seek counsel or advice from anyone with the object in view of making a case against the offender? And would it be right for any member to give such advice?

Yes; eternal agency gives a person the privilege to seek advice whenever he desires, but it would be better to seek it from those who, under the law and authority from God, are made the teachers of that law.

Question 5; In an event where the case has gone before the courts of the church, and in the process of trial counter charges are presented to the courts and acknowledged, should a court be convened to consider them, without question as to the labor that has been performed? and whose duty and right would it be to take action?

I am not aware that the church makes any provision for what are called counter charges. No court can put a person on trial for anything but what is specified in the charges, and all charges must be made in the legal way, and labor must be performed, and no court can legally proceed in the trial of any member if the efforts for reconciliation have not been performed. See the matter before referred to in the beginning of this article, Procedure in Church Courts, page 3, paragraph 1. Precedent to any action in the church courts, there must be a full and consistent labor performed as required in the church laws and rules governing. A court can not take from a person on trial what is called counter charges, against another; his case must be disposed of, and then if he wants to do it, he must make his charges to the proper officer in the legal way. A court, when it meets, should first find out if proper labor was performed with the one charged before he is brought before the court; and if not, they should dismiss the case and so report to the power appointing them. The law says this labor must be done, and no court can set it aside. It must be done once, twice, and a third time before the court can legally act.

• * * * •

DEALING WITH THE ERRING.—NO. 8.

BY CHARLES FRY.

PENALTY.

Penalties are provided for transgressors by the civil law, proportionately with the seriousness of the offense. They are fine, requiring the payment of a certain sum of money; imprisonment for a stated time; both fine and imprisonment; and death.

The church is not authorized by either the law of God or the law of the land to inflict any such penalty, though in serious offenses the church is directed to turn the transgressor over to the law of the land.

Penalty is defined by Webster as "punishment for crime or offense: the suffering in person or property which is annexed by law or judicial decision to the commission of crime, offense, or trespass."

There is but one penalty which the church may place upon any of its members, that is expulsion. By the frequent mention of penalties in connection with elders' courts, one would infer that it was the duty or province of the church to affix a penalty of its own choosing to the various classes and degrees of offense, but the law has stated only one, regardless of what the offense may be. In using the word penalty in this connection, it is with considerable latitude, for strictly speaking, expulsion from the church is not the penalty attached to the divine law, but is provided for the protection of the innocent in the church. The man who pays the penalty of the civil law is then free from that law, but the man who violates the law of God is not made free in any degree by being expelled from the church; the real penalty of the law yet awaits him. So, strictly speaking, expulsion is not a penalty.

In this paper, however, I take the word in its broadest meaning, and grant that expulsion is a penalty applied to the transgressor by the church, under legal conditions. Some of the statements of the law are here given:

He that stealeth and will not repent shall be cast out.

He that lieth and will not repent shall be cast out.

He that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit, and if he repents not shall be cast out.

He that committeth adultery and repenteth not shall be cast out.

He that sinneth and repenteth not shall be cast out.

Of one who has been convicted of adultery the law says:

The church shall lift up their hands against him or her, that they may be dealt with according to the law of God . . . and thus ye shall do in all cases which shall come before you.

If he or she do any manner of iniquity, he or she shall be delivered up unto the law, even that of God. (These are all found in Doctrine and Covenants, section 42.)

These are sufficient to show the law upon this point. A number of offenses are specified, and the penalty in each case, if there be no repentance, is expulsion, and the rule is made to apply to "all cases which shall come before you," for it is plainly stated that "if he or she do any manner of iniquity, he or she shall be delivered up unto the law, even that of God," and "he that sinneth and repenteth not shall be cast out."

The law of God, more fully stated, is this:

I command all men everywhere to repent.—Doctrine and Covenants 16: 3.

And surely every man must repent or suffer.—Doctrine and Covenants 18: 1.

Whosoever will not repent of his sins, the same shall not be numbered among my people; and this shall be observed from this time forward.—Book of Mormon, Mosiah 11: 141.

May the Lord grant unto you remonance, that ye may not bring down his wrath upon you, that ye may not be bound down by the chains of hell, that ye may not suffer the second death.—Book of Mormon, Alma 10: 30.

In these passages is set forth the principle that it is necessary to repent, for to continue in sin inevitably brings the penalty of the law,—suffering, wrath, the bondage of hell, the second death.

The law of God operates by mercy and justice. "Mercy hath compassion on mercy, and claimeth her own; justice continueth its course, and claimeth its own." When men truly repent they come under mercy, and they receive forgiveness.

Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins.—Acts 2: 38.

Yea, and as often as my people repent, will I forgive them their trespasses against me. And ye shall also forgive one another your trespasses.—Mosiah 11: 139, 140.

By the justice of God, mercy is granted to those who repent and forsake their sins, and they enter into his favor and are redeemed. But sin can not dwell with God, nor can the sinner, and he who chooses to continue to sin can not receive forgiveness, for the law of mercy does not apply to him, but he remains under the law of justice and must receive the penalty which justice demands. Alma speaks of this quite lengthily in the nineteenth chapter of his book, from which I quote the following:

Therefore, according to justice, the plan of redemption could not be brought about, only, on conditions of repentance of men in this probationary state; yea, this preparatory state; for except it were for these conditions, mercy could not take effect except it should destroy the work of justice. Now the work of justice could not be destroyed: if so God would cease to be God.—Verses 94 and 95.

But there is a law given and a punishment affixed, and repentance granted; which repentance, mercy claimeth: otherwise, justice claimeth the creature, and executeth the law, and the law inflicteth the punishment; if not so, the works of justice would be destroyed, and God would cease to be God. But God ceaseth not to be God, and mercy claimeth the penitent, and mercy cometh because of the atonement; and the atonement bringeth to pass the resurrection of the dead: and the resurrection of the dead bringeth back men into the presence of God; and thus they are restored into his presence; to be judged according to their works; according to the law and justice; for behold justice exerciseth all his demands, and also mercy claimeth all which is her own; and thus, none but the truly penitent are saved.—Verses 104 to 106.

The law of God is operative upon all men, whether in the church or out of it. "Every man must repent or suffer," and he who has been brought into the light, and has learned what repentance is, partaken of the mercy of God through forgiveness, and made a member of the body of Christ, and blessed with his Spirit; if he shall turn away to sin and refuse to repent, can the church stand in the way of the justice of God by forgiving him, when the law of mercy no longer applies to him?

Since justice claims the unrepentant, the sinner must pay the penalty of his sin, even though he retain his membership in the church through the neglect of the church to remove him, or through an illegal forgiveness. Neglect or refusal upon the part of the church to fulfill the law upon this point, can not make void the law in its final effect, for the Lord has said of transgressors in the church that they "shall be detected and shall be cut off either in life or in death, even as I will." (Doctrine and Covenants 50:3.) To forgive an unrepentant sinner, or through neglect to leave him in the church, is directly contrary to the law, and brings the church itself under condemnation, while it adds no blessing to him, nor does it deliver him from the justice of God.

No person can legally gain admission to the church without repentance; it is one of the essentials to membership. The church is, supposedly, made up of penitent persons who have by the ordinances taken upon themselves the name of Christ, and whose whole purpose is to serve him and keep his commandments. A member who loses this purpose, becomes impenitent, and chooses to walk in sin, is a menace to the rest of the membership. His influence is disastrous to the weak and innocent; his presence is a reproach to the church before the world. The faithful members have a right to be protected from such, and God has required that they shall be protected. His law says,

"HE SHALL BE CAST OUT."

A few days before this law, which is a part of the law of the church as given in Doctrine and Covenants 42 was given, the Lord said to the elders of the church:

Behold I give unto you a commandment, that ye shall assemble yourselves together to agree upon my word, and by the prayer of your faith ye shall receive my law, that ye may know how to govern my church, and have all things right before me. . . . and ye shall see that my law is kept.

Thus it is seen that the Lord intended that the elders should know how to govern the church, and that they should see that his law was kept, and that they might have all things right before him. The statement continues:

He that receiveth my law and doeth it the same is my disciple; and he that saith he receiveth it and doeth it not, the same is not my disciple, and shall be cast out from among you; for it is not meet that the things which belong to the children of the kingdom, should be given to them that are not worthy, or to dogs, or the pearls to be cast before swine.—Doctrine and Covenants 41:2.

The strictness of this law is also indicated, and the elders warned against laxity or neglect.

These words are given unto you, and they are pure before me; wherefore, beware how you hold them, for they are to be answered upon your souls in the day of judgment. Even so. Amen.—Paragraph 3.

Harshness and haste are no part of the law, for, as has been shown before, the law should be fulfilled with kindness and compassion. The spirit of vindictiveness in the officer endangers the officer himself, and I call to mind some who have manifested that spirit in dealing with others and in later years they themselves have fallen victims to the same or worse evils than those for which they sought to punish others. This result seems to be in harmony with that what the Lord has said relative to rebuking evil spirits, that

You shall proclaim against that spirit with a loud voice, that it is not of God; not with railing accusation, that ye be not overcome; neither with boasting, nor rejoicing, lest you be seized therewith.—Doctrine and Covenants 50:7.

The warning may well apply to the matter of dealing with the transgressors, for the officer or member who vindictively works for the expulsion of another, and then gloats over its accomplishment, has already opened his soul for the admission of foul spirits, and unless he speedily repents, will by them be dragged down to destruction. The motive which should actuate the administrator of the law is clearly set forth in the following:

And he that repents not of his sins, and confesseth them not, then ye shall bring him before the church, and do with him as the scriptures saith unto you, either by commandment, or by revelation. And this ye shall do that God might be glorified, not because ye forgive not, having not compassion, but that ye may be justified in the eyes of the law, that ye may not offend him who is your Lawgiver.—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2.

Do all to the glory of God.—1 Corinthians 10: 31.

A member convicted of transgression may be spared a reasonable length of time in which to repent. That period of suspense should depend upon the nature of the offense, and the attitude of the member, but such suspense could not, and should not, be construed as being a penalty. There is no warrant in the law for suspending a member for six months, more or less, as a punishment for some wrong he has committed, for if he repents he is to be forgiven, otherwise the law itself states the penalty.

If the church had penalties, justice would require that they be graded according to the seriousness of the offense. But there are none. The man who defrauds his neighbor of five dollars and will not repent, is as dangerous to the welfare and spiritual life of the church as the one who defrauds his neighbor of five thousand, and if he is unwilling to repent of the smaller offense, he would not repent of a greater one. The duty of the church is made plain: he must be cast out; not for his act of sin, but because through impenitence he has become dead to the law, a dead branch which can bear no fruit. The church is not authorized to do more, nor is it justified in doing less.

Justice and judgment is the penalty which is affixed unto my law.—Doctrine and Covenants 81: 1.

(The end.)

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

WHAT IS A SEER?

How are seers constituted or made? What can they do, that no other men can? In order to get correct answers to the above questions, we will apply to the law and the testimony.

I will first call attention to the testimony of Joseph Smith, the Seer. Here is what he said that an angel told him: "He [Moroni] also said that the fullness of the everlasting gospel was contained in it, as delivered by the Savior to the ancient inhabitants. Also that there were two stones in silver bows, and these stones fastened to a breastplate constituted what is called the Urim and Thummim, deposited with the plates, and the possession and use of these stones was what constituted seers in ancient or former times, and that God had prepared them for the purpose of translating the book."—Church History, vol. 1, p. 13.

As sure as the above testimony is true,—and I have no doubt but it is true—all former seers had been constituted or made by receiving and using the Urim and Thummim. Joseph Smith the Seer was so constituted. He testifies that, "At length the time arrived for obtaining the plates, the Urim and Thummim, and the breastplate"; that this same heavenly messenger [Moroni] delivered them to him. (Church History, vol. 1, p. 17.) Here Joseph Smith was constituted a seer, as seers had been constituted in ancient times. It had been a long time since there was a seer, to the day that Joseph Smith was constituted one, but we see that he was made a seer like the others had been before him. We soon see there was a demonstration that showed beyond successful contradiction that he was a seer, for he commenced to translate from the Nephite record that was written upon the plates, into the English language, by the Urim and Thummim that the angel delivered to him; and in addition to this he commenced to receive some grand and glorious revelations by means of the Urim and Thummim, as other seers had done before him.

Now let us compare his testimony with the testimony of the ancient prophets; but before we do that we wish to call the reader's attention to the fact that Moroni, who deposited the plates and the Urim and Thummim in the hill of Cumorah, had charge of them until he delivered them to Joseph Smith, and after he had finished the translation of the unsealed part of the plates, he delivered the plates, and the Urim and Thummim back to the angel Moroni, who has charge of them to this good day.

We will now consider the testimony of the witnesses. We find in the Book of Mormon: "And whosoever has these things, is called seer, after the manner of old times."—Mosiah 12: 21. The things referred to in the above quotation were the Urim and Thummim. This testimony is in harmony with the testimony of the angel Moroni to Joseph Smith, jr.

Again we find by reference to the Book of Mosiah 12: 19: "Now these things were prepared from the beginning, and were handed down from generation to generation, for the purpose of interpreting languages; and they have been kept and preserved by the hand of the Lord, that he should discover to every creature who should possess the land, the iniquities and abominations of his people."

From the above we gather that God has prepared the Urim and Thummim for the purpose of revealing great things to his people, yea, greater revelations than he gives by any other means, as we learn by reference to Mosiah 5: 80, Authorized Version: "And also, things shall be made known by them, which otherwise could not be known."

King Limhi said that a seer is greater than a prophet. Ammon said that a seer is a revelator, and a prophet also; and "a gift which is greater, can no man have, except he should possess the power of God, which no man can; yet a man may have great power given him from God."—Mosiah 5: 76, 77.

From these references we learn that a seer is a prophet as well as a seer; hence, sometimes seers are called prophets. Yet all prophets are not seers. For many reasons prophets are called and ordained by the Lord, but are not constituted or made by receiving the Urim and Thummim and receiving the gift to use them. Again we find no account of there being more than one seer at the same time in the world, while it is common for prophets to be contemporary.

Again we find that whosoever has the Urim and Thummim and is commanded to look into them, the same is called seer. In connection with being revelators they were translators of ancient languages by the Urim and Thummim.

We will next notice what Noah Webster, LL. D., has to say upon the subject of a seer: "Seer; one who sees; as, a seer of visions. 2. A prophet, a person who foresees future events." We see that Webster's testimony is exactly in harmony with all other witnesses that we have examined upon the subject. He tells us that they receive revelations by different means, and that they are prophets, as we have seen that Ammon testified that a seer was a prophet also.

We will now make a summary of what we have learned by our application to the law and the testimony upon the subject. We have found that it is God's prerogative to constitute, or make seers in all the past ages of the world by the means that he has prepared, which is, and was the Urim and Thummim. The angel Moroni testified to Joseph Smith, jr., that to possess and use the Urim and Thummim was what constituted seers in former times; that is to say, before Joseph Smith was made a seer, by receiving and using the Urim and Thummim. We have found that God has no other means to constitute or make seers. We have found that a greater gift can no man receive than to be constituted a seer, and that they can know of things past, present, and future, and that they are translators of ancient languages. We have learned that a seer is a prophet as well as a seer, and that there never has been more than one on the earth at the same time; while there have been at different periods of the world's history a number of prophets that were contemporary. We have found, even by the testimony of Noah Webster, LL. D., that a seer receives revelations by different means, and that they are prophets. We have seen that Ammon said that a seer is a prophet also. All seers are prophets; but not all prophets are seers, as we have found. It seems to me there is not much trouble to decide what a seer is if we only apply to the law and the testimony upon the subject. I submit this for the consideration of all whom it may concern.

E. W. NUNLEY.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY FRANCES.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. F. M. Smith, vice president, 630 South Chrysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. D. J. Krahl, secretary, 724 South Chrysler Street, Independence, Missouri; Mrs. Letha Tilton, treasurer, Lamoni, Iowa, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, 1595 West Walnut, Independence, Missouri, Mrs. H. A. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.

Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Mollie Davis, superintendent, Pittsburg, Kansas.

Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Eugenics Department, Mrs. Clara Curtis, superintendent, 2200 Indiana Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.

Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, superintendent, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.

Young Women's Department, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, superintendent, 707 South Fuller Avenue, Independence, Missouri.

Sewing and Aid Societies, Mrs. M. B. Nicholson, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Home and Child Welfare Department, September Reading.

WE SHOULD GUARD THE RIGHTS OF CHILDHOOD.

He who has never tried the companionship of a little child has carelessly passed one of the greatest pleasures of life.

The gleeful laugh of a little child is the best possible home music, and the graceful figures of childhood are the most beautiful statuary.

The infant, in his tiny, beseeching weakness, appeals to the hearts of all who see his helpless form. His little arms are more irresistible than a soldier's, his lips are touched with persuasion that great men have not.

How great was the wisdom of God manifested in implanting in the maternal breast that strong love of its own children that will cause the sacrifice of life in their interest!

This lays deep and broad the foundation for their future education and development.

The command of Christ was, "Feed my lambs," meaning to impress upon his church the duty of caring for the children at the earliest possible period of their lives. Nor can parents and all wellwishers of humanity be too careful to fulfill the promptings of their natures, and the command of Christ in this matter.

One can not tell when the human mind is not in a condition to receive impressions from exterior moral forces. In many instances the most secret and unnoticed influences have been operating for months, and even years, affecting the morality of the individual. Instances are revealed where the fondest parents have been wholly unaware of agents of evil, working upon the morality of their child until it was revealed in open ruin.

The safest plan to secure the moral safety of a child is to begin at the earliest possible moment to lead the mind along proper lines. What a sad picture, when a wretched son or daughter is presented to the parent's view, and glancing backward over the time when plastic will was wholly in their hands, they see many mistakes they have made in the bringing up of their child, and they realize the ruin is partly due to their failure. Many parents are hard pressed by care and labor, and sad to say, some are careless and do not realize that the molding of the character of the young is far more important than the feeding and clothing of the body after the fashion of the times; and many things are neglected that seem trivial matters at the time but in after years affect many lives.

The matter of first importance in the training of the child is the converting and training of the parent, that here may be an exemplary teacher and guide for the imitative mind.

Parents, present and prospective, should study well their duty and the rights of their child. He has the right to be well born, mentally and physically, properly cared for in infancy, and wisely trained to manhood. Too often the child is not considered the important being he really is, and the parents overlook the painstaking care required in his bringing up. Careless of his feelings, they will scold instead of reproving soberly and quietly. Forgetting the danger to the child's self-respect, they employ shame, reproving before others, ridiculing, treading down its feelings, and thus awakening in its bosom a malignant disposition. He is defenseless, not allowed to argue, is often tried, condemned, and punished in a minute, by a parent who acts with less reason than a brute, when, upon more mature examination, the condemned child is found to be innocent of the charge. The result is, the little fellow feels himself a medium upon which the irate parent spends his temper, and of little consequence in life. He sees himself a convenience for grown-up people, hardly supposed to have any rights, is snubbed and chastised until he learns to dodge government and elude authority; then he is whipped because he is such a liar no one can believe in him.

I once knew a little girl whose parents were dead, and she was existing with an old man and woman. Her brilliant mind at an early age attracted attention of all who met her. In presence of the child, remarks like this were made to the foster mother, "Your little girl has remarkable intellectual ability," whereupon the old lady would reply, "Yes; she is smart, but the biggest liar you ever heard talk." The little, innocent eyes would fill with tears, the little bosom heave with anguish at the mother's cruel words. Ere long that hard saying hardened the feelings of the child and she grew along the very lines that the woman was throwing out, until she became a ruined outcast and landed in a "rescue home" for fallen women. A promising light to society and the church was snuffed out by the thoughtless, careless management of her guardians, and in them lies much of the blame for her fall.

Children are more easily led to do good by examples of loving kindness, and tales of well-doing in others, than by being threatened into obedience by records of sin, crime, and punishment.

Oh, what a responsibility, to form a creature, the frailest and feeblest that heaven has made, into the intelligent, fearless sovereign of the whole animated creation, the interpreter, adorer, and representative of divinity! We should begin this great and important task by prenatal culture and influence upon the infant mind by impressions of sincerity, truth, honesty, and all virtues belonging to moral and religious character. Thus being what we should, and by continuous example the welfare of our child is insured in this life and the life to be.

Home, whose name touches every fiber of the human heart with its angelic fingers, must be a haven of rest and peace to our children and enwrap them in its hallowed influence as a protection from the evils surrounding them. If not so, we, as parents, have failed in making home what God intends it shall be.

Home influence may be estimated by the force of its impressions. It makes the first impressions upon the mind of the child, and they are as indelible and durable as life. Home influence is either a blessing or a curse. In either case it is mighty, commencing at birth, going through life, clinging in death, and reaching into eternity. It is great, silent, irresistible, and permanent.

Many a gilded palace is not a home. Our home is what we make it. Some of us, perhaps, are in the habit of building, in our minds, ideal homes. They are generally made up of outward things, houses, gardens, carriages, ornaments and appendages of luxury; and if in life they are not realized, we make it a business to be and make others miserable. It is said that half the women of our country are unhappy because their homes are not as luxurious as they wish.

A tent may be, and often is, more of a home than a palace. If the spirit of congenial friendship link not the hearts of the inmates of a dwelling, it is not a home. If love reign not there, charity spreads not her mantle over weakness, peace prevails not, and religion lays not her hand in benediction on every head, the home is not complete.

Parents, with us lies, in greater measure than we realize, perhaps, the forming of the character of society now and in future time; the progress and accomplishment of God's purposes through his church. We should look well to our home. Make it a type of heaven by faithful service, maintaining the family altar, which is the threshold of heaven. The home that honors God with an altar of devotion may well expect to be blessed.

The dew of heaven falls upon the house where prayer is wont to be made. Family worship, in itself, embodies a hallowing influence that pleads for its observance.

Trials will enter a household. The conflict of wishes, clashing of opinions, and many other causes, will ruffle the family machinery. There is need then of some daily agency that shall softly enfold the homestead with its hallowed and soothing influence. The father needs that which shall quietly lift from his thoughts the disquieting burden of his daily business and bring him back to the duty nearest to him, the training of his children; the mother needs that which shall smooth down the fretting visitation of her increasing toil and trial; the children need that which will neutralize the countless agencies of evil that ever beset them.

Our Father knows all of these needs and commands us to family worship, as the means to lift us above all of the trials of life, and near to him, that he may pour into our souls his Spirit, that by its influence the mind may be expanded, the heart softened, hopes elevated, pursuits ennobled, the world cast into the shade, and the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness realized.

The great wants of our intellectual and moral natures is here met, and home education becomes impregnated with the spirit of preparation for eternity. Family worship, then, is one of the chief necessities of the family, as also a covenant promise to our God.

A brother, of the priesthood, once told me that in his labors as a visiting officer he called at the home of a family of Saints whose every member was faithful to the service of the Lord. The Holy Spirit revealed to him that their success spiritually was primarily due to their constant, sincere, family devotions. In after years the sons became worthy representative ministers of the gospel, the daughters faithful handmaidens of the Lord.

The voice of the Lord to his Saints from time to time, is special exhortation to family devotions, with a renewal of the promise that peace will abide therein and the children will be protected, guided, and guarded by his hand.

If we are diligent in the discharge of duties nearest to us, we shall finally be enabled to perform every work required, however great. If we pass by the little things, reaching for something that is great and renowned in the minds of men, we do so at the eternal cost to ourselves and those dependent upon us for example and guidance.

There is no calling so noble as that of parent, no broader field in the interest of humanity than the home. What a grand privilege to be called upon to labor in this capacity, and yet what a serious undertaking!

May heaven help us to fill this high and holy calling in an acceptable way, that we, with our children, may develop symmetrically into a full and complete salvation.

MOLLIE DAVIS.

EXPLANATION.

We regret that the reading for this month is so late in appearing. The article designed for this number was lost in the mail, and in hope that it might be recovered, the place for it was held open. We regret the break in the regular course occasioned by its loss, but trust that the substitute offered may prove acceptable, and that the missing paper may be found, or possibly rewritten for later use.—EDITOR.

Letter Department

IPSWICH, AUSTRALIA, August 20, 1912.

Dear Herald: Although great seas may divide us, yet thanks to our dear Father in heaven, they do not sever the tie that binds, but just so long as we are joined to our dear Master by the bond of charity, so long will we be bound to each other, and have an interest in each other's welfare.

I am pleased to say that since writing you last, I have been enjoying the blessings of the gospel of our dear Father. One great blessing I longed and prayed for especially, I have just lately received, and that is my patriarchal blessing, which I received under the hands of Patriarch F. G. Pitt. I was told some wonderful things, and received some wonderful promises which will help me in my journey through life. I have realized that He is my all in all. He is my Great Physician, Counselor, and Guide. Yea, he is the very source of my existence, and I realize that without him I can not live. His very words are life to me; not only to my spirit, but also to my body.

I know that the gospel is true, that this church is His, and that he who stands at its head on earth has indeed been called by God to that position. I have the kindest and warmest feelings of love in my heart toward our dear president, and I pray that in his declining years he may be blessed with health and strength, and may receive the sustaining faith and prayers of the Saints, and also their kind sympathy.

I have shed tears of sorrow for our beloved president, when I read the HERALD and saw evidences of jealousy, slander, and hate on the part of some, thus making the load heavier instead of lighter, and causing sorrow, anxiety, and unnecessary worry, instead of joy, peace, and happiness. I have had papers and literature sent repeatedly by W. D. C. Pattyson, Saint Joseph, Missouri; also from a Mr. Grant, Grand Rapids, Michigan. To these and all others I say, that though I am the only Saint in this town, my testimony of the gospel and of Joseph Smith our president is such that I can say that none of those things sent me can move me.

My ambition is to continue faithful to the end, and do my utmost to spread this glorious gospel.

Oh, that we may all be filled with charity; that we may be able to escape those things which are coming on the earth, and that finally we may be saved in the celestial kingdom of God, is the prayer of

Your loving brother in Christ,
F. EDGEWORTH.

NEW LISKEARD, ONTARIO, September 3, 1912.

Dear Saints: As I am not able to go about and help at the daily housework, I feel it is a duty for me this afternoon to write to the HERALD. I love to read the beautiful and encouraging letters its pages contain.

I am not strong in body, and have spells that seem to come from my heart and go to different parts of my body, making it numb. I have taken these spells for about seven years. I ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints that if it is God's will I may get stronger in body and in this glorious latter day work. I feel I am the weakest of all his creatures. I come short at many times in doing my duty, and fall by the wayside at many times, yet I am prone to wander and say and do many things which are displeasing in God's sight. Pray for me, that I may overcome and come up higher.

We are expecting Elder S. G. St. John back, to labor in this part of God's vineyard after the October conference. We have a nice branch of Saints here. Elder William Thompson preaches here every Sunday afternoon and evening, and we also have prayer meeting every Wednesday evening. We have good interest in all our services. I believe there is a good work to be done in these parts. We feel we need the prayers of the Saints of God that his work may prosper in these parts.

A sister in the bonds of love,
NETTIE C. SHEPHERDSON.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, September 8, 1912.

Dear Herald: More than five years have passed away since my eyes first looked upon this lovely country. It still remains good to me, with its great variety of vegetation, fruits and trees. I find the people here much as elsewhere, with all that pertains to humanity: good, bad, and indifferent. My experiences of the past have taught me not to expect too much of others, but to help myself all I can with God's help. Religiously, it seems to me that the opportunities here to do good and be useful are plentiful. Perhaps one of the greatest opportunities to accomplish a great end in these precarious or perilous times, is the United Order of Enoch. Is not the world heedlessly planning its own ruin? digging its own grave? Is it not but a new people in the same arena, and so busily absorbed are the masses, old and young, rich and poor, in their vocations, that it seems almost impossible to call their attention to that which is of most vital importance? With almost lightning rapidity they dash on and on, until one's soul is all aglow with the light of heaven, calling for a cessation and time for sober reflection. One, aye, two stop to get their bearings and to cast anchor safely in the moorings.

Oh, kind reader, may not I be permitted to call your attention to that which is good, pure, and holy. Oh, how fleeting and transitory are all things here below! Will you not look to that heavenly home, the home of the redeemed, the paradise of God?

Humbly and sincerely your brother,
D. W. SHIRK.

CENTRALIA, ILLINOIS, August 27, 1912.

Editors Herald: I live here among a small bunch of Saints and am trying to help along with the latter day work in my weak manner. We have a Sunday school and prayer meeting, but not much preaching. I was at the reunion near Cisne, Illinois. I enjoyed it very much and received much strength from the powerful sermons I heard. I ask all the Saints to pray for the one who gave the false report on an innocent one of my household; yes, pray that they may turn from the wickedness of the world and learn of the gospel of Christ.

Saints, pray for me that I may continue in the faith and have strength to bear all my persecutions, for they are many. Brother Morris and Brother Henson were here the 25th and we enjoyed their sermons.

Your sister in the faith,
608 KELL STREET. MRS. HAWTHORN.

Dear Herald: I thank God and wish to thank you for your editorials, also other articles and letters. They have been such as to build up the faith of the readers, and this is what we want. One of the missionaries said in a sermon some time ago that "we must have faith." I love such preaching as that; it is in harmony with Jesus Christ. He taught the people to "have faith." By reading the Bible and the Book of Mormon we learn that the ancient saints received many blessings when they had faith. I am trying to have more faith, and hope and pray that we may all have more.

Jesus Christ said, "Be ye perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect." Some of the members think that this is not possible; but one of our missionaries said in a sermon a few years ago that "God wants us to be as perfect in our sphere as he is in his," and I think this is the correct interpretation of the verse. Jesus Christ also said that the "pure in heart shall see God," and that "Zion is the pure in heart." So I believe that God wants us to improve and become perfect and pure in heart and I believe that we can, especially if God will help us.

I see some of the brethren and sisters that don't make any mistakes or do anything wrong that I can see; they don't want to, and there are others who make only a few mistakes, and there are still others who make a great many mistakes. The latter may be a little more careless in their ways; I do not say, but I believe it is our duty to try and improve and do better in the future than we have done in the past. I am willing to try.

Brother Fred A. Smith told us in a sermon that "we have not made the advancement that we should have made." We call Lamoni, Iowa, a stake of Zion; and we call Independence, Missouri, Zion, and the spot where the great temple shall be built. I believe this to be true. I know, also, that Zion is the pure in heart, for the Lord says so in Doctrine and Covenants 94: 5.

For thirty years I have noticed that the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants are coming true. They are being literally fulfilled, one after another, and just as sure as we are living they will all be fulfilled; they will all come true, for the Lord says so in Doctrine and Covenants 1: 7: "Search these commandments, for they are true and faithful, and the prophecies and promises which are in them shall all be fulfilled."

I am hoping and praying that Jesus may soon come to reign and to rule, whose right it is when righteousness and peace will cover the earth, and many good changes will be made, and may we be ready and found worthy to meet him in happiness.

May God bless you and help you is my prayer,
EDWIN T. DAWSON.

PLYMOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS, September 10, 1912.

Editors Herald: Feeling very much impressed to give you my thoughts in your pages, I could not rest till I expressed my feelings in letter form. Looking over the letter that our worthy Bishop Bullard had written, I believe it is my duty to say to the HERALD, it expresses the sentiments of my heart.

I was at the reunion that had assembled at Onset, Massachusetts, and felt the Spirit of the Master in a very great degree and enjoyed the association of the Saints very much, but could not see through some things as I wished, and when our brother presented that which was given by revelation to the church, I was glad to see our worthy brother speak of those things which were given for our warning while at the reunion. I heard some powerful sermons, among them one from U. W. Greene on the gathering, which I firmly believe. I can say to him that it is a subject that is near my heart, and I intend it to be first in all my avocations in life.

I don't know how to express myself to you, but the work is so precious to me that I can hardly keep still and keep myself under control. I have read your precious pages and am willing to let you know my attitude toward this work, and I seriously believe in the spirit of reciprocity, as it is in touch with our Savior's words: All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do also to them. I will say a word of encouragement: Do not complain about the dark clouds that we may have in this stage of action, for they are as needful as the sunshine. The apostle declares that he gloried in tribulation and tells us the reason why: it gave him experiences that no other way could give.

I am trying to keep the work before the people as well as I can. I can say that when a door is closed against me, another one is opened right under their noses. The truth makes the people rage. Dear Saints, it reminds me of sailing along close to the land, where we have a puff once in a while and then a calm; for I think sometimes that they are going to say something, but it turns out to be a puff of wind. I am going to try, with the help of the Lord, to seek out the sheep, that they may come into the fold and be fed from the hands of the Master.

I want your prayers, dear Saints, that I may be master of my situation. There is one thing that encourages me, and that is that Brother F. M. Sheehy and also Brother U. W. Greene believe that I can fight my way through. I believe, dear brethren, that you are correct, for the Spirit bears witness. If any of the Saints want to see me show up, my address is 164 Standish Avenue.

N. R. NICKERSON.

KINISTINO, SASKATCHEWAN, September 1, 1912.

Dear Herald: With thankful heart I write a few lines to your columns this morning, for all God's blessings to me. I have had many dark hours of trouble and trial, but yet have seen the hand of God through it all. It has been the means of drawing me closer to him, and I have learned to trust him more fully.

I have only heard one sermon in over two years, yet I am living in the hope that ere long we shall be able to meet with the Saints. I would like to live where we could attend church and take the children to Sunday school, but until then we shall continue to study the lessons at home.

We are having much rain this season, and the crops are better than ever before. If we do not have a killing frost in the next ten days they will all be harvested in good shape. The berry crop has been wonderful; over three hundred quarts having been picked on this quarter section.

Wishing the HERALD readers success,
MRS. WILLIAM JEWELL.

SIoux CITY, IOWA, September 7, 1912.

Dear Herald: I wish to bear a testimony through your paper. I attended the reunion at Council Bluffs and called for Brother Hilliard to administer to me, placing myself in the Lord's hands for his mercy and kindly dealing, as might seem good. I was administered to by three brethren: C. J. Hunt, Columbus Scott, and George Hilliard. I received immediate help. I have been liberated from the thing that had power to press my mind by reason of conditions that are over me in this life. God knows all, and my health has suffered much, but now I am brought to know I have received a blessing from God and my mind is at perfect peace as concerning the things over which I was so distressed. I indeed have had a taste of both trial and blessing.

Your brother,
GEORGE ELSON.

COLGATE, SASKATCHEWAN, September 6, 1912.

Dear Saints: Have just been reading some of the blessings and experiences of others, and feel that I should tell of a great blessing we have just received.

Our baby girl, only fourteen months old, was stricken suddenly and violently with convulsions on August 22. Medical aid was secured as soon as possible and after working with her for three or four hours, during which time it seemed all we could do to keep her alive, she got easy and rested well for two or three days. But on Sunday she showed symptoms of a return of her trouble and got so bad the physician was again summoned. My husband also drove over twenty miles for an elder, returning after midnight, for it had been shown him that earthly help alone could not save her. She was administered to three different times, but seemed to get weaker, and we again called the doctor and a trained nurse, for we were all worn out, and she needed special care.

About ten o'clock Monday evening, after going from one convulsion into another, she seemed to grow easier and finally slept; never waking until 9 o'clock the next morning. She was a new baby, but such a weak one. Her recovery from then on has been remarkable,—the nurse said she never saw anything like it; but she does not understand things as we do.

Baby's trouble was due to teething and indigestion. We certainly feel to thank our heavenly Father, and feel like making a greater effort than ever to live as we should.

Baby seems all right now, with the exception of her left arm. She does not seem to have much control over it, although it is slowly gaining. We ask to be remembered, that if it is the Lord's will she may be fully restored to health.

In bonds,
MRS. J. R. NEILL.

WIGAN, LANCASHIRE, ENGLAND, August 24, 1912.

Dear Editor: I rejoice to be numbered amongst the few followers in this town of this latter day work, and stand the great persecution which we have to undergo, along with my older brethren and sisters. If it were not for the help of our Master I am sure we could not stand it. We started in our open air meetings and I am sure we have done some splendid work; we have had all sorts of opposition and by the help of our Great Redeemer we have been able to overcome all obstacles.

Elder W. H. Chandler, who has been laboring amongst us for a period of ten months, coming in all sorts of weather, has been the means of all the good work that has been done here, and may God give him health and strength to do some more of his good work in this part of the vineyard.

I thank God for the training I have received while laboring with Brother Chandler, and in time to come I hope I may be of some little service to the church. I am trying by the help of God to overcome all the evils that I was subject to before I joined this glorious work; for it must be observed that there are two moral kingdoms, and every one of us is subject to either one or the other. If we believe in Christ, and deny ungodliness, worldly desires, etc., and live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world; if we do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with our God, then do we belong to Jesus Christ and are the proper subjects of his kingdom. But, if we live in the practice of sin, if we indulge the lusts of the flesh, to the pride of life, and are determined not to submit to the gentle yoke of our Savior, then we belong to another kingdom. We must be subject to either the Prince of Peace or the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience. We, then, should all see that we follow our Master faithfully, and take our place amongst his faithful followers. We should set him on his mediatorial throne, and he should reign unrivaled in our hearts and affections. We should all try to love his people, to value his word, prize his truths, defend his cause, and serve him all the days of our lives in simplicity and godly sincerity.

Elder W. Spargo and Elder J. Spargo, the two old Wigan veterans, are still active in this good work. God bless them, and may he lengthen their days to fight for our cause. We have had the Anti-Mormon Society lecturing on our market, exposing the evils of the Utah Mormons, and actually trying to drag Joseph Smith along with their evils, but I thank God that Brother Chandler, along with our own branch members, was able to stand up and fight for the true character of our late president as being a true and honest man, and a nonpolygamist, and we are showing the public of this town that we know more about the evils of Mormonism than the so-called Anti-Mormon League.

Brother W. H. Chandler and Brother E. Maloney took the steps and challenged the speaker, Mr. McKay of Liverpool; said that they were willing to debate the difference between our church and the Utah church; but they would not accept it, and walked away.

Then up comes the Seventh Day Adventist with a nice little mouthful on the Sabbath question. Brother Chandler stood up (like a young war horse) and accepted the challenge, but they want him to debate in a sort of a go-as-you-please way; but Brother Chandler wanted an official representative or else he would not debate on the question, and they have not found him one yet. So I firmly believe that God is working with us and helping us to overcome all these obstacles, and I hope and trust that all the members of our church will stand out for the truth. So long as we have got the King of Glory on our side we are sure to be rewarded for our labor, and I pray that God will bless all the ministry with his Holy Spirit, and stand by their sides through all persecution.

Your brother in Christ,
J. ENTWISTLE.

POOLSTOCK, 23 Walmer Street.

Reunion of the Spring River District.

The Saints of the Spring River District met at the Lincoln Park, Pittsburg, Kansas, August 9 to 18, for their annual reunion, having been called to order by Elder Charles Kyser, president of the reunion committee, at 2.30 p. m., for the purpose of organizing. District president, T. W. Chatburn, and assistant missionary, Henry Sparling, were chosen to preside with power to choose assistant. Sister F. McNichols was chosen as chorister, with power to choose assistants; Sister Brokaw as organist, to choose assistants; A. C. Silvers secretary, and to be one member of press committee, with power to choose assistants. Press committee were A. C. Silvers, Sister M. C. Holsworth, Sister Nellie Hempel, and Joe Rogers. Financial committee, Brethren Leonard Conner, J. M. Richards, and W. H. Smart.

The presidency were authorized to appoint speakers, and time and nature of meetings.

There were twenty-six preaching services, with six sermons on the streets. Speakers were F. C. Warnky, A. C. Silvers, J. Arthur Davis, J. Frank Curtis, G. H. Hilliard, Henry Sparling, Ellis Short, Roy Slye, J. T. Riley, Lee Quick, J. A. Gunsolley, and F. M. Conner.

Prayer meetings at 9 a. m., except last Sunday at 2.30 p. m. Twelve were led into the waters of baptism on the last Sunday at noon, and confirmed at the 2.30 prayer service.

The auxiliary work was in good hands, as well as the preaching. Sister H. A. Stebbins was in charge of the primary work especially, and did a great amount of good. Sister Flo. McNichols had especial charge of the Book of Mormon normal work.

The presidency were very kind in granting time for the work, but then, it is but just a part of the great whole.

On the 17th, at 2.30 p. m., a meeting was held to permanently organize into a reunion association, which was done by placing the missionary in charge and district president to preside over the association; S. G. Carrow elected secretary, and L. H. McCall treasurer. Reunion committee or board to consist of five; the other member named was F. Sutherland.

Motion prevailed that we hold our next reunion in 1913, time and place not selected.

We are truly thankful for the use of the beautiful park and for the kindness shown us at Pittsburg, and also for the able assistance we received from those Saints who do not belong to our district, and yet who show the true Saint spirit by their kind and profitable assistance.

The newly organized quorums were also in evidence by their meetings, and we trust the time will not be far distant when these bodies will be a power for the good of this great work.

S. G. CARROW, Secretary.

JOPLIN, MISSOURI, 2502 Maiden Lane.

Central Oklahoma District Reunion.

The reunion of the Central Oklahoma District was held at Ripley, Oklahoma, August 16 to 25. Brethren J. F. Curtis, R. M. Maloney, and J. E. Yates were chosen to preside.

The speakers were J. F. Curtis, Ammon White, Hubert Case, R. M. Maloney, F. C. Keck, W. M. Aylor, J. E. Yates, E. D. Bailey, and E. Dillon. The sermons were very good and the prayer meetings were characterized by the Spirit's presence. Every meeting was profitable to those in attendance. One session was devoted to Sunday school work and one to conference business.

On the night of the 23d a program was rendered by the Saints and friends, which was highly appreciated by Saints and outsiders.

Five were baptized during the reunion.

It was voted to hold a reunion next year, the time and place to be left to the missionary in charge and the district officers.

DELICIE BLY, Secretary.

Spokane, Portland, Seattle-British Columbia Reunion.

This reunion has passed into history and will be remembered with pleasure by those who were fortunate enough to attend. The rain on Thursday hindered the committee's work, so the time Friday was taken up with final arrangements by the committee, consequently the Sunday school and Religio conventions were held on Monday and Tuesday afternoons.

Saturday the Seattle-British Columbia conference was held. Preaching at night by Elder G. W. Thorburn. Regular services on Sunday.

Monday the reunion was formally organized and everything went off satisfactorily, notwithstanding the severest rain-storm of the season, which lasted most of one night and all the next day, turning several degrees colder, much to the discomfort of the campers. However, there was no serious inconvenience.

The attendance was not so large as it should have been. We believe many plan a vacation at other times and spend more than two or three reunions would cost them, and we can not understand why they do not arrange to attend these reunions.

We are glad to hear those who did attend planning to attend the next reunion, which will probably be held at Vancouver, Washington.

Our hearts were made to rejoice when seven children were baptized, five being the age when the Lord has said they should be baptized if they have been properly instructed.

One of the number was a son of Brother and Sister Leo Shupe, who had come over three hundred miles to attend the reunion.

Elders T. C. Kelley, George Thorburn, William Johnson, Premo, and Plum, of the missionary force, assisted by others holding the priesthood, did all in their power to make the reunion a success. We missed Brother Sheehy's congeniality.

Brethren Kelley and Thorburn held meetings the week following the reunion with good attendance, closing to go to Burlington, Washington, where Brother Kelley was to debate with a man from the Millennial Dawn faith.

We were saddened by the news of Brother Keeler's death, but having heard him say it was his "one desire to die in the harness," and knowing he had a dread of ever being superannuated, we rejoice that the end came so peacefully, and extend our sympathy to his afflicted companion.

A committee was appointed to form a reunion association, each one who joins this to give what they can, making one dollar a basis, hoping thereby to have the financial side ready when reunion time comes. As it is never too early to begin planning, let us all plan to make the 1913 reunion the best we have ever had.

HATTIE WARD.

From Nebraska.

On September 8 a goodly number of Saints, together with a fine representation from the outside world, assembled in the Saints' new church in Comstock for dedication services at 11 a. m. Apostle F. A. Smith was present, according to previous engagement, to preach the dedicatory sermon, and J. R. Sutton made the dedicatory prayer, and in behalf of the branch C. W. Prettyman, in a few well chosen words presented the deed of the property to F. A. Smith, who received the same in behalf of the Bishop and the church.

The sermon by Brother Smith was a masterly effort, and was well received by all present. The edifice dedicated is a very neat building, twenty-six by thirty-six feet, walls fourteen feet. Building cost about twelve hundred dollars. The Saints purchased one lot and the city gave them one. The building and ground complete is worth about two thousand dollars.

The Saints here who compose the number that contributed in money and work toward this building are only a few in number, and while the building was being erected, and after it was advanced far enough to begin shingling, a small cyclone came along and razed the building to the ground and destroyed much of the material. This was a hard blow on their effort, as they were all comparatively poor, and as they felt that in making the contributions for the first building, now destroyed, was all they could stand from a financial standpoint; yet they felt that to stop at that juncture was to admit defeat, so they all mustered good courage and made an extra effort, with Brother J. G. Bills as their leader in construction superintendence.

Some of the citizens of the town gave quite liberally, and in a short time the building was again under headway, and this time it was carried to its completion. The building was all paid for in about a year's time. If I have the matter still correctly in mind, the committee was composed of Brethren C. W. Prettyman, John Naab, J. C. Bills, and Ed Fretz. These men certainly worked assiduously to the accomplishment of their work, and the Saints have, as a memorial to their names, the pretty church building in a nice, thriving little city.

From this place the writer and Brother Prettyman will go to Gering to attend the reunion at that place, which commences September 13, continuing to the 23d.

The work in the State is progressing quite well, but I notice that the Saints are not paying the usual amount of tithing into the church. Some are doing well, and others, who are better able to pay, are paying nothing at all. I wonder when the Saints will all see their duty and do it, and one thing sure, Jesus says, "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. Ye can not serve God and Mammon." Our great aim should be to lay up treasures in heaven by keeping all the commandments of Christ at whatever cost.

J. R. SUTTON.

Southern Indiana Reunion.

The second reunion of the Southern Indiana District convened with the Union Branch, near Wirt, Indiana, August 30, at 2 p. m. The meeting was called to order by district president, Elder John Zahnd. R. C. Russell, H. E. Moler, and John Zahnd were chosen to preside; E. O. Byrn, secretary; H. E. Moler chorister and organist, with power to choose assistants; Alma D. Brown and B. F. Short were chosen ushers; Fred Kendall and Jacob Williamson marshals, to care for the grounds, tents, etc. Upon motion the presidency of the reunion were chosen as a committee to arrange for services throughout the reunion.

The different phases of the work were given attention. The Sunday school was given two sessions, John Zahnd, district superintendent, being in charge. Two sessions were devoted to the Religio, E. O. Byrn, president of the association, and Sister Rose E. Davis of the home department work being in charge respectively. A paper was read concerning the home department work of the Sunday school, being sent in by Sister H. Glenn, who has charge of that work in the district. The various phases of the gospel work were considered, with some benefit to the workers of the district.

One session was devoted to the work being done by the various homes of the church, also Graceland College. Brethren H. E. Moler and John Zahnd having charge, the two sessions were devoted to round table work; Elders R. C. Russell and H. E. Moler being in charge, subjects under consideration being the historical and general phases of the work and music.

While our general missionary in charge, Apostle R. C. Russell, was hindered in that he could not be present the entire session, his presence and service the latter part of the week, as also others of the missionary and local forces, were greatly appreciated, and helped to strengthen and edify the Saints present.

The preaching was done by Elders R. C. Russell, H. E. Moler, Jacob Halb, John Zahnd, E. O. Byrn, and Priest Charles Nolan, of Dana, Indiana. There were nineteen preaching services, eleven prayer and social services, including one sacrament service, three Sunday school sessions, two Religio sessions, and other services as mentioned above. There were seven tents on the ground.

Motion prevailed that we hold another reunion in 1913. The following committee were elected to provide for same: R. C. Russell, John Zahnd, Sister Rose Davis. At a late business meeting, upon motion, Jacob Halb and Charles Nolan were added to the committee. The committee are to select time and place for next reunion.

The spirit of peace and rejoicing was present in the various services. While it was quite evident that some of the greater blessings the Master had promised his people in such assemblies were not received, the requisite unity of the Spirit not being manifest among his servants, surely it is to be hoped that higher ideals and a greater development of faith and the characteristics of the Christ will insure a more perfect union among the laborers of the vineyard in future efforts, that the Saints may receive the blessings and edification necessary to their development, such as follow the humble, faithful efforts of his servants.

A vote of thanks was given to the Saints of Union Branch for their kind ministrations during the reunion. At the closing service Elder R. C. Russell was the speaker, assisted by Elder Jacob Halb. The theme was, "God is love." A good interest was manifested.

E. O. BYRN, Secretary.

Reunion at Belvidere, Illinois.

This was the first joint reunion of the Northeastern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin districts, and was held at Belvidere, Illinois.

Many in these two districts had looked forward to this reunion, the joint reunion being a new step for us, but I am glad to report that practically all those who attended were pleased with the results and look forward to the 1913 joint reunion to be held in the same place.

Elders F. A. Smith, Gomer R. Wells, and John F. Garver, all of Lamoni, Iowa, assisted the local missionaries of the two districts in preaching, their help being very much appreciated. Elder Wells also had charge of the Religio and Sunday school work, and we feel that a deeper interest was awakened through his talks along those lines. Elder Garver gave us a soul-touching talk on social purity. All were delighted with the unexpected appearance of Elder F. A. Smith, short though his stay.

The attendance was good; many outsiders dared to come in, and the local paper gave us daily space of nearly a column. Seven were baptized; the Spirit was manifest through the gift of prophecy in our prayer meetings, and a good spirit prevailed throughout the entire reunion.

The sacrament was given Sunday, September 1; all rejoiced for the privilege of renewing their covenant with the Lord.

A new committee was chosen for the 1913 reunion, and we trust that all in both districts are planning to attend.

J. A. BRONSON, Secretary.

Reunion in Northwestern Kansas.

Reunion of the Northwestern Kansas District was held at Alexander, Kansas, August 17 to August 26. W. E. Peak was chosen to preside, assisted by J. A. Teeters. Maud Peak was chosen organist, assisted by Eva Teeters.

The tent was pitched on the bank of the Walnut River in the shade of the beautiful trees. There was not a large attendance, but those who were there had a spiritual feast, and expressed themselves as well paid for the trouble incident to coming.

There was prayer meeting every morning at 9.30, where all felt and enjoyed the presence of the Holy Spirit. There was preaching at 11, 3, and 8, and splendid sermons were very encouragingly and helpfully given.

Preaching was done by W. E. Peak, J. A. Teeters, S. F. Ward, J. J. Jemison, E. H. Eifert.

At the close of the reunion, Brother and Sister Ward's son Ora was baptized; and thus the good work goes on. We hope that each reunion in the future may be better than in the past.

ELIZABETH TEETERS, District Secretary.

News from Missions

Iowa.

I find at last that experiences of even the missionaries vary. For thirty-eight years I have moved in the work in different parts of the two unions, Canada and the United States, with an optimism that defied failure to be heard for the gospel's sake. Hearing fair to good has almost without exception greeted me. A kind, heavenly Father has sustained me spiritually all these years. But an exception to this has happened to me. Brother John Jordison and I have recently visited two places where we have had to strike camp and move on for the lack of a hearing. We are crest-fallen, somewhat, over it. The occurrence was at Primghar, a place claiming one thousand inhabitants, and at Meriden, a smaller place near the former, both in northwestern Iowa—the great State of Iowa.

Brother Harry Mean, of Primghar, had the district tent set there; set it up in a beautiful spot of grassy ground about three blocks from the courthouse. Meetings were freely advertised, and Brother Jordison and I went there and went to work, animatedly and hopefully. We met with many on the streets. Brother Mean's father assisted. All treated us respectfully, friendly, apparently, and favorably. For about a week we had from three to about eight, besides three to five Saints. Soon we had nobody but the three of us in sight. What could we do but quit? I attended the Church of Christ meetings there on one occasion, and aside from three Saints, only about sixteen members were present, where there should have been seventy-five at least.

Charles and Louie Julius then had us ship our tent to Meriden, a place of some two hundred and eighty-one population, they meeting all the expenses incident to our going there. Meriden has three churches, two out of commission, one but moderately attended. We advertised so that the women generally knew we were there. Even the moving picture man advertised us on his canvas to a large crowd! Saints from Cherokee gave us a send off at our opening service at Meriden, but with our "push," on Monday night, we were left without one hearer!

Now, Saints, you ought to sympathize with us in our first experience of this kind. I think of Paul the apostle, of Brother Avondet, in Italy, of Brother Magnus Fyrando, in Sweden, of Brother Bear's experiences when in Germany—but it's coming to America!

You ask, What is the matter? See Isaiah 24: 20, last part of the verse; Matthew 24: 11, 12; 1 Timothy 2: 6. Their "due time" to hear the gospel has not yet arrived. See 2 Timothy 3: 2.

Saints are striving against the odds with might and main, but the indifference is on; no power seems able to divert it. But we are not without hope. God has "purposed" and has been pleased to will the great last days dispensation (Ephesians 1: 8, 9), and we fully expect to see it carried out to the letter. His predicted work will be accomplished; Zion will be built up and redeemed; some here and there will hear. After the fishing time comes the hunting, and the work will stride on more rapidly and the wilderness of the people will resound with the trumpeting of the gospel ring, as the huntsmen traverse the mountains, searching Israel out of the holes in the rocks. (Jeremiah 3.)

After holding a series of meetings here, Coalville, where we are holding forth with some interest, we move on to Council Bluffs to reunion.

Reunion of the Pottawattamie, Gallands Grove, and Fremont districts in Iowa, and Northern Nebraska District, held in Council Bluffs, August 23 to September 1, was devoted, fervent, and spiritual. Missionary in charge, J. W. Wight, and the presidents of the districts named presided. Elder J. M. Baker and committee had charge of the commissary and were faithful and satisfactory. The prayer meetings at nine in the morning were well attended and fervent and prompt. Young people were diligent and faithful. Preaching was up-to-date and attentively listened to. Good order prevailed on the ground. Many blessings were received by administration. As a whole it was a blessed season. Ten persons were baptized and confirmed the closing day.

The reunion of the association will be held at Missouri Valley, Iowa, August, 1913.

C. SCOTT.

LAMONI, IOWA, September 10, 1912.

News from Branches

Independence, Missouri.

At the early prayer service on September 1, seventy-five were present, Brethren G. Jenkins and A. Morgan presiding, and at this meeting word was brought to the Saints by Brother R. Bullard of the decease of our beloved Sister Schmutz, of Denver: also we may mention the death of Brother C. W. Ashbaugh, who lately passed away at the Sanitarium. His funeral service took place last Tuesday at Brother Carson's rooms, Brother Marcus Shaw in charge. Mr. Frank Dungee, son of Brother and Sister Dungee, also died recently from prostration by heat.

On this the opening day of the month the weather was fine, the green lawns surrounding the church, beautified with beds of geraniums, asters, and marigolds, with borders of waving petunias, lent a cheering aspect to nature's handiwork, and sweet sounds from within the edifice of choir and organ and orchestra gave a sense of peaceful and worshipful devotion to the assembling Saints.

The theme of the morning sermon by G. E. Harrington, "The necessities of the soul, and the needs of the body," also the usually excellent instruction given by Brother M. H. Siegfried, graced the evening and morning services.

The afternoon prayer meeting was fully attended and many took part, among them Sister Bird, Brother Bond, Brother Haas, and others, who exhorted to pray, spoke words of prophecy, and gave forth much encouragement to the young, and also commended the young men of the branch for their self-sacrificing efforts in behalf of the Order of Enoch and the cause of Zion.

The calm, sweet Spirit of God has characterized all the prayer meetings of late, and many faithful, uplifting testimonies have been borne; among these valiant ones who have imparted life and interest may be mentioned Brethren Hilliard, Warren, Pierce, Morgan, Trowbridge, Weiler, and Madison; also Sisters Gray, Pointer, Atwell, Bond, and Flower, who on every occasion are ready with heart and willing hand to help and encourage the struggling seeker after light and truth.

At the Sunday school of the 8th, 791 were present, and at the morning and evening services Brethren J. A. Tanner and Hale W. Smith discoursed to edification before good-sized audiences.

An interesting baptism took place at 1.30 p. m., and notices were given out in the afternoon of a social of the Ladies' Aid, accompanied by an entertainment to be given by a blind lady; also of the convening of our stake Sunday school association, to be held at Holden on Friday, the 12th, to be followed on Saturday and Sunday by the assemblies of the stake conference. These all took place and success attended the efforts put forth.

Brethren W. D. Bullard and E. Smith held forth morning and evening on the 15th; and the attendance and interest shown at both services, together with those of the Sunday school, afternoon prayer meeting, and that of the Woman's Auxiliary were all that could be desired.

ABBIE A. HORTON.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

NORTHWESTERN KANSAS.—District convened at Alexander, Kansas, August 17, 1912, at 2 p. m. J. A. Teeters, district president, was chosen to preside, and made a short talk. Twin Creek Branch reported 60 members. Homestead 88, Hill City 35. Report of bishop's agent was referred to auditing committee. J. A. Teeters sustained as district president, Elizabeth Teater, secretary. Elders reporting: S. F. Ward, J. A. Teeters, J. J. Jemison, W. E. Peak. Priest: R. Haskins. Elizabeth Teater, secretary.

Conference Notices.

District conference of the Southern Wisconsin District will convene at Madison, Wisconsin, November 2, 3, 1912. All branches please take notice and have your statistical reports in, in plenty of time. Branch clerks, please give this your immediate attention, and let us have a full report from all branches for once. Mail reports to B. C. Flint, Evansville, Wisconsin, box 292, or to W. A. McDowell, 2007 Elmside Boulevard, Madison, Wisconsin. Further to branch presidents; you remember you were instructed by action of district conference to personally obtain blanks for ministry reports. Are you doing this? If not, please do so, and see that every man holding the priesthood in your branch reports, and thereby confer a favor, not only upon your district officers, but the church generally. B. C. Flint, district secretary, Evansville, Wisconsin, September 10, 1912.

Conference of Nauvoo District convenes at Rock Creek, October 5, 6. All branch reports should be in the hands of the secretary in due time. J. R. Lambert will be present if the health of Sister Lambert will permit. Let all Saints come, that we may have a spiritual time. C. E. Harpe, W. H. Thomas.

Eastern Iowa district conference will convene at Davenport, Iowa, October 19, 20, 1912, in the Saints' church, corner Grand Avenue and Henry Street. Take Oakdale car, get off on Grand Avenue and walk two blocks north to the church. All branch and ministerial reports may be sent to J. B. Wildermuth, at 2702 Davenport Avenue, Davenport, Iowa. Miss Vina Dykes, district secretary.

The Pottawattamie district conference will convene at Hazel Dell, Iowa at 10.30 a. m., Saturday September 28, 1912. J. Charles Jensen, secretary Pottawattamie District.

The Eastern Maine district conference will convene at 2 p. m., Saturday, November 12, at Jonesport, Maine. J. A. Koehler, district president.

Saints of the Fremont, Iowa, District will meet in conference at the church near Thurman, Iowa, Saturday, October 26, 1912, at 10 o'clock a. m. The Religio-Sunday school convention will be held just previous, as has been the custom in this district for many years. The exact time of the convention will be given by the proper officers in another notice. All branches will please see that reports, both branch and ministerial, are sent to the district secretary, C. W. Forney, Thurman, Iowa, prior to time of convening of the conference. Brother J. W. Wight, our general missionary in charge, is expected to be present at both conventions and conference. T. A. Hougas, district president.

Far West district conference will convene with the Alma Branch, near Lexington Junction, Ray County, Missouri, October 19, 20, and visitors will be met there with conveyances and taken to the church, a distance of two miles. Please have ministerial and statistical reports in on time. B. J. Dice, president, C. P. Faul, secretary.

Convention Notices.

Notice is hereby given to all concerned that the hour of meeting for the district Sunday school association at the coming Deer Lodge conference, has been changed from 9 a. m., October 4, to 7.30 p. m., October 4. Secretary Ernestine Davey.

Central Michigan District Sunday school will convene at Saginaw, Michigan, October 24, 1912. We trust that all schools in the district will have reports in the hands of the secretary before that time. E. S. White, district superintendent; Cora Janson, district secretary.

Gallands Grove district Religio and Sunday school associations will meet in convention October 18, 1912, at Cherokee, Iowa. Social service 9 a. m. Special institute session provided for, and all officers and teachers of the district are urged to attend. Floy Holcomb, secretary.

Eastern Iowa district convention will be held October 18, 1912, at Davenport, Iowa, in the Saints' church corner Grand Avenue and Henry street. Take Oakdale car, get off on Grand Avenue and walk two blocks north to the church. Election of officers will be held at this convention and a large attendance is desired. All local secretaries are urged to send in their reports promptly. Miss Vina Dykes, district secretary, box 420, Muscatine, Iowa.

Clinton district Sunday school and Religio associations will meet in convention at Mapleton, Kansas, October 18, 1912, at 10 a. m. and 2.30 p. m. respectively. Please have reports and credentials in not later than the 16th. Zora Lowe, district secretary, Eldorado Springs, Missouri, R. R. 1.

Sunday school and Religio workers of the Fremont District are requested to meet in joint convention at Thurman Branch church, Friday, October 25, 1912, at 2 p. m. Local officers for both Sunday school and Religio will please see that all reports for the third quarter are properly filled out and sent in to the district Sunday school or Religio secretary at the close of the quarter, to be ready for convention. These conventions are open for all, but the officers of both the district and the locals are especially urged to be present, if possible. A program, consisting of musical selections, readings, and a short debate, will be given in the evening, at 7.30 p. m. C. W. Forney, district superintendent Sunday school; Lorena Leeka, district president Religio.

The matter of holding a joint convention of the Sunday school and Religio of the Eastern Michigan District in the first quarter of 1913 will be brought before the October conference. There are a number who have desired this for a long time, in order that a large district like ours would have more time for taking up the various lines of work, gathering the workers together and learning better plans and methods, which can be done to good advantage at such times. Let your school consider this and come prepared to discuss it. Drop me a card and let us know what, in your opinion, is the best time to hold it in those months. William F. Sage, 1303 Third Avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

Notice of Missionary Release.

Elder Charles Fry will be released from missionary appointment, release to take effect November 1. This release is for the purpose of permitting Elder Fry to assume editorial charge of Zion's Ensign as per arrangement with the Board of Publication.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary First Presidency.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, September 12, 1912.

Two-Day Meetings.

The following are dates for two-day meetings for the Far West District: Kingston, September 28 and 29, S. H. Simmons and John Ford in charge; Far West, October 5 and 6, B. R. Constance and T. H. Hinderks in charge; Delano, October 12 and 13, A. E. McCord and August Johnson in charge; Edgerton Junction, September 21 and 22, Cove Archibald and W. W. Scott in charge; DeKalb, October 12 and 13, T. T. Hinderks and S. J. Hines in charge; Wyatt Park, September 28 and 29, D. E. Powell and C. F. Householder in charge. Those not able to fill appointments please furnish a substitute. B. J. Dice, district president.

Address.

R. M. Maloney, home address, Route 9, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 The Ministry of Love Versus the Ministry of Fear.—Part I 921
 Spiritual Manifestations at the Lamoni Stake Reunion 922
 "Journal of History" 925
 Magazine Herald 925
 Notes and Comments 926

HYMNS AND POEMS 926

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Questions and Answers, by John Smith 926
 Dealing with the Erring, No. 8, by Charles Fry 929
 What Is a Seer, by E. W. Nunley 931
 MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN 932
 Mollie Davis.

LETTER DEPARTMENT 934
 F. Edgeworth—Nettie C. Shepherdson—D. W. Shirr—Mrs. Hawthorn—Edwin T. Dawson—N. R. Nickerson—Mrs. William Jewell—George Elson—Mrs. J. R. Neill—J. Entwistle—S. G. Carrow—Delcie Bly—Hattie Ward—J. R. Sutton—E. C. Byrn—J. A. Bronson—Elizabeth Teaters.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS 939
 C. Scott.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES 939
 Abbie A. Horton.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT 940

THE SAINTS' HERALD

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Joseph Smith, Editor; Elbert A. Smith, Associate Editor; Israel A. Smith, Managing Editor.
 Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.
 When payment is made, the date on yellow label always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.
 If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us.
 The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.
 All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.
 All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.
 Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.
 For advertising rates apply to the business department.
 Entered at post-office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.
 Subscriptions received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

The educational value of Mr. A. Maurice Low's The American People: A Study in National Psychology (Houghton Mifflin Company) has received fresh proof in the request made to the author to deliver lectures on the book before many of the Western universities this winter.

The Bishopric.

AGENT'S NOTICE; EASTERN OREGON DISTRICT (UNORGANIZED).

Dear Brothers and Sisters in the Faith: As I have been recently appointed bishop's agent (see SAINTS' HERALD for June 26 or Zion's Ensign of June 27), I am anxious to receipt for tithes and offerings for the church, and especially as I have begun to feel the pressure of the position. We have the family of one missionary to look after, and because several allowances have been delayed, his wife was compelled to write me.

Now let us try to pay the Lord's share and see if we can not get at least one missionary to labor in our territory. It is a business proposition that if we trust the Lord and make him a partner in our temporal affairs, he will bless us with more of the temporal means. When we get hold of means let us not lay it aside for fear we may need it, but show our faith in the Lord by paying all we can possibly spare of it until the debt is paid, and he will bless us for it.

According to a prophecy in Zion's Ensign of June 20 last, the Lord's hands are outstretched toward us, laden with blessings which we can not receive until we have made preparation. Oh, let us prepare to receive blessings by doing everything that is required of us. The time is short. This is "the hastening time." Let us be prompt. We know not how short our time may be. Since coming here two brothers and a son-in-law of one of them have been called in less than nine months of each other and without a day's notice. Also on July 26 the son of Brother John Curry was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a gun. "Boast not thyself of to-morrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."—Proverbs 27:1. If you have not seen the prophecy mentioned, get it if possible. It should be a wonderful blessing and encouragement to the membership. It is to me.

If you feel better satisfied to send money to the general Bishop, all right, do not delay. However, if I have insufficient on hand for the family of our missionary, I have to notify the Bishop, that he may supply the deficiency. This causes delay.

One brother wrote inquiring about sending money to this place. I informed him that Enterprise had a railroad (O-W. R. & N.), an express company, a money order post office, and two banks, so the capacity is practically unlimited.

Of course I realize that some may be sending directly to the Bishop and doing all they can, and for such I am thankful.

I would be glad to hear from any of you in regard to the Lord's work. Address as below.

Respectfully,
 H. E. MERRYMAN, Bishop's Agent.
 ENTERPRISE, OREGON, August 4, 1912.

Services at Saint Joseph, Missouri.

Until further notice the following services will be held at the Wyatt Park Mission of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 2904 1/2 Pattee, Saint Joseph, Missouri: Sunday school, 9.30 a. m.; preaching, 11 a. m.; prayer meeting (except first Sunday of each month), 6.30 p. m.; Tuesday evening, teachers' and officers' meeting and song service, 8 p. m.; Thursday evening, prayer meeting, 8 p. m.; Friday evening, Wyatt Park Zion's Religio-Literary Society, 8 p. m. All are cordially invited to attend these meetings.
 ELDER COVENTRY ARCHIBALD, In Charge.

Notice of Quorum Organization.

By request of general minister in charge and as per HERALD of February 14, 1912, I hereby notify all the elders, priests, teachers, and deacons in the following districts, viz: Alabama, Mobile, and Florida, to be present at the Florida district reunion, which will be held at Dixonville, Alabama, from October 19 to 27, 1912, for the purpose of being organized into quorums, viz, one quorum of elders, one of priests, one of teachers, and one of deacons. I trust that all the ministry in the above-named districts will be present, in order that this important matter may be attended to.

F. M. SLOVER, Assistant in charge.
 Mission address, McKenzie, Alabama.

Translation Fund.

The last General Convention of Zion's Religio-Literary Society authorized the raising of another five hundred dollars this year for the Translation Fund. The call is being made this year to every local society in all the world, to every stake and district organization, to every isolated Relagian, to the Home Department, in fact to everyone interested, and the results of last year's work is evidence that we are all interested. Relagians have always made good in answer to the call for contributions to the Translation Fund, and this year the opportunity is again yours.

The interest of the Relagians in the past in regard to translating the Book of Mormon into foreign languages, has made such a thing possible, but more than that, their contributions from year to year have made the German translation a reality; and as evidence of this fact sample pages of the German Book of Mormon are being sent to the secretary of each local, so that you may examine them. The date set for the contributions to be made is Thanksgiving Day in November of this year.

Use any legitimate, righteous means in raising the money you intend to give, and mail same to the General Treasurer,

J. A. Gardner, Independence, Missouri; upon receipt of which receipt will be sent and proper credit given. Help all you can.

J. A. GUNSOLLEY, President.
J. A. GARDNER, Treasurer.

Married.

HARRINGTON-COOK.—At the home of the groom's parents, Council Bluffs, Iowa, July 20, 1912, Elder A. J. Davidson officiating, Brother E. E. Harrington and Miss Bessie Cook agreed to be each other's companions for life according to the laws that govern. Quite a number of near relatives were present. After congratulations, a sumptuous dinner was served by the groom's mother, who knows how to do things of that kind. May joy and peace follow.

A. J. DAVIDSON.

Died.

EYRES.—Brother Robert Eyres, born August 5, 1821, at Castleton, Derbyshire, England; died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charlotte A. Gruver, of Derby, Indiana, August 27, 1912, aged 91 years, 22 days. Married Charlotte Comas at Macclesfield, Cheshire, December 31, 1848. Both were members of the church at the time. Came to America in 1849, went to Saint Louis, then to Council Bluffs, then to Cannellton, Terry County, Indiana. After many years went to the country sixteen miles back, to Lillydale. There they united with the Reorganization. Moved to the Hope Branch, at Derby. Three daughters survive him.

HINDS.—Elijah, at the residence of his son, Peter M. Hinds, Waterloo, Iowa, aged 78 years and 6 months. Funeral sermon by Elder J. B. Wildermuth, of Ostedock, Iowa, and interred in Elmwood Cemetery, Waterloo, Iowa.

ANDERSON.—Henry Chris Marcus, infant son of Brother and Sister P. T. Anderson, was born April 2, 1912; died September 14, after an illness of ten days. His condition was not considered serious until the day before his death, when he was taken suddenly worse. The elders were called and the Lord sought on his behalf, but his will was otherwise, and early the following morning the little one was taken home. Father, mother, two brothers, two sisters, grandmother, and other relatives mourn his departure. Sermon by J. A. Hansen, in the Hazel Dell church, assisted by C. C. Larsen. Interment at Crescent Cemetery.

EDWARDS.—Ann, born in Wales, July 14, 1837; died August 9, 1912, in Omaha, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Edmunds. Baptized in Wales, in 1846, rebaptized in 1866, at Goshen, Utah, by Thomas Job; confirmed by Thomas Job. She leaves to mourn five children, ten grandchildren, one brother. All were present at the funeral but one son and the brother. For many years she was a constant sufferer, but patient through it all, and with seeming unshaken faith in God and the gospel. The funeral was held August 12 from the home as per her request; sermon by J. M. Baker, assisted by Paul N. Craig. Interment in West Lawn Cemetery. Her husband, E. T. Edwards, passed on before in the year 1883.

FRANCIS.—At Lamoni, Iowa, September 15, 1912, Sister Elnora Francis, aged 63 years, 2 months, 6 days. She was born in Jackson County, Iowa, in 1849; married in 1871, and united with the church in 1875, being baptized by Samuel Gurley. Her husband died in 1888, and for twenty-four years she had severe toil and trial, but she bravely endured and faithfully performed her part. She had no children, but her niece, Sister Flossie Hudson, lived with her and was like a daughter to her. Funeral service in charge of R. M. Elvin, sermon by H. A. Stebbins.

RANDALL.—Sallie E. Randall died July 2, 1912. Sallie E. Rhyneason was born May 10, 1853, at Reading, Ohio; married Curtis Randall in November, 1877; baptized July 6, 1879, in Salmana Township, Cherokee County, Kansas, by James Dutton, confirmed by W. S. Taylor and James Dutton. Sermon by J. Arthur Davis, in the Saints' church near Sherwin, Kansas. Buried in the Edgman Cemetery. She was a kind and loving mother; a faithful and devoted wife and helpmeet indeed.

MOORE.—Andrew Moore was born in Tyrone, Ireland, June 22, 1840; died July 3, 1912; funeral was held at Clear Lake, in charge of Elder P. W. Premo, July 5; interment at Bay View. Brother Moore united with the Latter Day Saint Church about five years ago and lived a faithful life. He left a wife and one son and one daughter to mourn.

MOORE.—Isabelle McGillvray Moore, wife of Andrew Moore, deceased, was born in Bunneson, Scotland, August 1, 1840; died August 21, 1912, aged 72 years, 21 days; funeral was held at Sedro-Woolley August 25, in charge of Elder P. W. Premo; interment at Bay View. She joined the Latter Day Saint Church about five years ago, at the same time her departed husband did, whom she has now gone to join.

TRUOG.—Katherine (Michel) Truog was born at Grusch, Canton Grisons, Switzerland, April 16, 1845, and died at her home, Mallard, Iowa September 5, 1912, aged 67 years, 4 months, 12 days. She was married to Brother John Truog, sr., in April, 1869. To this union eight children were born. Christina and George preceded their mother to the land of rest; leaving husband, John, Thomas, Oldrige, Mary, William, and Frederick to mourn the loss of wife and mother. Brother Truog came to America in 1869, forty-three years ago, and has long resided in or near the town of Mallard, Iowa. Sister Truog was baptized into Christ by Elder Edmond Ford, September 20, 1896, and has been a consistent member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ ever since. She died with a firm hope in Christ. Funeral services were conducted at the Saints' church, Mallard, Iowa, Saturday, September 7, 1912, by Elder Charles E. Butterworth. The services were largely attended. Brother Truog and family have the sympathy of the entire community. The missionaries of the Gallands Grove District will long remember the kindness of this good sister who now rests in peace.

PARKER.—Joseph Merritt Parker, born November 13, 1832, at Burrillville, Rhode Island; baptized October 26, 1873, at Douglas, Massachusetts, by Charles N. Brown; confirmed by William Pond; ordained to the office of teacher October 26, 1873, at Douglas, Massachusetts, by W. A. Pond and E. N. Webster; died August 28, 1912, at Plainville, Massachusetts; funeral sermon by Elder William Bradbury, August 30, 1912.

MORISON.—George Shattock Morison, son of Brother and Sister W. W. Morison, a beloved lamb of our fold, was transferred to the heavenly fold early Sunday morning, September 1, 1912, from his lovely home in Oakland, California, at the age of 12 years, 16 days. George was a bright sunbeam in the home and his removal leaves a pall of gloom, yet not without hope. The deep sympathy of the multitude of friends was manifest in various ways, chiefly by the beautiful flowers profusely displayed. The solemn service was held at the home on the 3d. Sister Gladys Kaighm Murphy sang touchingly. The sermon was by Elder J. M. Terry. Grace, an older child is left as a comfort.

A New Edition of the Doctrine and Covenants

By order of General Conference a committee was appointed to correct all typographical errors, also Section 22 of the Doctrine and Covenants. This has been done and the book is now ready. It contains a valuable addition in the form of a new concordance. All the revelations up to date are included. You will need this edition.

Order

No. 94, cloth.....	$.65
No. 95, full leather.....	1.00
No. 96, imitation morocco, gilt edges..	1.50
No. 97, full morocco, flexible.....	2.50

Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa

Herald Publishing House

$100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best of security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

These Bonds will be ready to issue on the 1st of April, 1912.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further
Particulars

Personally Conducted Excursions to California

Are you going to California? Do you want to be extra comfortable on the trip at no extra cost?

Would you like to have a first rate, good natured, thoroughly competent and well informed conductor go through on the trip with you, a man who is specially selected and paid by our Railroad Company to look after your comfort?

Such a man goes through with each of our "Personally Conducted" parties. We choose men specially fitted for this work. Men who are courteous and kindly, who have made the trip many times and thoroughly understand their business.

If you can arrange to leave between September 25 and October 10, let me know quickly, and I can save you a considerable sum of money, as during that period tickets at greatly reduced rates will be on sale to all points in the far west and northwest. Right now is the time for you to begin to get ready. Don't leave your arrangements until the last minute.

Please call at my office or write and tell me on what date you can get away, how many there will be in your party, and I will make all arrangements for you and take the details off your mind. L. F. Siltz, Ticket Agent, Burlington Route.

ARTISTIC PENWORK

Penwork of every description. Card writing a specialty. Best oblique penholder made, fancy inlaid, price 50c. Five cents will bring you a specimen of my work. Write for prices.

Address F. R. BROWN

The Phelps Commercial School

Bozeman, Mont.

38tf

Reference, Elder L. E. Hills,

23 N. 7th, Bozeman, Mont.

THE HOLMAN HOME BIBLE.

Printed from large, clear Pica Type with Marginal References, Family Record, and Maps. This Home Bible is new and very desirable for every-day use in the home, containing all the advantages of a family Bible in a compact size that can be easily handled, with record for births, marriages and deaths. The exact size of the Bible when closed is 6 1-8x9 inches. The chapter headings are printed on the upper outside corner of each page which makes this Bible practically self-indexed. No. 2014. Bound in French Seal Leather, round corners, red under gold edges, gold titles, silk head bands, and purple silk marker. Our special price.....$2.25 Postage 24 cents.

Send all orders to
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Lamoni, Iowa

GENERAL CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS from 1852 to 1910. Contains all resolutions passed by the body during its sittings. You need this book,
Cloth, No. 198.....50c
Paper No. 197.....35c

MEMOIRS OF W. W. BLAIR, deals with the period of Reorganization. It begets confidence in the reader and inspires him to occupy higher grounds. God's providence runs through the whole work.
Order No. 249, cloth.....50

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
No. 140, cloth.....50

80 Acre Farm.

Less than two miles from the corporate limits of Lamoni. Good house of 5 rooms; large barn, corn crib, sheds, etc. Good orchard, well fenced and well watered. A nice little home for some one and will be sold for $75 per acre if taken before September 1, 1912. Possession March 1, 1913.

Address G. W. Blair, Sec.
Lamoni Land and Loan Co,
Lamoni, Iowa.

New from Cover to Cover
WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

JUST ISSUED. Ed. in Chief, Dr. W. T. Harris, former U. S. Com. of Education. General Information Practically Doubled. Divided Page: Important Words Above, Less Important Below. Contains More Information of Interest to More People Than Any Other Dictionary.

2700 PAGES. 6000 ILLUSTRATIONS.
400,000 WORDS AND PHRASES.

GET THE BEST in Scholarship,
*Convenience, Authority, Utility.

Write for Specimen Pages to
G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass.
You will do us a favor to mention this publication.

LAMONI HOME FOR SALE

Square, hip-roofed, one story house with kitchen (L), five large rooms, large closet and pantry, two porches, back porch closed, good cellar, cistern, well. Woodshed with washroom having cement floor and drain. Cement walks entirely around house inside lot. Three large lots, with lots of fruit trees and berry bushes. Small stable, etc. Three blocks from business center. Owner a missionary, no time to look after it. A snap at $950.00, if taken at once. Fred B. Farr, Cameron, Missouri. 38-2t*

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth—containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Bro. Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
No. 248a, cloth.....75

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second-class matter at Lamoni post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 59

LAMONI, IOWA, OCTOBER 2, 1912

NUMBER 40

Editorial

THE MINISTRY OF LOVE VERSUS THE MINISTRY OF FEAR.—Part II.

For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.—2 Timothy 1: 7.

Paul suggests a striking contrast in the foregoing text. The spirit of fear is utterly opposed to the spirit of love, power, and a sound mind. Fear destroys love, undermines power, overthrows sanity. No one can love that which he fears. No one can have power when he is shaken with apprehension. No one can think logically when his faculties are deranged by that most painful emotion of terror. Satan may frighten his adherents with a thousand unnamed terrors; but God delights to fill his disciples with love, endow them with power, and clothe them with sanity. The ministry of love and that of fear can never be reconciled. One will last for ever; the other must sometime come to an end, at least so far as this earth is concerned.

Paul liked to contemplate the power of the gospel. He speaks of it frequently, as when he says: "Our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power." His own miraculous conversion had impressed this feature of the gospel upon his mind. The gospel took hold upon him in no half-hearted way, but gripped him soul and body, and made him a new man, inspired with a zeal that never flagged.

He had seen the power of the gospel manifested in healings, and in various miraculous events, as when he himself was recovered of the serpent's bite on Melita; but probably the greatest evidence of power to him, as to us, was the way in which it took hold upon men's hearts and utterly changed their lives and characters. We have miraculous healings to-day; but after all the greatest demonstration of gospel power is seen in the quiet transformation of life from bad to good, that goes on under the gospel administration in many homes. One sister says: "The first three years of my married life were the most unhappy years of my life. But then the gospel came, and after that my husband was a different man." A different man! That is the true gospel testimonial. Born again!

So after Paul mentions the fact that his gospel came in power, he adds, "As ye know what manner of men we were among you for your sake." Paul, the persecutor, filled with hate, breathing out threatening and slaughter, under the power of the gospel became Paul the apostle of love, the leading defender of the faith. He abandoned his effort to drive men to God by persecution through fear; and took up the work of drawing them to God through love. Out of the depth of his own experience came the text that we have quoted—not of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.

If it be true that power is an attribute of the gospel, it is equally true that love is an attribute of those who obey the gospel. John, the apostle of love, makes it the test of life and fellowship: "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren." If any of the Saints feel cold and indifferent or even hateful toward the brethren, they have just ground to fear that they have not yet made the transition from spiritual death into spiritual life. The Spirit of God dwells only where the fire of love burns. When we feel that great bond of fellowship uniting us with the church of God, and know in our hearts that we are keeping the commandments of God, we can rejoice and be happy. We are free. We are alive.

No one can estimate the full power of love to bless humanity. Men can scarcely live without it. If deprived of other objects of affection love is lavished on dumb animals or inanimate objects. Nurses and doctors of experience say that babies can not be raised by wholesale in hospitals and foundling asylums. They may have the best of nursing, the best medical attention, the best patented foods, the most sanitary surroundings; but a frightful percentage of them sicken and die. There is just one thing lacking. Each baby needs to be loved and petted by a mother. He is safer even among rather unsanitary surroundings, with a mother, than in an institution, with a trained nurse. Men and women can not get started without love, and they can not keep growing without love.

Love of parents, children, sweethearts, wives, husbands, brothers, sisters, friends, home, country—what a prominent place love has in life! The more

www.LatterDayTruth.org

one loves, the more he becomes great and good. The less one loves, the meaner and more unhappy he becomes. Total extinction of love means death. If there is a man in the world who loves no one and whom no one loves—he does not need to die to go to hell. The poet has said:

The night has a hundred eyes,
The day but one;
But the light of the whole day dies
At the setting of the sun.

The mind has a hundred eyes,
The heart but one;
Yet the light of a whole life dies,
When love is done.

The gospel is the supreme expression of love. "God so loved the world!" His gospel takes this great master passion, that is too often limited by selfish ends, and sets it on fire for all the brotherhood of the church, and in a different degree for all humanity, and uses it in practical ways for the blessing and salvation of men. Love is back of every true sacrifice. It underlies every process, temporal or spiritual, that operates for the redemption of Zion and the full development of practical Christianity. Where men love each other they can always work together in harmony. They can always find a program or policy on which to agree and move forward together. For those we love we labor and sacrifice and die. But God does not often ask men to die. Only occasionally does he need a martyr. For those we love we live and work. That is better. God needs a few men to die; he needs many men to live and work.

There is a good thought too, in the idea that Paul advances that God sends us the spirit of a sound mind. That is refreshing in this age of abstruse speculation, when insane absurdities are advanced in the name of religion. Some seem to think that anything that is so mysterious and mystical that no one but a Hindoo philosopher can begin to understand it must of necessity be good religion. Witness the growth of Theosophy, Christian Science, and many kindred philosophies, that either deny the very testimonies of the senses that God has given us, or go wandering away in the misty cloudlands of the unknowable, couching half-discerned theories in the mysterious terminology of the cult, thus successfully giving sheer nonsense the appearance of superhuman wisdom.

Paul stood stanchly by this proposition that his gospel was a sane and orderly institution. When he stood before Festus, the latter said: "Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad." But Paul replied: "I am not mad, but speak forth the words of truth and soberness."

Paul was the most sane man in all that assembly.

He stood for a gospel that enjoined right thinking, clean living, justice, truth, peace, happiness here and hereafter. His hearers who judged him mad, were living under the carnal law, in the atmosphere of a corrupt court, fostering injustice, immoral living, warfare, physical and moral decay, unhappiness, intrigue, final remorse and despair. Judge you as to who was the sane man in that assembly.

Thus may we as Latter Day Saints take our course, confident that it is right, no matter who may pity us as ignorant or deceived, or declare us to be fanatics. Our gospel appeals to the profound emotions of the soul, and kindles the great flame of love; but it also appeals to the clear white light of reason. Our religion is logical as well as emotional. It develops the service of both heart and brain. Sanity is allied with love and power; and all are opposed to fear.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

It is not essential that I should present the necessity of this institution in order to carry out the legitimate mission of the church. There can be no better, no more effectual or more economical way to care for the homeless child, and where possible to bring the homeless child and the childless home together for their mutual benefit than through this institution. The trustees therefore feel sensibly the great responsibility placed upon them to make this work a success, and it will be with great regret if they are driven to the necessity of limiting the capacity of the home on account of inadequate support. We have, however, no resources from which to draw, and are solely dependent upon contributions from Saints and friends. For the three months ending August 31, 1912, we have run about $120 per month behind in expenses. We are decidedly opposed to running the home in debt, hence we must increase our receipts or cut down the accommodation to one half the capacity of the home. The latter we do not feel justified in doing until we have apprised the Saints and friends of the situation.

If men and women of means would endow the home with sufficient means so that the interest, supplemented by our exertions would support this work, they would erect to themselves a monument of imperishable renown and many would rise up to call them blessed.

But until such time as this is done we will need the smaller contributions from all who may take pleasure in helping the unfortunate.

We believe that when the Saints pay their full tithes, offerings, and consecrations, that the necessity of appealing for direct aid for our church institutions will be obviated, but in the present emergency there is no way open to us, but to appeal for help. It will be with painful hearts that we close the Children's Home against needy children, while there is room within, if we must do it.

Therefore we make an earnest appeal to all who read this to come to our rescue at once; send us the necessary means where possible, and also pledges of how much we can expect from you per month or per annum.

No contributions too small to be thankfully received. Send your contributions and pledges to the treasurer, Bishop Joseph Roberts, Lamoni, Iowa. The next meeting of the trustees will be October 15, and by that time we should know what we can depend upon that we may bring expenses within our resources.

Praying that the Spirit of God may attend the reading of this appeal and move loving hearts to noble deeds, I am with great anxiety, HEMAN C. SMITH, President Board of Trustees.

LAMONI, IOWA, September 23, 1912.

GRACELAND COLLEGE COLLECTION DAY.

The coming Sunday, October 6, is the day set apart by action of General Conference for the raising of means with which to carry on the work of the college.

The college is being operated, as nearly as possible, on the plan of equality, or equal opportunity, giving every member of the church a chance to get his education.

The aim of the college Board of Trustees is to get the college on the basis of true equality as soon as possible.

The day is about past when the need of having such an institution in our church is called in question. It is now being considered fully worthy of the support of all the Saints.

Literature has been sent to the various branch presidents, which the college authorities feel will materially help the branches to make a successful collection. It may be that the list of branch presidents used may not be the latest, and if some receive literature who are not presiding officer, will they kindly hand it to the proper person.

Zion is to be redeemed by sacrifice, and so by sacrifice the college will be sustained, for it is indeed one of the powerful factors in bringing about this much desired condition.

Saints, support the college, not only by your prayers, but also by your means.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

CHILDREN'S HOME.—We wish to call attention to the financial report of the Children's Home which will be found in our miscellany department. This should be read in connection with the communication from Elder Heman C. Smith, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the home, which appears in the editorial columns.

Hymns and Poems

Selected and Original

Life's Trial.

Father, in my Gethsemane,
I, too, bowed low in agony;
I prayed the bitter cup might pass—
Then drained it to the dregs, alas!

In sorrow's night of black despair
I groveled there in sobbing prayer;
"Father! I can not bear the load!"
Then shame was added to the goad.

The storm beat fierce, clouds hid the sky,
Thundering tortures drowned my cry;
"Father! the waves lap at my feet!"—
Then drew me down in black deceit.

My tortured spirit rose on wings
To find life held more glorious things;
To know that one beloved of God
Must humbly kneel and kiss the rod.

LYDIA E. CALLAWAY.

MILFORD, UTAH.

A Song of Praise.

After reading "Christian Science since Mrs. Eddy," by Burton J. Hendrick, in McClure's, September, 1912.

Thou God of heaven and of earth,
I praise thy great and precious name
For that bright gem of priceless worth,
The gospel that thy Son proclaimed.

The plan divine, devised in love—
In wisdom infinite and just—
Our woes and sorrows to remove—
Sin's fetters from our souls to burst.

I thank thee for its power to bless
Each poor, downtrodden "bruised reed"
That seeks thee in its sore distress,
For such, I know, the Christ doth plead.

I know he can not plead in vain,
His blood hath paid the ransom price;
He bore our sorrows, felt our pain,
That all mankind may yet rejoice.

I thank thee for thy precepts clear,
Thy statutes all declare thy love,
Thine ordinances are most dear
To all who have thy goodness proved.

Thy gifts are free to rich and poor,
Thy promised blessings without price.
Thy hand is open evermore
To all who do obey thy voice.

Preserve thy people from deceit;
May they discern the deep laid snares
To trap unwary, wayward feet,
And sink them in untold despair.

Again I thank thee for thy Son,
Whose feet so plainly led the way,
And over sin the victory won,
That we might rest in endless day.

Avant, ye hirelings who would sell
The gifts of God for sordid gold!
And thus your gaping coffers swell
With price of poor immortal souls.

CHARLES DERRY.

Original Articles

WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?

Sermon delivered at the conference of the London District, held at Enfield, Middlesex, England, Sunday, June 5, 1910, by Apostle John W. Rushton. Reported by Brother Dover E. Judd.

I will call your attention to the sixteenth chapter of Acts, the 30th verse: "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

The questioner was the heathen jailer; the one to whom the question was put was the Apostle Paul. The one is a pagan, and the other is a Christian. The personality of the Christian as we meet him here in this particular chapter has had a long and peculiar pedigree. He was not always a Christian and a champion of the cause of Christ; not always the one who voluntarily defended the cause of the Nazarene against the assaults that were violently urged against it.

The first time we meet the Apostle Paul, his name is "Saul of Tarsus"; his hands are stained with blood; he is responsible for the murder of Stephen, the first Christian martyr; boasts of his enthusiastic and brilliant career in making havoc of the new church and committing the new converts to prison.

The next time that we meet with him he is heading a detachment of soldiers on his way to Damascus to bring Christians to Jerusalem bound as prisoners. And this man, who of his own experience does not try to deceive us, but admits that he was "the chiefest of sinners," is now the man upon whom the mercy of God is so richly in evidence, and to whom the power of God is so abundantly manifested. And he virtually says: "If God can do so much for me, the chiefest of sinners, what can he do for you?" "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

The question of the jailer is one with which we must have some sympathy and in which we must all be interested, for whether we believe in the Christians' hope of immortality or not: that this life is circumscribed by the boundary wall of death that can not be scaled; or, that "Death is the portal of life," that word "salvation" is a consideration with which every man, whether politically, religiously, commercially, and even morally, is concerned.

We have given words many kinds of meaning, growing out of various experiences. We have taken some words and given them exclusive religious meanings and applications. Other words are regarded as economic terms, used simply in economic relationship, the same as with political, moral, financial, and so on, giving to words their capricious limitations. The words we are using to-day have been born of experience that demanded some kind of expression, and the word used is but the term to express some peculiar experience through which individuals pass. Salvation is one of these words, and it has been given an absolute religious application fundamentally, and if we transform its application in the slightest degree, instantly its precise meaning is changed.

Salvation is a religious term in the abstract, so far as we are concerned. We use it invariably in connection with religious sentiment. To ask if a man is saved is always taken as a question referring to a man's religious deportment and spiritual experience. To ask a man how he is this morning, is simply to manifest courtesy which one man expects from and freely gives to another. Mostly it is a question of courtesy, and we all recognize the great disparity between the two questions that are conveyed to a man. It is not always that we ask a man if he is saved, because to interfere with a man's spiritual relationship is a very serious matter, and very few men feel that they are qualified to interfere with a man's spiritual relationship or condition. If we put the question a little bit differently, but with exactly the same meaning, and ask a man if he is safe, that becomes commercial at once. It means, Is the man quite able to discharge his financial responsibility? Let me illustrate what I mean, and then perhaps you will be able to understand it better.

If you were in business and you wanted to get goods from a dealer, he might be exceedingly nice and courteous and so on, but you would scarcely have left his premises before he would be making inquiries from your next door neighbor as to your mode of conducting business and the discharge of your liabilities. He will not tell you that he is asking your next door neighbor about your integrity, or about your financial condition; but if he can not obtain satisfactory answers to his questions he will not supply your wants. It is the same meaning precisely, and yet because we say the word a little differently and change the aspect, we convey a totally different meaning.

The commercial traveler's experience of the word salvation is just the same as that of the religious man in effect. Physically, the same thought is conveyed. If any of us are ill and the doctor is called in: if it is a disease, it makes those who would come to see us rather nervous and they ask: "Is it safe for me to go and see him?" "Is it safe to have visitors to see him?" And in such cases many like questions arise. Is it safe to open the window? Is it safe for him to have fresh air? Is it safe for him to go out? What do we mean by this word safe and the cognates of this particular word?—we will discuss religion and poetry afterwards.

Let us come to the practical and everyday meaning of the word, giving to the term its practical value, and then we shall be the better able to understand what ought to be meant religiously.

COMMERCIAL SAFETY.

