PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA, March 3.—I am pleased to report that four more Italians were baptized yesterday, Brother Wirebaugh performing the ordinance. Heeding the direction of what he considered the Spirit's impression, he came to Philadelphia last Thursday night, and on Friday visited the Italians. He was able to make clear to them a few points that were dulling their spiritual vision, and at once they told him they desired baptism.

Our sacrament was fairly well attended. Brethren Irwin, Wirebaugh, and John Zimmermann, jr., confirmed those baptized, and I ordained Brother Frank Fraccascia to the office of elder. A good spirit prevailed.

Last Thursday night we had between seventy-five and
www.LatterDayTruth.org

eighty at our prayer service. We fasted and had special prayers for the sick in the branch. All enjoyed the service. I believe we have made more progress with our prayer services than with any other service. The attendance has been almost doubled.

ARTHUR E. STOFF.

Switzerland Missionary Tells of Many Blessings Received While Building Up the Work in Foreign Fields

BASEL, SWITZERLAND, March 5.—Thinking that the folks in the branches in America will be interested to know a little about one of the representatives of the church in this far-away land, I shall write a few lines about things as they are here. Generally people in America have a very small knowledge of how things really are for a foreign missionary. Sometimes we are a bit glad that they do not. All things are not as encouraging as they might be. Sometimes we have an exceedingly heavy load to bear. I have, however, noticed that after we have been made to go through disheartening experiences God sends us blessings which pay and repay us for our work. Our joys are indeed many and great.

Missionary and Family Arrive

I have now been here for a bit over a year and feel that I am now prepared to handle the work with much more ability than when I had to take it over. This year has been the severest one through which I have ever had to live. Severe experiences make us stronger if we live through them. I am still alive and very much so. I am especially in that state of being since last Tuesday, because Brother Hoisington and his family have arrived on the scene of action.

Prepares Christmas Program

The work of the church here has been going forward in the last year if I see rightly. The Sunday school work has been especially good. We have about twenty-five or thirty more members in the Basel school now than there were last spring. Before Christmas I worked hard in preparing the children for a program, and at Christmas time the Sunday school rented a larger hall than the one we are in, and we had a very nice program, consisting of two short plays, recitations, songs, and music, and after the program, each child was given a good and useful present which the Women's Department here had made or supplied during the year. With the present was given a sack containing apples, nuts, and home-made candy which I had the pleasure of making. The people can hardly understand how a man can be able to make candy or cook. I find, however, that when I cook something or make some candy, they know very well how to eat it. For New Year's Eve I made two banana and two apple pies for our fest. They were eaten also. At our Christmas program there were between 145 and 150 people present. They said that they had never before seen or attended such a nice Christmas fest. Several of the older people who attended have since been coming to our regular meetings.

Apostles Arrive in Basel

On February 15, I received a very much appreciated visit from Apostles Curtis and Hanson. You can feel how they have strengthened me and encouraged me when you think of how long I had been here alone. One cannot realize just what it means to be alone in a strange land until one goes through the thing himself. These two brethren brought strength and pep to me. While they were here we had some very nice meetings. I had to interpret for them. The Saints were also quickened by the visit, and several outsiders expressed themselves as having found something in our meetings which is nowhere else to be found. We look forward to the apostles' return in May. They have gone on with their good cheer to Brother Passman in Palestine. While they were in Basel I was ordained to the office of seventy. Since the ordination I have felt that the Lord has given me much added strength.

Department of Women

Our Women's Department has been well started, and we hope they will accomplish a good work in their field. They meet every two weeks at the hall, and at this time they sew and learn. We are trying to harmonize this work with the work in America as far as conditions will allow. Of course all things are different here, and one must take things as they are. The department, which we here call "Der Frauenverein," is figuring on buying a sewing machine so they can make the many things which are continually needed. There are many things, such as sewing baskets and other homemade articles, which sell very readily in this country, and the women are making such things. Each woman sells as many as she can in order to bring money into the treasury of the department.

Orioles Organized

In our Sunday school we have a goodly number of young girls from nine to fifteen years of age. About two weeks ago we organized these into a circle of Oriole girls. They meet every Wednesday afternoon and are now working on their uniforms. A friend of the branch who has been attending the meetings for about four months and who has asked to be baptized in the spring has charge of this work. She is a young married woman who formerly had charge of about one hundred girls in the same line of work in a little town just across the border in Germany. She is a great help to us and is always willing and anxious to do what she can to help the work along. We have also given her a class of children in the Sunday school. We surely need workers over here. I have tried to give all something to do who are willing, and have tried to divide the work so that all will get work they are able to do.

Receives Blessings According to Faith

During the last two months I have been going to Luzern two times a week. It is rather difficult to take care of Basel and Luzern and at the same time do something in Zürich. I have tried to do my best. I love my work and the people with whom I must work. God has blessed me wonderfully and at times marvelously. A mission of this sort has been very expensive thus far, and many times I have had to give out my last cent and live on faith from three to ten days before my allowance came from America. I have never gone hungry. God has been good. At these times I have always received a letter from America with enough money in it to answer a prayer of faith. We must have faith, and it is a grand thing. Recently I had a rent bill which had to be paid, and I lacked fifty francs of having enough to pay it. I did not know where I would get it, but I told the Lord that he knew I was in need and he knew that I am trying to serve him. From that time on I felt easy about the money. I felt that it would be in my hands when I had to have it. The Lord answers our prayers before we offer them. Two days before the rent was due I had a feeling that the money was at the post office, and sure enough, when I went to see, there was the money. Instead of fifty francs there were fifty-five and a half francs. I don't know what the man at the post office thought of me, but I stood there several minutes marveling. I wondered if I should ask the man to awaken me.

But then, I knew it was real. And it had been sent by an elderly Saint in America with whom I am not personally acquainted but whom I love for the Master's goodness in her. That is just an example of one time when the Lord has taken care of me. I could tell others but have not space. I have often heard the older missionaries tell of such experiences as that, and wondered if I would ever experience anything like it. The God we worship is the same to-day as he ever was.

New Missionaries Learn Language

Brother Hoisington and family have now arrived, and we are trying hard to get our work arranged so as to be efficient and really build up the church in this land. We seem so far to have the same ideals and aims and hope to work very congenially with each other in this work of wonders. I am surely thankful that God has sent such a good brother into this field to work with me. He is real through and through, and he and I are looking forward to doing some good things. He will soon get on to the language, and then there is enough work to last indefinitely. He can already make himself well understood, but one needs a lot of practice to be able to preach in a language. He will get it here. Sister Hoisington is enjoying the language I think. One morning (so she tells us) she wanted some warm water, and she tried to tell the maid at the hotel in French. The maid did not understand, so Sister Hoisington put her hand in some water and then went to the stove and put her hand on the stove. Then the maid knew. Foreign mission work has many interesting experiences.

I feel happy in the fact that there are now two of us here to do the work. My prayers and desires are that I may do my part in building up the Lord's work.

ELMER C. OHLERT.

Pays Tribute to Radio Studio

NELIGH, NEBRASKA, March 24.—Meetings here are excellent and the best of interest is enjoyed.

We say, "Hello, L. D. S. Studio!" The manager of the electric plant here reports the program of March 23, at 7.30 p. m., as coming into his home clear and distinct.

It is a wonderful age in which we are living. Two ministers speaking at the same time, hundreds of miles apart, are both heard at the same time by different individuals as if only separated by a stone's throw. While Brother J. F. Garver was preaching at the Stone Church he was heard by nonmembers only a few blocks from where I was preaching.

Apostle Garver is in charge of the mission of which Nebraska is a part. We are surely glad, Brother Garver, that your voice can be heard, even when we can't see your face in this part of the field. I was sorry I could not be a listener-in.

Let us doff our hats to the L. D. S. Radio Studio and thank our heavenly Father for these wonders. Come again with your message, L. D. S. Studio. GEORGE JENKINS.

Brother C. H. Armes of Volga, West Virginia, writes, when renewing his subscription: "We are a long way from any church and there are many good people here, some of whom I know would gladly listen to the truth. Of course there are other churches here, but if any elders passing through could stop off here, I am almost certain a good and noble work could be accomplished. There have never been any of our elders here and these people have never had the opportunity to hear the truth. I should like very much to get in touch with Brother J. D. Shower."

CHURCH NEWS

Kentucky and Tennessee District Conference Held at Farmington

FARMINGTON, KENTUCKY, March 26.—The conference of the Kentucky and Tennessee District met with the Farmington Branch on March 15. Owing to the roads and the weather conditions, not very many visiting Saints were present.

Elder J. R. McClain was chosen to preside. His resignation as district president was by vote disapproved by the body, but he declined to serve, favoring the approval of the recommendation coming from the First Presidency. This was unanimously supported.

The prayer meeting on Saturday morning was very uplifting because of the presence of the Spirit. The sermon of Elder T. C. Kelley on Saturday evening was of a very high order, as all who know Brother Kelley can readily conclude. It was full of logical reasoning.

The communion service Sunday morning was excellent indeed, for the Spirit of the meek and lowly Nazarene was present to a marked degree. What a blessed privilege to feel the hallowed influence of such loving-kindness from the heavenly Father! Experiences such as this make the toilers on life's road take new courage and gather all their strength for a mighty effort to conquer, though they die in the attempt.

One Baptized

A young brother, Elder Curtis L. Ross, preached at 11 a. m. on the law of tithing, supplemented by a few timely remarks by Brother Kelley. In the afternoon a sermon was had from our new district president, Elder J. E. Vanderwood, after which the congregation repaired to the water's edge to witness the baptism of a precious girl of fourteen. Confirmation and preaching by Brother Kelley took place in the evening.

So closed the conference. Meetings were, however, held each evening but one during the next week until Sunday. Brother Vanderwood gave some fine instructions. The slogan adopted by the district is, "We can do it." It is hoped Brother Vanderwood may do a great work in this district.

As yet no Sunday school or meetings of any kind are appointed for this branch. Brother Vanderwood left for other places on yesterday but hopes to return soon.

Brother Kelley started on his way homeward one week ago to-day, expecting to stop on the way for a few days in Illinois.

Great Advancement Being Made by Church Orchestra in New York

NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK, March 19.—There is surely a blessing in store for those who strive to develop their musical talent for service, for these are truly good stewards. Little can be accomplished without long and difficult training and very often much sacrifice on the part of parents and the artists themselves. Under the splendid leadership of the musical director, Brother LeRoy Squires, the branch orchestra has made steady growth and advancement, and at the present time it would do credit to any church organization in the city, yet new members are still enlisting.

Will Study Mothercraft

The Sunday school class of Sister Agnes Beardsley has organized for the study of "Mothercraft" as presented in the book by Mary L. Read, using also the study outline prepared by Etta Hunt. Sister Beardsley is one of the charter members of the teacher training class which is now in its second year of study under the direction of Graceland College. It is a matter of much importance that in this branch there are now two groups that are making a close study of the sociological factors of child and pupil development.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Women to Give Social

The Department of Women will give a social on March 21, for the benefit of further improvement of the church basement. Price of admission to the social will be based upon the stature of the respective guests.

Death of George Potts

Funeral services for Brother George Potts, son of Brother and Sister Albert Potts, were held at the home of the parents Sunday, March 9. Elder E. Squire, branch president, officiated. Brother George has been an invalid for some years. He leaves, besides his parents, two brothers, Albert and William, and two sisters, Emma and Dorothy.

Open Forum

"The sacrament" was the subject for discussion at the semimonthly open forum meeting on March 16, under the leadership of Brethren A. P. Hawkins and L. Squires.

Child Blessed

Alice Luceille, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Roe, was blessed on the morning of March 9 by Ephraim Squire and Joseph Squire.

A. Max Carmichael Speaks

Brother A. Max Carmichael, general Sunday school superintendent, was the speaker at 11 o'clock, March 9, using as his subject, "How long we have wandered as strangers in sin."

Week's Meetings Are Profitable to Cherokee Saints

CHEROKEE, IOWA, March 24.—Elder F. T. Mussell, of Des Moines, the new district president, closed a week's special meetings on February 24. There was a fair attendance at all the services, and the special lectures on the priesthood were very instructive and much enjoyed by the Saints.

Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Celebrated

Brother W. F. Landingham and his wife, Sister Emma, on Monday, March 3, celebrated the anniversary of fifty years of wedded life. The relatives and a few near friends gathered at the home of their daughter, Sister E. M. Chiles, to assist them on this occasion. Music and a social evening were much enjoyed by those present. A bounteous supper was served by the grandchildren. Brother Landingham is a priest, and both he and Sister Landingham have been members of the church forty years or more. We all unite in wishing them many more years of happy wedded life.

Sister Pearl Leopold and Gerhart Hoepfner were married at the home of the pastor, A. R. Crippen, who performed the ceremony on Monday, March 16. This couple will reside on a farm near Cherokee.

Bad Roads Affect Attendance

During the past month bad weather and bad roads interfered greatly with the attendance at all the services. However, the interest is good, and it is hoped when warm weather comes to increase attendance and interest in all departments.

The cradle roll class in Sunday school has increased so much in size and attendance under the leadership of Sister Reeder that more room and chairs must be provided.

The social prayer service the past week had the largest attendance of Saints that has been had for a long time. The Spirit was present, and all were greatly blessed.

Elder J. T. Spence and family have moved from Moorhead to Cherokee and are heartily welcomed by the Saints here.

Sermons by E. L. Edwards, A. R. Crippen, J. T. Spence, and W. W. Reeder were enjoyed during the last month.

William Shore and W. W. Leonard have been quite sick, but are better.

Southern New England District Conference Well Attended Despite Heavy Snowfall

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS, March 22.—In the last letter from Fall River it was learned that a heavy snowstorm had visited that region and the branch was fearful that the attendance at conference would be small, since connections with surrounding towns were almost cut off.

In spite of the heavy snowfall the middle of the week, conference was held by the end of the week as advertised and there was a large attendance from Boston, Providence, Haverhill, New London, Onset, Attleboro, and New Bedford.

District Election

At the business session of the Southern New England District conference Saturday morning Elder William A. Sinclair, M. D., was elected president; Elder Edward Traver, first vice president; and Elder T. J. Elliott, second vice president. Brother Elliott is the new pastor at Providence.

The historical report of the district, written by Brother Sinclair, was listened to with much interest.

Conference Program

The program for Saturday afternoon consisted of sermons: "The power of gospel influence on the world," Benjamin W. Leland; "What the gospel should do for the poor," Myron C. Fisher; "As a church are we representing the fullness of the gospel," Earl R. Bradshaw. Sunday: Elders' conference at 8 a. m.; social service, 9 a. m.; sermon, "Life's saddest words," Orval L. Thompson, 11 a. m.; cantata, "From Olivet to Calvary," by the combined choirs of the district, 2.30 p. m.; preaching, T. J. Elliott, 7 p. m.

Interesting Sermonets

The sermonets proved to be instructive and interesting. During the Sunday morning prayer meeting, Brother John Jackson was ordained to the office of deacon by Brethren T. J. Elliott and O. L. Thompson. The prayer meeting which followed was of a high spiritual order with love and a desire to come up higher voiced in beautiful prayers and testimonies which were offered. The voice of a faithful brother, George E. Gates, who recently moved to Philadelphia, was heard here, for he had returned to enjoy the Lord's blessings with the Saints of Southern New England.

One of the brethren suggested that "L. D. S." should mean "Let's do something right away," which idea met with a warm response.

Everyone who heard Brother Orval L. Thompson give the splendid sermon on "Life's saddest words," or "It might have been," could not help but review some things in mind which had been left undone. Brother Thompson has come to us this year as a district missionary and has found a warm place in the hearts of the Saints because of his consecrated life and willingness to help wherever needed.

Oratorio Rendered

The oratorio, "From Olivet to Calvary," was rendered in the afternoon in a very impressive manner. This was sung by the combined choirs of the district under the leadership of Brother James R. Houghton. There were twenty-eight voices, and solo parts were taken as follows: Soprano, Mrs. Beatrice York; tenor, Joseph Cliff; baritone, Harve Elefson; and accompanist, Nesta Williams. Brother Houghton asked the Saints to call it only human, but it seemed they sat under the influence of the Spirit as the sacred piece was sung which portrayed the saddest yet most beautiful part of the life of our dear Master.

Happy Conclusion

The majority of the visitors, about two hundred, left after the oratorio for their homes, but those who remained were privileged to hear a most interesting talk on "The American Indian" by Brother T. J. Elliott.

All who attended enjoyed the usual kind hospitality of the Fall River Saints and were made to feel most welcome in their homes. The Sunday meals were prepared by the Department of Women and a class of young men from the Sunday school served quietly and efficiently. The servers looked very neat in white coats and aprons.

The special services by Elder O. L. Thompson were brought to a conclusion Wednesday evening with a social in his honor. While in Fall River Brother Thompson enjoyed a visit to the Stevens Mill. Elder James W. Heap, the pastor, is employed there. The Stevens bedsreads are very beautiful and known all over United States.

Elder Earl Bradshaw of Attleboro was the speaker both morning and evening of March 23. Elder Abram Law will speak March 30.

Department of Women Local Organized at Tomahawk, Wisconsin

TOMAHAWK, WISCONSIN, March 23.—The Saints are few in number at this place and there is no branch. There are about twenty members, children and all.

A Department of Women was organized, January 25, with seven members, all willing workers. Many articles have been donated to this department, and when the weather is permissible a sale will be held, from which funds the Saints expect to rent a hall or make some necessary arrangements for getting the gospel before the people of this city.

The presence of God's Spirit is felt in the meetings, and while the group here are doing nicely in a financial way, they are trying to educate themselves to become more efficient.

Religio study is had on Wednesday nights, and prayer meeting on Sunday evening.

Through a letter from Brother Lenox, who in company with Brother L. O. Wildermuth is holding meetings at Pepin with good attendance and interest, it is learned they expect to be here early in April.

There is much sickness among the Saints this week. The work of the Department of Women was compelled to be postponed for a week later. Brother and Sister Ray Mair lost their infant son on March 6.

The little handful here are doing the best they can and the good Master's Spirit comes to encourage and help them along.

On February 10, a quiet wedding took place at the Allen home. Sister Carrie Allen, of Chicago, Illinois, was united in marriage with Mr. Henry Allen of this city. These people will make a nice addition to the numbers here as they both show evidence of assisting in the work.

Thirteen isolated Saints, without a preacher, gathered on March 23 at Brother Kominsky's restaurant and listened to the musical program and sermon by Brother J. F. Garver.

They could feel the Spirit which inspired each as they performed their duty. The Saints were very much pleased to hear Brother Garver since they are personally acquainted with him.

The radio surely is a blessing in this way. All enjoyed the whole evening's service and felt like joining in when the good words were heard of "The old, old path." Some had not heard a sermon for two months previously.

Union Branch to Resume Regular Services

CLITHERALL, MINNESOTA, March 26.—If the present favorable weather continues, Union Branch will soon begin holding its regular church services. Although there has been very little snow all winter and cars have been in use every day, there is still a short piece of road leading to Clitherall that is almost impassable. When all the snow for an unbroken sweep of eight miles packs into a road as it has done this winter on the road around the east end of Battle Lake, it forms a drift that approaches the character of a glacier. Considerable time and warmth are required to melt it down. When nature has completed this process, regular church services will be continued, probably beginning the first Sunday in April.

One proof of the good Minnesota roads is the fact that Brother J. W. Peek and family returned by auto from Independence, Missouri, arriving here on March 11 after a four days' trip. They experienced no trouble after getting into Minnesota.

Brother W. F. Perry, a former member of this branch, but now of Independence, was also here a few days the past week on business. He brought news of old friends and neighbors which was much appreciated.

Two Ordained to Priesthood at Coleman, Michigan

COLEMAN, MICHIGAN, March 18.—This branch is still on the map and seems to be gaining all the while under the leadership of Elder Martindale, the new pastor.

Last Sunday a very spiritual meeting was enjoyed. Elder Pendleton was here and everyone rejoiced at his presence. He preached on the redemption of Zion. He was greatly blessed by the Spirit. All who attended were surely enlightened upon the subject.

At the prayer meeting two brethren were called to the priesthood, Sylvester Yager and Francis Yager. It is a pleasure to see these two brethren take hold of the work, for there seems to be a special work for them to do.

The Saints all seem to be taking an interest in the financial law and as they abide by it they are receiving blessings.

Mrs. Bertha M. V. Converse, of Eureka, Montana, writes of a neighbor, Mrs. Orval Johnston, East Riverside, in the same city, who lost her home and all her possessions recently by fire. Mrs. Converse sympathizes with her neighbor because she herself passed through a like experience three years ago. She appreciated the letters of sympathy written her at the time, among which were letters from the man who baptized her and one from Elder Tordoff, of the Isle of Pines. Mrs. Converse is a Hedrickite member who subscribes for the Ensign and feels that the Reorganized Church is more nearly like her church than any other. There are two groups of Saints in the vicinity of Sandpoint, Idaho, to which place they are very desirous to move so that she and her family may have the privilege of attending Sunday school.

Saints Badly Burned When Roof of Burning House Collapses

BAY CITY, MICHIGAN, March 18.—Elder M. A. Summerfield and his son, George, of East Tawas, were painfully burned about the face and hands Sunday, March 16, when their home was destroyed by fire. The two men had succeeded in removing most of the furniture from the burning home and went to the second story for the last few articles when the roof collapsed. Both managed to fight their way out, but their clothing was on fire and the exposed portions of their bodies badly scorched. The men were taken to the Samaritan Hospital at Bay City, Sunday night. Both are improving slowly.

Elder Matthew Umphrey, president of Central Michigan District, and Elder S. T. Pendleton, of Beaverton, are holding a series of meetings in the church at Thomas and Catherine Streets.

Brother and Sister F. Root are spending a six weeks' vacation in Glendale, California.

Elder E. S. White and wife are spending the months of February and March at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Roach, in Miami, Florida.

Six Weeks' Meetings Held at Duluth and Two Harbors

DULUTH, MINNESOTA, March 18.—W. E. Shakespeare, missionary supervisor of Minnesota and North Dakota, was in this vicinity for the last six weeks holding meetings here and at Two Harbors. Although not many nonmembers were present yet it is felt that much seed was planted in the hearts of all to the goodness of God to mankind which will bear fruit in due time.

The sermons were plain and simple so that anyone could understand the gospel. It is hoped that it will not be long ere Brother Shakespeare is seen here again.

He was in charge of the sacramental services on March 2. The spirit of unity was manifested with many prayers and testimonies to the goodness of God, also words of counsel by the one in charge.

Brother W. E. Shakespeare left here to go to other fields that are ripe. "Come again."

Visit of District President

George W. Day, district president of the Minnesota District, was here Sunday, March 9, and spoke to the Saints both at the 11 o'clock and 8 p. m. services, with good attendance. His talks were spiritual and uplifting.

Sunday School

Arthur O. Johnson, superintendent of Sunday school, has been organizing his forces for a fine Easter entertainment. Good results are looked for in this department as officers and teachers are in regular attendance, which sets a good example to follow.

Department of Women

Under leadership of Sister Mollie Feathers this department is going forward, studying and trying to build up the kingdom of God and establishing his righteousness. There is a good attendance of members and nonmembers. They are soon to start systematic tracting in conjunction with the publicity department in an endeavor to help spread this glorious gospel to this city.

Department of Recreation and Expression

With Sister Lottie Zuelsdorf as superintendent of the Department of Recreation and Expression a fine work is being done. They are studying the Book of Mormon in simple form from the quarterlies. They have an entertainment and study period each week except the second Friday of each month, which is used for parliamentary drill, and the last Friday of each month which is used for children's prayer meeting. They have their services at 430 Eightieth Avenue West.

Publicity Department

Owing to just starting in the publicity work in earnest there is not much to say about this arm of the work here except that church announcements are published in two papers. It has also been decided to install a tract case in the Union Bus Station's waiting room. This will be a great help to the forwarding of the gospel. Anyone having Ensigns, HERALDS, or used tracts which are not in active service might send them to W. C. Stanty, 403 Seventy-seventh Avenue West, Duluth, Minnesota, and they will be appreciated.

Eighteen Baptized at Wiley, Colorado

WILEY, COLORADO, March 25.—Brother Curtis closed a series of meetings in Lamar a couple of weeks ago which lasted nearly six weeks. He baptized eighteen, and another woman was converted, but her husband refused to allow her to be baptized. These people are all fine folks, mostly heads of families and their children.

Everyone regretted having our kindly missionary go, but he surely earned a vacation before taking up his labors in the Uteville community. This series of meetings was begun last week, but the big snowstorm has blocked the roads until there is small prospect of good roads for some time.

The Temple Builder girls invited the branch to join them in celebrating Saint Patrick's Day by gathering at the church and practicing "ye arts of ye Irish scrub woman" inside the building. In spite of the driving snowstorm that day, the girls proved true to their motto, and everyone was present who could possibly come. A few other brave volunteers assisted, and the building was very well cleaned. After the work was done the girls served an appropriate lunch, which was much enjoyed, judging by the way it disappeared.

The Lamar Saints have organized a Sunday school and have good prospects of establishing a branch of their own in time. The new members are putting their shoulders to the wheel with fine spirit.

If You Are Asked

1. To Talk at a Church School Institute.
2. To Train a Class of Officers and Teachers.
3. To Teach Through Dramatics, Music, and Art.

COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

Italian Brother Relates Experiences With Gospel

BELLAIRE, OHIO, February 23.—Brother Sebastiano Vadala writes: "I saw in the HERALD of February 13 a letter from an Italian brother of like faith as myself. He gave an experience of his past life. I have never had so much joy as when I read the brother's words telling to the world that he had found the true light. During all the four years since I have been a member of the Latter Day Saint faith, I have never seen an Italian soul enter into the kingdom of God."

Baptized Into Church

"On December 28, 1919, I was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. I was for a number of years what the Catholics call an altar boy, serving the priest in the early mass.

"On December 22, 1919, while the powers of darkness surrounded me, for the first time in my whole life I poured out my soul before God. I was not much acquainted with prayer, either mentally or vocally. I had taken into my hands the Holy Bible, and at that time I could not read the English language; even in my own language I had had only six months of schooling when I was a boy. I began to pray to the Lord in the English language, and after I had prayed for the space of a few minutes I began to use my own language to make sure the Lord would understand me."

Converted by Dream

Brother Vadala tells here of a spiritual dream which converted him, in which he called out to the Lord for salvation and God answered his prayer. He then continues:

"I had been attending the Latter Day Saint Sunday school about eight months, when I decided to be baptized. While we were on the way to the place of baptism, we had to cross the Ohio River on a ferryboat. When the boat was out in the water some ways, the man who owned and operated it got angry with me and began calling me vile names. I had never before allowed a man to do so; I had always fought out my revenge. He began to arm himself with a gun and a blackjack, so I made up my mind to defend myself. I forgot that I was on my way to make a covenant with God until I looked up into the face of Elder A. H. D. Edwards, the president of the branch. When I saw him, the anger which had surged my being was instantly dispelled. I did not wish to do anything to my adversary.

"I was baptized by Brother Joseph Edwards, a priest of the branch, and confirmed at the same time, while the Lord poured out his Spirit upon us. There were six more besides myself who entered the kingdom at that time."

Receives Blessing

Brother Vadala had made a covenant with the Lord to pray three times daily. He tells of an experience with influenza about three weeks after his baptism. Though he had remembered his covenant of prayer and had called the elders, he was not healed. After spending four days in bed, he so desired to attend the Saints' prayer service that he called again to the Lord, who spoke to him bidding him "Come." So he went to the prayer service, where the Lord spoke to him, and it was prophesied that he should some day preach the gospel to his own faith. At the close of the services he felt completely healed of his affliction and the next morning went to his regular occupation.

Ordained to Offices

In 1920 he was told that he should be ordained a priest. This office he refused since he could not at the time read the English language. He was however ordained a deacon. On March 5, 1922, he was ordained priest, and September 1, 1923, an elder.

He says, "I have never been afraid to lift up my voice in defense of the gospel, for the Lord has blessed me with his power and with understanding."

Again he writes: "Now I have received understanding by the hands of God even that I read and write the English language. I could never deny this work; rather would I give my life in defense of the truth."

Manteno Saints Enjoy Valentine Social

MANTENO, ILLINOIS, March 11.—A valentine social was held in the hall, Thursday evening, February 14, which was quite well attended. Refreshments were served and Brother and Sister Leslie Rogers, also Brother and Sister Paul Pement gave several musical selections. Sister Paul Pement gave two readings, too.

The Department of Women, under the leadership of Sister Mildred Rogers, is doing good work. Sister Emma Studtman has charge of the Mothercraft Manual class and is working hard to make the study interesting.

The present church debt has been counted in the church budget this year and the slogan is "Pay it all."

Sister Jean Kahler, of Wilmington, who underwent an operation in January, is gaining strength.

Brother and Sister William Bell have moved from near Joliet, Illinois, to a recently purchased farm east of Manteno.

Brother and Sister J. H. McGuire, of Hammond, Indiana, attended services in Deselm, Sunday morning, March 2.

Minneapolis May Enlarge Church Building

MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA, March 20.—The work of the church in Minneapolis is continuing to grow and expand in a very favorable manner. Interest in the services and attendance at the Sunday meetings is getting so large that it is very difficult to accommodate all in the church as it is at present. Immediate relief must be secured, so it is very probable that at the next business meeting some action will be made to enlarge the church building.

Three new people have been baptized and added to the Minneapolis Branch this last month, and missionary work is getting along very well. A mission was opened up on the South Side, where meetings are held twice a week, as well as holding services in the homes in other parts of the city at the same time. The purpose is to give all the men in the priesthood work to do, in both missionary and general ministerial lines.

Young People's Organizations

The boys and young men of the branch have organized themselves in a club, which meets every Friday night, with the purpose of promoting the fourfold development of their personalities. Considerable enthusiasm is being shown in this club.

The junior choir, under the direction of Brother James Spargo, appeared for the first time in the morning service last Sunday, and made a very favorable impression. The senior choir is also doing very well, and helps to make the services more worth while through their efforts.

Brother William Sparling, the former pastor, who has been under church appointment in the Oklahoma District, is now in Minneapolis. The Saints are pleased to hear that he has done well in the South, and are glad to welcome him here again during the period of his stay in this part of the country.

Promises of Blessings

On Wednesday, March 12, the Minneapolis Branch observed a day of fasting and prayer in behalf of Sister Freeman of Saint Paul. In the evening the different groups met together in their respective places, and a large number gathered at the home of the afflicted sister. A great spiritual blessing was bestowed on her, and although she was not healed immediately the promise was given that the Lord would raise her up in good time, in the meantime to be of good cheer, for he was taking care of her and would see that those problems which were weighing down upon her would be solved. Speaking through prophecy, Brother Sparling in a different meeting gave promises to the same effect.

Deaths in Branch

Sorrow has been cast over the branch because of the very unexpected death of Sister Alpha Lundeen, the daughter of Brother Charles Lundeen, who is one of the beloved elders here and who has given so much of his time and energy in the past to make the work here as far advanced as it is. Brother Warren J. Knight has also lost a loved one, a lad of nine years, who succumbed to the effects of diphtheria. All wish to express sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Series of Meetings to Be Held at Port Huron by Young People

PORT HURON, MICHIGAN, March 14.—Truman Richards of Carsonville has been holding missionary services at the mission in the south end of the city and recently baptized four. There are others who are very much interested to come in later.

The Religio has been reorganized. It has been dormant for a couple of years, but Brother Jack Dollinger is now in charge, good crowds are turning out, and attendance is growing.

This department is holding a series of meetings from April 6 to 20. Patriarch John F. Martin of Kirtland will be the speaker. The Saints from all the surrounding branches and districts are especially invited to attend whenever possible and hear the wonderful talks Brother Martin will give.

The young people's campaign will end in a convention on April 19 and 20, at which time the young people of the entire district will probably be organized.

The branch is raising funds to improve and enlarge the church, also build a gymnasium. Through this the activities of the young are expected to be directed in such a way as to keep them interested in the church and still find enjoyment and play which the young must have.

Madison Sunday School Has High Average in Collection

MADISON, WISCONSIN, March 25.—In the HERALD for March 5, J. M. Terry states that the Christmas offering from that school for the previous Sunday had averaged twelve cents per member present. He wanted to know what other school could beat that average.

The Fair Oaks Sunday school of the Madison Branch has an average of fourteen and nine tenths cents per member present the first eleven Sundays of this year. It was over fourteen cents per member present each week for the year of 1923.

Topical Prayer Services

Since the first of the year Madison has been trying out the topical prayer meeting plan and likes it so well that it continues to be used. The topic to be used and the person to be in charge are announced at the morning and evening services on Sunday so that all can have a chance to prepare.

The speakers here since the last writing have been Ward L. Christy, J. O. Dutton, Leonard Houghton, H. W. Woodstock, and Charles F. Clark.

All are hopeful as the good work moves along.

Orioles Assist in Advertising Meetings

JONESPORT, MAINE, March 4.—The Saints here have been favored with a visit by Elder C. H. Rich, of Colorado Springs, Colorado, who is laboring as missionary in Western Maine District. He held a series of meetings, continuing two weeks with a large and interested audience every night and a packed house on Sunday nights.

The Oriole Girls assisted the work by tracting from house to house. Brother Rich is a forceful and interesting speaker, commanding good attention. He is a good sower of the gospel seed, and it is hoped that some has fallen on good ground and will spring up and bear much fruit to the honor and glory of God.

One was baptized in the icy cold water of the Atlantic, and others are near the kingdom. Several friends and Saints from Beals crossed the water about every night and assisted with the music. Elder Rich was a missionary in Maine twenty years ago, and his presence was hailed with delight and gratitude by the Saints and old-time friends who are hoping to have another visit from him in the coming months.

Elder H. A. Chelline, the present missionary, has been somewhat handicapped in his work for several weeks by the serious illness which resulted in the death of his wife's mother, Sister Jane Yarwood, generally known as "Aunt Jane." Sister Yarwood passed away some two weeks ago. She was an old-time Saint and has had a long experience in the work. It can well be said of her, "She has fought a good fight, she has finished her course, she has kept the faith; henceforth there is a crown of righteousness laid up for her." She came to this branch in May, and by her pleasant and social way won many friends. She will be missed at the services and the social gatherings which she much enjoyed.

During the winter Brother Chelline has held several meetings at Beals with good attendance and interest. One has been baptized. As spring opens he will be able to resume his work in the district. He surely loves the work and is showing both by precept and example that he is a servant of God. This field is a large one, and more laborers are needed. It seems by the signs of the times that those holding the priesthood should heed the admonition:

"Thrust in your sharpened sickles
And gather in the grain,
The night is fast approaching
And soon will come again;
Your Master calls for reapers,
And shall he call in vain?
Shall sheaves lie there ungathered,
And waste upon the plains?"

M. H. Cook writes from Condon, Oregon, that the debate just started with the Baptist Church, in which he is assisting Brother Daniel Macgregor, looks as though it will be a sweeping victory for the Reorganization. The audience was large on the first night, and the promises are hopeful for even better attendance on the succeeding nights.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO WORKERS IN DEPARTMENT

(Continued from page 338.)

- Central Michigan, George E. Burt, 2533 North Michigan Avenue, Saginaw, Michigan.
 Detroit, Carlisle Whitehead, 356½ South Saginaw Street, Pontiac, Michigan.
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, Myrtle Perry, 7 Cutter Avenue, Coldwater, Michigan.
 Western Michigan, Sidney Price, Care of Gaine's Store, Cadillac, Michigan.
 Minnesota, Mrs. Lottie Zuelsdorf, 3233 Chestnut Street, Duluth, Minnesota.
 Clinton, Missouri, Miss Helen Hawley, Fort Scott, Kansas.
 Holden, D. R. Carmichael, Atherton, Missouri.
 Kansas City, J. Ray Lloyd, 4011 Westport Avenue, Rosedale, Kansas.
 Eastern Montana, Earl Wilcox, Glasgow, Montana.
 Southern Ohio, Bernard Holland, Point Rock, Ohio.
 Kirtland, Robert Miller, 3355 West Eighty-sixth Street, Cleveland, Ohio.
 Northwestern Ohio, Mrs. Olive Ulrich, Bradner, Ohio.
 Youngstown-Sharon, James E. Bishop, 226 Edgar Avenue, Steubenville, Ohio.
 Central Oklahoma, Carlyle T. Kueffer, 2119 West Twentieth Street, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.
 Eastern Oklahoma, H. E. Winegar, Poteau, Oklahoma.
 Chatham, Ontario, S. E. Miffin, 37 Lorne Avenue, Chatham, Ontario.
 Pittsburgh, Frank L. Shinn, 291 Sebring Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.
 Southern Saskatchewan, John Miller, Webb, Saskatchewan, Canada.
 Southwestern Texas, Mrs. Bertha Tartagly, 124 Ohio Street, San Antonio, Texas.
 Utah, Roscoe E. Davey, 336 South Fourth East Street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
 Spokane, R. A. McDole, Sagle, Idaho.
 Wheeling, West Virginia, Clyde S. Rice, 3844 Noble Street, Bellaire, Ohio.
 Northern Wisconsin, George E. Clark, Tomahawk, Wisconsin.
 Southern Wisconsin, Norman E. Hield, 2102 East Washington Street, Madison, Wisconsin.

Local superintendents of the Department of Recreation and Expression should get in touch with their district superintendents at once, since these superintendents are the ones to assist the local workers in the various phases of the work of this department. We are suggesting that each local superintendent write a monthly letter to the district superintendent and that each district superintendent write a monthly letter to the general office.

We believe this office is in a better position than ever before to furnish suggestions and materials for workers in this department. Your cooperation may seem a trivial thing to you, but if every officer does his part our whole department will be made much more efficient.

Do not delay. If your district is not represented, kindly let us know at once the name and address of your district superintendent.

F. M. MCDOWELL, Acting Superintendent of Recreation and Expression.

Graceland Chats

LAMONI, IOWA, March 29.—During the week President G. N. Briggs attended a meeting of college presidents at Des Moines, Iowa. This is a semiannual meeting of the State, considered of extraordinary importance. Among other things the work of the radio was discussed. Graceland is the only small college in the State operating a radio station, and many were the questions propounded to Brother Briggs. Of supreme concern were the facts submitted touching the type of program Graceland sent out upon the far-flung currents of the air. Most generous was the praise, and the verdict was universal, that the programs being given are of the highest order, not alone in selection of material but in clear and artistic production in word, thought, and tone. In several instances the station has received letters saying hearers tuned in late and did not hear all of the lecture, and asking for full text.

Regular Lyceum Number

On Thursday evening occurred the regular lyceum number in which Miss June Whiting read the "Fool." Miss Whiting is a favorite with Lamoni audiences, and the faces before her on Thursday night were many of them dear to her. She felt the love of the audience meeting her in sympathy and support and it swept her like a tide.

Pollock's "Fool" is old as time in philosophy. So much of it was the deep and abiding belief of Miss Whiting that she moves with sympathetic heart through the story, never losing touch with the golden thought of the great production, the life and teaching of the Master of Men.

Between the third and fourth acts Mr. Maynard Hunt, for the College Players, presented the speaker with an armful of her favorites, pink roses. After the reading Miss Whiting was guest of the Players in the reception room at Bide-a-Wee.

Bide-a-Wee Club Has Open House

The "Bide-a-Wee Club," the girls of Bide-a-Wee Hall, held a reception and open house on Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5.30. The girls, during the year, held an entertainment and by reason of the loyal support of the students, raised money enough to purchase a few more pieces of furniture for the reception room. They acknowledge the kindness of Brother Otis White who gave them wholesale prices on the furniture and also donated a fine chair.

Elder John Zimmermann, jr., of Philadelphia, very generously and very characteristically helped the girls out with a consignment of scraps of magnificent velours, tapestries, etc., which they worked up into cushions and table runners. What an excitement the package caused, and what planning! Some of the pieces went to the other halls and some are not yet worked up, but the hall was wide open Saturday to friends who cared to come and partake of hospitality and refreshments and share in the music.

Thursday Chapel

One hour all together is had each week for prayer and song and speech. Thursday, Miss Carlile presented some of the music lately donated by Albert N. Hoxie, church chorister. Sister Carlile would have everyone be students of music appreciation. These records, two or three dozen in number, are a beautiful and appropriate inducement to the study. Graceland students will carry the effect of these productions into all their future life.

Surprise Parties

President Floyd M. McDowell has a diplomat for a wife. He lately celebrated his thirty-fifth birthday and she successfully juggled two affairs for him. Very demurely she met him, and with his office force and friends, spread a birthday supper by a camp fire in the woods. Then tired and wood-stained she went home with him and the two little daughters to a dark house, but when the light was turned on they beheld a gathering of down-town folks. The stage was all set, and Mrs. McDowell rang up the curtain. Brother McDowell knows how it feels to be piling up the scores. He does not know where he is going, but he is half way there, as Ring Lardner puts it.

Oratorical Contest

Winners in the inter-society oratorical contests were: William Ely, first; Joseph Anway, second; Leland Omans, third; Florence Thompson, fourth; and Sidney Phillips, fifth. The first and last are Kapp's; second and fourth Niketes; and the third is an Alpha Pi. The result was a tie between the Kappa Deltas and Niketes, giving each a banner.

Miss Clara Wood, typist for HERALD correspondent, is back to her work again after an illness of several weeks.

Oil Lamp Used at Services When Storm Blows Down Wires

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS, March 13.—The electric and telephone services are out of commission in the city, so two oil lamps were used for the services March 13. The wires and poles are down because of the storm. The Saints are trying hard here to get the electric lights in again before conference.

The conference attendance will doubtless be smaller because of the storm. At present the New Bedford people cannot get through. Service connections with Providence are very slow.

There was no preaching Wednesday evening, a few talks being given instead. The service, March 13, however, was well attended with a few strangers present. Brother Thompson apologized for not coming out Tuesday night in the storm. He says that next time he is in Fall River, he will come out if he has to wade in slush to his neck.

Elder Thompson will stay here until next Wednesday, March 19. Everyone is enthusiastic over him.

To Give "Easter Dawn" Pageant at Glasgow, Montana

GLASGOW, MONTANA, March 26.—The Saints and their friends were favored by a visit from Elder Carl Crum, missionary to Montana, who came to Glasgow, March 19, and stayed until the 24th, preaching two sermons Sunday, at 3 o'clock and at 8 p. m. A number of nonmembers were present at the evening service. The comment heard from both members and nonmembers was, "He makes his message very plain."

Members of the Sunday school are practicing a pageant, "Easter dawn," to be given April 20.

March with her semicold weather has brought an unusual amount of sickness among the group here. This has hindered the work some this month. Among those on the sick list have been Sisters Caroline Sandidge, Kate Henderson, Irene Page, Alma Jordan, and Brothers Earl Wilcox and Neil Rogers.

A thing which has caused some amusement and given an excellent opportunity to defend the work came in an article in the local paper from a Mr. N. H. Nordby who conducts a Holiness mission in Glasgow, entitled "A statement of our belief." In nearly every statement he tells the things they do not believe. One of them is, "We do not believe that Joseph Smith or Brigham Young are prophets of God."

The interest at the young people's prayer meetings held Sunday mornings is growing, seventeen being in attendance on March 23. A suggestion seen in the HERALD from one of the branches giving out questions to the young people to answer has been adopted. Much information is gained in that way.

Calls are coming from nonmembers in communities near Glasgow to come and preach for them as soon as the roads open up. The opportunities are getting better all the time to spread the gospel message.

Week's Meetings Held at Ottumwa by Apostle D. T. Williams

OTTUMWA, IOWA, April 1.—An unexpected visit from Apostle D. T. Williams and wife to their old home town was very welcome. They came to visit Brother Williams's father who is seventy-six years old, and the mother of Sister Williams, Sister A. Scott.

Brother Williams offered his services while here. Meetings were immediately advertised. These began Sunday morning, March 23, and lasted a week. The earnestness with which topics were presented and the grasp had of the subjects, made them both clear and interesting. Brother Williams brought new light on many topics, especially stewardships. A number of nonmembers came to hear him and none went away disappointed. The services help to emphasize on the membership their responsibility in moving out with renewed vigor.

The Saints have a warm place in their hearts for Brother Williams and pride themselves that this was the branch where he began his ministerial work.

C. E. Willey preached a good sermon here March 16.

Ten-Day Missionary Campaign Conducted in Saskatchewan

ARTLAND, SASKATCHEWAN, March 28.—William J. Cornish, district president, requested his colaborers to join with him in a ten-day campaign to get the gospel before the people in the different localities.

Some responded and came home rejoicing. Here are the reports of some of them: John J. Cornish left home March 1, visited Rosetown, Delisle, Vanscoy, and Saskatoon, preaching twenty-six sermons in twenty-five days, with splendid liberty of speech and much of the Holy Spirit. He was ably assisted by Albert I. J. Lockyer, Leroy G. Wood, William Brant, Andrew M. Crofford, Howard Loucks, Henry Fisher, and Sigard Erickson. A great many people were interested.

William J. Cornish, ably assisted by Fred Scott, Lewis Gendron, and William Hurley, seized an opportune time to present the message in the central part of the district.

Wellington D. Ellis, from Michigan, a visitor at Artland, was also requested to participate in the work. He preached in the depot at Artland on the evening of February 29, while en route to his mission. He also delivered some stirring addresses at Delisle, Laura, Grand Plains, and Lincoln School-houses, leaving a large degree of that missionary spirit which has so often characterized his sermons.

E. Leslie Mogg delivered a series of eight sermons to good crowds at Cando, March 7 to 14. A Mr. Stillwell said it was news to him that the Book of Mormon did not teach polygamy. He first borrowed Brother Mogg's Book of Mormon and at the close of the meetings purchased one.

While these ministers were actively engaged in the central part of the district, the northern part was ably cared for by Birch Whiting, Roy Bowerman, and others.

The Department of Recreation and Expression has enjoyed pleasant sessions this winter. On March 14 a hard-time social was held. To-night, March 28, an old-fashioned program is to be given. The annual valentine box was held February 15.

Reading of "The Fool" Well Received by Des Moines Saints

DES MOINES, IOWA, March 31.—Miss June Whiting, of Graceland College, read on Monday, March 24, Channing Pollock's famous play, "The Fool." This play is an intense human drama which shows that the fundamental principles of Christianity can be put into practice and that the reward is more than worth the sacrifice necessary to carry out these principles. A very appreciative audience, which filled the church, was delighted with the excellent artistry and understanding with which the play was presented.

David E. Dowker, pastor, was the speaker both morning and evening, March 23, speaking on "The Prophet Malachi," and "The antiquity of the gospel."

Orman Salisbury, of Saint Joseph, Missouri, was a very welcome visitor March 26. He was formerly president of the Des Moines District and is now president of the Far West Stake. Brother Salisbury attended the Wednesday night prayer meeting and gave a short talk which was much enjoyed.

Present Play at Runnells

The play, "Mr. Bob," a delightful comedy, was taken to Runnells March 27. The cast, under the direction of A. E. Warr, did admirable work. Those taking part were: Joseph Maitland, Mabel Mussell, Masile Dalbey, Thelma Dowker, Stephen Robinson, Leonora Wilkinson, and Addison Brown.

F. O. Wilkinson, superintendent of the local and district Sunday schools, with Stephen Robinson, superintendent of the department of Recreation and Expression, have recently visited Perry and Boone in the interest of the different departments.

Henry Castings, district president, preached March 30 on "putting on the whole armor"; in the evening Brother J. L. Parker delivered a sermon on "Church organization." At the Religio, Truman Ziegenhorn, a former member of this branch and an ex-soldier, now connected with the Anti-Saloon League, gave a short talk on the necessity of every American citizen remaining true to the Constitution of the United States.

Dale Finch was baptized by G. F. Hull on March 30.

Saint Patrick's Tea Given to Benefit Christmas Offering

SAINT THOMAS, ONTARIO, April 2.—The choir met on Saint Valentine's Day at the home of Irene Cox for a social evening. After a short practice several of the games outlined in the Autumn Leaves were played with much interest.

The Sunday school is still trying to boost the Christmas offering and is away with a good start, over $72 being raised up to date. The objective is $200, but if the money continues to come in as it has, the thermometer will soon be broken.

The Sunday school, on March 14, was hostess at a Saint Patrick's tea and food sale. The church was prettily decorated with green crepe paper. There were nine little tables at which to seat the guests. The tables looked inviting with their snowy cloths and table napkins, trimmed with shamrocks and Irish hats, and vases of flowers. Mrs. Freele was in charge of the food sale and Mesdames Cordery and Johnson sold caps and aprons at the booth of the Department of Women. About $31 was realized for the Christmas offering.

H. A. Koehler has been here for three weeks, preaching twice on Sundays and three times during each week. His sermons have been inspiring to all. On March 18 Apostle James Gillen spoke to an appreciative audience.

Sister Mary E. McGillivray, who has undergone an operation, is the only member seriously ill at this writing. She requests the prayers of the Saints.

Plan to Hold Series of Special Meetings

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON, April 1.—This branch has not been able to start its series of special meetings yet, but are looking forward to the time when they shall begin. This branch, as before mentioned, has planned a real missionary effort to reach more of the good people of this city who should hear the gospel. Since the admonition is to "Let your light so shine," the Saints are of the firm conviction that this year is their crucial test.

The semiannual conference, held in the latter part of February, brought to Seattle many visitors and resulted in much good. Especial mention should be made of the three splendid sermons preached by Apostle D. T. Williams. The Saints will long remember Brother Williams's direct way of pointing out some of the things which the church should do, things for which it has stood for many years, particularly the practical application of the stewardship plan.

Meals Served Free

Honorable mention should be made of the splendid contribution the Department of Women made toward the success and enjoyment of the conference. These women served meals free to all Saints in the basement of the church, thus making it possible for the entire gathering to spend all of their time at the church during the intermissions. This was especially acceptable on Sunday when many had come from a distance. Although these good sisters anticipated and provided for a large gathering, the Saints came in such numbers that before the evening meal was reached on Sunday their provision shelves resembled Mother Hubbard's cupboard. They were compelled to abandon serving that meal. The noontime meal abundantly compensated, however.

Present Play

Expressions of pleasure and delight were heard about the presentation of "Queen Esther" by the young people. It was a splendid drama of the struggles of the Jews in Persian captivity.

A splendid victory for truth is heard of the debate recently held at Condon, Oregon, between Daniel Macgregor and the Baptist minister of that place. Brother Macgregor exercised extreme courtesy in presenting the truth.

Sister Hazel Hawley, a graduate nurse of the Independence Sanitarium, died at Fort Scott, Kansas, March 15. She was among those who graduated in June, 1921, and has since been night superintendent of the Fort Scott Hospital. The nurses of this hospital were her honorary pallbearers. Further items of her life will be found among the obituaries.

Autumn Leaves Used in Department of Recreation and Expression Program

EVERETT, WASHINGTON, March 31.—Regardless of sickness among the Saints here there is still a good attendance in all the departments.

A wonderful sermon was preached Sunday morning by Brother Bruce Shippy, it being his third attempt.

The Saints here are thankful for Autumn Leaves. One or more numbers from it are always used as a part of the program of the Department of Recreation and Expression.

George R. Brundage, the branch leader, is kept busy administering to the sick and is called at all hours of the night. He works in a big mill six days out of the week and gives a full day to the Lord on Sunday. This branch is very fortunate to have him as a leader.

District Missionary Visits Saints at New Bedford

NEW BEDFORD, MASSACHUSETTS, March 31.—Orval L. Thompson, the district missionary, was here during the past week. His presence was enjoyed very much. Saints and a number of outsiders, who came to hear him tell the gospel story, are loud in his praise.

Sunday night was the banner night for attendance. Forty-eight were present and twenty-one of these were nonmembers. A number of Saints from Fall River paid New Bedford a visit Tuesday night and enjoyed the sermon.

An entertainment was held March 30 to which about seventy came. The program consisted of readings, addresses, recitations, and solos. Refreshments were served.

Pueblo Branch Has Biggest Day Since Organization

PUEBLO, COLORADO, March 28.—The biggest day in the history of the Pueblo Branch since its organization was March 23. Eight people were baptized and two brethren ordained. Brother John Eve was ordained priest, and Brother Stuart Mapes, teacher. A fine spirit was felt during the entire day. The spirit of prophecy was manifested at the confirmations.

Brother Reuben Ard has recently been ordained a deacon. Elder Wilbert Richards, the pastor, is very glad he has more help to carry on the work in this city and that the Pueblo Branch has now a full set of officers.

Some distinguished visitors have been had in Pueblo this quarter, James E. Yates and J. Arthur Davis. Elder Bruce Brown, district president, has just completed a week's series of meetings here. Elder Richards appreciates the help of these fine men and would be glad to have any of the ministry stop over whenever they have the opportunity. His address is 1102 East Second Street.

Sister Mary A. Simmons, of Warrensburg, Missouri, writes that she is still strong in the faith that has held her for many years. A year ago she lost her companion whom she misses very much. Although Sister Simmons is unable to do much besides her own house work, she is thankful for the blessings she still receives. One of these blessings is the comfort she receives from her grandson, who lives in Illinois. He has been in poor health and requests the prayers of the Saints that he may again be able to preach the gospel. Sister Simmons's daughter, Marie Rix, also asks the prayers of the Saints that she may rear her children in the way they ought to go.

Three Weeks' Meetings Held at Centralia

CENTRALIA, WASHINGTON, March 31.—This place has taken on new life since the beginning of the year. The new officers are: Orville L. Oppelt, branch president; George Davis, general acting priest; Albert T. Davis, teacher; George Steel, deacon; and Lula Premo, clerk. The entire body of the priesthood were sustained.

Carl Crum commenced a series of meetings here on January 6, which continued over three weeks. These were on special lines of church doctrine, of vital importance to the Saints, and of much interest to several nonmembers. Lavinia Powell and two children were baptized on March 9.

The Religio held a social and supper in the basement of the church on February 15. Proceeds went to purchase a basket ball. The Religio has come to the front in several ways the last two months under the supervision of Harold Premo. Good programs are rendered each session just following the lesson study wherein the Book of Mormon is generally used. The average attendance has greatly increased.

The Sunday school is progressing with O. L. Oppelt as superintendent. The junior department of four classes is interesting. It meets in the church basement. This department is racing with the senior classes in the Christmas offering fund for this year.

Study Mothercraft Course

The Department of Women have discontinued one of the two dinners served each week at the Community House to two of the leading city clubs. The Thursday dinners are continued and are served to the Chamber of Commerce. The ladies decided at the last business meeting to study the Home Building course, selecting as textbooks the manuals, "Mothercraft" and "Mothercraft for Girls."

Preparations are under way for two programs to be given Easter Day. The children are practicing for a mixed program for the morning hour, while the older young people are rehearsing with interest the Easter drama, "Easter dawn." The choir has the drama under supervision with Blanch Davis, Lula Premo, and Melva Ward, musicians, and Jessie Ward, director of the drama. The choir are also endeavoring to stimulate their energy into healthful activity by ordering new books called Best Anthems.

Portland Young People Rent School Gymnasium

PORTLAND, OREGON, March 31.—The Department of Recreation and Expression has rented a gymnasium of the Montavilla school and many of the young people attend the recreational exercises which are held each Monday night. Volley ball and basket ball are quite popular at present.

The Department of Women served supper in the basement of the church before and after the regular Religio session last Friday, to raise funds for the work of the department. The venture proved quite a success, netting $22.51. After the lesson study period a program was rendered by the Department of Women.

"The resurrection of the dead" was the subject of a sermon preached by John Hanson at the Portland church, March 23. The sermon was one which should create in the hearers a greater desire to strive to attain the reward of celestial glory as elaborated upon by W. H. Barker in his discourse on "Eternal judgment," March 30.

The local membership is growing slowly, and attendance in all departments shows a decided increase over last year. A greater degree of unity seems to prevail among the Saints and more talk is heard of Zion and Zionite ideals than previously. The stewardship plan is often the subject of discussion among the members and much interest is being taken in the material side of religion.

Modesto Saints Encouraged Over Increased Attendance

MODESTO, CALIFORNIA, March 27.—At the sacrament meeting this month a splendid gathering was had where the Spirit warned all to be faithful. The prayer meetings have been especially good during the last month, and attendance at all the meetings has increased so that the Saints feel encouraged.

The Department of Recreation and Expression is doing an excellent work. They held a Saint Patrick's social. After a short program games were played and a grab bag was enjoyed by the children. The proceeds will go to the Christmas offering which the branch wishes to increase materially this year.

The Department of Women are doing nicely although they have only a small attendance. On March 13 they held a food sale and a sale of nut cups which netted them $16.20. They are working hard now on bazaar goods to be held in April before Easter. Church history is the subject of their study hour.

The Department of Music is progressing and the junior choir is doing a good work.

Late rains have made all faces look much shorter and it is hoped the pockets will look longer.

Visiting Saints and Officials Welcomed to Denver

DENVER, COLORADO, March 31.—Bishop Israel A. Smith arrived the day after the district conference and was here a week on church business. Sunday morning, March 2, he gave a sermon on stewardships and the redemption of Zion, which was clear and concise.

Apostle Roy Budd called on his way west, giving good advice both morning and evening of March 9. The next week, Arthur H. Smith and wife, of Saint Louis, stopped over Sunday, and Brother Smith spoke in the evening. The following Sunday J. B. Wildermuth preached in the morning.

Pastor E. J. Williams was the morning speaker on March 23 with the subject, "What is my job?" The missionary meetings for Sunday night are still continuing. Frank B. Almond is the speaker, with all services interesting and well attended.

March has broken the record for bad weather; the first few days were fairly pleasant, but since then there have not been three days in succession without a snowstorm.

Calendars at Reduced Prices

We have a small surplus of the popular Scriptural Calendars which we will close out at a reduction of one third. These calendars are suitable for year-round use and should have a place in every home. The pictures are an inspiration, and especially valuable in the teaching of little children.

Send in your orders at once. We guarantee that you will be pleased with your purchase—if not, money will be refunded on return of the calendar.

Formerly 30 cents, reduced price, 20 cents.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
Independence, Missouri

Work Handicapped by Lack of Church Building

PITTSBURG, KANSAS, March 31.—The progress of the work here is greatly handicapped by the lack of a church building, the meetings of the branch being confined to the use of a hall, while the midweek prayer meetings are held in the homes of the Saints.

The Department of Women put on the program last Sunday evening at the meeting of the Department of Recreation and Expression. It was a play which had been used recently at the college, entitled, "Following the cross." It was well executed and depicted very clearly how some worship the cross instead of bearing the cross and worshipping the Lord Jesus who suffered on the cross. At the close a collection was taken for the Children's Home.

John Blackmore, pastor, who is attending college here, and who is on the college debating team is away this week on a debating tour. Since he left, word has been received that they won the debate in Kansas City.

The pulpit was occupied last Sunday by the local priesthood, S. Farrington being the speaker at 11 o'clock and Howard Anderson at the evening service.

Brother Otto Hempel passed to his reward on March 23, after an illness of more than two months. The funeral of another brother who lived five miles south was held the same day. This was Brother Richard Bird, one of the pioneers of the Spring River District. He settled in the locality where he lived in the 1860's, having previously passed through the country with Lyman Wight's band on their way to Texas.

Groton Branch Prepares Easter Concert

GROTON, CONNECTICUT, April 2.—Elder Edmund Brown, of Pascoag, Rhode Island, delivered an interesting discourse to the Saints of New London Branch on March 23. He took for a subject, "Our reserve power." Brother Brown was accompanied by his wife and son.

A number of Saints from Groton attended the recent conference at Fall River, Massachusetts. The splendid hospitality of the Saints there was appreciated.

O. L. Thompson, district missionary, is expected here this month to hold a series of meetings.

Preparations are being made for an Easter concert.

Missionary Experiences Related to Bradner Saints

BRADNER, OHIO, April 2.—Walter Wierbaugh and Everett L. Ulrich visited this branch and told of their experiences in their different fields of labor, also delivered some helpful sermons.

Brother Wierbaugh left for his district and Brother Ulrich will soon be at his line of battle. It is quite certain that they will find improvement in those places which have been so fortunate as to be blessed with their visits. Already the Saints are beginning to get busy.

Brother G. L. Sweet writes from Harmon, Oklahoma. He is an isolated brother who would be happy to live in a community of Saints. It has been about nine years since he heard a Latter Day Saint sermon. He lives in a sandy community that is not very productive and is fifteen miles from a railroad. He would like to hear from some of the Saints in localities where there are branches, as he contemplates making a change after this season.

Independence

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, April 8.—One of the big days for the community in Independence, was Sunday, April 6, when the 94th anniversary of the founding of the church was celebrated. The beautiful spring day brought crowds out for every service, and at times the buildings were filled to overflowing.

Sunday School

At the first meeting of the day, Stone Church, the Sunday school attendance was 1,515, with 28 perfect classes out of 120. The I X L Class had an attendance of 118 adults and 8 babies, of which number 92 were on time. The class has recently increased its numbers as the result of an active membership contest. Young people who have not attended Sunday school for years, are again interested and attending. Special music with historical significance was given, including such songs as: "The old, old path," "The angel message," and "We're marching to Zion." R. S. Salyards, church secretary, delivered a short address on "The organization of the church." The usual lesson hour was observed.

Morning Services

At 10.45 a. m., the communion service began. During the course of the meeting, short testimonial talks were given by members of the priesthood.

While this service was going on, S. A. Burgess, historian, delivered a radio address from the broadcasting studio on "The organization of the church."

Address of President F. M. Smith

President Frederick M. Smith spoke on "What foundation did our fathers lay? How shall we build on it?" at 2.30 p. m. President Smith outlined the heritage we received from our fathers and emphasized the importance of going on to perfection. He again urged the people not to delay longer in accomplishing the work assigned to them.

Stone Church Religio

The Religio met at the usual hour, 6 p. m., Sunday. There is now an average attendance of 500. All classes but one are studying the Book of Mormon, using the new quarterlies. Short programs follow the study hour.

President F. M. McDowell Speaks

Half an hour musical program preceded the sermon at 8 o'clock by President F. M. McDowell. He spoke on "Hear ye Him." This service was broadcast.

Spring Branch Church

On Sunday, March 30, Doctor Charles Keown occupied the morning hour in the interest of the health department. The Saints received much good advice and instruction. At 7.30 p. m., Elder U. W. Greene gave one of his splendid lectures with lantern slides, on the life of Christ. This was appreciated by a good audience.

Communion service was held on Sunday, April 6, and the church was crowded. In the evening all had the pleasure of listening to Elder L. E. Hills preach on the internal evidences of the Book of Mormon. He cited many quotations to prove its authenticity. At the same hour Elder John Soderstadt, pastor of this congregation, preached at Englewood.

A good Religio program is anticipated Friday evening, April 11, with some assistance coming from Independence.

President's Daughter Returns From California

Alice Myrmyda Smith, daughter of President and Mrs. Frederick M. Smith, returned March 26, from California.

She has just completed her work for the degree of bachelor of arts in economics-journalism, at Stanford University.

Zion Conference

The second quarterly conference of Zion of the year met Monday night, April 7, in the Stone Church. In less than half an hour all business was transacted and every vote taken was unanimous. Ordinations were approved and provided for the following: Alfred N. Evans to office of priest; Eric E. Ellis to office of deacon. The appointment of Mrs. Alice M. Cowan to fill the remainder of the unexpired term as superintendent of Women in Zion, made vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Anna Murphy, was approved by the conference. Ratification of the appointment of Bishop J. A. Becker as assistant to the Presiding Bishopric in Zion, was also given.

Music Club in State Federation

The Independence Music Club, now a member of the Missouri Federation of Music Clubs, was represented at the Sixth Annual Festival and Convention of the Federation at Lexington, Missouri, April 3, 4, and 5, by delegates: Mrs. Neal Thomason, representing the president, Mrs. Emma Stahl, and Miss Louise Newton. The Independence Club was represented on the program by Mrs. Minetta Isaacks and Mrs. Thomason. The three days of the convention were largely taken up by musical programs given by the leading artists of Missouri. Activities were centered around the Wentworth Military Academy.

Establish Children's Clinic

A free clinic for children under 14 years of age will be opened April 10, in Bartholomew Hall, and will continue to render services thereafter on Thursdays from 4 to 5 p. m. It is hoped that later the clinic will be extended to adults as well. Doctor Brickhouse Wilson, specialist in children's diseases, will be in charge, assisted by Miss Faye Franklin, visiting nurse of the Independence Sanitarium. The organization of the clinic is being sponsored by the Department of Women. The board of directors will consist of Miss Gertrude Copeland, chairman, Doctor John R. Green, Frederick M. Smith, Benjamin R. McGuire, R. V. Hopkins, J. A. Becker, M. A. Etzenhouser, and Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser.

Herald Baseball Team

At a recent meeting of the Baseball team of the employees of the Herald Publishing House, officers for the season were elected. Practice begins immediately, with the first game scheduled for April 19, with the Unity School of Christianity, Kansas City, Missouri.

Need a Tonic

1. For that Discouraged Teacher.
2. For that Half-Dead Class.
3. For that Run-Down School.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

MISCELLANEOUS

Photographers, Notice

I would like to get in touch with church members devoting themselves to the business of photography. Benjamin R. McGuire, Box 256, Independence, Missouri.

Reunion Notices

Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11, on the new reunion grounds. J. L. Prentice.

Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27. While it is early in the year, yet it is not too soon to make preparation for your summer outings or vacations. The reunion experiences seem to have become a real and very necessary factor in the religious growth of the Saints. The 1924 reunion here will go down in history as the biggest and most effective community effort ever made, and whether you are visiting Saints or dwellers within the gates, plan your summer program that you may be ready to tell us your needs when we make further announcements. The service rendered the district this winter by visiting apostles and other missionaries has proved of great value, and we are assured of the presence of excellent talent at the summer gathering. John D. White, president; Cecil Hawley, secretary, 1955 Napa Avenue, Berkeley, California.

Our Departed Ones

CARLILE.—Sarah, wife of John P. Carlile, was born in Denmark May 28, 1854. Came to America with her parents in early childhood. Married J. P. Carlile March 11, 1875. Baptized in childhood. Died March 2, 1924. Leaves husband, four sons, four daughters, eighteen grandchildren, one great-grandchild, two brothers, and two sisters. Funeral services from the home and also the Saints' church in Underwood, Iowa, in charge of J. A. Hansen, assisted by Joshua Carlile. Interment in Walnut Hill Cemetery, of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

MOORE.—George W. Moore was born in New York, December 7, 1843. Came to Iowa in 1852. Married Laura Eldora Pryor in 1867. Baptized in 1897. Died February 23, 1924. Leaves wife, two sons, two daughters, ten grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren. The children are G. B. and Mrs. Nettie Williams, Omaha, Nebraska; R. E., Modale, Iowa; Mrs. Winnie Wood, Mondamin, Iowa. Funeral from the Methodist Church at Modale. Sermon by D. R. Chambers. Interment in Missouri Valley Cemetery. Three children have preceded him.

HAWLEY.—Hazel LaJune Hawley was born October 28, 1898. Baptized in 1906. She graduated as a nurse from the Independence Sanitarium in June, 1921, and has since been night superintendent of the Fort Scott Hospital. Died at this hospital March 15, 1924. Funeral from the home of her parents. Services in charge of H. Ross Higdon. Sermon by W. E. Haden. Interment in Deerfield Cemetery. Leaves father, mother, three sisters, and two brothers.

GILLIN.—Charles Matthew Gillin was born in Peoria County, Illinois, January 3, 1861. Married Mary E. Hegwood, February 16, 1905. Baptized June 3, 1906. Died, after an illness of three years, at his home in Peoria, Illinois, March 3, 1924. Leaves his wife, Mary E. Gillin, and one sister, Elsie Gillin. Funeral services from Wilton's Mortuary, conducted by Frank A. Russell and C. E. Willey. Interment at Princeville, Illinois.

ROBERTS.—Alonzo Irving Roberts was born at Rockford, Illinois, April 6, 1849. Left an orphan early in life. Came to Rockville, Missouri, with an uncle in 1868, moved later to Illinois again, but returned to Rockville in 1870. Married Ulricka Larson, February 23, 1882. Baptized in February, 1888. Died at his home, February 26, 1924. Leaves wife; three sons, Ira, Oscar, and Chester; one daughter, Mrs. Cora Neale; five grandchildren; and one brother. Funeral from the Methodist church. Sermon by J. A. Becker. Interment in Rockville Cemetery. Two daughters have preceded him.

GRAY.—Harriet E. Gray was born at Jonesport, Maine, September 6, 1836. Baptized March 2, 1873, and was one of the pioneers of the church in Indian River. Died at her home in Indian River, Maine, March 11, 1924. Leaves two sons, Charles and Marcellus; fifteen grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren. Funeral sermon by H. A. Chelline.

SELBE.—Livy E. McNeal was born at Marshfield, Ohio, March 29, 1863. Baptized February 28, 1885. Married Christopher A. Selbe, September 21, 1889. Moved to Kansas City in March, 1905, where she lived until her death, March 23, 1924. Leaves husband and a foster son, Charles Gift; one sister, Mrs. Nettie Schader, of Kansas City; and one brother, Joseph McNeal, of Independence, Kansas. Funeral from the Bennington Heights Church, in charge of J. A. Tanner. Sermon by Ammon White. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery.

WEDLOCK.—John R. Wedlock was born in Pennsylvania, December 31, 1862. Married Emma McCulm about ten years ago. Baptized about thirty years ago. He was ordained a priest, and later an elder. Died March 16, 1924, at his home in Independence, Missouri. Leaves wife, four children, and a brother Silas. Services from the Carson Undertaking Parlors, in charge of Brother Spurlock. Sermon by W. A. Smith.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.

Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
The Place of Music in the Small Church .....	337
Resignation of Herald Business Manager .....	337
DEPARTMENTAL:
Important Announcement Concerning Religio Quarterlies .....	338
Important Notice to Workers in the Department of Recreation and Expression .....	338
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Use of Wine, by S. A. Burgess .....	339
Jesus—The Master Teacher, by Roy L. Roberts .....	341
LETTERS	345
J. E. Vanderwood—Charles H. Wade—Arthur E. Stoff—Elmer C. Ohlert—George Jenkins.
CHURCH NEWS .....	347
MISCELLANEOUS .....	359
RADIO .....	360

UPDYKE.—Elery Updyke was born at Greenwood, New York, March 14, 1858. Baptized September 27, 1888. Ordained teacher November 6, 1909. Died suddenly at his home near Andover, New York, March 10, 1924. His wife preceded him last November. Funeral sermon by Arthur Allen. Interment in the Andover Cemetery.

HUFFMAN.—Stella Inez Huffman was born July 13, 1872, in Cass County, Nebraska. Moved to Nebraska City in 1883. Baptized in 1900. Married John G. Huffman, May 21, 1902. Moved to Kansas in the same year and resided at Newton, Kansas, at the time of her death in the Wichita Hospital, March 15, 1924. Funeral from the Saints' church, Nebraska City. Sermon by G. R. Wells. Interment in Wyuka Cemetery. Leaves husband; three daughters, Gladys, Evon, and Glora; and one son, John G., jr.

MARRIOTT.—Joseph Marriott, son of Henry and Esther Marriott, was born in Sutton, Ashfield, Nottinghamshire, England, April 4, 1836. Baptized June 11, 1852. Migrated to United States in 1861, and to Utah in 1862. Married Elizabeth Wardell, December 1, 1862. Ordained priest. Earned the title of M. D. in 1894. Died March 24, 1924. Leaves five children, twenty grandchildren, and thirty great-grandchildren. His wife and one child have preceded him. Funeral at the Saints' church, Salt Lake City, Utah. Sermon by G. P. Levitt, assisted by R. L. Fulk and R. E. Davey.

FLEMING.—George William Fleming was born September 8, 1871. He was left an orphan at the age of ten. Married Rebecca Elizabeth Jackson, December 16, 1906. Baptized in October, 1917. Died at Hardtner, Kansas, March 25, 1924. Leaves wife; two daughters, Pansy Cook and Mary Pearl; two sons, John Fay and Jerome Morrow; and one brother, Churchill Fleming, of Jefferson City, Missouri. One daughter preceded him. Funeral from the Methodist church with song service rendered by a quartet of that congregation. Sermon by Thomas S. Williams. Interment in Hardtner Cemetery.

MCCARLY.—Wynona Budworth was born at Memphis, Tennessee, September 30, 1906. Baptized in 1915. Died at her home at Azusa, California, March 9, 1924. Leaves husband, one daughter, father, mother, one brother, and two sisters. Funeral from the Welti Chapel, Santa Rosa, California. Sermon by J. D. White. Interment in Odd Fellow's Lawn Cemetery.

BENSON.—Benjamin F. Benson was born November 15, 1853. Married Margaret A. Mahoney, October 12, 1875. His first wife died April 6, 1916. Married Emma D. Smith, June 10, 1923. Baptized July 20, 1876. Ordained teacher May 31, 1890. Died at the home of his son, Doctor J. L. Benson, in Independence, Missouri, March 26, 1924. Funeral from the Stone Church. Sermon by Ammon White, assisted by J. M. Baker. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery. Leaves wife; three sons, Doctor J. L., Independence, Missouri; Harry D., Minidoka, Idaho; Arthur, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Save Your Books

In almost every branch there are songbooks which ought to be rebound to save them. We will rebound Saints' Hymnals and Zion's Praises in the regular cloth binding for 25 cents each, customer to pay transportation charges. The rebounding wears as long as the original, and it makes a very satisfactory job.

We can also save many a valuable Bible or other book by putting on a new binding. Look around and see if you do not have a shipment that ought to be attended to.

Let us quote prices on binding your valuable magazines.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Radio Flashes

Molt, Montana.—Program this evening, March 4, came in fine on head phones and fairly good on loud speaker. Same was enjoyed very much by myself and wife. Programs from stations in that part of the country have preference with us as we are both "Missourians." Listening in on your station was of special interest to me, as my mother, Mrs. Nannie Rodgers, was a patient at your Sanitarium in Independence during the spring of last year for some six weeks. Church services to be broadcast by you at 7.30 next Sunday evening will be looked forward to with a great deal of interest. Will appreciate your mailing program as announced.—W. T. Hulett.

Norfolk, Nebraska.—Just a line to tell you we tuned in on K F I X and heard part of the sermon by Elbert A. Smith on "The resurrection." The reception was intermittent and we only heard portions but what we heard was very good. At the close of this service we tuned in on W C A L, Northfield, Minnesota, in time to get the close of the sermon which was in reference to the coming of Christ and first resurrection. Then we picked up Zion City, Illinois, and heard the last part of a sacred concert, built around the thought, "Jesus is coming," "Will he find us watching." The striking similarity in theme of these widely separated services was unusually interesting.—J. C. Vaughn.

K F F V

Broadcast from the Graceland College Radio Studio, Lamoni, Iowa. Wave length, three hundred and sixty meters.

SUNDAY, APRIL 13, 1924

6.30 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Sacred songs by mixed quartet:

Mrs. Raymond McElroy, soprano.
Mrs. J. H. Anthony, contralto.
Mr. Elbert Dempsey, tenor.
Mr. Maynard Hunt, baritone.

Mrs. Ralph Travis, accompanist.
Solo: "The day is ended," J. C. Bartlett.
Sung by Mrs. McElroy.

Violin obligato by Mr. J. H. Anthony.

Duet: "Grateful, O Lord, am I," Caro Roma.

Sung by Mrs. McElroy and Mrs. Anthony.

Solo: "Come ye blessed," John Prindle Scott.

Sung by Mr. Hunt.

Sermon: By Apostle D. T. Williams.

Solo: "The Good Shepherd," William Dichmont.

Sung by Mrs. Anthony.

Hymn: Sung by mixed quartet.

TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical and educational program.

THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical and educational program.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, APRIL 13, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.

Prayer.

Anthem: "The Lord brings back his own," Galbraith.

Contralto Solo: "Love ye the Lord," (Largo from "Xerxes") Handel.

Sung by Mrs. Lulu Lentell.

Violin obligato by Miss Lillian Green.

Sermon: "The yoke of Christ."

By Elder R. S. Salyards.

Hymn.

SUNDAY, APRIL 13, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.

Prayer.

Instrumental Quartet: "Invocation," Hugo Grimm.

Miss Lillian Green, violinist.

Mrs. Pauline Becker Etzenhouser, organist.

Mrs. Jeanette Kelley Craig, pianist.

Mr. Ammon Fry, cellist.

Soprano Solo: "Behold, what manner of love," MacDermid.

Sung by Mrs. Nina Smith.

Violin Solo: "Meditation," from "Thais," Massenet.

By Miss Lillian Green.

Soprano Solo: "Ave Maria," Schubert.

Sung by Mrs. Nina Smith.

Instrumental Trio: "Etude Op. 25, No. 7," Chopin.

Mrs. Pauline Becker Etzenhouser, piano.

Miss Lillian Green, violin.

Mr. Ammon Fry, cello.

Sermon: "Religion and health"; by Doctor G. L. Harrington.

Hymn.

TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Program by the I X L Class.

Vocal Solo: Selected.

Sung by Jack Custead.

Reading: "Lady Heildegard," from an old German legend.

By Mrs. Clifford Forties.

Cornet Solo: "Columbia Fantasy," Rollinson.

Played by Walter Davis.

Talk: "School hygiene."

Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser.

Tenor solo and chorus: "Sweetheart," from the operetta, "The tale of a hat."

Douglas Flanders, soloist.

Soprano Solo: "Suppose," from "The tale of a hat."

Sung by Mrs. Freda Miller.

Male quartet: "Kinky head," from "The tale of a hat."

Sung by Douglas Flanders, Francis Holm, Jack Custead, and Robert Miller.

THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Trombone quartet: "Somewhere a voice is calling."

Played by Messrs. Laverne Allen, Delbert Guinand, Edmund

Neidervelt, and Clarence Davis.

Contralto solo: "Ah, 'tis a dream," Hawley.

Sung by Miss Margaret Gard.

Trombone duet: "I love a little cottage."

Played by Laverne Allen and Delbert Guinand.

Violin Solo: "The son of Puszta" (Hungarian), Op. 134, No. 2, Keler

Bela.

Played by Miss Ada Griffice.

Talk: By Miss Myrtle Grapes, student nurse at Independence Sanitarium.

Trombone Solo: "Adoration waltz."

Played by Edmund Neidervelt.

Contralto Solo: "Song of India," Rimsky Korskooff.

Sung by Miss Margaret Gard.

Violin Solo: "Transcription of Annie Laurie," Bowman.

Played by Miss Ada Griffice.

Trombone quartet: "Teddy Trombone."

Played by Laverne Allen, Delbert Guinand, Edmund Neidervelt, and Clarence Davis.

W O A W

Broadcast from the W O A W broadcasting station at Omaha, Nebraska, by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, on April 13 at 2 p. m.

Mixed quartet: "Radiant morn," Woodard; sung by Mrs. Ed Lowe, Jennie Nelson, Raymond Nelson, and G. J. Hanson; accompanist, Mrs. W. T. Spanswick; dedicated to Edna and Gladys Christensen, Saint Joseph, Missouri.

Prayer: J. R. Epperson.

Piano Solo: Played by Olivetta Salisbury.

Vocal duet: "Supplication," Johncoe Gillingham; sung by Mrs. Ed Lowe and Jennie Nelson; accompanist, Velma Waterman; dedicated to Anna Lowe, Davenport, Iowa.

Instrumental trio: "Evening shadows," King; played by J. R. Clarence, and Leslie Epperson, on clarinet, violin, and cornet; accompanist, Mrs. F. E. Benton.

Piano Solo: "Impromptu," Schubert. Played by Cleo Fay.

Male quartet: "Remember now thy creator"; sung by R. C. Murphy, Raymond Nelson, W. T. Spanswick, and G. J. Hanson.

Address: Apostle John F. Garver, Lamoni, Iowa.

Piano Solo: "Valse Arabesque," Theo Lack; played by Kenneth Ury, dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ury, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Vocal Solo: "The silent voice," Caro Roma; sung by Mrs. H. J. Peck; accompanist, Olivetta Salisbury; violin obligato, Marie Salisbury.

Violin Solo: "Romance in A," Thurlow Lieurance.

Played by Wilma Babbitt.

Instrumental trio played by Mrs. J. O., Marie, and Leona Salisbury, on cello and violins.

Vocal Duet: "Hope beyond"; sung by R. C. Murphy and W. T. Spanswick; accompanist, Mrs. W. T. Spanswick; dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Self, Independence, Missouri.

Piano Duet: "Rhapsodie Hongroise," Franz Liszt; played by Mrs. B. O. and Edith Burton; dedicated to Fanny Seward, Bentonsport, Iowa.

Ladies' Quartet: "Come unto me," sung by Mrs. Ed Lowe, Leona Currie, Jennie Nelson, and Helen Anderson.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, April 16, 1924

Number 16

EDITORIAL

The Dawn of Easter

With the dawn of Easter we see in nature the fulfillment of the promise of life everlasting; for out of the chill and lifeless winter come the buds and the bloom of springtime. The birds return to build their nests, singing their songs of gladness. And there wells up within man himself, something that lifts him out of the sordid material, winging him on to the heights of emotional exaltation.

As the bitter remorse in the hearts of the disciples melted into tender years of joy upon the resurrection of their Lord, so all nature, filled with the expression of the divine, unfolds her wonders for the Easter morn, yielding to the power of life.

Without the immortal promise of the Savior, man would exist in an unknowing world, wrapped in the shroud of winter, lifeless, purposeless, hopeless. But with the words of Christ still resounding from the mount, "Lo, I am with you always, unto the end of the world," life becomes a vivid thing to be made true, and good, and beautiful, according as we have been enjoined by Him.

But the miracle of death and life becomes to us a paltry promise if we fail to grasp the significance of the divine mission of Christ. He died that we might have everlasting life, a continuation of life here on earth. Our purpose then becomes the motivating force that drives us on to perfection, for life beyond is a shadow of what we make it here.

With all the force of an authority that comes from a heaven and an earth, the words of Christ persist through the ages:

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, unto the end of the world.

Give every man thine ear, but few thy voice; take each man's censure, but reserve thy judgment.—Shakespeare.

Individual and Community Health

In the early pioneer days of this country, and persisting long after that time, a man was thought to be a weakling who sought a doctor except during a crisis. Physicians were thought of, not as the custodians of health, but of disease. To them was brought the patient when his native constitution could no longer withstand the ravages of disease without material assistance. A strong man was considered responsible for his own health—not the physician.

But time mends the ways of men and experience modifies their actions. The physician is coming into his own. He is now given the privilege of preserving health rather than of restoring it. Large cities have for a number of years maintained free clinics where medical advice and assistance are granted. At first these clinics administered chiefly to sufferers; but gradually their influence was extended until they have become the recognized community health centers. Mothers bring their babies to be examined. Advice is freely given and classes are conducted. Many a mother has reared her children under the care of a clinic, thus giving them the benefit of constant health protection. Such children have a chance for healthy bodies and vigorous lives above the neglected child who "comes up" in whatever environment it is cast.

As a good set of teeth is often preserved into old age by careful treatment and frequent dental examination, so a sound body may be kept physically fit by proper care and under the watchful eye of a physician. We are often unaware of an existing ailment until such becomes beyond our control. A physician may find this at the start and prevent its development. Time, money, and health are thus preserved.

It should not be too great a civic responsibility to place upon a man or woman, to require each to seek medical advice and examination twice yearly. Where clinics take care of the financial burden of such a privilege and duty, little can be said in opposition to the request. Numerous persons are now caring for their teeth in this way. Why not take the same precautions with the body?

It is with exceeding pleasure that we can announce the opening of a clinic, April 10, in Independence, Missouri. It is sponsored by the Department of Women, administered by a clinic board, in charge of an able physician, assisted by registered nurses, and located in Bartholomew Hall. It is free to all children under fourteen years of age. This is the first of its kind ever held in Independence, thus establishing a health center for the town. This should be commended as a definite step in community advancement. But it should also be noted as a piece of constructive work which may play an important part in the building of Zion.

Special Features of the Young People's Convention

Here it is almost time for another convention, with young people from Maine to California already making their plans to come. Extensive plans are being made for your benefit during your stay there, and it is hoped you will find that those in charge have been true to the motto: "Inspiration, education, recreation."

Class Work

Special class instruction will be one of the most important features of the convention this year. This arrangement has been because of the almost unanimous request made by young people for more class work being provided than last year. In arranging these classes the first thing taken into consideration were the problems of the young people of the church. Next in consideration were the teachers that are available, and finally, the amount of time that could be given each day to this work. We are glad to announce that as a result of the above considerations the following classes have been arranged for:

1. "The stewardship plan," by Bishop Albert Carmichael.
2. "The vital message of our church," by Cyril E. Wight.
3. "Social principles of the gospel," by F. M. McDowell.
4. "Social service," by Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser.
5. "Religious education," by Roy A. Cheville.
6. "Scoutmasters' training course," by Eugene E. Closson.
7. "Oriole and Temple Builder leaders," by Blanche Edwards.
8. "Applied ethics for young people," by Charles B. Woodstock.
9. "Book of Mormon," by A. B. Phillips.
10. "Church history," by Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Burgess.
11. "Choir leadership," by A. N. Hoxie and Mabel Carlile.
12. "Missionary methods," by F. Henry Edwards.

The daily program will be so arranged that each visitor can attend one, two, or three classes, as he may choose. A number of these classes will be repeated wherever there is sufficient demand.

In addition to the above, there is a possibility of having a class in "Social hygiene," taught by Doctor G. Leonard Harrington, and a class in "Methods for beginners," under the direction of Mrs. Walter W. Smith.

We trust that every branch will have a representative there to take in many of the good things that will help build up the local work. We need you, and we feel sure that we will be able to offer you education, inspiration, and recreation.

The entire convention program will appear in next week's issue of the HERALD.

An Easter Message

By George H. Booth

How beautiful this Easter morn,
When all the world's at rest;
Of all the days of all the year,
This surely seems the best.

The church bells ring their welcome out,
Upon the clear still air,
To give us all to understand
That we are welcome there.

Of all the places we should go
Upon this Sabbath morn,
It is to worship Christ, the babe,
In Bethlehem was born.

While angels sang in heavenly choir,
Upon that gladsome night,
Afar up in the starry skies
A new star gave its light.

While flocks still on the hillside lay,
And shepherds slumber sought,
The herald angels sang above
A message they had brought.

They sang for joy and gladness,
Of peace, good will to men;
They told of Christ who came to save
A world from death and sin.

He swiftly grew to man's estate,
This manger babe so small,
And left a father, mother, home,
To answer duty's call.

His Father's business beckoned him,
He answered true and brave,
For well he knew his mission here,
A world that he must save.

He passed through death and thus he showed
The way to life anew;
He said, "O God, forgive them, for
They know not what they do."

This Easter morn we all rejoice
He's risen from the dead;
He demonstrated all he taught,
Was true to what he said.

* Our hearts are glad and full of joy,
This glorious Easter time,
A day of worship and of thanks
For a Savior so sublime.

Advance and Decline of the Small College

Many secondary schools are expanding upward to include one or two years of what is called college work, says L. E. Blauch in School Life. Frequently this is done under the direct encouragement and advice of the State university, and some States have enacted legislation definitely to encourage and support such advanced secondary work.

At the same time, many small and weak colleges under private control have found it to their interest to reduce their courses from four years to two. Such colleges usually offer also work of preparatory grade.

In Missouri 16 such junior colleges under private control are affiliated with the State university, which is enthusiastic in its support of the arrangement. Junior colleges as they develop will probably become part of the system of secondary education, where they properly belong, says Doctor Blauch.

With this evidence at hand it is encouraging to think that Graceland College has gone upward instead of downward in the school system. It has expanded from a two-year institution to a regular four-year college, granting the recognized bachelor degree. A preparatory department, the academy, is also connected with the college. Graceland seems to push out in both directions.

Influence of the Church

Although we must admit that the Christian church has fallen short in many ways of accomplishing the things it is capable of doing, yet where else do we find the same amount of good existing?

There is more honesty in the church than out of it. This is evidenced by the fact that when dishonesty is found within the church the press cries aloud the scandal. The people revel in what is uncovered. The exception justifies the excitement.

We find more charity in the church than out of it. Charity is one of the Christian ideals, and although it is far from being attained, yet its existence is found where the environment is most favorable.

There is more immorality in the world than is to be found in the church. This is an outstanding fact and needs no explanation.

The church is the backbone of liberty and equality. Since the foundation of the church in the days of Christ, the rights of individuals in the social world have been championed by the church. These have received varied and peculiar interpretations but the road has always led in the same direction.

Without the influence of the church it is questionable whether we could have attained to the present degree of civilization. In years past the brotherhood of man found shelter from tyranny in the cloister of the church. During the centuries since then, it has grown to enormous proportions and still forms the basis for a new social order. All this is found within the church. It is still the most formidable factor for good in the molding of character.

A Jewish Marriage

"Bridegroom faints as Rabbi pronounces couple man and wife," reads a news dispatch.

This is a new angle on married life. It suggests to us the frailty of the human race or the severe mental strain accompanying the marriage ceremony of a Jewish couple. It must be remembered that the Jewish people abhor divorce and great weight is therefore attached to the marriage vow. Cause enough that strong men faint when taking unto themselves a life-long companion!

Perhaps the bridegroom referred to in the press article neglected to observe the ancient Russian proverb: "If you go to war, pray; if you go on a sea journey, pray twice; but pray three times if you are going to be married."

The world is in need of a great unselfish love, one that burns forever and undying in the hearts of men, one that is not quenched by the storm of doubts and fears, one that yields not to the dampness of indifference.

It is easy to love when all goes well; it is easy to be bright and cheery when the sun is shining; it is easy to have faith amid success; but when the storm rages about you and your confidence in friends is tried, then, oh, then, for the unselfish love that has no motive for its drive but the will to do the right.

An unwavering desire to walk hand in hand with the other fellow and to help him ease the burden, is the message this gospel should bring. Christ will meet those in whom the unselfish love still burns. The dead fires within all others shall have left but gray ashes of remorse, a tribute to the unfaithful.

Would You Learn

1. The Great AIMS of Religious Education.
2. The Best MATERIALS of Religious Education.
3. The Significant METHODS of Christian Education.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

Seeing God

By Paul M. Hanson

It is written: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."

When was this remarkable promise made by Christ to meet with fulfillment? and how? It is reasonable to believe it applies to all in this life, as well as to the future state; though in the next life there will undoubtedly be an added and fuller meaning to the seeing than is now possible.

Meaning of Purity

Since seeing God grows out of the heart being pure, it is essential to know what constitutes a pure heart. The word pure carries with it the thought of freedom from mixture, containing no foreign or vitiating matter, genuine, refined. It is not difficult to understand that in order to discover divinity, one's mind, motives, and principles must be free from impropriety. The heart must be brought up to date for God and man to join in communion, to come to an understanding; after such an experience man may be a translator of the divine. The possibility of the marvelous promise being fulfilled is not affected by many persons having failed; many have succeeded.

The Lord is identified with truth, justice, and fair dealing; therefore, he cannot be seen by anyone where these virtues are lacking. In the working of the mind, there must be fearlessness, accuracy, and faithfulness, no prejudice or intolerance.

To "see" is to perceive the meaning of; understand; apprehend; to have insight. We sometimes say we see the meaning of a remark, or see another's purpose. In this sense the word is used correctly. God is not seen through mere mechanical machinery. Where there is no sympathy and no justice, or where revenge is alive, the transports of joy growing out of an acquaintance with the third heaven are unknown.

Anthropomorphic God

The anthropomorphic conception of God appeals to me; he is not a cast-iron Deity, looking upon right and wrong with no emotions being stirred. When Jesus said to Peter: "I have prayed for thee," his heart was full of this man's welfare. How divinely human! I love to think of God possessing to an infinite degree those qualities possessed by high-minded men. Does he think and feel like a man? Yes; he is interested in the little children and flowers and birds; he is not so busy viewing the stars sweeping through space that he is unmindful of broken hearts and has no time to bind them up. If such is not our conception of God, what is it? Do we not love to imagine him like Jesus? Who else do we want the Father to be like?

Experience, gained with the passing of the years, teaches us to be deeper in judgment; not to take too many things for granted, but to explore and reflect.

Where elementary Christian graces are not operative, unrest, entanglements, and disintegrating influences soon appear in society. They are surface conditions. Under such circumstances they should develop; it is a healthy sign; so attention may be directed towards the removing of the destructive forces. A body which would not be so affected would be diseased. In a healthful body when "one member suffers, all the members suffer with it." Wrong must be faced and corrected. Right is a "thing of beauty, and joy forever."

Even the basis of civilization is gone where ethical standards are ignored.

True insight of God has its roots deep in character.

Character and true spirituality are indissolubly associated.

Undiscriminating Justice

The redemption of Zion cannot be accomplished apart from undiscriminating justice. All are entitled to the protection of the law; all must obey the law. Special privileges in wrongdoing are demoralizing, and cannot be tolerated, neither in a democracy nor in a theocracy.

All men must walk along the same avenue to the divine throne; there is one avenue for every king on every throne, and for every peasant in every field. With the Lord there is "no respect of persons."

One man's soul is as precious in the sight of heaven as any other man's soul.

It has been prophetically declared that "Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty," God will shine. Out of nothing else can he shine. Faith in anything else is credulity and superstition.

Consciousness of God

A superstructure, though gilded, is no stronger than its foundation.

Who can recall when first consciousness came of the existence of the Creator? Such knowledge, similar to what relates to one's earthly father, is the result of many, varied, and marked experiences.

The Apostle Peter's knowledge and consciousness of the heavenly forces and the divine sonship of Christ increased after he received the Holy Spirit of promise; after observing divine injunctions, precepts, and laws; after noting what took place in the sick chamber under the ministrations of Jesus; after analyzing what occurred in the lives of persons who accepted the gospel; after leaving unholy earthly ambitions, and unreservedly casting his lot with truth, fair dealing, and right. Out of such genuine activities came a larger perception, understanding, and insight into heavenly things. As a result he was able to say to Jesus: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God"; and to write: "And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount."

Many saw Jesus through the corporeal eye, but did not perceive his divine sonship, did not get a glimpse of his regal splendor.

To the extent that the human mind is not free from what vitiates, is not actuated by true motives, and does not follow right principles, God is obscured from view; within his pavilion he resides unseen by man.

The word "heart" used by Jesus does not refer to the physical organ of the body. The word of God is described as a "discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart"; and it was said of Mary that she "kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart." Note: "intents of the heart," "pondered them in her heart."

Scriptural Evidence

God may be seen:

The earth rolls upon her wings; and the sun giveth his light by day, and the moon giveth her light by night; and the stars also giveth their light, as they roll upon their wings, in their glory, in the midst of the power of God. Unto what shall I liken these kingdoms, that ye may understand? Behold, all these are kingdoms, and any man who hath seen any or the least of these, hath seen God moving in his majesty and power. I say unto you, He hath seen him: nevertheless, he who came unto his own was not comprehended. The light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehendeth it not; nevertheless, the day shall come when you shall comprehend even God; being quickened in him, and by him. Then shall ye know that ye have seen me, that I am, and that I am the true light that is in you, and that you are in me, otherwise ye could not abound.—Doctrine and Covenants 85:12.

Further:

For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse.—Romans 1:20.

Again:

Philip saith unto him, Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us. Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Show us the Father? Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.—John 14:8-10.

What is particularly needed to reduce the world's complexity, simplify human life, and contribute to social harmony is seeing God.

The Power of Right Thinking

By C. W. Clark

Within man is a mighty source of power for weal or woe. This is the power of thought. This energy, or power of thinking which lies back of the free moral agency God has given man, may be controlled as desired. We are commanded in 2 Corinthians 10:5, to bring "every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ." Right thinking is a power for good; evil thinking is a power for evil. A man may for a time be able to deceive those with whom he comes in contact, but some day that mighty engine of thought within him will reveal what manner of man he is. That is what the Lord meant when he said to Samuel: "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."—1 Samuel 16:7.

That thoughts do bring results is brought out in Jeremiah 6:19: "Behold, I will bring evil upon this people, even the fruit of their thoughts." In "Secret thoughts" Ella Wheeler Wilcox gives an insight into the power of thinking:

I hold it true that thoughts are things
Endowed with bodies, breath and wings,
And that we send them forth to fill
The world with good results or ill.

That which we call our secret thought
Speeds to the earth's remotest spot,
And leaves its blessings or its woes
Like tracks behind it as it goes.

And after you have quite forgot
Or all outgrown some vanished thought,
Back to your mind to make its home,
A dove or raven, it will come.

Then let your secret thoughts be fair;
They have a vital part and share
In shaping worlds and molding fate—
God's system is so intricate.

Here is an illustration of the power of good or evil thinking. Psychology has revealed to us just what that power is in the world. The wise man has said: "For as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."—Proverbs 23:7.

Freedom Through Right Thinking

The whole structure of faith is built upon the fact that thought is a force or power. Emerson has said: "The revelation of thought takes men out of servitude into freedom." Have not those who have freed themselves from the traditions of this world and placed themselves in line with the thoughts as expressed by the Master, passed from servitude into a freedom of experience that is indeed a revelation of thought? Sometimes I think Latter Day Saints have been slow to accept some of these powers and have denied themselves many blessings.

Why are we commanded in Doctrine and Covenants 85:19 to cast away our idle thoughts? Do you think that God simply was giving a command here that he might show his authority, or is it because idle thoughts bring evil actions and uproot the force that may be developed by good or constructive thinking? I conceive that our creation is so near the Infinite that our thoughts are not only capable of bearing fruit in our own lives but also in the lives of others. Why are we commanded to pray for those that spitefully use us? Do you think that your selfish prayer is going to reach the throne of God and make him love his own creation better? I do not so conceive it; but it appeals to me that we cannot long pray for one we do not like with any degree of faith until our prayers react on our own selves, creating a good thought to help the one who has wronged us. By that act we cease to tear down by the force of thought, and instead become constructive builders by helping our enemy to become our friend. Emerson again has said: "Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force, that thoughts rule the world." We make companions of our thoughts and our lives and destinies are shaped by the same.

The business world is beginning to realize the power of right thinking. No man was ever able to make a salesman who did not think right about what he had to sell. It requires an exercise of faith to sell any product. It requires right thoughts and faith to sell the gospel. You may study a little speech until learned with precision and deliver it in an oratorical manner, but if back of it are not the right thoughts, your efforts will be in vain. Thought then is really a power. Percival says:

Thought can wing its way
Swifter than lightning flashes or the beam
That hastens on the pinions of the morn.

By the power of thought we are able to produce much good or evil. I am not sure but that Swedenborg was right when he said: "What a man thinks in his spirit in the world, that he does after his departure from the world when he becomes a spirit." Is it possible that we must suffer as much in the spirit world for evil thinking as for overt acts? This we well know, that good thinking and pure thoughts bring their reward.

Effect of Thought Upon Others

I fear many of us do not pay the proper attention to our thoughts and how they influence not only our lives but the lives of those of whom we are thinking. Like produces like, and every bad thought will produce offspring that goes on and on until the world is filled with the evil effects therefrom. Whenever we are thinking of envy, strife, hatred, malice, and other evil thoughts, we are displacing the fruits of the spirit of joy, love, and peace, and are reflecting the same into the lives of others also. The prince of the power of darkness wants no greater ally than to get one to think evil, for he knows the result.

Influence of Thought on Happiness

All the wealth of this world does not make for happiness. A contented, happy mind filled with joyous thoughts will produce more happiness than all the wealth of the richest man in the world. If one is seeking happiness, control the thought forces and results will surely follow.

Thought forces are working hand in hand with faith. If I had it in my power, I would remove from the room of every sick person before administering to the sick any whose thoughts were out of harmony with the ideals of divine healing. In the raising of Jairus's daughter, Jesus cast out those who did not believe and who scorned. Faith is the harmonious product of right thought forces, and in order to exercise the full power of faith, it was essential that the opposite forces be dismissed.

Faith might be defined as the assent of the soul to the truth of what is declared to be true. If this be so, then what a prominent part right thinking must play in the establishment of faith. In evil thoughts we lust after worldly pleasures not because they are desirable, but because our passion, inflamed by evil thoughts, makes them appear desirable. The truly humble, pure soul of clear mind and clean heart will get much more real pleasure out of this world by the good he sees in it than the person who is continually looking for evil and thinking evil.

Rabindranath Tagore, the great Indian philosopher, has said: "Essentially man is not a slave either of himself or of the world; but he is a lover. His freedom and fulfillment is in love, which is another name for perfect comprehension." Evil thoughts remove from us that perfect love and destroy that harmony of life that keeps us in tune with the infinite. It makes a hovel out of what might have been a mansion. Jesus said that his mansion was one of more abundant life which he exemplified by his perfect love for all mankind. Evil thoughts destroy our own lives, and psychology also shows that they destroy the lives of others. In that degree, that we think evil or error of a person, do we suggest that evil to him.

The Key to Abundant Life

Where lovely thoughts prevail, there will be found the key to more abundant life. If you live with malice or hatred within you, you may be sure it will return to you ten fold and take from you that heritage of a fuller life. Love is the product of perfect thought and hatred is the violation of law.

The poet has said:

For evil poisons; malice shafts
Like boomerangs return,
Inflicting wounds that will not heal
While rage and anger burn.

The individual who wastes his time in idle, unprofitable thoughts or for the gratification of selfish desires to the neglect of self-control destroys his self-respect and happiness. The best way to destroy evil thoughts is by rendering service. "One may be a paragon of negative holiness, the type of person who is obstemious, pure, and without sin, but unless he be doing something that counts, the hollowness of his holiness is as unproductive to himself as it is to the world," said King.

Our increase in wisdom only comes to us as we increase our knowledge of truth and more perfectly apply the same. There is enough for us to do to keep our minds from evil thoughts or of thinking evil of those who offend us. Pain, either mental or physical, will follow every deviation from truth. If we are dissatisfied with fundamental truths, the destructive forces of life will sooner or later reduce us to the elements from which we came. Let us remember the statement that the Master came that we might have life more abundantly. Let us then be careful of our thoughts that we cultivate that which is good and weed out the evil, that when the book of life is opened and the secret thoughts of men are revealed we will not be ashamed of our secret thoughts, and that we be judged as of those who love pureness of thought in all things.

"Bankers think it good business—good personal business, that is—to go to church, and a bankers' magazine hastens to report the evidence," says the Literary Digest in reviewing the replies to a questionnaire sent out in Bridgeport, Connecticut, by Doctor William Horace Day, pastor of the United Church. The results appear to be that 74 per cent of the financial leaders of Bridgeport are habitual churchgoers; 9 per cent stay away; 75 per cent of successful men habitually go to church; and 95 per cent believe that people should go every Sunday.

Identification of Man

By Arthur Ralph Weston

"I, the Lord God, formed man from the dust of the ground."
—Genesis 2: 8, Inspired Version.

This form of the earth, molded in this particular design, is what God chose to call man. The same substance in some other shape might be known as a horse, tree, bird, etc.; but the one patterned after the image of God was to be known as man. All that constitutes man, technically speaking, is represented in this structure. There is no life in that which God defines as man, consequently man's beginning dates back only to the time of such production, with Adam the first man, to the time when God made him out of the dust. Likewise our existence as man is terminated when we can no longer be recognized by form. Man is still man, with or without a spirit, so long as he can be identified by form as such. And, except only in so far as the elements from which he is composed are eternal, he ceases to exist when he loses his individual form and returns to the mass from which he was taken.

Purpose of Creation

Man may be represented as a tabernacle, a temple, organ or mechanism for life of a certain kind. So when God had made this first man, he breathed into him in recognition of this purpose, the breath of life, the cement essential to hold these elements together. In this state, this first man became fitted for habitation and was assigned to the spirit of Adam, then a Son of God in the Kingdom of Spirits over which God ruled. As an added glory for the Kingdom of Spirits, the physical or earthly was created, the ideal of such creation obtaining only in the union of spirit and element as man developed to a fullness of joy or the perfect life, according to the wisdom of God, the creative genius, back of it. In emphasis of this thought, allow me to add to this theory, that these bodies are created solely and for the express benefit, of the obedient spirits of the heavenly kingdom, and not for those who rebelled, and who, under the leadership of Satan, are ever seeking to take possession of the same, contrary to the will of God.

Stewardship of the Spirit

As each physical body is produced according to the creative plan, God assigns to it one of the spirits of his kingdom, thereby establishing a stewardship for which that spirit becomes accountable to God. In this union of body and spirit we have what we term and refer to as the soul of man. This is specific in kind and varies only because of the abuse of law governing the production of the physical. There never was a time so far as intelligent history has recorded, when man did not stand out distinct in kind from all other forms and every test to prove change in kind by development has been a failure.

But the result of violating natural law governing the generating process of the physical part of man, the organic part, is too well established to be worthy of comment here. Well do we know of lustful practices that reach into the third and fourth generations, subject however to rectification by accepting of the conditional ransom of Christ, wherein all such differences as are the result of Adamic parent transgressions are equalized, and the injustice, otherwise following to those innocent spirits receiving such afflicted bodies, is taken care of; and after all, the result of such sin is limited to those who hate God. The office work of redeeming grace is herein made apparent.

Substance of the Spirit

As elements are eternal, existing in mass formation until compounded, or molded and characterized by form, so also in my estimation are the spirits of men. They are a composition of various spiritual substances, and if created according to David's inspiration, are just a little lower than the angels of heaven. This creation consists in the forming of the spirit of man out of the various spirit substances, in kind and quality like unto the angels. This spirit of man is subject to addition, until man may not only become the equal of angels, but may become like unto God himself, characterized in Christ. Spirits are subject to growth and development, just the same as the body, according to the laws that govern them. Just as the body receives strength and power from its mother earth, just as it develops by nourishment obtained from that substance of which it is composed, so also does the spirit of man develop by feeding on that from which it is taken.

Job said that there was a spirit in man and the spirit of God giveth him understanding. So as the Spirit of God enlightens every man that comes into the world, we are forced to acknowledge that the spirit of man is that something susceptible, because of character, to the Spirit of God. In other words, as the body (man proper) is a composition of elements taken from the earth, the nature of which requires that it shall continue to receive from its source of origin, its mother sustenance, from time to time in order to exist, so likewise is the spirit of man a composition of spirits designated as intelligent life emanating from God, the source of intelligence, and the supply upon which it is dependent for development. But unlike elements, the spirit cannot be described except in relation to something tangible. It comes under the same classification as that of gravity, electricity, instinct, etc.; that they exist we know, because of their power and influence over matter.

Directing Power of Spirit

As gravity directs the course of objects, as instinct guides and shields life from danger, as electricity gives power to the battery, or furnishes light and heat when applied to some mechanism, so the spirit is the directing unseen power of the soul. Hence, when we undertake to determine what the spirit in man is, its origin, its existence, we are bound to consider it largely from the effect it has upon the material, the organic substance to which it is applied, or rather through which it is privileged expression. Therefore, when we see a lifeless form of man respond to spirit domination, we are able in a limited way to analyze what it is. From the action of the body dominated and under control of a directing spirit do we determine the character of that spirit or the degree of its development.

We read in the Word of God of the spirit of wisdom, knowledge, understanding, patience, judgment, council, might, fear, grace, love, supplication, truth, adoption, slumber, meekness, faith, prophecy, humiliation, forgiveness, kindness, mercy, forbearance, jealousy, envy, bondage, hate, etc., and these are the various spirit substances that compose the spirit of man as we find him to-day.

I do not believe that these are creations of God, but that they are eternal, and that God is the embodiment of all of them essential to spirit life, the same as the earth is the embodiment of all elements that are essential to physical life.

Spirit Development

When we speak of the spirit of Christ, of Adam, Elijah, Paul, or any man so far as that is concerned, it is from the standpoint of the maturity to which that spirit has developed from the germs of spirit substances, selected and embodied in his spirit creation by God, who created all things having life, determined and adjudged as it is expressed through the material.

In the Spirit of Christ we recognize a knowledge of all things, past, present, and future. His Spirit represents the standard of attainment in spirit development, secured through absolute obedience to God, doing only the things that God willed, until, under that direction, Christ surveyed each and every field of action and became aware of the true reality of all things.

Preexistence of Spirit

Now, as to the preexistence of the spirit: Of course, before one could begin with this question, he must first determine what period of time is meant from which the word preexistence is to apply, whether before it makes itself evident in the body or before the beginning of our time reckoned from the earth's creation as based upon biblical history. We find in this history where Christ was in the beginning with God, and, according to the never-failing promise of God, came into the world in the meridian of time; because in those declarations, basic periods of time, so far as God's dealings with us is concerned, are established. As there is no beginning with God, so far as his existence is concerned, all reference by him to a beginning, such as Christ being with him at this time, must necessarily be construed to mean the beginning of this earth's creation, as the habitation of man in a physical form. With this assurance that Christ was with God at this beginning, it must have been his spirit, certainly not the body born of the Virgin Mary. And if physical man was made in the image of this spirit of Christ, then the spirit has form by which it can be identified and this is according to all evidence where spirit messengers have been seen by us.

Inhabitants of Spiritual Kingdom

Now, what is true, relative to Christ in this respect, is also true with regard to man. In Doctrine and Covenants 90:5 we have the same declaration that man was also in the beginning with God. And again, it was certainly not in the body form but in the spirit form. Therefore, undoubtedly the spirit of man has an existence before it makes appearance in the physical tabernacle or body. But just how long spirits existed before this beginning is uncertain, and can only be reasoned from conjecture, taking into consideration that there is a kingdom of heaven, a spirit realm over which God rules. A kingdom must have subjects, and we are informed by reference to various classifications that those making up this kingdom are: cherubims, seraphims, sons of God, archangels, holy watchers, morning stars, priests, elect angels, etc. We are also told that there was rebellion, causing war and division among these subjects; that at this beginning, or the laying of the corner stone of the earth, as cited in Job, the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy, indicating some benefit to them by such creation; that Christ recognized the intent or at least the possibility of transferring the kingdom of God in heaven to this earth when he taught us to pray for that kingdom to come; that spirits are eternal and that God's work is to bring to pass the immortal as well as the eternal life of man, showing clearly an everlasting existence of man in some state other than a spirit one. Christ is an example of the first fruits of a universal resurrection. He retained his physical body, taking it with him with the assurance that his second coming would be in that same body bearing the scars of his crucifixion to the convincing of the Jew of his identity.

All these references are indicative that humanity first had a spiritual existence, that it was of an intelligent element, individual in character, subject to development, with the purpose of God finally to combine that intelligence with an indestructible housing, living under a perfect environment of beauty and fragrance, to the acknowledgment of all that God in his wondrous achievement might bring to pass.

With the Apostles in Egypt and Palestine

A travelogue by J. F. Curtis, written at Jerusalem, Palestine, March 17, 1924.

Brother Paul M. Hanson wrote while we were on the Mediterranean on our way from Trieste to Alexandria. We had a very good trip on the sea and landed at Alexandria on February 25. Here we had a chance to see how things are done in Egypt. Many Egyptians were waiting to meet the boat, and as soon as possible about fifty to seventy-five of the natives rushed on board looking for a chance to make some money by carrying baggage from the boat to the customs office; each one was anxious to make all he could, so it was something like a free-for-all scramble. They crowded through the boat, rushing up and down the stairways, talking and screaming until we found that we were in a crowd that acted more like a mob than civilized people.

Peculiar Costumes of People

The Egyptian men of the laboring class wear dresses; many of the women keep their faces covered with veils, and some have in addition to the veil a piece of wood covering the nose so as to disfigure the face. The man is not supposed to see the face of the woman he is to marry until after marriage; then he lifts up the veil and kisses his wife.

Pyramids of Egypt

From Alexandria we went to Cairo by train. This place is noted for the great Pyramids and certainly they are wonderful. The "Great Pyramid" which is the largest in size is called by the Egyptians "Yekhet Khufu" or the "Glorious Place of Khufu," and was built by Kheops, the Khufu of the Egyptians. The outermost covering has nearly all disappeared. The length of each side is now 746 feet, but was formerly about 756 feet; the present perpendicular height is 450 feet, while originally it is said to have been 481 feet; it covers an area of almost thirteen acres and contained 3,277,000 cubic yards of rock. The material of which it is constructed is yellowish limestone, quarried across the Nile valley. The outer covering was formed of blocks of a finer white limestone.

Other pyramids, two of which are very large, are near Kheops. In the distance, other pyramids can be seen, including the "Step Pyramid" which is considered the oldest; it is called the Step Pyramid because its sides are in five large steps.

The second largest pyramid, called by the Egyptians "Wer-Khefre" (Great is Khefre), was erected by Khefre who was called Khephren by the Greeks. Its perpendicular height is now 447 feet (originally 471 feet); each side of the base measures 690 feet (originally 707 feet); and when built, the solid content of masonry weighed about 5,309,000 tons. In the interior of these pyramids are a few small rooms which were used for tombs of the deceased. On the east of each pyramid was a temple, now in ruins; enough marble was taken from the outer covering of one of the pyramids to build a large Mosque in the city of Cairo.

The Sphinx

The noted Sphinx, which next to the pyramids themselves is the most famous monument in this vast burial ground, is hewn out of the natural rock and, with some aid from added blocks of stone, has been molded into the shape of a recumbent lion with a head of a king wearing the royal head cloth, adorned with the royal serpent. It is said to be 66 feet in height, while its length from the forepaws to the root of the tail is 187 feet. The ear, according to Mariette, is 4 feet, 6 inches, the nose 5 feet, 7 inches, and the mouth 7 feet, 7 inches in length; and the extreme breadth of the face is 13 feet, 8 inches.

Valley of the Nile

From Cairo we went down the great valley of the Nile to Luxor. This valley is from five to ten miles wide and over four hundred miles long. It is probably the most fertile valley in the world. Alfalfa is the main crop; sugar cane is probably next, which yields three crops a year. The people, who farm the land with camels and water buffaloes, do not live in houses during the summer, but make inclosures of corn stalks and live therein. Little or no machinery is used on the farms, as the work is mostly done by hand. Women work in the fields, and there being no fences, the children herd the flocks of sheep and goats.

Luxor, formerly called Thebes, the old capital of both Lower and Upper Egypt, with its ancient temples now in ruin, is wonderful indeed. Many of the large columns of the temples, some of which, including the capstones are 82 feet high and 30 feet in circumference, made of sandstone, are still standing. Several temples are to be found on either side of the Nile River.

Tutankhamen's Tomb

The Temple of Luxor was built by Amenophis III (eighteenth dynasty), and was dedicated to Amon, his wife or daughter Mut, and their son, the moon god Khons. Like all Egyptian temples, it includes the sanctuaries with their adjoining rooms, a large hypostyle hall, and an open peristyle court. The temple was 208 yards in length, while its greatest breadth was 60 yards. The king died before the temple was finished and Tutankhamen completed it. This is the king whose tomb was recently discovered seven miles west of Luxor, in the Valley of the Kings, under the tomb of Rameses VI. We saw the tomb, but as it is not yet open to the public, did not see inside.

In the Valley of the Kings we saw the tombs of Rameses I, Seti I, Rameses III, Rameses IX, and Amenophis. These tombs are hewn out of the solid rock. A tomb generally consists of several rooms. We were permitted to go inside the tomb of Amenophis and saw his mummy lying in the sarcophagus. In the museum at Cairo we saw the mummies of Rameses II, and his son and successor Amenophthes, and considered by an Alexandrian tradition to be the Pharaoh of the Israelites.

Colossi of Memnon

The Colossi of Memnon, on the west bank of the Nile at Luxor, can be seen from a great distance. These two colossal statues have suffered from the hand of time and have lost their artistic value, but they still exert all their old attraction in virtue of the innumerable associations that cling to them. They are about the same in size. The dimensions of the south one are about as follows: Height of the figure 52 feet, height of the pedestal on which the feet rest, 13 feet; height of the entire monument, 65 feet. The legs, from the sole of the foot to the knee, measure 19 feet, 6 inches, and each foot is 10 feet, 6 inches long. The breadth of the shoulders is 20 feet; the middle finger on one hand is 4 feet, 6 inches long; the arm from the tip of the finger to the elbow measures 15 feet, 6 inches. This statue is one solid rock, and its weight is about a thousand tons. It was carved out of a pebbly and quartzose sandstone-conglomerate found in the sandstone mountains beyond Edfu, of a yellowish-brown color, and brought from there to its present location, a distance of about one hundred miles.

The "Ramesseum," the large mortuary temple built by Rameses II, on the west bank of the river, is unfortunately only half preserved. Behind this temple are the remains of a number of extensive brick buildings, made of mud mixed with straw, some of which were erected in the time of Rameses II, as we learn from the stamps on the brick. These buildings were erected for storing grain, and possibly were used during the seven years of plenty, by Joseph, son of Jacob, who was sold into Egypt. I measured one of the rooms and found it to be 12 feet wide, 192 feet long, and about 10 feet high. There are about fifty such rooms.

Welcomed to Jerusalem

We are now in Jerusalem and find it very interesting. Brother and Sister Passman, who have been here for five years, were glad to see us, and we were happy to see them again. During their stay here they have erected a mission house which is well adapted for church and school work, also living quarters. It is a credit to them and the church. The school at present has an enrollment of about forty pupils. Brother Hanson and I are assisting in teaching at present. Brother Daniel Sorden and family from England are expected here any day.

From the Mount of Olives we get our best view of Jerusalem. Four fifths of the area now covered by the city is outside of the old wall. Many new buildings are being erected of stone, which is very plentiful here.

Many different churches are represented in this city. The work of Brother and Sister Passman is bearing fruit and some are ready for baptism. We are planning a trip to the Jordan for this purpose. One of these converts is a young man who is well educated in Hebrew and is acting as interpreter for Brother Passman, in the school.

The wailing place, the wall that surrounded the temple area, is interesting. The old, middle-aged, and young, of both sexes are found here, reading, praying, and weeping, longing for the time to come when the temple shall once again be restored to the Jews.

The "latter" rains are now falling, which are so necessary for this country. The climate at present is delightful; cool nights and warm days. Spring is at hand and wild flowers are everywhere blooming; fruit trees are in blossom.

Jews from all parts of the world and from all climes have gathered here, light complexioned and dark, rich and poor, eager to contribute their part to the building up of their beloved land. Evidently a great future is before the country, for it is written: "For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."

Have you ever noticed that the men who have system in their work almost invariably appear to have the least to do?

CHURCH NEWS

Missionary From Australia Gives Impressions of Kirtland

Impressions of Kirtland, Ohio, by Elder William Patterson, a native of Australia, are given in the Willoughby Republican. As explained by the reporter of the interview, "Mr. Patterson is a versatile speaker, a singer, bird man, and well informed on many topics." The account is as follows:

What are my impressions of Kirtland?

My first visit to Kirtland was made on the Fourth of July when everything seemed in perfect abandon; when there was that glorious spontaneity so characteristic of the American people on that day of days. I was so absorbed with the festivities of this occasion as to be unable to indulge the beauties of nature's landscapes. However, my ears were alert to the sounds of the feathered songsters, the whir of the bees, the laughter of her care-free children and youth; and my eyes snatched glimpses of the thickly studded hills and dales.

My next visit to this historic spot was made in the fall when the hand of the eternal artist had changed the verdure of summer into the variegated hues of autumn. How glorious the autumn!

Having been born on the east coast of Australia where the perpendicular cliffs are lashed by the angry ocean, where the blue of the Pacific Ocean meets the blue of the sky, where snow is a foreign element, and where the changing seasons hold little fear, I am naturally partial to coastal scenery. Nevertheless, for inland scenery I have not been more deeply impressed than by the scenes of Kirtland and environs.

I now see Kirtland under a mantle of snow and I am greatly impressed by the shroud of mystery. I had not seen snow until I came to this country, hence the novelty.

I am most impressed by the peaceful seclusion of the place and the possible conveniences it presents through the development of modern sciences. Kirtland is so situated that one may have the beauties and privileges of the country and the advantages of a large metropolis. Thanks to the automobile.

God's hand has made beautiful this place and now beckons its residents to beautify their habitations.

I try to envision a residential community built up in the midst of these hills, free from commercialization, exploitation, and moral decadence, so characteristic of our times. I would like to see a body of people come here for the purpose of establishing homes on a Christian basis.

May the time be not far distant when you shall have a community center under the direction and supervision of clean and capable leadership.

Pastor of Mapleton, Kansas, Branch Called to Other Fields

MAPLETON, KANSAS, March 30.—The Saints of Mapleton are feeling rather disheartened because they are about to lose their branch president, Brother Holly Dennis. The loss of this branch will be the gain of another community. God grant that Brother Dennis may build up the work there and that he may ever look back with joy and satisfaction to the time he served the branch here so well and faithfully. Brother Dennis is a young man with ability and zeal to push forward. Brother Lee Quick will soon take his place here and occupy as few are capable of doing.

The Saints are planning to take up the Book of Mormon studies again. This place has tried many times to have a Religio, but it seems impossible for the Saints to assemble during the week. It is hoped success will be obtained this time.

The Saints here are scattered, and most of them are farmers. While it is a very busy time now for the farmers and their wives, yet there is a goodly attendance at Sunday school and church, with all trying to hold on to the "rod of iron," although there are some discouragements to meet.

Oklahoma Saints Awakened to Truthfulness of Gospel

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA, March 31.—This branch is not without its share of awakening. The Saints are realizing more the truthfulness of the Master's statement, "Without me ye can do nothing." The power of the Holy Ghost must abide so that the great work of building the kingdom of God and warning the world may be accomplished.

Brother Samuel Simmons is here and has been giving some excellent sermons. Brother Simmons has served the church as a minister for thirty-five years. He is now on the superannuated list, but cannot be satisfied to remain idle.

Other brethren have also given some good sermons here, and the Saints look forward to an even greater spiritual awakening.

Variety of Studies Offered by Religio at Windsor, Ontario

WINDSOR, ONTARIO, April 2.—The Department of Recreation and Expression meets each Friday under the leadership of Brother William Beacom. The attendance is from sixty-five to ninety-five, with seven classes. Two classes have taken up the Book of Mormon Outline Studies, two junior classes have the junior quarterly, the young men have taken up the course outlined by Floyd M. McDowell, a class of young boys have their studies outlined by their teacher, and there is a teacher training class.

Each class has provided an evening's program; it is said by some that the girls have surpassed the boys so far. The orchestra and choir each are to provide a program, too. Vocal and instrumental solos, readings, talks, orchestral selections, and one debate have been enjoyed. The debating is to continue until a good debating team will be ready for challenge.

A baseball team has been organized by the Recreation Committee and are well under way for a good start. They have new suits and are to have a box social to help purchase more supplies.

If the spirit of helpfulness and interest now manifested is continued, this should be a banner year for this department.

Stewart Lamont, of Chatham, Ontario, was the speaker March 16 at 11 a. m. John Burger, bishop of London District, was here March 23 and delivered two discourses.

Since John Shields was called to other parts, a number of the young priesthood have been used with success.

The Department of Religious Education is increasing; one hundred eighteen to one hundred thirty-six have been noted in attendance. They are trying to have something different for a short program after the lesson each Sunday.

At Merlin, Ontario, the Saints have won favor. Charles Atkins and John Dent have been put on committees for a reunion of pioneers which the churches of that place are fostering.

Recital Proceeds Turned Into Building Fund

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, April 2.—June Whiting afforded the Central Branch an evening of profit and entertainment, March 21, when she gave a reading of the famous stage play, "The Fool." Miss Whiting is an instructor of public speaking at Graceland College, although at present she is doing post graduate work at the University of Chicago. During a week of vacation she made a speaking tour at various places where there are branches.

A good-sized audience attended the recital, and every person left the church feeling that the evening had been most enjoyable and instructive. Miss Whiting seemed at her best, doing a piece of work that she loved; the result was that she made a most powerful impression, and forcibly brought out the beauties as well as the lessons of the play.

Through the courtesy of Miss Whiting an admission fee was charged at the recital, and the entire net proceeds were added to the building fund of the church.

Alliance Saints Hold Meetings in Homes

ALLIANCE, OHIO, March 31.—After having to give up their place of meeting last October, the Saints have done very little in Alliance except hold sacrament and prayer meetings. Since February 10 Sunday services have been held at the home of the pastor until a suitable place may be found.

James Bishop, of Steubenville, was here for a few days and held a three-night series of discourses on the Book of Mormon. These meetings were at the home of Joseph Gordon.

Ruby Kahler and Bertha Meyers, of Akron, Ohio, were here March 2. Sister Kahler is district supervisor of the Department of Women, while Sister Meyers has charge of the Temple Builders in Akron. Both are capable women and gave splendid talks which were appreciated.

R. A. Smith, the pastor, held Sunday evening services for about six consecutive Sundays at the home of a nonmember in another part of the city. While no immediate results can be seen, the seeds were sown.

No services were held March 30 because of the Kirtland district conference which several from here attended. Patriarch Gomer T. Griffiths was there. Many in this church have received benefit from his life. Surely a rich reward is laid up for him.

Church Books Placed in Public Library

DULUTH, MINNESOTA, April 2.—The publicity department has been able to place the Holy Scriptures, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants in the public library, also installed one more tract case. The newspapers here are most liberal with free advertising for churches, so the church name and address have been placed before the public many times.

C. B. Freeman, the branch president, was the speaker at the evening service, March 23, his subject being, "Repentance."

The Sunday school is going ahead with A. O. Johnson at the helm. They are quite busy now getting ready for Easter.

The Department of Women, under the leadership of Mollie Feathers, are trying to enlarge their work with a desire to help in the carrying forth of the gospel. They will soon launch a campaign of systematic tracting under the help of the publicity agent, which will help to forward the work of warning the people of this city. May they have the prayers of the Saints that the work may go forward to the goal set and help to bring others into the true fold.

The Department of Recreation and Expression with Sister

Lottie Zuelsdorf as head is striving to teach the children and build them up so that they will be able to take up the work which others lay down and to demonstrate in their lives the gospel of Christ.

Tells of Work at Riverside Mission, Fort Worth

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, April 7.—Elder S. S. Smith, writing from Fort Worth, Texas, says:

"Last week was occupied by the writer, by preaching each night but one, and in the daytime I was busily engaged in papering a hall we have rented and in fixing a number of benches to seat the hall, also in painting a sign with these words, 'Riverside Mission, Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.' Our place of meeting is in Riverside Addition to Fort Worth and on the Grapevine Road. The Saints get the use of the hall for the sum of $5 a month and we have agreed to take it for at least six months. The expense in fixing this place suitable for meetings will be about $30. I have arranged for some of the elders from Dallas to come over here twice a month. In all probability there will be a Sunday school organized next Sunday. At the present time I am delivering a series of lectures on the Book of Mormon. The crowds I am having are not large. This would be a good point for an elder to locate. Those desiring further information regarding this place can write to Brother J. A. Wyninger, Route 1, Box 159, Fort Worth, Texas."

Petrolia, Ontario, Branch Moves Onward in the Work

PETROLIA, ONTARIO, March 30.—B. H. Doty was here for four weeks before Christmas. The Saints were much encouraged. A fine young lady was baptized, and others seemed interested. Literature is being distributed to all who will read.

The Department of Women is active. They meet each week at the different homes. They were spoken to recently through the gift of prophecy for the commendable work they are doing.

Sunday school, too, is active. Not one session has been missed this year, in spite of cold weather and bad roads. Some had quite a distance to walk, too.

Bisbee Branch Sells Chapel

BISBEE, ARIZONA, April 2.—The little cottage which has served as a church building almost since the inception of the work in Bisbee, but which during the past three years has proved inadequate for the larger membership, was sold March 19, the purchaser obtaining it for a dwelling.

It so happened that this was the date of the regular mid-week prayer meeting which was well attended. While for a time the Saints will miss holding their prayer services in this building, the event presages the beginning of brighter times. Bisbee has long needed a larger and more up-to-date building. During the past several years the Saints fortunately were able to rent for Sunday services an unusually suitable building from the Bisbee Woman's Club, and most likely can continue to use it as long as needed.

The proceeds of this sale, together with funds on hand, will nearly provide a sufficient amount to purchase a more suitable lot and it is hoped the future may see this branch in possession of a place of worship which will be a credit to the branch and community. The Department of Women is making earnest endeavors to this end. They expect to have a bazaar in the near future.

There has been an improved average attendance at all services since the beginning of the year. At the recent monthly meeting of Sunday school officers and teachers, a committee was appointed to arrange for a suitable Easter program.

Three Baptized at Brockton, Massachusetts

BROCKTON, MASSACHUSETTS, March 31.—During the past two months Brockton has been fairly active in spite of the Saints being scattered, and the storms and heavy snows experienced.

On sacramental Sunday, March 2, Frank S. Dobbins baptized Kendall Reynolds, Miriam Dobbins, and Arvesta Harlow. James Houghton was the speaker on the Sunday following. He was a great help along musical lines, and his visit was enjoyed. Viola Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Nute, was blessed by the pastor at this service. Another baby was blessed on March 23. This was Audrey Lorraine, daughter of Brother Donald and Sister Alice Crowell. Benjamin Leland, of Plymouth, delivered two sermons that day.

Saint Patrick's Party

On March 17 a Saint Patrick's party was held. It was the birthday of Wallace C. Booth and the party was held at his home. Games were played and stories of Pat and Mike related much to the amusement of all. Brother Booth and his wife were presented with an electric lamp.

A supper, given by the Department of Recreation and Expression, was followed by a radio concert in charge of Frank S. and Elmer Dobbins.

A young people's prayer meeting was held at 6 p. m. on March 30. A goodly number were present and the Spirit was there in great abundance. Many testimonies gave evidence of the humility and good will of the young.

Temple Builders

The Temple Builders are actively engaged in making quilts for the Children's Home. They meet every Thursday evening at the homes of the members.

The primary department of the Sunday school has a new feature each Sunday brought to the attention of the main school. They have repeated in unison all the books of both the Old and New Testaments. They have also studied the church organization. Some of the classes are memorizing the names of the apostles of both latter and former days. Commendation is due the primary superintendent, Margaret Roberts.

The Easter program is under way, supervised by Mae Cowgill.

Young Member of Columbus Branch Called by Death

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 24.—Two weeks ago the First Columbus Branch lost one of their young members, Brother George Myers. He was a young man of twenty years, and the oldest son of Gershom and Winnifred Myers. His father is a priest of this branch who has done much excellent work in opening new places for the preaching of the gospel.

This young man had won for himself the respect of some of the foremost business men in Columbus and the branch felt proud of the life he had lived. He was to have been married in July to Sister Martha Daugherty.

Elberta Branch to Renew Services

ELBERTA, MICHIGAN, April 9.—Services in this branch will be revived next Sunday, April 13. They were supposed to have reopened on April 6 but the roads were in such condition that the people could not come.

This branch sent in $17 tithing last month.

Why?

By B. H. Doty

- Why do some people seem to enjoy
The worldly pleasures so-called?
Why do they constantly seem to give way
To the tempter, thus ever enthralled?
Why do they turn a deaf ear unto God?
Why do they his counsel defy?
Why do they blaspheme and curse as they do?
Will some one please answer me, why?
- Why do they go on in sin day by day?
Why don't they start life anew?
Why don't they live for humanity's sake,
The lives that the righteous pursue?
Why do they follow the broad, downward way,
Leading far from the mansions on high?
Why do they choose such a course as they do?
Will some one please answer me, why?
- Why are their lives so depraved as they are?
Why is it, they don't use their mind?
Why is it, their life seems to be one of naught
To those who are thoughtful and kind?
Why is it the world seems so happy and gay,
In spite of conditions awry?
Why is it God doesn't say, "It's enough"?
Will some one please answer me, why?
- Why is it the end of the world has not come?
Or can it be God has forgot?
Why is it that Christ has not come, as he said,
And appointed to each one his lot?
Why is it the nations are ready for war?
Can it be that the end draweth nigh?
Why is it that Zion has not been redeemed?
Will some one please answer me, why?
- Why is it that we have not paid all we owe
To God, and to our fellow men?
Why is it that we have withheld our support,
And caused God his work to suspend?
Is that just the reason that Zion is not?
Is that why Christ still is on high?
Is that why the end of the world has not come?
Will some one please answer me, why?
- Why is it we cannot see facts as they are,
And not blame the world for our loss?
Why is it we will not humble ourselves,
And live at the foot of the cross?
Why is it we will not acknowledge our faults,
To God, and the Savior on high?
Why is it that we will not take all the blame?
Will some one please answer me, why?

Six Baptized Following Meetings Held at Moundsville, West Virginia

MOUNDSVILLE, WEST VIRGINIA, April 7.—Thomas L. Clark started his evangelistic services in this place on March 11, after having returned from Port Huron with his family. The Saints having moved into larger quarters, it was found necessary to secure more seats. Owing to the lack of funds, it was impossible to buy chairs, so under the direction of the deacons some lumber was secured and benches were made to seat sixty more people.

Brother Clark was very successful in preaching the gospel message to many people since he had a different audience of strangers almost every evening. Although he was richly blessed with the Spirit during the series of services which lasted three weeks, it was deemed wise to bring the meetings to a close. Through his efforts there were six souls brought into the fold, and there are others interested, who will probably come in later.

The Saints feel that Brother Clark endeared himself to them by his words of wisdom and timely advice. They tried to show their appreciation of his services by giving a farewell party for him and his family. He received many valuable gifts, among them a traveling bag presented by the Department of Women.

At the last quarterly business meeting O. J. Tary, district president, presided and his two vice presidents, L. A. Serig and Thomas Mills, also Thomas L. Clark, were present.

Ralph Gunn, the local teacher, who has been at Washington, District of Columbia, has returned and will make his permanent home here. Brother Gunn is a jeweler by trade, receiving his training while at Washington.

Spring Revives Hopes of Persia Saints

PERSIA, IOWA, April 9.—The attendance at services this winter has been rather poor since the roads have been so bad. Some Sundays no services were held. Spring has finally come, and it is to be hoped it is here to stay, for it always brings cheer and comfort.

The branch president talked to the Saints the morning of March 16, but no services were held in the evening. No services could be held the next two Sundays because of the stormy weather and impassable roads. April 6 was the regular sacramental meeting which was administered in compliance with the custom, and those present had a spiritual feast and were so led to express themselves.

Joseph Seddon of Woodbine, who was the pastor here for a number of years, spoke in the evening. W. R. Adams of Logan is expected to be heard here next Sunday.

Chatham Religio Holds Mock Trial

CHATHAM, ONTARIO, April 9.—The mock trial, under the auspices of the Department of Recreation and Expression which was referred to in the last news letter from Chatham was carried out as to details, regular court procedure being followed. Patriarch John Shields acted as foreman of the jury and brought verdict of not guilty and the judge dismissed the prisoner. The trial was very interesting and educational.

At the last report there were several sick; since then some have been restored to health, others are still sick, and one passed to the great beyond. Mrs. James H. Tyrell, one of the pioneers of the work in this district, died three weeks ago and was buried from the church on March 15. The district president, Robert Brown, had charge of the service.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Truly the old landmarks in the gospel are fast disappearing.

Apostle J. A. Gillen paid this branch a visit on April 2 and preached an eloquent discourse. The sacramental service on April 6 was well attended. The Lord saw fit to recognize the assembly and spoke words of comfort to the congregation, and also to several of the brethren in a gift of tongues. A splendid feeling was in the service and all rejoiced at being present.

The Sunday school on April 6 held a service to commemorate the organizing of the church. The lessons in all the classes were on the Restoration, and after assembling again short talks and some musical numbers were given.

The meetings, with the exception of the midweek prayer service, are well attended, and conditions of the branch show an improvement.

Preparations are being completed by the district authorities for a young people's convention to be held in Bothwell in May.

District Choirs Unite in Rendering Cantatas

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS, April 7.—The Boston Branch has thus far been gratified in her hope to make this year one of success and progress.

The choir has been working enthusiastically on its program planned by the chorister, Brother James Houghton, and its efforts have been successful. Within the past month, besides carrying its regular work and arranging an anthem review to be given in the near future, it has joined the Fall River choir and singers from the other parts of the district in rendering the cantata, "From Olivet to Calvary," by Maunder; and it has now started to prepare "The Creation" by Haydn, together with the other choirs of the district, at a later date.

The most memorable event, at least from the standpoint of the men and boys, has been the father and son banquet which was held at the Boston City Club Building where fifty-six fathers and sons joined to spend the evening to the benefit of all. E. L. Traver, the pastor, was master of ceremonies, and speeches with definite appeal to both the fathers and the sons were made by O. L. Thompson, the district missionary, T. J. Elliott of Providence, and Doctor Russell of the neighboring Baptist church. It was a banner night in the lives of the men and boys. Greater plans for benefit and pleasure in similar gatherings are made for the future.

If You Need

1. A Spiritual Uplift
2. An Intellectual Feast
3. Moral Encouragement

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

Macon Saints Live to See Prophecy Fulfilled

MACON, MISSOURI, April 8.—Years ago it was prophesied that a branch would be organized in this place, and through humility and patient living the few Saints that remain here have seen this fulfilled. To-day the little church stands dedicated to God and free from debt, with a membership of about sixty.

Interest is increasing at the Sunday evening services. A. R. Moore, branch president, and S. Jesse Joyce, sr., have been occupying the pulpit. At present Brother Joyce is delivering a series of sermons on the six fundamental principles of the gospel. Quite a number of nonmembers have been attending.

The Department of Recreation and Expression meets every Sunday evening at 6.30. The Book of Mormon and history of the church are being studied.

The Department of Women is busy, meeting every Thursday for sewing and quilting. On March 29, the ladies held a food exchange, the proceeds going for branch expenses. Also two boxes of canned fruits were shipped to the Sanitarium by this society this week.

The midweek prayer service is held every Wednesday. For the last month cottage prayer meetings have been held in the homes of Saints and nonmembers, which have proven a success. On April 2, the meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Welch, friends who are investigating the work. There was a good attendance and a spiritual feast was enjoyed by all present.

"The glory in the garden," an Easter program, will be rendered by the junior, primary, and beginner classes on the morning of April 20, under the direction of the committee.

Rock Island Launches Important Missionary Effort

ROCK ISLAND, ILLINOIS, April 5.—The most important undertaking ever put over by this branch will be the missionary effort which begins April 6. William Willetts, superintendent of the local missionary department, is busy getting the literature ready and advertisements for the papers. E. A. Curtis, district missionary, is to begin the preaching and E. R. Davis, district president, will assist later. The local membership will help tract and bring listeners.

Orchestra to Broadcast

The orchestra, which now consists of twenty pieces, has secured the night of April 18 from 8 to 9 p. m. to render a musical program to be broadcast over W O C, Davenport, Iowa. Brethren T. R. Willetts, J. E. Asey, and R. G. Huntley are working very hard to make this engagement a successful one. W O C is a large station, so this should be beneficial to the work. The program will consist of songs from Zion's Praises, seasoned with piano, vocal solos, and readings. Sister Anna Davies, over eighty years old, will give one number and a young sister of ten, another. Drop a line through W O C if you are able to hear.

To Improve Church Building

R. G. Huntley and Irvin Gunlock, deacons, assisted by the local church architect, William J. Butler, are at work on the building program to decorate the interior, repaint the outside, put new grass on the lawn, erect a new announcement board, put in new lights and other improvements that the house of God may be at its best.

The Tri-Cities, with a population of 150,000 people and three branches, Davenport, Moline, and Rock Island, makes this church in a large city. Pastors in each branch function in all three pulpits, making the preaching of the word attractive.

Departmental Work

The departments are functioning and the trend of attendance is going up. The Sunday school expects to make a record year in the Christmas offering and so far this year is ahead of last year's record. Since making the Book of Mormon the textbook for study the Religio activities are better, and more attractive programs are offered. Sister L. A. White has organized a Department of Women. They contemplate keeping up the standard in activities.

The orchestra is busy preparing the program to be broadcast and is now playing for other denominations in this city and Milan. Quite a friendly feeling exists among the new associates. Most of the players of the orchestra are young people and about half of them not members of the church.

The priesthood is active. Visiting among members and friends is good. The citizens of Rock Island are understanding the position of the Saints better as they proceed with their program.

Some sickness still exists. Sister Gunlock has returned from the hospital and is gaining in health. Sister Pierce, recovering from a broken hip, is not quite so well.

A. J. Gray's radio set receives K F I X clear and loud.

Pleasant Memories of District Conference Reunion With Sacramento Saints

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, April 1.—The district conference held here in February, has left many pleasant and encouraging memories. The Saints were glad to make the acquaintance of Apostles Roy S. Budd and D. T. Williams during their special services just prior to the conference. Their messages were well received by a good attendance.

Pastor George Daley devoted one Sunday morning's sermon recently to the need of the church papers in Saints' homes, and the support due the papers. At the close of the meeting one HERALD subscription was given in to be sent to a worthy member in Germany.

Elder E. B. Hull recently addressed the Saints twice on Sunday. George H. Wixom, district missionary, also spoke on Sunday evening. The Saints are looking forward to having Brother Wixom here for a series of meetings beginning Easter.

Community Suppers

The Department of Women, with Sister E. Epling, superintendent, give a community supper for members and friends the last Friday in each month. At the last supper, held at one of the city community centers, Elder Wixom gave an interesting talk as part of the evening's program.

Two of the three city newspapers run a free weekly church column in which this branch has been represented for some time. Visiting speakers should notify the officers of their intended visits so that sermons and subjects may be advertised. The Saints' chapel is located at Twenty-fourth and Kay Streets.

Sister Rose Dawson, secretary and active worker in the Department of Women, has been critically ill with influenza for the past month but is gradually improving. Her mother, Sister C. W. Hawkins, of San Jose, is here.

Several persons have been baptized in this branch this year, including one woman formerly a Catholic, one man who had investigated the Utah Church and being dissatisfied therewith sought this church and united with it, one girl who attended Sunday school here, and five children.

Sister Martha E. Fell, eighty years of age, writes that she is still strong in the faith and testifies to the many blessings her Father has bestowed upon her. Sister Fall lives in Thermopolis, Wyoming, where she knows of no other Saints. When able to attend the other churches she has always been well received and asked to take part in their services. Especially has she been well treated by the pastor of the Baptist Church. Recently when a revivalist stated that there were no signs of healing since the days of the apostles, Sister Fell testified to the blessing she had received, having been healed by God's Spirit. The Baptist sisters and pastor told her to remain steadfast to her belief. Sister Fell has sent for tracts of our gospel that she may do all she can to spread the true light wherever she goes.

Research Class in Church History Organized at Columbus, Ohio

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 9.—The Department of Women of the Second Columbus Branch have just organized a study class for research and study of church history. The meetings are held at their different homes on the second Monday of each month. The first one was held at the home of Sister Rose Nieman, where they elected officers and got started generally. The election resulted in Sister Nieman as superintendent, and Ruth Graham, secretary. There has been a lively interest shown in this class and it will be a help to all who join.

April 6 was the regular monthly sacramental service and it was a veritable feast for the soul. The Spirit was felt all through the meeting and it was with reluctance that the service was closed. There has been an increased interest shown in all the meetings by the members here and also a number of strangers have visited. The Saints are greatly encouraged and feel that some good is being done in this vicinity.

The choir is arranging some special music for Easter, and as far as can be told now there will be several anthems, a women's chorus, and solos by various members of the choir.

The Department of Women, Winfield, Kansas, writes that they have enjoyed the articles on Home Building which have just been finished in the HERALD. Winfield has a small branch, and only a few women in the department, but they are alive and active in the work.

Want to Meet

1. The Leaders of the Church
2. The Departmental Superintendents
3. Hundreds of Young People

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

Lamoni Items

LAMONI, IOWA, April 12.—Lamoni has been enjoying a treat this week, a series of character building sermons by President Elbert A. Smith. This series of meetings was preceded last Sunday, April 6, by an anniversary meeting held in commemoration of the organization of the church. At this meeting the A Capella Chorus from the Lamoni-Graceland Oratorio Society sang a number of hymns which were favorites of the Saints in early days, and the audience was led by Roy Cheville in singing other selections from the same hymn book.

Three short speeches touched on leading phases of church history. Vida E. Smith very vividly portrayed in well-chosen words the big revival meeting in Palmyra when the contention of the churches led the boy Joseph to seek light and wisdom from above, the memorable vision received in answer to his prayer, and other events leading up to the organization of the church.

C. E. Wight, stake president, followed with a talk on the period of development and expansion, during which time the faith spread rapidly and the gospel was preached in many lands. The term "growth and development" is a familiar one in Brother Wight's vocabulary, and he felt much at home in this subject.

President Elbert A. Smith concluded the talks with a recital of incidents, some sad, some joyous, as he reviewed the history of the "dark and cloudy day" and the Reorganization. The angry mob, the assassination, the widowed mother, the exodus, and finally the glorious triumph in the Reorganization, all passed in panoramic view, as Brother Elbert in his characteristic, sympathetic manner carried his audience through the most trying time in the history of the church.

The first of the character building sermons was preached Sunday night on the subject, "Belief in a personal God." Others followed each night during the week except Saturday, on the following subjects: "Belief in the immortality of the soul," "Belief in man's free moral agency," "Two philosophies of life," "Cleaning the inside of the cup," "All the people working together with God." The church has been crowded every night with eager, attentive listeners, and much good has been accomplished. Music has been furnished each evening by the Oratorio Society, or members thereof, in choruses, solos, duets, quartets, and piano numbers, and has added very much to the services. The members of this organization and their leader, Miss Mabel Carlile, have proved themselves a very consecrated group of musicians, and have accomplished wonders in this line during the school year. The concluding sermon of this series will be preached Sunday night, April 13, on the last-named subject.

Sister Elbert A. Smith accompanied her husband to Lamoni and has visited with relatives here and at Garden Grove during the week.

Forestation of Land

A project of more than ordinary interest to the town and church was started this week in the forestation of a thirty-five acre tract of land west of the Saints' Home. On this acreage is located a small lake known as the Home Pond, from which the town gets its water supply. This has at times proved insufficient for the growing needs of the town, and other provision will quite likely have to be made some time in the future. With this in mind the dreamer has visions of an ideal summer resort for Lamoni; a place where young and old may go and rest, fish, swim, and play amid the most pleasing surroundings. The movement was taken under advisement some months ago, but the first tree was planted last Tuesday morning. The work is being accomplished through the cooperation of the experiment department and the extension services of the state college at Ames, Professor I. T. Brode overseeing personally the planting of the trees which were furnished by the college free. The labor of planting was donated by public spirited men of the town. Six thousand trees of many varieties were planted this year on a small patch north and west of the lake, and an equal number will be provided each year, the project covering a period of five or six years.

Included in the project were 2,000 trees which were planted by the Boy Scouts on a patch of ground west of Graceland, loaned to the boys indefinitely for the purpose of raising Christmas trees. They were several kinds of the evergreen family. Fifteen Boy Scouts participated in the planting which was supervised by N. A. Carmichael, of the Agricultural Department, and Eugene Closson, scoutmaster, under the direction of Professor Brode.

Garden Week Celebration

The Community Club of Lamoni is preparing to celebrate Garden Week, April 20-26. Details have not been worked out yet, but there will be a number of special features. They have the cooperation of the churches in this undertaking.

At the recent town election the largest vote ever polled here was registered, the interest centering around the question of town improvements made last year, and opposed by members of one ticket. The progressives won, however, and the former town officers were elected with only one new name on the ticket. They are: G. W. Blair, mayor; A. W. Fleet, A. H. Smith, James Gillaspie, C. E. Bootman, and D. A. Dancer, councilmen; F. M. Weld, assessor; and Orra Teale, treasurer. The last two were indorsed by both tickets.

Graceland Chats

LAMONI, IOWA, April 12.—These are busy days at Graceland. Indoor and outdoor, the scene is one of activity. The question of grades, the question of future classes, the question of teaching, the question of a "Letter G," and a dozen other questions keep the question mark dancing somewhere on some one's horizon all the time.

Teachers and students feel the stir of unseen forces and the call to a new service.

Standing on the wall of the new gym a new thrill of pleasure is found in surveying the work done by the boys. Lyle Weeks, inspired by his love for Graceland, is finding hearty cooperation in the boys on the gym force. The placing of the steel beams was attended with pronounced satisfaction.

Looking to the south the new athletic field is most inviting. The track is the best ever had and the inclosed plateau for football is high and well drained. In the west the tennis courts are the scenes of animated groups and in the tree tops the redbird calls gayly, while bluebirds in "blue overalls" stop to look the noisy group over and make some trilly little comments. About one hundred and sixty students are working their way at this time, one group on duty in the forenoon, and the other in the afternoon.

New Business Manager

Strolling down the hall together come the new business manager, Ray Carmichael, and the veteran business manager, J. A. Gunsolley; both are busy now as the one has been for years.

President Elbert A. Smith lectured to the Religious Education Class, April 9, on the following subject, "Fruitage of the Spirit." He and his wife were callers at Bide-A-Wee. Patriarch F. A. Smith spent an afternoon in the hall also.

Graceland has no spring vacation, and in place of the usual first of April hobo frolic this year, the school resorted to the South Woods and had an all-day picnic. The day was ideal and the reaction to the day of freedom was very good. When the road is calling and the hedges are growing green it's hard to keep the gypsy in us down.

In addition to heavy school work and the rush with the gym, the last week has been pushing study and work closer to make room for the character building sermons by President Elbert A. Smith at the Brick Church.

Kansas City Stake Items

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, April 13.—The young people's meetings previously advertised commenced at Central Church, Sunday evening, April 6. Walter W. Smith was the speaker. These meetings continued for one week, with a good attendance, closing April 13.

Argentine Church

The special meetings conducted by Missionary W. I. Fligg, in Argentine, which commenced Sunday, March 23, and ended April 6, had a fair attendance, with some nonmembers present. Thus far no baptisms have been reported, but a spiritual uplift was had upon the part of the membership.

The Central Choral Club gave the operetta entitled, "Merry milkmaids," at the Argentine high school Friday evening, March 28. A splendid attendance was had in spite of the unexpected rain. This was a most pleasing entertainment, as the entire cast showed ability far ahead of the usual home talent performance. The organization should be kept together, as it would be effective for good work along the lines of church dramatics. The director, Brother Eugene Christy, favored the audience with three special songs between acts. The proceeds will be applied on the new Central Church building.

Quindaro Church

The meetings being conducted by Patriarch Ammon White at Quindaro Church for the past two weeks closed Sunday evening, April 6. A splendid interest is reported throughout, with some baptisms.

Bennington Church

Four more people were baptized by Brother Fligg on March 30 and another on April 6. The latter was probably interested first by the meeting held at Sheffield during last December. This makes a total of sixteen baptisms at that place as a result of the late missionary effort in that locality.

Hold Old-Fashioned Spelling Match

TULARE, CALIFORNIA, April 9.—The Department of Recreation and Expression had an old-fashioned spelling match Sunday evening, March 9. The winning side was entertained by the losing side with a party on the following Friday evening at the home of Brother and Sister H. C. Powell. The home was beautifully decorated with spring flowers. The evening was spent playing games. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

The branch celebrated the ninety-fourth anniversary of the organization of the church, April 6, with a sermon by Elder H. C. Snively and special music.

At the morning sacrament service the good Spirit was there to bless and comfort those present. A large crowd attended. The Sunday school is moving forward under the direction of the superintendent, James Damron.

Lecturer Against Utah Church Friendly to Reorganization

BEARDSTOWN, ILLINOIS, April 12.—Mrs. Marion Williams, an anti-Mormon lecturer, visited Beardstown on March 15 and 16 and lectured at the Gem Theater, her subject being, "Financial and political powers of Mormonism." Sunday, the sixteenth, her lecture was for women only and she appeared in Mormon Temple robes and told of her experiences while a member of the Utah Church.

She was advertised to lecture at the Methodist church Saturday and at the Christian church Sunday. She visited the branch president, M. R. Shoemaker, at his studio early in the morning to see about getting a picture framed and they had quite a talk on religion and the difference between the two churches. Just before noon she returned to the studio and said she had been turned down by the Methodist and Christian Churches and asked Brother Shoemaker if she could deliver her lectures from the Latter Day Saint church. He granted her permission, provided she would make the distinction between the two churches clear, and she agreed to do so. After dinner she returned again and said she had decided that the church was too small, and that she had rented the Gem Theater.

Several of the Saints attended her lectures and she made a distinction between the churches and stated that Joseph Smith did not practice polygamy and that there was no connection between the Utah Church and the Reorganized Church. By making friends with her we feel that she did us less harm than she otherwise would have done.

Young People's Campaign at Port Huron Opens

PORT HURON, MICHIGAN, April 9.—The young people's campaign at Port Huron opened April 6 with Patriarch John Martin as speaker to a church overflowing with Saints and friends. Wonderful interest is being manifested and the crowds grow larger each night. It looks now as though the campaign may have to be finished in a hall as the church seems inadequate to hold the host which turns out.

A song service is held each evening under the direction of John Grice, who is ably assisted by an augmented orchestra directed by Arthur Nye of the local branch.

A special convention of young people is to be held April 19 and 20 at which time Saints from all over Michigan and Western Ontario are expected.

Harry Maltas and Edith Harrison, of Port Huron, who were married April 6, were joint participants in a reception given Tuesday, the 8th, to Brother Martin.

News from Tawas City, Michigan, says that Elder M. A. Somerfield had a busy day on March 2. He preached twice at Oscoda and baptized a woman and her seventeen-year-old son. Elder E. S. White, of Bay City, was a visitor at the branch recently, when he came to the city to preach the funeral sermon of Brother Will Somerville. Brother Somerville is survived by his wife and one daughter. Brother B. F. Slye has gone to Bradner, Ohio, where he contemplates going into business.

Holden Stake News

Holden

HOLDEN, MISSOURI, April 12.—The return of good roads and sunshine brought many of the "shut-ins" out to service Sunday. The initial meeting in Holden for the day was that of the young people's prayer service held at 8.30 a. m., which had an increase in attendance of 100 per cent. The Sunday school's attendance also registered above the usual for the past few Sundays.

At 11 o'clock the communion service was observed, Brethren Moler, Phillips, Ross, McWethy, and Krahl having supervision. A splendid spirit was present. The testimonies were of a high order and constructive.

The regular monthly meeting of the ministry was held at 2.30 p. m. The usual program and study was dispensed with and an address on "Priesthood" was given by Bishop A. B. Phillips.

A rehearsal of "Easter dawn" was held at 4 p. m. At 6:15 the Department of Recreation and Expression met in its regular session with a good representation present.

The closing service of the day was the sermon by Bishop Phillips at 7.45, which was greatly appreciated by the attentive audience. Brother C. F. Scarciff conducted the communion service at the Holden Home. The Home Sunday school met at 2.30 p. m. It was a beautiful day for the Holden Home.

Lexington

Elder George M. Shippy preached Sunday morning, April 6, continuing the sermon of the Sunday before. These are greatly appreciated by the people, for they gain a fuller knowledge of what the church means. Elder J. F. Petre, of Knobnoster, preached Sunday night and held a series of meetings for a week following.

Brother Charles A. Gaither, of Paris, Arkansas, and former member of the Stake High Council, and of Lexington church, spent Sunday here. Lexington was glad to welcome him back. Brother Fred Howell, also a former worker in the church here, is visiting relatives.

Atherton

Elder Richard D. Weaver, a missionary in Holden Stake, closed a five-weeks' series of successful meetings at Atherton, on March 30. A full house of friends bade him farewell at the closing service. Expressions of regret that the meetings were over were freely given by Saints and friends. Brother Weaver had intended leaving immediately following the close of the meetings but several gave their names for baptism with the request that he remain and perform the ordinance, so he did. Six were baptized, five adults and one child.

The Saints gathered near the bridge which crosses the Little Blue River and there these precious souls were brought into the kingdom of God. Many said it was the most beautiful baptism they had ever beheld. One man was sixty-eight years old and is an old resident of this valley. For the past fifteen years he has fought for the Latter Day Saints and has favored them in many ways. He is the owner of the building in which the Saints meet. With every candidate he walked out into the water and stood while the baptism took place. He was happiness personified.

When the train bearing Brother Weaver arrived five weeks ago, the pastor of Atherton was impressed that a man of God, who would accomplish much good there, was aboard that train. This came true. The gospel was beautifully and impressively explained so that even the little children could understand. One outstanding phrase will never be forgotten, "Keep the Christ on exhibition."

Marshall

Brother Ralph M. Ridge was the speaker at Marshall, Sunday, March 16. Pastor Levi Phelps spoke at night.

The aid society is meeting regularly every two weeks, with considerable enthusiasm.

A rather unique program was carried out Sunday morning, March 23. Although the audience was rather sparse, a full class of the priesthood sat upon the rostrum, with Pastor Phelps. He arose and said it was his aim to have all the brethren speak, so he called first, R. M. Ridge, priest, who responded with a sermon; then Joseph Kirby, teacher, who took for his subject, faith; next came Marion Johnson, teacher, giving a short talk; followed by W. P. Mitchel, deacon; and Will Ridge, deacon. All, like good soldiers, seemed ready to respond and give reason for the faith within them. The little audience with the choir felt edified and the last hymn was sung with much spirit.

The Orioles are always on the lookout for something to do. Recently they had a fine time at a tacky party, held at the home of Sister Adah Spohrer. They are now planning a hike and fishing party at the Salt Fork River.

Independence

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, April 15.—The first meeting of the Joint Council, called for April 15, opened to-day at the Institute building on the Campus. The session was held in the morning, opening with prayer and the serving of the sacrament, at ten o'clock. At noon the Laurel Club served luncheon to the council in the Institute Building. In the afternoon members of the council made a tour of inspection of church properties in Independence. This was followed by a fellowship meeting in the evening at the Institute, the Laurel Club serving the dinner.

The present sessions of the Joint Council have been called to consider the financial problems of the church. Members of the Presidency, Twelve, and Bishopric will be present. Those expected to attend are: First Presidency, Frederick M. Smith, Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell; Quorum of Twelve, J. A. Gillen, John W. Rushton, T. W. Williams, J. F. Garver, E. J. Gleazer, F. Henry Edwards, D. T. Williams, R. S. Budd. The four members of the Twelve in foreign fields will not attend. Others attending will be: The Presiding Bishopric: Benjamin R. McGuire, James F. Keir, Israel A. Smith; others from the Order of Bishops, A. F. McLean, Toronto; M. C. Fisher, Boston; John Zimmermann, sr., Philadelphia; J. C. Dent, Ontario; J. A. Koehler, Saint Joseph; Albert Carmichael, Lamoni; C. E. Irwin, Lamoni; F. B. Blair, Kansas City; A. V. Karlstrom, Charles Fry, R. T. Cooper, J. A. Becker, M. H. Siegfried, E. L. Kelley, Ellis Short, sr., Roderick May, A. B. Phillips, B. J. Scott, C. J. Hunt, all of Independence. Others not heard from may be present.

First Independence Sunday School

The attendance at the First Independence Sunday School, Sunday, April 13, was 1,530. Once only has this been exceeded. On March 2, of this year, there were 1,556 present. Even then 410 of the enrolled membership were absent. Twenty perfect classes were reported, the intermediate department being banner with eight.

Following the Sunday school, the officers and teachers of the primary and intermediate departments held their monthly conferences. The lessons of the ensuing month were presented with emphasis upon the outstanding aim of each lesson. Other important topics were also discussed. The plan of holding separate conferences by departments has proved quite successful, increasing the attendance to about 90 per cent. The Monday evening conferences held heretofore were only attended by 30 to 50 per cent of the officers and teachers.

A recent project in the beginner department which has promise of much good is a demonstration class taught by Sisters Walter W. Smith and Tessie Smith. This was arranged especially for training eight of our younger teachers who volunteered for service. They do substitute work as needed and occasionally do practical work while the regular teachers observe. Visits to other schools with reports on their observations form a part of the curriculum. Six large screens have recently been installed to form individual classrooms in the department. Each screen has a blackboard built in it. The intermediate department have been trying out six curtained rooms during the last month with signal success. They are made of khaki cloth and strung on wires with end-snaps. After the opening exercises these are quickly snapped into permanent hooks and taken down at the close of the class period.

Englewood Purchases Church Lot

The Saints of Englewood are glad to report the purchase of a lot on Northern Boulevard for the erection of a new church home. James E. Warne, the pastor, has asked that all those interested meet at the church Monday evening, April 21. Bishop J. A. Becker, also H. C. Smith, church architect, will be present.

John Farrow has resigned as president of the Department of Recreation and Expression. He has worked well and the Saints regret losing him. Lyman W. Fike was chosen in his place.

Miss Margaret Chaffins is now leader of the women. An apron sale is planned for April 29 at the dining hall of the Stone Church. Candy, ice cream, and cake will also be on sale all day and evening.

Sunday morning, April 13, Doctor Charles Keown occupied with a discussion on the baby clinic. Elder Lyman W. Fike occupied in the evening.

Walnut Park Starts Lawn

Work began on the Walnut Park Church lawn last week. The trees were all moved and most of the lawn graded and made ready for seeding; the terrace is being sodded, and the remaining section of the first little church, on the rear of the lot, will be torn down and taken away, this part of the yard to be used as a playground.

Book of Mormon Lectures

The large class in charge of Bishop M. H. Siegfried, of the First Independence Sunday School, has been enjoying a series of lectures by Elder L. E. Hills on Book of Mormon history, geography, and archaeology. For the past seven Sundays they have been meeting at the Sunday school hour in the upper auditorium of the Church of Christ building and have had all available space taken by the large number of men, women, and a few children who attend regularly.

About three months of these lectures were had before the class when it met in Bartholomew Hall, but with the change to larger quarters the class began over again with doubled attendance. Two readers are used, one reading as called upon by the lecturer from the Book of Mormon, the other

(Continued on page 383.)

LETTERS

Minutes of Organization of Rotterdam Branch in Holland

ROTTERDAM, HOLLAND, February 10.—By a call of Apostles J. F. Curtis and Paul M. Hanson, the Saints of Rotterdam and Schiedam met at the home of Brother Arie Pyl in Schiedam, at 5 p. m. February 10, to consider the advisability of organizing a branch. After the singing of a hymn, prayer was offered by Paul M. Hanson. Twenty-one members out of twenty-six were present.

A motion to organize was unanimously supported.

Ordinations to Office of Elder

It was moved and carried unanimously that Brother John J. Graven be ordained an elder; this was after he expressed willingness to accept the office. Upon Brother Arie Pyl's expression of willingness to accept the office of elder, and after our recommendation that he be so ordained, a vote providing for such ordination was unanimous. Brother John J. Graven was then ordained by Paul M. Hanson, J. F. Curtis, and John Eggen of the office of elder. Brother Arie Pyl was ordained an elder by J. F. Curtis, Paul M. Hanson, and John Eggen.

Election of Branch Officers

A motion was unanimously supported that Elder John J. Graven be president of the branch. Sister Nellie Pyl was unanimously chosen secretary; Brother Yan Vlasblom, treasurer; and Brother Arie Pyl, chorister.

The branch was named the Rotterdam Branch by proper vote.

The election of officers was for one year. The chairman stated that the annual election of officers would take place the first Monday in January. The necessity of a branch record was pointed out; also a notebook for branch minutes. The financial clerk would also serve, for the present, as solicitor for tithing.

After discussion it was decided by vote that the branch would hold its meetings in the home of Brother Arie Pyl until conditions would make advisable moving into a hall.

Organization of Sunday School

Unanimous action was taken towards having a Sunday school organized. Brother Yan Vlasblom was elected superintendent. Sister Johanna Wilhelmina Graven was chosen secretary. It was decided that the name should be the Rotterdam Sunday School of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Other Business

Provision was made for a collection to be taken at one of be held on Wednesday nights.

Provision was made for a collection to be taken on one of the meetings on Sunday, with a view to meeting branch expenses.

A number of observations were made by J. F. Curtis and Paul M. Hanson relating to branch work. Benediction was by Brother John J. Graven.

J. F. CURTIS and PAUL M. HANSON.

O. J. Hawn writes that he is having splendid interest in Indianapolis, Indiana, and expects to baptize five on Sunday, April 13. He is well and happy in his work.

Former Member of Utah Church Expresses Herself on Word of Wisdom

AUBURN, NEW YORK, February 30.—At one time I was a Mormon, but for some time now have been investigating the claims of the Reorganized Church with a view to uniting with it. But as I am moving around from place to place at present, am waiting until I can settle near some branch.

I read the HERALD and Autumn Leaves sent me by a friend.

Word of Wisdom

When in the Mormon Church I heard very little about the Word of Wisdom, except that they (ourselves included) were very particular about the use of tea, coffee, and tobacco. Since coming in contact with the Reorganized Church I do not find them very particular, even about those things.

I had an experience some time ago that might prove of interest to Latter Day Saints in general. I have a friend who moved from the North to the extreme South. They have not been there very long, but long enough to become victims of the dreaded malaria. They were an exceptionally healthy family, and rather well to do before going South, but they have had reverses and are unable to leave.

Nature-Cure Doctor

I visited a nature-cure doctor and asked him if there was anything they could do except take quinine until they were "batty" as one of the boys declare they are doing.

The doctor said, "If they will live in harmony with their climate they will not need quinine, and they will not be ill." I plainly showed my surprise and the doctor explained that if they would eat the foods that Mother Nature produced in that climate, and in their season, they would have all the elements needed in the blood to combat and overcome supposedly climatic diseases. "But," I protested, "they do not grow anything in that part of Florida that is really fit for food."

"What makes you think that?"

"Because I lived there six years and I know!"

"Very well," said the doctor, "if you lived there six years you must certainly know something about it." Then he produced a tablet and pencil.

"This is January," he continued. "You tell me what the climate produced for this particular month, without resorting to canned, dried or preserved foods of any kind, or foods shipped in from any other part of the country."

I did so, and he continued down through the entire year and I was surprised how many things I could name, and yet I was not willing to admit that I was wrong. When he spoke of the long melon season I said, "But they eat melons and such things as dessert."

"Of course," agreed the doctor, "and that is where they make their mistake. They should eat them as foods, understanding that each season produces exactly the foods containing the elements needed for the body at that particular season."

Then he went on to explain at great length that if the Eskimos were fed South American foods, or the South American the fish and oil of the north, what the climate would do to them. He also touched on the high cost of living, claiming that it is the out-of-season foods to a large extent that cause living expenses to be so high, and ended by saying that it is principally the things people eat that makes the world full of sickness and suffering to-day.

He paid his respects to "bootleg" and tea and coffee and meat, declaring that meat is a deadly poison in a hot climate or hot weather; and was particularly emphatic about whole wheat flour being the staff of life, declaring some one was right when he said "white flour was the staff of death."

I was amazed at his ideas, following so closely the Word of Wisdom, just as it is written, without anyone's private interpretation. I inadvertently asked the doctor if he was a Latter Day Saint. He held his hands up in apparent horror, and asked what in the world gave me such an idea.

Length of Life

Another thing of interest the doctor said, was, that science is rapidly demonstrating the truth of the statement that man's life should be a hundred and twenty years; by right living there would be no premature deaths, as well as no sickness and suffering.

To me there is something very significant in this doctor's theory, ninety-one years after God revealed the Word of Wisdom to Joseph Smith, and which evidently the man had never heard. I sometimes wonder if the Latter Day Saints are going to redeem the world, or is the world going to be called upon to bring about the "temporal salvation" of Zion?

MRS. EUNICE FROYD.

Chinese and Japanese Branches in Honolulu Expanding

From a Letter to the First Presidency

HONOLULU, TERRITORY OF HAWAII, March 19.—The young Japanese brother who was recently ordained to the office of priest is taking hold of the work very nicely.

The night before last I accompanied him on his first visit to the homes of some of the Japanese members and I must say I was much pleased at the way in which he conducted himself, and the happiness expressed by the Japanese members whom we visited. One Japanese sister especially, whose husband is not yet a member of the branch expressed her joy at being thus visited. She expressed surprise over the interest that was taken in her as a member, and her husband who was present during our visit when prayer was offered seemed to be much pleased also. Since his wife became interested in our work she has exercised quite an influence over him and he has given up the habit of drinking so that her home is now a happy one.

I expect in the future two or three more Japanese will be baptized.

Last Saturday afternoon three persons were baptized, one young man and a boy, both Chinese, and a young girl, part Chinese. They will become members of the Chinese Branch. These were baptized by Brother Foo.

On Sunday afternoon, three Japanese men, one Japanese woman, and one part German girl were baptized by the writer. The Japanese become members of the Japanese Branch, and the little girl who is a member of the Waikiki Local Department of Recreation and Expression becomes a member of the Honolulu main branch.

We feel encouraged, and you will note that our Chinese and Japanese branches are building up and I trust on a sound basis.

G. J. WALLER.

Brother Fred Harwood writes that his parents, William and Esther Harwood, were living in Soldiers Grove, Wisconsin, at the time Brother Leonard Houghton opened up the gospel in that place in 1895, and that their home was always open to him and other missionaries who came that way. It is always interesting to hear of the assistance given to our missionaries by those friendly to the gospel. In this way the trials which often come to those on the frontier are made easier.

New Zealanders Prefer Outdoor Meetings

From a Letter to the First Presidency

AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND.—It is pleasing to be able to state that the work is steadily growing in Auckland and in the other part of the north island where we are represented by Elder Loving.

New Zealand is said to be the most English of the British dominions. I noticed Brother Williams's report of conditions in England and though this is not quite so bad as that, yet we have found it very hard to get people to hear indoor preaching. The Key Street crowd is practically an open-air audience, and probably not one in ten goes to church. The reason why, they say, is that they would be compelled to sit quiet and be talked "at" without chances to interrupt or put in their comments. They relish the privilege accorded them at the street meeting of firing back if they do not agree. At times this causes great confusion and is very trying on one's nerves, but it certainly is an educational method.

I am surprised at the number of friends I have who seek to eulogize me on every conceivable occasion. This may not "cut much ice" so far as the concrete aspect of the work is concerned, but it is better than a bad name or a dislike towards one.

Recent Conversion

Our most recent convert is a fine woman of Spanish extraction. She is a nurse and has had wide experience also as a missionary. In reading the Book of Mormon and in answer to prayer she received evidence which caused her to come into the church. All the Saints already love her, and where any are sick she is there and says, "I only want to be of use." This shows that the signs still follow the preaching of the gospel.

One thing that seems strange is that nearly all our adult baptisms are of people from over the seas; Scotch and English, and very few native born New Zealanders. Since I came here, two Scotch, four English, and two New Zealanders have joined, one of the New Zealanders being a little girl of a church family.

Educational Classes

I have two educational classes meeting at different points on different evenings, numbering about twelve persons altogether. I desire to lay an educational foundation. The members are enthusiastic and getting on very well. Some have passed the first and second and are on the third section of the complete course.

The Sunday school still maintains a good average attendance. The branch meetings are handicapped because of lack of facilities for attracting the public. We are situated a bit out of the town and off the main highway.

I am on the eve of leaving Auckland for the Australian Mission conference in Sydney in the month of April.

I am as ever yours for the triumph of the kingdom of God.

JOHN H. N. JONES.

Timely Meeting Encourages Saints

SANDPOINT, IDAHO, March 27.—The Saints here had an encouraging time Monday and Tuesday, March 24 and 25. On Monday a wire from Brother Daniel Macgregor stated he would be in Sandpoint that night. All the Saints were notified, also the friends who would be interested, and the result was a full house to listen to his wonderful sermon. The subject was, "Problems; national, religious, and individual."

Tuesday morning a friend who lives about twelve miles from town and who had been to the meeting on Monday night called to ask if Brother Macgregor would baptize her. This he gladly consented to do, so the family drove into town, and the ordinance was performed in the waters of beautiful Lake Pend d'Oeille. Returning to the house, Brother Macgregor, assisted by Brother Wilbur Yates and Oliver Shirk, confirmed Sister Morelle a member of the church.

Brother Macgregor officiated about a year ago at a wedding of two young people here, Brother and Sister Harold Morelle, in the same room where Sister Morelle was confirmed at this visit.

Brother Macgregor left on the 10.25 train, and Sister Morelle went to her home. Both were happy, knowing that they had complied with God's command.

Those remaining at home are greatly encouraged over seeing result of just this one meeting, for the Saints had at times become discouraged. Dear Saints, God comes to the rescue of the discouraged ones at times like this when they put their trust in him.

MRS. R. P. BRONSON.

Interest Aroused in Gospel by Meetings in Dallas, Texas

From a Letter to Arthur E. McKim

DALLAS, TEXAS, March 20.—We have had some excellent meetings here since the 9th of this month, conducted by Apostle T. W. Williams. Notwithstanding the bad weather a wonderfully good interest has been manifested by both our members and our visitors. Immediately after the close of each discourse opportunity for asking questions was given which was earnestly indulged in by both members and visitors. We feel that in connection to presenting the gospel to nonmembers the Saints have been very much enlightened on many points, judging from the various questions asked and answers given.

Brother Williams has very successfully presented an old story, the gospel story, in his unique way, which to many of us is a sort of new way. As previously reported, the local papers seem tolerant toward us, and we feel and hope much good for our cause will result from the meetings being held. The branch officers are contemplating putting on a more extensive gospel campaign later on when the weather is not so unsettled.

W. P. CREVESTON.

Open Up Work in Oil Fields

SHIDLER, OKLAHOMA, April 12.—We are opening up the church work in the oil fields of Oklahoma at the above-named place. It is wonderful to see so many people living in their houses scattered about among the oil derricks. Thousands of such homes, each containing working men and their families, afford a wonderful opportunity for missionary work.

We opened up a mission hall in the principal town and are holding meetings nightly. Each afternoon we preach on the streets and invite people to our hall. We have some advertising posted in prominent places. Brother C. J. Hunt, who has been with me throughout this week, has been a fine help and is par excellence at preaching on the street. We have a group of Saints not far from Shidler on the north and another on the west where I live with my family.

If any readers of the HERALD or Ensign live in these oil fields or have friends or relatives here, will you please communicate with me so we can get in touch with them while our meetings continue. We wish to establish a Sunday school here.

A. H. CHRISTENSEN.

MISCELLANEOUS

Notice of Appointment

Notice is hereby given of the appointment of Elder P. L. Weegar as president of the New York District to succeed Elder Arthur Allen resigned. Appointment is made subject to the ratification of the district conference.
April 11, 1924.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY.

One-Day Meetings

At Rock Island, Illinois, April 20. There will be an all-day, union, tri-city meeting at the church on the corner of Tenth and Eighteenth. All Saints and friends who can are invited to come. Bring basket lunch and come prepared to spend the day. Watch for notice regarding all-day meetings in other of the Tri-City branches later. E. R. Davis, president.

Conference Notices

Western Maine, at Vinal Haven, May 17 and 18. Business session begins at 2.30 p. m., Saturday. This is the annual business conference. Have all reports to the secretary by May 10. Mrs. Louise J. Eaton, secretary.

Reunion Notices

Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 9 to 24. There are indications of a great reunion, and already applications are in the hands of Robert Miller, 3355 West Eighty-sixth Street, Cleveland, Ohio, for accommodations. J. A. Jaques will have charge of the recreational work, and others representing the best talent of the church will minister in moral, intellectual, and spiritual affairs. Good, well-cooked food will be served cafeteria style at reasonable prices. James E. Bishop, secretary-treasurer.

North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29. Sykeston is on the Turtle Lake Branch of the Northern Pacific. Those coming on the Great Northern, change at New Rockford to the Northern Pacific. Local Soo trains going west make connection with Northern Pacific at Carrington for Sykeston. Those coming from the west on Soo will be met at Cathay, six miles north of Sykeston, by auto. Please notify M. Rasmussen, Sykeston. Any other information required, write M. Rasmussen. J. W. Darling, secretary, Thorne, North Dakota.

Addresses

Oscar Case, South 717 Ferrall Street, Spokane, Washington.
Ward L. Christy, 130 Saint Lawrence Avenue, Beloit, Wisconsin.

Conference Minutes

SOUTHERN OHIO.—At Columbus, Ohio, First Branch, March 8 and 9. Conference was presided over by G. T. Griffiths, assisted by the district presidency. Sarah E. Batchelder acted as clerk. Reports were read from the district president, vice president, and missionary supervisor. Statistical reports were read from all the branches but one. Representatives were in attendance from all the branches except one. The report of the Bishop's agent showed $7,640 collected in tithes and offerings. A resolution was passed petitioning the joint council to send at least two men who could devote their entire time to the work of the district. Reports from the heads of all departments showed they had been active. Officers elected for the following year: Floyd Rockwell, Dayton, Ohio, to serve as district president until such time as the appointive powers should appoint a high priest to preside over the district; G. H. Kirkendall, Union Furnace, vice president; Sarah E. Batchelder, The Plains, secretary; Mabel Bailey, Middletown, chorister; J. B. Williams, Columbus, Bishop's agent and district treasurer; Margery Williams, Ironton, superintendent of Sunday School; Edna Zishong, Columbus, superintendent of Department of Women; and Bernard Holland, South Point, superintendent of Department of Recreation and Expression. Sunday's program was: Young people's prayer meeting at 8 a. m.; Sunday school at 9 o'clock in charge of the district superintendent; sacramental service at 10.30. Both prayer services were spiritual and all were blessed. Time and place of next conference left to district officers. Sarah E. Batchelder, secretary.

ALABAMA.—At Flat Rock, March 14. The district president was chosen to preside, with G. W. Miniard, secretary, and B. E. Barlow, chorister. David Clark and Eli Diamond were ushers. A goodly number of the priesthood reported and seemed to have a great desire to push out and

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.
Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
The Dawn of Easter .....	361
Individual and Community Health .....	361
Special Features of the Young People's Convention .....	362
An Easter Message (Poem) .....	362
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Seeing God, by Paul M. Hanson .....	364
The Power of Right Thinking, by C. W. Clark .....	365
Identification of Man, by Arthur Ralph Weston .....	367
With the Apostles in Egypt and Palestine, by J. F. Curtis .....	369
CHURCH NEWS .....	371
LETTERS .....	380
J. F. Curtis and Paul M. Hanson—Mrs. Eunice Froyd—G. J. Waller—John H. N. Jones—Mrs. R. P. Bronson—W. P. Creveston—A. H. Christensen.
MISCELLANEOUS .....	383
RADIO .....	384

do all they can to spread the gospel. Only one branch of the district reported and that was Pleasant Hill. Tent committee reported a total of $110.34. The old tent committee reported on hand $1.54. Officers chosen were: H. H. Wiggins, president; W. J. Williamson and J. R. Harper, counselors; G. W. Miniard, secretary-treasurer; and B. E. Barlow, chorister. The preaching was by W. J. Williamson, H. H. Wiggins, and J. W. Baldwin. Conference adjourned to meet at the call of the presidency.

INDEPENDENCE

(Continued from page 380.)

from various books on history and archæology, especially the five-volume set of Native Races, by Bancroft.

Elder Emery Downey Dies

Elder Emery Downey, a member of the First Quorum of Elders in Independence, Missouri, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mae Ek, April 5, 1924. He has been a member of the church for more than sixty years and was one of the generation born about the time of the first organization of the church, his birth date being November 10, 1830. Had he lived until November he would have been ninety-four years of age. In his early years he was connected with the Strangite movement, but was dissatisfied and joined the Reorganization in 1863, almost the very beginning. He was baptized in Pewaukee, Wisconsin, by Wesley B. Horton, and was ordained priest within a month, and an elder in 1899. Brother Downey was instrumental in raising up and establishing the branch at Inman, Nebraska. He has lived in Independence for about fifteen years, being a constant attendant at church services and faithful to his duties. His wife died about two years ago. His children are: Charles, of O'Neil, Nebraska; Lewis, of Page, Nebraska; and Mrs. Ek, of Independence. Further items will appear in the obituary columns.

Loud Speaker for Holden Home

The radio basket, which made its round in Group 24, returned to its starting point with $12.50 after a month of wandering. This money is to be used to help purchase a loud speaker for the radio at the Holden Home. The basket has again started on its mission and this time the money obtained will be applied on local expenses of the Department of Women. The basket is passed from house to house; each person receiving it puts in something to sell and takes out something he desires, paying an appropriate amount for same. The basket is then passed on.

Radio Flashes

Grand Forks, North Dakota.—It is with pleasure that we receive your broadcasting. We receive you plain and distinct and enjoy your programs often. While we enjoy jazz orchestra music sometimes, I think the nicest part of the programs are the lectures and the more classical numbers. I think that your efforts have made many a pleasure for the public who listen in to you, and hope that you will continue putting your good things in the air.

We have learned to know the voice of the announcer, and even though your station call letters, K F F V, are not announced, we feel that we know you, recognizing you from your voice; nevertheless, many people who have not had the opportunity of hearing you as often as I have, strain their ears and listen to know what station they are enjoying. It is very important that the call letters and city be announced clearly and distinctly after each number. I think the idea of announcing K F F V, Lamoni, Iowa, after each number when artists are rendering (a) and (b) numbers, gives the man that has just found you the desired information and takes away a suspense, making it possible for him to enjoy your high-class numbers.

I want you to feel that we are with you, and I also want your artists to know we appreciate their efforts.—S. H. Ashley.

Wesleyville, Pennsylvania.—I wish to thank you for putting me on the mailing list of your K F I X programs. I am receiving them regularly. At least I have had two in succession, and I make use of them, for I tune in for you when you are on and so far have not found any variation in the spot you come in at. Last Thursday's program (April 3) I thought very good, and the reception was very loud and clear, even though the weather was rather rainy here. I use a three-bulb UV199 set, single circuit and in six mos. My list is 167 different stations in all parts of the United States and Canada, Cuba, and Porto Rico. It is getting difficult to strike anything near, but there are about twenty on my list which I listen in to repeatedly. Again thanking you for your interest, and wishing your church and station the best of luck.—W. L. Glenn.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, APRIL 20, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Easter Program. Selections from the oratorio, "Messiah," by Handel.

Pipe Organ: "The pastoral symphony."

By Robert Miller.

Hymn.

Prayer.

Chorus: "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."
Contralto Solo: "He was despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief."

Sung by Miss Margaret Gard.

Chorus: "Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows! He was wounded for our transgressions; He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him."

Soprano Solo: "I know that my Redeemer liveth and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God. For now is Christ risen from the dead, the first fruits of them that slept."

Sung by Mrs. Blanche Allen Needham.

Chorus: "Hallelujah; for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. The kingdom of this world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever. King of kings, and Lord of lords. Hallelujah!"

Sermon by Apostle D. T. Williams.

Hymn.

SUNDAY, APRIL 20, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.

Prayer.

Pipe organ concert by Mr. Robert Miller, assisted by Mrs. Blanche Allen Needham, soprano, of Toronto, Ontario, who will sing, "Christ is risen," by Broom, and "Hear my prayer, O God!" arranged by Whiting from Beethoven's sonata, "Pathetique."

Sermon by Bishop Charles E. Irwin.

Hymn.

TUESDAY, APRIL 22, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Program arranged by Miss Bernice Griffith

Piano Solo: "Flugeln des Gesanges," Mendelssohn, a transcription from Liszt.

By Miss Emma Meggers.

Male Quartet: "When you and I were young, Maggie," Butterfield.

Messrs. R. W. Cato, J. G. Fairbanks, D. O. Cato, F. N. Goode.

Soprano Solo:

(a) "Villanelle" (The Swallow), Del Aqua.

(b) "Springs a lovable ladye."

Sung by Miss Griffith.

Violin Solo:

(a) "Meditation" from Thais, Massenet.

(b) "Minuet," Op. 14, No. 1, Paderewski.

By Mr. Gomer Cool.

Talk: "Ethical habit."

By Alfred White, of the faculty of Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Contralto Solo:

(a) "I passed by your window," May Brahe.

(b) "I love a little cottage," O'Hara.

Sung by Mrs. Dorcas Bauer.

Violin obbligato by Mr. Cool.

Soprano and Tenor Duet: "Sing, sing, birds on the wing," Nutting.

Sung by Miss Griffith and Mr. Fairbanks.

Soprano Solo:

(a) "Little brown baby of mine," Robison.

(b) "The world is waiting for the sunrise," Seitz.

Sung by Miss Griffith.

Male Quartet: "When I dream of old Erin," Leo Friedman.

THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

"The caress," from "Dream Pictures," Lemont.

Played by the L. D. S. Orchestra.

"Wedding of the winds waltzes," Hall.

By the Orchestra.

Reading: "The soul of the violin."

By Miss Blanche Warren.

Baritone Solo: Selected.

Sung by Mr. LeRoy Smith.

Health Talk: Staff Physician, Independence Sanitarium.

"Only a smile," Zameenik.

By the Orchestra.

Baritone Solo: Selected.

Sung by Mr. Smith.

"Angel's serenade," Braga.

"Stephanie Gavotte," Czibulka.

By the Orchestra.

K F F V

Broadcast from the Graceland College Radio Studio, Lamoni, Iowa. Wave length, three hundred and sixty meters.

SUNDAY, APRIL 20, 1924

6.30 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Sacred songs by Women's Quartet:

Miss Ailene Brackenbury, first soprano.

Miss Mabel Carlile, second soprano.

Mrs. C. E. Wight, first alto.

Mrs. J. H. Anthony, second alto.

Miss Florence Thompson, accompanist.

"Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Sung by the quartet.

Solo: Selected.

Sung by Miss Carlile.

"Nearer, my God, to Thee."

Sung by the quartet.

Sermon by Elder C. E. Wight.

"Come unto me."

Sung by the quartet.

TUESDAY, APRIL 22, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical Program.

THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Educational Program.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall none of you have save one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, April 23, 1924

Number 17

EDITORIAL

Investments Good and Bad

Always where desire to save money is present, there arises sooner or later the question of investment. The desire to save grows, and success feeds it. With inordinate desire to gain wealth there is usually strong attraction towards schemes promising large returns. Those interested in promoting stock-selling propositions make their appeal to this inordinate desire with the result that throughout the country large sums of money are "invested" in schemes which ultimately yield returns only to the promoters, leaving the investor nothing but worthless stock certificates to show for his investment. It is safe to say that the Saints have in recent years invested in such schemes an amount of money considerably larger than what will be required to build our auditorium chamber. And this, too, despite the admonition against speculation.

The question of money investment is one to which Saints have especial need to give careful attention, for there are specific lines along which we have been directed by inspiration to move in the way of spending money, and any moves in other directions should be most carefully and prayerfully considered. Our investments should run parallel to or augment those indicated in the instructions mentioned.

When Zion is had in view, the question of investments has even greater importance, for the proper view of stewardships compels us to take into consideration group as well as personal interests. It is therefore to be regretted that as a factor in the development of Zion this question of investment of money in enterprises in the regions round about has not had more careful attention so that the Saints could be advised safely and wisely. Our failure in the past in this direction should be speedily removed by a thorough survey and organization which will safeguard our interests.

In a general way there are observations by way of counsel on investments which can be made in the way of warning. From a publication of the United States Treasury Department the following "danger signs of bad investments" are enumerated and they are commended to the consideration of the Saints:

Every investor should be "on guard." This applies particularly to the small investor.

1. Mining stock. The best looking mine in the world may prove a "white elephant." Mining is a very expensive undertaking and the risks are unusually great. There is a saying that "a mine is a hole where fools dump their money."

There are many good mining investments, of course, but this branch of the investment market is generally not for those who work for and depend upon a salary.

2. Oil stock. Drilling for oil is costly. The hazards are great. Oil investments are speculative and in a class with mining investments.

3. In the wake of every important discovery or invention there comes a host of schemes—"airplanes," "radio," "wireless." The promoters of these may have only the best of intentions, but frequently their enthusiasm is about all they have to sell.

4. Investment in "real estate" situated in some distant place is sometimes as dangerous as mining stock. People have been known to buy swamps advertised as "seashore frontage." Know what you are buying before you invest.

5. "Land development" schemes frequently do not pan out. At best it is a long time before any money comes in from sales. Investment in "new companies" that are going to "sell by mail" should be generally avoided.

6. Patent rights and processes distribution. It is rarely the patentee who makes the money.

7. "New manufacturing methods" should always be closely checked and investigated.

8. An investment requiring a quick decision is often a fake. If there isn't sufficient time to "sleep over it," something is probably wrong.

9. "Special inducements" in cash discounts or stock bonuses urging you to be one of the first to invest are suspicious symptoms.

10. "Tips" alleged to land you "on the ground floor" are rarely to be taken. Those who are "on the ground floor" will monopolize the opportunity.

11. "Playing the stock market on margin" and all other forms of speculation are decidedly not for the small investor. Beware of the "bucket shop." If you buy stocks outright for investment do so through a member of a legitimate exchange.

12. Stock in "mail order companies" being organized with promises based on what others have done rarely turn out well.

The foregoing are in the way of don'ts. We wish we could here present some affirmative suggestions in the way of safe investments—ones which may be depended upon to promote Zionie affairs towards better conditions. Maybe some day we can.

F. M. S.

Program of Second International Young People's Convention

JUNE 5 TO 15, 1924

Thursday, June 5

Opening Day

- 8.00 to 10.00 A. M. Registration. Enrollment Fee. The arrangement made last year of charging a one-dollar fee for each person was found very satisfactory, and it has been decided to follow the same plan this year. The payment of this fee entitles the visitor to a specially prepared convention notebook, as well as admission to all courses, lectures, and entertainments of the convention.
- 10.00 Opening Exercises.
Addresses of Welcome.
Opening Address: Judge Hubert Utterback, of Des Moines, Iowa.
- 12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.
1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Short meeting of all classes.
3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Organization of Recreation.
7.30 P. M. The oratorio, "Elijah"—Graceland-Lamoni Choral Society.

Friday, June 6

- 7.30 to 8.45 A. M. Prayer and Social Service.
9.00 to 9.50 A. M. First Period Classes.
10.00 to 10.50 A. M. Second Period Classes.
11.00 to 11.50 A. M. Third Period Classes.
10.50 to 12.00 A. M. The Junior Church—Roy Cheville and Blanche Edwards, in charge.
- 12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.
1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Convention Forum: Topic, "The junior church—Why? and What for?"—Roy Cheville, Leader.
(This period will be reserved daily for the discussion of vital problems of our church work. While some leader will be placed in charge each day, it is expected that the responsibility for the discussions of this hour shall be shared by all alike. It is hoped that each minute of this period will be inspirational and helpful to all church workers.)
- 3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Recreation and Recreational Leadership.
7.30 P. M. Reception to visitors by young people of Lamoni.

Saturday, June 7

- 7.30 to 8.45 A. M. Prayer and Social Service.
9.00 to 9.50 A. M. First Period Classes.
10.00 to 10.50 A. M. Second Period Classes.
11.00 to 11.50 A. M. Third Period Classes.
10.50 to 12.00 A. M. The Junior Church.
12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.
1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Convention Forum: Topic, "Why the Department of Recreation and Expression?" F. M. McDowell, Leader.
- 3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Recreation and Recreational Leadership.
7.30 P. M. Play—"The passing of the third floor back," by the College Players.

Sunday, June 8

- 9.00 A. M. Institute Session—Lecture on Religious Education—Roy Cheville.
11.00 A. M. Sermon—Bishop B. R. McGuire.
3.00 P. M. Prayer and Social Service—Theme: "What is the church giving me?"
7.30 P. M. Community Singing and Special Music.
8.00 P. M. International Service.
Special Program.
Address by President Frederick M. Smith.

Monday, June 9

- 7.30 to 8.45 A. M. Prayer and Social Service.
9.00 to 9.50 A. M. First Period Classes.
10.00 to 10.50 A. M. Second Period Classes.
11.00 to 11.50 A. M. Third Period Classes.
10.50 to 12.00 A. M. The Junior Church.
12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.
1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Convention Forum—Topic: (To be assigned).
3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Recreation and Recreational Leadership.
7.30 P. M. Community Singing and Special Music.
8.00 P. M. Sermon: "The call of the church to youth"—Evangelist J. F. Martin.

Tuesday, June 10

- 7.30 to 8.45 A. M. Prayer and Social Service.
9.00 to 9.50 A. M. First Period Classes.
10.00 to 10.50 A. M. Second Period Classes.
11.00 to 11.50 A. M. Third Period Classes.
10.50 to 12.00 A. M. The Junior Church.
12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.
1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Convention Forum—Topic: "Scouting in theory and practice," Eugene E. Closson, Leader.
3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Recreation and Recreational Leadership.
7.30 P. M. Special Music.
8.00 P. M. Sermon: "The church and the young man"—Evangelist J. F. Martin.

Wednesday, June 11

- 7.30 to 8.45 A. M. Prayer and Social Service.
9.00 to 9.50 A. M. First Period Classes.
10.00 to 10.50 A. M. Second Period Classes.
11.00 to 11.50 A. M. Third Period Classes.
10.50 to 12.00 A. M. The Junior Church.
12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.
1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Convention Forum—Topic: (To be assigned).
3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Recreation and Recreational Leadership.
7.30 P. M. Special Music.
8.00 P. M. Illustrated Lecture—"Beautiful architecture the world over," President Frederick M. Smith.

Thursday, June 12

- 7.30 to 8.45 A. M. Prayer and Social Service.
9.00 to 9.50 A. M. First Period Classes.
10.00 to 10.50 A. M. Second Period Classes.
11.00 to 11.50 A. M. Third Period Classes.
10.50 to 12.00 A. M. The Junior Church.
12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.

- 1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Convention Forum—Topic: "What the stewardship program means to me right now," Bishop Albert Carmichael, Leader.
- 3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Recreation and Recreational Leadership.
- 7.30 P. M. Special Music.
- 8.00 P. M. Sermon: "The church and the young woman"—Evangelist J. F. Martin.

Friday, June 13

- 7.30 to 8.45 A. M. Prayer and Social Service.
- 9.00 to 9.50 A. M. First Period Classes.
- 10.00 to 10.50 A. M. Second Period Classes.
- 11.00 to 11.50 A. M. Third Period Classes.
- 10.50 to 12.00 A. M. The Junior Church.
- 12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.
- 1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Convention Forum—Topic: "The Young Women's Bureau—Aims and Methods," Blanche Edwards, Leader.
- 3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Recreation and Recreational Leadership.
- 7.30 P. M. Special Music.
- 8.00 P. M. Sermon: "Youth's answer to the call of the church"—Evangelist J. F. Martin.

Saturday, June 14

- 7.30 to 8.45 A. M. Prayer and Social Service.
- 9.00 to 9.50 A. M. First Period Classes.
- 10.00 to 10.50 A. M. Second Period Classes.
- 11.00 to 11.50 A. M. Third Period Classes.
- 10.50 to 12.00 A. M. The Junior Church.
- 12.00 to 1.30 P. M. Lunch Hour.
- 1.30 to 3.00 P. M. Convention Forum—Topic: "How can we make our reunions efficient and effective?" F. Henry Edwards, Leader.
- 3.00 to 5.00 P. M. Recreation and Recreational Leadership.
- 7.30 P. M. Three one-act plays, Independence Dramatic Club.

Sunday, June 15

- 9.00 A. M. Institute Session—Lecture on Religious Education, Blanche Edwards.
- 11.00 A. M. Sermon—Elbert A. Smith.
- 3.00 P. M. Prayer and Social Service—Theme: "What am I giving the church?"
- 7.30 P. M. Special Music.
- 8.00 P. M. Sermon—Speaker to be assigned.

(This program will be subject to alterations.)

The Auditorium

The Saints everywhere cannot but be interested in the progress being made in the building of the Auditorium. Between eight and nine hundred thousand dollars were subscribed by the Saints at the time of the drive, and more than four hundred fifty thousand dollars were paid on those subscriptions. It will be remembered that delay in building was had by conference action, but last General Conference expressed approval of proceeding promptly with the erection of the building, and a "committee," largely ex officio, was appointed to decide location and approve plans. This committee has had one or two sessions and will soon hold other meetings, but all we can say here is that some progress is had. The question of site has proved a bit vexatious, for reasons which cannot wisely be set out here, but the indications are that this will not be a difficult question to decide when other factors have been determined.

Work on the plans is progressing slowly, but they cannot be fully determined or greatly expedited until the question of location has been definitely decided.

It can safely be said here that the majority of the committee is favorable to prompt action towards a good start in the work, and efforts will be made towards that end. We hope to be able soon to report more definitely on the progress of this thing of such great interest and importance to the church.

F. M. S.

The End of the Turkish Caliphate

As a result of the recent action of the Turkish Republican Government at Angora, the Mohammedan religion has been to all intents and purposes "disestablished and disendowed." This simply means that in the Republic of Turkey, as in most of the civilized states of the world, religion has been removed from any connection whatsoever with the civil government. The present situation is set forth in two articles appearing in The Palestine Weekly, a review of which we give as follows:

For years the Caliph, head of the Moslem world, has also been the temporal ruler of the Ottoman Empire. Theoretically the Caliph is elected by all Islam, and he must be of the tribe of the Quraish (the Shiah's hold he must be an actual descendant of the Prophet Mohammed himself). However, since the throne of Turkey was seized by the Caliphs some five hundred years ago, the ruling line has assumed that spiritual succession followed material succession. And the Sultan was able to secure some measure of common recognition by virtue of his being head of the most powerful independent state of

Would You Profit

1. By Bright Ideas on Children's Work.
2. By Fresh Methods for Young People.
3. By Plans Which Attract Adults.

THEN COME TO
THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

Islam, and so a visible champion of the Moslem world. The new Republic has voluntarily sacrificed the enormous prestige which the Ottoman Empire has always held in the Mohammedan world because of its ruler representing in his person the position of Caliph, Commander of the Faithful, Chief of all Believers, Pope of Islam, and bearer of the mantle of the prophet himself.

Now that Turkey is free from religious interference with affairs of state, and the Moslem world is without a Caliph who can defend his claim to the Caliphate, will there be a new head to the Mohammedan religion? and if so, who can obtain the necessary support of all the Mohammedans to hold this high office?

Quite naturally each important Moslem country has a favorite candidate for the office. At present there are eight such candidates with claims to the right of leadership: the two deposed Caliphs Vahid-ed-Din and Abdel Majid, the Emir of Afghanistan, the King of Egypt, the Grand Senussi of Tripolitania, the Bey of Tunis, the Sultan of Morocco, and King Hussein of the Hejaz.

It is interesting to note the possibilities of success of these respective candidates. Ex-Caliph Vahid-ed-Din announced when he was banished from Turkey that he had not given up his claims to the Caliphate. But only a short time ago he withdrew his claims in favor of King Hussein. This may eliminate him from the contest.

Ex-Caliph Abdel Majid, the recently deposed sultan, has not given up his claims and continues to consider himself Caliph until the Moslem world as a whole dispossesses him of his title. However, he seems to lack favor, with the possible exception of Egypt. It is suggested he might assume the leadership of the Mohammedan followers in that country, while the king of Egypt remained the lay ruler. The difficulty here arises from the fact that Great Britain would hardly look with favor upon assisting Egypt to become the leading Moslem power of the world.

The King of Egypt himself is a man of modern conceptions and habits, and could hardly be associated with the Caliphate. This practically removes him from consideration as an active candidate for religious leadership.

The writer of one of the articles in review says regarding the candidacy of the Grand Senussi of Tripolitania:

There is no doubt that had the Senussi some fifty million more vassals than he has now, and were Haj Idris to live five hundred years longer than he might normally be expected to live, his candidature to the Caliphate might be considered more seriously than it is now.

The Bey of Tunis and the Sultan of Morocco are

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

Our Heritage: What Shall We Do With It?

Sermon by President Frederick M. Smith at the special anniversary program at the Stone Church, Independence, Missouri, April 6, 1924.

Naturally on an occasion of this kind we are prone to take a retrospect and to contrast present conditions with what were. There is a strong tendency to stand with our eyes on the past and perhaps enlarge upon the happenings of yesterday and to idealize conditions that existed then. It arises, of course, from a proneness of human nature to forget the troublesome things of the past, and there stands out in memory those things which produce pleasure, and as the mental picture grows dimmer these high lights become more outstanding.

In sitting here wondering whether we as a people would accomplish our purposes I suddenly recalled the figures of the membership of the church at the time they built Kirtland Temple—800. And then I was suddenly confronted with the fact that there are fifty per cent more people in this building right now than were in the church at the time the Kirtland Temple was built. So I am encouraged that perhaps we can accomplish something worth while if we have sufficient unity to do it.

I notice from the study of the program that the almost in the same situation. If Tunis and Morocco were under British instead of French jurisdiction, there is not the slightest doubt that these two potentates would never have been mentioned in connection with the Caliphate.

Seventy million Moslems in India will probably favor the Emir of Afghanistan over other candidates, and this number, out of two hundred and forty millions, is naturally a potent factor in deciding an issue affecting the Moslem world. However, here again Great Britain will probably interfere.

The eighth and last candidate, King Hussein of Hejaz, has already been proclaimed Caliph by the Moslems of the Hejaz, Mesopotamia, Transjordan, and Palestine. He is a direct descendant of the family of the prophet, which gives his candidacy an added glamor. What success he may have in obtaining the support of the rest of the Moslem world remains to be seen. That he is the most likely of all the candidates to obtain such support is probable. But the Moslem world is large, and agreement upon a single Caliph will be a difficult matter to settle.

subject which has been assigned to me is, "The foundation our fathers laid. How shall we build on it?" My thoughts have been running along a subject slightly different and yet so closely akin that perhaps I can well substitute the one for the other. I desire to discuss perhaps this subject, "Our heritage: what shall we do with it?" And this may simply be another way of stating what the subject already assigned me has stated.

Our Rich Heritage

Of course it would be a difficult task to treat adequately either the work in actual building or the work of proselytizing or the work of developing the philosophy of the church of the men who laid the foundation or who have given to us our heritage. So, naturally, I cannot be expected to do more than to touch upon a few of the outstanding things that indicate the heritage, rich heritage, which has been handed to us by our fathers. I say rich heritage because I do appreciate what has been done by those who have preceded us. And when I realize the conditions under which they worked and when I realize the forces from without they have had to confront, and when I realize, as I know from keen personal experiences, the forces working in opposition that they had to meet within the organization itself, I do praise God for the stalwarts of the past and glory in the heritage that they have given to us; and yet glorying in that heritage I have not for one moment closed my eyes to the possibility of us failing to build on the foundation which they have laid, for I sometimes wonder if we as a people are not a little bit overly inclined to emphasize incidentals and lose sight of the main structure it is our job to erect. So let us briefly then touch upon a few of the things that have been handed to us by our fathers in the way of an ecclesiastical or religious heritage.

Strong Belief in God

First and primarily, I would put that they have handed to us a heritage of which we should be proud, and that is a strong belief in God. I do not mean by that to say that they have simply handed to us what perhaps we would have developed even if we were left alone, a belief in some over-ruling power greater than ours that we call God or nature or some other name, but I mean that they gave to us a belief in God as the great directing force of the universe who is interested in man and in his development. And that makes a different idea of God than that which is held by so many people.

Mission of Jesus Christ

As a strong concomitant of this idea of God, this idea of a being all-powerful, all-wise, who is interested in the welfare of man, they have given to us another equally important belief or heritage, and that is a belief in Jesus the Christ as the divine Son of God, sent here in fulfillment of God's purposes for the purpose of crystallizing the great philosophy which should actuate man, which should appeal to his reason, and which should satisfy that soul hungering which is indicated in the words of the scripture that, God made man to haply feel after God that he might find him.

Restoration of Divine Authority

And, too, there runs another strong complement to this dual belief and that is they have handed to us a heritage in the way of a belief in the restoration of divine authority. I wish that we could in all its beauty fully appreciate what that means, the restoration of divine authority. Everywhere you go, I do not care into what corner of the world your investigation might carry you, you will find a universal belief in some form of religion and you will find everywhere some form of religious ceremony, but too often that which you find in the way of an organization which we call a church is simply man-made. And that has given rise in many quarters to a theory, that of the evolution of religion, which would make religion and the church particularly a man-made institution. But our fathers have handed to us the heritage of the belief that God was responsible for the organization of his church and that we are indulging in our religious proclivities in our adherence to ceremony and form in harmony with his will, and therefore that means that we hold out to the church that our religion is not man-made, that our church is not man-formed, but that we are actuating and functioning because God has willed it so and in harmony with his purposes and his will.

Divine Revelation

Closely associated with this heritage is another belief which has brought comfort to us in the past, which is bringing comfort to us in the present, and without doubt will still remain as a comforting thought in the midst of depression and discouragement to those who will come after us, that is, that God has not left us to wander alone; God has not left us to guess as to what his will is; God has not left us to surmise what he would have us do, but has kept in contact with us and kept open the channels through which we can communicate with him, and he is with us and therefore expresses to us his will concerning us. I have in these words expressed our heritage or the heritage which has come to us in the way of a belief in divine revelation. It is a matter of felicitation for us or should be, it is a matter of congratulation or should be that these rich heritages have come to us untarnished and still able to function in a way that will bring salvation to us and glory to God.

"The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man"

With these beliefs, as an additional heritage which has come to us from our fathers, there is the belief that man is a fellow creature of God. With us that is almost platitudinous to say it in that form, and yet that has not been realized in the religious world; and, I fear me, there has been a tendency in our own ranks to forget that, and I fear me that perhaps one of the dangers that confront us—I mean by that one of the handicaps that will prevent us building on the foundation our fathers laid, or enhancing and enlarging the heritage given us that we will pass on to our posterity—is that we forget that man is also a fellow creature of God. I mean this in the larger sense. I know we give lip service and credence to it, saying we believe it, and from our lips will reel the catch phrase, "The fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man," but to make that a vital, dynamic principle in our lives demands that we take it up and pass it on as a heritage, untarnished, to those that come after us. And this is a task that is not easy. It is one that there is danger of us forgetting. We ought to thank God that so far as our fathers are concerned the foundation was well laid in this. There has come to us also a rich heritage and the problem is put to us as to what we will do with it.

Social Bearing of Religion

A logical sequence of this is to speak of another heritage that has come to us as a people as a result of the teachings and work of our fathers, and that is a belief that religion has a significance in actual everyday affairs, that it is not a thing which is set apart for special observation and specific times and then to be forgotten, a heritage, a belief that religion is dynamic or should be throughout man's whole conscious existence. I might even go further than that, for right here we stop at the threshold of the door opening into a tremendous field for investigation that is made possible by that body of students who have examined the mind when we are in a state of unconsciousness, for is it not possible that God has intended that we should eventually realize that not only should our religion function in daily operations while we are conscious but while we are unconscious as well? What are dreams to Latter Day Saints? How can our dreams be made religious, or are they a part of our religion? It is not my tendency to go into the realm of mysticism, but to those who do love to explore fields of this character I suggest there is a most interesting field for investigation. Let me repeat what I have said, what I believe to be one of the largest heritages which have come to us as a result of the teachings and work of our fathers and one of the most important which stands in the foundation which they laid on which they expect us to build, is the belief that God's religion, God's church, the religion of Jesus the Christ has a social bearing and must be so interpreted to the sons of men. A little analogy that I wish to suggest to those who might be better able to carry it to its finality than I may be is this: In the past in other churches as well as our own there has been a strong inclination for us to preach religion and the principles of religion as affecting the life beyond, and that so far as religion functioning here is concerned it simply has to do with the building or preparation of that which will affect our lives in the beyond or beyond the grave. In other words our religion is that particular activity of our lives which has a bearing on the future heaven or celestial glory. I will grant that. Not for a moment do I desire to take away from individuals the great spiritual support and the content that comes from the belief in the beyond, for this is one of the greatest things in the way of a contribution that the Christian religion has made, removing the awful fear of death in the hearts of men and implanting the firm conviction that their loved ones shall live and we shall see them again. But there has been a tendency because of the importance of this aspect of religion to envisage it alone and separate it from other principles which we must recognize. If it be true that we believe and if our fathers believed that religion has a social bearing, therefore it means that religion must be constantly tending towards better social conditions and better social conditions not in the beyond but here and now. Hence people, our people, to whom have come the rich heritage of the work and belief and teachings of our fathers must look forward to a social heaven as well as an ecclesiastical heaven. Where is it, and what is it? And if our activities ceremonially, and if our adherence to the principles of the gospel in an eschatological way have a bearing on the heaven which lies beyond, does it not also run as a direct parallel that our social activities have a direct bearing on the heaven we will eventually have in a social way? I think so.

The Place of Evolution

And right here let me drop a crumb for the satisfaction of those who believe in evolution, and for those who do not believe in evolution let me give you something to think about. Will our social heaven come spontaneously and all the cities of Zion drop down from heaven fully prepared as did Minerva, or will there be a gradual growth until we will have what we are pleased to term Zion? In other words, whether we like it or not, we as a people are going to evolve into a better condition and that means evolution.

Now for the sake of those who might be disturbed because I have used the word evolution, let me say that Charles Darwin has not convinced me yet that I sprang from a monkey, as much as I might look like one or however much more nearly I act like one occasionally, but let me repeat what I have said before, that I am a firm believer in evolution, that things exist to-day because things existed yesterday under certain conditions, and just so surely as there are certain forces at work to-day, just so surely they will determine what will exist to-morrow. I believe in it strongly enough that I have become convinced that a people can become so socially conscious that they can determine what shall be their condition in the future. And if there is anything in our belief it means just that, that Latter Day Saints must control the forces that are making the conditions of to-morrow. That is a form of evolution that every Latter Day Saint can believe in. And I think they can do it, too, without joining the Simian race.

The Accomplishment of Our Fathers

I have told you now briefly what in my opinion are some of the heritages we have received from our parents in the way of belief. In order for us to determine or analyze the foundation they have left on which we were expected to build we must very briefly touch some of our heritage in the way of accomplishment. What have our fathers done in presenting to us something concrete as well as ideal?

First, we think we can safely say that as a result of the splendid sacrifice and almost unparalleled devotion, not to say the ability of the men who have preceded us as representatives of the church and as standard bearers, backed at least by a degree of unity, they have been able finally to establish what is of prime importance, and that is that the gospel is recognized by Latter Day Saints as being a vital principle of life, and the gospel to them has become the biggest thing in their lives. That is evidenced by almost every testimony borne in prayer meeting. That is evidenced also even by the fact that in our everyday affairs things are measured according to the standards of the gospel, and it is right that that should be; and just to the extent we fully measure our activities by the standards of the gospel just to that extent we fully measure up to the standard of a true Latter Day Saint. So I feel that to a large extent our forebears have been successful in giving to us a heritage that is rich in this life.

High Degree of Spirituality

Second, as the result of this dynamic and active participation in the principles of the gospel in the lives of our forebears there has been developed in this church a spiritual force in excess, I mean of a higher degree of refinement, to that which exists elsewhere. I know there will be many evidences that can be adduced to controvert, but I have taken comfort in this fact, that whenever a Latter Day Saint stumbles and falls he makes more noise than anybody else and therefore we are more aware of it. You know when a donkey stumbles over a rock everybody notices it, and the reason is because the donkey is supposed to be sure-footed. When a horse stumbles no one thinks anything of it. Latter Day Saints are supposed to be a little more sure-footed than others. (Not that they are donkeys, however.) You have seen that demonstrated. You know that if your neighbor falls and does something he should not do nobody thinks anything of it, but if a Latter Day Saint falls you never hear the last of it, and I am glad you don't. We should be better because we make larger claims.

Inherited Traditions

Another thing we have inherited from our fathers and I have often wondered whether it is a blessing or not, perhaps I will have to say it is a mixed blessing—no one can deny the fact that we have inherited from our forebears a host of traditions, and I am inclined to think that some of the things that stand in the way to-day of progress are part of these traditions. I would to God that some of them were out of the way. But I have discovered what a tremendous task it is to rectify a wrong tradition, for when I became conscious that there were in this church traditions in opposition to the real fundamental laws and I have tried to get rid of those traditions I have been accused of attempting to change the law. I know that in some places to-day greater attention is given to tradition than to law.

So far as this heritage coming to us as the result of our forebears is concerned, we cannot but look upon it as a mixed blessing, mixed with evil as well as good. And I must say in this connection, making this application perhaps a little sooner than I would in the usual course of logic or sermon building, if we are going to build on the foundation that our forebears have given to us we must be able to discover the traditions that arose from human sources, explaining them only by the traditions which came from the divine. And that is one of the most difficult tasks that we as a church to-day have before us.

Preparation for Social Reform

We have inherited, and to me this is one of the most important of the heritages that we have received from our forebears as one of the foundation stones on which they expect us to build, a preparation for social reform. Please let me emphasize those two last words, "social reform," especially the word "social." I am not so much concerned about religious reform; I am not so much concerned about any other reform; but I am concerned so far as this church is concerned, about recognizing this rich heritage that has come from our forebears, a preparation for social reform, and recognizing the need of us executing the real work. Is it putting the truth too boldly and too plainly to state that if after one hundred years preparation on the part of our fathers making us a heritage that they expected us to build upon, if after one hundred years' preparation we have not qualified to put into effect the things they expected us to do, in the name of God how much longer can they expect us to wait? Can you expect that the next one hundred years will do any more?

Special Work to Perform

In this connection I feel that one of the rich heritages that have come to us is the thought that we have a special work to perform. You see it in our songs. You heard it in the song sung here this afternoon. You heard it in the prayer offered that we might be able to discharge the work that we have been commissioned to do. In every genuine Latter Day Saint's prayer that is uttered there is something said about being able to accomplish the work that God has placed us here to do. I thank God for that heritage. I will tell you why. Irrespective of the religious consequences of it, irrespective of the fact that we as a people have been pointed out to do a specific work, there is a tremendous social value in the idea that a people has a definite work. No one accomplishes anything unless he knows where he is going, unless he has a definite goal toward which he is working and knows what he expects to do. And what is true of an individual is equally true, if not more true, of a people. Peoples are not standing still; they are either going forward or going backward, and when we hear a lot of excuses for failure to advance and accomplish their work it is a pretty sure evidence that tells the signs are precarious if not carious and it is a sign of warning. I want to issue this warning once more to Latter Day Saints, those signs are in our midst and you will have no difficulty in hearing people say that it is a fine ideal but it cannot be done. I have heard it in this church, under this roof at the close of one of my pleas, "It is a fine ideal but it cannot be done." And then the excuses that are given show very clearly that they have imbibed from extraneous sources in the form of an infiltration that is contaminating in its influence and is not clarifying the issue but is clouding it. Let me repeat, I thank God that among all the inheritances that have come to us from our forefathers there is this rich heritage of firm conviction and belief that we have a special work to do.

Appreciation of Unity

I wish I could say that from our forebears we had inherited unity. Maybe we did inherit the unity they had, but if we have they have been very successful in camouflaging it or they have called it by some other name. And yet we sing, "Unless we are one we are not God's," and everywhere in our traditions and in our songs and in our prayers as well as our teachings the necessity for unity is emphasized. Yes, I believe I can say that we have from our forebears inherited a tremendous appreciation of unity as a social and religious factor, but we have dissipated that inheritance, at least for the time being and have got to rehabilitate it. Somewhere, somehow, and soon it has got to be rehabilitated.

An Ideal Social Philosophy

Closely associated with this idea or running as a golden thread through all this warp that I have been trying to present to you in the way of a fabric of heritage is this: We have inherited from our forebears a rich and splendid and so far an ideal social philosophy. What are we going to do with it? I might ask what are we going to do with all the rich heritages that we have been handed, by our fathers, but particularly this unfinished work, the stones they have laid, the foundation if you please on which they expected us their posterity to erect a building that would challenge the admiration of the entire world. I am not speaking now of brick and mortar; I am talking about a social structure.

When I have been permitted to lay before students of the world who are shrewd students of social affairs our own social philosophy and have tried to picture to them the goal which we as a people were trying to reach, it has challenged the admiration of these men instantly and I have from the outside received more earnest and fervid prayers and wishes that we might be successful in the establishment of our social ideals than I have from within the church itself. It seems to me that we ought to ask the question in all seriousness from the very innermost fibers of our being, What are we going to do with the heritage that has come to us from our fathers in regard to the ideals and the social philosophy, and what are we going to do with the belief of our fathers that it was our task to build that social philosophy on the foundation that they laid?

What Shall We Do With Our Heritage?

What are we going to do with our heritage, is the next part of my subject: What shall we do with it? I answer from the depths of my heart, we will go on, or using the term which originated during the war, we will carry on to the end. We have no idea of giving up, as discouraged as we get at times. But as we look back and appreciate the splendid foundation which has been laid by our forebears, we rise from our knees where we have sought the help of divinity and say, "We realize that Zion cannot be redeemed until every individual is discharging his work and making his contribution." It cannot be done by God alone, because God has said that his people must redeem Zion, but he will help. We will preserve the splendid spirituality which has characterized this people heretofore, we will preserve the fine morality that has been among this people, we will increase our faith by adhering to our present religious ceremonies, and at the same time with God's help we will go forward and erect on the foundation that has come to us as a heritage that social structure whose dynamic shall be religion that will challenge the world and was undoubtedly in the mind of divinity when he said, "Let Zion arise and put on her beautiful garments and shine."

The Church a Human Necessity

By Thomas S. Williams

While engaged in writing the lines which follow we paused to read a sermon delivered by President Smith on the economics of Zion, the introduction to which so forcefully sets forth the purpose of this writing, and we take the liberty to quote a portion of it:

If I understand the work of the church and its philosophy, one of the chief distinctions between us and the other churches is that we attempt to enhance our spirituality by spiritualizing our temporal affairs. . . . The prime purpose of this church is to develop spirituality and to preserve and enhance it in every form, and for that very reason we are bound to make efforts, and we hope eventually successful efforts to bring Christianity to bear upon our everyday affairs and particularly our industrial and economic affairs, until eventually we shall not have the dividing line between temporal and spiritual because we will recognize that the one supports the other, that they are simply different aspects of life.—HERALD, March 19, 1924. Italics mine, T. S. W.

In the development of this spiritual life the church must recognize and use, not suppress, the natural tendencies, instincts, and impulses of man. The group which does this to the greatest degree will be capable of developing the highest type of spiritual life and will bring relief to the world and be of lasting benefit to mankind. The gospel plan as we have it, will, when we vision it in full operation, take man as he is and make him what God wants him to be. I shall attempt to outline briefly what I believe to be the fundamentals of our church and how they recognize and develop the natural tendencies of man to the unfoldment of the highest type of spirituality.

Obtaining the Church Objective

As we have stated above, the Lord has set as the ultimate objective of the church, the development in man of the Christlike character. Yet as we view the work to be accomplished by the church, we see that objective to be obtained by working toward what we may call two minor objectives, i. e., the evangelization of the world and the redemption of Zion. As we proceed with our reading it will be apparent that in our opinion these two cannot be separated and of necessity the former must be first. Yet I believe the purpose of this article can best be presented by following the Zionite objective through this argument.

The idea of Zion, the gathering, has been and is now not only a divine decree but a human necessity. Its necessity may be summed up under eight headings; no doubt there may be more:

Gregarious Instinct

First, it satisfies the gregarious instinct, the tendency of the individual to seek and associate with his kind. The consciousness in the mind of an individual that there are others like him creates within him a desire to join them. It is not merely the presence of others the social man craves "but the reciprocity of feeling relieves the ache in his heart." (Ross) Men of like desires and hopes belong together; this is provided for in the gathering.

Intellectual Attainments

Second, man's intellectual attainments have been developed and will continue to grow only through his association with his fellows. Says Giddings:

The intelligence that association from the first selected and disciplined has never ceased to depend upon association for perpetuation. Deprived of comradeship by circumstance or law men go back to the brutality from which they came. . . . Therefore it has been the humans best equipped with social habit and its products that have won and maintained supremacy in the contention with physical nature and living enemies. Society is a means to an end, namely, the survival and improvement of men through a continuing selection of intelligence and sympathy.—Studies in the Theory of Human Society.

May this be said of Zion?

Efficiency by Gathering

Third, group efficiency is enhanced by the gathering; the evangelization of the world by a group, the burden of whose message is a divine Fatherhood and a human brotherhood and the establishment of an ideal social order whose foundation is righteousness, can only be accomplished by a church thoroughly organized and centralized. It cannot be done by a few righteous individuals divided geographically and in purpose. Says Bernard Shaw:

The teachings of Jesus cannot be realized by a series of independent explosions of personal righteousness on the part of separate units of the population.

The task before the church is not an ordinary one; in order that the objectives of the church may be realized, there must be created "an unprecedented attitude of mind to cope with unprecedented conditions, and to utilize unprecedented knowledge." (Robinson, Mind in Making.)

The development of right attitudes, the power to meet extraordinary conditions, and the ability successfully to use knowledge can best be achieved in the gathering.

Close association with an efficient group organization will create within the individual a feeling of confidence by reason of the knowledge that a great organization is back of him, thus raising the standard of efficiency of the group as a whole. Men must have the stimulus of a great organization behind them. It is a well-known fact that children do better work in a school than under a private teacher, though they may receive no material help from their associates. A human being is at his best when he is associated with others, especially when they are of like hopes and desires. Again, Zion will permit a higher class of work by its people work cooperatively, because it allows specialization, giving men the opportunity to develop along lines in which they are talented. Thus raising the standard of the work produced by the group. Man's inability to stand or work alone makes the gathering a necessity.

Concept of God

Fourth, our idea or concept of God is obtained through our association with our fellow men. The kind of people we associate with, the nature of our work, and our purpose will determine to a large degree, our idea of the Creator. The concept of God may be raised to a very high level through the group cooperatively working toward the realization of a high ideal; the higher the ideal the more lofty will be the understanding of God. A people gathered together, not for protection and safety, but for the common purpose of more effectively accomplishing their task of saving the world, will raise the concept of God from one that is self-centered, to a God who is the Father of all the world. Zion will not be a place of refuge from the world but a place to produce a people fit to save the world. The importance of the God concept is set forth by Professor Ames:

God cannot be understood apart from his people, with whose will and purpose he is one. Neither can a people be understood without reference to their God. The God of any people may be seen in their purpose, direction, and moral idealism. Without a people God becomes vague, weak, easily disbelieved and doubted. God cannot be known outside of history and living experience.—The New Orthodoxy.

Demonstrating Zion

Fifth, the gathering is in harmony with the usual course of progress.

Any new pattern in human relations must be first thought out by some master mind, next be realized in one or a few lives and then imitatively taken up by the mass of men who will gradually come to appreciate and understand its value.

As a church we are now approaching the second stage of progress in the development of the Zionistic ideal. When the church has demonstrated to the world the idea of stewardship and Zion to be practicable, the evangelization of the world will be an easy task. A divided world groping in darkness offers a greater opportunity to let our light shine.

Necessity of Gathering

Sixth, it is a psychological necessity. Men are so constituted mentally that they must have an objective, both real and concrete; there must be something tangible to be striven for.

Men are not motivated by abstract ideals. . . . Concepts and ideals must be institutionalized in order to live on a large scale. Even good will must be organized if it is to be effective in the world.—Ellwood, in Christianity and Social Science.

Men must have an objective to work for and as we have noted (under "Group efficiency") to work from if his effort to complete his task is permanent and fixed.

Is it not a fact, however, that the progress of religion has been less in the perception of new truth than in the bringing it home to the many by organization.—Cooley, Social Organization.

Development of Group Spirit

Seventh, the gathering will make possible the highest development of the group spirit. Necessary to the development of the church and the achievement of our great task is the promotion of the group spirit. I quote from McDougall who both defines and presents the importance of the group spirit:

The group spirit, the idea of the group with the sentiment of devotion to the group developed in the minds of its members, not only serves as a bond that holds the group together or even creates it, but . . . it renders possible truly collective volition; this in turn renders the actions of the group much more resolute and effective than they could be so long as its actions proceeded merely from the presence of an impulse common to all members, or from the strictly individual volitions of all, even though these be directed to a common end. Again the group spirit plays an important part in raising the intellectual level of the group; for it leads each member to deliberately subordinate his own judgment and opinion to that of the whole; and in any properly organized group, this collective opinion will be superior to that of the average individual, because in its formation the best minds, acting upon the fullest knowledge, to the gathering of which all may contribute, will be of predominant influence. Each member, then, willing, the common end accepts the means chosen by the organized collective deliberation, and, in executing the actions prescribed for him, makes them his own immediate ends and truly wills them for the sake of the whole, not executing them in the spirit of merely mechanical unintelligent obedience or even of reluctance. In a similar way the group spirit aids in raising the moral level of an army. The organized whole embodies certain traditional sentiments especially of admiration for certain moral qualities, courage, endurance, etc., . . . these sentiments, permeating the whole, are impressed upon every member especially new members, by way of mass suggestion and sympathetic contagion. The consciousness of the group and of oneself as a member of it bring a sense of power and security, an assurance of sympathy and cooperation, a moral and physical support without which man could hardly face the world. . . The group spirit continues with us . . . to be the great socializing agency. In the majority of cases it is the principal, if not the sole factor which raises a man's conduct above the plain of pure egotism, leads him to care and work for others as well as for himself.—The Group Mind. (Italics mine, T. S. W.)

It is absolutely essential that this church above all others should take every opportunity to promote the group spirit. The Zionite ideal offers a wonderful opportunity to develop this spirit. Cooley says:

. . . leaving aside a comparatively few abnormal individuals, whose influence is small, men in general have a natural allegiance to the community ideal, and would gladly see it carried out on a large as well as a small scale. And nearly all imaginative and aspiring persons view it with enthusiasm, and would devote themselves to it with some ardor and sacrifice if they saw clearly how they could do it with effect.—Social Organization.

Let me repeat here that Zion offers an objective around which a group spirit could be developed which would make this church an irresistible force in a sin-cursed world, if a few self-sacrificing individuals would demonstrate how it could be done.

Developing Christ Character

Eighth, the gathering develops within those participating, the Christ character. Says Ellwood:

Sociology shows that it is the incorporation of the individual into a group and the growth in capacity and will to act together of groups of individuals which develop personal character and community life. . . Religion should therefore strive to develop a socialized character in individuals, and to build institutions along lines which favor the proper socialization of individuals.—Christianity and Social Science. (Italics mine, T. S. W.)

Stewardship will increase the capacity and will to act together and Zion will offer the institution that will develop character and socialize the individual. Needful to the development of the Christ character is a high aim. I again quote Ellwood:

The social spirit of men may, of course, be high or low in its ethical aim; as it develops and universalizes itself on its way to include all men, it purifies itself. Socialization, as it has reference to larger and larger groups, tends toward moralization. . . The sociologists of which we are speaking would not recognize socialization as complete unless it led the individual practically to identify himself and his interests with those of humanity as a whole.—Ibid. (Italics mine, T. S. W.)

Zion with its group gathered to fit themselves to more efficiently save the world from sin and crime, whose divinely appointed task is, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations," offers the highest aim known to man to-day. Character is the net result of word and deed, every word, every act, and each thought contributes something to the result. The feeling that motivates all we do will determine our character. Holt in his Freudian Wish, says, "Character is the assemblage of purposes." The fact that we are laboring to the end that equality of service may be rendered, that our objective, purposes, and interests are one, will tend to unfold within the soul the highest type of spirituality. The higher the ideal and to the degree one gives his life to it, will determine the degree of spirituality attained. The postulate that the working toward the evangelization of the world and the redemption of Zion will develop character and make men perfect, if true, will mean that it will not take a perfect people to accomplish the task, but that spirituality and perfection are attained in the process of working toward it.

Belief in Divine Revelation

Revelation: Necessary to the development of the work of a church whose purpose is the preaching of the word and the establishment of Zion, is the belief in divine revelation. Man's limitations in meeting the increasing, ever-changing problems and unprecedented conditions of life, make it impossible for him to find a solution without divine inspiration. Not only must man be divinely helped in surmounting the difficulties of a changing world, but he must have a consciousness of God which revelation alone can give. Revelation makes a place for progress, it presumes life to be dynamic, the church a growing, developing institution meeting changing conditions. It visions life to be "not the whirl of a constant number of juggler's plates balanced on the sword points of the players: it is a whirl in which new plates and new motions appear at every instant compelling delicate readjustments throughout the system and yet without seriously disturbing the approximately perfect balance of the whole." (Giddings, Studies in Theory of Human Society.) It does not regard the church as a complete, closed, dogmatic institution. It is the denial of the finality of a fixed and mechanical social order. It makes the doctrine of growth one of the fundamental elements of the Christian religion. It presumes more truth to be revealed and life to be found in the search for truth. Growth and divine revelation in a religion concerned with the development of mankind of necessity are inseparable.

ble. A static religion cannot accomplish the divinely appointed mission of the church.

Revelation implies a developing humanity and a growing religion, and will make the church a life-directing as well as a soul-saving institution. The place of inspiration in a religion with a social program is clearly set forth by Professor Rauschenbusch:

The social gospel on the other hand feels then the need of present inspiration and living prophetic spirits in order to lead humanity toward the kingdom of God. . . . a theology adapted to the social gospel . . . will recognize inspiration as an indispensable force of our religion. . . .—A Theology for the Social Gospel.

The important place of revelation is clearly set forth by our Lord, "Upon this rock I will build my church."

Divine Authority

Authority: Closely related to revelation is authority. In this day when men are everywhere challenging authority, confusion prevailing in all avenues of life, and men are crying lo here and lo there, we need men who are divinely chosen and who speak in clear tones of authority; who will "speak as one having authority." They truly must be men divinely called but they must be men whose "authority must be inside the truth, not behind it." (H. G. Wells) Not only will their authority consist in the divine call and in the truth of their message, but it will also include an insight to the depth and meaning of life. In a work such as ours, men with authority such as we have mentioned will give the church the confidence needful to the progress of our great work. Ross sets forth the importance of authority in a group with a social objective:

Organization is approached by a number of steps. One is the submitting of like efforts to direction. . . . Another is the combining under direction of unlike efforts . . . these several diverse efforts must be precisely timed and adjusted to one another, direction will be very minute and authoritative. If the work is difficult an authority will be needed to assign tasks according to individual aptitude or skill, and if organization is permanent, to provide that individuals are especially trained for the performance of their special functions.—Outlines of Sociology.

Importance of Church Organization

Church Organization: Professor Ross says, "The chief determinant of the character of organization is the nature of the task, the character of the organized and the spacing between the organized." (Ibid.) The social emphasis of religion increases the importance of church organization and to a large degree determines its organization. Without a social program this church would have no need for many of the officers it has in it. Indeed we may be bold to say in passing that without trained men who vision its social program as well as the preaching of the gospel to the world as their objective, its organization loses much of its meaning and becomes a source of misunderstanding and is burdensome and unwieldy. The "nature of the task" (our objective), "the character of the organized" (kind of people), and "the spacing of the organized" (setting apart of stewardships), make necessary a centralized organization.

This centralized organization must be directed by men divinely authorized and inspired. A church with a world program must have a world organization; a purely congregational church has no world problems; its vision comprehends only its local organization. "History shows a marked drift of authority from the local toward the general. Religion tends to lose itself in the shallows unless the local congregation is knit up with others into a general church." (Ross, Outlines of Sociology.) Without an organization such as this church has we could not put over our program. Carver in answer to the question, What is the best religion? says, "That which acts most powerfully as a spur to energy and directs that energy most productively." (Religion Worth Having.) Organization should assist man to get the most out of life, to find the abundant life, to find God. Too many times it has been used to uphold theological dogma.

Principles of the Gospel

The First Principles: The theological perversion of the first principles of the gospel has caused men to overlook their social implication and has promoted the exaggerated individualism we find so prevalent in Christianity to-day. With a proper vision of the purpose of the gospel (development of character) the meaning of the first principles will be sublimated, raised to a higher plane, than they would be if the objective were individual salvation. Faith would comprehend faith in God and man, not a blind faith but a faith with a vision and a program. It would be at once progressive, knowing its objective and moving to the accomplishment of its task.

While faith is the dynamic of life, repentance is the basis of progress. Repentance is a changed attitude, a process of adjusting our lives to newly discovered truth. It is the beginning of growth, development, and learning. The repentant man visions what he is and what he may be.

Baptism is the door through which the higher life is attained. The old man must die before the new man comes forth. "I lay down my life that I may take it again," is the avenue of entrance to the higher life. These three in their social application involve: confidence in mankind (faith), adjustment of my life and means to the needs of humanity (repentance), and the giving of my life in service to the world (baptism).

Closely related to baptism in the new birth is the laying on of hands. We shall discuss this under Ritual.

The resurrection and the judgment occupy a very important place in our social program. There is a tendency in Christian religious circles to separate our social program in this life from that of the next. If I understand the gospel program, the Lord will come to claim his bride, a people who have prepared themselves for his coming, thus providing for the continuation of the church. This provides for one of the fundamental conditions necessary to "collective mental life" as set forth by McDougall: "Some degree of continuity of the existence of the group in the minds of the individuals of the group."—Group Mind, italics mine.) If the basis of the resurrection and judgment is character, character being the result of your works, plus the spirit or attitude in which you have performed them, and if our first premise is correct, that the working toward an objective such as ours produces the highest type of character, then the connection with this social program and these two principles is established.

Importance of Ritual

The ritual and symbol: A very important place in impressing truth and promoting unity, is occupied by the ritual or symbol in religious worship. This, too, is a psychological necessity. The symbol used properly is "an idea appealing not so much to the reason as to the imagination; a truth clothing itself, not in terms of a proposition, but in a picture. A symbol is something which stands for something else; which represents it again in another form more easily realized." (Newton's Catholicity.) In his worship man must have "a visible expression of religion, something which can be experienced as present and concrete." (Coe's Social Theory.)

Those who teach truth in its mere abstractness can never take much hold of the general mind, and success awaits a teaching which is intellectually sound (that is, consistent with the clearer thought of the day) and at the same time able, by its wealth of fit symbols, to make itself at home in all sorts of plain minds. And it is just this that is apt to be destructively wanting in a time of intellectual and social change.—Cooley's Social Organization.

Protestantism, according to Professor Pratt, feels the lack of ritual in their worship:

Our various denominations are showing a very commendable dissatisfaction with their present methods and a willingness to experiment on new lines in the hope to find some type of worship more satisfactory. We see them fumbling about, groping for light, trying new plans of popular appeal which range all the way from vested choirs to moving pictures. A fairly large body in many denominations feels the need of more ritual—a need which, as we have seen, is deeply founded in human psychology. New rituals are therefore being rapidly produced, but none seem to quite fill the need.—Religious Consciousness. (Italics mine, T. S. W.)

He continues that the Protestant worshiper must be made to feel as the Catholic does, "that something is really being done." While Protestantism has been slack in the use of the ritual, Catholicism has gone to the other extreme. While the ritual has a very valuable place in religious expression, yet the root problem of the church . . . is to get the use of the symbol without the abuse. We cannot hold our minds to the higher life without a form of thought, and forms of thought come by traditions and usages which are apt to enchain in the spirit.—Cooley's Social Organization.

There seems to be a tendency in human nature to mistake or convert means for ends. To overcome this tendency, the ritual must be forward looking, while it must have its background in the past to make it effective, yet it must suggest some lesson that will assist man to live in the future, it must have this to give it social meaning. If the objective of the church is a world saving purpose, the ritual must suggest to the individual that he is a part of that world program. That which tends toward individualism must be overcome. We must have a group in which the spirit and the ritual are united; the ritual must be tied up to a high ideal; when this is done it will result in the production of the higher life of which we have written. Ritual, too, has its place in the teaching of morality. "It is worth noting, too, that morality finds its most cogent support in ritual emphasis. Their virtues are all in the nature of inhibitions set upon the more animal instincts; they are all in the nature of conscious habits, and are therefore subject to deliberate education.—Article, "Worship," Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics. The ritual also binds the worshiper to other worshipers in a social consciousness, separating him from other individuals and groups not participating, and is thus the means of perpetuating the church in the world.

Application of Ritual to Christian Religion

I will briefly outline here the social value I see in the ritual of this church. The outstanding fact in the Christian religion is the new birth, the putting off of the old man, the coming forth of the new. Since man is an objective worshiper, baptism by immersion, the complete burial of the individual, suggests this lesson much better than sprinkling or pouring, in fact the two latter suggest no such thought. It makes the candidate feel that something has really been done. The more difficult, the more impressive is the ceremony, thus resulting in a greater socializing agency. It ties the individual up to others of like experience in a way sprinkling will not do.

The laying on of hands has, too, a great social value to a church with a world program. The ceremony suggests this feeling to the candidate; this ordinance is performed by men of God's calling, ordained and set apart by the church, thus intensifying in their consciousness the feeling that God is in the church by bringing him near to them in this manner, and in them a group consciousness so necessary to this church. This, if true in one of the purposes for which this ceremony is used, would be true in all four.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper is the most wonderful of all in its social value. A spirit of fellowship is developed in this meeting not possible in any other. It is the communion of man with God and man with man in divine fellowship. The spirit of sacrificial love is also vividly presented in the sacrament. The spirit of fellowship and sacrifice must be developed in the church if we perform our task.

I believe we have in our church enough ritual, but I also believe that we do not recognize it as an opportunity to impress truth and promote unity as we should. It seems to me that in the development of the Zionie and the missionary spirit the ritual has had and will continue to have a very important part.

Groundwork of Character

Since character has its beginning in belief and conduct, the church with its high aim the evangelization of the world and the redemption of Zion, furnishes the ground work upon which the highest type of character may be builded. The outstanding features of the church which we have considered, reve-

LETTERS

Island Missionary Becomes Acquainted With People and Their Customs

From a Letter to the First Presidency

HILO, HAWAII, March 24.—While we cannot say that everything here is all that we would have it be, we are glad to say that we are enjoying our work very much. Perhaps this is because we have been quite busy from the time we got here. The time has not been wholly spent in work directly in line of priesthood responsibility, but with the idea of trying to get acquainted with the land and customs of the people we have taken advantage of each opportunity to go with Saints in their autos. Hilo is not crowded together as many cities in the States, and some of the Saints live a long distance from the mission house. There are no street cars in the city, but there are taxi lines and if we had to depend upon these in visiting the Saints, it would be quite expensive. However, one of the priesthood, Brother A. A. Hapai has been especially interested in helping us reach some of the Saints and friends.

Spiritual Prayer Meetings

A splendid degree of the Spirit is being enjoyed at both prayer and preaching services and the members are greatly encouraged. These people have done well, considering the fact that they have been without a pastor for some time. This may be accounted for in some recent experiences which have tended to increase their faith rather than divide them as Satan is seeking to do.

Work of So-called Healers

Just before we came to Hilo, a man by the name of Lockbalm and his wife who were called "Healers" were causing no little excitement. They claimed to have the "full gospel" and believed in healing, tongues, and prophecy. Brother Mahi, who was branch president in the absence of a pastor, attended one of their meetings and was asked by Mrs. Lockbalm if he was a Christian. He answered that he was a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. She then asked if he spoke in tongues, to which he replied, "God divides these gifts as he will and I didn't receive that gift." He said, "You have no scriptural foundation for your belief as you have no church organization." She then told them that he was a devil and would be in his grave the next week. We never heard whether she extended this time or not, but he still lives, a month after her prophecy was made.

Some of our people attended an evening service when tongues was manifest and some one asked what was the language. One of their number answered, "It is Japanese," but one of our Japanese sisters who was present said, "It is not Japanese." Then they said "It is Chinese." A Chinese lady sitting near by said, "No, it is not." Well, said they, "It is Arabian." As there were none of these people to answer for themselves, perhaps the guess might be effectual with those who had nothing else to rely on. One of their number prophesied that a certain woman who had gone to

First Aid

1. For That Crippled Cradle Roll.
2. For That Maimed Men's Class.
3. For That Wounded Workers' Conference.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

lation, authority, church organization, the first principles and the ritual, recognize the natural tendencies of men and will make possible the accomplishment of its world program and will act as a support in the development of spirituality.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

the island of Maui, would return in health, but last Friday they brought her back home for burial. They prophesied two weeks ago that something awful was going to happen to our work in Hilo very soon, but the Saints have no fears.

Many Deceived

The Lockbalsms have left the city but there is one on the streets dressed in a long white robe and with long hair and beard who claims to be John the Baptist preparing the way for Christ. Our hearts are touched when we see how much more ready people are to accept forms of religion that give evidence of their own unreliability than they are to accept the truth. May God hasten the day when the endowment will be enjoyed, and his servants go out with power to save the honest in heart from deception.

We are now planning for a series of meetings to be held in the city park in the near future and trust that our heavenly Father will bless our efforts with success.

D. J. WILLIAMS.

Opposition in Debate at Condon, Oregon, Collapses

From a Letter to the First Presidency

CONDON, OREGON, March 24.—The debate is over and I believe that when the smoke clears away we will be safe in thinking that we have gained a signal victory. Brother Daniel Macgregor deported himself in a way that won the people, and the other side completely collapsed. The minister left town the fourth day of the debate, presumably because of the sickness of his wife, and turned the matter over to another minister who did no better, and I hear that the one who challenged us will not stay here. His own people have gone back on him.

I expect to hold meetings here this week. One has given her name for baptism, and I believe there are others who will come. I will report the complete results so far as possible next week.

M. H. COOK.

Saints in Nauvoo Appreciate Missionary Letters in Church Papers

NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, April 10.—Sunday, April 6, was a most beautiful day, so mild and sunny after the stormy exit of March with its mercury well down towards zero. The sacramental meeting was a sweet season of communion with our Lord by his Holy Spirit. Peace and love filled the heart and lifted the soul higher, nearer to what all Saints are looking forward to be.

In the evening after a brief Religio service, there was a magic lantern exercise showing the housefly in all its loathsomeness, warning the housewives to be ready with their swatters and annihilate those pests when they awake from their winter's sleep. It was all good instruction, especially to housekeepers.

Then instead of the usual sermon, the branch president gave a fine lecture on music and led in the singing of several hymns selected for the occasion. He sings and keeps time with an energy which bespeaks his enjoyment of it. Sister Mabel Sanford accompanied at the piano. The whole was really enjoyable to all. There were several of our neighbors present who seemed pleased. So passed the first Sunday in April.

I want to say a few words for the missionaries. It seems to me that at the present time the successful work of the missionaries with the blessings of God upon it is the glory of the church, and I want to thank them for sending in those items that illuminate the pages of the HERALD and cheer the readers. I also want to thank Brother Edwards for gathering up those interesting missionary activities for the Ensign.

I cannot tell you how greatly they are enjoyed by the readers, especially by those who have not for so many years heard a sermon, a prayer, or a testimony. But from a full heart I say, "God bless you all, including the editors and those in the Herald Office who do their part towards sending forth the cheering news." I pray that God will continue to bless the efforts put forth and to open the hearts and understanding of the people to receive the glad message.

E. B. BURTON.

Beloit Saints Have Housewarming

BELOIT, WISCONSIN, April 7.—Gathering at the chapel on Thursday evening, April 3, the Saints celebrated the birthdays of our missionaries, Brother and Sister Ward L. Christy, the occasion also being in the nature of a housewarming for the cozy little home these dear friends have made of the barren back room of the church. Only seeing is believing what a little determination with paint, soap, and water could do toward transforming that room into a comfortable apartment. It is truly a practical lesson in home making to our Women's Department, and proves how little of this world's goods is necessary to make a comfortable, healthful, beautiful, and happy home, when God's Spirit is there and all are serving him.

Work of Missionaries Appreciated

Brother and Sister Christy have worked hard to make this home possible, and the Beloit Branch have proven their deep love and appreciation for their missionaries and their work by offerings of basket and store and manual labor. Others through the district have helped, as all are interested in making this a haven of rest for our missionaries, and also a place where the lambs of the fold, as well as the sheep, may go to receive that spiritual food so much needed in times of trial and grief and discouragements. Brother and Sister Christy always seemed to be able to give joy and a helping hand to one and all. Wherever our missionaries have gone, they have received a cordial welcome, and their work and consecration is appreciated.

Invite Other Branches

Beloit had sent invitations to their two neighboring branches, Janesville on the north, and Rockford on the south. As a concrete highway connects these branches with Beloit, a goodly number attended. Games were played, and an impromptu program was presented, consisting of musical numbers, readings, etc. Brother and Sister Christy were then requested to leave the room, and an old-fashioned collection was taken. The money was divided into equal amounts and tied in separate packets. These were hidden. Brother and Sister Christy were requested to return and hunt for the "hidden treasures." After much searching they located the packets. Both in their own happy way thanked the donors and expressed the wish to be of real service in the Southern Wisconsin District, and told how all could assist in the missionary work. Then four well-filled baskets were brought out and lunch was served.

Brother and Sister Christy proved to be a most congenial host and hostess, and after many hearty congratulations and good wishes they were left to enjoy the comforts of their new and cozy home.

MRS. FIELD.

Central Michigan Priesthood Have Two-day Meeting

GLADWIN, MICHIGAN, April 10.—The Central Michigan priesthood met at Beaverton, April 5, for a two-day meeting. The first session Saturday morning was given over to prayer and testimony, twenty-seven being present and a good spirit prevailing. A business meeting was held at 10 a. m. in which Brother Matthew Umphrey was chosen to take full charge of the character and nature of all the meetings. Patriarch G. W. Burt gave a very spiritual talk at this service.

The leading topic at one o'clock was, "Shall we discourage the attending of theaters, card playing, pool playing, etc.?" The sentiment was that we should—with the provision that we endeavor to provide wholesome recreation for the young people.

At 2 p. m. two fifteen-minute speeches were made, one by Brother Pendleton, which was followed by Brother Tomlinson; also there was a paper, "Tithing and consecration," by Patriarch G. W. Burt. Another meeting was held at 4.40, then Elder Tomlinson preached in the evening on "Our duties toward branch officers."

The topic, "What shall we do in the line of recreation for our young people?" was continued in the priesthood meeting at 7.45, Sunday morning. Then Sunday school followed at 10, and a fellowship and sacramental service at 11, in which were offered twenty testimonies and five prayers.

In the afternoon Elder Earl Burt read a paper concerning the departments of the church and Elder E. S. White another entitled "The price of a soul."

A spirit of unity permeated all the meetings. The time of the next like meeting was left to the discretion of the committee, Brethren Umphrey, Burt, and missionary. It will probably be held in Saginaw-sometime in July.

J. GOHEEN.

Successful Meetings Held in Kewanee District

LAMONI, IOWA, April 3.—Following the close of the special meetings held at Savanna in February, I went to Clinton, Iowa, on the 26th, and spent the night at the home of Brother and Sister Beil, with whom I had made my home during the winter I presided over the Clinton Branch. About twenty of the Saints gathered at the Beil home that evening, where I enjoyed meeting the familiar faces, and renewing my acquaintance with them once more, five years having elapsed since I had met any of them. I enjoyed my brief visit with these good people very much, and was made happy to know that they were still in the faith, and still anxious to help in the Lord's work.

Preaches Funeral Sermon in Viola

The following day I went on to Moline, Illinois, to the home of Brother and Sister Needham, where I found a message from Viola, asking me to come there to preach the funeral sermon of Brother Fonce Manyard. I arrived on the day of the funeral, fifty minutes late, owing to the train from Rock Island to Matherville being one hour late, and the almost impassable condition of the road which required one hour to cover the distance of four and a half miles from Matherville to Viola by auto. Arriving at Viola we found about two hundred people waiting at the opera house. All business houses in town were closed during the funeral, out of respect for Brother Manyard. It is good to be able to say that Brother Manyard lived the life of a Saint in his home town, so that he was respected by the people in life, and honored in death.

Meetings at Kewanee

On the 9th of March Brother E. A. Curtis and I started a series of meetings at Kewanee, which continued three weeks. Brother Curtis was called to Independence on the 18th on church business, and because of sickness in his home was not able to return for the last ten days of these meetings, so the writer had to occupy the pulpit alone during this time. I am pleased to report the baptism of six at the close of these meetings. One young couple did not start to attend until Monday night of the last week. After attending four nights in succession they handed in their names for baptism. Since the special meetings closed I learn that there are others ready for baptism.

While in Kewanee we made our home with Brother Ed Jones and family. Brother Jones and wife and their two daughters did everything within their power to make us comfortable and to feel at home during our stay with them. Brother Jones is president of the branch there, and has done exceptionally well in carrying the work on as he has, under most trying and discouraging circumstances. The branch is gradually improving under his supervision. His work has been made easier by the fact that he has some faithful and reliable helpers.

At the close of the Sunday night service, March 30, I boarded the train for Lamoni to renew acquaintance with the family after an absence of nearly three months.

To Hold Meetings at Rock Island

Brother Curtis will begin a series of meetings at Rock Island on April 6, where I will join him about the 15th. We are hopeful of successful meetings during the entire year, and expect to see quite a number of new converts, as the good Spirit seems to be working with the people. My desire is to continue on in the work, and be able to help some to see the light.

E. R. DAVIS.

Present Branch Is Testimony of Work Done in Early Days of Church by Devoted Saints

WIGAN, ENGLAND, April 4.—I am sorry that I am not as active as I have been in the past owing to my age and inability of hearing, but I can assure you that my faith is as strong in the divine saving power of Christ to all who will obey him, as it ever has been. I look back over forty years when my two brothers, James and Thomas, and myself, joined this church which was then a new and much disputed religion and I remember how we had to face the evil doctrine and practice of the Utah church at that time. We were unlearned for we could not even read or write, and to undertake to establish a branch here under those conditions was no small matter.

We eventually did establish a branch with six members, consisting of my two brothers, myself, and our wives. With the help that we have had from our brethren from Manchester and the missionaries from America we have built up a branch of nearly one hundred members.

There have been quite a number who have departed this life who were faithful to the end. While there may have been a few who did not keep the covenant, and others who fainted by the wayside, there have also been a goodly number of the members of this branch who are still helping to carry on the good work, many of whom have gone to America and are working in branches over there.

I am glad that I have been permitted to see such a grand and noble band of Saints here who are endeavoring to the best of their ability to keep the camp fire burning and who also realize that it is a conflict with the world. Above all I am proud that we have a fine and very capable young man, Brother Arthur Smith, as branch president. He is very much liked by all the Saints and is doing a splendid work among us, preaching and visiting the Saints and friends. He is backed up by some honest young men in the priesthood.

We have had some splendid missionary work done here of late by Brethren J. A. Gillen, Charles Fry, D. T. Williams, and Brother and Sister Richard Baldwin. These have done a good work in building up the Saints and we are all looking forward to the time when we shall see them here again.

May our heavenly Father continue to bless those who so faithfully and unselfishly labor for the success of his work.

WILLIAM SPARGO.

To the Saints of the British Isles

As the time draws near for us to leave the British Isles Mission, we are thinking of the many friends who have been so kind to us while here, and we are wishing that we had the opportunity of saying good-by personally to each one of the Saints. As this is not possible, our minds turn to the SAINTS' HERALD as being the best avenue through which we can reach the Saints in this land, for we desire to thank them all for their kindness, hospitality, and help in every way.

As we write, our minds go back to almost three years ago when we landed in London, and we felt that our new work was before us. Although we had been told that the British Isles Mission might prove a hard one, we entered upon our work without any misgivings, for the Lord had promised us that our work here should be a success, and we knew he stood behind that promise, if we would do our part.

Begin Work in Mission

We went to Manchester first, and were received in the home of Brother and Sister Armstrong and their sister, Sister Baty, and at once we felt at home with the Manchester Saints. We planned extensive work in the Northern District but were allowed only time enough to get acquainted with the Saints of Manchester before we were asked to go to Llanely, Wales.

The outlook there was very dark. There were but two sisters there who could help us, and it was hard to leave the congenial Saints in Manchester where our meetings were being successful and go down and try to build up a Branch at Llanely. But we went. Our joys and sorrows there are known to most of you, but after three months labor there we had the pleasure of asking Brother T. W. Williams to come down and organize a branch of fourteen members.

We worked hard there for sixteen months, and when we left we were satisfied that the Lord had verified his promise to us, and that our work had been a success, for we left a branch of twenty-four Saints, and also many friends who are interested in the gospel.

Then, nearly a year ago, we returned to England, and the time spent in England has been a continual round of pleasant duties: In the year we have baptized over fifty, and had wonderful success and liberty in preaching, visiting, and counseling. Our experience has been that there is no greater field in the church for missionary work than in England and Wales.

We do not take the credit for this success. In the first place it belongs to God, and in the next to the noble Saints who have stood by us and upheld our hands in everything we have tried to do.

We have indeed learned to love the Saints of the British Isles, and we want them to know it, and to know that we shall ever remember them and talk of them. Many of the Saints have given us their photos, and we are now compiling an album, which will be one of our greatest treasures, and which we shall turn to often; for in the years to come it will bring back to us many pleasant memories.

Pleasant Memories

While we have worked hard and have not seen as much of this great country, its cathedrals, beauty spots, historical places, etc., as we should have liked, still our work has not been unmixed with pleasure, for several trips will always remain in our memories. Among the many was a trip to the summer home of Brother and Sister Howard Meredith, at Evesham on the Avon River. Brother and Sister Meredith took us down to their bungalow and left us there alone for a few days, to keep house and enjoy the beautiful scenery and quietude. Then they came for us in their motor car, and we shall never forget their kindness and the wonderful time we had there in the quietude of the river, among the trees, flowers, and birds, and with God.

Another trip was to Llandudno in beautiful North Wales. Brother David Hughes took us there on a day trip, and we shall never forget the beauty and the grandeur of that wonderful view seen from Great Orme. God was there also, and we surely revered him for the wonderful things he has made.

While in Clay Cross, Sister Emma Holmes loaned us her horse and trap, and we enjoyed several trips through the beautiful scenery of the Midlands. Brother Charles Cousins was our driver and guide, and we shall always remember his kindness in showing us the beauties of Matlock, which, so far as we have seen, is the most beautiful spot in this country. We just loved the ever-changing scenery among those old hills.

We, too, enjoyed our walks around Llanely, for we found the mountains and valleys there very beautiful.

Brother and Sister J. E. Meredith also took us on many pleasant motor rides, the most enjoyable being a visit to Stratford-on-Avon, Shakespeare's home. While in Warrington recently Brother Chandler took us to see some of the beautiful country round about there. Also we remember a trip to Southport last summer, in company with several of the Saints of the Northeast Manchester Branch.

As we write, so many other trips come to our mind that we should like to mention, but space will not permit us at this time.

Thank Saints for Kindness and Help

Surely the Saints have treated us with wonderful kindness, and again we thank you for your help which has made the contemplation of our work here such a joy to us.

There are many of the branches we have been unable to visit. Calls upon our time have been more than we could attend to, but we are sure, had we been able to visit all the branches over here, we should have found the same treatment among you all.

We have given patriarchal blessings to more than two hundred in the British Isles, and we feel we know your lives very well. We would have loved to bless all who have asked, but time and opportunity have not permitted. But we do feel that we can ask God's blessings to rest upon you, and we shall always remember you.

In America we oftentimes refer to the British people as our "English cousins." When we came over we may have felt toward you that sort of a relationship, but we are going back more than cousins, for you are indeed our brothers and sisters, and as such we shall always think of you and love you.

We are told by the Lord that into whatever home we go, and they receive us, we are to leave God's peace in that home. We feel this admonition also would hold good with a country, and we know that we have been received gladly, and we can say with a full heart, "Peace be unto you."

May God's blessing be with you, is the prayer of your brother and sister,

RICHARD AND ALICE H. BALDWIN.

Eight Baptized at Pueblo, Colorado

From a Letter to the First Presidency

PUEBLO, COLORADO, March 24.—We closed our series of meetings here last night, after holding forth a week. The services were well attended by the Saints, and a goodly number of nonmembers were present at each meeting.

I had the pleasure yesterday of leading eight precious souls into the waters of baptism. They were all adults but one. There was an unusual degree of the Holy Spirit present at the confirmation. One of the brethren, Robert Craddock, was told in his confirmation that if faithful he would be called into the priesthood.

The three brethren that were called to occupy in various places in the priesthood were ordained. They are all fine men, and I feel that they will be able to do much good in this branch.

BRUCE E. BROWN.

Missionary Addresses High School Students at Stewartsville, Missouri

From a Letter to the First Presidency

SAINT JOSEPH, MISSOURI, April 16.—I have been in this city three weeks; am in the midst of my third week of meetings, and have been greatly assisted in my efforts by the presence of the good Spirit.

I was accorded the privilege of addressing the high school students on Monday at Stewartsville, at the invitation of Brother Harold McCord, instructor. I was very warmly received, and have a pressing invitation to return when I can conveniently do so. A number of the residents of the town were present, among whom were several of our people. The superintendent very warmly complimented my effort and said, "We shall be pleased to have you with us again," so I shall call there if I am near their town.

I am busy finding all I can do, have been well received and given splendid attention in the three churches where I have labored. I will be in Stewartsville Sunday and will hold services there. Am also invited to labor at the Maple Grove church.

Ever praying for the success of our glorious philosophy,

RICHARD BULLARD.

Sister Edith Craven of Richmond, Missouri, one of the young members in the faith, writes that although the Saints are few in number in that place they are trying to do all they can for the cause of Christ. She also tells of the interesting debate at Cowgill, Missouri, which was held recently, with the Campbellites, in which Elder A. M. Baker so ably defended the Reorganization. She continues, "Such a contrast in the Church of Jesus Christ and the man-made church! We surely have much to appreciate and to be thankful for in the gospel."

CHURCH NEWS

Des Moines Young People Spend Profitable Evening at Drake Observatory

DES MOINES, IOWA, April 15.—The young people of the Des Moines Branch spent a most interesting and profitable evening at the Drake Observatory, Wednesday evening, April 9. The young people were shown many of the heavenly bodies through the observatory telescope. Also they were shown the various collections of meteors and photographs which are kept in the observatory. After the visit there was not a person but felt that he comprehended in a finer degree the vast power and extent of the universe which the Almighty had created.

Brother M. T. McCaig was a visitor at Des Moines April 6. Brother McCaig was at one time one of the most active members in this branch and was superintendent of the Sunday school. His friends were indeed pleased to greet him. At present he is living in Chicago.

Brother and Sister O. J. Barr, of Woodbine, and Brother and Sister Forest Pratt are welcome residents of this city.

Brother Norman Anderson was the morning speaker on April 13. Three people were baptized by Brother E. O. Clark in the afternoon.

J. R. Lentell, missionary supervisor, is opening a series of meetings at Oralabor. He has just closed a series at Woodward.

Close Interesting Meetings at Tomahawk, Wisconsin

TOMAHAWK, WISCONSIN, April 15.—On the evening of April 13, L. O. Wildermuth and E. J. Lenox, district superintendent, closed a successful series of meetings here. They had good attendance and interest each evening, and all seemed to regret their leaving.

Brother George Clark was ordained to the office of priest at the sacramental service on April 6. A peaceful spirit prevailed in this meeting.

Brethren Lenox and Wildermuth also went to Harshaw to visit Saints and administer the sacrament. Brother Frank Loomis was ordained to the office of priest at that place. Through the efforts of the mother of Brother Loomis, who distributed tracts at Manauqua, the Methodist people have invited our elders to use their church.

While these brethren were at Tomahawk they were very busy visiting the sick and those who were in need of counsel. Sister Allen, who was seriously ill with gall stones and felt that she could not submit to an operation, received evidence through administration that she should. When she was at the hospital she had to have a double operation and was administered to before and after the operation. She has improved most splendidly and the doctors and nurses say they have the best chart for such an operation that has ever been in the hospital.

The organization of a Sunday school was effected on April 13. There were fifteen present, and the collection amounted to $1.48. Officers elected were: George Clark, superintendent; Lucy Mair, assistant; Laura Clark, secretary; D. W. Mair, treasurer; and Mildred Mair, chorister.

Baby Jelett was blessed at a meeting of the Department of Women.

So God's good work moves on at Tomahawk.

Few Members Now Compose Fairview, Montana, Branch

FAIRVIEW, MONTANA, April 9.—This branch still remains intact, although there are only twelve adults remaining within a radius of twelve miles. Many Saints have moved to other places.

Brother W. P. Bootman speaks of this branch in the last issue of the Autumn Leaves, as the place where he was directed to come by the Lord. None of the present branch members remember that time. The little flock now composing the branch is the fruit of the early labors of the Montana missionaries. The branch was first organized in the country in 1912, but now meets in town.

Announcements of meetings appear regularly in the weekly town paper. The paper has also at times published such articles as have been furnished it for publication.

Sunday School Pupils Do Their Bit for Christmas Offering and Church Debt

CARSON, IOWA, April 13.—There was just a handful at Sunday school and church, April 13, but a good spirit was enjoyed. Brother Morgan preached.

The Sunday school here has pledged itself to raise $200 this year for Christmas offering. This is how it came about. Sister Fena Tanner told the school if they would raise $100, she would give another $100. She is so confident that the school will respond that she has already had her share set aside for that purpose.

Last week two of the sisters prepared some horse radish which Hope Graybill, one of the Sunday school pupils, sold with little effort for $1.60. Being encouraged, the same thing will be tried the coming week.

Another sister popped some corn which Hartzel Fenn, another of the Sunday school pupils, sold for eighty cents. Hartzel saved a part of this for Christmas offering and the remainder he asked to be applied on the church debt, which is now a little less than $35.

Now that the children are finding out they can help, things will progress faster.

Rally Day Held at Wellsburg, West Virginia

WELLSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA, April 14.—The work of the church here is continuing to grow. A good interest is manifested in all departments, which consist of Sunday school, Department of Women, and an organized class taking normal training work on Friday evenings.

Patriarch Gomer T. Griffiths visited the Saints here the week ending April 5. Brother Griffiths had with him slides taken during his travels, which he used in his lectures. The result was a full house every night.

A social was just recently held here under the auspices of the Department of Women, which netted over $50. This was given to help pay for the cafeteria building at Kirtland.

Sunday was rally day at the Wheeling Branch, so some of the Saints from this place attended and enjoyed the services very much.

This branch now has one elder, two priests, two teachers, and a deacon.

A number of the Saints here attended a surprise party at the home of Brother and Sister Givens on the evening of April 5. A very good time was had by all.

The Sunday school is going to have an Easter program on the evening of April 20.

Crowds Attend Week's Meetings at Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA, April 14.—Apostle F. Henry Edwards held a series of meetings in the Minneapolis church, beginning on April 6 and continuing through the week. The message that he brought was well received by the Saints and the many friends who attended the services. The church building was filled to capacity several times, and the average attendance during the week-night meetings was almost a hundred. On Friday night Apostle Edwards gave a special sermon to the young people on how they might gain the more abundant life that is promised through the gospel. After the service, a social time was had together, in which Brother Edwards demonstrated his ability as a recreational leader and helped everyone have a genuinely enjoyable evening through the games they played. Refreshments, of course, followed.

On Sunday morning Brother Edwards gave a very inspiring address on the subject of "Stewardship," presenting the philosophy of this phase of the gospel in a very concrete way. In his evening sermon on "Ten reasons why I am glad I am a Latter Day Saint," he summarized and unified the main points of his previous discussions in a vital manner.

To Enlarge Building

The need for larger quarters for the Minneapolis Saints was evidenced in the past week, so they met together in business session on Monday night, and adopted a plan for enlarging the building which purposes to get at the task as soon as possible. The spirit of the Saints shows that they intend to carry out the work with dispatch and raise the amount needed to finance the improvements in short order. All have confidence in the building committee that things will be handled in the best way.

The reunion committee has announced some definite plans, and preparations are being made to receive and handle the visiting Saints from all parts of Minnesota and elsewhere in the proper manner. The grounds for the tents will be somewhere near Glenwood Park and not far from the church. Meals are to be served in the basement of the church, thus avoiding considerable extra expense and the nuisance of flies and mosquitoes. The speakers who have already been arranged for are President Floyd M. McDowell, Apostle John F. Garver, and Patriarch H. O. Smith. The dates for the reunion are July 3 to 13, and everything will be ready to start off on time.

Echoes From El Reno, Oklahoma

EL RENO, OKLAHOMA, April 15.—The sickness which has held sway for some time has greatly abated, yet some are still sorely afflicted.

The ninety-fourth anniversary was a banner day for this branch; the church was filled with earnest worshipers. The emblems were well received, and a spirit of solemnity and worship prevailed. The Lord gave a very encouraging message to all the Saints, especially to the young and to certain individuals. The result and effect of the good Spirit has caused a general awakening with many, and as a result the services have been heartily supported since. Some of the older ones said it was the best day ever experienced here.

The young people, wishing to do something for the cause, have organized into a band of workers under the leadership of Brother Eugene Connell, with Brother R. W. Mann vice president. Their purpose is to furnish music for the services and programs for the Religio, also wholesome amusements and social pleasures.

The Religio is doing splendid work. The reprint quarterlies are used with great satisfaction. Brother W. A. Connell is in charge.

Brother G. C. Lewis is doing well as superintendent of the Sunday school. Though new in the work, he is an apt and humble student and succeeds.

There were seven children blessed, and Brother Lewis was ordained to the office of teacher on April 6. Since then Brother Lewis has been elected presiding teacher of the branch.

The branch is not quite well organized, lacking only a deacon. There is splendid material here coming on and will be ready when the Lord may direct.

Holden Stake News

Holden

HOLDEN, MISSOURI, April 19.—Elder W. D. Bullard, of Independence, was the speaker at the Holden Home on Sunday, April 13. He delivered the evening sermon at the church also. The Holden Home Sunday school generally has some special number after the lesson service each Sunday. On last Sunday they had one of unusual interest to them, which was the blessing of William Maxwell, son of Brother and Sister Robert Dillon, and Elca Lou, daughter of Brother and Sister G. F. Baker. Brethren Dillon and Baker have been faithful in caring for services at the Home and have endeared themselves to the Saints there.

A letter from J. W. A. Bailey, formerly a missionary in the stake, advises that he has recently closed a series of meetings at Hartsburg in the Northeastern Missouri District, and baptized a number of people, three of whom were residents of Jefferson City. Brother Bailey has many friends in this stake who are pleased to have the result of his labors transferred to this stake even if he cannot be here.

Brethren Robert Dillon and Albert Ament were recently chosen councilmen to serve for the next two years.

The Department of Recreation and Expression will give "Easter dawn" on the evening of April 20.

Holden stake reunion will meet at Holden, July 18 to 27, in the Walnut Grove of Doctor Emery Thompson.

Marshall

Elder I. M. Ross preached morning and evening on April 13 and gave a splendid talk to the Sunday school. He is always welcome at Marshall.

Marshall's new $300,000 high school building was dedicated Monday night. The big auditorium was inadequate to seat the audience which overflowed into the corridors. The building is modern in every respect; which includes the best in a heating and ventilating system. This makes three new public school buildings for Marshall.

Lexington

A very spiritual meeting, including the sacramental service with unusually good attendance was enjoyed at Lexington, April 6.

Elder J. F. Petre returned to his home in Knobnoster, April 7, after one week of preaching. He baptized Brother Bolley. The Sunday school is doing good work and having better attendance than for some time. Brother William Beard is superintendent and zealously pushing the work.

The cradle roll has added a new member, Grace Maurine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Furness. Mrs. Furness is at the home of her mother, Sister Patried, in Warrensburg, at present.

Elder Alvin Knisley preached his closing sermon on Monday night. It is hoped that some time in the near future he will again be here. The continued opening of the gospel plan was appreciated more than can be expressed.

Many of the Lexington Saints are leaving for a temporary period of time to secure employment elsewhere because of the strike of coal miners.

Grandview

The attendance at Grandview has been somewhat smaller of late owing to sickness, the pastor and his wife being among the number. Brother Snyder, one of the deacons, had the misfortune to fracture one bone in his lower limb, but is now able to be out again. Sister A. Cline was taken to the Independence Sanitarium, April 9, suffering with infection in her right hand. Her friends are all hoping for a speedy recovery.

Sister Ticy Moler, formerly of Holden, at present employed in the office of the Quorum of Twelve, visited with the Saints here Sunday.

Elder W. S. Macrae, of the stake presidency, preached two splendid and timely sermons on April 13.

Knobnoster

A splendid feeling of unity seems to prevail in all the departments and progress is being made in Knobnoster.

Sister Frank Good, wife of the pastor, is recovering from an attack of the influenza.

Elder J. F. Petre returned April 7 from Lexington. He reports having baptized a splendid man there. The sacramental service at 11 o'clock, April 6, was well attended and was accompanied by an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Brother R. E. Burgess was the evening speaker.

Sister Lola A. Johnson, of Lexington, superintendent of the Department of Music for the stake, was at Knobnoster, April 13. She occupied the eleven o'clock hour in the interest of the music department. Her address was very highly appreciated and of good to the work here.

Pleasant Valley Saints Welcome Missionary to Their Midst

LUCASVILLE, OHIO, April 11.—The Saints at Pleasant Valley Branch are pleased to have Elder J. D. Shower in their midst again. After his departure a few months ago, many of the Saints became somewhat negligent in their professional duties which looked somewhat discouraging, but now with the arrival of Brother Shower and the cooperation of the Saints, the branch will again be awakened from its lethargy and the work will be manifested with more zeal.

Brother Shower began a series of meetings on April 7. Much interest is shown among the Saints and all seem to be very much encouraged. It is hoped that before his departure many will see fit to embrace the truth and will be enrolled on the records of the Pleasant Valley Branch.

W. L. Sivits, superintendent of the Sunday school at Grand Island, Nebraska, writes: "We are still in the work. We have our little Sunday school with an average attendance of about twelve, and have had as high as eighteen. There are a number of nonmembers attending. We expect Brother E. E. Long here the first of next week to hold a series of meetings. The Utah people are making a great effort to get a hold on the people in Grand Island. We hope however to make the difference as distinct as possible."

District Sunday School Officers Pay Visit to Brooklyn Sunday School

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK CITY, April 16.—Brethren Louis Ostertag and Sam Worrell, of Philadelphia, district Sunday school officers, were in attendance at the session, March 23. Brother Ostertag also delivered the address at the morning church service.

Brother J. F. Rudd is a diligent servant, for in addition to his frequent filling of the local pulpit, he has been invited to address various clubs and societies in Manhattan. Brother Rudd is locating his family here and his influence will in due time bear good fruit.

An exceptionally spiritual service followed the serving of the Lord's supper on the morning of April 5. A special feature of the occasion was the tender pleadings on behalf of those invalidated members of the branch.

Ephraim Squire, branch president, was absent from his post on April 13, while attending to district work in Scranton.

Recent Visitors

The Sunday school interest continues strong while the auto contest goes on. The women's car leads, as might be expected, yet the men are not downhearted. On the second Sunday of the month, Superintendent Millard Friday was honored by the assistance of Bishop M. C. Fisher, of Boston.

Another guest of the day was Brother Charles F. Clark, of Ringling Brothers' Circus, which as usual opens the season's tour at Madison Square Garden. Brother Clark presided over the morning service.

President F. M. Smith Speaks

President F. M. Smith, an unannounced but most welcome visitor, was the speaker in the morning, April 13. His subject, "Our heritages," was presented most interestingly. He took the train during the afternoon for return to Independence.

The church auditorium has taken on added dignity by the installation of new, up-to-date lighting fixtures, thanks to the generous cooperation of some modest Saints. Other improvements are scheduled to follow soon. Special lighting equipment has been arranged for the production of the "Easter dawn" pageant on April 20. Rehearsals, under the direction of Sister K. M. Nichols, have been progressing nicely and a large attendance is expected.

Invitation Extended Saints to Visit Conference at Vinal Haven, Maine

VINAL HAVEN, MAINE, April 6.—Sacramental Sunday was a day well spent in the service of the heavenly Father, many Saints giving inspiring testimonies and expressing a desire to move forward. Elder Harvey Minton was the evening speaker.

The Department of Women continue to hold a baked bean supper every other Tuesday night in the church vestry. The sisters are all faithful workers, desirous of helping to pay for the church building.

Archie Beggs, pastor, attends faithfully to his work. He preached March 16 and 23 during the absence of Brother Minton, and also visits Brother Eugene Barton often because he has been critically ill. Brother Barton holds the office of deacon.

Brother Watson V. Barton passed away on April 1. Funeral services were held from the Saints' church with Brother Minton officiating.

The Sunday school at present is working on plans for the Easter concert under the direction of Sister Agnes Minton. The Department of Recreation and Expression are having lively services each Friday night.

Many of the sick are finding relief as outlined in the channel which God set apart for the benefit of the afflicted.

The members of Vinal Haven Branch extend a cordial invitation to all Saints, especially those near at hand, to attend conference here on May 17 and 18.

Former Bishop of Northern California Dies in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, April 10.—Several of the Saints have been on the sick list of late, but nearly all are well again. George S. Lincoln has been confined to the house for five weeks, much of the time helpless, but he is now recovering.

The branch suffered a loss in the death of Bishop Charles A. Parkin, which occurred March 2. He had been gradually declining for some months and passed peacefully away without suffering. The funeral services were under the care of John A. Saxe, branch president, sermon by George S. Lincoln. Brother Parkin had served for years as president of this branch, also for years as bishop of the Northern California District. He was well known and had a countless number of friends, both in and out of the church. He was always diligent and active in the cause he loved. He died as he had lived, strong in the faith.

Apostle Roy S. Budd has preached here several times lately; so has the district president, J. D. White. The young people are very active in the work, making special efforts in visiting the sick. The three group meetings on Wednesday evening are doing well and are interesting. Church services on Sundays are well attended. Sunday school and Religio are flourishing.

Aged Saint Given Birthday Surprise Party

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS, April 8.—The Department of Women met at the home of Sister Elizabeth Gilbert March 27 and gave her a pleasant surprise on her seventy-fifth birthday. A salad supper was served. The ladies presented her with a Spanish scarf. Many gifts and flowers were received. Congratulations were sent by her six grandsons. A daughter, Sister Susie Sinclair, of Boston, was present. Sister Gilbert is a woman of beautiful character and loved by all.

The Temple Builders met at the home of Bessie Burdette March 7 and gave her a linen shower in honor of her coming marriage to Brother Joseph Cliff. Miss Burdette is a teacher in the Sunday school but not a member of the church.

James R. Houghton, district chorister, met with the choir Saturday night, April 5, remaining in town for the sacramental service on Sunday.

The singers were admonished by the Spirit to take up the work of singing with more zeal than in the past.

Words of encouragement were spoken to our pastor, Elder James W. Heap.

Elder Earl Bradshaw, of Attleboro, will be the speaker at both services April 13.

Elder Orval L. Thompson held special services at New Bradford the latter part of March when the Fall River services were concluded. Groups of the Saints motored to New Bedford to hear him there.

The Rogerson family motored to Onset Sunday, April 6. Some of the Saints live on the camp grounds the year round.

Kansas City Stake Items

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, April 21.—The young people of Kansas City Stake do not do things by halves. This was evidenced by the whole-hearted way in which they entered into the meetings at Central Church which were commenced Sunday, the 6th, and closed on the 13th. A happy combination was the earnest and devoted young people, a God-fearing and consecrated speaker, and an efficient song leader. This triangle proved to be irresistible in filling the house each night and promoting good fellowship and soul-cheering, heartfelt spirituality.

Brother Walter W. Smith as the speaker was at his best, and held his audiences enrapt by his forceful and logical discourses. The subjects selected were appropriate and well received: "The meaning of discipleship," "Let God be true," "Shall he find faith when he comes?" "Obedience is better than sacrifice," "The other comforter," "Thy kingdom come," and "What must I do?" were the seven themes presented.

Congregational Singing

Brother Harold C. Burgess, in his aggressive but pleasing way, secured splendid cooperation in the congregational singing, using a leaflet with eighteen songs, such as "Father in heaven who lovest all," "I would be true," and "Consecration." The young people used their former slogan, "Awake, put on thy strength," which has endured for this the third series and will serve for many more meetings and between times no doubt. "The best young people's meeting yet," is the verdict.

The two prayer meetings showed a spirit of understanding and devotion to the great cause of Christ. The young people of Kansas City Stake do things. They invite you to keep tab on them.

At the end of the closing service, mementos were presented Brethren Smith and Burgess, tokens of esteem in which they were held, which consisted of a bill fold. To keep the partitions apart a lining of green paper was inserted. This lining no doubt will be used by the brethren for other purposes, as it is legal tender at the gasoline stations and stores. Presentations and acceptance speeches were feelingly made. Sisters Smith and Burgess were given a beautiful bouquet of roses, carnations, etc., as compliments of the young people of the stake, all of which was a fitting end of a perfect week.

Independence

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, April 22.—Perfect Easter weather greeted the throngs that attended services on Sunday, April 20. The Independence churches were well filled, thousands being attracted by the special programs offered that day.

Stone Church

At the Stone Church the choir presented a lengthy sacred musical program consisting of solos and choruses. This was followed by a stirring address by Apostle D. T. Williams. The evening hour was occupied by Bishop C. E. Irwin, formerly of Lamoni, Iowa, and now of Philadelphia. Both services were broadcast.

Liberty Street

Patriarch H. O. Smith preached Sunday morning, April 20, at Liberty Street Church, using for his text, "Have faith in God." In the evening Elder Joseph Luff finished his Sunday night series of sermons, speaking on "The living church."

First Independence Sunday School

Easter Sunday was a special day for the First Independence Sunday School. There were present 1,539, with 19 perfect classes reported. The Sunday school orchestra played in the lower auditorium which is occupied by primary and junior departments. Easter flowers were used to decorate the main assembly rooms.

The annual egg shower in behalf of the Independence Sanitarium resulted in a gift of 87 dozen eggs and $1.10 in money, for the church's institution for the care of the sick. This is the equivalent of three full cases of eggs, representing a value of about $20. Last year the shower brought sixty dozen. A few brought a dozen eggs, but in the main this excellent manifestation of good will and loyalty came in quantities of one, two, and three. Some of the tiny tots had encountered a little difficulty but nevertheless arrived with some of the evidence of their desires to be helpful.

The junior service conducted by the Sunday school at 11 o'clock hour in the lower auditorium was attended by about 350 boys and girls, with a scattering of the parents. Brother Harold C. Burgess has recently taken charge of this service and is laying a special emphasis upon the formation of conduct through God's word set to music.

As a special attraction Sister Ella Jones told the story of the life of Christ from the manger to Mount Olivet with lantern slide illustrations.

The primary and senior departments held their teacher conference following the Sunday school, which was exceptionally well attended considering the counter attractions. Sister Christiana Salyards, editor of the quarterly, presented some side lights on the senior lessons for the coming month. Four of the primary teachers who were specially prepared, presented the primary lessons with suggestions as to handwork to accompany this presentation.

Tourist Camp

Upon invitation of Campus authorities, the city park committee recommended to the Chamber of Commerce that the southeast corner of the Campus be used as a tourist auto camp. The ground which would be set aside for this purpose if the city accepts the offer is about 200 by 500 feet. Shower baths and other facilities would be supplied. The use of the Campus for recreational purposes is included in the offer. Definite action has not yet been taken.

Song Recital

James R. Houghton, of Boston, gave a song recital at the Stone Church Friday night, April 18, to a large and attentive audience. Brother Houghton was guest chorister in Independence last summer, leading the conference choir. During the past year he has been a soloist with the Harvard University Glee Club. The recital showed finish and artistry. The music lovers of the city were greatly pleased at the privilege of hearing Brother Houghton's splendid voice.

Dramatic Club

The White Masque Dramatic Club will present three one-act plays in the Junior High School auditorium, Tuesday evening, April 29. They are: "Maker of dreams," "Neighbors," and "Tickless time." The club includes the best available talent in Independence, and the plays promise to be well presented.

(Continued on page 408.)

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Detroit, at Detroit, Michigan, May 10 to 11. Conference will convene at 9 a. m., Saturday, at the Central Church, Fourth and Holden Streets. Special entertainment Friday evening. Kenneth H. Green, president.

Young People's Convention of Chatham District

At Bothwell, Ontario, May 17 and 18. This will be a convention of the young people and some of the leading men of the church are expected to be present. A good program is being prepared. The first meeting will be held at 2 p. m. on Saturday. Special attention will be given to music and to the several departments. Visitors from other districts will be welcomed and the attendance of the young people of this district is specially desired. Bothwell is arranging for accommodation, and meals will be provided. Breakfast, 20 cents; and dinner, 25 cents. Beds free. Anthony R. Hewitt, secretary.

Requests for Prayers

Sister Pearl Eaton, of Vandalia, Illinois, desires the prayers of the Saints for her husband that he may be healed. He is in the hospital at Alton, Illinois, and would be glad to have any Saints near visit him.

Notice to Workers in Departments

Bernard B. Holland, South Point, Ohio, is the correct address for the district superintendent of Department of Recreation and Expression in Southern Ohio. This corrects the address given in the HERALD of last week.

Our Departed Ones

HOPKINS.—Leslie Charles Hopkins died at his home in Enid, Oklahoma, April 2, 1924, at the age of forty-nine years, ten months, and twenty-three days. Leaves wife, Dora Short Hopkins; two sons, George and Clyde; one daughter, Edna; three brothers; and four sisters. Ordained an elder four years ago at Redrock reunion. He was with the telephone company for eighteen years. Funeral from the Baptist church, in charge of L. D. Dyke. Sermon by J. M. Terry.

HEAD.—Sarah Catherine Brown was born in Ohio, April 25, 1858. At the age of eighteen she married John T. Head. Baptized in November, 1902. Died at Hunnewell, Kansas, March 29, 1924. Leaves husband; one daughter, Ellen; an adopted son, Gilford; five sisters; and three grandchildren. Her father, mother, and two sisters precede her. Funeral from the Christian Church at Hunnewell. Sermon by J. N. Madden.

THOMPSON.—Alonzo, son of Harrison and Eliza Thompson, was born April 14, 1847. Married Mary A. Greer, November 7, 1866. Died April 5, 1924. Leaves wife, six sons, three daughters, twenty-eight grandchildren; and fifteen great-grandchildren. One son preceded him. Funeral sermon by J. W. Metcalf. Interment in Marengo Cemetery.

QUINLEY.—J. W. Quinley was born near Warrensburg, Missouri, May 9, 1848. Baptized September 27, 1899. Presided over the branch at Springfield, Missouri, as a priest for eighteen months. Ordained elder October 26, 1902. Was pastor of the Springfield Branch for fourteen and one half years. Joined the First Quorum of Elders, April 11, 1913. Died at his home in Kansas City, Missouri, March 17, 1924. Funeral services at Central Church. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery.

BROTT.—William A. Brott, son of Brother and Sister W. Brott, was born February 9, 1901. Died of tuberculosis, March 31, 1924. Leaves wife, one child, father, mother, and one sister. Funeral from the Saints' church. Sermon by Ward L. Christy.

ROGERS.—Eliza Shepherd Rogers, wife of Samuel N. Rogers, of Madison, Wisconsin, was born August 27, 1846, at Newark, Connecticut. Baptized July 18, 1897. Died April 2, 1924. Funeral from the Saints' church. Sermon by Ward L. Christy.

STEWART.—George S. Stewart was born at Forest Ridge, Ohio, November 14, 1864. Married Nellie Haggerty, April 18, 1891. Baptized about twenty-eight years ago. Died April 2, 1924. Leaves wife and seven children. Three children have preceded him. Funeral from the Presbyterian church. Sermon by G. W. Thorburn.

DOWNEY.—Emery Downey was born in Vermont, November 10, 1830. Has lived also in New York, Illinois, Nebraska, and Missouri. Married Sarah Cole, August 18, 1854. Was first connected with the Strangite movement. Baptized into the Reorganization, June 27, 1863. Ordained priest, July 19, 1863, and elder, September 11, 1899. Died at the home of his daughter in Independence, Missouri, April 5, 1924. Funeral from the residence, in charge of Frederick A. Smith. Sermon by Hyrum O. Smith. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery. Leaves two sons and one daughter. His wife, one son, and one daughter have preceded him.

TREMAINE.—Louisa Belle Sappington Tremaine was born near Hartsburg, July 16, 1861. Married Ezra Tremaine, April 28, 1878. Baptized

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri. Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 Investments Good and Bad ..... 385
 Program of Second International Young People's Convention.. 386
 The Auditorium ..... 387
 The End of the Turkish Caliphate ..... 387
 ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Our Heritage: What Shall We Do With It? by Frederick M. Smith ..... 388
 The Church a Human Necessity, by Thomas S. Williams ..... 393
 LETTERS ..... 398
 D. J. Williams—M. H. Cook—E. B. Burton—Mrs. Hield—J. Goheen—E. R. Davis—William Spargo—Richard and Alice H. Baldwin—Bruce E. Brown—Richard Bullard.
 CHURCH NEWS ..... 402
 MISCELLANEOUS ..... 407
 RADIO ..... 408

more than thirty years ago. She and her husband were pioneers of the work in Northeastern Missouri District. Died not far from the place of her birth, March 24, 1924. Leaves husband, three sons, five daughters, mother, four sisters, and three brothers. Funeral from the Methodist church. Sermon by E. F. Robertson.

RUMEL.—William M. Rumel was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, January 10, 1851. At the age of ten made the trip to Salt Lake City with his parents. Eight years later moved to Omaha, Nebraska. Was well known as a missionary in Nebraska for about fourteen years, holding the offices of priest, elder, and seventy. Retired in 1892 to engage in farming. Died at Edgmont, South Dakota, March 28, 1924. Funeral at Clearwater, Nebraska. Sermon by Levi Gamet. Leaves wife and four children.

BAILEY.—Jacob Bailey was born at Cleveland, Ohio, July 10, 1853. Died at Fort Madison, Iowa, March 10, 1924. Leaves wife, two sons, four daughters, twenty-four grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren. Funeral from the Saints' church at Fort Madison. Services conducted by W. H. Gunn.

MCINTIRE.—Maxine Marie McIntire, daughter of Brother and Sister James McIntire, was born at Aledo, Illinois, April 27, 1911. Baptized June 15, 1919. Died at Fort Madison, Iowa, March 31, 1924. Leaves her father, mother, sister, and grandparents. Funeral from the Saints' church, with W. H. Gunn in charge. Sermon by Amos Berve.

ROGERS.—Mary S. Rogers was born at Rapids City, Illinois, December 8, 1861. Baptized June 24, 1883. Married Victor F. Rogers. Sister Rogers lived fifty-two years in Clay County, Kansas, and moved to Independence, Missouri, about two years ago. Died April 14, 1924. Funeral at the home of Herbert Stevens, Clay Center, Kansas. Sermon by W. J. Brewer. Interment in Idylwild Cemetery. Leaves husband, three foster children, and one sister. An adopted daughter, Mrs. Mae Roberts, preceded her. The children she mothered are: Mrs. Herbert Stevens, Mrs. John Killen, and Harry Owen; her sister is Mrs. Carrie Holt.

Conference Minutes

SOUTHERN MISSOURI.—At the Thayer Branch, February 8 to 10. J. C. Chrestensen, district president, presided with Benjamin Pearson as secretary. Five branches reported a total membership of 508, as against 581 in August, 1923. This decrease was because of transfer of absent members to their respective places of residence. One branch reported a gain of eleven members, bringing their membership to 80, which added to the former and the nonresident group of 70, gives a total of 658 members. Weather and other conditions were not conducive to a fair representation of the membership at the conference, therefore no decision was reached as to where and when the next conference will be. This is left with the district officers, as also was the reunion proposition. All district officers, including the Departments of Sunday school and of Women were sustained. Preaching during the conference was by J. C. Chrestensen, J. F. Cunningham, G. A. Davis, and Benjamin Pearson. J. C. Chrestensen, president. Lulu Rawley, superintendent of departments. Benjamin Pearson, secretary.

SOUTHERN NEW ENGLAND.—At Fall River, Massachusetts, March 15 and 16. The business session opened Saturday afternoon with W. A. Sinclair, district president, presiding, assisted by E. L. Traver, the first vice president, and O. L. Thompson, the district missionary. All business was transacted in an orderly manner with Sister Susie Sinclair acting as secretary. Reports from the various branches showed that the membership is growing and the branches going forward in the gospel. A detailed historical report was read by Brother W. A. Sinclair, reviewing the work accomplished at the reunion and at the conference at Fall River and Brockton, respectively. Officers elected were: W. A. Sinclair, president; E. L. Traver, first vice president; T. J. Elliott, second vice president; Susan Sinclair, secretary; M. C. Fisher, treasurer; J. R. Houghton, chorister; W. A. Sinclair, historian and health supervisor; Lucie Sears, superintendent of Department of Women. The question was raised as to the expediency of holding conventions as of former times. After due consideration it was voted to hold a departmental conference annually, the officers to be elected at conference, the work of the department to be done at the conference, and that each department have a separate treasury of its own. It was decided that the fall conference be the departmental conference. Time and place of the next conference was left to the district presidency. John Jackson was ordained to the office of deacon. Florence Leland.

Radio Flashes

San Antonio, Texas.—Sunday radio programs from Graceland College, Lamoni, Iowa, K F F V, also services from Stone Church, Independence, Missouri, K F I X, are appreciated. We inclose $5 as our freewill offering to Radio Missionary. Our best wishes for advancement.—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ferguson.

Alamosa, Colorado.—Agreeable to your request of last night, March 4, that all your listeners communicate with you as to the merits of your station, program, etc., wish to say that I have been able to get your station clearly with two stages of amplification, using tuned radio frequency with Cunningham C-12 tubes and dry batteries. Have enjoyed your services and programs broadcast from K F I X and each evening you broadcast finds me waiting to receive it. You will better understand the reason when I tell you that I was born and grew up within the boundary of the "Show Me State." It may be of interest to you to know that I am located on the west side of the San De Cristo range of Rocky Mountains which are from 9,500 to 14,000 feet above sea level which shows that a range of mountains is no barrier to a low power station once logged on a receiving set.—A. Tucker.

Chatham, Ontario.—Please extend our appreciation to the L. D. S. Radio Orchestra and the Music Club for their splendid program, April 3. Four listeners from our home enjoyed it. May we venture to request the "Capricious wood nymphs" whenever you see fit? The programs encourage us. We seem to be in touch with headquarters. Having had personal acquaintance with many of the participants makes it still more impressive. If A. B. C. is Brother Arthur Church, the writer has had several conversations with him at Graceland. K F F V is not picked up here on account of so much q. r. m. on that wave length. K F I X on 240 meters has no q. r. m. whatever. We hope for the good work to continue.—Ezra Mifflin.

McGrath, Minnesota.—Have just been listening in on K F I X. It is coming in wonderfully clear and strong. In fact, it is as though we were sitting in the Stone Church listening to the talk and the music. During the time I have

INDEPENDENCE

(Continued from page 406.)

Speaks to High School Students

President Floyd M. McDowell addressed the high school students at the high school, Tuesday morning, April 22. He spoke on "Shaking up and rattling down," explaining how the little fellows go to the bottom while the large ones come to the top. He was well received by students and faculty.

Religio Changes Meeting Time

The Stone Church Religio will change their meeting time from Sunday evening to Friday evening at 8 o'clock, beginning May 16. The reason for the change is because of the close of the public schools at that time, making school night attendance possible.

Joint Council Meetings

The Joint Council is holding meetings daily in the Institute Building. Recently the members made an automobile trip to Atherton, Missouri, to inspect church property at that place.

been here holding meetings, I have constructed a two-tube set for Brother Arthur Bundy, and to-night tuned in for the first time. You can perhaps imagine our joy and satisfaction in being able to tune in so soon on K F I X. The music was surely good and the talk by Brother Hartshorn. Also wish to say that the three solos by Sister Lentell were fine as also the accompaniment by Sister Craig. It was indeed a treat to listen to the good things of Zion so far away up here in the wild woods. Brother Bundy is surely pleased to think he can hear a real program and sermon once in awhile. He said last night, "That makes me proud of my church." Success to you. Come again.—W. E. Shakespeare.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, APRIL 27, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.

Prayer.

Anthem: "Praise the Lord, O my soul!" Royle.

With soprano solo by Miss Helen White.

Sermon by Apostle E. J. Gleazer.

Hymn.

SUNDAY, APRIL 27, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

"Minuet in G," Beethoven.

Played by the Radio Orchestra.

Contralto Solo: "One fleeting hour," Dorothy Lee.

Sung by Mrs. Alice Burgess, with orchestra accompaniment.

"Nocturne," Chopin.

By the orchestra.

"Song to evening star," Wagner.

By the orchestra.

Contralto Solo: "To-day if ye will hear his voice," Rogers.

Sung by Mrs. Burgess.

Sermon by Apostle J. A. Gillen.

Hymn.

TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Musical Program.

Talk: "Bible Stories," Mrs. Eunice Winn Smith.

THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Program by the L. D. S. Radio Orchestra

(a) "Springtime," Atherton.

(b) "I gathered a rose."

(c) "Solvejgs Song," Grieg.

(d) "Iris," Reynard.

(For the remainder of the program the orchestra will repeat numbers previously played in response to the requests to repeat.)

Educational Talk.

K F F V

Broadcast from the Graceland College Radio Studio, Lamont, Iowa. Wave length, three hundred and sixty meters.

SUNDAY, APRIL 27, 1924

6.30 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical program furnished by mixed quartet, consisting of:

Miss Lena Wells, soprano.

Miss Josephine Smith, contralto.

Mr. Evan Fry, tenor.

Mr. Fields Jones, bass.

Mrs. Katherine Robinson Wolfe, accompanist.

Sermon by Elder James A. Thomas.

TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical Program.

THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Educational Program.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, April 30, 1924

Number 18

EDITORIAL

Joint Council Sessions

The Council of Presidency, Twelve, and Bishops, which held daily sessions from April 15 to 25, has proved to be one of the most important in recent years. Some weeks ago the Presiding Bishopric suggested that a council be called to consider the financial situation. On receiving this suggestion the Presidency called the Standing High Council, and that body, after duly considering the situation, recommended that the Presidency call the bishops, except those in foreign fields, and the members of the Twelve in America to Independence for consultation. Acting on this recommendation the call was made by the Presidency.

As a preliminary to the meetings, on the morning of the 15th a prayer meeting was held at the Institute Building (where all sessions were held) and in the evening of the same day a dinner was served to the members of the council by the Laurel Club.

On the 16th regular sessions began, from two to three sessions being held each day. Of the results of the council we shall have more to say in subsequent issues; but here we want to express our appreciation of the work of the brethren. And while we do not in any degree want to depreciate the work of the older men of the council, we cannot but rejoice to see the activity of the younger men. In ages the council ranged from the stalwart veterans like E. L. Kelley, John Zimmermann, sr., and Ellis Short, sr., to the younger men such as Charles E. Irwin and F. H. Edwards, the youngest of the bishops and apostles respectively.

It is firmly believed by all who took part in the discussions and deliberations of the council that a better understanding has been reached, and that a long step has been taken towards a restoration of the complete unity and confidence so essential to the success of the work of the church. Harmony of endeavor among all workers in the church is the objective of all as they go out from this council, and it is hoped and believed that from all workers there will be had a hearty response in this direction.

Those who participated in the council were:
Of the Presidency, Frederick M. Smith, Elbert A. Smith, and Floyd M. McDowell.

Of the Twelve, James A. Gillen, John F. Garver, Thomas W. Williams, John W. Rushton, Daniel T. Williams, Edmund J. Gleazer, Roy S. Budd, and F. Henry Edwards.

Of the bishops, Benjamin R. McGuire, Israel A. Smith, James F. Keir, Edmund L. Kelley, John Zimmermann, sr., Myron C. Fisher, Ellis Short, sr., Albert Carmichael, Roderick May, Robert T. Cooper, Charles J. Hunt, Charles Fry, John A. Becker, Fred B. Blair, A. F. McLean, A. B. Phillips, A. V. Karlstrom, J. August Koehler, Mark H. Siegfried, B. J. Scott, and Charles E. Irwin.

In subsequent issues we shall tell more specifically of what was done.
FREDERICK M. SMITH.

Industries of Zion

It will easily be recalled that each one of the three chief executives of the church who have occupied the position since the church was organized in 1830 has presented and emphasized the wisdom of purchasing land in the regions round about the center place. Not only has this been presented in sermons, councils, and even personal interviews, but the voice of inspiration has spoken on the subject, so that we are placed under the obligation to buy land in these regions if we would obey divine instruction.

There are many reasons why this should be done. The gathering place, at least the center of it, has been clearly specified, and any economic or industrial or social survey of the problems of the gathering will emphasize the importance of agricultural development and security. For us this means agricultural stewardships.

Our record of accomplishment in carrying out the command to buy land is not one to create pride but rather chagrin to those alert to the needs and movements of the present.

By way of reminder it may be pointed out that in the Doctrine and Covenants, section 58, paragraph 1, instructions are recorded to appoint an agent to receive moneys to purchase lands in Zion, and paragraph eleven indicates the will of God to be that this whole region shall be purchased as soon as time will permit.

This was given in 1831. What have we to present as demonstration of our obedience to this instruction?

In paragraph twelve important instruction is issued to the effect that as land is obtained workers should be sent forth of all kinds unto this land, to labor for the Saints of God.

How clearly is presented here our obligation to establish the industries of Zion on the stewardship basis! And what is our record? F. M. S.

Special Features of the Young People's Convention

The Junior Church

Holding a separate church service at the time of the Sunday morning preaching service for the children of the congregation or branch is being done more and more. The Junior Church or its equivalent in some part of the church school is to be found in the better organized and conducted systems of religious education. Like so many of the newer projects, it is capable of great educational and inspirational possibilities or of drifting into a mere "filler-in" to occupy the youth. Mere attendance is not sufficient. If it devolves into this, the movement may be actually harmful in the teaching of irreverence and the like. It may be wise, therefore, to move slowly and carefully in the working out of the junior church program and putting it into effect.

The junior church is not formed by mere separation from adults. Of course, there is some social advantage in this, in that it affords a meeting where the child feels at home. But the needs and interests of childhood are not synonymous with those of adulthood, and performing adult service in the presence of children does not provide a junior service.

The junior church is not for the purpose of segregating ages. Whatever distinction we have between ages must be broken down. There is a place for meetings attended by all ages in which there is felt the unity of the church working for one large goal. But there is also a place for the worship of those of similar level of experience.

In worship one feels the divine comradeship more sensibly, realizes one's part in the world enterprise; and senses the fellowship of Saints as colaborers in this. All this implies a spiritual communion that calls for a likeness of mental, sociological, and religious development. This the junior service affords.

One of the projects of this year's Young People's Convention is a demonstration of the junior church. This will include lectures upon the theory, organization, and administration of the junior work and a daily service conducted by Lamoni workers in religious education, with children of the Lamoni church school working out a regular order of service and organization with junior choirs, sermonets, dramatizations, etc. Workers with juniors will find in this phase a profitable combination of theory and practice, lecture, and laboratory. The junior church is a regular part of the Lamoni church school.

Convention Prayer Services

We are advised that the first thought of those upon whom the responsibility of organizing a program for the Young People's Convention rests, was for the prayer service. This is altogether fitting and proper, for as is the prayer meeting, so will be the convention. Just as we go to the table to eat that we may have physical strength to carry on our labors, so we go to the prayer service to receive that spiritual food which furnishes the soil in which all the other good things engaged in at our convention may grow.

The purpose of the convention is to develop the whole man, mentally, spiritually, and physically. In order to do this there must be the proper balance of each in our program. But if we do not emerge at its close with a higher and nobler conception of God, and our spirits cleansed and purified, we have not imbibed the true spirit of the convention. To this end all our organizations: prayer, song, play, work, preaching, and lectures must tend. It is what the convention may make us feel, in our inner soul, in our attitude toward the gospel that counts. Has it softened our hearts? Has it made us willing to forgive our brother? Has it given us a sense of that cleansing, purifying joy that comes with a knowledge of spiritual refreshing? It is in this atmosphere alone that the other good things in our convention program may be developed. This is true of our work and play as well as our educational efforts.

The purpose then of the prayer service is to prepare the hearts and spirits of the young people for this purpose. It is the backbone of the convention, the pivot about which all other things revolve. It is the field in which all good seeds at the convention must be planted. If you can envisage a well-prepared, well-fertilized field with soil all conditioned to receive the seed, its very appearance causing faith to be generated in its fertilizing power, so well ordered that it seems that the seed would almost spring into life, you have caught the meaning of the function of the prayer meeting at the convention.

This idea we think we went far toward attaining last year, and we hope to reach even nearer the goal this year.

The Situation in the Transjordan

The experiments of Great Britain in her control of the Transjordan have called forth an article in the Palestine Weekly, in which the situation is summed up and editorial recommendation made. The state of affairs existing are given in the account as follows:

Only two years have passed since Great Britain separated Transjordan from Palestine and created there an independent Arab Government under the Emir Abdullah. It was a dangerous move, and had nothing in its favor save the fact that it was to be an experiment only. The history of Palestine gave many warnings against this step, which exposed the more civilized and populated parts of Cis-jordan to raids and sorties by every tide of nomadic tribes minded to cross the river to loot and plunder.

Taking in consideration also the fact that the Wahabis at the time were becoming a power in Arabia, striving to expand east and west, the creation of a new state with one of the sons of Hussein, the Wahabis' bitter enemy, at its head, was a risk, and yet Great Britain took it. One must have a very poor opinion of Great Britain to suppose that in doing so the British Government counted upon the support of the Emir Abdullah. It was well-known that Abdullah was a stranger in little-known Transjordan, and that all the prestige of Great Britain in the East, together with the respect its airplanes commanded among the Arabs, would be needed to keep Emir Abdullah in power. But, on the other hand, it was to be both an experiment and a fulfillment of promises made. The Emir Abdullah was to be given a chance to establish his authority in Transjordan. He was to be supported in his attempts to win the Bedouin to his side, and by this means maintain law and order in the territory, and check the raids into Palestine. As to the Wahabis, England was to use its influence to keep them within bounds until some agreement should be reached between Hussein and Ibn Saud. Great Britain fulfilled all its obligations. Transjordan was treated as an ally and not as a protectorate. A generous subsidy, in the form of a grant-in-aid, was advanced to the Emir Abdullah to maintain his royal state. On numerous occasions the British Government turned a deaf ear to complaints against the ruler. He received armed support against his enemies and was treated with unparalleled generosity. Thus for two years the Emir Abdullah managed to be tolerated in Transjordan, always promising, always undertaking to establish a constitutional Government and to carry out reforms in taxation and in the administration of justice.

Unbearable Situation

But he never kept his promises. The situation in Transjordan has never been so unbearable as it is now. The administration of justice leaves much to be desired. Public funds are appropriated for the ruler and his bodyguard, all of whom are strangers from the Hejaz, disliked by and disliking the inhabitants of Transjordan. Then there are the powerful Bedouin tribes which are exempt from all taxation. They are given a free hand in dealing with their enemies. Justice makes no demands from them so long as they remain allies of the Emir Abdullah and refrain from joining the threatening Wahabis.

The form of Government is very primitive, the officials are either exiled Syrians or Hejazis. Flogging and corporal punishment are in extensive vogue, and in the event of a visit from some prominent member of the Royal Family, who must be royally entertained, the taxpayer is called upon to provide the funds. In vain did the British Government press for a constitutional Government. The Emir's advisers always found an excuse; now the moment was not favorable, at another time the people were not inclined. It is surprising that during these two years the population has made no serious attempt to send away the undesirable strangers. The only thing that seems to have restrained them is the prestige of Great Britain.

The editor in comment upon the matter says that the only policy commending itself to any political student is that the Transjordan be restored under direct jurisdiction of the Palestine Government, of which it will form an integral part.

Former Herald Business Manager Now With Saint Louis Southwestern Railway

A circular letter received by President Frederick M. Smith from the Saint Louis Southwestern Railway Company, "the Cotton Belt Route," announces the appointment of Granville S. Trowbridge as assistant to general traffic manager with headquarters at Saint Louis, Missouri. This will be of interest to HERALD readers because of Brother Trowbridge having been manager of the Herald Office for some time, he having resigned the first of April. He is also known in other circles of the church because of his excellent work as manager of the Transportation Bureau of the church.

Until further notice, all matters concerning railway transportation should be sent to him at address recently published, 714 North Union Street, Independence, Missouri.

Faith

The present is the link which joins the past to the future. In cases of individuals in the determination of the quality of the link, religion is a factor of large coefficient. Perhaps with groups this is equally true. Fortunate, then, are the persons and groups of persons who can look into the past without feelings of shame or chagrin, face the present without fear, and look into the future with hope. Such is the fruit of faith. "When the Son of man cometh again, shall he find faith on the earth?"

F. M. S.

Calendars at Half Price

With eight full months left of the year, we are now offering the 1924 Scripture Text Calendars we have on hand at just half price. These calendars are beautiful reproductions of masterpiece paintings, in full color, and are an inspirational and educational delight. If you have seen the calendars, you will appreciate this opportunity to own one at less than cost; if you have not, this will be a chance to order one for yourself or friends. Only 15 Cents Each

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

www.LatterDayTruth.org

"Back to the Old Paths"

Occasionally we hear some one say in connection with the church work, "Back to the old paths." At the last General Conference, according to the printed reports, some one on the conference floor urged that we do so. It is not an argument. It is purely an assumption that we are not traveling on the old path, and as such it is equivalent to saying that the church is in a state of apostasy, and on that false assumption we are called back.

When a boy, the writer frequently followed old paths through the woods and underbrush. It was always a very delightful experience. Every little hill and vale, every log and pile of brush, every stream of water and every little clearing, the beaver meadow and the dam of logs which the industrious little animals had built, had its thrill of delight as it came in view.

To have stopped at any point along the pathway would have been uninteresting, and the scenery would have become monotonous. The constant progress and change as the pathway unwound itself was the real reason for following it.

And so in the church there are people who having entered upon the old path want to stay right at the entrance, overlooking the fact that the very word path suggests that it leads somewhere. The church should move along on the old path. It should not stand still. As new scenes unfold themselves before us we should not presume we have gone on another path, but that it is the natural result of progress. It is illogical to presume that because the church has moved along and you have not, it has moved off the path. You should catch up with it. You have no right to presume that you are the only one in the straight and narrow way. You have no right to ask the church to go back one hundred years in order to be with you. It should press on to fairer and happier scenes.

All good things have had to fight for their place in the church. The writer remembers when there was considerable opposition to the Sunday school. There was opposition to instrumental music in the church, until a revelation told us to use "instruments of reed, and of string, and of brass." To-day there is opposition to making proper provision for the youth and children of the church. There is opposition to education. They do not see that education is simply the systematic delivery of the accumulated knowledge of past generations to the rising generation so that the coming generation may be properly informed as to the real place they occupy in the world's history and progress that they might occupy wisely and well.

Once we sat beside a little boy on a small steamer

DEPARTMENTAL

Special Railroad Rates for Visitors to the Young People's Convention at Lamoni

A reduction to one and one half fare for the round trip on the "Certificate Plan" will apply for visitors (also dependent members of their families) attending the Young People's Convention to be held at Lamoni, Iowa, beginning June 5, 1924. The arrangement will apply from the following territory:

All points in the United States except points south of the Ohio River and East of the Mississippi River; also from points in Canada east of and including Armstrong, Fort William, and Sault Sainte Marie, Ontario; points in Manitoba on the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railways only, and all points in British Columbia.

The following directions are submitted:

Restricted Date of Sale

1. Tickets at the normal one-way tariff fare for the going journey may be brought on any of the following dates BUT ON NO OTHER DATES:

From Arizona, British Columbia, California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, and Washington, May 30, 1924, to June 4, 1924, inclusive; summer excursion fares on a lower basis than the certificate plan fares will also be in effect from most of this territory; tickets on sale from May 22, 1924, to September 15, 1924, inclusive, with return limit of October 31, 1924.

From Colorado (except Julesburg), Montana, Utah, and Wyoming, May 31, 1924, to June 5, 1924, inclusive.

From all other points from which rates are authorized as above, June 2, 1924, to June 7, 1924, inclusive.

Don't Overlook the Above Dates of Sale

2. Be sure when purchasing your going ticket to ask the ticket agent for a certificate. Do not make the mistake of asking for a receipt. If, however, it is impossible to get a certificate from the local ticket agent, a receipt will be satisfactory and should lying alongside of the dock. Unexpectedly the boy saw the dock move away from the steamer. It was very amusing to see the look of astonishment on his face. But he silently looked very intently at the moving dock till he discovered that the dock was stationary and that he himself was moving away from it. If people who think the church is drifting would look as carefully as that boy did they would discover that it is they who are drifting.—Glad Tidings.

---

be secured when ticket is purchased. See that the ticket reads to Lamoni, Iowa. See that your certificate is stamped with the same date as your ticket. Sign your name to the certificate or receipt in ink. Show this to the ticket agent.

3. Call at the railroad station for ticket and certificate at least thirty minutes before the departure of the train.

4. Certificates are not kept at all stations. Ask your home station whether you can procure certificates and through tickets to the place of meeting. If not, buy a local ticket to nearest point where a certificate and through ticket to place of meeting can be bought and get receipt for fare paid to such point as well as certificate from there to Lamoni, Iowa.

5. Immediately upon your arrival at the meeting present your certificate to Mr. H. H. Gold, as the reduced fare for the return journey will not apply unless you are properly identified as provided for by the certificate.

6. No refund of fare will be made on account of failure to either obtain a proper certificate, or on account of failure to have the certificate validated.

7. It must be understood that the reduction for the return journey is not guaranteed, but is contingent on our receiving not less than 250 regularly issued certificates from ticket agents at starting points showing payment of normal one-way tariff fare of not less than 67 cents on the going trip.

8. If the necessary minimum of 250 regularly issued certificates are presented to the joint agent, and your certificate is validated, you will be entitled to a return ticket via the same route as the going journey at one half of the normal one-way tariff fare from place of meeting to point at which your certificate was issued up to and including June 18, 1924.

9. Return tickets issued at the reduced fare will not be good on any limited train on which such reduced fare transportation is not honored.

Special Notice to Pacific Coast Visitors

Visitors from Pacific Coast points should inquire from agents regarding tourist ticket rates as the summer tourist rates are much less than the special rates outlined above and these tickets are on sale from May 22, 1924, to and including September 15, 1924, and are good to return till October 31, 1924. These permit unlimited stopovers at intermediate points and are good on all fast trains.

If you cannot get the information you wish about rates or routes, write me.

G. S. TROWBRIDGE, Transportation Manager.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, April 29, 1924.

714 North Union Street.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

The Relation of the Church to Society

Sermon by Frederick M. Smith, at the Stone Church, Independence, Missouri, February 10, 1924.

PART I

It is with some degree of timidity that I stand this morning before my audience, seen and unseen, in attempting to speak to them on so important a subject as the relationship of the church to society. I would not presume to undertake this task if I did not feel with a deep-seated consciousness that it is my duty as leader of this organization to present the ideas of this church on this subject. And while I have not had the opportunity because of the pressure of routine matters to organize my presentation as carefully as I should like, yet I trust that there will be sufficient backbone to what I present this morning to enable you to carry away an organized idea of my thoughts on this subject; for I feel that they are of prime importance to us as a church and just as important to all people who stand for progress and advancement.

If we were to consider the church from the purely philosophical viewpoint, we would say that it is society religiously organized, and this viewpoint would cause us to say that the church as at present constituted is the result of man's effort to feel after God and try to express that feeling ceremonially. So envisaged, the church is man-made and it is the church of the people. From another viewpoint and one which we approach with a much greater feeling and degree of familiarity than the one which we have just mentioned is this: the church is the organization of man by divine instruction or command for carrying out the purposes of God's will and promoting progress towards eternal life or salvation. This envisagement of the church makes it God's church. In either case the church has primarily to do with religion, man's conscious attitude towards God.

God's Church

The Christian religion, and I shall not speak this morning of the other many religions that exist in the world, falls under the second division of the two classifications which we have made, God's church. In the words of the scripture, "For God so loved the world that he sent his only begotten Son, that whosoever believed on him might not perish but have everlasting life," is set out clearly the one great central fact which should dominate always in the heart and consciousness of Christians, that God sent his Son; and this scripture also contains the cardinal idea of Christian life that the purpose that God had in sending his Son is that man might enjoy everlasting life. That means salvation.

How does God expect to accomplish his purposes? How does he expect that he shall reach his goal? How shall there come to man that saving power that will bring eternal life? And the answer comes, "By the gospel of Jesus Christ." "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation," said one of the great advocates of the Christian religion.

The Power of the Gospel

This morning I wish to emphasize not so much the principles of the gospel as I do the word "power" in this passage of scripture. It is the "power" of God unto salvation, and being the power it operates only when actualized. The gospel of desire is kinetic and can save no man. It can save only when through the activation of the principles which God has established it shall be made dynamic in the life and lives of individuals who espouse the gospel. And only as it thus becomes dynamic is it permitted to be that which will save. And it seems to me that a question with which we should be vitally concerned this morning is, "Has the gospel become in my life the power that will save me, that will bring me everlasting life?" I have put that wrongly. The question, if we are truly Christian, that every man should be concerned with, and I believe particularly Latter Day Saints, is, "Has the power of God, the gospel of Jesus Christ, so entered my life that I am concerned about saving others and bringing others eternal salvation?"

If my conception of the import of the passage of scripture which we have quoted is correct, then the church must be essentially and continuously concerned with the gospel of Jesus Christ. Its first duty, then, is to promote belief in God, and in Christ as the means of applying the power of God. "For God so loved the world that he sent his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him might have everlasting life." And only thus through the magic and dynamic power of belief can the gospel become the power of God unto salvation to individuals.

But belief alone will not do it. Work is the magic key which loosens this power in our lives. Application of the principles of the gospel to our lives individually and collectively, and primarily collectively, will bring salvation or eternal life.

It is not my purpose this morning to discuss the principles of the gospel. They have been discussed and rediscussed in your hearing and are being discussed in a masterly way in the evening services now, but I desire to touch more upon the purposes of the gospel which is bringing that everlasting life.

Meaning of Everlasting Life

Everlasting life! What does it mean to say everlasting life? Can we envisage the gospel thus? Does life everlasting begin only when we have shuffled off this mortal coil? I cannot for one moment conceive it to be such, for then it would be interrupted life or life delayed in its beginning. But everlasting life and for us to find it, have been the purposes of God for all time.

In my discussion, therefore, of the church in its relationship to society, I have in mind that organization of society through which is sought the largest expression of the Christian religion or of the Christian philosophy. The particular train of thought which I have entered upon this morning was stimulated not long ago by hearing a man, an eloquent man, say, "Christ came not to save nations or races or states or groups, but the individual." And I must confess that while those words sounded good and, I was surprised to see, found a very ready response in the hearts and minds of many who listened to them, I could not help but say, I wonder if the gospel of Jesus the Christ has found full expression in the soul of the man who uttered those words?

The purposes of God and Christ are life, the larger life, as is indicated by the words of the Savior, "I come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly." That is the everlasting life that we referred to in the first passage of scripture that I quoted—life now as well as the life beyond, for the more abundant life cannot be enjoyed unless there be a realization of that life now and the beginning of it here. "I am come that ye might have life," said Jesus, and nowhere in all the presentation of his philosophy to us has the message of Jesus come that life everlasting is for the individual alone. And even if we are disposed to think that the application of the principles of the gospel may in some instances be applied only to the individual, it seems to me that all that idea of this exclusive individual characteristic of the application of the gospel is forever and perhaps fortunately swept aside by those other words of the Savior that "No man liveth to himself alone." How true that is! I do not care along what line you shall attempt to analyze life it becomes apparent even with the most superficial observation that in no sense and in no field is the life of man alone.

Relationship of Individuals

You came into existence as a biological unit only from the relations between individuals. Your very infancy was spent in helplessness that would have eliminated you as an individual in a few short moments if there had not been other individuals interested in the preservation of your life; and just as truly as we exist to-day because other individuals were, the generations of to-morrow will exist because we live to-day.

Equally true is it that the more abundant life is a life of inter-relation of individuals, for it seems to me that it ought to be one of the joys of the contemplation of the purposes of God of the grandeur and significance of the gospel of Jesus Christ to realize that with a comprehending of those refined intellectual and spiritual (which means the cultural) faculties of life, there comes more and more to the fore the thought that man does not live to himself alone, but he exists for the benefit and the comfort and salvation of others as well. We live among others; we live for others, not by ourselves or for ourselves alone.

Even to believe that we can live alone is unchristian and should not be tolerated by Christian peoples. Christ came to save not the individual, but mankind, which is the individual in relation to others. Let us not forget the social significance of the gospel of Jesus Christ as indicated in those words, "No man liveth to himself alone." The social function of the gospel has been too long overlooked. And when I say this I do not by any means exclude our own church. Not only have we too long overlooked the social function of the gospel of Jesus Christ, but let me repeat what I have said before, there is danger that we will delay in recognizing in a practical way what this means to us.

Reason for Existence of the Church

Every organization should and must have some reasons for existing. It will go out of existence if it has not. What, then, are our reasons for existing? Why do we as a church attempt to function to-day? Let me put it a little more plainly, What is the reason for the existence of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints? Was there need for another faction of the Christian church? Does it mean that people cannot live together, therefore they split off because of ambition? We claim that we came into existence as a church because of a need for a restoration of the gospel of Jesus Christ as reflected primarily in the authority to represent God. We claim the restoration of an authoritative religion, the right to represent God. And there is danger of, not alone of the people of the world to-day, the Christian churches at large, forgetting this fact, but there is danger as well that Latter Day Saints may forget that our very reason for existence claims a restoration of the right to represent God.

This church, therefore, then, by its claim is not man's church, but God's church. Is it functioning as God's church? A question which should be of prime importance to us. The restoration of the gospel of Jesus Christ means an attempt to bring into dynamic activity the gospel of Jesus Christ as a saving power, that which will bring salvation and eternal life, life here as well as life beyond, and this is of importance to us as well as to all people.

To save man is the work of redeeming man in relation to others, not as an individual. This church then as a reason for its existence comes laying special significance upon man's relation to man. We try to impress the sublime truth, "No man liveth to himself alone." The work, then, of this church is one of continuous warfare against self-serving interests and selfishness. And this will lead it into fields of activity that have been excluded by some, that of finance. It will carry it into the realms of industry, into realms of economics, and into the realms of government as well. To Christianize society is another way of objectifying our goal, the very crux of the purposes of the church.

Objectifying Our Goal

How shall we accomplish this task? There is only one solution to the problem and that is to teach men to live among men. There has been altogether too strong a tendency to hold that the church only is engaged or should be engaged only in teaching men how they may become angels, I suppose teaching them how to fly, along with other things. But I am not concerned about the church functioning to teach us how to act when we are angelified, for I presume if we have learned to live here we will have learned how to die.

But in another way it means that for us to reach our objective as a church we shall be engaged in teaching people that our very existence, our acts and thoughts, our interactions all have relation to the influence upon others. And a concomitant of this is that each individual would have a concern as to whether or not that influence is working for good or working for evil. It must be our object to impress the idea that welfare should be common and not individual, and the idea that Christ came to save the individual and the individual alone, not as a unit of the group, has sprung into existence from those who would hold that every man has a right to gather unto himself the blessing of all that which he can hold and control.

We must be concerned in teaching that every person has the bounden duty to contribute to the welfare of others and of his fellow man. If this view of the functioning of the church is correct, then it is the duty of the church to make its influence felt in all the activities of life, and the exerting of its influence is not by any means confined to the experiences within the four walls of the cathedral or the church, nor is it confined to the religious life in the narrow sense of the individual himself, but it must reach out and have an influence in the life of the individual in all its activities as a citizen of the government as well as a citizen of the kingdom of God. One of our present social and material dangers and one which exists in our own church potentially if not in fact is the attempt to exclude the church from participation in public affairs and confine it to purely theological or ecclesiastical circles. The church which permits itself to be thus pushed aside into a small corner from which its influence will become less and less and reach a constantly lessening circle of people is destined to die of dry rot, and that soon. Our progress as a church depends upon the grasp of this fundamental idea that, "No man liveth to himself alone."

Social Import of the Gospel

Far too common is the idea that religion is an individual affair. We might build the most resplendent buildings, we might erect and dedicate the most exquisite temple within the capacity of man, we might dedicate it to the service of God, but if we failed to demonstrate in a practical way the social import of the gospel of Jesus Christ we shall fall far short of our goal and our purpose as an organization.

We might develop to the highest possible degree of individual righteousness, yet if we do not so organize that this individual refinement shall issue in better relations of man to man, group to group, we shall fail. Salvation of the individual is impossible without the more abundant life which flows only from the purest, richest, highest, and noblest social life.

The riches of God with which he would bless mankind can be had only when the gospel of Jesus Christ, the power of God unto salvation, finds place in our hearts and issues in making available to everyone full opportunity for development and expression of talents and when all shall be willing, nay, desirous and determined that the accumulation of fruits of right endeavor shall be the common heritage of all, when the power and the will to contribute comfort and happiness to others shall be the measure of man's achievement.

Such is the goal of this church in its attempt to dispose, in an affirmative answer, of the question, "What is the relation of the church to society?"

Peace

By Bruce E. Brown

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee.—Isaiah 26: 3.

Never before in the history of the world has there been so much lack of peace and of that which makes for peace. You may think that there is not much call at this hour for a talk on peace; but I am confident that never before has there been a time when the world was as upset as it is to-day. If you will take a survey of your immediate vicinity, you will see that I have given a correct estimate. Is it not true that almost everybody you know is upset?—not necessarily at war with some one else, but restless and dissatisfied? Almost every man lacks that one thing without which life cannot be happy. He lacks peace. Some people thought when the war was over that there would be such a sentiment on the part of mankind against it and all things pertaining to it that the world would be glad to rest. It makes no difference how many things we take out of the way, the lack of peace still continues. Some people say, "If I were busy, I would be at peace"; "If I had money, I would be at peace"; "If I had health, I would be at peace." But I have found that it does not make any difference if every hindrance is removed; peace does not come. Peace comes, not from any tangible cause, but from an intangible, unnamed factor in creation. We wish to know how to have, with our relatives, with our neighbors, our business competitors and partners, and so on down the line, the relationship which makes life rich and beautiful.

Relationship of Friendship and Peace

Friendship and peace are relationships, man with man. In order to know how to obtain and retain peace we must find the cause of the opposite condition. It needs explanation. In the first place, we have been educated by books, a process of limited value at best. The education that comes from the doings of our teachers, our parents, and our neighbors is infinitely more powerful in the lives of children. When children learn anything from hidden sources, it is almost impossible to eradicate it. From the mother the child is receiving knowledge that every man must look out for himself. It is being taught that there is a competition fierce and acute, between every individual. Do you think you can build charity or the Christ spirit with such training? It is utterly impossible, and, yet, that is what the world is trying to do. It tries to do that thing because it does not know better. Is it any wonder that we have perturbing quarrels? We do not want to be quarrelsome, but we take it for granted that we must keep up our interests; we must build a fence around ourselves and protect our lives against all intrusion. The result is either armed neutrality, or open war.

Healing of Consciousness

There is only one possible healing for a state of lack of peace between man and man, and that is the healing of the consciousness. To change the state of mind, we must change the belief on the part of mankind that there must be antagonism between individual and individual and so between nation and nation. War cannot be stopped by destroying battleships or limiting armaments. Taking away the gun does not change the state of mind. Whenever the consciousness is changed war will cease.

The only hope of the world for peace is the knowledge of the truth, and when that knowledge is in the mind of man, all the things he has built on false beliefs will disappear. It is not a matter of philosophy; it is a revelation. Man will never have stable equilibrium until he finds it in the truth: the gospel of the Christ. For a million years he may quarrel with that fact, but it is the truth.

Meaning of Repentance and Salvation

I know all the sentimentality that has been poured out upon mankind about the prodigal son's return to God. There are two words in the New Testament which have been so terribly abused by Christians that any self-respecting man almost refuses to use them. They are "repentance" and "salvation." The meaning of the word repent is simply to turn back; face the other way. Salvation means a safe return. The prodigal son turns about and faces the other way, and makes his safe return to his father. The world has wandered far from its God, and cannot have peace until it finds it in the "old paths" of salvation. You may put on the salve of good health, wealth, pleasure, romance, or whatever you want of good, but you never can expect to have peace until you learn to obey the gospel of the Christ. He said, "My peace I give unto you."

The Law of Divorce

By S. A. Burgess

It is one of the unfortunate factors of the law governing in the United States that each State acts independently in the matter of marriage and divorce, while as a matter of interstate comity the acts of the other States are recognized as a rule. This is not, however, invariably the case, since no State is bound to accept the act which it does not permit if attempted by its own courts.

Diversity of Divorce Laws

There is a great diversity on the subject of divorce, all the way from South Carolina, which permits of no divorce, but does provide for the amount which a man may leave to any paramour, to the easy divorce of some Western States. New York also allows no divorce except on the grounds of marital incontinence. Great Britain until recently did not permit a divorce to a man except on the grounds of adultery, and to a woman, divorce could not be secured even for adultery but only when added thereto there was cruelty.

New York and Massachusetts and certain other States will not acknowledge a divorce between citizens of the State if such divorce is secured in any other State. It is in fact the purpose of the law even of the Western States where those desiring an easy divorce take up residence that divorce shall only be granted to permanent residents. But since the statute must be specific, this is usually a matter of six months or one or two years.

New York has steadfastly refused to acknowledge a divorce where the marital domicile, the home in which the parties live, is in that State, if the divorce be secured elsewhere, and in this decision it has been upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. It is therefore readily seen, the risk that is run by any person whose marital domicile has been in that State if, leaving the State, a divorce is secured elsewhere. If such a person ever returns to New York, having remarried, he or she can be taken up for bigamy and can also be made the defendant in a suit of divorce on the grounds of adultery. It is safe, and would seem to be fundamentally sound personal procedure on behalf of the church that divorce be secured only in the State where the persons made their home during the marriage, regardless of the cause for divorce.

But where such a divorce is secured, a number of cases have arisen where the persons have gone to an adjoining State to be remarried, or rather, married to some other person. In Massachusetts and Illinois and many other States, when the divorce is granted, neither party is at liberty to remarry until the end

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Are You Interested

1. In Better Church Schools.
2. In Efficient Leadership.
3. In Christian Citizenship.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

of a certain period. In New York neither party can be married, until the court has signified a sufficient period has elapsed. Again, the right of remarriage is limited to the innocent party.

Evidently the church cannot countenance, no matter what may be the grounds of divorce, a remarriage where the parties go to another State to avoid the law of the State governing the former marriage and divorce. Such a new marriage will not be recognized in the State where the divorce was secured. If ever the question is brought before the court, a ruling will be made to that effect. The children are illegitimate and the parties are guilty of unlawful cohabitation.

Attitude of the Church

The church has taken the very strong attitude that there is but one cause justifying a marital separation and divorce. We may remember that the common law once permitted divorce from "bed and board," which is a legal separation which prohibits the parties from living together as husband and wife, determines their property rights, but leaves neither party free to remarry. This is still the case in certain Western States and in certain parts of the British Empire. This right of separation, when conduct is intolerable, is not the same thing as divorce which permits the remarriage of the innocent party.

The query naturally arises, May not the church countenance in some cases at least, a separation, where the parties cannot reside together in peace and happiness yet not recognize the right of either of the parties to remarry? It may be that many are like the good brother whom we recall who at once said, "What's the use of getting a divorce, then?" If divorce is only for the purpose of remarrying, which follows closely after the divorce is secured, such divorce would seem to be a strong grounds for suspicion, if not more than a suspicion, of putting away for the sake of adultery. (See Doctrine and Covenants 42:20.)

At the same time, the church cannot justly take the position that if either of the parties is guilty of a marital offense, then a divorce may be secured, leaving both parties free to marry again. In every case, all of the facts must be considered and no right can possibly arise out of the moral wrong.

All things should be done in order. When a marriage is forbidden within the boundary of the domicile, a grave risk is run by any person who goes beyond the limits of the domicile to do that which is not permitted at home. The standard of the church must be set high, but in addition thereto, the law of the church will never come short of the law of the land, or approve that as right, which by the law of the land is forbidden.

We Need a Church Laboratory

By Leonard S. Rhodes

Is it wise to heed the Word of Wisdom? Is it wise to attempt to understand it along with its whys and wherefores? To many Saints it is meaningless. Others regard it as foolishness. A few believe it. Fewer still practice it, or try to. And even a less number understand its full import.

The Word of Wisdom has no authoritative interpretation. Oh, yes; we have priestly authority for its interpretation—plenty of it, and diversified; but the authority that comes from scientific research and experimentation, we do not have. The Word of Wisdom needs authoritative interpretation; and we as a church need the benefits that would undoubtedly come from its strict and general observance. Doctor Frank Crane says that "About nine tenths of sin is some sort of sickness." When we are reminded by authorities that seventy-five per cent of the American people are physically below par, including the Saints, we begin to realize the opportunity the Word of Wisdom has for improving us spiritually, not to mention physical benefits.

The ultimate aim of the Word of Wisdom is toward spiritual improvement. It is not a temporal law. Some say it is not a command. It is not in the sense of being a test of fellowship. But just as sure as it is the word of God it was given to be obeyed.

Purpose of Laboratory

We need a laboratory to test the teachings of the Word of Wisdom and aid in their interpretation. It should be conducted by experts who believe in the Word of Wisdom sufficiently to put its teachings to the test intelligently and impartially. By experimenting upon animals such as rats, rabbits, guinea pigs, doves, etc., they could discover the true meaning and purpose of Doctrine and Covenants 86. This would help to make the laws of God clear and profound to us, just as Milo Hastings is doing for readers of Physical Culture.

The Word of Wisdom is one of the most important revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants. But as a class we almost, if not altogether, ignore it. There is a fast growing class in the world who know more about its teachings than we do. Why must we wait for the world to teach us the laws found in section 86, as we are doing with the problem of stewardships?

If we do not choose to obey it as a duty and a privilege, we shall be forced to obey it at the hand of the destroying angel. This has been shown by inspiration to members of the church.

We need a food research laboratory to conduct various and numerous experiments. Their object should be to arrive at the truth and answer such questions as:

Why should fruits and vegetables be eaten only in season? What, if any, harm do they do if eaten out of season, or canned, dried, or preserved? Are fruits and vegetables out of season if not grown in the climate in which we reside? If so, in what way are they harmful?

We need the authority of scientific research to help us gain a uniform interpretation of the injunction to eat flesh sparingly. What is sparingly? Why may we eat it preferably in times of winter, cold, or excess of hunger? What is cold? What is famine? What is excess of hunger? Should we become strict vegetarians in summer? Why? If so, are there exceptions? Do we gain or lose, and what, by becoming strict vegetarians or by eating meat sparingly? Are fish, clams, oysters, etc., to be considered flesh, in the meaning of the revelation? The church ought to know.

A food research laboratory run by the church would teach us the rightful place of forbidden things. Tobacco is said to be for bruises and all sick cattle, to be used with prudence and skill. What is the prudent and skillful way of using it? What are hot drinks? Tea and coffee only? Or does it include hot water? What harm do they do? What, if any, good purpose has whisky, wine, or beer? When is an alcohol bath beneficial? Should we forbid the use of raisin juice or canned grape juice in the sacrament? How can we make healthful and appetizing drinks from grains? May they be served hot? If not, why not?

Use of Herbs in Sickness

In Doctrine and Covenants 42:12 we are taught to nourish the sick with herbs and mild foods. What herbs shall we prescribe for this or that sickness? Must they be prescribed by a doctor? Must he be a church doctor? Or may the elders instruct the sick or their caretakers in what herbs to use, after the elders have first been instructed in the use of the herbs? Why should we arise early? Why will not a proper number of hours' rest any time of the day do?

We need a food research laboratory to find out, and then tell us just what is comprehended by the "staff of life." Is the pale white loaf the staff of life? Is the baker's so-called whole wheat bread really made of the whole wheat? Is it the staff of life? Should the entire whole wheat go into our staff of life? If not, why? If so, why? Why are oats best for horses, corn for cattle, barley for fowls, etc.? Does this prove true by actual test?

Shall we taboo white sugar, white flour, and such preservatives as vinegar, pepper, salt brine, sulphur, benzoate of soda, etc.? Would it not be well to work out appetizing and tasty menus and recipes in harmony with the knowledge we shall have gained?

The answer to all these questions furnishes a vast field for experimental and research work. We need a scientifically conducted laboratory to help answer them. Shall we lazily wait for the world to answer them while we debate mooted questions? Or shall we lead the world and bring our light to them? How long shall we delay finding the length of days promised in section 86?

---

It sometimes takes courage to insist that you are right, but a lot more to admit that you are wrong.

---

Chief Rabbi Kook left Palestine recently for America on a mission to save the old orthodox charitable institutions from ruin. In the past year several of the subsidies to religious occupations have been cut down or abolished and the situation has become critical. In order to alleviate the distress, Chief Rabbi Kook has gone to America upon request of local Palestine institutions and a group of American philanthropists, to reorganize the system of remittances from America to Palestine. Thousands of Jews in Jerusalem, bred in a spirit of pauperism, have until very recently scorned work and study of everything but religion. Institutions which have fostered that attitude are now beginning to introduce other things in their curriculum and unless the Jews are suddenly thrown into destitution by immediate failure of the charitable system, they will continue to move steadily forward toward independence.

---

It is remarkable to remember that it is but a few years ago, less than a decade, that Northcliffe offered $50,000 to any man who would cross the English Channel in an airplane, yet that distance is not as far as from Chicago to Milwaukee. The ocean has since been crossed, and now the continent of America has been crossed without stopping, the engine being repaired while in transit and an average speed of at least a hundred miles an hour maintained for the whole distance. It is not therefore surprising that an editorial writer suggests that young people of to-day will yet fly around the earth and think no more of it than we think of riding in an automobile, but as he adds, "in mechanical ways we move rapidly, in intellectual ways less rapidly. Perhaps a spiritual age will follow this mechanical age. Let us pray for that."

Our Minstrels

An address given before the London Branch, England, by William T. Goullee (district chorister for southern district), on February 10, 1924. Reported by Flossie A. Tatman.

And it came to pass, when the minstrel played, that the hand of the Lord came upon him.—2 Kings 3:15.

The majority of my hearers this evening are familiar with the history of this prophet and his former associate. It does not need much imagination to picture the condition prevailing in the days of Elisha. As his predecessor, Elijah, often in close communion with God, so Elisha felt the need of the hand of the Lord as our text tells us. We only read of this occasion and yet there may have been other times when the voice from above spoke through that same agency. Perhaps this may seem a very ordinary means of grace.

Again it may seem strange that God should speak to any man through such a channel. But the truth is that we, too, are indebted oftener than we perhaps realize to agencies and instruments, as material or unlikely as Elisha's minstrel, for help and inspiration as truly divine. The majority of my hearers could undoubtedly give some illustration in their own lives of the minstrel they may have needed in an hour when all around looked cloudy.

One or two illustrations I have in mind at the moment. They may not come in the usual way of song, but perhaps as Ruskin sensed while in Venice when the scenes of life's sorrows and wrongs swept over his heart with the might of a destroying storm. We are told the pen dropped from his hand, and hope departed from his heart.

One day crossing the square of Saint Mark's at Venice he saw the cathedral rising like a vision out of the ground. Its front one vast forest of clustered columns, upon which rested domes glorious enough to have been let down from heaven. As he lingered there, and by and by stepped inside, slowly the fever passed from his heart and the fret from his mind. In the silence and peace of that vast architecture he found healing for life's hurt. It said something to him that it might not have said to you and me. It was his minstrel, that thing of stone and lime.

Perhaps an incident I heard of quite recently in connection with our district conference would be interesting. A week after, at our midweek prayer meeting, a sister told us in her testimony how much a solo sung during the evening service by a young brother had been a help and solace to her during days of trouble. I feel sure that she was not the only one that came to the conference feeling maybe weary of heart and mind. Through the efforts of some at least in their musical activities of the district helped to cheer us in the days that are to come. Are there not many such happenings in our lives that echo to some similar experience?

Feeling the Hand of the Lord

Have you not felt the hand of the Lord upon you, when you listened to the wind sighing among the heather or watched the sea break on a lone shore, or even ponder at the mighty, rolling, seething ocean, or the brilliant-colored flame of fire as the majestic sun sinks in the west and the varied reflections that are left in the sky; or the birds calling to each other in the woods and forest or even listening to the birds warbling in the early morning? There are books we read, and poems we love, and music that our souls delight in, that have the strange power of saying to us far more than the mere words or melody can express. There is comfort in them for the hour of sorrow; a new hope for us when we are weak, far beyond what the author ever put there. We turn to them again and again, not for what they are in themselves but for the thoughts and the spirit they have the power to call up in us. They are our minstrels, and the hand of the Lord is upon us as they play.

Naturally we are not all affected the same. There is a divine variety in the channels through which you and I come to the thoughts of God and his goodness. Maybe the flower that Wordsworth tells us of had little meaning to his friend Arnold. I refer to the poet Wordsworth's lines:

To me the meanest flower that blows can give Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears.

We at times make the mistake, I feel sure, when we are tempted to deny that our brother's minstrel can speak to him of God because his music sounds only earthly in our ears. From some village pump, one draws water in a pitcher, another in a cup, and a third fills a vase for flowers, and maybe a fourth person drinks water collected in the hands, but the water is the same. It is the vessels that are different. The water, symbolic of the spirit, calls and abides in us, helping us towards God and his truth.

Adoration in Public Worship

As I have just said there may be a variety in the channels that help to bring our minds to the fullness of God and his truth; but we must realize that in our public worship the first and last thought should be adoration. Our whole-hearted service when we come to the Lord's house is little compared with the mercies and loving-kindnesses we daily receive at his hands. Our adoration that calls forth our best and noblest thoughts, the emotional qualities of our mind and our whole self governed by the will to do better every day, is the service that will lift and inspire not only ourselves but our brothers and sisters and those we meet in our everyday association. We shall become as the minstrel that Elisha listened to.

There may be a number of ways which will help us in our public worship, but one I specially wish to emphasize this evening and that is the musical part of our services and of our own lives. In the sphere of public worship and religion I would say music has played a greater part than all the creeds and dogmas of belief. Dryden tells us as an aid to religion:

As from the power of sacred lays
The spheres began to move,
And sung the great Creator's praise
To all the blessed above,
So when the last and dreadful hour
This crumbling pageant shall devour,
The trumpet shall be heard on high,
The dead shall live, the living die,
And music shall untune the sky.

Again, Martin Luther speaks in words which I feel reecho the divine command we as a church have received. Luther says, "Music is a fair and glorious gift from God. I would not for all the world renounce my humble share in music." To refer you to the section in the Doctrine and Covenants, 119: 6, is I feel only to refresh your minds to a divine command much overlooked. You will notice: "Let the young men and the maidens cultivate the gifts of music and of song." Notice it says, "Gifts." "Let not the middleaged and the old forget the gladness of their youth," and so on. Here I would like to say after very careful observation of the musical part of our services throughout the whole organization, there is much need for improvement, and that improvement will undoubtedly come in our own individual efforts to cultivate those gifts of which we have just read.

History of Music

It is interesting to note from the commencement of history, peoples and races used some mode of rhythmic measure to invoke the pleasure of their particular gods or goddesses.

We find in Bible and Jewish history that vocal music occupied an important place both in religious worship in public rejoicings and social festivities. It is mentioned amongst the earliest expressions of joy and was accompanied by dancing. From the dedication of some psalms there would seem to have been a written musical notation, but no certain record of it is extant.

It is interesting to find also that musical instruments are amongst the earliest recorded of human inventions. (Genesis 4: 21.) In Scripture their use seems to be confined to religious worship and social festivities, except that the sound of the trumpet served as a battle call. To take a look back into the past annals of musical activities in our own country, we very often overlook the wonderful treasures that have been left to us. As a little boy I well remember being told that the English people were an unmusical nation. If I had the opportunity to meet that gentleman these days I would certainly try to alter his opinion.

In 1300 we read that the highest and noblest in music was given for the edification of the religious ceremonies. What ceremonial music we read of was composed by the monks, and it is also the beginning of the folk song. It is interesting to note here that one of the most charming songs ever written, "Somer is I cumen in," appears to have emanated from the monastery at Reading some time during the century we are speaking of, and there is no doubt that many other compositions of this kind, now lost, or possibly incorporated into some well-known folk song found their way into the hands of the laity by way of the monastery gate. Piers Plowman, it may be remembered, describes his Frier as "much better acquainted with the rhymes of Robin Hood than with his paternoster." In any case, music will out, and as it has ever been caught rather than taught, it went into the highways and byways of England in the shape of folk song.

Development of Artistic Style

Through the next century we find that music was written in more of an artistic style. We may claim that Dunstable (died in 1453) could be called the inventor of polyphonic writing, one of the most important figures, therefore, in the whole range of musical history. During the course of the fourteenth century, too, rhythms became more varied and interesting, and harmonies such as they were, less crude, so that with Dunstable we enter upon a system in music and a coordination of all previous musical experiments. Of incalculable importance in the history of music and literature was the year 1476 when Caxton set up his first printing press in this country; up to that time manuscript copies were the only form of circulation, and the small reading public was drawn chiefly from the wealthier classes. But now the press was not only to give these arts a wider publicity but also to stabilize the national language and to give it a priority over the various dialects spoken in different parts of the country.

Modes for Religious Expression

In 1550 we find again church music was well represented by such names as Tye, Tallis, Marbecke, and Byrd. Naturally the religious struggles of these times engrossed men's thoughts, and consequently composers' energies. Secular vocal music during the greater part of this period occupied a subordinate position. Of course at this period literature has a marked unity in spirit resulting from the patriotism of all classes; it was an age so replete with great thoughts and actions, appealing to the senses quite as much as to the mind, they could only find adequate literary expression in the drama; hence the plays of Shakespeare with their remarkably wide outlook and the characters drawn from almost every station of life.

In the realm of poetry we find the names of Spenser and Marlow. Also we find a development of the miracle and mystery plays. In the later period we have the name of Ben Jonson. Perhaps in the realm of music the madrigalian era such names as Byrd, Morley, Gibbons, Wilbye, Dolland, Bull, and Weelkes are familiar at least to some of us. As I have said, instrumental music began to take on increased activity, also it was the beginning of stage music, etc.

Age of Secular Music

Perhaps in 1620 we might say it was a time of transition in music. Church services were suppressed, and naturally secular music in consequence flourished all the more. It is interesting to note at this period that literature was somewhat divided in spirit; it is somber and critical, and with the splendid exceptions of Milton and John Bunyan, devoid of distinction. John Milton's "Paradise lost," of course has long ago attained universal fame, and his areopagitica in prose is the most eloquent plea in the English language for the freedom of the press. Of John Bunyan his contemporary, it is here only necessary to say that his Pilgrim's Progress has been read more than any book in the English language, the Bible only excepted, a remarkable achievement when it is remembered that he was the son of a tinker and received the barest education in his early life. To stand and look upon the monument of John Bunyan at Bedford gives one an inspiring message: What can we do if we only try!

Elaboration of Church Music

During the restoration period of 1660 to 1700 we read of Purcell and his contemporaries. We may say that Purcell touched the music of the age at every point, the zenith of musical composition in England. It was also the development period of stage music and the progress of opera. It must be remembered that Purcell had certain advantages in writing for the services of the church which had been denied his predecessors. In 1674, for example, violins were introduced into the services of the church by the influence of Charles II and thus the composer had the opportunity of writing church music on a more elaborate scale than heretofore, with all the advantages of contrast and the effect which the alternation or combination of choir, soloists, orchestra, could offer. In his purely instrumental works, too, he is always master of the situation, and though restricted to the use of strings, trumpets and drums, hautboys, flutes, and bassoons, he employed them as a means not only of making a mass of sound but also of making clear contrasts of tone between the various instruments employed.

Influence of Foreign Composers

From 1700 onwards we find foreign musicians taking a preeminence in both religious and secular music in England, the one name needing no introduction being that of Handel. I would like to say here, though, that an analysis of Purcell's music and that of Handel, undoubtedly shows that Handel was considerably influenced by Purcell. Some of my hearers may not agree with me on this point, but I can assure them there is a considerable degree of truth in what I state.

My mention of opera brings to mind the amusing and satirical "Beggar's opera" which in our own day has taken a new lease of life. Of course the establishment of Italian opera in the days I am speaking of was not in response to a popular demand. It was fraught with the utmost difficulty on either hand and almost every obstacle under the sun was placed in its path. A rival opera house had been established by some of the enemies, who produced among other popular attractions the "Beggar's opera." Of course like other good things in life they are generally refused at first, but eventually when they are received they often come into success all of their own. The "Beggar's opera" was written by John Gay and eventually accepted by John Rich and achieved instantaneous success. As I have said, the "Beggar's opera" was satire on the Italian opera, which was then the fashionable entertainment of the day, but it also bristles with keen satire on the corrupt politicians and courtiers of the day, also exposing the vices of highwaymen, pickpockets, sailors, and the like. It has been wittily said that it made Gay rich and Rich gay.

Publication of Hymns

From 1800 to 1900 we begin to remember the names of some that perhaps are more familiar both in literature and in music. One of the most obvious fruits was the publication of Hymns Ancient and Modern, in 1861, which from that time forward has been much cherished wherever the church of England has unfurled her banner, and indeed wherever the English speaking race is to be found. I am not going to say all the tunes found in this book are perfect.

The name of Sterndale Bennett, from 1816 till 1875, gained at this period no small reputation as a pianist and composer. I refer to this man especially because it seems the tide for English music undoubtedly was definitely turning for the good and betterment of the people. Just prior to this period, English musicians had very little encouragement either at home or abroad and it is certainly good to know that Bennett rose superior to this discouragement and won the approval both of Mendelssohn and Schumann. We have to thank Bennett also for the foundation of one of the very old but still existing societies, namely: "Bach's Society," which gave the first performance of the great "Saint Matthew Passion" in England. There are a number of lesser lights in the realm of church music that deserve at least honorable mention, such as Crotch, Attwood, Goss, S. S. Wesley, Henry Smart, and Ouseley. For song writers we have the name of Bishop, together with Hatten who, in addition to many tuneful songs, write a number of pleasure of pleasing art songs; and Balfe, whose opera, "The Bohemian girl," is still frequently performed by opera companies.

An English Contribution

In the year 1875, we as a nation can claim that England gave something original to the world of music, for in that year the first Gilbert and Sullivan opera was produced at the Royalty Theater and was accorded an unprecedented reception. Some of my hearers are acquainted with the interest and the research work I have taken in these operas and these men's lives. All I need say here is that most of their works have been translated into all of the European languages, and their names are now famous the world over in spite of the fact that the satire libretto is so essentially English.

But Sullivan's work was by no means confined to music of this kind, though his church music was in many ways suggestive of that style. Contemporary and possessing some of his characteristics were Edward German, Frederick Cowen, and John Stainer. The first named wrote a quantity of tuneful music for the theater, the second concentrated on both vocal and instrumental for the concert hall, while John Stainer turned his attention exclusively to writing for the services of the church.

It would be unfair of me to overlook the name of John Curwen (1861) who introduced the "Tonic Solfa" system into this country. This system helped music to become a popular form of recreation with the masses besides being systematically taught in the schools. All this was but the preparation for the great renaissance of British music under Parry MacKenzie, Stanford, and Elgar at the close of the Victorian era. Stanford could claim as his pupil nearly every prominent British composer of the present day.

There are those who assert that as soon as a nation begins to extend itself by the expansion of its trade and commerce it ceases to develop its musical faculties but it does not seem so in this case at any rate. The assertion is answerable. We all know there never was a time in the history of England when trade and commerce were developing so rapidly as in the closing years of the Victorian era, and it was precisely this period which marked the great rebirth of British music.

There is no need for me to tell you the story of the literature of the nineteenth century, because I feel sure the majority of my hearers are somewhat acquainted with it. In this brief resume that I have endeavored to give you of some of our own countrymen in the world of music with some indication of literature as well, I feel I should not pass without mentioning the names of some of our famous artists whose pictures we find in the galleries the world over and are recognized by critics and connoisseurs of art, but time will not permit.

I do not wish my hearers this evening to think that I disparage or do not appreciate the works we find in the fine arts of other countries, but I must emphatically say here that we as a people often lose sight of, and forget the resources we have crowded in this tight little island of ours, and may I come still nearer home and ask you to think for a few moments of the wonderful opportunities we have of hearing the very best of music in all its forms in our own town of London. It may astound you if I were to give you the number of musical aspirants in the various competitions held in London, and especially in the part where the majority of my hearers live.

Duty of Membership

This brings me back once again to the vital point at issue and that is, "What are we doing as individuals to help on the progress of our church musically?" Do we feel satisfied as individuals that we have made the most of the opportunities of letting the beauties of music enter into our lives? Do we feel as a branch, as a people, as a church, we are giving our best services to further the coming of our Savior, Jesus Christ? Maybe as individuals we cannot change human nature, but I venture to say we can get more out of it. Cowper very beautifully expresses it as an element to happiness:

There is in souls a sympathy with sounds;
 And as the mind is pitched, the ear is pleased
 With melting airs or martial, brisk or grave;
 Some chord in unison with what we hear
 Is touched within us, and the heart replies
 How soft the music of those village bells,
 Falling at intervals upon the ear
 In cadence sweet, now dying all away,
 Now pealing loud again and louder still Clear and sonorous, as the gale comes on.

or again as Shelley tells us on touching the human heart:

The soul of music slumbers in the shell,
 Till waked and kindled by the master's spell;
 And feeling hearts—touch them but rightly—pour
 A thousand melodies unheard before.

or again as portrayed in education:

I have sent books and music there, and all
 Those instruments with which high spirits call
 The future from its cradle, and the past
 Out of its grave, and make the present last
 In thoughts and joys which sleep, but cannot die,
 Folded within their own eternity.

The call comes to-day to come up higher, from the youngest member to the oldest. The call comes to you and me. Let us each ask ourselves the question, What service am I going to give in the coming days? I sincerely hope it is going to be a whole-hearted and consecrated service to our heavenly Father. If our life becomes more pure, and our devotion more real, our life will be full of those minstrels of God and we should find richer treasure even in the vessels of earth. And so if we would become those that have been chosen of God, we need to use every day the gifts that God has given us. The life of service is what the world is calling for to-day. The life of service is what your church needs of you. Perhaps the little poem by a well-known American poet would be appropriate in conclusion:

You never hear the robins brag about the sweetness of their song,
 Nor do they stop their music gay when'er a poor man comes along.
 God taught them how to sing an' when they'd learned the art he sent them here
 To use their talents day by day the dreary lives o' men to cheer.
 An' rich or poor an' sad or gay, the ugly an' the fair to see,
 Can stop most any time in June an' hear the robins melody.

I stand an' watch them in the sun, usin' their gifts from day to day,
 Swellin' their little throats with song, regardless of man's praise or pay:
 Jes' bein' robins, nothing else, nor claiming greatness for their deeds,

But jes' content to gratify one of the big world's many needs,
 Singin' a lesson to us all to be ourselves and scatter cheer
 By usin' every day the gifts God gave us when he sent us here.

Why should we keep our talents hid, or think we favor men because We use the gifts that God has given? The robins never ask applause,
 Nor count themselves remarkable, nor strut in a superior way,
 Because their music sweeter is than that God gave unto the jay.
 Only a man conceited grows as he makes use of talents fine,
 Forgetting that he merely does the working of the will divine.

Lord, as the robins, let us serve! Teach me to do the best I can
 To make this world a better place, an' happier for my fellow man.
 If gift o' mine can cheer his soul an' hearten him along his way
 Let me not keep that talent hid; I would make use of it to-day.
 An' since the robins ask no praise, or pay for all their songs o' cheer,
 Let me in humbleness rejoice to do my bit o' service here.

In our efforts to use our talents that our heavenly Father has given to us, we shall not only be a blessing to ourselves but all those we come in contact with in our daily lives. Inasmuch as we strive to do his will we are sure to be blessed. However we as peoples or nations may disagree, we have sensed and realized in the past that "music is an art that God has given us in which the voices of all nations may unite their prayers in one harmonious rhythm."

No man is thoroughly accomplished unless he has the ability to mind his own business.

Few things come to those who wait for others to do it for them.

Do You Believe

1. In the Children of the Nation.
2. In the Mission of the Church.
3. In the Ideals of Jesus.

THEN COME TO
THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

CHURCH NEWS

Spokane Saints Encouraged Over Activities of Young People

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON, April 16.—During the past six weeks there has been a marked increase in attendance at church services as well as in interest, especially on the part of the young people. This is very gratifying to those who have looked forward to the time when their posterity would shoulder the responsibilities that have been theirs for so long. The branch is so glad to see this that they want to tell it to others, feeling that it will serve to encourage many who may be discouraged in regard to their young people. The generation which is now mobilizing will make great progress toward the redemption of Zion. Remember there is the statement that if we do not redeem Zion, God will raise up a people who will. The responsibility rests upon each one.

Brother Dana McDole, of Seattle, Washington, who was a resident here some years ago, was at Seattle a few weeks recently and made two very interesting and instructive talks. It was good to have him here once more for he is remembered as a very energetic worker in the Master's cause. The indications are that he has not slackened in the quality called "stick-to-it-iveness."

Elder Carl Crum made a visit and left some good things to think upon. Also Elder Eli Bronson drops in and leaves a message of encouragement.

The Department of Recreation and Expression are making preparations for an active season. At the present time they are organizing a baseball team and have joined the association which is composed of teams from the various churches of the city. Brother Dave Coleman is taking an active part in this department.

Close Four Weeks' Meetings at Burlington, Iowa

BURLINGTON, IOWA, April 16.—A four weeks' series of meetings conducted by Elder C. M. Clifford came to a close the night of April 13. The attendance and attention were remarkable. The interest has been the best that Burlington had known for years. Many that have never understood the gospel in its true sense have had it told to them with such clearness that there can be no room for doubt or misconception.

During this series of meetings Brother Clifford labored under a very difficult strain owing to his physical condition, yet his discourses were delivered with power, and relief was granted to him for the hour of his service, so that not for one night did he fail in delivering the message to those that hungered after righteousness.

The seed is thought to have been sown on good ground and the Saints look forward to the time of harvest when many will be brought into the kingdom because of the good that was done through these meetings.

The second annual banquet for the officers and teachers of the Sunday school was held at the Hotel Burlington, March 14, with thirty-one present. C. M. Clifford, of Hamilton, Ontario, and the Reverend G. A. Schmidt, president of the Des Moines County Sunday School Association, were invited guests.

G. S. Daniel, the pastor, has been confined to his bed for a few days because of sickness. All were glad to see him out to the sacramental services, although he was in a very weak condition.

Sister Senna Schweers has returned from the Sanitarium at Independence, Missouri, where she underwent a serious operation.

San Bernardino Saints to Remodel Historic Church Building

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIFORNIA, April 16.—The choir, under the direction of Miss Evalina Yates, is planning an Easter entertainment, consisting of readings, part songs, and choruses, to be given April 20, at 7.30 p. m.

San Bernardino Saints will remodel their church and enlarge the building. The remodeling begins at once. This is a work which has long been needed here. It will be of interest to the general reader to note the fact that the San Bernardino Branch is one of the oldest in the West. It was organized more than forty years ago. Many of the leading representatives of the church of former years have occupied in this historic building, the late Joseph Smith being one of them. Many have gone, but their words and their work live on; and the walls of this old building speak in sacred memory of them. May the plans for the new building succeed and may it serve for a still larger work.

Owing to the illness of Sister Yates, Elder James E. Yates has been laboring here for awhile.

Pastor F. J. Lacey preached an interesting and helpful sermon to the young people, April 13. His good work is greatly appreciated by the Saints here.

Boys of Stockton Branch Build Club House

STOCKTON, CALIFORNIA, April 17.—Stockton Branch is glad to report a feeling of determination to go forward this year as never before.

There are here the Department of Women, Temple Builders, Oriole Girls, Boys Department, and normal class, besides the regular meetings.

The Department of Women have a cafeteria supper once a month. On the second meeting day of every month they hold a twenty-minute prayer and song service. They have also purchased a book of parliamentary rules to study.

The boys meet once a week and are also building a club house in which to hold their meetings and to store their equipment for recreation. Thus all the departments are doing their best to help make the branch rise to the standard it should be.

The Temple Builders are taking mothercraft as their study and are giving dinners in order properly to learn table etiquette. They also learn to do fancy work. The Orioles have a good leader.

Brethren George H. Wixom and E. B. Hull were here and held meetings for two weeks, commencing March 23. Some outside interest was accomplished and it is felt that a greater field of work has opened.

Brethren R. S. Budd and D. T. Williams were here for a week commencing January 6, and these meetings have given all a great feeling of rejoicing, just to be Latter Day Saints. The idea of "study" has become most prevalent and those with an interest desire to become more efficient workers. Pray for Stockton, dear Saints, as they pray for all of you. The branches need each other's prayers in this great work.

Missionary From Switzerland and Germany Tells of Conditions Among Foreign Peasants

BRADNER, OHIO, April 22.—On Easter morning a fine series of meetings was concluded. These had been conducted by Jacob G. Halb, missionary of the Northwestern Ohio District. On the evening of Easter day an excellent program was rendered.

Besides refreshing the memories of the Saints of their duties toward the heavenly Father, the missionary, since he has been abroad ministering to the people of Switzerland and Germany, told of the conditions existing among some of the peasant people there. It caused thankfulness to God that here so much is enjoyed, a moderate plenty of food and raiment, while those poor peasants have so little.

Brother Halb has a very good command of the English language, having a large vocabulary of small words which makes very plain all that he preaches. Friends as well as members of the church say that his delivery is to their liking, and that they hope he will visit Bradner again next fall.

It has been noted that the preaching services although advertised drew a smaller attendance than the entertainment which received but little advertising. It is hoped that the program contained lessons which will sink deep into the hearts of the people who witnessed it, that from henceforth the services here will have a greater number taking part in them.

Spring Revives Activities of Boomer Saints

BOOMER, IOWA.—The farmers all around have started spring work and so have the Saints belonging to the Boomer Branch.

The ladies of the church have given the building a good cleaning up, which was very much appreciated by the deacon.

Owing to almost impassable roads the Saints have been somewhat slow about attending church and have had to depend on the local priesthood, as no one from a distance was able to come and fill appointments. Sometimes it is a blessing in disguise when the ones who are expected to preach do not arrive, for then others who are backward and otherwise would not occupy, come forward and give their assistance.

Trick to Find Saints Asleep Fails

WELLAND, ONTARIO, April 14.—The Saint Patrick's Day social was a great success and at the close of the evening all expressed themselves as having enjoyed a very pleasant evening. The program was one which was called at the last minute to see if the Saints could be found asleep. The committee were defeated in their purpose, for the program was good. Singing, recreation, and sleight-of-hand tricks were enjoyed. The games which followed were full of fun and pep. Anyone will go a long way before he can find anything which will surpass the part of the entertainment which the sisters of the church usually prepare. It is called lunch.

The Welland Saints are going ahead fine now. They hold their meetings in a hall on Main Street and have meetings every Sunday. Some branches think no meetings are held here, but that is not right. The hall rented is from the lodge named The Royal Order of the Moose, and any Saint visiting Welland cannot miss the hall because it is right across the street from the jail which is plenty large enough to see.

Elder F. C. Baldwin received a letter from Elder Gregory saying that he would like to come to Welland to hold a series of meetings to see if the people of this place could be interested in the gospel. The Saints look forward to a good spiritual feast and great blessings in their attempt to push the gospel message.

Next Sunday is Easter and there will be an Easter program. All look forward to a very interesting time.

News From the Black River Falls Branch

MERRILLAN, WISCONSIN, April 14.—Black River Falls Branch is still striving to carry on the work at this place. At the present time an Easter program is being prepared by the Sunday school. Though attendance at Sunday school and church has not been the best during the past few months, it is hoped more interest will be taken during the summer.

The brethren here still continue to preach, and the last sacramental service was quite well attended.

The Department of Women hold their meetings every two weeks. At present they are taking no line of study. The attendance is good and encouragement is felt by the interest shown by some of the friends of the church who attend.

Departments Contribute to Building Fund

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA, April 17.—The building fund is increasing by the help of the departments. The Department of Recreation and Expression gave a box supper. The ladies' aid gave a play, "Sewing for the heathen." The proceeds of these are to go to the building fund.

Everything here is taking on new life. The attendance at services is increasing and prayer meetings are becoming very interesting. The branch has been blessed with prophecy and interpretation of tongues. Five young people were baptized April 13.

The Department of Recreation and Expression held a debate as to who did the greater wrong, Peter or Judas. It was an interesting discussion and caused a lengthy deliberation of the judges.

The Saints are pleased to welcome Brother O. J. Hawn, missionary, and his family who have located here.

Visiting Missionaries Strengthen San Jose Saints

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA, April 9.—The San Jose Branch, while not being able to boast of any very great success in increase of numbers, is still on the map, and the few Saints who assemble at the place of worship from time to time are working faithfully and harmoniously together, trying to keep hold of the "rod of iron" which leads to the tree of life.

Especially is this true with the Department of Women, but all the departments seem to be taking on new life of late. They seem to be getting a better vision of the work lying before the Saints. The younger men of the priesthood are waking up to the fact that there is responsibility resting upon them and are expressing their willingness to work.

The visiting of the missionaries recently has been very helpful to them. The pastor has laid out a program giving the priesthood every opportunity possible to occupy and qualify and gives them all the encouragement he can. The pastor realizes that sooner or later the responsibility of presiding will have to be shifted to younger shoulders.

There have been better attendance and better interest at meetings of late, and consequently better meetings. This is encouraging.

G. H. Wixom, missionary, was here the latter part of January, holding meetings for about a week. He has also been at San Jose three nights this week. The Saints have enjoyed his visits here very much, and it is hoped the visits will be of lasting benefit.

E. B. Hull, another of the district missionaries, is advertised to be here Easter Sunday and expects to be present two or three days, so another season of uplift and social enjoyment is looked forward to.

The Department of Recreation and Expression is going to put on a pageant Easter night portraying the resurrection of Christ. They promise a good entertainment. This department gives a banquet once a month in the basement of the church. These are free and are for the purpose of promoting sociability.

Deselm Saints Saddened by Death of Devoted Member

MANTENO, ILLINOIS, April 14.—The Deselm Saints were made sad by the death of one of their members, Sister Barbara Kahler, at her home in Wilmington, March 31. Sister Kahler has been a consecrated member of the church for many years, and the Kahler home was the stopping place of missionaries and Saints. All received the glad smile and hearty handclasp of both Brother and Sister Kahler. Sister Kahler was the recipient of numerous spiritual gifts and praised God for his wonderful love and mercy. The funeral was held at the home, with Earl D. Roger assisting. J. L. Cooper preached the sermon.

The regular Sunday school and sacramental services were held Sunday morning, April 6, and a special anniversary service was held in the afternoon. Those attending from a distance were Brother and Sister J. H. McGuire of Hammond, Indiana, and Brother Arthur Strauss and family of Claytonville, Illinois.

Sister Bernice Pement is chairman of the Easter program, and the young people are busy preparing the cantata, "Easter dawn," while the children are learning dialogues and songs.

Profitable District Conference Held at Lincoln, Nebraska

LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, April 9.—A splendid district conference was had, and all who attended went their way home feeling that they had spent the time to their profit in every way. Brethren Garver and Long were with us, an inspiration to all, and they surely gave some very fine talks, as well as did Brother Gomer Wells.

Brother Chapin, of Fairfield, was ordained to the office of elder. The Spirit was present and caused all to rejoice.

The Department of Women provided splendid meals for those in attendance. This department is now busy. On the seventeenth of this month it is planning an all-day service of work and business, and in the evening a lunch and program for the public.

Sister Chapple has again gone to Denver to resume her work. After the school year the family will be with her there. The Saints regret to have them go, as they are a big help in the music, both vocal and instrumental, and the orchestra will miss them.

The Saints here wish to remain true to the faith and diligent in service that when the end shall come they may be ready for the better world with their Lord and Savior.

Graceland Chats

President G. N. Briggs returned from a trip through Iowa on college business, touching the cities of Des Moines, Iowa City and Ames where he found Graceland people to welcome him. At Ames there was a group of twelve or sixteen taking special work. At Iowa City where there are about forty-five of our people, he attended a pleasant little gathering of the Lambda Delta Sigmas. After a banquet and speeches Brother Briggs related news from Graceland. He came back from rain and cloud, seeking sunshine and blue skies and he's sure to find them.

Concert at Brick Church

Monday, April 21, James R. Houghton gave a concert at the Brick Church, and indeed it was a treat. Brother Houghton gave this as a benefit number and the gymnasium fund was benefited. That sounds easy and it looked easy but better than all it was easy for him because of his love for Graceland. It is joy to work for what we love and we come to love more and more that for which we work, pray, and hope. Brother Houghton's splendid voice improves to the satisfaction of his interested friends. In his concert he was truly accompanied by Miss Virginia Carley, head of the piano department. Miss Carley is gracious and sympathetic and looks charming as she gives efficiently of her attainments.

Athletic Carnival

One of the annual jollifications of Graceland is the athletic carnival. Administration and the class hall were both turned over to the use of the revelers and a few hours of real carnival fun prevailed. All the proceeds go to the purchase of football and track sweaters.

Garden Week

Garden week brings to the attention some features of Graceland, not widely known, that is, her agricultural division. This is in charge of Mr. O. M. Hartchen who specialized in agricultural and rural problems at the Iowa State College. Brother Hartchen is trying to lay a broad, deep, sure foundation for future work in this course.

Kirtland District Conference Held at New Philadelphia, Ohio

NEW PHILADELPHIA, OHIO, April 19.—The Kirtland district conference was held at New Philadelphia Branch and proved a great success. Many of the members remarked upon the good spirit that prevailed during the meetings, and all left with the determination to accomplish more in the future.

The Saturday evening sermon was delivered by Brother James Bishop, of Youngstown. The Sunday morning sermon was by Elder Patterson, of Australia. Social service was held in the afternoon with Brother G. T. Griffiths in charge. The Sunday evening sermon was delivered by Brother F. Ebeling, of Kirtland, Ohio.

The Saints were pleased with the efforts made by the speakers, and all friends present were influenced. On Saturday the committee served about 180 meals; on Sunday about 225 for dinner and about 200 for supper.

Brother George Neville, the present president of the Kirtland District, was reelected; Sister Rhodes was elected secretary; Brother Biggs, district superintendent; and Brother L. Gintz is to take charge of the Department of Recreation and Expression.

The branch took in about $60. There were no charges for the meals and only as the members felt they donated towards the expense. A prosperous year is anticipated, and everybody seems to be in good spirits.

Holden Stake News

Holden

HOLDEN, MISSOURI, April 28.—“Easter dawn,” a pageant for Easter, was given Sunday evening, April 20, to an audience of about 400. Those participating acted well their parts. It was a very impressive and reverential service. Many were moved to tears, sorrowing with the women at the tomb. By request it was repeated at the Home on Friday night. It was given by the Department of Recreation and Expression. Brother Freelin Hampton had general charge, Sister Blanche Christensen was director, and Sister I. M. Ross had charge of the costuming.

The sermon Easter morning was by Elder H. E. Moler. Two children were blessed at the service, Robert Raymond, son of Raymond F. and Maud Moler Simes, and George C., son of George F. and Harriet Weeks Short.

On Sunday, 27th, Brother Roscoe F. Moorman, of Sedalia, Missouri, assistant stake music director, occupied the eleven o'clock hour, giving a fine discourse on “Preparedness.” He met with the musicians in the afternoon in conference. It was a profitable meeting and meant much for the music department in Holden. He also visited the Home and entertained the Saints there for thirty minutes with his violin. Brother Robert Dillon was the speaker at the Home at 11 o'clock. The pastor occupied at the church in the evening.

Lees Summit

The eleven o'clock hour Easter Sunday at Lees Summit was occupied by the children. They gave a very interesting Easter program. Sunday evening Apostle T. W. Williams was the speaker. A number of Independence people were down and rendered some very beautiful music, which was enjoyed by all.

Atherton

The work at Atherton is still progressing with an onward march toward a greater spirituality. Easter morning a very beautiful program was rendered by the Sunday school, followed by a sermon by Elder James Bunt, of Independence. He preached again in the evening and both sermons were very much appreciated.

The Atherton choir, together with others who chose to go, went over to Sibley to help out with the music Thursday evening. Brother R. D. Weaver, who recently closed a very successful meeting at Atherton is now holding a series of meetings at Sibley, and it was indeed a pleasure to render assistance to neighbor Saints.

Roy Williams and D. R. Carmichael occupied Sunday morning, April 13. Brother Williams spoke on “Why do we have priests in the church?” Brother Carmichael's subject was, “The relationship of the priest to the members.” Bishop James F. Keir delivered the evening sermon which was appreciated very much.

Blue Springs

A Sunday school was organized at Blue Springs on Sunday, 27th, at 2.30 p. m. by Elder C. F. Scarcliff, stake superintendent of Sunday school. Brother Amos E. Allen was chosen superintendent and Brother A. E. Campbell, assistant. Services will be held in the hall over the bank. Sunday school is at 9.45 and preaching at 11. Brother D. R. Carmichael, of Atherton, stake superintendent of the Department of Recreation and Expression was present and gave a talk along his line. Brother J. W. A. Bailey is announced as the speaker next Sunday morning. Brother Amos E. Allen has charge of the work there under appointment of the stake presidency.

Sedalia

The first service in the new church was held Sunday. Elder C. L. House, of Houstonia, was the speaker in the morning. An Easter program was rendered in the evening. There was an increased attendance of about 100 per cent.

Marshall

The Marshall Saints enjoyed a spiritual Easter day. Elder Harold G. Thayer was the speaker at the morning hour. A beautiful lesson was given. After the service three young women were baptized by Elder Phelps. Carrie A. Padgett, wife of Brother Zelmar H. Padgett, and Zella L. James, and Sarah Frances Cumpton. They were confirmed at the afternoon social service. The Holy Spirit was there to bless. Thus the work moves forward. At night, Elder Phelps gave a good sermon on the resurrection and ascension.

Lamoni Stake Items

LAMONI, IOWA, April 26.—Easter services were observed at both Sunday school and church meetings. The juniors, intermediates, and primaries joined in a program. The leading feature of this was a pageant which told the story of the resurrection. The soldiers guarding the tomb, their surprise when they found the seal broken, the visit of Mary and her friends, the remorse of Peter who was consoled by John were all very vividly portrayed. The characters were well costumed, and the lesson very impressive. Songs and exercises by the children, a Bible reading by Sister Blanche Edwards, and a talk by C. E. Wight completed the program.

The seniors were favored by special numbers preceding the lesson study, a scripture reading by Helen Anthony and a bass solo, “The palms,” by Fields Jones.

At the eleven o'clock hour, the Lamoni Graceland Oratorio Society sang the hallelujah chorus from the “Messiah,” and a duet was sung by Lena Wells and Josephine Smith.

Union Service

At eight o'clock a union service was held in commemoration of Garden Week. There were four short speeches as follows: Mayor G. W. Blair on “Improvements from a commercial standpoint,” in which he proved that the keeping up and beautifying of property paid in dollars and cents; the Reverend J. V. Gray of the Methodist Church talked on “Transforming the waste places.” In his talk he argued that lawns and back yards are an index to character, and flowers are an attribute to the beauty of the soul. Sister Blanche Edwards in telling of the gardens of her native land, England, painted a word picture beautiful beyond description. England has long been famous for her gardens and lawns, some of which have been nurtured for centuries, and no one is more able to describe them than Sister Edwards for as she said in real American slang, “I'm plumb crazy about a garden.”

C. E. Wight, stake president, concluded the talks by use of the subject “The effect of gardening on society.” A desire to beautify the home and make it pleasant as well as comfortable is a product of civilization, he said. A garden is an inspiration. To work with God and nature is soul-inspiring. When God made paradise he called it a garden. Alvin Woods sang a very fine bass solo, which added to the program.

Community Club Meeting

The Community Club held a social meeting Thursday night in connection with garden week at which time they were addressed by Francis A. Robinson, landscape architect of Des Moines. A beautifying campaign has been launched by the club, prizes being offered for the most beautiful lawns, and also the ones showing the greatest improvement during the summer in each of the four sections into which the town is divided, and a banner to the best section as a whole. The slogan for the summer is "Beautiful Lamoni."

Mrs. A. E. Bullard and her band of Blue Birds gathered at the home of Kenneth Graham and went in a body to serenade Merial Harpe, another Blue Bird who is ill. They sang songs and each took a gift of fruit or flowers, making both the recipient and the givers very happy.

The Lamoni Graceland Oratorio Society is putting in a lot of faithful practice on "The Elijah," to be given the opening night of the Young People's Convention. The director, Miss Mabel Carlile, and six members of the chorus recently heard a rendition of this oratorio in Des Moines by the community chorus of that city, in which Arthur Middleton sang the role of "Elijah." They made the trip in the interest of their work.

Chariton

The young women's bureau of Chariton Branch will soon be thoroughly organized and in shape to render much efficient work.

On March 17, at the home of the supervisor, an Oriole circle was organized with six members. Two more have joined the circle and there are prospects of several more in the near future.

These girls are very enthusiastic over the work, and immediately began to qualify for the rank of songster. This work has not been very well understood here in the past, so the girls are planning to put on a demonstration meeting at Religio soon. Sister Olive McLean, the supervisor, is acting as monitor. However, she has chosen Sister Johanna Wilson, as her assistant who when she feels qualified will probably assume full charge of the circle.

One chapter of Temple Builders was organized the same evening as the Orioles. The girls chose the name of "Pan Adelphes," "Sisters all," for their chapter. Before organizing, the work was thoroughly explained to the girls—the threefold aim: Self-discovery, self-development, and service, being especially emphasized. Sister Myrtle Watts was chosen as their leader. Eight girls took the initiatory rites and became full-fledged Temple Builders. One more has joined since. The girls have decided to take up the subject of etiquette for study. They will meet every Monday night.

Lay Out Public Park

A public park is being laid out across from the church, and different clubs and organizations in the city are being asked to plant and care for one or more flower beds this summer. The Pan Adelphes have voted to have space for one bed reserved for them. They hope to have their Temple Builder suits by Mothers' Day.

The forming of another chapter of somewhat older young ladies is under contemplation. These wish to study some phase of home building, either interior decoration or mothercraft, interspersed with occasional lessons on some handcraft work, probably basketry. In this case a general meeting of the girls will be called occasionally for a report of the work accomplished and also for joint social activities.

Easter Program at Fulton, Iowa, Well Received

FULTON, IOWA, April 21.—This branch had a full house at Sunday school and preaching services yesterday.

An Easter program was given at night which was very good and there was a large attendance. Fulton has a fine lot of young people, both in and out of the church, who took part in the program.

Independence

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, April 29.—The Joint Council adjourned Friday, April 25, and many of the visiting members have departed for their homes. The bishops have nearly all returned to their respective fields, while the Quorum of Twelve remains in Independence for further quorum work.

The Twelve

The speakers at the Stone Church, Sunday, April 27, were Apostles E. J. Gleazer in the morning and T. W. Williams at night. Apostle Williams also spoke at Walnut Park at 11 a. m. At Liberty Street, Apostle Roy S. Budd occupied the morning hour.

Following the adjournment of the council, Apostles J. F. Garver and D. T. Williams went to Lamoni, Iowa, for the week end but returned the first of the week to attend quorum meetings. Apostle F. Henry Edwards attended the district conference at Decatur, Nebraska, during the week end.

Apostles J. A. Gillen and John W. Rushton remained in the vicinity of Independence and are now present for the meetings to take place in the Quorum of Twelve this week.

In the foreign field, Apostles J. F. Curtis and Paul M. Hanson who have been in Palestine are expected to arrive in Germany shortly. Apostles M. A. McConley and Clyde F. Ellis attended the Australian Mission conference in Australia at Easter time.

East Independence

East Independence community was saddened on March 24 by the death of Brother Thomas Mauzey. Brother Mauzey had been in ill health for over a year. He will be greatly missed from all services.

The sacramental and prayer service on April 1, was indeed a spiritual feast. It was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Brother A. H. Parsons, pastor, was able to be present again Sunday morning, April 13. This was his first appearance since March 2. His health is greatly improved and it is hoped he will soon be able to resume active duties again.

The speaker for the morning hour, April 13, was Brother J. M. Baker, pastor of Liberty Street Church. A fine sermon was delivered and enjoyed.

With spring now here, the Saints are desirous of getting busy to raise money for the new church building. Socials, cooked food exchanges and various other ways of raising money are being planned by the Saints.

Saturday night, April 12, the Boy Scouts attended the "Boy Scout Round Up" at Convention Hall in Kansas City. All returned home tired but well repaid for the effort put forth in going.

Liberty Street

At the eleven o'clock hour, April 27, Apostle Roy S. Budd preached on "Called to be Saints."

Bishop A. B. Phillips occupied in the evening, speaking on "Law and development."

Enoch Hill

Seven from Enoch Hill District were baptized Easter Sunday at Walnut Park, five children and two adults.

Wedding bells rang at Enoch Hill, Sunday, April 27, when Brother George O. Day and Sister Alice E. Henderson were united in marriage at the close of the afternoon prayer meeting. Brother A. B. Phillips officiated. Brother and Sister Day will make their home on Enoch Hill. The Saints there wish them a long and happy married life.

Baseball League

A meeting of the L. D. S. Baseball League was held Tuesday night, April 22, at the Campus to organize for the coming season. Seven teams applied for admission and one more is expected to be entered. Efforts will be made to organize a Junior League for boys under sixteen years of age. Volley ball teams for both men and women will also be organized.

A new back stop has been erected on the Campus and the diamond put into first class shape. This now makes a field second to none in the county for amateur baseball playing.

Give Stereopticon Lectures at Vancleave, Mississippi

VANCLEAVE, MISSISSIPPI, April 17.—Alma Booker, district president, conducted a series of meetings from February 10 to 24, with fair interest, using stereopticon views each evening preceding the sermon.

The Sunday school this year is trying to broaden its scope of usefulness. The sessions hold for two hours during which, besides the regular quarterly lesson, classes in church history and the Bible are conducted. A mothers' class will be organized soon. Plans are being made to increase the attendance, as there are many of the Saints who do not at present attend.

A supper was held in February, for the purpose of raising funds for purchasing kindergarten chairs and other equipment for the primary and beginner classes. Twenty-one dollars was cleared.

Brother William C. Yocum, a promising young man, was ordained to the office of elder at the district conference in Mobile, Alabama, in March. He will be a great help to this branch.

Seven Baptized at Battle Creek

BATTLE CREEK, MICHIGAN, April 7.—Patriarch James Davis and his companion, Sister Davis, made the Battle Creek Saints an extended visit the first of the year. During their stay with us, Brother Davis labored diligently among the Saints. As a result of his labors, the spirituality of the meetings was greatly increased, seven were baptized, many who were becoming discouraged have taken a new hold, and the work is progressing in a very satisfactory manner.

It was with regret that the Saints saw Brother and Sister Davis take their departure, and they can be assured of a hearty welcome when they again return.

The intermediate Sunday school class of girls, called the "Shining Lights," entertained the young people's class on the evening of April 1 at the home of Brother and Sister S. P. Lybarger. Many reported this the best social event that has taken place for some time.

Sanitarium Benefit Given at Joplin, Missouri

JOPLIN, MISSOURI, April 21.—A comedy drama, "A southern Cinderella," by Walter Ben Hare, was given at the Saints' church here on March 25, by the Department of Women for the benefit of the Sanitarium. The offerings were as follows: Eighty-two towels, fifty-six wash rags, one pair of pillow cases, and eight dollars in cash.

Each part on the program was well rendered. The stage was beautifully arranged, which contributed much to the success of the play. The numbers given between acts were also well rendered so that there was no waiting. The success of this proves that God favors those who try to develop their talents for a good cause.

The reports and congratulations which came from near by towns and friends of the city were numerous.

LETTERS

Accident Suffered by Missionary Delays Work in District

From a Letter to the First Presidency

TIGRIS, MISSOURI, April 3.—Your sympathetic favor of March 31 before me and contents noted. I thank you for same. I am getting along as well as can be expected, but unable to write or do anything with my right hand. Kindly notify through the church papers that I am unable to visit different parts of the district, by reason of Sister Christensen's condition and the accident that has befallen me, but will gladly move out when conditions change for the better. I have no complaint to make. Friends and neighbors have manifested their love and sympathy by their deeds of love and kindness in and out of the church. May the good Lord reward them openly.

J. C. CHRESTENSEN,

Six Baptized Following Meetings at Saint Claire, Michigan

From a Letter to the First Presidency

CROSWELL, MICHIGAN, April 9.—Just a few lines to inform you of the good time enjoyed during our series of meetings just closed in Saint Clair. I baptized six and blessed two babies on Wednesday night, April 2. I also had a birthday while there, March 26, and after the sermon that night a number of the Saints gathered at John R.'s and gave me a real old-time birthday party. At the close a light lunch was served and all appeared very happy. I have passed my fifty-fourth milestone on the road of life and hope to pass many more in the service of God and man.

From Saint Clair I was called to Forester to see my mother. She has been very sick but is slowly recovering. Yesterday I preached a funeral sermon at the home of Elder William Davis at Uby. His son's little baby passed away. This is the third child to die, so they are very sad parents, but God knows best. His will be done.

WILLIAM M. GRICE.

Effort to Spread Gospel Turns to Blessing

AMERICAN COLONY, JERUSALEM, PALESTINE, March 27.—How often, when thinking to do some small thing to interest nonmembers in our church work, the effort turns into a blessing for ourselves. I am reminded of a little trip to Wisconsin with a neighbor of ours in Montana.

Knowing Mrs. Bergeson did not belong to the church, I tucked in some HERALDS to hand to her and perhaps others, as I had often done before. The first day after leaving Glasgow, Montana, we had about talked ourselves out when I opened my bag and took out a couple papers, tossing one to her. While I was reading mine, Mrs. Bergeson said, "Have you seen this? 'A reunion in Minnesota.' Wonder if it is on our route." Upon arriving at Grand Forks, our first stopping place, my friend made some inquiries and found that by going on another line we would pass through Frazee, Minnesota, where the reunion was being held. After a few days at Grand Forks we took the train for Frazee. Not knowing anyone there, we found the tent and a place to board. Such a good time as we had I will never forget! It was my first

(Continued on page 432.)

MISCELLANEOUS

Two-Day Meetings

At Porcupine, Wisconsin, May 24 and 25. Brother W. A. McDowell is expected at this service. E. J. Lenox, president.

Reunion Notices

Northern Wisconsin, June 27 to July 6. E. J. Lenox.

Requests for Prayers

Prayers are requested for Sister Nellie Kapnick of Traverse City, Michigan. Her daughter, Sister R. D. Weaver, writes that if those who can will fast on May 4 on behalf of Sister Kapnick, it will be greatly appreciated.

Conference Notices

Alabama, at Lone Star, June 6 to 8. The secretary would be glad to have a report from each branch in the district. G. W. Miniard, secretary, McKenzie, Alabama.

Notice of Transfer

Notice is hereby given of the transfer of Elder Birch Whiting from Northern Saskatchewan District to Minnesota District, local.

THE QUORUM OF TWELVE.
THE FIRST PRESIDENCY.

Conference Minutes

SEATTLE AND BRITISH COLUMBIA.—At Seattle, Washington, February 23. The semiannual conference convened at 10 a. m. with the district president and secretary presiding. President, vice president, and secretary reported. The treasurer's report showed receipts of $73.98; expenditures, $36.38; and a balance of $37.60. Bishop's agent reported tithes and offerings, $1,217.16, and for the Sanitarium, $6, with even disbursements. Branch statistical reports showed a total membership of 975. Of these, 99 are enrolled with the nonresident group. There was a net loss of 14. Eight of the ministry reported. Reunion treasurer reported total receipts of $1,658.71, with a disbursement of $1,641.63, and a balance of $17.08. Permanent purchases to the amount of $187.31 were made. The present field worker of the Department of Recreation and Expression was empowered to appoint a secretary, so that the department might have a district head and be in a position to receive and make reports and conduct district conventions, etc. The budget system was adopted to raise required funds for the operation of the next reunion, and the district officers are to serve as a budget committee to draft the amount necessary and assess the branches their respective portions. The district officers also constitute a committee to make selections of grounds to purchase for reunion purposes, instead of consisting of one member elected by each of the branches as was provided for at the August conference. This by reason of the fact of the difficulty encountered in the effort to get them all together, which in no way releases or deprives the said branch representatives from serving as members of the reunion committee. Apostle D. T. Williams was in attendance and took active part in the young people's prayer services on Sunday morning and preached at 11 a. m., also at 3 and 8 p. m. to a large number. Valuable instruction was received and Zionie principles were ably stressed. F. W. Holman, secretary, 406 North Thirty-sixth Street, Seattle, Washington.

IDAHO.—At Boise, March 1 and 2. Conference convened in the G. A. R. Hall, 714 State Street, at 10 a. m., Saturday. R. C. Chambers was chosen to preside with Earl F. Hoisington assisting. The following branches reported: Boise, Filer, Hagerman, and Rupert. The Bishop's agent reported receipts of tithing and oblations amounting to $657.01. The district president reported a total of $262 subscribed to the district auto fund with which to purchase a car for the use of the district officers. An additional $140.50 was subscribed to this fund during this conference, making a total of $402.50. The Weiser Branch, having been left without any members of the priesthood, was disorganized by the conference. The First Presidency and Quorum of Twelve were petitioned to reappoint Elder R. C. Chambers as a missionary to labor in the Idaho District. The reunion was announced by the district presidency to be held at Hagerman, Idaho, August 15 to 24. Elders R. L. Fulk and G. P. Levitt were the speakers during the conference, which was undoubtedly the most successful conference held in the district for several years. Next conference to be held at the close of the reunion at Hagerman, August 23 and 24. Doris Jennings, secretary.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.—At Lincoln, April 4 to 6. Business meeting at 2 p. m., April 5. G. R. Wells, district president, assisted by J. F. Garver and E. E. Long, was in charge. C. H. Porter was elected secretary pro tem. Ministerial reports were had from G. R. Wells, E. E. Long, H. F. Chapin, T. E. Fitzwater, C. H. Porter, J. R. Jones, and Charles K. Spear. Margaret Orr, superintendent of Department of Women, reported little or nothing being done because most of the branches have church debts and the sisters were working mostly on the aid society basis, with no time for study courses. Statistical reports showed: Lincoln, 93; and Fairfield, 53. Mrs. Blanche I. Andrews as secretary-treasurer reported $3.65 on hand. Sister Andrews as Bishop's agent made no detailed report, but promised one next conference. However, the deficit per member for this district in supporting its share of general church expenses, was reported as $2.38 per member. The resolution creating a social committee was rescinded and the committee discharged. The nonresident record was

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.
Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Joint Council Sessions .....	409
Industries of Zion .....	409
Special Features of the Young People's Convention .....	410
Convention Prayer Services .....	410
The Situation in the Transjordan .....	411
Former Herald Business Manager Now With Saint Louis Southwestern Railway .....	411
Faith .....	411
"Back to the Old Paths" .....	412
DEPARTMENTAL:
Special Railroad Rates for Visitors to the Young People's Convention at Lamoni .....	412
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Relation of the Church to Society, by Frederick M. Smith.	413
Peace, by Bruce E. Brown .....	415
The Law of Divorce, by S. A. Burgess .....	417
We Need a Church Laboratory, by Leonard S. Rhodes .....	418
Our Minstrels, by William T. Goulee .....	420
CHURCH NEWS .....	425
LETTERS .....	430
J. C. Christensen—William M. Grice—Mary J. Floyd.
MISCELLANEOUS .....	431
RADIO .....	432

placed in the hands of the president of the district. Brother Wells said he would report to branches directly in the matter of receipts and disbursements of expenses of holding conference, as all items were not known at the time. Election of officers resulted: G. R. Wells, president; C. H. Porter and H. F. Chapin, counselors; Mrs. B. I. Andrews, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. B. I. Andrews, Bishop's agent, and district historian; Mrs. Margaret Orr, superintendent of Department of Women. Because of the advancing years of the incumbent, G. R. Wells was recommended to the general director for appointment as district chorister, it being considered that he could travel among branches and advance the interests of music to better advantage. All services and sermons were anniversary in character. Everything suggested by the mention of April 6, 1830, was in order and brought out by C. H. Porter, John F. Garver, E. E. Long, and G. R. Wells. There was Sunday school at 9.30 a. m.; and sacrament at 2 p. m. All meals during the conference, except breakfasts, were served by the Lincoln ladies' aid, in the basement of the church, the whole district sharing in expense, according to previous resolution. Conference adjourned subject to the call of the district presidency as to time and place. Attendance from the outside branches was the smallest noticed for years.

KIRTLAND.—At New Philadelphia, Ohio, March 29 and 30. Conference met in the Saints' chapel at 11 a. m. with the district president, T. G. Neville, in charge. G. T. Griffiths and F. J. Ebeling assisted. William Patterson, district supervisor, was present. Officers chosen: T. G. Neville, district president; Edna M. Rhodes, secretary; Charles Romig, chorister; Joseph Biggs, Sunday school superintendent; William Sherman, assistant; Beulah Williams, secretary; Louis Gintz, leader of the Department of Recreation and Expression; R. Flack, assistant; and Ruby Kahlor, superintendent of Department of Women. J. H. Talbot was ordained to the office of elder. All enjoyed the selections by the Barberton orchestra; also the anthems by the choir, and solos and duets by others. Edna Rhodes, secretary.

Our Departed Ones

CURTIS.—Betty Jean, daughter of Joseph, jr., and Dorothy Curtis, was born at Kansas City, Missouri, October 9, 1923. Died March 26, 1924. Funeral from the Stone Church, Independence, Missouri. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery.

JONES.—Lyman Lewis, jr., son of Lyman and Violet Jones, and grandson of Patriarch William Lewis, was born May 26, 1923, at Kansas City, Missouri. Died April 3, 1924. Funeral from the Stone Church, Independence, Missouri. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery.

SHOCKLEY.—David Arthur, son of Clyde A. and Nora L. Shockley, was born at Kansas City, Missouri, February 23, 1922. Died April 11, 1924. Leaves parents and grandparents. Funeral from Newcomer's Parlor. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery.

BURTCH.—David A. Burtch was born at Brantford, Ontario, December 18, 1857. Baptized at the age of nine years. Ordained teacher, October 20, 1894. Ordained priest, May 12, 1912. Married Emma Goheen, July 3, 1879. Died February 3, 1924, at Indianapolis, Indiana. Leaves his wife, Emma Burtch; and his son, Cecil. Two children have preceded him. Funeral sermon by O. J. Hawn. Interment at Crown Hill Cemetery.

BETTS.—Elizabeth Betts, wife of the late P. M. Betts, of Santa Ana, California, was born in England, July 18, 1827. Married in 1850. Baptized in 1872. Her home was always a home for the missionaries. Died at the age of ninety-six years, eight months, and six days, maintaining her mental powers to the very close. Leaves four children, ten grandchildren, twelve great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren. Funeral sermon by N. T. Chapman. Interment beside her husband in Santa Ana Cemetery.

Radio Flashes

K F F V

Broadcast from the Graceland College Radio Studio, Lamoni, Iowa. Wave length, three hundred and sixty meters.

SUNDAY, MAY 4, 1924

6.30 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical program will be furnished by a mixed quartet consisting of:
Miss Aliene Brackenbury, soprano.
Mrs. C. E. Wight, alto.
Walter Walden, tenor.
Reese Wells, bass.
Miss Florence Thompson, accompanist.
Sermon by Elder J. A. Gunsolley.

TUESDAY, MAY 6, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Program directed by Miss Mabel Carlile of Graceland College Faculty.

Vocal Solo: (a) "The years at the spring," Beach.
(b) "Deep water song," Brown.
Sung by Walter Walden.
Violin Solo: (a) "Souvenir," Dudla.
(b) "Serenade," Dirgo.
Played by Thad Howland.
Vocal Solo: (a) "Lullaby," Lieurance.
(b) "Dawn light and bird song," Speaks.
Sung by Pearl Darrington.
Flute Solos: Selected.
Played by Malcolm Barrows.

THURSDAY, MAY 8, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Educational program.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, MAY 4, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Song No. 12 (Hymnal).
Sung by the quartet.
Prayer.
Song No. 145 (Hymnal).
Sung by the quartet.
Soprano Solo: "He shall feed His flock like a Shepherd," from "Messiah" by Handel.
Sung by Miss Thelma Vincent.
Piano Solo: "Berceuse," from "Jocelyn," by Godard.
Played by Bertha Gunsolley.
Mixed Quartet: "The Lord is my Shepherd," arranged from "Kofchat" by Hipsher.
Sung by quartet composed of:
Muriel Etzenhouser, soprano.
Nida Vincent, alto.
Lynn Smith, tenor.
Elvert Himes, bass. (Ages 12 to 15.)
Sermon by Apostle T. W. Williams.
Hymn No. 172.
Sung by the quartet.
Miss Bertha Gunsolley, age 15, accompanist.

SUNDAY, MAY 4, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.
Prayer.
Pipe Organ Solo: Selected.
By Mr. Robert Miller.
Anthem: "The heavens are declaring," by Beethoven.
Baritone Solo: "I do not ask, O Lord!"
Sung by Job Negeim.
Violin Obligato by Miss Emma Snead.
Anthem: "The King of love my Shepherd is," Shelley.
Sermon: "Human uplift."
By Apostle D. T. Williams.
Hymn.

TUESDAY, MAY 6, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Vocal Solo: (a) "Star eyes," Oley Speaks.
(b) "Rose of Picardy," Wood.
Sung by Miss Mary Joan Parks.
Violin Solo: "5th Air and Variation," Dancla.
Played by Miss Jean Conderman.

Vocal Solo: "Spring's awakening," Sanderman.
Sung by Miss Parks.
Talk: "Social relations."
By Apostle E. J. Gleazer.
Violin Solo: "Concerto in A Minor," Accolay.
Played by Miss Conderman.
Vocal Solo: "How beautiful upon the mountains," Harker.
Sung by Miss Parks.
Violin Solo: "3d Air and Variation," Dancla.
Played by Miss Conderman.
Vocal Solo: (a) "Spirit flower," Tipton.
(b) "By the waters of Minnetonka," Lieurance.
(c) "Wayfarer's night song," Martin.
Sung by Miss Parks.

THURSDAY, MAY 8, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

"Cupid's frolic," Miles.
By the L. D. S. Radio Orchestra.
Tenor Solo: "The crying of water," Campbell-Tipton.
Sung by Mr. George Anway.
"Legend of a rose," Reynard.
Played by the Orchestra.
Tenor Solo: "Amarilli, mia bella," Giulio Caccini.
Sung by Mr. Anway.
Address:
"Ave Maria," Gounod.
Played by the Orchestra.
Tenor Solo: "Love is the wind," MacFadyen.
Sung by Mr. Anway.
"Out of the dusk to you," Dorothy Lee.
Played by the Orchestra.
"Shadow dance," Englemann.
Played by the Orchestra.

EFFORT TO SPREAD GOSPEL TURNS TO BLESSING

(Continued from page 430.)

reunion, and had I not taken the papers I never would have known the joy I experienced on that trip.

From there we went to Saint Paul where we visited Mrs. George, a friend I had met on the steamer on my way back from Palestine in 1914. She showed us around the Twin Cities and drove us to the lovely lakes. Our trip carried us on from here, but on our return to Minneapolis, I called up some Saints whose addresses we obtained while at the reunion. We were met by Sister Green and made most welcome, spending a never-to-be-forgotten day at the Lakes. Mrs. Bergeson left me here, but before going she said, "How grand your church is! Just like a big family. They make you feel so welcome and at home with them."

I visited two other reunions before finally arriving home, and at both of them the Saints treated me wonderfully. May God bless them!

For my little attempt to spread the true gospel I received a great blessing which I have lived over and over again in memory since my return to Palestine.

MARY J. FLOYD.

Would You Keep

1. Informed on Church School Movements.
2. Instructed in Church School Methods.
3. Inspired for Church School Service.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

THE SAINTS' LATTER DAY

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF LATTER

Independence Mo.
1400 W. Maple
C. C. Hudson
Jan 25

man among you have save concubines he shall have —Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, May 7, 1924

Number 19

EDITORIAL

Insurance

In public I have at times discussed briefly the question of life insurance, and have stated that in our social philosophy life insurance by companies has no place. Recently from several quarters this question has come to us, usually from persons contemplating the purchase of insurance. There are brethren who are profiting by the sale of life insurance, and these urge the Saints to take policies. So we are frequently asked what the attitude of the church is on the matter of life insurance. Some church officers to whom this question has been put have answered that the church has not gone on record for or against life insurance, and that therefore each person must decide the question for himself. This answer probably takes into consideration only the resolutions of conference and loses sight of some other facts; for in adopting as it has the revelations contained in the Doctrine and Covenants the church has very positively gone on record on the question of life insurance, and fire insurance, health insurance, employment insurance and other members of the insurance family also. For in our social philosophy insurance by companies has no place. It is a matter of group concern.

I have pronounced life insurance as practiced by companies for gain or profit unchristian because it penalizes the unfit and denies its benefits to those most needing it.

Insurance of life or houses or business by companies for profit, is palliative for present social maladjustments, and commercializes a social failure; and a proper envisagement of the success of life insurance companies and other insurance companies ought among Saints to stimulate a greater interest in and a greater activity towards the establishment of stewardships.

But this does not specifically answer the question, Shall I buy life insurance? We are moving very slowly towards the achievement of our social ideals, and in the time between here and then the question of insurance must be decided by each person from the standpoint of "business" and "business risks." To protect family and creditors against loss by death or accident some may at times be compelled to buy this protection by insuring. But well might I wish that each Saint would remember and say when he is compelled to resort to this expediency, "If the church were organized as it should be, this would not be necessary."

F. M. S.

Importance of the Kindergarten

While a great deal has been said concerning the education of our youth in the institutions of higher learning, in order to prepare him for efficient service, not so much attention has been given the little child and its education at the other end of the school ladder.

The child of to-day will be the youth of to-morrow, and what we make of the opportunities of childhood will determine what can be done with this future young man or young woman. If he be well grounded in the ways of right and truth, his possibilities for service will be great. But if we make of him a selfish individual who ignores the interest of others, he will become a social liability rather than a social asset, and all the institutions of higher learning cannot change him.

Miss Mary McDowell, commissioner of Public Welfare, Chicago, says:

Children are natural-born democrats and not aristocrats. We grown-ups make them aristocrats—God never did. The kindergarten tries to save them for really ideal democracy. We must in some way bring into education what Froebel (the founder of the kindergarten) gave us—the social ideals that bring us close to our fellow men. Very much also depends on the attitude of the little children—how do they look on the black people? On the foreign people?

Miss McDowell recognizes the tremendous influence on the early life of the child. The same idea has been expressed by Doctor John B. Watson, noted psychologist, who believes that a life can be made or broken within the first four years of a child's existence.

It is important to the future welfare of the world that children be taught the principles of justice, love, and brotherhood. Where many children of all nations come from homes unfitted to give these ideals to their children, the kindergarten must fill the demand. In the kindergarten the children are trained to be kind to their playmates and to share their toys and experiences. If all children had this training, it would help greatly to bring about universal brotherhood.

This work is being undertaken in Independence, Missouri, in connection with the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences. A regular kindergarten is being conducted at the Institute, and others have been established in the various churches of Zion to care for the children of each neighborhood. A kindergarten teacher training course is one of the features of the Institute, and teachers of children are being graduated each year. These trained instructors are becoming a part of our force by which the educational system of Zion will eventually be formed.

The church must be interested in all these problems of life, for the child is in its custody from birth until death or until such time as all relationship is severed. Especially must it be interested in giving each child a proper start in life and an equal chance with others to succeed. The kindergarten is as important a part of the education of a child as is the university of the youth.

Thrift

Thrift is one of the greatest motivating forces of active, industrious life. By it we give full expression to our ambitions, determinations, aspirations, and ideals. Because of thrift man has climbed to higher and higher planes or standards of living. Because of it man does not live just from day to day but looks into the future, branches out and uses or involves all his faculties in formulating new systems, achieving new purposes, developing new governments and lands, and accomplishing many other things of worth to the civilized world.

Thrift is best exemplified in the progressive man, the good citizen who values his country, citizenship, and home.

The thrifty man is not necessarily the town "hustler," who tries to impress others with the importance and volume of his business by rushing madly about. Thrift gives man a strong will power and makes him determined and independent, but it likewise teaches him to be level-headed, prudent, and wise.

Thrift is a force that teaches us not to float, not to drift, not to ride in our neighbor's canoe, but to paddle one of our own.

Choosing the Ten Best Books

The Literary Digest International Book Review has completed a nation-wide poll of its readers to determine the ten best books published since 1900. The group of books shows an interesting selection by way of variety. There follows the list:

1. H. G. Wells: The Outline of History.
2. Blasco Ibanez: Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse.
3. Arthur Stewart-Manteth Hutchinson: If Winter Comes.
4. Edward Boc: Americanization of Edward Boc.
5. Giovanni Papini: The Life of Christ.
6. Winston Churchill: The Crisis.
7. O. Henry: Short Stories.
8. Owen Wister: The Virginian.
9. Burton Jesse Hendrick: Life and Letters of Walter H. Page.
10. James Harvey Robinson: The Mind in the Making.

It is surprising that five of the ten chosen are non-fiction books. The others in the fiction class represent a higher degree of literary value than one might expect. The fact that only 1,800 persons took part in the poll may reveal a somewhat selected lot of readers, whereas a larger number might be more nearly representative of the public. It should also be noted that with the exception of three books, all were published in the latter part of the ten years. This may indicate that the public attaches undue importance to the more recent publications.

God be thanked for books. They are the voices of the distant and the dead, and make us heirs of the spiritual life of past ages.—William E. Channing.

Would You Understand

1. The Book of Mormon.
2. The Church History.
3. The Stewardship Program.

THEN COME TO
THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

Death of Bishop W. A. Blair

With deepest sorrow and regret we announce the death of Bishop W. A. Blair, of Detroit, Michigan, May 2, 1924.

Bishop Blair was the son of W. W. Blair, former counselor to the First Presidency and a prominent church leader of the past generation. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Viola Blair, daughter of former Bishop G. A. Blakeslee; a married son, Mr. Vere Blair, of Detroit; four brothers, G. W. Blair, mayor of Lamoni, Iowa; Charles E. Blair, of Independence, Missouri; Bishop F. B. Blair, of Kansas City Stake; D. H. Blair, of Kansas City; and a sister, Mrs. Minnie B. Nicholson, of Lamoni, Iowa. His wife, son, sister, and three brothers, D. H. Blair, F. B. Blair, and G. W. Blair, were present at his bedside last week.

Brother Blair suffered from a stroke of paralysis several years ago, which was followed by a second attack suddenly last week. The third attack followed quickly causing his death. The body was taken for burial to Galien, Michigan, the old family home and present residence of the Blakeslees. Bishop Benjamin R. McGuire left May 4 to attend the funeral.

Bishop Blair was born November 1, 1862, at Little Sioux, Iowa. He was baptized at Lamoni, Iowa, October 9, 1887, by his father, W. W. Blair, and confirmed by G. A. Blakeslee and W. W. Blair. In 1903 he was ordained an elder by G. H. Hulmes and G. H. Hidy at Kansas City, Missouri. He was ordained a high priest, April 14, 1918, at Independence, Missouri, by Frederick M. Smith and John W. Rushton, and ordained a bishop December 12, 1920, by Elbert A. Smith at Independence. Following his ordination as bishop he was appointed to the Detroit District where he has labored since. He was entirely self supporting and in addition to his work as bishop held a very responsible position with the largest real estate firm in Detroit.

The church loses a capable leader, a devoted and earnest worker.

Sympathy

Sympathy is a principle of human feeling. To fully express this principle we must possess many other virtues: We must be kind, thoughtful, and have a mutual understanding alike of the life elated by success and happiness and the one depressed by failure and misfortune. It gives us a desire to subordinate ourselves to the welfare of the human race, not to attempt to evade our responsibilities; to follow the golden rule which Jesus made positive, not the negative of that rule, survival of the fittest, which man has formulated.

Sympathy, then, is an indispensable requisite to the full expression of life and is, therefore, a basic principle essential for the development of true Christian character.

In early ages of Christianity a profound change in the life of Europe was effected by an amount of propaganda quite small in comparison with that which pours from our press and pulpit. How is it that the idealism of our time, propagated under heavy pressure through highly organized channels, leaves us morally about where we were? How is it that this propaganda, instead of leading to action, leads only to more propaganda, books breeding books, one panacea giving birth to another, while the world goes on unattended? Are we less in earnest than before? Are our energies used up in talking, with none left for action? Have our ideals become cheapened in the process of "discussion," and worn so thin in argument that they have lost their motive power? Do we accept the discussion of ideals as a substitute for the effort to act up to them? Or is it, finally, that ideals have been so much talked about that the world is thoroughly bored with ideals and idealists? Whoever answers these questions will throw light on one of the most perplexing phenomena of our time.—L. P. Jacks, English religious thinker and editor.

After-a-While

By Mary E. Gillin

After the winter's snows are gone;
After the storms of March are done;
June with her skies, her roses bloom,
After-a-while! After-a-while!
Days may be dark, and sad, and drear,
But clouds will pass, the sun appear;
Day follows night throughout the year,
After-a-while! After-a-while!

The darkest hour precedes the light;
The deepest wrong must be made right;
God reigns above, and will reward,
After-a-while! After-a-while!
Walk then by faith and trust Him more
While here we learn life's lessons o'er;
After-a-while, the heavenly shore,
Peace and joy, forevermore!

It keeps the nose of many a man to the grindstone paying interest on his borrowed troubles.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

The Relation of the Church to Society

Sermon by Frederick M. Smith at the Stone Church, Independence, Missouri, February 17, 1924.

PART II

In continuing or attempting to continue the subject of last Sunday morning it may be necessary for me to refresh your minds on one or two points which I shall attempt to present as a point of departure for what we shall say this morning. We have tried to present to you not only on last Sunday morning but in previous lessons the idea that the Christian religion is a force working for salvation, but it always sees the individual as working for society. It is of prime importance not only to us as a people but to the entire Christian world. Let me therefore repeat it. In the eyes of the Christian religion the individual never exists alone. He is always in interrelation with others.

The very fundamental idea of the Christian religion as presented by Jesus the Christ is love of God and neighbor. And in those words he even went so far as to give us the impressive lesson that we could not love God without loving our neighbor. He spiritualized the Mosaic economy by saying, "Whatever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them." Under the Mosaic economy the so-called law of justice prevailed, an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, but under the spiritualization of the law as given to us by Christ, vengeance was taken away from mankind or the power to revenge. "Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord, I will repay." Christ spiritualized the Mosaic economy by saying, If you would have justice done to you see that justice is done by you. "In all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

Mosaic Economics

I wish to drop a thought here for your further cogitation when you are alone. Those of course who are familiar with the development of the law of economics will readily recognize the trend of my thoughts as applied to the spiritual law when I say that the old laissez-faire doctrine of economics has given way to one which has a larger social content, and to-day it is generally understood that the old idea of every man for himself and the Devil take the hindmost is wrong in economics. The old Mosaic economy was just that in the spiritual realm, every man for himself, "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth."

It seems to me that too long has the Mosaic economy been prevalent in the religious world. I will not except our own organization. Too long among Latter Day Saints has the laissez-faire doctrine been made applicable in spiritual affairs. When, oh when shall we awake to the fact that the fundamental of the Christian religion is that we cannot do as we please only as we shall please to do as Christ would have us do? Life, we try to present, is the very objective of the gospel—more abundant life, life here and life now; and life in interaction one with the other. It cannot be by ourselves, and inasmuch as the church has to do with the gospel whose chief objective is life, the church has to do with life. And here we run counter to that old idea of the laissez-faire doctrine of spirituality as applied to the function of the church; and let me say, fellow Latter Day Saints, do not be smug in your content that this exists in other churches and not in our own.

Avenues of the Church

If, then, the church has to do with life, can you tell me of a single avenue of the activities of man into which the church must not go in its influence? The very objective of the church, at least for the purposes of the morning, may be summed up in this saying, That it must promote the more abundant life and work for it and promote that more abundant life in all its aspects. If we would find happiness we must learn to see ourselves in relation to the happiness of others; and for us to see ourselves as factors in the happiness of others is to glimpse God. To sense happiness, to sense welfare, to sense peace, to sense comfort in others because of our efforts to promote the welfare of humanity is to experience a bit of heaven, and I have no patience with those religionists who would exclude heaven from this earth and make it entirely another-side-of-the-grave affair. The church must be interested in promoting the interests of all individuals. It must make them conscious that their best interests and happiness are inextricably mixed up in the happiness and welfare of others, and if we would see God that must be our objective. Let me repeat, for it is a central thought in my effort this morning, that for us as a church or individuals to promote the happiness and comfort which is pervasive and which is general and which becomes a part of the common weal, there is no avenue in life into which the church must not go in its efforts to complete this work. The men of the church must have experiences in all walks of life, whether that experience is actual or vicarious. The men of the church in other words must be men of ability.

I know that I run counter here to the ideas of some who will say that the work of the church is chiefly spiritual. There are those in our midst who will hold that spirituality has to do with ceremonies, with Sunday school, with prayer meeting, with sacrament service, and the ordinances, and is separate from our business life. God pity those who are so blinded. There are none so blind as those who will not see, and the blinders of self-serving interests keep many of our people from seeing this fundamental Christian truth. Let me give you a problem in mathematics. Man equals spirit plus body. That is another way of saying that soul equals spirit and body. Separate the spirit and body and you bring physical death. Our social life is made up of all our interrelations and interaction, of our response to all stimuli. Hence if we separate spiritual stimuli from life we have social death; and anyone who does not carry his religion, the affairs of the spirit if you wish to differentiate that closely, into his everyday life is but a walking corpse.

Prime Work of the Church

The work of the church is spiritual I will admit, but the prime work and the chief work of the church in my conception of it is to spiritualize all society and to carry the factor of spirituality which brings life to humanity into all the activities of men. It is to bring the soul of Christ to man in all the various walks and vocations of life.

As a word of warning here to those who are of my own religious persuasion, let me say that to-day as an organization we confront once more, because we have confronted it in the past, the danger of attempting to divide the activities of the church along those two lines, spiritual and temporal. In the work of the church in the broad conception of the church they cannot be divided. They are inseparable and we must recognize that fact. The work of the church then will not be done, we cannot lay down our weapons of warfare with satisfaction until we realize that everywhere the church has put its imprint upon society so that there is the wholesome effect of spirituality manifested in all the activities of mankind. We are disposed (and it seems to be a somewhat universal human trait) to be satisfied with our own achievements, and the fault which seems to be characteristic of the Scribes and Pharisees to pride themselves on their religious attainments is not by any means confined to the period in which the Scribes and Pharisees lived. And we have but to recall the words of warning or rebuke administered to those Scribes and Pharisees to draw an important lesson which applies to us to-day, "Unless your righteousness exceeds the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees you cannot enter the kingdom of God."

If Christ Should Come To-day

I wonder if that is applicable to our church to-day. I wonder if it is applicable to church people at large, to Christian sects or those who call themselves Christian churches. I believe if Christ were to come to-day and he were to repeat those words, in common parlance he would say something like this, "Unless the voices of the men who represent your organization are raised against the abuses and evils which are common to-day; unless your people exercise a high degree of spirituality in the affairs of life outside your ritualism and your ceremonies, you are in danger of not finding a place in the kingdom of heaven."

In other words he would say, "Unless you vitalize the gospel that I have given to you; unless you make it a dynamic part of your life, there is danger that the gates will have closed against you when you seek entrance or admission." I wonder if Christ if he would speak to-day would say to the churches and to men of the church, "Let business alone; keep your hands off industry; keep out of politics; stay in your pulpit and preach my gospel and my crucifixion"? Would he say that? He might say this, but at the same time he would present an aspect of his gospel which is not pervasive to-day and thus far but little appreciated. He would go on and explain what the gospel means and when he got through you would find him saying, "Yes, go out into business with the fundamentals of your religion; go everywhere where men are found engaging in the works of life and preach my gospel, that it might spiritualize man's entire activity."

Citizenship in Kingdom of Heaven

Let me call your attention to another part of this quotation which we have used and that is that the idea of citizenship in the kingdom of heaven is prominent. Can you conceive of citizenship existing in itself or in the individual, or does the very term connote relations between people? You cannot escape it.

I have spoken in the past of the work of the church being an effort to Christianize society. How shall it be done? I have answered, By Christianizing all activities of man, not one alone, not confining the work of the church, in the spirit of the gospel of Jesus Christ to those activities that are confined to Sunday or perhaps Religio night or Sunday school or something of that kind, but to all the activities of mankind. Too long have we been disposed to think that the work of the church had very largely to do with conduct or participation in religious ceremonies nies, prayer meeting, and heaven, and things of that nature. But that is not enough. The individual conduct must be carried into all activities of life, through all the days of the week. I know I am repeating considerable, but it is necessary.

Christianizing Industry

If society to-day is to be Christianized we have the tremendous task before us of attempting to Christianize industry, for society to-day is largely built on industry. This nation was largely founded on the investment of private interests because of the promise held out for large returns thereto.

What is industry? Industry can be said to consist of three things: Capital, labor, and consumption. We can put the third term in a little less frightening term by saying distribution. Is capital, is labor, is distribution Christianized to-day? Who will dare say yes? Has the main principle still to permeate capital, labor, or distribution of goods? I know some will arise and say, Look at the means that have been collected by certain individuals and see how they have passed it back to society, and then you think of Carnegie and Rockefeller, and others. You could at the same time say there have been others whose fortunes have eventually gone back to society but against their will. That is usually the case. Capital so far has had rather more than its share it seems to me and yet it still wants more. If capital were entirely interested in producing that which men needed, perhaps we could say more for it than we do, but how many of you have been made aware of the fact that men attempting to reap to themselves profit especially in the way of large profits will invest capital in that which they know they must create a demand for in order to sell it? and in many instances this demand has been created only by those who have invested capital in the enterprise. Think of the things in our stores to-day that are not necessary but are in demand. I will venture a guess that many of you can point out these things. There are enormous profits made on such.

Socializing the Surplus

How can we Christianize capital then? That is the task of the church and that is something that holds interest for us this morning. This can be done by making it serve man, to make capital aware of the fact that it has its neighbor as well as man, and this can be done in one way only and that is the socializing of the surplus. Men invest capital because of the production of surplus. After they have charged their wages and overhead there will be an accumulation of profit left to them. That gives them power; it gives them standing in the community; it gives them a bank account, and it drives away fear of old age; so he invests his capital.

It is the bounden duty of those who represent Christ to teach that no man has the right to accumulate unto himself a large surplus, more than he needs. That surplus belongs to the group, to God through the group, and that is the task of the church to-day to promulgate that form of religion that will teach this disposition of surplus.

How will it be done? Right here I want also to issue another word of warning to Latter Day Saints. The application of it as just said is apparent to every really true Latter Day Saint and they know just what I want to say, although I am not going to say it this morning. There is a danger that our people shall, like the Scribes and Pharisees, fail to be as righteous as they should. They will say, "My surplus belongs to God and me, and God has trusted me with it. I will keep it." I do not believe I will go farther with that warning.

Christianizing Labor

Labor is the second term in industry. That means work. And I thank God that the Christian religion never has encouraged idleness, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat thy bread." "The idler shall have no place in Zion," is a modern or latter-day interpretation of the same thing. Is labor Christianized? Who shall say that it is? What did Jesus mean when he said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, [or weary] and I will give you rest." We quote that, and there is something within us that responds with a tenderness that causes our very souls to expand. "Come unto me." We do need rest. I do not care what our occupation is, I do not care what is the situation in which we find ourselves, men become weary—weary of doing over and over again the things that they are compelled to do. They desire a change. That is the plea made to those who labor and are weary because of the heavy burdens they bear.

What did Christ mean? If Christ should come to-day, what would he say as an interpretation of that expression? We work for wages to-day. Work and wages have become inseparably linked together with us. You think of work and you immediately think of what you are paid for it, and most of us work simply for the wage we are paid for our work, and it is drudgery. We work only because the want of bread drives us or only because the fear of old age keeps us at a work which has become distasteful. Would Christ now say if he should come to-day, "My gospel is to all mankind to bring them the more abundant life; and my gospel, if it will become of social value, if it will lift society of which it is a part by reason of having seasoned the whole community, will make labor easy, and those who work will find it pleasurable, because no longer will their returns simply be wages, but they will be encouraged and cheered by the fact that the results of their labors are their contribution to society." It is the happiness coming to others because of the increase in wealth our labor has brought about that causes us to go to work, much more than because of pressure and want. Is there not tremendous social value in the words, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest"?

Distribution of Goods

Consumption or distribution of goods. Capital plus labor makes goods or wealth or welfare. Distribution! I want to put just a few plain questions to you and let you work them out. What percentage of the people who live to-day, even in this boasted land of great equality of opportunity, greatness of government, and wealth—what percentage live below the poverty line? If you care to get the figures, you can get them from our Government. You will be astounded to find how many are living below the standard of living which guarantees maximum efficiency. Is it right? Is it Christian? What percentage of the people are merely existing, that is to say, holding their own? And that figure will astound you. What percentage of the people are in easy circumstances, as we say it to-day? The smallness of that number will astound you when you look it up. What percentage of the people are living in affluence and opulence? I will put it a little more bluntly. What percentage of the people of these United States are controlling and enjoying more than ninety-five per cent of the wealth? Look it up. It is interesting.

Responsibility of Society

Has society any responsibility in this affair? Has the church any responsibility in meeting conditions such as this? Must the church and its men be forever silent on this situation? Capital and labor consume wealth in order to produce goods. The accumulation of surplus represents the general increase of wealth. If we can make that common, then we improve these very conditions, and that is one of the tasks of the church. God is blessing our lives. God is lavish and even extravagant in his desires to bless mankind, and only man's avarice brings poverty. Make the surplus serve all, devoting it to the common weal and we will have Christianized industry. Latter Day Saints, how can we do it? What's the answer? By engendering a sense of neighborliness, by giving an affirmative answer to the question that is age old, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

By engendering religious feeling so deep that every man will feel that his chief task is to increase the common weal. Thus and thus only can we place ourselves at one with Christ. We must preach the gospel as the power of salvation, but that salvation begins here and now. We must preach Christ and him crucified, but also preach Jesus as a living power in all activities. We must engage in ceremonies and ritualisms, but in both for the inculcation of principles to govern ourselves. Ceremonies must be indulged in, but that there shall be developed a religion dynamic and pervasive as a social function. We must have ceremonies and the church must promote them, but in a way calculated to awaken a social consciousness and a conscience that shall be void of offense towards God. Ceremonies? Yes, but with a view to seeing God by seeing our brother first. Ceremonies? Yes, conducted for the purpose of enriching love for God which shall issue in service to man.

Some Educational Problems Involved in the Establishment of Zion

By A. Max Carmichael

We can all start with the presupposition, can we not, that Zion will constitute a different society than we now have, especially in our economic relationships? We can all agree that the spirit of brotherly love will find larger expression in our Zion to be, particularly our economic relationships, for instance, in the holding of property by individuals, the expenditure of property, and its transfer, than it does at present.

A new term has been increasingly applied to Zion in our sermons and written word. It is that Zion is a reconstructed society. This term has its significance. It reflects a trend of thought. It is that Zion is a society that has been reconstructed, but reconstructed out of what? Necessarily out of some other sort of society, and in this case, Zion is a society that is to be reconstructed, or evolved out of our present society. It further implies that the new society will not evolve out of present society cataclysmically, but gradually, through a process of growth.

Zion, a Reconstructed Society

The definition of Zion as a "reconstructed society" has been a bit disturbing to some. On the surface there are two reasons for this. The first is that the terminology, or "thought-form" is new. A great many people fear new things, and especially in the neighborhood of things thought to have religious worth, and more especially in the terminology of religion and theology. They fear the use of new terminology. If fear is too strong a word, they just rather it wouldn't be used. For instance, to call God the first Great Cause is quite orthodox since the middle of the eighteenth century, but to call God the Great Purpose brings an inquiry, at least mentally registered if not audibly, what is behind that new designation. To say "maladjustment" instead of "sin" brings a more forceful inquiry. So to speak of Zion as a "reconstructed society" brings a skeptical inquiry if not a fear.

The second reason is a corollary of the first, or perhaps more accurately, a rationalization of the first, and one by no means far from the truth. A change of expression does imply a change of emphasis among the connotations of the expression. To call God a Purpose continually, and failing to call him a Cause does imply a shift in the meaning of God to us. It by no means implies that the old meaning is not still pertinent and true. In nine hundred and ninety-nine cases of a thousand, it does not imply that. But generally it does imply a change in the focus of our attention upon the characteristics of the thing, the name of which is spoken differently.

Thus to call Zion a reconstructed society does imply a shift in the emphasis in the significances of its characteristics, either of it as established, or as being established. That is, that Zion is to be reconstructed out of the present order, through growth, not cataclysmically. This implies in turn that we do not now possess an appreciation of all the social values necessary for the realization of such society, or to state the same thing in the older terminology of our fathers, we do not now possess all the means of attaining salvation here on earth. This has been partly if not wholly acceded to by those who believe in progression after death; but progression in what? Progression in the living up to social values already conceived, as that "honesty is the best policy," or progression in the conception of more refined and loving values or both? If you admit the latter alternative in progression after death, logically although not conclusively, you admit of the possibility of improvement of our conception of social relationships here. To speak of Zion as a "reconstructed society" does imply this latter. It does imply an evolution from present society. I believe our president goes further than this, he says it implies a "break from the present order," but how revolutionary I do not know.

This implication of the new term, which we are glad to defend and set forth, does disturb some who feel that we have about discovered all of the laws in man's ethical sphere necessary for his eschatological salvation. Having taken refuge in adherence to ritual (perfectly) and having done good works (not perfectly but to the best of their conception and ability), they feel that they are entitled to salvation and do not want to be disturbed from their serenity.

Two Schools of Thought in the Church

There are indeed two schools or tendencies of thought within the church. There are two emphases of thought about Zion. There are those who put the main emphasis upon the fact that Zion is coming down out of heaven, or that the Lamanite brethren are going to do it for us, or that the lost tribes are to have the main part. They evidently have become weary of our slow pace in giving birth to Zion, and are expecting a physician to deliver us of our travail. On the other hand, there are those who put the main emphasis upon the fact that Zion is to be evolved by us out of our present society.

Let us consider the general effects of these two emphases upon our educational problems.

First School of Thought

The first view tends to carry the implication with it that all means necessary for salvation have already been revealed, that now all we have to do is to live up to our best light and ability and we will be saved; that if we are not saved, it is because we do not live up to what we have rather than because we do not see clearly what we ought to do. But as to what we do not see clearly as means to salvation God will take care of that. If there is anything we should have done that we do not now see, God should as a loving Father have revealed it long ago. This attitude tends not to take notice of the fact that God cannot reveal any ethical value, any new moral principle of property relationships to us, until we collectively to a degree at least, to the extent of a majority of the delegates, are sufficiently advanced in ethical conceptions of property relationships to be able to appreciate and receive and vote this newly revealed value into respectability and orthodoxy.

Second School of Thought

The second view carries with it the implication that society does not now express the kingdom of heaven on earth and that it is our specific obligation to transform it and evolve it into the kingdom, or better still, democracy of God on earth. Besides, God is dependent upon the human race for its accomplishment. We are necessary cooperators and participators in its accomplishment. God cannot by a divine fiat accomplish it, or else "why didn't he kill the devil a long time ago." Still more, it carries with it the implication that no one of us is saved individually; we must work out our salvation together as a single project. But an even still further implication is that we do not now possess the ethical conceptions, especially in the field of property relationships, which we must possess before we can practice them. Our failure to bring about a Zion is not only due to the fact that we refuse to live up to the applications of the Messianic universal love that we now conceive; but also to the fact that we do not sense in all particulars the application of that love. We have yet the task of discovering those or they have yet to be revealed, which two statements are one and the same thing from the standpoint of practical religion. We trust that God will struggle with us, to help us to attain those conceptions, and will bring them to our consciousness and to our consciences as soon as we are ready.

Uncommon Factors Overemphasized

These two schools have a slight tendency to pick out the uncommon factors of their two philosophies. Each has a slight tendency to stress these uncommon factors as the chief characteristics of the other's philosophy, and to stretch these factors out of all proportion until they really become an untruth.

Thus the first school feels that the second school is leaving God out and relying too much upon human abilities. This complaint or feeling is partly due to a difference in the conception of God. As this difference of conception is only partially recognized, it might be well to bring it out. We must add, however, that the adherents of these two schools do not mutually exclusively hold to these two conceptions of God which we are about to explain. It may or may not be because they haven't thought out the relationships of their conception of God toward this redemption of Zion or this reconstruction of society.

By those who think of God as participating in or perpetrating those phenomena, which we humans cannot explain in terms of law, or at least control; or, stating it conversely, by those who think of God as not participating in those phenomena which we humans can explain or control, the second school can be charged with depending upon frail humanity too much.

Charged With Leaving Out God

Those who think thus of God find their field in which God is working, narrowing every day. Thus when Galileo set forth the heliocentric principle, that the earth moves around the sun, instead of the sun around the earth, a good bishop preached a sermon on the text, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing into the heavens," making a crude pun on the similarity of the names Galileo, and Galilee, and belittling Galileo's gazing through the telescope, but drawing the conclusion that this discovery denied the ascension, and displaced the great white throne from its spatial existence in the sky. Somehow God's field of operation was narrowed for the bishop, if he should accept Galileo's theory, and he could not reconcile the idea of having God's field of activity narrowed.

Again in Newton's day, when he set forth the theory of gravitation, some ecclesiastic complained that this was an effrontery to God, in that it denied that He was regulating the earth, and that gravitation was doing it instead. God's field was being narrowed for him, according to his conception of God. Likewise to-day, the discovery of ways and means of curing diseases is to many, limiting more and more God's part in the cure. If we keep on discovering many more laws, if we keep on learning to control phenomena as human beings, God is going to be run out pretty soon. To these folk God is some indeterminate, shall I say, irresponsible, factor above all law. As we discover increasingly that things work by law rather than by chance, or supernaturally, we feel God is being left out.

God Discovered in Every Law

But those who feel that God finds his expression through law, feel that each new discovery of law by humans, is an increasing discovery of him, and thus permits us the more effectively to cooperate with him. They find the most joyful and effective cooperation with God in working in accordance with his laws. God is no less in the operation of a law of cure controlled by man, than in a cure due to prayer uncontrolled by man. In fact, in times of community epidemics, are not we now going to health officers with more immediate relief than when as a hundred years ago we fasted and prayed as a community instead? The former is a more perfect cooperation with God. He prefers that we kill the germs. To this school God is finding his greatest expression when human beings are controlling their own destiny by law. God is in the process of bringing about Zion, and is becoming increasingly a participator in it as we discover his laws and work accordingly.

Charged With Present Satisfaction

The second school in turn feels that the first school has a tendency to be satisfied with the status quo, especially with reference to the discovery of human social values. Still more they feel that the first school is administering anaesthetic to Zion's progress with increasing vehemence. The adherents of the first school can honestly from their own point of view deny this. On this point the convictions of the two schools are in open conflict.

Let us hasten to say that the extremes of the two schools have been delineated here in order to bring out their full significance by way of contrast. Their contrasting delineations served at a rhetorical and expository purpose. The fact probably is that nobody belongs to the extremes of either school. The most of us, if not all, work somewhere between the two extremes, the great majority huddling around a central tendency, with a slight deviation toward either extreme, and a few, striking off courageously, perhaps, or prophetically, perhaps, toward either extreme.

Educational Problems

But have you noticed the educational problems ahead of us brought out by this discussion? They consist of the attitude toward and the interpretation of new terminology, decisions with reference to how Zion is to be brought about, and how we are going to get our growing youth to discover the needed human values especially of property relationships more rapidly and more effectively; and last, but not least, how the two schools are to be brought into closer cooperative effort and fellowship. We may attempt later to amplify and discuss the solutions of these problems.

The Conception of Progress

It seems incredible that there was a time in history when men had little or no conception of progress, yet there was such a time. Among the earliest people and in some primitive tribes now living, life was thought of as a chaos. Death and misfortune were attributed to witchcraft and the evil designs of enemies. Life was good luck or bad luck. It was merely existence. Here was no idea of progress.

Ideas of Early Peoples

It is also said that certain oriental peoples at one time believed only in deterioration. They thought the world was on its way from perfection to utter degeneration and ruin, and that nothing could stop it. Opposed to this view is what is now sometimes thought of as directed evolution, that is, the world going toward perfection through gradual changes, having started at the bottom, wherever that may be.

Another stage was found among the early Greeks, who believed that life was ruled by Fate. No one knew from whence he came or where he was going, but all were equally certain that Fate was taking them somewhere.

With the dawn of Christianity came the idea of a divine Providence, which idea reached its height during the Middle Ages. This conception was that man was created free, but that because of the fall, he had to be redeemed through Christ. All life had meaning. The evil in the world was God's way to accomplish his purpose. There was no doubt but that Providence would bring everything out all right. Man had little responsibility to worry about. Truly a happy idea! Here was the optimistic view as opposed to the early pessimistic view.

The conception of directed progress then rose upon the ruins of divine Providence. With this came the realization that all did not depend upon Providence for the successful outcome of the world. Man has a part to play, and a very big part. His efforts are, however, directed toward the betterment of the world, and will ultimately result in man reaching perfection.

We are still in the midst of this conception, although to define the term progress will lead us into many byways which are yet unexplored. There is no general agreement as to what progress means, but it is possible to trace the current conception.

Possible Future Idea of Progress

There is a growing tendency, however, to formulate another conception of progress which may in time supersede the present one. This idea will probably be that of Control. Reverting to the early idea that life is a chaos, the new idea would replace the "good and bad luck" idea with that of Control. Since there is no assurance that progress will take place, all responsibility would be placed upon man. He must control the situation in which he lives, in order that progress may take place. In this we exclude the idea of a directing force, which the present conception of progress admits. The idea of Control is not yet firmly established but there is a growing tendency for it to spread. We do not yet know where it will lead.

In viewing the present conception of progress, we have found there is no general agreement as to what it is. This is because we cannot determine what is desirable and what is not desirable. We can have no general idea of progress, because progress turns out to be a number of special tasks. We look at these tasks and must determine which ones are progressive, and which are not progressive; which are good and which are bad.

Current Conception of Progress

The current conception of progress is indefinite and unstable. There is no determined idea acceptable to all people. Sometimes progress is thought of as growth, as in the population of a certain area. At another time it may be thought of as quantity of material products, or it may have reference to the higher quality of anything, as the progress of machinery which has been rapidly improving in design and construction. In referring to the state of moral or intellectual progress among people, we think of the civilization in which they live.

Have you noticed that in all these various conceptions of progress, the idea has been of the thing produced? Now in fact this is not the progress. This is but the result, the evidence that progress has taken place. Even after witnessing these things, we cannot be sure whether the product is the result of progress or its opposite.

For instance, the number of conveniences invented to make man more comfortable may not be evidence of progress. Great civilizations have fallen as a result of lavish luxury in which they were living. The marvelous machines of war, engines of destruction, invented since the Great War, may not be evidence of progress. During the next war, if there be one, these very inventions may wipe out the entire human race. Would this then be progress? We would not think so, yet perhaps if the present human family were destroyed, there might be room for a race of people less stupid.

Locating Progress

It is not so much the reality of progress as its accompaniments which are the real progress. It is not the thing produced, so much as the thing which causes the production. In the field of organic matter we find man as the highest product of progress. The significance is not so much in the product, as in the change which has taken place in the germ plasm. The product, man, may die and disappear, but the germ plasm is capable of reproduction, hence it lives. The real progress is in the germ plasm, not in the man as a biological product.

Whether we believe that man arrived at his present state as a result of evolution or whether we believe only in progress within the species, we nevertheless admit the possibility and desirability of becoming something better than we are. The science of eugenics would replace natural selection by intelligent selection. In this way biological progress could be assured, provided of course we knew what we wanted to progress to.

Burbank has demonstrated successfully the possibility of progress in plant life. He has also demonstrated the possibility of degeneration in plant life. This shows the importance of knowing what we want, where we are going, before we start.

Controlling Social Progress

What heredity means to biological progress, tradition means to social progress. If we can change tradition, which means social habits, we may be able to get different social results. The social habits of man have largely produced the present state of civilization.

We cannot directly change man's social habits by improving his biological composition. But a better body should contribute favorably to a better social being. Hence the application of eugenics is one way of aiding human progress.

Granted we know what we wish to produce socially, we can change the social organization so these results may be obtained. The promiscuous production of social conveniences may never bring about progress. As the science of eugenics would direct selection, so the science of sociology should direct social organization and social habits toward the goal we desire.

We see from this that an idea of what progress is, is necessary if we are to assist Providence in getting us there. If on the other hand all progress rests on the control man applies to the situation, the idea of a goal is even more important.

Definition of Progress

What, then, is progress? To use a recognized sociological definition, Human progress is that which secures the increase of human happiness. Unless it do this, no matter how great a civilization may be, there is no progress. No matter what stage of advancement a people may have reached in art, literature, philosophy, science, or religion, unless that people is thereby made happy, there is no progress.

Happiness is a feeling which is the result of a condition of adjustment between experiences of the past and what is desired in the future. Happiness can be increased only by increasing one's capacity for feeling and doing away with the things which make life disagreeable.

Means to Happiness

It is a well-known biological fact that an organism is perfect in proportion as its organs are numerous and varied. The greater number of organs, the greater capacity for feelings. But these organs must be functioning normally, enjoying perfect freedom. The same is true, in this case, of society. Progress is in proportion to the number of opportunities given for a people to work to capacity, thereby satisfying desire. The people who would progress must have happiness as their goal. And human happiness is to be reached by erecting a social organization sufficiently intricate to allow for full expression in all the fields of human endeavor, but with the undesirable features of the present organization removed. The parts of this new organization must function perfectly. This will produce happiness.

Sociology has not yet produced such an organization. It has not yet even formulated a plan which is worthy a trial. The only one in existence of such

(Continued on page 445.)

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Oxford Bibles
only are printed on Oxford India paper.

OXFORD BIBLES

The Oxford imprint assures accuracy and good workmanship.

Oxford Teacher's Bibles

These widely used editions contain the famous Oxford teachers' helps arranged under one alphabet like a dictionary. The helps have been thoroughly revised by English and American scholars, so as to embody the most recent researches. They take the place of many books about the Bible and are a mine of information for any student. Many full-page illustrations of scenes in Bible lands are included. Also contain an indexed atlas to the Bible with fifteen richly colored maps.

These new helps doubly strengthen the position which the OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLE has always held as "The Bible par excellence of the World."

A Harmony of the Life of Christ from His birth to the Ascension, giving in chronological order every event of His life, every parable and miracle, showing in parallel columns where the account may be found in the Bible.

A Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names. Gives the meaning and pronunciation of every Scripture proper name and tells where found.

Chronology of the Old Testament. Gives in consecutive order the history of God's people from Adam to the Fall of Jerusalem.

A Concordance to Thousands of Bible Verses. This enables you to find instantly thousands of Scripture verses if only one important word in a verse is remembered.

Paul's Missionary Journeys. Shows in chronological order where the great missionary traveled and what happened at each place.

Photographs of Bible Scenes. Reproductions from photographs of places in the Holy Land.

Also Weights, Measures, Money, Animals, Rivers, Metals, Birds, Insects, Mountains, etc., mentioned in the Bible.

BLACK-FACED TYPE EDITION

Size 7¼x5x1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

15 And I call upon me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me.

16 But unto the wicked God saith, What hast thou to do to declare my

No. 04451—Morocco Grained Keratol, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. ....$3.50

No. 04453—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. ....$4.35

(Weight 1 lb. 14 oz.)

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on Oxford India paper and only one inch thick.

No. 0773x—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. $7.65
(Weight 18 oz.)

SELF-PRONOUNCING EDITION

All proper names and difficult words divided into syllables and accented so they may be correctly pronounced. Sizes 8¼x5½x1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

35 And Jē-hōi'-ă-kim gave *th silver and the gold to Phâr-ăoh

No. 04521—Morocco Grained Keratol, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. ....$4.50

No. 04523—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. $5.50
(Weight 3 lbs.)

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on the famous Oxford India paper and only 1¼ inches thick.

No. 0923x—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. ....$9.65
(Weight 1 lb. 10 oz.)

Oxford Red Letter Bibles

The Old Testament prophecies concerning Jesus Christ and His words in the New Testament, printed in red letters. Old Testament passages cited by Jesus indicated by an * in red. All printed with clear black-face type, like No. 04451 listed above.

REFERENCE EDITION

With centre column references and 12 colored maps. Size 7¼x5x1 inches.

No. 03453—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. (Weight 1 lb. 8 oz.) $5.50

Oxford India Paper Edition

Same as above, but printed on Oxford India paper and only ¾ of an inch thick.

No. 03453x—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. ....$7.50

No. 03454x—Same as No. 03453x, silk sewed, leather lined. ....$9.00

(Weight 13 oz.)

S. S. TEACHERS' EDITION

A complete students' edition, containing the famous teachers' helps. The ideal Bible for Sunday school teachers or anyone who wishes to study the Bible. Size 7¼x5x1½ inches.

No. 05453—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. ....$6.25
(Weight 1 lb. 14 oz.)

Oxford India Paper Edition

1½ inches thick.

No. 05453x—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. ....$8.75

No. 05454x—Same as No. 05453x, silk sewed, leather lined. ....$10.25

(Weight 18 oz.)

Oxford Bibles for Children

Beautifully illustrated Oxford editions that any child would be glad to own. Durably bound and clearly printed. Instructive as well as interesting.

OXFORD PICTORIAL BIBLE

Containing vivid and true pictures of scenes and customs in Bible Lands. They instruct as well as interest. Clear minion type like specimen shown. Size 5¼x3¾x1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

18 But we will bless the LORD from this time forth and for evermore. Praise the LORD.

No. 02325—Morocco Grained Keratol, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with 32 engravings. ....$2.25

No. 02327—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with 32 beautifully colored illustrations. ....$3.00

(Weight 1 lb.)

SELF-PRONOUNCING PICTORIAL BIBLE

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 32 beautiful full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as these styles are self-pronouncing editions. Size 7¼x5x1 inches.

Specimen of Type

23 Of the sons of Is'sa-char after 1 families: of Tō'ia, the family of the

No. 4181—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. ....$3.10

No. 5181—Same as 4181, with 16 beautifully colored and 15 black illustrations. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles. ....$3.25

(Weight 1 lb. 8 oz.)

OXFORD S. S. SCHOLARS' BIBLE

With specially selected Bible study helps prepared by the well-known Rev. F. N. Peloubet, D.D., 32, beautiful engravings, 6 colored maps and a Presentation Page. Every Sunday school scholar needs one. Size 5¼x3¾ inches. Same type as Oxford Pictorial Bible above.

No. 03310—Cloth, Silk Pattern, round corners, red edges. ....$1.45

No. 03325—Morocco Grained Keratol, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. ....$2.40

No. 03327—French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. ....$3.00

(Weight 15 oz.)

Improved Thumb Index on any style at 50 cents extra

www.LetterDayTruth.org

CHURCH NEWS

Two Weeks' Meetings Held at Fargo, North Dakota

FARGO, NORTH DAKOTA, April 24.—The Saints here have been enjoying some very excellent and inspiring sermons during the two weeks series conducted by Elder W. E. Shakespeare. Although not many nonmembers attended, yet a few seemed real interested and the Saints felt strengthened and encouraged by listening to the dear old story told in such a plain and interesting way. It made them feel like being doers of the word and not hearers only.

The local newspapers were very generous about printing the items sent in, and gave considerable free advertising. Some paid display advertising was also had, and it is hoped some good will come therefrom. At least the people of the city will know where the Saints are and that they are trying to let their light shine.

Brother Shakespeare seemed especially blessed and always patient and cheerful, not forgetting that he had a severe case of "radio fever" and spent some interesting moments listening in at the home of Brother Rotzien, especially when K F I X came through the air.

Brother J. E. Wildermuth, of Illinois, greeted Fargo with his old-time smile and was with the Saints during the last week of the meetings, favoring with two fine sermons. Elder Thomas Leitch also was present some of the time, and the Saints feel a regret when the brethren leave for other places.

Defends Reorganization

The other Sunday, the Saint Mark's Luther League, consisting of young people, announced a discussion on the "Mormon Menace." Two of the brethren attended and heard the unfair statements made against Joseph Smith and the Saints. After the discussion, one of the brethren asked to give a short talk, and while explaining briefly the difference in the two organizations and telling them they had been misinformed concerning Joseph Smith, they became very interested and said they wanted to hear more about it. So the two speakers made an appointment with the brother to meet at his home the following Sunday.

On the following Saturday the brother received a letter from one of the speakers, stating they would meet him as planned and asked permission to bring several of the young dignity, and still untried, is the social organization of Christianity. Change the social structure to meet the requirements of a Christian society, and we may have achieved the progress we are looking for.

THE CONCEPTION OF PROGRESS

(Continued from page 443.)

Progress is to be determined by the goal to be reached and the human goal is happiness. This is measured in terms of feeling and not in material production. Look for progress within yourself and thereby determine your state of worth. Are you happy? If not, look about you and see what you have produced. These have not given you happiness. Change your mode of living. A. E. W.

people along who wished to hear the discussion. Of course this request was granted and an invitation extended to all to come who would. The appointed hour arrived, the brother with Elder Shakespeare waited anxiously for the opportunity, but it never came. This only makes one feel the more satisfied that he has the truth and the people are afraid to meet it.

Death of W. F. Dehn

The Saints were very much grieved over the sad incident of last week, when Brother W. F. Dehn became suddenly ill with a strange malady which puzzled the physicians. They finally decided he must have become infected from a poisonous dust from a building on which he was working. He became unconscious on Friday, was taken to the local hospital and died on Easter evening. He leaves wife and two children. He will be greatly missed among the Saints, but a faithful brother has gone to rest. It emphasizes the thought more forcibly that we must be prepared to meet our God. Elder Shakespeare preached the funeral sermon. The remains were taken to Alice, North Dakota, for interment.

A short program was rendered by the Sunday school children on Easter morning. The Department of Recreation and Expression now meets on Friday evenings.

Purchase Songbooks With Money Made From Social

PEORIA, ILLINOIS, April 17.—A social was given recently by the Department of Recreation and Expression and was reported to be quite a success. Those attending spent a pleasant evening, had a nice supper, and made some money with which to buy new songbooks. They expect to try this again very soon.

The few Saints here continue to put forth an effort to carry on the work. They have been cheered by a brief visit of Elder E. R. Davis, district president. Elder C. E. Willey, Lamoni, Iowa, was a visitor and preached for the Saints. He was here because of the sickness and death of Brother Charles M. Gillen. Elder Frank A. Russell, of Independence, Missouri, preached the funeral sermon. James Norris, of Kewanee, Illinois, and Brother and Sister Heavener, of Piper City, Illinois, were here to attend the funeral.

Sickness, lack of employment, and some other things have handicapped the work in this place, but with the coming of spring it is hoped that better conditions will prevail and greater progress be made.

An effort will be made to place the HERALD in every family of Saints in Peoria.

Girls Are Winners in Good Program Contest

NORTH TORONTO, CANADA, April 28.—The Department of Recreation and Expression had a contest between the girls and the boys for the best program, and the losing side was to prepare a supper for the winners. The girls won. It is surprising to know what the boys can do when they are put to the test in the way of preparing meals.

The Department of Women had a sale of work on March 29, which was a great success.

The branch is to have a party at the home of Brother and Sister Williams at Hillsdale Avenue, and all look forward to a big time, since it is for the building fund. The branch has about $1,000 to meet on the new lot and when that is paid for it is going to build a new church.

Special services were held here April 20. A good spirit was present all day.

Ottumwa Saints Pleased With Visit of Blanche Edwards

OTTUMWA, IOWA, April 20.—By special request Ottumwa was favored with a visit from Sister Blanche Edwards, April 11 to 13, at which time she gave a wonderful talk to the Department of Women, on Friday afternoon. It was well attended, and well received.

Sunday morning, at 11 a. m., she spoke at the junior service. This also was greatly enjoyed as was the address to the officers and teachers of the Sunday school at 6.30.

Her personality and firm convictions made her talks very interesting. All who heard her felt well repaid for her visit.

New Branch at Historic Nauvoo Is Thriving

NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, April 21.—Six years ago J. W. Layton and wife, of Independence, were sent to Nauvoo to care for the church property. Soon after this Clyde Fusselman and family located here; then August Lee and wife, of Burlington, came. Sister Lee, having no children of her own, adopted three children from the Children's Home, with the end in view of training them to be workers for the church. This was the nucleus of a little branch which continued to grow until now there is an enrollment of thirty-one. This may seem an insignificant number to some of the large branches, but Nauvoo challenges any of them to produce as large a percentage at all their services. Thirty-one live, active Saints can make things hum.

Inspirational Prayer Meetings

The prayer meetings are a spiritual feast. "The Spirit of God like a fire is burning" to such an extent that even the children declare they are forced to arise to their feet. During the winter months the Wednesday night prayer meetings were held at the home of Brother and Sister Marshall. In their spacious room a large circle was formed with room in the circle for every member of the branch and all were present from the oldest to the youngest with one or two exceptions, when sickness or a small baby detained.

It was an inspiration to look at the faces gathered there night after night, all waiting to receive a blessing, and never going away empty-handed. Bishop Lambert, hearing of the prayer meetings, determined to meet with the Saints, so as soon as the roads were fit he and Brother Sherman drove in from Rock Creek, a distance of nine miles. They felt well repaid for their journey.

All are happy to have Emma Burton and her daughter Addie associated with them. Sister Burton's testimonies are always an inspiration to all.

Nauvoo is especially fortunate in having as pastor, Amos Berve. Brother Berve's many years of pastoral and missionary work give him resources from which to draw, qualifying him to assist in every department of branch work.

Landscape Gardening

Brother Traxler, of Lamoni, who is a landscape gardener, was here last week and set out five hundred shrubs around the Mansion House, Nauvoo House, Old Homestead, and the church building.

The men of the branch gave their services to the undertaking while the women cared for the watering of the plants as they were set out. All were happy to see these historic places beautified, for tourists from all parts of the country visit these places every year.

Work of the Departments

There is a splendid Sunday school here, well organized, under the leadership of Titus Henderson.

There is also a live Religio with Arthur Berve, superintendent. The boys and girls from twelve to fifteen years of age have been giving some splendid debates for the programs, which have surprised the older ones with their logic and forcefulness.

Sister Berve has charge of the Department of Women. Their efforts are being directed toward the fitting up of the church building. They are also taking up the study of Home Building as outlined in the HERALD and find it very interesting.

Feeling Toward the Saints

Mrs. Collins, Nauvoo's oldest citizen, passed away last week. Her parents came here from England in 1841. Her father was a stone cutter and was intrusted with the carving on the temple. Mrs. Collins was born at a time when persecution was most bitter against the Saints, and many of them feared to own their affiliation with their Saints. She grew up knowing nothing about the work and joined the Presbyterian Church. She often attended the meetings of the Saints, however, with others of the townspeople, who seem to enjoy meeting with us.

The feeling toward Latter Day Saints seems to have undergone a complete change in Nauvoo, and many have expressed the wish that the Saints would again return. All who have come so far have purchased homes and are doing all in their power to help build up the waste places.

Brother Traxler calls Nauvoo the Jerusalem of the church, for here as in Jerusalem, the temple was destroyed, prophets killed, and Saints driven out. Many have had the assurance, however, that Nauvoo, like Jerusalem, would again be restored and become the corner stone of Zion.

First Chicago Branch Has Full Program

FIRST CHICAGO BRANCH, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, April 21.—First Chicago Branch has only one complaint to make, and that is that there doesn't seem to be enough days in the week. That the branch is busy is just putting it mildly.

All were cheered and built up by a visit of Apostle J. A. Gillen. The Saints here are always pleased to hear from the men at headquarters.

Brother O. A. McDowell, vice president of the district, together with his wife, visited here March 30. Brother McDowell always gives an incentive to seek higher things.

April 13 looked like home-coming day at this branch. Brother J. G. Fairbanks, of Independence, Brother and Sister McMasters, of Michigan, were in attendance. This, plus the full house, was that which made it appear like home-coming.

On Wednesday, the 16th, all hearts were made sad in attending the funeral service of the infant son of Brother and Sister Odin.

Easter morning, the choir, under the direction of Sister Ruby Newman, gave its annual cantata, "Jesus lives," by Charles Gabriel. The Saints are thankful for the gift of song among the young people.

A number of the primary pupils received diplomas of promotion which were presented by the pastor, F. E. Bone, who is a friend to the children.

Local men are occupying when opportunity permits, giving much food for thought.

Deacon for Eighteen Years in Los Angeles Branch Dies

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, April 21.—No event of recent date has so saddened the hearts of the Los Angeles Saints as the death of Brother Nels Paulson, for eighteen years a deacon of the branch.

Brother Paulson passed away at the Murphy Memorial Hospital, Whittier, California, on April 11. Funeral services were held from the chapel of the White Funeral Parlors. Interment was in Whittier Heights, Memorial Park.

Although Brother Paulson had recently resigned his position as presiding deacon of the Los Angeles Branch because of ill health and inability to properly care for the work, no one had suspected that his case might be serious. He had been a successful builder and his memory will be prolonged among the Saints by the many structures he left, especially on the Southern California district reunion grounds, known as Convention Park.

The branch work is progressing nicely under the direction of the pastor, Doctor Teal. The building committee have just about completed plans for the new church which is expected to be under construction in the near future. The old church at Eleventh and Wall was successfully sold for $20,000, and the branch now holds meetings at 1333 South Georgia Street in a rented hall.

All committees are active, carrying out assigned work along missionary and business lines. Wednesday night, April 16, the choir sponsored an entertainment at which Sisters May Lewis and Margaret Wickes starred in a wonderful exhibition of talent. Sister Lewis read the play, "Within the law," and Sister Wickes gave several piano numbers between acts.

Brother and Sister Arthur W. Smith, of Saint Louis, Missouri, are visiting friends here and making many friends among the Saints.

Word comes of the death of A. J. Webber, of Davenport, Iowa, March 24. Brother Webber was 56 years of age. He has been a member of the church since 1897, and held the office of priest at his death. For some years he has been employed in the Saint Luke's Hospital where he died as the result of an operation. It is said by those who knew him that he led a consistent Christian life, being a devoted father and husband. Brother Webber is survived by his wife, Grace, two sons, Lloyd and Leland, and three daughters, Marcene, Lucile, and Marian.

Easter Sunday School Quota Reached by Churches in Bevier, Missouri

BEVIER, MISSOURI, April 28.—"A thousand in Sunday school Easter," the slogan for the combined Sunday schools of Bevier, reached the goal after an extensive drive. Had it not been for the measles epidemic they would have far exceeded the goal. The attendance at the different Sunday schools was as follows: Baptist, 266; Congregational, 234; Christians, 208; Saints, 129; Catholic, 182; colored, 47; total, 1,066.

Owing to the epidemic of measles that is prevailing, the Easter exercises at the Saints' church had to be abandoned.

In the absence of the branch president, April 29, two of the young priests occupied in the pulpit. In the morning hour, Carl Weeks gave a fine talk on the necessity for a thorough knowledge of the Bible and the need of a Bible normal training, especially for teachers of Sunday school classes.

In the evening Fred L. McKane continued along the same line and stressed the necessity for humility and love. Both these young brethren are expected to advance in the work. Brother Carl is the Bishop's agent for Northeastern Missouri District.

Sickness Among Saints

Brother W. B. Richards, the pastor, and his wife left for Kansas City the early part of the month, where Sister Richards is undergoing a treatment for throat trouble. Sister Kate Rogers is also being treated by a specialist in Kansas City.

Sister Ivor Surridge was taken very ill April 27 with acute appendicitis. She was taken to the local hospital where she underwent an operation that evening and at this writing is doing as well as may be expected.

Sister Archie F. Smith and two children, Crawford and Annalee, of Oakland, California, are visiting Bevier relatives. On April 25, Sister Smith gave birth to a daughter at the home of her sister, Sister L. O. Mason, in Bevier.

Recent Marriages

Two of the young sisters were recently married. On April 6, Sister Neola Thomas, daughter of Brother and Sister J. B. Thomas, was united in marriage to Mr. Marvin L. Landers, of Baker, Oregon, and left that evening for Baker, where the groom holds a responsible position with one of the large mercantile companies there. The bride is a good musician and possesses a sweet voice. The Saints of Bevier can commend her to the Saints at Baker, Oregon. Elder W. B. Richards performed the ceremony. A large crowd of Saints and friends were at the depot to see the bridal couple off.

On April 19, Sister Alice Lilly and Mr. Herman Loske were married. Judge B. R. Williams performed the ceremony in the office of probate judge at Macon. The young people left for Kansas City for a short visit. They have the best wishes of Saints and friends.

Owing to the coal strike now in progress many of the local members are out of work.

W. H. Dawson writes from Sacramento, California: "Interest is increasing here. Brother George H. Wixom is holding forth in a series of meetings each evening. Attendance has nearly doubled since the first weekday evening. Nonmembers are interested, some inquiring the way. We expect some to enter the kingdom before long. Several have been baptized here of late, there being ten new members in the branch baptized by the writer."

Would You Keep

1. Informed on Church School Movements.
2. Instructed in Church School Methods.
3. Inspired for Church School Service.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

San Antonio Religio Devises Stunt for Increasing Attendance

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, April 28.—The Religio seems to be taking on new life and the attendance is increasing to a marked degree. The president, Theodore Darrow, has struck on a unique plan which is getting good results.

Some weeks ago the members were divided into two sides, each side having an engineer at the head. They decided to take an imaginary trip to California, one side representing the Southern Pacific Railroad, and the other side, the Katy. Every member who comes on time is counted five miles on the trip, and every visitor brought to Religio is counted five miles on the side of the person who brought him or her. When the program is rendered each number on the program is counted five miles to which ever side they belong. The side which reaches its destination first will be entitled to a treat given by the losing side.

This plan has caused a lively interest to be taken. Each side is vying with the other trying to bring the largest number of visitors, consequently a number of strangers are seen out each evening. After the visitors come they are entertained in a way which causes them to come again. There is a Book of Mormon class, a normal training class, and a current events class. Most of the visitors attend the latter. So far it is difficult to tell which will be the winning side.

Easter Entertainment

On Easter Sunday, after the class work was finished in the morning, a short, interesting program was rendered by a class of primaries, in charge of Sister Emma Jackson. After the program was ended, the school repaired to Roosevelt Park where a nice lunch was partaken of, after which the children indulged in an Easter hunt, which they seemed to enjoy.

The morning hour of April 27 was occupied by the pastor, T. J. Jett, jr., on the text, "If thou faint in the day of adversity, thy strength is small." The evening hour was occupied by W. H. Mannering on "The gathering of the Jews."

Brother Mannering and his faithful allies, Sisters Emma Jackson and Mary Barber, continue to broadcast their program every two weeks on Monday evening at 8.30.

English Saints Encouraged by Visit of Patriarch

LONDON, ENGLAND, April 11.—An enjoyable time was spent here on Sunday, April 6, by all the Saints in attendance at the services. The Saints had much pleasure in having with them Patriarch Richard Baldwin and his wife.

The services commenced in the afternoon with the class for the study of the Church History, Brother Baldwin being the teacher. He commended the class on this study and said it could do nothing better than get well acquainted with the history of the church.

Then followed the Sunday school from 3.30 to 4.30, the study being taken from the gospel quarterly, intermediate grade. Brother Baldwin again was the teacher.

The preaching service commenced at 6.30 in the evening and as an appropriate subject for the day, Brother Baldwin spoke upon "The reorganization of the church." He inspired and encouraged all to go forward with the work of the Master.

The prayer and testimony meeting followed when the Saints testified to the divinity of the Book of Mormon. The meeting was really an inspiring one, ending a most pleasant day.

The Saints will be sorry when Brother Baldwin and his wife leave, but they pray that God will go with this brother and sister, helping them in their labors in the missionary field.

Gospel Preached at Spearfish, South Dakota

SPEARFISH, SOUTH DAKOTA, April 25.—That grand old man of the gospel, Elder C. W. Prettyman, is here reviving the Saints and trying again to get the gospel before the people of this town, in a series of meetings which began Wednesday night, April 23.

Sister Dopp, who underwent an operation several weeks ago, has sufficiently recovered to be out to the Easter service, but she is still sorely afflicted and would be grateful for the remembrance of the Saints in their prayers.

Elder Is Elected Mayor of Council Bluffs

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA, April 1.—Heading the Republican ticket as candidate for the office of mayor of Council Bluffs, Jack Harding, an elder of the church, was swept into office by a landslide majority, March 31.

Brother Harding received about 1,500 votes more than his opponent, Lou Zurmuehlen. The vote was one of the heaviest in the history of the city's elections.

Council Bluffs has a live branch of Saints who are actively interested in the church work. Brother Harding is an elder in the branch.

Organize Department of Women at Davidson, Oklahoma

DAVIDSON, OKLAHOMA, April 29.—On the evening of April 20, the Sunday school gave an Easter program. The church was filled to its capacity. The program was well rendered.

Sister Lester E. Dyke, of Eagle City, the district organizer, came down the 24th and organized a Department of Women. The various officers are as follows: Mrs. Roy Skinner, superintendent; Mrs. Grady Hood, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Tom Skinner, cradle roll and home department; Mrs. Edgar Muse, friendly visitor; Mrs. Zenos Renfroe, young women and girls.

The Saints are all moving along nicely.

Ottumwa Sunday School Gives Pageant

OTTUMWA, IOWA, April 29.—On the evening of April 20, the Sunday school had their Easter program, including the pageant, "Easter dawn," which was under the direction of Brother John Baker, superintendent, and Sister L. Scott. Brother Tom Richards had charge of the lighting which made some very effective scenes.

All who participated in this did remarkably well. The church was full, with many standing and many visitors present. Such a pageant will have its effect on the public and it made a very good advertisement for the church here as the local paper gave a good write-up about it, publishing the name of each one who played a part.

Increase in Interest and Attendance Found Among Oakland Saints

OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, April 27.—Oakland Saints are showing an unusual interest in spiritual affairs. There is an exceptional attendance at all the services, and one thing of note is the interest of the young in the Religio class, studying the stewardship plan outlined in the quarterlies.

A. C. Hawley, bishop's counselor, in his sermon Sunday, said in part: "I am passing through one of the most pleasant experiences of my life in the young people's class in Religio."

Brother Victor Etzenhouser has been appointed missionary to the cities around the bay. There is much to be done. Is it not a blessing to find eager hands to help?

Snow in Maine Greet Easter Crowds

WEST KENNEBEC, MAINE, April 26.—Elder H. A. Chelline has been holding a series of meetings at the Little Kennebec Branch during the past week.

The Saints in this branch had a supper for the benefit of the church. It was served at six o'clock, and consisted of baked beans, brown and white bread, pickles, pies, cake, and coffee. Later in the evening, ice cream, cake, and candy were for sale. The proceeds amounted to $17.50. A very nice time was reported by the large gathering that attended.

Although Easter morning in this community dawned with about five or six inches of snow, which made walking conditions rather bad, the Saints of this branch spent the day in worship and made it a busy one. At nine o'clock in the morning there was a prayer meeting for the young people conducted by Elder H. A. Chelline, who was here for the week. He preached at 11 o'clock, following Sunday school at ten, and spoke also at 2.30 and at 7 p. m.

In the evening the choir of young people sang Easter hymns. Much credit is given Elder Chelline for the way in which he conducted these services. They proved a great help to the little band of Saints here. The services were largely attended despite the weather conditions.

Indian Tells Habits and Customs of Forefathers

DES MOINES, IOWA, May 1.—The Department of Recreation and Expression was especially fortunate Sunday evening in the program that was presented. Mr. Philo Jackson, an Indian, gave a very interesting talk on "Habits and costumes of my forefathers." He told many new and startling facts about the religions and pastimes of the early Indian tribes. In addition to this talk, Miss Lois Wentworth, an instructor in the Department of Music of Drake University, played a piano solo, and Sister Evelyn Finch gave a vocal solo.

Brother F. T. Mussell preached the evening sermon, while Brother Dowker occupied at Van Dalia.

The Girls' Glee Club, which is composed of young women of the branch, meets every Tuesday evening at the home of one of its members for a two hour practice. Under the capable leadership of Brother Vern Deskin and with the splendid cooperation of the entire branch, the body of young women is doing a great deal to raise the standard of music in the Des Moines Branch.

The Easter services at Des Moines, April 20, were both beautiful and inspiring. Brother David Dowker preached the morning sermon on "Our risen Lord." The Girls' Glee Club sang "The angels rolled the rock away," and Vern Deskin played a violin solo, "Palm branches."

At the evening service the cantata, "King triumphant," by Mrs. E. L. Ashford, was presented by a large choir under the competent direction of Sister Evelyn Finch. The cantata was beautifully sung and greatly appreciated by all who heard it.

Brother C. E. McDonald, of Runnells, the vice president of this district, delivered the Sunday morning sermon, April 27, on the subject, "Work."

Interesting Stereopticon Lectures Given at Sault Sainte Marie, Michigan

SAULT SAINTE MARIE, MICHIGAN, May 2.—Meetings have been well attended and the Saints are enjoying their efforts in church work. The winter was quite steady. Spring has come in nicely thus far. There has been some snow here today.

The branch is sad because of the fact that they are losing three valiant members, Brother and Sister Emery Pinder, and Brother Emery's father, Jason Pinder. Brother Jason Pinder has been a very faithful deacon here. These shall be missed, though the loss of this branch will be the gain of another. They are moving to Flint.

Elder Harvey Van Dusen has a stereopticon lantern and has given some very interesting lectures. Elder Van Dusen plans an extensive work with the lantern and slides this coming summer in the two Soos and surrounding country.

Love and unity prevail in all the gatherings and the Saints are making friends with the people. The Sunday school is growing in numbers as in every other way.

Graceland Chats

LAMONI, IOWA, May 3.—The new athletic track has been tried out and proved all that was claimed for it. The various track meets brought out enthusiastic groups from near-by schools and track fans from college and high school in Lamoni. Unfortunately the weather man was unfriendly on several occasions, but spring rains and Iowa prairie winds never disheartened the participants or onlookers at any time.

President McDowell Back to School Duties

President McDowell is getting the thrill of college life again. Office, classroom, and volley ball field are welcome after long hours for days in a council chamber. This spring weather certainly invites one to picnic and frolicing pool.

Professor R. L. Mortimore's Absence

Professor R. L. Mortimore is absent, attending a special meeting of the Iowa Academy of Science at Ames, Iowa. Brother Mortimore is a great favorite with his classes and the college students. His radio service makes him of added importance to the college life. In the latter capacity he is associated with Kenneth Krahl, son of Elder and Sister David Krahl, of Independence, Missouri.

Presented in Recital

The Graceland College Department of Drama presented Mrs. Verna Brackenbury in recital, Friday evening, May 2. "Peg o' my heart," by Sister Brackenbury met a most appreciative audience. Miss Aliene Brackenbury assisted with her sweet soprano, in Irish love songs, with Mrs. C. N. Clifford playing her accompaniments.

On Friday evening in Mount Ayr, Iowa, Miss Margaret Armstrong directed a May Festival in song. This was given by the Musical Guild Club, which has been trained by Miss Armstrong, who rendered the solos.

Brethren Marshall Jamison and McKenzie favored Graceland with calls. The former is an old Graceland student, and the latter is making his first call on Graceland.

Brother Cole, who has been attending college during the year with his wife, returned on Saturday to his home in Virginia, expecting to take up his work here again in September.

Gymnasium Progressing

The walls of Gymnasium and Convention Hall are steadily rising. Early and late the work goes on. The view from these walls is one to please the lover of nature. Green and flower-flecked, the hills roll away to the horizon's rim on the west or east and dip to the woodland on the south. Fresh and invigorating the winds sweep across this sea of green to Graceland.

Lamoni Stake Items

LAMONI, IOWA, May 3.—One of the leading entertainment features of the week here was a concert given by the Graceland-Lamoni Orchestra, under the direction of Brother J. H. Anthony. The orchestra from town and college is composed of musicians who are doing splendid work. The program consisted of five orchestral numbers and two solo numbers, one a cornet solo by E. Dewey White, and a violin number by Thad Howland, of Graceland. The program was superior in many ways to anything in this line ever given here by home talent. The orchestra was assisted by Joseph Anway, reader.

Talk by Blanche Edwards

The second of the Sunday afternoon meetings held by the women's groups convened at the church last Sunday afternoon, at which time Sister Blanche Edwards talked on the subject, "Our home." Sister Edwards is a splendid talker. She always has a message worth while and has the ability to clothe her thoughts in language pleasing to the listener. She has given much pleasure to Lamoni audiences the past year. A piano duet by Misses Dorothy Prall and Arlene Barr gave a musical touch to the meeting.

Beautify Lamoni

The beautifying spirit has taken a firm grip on the people of Lamoni since the recent campaign was started. A committee is at work in each section under the direction of Brother G. N. Briggs, chairman of the improvement committee of the Community Club.

Aid Gymnasium Fund

At a recent meeting of the Patroness Society of Graceland they voted a donation of $500 to the gymnasium fund. This society is making good progress under the presidency of Mrs. J. A. Gunsolley. The ladies are at present busy on articles for a bazaar to be held during young people's convention.

Elder W. E. Prall preached the Easter sermon at 11 o'clock, April 20. This was inadvertently omitted from the last news letter.

Chariton

"Easter dawn" was very beautifully rendered at Chariton Sunday evening, April 20, to a well-filled house. The choir rendered two anthems for the opening numbers, followed by the "Easter Processional March" by Howell Jones. This gave those who sang in the choir and also took part in the play time to don their costumes. The platform was beautifully decorated in green and white festooning, interspersed with flowers, blooming plants, and budding trees, making it represent a garden, at the rear of which a most realistic tomb had been constructed.

The introductory reading portraying the crucifixion and burial of Christ was beautifully rendered by Sister Ethel Thomas, with musical accompaniment.

Then followed the story of the resurrection in dialogue, song, and tableau, which, with Biblical costumes and colored lights, was most impressive and realistic. The cast was as follows: Mary, the mother of Jesus, Eva Blackstock; Mary Magdalene, Gladys Hirst; the other Mary, Leona Cackler; Joanna, Anna May Jones; Salome, Johanna Wilson; Peter, Griff Thomas; John, Will Evans; Pilate, Lehi Thomas; two body guards, Gerald Giles and Donald Cackler; three tomb guards, Tom Thomas, John Blackstock, and Ed Giles; angel chorus and pantomime, Nellie McNulty, Emma Jones, Muriel McLean, Frances Lewis, Maxine Dooms, Leona Cackler, Johanna Wilson, and Anna May Jones.

The music was impressively rendered by a hidden quartet consisting of Mrs. Catherine Cackler, E. J. Giles, Mrs. Edna Skinner, and E. E. Watts. The accompanists were Johanna Wilson, Howell Jones, and Nellie McNulty. Mrs. Myrtle Watts was the costume designer, and Mrs. Olive McLean, director.

Attendance Contest

The Religio has a contest on between the Reds and Blues for the highest score in increasing attendance for six weeks. The attendance the first night was 37. The third night of the contest there were 60 present with the score standing as follows: Reds, 65; Blues, 96. The contest is only half over, so there is still plenty of chance for the Reds to surprise. The losers are to entertain the winners.

Orioles

The Oriole circle, recently organized, has chosen the name of To-ko-Lon, meaning "The beautiful." "Look for the beautiful," is the circle song. They held a food sale recently and though only a few contributed they were well pleased with the results, having cleared $10.25, with which they will purchase supplies and uniforms.

Holden Stake News

Holden

HOLDEN, MISSOURI, May 5.—A goodly number of young people enjoyed the 8.30 prayer service Sunday morning. At 11 o'clock the communion was observed, Brethren Gleazer, Scarcliff, McWethy, Moler, and Krahl having supervision. Apostle Gleazer occupied for some time portraying feelingly the great sacrifice made by Jesus Christ to redeem the world. A splendid spirit was manifest. The testimonies were uplifting, and many expressions of a greater desire to render service for the Master were heard.

The regular monthly meeting of the ministry was held at 2.45 p. m. An address on the "Duties of the ministry" was given by Apostle E. J. Gleazer. He also was the speaker in the evening.

Brethren Henry Thompson and G. F. Baker conducted the communion service at the Holden Home.

Special meetings will begin May 18, continuing two or three weeks. Elder R. D. Weaver will be the speaker.

The infant child of Brother and Sister T. J. Bradbury, jr., Marian Frances, was blessed on Sunday, April 27.

Grandview

Saturday evening, April 19, the wedding anniversary of the pastor and his wife, Brother and Sister C. V. Hopkins, also that of Brother and Sister I. M. Ross, was celebrated at Grandview. The plans had been so carefully made and executed that the result was a complete surprise for Brother and Sister Hopkins. A most pleasant evening was enjoyed. A short program was given, a pleasing feature of which was original poems written by Brother D. J. Krahl and Sister Goddard. At the close of the program delicious refreshments were served. Brother and Sister Ross, their son Chilton, and Sister Opal Hill, drove from Holden Saturday evening for the occasion. Sister Ticy Moler, of Independence, was also in attendance from out of town.

On Easter Sunday, April 20, F. A. Smith, presiding patriarch, was here. He occupied the pulpit both morning and evening. His theme for the morning hour was "The mission of Jesus Christ"; for the evening, "Worship in spirit and in truth."

A short Easter program was given during the hour of Recreation and Expression, taking the place of the regular program given each Sunday evening at this time.

Brother J. W. A. Bailey was here April 27, occupying both morning and evening in his enthusiastic way.

Atherton

On April 27 Elder J. J. Boswell occupied at Atherton in the morning and President E. A. Smith in the evening.

Brother R. D. Weaver was called to Atherton on Friday to preach the funeral of a little babe. In the evening a truck load of Saints went over to Sibley to attend the services which are still being held there by Brother Weaver.

May 18 will be "Home-coming Day." An invitation is extended to all who have lived in Atherton, or held services here, also to friends. Services in the morning will be followed by a basket dinner. In the afternoon there will be special music by an orchestra from Independence. Brother J. A. Becker is scheduled for the morning service and President E. A. Smith for the evening.

Marshall

Your attention is called to two wonderful studies in the last Ensign, the radio sermon by Apostle J. F. Garver, "The Fatherhood of God," and "The living witness," by Elder S. S. Smith. Many are missing these benefits because they do not take the HERALD and Ensign. Publicity agents should get used to asking, "Do you take the Ensign? Do you take the HERALD?"

Ralph M. Ridge was the speaker at Marshall Sunday morning, April 27, and Harold G. Thayer at night.

The social activity last week was a party in honor of the birthdays of Sisters Narron and Norma Ryan.

Duluth Saints Welcome Visiting Guests

DULUTH, MINNESOTA, May 2.—Elder Samuel Sloan, of Two Harbors, preached to the Saints April 13, his subject being the principles of the gospel. The sermon was inspiring to the Saints.

The evening of Easter was devoted to a program given by the Sunday school. It was a fine program rendered with good attendance. Children from the age of three and upward took part.

After the program George W. Day, district president, brought to the Saints an Easter message which was much appreciated by all. Out of town members in attendance were Brother and Sister Jay E. Walters, of Carlton, and Samuel Sloan and Grant Byce, of Two Harbors. May we see more of the neighboring Saints in attendance at the different meetings.

On April 27 three more were conducted into the kingdom of God, Charles Louks, wife, and a little girl of a Saints' family. Brother Samuel Sloan came down to perform the ordinance. May it occur many times in the future.

The local publicity department takes this means to thank those who have sent Ensigns and HERALDS, but still more can be used. Send to W. C. Stanty, 403 Seventy-seventh Avenue West, Duluth, Minnesota. They will be put to good use furthering the gospel.

Kansas City Stake ItemsCentral*

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, May 5.—Easter Sunday was observed at 11 o'clock by the Sunday school, several of the younger ones presenting the resurrection theme with appropriate declamations, songs, etc. At 7.45 the choir continued the subject with vocal selections most pleasingly rendered.

On April 27, the speaker at 11 a. m. was Apostle J. A. Gillen, his subject being "Responsibility," a subject heard much about, but this time it was presented in a little different dress and in the usual vigorous style of this speaker. It left no doubt as to obligations to God and the church.

The evening speaker was Apostle John W. Rushton who was well received by a good-sized audience. Two were baptized on this day.

Armourdale

W. I. Fligg, stake missionary, held a week's meeting at Armourdale, closing April 20. There was good attendance.

Grandview

Brother Fligg held a short series at Grandview, closing April 27. He baptized an adult couple. The husband had been a minister in another church. This shows good follow-up work. A series was held there some time ago.

The pastor, Brother C. D. Jellings, as teacher, has built up his Bible class in Sunday school until it now numbers seventy. It formerly numbered about a dozen.

Malvern Hill

Joseph A. Tanner, stake president, was the speaker at 11 a. m. on April 27. He reports conditions there as favorable.

Mount Washington

Brother Fligg will begin a series of special meetings Sunday, May 4, at 7.45, to continue at least three weeks.

Debate Superiority of Nephite Civilization

GLASGOW, MONTANA, April 29.—A challenge has come from the young people of the Andes Branch to debate. This has been accepted and Sisters Clara Jordan and Juanita Richardson have been chosen as Glasgow's representatives. The subject is, "Resolved, That the civilization of the Nephites was greater than that of Egypt." Glasgow has the affirmative; Andes, the negative. The date is set for May 30, when the young people from Glasgow will motor the one hundred thirty miles to Andes for the fray.

The Religio has big things planned for the coming month: a temperance program, a mock trial, a debate, and a supper.

The sacramental service held April 6 was one of the largest and best ever held in the Glasgow Branch. There were over forty in attendance.

Celebrate Church Anniversary

The anniversary of the organization of the church was observed through the day by the singing of a number of the songs expressive of the restoration, and in the evening Elder James C. Page preached a sermon on "Restoration."

The pageant, entitled "Easter dawn," was rendered on the evening of April 20, by the members of the junior and young senior classes of the Sunday school, under the direction of James C. Page. A large crowd was in attendance and many favorable comments were heard.

At the close of the Sunday school on Easter the baby of Brother and Sister Theodore Bresher was blessed under the hands of Elders Elmer D. Chase and James C. Page, and given the name of Katherine Genevieve.

The funeral of Mrs. A. Dammon was conducted by Elder Page, April 7, at the undertaking parlors.

Change Sunday School Meeting Time

The Sunday school was organized in Glasgow in September, 1917, and has always met at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. On the last Sunday in March the matter of changing the hour was brought up and by quite a large majority a motion prevailed to change it to 10.30 in the forenoon. The change has proved helpful as a slight increase in attendance has been shown.

"Easter Dawn" Presented by Topeka Saints

TOPEKA, KANSAS, April 27.—Year after year since the creation of the earth and the lights in the firmament of heaven, there has been an awakening, a resurrection in nature. So with the coming of fairer skies, soft breezes, and gentle showers, Easter morn dawned fair and beautiful in Topeka.

"Upon the wings of the shimmering sunlight,
Day flies to the heart of the world.
In the light of this day that is given
God's banner of time is unfurled."

Who dares to say that this does not betoken the crowning event of the Savior's life, the rising from the tomb? Nature still proclaims this message with each recurring season.

The Easter sermon was delivered by A. P. Crooker at the morning preaching hour, his theme being, "The risen Christ." In the evening the pageant, "Easter dawn," was given by the young people's class and the primary department of the Sunday school.

Junior Choir

Sister B. F. Deller, the superintendent of the music department, has organized a junior choir and is endeavoring to get them more familiar with the songs in Zion's Praises. She considers this one of the first essentials in this part of the devotional service of the Sunday school. An effort also is being made to organize an orchestra.

Playground

A playground has been prepared on the church property for basket ball, croquet, lawn tennis, and other recreations for the young people and their friends. The members of the basket ball team of the Sunday school were entertained at at the A. P. Crooker home on the evening of April 21. Games and a fine luncheon were features of the entertainment.

Mortgage to Be Paid

The special effort to lift the mortgage on the church building was a success, and the Saints are looking forward to the time when they will have a new building to worship in.

Prayer Services

The Saints here have been admonished several times by the pastor to make the object of their special requests known when they make the statement, "Pray for me." How can others consistently pray for their brothers and sisters as touching one point unless they make known the object of the request? They do not know what to pray for. Joseph Smith so admonished when the Saints met in prayer service and each confessed their faults and weaknesses, that they might receive the help and strength needed. In this way the Saints help to build each other up and eliminate contention, strife, and jealousy, which is not becoming to Saints. This being true can anyone afford to miss the prayer service?

Visit of District President

On April 27, Samuel Twombly, the district president, preached two very practical and encouraging sermons—morning and evening. The house was full, several friends of the faith being present. He will spend some time this week visiting Saints in their homes.

On March 15, he was called here to preach the funeral sermon of Rebecca J. Elder, an aged sister. He also preached the funeral sermon of Brother Snider at Carbondale, Kansas.

Beautiful Spirit Felt at Easter Services by Fall River Saints

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS, April 23.—A beautiful spirit prevailed at the services on Easter Sunday. An outpouring of the Spirit of God was felt before a word had been spoken. The opening prayer by our pastor was beautiful because of this same Spirit.

Brother George Sinclair, of Boston, was the speaker in the morning. All were glad to welcome him, for he was formerly a Fall River member. He recalled the Saints of years ago, whom we used to see present at the meetings. Some have gone to their reward, others are in the different branches or across the water. Fall River is the mother branch of this district, and her influence for good has been felt in most of the branches.

In the morning before the sermon there was a solo by Alma Coombs, at the close a duet by Alma Coombs and Margaret Henderson, "He did not die in vain." By request, Brother Coombs sang, "The Palms."

The infant son of Brother and Sister George Millward was blessed in the morning by Elder James W. Heap and Elder John Rogerson. All enjoyed seeing so many lovely babies at the morning service.

Children's Concert

The church was prettily decorated by the Sunday school for the occasion. The flowers were given to the sick in the evening. At seven o'clock the children had their concert. It was a stormy night, but there was a good attendance.

Brother Alma Coombs was the speaker in the morning, April 13, and Brother Moses Sheehy in the evening. Brother Raymond Bradshaw, of Attleboro, was scheduled to speak here but there were special services by Elder O. L. Thompson, so he did not come.

Several Fall River families and their friends went to the special service in the afternoon, and reported a fine meeting.

Boys' Club Meeting

Friday evening, April 18, the Boys' Club had their first anniversary meeting, celebrating with a frankfurter roast. They promise to invite the girls sometime.

While Elder Thompson was here, the boys invited him to join them in a polo game. At first he would not remove his collar and tie, but after a few moments of play he would have been glad to have been in a gym suit. The boys play strenuously.

Department Work

The Women's Department meets regularly twice a month in the homes. They are always planning new things for the church. All the more credit is due these women, because a number of them work hard in the mills every day. At present they are preparing articles for the big Christmas sale.

The Sunday school pupils were pleased to read in the Blue Stepping Stones that Fall River led the Southern New England District in the amount of Christmas offering.

On April 27, a Bible is to be given to the child who brings the largest Sunday school offering.

District Missionary Visits Port Elgin Branch

PORT ELGIN, ONTARIO, CANADA, April 28.—Elder Grant St. John, missionary of Owen Sound District, has been visiting in the branch and the Saints have enjoyed some real interesting sermons.

Sunday, April 27, Elder Percy Farrow, a young missionary, was here, and the speaker at the afternoon service.

Brother Will Elliott and Brother and Sister Clifford Elliott, of Owen Sound, spent Sunday with the Port Elgin Saints.

The young people put on an Easter concert Monday evening, April 21, including the pageant, "Easter dawn." The night was stormy, preventing some from attending, but all present reported the entertainment good.

The Sunday school report for Sunday, April 27, was exceptionally good, all officers and teachers being present, with 61 pupils, only one being absent.

Independence

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, May 6.—A new attendance record at the First Independence Sunday School was set last Sunday with a total attendance of 1,566. Twenty-two classes are reported perfect, the primary department carrying the banner with seven perfect classes.

An announcement was made that the junior department would occupy the Institute building starting with next Sunday, May 11, where the entire school equipment has been placed at the disposal of the officers for school purposes on Sunday. This move involves about 225, including pupils and officers.

The average attendance for last year was 1,122, while that of the past two months has been practically 1,500.

This move is not only an attempt to solve the question of seating capacity for the extra 350, but will provide ideal school facilities for carrying on religious education work. The session will begin at 9.45 and continue through until about 11.30. The department is under the direct supervision of Samuel A. Thiel. E. D. Moore, assistant general superintendent, will be associated with Brother Thiel in perfecting the movement.

Sunday Services in Zion

The Independence churches observed sacrament, Sunday, May 4. At 11 a. m. the radio service was broadcast as usual.

The speaker, as announced, was Apostle T. W. Williams.

At the Stone Church at 7.30 p. m. the regular Sunday evening musical program was rendered, followed by a sermon by Apostle D. T. Williams on "Human uplift." This is the first of a series of sermons on character building which will be delivered by Brother Williams during the week.

Other services were: Second Independence, 7.30 p. m., preaching by Elder T. C. Kelley; Walnut Park, 7.30 p. m., preaching by Pastor J. A. Dowker; Liberty Street, 7.30 p. m., preaching by Apostle T. W. Williams; Enoch Hill, 7.00 p. m., preaching by Elder W. H. Kelley; Englewood, 7.30 p. m., preaching by Bishop A. B. Phillips.

First Presidency

President Frederick M. Smith is in the East where he addressed the Lion's Club of New York City on May 6.

President Elbert A. Smith will be in Saint Louis Sunday, May 11.

The Twelve

Apostle J. A. Gillen was in Mapleton, Kansas, over the week end.

Apostles John W. Rushton and T. W. Williams were in the vicinity of Independence over Sunday, preaching as scheduled.

Apostle E. J. Gleazer was the speaker Sunday at Holden, Missouri.

Apostle R. S. Budd has remained in Independence since adjournment of the council, owing to the illness of his wife, who is at present in the Sanitarium.

Apostle F. Henry Edwards will attend the Spring River district conference at Pittsburg, Kansas, Sunday, May 11.

The foreign missionaries have not been heard from since the last report. Apostles M. A. McConley and Clyde F. Ellis are still in Australia, and J. F. Curtis and Paul M. Hanson are due in Germany shortly from Palestine.

The Bishopric

Bishop Benjamin R. McGuire left Sunday, May 4, to attend the funeral of Bishop W. A. Blair at Galien, Michigan. He will attend to church matters while in that vicinity.

Dramatic Club Plays

The White Masque Dramatic Club presented three one-act plays at the Junior High School, Tuesday evening, April 29. The first was a comedy, "Neighbors"; the second, a phantasy, "Maker of dreams"; the third, a farce-comedy, "Tickless time." Those taking part were: Myrtle Trowbridge, Louise Newton, Raymond Berg, Morris Filson, Dorothy Cargyle, Agnes Adams, Vera Adams, Louise Hagler, Francis Holm, Louise Tournour, Kenneth Fligg, Beatrice McNamara, Ethel Burnham, Wallace Smith, Fern Gould, Gladys Newton.

The music was furnished by the K F I X Radio Orchestra. The plays were presented under the direction of Miss Gladys Newton and A. E. White, with J. A. Gardner as business manager, and Miss Ina Cockerton in charge of properties and scenery.

Tourist Camp on Campus

The Chamber of Commerce accepted the offer of the use of the Campus for a tourists' camp. The city will furnish electric lights for the grounds free. The business men feel the camp will not only be a convenience for the tourists but good advertising for the town.

Tag Day for Independence Sanitarium

Monday, May 12, is National Hospital Day and an open house will be held at the Sanitarium all day to which every
(Continued on page 456.)

LETTERS

Witness Sunrise Easter Service in the Garden of the Gods

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO, April 26.—While staying in the Pike's Peak region I had the pleasure of witnessing an unusual sunrise Easter service. About six o'clock in the morning we started by automobile from Colorado Springs to the famous Garden of the Gods, over the Mesa Road. A continuous line of cars, like an immense funeral procession, headed for the Garden, and after about thirty minutes driving we arrived on the scene.

In a grassy opening among the rocks a large crowd had already assembled. In front of us, forming a background for the musicians and singers, the rocks abruptly rose, terminating in the giant "gateway rocks" towering over us several hundred feet, while from a granite cliff on their right three crosses showed bare against the sky.

A sea of faces was raised toward the morning sun while hundreds of voices joined in singing "The morning light is breaking." The story of that first Easter morning was read and at the same time students from the local high school, in appropriate costumes, enacted that joyous scene. Down the rocky trail to a natural sepulcher came the two women who loved much. They were met by an angel, who looked as our childish imaginations always pictured an angel, and then departed quickly. Then came the disciples who also must see for themselves.

A short address, beautiful music, the time and place all combined to prepare our hearts to receive in its fullness, the message of the day with its whisper of hope, as well as the following beautiful services all over the city.

SALLIE J. A. CONWAY.

Attends Meeting of Indian Branch at Kingfisher, Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA, April 20.—Upon invitation from Brother Reuben Taylor, pastor of the Kingfisher Branch, we started out on the sixty-mile drive early on the morning of April 13. A threatening sky caused me to return home after a fifteen-mile drive, but soon the sun shone forth, and we again started out. The road led through prairie country, interspersed with streams of living water, hills and valleys covered with green grass, wild flowers, and growing wheat. The deep-blue horizon seemed to move back to give room for the joy of spring.

Brother Cane Rowland's place on the hill soon came into view, and upon arriving, we were joined by Brother Rowland and his wife. We then continued our journey to the Indian Branch at Kingfisher. Six miles beyond the little town of Kingfisher we came upon the Indian roundhouse or church, built more by the direct influence of Brother Hubert Case than any other one person. As we drew near we beheld many kinds of conveyances, ancient and modern, and also discovered the dogs had not been left at home.

Building Octagon Shape

The building, which is octagon in shape, stands on a high knoll, entirely surrounded by low, spreading elms, making a lovely spot, and commanding a view of the surrounding hills as well as the clear and noisy little stream flowing at its base.

Services had already commenced, and our ears were greeted with the low hum of Indian music. We found Brother Charley Wicks, ordained last August at the Redrock reunion to the Melchisedec priesthood, in charge. Arrangements had been made for a short talk on the Book of Mormon by Brother Philip Cook in the Cheyenne language, followed by a talk by myself.

There were present eighteen women and twelve men. The seats consisted of a row of benches made fast to the wall around the room. The center of the floor was bare and clean. The women sat with uncovered heads bowed, eyes downcast, their moccasined feet swinging in the air.

Three of the men were honored with the Melchisedec priesthood.

After services, tablecloths were spread and all sat down Indian fashion to a very palatable meal.

Election of Officers

Following the meal was a short recess, then a meeting of the Department of Women in charge of Sister Ed. Dillon, district organizer. Then came an election of officers. After considerable peaceful powwowing, the old officers were sustained: Reuben Taylor, president; John Bull, priest; Albert Foot, teacher; Ralph Wicks and Philip Cook, counselors. The matter of ordination of Albert White Eyes to office of deacon was referred to Earl D. Bailey, district president.

The meeting was adjourned with hearty handshakes and expressions of glad-you-came. It was with reluctance that we left the place because we yearned for more of that spirit of oneness that was so easily detected among that people. We arrived safely at home in time to attend our own church on the brow of the hill, then home to bed, feeling that the day had not been wasted.

F. ED. DILLON.

Getting the Dust Off Your Own Door

My sister came in this morning and related a little story to me. "It happened like this," she said:

"I went over to Mr. H.'s to telephone. While I waited for the number I stood where I looked up at the top of her kitchen door. I was surprised to see how the door frame was covered with dust and lint. I thought it very strange Mrs. H. did not wash it, for I considered her a very tidy housekeeper. I got my number, finished my business, and went home with that dust still in my eye. It puzzled me that a good housekeeper did not attend to her door frames a little better.

"Closing my kitchen door I stood off and looked up at it. Horrors! Mine was worse than hers! I at once took soap and water and cleaned my door. Then I thought, How much easier it is to see other people's faults than it is to see our own. And I've been wondering ever since if it wouldn't be a good plan to look at home first, before we judge too harshly the faults we see in other people. A verse I learned at school came to me:

"Some may have faults, but who has not,
The old as well as young;
Perhaps we may for aught we know
Have fifty to their one!"

"I really felt that if I were a preacher," said my sister, "I could preach a pretty good sermon about getting the dust off your own door before looking too long at the dust on your neighbor's door."

MARY E. GILLIN.

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Holden Stake, at Knobnoster, Missouri, June 21 and 22. Conference convenes Saturday at 10 a. m. Reports of all officers, committees, and quorums should be in by June 15. D. J. Krahl, president.

Gallands Grove, at Deloit, Iowa, May 30 to June 1. Conference opens on Friday at 2.30 p. m. The president of the district urges a large attendance as matters of importance are to be considered. Mrs. Bessie Pearsall, secretary.

Southern Saskatchewan, at Viceroy, July 3 to 5. All the Saints are invited with their friends. Otis L. D'Arcy, president, Suite C, Rose Lodge, care of C. R. Bowerman, Regina, Saskatchewan. O. B. Bergersen, secretary.

New York, at Niagara Falls, June 7 and 8. The first session will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning for the priesthood of the district. Business meeting at 2 p. m. P. L. Weegar, president. Anna M. Lloyd, secretary.

Clinton, with the Coal Hill Branch, five miles east of Eldorado Springs, Missouri, May 31 to June 2. Opening service at 9 a. m. Those coming by rail, come to Eldorado Springs, notifying Elder P. R. Davis, Eldorado Springs, Missouri, R. F. D. Election of officers will be had at this conference. H. E. Moler, president.

Fremont, at Glenwood, Iowa, May 17 and 18. Branches from other portions of this district are urged to have a representative attendance. It is hoped all of the local priesthood will be present. There may be some things of unusual interest to be considered, especially in reference to the coming reunion. Local officers please send reports to Charles Forney, Thurman, Iowa. A. M. Chase, president.

Kansas City Stake, at Central Church, Ninth and Lydia, May 18 and 19. Conference will convene Sunday at 11 a. m. Prayer service at 2.30, also young people's prayer service at the same hour; meeting of Department of Women at 4.15; priesthood meeting at the same hour; song service, 7.15, and preaching at 7.45. Monday, 7.45 p. m., business session. Matters of importance will come before the conference. J. A. Tanner, president.

Reunion Notices

Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17. These are the dates granted by the general reunion committee and the speakers will be assigned later. This notice will give all the Saints in the district time to make ample preparation to get ready to come. Let us make this a banner year. A splendid time was had last year and there is no reason why we cannot have a larger and better one this year. We shall have some good speakers. Those who take the HERALD and see this notice, please have it announced at each church. Henry Sparling.

Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17. Every indication is that a large number will be in attendance. Many have made inquiry, and are coming from long distances. Preparation is being made to entertain a large number. For information write the undersigned. Amos Berve, Nauvoo, Illinois.

Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31. The district conference will be held sometime during reunion. W. E. Wolfe, secretary.

Young People's Convention at Chatham, Ontario

Owing to the sickness in Bothwell the young people's convention to be held there will be changed to Chatham, Ontario, May 17 and 18. Plans are being made to accommodate large attendance. Programs and information can be had from the undersigned. Come along. Anthony R. Hewitt, secretary, Chatham, Ontario.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.
Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Insurance .....	433
Importance of the Kindergarten .....	433
Thrift .....	434
Choosing the Ten Best Books .....	434
Death of Bishop W. A. Blair .....	435
Sympathy .....	435
After-a-While .....	435
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Relation of the Church to Society, by Frederick M. Smith .....	436
Some Educational Problems Involved in the Establishment of Zion, by A. Max Carmichael .....	439
The Conception of Progress .....	442
CHURCH NEWS .....
LETTERS .....
Sallie J. A. Conway—F. Ed. Dillon—Mary E. Gillin. ....	454
MISCELLANEOUS .....
RADIO .....
	455
	456

One-Day Meeting

Kewanee, at Moline, Illinois, May 11. There will be an all-day meeting at the church in Moline, Illinois, located at the corner of Forty-sixth Street and Fourth Avenue. The day will begin with a Mothers' Day program at the Sunday school hour, followed by a sermon appropriate for the occasion. There will be a prayer service at 2.30, and a musical program at 6 p. m., followed by a missionary sermon at 7.45. Bring basket lunch and come prepared to spend the day. E. R. Davis, president.

Requests for Prayers

Sister Effie Dahl, of Dunn Center, North Dakota, who is partly paralyzed, asks that those who wish will fast and pray with her on Sunday, May 11, that God may restore health to her arms and hands.

Sister Mary E. Bell requests the prayers of the Saints for her afflicted child, Bessie Alleane, who is eleven years of age and has suffered from paralysis since infancy.

Mrs. H. P. Kinnicutt, of North Bend, Oregon, requests the prayers of the Saints that she may recover from her illness.

Our Departed Ones

SKINNER.—Aletha May White was born at Rhodes, Iowa, June 27, 1884. Baptized at the age of eight. Married Clarence E. Skinner on December 25, 1905. Died at Council Bluffs, Iowa, February 3, 1924. Leaves husband and two daughters, Delphine and Katherine. Four children preceded her in their infancy. Funeral service at Council Bluffs, Iowa, sermon by J. F. Garver. Services also at Lamoni, Iowa, sermon by C. E. Wight. Interment in Rose Hill Cemetery.

CLARK.—Flora May Clark was born at Harrison, Wisconsin, November 13, 1876. Baptized March 6, 1921. Died at her home in Ellenboro, Wisconsin, April 8, 1924. Leaves her husband, H. C. Clark, and four young daughters. Funeral from the home. Interment in Buckwheat Ridge Cemetery. Sermon by B. C. Flint.

MURRAY.—Florence Jeanette Murray was born at Saint Louis, Missouri, August 7, 1902. Baptized November 16, 1913. Jeanette was taken from the Children's Home, Lamoni, Iowa, into the home of Brother and Sister Alvin Pierson, of West Point, Nebraska, as a foster daughter in 1916. Sister Pierson nursed Jeanette through a long illness of one year and four months prior to her death on April 30, 1923. Funeral service at the home with sermon by F. S. Gatenby. Another service in Independence, Missouri, sermon by E. D. Moore. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery. Leaves foster parents, two brothers, and one sister.

YATES.—Nancy A. Palmer was born in Quebec, Canada, February 10, 1843. Married Franklin Yates in October, 1882. Baptized September 13, 1863. Died at San Francisco, California, February 26, 1923. Funeral at San Francisco. Sermon by John Saxe. Leaves four sons, three daughters, and three sisters.

PILKINGTON.—Mary Ann Cokeshott was born in Manchester, England, December 5, 1844. Came to America when nineteen years of age. Married in 1863 to Isaac Shephard who died many years ago. Later she married Joseph Pilkington who also has preceded her. Baptized in 1875. Died April 9, 1924. Leaves one daughter, Mrs. Anna Cliff, of Lafayette, Colorado, also three sisters. Funeral from the Saints' church at Higbee, Missouri. Sermon by E. F. Robertson.

Radio Flashes

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, MAY 11, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.
Prayer.
Anthem: "Jerusalem," from "Gallia," by Gounod.
Sermon: "The way of escape."
By Apostle D. T. Williams.
Hymn.

SUNDAY, MAY 11, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Program given by Auditorium Orchestra,
Mr. R. T. Cooper, Director

Hymn.
Prayer.
Selection, "Gloria," from "Farmers Mass" in B. Flat.
Moderato, adagio, allegretta.
Serenade, "Love in idleness," Macbeth.
"Beaute Enchantresse," Laurendeau.
Sacred Overture, "Abide with me," Barnard.
Sermon: "The lost opportunity."
By Apostle D. T. Williams.
Hymn.

TUESDAY, MAY 13, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Piano solo: "Danse," Debussy.
Played by Miss Pearl Roemer.
Violin solo: (a) "Serenade," Drdla.
(b) "Minuet in G," Beethoven.
(c) "Souvenir," Drdla.
Played by Miss Mildred Woolman.

INDEPENDENCE

(Continued from page 453.)

one is invited. Saturday, May 17, will be tag day for the benefit of the free bed fund. Last year on tag day, $739.45 were collected for this fund. It has been used by 9 physicians, treating 22 patients; 17 of these being admitted into the hospital and receiving 227 bed days of treatment, and 5 were given the benefit of laboratory and X-ray. It is hoped that the proceeds of this tag day will be larger so that more free beds can be given to those who need this coming year.

Death of William J. McKim

Brother William J. McKim, age 71, died at his home in Independence, April 30. He had suffered from an attack of heart disease a week before and did not recover. The funeral services were held at the home at 2 p. m., May 3. Preceding the services the body lay in state from 12.30 to 1.45 o'clock. The sermon was preached by Elder J. M. Baker, Elder W. D. Bullard being in charge. Burial was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

Surviving Brother McKim are his wife, Mrs. Carrie McKim, and five children: Mrs. S. C. Hagen, Mrs. Bernice Younie, Burton L. McKim, Arthur E. McKim, all of Independence; and Mrs. F. H. Monk, Fountain, Colorado. The oldest son in the family, William LeRoy McKim, was killed in France in 1916 while serving in the Canadian Army in the World War.

Brother McKim was born at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, April 9, 1853. The greater part of his life was spent at De-loit, Iowa, coming from there to Independence in 1906. He had retired from business at the time of his death.

Vocal solo: (a) "Dusk in June," Foster.
(b) "Pale moon," Logan.
Sung by Miss Beulah Stevenson.

Talk:
Piano solo: "Meditation," Tchaikowsky.
Played by Miss Pearl Roemer.
Violin solo: (a) "Gypsy dance," Ernst.
(b) "Hindu chant," Rimsky-Korsakov-Kreisler.
Played by Miss Mildred Woolman.
Vocal Solo: (a) "Sapphic Ode," Brahms.
(b) "Laddie," Thayer.
Sung by Miss Beulah Stevenson.

THURSDAY, MAY 15, 1924

8.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

(Violin Recital by Miss Emma Snead.)

"Sonata in A," Handel.
"Adagio Cantabile."
"Allegro Deciso."
"Largo Assai."
"Allegro Giga."
"Concerto, Number 22," Viotti.
"Moderato."
"Maggiore."
"Cadenza."
Tenor solos by George Anway.
(a) "Amarilli, mia bella," Giulio Caccini.
(b) "The crying of water," Campbell-Tipton.
(c) "Love is the wind," MacFadyen.
By Miss Snead:
(a) "Concerto, Number 2, Andante," DeBeriot.
(b) "Waltz in A," Brahms.
(c) "Thoughts of youth," Storm.
Concluding group:
(a) "Spanish dance," Granoda Kreisler.
(b) "To a wild rose," McDowell.
(c) "Waltz," Hummel.
(Piano accompaniments by Miss Florence Koehler.)

K F F V

SUNDAY, MAY 11, 1924

6.30 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Sacred songs by mixed quartet consisting of:
Miss Mabel Carlile, soprano.
Mrs. J. H. Anthony, alto.
Mr. Evan Fry, tenor.
Mr. W. D. Tordoff, bass.
Mrs. Ralph Travis, accompanist.
Instrumental duet: "The nightingale scene," Handel.
Mr. Malcolm Barrows, flute.
Mr. Charles Church, clarinet.
Anthem by quartet.
Solo: "His song in the night," Harry B. Cockrell.
Sung by Mr. James Dempsey.
Sermon by Bishop A. Carmichael.

TUESDAY, MAY 13, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical program furnished by Graceland Conservatory of Music.

THURSDAY, MAY 15, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Educational lecture.

Planning For

1. Recreation Projects.
2. Church School Posters.
3. Biblical Pageants.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

THE SAINTS'

TRIAL

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

you have save he shall have
: 36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, May 14, 1924

Number 20

EDITORIAL

Death of Doctor G. Stanley Hall

One of the greatest American psychologists of the past generation, Doctor G. Stanley Hall, died on April 24. He was perhaps the foremost leader in the development of modern psychology, and one of the greatest contributors to the wealth of information in this field, which still lives to testify of his great work.

Doctor Hall was a graduate of Williams College, and also studied in the Universities of Heidelberg, Bonn, and Berlin. His association with Wilhelm Wundt, famous German psychologist, led him to establish an experimental laboratory at Johns Hopkins University. At this time he also established the American Journal of Experimental Psychology, the first of its kind to be published in English. In 1888, Doctor Hall became head of Clark University and also professor of psychology at that institution.

Since that time he has published many books invaluable to the field of psychology, among them being his peerless "Adolescence." As late as 1922, he completed and published his last noteworthy contribution, "Senescence." The present-day schools of psychology are largely founded on the revelations of this great man, pioneer of modern psychology in America.

Doctor Hall will be remembered by many members of the church as the personal friend of President Frederick M. Smith. It was Doctor Hall who wrote the introduction to the dissertation of President Smith for his doctorate, known to numerous readers as "The higher powers of man."

Practical Theology

As the editor of the Christian Century suggests, there may have been preachers who have been tempted to say hard things about the weather man, but one Syracuse preacher has shown "that he can be cultivated to the glory of God."

The Reverend Bernard C. Clausen, of a great Baptist church in Syracuse, New York, discovered that on bright and sunshiny days his church was overcrowded but that on dark and cloudy ones, the congregation was sparse. He called upon the weather man, then decided upon his plan of procedure.

"Every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, the weather bureau is interviewed and the Sunday forecast obtained. If the weather conditions promise to be favorable the usual Sunday newspaper announcements are deemed sufficient. On the other hand if the outlook is gloomy," says Reverend Clausen, "we dispatch at once to our newspaper offices all the propaganda which our ingenuity has devised or can on short notice arrange. We do not buy more space for paid adds, you understand. We send in carefully prepared news stories, cuts, and musical announcements. We do it shamelessly. We are determined to use every means known to modern life to fill our church consistently and exactly. And the newspapers do not resent it, so long as we play the game fairly."

This is not sensationalism, explains the preacher. It is merely making use of the national weather bureau the same as does the farmer and merchant. In the case of the church, however, it is "practical theology."

Conference on Social Problems

The long-looked-for Conference on Christian Politics, Economics, and Citizenship (Copec) met at Birmingham, England, April 5-12, and attempted to solve some of the perplexing questions before it.

For a period of four years, twelve commissions consisting of men and women of internationally known scholarship have been engaged in study of certain problems, preparatory to the conference just held.

Over one thousand delegates from various churches in England and half a hundred from overseas met in this attempt to reach a common understanding on a few leading subjects. While no solutions were probably found, the series of resolutions on education, the home, industrial relations, the use of leisure time, and other modern social problems will go far toward creating a public opinion on these subjects.

Copec enthusiasts believe this conference was the first serious attempt on the part of Christians of varying political and religious schools of thought to work together in a common search for the way of Christ in social action. A similar conference is on foot in America to be known as the American Conference on the Christian Way of Life. When this comes, it will be interesting to see whether Americans have profited any from the experience of their British cousins.

Reverend John M. Moore, in the Christian Work, says:

There was frankness and plainness of speech but with it very great courtesy and sensitiveness to the common aim not to win an argument but to achieve a unity. There was a constant recognition of the seriousness of the position to which the conference felt itself committed by the inexorable demands of the teachings of Christ.

Action in several cases was taken by the conference in opposition to the report of the commission presenting the question.

On the report of war, the commission failed to agree on the issue of pacifism, but the conference declared that the Christian church "should unreservedly condemn, and refuse to support in any way, a war waged before the matter in dispute has been submitted to an arbitral tribunal, or in defiance of the decision of such a tribunal." The conference also declared "that all war is contrary to the spirit and teaching of Jesus Christ."

The resolution on crime presented by the commission was reworded to read:

The purpose of the state is to bind men together in a justly ordered social life and its authority ought to be generally accepted by Christians. The duties of citizenship are a sacred obligation for Christian people. The authority of the state is limited by its function and ought only to be challenged by the Christian conscience in the name of God. Christians should be willing while their strength lasts to spend and be spent in its service.

On questions concerning the home, including that of birth control, the commission could find no agreement. The conference voted "to investigate thoroughly and to consider with the intention of offering definite guidance to perplexed consciences this and other relevant questions regarding marriage and parenthood."

When it came to the question of prohibition, the conference's attitude seemed to weaken. They could go no further than to adopt a resolution leaving the question to local option. The British conscience, however, is being aroused over the drink question and many are looking forward to more definite action in the future.

A marked advancement in the effort to agree upon social questions by various religious denominations appears to be under way. The world is preparing itself for the intelligent acceptance of the Christian plan of stewardships when such time comes.

We as a church cannot long retain leadership in social reconstruction unless action takes the place of acclamation. Our plan is not to be considered better than the plans of these other people who are studying the question, unless we can demonstrate our own convictions. Without the heart to try what we preach, the world will not accept our talk. If they arrive at such a truth, it will be by their own experience or by our demonstration.

While Copec arrived at but a few definite agreements, great headway in unity of thought was attained. The time for action has arrived and threatens to pass us up unless we awake to the problems before us. Instead of being in the vanguard of a new Christian society, we may yet struggle to occupy a place at the rear among the exponents of the new social organization.

It is the little things in life that count. A word, a look, a smile, a sigh give rise to emotions that swell up within us.

Too often do we scorn the tiny things that make for happiness, feeling that our fort lies in a cold exterior. We hide our emotions lest others find therein a weakness. We deprive ourselves of happiness when we repress noble feelings of affection; we rob our friends of a bit of sunshine that might come from a tightened handclasp or the softening of a stern brow.

Give me a word to cheer in a moment of despair, give me the golden silence of a pal in perfect understanding, give me the consciousness of the love of a friend, and I will own the world.

He who opens his mouth too much may have to close it for repairs.

Would You Like

1. To Consult With Teachers.
2. To Fellowship With Leaders.
3. To Look Ahead With Prophets.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

A Parent's Responsibility

The majority of parents are agreed that parenthood, though admittedly it satisfies a profound instinct and may give intense joy, is a terrible responsibility, cause of friction and worry, and source of disappointment. The black side of parenthood could naturally never be abolished, but assuredly its blackness would be mitigated if parents knew a little better what they were about.

As a fact, they too often start out on the tremendously difficult enterprise of bringing up children without the slightest idea of what they are about. They blunder; they suffer; the unfortunate children suffer; and the hope of complete living vanishes.

A man may indeed live completely until he becomes a parent, and then finds himself faced with complications for which he had utterly forgotten to prepare himself, and from a success he deteriorates into a failure. He has not looked ahead far enough. At twenty it did not occur to him to think of what is involved in the vast affair of producing the next generation; and quite possibly, if anybody had suggested to him that he should arm himself for fatherhood, he would have laughed as the young laugh at mere priggishness. And he would have been wrong.

When you are a parent it is already rather late in the day to begin training yourself to be a parent.—Arnold Bennett, in How to Make the Best of Life.

How the universal heart of man blesses flowers! They are wreathed round the cradle, the marriage altar, and the tomb. The Persian in the Far East delights in their perfume, and writes his love in nosegays; while the Indian child of the Far West claps his hands with glee as he gathers the abundant blossoms—the illuminated scriptures of the prairies. The Cupid of the ancient Hindoos tipped his arrows with flowers, and orange flowers are a bridal crown with us, a nation of yesterday.

Flowers garlanded the Grecian altar, and hung in votive wreaths before the Christian shrine. All these are appropriate uses. Flowers should deck the brow of the youthful bride, for they are in themselves a lovely type of marriage. They should twine round the tomb, for their perpetually renewed beauty is a symbol of the resurrection. They should festoon the altar, for their fragrance and their beauty ascend in perpetual worship before the Most High.—L. M. Child.

True and False Fear

Arrangement by Richard G. Moulton

Ye that fear the Lord,
Wait for his mercy;
And turn not aside, lest ye fall.

Ye that fear the Lord,
Put your trust in him;
And your reward shall not fail.

Ye that fear the Lord,
Hope for good things,
And for eternal gladness and mercy.

Look at the generations of old, and see,
Who did ever put his trust in the Lord, and was ashamed?

Or who did abide in his fear, and was forsaken?
Or who did call upon him, and he despised him?

For the Lord is full of compassion,
And mercy;
And he forgiveth sins,
And saveth in time of affliction.

Woe unto fearful hearts,
And to faint hands,
And to the sinner that goeth two ways!

Woe unto the faint heart!
For it believeth not,
Therefore shall it not be defended.

Woe unto you
That have lost your patience!
And what will ye do when the Lord shall visit you?

They that fear the Lord
Will not disobey his words;
And they that love him will keep his ways.

They that fear the Lord
Will seek his good pleasure;
And they that love him shall be filled with the law.

They that fear the Lord
Will prepare their hearts,
And will humble their souls in his sight:

“We will fall into the hands of the Lord,
And not into the hands of men;
For as his majesty is,
So also is his mercy.”—Ecclesiasticus 2: 7-18.

Lectures on Mothercraft

Compiled by the Department of Women, with an introduction by Dora Pankey Glines, Superintendent of the Department.

AVAILABLE JUNE 1, 1924

This is a publication containing lectures supplementing the textbook, Mothercraft Manual, by Mary L. Read, also the question outline, Mothercraft, by Etta Hunt. Lectures and questions are offered in one pamphlet all for

Forty Cents, Postpaid

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Time wasted is existence—used is life.—Young.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

Broadcasting the Gospel

Sermon by Bishop Benjamin R. McGuire at the Stone Church, Independence, Missouri, March 16, 1924.

The theme of our discourse this morning is, "Broadcasting the gospel." In selecting this subject it was not my purpose to speak of the use of the radio as a modern device to disseminate the word of truth or to undertake to evaluate the advantages and disadvantages of the radio to the country church, nor as an agency to stimulate the interest of the nonchurchgoer in religious services. Whatever may be said for or against the use of the radio, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, at least for the present, is committed in favor of its use. On that subject actions speak louder than words, as my distant auditors will attest.

It is my thought in selecting this topic to clothe in modern terminology the commission of our Savior to his disciples when he said:

Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world.

That is, broadcast the gospel.

This subject suggests two principle concepts, one a process, the other the content of that process. The method of teaching, as approved by our Master, the greatest of teachers, should be observed. What is meant by the Gospel should be explained.

The Apostle Paul furnishes us the text which I have chosen to assist us in outlining our theme. It is found in the second and third verses of the third chapter of his second letter to the Corinthians: "You are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ known and read of all men." To all who would be followers of Christ your life is an epistle, a statement, a communication of the gospel which is known and read of all men. Our Savior said, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if you have love one for another." On another occasion he said, "By their fruits ye shall know them."

The Gospel a Revelation

The gospel is a revelation of the grace of God to fallen man through Jesus Christ the mediator. The gospel is the glad tidings of great joy which our heavenly Father commissioned Jesus Christ to give all men. Our text asserts that if we live the Christ life, the Christ life will be known to all men, or that men will be induced to live or experience the joy of the Christ life.

Life is complete. Life is not partial. When we refer to the life of a person, we refer to all his activities from the cradle to the grave. If the gospel is to bring joy into life, it is intended to bring joy and must bring joy into all of man's activities, no matter how he classifies them, whether political, social, economic, or religious. I think my audience will admit, however, that in all these phases or aspects of life we to-day discover that men complain there is lack of joy. If so, then the Christ is not our guide, the gospel is not the rule of conduct.

Economic Aspect of Life

There is only one of these aspects of life of which I wish to speak this morning. It is the economic aspect. I believe that it offers the broadest field for expressing the Christ life. More of our conscious moments are spent in economic affairs in the gaining of a livelihood than in any other demand made upon life. Therefore, it offers the greatest opportunity for broadcasting the gospel. In the early thirties of the last century when the gospel was presented by the Latter Day Saint elders attention was by them directed to its application to temporal affairs, that is to the engagements of time, the occupations of this earth life. Such terms as tithing and stewardship, though clearly taught and practiced by those of the Apostolic church, were inveighed against by the professing Christian ministers. Today, however, all of the so-called evangelical churches are putting special emphasis upon the law of tithing and stewardships. Some of our members have thought it is a sad commentary upon the work of this church that others are applying these principles in their lives and are having more or less success. To your speaker these feelings should give place to praise and thanksgiving. As I have noted the many publications by other Christian congregations and read some of their books, I have considered that they were in a measure a testimony of the sacrifice and devotion to principle as advocated by the elders of those early days, who, against great opposition, contended for the faith once delivered to the Saints, particularly this aspect of the faith or the gospel, which at that time was so unpopular. And I feel that the teaching of tithing and the presentation of a program on stewardships by other professing Christians attests the power that was resident with these elders of the early church and it attests the power that was resident with them to broadcast the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Conference Resolution on Stewardships

At the General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints held in October of the past year in Independence, Missouri, there was adopted by unanimous vote a resolution which expresses the thought and feeling of this church upon one feature of stewardship, or the gospel as expressed in terms of economic life. And the power of the Spirit of God that attended the adoption of that resolution will be remembered by those who were present on that occasion and were privileged to participate in the meeting. It is not contended that this resolution is all the word or the last word on the subject. But, my friends, it does furnish a common ground, a starting point that can be understood by all, from which we may proceed to our ultimate goal, the redemption of Zion, or in the language of the prayer our Savior taught us to pray, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

Let us then start on our journey across the plain, pass through the foothills, and ascend the mountains. There will be misunderstanding along the way. We will have to stop occasionally to make sure that we are on the trail, but eventually, my brethren, we will have reached the summit. I think we may well consider that we have at least reached the frontiers, the outposts from which we may start.

Here in this resolution that we have all subscribed to, or may subscribe to, we have a declaration of intention which will eventuate in stewardships by complying with its requirements. The science of mathematics is based on certain elementary or rudimentary principles such as addition, subtraction, multiplication, division. The test of our knowledge of the application of this science is the ability to apply these principles to the problems of mathematics. Even so the test of our knowledge of the principles of stewardships is our ability to apply the principles thereof to the problems of life. And to the degree that we are skillful in so doing, we in this respect broadcast the gospel.

Joy From Observing Gospel

We are told that those who are so fortunate as to possess a radio receiving set experience a new joy or thrill if they are able to tune in the program of some distant station that they have not theretofore been able to get. We also note what disappointment comes to the manipulator of a receiving set when he unwittingly tunes out a distant station before the program is completed. The value to an individual of that aspect of the gospel, or the principle of life to which I have referred in the resolution adopted by the church at the late General Conference, will be his ability to conform to those requirements wherever he is and in whatever work, service, or labor he may be engaged, and continues so to do. His joy will be in ratio to his ability to tune in and hold in mind and heart these principles, and in turn broadcast them in harmony with this common desire to establish the gospel of Jesus Christ as the rule of conduct, and broadcast them, my friends, in such conduct that his auditors will not need head receivers or loud speakers.

You will recall the fact that it is stated of Jesus Christ in the Scriptures that virtue went out from him. I trust it may be so in all our activities, particularly in our effort to manifest in the conduct of our temporal affairs our understanding and appreciation of our stewardship.

Filing Inventory

As already mentioned, this church in General Conference on October 13, 1923, by unanimous vote declared:

Whereas the law of God teaches that the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof, therefore all men are stewards; that the law of stewardship applies individually in each and every member of the church, therefore, we believe it to be the duty of every member of the church to acknowledge his stewardship by complying with the law as given in the Scriptures. First, by filing his inventory.

In the language of the business world this means taking stock. While in the language of James it is, "Study to show yourself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Filing an inventory may seem to some a strange procedure. I care not whether you call it an inventory, a statement of your assets and liabilities, or what you may term it; if we accurately arrive at the amount of tithing which we owe, we must of necessity take stock.

Paying Tithing

Secondly, "He must pay his tithe." There has been of recent years so much said by professing Christians upon the subject of tithing that it ought to be almost a common language. However, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints teaches the principle of tithing slightly different than do other professing Christians. We assert that tithing is one tenth of the increase, not one tenth of the income; that all legitimate living expenses first be deducted from our income, that tithing, or one tenth, should be paid upon the increase, and I think, my friends, that this is so equitable, so just, so fair, that everyone who has named the name of Jesus Christ in the waters of baptism, and has received the endowment of the Spirit, and has made his soul rejoice in praise and thanksgiving to God should be ready, willing, and anxious to pay his tithes.

Paying Surplus

Third, paying the surplus, which is that amount of this world's goods of which we have no immediate need, determining our need by our circumstances, our sphere in life, is that which is expected of us. Is there anyone here this morning, is there anyone within the sound of my voice, who believes that one may have a surplus and hold fast to that surplus, if it is truly a surplus, without it cankering his soul?

Making Offering

Fourth, he should make his offering. Before I conclude my remarks this morning I wish to direct your attention to one offering that was made, to which attention has been directed by our Savior, that has resounded around the world, and so I will make no particular reference to this feature of this resolution at this time.

"And thereafter giving an account of his stewardship annually as required by the law of God." Man will be judged or rewarded according to the degree of good or evil which he has done. If our Nation says it is good business to require us to file an inventory once a year, can we deny that it is to those who desire to give expression through their everyday affairs of the fact that they are stewards of God? Is there any reason why we should not be willing to file our inventory, at least annually, to ascertain where we are along the way of life?

Establishing Stewardship Organizations

"In accordance with the foregoing, the members of the church, 'who are willing and desirous,' under the general supervision of the officers ordained of God for this purpose may establish such organizations as are contemplated in the law whenever and wherever circumstances warrant this procedure." On this paragraph of this resolution I shall make this comment: We have in recent years read in the press and heard from the public platform a great deal about collective bargaining and cooperation, and different plans on this subject have been written in the laws of a number of states. "God said to Moses, before Abraham, I am." May I paraphrase that statement by saying, "Before communism, socialism, collective bargaining—stewardship." And this church is committed to the proposition that all men are stewards, and all I have to say about cooperation, collective bargaining, etc., is in the language of the Apostle Paul as contained in the Philippian letter, "Brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good repute, if there be any virtue, if there be any praise," adapt them to stewardship, but tune in on stewardship; it is fundamental; it is basic; it is of God.

Laborers Together With God

We are laborers together with God. We are God's husbandry. God is the party of the first part. No one should think this resolution means that one may in the conduct of his temporal affairs abandon any principle that centuries of experience have proved as true and essential to business success. Let no one think that subscribing to this course of action shall mean greater freedom from engagement in life's activities. Let no man assume that this means retirement from work, labor, and service, because our Savior said, Take my yoke upon you for it is easy. No, yokes are not put on animals for decoration or distinction, but for use to pull a load.

Subscribing to the beliefs as set forth in this resolution is not for popularity, vanity, etc., but to develop stewardship. Stewardship is a relation to God as well as to our fellow men, which relation to God approximates and leads to divine sonship. "If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." If we walk in the light we catch the vision of the Son of God.

We travel the gospel road to save man. To make the world better becomes the dominating passion of our lives. When we think of what God accomplished because of our blessed Savior and think how that may be expanded in geometrical ratio, we may begin to understand the meaning of his statement, "The works that I do shall ye do and greater works than these shall ye do."

Brotherhood of Man

We sing, and it is a modern song, "Let us all be brothers." We may be if by our actions as well as by our works we acknowledge we are stewards—all. The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof. When we go to the north or the south or the east or the west we cannot escape being the subject of God's bounties, the object of his love. Every function of this life involves a dependence upon God which should be reciprocated by an awakening as plain to be seen as the glory of the rising sun. Can we do less than count our earthly blessings, than acknowledge our indebtedness to God by a payment of tithes? Can we show less faith in God's enterprise than in an earthly business proposition? Why not make the offering investment? Why not consecrate of our surplus? If this is good for one, why not for all? "He that is least is capable of doing the most."

While as a church organization the need is acute for the larger amount of money, it is more acute for the quality of the widow's mite. I suppose that the poor widow who in a humble, unostentatious manner dropped her offering into the treasury was unconscious of the tremendous significance of her act, that it would be known and read of all men, that it would be literally broadcast from the housetops. Such examples of actual loving sacrifice are more potent in broadcasting the gospel than tons of printed or millions of spoken sermons.

My brethren, the program of the church of Jesus Christ, and when I speak of the church I mean not only the membership in their organized corporate activities, but in their individual private undertakings, in order to secure and retain the confidence and support of men and benediction of heaven, must give place and unobstructed course to the operation of the principle of sacrifice, faith, and love, so heroically manifested by the act of the widow in contributing her mite. Even so may we, my friends, broadcast the living gospel, the living truth, the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

How Do You Use Your Time?

By J. E. Vanderwood

In the course of events we are brought face to face with some real problems, and we often wonder why we have not made greater progress. It is well, too, that we think of these things, for if we would advance in life as we should we must learn to think, and think logically and seriously. We must come to realize that a man becomes a part of that to which he relates himself, so that in its finality he is the composite of all that he has thought and seen and heard. While of course many sounds salute our ears that we do not hear, many things pass before our eyes that we do not see, and many things are talked about by us that we do not grasp or comprehend, nevertheless it is self-evident that every man must become the complete counterpart of that which he most earnestly and persistently contemplates. He must surely grow into the likeness of his most sacred and cherished ideal.

Theory of Involution

This opens for us a very fertile field of thought, and we may canvass it from various angles. I hope we will come, if we have not already come, to that place in life where we may fully see that nothing can be evolved that has not first been involved. That is to say, we can take nothing out of a chest that has not first been placed in that chest; and if we would get valuable material out of that chest we must first put valuable material into it. So it is with our lives. We can only get out of them that which we have put into them. We should always remember the law of compensation demands that it shall be so. He who would reap bountifully must sow liberally. He who would possess the things of greatest value must be willing to make the greatest sacrifice; he must pay the greatest price. That is to say, we get what we pay for, and we must pay the price for what we get. We cannot get something for nothing. The reason why many of us have so little of value in our lives is that we have been unwilling to pay the price of better things. It is also very lamentable that many of us have not yet learned that the best things can only be attained by paying the supreme price.

Killing Time

That we may see clearly this matter, I wish to draw your attention to a circumstance that came under my observation some years ago. A certain man who possessed a goodly degree of natural ability was placed in a position to make something of himself and to become useful in life; but he failed to put anything of value into his life, hence he failed.

This man of whom we speak once said to the writer, "What do you do to kill time? I don't know what to do to kill time."

The answer was that time is too valuable, too precious, to be killed; that already time is too short to permit us to do all we must do if we would reach the highest and the best. This man did not get the message, for he replied, "I wish I had some place to go to kill time, because it drags very heavily on me."

When told of the things he might do to improve his time, not to kill it, he said, "I don't like to do those things. I don't like to read, and I can't content myself at the kind of things you mention." So he went on in quest of some way or means to kill time. The poor man did not realize that he was already doing, and had been doing for years, the thing he was in quest of. It is almost needless for me to say that he made a miserable failure of life and is completely down and out. This is the inevitable result, for he had invited defeat all along the pathway of his life.

Conserving Time

Then I knew another man who began with very meager attainments, and with very few privileges, but he had a desire to conserve time and to become useful in life. He began searching ways and means to employ his time, for he realized in part its value. He sometimes erred in his projects, it is true, but he was anxious to conserve and profitably utilize his time. It was not long until he was pursuing, against great odds, a study course that has made him a master. This man did not have any time to kill, for he arose at four o'clock in the morning and in an untiring way often burned the midnight oil that he might acquire the knowledge that would fit him for a place of honor and usefulness in life. He read volume after volume, and pursued study course after study course until he was able to fill a better place in life and render a proper service to his fellow men. This man sees more fully and more clearly than ever before the value of time, and he is still trying to utilize it in the best possible way. It goes without saying that he will succeed, for the law of compensation demands that it must be so.

Pearl of Great Price

What a boon it would be to us if we could fully grasp the meaning of the words of the Master when he said: "When a man finds one pearl of great price he goes straightway and sells all that he has and buys the field." Nothing can be reserved by us if we are to obtain the best. In Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice the motto on the leaden cask that contained the coveted trophy read: "He that chooses me must hazard all he's got." So it is that in order to get the best we must give all.

If, therefore, we would fill our lives with the richest and best we must empty the inferior, all that is impure and unclean, and purify the temple of our body that it might be a fit abode for the Spirit of Love and Truth and Justice. We will readily see that our lives cannot be filled with the best while they are two thirds or three fourths filled with impurity and corruption. It therefore goes without saying that the only way in the world for us to get the best is to arise in the strength of our manhood or womanhood and say, I am going to subordinate all to the end that truth and purity may be established and maintained. "He that chooses me must hazard all he's got." In order to purchase one pearl of great price one must sell all that he has; that is to say, he cannot obtain nor possess the highest and the best while he clings to the inferior, the mediocre, and the commonplace.

Herein we are able to understand the words of Christ when he said: "No man can serve two masters, for either he will love the one and hate the other, or he will hold to the one and forsake the other, ye cannot serve God and mammon." It is not difficult for us to see that one cannot possess truth and at the same time cling to error. One cannot be pure and impure at the same time. It is quite impossible for one to be just and unjust at the same time, and wisdom and foolishness cannot be successfully united. If we would become pure in life we must forsake impurity and lay hold upon purity. If we would be just we must cease being unjust. If we would be wise we must part company with folly and pursue the paths of wisdom. If one would become a Saint he must cease being bestial, for these two conditions cannot be combined in one person.

Source of Wealth

The source of all wealth is labor. Not only is this true in the material world, but it holds good in the intellectual and spiritual realms as well. One can only purchase as he acquires the means with which to purchase. So it is that he who works untiringly and faithfully will one day become the fond possessor of that which he is pursuing. He who kills time must perish, because he is defeating himself at every turn; he is defrauding himself of his God-given rights. We ought to be wise enough to see that nothing must come of nothing and that if we are to obtain the best we must contribute the best. The word of inspiration to the church is, "The earth is full and there is plenty and to spare."

The big question is, What uses are we making of our time? What are we doing with our golden opportunities? May we not well reflect, make choice of the better way, and pursue the course that will bring life, joy, and peace to us? We will get out of life just what we put into it, so if we are lacking in the day of accounting there shall be no one to blame for it but ourselves.

He who squanders time and talent
Must remain a pauper here;
Being destitute of knowledge,
Fills man with a cowardly fear.

A workers' university for Poland has been planned by university men and political leaders. It will be located at Warsaw, and will not only offer regular instruction in academic subjects, but will act as a center for health study, and will issue appropriate publications.

Do You Look

1. Upward for Guidance and Inspiration.
2. Inward for Growth and Determination.
3. Outward for Opportunity and Service.

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

Unlocking the Door to Freedom

What men have fought for in the name of freedom is varied and complex. To follow the struggle for freedom leads one into many situations where problems are different in every respect. It would seem that freedom is not well defined, not clearly understood. The element of freedom in these various situations is indeterminate. It would cause one to question, at times, the actual existence of freedom. Is it entirely a child of fancy?

Men's problems of freedom have arisen from situations in life, not from academic discussions of problematical propositions. Because these problems have been located, not so much in the realm of philosophy as in that of actuality, we must look to life, there to find the elusive key which unlocks the door to freedom.

The Fight for Political Freedom

Turning back the pages of history and viewing man in his struggle for freedom, we find him waging war against organization. He has found himself a part of a large machine, an organization. He has become dissatisfied with his part in the function of this machine, so he rises up, and in the name of freedom, overthrows the organization. He wishes to be free from its influence upon his actions.

We need go back into history no further than the American Revolution to find there the same struggle which has been going on ever since the world began. The same freedom was sought. This time it was the struggle for political independence. The colonies were oppressed by England, so when they no longer cared to belong to that organization and obey its laws, the storm of the Revolution broke. A war cry was raised, "No taxation without representation." They succeeded in throwing off the yoke of the mother country. But what then did they do? They established another organization similar to the one from which they had just freed themselves. The new organization, however, was founded upon the principle of democracy for which the colonies fought. Inspired leaders framed the Constitution and a new nation was born.

Yet only a degree of political freedom was obtained, for it took another war to free a people who were still in servitude. The Civil War did more than that, however. It definitely determined the durability of the new organization which was founded upon a principle of political freedom. Politics is the science of government, and government includes both those governing and those governed. Individual freedom under government therefore implies that actions of the individual are free only so long as they comply with government regulations.

Democracy itself is government of all, through all, under leadership of the wisest and the best, according to the judgment of the many. Absolute individual freedom, in other words license, is therefore unknown. Even in this country of ours political freedom is enjoyed only in part.

A Dream of the Future

The World War found us fighting again for freedom, this time "to make the world safe for democracy." Is the world now safe for democracy? Scarcely anybody will declare it is. Was the War then fought in vain? We will say it was not, for a broader concept of freedom was gained by it. We now can think in terms of freedom of people, instead of only freedom of the individual. The autocrats of the Teuton alliance were overthrown and their governments or organizations, which were thought to be menacing the freedom of the world, were destroyed. The result was an attempt to establish a world organization which would do away with future wars and guarantee democracy to the world. Such an organization has not been established, but its exponents are still actively at work. Political freedom is still a dream of the future. Where will it end?

History shows us that men have sought to locate political freedom in organization, but what have the struggles brought us? One organization after another has fallen, yet freedom is still unattained. We have, however, obtained a degree of freedom following each conflict. Our knowledge is greater and each new organization is better than the last one. We are learning by experience, but the cost of that knowledge is dear.

The Secret of Freedom

The key to freedom lies in knowledge, not in organization. Had men been students of the Bible and real Christians, they would have been spared many of the bloody struggles which have brought to them the knowledge they possess to-day. We are told, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." After centuries of blind ignorance, we have arrived at the same conclusion. Truth or knowledge is the instrument for successful action, not war against organization. Through knowledge we attain our goal. As soon as we locate freedom in knowledge instead of organization we see that its nature is broader than mere organization. It is not limited to political struggles. It includes all phases of life. The nature of freedom is as broad as life itself, and as long.

Physical Freedom

Freedom of life on the physical plane means a perfect body, one which is capable of doing what is required of it. Only the athlete enjoys the freedom which comes from supreme bodily endurance. He has acquired health through observance of the laws of physiology and hygiene. He is free because he possesses the power of accomplishment. He knows how to live physically.

Mental Freedom

Life on the mental plane should enjoy the same degree of freedom of function. The engineer builds a great bridge. He has learned to think clearly and correctly in the engineering field. This knowledge is the instrument by which he accomplishes his purpose. To be free on the mental plane means that the laws of psychology have been observed.

Moral Freedom

To lead a moral life, is to be free from the throes of immorality. The person who best gets along in society is the one who observes the standards of the group. The moral person is free to go and come as he wishes. He is protected by the law he observes. The immoral person is the enemy of society and is therefore not free in his actions. He may be apprehended at any time.

Spiritual Freedom

On the spiritual plane of life we find the same observance of law necessary to freedom. The person who would be conversant with God is the one who keeps his laws. He alone is free to enter the sacred portals of the divine. He is entitled to the blessings of God in abundance.

Observance of Law

Freedom is to be found in the observance of law, but not blind observance. The harnessed horse draws the cart in blind obedience to the forces which make him captive. But the horse has no purpose as does man. Man observes law only so long as law is the means for accomplishing purposes. The laws of nature cannot be changed so man observes them in order that he may be free in his actions. He makes these laws a power in doing his will by intelligent observance of them.

But the laws of nature were not made for the individual. They were made for everybody. The law of reproduction proves that society is its object, not the individual. So it is in the laws of the land, in the organizations of society. They were made, not for the individual, but for everybody. The individual is allowed to be free only when such freedom contributes to the freedom of the many.

One person could not have brought about the American Revolution, nor would he have been justified if he could have done so. It would have been wrong for him to seek political freedom by disobeying the laws of the organization of which he was a part. Had he done so, he would be a criminal. But when a great mass of people rose up to establish freedom for the many, as our forefathers did, they were justified in breaking the laws of the organization of which they no longer wished to be a part. However, these people in turn had to set up another organization which would guarantee the right of political freedom of the many as against the freedom of the individual.

Summary

Freedom of the many is greater than freedom of the individual. The individual should be free only when such freedom contributes to that of the many. Freedom is to be attained only by the intelligent observance of law. Knowledge of these laws and their application to life, that they may be made a power in the accomplishment of purposes, is the instrument for unlocking the door to freedom.

One is freest in that environment where things are most familiar. The chemist is freest in his laboratory, the lawyer in the court room, the physician at the bedside, the shoemaker in the shoe shop, and the preacher in the pulpit. Freedom is as broad as life and as long. It is greatest where there is most knowledge. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

A. E. W.

Science and Common Sense

Reprinted from the Palestine Weekly, March 7, 1924:

Nothing is perfect in this world. Common sense is the parent of science; practical sagacity guided its first steps and still continues to play a predominant part in the gradual growth and development of its hypotheses, theories, laws, and formulæ. But the offspring has grown up and naturally claims independence. Many a time it simply takes it. That is why we so often see them separated one from the other, meandering in opposite directions—lonely, miserable, powerless.

Strangely enough, this state of theirs does not induce our pity; on the contrary, it affords us reason to smile ironically, sometimes even sardonically. Very often it gives rise to a movement of scepticism extending to the science which has no more common sense as its servant and guide, and to the common sense which has no more science as its master and object.

We find a striking example of such a discordance in the latest issue of a purely scientific review. In the French Annales de Géographie of January 15th, 1924 (Colume XXXIII, No. 181) there is a note by Augustin Bernard on "La population de la Syrie et de la Palestine d'après les derniers recensements." The portion of the note dealing with Syria does not interest us, and we shall confine ourselves to the analysis of the other part, which comments on Palestinian ethnographical data.

Census Report of 1922

After having given in the official figures, in accordance with Mr. J. B. Barron's report and general abstract of the census of 1922, a table of the population of Palestine and of its division by religions, M. Bernard indulges in a short comment which brings him very rapidly to the problem of the nationalities of the country, and, naturally, to that of Zionism. Here his science loses all relevancy not only with pure logic, without which any science is but a wretched cripple, but also with the slightest particle of common sense, the utility of which in this case would have been fairly great, for it would have helped M. Bernard to verify his opinion. "It is the Zionist problem," he says, "which complicates the situation in Palestine. Neither the Moslems, nor the Christians, nor even the Palestinian Jews are happy to see the Zionist emigrants arrive." Observe the term "emigrants" applied to the immigrants arriving in Palestine. The mistake acquires a peculiar significance from the pen of a Frenchman, i. e., a member of the nation which possesses to its perfection the art of using the right word.

Jews Not Emigrants

It nevertheless is a mistake. The Jews arriving in Palestine are not "emigrants" in the accepted meaning of the word. They are not merely people fleeing from their country in search of refuge and livelihood. The Jews of other countries know the political and economic condition of Palestine, they know it is not a golden land. Those whose only object is to find a haven and a means of existence do not go to Palestine, but to countries where a living is more easily obtainable. Those who land in Palestine are of a quite different order. They are in large majority not refugees. A roof and a loaf do not satisfy them. They come here to plant new ideals in an old soil, to revive an old and devastated country, which ought to have been sacred to almost everybody in the so-called civilized world, but to which nevertheless nobody else had paid the slightest attention during the last six to seven hundred years. These people whom history will respectfully term "pioneers" should actually be named at least "immigrants." To call them "emigrants" without forethought is a mistake; willfully it is an unjustifiable wrong.

As to the assertion that the Palestinian Jews are opposed to the immigration of their brethren, we can only wonder how such an utter untruth could have found its way into such a serious scientific review as the Annales de Géographie, which has aught to do with purely political polemics. We know that some journalists have allowed this peculiar allegation to be published in certain newspapers. But M. Augustin Bernard had before his eyes the very moment he put it on paper an absolute proof of its ineptitude.

Hebrew Is Language of People

A little further on in his note we find the following statement: "According to one of the tables of the census, 80,396 persons in Palestine use Hebrew as their language, and only 1,946 speak Yiddish. Though the resurrection of Hebrew as a 'vulgar' language is quite a fact, the first number is manifestly exaggerated." (Note again the expression, "langue vulgaire." We are certain that M. Bernard would not have called French a "vulgar language"; rather he would have employed the expression, "une langue parlée.")

The last phrase of the statement is perfectly true. Not every Jew in Palestine already employs Hebrew in his daily life. But the fact that almost all of them proclaimed this language to be their mother tongue is an absolute proof against the assertion that Palestine Jewry is opposed to Zionism. For the revival of Hebrew is the most important goal of Zionism. Hebrew as a spoken language is the symbol, the embodiment of the Zionist ideal of nationalism. Zionism without Hebrew is empty phraseology, the revival of Hebrew without Zionism is an utter impossibility. Those who admit one, forcibly admit the other. Those who on the day of the census proclaimed Hebrew as their language, proclaimed Zionism as their ideal. The fact that ninety-seven and a half per cent of the Jewish population of Palestine declared Hebrew as their national language, means that ninety-seven and a half per cent of Palestinian Jews are deeply attracted to the Zionist ideal. M. Bernard would surely not have missed this argument had his science gone hand in hand with some common sense. There is yet another argument which M. Bernard ought to have put to himself: where—in which document authentically expressing the opinion of the Palestinian Jews, or, at least, in which organ of the press—had such opposition to the immigration of their brethren been expressed?

Immigration Greater Than Emigration

M. Augustin Bernard further asserts that "the number of Jews leaving the country is not much smaller than that of those arriving." The statement is not only amazing but even amusing: et tu,

(Continued on page 469.)

www.LatterDayTruth.org

SPECIAL LOW-PRICED Big Print Bible Sale

We have made favorable arrangements with the Publishers, whereby we are enabled to supply the latest and best Teachers' Bible at a small advance over factory cost, and we do not hesitate to state that this is the best value at the price anywhere.

A Genuine HOLMAN Self-Pronouncing Teachers' Bible

No. 9418. Durably Bound in Morocco Grain Semble Leather (looks real and wears better than cheap leather), overlapping covers, round corners, carmine under pure gold edges, gold titles, also silk head bands and purple silk marker. Publisher's Subscription Price, $7.50. Our Special Price, Postpaid 3.95

No. 9624R. Red Letter Edition, same Bible as 9418 with the Words of our Saviour printed in Red and bound in Seal Grain Genuine Leather Binding. Publisher's Subscription Price, $9.50. Our Special Price, Postpaid 4.95

This Self-Pronouncing Teachers' Bible is printed on Fine White Paper from the sharpest, cleanest and clearest LARGE Bourgeois Type made. Easier to read than any other Large Type Bible, with durable binding, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), extra grained lining, silk head band, will not break in the back, is very flexible, has round corners, with red under gold edges; is furnished with a purple Marker, and contains New Copyrighted Helps to the Study of the Bible (not the old Teachers' Helps, which have been discarded years ago, being out of date) revised to date by Rev. F. N. Peloubet, D.D., author of Select Notes on the International Lessons, etc., etc., consisting of including also a carefully Systematized Table for Daily Devotional Bible Reading arranged on three different methods, by following either of which the Bible may be read through in a year, also A Family Register for Marriages, Births and Deaths, with Presentation Page in colors as an added convenience where the Bible is desired for a gift, A Pictorial Pilgrimage Through Bible Lands, consisting of a series of full-page photographic reproductions of the most notable places mentioned in the Scripture Narrative from Genesis to Revelation, a historical sketch accompanies each illustration.

Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary. The Dictionary is made attractive by 150 illustrations which are suggested by the text, and which serve to elucidate and impress it on the memory. Every Bible proper name and the names of all natural objects requiring explanation are followed by Definitions and References. a translation in English of its original. The definitions are concise and pointed, yet ample for good understanding. Besides meanings and explanations, they locate by references the subjects, objects and occurrences in the text.

Treasury of Biblical Information. The latest compendium of essential things which every reader of the Bible needs to know, such as the Chronology of the Old and of the New Testaments, Tables of Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Calendar, Table of Easter Days, giving the dates on which Easter occurs for twenty-eight years, etc., etc., all arranged in the most usable and attractive forms.

A New Series of Maps. The latest, the clearest, the most beautiful colored Maps of any Bible Helps; a selection of those most used, with some special Maps, embodying the results of the most recent explorations.

In addition to the above these helps contain:

A Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references; more than twice the number contained in any other edition.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Old and New Testaments. A valuable Help to all Bible readers.

NOTE.—For 1.00 additional, we will furnish our Patent Thumb Index Edition and stamp name in pure gold on outside cover of book.

Chapter Headings on outside corner of each page make the Bible Self-Indexed.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

ST. MATTHEW, 5.

Christ's sermon on the mount.

15 <sup>a</sup> The land of Zāb'u-lon, and the land of Nēph'tha-lim, by the way of the sea, beyond Jōr'dan, Gāl'i-lee of the Gēn'tiles;

16 <sup>b</sup> The people which sat in darkness saw great light; and to them which sat in the region and shadow

A. D. 31.

2 Is. 9. 1, 2.

3 Is. 42. 7.

4 Luke 2. 32.

5 Mark 1. 14,

15.

6 ch. 3. 2;

7 10. 7.

8 Mark 1. 16,

17, 18.

2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,

3 <sup>b</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

4 <sup>c</sup> Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

5 <sup>c</sup> Blessed are the meek: for <sup>e</sup> they Take our word and ORDER TO-DAY. You run no risk. Money cheerfully refunded if this Bible does not come up to your expectations.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
Independence, Missouri

www.LetterDayTruth.org

Size
6x8 inches;
1550 pages,
1½ inches thick.

CHURCH NEWS

Three Branches Hold Union Service to Hear Apostle J. A. Gillen

FLINT, MICHIGAN, May 1.—The Flint Branch has felt repaid for the effort put forth on April 8, when the three churches met in union service to hear Apostle J. A. Gillen. His wonderful discourse on life is still fresh in the memory of his audience, and there seems to be a greater determination on the part of the local membership to partake of the more abundant life. Come again, Brother Gillen. You will always be welcome. A good audience is promised you if you will give only a short notice.

One of the most inspiring meetings for some time was held at the Second Church on the last Friday evening of March. The children of Religio met in a prayer service of their own, the oldest being thirteen years. The report from Brother Harry Surbrook, in charge of this meeting, states that several prayers and testimonies by the children were of an encouraging nature. It will be provided again soon.

Elder B. F. Anspaugh has resigned as pastor of the Third Church, and Elder A. H. DuRose is acting temporarily. Elder Anspaugh will devote his time to preaching in the "regions round about" Flint.

The dramatic class of the First Church presented, before

---

SCIENCE AND COMMON SENSE

(Continued from page 467.)

scientia? or, as the Frenchmen say, Tiens, tien! We need no more facts, figures, statistics; a supposition is quite sufficient! The supposition is built on a very simple comparison: before the War the number of Jews in Palestine was estimated at 85,000; the census found only 83,000, ergo . . . that is quite clear, is it not? But M. Bernard, while writing the second part of his note, forgot what he wrote in its first part. Speaking of Syria, he states that forty per cent of the population in some districts of that country died of hunger and disease during the War. Why did he not make the natural reflection that Palestine too suffered from the consequences of the War? Why did he not make an inquiry into the number of surviving orphans whom the relief committees found in this country after the Occupation? Why did he not take into account the ten thousand Jewish refugees who were driven out of Palestine during the first six months of the War? And last, but not least, why did he not consult the official figures of the Immigration Department which give for a period covering the last four years a number approaching 40,000 in immigration and only about 10,000 in emigration?

That is why we made the remark in the first lines of this review: science without common sense is blind, deaf, dumb—in a word, a miserable thing.

—Z. Eliahu Cohen.

an appreciative audience, the play, "Welcome home, Jimmie."

Elder Arthur Koehler, of London, Ontario, was a recent visitor and delivered his wonderful lecture on Palestine to a union meeting of the three churches. Carlisle Whitehead, district director of young people's work, also visited here, to keep in touch with the developments of the Flint young people's organization.

---

Interest and Attendance Increasing at Cherokee, Iowa

CHEROKEE, IOWA, April 24.—All the departments in this branch are working steadily and in harmony for the good of the Master's cause. Interest seems to be increasing as well as attendance at all services.

The sacrament service, April 6, was a spiritual feast for the large number present. The spirit of prophecy was enjoyed. Brother E. L. Edwards was called to the office of elder. Brother Edwards is a priest and Bishop's agent. The new calling will be of great assistance to him in his work among the Saints.

The speakers during the past month have been, A. R. Crippen, J. T. Spence, and William Shore.

Although the weather was cold and windy, services Easter Sunday were well attended. The Sunday school gave a short program at the morning service, followed by an Easter sermon by Elder A. R. Crippen.

The priesthood of this branch will assist in every way possible in the special tent meeting to be held at Storm Lake, a new opening twenty-five miles east of here made by Elder Pendleton last year. This year's efforts will be conducted by Elder W. A. Smith. A Sunday school will soon be organized by E. L. Edwards, of Pomeroy, Iowa.

One of the girls' classes from Sunday school, in charge of Albert Haynes, teacher, will plant and raise a garden to be sold for benefit of the Christmas offering.

---

Saints at Hutchinson, Kansas, Purchase Church Lot

HUTCHINSON, KANSAS, May 1.—A lot for the building of a new church in the near future, has been purchased by this branch. At present the church services are held at 624 B, West Street.

Many visitors have called here recently, encouraging the work. Among them was J. N. Madden, district superintendent of the Department of Recreation and Expression, who was here March 22 and 23.

The Saints at this place are awake and working for the upbuilding of Zion.

---

Department of Women at Modesto, California, Hold Bazaar and Food Sale

MODESTO, CALIFORNIA, April 28.—A bazaar and food sale, by the Department of Women before Easter, brought in $31.30. A number of the stores in town are open to any church that wishes to hold food sales, allowing floor space for same. The department here took advantage of this opportunity.

Easter was an enjoyable day. An all-day service was held, Sunday school and preaching in the morning, basket dinner in the basement at 12.30 o'clock, a Sunday school program in the afternoon and the regular preaching service at night.

The Sunday school was visited by the district Sunday school secretary recently. On March 30 a perfect attendance was had, every officer, teacher, and pupil being on time. There were 43 present.

The junior choir is improving and doing very good work under the leadership of Sister Anna Howe.

One new family of six has been added to the branch membership, which encourages the Saints here.

Pastor Called Upon to Speak at Reorganization of Union Sunday School

BATTLE LAKE, MINNESOTA, May 1.—The branch president was called upon Easter Sunday to attend the reorganization of a union Sunday school several miles from here, and had the privilege of speaking afterward. His talk was well received and he was urged to come often. It is hoped good may result.

Regular weekly services in the Union Branch at Clitherall were commenced April 6, with small attendance, but good interest. On account of spring rains and snows, which have usually occurred on Saturdays, and some automobile trouble, a few from a distance have been hindered from attending.

The church is being cleaned this week.

Child Healed Through Administration at Alliance, Ohio

ALLIANCE, OHIO, May 5.—On Wednesday evening, April 16, the Alliance Saints met with Canton Saints in prayer meeting. That evening the little daughter of Brother and Sister Harry Green, of Canton, was administered to and healed. She was very sick with whooping cough and double pneumonia, the doctor having told the parents that day he had done all he could. The Saints felt strengthened and well repaid for the effort made in meeting together.

On Easter Sunday the Saints enjoyed a short program in charge of Sister Vida C. Smith, a young high school student. She is also pianist and always to be found at her post of duty.

Lunch Hour Sermons Delivered at Everett, Washington

EVERETT, WASHINGTON, May 2.—One of the elders preaches a short sermon every other noon to a large crowd of men in the lumber and veneer plant. He has created a great interest. The Saints feel they have a wonderful opportunity. The other noons are occupied by different organizations, most of the time by a Baptist minister.

After considerable sickness among the Saints, all are well again and back to church. Some members have four miles to walk but are very faithful in attendance.

Class Organization at Coleman, Michigan, Proving Successful

COLEMAN, MICHIGAN, May 5.—The Saints at Coleman are getting along very nicely, especially the Sunday school. The young people of Class 2 have organized and hold class meetings every two weeks. These have proved to be a very great success, not only in holding the interest of the members, but in drawing others into the Sunday school.

The class meetings are opened with song and prayer, then a program which includes short talks, discussions on certain subjects, and a question box, is had. After an hour of this work, games are played and the meeting ends with a lunch.

Sunday School Concert Given at Dennisport, Maine

DENNISPORT, MAINE, May 6.—The Easter concert by the Sunday school was enjoyed by an audience which filled the chapel in spite of the rainy evening. The decorations were of plants and flowers, and a pure, stately lily gleamed its message from the pulpit.

To help in the success of the concert, the school was divided into two sides, the Reds and Blues, contesting for superiority in the preparation and final execution of the respective parts. The contest of itself was a success, the Reds winning. They are to be given a party by the Blues on Thursday evening, May 1.

Brother Sinclair, of Boston, was the speaker April 27. All enjoyed listening once again to the doctor's clear reasoning. Brother Lewis, the pastor of this place, will speak to the Saints in Plymouth May 11. The Saints are glad to share with Plymouth a teacher of the plain and precious truths of Jesus Christ.

Junior Choir Organized at Milwaukee, Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN, May 3.—J. O. Dutton, district president, spent about ten days here preaching and otherwise assisting the local ministry.

The branch was very delightfully entertained with a musical and literary program on Easter morning. The program was arranged and executed under the direction of Sister B. C. Johnson, formerly of Independence, Missouri, and was given by the young people of the Milwaukee Sunday school. All were very glad to see the success and definite organization of the junior choir under Sister Johnson's direction, which rendered several very good numbers on the program. The junior choir has been permanently organized and that long felt want has been supplied. The branch is interested in this new venture and looks forward to the success of this end of its new development.

Attendance Contest

The Red and Blue contest, which opened the first Sunday in March, sponsored by Brother William Murray for the members of the Sunday school, came to a close to-day. This was one of the most interesting events ever undertaken by the Milwaukee Sunday school. From the very beginning the Blues hopped off with a big lead, and continued to keep well ahead of the Reds, until about three Sundays ago when suddenly the Reds seemed to wake up, and since then the story has been different. Last Sunday the Reds were within two points of winning with the Blues seventeen points in the rear. To-day the Reds, mustering all of their forces together, succeeded in outpointing the Blues by about thirty points.

This means the Blues will give the Reds a supper in the near future, at which time the cash prizes will be given to individual members for the most visitors secured. The captains for each side were: Reds, Ruth Kirshner; Blues, Wilbur Drever.

The contest was entitled, "A trip from Milwaukee to Independence," and covered 500 points. A large scale was provided, conspicuously marked, and the progress was indicated by red and blue trains being moved forward as the contest progressed. Each person was provided with a button to be worn showing the side to which he belonged. A visitor was considered five points for the first attendance, and thereafter three points the same as the regular scholars.

The largest single attendance for any Sunday was 49, which was the record for this school since its organization. The average attendance during the contest was 35, which was an increase of 66% per cent over the average of eight weeks before the contest.

As stated in a previous report the school is obliged to look for larger quarters and this is foremost in the minds of the Saints. They are greatly encouraged over the success of the past few months, and feel that this is but the starting of a real effort in this part of the Lord's vineyard.

Many Good Sermons Heard by Oklahoma City Saints

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA, May 6.—The Saints of this place have much to be thankful for because of the manifestations of the power of God both in the preaching and prayer meetings. There is need for a greater consecration but the heaven is working.

Brother J. M. Terry, president of the El Reno Branch and a man quite extensively known in the church, gave a good discourse here April 27, which was followed by another from Brother Samuel Simmons.

F. E. Dillon, president of the branch, is doing much good. Brother R. M. Maloney recently returned from a four months' stay in Texas. He gave a good sermon last Sunday evening.

New Westminster Branch Renders "Lead, Kindly Light"

NEW WESTMINSTER, BRITISH COLUMBIA, April 30.—Saints interested in the welfare of the New Westminster Branch will no doubt be pleased to hear of the great success of the Easter concert.

The Department of Women has for several weeks been engaged in instructing and drilling the Saints and children who took part in the drills, recitations, part songs, and pantomime entitled, "Lead, kindly light," which proved a credit to all taking part and a great credit to instructors.

One interesting feature was a bird song by six little girls and two little boys, ranging from three to six years of age. All were dressed to represent birds and they acted it to perfection.

The amount realized at the concert, which took place April 21, was $32 clear. This goes toward buying a lot which the Department of Women has undertaken to purchase. They are certainly a group of live wires and are doing all in their power to push the work forward both financially and spiritually.

The work here in general proves to be progressing slowly but surely. The Saints are held in high esteem by their neighbors and friends who gladly attended the Easter concert, filling the hall from door to door. Two ladies of other churches favored with solos and duets, while a third gave two organ solos, being pleased to render their assistance which certainly was appreciated.

All hands in the branch are put to the plow, and everybody is working diligently for the furtherance of the work here. Those in charge are kept busy, especially on Sundays. Morning service is held at the home of one of the Saints who lives a distance out of town. Several nonmembers attend and are somewhat interested. A good spirit prevails at these meetings.

Sunday school session is held in the church hall at 1.30, followed by prayer meeting at 2.30. At 6.45 the Saints meet for Book of Mormon study and have preaching service at 7.30. On Thursday evening they meet for prayer meeting at 8 o'clock which is followed by Religio at 8.30.

An interest is asked in the prayers of the Saints for the progress of the work here.

Boys Have Charge of Sunday Services During Boys' Week

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, May 3.—Boys' Week, commencing April 27, was observed generally throughout this city. The Saints gladly followed the example. Five of "our boys" were given charge of the services Sunday morning. Their ages ran from 15 to 24 years. Arthur Reese presided; Lewis Giffin offered the opening prayer; and they were assisted by Lawrence Ganz, Herbert and Ernest Chalmers, all of whom made remarks concerning Sunday school, Religio, church, and boys' work in general. The service was interesting and profitable in showing what can be done by the boys when necessity demands.

On Easter Sunday there was a Sunday school entertainment in the morning; at 11 a. m., a sermon by Elder L. B. Shippy. At 6.10 an entertainment was given by the Religio, then preaching at 8 o'clock by Elder Cecil Etzenhouser. There was a full attendance at all the services, each of which was spiritual and instructive.

Apostle Roy S. Budd recently preached for the Saints, giving a very fine and much appreciated discourse.

The general health of the Saints is good at present.

Cantata, "King Triumphant," Rendered at Portland, Oregon

PORTLAND, OREGON, May 5.—The Easter cantata, "King Triumphant," was rendered by the choir Sunday evening, April 20, with Mrs. Fay Buchanan directing. The solo parts were sung by Fay Buchanan, Bertha Rader, Lila Smith, Eunice Smith, Blanche Brady, and Lillian Livingston. The church was packed to the doors, the attendance being the largest in the history of the branch. All seemed to be well pleased with the program and many said it was the best they had ever heard.

Assembly Hall

The Saints are considering erecting an auditorium or assembly hall on the north half of the church lot, at East Seventy-sixth and Irving Streets, where they propose to hold special programs, Religio classes, athletics, socials, and all department activities. There is much to be done in the departmental work that could be done more effectively in such a building. There is some opposition to plans along this line, however, on the grounds that the benefits will not justify the expense, because the time is too short to put money and efforts into a building which will soon be left behind when the Saints move Zionward.

Then again comes the answer, "If by erecting this building and making it a social center some of the young people and older ones, too, can be reclaimed from the pleasures of the world, is not the reward worth the sacrifice?" Quite a problem, isn't it? Yet the Saints trust God will direct and all be done for the best.

Two Baptisms

Two little girls, just past eight years, were baptized in the font at the church at East Seventy-sixth and Irving Streets the evening of April 27. One is Ada, daughter of Brother and Sister Mark Yeoman, of Portland, the other, June, daughter of Sister Grace Bryson, also of Portland. Both the little girls are members of the Sunday school.

There are many potential Latter Day Saints in the primary department if the parents and the school continue to do their respective parts in instilling in the children the love of God's work.

Missionary Meetings Held at Groton, Connecticut

GROTON, CONNECTICUT, May 6.—New London Branch recently enjoyed a visit from Elder Orval L. Thompson who held a series of missionary services at Groton. The meetings were conducted in the town hall, the use of which was granted free of charge from April 14 to 20. There was a good attendance of Saints and nonmembers. At the service Easter morning twenty nonmembers were present. The sermons were instructive and inspiring and were received with interest.

An Easter concert followed the preaching service in the morning. The program consisted of vocal selections, recitations, etc., by children, a solo by Brother Thompson, and a talk by the pastor. The hall was decorated with laurel, maple blossoms, pussy willows, daffodils, tulips, and roses, pleasingly arranged. At the close of the program each child was given a potted tulip. The Saints would like to have had Brother Thompson stay longer, and will be glad to welcome him again soon.

Brother William Hill and wife, of Wallingford, Connecticut, with two of their children, came to New London and Groton inquiring for Latter Day Saints and were received by Brother Thomas G. Whipple, of Groton. Brother and Sister Hill were recently members of Niagara Falls Branch, New York. Their unexpected visit was greatly enjoyed.

Meetings Commenced at Moorhead, Iowa

MOORHEAD, IOWA, May 6.—U. W. Greene, evangelist, commenced a series of meetings here on May 5. This is a very busy time for the farmers, but it is hoped the meetings will be successful. Brother Greene is a very spiritually minded man and seems to bring his counsel and advice close to the hearts of the Saints. His experience in the foreign missionary fields, when referring to the same, makes the Bible history much more real. The hand of God is seen marvelously preparing all things for the day in which we are living, and thus God will fulfill all his work.

By request of nonmembers a Sunday school has been organized at the Jordan church about six miles north of Moorhead, with Brother Chester Davis superintendent, and Sister Clara Jones secretary. This will be quite a help to the scattered members in that vicinity. Preaching is had at the close of Sunday school.

The Moorhead Saints were pleased to once more meet Brother Joseph Lane, the district president, who made visits among the Saints last Thursday. It is hoped he will be able to preach here again soon.

Brother Charles Hield and wife, both of the school faculty, recently made over-Sunday visits at Sioux City and Mondamin.

Since the weather and roads are improved it is hoped an increase of attendance will be had at all of the services. The general health of the Saints is good with the exception of Brother Perry Mann who is a patient in the Jenny Edmundson Hospital at Council Bluffs. According to the latest reports he is slowly improving.

Moorhead Saints were grieved to learn of the death of Brother Sidney Pitt, sr., one of the former district presidents. Brother Pitt had endeared himself to the hearts of the Saints by his faithful service in the Lord's work.

Brother Charles Putnam, who has been holding meetings at Decatur, Nebraska, en route to his home at Woodbine, Iowa, made a call on some of the Saints May 6.

Department of Women Presents Toronto Branch With Individual Communion Service

TORONTO, CANADA, May 7.—The Toronto Branch gladly accepted the beautiful gift, presented by the Department of Women, of an individual communion service consisting of four silver trays, twelve dozen glasses, filler, etc., which cost $51.25.

During the past year this department held several lectures, sessions for addresses, and discussions along educational lines, and some sessions were devoted to sewing, quilting, and sociability. From sales of work and special efforts $646.40 were raised in the year of 1923. The largest amount taken in by the department at any one time was $275 at a bazaar in December.

With the proceeds from a pie social and a Thanksgiving supper $133 were paid for the branch on the district budget. The Thanksgiving supper was a success socially. It was an old-time gathering such as had not been seen at Soho Street church for some time.

Check From Laundry Company

A laundry company has a novel way of advertising. When women of different churches in Toronto were asking for donations for their annual bazaars last fall the Wet Wash Laundry Company offered a check of $25 to any church if one hundred women members would visit their laundry within one week. The Saints were the third on the list, one hundred of them registering their names and going through the laundry. Besides the check and souvenirs of toilet soap they were shown courtesy, met women of other churches, and felt well represented by having that number of women meeting in a business place of the city in the busiest week of the year, just before Christmas.

It seemed, though, like an election day getting the women there and counting up to see how near we were to the one hundred mark. The Laundry Company says they are booked up for visitors from the churches until the end of June.

Other uses for money in the treasury have been $42.50 to assist two other branches, $67 for decorating the kindergarten room for Sunday school, and assisting in social service work.

Educational Features

The lecturers and speakers favoring the department have been Pastor C. Ed. Miller; Bishop A. F. McLean; J. L. Prentice; Doctor H. B. Miner; Doctor C. A. McLean; Mrs. E. G. Law; Mrs. D. Macgregor, general field worker; Mrs. A. F.

McLean, district organizer; Mrs. G. Campton; Mrs. J. A. Wilson, city social service worker; and Mrs. J. A. McElhiney. The last named speaker is in government employ along with her husband who is Staff-Captain McElhiney prison reform work, both for the Salvation Army and the Dominion Government.

In a very interesting and refined manner, Mrs. McElhiney depicted some of the "seamy side" of life, and told of their methods of reclaiming the prisoners, some of them unfortunate and more sinned against than sinning, she claimed; also she explained the work of the Parole Board. The women appreciated hearing from this excellent worker, a woman of education and an experience of thirty-two years in efficient service of "Dealing gently with the erring," of which we love to sing.

Grandma Honored

The superintendent, Mrs. McLean, is carrying off the honors of grandma gracefully, and is receiving congratulations over her brand-new grandson. The department served refreshments in honor of the event, asked questions about little Murray Gould McLean, and were quite envious of the youngest looking grandmother ever known.

Strawberry Festival in June

The Department will hold a strawberry festival and sale of work about the middle of June. Wherever and whenever practical the Department of Women and Religio work together, holding special "Goes" on the one night.

All-Day Meeting Held at Nevada, Iowa

NEVADA, IOWA, April 29.—An all-day meeting was held at Nevada Branch April 27, three district officers being present.

Sunday school convened at 10 o'clock and after the lesson study Brother Fred Wilkinson gave a talk on Sunday school work, appealing to all to study and become better informed on the gospel. Brother Wilkinson made a comparison of the time spent by children in the public schools and in the Sunday school, emphasizing the need for more religious study.

At 11 o'clock Brother Wilkinson preached on "Service." Also at this hour Brother Stephen Robinson gave a short talk on the Religio work, bringing out the value of play. The Religio, he said, seeks to build up the physical, mental, and spiritual powers of the individual and the group.

Lunch Served

At 12.15 all present were busy enjoying the many good things the women had provided for the noonday meal. The same jolly group was served again at 5.30.

At 2 p. m. a spiritual prayer service was held. At the close of the prayer service Charley Lehman, the new branch president, made a strong appeal for support of the church program, as did also Brother A. Shimmel, assistant branch president.

Resume Religio Sessions

Due to bad roads Religio had not been held since April 6, but at this time a meeting was held at 7 o'clock, opened by Brother Shalley. After the opening exercises Stephen Robinson took charge and the topic, "How to make the Religio grow," was used to good advantage. The Religio in the future will hold meetings each Sunday at 6.45 p. m. and a good program will be offered.

Brother Henry Castings preached at the evening hour, using as his text, "Develop your spiritual life." This sermon gave much food for thought and was surely a fine close for a day of activity. Brother Castings is so interested in the flock at Nevada that he traveled fourteen miles out of his way in order that one of the members of the Nevada Branch might attend the services of the day.

Choirs Render Cantatas in Branches

WINDSOR, ONTARIO, May 8.—Elder John Shields is here again for a short time. Presided at the sacramental services May 4, and is to baptize one person May 7.

Elder Kuykendall was over from Detroit and delivered the Sunday evening discourse to a very interested audience.

Sister A. L. Grant, 10 McEwen Avenue, has been appointed to succeed Sister Ruth Mifflin as leader of the Oriole girls, Sister Mifflin having moved to Detroit, Michigan.

On Easter Sunday, Elder H. A. Koehler, of London, Ontario, delivered a very appropriate discourse at the morning service. Mrs. Elton M. Plant rendered a soprano solo, "Hosanna," by Granier; and a woman's quartet sang, "Why weepest thou," by Ramler.

In the evening the Easter cantata by Petrie, "Life everlasting," was rendered. The solos were taken by Sisters L. Selden, N. Andrew, B. Gaw, P. Harnden, R. Glaizer, and M. Cousins, and by Brethren Moore, C. Bear, C. Harnden, A. Moffat, E. Beemer, R. Wood, and H. A. Koehler. Sister Edith A. Moore was at the piano.

A banquet was tendered the choir the following Monday night when Elder H. A. Koehler, conductor, was the guest of honor.

On Tuesday evening the Windsor choir rendered their cantata in the First Detroit Church, the Detroit choir reciprocating by rendering their Easter cantata at the Windsor church on Thursday evening, April 24.

A banquet and pleasant time was had by the two choirs at the conclusion of the singing, creating a feeling of good fellowship between them.

Social of Department of Women at Bisbee, Arizona, a Success

BISBEE, ARIZONA, May 7.—An unusually interesting program and social were given April 18 by the Department of Women; a piano trio, cornet duets, recitations, with appropriate anthems by the Bisbee Male Voice Choir, and other music by outside friends. All were a credit to those taking part.

After the program refreshments of tea, chocolate, and cake were served. The sale of many fine pieces of work made by the sisters, and profits from the candy counter, together with the sale of admission tickets, (adults, 25 cents, and children, 10 cents) resulted in increasing the church building fund by over $64.

Approximately one hundred fifteen persons enjoyed the social. Much credit is due the members and officers of the department for their earnest endeavors to make this social a success. Another sale of work is planned later.

Easter Program

A splendid Easter program was given on the evening of April 20, under the auspices of the Sunday school, and was enjoyed by the Saints and a large number of visiting friends. A number of the young people show real talent along these lines. Much credit is due the committee for their faithful efforts.

Quarterly Branch Business Meeting

The business meeting was held May 2. A building lot committee, Brother D. L. Evans, branch president; Charles F. Rehwald, deacon and treasurer; and Sister Daisy Short, branch clerk and representative of the Department of Women, was elected. A vacancy having occurred, Sister Hazel Dearborn was elected as Sunday school organist:

Sacrament Service

The sacrament service of May 4 was quite well attended. A large percentage of those present took active part in the service, and the peaceful influence of the Holy Spirit was enjoyed.

Delivers Junior Baccalaureate Sermon at Runnells, Iowa

RUNNELLS, IOWA, May 9.—District President Henry Castings delivered the junior baccalaureate address at the Congregational church on the evening of May 8. In his characteristic way he instructed the class to be honest and upright in school that they might lay the foundation for good character. There are thirty-two members of the class. Runnells is Brother Castings' old home and he is well liked by everyone in the community.

Sister Faye Heiny is confined to her home with the smallpox. The epidemic was prevalent here all winter, but had subsided until this case recently developed. She is the first of the Saints here to be afflicted.

The last sacrament service was a spiritual one and very much enjoyed by those present. Brother Will Parks and family from Carlisle were in attendance, as they usually are when weather and roads will permit. Aged Sister Nirk is making her home with them at present. Her testimonies are valuable to the Saints because of her many years of faithful service in the church.

Sickness Among Members at Rhodes, Iowa

RHODES, IOWA, May 4.—The youngest child of Brother and Sister Charles Veach is recovering from the pneumonia following an attack of the measles.

Sister Thelma Lents is home from the hospital and everybody is rejoicing.

At a recent Sunday morning service the seats in the church were nearly filled, about ninety per cent of the Saints of the branch being present.

There was a volley ball game and general good time at the home of Brother Charles Richeson recently.

The pulpit was filled Sunday, April 27, by Brothers E. G. Beye and V. G. Lents. The Religio class of Sister Beye, consisting of young people twelve to thirteen years of age, presented a mixed quartet at the evening service. They did exceptionally well.

Drive to Be Made in District for Funds

DES MOINES, IOWA, April 27.—Those who attend the mid-week prayer services report each one just a little better than the last. There were forty-two present April 23, and it is hoped that the number will be raised to fifty at the next meeting.

There were over two hundred at Sunday school April 27, and a large crowd greeted Brother C. E. McDonald at the 11 o'clock hour. The theme of the morning sermon was, "All have a work to do," which was greatly enjoyed by the congregation.

The main feature of the Religio's last meeting was a talk by a well-educated Indian, Mr. Jackson. His talk on the Indian, his condition, hopes, and ambitions, was very interesting.

Brother Fred Mussell, who was at home for a short time from his mission field, was a recent speaker here.

A special drive in May all over the district for tithing and funds for the general church, culminating in a special day May 18, has been announced. All look forward to this day as a banner one for the district in this regard.

Kansas City Stake Items

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, May 12.—The beautiful weather of Sunday, May 4, was an inducement for churchgoing. All the churches in the stake report a good attendance at the 11 o'clock sacramental services.

Joseph A. Tanner broke the bread of life at 7.45 at Central and Alma R. White held forth at the same hour at Grandview.

Fourth Church

The wide awake congregation at Fourth Church had an attendance of one hundred at the April sacramental service, which breaks all previous records at that place for this service. Also a record attendance in April of 111 was gained for the Sunday school. They declare that they will beat this record soon.

The pageant, "Easter dawn," was given by the young people at the evening hour on Easter Sunday and was enjoyed by a large crowd.

A surprise birthday dinner on April 24, at the church, for the pastor, John Worden, was attended by about eighty of the members of his pastorate. All enjoyed a social good time.

The Saints continue their Wednesday night dinners preceding the prayer meeting. On April 23, the men did the cooking and served the meal, which was put across as only men, who are apt students under the best cooks in the stake, can do.

Brother Bath, of Independence, was the speaker at the evening hour May 4. A series of meetings is planned for the near future.

Grandview Church

A drive for the increase in attendance of the Sunday school at Grandview church, of which Brother H. L. Oldfather is superintendent, was rewarded by a one hundred per cent gain. The usual number prior to the effort was 100; the count for May 4 was 221.

At the same time a class drive was on in Brother Jellings's Bible class, with the result that the membership is now 72, as against 15 before. This class divided into Indians on one side and Scouts on the other, each competing for the best showing in members brought in. They participated in the school drive, too. Of the new recruits the greater number are nonmembers.

The victors were the Indians who were banqueted at the expense of the Scouts in the church parlors, which were beautifully decorated for the occasion. As the losing side, the Scouts were allowed to participate, and the seventy plates set were taken. A suitable program was also rendered. Judge Arthur J. Melott, of Kansas City, Kansas, spoke on "The trial of Christ from the lawyer's standpoint." The toastmaster was Doctor William A. Warren.

The speaker at 11 o'clock, May 11, was S. S. Sandy, the associate stake president. At 7.45 Walter W. Gates dispensed the word.

At the stake conference, which will be held May 18, with business meeting Monday evening of the 19th, the 11 a. m. speaker will be Bishop Benjamin R. McGuire, and at 7.45 Apostle T. W. Williams will probably occupy. At 4.15 the women of the stake will be addressed by Bishop Fred B. Blair, and M. A. Etzenhouser will deliver a lecture to the ministry at the same hour.

Holden Stake News

Holden

HOLDEN, MISSOURI, May 12.—The choir has resumed its regular meetings on Tuesday evening.

Mothers' Day was observed at the church on Sunday morning. The beginner and primary departments gave a short program at the Sunday school session. At the eleven o'clock hour a program was rendered, Sunday School Superintendent Robert Dillon having charge.

The Home Sunday school gave a Mothers' Day program at the close of the class work. After the school the Saints of the Home went on an automobile trip in the country, which had been arranged by Brother George W. Beebe, the superintendent. Eight cars were used.

There was no meeting at the church Sunday night as all churches assembled in a special service for the high school graduates at the Auditorium. The sermon was delivered by Reverend Lemming of the Methodist church, the ministers of all the churches taking a part in the services.

A special meeting was held in the Stake Office Sunday afternoon preparatory to the meetings which are to be conducted by Elder R. D. Weaver, which begins next Sunday. Committees were appointed to care for the various demands of the work. Friday night a special prayer meeting for the success of the meetings will be held, also on Sunday afternoon.

Warrensburg

The work in Warrensburg since December 30, 1924, at which time the present pastor, Brother R. W. Farrell, took charge of his duties, has held its own. We believe that understanding touching a certain phase of church progress has been pretty well had. In the last quarter the usual religious services have been held. Several of the members have cooperated with the pastor, trying to do their very best, and their efforts will not be unrewarded. Membership is not very large, there being less than one hundred Saints located here, while many live at a distance from this immediate locality. Audiences, therefore, are small and also somewhat heterogeneous. Over seventy-five nonmembers have attended at least one service since December. This figure includes some interested in the funerals of Brother Reynolds (held at his home) and Sister Sawyer (at the church).

The Sunday school, Religio, choir, and Women's Department are working hard, under the direction of Walter Johnson, Frank Ball, Hazel Ball, and Minnie Haring, respectively. The town itself is quiet but friendly. There are from six to eight thousand residents here including the students at the college. We had a very interesting Easter exercise, brought forth by the hard labor of Sister Blanche Morgan and her helpers. Doubtless the average attendance of those within walking distance of the church is superior to many branches.

Lexington

The Saints at Lexington are rejoicing because the miners and operators have made a new three year contract. The mines affect our church work very much, because most of our brethren are miners. The sacrament service, in charge of Elder J. A. Brendel and J. E. Johnson, was very spiritual and was enjoyed by sixty members. Brother J. E. Johnson spoke at the evening hour. The Sunday school, under the supervision of Brother W. T. Beard, is doing much in building up the work here. We are planning to have Children's Day in June.

The Religio always has a good program. Brother Fred Furness, superintendent, has the cooperation of all the membership in his work. Sister Furness and infant daughter, Grace Maurine, have returned from Warrensburg where she was visiting her parents. Sister Lola Johnson added some new members to the orchestra. They are, Allen Orndoff, Leroy Howard, and Mabel Snell.

Sister Gwendolen Johnson and her Temple Builders went for a hike Tuesday afternoon. A good time was reported by all.

Brother R. D. Weaver, stake missionary, was in Lexington for a short time visiting Elder George Shippy and family. We are glad we are a part of the Holden Stake, and hope to be able to help build up this part of it in a manner which will be pleasing to our Heavenly Father.

Independence

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, May 13.—Mothers' Day was observed in all the Independence churches, Sunday, May 11. At the Stone Church Apostle D. T. Williams made the morning address following a fitting program. At 7.30 p. m. Brother Williams spoke again, this time to the graduating seniors of the high school, who were invited guests.

At Second Independence, a Mothers' Day program was rendered in the morning. At 2.30 p. m. the funeral of Delbert Barnett was held from the church. Many friends attended the funeral services of this young brother who died Friday morning at the Sanitarium following an automobile accident. He was a student at the Central College of Chiropractic, Kansas City. Members of the faculty and student body were present at the services. Richard Lambert preached the sermon.

A program occupied the morning hour at Walnut Park church. At 7.30 p. m. Elder W. O. Hands delivered an illustrated lecture.

Apostle J. W. Rushton was the morning speaker at Liberty Street, his subject being "The call of Jesus Christ." Bishop Benjamin R. McGuire spoke in the evening on "The law of liberty."

At Enoch Hill the Department of Women were in charge of the 11 o'clock service, and Bishop Charles Fry gave an illustrated sermon at 7.30.

W. H. Kelley spoke at Spring Branch at 11 a. m. and B. J. Scott at night.

East Independence

The Saints at East Independence enjoyed a very befitting sermon by their pastor, A. H. Parsons, Sunday morning, May 11, it being Mothers' Day.

Brother Parsons' health is greatly improved and all are glad he is able to be with the Saints again, as they need the fatherly advice which he so ably gives from time to time.

Brother J. D. Gault, of Independence, was the speaker Sunday evening. The Saints were pleased to have Brother Gault with them and hope he will come again.

Two nurses from the Sanitarium paid East Independence Group a visit Sunday morning, May 11, and made a brief talk in regard to Hospital Day, which was observed May 12. The visit from these sisters was very much appreciated, and it is hoped that they, as well as others, will find it convenient to visit this place often and help the Saints to become better acquainted with them, their work, and the needs of the Sanitarium.

On Saturday, May 10, the Willing Workers Club, which was recently organized, held a cooked food exchange at Chapman and Gray's grocery store. A neat little sum was realized which is to be used for building a new church at East Independence. One is needed very badly as it is rather difficult to take care of the congregation comfortably in the old building.

Another exchange will be held Saturday, May 24, at B. C. Harder's grocery store. The Saints solicit your patronage.

On the evening of May 20, at 8 o'clock, the young girls of East Independence are to have an ice cream social in the pasture of Brother and Sister Albert Thatcher, jr., across from the church building. The proceeds are to go toward the new church also. Everybody should come that possibly can and help the girls swell their funds.

National Hospital Day at Sanitarium

National Hospital Day was observed at the Independence Sanitarium May 12, when open house was held from 2 to 4 o'clock. The Patroness Society of the Sanitarium was in charge. Visitors were shown through the institution and refreshments were served. The mayor of Independence, accompanied by other city officials, made a tour of inspection of the Sanitarium.

Debate on Book of Mormon Map

A friendly debate on the Book of Mormon Map will be held beginning May 19, between F. F. Wipper and L. E. Hills. The sessions will be held four nights a week, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, for two consecutive weeks. Two hours each night will be devoted to the debate, each speaker having two half-hour speeches.

The debate will be held on the Campus if the weather permits and the crowds demand, otherwise it will be held in the Store Church. Charles F. Putnam will act as moderator for Brother Hills and J. W. Peterson for Brother Wipper.

There are two Book of Mormon Maps in question. Each speaker is to defend one map. The debate should prove interesting, especially to church members. Further announcement will be in local papers later.

Minstrel Show

A minstrel show was given in the dining hall of the Stone Church May 10 and May 12 to appreciative audiences. Many jokes of local color brought forth laughter as the names of well-known members were mentioned. The singing was good and several features made the program very acceptable. Proceeds from the performances will go toward the building of the gymnasium on the Campus.

Women's Department Secretary Ill

Mrs. Grace Morrison, secretary of the Department of Women, is at the Independence Sanitarium where she underwent a serious operation last week. She is recovering nicely, but it will be some time before she can give any attention to her work.

Sunday School Baseball League Opens Season

The opening games of the Independence Sunday School Baseball League were played on the Campus diamond Saturday afternoon, May 10. The season opened with two games, the Bar-Gar team defeating the Y. K. T. 17-1 and the Herald team defeating the I. X. L. 13-2. The public is invited to the games which will continue regularly every Saturday until the season closes.

LETTERS

Missionary Opportunities Reported Good in England, Holland, and Switzerland

From a Letter to Apostle Roy S. Budd

JERUSALEM, PALESTINE. Our trip has been very interesting and we have enjoyed seeing and getting in touch with England, Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Italy, Egypt, and Palestine. England, Holland, and Switzerland hold out the best opportunities for missionary work. Jerusalem is building up rapidly as small colonies are seen all around the main part of the city. The old city has a large stone wall around it which is about two and a half miles. About one half of the population live within the old city, while the other half are building homes and living outside the city wall. David's tower, or fort, within the old city wall is very interesting and shows how they used to do to protect themselves. Things are so different here that it is just as if we are in another world. This country has more rock than any country I have ever seen. The Ozark mountains with their rocks would not make a good beginning here.

Baptize Two in Jordan

We have been to Jordan and baptized two. We took a swim in the Dead Sea which is five or six times more salty than the ocean. One couldn't sink if he wanted to, but many drown therein as the feet will come up and the head will go down if one does not know how to swim. Brother Dan Sorden and wife are here. Brother and Sister Passman will leave with us about May 15, and will spend a few months in England. The Mansion House or Mission House built by them is a good building and well suited to our needs here.

We have a school here of about thirty pupils but it is different to what a school is in America. Some German, French, Arabic, and Hebrew are spoken as well as English, so you can imagine about how things go here. Brother Passman lectures and then either a Hebrew or Arab translates for him so the pupils can understand. Children in the public schools here read aloud and talk aloud, so you can guess the rest.

False Prophets

A man professing to be Christ is here; another claiming to be one of the "Two Prophets" of Revelation 11 is also here; another claims to be Abraham reincarnated; these with two live apostles give us a very interesting list.

None of these countries compare with the United States of America. Wars and rumors of wars are heard on every hand and one is not safe outside of a city. The Jews and Arabs are bitter enemies and often kill each other. Policemen and British soldiers are not safe here. Soldiers going outside the city use armored cars.

The early and latter rains supply water which must be collected in cisterns in order for the people to have water the rest of the year. The State of Missouri is so far ahead of this country one would think that Zion was already redeemed. Jews are coming here from different parts of the world and by the time they reach here they are so poor they can't get away, so Zion is increasing in population. Some claim that nine out of every ten children born here die young because of sickness and disease.

I hope that this letter will find you meeting with success in your work. It will take the mighty power of God to ever restore and make a Zion out of conditions here, and that is just what is promised.

J. F. CURTIS.

Preaches to Saints Who Have Not Heard Gospel for Ten Years

FRANKLIN, TEXAS, April 19.—I have just returned from a short visit to Wilson, Oklahoma, having been called to the bedside of my brother, B. T. Clevenger, of that city, who has been very near death's door. I am thankful he was much better when I left him.

While over there I had the pleasure to meet several Saints, some of whom had not heard a Latter Day Saint preacher in ten years. I preached twice for them while I was there and had a very good attendance each service, with several nonmembers present. They seemed to be very much interested in our message of the restored gospel. All the Saints in and around there could not attend because of measles being in some families.

These Saints are isolated and have never been visited by any missionary or elder before in that community. They are strong in the faith, looking, watching, and praying for some elder to come that way. They will gladly welcome any of our missionaries or elders that will visit them, and I believe much good can be done there. The principal faith of the community is that of the Holiness.

Wilson is an oil town about eighteen miles west of Ardmore, Oklahoma. Four families of Saints live there. Any elder or missionary desiring to visit them may write to C. R. Coldren, Wilson, Oklahoma, care of Center Oil Company, or J. R. Clevenger, Wilson, Oklahoma.

J. M. CLEVINGER.

Sandyville Branch Continues in Light of the Gospel

ACKWORTH, IOWA, May 5.—The Sandyville Branch is very much scattered and not many in numbers, but they are thankful for a place in which to hold Sunday school and church. Brother Norman Anderson, of Des Moines, is the missionary in charge and has been faithful in coming every two weeks to preach.

The Sunday school is held every Sunday, and social service every first Sunday of the month under the leadership of Brethren Fred Wells, Frank Robertson, and Joseph Knox.

There have been some new members added the last year. The branch is alive to the work and progressing nicely. Though few in number they claim the promise the Master left on record, and when they meet in services the Saints feel indeed that God is with them to bless their humble efforts in seeking to edify themselves and build up the work in this place.

Brother and Sister Frank Robertson have faithfully carried on the work here. Their constant zeal and strong determination to carry on the work at Sandyville has been the means of bringing some to obey the gospel. May they, with others who have labored so faithfully, be further rewarded by seeing the children of this place brought into the true church.

There is a great work to do. Brother Knox told the Saints last Sunday in his testimony, "We have nothing to be ashamed of when contending for this faith." Though the Saints are not in the majority, Christ was not either. What a privilege to know we are workers together with God! Like Moses and Aaron, who were leading the children of Israel out of Egyptian bondage, God fought their battle, so will he fight the battle for the Saints if they are faithful and follow his teachings in establishing Zion in these latter days.

The young people here are in good spiritual condition. Everyone bore testimony last Sunday, which was an inspiration and encouragement to all present. May the young people of the church arise and shine and feel down in their hearts that the Lord is pleased with their consecrated lives.

MRS. MABEL MORGAN.

Report Membership Gain in British Mission

LONDON, ENGLAND, April 16.—It is encouraging to note the number of baptisms within the past twelve months in this mission. Brother Richard Baldwin is to be credited with the greater part of the gains by baptism which occurred in the Northern, Midland, and Wales Districts.

There have been 57 gains by baptism in the Northern District; 27 in Midland; 4 in the Southern; and 20 in the District of Wales. There were 16 gains by transfers in the Northern District; 5 in the Midland; 1 in the Southern; and 6 in the District of Wales. There were 29 losses by transfers in the Northern District; 3 in Midland; 4 in the Southern; and 8 in the District of Wales. Deaths: 7 in the Northern District; 3 in Midland; 2 in the Southern; and 1 in the District of Wales. On December 31, 1922, the enrollment was: Northern District, 669; Midland, 255; Southern, 222; and District of Wales, 150. On December 31, 1923, there were: Northern District, 706; Midland, 281; Southern, 221; and District of Wales, 167.

All these statistics show that there were 37 gains in the Northern District for the year ending December 31, 1923; 26 gains in the Midland; 1 loss in the Southern; and 17 gains in the District of Wales.

For the whole of the British Isles there were 108 baptisms during the twelve months ending December 31, 1923; 28 gains by transfer; 44 losses by transfer; and 13 deaths. On December 31, 1922, there was a membership enrollment of 1,296, and on December 31, 1923, an enrollment of 1,375.

The total net gain therefore for the whole of the British Isles during the period was 79.

J. W. FOSTER, Deputy Recorder, British Isles.

In Memory of Bishop Charles A. Parkin

Inasmuch as it has pleased our Father in heaven to take from his home and our association our beloved brother, Bishop Charles A. Parkin, thus breaking pleasant ties of friendship and brotherhood made dear by many years of companionship:

Therefore be it resolved that in the parting of our esteemed brother the San Francisco Branch of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has lost a true and faithful friend, and earnest, devoted worker, one on whom we could call at any time for help, advice, and counsel;

That the general church has lost a tried and efficient minister, the community an honorable citizen, his wife a faithful and devoted husband. All who knew and associated with him have lost a friend;

Be it further resolved that these resolutions be spread upon and made a part of the minutes of the San Francisco Branch and a copy be sent to Sister Parkin as well as to the church papers for publication.

Most respectfully submitted this the twentieth day of March, nineteen hundred and twenty-four.

JOHN A. SAXE.

LOUIS B. SHIPPY.

ELMER E. HARTSOUGH.

Tells of Establishment of Gospel in Sutton-in-Ashfield, England

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD, NOTTS, ENGLAND, April 14.—Just a few lines to let you know how I love to read the pages of the HERALD to get light and knowledge of the work of God. How thankful I am to have heard and obeyed the gospel of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ!

Though I have had over twenty-one years now in this glorious work, the gospel is dearer and shines brighter and clearer to me to-day than ever before.

I am thankful the gospel was brought by our brother, W. Ecclestone, to the city of Nottingham, where I then lived. I can remember him trying with all heart and soul to raise a branch again in this city, but all seemed to fail. Several left the church to join the Utah Church, two died, leaving only myself.

Our brother need no longer feel sad nor look with disappointment on his work in this city, for I have never regretted the day when I went down into the waters of baptism with him. I remembered it not long ago and went to my heavenly Father in prayer to thank him for sending the gospel to me and mentioned this brother's name. As I did so the Spirit of the Master came upon me, which I shall never forget. I want that brother to know that I have received from the Master something which will comfort me all the days of my life.

Brother Ecclestone's work in Notts has not been in vain. When first I saw the branch here there were about five members; now there are fifty. We own the land and have put a building upon it, so you see his work is continued by those he brought into the fold.

I received my patriarchal blessing from Brother R. Baldwin while he was here in Sutton.

J. H. SIMPSON.

District Officers Visit Ridgetown Branch

RIDGETOWN, ONTARIO, May 4.—A fine visit from Elders R. T. Brown and Duncan Clatworthy, president and first vice president of Chatham District, was enjoyed here recently. Their counsel and spiritual advice were appreciated.

These brethren should do much good for the district if they have the support of the Saints. They are earnest and have the spirit of kindness. May God bless their efforts.

C. H. JONES.

Young People Will Meet at Onset

Have you long desired to attend a convention of young people, especially a convention presided over by President F. M. McDowell?

Have you longed to spend your vacation on beautiful Cape Cod, so appropriately called, "The Nation's Playground," and to enjoy the salt-water bathing, and the cool sea breezes?

If you have, then come to the Young People's Convention at Onset, Massachusetts, from July 26 to August 3.

The mornings will be spent in special classes taking up the problems of the young people of to-day. One of the most important features will be a demonstration of the Junior Church.

The afternoons will be given over to recreation, such as swimming, boating, tennis, volley ball, baseball, etc.

In the evenings there will be preaching, sometimes varied by special musical or dramatic programs.

It is an opportunity no one will want to miss. The convention is to be a feature of the reunion which begins July 1, and lasts until Labor Day, with special services from July 26 to August 10.

Don't forget the date! Everyone is invited to the Onset Young People's Convention beginning July 26.

E. L. TRAYER, Chairman of Committee.

Rock Island and Davenport Branches Join in Mothers' Day Service at Moline, Illinois

From a Letter to the First Presidency

MOLINE, ILLINOIS, May 5.—The last week has been spent in special services at Moline Branch. The attendance was fair, but from the interest shown last night it would appear that the attendance will be better this week.

I occupied at Moline last night, and Brother Curtis at Rock Island. Several came to me at the close of the service and said they enjoyed the sermon very much, and one lady said she did not want to miss any more of these special meetings.

There has been quite an increase in attendance and activity in the Moline Branch since they have changed their location. At a business meeting early last evening, the branch voted to borrow $1,000 to make some necessary improvements on this new property, and there seems to be a determination on the part of most of the membership to see this thing through. They seem to be proud of their new purchase and are anxious to see the water and sewer installed, and the basement completed. This property as it stands now cost them a little less than $2,100. They could put $1,500 or $2,000 improvements on the property and still have a cheap property.

We had a very successful all-day meeting at Rock Island church on Easter Sunday, in which the Moline Branch participated. And next Sunday we are to have an all-day meeting at the Moline church, in commemoration of Mothers' Day, in which both Rock Island and Davenport Branches will participate, all services being dispensed with at those two places in order for them to spend the day at Moline.

E. R. DAVIS.

Twenty-Five Baptized at Jenks, Oklahoma

JENKS, OKLAHOMA, May 7.—Why not build as we go? This meeting, which has lasted just six weeks in a new place where we never had preached a sermon before, has resulted in twenty-five baptisms to date and a prospect for that many more at least.

We have been assisted nobly by singers of other churches of the town who deem it an honor to come and be asked to sing. Saints from Tulsa and Sperry have also assisted in the music.

This point is only ten miles from Tulsa and can be taken care of by the priesthood from that place. We have organized a Sunday school and put Brother Johnnie Smith in charge. He is a young man who should develop into a very useful man in the church.

I came to this place at the request of Sister F. H. Waller who has been alone in her faith here, so far as she knew, until I began this meeting when we found two more sisters whose husbands did not belong to the church. One of them, however, has been baptized in this meeting.

An affirmative gospel is the thing that builds. If we organize our efforts and stay long enough in a place we are sure to build.

HUBERT CASE.

MISCELLANEOUS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.
 Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

Two-Day Meetings

London District will hold the following one- and two-day meetings: Stratford, May 24 and 25; Waterford, June 8; Rostock, June 21 and 22; Saint Marys, July 26 and 27; Mitchell, August 10; Delhi, August 24; Simcoe, August 31; Corinth, September 14; Saint Thomas, October 4 and 5. Saturday services will begin at 8 p. m. Sunday services will commence with prayer service at 9 a. m., and continue with preaching at 11 a. m., 2.30 and 7 p. m. Frank Gray, J. L. Burger, H. A. Koehler, committee.

Kirtland Young People's Convention

Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, July 4 to 6. We invite the young people of the surrounding districts to join with us and make this young people's convention a real success. The program for Friday will be provided by the community of Kirtland and we should be glad to join in with them to make Independence Day a great success. On Saturday and Sunday inspirational and educational services will be held. Meals will be provided in the Kirtland auditorium. Tents will be provided for the three nights at $1. Send orders for the same to Robert Miller, 3355 West Eighty-sixth Street, Cleveland, Ohio. Come and spend this season with Saints and friends, and have an enjoyable and spiritual time. T. G. Neville, president.

Requests for Prayers

Sister Margret Hence, of Dinuba, California, desires the prayers of the Saints. She has been very sick for several months and desires that those who can fast on May 18 for her recovery.

Reunion Notices

Spokane, at Sawyer, Idaho, June 20 to 29. Tents: 10 by 12, $5.50. Full-sized bed springs, 75 cents. Try to have your order in by June 10. Please let me know when you are coming and how many to expect that a place may be reserved for your tent. There will be hundreds attend this reunion and you cannot afford to miss it. Charles C. Crabb, secretary-treasurer, Box 627, Lewiston, Idaho.

Southwestern Kansas, at Island Park. We are planning a bigger and better reunion this year than last. Meals will be served cafeteria style. Meals and tents at the lowest possible prices. For information write T. S. Williams, 1306 South Market, Wichita, Kansas.

Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24. The grounds are wonderful, to say the least. Everything is very convenient and sanitary, just an ideal place for a reunion. We desire at this time to extend a cordial invitation to all to attend our young people's reunion. Plan to come the full ten days. We are hoping to make this the best ever held. It surely depends upon us. We need the cooperation of the Saints. Come and worship with us. The meals will be furnished free. Tent prices will be published in the HERALD later. Get your order in early. Mildred Mitchell, secretary.

Northeastern Missouri, at Macon, June 21 and 22. Send all reports to William C. Chapman, Route 3, Higbee, Missouri, by June 15. William C. Chapman.

Conference Notices

Southeastern Illinois, at Marion, June 7 and 8. Sister Sparling, the leader of the Department of Women, will be present and some time will be given to that department. Also we desire as many of the priesthood to be present as possible, that they may become better organized in the work of the district. A priesthood meeting will be one of the features of the conferenc. A. H. Warren, secretary.

Northeastern Kansas, at Atchison, May 24 and 25. Prayer meeting at 9 a. m., business meeting at 10.30 on Saturday.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 Death of Doctor G. Stanley Hall ..... 457
 Practical Theology ..... 457
 Conference on Social Problems ..... 457
 A Parent's Responsibility ..... 459

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Broadcasting the Gospel, by Bishop Benjamin R. McGuire .... 460
 Unlocking the Door to Freedom ..... 465
 Science and Common Sense ..... 466

CHURCH NEWS ..... 469
 LETTERS ..... 476
 J. F. Curtis—J. M. Clevenger—Mrs. Mabel Morgan—J. W. Foster—John A. Saxe, Louis B. Shippy, Elmer E. Hartsough—J. H. Simpson—C. H. Jones—E. L. Traver—E. R. Davis—Hubert Case.

MISCELLANEOUS ..... 479
 RADIO ..... 480

The local priesthood are urged to report all their labor for the last quarter to the district clerk, F. G. Hedrick, 714 Parallel Street, Atchison, Kansas, at least ten days prior to the convening of conference. This in addition to reports to district president, that the reports may be tabulated and arranged for conference. Samuel Twombly, president.

Arkansas, at Bald Knob, Saturday, May 17. This will be a special session of conference for this district. Object to arrange to have the next conference at the same place and during the time of reunion, also to hear report of committee on purchasing tent. This is by call of the district president. Lyda Ziegenhorn Weiner, secretary. A. E. Ziegenhorn, president.

Winnipeg, at Saint James, Manitoba, June 28. Conference convenes at the church, 247 Kensington Street, at 3 p. m. Saturday. We trust the Saints in the district will make a special effort to attend this conference. Mrs. Wellington Wilson, secretary.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)
 Spokane, at Sawyer, Idaho, June 20 to 29.
 North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29 (388).
 Northern Wisconsin, June 27 to July 6 (481).
 Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (359).
 Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (335).
 Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
 Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 (215).
 Erie Beach, August 1 to 11 (167, 263, 287).
 Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (335).
 Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 14 to 24 (119, 333).
 Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, August 15 to 24 (215).
 Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Our Departed Ones

MAYNARD.—Edward F. Maynard was born August 23, 1871. Baptized October 16, 1904. Ordained priest September 6, 1914. Died February 26, 1924, at Viola, Illinois, following a long illness with cancer. Leaves wife, five sons, and four daughters. Three children preceded him. Funeral sermon by E. R. Davis. Interment in Viola Cemetery.

SALISBURY.—William R. Salisbury was born in Cass County, Michigan, December 24, 1849. Baptized September 5, 1881. Married Lydia L. Skinner February 20, 1882. Died in the city hospital at Des Moines, Iowa, of acute heart disease, April 18, 1924. Funeral from the Saints' church, Auburn, Iowa. Sermon by Charles E. Butterworth. Interment in Cottonwood Cemetery. Leaves seven sons and one daughter. His wife and one son preceded him.

RULEY.—Charles Granville Ruley was born February 12, 1845, in Doddridge County, West Virginia. Married Victoria Young August 30, 1866. Baptized in 1881, and were among the first to obey the gospel in that neighborhood. Ordained elder soon after baptism and placed in charge of the Cabin Run Branch. Moved to Parkersburg, West Virginia, a few years ago. Died March 25, 1924, after a ten months' sickness following paralysis. Funeral from the home of his daughter, Sister D. S. Shotts. Sermon by E. D. Finken. Interment in Mount Olive Cemetery. Leaves wife and ten children.

(Continued on page 480.)

K F F V

Broadcast from the Graceland College Radio Studio, Lamoni, Iowa. Wave length, three hundred and sixty meters.

SUNDAY, MAY 18, 1924

6.30 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Sacred songs by mixed quartet consisting of:
Miss Lena Wells, soprano.
Miss Josephine Smith, alto.
Mr. Evan Fry, tenor.
Mr. Fields Jones, bass.
Mrs. Katherine Robinson Wolfe, accompanist.
Solo: "Teach me to live," Walter Rolse.
By Miss Smith.
Anthem: Sung by mixed quartet.
Solo: "Evensong," John Prindle Scott.
By Mr. Fry.
Sermon by Elder J. A. Gunsolley.

TUESDAY, MAY 20, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical program furnished by the Graceland Conservatory of Music.

THURSDAY, MAY 22, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Educational program.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, MAY 18, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.
Prayer.
Anthem: "Fear not ye, O Israel!" Roberts.
Soprano Solo: Selected.
Sung by Mrs. Corrine Haines French.
Sermon: "Thy kingdom come."
By Elder Walter Wayne Smith.
Hymn.

SUNDAY, MAY 18, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.
Prayer.
A hymn concert:
Conducted by Elder Harold C. Burgess.
Sermon: "The bond of peace."
By Apostle John W. Rushton.
Hymn.

TUESDAY, MAY 20, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Vocal Duet: "Calm as the night," Goetze.
Sung by Mrs. and Mrs. L. A. Woodside.
Piano and Violin Duet: "A smile will go a long, long way."
Played by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones.
Baritone Solo: "Give a man a horse he can ride," O'Hara.
Sung by Mr. Woodside.
Mezzo-soprano Solo: "You're my sunshine."
Sung by Mrs. Woodside.
Talk: "Bible stories."
By Eunice Winn Smith.
Vocal Duet: "Nearest and dearest" (A Tuscan folk song), Caracciolo.
Sung by Mr. and Mrs. Woodside.
Baritone Solo: "A dream," Bartlett.
Sung by Mr. Woodside.
Piano and Violin Duet: "The west, a nest, and you."
Played by Mr. and Mrs. Jones.
Duet: "Somewhere a voice is calling," Tate.
Sung by Mr. and Mrs. Woodside.

THURSDAY, MAY 22, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

The Annual May Program of the Independence Music Club.
Piano Duo: "Waltz paraphrase," Chopin-Schuett.
Mrs. Jeanette Kelley Craig.
Mrs. Laura Kelley Green.

Contralto Solo: (a) "The isle," Rachmaninoff.
(b) "Schwer Liedt auf dem Herven," Goering Thomas.
By Mrs. Alice Mae Burgess.
Piano Solo: "Rondo capriccioso," Mendelssohn.
By Miss Florence Koehler.
Soprano Solo: (a) "The wind's in the south to-day," Scott.
(b) "Sing me to sleep," Greene.
(c) "Will o' the wisp," Spross.
By Mrs. Alfred Hitchcock.
Piano Solo: "Allegro appassionata," Saint Saens.
By Mrs. Pauline Becker Etzenhouser.
Soprano Solo: (a) "Spirit flower," Campbell-Tipton.
(b) "Down in the forest," Ronald.
(c) "The kiss" (Il-Bacio), Arditi.
By Mrs. Minetta Newton Isaacs.
Vocal Trio: (a) "Thy beaming eyes," MacDowell.
(b) "Lindy Lou," Strickland.
(c) "Big brown bear," Mani-Zucca.
Mrs. Ona Goodrich.
Miss Helen Bootman.
Mrs. Alice Burgess.
Soprano Solo: (a) "La serenata," S. Paolo Tosti.
(b) "Rook-a-bye train," Akers.
(c) "Take joy home," Bassett.
By Mrs. Nina Smith.
Piano Solo: (a) "Encourant," Godard.
(b) "Golliwog's cakewalk," Debussy.
(c) "Chopin waltz, Opus 42."
By Mrs. Neal Thomason.

OUR DEPARTED ONES

(Continued from page 479.)

PAULSON.—Nels Paulson was born April 3, 1857. Married Mattie Forrest in 1886, who died seven years ago. Married Jennie Freeman in 1919. Baptized thirty-five years ago, and later ordained deacon, serving in this capacity in the Los Angeles Branch for eighteen years. Died April 11, 1924, at Whittier, California. Funeral from White Undertaking Parlors. Sermon by N. T. Chapman, assisted by H. M. Savage. Leaves wife and three children: Lloyd, of Denver, Colorado; Mamie Starks, of San Francisco; and Nettie Carmichael, of Lamoni, Iowa.

WEBBER.—A. J. Webber was born at Marcellus, Michigan, March 27, 1868. Baptized June 6, 1897. Ordained teacher, and later to the office of priest. Married Grace Lloyd November 12, 1899. Died on his fifty-sixth birthday. Leaves wife; two sons, Lloyd and Leland; and three daughters, Marcene, Lucile, and Marian, all of whom are at home. Funeral sermon by Amos Berve.

MARKS.—Myrta Florence Hance was born at Pecatonica, Illinois, May 5, 1868. Died October 28, 1923. Leaves husband, John M. Marks; a daughter, Sister Rue Wilcox; and an aged and blind mother, Sister Amanda Hance. Funeral from the Congregational church. Sermon by J. L. Cooper, assisted by O. A. McDowell.

KILGORE.—Clara E. Leland was born near Lanark, Illinois, July 29, 1855. Married Robert E. Kilgore, January 12, 1887. Died at her home in Pecatonica, Illinois, April 4, 1924. Leaves one sister, Jennie Johnson, of De Kalb, Illinois. Sermon by J. L. Cooper, assisted by O. A. McDowell and the Congregational pastor of De Kalb, Illinois.

KAHLER.—Barbara L. Bell was born March 7, 1849, at Macomb, New York. Married Lloyd W. Kahler, August 29, 1869. The home of these two sheltered the missionaries for over forty years. Died at Wilmington, Illinois, March 31, 1924. Leaves husband, and one son, Elber L. Funeral sermon by J. L. Cooper, assisted by E. D. Rogers and the Presbyterian minister of Wilmington.

FOSTER.—Robert Allen Foster was born in Pennsylvania February 14, 1860. Baptized February 29, 1920. Died at Phenix, Arizona, at the age of sixty-four years, two months, and two days. Had suffered from cancer for fourteen years. Funeral in charge of F. C. Coberly. Sermon by Jesse R. Johnson. Interment in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

OEHRING.—Chester Charles Oehring, son of Oscar and Fannie Oehring, was born at Meadow Grove, Nebraska, October 23, 1902. Baptized in 1913. Died of pneumonia at his home in Lamar, Missouri, April 9, 1924. Leaves wife, Flossie; father, mother, and one sister, all of Lamar. Funeral from the home in charge of O. C. Karlstrom. Interment in Lamar Cemetery.

CREASY.—Lulu Creasy was born May 26, 1888, at Oakland, California. Died at Tancred, California, April 14, 1924. Leaves a little daughter, Lulu Jane, also father, mother, two brothers, four sisters, and her aged grandmother, Sister Hanna Brown. Funeral sermon by W. H. Dawson. Interment in Odd Fellow's Cemetery at Sacramento, California. She was a member of the Oakland Branch.

ADMIRE.—Jesse Admire was born in Brown County, Indiana, January 6, 1848. Joined the Baptist church while young, but later said that he had no church preference. Married Mary D. Furgason in September, 1872. Died at Trenton, Missouri, April 23, 1924. Leaves wife, three children, one brother, one sister, one half sister, eighteen grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. His children are: John, of Lavonia, Missouri; Ira, and Mrs. Thomas Archibald, of Trenton, Missouri. An infant child and a daughter, Mrs. Ella Ewing, have preceded him. Sermon by G. W. Jenkins. Interment in Trenton Cemetery.

NEWCOM.—Cashus William Newcom was born in Clark County, Missouri, August 28, 1856. When a small boy he moved to Iowa where he grew to manhood. Married Mary Jane Case March 20, 1879, who died December 29, 1918. Moved to South Dakota in 1900. Baptized August 22, 1909. Died at his home in Winner, South Dakota, April 19, 1924. Funeral in charge of Carol Winsy. Sermon by W. A. Smith. Leaves six children: Harvey C., Cassie Alma, Mary Mae, W. J., Garnett, and Eunice. Clarinda Ellen preceded him.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, the principles indeed; and ye shall know the truth shall make you free."

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

Entered as weekly at In at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued ouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of post-or in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, May 21, 1924

Number 21

ED AL

Jan 25
C O Hudson
1400 W Maple
Independence Mo

Special Features of the Young People's Convention

"Elijah" to be given at Convention.

The Lamoni-Graceland Oratorio Society, the largest regular choir in Iowa, will give the "Elijah" on the evenings of June 5 and 6 for the Convention. Those expecting to attend will be pleased to learn that Mr. Arch Bailey, Kansas City's popular baritone, has been secured for the Elijah role. Mr. Bailey has spent the past winter in the studios of Jean de Reszke and Oscar Seagle in Nice, France, and has coached oratorios with Ben Davis and Von Zur Muehlen in London. Before going to Europe, however, Mr. Bailey had already established himself as a highly artistic singer. Music lovers, and especially vocal students, should welcome this opportunity of hearing an artist of this type.

Mr. Eugene Christy, of the Horner Institute, Kansas City, Missouri, will sing the tenor parts. Mr. Christy needs no introduction to our young people as his beautiful voice and artistic style are well known to them. Miss Margaret Armstrong, head of the voice department at Graceland, and Mrs. C. E. Wight, of Lamoni, have been secured for the soprano and contralto solos.

The oratorio society has a membership of about one hundred and fifteen voices, which will be ably supported by the Lamoni-Graceland orchestra under the direction of Mr. Joseph Anthony. The entire performance is being directed by Miss Mabel Carlile, of the Graceland faculty.

Convention visitors should take notice that they may secure reserved seats for twenty-five cents, the price of admission for others being fifty cents. In order to give out-of-town guests the same advantages that the Lamoni people have, it has been decided to reserve seats for either night by mail. Reservations will be made in the order in which they arrive at Brother McDowell's office at Graceland College. The seat sale will be thrown open to the general public on June 2, so mail your twenty-five cents to Brother McDowell's office before that date and your ticket will be given you when you enroll. It is urged that all Convention visitors attend the "Elijah" on Thursday evening, June 5, if possible, since a social event is planned for Friday evening.

Be sure to state which evening you expect to attend.

The Status of Women in the Church

To ask, What is the place of women in the church? is perhaps an indelicate way of inquiring as to their actual status.

Men have stubbornly insisted upon "placing" women for many years, and the place in which women usually found themselves as a result was in the home.

There is no one who will challenge the right of women to function in the capacity of home-maker, but there are those who will strongly object to her right to function in any other capacity, especially if it be outside the home.

For years women never dared to enter industry and compete against man. Partly by circumstances, partly by her own initiative, she then stepped forth from the confines of her home and entered the business world. She has definitely established a place for herself beyond dispute in the field of industry. Her capacity and ability for work has a market value—and man bows to the power of money.

In the field of politics woman fought her way to the top. Her pioneers in this country have even reached the sacred portals of the Senate, not for long to be sure, but long enough to break the bonds of senseless tradition. She has the vote, and the seriousness with which she wields the ballot testifies to the permanency of her acquisition.

Woman has made a home, she has worked in industry, she has participated in politics, and she has done these efficiently, gloriously. What has she done in the church?

The place of woman in the history of the Christian church shows a gradual increase in her responsibility in spiritual affairs, but by far the least progress has been made in this field. Man still remains the almost undisputed custodian of spiritual life.

Focusing our attention upon the activities of the women within our own church, we find them strong in the support of this gospel, and more faithful perhaps in attendance upon meetings than the men. The men acknowledge the women's organization into a church department—what for? To hold bazaars and give suppers. How long are the women to allow themselves to be confined to these functions, to be limited to such a status in the church?

Again, no one will deny the right of women to occupy in this capacity, but who, likewise, would say that her place in the church is to make money? There are those who will say it. But there are others who will say that the women have a broader field.

The Department of Women as an organization should invade every field of life in which a woman finds herself. It should be concerned with education, government, religion, industry, and the home. The bazaar and the social are but one phase of the responsibility and opportunity of women.

In the church as it was in industry and politics, women will elevate their status by doing so themselves. Man will never be gracious enough to grant the privilege. He will gladly recognize it when forced to do so.

The question of priesthood is not one for us to consider. If women ever hold the priesthood it will be by the act of God who determines such things for us. But men and women are spiritual equals. They are "joint heirs of the grace of God." Woman's status in the church is what she has made it. Her future status is what she will make it. She has the privilege and the opportunity. It is hers to take.

An International Convention

One of the special features of the Young People's Convention to be held at Lamoni, June 5-15, will be an International Program. The purpose of this program will be to develop international spirit as an aid in the establishment of the brotherhood of man. We want each foreign country represented, preferably by some one born in that country. Here is where you can help us. If any reader of the HERALD knows of some one planning to attend the Convention, who was born in any foreign country, we would appreciate having them send to the undersigned at once the name and address of such party or parties.

Do not lay aside the HERALD and forget about this, but rather attend to it at once. This is where you can help even though it is not possible for you to attend.

F. M. McDOWELL. LAMONI, IOWA.

"Every American citizen is entitled to a liberal education. Without this there is no guarantee for the permanence of free institutions, no hope of perpetuating self-government."—President Coolidge.

A Study of the American Home

A "chair of divorce," according to some newspapers, has been established in the University of California. In reality it is a course added to the curriculum for the purpose of scientifically studying the modern American home. The full account appears in the New York Times in an article, "Science and sociology take up divorce evil."

So alarming have grown the statistics on divorce that it was thought by the university authorities to be of sufficient importance to introduce into the curriculum for investigation the subject of the home and its present-day problems. Ten years ago there was one divorce for every twelve marriages. Today it is seven to one. Of all the cities in the United States, San Francisco probably holds the highest divorce rate, says the article. For the year ending June 30, 1923, one in every two marriages ended in divorce. The exceptional figures at the other end of the scale show the District of Columbia with one divorce to every 35.8 marriages. New York State is next in line with one divorce in every 22.6 marriages. The highest divorce rate is reached by the States of Montana, with one divorce to every 4.3 marriages; Wyoming, with one divorce to every 3.9 marriages; and Oregon, with one divorce to every 2.6 marriages. Nevada is in a class by herself, having had more divorces in the year 1922 than marriages.

The investigation to be carried out by the western university is in the Extension Division, and will be conducted by Miss Mary Burt Messer, a sociological investigator of Washington and New York. Professor L. J. Richardson, director, said regarding the course:

There is scarcely a problem in the State with whose solution the university, through its Extension Division, is not more or less concerned. We go into labor union halls to conduct university classes on such subjects as wages and arbitration. We have put an expert in abnormal psychology at the disposal of a group of physicians, judges, nurses, and others dealing with abnormal types. We are conducting university classes in our prisons at San Quentin and Folsom. The problem of the disintegrating family is as serious a problem as any of the above mentioned, if not more. Should the university shun it simply because the subject of divorce happens to be connected in the public mind with sensationalism? I don't think it is logical.

Factors contributing to the disintegration of the home are many and diverse, according to Miss Messer. The economic conditions have tended to draw women away from the home, also interest in public affairs. These are not necessarily evils, but they present different problems to be solved. Old adjustments are no longer suitable to changed conditions. Miss Messer continues:

DEPARTMENTAL

Sacrifice

"Behold this is a day of sacrifice."—Doctrine and Covenants.

The above text was brought vividly to our mind by a letter received to-day from one of the missionaries, which reveals a wonderful desire to sacrifice. He says in part, "I am sticking to my resolution. No luxuries this year and no meal over twenty-five cents when I buy it."

Such a spirit and determination of self-denial in the interest of the cause of Christ I am sure will bring a thrill of appreciation to all who truly love the great latter-day work. Can we match this and give God's work the benefit of our sacrifices from now till June 30? If we can I am sure the joy that comes to this missionary will be shared by us.

In gospel bonds,
BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE, Presiding Bishop.

I am not making these indictments against the home with a view of discrediting it. These are things to which we must no longer be blind. We must come into clearness about the home. We must know what it has ceased to represent, how much of it has ceased to function, and why.

There is a universal call for a restatement of the aims and ideals of the home and for a widening of the horizon in the handling and consideration of the question of marriage. The home, as it now exists, is a feudal institution, in most cases, that has survived right up to date. It is narrow and insufficient to the needs of the modern woman. While sensationalism, hysteria, and lightmindedness generally play no small part in our divorce chaos, it is equally true that, in many instances, divorce is the only means of escape from the feudal hangovers and tyranny of the home as it has been brought down through the centuries.

When asked what she thought would be the basis for the future successful home, Miss Messer said:

There is one immutable basis upon which home has been founded in the past and will be founded in the future—it is love. The modern home must be based upon love. But it is essential that this love be interpreted in modern terms. We cannot have twentieth century ideas in industry and medieval ideas in our home.

One thing stands out clearly in modern marriage. It has lost to a very large extent the religious authority which served to cement it together in the past. That loss calls for a substitute, and the substitute must be idealism. If marriage will no longer be looked upon as a divinely ordained institution, neither must it be reduced to the basis of sheer partnership that can be dissolved with no more thought than a commercial partnership is dissolved. There is nothing so bleak as a home without a spiritual regard for each other on the part of the parties contracting it.

It is not a task for one person, or even one institution—this putting the modern family on new foundations. But a beginning must be made somewhere. We cannot cure a disease without first diagnosing it. And that is what my course on the family purposes to do. It is to be a reciprocal course. On the one hand, the instructor is to share with his students the history of the family through its various developments right down to the present time. On the other hand, we shall endeavor to get from our association with the people a first-hand impression of what they look for in the home and miss, of what the modern home should be.

In spite of woman's rush into industry, more women are still engaged in home making than there are human beings engaged in any other kind of work. Woman in industry has held the attention of sociologists and economists to an unusual degree. Why should not the woman in the home get the same cooperation from our savants that her sister in the factory gets? It is estimated that fifteen-sixteenths of all women marry. We have built up an immense educational system for women in factories. Is the woman who goes into home making deserving of less help and consideration in her problems and in her struggles?

The Urge of the Soul

By George W. Andrews

Reprinted from "The Kansas Teacher"

The songs that I can never sing,
The winging thoughts beyond all speech,
They fill my soul, and longings bring
For wondrous things beyond my reach.

When birds sing in great forests old
So sweetly that my eyes grow dim,
'Tis then a voice doth speak out bold
Of things beyond the world's far rim.

The red and gold of sunsets rare,
The velvet beauty of the night,
But tell of things unearthly fair
To bless the soul's ennobled sight.

A thousand voices urge me on,
In bud and bloom, in field and sea;
Each sunset, each empurpled dawn
But hints of what I yet shall be.

Do You Appreciate

1. Inspirational Sermons
2. Educational Round Tables
3. Spiritual Prayer Services

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

Jerusalem to the Plain of Jericho

A travelogue by Paul M. Hanson, written at Jerusalem, Palestine, April 21, 1924.

Traveling from Jerusalem to the Plain of Jericho and returning in one day can now be done in comfort by automobile. Not many years ago most travelers went by horses and carriage, and it required at least two days to make the journey, and not much time was permitted for sight seeing.

Early in the morning of April 5, at the unearthly hour of 3.15 a. m., we were awakened, as we frequently had been before, by a Jewish town crier, whose daily duty was to arouse all sleeping Hebrews in a colony not far from our lodgings to go to their respective synagogues for prayer.

Party Leaves for Plain of Jericho

Our party, consisting of twelve persons, was ready to start at 6 a. m. This early time was planned so the whole day might be at our disposal.

The driver of our autobus was a Hebrew, who wore a sort of white shawl about his head, called by the Arabs Kafiveh, and held in place by two coils of dark rope made of camel's hair, a common form of headgear used by the Bedouins. This made a fine disguise. Making the trip on Saturday explains why this Jew was peculiarly attired, and at the same time reveals in part the religious situation in and around Jerusalem; one of Israel known to be thus breaking the Sabbath would be marked and probably boycotted by his orthodox brethren.

Moving about in Palestine in places not frequented by many is accompanied by some danger. We were advised to leave at home such valuables as were in our possession, as a number of tourists on their way to outlying places of interest had been recently robbed. The occasional sight of British armored motor cars round about the country is reassuring, especially to travelers.

In going from Jerusalem the road leads along the north wall of the old city, across the Kedron valley, close by the Garden of Gethsemane, near which is a Jewish cemetery where numberless flat headstones cover the ground, then up and around and over the southern shoulder of the Mount of Olives. From this ridge streams run to the east and to the west. Here Jerusalem is lost to view, and we begin to descend.

Already on the road are camels and donkeys, herds of sheep and goats, and men and women on their way to the city's markets. There are no vehicles. Everything is carried, such as vegetable produce, on the backs of the animals and on the heads of the women. Perhaps it is the carrying of loads in this manner that gives to the feminine sex a noticeable erectness.

Arrive at Bethany

In a few minutes we arrive at Bethany, on the left side of the road, where Mary and Martha lived, and where Lazarus was raised from the dead. Round about on the hills and in the valleys are olive trees in full and lustrous leaf. The small fields in the valleys and on the hillsides, where such can be cultivated, are covered with growing wheat and barley. Such industry as is required to terrace the hills with stone, thus holding the soil and forming little inclosures and lots where grapes, figs, and olives grow, is beyond the power of many to imagine who have not seen such achievements.

This is the best time of year to visit Palestine; the country's most pleasing apparel being worn in the spring.

The day is clear, not even a fleecy cloud obstructs the sunshine. The rainy season comprising the "latter rains" has about come to a close, and it is doubtful if further showers will fall, though more rain is needed to advance the growing grain and other crops.

Our road leads eastward through the wilderness of Judea, not a wooded district, but a region consisting of a succession of naked hills of mountainous character, through valleys, gorges, and here and there along steep hillsides. The highway, built a few years ago by the British, has long stretches of outside supporting stone walls and many extremely sharp curves, but as a whole it is inviting in character, the best road in Palestine.

Our car rolls along through deep ravines, between grey heights, and among the rocky hills which fall before us for about fifteen miles, like steps, to the Plain of Jericho.

On the hills a greenish tinge is plainly perceptible, but most of the way after leaving Bethany the herbage is so scant sheep or goats are seldom or never seen. There are no houses. Silence reigns. Gladdening the eye are wild flowers of deep and rich color along the roadside, and in certain localities they are seen in amazing profusion. But painful is the desolation of the wild, stony, bare, and gloomy region.

Nearly unbroken is the descent to the plain, and the brakes are almost continuously in use—one is reminded of the Pike's Peak auto highway.

Good Samaritan Inn

About halfway, to the left and adjoining the road, is an old stone building with a large back yard inclosed by a stone wall, known as the "Good Samaritan Inn." Here refreshments and shelter are provided for the passer-by. The country round about is similar to what we have passed through. This road in the days of Christ was undoubtedly traveled by many on their way from Jericho to Jerusalem. It is possible that here or near by stood the inn to which our Lord referred when speaking of the good Samaritan. Such a place of retreat could well have existed for the convenience and shelter of weary travelers. Jesus himself may have rested hereabouts in going from Jerusalem to the Jordan valley or in returning. To a traveler in the Holy Land, with many conditions as they were in Bible times confronting him on all sides, it is very evident that Jesus drew from life what was well known to the people, in the impressing of his truth upon their hearts and minds.

A cool wind sprang up during the night, so instead of finding oppressive heat on nearing the plain, the air is balmy and most agreeable.

The glimmering waters of the Dead Sea are not so near as they seem, another illusion due to the transparency of the air. Because of the atmosphere being so rarified, one can see clearly objects at a great distance. All around is the crystal clearness of desert air. Sound carries a remarkably long way; in this land persons can be heard talking with each other a surprising distance from one point to another.

It is pleasant before leaving the hills to see in the desolate and almost barren plain the long strip of green verdure along the banks of the Jordan as it winds its way to the Dead Sea. The river flows in the midst of the valley which is about fourteen miles wide. Farthest to the east are the pinkish mountains of Moab, with their deep ravines and clefts that are visible to the naked eye.

A Band of Armed Bedouins

As we enter the plain we meet a band of wild looking, armed Bedouins from beyond the Jordan. One of our number, by the name of Curtis, upon seeing them near, quietly remarked: "It looks as if we are in for it," but they part to each side of the road, and we are not molested.

I wondered afterward if they saw the headgear of our driver.

The valley is an interesting geological phenomenon; thirteen hundred feet below the level of the Mediterranean.

A few small shrubs, stunted trees, and thistles are about the only vegetation.

The Shore of the Dead Sea

Standing upon the shore of the Dead Sea we look upon the most remarkable sea of salt water in the world. Before us is a body of clear, blue water under a blue sky, and bordering it on the east and on the west are precipitous brown-tinged mountains. It is about forty-five miles long and ten miles wide. In it there is no life. The northern shore rises only a few feet above the water, and is covered with pebbles and a little drift wood.

To the southeast Mount Nebo, from which Moses looked out upon the Promised Land, is pointed out to us.

The desolation all around reminds one of the past, of the fiat of God executed upon the cities of the plain. Somewhere, not far away, possibly where we stand, Sodom and Gomorrah were situated.

The sea has no outlet. About twenty-five per cent of the water is salt. From the Jordan River comes an immense volume emptying into it, but this is taken up in evaporation.

I was at first reluctant to bathe in the water, because it felt slightly oily. But how quickly my impression was changed! Here a treat awaits everyone who can swim. The water gradually but quickly runs deep; hence one should have at least a slight acquaintance with water. Suddenly a surprise comes—it is impossible to sink; expel all of one's breath and still one floats like a cork on the water. Elder Harry Passman, J. F. Curtis, and I reveled in the briny liquid. With breath entirely expelled from the lungs one can lift up hands and feet from the water. One can simply lie down on the surface and rest; no need to paddle, except as he chooses. After bathing, a thin white coating remains on the body where the water is not carefully rubbed off.

On the Road to Jericho

Jericho is ten miles north of the Dead Sea. Before noon we are on our way to the Jordan River, which is six miles to the east of Jericho.

A few thorn trees attract attention. There is no grass. Now and again we cross the bed of a stream, along which it can be seen water rushes when rain falls. There are singular formations of land, deep seams, cones, and mounds of pyramidal shape, yellowish in appearance, formed by the softer earth being washed away by heavy rains.

When I was in the Holy Land before, the river, due to much rain, was a great sheet of water covering a considerable portion of the valley; this time it was within its banks.

Baptisms in the Jordan

Upon arriving at the river preparations were at once made for baptizing two persons of our company, Wolff Benjamin, a Jew, and teacher in our church school in Jerusalem, and the wife of Brother Aziz Hanna, an Arabian interpreter in the school. The Jordan is about ninety feet wide and ten feet deep. It runs in a strong current and is deep at its banks; so a small inlet in the bank made for baptizing was selected for administering the rite.

Vegetation in the nature of a thicket and mud banks make close approach to the water somewhat difficult; and the green trees, shrubs, and reeds bordering the stream on each side in many places, obstruct the view. In this river, probably not far from here, Jesus was baptized by John the Baptist.

Our company, standing on the bank, sang:

Jesus, mighty King in Zion,
Thou alone our guide shalt be;
Thy commission we rely on;
We will follow none but thee.

Chorus:

We will follow none but Jesus,
Jesus is the life, the way;
This the path in which he leads us,
This the gate to endless day.

As an emblem of thy passion,
And thy vict'ry o'er the grave,
We who seek the great salvation
Are baptized beneath the wave.

Fearless of the world's despising,
We the ancient path pursue;
Buried with our Lord, and rising
To a life divinely new.

After Elder Harry Passman offered prayer, Elder J. F. Curtis led the candidates who were to be baptized, one at a time, into the water. I was employed with my camera, desirous of registering for others the scene which the eyes of our small company beheld. Sensitized by my environments, upon my ears fell the words of the hymn and of the prayer in such a manner as to prompt from my heart an unflinching devotion to the ideals of Jesus Christ. Wooing is the Spirit's power! And what joy to hear from our officiating brother the words to the candidates: "Having been commissioned of Jesus Christ, I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; Amen." They were then immersed in the limpid water of the river, and rose in covenant relationship with Christ to "newness of life." Elder Daniel B. Sorden offered the benedictory prayer.

I walked up and down the banks of the river, which with its many bends presents a picturesque scene, and before departing indulged in bathing in its waters.

The Tumble-Down Village of Jericho

After resting under some trees near the river for a little while, we started for our next place of call, Jericho, which occupies a site near where the ancient city of the same name was located. It is one of the tumble-down villages of Palestine, a collection largely of huts made of sun-dried bricks, and inhabited chiefly by Arabs. No windows in the hovels, the doors providing light and ventilation—in a few instances, in one room animals and all living together!

In the Jordan Hotel, clean and commodious, where we secured the use of the dining hall, our lunch was spread, and all paid a compliment to the many bounties prepared by the good sisters.

Near by are mounds, some that have been excavated disclosing walls, it is said, of ancient Jericho.

A great city was once in this locality. One of the noted miracles of the Bible took place here, old Jericho's walls falling down following the blasts of the ram's horns which were in the hands of those who were doing their part as God had assigned.

Elisha's Fountain

Elisha's Fountain, one of the very few surface springs in Palestine, is only a few minutes away by auto. Its water, which is fresh, runs into reservoirs and then out upon the plain, providing water for ordinary needs and irrigation. Wherever the water goes there is an attractive strip of various shades of green; vegetables, vineyards, date palms, orchards of oranges, fig trees, and olives. Because of the warmer clime here, fruits are much earlier in ripening than at Jerusalem. In ancient days this was a region of gardens, fruits, and palms, resulting from irrigation from the springs and water distributed from reservoirs. Utter barrenness now joins the richly verdant strip produced by the water from Elisha's Fountain, named after the prophet because of a tradition that he by miracle caused the water to become sweet.

Near by, to the west, the Judean hills rise abruptly from the plain, a great wall of barren rocks with deep ravines and gullies. Immediately in front of us is the Mount of Temptation where, some assert, Jesus experienced his peculiar ordeal of temptation. On its top is a chapel, and about two thirds the way up, clinging to its side, is a monastery.

Return to Jerusalem

Our purpose in starting for home before late in the afternoon was to finish our traveling at a reasonably early and safe hour. Our party, with the Hebrew driver still in disguise, arrived in Jerusalem at dark.

It has fallen to my lot to have seen more than my share of the earth's surface; but this trip, made with most genial friends to the Dead Sea, the Jordan River, and Jericho, stirred to an unusual degree my sense of appreciation of things worth while.

Social Ideals in History

Radio talk by A. B. Phillips, at Radio Station KFI X, Independence, Missouri, May 13, 1924.

A careful study of the social history of the world from the earliest to the most recent times must impress the thoughtful mind with the fact that selfishness is the chief cornerstone of misery and injustice among men. Educative factors, however, sometimes change the undesirable social environment until it becomes a permanent inspiration toward better ideals and worthy attainment. If it were not so there could be no progress, and the valuable achievements that we now enjoy could not be maintained. From the ideals of men, many of whom were centuries in advance of the times in which they lived, have come the priceless heritage of modern civilization with all its potentialities for the days that are yet to dawn.

Most of the social ideals of the ages which have found experimental expression involve concepts of justice and equity among the people. While uniform ideas with respect to all features of these ideals could hardly be expected to arise in ages and countries of vastly different conditions, yet it is astonishing to note the remarkable agreement they represent in their essential points. In the social ideals and conditions of the past may be clearly discerned the influence of both religious and secular concepts. The degree of success that may be comparatively attributed to each of these two elements is not difficult to determine, within approximate limits at least.

The Sumerians and Babylonians

From recent archaeological discoveries made and the decipherment of very ancient cuneiform inscriptions, we learn that considerably more than four thousand years ago the Babylonians, and the Sumerians who inhabited the biblical Shinar, possessed advanced civilizations. In some respects it was in close harmony with present-day customs. Sumerian culture centered in Eridu and Nippur, in what was later known as Babylonia. Their earliest known traditions reveal remarkable advancement in law, science, art, literature, industry, and medicine. Here seems to have been the ancient cradle of the human race. Here civilization was born and nurtured, and centuries later from this country came Abraham, the Father of the Faithful.

Building upon the splendid culture of his predecessors, came Hammurabi, the famous Babylonian lawgiver. Many tablets were inscribed with the laws of his time, and it is astonishing to learn with what equity they were administered in that prehistoric period. The honor and freedom accorded women of that time is proof that we of to-day can hardly boast our superiority in this respect. All land was owned subject to fixed charges in support of the state, or was rented from the state. The temples of that time were supported by tithes, offerings, and income from appurtenant estates, and various people shared a specified time in the temple ministrations, receiving a portion of its revenues accordingly. Temple property included storehouses with grain and other commodities, from which the needy farmer was privileged to borrow without interest. Even the ruler must repay if he borrowed from the temple stores. In the event of a crop failure the debtor was not obliged to pay that year, and no interest could be charged on his debt. A high degree of ethical conduct and social relationships was in many respects rigidly maintained under severe penalties.

The Messianic Hope

The ancient sacred writings and many apocryphal works of pre-Christian times contain the most conclusive proof that the doctrine of the coming Messiah has been handed down from the beginnings of recorded history. In the Ethiopic and Slavonic books of Enoch the Messianic doctrine is plainly set forth, and to the faithful is promised the coming kingdom of the blessed, where only right shall prevail. The Bible itself tells of Enoch, whose people were of one heart and mind and walked with God. Because of their righteousness and great unity God translated them to heaven without their seeing death. The writers of these narratives expressed something of the ideals that various biblical authors had set forth from time to time, which were derived from the inspiration of prophets.

The social concepts of the Hebrews were largely based upon a constitution given through Moses. Subject to this the seventy elders were associated in legislative work, being chosen out of the congregation of the people, and judges were appointed to see that the laws were honored. The priests were assigned to religious service as supporters and prompters of conscience and proper ethical conduct. Land was apportioned according to tribes and families, and to protect an equitable adjustment of ownership, land that was encumbered or leased must revert free to original owners every fifty years. Loans made to the borrower must be released by the owner every seven years, thus facilitating greater equality among the people, and avoiding extremes of poverty.

In the period preceding the New Testament era the Messianic Hope was revived with renewed vigor. Though its principles had been proclaimed by the prophets from age to age, few of the Jews appeared to grasp its sublime significance in the time of their comparative prosperity. But with the coming of national disaster and the captivity, their enforced humility and need revived that spirit on which lofty ideals and hopes could be impressed with greater purity and clearness. Therefore that which had found expression through the prophets of the past when spiritual ideals were pure, again shone forth as a bright star of destiny to lead them hopefully on.

Jesus himself was the embodiment of the best that had been looked for, prayed for, and yearned for by the greatest sages of all time. He was the hope of the ages, the ultimate realization of which was sung by bards and foretold by prophets with tongues inspired from heaven. Therefore when Jesus came to the Jewish nation many were looking and longing for the coming of the promised Messiah and his kingdom of righteousness. Had their concept of him and his work been sufficiently pure and adequate, he would have been generally received with transports of joy and acclamations of triumph.

Social Ideals of Plato

The principles laid down by Plato and Aristotle caused them to be known as the fathers of the science of society. Plato, the immortal philosopher of Athens, and the friend of Socrates, reached his highest expression of lofty ideals in his work, The Republic. The principles animating this great literary creation were truth, justice or the public good, and social and personal development. To Plato the supreme unity was expressed in the state, as superior to that of the family, and more necessary to the welfare of the whole group. He recognized it to be more difficult to impress ideal activities upon community life than upon individuals. He considered that while human traits are not all unresponsive to temptation, the testing of moral rectitude is itself beneficial in social improvement, and habit is of worth in the preservation of right impulses. He did not recognize a pure democracy as best conducive to the realization of social ideals, but thought governing minds, educated and qualified by philosophy to dominate with reason and justice, would maintain equity in relationship and labor among the three classes required in his Republic, and justice would be reached by socialization.

It is Plato who tells us of the lost Atlantis, about which Egyptian priests informed Solon six hundred years before the Christian era, and which was supposed to have been a veritable paradise, constituting a great kingdom thousands of years before his time. This also suggests the Greek tradition concerning the Isles of the Blest, whose inhabitants were clothed with immortality, and where perpetual summer and inexhaustible good abounded, as mentioned by Hesiod in the eighth century before Christ.

Other Social Leaders and Movements

In the Oceana of James Harrington, principles were laid down that largely influenced American procedure. Property was held to be the chief basis of power, and land ownership was to be limited as to revenue, in order to preserve equitable distribution. Executives were to be continued in office for only comparatively brief periods. He considered monarchy as tyranny, aristocracy as oligarchy, and democracy as anarchy. While the wisdom of the few is the light of the group, the interest of the few is not to the benefit of the whole group. Therefore there should be a senate to propose, the people to resolve, and magistrates to execute. He conceived that while a law concerns the individual good, there is a greater law that concerns the whole group, so that the good of the group is of chief consideration.

Sir Thomas More

In the Utopia of Sir Thomas More, punishment was to be graded according to the crime. He laid down the proposition that "extreme justice is an extreme injury," that the laws of God are paramount, and that human laws made in violation of them are therefore themselves criminal. His system provided that magistrates should be chosen by groups of thirty families every year, and should see that no one remained idle, though six hours was a working day. A great number of laws is condemned, but by a well-constructed constitution the need of many laws is avoided.

Saint-Simon

Saint-Simon, the founder of French socialism, began his socialistic teachings in 1817. He believed that society should be reorganized on the basis of industrial supremacy and directed by science. The object of society should be the improvement of the moral and physical conditions of the poor. Upon this proposition was founded the school which bore his name, and which taught that the social order should be regulated according to capacity and merit of individuals, women having a recognized equality with men.

Robert Owen

In the same year that the great French socialist began to publish his views, Robert Owen, an English philanthropist, presented to the committee of the House of Commons proposals for the relief of paupers. He recommended the establishment of small communities, each under the supervision of a competent person, the results of labor to be enjoyed in common. Opposition caused by his open attack upon religion delayed his efforts, but several experiments were made by him and under his advice. He came to America and founded a community at New Harmony, Indiana, in 1826, which failed after two years, partly because of the self-seeking aims of many who joined it. Laxity of morals and other causes produced the abandonment of later efforts that were made.

John H. Noyes

Most of the failures incident to experiments in socialism or communal life have involved unacceptable ideas concerning the relationship of the sexes and family life. This was a fundamental factor in the discontinuance of the Oneida Community as such, though under corporate existence as a business concern it has continued since its reconstruction, and its business has grown to include several manufacturing concerns with annual sales exceeding two million dollars. The original founder was John H. Noyes, who in 1848 issued a work advocating community of property.

The Shakers

In the latter part of the eighteenth century a religious body, the Shakers, arose and sought to put in operation its concept of New Testament Christianity, particularly with respect to community of property. Financially the society was reasonably successful, and there were neither rich nor poor among them. In governmental affairs two classes were recognized, those who ruled or administered, and those who were subjects of government, no distinction being made between the sexes. Celibacy was considered preferable to marriage, and this probably accounts in part for the fact that the society has decreased from about four thousand to less than a thousand members.

Christian Metz

The Amana Society was founded by Christian Metz, who came to America and with about six hundred members settled near Buffalo, New York. In 1855 it removed to Amana, Iowa, where about eight-hundred members now reside. Others from Germany and Switzerland have in late years joined the society, which maintains common ownership of property, and production of all goods needed by its people. Thirteen trustees are elected annually, who manage the property, each separate business being under a foreman. They share alike in the enjoyment of all available resources, each according to his needs.

Fourier Scheme

The Fourier scheme aimed at elimination of waste by cooperation, and the development of human nature by selected association. Various attempts to establish his plan failed, several causes for which have been named, but most of them were undertaken in America after his death and the failure of his own experiments in France.

Inca Civilization

The Inca civilization of Peru bore much resemblance to More's Utopia. The doctrine of equality was especially promulgated by the Incas. A form of socialism existed there which was based upon state ownership of land and an equitable system of labor for all who could work. The sick and aged were amply provided for, and prosperity and comfort prevailed everywhere among them. Under this system the Incas became very wealthy and powerful. But while thrift and industry were general, ample provisions were also made for rest, recreation, and amusement for all.

The Inca organization was so effective that it continued to operate for a time even after the treacherous Spaniards had destroyed large areas of property. The ruthless conquerors could not appreciate the highly developed social order maintained by their victims, and in the destruction of the Inca government one of the rarest ideal systems known in history was brought to a lamentable end.

Learning From the Past

From the instances mentioned, and from many others that need not now be named, it may be seen that social ideals have from the earliest time been conceived mostly through the recognition of justice and human need. History does not confirm the supposition that communistic ideas have been held only by those who had nothing to lose in material goods. Many of the examples on record prove to the contrary. The ennobling impulses that stirred the souls of great idealists of the past found expression in a supreme purpose to be realized in the common good. Because of these ideals and their educative effect upon students of society, some of the most progressive programs employed in the march of civilization were made possible.

From the experiences of civilizations that have preceded us, we should be able to more clearly understand and solve the social problems of to-day. In these experiences we may well discern the truth of Paul's declaration that, "For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself." For in the potency of their history even the ancient dead still speak to us, and with the past our lives are undeniably interwoven. From them we learn that inequality of concepts does not produce ideal social results, but that worthy ideals generally held will produce corresponding improvement in social conditions.

Educative factors are therefore essential to the development and realization of life in its best and most complete sense. This life no man can live within himself, but its most satisfying expression is in service rendered for the uplift of all the human race. He who coordinates the activities of life in accordance with the highest ideals, has for his constant purpose the progressive good of all. This is the social law advocated by Jesus, the great Master Teacher, and when each shall learn to love his neighbor as himself, incentives to wrong conduct will disappear, and happiness will be realized as God meant it to be enjoyed by all mankind.

Hygiene of the School Child

Radio talk by Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser from Radio Station K F I X, Independence, Missouri, April 15, 1924.

Arthur H. Moore, in his book just off the press, Public Health in the United States, calls our attention to the alarming figures which show the health condition at the time of the draft for the World War. Of the total number of men examined at that time forty-seven out of every hundred were found to have some defect or disorder. Twenty-one out of every hundred were rejected because of their poor physical or mental condition and sent home.

A study of the defects from which these men were suffering shows us that many of the conditions could have been prevented or corrected in childhood. Those who have studied preventive medicine and therapeutics, state that we might safely say there could probably have been corrected or prevented at least half the cases of weak feet, most of the hernia cases, half of the defects of the eyes and ears, most of the syphilis and gonorrhoea, many of the disorders of the heart and arteries, half of the nervous and mental disorders, half of the nose and throat conditions, and most of the defects of the skin and teeth. These things were ignored, not because of a lack of skill and knowledge among physicians, but because there had not been developed a conscious, active, organized interest in health and physical fitness. In many cases the young men examined were not conscious of their defect.

The Problem of Health

If we are socially minded we must recognize that the problem of health should be made a living, vital issue. To be physically unfit is to be socially inefficient. To be socially inefficient means that some one else must carry the burden to care for those who are unable to make their own adjustment. This care must be paid for by the people, not only in dollars and cents, but in anguish of mind and physical suffering.

In considering the economic cost, one should take into account the loss of wages, money paid to physicians, hospitals, and nurses, and the loss of that which those who are ill might have produced if they had remained in good health. It has been estimated by Mr. Moore that the cost of serious illnesses in the United States alone is considerably more than seventeen million dollars annually. When we take into account that at least fifty per cent of the more serious illnesses are preventable, then we may readily see that half of this expense may be avoided. He also tells us that forty per cent of the deaths could have been prevented or at least postponed if proper remedial or preventable work had been done. The economic loss from these premature deaths to the United States alone is approximately one and one half billion dollars a year.

Examination of School Children

The late World War has brought home to us a sense of guilt and shame in regard to this dreadful waste of the vigor and the happiness of the race. The way to stop this waste is to do remedial and preventive work with the child during his pre-school and school years. In 1919 physical examinations were given to 17,154 school children in ten cities and counties of Missouri. The results are significant. Of the total number of children examined, it was found that approximately fifty-four per cent had decayed teeth, that over thirty-eight per cent had enlarged tonsils, and that almost one fourth were mouth breathers. Nearly sixteen per cent had defective vision and over eleven per cent had adenoids. A very large per cent of these abnormalities and imperfections are such as could easily be remedied.

Many of our States have made provisions for the physical examination of school children, but unless remedial work follows the examination, little good is accomplished. Lack of cooperation of the parents is a big factor in hindering the progress of the work. Often they think the defect is of minor importance and one that will be outgrown. If it should be outgrown it is at the expense of physical vigor which should have been conserved.

It is the parents of the school child whom I would like to reach. I would like to arouse them to a sense of their obligation to their children in remedying what they may consider minor defects which if left uncorrected may become disabling ailments.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has made a survey and study of sicknesses which disable. This is based upon their investigation among 571,757 persons. Influenza and pneumonia head the list; eleven and six tenths per cent of the disabling sicknesses are caused from these diseases. The next sickness in importance is rheumatism which claims eight and seven tenths per cent. Then follow diseases of the nervous system (except insanity, apoplexy, and paralysis) which rate seven and seven tenths per cent. The next in line are diseases of the digestion, six and six tenths per cent. The survey was made during 1915, 1916, and 1917 when there were many cases of influenza throughout the country; this disorder has been greatly reduced since the survey was made. We wish you to note that rheumatism takes second place on the list, and probably now holds first place as a disabling disease. Many authorities tell us that rheumatism is caused by toxin in the blood that may have as its basis diseased tonsils or infected teeth. When we remember that eight and seven tenths per cent of those disabled are sufferers from rheumatism we ought to be interested in removing the causes of this disorder. That is, see that our children are not suffering from diseased tonsils, and that their teeth are kept in good condition.

The Eyes

With 16 per cent of all children in the schools suffering from defective eyesight, there is a great responsibility resting on parents and teachers for its detection and correction so far as possible. If the eyes are not straight, the child is seeing with only one eye. If corrected early enough the refractive error may be remedied, and the child be given a good vision and parallel eyes. If the child is let go until he is past twelve years of age it will most likely require an operation to straighten the converging or diverging eye. The presence of red, swollen, watering, or discharging eyes or lids should be a sufficient warrant for taking the child to an eye specialist.

The Ears

A good test of hearing is made by placing the child in a corner of the room, away from the noise if possible, with his back towards the examiner. He is then instructed to close one ear and repeat every word he hears. At twenty feet, in a clear, low tone that can be made quite uniform, the examiner pronounces words for the child to repeat. The conversational tone or the whispered voice may be used. If he is able to repeat every word that is spoken, then all is well. If he is unable to hear distinctly he may be suffering from impacted ear wax or chronic discharge. Special attention should be given the child if he is suffering from chronic discharge. The cause is often complicated; enlarged tonsils and adenoid growths may be back of the ear trouble. Many ear infections are caused from bad throat conditions.

The Nose and Throat

The nose is an air passage. The olfactory function which it performs is incidental to the passage of air through it. To breath with the mouth open, points to an obstructed air passage in the nose. Most forms of nasal inflammation and irritation in children are accompanied by discharges which appear anteriorly or drop into the throat at the back. Fifty per cent of such cases have more or less disturbance of hearing. A history of frequent sore throat should create suspicion of the existence of enlarged or diseased tonsils, and warrants an examination by a physician. Diseased tonsils should be removed. Obstructed nasal breathing should be corrected. Nasal discharge should receive expert attention.

Teeth

The special significance and bearing of unsound teeth upon nutrition are well known to doctors and dentists, but are only beginning to be appreciated by parents and teachers. When a baby tooth goes prematurely, the result is often shown in a malformed jaw and imperfect second teeth. When a permanent tooth is lost, its owner has parted forever with a good-sized block of his vital securities. A decaying tooth is not only in danger of being lost, but it is a menace to all other teeth in the mouth and to the general health as well. It constitutes a focus of infection—a laboratory that is turning out a stated amount of poison every twenty-four hours and perpetuating serious constitutional conditions. Unrecognized teeth abscesses and diseased tonsils cause a majority of all cases of rheumatism and neuralgia, as well as some other ills. Infections absorbed through the teeth and tonsils produce an alarming proportion of organic heart defects. Correct these physical defects before they cripple the child.

Nervous Condition

Inability to recognize evidence of nerve strain in school children is surely responsible for serious damage to childhood. At the age of eight practically all children show diminished nervous resources, due probably to the fact that at that age they are subjected to the strain of cutting second teeth and starting on a period of rather rapid physical growth. School work at that time should be lightened. The same should be true at puberty, thirteen to sixteen in girls, and fourteen to seventeen in boys. Aside from these periods of stress incident to the development of all children, there are serious functional and organic diseases of the nervous system to which individual children may be subject.

To a marked extent an unstable nervous system is a matter of heredity. Much, however, may be done to train into a condition of stability. We are so accustomed to think of bad temper, undue emotion, spasmodic movements, such habits as biting the nails, stammering, and irritability, as evidence of a perverted moral nature that we are inclined to think of entirely wrong methods of treatment. A highly excitable child may be in the early stages of Saint Vitus dance. Instead of sever reprimands or scoldings, he should be placed under the care of a wise physician. The bad temper may be due to a low-grade pain which exhausts nervous energy. Excessive emotionality may be a symptom of neurasthenia. Nervous breakdown in a child can usually be traced to mental strain, physical strain, worry, poisons like tobacco and coffee, sex difficulties, and over indulgence in the home.

If we would have our children normal in body and mind we should set up in their minds definite health habits. The adoption by the children of a daily routine which will embody health habits is one of the best conservers of physical and mental health. The following routine is taken from a New York City Bulletin and indicates clearly what should be the specific aims of instruction in personal hygiene:

SCHOOL CHILD'S DAILY PROGRAM

1. Rise promptly.
2. Take breathing and setting-up exercises appropriate to age.
3. Wash (warm water and soap) hands, face, neck, chest. Cold splash on face, neck, and chest. Clean finger nails.
4. Clean teeth. Brush the gums and the whole mouth and rinse the mouth. Drink a glass of cool water.
5. Dress with inspection of clothes as to cleanliness.
6. Eat slowly at breakfast and chew well.
7. Attend the toilet and wash hands afterward.
8. Prepare for school. Books and clothes clean and in order.
9. Observe regulations as to entering school.
10. Care for outer clothing. Attend to order of desk and prepare for daily hygienic inspection.
11. Keep correct standing and sitting postures in school.
12. Drink water at recess. Use only individual drinking cup or bubbling fountain.
13. Return home for lunch without loitering. Wash before lunch. Eat slowly.
14. Play in fresh air after school.
15. Study. Pay attention to lessons and finish work.
16. Wash and prepare for the evening meal.
17. Prepare for bed early. Attend the toilet, wash, put clothes in order, and open windows.

May we be so interested in the health of the child that "it shall never again be said that it is not until they are needed for the terrible uses of the war that any care is taken of the youth of our country."

Do You Pray

1. For the Childlife of the World
2. For the Spread of Christian Truth
3. For the Cause of Christian Education

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

Saving Sinners

By George Cummins

"For the Son of Man is come to seek and save that which was lost."—Luke 19: 10.

In the following remarks I shall be making I do so in the spirit of humility; yet realizing the importance of the message, I fearlessly express my thoughts on the above passage uttered by Christ himself on that memorable event when visiting at the home of Zacchæus. I am led to ask, Do we as a ministry realize that men and women are in a lost condition? Are we preaching Christ and him crucified, as humanity's only hope?

Lost. Let us carefully weigh the word. Let me again quote the text, "For the Son of Man is come to seek and save that which was lost." I fear, that as ambassadors for Christ, we do not intelligently explain to the people that each and every one comes under this category—that is, sinners. Paul says in Romans 3: 10-23: "There is none righteous, no not one." For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. And again David says in Psalms 51: 5, "Behold I was shapen in iniquity and in sin did my mother conceive me." Christ himself knew this was the state of mankind, as he portrayed it in the parable of the lost sheep. Luke 15: 3-6.

He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him, he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.

Surely verified on the life of our blessed Lord, look at Gethsemane, look at Calvary. Why oh, this! Read Isaiah 53: 10-12, "Yet it pleased the Lord to bruise him," etc.

Brethren, I feel if only we carry the message, fearlessly tell the people they are sinners (lost), the Holy Ghost will fulfill then his blessed work; spoken of in John 16: 8, "And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." We as a church will find men and women, as they did of old (and it should be so now) asking men and brethren what shall we do to be saved. We are not to tell men and women simply to repent. Let us intelligently explain to them what it means, and not be afraid to carry the message of Christ himself when he said in John 3: 36, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, and he that believeth not on the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him." And again hear what Alma says in the Book of Mormon, chapter 16,

CHURCH NEWS

Former Pastor of Attleboro Branch Transferred to Mission Field

ATTLEBORO, MASSACHUSETTS, May 12.—Last September, Peter Whalley, the pastor, resigned in order that he might go to Graceland to better prepare himself for work, and Earl R. Bradshaw was chosen to fill his place.

Plan Home-Coming

Attleboro had been planning for the home-coming of Brother Whalley in June, but have learned that he is not to return here, since he has been assigned to a mission field. The news came as a great surprise to most of the Saints and all share a feeling of sadness that they shall no longer have him or his companion at Attleboro. Yet they rejoice that he is to enter upon a larger field of usefulness in the Lord's work. Brother Whalley is a man of fearlessness and courage, of great faith and perseverance, and devoted to the church, as is also his companion.

Brother Bradshaw has been carrying on the good work here, and the Saints young and old have stood with him. During April Elder O. L. Thompson was at Attleboro for two weeks and a wonderful work was done by his spiritual, inspiring sermons. One excellent woman was baptized. On Sunday afternoon, April 13, the Bates Theater was obtained free of charge for an afternoon service, which was well advertised. There were about five hundred people who gathered to hear Brother Thompson.

Musical Program

The choir, of which the Saints are justly proud, gave a musical program preceding the sermon. It consisted of selections from "Gallia" by Gounod, and "The coming of the King," by Buck, "O pray for the peace of Jerusalem," and "Send out thy light."

The morning service in the church was dedicated to the young people, and having caught the spirit of the services a verse 230, "For after this day of life which is given us to prepare for eternity, behold if we do not improve our time while in this life, then cometh the night of darkness wherein there can be no labor performed." So our duty is plain.

---

In conclusion, I want to quote the Apostle Paul, 1 Timothy 1: 15, "Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world (mark the words) to save sinners; of whom I am chief." Let us hold out Christ and him crucified as humanity's only hope, mankind will be convinced they are sinners, and then only can we point them to Christ as their loving Redeemer, then we can explain the necessity of baptism, etc.

For as the Apostle Paul says, "Ye are saved by grace," and not that of yourselves. It is the gift of God. What will be the outcome of such genuine conversions? Lives devoted to the cause of Christ and to the welfare of humanity, to point men and women to the Lamb of God who was slain in their behalf.

large attendance practically filled the church. Brother Thompson endeared himself to the Saints here, and all were loath to see him go. He is an incurable radio-bug. He can listen in while the set is whistling and howling with a smile of deep satisfaction on his face as though enjoying it as much as a concert. The young men saw a case of absolute need very plainly so all pitched in and presented him with a radio set.

Equality Club

The need of recreation for the young people is realized, and Attleboro has an organization of Temple Builders, Orioles, and a young men's club called "The equality club," which has besides its regular membership two honorary members, Brother E. B. Hull, now in northern California, and Brother O. L. Thompson. The purpose of the club is for religious study and recreation. They have some great times.

Easter Sunday was a banner day. A full church in the morning with Brother Bradshaw as the speaker and a wonderful spirit present. In the evening a pageant was presented, "The story of an Easter garden." Again the church was filled to the doors and many looked with eyes dimmed with tears, as the scenes of the death and resurrection of the Lord were portrayed.

Social Activities

The need of social activities is realized, and a committee has been appointed, one each from the branch, Sunday school, Temple Builders, and Orioles, to arrange for social times periodically in order to bring the Saints, both young and old, together.

A Rotospeed duplicating machine has been purchased, which will print seventy-five sheets of printed matter per minute. This will be indispensable in printing programs, songs, etc., also sending circular letters to the members.

The Saints at present are arranging to purchase a new pulpit, a part of the program by which they aim to make the house of the Lord more beautiful. They are moving onward and sincerely hope that God will help them.

Harvest in Baptisms at Wiley, Colorado, Continues

WILEY, COLORADO, May 13.—Missionary efforts here and in the surrounding country are more and more encouraging. Brother J. D. Curtis finished a series of meetings at Utleyville about May 1, with a total of nine convinced of the truth of the gospel. The development of the Utleyville community has been very gradual, but in less than five years' time Brother Curtis has baptized thirty. There were only three members there when he began, but they were good ones. Thus the field was ready when the time came. There has been much bitter persecution of the Saints in the past, but now even those who were most eager to tear down the work are coming into the fold.

Last Sunday a young man from Utleyville traveled a distance of one hundred thirty miles in order to receive baptism at the hands of Brother Curtis. He had been one of the most bitter enemies of the Saints until very recently. He became convinced that some of the things he based his opposition upon were false. Now even the opposition of his own family could not prevent his taking the step which made him a brother in the gospel. After the baptismal service was over he made the remark that he now felt more satisfied than he had for a long time. Judging from the zeal he manifested against the church, a splendid worker has been gained to the cause of Christ.

Most of those baptized lately are heads of families with their children, people who are among the best of their communities.

Two Weeks' Meetings

Brother Curtis has been holding a two weeks' series of meetings near Eads, Colorado, with a harvest of ten souls, and others who will no doubt be ready at a later time. On May 4 four carloads of Saints from Lamar and Wiley surprised him by dropping in on his Sunday morning service and bringing a candidate for baptism.

On May 11 two cars of Saints from Lamar and Wiley again surprised Brother Curtis and brought the young brother from Utleyville, but he likes that kind of surprises.

Elder I. N. Delong journeyed to Utleyville Sunday where he held services. The missionary services in the regions round about have made the attendance rather small at the Wiley services of late.

The absence of Sister Lydia Ralston, who has gone to California to join her husband, is keenly felt. She has been a quiet worker, but one who could always be depended upon ever since the branch was organized. While the Saints miss her, they know that she is carrying on her good work some place else, and the good wishes of all her friends attend her.

Sunday School Attendance Better at Persia, Iowa

PERSIA, IOWA, May 15.—The Sunday school has had a better attendance and seemingly more was accomplished during the last month, since the writing of the last news letter.

Last Sunday, May 11, there was a good gathering, the best for this spring. Sunday school commences at 9 a. m., and is in session one hour. The object is to get well acquainted with the doctrine of the church and its history. Every pupil should understand why he believes in the church, and be able, in the language of the Scripture, "To give a reason for the hope that is in him." If he cannot give much of a reason, he cannot have much hope.

After Sunday school, there is preaching when there happens to be a preacher. "How shall they hear without a preacher And how shall they preach, except they be sent?" it is written. Sometimes preachers are scarce and then the Saints here do the best they can, but they like to have services regularly.

Visitors Welcomed at Beardstown, Illinois

BEARDSTOWN, ILLINOIS, May 14.—The Saints at Beardstown have had three welcome visitors the past month, Brother Ulrich and Brother and Sister Vanhoosier. The first was the missionary of Central Illinois District. Brother Ulrich was here only five days, but preached five sermons, and each one had that good old gospel ring to it.

Sunday morning his subject was "The Indian in his purity," and Sunday evening he spoke on "The old-fashioned railroad from earth to heaven." Brother Ulrich is an exceptionally fine speaker, and with his pleasing disposition and manner he soon won the love and friendship of the Saints and nonmembers as well. The Saints here are looking forward to a series of meetings in the near future to be conducted by Brother Ulrich.

Brother and Sister William F. Vanhoosier, of Taylorville, Illinois, arrived May 2 and stayed over Sunday. Brother Vanhoosier is the district superintendent of the Department of Recreation and Expression. He met with that department Friday evening, and gave some very good advice. Brother and Sister Vanhoosier spend much time with the young of the church and are well qualified for that line of work.

Brother Vanhoosier preached a very fine sermon. It is hoped that these two will return in the near future.

Enlarging of Church Building at Minneapolis Begun

MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA, May 14.—The enlarging of the church building in Minneapolis has begun, and the place is beginning to assume a very much changed appearance. The digging for the basement under the new extension has been voluntary, a large part of it having been done by the boys and young men of the branch. The Saints are planning to do as much of the labor as possible themselves, and with the support of all behind the project the work of remodeling will move forward rapidly.

Drive for Funds

The young people also played a large part in starting off the drive for finances for the building. A group of them got together and each turning in $10, they pooled their offerings and handed the lump sum to the chairman of the building committee at the close of one of the meetings. The effect of this upon the older members of the congregation was good, and they are rallying in support of the committee in their work.

Group System

The group system in the Minneapolis Branch has been extended to take in two suburbs, Robbindale and Wayzata, thus enabling the Saints at those places to have their own prayer meetings on Wednesday nights. There are now seven groups organized in Minneapolis and Saint Paul.

Recent Baptisms

A large number of new members have been inducted into the kingdom within the last two months, some baptisms being performed every Sunday. In all twelve persons, several of whom were adults, have obeyed the gospel ordinance.

The Minneapolis Branch is planning to be well represented at the Young People's Convention at Lamoni in June. Eight young people have already announced their intention to attend, and several others may also go.

Organize Department of Women at Leicester, England

LEICESTER, ENGLAND, April 29.—The Department of Women was organized here April 1 with eight members, and all are willing workers. Much good can be done, and this department will be of valuable service to the Saints here.

Sister Howard Meredith, of Birmingham, was elected district superintendent at the Easter conference held at Clay Cross, Derbyshire, April 19. Sister Meredith is qualified for this office and will be a valuable help to this department.

The Department of Recreation and Expression has taken up the study of dramatics. A suitable play, "The pleasures of the world," has been selected for that purpose.

This department was favored with several lantern entertainments last winter by Brother John R. Etheridge, who had a quantity of slides dealing with the ancient inhabitants of America. Some of these slides were taken from photographs loaned by Patriarch Richard Bullard when he was visiting here. These and other slides are to be put in order for lantern lectures on the Book of Mormon.

It is hoped that good results will follow the efforts of those who are striving unselfishly to interest the young.

Second International Young People's Convention

At Lamoni, Iowa
June 5-15

---

INSPIRATION      EDUCATION RECREATION

---

Featuring

Lectures, classes, symposiums, sermons, prayer services, discussions, entertainments, plays, socials, recreation, athletics, oratorio, junior church, demonstrations, exhibitions.

---

Special railroad rates for convention visitors offered.

For detailed announcements see page 412, SAINTS' HERALD, or write G. S. Trowbridge, Transportation Manager, 714 North Union Street, Independence, Missouri.

Young People of Winfield, Kansas, Install Volley Ball Court

WINFIELD, KANSAS, May 14.—The Saints at this place although few in number are trying to carry the work along as usual with Sunday school and preaching on Sundays. There is a prayer meeting held on Sunday evening before the preaching service. No midweek prayer meeting is held, as most of the Saints live at Arkansas City, about fifteen miles from the Winfield Branch. These Saints are very faithful to come through sunshine and storm for the Sunday services, then on Friday, too, for Religio.

The young people's class bought a volley ball and net, which was put up just south of the church where a game is played each Friday evening. Since this branch has some small boys between the ages of five and thirteen, and there is no regular Boy Scout troop here in the church, Brother J. N. Madden has consented to take these boys for a hike each Saturday afternoon. They have gone once and the boys are hoping to go again.

Easter Services

Easter Sunday was a great day for the Saints. After the Sunday school hour a program was given by the children, and the house was filled. After the services, cars were provided and all went with well-filled baskets to the home of the pastor and his wife, Brother and Sister Vickery, who live five and a half miles south of town. The afternoon was spent with a stroll in the meadows and kodaking. The children enjoyed an egg hunt. All returned to church for evening services.

Sister Eda E. Jameson was married to W. S. Nicholson, of Torrington, Wyoming, April 11, at the church. The ceremony was performed by Brother George W. Vickery. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson went to housekeeping in their property at once. On the evening of May 7 the church people went to serenade them. Among the gifts, they were presented with a beautiful quilt from the Department of Women.

The reunion is nearing. Those who are planning on attending should keep in mind the dates, July 17 to 27 at the park.

Men Outnumber Women in Attendance at Prayer Meeting

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS, May 14.—The sacramental service of May 4 was well attended. God spoke to his people warning them to draw nearer to him, for some had gone astray.

The pastor is desirous of seeing a larger attendance at the midweek prayer service. Some time ago the secretary of the local Young Men's Christian Association complimented the Saints on being able to get so many men out to the prayer meetings. The men greatly outnumber the women in attendance.

In the afternoon the sacrament is always carried to the sick, usually by Moses Sheehy, priest, assisted by the pastor, James W. Heap. The branch has a beautiful little silver service, in a leather case, for this occasion. The pastor is always faithful in visiting the sick. Brother Heap was the speaker at Brockton, May 11.

Brother Law and Elder John Rogerson went to the homes of the sick and administered on May 11. At the morning service it was announced that Sister Elida Stinton must enter the hospital this week for an operation. She and the family have the prayers of the Saints. Sister Stinton has done much work in the Department of Women.

Prize for Easter Offering

A Bible was given to Bessie Wilkinson as a prize for bringing in the largest Easter offering. She brought more than five dollars. Testaments were given to Donald Gilbert and Marian Rogerson for bringing the second and third largest amounts.

There will be no services May 18 because of the ministerial conference at Boston. Fall River is represented on the program.

The Department of Women will hold a bean and cold meat supper on May 24, for the benefit of the church. New plumbing has been installed in the church. The Sunday school contributed $25 for this purpose.

Death of John Henderson

John Henderson, a frequent attendant at the services, passed away on April 26 at the home of his daughters. He had suffered greatly for a long time. He especially liked the Onset reunion and was looking forward to attending there this summer. Several of Mr. Henderson's children are active in the church: John is a deacon and the Sunday school superintendent here; Margaret is chorister and superintendent of the primary department; and Sister Sophia Brodie is treasurer of the Department of Women. Two granddaughters are also active: Sophia Brodie, jr., is secretary, and Mary Falconer is treasurer of the Temple Builders. Mr. Henderson was nearly eighty years old. He loved flowers and often gave beautiful plants to the church and the members.

Graceland Chats

LAMONI, IOWA, May 17.—The new college catalogues are now on the president's desk with announcements for 1924-25. Some changes are noted in administration. One of especial interest and far reaching in significance is F. M. McDowell, dean of senior college, and another Lonzo Jones, dean of junior college.

The name of the new business manager, N. R. Carmichael, appears. Brother Carmichael is the son of Brother and Sister Nat Carmichael, late of California. The name of the new nurse, Claris Olds, is another addition. Among the names of returning instructors is noted that of Gustav A. Platz, who comes back with greater efficiency after a leave of absence and time spent in hard study.

New teachers are: Eva Lewers, education; Mabel Gamet, assistant in home economics; Jessie Mae Norris, piano; Velva Williamson, physical training; Aliene Brackenbury, assistant in voice; and Lurene Laughlin, assistant in the commercial department.

Home Economics

Speaking of home economics, you should give a few moments to the course as outlined in the new catalogue. See the first and second year. It will look inviting to you. And just turn to page 63 and note the proposed class in musical repertoire and interpretation. You will be interested of course.

And of equal interest is the outline of the course in agriculture. This catalogue presents a pleasing prospect to the progressive individual.

The home economics department has been unusually interesting these last few weeks. Serving luncheons, breakfasts, and dinners is part of the final requirement, and students are taking advantage of their necessity and entertaining a few friends. Such a lovely variety of menus and decoration as those girls produce would please both epicure and artist.

Annual Junior Banquet

The annual junior banquet occurred on Thursday evening, May 15, at 8 o'clock. This is one of the most formal occasions of the year and is attended with interesting ceremony and dignity.

The tennis courts and track have been the busiest of scenes the past two weeks; tournaments and meets, both intersociety and between various schools, keeping the program full.

Apostle F. Henry Edwards spent a few days at the college on church business, lecturing to the Religious Education students during his stay.

The superintendent of grounds, A. E. Bullard, was called to Colorado, attending the death and burial of his father, a man who had lived and served for eighty years.

Special Day Programs Prove Interesting

MANTENO, ILLINOIS, May 15.—The Sunday school gave an Easter program on the morning of April 20, which consisted of songs, recitations, and the pageant, "Easter dawn," presented by the young people in a very able manner, impressing the resurrection story upon the minds of the audience.

Sisters Paul Pement and Leslie Rogers had charge of this program while Sister Emma Studtman, superintendent of the Sunday school, proved a valuable assistant.

The Department of Women under the local leader, Sister Mildred Rogers, occupied the 11 o'clock hour last Sunday morning, May 11. The members of the mothercraft class gave some truths gleaned from their study, and the remainder of the time was devoted to songs and readings appropriate to Mothers' Day.

At the last sacrament service the Saints were admonished to care for the young of the church. Brother Paul Pement is endeavoring to get the boys organized into a Boy Scout troop. He entertained them at his home Wednesday evening, May 14, and gave them a special treat in honor of the birthday of his baby daughter, Phyllis Arline.

Elder Victor Eklof preached to the Joliet Saints at the home of Brother and Sister W. B. King, Sunday afternoon, May 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loverin of Shermerville, Illinois, and their son and his wife of South Bend, Indiana, visited Deselm Saints, April 27. Sister Loverin was baptized last summer. Although an isolated member she is wide awake and spreading the gospel to her neighbors and friends.

Brother and Sister Elmer Kahler and daughter, Pauline, of Wilmington, attended the services Sunday evening, May 14. The Saints are encouraged by the attendance of members living a distance from Deselm. This is made possible by improved weather and road conditions.

Sunday School Resumed at Elberta, Michigan

ELBERTA, MICHIGAN, May 15.—Joyfield Branch has again started to have Sunday school and prayer meetings. On Sunday, May 4, there were twenty-three present. Brother Homer Doty, district president, was here. All enjoyed his talk along financial lines very much.

On May 11 there were but nine present at Sunday school and prayer meeting, but God's Spirit was surely with them and they felt encouraged to press on.

Brother Fred Kracht and family moved from Joyfield Branch to town last week, so they will probably not be able to come to church so often. If the membership keeps on moving there will not be enough Saints left to hold meetings, unless new members arrive.

Sermons Delivered From City Plaza

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, May 7.—Elder G. H. Wixom began a series of meetings here on Easter Sunday in the morning with a fine attendance of one hundred fifty, well filling the chapel. Elder E. B. Hull joined him later and a good attendance, averaging over sixty, was maintained until the closing day, sacrament Sunday. A number of nonmembers attended regularly, and some have shown a deep interest. One elderly lady, whose husband is a trustee of a local prominent church, was present at all the meetings, and purchased a Book of Mormon after hearing two discourses on this subject by Brother Wixom.

Brother Hull gave an interesting, witty talk on the program at the monthly community supper. This was pronounced the best social evening enjoyed by the Saints for some time.

Speaks in City Plaza

While Brother Hull occupied at the church two evenings, Brother Wixom spoke from the band stand at the city Plaza, with good interest. He spoke again on Saturday evening when he had the support of the choir and a large number of Saints. One hundred thirty-five tracts were distributed, and many people heard the sermons. The Plaza occupies a square block in the heart of the business section of the city. Some told of hearing the sermon in their rooms as his voice echoed from the tall buildings around. A druggist and proprietor of a store near by spoke very highly of the sermon, and commented on Utah's good fortune in having such an able minister. When a clear explanation was made, he was surprised to learn of the two separate churches, and said he would be glad to come and listen the next evening.

When Brother Wixom spoke at the Plaza Saturday evening one of the Sunday school boys, James Lamprey, who plays the clarinet, and three of his school companions, playing different horns, rendered three selections for the services. They were patriotic selections in excellent time, which added to the attraction of the meeting. This was Boys' Week here and a busy time for them. The courtesy was especially appreciated. They promise to play at another time.

Radio Talks

By arrangement, both Brother Wixom and Brother Hull spoke for fifteen minutes over the radio from Station K F B K. Brother Hull spoke Thursday evening on "Hawaii, its history and customs," and Brother Wixom on Saturday evening on "America in history." Complimentary reports were had on both talks. One lady telephoned each evening to thank the speaker for his interesting talk.

Another beneficial effect of the meetings is the awakening of interest among the membership. Fifty-five adult members attended the sacramental service on the closing day, Sunday, and an active, enjoyable meeting was had.

J. D. White, district president, was a recent visitor here.

Mothers' Day Celebrated at Cleveland Branch

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 11.—Mothers' Day was celebrated in Cleveland Branch in a very enjoyable manner. The Sunday school was occupied all morning with exercises by the children in honor of mother. Patriarch John F. Martin was the principle speaker. The rostrum was well decorated, including a scroll with the word "Mother" and a life-sized picture of Emma Smith for the center. There was a large attendance, and a very good feeling was evident.

Brother Martin was also the speaker for the evening, and then left for Kirtland.

The building is now well carpeted and comfortable. A musical entertainment was given last Tuesday at the church under the direction of Floyd Kelsey to secure funds for the carpet.

Herbert Talbot is now president of the branch and is meeting with success. He baptized two this morning.

The young men's class, with William Webbe as teacher, will give the program next Friday at Religio.

Three Weeks' Meetings Held at Omaha, Nebraska

OMAHA, NEBRASKA, May 13.—Two months have passed since the last news letter from this place owing to the absence of the correspondent, Sister Audentia Anderson, who was privileged to spend three happy weeks in the historic East, the first time in her experience.

On March 15 a Saint Patrick's dinner at the Omaha church netted the Department of Women $20, and the La-Da-Sa Class, who served ice cream and cake, $10.50. The occasion was memorable in that Brother John Martin was present, making his acquaintance with the Saints, among whom he labored for almost three weeks thereafter.

Hold Three Weeks' Meetings

To sketch even briefly his many interesting sermons would exceed the limitations of this news letter. Suffice to say that Brother Martin won the hearts of all his congregations, which increased in size steadily even in the face of the strong counter-attractions which are ever present in the city.

Two were baptized on the closing Sunday of his effort, Sister T. A. Edwards and her daughter-in-law, Sister Fay Drew. That day was a branch rally day, many Saints bringing their dinners and attending the communion service in the afternoon, a most spiritual feast. A children's sermon, and a sermon especially to the young people, were notable features of Brother Martin's series, as well as the one telling the differences between our church and the Utah church, to which latter effort a number of Utah elders listened.

Special music was furnished for every service of the series, Sisters Fleming, Frederick, Edwards, Stark, Borders, and Ribly, also Brethren Greenway, Elliott, and Frederick being among those who thus added to the beauty of the services in solos, duets, and quartets.

Given New Piano

A lovely new piano graces the church, the gift of the Department of Women, which has also installed a telephone in the building, not only for local convenience, but that strangers may find the church "on the map" when they come to Omaha. The sisters have held three meetings since the last letter, served a Mothers and Daughters banquet on March 27, and a Fathers and Sons dinner on May 2, during Boys' Week.

A notable feature of Boys' Week in Omaha was the parade of over 15,000 of the youth of the city. Appearing as school units, boys from 7 to 17 carried banners and slogans, many of which were very clever and thought-stimulating. Fifteen thousand boys marching in orderly review! What a promise of future citizenship!

Elect New District President

The Saints were happy to again greet the genial Brother T. J. Elliott, who arrived April 23 from his mission on the Atlantic coast. He is helping his good wife prepare for the removal of the family to Providence, and timed his visit to coincide with the district conference at Decatur, April 26 and 27. At that meeting, Brother Henry A. Merchant was elected district president to succeed Brother Elliott.

Death of Thomas Winterburn

On Monday, April 28, Brother Thomas Winterburn was laid to rest, the funeral services being held at the home of his brother in Elkhorn, Nebraska. The sermon was preached by Carl T. Self, Sister Doris Frederick singing solos. Brother Winterburn was one of the oldest members of this vicinity, having come soon after the Saints made their exodus from Nauvoo. While none others, now living, of his family are members of the church, he always tried to live a faithful and consistent life in accordance with its teachings as he understood them.

Marriages in the Branch

The wedding on May 11 of Sister Thelma Perkins to Mr. John Leddy, of this city, was of interest to the branch. Brother Carl Self performed the ceremony. The young people went to Kansas City to live, where it is hoped the Saints will extend to them a cordial welcome. Sister Thelma has been a faithful and active member, helping out in the orchestra with her violin. She is a niece of Sister Mina Perkins Kearney, well known to the readers of church literature.

Invitations are out for the wedding, on May 26, of Sister Ruth, daughter of Brother and Sister E. E. Edwards, to Edwin Hart Jenks, jr., son of Reverend E. H. Jenks, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of this city. Sister Ruth is an accomplished musician, having been studying at Nebraska University, where young Mr. Jenks is specializing in dramatics and the art of expression. They will leave for the East immediately after their wedding, their plans including extended study for each of them in their chosen fields.

Gives Reading

Wednesday evening, March 26, was a red letter one for the Saints of Omaha, for on that evening Sister June Whiting gave her splendid reading of "The Fool." She had an audience which taxed the seating capacity of the church, necessitating the use of several dozen extra chairs. She pleased her audience, and they were not lukewarm in showing their appreciation. They will gladly welcome her again at any time.

Recent Visitors

Visitors of late have included Apostle F. H. Edwards; Brother and Sister Thomas Franklin, Harlan, Iowa; Brother and Mrs. W. Williams, of Pershing, Iowa; Brother and Sister A. Sternberg, of Plattsmouth; Brother Rasmussen and family, of Decatur; Sister P. K. Young and husband, of Des Moines, Iowa; Brother and Sister G. Sheets, Perry, Iowa; Brother T. Jordan, of Des Moines; Brother and Sister B. Creels, of Walthill; and Elmer K. Patterson. The latter preached on the evening of April 27.

Young People of Pisgah, Iowa, Render Programs

PISGAH, IOWA, May 14.—The Saints of Pisgah were entertained on Easter Sunday by the young people and children of the Sunday school.

Several of the Saints from here attended the funeral of Elder Sidney Pitt, sr., which was held from his home near Persia, May 6.

Elder Joseph Lane, district president, was present at the services here May 4 and May 11. His health is much improved, and in his discourses of last Sunday he displayed much of his old-time vigor.

A large crowd was present at the Mothers' Day program given Sunday evening, May 11. The young people were again responsible for the fine entertainment. Sister Althera Hough had general oversight.

Saints at Port Huron Enthusiastic Over Results of Young People's Meetings

PORT HURON, MICHIGAN, May 1.—The first annual young people's campaign of Port Huron Branch is now history, but the good that is resultant from the efforts of Patriarch John F. Martin cannot be measured in the commonplace terms of ordinary expression.

The crowds came every night filling the church to capacity, and some nights it was necessary to turn people away. There is a renewed determination, especially among the young, to see that God's work is executed with a new vigor.

Some wonderful prayer meetings were had during the campaign, and the Lord spoke to some members, as well as to all the Saints, on three different occasions. The last Sunday especially was a feast all day. Brother Martin made an appeal to the young in his morning talk which will long be remembered by those who heard it. The entire afternoon was given over to a social service which was filled with the Spirit, and at which time Brother Martin spoke to the Saints as a body as well as to individuals. A gift of tongues and interpretation also came through Brother John Shields.

As an evidence that persecution is not yet dead, a black-hand letter was addressed to the pastor, threatening the life of Brother Martin during these services.

A party was given on Monday night at the close of the campaign at which time a purse for Brother Martin and his wife was presented. He came here unknown and left with the best wishes and love of the entire branch, who are determined to have him back again next year for another series of meetings.

"Glory in the Garden" Presented at Macon, Missouri

MACON, MISSOURI, May 14.—Easter morning the senior class of girls with their teacher, Sister Emma Moore, took a hike to the woods, had an early prayer service, and afterwards enjoyed an egg roast before returning to town for Sunday school at 9.45 a. m. At the 11 o'clock hour the "Glory in the Garden" was presented by the Sunday school. Every little person was enthused and ready to do his or her part when their names were called on the program. Opening prayer was offered by E. F. Robertson, district president. The program was in charge of S. J. Joyce, the Sunday school superintendent.

Babies Blessed

At the close of the service two babies were blessed, Elders A. R. Moore and E. F. Robertson officiating. Brother Robertson preached the Easter sermon at 7.30 p. m. Services continued the following week, with good interest. At the close of the Sunday morning service one baby was blessed, making a total of three babies blessed during the month of April.

May 4 was sacramental Sunday. Judge Frank Lofty and family of Moberly, Missouri, were present. Judge Lofty remained to occupy the pulpit in the evening.

Mothers' Day, May 11, Elder J. W. A. Bailey was present, and in his usual manner delivered the morning sermon. He spoke of the mothers of yesterday, to-day, and to-morrow. He spoke of the great mother, Mary, bringing forth a son, not a Savior of a race or nation, but of the whole world. He spoke words of admonition, consolation, and encouragement to the mothers in the audience. A goodly degree of the Spirit was present. Brother Bailey was accompanied to Macon by his son Fred A., of Independence, Missouri, and Brother and Sister Floyd Moore of Higbee, Missouri. Sister Moore rendered a solo, "Jesus is a friend to trust," at the morning service.

Baptisms

At three o'clock in the afternoon about thirty members and friends gathered at what is known as "Jackson's Pond" to witness the baptizing of one brother and two sisters into God's church and kingdom here below. Brother Bailey administered the ordinance. There are others to be baptized next Sunday. The confirmations took place at 6.45 p. m., at the church, Brother Moore and Brother Bailey officiating. A goodly number were present and the Spirit was made manifest.

There were no evening services because of the commencement exercises which were held at the Presbyterian Church. Sister Elma Welch was one of the graduates of the 1924 class of the Macon High School.

A. R. Moore, branch president, Sisters Len Haynes, and Emma Franklin are on the sick list. Brother Moore and Sister Haynes are very much improved and able to be at the different services, but Sister Franklin remains poorly. Pray for her, Saints, that she may be restored to normal health and strength, according to God's divine will, as this is her desire.

Many are enthused over the progress of the work at Macon. The work seems to be gradually moving forward here, a degree of prejudice being removed from time to time.

Music Recital Given Under Auspices of Cleveland Religio

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 15.—The Cleveland local Religio gave a very interesting entertainment in the church on Tuesday, May 6, which took a different form from the usual entertainments, and was heartily enjoyed by everyone attending. Having had the church recarpeted, the Religio felt that they as a department of the Cleveland Branch would like to do their bit towards helping pay for it, and at the same time instill the love of good music in the Saints. So they decided to give a musical recital and were very fortunate in having much talent available through the efforts of Brother F. H. Kelsey.

With Brother J. H. Talbot, president of the branch, acting as chairman, the evening was spent as follows:

Opening hymn, Zion's Praises, Number 144; prayer, Elder John Campbell; welcome address, J. H. Talbot; violin, "Der Sohn Der Heide, Op. 134, Number 2, Keler Bela, played by F. H. Kelsey; contralto, "The silver ring," Chaminade, by Anna E. McNeil; violin, (a) "Prelude and allegro," Cliffe, (b) "Zervanakerene," Cliffe, by Benjamin F. Cliffe; tenor, "I love thee," Tito Mattei, by Giuseppe Muscat; piano, "Witches dance, Op. 17," McDowell, by Lockwood Cliffe-Kelsey; violin and piano, (a) "Gondoliers," Cliffe, (b) "Minuet, Number 2 in G," Beethoven, (c) "Deutscher Tanz," Dittersdorf, (d) "Longing for home," Jungmann, by B. F. Cliffe and F. H. Kelsey; tenor (a) "Yes, let me like a soldier fall," Wallace, (b) "A loyal knight," Jordan, by Giuseppe Muscat; piano, "Enchantment," L. Cliffe-Kelsey, by Lockwood Cliffe-Kelsey; contralto, "August MacDonald," Roedel, by Anna E. McNeil; violin, (a) "Gavotte en Rondeau," Cliffe, (b) "Cradle Song," Cliffe, by Benjamin F. Cliffe; tenor, "For all eternity," Angelo Mascheroni, by Giuseppe Muscat with violin obbligato by F. H. Kelsey; piano; "Valse Caprice," Rubinstein, Lockwood Cliffe-Kelsey; hymn, America; and benediction, E. A. Webbe.

The artists rendered their parts perfectly. They were applauded and encored, and both of the ladies were presented with bouquets of roses. Sister Anna McNeil and Brother F. H. Kelsey were the only two who took part that are members of the church, the others were nonmembers who gave their services free of charge.

At the end of the program, Brother Talbot called on Brother Harry Campbell, as superintendent of the Religio, to say a few words, and although called unexpectedly Brother Campbell made a few timely remarks.

Professors Muscat and Cliffe, also Mrs. Kelsey are all proficient in their own line of music. The Saints and their friends responded very well and the church was filled.

Lamoni Stake Items

LAMONI, IOWA, May 17.—Mothers' Day was duly celebrated at the Brick Church last Sunday. C. E. Wight, the stake president, was the speaker of the morning, his subject being, "The spirit of motherhood." Brother Wight introduced his discourse with the following poem:

The Builder

A builder builded a temple,
He wrought it with care and skill—
Pillars and groins and arches,
All fashioned to work his will,
And men said, as they saw its beauty,
"It never shall know decay;
Great is thy skill, O builder,
Thy fame shall endure for aye."

A mother builded a temple,
With infinite loving care,
Planning each arch with patience,
Laying each stone with prayer.
None praised her unceasing effort,
None knew of her wondrous plan,
For the temple the mother builded
Was unseen by the eye of man.

Gone is the builder's temple—
Crumbled into the dust;
Low lies the stately pillar,
Food for consuming rust.
But the temple the mother builded
Will last while the ages roll,
For the beautiful unseen temple,
Was a child's immortal soul.

The enlargement upon the line of thought suggested by the poem was very impressive and allowed few eyes to remain dry. The speaker was particularly at home in this subject, and delivered a most excellent address. At this meeting Fields Jones of Graceland rendered very beautifully the bass solo, "Mother o' Mine," and the Lamoni-Graceland Oratorio Society sang an equally fine anthem.

The evening program was chiefly by girls of the junior and intermediate department of the Sunday school. It consisted of chorus numbers under the direction of Sister C. E. Wight and solos, duets, and readings by the children. Elder Walter Dayken was the speaker on this program, and gave some excellent advice to the young people.

Opposition Meetings

Elder L. G. Holloway returned last week from holding a series of meetings at Lovilla, Iowa, a small town near Hite-man, where a branch of the church is located. Seeing the interest manifest, an opposition service was started in Hite-man by a Reverend Basset. Every means of attack possible was used against the "Mormons," among the false statements used were that the Saints as a church believe Joseph Smith to be equal with God, and deny Jesus Christ as the head, that we are not a Christian organization, etc.

He talked about a secret book, meaning the Book of Mormon, until so many copies of the secret book were brought to him that he was compelled to seek refuge behind some other camouflage. Meanwhile Brother Holloway's crowds increased. Curiosity was aroused and some, who perhaps came at first through idle curiosity, became interested. The result of it all was that several very fine people handed in their names for baptism.

Clinic Organized

The clinic organized under the supervision of the women's groups is proving to be of great benefit to the community. Doctor White is kept busy every Wednesday afternoon. At present the women are cooperating with Superintendent F. E. Ford, in his effort to lower the per cent of malnourished children in the public schools. At the beginning of the year the per cent was alarmingly high, but this has been greatly reduced. However, there are close to fifty children in the grades who have remained undernourished all year, and it is this class and their mothers that the clinic is making an especial effort to reach.

Full Program of Week End Activities at Council Bluffs, Iowa

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA, May 12.—Though somewhat of a diversion, the past week end has been one of especial value to the Saints of Council Bluffs.

Musical Program

Thursday evening the music department of the branch gave a very splendid program at the Central Church.

Addresses High Schools

Friday, in harmony with the arrangements made by Sister W. R. Faye, Sister Blanche Edwards addressed both high schools. Many reports coming from various sources relative to her addresses give abundant evidence that without a doubt she scored a decided success.

Mothers' and Daughters' Social

On Friday evening the mothers and daughters had their social function in the basement of the church. It had been fittingly decorated for the special occasion, which gave it the appearance of a homelike parlor. Nearly two hundred were in attendance, and the spirit of fellowship and good will was manifest. A splendid program was given in which Sister Blanche Edwards was the principal speaker and Kathryn Wolfe gave readings which were both interesting and instructive. A number of boys of scout age, dressed suitable for the occasion, served refreshments.

Department of Women

On Saturday afternoon at 3 p. m. Sisters Edwards and Wolfe addressed a large number of the Department of Women to their edification.

Young People's Prayer Service

Sunday morning at 8.15 a spiritual young people's prayer meeting was enjoyed. Sunday school was at 9.30, where an appropriate Mothers' Day program was given by the beginner and primary departments, after which Sister Kathryn Wolfe demonstrated the art of story telling to the primary and junior departments, while Sister Edwards addressed the seniors and intermediates.

Mothers' Day Address

At 11 o'clock at the Central Church, which was packed to the limit, Sister Blanche Edwards, endowed with a wonderful degree of the divine Spirit, gave an address appropriate for the day. In the evening at 6.30 the Department of Recreation and Expression gave another very splendid program in which Sisters Edwards and Wolfe also had part. At the 8 o'clock hour Mrs. Kathryn Wolfe addressed a full house on "Musical appreciation."

The 11 o'clock and 8 o'clock services were not only presided over exclusively by the Department of Women, but the ladies' and girls' chorus made up the choir which, with lady ushers, made a very fitting organization for the day. The priesthood took no part in the service.

The Saints were made happy because of the splendid cooperation and help rendered by the various departments of the branch. May God help them to sense the time in which they live, vision the possibilities, and move forward as a mighty army for God.

Independence

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, May 20.—Sunday services in Zion, May 18, were as follows: Stone Church, Elder Walter W. Smith preached at 11 a. m. on "Thy kingdom come." At 7.30 p. m. Apostle John W. Rushton spoke on "The bond of peace." Second Independence, 11 a. m., Elder J. E. Vanderwood was the speaker. In the evening a special congregational song service was held at 7.30, which was followed by a sermon by Elder C. E. Blodgett. The speakers at Walnut Park were Elder L. E. Hills at 11 o'clock and Elder J. M. Baker at 7.30 p. m. Liberty Street, Elder J. B. Barrett spoke in the morning on "Potential Zion," and Elder J. A. Dowker in the evening on "Unity, honor, and sanctification." Enoch Hill, two services were held at 11 a. m., Elder William Worth speaking in the upper auditorium and Elder James V. Roberts occupying the lower auditorium. Apostle Roy S. Budd spoke at 7 p. m. Regular preaching services were also held at Englewood and Spring Branch.

First Independence Sunday School

Early in the month of April the Senior Department organized to visit the Sanitarium on Sunday afternoons and provide music for the patients. The Sunday school songs and some of the favorite hymns are usually sung on each of the three floors, and the efforts of these young people are greatly appreciated by the patients. The classes of the following teachers have provided entertainment up to the present time: April 6, Mrs. Herbert Barto; April 13, Mrs. E. C. Withe; April 20, Mrs. Anna Major; May 4, Mrs. Hattie Dooley; May 11, Miss Thelma Vincent; May 18, Miss Audentia Woodford.

On May 11 the Junior Department was conducted at the Institute Building on the Campus. The move was made to relieve congestion owing to the large increase in the school, and also to provide facilities for better school work.

Recent property acquisitions of the school are some "green boards," and text books on Sunday school problems. Green board is made at Buffalo, New York, and is a special surface on beaver board which takes chalk and is considered by the manufacturers as superior to the black surface. The material was bought in three large sheets and cut into four boards 3x3 and 8 boards 18 inches square. The larger ones were framed, and the others are used as lap boards. The books are used as a circulating library among the teachers and officers, reports being made at the monthly conferences as to the books reviewed.

Elder F. A. Cool and wife have recently taken the superintendency of the Senior Department as successors to Brother and Sister G. S. Trowbridge who moved to Saint Louis.

Liberty Street Purchases Piano

Finding it necessary to purchase a new piano, the Liberty Street people began practical steps to that end about the first of April. A committee of three was appointed at that time: Sister Pearl W. Moriarty, Brother Harry Smith, and Sister Tessie Smith. Having investigated where to buy and what to buy, they took the matter up with the Sunday school and Religio about a month ago. When the piano came last week, the sum of $500 in cash had been raised. The remainder is expected to be on hand within thirty days. The new instrument is parlor grand style and adds much in beauty and tone to the services.

The Twelve

Apostle J. A. Gillen was in Burlington, Iowa, Sunday, May 18, to advise with the Saints regarding the purchase of a new church building. He also went to Nauvoo, Illinois. Apostles John W. Rushton and T. W. Williams were in Independence and vicinity over Sunday filling preaching appointments. Word has not been received recently as to the exact location of the apostles in the foreign fields. Apostles J. F. Curtis and Paul M. Hanson were in Palestine when last heard from, but were expecting to leave for Germany shortly. Apostles M. A. McConley and Clyde F. Ellis are still in Australia, where they attended the Easter conference. Apostles D. T. Williams and F. Henry Edwards were in Lamoni, Iowa, last week. Apostle Edwards was there on reunion business, also addressing lectures to the Religious Education students of Graceland College. Apostle Roy S. Budd is in Independence, where his wife has been ill in the Sanitarium. She was removed to her home last week. A series of meetings was commenced at Wichita, Kansas, Sunday, May 18, by Apostle E. J. Gleazer. Word was not received as to the whereabouts of Apostle J. F. Garver up to the time of going to press.

Book of Mormon Debate

Beginning April 19, a debate on Book of Mormon geography is being held between F. F. Wipper and L. E. Hills at the Stone Church. This debate will cover eight sessions of two hours each. These brethren both accept the origin of the Book of Mormon and its teachings; the debate is on the location of events portrayed in the history within the book.

Laurel Club

The Laurel Club celebrated its eighteenth anniversary on May 13 at the Campus. There was a picnic at which a group picture was taken of the club and a history of its activities since its organization was read by Sister Ellis Short. This club has raised about $10,000 in its lifetime, $2,500 of which has been given over to the Independence Sanitarium. A toast to the members was given by Sister Frederick M. Smith, each member pledging anew her loyalty to the club. The refreshment committee for this occasion was Mrs. Thomas Crick, Mrs. Joseph Sturges, Mrs. J. C. Rogers, Mrs. M. T. Short, and Mrs. Ellis Short.

Institute Commencement

Commencement exercises for the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences and the Nurses Training course of the Independence Sanitarium will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the Stone Church. Doctor F. M. McDowell of Graceland College will deliver the commencement address. President F. M. Smith as president of the Institute and of the Sanitarium Board will award the diplomas.

On Saturday, May 24, the annual ivy planting will take place on the Campus. This is done every year by the graduating classes of the Institute. Brother Chris Hartshorn will make the remarks at the planting. On Sunday, May 25, at 11 o'clock at the Stone Church President F. M. Smith will deliver the Baccalaureate sermon. An exhibit of art, needle work, millinery, and note books will be held in the Institute on Tuesday. Following the commencement exercises a reception will be held on the Campus.

There are six graduates from the Institute this year, and eight from the Nurses' Training school of the Sanitarium.

May Festival

There will be a May Festival held at the Campus, Saturday, May 24. The program rightly begins with a ball game in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. Another game will be played at 5 p. m. The public are invited to bring their lunches and picnic between the ball game and the evening program which begins at 7 p. m. A refreshment stand will supply the needs of those who do not wish to be burdened with a lunch basket. The program is put on by the Campus committee in interest of the Saints' congregations in Independence, all of whom are taking part. There will be a May pole wind, a dramatization, the kindergarten children will present games in rhythm and song, the Junior Dramatic Club will present one act of Midsummer Night's Dream, and a May queen will be crowned. There is a girl from each congregation contesting for the queen's place and votes will be sold during the evening to determine who it shall be.

The First Presidency

President F. M. Smith returned from the East Saturday, May 17, and was at his office Monday to resume office work.

President Elbert A. Smith was at Atherton, Missouri, Sunday, May 18, on the occasion of their home-coming.

Violin Recital

Sister Emma Snead gave a violin recital at All Soul's Unitarian Church, Kansas City, Missouri, the evening of May 13. Brother George Anway, tenor, assisted her, with Sister Florence Koehler acting as accompanist. This recital was repeated Thursday evening at the Stone Church and broadcast on K F I X.

Tourist Park

The tourist park committee met May 14. They will solicit funds to provide equipment and pay a watchman for the tourist park which will be established on the Campus.

Death of Lucy Viola White

Lucy Viola, daughter of Brother and Sister Leonard White, died on May 14, after an illness of more than ten months. Funeral services were held at the Stone Church on Friday with Brother John W. Rushton speaking the words of comfort.

Ladies of G. A. R. Present Moundsville Branch With Flag

MOUNDSVILLE, WEST VIRGINIA, May 11.—The branch of this place was very pleasantly surprised at their regular prayer service on April 9 by having a flag presented to them by the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

April the 9th was Appomattox Day and the flag was presented in commemoration of the day. The ladies were accompanied by a few of the comrades of the Civil War. They stayed for the service, and made the statement that it was the best prayer service they ever attended.

On Easter morning the Sunday school rendered their annual Easter program.

On May 8 the branch had the pleasure of hearing Elder C. W. Clark of Columbus, Ohio, deliver a lecture, taking for his subject, "Where is Joseph's land?"

The Sunday school rendered a Mothers' Day program at the Sunday school hour. They had the pleasure of having with them the district president, O. J. Tary, his assistant, L. A. Serig of Wheeling, and Elder C. Ed. Miller of Toronto, Canada. Brother Miller spoke to the Saints at the eleven o'clock service, and related some of his wonderful experiences while in the mission field in foreign lands.

The district superintendent of the Sunday school, W. A. Schoenian, has prepared a program for institute work to be used throughout the district, beginning at Wellsburg May 18, and continuing each Sunday until June 22.

Holden Stake News

Holden

HOLDEN, MISSOURI, May 19.—Elder R. D. Weaver arrived Sunday morning in time for the morning service, which was the first of the series of meetings he is to conduct here. A good-sized audience greeted him. In the afternoon at 2.30 the Saints met in a special prayer service. Brother Weaver spoke again at night. Meetings will be held every night except Saturday.

Bishop A. B. Phillips was in his office at Holden, Saturday, going on to Warrensburg Sunday morning, preaching there at 11 o'clock, thence to Sedalia.

Elder I. M. Ross and family left Friday evening, enroute to Saint Louis via auto to visit relatives.

The past week has been a busy one with our school activities. Forty-seven students graduated from the high school. Four of the graduates were from Latter Day Saint families, Alberta Young, daughter of Brother and Sister D. P. Young; Arline Shimel, daughter of Brother and Sister Jesse W. Shimel; Owen Sabins, son of Brother and Sister W. F. Sabins; and Joseph A. Beebe, son of Brother and Sister George W. Beebe. Miss Alberta Young was awarded first in scholarship. She was also given honorable mention for service on "Peptomist," the school paper which is published semi-monthly, of which she was "editor in chief." Miss Pauline Millender, of Independence, Missouri, has been elected a teacher in the Holden schools.

Elder Alvin Knisley, one of the stake missionaries, is holding service in the Odd Fellows hall at Edwardsville, Kansas.

Marshall

Harry, the son of Sister Eva Narron, died Wednesday, May 14. The funeral was held at the church in Marshall on the 15th. Elder Levi Phelps preached the sermon to a large audience.

The church is to be improved by a cement walk on the east and north. This will be a needed improvement in that vicinity.

Lexington

The Mothers' Day program at Lexington was enjoyed by all present. Sisters William Beard, L. A. Johnson and Con-way were on the committee.

Brother John Windsor of Lexington, Missouri, died May 13 at the home of his daughter, Sister Ed. Church. He was 85 years old, and had been a member of the church about

(Continued on page 504.)

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Northeastern Illinois, at Mission, June 20 to 23. According to resolution passed at last December conference this conference will be conducted under the coordinating plan. All district department heads will please be prepared to submit reports and communications to the business meeting on Saturday morning. Each branch president is requested to forward reports of priesthood and branch clerk to the undersigned promptly after June 1. With the spirit experienced in the last gathering, may we again be blessed. O. A. McDowell, secretary, 745 Fourth Street, DeKalb, Illinois.

Northeastern Missouri, at Macon, June 21 and 22. Send all reports to William C. Chapman, Route 3, Higbee, Missouri, by June 15. William C. Chapman.

Southern Saskatchewan, at Viceroy, July 10 to 13. This changes the date originally published. C. B. Bergesen, secretary.

Eastern Maine, at Beals, June 14 and 15. Conference will convene on Saturday at 2.30 p. m. We hope the district may be well represented. E. M. Walker, secretary.

Southern Wisconsin, at Lancaster, June 21 and 22. Conference will convene in a rented hall with the Buckwheat Ridge and Flora Fountain Branches, assisting the Saints of Lancaster in the care of the conference. The usual all-day meeting on the 22d will be at the farm home of G. E. Noble, south of Lancaster, if the day is good; and if not, in the hall in Lancaster. All officers who have not reported each month will please report to June 1, from December 1. J. O. Dutton, president, 1902 East Main Street, Madison, Wisconsin. Miss J. N. Dutton, secretary, Route 8, Janesville, Wisconsin.

Reunion Notices

Mobile, at Gautier, Mississippi, August 8 to 17. Indications are that the attendance will greatly exceed that of last year. We expect to have good speakers and departmental workers. Plans are being made to serve meals free to all. Prices for tents will be published at a later date. Watch for the notice. We need the cooperation of all in the district to make this reunion a success. Whatever contributions for reunion expenses you are able to make may be sent to the undersigned and will be gratefully received. Frances C. Booker, secretary-treasurer, M. R. A. Box 39, Ocean Springs, Mississippi.

Southern Wisconsin, at Monona Park, Madison, Wisconsin, August 22 to 31. Announcements of speakers and other information will be given later. May we make it a success. J. O. Dutton.

Southwestern Kansas, at Island Park, Winfield, Kansas, July 17 to 27. For information write T. S. Williams, 1306 South Market, Wichita, Kansas.

Central Oklahoma, at Washunga, July 18 to 27. Business sessions of the conference will be called on July 25 and 26. Washunga is one mile north of Kaw Station on the Sante Fe railroad in Kay County. Earl D. Bailey, president.

Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27. While it is early in the year, yet it is not too soon to make preparation for your summer outings or vacations. The reunion experiences seem to have become a real and very necessary factor in the religious growth of the Saints. The 1924 reunion here will go down in history as the biggest and most effective community effort ever made, and whether you are visiting Saints or dwellers within the gates, plan your summer program that you may be ready to tell us your needs when we make further announcements. The service rendered the district this winter by visiting apostles and other missionaries has proved of great value, and we are assured of the presence of excellent talent at the summer gathering. John D. White, president; Cecil Hawley, secretary, 1955 Napa Avenue, Berkeley, California.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.

Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

CONTENTS

EDITORIALS:
Special Features of the Young People's Convention .....	481
The Status of Women in the Church .....	481
An International Convention .....	482
A Study of the American Home .....	482
DEPARTMENTAL:
Sacrifice .....	488
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Jerusalem to the Plain of Jericho, by Paul M. Hanson .....	484
Social Ideals in History, by A. B. Phillips .....	487
Hygiene of the School Child, by Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser .....	490
Saving Sinners, by George Cummins .....	492
CHURCH NEWS .....	493
MISCELLANEOUS .....	503
RADIO .....	504

Eastern Iowa, at Muscatine, in Weeds Park, August 1 to 10. District conference will be held on the 9th. Order your tents from G. G. Goddard, 310 Jefferson Street, Muscatine, Iowa. For further information write L. L. Allen, Fifth and Spring Streets, Muscatine, Iowa. W. W. Richards, secretary, 1320 West Fourth Street, Davenport, Iowa.

Northern Wisconsin, at Chetek, June 27 to July 6. Many efforts have been made to make this an excellent reunion, so a good educational and spiritual program is planned. Speakers will be F. M. McDowell, J. F. Garver, W. A. McDowell, and L. O. Wildermuth. Meals at our own dining hall as follows: Breakfast, 20 cents; dinner, 30 cents; and supper, 25 cents. Tents: 10 by 12, $2; 12 by 14, $3. Springs and straw will be free. Please enter your order as soon as convenient since we will have to order some of these tents from away. Send all orders to E. J. Lenox, Chetek, Wisconsin. E. J. Lenox.

Requests for Prayers

Annie McDermaid, a nonmember of Providence Bay, Ontario, has asked Brother J. H. Beaudin, pastor of that place, to request the prayers of the Saints in her behalf, and ask that those who can will fast and pray for her on June 1.

Sister Mary Fisher, of Grandfield, Oklahoma, requests the prayers of the Saints for her little grandchild, Eugene Jones, who is afflicted with eczema.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)

Spokane, at Sawyer, Idaho, June 20 to 29 (479).
 North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29 (383).
 Northern Wisconsin, June 27 to July 6 (431).
 Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (359).
 Southwestern Kansas, at Island Park, July 17 to 27 (479).
 Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (335).
 Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
 Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 (215).
 Erie Beach, August 1 to 11 (167, 263, 287).
 Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (335).
 Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 14 to 24 (119, 383).
 Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, August 15 to 24 (215).
 Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24 (479).
 Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Our Departed Ones

BLAIR.—William A. Blair, son of W. W. Blair, was born at Little Sioux, Iowa, November 1, 1862. Married Viola Blakeslee in 1885. Baptized October 9, 1887. Ordained elder in 1903; high priest, April 14, 1918; bishop, December 12, 1920. Died at Detroit, Michigan, May 2, 1924. Leaves wife and one son, Vere; also four brothers and one sister. Funeral at Saints' chapel, Galien, Michigan. Funeral in charge of Benjamin R. McGuire, assisted by K. H. Green. Sermon by S. W. L. Scott. Interment at Galien.

GALLAND.—Sarah Elizabeth, eldest daughter of A. F. and Lovica Budd, was born at Gallands Grove, Iowa, June 9, 1848. Married William W. Galland March 1, 1868. Baptized in the early 60's. Died at her home in Dow City, Iowa, April 16, 1924. Leaves two sons, Henry W. and John Edward; three daughters, Mrs. Samuel Tripp, Mrs. George Brundige, and Mrs. Ruben Huff; twenty-nine grandchildren; and twelve great-grandchildren. Her husband has preceded her. Funeral from the Saints' church. Sermon by W. A. Smith. Interment in Dow City Cemetery.

HOLDEN STAKE NEWS

Continued from page 502.)

one year. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder R. D. Weaver.

The Sunday evening hour was occupied by Elder J. A. Brendel.

Brother and Sister Al Brock and children have returned from a visit to Muskogee, Oklahoma, and Sister Ethel Beebe and family returned from Paris, Arkansas.

Sedalia

Another bright page has been added to the history of Sedalia Branch. Gathering into our Sunday school 48 strong and a good spirit prevailing, all remained for preaching service, at the close of which came the requests for baptism. Three o'clock, the time set, found 35 Saints and strangers on the bank of the small lake with 4 people ready for baptism: Brother J. C. Thistlewaite and his son Roy, Aldridge Weaver, and Dale Zuber, both boys. Confirmation service was just prior to the preaching service of the evening with 50 present. The Saints are rejoicing over the events and blessings of this day, having made the air resound to their praises and songs of joy.

Elder A. A. Weaver was the speaker at the morning hour and Elder C. L. House, of Hustonia in the evening.

Buckner

The services held by Elder R. D. Weaver at Sibley, a little town on the river a few miles north of Buckner, closed Thursday night. The skating rink, the place in which the meetings were held, was filled to its capacity to listen to Brother Weaver's farewell sermon. These meetings have done much in informing the people of our position. Six were baptized. Brother Weaver certainly did a good work here. Offers have been made by outsiders to help in building a church, should we desire to build. The assistance of the Atherton Saints was greatly appreciated. Sisters Higgins and Barksdale did splendid service in conducting the music, also Gladys Munday and Irene Barksdale in their playing.

Four of our young ladies have offered their services in assisting in the conducting of the dining hall at the State Fair in August. If the other churches respond as well it will be gratifying to the committee and swell our Stake Building and Loan Fund.

Warrensburg

The communion service at Warrensburg on Sunday the 4th was very spiritual and of encouragement to the Saints. Elder R. E. Burgess of Knobnoster was with us.

Brother Elva Raveill, of Kansas City, spent Mothers' Day with his parents here. He was the speaker Sunday morning. Dwight Curtis, the infant son of Brother Walter and Sister Lillian Curtis Johnson, was blessed.

Elder W. S. Macrae and family spent Sunday the 4th at Cameron, Missouri, visiting with relatives. On the 11th Brother Macrae spoke at Post Oak. Brother James Brendel and family and Brother Fred Furness of Lexington drove over last week and visited with friends. Sister Furness and infant daughter, who had been visiting her parents, Brother and Sister Patrick, returned with them.

We note with pleasure that two of our young people who graduated from our high schools are among those who have honorable mention for excellence of work: Ruth Woolsey, and Blanche E. Morgan. There were 36 graduates. The college at Warrensburg offers a scholarship for scholarship, good character, and prospective teaching ability. The award went to Sister Morgan. Sister Woolsey gave the class prophecy.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, MAY 25, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.

Prayer.

Anthem: "Like as a hart desireth the water brooks," Novello.

Quartet and Choir.

Sermon: Baccalaureate sermon for Nurses' Training School and Kindergarten.

President Frederick M. Smith.

Hymn.

SUNDAY, MAY 25, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.

Prayer.

Organ Solo:

Mr. Robert Miller.

Soprano Solo: "Come ye blessed," Scott.

Miss Bernice Griffith.

Violin Solo: Selected.

Miss Emma Snead.

Contralto Solo: "I heard the voice of Jesus say."

Mrs. Lulu Lentell.

Sermon: "Amusements."

Bishop James F. Keir.

Hymn.

TUESDAY, MAY 27, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

A musical program will be put on by the students of William Chrisman High School.

Educational talk.

THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

(Program by the Y. K. T. Class, Stone Church Sunday School.)

Hymn, Saints' Hymnal, Number 103.

Male Quartet:

Richard Maloney, Fred Friend, Darrel Morford, Kenneth Morford.

Mrs. Darrel Morford, accompanist.

Saxophone Solo: "I love you, dear," Stultz.

Miss Sadie Turner.

Vocal Solo: "I've been roaming," C. E. Horn.

Miss Margaret Crick.

Educational talk.

Piano Solo: "Chopin Waltz, Op. 64."

Miss Florence Koehler.

Saw Solo:

(a) "Mighty like a rose."

(b) "Annie Laurie."

Kenneth Thompson.

Hymn, Saints' Hymnal, Numbers 120 and 158.

K F F V

Broadcast from the Graceland College Radio Studio, Lamoni, Iowa. Wave length, three hundred and sixty meters.

SUNDAY, MAY 25, 1924

6.30 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical program and sermon.

TUESDAY, MAY 27, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical program by the Graceland Music Department.

THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Educational program.

Knobnoster

Communion service at Knobnoster Sunday, May 4, was fairly well attended. A good degree of the divine Spirit was present. Elder J. F. Petre was the speaker in the evening.

Mothers' Day was observed at 11 o'clock, May 11. Little Verna Holland sang a beautiful song paying tribute to mother. Many were surprised and delighted with her singing. Other appropriate numbers were given. Knobnoster has quite a number of boys and girls with talent, of which the church will hear in the future. R. E. Burgess preached the sermon. No services were held Sunday night, on account of the baccalaureate service which was held at the Christian Church.

Wayne, the eight year old son of Brother and Sister R. E. Burgess, is convalescing from an attack of pneumonia.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF LATTER DAYS

Independence Mo
1400 W. Maple
O. C. Hudson
Jan 25

among you have save scubines he shall have Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, May 28, 1924

Number 22

EDITORIAL

Blue Pencil Notes

Touching almost any question that may come up for debate extreme grounds may easily be taken on either side.

Indeed it seems quite human to take extreme grounds. The extreme position allows one to appear in sensational and apparently forceful and original attitudes. Also the extreme always appeals to the zealot and the crusader, and most of us have a little of the crusader in us—which is a fortunate thing if it can be wisely directed and not expended in some wild attempt to redeem Jerusalem by methods quite as impossible as those employed by the early crusaders.

Human nature has no such balance as the land arbitrarily exerts against the sea, saying, "Thus far and no farther." The emotional tides of individuals, groups, and mobs, once aroused, fling themselves on and on beyond any bounds of reason. Meeting counter tides in other groups a maelstrom results, as in revolutions.

This tendency to radicalism is illustrated in the current discussion of pacifism. Mars has always had his strenuous apostles. There have been pirates on the seas, pistol in hand, saber between teeth, flying the black flag against all law and order. On land there have been innumerable local bullies and many superbullies—conquerors and kaisers, their military boots deep in human blood. God wearying of their braggadocio has at times taken very drastic and much appreciated action. To Nebuchadnezzar he said, "You go and eat grass for a time and think it over." To Napoleon he said, "Stop your interminable bloodletting and go brood with the sea gulls on the rocks of Saint Helena." Wilhelm he dragged from behind the Hindenburg Line and to him said, "It is time for you to go and saw wood in Holland." These superbullies have always had a great following of enthusiasts crying out for bigger armies and navies and more and ever more guns.

But on the other side of the problem even the Prince of Peace has had his apologists who have gone far beyond the requirements of his philosophy, taken as a whole. Jesus indeed said, "Unto him that smiteth thee upon the one cheek offer also the other." And we have often observed that one who has the power to control himself and give a temperate reply to an excited attack instantly turns away wrath and is master of the situation. This may be observed even in the councils of the church.

One may take indignities himself in a manner to enhance his own dignity. But when he beholds the helpless, the widow, the orphan, the crippled subjected to brutal attack another element enters in. Jesus never said to turn the other cheek of the widow and the orphan to receive the blow. His wrath was enkindled against the oppressor. Are the men of any nation bound by gospel precept to sit by and permit the slaughter of their women and children? Is defense of them by force unchristian? Some would say, That is an absurd question. But it is raised by those church pacifists who denounce all war and refuse to except even defensive wars.

One said in argument, "If a ruffian comes upon your street to abuse or murder your boy or your neighbor's girl, you are a poor stick if you do not seek some weapon and defend them." Another replied, "That is true; on the other hand if I arm myself to the teeth and sit in my front yard shouting to the world that no one dare touch my boy or my neighbor's girl, I am inviting certain trouble."

Between these two extremes there must be a moderate and right course, among individuals and among nations. But those Methodists, Presbyterians, and others who out of their zeal and the fervor of their crusading spirit would commit their peoples to pacifism under any and every condition have not found that happy medium.

The life and liberty of the women and children are intrusted to the care of the men of a nation. When Amalickiah threatened the Nephites, such considerations moved Moroni. And the Book of Mormon says:

And it came to pass that he rent his coat; and he took a piece thereof, and wrote upon it, In memory of our God, our religion, and freedom, and our peace, our wives, and our children; and he fastened it upon the end of a pole thereof. And he fastened on his headplate, and his breastplate, and his shields, and girded on his armor about his loins; and he took the pole, which had on the end thereof his rent coat (and he called it the title of liberty), and he bowed himself to the earth, and he prayed mightily unto his God for the blessings of liberty to rest upon his brethren so long as there should a band of Christians remain to possess the land.—Alma 21: 41-43.

In the Book of Doctrine and Covenants the principle seems to be laid down that in case of aggression a nation shall make once, twice, and thrice an effort to secure peace, and if these appeals are rejected and spurned, measures of defense by force are legitimate, and the Lord promises to become a partner to resistance by force in the interests of "the children and the children's children" of a righteous people. (Doctrine and Covenants 95: 6.) Latter Day Saints need not to take extreme grounds on this question.

Of course it is to be recognized that most wars are called wars of defense by those who wage them. The Kaiser educated his people that preparation on a colossal scale must be had for defensive purposes. This, followed by the doctrine that "the best defense is an offense," paved the way for the mad rush across Belgium and deep into France.

The transparent subterfuge by which nations label every war of conquest as defensive must be met by a more enlightened world sentiment. But until there is an international police force prepared to protect the citizens of any nation that may be threatened by some national ruffian the men of every nation have a right to defend their own women, children, and homes, against the marauder.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

Commencement Season

This is the season for commencement exercises at all the schools and colleges in the country. Boys and girls, young men and young women, are being graduated into the world at the end of a period of preparation for life's activities. What the school has done to fit these students for living in a world of experiences will be testified to in later years when these young people have made their contributions to society.

Education is a process of adaptation to environment. It is the ability to meet life successfully. Education is experience vitalized and brought into use as life unfolds in all its mysteries. Education is gained in every field of human endeavor. It begins at birth and ends with death, so far as we mortals are concerned. How it is obtained depends upon the advantage offered for a person to learn much in a short period of time. The school is the agency established for this purpose. It preserves the experiences of the race and passes them on to the rising generation. The school is a successful instrument only in so far as it is able to preserve the valuable racial experiences and make it possible for the young men and women who are the recipients of its favor to apply them to present problems. The school as a veritable encyclopedia of the social heritage would be a failure if it could not be made a living thing applicable to modern conditions. When the school can give this to its students, then it has accomplished its purpose.

Serious arraignment of the modern school has often been made. The cry is that the school has not given all that is necessary for an educated man, and this indictment is not unwarranted. One of the greatest factors omitted by the public school is the lack of moral education. Our endeavor to separate the state and religion has led to the ruthless disregard of religious influences in our school life. The effort to keep sectarianism out of the schools has brought about an almost complete omission of religious life, which in itself is the most potent factor in moral education.

This is an argument for the advantages offered by the parochial school. Here moral and spiritual instruction are added to the academic work given in other schools, both of which are necessary for a complete life.

As a church we can be happy to think that efforts are being continued and new ones put forth to maintain schools under our own religious influence. Graceland has done a noble work, and in Independence the Institute of Arts and Sciences promises in time to fill a much-felt need in that community. Both schools are graduating classes at this time. They are sending young men and women out into the world equipped with the fundamentals of an education, with an attitude toward God and the church which every true Latter Day Saint should have, and with a desire for truth that will carry them on through life to a successful conclusion. This is the mission of the church-controlled school and it is with deepest satisfaction and confidence in our own institutions that we once more witness a commencement exercise.

Liberal members of the British Parliament, at a meeting held recently in the House of Commons, decided to form an "educational group," which will look after the interests of education and keep special watch upon measures of an educational character introduced in the House.—Teachers World, London.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

Cleanliness in Individual and Social Life

Radio Sermon by President Frederick M. Smith From Radio Station KFI X, Independence, Missouri, February 3, 1924.

I have been asked to preach a sermon for the benefit of my radio audience this morning. Why? Obviously in order to do my listeners good, for I take it for granted that it is generally conceded that entertainment is not the prime function of preaching, although in too many quarters it has deteriorated into this.

For a sermon to do good it must appeal to the listeners, and for it to have an appeal it must touch their lives, and for it to touch their lives it must deal with their problems and help in the solution of them.

Are those problems concerned with heaven? Perhaps. Are they concerned with now and here? Largely.

The problems, so far as the average man or woman is concerned, may be classified into individual, family, social, and public. Is it the duty of men of the cloth to deal with all these problems?

A Kansas City Judge, or rather a judge on a bench in Kansas City, recently called a minister into his court for the purpose of rebuking him for public utterances about the machinery of justice. As though the minister might have been a prisoner at bar he was lectured by the judge and told what in the opinion of the judge was the duty of the minister. "Preach the gospel," said the judge, "and stay out of public affairs, especially politics," or words to similar effect.

The question of the right of the judge to hale the minister into court for his utterances I do not here touch; but on the instruction to stay out of public affairs and especially politics, I do speak. I want a few words.

In suggesting to the minister that his duty is to preach the gospel the judge is quite right. We presume the judge had reference to the Christian religion when he referred to the gospel, the Christian philosophy. It might be well, then, to ask what was the purpose of the mission of Jesus Christ? And what is his gospel?

Mission of Christ

We may well let the Scriptures answer these two questions, for they give in terse phrases the answers to both. The mission of Jesus the Christ is set out in this remarkable language: "For God so loved the world (ensemble), that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Salvation, then, was his mission, salvation for every individual. His mission has to do with life, large life, everlasting life, life here, life beyond, for it could not otherwise be everlasting.

And the Scriptures tell us how this salvation is to be wrought: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation." The gospel saves us only as it becomes the power.

In preaching the gospel, then, we are concerned with the whole philosophy of life and with its various problems. More than that we have to do with the various problems of the individual. Life is made up of problems and our growth and our progress are determined by the solutions.

Preacher Concerned With Individual Problems

To save the individual, then, we must help him find the proper solution to all his problems, must bring into his life this power of God unto salvation. And so the preacher finds himself concerned with all the problems of the individual.

"I am come," says Jesus, "that ye might have life, and have it more abundantly."

The "abundant life" is of course made up of a large number of things, activities, sensations, thoughts, and experiences, and its chief characteristic cannot perhaps be evaluated by a single coefficient. It is complex. But we can well be assured that it will be clean. "Cleanliness is next to godliness." It is the approach to it. A clean life will be a religious one. Cleanliness of body, of person, while of importance, is not our subject this morning. That is left to the health department. Suffice it to say, the more abundant life is impossible without it. Life in its large sense is impossible without cleanliness, individually, socially, publicly, politically, nationally. There are many persons unclean in thought, foul in activity, putrid in association, who think they are enjoying life. They are not; they are existing, and think they enjoy it. Real enjoyment comes only from wholesome interaction and reaction upon others.

The gospel, then, demands we shall be clean as individuals in every sense, and it becomes the bounden duty of the minister to teach, urge, promote, demand such cleanness; to warn against the forces of evil or filth, to denounce sordidness wherever it is assailing individual safety and welfare.

Jesus came to save individuals but to save them with others; and while the gospel demands and will promote individual cleanness, it is for the purpose of bettering human conditions as a whole. Individual endeavor, individual thinking and acting always have a social content. "No man liveth to himself alone." We cannot escape the truth of that scripture.

Also Concerned With Social Problems

And so cleanness of individual should always be with its social coefficient of evaluation in sight and in mind, though mayhaps not always exactly determined. Who will undertake to say that social cleanness is not needed? Who will undertake to say and maintain that there is not much of sordidness in our social fabric to-day? And who dares to say the minister shall not be calling for its elimination?

A clean man in jeans is a larger social asset than an unclean man in broadcloth or even ermine.

And what shall we say of the need for cleanness in public men and public servants or officers? Is there need for it? For long I have been calling attention to the lowered moral tone of public service, and calling for personal morality and cleanness to be carried into public life. And what a spectacle recent developments have revealed! Men who would shrink from taking a penny from a newsboy or a neighbor will complacently rob an institution or company of hundreds, take thousands from a city, or millions from a government. Shall ministers close their eyes to corruption in high places, and say nothing when men on the bench, in the city halls, in the nation's legislature go wrong? Shall we see rotten politics corrupting ward and city, state and nation, and remain silent because some would say that politics are taboo for advocates of the gospel? So far has public morals decayed that a city's dollars in their power of purchase have become fifty-cent pieces, the state's have become quarters, and the government's, dimes. Where will it end? And shall the men of the cloth remain silent and say all such matters are extraneous to the gospel? No! There is crying need for the voice of the pulpit to be raised in a loud, clear, insistent, irresistible plea for cleanliness, for morality. Any minister who, seeing evil, fails to denounce it, is derelict in duty; he is weak in purpose if seeing a wolf steal in among the sheep he makes no effort to destroy it; he is small in character if, sensing immorality and wrong, he fears because of position to cry out against it.

Objective of the Gospel

In a quiet room in a home on S Street in our nation's capital, there lies the wasted form of one of this generation's greatest men, his voice stilled by death. Wilson's great work is done. When he sensed the falling of the Shadow of Death he turned towards his faithful physician and calmly said, "I am ready." Wonderful words, those! And as I contemplate them and their meaning to him, I cannot but sincerely, heartily wish that every minister could sense that to enable every individual, when the time comes to enter the Shadow of the Valley of Death, to say, "I am ready," epitomizes the goal of the church, the objective of the gospel. To be ready to die means one has learned to live.

Yes, the minister must preach the gospel, but the gospel to be preached must be sensed as the power of God unto salvation. The voice of the pulpit must be raised in its advocacy, the people warned, God glorified, and people, individually and collectively, be prepared to say, "I am ready."

God rest the soul of our Woodrow Wilson and help us all to be able to say as we enter the shadow, I am ready and I fear not, for blessed in the sight of God is the death of his Saints.

The Triumph of Christ

Sermon by Apostle Daniel T. Williams at the Stone Church, Independence, Missouri, Easter Sunday, April 20, 1924.

"I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore."—Revelation 1: 18.

The day is propitious, the event is impressive, the time is opportune, and the audience magnificent. The sublime music which has just greeted our ears has been intensely inspiring. A soul that will not be moved by such expression must indeed be near spiritual death. Such a splendid setting is deserving of a message of beauty and power. Let us pray that the unction of our Master will supply our lack to the blessing of his children and the glory of his name.

In the few brief moments allotted us this morning, we would speak to you, not so much concerning the surety of the resurrection of the Lord, but of the utility of his triumph. We are not so much concerned with the fact of the occurrence as with its effect upon the world of men. If the life, the death, and the resurrection of Christ have affected the experiences of the race more than the life of any other of the great teachers of all time, then we have a wholesome reason for holding his name in reverence above every other name.

The Mission of Christ

The Master came to earth with the intent only of rendering service to humanity, but we would do him a serious injustice were we to imagine that his atonement was initiated and completed within the short period of his human experience. A mission of such magnitude was not to be consummated in a few brief hours upon the cross. The task was too great for one short week of passion. No more was it to be accomplished in thirty-three and a half years of travail and suffering. The divine atonement had its beginning in the eternal world, and will continue to worlds eternal. That sublime mission was initiated in that great council in heaven, where he made his first offering by signifying his willingness to undertake the burdensome task. The work will not be finished until all has been done that can possibly be done, to the end that every soul might have salvation in the kingdom of God.

Our Lord did not come as earth's multitudes, yet he took upon himself flesh and the weakness and the limitations of the flesh. He came as the sinless one, the supernal redeemer. He came as the guide of the world to the end that having followed him we might come eventually into the broad circle of eternal power, there to receive of God's beneficence and grace in the fullest degree. He came as the "King of kings and Lord of lords" as we have heard so beautifully expressed by this magnificent choir. He did not miss his calling. He did not prostitute his opportunity. He did not profane the end to which he was designated and ordained.

His Work Accomplished

The Galilean came as a world conqueror, but not as a man of blood and iron. "I have overcome the world," was his startling announcement upon the eve of his supreme sacrifice. Such a claim at such a time would seem madness to the average man. Jesus knew, however, whereof he spoke. He had overcome the world, not in the vulgar sense of the world conqueror, but in the divine sense of overcoming. The Lord signified to the disciples in these words the possibilities which lay before them. He must also have been seeking to engender a sense of courage into their rapidly failing spirits, for they, too, had some recognition of the terrible trial which was even then throwing its mantle of gloom and darkness over them. "I have overcome the world," what words of assurance are these, uttered in the very face of a most agonizing death. If their Master had thus overcome, then "We, too," must have mused the disciples, "we, too, might conquer." They, too, might come to that high place where the resurrection would mean as much to them as it was to mean to him a few days hence.

The path of righteousness was not only pointed out by the Son of God, but he walked therein to the end that we might follow him with the greatest degree of assurance. He not only suggested the potentialities in man by precept, but demonstrated them in his own experiences. He did not alone command that men should put off the old man and take on the new, but he himself was buried in the waters of regeneration as an example to his followers. He said, "A new commandment give I unto you," but more, "He loved them even unto death." "Greater love hath no man," we hear him exclaiming, "than this, that he lay down his life for his friends," and forthwith he proved the sincerity of his pronouncement by sealing his testimony with his blood. It was a glowing promise to Martha when her Lord said, "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead yet shall he live." It is a much more significant thing, however, that the Christ should emphasize the truthfulness of his words and prove that they were not an empty boast. He consummated his life's work and demonstrated his triumph by breaking the bands of death.

His Life an Example

From that supreme moment the Lord of Glory has gone forth conquering and to conquer. Having shown us how to live and how to die, having made plain the powers of the resurrection, he now has become our advocate with the Father and pleads for those who are his own before the face of our God. And yet he continues his guidance of men by the spirit of his grace, enticing them to the ways of righteousness by the power of his love. He is "the beacon light of the centuries." In one nail-pierced hand he carries high the torch of truth, while with the other he beckons the multitudes of earth's millions forward to the conquest of those things which seek their ultimate destruction. If heeded he will lead us at last to the open doors of the kingdom of God; if disregarded ruin will be our end, and eternal death our fate.

It was to make these things a reality that Christ took up his abode with us. He not only indicates the way we should travel but increases our strength to meet the crucial spiritual sacrifices of earth's experiences. As men move forward they discover that the way of duty becomes the path of peace. The highway of righteousness is the road to power. The Master first lived his turbulent life of sacrifice and self-submergence, and having overcome the enemies of life while living he found himself the possessor of that marvelous energy which knew no limitations, which even the iron hand of death could not paralyze. "I am the resurrection and the life," is profoundly true of the Christ, but in a more limited sense it is true of every man who takes advantage of the wonderful spiritual forces resident within him.

The Human Soul Eternal

Mankind is not born to-day to pass into dark oblivion to-morrow. The human soul is as eternal as eternity itself. "The heavens indeed might shrivel up and roll together as a scroll," but the soul of man lives on. This fact is not only pregnant with wonderful possibilities, but is laden with responsibilities as well. For every soul must some day stand before the awful throne of God's judgment to answer for itself. It behooves every man to stop and consider of what stuff he is made and where he is tending. The pulsating life of the resurrection, my brother, is resident in you, but it needs encouragement lest it die and your body become a living tomb, enshrining only a sad memory of what might have been. Remember it was for this that the Son of God lived, died, and triumphed.

The sacrifice of Golgotha has been defined by one as "God's eulogy to man written in letters of crimson, a temporal manifestation of God's eternal heart-ache." If God has been so kind, so beneficent, and so all-loving as to give his only begotten Son thus for us, he can with reason demand that we in turn bear each other's burdens and thus fulfill the law of Christ. With such a ransom paid for us should we not, upon a day like this, render our eulogy, pitifully small though it be, to our God and his Christ who have done so much for us?

The history of the race is brilliantly punctuated with the unselfish deeds and glorious thoughts of good and courageous men. We would be very unappreciative if for these we were not grateful. But as we cast our eyes back over the past and see the forms of mighty men shibbolethed against the curtain of history we are made cognizant of the fact that one form overshadows and outshines all others, the Galilean, Jesus of Nazareth. To-day we lay our garlands at his feet and crown him King. But, my good friends, this should be our daily task, not merely an annual event. He should be acclaimed in our every thought, word, and deed. Every day should be an Easter Sunday in some very practical way; every day a resurrection to a more abundant life.

The path of truth has been lighted with many a flaming beacon, and some have walked the paths of peace, which are the paths of righteousness. But none have approached the apex of holiness and power attained by Jesus Christ, that was demonstrated in his being "the first fruits of them that slept." He alone was without sin. Others have expounded the ways of life, and a few have lived sainted lives, but it was left for our Lord to demonstrate in every particular the philosophy of sanctity.

Influence of Other Great Men

We glance over a few lives and note some accomplishments: Socrates was the teacher of immortality and the father of philosophy. Plato has been called "a plank from the wreck of paradise cast up on the shores of idolatrous Greece." Cato might be termed the flower of Roman virtue. Epictetus is designated as the "darling of the immortals." Marcus Aurelius is known as the white soul of paganism.

So we might pass through a list of names whose possessors have become truly great, and at the end we would discover no peer of the Christ. His name stands at the head of the catalogue of the world's noblemen. Others have their weaknesses and sins, but not so with the Christ! He and he alone stands as the divine man of the ages. Others did good, and to a degree revealed God to men, but Christ was the supreme revelation of his Father's will.

The preeminency of Christ's leadership has been recognized by men of renown the world over. "Christ," says Von Muller, "lifted the gate of the centuries off its hinges with his bleeding hands." Ah, so he did, and gave freedom to the captives. He wrote liberty over the door of the slave market and purity over the brothel. He gave honor to womanhood and a divine reality to manhood. He inscribed "hope" over the very portals of hell itself and not, as falsely visioned by Dante, "All hope abandon ye who enter here."

Among the last words of Carlisle are these:

The tidings of the most important event ever transacted in this world is the life and death of the Divine Man of Judea, at once the symptom and cause of innumerable changes to all peoples of the world.

How true is this! There is no part of the world to which we might turn our eyes but there is witness of such change. The manifestations of such results are to be seen in every sphere of action. The memorials that have been lifted to his name are exceedingly more beautiful and far more enduring than any monuments of marble which might be reared by the devoted labor of his worshipers. The artist has paid his devotion in the work of his hands and heart. The musician has distilled his own soul in the harmony of his praise. The orator, in the burning zeal of his panegyric, has unburdened his soul of laudations and homage. The astronomer has seen "his fiery footprints in the flaming worlds of night," and the geologist has read his creative acts on the "rock tablets of the world."

Crown of Renown

The cross of shame has long since been exchanged for the crown of renown in the eyes of men. There is one thing of much more import to the Christ, however, than the fact of world recognition. It is that he be enshrined in the hearts of earth's children. He has deflected men's souls toward him when they seemed to have been given only to their own folly and deceit. It was Julian, the apostate Emperor of Rome who, having fallen, snatched up the dust mingled with his own life's blood, and throwing it into the air, cried, "Galilean, thou hast conquered." Napoleon, from his little rocky island of exile, Saint Helena, sends forth the word, "I know men, and Jesus Christ is not a man." If in some strange way the Lord of Glory has compelled homage on the part of such as these we need not be troubled about the fulfillment of his pronouncement that "Every knee shall bow and every tongue confess" his kingship.

The ancient iron crown of Lombardy was held in high esteem because it was supposed to have been made of a nail from the cross of Calvary. When crowned king of Jerusalem Godfrey would not consent to wear a crown of gold where his Master had worn a crown of thorns. Such testimonials of respect and honor have their reflection in the national mandates of Christendom. The greatest nations of the world grace their state papers with the phrase, "In the year of our Lord." May the time hasten when the multitudes of men will do him homage in a much more vital sense.

All of these results have come as the consequence of the universal commission, "Go ye into all the world." If such stupendous accomplishments have followed the endeavors of those ancient missionaries, like effort should be fruitful with like rewards to-day. The divine mandate, "Go ye," is just as binding now as it was at the time of its first issuance. To you then, my brethren, and to me comes the responsibility of world opportunity. It may be indeed that all of us cannot be missionaries in the actual sense, but there are hardly any of us who cannot to some degree be ambassadors for our God by proxy. If we ourselves are prohibited from actual participation we can send, or at least assist in sending, another to the task. This should not be considered as a duty only, rather it is one of the sublime privileges associated with the church of Christ. Every member should be a participant by warning his neighbor.

The Lord of Love

The success of all Christian endeavor must of necessity find its roots in Christ's own triumph. Force was never made the basis of his effort. He stands out preeminently as the Lord of love. "I, if I be lifted up from the earth," cries he, "will draw all men unto me." The new commandment is underscored with his own red blood. His tears of anguish were shed over the Holy City while in sorrow and agony he lamented, "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace, but now they are hid from thy eyes." We sorrow and sacrifice for those we love, and because Christ had conceived a great love for men he of necessity was possessed of a great sorrow when they refused to heed his warnings. By plunging on their uninstructed way the end could be none other than destruction. The wail of one of the previous prophets of Israel must have been in his heart if not upon his lips, "Why will ye die, O house of Israel."

He wept o'er the Holy City.
He wept o'er a loved one dead.
He knoweth our every trial;
And seeth the tears we shed.

Before we, as individuals or as a church, can render a high and eminent service to the world, we must have born in our souls an overburdening love for men. Until such time we will not give ourselves in a service of sacrifice. We must have a spiritual resurrection to undertake such a glorified task. The undertaking must be conceived of grace, born of love, and reared in the atmosphere of heaven. An army devoted to the conquest of the world, possessed with a burning ambition for the consummation of the brotherhood of man, must and will sense the stirring energy of that first Easter morn. A vital resurrection will have taken hold of their spirits, and their souls will be moved to their very depths.

A Vitalized Religion

As Christ has broken the bands of death, so must we come forth from the darkness of sin and selfishness. To this end a vitalized religion is essential. There are some who would prefer the human Christ to the divine Christ, but there is a demonstration in the risen Lord necessary to humanity. Some there are who would prefer the ritualistic Christ to the vitalized Christ, but, my friends, ritualism is but a dead form without the spirit of the Master. This morning we present for your consideration and worship the resurrected, the revealed, and ever-revealing Christ. He alone can give meaning to our baptisms and anointings. Men in responding to the Christ must respond vitally and not ritualistically. This great Lord, if obeyed, will turn us from the ways of abysmal despair and will guide our feet in the upward way which leads to the mount of God's holiness; he will shield us from sodomic lightnings and rain about our heads the manna of heaven.

The story of Christ is read with equal fervor by the potentate in his palace and the peasant in his hovel. He did not come like Buddha as a prince, nor like Confucius as a philosopher, nor like Mohammed as a warrior, nor yet like Zoroaster as a priest. It was as the humble carpenter of Nazareth that the Son of God began his mission. His name is effectual the world over because his sympathies were universal. He established his kingdom, not upon the ever-shifting sands of treacherous uncertainty, but upon the living rock of truth and love.

So many have laid their garlands at the feet of Jesus it would seem that however great, however beautiful we would strive to make our offering, it would appear insignificant among the mass of those much more attractive and far more to be desired. Yet, as the mite of the poor widow was recognized among the far richer gifts of the affluent, so might our humble homage and devotion call down the divine benediction of his grace. We mingle our voices with the voices of past generations as with the burning incense of heart devotion, we waft our praise to the heavenly courts on the wings of song:

All hail the power of Jesus' name!
 Let angels prostrate fall;
 Bring forth the royal diadem,
 And crown him Lord of all.

Christian Democracy

Lecture given by Thomas L. Clark in the Alpine Theater, Pumasutawney, Pennsylvania, April 27, 1924.

Much has been said and written; much time and money have been spent by individuals, by societies, and by nations, to bring about such an adjustment of political, social, and economic conditions, that national, international, and world-wide peace might follow. This ideal is indeed a worthy one, but can never be fully accomplished or realized until nations and governments become impregnated with the teachings of the Man of Galilee, of whom angelic hosts sang: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, and good will toward men." Nations have enacted hundreds of laws, and are still making them by the score, but with all, they have failed to improve upon the ten commandments and the golden rule.

God made man upright; he made the law to govern man perfect; but as Solomon says: "He [man] hath sought out many inventions." Christ's teachings are all the world needs. The great fact that is to save the world from its inherent wrongs is not that Jesus is the Son of God; that he died on the cross, or that he rose from the grave; but that his teachings are true and, if adhered to by individuals and nations, will prove to be a lasting panacea in overcoming wars and perplexities, and will bring about a condition under which men shall be able to live in perfect peace; in an atmosphere of true love and brotherhood.

Reconstruction of the World

The reconstruction of the world will only be satisfactorily accomplished when the laws of Christ become the laws of our country, and when the seats of our legislature are filled with men who are believers in these principles themselves.

The oil scandal at our national headquarters has brought the fact to light that trusted leaders of our national affairs are playing politics for personal aggrandizement and with no thought of the welfare of the public. Until our national leaders are more definitely consecrated to the purpose of human life, and to the conserving, constructive, healing, enriching, and helpful agencies and activities of government, malfeasance in office is only a matter of degree. The resources which God himself has made should be considered as God's gift to all the people, beyond the power of any man or group of men to take and hold.

The conditions of the times demand an awakening of spirit and a searching of conscience. We are living in a materialistic age, an age of increasing wealth, an age with but little respect for God's law, which teaches the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. In many cases do we find those identified with the so-called Christian forces, living and conducting their business life in a way that is in open rebellion against the principles of Christian democracy. When conditions such as this are found, what can we expect of those not making any claim of religion?

Remedy for Social Ills

The real remedy for the scandalous condition in public and private life, then, is the promotion of the true religion of the Man of Galilee, which provides that no man shall be in bondage to another, and that all shall receive according to their just wants and needs. In speaking upon this subject of Christian democracy, we are reminded of the statements of some of our leading statemen and sociologists. Woodrow Wilson says:

The sum of the whole matter is this, that our civilization cannot survive materially, unless it be redeemed spiritually. It can be saved only by becoming permeated with the Spirit of Christ, and being made free and happy by the practices which spring out of this Spirit. Only thus can discontent be driven out, and all the shadows lifted from the road ahead.

Charles Ellwood says:

We have no record of a civilization which long endured which did not have a religious setting for its customs; nor of any which long endured after this religious setting was dissolved. The death of religion would accordingly mean the death of all higher civilization. Social science has discovered no substitute for religion as a means of social control. We must have a Christian world, or we will have a social chaos.

George Washington said: "Good government depends upon religion and morality among the people."

Realizing the truthfulness of the statements of these leading men, then remembering that to-day six out of every ten Americans profess no religion at all, and that the majority of our children are being educated in schools in which religious instruction is forbidden, it should not be hard for us to discover the course of procedure we must take to clean up politics, and make the world safe, free, and happy under the principles of Christian democracy. The first and most necessary move toward reform is a deeper and more consistent interest in the religious formation of the child, for he is the citizen of tomorrow. If the child finds no religion in his early environment in the home and school, in all probability he will not reserve a place for it in the environment of his later life; at least statistics of the past prove he has not up to this time. Though we as a nation may boast of our moral leadership of the world, we must not become blinded to the fact that if religious affiliation can be taken as an indication we have not set as high a value upon Christianity as a nation thus making such a boast should.

Unless we begin with the child, giving him a training which will result in an enlightened intelligence, and a will, determined to embrace what is good and avoid what is evil, all the forces of government will be powerless to check the spread of public and private corruption. Investigators may be able to uncover official dishonesty, even to punish it, but what can they do to prevent its recurrence?

Brotherhood of Man

The brotherhood of man is a phantasy of hell when established upon any other foundation than those principles advocated by Christ in his sermon on the mount, among which the principles of loving and giving stand out prominent. These two virtues are the underlying principles of what I am proud to call "Christian Democracy." Unless selfishness is destroyed and all are prepared to do unto others as they would that men should do unto them, discord and strife will continue to the end.

Even modern churchanity is not giving to the world what Jesus gave. This fact is recognized by many of the leaders of religious thought in the various organizations.

We might ask: What is true religion? Is it ceremony? Is it doctrine? Is it church organization? If you permit me to answer those questions, I would say: Absolutely no! However, lest I might be misunderstood in making such a statement, I will explain. Jesus established a church, an organization consisting of apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, deacons, bishops, sevens, etc. He taught certain doctrinal principles such as faith, repentance, baptism by immersion for the remission of sins, the laying on of hands, the resurrection of the dead, eternal judgment. He taught the sacrament of the holy communion, marriage, etc. Certain spiritual gifts were given to the church, as: prophecy, tongues, healing, miracles, etc. These, to my mind, are just as indispensable to-day as in the days of Christ. No church can boast of being the church of Christ in which these things are not found, and yet I do not believe they are religion. They constitute the church of Christ, that is true, but they only justify themselves in my mind in so far as they help or assist in the development of the human soul, for that to me is true religion; or as Paul expresses the thought: "Unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

Christianizing America

If we are going to make America Christian, we must begin with our youth, and teach the gospel of Christ to them pure and simple, in terms of preparing them to live, rather than in terms of preparing them to die. Young people are not thinking of dying, and consequently are not interested in any doctrine preached in those terms. What they are asking the church is: What have you got that will help us here and now? What can we offer that will assist us in meeting the conditions of present-day living? What principles have you to teach us that will increase our joy in life, and enlarge our capacity for service?

If you will carefully analyze the religious teachings of Jesus Christ you will be forced to the conclusion that he taught a practical gospel. The book of Matthew contains one hundred one statements dealing with the social life, only nine with doctrine and fourteen with the hereafter. To me this is overwhelming evidence that Christ's interest was primarily to teach men how to live that life might give to them its purest joys.

It is the solemn duty of every true servant of Christ to-day to teach the youth of America that, regardless of the benefits that come in the next world as a result of their obedience to the principles of Christ's doctrine, they should give ample consideration to them anyway because of the temporal benefits derived from their application to our lives. We must teach them as Paul taught: that if they "love life" and want to enjoy it in its fullness; if they want to see "good days" and many of them, they must take Christ as their guide. We must teach them that to be successful in business Christ must be taken into partnership. We must convince our youth that religion is indispensable to human society, and that to build human life upon another basis is to erect civilization upon sand. Religion must be made attractive.

Developing the Human Love

When I say that the purpose of religion is to develop the human soul, I wish to be understood that this does not necessarily mean the suppression or destruction of the great racial tendencies. Some long-faced, sanctimonious Christians of the past have held that the purpose of religion was to destroy all that man liked and naturally wanted to do. Anything that was pleasant was wrong and sinful, and anything that was bitter and disagreeable was what we must do to have religion. Children's play and laughter were suppressed. Young people's social functions were discouraged. Not long ago I heard a person say: If young people studied the Bible as much as they should, they would not have time for parties.

However, in the trend of Christian progress there has dawned upon the minds of men a broader vision of religion. We see now clearly that its purpose is not to suppress, but to direct, to develop, to control the great natural tendencies of the human soul. When the youth of America catches sight of this broad, comprehensive, and rich vision of true religion, I have confidence and faith in them to believe that they will swear their allegiance thereto, and as a nation we will emerge from our present condition of social chaos into the dawning of a new era which will be fraught with Christian brotherhood and co-operant good will.

Application of Gospel to Life

The gospel of Jesus Christ is the only law the application of which, to your life, will develop every phase of your nature. You cannot receive life's full joy without the development of the moral, physical, spiritual, and intellectual sides of life.

Moral Development

Webster defines morality as meaning "external virtue." A moral man, however, is not one who only outwardly appears righteous, but one whose life is not fettered and enfeebled by those hideous sins which are engendered by vice and practiced in solitude. It is clearly visible that much of our American manhood is morally unclean. The present generation shows many men of small body and weak principles. Dissipations and indiscretions of all kinds are working ruin.

What is the best or the proper course to pursue to reach the desired end, even the salvation of our race and preservation of our manhood? Wholesome legislation will help, evangelization will help, reform organizations will help, but I contend that the one paramount need of the hour is a sane, practical, and universal application of the words of Jesus: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." When our children are taught the facts and laws of social and sex hygiene, one of the most fertile sources of crime and degradation will be removed. Tennyson says, "Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control, these three alone lead life to sovereign power." Ignorance is no more the mother of purity than it is of religion. Enlightenment can never work injustice to him who investigates. Nature has no secrets, and why should we? The subject of sex is as pure as God is pure. If sex knowledge and laws are not pure, then God has arranged a reproductive scheme the knowledge of which is sinful and leads to sexual sinning, and in this event God would be responsible for all the sins of this nature. Do you want to concede that?

The old maxim that "knowledge is power" is a true one, but there is still a greater truth: "Knowledge is safety," safety amid the physical ills that beset mankind, and safety amid the moral pitfalls that surround so many young people. This is the great crying demand of the age. False modesty must be relegated to the past, and sex education must come forward and receive our attention. The only care we need to experience is in teaching wisely.

Marriage Relations

The number of unhappy marriages and divorces in the world to-day proves to us that something is wrong, and I trace this trouble back only to find that in most cases it is due to inadequate or improper education or youthful training. Men have not revered womanhood and held it in the high esteem they should. In the mind of the average man, there is no distinction between matrimony and maternity. In many cases woman has become man's slave instead of helpmate.

In their subjugation women have not been brave enough, strong enough, pure enough to bring forth great sons and daughters. Abused soil brings forth stunted growths. An abused motherhood brings forth a low order of humanity. Great beings come forth at the call of high desire. Fearless motherhood goes out in love and passion for justice to all mankind. It brings forth fruit after its own kind. When mankind will properly love, marry, and then rightly generate, carry, nurse, and educate its children, it will in deed and truth carry out the holy purpose of its Creator.

Physical Development

Physical development comes only through the proper care of the physical system. We must find out what kind of food is good for us and learn to like it. We must not be addicted to the use of alcohol, tobacco, drugs, narcotics, or stimulants. One of the ancient apostles says our bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost; he that defileth that temple, him will the Lord destroy.

Spiritual Development

Spiritual development can only be made by those who are willing to comply with the full and perfect law of God, which is known and spoken of by his church as the doctrine of Christ. This does not mean that you shall become a fanatic, but as a result of your thirst for the infinite, that your intelligence may be touched by the divine Spirit's influence, and thus be brought to see and know God as a personal being, to whom you must give an account for the deeds done in the body.

He that has been touched by the divine influence whereof I speak, will bid farewell to hatred and to selfishness, and will permit love and sacrifice to reign upon the throne of his soul, not alone as ideals, but also as actual principles which will find expression in every act of human relationship. He will realize that property has its duties as well as its rights, and thus realizing, he will be willing to say to his brother in the words of the Man of Galilee: "All mine are thine, and thine are mine."

Jesus said by implication in his sermon on the mount, that the problems of economic life are at once the problems of the Christian religion; and I contend that any religion without it is crude, incomplete, and inadequate to satisfactorily meet the problems of human relationship. Such would not be the church of Jesus Christ, and will never receive his recognition. God, speaking to his people in these latter times, has given them direction to organize themselves with a permanent and everlasting order, and to appoint every man his stewardship. Under this covenant, and under this covenant alone, can discontent, selfishness, and discord be driven out, and all the shadows lifted from the road ahead.

Intellectual Development

Last, but not least, we reach the intellectual development, which means the development of the mind so as to have capacity for the higher forms of knowledge and thought. Every human development—even the spiritual—depends upon this latter one. Only to the extent that we develop our intellectual faculties shall we be able to see God moving about in his orb, and be able to understand the mysteries of his kingdom and the laws given to govern the same. "Add to your faith virtue; and to virtue, knowledge," said the Apostle Peter, while Solomon said, "The simple believeth every word; but the prudent [wise] man looketh well to his going." Colton says: "It is a curious paradox, that precisely in proportion to our own intellectual weakness, will be our credulity as to the mysterious powers assumed by others."

Education is the act or process of cultivating the powers of the mind so as to be able to work in harmony with law or rules. Through the process of education we get our thoughts right, and thought is the mother or creator of our deeds and acts; therefore if we can instill into the minds of the youth of America the principles of the brotherhood of man, this Nation shall under God, during the next generation, have a new birth of freedom.

The Land of Zion

America has always held the moral leadership of the world, and I predict that she is going to continue to hold it. The principles of Christian democracy and brotherhood that were brought to light with the restoration of the church of Christ in 1830 by angelic hands, are going to wend their way into the hearts of the American people, until from this Nation, whose Constitution was written by wise men raised up of God for that very purpose, an influence shall go out that shall command more than ever before the admiration and respect of the nations of earth.

This land of America is a chosen land of the Lord, a land concerning which God has made greater promises than any other. In the sacred history of the aborigines of America, the Lord is quoted as saying:

But behold, this land, sayeth God, shall be a land of thine inheritance, and the Gentiles shall be blessed upon the land. And this land shall be a land of liberty and freedom unto the Gentiles, and there shall be no kings upon the land, who shall raise up unto the Gentiles. And I will fortify this land against all other nations.

However, let us not be content to dream of some Utopian future, but let us begin now to apply these principles on the campus of real brotherhood, to make fraternities and churches a training ground for wide friendship and limitless brotherhood, and thus hasten the day when our ideals shall be in practice, and when our dreams shall come true.

May we, amid the troubles and perplexities of these last days, have our eyes touched by divine power, that we may see as John saw, the new heaven and the new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness, and may this vision of brighter times before us inspire us with faith and courage to press on manfully through the clouds of trouble and social chaos that may now seem to threaten our peace.

Let us determine to stand for the principles of Christian democracy, which include the worth of each and the brotherhood of all, and let us do our utmost to convince our youth of their truth. Let the ministers of all churches, and all men of principle and executive ability, assist in leading this youth movement in America. Let us go out and apply Jesus' way of life to clean up politics, to build a new industry, and to transform business from the dominant motive of private gain to that of public service. Let us go out to transform our race, creed, and church antagonisms into one brotherhood of cooperative good will.

Equality and Fellowship

By C. A. Smurthwaite

Americans have grown up with the idea that "all men are created equal" merely because the Constitution says so. In this respect we are like most textual preachers who use texts of Scripture as if they were literal facts, rather than the expression of hoped-for ideals.

That we were all created equal is a fine sentiment, but it is little more, for there is in reality little more in it than fancy. It is what we would like to be, rather than what we are.

It is not true that all men are created equal. We know that they are not by actual experience. If we are acquainted with history, we know it never has been true in the history of the race. And optimistic indeed is he who believes it can ever be true. All men will have to become biologically equal before actual equality can be realized, and that is probably an impossibility.

Is it true in the United States, though it is written into our Constitution? If it is not, then it is not true of any nation. And we know it is not. Is it true in the church of which we are members? We know it is not, in spite of the fact that the new birth in Christ is obviously intended to make for our equality.

Undoubtedly the idea prevailing in the church that we are created equal comes from our constitutional expression, and we have interpreted that equality to mean equality in clothing, food, houses, in a word, sameness, or uniformity in temporalities. My reading of religious attempts to realize what has been called equality leads me to this conclusion. And I know of no one single such attempt that has been successful. If the equality ideal in the church is simply that, then I have no hesitancy in saying that if the church goes to pieces it will be upon that question. Sameness, uniformity, equality in things, is revolting.

Equality in Spirit, Not in Things

To realize equality in things demands despotism in government, the unquestioned power to take away from some and give to others. This needs only to be stated to find admission in truth. It would be a denial of all freedom. It can never be allowed by an intelligent people. A community of goods has been a failure wherever tried. It could not be otherwise than a failure under the most beneficent administration. It was so in the early days of the Christian society, and resulted in poverty among the Jerusalem saints whose wants had finally to be provided for by Paul's charitable appeals to his Corinthian congregations. And it will be noted that Paul makes his appeals on the grounds of fellowship rather than command (2 Corinthians 8: 8-15), as he also taught them in his first Corinthian letter, i. e., that all should suffer when one part suffers and all should have joy when one part is joyful. Equality in spirit must be the basis of the social life of Christ's people. And with this equality in spirit this fellowship will come naturally and freely, rather than by way of command.

Woodrow Wilson, in The New Democracy, placed the hope of the "new freedom" in unrestrained and unlimited competition. He writes: "Put all the business of America upon the footing of economy and efficiency, and then let the race be to the strongest and the swiftest." Here Mr. Wilson states the fact that we are not all created equal. "Strongest" and "swiftest" means inequality of creation. And his proposition puts humanity upon an ultra-pagan basis. We are all willing to agree that monopolies should be done away with and that all men should have equal access to the natural opportunities of the earth; but with this done we know the results would be widely unequal, for men to do not have the same ability to "go to it." A man may have masterful ability in a direction that in its very nature cannot make him money. Another man seems to have no ability other than to make money. This is what the purely individualistic reformer forgets. Mr. Wilson evidently forgot it.

The Law of Fellowship

None of us want a purely individualistic nor a purely communistic government. The United States never could be transformed into communism, for that means despotism, and it could not result in anything else. We have gone too far into freedom ever to go back to despotism in government, either in state or church. But we have to learn to make use of government for the good of all, both in state and church, by living in harmony with Christ's law of fellowship. We must live as good citizens by restraining monopolies, by restricting profiteering by capitalists, by securing the abolition of war, by aiding the common education of the people up to the highest standards, by aiding the weak to become strong, the ignorant to become intelligent, and the indigent to become self-supporting.

We can and must make the law of fellowship paramount in the church while realizing that it can never become complete so long as there is lack of Christian fellowship outside.

A series of nature studies is broadcast each week from Pennsylvania State College. Studies of birds, trees, and flowers, animals, insects, and even rock formations are included in these talks.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

LETTERS

To Preach at Japanese Nursery Near Mobile, Alabama

From a Letter to the First Presidency

MOBILE, ALABAMA, May 3.—This week I have visited some twenty-six nonresident members in different parts. They all seemed to be strong in the faith, though some of them had not been to church for months, and some of them for years.

I was called back to Mobile yesterday to preach the funeral sermon of a nonmember. I go to-night to preach at a new place some ten miles from Mobile, at the Japanese nursery. This Japanese man heard me preach a funeral sermon and became very much interested, and some time ago his little daughter died. He sent for me to come and preach her funeral sermon, but I was over in Florida and did not get the word. One of our members who works for him on the nursery farm says he is very anxious to hear some preaching.

ALMA BOOKER.

Detroit District Conference Held

DETROIT, MICHIGAN, May 14.—The semiannual conference of the Detroit District, which convened at First Detroit Church, Fourth and Holden Avenue, is now a matter of history. Clouds and rain had a tendency to make for dreariness, but within the house of God, where his people met to do business in the interest of the kingdom, was peace and the sunshine of heaven.

There was only one thing to sadden the hearts of members of the district and visitors, and that was the absence of a familiar face removed by the hand of death, that of our beloved brother and bishop, W. A. Blair. While we mourn our loss, yet our grief is assuaged to an extent in the thought that he has earned a goodly reward, and we have every reason to believe that peace is his lot. The conference directed that a letter of condolence be sent to the bereaved members of the family, and a committee consisting of W. L. Bennett and J. R. Grice were selected to draft the letter.

Present Play

As a conference preliminary the Flint local Department of Recreation and Expression gave a play Friday evening in the basement of the church, entitled, "Welcome home, Jimmy." This play was above the average and speaks well for the Flint Dramatic Club. They are to be complimented on their effort, a large part of the success of which is due to the direction of Mrs. Silas C. Robinson.

Good Spirit at Conference

The Saturday morning prayer service, held at 9 o'clock, was presided over by W. M. Grice and Wesley Aldread. A splendid spirit was present.

Conference opened at 10 a. m. with District President K. H. Green and his associate, M. W. Liston, in the chair. A marked degree of the Spirit was felt during the singing of the opening song, "Consecration." This good Spirit prevailed throughout the entire conference.

Organization

The district presidency, associated with Elder E. J. Gleazer, of the Quorum of Twelve, were chosen to preside and given power to make all further arrangements for the good of the conference.

Reports brought out many encouraging features. Statistics showed a net gain of 95, 34 of which were by baptism, making a total membership in the district of 2,111.

The conference decided to set permanent dates and left the arrangement in the hands of the district presidency, same to be made after consultation with the several surrounding districts, also the First Presidency and Quorum of Twelve. It is thought this will facilitate matters, especially in the interest of general church officers traveling to places where conferences are to be held. This is a forward step, we believe, and one that will conserve finances as well. The discussions brought out valuable information for all and made the conference of an educational nature.

Musical Program

Saturday evening a musical session was held under the direction of Mrs. Myrtle Holden, of Flint. Several musical numbers were rendered which were uplifting in their nature and showed exceptional merit. Detroit District is to be congratulated on having so many splendid musicians. May God bless such talent to the good of the work, for it is surely needed; and what a help, both to the local and missionary arms of the church!

Sunday Services

Sunday's sessions were as follows: 8 a. m., prayer service in the upper auditorium; 9 o'clock, prayer service in lower auditorium, the Spirit of God being present in power at both services; 10.45, Sunday school session in charge of local and district officers. Most of this session was devoted to program work. Music was furnished by the junior choir under direction of Sister Henrietta Davis. These youthful voices were inspiring to all and showed diligence in training. Apostle E. J. Gleazer gave a talk to mothers. This talk carried with it the same inspirational touch which came during the service of song, and was very appropriate for the occasion, Mothers' Day. He left the thought that the highest, most prominent place that can be occupied by woman in the affairs of men and nations is the position of mother. "No home can exist without a mother," he said. V. D. Schaar, district superintendent, gave a wonderful talk on "Our responsibility as the people of God," and what will be required of us would we be permitted to stay in Zion.

At 2.15 p. m., song service was held in the upper auditorium, followed by preaching by Apostle Gleazer. We heard many compliments on his effort. Elder J. R. Grice addressed an overflow meeting in the lower auditorium at the same hour. Apostle Gleazer spoke again in the evening, both efforts being well received. We will welcome him again to our midst.

Joint Reunion Committee

The Joint Committee for reunion met during the conference to organize their work and subcommittees for the coming reunion next summer. It is expected that reunion will be held in a better place, though in the same city.

It might be well to add that meals were served by a near-by restaurant. No complaints were offered either as to quality or quantity of food, and the nominal sum of thirty-five cents seemed to be satisfactory to all. The proprietor told the pastor, Elder Kuykendall, that "it was no trouble to identify our people because they carried a different look than the others who frequented the place." Whether this was complimentary or otherwise, all seemed to be well satisfied, and felt that the conference visitors had been well cared for.

JOHN GRICE,
JOHN HALL, Press Committee.

Five Baptized Following Meetings at Hot Springs, Arkansas

HOT SPRINGS, ARKANSAS, May 4.—The Saints here have just closed a two week's meeting. Brethren J. F. Riley and James Smith were the speakers. They both gave some fine sermons.

There were five baptized and others seem to be interested. Sister Laura Emde was here a couple of days. She gave a good talk on Sunday school work and organized the Department of Women while here.

The Saints have a fine little Sunday school. They gave an Easter program and an egg hunt which were real nice. They are preparing for another program on Mothers' Day.

Hot Springs will be glad to welcome any of the missionaries who come this way this summer.

Alice Sanders.

Cottage Meetings Held at Hilo, Hawaii

From a Letter to the First Presidency

HILO, HAWAII, April 25.—Just a line or two to let you know that we are busily engaged in the Lord's work at Hilo. We, Brother Prescott Foo, his wife, and I, came here on the 21st, and at present we are engaged in holding cottage meetings where opportunity offers. Brother Foo has some relatives and personal friends through whom we are getting a chance to introduce the angel's message to the people of this place. Our meetings have been very interesting since some of our hearers have kept us busy answering questions for some time after services.

However, we are enjoying it and are anxious to get the right kind of a start here. Those who are interested at present are among the best people of the community, and we think will be of value to the work.

D. J. Williams.

Spokane District Reunion to Be Held June 20 to 29

LEWISTON, IDAHO, May 5.—The eighth annual reunion of the Spokane District will convene June 20 to 29 at Sawyer, Idaho. The year of 1923 is now a part of a great book called history. On its pages is credited to the Spokane District the best reunion that about four hundred of the Saints of the northwest had ever attended, according to their own testimonies.

Can you picture two hundred fifty or five hundred coming to the dining tent and being treated just like members of a family in a home? All were privileged to enjoy the same food regardless of their dress or the amount they had for financial help. No charges were made; all gave what they could and used according to their needs. Over seven thousand meals were served, all one could eat, at an average cost of less than eight cents per meal, but the program was worked on for a year to obtain these results.

Not one thing was sold on the ground, no luxury stand to permit some children buying what their playmates could not afford. Everything was bought and paid for through one fund. The same plans improved will be used at the coming reunion. No time has been lost since the closing of the last reunion, working and planning until now the storehouse is pretty well filled for the big occasion.

Beautiful Location

The reunion ground at Sawyer, Idaho, is a beautiful grove in nature's evergreen forest on the banks of the picturesque Pend O' Rille River. Two railroads are within one mile of the ground. One can either take the Great Northern to LaCleda or the Spokane International to Sawyer. If in an auto watch the sign boards from Rathdrum or from Sandpoint.

When you come, remember we want and will expect you to attend the meetings as often as the eating tent, for the Bible says that man is of a dual nature, and food for both body and spirit is not served at either one or the other. Read Luke 4: 4.

Good speakers will be there and everyone must get the good of their presence and talks. You will go home with a new vision of the work and be a bigger and better booster for your branch. Also you will be stronger and more able to withstand the blows of the adversary.

Those who wish may write me at Lewiston, Idaho, Box 627.
Charles C. Crabb.

Midland District Conference Held

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND, May 1.—The third annual conference of the Midland District convened at the Saints' meeting room, Revell Street, Clay Cross, Derbyshire, from April 19 to 21.

On Saturday a business session was held. The chief item was the appointing of officers for the ensuing year. Brother J. E. Meredith was chosen president.

Sunday was a day long to be remembered by the Saints. The first meeting was held at 9.05 a. m. at which a round table talk on "The stewardship plan" was the subject; after which a preaching service of ten-minute speeches.

A fellowship service was held in the afternoon in which a good portion of the Spirit was present. In the latter part of the meeting Brother Baldwin gave the Saints a patriarchal blessing as a people.

An ordination service was held in the evening in which Brother Newport was ordained to the office of elder, Brother A. H. Trenan to the office of priest, and Brother Arthur Norton to the office of teacher.

A preaching service followed, and a duet was rendered. Brother Baldwin was the speaker, and he delivered a good sermon on the Book of Mormon and Joseph Smith, the chief theme being, "Which church shall I join?"

On Monday a trip to Matlock was arranged, one of the beauty spots of England. We had a glorious day and all went home happy, feeling we had spent a good spiritual time together.

Mavis Meredith.

Placerville Sunday School Has Easter Picnic

PLACERVILLE, COLORADO, April 21.—The Sunday school here enjoyed a very pleasant Easter Sunday. The school gathered at the church as usual at 10.30 a. m., but instead of holding the regular Sunday school services, a picnic had been planned. Through the kindness of Mr. Bivens the lunch baskets and seventeen little tots were piled into the car and taken to a beautiful cañon about a mile from town, where an abundant supply of colored Easter eggs and candies had been prepared by a committee of the school.

These were hidden in nests all up and down the sides of the cañon during the early morning. When all arrived the hunt for the nests began and the excitement and joy was great among the big folks as well as the children. After the hunt a real camp dinner was prepared and spread. It is needless to say that all enjoyed themselves immensely. There were about thirty present, several being absent because of sickness.

After the picnic dinner, games were played and a social time enjoyed until late afternoon. The weather was one of those fine sunny Colorado days, so much to be enjoyed in the open. The school plans to hold a number of such outings during the summer months, believing they have a tendency to stimulate the desire to attend Sunday school, and are much enjoyed and healthful as well.

WILLIAM E. BOYD.

Missionary Visits Saints in Wales

NEWTON HEATH, MANCHESTER, ENGLAND, April 25.—As it is interesting to read the accounts of others in various parts of the world, I thought a line from us might be appreciated.

Having labored the past two years in Bradford, Yorkshire, in an endeavor to build up a band of valiant men and women for the cause of Christ, I felt disposed to leave them to themselves for a while, and so welcomed the offer of Elder J. E. Meredith to move out a little.

To Visit Wales

This brother kindly offered to take me in his car to visit one or two of the branches in Wales, and also on our journey, to call at the homes of some isolated Saints, and give them a word of cheer. I felt this would give me an opportunity of renewing acquaintances, as well as proving efficacious in removing cobwebs and giving birth to still bigger and grander ideas, so it was arranged that I meet him in Birmingham.

Accordingly, on the 9th of April, we set out from Birmingham at 6 p. m. for Gloucester, a distance of fifty-seven miles, and arrived at 8.30. We made our way to the home of Elder A. T. Trapp, where we received a Saint's welcome, and were located for the night.

The next day we started out to reach Neath, ninety-three miles away, and called on our way at Lydney, a place where some years ago there was a flourishing branch of Saints who were devoted to the cause of Christ. Some twenty-five years ago Elder F. G. Pitt laid the foundation stone of a beautiful church here, and on the walls of the brother's house where we called there is a splendid picture of the ceremony. It made our hearts thrill to see the faces of some of the old-time Saints who were the life of the Lydney branch. Here was Brother Pitt, at the time when he wore a patriarchal beard, and also Sister Pitt, by the side of others well known to the Saints of Wales.

But oh, what a change! To-day there is no branch, no church, no meetings, and the flock scattered to the winds.

It was at the home of Brother Williams that we called—a brother who had sacrificed much to enable the church to be built here, and we found him very much broken up over existing conditions. We were well received, spent about an hour with him, and left with a promise to call on our return journey.

From here we traveled on to Cardiff, and called at the home of Elder Gould, a one time district president of this district, and then on to Neath, arriving there at 9.30 p. m.

Here we found Elder Harry Price awaiting us, and we were able to have a good time together talking over the progress of the church and discussing our future plans.

The next day we left for Gilfach. We arrived there about noon, and immediately preparations were made to send word all round that a meeting would be held in the home of one of the Saints at 7 o'clock that night (Friday).

Up to this visit, the Saints here have had no meeting place of their own, and have been meeting in the home of a good sister who kindly threw open her doors to them.

An interesting piece of history is connected with the work in this place.

History of Neath Saints

They rented a place, some few years back, and were making splendid progress, when one day to their consternation, the people belonging to the Church of England bought the place from over their heads, pulled the building down, and left the furniture of the Saints in the open air.

This building was part of a long row of wooden buildings, covered with zinc, which were owned by a gentleman in the neighborhood, and when the Church of England folk bought the part in which the Saints met, as before stated, they took this away, leaving a building standing about seventy feet long by sixteen feet wide.

This was the property of a Mr. Rosser, a grocer, and he used it as his shop, up to about a month ago, when he put it up for sale.

He wanted one hundred twenty pounds for it ($600) and the Saints at Gilfach, not having the money, decided to write Brother Meredith, and ask for his assistance. Accordingly he went down, and eventually succeeded in getting it for eighty pounds ($400).

The place is divided into three parts, and they intend to use the large room for sacred services, and the middle room for other meetings, socials, lectures, etc. The third room they have rented to the Church of England people, who through a combination of circumstances have now found themselves without a place to house their own children, and the Saints have shown them a different spirit to their own, in allowing them to have a part of this building.

The writer spoke on Friday night, and again on Saturday night. On Sunday morning a baptism had been arranged to take place up in the mountains.

Baptisms Performed

Brother Meredith and myself took a party of the older Saints in the car, to a place near the spot where the ceremony was to be held.

Right up in the mountains we went, then down into a glen, where the brethren had dammed a stream, making a convenient place for the baptism, and Elder John Jenkins officiated. The Spirit of God was present, and having been asked to take charge, I suggested something that was in the nature of an innovation to the people here—that we confirm at the water's edge.

After the candidates had been immersed, they adjourned to a farmhouse close by, and while they were changing into dry clothing we occupied the time in singing, and truly we felt the very presence of the Master.

Upon their return, a large flat stone was found embedded in the side of the glen, and we placed the newly inducted members upon this, and confirmed them. Our tongues were touched by the live coals from above, and God's rich blessing was placed upon their heads. It was truly a time to be remembered.

In the afternoon I was called upon to address the Sabbath school, and after Brother Meredith had also given a few words of advice, we left to wend our way back to Neath, for we had promised to speak to them at the evening service. We arrived at Neath in time to fulfill our promise.

The following night it was arranged that we hold a testimony meeting, and almost all present spoke of their love for the work and told of their desire to continue faithful. We related some of our experiences in connection with the work of God, and all enjoyed a spiritual feast.

The day following, we made a hasty visit to Llanelly, gave the Saints a cheery good day, and returned to Neath.

From Neath, we journeyed back to Cardiff and Lydney, and filled with joy at the good spirit we had received, passed it on to the folks at these places, then returned to Birmingham.

Here I spoke to the Saints at their fellowship meeting, staying over until the following Saturday, when we left for Clay Cross, arriving there in time for the Midlands district conference.

At this conference, Elder J. E. Meredith was chosen as the president of the district for the ensuing twelve months. Here we had a further taste of the goodness of God. On Monday several of the Saints made a holiday by going to Matlock, some in the Chara of Brother Howard Meredith, and others in the Ford van belonging to Elder J. E. Meredith.

The day after we all separated to our homes, taking with us the memory of pleasant associations, and longing for the day when we could be even more closely associated together in that grand community, called Zion.

May the spirit we imbibed be with us always, is the sincere desire of your brother,
ABEL HALL.

Stonington, Maine

From a Letter to the First Presidency

STONINGTON, MAINE, April 28.—Just a brief report to tell you how nicely the work is going here. Our Sunday school has grown recently from an average of 50 to 140 and 150 every Sunday. Our Easter concert was so well attended that many could not get in and went away disappointed. As it was we estimated there were 400 within the building though not nearly all seated.

In the evening at our regular preaching service we had about 250 present, more than half being friends but not members. Our attendance here now is greater at all the services than ever before in the history of the work, with the exception of some brief series of revival services. Quite a few have expressed themselves as about ready to unite with us and we are expecting a large increase soon. We have been invited to deliver the memorial address May 30, and altogether our church is getting the proper amount of advertising.

We are planning now to remodel the church a little to accommodate more people. After many years absence I have returned to help them in what looks like their most successful effort, in the county where my father, grandfather, and myself were born.

I expect to preach this week at Mountainsville and then back here for Sunday.
CALVIN H. RICH.

New Canton Sunday School Growing

NEW CANTON, ILLINOIS, April 24.—The Sunday school here is growing. There have been several new pupils admitted.

The sick are improving, the measles being about over. Sister Fannie Smith has been so very ill that Elder E. L. Ulrich had to be called from Quincy, Illinois, where he was preaching. Sister Smith is fast improving now.

Brother Phillips preached a fine sermon Sunday morning. He does not get to visit here very often.

The Saints here are praying that the way may be opened whereby they may have preaching services on Sunday. At present they have Sunday school, followed with prayer meeting in which there is good attendance.

The Department of Women are busy doing all kinds of work to help this great cause.
ALMEDA CALTIER.

Japanese and Chinese Young People Baptized at Honolulu

From a Letter to President F. M. Smith

HONOLULU, HAWAII, April 25.—On Sunday, April 6, a young Japanese girl, who has been attending one of our Sunday schools, and whose sister is already a member of the Japanese branch, was baptized by me. Last Saturday afternoon, three young Chinese girls, all belonging to one family, who have been attending the Japanese Sunday school at Kalihi, were also baptized by me.

Easter Sunday was a very enjoyable day with us as a fine program had been provided by the Sunday school in the morning, and by the Department of Recreation and Expression in the evening. The morning choir, also the evening choir, furnished us with fine musical programs. Sister McConley devoted a great deal of time to the preparation of the Sunday school children for the Easter exercises and also helped out considerably in the choir work.

The Department of Recreation and Expression presented a pageant, "Easter dawn," before a large, interested audience, who thoroughly enjoyed it. The young people certainly did very well and have been highly commended for their work. I am glad of this, because it will encourage those who have been taking part in this department to continue their efforts. We certainly have some talented young people and they are beginning to realize now that through the Department of Recreation and Expression there is opportunity for them to develop in many ways.

G. J. WALLER.

Sunday School Organized at Penokee, Kansas

PENOKEE, KANSAS, April 30.—A Sunday school has just been organized here. This is a place that Brother Walter Curtis opened up six years ago last November. There is a little bunch of Saints here, but they have always tried to run a union Sunday school. It seemed that they had no success, so they are trying a Latter Day Saint Sunday school this time.

Sunday school is held in the Union church, and the prayers of the Saints are asked that success may be with it and that the Saints here may not grow weary, but grow in grace and the knowledge of the Lord and Savior.

Preaching is heard here only as the missionaries pass through. The last time was when Brother Walter Curtis was here a year ago last February.

MRS. JOHN H. GREEN.

Do You Pray

1. For the Childlife of the World
2. For the Spread of Christian Truth
3. For the Cause of Christian Education

THEN COME TO

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

Lamoni

June 5-15

Iowa

Two Days of Sacrifice

June 9 — June 23

Will you contribute the earnings of these two days as freewill offering that the work of the church may go forward?

Ten months of the present fiscal year have passed, and in spite of special efforts towards economy the $50,000 shortage of receipts necessary to meet the expenses of the church, as forecasted at last Conference, seems inevitable unless immediate and vigorous steps are taken to overcome it. The work of the church, however, has not been allowed to slacken through want of means, and if by our efforts now, the additional $50,000 can be raised, enabling the church to close the fiscal year without a deficit, it will be a matter of pride to every official and of encouragement throughout the church.

A Church-Wide Effort Will Bring Success

The call is to every member—

1. Pay your tithing in full to date.
2. Consecrate the earnings of June 9 and 23.

You can pay this to your bishop, bishop's agent or solicitor, or send to the Presiding Bishop's office, Box 256, Independence, Missouri. If every member will do his part success will be assured. Now is the time for action.

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE.

“Behold this is the day of sacrifice.”

—Doctrine and Covenants.

Increase in Spiritual Interest at El Reno.

EL RENO, OKLAHOMA, May 21.—We cannot boast of increase in numbers, but we do claim a gradual increase in spiritual interest and understanding of the wonderful philosophy of the "marvelous work and a wonder." It is a matter of study, wisdom, patience, and above all the help of the Spirit of light and truth.

Another spiritual sacramental service occurred May 4. The attendance was good and the time was well occupied. The encouraging admonition of the Spirit was to press on in the work and that greater blessings await the Saints as they draw closer to the Lord. A clean and orderly house of worship was recommended by the Lord.

Brother Harry V. Piatt, having been recommended in the past for ordination, but hesitating to accept, was made to know his calling was from the Lord so hesitated no longer, and was ordained to the office of priest.

Young People's Association

The young people are quite well organized, having a Young People's Association that meets on Thursday nights. One feature of their program is an illustrated Bible study lesson by the pastor. Other work is arranged for the advancement of the general church work. Brother Eugene Connell and Brother R. W. Mann are at the helm.

Brother G. C. Lewis, teacher, stands at the head of the Sunday school, which is constantly growing in interest and number. We have one organized class, named "The Fidelis Class," with Brother Lewis Dalton as president and Sister Ada Haun, a late graduate, as secretary-treasurer.

The Christmas offering is well supported. Some of the larger schools should take notice and speed up or El Reno will beat them in per capita offering.

Revival Services

The Saints are expecting in time a series of revival services to be held by the Oklahoma missionary, Brother Hubert Case, who is held in high esteem by the Saints here.

El Reno has a prosperous Religio, presided over by Elder W. A. Connell, which is taking a deep interest in the Book of Mormon study. The program is usually very good. Sister J. M. Terry gave a very interesting story at the last meeting.

On April 27, by invitation, I visited the branch at Oklahoma City and felt a splendid spirit in my efforts, enjoying meeting with the cordial hospitality of that band. Pastor F. E. Dillon was careful to see that we did not leave the city hungry. Their Sunday school and singing, led by young Brother Kueffer, was enjoyed.

J. M. TERRY.

Patriarch F. G. Pitt Returns to Kirtland for Summer

From a Letter to the First Presidency

JOLIET, ILLINOIS, May 14.—We are arranging to leave for Kirtland, Ohio, next week. I am not well, but am much better than when I arrived, so I am living in the hope that I will be well again some day.

I am not sure I shall be strong enough to do the work required in the temple. Many tell me that I should not attempt it, but I have decided to make the effort, and then if I fail, it will not be my fault. Be assured that I will not give it up unless I have to, for I love the work, and I know of no place where I could accomplish more good. We are able to reach a class of people in this temple work that we reach in no other way at the present time. People who would not think of entering our humble places to worship come to the temple, and that, too, in a receptive mood. They seem anxious to hear all that we have to tell them, and the more they hear the more pleased they seem to be. It is surprising how intensely interested some of them become. When leaving they shake hands and tell us over and over again how much they have enjoyed our talk. They thank us and accept our literature, and in every way show their appreciation and a desire to know more about our teachings. I hope the good Lord will enable us to continue this work.

F. G. PITT.

Sunday School Organized at Fairmont, West Virginia

FAIRMONT, WEST VIRGINIA, May 21.—Elder E. D. Finken and wife have been with us for the past three weeks and Brother Finken has been holding a series of meetings which I am sure were very much enjoyed by all the Saints and our friends. The meetings resulted in two young folks uniting with the church. The Sunday they were baptized was surely a bad, rainy day, but just before the ceremony the sun shone brightly, and soon afterwards it was very dark and cloudy. There are several here investigating the work.

Brother Finken also organized a Sunday school here, and all the Saints seem very much interested in the work.

Monday, May 19, was Brother Finken's birthday and the women gave a surprise party for him. It was a real surprise, much enjoyed by all. We surely have been glad to have Brother Finken and his wife with us, for the Spirit has been present and I am sure much good has been accomplished.

OPAL L. BAKER.

Missionaries in Hawaii Have Continued Success

From a Letter to the First Presidency

HILO, HAWAII, May 5.—Thinking that perhaps we might be able to plant some of the good seed in fertile soil, Brother Prescott Foo, his wife, and the writer left Hilo on the 21st for Hawi. Brother Foo having grown to manhood in this neighborhood, his relatives and acquaintances were an open door to cottage meetings which we held for nearly two weeks. We found a number who were willing to listen to our message, among whom were two school-teachers, some Bible students, and others. We enjoyed the short time we had the privilege of being among these people as they were eager to hear more of the story. As a result the writer had the pleasure of baptizing one of the school-teachers, the other being very near the kingdom.

Sunday with the Hilo Branch was an enjoyable day. The Spirit's presence was felt in goodly measure at the sacramental service, and the speaker enjoyed a splendid degree of liberty in the evening. Interest seems to be increasing among both the Saints and nonmembers, and we trust our heavenly Father will give us strength to supply the need of his work here.

D. J. WILLIAMS.

Elder Daniel B. Sorden, new missionary to Palestine, writes to President Elbert A. Smith: "We have been in Palestine several days, and now I think I have a definite job for a couple of years. I have helped in the school a couple of nights and preached twice, once using an interpreter. So I am getting my hand in a little. I will start in next week full time."

CHURCH NEWS

Sioux City Saints Publish Weekly Bulletin of Church Announcements

SIoux CITY, IOWA, May 18.—Increasing attendance and spirituality have been noted here since the February conference. Much kindly advice through sermons and fireside talks was given the members by Patriarch F. A. Smith for a week prior to the conference. Elders U. W. Greene and C. B. Woodstock also rendered valuable service to the Saints at that time.

Weekly Paper

Through the efforts of the publicity department a four-page paper is being mimeographed weekly. About thirty nonmembers are on the mailing list. The paper, called The Saints' Pilot, carries announcements for the week. The first issue of each month gives changes of address and a list of new and dropped members. By this method the branch directories may be kept correct. Other issues carry a three-hundred-word sermon. Tracts and information regarding the church will be mailed with the Pilot to nonmembers during the summer.

Elder Charles J. Smith, missionary supervisor of the Little Sioux District, has sown good seed in his efforts in one of the city's suburbs. With a little watering, some fruit is sure to be gathered.

Elder E. E. Long preached Friday evening and twice today. His sermons were well received. He urges all the Saints to be more humble, prayerful, and full of love, and fears that pride will cause the destruction of many souls. Brethren Long and Smith leave for their missions in Western Canada this week. Godspeed to them.

On Mothers' Day a glowing tribute was paid to "Mother" by the pastor, Elder George M. Vandell.

Prayer meetings are held at the church and in two suburbs every week. Attendance is good. A new idea here, developed in a priesthood meeting, has been in practice the past three months. For one month an elder or priest is presiding officer of the branch, subject to the pastor. He selects his men to occupy, preside, assist, and brings to attention new theories that may be beneficial to all. The presiding officer assumes his duties in the alphabetical order.

Department of Women

The Department of Women, by their united efforts and untiring zeal, have paid the last payments on the new furnace. The president, Sister A. Johnson, feels that this department could function much more if all would feel it their duty to become active members. The Temple Builders, Orioles, the Cradle Roll, and the Home Study Department are feeling a keener desire to keep step with the vision always before them.

Recreation and Expression

The Department of Recreation and Expression, supervised by Brother Ned Calhoun, is developing hidden talent in the youth here. During the winter months the young people were given permission to use a gymnasium in one of the city's junior high schools two evenings a month. This request was the only one granted last year by the school board to a mixed group. The young people purchased a "Victor" slide picture machine and five sets of slides from the Graphic Arts Bureau have been screened.

A May festival party was given by the Mothers' Choir in honor of the regular choir at the home of the chorister, Sister M. C. Lytle, the evening of May 2. An Easter cantata by the regular choir on Easter Sunday, and a two-part chorus by the Mothers' Choir on Mothers' Day are a few of the selections the Music Department has given.

The Sunday school has had an average attendance of eighty the past two months. The Easter program was enjoyed by one hundred fifty. It has made all feel a little more kindly toward our fellow men.

Habit has grown to custom in sending out birthday cards to the members. The birthday offerings have trebled as a result. A Children's Day program will be given next month. The Latter Day Saint children of Anthon will share with us. All are looking forward to a blessed day.

Organize Temple Builder Chapter at Tulare, California

TULARE, CALIFORNIA, May 14.—A Temple Builder chapter has been organized with fourteen members. Sister Leila Damron was elected chapter leader, and Sister Genevieve Smith recorder. Sister Lizzie Smith is leader of the young women. The girls have not been very active recently.

The Sunday school put on a pageant Easter morning portraying the resurrection of Jesus. The entire program was a success.

The Department of Women meets every two weeks, and they have taken up the study of mothercraft.

On Sunday morning, of April 27, the pulpit was occupied by four young men of the priesthood. Special songs were rendered by the choir between each speech. The Holy Spirit was present to guide each speaker.

A very good program was rendered by the Sunday school on Mothers' Day, May 11. A large crowd was in attendance.

Community Sunday School Kept Alive at Fairview, Montana

FAIRVIEW, MONTANA, May 16.—The Fairview Branch continues its uneventful routine unchanged. No visiting member or officer has appeared since 1923.

The president and priest are trying to keep a community Sunday school going in a country schoolhouse, and are preaching twice a month there. Latter Day Saint teachers are in demand if they use the popular quarterlies.

Church Building at Salt Lake Cleaned and Renovated

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, May 13.—The quarantine being over, the Saints have returned to their usual duties.

They deserve congratulations for responding to an appeal for funds to have the inside of the church renovated, about $100 being raised, and extra credit is due to those who helped with the cleaning.

The members of the Department of Recreation and Expression on May 2 gave a play entitled, "A case of suspension." It was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

An institute was held on Saturday and Sunday, May 3 and 4, under the supervision of the district president, G. P. Levitt, assisted by the branch president, R. E. Davey. Interesting talks were given, and Sunday afternoon Elder Levitt gave the Saints a talk on "What is our attitude towards the building of Zion?" Questions were asked and answered.

On Mothers' Day, May 11, the service was given by the infants and pupils of the Sunday school. Great credit is due for the excellent way they sang and recited their pieces. Solos were sung by Sister Snyder, the Sunday school chorister, and Sister M. Cummins. Carnations were given to the mothers by the children, and at the close the Saints and children had their pictures taken on the lawn. The committee appointed to arrange the program were Superintendent Wardell and Sisters M. Cummins and Lily Cummins. Brother Davey was chairman at the mothers' meeting and gave a talk.

Bishop Keir and Apostle Garver Address Saints at Des Moines

DES MOINES, IOWA, May 20.—On May 1, under the auspices of the Women's Council, Professor Bodalotta addressed the women of the city at the Y. W. C. A. on the subject, "The American woman in the field of music." Professor Bodalotta was assisted by a very much appreciated musical program, most of the people appearing being pupils of Professor Bodalotta. Among them was Kenneth Davis, of the Des Moines Branch, who played a violin solo.

Mothers' Day was marked here by a very beautiful and inspiring address delivered by Apostle J. F. Garver on the subject of the day. In the evening Apostle Garver spoke on "Watchman, what of the night?"

Bishop James F. Keir was the speaker of the day, May 18. In the morning Bishop Keir spoke on the subject, "Whose son art thou?" and in the evening on "Stewardships."

The Department of Recreation and Expression was entertained Sunday evening, May 18, by Attorney Franklin Brown's Boy Scout troop. The entire hour was taken up by the Boy Scouts' program.

The orchestra has recently been reorganized under the direction of Brother William Evans.

Brother and Sister Johnson have returned from Illinois. Brother John Lentell is conducting a series of meetings at Urbandale.

Graceland Chats

LAMONI, IOWA, May 24.—Thursday was the last regular chapel service of the year. It was important to many people, even to those who were not present. Announcements were many. The most significant of these was the one made by President Briggs touching the next step in Graceland's program. It was a splendid milestone when the announcement was made two years ago that Graceland qualified as a Junior College, fully standardized and officially accredited by the Iowa University, Intercollegiate Standing Committee of Iowa, the North Central Association of Colleges, comprising nineteen States, Iowa State Board Educational Examination, State Certificate, and American Association of Junior Colleges of all United States. Now during the period of transition from a Junior College to that of a fully accredited Senior, the proposition is to make Graceland one of the best of the new order, a three-year college. It will take at least two years to move fully into the senior college ranks. Meantime Graceland goes forward officially recognized by the Intercollegiate Standing Committee as a three-year college. It will be real glory for Brother Briggs when he reaches the final goal and announces we are equipped and qualified for the full recognition, a four-year course.

Crescent Club

Another announcement was for the election of Crescents for next year. Speeches were made by the outgoing members, eight in number. The object of the organization was also stated.

This is an honor organization, by an oversight not listed in the catalogue. The need was felt for organized, experienced help at the beginning of the term to help new girls make adjustment and in other ways assist in starting the year's work. Membership is determined by election, the right of the ballot resting with the girls of the school. Candidates should qualify as representative Graceland girls, loyal in spirit and true to ideals. They should expect to sacrifice self and selfish desires to the promotion and advancement of the work of the club.

The list of eligibles is posted on the bulletin board, the election occurring Monday, May 26. The two names ranking highest become president and secretary. This is all the machinery of the organization. Conferment is made informally at a breakfast given by retiring Crescents and those in past service on the morning of June 4, and the official conferment is a beautiful part of the class day exercise at the time of other honor placements June 4 at 9.30 a. m.

The retiring Crescents decorate the incoming ones with the insignia of the office, a white rose and a red one. The badge is a golden crescent set with a pearl and a ruby. The name signifies—well, the girls know. They are expected to do their work without heralding, and unobtrusively at all times, remembering they are following the one Leader, and as womanly girls, working as he worked in humble, lowly, dignified manner.

This is the third year of Crescent service in Graceland, and the honor is considered by some the greatest in the school, as it is a gift of the girls to the members.

Notes Around the College

Dean Roy Chevillie spent the week end with home folks in Rhodes, Iowa. It was a rare treat to both Brother Chevillie and his parents, but Graceland missed him in school, on campus, Sunday school, Religio, prayer meeting, Herald Hall, the choir—everywhere.

Miss Hazel Putnam has been quite ill from the effect of a recent operation on her throat. How everyone hopes for her speedy and complete recovery!

On Wednesday evening the religious education class met for prayer and testimony on the reunion ground. About twelve of them went, taking their friends with them, making a total of twenty-four. The hour was one of the most sacred and blessed of all the past year. Truly the groves were God's first temple, and they hold their sanctifying charm unto the present hour.

Commencement Program

May 27. Graduate Piano Recital, Annie Torrance Roberts, College Chapel, 8 p. m.

May 30. Graduate Piano Recital, Thelma Lane, College Chapel, 8 p. m.

May 31. Final Athenian Federation Program, College Chapel, 8 p. m.

June 1. Baccalaureate Sermon, Apostle J. A. Gillen, Brick Church, 8 p. m.

June 2. Girls' Track and Field Meet, Athletic Field, 2 p. m. Commencement Concert, Brick Church, 8 p. m.

June 3. Lambda Delta Sigma Business Meeting, Room 108, 10 a. m. Faculty Meeting, Room 205, 2 p. m. Class, Society, and Organization Picnics and Banquets. Lambda Delta Sigma Banquet, 8 p. m.

June 4. Board of Trustees Meeting, President's Office, 8.30 a. m. Final Student Assembly, College Campus, 9.30 a. m. Campus Dinner, 12 noon. Class Day Exercise, 1.30 p. m.

Commencement Address, Judge Hubert Utterback, Brick Church, 8 p. m.

The air is vibrant with happy preparation. Unless you have participated in such a program as this you cannot estimate the tension of the last few days in school. Beyond it all beckon home and the "folks," and back of it the record of the year and the impelling forces of preparation, and the ever-increasing means to life's great end.

Holden Stake News

Holden

HOLDEN, MISSOURI, May 26.—The services held by Elder R. D. Weaver have been very well attended. Brother Weaver has presented good sermons, his audiences giving him undivided attention. The meetings will continue this week. One was baptized yesterday, Sister Lester Urfer. There were no services at the church Sunday evening, May 25, as all the churches of Holden met in a union memorial service.

Atherton

A very impressive program was rendered at Atherton on the second Sunday of May in commemoration of Mother. The program was in charge of Sister D. R. Carmichael. In the evening, Elder Alvin Knisley, a missionary in the stake, gave a very interesting sermon in keeping with the day.

Sunday, May 18, the Saints of Atherton chose a home-coming day. Invitations were sent out to all who lived in Atherton and to those who had held meetings here. The Saints were given the privilege of asking any of their friends and relatives to attend.

Sunday school convened at 9.30, followed by preaching at 11 with Bishop J. A. Becker, of Independence, as the speaker. At the close of the services a large crowd was waiting and ready for dinner. "All things common" was demonstrated when the baskets were emptied on one table, and each received their needs and just wants. One hundred sixty were served.

In the afternoon the Walnut Park orchestra gave a concert in the hall. To the members of the orchestra the Atherton Saints desire to express their appreciation.

In the evening the Saints had the privilege of listening to President Elbert A. Smith. He was here a few Sundays ago, and it is hoped he will be with us again. Some who received invitations but could not be present wrote letters, which the pastor read at the afternoon meeting.

Grandview

On Sunday, May 4, the Saints of Grandview enjoyed a very peaceful sacramental service. In the evening the services were dismissed that the Saints might enjoy the baccalaureate service, which was held in the school auditorium. They were agreeably surprised that the theme of the sermon was so like their own belief. It seemed as though they were listening to one of their own elders. Professor Parks, of William Jewels College faculty, was the speaker. The keynote of the sermon was service.

The Wednesday evening prayer service and Thursday evening choir practice were also dismissed for the commencement exercises. On Wednesday the speaker was a Kansas City minister, and his theme was "Service," also. It might seem that the world is catching the vision the Saints have been holding out to them for almost a hundred years.

Brother C. V. Hopkins, pastor of Grandview, who was elected to the office of president of the school board, presented the diplomas on Wednesday evening, and gave a fitting talk to the graduates.

On Thursday evening, May 15, the Saints were invited to the pleasant country home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce, near Martin City, where a delightful time was had. The occasion was planned by Mrs. Bruce in honor of her mother, Sister Marse, whose sixty-eighth birthday fell on that date.

Marshall

The high esteem in which Sister Sarah Johnson is held was manifested Sunday when sixty of her relatives and friends gathered at her home in Marshall in honor of her sixtieth birthday. Brother and Sister Johnson are some of the isolated Saints living midway between Marshall and Sedalia, in the vicinity of Longwood. She has done considerable work in the Home Department and is ever ready to tell the gospel story.

Pastor Levi Phelps and wife were in Independence over Sunday. Elder Harold G. Thayer occupied the pulpit both morning and evening in his absence.

Lexington

Evangelist Richard Bullard preached at Lexington both morning and evening, May 18, and is preaching every night this week to the young folks especially. The sermons were needed and are enjoyed by all.

Miss Maurine Burch graduated from the high school here. She is one of the efficient Sunday-school teachers and workers in the church.

The Department of Recreation and Expression gave a good program of fifteen numbers Friday evening. Sister Gwendolen Johnson, pianist, has been chosen by the Lexington Music Club to have charge of the Junior Music Department.

The unity of the Spirit is enjoyed here, and with God's help the Saints hope to accomplish much in church work.

Independence

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, May 27.—President Frederick M. Smith delivered the baccalaureate sermon for the graduates of the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences at the Stone Church, Sunday, May 25, at 11 o'clock. President Smith emphasized the need for loyalty to the government and institutions to which the people have given their allegiance. He scored Doctor Butler, of Columbia University, for his stand on the question of prohibition enforcement. President Smith also strongly disapproved the action of the recent Methodist convention which declared for pacifism. He said defense of country and ideals in the face of infringement of freedom is justified, taking the view that peace at any price is not to be desired. The scholarly address was well received by a well-filled auditorium.

East Independence

Sunday morning, May 18, Brother William Bath preached a splendid sermon to the Saints, and at 8 p. m. Brother W. D. Bullard gave another instructive talk. May 25, Brother A. H. Parsons occupied the pulpit in the morning, and Brother William Bath in the evening.

The Department of Women, which had been temporarily disorganized, was reorganized on May 18, under direction of Sister Alice Cowan, supervisor of women in Zion. Officers were elected as follows: Sister Anna Friend Roberts, supervisor and leader; Sister Katherine Friend, secretary; and Sister Madge Thatcher, treasurer. Sister Cowan addressed the women on matters pertaining to their work in the church as well as in the world. All enjoyed her talk very much, and it is hoped she will make frequent visits to this place. Another meeting of the Department of Women took place May 25, at which time their work was outlined. This is to include a lesson study, the subject not being definitely chosen as yet.

Because of the ill health of Brother A. H. Parsons, which does not permit him to perform all his duties as pastor, Brother William Bath was chosen assistant by vote of the congregation, May 25. The Saints are pleased to have Brother Bath assume this responsibility and are proud to have him with them.

At the same time it was decided that May 30, being a holiday, the men should meet and work on the new church. The women are to furnish a basket dinner. Anyone wishing to lend a helping hand this day will be welcome, and their work appreciated.

The young girls' social was a decided success. Prior to the social the girls, with Sister Addie Thatcher as leader, made small aprons and sent them out to their friends, asking each person to give a penny an inch for the measurement around her waist. This was a lot of fun for the girls, and they were well paid for their efforts. With the aprons and the social they swelled the new church building fund over $80.

East Independence is proud of her girls. The Willing Workers Club is doing splendidly with their bake sales. The date of the next one will be June 7, at B. C. Harder's Grocery store.

Liberty Street

Brother J. M. Baker, pastor, "talked" to his congregation Sunday morning. He said he did not feel like sermonizing, but wanted to say some things which were in his heart. His talk was about local problems.

In the evening Elder J. E. Vanderwood spoke on "The extent of God's love for the world."

May Festival on Campus

Although the evening was rather cool, a large crowd assembled on the Campus Saturday night, May 24, to witness the May festival. Beautiful costumes and lighting effects, amid the natural settings of grass and woods, made an impressive spectacle.

The program was opened by folk games and songs by kindergarten children, followed by ten Dutch girls, also in games and songs, taken by the kindergarten teachers. The dramatization of the Sleeping Beauty by the little tots was especially attractive. The popular selection of May Queen fell to Agnes Adams, who with her retinue, viewed the May Pole from her throne. Presentation of scenes from "Midsummer Night's Dream" was made by the Junior Dramatic Club, closing the evening with great success.

Those responsible for the artistic production were Miss Lillian Zimmermann, under whose management the festival was made possible, Mrs. John Gardner, Mrs. Howard Harder, Mrs. Walter W. Smith, and Miss Mae Whiting, coaches and directors of various parts of the fete. Many others contributed to the success of the event, besides the one hundred twenty-five persons taking part in the performance.

Commencement for Independence Institute

Doctor Floyd M. McDowell, of Graceland College, made the commencement address for the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences at the Stone Church, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, May 27. Diplomas were awarded to graduating students of the Institute, and Nurses' Training School of the Independence Sanitarium, by President Frederick M. Smith. Pins were presented to the nurses by Miss Gertrude Copeland, superintendent of the Sanitarium.

Two organ numbers by Robert Miller opened the program. This was followed by a hymn, sung by the audience. Samuel A. Burgess offered invocation. Mrs. Alice Mae Burgess rendered two vocal numbers, and Mrs. Neal Thomason played a piano selection. Benediction was by Bishop James F. Keir.

Graduates were: Institute, Pearl May Crick, Hazel Bell Dexter, Jane Shipman Simmons, Chris Benson Hartshorn, Vernon Anderson Reese, Arthur Bernard Taylor; Training School, Eva Franklin, Ina Hattey, Myrtle M. Grapes, Ruth Mathena, Cleota V. Mullinix, Alta Mae Schafer, Louise A. Stephenson, and Ruth Walters.

Following the commencement exercises a reception for graduates and friends was held at the Institute Building on the Campus.

Social in Group One

Thirty young people of group one met Friday evening, May 23, at the home of Brother and Sister Ralph Savage and enjoyed the association of Brother Roy V. Hopkins who spoke to them on "Character." They afterward participated in various games under the direction of Mrs. Henry Inouye. Ice cream and wafers were served by the Temple Builder girls.

For the June meeting a prayer service and short musical program has been planned. At this time the young men, with the group elder, Frank Mussell, as leader, will furnish and serve the refreshments. The girls are expecting the serving by the boys to be the spice of the evening, but the boys only look wise and say nothing.

Laurel Club Celebrates Founders' Day

In the report last week of the Founders' Day celebration of the Laurel Club, several important items were inadvertently omitted. The meeting was in form of a farewell dinner in honor of Mrs. Granville Trowbridge, who is leaving soon to make her home in Saint Louis. It was the club's eighteenth anniversary. A group picture was taken on the Campus, and a history of the club which was written by Sister Viola Short was read by Mrs. Ellis Short, sr., outlining the activities of the club since its organization. Owing to the coolness of the day the three-course dinner was served in the Institute Building. Four of the seven charter members were present: Mesdames Viola Short, sr., Eva M. Short, Ida Etzenhouser, and M. W. Etzenhouser.

Independence Health Center

A get-together meeting was arranged by the board of directors of the Independence Health Center for May 22, at the Institute Building on the Campus, for the purpose of creating further interest and support in the community health project. Speakers were Doctor Scott T. Child, president of the Jackson County Medical Association; President Frederick M. Smith; Lawrence Jones, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; and Miss Gertrude Copeland, superintendent of the Independence Sanitarium.

For some time a clinic has been conducted for children under fourteen years of age, rooms being used in the library building. Doctor Brickhouse Wilson is in charge of the clinic, assisted by Miss Faye Franklin, nurse.

Teacher Ordained in Boomer Branch

WESTON, IOWA, May 20.—A few Sundays ago Brother Frank Handlan was ordained to the office of teacher. Our district president, Elder J. A. Hansen, officiated, assisted by Elder E. B. Bardsley. The Saints wish him success in his new work and pray he may be blessed.

The measles have been very bad around here and have cut down our Sunday school attendance. Some of our people have been motoring to Underwood and Beebetown recently to listen to some graduating speeches delivered by Brethren J. A. Hansen and C. F. Putnam.

MISCELLANEOUS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.
 Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

Reunion Notices

Eastern Oklahoma, at Winthrop, Arkansas, August 14 to 25. The committee is planning for the best reunion we have ever had. Start now to make preparations to attend and enjoy the ten days with us. For further information write district secretary, Mrs. J. S. White, Hartshorne, Oklahoma, or H. E. Winegar, Box 716, Poteau, Oklahoma.

Kentucky and Tennessee, at Foundry Hill Church, three miles south of Puryear, Tennessee, July 19 to 27. Reunion will be held in the tabernacle. Those who contemplate coming will communicate with the undersigned. Curtis L. Ross, Cottage Grove, Tennessee.

Holden Stake, at Holden, Missouri, July 18 to 27. Reunion will be held in the beautiful park of Doctor Emery Thompson. Those desiring tents or rooms please notify the committee as early as possible. Meals furnished on the cafeteria plan. The committee is arranging a splendid program, embracing activities for all. W. S. Macrae, secretary, Box 125, Holden, Missouri.

Conference Notices

New York, at Niagara Falls, June 7 and 8. Conference convenes at 10 a. m., Saturday, with a priesthood meeting; coordinate meeting of priesthood, district and local department heads, and all local officers, 11 a. m.; business session, 2 p. m.; musical, 7.30. Sunday, prayer service, 9; sermon, 11; district and department superintendents in charge, 2; talk, 3; song service, 7; and sermon, 7.30. Speakers for Sunday are Apostle J. A. Gillen, Evangelist A. E. Stone, and James Pycoc, missionary in charge. Percy L. Weegar, president.

Little Sioux, at Moorhead, Iowa, June 21 and 22, preceded by a departmental convention, Friday, June 20. Remember the dates and plan now to attend. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected on Saturday. Ministerial reports should be mailed promptly to J. W. Lane, Logan, Iowa. Branch clerks are asked to report to the secretary at Woodbine, Iowa. Ada S. Putnam, secretary.

Southern Indiana, at Louisville, Kentucky, June 13 to 15. Sunday school convention and district conference will be held at the corner of Ashland Avenue and Taylor Boulevard. Jessie B. Mast, secretary, 1403 Lexington Avenue, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Addresses

William F. Anderson, 120 East Solo Street, Santa Barbara, California.

Requests for Prayers

Sister Maude E. Froyd, of Saint Joseph, Missouri, writes to request united prayers of the Saints for her father, Brother H. E. Winslow, of Kidder, Missouri, on June 1. His eyesight is very much afflicted.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)

- Spokane, at Sawyer, Idaho, June 20 to 29 (479).
- North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29 (383).
- Northern Wisconsin, at Chetek, June 27 to July 6 (431).
- London, Ontario, Springbank Park, June 28 to July 13.
- Minnesota, at Minneapolis, July 3 to 13.
- Central Nebraska, at Inman, July 5 to 13.
- Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (359, 503).
- Kentucky and Tennessee, at Puryear, Tennessee, July 17 to 27.
- Southwestern Kansas, at Winfield, July 17 to 27 (479, 503).
- Florida, at Alafara, July 18 to 27.
- Central Oklahoma, at Washunga, July 18 to 27 (503).
- Holden, at Holden, Missouri, July 18 to 27.
- Eastern Oklahoma, at Winthrop, Arkansas, July 18 to 27.
- Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (385).

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Blue Pencil Notes .....	505
Commencement Season .....	506
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Cleanliness in Individual and Social Life, by President Frederick M. Smith .....	507
The Triumph of Christ, by Apostle Daniel T. Williams .....	508
Christian Democracy, by Thomas L. Clark .....	512
Equality and Fellowship, by C. A. Spurthwaite .....	516
LETTERS .....	517
Alma Booker—John Grice, John Hall—Alice Sanders—D. J. Williams—Charles C. Crabb—Mavis Meredith—William E. Boyd—Abel Hall—Calvin H. Rich—Almeda Caltier—G. J. Waller—Mrs. John H. Green—J. M. Terry—F. G. Pitt—Opal L. Baker—D. J. Williams.
CHURCH NEWS .....	523
MISCELLANEOUS .....	527
RADIO .....	528

- Clinton, at Eldorado Springs, Missouri, July 25 to August 3.
- Western Nebraska, at North Platte, July 25 to August 3.
- Massachusetts, at Onset, July 26 to August 10.
- Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
- Lamoni, at Lamoni, Iowa, July 30 to August 10.
- Western Colorado, at Delta, August 1 to 10.
- Chatham, Ontario, at Erie Beach, August 1 to 10 (167, 263, 287).
- Western Michigan, at Bendon, August 1 to 10.
- Western Oklahoma, at Eagle City, August 1 to 10.
- Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 to 10 (215).
- Eastern Iowa, at Muscatine, August 1 to 10.
- Spring River, at Pittsburg, Kansas, August 7 to 17.
- Des Moines, at Runnells, Iowa, August 8 to 16.
- Mobile, at Gautier, Mississippi, August 8 to 17 (503).
- Portland, at Portland, Oregon, August 8 to 17.
- Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
- Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (385).
- Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
- Northern Michigan, at Boyne City, August 8 to 17.
- Maine, at Brooksville, August 14 to 24.
- Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 9 to 24 (119, 383).
- Western Montana, at Race Track, August 15 to 24.
- Kewanee, at Galva, Illinois, August 15 to 24.
- Idaho, at Hagerman, August 15 to 24.
- Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24 (479).
- Northeastern Kansas, at Netawaka, August 15 to 24.
- Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, Iowa, August 15 to 24 (215).
- New York and Philadelphia, at Deer Park, Pennsylvania, August 16 to 31.
- Far West, at Stewartville, Missouri, August 21 to 31.
- Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, at Indian Lake, Michigan, August 22 to 31.
- Pottawattamie, at Glenwood, Iowa, August 22 to 31.
- Southern Wisconsin, at Monona Park, August 22 to 31 (503).
- Northeastern Illinois, at Elmhurst, August 22 to 31.
- Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Our Departed Ones

WINTERBURN.—Thomas Winterburn was born at Akley, Becking, Hampshire, England, November 28, 1840. Baptized October 28, 1888. Married Mary Ann Taylor in 1893. Died at Elkhorn, Nebraska, April 26, 1924. Funeral service in charge of Carl T. Self. Leaves a brother, Henry, at Elkhorn; and two sisters and one brother in England.

DEHN.—William Frederick Dehn was born September 21, 1883, at Chaffee, North Dakota. Died at Fargo, North Dakota, April 20, 1924. Death was the result of dust poisoning which caused a paralysis of the brain. Leaves wife and two children, Pearl and Kenneth; also six brothers and two sisters. Funeral sermon by W. E. Shakespeare. Interment at Alice, North Dakota. A short service was held at the grave at Alice.

BUTTERFIELD.—Thomas Butterfield was born at Scottsburg, Oregon, September 23, 1882. Baptized June 29, 1898. Married Mae Good, October 10, 1905. Died at Westminster, British Columbia, February 12, 1924. Funeral at the Saints' hall in charge of Samuel Pope. Sermon by James E. Johnston. Conductors of the Columbia Electric Railway acted as pallbearers. Leaves wife and eight children.

EVANS.—John A. Evans was born at Beaufort, Breconshire, Wales, May 12, 1858. Baptized January 8, 1882. Ordained priest May 2, 1894. Married Mary Jane Griffiths who died some years ago. Married Rose Blakemore in 1896. He died April 15, 1924. Leaves wife, three children, two stepchildren, four brothers, one sister, and several grandchildren. Three children have preceded him. Funeral from the Saints' church at Chariton, Iowa, in charge of Parley Batton. Sermon by C. E. Wight.

SMITH.—Joseph B. Smith was born at Walkerton, Ontario, April 10, 1867. Married Mary Frances Hart January 14, 1892. Baptized in the summer of 1894. Died at Puyallup, Washington, April 28, 1924. Leaves wife, nine children, three grandchildren, three brothers, and two sisters. Funeral sermon by L. W. Bronson. Interment in Woodvine Cemetery.

Radio Flashes

Nelson, Missouri.—Just a few words of appreciation of the musical program broadcast by K F I X Sunday evening, May 18. We surely enjoyed the songs of Zion and hope you will see fit to give us more of them. We can get all kinds of classical music from almost any radio station, but only K F I X can give us that which we enjoy most. We will have parties here at various times this summer and hope to have mostly songs and music similar to those of last evening. Your wave length is very difficult to tune in good with the average one or two tube sets, especially Sunday evening when Roswell, New Mexico, comes in at 250 meters, which comes in at nearly the same point as 240 from K F I X. We are using at present a two tube Reinartz set. Here's wishing you all kinds of success. An isolated family.—S. C. Wright.

Vergas, Minnesota.—We are isolated Latter Day Saints and have been trying at times since Christmas to pick up your station K F I X, but have not been very successful in keeping a whole sermon.

We have used an Atwater Kent, model 9, a single circuit set, and recently a Fada "one-sixty" Neutrodyne. The volume is good for a few minutes, then fades away. It sounds as though the speaker steps away from the microphone. We heard Bishop A. B. Phillips talk last night on "The history of Kirtland Temple." This was better than any other speaker, but the orchestra music and singing were very choppy.

We are very anxious to hear your station and hope to get better results in the future. Henry Fields Seed Company, Shenandoah, Iowa, comes in very strong on nearly the same dial settings where we find you. Do you think that may be the reason we do not hear you better? We will be listening in Sunday evening, May 11, with a group of neighbors, using a Fada machine again.

We already receive your programs so are inclosing $5 to help pay expense of printing and postage.—Bruce Mathewson.

K F F V

Broadcast from the Graceland College Radio Studio, Lamoni, Iowa. Wave length, three hundred and sixty meters.

SUNDAY, JUNE 1, 1924

6.30 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical program by mixed quartet, consisting of:

Miss Aliene Brackenbury, soprano.
Mrs. J. H. Anthony, alto.
Mr. Evan Fry, tenor.
Mr. W. D. Tordoff, bass.

Duet: Selected.

Miss Lena Wells.

Miss Aliene Brackenbury.

Sermon by Elder C. E. Wight.

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Musical program by the Graceland Music Department.

THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1924

7.00 P. M., From the Graceland College Radio Studio

Educational program.

W G I

Broadcast from "Amrad," Medford Hillside, Boston, Massachusetts. Wave length three hundred sixty meters.

SUNDAY, JUNE 1, 1924

8.30 P. M., Daylight Saving Time

Program broadcast by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Somerville (Boston), Massachusetts

Anthem: (a) "Prayer of thanksgiving," Netherland folk song.

(b) "Remember now thy Creator," Adams.

L. D. S. Chorus.

Mrs. Susan E. Sinclair, Accompanist.

Vocal Solo: (a) "He shall feed his flock," Handel.

(b) "Come unto him."

Miss Blanche Lanman.

Male Quartet: "Now let every tongue," Bach.

Milton Sinclair, first tenor.

Fred Hotchkiss, second tenor.

Harve Elefson, baritone.

Orval Thompson, bass.

Anthem: "Sing to the Lord," Haydn.

L. D. S. Chorus.

Hymn: "Shout the tidings of salvation," Anonymous.

Male Quartet.

Address: "Religion, a social remedy."

Elder O. L. Thompson.

Anthem: (a) "Bless the Lord," Ippolitov-Ivanof.

(b) "Savior, when night involves the skies," Shelley.

L. D. S. Chorus.

Baritone Solo: (a) "Come, Sweet Comforter," F. M. Smith.

(b) "O pray for the peace of Jerusalem," Knox.

Mr. Harve Elefson.

Anthem: "Send out thy light," Gounod.

L. D. S. Chorus.

Hymn: "The old, old path," Smith-Anderson.

L. D. S. Chorus.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, JUNE 1, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Hymn.

Prayer.

Hymn.

Contralto Solo: "He was despised," from "The Messiah," by Handel.

Miss Margaret Gard.

Quartet: "The King of Love my Shepherd is," Shelley.

Hymn.

Soprano Solo: "Oh may my walk be close with God," Johnson.

Mrs. James Gault.

Sermon by Elder S. A. Burgess.

Hymn.

Hymns will be sung by quartet consisting of:

Miss Fern Cox, soprano.

Miss Margaret Gard, alto.

Mr. Neville Cool, tenor.

Mr. Clarence Resch, bass.

SUNDAY, JUNE 1, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.

Prayer.

Anthem: "How beautiful upon the mountains," Wolcott.

By Choir.

Ladies' Quartet: "Jesus, Savior, pilot me."

Mrs. Clara Curtis.

Miss Mary Fields.

Mrs. Frank Good.

Miss Gladys Good.

Anthem: "The twilight shadows fall," Wood.

Sermon by Elder Richard Salyards.

Hymn.

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Organ Solo: Selected.

Mr. Robert Miller.

Reading: "Patsy."

Miss Dorothy Benson.

Soprano Solo: (a) "Serenade," Schubert.

(b) "Sylvia," Oley Speaks.

Mrs. E. C. Harrington.

Address by Apostle F. Henry Edwards.

Soprano Solo: (a) "A little prayer for me," Russel.

(b) "Last night," Kjerulf.

Mrs. E. C. Harrington.

THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Anthem: "Come, Holy Ghost," Palestrina.

Sung by the L. D. S. Choir (unaccompanied).

Anthem: "The heavens resound," Beethoven.

By the Choir.

Soprano Solo: (a) "Were my songs with wings provided," Hahn.

(b) "Marchioness your dancing," Lemaire.

(c) "Burst ye apple's buds," Emrey.

Mrs. Bertha Burgess.

Baritone Horn Solo: Selected.

Mr. Phillip Turner, sr.

Address.

Soprano Solo: (a) "Elegy," Massenet.

(b) "A June morning," Willeby.

Mrs. Bertha Burgess.

Baritone Solo: (a) "O silver stars," from "The garden of Kama," Vincent.

(b) "Now sleeps the crimson petal," Quilter.

(c) "Who is Sylvia?" Schubert.

Mr. Paul Craig.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, June 4, 1924

Number 23

EDITORIAL

Law Enforcement

When the president of one of the greatest universities in the world publicly declares for the repeal of the 18th amendment, stating that prohibition has failed, we can readily determine that the liquor question is still a live issue. Whether there is life enough to sustain it for any length of time remains to be seen, but according to action of the leading women's organizations in America, that life will soon be snuffed out.

The Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement, meeting in a convention in Washington last month, definitely decided that "mere lip service will not do" declaring for "law enforcement." One of the many catch phrases or slogans used in the convention was, "Charge against the Light Beer Brigade."

As a church we have always been for prohibition, and the maintenance of the highest moral standards of civilization. In the present liquor dispute there is no question where the church stands. We are not only for the unqualified enforcement of the laws of the land, but we are avowedly prohibitionists.

A Sporting Nation

America is known as a sporting nation. Her people spend millions of dollars annually to develop athletes of the first class; they pay thousands to see a ball game and even more to witness a prize fight. The great universities of the country are building gigantic stadiums to the God of Sport, that thousands of people may yell themselves hoarse over a favorite team. The athlete in America is a hero.

Our English cousins are also a sport-loving nation, but they have developed a different attitude. In their schools and colleges athletics are open to all students, and most of them partake of the advantages. The great number of mediocre and poor athletes are not neglected for the stellar lights. In our American schools competition closes at an early date. The poor ones are dropped immediately, the mediocre ones last but a little longer, then the stars are picked. From then on the participants in athletics of the masses are limited to the enthusiasm they may be able to develop by picking a side to support and rooting at a game.

From the grammar school through college and university, the star is developed and the mass is ignored. Athletics in America are still for the favored few.

With the building of the proposed gymnasium on the Campus in Independence, it is to be hoped that the traditional American attitude toward athletics will not overshadow the need for fostering athletics among all the boys and girls of the community. And indeed it is also to be hoped that the older ones will not feel too proud to "work out" now and then, for a physically fit people is one of the essentials to a Zionie condition.

Editorial Policy of the Herald

In the column headed "Official" will be found a statement from the Board of Publication, clearly defining the editorial policy of the church press. This same communication also gives the names of the editors chosen by the board to carry out this policy.

The code must be respected and executed so far as it is possible and applies to the acts of the editorial personnel, the element of individual judgment necessarily entering in.

This may be more readily comprehended by a contemplation of the second resolution, which reads: "Accord space in HERALD columns freely to all general officials on equal and impartial terms." The principle as here stated is accepted by all as one of justice, and yet its execution must be modified by consideration of some of the resolutions which follow it, and depends largely upon the element of judgment.

Necessity for reaching the membership of the church through the literature officially published by it has never been greater than it is now; the difficulty of securing the eye and ear of the church is tremendous, because of the frivolous literature and the light amusements afforded in such plenitude by the various agencies of the world; therefore the task of the editors is not light.

We assume our part of the burden in the fear of
(Continued on page 530.)

www.LatterDayTruth.org

OFFICIAL

Editorial Policy Defined. Staff of Editors Named

Resolutions adopted and editors elected by the Board of Publication May 23 and May 29.

For some months the Board of Publication has been giving serious consideration to the problem of getting more subscribers to the church publications. An increase in the subscription list seemed imperative if the papers were to pay their way, and, of course, their ability to minister to the Saints is always limited to the number of homes they reach.

Realizing that the people of the church are the final judges as to whether they want the church papers or not, and in an effort to obtain a fair cross-section of the opinion of the Saints regarding the church periodicals, the following questionnaire was sent to all general church officials, missionaries, district and branch presidents, bishops and bishop's agents, departmental heads and publicity agents.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, January 29, 1924.

To Our Fellow Workers:

The Lord has made it very plain that we are "coworkers together with God." We are writing you as a committee representing the Board of Publication, who are acting as stewards of the publishing interests of the church. The purpose of this inquiry is to ascertain, if possible, why the present list of subscribers to the SAINTS' HERALD numbers but 5,600, while ten or more years ago there were far more than this number on the subscription list, notwithstanding the fact that the membership of the church has constantly increased.

We desire you to feel perfectly free in giving us your opinion as to the reason for this decrease, accompanied by any suggestion you may wish to offer, looking towards the remedy necessary, in order that the HERALD may accomplish the mission for which it is intended as the official publication of the church.

The financial reports of the Herald Publishing House show that there has been a loss in operation, and the committee feels that at least part of this loss is due to the decrease in subscriptions; however, there may be other factors which should be taken into consideration in determining the cause of the operating loss.

The Herald Publishing House does not belong to the Board of Publication, nor to any man or men, but belongs to the members of the church as a body, and in other words, it is the Lord, and wondering if we shall be able to command enough of the light of the Spirit, which must be a large portion to reach the end.

(Continued from page 529.)

The writers in the editorial columns will use their signatures, by this means taking the credit which is their due.

RICHARD J. LAMBERT, Managing Editor.

your problem, and we desire to have your candid consideration of the cause and remedy that should be applied.

Under no consideration will your reply be made public property, but will be considered in strictest confidence by the Board of Publication only. Therefore, you may feel free in expressing your opinions and offering suggestions. It is important that we have your reply immediately.

Thanking you in anticipation of your hearty cooperation in this matter, we are,
Yours in bonds,

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

In response to this letter over six hundred replies were received. An analysis of these letters was made by a special committee of the Board, and the report of this committee was signed by each of its three members, F. B. Blair, E. J. Smith, and Arthur E. McKim.

The Board of Publication, in an effort to enlist the support of all groups of the Saints, formulated an editorial policy based on the consensus of opinion as reflected in the questionnaire replies and the special committee's report, and at their regular meeting Friday, May 23, adopted the following program:

Whereas the Board of Publication, acting for the church in the direction and management of the publishing interests, sent a questionnaire throughout the church asking for frank criticism of the church publications;

And whereas the consensus of opinion as reflected in over six hundred answers unquestionably indicates a desire on the part of the members that certain definite policies be established in the conduct of the HERALD;

Therefore, be it resolved by the Board of Publication that the following policy should govern in the editing of the HERALD.

First: Insure an open church press.

Second: Accord space in HERALD columns freely to all general officials on equal and impartial terms.

Third: Allow free and frank discussion of any church problem, only attempting to confine arguments to the affirmative and not permitting destructive or altogether negative criticism.

Fourth: Give the news of the church as fully as possible and without bias.

Fifth: Balance the editorial content of the HERALD so that the educational, doctrinal, departmental, and spiritual factors may each be given emphasis. The HERALD should be broad enough to appeal to the membership as a whole, and an earnest effort be made to edit it so that it may minister to the varying groups within the church.

To facilitate the carrying out of the above program and policies to reduce expenses and to rally the support of all the Saints to the church publications, resolved that the HERALD, Ensign, and Autumn Leaves be placed under the direction of a managing editor, and that contributing staffs of six representative church men be chosen for the HERALD and for the Ensign, and a staff of three for the Autumn Leaves."

In continuance of the effort to carry out the policies clearly demanded by the Saints, the Board in its meeting of May 29 elected the following staff of editors:

Staff of Editors

Richard J. Lambert, Managing Editor of the HERALD, Ensign, and Autumn Leaves.

Contributing Editors to the HERALD: Elbert A. Smith, T. W. Williams, Arthur B. Phillips, S. A. Burgess, A. Max Carmichael, Arthur E. McKim.

Contributing Editors to the Ensign: John F. Garver, Paul M. Hanson, J. August Koehler, James E. Yates, Charles Fry, Joseph Luff.

Attempt was made to choose men of recognized standing, and selecting them from groups of varying opinion so that all angles of our church problems might be effectively presented from time to time.

Frank B. Almond was chosen editor of the Autumn Leaves.

Just before this election Bishop F. B. Blair offered his resignation as a member of the Board of Publication.

In stating the above editorial policy and in naming the editorial staff the Board of Publication assures the Saints that they hold themselves responsive to the will of the church, and that they invite free and frank criticism of their policy and actions.

Very sincerely,

BOARD OF PUBLICATION,

By ARTHUR E. MCKIM, Secretary.

The above report was approved and its publication in the HERALD ordered by the Board of Publication at a called meeting Monday, June 2, 1924.

B. R. MCGUIRE,

President Board of Publication.

An Open Letter

To the President, Ministry, and Membership of the Church; Greeting: The controversy regarding church government, which began several years ago among the leading quorums, has now spread throughout the membership, and a crisis has been reached which demands serious consideration. There are fundamental issues which must be decided before peace can come to the church.

We believe that the organic law, supplemented by the experience of more than half a century on the part of the Reorganization, has established certain definite and abiding principles which are essential to progress. We issue this open letter so that a frank consideration of them may be had throughout the church.

We believe that the coming General Conference, in full possession of the facts, should speak and settle this controversy in a definite, constructive manner. Only in such conference settlement can our people be reunited, confidence be reestablished, and the cause of the Master advanced.

We affirm our belief in the following principles and pledge our adherence thereto:

1. General Conference, the enactments of which combine both the inspiration of God and the will of his people, is the highest authority in the church.

2. To obtain the common judgment, and to insure the cooperation and support of the people, all general church programs and policies must be submitted to the General Conference for consideration and decision before being initiated.

3. The law recognizes two general divisions in the administrative work of the church—spiritual and temporal, and specifies “that the temporalities of the church are to be under the charge and care of the Bishopric.” In temporal affairs the bishop acts as trustee-in-trust for the church and is directly responsible to the General Conference.

4. All quorums, departments, and institutions within the church shall operate on budgets appropriated by General Conference. The bishop shall limit expenditures to such budgets and General Conference appropriations.

5. We accept the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants, which contain the constitutional law of the church, and recognize the rights and powers of the priesthood as therein defined. We declare for government in the church by lawful and orderly processes and hold that General Conference enactments are binding without exception upon members, officials, and quorums.

JOHN W. RUSHTON, Apostle.

T. W. WILLIAMS, Apostle.

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE, Presiding Bishop.

JAMES F. KEIR, Member of Presiding Bishopric.

I. A. SMITH, Member of Presiding Bishopric.

FREDERICK A. SMITH, Presiding Patriarch.

R. S. SALYARDS, General Church Secretary.

F. A. RUSSELL, General Church Recorder.

ARTHUR E. MCKIM, General Publicity Agent.

S. A. BURGESS, General Church Historian.

T. C. KELLEY, President of Council of Seven Presidents of Seventy.

E. A. CURTIS, Member of Council of Seven Presidents of Seventy.

G. E. HARRINGTON, High Priest.

W. R. PICKERING, High Priest.

T. J. ELLIOTT, High Priest.

U. W. GREENE, Patriarch and Evangelical Minister.

RICHARD BULLARD, Patriarch and Evangelical Minister.

JOSEPH LUFF, Former member of Quorum of Twelve Apostles and Church Physician.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, June 2, 1924.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

Obedience to Law

Baccalaureate sermon by President Frederick M. Smith, for the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences, at the Stone Church, Independence, Missouri, May 25, 1924.

I am assigned the task this morning of giving a baccalaureate sermon. I suppose it is meant by that that the address shall partake somewhat of the academic and at the same time shall be, judiciously at least, mixed with religion, so that it can be a sort of sermonized address. Whether I shall be able to accomplish this mixture or not remains to be seen. It is a question always to one who is asked to speak at a baccalaureate occasion as to what he shall say, for it is pretty well recognized, I think, that a great many of the subjects which are used in connection with academic work are pretty well hackneyed. I imagine there are persons in the audience who feel that they could preach a sermon on education for me better than I could preach it for myself, and I have no doubt but that they could. Yet there are many things connected with the question of education, and especially with it in its relationship to church work, that make it of such prime importance that I think most of us will agree there can be an untold number of occasions on which we shall attempt to repeat ourselves in making a plea for and discussing the qualities of education.

So I suppose I am expected to say something of the benefits of education, and this being a sermon I shall be expected to say something of education in the field of religion, or it might be that we are expected to say something about how education may affect religion; or, putting it the other way, it is quite probable that we shall say something of the application of religion to education. In any event, the field is broad, and it would be difficult for us to go very far afield, because education is so broad and religion is so broad that we can in the field of intellectuality go in so many directions and still keep within the confines of our subject that there is not much danger of getting far off the subject.

Education, religiously considered, would be to examine its effects upon spiritual affairs of life. I know there are some who would attempt to separate education from spiritual work. Personally I am convinced that it cannot be done. I am convinced that education in its broadest sense is essential to spirituality and that there is an interaction and an interrelation that we must recognize, and it would be well for the purposes of God for us to appreciate them more than we do and perhaps make the connection a little more close.

What Education Is

First, what is education? It ought not to be necessary to redefine education, and I offer but one excuse for attempting it. It may be summed up in two reasons. First: there is danger of my being misunderstood. I know that from past experiences. And second, it is always well for the purposes of any discussion, even a conversation, to have some knowledge of what the concept of the terms you are using is. Unless that concept is common, there is likely not to be a community of interests or a community of conclusions. There is likely to be a divergence or a parting of the ways.

Is education a mere amassing of knowledge? Is education confined to book learning? Personally I think perhaps it can be said that education consists of both. It would be impossible to get education without getting knowledge, but a man might be replete with knowledge and still not have an education, for he might not be able to use the knowledge. So education, as I understand it, is more than the amassing of knowledge. It is more than the reading of books. It is more than the mastery of books. It has to do with the application of the knowledge. Wisdom ought to be a part of education. It ought to be a part of that which is attained by those seeking education. If I understand education it is an inseparable part of our life. We cannot get rid of the fact that we are educating ourselves one way or another. We are either educating ourselves well or poorly, and it is our bounden duty, if we are to fulfill the purposes of God and serve society as we should, to see to it that our education is in the right direction. Some of the very people who claim not to have education have it after all, and their claim not to have it is a pretty good indication as to what that education is.

Education continues as long as life lasts. It begins with the first breath of the infant and stops so far as that individual is concerned only when his last expiring breath is drawn. And to us who believe in eternity, education proceeds beyond the grave, only under different conditions.

Wisdom, a Part of Education

Wisdom, therefore, ought to be a part of education and a part of educational culture. I think perhaps the best definition of wisdom I ever heard is short; it contains but few words. It is this: "Wisdom is the right use of knowledge." I do wish that could be duly impressed upon my hearers this morning: "Wisdom is the right use of knowledge." Hence, you can see what I mean by what I said a little while ago that a man may have knowledge and yet may not be educated. I cannot conceive that a man is educated who lacks wisdom, the ability to rightly apply the knowledge gained.

Is education special training? Partly so. All special training should be based upon education, and special training cannot be had without education, but it is not special training of itself. It is special training with a social objective, and that is another way of saying what I tried to say awhile ago.

Let me, therefore, gather up these attempted explanations in a definition which I think will cover the word so far as the purposes of the hour are concerned. Education is the process of development which will enable us to make the best of our opportunities. Religiously conceived, I should say it is that process of development which will enable us to make the best of our opportunities in harmony with the divine will or in furthering or carrying out the purposes of God. And that means not the mere individual interests. I know that education has very largely, too largely, been considered, and has been in the past from the standpoint of individual aggrandizement carried on for personal interests only. But such education is not in consonance with the religion which this church espouses. It is not in consonance with our concept of the Christian religion or that which is fundamental thereof, for education with us cannot be carried on without having some regard for the consideration of the interests of the group. Socially and religiously, education may be said to be that process of development which will enable us to make the best of our opportunities in serving not our personal interests alone but also the interests of our fellow men. It, therefore, may be defined as the amassing of knowledge, the endeavor to secure special training, and learning to make righteous use of it in promoting human welfare and God's purposes.

Education to Enhance Spirituality

Now it seems to me that I have so carefully defined education here that I will not be so persistently misunderstood as I have been in the past. Never at any time have I attempted to place education above spiritual requirements. I have attempted to say that in the building of our spiritual structure education is a factor of such large evaluation that it cannot be neglected without greatly disfiguring the structure that we are attempting to build. It is to enhance spirituality. It is a part of spirituality, and it is a part which, so far as we as a people are concerned, a few years ago was too greatly neglected, hence we were required to lay great emphasis upon it. Fortunately, however, the day for emphasizing that as we had to a few years ago is past. We can attempt to catch it up with its relationship with the general spiritual processes and the activities of the church at large.

I might define education further as the ability to adapt ourselves to conditions in a way to produce the greatest amount of good from them. That kind of adaptability in my opinion is of prime importance whenever we are considering education, and it dovetails closely with the idea of wisdom being essential to our very educational acquirements.

Unless a man is able to adapt himself to the conditions under which he finds himself and, therefore, to a certain extent mold his environment, he is not an educated man. He may have been stuffed with knowledge and yet not be educated. Education should have as one of its ultimate purposes the development of the ability of an individual to adapt himself to his environment. That is why an educated man is at home among all classes of people. He knows how to adapt himself to different standards of environment, from that class which we sometimes term as the ignorant to the class which we term scholars. Not only that but he is able to adapt himself to the various social conditions in which he finds himself, not with the idea of adopting the evil in such conditions but of applying his own experiences and knowledge in the spirit of wisdom to the betterment of those conditions. That is the kind of education that we are trying to promote and develop. It is the ideal, as I understand it, of the Institute in whose interests we are here this morning.

Knowing Limitations

Therefore, in order for us to accomplish what we should accomplish, we must know our limitations, the maxima and minima of our various capacities. Education has been defined by one man as the process of learning one's limitations, knowing the limitations of your capacity in entense as well as the limitations of your capacity in a negative manner. An educated man will not attempt to do that for which he is not qualified. His education has told him what his limitations are. That is the very object of, the very purpose of, and the great value of education—to teach individuals to know what their limitations are, to prevent them from making fools of themselves in undertaking to accomplish that for which God never intended they should work, and at the same time holding them responsible for the disuse of those qualities with which they are especially endowed. It is intelligent ignorance, if you please. An educated man always knows when to say, I do not know; a fool, never.

Education ought to have in view future as well as present good. In other words it is social telesis. And education, so far as social advancement and progress is concerned, must always have in mind the effect that the training and intellectual exercise through which the students are passing will have upon the conditions of to-morrow. Any process of education, intellectual training—any process which fails to recognize the effect of the individual upon his social standing of to-morrow, his interaction with his fellow men, falls short of the goal that that education should reach or accomplish.

Education should teach right living together to-morrow as well as to-day. It is a matter of deep regret to all people alert to the social conditions to-day existing in our colleges, our universities, our public schools, and in the processes of education that take place on the street, at our work, (because all are educational factors contributing one way or the other to the education of any individual that experiences them) that training in morals is decreasing. Education must have uplifting effect upon the moral forces of the community, and it is to be regretted, let me repeat, that in the educational process of to-day the factor of morality has a smaller coefficient than formerly. I mean this, that we are neglecting to teach morals in our schools, and we are allowing those who do not stand for the morals, such as the churches have always stood for, to have too large a say in our educational processes, thus lessening the moral content of our social fabric to-day.

Individual Liberties

To live with others peaceably, we must surrender certain individual liberties, and perhaps one reason why members of this congregation and this church are so belligerent at times and perhaps the same reason at least to a degree why the dove of peace perches on some one else's door lintel rather than ours and we have the crow instead of the dove, is because we are too reluctant to give up those individual liberties that infringe upon the rights of others. It is a lesson we must learn, as all other people interested in spiritual and moral and cultural processes and political safety must learn. That is what is known as the social contact. If people are to live together in peace, if they are to work together for common advantage, if they are to protect the interest of the next generation, they can do it only by recognizing that there are certain individual liberties that they must sacrifice in the interests of the group, and when individual liberty comes in contact with the group right the individual must always be sacrificed. I know there are classes of individuals who will cry out against that, but it is a law which is recognized and must be put into effect if progress is to be continued.

What I have said so far I have meant as a preliminary to making some statements which I trust will have a bearing on the present conditions and which will be met with thoughtful reception by my hearers. If education is to be effective as of social value, it must teach one thing above all others, and that is obedience to law, and without obedience to law no society is safe, and without obedience to law there is no progress. And yet that is a fact to-day which is too little recognized, and our failure to recognize it as a people in the church, our failure to recognize it as citizens in the community, our failure to recognize it as members of the State and citizens of the Government constitutes one of the greatest menaces that we are confronted with to-day. It is true in divine law. That can be said to mean not only religious law but natural law. It is true in the human domain, in social laws as well as statutory laws; and when I say obedience to law is necessary, I am pleading for a higher form of obedience, not obedience prompted by fear of force exercised by a majority, but of obedience that is prompted by intellectual solidarity, without which there can be no progress other than mob movement.

Selective Loyalty

There is such a thing as selective loyalty. You can choose the group, the institution, the church. You can even within certain limitations choose the political government to which you will be loyal, but let me put it down as a truth to-day that cannot be denied in the interests of society or by those who are versed in the social sciences, you cannot make progress without some form of loyalty. And here again I would plead for the higher form of loyalty, not the loyalty prompted by fear, but the loyalty that comes from deliberate selection of the group to which you will give allegiance. And such choice has been made by every individual who has been baptized into this church. Such a choice is made by every individual who names the name of Christ, by every foreigner who comes to this land and takes out his first papers to become an American citizen. If you feel that you cannot be loyal to the laws of this land or this State or this Government and uphold them by your voice, your act, and by your cooperation, you have the choice of going to other lands and giving your selective loyalty to other governments. We have perhaps reached an age in the development of the world where choice of citizenship is freer than it ever was before, and we have people leaving our shores to go to governments which they think are better. And we ought to say with the utmost earnestness, and realizing the social significance of what we say, that when there are those in our midst who will not give allegiance to our own Government we should force them to select some other government.

Let me repeat it in language that I hope I can impress upon my hearers this morning. It is the duty of every man and every woman to give loyalty to some form of government. And that applies not only to political government alone, but to group government and institution government as well.

As a process of, or a part of, our education, our own Government, the government of the institution to which we belong, the government of the community of which we are a part, and the State under which we are protected as citizens, should be studied with the purpose in view of furthering an appreciation of it, and with a view to more effectively being able to cooperate in putting into effect the laws and institutions of that Government. This at the same time carries with it the concomitant of those forces of education being loosened within us that will cause us to have an appreciation of our own limitations as communities and as citizens of the Government of which we are a part.

Obedience to Law

I know it has become common, sometimes almost too common, in the minds of some people to refer to that great American, Lincoln, when we are speaking on the subject of patriotism. But I wish this morning that every member of this congregation and every auditor who is listening to the sound waves of my voice this morning might reread that famous speech of Lincoln's when he spoke of the social consequences of disobedience to law. As one of the keen prophets of the country who not only was a statesman of great ability but whose eyes were opened, as I believe, by Almighty God, he was able to look down the corridors of time and foresee the danger that lies before this Nation. When he said that not all the armies of Europe, even under the leadership of a Napoleon, could take a drink of water by force from the Ohio River, he spoke a truth; yet he said we were confronted by a much greater danger, the danger of dissolution, and he put his finger on that danger in using three words, "disobedience to law." And he stated in that warning that which every American citizen should read to-day in the light of what is going on around us, in the light of the news that is current in almost every daily paper. We should read the speech where he said that the danger that was coming to this country was not foreign invasion, but disrespect for constitutional law, disrespect for statutory law.

I plead with you, my hearers, this morning to read that speech of Lincoln's, in the light of the sayings of such men as Doctor Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, and of the men who have replied to him, and note the things they are calling attention to and ask, "Was Lincoln a prophet?" I doubt not that there were persons in his day who said that he was an old pessimist, that he didn't know what he was talking about, that he was trying to gather to himself as one of the leaders of this country power that did not belong to him because he was pleading for the constitutional law, the institution of which he was a part. It is needed to-day, and I plead with you once more to pay attention to his warning.

Doctor Butler and the Eighteenth Amendment

You will recall that remarkable tirade of Doctor Butler's against the Eighteenth Amendment. To men who have their ears to the ground, that came as a great surprise—the idea that an astute student of society should say that the passing of the Eighteenth Amendment was the cause of disobedience to law to-day! It is astounding beyond comprehension that he should have such a superficial grasp on fundamentals as to say that. It seems to me that no one can escape the fact that the disregard for the Eighteenth Amendment is an outgrowth or outcropping of the disregard for law that was of no small proportions before the Eighteenth Amendment was passed.

I think I have only to call upon your own experiences as proof of what I am saying. I shall not attempt an analysis this morning of this phenomenon, because I have not the time, but I want to speak briefly of some of the manifestations of growing disregard for the Constitution of the United States and the disregard for law and the increasing number of instances where law is disobeyed. I do not know how many of you are drivers of automobiles or motor cars; but how many of you who are will violate with the utmost complacency the traffic laws and know that you are violating them, simply because there is no policeman in sight? How many of you always stop at boulevard crossings where the law says you must stop and blow your horn? You haven't thought of it as a special violation of law, have you? The creation or passing of that law did not create the desire on your part to disobey it, did it? Not at all; but the current, almost universal, disregard for law when it conflicts with your own personal liberties is what is responsible for it.

I will give you another instance: Are tax-dodgers more common or less common than they were a few years ago, say twenty years? There was a time when we learned with a shock of a man who was dodging his taxes. They put up straw men and assigned their mortgages to them to escape paying their taxes on the mortgages. They did it on the quiet, of course. But to-day it is done openly; and men boast of it! It is commonly understood, further, that the rich men of to-day are, by one subterfuge or another, escaping their burden of taxation until the taxes have fallen more heavily upon the poor classes.

I perhaps will surprise you when I say that one of the evidences of a growing disregard for law and a disrespect for the American Constitution is the astonishingly rapid growth of pacifism. I say that any church which attempts to put on record such a resolution as was attempted in a recent conference in the East is simply giving open and organic expression to the astounding increase of disrespect for government and for the law of government. Any time that this church attempts to put on record any such resolution as that, I hope we will recall the warning of President Lincoln and remember that disobedience to law is the greatest danger that confronts the American people.

I would state to you briefly that the growing disregard for the marriage law, both the law of the land and the law of God, a disregard which is increasing by leaps and bounds, is another evidence of a disrespect for law that is threatening our social organization to-day. When you have finished reading President Lincoln's speech in which he gave the warning that is so badly needed to-day in this country, I suggest that you Latter Day Saints turn to section 112 of the Book of Covenants and read that. I have been astonished, and have been greatly pleased with the wisdom of the early men of the church who wrote section 112. It did not come by way of revelation. It came by consensus of opinion of the men responsible for the policy of the church then, and if you will read it in the light of the action had by a recent conference of a church in the East in regard to the ultra pacifism that is expressed there, you will see where Latter Day Saints should stand on that.

Obligation of Loyalty

Every man, every woman, has an obligation of loyalty to some form of government, and that may be selected; it may be by choice. But loyalty is demanded, and obedience to law is fundamental, and our safety lies in obedience to law. That is true of the church as well as of the community. That is true in statutory law as well as in social law. That is true in natural law as well as in divine law. With us as a people, our religion should ultimately crystallize into righteous laws, and we should religiously keep them. And looking into the future, let us hope that the time will soon come when we as a people can see expressed in the laws of our State and community those righteous enactments that will reflect the fundamental Christian attitude of our religion and of the church as we have it organized. But this may mean the abrogation of statutory laws with which our books are burdened, which are obsolete. I do not for a moment mean to say that we shall in our progress refuse to eliminate those laws which have become obsolete because of changing conditions. The social and moral tendencies of to-day are determining what shall be the statutory laws of to-morrow, and so far as we as a people are concerned it is our bounden duty to see that these tendencies are given such direction as will be in harmony with the Christian religion.

What are the signs of the times in regard to this? Has there been no need for the warning of President Lincoln? Does not the present indicate that it will be useless to write laws for to-morrow? As a people, therefore, I would plead with you: Let us learn obedience to law. If we have learned the lesson in the past and forgotten it, let us learn it anew. Obedience to law, natural; it will preserve our health. Obedience to law, divine; it will lead us onward and upward to the goal of our high calling in Jesus Christ. Obedience to law, statutory; it has been placed on the statute books by conscientious men in the interests of religion, in the interests of morality, in the interests of safety of the Government. Give obedience, knowing that therein lies our safety and that therein alone lies the fulfillment of the will of God and the coming of his kingdom on earth.

May God help us to be obedient to law, to reawaken our respect for the Constitution of the United States, for a recognition of the fact that in obedience to law lies our religious, our political, and our social safety.

If a friend of mine . . . gave a feast, and did not invite me to it, I should not mind a bit. . . . But if . . . a friend of mine had a sorrow and refused to allow me to share it, I should feel it most bitterly. If he shut the doors of the house of mourning against me, I would move back again and again and beg to be admitted, so that I might share in what I was entitled to share. If he thought me unworthy, unfit to weep with him, I should feel it as the most poignant humiliation, as the most terrible mode for which disgrace could be inflicted on me. . . . He who can look on the loveliness of the world and share its sorrow, and realize something of the wonder of both, is in immediate contact with divine things, and has got as near to God's secret as any one can get.—Oscar Wilde.

Lectures on Mothercraft

Compiled by the Department of Women, with an introduction by Dora Pankey Glines, Superintendent of the Department.

Containing

Articles supplementing the textbook, Mothercraft Manual, by Mary L. Read, also a question outline, Mothercraft, by Etta Hunt.

Forty Cents, Postpaid

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

EDUCATIONAL

Play

By Hazel B. Dexter

Meaning of Play

Play is so complex and manifests itself in so many different ways that it has been given many definitions and has been classified in many different ways. The following are some definitions given:

Effort which in itself produces agreeable feelings—Doctor Bogardus.

Spontaneous self-activity.—Mary Read.

The operation of interest is play. By definition play includes the practice of all the arts.—H. Caldwell Cook.

Play is the free self-expression for the pleasure of expression.—Carl Emil Seashore.

Activity by which surplus energy is used.—Herbert Spencer.

From the above definitions we may see that there is a diversity of opinion regarding the exact definition of play, but we may no doubt find much of truth and value in each.

Why does the infant toss his arms and limbs about, grasp objects, kick, laugh, and try to make sounds of various kinds? Why does the girl or boy delight in running, jumping, climbing, rolling, sliding, circle games, etc.? Why does the youth delight in games of competition and skill?

Just as no situation in life can be accounted for by any one explanation, so in our analysis of the reason for the spontaneous activity of the child or the adult we find that there are many reasons for these expressions. We can no doubt trace all the play responses back to some original instinct. Some forms of play, such as shouting, running, and tumbling, may be a vent for surplus energy. In the child's playing house or playing school we find that it cannot be explained as a vent for surplus energy, but seems to be the result of imitation. Many of the plays of the child seem to be the result of the instinct of imitation, probably in an unconscious effort to understand the life around him and to be like those whom he sees and admires. There are other forms of play, however, that seem to be neither of these, but the response of the awakening of new powers. Murray says that the inborn tendencies of the young assert themselves at fixed times and find expression in playful exercises.

Play as a Preparation for Life

All the play activities of the child may be considered a preparation for life. The infant in tossing his arms and limbs about is gaining new strength, and in his experiments of touch, taste, and sight he is learning a great deal about the world surrounding him. The boy who plays ball is learning precision of sight and movement, and is developing courage, strength, and ability to cooperate with those around him. All his activities are of great value to him in his preparation for life, but the youth and child are usually no more conscious of a definite end in their play than the infant. Their play seems to be a spontaneous action arising from the many instincts which are seeking to find expression.

The playful activities of the child have been so unconscious and spontaneous that they are not considered by many to be particularly important to the welfare of the child. However, if the child is taken from the playground and deprived of many of his playful activities, when he is grown he will be found to have a stunted character and will have developed but little in many phases of his personality. He will quite probably be inclined to sullenness or moroseness.

Man, unlike the animals, has been given twenty-one years of infancy, which means that he has twenty-one years in which to learn to adapt himself to his environment. This is largely done through play. The animal has a very short period in which to make its adaptations. It is true that the young animal seems to be much better able to adapt itself to its environment than the child at the same age, but this is accounted for by specific instincts which guard the animal from danger and enable it to get its food. The instincts of the child are more general, and he learns to do by habit the work the animal does by instinct. Because of this, man can form any habits which seem to be beneficial to his particular surroundings and is, as Murray says, like "clay in the hands of the potter."

Forms of Play

Play activities of children of different ages, and of adults, are numerous and not always easily distinguished from other activities. The play expression will be different according to the age and development of the child. The play of a child of eighteen will be different than that of a child of ten, for he is in a different stage of physical and mental growth and development which demands different exercise. A few of the expressions of play at different ages will be considered.

Play expression makes its appearance almost immediately after the birth of the child. It is necessary to the welfare of the child and accompanies all growth and development.

Play in Infancy

In infancy the child's play manifests itself in free plays and experimentation of bodily movements and of the senses. He gets sensations of touch by grasping, dropping, rolling, pushing, splashing sand and stones, etc. His sense of hearing is stimulated and exercised by babbling, gurgling, crowing, and smacking. His muscles are exercised by playful kicking, creeping, stretching, and pulling.

Children From One to Six Years of Age

From about one year to six is the great imitative stage of the child's life. His imagination is so keen that nearly everything in his life becomes possessed with superior powers, and even the inanimate things to him possess life and power and action. Sand to him becomes pies and houses, a stick becomes a horse, blocks become anything from a rooster to a railroad train, and animals are invested with human powers of speech and feeling. He sees resemblances to things in his play materials that an adult would not see. His whole surroundings are filled with active, living forces which he tries to understand. This is done chiefly through imitative play.

Children of this age also engage in other activities involving sensory and motor experiments and exercises. They like to roll and toss the ball in free play and in brief games with the adult. They enjoy playing with the swinging chair, the slide, the teeter, and pounding, tearing paper, handling and turning keys, putting in and taking out, digging and pouring.

From Six Years to Puberty

The plays of children from about six years to puberty are peculiarly different from those of other ages. This is called by some the "Big Injun" age, in which the child must be the principal consideration and must star in his play activities with other children. They are now always competing with each other. The boy seems to have the instinct of the hunter and warrior, and he seeks to overcome the animals, to outwit the birds, the fishes, or the squirrels. He attempts to outdo his companions in flying his kite higher than the rest, in running longer or faster, in ball games, in fishing, and in every activity in which he is engaged. The girl plays with her doll and cares for it as her mother does for her little sister or brother, and delights in competitive games as tag, etc. It is quite characteristic to hear among children of this age: "I have something you haven't!"

This is an age for individualism and reality and competition. Children no longer are living in the make-believe atmosphere, but are searching for the real. They want to find the truth about things in their love to experiment with objects by putting together and taking apart, by visiting museums, watching machinery in action, and exploring fields, woods, and caves.

At this time in their lives children seem to have a strong collecting interest and collect numerous objects, as pictures, flags, shells, stamps, souvenirs, leaves, birds' eggs, minerals, insects, etc. They delight in handcrafts as carpentry, painting, drawing, modeling, weaving, sewing, knitting, pasting, paper cutting, and mechanical construction. Group play where competition can be had in catching, throwing, balancing, hitting a ball, etc., is also enjoyed.

The Age of Youth

The age of youth, from about thirteen and fourteen to eighteen or twenty, marks the beginning of the social spirit and of cooperation. The youth delights in games of skill and chance where the rules are more difficult and complex and where he uses his wits and powers of endurance, accuracy, and ingenuity. The competitive element is present, but, unlike the child in the previous period, team play is developed. He has a strong sense of loyalty to his team and will sacrifice his own elevation or exaltation to the interest of the team.

The youth is interested in games of national interest as football, baseball, cricket, and a great variety of athletic games involving highest achievements.

The chief differentiating element in the play of youth is the social spirit, which is shown by his desire to mingle with his fellows and the opposite sex in games and parties. This is where he is learning to live in harmony with others.

Play is not confined to children and youths alone, but manifests itself in the lives of people of all ages.

Social Spirit of Adults

With adults the social spirit seems to predominate, in their play life and the free social life which has become so complex is in reality a play life, which is manifested in parties, balls, dinners, and numerous social functions.

The play spirit of this age is also manifested in patronizing the many commercial amusements which are attracting the adults, such as the theater, the dance, the amusement parks, and the bowling alleys and gymnasiums. Automobile riding, fishing, hunting, and ball games are also some of the many forms of play which are popular among adults.

The Modern Play Movement

In modern times the play life of the people is being considered more and more. Children are even being taught through the play method.

The play movement is now fairly well developed in every country of Europe and in America. It has a good beginning in Japan, and a few sporadic attempts have been made in Korea, China, and India. It seems likely that one of the largest developments of the immediate future will be in South America.

The aim of the play movement in the different countries in modern times is as follows:

Germany. The ideal of play is physical development. The aim has been fitness for military service and to enable the women to be mothers of a vigorous race. The sickness of school children is greatly reduced in this country.

England. Here it is largely the spontaneous expression of the life of the people. Play is here for its own sake, but the effect of play on the development of habits and character is always held in view.

United States. Here the play movement has been a social one from the beginning. We have not been thinking so much of health or physical development as we have of the social environment. We are trying to keep the children away from temptations and off the physically and socially dangerous streets. An adequate play movement should include all phases.

In the United States movements have been started since 1868 for public playgrounds, first by private organizations, and now the cities have begun to make appropriations for this purpose. A movement has also been started for municipal and park playgrounds. Those in New York City have cost from sixteen to seventeen million dollars during the last fifteen years, but they have not yet been adequate to meet the needs.

The new interest in play is finding expression also in the organization of public school athletic leagues under the Board of Education in nearly all our large cities. New interest in athletics in our high schools and colleges may be noted. In many places play is getting into the curriculum of the schools and periods are set aside for that purpose. School buildings are being used for recreation at night. Industrial plants are furnishing playgrounds for their employees and for the children of their help.

Play Movements in America

There are five play movements in America, the purpose of each being as follows:

First: To provide a place where children may go during their leisure time and be under the instruction of trained directors.

Second: To give opportunity for play, which is assumed to be essential to every child. This is done by putting play into the program of the schools (more largely developed abroad than in this country.)

Third: To furnish an adequate opportunity for outdoor life and play to children below the school age. This has only had a beginning. This movement seeks to provide a place where all the little children can be outdoors and play in safety.

Fourth: To foster public recreation. More has been done along this line than in providing play for the little children, but it is still in a very rudimentary stage.

Fifth: To encourage the rebirth of the spirit of play. We have been overmaterialistic. We must come to see the essential values of life, to work more moderately, and to find more joy in our work. Business must be relegated to its proper sphere, and we must find time to do our duty to the state and church and live with our wives and our sons and daughters.

The Value of the Playground Movement

In the United States there has been a rapid development of public school and municipal playgrounds and recreational centers. Perhaps one of the most impelling motives in their establishment has been the desire to get the children off the streets and lessen the tendency to crime by furnishing play opportunities. In this they have proved successful, and have shown that nature becomes bad through neglect and not through inherent badness.

The playground is a preventive of crime. The prisons and reformatories contain a majority of persons between the ages of sixteen and twenty-four. Students of social problems are convinced that much criminality in these years is simply the perverted expression of energy, of the love of activity, of adventure, and of the play spirit.

Jane Addams says: "Much vice is merely a love for pleasure. We continually forget that amusement is stronger than vice, and that it alone can stifle the lust for it."

It is said that every city in the United States spends a hundredfold more money for juvenile reform than is spent in providing for public recreation. It is on the playground that right ideals are formed which inhibit the tendency to crime.

The following from Doctor Gulick is interesting in this regard:

It is not enough to give everybody a chance to play. We must also direct that play to specific and attractive ends. If our boys are going to learn team play, if they are going to acquire the habit of subordinating selfish to group interests, they must learn these things through experience and not from books or the "bleachers" maintained by professional baseball. Such moral development comes only through activities which are pursued with spontaneous and passionate enthusiasm.

The playground that is opened at night tends to counteract the evil influence of the commercial public dance halls and the saloons where men sometimes congregate, as well as some of the houses of prostitution. These evils have been of great concern to social workers, and if they can be overcome in any degree by the playground it will be well worth the time and money expended.

Directed Play

Why should we have directed playgrounds, and why should we direct the play of the child? Of course play, in order to be real play, should come from a spontaneous desire of the child. The expression of this desire, or the instinct of play, when first manifested will nearly always be beautiful and tend to express itself in the right way, but if left undirected it may be expressed in an evil way because of the environment in which the child is placed. This is true of all the instincts, and with proper cultivation and direction they will help to produce a sound manhood and womanhood.

On the playground the director does not dictate to the child what he is to play and how to play it, but he does make suggestions, and because he is stronger and has more skill and endurance the children will make him their ideal. If left undirected the playground is in danger of falling into the hands of young loafers in the community who may smoke, swear, and tell obscene stories. Their ideals of sportsmanship are to win in any possible way. These boys become leaders and are inclined to take advantage of the weaker and younger children. They form a very bad example for the other boys to follow and give them habits of conduct which are very detrimental. It is a wonderment to some why children should imitate the things which to us are manifestly base and unworthy. It should be remembered that children have a limited amount of organized knowledge, and it requires organized knowledge to discriminate between that which is of value and that which is not. The thing will be imitated if there is not an inhibiting knowledge that it is not good.

Supervised Playground

There are many things to be said of a supervised playground. H. S. Curtis tells of a teacher in a New York school who brought to the schoolroom a game played in the gutter which contained elements that were not good. She played the game with the children and in her play left out the vulgar expressions, saying, "If you please," instead of striking the next child. In a few days the children would be playing the game in the same way the teacher had played it.

It would be well worth while to have a high-grade person in each playground for the purpose of having something good for the children to imitate if for no other reason. The child wants to do things to gain the approval of the group in which he is playing, and his socially reflected self responds to those things which have the approbation of the group. He wants to be dependable, because in this way he will find himself respected and honored by his associates.

LETTERS

Wichita Pastor Comments Upon Address of Doctor Peter Ainslee

From a Letter to the First Presidency

WICHITA, KANSAS, May 15.—We had a very fine day here Sunday. A good spirit was present throughout the day. We have had the largest attendance the last three Sundays since I have been in the city. The people seem to be in fine spirits. I am very hopeful for a successful series of meetings when Brother Gleazer is here. We are having the people act as an advertising committee, and they seem to be putting it over.

Hears Address of Doctor Ainslee

Sunday afternoon, with Brother Bedwell, of this city, I attended a meeting at the First Presbyterian church, which was addressed by Doctor Peter Ainslee, of Baltimore, a man of whom you no doubt have heard much. He was a delegate to the Hague Peace Conference of 1919 and has had a very prominent part in the movement for the promotion of church unity. His subject was: "Can we still be Christians?"

"Theology belongs to the few; religion to the many. Theology has been harmful to church unity. Theological unity is impossible, but cooperative unity is possible, and must be if the world is saved from destruction. The church is in a large measure responsible for war. It has not done all that is possible to prevent it. The church cannot always follow the government; it must follow Jesus Christ. The government is not infallible, it is directed by men. Can it be possible that men will be fallible before and infallible after election? We must not say the state can do no wrong, but the state shall do no wrong. General Ryan, of the United States Army, says, 'The Christians must get together, both Catholic and Protestant, or civilization is in danger of extinction by the next war which is sure to come unless something is done.' Not only the cities of the east and west coast are endangered, but cities of the Middle West as well. Much of the disease of the past has been blotted out—cholera, yellow fever, etc.—through scientific research and application. War is a mental disease and must be blotted out in some manner.

"Lynching, too, must be abolished by education and religion. A group of Balkan representatives whom he met in

---

The director on the playground has a very great advantage in training the original natures of the children. If one child has an aggressive nature when he is on the playground he will cultivate qualities of leadership, but this tendency should be watched, for it may lead to an exaggerated self-assertion that should be checked. On the other hand, some children who are timid and backward and afraid to express themselves enter into the activities of the other children. These children should be encouraged to take their place among their playmates and in this way develop qualities which will mean much to them in the future.

These are some of the values of play. Much more might be said about the physical, mental, moral, and social value of the various kinds of play.

Europe were unable to understand how lynching could exist in such a highly civilized and Christian nation as this. Our economic system must be changed. Capital and labor must cease their antagonistic attitude toward each other. Both must recognize themselves as forces for cooperation.

"Can a man be a Christian and stand idly by? No matter from what point we approach the human heart it is fundamentally social. Men must learn to trust each other. The blood of war and the antagonism of Christians must be abolished. Oh, for a group to rise up who would say, 'I love you in spite of your denomination!'"

Attends Council Meeting of "Disciples"

Monday morning I attended a council meeting in the church of Christ (Disciples) over which Doctor Ainslee presided. This was a denominational meeting of that church. I thought it was an interdenominational meeting and of course felt somewhat out of place when Doctor Ainslee inquired if any were present of any other church and I discovered that another man and myself were the only other people present outside of their own group, and he was there by invitation. However, I stayed through the meeting. The first part of the meeting church unity in general was discussed, as you will note by the syllabus I am inclosing. Doctor Ainslee, leading the discussion, said in part:

"Church unity is not only desirable but absolutely necessary to the successful presentation of the message of Christ. Denominational journals, schools, and conventions are the chief aids to the perpetuation of division in the church. They must be done away with. City, county, state, national, and international interdenominational groups, with their periodicals, must be established. A divided church cannot conquer the world for Christ. Interfellowship must be promoted. The Disciples must not consider themselves as the only Christians. The meager knowledge of what other groups are doing is the cause of much misunderstanding." The doctor advises his congregation to visit other churches.

Christian Unity

The latter part of the lecture was devoted to "Christian unity and the disciples of Christ." Here the spirit of interdenominationalism begins to wane. The discussion begins to smack with the group spirit. Quoting the doctor again, "The Disciple movement had its origin in an effort to promote the unity of fellowship among all Christian groups. The Disciples have lost that spirit since that time and have devoted their efforts to denomination expansion. The effort has failed in its original purpose as the movement is now divided over the use of the organ and the missionary methods of the church."

Doctor Perient, of this city, one of their pastors here, said they were hated more by this group (non-Progressive) than by any other group. I noted by a talk made by a lady in the group that there is a discussion going on in the church now whether the word disciple in the Bible should be spelled with a capital "D" or not. The lady was very insistent that it should be so. The doctor, however, said that she could spell it either way for him. He saw no importance in it.

The fact that the Disciples claimed to be a Bible people and the fact that they had contributed nothing to the American Bible Society did not harmonize in the opinion of the doctor. They should be the leaders in the movement to promote church unity. The question was asked, "Would it take a large denomination to be the greatest influence and a leader in the movement for unity?" This the doctor answered very emphatically, No. The group that would exert the most influence in that direction would be dynamic, growing, not static or final in their religious views. It was here I received a gentle dig from one of the ministers. He asked what place the Book of Mormon and continued and final revelation would have in an effort to unity. The doctor ignored the reference to the Book of Mormon and revelation, merely saying a dynamic religion would put it over. Just where the questioner could make a connection between continued and final revelation is beyond me. And if a religion is dynamic it must have continued revelation as one of its chief characteristics to make it so. An attitude of "where the Bible speaks we speak, and where the Bible is silent we are silent" will be one of the chief elements of a static religion. However, I kept my seat and said nothing. I believe Doctor Ainslee to be a very wonderful man, who seems to be full of his message and to be much more liberal than many of the group with whom he is associated. I noted that the doctor emphasized the necessity of baptism by immersion. How he will put over church unity with that principle as one of its doctrines I am in doubt. The doctor thinks church unity is yet in the distant future. I am agreed with him when I see the denominational bigotry in the group who recognize as their mission the promotion of unity.

THOMAS S. WILLIAMS.

Overcoming Grouches

WEBB CITY, OKLAHOMA, May 9.—This morning while reading in the book of John, my mind was crowded with many thoughts which I should like to express to my brothers and sisters of the laity. One of the greatest things in the gospel, or the very greatest, for good is love. A very great factor for wrong is selfishness, or in other word "grouches," for if we were not loving ourselves so very much we would have no time for grouches.

Much trouble and sorrow is caused by the petty grouches which many, even Saints, nourish and cherish so fondly within their hearts. One will be surprised to go into many of the churches of the Saints to-day and find them so nearly empty. And why? When the cause is hunted out, usually it is because of grouches. One sister has said or done something to another and she has a grouch to nurse. A brother stays away because another has done a wrong and he does not want to go to church where such a man goes and takes part. He nurses his grouch until it causes him to become as great a sinner as the offending brother. He stays away from church, not being sufficiently spiritual to have love and charity for the offender. At home he reads the "funnies" to the children, because they, too, are no longer in church or Sunday school.

Thus the church languishes and the pews offer a silent welcome for those who once occupied them and shared their hospitality. The picture show flourishes, while the Devil laughs; and the sad, discouraged pastor preaches to the faithful few. The Sunday school decreases because the parents talked so long at breakfast about the grouch that there was not time to get the children ready. Prayer services grow smaller until the pastor, his wife, the sexton, and the faithful half dozen claim the blessing promised to the "two or three who are met together in my name."

Can we afford to miss these blessings? I for one feel sure we cannot. When we read the story as told in the first four books of the New Testament we feel that the Master had much to have grouches over, yet he disregarded it all, for he was about his Father's business. When Saints have entered into the covenant, should they not feel they are about their Father's business also? Let us be sure whom we serve, and who our Father is, for "by their fruits ye shall know them." We draw the conclusion that grouches had got into the lives and hearts of some one when Paul wrote that all had turned from him. But listen to what the Spirit later said to the servants of the seven churches, not such a comforting message as one who had tried faithfully to keep the commandments contained in the gospel would wish to receive. We are told to beware of the "secret sins," and this seems to be one of the many.

Saints, let us pray for sufficient love in our hearts so that when we feel another has wronged us we may go to the offender as commanded and talk it over with him before we settle down and pet our grouch, which like a boil sometimes becomes very sore and destroys much of our peace of mind. Dear Saints, if you are failing to do your duty toward God, I beg of you to examine your own hearts and see if you can nourish a grouch against another and at the same time enjoy the Spirit of the living God in your hearts that is promised to the faithful ones.

Do you feel the spirit of love, peace, and joy welling up within your heart from day to day? Have you the blessed assurance that our heavenly Father is well pleased with the offering you bring to him daily? To him that overcometh is the crown of life. May the Lord help us overcome our grouches and love our brothers and sisters who are weak like unto ourselves, is the prayer of a sister.

ELLEN S. ADAIR.

Spring River District Conference Closes

JOPLIN, MISSOURI, May 19.—The Spring River district conference has just closed. It was held at Pittsburg, Kansas. There was a good crowd for all three days, although the weather was somewhat cool. We had the privilege of having with us John Blackmore, the district president; Apostle F. Henry Edwards; and Missionaries Lee Quick, Amos T. Higdon, and J. T. Riley.

An interesting and educational program was given by the Department of Women Friday afternoon. In the evening the Department of Recreation and Expression had charge under the leadership of Brother Robert Jones. Talent from the locals was displayed.

Business meeting was held Saturday morning, and at 7.45 Brother Edwards gave a wonderful sermon. His pleasing way of expressing himself was a treat to all.

From 9 to 10 on Saturday night, the young people of Pittsburg entertained the visiting and home folks of the conference with an hour of games, healthy laughs, and good refreshments.

Sunday was a beautiful day, opening with a prayer service at 8.30 a. m. Using the theme "Mother," the prayers and testimonies were very inspirational. The Sunday school at 9.45 had the district and local officers in charge.

The sermon at 11 was by Brother Higdon, his subject being, "Study to show thyself approved of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Brother Higdon emphasized the word study.

There being hardly enough room to seat all the grown people of the conference, the children were entertained with a junior service in charge of Brothers Edwards and Blackmore.

At 12.15 dinner was served in the dining hall to about five hundred people. Everyone enjoyed this part of the day immensely.

Prayer service at 2.30 p. m. had wonderful prayers, songs, and testimonies of a good Latter Day Saint nature. At 4.30 a young people's meeting of the district was held under the direction of Brother Robert Jones. Song service at 7.15 with S. G. Carrow, district chorister, in charge. Sermon by Brother Edwards.

MRS. C. E. WILSON.

Elders' Quorum to Be Held at Whitemore, Michigan

SAGINAW, MICHIGAN, May 27.—The elders' quorum will meet at Whitemore, Michigan, June 21 and 22, during which time the Saints of Whitemore will provide for the welfare of the Saints attending. The following program will be rendered:

Saturday. Prayer service, 9.30; paper, "Our attitude toward getting education or preparedness," George White of Gladwin (open for discussion), 10.45; paper, "Objective of elders' quorum," E. S. White, of Bay City, also paper, "An elder's duty toward the quorum," E. S. White, 1.30; problem meeting, 2.15; preaching, 7.45.

Sunday. Prayer service, 7; continuation of problem meeting, 8; Sunday school, subject for elders, "Zion and its present day task," M. Umphrey and M. A. Summerfield, teachers; annual address, E. S. White, president of the quorum, 11; business meeting, 11.20; lecture, "Elders as pastors," M. Umphrey, 1.30; "Our attitude toward change or advancement in the departments," M. S. Summerfield, 2.15; paper, "Pulpit etiquette," E. S. White, 3.

All papers will be open for discussion for a few minutes after being read. All meetings will be open except problem meeting and business meeting. All members of the priesthood are invited to come.

JOHN D. WADE.

To the Preacher

By Charlotte Perkins Gilman

Preach about yesterday, Preacher,
The time so far away,
When the hand of Deity smote and slew,
And the heathen plagued the stiff-necked Jew;
Or when the Man of Sorrow came,
And blessed the people who cursed His name.
Preach about yesterday, Preacher—
Not about to-day!

Preach about to-morrow, Preacher,
Beyond this world's decay;
Of the sheepfold paradise we priced
When we pinned our faith to Jesus Christ;
Of those hot depths that shall receive
The goats who would not so believe.
Preach about to-morrow, Preacher—
Not about to-day!

Preach about the old sins, Preacher,
And the old virtues, too.
You must not steal nor take man's life,
You must not covet your neighbor's wife,
And woman must cling at every cost
To her one virtue, or she is lost.
Preach about the old sins, Preacher—
Not about the new!

Preach about the other man, Preacher,
The man we all can see,
The man of oaths, the man of strife,
The man who drinks and beats his wife,
Who helps his mates to fret and shirk
When all they need is to keep at work.
Preach about the other man, Preacher—
Not about me!

Patriarch John F. Martin Meets With Splendid Enthusiasm Among Saints in Mission Field

From a Letter to the First Presidency

KIRTLAND, OHIO, May 17.—This writing finds me at home enjoying a few days' rest; after a rather strenuous trip to Iowa, Nebraska, Michigan, and other points, covering a period of about three months. At no time in my work for the church have I enjoyed more spiritual power and a more hearty response from the people than during this trip.

In former letters I have acquainted you with my efforts at Lamoni, Hiteman, Chariton, and Lucas, Iowa. From Lucas I went to Omaha, Nebraska, where the same good Spirit prevailed as was enjoyed at these other places. In my opinion Omaha is one of the most promising fields I have visited. There we have two branches of splendid Saints in a progressive, thriving city where there is little antagonism to our faith, and which offers excellent opportunities for missionary work.

Port Huron Young People's Campaign

From Omaha I went to Port Huron, Michigan, to take part in a young people's campaign, and I assure you I will never forget the wonderful time we had together. The meetings had been extensively and systematically advertised and all were on their toes ready to go when I arrived on the job. Although I was greatly fatigued from the intensive work of the other places where I had been, when I beheld these Port Huron young people fairly vibrating with enthusiasm and anticipation it seemed to fire me with new energy and zeal, so with a prayer in our hearts that God would be with us, we started off. Well, words cannot describe the splendid time we enjoyed. Those young people just pulled together wonderfully. The old folks, too, remembered the gladness of their youth and joined with the youngsters in making the campaign a success. The crowds increased as the meetings progressed until on the last night there were over four hundred present. People were standing in the vestibule, and some were sitting on the floor in the aisles. Others were turned away for lack of room.

District Organization of Young People

During the campaign some pleasant diversions were had in the form of entertainments, receptions, etc., and on the last Saturday the district Sunday school convention was held. Also on this day a district organization of the young people was effected, which promises much for the future of Port Huron district. The last Sunday was the banner day of the campaign. I do not believe any who were present will soon forget the beautiful spirit that prevailed throughout that glad Easter day, manifesting itself in prophecy and tongues, intelligent counsel, inspiring music, and many a heartfelt testimony of devotion and consecration. As the last strains of "God be with you till we meet again" were being sung at the closing service of the day, the tears that trickled down many a cheek in the congregation were silent tokens of emotions stirred within and of love prevailing in the heart. To me it was indeed a happy climax. I had done my best during the campaign to merit the confidence imposed in me. I had summoned all my energy for the last day. At the closing service my voice cracked under the strain, and I could not have preached another sermon, but as the benediction was being pronounced my heart thrilled with joy to know that our fondest hopes had been realized, and the purpose for which the campaign was planned had been accomplished.

Experience Opposition

The adversary, however, was not content to let us have everything our own way, for during the campaign he tried to mar our peace a bit by manifesting himself in the form of a black hand letter to the branch president, in which he was informed that the young man holding meetings at the church was a fit subject for the Pontiac insane asylum, and if he continued preaching in Port Huron steps would be taken to baptize him in a barrel of coal tar and goose quills. However, no attempt was made to carry out the threat, notwithstanding the preaching was continued even more earnestly than before.

On the Monday evening following the campaign a farewell gathering was held at one of the homes. A very pleasant evening was spent in games and music, and at an appropriate time a substantial gift was presented to the missionary to assist him on his way. Thus closed another of the happy events of my missionary experience.

JOHN F. MARTIN.

Colorado Missionary Transferred to Southern California

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIFORNIA, May 19.—May I take this means to inform those interested in my former field work in Colorado, and in the present appointment to points in southern California, of the transfer that has been made in this way?

It is by the kindness of those in charge of the mission work and on account of the continued illness of Mrs. Yates that this transfer is made.

My regret at this separation from the Saints and friends in Colorado is deep and real, and I desire to publish to them this word of thanks and appreciation for all their kindnesses and cooperation in the work we have engaged in together.

And to the Saints in my new field, Greeting. May we all be sustained in the good grace of God for the promoting of righteousness, which is his cause among men.

Our present address is 552 B Street, San Bernardino, California.

Your coworker,

JAMES E. YATES.

More Italians Ready for Baptism at Philadelphia

From a Letter to the First Presidency

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA, May 13.—Last week I wrote nineteen letters to the members of the priesthood. These were personal letters appealing to them to respond to the call for more service in the branch. I have had some encouraging responses already. I expect to write to all of the members of the priesthood before this week is over.

We endeavored to celebrate Mothers' Day in a fitting manner last Sunday. Sister Zimmermann, sr., gave a short address, and I tried to preach a sermon on "Motherhood." The choir rendered a beautiful anthem. In the afternoon we gave carnations to six shut-in mothers. Young girls distributed them to five of the mothers and two older sisters went to the sixth.

Instead of the regular preaching service at night, we had a round-table discussion on the topic of Zion with its sub-topics. Questions were handed in, and after a few opening remarks Bishop Irwin gave his attention to answering the questions. It proved very interesting and instructive.

This morning Brother Fraccascia expects to baptize four or five adult Italians. There are about six or eight children ready to be baptized soon.

ARTHUR E. STOFF.

Sunday School Attendance Contest Started at New Canton, Illinois

NEW CANTON, ILLINOIS, May 24.—After reading so many letters from the Saints in other places telling how they work to build up the gospel, the Saints here talked the matter over and planned a contest, which began on May 4, between the Reds and the Blues. Ribbon badges were made. Two presidents were chosen, one lady and one gentleman, who chose sides. The side which gains the most new pupils will win. One point is given for every new pupil. At the end of three months the losing side will treat the other to ice cream and cake. Everyone is working hard, and the Sunday school is growing. Last Sunday the Blues had 31 and the Reds had 28.

The Lord's help being with us, the good work is progressing at New Canton. We desire the prayers of the Saints.

ALMEDA CALLIER.

Eighteen Italians Baptized at Philadelphia

From a Letter to the First Presidency

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA.—Eighteen Italians were baptized recently, thirteen of whom were children. This makes a total number of thirty-two. We hope before long to have one of the apostles come to organize these Italians into a branch. I think I see the material for a sufficient number to comprise the priesthood.

When the time is ripe, we want to send Brother Fraccascia and wife to Graceland College, so they may take the religious education course that is offered to fit them for the work they will, no doubt, be called upon to do in Italy. At the present time it would be a mistake to take Frank away as they depend upon him so much. He is the pastor, and they have full confidence in him. Brother Frank Affannoto will, no doubt, qualify to carry on the work after Frank Fraccascia leaves.

John Zimmermann, jr., is recovering from a recent operation. His brother Will also underwent an operation, and is likewise doing well.

We are ever praying for you and the interests of the work.

ARTHUR E. STOFF.

Two New Songs Published by B. H. Doty

WALLACEBURG, ONTARIO, May 9.—I want to express my appreciation for seeing my poem in the HERALD. This is about the only way that I can contribute my part in trying to cultivate the little gifts that God has given me.

I thought that you, as well as the Saints scattered abroad, would be interested to learn I have two more songs of my own composition published and ready for sale. They are entitled "Zion, the beautiful," and, "You will find him ever near." Many of the Saints heard the former at the late General Conference.

The money derived from these, after paying tithing on it, will go to pay the cost of publication and assist in paying for a baritone saxophone that we have purchased to complete the Doty Saxophone and Male Quartet.

My three boys will travel with me for two months or more this summer, assisting in street services. We have a complete quartet, both vocal and instrumental, and already have more calls for open-air services than we can fill.

I trust this letter may find space in the columns of the HERALD, as it seems to be the only way we have of reaching our brothers and sisters.

These songs mentioned can be had for twenty-five cents per copy by sending to my home address, 219 West Ninth Street, Traverse City, Michigan.

B. H. DOTY.

CHURCH NEWS

Break Ground for New Church Building at Flint, Michigan

FLINT, MICHIGAN, May 29.—On Tuesday, May 27, several of the brethren gathered at the new location of the Third Church on Niles Avenue, and broke ground for the new building. On Decoration Day the brethren and their friends will complete the digging of the basement. Plans have been made to start the construction work at once. The ladies will serve a potluck lunch to the men at noon on May 30.

One of the great needs of Flint is about to be realized. Several of the brethren have united in the grocery business. The store is under the management of Brother George D. McNamara. One store is being stocked with groceries and meats, and the second one is a meat market, being located with another firm which carries a complete line of groceries and vegetables. It is the plan of the brethren to send their truck into the towns of the Central Michigan District and buy dairy products and their farm products as far as they can be used for the Saints.

Several inquiries have come regarding work in Flint. At present work is scarce, as some of the large factories are not running a full schedule. It would be inadvisable to seek work in this city just at present.

One of the most successful events of the season was the father and son banquet held at the First Church, under the auspices of the Department of Recreation and Expression. The principal speaker was Doctor E. E. Lewis superintendent of the Flint Schools. This was the first of several events scheduled by this department. The Department of Women served the banquet.

Owen Sound Reports Work Going Ahead

OWEN SOUND, ONTARIO, May 22.—The growth of individuals, like plants, is of necessity a somewhat slow and laborious process, a gradual unfolding, a system of evolution, climbing ever, and climbing upward. The Owen Sound District, although not doing anything spectacular, is endeavoring to assert its influence for good. Being a large district and covering much territory it requires a gathering in of the loose ends, as it were, and a more systematic method inaugurated for the preaching of the word.

The two missionaries, Elders S. G. St. John and Percy Yarrow, have been laboring in different parts of the district with some success.

Elder J. L. Mortimore and wife have been in poor health of late. It is hoped the warmer days will bring back at least a measure of health to him and his worthy companion.

Group two of the elders quorum, Owen Sound District, met at Port Elgin on May 11. The subject of discussion was, "The science of health and right living from a physical and spiritual standpoint and benefits to be derived." The paper was read by Elder Sidney Smith, who had received assistance in its preparation from Elder F. V. Elliott.

Elder F. V. Elliott, who has been teaching science and mathematics in Kincardine high school, is preparing to return to Chicago University to complete his education.

The visit and association of Apostle J. A. Gillen was enjoyed. Come again, Brother Gillen. You have a hearty welcome here. The church and this district need men like you who can envisage the future and impart it unto others.

New York Saints Planning for Reunion

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK CITY, May 21.—The reunion will be held during the period commencing August 16 and ending the 31st, at Deer Park reunion grounds. These dates bring the event later in the season than ever before, since this park has been used by the New York and Philadelphia District. The period is well chosen to meet local conditions. The park is a well-known and popular camping ground for thousands within a radius of fifty miles. Several inquiries for rates have been received from strangers who on week-end auto trips have observed the park billboards.

Easter Sunday will long be remembered by those who crowded into the church to see the pageant, "Easter dawn," rendered that evening. No effort or expense was spared in providing suitable stage settings, scenery, costumes, and colored lighting effects, that the significance of the resurrection might be portrayed in an atmosphere of reverent sublimity. The fact that many in the audience were frequently in tears during the performance is one of many evidences that success crowned the efforts of those who took part.

Brother and Sister A. P. Hawkins have welcomed a little daughter to their happy family circle. There are now both a son and daughter to greet "papa" on his home-comings.

Sister A. M. Carmichael has just returned from Los Angeles, California, to which place she was called by the death of her father.

Appropriate services were held in honor of those to whom we give due respect in the celebration of Mothers' Day. Brethren E. Squire and J. F. Rudd were the speakers of the day. Brother Stephen Lester, of Chicago, attended the services while here on a short visit to friends and relatives.

A. M. Carmichael's sermon the morning of May 18 on the subject of "Our moral upbringing as it affects individual thinking" was so unusual that although the service extended a half hour over the time, the after-service session with several of his listeners held him for thirty minutes more in further discussion, all of which was well received and appreciated.

The Brooklyn church is located at Park Place and Schenectady Avenue. Use Saint John's trolley or interboro subway to Utica Avenue Station. Services as customary.

Discuss Plans for Group Enterprise

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA, May 26.—Under the direction of Brethren John Zimmermann, jr., and Bishop Charles Irwin, several meetings have been held by the brethren of the Philadelphia Branch for the purpose of discussing the possibilities of organizing a company and building a textile factory in Philadelphia, and one in Jackson County, Missouri. No definite decision on the matter has been reached.

On Monday, May 26, a meeting was held by the same body, to which the sisters of the branch were invited, to discuss the possibilities of cooperative buying. Owing to the fact that the majority of the Saints live in proximity to the church, success may attend their efforts.

Lately there has been added to the list of Italian members, thirteen children and five adults, making a total to date of thirty-two new members. Missionary meetings are being held nightly in the Italian settlement where most of the Italian members reside.

The Department of Women still keeps busy under the leadership of Mrs. John Zimmermann, sr. Five of their number are kept very busy acting as friendly visitors.

The pastor, Brother Arthur E. Stoff, delivered lately a very effective talk to the Saints on the proper exercise of their free agency in choosing the good and eschewing evil. In the old-fashioned manner, instead of expressing his own personal views, he proved his case by quoting from the standard books of the church. In proportion as the Saints learn to choose the good, he said, they are strengthened to resist the evil, and to the extent that they choose the evil they are weakened to choose the good.

Brother John Zimmermann, jr., and William Zimmermann have been in a local hospital for several days, each having undergone an operation. They are recovering nicely.

Special Meetings Held at San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, May 28.—Beginning on May 4, Elders G. H. Wixom and E. B. Hull commenced a two weeks' series of meetings at the church. Some few nonmembers attended. The Saints did well in supporting the meetings, and the speakers enjoyed good liberty in presenting the word. It was a pleasure to have them here, and they will be welcome again at any time.

Among the visitors of late were William W. Dawson and his son and daughter from Sacramento, Sister Stillman from Independence, Missouri, and Sister Inslee from Oakland.

One man was baptized here on May 25, John Shipman from Hilo, one of the Hawaiian Islands. He is a son of O. T. Shipman of Hilo, well known among Hawaiian Saints.

We have commenced building an assembly hall on the rear of the church. The concrete foundation is already laid, and the work will soon be pushed through to completion. It is very much needed for entertainments, banquets, young people's meetings, etc.

The group meetings are assembling again, renewing studies, and learning more about the latter-day work.

The weather here at present is simply grand. Flowers and trees are at their best. No storms or blizzards here. All is well with the Saints.

Woodbine Saints Take Part in Union Memorial Services

WOODBINE, IOWA, May 27.—In the past Woodbine has said very little about itself but has been trying to let the light of the gospel shine in this little corner of the Lord's vineyard.

On Easter the Sunday school gave a program, and although the aisles were filled with chairs brought from the basement many were obliged to stand. The decorations of white, yellow, and lavender crepe paper, with an abundance of potted plants and flowers, gave a beautiful setting for the well-prepared program.

The music was directed by a teacher of the Woodbine schools, from whom our young people had received training. This was made possible through the kindness of Brother F. C. Oviatt in financing this instruction, as also the co-operation of others. It is hoped the choir will show their appreciation by giving that willing service such as God loves to see manifest in his children.

On May 11 another crowd attended the Mothers' Day program which was appropriate and touching. It consisted of music, readings, and a very fitting address given by Brother Joseph Seddon. As he says, he is older than he used to be, yet as the gospel falls from his lips it has the ring of his younger days.

Midweek prayer meetings are quite well attended. The testimonies of the older Saints are encouraging because of the many years of faithful service through the vicissitudes of life; and of the younger because of their desire to prepare for service.

On May 25 the Saints joined in union Memorial exercises at the Christian church.

Series of Meetings Held at First Chicago Branch

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, May 19.—First Chicago Branch wishes to report progress for the last month. On April 27, H. P. W. Keir, of Central Church, was the speaker in the morning, and at the evening hour the pastor, Brother Bone, gave food for thought.

The sacramental service was a feast to the souls of all who were present.

On the evening of the 4th, Brother Jerome Wildermuth began a week's series of meetings which turned out to be another banquet of good things. Brother Wildermuth goes deep in the storehouse of knowledge. The choir furnished musical selections and, together with the solos of Sister Violet Bone, Brother Randall, Brother and Sister Peterson, and Brother St. John, were enjoyed by the good attendance present.

Mothers' Day was observed in an appropriate manner, all of the mothers receiving gifts of flowers. There always seems to be something reverential about the word "Mother."

Brethren C. A. Edstrom and L. V. Butterworth occupied on the 18th, both sermons inviting the Saints to come up higher, even unto perfection.

The Department of Recreation and Expression is taking on new life under the leadership of Brother Sidney Barrows, and if all step up and do their duty as the leaders point out the way, Zion is to be redeemed in the near future. May God give light to see and strength to go on under the direction of God's inspired ministry.

Evangelist Holds Meetings at Moorhead, Iowa

MOORHEAD, IOWA, May 28.—U. W. Greene, evangelist, closed a series of meetings here on May 18. Considering the busy season, the services were well attended and much appreciated by those permitted to attend. He departed for his home at Independence, Missouri, on the following day.

Bishop Israel A. Smith and Brother William E. McKindsey of Independence were present at the evening service on May 16.

Besides Brother Greene the recent speakers have been T. O. Strand, Mark Jensen, Charles Crews, and Chester Davis.

Brother Charles Hield occupied as speaker at the community Memorial service at Little Sioux, Sunday, May 25. He and his wife expect to depart for Lamoni this week.

Mark Jensen occupied the pulpit at the Jordan church May 17, and at Pisgah on the 25th.

Brother Thomas Crandel is seriously ill at his home. His daughter, Mrs. Earl Gallant, of Denison, Iowa, is helping care for him.

Blair Jensen and party motored from Lamoni Friday, May 23, returning the 25th. They were accompanied on the return trip by his sisters, Aurilee and Alice, who will visit friends and attend the Young People's Convention.

Brother Levi Rawlings and family moved to Independence last week, having disposed of his mercantile business at Ute, Iowa.

Joseph Lane, district president, spent several days recently among the Saints here.

Sister Jessie Smith and children of Sioux City returned to their home on the 18th after visiting the previous week with Moorhead relatives.

Sister Myrtle Ballantyne, who has been teaching in the Pisgah school, spent a few days here before going to Lamoni. Sister Dorothy Briggs, who has been on the school faculty here the past nine months, returned to her home in Lamoni on May 23.

Frances Strand, Fern Wilson, and Rufus Amundson, three of our young church people, were members of the high school graduating class of 1924.

The many friends of Brother Perry Mann are rejoicing with him over the improvement in his health. He and Sister Mann returned to their home the first of the week after a three weeks' stay at the Jennie Edmundson Hospital where he has been taking treatments.

Saints will be pleased to learn that Sister Fred Pellissier, who has been confined to her home with rheumatism, is again able to be up part of the time.

An Increase in Interest Is Noted Among Cherokee Saints

CHEROKEE, IOWA, May 26.—Cherokee Branch is still striving to let its light shine. Bad weather and sickness the past month have kept many of the Saints from attending services, but they are not discouraged. Interest in Sunday school is increasing, and the various classes are working out means of earning their Christmas offerings. One senior class cleaned a lady's house last week and earned a nice sum.

Services on Sunday are well attended and interest has been very good. The speakers the past month have been F. T. Mussell, J. T. Spence, William Shore, E. L. Edwards, and A. R. Crippen.

Sister Yarrington, the most aged member, has just undergone a severe operation in a hospital at Sioux City. She has been administered to by Elders Long and Smith who were on their way to Canada, also by Elder Vassal of Sioux City. She is recovering rapidly. Brother and Sister A. R. Crippen and Brother Harold Reeder of this branch called on her May 18, and found her rejoicing in God's goodness and mercy to her.

They also attended Sunday school and heard a fine sermon by Elder Long on Sunday morning. Brother Crippen praises the Sioux City school for their good work.

Albert H. Haynes, teacher, will attend the young people's convention at Lamoni. He will endeavor to bring home some of the good instruction he expects to receive there.

At the business meeting May 19, the branch voted to recommend the ordination of W. W. Reeder to the office of elder.

A number of Saints from here will attend district conference at Deloit next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Sister Etta Webb, superintendent of Sunday school, will spend several months in Idaho and Washington visiting her children. Brother F. M. Sheldon, assistant superintendent, will have charge of the Sunday school during her absence.

Union Branch at Clitherall, Minnesota, Loses Faithful Member

CLITHERALL, MINNESOTA, May 28.—Notwithstanding some sickness in the depleted ranks, and the death of one faithful sister, those who remain are still steadfast and interested in the work. The sister mentioned was Nettie Tucker, a young woman who grew up in this branch and who leaves an invalid mother and a sick father besides a brother to mourn their loss. The sermon was by Patriarch F. A. Smith at Independence, where her death occurred. The sermon was reported and sent to her parents and is a deep well of comfort to her family.

The branch has been encouraged by the visit of Brother and Sister Arthur W. Whiting, of Independence, Missouri.

Scholarship Won by High School Graduate at Bevier, Missouri

BEVIER, MISSOURI, May 27.—Among the high school graduates the past week were Sister Ellen Tanner and Brethren David Richards and Robert Davis. Sister Tanner was the class salutatorian and won a scholarship in the Chillicothe Business College. The members of the Temple Builders gave Sister Tanner a farewell reception Monday night, May 26, before she departed for Chillicothe. They presented her with a fountain pen.

On May 20 Sister Ellen Davis and her husband celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. A number of relatives, Saints, and friends gathered at the home of their daughter, Sister Lewis Parry. Another daughter, Sister W. C. Richards, and husband brought the golden honeymooners to the Parry home. They were taken into the living rooms which were darkened on their arrival. Then the lights were turned on, and they found themselves surrounded by Saints and friends. They were the recipients of many nice presents, among which was a substantial sum of money. Two children, nine grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren are the living posterity of this noble couple whose lives have been filled with good deeds. After working fifty-eight years in the coal mines, Mr. Davis was injured by a fall of slate which permanently crippled him.

Redecorate Church Building

Since Sunday, May 18, the Sunday services of the branch and Sunday school have been held in the Odd Fellows' Hall while the interior of the church building is being painted and the walls and ceilings decorated. They expect to get back in the church building about the second Sunday in June.

Elder William J. Reese, of Kansas City, came to Bevier to spend Decoration Day. Elder Reese formerly lived at Bevier. He was a prominent merchant and served as postmaster at Bevier for sixteen years, receiving his appointment from President Grant and succeeding himself through the Hayes, Garfield, and Arthur administrations. Brother Reese celebrated his eighty-third birthday at Bevier May 26. He has traveled all over the Middle West giving illustrated temperance lectures.

The branch president, W. B. Richards, is at Kansas City, where he expects to find employment, and if successful will move his family there. The two largest coal mines have closed indefinitely, and many here are out of work.

J. L. Williams has installed a super-heterodyne radio receiving set and expects to rebroadcast the Independence and Lamoni Sunday night services. The K F I X evening service of May 18 was exceptionally fine. Nothing can equal the good old inspired hymns.

Sister George Gordon, 418 South West Second Avenue, Miami, Florida, writes: "My husband and I have been in Florida over a year, in which time we have not met any of the same faith. We felt very much disappointed in reading the HERALD of April 9 to learn that Brother S. S. White and wife had spent part of the winter here, and we had not seen them. While Miami is our mailing address, we live on Key Biscayne, seven miles across the bay from Miami. I wish to send you the name and address of a young sister who is very lonely for the association of Saints. She has been at that place for several years and has never found any of the same faith. Will you kindly let her know if there is anyone near her? Her address is Mrs. Bessie Meeker, 1116 Light Street, Baltimore, Maryland. Her husband is not a member of the church."

Spokane Saints Mourn Loss of Two Loved Members

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON, May 21.—During the past month the Spokane Saints have experienced both sorrow and joy.

Brother Herald Nelson, assistant superintendent of the Religio, was taken ill, and before it was realized he was in danger he answered the final call. Brother Herald was a promising young man, and the Saints mourn their loss, yet take comfort in the realization of his gain.

Sister Wallace Smith, of Clarks Fork, Idaho, was stricken Sunday, April 27, at about seven o'clock, and passed to her reward in less than two hours. Pastor W. W. Wood was in charge of the funeral services. An instructive and comforting sermon was preached by Elder Eli Bronson. Her body was shipped to Sandpoint, Idaho, and there on the bank of the beautiful Pend Oreille Lake the last tribute was paid to a worthy mother and a real Latter Day Saint.

There is a marked degree of interest taken in the different departments, and the regular services are better attended than formerly. This can be credited to the activities of the young people.

The baseball team is composed of clean, well-set-up boys, who have played the kind of ball of which any branch could be proud.

The Religio has been putting on a special program every three weeks, and we believe success will attend their efforts as the Religio is going along in fine shape.

District President Holds Meetings at Fort Collins, Colorado

FORT COLLINS, COLORADO, May 24.—The Saints of this branch, although few in number and scattered, are trying to keep the work moving. Brother George Bullard, branch president, is faithful in trying to keep all departments working consistently and in harmony.

The Saints are meeting at present in the G. A. R. Hall. Sunday school is held at 10 a. m. with Brother K. G. Broliar superintendent; preaching at 11 o'clock; and young people's department at 7 p. m., with Brother Clifford Cable as superintendent. This latter department is following the lesson outlines in the quarterly and usually has a short program after study period.

The Sunday evening sermons of late have been in the form of lectures on the history of the church, by Brother K. G. Broliar. The midweek prayer services are held each Wednesday evening at the homes of the members.

The Saints were made glad May 10, when Brother Bruce Brown, the district president, came to visit. He delivered the address on Mothers' Day, preached in the hall two Sundays, and held services at the homes of the Saints during the week. His stay, counsel, and advice were much enjoyed, and it is hoped he may soon come again.

Death of E. D. Bullard

E. D. Bullard, oldest member of this branch, and father of the branch president, passed away at his home May 10, aged eighty-one years. He was a faithful Saint, attended the services when able, and filled his regular monthly preaching appointment when well enough to do so. The funeral services were held at the home. The sermon was preached by Brother Bruce E. Brown, and the singing was by a quartet composed of Brother and Sister Clifford Cable, Brother Glen Broliar, and Sister Letha Tilton.

The Department of Women, under the supervision of Sister

Mary L. Bullard, meets twice each month. The sisters are studying Mothercraft Manual and other helpful articles.

Fort Collins hopes the time may soon come when they may have a more suitable place in which to worship, when those outside their numbers may desire to meet with them, and they shall be able to help these friends and neighbors.

Western Maine District Conference Held

VINAL HAVEN, MAINE, May 22.—Conference convened here at 2.30 p. m., May 17, at which time the business session opened. Elder C. H. Rich was elected to preside over conference, with Elders Newman Wilson, Archie Beggs, and Bishop M. C. Fisher as associates.

Elder Newman Wilson was elected secretary and chorister for the conference. Following the business session was a preaching service at 7.30 by Elder Harvey V. Minton. The attendance of the Saints at this conference was fairly good from parts of the Western Maine District.

Morning came, and it was a beautiful Sabbath day. Sacramental services began at 9 a. m., and God was present to bless his children. There was a wonderful degree of the Spirit, and a prophecy was given through Elder Calvin H. Rich.

Then came lunch, which was served in the church vestry both at noon and in the evening by the Vinal Haven Saints to the visiting Saints.

Preaching was at 2.30 by Bishop M. C. Fisher of Boston, Massachusetts, and at 7 p. m. Elder H. A. Chelline of Jonesport, Maine, delivered the closing sermon of the conference. At this evening service the attendance was very large, and the special music was good.

The Vinal Haven Saints bear testimony that this conference was the greatest had here because of the wonderful flow of the Holy Spirit. Now that the conference is over, the Saints are more encouraged than ever to press forward in the great work. May God bless all the Saints is our prayer.

Additions to Membership at Denver by Baptism

DENVER, COLORADO, May 25.—Since last writing four have been added to the branch by baptism, all adults. Those officiating were Elders F. B. Almond, E. F. Shupe, and J. B. Wildermuth.

One of the young men has been an active worker in the church for several years, having charge of the Boy Scouts and a class of boys in the Sunday school. He is destined to do a great work in the church if faithful.

Elder Gomer Wells, of Lamoni, was here on May 11 and preached twice. Both sermons were very interesting. The morning sermon on "Mother" was a masterpiece.

Sister Hortense Cramer has left Denver for a visit to Chicago, and then to Lamoni, to make her home with her sister, Sister Callie Stebbins.

Thursday, May 15, Sister Inez Schrunk and her pupils gave a piano recital at the church, which was very fine. She was assisted by Sister Nellie Williams in a reading, and Sisters Susie Custance and Myrtle Bennett in song. It was an excellent program, the proceeds going to help branch expenses.

Invalid Robbed of Money

The following was taken from The Denver Post of Tuesday, May 20: "Police detectives Tuesday are searching for the meanest and most no account man in Denver. He went into the home of Mrs. H. V. Ralston, a blind woman, at 2595 South Cherokee Street, Monday afternoon, and stole $160 from the dresser drawer in the room where she was sitting, helpless because of her infirmity. Mrs. Ralston heard footsteps in the room and asked, 'Who's there?' But there was no response. The intruder stepped over to the dresser, rummaged in a drawer, and then departed. Mrs. Ralston groped her way to the dresser and found the $160, all the money she possessed, had vanished."

This culprit may escape the law, but it is to be hoped the money he thus stole from a helpless woman will burn in his soul till he will be forced to return it. Sister Ralston, her husband, and daughter are all members of the Denver Branch, and are worthy Latter Day Saints.

Apostle D. T. Williams, on his way to California, dropped off the train Sunday morning, May 25, and preached twice here. His sermons were very interesting.

Recent Deaths

Pastor E. J. Williams was called to Genoa recently to preach the funeral sermon of Brother Wilbur T. Shippy, brother-in-law of Elder J. R. Sutton. He has been a sufferer for quite a long time.

By letter from a young brother, Burrell Shupe, who is attending the Agricultural College at Fort Collins, it is learned of the death of Elder E. D. Bullard. He has been a member of the church for many years. He was eighty-four years old. The particulars of his last sickness have not been heard here yet. He was in attendance at the district conference in Denver the last of February, so has not been sick very long.

Brother William J. Rodgers died at Cherrylyn, near Denver, May 6, aged eighty-four years, eight days. Was baptized with his wife by Elder J. W. Gillen, June 17, 1895, at Denver. In 1862 he enlisted in Company B, Eleventh Michigan Infantry, and later was transferred to Company I, Fifteenth regiment Veteran Reserve Corps. He lived an honorable and upright life and has gone to the reward of the faithful. The funeral was from Mackin's Funeral Chapel in Englewood, in charge of Elder E. F. Shupe. Interment in Fairmont Cemetery.

Baptisms Follow Meetings at Fort Madison, Iowa

FORT MADISON, IOWA, May 26.—Elder C. M. Clifford recently conducted a two weeks' series of services here, resulting in the baptism of four and leading others near the kingdom. Services closed with forty nonmembers in attendance.

Apostle James A. Gillen spent Sunday, May 11, in Fort Madison, preaching soul-stirring sermons in the morning and evening.

Fort Madison's Latter Day Saint band will be in two parades in the city on Decoration Day, one a Sunday school parade, the other the regular Decoration Day parade.

The Saints' chapel is located at 2929 Santa Fe Avenue, and all visiting Saints are made welcome. W. H. Gunn, 3014 Seneca Street, is the pastor.

Series of Meetings Started at Wichita, Kansas

WICHITA, KANSAS, May 22.—The Wichita Branch has been having interesting services all along, especially in Sunday school. The attendance has been increasing every Sunday, having more than one hundred average.

The church is having a new font put in.

The choir is increasing in numbers, and they are going to cooperate with Brother Gleazer in having a series of meetings. This series will be from May 18 to June 1.

News From Saskatchewan

SHELLBROOK, SASKATCHEWAN, CANADA, May 3.—A few words from the far northland to let you know that the Saints here are trying to hold up the gospel banner.

At the annual branch business meeting in January, Elder E. L. Bowerman was again chosen as branch president; Brother Andrew Filby as superintendent of the Sunday school; Brother Harry Parks, superintendent of the Department of Recreation and Expression; and Sister Orbin Sims, superintendent of the Department of Women.

During the winter months the services were held from house to house. Now that winter is over the Saints are back in their little church. They are planning on finishing it this summer so that services can be held there the year around.

On account of sickness and bad roads, the Easter program had to be given up, and only the usual services were held. Elder E. L. Bowerman preached, using for his subject, "The resurrection."

The branch and departments plan for a program and special services on Mothers' Day.

At the last sacramental service, Elders Birch Whiting and Bowerman were in charge. The meeting was very spiritual. Elder Whiting and family bade us farewell. They will surely be missed, and the Saints hope to ever remember the wise counsel and good advice of Brother Whiting. May God bless them in their labors for good and heal him of his affliction, that he may continue his missionary labors wherever opportunity may send him.

Elder E. E. Long is expected here sometime this summer to give a series of meetings.

The Saints are glad to welcome to their branch Brother Fred W. Smith and family. Brother Smith has declared his intention of becoming a citizen of Canada and has taken a homestead in this community.

Two years ago the branch and auxiliaries decided to work together under one head. It is succeeding. Each department with its leader is actively engaged in work, and all are striving to do their bit towards the building of Zion, the pure in heart. The Saints here long for the time when they can leave these far outposts, strengthened and pure in heart, at least to the degree that they may gather to Zion or the regions round about to further help and be helped in the building of Zion.

Week's Meetings Held at Tawas City, Michigan

TAWAS CITY, MICHIGAN, May 24.—Elder Samuel T. Pendleton, of Beaverton, Michigan, has been here a week sounding the gospel trump but finds it hard to awaken an interest. He will continue another week.

The pastor, Elder George A. Pringle, will read the scripture lesson at the union Memorial services here Sunday, May 25.

The Iosco Branch in this county mourns the loss of Sister Mary Ann Ulman. Her six sons carried her to her last resting place. They also performed this rite for their father in January this year.

Brother L. G. Holloway writes of the marriage of Elder Curtis W. Clark, of Columbus, Ohio, to Miss Fannie Faye Gates, of Ravenwood, Missouri. This occurred at the home of the bride's parents near Ravenwood, on May 23. Brother Clark is an excellent pastor, and Sister Clark will be of great assistance to him, having attended the religious education class in Graceland, graduating from that department in 1923.

Lamoni Stake Items

LAMONI, IOWA, May 31.—On the evening of Sunday, May 18, the high school baccalaureate service was held at the Brick Church. It was a union meeting. Reverend J. Vincent Gray of the Methodist Church offered the prayer, and President F. M. McDowell delivered the address. He took as his subject, "The four corner stones in the foundation of a successful character," naming as these necessary stones—faith, prayer, love, and service.

Last Sunday morning was given over to another union service for the keeping of Memorial Day. On this occasion Reverend Clay was chosen as the speaker. He gave a very interesting talk on "The warfare of life," choosing as his text, "There is no discharge from that war."

All-day services have been held at some of the smaller branches in the stake and have been pronounced very successful despite the cold weather, which detracted somewhat from the pleasure of the main feature, the basket dinner.

Pleasanton

Such a meeting was held at Pleasanton, May 18, in which the other churches, Christian and Methodist, joined. The stake superintendent, H. H. Gold, gave valuable assistance at the Sunday school hour, addressing the workers in this department. Other speakers of the day were: C. E. Wight, stake president at 11 a. m.; Bishop A. Carmichael at 2.30; Roy Roberts, stake recreational leader, at 7; and Elder W. E. Prall of the stake presidency at 8 p. m. Song service and special musical numbers played an important part at all meetings, and one hundred twenty-five people of all three churches enjoyed the dinner at noon together.

On last Sunday a similar meeting was held at Oland, at which time Sister Blanche Edwards figured as a principal speaker, addressing the Saints at the Sunday school hour on the subject, "Religious education as a necessary requisite to any profession," and at 2.30 on "The work of the young woman in the home, society, and the world."

Elder J. A. Gunsolley occupied at 11 a. m. and C. E. Wight, stake president, at 8 p. m. At the Religio hour, Roy Roberts talked on recreation and expression.

Hiteman

Elder W. E. Prall is holding forth at Hiteman this week and is meeting with a continuation of the opposition started during the series of meetings held near there recently by Elder L. G. Holloway. Upon Brother Prall's arrival the Baptists recalled Reverend Basset and are holding opposition meetings. However Elder Prall writes that he is enjoying good crowds and a lively interest. The Saints of Hiteman are using every legitimate means in a cooperative union of faith and work to make the meetings a success.

Elder C. E. Wight delivered the Decoration Day address in Central Park yesterday. The day was fine and a good crowd gathered. The program was under the auspices of the American Legion, Post Commander Raymond McElroy in charge. The Lamoni band, under the direction of Brother J. H. Anthony furnished splendid music. Brother Joseph Anway touched the hearts of all present with the reading, "The perfect tribute."

Brother Wight made a strong appeal to the people to prepare for peace in the time of peace and to pledge their lives for the maintenance of that world freedom which our boys died to save. He closed by reading Edgar A. Guest's poem, "Memorial Day." Guest is a great favorite of Brother Wight. He keenly senses the wonderful insight of this poet into the nobler, inner life, which finds expression in that which is good and true.

Independence

Sacramental services were held at the various churches at the usual time Sunday morning. At the Stone Church the crowd was large, and a good spirit prevailed. Brother Walter W. Smith testified of his appreciation of the years he was privileged to spend with the Independence Saints. He leaves soon for Los Angeles where he will take charge as pastor of the branch there. Sister Lillian Zimmermann will succeed him as dean of the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Church Wedding at Walnut Park

A happy surprise awaited most of the large congregation at the sacramental service at Walnut Park June 1. At the usual time of closing the service, a number of late arrivals entered, a soloist took her place and sang "I love you truly," followed by the march, and up the aisles came a bridal party—the whole service having been arranged by the pastor and his helpers to go off beautifully and impressively. All eyes looked wonderingly for the bride, and the Saints were truly surprised to see entering, in her dainty white silk and orange blossoms, their own Sunday school secretary, deservedly loved and admired by all, Sister Pauline Smith, only child of Brother and Sister Francis A. Smith. The groom proved to be a stranger to many—Brother Harold McCord, son of Missionary A. E. McCord, of Stewartville, Missouri. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Richard Bullard. After the summer vacation, the couple will reside in De Kalb, Missouri, where Brother McCord has been chosen principal of schools.

Priesthood Meeting

In the afternoon of June 1, a priesthood meeting was held at the Institute Building assembly room at 2.30. The room was filled to overflowing. President Elbert A. Smith occupied the chair, and President F. M. Smith addressed the priesthood on important issues now before the church.

Posters relative to the sacrifice days, June 9 and 23, are seen in conspicuous places at the various church buildings, which remind the Saints of their coming duty.

Many of the young people and departmental workers are wending their way this week toward the Young People's Convention at Lamoni, Iowa. Both those who attended last year and those who are to participate for the first time this year are looking forward to this meeting with great anticipation of obtaining something worth while.

In the class of eighty-one students graduated from the Kansas City Law School this last week, Brother Robert T. Cooper received the highest honors of the class. He was presented a set of law books in recognition of this honor.

Decoration Day

Decoration Day was duly observed, the different Latter Day Saint congregations uniting in this. Memorial services were held at Mound Grove Cemetery in the morning, the speaker being Brother J. M. Baker, pastor of Liberty Street Church. Music was furnished by the Independence Military Band. Many compliments have been heard of the appearance of the cemetery and the orderly, beautiful way in which the last resting place of our dead is cared for.

In the afternoon and evening recreational games and patriotic addresses were enjoyed at the Campus by more than three thousand people. Most of the day was devoted to ball games and other contests. Apostle John W. Rushton was the speaker in the evening, at which service President Elbert A. Smith presided. Veterans of three wars sat on the rostrum.

Children's Day at the Stone Church

Children's Day will be observed in the First Independence Sunday school next Sunday. The primary department will occupy seats in the choir loft, and the junior department will march over from the Campus and occupy the center seats on the main floor after Sunday school.

The eleven o'clock service will be a special Children's Day program in which department songs and responses will be given. At two o'clock in the afternoon there will be baptism in the font on the Temple Lot. About thirty names have already been given to the superintendent as candidates for joining the church. The confirmation will follow promptly after the baptismal service in four different places.

Holden Stake News

Holden

The series of meetings held by Elder R. D. Weaver closed Sunday night, June 1. His sermons have been edifying and uplifting. The Saints valued his ministrations highly. Brother Weaver did double duty while here, speaking each night at the church, and in the Home Chapel each afternoon. He expects to begin meetings at Sedalia in the new church on Sunday, June 15.

The sacrament service was blessed by an overflowing of the divine Spirit. Fervent prayers and hopeful testimonies in which the Spirit of the Master was most keenly felt graced the meeting. The voice of the Spirit was manifest in correction, admonition, and encouragement to the Saints. The time of closing was extended by unanimous consent until nearly one o'clock. Brethren R. E. Burgess, McWethy, Ross, and Krahl had charge. Brother Weaver spoke on the meaning of the sacrament.

Atherton

Sunday was a day that will not soon be forgotten. The divine Spirit was present with us all day. Elder John J. Boswell was the speaker of the morning. At the close of his discourse he announced that he was going to leave Atherton. Brother Boswell is a valuable man as a minister and is loved by all. We will miss him and his wife, who were of much help to us.

Wednesday night the Saints went in a body to the home of Brother and Sister Boswell and held their prayer service with them. Fifty-one were present. At the close of the prayer service the sisters of the branch presented them with a Boston leather bag as a slight token of their high regard and appreciation for services rendered while they resided at Atherton.

The choir is growing, and Sister J. C. Schwab is doing a good work. There are twenty-five members, of which seven are nonmembers. Brother Hifner has enlarged the platform to give more room for them. Brother and Sister Waters, of Kansas City, made a beautiful pulpit, which the Saints appreciate very much. Sister D. R. Hughes donated the material, and Brother and Sister Waters donated the labor.

Knobnoster

The Saints have been greatly encouraged by the sermons of Elder Alvin Knisley, which began May 25. He preached his closing sermon last night, June 1. Brother Knisley has endeared himself to the Saints. They are looking forward to his return in the fall with pleasant anticipations. A splendid communion service was held in the morning.

It is with pleasure we note that our sick are convalescing.

MISCELLANEOUS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Pittsburgh District Ministerial Conference

Pittsburgh, at Fayette, Pennsylvania, June 21 and 22. The next ministerial conference will convene at 7 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, or 8 p. m. daylight saving time. We extend an invitation to the priesthood of the surrounding districts to come and meet with us. There will be a number of interesting meetings on Sunday also. J. A. Jaques, president, 1424 Alton Street, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Conference Notices

Owen Sound, at Guelph, Ontario, June 28 to 30. Branch secretaries are requested to send yearly reports at early date. J. H. Leeder, secretary, North Bruce, Ontario.

Alberta, at Ribstone, July 10 to 13. Departmental conferences. Preaching, prayer, and priesthood meetings. Music and recreation. Able speakers from headquarters expected. Introductory sermon at 8 p. m., July 9. William Osler, president. William McLeod, secretary.

Nauvoo, at Burlington, Iowa, June 28 and 29. Branch reports should be sent to W. H. Gunn, 3014 Seneca Street, Fort Madison, Iowa. W. H. Gunn.

Southern Saskatchewan, at Viceroy, July 3 to 5. This is the second time the dates have been changed, so please take notice. These are the dates as originally published. C. B. Burgersen.

Central Texas, with Central Branch, July 12 and 13. The Sunday School Department will give a program on Friday night. Each school in the district is expected to take part in this program. Sheldon Armstrong, secretary.

Reunion Notices

Central Texas, four miles east of Hearne, the usual place, July 14 to 20. Sheldon Armstrong, secretary.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)
 Spokane, at Sawyer, Idaho, June 20 to 29 (479).
 North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29 (383).
 Northern Wisconsin, at Chetek, June 27 to July 6 (431).
 London, Ontario, Springbank Park, June 28 to July 13.
 Minnesota, at Minneapolis, July 3 to 13.
 Central Nebraska, at Inman, July 5 to 13.
 Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (359, 503).
 Kentucky and Tennessee, at Puryear, Tennessee, July 19 to 27 (527).
 Southwestern Kansas, at Winfield, July 25 to 27 (479, 503).
 Florida, at Alafloa, July 18 to 27.
 Central Oklahoma, at Washunga, July 18 to 27 (503).
 Holden, at Holden, Missouri, July 18 to 27 (527).
 Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (335).
 Clinton, at Eldorado Springs, Missouri, July 25 to August 3.
 Western Nebraska, at North Platte, July 25 to August 3.
 Massachusetts, at Onset, July 26 to August 10.
 Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
 Lamon, at Lamon, Iowa, July 30 to August 10.
 Western Colorado, at Delta, August 1 to 10.
 Chatham, Ontario, at Erie Beach, August 1 to 10 (167, 263, 287).
 Western Michigan, at Bendon, August 1 to 10.
 Western Oklahoma, at Eagle City, August 1 to 10.
 Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 to 10 (215).
 Eastern Iowa, at Muscatine, August 1 to 10.
 Spring River, at Pittsburg, Kansas, August 7 to 17.
 Des Moines, at Runnells, Iowa, August 8 to 16.
 Mobile, at Gautier, Mississippi, August 8 to 17 (503).
 Portland, at Portland, Oregon, August 8 to 17.
 Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (335).
 Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Northern Michigan, at Boyne City, August 8 to 17.
 Northeastern Illinois, at Elmhurst, August 14 to 21.
 Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 9 to 24 (119, 338).
 Maine, at Brooksville, August 16 to 23.
 Eastern Oklahoma, at Winthrop, August 14 to 25 (527).
 Western Montana, at Race Track, August 15 to 24.
 Kewanee, at Galva, Illinois, August 15 to 24.
 Idaho, at Hagerman, August 15 to 24.
 Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24 (479).
 Northeastern Kansas, at Netawaka, August 15 to 24.
 Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, Iowa, August 15 to 24 (215).
 New York and Philadelphia, at Deer Park, Pennsylvania, August 16 to 31.
 Far West, at Stewartville, Missouri, August 21 to 31.
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, at Indian Lake, Michigan, August 22 to 31.
 Pottawattamie, at Glenwood, Iowa, August 22 to 31.
 Southern Wisconsin, at Monona Park, August 22 to 31 (503).
 Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.
 Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in hands of editors not later than Monday afternoon, preceding date of issue.

CONTENTS

EDITORIALS:
Law Enforcement .....	529
A Sporting Nation .....	529
Editorial Policy of the HERALD .....	529
OFFICIAL:
Editorial Policy Defined. Staff of Editors Named .....	530
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Obedience to Law, by Frederick M. Smith .....	532
EDUCATIONAL:
Play, by Hazel B. Dexter .....	537
LETTERS .....	540
Thomas S. Williams—Ellen S. Adair—John D. Wade—John F. Martin—James E. Yates—Arthur E. Stoff—Almeda Callier—B. H. Doty.
CHURCH NEWS .....	544
MISCELLANEOUS .....	551
RADIO .....	551

Radio

K F F V

Broadcast from the Graceland College Radio Studio, Lamoni, Iowa. Wave length, three hundred and sixty meters.

SUNDAY, JUNE 8, 1924

Special musical program.
 Sermon by President F. M. Smith.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, JUNE 8, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Studio

Prayer.
 Hymn.
 Anthem: "My faith looks up to Thee," Schaecker.
 Violin obbligato by Miss Lillian Green.
 Sermon by Bishop B. R. McGuire.
 Hymn.

SUNDAY, JUNE 8, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.
 Prayer.
 Soprano Solo: Selected.
     Mrs. J. G. Fairbanks.
 Duet: Selected.
     Mrs. Corrinne Haines French.
     Mrs. Frank Good.
 Tenor Solo: Selected.
     Mr. J. G. Fairbanks.
 Double Quartet: "Blest are the departed," from "The last judgment," by Spohr.
 First Quartet:
     Mrs. Corrinne Haines French, soprano.
     Mrs. Lulu Lentell, alto.
     Mr. Roy Cato, tenor.
     Mr. Omer Cato, bass.
 Second Quartet:
     Mrs. J. G. Fairbanks, soprano.
     Mrs. Frank Good, alto.
     Mr. Fred Friend, tenor.
     Mr. E. C. Harrington, bass.
 Sermon by Apostle F. Henry Edwards.
 Hymn.

THURSDAY, JUNE 12, 1924

9.00 P. M. From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Male Quartet: "In the gloaming."
     Roy Cato.
     Glen Fairbanks
     Fred Goode.
     Omer Cato.
 Soprano Solo: (a) "Could I?" Tosto.
                  (b) Selected.
     Mrs. Corrinne Haines French.
 Male Quartet: "Sweet and low."
 Talk.
 Male Quartet: Medley of war songs.
     "Do they think of me at home?"
     "Just before the battle, mother."
     "Tenting on the old camp ground."
 Soprano Solo: (a) "The Mattinata," Leon Cavallo.
                  (b) Selected.
     Mrs. Corrinne Haines French.
 Male Quartet: "Juanita."

The Test of Devotion

Within the last few days a portion of that famous piece of American literature, Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg, has been ringing in the ears of the citizens of the United States, "For which they gave their last full measure of devotion."

Red-blooded men are always willing to die if necessary for principle. These men made the supreme sacrifice that freedom might not perish from the earth. The Cause of Christ is a battle for freedom. Men and women everywhere are victims of the bondage and slavery of sin. "We fight not against flesh and blood," but we battle against the enemy of all humanity.

• The burden of this battle for right falls upon the church. You are the church! The measure of your devotion to your ideals will be in proportion to your willingness to sacrifice for them.

Now comes our opportunity.

June 9 and 23 have been selected as two days to be fully consecrated to the Lord's work.

Everyone is invited

- 1st. To pay his tithes in full to date.
- 2d. To give the earnings for these two days as a freewill offering.

With this the program of the fiscal year ending June 30 will be successfully completed.

Many will be able to do much more than this. Give in proportion to your ability.

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE, Presiding Bishop.

THE SAINTS' JOURNAL

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS C
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Independence
1400 W. Maple
O. C. Hudson
Jan 26 1924

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, June 11, 1924

Number 24

EDITORIAL

Healing of the Sick

The healing of the sick is not the most important part of the work of the church, still it is one of the essential tests of the church. The promise was made to the early apostles:

And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

The statement is made by Jesus that that was one of the signs of his mission (Luke 4:18). This promise was made in Isaiah 61.

Again in this present age we note Doctrine and Covenants 34:3:

And it shall come to pass, that there shall be a great work in the land, even among the Gentiles, for their folly and their abominations shall be made manifest, in the eyes of all people; for I am God, and mine arm is not shortened, and I will show miracles, signs and wonders, unto all those who believe on my name. And whoso shall ask it in my name, in faith, they shall cast out devils; they shall heal the sick; they shall cause the blind to receive their sight, and the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak, and the lame to walk; and the time speedily cometh that great things are to be shown forth unto the children of men; but without faith shall not anything be shown forth except desolations upon Babylon, the same which has made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication. And there are none that doeth good except those who are ready to receive the fullness of my gospel, which I have sent forth unto this generation.

There is not only provision for the healing of the sick, "By the prayer of faith they shall be healed"; there is not only such provisions as James 5:14, 15, seq., which have been repeated in our own age; there is not only such promises as in Isaiah 29:18 that the blind shall read, the deaf shall hear the words of the book; but these things are set forth as a sign of the work of God.

It is true that some have been somewhat fanatical on this subject, but on the other hand we may seriously ask ourselves if the church to-day is enjoying the measure of healing that it should, if we are exercising the measure of faith that we should, if we are enjoying the blessings that our heavenly Father intended that we should.

The Sanitarium is doing a splendid work. We are admonished that those who have not faith to be healed shall be administered to by mild herbs, and that not by the hands of an enemy.

Then the following paragraphs would seem to place the responsibility on the one afflicted:

And whosoever among you are sick, and have not faith to be healed, but believe, shall be nourished with all tenderness with herbs and mild foods, and that not by the hand of an enemy. And the elders of the church, two or more, shall be called, and shall pray for, and lay their hands upon them in my name; and if they die, they shall die unto me, and if they live, they shall live unto me. . . . And again, it shall come to pass, that he that has faith in me to be healed, and is not appointed unto death, shall be healed; he who has faith to see shall see; he who has faith to hear shall hear; the lame who have faith to leap shall leap; and they who have not faith to do these things, but believe in me, have power to become my sons; and inasmuch as they break not my laws, thou shalt bear their infirmities.—Doctrine and Covenants 42:12, 13.

But the above passages do not seem to place the whole burden there. The arm of the Lord is not shortened. The healing of the sick is not limited entirely by what man is able to discover of the therapeutics of suggestion. The healing of the sick may be incidental, and it is; but it is one of the criteria or one of the tests of a greater faith, having which the people may hope for a great outpouring of the blessings of God, of peace and of understanding.

Faith of Our Fathers

One of our long-time members of the church, after reading the "Open Letter" in the HERALD of June 4, remarked:

"There is nothing essentially new in principle in this 'Open Letter' which you men have published. Why, the Latter Day Saints have always stood for these principles. They are, in fact, a part of the Faith of Our Fathers."

Exactly. This is what was in the minds of those who formulated this "Open Letter." We wanted to raise a standard to which old-time Latter Day Saints could heroically rally. We wanted to go further and set forth principles which new-time Latter Day Saints and old-time Latter Day Saints—Saints who have gone before, Saints who are living now, and

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Saints who are to come after us—could indorse. And we felt by taking the standard books of the church, the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Book of Doctrine and Covenants, together with the general practices of the Reorganization from its inception, that we could define certain principles of government in keeping with the mind of God and in agreement with the experiences of his people.

There should not be any vital difference as to principles of government between the Saints of yesterday, or to-day, or to-morrow, nor yet between what may be termed "old people" and "young people." The principles of government in the church never change. Varying conditions may necessitate adaptation to these conditions, but the basic principles of government are and must be the same.

And it is for the definite purpose of developing like-mindedness as to these abiding and basic principles of church government, and upon which all true Latter Day Saints can unite, that we have issued this "Open Letter." If we can discuss these principles in fairness and frankness, without personal reflection, and in the Spirit of Jesus Christ, manifesting all the while Christian forbearance and consideration, we may rightly hope that this discussion will clarify our vision and thus dissolve our differences.

Our people should be united. It is the bounden duty of every minister and member to do all in his power to effect oneness and harmony. But unity cannot be brought about by mandate or decree, or ultimatum of either individual or group. It is the sequence to common understanding. And common understanding is impossible without free discussion. And free discussion presupposes a free press and an open platform.

Like-mindedness grows out of being able to think together. It comes as a result of talking with each other, exchanging views, canvassing conflicting opinions, weighing evidences, and then, without coercion or fear, or consideration of favor, and as free men deciding for the truth; for it is the truth which will make us free.

Unity will come to the people of God only when they are in full accord with God's law. The principles of Christ's government are clearly set forth in the New Testament scriptures and in the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants. It is the duty of each Latter Day Saint to study these books. We will do well to review the experiences and practices of the fathers of our work, who have builded well. We cannot afford to make any radical departures from the plan of church government which has met with divine approval. In our discussion we must not forget that "all we are brethren." Let friendship govern. Let us lift our discussions above petty bickerings or personal animus and give each man the credit of being equally honest with himself.

This discussion, if so conducted, must be helpful. It will stimulate study and research. It will impel the membership to get together in groups and congregations to consider and decide this issue. There will be an increased desire to read our church publications. We will have something vital to talk about. And, best of all, we will soon be called upon to decide the mooted question which has for all too long distraught our people and divided our forces. May we so comport ourselves that when that glad day comes there will be no bitter memories, no bruised and wounded hearts.

T. W. WILLIAMS.

Training a Child

We quote from the paper of a young woman in Stockton, California, who recently took two orphans into her home, whom she is trying to rear, as she says, "that they may be prepared for eternity any time their heavenly Father shall see fit to call them from this scene of worldly action." She says, "I have noticed that a mother who is a competent housekeeper and sees that her young children are properly groomed, fed, and clothed, is considered by the average person an ideal mother. But I wish to make this statement: 'The spiritual training of children during their early childhood is of far more importance than the manner in which they are clothed and housed.'"

It is the realization of such fundamental facts which makes of a young woman a mother in Israel. Less troublous times will come to the church in the future if the young mothers are persuaded that the spirituality of a child is fundamental, and the most important part of the young as well as of the mature character.

An United People

The church of Jesus Christ cannot long exist and accomplish good among men if dissension and division are found in its ranks. Dissension as here used means strife, discord, quarreling; and whether a result of attack from without or of internal conditions, the church and her membership must see that every strife brings out and emphasizes an essential item of truth; that every quarrel results in a more complete understanding of men and of doctrines; that discord does not exist except to bring about more complete accord.

In an early revelation received by Joseph Smith, there is found this positive statement, purporting to be the direct expression of the Divine Mind: "Be one; and if ye are not one, ye are not mine." This follows an instructive paragraph in which the church is told that it should hearken to the voice of God, keep his laws, man should esteem a brother as himself, and practice virtue and holiness.

It must be that offenses come, and if they cease to come it will be a matter for consideration, and will bring surprise; but the manner of their handling by the members among whom they appear, the results growing out of them, and their appearance to others are matters within our control, and for which we are responsible.

To ignore some may be wise, to examine others may be necessary and just as wise, but the result desired should never be less than the finding of foundational truth, whether it be new or old, and the unifying of the forces of the organization.

Never is it permissible to destroy that which has rightfully existed in harmony with the word of God and the laws and usages of his people; and if some force or personality attempts to tear down one of our cherished and traditional pillars, our effort as true children of the kingdom must be to preserve that pillar in an affirmative way, not to destroy some pillar belonging more particularly to the attacker. To destroy is to employ the methods of carnal warfare; to preserve is to employ the higher methods of spiritual warfare.

Let our controversy, if controversy comes, be conducted with the strength, by the methods, and in the Spirit of the Master, as we may be able to sense and command that Spirit. RICHARD J. LAMBERT.

Heeding the Call

Sister Louise E. Trout, of Yardley, Pennsylvania, in a business letter, writes: "I am sending five dollars, and all but enough to pay my subscription to Autumn Leaves is to be given to the Bishop. I see by the HERALD of May 28 that he has asked for a church-wide effort to raise fifty thousand dollars, so I am sending what I think is my share. . . . I have paid my tithing for this year."

In a recent letter from Patriarch Isaac M. Smith, are contained the following words, which should be cherished very highly by those to whom they refer. They sound almost like a word of blessing from this venerable patriarch of the church, who has spent the active days of his life in the ministry of Jesus Christ. "We certainly have an able staff of contributing editors, both for the HERALD and the Ensign, and I do hope that the Spirit of the Master may so fill their hearts with love and their minds with light that they may succeed in bringing about that condition of unity and oneness in the church for which we have all been praying these many years."

Young People's Convention

Young People's Convention opened Thursday, June 5, at half past two, in charge of President Floyd M. McDowell. Everyone was in good spirits, and all enjoyed the splendid program. A short song period in charge of Brother Roy Cheville opened the service, after which addresses of welcome were given by Mayor G. W. Blair, Pastor C. E. Wight, and President G. N. Briggs. Brother George Anway sang, and President Frederick M. Smith gave a timely talk on the subject, "Children of God."

On account of a heavy rain in the morning the opening session was postponed until afternoon, so the afternoon program was set aside.

It is expected that the attendance this year will exceed that of last year, especially if the weather be fair. Saturday afternoon the enrollment was one hundred and fifty greater than at the same time last year. Traveling by auto is becoming more and more popular, and people came by auto from such points as Texas and Colorado.

The prayer meetings promise to be an important feature, and special attention is being given to them. The keynote of the first prayer meeting and of the convention was given as "Preparation for service."

As a result of a questionnaire more class work is being offered this year. The schedule of classes is so arranged that each one attending the convention may enroll in at least three of the following eleven courses which are being given this year: "The stewardship plan," Bishop A. Carmichael; "Vital significance of religion," C. E. Wight; "Social principles of the gospel," F. M. McDowell; "Social work," Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser; "Applied ethics for young people," C. B. Woodstock; "Book of Mormon," A. B. Phillips; "Church history," Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Burgess; "Scoutmasters' training," Eugene E. Closson; "Choir leadership," A. N. Hoxie and Mabel Carlile; "Oriole and Temple Builder leaders," Blanche Edwards; "Principles of religious education," Roy A. Cheville. The way everyone flocked to the respective classrooms on the first day of the convention indicates that they are going to take full advantage of the opportunities to prepare themselves.

The early part of the afternoon is given over to forum discussions of vital subjects, after which the remainder of the time is given over to recreation and recreational leadership.

The cafeteria service this year is very fine, as the food is well cooked, and only reasonable prices are charged.

All in all, the convention promises to be a successful one, from every point of view.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

The Vision of the Church

Radio sermon of A. B. Phillips, delivered March 2, 1924, at Independence, Missouri.

A hundred years ago the Christian world little dreamed that some of its most cherished beliefs, handed down from the dawn of religious light, and challenged even by some of the most learned men within the church, would be found engraved in imperishable stone of prehistoric antiquity. But in recent years the most marvelous discoveries have been made, some of which support parts of the story in Genesis which had been challenged, and show that many of the same lofty ideals which inspired later prophets were cherished by men thousands of years before the star of Bethlehem led to the birthplace of Jesus of Nazareth.

The concepts of the people of God have not in every age been of the same scope and clearness. Periods have existed when spiritual vision became dim and distorted, but reactionary tendencies have usually been followed by better ideals and clearer appreciation of the righteousness of equity. More and more clearly has it dawned in human hearts that error and injustice must inevitably bring unhappiness, strife, and disruption. And history shows that they are destructive of the very foundations of well-regulated society and of those ideals which inspire the human race to lofty and lasting achievement. Growing out of varied and crucial experiences, there has come to the church more and more clearly

The Vision of an Ideal Social Order

Infallibility belongs to God alone. The church has not always undeviatingly followed the path pointed out by the Omniscient hand, but it has glimpsed the plan by which his will shall be done on earth as it is in heaven, and it has never ceased to voice the most oft-repeated prayer that ever came from human lips: "Thy kingdom come." The master minds of the ages have marshaled the forces of righteousness and equity, in order to combat the powers of evil and selfishness. These righteous forces have from ancient times been brought together in that unity of purpose and action which is the function of the church of the living God.

The earliest record of man's relations with his fellow man presents a most dreadful indictment of the methods that seek power, luxury, and self-aggrandizement at the expense of the weak, defenseless, and unfortunate among men. It was by the brute force of wrong against right that human hands were first stained with a brother's blood. Through envy, jealousy, and avarice the black tree of hatred curled its blighting roots around the heart of Cain, and soon produced the deadly fruit of murder. When the searching voice of the Creator demanded, "Where is Abel, thy brother?" the evil lips of the fratricide framed the guilty reply:

"Am I My Brother's Keeper?"

With terrible significance the answer of God was hurled back: "What hast thou done? Thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground." By that divine accusation was established the inexorable law that man shall be held accountable for what he does toward his fellow man. However he may seek to evade that responsibility in this life, when the light of his brief day shall fade into the lonely night of life, and he faces his record before the great white throne, the portentous question shall come to him with unmistakable meaning: "What hast thou done?" The laws of life should teach us that, as declared by Paul, "No man liveth unto himself, and no man dieth unto himself."

Mutuality of good should result from the social relationship which God has decreed as the normal state of human society. It is only by recognizing this fact that the highest ideals, culture, comfort, peace, and happiness are possible of realization. By choosing its opposite the deepest misery known in all history has invariably resulted. It was this failure and mistake of the church in past ages that produced the great

Apostasy of the Church

When the light of Christ's message of love and equity was no longer noticed by a backsliding church, ceremonials arose to a place of chief importance. Christianity was sought in slavish devotion to ritualism, and for a failure to follow its prescribed forms many were put to death by those who had so far forgotten the fate of Cain and the unhappy experience of Saul of Tarsus that they doubtless believed they were doing God service. In the maintenance of outward show they found their greatest satisfaction, and in many instances a rivalry developed in the endeavor to outdo others in the strictness of their observances. In the ritual they expected to find eternal life, in spite of disreputable deeds toward their fellows. They believed God took delight in these forms, and would reward them with salvation and with his eternal companionship.

In those days worshipers crowded the churches, and those who could find no comfort in such hollow mockery of Christ and his message were by coercive measures compelled to unite with the church or be deprived of their property and many other privileges that belong alike to all of God's creatures. Thus the vision of all became focused on these cheap substitutes for the religion which God decreed as the means of salvation and happiness.

From these extreme conditions a tremendous reaction took place, and the time came when the name of religion became an abhorrent thing, a hiss and a byword held in scorn or derision. Between these extremes some found a measure of relief in a mechanical adherence to certain doctrines which they assumed were taught in the Scriptures. It was different from formalism in that it was more mechanical and less formal and zealous. They saw the operation of what they were pleased to consider Christianity somewhat as the Prophet Ezekiel saw the "wheel within a wheel," and in the ministerial offices of the church and their functions a methodical routine was demanded which was supposed to satisfy the demands of God.

Some there were who turned to emotionalism as the supreme test of the religion of Christ, the requirements of the gospel being subordinated to the demonstrations of feeling. Thus a man's Christianity was largely estimated in accordance with these manifestations, which took various forms, among which were prophesying and exhibiting extreme and unnatural fervor, the results of which were often distinctly nauseating to a normal mind. In all these variations of religious activities the church had gone a long way from the simple path in which Christ had walked, and which he had pointed out when he said to his disciples: "Follow thou me." From these conditions there came at last

The Vision of the Reorganized Church

It was to again point out the "old, old path" that under God there arose the religious body known as the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The message of the Reorganized Church emphasizes the two great fundamentals upon which true religion must always rest: The love of God and the love of all mankind. Jesus said that upon these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets. Protestations of love are less important than manifestations of love. The rule of gold must be dethroned, and the golden rule must be crowned as the supreme rule of human relationships.

It needs no foreign missionary tour to learn the results of avarice, greed, and myriads of concomitant sins. Neither do we find it necessary to travel afar to bring relief to those in distress and want. The sorrows of the world are the outgrowth of that which oppresses and robs man of his heaven-born heritage, the right to use his talents in such a way that good shall come to himself and all the group in which he labors. When the church puts on the robe of sovereign grace, it will demonstrate the power of the gospel to serve humanity. This was the absorbing purpose of the great message of Jesus, for which he devoted his life and rendered the supreme sacrifice. He gave the church as its heritage

A Vision of Mutual Service

While the world continues to focus its vision on human creeds and selfish purposes, it cannot see the kingdom of God. It is a vision of mutual service that the Reorganized Church would have all men behold. When all hearts beat with a united purpose for the uplift of all, the result must be that good will flow from all to all, and each will be equally benefitted with others. This is what Christ emphasized while among men. It is a teaching that is both ideal and practical. Some things seem ideal, but are not practical. Other things appear to be practical, but when weighed in the balances are found wanting because they are destructive of ideals, without which society cannot progress, but inevitably must retrograde. By every fair test ever made the gospel of our Lord has proved to be not only supremely ideal, but also preeminently practical in all the legitimate walks of life. When put to the test in its fullness the kingdom of heaven will find sway on earth, and God will reign in the lives of mankind. Celestial knowledge will then flow as an eternal river, and sorrow shall no more remain in the hearts of men.

The vision of the church is that of a happy people busily engaged in all rightful occupations, animated with lofty ideals and inspired to serve each other. This was what Jesus sent his disciples to teach the world. He taught them to pray for it, to believe in it, to work for it, and to expect its ultimate triumph. Every person in whom the fires of zeal and lofty purpose are burning can do no less than support that grand program, for nothing can exceed the magnificence of its scope. Nothing can be as certain of success when applied, and nothing can bring so rich a reward in its results.

The vision of a social group in which these principles are applied is, under God, the dominant inspiration of the Reorganized Church. No social body that exists can hope to succeed so completely as one that is founded upon the social gospel of Christ. The experiences of nearly two thousand years have failed to reveal anything that for a moment can compare with it or even approximate it. Having experimented unsuccessfully with every other conceivable plan, why not give the social plan of Christ a fair trial, and test the promise he made that "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself"? (John 7:17.) This means

A Vision of Unity in Christ

For ages the seeds of disruption have been sown within the churches wherever they have come in contact with each other. The name of Christ has been borrowed without leave, and hundreds of conflicting doctrines have found adherents because of the magic of that transcendent name. Is it strange that many have complained because, as they supposed, Christianity had failed to bring the much needed relief of which its teachings gave assurance? We must answer that it is the vision of the world that has failed, and not Christianity, which has never been fairly tested even by the very ones who deplore its assumed failure. For the vision of the world has been preeminently selfish, so narrowly selfish that at times it has been willfully blind. It has failed to even glimpse the great underlying principle upon which the message of Christ rests.

When all the bitter, hateful things that dwarf and distort the soul have been banished from among men, we shall see in man the image of God. We shall then know how pitifully shortsighted men have been in their mad scramble for the things which are only an illusion and a snare. There is in all the world only one basis upon which men can find the unity that endures. It is unity in Christ; not simply in Christ the belief, but in Christ "the Way, the Truth, and the Life." It is a purposeful unity in Christ; a united, aggressive support of the Christ-purpose. No other kind of unity can bring the kingdom of God on earth "as it is in heaven," for which the Christian world has never ceased to pray. Why continue to pray for it unless we are willing to work for it?

To have unity in Christ we must have loyalty to Christ; for loyalty is the very corner stone of unity. It is something very much more than the adoption of a name; it is the adoption of all for which the name stands, the principles for which Christ stood. It means to defend and maintain them, both by word and deed. In fact, it means to demonstrate them in practice. This is

Our Vision of Growing Souls

Behind every great unified effort there must be a still greater purpose. A united body that seeks mutuality of good must be able to visualize the good which constitutes its goal. Otherwise its efforts are aimless, and must bring many mistakes and eventual failure, with their consequent disappointments and disruptions. When unity and love dominate the minds of men, we shall behold the miracle of a still more wonderful vision, a vision of growing souls.

Growth is one of the great miracles of the universe. It is the greatest of all manifestations in nature, and is the most concrete expression of the power of God in man. Growth is not confined to physical substances, but extends to the character or attributes of man, where it finds its divinest manifestation. When Peter said, "Add to your faith, virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, self-control; and to self-control, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, love," he represented the processes of growth in the soul of man.

It is by taking on more fully these attributes that man may come close to God. But no man can draw nigh to God until he has come close to the heart of his fellows. This is clearly and forcibly stated in the scripture which says: "If a man say, I love God and hateth his brother, he is a liar." To love God and hate man is a contradiction of terms. He who thinks to do this does not and cannot know God as he really is, and he therefore has a false concept of Deity.

It is the will of God that man should become like Christ as he was manifested while in the world. By the growing process is brought to pass the miracle of Christ born in the life of man. The underlying purpose of God, then, is the in-born Christ. This is possible only by obtaining an envisagement of Christ, the living image of God. With too many Christ stands for something miraculous, mysterious, but abstract. This is largely a mistaken concept of him, for he was manifested in order that we might see him as he is, and understand and follow him.

The perfect leadership of Christ was manifested in his intimate relationship with his followers. He did not stand aloof and order them to "go," but from among them he said: "Come, and follow me." Throughout his ministry he practiced as well as taught a life of humility "as one serveth." To pedestalize or to degrade another was foreign to his great message, which said to his people: "All ye are brethren." He thus put to shame those who disputed among themselves "who should be the greatest," and enjoined each to be the servant of all. He thus impressed upon them one of the divinest lessons recorded in history.

These are some of the qualities that have touched the hearts of men in every age. They are our inspiration to-day. No loftier incentives, no more worthy purpose can engage the activities of mankind, for thus may righteousness be established among men, and good will and peace find an abiding

The Light at the Water's Edge

Sermon by William Clow at Saint Joseph, Missouri, September 2, 1923, being an account of a miraculous occurrence in the ministry of Elder J. J. Cornish.

When Paul was making his defense before the multitude and before King Agrippa, he told something of his life before coming to the light; he told as to who he was and the relations he sustained to the common religion and the people to whom he was talking, before he told concerning his conversion. So I want to say further, that by telling this story to-night I want to illustrate a principle, that of continuous revelation.

If there is one thing that the world disagrees with us on and objects to, it is our thought, our doctrine, or claim of continuous revelation. The idea that God can speak to his creatures in this our day, does speak to them, proposes to speak to them, is the great objection to our people from the world's standpoint. I am going to read you a lesson from the 20th chapter of 2 Chronicles. It relates an incident that I may explain further:

It came to pass after this also, that the children of Moab, and the children of Ammon, and with them other beside the Ammonites, came against Jehoshaphat to battle. Then there came some that told Jehoshaphat, saying, There cometh a great multitude against thee from beyond the sea on this side Syria; and, behold, they be in Hazazon-tamar, which is En-gedi. And Jehoshaphat feared, and set himself to seek the Lord, and proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah. And Judah gathered themselves together to ask help of the Lord: even out of all the cities of Judah they came to seek the Lord. And Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the Lord, before the new court, and said, O Lord God of our fathers, art not thou God in heaven? and rulest not thou over all the kingdoms of the heathen? and in thine hand is there not power and might, so that none is able to withstand thee? Art thou not our God, who didst drive out the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham thy friend forever? And they dwelt therein, and have built thee a sanctuary therein for thy name, saying, if, when evil cometh upon us, as the sword, judgment, or pestilence, or famine, we stand before this house, and in thy presence, (for thy name is in this house,) and cry unto thee in our affliction, then thou wilt hear and help. And now, behold, the children of Ammon and Moab and Mount Seir, whom thou wouldest not let Israel invade, when they came out of the land of Egypt, but they turned from them, and destroyed them not; Behold, I say, how they reward us, to come to cast us out of thy possession, which thou hast given us to inherit. O our God, wilt thou not judge them? for we have no might against this great company that cometh against us; neither know we what to do; but our eyes are upon thee. And all Judah stood before the Lord, with their little ones, their wives, and their children. Then upon Jahaziel the son of Zechariah, the son of Benaiah, the son of Jeiel, the son of Mattaniah, a Levite of the sons of Asaph, came the Spirit of the Lord in the midst of the congregation; And he said, Hearken ye, all Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou king Jehoshaphat, Thus saith the Lord unto you, Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this multitude; for the battle is not yours, but God's. To-morrow go ye down against them: behold, they come up by the cliff of Siz; and ye shall find them at the end of the brook, before the wilderness of Jeruel. Ye shall not need to fight in this battle: set yourselves, stand ye still, and see the salvation of the Lord with you, O Judah and Jerusalem: fear not, nor be dismayed; to-morrow go out against them: for the Lord will be with you.

I have read to the end of the seventeenth verse. You understand from what was said this morning that I have been more or less interested in Sunday school work from my very early life. The fact is, I learned to read and write in a Sunday school. I didn't go to common day school as you children, most of you have, but in England they gave us poor children who had to work in the fields an opportunity to learn our letters and learn to read and to write during Sunday school. So I have been interested in Sunday school work for a long time.

I came to this country in the year 1869. On the way I heard the sailor's first cry, "Land ho!" I was by myself, without a friend on this side of the water, and without a knowledge of the people and its conditions. I was going into a strange land, and I felt exceedingly strange. So when this cry went out along that ship, "Land ho!" I thought we were coming near the end of the journey, and I felt my loneliness and the need of a friend, and I might almost say that my religious experience started from that moment. I went down in the hold of that ship and hid myself from view, and I told the Lord if he would go with me in this strange land I would give him my heart. I intended to do it at the time. I felt that I needed a friend, that I needed God's guidance. I needed his hand to be with me, as expressed in the class this morning.

After I got to this side and saw that civilization was as good in this country as in England, I thought I didn't need a friend, I am sorry to say. For the place in human hearts. The privilege of drinking that divine water which Jesus has promised shall satisfy, is given to those who will realize this vision of life in its relationships and opportunities.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Lectures on Mothercraft

Compiled by the Department of Women, with an introduction by Dora Pankey Glines, Superintendent of the Department.

Containing

Articles supplementing the textbook, Mothercraft Manual, by Mary L. Read, also a question outline, Mothercraft, by Etta Hunt.

Forty Cents, Postpaid

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

time being I forgot my promise, and for a year I paid little or no attention to religious matters. I got curious, however, and attended spiritualist meetings, and got quite wrapped up in spiritualism until I found that the departed spirits could tell stories as easily as anybody else could. By watching closely, my mind fixed upon the idea that there was nothing here to lead me to a higher or better life—nothing to stimulate me to purity of conduct, and it didn't fill or feed the necessity of my soul.

I became sick for two or three days, so severely sick that I thought I was going to die. I had made the acquaintance of one religious man, and I asked a friend to go and bring him to my bedside. He came and read one of the Savior's touching incidents with his disciples just before he was crucified. It touched me very deeply. I recovered, however, and in a few days I attended some revival meetings. I will never forget those meetings. Our hymn, "My faith looks up to Thee," was sung by an old gentleman and an old lady. He was the author of that hymn—Doctor Palmer, we called him. I didn't get religion at the mourners' bench, though I prayed earnestly for five weeks. In the following week I began working with a young man I had become acquainted with, who also was from England. He started with me to learn the same trade, and we got to working side by side. Fortunately he was a very religious man. He frequently went to the attic of a four-story building at noon hour to pray, and sought every opportunity to help me get what was called religion. I am here to tell you to-night that I very distinctly remember when peace came to my soul in that attic, amongst old cast-away patterns covered with dust, but peace can come to the seeking soul anywhere. It certainly lifted a load from my sin-sick soul, and for three years I was satisfied with my religious experience in the Methodist Church. I identified myself as closely as I could with the Sunday school work—got married in the meantime, and lived in Detroit, Michigan. They elected me Sunday school superintendent there, in a school with an average attendance of 350 to 375; and the reason I have read this text to you is because it was the occasion of the first real thing that puzzled my mind when called upon to conduct what we called a teachers' class. We had Sunday school in the afternoon at 2.30, dismissed at 4 o'clock, and at fifteen minutes after dismissal all of the teachers of our school assembled to consider the next Sunday's lesson, and it was my place to teach this class.

One of the lessons that we had was this incident that I have just read. It contains a text that is very frequently used in what we call revival meetings: "Stand ye still and see the salvation of the Lord with you." It was very much stressed by the evangelists in their work. But in later years I have seen how little, seemingly, the evangelists of the world really understand what they quoted and stressed. I think you have the information. This King Jehoshaphat was in trouble. He called a fasting. He didn't call the generals of his army. He didn't call his cabinet together, but he simply called the hosts of Judah to fast at Jerusalem before the house of the Lord. He quotes one of the promises that the Lord made when Solomon dedicated the temple, "that the time should come when my people will be troubled by pestilence, and the sword, and they will come before his house and confess their sins. Then hear thou him!" Jehoshaphat quotes that prayer in substance. We need an answer to the prayer that God gave promise to when he filled that temple at the end of Solomon's prayer. I want you to catch the thought here; how sublime the faith, how childlike that faith on the auspicious occasion when the nation and people were liable to be overwhelmed with countless enemies. They didn't do then as is done in modern times; at least this king didn't. He didn't go around to the factories and begin purchasing implements of destruction. He went to the Lord, and this story tells us they went out to battle singing and praising God, and they found things just as the Lord told them they would find them. The Lord, it says, set an ambushment and made one of the armies fight the other until every one of the enemy helped to destroy the other, and Jehoshaphat and his people were four days in gathering the spoil.

I don't need to stress this thought any more with you Latter Day Saints. We all admit that the Lord spoke and directed the forces of mankind in the ages when this Book was being made. There is no dispute about that. I do not suppose there is a minister behind the sacred desk to-night in your city of Saint Joseph who would dispute that thought. But the question arises, "Is the Lord the same?" We speak very strongly of the fact that he is an unchangeable God, and under like circumstances where some need of this character should arise, have we not just as much claim upon God as they had? If we should proclaim a fast and gather the inhabitants of the cities around the house of God and lay our cause before him in childlike simplicity and confidence, would it be strange to you Latter Day Saints that the Spirit of the Lord should rest upon a young man in the midst of the congregation? I think you can see that story literally, and it isn't strange to you. But at the time we had this incident for a lesson, it was an incomprehensible puzzle to us. We could not understand how the Lord could speak through that young man, and all Judah with their king to accept with implicit confidence what was said. There must have been some peculiar power or influence accompanying the message that we did not sense or understand.

I have been meeting for some years past with a Bible class made up of business men in Independence. They represent all phases of religion, and some of them no religion at all. They will go home from this study of the Old and New Testaments and look upon these things as being strange, but to us it conveys the thought that it is possible that those things could be in this day as well as in the past. It is ridiculous beyond reason. I want to ask you to-night, every man, woman, and child that is listening to my voice, What reasonable reason can you give why the Lord should not answer us in the hour of need as he did then? I will leave the question with you.

This principle of continuous revelation—put it in another form, the possibility of God speaking to his creatures—is there anything unreasonable about that? You men who constituted our Bible class this morning when that subject was under discussion, we presented the idea there, and all of us agreed that the Creator had made us in a form after his own image, given us the power of speech and the necessity of speech, and why would it be unreasonable that he should continue speaking to his children under any circumstances that might require his direction? You cannot give any reason why he should not. And yet, without any exception as far as I know—of course I don't pretend to know all of the men who have tried to bring about a reformation, nor all that they have tried to do, for from the earliest Dark Ages men, good men, arose with their earnestness, and that implies that God has placed in the human heart and intended to bring back the religion of the Old and New Testaments into actual operation—not one of the reformers has ever sought to incorporate the idea of continuous and present-day revelation in their reformed religion. There may be exceptions, but I just simply say that I do not know of any. There have been wise men, good men, men acquainted with their work; why have they not incorporated in their creeds this principle of continuous revelation? I do not know what your answer would be, but I can only give you mine. The Savior said, addressing the Jews, "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."—John 7:17. The writer, in closing up the record we call the Book of Mormon, implies the selfsame principle. That man who wants to know and who will earnestly ask and devoutly go before God and ask as to whether the book is true or not, God shall make it known unto him. "If ye shall ask with a sincere heart, with real intent, having faith in Christ, he will manifest the truth of it unto you, by the power of the Holy Ghost."—Moroni 10:5. Here is something, my friends, that is most fundamental. The Savior himself did not ask those Jews to accept his word alone. He called in God as a partner in his proposition. He was willing to risk all that he claimed upon the answer of God to those who should make a proper appeal.

The Book of Mormon stands exactly upon that proposition. Any honest man, with the supreme love of the truth, or any man who is really honest and earnest and wants to know whether this book is of God, the book promises that God will make it known to him. There is the finest chance in the world to prove that the Book of Mormon or the writers of it were false. It is wonderful to me to think that a man could stand before an intelligent civilization and propose to give them a record that has that kind of a promise in it.

Now I go further. I could conceive of its being possible that Mr. Wesley, Mr. Knox, Mr. Calvin, and other good men in the past, in their righteous endeavors to reform religion, could have incorporated this principle in their creed. There may be some here who are not members of this church, and I will repeat the question often asked me: "Mr. Clow, has there been a real, practical demonstration that God does speak to you or to your people in this age?" That is what I am going to answer.

In the year 1875 my wife and I returned from Detroit, Michigan, to London, Canada, with the intention of spending the holidays with her father and mother, and having our first-born boy, eight months of age, baptized by the brother who married us. That's very human, isn't it? But the first thing that greeted our ears when we got into mother's home, one of the girls came up and whispered in my ear: "Pa has joined the Mormons!" It was awful, just simply awful. She was a young lady like lots of the young ladies here. She wasn't married, it was true, but she knew what it meant, and I knew what it meant—that little, terse sentence. It carried the possibility of another woman coming into that house. It was an awful thing, but that is what it conveyed to us. I tell you I felt that our Christmas holiday wasn't going to be a very pleasant one. I couldn't see how it was possible that my old father-in-law, just as good a Methodist as ever kneeled and shouted, could have gone so far astray as to expect ever to bring some other woman into the home. I assure you it was a dampening upon my expectation of a joyous Christmas holiday.

A man lived next door who was a splendid fellow when he was sober, and something else when he wasn't. He had a very nice wife whom we all liked. We had tried to get him to attend the cottage prayer meetings, thinking it might help him to reform, and thus alleviate his wife's sufferings. There was something good about that man, but when the old spirits got in him the good went out. He was a cab driver; owned his own cab, and started out with his cab and team early each morning. Sometime before we made this visit he had become interested in the teachings of the Latter Day Saints, had joined their church, and dropped all his drinking habits. He was very much enthused in his new religion.

The next morning after we arrived, as he was ready to start out, he saw me and stopped his team to greet me, and began to tell me of his new religion. He began to teach me of the "signs following the believers," "gifts of the Holy Ghost," and "the fullness of the gospel." He was so interested in his talk that he forgot his team and his cab standing there, and just talked the whole morning long about the fullness of the gospel. That was a term that I had never heard before. The gospel was the gospel, I always understood, but he had this qualifying term, the fullness of the gospel, which he said was something we had not been receiving in the Methodist Church.

To make a long story short, on the next Wednesday evening he rapped on our window. There had been an accumulation of snow, two to three feet up to that time, but most of it had melted. There had been some rain, and although the river had been frozen over very thickly, it was broken up, and a dense fog was over us; the temperature was mild. It was so densely dark that you couldn't see your hand before you. My mother-in-law had returned from taking care of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Luff, in Toronto, one hundred and twenty miles in the other direction. She came in just that evening, and the news was broken to her just as it was to us the night before: "Pa has joined the Mormons!" It was an awful situation; yes, sir, awful, and we had a quarrel, I might say, the whole evening. About half past ten, possibly eleven o'clock, Brother Depper, the neighbor referred to, rapped on the window and said: "Will, there's going to be a baptism"; and to get out of the atmosphere in that kitchen I put on my hat and coat and hurried out. He was waiting at the gate, and the rest of the crowd had gone on toward the river. We could hear them but could not see them. We followed on, and when we got to them we found them standing at the river bank. They were at their usual place of baptism, but the water had risen until it had attained a depth of fifteen feet. The ice had broken up and was making considerable noise.

Brother Depper said: "Brother Cornish, you can't baptize here to-night." "Well, what shall we do? One of the sisters who wants to be baptized wants to return to her home and wants to be baptized before she goes." She lived seventy or eighty miles from there. "Well, let's go up to the ford," answered Brother Depper. We turned up the river-side, and started towards the ford. This Brother Depper took hold of my arm, and two other young men walked alongside us. As we walked alongside that river, we would sometimes step in a little water and sometimes in snow, and jokingly I told Brother Depper every time I stepped in some water, "See, now I am baptized. I will have another wife in a day or two." We went on, walked about two blocks before we got to the ford that crossed the river. We went down into that little wagon road and stood on a gravelly beach; some of the company stood upon the grassy bank, which was in a slushy, wet condition. There they separated into two companies; the members of the church gathered around Brother Cornish and the two to be baptized, though Brother Depper still kept hold of my arm. We stood off to the east end, and every minute he kept talking the fullness of the gospel to me, until they got ready to commence, which they did by singing the hymn, "Lo, on the water's brink we stand."

I am very sorry they didn't bring that hymn out of the old Saints' Harp. It seemed to me to carry the sentiment of what should exist in our hearts when we go into the water. They sang that hymn. Brother Cornish would repeat four lines, and they would sing that; he would repeat four more lines, and they would sing that. This gave me an opportunity to know just what they were singing, and it certainly was the first thing that impressed me favorably. I thought, They are really earnest and sincere. When I heard him pray I was still more convinced that they were. I thought to myself, That man is not one whose mind is corrupted with what is called "Mormonism." It seemed to me there was something different about him; he was earnest; there was nothing elegant, nothing scholarly in his manner, yet what he did surely flowed from a humble, sincere heart.

I listened. He left the edge of the water and walked out, as we could hear, though we couldn't see, until he got to a reasonable depth and returned, and as soon as he returned he asked which would go first. I remember very distinctly just what occurred. I heard Sister Lively, now Sister Roderick May, speak up quickly, "I will." They started down into the water, and as their feet went into that shallow water, we heard a sound like the sound of the wind off in the distance, which seemed to be keeping time, so to speak, with each of their steps. It seemingly increased in volume and in nearness until it seemed as if it were going to burst upon us, like a mighty, rushing wind. You have been out in the harvest fields on a very hot day and no air stirring, when suddenly you hear the wind at a distance and expectantly await its arrival; that will give you a faint idea of the way this sounded. I expected to feel the wind so strong that it would almost blow me over; but instead of wind it proved to be a cloud-like light, rounded at the bottom, which descended to the water and spread out. Inside of a minute or so we were encircled in a light. I judged it to be about one hundred and fifty to one hundred and seventy-five feet in diameter, round in form, and I will describe it as closely as I can. I knew there were some people behind us on the bank, as we were standing on the water's edge close to the beach. At the very moment this light came upon us, I for an instant thought these people at our back must have a magic lantern or something to produce this phenomenon, and instantly I turned my head to see, and what a sight met my eyes! There was no lantern, or anything of the kind, and there wasn't a person standing, nor were they kneeling; they were lying prostrate in that wet grass, and every exclamation they were making was one of fear; they were all talking, making such exclamations as: "Lord, forgive me!" "Lord, spare me!" and all that kind of thing. Their faces were to the ground, and there was every indication of fear and terror. Then I knew it was not produced by any power of man.

A Different Kind of Light

As I turned to my normal position, with my face to the river, I saw that this light was different from anything I had ever seen. I want to stop here and say that the word light isn't the proper word. The last few months I have had some correspondence with Brother Cornish about the word light as used in connection with this occurrence, and it does not convey the proper idea. Whenever you use that word light, you have in mind electric light, or candlelight, or some other artificial light, but there isn't anything I ever saw that can be compared with what we saw at the river. I'll tell you why: Ordinarily a little distance away from the light it becomes dimmer and dimmer, until the darkness and the light blend, but in this case the light extended just as completely to the darkness as this light does to that wall, and the darkness and light were side by side and just as intense in the last half inch as any place. I noticed another peculiar thing about that light; as I turned to my normal position I happened to look down into the water, probably three or four inches deep, possibly five or six. I could see the minutest grain of sand, and the pebbles in the bottom of that river. My father-in-law and I built a soap factory within a stone's throw from there afterwards, and I went there many times in broad daylight, and I never could see those grains of sand with the brightest sunlight. Another thing, there seemed to be something about this light that was tangible to the touch. It seemed as if it were almost a substance that you could feel.

I was invited to tell this story to the Grandview Branch some months ago, and in telling the story it occurred to me that that word light didn't convey to my hearers what I would like it to convey. If you have read those passages of scripture I cited you this morning, Acts, chapters 9, 22, 26, you will have noticed that it is recorded there that the light Paul saw exceeded the sun at noonday. So did this.

Brother Cornish, in his answer, said: "Brother Clow, a few days before that occurrence I was told through the voice of the Spirit that if I should remain active, if I should pursue my work in accordance with his light, the Lord promised me that I should see his glory. When I was passing through that water, with that light full upon us, I said, O Lord, this is the fulfillment of that promise; I have seen thy glory."

I want you to take that word glory home with you. There is no artificial light that I am acquainted with that conveys any idea of the light we saw. It was nothing short of the glory of God, and I am not surprised when I read that those old ancient Israelites could not look upon the face of Moses when the glory of the Lord covered his countenance.

When my face was turned again to the river and I saw those Saints, all of them upon their knees praising and thanking God, immediately my mind came to this conclusion, The Lord God is in this matter. As that thought passed through my mind, a voice spoke to me and said (I shall always remember it, every syllable of that sentence. It is as audible and as clear to my mind's ear to-night as it was that night): "These are my people; you must not laugh at them."

As the Lord said through Jahaziel in the midst of the congregation, "You shall not need to fight in this battle; set yourselves, stand ye still, and see the salvation of the Lord with you." This salvation the Lord wrought for Jehoshaphat and Judah and Jerusalem was the most momentous event in the reign of Jehoshaphat, as was the conversion of Paul while on the way to Damascus to the Christian church; and to us how admirably suited they appear for the purpose. God suited the occasion, or suited the message to me to suit the occasion. I will go further. I will say that my nature is critical. I sit and listen and look and observe things that are going on amongst my brothers and sisters, and I have been inclined all my life to be cynical and critical; and how often has that voice come home to me, so to speak, "These are my people; you must not laugh at them."

That event was nearly fifty years ago, and that answer and injunction that the Lord gave to me is just as necessary as it was at that particular time.

We left that river—seventeen people who were not members of the church, and fifteen who were, thirty-two witnesses in all, after the light went away, and it went away with the same noise with which it came. Everybody was engaged with his own thoughts; not a word or a whisper until they came out of the water, and then the only noise was that of their walking. After they had come to the shore and dismissed, we turned away and walked possibly a block or a block and a half before anybody commenced to talk, but as soon as the silence was broken everybody was talking. I listened to them talking—now, mind you, I was the stranger among them; I was the mocker if there was any such thing, and I didn't feel exactly at home. As I listened I gathered that none of them had heard the voice except myself. The first one I remember speaking to about it was Brother Albert Dempsey, brother of John, whom you all know. He was walking by my side, and I asked him: "Did you hear that voice?" "What voice?" he asked. I answered, "A voice spoke." He said, "I never heard it." In those chapters that I indicated, they (Paul's companions) saw the light but heard not the voice. It is parallel with this.

I am going to call your attention to another text. Whoever it was wrote the letter to the Hebrews failed to sign his name, but it is generally ascribed to be the product of Paul. Mark what he says when addressing the Jews; he had a real purpose in it. What was the main fact? "God hath in these last days spoken unto us." That was the main feature of the gospel to the Jewish people. This writer of the Hebrew letter sums it all up in the opening sentence:

God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in times past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son.—Hebrews 1: 1, 2.

If Paul had had the whole Hebrew people to whom he addressed this letter before him, he could not have put it in a more concise sentence to comprehend so much. "God hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." I am going to skip the rest of that chapter and read two or three verses of the next chapter:

Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward; how shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation.—Hebrews 2: 1-3.

My thought is this, and I want to leave it with you: If to us as a people God has given the privilege of hearing his voice by the power of his Spirit in such unquestionable ways, how shall we escape? To whom much is given, of him much is expected.

I will venture to tell you another story connected with my own personal life and experience: That same night, after they had changed their clothes, we gathered at Depper's home and had an experience meeting, which lasted until one or two o'clock. One young lady who had been baptized that night had to go two or three blocks on a side street out of the general way, and some of the young men proposed to take her home. After two or three proposed to do this, we finally proposed that we all take her home, which we did, and then held a second meeting, and the family who lived next door to them called up out of their bed to hear the story of the light at the baptism. As it was being told, the room was filled with a hallowing influence and power. We prayed, and before long the Spirit of the Lord rested upon one of the members of that little company and he spoke in tongues and in prophecy. It just looked to me, before the morning came, that the whole Bible was a new book; the experiences related therein were actually ours, too; no room for doubt; what was faintly believed had become a close-up knowledge, and confidence was here established upon a rock so firm that it seemed to me as though life commenced anew.

I am sorry I have made mistakes. I am sorry I have not lived in all details up to what I have felt—it was my duty to do from that day to this; but notwithstanding the weaknesses of the human will, dear Saints, this principle of continuous revelation is the great thing of the gospel, one of the most potent factors of Christ's message to humanity. Yet how little understood and appreciated! Though spurned by some, to me it has been the great stay of my religious thought and life. If it were needed, I would go down on any corner of your streets and declare it to anybody or everybody. It is the one great thing of my life I am proud of, because I know it is true.

It is perhaps needless to say my wife and I were soon baptized, and for over a year we enjoyed many of the gifts and blessings of the gospel; and the Savior's promise: "These signs shall follow them that believe," was surely fulfilled.

In May, 1877, under the urge of gathering to Zion, we started for Independence, stopping at Detroit, Michigan, to visit our old friends of the Methodist Church and the Sunday school of which I had been a teacher and assistant superintendent. We were very soon asked to give the reasons that induced us to leave the Methodists for the Latter Day Saints, which we were very glad to do. The family where we were staying hurried an invitation to our old associates to come and hear our reasons for the change. The house was soon filled with our

CHURCH NEWS

Kansas University Students Visit Topeka
Sunday School

TOPEKA, KANSAS, June 1.—The biblical survey by Professor G. R. Crissman, of the State Teachers' College of Missouri, was given one evening at a meeting of the Department of Recreation and Expression, instead of the usual program. Ninety per cent of the questions were answered correctly. Sister A. P. Crooker had charge of the test, which included both juniors and seniors.

Sacramental Services

On May 4 there was a large attendance at all services of the day. Elder James Baillie, of Scranton, Kansas, delivered the introductory remarks, stressing the thought that the opportunity to renew our covenant at the water's edge was of greater importance than anything we could think of, if we come in humility and love. He delivered a lecture to the priesthood in the afternoon and preached at night. Visiting Saints were present from Pomono and Lawrence, Kansas.

Mothers' Day, May 11

It was Poe who wrote:

"In the heavens above,
The angels whispering one to another,
Should find amid their burning terms of love,
None so devotional as that of mother."

Elder W. L. Chapman delivered an excellent discourse on the theme of the day, paying tribute to the elect in our day, Emma Smith.

In the evening Ira G. Whipple preached a missionary sermon. Several nonmembers were present.

A Birthday Cake

May 16. The Department of Recreation and Expression took their lunches and went to Lakewood Park to spend the evening playing games. At lunch hour Roy Whipple, superintendent of the boys' department, acting as toastmaster, called for remarks from different ones in honor of Leonard Pitsenberger's birthday. There was a generous response from Leonard in the cutting of a large birthday cake on which had been placed nineteen candles.

May 18. The morning preaching hour was occupied by B. F. Deller. His theme was, "Heaven, our home; and its location." From the thoughts presented we will all want to be at home.

The evening hour was occupied by A. P. Crooker. His subject was "Churches." Wherefore, by their fruits ye shall know them. If their teaching bears out the teaching of Christ, and their members also, then they are the church of Christ. Where is the church bearing this kind of fruit?

District Conference

A number of Topeka Saints attended the district conference at Atchison, Kansas, May 25, and returned feeling well paid for the effort made. Many felt that really an apostolic blessing had been pronounced upon them by Apostle John F. Garver in the subject presented in the sermons, and also his message in the sacramental service. The Atchison Saints provided a sumptuous basket dinner in the park on Sunday.

A Welcome to Kansas University Students

The Topeka Branch extends a cordial welcome to any Saints or friends attending the Kansas University at Law-

www.LatterDayTruth.org

old associates of Sunday school and church, amongst them Richard Howlett, a lovable man who had been an apprentice with me. We had roomed together, attended the same church, and prayed together. He seemed to feel very sad that we had joined the Latter Day Saints. He went a block out of his way going to church, apparently to avoid meeting me, and when we did meet he would not so much as lift his eyes as we passed.

We related the story as I have to you, and explained the gospel in those features wherein it differed from what we were accustomed to hear in the Methodist Church. The company was very much interested as we related the many instances in which fasting and prayer had been followed with the signs following administration. This of course was new, and as fascinating as strange, but so scriptural that little attempt was made to deny or question. The company broke up about 10.30, a few remaining for further questions; they stayed until nearly one o'clock, when we proposed to have prayer and then adjourn. A spirit of deep solemnity and earnestness pervaded all. In the act of rising, a delightful sensation seemed to fill my being, and without volition of my own I was lifted and carried in front of Richard Howlett, with the message:

Yea, verily, the Spirit saith unto you, my servant: You shall yet understand my gospel and obey it and shall preach the same unto many, and they with you shall rejoice in its blessings and fullness.

This was delivered so unexpectedly and with such power that all were silent except for an occasional sob, and most of them were in tears.

The next day I visited the foundry where Mr. Howlett was working. As soon as he saw me he left his work, and coming to meet me put forth his hand to clasp mine, his eyes full of tears and his voice estopped by emotion. He held my hand in both of his until the tears dropped from his face, then turned away, apparently unable to speak, and returned to his work. I went on until I came in sight of the man in whose house we had met. Seeing me, he too left his work; coming quickly he grasped my hand in both of his; with upturned face (he was quite short in stature) and tears flowing, in deep emotion he said: "Brother Clow, there was power in that thing last night."

This event was quite important to me; whatever of doubt or question remained relative to the return of the gifts of the gospel, especially that of prophecy, was now dispelled. How wonderful the experiences related in the Scriptures, yet how real and near those Scriptures appeared now; they are removed from the realm of tradition or historical statement only and verified by personal experience, and belief in continuous revelation is supported by actuality.

rence, Kansas. On two occasions recently we have had with us R. A. Smith, son of the late Joseph Smith, and Sister Hazel Juergens, of Glidden, Iowa. The presence of Brother Smith in our Sunday school reminded Elder A. P. Crooker of an incident which happened in Detroit, Michigan, when Reginald was five years old. He and Brother and Sister Smith were stopping at the home of a brother, who was awakened in the morning to baptize Elder Crooker. Reginald awoke, took a street car, told the conductor he was the son of the prophet and wanted to see the city. His request was granted, and he returned about 9 o'clock. The same day his father assisted in the confirmation of Elder Crooker, and the city paper gave Reginald due publicity in capital headlines. Those present enjoyed hearing Brother Crooker relate this incident.

Prayer Meeting

We are having teamwork in our prayer meetings, which is out of the ordinary, but seems to strengthen the interest of some in attendance. There are two teams, known as the Blue and the White. The captain of the Blue team is Sister A. P. Crooker, and they wear little blue bows. The captain of the White team is Sister H. C. Pitsenberger and this team wears white bows. As one sister aptly expressed it, "These little bows mean prayer meeting." Get the habit of attending this most important service.

We are glad to welcome Brother and Sister C. J. Sheets to our branch after a long absence in Iowa.

Special Meetings and Some Opposition at San Jose

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA, May 27.—The last word from San Jose is that Brother George Wixom, one of the missionaries of Northern California District, has been with us for the past ten days, endeavoring to encourage us to onward and upward progress by visiting among the Saints and preaching the word as often as he thought it wisdom so to do.

On Sunday, May 18, he preached twice in the church and once in the public park, where he had about sixty interested hearers. The choir was present and did some lovely singing. We gave out an appointment for the next Sunday. We had a nice banner with us, painted in red and black, to advertise our meetings at the church.

On the next Sunday we had quite an attractive display ad in the San Jose Mercury, advertising our meeting at the park and also at the church. Well, our meeting at the park was quite a success. We had between three and five hundred people at the meeting, all interested listeners. When we began, there were two other meetings in progress in different parts of the park. Our choir sang four songs from Zion's Praises before Brother Wixom began talking. It was not long until we had all the people in the park at our meeting.

The meeting lasted two hours. Questions were fired at Brother Wixom, giving him a splendid opportunity to bring out the main points of the doctrine taught by the church. One written question was sent in asking the difference between us and the Brighamite Church, which gave Brother Wixom a chance to set us square before the people. He surely made it plain that we were not associated with the Brighamites and that there was no polygamy taught in the Book of Mormon.

One man in the crowd opposed Brother Wixom vehemently and tried to make him lose his temper, but Brother Wixom only smiled and answered him in a way that brought applause from the crowd. He finally gave up and went up to Brother Wixom and gave him some throat tablets. Then he turned to the choir and gave them a "bouquet" on women's rights and asked them to sing another song.

Many were interested in what we had to present and lingered after the close to express their appreciation of the meeting and to ask questions. The Saints enjoyed it. A number of the Busy Man's Tracts were distributed. There were two large revival tent meetings running in the town, and the Episcopalians were holding their Synod here. Three of their ministers were preaching in three different churches of the city that day on Mormonism.

Young People's Convention in Canada

CHATHAM, ONTARIO, June 2.—The first annual young people's convention of the Chatham District was held in the branch on May 17 and 18. A splendid attendance was recorded, and the convention was a huge success. Besides the district officers, Patriarch John Martin of Kirtland, Ohio, Elder C. Ed Miller of Toronto, Byron H. Doty of the Chatham missionary force, and Elder J. Koehler of London were in attendance. A detailed report of the convention has been sent in another form to the HERALD.

On Saturday, May 24, two of the most popular young people of the Chatham Branch, Mr. Earl Vince and Miss Enna Armstrong, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Elder John Dent of Merlin. They are taking up their future home in Detroit. Chatham Branch members wish them Godspeed and good luck.

The Department of Recreation and Expression are making arrangements for a field for recreational activities during the summer. It is intended to hold volley ball, baseball, and other games here during the summer months. It is also being arranged to dispense with one meeting each month and retire to the recreational field to indulge in games.

The Sunday school recently observed special services on Easter and Mothers' Day. Splendid crowds turned out, and the programs were well put on and thoroughly enjoyed.

Sister Burton Honored at Nauvoo

NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, May 30.—Bishop M. C. Fisher visited Nauvoo on his way back to Boston after attending the council meetings at Independence. He spoke to the Saints on Sunday morning, giving them a very encouraging report of the work done by the council. He commended J. W. Layton, Bishop's agent, and also the branch, for the fact that every family in Nauvoo has filed its inventory. In the evening his topic was stewardships.

Mothers' Day was very appropriately kept. The eleven o'clock service, with A. L. Sanford in charge, was given over to short talks by different ones on "Mother." Each talk was accompanied by the Spirit to a marked degree. At the Religio hour Emma Burton read a poem that she composed while at the South Sea Islands. This was followed by a twelve-minute pageant entitled "Mother." In the evening Brother Berve gave a splendid tribute to "Mother." The house was well filled by an appreciative audience. Our Religio programs would do credit to any of the large branches. They are proving to be quite a drawing card. Many of the neighbors have formed the habit of dropping in to hear the program and staying for the evening service.

On May 18 the Burlington choir visited Nauvoo and at three o'clock rendered their Easter cantata, led by Sister G. S. Daniels. This was a great treat to the music lovers of Nauvoo, who drove from miles around to attend, and every seat was filled. Apostle J. A. Gillen accompanied the singers and was warmly welcomed by old friends.

On May 20 a surprise party was held for Emma Burton, the event being her eightieth birthday. She was presented with many pretty and useful gifts. A large birthday cake given her by her grandchildren was inscribed "Grandma; 1844-1924." She entertained her guests by relating some of her experiences while at the Islands. The following Sunday, when Sister Burton came forward with her birthday offering for the Sunday school birthday offering bank, she was presented with a large bouquet of flowers in honor of being the oldest member of the Sunday school.

No services were held on the evening of the 25th, that all might attend the high school baccalaureate service which was held at the Methodist church, our pastor, Brother Berve, assisting. The Nauvoo Branch had one graduate, Florence Ada Sanford, who attended the Independence schools until coming to Nauvoo a year ago. She won a year's scholarship to Bloomington College, but her goal is Graceland. She was one of the eight out of fifty taking the state teacher's examination at Carthage, who passed. She will teach at the Columbian School beginning the fall term.

Wichita Reports Growth in Spirituality and Numbers

WICHITA, KANSAS, June 3.—The work in Wichita has been growing slowly, a growth which seems to indicate results both permanent and durable. The spirituality of the branch is increasing, and eight have been added to our number by baptism since the first of the year.

District conference convened the fore part of January in this city. We had the pleasure of having President F. M. McDowell and Bishop James F. Keir with us, who occupied the pulpit throughout the conference.

Following the conference, Elder C. E. Harpe remained, preaching throughout one week.

Apostle Gleazer just ended a successful series of two weeks the first part of June. The preaching of Brother Gleazer and the loyal support of a goodly number of the Saints resulted in the most successful series of meetings held in this city since our sojourn here.

Tent Meetings in Heart of Anaconda

ANACONDA, MONTANA, June 2.—The Anaconda Branch has not many in attendance, but through the consecrated efforts of Elders Peter Helstrum and Joseph Beck the work in Anaconda is slowly but surely progressing.

For one year this branch has been preparing and looking forward to the meetings which are to be held in a large tent at a prominent place in the center of the city. Because of the fact that the people here have their minds bent strongly on the pleasures of the world, and because of prejudice, the Saints realize if the people of Anaconda are to be converted to the gospel of Christ it must be through the power of God, and also much work on the part of the Saints.

July 6 is the date set for these meetings. Elders George Thorburn and Eli Bronson will be the speakers.

Sunday school is held here at 1 o'clock and preaching at 2 p. m.

Just recently the few young people, eight in number, who are members of the Department of Recreation and Expression, selected musical instruments for themselves and commenced the study of music with the hope in view that perhaps they will be of service to the church.

Kansas City Stake News

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, May 26.—The stake conference, held May 18 and 19, was one of the most important ever held in the stake. It was especially so on account of the character of business done. The weather was perfect, except for a chilly air. Attendance was good, members turning out from all churches in the stake. An earnest but quiet spirit pervaded the various services. There was an attendance of three hundred one at the Sunday school.

Bishop Benjamin R. McGuire was the speaker at 11 o'clock, using as a text Galatians 6: 7: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." He said it was not given because of the probability of failure but in anticipation of bumper crops. A good lesson was drawn from the thoughts presented.

The elders' quorum and Aaronic priesthood held their meeting at 1.30 p. m. The young people and the older ones held social services simultaneously in adjoining rooms at 2.30 p. m. The Department of Women was addressed by Bishop F. B. Blair and the ministry by Elder Merrill A. Etzenhouser at 4 o'clock. Brother Etzenhouser's subject was "Responsibility."

Congregational singing began at 7.15, and at 7.45 Apostle Thomas W. Williams favored the waiting crowd with a discourse on Matthew 16: 18: "I will build my church." Brother Williams said Jesus meant more than to build an institution; fellowship probably was his idea, and the establishment of a social consciousness, not only forms, rituals, and ceremonies.

Business Meeting

The business meeting on Monday night was occupied chiefly with a resolution referred from last conference on "Common consent," as follows:

Recommendations of Stake Presidency

January 24, 1924.

To the Conference Assembled: At your last conference, in November, 1923, you referred to the stake presidency a proposition, asking them to submit a working basis for the Kansas City Stake in the administration thereof, in harmony with the action of the late General Conference in October, 1923, on the question of common consent.

We wish to say that we have canvassed a number, whom we thought would be conservative in judgment, for their opinion upon the question. We are forced to say that after returns we find ourselves as a committee very much disappointed because of the wide divergence of opinion, upon which we could not hope to submit to you anything definite. However, we are, independent of various opinions, submitting to you this report.

We would like to emphasize the following: That we find it a difficult task to get the membership to discriminate between a stake with all of its work consolidated and a stake where the organization is broken up into a number of branch organizations. This makes the operation of the stake presidency in an executive and administrative way very much misunderstood at times.

In submitting to you our report, as per your instruction, we wish to lay down the following premises:

1st. The Kansas City Stake is a consolidated organization without any subsidiary of branch organizations; consequently, all churches and groups are under the immediate supervision of the stake presidency, and all pastors and group officers are their appointed helpers and lieutenants to help them in conducting the stake work.

2d. There not being branches or subsidiary organizations, the rights of the people of necessity must be expressed in the meetings of the consolidation, which are the stake conference business sessions.

3d. There not being any branch organizations, there cannot be any elected branch officers, for it is self-evident organizations that do not exist cannot elect executives to preside over them.

4th. All officers, such as pastors over churches and groups, of necessity must be appointed to their places of work by the stake presidency, subject to ratification by the stake conferences, and in turn they be held responsible for the conduct of themselves and their work to the stake presidency and stake conferences.

5th. That the voice of the people expressed in ratification or rejection is common consent and fully conserves the principles of a theoretic and democratic combination in which appointment is made and the people speak thereon.

6th. That a common and simple definition of common consent understandable to all is—for the people or the governed to consent to that which, if they choose, they can otherwise refuse to consent to, or withhold their consent.

7th. Common consent must of necessity be expressed in harmony with the rules and usages of the organization under which the people are governed. Any expression outside of the rules of an organization for the direction of the organization would result in anarchy and disorder.

With these premises in mind we wish to be as liberal as possible in recommending the following for your consideration as a basis of procedure in the Kansas City Stake:

1st. That pastors of churches and groups be appointed by the stake presidency and such appointment be announced before the particular church over which each one is appointed at least two weeks before the assembling of the stake conference in November, so that the people if dissatisfied may register their dissatisfaction as a church or group before the stake presidency or the stake conference, such dissatisfaction to be subject to the rule governing the conferences.

2d. That pastors over churches nominate the heads of departments two weeks before each November conference at a called meeting of each church; also that the members at this meeting may have the right to nominate, if they wish; and if there are a number of nominees, the one receiving the expression of the body may be sent to the stake conference for ratification.

3d. That after heads of departments have been approved by the conference, the pastor and heads of departments may make nominations for other departmental officers, giving the people of each church the right to nominate and elect if they wish to.

4th. That the pastor and local heads form a local coordinating committee for the conducting and directing of the work of the auxiliaries, in harmony with the wish of the majority of the people of the stake.

5th. There not being any stake organization of auxiliaries, we therefore recommend that stake superintendents of the departmental work be appointed by the stake presidency, subject to ratification by the stake conference.

In conclusion we wish to add that we trust that this report, modified as it is in comparison with our present rule of action, will meet with your approval, and we kindly suggest that whatever proposition may be submitted to the conference for action, the people will deeply consider the splendid success of the stake in the past few years and then see to it that no action is passed that will in any way be reaction and return to former methods, which, in our judgment, are antiquated.

Very sincerely, your committee,
THE STAKE PRESIDENCY.

The original motion carried by vote of 74 for and 43 against, without change.

The stake presidency recommended Sister F. B. Blair as superintendent at Central Church to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Lydia Wight, which was ratified by motion.

Ira G. Clutter was recommended as counselor to president of the elders' quorum, which was approved.

Bishops' report showed cash on hand on January 1, $5,102.47; received since $10,973.05; expended, $12,893.72.

The high council has set aside the last Sunday of each month to specially give advice, counsel, information, or interpretation to individuals or quorums where that is within their jurisdiction.

The Department of Women report a stake class in the recreational course put out by Graceland College, and a class in home decoration, also basketry and polychroming, under the auspices of the Temple Builder and Oriole leaders, to study during the summer months.

Missionaries W. L. Fligg and Ammon White reported 193 sermons; 32 baptisms; confirmed 6; assisted, 3; children blessed, 2; administered to sick, 213; and Brother White gave 81 patriarchal blessings.

Central Church

A Mothers' Day program was held at 11 o'clock on May 11 in which Apostle T. W. Williams was the principal speaker. A well-filled house was present to greet the several participants, and they were greatly pleased by the character of the service.

Far West Stake

SAINT JOSEPH, MISSOURI, June 3.—On Sunday, June 1, the Saint Joseph churches held their regular monthly sacramental services at the five churches in the city, which were well attended. The First Church was filled, and a good spirit was present. Brother and Sister Etzenhouser, from Independence, Missouri, were present. We note this especially, as Sister Etzenhouser was once one of our active young members here in the city, and we certainly appreciated her presence. Sister Best of Kansas was also here on a visit. She resided here a few years ago and was an active member in the church. The Saints were certainly glad to see her.

Immediately at the close of the sacramental services Brother J. W. Blackmar and Mrs. Grace Baiker were united in marriage by Elder V. M. Goodrich. We think we hear more wedding bells ringing.

Sunday evening at the First Church an oratorio was given by the choral society of the five churches of the city, under the directorship of Brother Paul Craig, of Independence, Missouri. It was a wonderful success. Many were turned away, not being able to gain entrance to the church.

The young people of the five churches are meeting together for various recreational activities. Those of the First and Second Churches challenged each other for a volley ball game, so on Decoration Day they met on the lawn of the Second Church, where they played three test games in which the First Church won two games. Our pastor took active part in the games, which the young people certainly enjoyed.

Following the test games, the Second Church played the Fanning, Kansas, church team three games in which the Fanning team won all three games. Likewise they won three games from the First Church team. We appreciate the interest the young people are taking in church work and recreational activities.

Good reports are being received from the priesthood who are visiting the different churches in the stake. There seems to be a general awakening of the priesthood as well as of the members of the stake. Brothers T. W. Curtis and O. W. Okerlind have been very active and are meeting with great success in Fortescue and other places where they have been holding meetings. The demand for preaching is more than we are able to fill. We have an opening at Savannah, Missouri, but are unable to get anyone to fill it, so the Macedonian cry, "Send us preachers," is coming from different parts of the stake.
www.LatterDayTruth.org

Sister Edith Cochran has been sick for several weeks. We hope and pray for her recovery.

The funeral of Brother Frank Weitlich was held May 18 at the Maple Grove Church. Sermon by T. T. Hinderks, assisted by D. E. Powell. Interment at the Maple Grove Cemetery. Brother Weitlich formerly lived north of Stewartsville, Missouri, having moved to Saint Joseph about a year ago. He was loved by all who knew him.

Monday evening, June 2, the regular business meeting of the five churches was held with Brother Salisbury in the chair. Brother J. L. Bear's resignation as pastor of the Second Church was accepted on account of his new duties in the stake taking his time. Brother F. R. Gist was elected as pastor and Brother George W. Glenz associate. Brother R. E. Stone, superintendent of the First Church Sunday school, handed in his resignation, having accepted a position as teacher in the State Teachers Normal, at Warrensburg, Missouri, for the summer. Brother Wallace Burlington was elected superintendent and Brother Gilbert Bowser assistant.

Seattle Loses Two Young Saints

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON, May 19.—The work in the Seattle Branch is doing real well, and good interest is manifested in all the departments. The Sunday school deserves special mention for the good work it is doing. We have a primary department that we are proud of, and it is doing excellent work with an efficient corps of teachers. The school is presided over by Brother Montie E. Lasater, and the primary department by Sister Myrtle Lasater.

The Department of Recreation and Expression, guided by two of our young men, Brethren Charles Powers and M. E. Lasater, is doing excellent work, with good attendance at the meetings. There is a dramatic class organized with Brother W. W. Powers in charge. We look for some good work from this class soon, as there is real live material in it.

The Department of Women is busy, holding their regular meetings and doing some very good work for the cause. They are all interested in the work, and we can see a steady growth which is encouraging. Sister Emma McDole, as its directing head, is very capable and untiring in her efforts to make the department a success.

We have used two of our young men in the pulpit lately, and they have shown systematic preparation and study, so their messages were well received. There is greater work for them to do as they prepare.

Our hearts were made sad last week at the untimely taking of two of our young people. Brother Paul R. Davis was drowned in Lake Washington last Monday night, May 13, while out canoeing. A sudden squall capsized the canoe, and Brother Paul was not able to reach the shore. His body was discovered the next morning about ten o'clock and was buried Sunday, May 18, Brother D. S. McDole officiating.

Sister Helen Fletcher passed away at her home in Olympia and laid to rest Saturday at one p. m. The undersigned was called to preach her sermon. These two incidents cause us to think and look to self, asking the question, "Are we ready, if it should be our call next?" Of course we hope we are, but we must continue to watch and pray, for we do not know the day or the hour. So may we all be careful.

C. E. JONES.

San Antonio Sends Representatives to Lamoni

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, June 5.—On Sunday morning, June 1, at the eleven o'clock service the sacrament was administered in the first part of the meeting. The remainder of the hour was used for a preaching service, Brother D. S. Palmer being the speaker. The Saints were glad of the change, as they are not privileged to hear Brother Palmer very often. He spoke again at the evening service.

Brother W. H. Mannering, accompanied by Theodore Dorow and Robert and Fred Anthony, started last Sunday by auto to attend the Young People's Convention at Lamoni, Iowa. We wish them Godspeed and hope for a favorable report on their return. Another trio started the week before from this district in a Ford coupe, these being ladies, the three Barrett sisters of McAllen, Texas. We admire their bravery to undertake such a long journey alone, and hope they will feel repaid for the effort made to get there.

Some of the San Antonio Saints have gone on vacations, and one sister is in the hospital. These conditions have caused the attendance to decrease, but there are always a few faithful ones who are left to care for the work, for which we feel thankful.

Doctor Sharrel, of Medina City, who has been at a local hospital here for the past three weeks, was able to return to his home last Monday.

The Religio members are planning a moonlight picnic at Roosevelt Park next Friday night. They are to serve sandwiches and lemonade as refreshments, and will also give a program. An enjoyable time is anticipated.

C. M. Clifford in Successful Meeting

OTTUMWA, IOWA, June 3.—A series of services has just been concluded at this place. Elder C. M. Clifford offered his services, which were gladly accepted. The next thing was to make preparations. Insertions were made in the local papers which gave nearly a full column write-up. One thousand circulars were given out which were printed at the Herald Publishing House. This work was well done. Then personal letters were sent out, and the advertising thus became a great asset.

The meetings were started Sunday, May 11. Topics were: "Social religion of Jesus," "Personality of God," "Problem of the age," etc. The earnestness with which these topics were presented and the grasp the speaker had of his subjects made them very clear and interesting. The attendance at these services was very good, the best that has been here for years. People came from all parts of the city, and the nonmembers gave fine attention and were much interested in the message.

There were eight baptisms. There has been no excuse for the people in this community not knowing the truth, and we feel if the good work is continued we shall see more results.

The Saints and the people of this community are of the opinion that Elder C. M. Clifford is an earnest, conscientious worker and a real speaker. We are hoping the Saints will move out into branch work with renewed vigor.

The services were from May 11 to May 28. Three days longer than arranged would have been used, but the speaker was in very poor health, and considering this, God truly blessed him with good liberty.

Meetings and Baptisms at Detroit

SECOND BRANCH, DETROIT, MICHIGAN, June 3.—Second Branch has just concluded a two-week series of meetings held by Brother John Grice. The attendance has been very large, and great interest is manifested by those inside and outside of the kingdom of God. In fact the interest is so great that the Saints voted to hold meetings another week.

Brother J. R. Grice baptized four last Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, and indications are that several more will enter the fold this week. The sermons have been very inspiring, and truly God has blessed the speaker every night. On several nights we were obliged to get extra chairs for the people to sit on.

The musical part of the meetings were successfully conducted by Sister M. Lively, and several solos were ably sung by Brother Grice.

The Saints in this district feel greatly strengthened by these meetings, and it seems that a new era of success and ambition spiritually is dawning in this section of Detroit.

The Department of Women is still working hard to help pay for the new basement and other improvements for the church, and great credit is due them for the many sacrifices they have made. Altogether we are marching onward and upward toward Zion, feeling that the time is at hand when those who are not faithful will be sifted out.

We are very fortunate in being able to have Brother A. B. Smith as our pastor. He is a young man who is putting his whole heart and soul into this great work, being blessed with God's Spirit in return for the supreme efforts he has made to advance the gospel in this part of God's vineyard.

First Columbus Reports Advancement

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 23.—First Columbus Branch has been growing steadily, both in numbers and spirituality. The faithful ones are pulling hard to keep the Department of Music as well as other auxiliaries on the top-notch line of activity, for the mutual benefit of all.

We were especially blessed on Sunday morning of May 18 by the sermon of Elder Gard Kirkendal, of Union Furnace, Ohio, who paid us a visit. His talk was a timely one, for the young especially. Everyone that heard it couldn't help but have a greater determination to try to visualize this great work and wonder; also consecrate afresh our lives to the Master's service.

The Sunday School Department gave an appropriate Mothers' Day program, when all mothers of the land were to be remembered.

The dramatic work is pushing forward as well as the Book of Mormon study in the Department of Recreation and Expression, to a great advantage for the present.

MODESTO, CALIFORNIA, May 29.—The Saints of Modesto are pressing along and are trying to advance the cause. The Sunday school has a splendid attendance, nearly everyone on time, and only about five absent on an average.

The Department of Recreation and Expression, too, have a splendid attendance with four classes. Preaching services are fairly well attended.

The Lord is with us in our prayer meetings, and those who miss them are losing out, for we have encouragement from him often.

The Saints are often instructed to come up higher, so they may be able to enjoy more of the good things of God.

The priesthood have their meetings on Friday evenings. The junior choir is doing splendidly.

Nonmembers Active in Sunday School

LITTLE KENNEBEC BRANCH, MACHIAS, MAINE, June 2.—On Sunday, June 1, the Saints of this branch held, as usual, their Sunday school, beginning at ten o'clock. This school is composed largely of nonmembers, all taking an active part, which is very encouraging to the small band of Saints here.

Following Sunday school a prayer meeting was held, and the sacrament was administered by Elder George C. Manchester, who had charge of the meeting, to the few Saints who were gathered. A degree of the Spirit was present, and all went to their homes feeling greatly blessed.

In the evening at seven o'clock, preaching service was held by Brother Manchester, who is the local elder of this branch. It was an interesting discourse delivered to quite a large audience.

Toledo Saints Enjoy Programs

TOLEDO, OHIO, May 29.—A splendid entertainment was given here Christmas followed by another on Easter. Splendid success accompanied both programs, thanks to the untiring efforts of Sister Willbrith and Sister Munn. Several from the Sylvania Branch attended, also a few from Bradner.

The Toledo Branch also attended the entertainment the following night given by the Sylvania Branch which all enjoyed and agreed a very fine success.

Another program will be given some time in June, which will be conducted entirely by the young people under the direction of Sister Willbrith. There is some splendid talent here and with the assistance of Brother and Sister Willbrith, who are accomplished musicians and devoted to the work, it is hoped the program will be highly entertaining.

Brother E. I. Yoder is not here now, and Brother Ace Willbrith has been elected president to fill out the term.

The Saints look forward to a brighter future in Toledo. They expect to finish the repairs on the church this summer. Then they will put forth their best efforts that all in this vicinity may hear this beautiful gospel.

Brother Griffiths was here on May 18, also the district president, Brother Jess Harding. R. M. EASTIN.

Spring River District

PITTSBURG, KANSAS, June 2.—The semiannual conference of the Spring River District which convened at Pittsburg, May 9 to 11, was well attended, and a good feeling was prevalent through all the sessions. The preaching by Brethren Amos Higdon of the Seventy and F. Henry Edwards of the Quorum of Twelve certainly was fine and much appreciated.

Brother William Rayer passed on to his reward May 27. He lived a pure life and his reward is sure.

Bishop Hunt was with us Sunday, June 1, and at the 11 o'clock service, after sacrament was administered, he gave the Saints a real heart to heart talk. He also preached at eight o'clock in the evening, which was much appreciated by all.

At the meeting of the Department of Recreation and Expression, the boys' class put on the program, part of which was a one-act play, "The good Samaritan." The part where the man traveling the Jericho road fell among thieves and was wounded and robbed was more impressive than the act of the priest, the Levite, or even the good Samaritan.

Young People's Convention

Attendance and Personnel

Despite the shower of rain that greeted us early in the morning of the first day of the convention, the registration booth was kept busy registering the names of college people staying over to the convention and many coming from various parts of the country. It resulted in an enrollment the first day of 496. The registration increased on Friday to 567 and on Saturday noon to 658. This outnumbers the attendance of last year at this time to a considerable extent, and it is estimated that a thousand young people will be in attendance before the convention closes.

It takes but one look at the crowd as it is assembled in the large tent prepared for that purpose to be thrilled by the fine characters and to note the earnestness and consecration expressed in their faces. And that devotion and consecration may be seen not only in the faces of the young people, but in the things they do.

The young people are coming from all over the country, as evidenced by the following States represented: North Dakota, Missouri, Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas, Illinois, Ohio, Oregon, Kansas, Michigan, Wisconsin, Montana, Alabama, Nebraska, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Washington, Iowa, Minnesota, Rhode Island, and South Dakota, as well as two from Canada, one from Austria, and two from England. If the young people from these various places can catch a deep vision of the work of the church and can carry back with them the enthusiasm and courage which is being felt here, who can evaluate the good that will result?

The convention is fortunate in having at least for part of the time President F. M. Smith, Apostles J. F. Garver, and F. Henry Edwards, Evangelist J. F. Martin of Willoughby, Ohio, Missionary L. G. Holloway, Bishop Siegfried and his wife, Brother Albert Zimmermann and Elder D. J. Krahl. Some very fine teachers have also been secured who are giving some excellent courses. These are: Cyril E. Wight, F. M. McDowell, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, C. B. Woodstock from Mondamin, Iowa, A. B. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Burgess, Eugene E. Closson, Mabel Carlile, Blanche Edwards, and Roy A. Cheville.

Class Work

One of the most inspiring things about the convention is the zest with which the young people enter the class work. It is not a few of the young people who are interested, but as far as can be seen, every visitor on the grounds enthusiastically searches out the classes in which he is most interested. Such expressions as, "I wish I could only attend all of them," and "It's so hard to decide which I would rather have," are frequently heard, despite the fact that everyone can take three classes and many of the courses are repeated for a different group. There is no doubt but that the splendid ideals and valuable information given in the classes will be taken home by those attending and eagerly given to those unable to attend.

And the young people are not disappointed at the close of the class session. The classes are conducted with such clearness and earnestness and such splendid things presented that all are delighted. A total enrollment of class attendance was about six hundred for Friday and about six hundred seventy for Saturday, despite the rain which caused some inconvenience on Saturday.

Prayer Services

It was truly an inspiring sight to see about six hundred young people assembled Thursday morning in the large convention tent. The subject of the meeting was, "Lengthen your ropes and strengthen your stakes." A number of the young people expressed their great pleasure at being able to attend the convention and stated they felt fully repaid for their effort at this early date.

In spite of the fact that it not only rained but "poured" on Saturday morning, about two hundred young people assembled at the tent. A fine spirit of devotion and joy was felt by all. Many interesting thoughts were expressed, centering around the thought of preparation.

Recreation

Under the direction of Brother Eugene Closson and with the assistance of Sister Ruth Studley and Brother Hugh Braby, a very fine recreational program has been outlined for the entire convention.

The grounds are equipped with four volley ball courts, five playground ball diamonds, three croquet sets, two tennis courts, and the college track is open with all its equipment.

It is a disappointment that the convention hall and gymnasium is not completed for the use of the convention, but it is encouraging to find that the basement is finished and a large portion of the walls.

The young people are divided into groups representing different localities in the United States. The time set aside for recreation is from three to five in the afternoon.

Tournaments are planned for next week as follows: Playground ball Monday, volley ball for Tuesday, and a general track meet on Thursday. Prizes are being offered in each of these events.

Group games are planned for every day from now on for the purpose of preparing leaders for work in their home branches.

Forum Meeting (The Junior Church)

In the forum meeting Friday afternoon Roy Cheville presented the plan of, and reason for, the junior church. He outlined in some detail the methods which have been used in the past to give the children some religious education, and gave illustrations from history.

The junior church is not a place for merely holding the children while their parents enjoy an adult service; it is not a place of entertainment; it is not a place for talking down to children. Brother Cheville emphasized the point that merely translating an adult problem into simple terms or child language does not make of it a child problem. Children have problems of their own, and the junior church should discuss these in such a way as to make a continuity of experience between their week-day and Sunday activities. In the story-telling, dramatization, and sermonet there should be discussed and solved the little problems of everyday child life, so that these growing children might continuously make their adjustments. He also emphasized the idea of participation in these services by the children, and particularly the necessity for a junior choir.

At the conclusion of his talk, Brother Cheville led the discussion which followed, and many interesting questions came up. The attendance was good and the participation encouraging.

Opening of the Convention

Because of rain the opening service, scheduled for 10 was postponed to 2:30 in the afternoon. No amount of rain can banish the joyous and hopeful attitude of a crowd of young people such as have gathered this year, however. The motto seems to be "Keep smiling," and they certainly do keep smiling.

President Floyd McDowell opened the service and introduced the speakers with pleasant witticisms.

George W. Blair, mayor of Lamoni, was the first speaker. He explained that the rain in the morning was the result of the prayers of the people of the community, as rain was badly needed. He greeted the visitors and told them if there was anything they wanted they would do their best to secure it for them.

C. E. Wight, president of the Lamoni Stake, said, "All over this country there are thousands of young people who are vitally interested in this work. Many of you come from all parts of the country and represent these young people. Go back and give them a vision. Whatever we have and whatever we are we desire to place at your disposal. We want to help you enjoy yourselves and obtain from this convention all that is possible."

G. N. Briggs, president of Graceland College, also greeted the young people. He said, "This is your college. My fondest hope and ambition for you in these ten days is that they shall be lived and not merely passed. We welcome you on behalf of the authorities and faculty of Graceland College and trust these ten days will be full of pleasure, profit, and benefit."

President F. M. Smith was then introduced as the speaker, and a few of the things he said may be of interest:

"Last night we heard a splendid address on 'Children of fortune.' I shall try to talk on 'Children of God.' I shall begin with the dawn of creation.

"There are two outstanding theories as to the origin of man. One has God very busy for some seven days in preparing the abode or habitation of man as a crowning glory of his creative genius. He makes man out of the dust of the earth and places him on the earth with its beautiful surroundings. The other theory is that sometime back in the remote past ages an ambitious bit of protoplasm climbed into a sphere of activity. A tadpole shook off its tail and an ape jumped down from a tree, stood erect, and with a gleam of intelligence in his eye evolved until we have a magnificent brute.

"It is indifferent to me this afternoon for the purposes of the hour which one you accept. Might it not be true that somewhere between these two extremes lies the golden truth?

"As to the origin of religion: Religion may be defined in a general sort of way as the propensity to feel after God and manifest that longing in some sort of ceremony. One theory of the origin of religion is that religion was given in all its glory directly to Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden—given to a perfect man and a perfect woman, and from that glory it has degenerated to the modern church.

"At the other extreme is that theory of religion according to which man attempted to account for the mysterious forces of nature; e. g., the leaves of the tree moving by unseen forces, etc. He recognized some source must be moving those leaves. When they moved gently and he was sheltered from the blaze of the sun under the tree, he recognized the force that was moving it was beneficent. But when his hut was torn by the elements he gathered the idea that some malignant being was taking out its vengeance on him. He erected an altar to appease that power. When he found it was the moving of the air that stirred the leaves, he was forced to develop a higher form of religion, and the process of evolution has continued until to-day we have religion manifested in the rituals and ceremonies of the church.

"This church stands for the idea of a God who is interested in human affairs and who exercises a direct influence. He is calling for our love and respect, that we might worship, but that worship must be in harmony with his divine will, which is that we shall continually improve our relationship with our fellow man. If religion does not react to our relation to our fellow man it becomes 'lip service.'

"If we have to choose one of two things, loving God or serving our fellow man, I believe God will have more respect for us if we neglect some forms of ritualistic service and serve our fellow man. This spells social betterment, and that is the ideal goal or application of this religion which we have espoused.

"The goal of this church is that every man might grow to his biggest while doing his best for others."

Independence

Sister Sarah E. Jordan writes from Sibley, Missouri: "On Thursday, May 15, Brother R. D. Weaver brought to a close a twenty-five day series of meetings at this place. Interest shown by nonmembers was good and increased steadily each night, until the seating capacity of our meeting place was insufficient on the closing night. Six had responded to the message and had been baptized that day. Since then we have found two more who are ready for baptism, and six or seven more on the verge of conversion."

Open-air Campus Meetings

The first open-air preaching service for the summer months was held at the Campus Sunday evening. All the Saints' congregations in the city are invited to join in these. However, Second Church and Walnut Park congregations, holding their Children's Day Exercises on Sunday evening, were not with us in this opening gathering. The musical program began at half past seven and both it and the sermon were broadcast over K F I X. The music consisted of solos, duets, and double quartet. The band promised to be ready to take their place next Sunday evening. The sermon by President Elbert A. Smith was on "The prodigal son's brother," and was well received by the people. This sermon will appear in the HERALD columns sometime in the future.

Harvest Festival Movement

June 3 an entertainment and pound social was given in the Second Branch at which more than two hundred pounds of sugar and five or six dozens of glass fruit jars were given for the use of the canning and preserving committee.

Readings, vocal and instrumental solos, two splendid vocal quartets, and addresses on "Effect of environment on morals," by Bishop M. H. Siegfried, and "Value of food conservation," by Bishop James F. Keir, made up one of the most refining and uplifting programs. The flower committee connected with this movement had provided generous floral decorations which contributed to the general atmosphere of the evening.

The committee of six having in charge the several branches of this harvest festival movement as started at Second Church and largely supported by the several congregations in Zion, are planning a harvest spectacle and play which will give some idea to those who have not seriously thought of it, of the possibilities of this wonderful land; of what can be accomplished over and above what has been done in working with God to build a beautiful and useful city and to reclaim the waste places. Every nook, every corner, every vacant lot should be utilized and beautified, that the land and the people together may "sing unto the Lord." We shall hear more from them soon.

Bishopric

The Australian Saints, without knowing anything about the sacrifice days in America, almost simultaneously put on a similar effort. They held a whole week of sacrifice in May.

Bishop B. R. McGuire is attending Young People's Convention at Lamoni for a few days. Brethren C. B. Harts-horn and Vernon Reese, helpers in the Bishop's office, started for the convention Monday morning. Their wives accompanied them.

Brethren McGuire, J. F. Keir, and I. A. Smith will start to Colorado Tuesday evening on church business.

Enoch Hill

T. J. Lewis occupied Sunday morning, using the subject, "My soul delighteth in plainness." Brother James V. Roberts preached in the evening.

Next Sunday will be Children's Day. A short program will be given by the primary grades at the Sunday school session in the morning, and in the evening the entire program will be given over to the children.

Two weeks ago James V. Roberts baptized six and Charles Warren, one. The week before that Brother Charles Fry, the pastor, also baptized one. So do our numbers grow.

Second Church

Sister Mary Fields, chorister of the junior department at South Side Sunday school, has left for summer school at Warrensburg to fit herself as a public school teacher. Sister Agnes Thomas, another of the good church workers, accompanied her. They are of that type that are surely missed from our ranks when absent.

Brother Richard J. Lambert, pastor, spoke to the Saints at eleven o'clock.

Liberty Street

R. S. Salyards preached at eleven o'clock, May 8, on "Divine system for government for the church and state." For the evening services the congregation joined in the Campus meeting.

On June 1 Charles F. Putnem preached in the evening.

Graduates

Arthur H. Mills graduated from the Kansas City University at Kansas City, Kansas, June 3. His work in piano and theory was done under Mr. and Mrs. Carl Busch, credits for which were accepted by the university, while the remainder of his work was accomplished under the present faculty of the school, and the degree Bachelor of Music was granted.

Four names in which the Saints are interested appear among the graduates of the Kansas City Law School for 1924: J. A. Becker, J. Calvin Budd, jr., Robert T. Cooper, and Clarence Charles Franklin. The men who make up this class in the Law School are largely college university graduates. It therefore takes either effort or talent, or both, to obtain the high grades won by our men. It is with pleasure then that we note the phrase, Summa cum laude, appearing after the name of Robert T. Cooper. "With highest praise" has meant to him an average of ninety-five per cent or better on all subjects for the past four years.

Among the graduates of Junior College, Kansas City, Missouri, June 6, appear the names of four of our young people who are to be congratulated for their forward progress, Mary Lois Williamson, Arthur Mills, Clarence Erickson, and Adelbert Withee.

Miss Fern Peterson, daughter of Brother and Sister J. W. Peterson, has just completed a three-year course at the Columbia College of Expression in Chicago. Sister Fern was a graduate from William Chrisman High School two years ago, so has completed the work in two years. As a reward for good work and creative ability she has been chosen one of four, by the faculty, to membership in the Honorary Dramatic Society of the college. She will play on the Chauquaqua platform this summer in Minnesota, Iowa, and Illinois.

When the William Chrisman High School held its commencement exercises on the evening of May 15, and programs were placed in the hands of the guests, a number of Latter Day Saints set to work to see if the church had made a creditable showing through the records of scholarship and places on the program. A short examination of the program disclosed the fact that of nine numbers, four were given wholly by Latter Day Saints; and of eleven persons on the program six were members of the church. Of the Special Honor Roll of eight students, our young people captured three places; and scholarship honors were awarded to fourteen, six at least being awarded to our energetic and studious representatives. From this record it appears the young people of the church are doing their bit to bring honor to the religion of their choice by the cultivation of their minds. We trust they will continue the work so successfully accomplished.

Helping to dedicate the new home of Apostle E. J. Gleazer was a social function in which Group 21 participated Friday evening, June 6. Brother and Sister Gleazer came recently from the East and have built their new Independence home on Walnut Street in Group 21. Refreshments were served and a general good time enjoyed at this welcoming.

A motor trip to Des Moines, Iowa, to visit Brother David Dowker, who is pastor of the branch there, was begun Friday morning by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Koenig, Mrs. B. C. Harder, Miss Sarah Dowker, and Georgia McKenzie.

The death of Sister Mayme Garland Hopkins, wife of E. E. Hopkins, on May 25, at the Independence Sanitarium was an unexpected occurrence, as the sister was young, born March 10, 1901, at Kewanee, Illinois, and had been in very good health until recently. Peritonitis, following an operation for an abscessed appendix, caused her death. She was a daughter of Brother and Sister Samuel Garland, of the Second Church congregation, and herself one of that congregation. Her funeral occurred May 27, and Second Church was filled to its capacity with a sympathetic congregation. The pastor, Elder R. J. Lambert, delivered a short sermon.

The Laurel Club met Tuesday afternoon at the Campus with Sister T. C. Hattey and Sister Nellie Parker as hostesses.

A wedding of interest to many of the Saints occurred at the home of Elder L. E. Hills and wife, 201 South Willis Avenue, on June 1. Sister Louise Hills Farr was married to Brother Daniel Lewis of Casper, Wyoming, Elder L. E. Hills officiating. Brother Lewis is a son of Patriarch William Lewis, who was well known throughout the church. The bride is a granddaughter of Apostle Samuel Powers, who assisted in the Reorganization in 1860. The bride and groom will make their home in Casper, Wyoming, where Brother Lewis is employed as engineer on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway.

Sister Mary Harrington died at her home, 1208 West Lexington, on June 6. She has been a faithful Saint, the wife of Brother George E. Harrington, who was formerly president of the Independence Stake, and for years a missionary of the church. The family located in Independence in 1878. Sister Harrington was the mother of Roy, Doctor Leonard G., and Miss Eveline of this city. Another son, Elbert, is at Panama with the Government aerial and naval service. Mrs. William Clow and Mrs. Joseph Luff are sisters of Mrs. Harrington. The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the home, and interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery. The sermon was by Elder W. H. Garrett; Elder Joseph Luff in charge.

Children's Day

The Children's Day baptismal exercises for the Stone Church were held on the Temple Lot Sunday afternoon at the open-air font. This exercise was especially beautiful with the sunshine breaking through the light clouds, now and then, and resting like a halo on the font and those within. A large space had been roped off to permit many to view the ordinance and all was orderly as the children went one by one, happily and with confidence, into the water. Those officiating were: James F. Keir, E. D. Moore, C. B. Hartshorn, Joseph Farrell, Ammon White, and Fred Cool. The thirty-four children baptized were: Oscar Milton Allen, jr., Eula Bay Booker, Helen Atkinson, Eva Atkinson, Virginia Rose Budd, LaVon Marie Budd, Clyde Brower, Chester Boswell, Juanita Christensen, Helen Clauson, Margaret Chatburn, Hazel Davis, Wanda Farrell, Nina Marie Frandsen, Elizabeth Gooch, Fred Ralph Greenburg, Gail Hagan, Francis Horney, Atha Johnson, Carl Jones, Verdine Jamison, Willard LeBeau, May Lanfried, Cecil Ray Moore, Eunice Porter, Duane Walter Reese, Donald Carlos Smith, Mary Ellen Smith, Mary Elza Sprague, George Stowell, Freda Wilson, Irma Ruth Willis, Claralee Dot Young, and Elsie Zion.

The 11 o'clock hour was given over to Children's Day. The primaries occupied the choir seats, and the juniors were seated directly in front. The story was told by Sister Eunice Winn Smith, and the address by Brother C. B. Hartshorn.

Eighteen children were baptized Sunday afternoon at Walnut Park. They were: Martha McCallum, Ellis L. Storey, Catherine Price, Alta June Moorman, Grace Elsie Willie, Alice Brown, Lucile Payne, Mureal Kinsfather, Mabel Kinsfather, Opal Colebank, Max McColl, Wilma D. Lagrace, Elsie Payne, Gladys Clark, Marybelle Sanders, Lavina Long, Elsie Reed, and David Condit. Those officiating were Brethren Shaffer, J. Adams, Glaude Smith, T. C. Kelley, J. A. Dowker, and I. Burdick.

The pageant, "Zion redeemed," written by Sister Mollie Davis, of this city, was presented at the 11 o'clock service by the children, and in the evening another pageant was rendered, entitled "The fairies' gifts," which was originated by Sister Ethel Moorman, of the Walnut Park congregation.

The children occupied in the evening at Second Church to celebrate their Children's Day. The program was a mixture of songs, recitations, etc., which the children themselves rendered in a creditable way. Sister Gladys Smith Davis had the program in charge. Those who will long remember this day as one in which they took the important step of baptism are: Franklin Robinson, Richard Dillee, Frank Good, Janey McPherson, Lyndon Wagner, Doris Weir, Kenneth Curtis, Gordon Smith, Lawrence Wisemore, Carmine Guthrie, Amy Hedden, James Robinson, Gerald Page, Everett Queen, Loneita Page, Elizabeth Ravell, Mildred Wagner, Alma Edmundson, Nellie Robinson, Pauline Snow, and Morrille Guthrie. Brethren Richard J. Lambert, W. H. Kelley, and Alma Campbell officiated at the font.

The Religio of the Stone Church, which has been meeting on Sunday evenings during the school year for the convenience of the high school students, has been placed on Friday nights at eight o'clock for the summer months. It is to be hoped that good attendance of the Sunday evening service will continue through the summer.

Brother Fred St. John, of Chicago, Illinois, and Sister Hattie Richter, of Tularosa, New Mexico, were married in Kansas City, Missouri, Monday evening. Brother James F. Keir officiated.

Frank S. Dobbins Lectures at New London

GROTON, CONNECTICUT, June 4.—Elder Frank S. Dobbins, of Brockton, Massachusetts, spoke to the Saints of New London Branch on Sunday morning, May 25. In his sermon, Brother Dobbins related the history of the world-famed picture, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." The latch-string was not on the outside of the door of the dwelling, so, on knocking, the resident opened for admittance. A lesson

Radio Flashes

Wilson, Oklahoma.—Have tuned in on your station two or three times and was surprised, only hearing closing each time. There are two of us that are far from the fold, mother, who is seventy-six years of age, and myself. There is no church, neither members here. I suppose the nearest church is Wilburton, Oklahoma, and if we can hear your programs it will be a treat. Please send us your program, so we will know when to tune in. Have not heard a Latter Day Saint sermon in twelve years, so you see how we appreciate it. With best wishes.—Charles Williams.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, JUNE 15, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.
Prayer.
Soprano Solo: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock," MacDermid.
Mrs. E. C. Harrington.
Anthem: "My faith looks up to Thee," Schnecker.
Violin obbligato by Miss Lillian Green.
Sermon by Bishop B. R. McGuire.
Hymn.

SUNDAY, JUNE 15, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the L. D. S. Campus
(Open air service.)

Band concert conducted by Mr. Roy Turner.
Hymn.
Sermon by Elder Walter W. Smith.
Hymn.

TUESDAY, JUNE 17, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Program furnished by members of the choir of the St. Paul A. M. E. Church, featuring Negro Spirituals.

"I'm so glad trouble don't last away," R. Nathaniel Dett.
"Bye and bye," H. T. Burleigh.
"Nooby knows de trouble I've seen," Burleigh.
"Li'l gal," J. Rosamond Johnson.
Talk by C. I. Carpenter.
Trio: "To a wild rose," MacDowell.
"Little mother o' mine," Burleigh.
Reading: Selected.
Mrs. Gertrude Reed.
"Exhortation," Cook.

THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Program furnished by the Walnut Park Orchestra

"Spring song," Mendelssohn.
By the Orchestra.
Violin duet: Selected.
Messrs. Walter Gibber and Douglas Byrns.
"Melody in F," Rubenstein.
By the Orchestra.
Baritone Horn Solo: Selected.
Milford Nace.
"Voices of spring," G. Barnard.
By the Orchestra.
Address:
Trumpet Solo:
Mr. E. J. Cox.
Vocal solo: "Leave it with Him," James G. Ellis.
Mrs. Osro Campbell.
"Clover blossoms," Barnard.
By the Orchestra.
Vocal duet: Selected.
Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Norman.
"The admiral overture," Russell.
By the Orchestra.

well to be remembered was conveyed in that thought. The Saints hope to welcome Brother Dobbins again soon.

The solicitors for the building fund gave a baked-bean supper Friday, May 23. The supper was well attended and liberal donations were received.

MISCELLANEOUS

Notice of Appointment

Notice is hereby given of the following appointments:
 Peter Whalley, Northeastern Nebraska District, Omaha objective, Local.
 W. D. Tordoff, Western Oklahoma District, Missionary.
 James A. Thomas, Central Oklahoma District, Tulsa objective, Local.
 Joseph H. Yager, Owen Sound District, Missionary.
 William Sparling, North Dakota, Missionary.
 V. B. Etzenhouser, Northern California District, Bay Cities objective, Missionary.
 William Bath, transferred from Western Oklahoma District to Kansas City Stake, Missionary.
 G. E. Harrington, transferred from Spring River District to Independence, Missouri, Local.
 James E. Yates, transferred from Western Colorado District to Southern California District, Missionary.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY.
 THE QUORUM OF TWELVE.

June 7, 1924.

Notice of Release From Appointment

Inasmuch as Elder Daniel Macgregor has relinquished missionary appointment to accept a directorate in the Fuego Oil Company, notice is hereby given of his release from general church appointment.
 This action has the unanimous concurrence of the members of the Twelve in America.

QUORUM OF TWELVE.

One-Day Meetings

Northern Michigan, at Cheboygan, July 13. All are cordially invited to attend. Kindly bring basket lunch for dinner. Allen Schreur, president.

Addresses

Thomas Newton, 415 Stealy Avenue, Clarksburg, West Virginia.

Reunion Notices

Eastern Michigan and Detroit, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17. The reunion has been well supplied with speakers and workers for the ten days. Apostle J. A. Gillen, Bishop Fred B. Blair, Evangelist George W. Burt, Elder M. A. Etzenhouser, and Sister M. A. Etzenhouser will be in attendance. A very interesting program is being arranged for both old and young. Plan on attending this reunion and enjoying yourself both spiritually and physically. Matthew W. Liston, publicity manager, 306 Eighth Avenue West, Flint, Michigan.

Western Oklahoma, at Eagle City, August 1 to 10. We had a good reunion last year, but we want your help in making this one larger and better. We will have four speakers: T. W. Williams, C. J. Hunt, R. Bullard, and J. A. Thomas. We have a new missionary who will be with us also, Brother Tordoff. Come and be with us for the ten days; plenty of shade and good water. For any information concerning reunion, write Roy L. Diamond, secretary, Eagle City, Oklahoma. Roy L. Diamond.

Western Colorado, at Delta, August 1 to 10. We will have good speakers. All come who can and help make this reunion an even greater success than the 1923 reunion. The conference will be held the last two days, important business to be transacted. Jewell Harshman, secretary, Cory, Colorado.

Des Moines, at Runnells, Iowa, August 8 to 17. The following speakers have been assigned: E. J. Gleazer, J. A. Koehler, J. F. Martin, and Mrs. J. R. Lentell. Bessy Laughlin, secretary.

Conference Notices

Kewanee, at Kewanee, Illinois, June 27 to 29. Friday afternoon will be given over to departmental work. It is expected that Brother Gleazer of the Twelve will attend. Election of officers, matters pertaining to the reunion, rules of

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Richard J. Lambert, Managing Editor

Contributing Editors

Elbert A. Smith                      S. A. Burgess
 T. W. Williams                      A. Max Carmichael
 Arthur Phillips                      Arthur E. McKim
 O. W. Parker, Business Manager

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.

Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in the hands of the editors not later than Monday afternoon preceding date of issue. All obituaries put in regular form. No charges for Miscellany.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.25.

CONTENTS

EDITORIALS:
Healing the Sick .....	553
Faith of Our Fathers .....	553
Training a Child .....	554
An United People .....	554
Heeding the Call .....	555
Young People's Convention .....	555
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Vision of the Church, by A. B. Phillips .....	556
The Light at the Water's Edge, by William Clow .....	559
CHURCH NEWS .....	565
RADIO .....	574
MISCELLANEOUS .....	575

representation, and other important matters will come before the conference. Branches must choose delegates, one for every six members, and send credentials to the district secretary. Mary E. Gillin, secretary, 115 Clarke Avenue, Peoria, Illinois.

North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 26. Clerks please take notice and have statistical reports on hand. J. W. Darling, secretary, Thorne, North Dakota.

Northern Saskatchewan, with the Grand Plains Branch, Delisle, July 18 to 21. Everybody welcome. W. J. Cornish, president; Eva Land, secretary.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)

- Spokane, at Sawyer, Idaho, June 20 to 29 (479).
- North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29 (383).
- Northern Wisconsin, at Chetek, June 27 to July 6 (431).
- London, Ontario, Springbank Park, June 28 to July 13.
- Minnesota, at Minneapolis, July 3 to 13.
- Central Nebraska, at Inman, July 5 to 13.
- Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (359, 503).
- Southwestern Kansas, at Winfield, July 17 to 27 (479, 503).
- Kentucky and Tennessee, at Puryear, Tennessee, July 19 to 27 (527).
- Florida, at Alafara, July 18 to 27.
- Central Oklahoma, at Washunga, July 18 to 27 (503).
- Holden, at Holden, Missouri, July 18 to 27 (527).
- Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (335).
- Clinton, at Eldorado Springs, Missouri, July 25 to August 3.
- Western Nebraska, at North Platte, July 25 to August 3.
- Massachusetts, at Onset, July 26 to August 10.
- Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
- Lamoni, at Lamoni, Iowa, July 30 to August 10.
- Western Colorado, at Delta, August 1 to 10.
- Chatham, Ontario, at Erie Beach, August 1 to 10 (167, 263, 287).
- Western Michigan, at Bendon, August 1 to 10.
- Western Oklahoma, at Eagle City, August 1 to 10.
- Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 to 10 (215).
- Eastern Iowa, at Muscatine, August 1 to 10.
- Spring River, at Pittsburg, Kansas, August 7 to 17.
- Des Moines, at Runnells, Iowa, August 8 to 17.
- Mobile, at Gautier, Mississippi, August 8 to 17 (503).
- Portland, at Portland, Oregon, August 8 to 17.
- Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
- Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (335).
- Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
- Northern Michigan, at Boyne City, August 8 to 17.
- Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 9 to 24 (119, 383).
- Northeastern Illinois, at Elmhurst, August 14 to 21.
- Central Texas, at Hearne, August 14 to 20 (551).
- Eastern Oklahoma, at Winthrop, August 14 to 25 (527).
- Western Montana, at Race Track, August 15 to 24.
- Kewanee, at Galva, Illinois, August 15 to 24.
- Idaho, at Hagerman, August 15 to 24.
- Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24 (479).
- Northeastern Kansas, at Netawaka, August 15 to 24.
- Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, Iowa, August 15 to 24 (215).
- Maine, at Brooksville, August 16 to 23.
- New York and Philadelphia, at Deer Park, Pennsylvania, August 16 to 31.
- Far West, at Stewartsville, Missouri, August 21 to 31.
- Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, at Indian Lake, Michigan, August 22 to 31.
- Pottawattamie, at Glenwood, Iowa, August 22 to 31.
- Northern Wisconsin, at Monona Park, August 22 to 31 (503).
- Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Procrastination

“Thou shalt not delay to offer of thy harvest, and of the outflow of thy presses, the abundance of thy fruits and of thy liquors.”—Exodus 22: 29.

This was the word of God to Israel. It is the word of God to you.

A universal failing of humanity is to put off till to-morrow the thing that should be done to-day.

Act now upon the feeling that you have in your heart and you shall know the joy of giving.

Everyone is invited

First. To pay his tithes in full to date.

Second. Set aside your earnings for June 9 and 23 as a freewill offering.

This will enable the church to carry out the program of the year.

My Resolve—This will I do!

Your servant for Christ,

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

The Saints' Herald for June 18, 1924

Number 25

EDITORIAL

The Young People's Convention

Last year the convention was a new idea. A great effort was made to get results. It was widely advertised. This year the novelty had worn off, those from a distance had already made the trip. A young people's convention of over a week was already announced for the East at Onset, Massachusetts. A shorter one was announced for Kirtland, so it was evident that the bulk of the enrollment would be from neighboring States. Yet the enrollment equals that of last year, with a quite significant gathering from remote points.

The program this year in its general plan would appear to be nearly a model: prayer service at 7.30 a. m., then three class periods between 9 and 12 a. m., with seventeen classes meeting, discussing eleven different subjects, in addition to the junior church. In the afternoon an hour and a half for round table, then recreation. The evening was equally divided between sermons and entertainments. Sunday was naturally given over to Sunday school, preaching, and afternoon prayer service.

In details of subjects offered and manner of treatment there may no doubt be improvement with added experience. But the plan is excellent and represents the wishes of the young people, as expressed in replies to a questionnaire.

But if one had any doubts from observing the class work and recreation alone, they would be dissolved in the prayer service. It is true that those older in years took a limited share and tried to help with consistent effort the purpose of each service. But the outstanding feature was the testimonies of the young people, and the willingness of the really young men to offer the prayers.

Many spoke of what Graceland College had done for them, the change it had made in their outlook in life. There first had they gained a vision of what this work of the church might mean.

Others would speak of what this convention or last convention or both had meant or did mean to them. Even those out of adolescence, young men in their thirties, spoke of hearing last year of a vision, and did not know what it meant; this year they had caught for the first time what social service and the work of the church might mean.

All expressed a desire to consecrate their time and talent to the work of the church, to choose those things which are best. Many expressed repentance of wrong choice, and desired now to go in the way of the Lord.

Social service was the dominant theme of the convention. Religion and life were expressed in terms of social service. The high point was reached Wednesday, June 11. Rain the next morning dampened, though it could not quench the spirit, and a splendid prayer service was held Thursday morning. But the spiritual power seemed to be felt in greater degree Wednesday morning than before. Friday was another remarkable day that warmed the hearts of those who had worked so hard to make the necessary preparation to make the convention a success.

Such a meeting is of evident benefit to the young people privileged to attend, and even to those well past thirty and forty years of age. Some faithful class members will never see fifty or sixty again. But all were bound to get all they severally could from the books, exhibits, and recreation, as well as from the sermons, prayer services, round tables, and class work. But after all it was basically a meeting of the really young. Of these many took frequent occasion to assure us that next year would see them at Graceland College.

This is another aspect deserving at least passing reference—the contact between the young people and Graceland College, and especially those who are at or near the critical period of decision—what shall I do next? Where shall I go? I will prepare myself, that I may render a better service to the church and humanity. When I am ready and now I will give as I can to help on the cause of Christ. I will give of myself as well as of my means. That is essentially the message of the young people and their convention to the church.

S. A. BURGESS.

(Editorial continued on page 598.)

OFFICIAL

TO THE CHURCH:

I regret to find it necessary to denounce the action of the Board of Publication as reported by the board in the HERALD of two weeks ago. The Board of Publication has assumed unwarranted powers in the matter, and the church must now be informed that the Presidency has not only disapproved the action of the board but has made formal protest. It will be noted that not even the usual courtesies observed in change of editors were extended to us.

For the first time since 1865 the editorial columns of the HERALD do not represent the Presidency. It will be clear that the "official" character of the HERALD has thus been changed.

The action of the board is not alone unwarranted but greatly to be deplored at this time.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, President of the Church.

The April Council of First Presidency, Members of Quorum of Twelve in America, and Order of Bishops

It will be remembered by the readers of the HERALD that I presented in an editorial recently some of the work of the council of Presidency, Quorum of Twelve, and Bishops held in Independence in April. The reasons for calling the council may be briefly stated. At different times the Presiding Bishop has presented to the Presidency statements of financial conditions of the church, and about the first of the year suggested calling a council of the Presidency, Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric for consideration of what to do under the circumstances. From his letter of February 4, 1924, I quote:

However, instead of deciding upon a fixed percentage of reduction in the unexpended budget appropriations, it might be thought wise to lessen to some extent our missionary effort, particularly in fields which are not self-sustaining, and increase our efforts in more fruitful fields, or curtail operating costs in other directions. Regardless of what methods of procedure or plan of retrenchment is adopted, we feel the matter should be given immediate consideration by the Presidency, Quorum of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric, and therefore urge that a meeting of the Joint Council be called at the earliest possible date.

The President of the church called the Standing High Council and laid the whole situation before its members, asking for advice as to what should be done, saying he would be guided by their advice. After going into the situation carefully the High Council advised that the Presidency call the members of the Twelve who were in America and the Order of Bishops to meet with the Presidency, to give the present condition such investigation as they could, and advise or agree as to what should be done under the circumstances. Acting on this suggestion of the High Council, the President of the church issued a call for the members of the Quorum of Twelve in America and the Order of Bishops to meet in Independence, April 15, which they did, as was indicated in our recent editorial. Wide latitude of discussion was had, and many things which bore on the present financial and general condition of the church were discussed with the utmost freedom. Among others was the question of the Auditorium, and after this had been discussed freely the following action was had:

1. The Auditorium should be built without delay. There is imperative demand for such building. If it were unneeded the undertaking would be ill-advised.

2. Plans should be made to spend such portion of the amount of subscriptions as fast as available in erecting such part of the ultimate building as will meet our present needs, any unused portion being invested in safe income-bearing securities for the benefit of further future expansion of the Auditorium Building.

3. To effect this end, location and plans should be determined as expeditiously as possible, and the Auditorium fund should be rehabilitated without delay.

4. The rehabilitation of this fund should be effected with the full purposes of the church in view and with especial regard for our work in solving our social problems.

5. Unutilized properties should be sold and the proceeds applied in returning the loans to general funds. This also applies to the investments of the fund.

6. Lands desirable for promoting our social program or church extension should not be sold to rehabilitate the fund unless the exigencies demand.

7. The High Council and the Presiding Bishopric shall designate the list of properties to be sold to rehabilitate this fund.

8. With a bona fide start made on the erection of the building, the collection of the remainder of the subscriptions to the fund should be undertaken.

It will be seen from this that the council was very decided in its opinion that the money already loaned to the general fund from the special Auditorium fund should be returned to the special fund and be made available for building purposes. In this connection it is well to state that the Auditorium committee is quite hard at work on the preparation of plans, which we hope to have formulated soon so that actual work on the building may start at an early date.

The opinion seemed to be pretty well crystallized that a cause which had contributed to the decrease of income in the church had been the differences which have existed between various quorums, especially the First Presidency and Presiding Bishopric, and an attempt was made to crystallize the opinion of the council in regard to what these relations should be. This consideration resulted in the adoption of the following, to which I suggest the careful attention of the entire church membership:

This church, as defined by the late Joseph Smith, is a theocratic-democracy—not man-made, but of divine appointment and origin. (Matthew 16: 18; Doctrine and Covenants 1: 5; 17: 7; 1 Nephi 3: 221; 3 Nephi 10: 1.)

The government of the church is by divine authority through priesthood. (Doctrine and Covenants 68: 4; 104; Acts 20: 28). The government in its objective is beneficent, and its purpose is betterment of human conditions. The divine authority becomes operative through the consent of the governed—the common consent indicated in the law (Doctrine and Covenants 25: 1; 27: 4). It is divine government among the people, for the people, and for the glory of God and the achievement of his purposes towards ideal conditions.

God directs the church through clearly indicated channels (Doctrine and Covenants 43: 1, 2; 27: 2); and his voice is the directing power of the church; but to this the assent of the people must be secured.

In organic expression and functioning there must be recognized grades of official prerogative and responsibility (Doctrine and Covenants 104; 122: 9), with supreme directional control resting in the Presidency as the chief and first quorum of the church (Doctrine and Covenants 122: 2, 9; 104: 42). This control it is presumed is beneficent. Protection against prostitution of this power is amply provided in the law.

To carry into effect the purposes of the church, effective administration is imperative, and organic solidarity is maintained only by effective discipline, which is in consonance with the beneficent purposes of the church, but yet strongly enough administered to prevent the purposes of the organization being frustrated by individual caprice and rebellion. Authority to be effective must be respected.

This view of the organization of the church affirms the interdependence of departments and coordination of action and holds General Conference as the instrument of the expression of the will of the people.

So far as the majority of the members of this council are concerned, the adoption of the foregoing sets at rest that which has been a greatly agitated question and a source of considerable trouble, and we had hoped that the almost unanimous vote in the adoption of this held promise of the settlement of what has for some time been a vexatious matter. But this hope has been shattered by the organized opposition led by some members of this council, as is evidenced by "An Open Letter," etc., in HERALD of June 4. It is to be regretted that these brethren are disposed to disregard the action of the council of which they were officially members, but have chosen to join a group not officially constituted a council of the church.

The general economic program of the church was also carefully considered, documents having been submitted by both Presidency and Presiding Bishopric. Acting on the basis of a report from the committee appointed to carefully examine both documents, the following action was adopted as the opinion of the council:

1. Be it resolved that we favor the immediate initiation of a program looking towards the establishment of Zion and the application of the law of stewardships, which program is as follows:

2. That the Bishopric secure completed financial statements by the selection of a corps of men qualified by special training (if possible) who shall be assigned territory with a view to securing these financial statements by personal contact.

3. That financial statements be provided which are especially designed to serve these purposes.

4. That the members of the church be requested to file their financial statements annually.

5. That arrangement for the payment of tithes due the church should be made at the time of filing of the inventory.

6. That all who are willing and desirous should be placed upon the stewardship basis, either individual or group, as they shall manifest the essential qualifications.

7. That books, tracts, etc., expressing the social ideals of the church should be published without delay.

8. That the ministerial propaganda of the church include the presentation of the social ideals of the church with specific reference to the law of tithing and consecration, that they may cooperate in the education of the Saints, particularly young people and inquirers.

9. That the people of the church should be urged to gauge their expenditures in accordance with definite budgets to be formulated with the idea of maintaining an equitable standard of living consistent with the attainment and perpetuation of their maximum efficiency and the needs of the group.

10. That in looking to the completion of the surveys of man power, capital, markets, territories, etc., a bureau of research and service should be established.

11. That the determination of the order of economic development should be given immediate consideration.

12. That the surplus consecrated from stewardships in operation should be set aside for, or at once used in the establishment of other stewardships.

13. That in view of the extension of our social organization there will be necessity for providing vocational guidance and training.

This gives a well-defined program towards which the members of the council are practically pledged to work, and it is a matter for felicitation that a definite and comprehensive program is thus outlined.

Other matters were discussed by the council which will appear sooner or later, but which will not be necessary now to present in this connection.

The council seemed to result in the development of a far better feeling of understanding than has existed for some time, and generally the sentiment seemed to prevail that every member should do everything in his power to promote and enlarge this feeling of understanding and fraternity. I felt at that time that if there were a general disposition on the part of the various members of the council, as we feel there should be, to carry forward the sentiments of the resolutions adopted, the work would gather impetus and progress would become much more pronounced and rapid; but hopes for expansion of these feelings of fraternity and better understanding have been shattered by the apparent and active unwillingness of those of the council signing the "Open Letter" to act in harmony with the large majority decision of the council. The church must decide the issue.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, President of the Church.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

A Steadfast Purpose

*Sermon by Bishop Benjamin R. McGuire at Young People's Convention, Lamoni, Iowa,
June 8, 1924.*

This morning I have selected as a lesson the first eight verses of the general epistle of James, which is familiar to all Latter Day Saints:

James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad, greeting: My brethren, count it all joy when you fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience; but let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing. If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. For let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord. A double minded man is unstable in all his ways.

I have selected as a text the statement contained in the 5th verse of the 12th chapter of Genesis, a statement that relates what occurred when the Lord had spoken to Abraham with respect to leaving the location where he was and going into another land. The statement is: "And they went forth to go into the land of Canaan, and into the land of Canaan they went."

This presents the same thought in positive language as is presented in a more or less negative way by the statement of the Apostle James when he says: "A double minded man is unstable in all his ways." "They went forth to go into the land of Canaan, and into the land of Canaan they went." They most certainly did. Of course they did, for the very good reason that they went forth to go. They had an objective; they had an aim; they had a destination; and they had a purpose. And having a purpose is what I wish to speak to you about this morning. That is the thought I desire to leave with you; it is the thought that I trust you will cherish, meditate upon, and make applicable in your life in the days to come.

Purpose brings a man forth from the place where he is to where he desires to go. Purpose is a path; it is a companion; it is a friend. Purpose gives poise, and tone, and zest to life. Purpose organizes one's powers, regulates his desires, and brings to him peace and joy and well-being and definite returns. Purpose clarifies the mind, warms the heart, strengthens the will.

One who never goes forth to go never goes. He never "begins to start to commence." He just shambles along; he never gets anywhere. There is a need to-day for definite purpose. I do not believe that that requires proof. It is self-evident. When we consider life in its many and various aspects, political, social, economic; when we think of the unrest and uncertainty that obtains in the world, we recognize immediately the necessity of a common purpose to bring out of all this chaotic condition the joy and the peace of life.

At the time of the inception of this great latter-day work, the cry was, Lo here, and, Lo there. It was a case of individuals; in the language of the Apostle Paul, being carried about by every wind of doctrine; and while it was true at that time, it seems to me to-day it is very strongly emphasized and made more pronounced. In those days the Lord cited our attention to the language of the Apostle James: "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God that giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him."

To-day we admit the value of that counsel. We not only admit the value of that counsel as members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, but we admit the value of that counsel when we seek the wisdom of God in scientific research, when we undertake to ascertain, to find out, to discover the processes, the methods, the law, if you please, of God as it pertains to all things in nature.

At this season of the year, for the first time, there are hundreds, there are thousands, of young men and women that will undertake the serious responsibilities of life—or they will undertake the responsibilities of life and be made aware of their seriousness. I hope, I trust, and I believe that there is no one here who, in considering assuming the responsibilities of life, will assume these responsibilities and discharge the duties for which they have qualified, in whatever vocation or profession or training or trade they have fitted or qualified themselves for, with the thought in mind as they undertake their task that it is with the simple, sole, and only purpose and object, the financial return or the securing of that which will satisfy physical wants, food, raiment, shelter, etc., or in satisfying physical wants will give them something in excess of physical wants, in the way of luxury. I trust no one thinks it wise or prudent and a mark of greatness to get the most with the least expenditure of thought or time or effort.

Some evenings ago I attended the commencement exercises of the Kansas City School of Law, and I was pleased that one of our brethren, and I may mention his name, Bishop R. T. Cooper, received the highest honors. In presenting Brother Cooper with the token of their esteem, the prize which he had won, the speaker called attention to the fact of his being a good student, an indefatigable worker, and a gentleman. In the presentation of the diplomas of the evening, the dean of the faculty made mention of the fact that the study of law was moral in its effect. He called attention to the different conditions obtaining at the present time as against the conditions that obtained one hundred years ago; but he stated that the fundamental principle, as enunciated in the law of Moses, "Thou shalt not steal," was just as applicable, just as valuable, just as necessary to be applied to the changing conditions to-day as it ever was. He also made mention of the fact that the Lord had said, "Six days thou shalt labor," and then he paused and said, "not loaf."

I believe that one of the necessary things for an individual to learn to-day is to work. It is a part of our Zion's economy. "The idler shall not eat the bread nor wear the garments of the laborer." Work is essential to our salvation. Work is essential to life as well as to reward. The reward that comes from the application of the principles of the gospel is the more abundant life.

This same principle is involved in the law that we should offer the firstlings of the flock, without spot or blemish. We should give the best. Now one who says, "I will offer to God what costs me nothing," does not understand the thought and purpose of God. We cannot give what costs us nothing and hope to receive a return in quantity or quality greater than the gift. As we give, we receive, pressed down and running over. If you multiply nothing, you get just as large a product, nothing. God's purpose is to bless mankind, and obedience to God's will accomplishes man's blessing.

So I might ask this morning, my young friends, After this convention, what? We profess special knowledge; we profess special understanding; we profess a measure of the Spirit of God. May I say then, may I be so bold as to believe, that you share the thought that it is requisite, having made such professions, that we should deliver the goods?

Some one has said that man is about two thirds will and one third intellect. If that be true, I say, "Put your will in a Ford, and get there!" Much better than in a Rolls-Royce and never arrive. By that I mean this: While we have our aim high, while we should be satisfied with nothing but the best, let us avail ourselves of such instrumentality as we have and make the best of it. This requires attention to the task. Unless the mind holds to its work, nothing can be done. It will be unstable, like the wave driven by the wind and tossed. Change and instability are not progress. The purposeless always yield to the men of purpose. Purpose has the right of way; purpose leads the traffic in "high" while the purposeless are shifting gears. You will recognize the fact that purpose crossed the Delaware. You will recognize the fact that purpose gave God the opportunity to raise up men to write the Constitution of the United States.

As I have pondered upon this thought, I have associated it with the statement of the Savior to Satan, "It is written." The fact that the Constitution of the United States is written, it is definite, has something to do in my judgment with the fact that as the crowns fall from the heads of royalty, and as the nations of the earth have been dissolved, they have molded and fashioned their constitutions after the Constitution of our country.

The love of Christ which constrained the Apostle Paul made him an apostle to the whole world. With emphasis he said, "This one thing I do." To destroy the will is to destroy men, and the object of the gospel of Jesus Christ is that all men might be saved. To educate the will and to strengthen it and to offer it in holy sacrifice is to save men. Obedience, we are told, is better than sacrifice, and to hearken better than the fat of rams. Why? Because obedience is living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto God. Obedience to the will of God is loving sacrifice, holy and acceptable.

Obedience to God's law is strength. It is power. Obedience to God's law has brought the beauty and the fragrance to these flowers we see upon the altar this morning. Obedience to God's law will bring the beauty and the fragrance to mankind that will help them to attain to the stature of life in Christ Jesus.

Religion was never intended to extinguish the will, but to develop it through a great purpose. No man can be dead that lives unto God; but he who lives unto God will be dead to this world and its allurements. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the power of God unto salvation, individually, socially, economically. From whatever angle we view life, the gospel is the message which brings joy and gives purpose and understanding to life; and when we have tuned in for the message, we by the same act tune out that which for the time seems pleasurable.

I believe that each of us should understand the general purpose; that each of us should have a specific purpose. We cannot all be doctors, lawyers, ministers, educators, business men, farmers, or tradesmen. We cannot at the same time be all of these things; but the thing that we do should be done in such a way that it would contribute to the accomplishment of the general or the whole work or purpose.

When we go from this convention to our home branches I trust that each of us will find wherein we may be able to discharge some specific duty, undertake some particular task, and devote ourselves to that task in such a way that it shall contribute to the accomplishment of the whole task which has been delivered to God's people in these the latter days.

I suppose you would feel that this sermon had not been delivered by one who has been called to act in the office of bishop if we had not something to say about the financial aspect or the temporal aspect of our work.

Whatever you do, my brother or sister, do it with an eye single to the glory of God. I have sometimes thought that this expression, "with an eye single to the glory of God," carries with it to some at least the idea that God wants us to live in a somewhat limited or restricted sphere of action. If I understand that clause, it means that we must have that power of penetration, we must have that vision, we must have that clarity of understanding to recognize the majesty, the grandeur, the fullness of the glory of God. And while it may indicate to some that our activities in life should be restricted, or limited, the opportunity is extended to us to fulfill to the complete measure the purposes of God in our creation. The gospel work offers us this opportunity.

So now as we return, when this convention is adjourned, each one of us should have a definite object, a definite purpose, and we should not be swerved from that purpose; but with "an eye single to the glory of God" devote our thought and our time and our attention to it. In so doing, you will engender into the branch, into the Sunday school, into whatever department of the work as a department of the church you may be engaged, that splendid spirit that is necessary to give us as a church the solidarity the church should have. It will revive the languid; it will restore the confidence of the one who has become disheartened; it will again stimulate individuals, not only by their presence and by the Spirit of the Master to the defense of the interests of this work, but it will loosen the purse strings and turn into the treasury of the church that which we should give of our substance of this world's goods.

To the extent that we put into this project, to that extent we value it; to that extent we treasure it; to that extent we will sacrifice for it.

I am pleased to know that the Young People's Convention last year had a purpose or developed a purpose and object; and while we went forth to go, while we are on the way, we have not as yet reached what we set out to accomplish in the time that we set out to accomplish it, I am satisfied that the work will be accomplished and the next time the young folks of this church are gathered in convention, instead of "tenting on the old camp ground," they will be occupying the new gymnasium.

May the blessing and peace of God rest upon us and help us to accomplish our purpose, in the name of Jesus Christ, is my prayer.

Faith

By J. F. Rudd

When God tells us to perform a certain work, we must first believe that he has spoken and that his word is truth.

One of the most perplexing paradoxes in human experience is that although no voluntary act is ever performed by man without faith, there is very little real faith in the world to-day.

Without faith, organized society could not exist. Without faith, our wonderful banking system could not be maintained, as every draft issued and every check drawn is based upon this fundamental principle of human conduct. Destroy faith, and chaos would reign in every mercantile establishment and counting house. Credit would cease. Nobody would ride on a railroad train, much less venture in an airplane. Life itself, at least in human form, would soon become extinct.

Analyze Paul's definition of faith, and these conclusions will not seem unreasonable. Faith is the assurance from any source with the power and ability to grant things hoped for, trustworthy evidence of things not seen.

It is estimated by good authority that through our very efficient banking system the turn-over value of every dollar of real money in existence in this country is multiplied fifty times. That is, there are every day transactions representing fifty times, in the aggregate value, the actual cash that changes hands. This is all done by a system of balances, through clearing houses, made possible by the checking system; all based on faith.

We accept a check in payment of goods purchased, rents due, or in liquidation of other obligations, but before doing so we must have what appeals to us as reliable evidence, giving us the assurance not only that the maker of the check is honest and has the money in the bank, but that the bank upon which the check is drawn is solvent. This is faith.

The fact that we are sometimes mistaken in our judgment of the evidence does not alter the principle involved; but instead of an experience of this kind being real faith, it is simply credulity, which is very frequently mistaken for the real thing. And all error, every crime committed, is invariably the result of either lack of all the evidence or reliance upon false testimony.

The Completion of Faith's Work

In our human experiences, because of our inability always to judge correctly the credibility of evidence obtained or the truth of testimony given, we cannot be absolutely sure until we prove it. In case of the check, after accepting it, another mental process is put into operation. We think about the evidence in our possession and are more or less concerned about it until a conclusion is reached, but there is only one sure way to reach the correct conclusion, and that is to continue the process of thinking until it leads us to take the check to the bank and either get credit for it or obtain the cash.

But the moment that is done, we have no further use for faith. It has completed its work. It has inspired action which has developed into knowledge. And all knowledge is obtained in precisely this way. Without faith we would never act, and without action we could not obtain knowledge of anything. Faith is the prerequisite, the precursor, of all knowledge. This is the principle the Lord tried to teach Oliver Cowdery when he gave him the privilege of helping Joseph translate the Book of Mormon. We find an account of why he failed in section 9, Doctrine and Covenants, and if we are failing in our work to-day it is for the same reason. Also read section 8. If we Latter Day Saints would only learn and practice the principles involved in this wonderful revelation Zion would soon flourish and be indeed a city set upon a hill. Our light would shine throughout the world and could not be hid.

What are the two principles presented in the revelation? The first is faith, and the second is knowledge obtained through the operation of faith. When God tells us to perform a certain work we must first believe that he has spoken and that his word is truth. We bring together all the evidence relating to the subject, classify it, and reach a conclusion so far as we are concerned. This is studying it out in our own mind, and no mental process should ever be dignified as thought unless we do reach a conclusion. This is the logical result of all real thinking. But how many of us ever go even that far in things of most vital importance? It is so much easier to do our thinking by proxy. Even if we are able to concentrate long enough to reach a conclusion, we are apt to become so elated over the unusual achievement that we think we have gone all the way and that our conclusion is right. But we are yet only in the stage of faith. There is one more very important step to take. We must ask God if our conclusion is right. If it is right, he says he will cause our bosom to burn within us, and we shall feel that it is right, but if it is not right we shall have no such feelings, but shall have a stupor of thought and he will cause us to forget the thing that is wrong.

It may be argued that this was a gift peculiar to Oliver Cowdery, but I am convinced that the spirit of revelation always operates in just that way with everybody who possesses it. I say with Moses: "Would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his Spirit upon them."

When we receive the assurance from God, through his Spirit, of things hoped for; when this kind of unimpeachable evidence is furnished us of things not seen, sooner or later, in God's own time and in his own way, all such hopes will be fully realized, far beyond even our most sanguine expectations. There is only one thing that will prevent it, and that is to lose our faith, to allow that assurance to become dimmed by unbelief in God and in the wisdom of his plans—the curse of the world to-day. "Shall he find faith [in God] on earth when he comes?" is a question still unanswered, and unless there is radical improvement, which I do not hope for, even ordinary faith, based upon purely human evidence and assurance, will be lost. Through more and more frequently occurring betrayals of confidence, that faith is being terribly shaken, in business, in politics, and in society.

Our only safety as a church is for every member to fast and pray, in sackcloth and ashes if necessary, until we make ourselves worthy to receive that Comforter, the Holy Spirit of promise, which will lead and guide us into all truth and show us things to come, which is the spirit of revelation and which will furnish us, through faith, knowledge of everything we should know to successfully perform our work and complete our mission in this world, whatever it may be.

NEW YORK CITY, May 16, 1924.

The Soldier Bonus

By J. A. Ferris

It may be of interest to a number of our members who served this country as soldier during the World War, to learn something more about the soldier's bonus.

As the writer has been for the past thirteen years continually active in life insurance work, he must keep posted on matters that pertain to life insurance.

Congress passed the soldier's bonus over President Coolidge's veto, and it is now a law. At the present time Congress has not provided any plan to raise this enormous sum of money, and it is very likely that sometime in the near future (it may be a special call of Congress) means will be devised for raising this money. President Coolidge is not opposed to the kind of a bonus that Congress adopted. Twenty-year endowment life insurance policies are to be given to each soldier according to his term of service. The Government will pay the premiums on this insurance, and the Government will issue these life insurance policies. It may be news to a number of the readers of the HERALD to know that the Government of the United States is in the life insurance business, and that a great many millions of dollars of life insurance is in force now at the present time written on the lives of soldiers and nurses during the World War.

The War Risk Bureau at Washington handles this business. The first policies issued during the war were five-year term policies, and were convertible to standard permanent policies. The Government adopted the same table of values in use at the present time by many of the prominent life insurance companies. While the insurance values and extended insurance on these policies are the same as those of a number of the prominent companies, yet the premium rates are lower on account of the Government conducting the insurance free of cost to the soldiers. The taxpayers pay for the expense of managing the War Risk Bureau.

The complete details regarding the soldier's bonus have not been given out as yet. However, the means of determining how much insurance a soldier is entitled to is very simple. For example, at age twenty-five, the cost of purchasing a twenty-year endowment policy by making a single payment is $608.56. At the end of the twenty years the insured receives $1,000 cash value plus his accumulated dividends for twenty years, if he has not previously taken them out.

This single premium of $608.56 is taken from the rate book of one of the standard companies. The Government price for a single premium evidently is lower than this, on account of the Government having no agents or other expense charged to the conducting of this insurance business.

If a former soldier has over $500 credit on account of the soldier's bonus, he will receive a twenty-year endowment policy from the Government for around $1,000. If he has credit coming to the amount of $1,100, the Government will issue to him a twenty-year endowment policy for about $2,000.

The cash values at age twenty-five, on a twenty-year endowment policy, the kind that is given on account of the bonus, at the end of the third year is $102.27; at the end of the fifth year, $177.78; at the end of the tenth year, $396.21; at the end of the fifteenth year, $665.59; and at the end of the twentieth year, $1,000.

It is presumed that the soldiers may have access to the cash values and take a loan on their policies; in event of their wishing to avail themselves of this opportunity, the loan value increases from year to year.

The soldier's bonus is a great tribute to life insurance in general.

There is no sounder financial institution on earth than life insurance.

President Coolidge states: "There is no argument against the taking of life insurance. It is established that the protection of one's family, or those near to him, is the one thing most to be desired, and there is no medium of protection that is better than life insurance. Our Government has given close attention to the insurance companies, and they are on so sure a foundation that it is in substance a guaranty method of protection for our people."

Some have called attention to the fact that the Government perhaps will have billions of dollars to pay on one day, twenty years from now when these policies mature.

While it is true that a very large sum must be met at that time, at the maturity of these policies, yet quite a few will be terminated before then on account of death, and the dependents of these ex-soldiers will receive the face amount of these policies.

Also, if the Government allows the cash value to be borrowed, there will be quite a number who will have borrowed up nearly to the value of their policies.

It is the writer's opinion that more real and lasting benefits will result on account of the Government adopting life insurance as a means of rewarding the ex-soldiers, than if they had been paid in cash.

Credo

By R. W. Farrell

In the church is, potentially, all good, and it is for each member to endeavor to bring that good to its full fruition.

Be it far from me to start a "chain of letters" in the direction of the Herald Publishing House, but I request space in which to make plain a few matters touching my personal relation to the Book of Mormon and to Free Masonry.

"I believe" (credo) that truth is the most sacred thing in the world—in the universe—for Jesus is Truth. Truth is the only thing that will make us free, and in this sense truth is a "perfect response to a perfect environment." When we have attained to this state of perfection, we have attained to a knowledge of God's power, and only till then are we saved mentally, physically, spiritually, for these three are one in the ultimate. So "I believe."

Only a few words are required from me touching Free Masonry. I have nothing to say against it. Some years ago I united with the lodge and upon leaving my native State took a demit. Since that day I have never sought to actively unite with any local lodge. I have visited them five times in the past seventeen years. I am still a demitted Mason in good standing. As a rule the best citizens of any community are members of the Masonic fraternity, standing as they do for freedom of religious conscience, free schools, higher education, and morality. (I do not mention this to start any controversy. I am sure that the manager of the HERALD would not allow a controversy over a matter that admits of no controversy.)

However, I believe (that "I believe" again) that in the church of Jesus Christ is "enough and to spare"; and while that "enough" is not properly distributed, yet I have preferred to fix my faith on the mighty principle of justice and wait the day of the Lord. To this end, when I have been sought out by brethren who have expressed a desire to unite with Masonry, I have said that in the church is, potentially, all good, and it is for each member to endeavor to bring that good to its full fruition.

Masonry was born in time, and it will end in time. It is a body of men who help one another and also do good to those outside the faith. This is true largely of other orders, including the Grange, W. C. T. U., etc., and not leaving out insurance against sickness, fire, death. They are all human attempts to solve serious problems, and those concerned in their welfare are, in the main, honest men and women.

I believe that Jesus Christ referred to such, in other forms, when he said: "Leave them alone; if they be not against us they are for us." And inasmuch as it is quite difficult (and with me impossible) to determine the exact niche God has or has not made in which all these movements may function, it behooves us, I believe, to heed the instruction given by the Master and literally "leave them alone."

This does not mean to throw stones at them. Neither does it mean that a man should be hindered, either morally or physically, from uniting himself with all or any one of these lodges if he feels justified in doing so. This is not the day of the thumb-screw and rack (at least it should not be; but, alas, to correctly speak, it is in some places).

It should be, on the other hand, the day of faith in God, and to those who can receive it (because they have faith and power to live it) this God of whom I speak, and in whom I believe, is sufficiently large and powerful to justify such to place their full trust in him. Not only to heal their bodies and save from the plague that walketh at noonday, but also to save their property from burning and their home from disaster. In such a God I am trying to trust. "Lord, increase my faith."

Enough for the present on the foregoing.

Regarding my attitude toward the Book of Mormon and Joseph Smith, I have a brief credo to give. I believe that Joseph Smith was a prophet, a human prophet, as were all the prophets from Adam to John. That in the philosophy (or message) which Joseph Smith gave to the world is found the very essence of Christianity. I believe that when he emphasized the subject of stewardships he threw the gauntlet into the arena of religious controversy and challenged the Christian world to demonstrate the teaching of Jesus in the Lord's prayer by some other means than practical stewardship. I believe that practical Christianity is active stewardship, worked out and applied as outlined in the Doctrine and Covenants.

Regarding the Book of Mormon, I believe that no other book offers to the world plainer and purer teaching on morality, as expressed in its highest form in the Sermon on the Mount. No man has approached the Bible and the Book of Mormon with his mind freer from prejudice than I. But in doing so, I did not surrender my reason, my power of mental deduction. I never intend to do so. I do not believe that every word or expression in the Bible is inspired, and neither do I believe such to be the case with the Book of Mormon. I do not believe a thing simply because my father told it to me.

I may say that I am studying the three books of the church with the aim of becoming better acquainted with the big vital truths they contain, endeavoring to place the proper emphasis where it belongs, never intentionally upholding a human thought, or expression, as divine, nor dragging a divine thought down to human level. With this belief as my touchstone, I take up every book written by man or given by the Almighty.

The Need of the World

What did Macedonia want when her call was wafted to the apostle in his vision at Troas?

Macedonia had science, as it was then known; she had commerce; she had literature and learning and eloquence; she was civilized up to date.

What she needed was churches—groups of men and women, in every center, where the knowledge of God and God's great love for man could be regularly taught. And when Paul reached the new field that was what he proceeded to give. That was all he had to give.

And that is what the world most needs to-day. It was a great word of Woodrow Wilson, spoken at Carlisle, England, in a little church: "Out of quiet places like this flow streams of influence that enrich the conscience of the world."—Christian Standard.

CHURCH NEWS

Fall River Saints Attend Somerville Conference; Afflicted Ones Remembered and Blessed

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS, June 9.—A large number of the local Saints attended the ministerial conference at Somerville May 18. Doubtless this conference was reported by the Boston Saints. Brother Alma Coombs took part in the Saturday evening debate on baptism. Sister Mabel Daniel sang in the oratorio, "The Creation," and her husband, Arthur Daniel, had a baritone solo in the oratorio.

Brother Moses Sheehy returned from the conference on Monday, accompanied by his daughter, Ruth Sheehy Baker, and grandson, who remained in Fall River a week.

Elder Edmund Brown, of Providence, was the speaker at the morning service May 25. He was accompanied to Fall River by his wife and little son.

Brother Moses Sheehy was the speaker at New Bedford on the evening of May 25.

The sacramental service of June 1 was well attended. How wonderful it would be if the members could see the need of attending all the services rather than coming to the sacramental service only.

Sister Myra Cockcroft was able to come to this service after two years of suffering, during which she was confined to her bed. Sister Myra for many years was the organist of the branch, almost from childhood up to the time of her sickness. She is a graduate nurse and doubtless injured her back while on professional duty. She lay for long, weary months in plaster casts and submitted to several operations. Now she is much improved and able to walk outside. Sister Myra has been smiling and cheerful all through her trouble. She has been in a local hospital, and the Boston Saints were very kind to her while she was there. Sacrament has always been sent her, but she was glad to come to the house of the Lord once more.

Brother Walter McGuire, a seventeen-year-old brother, was one of the first to greet Myra. He was very sick the first year of her sickness. Walter testifies to the goodness of God to him. He will graduate this week from a local business college.

Sister Elida Stinton, after a serious operation, returned to her home in ten days. She continues to improve. A lovely May basket was sent to her from the Department of Women.

June 8 Elder Edmund Fisher, of Somerville, was the morning speaker. He spoke to the young people on "Honesty, industry, and integrity." He was accompanied by wife and son.

The pastor, James W. Heap, was the evening speaker. He spoke very highly of the work and ideals of the church President, Frederick M. Smith. Brother Heap urged the purchasing and study of the Inspired Translation of the Bible.

The Boys' Club will not meet again until September. Onset is so near Fall River that the Saints will visit there often. Some will be there all during the school vacation.

Some of the children are contemplating baptism on Children's Day, late in June.

Working conditions in the city are bad, somewhat affecting the Saints. Seventy per cent of the cotton mills are closed.

There was but a small attendance at the supper May 24, given by the Department of Women. About twenty-five dollars was made. This department has given to the branch a green felt cover for the piano, to protect it from dust when not in use.

A May basket was sent to Myra Cockcroft from the primary department. She was a teacher for a long time. Another basket was sent to our aged sister, Elizabeth Hargraves, who broke her hip about a year ago. This basket was filled by some of the older members of the branch. Both baskets were beautifully made by Sister Margaret Henderson and gave much pleasure to the recipients.

Brother William Baldwin made a mahogany chest for the silver belonging to the Department of Women. This silver is kept at the home of Sister Baldwin and loaned to any society.

The Department of Women will meet at the home of Sister Baldwin June 12.

A Good Mothers' Day Meeting at Rhodes

RHODES, IOWA, June 9.—During the winter months there was considerable sickness in the branch. This, with the almost impassable conditions of the roads, caused quite a falling off of attendance at church; but since spring opened and our sick ones are well again, things have assumed their normal condition and are moving along with the usual interest.

May 11 Sister Lentell, head of the district Department of Women, was to have occupied at the eleven o'clock hour, but owing to car trouble she was delayed one hour. So the hour was very appropriately occupied by an impromptu Mothers' Day program, with Sister Bessy Laughlin, who represented the local Department of Women, in charge. Prayer was offered by the superintendent, after which there was a women's and girls' chorus and a women's quartet. This was followed by short talks on the subject, "What does the word mother mean to me?"

Voluntary speeches were called for, to which ten responded, five men and five women speaking. A good spirit was present, and others would have spoken had there been time. But by this time Brother and Sister Lentell arrived, accompanied by Brother and Sister Bish, of Des Moines. The meeting was then turned over to Sister Lentell, as it was deemed advisable to have her occupy at this time rather than call the congregation together in the afternoon.

The members of the congregation were given an opportunity to retire if they so desired, but we are glad to say that all remained and listened attentively to a splendid talk by our sister along the line of the importance of woman's work, both in the church and in the home.

Sister Lentell is a very ready and resourceful speaker, but owing to the lateness of the hour she had to cut her talk short, leaving out much that would have been both interesting and profitable. We hope, however, to have Sister Lentell with us again sometime. The Religio hour was well spent with the lesson and program work. Elder Lentell was the speaker at eight o'clock. He gave a fine talk from the text: "Be not deceived. God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." He showed the folly of the idea that the young must sow their wild oats.

The junior choir led the singing, and Mrs. Lentell sang as a special number, "The Lord is my Shepherd."

On May 18 Roy Cheville was with us. Having been sent for to preach the baccalaureate sermon, which was in the evening at the opera hall, he kindly consented to speak to the Saints at eleven o'clock. Brother Roy did not sermonize but gave a real heart-to-heart talk on the needs of the church, one of the urgent needs being consecrated men and women qualified for leadership.

In the evening the hall was crowded to its capacity. Our branch president, C. M. Richeson, offered the prayer, and the Methodist minister, Reverend Ferris, read the scripture lesson and introduced the speaker. He said in part, "Nothing could be more fitting than that this young man who was raised up among you and graduated from your high school should officiate on this occasion. I therefore take pleasure in introducing as the speaker of the hour, Professor Roy Cheville, of Graceland College."

Space forbids even mentioning the special points, but suffice it to say that Roy was right at home and in his element when talking to those young people and did the occasion full justice.

May 25 Elder Henry Castings, district president; Stephen Robinson, district superintendent of the Religio, and Elder Frank Hull were with us. Elder Castings preached a powerful sermon on the financial law of the church from Proverbs 3: 9 and Malachi 3: 10.

In the evening at seven o'clock, after a short program, Brother Stephen Robinson made a fine talk on the objects and possibilities of the Religio. Elder Hull was the speaker at eight o'clock, giving a very fine sermon. All the services were well attended, and we felt we had been wonderfully favored during the month of May, for which we are thankful.

Visitors Welcomed and Appreciated Work by Branch President

BEARDSTOWN, ILLINOIS, June 11.—Beardstown Branch was favored with a visit from two district officers the past month. They were the district chorister, Joseph Williams, and Sister Beth Williams, of Taylorville, Illinois.

Brother Williams gave a fine talk to the Saints on Sunday morning in the interest of music in the branch. He encouraged the young to take part in the singing, and those who played musical instruments were urged to use them at the church services. Sunday evening Brother Williams preached a fine sermon, using Revelation 2: 17, "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna," as his text.

Sister Williams met with the ladies after church services Sunday evening in the interest of the women. The Beardstown Branch has had a ladies' aid for several years, but have not organized the Department of Women.

The branch president, Elder M. R. Shoemaker, has preached two exceptionally fine sermons this month. His subjects were, "The sealed book of Daniel," and "The sealed book of the Apocalypse." Brother Shoemaker makes his own charts, and his sermons are always very instructive and of the highest order. Brother Shoemaker is perhaps one of the best posted men in the church on Bible prophecies and ancient history, and many times people of other churches go to his studio for information. He has an extensive library and is posted on the doctrines of various religions, and is therefore able to meet the issues of the different denominations as well as represent our own church.

The chart that he used when he preached on "The sealed book of Daniel," is the map of the Old and New Testament world, with the beasts of the seventh chapter of Daniel placed at the capitals of the four world powers. Of the two charts he made for the other sermon, "The sealed book of the Apocalypse," one shows the Cathedral at Rome in the center of the chart with the lightning striking it and part of the dome broken off. On the right are many churches with the steeples falling, showing the fall of Babylon; on the left, the Church of Jesus Christ and the Savior coming to his temple. The other chart he made for this sermon shows a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars. In the center is a well-dressed elderly lady and her many daughters, Miss Calvin,

Miss Campbell, etc., representing the mother church and her daughters. On the other end of the chart is the gospel ladder, representing the organization, doctrine, and practice as restored. At the bottom of this ladder is the same woman of Revelation 12: 1, except that she has the wedding garment on, and the Savior is standing by her side holding a scroll in his hand with the words, "To the law and to the testimony."

Rich Hill and Butler Meet in Basket Dinner

RICH HILL, MISSOURI, June 9.—While reading in the HERALD of the good things others are enjoying, our mind ran back over the past few weeks to some of the worth-while things we were privileged to enjoy, and we wish to take this way of expressing our appreciation of them.

Three or four days before Children's Day the Sunday school at Rich Hill received an invitation from the Sunday school at Butler, about nine miles distant, to meet with them for the Children's Day exercises and have a basket dinner:

About eighteen availed themselves of this opportunity and were privileged to enjoy a fine program, a splendid dinner, and a wonderful sermon in the afternoon by Elder W. E. Haden.

May 30 to June 1 found us at Coal Hill at the district conference, where we were again kindly cared for and greatly strengthened and encouraged. Here we found a nice group of young people who are willing to help.

At the little branch in Rich Hill we have very few young people, and we are greatly in need of a leader. However, the past few weeks we are pleased to note an increased attendance at our services by both members and nonmembers. We are expecting some baptisms soon. RALPH MURDOCK.

Influx at Colorado Springs

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO, June 8.—The Saints are active here, especially in the Sunday school. We have an addition of nine families to our branch, which makes it rather crowded, but we hope soon to be able to enlarge our church. May God be with us and help us keep ourselves in such condition that his Spirit will be pleased to meet with us.

We hope and pray that the work laid out by the General Conference may be carried out this year.

The deaths of Sister McMillen, Brother Cordell, and the infant daughter of Sister McGhuey occurred recently.

A Welcome Spirituality

HAGERMAN, IDAHO, June 2.—A series of meetings began Friday and closed Sunday evening. The services were conducted by Elder R. C. Chambers, district president, and Elder R. L. Fulk, missionary of the district. There were preaching services, a round table discussion, and prayer services. The meetings were all well attended, and much interest was shown.

The Saints were greatly encouraged by the manifestation of the Spirit during the morning prayer service in a prophecy given through Brother Fulk admonishing them to be more diligent.

Visiting Saints from Shoshone, Buhl, Rupert, and Wendell were in attendance. The Hagerman Saints hope to have many more of these splendid meetings, as they are beneficial to all. ALICE M. PARKS.

Sandyville Looks Forward; Is Not Discouraged

ACKWORTH, IOWA, June 8.—The Sandyville Saints met for Sunday school and sacramental services June 1, and the Lord was with us in that the spirit of love and brotherly kindness was manifested in all present. Brother Anderson was here. Feeling our individual weakness, we united our prayers in behalf of Sister Ivie Wells, who was operated on in the Lutheran Hospital in Des Moines last week. We are glad to report that she is getting along nicely, and hopes are maintained that she will soon be home again and join in our church services.

We are few in number, but if each one who can would attend and help with their part, the Lord would bless them in their effort to help carry on the work in this place.

No Sunday school was announced for to-day, as most of the congregation were planning to attend the convention at Lamoni, but the rain and mud have prevented, so we will make another attempt next Sunday.

June 29 is the day set for the Sandyville Saints to meet for an all-day meeting in behalf of the tithing and offering for the church. "Our minds should be stirred up by way of remembrance," and if God spared not Uzzah, who through ignorance of the Lord's commands put forth his hand to steady the ark, how much more will we be condemned if we obey not the law as God is giving it to us in this the hastening time.

Home-Coming Celebration at Orion

ORION, MICHIGAN, June 7.—A large crowd attended the home-coming at the Latter Day Saints' hall here Sunday, June 1.

In the morning the usual Sunday school and sacramental services were held, and in the afternoon a program was rendered. Among the speakers in the afternoon was C. E. Lambkin, of Orion, with an address of welcome; Frank Davis, of Armada, gave the response, and D. M. Taylor spoke of past events. There were also Elders William Grice and William Davis, who helped organize the branch, and Walter Burnett, who baptized the first member of the branch; then Robert Coats and Frederick Simkiss addressed us.

The Orion Branch was organized on August 16, 1916, with a charter membership of six, and it now numbers seventy-three. The largest number gained in one year was in 1919, when twenty-one were received. At one time the branch numbered eighty-four, but many have been transferred to other branches on account of removal.

Only one death has occurred since our organization, that of dear Sister Lydia Burch who passed away in May of this year.

The Saints have had much opposition to meet from other churches and from nonmembers who have tried to discourage us in every way, by the usual slanderous reports about Joseph Smith and the old cry of Mormons, but it has only served to draw the Saints more closely together, and all are working in unity at the present time for the upbuilding of Zion in these latter days.

Our officers and priesthood consist of the following: Elder C. C. Lambkin, president; D. M. Taylor and William Hutchins, elders; and John Hall and V. D. Schaar, priests. The latter also holds the office of district Sunday school superintendent. Sister Emma Schaar is treasurer. We have one of the finest of young people's choirs under the leadership of Miss Mona Schaar, our organist and chorister.

JULIA HAMMOND.

Open-Air Services at Bloomsburg Market Square

BLOOMSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA, June 9.—We have started an open-air service in this place, having obtained the necessary space in the midst of the bustle of the Market Square. Many people come to town on Saturday, so we conduct our services at eight o'clock in the evening there.

We held forth on May 31 and June 7 with nice interest. Elders Lewis Cunningham and Thomas Jones have occupied. We start with a song and close likewise, and it will not be egotism to say that our singing is an attraction.

The Sunday morning service from a quarter of eleven to twelve o'clock was occupied by the orchestra. Two organ solos were given, two piano solos, three vocal solos, and twelve short selections by the orchestra.

Missionary Work at Bay Port

BAY PORT, MICHIGAN, June 9.—The Saints here have been looking forward to the time when they could have a missionary come and hold a series of meetings. The happy event arrived Sunday evening, June 1, when Elder G. T. Richards, of Carsonville, Michigan, preached his first sermon at Bay Port. This was the beginning of an extended effort to place the gospel before the people of this community.

The sermons each night have been very edifying, and the Bible has been explained in a manner so that all could understand.

On Sunday evening, June 8, Brother Richards delivered a stirring address on "The finished product," wherein he showed the effect of strong drink, fast living, and tobacco. In conclusion he gave all to understand that God expected us to be followers of Christ in very deed.

Our Sunday school is doing a good work, and we hope it will be the means of bringing our children into the fold of Christ.

Elder John McDonald, of Saginaw, formerly of this place, was a visitor to our meeting Monday evening, June 2. All were indeed glad to renew old friendship with him.

It is our aim to try to get the honest in heart to see the truthfulness of our message. Then all feel as though they have done their part. Our members are trying to advance the work in all its departments. You will hear more from us at the close of the series of meetings.

Three Men Called to the Priesthood

DUNDALK, ONTARIO, June 9.—On June 8 special services were held here. We had prayer meeting at ten o'clock which will long be remembered. There was a gift of prophecy and tongues through Elder John Shields. In the interpretation three brethren were called to the ministry: Brother F. B. Stade, of Harriston, being called to the office of elder; Brother Samuel Batchelor, teacher; and Brother Wilfred Black, priest. The last two are both of Proton Branch. Elder James McLean, president of the branch, was also spoken to.

We had three preaching services also in which God was present. Elder James Morrison, of Owen Sound, spoke at half past one to an attentive audience. At half past three Elder David Pycock, of Toronto, gave another good sermon, and at eight o'clock in the evening Elder John Taylor, of Grand Valley, gave an excellent sermon on "Faith in God." He said if we have faith in God we will do his teachings.

MRS. W. F. MCLEAN.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Activity and Changes With Mapleton Saints

MAPLETON, KANSAS, June 2.—Easter Sunday was a very enjoyable day with the Saints at Mapleton. A pageant, "The angel message to Joseph," was rendered by our young people in the evening. The author is Sister Lola Quick McCallum. A large audience with the best of attention greeted it, and the young people certainly did their work well.

Apostle J. A. Gillen preached morning and evening, May 4. The verdict of all is that no one could have been sent whose work could have been more productive of good results. His discourses were of that character so much needed by the people.

He told us that his work primarily was to build up and set in order. Every sentence was sent home to the hearts of his listeners by that wonderful and compelling spirit so much enjoyed by Brother Gillen and radiated from him to the people. All are looking forward to Brother Gillen's return and trust it will not be far distant.

May 11 was a day long to be remembered by the Saints. An ordination service was held at 11 o'clock in which Brother Hollie Dennis was ordained to the office of elder, and Brethren Arthur and Orion Dennis and W. A. Jennings to the office of priest.

In the evening a program was rendered to a very large audience in commemoration of the mothers. The church was filled. Each number was well rendered. A tableau was presented, "Mother and her five children," by Sister Frank Graham, and the beautiful prayer she offered was a very touching scene.

On Sunday, the 18th, Brother Hollie Dennis baptized three children, his sister Verna, his daughter Erma, and Johnnie Weeks, son of Sister Bessie Weeks. Confirmation services were conducted in the evening by Brother John Graham, sr., Everette Hughes, and Hollie Dennis.

Brother Hollie preached his farewell sermon, as he expected to start for his western home the following Wednesday but was detained by the serious illness of his wife. We are glad to report that she is recovering.

Brother Lee Quick will act as branch president in the absence of Brother Dennis, by consent of the Presidency.

Brethren L. C. Hughes and Lee Quick attended the conference at Coalhill, May 30 to June 1, and reported a very profitable conference.

The Mapleton Saints sent in a request that the next conference be held here. The request was granted, and the conference will convene October 3 to 5. We hope for goodly attendance and a very spiritual time.

Stockton Saints and the Church of Christ

STOCKTON, CALIFORNIA, May 28.—On May 11 Stockton Sunday school rendered a Mothers' Day program followed by a sermon on the same subject.

On May 22 the regular monthly cafeteria supper served by the Department of Women netted over twenty-five dollars. It has been decided to discontinue the serving of these suppers during the summer months and substitute ice cream socials.

The church by the name of Church of Christ came in a body, and their minister preached to our people. Their views are vastly different from ours, as they do not believe there are any apostles besides the original twelve of the New Testament. That no revelation is received is another of their beliefs.

They invited the branch to come to their church and have the pastor preach. Just how much good these meetings will do we cannot tell, but they seem to want to be friendly, and we are thankful for that. If they were prejudiced, of course we could do no good whatever.

A cloud of regret hangs over this branch at this time because of the departure of our dearly beloved Sister Davison and Nina, wife and daughter of Brother H. J. Davison, who passed from our midst some time ago. They will make an extended trip east, intending to go to Boston before returning to California. Stockton will miss them very much, as they intend to be gone several months.

As a branch we are trying to live as Latter Day Saints should, and we enjoy reading what other branches are doing. The pastor has the prayers and hearty support of the members. We feel that God has been and is helping him in the upbuilding of the work.

Interesting Occurrences at Council Bluffs

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA, June.—The Department of Women held their regular monthly meeting May 15, at the Belmont Church. They report a splendid session with forty-three present. A very nice program was given. The cradle-roll superintendent reported eighty-five enrolled, with twenty-three ready for promotion into the Sunday school. A special service will be arranged for their promotion. The Belmont Study Class served the refreshments.

E. A. Smith Visits Council Bluffs

President Elbert A. Smith was the speaker at Central Church, May 20, both morning and evening. In the afternoon he addressed about fifty-five of the brethren, most of whom were members of the priesthood.

The house was packed both morning and evening, and we feel that words cannot express the value of Brother Smith's visit to our branch.

Choral Club Gives Concert

The Council Bluffs Choral Club gave a very fine concert at the Broadway Methodist Church recently. Several of our people are members, and Brother W. T. Spanswick is president of the club.

Activity and Cooperation at Omaha

OMAHA, NEBRASKA, June 5.—Mothers' Day was observed on May 11 by an appropriate program which followed the Sunday school lesson. Sister Rose Adams, superintendent, had decorated the church most tastefully, with motto, pots of ferns in all the windows, and festoons of lavender and white crepe paper. Carnations were presented to every mother present. Solos were sung by Sisters Kelley and Fredrick; choruses by various classes; readings by Dorothy Elliott and Phyllis Leeka; quartet singing by Sisters Fredrick and Fleming and Brethren Greenway and Fredrick. Sister Anderson took for the theme of her brief address a page of history one hundred and twenty-five years old, reading to her audience a remarkable document written in 1799 by Asael Smith, grandfather of the Prophet Joseph Smith. This message was addressed to his wife and children, and was filled with all the wisdom and counsel a loving parent can feel for those dear to him.

The Department of Women have held two meetings at the church, quilting and sewing occupying most of the time. A new electric sewing machine is the latest addition to their equipment.

Sister Lillie A. Marks, so long assistant to Sister Zilpha Monroe at the Children's Home in Lamoni, is at home here, visiting her mother and sister. She has been teaching school the past year and expects to do so this coming one.

Sister Roland W. Scott has been called to pass through the sorrow of losing her father, Mr. Thomas C. Bruner, who died at his summer cottage at Clear Lake, Iowa, Wednesday, May 28. He was a wholesale flour jobber of this city, an early resident, and widely and appreciatively known in this locality. His funeral was conducted at the First Congregational Church, Doctor Frank G. Smith preaching the sermon. Sister Scott and her family have the sincere sympathy of all our branch members in this sad trial.

Sermons of the past month have been delivered by High Priests Carl T. Self, R. W. Scott, and T. J. Elliott; Missionary B. F. Creel; District President H. A. Merchant; Bishop's Agent B. M. Anderson; and Solicitor T. A. Hicks. Visitors have included Brethren Anderson and Wallburn from Decatur, Sister Ruth Spaulding from Oklahoma City, Sister Nellie Williams from Independence, and Sister Mary Woodford from Texas.

On Wednesday evening, May 21, Brother Freming Self, son of Elder Carl T. Self, was ordained to the office of deacon. His father was spokesman in the ordination, High Priest Elliott and Elder Merchant assisting. Brother Freming is a young man of splendid promise, and for some time past has been actively performing many duties pertaining to the office of deacon.

Brother Harry Greenway has taken over the work of directing the young people's choir. He has obtained a number of splendid new anthems, and has rallied the young people about him to the number of about thirty. They are planning a musical program to be given the last Sunday evening of this month, and will be assisted by the regular quartet of the branch. Mention was omitted last month of the Easter cantata the choir gave on Easter evening, directed by Sister Olive Derry. Friday evening preceding that event, the quartet gave the cantata, "The seven last words of Christ." Both these evenings were very successful, and a real treat was given the Saints of the branch, many members from South Side also attending.

Brother George E. Steele, president of South Omaha Branch, is scheduled to speak for us next Sunday evening, June 8, while our Brother Merchant occupied their pulpit on the evening of May 25. We appreciate the fine spirit of friendly cooperation between the branches.

Sister Dora Marshall, of the Omaha Branch, and Brother Lewis F. Eden, of the South Omaha Branch, have been ill, the latter undergoing a serious operation for appendicitis at a local hospital on May 29. Hopes for his recovery are entertained; prayers to that end are requested.

Three Baptisms at Macon

MACON, MISSOURI, June 11.—On the afternoon of May 18, the ordinance of baptism was administered by Brother J. W. A. Bailey, two sons of Brother and Sister Welch and the eldest daughter of Brother and Sister Charles becoming heirs of the kingdom.

Brother Bailey has been working in and out of Macon for the past month, and it has been the pleasure of the Macon Saints to hear some very fine sermons delivered by him. May 18 his subject was "Fundamentalism versus modernism"; May 25, "Church unity," speaking principally to the young. On last Sunday night he touched on tithes and offerings.

Tuesday evening, May 18, the president of the Department of Women, Sophia Binder, called a meeting and organized an embroidery club, principally in the interest of the young.

Sister Emma Moore was appointed leader of the Temple Builders by the president to fill vacancy of Mayme Joyce, who resigned as leader at last business meeting.

June 1 was sacrament day. There was a good attendance at all services, and a good spirit prevailed.

Growth in Membership at Portland

PORTLAND, OREGON, June 4.—Six new members were baptized in outlying towns during the month of May by Elder John Hanson. Four were baptized at Vernonia, a flourishing lumber town west of Portland, and the other two at Estacada, where once were quite a large number of Saints, most of whom have moved to larger branches and other places.

Elders M. H. Cook and W. H. Barker and Sister Nelson Wilson visited a small group of Saints at Springwater, Oregon, Sunday, May 23, where sacrament was served and a Sunday school and Department of Women were organized.

The Portland priesthood conduct preaching services, and Sunday school is held every Sunday afternoon at the Saints' church at Oregon City.

The Department of Women of Portland gave a picnic at Mount Tabor Park Tuesday evening, May 6, and another at Laurelhurst Park Tuesday evening, May 20. They have planned to have some kind of a social affair every two weeks to encourage sociability among the Portland Saints.

W. W. (Billy) Belcher and his troop of Boy Scouts spent a night camping out at Eagle Creek and plan more similar excursions into the wilds during the summer months.

Last Sunday, June 1, the junior children motored out to a quiet, shady spot near Rocky Butté, where a peaceful hour was spent in the shadow of a towering wall of rock, whose vastness impresses young minds with the greatness of the Creator. This same site will soon be occupied by the largest Catholic institution of its kind in America; the Catholics' "Sanctuary of Our Sorrowful Mother," a project to cost five million dollars.

Alexander Gets the Departmental Spirit

ALEXANDER, KANSAS, June 6.—This branch of the church has many things to be thankful for, and while our progress in the past has been rather slow, we hope for the future. Brother P. R. Burton, our district missionary, held some meetings in the early spring and gave some splendid missionary sermons that helped to build up the spiritual condition of the Saints as well as to interest the nonmembers. Only a few were baptized at this meeting, but seed was sown that in time will help bring fruit to the church.

The Sunday school, under the leadership of Brother Peter Boese, is growing, and there is a splendid interest shown by the pupils.

Our membership is mostly rural, and many of these people have to drive fifteen and eighteen miles. Basket dinners and lap lunches are quite the thing with us, as many of us come in the morning and stay for the whole day.

Brother Burton closed his meetings the last of March, because his throat gave out and he was forced to go home for rest. Sister Burton returned with him in May and organized a Department of Women, with Oriole and Temple Builder circles. Sister Crystal Teeters is in charge of this part of the work, and with her pep-and-go we are sure that it will be a success.

Our young people are getting songs and music ready for the reunion to be held at Studley, Kansas, the middle of August.

We are glad to have Sister Burton with us, and her advice and counsel are helpful to us. Now, with the departments well organized, we hope to progress, and by our efforts from an educational standpoint we hope to keep pace with the rest of the church.

Monday evening the young folks had a pep meeting and a weiner roast. Sixty-two were present on the church lawn, and the forepart of the evening was spent in playing games, then the weiner roast (this was a new experience to many) and a short program, Brother Burton acting as the toast master. Everybody said, A good time; let's go again. We all want to do our part to help redeem Zion, and we know that we must educate ourselves to the point where we can be of value to the church. We feel this can be done through the departments.

Additions to Membership at Findlater

FINDLATER, SASKATCHEWAN, June 9.—We are progressing slowly, but I believe steadily. We have a membership of about twenty, some of whom have lost interest and so have become stumblingblocks in the way of others.

Elder O. L. D'Arcy and wife have been doing missionary work in the district, and as a result two have become members and several are very much interested. We have enjoyed the meetings very much, as Brother D'Arcy is a very talented speaker, and he is greatly assisted in his work among the people by the influence of his good wife. If each member of the church would live the life that becometh a Saint, what a wonderful influence the church would have.

We have not regular services in the branch but hold Sunday school each Sunday, which we try to make beneficial to all.

A very enjoyable time was spent at a picnic given by the Bethune Branch on May 24. The Bethune Branch is about twenty miles from the Sunset Branch, but as several of the members have cars the two branches are often able to join forces.

MRS. C. CARPENTIER.

Book of Mormon Lectures and Baptisms at Windsor

WINDSOR, ONTARIO, June 7.—Elder C. E. Miller, of Toronto, Canada, gave some illustrated lectures on the Book of Mormon, historical structures, etc., for one week at the Saints' church here. The pictures were very clear and, together with the lectures, were very educational. A great number of the Saints have expressed themselves as having greatly enjoyed them. We wish Brother Miller Godspeed in his good work.

A large number from Windsor attended the convention at Chatham, Ontario, and reported a good time. A special coach was added to the train for their accommodation on the return trip, so of course they enjoyed that.

Sunday, June 15, there will be a baptismal and confirmation service for sixteen candidates in the Windsor Church. Others are investigating.

Elder J. Tyrell, of Chatham, who for a number of years was Bishop's agent and chorister for the Chatham District, spent Sunday visiting friends in this city and delivered the morning and evening discourses here on May 25.

On June 1 was the sacramental service, and a full house was present. Elder J. Leslie Brown, the pastor, was in charge. The evening sermon by Brother A. F. Moffat was also well attended, and he delivered a splendid discourse.

Our Minister Occupies African M. E. Pulpit

DULUTH, MINNESOTA, June 4.—Brother George W. Day, district president, was down from his home at Bemidji and spoke at the eleven o'clock service on Mothers' Day, his theme being "Motherhood." Brother C. B. Freeman occupied at the eight o'clock service. Special songs were sung at both services. Out-of-town Saints were Elder Samuel Sloan and Brother Grant Byce, both of Two Harbors. May more of the Saints try to meet with us here, that we may all work in unity in building up the kingdom of God and establishing his righteousness.

May 18 Brother C. B. Freeman, branch president, was called on to occupy the pulpit of the African Methodist Church. There was good attention and attendance, and an invitation was extended for him to come again.

W. C. Stanty occupied at the evening service of the Saints with a manifestation of God's holy power, which has given him much assurance that if the Saints, and the ministry in particular, will live the gospel, God will give to his servants that convincing Spirit with such power that we will be able to bring the gospel to every nation, kindred, and tongue, realizing as Paul says, The power unto salvation to those that believe, and follow him who is the Savior of the world. His theme was effectual baptism.

On May 25 Brother C. B. Freeman was again asked by the board of trustees of the African Methodist Church to occupy their pulpit. At the same time Brother Samuel Sloan, elder of Two Harbors, spoke to the Saints at the evening hour.

Sister Lula M. Koppenhaven, of Gordon, Wisconsin, was in Duluth over the week end and stayed at the home of Sister Rose C. Stanty. She was able to take in all the services of May 25, when she again went to her home with a greater desire to live the gospel. She left an invitation for services to be held at Gordon.

Any having friends or relatives in this part of God's vineyard, write to W. C. Stanty, 403 Seventy-seventh Avenue, West Duluth, Minnesota, and he will endeavor to take the gospel to them.

Summer Conditions and Activities at Brockton

BROCKTON, MASSACHUSETTS, June 4.—With the coming of the summer months, activities at our branch have been somewhat dull, owing to many of the members leaving for summer homes and cottages.

A supper was held in the interest of the Department of Recreation and Expression, which proved successful, and which created interest in a number of strangers who were present.

On May 30 the annual picnic was held at Mayflower Grove, about eleven miles from Brockton. The trip was made by auto, and a large number attended. Merry-go-rounds, seesaws, and swings furnished the youngsters much sport, while the young folks favored canoeing. There were races for all classes. We went at half past eight in the morning and arrived home at six o'clock.

Through the courtesy of Elder Frank S. Dobbins we are among those privileged to listen in occasionally on the radio at the church. On June 1 we tried to tune in on the program broadcasted from WGI by our branch at Somerville. Because of interference of other stations we were unable to hear it very distinctly.

The same evening a small play, entitled, "In quest of a great treasure," was presented by the Department of Recreation and Expression. The play was based on the story of Naaman and his healing in the Jordan through Elisha, the great prophet. There was a cast of six characters.

For two weeks, June 2 to 14, Elder Orval Thompson will speak every evening at the church.

The Temple Builders are progressing nicely. They are now selling candy to increase their funds. A large number of boxes have been sold, and there are still calls for more.

Young People's Convention

The "Elijah"

The "Elijah" which was rendered Thursday and Friday evenings was so sincerely appreciated by the convention visitors and Lamoni people that some returned to hear it the second time. The work was so excellent that it will remain for years in the memory of many who heard it. Brother Evan Fry's account of the performance will give an idea as to its merit:

The "Elijah," which has been so eagerly anticipated by college students and prospective convention visitors, was presented on Thursday evening at a quarter past eight in the Lamoni Brick Church, to a crowd of about six hundred eager and attentive music lovers. To say that the performance was one of unusual merit conveys but a feeble impression of the reality, for from the first chords and grave dignified notes of the first Elijah recitative every musician, from the soloists down, seemed to enter whole-heartedly into the task of putting the intense message of the oratorio across to the audience.

The opening chorus, "Help, Lord," followed a well-rendered interpretation of the overture by Mrs. Amy Travis, pianist. In this first chorus number, the Oratorio Society did some of the best of their evening's work. Every attack was well timed, every note true, and expressions were carefully regarded. Following this came the tunefully melodious and beautiful duet, "Lord, bow thine ear," sung by Miss Margaret Armstrong and Mrs. Luella Wight, who skillfully enhanced the originally beautiful work of the composer. Mr. Eugene Christy's first recitative, "Ye people rend your hearts," was well done, but partly spoiled by the late arrival of some who had just arrived in town by way of the evening train. The aria following, "If with all your hearts," was superbly done, and carried the forceful and appealing promise of the words indelibly to those who listened. "Yet doth the Lord," the following chorus, effectively demonstrated the ability of the chorus to change moods under the skillful direction of Miss Carlile, as they sang first the agitated and swiftly moving strains of "His wrath will pursue us," and then of the second movement, "His mercies on thousands fall."

Mrs. Luella Wight's first solo recitative, "Elijah, get thee hence," gave her no opportunity for superb vocal display, but in the quiet, angelic message she found ample material for the use of her smoothly flowing contralto voice. The double quartet which followed, "For he shall give his angels," was well rendered, and thrilled everyone with the promise contained therein. A contralto recitative, again quiet and smooth, was "Now Cherith's brook," which in angelic tones directed Elijah to the widow of Zarephath.

Figuratively changing the scene, the next number was, "What have I to do with thee?" sung by Miss Margaret Armstrong. This solo and the ensuing duet which depicts in musical language the raising of the widow's son, is one of the dramatic high spots of the oratorio, and the soloists lost no chance for artistic interpretation, the voices blending beautifully and harmoniously on the final strain, "Oh, blessed are they who fear Him."

From this point the story of the oratorio moved swiftly. In a serious and dignified recitative, Elijah, in the person of Mr. Bailey, expressed his intention of going to Ahab to convince the king of the error of his ways. Ahab, meeting Elijah in the desert, demands to know if Elijah is "he that troubleth Israel." Elijah denies the charge and lays the blame squarely upon the shoulders of Ahab and Jezebel, where it rightly belongs, and ends by arranging for a test to determine whose god is the Lord. According to the terms of the agreement, all Israel is assembled at Mount Carmel, where Elijah and the priests of Baal have each prepared an altar and a sacrifice with no fire under it, and it is agreed that the god who answers by fire shall be God of Israel. Then comes the chorus, "Baal, we cry to thee," a howling heathen cry for recognition from their god, which increases as Elijah taunts them to "Call him louder," and after two repetitions dies away in a vain frenzy of entreaty. A startling and effective change from this frenzied attempt was the quietly pleading recitative, "Draw near, all ye people," followed by the quartet, "Cast thy burden upon the Lord." Then the climax of the first section, which started with the almost whispered prayer, "O thou that makest thine angels spirits," and grew into "The fire descends." Mr. Bailey did ample justice to all the artistic and dramatic possibilities in these passages and scored another triumph in the next aria, "Is not his word like a fire?" where he displayed remarkable freedom and at-home-ness in the difficult runs and intervals. Following this, Mrs. Wight gave a masterly interpretation of the quietly pleading and saddening arioso, "Woe unto them that forsake Him."

Then came the anti-climax of Part 1, beginning with Obadiah's plea, "O man of God, help thy people," which was short, effective, and beautifully done. The following recitatives with chorus interruptions told in musical words of Elijah's prayers for rain, supplemented with the cries of the people. In these short passages Miss Lena Wells deserves special mention as the Youth, her high notes coming freely and with strikingly clear and beautiful quality. As the climax or goal of this preparatory entreaty, the chorus broke enthusiastically into that thrilling number, "Thanks be to God," which closed Part 1 in a spirited and inspiring manner.

Part 2 opened with the principal soprano aria of the entire work, "Hear ye, Israel," which Miss Armstrong fairly surpassed herself in interpreting. The yearning of, "Oh, hadst thou heeded my commandments," and the majestic assurance of the prophetic "Be not afraid," were equally well done, Miss Armstrong seeming at her best through the entire number. Mr. Bailey followed with the warningly prophetic recitative, "The Lord hath exalted thee," which was perfectly done though relatively unimportant so far as the plot was concerned.

Beginning the most beautiful passages of Part 2, Mr. Christy sang the recitative, "Man of God," warning Elijah of the plot laid by Jezebel for his death. Tired out with his useless efforts, broken in body and spirit, Elijah then passes to the sublime and haunting melody of the aria, "It is enough." This was undoubtedly the climax of Part 2, and Mr. Bailey sang in a manner calculated to inspire all the emotional possibilities of the composition. The tenor interlude, "See now he sleepeth," effectually prepared the way for the familiar and ever beautiful "Lift thine eyes," which was exceedingly well done by the sextet.

The closing chorus, "Be not afraid," upheld the high standard set throughout the performance and held it to the last final note. Abundant applause at the conclusion proved that the oratorio had won the approval of the audience. Due to the unflinching efforts of Miss Carlile, who has been practicing the chorus since last September, all the chorus work was of more than exceptional merit. A good foundation has been laid for the repetition of the Elijah next year.

Mr. Bailey as Elijah surpassed every expectation. His full, rich, and pleasingly dramatic baritone filled the auditorium even on pianissimo notes, and his dramatic interpretations of the Elijah role show the result of long years of training and study. He undoubtedly belongs in a class with Arthur Middleton, who is generally thought to be the greatest interpreter of the Elijah role.

Miss Armstrong was in excellent voice, and in both the role of the widow and in the "Hear ye, Israel," of Part 2 did splendid work, for which she deserves a world of praise and appreciation. Mr. Christy was welcomed as an old Lamoni boy, and responded nobly to the inspiration of the home town. He was in wonderful voice, and his tones carried a wealth of meaning. Mrs. Wight did effective and beautiful work in her various recitatives, each one creating just the proper atmosphere for what was to follow.

No account of the performance would be complete without a word of appreciation in behalf of Miss Mabel Carlile, the director, Mrs. Amy Travis, pianist, and Miss Florence Thompson, organist, each of whom have spent hours of time and patient effort towards making this production a success. The Elijah is by far the biggest thing that has hit Lamoni, this year at least, and all are hoping that it can be repeated many times, until Lamoni becomes known as a musical center and the home of "The Elijah."

The Attendance

All week visitors to the convention continued to arrive, until by Sunday the enrollment reached 865. If there had not been continued rain throughout the week, the enrollment would doubtless have reached the goal of 1,000 set by the convention committee. The showers of rain during the week kept the roads in a bad condition. Those who have ever traveled on Iowa roads after a rainstorm will appreciate the timidity of those desiring to come to the convention by auto.

To determine the success of the convention this year, one would but have to ask some one attending it whether or not they had a good time. Some who have attended numerous reunions and conferences and General Conferences have been heard to say they had the best time here they ever had in their lives. The earnestness and desire to get all that was manifested in the prayer services; and the general good will and happiness displayed throughout the convention caused a great hope and trust to well up in the hearts of the leaders of our church for the future.

Prayer Services

Often the success of a branch can be measured to some extent by the prayer services. Likewise, at the convention this year a measure of its success may be determined by the spirit in which the young people took part in the prayer services.

From the very first prayer service the spirit of devotion and consecration was felt, and this spirit increased until there was not nearly time enough to permit all who had a desire to testify.

The theme of the service on Sunday was, "What are the race and humanity doing for me?" Some extracts from the testimonies offered were as follows: "All that I am or that I hope to be; all that I desire to be is centered in this church; and in the destiny of this church hangs my own destiny; and in the destiny of this church hangs the destiny of this world. Humanity and the church together have revealed God to me. The church has given me a purpose in life, and humanity has objectified that purpose." "Some day I shall give back to humanity what it has given me." "The church has brought me the message that has put me in touch with Jesus Christ."

The theme of the service on Monday was "Consecration," and such statements as the following were offered: "I want to make a new consecration of my life this morning." "I am here to prepare for better service." "I feel that I have gone at least one step forward in this convention."

On Tuesday morning a beautiful gift of tongues was given through Brother R. V. Hopkins, in which the Lord assured the young people of his existence and power and love, and promised them that the day is coming when his power shall again rest upon his people and they shall go forth and proclaim his word, and naught shall stay them. He also admonished them to prepare for the work to be given to them as the faithful ones who are older in years shall lay down their burdens, and asked them to "be faithful, holy, true, humble, and prayerful."

Perhaps no greater commendation of the excellent work being done by Graceland College could be found than in the large number of Graceland students who participated in the prayer services. They had come to Graceland and had caught the vision of service for which this church stands, and many are eager to make the necessary preparation and spend their lives in the service of the church and humanity.

The climax of the prayer services, and the climax of the convention, came at the prayer service at three o'clock Sunday afternoon when a large gathering of young people met in the dining tent on the hill. As the sun bathed the world in radiance, so the Spirit of God bathed the people with light and power and hope. Four men felt the message of God to his people assembled there and arose and gave the message of encouragement and assurance and admonition which touched the hearts of all present and sent each home with a desire to do just a little more in the work of preparation and service.

Convention Forum—Saturday

The theme presented at this session was, "Why the Department of Recreation and Expression?" with Floyd M. McDowell in charge. Brother McDowell stated that the reason for the department was that some group of individuals in this church should be interested in the proper solution of the playtime of our people, and harmonize it with the goal of our church. We dare not leave the leisure time of the people to care for itself. It will nullify the effort of the Sunday school, perhaps in one evening. Some one must do it, and it has been undertaken by this department. We are striving to get the children to live the gospel in their way. The department must be judged in terms of its effect in bringing its individuals towards the perfect pattern. There should be a man in the church, an expert with a salary, who can give all of his time to this work.

Play—Saturday Evening

One of the most interesting events of the convention was the presentation of "The passing of the third floor back," by the Graceland College Players. The tent was packed and many cheerfully stood. It was estimated that 1,200 people attended the service.

This play is written by Jerome K. Jerome and is a world-famous moral drama. It shows how the confidence and respect of a stranger appeals to the best that is in a number of people whose lives have been depraved, and how their lives have been turned towards good.

Sermon by Bishop B. R. McGuire

Sunday, June 8, at 11 o'clock, Bishop B. R. McGuire preached a very fine sermon to a large and appreciative audience. This will be carried home by many of the young people as one of the many profitable experiences they enjoyed.

Bishop McGuire said that if we give we receive, pressed down and running over. Man is said to be two thirds will and one third intellect. To educate the will, to strengthen it, to offer it a holy sacrifice is our task. Obedience, we are told, is better than sacrifice. Obedience to God's law is strength and power. It has brought the beauty and the fragrance of the flowers. He said that we have undertaken one task, the task of building the new gymnasium for Graceland College, and expressed regret that it was not completed, but hoped the young people would accomplish that task.

International Service

A very impressive and inspiring service was that held in the large tent on Sunday evening, June 8. Fifteen countries were represented on the platform, as follows: Canada, Russia, Norway, Sweden, Wales, Australia, Hawaii, Denmark, Holland, United States, Austria, Mexico, Scotland, Egypt, and England. The members of each country were introduced by President F. M. Smith, and short talks were given by Alexander Klein, of Austria; William Ely, of Scotland; Michael Johannes, of Egypt; and Wilfred Tordoff, of England. Each of them evidenced to the audience that they had caught a deep spirit of consecration and of service. Each expressed his desire to take back to his own country the message of the gospel, which has been given for the salvation of the whole world.

President Frederick M. Smith followed this service with a sermon, so vitalizing, so full of powerful appeal, that the souls of the young people were touched, and many hearts we feel sure responded silently to the appeal of the church made by President Smith. He said that the people are throbbing for something which will bring them relief. They are asking for some religion that is not merely lip service, but which reaches the heart, stirs the soul, and lifts people up on higher planes to Christ.

President Smith said we need young people who will go to a foreign country and stay not one year or two years, but spend their lives there. He pleaded that we bring people from those countries and allow them to receive education and inspiration from our institutions and carry the message of life to their country.

In conclusion he said, "God grant the day may come when Graceland will train a corps that will go to all the nations of the earth and carry this message that gives us hope that God's universal love will eventually establish universal peace."

Series of Sermons by Evangelist J. F. Martin

Brother Martin preached a series of four very inspiring and uplifting sermons. Each night the tent was crowded with interested and attentive young people. We are reminded of the prophetic statement given through President Elbert A. Smith at the convention last year, that the Lord had thousands and tens of thousands of young people whom he would call to do his work.

The first evening the subject was: "The call of the church to youth." Brother Martin said the church was calling the youth to service in two fields: First, The establishment of Zion, a city of refuge; and second, The carrying of the gospel to the nations of the earth. He said there is room for every talent and all the ability God has blessed us with, and there is a place for everyone somewhere. In conclusion, Brother Martin read a poem which he wrote the previous evening after listening to President Smith's eloquent appeal to the young people. This poem very beautifully expresses the stirring call of the church to youth.

The second evening Brother Martin's subject was: "The church and the young man." The platform was filled with young men, and the tent full of young people was evidence of the eagerness with which Brother Martin's sermons were received. Some of the thoughts expressed by Brother Martin were as follows:

The goal of man should be not so much to pursue the goal of happiness as the goal of goodness. Men often forget that the road to happiness is the road of righteousness. There are people who believe that the ideal man is one physically strong; others that he should be mentally strong; and others that he should be spiritually strong. God intended him to be physically, intellectually, and spiritually well-balanced. He also said, "There are some here to-night whom God wants to carry the gospel to those who are in distress. I call upon you to suffer with Christ, to make the supreme sacrifice if necessary, that the gospel may grow. If you go willingly, you will be cared for; you will be blessed; you will be directed."

The third evening Brother Martin spoke on the subject, "The church and the young woman." He discussed the position of woman through the stages of the world's history and her superior position in modern times. He frankly discussed also the reason why the young woman should not attend the dance halls. He said that in his opinion woman's first and greatest work was motherhood and showed examples of their opportunities in the lives of women of the past. The splendid spirit of the sermon was carried into the song, "My times are in thy hand," which concluded the service.

The beautiful evening and the large and attentive audience were a fine setting for the concluding sermon of the series. The subject was, "Youth's answer to the call of the church." Brother Martin said that this answer cannot be given in a few words, but it must be given in the everyday act. The answer to this call is the sum total of the actions in the affairs of men. Among the many ways in which youth can answer the call of the church Brother Martin called attention to two: Loyalty to the home branch and the work thereof, and a response to the temporal law of the church.

Convention Forum—Tuesday

The subject of the forum was, "How can we make our reunions efficient and effective?" conducted by F. Henry Edwards. After discussing the status of the reunion work, Brother Edwards presented three major essentials as an answer to the question, as follows:

1. We must know where we are going.
2. We must discover the part that we can play.
3. We must make our contribution.

Brother Edwards also presented and discussed two objectives in reunion work: The objective of the reunion is the objective of the church, and the reunion must be made to conserve the immediate need of the people of the district in which it is held.

Convention Forum—Wednesday

The convention forum hour was occupied by a talk given by Sister Blanche Edwards on the subject, "What are our girls worth?"

After a discussion of the different values in the world, Sister Edwards beautifully presented the value of the girls to themselves; to their home; to their mothers; to their fathers; sisters, brothers, friends, the church, and to God.

Convention Forum—Thursday

The subject of this session was, "Our missionary program and the young people," presented by F. Henry Edwards. The discussion of the hour centered around the topics of concentration, self-propagation, and cooperation.

Convention Forum—Friday

The work of the Orioles was very ably presented by means of an Oriole play, in which the girls of a circle of Orioles go out into the world. At a later day they meet together again and tell of the things they have accomplished and the influence the Oriole work has had in their lives.

Illustrated Lecture—Friday

President F. M. Smith gave an illustrated lecture on, "Beautiful architecture the world over." The pictures shown by Brother Smith were some he took while traveling through Europe, and were much appreciated by those present. His ideals of architecture in relation to our church were expressed as follows:

"It is my ambition in this church to see a distinctive Latter Day Saint architecture. No people who have been a progressive people have failed sooner or later to write their ideals into architecture. I have hoped that somehow, somewhere, we would begin a building program that would write our ideals in architecture. Is there not also in the church somewhere not only the Michaelangelo, but the Milton and Shakespeare as well, who will portray the ideals of the church in poetry and prose?"

Convention Forum—Saturday

The subject presented at this session was "Scouting in theory and practice," under the direction of Brother Eugene Closson. Two of the Boy Scouts demonstrated some phases of their work, and following this, interesting ideas and ideals were presented by three Boy Scout leaders.

Plays—Saturday

On Saturday evening the tent was again crowded to capacity with wide-awake and happy young people. A one-act play, "Ashes of roses," by Constance D'Arcy McKay, was ably presented in a reading by Florence Juergens. "The ghost story," by Booth Tarkington, was given in a reading by Frances Van Fleet in an effective manner. The one-act play, "Neighbors," written by Zona Gale, was presented by a caste of players from the Independence Dramatic Club and brought peals of laughter from the audience.

The work of the evening was of a high order and was much appreciated by the audience. This is another line of service in which the young people of our church are preparing and through which many lessons of beauty and truth may be presented in a particularly effective manner.

"The Opportunity of the Home"—Sunday

At 9.30 a. m. in the Brick Church Sister Blanche Edwards spoke on "The opportunity of the home." She presented very feelingly the opportunity the father and mother have in the training and care of their children. She called attention to the popular and familiar song, "Home, sweet home," and analyzed the reason for the appeal which this song makes to the hearts of people the world over. She asked, "What is it that makes the home so dear? Is it wealth, poverty, brain power, or the mere possession of some special talent? No. It is the attitudes built up through working together, playing together, worshipping together, and occasionally suffering together. This is what makes the home what it is—a place where each one has his share."

In conclusion she said, "We speak glibly about the redemption of Zion, but nowhere is there a stronger factor for the redemption of Zion than the home. And the making of a home rests in your hands, in the hands of men and women, the boys and girls."

Sermon by Elbert A. Smith

At 11 a. m. Elbert A. Smith preached a very effective sermon on "The prodigal son's brother." He emphasized the blessing coming to the young man who stays at home and works and maintains the honor of the family and to whom the father can say, "Thou art always with me and all that I have is thine." He also said that the greatest work of the church is not to reclaim the prodigal, but to see that he does not become prodigal. Much stress is laid upon revival services, and the stress should be upon the building.

Class Work

The Stewardship Plan, by Bishop Albert Carmichael, instructor.

In this class the practical and ideal aspects of the stewardship plan were presented in such a clear manner that those who attended the course are in a position not only to become stewards now, but to present the plan to others. The essence of this plan was adopted by General Conference, and the keynote of the course as presented was "commonality and surplus," which is the distinctive feature of the financial law of our church.

Vital Significance of Our Religion, by Cyril E. Wight, instructor.

The great number of young people who attended this class took away with them a surprising amount of information, considering the short time allowed at the convention for the class work.

In an analysis of our distinctive religion, Brother Wight discussed continuous revelation, divine authority, signs of power, principles of the gospel, the word of God, social aspects of the gospel, relation of our work to other religious movements, and making our work vital to youth. In the short space allotted it would be impossible to give an idea of the splendid work presented.

Social Principles of the Gospel, by F. M. McDowell, instructor.

The very fact that over a hundred attended some sessions of this class is enough to give some idea of the great interest shown by the visitors of the convention. It is not an exaggeration to say that the same spirit which attended the prayer services was felt in as great a degree in the class work.

The material presented was given under the following general topics: "The purpose of the gospel of Christ," "The definition of our social problem," "How Christianity attacks the social problem," "The social principles of Christ," "The social spirit of the doctrine of stewardship," and "The application of the social principles."

Social Work, by Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, instructor.

This course was ably presented by Sister Etzenhouser, who has had considerable training in social work, and it was enthusiastically received by large classes throughout the entire convention.

In this class the triangle of life, including heritage, environment, and training, was presented. Under heredity was given the physical defects dominant in man, intelligence, the four curves and their value, and the unstable nervous system. Happiness was defined as a perfect adjustment between man and his environment, and the factors that hinder that adjustment were poor physical health and wrong mental concepts. The solution of the problem was discussed in the agencies to correct physical ills and reeducation to correct wrong mental concepts.

Applied Ethics for Young People, by Charles B. Woodstock, instructor.

This class was originally intended to be given only one hour each day, but owing to the great interest shown in the subject, additional classes were arranged.

The philosophy of conduct was presented in an interesting manner, and the topics for the discussions of each day were, "Human nature and its interesting machinery," "The interesting world in which we live," "The problems of duty," "The problems of courtesy," "The problems of self-control," "The problems of industry," "The problems of recreation," and "The problems of the religious life."

Book of Mormon Course, by Bishop A. B. Phillips, instructor.

Some idea of the interesting nature of this course may be gleaned from the topics presented, as follows: "Origin of the book," "Events leading to published work," "Contents of the book," "Literary analysis," "Credulity of the book," "Historic value of the work," "The book as scripture," and "Theology of the work." An opportunity to receive instruction of this kind would be highly appreciated by hundreds, and probably thousands, of the young people throughout the church.

Church History, by Samuel A. Burgess, instructor.

Brother and Sister Burgess worked together in the presentation of this course. Only a limited amount of church history could be presented, but a foundation was laid for future study. The phases of the subjects discussed were as follows: Relation of the church to education; development of religious education from Adam down through the ages; history of religious education in our church; ancient and modern ideas of the city of God and social service, or stewardships; history of temple building in our church. An effort was made to connect the course to the other courses offered.

Scoutmasters' Training, by Eugene E. Closson, instructor.

About twenty-five took part in this course, which included a general review of scouting; how to organize a troop; duties of a scoutmaster and his relation to his troop; different tests that the boys take and merit badges explained and discussed; discussion from different men as to their ideas on the scout work; general review of the scoutmaster's handbook and demonstration in first aid and signaling, and other scout activities.

Prizes were offered to the two who took the most personal interest in the whole scout work of the convention. The first prize offered was a scoutmaster's handbook and the second prize was a scout handbook for the boys. A fine interest was shown by so many that it was difficult to know to whom the prizes should go.

Choir Leadership, by Mabel Carlile and Ed. C. Bell, instructors.

The things which were discussed in this course were problems of organization; material for large and small choirs; points in good choral singing; junior choir work; practical work in conducting choirs and orchestras.

Oriole and Temple Builder Leaders, by Blanche Edwards, instructor.

An inspiring course was offered, which not only presented the ideals for which the Young Women's Bureau stands, but some practical suggestions were given which could be taken home and used. The topics discussed in the eight class periods were as follows: Needs of girls and how the work of the Young Women's Bureau will supply them; The use of music and drama; Art in dress; Art in the home; Occupations; Having a good time; Program building; and Essentials in leadership.

Principles of Religious Education, by Roy A. Cheville, instructor.

The large numbers which attended this class were an inspiration to both the teacher and the individual members. A much better conception of what religious education is and how it can be applied was gained. The definition, need, and existing theories of religious education were discussed, as well as the unity of the educational process, the essentials of a theory of religious education, and the religious education of childhood, adolescence, youth, and the adult.

Some of the points particularly stressed were that education is not so much a preparation for life, but life itself; the teaching of morals should not be that which is taught separate from other things, but it should bathe all the other parts of life; and in stressing the need of religious education for the young we have neglected to consider the religious education of the adult.

Recreation

Between two and three hundred participated in the recreational activity of the convention. A larger number have watched the games and taken notes. The aim of this recreational period as presented by Brother Eugene Closson and his assistants has been to train leaders in recreation who will be able to carry on this work effectively in their home branches and at the reunions. The way in which they responded was gratifying, for they caught the spirit of the recreation, and after being shown how to play the games, they used their initiative and participated in the games without any special direction. This spontaneous response indicates that they will be successful in their activities along this line.

The young people were divided into groups according to locality, the four groups being: East, including the north; West, including the south; Lamoni; and Missouri.

On Monday a playground ball tournament was held. The Western States won, and it was decided that the prize of a new bat and ball should be given to the North Dakota District.

On Tuesday a tournament in volley ball was held. Lamoni won first place and was presented with a volley ball to be used at their reunion. Missouri won second place.

A big convention track meet was arranged for Thursday afternoon, in which many participated. Thirty ribbons were won in first and second places in different events. The West won three, the East eight, and the Lamoni division nine.

Besides the special events, group games were participated in every afternoon, and a good time was had by about 250 young people at a marshmallow roast after the evening service, when stories were told and songs and games were participated in.

Exhibits

Oriole Exhibit.—A very interesting exhibit of the work of Oriole Girls throughout the church was appreciated by the convention visitors. There were comforters, flowers, needlework, photographs, books and magazines for the girls, and Sanitarium and nursery needs, the latter to be given to the Sanitarium and those in need.

Boy Scout Exhibit.—The Boy Scouts of Grand Rapids, Michigan, presented an exhibit of butterflies, handcraft, and nature materials.

Book Exhibit.—A fine display of numerous books was given on miscellaneous subjects. This was much appreciated and many of the books were sold. Many also took advantage of the opportunity and took the names of the books they wished to buy in the future.

A fine display of posters was given on Play, Health, Religion, and Recreation, purchased from the Child Welfare Association, 70 Fifth Street, New York, which would make excellent material for reunions.

Patroness Bazaar.—An interesting display of linen, needlework, hand-painted china, beads, notions, candy, paintings, and Graceland Cookbooks were on sale at the college buildings, and quite a number took advantage of it.

Independence

The Campus

The meeting at the Campus Sunday evening opened with its regular concert of music. This time the band was welcomed and gave the large audience a half hour of good music. Mrs. W. S. Kellogg, representing the Loloni Society for the Oneida Indians, spoke for some time. Loloni is an Indian word which means "Peace be unto you, and righteousness." It is an economic society, which incorporates many of the principles with which Latter Day Saints are familiar under the term Zion. Mrs. Kellogg is herself an Indian of the Oneida tribe and makes her home at present at Lulu Lake, New York, where this society is to have its headquarters. Following her address, Brother Walter Wayne Smith preached a short sermon.

Independence Day, July 4, will be celebrated at the Campus on even a bigger scale than last year. The Laurel Club conceived of celebrating the day in much the same manner as last year, and brought the matter before the city council, who gave their approval and, working with the Chamber of Commerce, are executing it as a community affair. The different committees are appointed and at work.

There will be ball games, races, and all manner of recreational activities throughout the day, moving pictures and fireworks in the evening, and abundant opportunity for picnic dinners at any time of day. There will also be a refreshment stand, and the Laurel Club will supply home-cooked foods for those who do not wish to wear themselves out cooking the big picnic dinner. There will be cakes, beef loaf, potato salad, and all manner of toothsome things.

Last year's attendance was reckoned at about 15,000. All are invited to assist in making this the biggest affair ever held at the Campus.

The church offices are filling up again, now that the Young People's Convention is over. Presidents F. M. Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Pastor R. V. Hopkins, Howard Harder, Sister Etzenhouser, C. B. Hartshorn, and Vernon Reese are to be found at their desks again.

The Quorum of Twelve will soon be busy at reunion work. At present we can report the whereabouts of some of them. John W. Rushton has departed for his field in Florida; T. W. Williams left the latter part of the week for California; E. J. Gleazer occupied the pulpit at Holden on Sunday, and Roy Budd at Cameron; J. F. Garver spent part of the week at the Young People's Convention and the rest of it on church business at Independence; D. T. Williams is in California; J. A. Gillen in Buffalo, New York, and Apostle F. Henry Edwards has spent the week at the convention.

Sister Alice Spurlock, who has been ill for many years, died at the Sanitarium on June 14. She was the wife of Elder Charles J. Spurlock, who is well known to many. Sister Spurlock was a regular attendant at church and Sunday school as long as she was able to go, after which time she enjoyed reading or hearing read the Book of Mormon.

The sympathy of the Saints goes out to those who remain. Besides her husband there is a brother, George Thompson, of Oregon; a sister, Mrs. Ellen Grandy, of Crosswell, Michigan; and a niece, Mrs. Guy Levitt, of Ogden, Utah. The funeral was held at the Stone Church Monday, June 16. Sermon by Joseph Luff, assisted by W. H. Garrett. Interment in Mound Grove.

We find among the visitors the early part of the week at the Young People's Convention at Lamoni, Iowa, as recorded in The Lamoni Chronicle, several Independence people: Agnes Adams, Virginia Budd, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Blair, Nellie Curtis, Beryl and Carol Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Church, Alberta Cox, Dorothy Cudworth, Eunice Dillie, Marie Dimick, Joseph Dobson, F. Henry Edwards, Mrs. Ida Etzenhouser, Mrs. Charles Fry, George E. Fender, Ada Fallon, Evan Fry, Mrs. James Gault, Mary Gouldsmith, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, Estella E. Goode, James A. Gillen, Howard W. Harder, Lillie Hansen, D. J. Krahl, Cecil Kester, Elizabeth Lloyd, Margaret McPherson, Roberta McPherson, Lewis A. Mauzey, Mrs. Jessie Morant, Louis Miller, Blanche Minton, Camellia Parker, A. B. Phillips, Vera Redfield, Iva M. Roberts, Pauline Roberts, Alta Mae Schafer, Mrs. C. R. Smith, Mrs. C. G. Simmons, Marcine Smith, Nellie E. Sampson, Winnogene Smith, Sheldon Schafer, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Siegfried, Pauline Siegfried, Emma Snead, Gladys Teeter, and Jay Werhn. Several others went up by auto and train the latter part of the week. Perhaps we can learn who they were by next week.

Second Independence Church

Brother James Wiltfong, a priest among the South Side people, was found dead last Friday evening with his neck broken, on the road along which he usually drove from work to his home. This is the second sudden death among that congregation lately. Brother Wiltfong was driving home from work, and it is supposed the horse ran away, and he was killed by being thrown from the buggy. He is survived by his widow, Sister Harriet Wiltfong, and the following children: Mrs. Bertha Woodhead, of Kansas City, Kansas; Mrs. Hazel Evans and Robert M., of Kansas City, Missouri; Edna St. John, of Muncie, Kansas; Hubert H., of Independence; and Miss Lorena at home. Funeral services were held at the South Side Church, Sunday afternoon. R. J. Lambert preached the sermon. Interment was at Mound Grove.

H. E. Winegar spoke to the congregation at Second Church Sunday morning, dealing on the preparation for life and service.

Enoch Hill

Children's Day was observed at Enoch Hill all day Sunday. There was a short Sunday school session, following which the smallest children entertained with songs, drills, and recitations. At eleven o'clock Brother Frank B. Almond, of Denver, Colorado, preached on "The soul of the child."

The older children had their program in the evening. The church was prettily decorated for this, and special mention is made of the flag drill and the exercise, "The dream of summer."

A special business meeting will be held Tuesday evening to take up the matter of electing a new pastor. Brother Charles Fry, who has been acting in this capacity, goes again into the mission field, and the name of W. J. Brewer is before the people.

Kenneth Morford was reelected president of Religio and William Worth, jr., vice president, at the semiannual election last Friday evening.

East Independence

An ice cream social will be held Thursday evening at the home of Julius Friend, corner of Turner and Elizabeth Streets.

A series of missionary sermons will be preached at East Independence every Sunday night through the summer. Brother William Bath, who has charge there, will preach these. The Walnut Park orchestra helped them out in a splendid way last Sunday night and promise their support for the summer.

Brother A. H. Parsons delivered the morning address, preaching along the line of duties of the Saints.

Liberty Street

On Tuesday evening, June 10, the Liberty Street orchestra gave a concert in the church for the benefit of the piano fund. This fund has nearly all been raised, and the congregation will rejoice when the last dollar is paid. They deserve credit for the short time in which this sum has been gathered.

Elder B. J. Scott preached Sunday morning on "The message of the hour as compared with that of the past."

Walnut Park

The sermon at 11 o'clock was by the pastor, Brother J. A. Dowker. In the evening the congregation met at the union services on the Campus.

Radio

Toledo, Ohio, June 2, 1924.—"This gospel was taken from the earth," were words which convicted the speaker at the Stone Church at Independence, Missouri, Sunday evening, June 1. These words told me that the speaker was of the church which has been brought back to earth in these last days.

I was under the impression that K F I X could not be heard by us through the radio where I was listening, and was turning the dials attempting to get some music through the air, when suddenly, clear and distinct came the words, "the gospel was taken from the earth." Immediately I knew that no one but a true minister of God would speak such words, and I listened to the remainder of the talk until I heard the signal of the broadcasting station.

We see from the above statement that once one hears this blessed gospel story, the after hearing of it, though but a few words of it, will identify the church that the speaker is representing. I was much interested and turned the dials again and heard part of a sermon on "Truth." This, however, was so faint that I could not catch the signals. I could hear just enough to tell me that I was listening to a man preaching the gospel, which, as he said, "was the same yesterday, today, and forever."

C. A. BHN.

Young People Attend Andes Convention

FAIRVIEW, MONTANA, June 9.—Most of the Fairview Branch attended the young people's convention at Andes, Montana, May 30 to June 1. Every branch in the district was represented. All seemed to have a very good time.

James C. Page, district president, who lives at Glasgow, was present, being on his way by auto with his family and four Glasgow young ladies to the big convention at Lamoni.

During the stay at Andes, final arrangements were made for holding an Eastern Montana reunion at Girard, July 8 to 13. This is about midway between Andes and Fairview.

Sunday School Socials at Lima, Ohio, for the Kirtland Temple

LIMA, OHIO, May 30.—According to our promise to Brother James E. Bishop, of Steubenville, Ohio, the Saints here gave two socials, and the proceeds were turned over to him for the Kirtland Auditorium. We feel that we made good.

On May 10 we had the first social. Although a bad night we cleared $9.04 over and above expenses. On May 24 the second social was held, at which $15.15 was cleared. We have remitted this to Brother Bishop.

We surely enjoy the work here and hope the good Lord will enable us to be faithful, that his work may continue at this place. We surely thank the Saints for their good work, and pray that they may not grow weary, that God's Spirit may be with us always. This is the desire of a young brother in Christ.

J. F. REEM.

EDITORIAL

(Continued from page 577.)

Concerning Editorial Change

With reference to announcement in the HERALD of June 4, calling attention to the change in the editorship in the church periodicals, the undersigned in responding to their appointment as contributing editors for the Ensign, take this means of stating that this response is not to be interpreted as an indorsement of the action of the Board of Publication in effecting said change.

We are, however, as always, willing to serve the cause in whatever capacity thought to be for its best interest, so with the above explanation, accept this appointment as contributing editors and shall give to the work our most earnest and conscientious effort.

J. F. GARVER.

CHARLES FRY.

J. A. KOEHLER.

K F I X

Broadcast from the new studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred and forty meters.

SUNDAY, JUNE 22, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.

Prayer.

Anthem: "O for a closer walk with God," Foster.

Sung by Choir.

Soprano obbligato sung by Mrs. J. G. Fairbanks.

Sermon by Elder Walter W. Smith.

Hymn.

SUNDAY, JUNE 22, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the L. D. S. Campus
(Open air service.)

Band concert conducted by Mr. Roy Turner.

Hymn.

Sermon.

Hymn.

TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Male Quartet: "In the gloaming."

Roy Cato, Glen Fairbanks, Fred Goode, Omer Cato.

Soprano Solo: (a) "Could I," Tosti.

(b) Selected.

Corrinne Haines French.

Male Quartet: "Sweet and low."

Address.

Quartet: Medley of War Songs: "Do they think of me at home?" "Just before the battle, mother," "Tenting on the old camp ground."

Soprano Solo: "The Mattinata," Leon Cavallo.

Quartet: "Juanita."

This program was to have been broadcast June 12, but K F I X gave way for W D A F to broadcast the Republican Convention at Cleveland, Ohio.

THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

A musical program will be put on by the Auditorium Orchestra, Robert T. Cooper, director.
Educational Talk.

MISCELLANEOUS

One-Day Meetings

Kewanee, at Matherville, Illinois, June 22. Come, spend the day with us, and enjoy the social and spiritual uplift that always characterizes our all-day meetings. Bring basket lunch. Don't forget the district conference at Kewanee June 27 to 29. Apostle Gleazer will be with us at that time. E. R. Davis, president.

Conference Notices

Eastern Montana, at Girard, July 12. Conference will convene at 2 p. m. on that date, during the reunion. Send reports to Earl Wilcox, Box 174, Glasgow, Montana, as early as possible after July 1. James C. Page, president.

Reunion Notices

Maine, at Walker's Pond, Brooksville, Maine, August 16 to 23. Tents and rooms at reasonable rates. Meals cafeteria style. Best of preaching and spiritual services. Directed recreation. Boating, bathing, fishing, and oh, the blueberries! Floyd D. Black, secretary.

Eastern Montana, at Girard, July 8 to 13. Girard is located about twelve miles west of Fairview, Montana. There will be water, and free pasture for horses. Brother Ray Goldsmith conducts a general store and will provide provisions at a reasonable price. For any other information write A. R. Ritter, Fairview, Montana. James C. Page, president.

Central Texas, at Hearne, July 11 to 20. S. S. Smith.

North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29. Sykeston is on the Turtle Lake Branch of the Northern Pacific. Those coming on the Great Northern, change at New Rockford for the Northern Pacific. Local Soo trains going west make connection with Northern Pacific at Carrington for Sykeston. Those coming from the west on Soo will be met at Cathay, six miles north of Sykeston, by auto. Please notify M. Rasmussen, Sykeston. Any other information required, write M. Rasmussen. J. W. Darling, secretary, Thorne, North Dakota.

Northwestern Kansas, at Studley, August 15 to 24. Good shade and camping accommodations. Campers will provide their own meals. Prices of tents: Low wall, 7 by 9, $4.25; 8 by 10, $4.75; 10 by 12, $5.50; 12 by 14, $6.75. High wall, 12 by 14, $10.50; 12 by 16, $11. Canvas cots, $1. As speakers we expect Bishop B. R. McGuire, Evangelist U. W. Greene, Elder B. E. Brown, and Mrs. B. E. Brown, the latter being in charge of departmental work. Orders for tents and other inquiries should be made of C. I. Carpenter, 410 Grand Avenue, Independence, Missouri. C. I. Carpenter.

Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, at Lemon Park, Indian Lake, near Vicksburg, Michigan, August 22 to 31. Good auto roads; Pennsylvania Railway, north and south, through Vicksburg; Grand Trunk, east and west; all stop at Lemon Park. Going east, buy ticket to Pavilion; going west, buy ticket to Vicksburg. Tell the conductor to put you off at Lemon Park. Speakers are Apostle J. A. Gillen, Bishop F. B. Blair, Evangelist James Davis, and social workers, Elder M. A. and Sister Ida Etzenhouser. District conference during the reunion, August 23. E. K. Evans, president, 240 Travis Street, Northeast, Grand Rapids, Michigan. W. F. Ryder, secretary, 648 Prospect Avenue, Southeast, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Conference Minutes

GALLANDS GROVE.—At Deloit, Iowa, May 30 to June 1. John F. Garver, F. T. Mussell, and W. A. Smith were present. There were nine ordinations: three to the office of elder, two deacons, three priests, and one teacher. Fine weather permitted a large crowd on Sunday. The next conference will be at Mallard, Iowa. Elder F. T. Mussell was sustained as district president and Leonard Cockefair, of Mallard, as Sunday school superintendent. The Auburn orchestra was present and furnished the music. Mrs. Bessie Pearsall, secretary.

SPRING RIVER.—At Pittsburg, Kansas, May 10 and 11. Conference opened Friday morning at 10.30 with John Blackmore in charge. After the few preliminaries of the conference the program was read, and then the credentials from the various locals. Election of officers at the busi-

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Richard J. Lambert, Managing Editor

Contributing Editors

Elbert A. Smith
T. W. Williams
Arthur Phillips

S. A. Burgess
A. Max Carmichael
Arthur E. McKim
O. W. Parker, Business Manager

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.

Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in the hands of the editors not later than Monday afternoon preceding date of issue. All obituaries put in regular form. No charges for Miscellany. Subscription price: By the year, $2.25.

EDITORIALS:

The Young People's Convention ..... 577
Concerning Editorial Changes ..... 598

OFFICIAL:

President's Statement ..... 578
The April Council of First Presidency, Members of Quorum of Twelve in America, and Order of Bishops ..... 578

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

A Steadfast Purpose, by Benjamin R. McGuire ..... 580
Faith, by J. P. Rudd ..... 582
The Soldier Bonus, by J. A. Ferris ..... 583
Credo, by R. W. Farrell ..... 584

CHURCH NEWS

RADIO ..... 586
MISCELLANEOUS ..... 599

ness meeting Saturday morning resulted in John Blackmore as president, and Mrs. C. E. Wilson, secretary-treasurer. It was decided to send the former president of the district a letter of appreciation in behalf of his splendid services in the Spring River District. Friday at 2.30, program by the Department of Women on child welfare; at 7.45, the evening was given over to the Department of Recreation and Expression. Preaching was had from F. Henry Edwards and Amos T. Higdon. Reunion will be at Pittsburg, Kansas, August 7 to 17. Conference adjourned to meet in Webb City, Missouri, in November. This was one of the largest conferences in the district for a long time. Mrs. C. E. Wilson, secretary.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)

Spokane, at Sawyer, Idaho, June 20 to 29 (479).
North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29 (383).
Northern Wisconsin, at Chetek, June 27 to July 6 (481).
Minnesota, at Minneapolis, July 3 to 13.
Central Nebraska, at Inman, July 5 to 13.
Eastern Montana, at Girard, July 8 to 13.
Eastern Michigan and Detroit, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (575).
Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (359, 503).
Southwestern Kansas, at Winfield, July 17 to 27 (479, 503).
Kentucky and Tennessee, at Puryear, Tennessee, July 19 to 27 (527).
Florida, at Alafara, July 18 to 27.
Central Oklahoma, at Washunga, July 18 to 27 (503).
Holden, at Holden, Missouri, July 18 to 27 (527).
Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (335).
Clinton, at Eldorado Springs, Missouri, July 25 to August 3.
Western Nebraska, at North Platte, July 25 to August 3.
Massachusetts, at Onset, July 26 to August 10.
Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
Lamoni, at Lamoni, Iowa, July 30 to August 10.
Western Colorado, at Delta, August 1 to 10 (575).
Chatham, Ontario, at Erie Beach, August 1 to 10 (167, 263, 287).
Western Oklahoma, at Eagle City, August 1 to 10 (575).
Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 to 10 (215).
Eastern Iowa, at Muscatine, August 1 to 10.
Spring River, at Pittsburg, Kansas, August 7 to 17.
Des Moines, at Runnels, Iowa, August 8 to 17 (575).
Mobile, at Gautier, Mississippi, August 8 to 17 (503).
Portland, at Portland, Oregon, August 8 to 17.
Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (335).
Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
Northern Michigan, at Boyne City, August 8 to 17.
Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 9 to 24 (119, 383).
Northeastern Illinois, at Elmhurst, August 14 to 21.
Central Texas, at Hearne, August 14 to 20 (551).
Eastern Oklahoma, at Winthrop, August 14 to 25 (527).
Western Montana, at Race Track, August 15 to 24.
Kewanee, at Galva, Illinois, August 15 to 24.
Idaho, at Hagerman, August 15 to 24.
Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24 (479).
Northeastern Kansas, at Netawaka, August 15 to 24.
Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, Iowa, August 15 to 24 (215).
Maine, at Brooksville, August 16 to 23.
New York and Philadelphia, at Deer Park, Pennsylvania, August 16 to 31.
Far West, at Stewartville, Missouri, August 21 to 31.
Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, at Indian Lake, Michigan, August 22 to 31.
Pottawattamie, at Glenwood, Iowa, August 22 to 31.
Southern Wisconsin, at Monona Park, August 22 to 31 (503).
Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Our Departed Ones

STAFFORD—Henry Jewell Stafford was born at Missouri City, Missouri, December 31, 1906. Died at Kansas City, Missouri, May 17, 1924. Funeral sermon by H. L. Barto, assisted by W. G. Hamann. Interment at Richmond, Missouri, where he had lived with his parents.

INVESTMENTS

---

The contributions which you make to the church do not belong in the expense column. They represent an investment in the most worth-while things in life.

Gold, silver, brass, granite, and marble are not to be compared in value with the things which build character: Truthfulness, honesty, temperance, virtue, kindness, sympathy, love, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, meekness, faith.

These things develop civilization, build empires, insure peace, stabilize homes, create happiness. They endure when all material things go back to dust.

These are the things which the church nurtures and develops.

“Let us make man in our own image.” God has made his greatest investment in you.

You now have an opportunity to make an investment in your fellow man.

Every member is invited to

First. Pay his tithes in full to date.

Second. Give the earnings for these two days [June 9 and 23] as a freewill offering.

This will enable the church to carry out the program of the year ending June 30.

Make your investment to-day.

Sincerely yours,

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, June 25, 1924

Number 26

EDITORIAL

Convention Hall

At the General Conference of 1920, the request of Graceland College for $10,000 for a gymnasium was referred to the First Presidency and Presiding Bishop with power to act.

In 1922, at the next conference, the request by the college for $15,000 was approved by the Order of Bishops but laid on the table by the General Conference.

Then in June, 1923, at the Young People's Convention, a movement was started to raise $20,000 for a gymnasium, this to be a building suitable for assembly purposes or general convention meetings. This money as then stated was to be raised by subscriptions of $5,000 each from Eastern friends, the business men of Lamoni, the young people at the convention, and Graceland College alumni. The town volunteered to raise above their amount to help out the young people who might not be able to raise their full share of $10,000. In fact, the town and young people together have raised nearly $15,000, but a little over $7,000 was raised by Lamoni business men, and less than $8,000 (slightly) by the young people ($14,979.05 by both).

The First Presidency and Presiding Bishop also agreed last June to add the $10,000 referred to them in 1920. This gave a total of $30,000 to $35,000 promised or proposed, for Eastern friends met the raise of the town and agreed to give as much, and an effort was still made to raise $10,000 from the young people, including Graceland College alumni.

The money subscribed was very slow in being paid in, and this delayed the building too long to be completed in time for this convention, while heavy rains both last June and this have impressed on the young people the need for a permanent building for such meetings or conventions.

The generous action of friends in the East made up any deficit by an additional $6,000, so work was resumed in April, and the roof girders were being put in during the convention.

The building will be substantial and is erected as part of the proposed group, of which the new building, or Recitation Hall, or "Bide-a-Wee" is the first unit. It will be fireproof, erected of good brick and structural steel. The floor girders and walls are in, and now the roof girders. We have not heard the estimated cost, but according to figures made public $38,000 has been made available: $13,000 from the East; $10,000 from the general church per conference action of 1920; $7,000 from the business men of Lamoni, and $8,000 from the young people, including Graceland alumni and old students.

These figures now made public, placed the young people's goal at $15,000. Subscriptions were taken Saturday, June 14, and many of the young people, especially those not present last year, were wearing the same yellow tags as were used last year, "A Friend of Graceland." Saturday night a new effort was made with the large audience. As to the results of the present subscriptions we have not heard at this writing.

Certainly the interest of the young people is largest in such a building. 1. For a gymnasium for Graceland College, so as to comply with the Iowa law. 2. As an assembly place for Graceland, for entertainments and community pictures.

The present chapel is too small for Graceland's present needs for general assembly. And it is much too small for the lyceum course through the winter, and also for the community pictures. The town of Lamoni is interested in these latter two uses. Aside from the Brick Church in Lamoni, there is at present no hall suitable for assemblies of over two hundred except the Coliseum Building, and that building is suitable for not to exceed six hundred. The Coliseum is at present used for many community purposes, but even that building is small for many community needs.

3. The Young People's Conventions of the future. These meetings are beneficial, not only to the young people, but also to the college.

S. A. BURGESS.

Our Place in the Sun

A group of men were discussing religion. It was evident that all were agreed save one. He stood out from the rest as though questioning their position. It was the crowd against the individual. The spokesman was urging the man to cast his lot with them. The man came back as follows: "Unless you can furnish satisfactory evidence that the church of which you are a member is making some essential contribution to society, there is no legitimate reason for its existence."

He paused a moment, as if to make more impressive what he was going to say, and continued: "Yes, I will go further. You Latter Day Saints affirm that a special dispensation has been committed to you—a dispensation which God has given to no other people in this age. If your position is correct, it devolves upon you to make good your claim, and you can do so only in one way—by making a contribution to humanity which no other group can or is doing."

No one took up the challenge. One by one the group melted away. The man was left alone. And something akin to longing was in his face. He, too, went his way.

This challenge is to us. What, then, our answer?

No institution is entitled to individual or group support unless it is making essential contribution to world betterment. A church no more than an individual should live of itself alone. A church has no legitimate reason for its existence if it lives of itself, for itself, and by itself. Such an institution is unsocial and, therefore, unchristian.

The mission of the church of Jesus Christ is to give out rather than to draw to itself. It comprehends contribution rather than the ability to acquire. Like the flower of the field, it has only the right to absorb in order that it may later diffuse. The evidence of the real worth of any church does not lie wholly in identity of organization and ritual with the teachings of Jesus, but more, far more, in the contribution it is making to the vital needs of humanity. That we cannot make this contribution without having this identity is affirmed, but identity of service and works is the vital thing. Mere doctrine, however true, is impotent and sterile when divorced from works. And such works comprehend far more than observance of rituals. These are creative and social.

We judge things by their fruits, not because they look like something else. A tree may look like another tree which bears fruit, and still it may be sterile. We should not overlook the fact that Jesus condemned the barren fig tree, not because it was not a real fig tree, but that as a fig tree it did not bear fruit in season. The season for bearing Christian fruit is continuous.

The evidence of the worth of a church to an individual lies in what the church has done and is doing for the individual rather than in what the individual is doing for the church. What the individual does is his investment; what the church is doing is the guarantee of the individual investment. Sin offering and propitiation have at most but a minor place in real religion. The offering which God demands that this church shall make is to "seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow."

Christianity comprehends contribution rather than accumulation. It means building homes for orphans and widows as much, if not more, than building houses for God. God is not selfish enough to ask or accept houses for himself so long as the most humble of his children remain unsheltered. In the time of Moses, God was content to dwell in a tented tabernacle until every family in Israel had received its inheritance. A magnificent edifice of worship or even a temple should follow rather than precede the gathering and establishment of God's people.

It is not the tithing paid into the church, but rather the service rendered and the contribution made on the part of the church by means of this tithing to enrich the lives of those who lack, which will answer the demands of our critic and demonstrate our right to exist. A church may be rich beyond the dreams of avarice and yet have a depleted treasury. A church which exhausts the contributions of its members in order to keep the machinery of the church going is not keeping step with Jesus. A church which drains its votaries in order to perpetuate its ritualism and to sustain its priesthood is far from being a real Christian church. Of course a depleted treasury may be, and generally is, an indictment of the policy of the church, for when the church is carrying out the purposes of God as it should, there is the ever present assurance that God will provide.

What is the overshadowing mission of the church? What contribution has it made? What contribution is it making? We must not forget that just so soon as a church ceases to make contribution to the enrichment of the world in what may be termed priceless things, just so soon does it become a dead institution. We may not rest on our laurels and persist. Eternal vigilance is the price of divine acknowledgment.

One of the writers of the Book of Mormon states that the chief purpose of the book is "the convincing of the Jew and Gentile that Jesus is the Christ." This is essentially Christian. And to do this involves the making the mind of Christ the mind of the church. Jesus Christ is at once our Leader, our Witness, our Commander. He is our only leader. There is place for but one leader in the church of Jesus Christ. All others are, at best, but followers. We may, and do, have many, many, great men within our communion, but they are our brothers. Together we follow Jesus Christ. We dare not follow any man however great and wise and good. The admission of such leadership and following is dangerous, for who is to determine where such leadership begins or ends? It has been urged that we follow some man so long as he follows Christ. And why? If, as here conceded, Christ is the standard, why project any man between us and Christ? Why? All men, at best, are human and susceptible to mistake. Jesus Christ alone stands sure, for he is both God and man. His name stands above every name.

Jesus never concerned himself about place or position. He demonstrated his leadership by his life. He instinctively withdrew from human adulation and worldly honor. He was concerned to place himself below all. He divorced himself from ostentation and gave himself to service. The only title which he arrogated to himself was that of Friend. And a church which expects to stand in these days of critical test must doff its robes and put on the carpenter's overalls. It must not be concerned with worldly dignity and honor. It will not trust in worldly wisdom. It will depend upon the Spirit which was in Jesus Christ to qualify for ministry and service. It will be intensively interested in demonstrating its Christianity by ministering to the world's need.

If we are to survive as a church, we must take our rightful place in the Sun. We must get back in the old paths. We must follow Christ. We must not only enshrine him in our altars and glorify him in our worship, but we must do the works which he did to demonstrate discipleship. Ours is the dispensation of Gathering. It is the dispensation which at one fell swoop strikes down caste and privilege. The name Brown, or Williams, or Smith, or Coolidge has no more significance in Christian leadership than any other earthly name. There is only one name given under heaven and among men whereby men can be saved, and that is the name of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Christ alone is our leader—all others are but servants and ministers—servants and ministers of God—servants and ministers to his children. Jesus lived and died for men. He gave himself to save men, regardless of class, or color, or character. He was interested in saving the wanton and the outcast. There was no superior class with him. The need of his fellows was the command of God to him.

Every man counts one with God. He has no preferences. No man has the inside track. There is no royal family or favored nation. Every man stands or falls on his own laurels. When a man "stands at the door and knocks," God does not ask him where he came from. He is only interested as to where he is going. The man born of questionable parentage—the outcast—the wanton can come into our communion and be fellow with each and all of us—equal in heritage and possession by renouncing the evil way and accepting the leadership of Jesus Christ as Savior and Friend.

Christianity is to be distinguished because it spells brotherhood, fraternity, fellowship, equality, friendship. In the church of Jesus Christ there is no exalted priesthood, no elevated ecclesiasts, no superiors, and no subordinates. All are simply "workers together with God." And though men may be selected out of the group to occupy in positions of trust, this selection in no sense elevates them above the mass. They are thereby set apart and designated as servants to do the will of God who hath called them, and to carry out the wishes of the body of Christ whose servants they are.

Our mission is to reveal Jesus Christ to the world. And this can be done only by emulating his life. We do not teach Christ alone by precept, but by example as well. The church of Jesus Christ will be like Jesus Christ. He will be enshrined in all of its workings. It will be actuated by the Spirit of Christ. It will demonstrate its claim by giving its life for the weal of the whole world. T. W. WILLIAMS.

The Young People's Convention

Many of the young people and several of the class instructors found it necessary to leave at the end of the week and so missed the second Sunday of the convention. But fortunately quite a few remained, determined to give and gain as much as was possible.

Those who were compelled to leave were unfortunate, as the services were unusually good even for this convention. Miss Blanche Edwards at half past nine spoke with her usual enthusiasm on "The opportunity of the home." Then at eleven o'clock President Elbert A. Smith, on "The prodigal son's elder brother," drove home many practical aspects of truth and right living. In the evening Apostle John F. Garver fittingly closed the convention with his sermon on "Vision."

In the afternoon the closing prayer service of the convention was held, and it proved to be the best prayer service of the whole session. The Spirit of God was very near. Several spoke in prophecy, in admonition and encouragement, while the testimonies of all, especially those young in years, were marked with earnestness, humility, and consecrated purpose.

S. A. B.

OFFICIAL

The Facts in the Case

The Board of Publication's answer to the denouncement by President Smith.

The denouncement issued against the Board of Publication by the President in last week's HERALD demands answer, and we present the facts in the case for the consideration of the church.

Three charges are made:

First: That the Board of Publication "assumed unwarranted powers."

Second: That the "'official' character of the HERALD has thus been changed."

Third: That "not even the usual courtesies observed in change of editors were extended to us."

Since 1860 the Board of Publication has moved forward in its work, conducting the business affairs of the HERALD, choosing and releasing editors, and acting for the church in all publication matters without being denounced or accused of assuming unwarranted powers.

The church in General Conference has plainly spoken on the question of whether or not the Presidency has inherent right to edit or dominate the HERALD, and by a vote of 733 1-3 to 99 2-3 in 1891 declared that "the editorial or other management of the HERALD is not comprehended in their official calling." The resolution as adopted by the conference of 1891, number 351 in the General Conference Resolutions, is as follows:

No. 351. (1) Whereas, the growth of the church has been attended with an increase of responsibilities and cares, making necessary the liberation of our chief officers from all burdens not necessarily included in their office and calling; and

(2) Whereas, we have witnessed with deep consideration the effect of over-anxiety and work upon the Presidency of the church, and

(3) Whereas, the law provides that they should be so cared for by the church as to enable them to devote their time and energy exclusively to the duties of the office held by them, and

(4) Whereas, We believe that the editorial or other management of the HERALD is not comprehended in their official calling, but is an added burden, imposed without command of the Spirit, or being necessary under the law.

Resolved, That the Quorum of Twelve and the Bishopric be authorized to take such steps and provide such means as in their judgment shall be proper to relieve the members of the Presidency from their present financial burdens and encumbrances (if any shall be found) and provide for the support of themselves and families according to the law, thus leaving them free and untrammelled to attend exclusively to the duties of the office of the Presidency.

Resolved, That the Board of Publication be requested to act in accord with the foregoing and release said brethren from all obligations connected with the editing of the HERALD.

Commenting on this action of the conference, the late President Joseph Smith, in an editorial in the HERALD of May 9, 1891, said:

When this resolution was voted upon the Presidency voted, nay; though it was adopted by a very great majority.

The Presidency voted against the resolution for the following reasons: 1st, It is their understanding that the control and management of the HERALD affairs are vested in the Board of Publication, and that the board must be left at liberty to provide for the editorial staff upon their judgment. 2d, The Presidency objected to that portion of the resolution which made it to be a part of the duty of the Twelve to look after temporal affairs, directing and controlling the steps or measures necessary to be adopted to release the Presidency; deeming it to be within the duties of the Bishopric; assisted, if need required, by the High Council, which is now organized and in condition to perform the duties attaching to it by the organic law of the church.

The Presidency have not the slightest desire to remain in the editorial control of the HERALD, or indeed to be connected with the office in any capacity, beyond the usefulness that they may be to the general good of the work. When in the judgment of those whose duty it is to look after the affairs of the HERALD, the services of the Presidency, both, or either of them are not needed, there will be no hesitancy on our part to lay down the utensils of the profession and retire from the office. And should it at any time become apparent to them that they were no longer acceptable to the general church as editors of the church organ, to hold further would be an act of egotism which neither is willing to exhibit.

Please note: "It is their [the Presidency's] understanding that the control and management of the HERALD affairs are vested in the Board of Publication, and that the board must be left at liberty to provide for the editorial staff upon their judgment."

The second charge is that "the 'official' character of the HERALD has thus been changed"—because it does not represent the Presidency. It is not the understanding of the Board of Publication that the HERALD is the official organ of the church because of any editorial connection the Presidency may have with it, but is the official organ of the church because the action of General Conference made it so, and because it represents the church as a whole and not any single quorum or group. The HERALD was launched in 1860 before there was a president in the Reorganization, and it exists to represent all the interests of the church.

As to the third charge that, "not even the usual courtesies were observed in change of editors"; here is the story: January 29, this year, the Board of Publication, discouraged at the low subscription list of the HERALD, sent a questionnaire to all general conference appointees, branch and district presidents, bishops and Bishop's agents, as well as department heads and publicity agents, asking each one to write the board, frankly stating their opinion regarding the matter. The letters poured in like a flood and were amazing in the sentiment they disclosed throughout the church and among all classes.

On the basis of over six hundred answers a report was drawn up and signed by the special committee of F. B. Blair, E. J. Smith, and Arthur E. McKim, and a summary or analysis was made of the letters as follows:

In analyzing the questionnaire, we give you a cross section of the opinion that seems to prevail throughout the church, and leave it to the board to judge. The comment on the HERALD falls into several general classifications; that is, nearly every letter mentions one or more of the following causes for the present low subscription list.

- (a) That the "Herald" is a class paper. There seems to be a widespread feeling that the HERALD is chiefly interested in education, departmental machinery and methods. The charge is frequently made that the HERALD is over the heads of the great mass of the people and is devoted to matters in which only a few are interested. Hundreds say that the HERALD seems to lack the spiritual quality that formerly characterized it, and that it is not representative of the plain gospel, or the ideals distinctly Latter Day Saint.
- (b) That general unrest and division in the church causes indifference to the "Herald." A great number of the replies indicate that the difficulties of the last few years and the feeling between the leading quorums have had a depressing effect throughout the church, and have resulted in a lack of confidence on the part of wide groups of the Saints. This has grown into indifference, and as a consequence the HERALD has lost many subscribers, and the business department has lost many sales of books and tracts.
- (c) That the "Herald" is censored from a partisan viewpoint. Many show that they believe the HERALD unfair in its selection of material and that it is open to those favoring the Presidency, but closed to those of other opinions. Some of the letters are very bitter on this point, and a large group seem to have lost faith in the fairness of the paper.
- (d) That business conditions adversely affect the "Herald." Business depression, especially as affecting the farmers, is given by many as the cause of the low subscription list. Coupled with this is the price of the HERALD which a very large percentage of the answers claim is too high.
- (e) Dissatisfaction with "Herald" business methods. Many long-standing complaints against the HERALD management are shown, chiefly having reference to mistakes in orders. The practice of cutting subscribers off the list soon after the subscription expires is particularly offensive to many.
- (f) Favorable comment on the "Herald." There are some who write in praise of the HERALD and its editorial policy. Some think that it has a splendid vision and that education should continue to be stressed. Many who would, no doubt, report favorably have not replied; and, of course, dozens of letters offer no criticism of any sort, favorable or otherwise."

We sent a copy of this report, together with a representative assortment of the letters themselves, to the First Presidency on May 9, and asked for their suggestions. We notified them that the consideration of this report would be made the special order of business before the Board for Friday, May 23. On that date the board took the report up for consideration and, not having received any response from the President, adopted the following policy:

Whereas the Board of Publication, acting for the church in the direction and management of the publishing interests, sent a questionnaire throughout the church asking for frank criticism of the church publications;

And whereas the consensus of opinion as reflected in over six hundred answers unquestionably indicates a desire on the part of the members that certain definite policies be established in the conduct of the HERALD,

Therefore, be it resolved by the Board of Publication that the following policy should govern in the editing of the HERALD:

First: Insure an open church press.

Second: Accord space in HERALD columns freely to all general officials on equal and impartial terms.

Third: Allow free and frank discussion of any church problem, only attempting to confine arguments to the affirmative and not permitting destructive or altogether negative criticism.

Fourth: Give the news of the church as fully as possible and without bias.

Fifth: Balance the editorial content of the HERALD so that the educational, doctrinal, departmental, and spiritual factors may each be given proper emphasis. The HERALD should be broad enough to appeal to the membership as a whole, and an earnest effort be made to edit it so that it may minister to the varying groups within the church.

To facilitate the carrying out of the above program and policies, to reduce expenses and to rally the support of all the Saints to the church publications, resolved that the HERALD, Ensign and Autumn Leaves be placed under the direction of a managing editor, and that contributing staffs of six representative church men be chosen for HERALD, and for the Ensign, and a staff of three for the Autumn Leaves.

A few days later, on May 29, the board met with the First Presidency and thoroughly canvassed the matter, the Presidency objecting to the board's action. The board, however, did not feel that it would be justified in abandoning the policies adopted by it, nor rescinding its resolutions of May 23, nor did it think it advisable to accept all the editors suggested by the President. It then proceeded to the election of an editorial staff as shown in the published reports. If this procedure was discourteous, we do not know in what particular we were offenders.

We have made answer at this length so that the case may be very clear. We have sought no powers not hitherto freely acknowledged as belonging to the board, nor have we adopted any policy unfair to a single individual group or quorum. We have acted as we believe the majority of the church rightly demands, and are content to leave the decision to the coming General Conference.

The above statement was unanimously adopted by the Board of Publication in a special called meeting Friday, June 20, and its publication was ordered in the HERALD. BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE,

President Board of Publication.

ARTHUR E. MCKIM,
Secretary.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

Be Ye One

Synopsis of a sermon by S. A. Burgess.

And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat: for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal? Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase. So then neither is he that planteth anything, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase. Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one: and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor. For we are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building. According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise masterbuilder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—1 Corinthians 3: 1-11.

If there is one thing that Jesus while on earth made plain it is the necessity of unity in the church. In that great prayer in the Garden of Gethsemane as recorded in the 17th chapter of Saint John, he repeatedly expressed that desire that they may be one, "Even as we are one, they in me and I in thee, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." This unity for which he pleaded indicates also an individuality, but also they may be one—one in deed, one in spirit, one in devotion to the truth. On very near the same occasion, in the instruction given earlier in the day to his disciples, he gave them anew a command which was from the beginning, that they love one another.

Our scripture reading states frankly, "Ye are yet carnal, for whereas there is among you envyings, strifes and divisions, are ye not carnal? Where one says, I am of Paul, another I am of Apollos, are ye not carnal?"

The Doctrine and Covenants 76: 7 carries it even further, for in describing those of the telestial glory associated with those who are thrust down to hell, it includes several others:

These are they who are of Paul, and of Apollos, and of Cephas; these are they who say they are some of one and some of another, some of Christ, and some of John, and some of Moses, and some of Elias; and some of Esaias, and some of Isaiah, and some of Enoch, but received not the gospel, neither the testimony of Jesus, neither the prophets; neither the everlasting covenant.

This statement in modern revelation is even more striking, for it includes among others some who say they are of Christ, that they are willing to follow Christ, that they are willing to follow their brethren so far as they follow Christ, yet they are actuated by the spirit of evil and of division. They have not received the gospel, neither the everlasting covenant. And while with their lips they may present the divine Master, yet in their hearts they are not following him and do not even know him or the spirit which actuated him. It is not enough to say with our lips that we will follow Christ. It is essential that in our lives we demonstrate that love one for another. As it is well expressed in Amos 3: 3: "Can two walk together except they be agreed?" They certainly are not one; they certainly do not walk together or desire to associate continually together unless they agree.

The Apostle Paul urged the Saints of his day, "Obey them that have the rule over you and submit yourselves, for they watch for your souls as they that must account." In this instance he is evidently referring to the spiritual authorities. Many similar passages are to be found referring to those who have the right of secular government, as 1 Peter 2: 13, 14:

Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme; or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well.

Evidently it is the will of God that they should seek to be at peace and should not give cause for offense, for even in that day there were those who were too ready to find fault with the people of God. Then Ephesians 5: 22 directs, "Wives, submit yourselves unto your husbands," and again 1 Peter 5: 1-3 admonishes:

The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be received: Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock.

Other passages can be found, for there are many that counsel us to be obedient to the powers that be. This did not mean slavery or subjection. It would mean they should strive to live at peace. First Peter 5: 3 shows what should be the attitude of the leaders of the church. They should not act as those who are "lords over God's heritage," but as "examples to the flock."

Again James 3: 1 reads, "My brethren, strive not for mastery, knowing that we shall receive the greater condemnation." Clearly we should not strive for the purpose of defeating our brother, of proving that he is wrong, but rather to establish those things that are peaceful and which are true. We should strive for the truth, for if the spirit of envy actuates us, if secretly we are trying to put down another, if there is the spirit of contention for victory, then whether it be by officer or lay member, it is not right in the sight of God.

On the other hand, we are told repeatedly that we should contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints (Jude 3), that we should contend for truth and faith, that we should strive earnestly for the faith (Philemon 1:27), that we should war a good warfare (1 Timothy 1:18), fight a good fight of faith (1 Timothy 5:12; 4:7). Such instances could be multiplied, as "Put on the whole armor of God." Evidently the right and truth should be contended for, though not in a wrong spirit, not for the sake of injuring others, not for the sake of self-aggrandizement, but for the sake of the truth. It may even be questioned if we do right in remaining silent when great issues are before us, when we seek peace at the cost of righteousness, if we remain silent because of fear of injury, because of hopes of rewards by seeming to agree with those with whom we do not agree. But it is the ignoble motive that is wrong. It is not right to contend, to be always contentious or seeking a cause of offense. We may err in too readily opposing as well as in failing to stand firm for the right and opposing that which is good.

This thought is splendidly expressed in Doctrine and Covenants 129:9:

The Spirit saith further unto the church: The Lord is well pleased with the advancement which has been made in approaching unity during the conference year; and though there may have been differences of opinion, these differences have been held in unity of purpose and desire for the good of my people, and will result in helping to bring to pass a unity of understanding. So be ye encouraged and press on to the consummation designed of God for his people—unity, honor, sanctification, and glory,

Here the church is clearly told that differences of opinion will result in helping to bring to pass a unity of understanding when these differences are held in unity of purpose and desire for the good of the church. At first glance this may seem difficult to understand, though it should not be so. If we simply acquiesce in everything that is suggested, if we refrain or refuse to think for ourselves, we are not then the children of God, for he would reason with his children as one man with another. Again it is written, "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord."

An opinion that is held simply through the authority of another, that is acquiesced in without thought or consideration, is not a real, personal opinion. We are not therefore firmly established in anything, let alone firmly established in the truth and the unity of the sons of God, which is only possible through a knowledge of the truth.

But those who hold differences of opinion in unity of purpose and a desire for the good of the church of God, who are sincerely seeking righteousness, consider well the opinions of others as well as their own. We are not subject to the wisdom and errors of one alone, but every plan is tested, and when the matter is discussed we part, not only as friends, but each one should have a clearer understanding of the subject than he had before. It is truly proving all things, holding fast to that which is good. Differences of opinion held in this spirit, with fair and frank consideration one for another, a sincere desire for the truth, does result in a unity and a certainty of conclusion which cannot be reached in any other way.

Not even implicit obedience can reach a like certainty, because implicit obedience to the ideas of one or more will have to change when the imperfectly formed opinions of one or more are again changed. But through the conference of the sons of God, actuated by the Spirit of God, differences of opinion lead to a unity of understanding, to a unity of faith and a unity of brotherhood. So we are told, "Let us reason together (Isaiah 1:12), bring forth your strong reasons (Isaiah 41:2), prove all things, hold fast to that which is good (1 Thessalonians 2:21), and the Master, in his famous parable of the sower, plainly stated that the good seed is he who hears the word of God and understandeth it (Mark 9, Inspired Version). Such indeed bringeth forth a hundred-fold. If we take one portion of the word of God alone, we may easily come to a personal and even wrong conclusion. But with the help of others all come to better understanding.

Returning again to 1 Peter 2:13-17 we find clearly the statement set forth:

Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme; or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well. For so is the will of God, that with well-doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men: as free, and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God. Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king.

The people of God should be free, but they should not use the claim of freedom, of free agency, of independence of thought, as excuses for maliciousness towards any of the brethren. But they should honor all men, love the brotherhood, and give to God that faith and love which is just. So we read 1 Peter 5:5:

Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

The younger should submit to the elder, yet all should be subject to one another. The submission of wife to husband is not a blind obedience, but there should be that spirit of humility with all, for God "resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble." There should then be no division of rich or poor, of male or female, in an arbitrary sense.

Nor does the priesthood give the authority to lord it over others, but priesthood rather signifies the duty and spirit for service.

In other words, as Paul wrote to the Ephesians:

For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father. Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the Saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit. (3: 18-22.)

"A building fitly framed together unto a holy temple in the Lord." That is the unity of God. Every portion functions in its proper spirit, every portion submitting to every other portion, even the differences of opinion being used under God to bring about a unity of understanding. In that spirit we become the children of God, and the prayer of the Master is answered, that we may be one. Truly, then, we should act as a body rightly fitted together, or as stones fitly framed unto the holy temple of God.

Christ and His Mission

By T. W. Williams

The world needs Jesus Christ; needs him as never before, . . . not as an ancient idol, but as a living power in the world.

Iconoclasm is a good thing at times, but as a steady occupation it means death not only to the object but to the subject of its purpose.

Muck-raking has its legitimate place in the world, but continued as a pastime, a passion, or a profession, produces myopia, or astigmatism, or both.

No one has any legal or moral right to deal with things offensive unless he desires to make the surroundings wholesome, and sweet, and clean. It is a crime to tear down without purpose or plan for reconstruction.

And this presupposes vision and objective. It suggests program. It at once imposes responsibility. It impels one away from narrow and selfish purpose. It takes one out of the self and develops consciousness of the other selves.

An epidemic of suspicion and innuendo and covert suggestion has overtaken America. There is occasion and cause for this. It is possibly true that some men are all and more than others say they are. It is quite evident that there is corruption in high places. But there is more of good in man than bad. God has confidence in the ultimate attainment of the race. We may do well to follow his example. I am concerned lest in directing our attention to the blight and blemish we may lose sight altogether of the beautiful, the good, and true.

One may dwell on human mistakes and follies, one may sit in a corner and bemoan his fate and thereby become impervious to the stimuli which make for adjustment and realization and success. Whatever our condition, we cannot hope to overcome undesirable conditions by constantly pondering over them. At the same time we must not be blind to them. Let us locate the causes of unrest and infidelity and suspicion and eliminate them. An occasional house cleaning is essential to wholesome living. We cannot salve social ulcers and thereby proclaim collective health with any degree of success. It is our bounden duty to diligently inquire into the causes which produce disquietude and unrest. Every man who stands before the people in any capacity must be willing, aye, anxious, to have the spotlight of public scrutiny turned upon him. His life must be as an open book to be easily read of all men. A betrayal of trust should result in a cancelation of the trust.

When the Armistice was signed several years ago, many, many people visualized an immediate millennium. The lamb and the lion were to lie down together. The lion was to eat straw like the ox, men were going to beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, and they would learn war no more.

A great world-wide crusade was instituted. A special and all-embracing international church union was effected. Millions of dollars were collected. It was proposed to take advantage of the psychological effect of war and its horrors and salvage the hopes and purposes of humanity as an asset for Jesus Christ. It was thought that sorrow, and separation, and death, and denial had prepared the race for introspection and perspection. It was proposed to harness what seemed like a wave of spiritual fervor and longing following in the wake of the World War and make it do service in the field of religion.

The newspapers of the Nation were loud in their acclaim of an era of universal peace and good will among the nations. Religious periodicals vied with each other in prophesying a new order of things, when fellowship and fraternity would displace individualism and sectional hate, when understanding and cooperation would be substituted for distrust, and jealousy, and rivalry among the peoples of the world.

The vision was inspiring, but the prophets reckoned not with life as it is. The wish was father of the thought. One cannot immediately emerge from a dense wilderness and appreciate the sunlight. The race cannot with sheer abandon plunge into savagery and barbarism and expect to come forth with clear vision and right perspective.

Out of it all has developed pessimism and despair and abandon which threatens the very foundations of our civilization. Institutions and purposes held sacred throughout the centuries are treated flip-pantly or held in defiance and derision. The home, the relation of the sexes, the attitude of youth to age, respect of children for parents, regard for veracity, consideration for the rights of others, all these have come in for such modification as to startle and sober those who are disposed to make other than a superficial analysis.

Men, serious-minded men, look with alarm at the multiplied evidences of treachery and treason now so common in high places. It is disheartening also to note with what seeming indifference the masses treat these revelations of open and flagrant maladministration on the part of their trusted representatives.

The war settled nothing permanently. Wars never definitely settle vital issues. At best all that a war can possibly do is to reveal superior military powers, rend asunder old compacts and alignments, and possibly pave the way for reconstruction. It may momentarily subjugate one group to another and allow the victors to dominate and direct the life of the victims, but there is nothing constructive in war—nothing on which a real civilization can be builded. The race has progressed in spite of wars, not because of them. The salvage of wars can only exist in the moral and spiritual consciousness of the people.

The old conditions which obtained in Europe prior to the World War still persist, the same old rivalries, the same old ambitions, the same inordinate selfishness both of individuals and peoples. These things which made of Europe a veritable charnal house during the years between 1914 and 1918 still exist and only await the recuperation of the nations to precipitate other wars which, when they come, will be vastly more destructive and more far-reaching in their scope and character.

And what part do we as a Nation and a Christianized people play in this great tragedy? Surely there has come to America and to the Christian men and women of this great land of liberty and democracy, a tremendous responsibility. Upon us rests the hope of the world.

God inspired and led Columbus to discover America. He moved upon our Pilgrim Fathers to forsake the Old World with its rivalries and racial hates, its castes, and its creeds, to come to America and, without crown or king, to establish religious liberty and political freedom.

God raised up wise men, good men, men free from sectarian bias and ecclesiastical domination, to write our immortal Declaration of Independence which proclaimed universal and world-wide brotherhood.

Out of this has grown in a hundred and fifty years a people who are the marvel of the world, a nation rich beyond the dreams of avarice, a nation whose achievements in mechanical and industrial development stands unparalleled in history, a nation whose educational development has brought within the reach of the most humble individual possibilities hitherto undreamed of. We represent a church which sponsors the thought of divine direction in these matters. We believe God has intended that America should become in very deed an asylum for the oppressed of other lands—an ensign to the nations—a land where Christianity can fructify and flower and fruit to the full.

And yet this Nation lacks one thing. It lacks one thing more than aught else, and which we must have if we are to become the power which will steady the nations. We must possess the true spirit and purpose of religion.

There is one personality which we cannot get along without, one inspiring purpose which must dominate and influence our very lives. Lloyd George, that intrepid Welsh wizard, at one time during the dark and cloudy days of the war, and while addressing the British Parliament, gave expression to the thought that one thing was necessary—vitaly necessary—to preserve civilization, and that was the spirit and purpose of Jesus Christ.

We preach Christianity, but I fear that we do not know Jesus Christ as we should. There are times when we carry his message, but our proclamation lacks vitality and life. A modern rationalist voices our thought thus:

Jesus Christ, come back! The tones of your voice have not yet died away. In spite of false creeds and wizard priests through craft and rant, the heart of our age still turns to you. Touch the sorcery of our time and wake us from the vile enchantment of fear and foolish hate. Come! Deliver us from the doom of dead things. Bring life from the grave where faith lies bound. Jesus Christ, come back! Bring dreams and let dreams come true. Bring love that knits all hearts into one. Come back, Jesus Christ, come back!

The world needs Jesus Christ, needs him as never before, not as a fetish, not as a scapegoat, not as an ancient idol, but as a living power in the world, as a witness, leader, commander.

Even the Jews, who have suffered much as the result of their rejection of this their own countryman, are turning to him, as Israel Zangwill so aptly puts it in his Easter message:

When we beheld thy kingdom come on earth,
All eyes upturned to thee, all knees low bent,
Man—swathed in thee as in an element,
Art, music, letters, circling round thy birth,
Bejeweled temples blazoning thy worth,
Jehovah banished to our nomad tents,
Then, brother, thee enthroned with bitter mirth
We left, and on our thorny way we went;
But now that once again we see thee bleed,
Deserted where thy worshipers have bound thee,
The agony is ours, thy homeless need
After such startling glories so to brand thee;
Dear, fainting Jesus, now to thine own seed
Creep home again—who else can understand thee?

Jesus Christ knew no class, no creed, no nation, but allied himself with men. Jesus Christ came as the destroyer of idols. He sought to overthrow tyranny and oppression and make possible equality among men. He is, at once, the hope and inspiration of the ages. For did he not come to “preach the gospel to the poor, to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, and to set at liberty those that are bruised”?

Jesus Christ did not act for himself or of himself. He recognized his dependence upon God, his Father. He placed himself in correspondence with God. He believed in the fatherhood of God, and this fatherhood extended beyond individual purpose; it encompassed all humanity. God is father of the Gentile as well as of the Jew. He is a father to the uncircumcised as well as the circumcised. He is father to the good, the bad, to the learned, and the ignorant, to the immoral as well as the moral. He is father to all. His love extends equally in all directions.

Jesus comprehended brotherhood as comprising ministry, service, love. He at once was brother to everyone and everything, and that brotherhood took in all kinds and classes of men. It included the moral leper and outcast. It said to the man who had lost his way, “Ho ye! Ho ye! come give me your hand, and I'll give you a lift.” It said to the wanton and the dissolute, “Come, look up. I know all about your experiences. I know the cause of your infractions. I will not hold this against you. Come, let me help you to be your real, true self.”

The world needs just such a religion as Jesus brought to men—a religion of fellowship, and friendship; of palship, and good will; a religion which calls out the good in all men; a religion which makes men akin and enlists their courage in common purpose. And this means fellowship and confidence, freedom of expression, cooperation of effort.

Christ did not say, “Come, worship me because I am God, or the Son of God”; but rather, “Come, let me love you and help you to become as God and I are.” He did not try to make others good, for he knew this was impossible. He was concerned only in doing good. The one great lesson which the Master sought to impress on civilization was that a man's attitude towards others must not under any circumstances or consideration be governed by the attitude of others towards him. We have but one duty, and that is to live the positive life—to do good for good's sake.

God grant that each of us may be able to so shape our lives according to the divine plan that we shall make Jesus Christ our great example and be able to carry on his work, that we may look for the beautiful, the good, the true, and seek to lead men to the heights of ministry, and service, and fellowship.

Young People's Convention

A review of the course offered in the church history class at the Young People's Convention, June 6-14, by S. A. Burgess.

The course in church history at the Young People's Convention was not taken up chronologically, but topically. An effort was made to indicate sources and consider each subject in a philosophical way.

An effort was also made to correlate the class work with that done in other classes. The method of approach, however, was always historical. Thus the relation of religion and the church to education in general was considered, since the whole morning each day was largely given over to education, and Graceland College naturally brings that question to the front.

Religious education was given special attention by Roy Cheville and Miss Blanche Edwards, hence a history of religious education, including the Sunday school, was next discussed.

Stewardships, social ideals, social service, are the great themes of the day, and four classes were devoted to various phases of this theme, hence “The city of God” and “Social reconstruction” took about half of the whole series of meetings of this class.

Finally, two or three periods were given to the temples of the church. For there were two classes, and the work was not quite identical in both.

Quoting from memory, “History is the record of the Supreme One through the ages. The only right way to study history is to place oneself in accord with the divine mind, earnestly seeking to read the great lessons of the past.”

The progress of the race would be much more rapid if a record of all the experiments made by mankind—what was done, and how, and what were the results—was not only kept but read. That would prevent the almost endless repetition of the same errors. That is true in physics, in chemistry, and in other sciences; it is true in social science.

We cannot claim to be the only people after whom the Spirit of God has reached. Ancient Israel was called to be a nation of kings and priests unto God; in other words, to be men who know, of understanding hearts (men who ken), and also priests or ministers of God to all people. For the true king is the man who knows and is therefore the humble priest of God, ministering to or serving others.

Before the dawn of history, traditions are found of great revelations. Within the scope of history, the light which lighteneth every man that cometh into the world (John 1; Doctrine and Covenants 85: 1, 2) has been working among the nations and people of earth.

History is not a record of great leaders or kings and their wars. It is not a record of a select class alone. It is a story of peoples, their institutions, their religion, their philosophy, their struggles; it is the storehouse of social science. Or for him who can read, it is deeper still the moving of the divine power back and through the leaders, and with the people, striving to guide them to better living, both in the sense of religion and also in the meaning of social service or sociology.

When we consider the great love of God, it is not surprising that we can find the great ideals of to-day expressed a thousand, two thousand, three thousand years ago, or more. Nor is it a source of discouragement.

Education

It is not therefore a matter of surprise to find that the church of God in every age has always stood to the front on behalf of education; that is, education in the sense of full development of powers and the use of those powers in service to our Father and humanity.

Reference was made to Enoch and to Abraham, both in the Bible account and other records and traditions; also to the remarkable statement in Deuteronomy 6: 4-9. The Hebrew people are always commended among students of ancient peoples for their high stand with regard to the education of their youth. This training, started in the home, was continued by the priests of the synagogue and the rabbin.

But among other ancient people it was generally the case that education was conducted by the priesthood, or priestly caste. This was true in Egypt, India, Babylon, and even among savage races.

Among the later Greeks and the Romans, the state took a larger share in public education. But Jesus was ever the gentle teacher, and the early Christian church shared, if it did not inspire, a revival of learning, though apostasy was followed by superstition and decline.

In the Middle Ages, the cathedral and monastic schools furnished the common as well as advanced culture, and many efforts were made to establish free schools for boys. It is peculiar to realize that a decline set in during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Many objected to what they called "carnal" learning; others objected to all schooling for the masses as dangerous and tending to sedition. The period of 1750 to 1840 is referred to as one of the darkest periods for education in all history, particularly in England, and hence in America in general and especially the south Atlantic States.

There was a general dearth of adequate textbooks. It was in this condition that the church was reestablished on earth in 1830 and commandment given to W. W. Phelps and Oliver Cowdery to prepare school-books for children.

But New England had been and was earnestly working for public education. Harvard College was established in 1640, though small; Yale was started soon after, in order to secure a "school of the prophets"; Brown and other colleges were also started, all of these by different churches of the day but also with public support. But in addition to this, the movement for public schools had its rise as to practical measure in New England, and it was from there the founders of the Restoration came.

From the very beginning, this church has stood firm for education. Joseph Smith, jr., was a student all his life and a leader in securing like opportunities for others. Reference was made, in connection with existing educational conditions, to the common school at Kirtland, the school of the elders, the high school in the Kirtland Temple, schools in Jackson County and at Far West, the University of Nauvoo, the conference resolution of 1869, and finally, to Graceland College.

Religious Education

Religion has been a vital part of education from the earliest times. A brief review followed of the various efforts for the religious education of children prior to Robert Raikes. The conditions in England in 1784, the rise of the Sunday school movement, its high ideals and progress in the first twenty-five years; then the comparatively slow development for the next fifty years to 1860 were tersely discussed. By 1860 conditions were ripe for a rapid forward movement.

The International Sunday School Association in
www.LatterDayTruth.org

1875, uniform and graded lesson texts, teacher training, all belong to the next period, along with the Bible in the public schools, religious education in the week-day schools, junior church, and the church school. This brings us to the problems of to-day.

A brief sketch of our own Sunday schools included a review of the General Conference Resolutions, showing with other church history the closeness at all times of our Sunday school to the church, and the interest taken by leading church officials in the local schools. In 1890 the General Conference provided for the General Sunday School Association. Our various textbooks and quarterlies were discussed, and the splendid opportunity before us to-day for really progressive work was set forth.

Zion—the City of God; Social Reconstruction

As the Spirit of God has moved upon humanity, there have been efforts for social reconstruction from the earliest ages of which we have any record. Such effort to reform existing society has not always been connected with an ideal city, but such has frequently been the case, for the value of right environment has nearly always been recognized.

Reform has been sought (1) in the existing city and state; (2) in a new colony or city to be built now; (3) an ideal city is pictured which is to be erected by man in time; it is an ideal towards which to work; (4) the city is pictured as belonging to the world to come, a heavenly city to be reached after death. However, since we believe this earth is to be celestialized, such a city is still mundane.

From before the dawn of history, the various races of mankind have preserved the story of the state from which man has fallen and to which he hopes to return. Then not only the Bible and Doctrine and Covenants speak of the city of Zion and order of Enoch, but also the Babylonian and other ancient records contain the story.

Jerusalem was the city of peace, wherein the temple was built as a dwelling place for God. But other nations before as well as since have erected their holy cities, with a house of God, a city in which justice and righteousness were presumed to dwell.

The Hebrew prophets, as well as Jesus and his followers, sought to reform the existing evils of their age, and all spoke of the city of God in heaven.

Of ancient non-Jewish writings on this question, probably Plato's Republic is most widely known, though other writers before and after him also discussed it in lesser detail. Of the many writings in the past fifteen hundred years, Plato's Republic has served more or less as a model.

To name only a few of those best known out of the many and discuss them in some detail as examples, there was Augustine's City of God, Savonarola's Theocracy in Florence, Italy, More's Utopia, Bacon's New Atlantis, Campanella's City of the Sun, Harrington's Oceana; followed by Babeuf, Owen, Blanc, Morelly, Bellamy, Wells, Hertzka, the Shakers, Cabot, the Amana Society, and the Harmony Society. Nor would a discussion of the general theme be complete without reference to the economic organization among the Israelites, the ancient secret orders, and the monastic system of the Middle Ages.

This historical review served as a basis to consider the history of the church in Kirtland, Independence, Far West, Nauvoo, Plano, Lamoni, and again Independence, with the various city plans and their significance for the time when presented, when cities and towns were built without a plan.

Then what was attempted and how far succeeded in each place in stewardships, how property was held, and why.

Finally, comparison of the Zionie plan and stewardship in the church with these earlier plans, and the advantage of the plan of our church, with its clear recognition of the family life and homes, and the common interest served through the storehouse.

Temples

At the close of the week, pictures of the temple lot in Independence, the temple lot in Far West, Nauvoo Temple, and a number of pictures of Kirtland Temple, both interior and exterior views, including the vestibule, vestry room, and a room on the third floor were shown, and a brief history given of each site. Especial attention was given to Kirtland Temple, the revelation commanding, the efforts and sacrifices made to build, the completion and dedication, and the vision of April, 3, 1836, received in the temple by Joseph Smith, jr., and Oliver Cowdery.

The character of the temple, its situs on the hill, the size of the building, and its division and interior arrangements, its veils and pulpits in both the lower and upper auditorium were discussed in some detail. Emphasis was laid on the fact that this is the only temple standing to-day built by commandment of God and accepted by the endowment of his Spirit. Also attention was called to the fact that Kirtland Temple was used for prayer and preaching services and other general meetings, and that the Nauvoo Temple was built for general services, to hold the conferences of the church and for regular meetings to which nonmembers were admitted.

The purpose of the course throughout was to help the class to a better understanding of our present problems, and cause them to feel the hand of our heavenly Father over them and all nations. The Spirit of God reaches after the honest in heart in every age.

CHURCH NEWS

New Church Home Purchased; Splendid Interest Demonstrated

VALLEY CENTER, MICHIGAN, June 16.—The work in this place is moving steadily onward. The Saints are in a high spiritual condition. The priesthood, consisting of two elders and two priests, are filling their offices and laboring unitedly for the onward progress of the Lord's cause.

Our numbers have increased to the extent that our church building could no longer accommodate the membership, and we had of late many nonmembers for which to provide room. As we were on the verge of building a new church, the Methodist Church offered for sale their brick structure here, which was well finished and equipped with church facilities and ready to step in and occupy.

Our church voted to buy, and we did, so are now occupying the new quarters. This places us in full possession of the entire religious movement in this village and vicinity.

Sunday, June 15, four more were added to our number by baptism, Elder Muir officiating. They were two bright young boys and two married ladies of very wealthy and respectable families, both having been very fervent members of popular churches. They will be a great help and have much influence over others in their sphere.

The Lord is richly blessing his people here. Elder E. D. Finken recently preached some good sermons for us while home on a visit. Our really wide-awake Sunday school is very ably presided over by Thomas Isles. Our chorister, Sister Susie Bernadine Muir, is alert to the duties of her office and attends well to the musical part, giving great assistance to all services.

A program committee of three, elected annually, provides a program for each day of prominence. We also have a social committee which takes care of all social events. With our well-organized forces at work in the branch, we can see where religion as a reality is demonstrated. We are receiving from the gospel what God promised would be revealed through the message of peace. The outside world cannot help but feel the effect. In fact, the result is proving so.

We are interested in the triumph of God's work, and we labor and pray for the accomplishment of his divine purposes leading up to the redemption of his people. May the day be not far distant when we shall sense fully the importance of this work of God and the necessity of living the religion of Jesus Christ.

Men Called to Priesthood—Young Brother Loses Arm

WATERLOO, IOWA, June 16.—In our sacramental service June 1, the spirit of prophecy through Brother Hall, our branch president, called Brother William H. Wood to the office of elder; also Brother Guy Haynes to the office of priest.

Our young brother, Lyman Roosa, a foreman in a factory here, while adjusting a belt on to a pulley which was in motion, had his clothing caught on a revolving shaft and was thrown around in such a manner that his right arm was severed just above the elbow. Prompt help in getting him to the hospital and securing aid saved him from bleeding to death. He is now doing as well as circumstances permit, but he still needs the prayers of the Saints.

Spiritual Meeting and Good Special Exercises at San Jose

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA, June 11.—The sacramental service on the first of the month was in charge of the pastor, assisted by Elders J. M. Range and C. J. Cady; also Robert E. Cowden, priest. A very spiritual social meeting was had after the passing of the emblems, the time being fully and profitably occupied. The Spirit, speaking through the pastor, gave comfort and encouragement to those who evidenced by their testimony that they were trying to fit and qualify themselves for the Master's service.

Mothers' Day and Children's Day were both observed by the branch here. Elder C. J. Cady was the speaker on both occasions, and his sermons were much appreciated by the congregation.

On May 30 the Sunday school held its annual picnic, which was attended by about fifty of the Saints and their friends. All seemed to have a very enjoyable time.

On account of other diversions, there was not a large attendance at the midweek prayer meeting this week, but the few that were there all took part in the meeting, some in prayer, some in testimony, and some in both. A very enjoyable meeting was had. The Lord made good his promise, Where a few are gathered together with true purpose of heart, I will bless.

We are expecting a thinning out in our branch here soon. Cupid is reaping a harvest among our young people, and in the near future expects to deport at least a half dozen of them to what they no doubt hope will be more genial climes. May peace and happiness attend them; and may they not hold any grudge against Cupid afterwards.

We are expecting Elder G. H. Wixom here the latter part of next week to assist Cupid and to hold some more meetings.

Encouraging Activity and Special Blessings at Sacramento

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, June 9.—Mothers' Day, May 11, was fittingly observed here. The theme was emphasized in the program in the different departments. Special music was rendered by the choir of women's voices at the morning service. One pretty feature was the passing of flowers to the congregation during one solo number, by several small girls. Elders T. J. Lawn and W. H. Dawson were the speakers for the day. A large attendance was had, as occurs on every special occasion.

Healing Follows Administration

Sacramento Sunday was another enjoyable day. Brother and Sister George Vallem, of Lodi, were visitors. They and others bore testimony of appreciation of Brother Vallem's good health, regained through administration by the local elders, after the doctors had given up all hope, when he suffered a frightful injury by being gored by an enraged bull, over a year ago, at his farm home near Lodi. Since the accident Sister Vallem became interested in the work and was baptized, and she also received a great physical blessing through administration. All praise was given to the living God.

Children's Day Program Broadened

Children's Day was observed here June 8. Elder George H. Wixom spoke for us both morning and evening, with hearty support by the choir, and is to occupy three evenings this week at the church, going on to Chico for Sunday. A fine attendance greeted Brother Wixom as usual, and all enjoyed the messages presented. At the close of the morning service, a baptismal service was had in the church font. Brother Wixom officiated. Five boys and one girl, our Sunday school pupils, and one woman, were baptized and later confirmed, Brother Wixom and the local priesthood acting. The sister baptized is the daughter of our aged Sister C. W. Blair, a pioneer member here and branch clerk for over thirty-five years, as well as Sunday school superintendent for a great many years, and a faithful worker in all departments. This being the only member of her family to ever join the church brought tears of joy to her and gladness to all. As a number of Saints from near-by towns came in for this day, by previous arrangement a lunch was prepared, and all met at a local park with a number of the local members, including Brother Wixom, and over forty enjoyed a bounteous spread together.

Sister C. H. S. Bidwell, assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, has acted as superintendent by request of the latter officer for the past four months, doing a creditable work. On our several special days she has provided programs of excellent talent from our local townspeople, both children and adults.

The Department of Recreation and Expression, with Brother W. H. Dawson, leader, maintains a good interest. A novel feature has been the assigning of programs of successive evenings, with a good response, to the various groups, such as the boys, Oriole Girls, choir, and Department of Women. There are two classes for study, the older group continuing the Zionie themes, and the younger class the Book of Mormon study. This latter class includes the young people and is much enjoyed by them.

Good Attendance at Tunnel Hill; Many Activities

TUNNEL HILL, ILLINOIS, June 14.—This writing finds Mrs. Sparling and myself at this point, at the quiet and beautiful home of Brother and Sister Dan Casey, where we are made welcome. The old missionaries well know that this has been the home of all for many years. They know how to make one welcome.

We are holding meetings at what is known as the little red schoolhouse, which the few Saints here bought and fixed up for services, and their efforts are rewarded with a full house each night. It is only another proof of what a few faithful ones can do when they are willing to try. The secret is, the Department of Women.

I was called away to Mount Carmel to preach the funeral sermon of Lenora Hood, the daughter of Brother and Sister Luther Griess. The night I was gone, Sister Sparling, as the district worker for the Department of Women, very satisfactorily filled the appointment with a lecture on home influence.

I wish to state that our district conference which was held at Marion was well attended, and the visiting Saints were highly entertained and cared for in the city park with a very elaborate spread of such things as contribute to the sustenance of the outward man. After that five young ladies were baptized.

On Friday night previous to convening of conference, the large congregation which gathered at the church were very highly pleased and entertained with a pleasing program presented by the Sunday school and visiting talent. The audience were favored by readings from three local girls who have participated in different intellectual meets over southern Illinois. Two of them have won laurels for their high schools. Each of them displayed in a high degree their control of a valuable talent, with others who participated. There were also some very nice vocal duets and solos rendered, accompanied by the talented pianist, Veneda Casey, who also presented a piano solo in a very masterly way.

Altogether the conference was very peaceful and spiritual. The preaching was of the very best and proved beyond doubt that there is young talent developing, which is no doubt pleasing to God and very satisfactory to us older ones and all who are interested in the welfare of the district.

HENRY SPARLING.

Fine Conditions and Profitable Day at Perry

DES MOINES, IOWA, June 17.—Just thought I would write and tell you about our very enjoyable and busy day spent at Perry with the Saints there last Sunday, June 15.

We had Sunday school at ten o'clock with Sister Mollie Bolander, the efficient superintendent, in charge. After study period a short program was rendered which was enjoyed by all present. At eleven there was preaching by the writer from the text, "Seek ye first the kingdom of heaven." A splendid audience was present, and good attention was given.

At two o'clock we again met at the church to proceed from there to Beaver Creek, where we held baptismal service in charge of Elder Partridge, and three precious souls were immersed in the waters, Brother E. C. Kibby, the faithful pastor of the little flock at Perry, officiating.

Those baptized were Mrs. Eva George and her daughter Mildred, and another little girl whose name has now fled from my memory. The countenances of all three reflected the joy that was in their souls as they came forth from the watery grave: all splendid people, who, we think, will prove themselves "valiant soldiers" as time shall render opportunity.

Brother Partridge will be remembered by many people of Lamoni and vicinity as having been at one time pastor of the Methodist congregation there. He and his good wife are rejoicing in the gospel and are among the valuable assets of the Perry Branch.

Through the kindness of some one present who had a car, dear old Sister Grandma Moore, who has been afflicted for some time and not able to attend any services, was able to be present at the baptism and rejoice with us at witnessing the induction of three more precious souls into the kingdom.

At four o'clock we again assembled in the church, where we had confirmation service and prayer and testimony meeting. The Spirit of the Master was present, to the joy and encouragement of all. Brother Kibby was in charge of this service, and Brother Partridge and the writer did the confirming.

Religio was at quarter of seven, the whole hour being given over to a concert by Sister Nellie Martin and her music pupils, with some outside talent assisting. This was a most excellent program and spoke well for the talents of the performers and the ability of their teacher. The youngest pupil was a little girl five and a half years of age, who brought down the house by her excellent performance on the steel guitar. Sister Martin is an indefatigable missionary, as well as music teacher, and says that two more of her pupils have signified their intention of being baptized in the near future. These, when they are baptized, will make five converts to her credit within the year. She also has three others very much interested.

Sister Martin is a 1924 graduate of the Progressive Series Course, passed their very difficult examination with a grade of 94, and received a letter from the examining board congratulating her on the high grade made for so difficult a course.

At eight o'clock, preaching service in charge of Brother Partridge, the writer again occupying as speaker. Subject: "Knowing the Lord." Another good audience and good attention.

And thus a busy, enjoyable, and profitable day came to an end. Brother and Sister Deal and Sister Turner, of Woodward, and others were welcome visiting Saints, and quite a number of nonmembers were present at all the services.

The church was decorated with flowers, and we were all happy.

The branch at Perry is small, but we have some splendid and devoted Saints there who, we think, will cheerfully hold the banner of King Immanuel aloft and successfully carry it forward in their community.

Fraternally, E. O. CLARK.

Warton Completes Change in Church Buildings

WARTON, ONTARIO, June 16.—It has been some time since you have heard from here, but though it has been so, we have not been resting on our oars, so to speak.

Some two months ago we made a motion that we were either going to repair our old habitation as a church building or purchase another. Upon inquiry we were informed we could purchase, in exchange for our building, a fine brick building, with but a small amount to be paid as difference in the exchange. Our people made the deal for this building which our predecessors in church work here tried to purchase eighteen years ago.

During the past two months our people have worked long and hard, painting and repairing this building so that we could feel proud of it and could invite our religious friends.

Two weeks ago we had the privilege of having our aged brother, Patriarch John Shields, with us for sacramental service. The Lord saw fit to use our brother in the gift of tongues and interpretation. The Saints in general were commended for the work done, some individuals were spoken to and told that their work was acceptable unto God, while two were called to the office of elder and one to the office of priest. Everyone was made to rejoice.

Yesterday we had our official church opening. A good spirit prevailed throughout. Our social service was at half past nine, preaching at eleven, also at half past two and at seven, by Elders Percy Farrow, James Monison, and Joseph Yager.

We are encouraged in the work done thus far, giving our church here a brighter outlook than it has had for years.

Good Organization in the Twin Cities

TWIN CITIES, MINNESOTA, June 19.—The Minneapolis Branch is working very hard to complete the enlargement of their church building in time for the reunion next month, and the work is progressing rapidly. With voluntary labor of from twelve to fifteen men every evening and some during the day, the additional floor space and other improvements in arrangement and appearance are fast materializing. Supper is furnished by the Department of Women, so that the men can go directly to the church from their regular employment.

The Department of Women is also doing nobly in raising funds to pay for the materials through sewing and other work. An ice cream social held the first part of the month netted over thirty dollars for the building fund.

Six young people from the Twin Cities attended the convention at Lamoni, and they are now back full of enthusiasm and eager to carry over some of the excellent spirit of the convention into the work of the branch.

Young people's prayer meetings, held every Sunday morning at half past eight, are being well supported, and are of much benefit and encouragement to the young people.

News has been received that Sister McDowell, as well as President F. M. McDowell, will be here at the reunion; also Sister Hield to represent the Department of Women. The reunion is scheduled to start on time, with all arrangements and plans made, to begin July 3 and last until July 13.

A Successful Ten-Day Revival at Troy

TROY, KANSAS, June 16.—The work in this branch is moving along, striving to hold the fort. Brother J. D. Stead, of our missionary force, and Brother F. G. Hedrick, a local man, held a ten-day meeting at the Fanning church this spring. All were revived and edified.

The young people's department have a volley ball court on the church lawn and are very enthusiastic, having won all games played so far this season.

There was an Easter program, also a Mothers' Day program as specials.

Edna Dittmore, of Troy, Kansas, attended the Young People's Convention and reports a very profitable and enjoyable session with others of like precious faith.

Miss Vera Twombly, of Fanning, is attending summer school at the Kansas University. She is surely missed in our young people's department.

Several Welcome Visitors at Rockford

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS, June 17.—The Saints here at Rockford are still trying to uphold the banner of truth.

Easter Sunday a program in charge of the teachers of the Sunday school was much enjoyed, all of the children and many of the older ones taking part.

April 27 Elder and Sister Hayer, of Marseilles, Illinois, and Elder J. Cooper, of DeKalb, Illinois, met with us. The members here always welcome visiting Saints, and we hope these will come again soon, and that others will not forget us. We were glad to meet Sister Hayer again and learn that she had just organized a Department of Women at Belvidere.

On Mothers' Day the Department of Women had charge of the morning services and were very fortunate in securing Sister W. L. Christy, of Beloit, Wisconsin, to give the address, and Sister William Pinkerton and daughter, of Belvidere, to render the musical numbers.

One of the many visitors from Belvidere was Sister Michail, of California, whom we had not met for many years. We were more than glad to learn that she expects to make her home with her daughter, Sister Pinkerton.

Brother Vowels, priest, and his family, of Garden Prairie, Illinois, met with us on May 25, Brother Vowels preaching at the morning hour. His remarks were very instructive and showed deep study. He informed us that preaching was a new work for him, but he need not feel discouraged, as the Lord is surely blessing his effort.

Sacramental Sunday, June 1, Elder J. O. Dutton, of Madison, Wisconsin, and a large number of Saints from Garden Prairie met with us.

Monday, June 2, the Saints had planned to meet at the home of our pastor, Elder J. A. Dan, 1532 Benton Street, to meet Elder Dutton's wife, but it rained so hard we didn't dare leave our homes.

The Department of Women are coming right to the front, meeting every week, getting ready for a bazaar in the fall. They are studying the Mothercraft Manual and are finding it very instructive. They met at the home of Sister Fred Kell on June 11, as a surprise party for Sister Mabel Ferguson, it being her birthday. Many beautiful and useful presents were received by her.

We were sorry to learn that the mother of W. L. Dennis, a priest in our branch, is in a very critical condition at her home in Madison, Wisconsin.

Some time ago, two of our number were called to the priesthood: Brother James Ferguson to the office of priest, and Brother Fred Kell to the office of teacher. Brother Ferguson has been ordained, but Brother Kell is not quite ready yet. We are sure he will be soon, as the Lord blessed him so abundantly when he was searching for the light.

Thus the work goes on, but we need the prayers of the Saints, and our prayers are for the advancement of this work.

Des Moines District Holds Large Conference

Elder F. T. Mussell writes from Des Moines, Iowa, to the Presidency as follows:

"Our conference one week ago passed off pleasantly, and I think profitably to all who were present. It was said to be the largest gathering for a conference in this district for some years. A spirit of harmony and peace pervaded each session. There were nine men ordained to different orders of the priesthood as follows: deacons, 2; teachers, 1; priests, 3; and elders, 3.

"This increase in the ranks of our local forces should be a help in the various localities and be a means of greater activity in the district work, as they are all men in the prime of life and strength of manhood, and their labors will be recognized in the upbuilding of the work intrusted to our care.

"Brother J. F. Garver was with us and was feeling at his best, and while his labors were strenuous, yet he acquitted himself creditably. His counsels were enjoyed, his sermons inspired, and his presence appreciated."

W. L. Christy, Former City Missionary, and Others Visit Chicago Saints

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, June 19.—First Chicago Branch is pressing on and trying to advance the great latter-day work. Our attendance at church services and Sunday school is good. We had the pleasure of hearing our ex-city missionary when Brother W. L. Christy dropped in on the last Sunday in May.

On June 3 our Religio Department secured a gentleman from the Western Electric Company who very ably gave a lecture regarding moving pictures, the telephone, and the construction thereof. This was an evening well spent. We also had some solos from a radio singer of prominence.

Our pastor, Brother Bone, spoke to us on June 1 about the financial law. This is a law that shows how much we are in the faith.

On the 8th our district vice president, Brother O. A. McDowell, was in our midst and gave us one of those sermons for which he is noted. Everyone who heard his talk could not help but have a greater determination to press on.

In the observance of Children's Day the older people entertained the children. Pretty plants were distributed to all the children present.

We were given a most excellent sermon on the 15th by Brother Philemon Pement. Brother Pement digs deep in the storehouse of knowledge of spiritual things. In the evening all were agreeably surprised when Brother F. F. Wipper arrived. We are always pleased to welcome home those who are in active service.

We are preparing for the district conference to be held at Mission Branch. The Bishop's agent, Brother R. N. Burwell, dropped in recently and gave us a talk on financial law. Sister Burwell also visited with us.

Brother Hadley and his mother, of Wisconsin, are now in our midst. Brother Yarrington was a visitor last Sunday, and we also had Brother Ely, of Niagara Falls, New York. Visitors are always welcome.

Santa Ana Will Do Her Bit

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, June 10.—Leonard S. Rhodes was pleasantly surprised on the morning of June 10, upon his return from work at Orange, to find a couple waiting to be married. The happy couple were Charles J. Dahl, of Los Angeles, and Sister Mattie J. Swinney, formerly of San Bernardino, now of Los Angeles. They were married at half past twelve in the parsonage. Sister Rhodes and Mrs. Sheldon were the witnesses. After a brief honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Dahl will be at home at 5913 South Flower Street, Los Angeles.

We rejoice with the Los Angeles Saints that Brother Walter W. Smith is to become their pastor. Of course Los Angeles is not Santa Ana, but we are hoping we may be permitted to borrow him sometimes and profit by his able sermons.

Sister Olive Clapp, Sunday school superintendent, has recently returned from a short vacation in San Francisco, where Brethren Wixom and Hull are holding aloft the banner of King Immanuel.

On Sunday, June 8, Brother Rhodes preached a sermon on "What lack I yet?" dealing principally with filing inventories, paying tithing, and the giving of offerings by all, from the children up. We promise the Bishop that he can count on Santa Ana to respond with their tithes and offerings on the consecration days, not because a sermon was preached, but because here is a band of some of the most loyal Saints in the church. Now, altogether, Santa Ana, the church and your pastor are counting on you.

Looking Forward to the Onset Reunion

A special feature of the reunion at Onset this year will be a young people's convention, under the personal direction of President F. M. McDowell. In the Convention Arrow from Lamoni we read:

"The class taught by Brother McDowell was packed to capacity Tuesday morning, as it has been every morning since the opening. The subject is a live one, so that it is small wonder that each class is always interested and the hour is one of such enjoyment to all present. It is too bad that the work cannot be held for a month or two. I'm sure each one would go back with a renewed vigor to make the effort to solve the 'problems of human living together' as Brother McDowell is teaching it to us."

Brother McDowell will conduct the same class at Onset, and no young person can afford to miss it.

Volley ball, playground ball, and tennis tournaments, swimming, and boating will furnish ideal recreation. Everyone is invited. Come and enjoy the reunion with us from July 26 to August 10.

E. L. TRAVER.

Lamoni Stake Items

Hiteman

Since our last report of the Hiteman Branch to the HERALD, we have passed through some severe persecution and also uplifting experiences.

A Reverend Carl Bassett, of Pasadena, California, evangelist, was holding revival meetings in the Baptist church. He made a number of false accusations concerning our work and our people. We felt then it was quite a trial, but it has since proved to be a blessing, as our young people are more desirous of studying the work so that they can defend it in times like this. Furthermore, it was the means of hastening the baptism of some who were greatly interested in the gospel story. Brother Holloway, on Sunday, May 4, baptized Mr. and Mrs. Adam Clark and daughter Edith, Mrs. Reese Williams and daughter Nellie, and Elizabeth Bennett. All of these are fine additions to our membership.

Brother W. E. Prall, of Lamoni, held a series of meetings from May 25 to June 1 which was a great strength to the Saints here. The meetings were well attended and very inspiring. Sunday, June 1, was home-coming day, and Saints attended from Taylorville, Illinois; Des Moines, Knoxville, Pershing, Albia, Frederic, Chariton, and Lucas, Iowa. The Department of Women served luncheon and dinner in the church, cafeteria style. They have long since won an enviable reputation in this line.

At half past one a baptismal service was held at which time Brethren Ed Rowley and Prall baptized the following: Mrs. Sam Davis, Mrs. W. I. Bates, Marjorie Marshall, Jennie Allison, Margaret Allison, and Clarence Bennett, of Hiteman, Iowa. Brother Prall endeared himself to the people during his short stay here. On Wednesday evening, May 28, after preaching service, the choir surprised him at the home of Brother Dave Smith. Many games were greatly enjoyed, and appetizing refreshments were served. As the parting time came, our choir director, John T. (Nobby) Wilkinson, presented him with a fountain pen in behalf of the choir.

After the closing sermon on Sunday evening, he was followed home by a large crowd and serenaded, and presented by our branch president, Brother William Wilson, with a purse of money, which was the closing scene of another grand spiritual feast for the Hiteman Branch.

Our Sunday school lost several members during the attack on our church but has gained many new ones. Our attendance previous to this was from eighty to ninety, and it now stays around the one hundred twenty mark. It has also been active in rendering programs. Owing to so many of our singers helping with the community Easter program and the chorus for the baccalaureate service which came on Mothers' Day, our programs for both of these days were held at the morning service and were attended by large and appreciative audiences. Brother Robert Zimmerman, of Lovilia, brings his orchestra over on special occasions, which is greatly appreciated.

The choir rendered a forty-minute musical program on Sunday evening, June 1, and three musical programs at Lovilia during Brother Holloway's discourses there. One Bluebird and two Oriole circles have been organized recently, led by Misses Ann Morgan and Ruth Smith and Mrs. Leona Burk. A Young People's Bible Study Club has also been formed, to meet one evening a week. Preparations are under way at present to form a Bible study club for the married folks.

Our branch has also been strengthened by the addition of Brother and Sister Ed Rowley and family, who recently moved here from Dallas; and Brother and Sister Floyd Barker, of Taylorville, Illinois, are expecting to locate here, as he has a position in a barber shop in Albia.

We are enjoying visits from Brother and Sister William Phillips and family, Brother and Sister Joseph Wilson and daughter, of Taylorville, Illinois; Brother and Sister Alex Miller and son, of Vincennes, Indiana, and Brother and Sister Thomas Williams and son, of Wichita, Kansas. Clyde Phillips and wife, Sister Elsa Phillips, of Taylorville, Illinois, were here for several weeks.

The graduation class this year had several members of our faith, of whom Miss Nell Morgan received first class honors and Charlie Burk third.

Holden Stake News

Holden

Elder R. W. Farrell, pastor of the church at Warrensburg, preached in Holden Sunday, June 8, at eleven o'clock.

An ordination meeting was held at eleven o'clock, June 15, Apostle E. J. Gleazer having charge. The following were ordained to the stake high council: Glau W. Rodger and Roscoe F. Moorman, of Sedalia, and Carl V. Hopkins, of Grandview. Brethren Gleazer, Phillips, and Krahl officiated in the ordinations. The Spirit was present throughout the entire service.

The introductory hymn, "God is marshaling his army," was sung, followed by prayer by President W. S. Macrae. Sister Enola Baker very feelingly sang the song written by President F. M. Smith, "Come, thou sweet Comforter." President F. A. McWethy offered a special prayer preparatory to the ceremony.

Brother Gleazer, following the ordinations, delivered a powerful sermon, to the appreciation of the Saints. The addition of these brethren to the council fills the vacancies existing. Men of the attitude of these brethren can only bring success to the cause of Christ.

In the afternoon the stake high council met at the stake office for the consideration of business preparatory to the conference, which meets at Knobnoster June 21 and 22. Bishop A. B. Phillips met with the council and presented some matters which he had considered.

The evening hour was occupied with a very splendid discourse by Bishop Phillips.

Lexington

We had one of the best and most spiritual services Sunday at eleven o'clock that we have ever had here. At a quarter of seven six children were baptized and were confirmed at the beginning of the program. Two babies were blessed at the same meeting. The Spirit of God was present throughout the entire day.

Blue Springs

The Saints at Blue Springs held their first sacramental service Sunday, the work having been opened at this place one month ago. Two children were blessed, the infant daughter of Brother and Sister C. A. Mills, and the other the youngest child of Brother and Sister W. E. Oglesvie.

The outlook is bright at this place. The average attendance is about twenty-five, including four nonmembers. Services are held every Sunday: Sunday school at a quarter of ten, preaching at eleven.

Warrensburg

About two thousand students had enrolled for the summer term at the State Teachers College for the opening week, beginning June 10. Later arrivals are expected to raise this to two thousand five hundred. Among this number are fifteen of our young people who are preparing to teach or raise their qualifications in the profession. Four are from Butler, Missouri, and have schools for this winter in their home districts.

Independence

An indoor farewell reception for Brother Walter W. and Sister Eunice Winn Smith was held in the building on the Campus, Friday evening. This was given by the executive officers of the Stone Church Sunday school, the teachers of the beginner department, and the members of the K. I. P. Class. Sister Smith has been superintendent of the beginner department for nearly eight years; Brother Smith has taught the K. I. P. Class for about three years.

A few games were played, after which C. B. Hartshorn, on behalf of the Sunday school of which he is general superintendent, expressed appreciation for the work of the two who are leaving. C. J. Cox, president of the K. I. P. Class, presented Brother Walter with a bill purse, a gift from the class, and he expressed the appreciation of the K. I. P.'s for the devotion which Brother Smith had given to the interests of the class. He also offered to the Sunday school executives the services of the class, if needed as officers and teachers.

Brother and Sister Smith made response, then Sister Russell Etzenhouser led the group in three songs, the last of which was, "God be with you till we meet again." Refreshments of ice cream, cake, and punch were served.

Miss Frances Van Fleet, of Cucamonga, California, on her way home from Graceland stopped at Independence a few days to visit with Misses Mary and Nellie Curtis.

Mrs. Clara Belle Houghton and Miss Isabel Houghton, of Davenport, Iowa, are visiting this week with Doctor Florence Houghton at Independence.

Mrs. Laura Jervis, of Lamoni, Iowa, is a guest this week of her daughter, Marcella Schenck.

Among those registered at the Young People's Convention the latter part of last week are found the names of the following from Independence: Carlyle Bernhard, Sara Butler, Mrs. Mamie A. Closson, Mrs. A. K. Dillee, James A. Fligg, R. O. Flanders, James D. Gault, Frank Hill, Nellie Halstead, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hartshorn, R. V. Hopkins, Grace Lovell, Mrs. Louis Miller, Mrs. J. Charles May, Mrs. J. V. Newberry, Louise Newton, Gladys Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Reese, Mr. and Mrs. Hale W. Smith, Ellis Short, sr., Ellis Short, jr., and Lillian Zimmermann.

L. G. Holloway, A. Carmichael, J. F. Garver, C. E. Wight, and George N. Briggs, of Lamoni, have been seen in town this week.

Brother and Sister George Barraclough, of East Saint Louis, Illinois, were among the campers this week at the tourist quarters on the Campus. They are motoring to California and expect to be sight-seeing until the middle of September. They plan to visit some of the Saints' congregations along their way, if the brethren and sisters will welcome them in tourists' attire. Sister Barraclough is the author of "Easter dawn," the pageant which was rendered in many branches this spring.

Brother Walter W. Smith preached his farewell sermon at the Stone Church Sunday morning. Patriarch I. N. White, who converted him to the faith, occupied in the stand with him. Brother Smith said that of all the titles which had been bestowed he liked best that of "Brother Walter," which gave him a feeling of being folks together. At the close of his talk, Sister Smith spoke a few words in appreciation of the friendship she had enjoyed with the Saints of Independence.

"God be with you till we meet again" was feelingly sung as the benediction song.

President F. M. Smith attended the Northeastern Illinois conference at the Mission Branch the latter part of the week.

Apostle Roy Budd preached in Holden, Missouri, Sunday.

Brother E. J. Gleazer occupied at the Campus, talking on "Eternal life." This he said was not a gift, but a condition won by each person who would enjoy it. The band was present and gave their usual half hour of good music.

The second quorum of deacons and their families, with a few invited guests, enjoyed at the Campus, Sunday noon, a picnic lunch, a worshipful program, and an address. This is an annual June occurrence, and is planned for the obtaining of closer social contact, better understanding of their work, and general advancement.

President F. M. and Sister Ruth Smith extended invitations to all the Saints' congregations of Independence to the wedding of their daughter Alice to Brother F. Henry Edwards, at the Stone Church, at eight o'clock on the evening of June 27.

Miss Rogene Anderson, daughter of Sister Audentia Anderson, of Omaha, Nebraska, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Alfred W. Hulmes.

Brother Albert Zimmermann, who has been visiting his sister Lillian, left for his home in Philadelphia last Thursday.

Mrs. John R. Green entertained Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Richard Kelley, of Philadelphia. About forty-five enjoyed the pleasant time together. Brother Kelley and the children are also here.

Mrs. Arthur E. McKim gave a bridal shower in honor of Miss Alice M. Smith Thursday afternoon, June 19.

A very pretty wedding occurred Tuesday evening, June 24, at the Stone Church. Miss Celia Gunsolley, daughter of Brother and Sister V. W. Gunsolley, was united in marriage to Robert Fred Vardeman, son of Doctor and Mrs. R. W. Vardeman, of this city. The wedding was at 8 o'clock with President Elbert A. Smith officiating. Miss Alta Butler was maid of honor, Miss Velma Paxton and Miss Lillian Williams, bridesmaids. Mr. William C. Vardeman acted as best man, and Claire Turney, of Lamoni, Iowa, and Foster Hulse, of Independence, were attendants. Myrl Russell, Julia Koehler, Mamie Etzenhouser, and Mrs. Grace Bullard were ushers. The music was furnished by Robert Miller, with Mrs. Aileen Reick and Mr. Paul Craig soloists. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on West South Avenue immediately after the wedding.

Bert Landfried, son of Brother and Sister Philip Landfried, was married Saturday, June 14, to Miss Elina Erickson, of Sugar Creek. The young couple will make their home in Sugar Creek.

The marriage of Sister Eva Keller, West Short Street of this city, to Brother Gilbert T. Hedrick, of Atchison, Kansas, occurred at the bride's home Tuesday evening, June 17. These young people were Graceland students and met each other while at school there.

Brother Arthur Daniel, who conducts the Daniel cafeteria in Independence, has been in the Sanitarium this week. He underwent an appendix operation and is reported to be getting along quite well.

Sister Pauline Becker Etzenhouser returned Monday, June 16, from a trip through the West, where she visited relatives in Phoenix, Arizona, and friends in Los Angeles, California. While in Los Angeles she played a forty-five minute program which was broadcast by the KFI station of the Los Angeles Examiner.

The officers of the I X L Class of the Stone Church Sunday school, which is composed mostly of young married people, became almost discouraged about four months ago over the lack of study interest displayed so set about to correct it with a Red and Blue contest. The enrollment was about seventy-five or eighty, so they were not so much concerned over membership as they were the lack of "pep." The big points in the contest were counted for prepared lessons, attendance, and promptness of the old members; new members were counted but only as minor points.

The contest proved to be a revival. Old-time members who had dropped out returned, new members were added, until the average attendance of the class for the four months was one hundred ten, and the enrollment was more than doubled. Some testified that they had studied more in these four months than in years previous. The stirring contest closed Tuesday evening, June 17, with a big banquet which the Blues tendered the Reds as their forfeit. About one hundred forty were present, and it started out with a glad jollification, born of the jubilation of youth. The crowd assembled in the lower auditorium, where they engaged in music and group songs until summoned to the dining hall. They marched in with class officers and guests first, followed by the winning Reds, then the Blues as hosts.

There were four tables, and the room was decorated with red and blue for the most part, although the green and white, class colors, were also in evidence. Sister S. A. Thiel, a member of the class, furnished bouquets for the tables.

Invocation was offered by E. J. Gleazer, after which a three-course dinner was served, interspersed by toasts and songs. Dave Archibald, class president, talked first on the nature and history of the occasion, after which Jack Custead, song leader, led the assembly in "Three cheers for the Reds and Blues."

Then Sister Flo McNichols, teacher of the class, was introduced, and emphasized the object of the contest and the continuation of research and study. Frank Hershey, leader of the Reds, and Pauline Hancock, leader of the Blues, responded with clever speeches in which Mrs. Hancock challenged the Reds on regular attendance and bespoke for the losing side a continuation of remaining "true blue."

Elder E. A. Curtis acted as toastmaster and had a story to fit every occasion. The Reds sang, "Good morning, Mister Blue," to which the Blues responded with a competition of enthusiasm.

Russell Etzenhouser spoke on "Pulling together"; Sister Freda Miller on "These married men." Then Pastor R. V. Hopkins arrived from a wedding and tried to mix "toast" and ice cream. Vernon Reese told about "The worst scrape I was ever in," ending with a plea for peace, suggesting that instead of smoking, all pipes be used for blowing bubbles as tokens of fellowship. Then the song leader sang, "I'm forever blowing bubbles," and all joined on the chorus.

Apostle E. J. Gleazer, who thinks he was permitted to partake of the festivities because his wife is a member of the class, said in looking at the material of the I X L Class, he wondered what was left to compose the other classes of the Sunday school.

C. B. Hartshorn, general superintendent of the Stone Church Sunday school, closed with a talk on the art of knowing each other, under the title, "Pure gold and tinfoil." A wonderful spirit, which had accompanied all, now swelled until many were in tears, and the toastmaster announced that the song "Blest be the tie that binds" would be appropriate. So that which began in jollification ended in serious thoughts and uplifting determinations.

About thirty Laurel Club members, with their husbands and a few invited guests, met at the Campus Thursday evening, June 19, to bid adieu to Brother Walter Wayne and Sister Eunice Winn Smith, who are leaving June 28 for California. These two prominent workers depart on the eighth anniversary of their residence in Independence for Los Angeles where Brother Smith has been made pastor of that energetic branch.

A splendid banquet was served on the big tables under the trees from half past six to nine. Sister T. J. Watkins, president of the Laurel Club, acted as toastmaster, President F. M. Smith and Pastor R. V. Hopkins gave the toasts, and Brother Walter responded. The high appreciation of the Saints for the services of Brother and Sister Smith, especially along educational lines, was expressed by the speakers. It is hoped and believed that their absence will be but of few years' duration.

A very beautiful wedding occurred at the home of Brother and Sister D. H. Crick Wednesday evening, June 18, at half past eight, when Miss Margaret Crick and Clarence Cudworth were married, with Walter W. Smith officiating. The wedding march was played by Miss Florence Koehler; Mrs. Helen Flanders, sister of the bride, acted as matron of honor, and Miss Vera Adams and Miss Dorothy Cudworth were bridesmaids. Frank Cudworth was the best man, and little Arthur Douglas Flanders acted as ring bearer. Essie Belle Crick was flower girl. Brother Paul Craig sang "Because," Miss Emma Snead played the "Song of love," and Miss Madge Nesbitt sang "I love you truly." The bride and groom will make their home at 1709 West Short Street. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Pitt, Mrs. Mildred Touhey, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pitt.

Brother W. J. Brewer is now pastor of Enoch Hill. The Saints there heard Brother W. D. Bullard at eleven o'clock on the duties of the Saints, and Elder B. J. Scott in the evening. Brother Joseph Luff spoke at Walnut Park.

Elder R. J. Lambert, pastor, preached the morning sermon at Second Church. A priesthood session was held at five o'clock in the afternoon, at which they were addressed by Elders S. H. Fields and E. E. Willard.

East Independence enjoyed a sermon from A. H. Parsons in the morning, and Brother Bath continued his missionary sermons in the evening, using the theme, "Baptism." The Willing Workers gave a social Thursday evening for the benefit of the new church building.

Due to a change of superintendents in the primary department of Liberty Street, also the drive to pay for the piano, which occupied the time of many of the workers, no Children's Day exercises were held at Liberty Street this year, but promotion exercises were had Sunday morning after a short session of the Sunday school. Nine primaries were promoted to juniors. The exercises were short and simple but much enjoyed. Following the children's part, Sister Marcella Schenck, who has been superintendent of the beginner and primary department, gave her farewell speech under the title, "Why don't you bring your children to Sunday school?"

At the eleven o'clock hour, Elder F. E. Fender, who is in charge of Group 25, talked to the older people on "Problems that concern us all," basing his remarks on the exercises just previous.

The lower circle of Orioles of the Liberty Street district visited the Sanitarium some time ago, where Miss Copeland, superintendent in charge, gave orders that the girls were to be shown everything about the building. They became so enthusiastic that the wish to do something gave them a motive for their next work. They set about to make some nursery quilts. This meant learning to sew, and after patiently trying they succeeded in making two quilts. They also purchased bath towels with nickels which they saved. The quilts, towels, and a roll of soft, white cloths were taken out to the Sanitarium last Wednesday. The girls are now preparing for a bazaar which the women of Liberty Street expect to hold in the fall. Some of the Orioles are learning to do beautiful work with their needles. Two weeks ago the ten girls enjoyed an all-day picnic at Swope Park under the supervision of Brother and Sister Moriarty.

Doctor G. Leonard Harrington returned Saturday from a visit to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Sister Fannie Pender, who has been in the Isle of Pines for about three years teaching and laboring as an unordained missionary, sails for home July 14.

There is a new carpet on the choir loft and aisles of the Stone Church, which adds much to the appearance of the building. The Laurel Club is to be thanked for this another service, similar to those they are in the habit of rendering. The carpet and padding together cost them $503.75.

School Proposition for Independence

There is to be submitted to the voters of the Independence School District a proposition to issue $200,000 in bonds for the erection of a grade school building in the south part of the town, a site being under option at the end of South Cottage Street, composed of two acres of fine lying ground, and for the erecting of an annex to the Junior High School Building on West Maple Avenue, making this a really commodious and well-equipped building for the housing of a real junior high school, including the ninth grade, thereby relieving the present congestion in the William Chrisman Building. The unfavorable and congested condition of our schools makes it imperative that this movement carry, and all should keep in mind the date of the special election, which has been called for July 8 at the courthouse.

Northern and Central Wisconsin

When the appointments were read at the close of last General Conference, and I learned that Northern Wisconsin District was to be my field of labor, my mind went back to past years, when my first active local, as well as missionary, work began.

I met with the Saints at the Wyeville conference the first of November. I surely enjoyed this meeting with old friends and Saints. There was a large attendance at all the meetings, and a splendid spirit prevailed. The same peace and unity and power that was present at the close of the General Conference was felt and enjoyed, seemingly by all.

From the above meeting, by request of the district president, E. J. Lenox, I went to Chetek, where years before I had visited in my first missionary work. We held meetings here for over a month, ten miles east of town, at Potato Lake, where Elder Roy Colbert had been doing a good work, where a number had been baptized, and a live Religion and Sunday school are being held. I also held meetings west of town at Pine Creek, where there are a few families of Saints.

Later during the winter, in company with Brother E. J. Lenox, the writer held meetings at Wyeville and at Porcupine with fine interest and attendance, also at Chetek and Black Falls. Visiting among the Saints in all the places mentioned, we found good and faithful workers, both members and officers of the church and departments, doing all they can to forward the work.

During the winter a series of meetings was held at Tomahawk, a sawmill and papermill town. Because of good labor conditions, several families of Saints had moved there who had been live workers in the church.

A Sunday school was organized, and a Department of Women was doing good work. Regular preaching services were arranged for. Brother George Clark, being ordained a priest, dispenses the word for them.

We also visited Harshaw in company with Brother Lenox, where there are several families of Saints who have kept the camp fire blazing by holding regular Sunday school and other services in a schoolhouse. Brother Frank Loomis was ordained a priest and will break the bread of life to the faithful band here.

There is a good prospect for the work in the future at both these last named places, and also at Minoqua, some miles north, where Brother and Sister Jay Loomis live. The Methodist pastor here has sent word that we can have his church for meetings and that he will do the janitor work. We will surely accept his offer.

We have also visited and held meetings at the homes of isolated Saints in Sparta, La Crosse, and other places.

Lately we met and held meetings with three families of Saints near Wisconsin Rapids, where Brother Houghton baptized some and held meetings a year ago. The meetings were held in Brother Gibson's dwelling. A number of Indian neighbors attended—educated, intelligent people who seemed very much interested, both young and old.

One of them, a father of a large family, whose grown daughter attends high school and whose son is preparing for missionary work among his people, said to me, "I believe the Bible and in God and Christ, but I don't belong to a church. I know what you are preaching is the truth and is like gold." They were much interested in the two-way chart and said, "It's the truth; something inside of us tells us it is true."

With regret I closed meetings there for a time. I will go back in the near future to attend to the baptism of Brother Lowe's daughter and son. The Indian friends bade me good-by, requesting me to come back soon, so they could hear some more of the word of God.

I was called from the above place to the two-day meeting at Porcupine Branch. A good spirit prevailed here.

We also met with the Saints of Appleton, where there is a fine though small Sunday school, and regular prayer meetings are held. Nor would we forget the faithful band at Ashland who have for many years kept their Sunday school going.

May God bless all the workers, and I will be glad to have any other isolated Saints or friends who wish missionary services to write to my home address, Box 217, Plano, Illinois.

I have enjoyed the work very much. Brother E. J. Lenox is a fine young man and a congenial companion and is being much blessed in his work in the district. He is loved and respected by all.

LESTER O. WILDERMUTH.

Baptisms at Tulare

TULARE, CALIFORNIA, June 11.—On Sunday, May 25, our district chorister, Sister Birdie Clark, of Sacramento, California, visited the branch and organized the choir. We appreciated her visit very much.

At nine o'clock Sunday morning, June 8, there was baptizing at the home of Brother Loren Walker. Mr. Martin Cannon and son Walter, of Fresno, and Leonard Smith, our branch president's son, were baptized by Elder H. C. Snively. The confirmation took place before the preaching service.

The Sunday school was well attended on Children's Day, June 8. Several nonmembers attended. During the Sunday school hour the following program was rendered: Song, "Consecration," by the school; prayer by H. C. Snively; cantata, "Zion redeemed"; song, number 213, Saints' Hymnal, by the school. Several nonmembers took part in the program.

Former Bishop's Agent of Norway and Sweden Is Dead

The Presiding Bishopric are just in receipt of a letter from C. Oscar Johnson, our missionary in Sweden, advising of the death of Sister Hannah Lawrence who was buried on May 29. Sister Lawrence was for a number of years Bishop's agent for Norway and Sweden. Brother Johnson makes the following comments in regard to her:

"She was a good and faithful member, a true Latter Day Saint willing to do all she could for the work she believed with all her heart to be from the Lord. I am indeed glad that such a good woman had an opportunity to hear and obey the gospel and for many years live for the same. She has left a good memory, and I believe no one has anything but good to say about her. If we had many members like her it would be a pleasure to work in a community where they lived."

Improvements and Special Meetings at Joyfield Branch

ELBERTA, MICHIGAN, June 6.—Elder A. C. Silvers has been holding meetings in Blaine Township at Putney's Hall. He has preached several fine sermons, and some are quite interested.

He began the meetings Tuesday, June 3. Last Sunday afternoon he preached in the Wood Schoolhouse, in Blaine Township. He will hold meetings in Putney's Hall the rest of the week.

Joyfield Branch has purchased roofing for the church.

Sunday school and prayer meetings are still held on Sundays.

New Members of Experience at Artland

ARTLAND, SASKATCHEWAN, June 8.—This branch seems to be a mecca for Latter Day Saints, to judge by the truly delightful way they are moving in this spring and uniting in worship at the old hall. These are among our new arrivals: Sister Beatrice Huggett and family from Pike Lake, Saskatchewan, whose daughter, Grace, teaches school here; Brother William Rawn and wife, from Lansing, Michigan; Brother Alvin E. Randall and wife, from Indiana; Mr. and Sister Charles McCallum and family, from Piapot, Saskatchewan; and Brother Stephen Cooper, formerly of England.

Elder A. James Cornish and wife, Brother Rudolph Cornish, and Sister Grace Huggett started for Ruthhilda, Saskatchewan, June 7, to worship with the Saints of that branch over Sunday.

Elder J. J. Cornish delivered a stirring address this morning from the text, "Upon this rock will I build."

Brother Samuel Derbyshire and family, who moved to California last fall, have returned and have begun house-keeping again within reach of the meetings. They thought California wonderful, but they returned. You see there is a tradition that there is magic in the waters north of the Saskatchewan River, and those who once quaff of those waters return. Elder J. W. Peterson returned, Elder Birch Whiting also, and now Elder Elmer E. Long is returning and will labor in this district.

Two surprise birthday parties last week were enjoyed, one on June 3 at the home of Sister A. James Cornish, and the other at the home of Sister Franklin B. Atkinson on June 6.

Besides other presents, Sister Cornish received a hammock and Sister Atkinson a quilt.

The Department of Recreation and Expression is gaining in numbers and interest. There are two recreational leaders, Elder A. James Cornish and Noble Harper. Brother E. Leslie Mogg is leader of the boys and Sister Lillian Bates of the girls.

On June 6, after the lesson study of the Book of Mormon, Noble Harper, in charge of the recreation, shocked the members by announcing they would spend the recreation hour spooning. Some started for home, but the majority, who were not afraid of Noble and were curious as to what was coming next, remained. Whereupon he told them to join hands and form a circle. Then he produced two large spoons and the fun began. Those who were not there wished they had been.

The boys will start a baseball game soon for their recreation, while the girls will applaud.

Young People Active at Port Huron

PORT HURON, MICHIGAN, June 11.—The young people's organization of this branch recently enjoyed a social evening at the home of Sister Grace Farmer and are to have a weiner roast at the home of Sister Brewer located on the Saint Clair River at the edge of town. These get-together meetings benefit the young and help bring them closer together and also closer in touch with church work.

All are looking forward to the joint reunion of the Detroit and Eastern Michigan Districts which is to be held at Port Huron. They expect to have the reunion this year at the foot of Lake Huron, in a beautiful location, very easy of access and in touch with all the things needed to make the reunion a success.

Plans are being worked on to enlarge the church, and with one new pavement going in we will soon be in better shape to entertain our friends when they call.

Children's Day Activities

STOUX CITY, IOWA, June 17.—On June 15 the morning hour was given to the children. We are sure their gift to the Lord was pleasing and acceptable. The children from Anthon, a neighboring town, were unable to get here on account of the almost impassable roads.

A beautiful ordinance in the house of God was witnessed by nearly a hundred. Three young maidens entered the waters of baptism to become more closely related to the heavenly Father. His Spirit was much in evidence. Those taking the name of Christ upon them are: Marie Johnson, Hazel Van Sickle, and Frances Whitcher. Little Gueldon Edwards was blessed by Elders C. Streeter and George M. Vandel.

We have been called upon by that grim reaper, Death, and as a family the Saints mourn together the absence of our dear sister, Ada Agnes Frost. She was kind, bore her trials patiently, and her reward is sure. Even time cannot erase the memories of a sister devoted to her family, her church, and her God.

The correspondent of Salt Lake City, Utah, writes that they enjoyed a visit from Apostle D. T. Williams June 1. He preached both morning and evening, which was greatly appreciated by those who heard him.

Deselm Branch Has Several Visitors

DESELM BRANCH, MANTENO, ILLINOIS, June 13.—The Sunday school gave an interesting Children's Day program, Sunday morning, June 8, which was followed by a chalk talk for the children and young folks by the pastor, Elder Earl D. Rogers.

Sister Allott, of Wilmington, is very ill. Our district superintendent, Elder J. L. Cooper, was called to her bedside Tuesday evening, June 10. His presence is a source of help and strength to the entire family.

Brother Paul Pement and Brother Leslie Rogers are busy working with the boys and getting a scout troop organized. They plan a weiner roast and an all-night camp for June 14.

Sister Florence Strauss, of Claytonville, Illinois, has been a guest of Deselm Saints the past fortnight.

Brother and Sister Elmer Kahler, Sister Pauline Kahler, and Sister Shiffman, of Wilmington, and Elder J. L. Cooper attended the prayer service Thursday evening, June 12. Their presence was a source of inspiration to the faithful few who were present.

Brother and Sister J. H. McGuire, of Hammond, Indiana, cheered the Deselm Saints by their visit June 7 and 8. The Saints, as many as possible, are planning to attend the district conference at Mission June 20 to 22.

Meets Missionaries While Touring in Idaho

Brother C. C. Randall, who is traveling by auto in the West, writes a few lines from Nampa, Idaho, where he is visiting his daughters. He worshiped with the Saints at Boise, and met Brethren D. S. Chambers and R. L. Fulk. A splendid program was enjoyed after the Sunday school hour. This was in charge of Sister Lykins. Then a picnic lunch was enjoyed by the Saints in the park, after which Brother Hoisington baptized two girls and two boys.

Brother Randall has visited Arrow Rock Dam and the Hanson Bridge near Twin Falls. He expects to visit Salt Lake City, Shoshone Falls, and other points of interest on his return.

Children's Day at Webb City, Oklahoma

WEBB CITY, OKLAHOMA, June 17.—Sunday, June 15, was very appropriately celebrated by the Saints residing between Webb City and Foraker, in the cattlemen's vicinity. The program was very beautifully rendered by the young people and the children. One was surprised to know that this was the first Children's Day program ever given at this place. The day was spent in the following order: Sunday school at ten; Children's Day exercises at eleven; basket dinner at half past twelve; preaching at half past two; early candlelight prayer service of about thirty minutes; evening preaching services.

Brother A. H. Christensen preached in the afternoon, and Brother Edward Workman, a young priest, delivered his first sermon in the evening, Brother Arthur Slover in charge. Brother Slover announced that there would be a meeting at the schoolhouse on Saturday, June 21, for the purpose of organizing a Religio.

Brother Slover and family have moved from Bristow, Oklahoma, and located near Apperson. This gives him ample opportunity to preach when his work does not hinder. He is quite near, only a distance of a few miles, several points where Brother Christensen has initiated the work.

A good spirit prevailed throughout the Sunday sessions. Local and visiting Saints all seemed to have a day of rejoicing.

MISCELLANEOUS

Change in Price of Religio Quarterlies

For a number of years the Religio Quarterlies have been printed at a loss. This is due to two factors: the very low price, and the comparatively small number sold. The price heretofore has been less than the Sunday School Quarterly, and yet the smaller number printed has made the cost per issue much more than that of the Sunday School Quarterly. Beginning July 1, the price of the Religio Quarterly will be as follows: Senior quarterly, eleven cents per quarter, or forty cents per year; junior quarterly, eight cents per quarter or twenty-five cents per year.

Respectfully submitted,

F. M. McDOWELL,

Acting Superintendent of the Department of Recreation and Expression.

Change in the Superintendent of the Department of Women

To Whom It May Concern: Sister Dora Glines has presented her resignation as superintendent of the Department of Women, to go into effect June 30, 1924. To fill this vacancy until the time of next General Conference, the First Presidency have appointed Miss Blanche Edwards. All correspondence for the Department of Women should be addressed to Miss Blanche Edwards, Office of Departments, Lamoni, Iowa. We know that the workers in this department, together with all the members of the church, will find Miss Edwards most ably qualified to carry on this work. We beg for her your confidence and support.

F. M. McDOWELL,

Member of the First Presidency.

Notice

General Conference appointees will please attend the reunions of the districts to which they are appointed unless other arrangements have been made between them and the reunion committee.

GENERAL REUNION COMMITTEE.

Addresses

T. W. Williams, 903 North Hyperion Avenue, Los Angeles, California.

One-Day Meeting

Central Michigan, at Midland, July 25. The young people will hold this meeting, and a cordial invitation is extended to all. The young people are especially urged to be present. Come with well-filled baskets. Mildred Mitchell.

Priesthood Meetings

Central Michigan, at Saginaw, July 5 and 6. The church is on 1534 South Jefferson Street, and the priesthood meetings will be conducted as they were at Beaverton. As a priesthood, let us look forward to this meeting, that it may be the means of making us more righteous and competent servants. Matthew Umphrey, president.

Home-Coming

At Lees Summit, Missouri, June 29. This notice is for you if you have ever lived at Lees Summit. All former members of the Lees Summit Branch are requested to bring basket dinner and come for the day. A program of addresses and music will be held at the church morning, afternoon, and evening. Between these services lunches and a social hour will be participated in at the town park. Mrs. Childers, president of the Department of Women.

Reunion Notices

Clinton, at Eldorado, Missouri, July 25 to August 3. Beautiful camp grounds, good shade, and plenty of good water. Meal tickets, $3.50 for 21 meals. Tents: 10 by 12, $2.75; 14 by 16, $4. To these tent prices, will be added the transportation charges from Joplin to Eldorado and back to Joplin. Rooms with good bed, $3. We can get several rooms close to the grounds. We will have good speakers. Send all orders to R. T. Walters, 400 South Forest, Eldorado Springs, Missouri. R. T. Walters.

Western Colorado, at Delta, August 17 to 24. J. F. Garver and other good speakers will be in attendance. All join and help make this reunion even a greater success than that of last year. The conference will be held the last two days. Important business is to be transacted. Please note the change in date, the notice in HERALD of June 11 being a mistake. J. Arthur Davis, president, 324 B. S. W., Miami, Oklahoma.

Lamoni Stake, at Lamoni, Iowa, July 30 to August 10. Tent prices: 7 by 9, 3-foot wall, $3.75; 10 by 12, 3-foot wall, $5.50; 12 by 14, 3-foot wall, $7; 14 by 16, 3-foot wall, $10; 10 by 14, 6-foot wall, 2 rooms, $9; 14 by 14, 6-foot wall, 3 rooms, $12; 14 by 21, 6-foot wall, 5 rooms, $15. Tent orders must be received on or before July 22. Army cots may be rented for 50 cents. Upon request tents will be erected for a slight charge. Apostle E. J. Gleazer and Evangelist J. F. Martin will be in attendance at the reunion. For further information write Lamoni Stake Presidency, Lamoni, Iowa. C. E. Wight, president.

Western Nebraska, at North Platte, July 25 to August 3. Principal speakers will be Benjamin R. McGuire, P. R. Burton, Gomer R. Wells, and Joshua Carlile. Order tents at once from E. R. Sivits, 1220 North Locust Street, North Platte, Nebraska. Price $2 and $4. Let us make this a real old-fashioned camp meeting with a big camp and lots of "pep." Yes, it is really worth the effort. J. F. Payne, secretary, Tryon, Nebraska.

Conference Notices

Massachusetts, at Onset, July 26 to August 10. Come to Onset this summer and help us make our reunion bigger and better. Come and enjoy the association with the Saints, the inspirational prayer meetings, and the splendid sermons. There will be class work for all, covering the church problems of to-day. For information regarding meals, tents, or rooms, address E. L. Traver, 154 Cedar Street, Somerville, Massachusetts. For further information see Church News, page 616. E. L. Traver.

Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, on the reunion grounds, August 1 and 2. N. T. Chapman, president.

Minnesota, in Minneapolis, July 12. Conference convenes in the afternoon. George W. Day, president.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)
 Spokane, at Sawyer, Idaho, June 20 to 29 (479, 599).
 North Dakota, at Sykeston, June 20 to 29 (383).
 Northern Wisconsin, at Chetek, June 27 to July 6 (431).
 Minnesota, at Minneapolis, July 3 to 13.
 Central Nebraska, at Inman, July 5 to 13.
 Eastern Montana, at Girard, July 8 to 13 (599).
 Eastern Michigan and Detroit, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (575).
 Central Texas, at Hearne, July 11 to 20 (599).
 Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (359, 503).
 Southwestern Kansas, at Winfield, July 17 to 27 (479, 503).
 Kentucky and Tennessee, at Puryear, Tennessee, July 19 to 27 (527).
 Florida, at Alafloa, July 18 to 27.
 Central Oklahoma, at Washunga, July 18 to 27 (503).
 Holden, at Holden, Missouri, July 18 to 27 (527).
 Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (335).
 Clinton, at Eldorado Springs, Missouri, July 25 to August 3.
 Western Nebraska, at North Platte, July 25 to August 3.
 Massachusetts, at Onset, July 26 to August 10.
 Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
 Lamoni, at Lamoni, Iowa, July 30 to August 10.
 Chatham, Ontario, at Erie Beach, August 1 to 10 (167, 263, 287).
 Western Oklahoma, at Eagle City, August 1 to 10 (575).
 Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 to 10 (215).
 Eastern Iowa, at Muscatine, August 1 to 10.
 Spring River, at Pittsburg, Kansas, August 7 to 17.
 Des Moines, at Runnels, Iowa, August 8 to 17 (575).
 Mobile, at Gautier, Mississippi, August 8 to 17 (503).
 Portland, at Portland, Oregon, August 8 to 17.
 Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (335).
 Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Northern Michigan, at Boyne City, August 8 to 17.
 Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 9 to 24 (119, 383).
 Northeastern Illinois, at Elmhurst, August 14 to 21.
 Eastern Oklahoma, at Winthrop, August 14 to 25 (527).
 Western Montana, at Race Track, August 15 to 24.
 Kewanee, at Galva, Illinois, August 15 to 24.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Richard J. Lambert, Managing Editor
 Contributing Editors
 Elbert A. Smith S. A. Burgess
 T. W. Williams A. Max Carmichael
 Arthur Phillips Arthur E. McKim
 O. W. Parker, Business Manager

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.
 Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in the hands of the editors not later than Monday afternoon preceding date of issue. All obituaries put in regular form. No charges for Miscellany.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.25.

CONTENTS

EDITORIALS:
 Convention Hall ..... 601
 Our Place in the Sun ..... 602
 The Young People's Convention ..... 603
 OFFICIAL:
 The Facts in the Case ..... 604
 ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Be Ye One, by S. A. Burgess ..... 606
 Christ and His Mission, by T. W. Williams ..... 608
 Young People's Convention, by S. A. Burgess ..... 610
 CHURCH NEWS ..... 613
 MISCELLANEOUS ..... 622
 RADIO ..... 624

Idaho, at Hagerman, August 15 to 24.
 Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24 (479).
 Northeastern Kansas, at Netawaka, August 15 to 24.
 Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, Iowa, August 15 to 24 (215).
 Northwestern Kansas, at Studley, August 15 to 24 (599).
 Maine, at Brooksville, August 16 to 23 (599).
 New York and Philadelphia, at Deer Park, Pennsylvania, August 16 to 31.
 Western Colorado, at Delta, August 17 to 24 (575).
 Far West, at Stewartville, Missouri, August 21 to 31.
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, at Vicksburg, Michigan, August 22 to 31 (599).
 Pottawattamie, at Glenwood, Iowa, August 22 to 31.
 Southern Wisconsin, at Monona Park, August 22 to 31 (503).
 Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Our Departed Ones

FLOWER.—Anna Flower was born at Newson, England, June 24, 1851. Came to America in 1858. Baptized August 13, 1864. Married Thomas Flower in 1869, who died shortly after moving to Independence in 1887. Death from street car accident May 22, 1924. Leaves one daughter, Grace Brown, of California. Another daughter preceded her. Funeral from the Stone Church. Sermon by Joseph Luff; W. H. Garrett and R. May assisting. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery.

BULLARD.—Egbert D. Bullard was born in Lee County, Iowa, February 12, 1843. Married Helen Sager, September 14, 1865. Baptized in 1870, ordained elder shortly afterwards. Enlisted in his country's service August 14, 1862. Discharged a private June 6, 1865. Died at Fort Collins, Colorado, May 12, 1924. Leaves wife, seven sons, four daughters, and one sister. Two children preceded him. His children are: Fenner F., Freeman E., Albert J., George F., Alma E., Fred E., Mrs. Luana Galbreath, Mrs. Ella Ackleson, and Mrs. Clara Lambkinof. Funeral from the home. Sermon by Bruce E. Brown. The G. A. R. had charge of the services at the cemetery.

BOWMAN.—Arlene Louise Bowman, only child of Brother Floyd and Sister Chloe Bowman, was born July 20, 1915. Died at the home of her parents at Cincinnati Landing, March 23, 1924. Funeral services at the Union church, New Canton, Illinois. Sermon by William Guthrey. Interment at Park Lawn Cemetery in Barry, Illinois.

SHELLEY.—Enez N. Boomer was born at Fountain, Michigan, December 18, 1882. Married Jesse M. Shelley, October 25, 1902. Baptized when a young girl. Was a member of the Detroit Branch. Died March 21, 1924. Leaves husband, mother, and four sisters. Funeral from the Methodist church, Marion, Michigan, in charge of the Methodist pastor. Sermon by G. R. Kuykendall. Interment in the Marion Cemetery.

MORRIS.—Alanson Allen Morris was born at Galveston, Illinois, September 20, 1887. Died at his home in Kansas City, Missouri, April 30, 1924, after an illness lasting only a few days. Leaves wife, daughter, mother, father, sister, and brother. Funeral services were conducted by James F. Keir. Interment at Olathe, Kansas.

ROBINSON.—Robert Robinson, son of Anthony and Jane Robinson, was born at East Ranton, England, May 16, 1853. Came to America in 1863. Married Addie Maxwell, March 10, 1887. Baptized in 1888. Died at Des Moines, Iowa, May 6, 1924. Leaves wife, eight children, and fourteen grandchildren. Four children have preceded him. Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery. Sermon by E. O. Clark.

PIERCE.—Oliver Dewight Pierce was born at Genoa, Illinois, March 28, 1856. Married Eliza See, December 5, 1876. Moved to Iowa in 1886 and later to Lamar, Nebraska, where he homesteaded. Baptized in 1894. Died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Rhoades, of Oakland, California, April 10, 1924. Leaves wife, two daughters, six sons, thirteen grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, one sister, and one brother. Two sons have preceded him. Funeral at Chase, Nebraska. Sermon by George E. McConley. Interment in Chase cemetery. His children are: Mrs. Jennie Browning, Mrs. Sylvia Rhoades, Earnest, Frank, Elmer, Roy, Orrin, and Avery.

SCHREIER.—Marie L., daughter of Fred and Emma Schreier, was born May 19, 1911. Died, after a short illness, May 1, 1924. Leaves parents, one sister, and five brothers. Interment at cemetery in Olton, Texas.

Radio

K F I X

Broadcast from the studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred forty meters.

SUNDAY, JUNE 29, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.
Prayer.
Anthem: "Beneath the shadow of the Great Protection," Dickenson.
By Choir.
Anthem: "Come, O thou traveler unknown," Noble.
By Choir.
Sermon by Elder R. V. Hopkins.
Hymn.

SUNDAY, JUNE 29, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the L. D. S. Campus
(Open-air service.)

Band concert under the direction of Mr. Roy Turner.

Hymn.
Prayer.
Selection by the Band.

Sermon: "Divine authority in religion."
By Bishop Arthur B. Phillips.
Hymn.

TUESDAY, JULY 1, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Mrs. Clara Curtis, Mrs. Goode, Mr. J. A. Dowker, and Mr. E. C. Harrington will sing a number of hymns which have been requested.

"The old, old path," Smith-Anderson.
"Hark! listen to the trumpeters," Rink.
Tenor Solo: Selected.
Mr. Clayton Wolfe.
Soprano and Tenor Duet: "Sing, sing, birds on the wing," Nutting.
Miss Bernice Griffith.
Mr. Clayton Wolfe.
Address:
"Silent night."
"God is marshaling his army," Mills.
Tenor Solo: Selected.
Mr. Clayton Wolfe.

THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Program by the L. D. S. Radio Orchestra.

"Cupid's frolic," Miles.
"Campus echoes," Rollinson.
"Ave Maria," Gounod.
Address:
"Lassie O' Mine," Walt.
"Jerusalem," Parker.
"Spanish Dance No. 1," Mozkowski.

?

"Have you made a consecration
Of you earthly time and store?
Have you laid them on the altar?
Then the Master asks no more."

Hundreds of willing hands and hearts have responded to the call to:

- 1st. Pay their tithes in full to date.
- 2d. Set apart their earnings of June 9 and 23 as free will offering.

that the program of the church for the fiscal year ending June 30 might be successfully completed.

The work of the church is a cooperative effort. Its success depends upon each one doing his part. Now is the time for you to share with us the joy of achievement, by making your contribution to-day.

Sincerely,

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE,

Box 256, Independence, Missouri.

Presiding Bishop.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall not any man among you have save one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, July 2, 1924

Number 27

EDITORIAL

Morality Is Part of Religion

It was repeatedly emphasized that the value of the Sunday school is to be determined by its value to the church. Morality cannot be taught advantageously aside from religion.

The work of religious education receives continual and emphatic discussion. This includes an adaptation of the work as fully as possible to the age of the child and the following of a natural course in the religious development of the child. This religious education should not be confined to half an hour on Sunday but should be supported by the church school in sermons adapted to children and to young people. A service primarily prepared for adults is not well adapted to either children or young people and fully accounts for their absence and lack of interest in church service. The reasonable way is to provide special services for both of these younger groups.

There also is need of more work during the week. We spend two dollars on secular education to two cents on Sunday school or religious education. This is not a just proportion. We spend hours on school work compared to minutes on religious education. This also does not keep the due proportion.

While some scientists object that science does not want to come to religion every Saturday night to be checked up, religion can well reply that it does not want to come to scientists, true or so-called, to be checked up every night.

The work of religious education includes the teacher training, the preparation of teachers for their special duties. Training as a public-school teacher is not sufficient. There must also be the appreciation of right matter and logical method in the teaching of children to assist in their proper intellectual and moral development.

But with all the emphasis that was given at the International Sunday School Convention on religious education, practically equal emphasis was put on the evangelization work, the necessity of conversion, the necessity of spreading the message of Jesus Christ and teaching the Bible, which is above all else the life of Christ. The Sunday school does not fulfill its mission unless it brings the young people into the church. The difference is that the Sunday school is open to all without profession or question. The church requires of necessity a profession and an acknowledgment of Jesus Christ.

The church should conduct at least its own fundamental work in religious education. The use of the term church means the individual church of each of the various communicants and denominations. Each denomination is encouraged to prepare its own particular lessons founded on the results of research and investigation by a general committee. Each church is left free to teach its own particular doctrine and to train its own teachers, though it would also recognize that some work of a general nature can be handled better in a united way.

And through it all comes the work of the home as being primary both for religious education and also for evangelical work or proselyting; our first duty and problem is to hold the children. In this the Sunday school has some difficulty, because practically only one girl in three is a Sunday school member, and one boy in four.

United effort means a study of the best methods of teaching religious education. It means in the final analysis a study of actual facts and conditions, the use of principles of pedagogy as far as they apply but by no means blindly. At times we may be taken with a fad for a time, but we wish to preserve open-mindedness to secure the best possible methods for the instruction of our children, young people, and adults according to conditions and knowledges, attitudes as they are.

To accomplish this we must have a definite aim, and that aim is high, as ultimately it means association in the family of God, and the preparation of individuals to take upon them the name of Jesus.

At the Country Life Conference held in Saint Louis a few months since, a moving picture film was shown of a farm boy and his prize flock of chickens. The birds were fine because the boy had a scientific knowledge of chicken culture and had applied his knowledge to the care of his flock. But the boy was a mouth breather and showed further effects of malnutrition. The chickens were better cared for than the boy.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Statement of Acceptance

As has previously been announced in the HERALD, the Board of Publication selected me as one of several contributing editors to the HERALD. It is understood that the function of contributing editors is to contribute. Editorial management rests with the managing editor, the board having defined and outlined the editorial policy.

Under normal conditions the appointment tendered me would have been accepted without hesitation, that being the work I would prefer to do. However, several factors have entered in that have caused me to weigh the matter before accepting.

First, for more than a half century, or since May, 1865, some member or members of the Presidency have been in editorial charge of the HERALD as the official organ of the church. Indeed, during practically all of that time the President of the church has been editor in chief. The policy has been too historic to be casual. Though it may be true that the conference of 1894, viewing with concern the burdens and anxieties of the Presidency, authorized the board to relieve them of editorial work and responsibility, it is equally true, and strikingly significant, that despite this gracious permission, President Joseph Smith continued as editor in chief to the day of his death, twenty years later. His action, as clearly as anything could do, illustrated his thought in the matter.

The late action of the board in relieving the Presidency of editorial control divided the board itself, raised an issue between the Presidency and the board, and no doubt raised an issue in the minds of the Saints, some being for and some against the action. This has made it difficult for me to accept the position of contributing editor without danger of being misunderstood. However, after careful and prayerful thought I have decided to accept, with the statement and reservation that in so doing I in no way forfeit any claims that the Presidency may rightfully have when the matter comes to a final hearing. I do not argue the question at this time, but leave it for the people to decide at the right time and in the right place.

Though favorable to a wide range of discussion in the HERALD, I feel that General Conference has set certain limits. It is no secret that radical differences of opinion exist between church representatives. At present these differences are most marked between the President of the church and the Presiding Bishop. Conference has spoken quite definitely regarding situations of this kind. And so many of us have of late extolled the validity and binding force of General Conference Resolutions that few of us can gracefully ignore them.

General Conference Resolution 298 says: "Where radical differences of opinion occur between leading representatives of the body, the discussion of them should take place in quorum capacity, and not through the columns of the Herald."

Having of late been a party to a most earnest and sincere seeking after a solution of these differences in meetings of leading quorums of the priesthood (where the resolution says the discussion should be) and feeling that the possibilities of such discussion in quorum councils are by no means exhausted, I have felt regret to see the discussion carried to the HERALD (where the resolution says it should not be).

I wish to use my pen in a constructive and helpful rather than in a controversial way, and in a way to support the faith of our fathers. In all humility I may say that no one need invite me back to the faith of our fathers. I have not wandered from it. I should like to be helpful to the Saints at large. When the shepherds contend, the sheep are likely to be scattered, possibly hurt. My anxiety is for them. But Saints, though called sheep, must be more than sheep. Divisions of opinion have often existed, even in the days of Christ. Remember Lincoln's motto, "This, too, will pass." We must learn to stand on our own feet and still labor and serve and give. If mistakes are made, time will bring correction. Let us learn to labor and wait and pray, withholding nothing that the Lord has asked of us to do, and with faith trust the One who shall eventually set his house in perfect order.

The Saints are free to analyze any arguments presented to them, but should not decide on rumor, as a host of very false and misleading rumors have gone abroad. Before crediting a rumor, no matter how plausible, it is well to seek an explanation from the person or persons affected, that none be condemned unjustly and unheard. This applies to both sides of the controversy. Those who keep a Christian spirit and act from principle will do well. Those who are of a bitter spirit and are moved by personal grievances, fancied or real, will certainly suffer loss. Let us remember the nature of our calling and profession. ELBERT A. SMITH.

The 1924 Christmas Offering

Enthusiasm is the headlight on the train of progress. Bishop John C. Dent, of the Chatham (Ontario) District, is "all lit up" with hope and enthusiasm over the Christmas offering prospects for his district. He writes us under date of June 10: "I have been encouraging the Christmas offering this year and expect that our district will at least double last year's amount." That is the spirit that characterizes success. Encourage your associates to double their efforts. Others around you will see the way to do more, and soon an enthusiastic train of followers will be following. Progress is made in just this fashion. You believe in the Christmas offering movement because you have seen it harvest what would otherwise have been wasted energy. You have seen it promote teamwork with both young and old. You have seen it bring good results both to the giver and to the church.

May we count on you to encourage the Christmas offering this year? May your district, following in the wake of your enthusiasm, "double last year's amount."

Sincerely yours,

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE,
Presiding Bishop.

Unity an Essential Requirement

Latter Day Saints possess ears that are trained to this language, found in Doctrine and Covenants 38: 6: "Be one; and if ye are not one, ye are not mine." An application of the sentiment is made by individuals according to the particular field of church endeavor in which they find themselves working. We believe this is legitimate, as the quotation is a sentence of general application.

The Author is Jesus Christ; the object of its utterance was that the church to whom it is given might prepare itself for the coming of the Lord, that a way of escape might be had from the power of the "enemy," and that the church might be gathered unto God, a righteous people.

Should the church at any time find itself lacking this oneness, it immediately becomes a duty to examine into the causes of the departure of the condition which marks the organization as the Lord's. It also becomes the task of the church to regain the condition—it is the divine requirement.

Oneness may be brought about by the exercise of effort along many different lines, and is seldom obtained by one kind of effort. There are a few elements which cannot be ignored, and one of these is mentioned in the parable which this quoted statement succeeds in the book—the element of justice between individuals. Unity cannot be obtained except justice be served, and favoritism banished; except esteem for the brotherhood be courted and exercised, and the impugning of motives and the suspicion of sordid intent be banished.

It may be there are those who occupy in the church who are not lovers of justice; it may be there are those who do not deserve esteem and confidence; suspicion in the minds of Saints may be the result of sin and perfidy which have been committed. If this condition be found, there is but one remedy, the casting out of the disturbing member or members.

The church of Christ cannot exist while part of its membership follows after justice and those virtues which enlist esteem or respect and another portion follows after individual preferment and acts of convenience.

Unity is the divine requirement; it can be attained. Nothing need be lost in the process except the tawdry, the sinful, the corrupt. R. J. L.

Acceptable Gifts

The purpose of a gift is to gladden the heart of two—him who gives and him who receives. Unless it gladdens the heart of the giver, the heart of the other cannot rejoice, if he knows.

God knows!

When we exalt our giving to the station of a religious act,

When we feel in our hearts the joy of giving,

When we present our gifts as a token of our devotion to the cause of Christ, we get out of the act that which God has intended that we should.

"The Lord requires the heart and a willing mind."

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE, Presiding Bishop.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, BOX 256.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

The Prodigal Son's Brother

Sermon by Elbert A. Smith, at Lamoni, Iowa, June 15, 1924, at the Young People's Convention.

Jesus was a master story-teller. In a very few words he told stories that are immortal. These are called parables, and I think that without question the greatest of them, because it touches humanity at so many points, is the story of the prodigal son. Usually in this parable human interest is centered around the prodigal, and the average preacher in his exegesis of the parable has devoted his attention to the prodigal. The prodigal has become the big figure in the parable, and he acquires a certain splendor in the process, while some other parts of the story have been dimmed thereby.

We must remember the language of the father to the prodigal son's brother. No other part of the story is more significant than those words, "Thou art always with me, and all that I have is thine."

The Three Characters

There are three persons figuring in this parable, and because they are not simply local Hebrew characters that Jesus talked about, but because they are characters that repeat themselves in every age and in every community, the story is fresh to every generation.

First, there is the prodigal son. Every community has its prodigal son who wastes his inheritance. He is the waster and the spender, who trails his father's name in the dust. Happily, later he repents.

Then there is the father, a tragic figure that repeats itself from generation to generation—the father of the prodigal son. A mother re-creates herself in her daughter. A father re-creates himself in his son, and his heart and brain are woven into texture in his dreams regarding that boy. All that he hoped to be and has missed, he thinks that his son will be. Everything that is admirable that he has loved and not always been true to, he hopes that his son will love and serve. When that son becomes a prodigal, neither the penitentiary nor the grave nor hell itself has any trouble greater than that for that man. But later, if the prodigal shall repent and come home and give promise to make true the dreams that the father had at an earlier date, heaven has no greater joy for him.

There is the third figure, the prodigal son's brother, the young man who stayed at home and worked and maintained the honor of the family and the integrity of his father's name, who was a partner with the father, to whom the father could say, "Thou art always with me, and all that I have is thine." This is the boy who by the average preacher is dismissed, possibly with a contemptuous criticism because he lost his temper at a certain critical time. It seems to me if we can forgive all that the prodigal did, we can forgive this brother and get from him the lesson that the parable has for us.

Jesus, in the story of the prodigal son, intended to illustrate the attitude of God towards man. The father represents God; the sons represent humanity. And just as forgiveness by the father of the wayward son represents the attitude of God towards sinning humanity, the statement which the father made to the dutiful son must represent the attitude of God towards his dutiful children to-day: "Thou art always with me, and all that I have is thine."

The Attitude of the Prodigal

So, having heard the story of the prodigal which has caused sympathetic tears to flow from many eyes, it is perhaps time that we note the other story, the story within a story, the story of the prodigal son's brother. To get that we have to review the story itself:

First there is the prodigal son. His attitude, as we first see him, is that of unreasoning self-determination. Self-determination is a fine thing when it is governed by reason, but this boy was stubborn. He would have his inheritance. He would go where he pleased. Then there was the lure of the far country. He took his inheritance and went to the far country.

Certainly the far country has not lost its lure since the day when Jesus told this parable. I do not understand that the far country is a far country in a geographical sense. It may be a long way off. It may be in New York or San Francisco. Or it may be close at hand, just around the corner where young people congregate in dance halls and gamblers' dens and bootleggers' joints; where they waste their inheritances. It is a far country only in the sense that it is a long way from father's house. And it is the romance and the appeal and the mystery and the adventure that call to youth, because the real facts of the case are hidden from view.

There is nothing on the face of these to clearly indicate the disease and the dirt and shame that are always associated with sin. There is nothing appealing about the drunkard lying in the gutter, perhaps blind from bootleg whisky, or the same man awakening in jail with a charge of manslaughter against him. But it is an appeal to the boy to go out and do that which is prohibited. The other is concealed. It comes later. There is no appeal in the brazen face of the dissolute women when it is seen in broad daylight. There is no appeal in the disease and the blindness and the suffering in the sanitariums and hospitals that come as the result of this journey to the far country. But all this is covered or under a mask of light and romance and adventure.

This young man went to the far country, and the next thing we hear of him is that he lost his inheritance. What is your inheritance? It may be money. It may be a good name that your fathers have handed down to you from generation to generation. It may be good health. This young man lost all his inheritance. The next we hear of him is that a famine came. That is the natural result. After waste comes want, and after revelry comes emptiness. In the midst of this we are told that he came so low he had not food to eat. The friends who had helped him spend his inheritance were not there to help him in his time of trouble. Those who hang about the corner drug stores of our cities to help boys squander are not the ones to help one develop his life. When the period of wasting has ended, their job is done and they have nothing more to offer.

So this young man, having no one to help him, sought employment. He sought work. That was the last thing that he had thought of. It should have been the first. Only in his extremity did he seek employment. The first thing that any man ought to think about is useful service—work. That is the last thing this boy thought of, and having made no preparation for life, the only job that he could find was tending hogs. A rich man set him to tending hogs. That does not mean so much to us as it did to those who first heard the story. Jesus was talking to the Jews, and he was talking about the hog. To the Jews all that the creature was good for was for the purpose that he was put to when the Devil entered into him. So the last stage of degradation was reached by this young man when he became an attendant upon hogs. And he was in such privation, the story tells us, that he fain would have eaten the husks.

The Psychology of Confession

Now comes the beautiful part of the story. In this condition of suffering he came to himself, or, in the slang phrase, "he took a tumble to himself." He had a period of sanity. He saw what he was, and where he was, and what he had done, and what he had lost. When a man begins to see things as they are, then there is hope for him, especially when he begins to reach the point where he will admit that they are as they are.

The next thing this young man did, having seen the situation as it was, was to repent; and you will notice the character of his repentance. He said,

"I will return and say unto my father, I have sinned against thee and before heaven." Sometimes people come to the church and say, "If I have sinned, I am willing to be forgiven," and the "if" is bigger than the repentance. There was no reservation with this young man. He said, "I have sinned." A man has to face the truth if he repents. "You shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." And no man can ever get free until he sees the truth and admits it. That is the psychology of confession, that he not only sees the truth, but he puts it into words; he formulates it into words that he may face it and know the truth.

You don't have to tell God you have sinned. Nine times out of ten you don't have to tell the church you have sinned. You have to tell yourself. That was the confession of the prodigal son. As we would say to-day, "He came clean." When a man does not come clean in his confession and his restitution, his recovery is always doubtful. When he keeps back a part of the truth, you are never sure whether or not he is going to make good.

The Return and the New Start

The next logical and wise thing to do, this boy did. He returned home. He had the courage to turn about and go back to his father's house humbly. He didn't know he would get the fatted calf, but he said, "I am not fit to be thy son. Let me be as one of thy servants." This young man was willing to start at the bottom. That was the hope there was for him, that he was willing to start at the bottom of the ladder and be a servant and climb up to the place that a son should occupy. That was fine indeed, but we must not lose sight of the penalty that he had to suffer.

Day by day, by heartbreaking persistency, he had to build up a good name in the community where his name had become barred. His was the name that had not been mentioned in the family. They could talk about the son that remained at home. You can talk about the son that is dead, but the prodigal son you cannot talk about. The father and mother can talk about him by themselves, in the evening, but when the neighbors are there his name is not mentioned. He was not dead; he was worse than dead. And in that community he had to make a new start at the bottom and recover himself.

The Attitude of the Father

We come now to the attitude of the father. He had never cast the son off. He had never disinherited him. He was waiting and watching for him. He saw the son "afar off" and went to meet him. I say that this is intended to represent the attitude of God towards sinners. God will meet him a long way off the minute a prodigal starts for home. The old discipline which said that Jesus "came to reconcile God to man" was just as wrong as anything could be. The old thought that God was so angry that he would not be reconciled until he saw human suffering was wrong. God loved the world. He so loved it that he gave his only begotten Son.

The Prodigal Son's Brother

Now we come to the prodigal son's brother, who so often is dismissed with a rebuke because he misunderstood the situation. This young man had remained at home. He had been obedient to his father. He had helped him for "many years," and he had been faithful and true, while his brother was a waster and a spender and had stood for those things which disintegrate the home. The prodigal son's brother stood for those forces which keep the home intact. The record says that on that very occasion "he came from the field," from his toil, perhaps weary and possibly irritable as some of us are when we have worked very hard. Seeing the people and hearing the music, he asked a servant what it was all about. And when it was explained to him that the prodigal son was home, he was angry and said, "I, father, have served thee many years and you never gave me a feast."

You know when a man or a boy or a girl is habitually decent and fine, it is expected as a matter of course. When the wayward son comes back, then the ado is made about him. But when a man is always honorable and straight, it is taken as a matter of course. And that was the finest compliment that father could have paid that son, to take it as a matter of course that he would be that kind of a son. One feast was made for the prodigal, but three times every day when that father sat down with the good son there was rejoicing. The prodigal son's brother said, "You never made a feast for me, but when this my brother who has eaten up his inheritance with harlots in riotous living is come, you make a feast for him." The father, who had been so willing to go out and meet the down-fallen son, was equally ready to explain to the dutiful son the situation by saying, "My son, thou art always with me, and all that I have is thine." That must have cleared up the situation. That meant more to that boy than any fatted calf could possibly have meant. While we usually think of the joy because of the prodigal's return, you have only to refer to those words to realize that the real joy of that father was in the son who remained at home. "Thou art always with me, and all that I have is thine."

Any father who has tasted the joy of fellowship on a working basis with his son knows what that means. I think Almighty God knows what it means and realized the joy of fatherhood when he said,

"This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." Any man who can say, "This is my son in whom I am well pleased," stands up a little taller. The joy of that father was in that son.

Rejoicing the Year Round for the Prodigal Son's Brother

It is true that on that particular occasion when the boy who was lost came back, the boy who was dead came to life, everything was forgiven, and the joy of the moment eclipsed all else. The woman who lost a piece of silver and found it, at that moment had more joy than she had with the nine pieces that were never lost. In the light of those examples I interpret the language of the Master when he said, There is more joy in heaven over one sinner that repents than over ninety and nine just men who need no repentance. At that moment the joy over the repentant sinner eclipses all else, and it is so in the community when there is a conversion. But the community three hundred and sixty-five days in the year should thank God for the ninety and nine just men who go ahead and do the work of life, sustaining church and state and home.

The son that comes back occupies the center of the stage one day, but for the remaining three hundred and sixty-four days of the year the community should rejoice with the son who has the backbone to stay at home and do his duty and keep himself clean. Would you not rather have a year-round rejoicing than one day of joy in a lifetime?

There are two lessons to be gleaned from this story. The general application is this, that to-day we are raising in America many prodigal sons and daughters. It might not be too much to say that there is one born every minute. You know when a man spends all his money on a gold brick, or puts it up on a shell game, or invests in mining or oil stock without security, we say he is "a sucker." What is the prodigal by comparison who not only puts money but his character and all that he has into a shell game or buys a gold brick with it. I say we are raising many prodigal sons and daughters who are making that kind of a bargain in life.

The Institute of Social and Religious Survey of New York recently made a survey of moral and social conditions in the country and a religious survey particularly in the State of Indiana. It and other institutes have collated some interesting statistics. We can see the truth of these statistics if we read almost any daily paper. Annually there are in America sixteen thousand murders. They say that four billion dollars' worth of property is stolen annually in the United States; that there are at least sixteen thousand suicides, many of them by young people and children; that there are many drug ad-diets not yet twenty-two years of age. Juvenile crime has increased to an alarming extent. And at the same time it is pointed out that while there has been an increase in crime there has been a decrease in religious training. Twenty-seven million children in America do not receive any religious or moral training worth mentioning. As religious training goes down, crime goes up. As the spirit of atheism and materialism comes in, prodigals are produced, as atheism leads to contempt for our own lives and the lives of others.

The Fruits of Atheism

When Clarence Darrow, the noted criminal lawyer, debated in Kansas City some time ago with Doctor Durant, he said that life is not worth living, and the only reason he lives his own life is because he finds himself alive; life is a senseless fool thing that has to be gone through with because he does not like to blow out his brains. I think it is exceedingly fitting that Darrow should have come to the defense of those two millionaires' sons in Chicago. They were students of the atheistic philosophers. As he attaches no importance to his own life, they attached no importance to the life of others, and for their own pleasure and to get a thrill and a little money, they captured a helpless lad and put him to death. There was not a grain of moral perception or idealism or sportsmanship revealed in their lives. It was not there. Atheism does not put it there. If there is any, it kills it. To the extent that atheism crowds out religion, we are to have just that kind of prodigal sons and daughters, who attach no importance to their own lives and none to the lives of others.

Many of these prodigals are not produced by poverty. It is not because they have no opportunity. It is only recently, some months ago, that the East was shocked when the daughter of one of our Federal Reserve Bank presidents committed suicide. She had all that the twentieth century could offer her, and yet, having lived her prodigal life, at the very moment when a woman should be getting joy and service from life she threw it away.

Those two boys in Chicago, sons of millionaires, had all that the universities could give them, all that society and culture had to offer them. It all goes to illustrate that wealth and culture and education alone are absolutely inadequate to build human character or save society or the individual. We must have religion.

Peter was right when he said, "Add to your faith virtue, and to your virtue knowledge." Reach perfection by these progressive steps. And yet in the schools to-day we seek knowledge, and we carefully avoid the religious training, and we give very little attention to virtue. That is why we need Graceland. That is where the church must enter in with our work of religious education. Secular education, while we must have it, is not in and of itself adequate. Four years ago Dean Frederick Jones, in his commencement address at Yale University, made this statement: "We are approaching a moral crisis, nor do I think we can avoid it by education."

The Dynamic of Religion

The old log cabins that the Pilgrim Fathers built along the shores of Massachusetts Bay—the log cabin that sheltered Abraham Lincoln—sheltered poverty-stricken families; but they had a dynamic, they had religion. But the homes of to-day have everything but religion. They have card games; they have dances; they have pleasure seeking in all its forms; but they haven't time for religion. If we are to produce something besides prodigals, then home and school and church must unite in religious training. It has gotten so that we hardly dare mention the name of God in the schools.

To Build Better Than to Reclaim

If the gospel of Christ means anything, it means that the right development of the Christian character is a growth. Christ never wandered off to a far country to come back. That is not the ideal. That is the thing to be avoided. Hence the greatest work of the church is not to reclaim the prodigal but to see that he does not become a prodigal. The old idea of the conversion, that children must wander to the far country and then, years later, be reclaimed at a revival service, is all wrong. The stress ought to be laid on building, not on reclamation. There is not a successful carpenter in the world who would build his house that way. To build on crooked foundations and then later on try to reform them is folly.

I think I once told you the story of the farmer in East Independence whom I found in the process of erecting a small building. I noticed that he had taken great care with the foundation. He dug clear down and laid his foundation on the solid rock. I noticed that he did not have any convenient building at hand by which to make comparison by the points of the compass, and I asked him if he laid out the foundation by the compass, and he said, "No; I laid out the foundation by the north star."

That is what we need in building life. As early in life as possible young people should be taught to lay their foundations by the north star, the polar star of truth. There is not a good horticulturist in the world who would set out an orchard and let it grow up with weeds and become gnarled and scabby and pest-ridden, and then when the trees are about to begin to bear, go through and try to reform them by purging and pruning them.

The big end of our work should not be revival and reclamation. It should be to help young people grow straight and fine from childhood. We have got to put religion into the lives of our children and have fewer prodigals and more like the prodigal son's brother. We must have our missionary and revival programs, but our big work must be with our young people and our children (and our neighbor's children if happily we may bring them within the sphere of our influence). That is the general lesson.

Special Lesson to the Young

The special lesson to you young people is, Stay close to your father's house. Not necessarily close geographically, but maintain filial relationship with Almighty God and with the father and mother with whom you have been blessed, although they may be far from you. Keep the ideals they gave you in your hearts, and maintain your filial relations with them as a son or a daughter. Heed their advice. Accept their rebukes. You will probably never find a better friend than your father and your mother. I was denied a father's companionship. I had to find both in my mother. I have thought sometimes if I could have had one day or only one hour of my father's association I would have been thankful. I have sought recompense in my association with my sons.

Maintain your inheritance. Increase that inheritance. Keep yourself clean, industrious, and honorable. Then it will never be that you will taste the fatted calf, but you will hear the father say, "Son, thou art always with me, and all that I have is thine."

Some Educational Problems Involved in the Establishment of Zion.—No. 2.

BY A. MAX CARMICHAEL

This is the second of a series of treatises on an important subject, the first of which will be found in "Herald" of May 7.

Notwithstanding the two emphases of thought within the church, different, if not antipodal, regarding the establishment of Zion, to-wit, its coming down out of heaven, and its being established by us through a growth from our present level of spirituality, the most of us, whether adherents of one school or the other, feel ourselves morally responsible to try to work out this Zion, this democracy of God on earth, this state of brotherly love. The most of us are persuaded, even though we trust much to the transcendental and supernatural elements, that we are not warranted in lying down, waiting for God to act, but that we must "be up and doing." "Were it not for the transgressions of my people, speaking concerning the church, and not individuals, they might have been redeemed even now."—Doctrine and Covenants 102: 2.

Stating it a little differently, the most of us give gladly a willing consent to the proposition that we must prepare for Zion; that we must train our children to further the accomplishment of the Zion condition; that our general church activities, Sunday school and other departmental activity, should tend to further the cause of Zion by educating our children for its accomplishment. "Zion Builders" has become quite a popular slogan lately in certain quarters among our young people. Does not the acceptance of such a slogan show the tendency of the times? Does not it give us the aim of our educational movement for our young people? In fact, does not it serve to give us a presupposition for the determination of our religious educational philosophy? The writer feels that he is here stating propositions to which by far the greater number of our people would give ready assent.

But to give assent to the general proposition and to agree on details either of aims, immediate and subsidiary, or of method, are different things. Let us enter into a consideration of these details. We will first direct our attention to methods.

The first basic question we should ask is this: How does the child become moral, religious, or spiritual? How does the church, or society, impress the youth with its moral culture, its religiosity, and spirituality? How does the child acquire spirituality? For the moment, at least, we will assume unanimous agreement in the meaning of the terms morality, religiosity, and spirituality, though the author is skeptical of such unanimous agreement. But perhaps an approach to our problem from the standpoint of methods of education for Zion rather than the normal approach by a discussion of what Zion is, of what spirituality or brotherly love is, will give us a new illumination of just what is before us in bringing unanimity in the understanding of what we are after, Zion, or spirituality. In other words, as we study the various methods which might be used to attain something which some call Zion, or morality, or spirituality, we will perhaps be able to study critically what we really have supposed that Zion means in a way that we could not do were we to approach it in the normal a priori way.

This question of just how the child attains spirituality is one of fact, not of theory. The facts are observable. They are before us. We have witnessed people, youth, becoming spiritual. But our observations will differ; we will not see the same facts. The writer, however, will picture the facts as he sees them, fully conscious of the fact that his perceptive faculties are human and that he may err. But such are the facts as he sees them. Such is the way youth becomes spiritual; at least, as spiritual as he does become.

The child is born into and becomes a member of a social order, called the family. His first activities, which he himself must perform in order to live, nature has already provided him with the capacity to do, or he has already learned to do in his prenatal state. For instance, nature has already provided him with the capacity to nurse. The greater part of what is necessary for the maintenance of his life is performed by his parents. He is absolutely subject to what they do for him. But he soon begins to have desires for which he has not already learned solutions and which he finds that his parents do not satisfy. For instance, the baby desires a change of position in his crib. Of course, he does not actually think it out that he wants a change of position, but his general bodily feeling becomes nauseous; he begins to cry. This brings the parent, and the parent picks him up or changes his position. By frequent repetition, he learns that the cry brings a change of position, or a picking up from the crib, and satisfaction as a consequence. The desires for which new solutions are necessary continue to multiply. For the solution of them, he is dependent upon his parent as a part of his environment. What is the chief source of his knowledge for the discovery of the solution of these desires? It is the action of his parents. Whatever he sees his parents do to solve the same situation, he imitates. If the parents' actions solve the problem without question, he accepts their mode of solving the problem without question. Whatever they do without question, he does without question. Whatever they do without protest or question or criticism, he accepts as right without protest or question or criticism, as a usual rule. We qualify our statement here by the phrase as a usual rule, because there are other factors which are apt to enter to disturb this mode of handing on to our children our moral order or of building up their moral habits and consciences. But these facts come in later in life. In early childhood, the child has no reason to doubt the parents' word or the propriety of their acts. If they should tell him that the moon was made of green cheese, he has no reason to doubt it.

To the five-year-old child, the new-born baby was really brought by a stork, whatever that is, just because papa said so. Santa Claus does really come down the chimney. Papa has said so. An acquaintance of mine told me of an experience which he witnessed while riding on a Pullman coach. A lady across the aisle told her little six-year-old girl that if she were bad, the black porter would shut her up in the berth "up there," and he (the porter) had a long knife. The reality of this to the child was exhibited by her running to her mother every time the porter appeared. Why not! Had her mother not told her so? And her mother knows, of course. She has no reason to doubt it as yet. In my house my six-year-old girl is not doubting the existence of the heavenly Father as a metaphysical or moral postulate, because his existence is never questioned in the house (at least not in language she would understand). Father and mother pray to him; she prays to him. Of course he is. She never even takes occasion to assert his existence. He just is; that's all. That's just the way she finds it in the house. It will probably be many a day before she does question his existence, if ever.

To eat with a fork instead of with a knife; of course, that is the right thing to do. It's done in the home without question. To put sugar in the tomatoes—of course, that's the right thing to do; father does. Five-year-old daughter must not be too familiar with the negro maid; mother's looks tell her so. Seven-year-old Johnnie must not play with dolls; it isn't manly; father's looks tell him so. It's the right thing to get up and give your car seat to an old woman, of course; father always does. That is, it is the right thing for fathers to do. The only way to kill a chicken is to wring its neck; that's the way we do it at our house. It's perfectly right not to pay the railroad fare for the five-year-old son if the conductor doesn't ask for it; that's the way our folks do.

Father and mother have learned a long time ago that if they can decide between themselves apart from the children what the children should do, it will be much easier for the children to accept that thing as the thing to do. Hence fathers and mothers are advised in books on child training that they should not discuss before the children the policy to pursue with the children. If they appear not to question what they have decided to do, the children will not so easily question it. The children seeing that father and mother do not question it, they will not. It's the thing to do; father and mother have both said so.

This method of the child's absorbing the moral order of his family, this method of passing on to the child the moral status, the moral customs, the moral conventions, the moral and theological beliefs of the family, extends into the social life of the child outside of the family. Institutions beyond the family pass on their moral and spiritual conceptions and practices the same way.

The Quakers have for generations passed on the feeling that it is not worshipful to have an organ in the church, or even to sing in church. It has never been seriously questioned in their congregations up to the recent generation, and hence each coming generation has had a tendency to accept it. Our Catholic boy makes the sign of the cross on his breast. Everyone else does so. The priest and the sister say to do so. The child has a tendency to accept it as the thing to do. When the name of Christ is mentioned in the sermon, or in the repeating of the Apostles' Creed, the Catholic and Episcopalian child bows his head; all the church members do. Therefore he has no thought of doing otherwise. The Pope is infallible, when speaking ex cathedra. Of course; all the members admit it. The children of our Utah brethren do not doubt that Brigham Young was the right successor. It is never questioned in their congregations. Of course they are perfectly sure that Joseph the Prophet was the author of the polygamous revelation. It is always asserted so in their meetings, and that, no doubt, without proof; because adducing proof is to imply a doubt; at least, I venture to guess that no proof is adduced until doubting is anticipated, not much ahead of that. Likewise, children of Reorganized Latter Day Saints are perfectly sure that Brigham Young was the author; it is always asserted so, and it is never questioned in orthodox circles. The Episcopalian fourteen-year-old choir boy never doubts that Jesus was conceived of the Holy Ghost, if he knows what that means. Has he not with the other choir boys and with the congregation been chanting that belief for these many years now? The normal Latter Day Saint boy does not question the truth of the claims of the Book of Mormon; it is never questioned in his church. The Jewish child has never suspected but what Christianity is a compromise between the pure monotheism of Judaism and pagan idolatry and polytheism; all the members of the synagogue think so. Likewise he is sure that Isaiah's Servant of Jahve is the Hebrew race. That it might refer to Jesus of Nazareth he has not heard the first inkling. Why should he not accept the traditional interpretation of Isaiah in Jewish theology?

The church has learned a long time ago that if it can pass on its beliefs in theology and morals to the child without having anyone question them in the church, the child is much more apt to accept them as the facts than otherwise. The preacher is not expected to present both sides of the question; there is only one side. That is asserted as true, and if the assertion is all that is necessary to bring an acceptance, no argument need be adduced to prove it true. Sunday school classes are expected only to tell what Abraham did, not to discuss whether God did actually tell him to slay Isaac. Nobody throws a monkey wrench into the gear as does one who starts to question. If all the priests can agree just what to say, and go into the pulpit and say it, the members will accept it the more easily. Let no one go out of the ecclesiastical or quorum council and say anything otherwise than what is agreed upon. This is sometimes advocated for professional reasons, or for economical reasons, but both the professionalism and the economics of the advocacy have a pedagogical basis. In other words, for all priests to agree is good pedagogy.

But let us notice whether the principle is applicable to the absorption of the moral life outside of the church. What child ever questions the fact that strychnine will kill him if he swallows any. Very, very few children ever question the impropriety of killing human beings, outside of national warfare or self-defense. Why? Just because largely it is never questioned. All people with whom he comes in contact accept the fact that strychnine will kill, and to commit unjustifiable homicide is improper. What eight-year-old child has not already completely accepted the moral principle that father has a right to spend his income for tobacco, or that he himself has a right to spend the money that father gives him for candy, even though other children in the world are starving for want of bread? That is the universally accepted moral of his social world. How many Latter Day Saints, even of those who are serious candidates for membership in the Zion that is to be, feel that they have a perfect moral right to spend their income on luxurious clothing while many, many people in our own countries and of foreign countries have not heard of the restoration of the principle of continued revelation through Joseph Smith, or while several hundred thousand children in the United States, let alone the many in other countries, are unable to get a common school education because of poverty?

Why do they accept it as their right to spend money on luxurious clothing under such conditions. Largely because it has never been questioned. Even an East Side New York newsboy of twelve years has accepted as the inviolable moral principle that a West Side resident has a right to have five limousines, while he is earning money to keep his mother and three younger brothers and sisters alive. Of course if he chances into a socialist Sunday school on upper East Side, a monkey wrench is thrown into this method society has of passing on to children its accepted moral principles. We introduce this exception here just to strengthen the force of the principle that we are trying to illustrate copiously, to wit, the principle that the child has a tendency to accept as infallible, inviolate, and "sacred" truth those moral principles as exemplified in practice, those principles of religiosity that society passes on to him as right in themselves. On the other hand, the Communist's child never thinks anything but that the institution of private property is the cause of his father's poverty, and the cause of society's ills. It is always asserted in his Sunday school as the truth; it is never questioned. Perhaps, too, that Karl Marx and not Jesus gave us the true principles upon which human society can best be constructed is accepted as truth; he has never any occasion to think otherwise, at least while in the company of his Communist brethren. Consequently these statements become the infallible truth to him; or, at least, they become so strongly impressed upon his social thinking that it is exceedingly hard to dislodge the conceptions.

Let us illustrate this method of the child's attaining his spirituality in the field of ideals. A noted psychologist has recently said in a religious magazine that an ideal becomes an actual law in the life of the child the more powerfully if it is given to him without argument. If it is asserted as a truth with no expectation that it might be questioned such as an accompaniment of an argument for its acceptance would imply, it is a stronger ideal and has greater force in his life. For instance, if we can as a generation of adults, all without any thought of its being questioned, tell a child that honesty is the best policy, it will be a much stronger rule in his life, and will be much more readily observed by him, than if we pass it on to him bolstered up by arguments that it is true. The very accompaniment of argument carries an implication that perhaps all do not accept it as being true. The argument of this psychologist seems incontrovertible. Let us apply it to the sex question. How we fear to have young men debate the question of continence before marriage. Does not their very questioning and debating seem to show us that the ideal of continence is less a law in their life? It certainly does.

We have attempted to describe and illustrate one of the most effective methods whereby the coming generation absorbs the moral order of the present society. We have brought in illustrations from all fields of human endeavor. We have illustrated it by examples that we agree with and hope that the child will continue to hold, and we have illustrated it by examples that we hope the child will soon give up and wish he had never accepted. We have mixed these two classes of examples up, with the endeavor to hide the ones we would wish him to continue to hold and those we would have him discard. The writer wonders how many of our Latter Day Saint readers, when they were reading the illustrations of the principle with reference to Catholic boys, or Episcopalian boys, or Utah Latter Day Saint boys, or Communist boys, had a feeling of nodding acquiescence to what they thought was the writer's objection to these boys being taught these fallacious (so we think) doctrines, but had a "twitching" of the heart when they read the illustrations which Reorganized Latter Day Saint boys are accepting without question. If we did, let us stop one minute and pray for consistency to be our lot. The writer ruthlessly mentioned certain Reorganized Latter Day Saint principles along with the rest for the avowed purpose of bringing home to us the meaning and practice of this method of passing on our religious and spiritual heritage to our children, so that the conclusions we draw about this method of teaching spirituality will be done with all the facts before us.

Does anyone fail to see the problems which this method of passing on our moral and spiritual heritage to our children brings to us as religious educators? We think there can be no one. The most of us have things which we hope our children will never question. Certainly all of us hope the child will never question the fact that swallowing strychnine will kill one; that one should never commit unjustifiable homicide; and that continence is to be maintained before marriage. No doubt the overwhelming majority of us hope the child will never question that private property is sacred, and that communism is impious; that one should not use tobacco; that the Doctrine and Covenants is in all parts the word of God to us to-day. A very large but not so overwhelming majority, we guess, as in the previous examples, are hoping that our children will never question the impropriety of dancing, of joining secret lodges, or the right of one to spend his own legal income in questionable oil stock, even though somebody else's child is starving.

Many questions come to our mind about this method of passing on our spiritual heritage. Shall we rely upon it entirely, i. e., shall we expect to pass on all our moral laws to the child without argument or proof, expecting him to accept our word? Can we use this method alone if we wanted to? Think of the illustration on not using tobacco in answering this last question. If we can't rely upon it entirely, shall we use it primarily, and use other methods only when we are compelled to? Or shall we rely upon this method as little as possible, using other methods preferably and this one only when we must? Shall we discard it altogether? If we decide to mix our methods, using this along with others, what shall be our deciding principles? Yes, there are other methods. This is only one way the child becomes spiritual.

The writer has intentionally evaded answering these questions in this article. His sole purpose here was to bring up the facts which raise the issue. He has endeavored to hide his bias, if it is possible for one to do that. He shall endeavor to discuss the answers later. But anyway, it is not his answer that counts as much as yours, as members of our church. What do you think about it? Each of us must accept a responsibility in answering these questions. They affect vitally the religious educational policy of the church.

The writer would be pleased to have anyone write in, giving his opinion with reference to these questions. The correspondence will have such confidential treatment as the correspondent desires. Don't for a minute think that you can slide out of the responsibility of thinking upon these matters. This is your church, and in religious matters we have less "use" for the one who thinks he can give an "expert" answer than we do in any other field, as medicine. I would by far sooner accept as gospel truth what my medical doctor would say about my health than I would what my priest or my minister or my Sunday school superintendent would say about the religious educational policy for my boy. There's my bias cropping out.

Power of Example and Precept in Keeping the Law of Tithing

BY R. J. L.

When the writer was a child eight years of age, David Dancer was Bishop's agent at Lamoni, Iowa, and Henry C. Smith was interested and engaged in collecting tithes and offerings for Decatur District, then comparatively new territory in the Reorganization.

I was a member of a traveling missionary's family, our sustenance coming from our own labors and frugality, assisted by the church treasury, when and if it had funds, to the extent of twenty-five dollars a month. Being just a normal boy, I often asked questions, and a question to my tiny but potent mother about that time ran something like this: "Where does Brother Dancer get all his money, mother? He can't earn all it takes to keep the elders' families!"

Her time was fully occupied, and her strength answered many demands, but she paused, put down the work she was doing, looked seriously at me for a moment, made an explanation of how the Lord's people at his command gave one cent out of every ten cents they were able to accumulate into the hands of men like Henry C. Smith, who took the funds to the church treasury kept by Brother Dancer, and he dispensed them to keep the orphan and the widow from the pain of hunger and cold, to send the missionaries to their fields of labor, and to help their families to live during the absence of the husband and father. This mother of mine was not a school-educated woman, but she had a faculty of teaching, and then and there she implanted the idea that it was a great privilege to give money to the Lord's storehouse or treasury.

Following up is another normal childish trait, and after a few hours—or more likely it was minutes, for minutes of those years seemed like hours of these—we wondered and asked mother if we might not be permitted to pay tithing on our store of hoarded wealth, which we were expecting might at some time be large enough to purchase an express wagon. Modern boys call the vehicles "coaster wagons," we think.

Again work was halted and explanation was made that this could be done now; that it would be a sacrifice (the purchase of the wagon would of course be delayed) as well as a delightful privilege, but if I were sure I wanted to pay my tithing I could count my money, and when we went to town we could pass by Brother Smith's and hand him the money and get a paper receipt we could keep forever, which would say just how much we had helped the Lord's work.

Nervous fingers handled the small silver, copper, and alloy coins as an anxious and excited mind made the count; joy and pride were generated as it was determined we had somewhere between thirty-five and fifty cents to turn over; and at prayer that evening a soul ascended in simple but fervent words of joy for the chance of helping care for the poor and sending the gospel to the corners of the earth.

Before the trip to town came, the store was added to by the sale of some berries which had been picked on shares, and one of the most joyous moments of my younger years was experienced when Brother Smith wrote my first tithing receipt, put my money in a buckskin bag with more money, and said, "Now, —, we have to-day added a new helper in the Lord's work, and Brother Dancer will be glad." He then told of how he had just passed several dollars into the same bag, it being a tenth of the sale price he had just received for a cow, and the precept of paying tithing as you go was planted.

A few months later there came into our hands a copy of the SAINTS' HERALD containing the Bishop's report, and we were assisted in finding our name in print, together with the statement of the amount we had paid. But here also came the example of Brother Smith, of Brother Dancer, and their names in the published list. The amounts some had contributed made me very ambitious to do more, and I was off to a good start in keeping God's law, to give into the hands of his officers one tenth of that with which he blessed me.

Years have come and gone, and to-day as we read a letter from Bishop McGuire, transmitting the letter of a consecrated sister in the East, and asking that the sister's letter be reproduced, that "other mothers may feel the value of their teachings to their children in regard to observing the temporal law," we have a poignant desire to add to the testimony of the sister, hence this reminiscence.

A Letter to Bishop McGuire From a Tithing Solicitor

Among the "faithful tithers" of the branch (a solicitor soon learns them as well as the spasmodic ones) there is a sister, a widow upon whom many burdens have fallen, yet she is prompt with her tithe each month, and always as I take it I feel to ask God to make it up to her, because from the human standpoint I know she cannot give away one cent without a denial of some real need; but she is so happy in the gospel and so glad to give that I would never suggest to her that she has no tithing, but an offering. Some one told her that during a discussion of tithing, and she came to me quite upset about it. She said, "Perhaps it isn't enough to be classed as tithing, and of course I do have to go without things I need in order to pay it, but the Lord helps me keep out of debt; I pay my rent and for my food; and before I buy another thing I pay my tithing, else there would be nothing. If you think it ought to be an offering, put it in, but I would rather it went in as tithing, and I think the Lord understands my feeling." I replied that it certainly should go in as tithing, and although a general law of tithing had to be given on what constituted the necessities of life and what is surplus, it is largely a matter between us and the Lord. He who lives up to the letter of the law will receive his blessing, but he who lives according to the spirit of the law will receive a blessing that differs in degree.

I am thankful that mother taught me the law of tithing along with the other gospel principles. We always paid our Christmas offering from the money we made picking berries, and when we went to work it was an easy transition from Christmas offering to tithing. We expected to pay it as we expected to pay any debt. I firmly believe that early in life children should be taught the habit of systematic giving; the amount may be of small consequence, but the habit of giving according to one's means and of increasing the offering as the income increases is of importance both to the individual and to the church. Isn't it true that we are lagging behind our church program to-day because our people have not been educated properly in giving? It was years before I heard anything about tithing as a definite law. It was counted unto you for righteousness if you did pay tithing, but it wasn't taught to the recruits in the gospel, and many of the older Saints of the district never did pay tithes. Brother M. C. Fisher has done a wonderful work in educating the Saints of this district to fulfill their obligations and accept their privileges in complying with the gospel law. I was glad to hear a brother say recently that our missionaries are instructed how to teach tithing to all candidates for baptism, and to have those coming in as new members file their inventories. A person who is converted as deep down as his pocketbook is thoroughly converted; the person whose conversion does not extend so far may be a mere believer, and in this age (if ever) mere believers are no great asset to the church.

I am thankful mother taught me that tithing must be paid. On a visit home recently I looked over an old diary and found some items which were of interest to me and which I am going to use when talking to our young people on tithing.

It was a record of my first year away from home as a breadwinner. Perhaps those items may interest you.

32 weeks at a salary of $7.50.....	$240.00
Board and laundry at $4.....	$128.00
Stage coach fares.....	5.00
Clothes .....	40.00
Books .....	15.00
Debt paid .....	10.00
Expenses to two conferences.....	10.00
Reunion expenses of self and mother .....	20.00
Church and Sunday School .....	4.00
Miscellaneous .....	2.00
Tithing .....	6.00
	$240.00

The most interesting item was that $6 tithe on a salary of $240 for thirty-two weeks. Evidently my kind parents charged me no board during the long vacation, or I worked it out. I am sorry now that it is not given more in detail, as I would like to know what luxuries I bought with that two dollars.

That little itemized account recalls much to me, and I want to weave it into a little story to tell to some young people who have lately been questioning me about tithing. One earning fifteen dollars a week for over two years, with a two-week vacation given her, has felt that she hasn't anything on which to pay tithing; yet when her board of seven dollars is paid she has almost twice our little school-teacher's entire wage. Of course living wasn't so expensive then as now; perhaps there were not so many allurements in the shops in those days; but I think our young friend must have had to deny herself of many things even in that far-away day, and the chief difference in the girls lay in the fact one was taught she had an obligation—the other has not been taught that.

With this letter I wish to inclose my inventory

(Continued on page 638.)

NEWS AND LETTERS

Apostles Hanson and Curtis in the Holy Land

By Paul M. Hanson

ROUM, MOUNT LEBANON, May 28.—On May 16, Elder J. F. Curtis and I left Jerusalem in a Dodge motor car for places in northern Palestine and Syria. As the Holy Land is not a large country, one soon passes from Judea into Samaria and then into Galilee. The road is good, and is patrolled by police. Many small wheat fields are in the valleys and on the hill-sides. Groups of men and women are harvesting the golden grain, taking hold of the stalks in one hand and using a small sickle in the other; then tying into bundles. These are placed on donkeys and camels and are carried to where it is to be threshed in the ancient manner, by animals drawing planks or other weights over the grain. Then it is winnowed in the wind. Nearly everything is carried on the backs of animals and men.

In passing picturesque scenes of small villages on rocky hilltops one recalls the words of Jesus, "A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid."

So many experiences of an unusual character have crowded into our lives since our entrance into Palestine that we marvel at where our lot has been cast. We have traversed the land of the Bible from its southern to its northern boundary and from its eastern to its western border. Our eyes have rested on flourishing gardens, orchards of olives, oranges, figs, and other fruits, and waving grain growing in the midst of fertile valleys and on terraced mountain sides. We have also seen mountain wastes and desert regions. One marked impression of the country is its diversity of climate and scenery.

Some villages and towns are almost entirely Mohammedan, others Christian. People who profess belief in Christ, reand tithing report which did not get sent last January, although it was made out at that time. My items seem rather large for one individual, but they fluctuate, as I have to help at home, and some years it means more than others. Car fare is one of my necessary living expenses, and I am obliged to pay dues in local, state, and national school federation, as well as to take courses. I have not included in this report the cost of those courses. I wish later to send you a list of my budget and expenses and have your decision on which items tithing is due. It used to be simpler when I paid tithing on everything outside of my board, but as expenses have increased and my scale of living has been forced up, I have found it impossible to use that old method.

(Continued from page 637.)

Well, I have taken up enough of your time. I wish to say that I appreciate those bulletins you are sending your solicitors. I pin them on the bulletin board at church, marking in red pencil items that seem to apply to our local conditions or are of general interest. I have used them in talks and have found a couple of items that served as a basis for testimony in social service, so the experiences of others help.

ardless of the church to which they belong, are known as Christians.

At Nablus, once known as Shechem, the capital of Samaria, we visited the well where Jesus engaged in conversation with a Samaritan woman. We drank of the cool, refreshing water, and thought of the beautiful, timely, and effective comparison made by Jesus of it with everlasting life.

Near by and in full view from the well is Mount Gerizim to which the conversation between the Master and the woman turned.

Customs in the East are extremely slow in changing. Many now existing are of ancient origin. This land is in many respects as it was in Bible times. Even to-day one does not see a mingling of the sexes of the people of the East in the mosques, synagogues, places of amusement, of restaurants. On the streets one seldom sees husbands and wives together, and when they are seen the man generally walks ahead of the woman.

The high priests of the Samaritans in Nablus we did not see, as he was out of town, but we conversed with his son, Nagi Kahen, who conducted us through their synagogue and showed us their Pentateuch rolled on sticks, which they have guarded and preserved from remote times. The Samaritans number only one hundred and sixty men, women, and children in all the world. In their physiognomy they bear a resemblance to the Hebrew.

When in the plain of Esdraelon, we glimpsed Nazareth, a long way off up in the hills. In leaving the plain a long ascent is begun, winding round and round, until, looking at several curves in the road, it took much the appearance of a figure eight. Then we beheld the city, nestling in the hills. From near Nazareth, sweeping and magnificent views are spread out before the eyes: Mount Hermon capped with snow, Mount Tabor rising in solitude from the plain, and the plain itself, bordered in the distance by the mountains of Samaria.

In Haifa, which lies near the sea at the base of Mount Carmel, we stayed with Mr. G. Y. Mansour, a well-known Arab instructor in various languages and educational subjects, in whose home we held several preaching services.

On the slopes of Mount Carmel, on which Elijah challenged the priests of Baal to prove their claims, grow grapes, olives, and figs, and on its summit are orchards and pine trees. I was told that next year one thousand or one thousand five hundred houses are to be built on the mountain for the possession of Jewish colonists. Not only here, but also in the plains of Sharon and Esdraelon, remarkable headway is being made by Jewish colonies and others, some of which we visited.

One experience we shall ever look back upon in pleasant memory and with gratitude to the One who is beneficent, is our visit to Tiberius on the Sea of Galilee. So large a part of the work of Jesus was done in this vicinity that one visiting Palestine misses much who does not see this place.

Samaria and Galilee are much more inviting respecting cultivated land than Judea.

The sea, which is about fourteen miles long and seven and one half miles wide, is in the midst of peaceful-looking mountains. So clear is the air that one can easily see across the water, or from one end to the other. The entrance of the Jordan is in the northeastern end, and its exit is in the southwestern corner.

Capernaum, a short distance by boat, contains most interesting and marvelous ruins of a synagogue, believed to be the one built by the centurion whose servant was healed by the Lord.

A small village, not far to the west of Capernaum, is pointed out as Bethsaida, the birthplace of Peter, John, and Philip.

It was interesting to visit the water's edge in Tiberius very early in the morning and see the fisherman in their open boats, propelled by oars and sails, coming in with their fish after toiling all night. The fish, excellent for the table, are sold to the highest bidders at the landing wharf. On the wharf are fishermen mending their nets.

In going by boat to any given point we noticed that the boatmen keep close to the shore as much as possible, to avoid being caught in a sudden squall.

Mount Hermon, robed in snow and veiled in clouds, rises in the distance, while here palms are waving their feathery branches in the breeze. I fell in love with the Sea of Galilee.

Here and in other places I sometimes kept Brother Curtis awake at night changing photographic plates under bed covers or getting into wardrobes and having him release me. Trustworthy dark rooms in the East are difficult to find. At different times I was told the "dark room" was perfectly safe, but I knew from light coming through cracks it was not. Photography is to me one of the marvels of latter days.

As the way was clear for us to go from Beirut, Syria, to Naples for about the same fare as via Alexandria, Egypt, we booked our passage from the former port to sail via Smyrna, Constantinople, Athens, and Malta on the S. S. Lomartine, of the Messageries Maritimes Company, which is to leave Beirut May 30. Brother and Sister Harry Passman will accompany us.

This opened the way for us to call at points in Syria. In Damascus we visited the Protestant cemetery and unitedly paid tribute to the memory and labors of Elder Rees Jenkins by placing flowers upon his grave. He died away from home in the Master's cause. Carved in his tombstone are the words: "Elder Rees Jenkins, Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, born at Cilcemen, Wales, August 10, 1869. Died at Damascus, May 9, 1918. He died in the Master's service."

From here we journeyed to Baalbek, where most marvelous ruined temples were spread out before our eyes. It has been my privilege to see some great monuments left by human hands, but these, for magnificence, architectural perfection, and beauty, left the deepest impression. One cannot but be astonished at the sculpturing and the construction which is so massive in character. In the west wall of the foundation which served as a substructure for the great temple dedicated to the worship of Baal, are six huge blocks of stone, and above these are three other blocks, each measuring approximately sixty-four feet in length, fourteen feet in height, and twelve feet in breadth. It seems almost impossible that human hands could have built such a structure. All around lie colossal fragments of bases, cornices, and columns.

One of the strange things in the ruins is the presence of great columns, and fragments of columns of red and rose-colored granite, twenty-three and one half feet long and more than three feet in diameter, transported from Assouan in upper Egypt.

At present we are at the home of Brother George Njeim in Roum, a village situated high up in the mountains of Lebanon, about fifteen miles from the Mediterranean. He was converted under the preaching of Elder U. W. Greene, and is a fine, intelligent young man of Arabic blood.

Frequently we are above the clouds. Snow lies not far away on some of the ranges. The ancient Phoenician cities of Sidon and Tyre are in plain view, the harbor of the former between a small island and the shore showing clearly in a field glass. The mountainous scenery about Roum is attractive and unique, flat-roofed villages dotting the landscape as far as the eye can reach, some on the mountain slopes, others perched on ridges and surrounded by rock-walled terraces in which orchards of figs, grapes, pomegranates, mulberries, and olives thrive. Many of the mulberry trees are denuded of their leaves, owing to numbers of the inhabitants engaged in raising silk cocoons. The mulberry leaves are fed to the silkworms.

In various parts of Lebanon are large springs, the cool, limpid waters of which refresh the flocks of sheep, goats, and cattle, and water the land.

In this part of the country there is a good type of people, earnest, conscientious, and better educated than in many other parts of Syria. The American University in Beirut, American College in Sidon, and other high class schools have exerted a far-reaching influence over the people of the East, especially of this neighborhood.

One day we visited the cedars of Al Mouassir, about thirty-five miles from Roum. They are somewhat difficult to reach, situated as they are near the top of a mountain, close to the snow line. The Bible mentions the beauty, height, and utility of these trees. A great quantity of this wood was employed by Solomon in building the temple at Jerusalem. Herod the Great used this wood in reconstructing the temple. Of all the cedar groves which covered the slopes of Lebanon in ancient times, there now remain but five. The trees, stately in appearance, some of great height and large in circumference, with their horizontal, widespreading branches and aciculated leaves, are beautiful to behold. It was a long climb to the grove, and the way was steep and rough, but Brother Curtis was with us, fresh and interested, when we arrived at the top. Much of the time we were in the clouds, at times not able to see the trees though they were near us, but before we left the clouds lifted, and the delight of our hearts was furnished by the sun shining brightly on the mountain side.

When in Palestine I could not but contemplate the changes which had taken place since I visited the country in 1906. Then the Turk was in control. One thing resulting from the World War was the lifting of the Turkish heel from this land. Nothing but force would accomplish this needed change. It seems that the time for liberating universal forces for the executing of the decrees of God relating to the restoration of the Jews to their ancient homeland had come.

Naturally there is deep feeling between the Arabs and the Jews in the Holy Land, of whom the former greatly preponderate in numbers, over the working out of the Balfour Declaration. Many difficult problems consequently confront the British Government, that holds the country under a mandate given by the League of Nations.

We saw the Nebbi Musa (Prophet Moses) celebration held some weeks ago in Jerusalem by Arabs, nearly all of whom were Mohammedans. Their sentiment was in favor of Palestine for the Arabs. Speeches were made by men carried on the shoulders of others; banners were carried, and a number while marching were waving swords. A sufficient police force was on hand with machine guns, and two armored motor cars were stationed near the Jaffa gate, so there was no trouble.

Perhaps I should have noted that in Jaffa (Joppa) we did some preaching. In Roum we have done a little preaching and visiting with the people. To-day, May 28, two young men, Arabs, twenty-five and twenty-six years old, respectively, were baptized in a spring of beautiful water in a deep valley among the mountains.

Before taking my departure from Jerusalem I yielded to a desire to visit once more the Mount of Olives. From our Mission House I wended my way through the city and then through the old city which is inclosed with walls, past the Jews' wailing place. Here they were sobbing over their departed glory. After standing on the southern wall and from its ramparts looking upon some of the great blocks of stone in the southwestern wall of the temple area, viewing the Valley of Jehosaphat to the south and the Mount of Olives to the east, I passed out of a gate on the south and followed the southern wall until I reached the Valley of Kedron. In turning the southeastern corner of the city wall the tombs of Zachariah and Saint James, the former of which is garnished, and the Pillar of Absalom in the valley below, came suddenly into view. I crossed the valley, passed by the Garden of Gethsemane, then ascended the Mount of Olives, which is a little tiresome but not difficult to climb. On one of the summits of its undulating ridge is a Russian convent, from the tower of which I looked out upon the Wilderness of Judea, the mountains of Moab, and the Dead Sea.

The sun in setting was now and again breaking through the clouds, casting shadows over the city.

The Mosque of Omar, with its huge grayish-blue dome, attracted my chief attention. In the grounds were many Mohammedans worshipping, bowing to Allah, and proclaiming their faith in Mahomet. These grounds were once the area of the temple of the Lord. My heart became heavy; I thought of what had happened, and what might have been. The fountain of my tears was opened. Israel with a great, glorious, and triumphant future, their children now mourning and looking back upon nearly two thousand years of nightmare!

Nineteen hundred years ago! The Messiah was a man of sorrows, acquainted with grief, and was rejected of men. In the temple courts, now in the hands of aliens, Jesus preached and labored and loved, yet against him was combined opposition. Misunderstanding is the cause of most of the world's troubles and sorrows. Enough of what bears on every subject is not known. I thought of the church the Lord established, and many things that had occurred since he was on earth: elements of destruction working within and without the church, bringing on the dark night of apostasy; and of the forces within and without the church that well-nigh wrought its destruction in latter days. Of the temple in Jerusalem, not one stone was left upon another, but all were thrown down; and of the temple in Nauvoo, not one stone remains upon another; the removal was complete.

Near by was an olive grove, and in a secluded spot I cast myself down in the shade of one of the blossoming trees. Across the valley, and below me, were Jerusalem and the Mosque of Omar—how ominous in meaning of rejection of God! Here on the mountain Jesus conversed and fraternized with his disciples, told them many things pertaining to his work, loved them, and finally for the world sweat great drops of blood in soul travail.

My heart found expression in prayer. I meditated on the majesty, power, and goodness of God in redeeming man, reviewed my life and many blessings, spoke forth in praise and gratitude to him for his leadings in the days of my childhood, youth, and manhood, for what my eyes had seen, my ears had heard, and my heart had felt, and for the church. I prayed fervently to God to bless the church in its entirety, and make bare his arm before all nations in bringing to pass his good pleasure concerning Israel.

My faith in the divine sonship of Jesus Christ and his work continues unchanged; owing to conditions that have occurred in recent years, of which much remains to be made known, I cannot but wonder if the joy of service of former years will return to me. Servants of God should be able to perform their work with hosannahs to God welling up in their hearts while in service.

BEIRUT.—Brother Passman and wife have arrived here, and we are all ready to board the steamer which sails to-morrow, the appointed day, at 2 p. m. We are loath to leave Elder

D. B. Sorden and family alone in this field. He is entering upon his difficult work at the Mission House with good heart, and for his devotion, sacrifice, and faithfulness, God will in time richly reward him and use him in further service.

Brother and Sister Passman have done a good work, and after their long absence from their native land we are happy to see them with their faces turned with joy towards home.

Everybody Works at Kingston Branch; Two Boys Drown

KINGSTON, MISSOURI, June 24.—Our branch is not in as good working order as we hope to see it soon, although the attendance at all services is quite good. Some nonmembers attend the services. We have preaching, Sunday school, Religion, and Wednesday night prayer meetings. The priesthood of the branch consists of four elders, one teacher, and one deacon. All take an active part in the services. Sacramental services are held at eleven o'clock the first Sunday in each month. Brother C. E. Wood is the branch president, and he does not excuse any of the priesthood. They all take their turn in the stand.

There will be a two-day meeting held at Kingston the second Saturday and Sunday in July. We are expecting the stake officials to be here and hope to see a good attendance of members and nonmembers.

The weather has been so rainy this month that many farmers are about to lose their corn crop. We hope for better conditions.

Sister McPeek, from Indiana, is visiting her son, Brother A. McPeek and family, having arrived last Sunday. Brother Douglas McPeek and his father attended a part of the Young People's Convention at Lamoni, Iowa. They returned home quite well pleased with their trip.

We were pained last week to learn that the eight-year-old son of Brother and Sister John Harrington, and also the little son of Brother and Sister Robert Deim, were drowned in Tom Creek, three miles south of Hamilton, in the Oak Dale vicinity. Brother A. Salisbury, of Saint Joseph, Missouri, preached the double funeral in the Methodist Church at Hamilton to a very large and attentive audience. May the Lord cheer and comfort each sorrowing heart.

May the Lord's work prosper and the honest hearted ones be gathered into his fold.

Spiritual Progress in Wisconsin

TOMAHAWK, WISCONSIN, June 18.—The Saints here are looking forward to the coming reunion at Chetek. The Saints are active, with a good attendance at Sunday school. Prayer meetings are not so well attended, but generally a very good spirit prevails.

Brother George Clark preaches occasionally and is trying to keep the seed growing which was planted by Brethren Wildermuth and Lenox.

The Saints are mourning the loss in the near future of Brother and Sister Ray Mair who are contemplating a move to Hammond, Indiana. May God bless them in their new endeavors.

Last Sunday, June 15, Elder Howe, of Antigo, with his little daughter, drove to Harshaw, where the Saints of Tomahawk met with the Saints of the former place in sacrament. A peaceful spirit was present. Brother Howe spoke in the afternoon on the text, "There is a spirit in man; and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding."

We are trying to keep the banner of King Immanuel flying, and ask the prayers of the Saints.

Some Ontario News

PORT ELGIN, ONTARIO, June 23.—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schrank when their daughter, May, was united in marriage to Elder Percy Farrow, Elder Grant St. John officiating.

A large number of our branch attended the church opening at the Wiarion Branch June 15.

June 22 some of the Saints were at Owen Sound attending the priesthood meeting. Owen Sound district conference will convene at Guelph June 28 and 29. A number from here intend going.

CHATHAM, ONTARIO, June 23.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Brother and Sister Edward Armstrong May 24, when their daughter, Olive Enna, was united in marriage to Edwin Vince, son of Brother and Sister Thomas Vince, of West Chatham. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Ivan P. Prichard, sister of the groom. The wedding ceremony was read by Elder John Dent, of Merlin. The bride's attendant was Miss Neva Ellis, while the groom was attended by J. Jones. These young people will make their home in Highland Park, Detroit, Michigan.

Nauvoo Items

NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, June 23.—Strawberries are ripe in Nauvoo. Ten thousand dollars worth of berries were shipped from this vicinity in one day. The men are busy packing, the women canning and preserving, and the children are out in the berry fields trying to excel each other in picking. Brother Layton was on hand Sunday morning with his receipt book, and all were anxious to obtain a piece of it, for that was the day set for the tithes and offerings to be brought in.

The Department of Women held a strawberry and ice cream festival on the church lawn and netted a nice little sum. Many of the most influential people of the town were present and gave liberal patronage.

Children's Day was observed in a very pleasing manner. Brother Berve spoke to the children at the morning hour, impressing many truths upon their minds in a way that they will not soon forget. The evening program was in charge of Sister A. L. Sanford. The songs, recitations, and drills by the children, and selections by the orchestra were well received. The church was prettily decorated with an arch of roses, peonies, and syringa blossoms. The pastor of the Methodist Church dismissed his evening service, and the whole congregation came down to enjoy the concert. The branch voted to return the compliment, so the following Sunday evening they visited the Methodist Church and listened to Reverend Baker's sermon on "The evils of dancing." A splendid feeling seems to prevail throughout Nauvoo towards the Latter Day Saints.

The sacramental service was another of those spiritual feasts that have been so frequent in Nauvoo. The Lord spoke through Brother Berve, commending the Saints for their humility and unity, telling them that if they continued to maintain this unity and watch their words, their deeds of kindness and words of love would draw such as would help build up the waste places of Nauvoo.

The branch was again richly blessed at an eight o'clock prayer meeting that was held Sunday morning at the request of our young brother, Vincil Johnson, who has lately come among us from Fort Madison. All came fasting, and the Lord poured out his Spirit from the early morning service until the close of the day. Emma Burton spoke in tongues, and the interpretation was given through Brother Berve, telling the older ones to carefully cherish the young people of the branch. A fine, active group of young people are growing up in the Nauvoo Branch, and everything is being done to safeguard their future.

Our young brother, Jesse Fisher, made a trip to Kentucky and returned a married man. His bride was warmly welcomed, and another home is established in our midst. The Department of Women gave the bride a shower, and many useful gifts were presented for the new home.

Sister Dexter Heady had a birthday on the 12th of June. As it was the regular meeting day of the Department of Women, it was decided to turn it into a surprise party, and as Sister A. L. Sanford had a birthday coming the following day, she was also included in the surprise. Ice cream, covered with fresh strawberries, and cake were served. Each sister was presented with a dozen pretty plates.

Sister H. J. Davison and daughter Nina, of Stockton, California, visited the Sanfords on their way to New York and Boston. Jennie Fairclough and Helen Layton, of Independence, spent a number of weeks in Nauvoo, visiting relatives and lending their talents to the various programs presented.

Kansas City Stake Items

Central

The regular monthly stake meetings were held on Sunday, June 15. The priesthood were occupied at three o'clock with a questionnaire composed by Brethren A. R. White, D. E. Hough, and R. E. Browne. Thirty-six numbered questions pertaining to our work were propounded, on letter-sized sheets, with a space for written answers. After answering questions, sheets were exchanged, and the totals of affirmative and negative answers were chalked on a board. In this way the sentiment of the body was secured, yet not divulging the identity of the ones making answer. While there was not a unanimity of opinion on all questions, they modestly answered "No" to the question, "Are you satisfied with the work being done by the priesthood of Kansas City?"

The Department of Women was addressed by Sister Anne Friend Roberts and Sister Strachan on cradle roll work.

The elders' quorum will not take up the study of "The priesthood." Brother Ira G. Clutter was ordained counselor to the president of the quorum.

Speakers in the recent past have been from the local force, A. R. White, W. R. Odell, S. S. Sandy, J. A. Tanner, and F. B. Blair.

Children's Day exercises were fittingly observed here as well as at all the churches of the stake, baptisms and confirmations being in some instances a part of the proceedings.

Fourth Church

The Fourth Church broke all previous records in Sunday school attendance when on Mothers' Day one hundred forty-five were present. A picnic followed on May 30, and a Children's Day program later.

The prayer meetings are spiritual and uplifting, an especially inspiring feature being the activity of the juniors, some of them from nine to fourteen years of age, taking active part in prayer and testimony. The early morning prayer service, held each Sunday for the young, is growing in interest.

The special services for the juniors have been a success, creating a feeling among them that incites them to activity in the various departments.

The Progressive Club, true to name, is progressing, having with other activities recently completed a quilt, the blocks having been pieced by Sister Needham, of the Holden Home.

A series of meetings to be conducted by W. I. Fligg, missionary, will open on Sunday, June 15. They hope to succeed in their work by right living and earnest effort.

Bennington Church

The new addition to the church building is nearing completion, which with the older part will furnish seating capacity for about three hundred. It is of brick veneer construction. They are fortunate in securing volunteer craftsmen in doing part of the work, brick masons being needed most.

On July 4 a basket dinner will be served at the church, and they especially request all brick masons who can do so to join them in laying brick and eating the good things furnished by the sisters. The location is Thirteenth and Bennington Streets.

Tawas City News

TAWAS CITY, MICHIGAN, June 23.—Sunday, June 8, Elder S. T. Pendleton closed a series of meetings in our branch, the result of which must be left to the Lord to determine. The seed was faithfully sown, and God must give the increase.

June 15 Elders John Wade, of Saginaw, Michigan, and Bert Turner, of Bay City, Michigan, visited our branch; Brother Wade in the interest of the Sunday School Department. Brother Turner spoke at the eleven o'clock hour, to the upbuilding of the Saints.

A number of the Saints of this branch attended the one-day meeting at Whittemore June 22.

My Visit to Taylorville, Illinois

CASEY, ILLINOIS, June 20.—Saturday, April 19, I arrived at the home of Brother Joe Price, to conduct a series of meetings, as per previous arrangements, beginning Monday night. The Sunday being Easter was turned over to the committee on the Easter program, and in the morning Sunday school was held at the usual hour. The classes taking their respective places surely made an inspiring spectacle— young men and maidens fired with a zeal that surely would cause any missionary's heart to swell within him, feeling that some day there will be many willing hands to carry this grand work on and on.

I was made to know that all this body of one hundred sixty-eight scholars, representing thirteen classes, was bought by real effort upon the part of those that were intrusted with the work (Brother Phillips, superintendent, and Brother Joe Williams, president of the branch), as well as the previous workers and missionaries.

The membership there is two hundred twenty-five enrolled members, and with all the members present there is no room for nonmembers. I suggested that in the near future they would have an early and late mass, like our Catholic neighbors.

Special mention is due the sister who teaches the primary class, twenty-five in number. Every little eye and mind is attracted by the animated and illustrated lessons given by the sister, who is very original in presenting them. There is a great tendency for even the larger children, between the ages of twenty-five and ninety years, to want to mingle with the class when it is in action. I would that we had many other teachers who were so fully in love with their classes.

Taylorville is a mining town, and while they are not so rich in this world's goods, they are surely rich in the Spirit of God, and our desire is to see this branch continue to grow until the great Superintendent of Minds will say, It is enough; come home.

E. L. ULRICH.

CASEY, ILLINOIS, June 20.

The Prospects Are Encouraging at Pueblo

PUEBLO, COLORADO, June 19.—The Pueblo Branch has been enjoying a goodly portion of the Spirit of God since the last news letter, and there are fine prospects here for the future. A new place has been opened recently for services where the gospel is being told to those who have not had this privilege before. The ministers are all active and eager to see the work push forward.

The pastor, Elder Wilbert Richards, was pleasantly surprised last Friday night, June 13, at the home of Brother and Sister Eve, when it was announced that the Saints had remembered his birthday. Ice cream and cake were served, and Brother Richards was presented with the money to purchase a book. As it was the regular evening for song service, most of the time was spent in singing the sweet songs of Zion, which pleased the pastor very much. A very pleasant time was had by all.

The Department of Women recently gave a "Rube" party, at which pies were sold and the proceeds given to the building fund.

Prejudice Dissolving at Bradner

BRADNER, OHIO, June 16.—The Bradner Saints are much encouraged with the Lord's measure of kindness to them. The clouds of persecution which have existed in the past are gradually passing, and many are becoming friends to the church. When we first came here to live, persecution raged. One night four years ago, I had a dream and saw myself playing the piano in the Methodist church, and I thought, "Oh, that will never come to pass, for their members are our worst enemies."

This spring our son Herbert was chosen by the public school to represent Bradner in a county vocal contest to be given at the Methodist church. Herbert won first honors in two different contests. I played for him and have sung and played for funerals several times in the same building since. Herbert also sang at the Memorial Day services given at the town hall.

These little things convince me that God is in this work and will be with his people if they put their trust in him. Any weapon formed against this work will not prosper.

The Department of Recreation and Expression is being largely attended, and Bradner has a fine number of very promising young folks whom we trust God will preserve from the worldly elements. They are now busy making a tennis court on the rear of the church lot. So, many changes are taking place for the advancement of God's cause here.

The Department of Women have purchased and paid for a piano, and we are hoping that the spirit of love which has so far prevailed among us may ever continue. May God bless all who are striving to build up the cause.

OLIVE ULRICH.

A letter from the branch correspondent at Lincoln, Nebraska, says that they recently enjoyed a visit from Patriarch F. A. Smith. Brother Smith gave several blessings while there. The Saints are feeling very discouraged at present. Their branch president has moved to Wyoming, and they are left without a captain or pilot.

District Conference and Other News From Moorhead

MOORHEAD, IOWA, June 24.—The quarterly conference of the Little Sioux District, which convened here June 21 and 22, passed off very nicely. It was preceded by the convention on Friday. The district president, Brother Joseph Lane, was in charge, being assisted by Brother C. B. Woodstock. The subjects of the Christmas offering, budget system, and Young People's Convention were discussed, and many good thoughts presented.

The evening's program was in charge of the Moorhead local. The usual routine of business was transacted on Saturday. It being the annual election of district officials, Brother Joseph Lane was reelected district president, to choose his assistants; Sister Ada Putnam succeeds herself as secretary. But few changes were made in the officials, as will be seen by the secretary's report.

The speakers during the conference were Brethren Joseph Seddon, Charles Putnam, and F. Mussell, the last-named a visitor from the Gallands Grove District. Prayer services were held at nine o'clock in the morning both Saturday and Sunday.

There were many visitors present, among whom was J. F. Mintun, of Council Bluffs, who was a missionary in this district for many years. Moorhead friends hope he will return during the summer and make a more complete visit, as his many friends wish to renew his acquaintance. The October conference will convene at Woodbine.

It is considered that Moorhead was very well represented at the Young People's Convention. Those in attendance were our branch president, Brother T. O. Strand, and daughter Francis, Fern Wilson, Helen McDonald, Edward Struble, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams and son, and Arnold, Aurilee, and Alice Jensen, all of whom bring good reports of the meetings held there.

Sunday, the 29th, Sunday school at the community church of the Jordan expect to hold a Children's Day program followed by a picnic dinner. This is a newly organized but a prosperous Sunday school.

Elder J. T. Spence and family, who recently moved from here to Cherokee, were among the quarterly conference visitors.

Brother Thomas Crandall is still very ill at his home, with seemingly no encouragement of a return to health.

News From Eastern Iowa

OTTUMWA, IOWA, June 27.—The work here is moving along very nicely. We are pleased to report that Brother George Santee, who had over half of one foot, and the other leg taken off at the knee seven weeks ago, is improving and is now able to be taken out in the car in the afternoons. While at his work as a conductor of a freight train, he was walking on top of the cars and slipped down between. This brother has been wonderfully blessed through administration.

Sister Florence Kreiger died here on June 4, after a long sickness of fifteen months. She was a very patient sufferer. We have lost a good, faithful sister.

Three were baptized on June 25 as a result of the work of the Sunday school.

Three were baptized on June 25 as a result of the work of the Sunday school.

At the present time our Department of Women is busy getting ready to give a play.

Elder C. E. Willey, of Lamoni, Iowa, preached two sermons here on June 8 which were well received.

President Frederick M. Smith Attends Mission Conference

MANTENO, ILLINOIS, June 28.—The Northeastern Illinois district conference which was held at Mission June 2 to 22, was well attended, every branch in the district being represented.

President Frederick M. Smith's presence there Saturday and Sunday was a source of inspiration to all the Saints. Brother Smith preached Saturday evening, the subject being, "Our heritages." He gave a stirring talk to the priesthood Sunday morning and preached from the subject, "They say," Sunday afternoon.

President Smith admonished the Saints to be a praying people, for a praying people will not go wrong very long; also he advised them to keep faith in God and to observe the Golden Rule, as the sifting time is here. He requested the prayers of the Saints in his behalf that he may be enabled to do God's will.

Elder Charles Burr, who has served many years in the mission field, also gave a timely admonition at the sacramental service Sunday forenoon. This service was characterized by the spirit of prayer and good fellowship.

The time Friday afternoon was given over to discussion of various phases of the district work. On Friday evening a splendid program was rendered, consisting of music and readings. Through the efforts of Sister Winifred Hayer some members of the Ottawa high school faculty were present and assisted in the program.

Elder J. L. Cooper, district superintendent, had charge of the business sessions Saturday. Reports were read and accepted, lively discussions followed, especially in reference to the reunion. The reunion committee was instructed to serve meals at the coming reunion, beginning August 14, at as near cost as possible.

The following officers were elected to fill vacancies caused by resignations: Sister J. E. Wildermuth, district Sunday school superintendent; Brother Oliver McDowell, superintendent of Department of Recreation and Expression; Brother Lewis Gauthier, Bishop's agent, subject to the approval of the Presiding Bishop; and Sister Lottie Hougas, district chorister, subject to the approval of the general chorister. The December conference will be held in Plano.

The district missionary, Elder J. E. Wildermuth, preached Sunday evening. Brother and Sister Wildermuth were glad to renew acquaintances, as they visited this district when first starting out on their matrimonial journey.

The Mission Saints kindly entertained the visiting Saints, showing forth the true spirit of hospitality and Christian love. A sumptuous cafeteria dinner was served Sunday noon at the home of Sister Electa Hoy. The conference extended a rising vote of thanks to the Mission Branch for their kindness.

New Missionary Visits San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, June 24.—On Sunday, June 8, our new missionary, Virgil Etzenhouser, was in our city and preached for us. His talk was well received, and we expect to hear from him often hereafter. We are looking for good results from his labors among us.

On the 15th Elder E. B. Hull was here and preached both morning and evening to an attentive congregation. We like to have the missionaries drop in on us. They are always welcome.

Elder G. J. Waller from Honolulu occupied our pulpit on the 22d. It seemed like old times to see and hear him. He was president of this branch some years ago so was at home among us. It was interesting to hear of his work on the islands among all races of men.

Our branch is in good condition, all working together for the good of the cause, with no apparent discord. The groups are doing well, and attendance is increasing. The Richmond group is studying the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants and find much food for thought contained therein. Sunday school and Religio are well attended. Our local elders are always ready to preach the word when there are none of the "higher ups" present. We are keeping the gospel before the people.

Lamoni Stake Items

Children's Day was observed at the Brick Church last Sunday, both morning and evening. The eleven o'clock service was by members of the beginner, primary, junior, and intermediate grades, over one hundred taking part. The rendition of the cantata, "Zion redeemed," was the leading feature of the program. This was supplemented by songs and readings on a similar theme. In the evening a mixed program was given, including numbers by the junior choir and orchestra and a sermon by Bishop A. Carmichael on the value of constructive service. Both programs were excellent. The decorations were of the most beautiful ever arranged on the stage. A canopy overhead and a background of white streamers, each streamer tipped with a garden rose; green screens draped in graceful sprays of syringa; roses around the outside of stage at back, and everywhere large bouquets of roses and peonies, gave a charming effect. The program was in charge of Misses Florence Thompson and Olive Elefson, the chorus work in charge of Mrs. C. E. Wight, and the orchestra of J. H. Anthony.

Word comes from President McDowell that he, in company with his wife and Miss Myra Nelson and K. C. Harder, is enjoying a delightful outing at Devils Lake, Wisconsin. From there Brother McDowell expects to attend the Chetek and other reunions.

Despite the daily rains and threatening clouds, Bishops Carmichael and Yarrington, with their wives, started Wednesday for California, overland. Their car was fitted with every convenience for a real camping trip, which it is hoped will prove not only a pleasure but a benefit to health as well. They will attend several reunions in the coast States during the summer.

Lamoni and vicinity has suffered its share of damage from heavy rains the past week. Grand river near here has been over its banks, and the lowlands have suffered from loss of crops considerably. The continued wet during the corn-plowing season has cut the prospect for a good yield short, as some of the corn is already past weeding. However, farmers are quite generally optimistic, thinking much of it may yet be saved and the shortage of yield may bring up prices.

Lamoni's community pictures are in full swing, being shown at Central Park once each week. The pictures furnish wholesome amusement for the summer months and offer an opportunity for a general get together for the people of the community. They are largely attended.

Brother W. E. Prall is holding a series of meetings in Lucas, Iowa, this week.

Pleasanton, Iowa, one of the oldest towns and also the location of one of the oldest branches of the church in this section, is rejoicing over the prospect of being lifted out of physical darkness. A special election has been called to vote on the issuance of bonds for the installation of electric lights.

The majority of the citizens seem to favor it, and the necessary amount of bonds has already been contracted for. An extension line will be run from here by the Lamoni Electric Company.

Lamoni is rather quiet since the close of convention, the return home of most of the college students, and the going away of a number of teachers and leading community spirits to summer school. However, a lull is sometimes good, and the rest will be conducive to greater renewal of energy in various activities with the coming of fall.

The choir has been reorganized under the direction of Evan Fry. The Lamoni-Graceland Oratorical Society of course was disorganized with the close of college, but the choir work will be continued during the summer, and the musical part of the services will not be allowed to suffer.

A Busy Branch Makes Interesting Report

FLINT, MICHIGAN, June 21.—Work on the new building for the Third Church is progressing slowly. The aim of the local membership is to complete the building with volunteer labor. The men are working each evening, and since the factories are working a little better than half time, plenty of opportunity is given for the rest of the time to be spent on the church. Thus the expense of the building will be cut considerably.

Tent services for the summer have opened in Mann-Hall addition of Flint. It is on the west side of the city, in a section where very little church work has been done. Elder Robert Orme is in charge, and from reports received a very good interest has been worked up. A Sunday school is under way with a fine showing of children from the outside.

Brother Herman Fultz and Sister Martha Kuhn were united in marriage on June 1, by Elder Matthew W. Liston. They left that afternoon, touring to Lamoni to attend the Young People's Convention. They report bad roads en route, so it was necessary for them to leave their car at Fort Madison, Iowa, and complete the trip by rail.

The passing on June 16 of Sister Rosemond M. Terrell, at Montrose, Michigan, marks the departure of another of the faithful. She had been in ill health for the past year and a half. She was always eager to do what she could for the interest of the church. Brother Samuel E. Mitchell, who has been a member of the church over forty-five years, also died the early part of the month. Elder Liston preached both sermons.

Sister Lida Budd Robertson has been very busy the last few weeks assisting with recitals. Her readings have been a feature of the programs, on which she has appeared. She directed the play, "Welcome home, Jimmy," given by the dramatic class of the Department of Recreation and Expression of the First Church. The class gave the play at Detroit, Orion, and twice in Flint. They also expect to give it later at other places in the district.

The dramatic classes of the Second and Third Churches are very busy. The class at the Second Church recently played to two full houses, and the interest is now centered on the Third, who will soon play the "Old-fashioned mother." These classes are doing some fine work in dramatics, and they should be encouraged to keep the good work going.

The Young People's Department is busy assisting near-by branches, as is their custom during the summer. Juniata and Otter Lake are their objectives this year. Brethren Sterling Roy and Dewey McNamara are capably taking care of Juniata, organizing a Sunday school and holding preaching services every Sunday afternoon. Otter Lake is receiving various speakers each Sunday evening.

Independence

The committee on Fourth of July celebration met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday, June 24, for furthering their plans on the all-day celebration at the Campus. These are some of the features to be: All-day supervised play for children, a day nursery for the relief of tired mothers with young babies, a program of sports, band concerts, orations, free motion pictures in the evening; closing with fireworks.

Preparations for dispensing good, wholesome, and nutritious food, as well as the regular Fourth of July refreshments are ample, and this under the auspices of such able individuals as guarantees perfect satisfaction.

The principal address is to be made by Judge Fred W. Coon, of Kansas City, who is reputed to be an educational and entertaining speaker.

Boy Scouts will feature the day by a parade and demonstration of their work, and parents who have not posted themselves on the advantages offered by the Boy Scout organization will have opportunity.

The dignity and simplicity which characterized the wedding of Sister Alice Myrmyda Smith to Apostle Francis Henry Edwards on Friday evening enhanced the sacredness of the ceremony and made it a fitting example to the young of the church. The public betrothal, the use of our own ceremony, the recognition of God as a partner in the house of the Lord, made this marriage an holy occasion long to be remembered. The double ring service was used by President Frederick M. Smith, father of the bride. Sister Ruth Smith, mother of the bride, accompanied her, while the sisters of the bride and groom, Miss Lois Smith and Miss Blanche Edwards, were the bridesmaids. The groom's attendants were Roland Blair, of Kansas City, and Mr. Herbert Maughiman, of New Orleans.

Virgil Thompson, organist of King's Chapel, Boston, played four organ selections and Mrs. Neal Thomason two piano solos. Brother Paul N. Craig, accompanied by his wife, sang "Bedouin love song," and Mrs. I. A. Smith sang a cycle of three love songs, the words of which were composed by Sister Alice, the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Brother and Sister F. M. Smith, in Kansas City; assisting in the reception were Brother and Sister F. B. Blair, Brother and Sister Mark N. Smith; Brother and Sister Sturges, Brother and Sister T. J. Watkins, and Brother and Sister Ellis Short. This gathering, too, was an example of simplicity, democracy, and hospitality. Brother and Sister Edwards will spend their honeymoon in the mountains of Colorado.

President Frederick M. Smith spent Sunday with the young people of Michigan at a convention of the Young People's Organization which met at Detroit. President Elbert A. Smith enjoyed the home-coming at Lees Summit on that day.

Pastor Roy V. Hopkins spoke to the Saints at the Stone Church in the morning, and Brother A. B. Phillips preached to the various congregations who unite at the Campus on Sunday evenings.

The South Side Saints listened to Brother James F. Keir on "Revealed religion versus evolution in religion," at eleven o'clock.

Sister Florence Chappelow, of the South Side congregation, was married Thursday, June 26, to Lester Patrick of Kansas City.

The Walnut Park congregation heard Brother Richard S. Salyards at eleven o'clock; and at Liberty Street the pastor, J. M. Baker, spoke on "When shall we have Zion?"

East Independence still continues their missionary services of Sunday evening. Brother Bath spoke this time on "The laying on of hands." Brother A. H. Parsons spoke at eleven o'clock.

Brother and Sister Walter W. Smith and son Ronald left the latter part of the week for Los Angeles, California. Wayne and Dudley, the two older sons, will spend the summer in the East as instructors in Boy Scout camps.

Miss Lillian Zimmermann left Saturday for Philadelphia to spend her vacation with her parents and to visit other points in the East. Miss Edith Troughton, nurse at the Sanitarium, also went to Philadelphia.

Last Sunday at the eleven o'clock hour at Enoch Hill, Elder Joseph Luff made a forceful appeal for "More knee work," stressing the absolute necessity for individual and united prayer to God as a solution for our present difficulties.

At 7 o'clock Elder Charles Edmunds preached an inspiring sermon to a completely filled auditorium. The evening preaching services are taxing the capacity of the building, as also are the morning services. The influx of Saints into this section and the good spirit of unity prevailing is very cheering.

Mrs. Leonard Harrington and Mrs. Henry Stahl entertained at the home of Mrs. Harrington Tuesday, June 24, in honor of Mrs. Richard Kelley, of Philadelphia, Mrs. Edward Fox, of Providence, Rhode Island, and Mrs. Rufus Smith, of Spokane, Washington.

Miss Beatrice Loise Julian, daughter of Mrs. Eva Julian, was also among the June brides. She was married to Francis Wayne Snapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Virgil of Mount Washington, Saturday evening at the Stone Church. President Elbert A. Smith officiated, and Mrs. Pauline Etzenhouser furnished the music. Myrl Russell acted as maid of honor, and Del Crenshaw was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Snapp will make their home in Kansas City.

Cherokee Saints Active and United

CHEROKEE, IOWA, June 24.—The branch here is still alive and trying to do its part of the Lord's work. The spirit of harmony and unity is gaining ground, and as a result we notice better attendance and interest at all services.

Sunday, June 1, about thirty Saints from here attended the district conference at Deloit. The young people's meeting was addressed by Apostle J. F. Garver, and the priesthood meetings were very much enjoyed. The special ordination service, at which nine men were ordained to the priesthood, was something never before witnessed by many and was very impressive. Brother W. W. Reeder, of our branch, was ordained an elder.

Brother Albert Haynes and Lynn White and Sister Ellen Miller have returned from Lamoni, where they attended the Young People's Convention. They report a very enjoyable and profitable time. Brother Albert Haynes gave an interesting talk Sunday morning, June 22, telling of the good things he heard while there.

Sister Landingham, or Grandma Landingham as she is known to us, is seriously ill, and her recovery is doubtful. She has been relieved of much pain through administration by the elders.

Sister Alice Hussing and husband, of Missouri Valley, who have been visiting here, attended services Sunday.

The Department of Women held a bake sale at a down town store June 12, and realized a nice sum of money for their treasury. They will have an ice cream social on the lawn at the home of Brother and Sister Crippen Friday evening of this week.

We are glad to see a greater desire among the Saints for better and greater service in the Master's work, and we believe all will work with more zeal than they have been doing in the past. We know if Zion is to be made perfect everyone must help in some way. No halfway measures will be accepted, but a whole-hearted work by all will gain for us a great blessing in future times.

Three Baptisms at Bay Port

BAY PORT, MICHIGAN, June 23.—The special series of meetings held at Bay Port, starting June 1, were brought to a close Sunday evening, June 22, and as a result three were baptized Sunday. These will be a great help to the branch here, for all they needed to make them real Christians was baptism.

I surely enjoyed my stay with the Saints of that place. They have a good Sunday school, and the Religio is in running order. The latter is neglected in many branches. Each prayer service was of a high order, and the Spirit of God was felt to a marked degree in all services.

There are a number of young people in the branch, and their hearts are in the gospel, which is very encouraging, and it does one good to hear them lift their voices in song. I hope they will continue to put their trust in God, for by so doing they will be of great help to any branch in the church. I hope the time may come when I shall be able to return there to preach the gospel again. At the closing service I was presented with a nice purse, which I was very thankful to receive. I trust that God may bless those kind-hearted Saints and friends for their assistance.

At any time that I can be of help to any branch of Saints I shall be only too glad to give a helping hand. May God bless the onward progress of his work is my prayer.

G. T. RICHARDS.

Toronto Loses Valuable Workers

TORONTO, ONTARIO, June 25.—The Detroit Branch recently added to its list of devoted Saints at the expense of the Toronto Branch, when two of our Hebrew Saints, Michael J. Crowley and wife, moved to that place. Ontario is losing many of her best citizens on account of Uncle Sam enjoying a season of business prosperity; many of our people are moving across the line in search of employment.

The North Toronto Branch is fighting with its back to the wall, trying to pay for a lot so it can erect a new building. They recently used our church building to put on a musical recital under the direction of Professor George E. Boyce, being assisted by Blanche A. Needham, Pearl Gray, and William Buck. This was a success; all present enjoyed every number, and approximately seventy-five dollars was raised above expenses.

When we were holding our big theater meetings, the North Toronto and Humber Bay Branches closed their evening meetings and came to our assistance. Now it is our turn to help them, especially when we have no debt over our head.

We all are looking forward with pleasure to seeing Brother Frederick M. Smith at our reunion at Woodbridge.

Sister Abbie Judkins, of Poteau, Oklahoma, says: "We have a town here of about 3,500 population and two good railroads. We are only 326 miles from Kansas City. I am anxious to have our work opened up here. We used to have services once in a while, but not for several years have we had a sermon. I believe there are many good people here, but they are too busy to investigate. We have seven members here, but not very active."

MISCELLANEOUS

One-Day Meetings

Central Michigan, at Midland, July 13. Young People's meeting to which all are invited. This is to correct the date published in last week's issue. Mildred Mitchell.

Addresses

British Isles headquarters, 98, Nags Head Road, Ponders End, Enfield, Middlesex, England. All communications for general church appointees and the several departments of the church should be so addressed instead of to Saint Leonard's as formerly.

Reunion Notices

Little Sioux and Gallands Grove, at Dow City, Iowa, August 15 to 24. Tents: 10 by 12, low wall, $5.75; 12 by 14, low wall, $6.75; 12 by 19, low wall, $12.50; 14 by 16, low wall, $14; 14 by 21, low wall, $16; 14 by 21, 7-foot wall, $18.25; 12 by 28, 7-foot wall, $21.25; cots, $1.25. Send orders with remittance to J. L. Butterworth, Dow City, Iowa. Orders must be in early to insure proper service. Extra cost added to late orders, such as messages and extra freight or express. Sleeping room may be had in the homes at a reasonable rate. Apply as above to J. L. Butterworth.

Seattle and British Columbia, at Silver Lake, Washington, August 1 to 10. The grove is nine miles south of Everett, on Pacific Highway and Seattle-Everett Interurban, at the south end of the lake. Those coming with autos turn in on the new road which goes around the lake, just south of the large square house on the rise of ground on the west side of the highway. Tents: 8 by 10, $3.75; 10 by 12, $4.75; 12 by 14, $6.25. If obtainable, springs can be had at a nominal fee. Plenty of straw for use, and everyone is urged to bring ticks. Meals: breakfast, 15 cents; dinner, 30 cents; supper, 25 cents. Free fuel for all who wish to cook, but it is requested that all who possibly can will patronize the restaurant, as we have endeavored to make the price as low as possible. Provision store and refreshment stand in operation on the ground. The rent of tents may seem quite expensive, but it will be quite probable that others may be glad to share with you. Patriarch Gomer T. Griffiths, Apostle Roy S. Budd, and Bishop I. A. Smith will be speakers, also Blanche Edwards, general departmental representative. A program will be given Friday evening, August 8. First conference session in the afternoon of August 5. All who have performed missionary work within the district during the six months ending June 30 will send report immediately after said date to the undersigned. Branch clerks also report upon blanks that will be furnished them for the same period. Frederick W. Holman, secretary, 406 North Thirty-sixth Street, Seattle, Washington.

Eastern Michigan and Detroit, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17. We are happy to announce the low price of our tents for the joint reunion. We are asking each branch president and pastor of the two districts to act as our agents and solicit orders for tents. Please have your order in the hands of C. C. Whitford, 640 Tenth Street, Port Huron, Michigan, by July 15. Tents: 7 by 9, wall tent, $3; 9 by 9, wall tent, $3.50; 10 by 12, wall tent, $4; 12 by 14, wall tent, $4.50; 12 by 16, wall tent, $5. Cots, $1. Special programs have been made which will be mailed to the various branches in the near future. The speakers and workers selected are among the best, so do not fail to attend. Get your order in now, and if possible mail remittance for tent and cots with order. Matthew W. Liston, 306 Eighth Avenue, Flint, Michigan.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)

Northern Wisconsin, at Chetek, June 27 to July 6 (431).
Minnesota, at Minneapolis, July 3 to 13.
Central Nebraska, at Inman, July 5 to 11.
Eastern Montana, at Girard, July 8 to 13 (599).
Eastern Michigan and Detroit, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (575).
Central Texas, at Hearne, July 11 to 20 (599).
Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (569, 503).
Southwestern Kansas, at Winfield, July 17 to 27 (479, 503).
Kentucky and Tennessee, at Puryear, Tennessee, July 19 to 27 (527).
Florida, at Alafloa, July 18 to 27.
Central Oklahoma, at Washunga, July 18 to 27 (503).
Holden, at Holden, Missouri, July 18 to 27 (527).

Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (335).
 Clinton, at Eldorado Springs, Missouri, July 25 to August 3 (622).
 Western Nebraska, at North Platte, July 25 to August 3 (623).
 Massachusetts, at Onset, July 26 to August 10 (623).
 Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
 Lamoni, at Lamoni, Iowa, July 30 to August 10 (623).
 Chatham, Ontario, at Erie Beach, August 1 to 10 (167, 263, 287).
 Western Oklahoma, at Eagle City, August 1 to 10 (575).
 Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 to 10 (215).
 Eastern Iowa, at Muscatine, August 1 to 10.
 Spring River, at Pittsburg, Kansas, August 7 to 17.
 Des Moines, at Runnels, Iowa, August 8 to 17 (575).
 Mobile, at Gautier, Mississippi, August 8 to 17 (503).
 Portland, at Portland, Oregon, August 8 to 17.
 Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (335).
 Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Northern Michigan, at Boyne City, August 8 to 17.
 Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 9 to 24 (119, 383).
 Northeastern Illinois, at Elmhurst, August 14 to 21.
 Eastern Oklahoma, at Winthrop, August 14 to 25 (527).
 Western Montana, at Race Track, August 15 to 24.
 Kewanee, at Galva, Illinois, August 15 to 24.
 Idaho, at Hagerman, August 15 to 24.
 Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24 (479).
 Northeastern Kansas, at Netawaka, August 15 to 24.
 Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, Iowa, August 15 to 24 (215).
 Northwestern Kansas, at Studley, August 15 to 24 (599).
 Maine, at Brooksville, August 16 to 23 (599).
 New York and Philadelphia, at Deer Park, Pennsylvania, August 16 to 31.
 Western Colorado, at Delta, August 17 to 24 (575, 623).
 Far West, at Stewartville, Missouri, August 21 to 31.
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, at Vicksburg, Michigan, August 22 to 31 (599).
 Pottawattamie, at Glenwood, Iowa, August 22 to 31.
 Southern Wisconsin, at Monona Park, August 22 to 31 (503).
 Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Conference Minutes

HOLDEN STAKE.—At Knobnoster June 21. Conference convened at 10.15 a. m. with a song service in charge of Roscoe B. Moorman, assistant stake choir leader; special prayer service, 10.30. Roy S. Budd and the stake presidency presided over the conference. Reports were received from the stake bishop, superintendents of departments, elders' quorum, and second quorum of deacons. Officers elected: D. R. Carmichael, superintendent of Department of Recreation and Expression; Lucille Kittinger, stake recorder; I. M. Ross and B. C. Harder, counselors for the bishop. Preaching in the evening. Sunday: Prayer service, 8 o'clock; Sunday school, 9.30; preaching and ordination meeting at 11; basket dinner at noon; quorum meeting at 1.30; song service at 2.15, address following. The speakers during conference were Roy S. Budd, A. B. Phillips, and D. R. Carmichael. A splendid spirit prevailed at the prayer meeting; words of comfort and instruction were given through the Spirit. Classes were arranged during the Sunday school hour for the various departmental superintendents and special workers in the stake, the stake superintendent of each department having charge of the respective classes. D. R. Carmichael was ordained an elder and Freelin Hampton a priest. Elder W. S. Macrae spoke in behalf of the Square Deal Dining Hall which is conducted by the stake at the State Fair, asking for helpers in the work at that time, August 16 to 23. He advised the conference that the donation the helpers had made in the work of the church figured $9 a day per person. The conference voted the following resolution: "Whereas the restored gospel of our Lord in these latter days has brought us the blessings of the Holy Spirit as in days of old, and whereas the holy priesthood has again been conferred and God has spoken to the church to-day through its President and Prophet divinely appointed to lead the church; therefore we, the ministry and members of the Holden Stake in conference assembled, express our appreciation of these blessings and hereby pledge our support to the Presidency and to Frederick M. Smith, as the prophet, seer, and revelator of the church; and to the doctrine of stewardships as adopted by the church; also we give our confidence and support to the Quorum of Twelve and the Presiding Bishopric." A vote of thanks was extended to the Knobnoster Saints for the hospitable entertainment afforded the conference. Conference adjourned to meet at Holden, Missouri, subject to the call of the stake presidency. Blanche Christenson, secretary.

FREMONT.—At Glenwood, Iowa, May 17. Conference convened at 10 a. m. with A. M. Chase in charge. Branches reported: Glenwood, 88; Shenandoah, 99; Hamburg, 23; and Bartlett, 30. Ministry reporting were: A. M. Chase, T. A. Hougas, H. N. Pierce, N. L. Mortimore, M. W. Gaylord, F. B. Knight, G. M. Steele, C. W. Forney, Roy J. Dunsden, William Eyley, and S. S. Clark. At the 2 o'clock meeting T. A. Hougas gave an explanation of the plans and arrangements of the grounds and buildings where the reunion is to be held in August. J. F. Garver and Charles Putnam gave short addresses. Religio program on Saturday evening; Sunday school at 11 o'clock, Sunday; Department of Women occupied at 3.30; teachers' meeting at 6 p. m.; Religio at 7; preaching by Benjamin F. Creel, John F. Garver, and A. M. Chase. C. W. Forney, secretary.

Our Departed Ones

WHITE.—Viola Lucy White, daughter of Leonard and Lucy White, was born at Independence, Missouri, August 24, 1901. Baptized June 9, 1912. Died after a long illness at Independence, Missouri, May 14, 1924. Leaves father, mother, and three brothers, Joseph, Alma, and Herbert. Funeral from the Stone Church. Sermon by J. W. Rushton.

SIMMS.—Mary J. Simms, wife of O. D. Simms, died after a long illness, at El Reno, Oklahoma, May 22, 1924, at the age of twenty-nine years, eleven months, and fifteen days. Leaves husband, two daughters, four brothers, and one sister. One child preceded her. Funeral services in charge of S. Maloney. Sermon by J. M. Terry. Interment at Beaumont, Texas.

WEITLICH.—Frank Weitlich was born at Watertown, Wisconsin, May 13, 1858. Baptized March 12, 1892. Married Aisina Wirtzes, March 27, 1890, who died, leaving seven daughters and three sons. Five daughters

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Richard J. Lambert, Managing Editor

Contributing Editors

Elbert A. Smith
 T. W. Williams
 Arthur Phillips
 S. A. Burgess
 A. Max Carmichael
 Arthur E. McKim
 O. W. Parker, Business Manager

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.
 Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in the hands of the editors not later than Monday afternoon preceding date of issue. All obituaries put in regular form. No charges for Miscellany.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.25.

C O N T E N T S

EDITORIAL:
 Morality Is Part of Religion ..... 625
 Statement of Acceptance ..... 626
 The 1924 Christmas Offering ..... 626
 Unity an Essential Requirement ..... 627

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 The Prodigal Son's Brother, by Elbert A. Smith ..... 628
 Some Educational Problems Involved in the Establishment of Zion—No. 2, by A. Max Carmichael ..... 632
 Power of Example and Precept in Keeping the Law of Tithing ..... 636

NEWS AND LETTERS ..... 638

MISCELLANEOUS ..... 646

RADIO ..... 647

have preceded him. Married Alice H. Cook, May 8, 1912. He died at his home in Saint Joseph, Missouri, May 16, 1924. Leaves wife, three sons, two daughters, three sisters, and two brothers. Funeral from the Saints' church at Maple Grove four miles north of Stewartville, Missouri. Funeral in charge of D. E. Powell. Sermon by T. T. Hinderks.

Radio

K F I X

Broadcast from the studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred forty meters.

SUNDAY, JULY 6, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Hymn.
 Prayer.
 Baritone Solo: "How long, O Lord, wilt thou forget me?" Wooler.
 Mr. Jack Custead.
 Soprano Solo: "A little while," Rolfe.
 Mrs. Robert Miller.
 Anthem: "O for the wings of a dove!" Knight.
 Soprano:
 Mrs. Robert Miller.
 Miss Helen White.
 Alto:
 Mrs. Essie Isenhardt.
 Miss Elizabeth Okerlind.
 Tenor:
 Mr. Francis Holm.
 Mr. Douglas Flanders.
 Bass:
 Mr. Robert Miller.
 Mr. Jack Custead.
 Mr. George Miller, pianist.
 Sermon: "Preparing the way of the Lord."
 By Elder R. S. Salyards.

SUNDAY, JULY 6, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the L. D. S. Campus
 (Open-air service.)

Band concert under the direction of Roy Turner.

Hymn.
 Prayer.
 Selection by the Band.
 Sermon: "A vital religion."
 By Elder Cyril E. Wight.

TUESDAY, JULY 8, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Musical program arranged by Mr. Arthur Storm, violin teacher, Independence, Missouri.
 Educational talk.

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Musical program given by Mrs. Alice and Mrs. Bertha Burgess.
 Educational talk.

We Again Call Your Attention to the Opportunities Offered by

GRACELAND COLLEGE

THE WORLD SAYS: "We need trained men and women."

THE CHURCH SAYS: "Get your training under church influence in your own church school."

PAUL SAYS: "Study to show thyself approved," etc. To be approved means to be efficient. Efficiency implies education and careful planning.

COLLEGE AUTHORITIES SAY: "We wish to make it possible for every young man and young woman in the church to secure an education."

Your logical time to BEGIN is NOW.

Resolve to be prepared when the opportunity comes.

ACT on that good intention TO-DAY.

Write for full information concerning our industrial, self-help plan.

Address the President

GRACELAND COLLEGE

LAMONI, IOWA

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Independence Mo
1808 Lexington St
G B Harrington

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICE
REORGANIZED OF LATTER DAY

any man among you have save and concubines he shall have (Mormon, Jacob 2:36.)

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, July 9, 1924

Number 28

EDITORIAL

Can the People Be Trusted?

God's manifest trust in man is one of the most striking and inspiring things in human experience. Despite the multiplied evidences of perfidy, and folly, and sin, and rebellion, he never withdraws his confidence. He has faith in man.

The human race has never yet become so insolvent as to forfeit divine credit. The spiritual spendthrift and the moral profligate can always get a new start. God will stake anyone who desires to make good, and this regardless of his past. There may be an hundred failures charged against him, yet God will take another chance. And he does not recount old scores or remind the debtor of his past. Bad debts are not carried forward to harass and hamper the man who wants to get ahead.

Every opportunity is given to balance accounts and make assets exceed liabilities. At frequent intervals debts which cannot be paid are charged off to profit and loss. Nature never gives up. There may be drought, floods, fire, pestilence, war, but the aftermath of all is the opportunity to recoup. The whole universe seems pulling for the man who tries.

In the very beginning of human life on this planet, and before man had any experience whatever, God gave to him his agency, which involved the right to live his life as he might elect, subject always to the eternal law of cause and effect. The Almighty knew that the only way in which man could develop would be to allow him to do things for himself. God could do everything for man, and he would lack every essential quality of real manhood.

God does not intrude or spy on man. He seems to say: "I propose to place you on your good behavior. I will turn you loose and permit you to shape your own life as you may elect, with the understanding always that whatever you sow that you must reap. This is the universal law. I will, in no sense, shape your life for you. I will not impose my superior wisdom on you, for there is no place for superiors and subordinates in my universe. I will help you all I can. I will persuade, entreat, and inspire, but I will never force. While I am supreme in my universe and have all power and wisdom, still I will not assume 'supreme directional control' over the most infinitesimal of all my creatures, for to do so would degenerate the race and frustrate the whole purpose of creation. Even the ant shall live without any ultimatum from me."

God could have made man like a machine. He could have done man's thinking for him. He could have dominated his life. In that event there is no question but the creature's acts would have been more in keeping with the mind of God, but he would not have been a man, but just a thing, an automaton. Character is not developed in this way. The upstep of the race is voluntary.

Children learn to crawl by themselves. No amount of walking on the part of the mother will cause the child to acquire the power of locomotion. The mother may know much more than the child, but it can develop only by personal effort. Growth comes from doing things rather than in having things done for us. It might be a restful thing to have somebody always on hand to do our thinking, to make decisions and determine actions, but under such a regime we would lose our capacity to think. Nature is extremely jealous of her gifts. When we do not use them she takes them away.

There are two ideas of government in the church to-day. One group affirms that the masses are not capable of self-government—that democracy in matters of state is all but a failure and in the church has no legitimate place. Common consent takes the form of assent; and agency, what there is of it, means, "Follow your leaders." It is urged that in the divine scheme some men are born to rule and others are born to obey.

The Caussian Curve theory, of German origin, is advocated. This theory divides humanity into three groups—the intellectuals at one end of the curve, the incompetents and deficientes at the other end, and the great mass in the center. The incompetents are a negligible quantity; the intellectuals, in the nature of things, are born to lead, and it is the duty of the mass to obey. In this case, decision always rests with the man farther up. Every man is expected to carry out the orders of his superior, even though he may not fully understand or agree with the order. It means, "Obey counsel and ask no questions." "Do as you are told." "Agree with your superiors or get out."

The other group maintains that one man has the same chance with God as another, that there are no divine handicaps in the spiritual life; that moral, spiritual, and intellectual growth and power come through exercise and development. This group renounces caste, special privilege, infallibility, or supreme directional control by any man, quorum, or group over other men or groups. It proposes an organization of men and women who mutually carry on as fellow workers with God. In this scheme there is no place for superiors and subordinates. Every man is the peer of every other man. Though some may be selected from the mass to positions of trust and responsibility, they act as servants rather than dictators or overlords.

It was Wendell Phillips, that intrepid apostle of liberty, who said, "Trust the people with the gravest questions, and in the long run you educate the race."

And he said one other thing which is equally pertinent: "The accumulated intellect of the masses is greater than the heaviest brain that God ever gave to a single individual."

Putting it in another way: The combined wisdom of the entire group is greater than that possessed by any member of the group. This seems axiomatic, for whatever wisdom may be possessed by the individual is included and becomes a part of the mass wisdom. There is nothing lost when even a great man condescends to pool his wisdom with the mass.

God said, "Come let us reason together." I can imagine him going farther and saying: "Let us talk things over. We want the opinion of everybody, wise, foolish, learned, unlearned. We want universal converse. I will not make others do things as I say. I will trust men. I will not take immediate and personal supervision of all the departments of the universe, but I will delegate responsibility and permit the greatest amount of individual initiative, believing that in thus trusting men I will get the best possible results. I will not command in everything. I will allow a rose to bud and blossom and flower in its own field. I will allow birds to mate and by the law of selection hatch and rear their young. I will allow men to build and create and invent and discover without my O. K. I will not assume supreme directional control over the activities of men. This is not the way of the universe. I will trust humanity."

And we may do well in our church work to emulate the Almighty. Give the people a chance for self-development. Allow them to think and act for themselves, without having always to carry out the order of some one higher up. And we can still possess priesthood and maintain organization and solidarity, for, after all, as Lowell has well said, "The true oneness of a people depends upon the spirit in them, not upon the power over them."

T. W. WILLIAMS.

To Act as Contributing Editor

At the General Conference of October, 1859, it was ordered that "the church publish a monthly paper to be devoted solely to the interests of the church." It was further ordered "that Elders Z. H. Gurley, William Marks, and William W. Blair be a committee to supervise the publishing of said paper." This was six months before Joseph Smith became president of the church. Out of this action of conference grew the issuance of the TRUE LATTER DAY SAINTS' HERALD, subsequently called the SAINTS' HERALD. At the April conference of the church in 1865, it was ordered "that President Joseph Smith be appointed to take charge of the publishing and editorial department of the HERALD and of all our publications." Since that time until recently one of the First Presidency had been chief editor, the SAINTS' HERALD being the official publication of the church.

In 1870 the General Conference ordered the incorporation of the Board of Publication and provided that the president of the church should be president of the board. The following year, however, it was provided that the Board of Publication should be permitted to elect its own president. Since the incorporation of the church in Illinois in 1872, the Presiding Bishop has nominated the Board of Publication, and since 1879 he has been a member of that board by request of General Conference.

In 1885 the General Conference adopted a resolution concerning the editorial policy of the HERALD. Paragraph 3 of this resolution provided "that where radical differences of opinion occur between leading representatives of the body, the discussion of them should take place in quorum capacity, and not through the columns of the HERALD." From which it is clear that the literary interests and editorial policy represented by the HERALD should not be determined by the Presiding Bishop or by the Board of Publication, except that its financial aspect is committed to the board to supervise in accordance with the corporate authority held.

In view of the fact that the recent action of the Board of Publication has resulted in radical differences of opinion existing between leading representatives of the body being presented in the columns of the HERALD, it has been difficult for me to accept the position of contributing editor, to which the board elected me, without at least such explana-

OFFICIAL

Concerning Church Government

With reference to the matter of church government growing out of a council of the First Presidency, members of the Quorum of Twelve in America, and Order of Bishops, convened at Independence, Missouri, April 15 to 25, 1924, we the undersigned members of that council hereby express our willingness to abide by the conclusions of the council almost unanimously reached as follows:

This church, as defined by the late Joseph Smith, is a theocratic-democracy—not man-made, but of divine appointment and origin. (Matthew 16:18; Doctrine and Covenants 1:5; 17:7; Book of Mormon, 1 Nephi 3:221; Book of Nephi 10:1.)

The government of the church is by divine authority through priesthood (Doctrine and Covenants 1:2, 5; 68:4; 104; Acts 20:28). The government in its objective is beneficent, and its purpose is betterment of human conditions. The divine authority becomes operative through the consent of the governed—the common consent indicated in the law (Doctrine and Covenants 25:1; 27:4). It is divine tion of the situation as would make clear my viewpoint in regard to it. I have decided, however, to give the service asked for to the best of my ability, believing that the Board of Publication expects to be responsible and answerable to the General Conference for the change of editorial policy recently adopted.

Whether or not it is better for the radical differences of opinion now being discussed in the HERALD to find expression in that manner, rather than wait till the quorums and the General Conference take action concerning them, need not be discussed now, as it is too late for such consideration to be effective. It seems clear, however, that the discussion of the points at issue should not be confined to any one side of the controversy, for to do that would result in greater harm to the body, it may be, than to use the privilege extended by the Board of Publication in the existing circumstances.

It is my sincere conviction that the Spirit of God will so move upon the officials and members of the church that the divine will shall eventually triumph. I do not feel to question the sincerity or motive of anyone, no matter how much we may be found to differ in opinion; and it is this conviction of the integrity of those concerned which buoys my confidence that better unity will ultimately prevail in accordance with the word of God.

A. B. PHILLIPS.

government among the people, for the people, and for the glory of God and the achievement of his purposes towards ideal conditions.

God directs the church through clearly indicated channels (Doctrine and Covenants 43:1, 2; 27:2); and his voice is the directing power of the church; but to this the assent of the people must be secured.

In organic expression and functioning there must be recognized grades of official prerogative and responsibility (Doctrine and Covenants 104; 122:9), with supreme directional control resting in the Presidency as the chief and first quorum of the church (Doctrine and Covenants 122:2, 9; 104:42). This control it is presumed is beneficent. Protection against prostitution of this power is amply provided in the law.

To carry into effect the purposes of the church, effective administration is imperative, and organic solidarity is maintained only by effective discipline, which is in consonance with the beneficent purposes of the church, but yet strongly enough administered to prevent the purposes of the organization being frustrated by individual caprice and rebellion. Authority to be effective must be respected.

This view of the organization of the church affirms the interdependence of departments and coordination of action, and holds General Conference as the instrument of the expression of the will of the people.

And we observe:

1. That the chief executives of the church, the First Presidency, should not be discredited in seeking to exercise functions in accordance with the above principles in harmony with the law as laid down in the standard books of the church, but should be supported by the faith and confidence of the Saints.

2. That since it seems the matters in controversy are to be brought before General Conference, it will be well for the Saints and delegates to study further the law and weigh matters presented for their consideration, reserving final judgment until the conference meets to hear the cause. And most assuredly none will finally reach conclusions from the basis of unanswered reasoning or statements, publicly or privately made.

3. We fully believe that God is the founder and builder of the church. Jesus said, "I will build my church." All should be faithful and steadfast, looking for the final victory. We fully believe the church is destined to go forward. It remains for the Saints to be humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity,

For Zion's weal,

FREDERICK M. SMITH, President of the Church.

ELBERT A. SMITH, of the First Presidency.

F. M. MCDOWELL, of the First Presidency.

(Continued on next page.)

www.LatterDayTruth.org

J. A. GILLEN, President of the Quorum of Twelve.
 F. HENRY EDWARDS, Secretary of the Quorum of Twelve.
 J. F. GARVER, Apostle.
 E. J. GLEAZER, Apostle.
 ROY S. BUDD, Apostle.
 DANIEL T. WILLIAMS, Apostle.
 E. L. KELLEY, Former Presiding Bishop of the Church.
 J. A. BECKER, Bishop in Zion.
 ALBERT CARMICHAEL, Bishop of Lamoni Stake.
 J. A. KOEHLER, Bishop of Far West Stake.
 A. B. PHILLIPS, Bishop of Holden Stake.
 F. B. BLAIR, Bishop of Kansas City Stake.
 MARK H. SIEGFRIED, Former Bishop of Independence Stake.
 C. J. HUNT, Former Bishop of Holden Stake.
 CHARLES FRY, Former Bishop of British Isles.
 B. J. SCOTT, Former Bishop of Far West Stake.
 ELLIS SHORT, Bishop.
 R. T. COOPER, Bishop.
 C. E. IRWIN, Bishop.
 M. C. FISHER, Bishop.
 JOHN ZIMMERMANN, Bishop.
 A. F. MCLEAN, Bishop.

To All Publicity Agents

The appropriations committee, which consists of two members of the First Presidency, two members of the Twelve, and the Order of Bishops, disallowed any funds for the operation of the Publicity Department office for this year. We wish, however, to see the splendid work you are doing continued, and we trust that you will in no way slacken your efforts nor allow your interest to cool.

While we will have no money to carry on the usual work at headquarters, we do not want that to result in the disruption of the fine work you have helped to build up in the hundreds of branches throughout the church. Nearly everyone recognizes that publicity is needed now as never before, and we look to each publicity agent to do his part as in the past.

Please make your reports and address the Publicity Department, Box 255, as before. And even though no funds being appropriated will make it impossible to provide the service heretofore available, yet what personal cooperation and help we can render are freely offered you.

ARTHUR E. MCKIM,

General Publicity Agent.

July 1, 1924.

MONEY

This word comes from the Latin word moneta, an epithet of Juno, in whose temple at Rome money was coined.

It is simply a medium of exchange.

To-day we use chiefly gold and silver as standards of value, but primitive people have used various articles, such as furs, olive oil, sheep, wampum, salt, etc.

Money is a necessity in the conduct of the work of the church. It is just as necessary as prayer and preaching.

The giving of it is a token of our appreciation for what God and Christ have done for us.

Our willingness to give is an index to the development that has been brought about in us through the teachings of Christ.

Through this medium of exchange we translate our effort in the field, in the office, in the factory, or elsewhere, into the ministry of the Man of Galilee. We make it possible for another to GO in our stead.

"As ye have received, freely give."

Fraternally,

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE, Presiding Bishop.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, Box 256.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

The Working Church

BY S. S. SMITH

Son, go work to-day in my vineyard.—Matthew 21: 28.

At the battle of Bunker Hill, it has been related, an old lady was seen with the American patriots marching out with enthusiasm, shouldering a broom. When asked, "What can you do with a broom?" she lustily replied, "I can show them which side I'm on." So, likewise, if I can do no better than only to show which side I am on, in making this address before you on the subject of the working church, I shall feel amply repaid.

Various metaphors are used by the Master, such as that of a warrior, a sower, a fisherman, a builder, and a shepherd; but the comparison of the vineyard is the most impressive and beautiful. Isaiah makes reference to this (5: 1, 2) where the work of God's kingdom is compared to a vineyard "in a very fruitful hill," but he laments that this vineyard brought forth wild grapes instead of tame. In the New Testament, reference is made to the transplanting from the wild state to that of the tame.

This allusion freshens memory of a vision or dream that came to your speaker some years ago. I beheld myself pulling the little seedling trees from the low, sandy river bottoms and transplanting them in the rich table-land above. My labor had spanned a series of years, for my first planting had grown to be sturdy trees of large size, and I could see the gradation from the large, massive trees down to the little whips I was then planting.

The Latter-Day Work

I am glad, yes, rejoiced, to know our great movement is spoken of as a work—"the latter-day work." Work signifies diligence and labor, and the very name carries with it the idea of service and activity. One cannot promote this work by inactivity.

My particular grouch to-day has reference to the difficulty confronting us to get the membership to function in groups with the grand objectives of our faith, in which true teamwork and cooperation, as well as fellowship, are indispensable to forward movement. I would not say the ministry run true to form in every instance, but I am confident their senses are more keenly alive on such matters than the rank and file of the membership, and it is well to heed their advice.

In studying the situation I feel entrenched in the thought, the work of the church and her ministers is more than that of preaching sermons and scolding. As I see it, we want that fellowship that stands for the kingdom of God, to labor for higher ideals, for better education, for a truer justice, and the elimination of evil in every sense, and the banishment of misery and poverty that so often are at our door.

The True Import of Education

There is the strong popular demand for education which is to be reckoned with; but such, however necessary, is not a substitute for religion. Education is essentially that which deals with the moral and social processes, and it has concern with every influence, religious and otherwise, that goes to formulate character and give that character a wise and useful career for himself and others.

J. S. Mill, the utilitarian philosopher, included in it everything which "helps to shape the human being." Plato was not far wrong when he defined its purpose, "to develop in the body and in the soul all the beauty and all the perfection of which they are capable."

The grandest manifestation of a true education is to possess the love of God and a regard for our fellow man. To manifest the ethics of the religion of Christ is the crowning genius of all education. The man who has gone through school and graduated, and has several learned degrees, and has traveled and is enriched by observation and the personal contact with the customs of many lands, but has no love of God in his heart and has but little regard for his fellow creatures, is not learned. He is no more than a pagan, because he is merely brain trained and not enriched by that fruition resulting from a true education. The results of a true education will ever be that of a personal religious life which is dedicated to the cause of humanity and the living of the teachings of Jesus Christ.

We would, then, judge no person educated who persists in living on a low ethical plane. Education, when associated with spiritual life, power, and testimony, is acceptable; but when it stands divorced from spiritual ideals it is a travesty to call it religion. Its tendency then is to develop into "vain philosophies" and the eruditions of men.

Jesus Christ Preeminent

We should bear in mind, among the really great Jesus the Christ stands without a peer. Where in all our search do we find one who has reached so high, or so low—to the very height and depth of man's every need? We can do well to exalt him and give him preeminence in all things.

The children of Zion should be joyful in their King and let his fame and greatness be spread abroad. It is commendable to study the glory of our Lord and Master, and thus know that he intends only the happiness and safety of his beloved church.

Indolence Not Tolerated

"Son, go work to-day in my vineyard," is a command to you, my brother, as well as to me. All are called, and none are exempt from service. We are all hired to work. The Proprietor has not employed us to spend our time eating fruit. We should remember indolence is not tolerated. (See Doctrine and Covenants 42:12; 68:4; 75:5; 85:38.) A lazy minister is but another human abuse of the active principle of service and work. Such a one prostitutes a high and holy calling and inoculates with the seeds of indolence wherever found. We all know the lesson of the sluggard that slept. The parable of the talents, too (Matthew 25:18), has its moral aspects, and such lessons should be ever kept alive.

Now what is your talent, brother? Is it not your capacity, your ability to accomplish things in this life? The thought is: We all have some responsibility, and there is a task imposed on every one. We do not all have the same talent. Some have eloquence to plead for Christ, others intelligence to devise, and still others skill and strength to follow temporal lines. Some give time, others wealth, others influence. All may not work in the same field of activity, for some are called to publicly proclaim the gospel and go abroad while others are not. If your call is not to preach, you can at least pay tithing, make freewill offerings, contribute your consecrations, and thus build up the work at home.

Three Spheres Open for Work

There are three spheres open to us, and in each of these we can work: the home, the neighborhood, and last but not least, the church. Doubtless the latter transcends all others.

The Family and Home

The family is well said to be the nursery of the church, for the one merges into the other. The duty of all parents should be obvious. (See Doctrine and Covenants 68:4; 90:6-8.) To men and women there should be this constant and forceful reminder of the obligations of parenthood which is due the children of their household that should stabilize their interest for a wholesome future. Parental duties neglected means a future social calamity. Our offspring have the right to be well born. They should never be denied the privileges of education. They have a right to their childhood and its play. And, too, they should have their training for work, for life devoted wholly to play will not prove a hopeful prospect.

Over the bier of a darling child the preacher quoted: "The death of a beautiful child is a public calamity, for the earth for the moment is less fair." But do you know, the thought is far more chastening, of the life of a child left to grow up in sin and to become polluted without restraint of a conscientious parenthood? May we realize as fathers and mothers the responsibility toward childhood. May we labor for better homes, that the children of to-day may grow up to that of a useful manhood and womanhood.

Our Civic Duty

There are certain civic duties in your neighborhood, your town, as well as your nation, to which you are amenable and from which you should never shirk. Let me give you a few plain words right here: There are too many who talk of the failures of government, the corruptions in high as well as low life, and the menace of the foreigner in our midst. It occurs to your speaker that it is time to arouse and consider the menace of the native born American who has virtually abdicated his American citizenship in favor of the man of low ideals, and has allowed his well-earned birthright to be hidden away in a dark corner of indifference, and thus is culpably negligent in exercising his franchise that has cost so much treasure and blood to maintain.

Beloved, if we believe this Government was conceived in liberty, and its Constitution and laws were enacted in justice to God and man, should we not see to it that in the coming election everyone will vote to perpetuate this Government and do our level best to put good men in office, that the denizens of "little Italy" and other sections of red and ribald tendencies do not carry the day and corrupt these great American ideals? In many sections the tendencies for evil greatly predominate, and our good citizenry need to be most vigilant.

Duty to the Church

Our duty to the church stands supreme to all other duties. In fact, when we are functioning in all other lines of good service we are serving the church most gloriously. All are called to the service of the church. We should work for her peace and pray for her prosperity.

There are many departments in the church that are urgently calling for your service—the Sunday school, the Department of Recreation and Expression, the Department of Women, the various lines of social work, and the great field of educational activity. These are all very promising. All this, and more, in the rehabilitating work of the redemption of our people, in promoting that social uplift, is a task of no mean proportion.

There are dangers ahead, it is true; and I sometimes think, so modern have some of us become, we do not know where we are or where we are going, but we are on our way; and in our stride to keep pace with the times we have forgotten our own spiritual needs. No home can afford to surrender the family altar and the Word of God.

The Tendency to Localize

The development of this age of the working church in her duties at home has somewhat diminished the attention of many zealous Saints from the great field of the world. It should be apparent that the missionary impulse must exist where the Spirit of Christ abides. That individual or group which has no interests other than its own immediate circle will prove calamitous. Well might we ask, Is our indifference due to crass ignorance? and can such be remedied by study, observation, and prayer?

It sometimes has occurred to me that some regard missionary work as a form of activity appended to the church and its normal work; in fact, a kind of hysterical, spasmodic display of energy, carried on by a few freakish persons dubbed "missionaries."

We take it that the religion of Jesus Christ is meant to be universal. The needs which are nearest home appeal to the average man most strongly. That kind of generosity which exhausts all of its power of internal motivation upon those on the other side of the sea and are supremely oblivious to the physical ills, wants, and sorrows, and downright beggarliness of those across the street, we must hold as an abnormal variety. A charity that does not begin at home is a spurious kind indeed; but equally so, the charity that begins at home and stays at home is as defective as that which goes abroad and is oblivious to its nearest neighbor. The golden mean is, that the working church will be equally interested in both.

Christ's Policy Universal

Beginning at Jerusalem, the apostles heralded the gospel abroad in many lands. Not many of us have troubled ourselves in defining this universal missionary policy to-day. And when defined, do we see in such definition an expression of normal life in the church and its mission to all nations? To this task have we given our reasonable service? We know this gospel as restored to earth in latter days is the counterpart of the gospel of old and, with all that it implies, would wonderfully brighten the darkened lives and alleviate the sorrows of men of other lands.

As we think of it, how extensive and lowering are the clouds of woe and obtuse ignorance; of the lands as yet unvisited by the crusaders of the blessed Christ? The magnitude of the subject and the vital issues it arouses are a sufficient reason for profound study and spiritual preparation on the part of those who have been divinely called to this worthy task.

Think of the great nations that lie south of us. They largely are of the blood of Israel. They doubtless would gladly receive the testimony of their previous ancestry, whose record we have, which has come forth in latter days through the providence of God, if only we had the means of bringing it to their attention.

The foreign work of the church, up to the present time, although very commendable, is scarcely a commencement. That phase of it which the church is yet to assume should beget a lively enthusiasm. It is this broad general purpose that should enliven our slumbering energies and create a consecrated body of intelligent workers that are abreast of the times, and would willingly go to the ends of the earth. Others have done it, and why not we? Into the lives of these nations we can carry the vision of the adequacy of God. Whatever is right is possible. Ours is the forward look. Our path, however, is an ascent.

Knowledge of such matters brings responsibility. We would then conclude that knowledge and responsibility are closely akin to our contemplated method of attainment. To those that have heard the call, there can be no turning back. It is a call to life's service and a willingness to abandon everything else for its accomplishment. A realization of the overshadowing power of God that has residence in the fact, "Without Me ye can do nothing," will be its principal controlling factor.

All Races Included

We should recognize all classes of humanity, white, red, brown, yellow, and black skinned, as being peoples of the human race and fellow creatures of a Father's sovereignty, having opportunities and gospel privilege. We should not entertain reservations, regard some as hardly human and others unworthy of notice, because of nationality or caste. To do this is neither Christian nor godly.

If such is our spiel as ministers, we had better draw in our colors and cease claiming to be representatives of the church of Jesus Christ, for we could be at best but an aggregation of extremists, who have not sensed the world-wide commission of the atoning Savior. On the contrary, the missionary who is willing to lay down his racial prejudice is not limited to a narrow groove, and thus he can heed the universal message, "Go ye into all the world." The very note of Christianity is universality.

Our Neighbor

Christ gave superior law to that of the Mosaic statute, in giving a new definition to the word neighbor. The old Jewish concept was that God's special providence was centered in them, that they were favorites, and that no one outside their racial blood could possibly be worthy.

How superior to think, My neighbor is any human being whom I can reach and give the helping hand? The old ethenic morality of the Jews must give place to that of a universal love. This essential fact will ever be a component factor in the individual as well as the group life of the brotherhood; and, too, that this love shall have its constant opportunity of expression and expansion. No other person than Christ, and those whose intuition has been supplemented by his Holy Spirit, has capacity for extending this universal appeal.

Love Has No Boundaries

In missionary service one must learn to distinguish between the essential and saving truth of heaven and the many things which worldly minds have woven into the warp and woof of the true faith. Works of love that indicate a spirit of good will and a desire to be helpful to all sorts and conditions of men, even to the remotest parts of the earth, will exhibit that element in which our gospel lives and has its being.

The attempt to shut our message in and to erect and maintain human boundaries of limitation beyond which its spirit of blessing shall not travel, will prove fatal to its very existence. There are no geographical boundaries that this message of salvation does not cross. Good will is a country that has no frontiers.

Methods of Propaganda

It is to be hoped the working church of the future will come to understand the business of heralding our message and will carry across the great evangelistic crusade for which we have prayed and looked so long; will not be that wholly dependent on the public acclaim of preaching by the ordained ministers alone.

Do not misunderstand me. Public preaching, or the mass movement in reaching the people, as it is called, should never be abandoned and doubtless never will be; but the public ministry of the priesthood must be supplemented more and more by that of a closer and more personal contact. The business of the church is to interest itself in the people. If we cannot get the people to come to us, we must go to them. This should be done in a businesslike way. As the business man gains trade by going to the people, as the politician secures his following by personal canvass of his district, and as the promoter of religious cults and fads entices the listening ear by the social visit, so will we meet with results commensurate with effort if we make special preparation, and thus make the personal contact with the people, bearing as we do the most sublime message of the age.

Personal Service Needed

I hope some day we will become alert enough to emphasize a personal service for Jesus Christ, and such will be a vindication of discipleship. Not only the ministry alone, but every member will be utilized for service, and we will put across a persistent yet winsome and passionate quest for souls.

In this way we can make the entire membership one great throbbing, breathing brotherhood, for evangelistic responsibility will be expected of all. Thus every member in a way will be a propagandist in speaking the favorable word, in giving the friendly tract, in making the social call, in extending the kindly invitation, and thus in a thousand ways doing good to the neighbor across the way.

It is to be hoped we will exalt the value of a consecrated and concentrated personality. It would seem many have lain down on the job, and the ministry have not received that cooperation they should have received in making the personal plea. The membership should feel, as they have been warned, that it is their duty to warn their neighbor. We should not wait for the missionary to come along before we seek to give the enlightenment we bear of the gospel restored. You should consider it your part, in various ways, to bear the good news to others at all times. Such methods of propaganda are winning marvelously everywhere else, so why not with us? Let every Saint learn his duty and his possibilities for good.

Every member should be a worker, as the ant in the ant hill and as the bee in the beehive. In like manner every Saint can be a conveyor of good news—a missionary if you please—and this high ideal as a corollary will stand as the high light of our missionary and pastoral hope.

Giving and Receiving

It seems to be a difficult lesson for the average student of this latter-day work to grasp and hold, that it is more blessed to give than to receive. But this is one of the essential factors that will make for success, and we need to lay it to heart.

It should be made plain that in the nature of true religion in human experience, giving and receiving are correlatives, and no man can hope for success without giving, any more than he could without being a receiver of benefits. "Freely ye have received, freely give," is a maxim that is as potential now as ever in the Christian faith.

The Saint is a giver in many ways, and through many channels his gracious ministry flows. His giving does not always take the form of material aid, but wherever a service is rendered, and a kindly word is spoken, it is giving, nevertheless.

It would appear as ill-advised for any minister to advocate that it is evil to desire and to possess material riches, and to bend one's energies in the accumulation of more. It is the duty of every man to put forth a legitimate effort to get along in temporal acquisition, and such is very commendable; but such should be taught to set one's heart on getting, with selfish motives, with never a thought of conferring benefit, is a sin of no small magnitude. If we have freely received, we should liberally give, or such will redound to our condemnation. Then, too, money wrongfully gained can never be sanctified by giving part of it away.

The Consecrated Purpose

Ours should be a consecrated purpose, in gaining as well as in the bestowment of wealth. Money that has been gained by extortion, by pursuing illegitimate business, such as the illicit sale of liquor, the white slave trade, in grinding the face of the poor, by unmerciful treatment of rivals in trade, by corrupting government officials, and the thousand and one illegal ways of amassing wealth, can never change the wrath of God to that of a smiling approval by sharing with him such ill-gotten gain. Such, beloved, is not the Lord's money, and he needs none of it to carry on his work.

We should never soil our hands with the rewards of iniquity. To accept such by the working church would be an intimidation against her testimony, for could the church legitimately condemn when she is made to share in the gains of dishonesty? There are many to-day in the religious world who come under the prophet's bitter words. (See Isaiah 1: 14-17.)

Opportunities of the Day

The time in which we live is one of mighty significance. The business of the working church is connected with, and to a certain extent made sponsor to, the political and social changes of the time. This theme is one so important that we cannot afford to be ignorant thereupon. The enlargement of our scope of vision to the present hour and its demands, is one thing very needful.

Doubtless we will need some revision of our present ideas. It is to be hoped the Spirit of God will permeate and that in each forward movement we will be in accordance with divine wisdom. Such should keep us apace with the political, industrial, and intellectual enlargement, which we trust will prove harbingers of a spiritual expansion and, finally, the ushering in of the millennium.

Have we, too, caught the vision of the city, New Jerusalem? If so, our whole soul will be on fire with faith and love. If this is our possession, our heritage, Christ says, "Your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you." Never were words more cogent with life and light to depressed and sorrowing souls. As the working church, ours should be that life rich in spiritual insight and aglow with human sympathies.

"God grant us wisdom in these coming days,
And eyes unsealed, that we clear visions see
Of that new world that he would have us build
To life's ennoblement and his high ministry."

Latter Day Saints and the Labor Question

BY JOHN W. RUSHTON

The following is based upon an article written by request for a labor paper of the West. It is submitted together with a remarkable prayer by Rabin-dranath Tagore, the great Hindu Mystic and Seer:

O Giver of Thyself! at the vision of Thee as joy let our souls flame up to Thee as the fire, flow unto Thee as the river, permeate Thy being as the fragrance of the flower. Give us strength to love, to love fully, our life in its joys and sorrows, in its gains and losses, in its rise and fall. Let us have strength enough fully to see and hear Thy universe and to work with full vigor therein. Let us fully live the life Thou hast given us, let us bravely take and bravely give. This is our prayer to Thee.

Let us once for all dislodge from our minds the feeble fancy that would make Thy joy to be a thing apart from action, thin, formless, and unsustainable. Wherever the peasant tills the hard earth, there does Thy joy gush out in the green of the corn, wherever man displaces the tangled forest, smooths the stony ground, and clears for himself a homestead, there does Thy joy enfold it in orderliness and peace.

O Worker of the universe! We would pray to Thee to let the irresistible current of Thy universal energy come like the impetuous south wind of spring, let it come rushing over the vast field of the life of man, let it bring the scent of many flowers, the murmurings of many woodlands, let it make sweet and vocal the lifelessness of our dried up soul-life. Let our newly awakened powers cry out for unlimited fulfillment in leaf and flower and fruit.

For many centuries the churches have been concerned all but exclusively with the "other world" and its interests. To prepare for death and the future, to save them from hell, and to secure for them the bliss of heaven was the great business of the church. Even now there are voices raised against any effort to align the church with the forces which make for righteousness and justice here and now. They would prefer that the straightening out of maladjustments be postponed until we reach the other side. Fosdick reminds us of a case of this kind:

An American business man not long dead, who hated any word from the pulpit about social righteousness, used to complain: "Preachers are talking so everlastingly about this earth. I've done my best to get them to stick to the gospel, and not allow 'worldliness' to get into the teachings of the church; but the good old preachers have gone to glory." Yet, this pious zealot helped wreck the finances of a great railroad system and with part of the proceeds built a theological seminary.

Men do not always remember that just as the present is the result of a past of infinite length and variety, so the future can only be what we are now engaged in making it.

The New Testament reveals that our Lord was much concerned with the life of man here and now. He predicates the divine appraisal of man's ultimate worth upon what he does in this life, and plainly teaches that his future will be the result of his past. With singular persistency Christ includes the present commonplaces in the sum total of the All.

The program which Christ accepted at the commencement of his ministry was taken from the classic prophet of the Jews, Isaiah. Under somewhat dramatic conditions he took this stand in the synagogue on the Sabbath day, in the presence of the church people, to the consternation and chagrin of the leaders. A most superficial reading of this program discloses that the chief features are: the problems of poverty, injustice, deformities, ill health, and social iniquities through which the masses were in misery and want. The life of this great Teacher was lived in terms of restoration, redemption, and the right to full expression of life, the liberty to enjoy social opportunities and inheritances in equality, at least so far as capacity and ability would allow. His history may be summarized in the cryptic paragraph: "He went about doing good."

To be sure, heaven was of interest to him, but he made it a matter of ethics rather than geography. What man is, determines what he will get. His explorations therefore were within rather than without. He found sublimities in commonplaces, angels in men and women. His miracles were in the splendid powers he discovered in the souls of men and women, even though submerged in sordid and poverty-stricken conditions and in the vortex of disease and deformities. He brought to the surface ideals of the spirit and showed how these could be interpreted and translated in loving service to mankind. So effectively did he teach this thing that a youthful fisherman, who in spite of his humble origin and commonplace surroundings nevertheless became the world's greatest dreamer and apocalypticist, said with a vigor that startles us: "If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar." This summation of the Christian philosophy is direct though possibly crude, but as one who lived on the bosom of the Master and understood perhaps more fully than any of his friends what Jesus was, his word commands our respect.

That the church in its inception had both a social and economic content cannot be denied. While awaiting the realization of their mistaken idea of the immediate return of their Lord in regal splendor and power to take the kingdom and rule over it, they nevertheless had some definite ideas of the need of preparation for that event and sought to regulate the communal life in harmony with what they believed was the intention of their Master. As time passed they grew impatient with the simplicities of the "way of the Lord," and soon mysticism, institutionalism, priestcraft, ambition for place and power resulted in the surrender of high and holy principles to gain unholy advantages in the alliance between church and state. To gain sovereign patronage which brought ease, wealth, and prestige of "this world," the church lost Christ and his distinguishing grace. "He was not of this world." So down the dark way of apostasy the church went, forsaking the Christ who had breathed into her being the breath of his divine life, and soon became a tragic ghost—a Christ-forsaken church.

At various times, under noble men of different names and nationalities, efforts were made to bring back the church to her forsaken Lord, without avail. Only in very recent times has there been an earnest and convincing revival of interest in the church's duty to the present and in the life and well-being of man here and now. It was not until 1885 that in the United States were compelling voices lifted to proclaim the duty of the church in the establishment of economic and social justice. Such men as Washington Gladden, Josiah Strong, and R. T. Ely were in the van. To-day there are many voices of eloquence and passion and others who with pen are writing in words of flame, voicing this message of a new social order.

One of the latest to speak to us in America, Charles A. Ellwood, gives a clear, clarion call in his latest book, The Reconstruction of Religion, a few sentences from which we quote as follows:

Social religion must oppose anything immoral or unjust in the economic system in which men must work and live, because such evil will make impossible the realization of a satisfactory moral character in individuals and of a satisfactory order in society. Now economic conditions are the chief material elements in the social environment. It is idle, therefore, to think that religious ideals can be realized if economic conditions hostile to these ideals are permitted to exist. . . .

Religion must be a set of practical attitudes towards practical problems. The economic life must become suffused with the highest spiritual values; it must be dominated by humanitarian ethics.

In view of the history of religion and of the church, it is all the more remarkable that in 1830 the Latter Day Saints should give a conspicuous place to a social and economic program, strangely out of touch and in advance of the religious teachings and spirit of the times. In the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, which consists of alleged "revelations" to Joseph Smith, is contained the polity and discipline of this church, and quite outstanding in volume and vigor are the instructions to the church regarding labor, the relationships between employer and employee, the attitude of the man towards his task, and the object in view of all economic effort.

Not only is the dignity of labor insisted upon, but its place in the development of character which is the basis of destiny is emphasized without ambiguity: "Thou shalt not be idle; for he that is idle shall not eat the bread nor wear the garments of the laborer."

Among other moral obligations assumed by each member of the group is the following: "The remembrance of the poor, and to consecrate thy properties for their support with a covenant and deed which cannot be broken."

Tithing and consecrations are the taxation imposed upon all to the extent of their "increase." This is to be used for the benefiting of those who are not supplied with what they need. While not regarding poverty as a permanent feature of societal life, nevertheless it has to be alleviated until the causes are abolished. Involuntary poverty and misfortune may overtake anyone, but such victims should not be penalized; they are the subjects of the sympathy and concern of the whole group.

But still deeper there lies the problem of causes. The church must be concerned with this problem and be interested in the devising of ways and means of readjustment so that "Every man may be amply supplied, and receive according to his wants." In this there is the germ of a tremendous and thorough-going reform, which the church gathers up and includes under the term stewardships. Through this process it is hoped to realize that condition of society in which "there shall be no poor, nor shall there be any that is called rich." It will be a state of communal life in which "every man will be made accountable unto me [the Lord], a steward over his own property, or that which he has received by consecration inasmuch as is sufficient for himself and family."

This teaching of "stewardships" provides that each shall consider himself a trustee. Possessions, talents, opportunities, position—all that a man has or is, or whatever position he holds—does not constitute a monopoly to be used for selfish ends, but to be used for the benefiting of society or the group. Not personal rights, but social functions and obligations will be the considerations of chief import under this law, being expressed not in personal gains and advantages, but in terms of function and service for the welfare of the whole.

Fundamentally, it is a matter not of mechanical arrangements so much as it is an attitude of mind which dynamic sociology demands, for as Lester Ward says, "Sociology as a whole rests primarily upon psychology." What a man thinks he tends to become, and no man can "become" anything without affecting all others either in the process of becoming or in the ultimate result of the process. In this attitude of mind underlying this doctrine of stewardships, the individual holds himself in relationship to the society of which he is a part as one who serves in all the powers of his selfhood, whether talents, genius, possessions, opportunities, place, position, all shall be held by him as a trusteeship to be used, not for his personal enrichment, but as a means through which he functions for the welfare of the group. Not individual acquisition, as Professor Tawney, of Oxford, terms it, but cooperative activities directed to social betterment.

We repeat that all of this implies more than mechanical adjustments. For without the bond of moral and spiritual ideals, all devices will fail. There must be cooperation between men, the creation of a human bond in which individuals will be united for efficient functioning for universal good without which stewardships will be only a dream.

With Ruskin, who may be described as one of the nineteenth century prophets in both art and economics, we believe that there are matters more vital and immediate than the questions of wages, profits, and interest. The measure of a man's worth is not in his accumulations, but rather in the quality and quantity of his contributions to the sum total of human happiness. There is no difference in principle between the man who exploits his opportunities for selfish gains as a capitalist and the spirit of selfish shirking which may characterize the laborer. The spirit in any and all who may think more of fees than justice, more of salaries than healing, more of allowances than the revelation of the truth, more of wages than of service is necessarily antisocial and will result in injury to the one who perpetrates this sort of thing as well as to those who may be the victims.

We may without any hesitation accept the following program given many years ago by Doctor Washington Gladden regarding the relationship of the church to the modern problems in economics and social affairs:

1. The church is not on the side of capital, but while not necessary to take sides in the struggle between capital and labor, she must rebuke selfishness and rapacity on both sides. She must not take the side of the stronger against the weaker.

2. The church should approve and encourage the combination of labor for the protection of its interests. Unions are lawful and necessary. Capital organizes to control prices, and labor is helpless without organization.

3. Unions can secure arbitration of labor disputes, and under present conditions this is the best way of avoiding strife and securing justice.

4. Industrial partnership, profit-sharing, and co-operation offer at least suggestive ways of rendering effective service by incorporating good will into the economic system as a working force.

To which we may add:

5. Stewardship, involving trusteeship of talents, opportunities, money, possessions, and position.

No one can be happy while there are any involuntarily.

No one should be rich while there are any involuntarily.

We might once again state the program of our social ideals which we composed and first used in the Panama Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915:

Social reform by individual regeneration.

Every man having equal opportunity to be his best and do his best for the good of all.

Love the dynamic.

Righteousness the principle.

Justice the basis of social relationships.

To organize men and women into the kingdom of God.

To provide all with suitable means which with their talents shall become their stewardship.

Each one being brought to the task he is best able to perform, the product to be distributed so that none has less than is needed, and no one more than he can use.

PENSACOLA, FLORIDA, June 24.

The Necessity for Individual and Collective Morality

Radio address by R. S. Salyards, at Independence, Missouri, March 25, 1924.

The term moral relates to the right practice, manners, or conduct of men as social beings. It means being subject to the moral law as a free agent; to be virtuous, just, irreproachable. Synonyms for the term are, ideal, spiritual, ethical; briefly stated, being honest and straight—doing as one would be done by.

Man is a composite, threefold being—physical, intellectual, and spiritual. He exists in a threefold universe, similar to his combined nature, of which he forms part, and in which, under God, he stands at the head, the ultimate, crowning work of creation. He is made to occupy an exalted position, and is not true to himself or to his Creator unless he fills the place to which he is appointed. Law rules the universe; behind all the forces and realm of nature is the Lawgiver, directing, upholding, maintaining all things to a definite aim or purpose. That which is governed by law is preserved and developed by law; that which rejects the government of law and becomes a law unto itself, becomes perverted and corrupted.

Physical life, intelligence, and morality constitute a divine trio of three in one, linked into unity to comprise the being of man. Combined in the image of the Divine Unity, the three cannot exist separately; each is complementary and essential to the other, and life can be perpetuated and perfected only as all are conjoined in conformity to the principles essential to life; for such principles are the eternal verities. Standing erect, gifted with intelligence, a moral nature, and language, man is intended to know the truth, to speak the truth, and to conform to its order always.

Kant said there were two things that filled him with awe: the starry heavens and conscience in man. The one manifests God; the other, moral nature in man. Man is not himself, is not true to God, to his fellows, nor to himself when he fails to observe moral principles. Made in the image of God, richly endowed, the self-evident explanation of his constitution and station is that he is designed to attain a threefold, ultimate perfection in character and environment; for all life clearly indicates purposiveness, design, the far-off divine intent of ultimate perfection.

In every age man's imperishable intellectual and moral endowments have shone out strongly. Through the inspiration of seers, poets, philosophers, statesmen, etc., man has made manifest the greatness and attainment of which he is innately capable, when his soul is linked and interlocked with truth. Man normally is religious, and morality depends upon religion. The concepts of God, of truth, and of morality are normal to the life of man; it is only when man becomes perverted and corrupted that he becomes abnormal and immoral. In the days of his simplicity and morality he has built enduring structures; in periods of great material advancement and luxury, many lose sight of morality, and civilization becomes undermined and men decay. Such has been the fate of every great civilization; and to-day history threatens to repeat itself in the menacing increase of immorality. Individual and collective morality must be recovered and maintained in every nation if peoples and institutions are to be perpetuated. Every step in advancement has been based upon observance of moral law, hence every backward, every disintegrating movement is clearly traceable to its violation. It has been necessary always to enact laws to sanction morality. So deeply rooted in the very constitution of all things, material and general, is this principle of morality, that immediately upon any infringement of law, nature sets in operation forces to counteract and destroy the evils resulting from its negation. The workings of law are immutable; behind it, directing it, controlling its manifestations, is the "power which makes for righteousness," which is the savor of life unto life or of death unto death.

To-day, as in other ages, we are threatened with an overwhelming flood of immorality in individual and collective life. The great war was caused by materialism and economic immorality; and the end is not yet. The world is rushing on, weath- and pleasure-mad, wild in its blind quest for material things and physical satisfactions. All phases of life are being corrupted by this evil tendency, until there is genuine alarm among the serious minded. Never before has there been greater material development, and never has there been more rapid decline in morality. A revival of spirituality among nations was predicted to follow the war, but notwithstanding the terrible sufferings incident to that great conflict, the nations of Europe, now largely indifferent to the lessons of their fiery trial, are plunging headlong with great recklessness into a wild passion of materialism. Russia is demoralized with a government founded upon wholesale murder and an undermining of religious ideals. Men of prominence in our own land are crying out against the growth of downright paganism in America; and among religious people the need for the teaching of religion and ethics in home and school is being accentuated. Ellwood and other sociologists of international repute are proclaiming that if the world is to be saved from reversion to barbarism, religion must become the motivating force of life. Statesmen, moralists, publicists, in other nations and in our own nation are voicing the danger and calling for reform.

Our cities and towns contain many people who are vapid, silly, and thoughtless, dressed and adorned in modern style, with empty minds, and seemingly incapable of serious thought. They drift about, floaters on the tide of human life, having no worthy object in view, and seemingly disinclined towards stability, holding to no ultimate purpose. They make an appearance, but give little or no evidence of sound common sense. These creatures meander our streets, habitually crowd the theaters, and maintain an existence neutral if not positively immoral, unconcerned with anything that does not pertain to passing life, physical needs, and foolish tendencies. Rush, whirl, excitement, mere artificialities, satisfy them; and living upon such diet they become weak and inane. It is time to characterize this thing—I am not half stating it. There are groups of wealthy and fashionable people, bejeweled and bedecked in the height of fashion, proud and garish in their display, whose religion and charity is a side line, who live luxuriously and wastefully while they dole out a meager charity. The middle and lower classes, too, contain too many who are idle, extravagant, and wasteful. The times demand a revival of individual and collective morality, sober thinking, a genuine re-examination of the meaning of life. Life is losing its sacredness, dignity, and nobleness in all too many. The trend is far from being upward; it is decidedly downward, and the downward movement is gaining rapidly in momentum.

Picking up at random the Kansas City Times of March 6, 1924, we find the following samples of movie programs: "The song of love"; "Shadows of Paris"; "Reno"; "Sporting youth"; "Living models"; "Fools' Highway"; "Jealous husbands"; "Day-time wives"; "Red lights"; "Flaming passion"; "The green goddess"; "The wild party"; "Has the world gone mad?" Thousands, young and old, absorb this miserable stuff daily, including Sundays, throughout the world. Even little children are taken, to drink in this poisonous mixture of passion, silliness, and crime. And this is but one of the many organized immoral forces which is corrupting our youth and our modern life. Witness the government oil scandal, the scandal in the Veteran's Bureau, and others too numerous to indicate, which are themselves breeders of bolshevism and loss of confidence in government and in men.

Following the last congressional election, a defeated Senator and a retired Congressman each made the following statement in substance:

We do not tell the truth here in Washington; we fear to face situations; we are afraid of our constituents; we avoid confronting the facts and do not deal with public questions upon a basis of truth and fact.

How significant are such statements; how far-reaching are the results in a deadening of the moral sense of citizenship!

Attention frequently has been called to the prevalence of immorality in some of our schools and other institutions. Doctor Marion L. Burton, president of the University of Michigan, says:

Americans to-day need most of all to develop a spine. Too many of us have lost the inner standards of right and wrong. People ask themselves what others are doing, not what is right.

Doctor Burton is also quoted thus in a plea for the return of the chivalry of the Middle Ages and the removal from campus life of "many things that should turn red with shame the face of any decent man or virtuous woman"; this in a convocational address. He also said: "Things have transpired recently that are as raw as anything that has happened in my fifteen years of administration experience." Doctor Burton told the four thousand students and members of the faculty:

You students are lazy. You loaf, you gamble, you spend week ends in big cities, and then you wonder why we don't want you here. We don't want loafers here, and we will get rid of you as fast as we find you out. Student evils in this university must go.

Congressman Tinkham, of Massachusetts, is quoted as follows in the public press:

"The District of Columbia is 300 per cent more drunken than Paris, and 2,000 per cent more murderous than London." Statistics on arrests in Washington as reported by the police department, he said, "disclose a civic depravity and social disintegration under present conditions and laws both appalling and unbelievable."

He indicates as foremost causes for these amazing and portentous phenomena of American social decline are the loss of confidence in and respect for present congresses, and therefore, for laws passed by them, and the abdication of certain sects of the Christian church from their spiritual direction and leadership and their assumption of political and legislative domination.

Divorces in the United States, he said, have increased 100 per cent the last ten years.

Doctor Stearns, of Phillips Academy, Andover, Massachusetts, said:

Lawlessness brought about by disregard of the prohibition law has got to such a point that we are almost the most lawless nation on the earth. It has bred crime in high places and low.

Burglary, highway robbery, and murder prevail in our cities, and it has been found necessary to draft leaders trained in the art of war to suppress crime in Chicago, Philadelphia, Kansas City, and other cities.

Kathleen Norris has written: "Perhaps old-fashioned fidelity will come in again some day."

The legislature of South Dakota has adopted this:

Resolved, That the people of South Dakota be enjoined to at once address themselves to renewed effort to restore the balance between the spiritual and the material, that our children be reared up in the principles of fundamental righteousness. That the churches and Sabbath schools be constrained to intensify their work and to extend it to every child within their respective spheres of influence. That parents be adjured to exert every effort to restore the old-time influence of the home in molding the lives of their children, for the development of conscience and morality, that the family altar be restored, and that in self-sacrificing love the little ones be trained in the simple virtues of truthfulness, honesty, and respect for the rights of others.

To-day we face the age-old evils, clothed in modern garb, of wrong against right, disputing, contending for the mastery. Morality, individual and collective, is threatened with almost ultimate extinction. Men and women, old and young, are being more and more absorbed in material life, adjusting themselves to the prevailing trend. Pleasure seeking, excitement, sensationalism, movement to no definite end, are indulged to great extreme regardless of consequences. The old-time home life, conducive to sanity of body and mind and stability of character, with parental oversight and nurture—wholesale association with father and mother, with restraining ties and moral control—is largely a thing of the past. It is a greater responsibility to rear a family now than in earlier times.

To combat these evils, there must be a return to self-control and sane self-direction based upon fundamental morality. School children must be taught, at home and in school, the imperative need of strict obedience to moral principles. Language, mathematics, science—the general body of teaching—is not enough. There should be and must be definite moral teaching—religious life and instruction in the home, moral training in the schools. Music, elocution, and the general run of arts have their place, but religion and morality are of first importance. No one untaught and undisciplined in morality is fitted to be a parent or a public educator; and only men of strong moral character and devotion to public duty should be appointed as members of boards of education. Politics and politicians should be kept out. In a word, the innate relationship of morality to life must be realized, comprehended, and be deeply sensed and practiced if the present generation and those that shall follow are to be saved from demoralization and ruin.

It is, after all, normal to do right; it is abnormal to do wrong. The moral person has a sense and atmosphere of wholesomeness, of satisfaction, of cleanness, a consciousness of human and divine approval. The man who is faithful to public and private duty is serene and happy. He has the respect of all, including the wrongdoer. The man who is unfaithful to his marriage vow is unclean, untrustworthy, and contemptible. The woman morally frail is silly, worse than ugly, and weak beyond description. Other immoralities are also reprehensible. Let there be assistance and reform for the transgressor, but let there be hate for and determined opposition to the immorality now so largely condoned.

Morality is positive, creative, constructive, foundational; immorality is evil, negative, and destructive of character and institutions. The times demand strong moral, self-controlled men and women in individual and collective life. There can be nothing more damaging than a course of conduct contrary to known principles of truth. To be conscious of morality and to live in disregard of conscience is to demoralize and to disintegrate the very personality itself.

Morality is that for the sake of which all things exist; it is the alone essential thing in the world. It is no postulate, idea, but at once necessity and a fact, the most intensely living of personal powers—Jehovah, the God of hosts.

Infallibility

BY JAMES F. KEIR

One of the contributing editors in the HERALD of July 2 makes the following statement:

Though favorable to a wide range of discussion in the HERALD, I feel that General Conference has set certain limits. It is no secret that radical differences of opinion exist between church representatives. At present these differences are most marked between the President of the church and the Presiding Bishop. Conference has spoken quite definitely regarding situations of this kind. And so many of us have of late extolled the validity and binding force of General Conference Resolutions that few of us can gracefully ignore them.

General Conference Resolution 298 says: "Where radical differences of opinion occur between leading representatives of the body, the discussion of them should take place in quorum capacity, and not through the columns of the HERALD."

We fully agree with the sentiment of the quotation from the General Conference Resolution and commend the whole of it for careful reading, but it is a little late to bring forth the argument based thereon. It will be remembered that those formerly acting as editors of the HERALD permitted the free use of its columns to present their views and those favorable to them. See HERALD of January 10, 1923, "Essentiality of loyalty," and September 6, 1922, "Functions of the Presidency in relation to the work of the Bishopric," etc.

Some may be led to believe from what has appeared in print that all of our present official difficulties are between the Presidency and the Presiding Bishopric. Such is not the case. The principles involved are far-reaching and affect the rights of the humblest member in the church. The changes in church government and polity which are being advanced are, we believe, innovations which are in direct opposition to the law written in the books and to established custom.

In the face of the admonition, "Oh ye elders of my church . . . ye shall see that my law is kept," we must contend for that which is written. To do otherwise would mark us as unworthy of the confidence reposed in us.

We have not the slightest desire to impugn the motives of those who differ from us. We believe that they honestly think the things they want will be for the best interest of the work, yet our opinion is that the policy which is now advocated to give "supreme directional control" of all departments of church work in one quorum or one man, is not warranted in the law.

Some shudder at the suggestion that the presiding officer of the church could be mistaken in any policy which he might advance for church government.

Such a position is most dangerous and certainly untenable. We have ever opposed the belief, such as held by our Catholic friends, in an infallible leader. A leader might be ever so honest and sincere and yet be mistaken. We have never affirmed a belief that all the church does is directed by plenary inspiration. The church has expressed itself on that point:

"The sole mouthpiece of the church" is Jesus Christ. We are to receive commandments as a church only as Christ communicates the same; and we are entitled, as a church, to be first satisfied that Christ did give any commandment purporting to come from him, before accepting, or receiving the same.

"Plenary inspiration" has never been affirmed by the church; but we believe in the so named "authorized" books of the church as true and proper standards of evidence in the determination of all controverted doctrines in theology.—General Conference Resolution 308: 7, 8.

If one thing is more sacred than another, it is a revelation from God; yet God gives to us the right to challenge that which comes to us in the name of the Lord. Shall it be called heresy then to question the judgment or opinion of an officer in the church? Surely not, nor should those who are courageous enough to do so be branded as "self-appointed or aspiring leaders," or as a "weapon in the hands of Satan." It is usually taken as an indication of the weakness of a position when appeal is made to petty prejudices instead of directing attention to a discussion of the principles involved. Upon this point the late Joseph, whose memory we revere and whose wisdom we cherish, says:

Before any new and false doctrine, though advanced by the presiding elder of the church could be accepted to any great extent, to the subversion of the faith of the many, thus endangering the leading away of the church, it is subject to challenge [emphasis mine, J. F. K.] from any one who may deem it important, and then must pass the ordeal provided in the church articles. There are three bodies of judges who may pass upon the matter: the Presidency, the Twelve, and the Seventy; and while these quorums are filled with reasonably fearless and independent thinkers there is little danger of serious schism, by reason of ambitious leaders.—SAINTS' HERALD, July 15, 1880.

I was asked the other day to point out a single instance in history where a prophet had ever led the people of God astray. Apparently this party thought that the answer to this question would be conclusive, but it would not. To prove that it had been done would not prove that it would happen again. To show that it never happened would not be evidence that it could not be done. While the biblical account is very meager, yet such accredited witnesses as Isaiah (3: 12; 9: 16), Jeremiah (23: 11, 13, 25), and Luke (Acts 20: 29, 30) bear testimony to the fact that leaders have and may yet make such mistakes. Just one passage given to the church a few years ago should satisfy any reasonable person that it is possible for even a prophet to go wrong, and this being true it is our responsibility for our own welfare as well as the leader's to examine carefully and prayerfully that which is presented. Doctrine and Covenants 127: 8: "Should my servant Frederick M. Smith prove unstable another may be chosen, according to the law already given."

Doubtless many of my brethren will be heard through these columns setting forth the vital issues now affecting the peace of the church. We shall leave to another pen or time the discussion of these weighty matters, yet be assured that this is not a personal difference between any two officers of the leading quorums. The issues involve fundamental principles which must be settled by a careful evaluation of all the factors involved. Speaking for myself, as one of the Presiding Bishopric, the church should know that we have chosen neither the time nor the weapons of this conflict. Having been precipitated into it because of official position, we have acted only as our judgment directed in trying to discharge the duties of the trust imposed in the office. We had earnestly hoped that the position taken by either side could be set forth publicly without any attack upon the character of the ones carrying on the discussion. The President in addressing the priesthood in Independence, July 6, is reported as saying, "Either the opposition which has asserted itself is going to become supreme and the rest of us eliminated or vice versa." As one who has signed the "Open Letter," let me say that our desire is to keep inviolate the fundamental law of the church and those customs and usages which time has demonstrated are wholesome and safeguard the rights of all. We disclaim any desire to eliminate those who differ from us in opinion, but believe that the Spirit of the Master demands of us that we shall grant to others the same privileges that we ask for ourselves.

Christianity has not explained suffering and evil; no one has done so; no one can do so. Yet it has done two things greater, more profound and more profitable for us. From the first it has immensely widened and deepened the fact, the reality, the awful potency and baffling mystery of sorrow, pain, sin, things which abide with man across the ages. But Christianity has also, from the first, increased the capacity, the wondrous secret and force, which issues in a practical, living, loving transcendence, utilization, transformation of sorrow and pain, and even of sin. Christianity gave to our souls the strength and the faith to grasp life's nettle.—Baron von Hügel.

NEWS AND LETTERS

Spiritual Experience at Kirtland

BY WILLIAM PATTERSON

Probably the greatest and most elevating experience of my ministry occurred at the Kirtland Temple Sunday morning, February 10.

I Ask for a Blessing

From the time I became a member of the church, I had been fearful of exercising the gift of prophecy, and had prayed that God would withhold that gift from me lest I should be carried away by emotionalism and so discredit myself and the gospel. However, after I had delivered a few sermons in Kirtland, this fear left me, and I found myself praying privately that the spirit of the prophets would rest upon me. I did this that I might know for myself concerning the times in which we live and be able to rightly interpret the prophecies. I asked that if necessary I should speak in prophecy the next Sunday morning. This attitude was in contradistinction to my whole church life.

The Blessing Given

When I entered the house of God on the morning referred to, a beautiful, peaceful influence pervaded my soul. As I took my seat in the front pew, this influence became slightly stronger, making me so happy that tears of joy coursed down my cheeks. Later I ascended the pulpit with one who was to open the service, and he announced hymn number thirty-four of the Hymnal. Paraphrasing the words of another: Never did the words and the singing of a hymn come more forcibly to the soul of man. To me it was prophetic of the times in which we live. I felt like crying out with all my soul to every member of the church:

"Awake, ye saints of God, awake;
Call on the Lord in mighty prayer,
That he will Zion's bondage break,
And bring to naught the fowler's snare.

"Then let your souls be stayed on God;
A glorious scene is drawing nigh;
Though tempests gather like a flood,
The storm, though fierce, will soon pass by.

"Awake to union and be one,
Or, saith the Lord, 'Ye are not mine';
Yea, like the Father and the Son,
Let all the saints in union join."

The brother offered a very impressive invocation, asking that God would pour out his Spirit upon us as he had upon the Saints of early days in this building. As I rose to speak, I noticed a heavenly glow throughout the temple, apparently enveloping the congregation. I realized that the Spirit of God was especially working with some, and they were melted under its influence. (This may be verified by those present.)

Instruction Regarding Prophecy

I had spoken for a short time, when the gift of prophecy descended, and I was led to speak of the fulfillment of the times of the Gentiles; of the destruction of the people by wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, and human strifes. I was made aware that the "Saints shall hardly escape" these things because of their lack of devotion, watchfulness, development, and consecration. Even some of the priesthood will become a prey to the Adversary and meet with destruction because of dilatoriness, and because they esteem lightly their priesthood authority and join other organizations, with which the Lord is not well pleased. A number are at present under this condemnation, and if they do not return unto God and respect their high calling, great condemnation will rest upon them. Some of these are fast losing the Spirit and will eventually oppose that which they have testified to be of God. The prophecies in respect to the destruction of the ungodly and the desolation of the world are now in course of fulfillment. The times of the Gentiles are rapidly closing. Peace is taken from the earth. The revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants will surely be fulfilled, especially sections 5: 3 and 45: 4.

The Endowment Conditional

I had been greatly concerned about the endowment and the time and manner of its bestowal. I had previously supposed that at a special time in the future God would pour out his Spirit upon the ministry, and they would be endowed with added power. This is an error. There are some who are partially justifying themselves by waiting for that time, but they will never receive the endowment, even though they are then living and holding the priesthood. Only the true and the tried will receive this special blessing. There are a few in the church who are preparing for this outpouring by humility, love, faith, study, and consecration—each of these being essential to that development. The experience at the closing session of the last General Conference was an assurance to the church that the set time to favor Zion is at hand and the beginning of the period of spiritual outpouring upon the church. Since that time many of the ministry have experienced special blessings and will continue to receive until, through the means God has given in his law, the final endowment will be given.

As a result of this outpouring of the power of God, I know that the things recorded in the books of the church will be fulfilled—some of them in the near future. May God help us as a church and as a ministry to awake from our slumber and be prepared for the things which must soon come into the world.

Service for Graduates

DES MOINES, IOWA, June 26.—Sunday evening, June 7, a very beautiful and impressive service was held at the church in honor of our graduates from high school. There was no intermission between Religio and the church service. As the classes marched in from the study rooms, the graduates were asked to take the first two rows in the middle section of the room, and the students in high school and those who had previously graduated occupied the remainder of the section. Brother J. W. Johnson, one of the first graduates of the branch, talked briefly to the class on "What the world requires of us." Brother Johnson has been very successful in the business world and is a splendid, exemplary young man, so was well prepared to talk on this subject.

Matilda Johnson represented the class by a reading and Bernada Jordan by a vocal number. John Baker next spoke, representing the next year's class. The gist of his talk was a plea to the older people to have faith in the young and to sustain them by their prayers and their council, that they may accomplish the task that the church asks of them. Each number was especially fine. After a selection by the orchestra, our well-loved pastor, David E. Dowker, preached the baccalaureate sermon, taking for his subject, "What the church expects."

As he looked into the faces of that fine body of young people, he was visibly affected. After gaining his poise, he compared their outlook on life with his at that age. He made them see how, with the finer training, they were better prepared to meet life's problems than he had been, but he pleaded with them in his humble, gentle way to think of life in terms of service to the church and humanity, and as he explained to them that as their preparation had been greater than his, so would their responsibilities be correspondingly increased, one could not but make the observation that though he had been denied the scholastic attainments he had desired, he at least possessed the one great qualification that is so necessary to be a successful steward in this church, in that he is humble and full of love.

There is a large group of splendid young folks in the branch, and it is our greatest hope that we may not only save them to the church, but that we may make useful men and women in the church and community.

The following Tuesday evening, Sister Davis's class, which comprises the young people of the church, entertained the graduates. The class presented to each a fitting gift, showing their regard for them. This class meets alternating Thursday nights to study the works of the church. Brother Earl Hall, a very able student of the Doctrine and Covenants, has recently been selected to teach them this subject. They are trying to qualify themselves by learning something of the church and its government.

The branch was well represented at the Young People's Convention. Those in attendance were Brother and Sister Dowker and two daughters, Brother and Sister Bish, Brother and Sister Lentell, Brother Castings, Stephen Robinson, Oren Allen, Ann Maitland, and Ruth Mussell.

Preparations are being made for a successful reunion.

MARGRET DAVIS.

Healthy Growth in Coal Hill Branch

ELDORADO SPRINGS, MISSOURI, June 8.—We are just a small country branch, but have a little band of good workers here who are trying to keep the camp fires burning.

In the past two years we have had eighteen or twenty added to our branch here. At least twelve were brought in through the efforts of our missionary, W. E. Haden. All were baptized by him.

One of the new members, Brother John Rittenhour, was ordained a teacher May 31. Another, Sister Lois Adams, was chosen as our district Sunday school superintendent. Others are helping all they can with the work of the branch. We have rejoiced over the addition of these earnest new members, and they have been a strength and encouragement to the branch.

Last winter there was quite a bit of sickness in our branch, and many blessings were received through administration. Many times in our prayer meetings we rejoice in feeling the presence of the good Spirit.

The district conference met with us May 30 to June 1. A goodly number of Saints from all over the district met with us. We felt the presence of God in the first meeting, and it continued throughout the entire conference, drawing the Saints closer together and causing them to rejoice in this wonderful work.

Friday night, May 30, the Department of Recreation and Expression rendered a nice little program in which several branches were represented. Sunday afternoon we had a sacramental, prayer, and testimony service. In this meeting the gift of the Spirit rested upon Brother Abner Lloyd, and a prophecy and admonition was delivered to the Saints.

This meeting seemed to be a crowning joy of the conference. Many present expressed their thankfulness in being permitted to attend the conference and rejoiced in the presence of the Spirit in our midst.

Our son Paul took sick on Saturday night of conference. He was administered to, but continued to be very sick all night. We feared we would not be permitted to attend the Sunday services. When it came time for us to get ready to go, his high fever was gone, and he said he felt able and wanted to go to church. We went, and he seemed to enjoy being there but seemed sick all day. Sunday night he felt much worse and did not rest much, and Monday morning he was quite sick again. Brethren Moler and Haden being in our home, they and Brother Davis administered to him. In a few hours he was well. This is only one of the many blessings which have come to us.

MRS. PEARL DAVIS.

Summer Activities—New President Elected

BEVIER, MISSOURI, June 26.—Services in the church building were resumed June 15 after an absence of about a month, while the interior of the building was being painted and the walls and ceilings decorated. The walls were given a sponge finish, consisting of a grayish-blue background with a pink and wine-colored design, and wine-colored borders and lines, the colors blending together and presenting a beautiful appearance, restful for the eyes. A number of the brethren have volunteered to paint the outside woodwork free, the branch furnishing the material.

J. W. A. Bailey, missionary, occupied the morning and evening hours Sunday, June 15. The branch has asked Brother Bailey to hold a series of preaching services when it will suit his convenience, which will be soon. He is now holding forth at Macon.

At a branch business meeting held June 16, Elder W. B. Richards presented his resignation as branch president, which was accepted. Brother Richards is now located at Kansas City, Kansas, and this was the reason for his resignation. Elder Ben S. Tanner was elected to serve the unexpired term.

Another important item of business transacted was the rescinding of the rules in force for electing members of the branch priesthood. A motion prevailed taking the appointing power out of the hands of the branch president, and allowing the branch to elect the different officers. Fred L. McKane was elected branch priest; John Pearson, teacher; and W. T. Hicklin, deacon.

Elder J. A. Tanner and Sister Tanner, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Alfred Hitchcock, and the latter's daughter, Doris Elizabeth, arrived here on June 14 for a short visit. Elder Tanner preached at Macon on the 15th and at Bevier the 22d. Bevier is the boyhood home of Brother Tanner.

Sister Archie F. Smith and children, Crawford, Annalee, and Marybeth, returned to their home in Oakland, California, on June 22, after a three months' visit. Marybeth was born here during the visit and was blessed by Elders Bailey and Tanner June 15.

Quite a number of the Bevier Saints attended the North-eastern Missouri district conference at Macon June 21 and 22. The visiting missionaries present were E. F. Robertson and J. W. A. Bailey of the district, J. A. Tanner, of Kansas City, Missouri, and Thomas J. Elliott, of Providence, Rhode Island. The two last-named were visiting in the neighborhood.

S. J. Joyce, sr., of Macon, was ordained to the office of elder. The Macon Saints served a basket dinner on the church lawn to the visitors.

Gala Day and Visitors at Marshall Branch

MARSHALL, MISSOURI, June 23.—Yesterday, June 22, was a gala day for the Saints here. An excellent sermon was had in the morning by Elder Harold Thayer. Brother and Sister S. C. Wright and children, of Nelson, were present, bringing with them their guests, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Haig, of Independence, Missouri. The latter couple have become somewhat interested in this latter-day work through the radio broadcast from the Stone Church.

A large party dined at the home of Elder Levi Phelps; then, by request, Brother Phelps preached at the church in the afternoon from a chart. He talked especially on the church organization for the benefit of the visiting party. At night Brother Phelps preached again on "The marvelous work and a wonder," evidently satisfactorily to all.

Sister Sarah Johnson and Brother Johnson, who have been visiting their daughter, Sister Tickemyer, were present at the evening meeting. They are talking of moving to Marshall.

Sister Lois Spohrer is ill with a fever.

Denver Appreciates Work of Frank Almond

DENVER, COLORADO, June 23.—The weather here is oppressively warm. Some of the Saints are taking a vacation, and the congregation of Sunday, June 22, was about half the usual size.

Elder Delbert Kemp was the speaker at the morning service on the subject, "Cast thy bread upon the waters."

Elder Frank B. Almond has returned from Independence and has decided to remain in Denver. We think his services are needed as much in Denver as on the editorial staff of the church. Denver is filled with tourists from every State in the Union, and we need a man who can properly represent the church in this city.

Homer Shupe and wife came up from Trinidad to visit with friends and relatives and worship with the Denver Saints. There are no services held in Trinidad.

Brother Chappel and family, of Lincoln, Nebraska, are visiting in the city, and the young ladies are taking an active part in the choir work.

Institute Work at Moundsville

MOUNDSVILLE, WEST VIRGINIA, June 25.—On June 4 the district Sunday school officers brought the institute to Moundsville, beginning at nine o'clock with prayer and sacramental service. A lecture at ten o'clock was given by the district superintendent, W. A. Schoenian, on the subject, "Do we cogitate?" At half past ten the assistant superintendent, Samuel A. Martin, of Wheeling, gave a talk on organized classes. At eleven James A. Stacks, of Steubenville, Ohio, spoke on "The greatest Sunday school." O. J. Tary, district president, at half past eleven talked on "Worship in the Sunday school."

The afternoon services opened at two o'clock with music furnished by the district orchestra, the district chorister in charge. The following program was rendered: reading, "Come up higher," Leora Schoenian; solo, "I come to thee," Lela DuBois; talk, "Public speaking," John Ross Criswell; paper, "Successful teaching," Anna Schoenian.

At half past three Elder L. E. Serig, of Wheeling, spoke about "Book review," following which Floyd Taylor played a violin solo. The surprise of the day was a talk on Sunday school work given by Patriarch John F. Martin, who also delivered an inspiring sermon in the evening.

The Department of Women is still working hard for the advancement of the cause. They recently donated one hundred dollars towards the Kirtland cafeteria debt.

The district chorister and pianist, Anna Schoenian and Oma Montgomery, are now at Fair View Branch assisting Thomas L. Clark in evangelical services. They are going from there to Glen Easton where a musical concert and lecture will be given.

The branch was saddened by the death of a dear sister, Bessie Noller, who was laid to rest in Nauvoo Cemetery, Friday, June 20. Services were conducted by Elder Thomas L. Clark.

Holden Stake News

Our two stake missionaries are busy in their work. Elder R. D. Weaver is occupying in the new church at Sedalia, preaching interesting sermons to appreciative audiences. Elder Alvin Knisley has been preaching at Lone Elm Schoolhouse, eight miles northwest of Paola, Kansas. He has baptized one and expects to baptize more in the near future. He will continue his labors in Kansas indefinitely.

Elder H. B. Thompson, and A. C. Christenson, priest, filled the appointment at the Home Sunday morning. The pastor, Brother Krahl, occupied at the church at eleven o'clock, and James N. Curtis, priest, had charge of the service.

In the afternoon at two o'clock a baptism and impressive confirmation service was held, Brother R. L. Dillon, superintendent of the Sunday school, in charge. V. E. Bowers and Freelin Hampton, priests, officiated in the baptism of the five children: Ira Bixby, Charles Weeks, Josephine Nicholson, Catherine Ament, and Janice Hampton. Elders I. M. Ross, H. E. Moler, C. F. Scarcliff, and D. J. Krahl confirmed those baptized.

In the evening the church observed Children's Day with an appropriate program given by the children from the cradle roll up, with Superintendent Dillon in charge. The decorations were beautiful, and the musical numbers and other exercises were well rendered. The committee in charge were Sisters May Moler, Arline Weir, and Neva Lycan. The program reflected credit upon their work.

Lexington

We had a wonderful sacramental service Sunday which was enjoyed by the one hundred five in attendance, one hundred of whom were members. In the evening at a quarter of seven six children were baptized by J. A. Brendel. They were later confirmed by G. M. Shippy, J. E. Johnson, and J. A. Brendel. At the evening preaching hour we had the Children's Day program. The confirmation service was a part of the program. Those baptized were Earl Orndoff, Joseph Rank, Robert Elkins, Laurel Shippy, Esther Crowe, and Amelia Butler. Two babies were also blessed at this service, the daughter of Brother and Sister W. M. Crowe and the son of Brother and Sister Frank Shippy.

Brother and Sister Roscoe Moorman, of Sedalia, were with us Sunday. Sister Lola Johnson and Brother Moorman are working in the interest of the Department of Music of the Holden Stake.

Brother D. J. Krahl was in Lexington for a short time in behalf of the stake work. Sister Maurine Burch will spend the summer in Warrensburg at summer school.

Marshall

William P. Mitchell, deacon, preached an excellent sermon Sunday morning, June 8. Elder Levi Phelps gave an interesting discourse Sunday night on the missing books of the Bible, showing that the canon of Scriptures is not full.

Brother Phelps's doctrinal sermons are appreciated. Several nonmembers attend our preaching services.

The Sunday school is increasing in attendance and interest. Religio is also well attended, and good programs are given. A Temple Builder chapter was organized Sunday afternoon of June 1, with Sister Marion Terrell, leader; Sister Cassie Johnson, assistant; Sister Genevieve Tickemyer, recorder; Sister Lois Spohrer, assistant. The young ladies chose dramatics as their study. Their colors will be black and white. They are starting out enthusiastically, and it is hoped much good will be accomplished by them.

Atherton

Children's Day was very fittingly and impressively observed the second Sunday in June. In the evening the pastor occupied, using the subject, "If a man die, shall he live again?"

Brother and Sister Boswell have departed for their home in Moorhead, Iowa. The home vacated by Brother Boswell is now occupied by the family of Brother Amos Higdon. Brother Higdon preached for us before he left for his field of labor. His sermon was much appreciated.

Knobnoster

Children's Day was observed June 8 by an appropriate program which occupied the eleven o'clock hour. Following the program ten children were baptized by Elder R. E. Burgess, after which a splendid basket dinner was served, the children being served first in honor of the day. The confirmation of those baptized took place at half past two. Brother R. F. Moorman, assistant stake chorister, was present June 8, looking after the musical interest of the work.

Sister Eva Redfield, our musical director, who has been confined to her bed for about two weeks, is slightly improved.

Elder J. F. Petre preached two splendid discourses on June 15.

Lamoni Stake Items

LAMONI, IOWA, July 5.—A series of meetings held June 22 to 29 at Lucas, Iowa, by Elder W. E. Prall was very successful despite unfavorable weather conditions. Bad roads and high water prevented many from attending who had planned to do so. A creek near Lucas rose until its width measured eighty rods, and it was not possible to cross it. Notwithstanding, both the crowd in attendance and the interest grew nightly, and on the second Sunday two boys were baptized by Elder William B. Farley, president of the branch.

Preparations are in progress for the Lamoni Stake reunion. Speakers engaged for this time are Elders John Martin, E. J. Gleazer, J. F. Garver, and L. G. Holloway. Indications now are that there will be a greater number of Saints than usual from other parts of the stake who will attend throughout the entire time, tenting on the grounds. Brother Prall is busy to-day putting up automobile placards advertising the reunion.

Convention visitors will be interested in knowing that the weather has cleared up in Lamoni. However, it did not do so with the close of convention. Only seven clear days are reported during the month of June, with a rainfall of 4.85 inches.

At a recent meeting of the Patroness Society of Graceland, reports showed a net income of $36.18 from the serving of the Lambda Delta Sigma banquet in May, and of $133.75 from the bazaar held during the Young People's Convention. This will be used toward paying the five hundred dollar pledge for the new gymnasium. When this society pledged the sum of five hundred dollars about three months ago, it looked pretty big to some, but those who knew the past record of these loyal Graceland supporters had no fears. Already the treasury holds almost half enough to liquidate it. They have also taken the agency for "Fabric Patch-it Paste," a substance for mending without thread, which according to demonstrations held by them proved to be a great time and labor saver, and they hope to realize a steady income from the sale of this article. An organized effort is also being made by the ladies to introduce the Graceland Cookbook into many more homes throughout the church.

Elder James Thomas left Monday for Tulsa, Oklahoma, his first objective in a chain of southern reunions which he expects to attend. He was accompanied to Tulsa by his brother-in-law, Brother M. T. Mortimore, who went in the interests of his geological work. They were entertained en route by Brother and Sister V. L. Krucker, old-time friends, in Miami, Oklahoma.

Brother and Sister J. H. Anthony and two daughters, Helen and Emily, also their two nieces, Delphine and Kathryn Skinner, started a series of serenades last Sunday evening, the music of Joe's guitar blending beautifully with the sweet voices of the children and Mrs. Anthony on the evening stillness, when they visited at the homes of a number of shut-ins. All were indeed grateful for the pleasant experience, and the beaming faces of the young people told of the joy of service experienced by them.

Boston News

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS, June 29.—The Boston Branch has enjoyed a very encouraging year so far and is looking eagerly forward to the coming young people's convention and reunion at Onset. Much is being planned and anticipated, and it is expected that larger numbers than ever before will enjoy the beautiful surroundings and excellent opportunities of the place.

Brother Thompson has been very diligent in his work in the southern New England District, and his visits to our branch are always a source of much pleasure. Earlier in the month Elder Thompson and the Boston choir, under the leadership of Brother James Houghton, broadcast an evening service. From the many letters of appreciation and requests for copies of the sermon, the Saints believe that this was a very successful attempt to give our friends a fair understanding of the gospel we believe.

On Children's Day a very excellent program was given by the Sunday School Department. On this same day two babies, Marjorie Esther Carter and David Ivester, were blessed; also there were two baptisms, Ruth Alice Carter and Edna Stockbridge.

The Saints are all glad to welcome back to their midst Brother and Sister Richard Baldwin, who have recently returned from the British Isles. Also, they are glad to welcome Sister O. L. Thompson and family, who have come to join Brother Thompson and to make their home here.

President Smith Visits Canada

WINDSOR, ONTARIO, July 3.—President Frederick M. Smith arrived in Windsor June 30, according to previous arrangements, and addressed a very large and appreciative audience at eight o'clock in the evening. Brother Smith took as his subject, "They say." The expression of the congregation was that he might speak for four hours if he wished. Refreshments were served after the service.

Evangelist R. C. Russell is resting up at home after an attack of high blood pressure.

Quite a number from here attended the convention in Detroit and report a good time.

The third annual branch picnic will be held at Lake Saint Clair Grove Saturday, July 5. Arrangements are in the hands of the branch president and superintendents of departments, who are planning a good time.

Elder L. D. Campbell has returned home after a short missionary trip to Delhi, Ontario.

Sister Olive Crouchman, daughter of Brother Harry Crouchman, has been quite ill but, we are very pleased to report, is improving.

During the postal clerks' strike throughout Canada, Windsor mail was tied up for several days, during which time the Saints missed the church papers. It is over now, however, and the mail man is again in evidence.

News From El Reno

EL RENO, OKLAHOMA, June 30.—El Reno has had a visitation of very hot weather which has a depressing effect on gospel work, as it makes swimming pools and artificially cooled theaters more popular than the church. Yet enough of the pure love remains in the hearts of the Lord's people to maintain the church services.

The branch recently voted that the pastor should have a suit of clothes more suited to this warm climate, and that it should be paid for from the budget fund.

Through the generosity of Brother and Sister H. K. Rowland our little church was further beautified by placing a beautiful covering on the rostrum and a rubber runner down the aisle; also the purchasing of two suitable chairs for the rostrum, all of which adds beauty and dignity to the Lord's house. Thanks to Brother and Sister Rowland.

The Sunday school, Religio, and Department of Women are well supported and doing good work. The pastor gives a Bible study lesson for the latter at their Thursday afternoon service, also for our Young People's Association which meets on Thursday nights.

A number of Saints came over from Oklahoma City recently, headed by Sister Bailey, and gave us a fine presentation of "The friendly visitor," which was graphically presented and highly appreciated by a church full of people. Surely such visitations do good. Thanks to you, dear city Saints.

Because of justifiable reasons, we asked the branch here for a vacation which, after due consideration, was granted. This gives us the privilege of returning to our Independence home for a season. We may return to spend the winter here. Our address will be 1614 West Short Street, Independence, Missouri, after July 8.

J. M. TERRY.

Brother Ward A. Hougas, of Venango, Nebraska, in renewing his subscription says that the district is making a big effort to put the North Platte reunion on the map again, as they are convinced it can be done. He is enjoying quite an interest in the work in western Nebraska and eastern Colorado. Schoolhouse crowds at his regular appointments often average above eighty.

Sister Lulu Morehouse, of North Head, Grand Manan, in sending a subscription for the HERALD writes that her grandfather, Brother E. Flaggs; her aunt, Sister Jane Tidd; and herself are the only Saints on the island, so they would like to hear from some other Saints of their success. These three joined the church last year at the Onset reunion.

Independence

An ideal day marked the Independence Day celebrations at the Campus July 4, which were under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce, and a community affair. Happy crowds came and went throughout the day. Picnickers spread their feasts on tables and ground. Races, pictures, fireworks, and playground apparatus furnished amusement for the children, while adults were more interested in the ball games. The Y. K. T. class won over the I. X. L.'s in the morning at a score of 4 to 3. Excelsior Springs scored 9 to 3 against Independence in the afternoon. Speeches were had from Forest Hannah, who made an appeal for support to the proposed Memorial Legion Building in Independence, and from Honorable Fred W. Coon, who spoke on patriotism.

The Laurel Club workers were prominent at the home cooking sale and the fish pond. All proceeds of the day are to go to the Laurel Club.

Saturday evening's picture, "Orphans of the storm," drew an immense assembly of spectators to the Campus, but the picture was totally unfit to show where small children and those of tender and sensitive natures come, expecting to witness something of a restful nature. The stirring, dramatic scenes of the French Revolution and Reign of Terror, the abduction of young girls, the wanton lives of fallen women, death and condemnation to death of pure and innocent as well as of tyrants are what make up the picture. In this horror they were held for nearly three hours, and many who favor the use of the moving picture, and the picture drama, were wondering where our censors had been when this picture was selected.

Sacramental services were held at all the churches at 11 o'clock, with excellent attendance everywhere. President F. M. Smith had charge at the Stone Church; Brother Whiting at Second Church; F. J. Lewis at Enoch Hill; B. J. Scott at Walnut Park; C. E. Willis at Liberty Street, and Brother A. H. Parsons at East Independence.

Brother J. W. A. Bailey preached to a crowded house at Enoch Hill at 7 o'clock. A series of missionary services will be held on Sunday evenings to which an invitation is extended to all. Keep in mind the hour is at 7 p. m., one half hour earlier than is usually set.

Brother W. J. Brewer, the new pastor, is assuming his duties and meeting with cooperation. All are looking forward to a constructive future.

Brother William Bath continued the missionary series at East Independence Sunday evening with the subject, "Organization of the church." Brother A. H. Parsons will deliver a series of lectures there the coming Sunday mornings on "Centralization of power."

East Independence has prayer meeting Wednesday night, choir practice Thursday night, and Religio Friday night.

There will be preaching services at Walnut Park next Sunday evening.

Brother C. E. Wight, president of Lamoni Stake, spoke at the Campus Sunday evening on the subject, "A vital religion."

A Religio session will be held at the Stone Church next Friday evening. Religio has been broken into lately and study classes are getting behind.

The Sunday school executives of the Stone Church met Sunday morning to discuss school problems and plan to hold another meeting soon.

William Wilson, of the primary department of Stone Church, was baptized yesterday. Three baptisms were had at Enoch Hill the latter part of the week.

President Elbert A. Smith went Friday to attend the funeral of his mother's brother, M. W. Hartshorn, at Marathon, Iowa. He stopped over Sunday in Des Moines, Iowa, preaching afternoon and evening.

Brother P. G. Fairbanks, who works in the Presidency's office, is spending his vacation in Chicago.

Brother Charles May is home from his mission field and busy as usual. He preached in Kansas City, Kansas, last Sunday night and has his calendar full for several appointments ahead.

Most of the Quorum of Twelve are busy in their fields. Brethren Ellis and McConley were last heard from at the close of the Australian Mission conference. Brethren Hanson and Curtis were just leaving Palestine. Brother Budd left for the West this week to attend reunions. Brothers Garver and Williams are already in the reunion work, where the Twelve will be very busy the next few weeks. Brother Gleazer is in Illinois at the present writing, and Brother Gillen has just returned from Ohio.

The priesthood assembled at the Campus at 2.30 Sunday afternoon, where President Frederick M. Smith addressed them on the issues of the present hour. The attendance was so large that the Assembly Hall would not accommodate all; some, therefore, were deprived of hearing the address. Following the meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Campus Building, the various quorums met in their separate rooms to discuss the issues and their particular quorum problems.

As this issue of the HERALD goes to press an election is being held for the purpose of voting $200,000 bonds that added school facilities may be supplied both in the Junior High and the grade schools. It is proposed to erect a new building at the junction of South Cottage Street and Alton Avenue where the board has an option on two acres of fine ground. Sentiment seems to be overwhelmingly in favor of this movement, and unless those who do wish it accomplished fail to vote, it will be carried. This should take precedence over any public measure now in contemplation, and if Independence people cannot afford to do more of a public nature at this time, there should be no hesitancy as to which to support. Our school problems demand a solution.

Group Ten, south division, was greatly saddened on the morning of July 4 to hear of the sudden death of little Kenneth Johnson, son of Sister Anna Johnson, who died of acute indigestion after a very few hours of illness. Kenneth, almost three years of age, was a neighborhood baby. His mother is a widow who bravely supports her family, and her work sometimes takes her from the home. She is so much loved by her neighbors that they were always ready to lift as much of her load as possible and found great pleasure in helping care for little Kenneth, who came in this way to belong to them all. The loss touched the children of the neighborhood deeply. Tears dripped from the eyes of the little flower girls and fell upon the blossoms they carried for Kenneth, while the four lads who had helped teach Kenneth the lore of boyhood bore his casket, choking back their emotions. Brother J. A. Gillen preached the funeral sermon on Sunday afternoon at the home.

The Campus Activities Committee announce that arrangements have been made for developing Tuesday nights as recreation night on the Campus. A. P. Langdon is chairman of a committee looking after lawn games, including croquet, horseshoes, etc. Brother Elmer Highland is chairman of the committee which has the volley ball games in charge. Special lighting is being arranged to make the Campus attractive as a social center for organized play.

It is to be hoped the Saints are looking after their weeds, so that they won't have to be reminded by the city that there

(Continued on page 670.)

MISCELLANEOUS

Reunion Handbook

A Reunion Handbook covering the outstanding phases of reunion activity has been prepared under the editorial direction of the General Reunion Committee and is on sale at the Herald Office; price fifty cents. This book should be particularly valuable to members of reunion committees and departmental workers, and will also be of interest to those having the responsibility of the work in the branches, since many of the suggestions can readily be adapted to other phases of general church work.

GENERAL REUNION COMMITTEE.

Pastoral Notices

To the Officers and Saints of the Western Oklahoma District; Greetings: Having been appointed to labor in your district as your servant and colaborer, I feel impressed to say that we must together bend our every energy to advance the cause of Christ.

The spiritual experiences of the past few months have given to me a deeper significance of the ultimate triumph of this work than I have hitherto possessed. Never in my experience was my faith in God more firm, my hopes more bright, and my determination greater than it is to-day.

My first series of meetings will be at Davidson, Oklahoma, beginning on July 6. I then go to Texas to hold one series of meetings there at the request of the Quorum of Twelve, after which I am at your service. I am here to do my part. Will you assist me?

I shall be glad to hear from anyone where meetings are desired, and especially so if those desiring services are within easy access of organized branches so that when converts are made they can be taken care of. Please feel free to write to me and advise me in any way. My field address will be, Eagle City, Oklahoma, in care of Lester E. Dyke.

Yours in bonds, WILFRID D. TORDOFF.

Reunion Called Off

The Holden Stake conference authorized the stake presidency to call off the reunion to be held at Holden, Missouri, July 18 to 27, if conditions would warrant. We have endeavored to give this our careful consideration and feel warranted is an ordinance against letting them grow and mature. Zion the Beautiful will turn its weed patches into flower gardens. It is not too late yet, if you have not already started.

(Continued from page 669.)

A memorial to the boys who gave their lives in the World War is being agitated in Independence. This is planned to be in the nature of a community building, with a large auditorium for the accommodation of public mass meetings, Chamber of Commerce dinners, conventions, and gatherings of all sorts. It is also planned that accommodations shall be provided to make it a recreational center for young people and adults, that it will include a gymnasium, and give space for headquarters of civic organizations. A petition asking for an election on July 14 to vote $150,000 bonds for this has gone to the mayor and city council.

The report that Brother and Sister F. Henry Edwards would spend a honeymoon trip in the mountains of Colorado was a mistake. This report in some way found its way into the newspapers and was copied by us. Brother Edwards is at his desk and working at regular routine.

The quarterly conference of Zion met at the Stone Church Monday evening, July 7, at which time the following ordinations were approved and arranged for: Leonard White, elder; Frederick W. Lamphere, elder; Frederick Horn, deacon; Enoch Cox, deacon; Guy Fairbanks, counselor to A. K. Dillee, president of the First Quorum of Elders; Merle Quick, counselor to E. D. Moore, president of the Second Quorum of Elders, to succeed Walter Wehrli.

in dispensing with the reunion for 1924. The main reasons are: 1. The backward and extremely rainy season has hindered the work of the farmers so they will be unable to attend at the time reunion is scheduled. 2. Some have arranged to help with the dining hall project at the State Fair, Sedalia, Missouri, August 16 to 23, and cannot also take time off for the reunion. The dining hall must be maintained. 3. The financial condition of the church and no prospects for an immediate improvement. The reunion is therefore called off. In this action the stake bishopric concur.

D. J. KRAHL, President.

To All District Secretaries

Condensed statistical reports heretofore sent by the district secretaries to the Department of Statistics following each district conference, I no longer require.

F. A. RUSSELL, Church Recorder.

One-Day and Two-Day Meetings

Central Michigan. At Fordney, July 19 and 20. The church is located four miles west and one mile north of Brant Center.

At Alma, July 27, one day. The church is located on Pleasant Avenue.

At Houghton Lake, August 2 and 3. All are invited to attend and bring well-filled baskets. Matthew Umphrey.

Northern Michigan, at the Wells Branch, July 19 and 20. A very good time is promised. Allen Schreur.

Conference Notices

Youngstown-Sharon District, at Warren, Ohio, July 26 and 27. All branch presidents are requested to send in their statistical and ministerial reports. All are invited to attend. J. E. Bishop, president. E. B. Jones, secretary.

Convention Notices

Eastern Montana, at Girard, July 12. Sunday school convention will be held on Saturday in connection with reunion and conference. Mrs. W. R. Hillman, secretary.

Reunion Notices

Northern Michigan, at Boyne City, August 8 to 17, in the "Park of the Pines" five miles north of the city. Those desiring to rent tents may do so by getting in communication with Mrs. Ada Alldred, Boyne City, Michigan. Our new auditorium is completed, and the grounds are in very fine condition. The general church reunion committee has given us the promise of F. Henry Edwards, J. C. Dent, Patriarch James Davis, and Sister Ward L. Christy. We extend a cordial invitation to members of other districts who can arrange to meet with us. Everything promises to be the best reunion yet. Our district conference will convene the last Saturday and Sunday, August 16 and 17. Allen Schreur, president.

Minnesota, at Minneapolis, July 3 to 11. Conference will be held on July 5. Meals at cost. For accommodations advise C. A. Kress, 506 Newton Avenue, North Minneapolis, Minnesota. George W. Day, president, Bemidji, Minnesota. E. H. Bennett, secretary, 506 Newton, North Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Holden stake reunion has been called off. Reasons for this are given in a separate notice.

Arkansas, four miles north of Jonesboro, August 15 to 24. District conference will be held the last three days, August 22 to 24. Everyone come prepared to care for themselves. All are cordially invited and should attend, as we expect a pleasant and profitable meeting. Lida Ziegenhorn, secretary.

Spring River, in Lincoln Park, Pittsburg, Kansas, August 8 to 17. Special workers: Bishop Charles Fry, Patriarch Richard Baldwin, J. A. Tanner of Kansas City, Elders Amos Higdon and Lee Quick, Brother and Sister John Blackmore, of Pittsburg, Kansas. Tents: 8 by 10, $2.50; 10 by 12, $3; 12 by 14, 6-foot wall, $7.50. The company supplying the tents is making a special of a 14 by 16 tent with 4-foot wall for $4. Cots are $1. Send orders now to Elsworth G. Gilbert, 112 West Jefferson Street, Pittsburg, Kansas. This reunion will open promptly at 8.30 a. m., August 8, with a prayer meeting. The reunion is to be held in the city park. Water, electric lights, fully-equipped playground, tennis courts, and plenty of shade, all free of charge. Elsworth G. Gilbert, secretary.

Addresses

R. S. Salyards, 601 West Farmer Street, Independence, Missouri.

Wilfrid D. Tordoff. Home address, Lamoni, Iowa; field address, care of Lester E. Dyke, Eagle City, Oklahoma.

Appointment of Worker in Southern Ohio

Sister Ethel Kirkendall, Union Furnace, Ohio, has been appointed superintendent of the Department of Women for Southern Ohio District until the next district conference. All parties interested in the work of this department, please communicate with her at the above address. Floyd Rockwell, president, 1009 Edison Street, Dayton, Ohio.

Reunion Calendar

(The figures in parentheses give the page of the HERALD on which details have been given.)
 Minnesota, at Minneapolis, July 3 to 13.
 Central Nebraska, at Inman, July 5 to 11.
 Eastern Montana, at Girard, July 8 to 13 (599).
 Central Texas, at Hearne, July 11 to 20 (599).
 Northern California, at Irvington, July 17 to 27 (359, 503).
 Southwestern Kansas, at Winfield, July 17 to 27 (479, 503).
 Kentucky and Tennessee, at Puryear, Tennessee, July 19 to 27 (527).
 Florida, at Alafloa, July 18 to 27.
 Central Oklahoma, at Washunga, July 18 to 27 (503).
 Southern California, at Hermosa Beach, July 25 to August 3 (335).
 Clinton, at Eldorado Springs, Missouri, July 25 to August 3 (622).
 Western Nebraska, at North Platte, July 25 to August 3 (623).
 Massachusetts, at Onset, July 26 to August 10 (623).
 Toronto, at Woodbridge, Ontario, July 26 to August 11 (359).
 Lamoni, at Lamoni, Iowa, July 30 to August 10 (623).
 Chatham, Ontario, at Erie Beach, August 1 to 10 (167, 263, 237).
 Western Oklahoma, at Eagle City, August 1 to 10 (575).
 Alabama, at Pleasant Hill, August 1 to 10 (215).
 Eastern Iowa, at Muscatine, August 1 to 10.
 Seattle and British Columbia, at Silver Lake, Washington, August 1 to 10 (646).
 Spring River, at Pittsburg, Kansas, August 7 to 17.
 Eastern Michigan and Detroit, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (575).
 Des Moines, at Runnels, Iowa, August 8 to 17 (575).
 Mobile, at Gautier, Mississippi, August 8 to 17 (503).
 Portland, at Portland, Oregon, August 8 to 17.
 Southeastern Illinois, at Brush Creek, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Detroit and Eastern Michigan, at Port Huron, August 8 to 17 (335, 646).
 Nauvoo, at Nauvoo, Illinois, August 8 to 17 (455).
 Northern Michigan, at Boyne City, August 8 to 17.
 Kirtland, at Kirtland, Ohio, August 9 to 24 (119, 383).
 Northeastern Illinois, at Elmhurst, August 14 to 21.
 Eastern Oklahoma, at Winthrop, August 14 to 25 (527).
 Western Montana, at Race Track, August 15 to 24.
 Kewanee, at Galva, Illinois, August 15 to 24.
 Idaho, at Hagerman, August 15 to 24.
 Central Michigan, at Midland, August 15 to 24 (479).
 Northeastern Kansas, at Netawaka, August 15 to 24.
 Gallands Grove and Little Sioux, at Dow City, Iowa, August 15 to 24 (215, 646).
 Northwestern Kansas, at Studley, August 15 to 24 (599).
 Maine, at Brooksville, August 16 to 23 (599).
 New York and Philadelphia, at Deer Park, Pennsylvania, August 16 to 31.
 Western Colorado, at Delta, August 17 to 24 (575, 623).
 Far West, at Stewartsville, Missouri, August 21 to 31.
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, at Vicksburg, Michigan, August 22 to 31 (599).
 Pottawattamie, at Glenwood, Iowa, August 22 to 31.
 Southern Wisconsin, at Monona Park, August 22 to 31 (503).
 Eastern Colorado, at Colorado Springs, August 22 to 31 (455).

Our Departed Ones

COUSER.—William Couser was born at Eniskillen, Fermanagh County, Ireland, August 1, 1836. Came to America when a small child with his widowed mother, his father having died in the West Indies. Settled at Albion, Ontario. Married Jane Newberry January 31, 1868. He lived more than sixteen years in Independence. Died at Liberty Home, Lamoni, Iowa, May 3, 1924. Funeral services at Independence, Missouri. Sermon by Joseph Luff. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery. Leaves seven children, thirteen grandchildren, and ten great-grandchildren. His wife preceded him eleven years ago.

BARNETT.—Delbert Lee Barnett, the youngest son of George W. and Sarah Jane Barnett, was born March 17, 1891, at Independence, Missouri. Baptized at the age of twenty. Married Lillian Willis March 12, 1912. Injured in an automobile accident May 8. Died May 10, 1924. Leaves wife and three children, Leroy, Violet Pansy, and Donald Eugene; also mother, father, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Tousley, Mrs. Anna Belle Mayes, and Mrs. Tessie Eagan; and one brother, William S. Barnett. Funeral from the South Side Church at Independence. Sermon by R. J. Lambert. Interment at Mound Grove Cemetery.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Richard J. Lambert, Managing Editor

Contributing Editors

Elbert A. Smith                      S. A. Burgess
 T. W. Williams                      A. Max Carmichael
 Arthur Phillips                      Arthur E. McKim
 O. W. Parker, Business Manager

Published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.

Notices for publication in the Miscellaneous department must be in the hands of the editors not later than Monday afternoon preceding date of issue. All obituaries put in regular form. No charges for Miscellany.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.25.

C O N T E N T S

EDITORIAL:
 Can the People Be Trusted ..... 649
 To Act as Contributing Editor ..... 650

OFFICIAL:
 Concerning Church Government ..... 651
 To All Publicity Agents ..... 652

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 The Working Church, by S. S. Smith ..... 653
 Latter Day Saints and the Labor Question, by John W. Rushton ..... 657
 The Necessity for Individual and Collective Morality, by R. S. Salyards ..... 660
 Infallibility, by James F. Keir ..... 663

NEWS AND LETTERS ..... 664

MISCELLANEOUS ..... 670

RADIO ..... 671

Radio

K F I X

Broadcast from the studio of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Independence, Missouri. Wave length, two hundred forty meters.

SUNDAY, JULY 13, 1924

11.00 A. M., From the First Independence L. D. S. Church

Hymn.
 Prayer.
 Duet: "Come, Holy Spirit," Jerome.
 Miss Bernice Griffith and Mrs. Theodore Foley.
 Soprano Solo: "There's a beautiful land on high," Taylor.
 Miss Bernice Griffith.
 Sermon by Elder S. A. Burgess.
 Hymn.

SUNDAY, JULY 13, 1924

7.30 P. M., From the L. D. S. Campus (Open-air service.)

Sacred concert by the L. D. S. Band under direction of Mr. Roy Turner.

Hymn.
 Prayer.
 Sermon by President Frederick M. Smith.
 Hymn.

TUESDAY, JULY 15, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

(Program furnished by students of Graceland College, Lamoni, Iowa.)

Baritone Solo: Selected.
 By Mr. Albert Brackenbury.
 Violin Solo: "Thoughts of youth," Storms.
 By Miss Emma Snead.
 Reading: Selected.
 By Miss Helen Page.
 Contralto Solo:
 (a) "The unknown soldier," O'Hara.
 (b) "When love fills your heart with a song."
 By Miss Josephine Smith.
 Address: "The place of music in the home."
 By Arthur H. Mills.
 Baritone Solo: Selected.
 By Mr. Brackenbury.
 Musical Reading: "The nightingale and the rose."
 By Miss Pauline Roberts.
 Contralto Solo:
 (a) "The Kashmiri love song."
 (b) "Song of India," Rimsy-Korskooff.
 By Miss Smith.

THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1924

9.00 P. M., From the L. D. S. Radio Studio

Program furnished by Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Woodside, of North Kansas City, Missouri.

Address by Doctor Charles Keown, of the Staff of the Independence Sanitarium.

Here Are the Answers to Your Questions

1. GRACELAND COLLEGE is officially accredited and fully standardized. Work done here is accepted everywhere for entrance to universities without examination.
2. THE FACULTY. Everyone is a specialist in his chosen field. Trained in the best colleges and universities in America.
3. THE COURSES ARE BROAD AND THOROUGH, having special reference to the great field of endeavor as outlined by the social and economic problems of our church.
4. THE STUDENT BODY is largely composed of young people of the church who have a vision and force of character to realize that vision. The total enrollment for 1923-24 was 327. Twenty-four states and five countries were represented.
5. COST. The cost per year of attending Graceland depends largely on the individual student. The estimated expenses for one year are from $360 to $515.
6. SELF-HELP. Students who do not have the necessary money to pay their way may secure employment in the Industrial Department to help meet expenses.
7. ENVIRONMENT. The beautiful and quiet city of Lamoni lends an ideal academic atmosphere, and Graceland is the pride of the city.
8. SOCIAL ACTIVITIES. The social activities all center around the College. They are wholesome and give each student an opportunity to develop social leadership.
9. PHYSICAL EDUCATION attempts to give every student a reasonable amount of exercise, to keep the body in condition for maximum mental activity, and to develop recreational leaders.
10. ASSOCIATION with those who are actively interested in church work and will undoubtedly give their lives in service. With a faculty that is in sympathy with the student body and its visions.
11. WRITE AT ONCE for complete catalog giving full information regarding the following courses: Liberal Arts, Teacher Training, Religious Education, Pre-Law, Pre-Medical, Pre-Dental, Engineering, Home Economics, Agriculture, Academic, Commerce, Secretarial, Music, Public Speaking, and Physical Training.
12. FOR CATALOG, address

The President, Graceland College, Lamoni, Iowa

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2.25 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 71

Independence, Missouri, July 16, 1924

Number 29

EDITORIAL

A Positive Faith in the Latter-Day Work

The early Christians spoke with assurance. They had a positive faith. It was remarked that Jesus himself spake "not as the scribes, but as one having authority." The scribes speculated, and argued, and hedged, and qualified. Jesus spake the truth out from a profound belief.

To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth.—John 3:11.

The disciples spoke with a similar conviction:

For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance.—1 Thessalonians 1:5.

But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man. For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ.—Galatians 1:11, 12.

Even to kings, Paul said: "I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."—Acts 26:19.

In his day, centuries later, Joseph Smith bore a similar positive testimony:

It has often caused me serious reflection both then and since, how very strange it was that an obscure boy of a little over fourteen years of age, and one too who was doomed to the necessity of obtaining a scanty maintenance by his daily labor, should be thought a character of sufficient importance to attract the attention of the great ones of the most popular sects of the day, so as to create in them a spirit of the hottest persecution and reviling. But strange or not, so it was, and was often cause of great sorrow to myself. However, it was nevertheless a fact that I had had a vision. I have thought since that I felt much like Paul when he made his defense before King Agrippa and related the account of the vision he had when he "saw a light and heard a voice," but still there were but few who believed him; some said he was dishonest, others said he was mad; and he was ridiculed and reviled; but all this did not destroy the reality of his vision. He had seen a vision, he knew he had, and all the persecution under heaven could not make it otherwise; and though they should persecute him unto death, yet he knew and would know unto his latest breath, that he had both seen a light, and heard a voice speaking to him, and all the world could not make him think or believe otherwise. So it was with me, I had actually seen a light, and in the midst of that light I saw two personages, and they did in reality speak unto me, or one of them did; and though I was hated and persecuted for saying that I had seen a vision, yet it was true; and while they were persecuting me, reviling me, and speaking all manner of evil against me falsely for so saying, I was led to say in my heart, Why persecute for telling the truth? I have actually seen a vision, and "Who am I that I can withstand God," or why does the world think to make me deny what I have actually seen; for I had seen a vision; I knew it, and I knew that God knew it, and I could not deny it, neither dare I do it.—Church History, vol. 1, pp. 10, 11.

The early Saints sang:

We as the living witnesses declare the truth to you;
And bear our testimony that what we teach is true.

In his first speech to a General Conference, at Amboy, April 6, 1860, the late President Joseph Smith said:

It has been said that a Mormon elder, though but a stripling, possessed a power unequalled by almost any other preacher. This arises from a depth of feeling, and the earnestness with which they believe the doctrines they teach; and it is this feeling that I do not wish to trifle with.—Church History, vol. 3, p. 248.

That feeling of assurance to which Joseph paid homage is invaluable. It must be preserved. "If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?"—1 Corinthians 14:8. The trumpet must sound clear and positive in our preaching and testimony.

Those who spend their time cataloguing the things they do not believe, those whose chief affirmation is that they do not believe this or that part of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants or Book of Mormon or Bible, cannot help very greatly to build up the kingdom.

Those who are atheistic, affirming that they do not believe; or agnostic, saying, "It may be true, I do not know," are of little help and eventually may hinder; because a preacher gathers of his own class, and if presently we have a preponderance of members with no deep-seated, all-pervading sense of the divinity and power and truth of the latter-day work, we shall have a falling away.

Some hold that they can accept the revelations up to a certain time, possibly 1832, perhaps 1892, but not after that date. This is but sectarianism, closing the canon of scripture some years later than the Methodists do. I cannot think that God started this work and then went away and forgot about it. I do not read the name of Immanuel, "God with us," in the past tense. The declaration, "God was with us," is not sufficient.
www.LatterDayTruth.org

We need men with a positive conviction regarding the divine origin of this work. We need men with a positive conviction that the work is destined to go on to success. We need men who do not hedge and qualify and hesitate, speaking out of the depth of doubtful hearts, until they leave the people despondently feeling that all is lost and that it is useless to continue to work and pray and pay their tithes into the Lord's storehouse. The trail of the spiritual pessimist is marked by people who cease to pray and to attend church services and to pay tithes. A salesman of life insurance who causes the people to feel that his company is about to fail will sell little insurance. The minister who fears that the kingdom of heaven is going to hell will neither make converts nor strengthen the brethren. Those who give off an atmosphere of fear and doubt cannot strengthen the Saints. Jesus was courageous and full of faith—those who touched even the hem of his garments were helped. And he said, "The works that I do shall ye do also."

I am more sure as the years go by that God founded this work. With that primary assurance I am positive he is with it now and that it will succeed. Times of depression come to us all; but the light breaks through. At the late Young People's Convention I sat during the closing prayer service meditating upon conditions in the church, somewhat troubled in mind, questioning the Lord concerning his plans and will touching the church. There then came upon me that spirit of assurance and power and light which Joseph must have had in mind when he used to say, "I was in the Spirit." And I was given this message:

I am pleased, saith the Lord, when Zion's children seek my altar. And when her children's children seek me, I will by no means turn them away. And when Zion's children's children's children come unto me, I will receive them.

It was but yesterday that the Prophet Joseph sought me in the forest and I answered him, and upon the hill called Cumorah my angels met with him. I am the same yesterday, to-day, and to-morrow. Therefore that which I began yesterday I will carry forward to-day, and to-morrow I will finish it. I lay no foundation upon which I do not build. I begin no building which I do not complete. So when you, my young people, hear of rumors and are troubled because of divisions among your elders, do not allow your faith in me to be shaken, for I will finish my work.

The promise was followed by an admonition to the young people to take upon them the Spirit of Christ and become like him, that the church of the future may be spared the distress and divisions that have troubled the church in the past.

It is said that man's extremity is God's opportunity. After we have pooled all our combined wisdom and strength, we come woefully short of being adequate to the great work required of us, and we shall have to wait upon the Lord to carry his work forward and lead us onward as he led our fathers. Our part is important; his is infinitely more important. Without him we can do nothing; with him we shall triumph.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

Freedom of the Press

Shortly after the Board of Publication made a change in the editorial personnel of our church publications and appointed a managing and contributing editors, President Frederick M. Smith sent a letter to some, if not all, of the members of the new editorial staff. The text of letters I have seen are identical and are as follows:

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, June 16, 1924.

ELDER T. W. WILLIAMS,
317 West Avenue 38,
Los Angeles, California.

Dear Brother: You doubtless have been notified by the Board of Publication of your selection to act in an editorial capacity. You may not be fully aware of the genesis of this move. The Board of Publication has in the opinion of the Presidency usurped powers which do not belong to it and has made changes in an order which has existed since 1865 at least to date. It has been generally recognized that the editorial control of the HERALD and church literature should be directly under the Presidency. The move of the Board of Publication has overturned this. We desire therefore for you to know that the action of the Board of Publication does not have the approval of the Presidency and was done over our protest. We feel you should know our attitude before you finally determine to accept the position offered to you by the Board of Publication. We feel that you should know the disadvantage you will be under by undertaking the work with the disapproval of the Presidency.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) FREDERICK M. SMITH.

Different members of the editorial family have already expressed themselves on this matter. Three members of the Ensign staff accept appointment yet disavow indorsement of the board action. Two of the HERALD staff express indecision, reluctance, but final acceptance. These last two quote General Conference Resolution 298 and demur to the action of the board in opening the columns of the HERALD for the discussion of church issues.

The points raised are:

- (a) The right of the Board of Publication to make certain changes in the editorial staff.
- (b) Functions and rights of the Presidency in relation to the church press.
- (c) The propriety of individuals accepting editorial appointment without presidential approval.
- (d) Legality of opening the pages of SAINTS' HERALD to general discussion of church problems.

1. Has the Board of Publication the right to appoint and release members of the editorial staff of the HERALD?

The board from a very early period has exercised this right.

The General Conference of 1870 on April 11 decided "that said board have the management of the publication interests of the church."—General Conference Resolution 113.

The late President Joseph Smith gave testimony under oath in the Temple Lot Suit as follows:

It [HERALD] is now published under the charge and control of a Board of Publication, appointed by the church at each annual meeting. . . . Only the Board of Publication is selected by the conference, and they appoint all the other employees. The paper has two editors appointed by the Board of Publication.—Abstract of Evidence, p. 58.

Frederick M. Smith has held his position as editor in chief by the appointment of the board. If the board had the right to appoint him as editor, it had the right to release him. If, as President Smith's letter suggests, the board had the right to appoint him as editor in chief of the HERALD and no other, and at the same time had no right to release him, then it would appear that the board has no right whatever. What, then, becomes of General Conference action and the testimony of Joseph Smith?

2. Do the functions and rights of the Presidency comprehend editorial management of the SAINTS' HERALD?

President F. M. Smith states, "It has been generally recognized that the editorial control of the HERALD and church literature should be directly under the Presidency."

The late Joseph Smith under oath in the Temple Lot suit testified: "At present I am Associate Editor of the HERALD, but it is not inherent to the office of President of the Church."—Abstract of Evidence, p. 72.

The General Conference legislating relative to the rights of the Presidency to editorial management declared: "That the editorial or other management of the HERALD is not comprehended in their official calling, but is an added burden imposed without command of the Spirit, or being necessary under the law."

3. Should appointees of the board refuse to accept because of the disapproval of the Presidency?

The closing paragraph of President Smith's communication is significant. One is loath to believe that this suggests "effective discipline" in case those addressed run counter with the expressed wish of the Presidency. We will not affirm that this was written with the intent to whip into line those who would fear to incur the disfavor of the Presidency, however much the language may be so interpreted.

A man should be governed by his own wisdom and judgment and the light of inspiration which comes to him in accepting or rejecting such appointment. To act otherwise would make him at most but a mere echo of another. Let others answer as they may, I propose to exercise my inherent rights as guaranteed to me by the constitution of all free governments, as well as the organic law of the church.

There should not be any disadvantage attaching when one honestly accepts such appointment, even though the President of the church disapproves. This reference to "disadvantage" is, however, ominously suggestive of "effective discipline."

In this connection let me suggest that the world has not grown under a regime where a man has no right to think or act except as the presiding officer of the institution may indicate. Growth is by another course. This church must keep pace with the experiences of the race along the lines of democracy and progress. It is indeed an alarming and unfortunate situation when officials of the church may assert that we have too much democracy and make odious references to some of the functions of our National Government. The history and teaching of the church have always been in keeping with the growth and development of democratic institutions throughout the world. We cannot afford to turn back the dial and uphold a medieval and obsolete church government which is out of step with God and the experiences of humanity.

4. Is the present editorial policy of the HERALD in keeping with General Conference action?

The policy of the board comprehends:

First, insure an open church press.

Second, accord space in HERALD columns to all general officials on equal and impartial terms.

Third, allow free and frank discussion of any church problem, only attempting to confine arguments to the affirmative and not permitting destructive or altogether negative criticism.

General Conference Resolution 298 says:

Where radical differences of opinion occur between leading representatives of the body, the discussion of them should take place in quorum capacity and not through the columns of the HERALD.

A well-known rule of law is that a man must come into court with clean hands. It is difficult indeed to fasten an error upon another when the accuser himself is guilty of the same act. It is in evidence that although radical differences have existed during the past few years, yet under the former editorial management of the HERALD discussions of mooted problems have been carried on through the HERALD, and with but slight exception only one side of the question has been heard. In view of what has appeared in the HERALD during the past editorial management, it is scarcely in good form for those concerned to criticize the present action of the board. Whatever else may be said, the board proposes to be fair and to give both sides an affirmative hearing.

The evident intent of the General Conference resolution was to prevent cross-firing, negative arguments, and the carrying on of a pro and con discussion of affirmation and rebuttal. In this, the action of the board is in full keeping with the conference resolution, for the board proposes to "confine arguments to the affirmative" and will not permit "destructive or altogether negative criticism."

To try to publish an official organ of the church and debar all discussion of questions on which there is difference of opinion would require the discontinuance of linotype and press and an enforced vacation for the editorial staff and all employees save those having charge of the stock, binding, and mailing departments.

The rights of the President of the church have not been invaded or abridged by the action of the board. The pages of the HERALD are as accessible to him as to all others. The President will not be permitted to exercise censorship. The HERALD will not be the personal organ of President Smith or anyone else. It will be what it was always intended to be, the official organ of the entire church, the Presidency included.

It is beside the fact to urge that the editorial columns of the HERALD do not represent the Presidency. One member of the Presidency has been appointed contributing editor and as such can represent the Presidency editorially. The paper is always available to the Presidency. The present official character of the paper is in keeping with the spirit and purpose of the church.

I shall accept the position of contributing editor of the HERALD, but not with any spirit of spleen or antagonism. In accepting this position, I do not think I am under the necessity of being discourteous to anyone. I will use my pen in defense of the ideals of the church and in an attempt to clarify the vision and unite the membership. Free speech and an untrammelled press are indispensable to the attainment and maintenance of the truth and common understanding among the people. With good will to all and malice towards none, T. W. WILLIAMS.

DIVIDENDS

Those who receive dividends from our large industrial organizations have made an investment.

The returns will be in exact ratio to the amount invested.

There is a feeling of keen satisfaction accompanying the receipt of a dividend.

No reasonable man can expect to enjoy such benefits and privileges who has made no investment. The church is a great organization offering big returns in spiritual uplift. Those who desire to share in its dividends must be willing to make an investment of time, talent, and money:

"All should consecrate of their talents, abilities, and substance for the prosecution of the great work intrusted to us."—Doctrine and Covenants 132:3.

Your dividends will be in proportion to your investment.

Fraternally,

BENJAMIN R. MCGUIRE, Presiding Bishop.
INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, Box 256.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Signed articles and letters do not necessarily receive the indorsement of the editors. Writers are responsible for their own views.

The Present Status

BY A. H. CHRISTENSEN

We have a prophet, seer, and revelator for a leader, which is quite extraordinary viewed from a world's viewpoint but not at all unusual as seen from a biblical standpoint. In this we are unlike most other organizations, religious or political. But this is in our favor, for God never was a copyist, nor did his people ever fear being out of style. The very names by which this leader is known declare that there is still another greater than he, whose servant he is, and whose will he desires to communicate to man. That greater one is "the Lord our lawgiver."

It will be well for all Latter Day Saints to get the process well fixed in mind, for I am of the opinion that much of our trouble comes from the idea that we are a lawmaking body, making principal laws in our conventions. We have been raised in a most democratic country, for which we feel justly appreciative; but when the idea of a government "of the people, for the people, and by the people" is carried over into the government of God, the idea is sadly out of place and cannot be assimilated by it.

Definition: theocracy—a form of government in which the Almighty is regarded as the sole sovereign, and the laws of the realm are divine commands, rather than human ordinances.—Unequaled Dictionary.

We too often try to reconcile God to man, as the old catechism puts it, while we ought to reconcile man to God, as the Inspired Translation of the Bible has it. We should remember which way the current runs; whether it be a law that God desires to commit to man, or a vision of great ideals, or spiritual oversight and direction, or the detection of heresies that threaten the life of the body. In every case the leadership is with God and comes down to man by a fixed system, with which every Latter Day Saint versed in doctrine is familiar.

The definition in Smith's Bible Dictionary for prophet and seer is one who sees. And in the extension of the definition it is made clear that seeing in the sense used is inspirational, spiritual.

A king of the Book of Mormon record said that a seer is greater than a prophet. Having just been converted and not much learned in the things of God, he may have been right or wrong. But the high priest, Ammon, being more learned in the things of God, defined some of the gifts of a seer as follows:

And by them shall all things be revealed, or rather, shall secret things be made manifest, and hidden things shall come to light, and things which are not known shall be made known by them; and also, things shall be made known by them which otherwise could not be known.—Mosiah 5: 79, 80.

Now there are two ways that heresy can gain headway among the people of God, and disrupt them, and lead them into apostasy from the original gospel, viz, by written and by oral communication.

We read all through the Book of Mormon that when priestcraft began to get an airing among the people, they who were advancing it were brought before the one who was occupying the position of prophet, seer, and revelator to the church at the time, and the discernment of that God-appointed man quickly discovered the discrepancies present, and the church was saved. A number of such censorships of oral communication are on record in the Book of Mormon. And for the censorship of the written works of the people of God of those times, one may begin with the first page and end with the last of that book, and find that invariably the things that were to go out to the people were in the hands of the prophet, seer, and revelator of the church for censorship and publication. And we need not stop there, but continue on down through the Doctrine and Covenants. Were not the writings contained therein given by his mouth or sanctioned with his supervision? They were.

And for such reasons as these God gave us such an office, carrying with it this supersensitive power of discernment, and I think this sense exercised in relation to the things going on within the church and over the things that should go out to the church, both orally and written, almost is the greatest gift of a seer. If we are to sever this divine leadership, then we may as well away with the office and walk in the light of the sparks that we may kindle.

At the present time we have a Board of Publication, of which the Bishop of the church is the chairman. This board has appointed editors for each of the papers of the church. The editor of the HERALD will censor this article, and pass it out to the church to make or unmake faith in the faith of our fathers, or will reject it altogether, because that is the function given him, and no doubt he is answerable to and removable by the powers that appointed him.

Now if the Prophet, Seer, and Revelator of the church desired to have an article printed in the paper, the editor could censor it as the other one.

So we have the astounding condition at the present time of the God-appointed censor likely to be censored by the editors of the papers, and I think I am not mistaken in these deductions. This is a very unwise and unsafe condition and should be remedied at once. Granting that the Board of Publication was appointed by the General Conference and given the power to appoint editors, it seems that by all means they should have appointed the logical and customary editor for the church papers, of whom we have been writing above, and the one that has been recognized throughout the entire history of the church up to the present time.

At least it seems that the present status of affairs has given birth to a resolution to be presented at the next General Conference that will stipulate that the opinion of the church favors the interpretation that in the nature of things the President of the church, the Prophet, Seer, and Revelator, should be the editor in chief of all the church publications.

The Lord's Way

BY EDWARD RANNIE

From what has been published in the HERALD for several weeks in the past, it seems that one of the things that is causing division in the church is the marked difference of opinion between the President of the church and the Presiding Bishop of the church. If their difference of opinion in regard to the law is the cause of so much commotion in the church and consequent falling off of the tithes, resulting in taking so many missionaries out of the field, then it becomes a very serious matter, and surely our heavenly Father must have some plan that is better than for the brethren to spend their time in contention.

In Doctrine and Covenants 126:10 the Lord tells us to take the advice of the bishopric in regard to the law: "unless the liberties of the people of the church should be in jeopardy, the application of the law as stated by the bishopric should be acceded to." And "in case there should be a flagrant disregard of the rights of the people, the quorums of the church should be appealed to, and their action and determination should govern." The President asked the Lord what quorums he meant, and he answered: "The three quorums the decisions of which are provided for in the law—the presidency, the twelve, and seventy."

If the Bishop's interpretation of the law and his method of carrying it out is the cause of so much strife and contention in the church, then surely the "liberties" of the people are in "jeopardy," and action should be had according to the law to adjust the difficulties. The Lord says those three quorums as provided for in the law is the place for the matter to go, and with such plain provisions given to us, why keep up the turmoil through the HERALD and in the General Conference? Peace and happiness and prosperity come to the Lord's people because of obedience and not because of disobedience.

In Doctrine and Covenants 104:11 the Lord is talking about certain quorums, the presidency, twelve, and seventy, and in the latter part of the paragraph uses the following language:

And in case that any decision of these quorums is made in unrighteousness, it may be brought before a general assembly of the several quorums which constitute the spiritual authorities of the church, otherwise there can be no appeal from their decision.

In General Conference Resolution number 298 occurs this language in paragraph three:

That where radical differences of opinion occur between leading representatives of the body, the discussion of them should take place in quorum capacity, and not through the columns of the HERALD.

The whole resolution is good reading; it was made at a time when serious and perhaps contentious, discussion was going on in the church through the HERALD by some of its representative men. In General Conference Resolution number 222, when serious matters were before the church, reference is made to "vexed questions" being settled by "competent quorums."

A slogan that we have been sounding in the ears of the people since the beginning of the latter-day work has been: "To the law and the testimony"; and so in our own difficulties that will come as long as we exist as a church we should appeal to the law and stand by it, and we should also be true to our own agreements that we make in the General Conference. Why do we not call the quorums together as provided for in the law? If we are not to discuss these mooted questions in the HERALD or in the branches and mission field, and the quorums are not called together, how can we ever get them adjudicated? Paul said to the Corinthian saints: "In malice be ye children, but in understanding be men." Is that not good advice for us to-day?

Give God First Place

Have you the regular habit of meeting him each morning in real communion, as he speaks to you through his word and you speak to him in prayer? If not, this alone is a sufficient cause of all your failure. Henceforth, this one thing I do: I will give to God the first place in each day and in all my life. I will begin each day in communion with him, and then by that constant faith-touch which reckons upon his mighty, restful presence, even when I am occupied with my daily task, I will trust him to keep what I have committed unto him, for "whosoever abideth in him sinneth not."—G. Sherwood Eddy.

Difference of Opinion

BY JAMES E. YATES

He who loves the truth more than he loves a theory merely because it may be his own, will not fear to hear or to read differences of opinion.

If the fair questioning of a theory or policy endangers its chances for acceptance, or its permanency when accepted, that is a dangerous theory or policy for any to cling to and should be challenged the more.

The Lord's instruction to his people to "be one" undoubtedly enjoins a oneness of purpose and of work toward a common end but can never be taken to be a demand for the surrender of one's mind to any proposition which, to its best view, is either questionable or adverse to right.

The truth need not fear difference of opinion when such opinion is fairly and openly stated. If the church, or brethren of the church, fear it, that fear is an evidence of weakness or of an error in structure or in theory that cannot stand well unless bolstered up by pretense.

Pretended harmony held upon an exterior front is much more poisonous in its nature than all effects of conflicting opinions honestly and fairly stated. Fairly stated differences of opinion may ruff some of our skins, and this, too, will pass and will heal: but the smothered differences canker.

None of us need feel regrets if there can be a fair presentation in the HERALD of our divergent views. The HERALD is a splendid medium for thought exchange by the people of this church, if such thought exchange is to be had.

General Conference has made a wise provision that articles to be published in the HERALD must not impugn motives, nor question the integrity of those holding different opinions, and shall make no attack upon the supposed views or character of the dead. That enactment is found in Conference Resolution 298, a document nearly forty years of age, and that is right. That same conference enactment includes this statement:

The enforcement of ironclad rules and arbitrary decisions by persons who were not governed in their work by broad and liberal principles of toleration, as is shown in the history of societies in the past, has had such a tendency to subvert the liberties and retard the progress of the race as to make the enactment of any set of rules to be followed under all circumstances of doubtful propriety and final good.

This clearly qualifies the conference order then made to restrict matters of controversy from the HERALD. It was plainly allowed there, that circumstances might arise which would make the rule, then being adopted, one of doubtful propriety for final good.

Surely the circumstances surrounding present great issues make these matters proper questions, under the rule, for kindly consideration in the HERALD. Concerning the large issues of the hour that are presented to the church for consideration, the President has well said that the church must decide the issue. In order to do so fairly, the merits of the matter for and against must be noted.

If our differences of opinion were between some two, or few, men of the church, perhaps the propriety of taking the matter up through the HERALD might be questioned. But such is not the case. That well-defined divergent views upon very important matters had spread throughout the church long before the recent action for a larger scope to the HERALD treatment of our problems, is too evident to be denied.

It is to be hoped that those who speak and write their diversity of opinions in all these matters may do so with a broad toleration and fellow feeling for those with whose views they are not in agreement.

And if the truth is to shine out, as it always will when fairly set in contrast with error, our HERALD must be kept open to the representatives and members of the church who, in expressing their opinions upon matters properly before us, will do so kindly and with due consideration for all. Let the HERALD speak.

Human Progress

Radio talk by A. B. Phillips, delivered at Station KFI X, Independence, Missouri, May 27, 1924.

The most persistent efforts are now being made to trace the history of man to the primal source of life. Scientific research is marshaling the known facts of past experience and observation in the hope that life may stand revealed to us with clearer meaning, and that from a more complete understanding there may be developed a more abundant life for all the human race.

But though we may trace the footsteps of man along the backward track to the very morning of authentic history, every step of the way is impressed with the fact that he is dependent upon his fellows. Dependence and interdependence are indelibly written on every page of life's experience. Not an instance has ever been recorded of an exception to this universal truth. It is only when the pulse of intelligence and animation ceases to flow, and death writes its release from this undeviating law, that man need no longer depend upon his associates. And this release no sane man ever seeks, for interdependence is his heritage as one of the laws of life.

This dependence so permeates all the activities of the individual that to unravel the threads of this experience is to unweave the warp and woof of life itself. Its utter impossibility must be apparent to everyone who will even briefly reflect upon it. It is not only of universal application, but it is of fundamental importance that we understand its tremendous significance in rational experience.

The experiences of life, and even common observation, teach us the importance of cooperating in our activities and purposes. In animal life the brain, heart, lungs, and other functioning members of the body are coordinated in daily practice. Even the trees and plants have demonstrated this essential principle, having their roots, hearts, leaves, and other parts performing separate but cooperative work, as is interestingly portrayed in works on physiological and structural botany. Each function is necessary to that of the other, and the results are reciprocal. Though the task of each part is different, a common purpose is discernible.

Remarkable Ancient Civilizations

From the experiences of many ages man has learned to some extent the value of cooperation in the great enterprises of life. But he is still learning from the past, and it is reasonable to assume that he will continue to do so. Herein lies hope of final achievement, of wonderful things yet to be reached, of advancement beyond the present power to obtain. In fact, the very accomplishments of former time inspire him to reach the greater heights. Past mistakes have become stepping-stones of great worth to him, for by them he learns how to avoid failure, and to select means that aid rather than hinder him in his march towards the goal of success.

There is reason to believe that with the examples of past attainments and failures we can move forward to a more desirable place in the world than would have been possible without their benefits. The progress that has marked the ages bids us hope for this golden future. It has characterized the relationships of men and of nations from time immemorial, and should continue to do so if reasonable wisdom is exercised in benefiting from the records of those who have marched on before us.

Progress in material things has not been equally notable in every department of human knowledge. Some developments of recent time started from small beginnings. Others have but slowly advanced from the places already reached ages ago. The cave-men of France thousands of years ago produced drawings and sculpture that in some respects can hardly be excelled to-day. They engraved the mammoth on ivory in skillful outlines and figures that are even now considered remarkable. This artistic capacity among peoples supposed to represent an inferior civilization is one of the marvels that we of to-day have not fully explained.

The knowledge of prehistoric civilizations was doubtless in some ways equal if not superior to that of the present time. The marvels of ancient American civilizations have been unfolding to our astonished view from year to year. In some respects the ancient nations of Mexico and Peru were little inferior to those of the twentieth century, considering the great things they accomplished with reference to available means at hand. We also must still look back upon the marvelous monuments of ancient Egypt, Babylonia, and Greece as among the wonders of the world. In Egypt the great pyramids, the sphinx, the temples at Karnak and elsewhere, and other imposing monuments stand grandly in their hoary age in spite of the forces of the world's decay. The marvelous Greek temples, with their magnificent architecture, still challenge the skill of man.

It has been upon the achievements of these ancient peoples that other civilizations have succeeded in attaining such glorious heights. The modern structures of such regal magnificence have borrowed from the ideals represented in these old works. So also has it been in the development of various sciences. From records of the mysterious knowledge of ancient astronomers of Greece, Egypt, and Babylonia have been developed the results that are now with us. The foundation principles of biology are traced to ancient Greek scholars. So also philosophy and mechanics have substantial foundations in the learning of these people of long ago.

We Are Building Upon Past Experiences

By experimental knowledge comes the means of advancement. The growth of language, spoken and written, has been coextensive with progress, so far as externals are concerned; and this external expression is evidence of the forces producing it. In utilizing the lessons of life, man has passed through various stages of experimental activities. Family needs and purposes in time developed the clan, the tribe, the state, the nation, the kingdom, the empire, the confederation, the democracy, and the republic in governmental affairs. In the realms of religious, social, and industrial activities many parallels to civic history are approximated. The human race is essentially a race of builders. Progress has come through experimental energy and daring, supported by thorough analysis of experience and observation, and the application of these to present tasks.

Even conflicts have at times performed their part, resulting in assimilation, cooperation, or union that produced a more vigorous and better-equipped group. This was an influence in the production of the nations of the past. We must continue to enlarge the sphere of our activities. The realization of common ideals is impossible without it. Common interests increase sympathetic relationships, which favor cooperative functions and make progress more fully possible of accomplishment.

The commonwealth of Israel, the socialized Babylonian empire, the magnificent but mysterious dynasties of Egypt, the democracy of Athens, the Roman republic, and other great ancient movements and states show many features that have characterized later governments. It is our privilege to utilize the riches of history in the building of our own time.

Forces That Produce Progress

In every age religion has been fundamental to the developments that have taken place. It has been interwoven so completely with political, social, and even industrial life that no evaluation of any nation is possible in which religion is not taken into account. Religious forces must persistently uphold moral ideals in the nation, for should they abandon the task progress would soon be ended in disintegration. The attempt of one great government to conduct its affairs on the assumption that Christian morals can have no place in political life, has resulted in a manner that should be a warning to all.

Lessons may thus be learned by means of many other activities which engaged the past nations of the world. We may discern the forces that motivated them to a considerable degree. Consonant with this principle we may discern in the production of books and records of a people something of the educational and cultural attainments reached. In their machinery is indicated the economic motive, and measurably the degree of its realization. The temples and other religious objects largely symbolize the ideals and moral status of the people who used them, while the character of their other structures and remains shows much of the social organization through which they were produced and established. The political life of a people is to a large extent revealed in all these mediums of expression, but ability to evaluate them would depend upon the advancement reached by those attempting it.

The forces that can be utilized, and those which should be subordinated, require consideration in order that we may purposefully aim at specific progress. Some of these forces are of such common manifestation, that to name them is to suggest their importance. The natural sciences treat of various forces that exert great influence upon human destiny, but physical forces have been brought more

NEWS AND LETTERS

Lorain a Mass of Ruins

CLEVELAND, OHIO, July 2.—The populous and thriving city of Lorain is destroyed. At twenty-seven minutes past five, Saturday afternoon, June 28, a terrific tornado flung the peaceful lakeside city into a heap of ruins. Such a calamity has never before been experienced in the State of Ohio.

At the time of the calamity I was at the home of Elder E. G. Hammond, of Akron, Ohio. Akron, though some distance from Lorain, experienced a heavy storm, which accounted for the life of one man and property damage to the extent of a million dollars.

Sunday, reports of the doomed city of Lorain began to filter through, and I was eager to learn whether our people were suffering. Very little was learned in detail on Sunday.

Monday morning, in company with T. G. Neville, district president, I left Akron for Cleveland, where I soon learned the fate of our people. A picture of Sister Don Maze and her two children, which occupied the front page of a leading paper, revealed the condition of some of the Saints, and I was made eager to get to their relief. Military supervision had been proclaimed, and strict measures had been taken to keep nonresidents from the disabled city; even relatives were not permitted entrance. I went to the police office but received little satisfaction. It seemed as though I would not reach the city.

On Tuesday morning I boarded a coach for Lorain. Pass-and more into harmonious relation with the psychical powers which man possesses. It is these psychical powers that insure aim, scope, and ultimate accomplishment.

---

Most of the achievements of the past have been accomplished gradually, a climbing up. It is our privilege to utilize our environment and apply the laws of nature as means of still greater results. It is therefore essential that sound physical bodies, proper morals, and a right spirit that wills to move forward shall be maintained. From this will follow the desired relationships of man spiritually, socially, intellectually, and industrially. Thus by knowledge correlated and coordinated advanced culture and ideals will be attained.

Cooperation, united with proper leadership, has produced the great accomplishments of history towards the advancement of the human race. So also has equality of opportunity, controlled by rules of social equity and consideration, been the means of reaching the highest ideals known to man. In this respect Jesus of Nazareth has left us an example and a heritage that grows richer with the passing centuries, as our growing concepts enable us more fully to grasp its significance. With the priceless heritage of the past upon which to build, the future is before us with greater potentialities than the world has ever before known. We need but to step forward toward this great goal that is before us.

ing through the villages that intervened between Cleveland and Lorain, one sees evidences of the power of the storm. Trees of all sizes were uprooted, orchards with their maturing fruits were leveled to the ground, farms and gardens were completely destroyed of vegetation, houses were treated like frail toys in the hands of a destructive child, and churches and public buildings suffered similar fate. Papers have been accused of exaggeration, but in respect to this calamity "the half has never been told."

Lorain has the appearance of a city that has been under bombardment for days. Everywhere are evidences of war: Soldiers marched with fixed bayonets around the ruins; soldiers stood guard around a barbed-wire inclosure which held looters and suspicious people; soldiers stood guard on each corner, while in the center of the street where once stood the "traffic cop," a man in khaki, with gun in hand, directs the traffic. The once beautiful parks are turned into encampments, and military tents take the place of fountains, trees, and shrubs. The Red Cross has been organized, and many people hasten to and fro on errands of mercy with the distinction of humanity on their arms. The Salvation Army has its corps of working people doing much to alleviate the suffering. These organizations deserve much credit for the noble work they are doing. Theirs is an active religion.

As soon as I alighted from the coach I was detained until I satisfied the soldier what my mission was. I was then directed to the headquarters, where hundreds of people waited for passes—residents must receive passes to walk the streets and to remove their belongings. One cannot do what he would like with his own in Lorain.

Receiving permission to travel through Lorain I soon made for the homes of the Saints. Calling at the home of Brother and Sister Minkler I found them all right and their home little damaged, though Clifford will not be able to find his front steps again. Being more fortunate than lots of others, they were able to minister to their wants. From this place I was taken by a gentleman neighbor through the streets of wreckage. In some places houses had encroached upon the pavements, leaving only sufficient room for the passage of an automobile. Household goods, trees, pieces of automobiles, and houses littered the streets.

The next place of call was the home of Brother Lathwell. I had visited this place a number of times and thought I would have no trouble to find it, but the locality had so changed that I was lost. I finally located (not the house, as that had gone) Brother Lathwell standing on the street looking at a mass of ruins that had once been a house that sheltered himself, wife, and eight children. His loss is a hundred per cent according to estimation. At the time of the disaster Sister Rhodes, of Flint, Michigan, was visiting her daughter, Sister Lathwell, and received a crushing that broke three ribs. She is fast recovering. Bessie Lathwell sustained a fractured limb and is now in a hospital in Cleveland. Another child received a large gash in the right limb, and the mother received slight abrasions. The escape from this building of the ten people is nothing short of a miracle.

Brother and Sister Maze are at present in the Saint Joseph Hospital, suffering from injuries received on head and body. Saturday afternoon Brother Walk drove Brother and Sister Maze and two children, and Sister Eunice Beam, of Punxsutawney, mother of Sister Maze, around the city sight-seeing, and just prior to the storm stopped at the beach. They had not been there long when a funnel-shaped cloud was observed coming towards them. Together with others they rushed to the bathhouse for shelter. As this building was in the wake of the tornado and one of the first to be hit, it was completely demolished. As a result a number were killed, including Sister Beam.

After visiting all the Saints I returned to Cleveland where I am at this time writing.

As I passed through the ruins I thought of the great storms that visited this continent in the days of the Nephites, and I wondered whether that prophecy in the Doctrine and Covenants with respect to destructions by storm and tempest was beginning to have its fulfillment. Doctor Frank Crane was right when he said there was little safety anywhere. Conditions point the near approach of the coming of our Lord, and I am led to exclaim, How long will we as a church continue to ignore this fact? What are we doing to prove that we know it.

While the world is crying out for the message of peace and good will, his servants are warring and have ill will towards each other; while the people are seeking for the meat of the word we are growling over dry bones of contention.

Like the storms that have uprooted trees, so shall the storm that is brewing in another place uproot great and small.

WILLIAM PATTERSON.

Accomplishments and Meetings at Brentwood

BRENTWOOD, MISSOURI, June 27.—Brentwood Branch has launched a campaign for a twofold purpose. The launching came on Sunday, June 15, with the taking over of branch affairs by the incoming presidency and other staff officers who had been chosen at the recent election. The retiring president in a lengthy report stated some of the things accomplished during the term of office just finished. Our "home" is paid for, the new electric service has been completed, and now the church has been completely decorated in the interior, through the kindness of Brother Ivor Davies who not only obtained very liberal discount on the materials used but donated his labor to complete the job.

Our next problem, that of the installation of a heating plant, has been placed in competent hands, and we expect to have real comfort this coming winter.

One feature of the reporting was a good report from every active member of the priesthood, a complete report from all the departments, including the Department of Women and the Orioles, who have helped so much with the details of bringing about the purposes of the church in the recent past.

The efforts of our members in the offering drive inaugurated by the Presiding Bishopric, is worthy of mention, though we do not do it boastfully. For the month of May our solicitor turned in $121, while for the month of June he turned in $150, and there are some who will come in with their final consecrations for the 23d, but which will be included in the July offering. We carry an overhead of about $50 a month besides this, so we can stretch hands and shake with Santa Ana, California, and tell them we are with them.

Brother J. W. Paxton launched a series of meetings on the campus of the church Sunday evening, June 22, to continue three weeks. We just closed a series of five weeks in South Webster before coming to Brentwood. We have plans in contemplation to keep Brother Paxton busy most of the summer in local territory, moving from place to place with the tent.

On June 15 we had the pleasure of adding to our membership candidate number ninety-nine, and indications now are that our branch membership will soon be numbered with three figures. However, it is not the purpose to let all our efforts be to the gathering of new souls into the kingdom, but also to strengthen those already with us, so that as a unit and as groups we can all be worshipping consistently and with the purpose of the accomplishment of Zion's cause.

Religious Services at Hibbard, Indiana

HIBBARD, INDIANA, June 22.—Elder S. W. L. Scott, of Coldwater, Michigan, came to our little village and began a series of meetings which continued over the following Sunday. Services were held each evening during the week with good attendance and splendid interest.

It is needless to comment on Brother Scott's ability in presenting the gospel so that all can have a spiritual feast if they so desire, as he is well known, having been in the service so long.

On Saturday evening at twilight two were baptized in Yellow River. Sunday, June 29, was a busy day with Sunday school at half past nine in charge of Superintendent Lawrence Bennett; preaching at eleven o'clock by Brother Scott, followed by confirmation and the blessing of a babe in its mother's arms. At the noon hour a table thirty-six or forty feet long was spread with all the good things to eat that one could wish. The services and dinner were enjoyed by people from South Bend, Mishawaka, Elkhart, La Porte, Gary, Knox, Burr Oak, and Culver. At half past two we enjoyed another sermon from Brother Scott, and he spoke again at half past seven, which concluded the services.

It surely does one's soul good to meet with people of like faith on such occasions, and it gives us a faint glimpse of what Zion will be to us if we are worthy of being there.

Ever praying for the advancement of the great latter-day work.

CARRIE M. REED.

Accessions Reported at Duluth

DULUTH, MINNESOTA, July 1.—Sacramental service was held June 1, with many members present to partake of the emblems and to renew their covenant with the heavenly Father, that they might be strengthened to battle against those things which are contrary to the laws of God.

Brother George W. Day, district president, was with us on the 8th and broke the bread of life to God's children in this section of God's moral vineyard. His sermons were inspiring to the Saints. He left for his home with a promise that he would return the 22d of the month.

On June 22 Brother Day baptized four, two mothers and a child of each. May they realize the sacredness of the covenant they have made with their heavenly Father and ever strive to give to him their reasonable service.

Brother W. C. Stanty, publicity agent, thanks the Saints for the ready response to his request for literature. He also wishes to say that he can use more if the Saints have any. This is a new field, and he can distribute all he receives.

Our regular meeting place is 320-322 North Central Avenue, over the Boston Store, and we would extend an invitation to all Saints or men of the ministry to drop in when near.

Healthy Activities at Taylorville

TAYLORVILLE, ILLINOIS, June 25.—The work is moving onward in this part of the Lord's vineyard. The blessings of the gospel are still being enjoyed.

On Easter Sunday the Sunday school gave an interesting program which demonstrated that we have some future leaders for the church.

The Sunday school is fortunate in having three junior choirs under the direction of Sister J. A. Williams. In the evening the senior choir presented the cantata, "Bartimæus," which was greatly appreciated by the congregation.

We were favored with a two weeks' visit from our new missionary, Brother Everett Ulrich, of Bradner, Ohio. These meetings were followed by a jubilee, the Saints coming from all parts of the district.

The Department of Women has been giving valuable aid to the church. Many of the improvements have been the result of their efforts. The leader, Sister J. A. Williams, reports active service from all officers, especially the friendly visitor, Sister John Linderman, and the cradle roll worker, Sister Fred Etlinger, who is teacher of the beginners' class at Sunday school. We feel very fortunate in possessing such an able and successful teacher for this class, as we realize the responsibility of a teacher in giving the first instructions of this great work to direct the tiny buds of promise into the fold and kingdom of God.

We endeavored to celebrate Mothers' Day in a fitting manner, the children again supplying the necessary program. We are surely proud of our youthful talent. Our Children's Day program was also thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The next important event will be our conference, which will be held August 30 and 31. The Saints were somewhat disappointed that Apostle Garver was unable to be with us, as we had looked forward to his coming, but we hope to have him with us in the near future. Patriarch John F. Martin has promised to be with us sometime in October.

Ever praying for the advancement of this wonderful cause.

New Helper Added to the Church

DAVIDSON, OKLAHOMA, June 25.—The young people's class had a weiner roast a few nights ago, and a good time was enjoyed. The Temple Builders have taken up the Book of Mormon for their class work. The Department of Recreation and Expression is having some fine programs. The Department of Women served ice cream on the church lawn, and everybody had a good time.

We had a fine prayer meeting the first Sunday and were made to feel that God was still mindful of us.

Pauline Walker was baptized Sunday, June 22. She is a good Sunday school worker and will be much help to the church.

The Saints are looking forward for the meetings that are to begin July 10. Elder Tordoff will be the speaker. Your prayers are asked for the success of these meetings, as there are many here who need to know the gospel.

A Successful Two-Week Meeting

ALLIANCE, OHIO, July 1.—Elder William Patterson, missionary, concluded a two-week series of meetings in this place June 22. The Saints were fortunate in securing a place for these meetings on the public square, just two doors off Main Street, in the heart of the city. Brother Patterson met with the committee at the City Savings Bank, who had this room for rent, and after explaining to them who we were the room was given to us free of charge. An attractive sign sixteen by three feet was put up across the front where it could be read day or night. A tract case also was placed out in front. About eight hundred handbills and one thousand tracts were distributed. The Saints were built up and encouraged, and we feel that new life was put into our members as well as new friends made for the cause.

The second Sunday of our meetings the Barberton, Ohio, Branch orchestra came over and gave us music. We surely appreciate this. The same evening Patriarch Gomer T. Griffiths, with Elder Harry Green and family of Canton, came in for the evening service.

The last Saturday evening of Brother Patterson's stay here a surprise was given him at the home of our pastor, R. A. Smith. Twenty-nine Saints and friends gathered there for a social time. Games were played, and while refreshments were being prepared Brother Patterson entertained them by imitating birds and animals. At the close of the evening a small gift was presented him as a slight token of the esteem in which he is held by both Saints and friends.

Sunday, June 29, there were only two families in attendance at church, the terrible storm which swept Ohio Saturday night making it impossible for the Saints on the north side of the city to get out. However, the Saints were not caused to suffer in a material way from the storm.

Fargo Loses Long-Time Workers

FARGO, NORTH DAKOTA, June 30.—Patriarch H. O. Smith favored the branch with a very pleasant and profitable visit recently. The sermons delivered were for the benefit of the Saints, and the lessons taught were filled with excellent, inspiring thoughts, filling the hearts of the Saints with more faith in God. He presented the word of God in such a way that it seemed to stir the very soul. The good Spirit of the Master was felt radiating from his presence. Several received their patriarchal blessings and feel to rejoice.

Sister Ferne Shackow has been elected superintendent of the Religio. Sister J. E. Wildermuth has recently moved to Aurora, Illinois. The Saints regret very much to part with Brother Wildermuth and family, as they have lived here for the past eighteen years and have kept the work alive by their untiring efforts. The Saints met one evening before their departure, under the supervision of the social committee of the Religio, on the lawn at Brother E. E. Weddle's home and enjoyed a picnic supper, after which a purse was presented to Brother and Sister Wildermuth by the Saints of the district to show appreciation of their labors and kindnesses.

The Department of Women also met at the home of Sister Wildermuth and enjoyed a social evening, presenting her with some gifts to show her the esteem in which she was held in this department. Best wishes go with them to their new home, that they may also accomplish a good work there.

Sister W. F. Dehn has been elected superintendent of the Sunday school in the place of Sister Hazel Coney who has moved to Milwaukee.

On Sunday, June 29, a Children's Day program was very well rendered and enjoyed by all.

Sister William Lindsey has organized a Sunshine Club among the smaller girls.

Our branch is much smaller than it has been, since so many have moved away, but those left are trying to keep the "home fires" burning and find comfort in the thought that God meets with two or three. Though the numbers may be small the works can, by united, earnest efforts, and faith in God, be great.

Novel and Ideal Celebration of Children's Day

FORT COLLINS, COLORADO, June 27.—Fort Collins Branch observed Children's Day June 15. At first thought of Children's Day program it seemed almost an impossibility, as there are so few children in the branch, and two thirds of them live in the country. However, Sister Clifford Cable was put in charge of the matter, and the outcome was pleasing to both old and young.

Sister Cable asked us to come to their country home for the day. The porch and lawn were beautifully decorated with flowers from the hills and mountains. Off to the right of us were the foothills of the Old Rockies, while behind us towered a great hill, and from somewhere came a cool, refreshing breeze all day. Everywhere the birds were singing.

What a delightful place in which to worship our Creator! The program was as follows:

Church school, ten o'clock; Children's Day program at eleven; basket dinner at half past twelve. Three children were baptized in the afternoon, followed by a confirmation and young people's meeting. After this was a sermon by Brother Clyde Bullard, formerly of Fort Collins, now of Chicago. The Fort Collins Saints admire and love this young man because of his integrity and devotion to the work of the Master.

Other visitors from away were Brother and Sister Keith Rogers, Brother and Sister Stevens and family, and Sister Helene Gibson, all of Greeley; and Brother and Sister Rogers, of Timnath, whose children contributed to the program.

The day was ideal, the program a treat, the dinner more than sufficient to satisfy "needs and just wants," and one was made to feel the day was well spent. No doubt as the Saints departed for their homes, they went thinking, humming, or singing "The end of a perfect day." Oh, that all Sabbath Days might be spent in as ideal a place and in such a perfect atmosphere for worship.

Northwestern Ohio District

BRADNER, OHIO, June 27.—A fine spirit prevailed at the two-day meeting which was held at Bradner, Ohio, June 21 and 22. Many present were surely made to feel the goodness of God towards mankind. Apostle J. A. Gillen, of Independence, Missouri, president of the Twelve, was among the unexpected out-of-town guests. His presence was much appreciated by the Saints and will long be remembered as being of a very spiritual nature. His counsel was to the point, yet he spoke with love and kindness.

Elder Hettrick, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, was also present, and being blessed with the spirit of prophecy, he spoke in tongues, giving the interpretation. He afterwards spoke words of comfort and counsel to Apostle J. A. Gillen.

The district was well represented, as nearly all branches responded. This meeting has surely been a feast to our souls, and we hope to continue to grow in love and in harmony with God's great laws and strive daily to keep his commandments. By so doing we each shall be able to do our bit towards the establishment of Zion. May God prosper us in the good work, and may it go on to victory is my prayer.

MRS. ORIA SMITH.

Glasgow Had Seven Attendants at Young People's Convention

GLASGOW, MONTANA, June 25.—James C. Page, correspondent for Glasgow, has been absent from the branch attending the Young People's Convention at Lamoni, Iowa. Seven from this branch went by motor car, a distance of thirteen hundred miles. On the way there the party stopped two days and held a convention with the young people of the Andes, Montana, Branch, which was a very happy and pleasant experience. On the return trip the party spent three days in attendance at the North Dakota reunion at Sykeston.

It would fill several HERALDS to tell all the good things that were seen and heard at the Young People's Convention. The prayer meetings were inspiring and uplifting, the preaching and class work expressed wonderful richness of thought, the social and recreational life was grand. It appeared in all to be the very peak of moral and spiritual life. The value of our Graceland to the church was greatly increased.

The branch meetings have gone on regularly. At the last prayer meeting, held at the home of Brother and Sister James McMurdo, it was difficult to find room and seats for all. A splendid spirit prevailed.

The crop prospect is very promising just at this time.

Next Sunday, June 29, the Sunday school will hold its election of officers. District reunion will be at Girard, Montana, July 8 to 13. Apostle Garver will be in attendance.

Ambitious for Success of the Church

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO, June 30.—To-day's mail carried my mite, recently called for, towards the solution of the program of the church. I trust that God out of his fullness will give abundantly of his wisdom to those who have the dispensing of the funds. I pray earnestly that God will help us lift our wills and our understandings up until within the radiance of divine light; and there, being able to discover the right and receiving of his love, wisdom, and strength, bring our wills and our understandings into his service.

Elder Bruce Brown works over the district much of the time, and we surely miss him. We find in both him and Sister Brown, faithful and efficient workers. Elder J. D. Curtis, now home for a few days, gave us two good sermons on Sunday, June 29.

Meanwhile the local force, all laboring men, are doing what they can for the work here. In the hope made possible by the gospel,

FLORENCE P. TEMPLETON.

Des Moines District News

DES MOINES, IOWA, July 2.—There were three baptisms in the week prior to June 1 in Des Moines: Mrs. Curry, last Sunday, and two young people yesterday, Mrs. Lela Docstader, wife of Brother Ammon Docstader, and Rhodes Burton, who just recently married one of our Des Moines girls.

We were pleased to greet Brother Ray Chandler and family, of Chicago, at the services to-day. They were here visiting relatives, among others Brother and Sister Fred Chandler and daughter, also Brother Henry Castings and family.

We were also pleased to see Brother Fred Wells and daughter at the services, but were sorry to hear the reason of their being in Des Moines, Sister Wells having undergone an operation in the Lutheran Hospital during the week. We are pleased to hear that she was doing as well as could be expected.

Sister Larson, a young sister who has been working in Des Moines for several months, left to-day for ten days' visit at her home, after which she will go on to Chicago.

The services to-day were all well attended. A good Spirit prevailed at the sacramental service this morning.

The evening service was in honor of all our young people who were graduating from Des Moines school this year or had graduated in years past. All high school students were also seated in the same section with them. First was a short study session of the Religio, then the program in honor of the young people, which consisted of numbers by the orchestra, a talk to the graduates by Brother Joe Johnson, a response by John Baker, jr., a solo by Bernada Jordon, a reading by Matilda Johnson, and then a sermon to the young people on "What the church expects of you," by Brother Dowker.

June 8 was Children's Day in Des Moines. The children put on an excellent program, and all present enjoyed themselves. The attendance would have been better if the weather had not been so unfavorable.

At the Religio that evening Miss Ritchie and a trio of her pupils, Miss Jennie Deyoe, William Mehlhott, and Keith Davis put on a very excellent program.

The meetings June 15 were of the usual order, although we noticed several absentees and a few visitors. Among the visitors were Brother and Sister Frank Mussell from Independence, and Brother Fred Mussell, who were visiting home folks. We also noticed Sister Blanche Parker who is here visiting her parents.

John Rudkin took his Sunday school class out Saturday afternoon for a fishing trip and a weiner roast. They all report a splendid time.

Brother E. O. Clark was in Perry yesterday. Brother Oren Allen has been visiting in Chicago and other points for the last two weeks, also attending the convention at Lamoni. He arrived home last night.

Some of our young people who attended the convention were Steven Robinson, Annie Maitland, Ruth Mussell, Brother and Sister Leonard Bish, and Oren Allen. Also Brother and Sister Dowker and the girls were there over Sunday.

Brother and Sister Arthur Cochran have been visiting in Kansas City for two weeks but are back home again.

Things have been very quiet in Des Moines the last two weeks. On Sunday, June 22, Brother E. O. Clark was the speaker at the morning hour and Brother Norman Anderson at night. June 29 Brother Lentell was the morning speaker, and Brother Dowker occupied in the evening. Brother Dowker also preached at Sandyville in the afternoon.

Brother Clark announced at the morning service that the receipts of the offerings in June had amounted to over $900, and he had strong hopes of it reaching the $1,000 mark before the evening of June 30.

Des Moines friends were glad to welcome Sister Hazel Epperson Benson at the service June 29. Her home is in Omaha.

Sister Davis's Religio class can surely be commended for enthusiasm and desire to team. They study the Book of Mormon and Religio Quarterly at Religio, and meet one night each week now to study the Doctrine and Covenants with Brother Earl Hall as teacher.

A Report of the German Mission

GREAT WURTENBERG, June 6.—I am still in Wurtemberg, where the beginning of a new branch was made. The Lord has opened the door and given the residents grace which led to repentance, so that I have baptized and confirmed twenty-two souls in the name of the Lord.

The Lord poured out a great blessing on the people here, and more baptisms will follow. There is a great work for the Lord to be done here, but the struggle is hard. Please pray for the German mission that we may all succeed. The Spirit of the Lord is poured out over the land so that it is easy for the people to understand and comprehend our teaching.

May the Lord bless his work through his messengers. Great joy came to us that in all the churches in the land we were permitted to recognize the gospel.

In the Mangschutz Branch I was able to set everything in order, and confirmed one, ordained one elder, and ordained the professor a priest. The way to Polen the Lord had to open. I was arrested, locked up, and on the second day released. So the way was opened for me to go to Polen. God works wonders as he did in former times through his ministers when they endure everything patiently.

The new branch in _____ by Senftenberg, which was organized before Easter, is making good progress. The Lord blesses his work in Germany.

With best greetings from Germany,

Your colaborer,

F. SMOLNIG.

Joyfield Participates in Sunday School Convention

ELBERTA, MICHIGAN, July 2.—The members of Joyfield Branch are still doing their bit to help the gospel work along.

At the Blaine-Joyfield Sunday school convention, which was held June 22 at the Joyfield Methodist Church, our Sunday school was asked to take part. One of our eight-year-old pupils spoke the twenty-third psalm as a recitation.

A new roof has been put on the church, and it surely improves the looks of the building very much.

For the month of June, $19.50 was sent in as tithing. We hope to be able to do more in the future and go "Onward and Upward."

Good Conference at Pensacola

PENSACOLA, FLORIDA, July 3.—The Saints of Pensacola are rejoicing in the fact of having enjoyed the first conference held in this city. Brother Will West, president of the district, presided. We were very much pleased to have as visitors those of the priesthood, Brethren J. W. Rushton, Alma Booker, and A. D. McCall; also a number of Saints from different localities.

After the close of conference, Brother Rushton remained for a period of two weeks, giving us a series of very educational sermons from which the Saints as a whole expressed themselves as being greatly benefited.

During this time we were duly organized as a branch, Elder D. M. Rudd still occupying the office as presiding elder.

A number of enjoyable outings were given while Brother Rushton was with us, one of which was a twenty-mile trip over the Gulf Beach Highway. Having reached the gulf, most of the crowd donned their bathing suits and enjoyed real surf bathing until about nine o'clock. Then we spread supper on the beach, completing our feast just in time to reach cover from a very severe electric storm. All were glad to get home after such a thrilling experience.

After having the enjoyment of the sermons and social events, we were sorry indeed to have to part with Brother Rushton, but we know that the workers are few and the fields are white to harvest, so we are hoping he can soon return again.

MRS. L. F. McBRIDE.

Home-Coming at Lees Summit Branch

LEES SUMMIT, MISSOURI, July 2.—Sunday, June 29, was home-coming in the Lees Summit Branch. It was a cool, sunshiny day, just such a one as to make every one enjoy himself. At a quarter of ten Sunday school was held as usual. At eleven o'clock President Elbert Smith delivered a very impressive sermon to a large audience, many of whom were visitors who had come to enjoy the home-coming with old friends and acquaintances.

After the sermon we adjourned to meet in our little city park, where we partook of a bountiful repast. When the table was spread Elder C. Depuy delivered a welcome address.

After dinner we again assembled in church and listened with pleasure to a sermon by Elder J. W. A. Bailey. Following Brother Bailey's discourse Brother W. H. Kelley, the first pastor of Lees Summit Branch, gave us a short talk on the beginning of our work here. This was very interesting to all present.

The evening service was mainly composed of musical numbers. Those taking part were: Mrs. Pearl Crick, Mrs. Helen Kennedy, Mrs. Margaret Simmons, Miss Bertha Mengel, and Alvin Balchen, violinist. After the musical program Brother Bailey again occupied for a short time.

The Saints at Lees Summit wish to thank Brethren Smith, Bailey, Kelley, the musicians, and all who helped to make the day a real home-coming by attending. Come again.

Encouraging Conditions at Modesto

MODESTO, CALIFORNIA, June 28.—The branch at Modesto is going along as usual. The Saints here have had visits from some of the Stockton Saints and from Brother Aylor of San Diego, who was here on a business trip. Also Doctor Bush and family of Berkeley spent one Sunday here.

The prayer meetings are quite well attended, and those who come are repaid, for the meetings are good with a splendid spirit prevailing.

The Department of Recreation and Expression had a pie social during the month. The main feature of the program was a debate. A pleasant social evening was enjoyed.

The Saints here are generally in good health. Fruit season is on with a splendid crop and good prices.

Bishop Fisher Welcomed at Groton

GROTON, CONNECTICUT, July 2.—Bishop Myron C. Fisher, of Somerville, Massachusetts, delivered two interesting discourses to the Saints of New London Branch Sunday, June 8. The Saints here had been looking forward to this visit from Brother Fisher for some time and were delighted to see him.

A Children's Day program followed the preaching service in the morning.

A church supper was served Tuesday evening, June 24, at the home of Captain E. F. Griffin, of Groton. This supper was given for the benefit of the building fund. There was a liberal menu, the attracting feature of which was strawberries and cream. A goodly number of Saints and neighbors attended. Donations were received to the amount of about $28.

A few of the Saints expect to attend the Onset reunion.

Iowa Saints Raise Money to Help

ACKWORTH, IOWA, July 1.—We enjoyed good meetings at Sandyville Sunday, June 29. Brethren Dowker, Henry Castings, Steve Robinson, and Doctor Hull were the speakers of the day, and it was indeed a feast to our hungry souls.

One lady, a nonmember, who was there said she enjoyed every minute of the day. So it is the work is moving on, the honest in heart are being brought in, and though our branch is small and scattered we have a work to do, and we do thank our heavenly Father for the blessings he gives us when we meet together in his name.

Something over eighty dollars was given to help pay off the church debt. While some are handicapped and cannot give and help financially as they would like, we trust the time may soon come when our families will be united in this great work and we can work together for the good of all.

Doctor Hull read such a beautiful poem Sunday entitled,

"Not understood." May we all remember and sing the song of "Admonition" and be very careful how we think and speak of our brother and sister, remembering that "none can assist in this work except he be humble and full of love."

Another all-day meeting will be held at Sandyville July 13. Everyone should come who can and help boost for the Runnells reunion. We have the promise that Brother and Sister Lentell and Brother Robinson, of Des Moines, will be with us that day.

May the faithful and untiring efforts of our missionary in charge, Brother Norman Anderson, be crowned with success, and may the Lord abundantly bless him and his dear companion for the sacrifices they have made to see the work carried on at Sandyville. Let us all be doers of the word and not forgetful hearers.

Women and Boys of Saint Thomas Raise Money

SAINT THOMAS, ONTARIO, July 4.—On June 21, the Department of Women held a food and apron sale on the city market with excellent results, about eighteen dollars being realized. On different occasions Sunday school classes and our Department of Women have conducted these food sales to advantage.

"The Busy Bees," a Sunday school class of boys aged eleven and twelve years, recently conceived of a novel way to help the Christmas offering. They distributed little bags made of pretty-colored materials among the members of the Sunday school. Inside each bag was a polite little note, asking the recipient to donate five cents for each foot he was high. They collected about seven dollars.

At the first of the year the Sunday school set one hundred dollars as their objective for Christmas offering, but ere now a considerable amount above this sum has been realized.

Brother William Freele and Sister Verlyn Else are seriously ill and have been for some months.

Sister Mary E. McGillivary passed away on June 8 after an illness of over three months.

Celebration Successful at Colorado Springs

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO, July 5.—The Saints celebrated the Fourth by engaging in a picnic under the auspices of the Sunday school at the ranch of Brother Gamet. There were about one hundred twenty-five Saints and nonmembers present, and all expressed themselves as having a good time. Arriving at the grounds shortly before noon, the men engaged in a volley ball game, after which all repaired to the spread, of which there was a great plenty.

Immediately after lunch the branch chorister led a few patriotic songs. Prayer was offered by Elder J. D. Curtis, after which Brother B. E. Brown gave a few appropriate remarks. "The battle hymn of the Republic" was the closing song, and we were dismissed by the superintendent. The rest of the day was turned over to the recreations committee, who arranged the sports in a very able manner.

Colorado Springs has been favored with visits from Brother Barraclough, who is on his way to California, and Brother Bert Meyers, of Oklahoma.

There comes to our desk a report of the wedding of Nora Edith May Schrank to Elder Percy E. Farrow, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Sister Otto Schrank, Warton, Ontario, June 9. Brother Farrow is a son of the late Brother and Sister Edward Farrow, of Warton. Elder Grant St. John, uncle of the groom, officiated. The bride and groom left for points in the North.

Accident and Death to Saints of Vancleave Branch

OCEAN SPRINGS, MISSISSIPPI, July 3.—The Vancleave Branch and community have been shocked and saddened by the unexpected death of one of our beloved sisters. Sister Julia Cochran, wife of Brother R. T. Cochran, met her death when thrown from a buggy by a runaway horse on the morning of June 25. Brother Cochran was also thrown from the buggy and was unconscious for some time. Upon regaining consciousness he found his wife dying. Sister Cochran leaves four daughters and four sons. All were present at the funeral except Mrs. Bennie Lou Judson, of Mount Ayr, Iowa, and Helen, who is in a sanitarium in Meridian, Mississippi.

Sister Judson, her husband, and baby son spent a few weeks at home recently. Five years ago Bennie Lou left home to enter Graceland, and this was her first visit home since that time. The home folks and Saints were very glad to see her again and become acquainted with her little family, which she acquired since leaving home.

The branch recently held an ice cream social for the benefit of the reunion fund. Although the weather was very unfavorable, twenty-nine dollars was cleared.

The Sunday school will hold a picnic and fish fry on the Fourth.

Recent visitors to our branch have been Mrs. F. B. Smith, of Escatawpa, Mississippi; Mrs. Clara Goff and three small sons, of McLain, Mississippi; and Miss Arista Goff, of Jackson, Mississippi. All were former members of this branch.

Elder N. L. Booker, who has been doing missionary work in Grand Cayman Island in the West Indies for several months, is expected home this week. He and Elder J. Charles May landed in Tampa, Florida, June 26.

Loren, the son of Brother and Sister C. H. Ruble, was laid away on June 28. He had been a sufferer for three years. It was sad to see one so young—he was just twenty-one years old—taken from this life, yet we must bow in submission to the will of God.

Holden Stake Items

Sedalia

Our two-week series of meetings, with Elder R. D. Weaver as the speaker, closed last night. This has been a season of rejoicing to the Saints here, and while there have been no baptisms as yet, several are deeply interested and we feel that seed has been sown that will bring forth fruit. The members here, through their association with him and through his wonderful presentation of the gospel message, have received that inspiration that will help them to come up higher.

Sunday, June 30, after Sunday school, five auto loads of Saints and friends drove to Fairplay Schoolhouse, north of Sedalia, where we were met by Saints from Marshall, Houstonia, and Nelson, over one hundred in all. After enjoying a basket dinner on the lawn, we entered the schoolhouse, where Brother Weaver delivered a wonderful discourse, taking for his text, Hebrews 2: 3, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" Also Hosea 4: 6, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge" and the lack of application of knowledge received. A goodly degree of the Spirit was present, and the meeting was enjoyed by all. Arrangements were made to hold meetings there the second Sunday of each month.

Brother M. F. Ferguson and family, from Holden, Missouri, moved into our midst last week, and we welcome them among us.

Brother O. M. Carpenter was called to Madison, Wisconsin, owing to the serious illness of his brother.

Brother R. D. Weaver was called to Traverse City, Michigan, on account of the illness of his wife's mother, so our services have been closed for the present. Brother Weaver does not expect to be back in the State until the middle of August.

Warrensburg

Brother and Sister W. S. Macrae went to Independence Sunday, July 6.

Brother and Sister Nalmer Johnson and daughters, Bertha and Edna, are on a visit to Chetek, Wisconsin.

Brother and Sister Duckett and family, from Phoenix, Arizona, have lately moved here, locating on a farm a few miles northwest of town.

Brother and Sister Kennicutt and family have moved to Independence.

Brother and Sister Walter Johnson and baby are visiting her parents at McCracken, Kansas.

Lees Summit

At our home-coming yesterday we had a very fine time. We had speaking three times. Brother Elbert A. Smith gave us a fine talk at eleven o'clock and J. W. A. Bailey at three o'clock. We had a splendid lunch out in the city park. Brother Elbert, wife, mother, and son, stayed with us until late in the afternoon. There were several from Independence and Kansas City present. The day was ideal, which made the whole program more enjoyable.

Central Nebraska Young People Conduct Street Service

INMAN, NEBRASKA, July 7.—The reunion of the Central Nebraska District has opened at this place with an unusual portion of the good Spirit present. The sessions began Saturday morning on schedule time with a prayer meeting in charge of Brethren Levi Gamet and Frank Cochran, of the district presidency. The hearts of all present were cheered by the good Spirit, which gave promise of abundant blessing through the reunion.

Following the prayer service the organization of the reunion was effected by choosing the district presidency to preside and make all appointments. Elder George Jenkins, missionary of the district, was chosen secretary and publicity agent, but before the day closed Brother Jenkins received a message calling him to the bedside of his aged brother in Monterey, California.

In the meantime, Brother C. B. Woodstock had arrived to assist in representing the departments of church work at the reunion and was made official secretary and reporter. Brother Jenkins left on the night train for the West. His ministry in the district has endeared him to all, and his leaving was much regretted.

Attendance at the Sunday services was good considering the scattered condition of the membership and the uncertainty of the weather and crops. Ninety were reported at the Sunday school session.

On Saturday Brother Arnold Breitenbach, of Springfield, South Dakota, was baptized in the Elkhorn River by Brother Jenkins. He was confirmed at the sacramental service Sunday morning, and his youngest son, Harold, was blessed. Brother Breitenbach is the husband of Sister Florence Crossley Breitenbach who attended Graceland some years ago. In her love for the gospel she has maintained her faith and now rejoices that her faith and prayer have been rewarded, and she is joined in the work by her husband who should make a staunch defender of the church.

A beautiful spirit of peace, hope, and confidence prevails throughout the services, the preaching of the word bringing light and comfort to the Saints. Elder P. R. Burton is presenting a series of characteristically strong missionary sermons each evening which are attractively advertised on billboards about town. A number of outsiders are attending.

Brother Jenkins preached the opening sermon Saturday morning, and Patriarch Joshua Carlile arrived in time to preach a sound gospel sermon to an appreciative audience Sunday morning. His fatherly advice and sound logic make his sermons a decided asset to the reunion. The Sunday afternoon sermon was by Elder C. B. Woodstock.

The afternoon service each week day will be devoted to the discussion of departmental work by local leaders and those in charge. At four o'clock the young people and those who desire to remain young and active will engage in organized play.

On Monday evening several auto loads of young people will drive to Page, a near-by town, to conduct a street service of song, advertising the missionary services of the reunion.

Each morning, during the regular preaching hour, Sister Sarah Butler, a kindergartner trained under Sister Walter W. Smith, of Independence, and who will teach kindergarten in Lamoni, Iowa, next year, will conduct a junior church for the children. She will be assisted by helpers as needed. Sister Butler is a young woman of ability, willing to consecrate her effort in service to the church. She comes from the Young People's Convention, eager to make such contribution as her preparation may warrant.

The church building at Inman very comfortably houses the reunion attendance at regular services, especially giving protection from the hosts of hungry mosquitoes which gather every evening for a daily banquet. A number of small tents are in use, and a large vacant residence has been rented which affords excellent rooming privileges for visitors. In this building good meals are served at twenty-five cents each. Much of the food is contributed by resident families, and visitors are cared for at low rate. Sister Macy Kelley is in charge of the meals and is rendering a most valued service.

Several auto loads are expected from Valentine and other points during the week. A young people's program will be rendered on Saturday evening. Monday afternoon Brother and Sister P. R. Burton will discuss "The part of our young people in the program of the church."

Doctor Walter Briggs, of Ewing, Nebraska, brother of George N. Briggs, president of Graceland College, has been invited to address the reunion on Wednesday as part of the health program.

C. B. WOODSTOCK, Secretary.

Many Active at Sioux City

SIoux CITY, IOWA, July 3.—On an announcement pamphlet put out each week by the Saints of this place (which contains the coming week's program, changes in addresses of the Saints, and news items), the following program is scheduled for July 6: Sacramental services will be in charge of G. M. Vandel, pastor. A priesthood meeting will be held at a quarter of one, Religio at a quarter of seven, and preaching at eight o'clock by Elder Ned O. Calhoun on the subject, "Love divine."

Young people's prayer meeting will be at the church on Wednesday evening, and the Department of Women will meet in the sewing room of the church on Thursday afternoon.

Patriarch H. O. Smith is expected to visit in Sioux City in the near future and will be prepared to give patriarchal blessings to those desirous of receiving them.

Sister Blanche Smith and family are visiting with relatives in Correctionville, Iowa.

The Temple Builders are planning on giving their drama, "The church fair," at Pisgah, Iowa. Besides enjoying the trip, a little profit in part of the receipts should reimburse them for any expense incurred.

Omaha Changes Pastors

OMAHA, NEBRASKA, July 8.—Thursday afternoon, June 12, about forty of the women of the Omaha Branch met at the church in a farewell party complimentary to Sister T. J. Elliott, who has been for so long an appreciated and valuable unit in our midst. The purse of money presented to her at that time was but an extremely slight token of the regard in which she is held and the affectionate regret her leaving has occasioned. The family left on Saturday, June 14, Brother Isaac Sylvester taking them as far as Independence in his car. The good wishes of the entire branch go with Brother Elliott and his family to their new home in Providence, where we know they will quickly establish themselves in the affection and regard of the Saints. Howard remains in Omaha for the present, however, a cause for congratulation for the branch.

Sisters Grace Oathout and Rogene Anderson, and Brothers Howard Elliott and Duane Anderson were those of our number who were fortunate enough to attend the Young People's Convention at Lamoni. From the glowing accounts they have brought back, we feel sure they have been blessed in attending and that their vision of our church work and its many opportunities has been enlarged by the experience.

Three young members of our branch were graduated from the Omaha high school on June 13. They are Lois, daughter of Brother and Sister R. W. Scott; Muriel, daughter of Brother and Sister Carl T. Self; and Harrison, son of Mr. John and Sister Doris Fryxell. All three of these young people are active in the Sunday school and musical circles of the branch, and we rejoice in their success. Last year Brother Howard Elliott, Brother Everett Gidley, and Sister Elma Hicks were among the graduates of our high school, and in January Brother Richard Wrenn completed a course at Omaha's technical high school. Young people who have the desire to develop their powers, educationally and practically, are a distinct asset to the church, and when devotion and consecration are added, what heights are too great for them to reach?

June 15 was Children's Day. A most successful program was given by the children under the direction of Sister Roland W. Scott. The decorations were in pink and white, again being the result of thought and labor on the part of our superintendent, Sister Rose Adams, and her cheerful spouse, Brother Thomas M. Among the visitors that day were Brother G. Parman and Sister Helen Davidson, both of Independence. The evening sermon was by Carl Self, high priest, on the subject, "The early Saints in Iowa and Nebraska."

Tuesday, June 17, marked the coming to Omaha of Brother and Sister Peter S. Whalley, whom the church appointing powers have sent to this branch. A mass meeting of the membership was held on the evening of Friday, June 20, to welcome these devoted laborers to our midst. B. M. Anderson, branch president, had charge, calling on various ones for words of greeting. Brother Carl Self, speaking for the priesthood, pledged hearty support for the new pastor; Sister Adams, for the Sunday school, expressed pleasure at his coming, and the hope that there would be close and helpful cooperation between the Sunday school and the branch work; likewise, Brother Henry Merchant for the Department of Recreation and Expression, and Sister Grace Thiehoff for the Department of Women, offered warm welcome and earnest support. Brother Whalley's response was full of deep feeling and appreciation, and he promised to spend himself freely in service, as God found work for him to do. The speeches were interspersed with musical numbers and one reading, Sister Anna Self, one of our youngest pianist, Brother R. W. Scott, and Sister Nelle Kelley furnishing the former and Sister Lois Wrenn the latter. The Department of Women furnished refreshments following the formalities, and a splendid social hour was enjoyed.

Brother Hale W. Smith and wife made us a brief but pleasant call on the 18th, attending the prayer service and renewing old acquaintances in this, the city of their initial wedded happiness. Brother Hale, in his testimony, spoke graphically of the many changes he noted, congratulated us on our little church building, and expressed deep and abiding confidence in the ultimate triumph of the latter-day cause.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, to establish his righteousness," was the subject chosen by Brother Whalley for his initial sermon in this place, Sunday morning, June 22. It was a fine effort and well received. That evening a fifty-one-mile gale, accompanied by considerable lightning and rain, put our lights out of commission. Religio services were omitted, but the thirty who were present at eight o'clock joined in singing hymns in the dark, followed by a deeply interesting talk by our pastor, descriptive of some of his experiences in the service of the British Crown.

On Friday evening, June 27, the branch met in a memorial service, commemorative of what happened just eighty years ago that afternoon, at Carthage, Illinois. Brother Whalley spoke of the character of Joseph Smith, the founder of the church; Sister Adams told of the call which came to him as a youth and his effort to prepare himself for service; Brother Merchant told of the prophecies delivered by the Martyr and bore a personal testimony as well as that of his father, by proxy, to the divinity back of this work so established; Sister Anderson sketched briefly the scenes and events of that fateful June 27, as well as portraying some of the ancestral lines back of the men who that day sealed with their blood their life work. The emotions brought into play by these talks were beautifully crystallized in the solo which followed, when Sister Doris Fredrick sang, "I came to the spot where the two Martyrs lay." It is fitting that, for the sake of the young ones among us, we pause occasionally to review the events of the past, and to make live before us again some of the spirit which moved those who have made the supreme sacrifice in order that that gospel which is precious to us might have its place in the world.

Sunday evening, June 29, a sacred concert marked the culmination of several weeks of preparation on the part of our young people. Quartet, duet, solo, and chorus numbers were pleasingly grouped, each one being presented with artistic finish and beauty. Brother Harry Greenway, directing, has every reason to be proud of his choir of thirty-five young voices, and the branch is looking forward to an ever-increasing satisfaction in their ability and achievement. The gift of music is like none other, a gift straight from the throne of glory if ever one originated there. Our young people should be given that vision of those gifts which will cause them to consecrate their talents to the highest and worthiest purposes. A sacred song, ringing truly from a heart filled with righteous desires, blesses both those who sing and those who hear. We should be satisfied with nothing unworthy in the line of music. The singers who assisted in the recent concert by special numbers were Sisters Fleming, Fredrick, Francis, and Edwards, and Brethren Fredrick and Greenway. Sister Lois Scott accompanied at the piano.

A complete report of the building fund made at the Wednesday evening prayer service, July 2, showed a comfortable little balance as a nest egg towards building the upper part of the structure so well begun—a part already much needed. The branch, by rising vote, expressed its confidence in Brother Whalley as pastor and their willingness to sustain and support him in his efforts to minister here. Brother Whalley has arranged one corner of the church as his study and announces his hours there are from eight o'clock in the morning to noon each day, inviting any who wish to come to him with problems or for help of any kind. The afternoons he spends in visiting, Sister Whalley accompanying him on these missions. It is a full day, and these energetic young easterners are rapidly becoming acquainted with our city and their new charge.

A "house-cleaning bee" on Saturday, July 5, was followed by a shining Sabbath. Sunday school lessons were shortened a bit to permit of a special ceremony, in which a beautiful flag was presented to the church by nine Latter Day Saint women who are members of a local chapter of Daughters of American Revolution, viz, Cloe Fleming, Hazel Hart, Mabel Yonker, Minnie B. Nicholson, Vida E. Smith, Mabel Warnky, Doris Fredrick, Bertha Hulmes, and Audentia Anderson. The presentation speech was made by Sister Anderson, who is Regent of the Major Isaac Sadler Chapter, of which the sisters are members. She gave a brief history of the development of "Old Glory," and more briefly sketched the services of these men in that early day, which their descendants were happy to commemorate in this way. The flag is of silk, thirty-two by forty-eight inches, on a seven-foot standard, with metal base, surmounted by a gilt eagle and ornamented with a yellow silk cord and tassel, or "girdle." Standing at the right of the pulpit, a silent emblem of struggle, sacrifice, and suffering, for principles as dear to us as to those who saw it born, this lovely gift to the Omaha Branch was given a reverent salute by all the congregation, led by Sister Anderson, Sister Adams following with a few brief words of acceptance and appreciation.

Other visitors among us, besides those already mentioned, have been Sister Rilla Leeka, of Independence, Missouri; Sister Lorena Leeka, of Thurman, Iowa; Sister Gracia Dillon, of Hardin, Montana; Brother W. Douglas, of Saint Joseph, Missouri; Sister Lillian Farrar, of Washington, District of Columbia; Sister Bertha Hulmes and children of Independence, Missouri, and Brother and Sister Amos M. Chase of Tabor, Iowa, who came to "stir up some enthusiasm" about the coming reunion at Glenwood, to paint glowing pictures of its promised delights, and to extend a most cordial welcome to Omaha Saints to attend and enjoy.

And the tale ends with a joyful news of the arrival of a baby daughter at the home of Brother Jay Leeka and wife. May her coming be of heavenly record and her ministry throughout this earth life one of beauty, love, and happiness.

---

When we get to heaven, opportunities, so far as we can judge, will be gone forever of gladdening the heart of our Redeemer by trusting him when all seems wrong. Let us treasure them now. They are part of life's deepest wealth.—Charles G. Moore.

Independence

The first recreation night on the Campus was quite a success. Young people, numbering one hundred twenty-five, participated in the games under the various aspects provided.

An ice cream and cake sale, by the adult class taught by Brother Charles Edmunds, will be held on the east lawn of the Stone Church, Thursday evening. The orchestra will contribute the program, and the proceeds will be for the benefit of the orchestra and Christmas offering of the class.

In Saturday's ball games the South Side beat I. X. L. Class on the Campus 6 to 5, while the Standards won over the Bar Gars 9 to 3 at the same place. On Scott Avenue the Herald team lost to the Y. K. T. Class.

Pictures at the Campus Saturday evening were well attended, and from comments heard in various quarters, we believe were well received. As to getting faultless pictures, the chance is small; but when such pictures as "A tailor-made man" can be shown, there is much to be gained for the community. We expect to see the day when Christian people will produce community pictures; when the drama may be welcomed, not feared; and when the attendance will tax the capacity which it is possible to accommodate.

Brother George A. Gould and family have left for a two weeks' touring trip, expecting to visit in Toronto, Canada, before returning.

Misses Carol and Lillian Williams are visiting Brother and Sister Orris Albertson, of Battle Lake, Minnesota.

Miss Irene, daughter of Sister J. E. Lane, was married at the Stone Church, Saturday evening, to Frank Freyler of Overland Park, Kansas.

Sister Sarah Dowker died at the home of her niece, Sister B. C. Harder, Friday afternoon. Two sisters, Miss Susie Elliott and Mrs. Mary Cunningham, and a brother, Joseph Elliott, all of Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin, survive her. Funeral was at Liberty Street Church, Sunday at half past three.

Brother G. J. Waller, of Honolulu and San Francisco, stopped in Independence Saturday. He was on his way to London, England, where his wife has been receiving treatment for her eyes, which treatment has proved successful.

The morning preaching hour in the various churches was occupied as follows: Stone Church, S. A. Burgess; Second Church, William H. Kelley; Liberty Street, Brother Stevenson; Walnut Park, Hale W. Smith; East Independence, A. H. Parsons; Englewood, J. A. Roberts; Enoch Hill, J. V. Roberts; and Charles May at Spring Branch.

There were two baptisms last week in Second Branch; Beatrice Lambert was baptized Saturday and confirmed at the young people's prayer meeting at eight o'clock Sunday morning; Brother James Foulks baptized Sister Bell Brown on Sunday and she was confirmed at the meeting at half past two.

Brother Fred W. Lanpher was obtained at the eight o'clock prayer service at Walnut Park Sunday morning. For the rest of the summer the Sunday prayer service at this church will be held at eight o'clock in the morning instead of in the afternoon.

Brother William Bath continued his missionary sermons Sunday evening at East Independence on the subject "Apostasy," this same subject being used by Brother Parsons in the morning.

There will be a business meeting at East Independence next Sunday morning after the preaching hour; this has to do with the new church building. The girls of this congregation held a social Monday evening.

Brother Hale W. Smith preached at Enoch Hill Sunday evening.

Elder J. E. Warne, pastor of Englewood, has gone to In-

REUNION NEWS

Best Reunion Ever at Chetek

CHETEK, WISCONSIN, July 7.—The Chetek reunion, which I have attended the last week, came to a close last night. It was said to be the best reunion in every way ever held in the district, including the meals served and the order and arrangements for physical as well as spiritual well-being. The speakers included President F. M. McDowell, Apostle J. F. Garver, and Patriarch W. A. McDowell.

It was a spiritual as well as mental feast, the speakers being blessed with power in the sermons and lectures. The prayer services were all very uplifting and edifying, God speaking in admonition to some and to the Saints in general. All present seemed to feel that the Lord is at the helm, and will carry us, as a church, through the storm and stress to victory.

LESTER O. WILDERMUTH.

Northern Wisconsin Reunion

The Northern Wisconsin reunion came to a close on July 7 after ten days of spiritual uplift to all who attended, and it was a decided success in every way. The organization of the program had begun several weeks previously, and the committee are to be commended for having arranged all things in perfect order for comfort and convenience.

The auditorium had also been very nicely decorated by Sister Lucy Mair and afforded a very welcome and homelike atmosphere. The dining hall and kitchen service were excellent, and as Brother Garver put it, "I don't see how it could be any better."

The weather was rather cool in the beginning, but soon the diana to visit his parents. He expects to be gone two weeks. Others are missed from our group who are away on their vacations.

The Sunday school of Englewood on July 13 was well attended, but neither the prayer meeting of Wednesday night nor Religio of Friday night are very well attended.

The sermon by President F. M. Smith on the Campus Sunday evening was sadly interrupted by a rain. He had just nicely started when a sprinkle came, and soon "more than a sprinkle" sent the open-air congregation homeward.

President Elbert A. Smith preached in Tulsa, Oklahoma, Sunday. Bishop Keir was also in Oklahoma recently on church business. Brother McGuire was at Inman, Nebraska, the last of the week participating in the reunion there.

Brother J. A. Gillen is just leaving to attend some Canadian and Michigan reunions, and the Kirtland reunion. Brother R. S. Budd will be seen at some of the western reunions, while Brother J. F. Garver is among those in the Northern Central States. Brother D. T. Williams has been laboring with Brother W. Anderson in a series of missionary services in California. Brother J. W. Rushton was recently in Coldwater, Florida. Brother T. W. Williams left Tuesday to attend southern reunions. Brother F. Henry Edwards preached twice in Holden Sunday, at the church in the morning and at the Old Folks' Home in the afternoon.

The bond proposition for the enlarging of the Junior High School and the erecting of a new grade school at Cottage and Alton Avenue carried with a big majority. Independence also expressed herself by a large vote that she desired the Memorial in the shape of a community building.

sun began to shine more each day. Only those who attend reunions at Chetek can fully appreciate the beautiful location of the park, bordering on the lake, with its trees, birds, electric lights, fine water, and every convenience for one's comfort.

The prayer services for both young and old proved to be of a very spiritual nature. The subjects, such as "Spiritual guidance," "Looking for the beautiful," "Gratefulness," "Liberty," "Loyalty," etc., were usually chosen by those in charge.

The Lord revealed his mind in tongues, prophecy, and admonition to individuals as well as the assembly, telling his people he was pleased with their gathering and that greater blessings were awaiting his people if they would live humbly and faithfully before him.

We had for our speakers Elders W. A. McDowell, Floyd M. McDowell, J. F. Garver, Lester Wildermuth, E. J. Lenox, and A. L. Whitaker, who very ably presented such subjects as "What have you in your hand?" "Building the kingdom of God," "Faith," "Repentance," "Dying to self," "Born again," "Occupy till I come," "Greater vision," "Consecration," "Stewardships," and many others.

